

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2014

<https://archive.org/details/christiansun86gene>

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1934.

NUMBER 1.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Happy New Year.—

The Managing Editor of THE SUN wishes for each and everyone of its readers a New year filled with happiness, peace and prosperity!

Rumor No. 3,467-A.—

Business Week offers the following concerning General Johnson, which will be of especial interest to North Carolina readers: "That the eventual successor of General Johnson will be O. Max Gardner, former Governor of North Carolina. Gardner is closely associated with Southern textile mills, and also is interested in the rayon industry."

California University the Country's Largest.—

In the current issue of School and Society there is given a survey on registrations in American universities and colleges, made by President Raymond Walters of the University of Cincinnati. According to this survey, the University of California, from the standpoint of full-time students, is the largest in the United States, with an enrollment of 18,337. Columbia University is second, with 13,222; New York University, third, with 12,982, and the University of Minnesota is fourth, with 11,292. New York University ranks first in the total of all-resident students with 25,113, while Columbia stands second on this list with 24,357. The College of the City of New York ranks third in this list with 22,986, and California has 21,019. Dr. Walters' analysis, which is from statistics furnished by 546 approved universities and colleges, shows a decrease of 5 per cent in full-time students over last year.

Scrap Gold Only $22.80 An Ounce.—

While the Federal Government is paying in the neighborhood of $34.00 an ounce for newly-mined or foreign gold, the price of the same metal to the American public remains around the original $20.00 an ounce. Indeed, the government insists that it be surrendered at that price. The scrap prices maintained levels near those quoted by the Treasury until October 24th. At that time the RFC began buying newly-mined gold, which had before that been only accepted on consignment for sale in the world market, and immediately the price for the scrap gold began to fall. While "scrap gold" dealers are free to buy from whom-ever offers it, they may sell only to those authorized to use the metal in art or industry. This is setting up a "bear" market and still further reducing the demand. If conditions continue as they are and the ban against exporting gold continues, there is likelihood that there will be a situation where the government is paying nearly twice the former price for gold, while its citizens may not even be able to dispose of it at the old statutory value.

No Beer On Pennsylvania University Campus.—

This is the edict of Dr. George W. McClelland, vice-president of the University, in response to an effort to have beer sold in the University-owned stores maintained by the student club. Dr. McClelland says: "The provisions of the State law are, of course, mandatory and must be observed. Quite aside from any individual opinion as to whether beer is intoxicating, it cannot be legally sold or given away to minors. The average age of freshmen entering the University is 18 years and 3 months, which means that most freshmen, sophomores and juniors—a decided majority of undergraduate students—are within a class of persons to whom such is forbidden. Regardless, then, of its own clearly stated policy, the University could not put itself in the position of applying for a license to sell beer to its student body when such sale would be a violation of the positive statutes of the Commonwealth on the subject."

Seventy-Third Congress Convenes.—

When this issue of THE SUN reaches its readers, the Seventy-third regular session of the Congress of the United States will have begun. It is expected that Mr. Roosevelt, following the precedent set by Woodrow Wilson, will deliver a "key-note" address to the joint sessions of the House and Senate not later than Wednesday of this week. It is expected that liquor legislation will top the list of measures introduced. Mr. Roosevelt led the emergency session of the same Congress whither he would last spring, but predictions are that there will be some opposition to the President in the days that are to come. Among other things is a warning from Senator Dickinson of Iowa that he expects to introduce a bill repealing the National Recovery Act. Dickinson claims that this act has "handicapped recovery" and is "the greatest aid to monopolies and the consolidation of big business ever imposed upon the country." While there has been announced no concerted action by Republicans either in the House or Senate to oppose the administration program as a whole, there is no telling what may be the result if the top once blows off.

Two Remarkable Judicial Decisions.—

Clerk Stuart Jones, of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, was recently sentenced by Judge Ernest H. Welles, of Richmond Hustings Court, to six years in the penitentiary for "misappropriation" of State funds in his charge. Jones was convicted of taking around $15,000 on the first charge and was not tried for other counts which would run the total up to around $80,000. If he behaves himself well enough, the six years may be reduced, under the new State law, to three. If all goes well, the former clerk's remuneration will be something in the neighborhood of $25,000 a year. Yet another decision by a Richmond judge has caused this decision to be completely overlooked. Judge Julien Gunn, of the Richmond Circuit Court, has just allowed the receivers—the name sounds appropriate—of the closed American Bank and Trust Company, the sum of $20,000 each for the two having served seven months, in the neighborhood of $7,000 for a third who has served two months, and an additional $15,000 for lawyers to advise these receivers how to receive. The compensation in this instance amounts to around the rate of $35,000 a year, or $10,000 more than in the former decision. Of course, there is a distinction that must be clearly borne in mind. In one instance the felon pays by confinement in prison for money already received. In the other it is just a matter of compensation for "services" already rendered. The amount of compensation, in either case, seems all out of proportion to the time of service.

Bank Deposit Insurance in Effect.—

Beginning with the opening of the banks following the New Year's holiday, all accounts in Federal Reserve banks, with one exception, and in practically all of the State banks came under the new emergency law which insures bank accounts up to $2,500.00. It was intended by the banks to put into effect at the same time a number of service charges covering practically every operation entailing service to the customer. These charges, which in many cases, including the national tax, would have amounted to as high as eleven cents on a one-dollar check, were instituted, it is claimed, to conform with the banking code of the NRA. This has been denied by General Johnson, and such charges have been for the present held up. There is a possibility that they will be modified somewhat before going into effect the beginning of February. One thing is certain and that is that the depositor will have to pay for his insurance. The chances are good that the small depositor will have to pay more than his proportionate share, especially if the permanent law, passed by the last session of Congress, supercedes the emergency law next July. The one exception to the Federal Reserve banks mentioned above is the First National of Englewood, Ill. In refusing to join the insurance plan, the officials of the bank were quoted as saying that only coercion could bring them in. They asserted that it was an injustice to their institution to assess it for the purpose of insuring deposits in banks less ably managed, and added that their depositors needed no insurance as their bank could be made 100 per cent liquid in a week's time. Bankers, themselves, are divided in opinion as to the law.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

"I do not ask to understand,
My way to see;
Better in darkness just to feel thy hand,
And follow thee."

Elon College Church had a real community gathering and service at 11 A. M., Sunday, December 24th. Almost the whole community, both white and colored, attended the services and joined in the Christmas songs and worship of the hour. It was an appropriate service for the beginning of Christmas and celebrating the spirit of the season.

Rev. Ezra Young, a young man who has spent three years at Adana, in Turkey, during the most interesting piece of missionary work, is spending a few weeks in Florida, and is at the home of his parents in Dunedin. He will be a member of the faculty of the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies, which begin at Orlando, January 20th. Prior to that time, Mr. Young and Rev. Edwin E. White of Pleasant Hill, Tenn., will form a missionary team visiting several of our churches and especially heading World Friendship Rallies for young people under the direction of Miss Pattie Lee Coghill.

The Plymouth Church Calendar of Coconut Grove Church in Florida, prepared and printed by the pastor, Dr. J. Delman Kuykendall, is a beautiful and very significant Christmas remembrance that came to our desk. There is a page for each month and several pages have pictures of one of the most beautiful churches in the South. There are quotations on each page, one of which is from Dr. Kuykendall's pen, and they are certainly worth preserving. On the cover page, under the picture of the church, he says: "Beauty has a tremendous power to bind people together. The church building itself should be a place into which no one can come without being uplifted. It must be a spot where truth, beauty and love are found."

Rev. John Richmond, D. D., for several years pastor of the church at Ormond, Fla., passed away at his summer home in Pennsylvania, and the church at Ormond held a memorial service for him on December 17th, conducted by the pastor, Rev. George D. Owen, D. D. Dr. Richmond was a Presbyterian minister and always maintained his membership in that body, but during the years of his pastorate at Ormond he entered heartily into all Congregational affairs. He was a man of personal dignity, deep and sincere scholarship, and a man who won and held friends. After retiring from the church at Ormond he made his winter home at Daytona Beach, where he kept in touch with his old friends, who always delighted to honor him. Mrs. Richmond survives him.

Deep sympathy is felt for Rev. H. C. Caviness, whose mother departed December 16th. Says Brother Caviness in a recent personal letter: "My mother, to me the most precious of all women, died in Rex Hospital, Raleigh, and was buried December 17th, at Aberdeen, beside my father, Dr. I. W. Caviness, in the old Bethesda Presbyterian Cemetery. This is her first Christmas in heaven. We, with broken hearts and blinded eyes, can find no comfort, save in Him who is the 'God of all consolation.' Leaving us no material wealth, she gave me a heritage far greater than gold; having made a covenant of consecration with her God for me when I was a child which will yield dividends in the ages that roll on after time ceases its measurement by ticking clock or count of calendar. The day we laid her gently beside the dearest daddy any boy ever had, we whispered to him, who for 42 years has slept in this lonely place, 'Dad, we have brought her back to you.' And, thank God, there they lie, this Christmas Day, united for the first time in over 40 years in a blessed sleep which shall be unbroken until that glad, glorious morn of the first resurrection." Beginning January 7th, Brother Caviness is in a series of meetings at Tampa, Fla., and thence to St. Petersburg, and on later to Fort Meyer. He requests an interest in the prayers of CHRISTIAN SUN readers.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Compiled by WILLIAM THORNTON WHITSETT.

"Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."—Psalm 144:15.

"Abide thou with me, fear not."—I. Sam. 22:23.

"Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."—Thess. 5:21.

"Proclaim liberty throughout the land."—Lev. 25:10.

"You, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation."—Heb. 13:22.

"Now abideth Faith, Hope, Charity—these three."—I. Cor. 13:13.

"Every knee shall bow to me."—Rom. 14:11.

"Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation."—Matt. 26:41.

"Ye are brethren."—Matt. 23:8.

"Evil communications corrupt good manners."—I. Cor. 15:33.

"Abide in me, and I in you."—John 15:4.

"Rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory."—I. Peter 1:8.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

A WORD FROM SUFFOLK.

Just a word to say that Suffolk has pounded their preacher. Not that that is anything unusual for I understand that it is quite usual. But if you could have seen the automobile load of everything proper for a pounding—Suffolk ladies and Virginia gentlemen being the judges—you would have been thrilled also. Everything good and everything bountiful. And on that selfsame night, when the preacher and his wife were sitting back thinking how gracious it was, a knock at the door gave entrance to some fifty more folks fully equipped for the work of pounding a preacher.

But I was going to tell you about the Christmas dinner, served on Friday before Christmas in order that Mrs. Truitt, Ann Rawls and John, Jr., and I might have the privilege of spending Christmas Day at Mrs. Truitt's old home. Well, the turkey came "hot out of the oven of Mrs. Santa Claus," so we were told, and dressing, fruit cakes (notice the last letter of the foregoing word), and everything else remotely necessary.

What is a dinner like that without guests! So Mr. and Mrs. Brock D. Jones, parents of the preacher's wife, and their sons and daughters, and Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Johnson were invited to come in and rejoice—I mean, eat with us!

To my surprise, Dr. Johnson delivered to me, in the presence of all the guests, quite an array of fishing poles, hooks, lines, shrimp nets, paddle, and a "sheriff." (To the uninitiated, a "sheriff" is a contraption for unhooking your hook when it gets caught on a piece of brush beneath the water; called a "sheriff" by Dr. W. W. Staley, because "the gadget goes out and gets its 'man'.") And along with this equipment was the following instrument properly signed and dated:

To Whom It May Concern:
Know All Men by These Presents:

That Reverend John Galloway Truitt, of the City of Suffolk, State of Virginia, having received instruction in the art of fishing, and having satisfactorily demonstrated to his teacher ability to row a boat; catch fish; fitly and fully describe the manner and method of doing so, without prevarication or secret evasion of mind; and desiring to further pursue this ancient, free and accepted form of clerical and apostolic recreation, he is hereby granted permission to own and use his own fishing tackle without further restraint or objection.

(Signed) I. W. JOHNSON, Teacher.

Seriously and sincerely, it is a great inspiration to work in Suffolk. The records made by Dr. Staley and Mr. Hardcastle are inspiring, and are foundations on which only sincere, conscientious service can stand. The people are generous, kind, cooperative after a fashion unexcelled anywhere. Eagerly and humbly daily we seek to do our best to serve as we should, and we are sincerely and intensely grateful for the opportunity the field here affords.

JOHN G. TRUITT.

AT PRAYER MEETING.

When a good thing is said that might be beneficial, we should pass it along. I attended the mid-week prayer service of the Durham Christian Church recently. The exposition of the subject matter was so vivid and beneficial, I am impressed to send you something of it.

I did not take notes by shorthand or otherwise, only by memory. The narrative is familiar to all Bible readers; passing by the Red Sea, Exodus, part of verse 15, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." Dr. Harrell, the pastor, elaborated on the Israelites' bemoaning their condition, and censuring Moses for bringing them out of bondage, whining and complaining. They were pessimistic and almost unmanageable. He compared the present day with this same spirit, people becoming pessimistic, and surrendering to helplessness, making their condition worse, both spiritually and otherwise, seeking divine assistance without personal effort first.

He compared a farmer, who of his own knowledge was lazy, and would allow his farm to become infested with weeds and grass, then as a last resort would implore the help of his neighbors, and when they came and rendered assistance he would allow them to do all the work, and would make his rounds from one to the other and inject a pessimistic spirit to such an extent that he measureably inclined them to get into the same attitude that he was in.

The beautiful sentiment portrayed to the effect that we put forth efforts ourselves worthy of a believer in Christianity, moulding the church to a better spiritual atmosphere for service.

W. B. BAGWELL.

Durham, N. C.

A Quaker, once hearing a person tell how much he felt for another who was in distress, and needed assistance, dryly asked, "Friend, hast thee felt in thy pocket for him?"—Heart and Life.

SHALL WE CONDEMN OR CARRY ON?

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

I have been a close reader of the church press for many years. In addition to the several religious journals coming to my desk from various communions, I am a frequent reader of other church periodicals to which I have access in one of the country's great libraries.

On the liquor question, the church press has fallen into the habit of condemnation instead of condemnation and carry on. To condemn is not enough. Healthy criticism carries with it a plan, and we had just as well face the facts by acknowledging that the church has done more condemning than planning. No fair and open-minded man has failed to see this.

When the prohibition movement took definite form in the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment, religious leaders were too willing to turn the proposition over to the law. The educational side was overlooked. Today we have the result of that omission in the church's program. The church was satisfied to condemn; it did not visualize to carry on. And it can be said for a known fact that religious bodies have been freer in condemning public officials for what appeared to be failures upon their part in the enforcement of the prohibition laws than they have in pointing the way to a better solution of the problem.

The wets are making progress. Why? They have had a plan and a program and have executed them.

The church has been preaching the doctrine of confessing errors for hundreds of years. Is the church willing to practice its own doctrine, and like the sinners to whom it appeals, start over again in a new crusade of religious education to lift humanity above the evils of liquor? Let us be for something, not merely against something.

SUN PAYMENTS FOR DECEMBER, 1933.

During the month of December we received payments on subscriptions from fifty-eight, five of them being new subscriptions. In the adjoining column we are running a special announcement and subscription offer. We will greatly appreciate it if you who have sent in your renewals will see some friend who is a subscriber, but who has failed to send in their payment, and suggest that they do as you have done. It is not my paper, but mine and yours and theirs, all together, and I do so want to see it a success.

The labels on your copy of THE SUN have not been changed this week, due to the fact that the labels for the present week were printed before the Christmas holidays. Your label will be changed next week, however.

Check the list below, and if your name should be there, but is not, then let us know right away, and we will correct the mistake gladly.

Wishing you all a prosperous New Year, and one filled with joy and gladness, I am,

Sincerely yours,

JOHN T. KERNODLE,
Managing Editor.

- Toy Apple, Gibsonville, N. C.
- E. B. Bailey, Wakefield, Va.
- Mrs. J. L. Barksdale, Sutherland, Va.
- B. F. French, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.
- Mrs. L. H. Brantley, R. 1, Ivor, Va.
- Mrs. E. J. Brickhouse, Greenwood Apts., Norfolk, Va.
- Mrs. R. T. Bradford, R. 2, Suffolk, Va.
- T. M. Brady, R. 1, Bennett, N. C.
- Mrs. C. A. Brown, R. 1, Gibsonville, N. C.
- E. W. Brown, R. 1, Ramseur, N. C.
- R. T. Bowden, R. 1, Zuni, Va.
- Mrs. J. S. Bryant, Ivor, Va.
- George Cochran, R. F. D., Biscoe, N. C.
- A. I. Curling, 2531 Harrell Ave., Norfolk, Va.
- Jefferson Davis, Ingrams, Va.
- Mrs. W. A. Drake, R. 2, New Hill, N. C.
- J. G. Duck, Walters, Va.

- Mrs. T. A. Gilliam, R. 1, Altamahaw, N. C.
- W. S. Hand, Wadley, Ala.
- Mrs. C. T. Holt, 501 Davis Ave., Burlington, N. C.
- Mrs. Jane Huffines, R. 1, Elon College, N. C.
- J. C. Johnson, R. 1, Carrsville, Va.
- J. S. Kagey, 810 Wilson Rd., Norfolk, Va.
- Mrs. A. B. Kendall, North Girard, Pa.
- Mrs. Ed. Kiger, R. 2, Germantown, N. C.
- O. D. King, Suffolk, Va.
- Russell Klapp, 301 Lockland Ave., Winston-Salem, N. C.
- W. H. Kratzer, Linville, Va.
- Mrs. Nannie L. Lancaster, 729 W. 29th St., Norfolk, Va.
- E. T. Lane, Ivor, Va.
- Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Lawrenceville, N. J.
- Miss Wilder M. Liskey, Harrisonburg, Va.
- Jason Lowe, R. 1, Gibsonville, N. C.
- W. B. Madison, Wentworth, N. C.
- Mrs. J. N. Malone, 305 Gilmer St., Burlington, N. C.
- L. R. McAdams, R. 1, Efland, N. C.
- Mrs. J. H. McNeil, Nederland, Texas.
- L. F. Neblett, R. F. D., Sedley, Va.
- Miss Maggie Nelson, W. Side Station, High Point, N. C.
- W. O. Narred, Wedowee, Ala.
- Gus Pinkard, Abanda, Ala.
- Mrs. T. J. Preston, Walkerton, N. C.
- Mrs. E. W. Pritchett, Altamahaw, N. C.
- Mrs. Onnie Payne, Wedowee, Ala.
- W. T. Penn, R. 6, Henderson, N. C.
- Miss Ida S. Robinson, Southern Pines, N. C.
- A. L. Rountree, Harrelsville, N. C.
- G. E. Rountree, Sunbury, N. C.
- L. R. Rountree, 3116 Virginia Ave., Baltimore, Md.
- Mrs. A. J. Stratton, 35 W. 23rd St., Jacksonville, Fla.
- Mrs. N. K. Stephenson, Wakefield, Va.
- A. P. Strickland, R. 4, Lewisburg, N. C.
- C. F. Savage, R. 3, Suffolk, Va.
- Mrs. Mary Stilson, 3031 Grayland Ave., Richmond, Va.
- Mrs. D. D. Sutton, R. 1, Altamahaw, N. C.
- R. H. Utley, 319 Newbern Ave., Raleigh, N. C.
- Mrs. Bettie Wells, Williamson, W. Va.
- R. T. West, Waverly, Va.

A man is poor, indeed, when he is so rich he doesn't have a want.—Milton Lee.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....
 Street No. or R. F. D.....
 City..... State.....
 Amount enclosed, $.....
 If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:
 Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

1934.

The old year is dead! So is this old world. We can never have again the year 1933, nor the world of that year. We may not have come altogether into a new world, but we are at least passing through the birth pangs of the new. The world is in travail as it brings forth a new economic, political and religious order. The old economy said "save." The cry of the economy now being born says "spend." The old political order said, "Every man has the inalienable right of liberty." The new says, "Every man has the right to be happy, and the equipment and pursuits that will make him happy, the employment, the leisure and the wage that will make him happy and contented."

And both economic and political changes call for a changed religious order.

In brief, 1933 has brought the church face to face with great and grave problems. And 1934 is to reveal what the church is going to do about it. But since Herod inquired for the young Child that he might find him and put him to death, and since sin nailed him to the cross, the church has been facing and solving problems. This for the reason that it has never lost faith.

In all the complexity of modern life, faith abides in the church. And faith is the victory that overcomes the world.

Here, then, is the challenge and the promise of 1934. It offers all of us faith and calls for the exercise of faith—faith in God, faith in the church, faith in ourselves. The year 1933 brought us hope and charity. The year 1934 invites us to a new faith, a larger and a stronger faith.

J. O. A.

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.

The goal of Christianity is the creation of Christian character. This is also its test. Unless Christianity produces Christians (men and women who habitually live up to the standards set by Christ), then Christianity becomes barren and a mockery. There is but one standard by which a Christian is measured. Has he a Christian character? Does he habitually and consistently act a Christian? Thus the test of fellowship and of church membership is Christian character.

Unless one has Christian character, others will not esteem one as a member of the true church.

Dogmas and declarations cannot make one a Christian. It matters not what the doctrine or dogma is. It is not belief, but the results of belief on character that count. "Devils believe and tremble," the Word tells us. If I believe in Jesus Christ as Saviour and Redeemer, and then act as if I do believe this, then character results. But if I say I believe him, and then act as if I do not believe him, I bring both him and myself into disrepute and shame.

Take the sublime doctrine, "Once in grace, always in grace." How wholesome such a doctrine—if I really believe it and then act as if I did believe it! That doctrine is a challenge, ever and always, to one who really believes it. But when one says he believes it, though he may say it on every housetop in the land, and does not act as if he does believe it, then he brings shame and discredit both on himself and his doctrine. When one yields to temptation and plunges into sin, one is not "in grace," but in disgrace, because he has made his profession a mockery. The only way one can prove that one is "in grace," or ever has been "in grace," is to live as if he believed the Word which says "Where sin abounded, there did grace much more abound." One is in grace and not in disgrace when one lives as if he believes that the grace of God is sufficient to save him day by day and always. When one lives "in grace" this year, or this month, and in deep disgrace next year, or next month, one simply discredits the grace of God and the saving power of his Son, by saying (through his conduct) that the grace of God is sufficient some time, but not sufficient all the time. When one says to me, "I believe the doctrine of once in grace, always in grace," then I will believe that such an one is "in grace" if he lives up to his doctrine—namely, always in grace. To say that I am "in grace" today and then tomorrow turn aside and give way to appetite, passion, lusts, drunkenness, reveling, and then declare that "I will some day come back from all this"—well, that is the sheer folly of believing that God is able to save me today, and will be able and pleased to save me some time in the future, but not now—not every day, not always. "Once in grace, always in grace." That means in grace now, tomorrow, this and next year—for always means now and tomorrow and forever. For the man or woman who really believes God and trusts him, his grace is sufficient for every trial, trouble and temptation.

The world is not as much concerned about doctrine, as it is about conduct and character. That is because Christian character is the real test of Christianity—and its goal. "How can I hear what you say, when what you are keeps crying aloud in my ears." "Ye are my disciples if ye do whatsoever I have commanded you."

J. O. A.

THE MIRACLE OF MONEY.

You may begin by asking me if the age of miracles has passed? And I will answer by saying, "No, not so long as money exists." Money is one of the greatest miracle workers in the world. It is a miracle in itself.

Here, for example, is a gold piece which bears the inscription, "United States of America," and on the other side, "Liberty." There is a flying eagle and a rising sun on one side, stars on the edge with "E pluribus unum" engraved thereon. But all that is an optical illusion. It bears my image and superscription. I have earned it, and it is mine. It is a part of myself. It represent me. If I am good this will be a good eagle; if I am bad it may become a bad eagle, depending on how I use it.

Dug from the mountain side, washed in the glen;
Servant am I, or the master of men;
Steal me, I curse you,
Earn me, I bless you,
Grasp me, and hoard me, a fiend shall possess you;
Lie for me, take me,
Angel or devil, I am what you make me.

Clement of Alexandria said that money in itself is a thing indifferent, but money is more than indifferent. It is the holy amalgam of the generosity of God plus the work of calloused hands and thinking brains. Wealth is a great partnership. God gives the abundant raw material, the forests, fields, orchards, mines, shine and shower, every conceivable bounty. To these men apply the hand and brain which God has given and the result is wealth. God and man work together. Money comes from the expenditure of the priceless stuff of life. Coin is minted life, stored up power, liquid personality, a holy thing. It is not to be handled lightly or irreverently, not to be wasted. It is sacramental, like the Communion.

"But money grows upon men," says Mr. Watkins. "They do not know how sweet it is until they have saved a bit, then they begin to be strangely enamoured. If they have not tasted blood they have tasted gold, and a mysterious passion begins to awake, the consequences of which none may foresee. It brings with it a sense of importance, power, large possibilities of honor and indulgence, until in the end the man is mastered by it and ruined by it, as bees are sometimes drowned in their own honey."

Just think of the power of gold! Men have betrayed their country, their friends, their God and their immortal souls for gold. For gold they steal and rob and break into houses, commit assaults and murders and become the terrors and scourges of society. For gold men forge and cheat, organize fake companies, tamper with securities, snatch the support of the widow and steal the bread of the fatherless. For gold they involve whole countries in the horrors and the crimes of war. For gold they soil the honor of their sons and sell their daughters into gilded misery, poison the world with propaganda, and stab reputations in the dark. Gold corrupts all ages, all nationalities and whole communities.

Plate sin with gold,
And the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks;
Clothe it with rags, and a tiny straw will pierce it.

In Milton's "Paradise Regained," Satan says to Jesus:

Money brings honor, friends, conquest and realms,
They whom I favor thrive in wealth amain,
While virtue, valor, wisdom sit in want.

Jesus replies:

Yet wealth without these three is impotent
To gain dominion, or keep it gained.

Great writers of every age, philosophers and religious teachers have said, "Wealth is not an evil in itself." "Money is made for the comfort and convenience of life," says Edmund Burke, and Emerson said that men naturally seek money because it is power, and they love to feel and wield power. Money in itself is not a sin, but it is a force that fascinates and enthralls. It is the love of money, the Scripture says, that is the root of all kinds of evil and it is a fact that the love of money grows by that which it feeds on, and he is a wise man indeed who knows how to use money. It is a dangerous thing, it may take the place of God in our lives, it may possess the possessor until it strangles him and destroys his soul. An English clergyman relates the story of a man who became so enamoured of his wealth that every night before going to bed he handled good bank notes for he liked to see them, and feel them in his hands. On the night of his death his last whisper to his son was a request for a Bank of England note. The son gave his father a ten-dollar note which he crushed in his hand as he expired. No prayer, no extreme unction, no God, only money to die with.

But there are some things money cannot do! Surely one can get out of it all life's bottom things, but it provides no top things. It can feed all the flesh appetites. It will supply luxury, ease. It will buy place, reverence, salutations in the market place, and many would be friends. It may provide easily all kinds of devilities, but from all the gold and silver in all the world not one drop of mother love can be distilled. The world's highest and holiest thoughts and loveliest feelings do not come naturally from gold. It would be hard to write a book on gold as a source of spiritual ecstasy, or as a comfort to the immortal soul. The trouble is man cannot be satisfied with material things alone. There is something in him that demands more than the material can give. Man must have religion. His spirit longs for the Infinite and cannot be satisfied until it rests in God.

No less a financier than Marshall Field said that the greatest good a man can do is to cultivate himself, develop his powers, in order that he may be of greater service to humanity. Elbert Hubbard said, "The only way to make money is to render service to humanity," and they all agree that there is no happiness in mere dollars. George Horace Lorimer, editor of The Saturday Evening Post, declares that it is a good thing to have money, and the things money can buy, but one ought to check up once in a while and make sure that he hasn't lost the things that money cannot buy.

It is an odd thing, but Lord Bacon said years ago in rather inelegant language that money is like muck, not good except it be spread, and herein is the true philosophy of money and the explanation of its miraculous power. George Adam Smith said in his "Wealth of Nations," that money provides a revenue only by circulating or changing masters. Man must always lay down some portion of his ease, liberty, and his happiness to possess money. This is the price he pays for it but every man lives by exchanging. Ruskin reminds us that wealth is like a river that overflows its banks. It may create a swamp, or wreak untold damage or, rightly directed and controlled become the veritable water of life to the regions around.

Nowhere in the Gospels can we find a word that Jesus said against money in itself, though he did say it was dangerous for a man to have too much. His emphasis was on stewardship. A follower of Christ is supposed to consider himself a steward of God's bounties, an almoner of his possessions. In Jesus' estimation a foolish man is one who builds greater barns than he already has to store his surplus goods, refusing to share them with his needy neighbors. Everywhere he urges giving as a grace, as a natural, brotherly act, and the parable of the Good Samaritan will ever stand as a graphic illustration and example of social welfare.

St. Paul follows his Master in this respect and in all his churches he established the grace of giving. He was careful to mention the "collections" and gifts for the care of the aged and the needy and distressed. He laid down the principle that the religious worker is worthy of his wages. The Christian principle of giving is "as the Lord prospers," and it is intimated that there is reciprocity in giving, give and prosper, withhold and invite disaster. Even in the Acts of the Apostles, a saying of Jesus is retained which says that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Whether St. Paul knew of this or not he said, "Do not give grudgingly, for God loveth a cheerful giver."

In speaking of cheerful givers one is reminded of the wit who said, "There are three kinds of givers: the flint, the sponge and the honeycomb. To get anything out of the first you must hammer it. To get anything out of the second, you must squeeze it, but the third overflows with its own sweetness."

This is the Christian grace of giving. From the beginning of St. Paul's activities in establishing churches he arranged for regular, systematic giving and urged the people to give generously as they were able, knowing full well that the cause is worthy, and the work necessary, but never did he tax anyone, or use undue pressure. All Christian giving is voluntary, from the heart as well as from the pocket-book.

Since his day the modern church has become a complicated thing with many departments, workers and missions. It requires more money to keep it going than in his day, but we believe it is valuable, efficient and worthy of support.

A good story is told of a curious invention to amuse children. It consisted of a collection of small figures representing an old woman at a wash tub, a windmill all set for work, a mason with his trowel, a big rooster with his wings all set ready to crow. As the children looked at it they naturally wanted to see the machine work. They could stand there forever wishing and hoping and praying for that end, but that was not the way to make it work. They discovered a place in the machine where if money were inserted the mason began to work, the windmill to turn, the woman to scrub and the rooster to crow. Amusing as it may sound that is what must happen in a church, or any other philanthropic society, if the machine is to work. God forbid that we should ever live just to see the wheels go round, or waste our energies in merely collecting money and paying bills.

The best thing about giving is the joy and peace and satisfaction that comes to the giver because he has had a part in helping to promote the cause in which he believes. If that were all, it would be worth it, but the Lord performs a miracle with our money, it is transmuted into service that blesses, and somehow or other brings to the giver blessings untold and immeasurable.

But all we say about money, or all we can say about it, seems so trite, commonplace and inadequate compared with all that Christ gave for us. No wonder St. Paul said, "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift, the gift of Christ to us." Not so long ago a minister was preaching a sermon on giving and when taking the offering, he said, "I want each of you to give today as though you were placing your gift in his pierced hand, the hand of Christ." At the close of the service a member of the congregation came forward and said, "I was going to put a half-dollar into the plate this morning, but I just couldn't do it. Placing my gift into His hand seems different. I thought of a ten-dollar bill I have at home—I'll give that!"

Give, as the morning that flows out of heaven;
Give, as the waves when their channel is riven;
Give as the free air and sunshine are given;
Lavishly, utterly, joyfully give.
Not the waste drops of thy cup overflowing,
Not the faint sparks of thy hearth ever glowing,
Not a pale bud from the June roses blooming;
Give as He gives who gave thee Himself.

ELISHA A. KING.

REPEAL AND AFTERWARD.

By EDWIN C. DINWIDDIE.

Superintendent, National Temperance Bureau.

The Eighteenth Amendment has been repealed, but the alcoholic liquor problem is still unsolved. The means employed to defeat its purposes and to take it out of the Constitution reflect credit neither upon its opponents nor upon the American people as a whole. Unless now, in sober and sane consideration of this serious and important question of liquor control, ardent and conscientious dries and sincere wets who, for any reasonable cause, opposed national prohibition adjust themselves to this problem, the country faces a crisis in social and economic progress.

The only escape from this may lay in the possible fact that, despite all that has been said against it, prohibition has helped to turn and keep multiplied thousands away from the traffic and habit which the open and legalized saloon would have won as its victims.

Prohibitionists are under no obligation to suggest a better method of regulation. They believe it was not the prohibition policy which was most at fault, but throughout the years the lack or quality of its enforcement and administration. They, like all other good citizens are in honor bound to do their utmost to secure legislation and enforcement which will minimize the evils of liquor drinking and selling. On the other side, such honest wets as I have referred to should have an open mind, carefully observe the results of regulations and control without the Amendment, and be ready to govern future actions accordingly.

That the so-called "drys" will prove better sports than the opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment have done I have not the slightest doubt. They will continue to advocate enforcement of law. The radical "wets" practiced and preached its nullification, with note-worthy exceptions. The dries will seek and publish the truth about the results of liquor drinking and selling where it may be permitted under the new regime. The organized wets during the life of the Eighteenth Amendment steadfastly denied even its patent benefits, and by the expenditure of vast sums of money through the press, radio, theater, and by enlisting writers, broadcasters, and performers of one kind and another, developed an opposition—largely through misinformation—which finally won.

All this, however, was powerless before the calm judgment and conscience of the American people for over ten years of the law's life. It was only after the panic and depression fell upon America that even their confessions of past sins and loud promises of future atonement got the wets the ear of the great body of the American people. Then came the demand from the underworld, added to the calls of respectable wets, for a betrayal of political parties, and the party lash—which dries never sought—was brought into play while America was floundering in a financial slough of despond.

The shoe is now on the other foot. Already difficulties appear in the offing. How to tax so as to raise revenue and yet keep the bootlegger, rum runner and racketeer outside the game; how to permit the sale and yet keep the promise to prevent the return of the saloon; how to scrap the policy of federal prohibition and yet adequately protect dry States from exploitation by wet ones, these and other similar difficulties will confront the "happy" and "easy" warriors of the wet cohorts, while the dries are re-forming their lines and preparing for the next phase of the campaign to solve the liquor problem.

The most inexcusable failure is the failure to learn from one's mistakes.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The night is clear and cold. All day the wind has blown with chilling breath from the icy north. The air is frosty and biting. The year 1933 is passing away. A few more hours and it will be a year of history with a closed record. It is shivering with cold, and trembling with age. It is gathering up its fast failing strength for one final effort before it passes.

With the imagination one may see the passing year as an old man, bent and tired, and weary, with failing sight and unsteady step. Before you go, old year, tell me what have you done, and what have you to offer in your last moments with us? "It has been my purpose and mission," the year replies, "to give man time on the earth. I give people opportunity, but so many people do not seem to appreciate my gift to them. They waste their time and do not use their opportunity. The people who have wisely used their time will hold me as a precious memory. My name is written in their books of history. Others, who have abused their opportunities, will rejoice when I am gone. I have been fair and impartial to all mankind. I have sought to improve the people whom I have met."

The Old Year seems kind and good. "Will you tell me more about yourself?" I asked. "Yes," the year replies, "I came in on Sunday, the Lord's Day. I have already given the people fifty-two Sundays for rest and worship. I have one more day—a Sunday—to give to the world. I have been very generous with my Sundays. It will be some time before another year will give you so many sacred days. I have also given the people three hundred and twelve days for work. I will finish my work tomorrow. I am old. My work is almost done. My record is written. After tomorrow my name will be torn from the calendar. A new calendar will take my place. The people will no longer put my name on their letters and checks and deeds. But I am not ashamed of my history. I have done my best. I have not been in a hurry. Time cannot be hurried. It never stops. It is always here for your use. Man may stop his work—but he cannot call back one moment of time."

And the Old Year was silent for a few moments, apparently wondering if I had another request to make before the interview was closed. "Have you any advice to give me, as I meet the New Year?" I asked. While I waited the Old Year looked intently into my eyes and earnestly said: "Tell all the people to start the New Year right. Be careful with your time. That is the great gift of the year. It is very precious. Every moment will be yours as it passes. No human power can control it by edict or monopoly. It is for the rich and the poor. Use it wisely and well. I am now a part of the Past as well as the Present. Some day the books will be opened. I will be there to present my own record. You will be there to face your record. See that the New Year has the privilege of recording a clean record, worthy of your high and holy calling."

Good-bye, Old Year. Before the record closes, erase all our mistakes and forgive our transgressions. If there is enmity or malice in our hearts may it be taken away. May we be grateful for the friends who are kind and true. May we be happy for the privilege of serving others. May we learn that life is more than financial gain.

Happy Old Year. There is a loving Father who is willing to forgive and forget all my sins. Happy New Year. There is One who is waiting to give his counsel, and his guidance, and another opportunity. Everything good and great comes from above. And we shall devoutly wish and pray and labor that the New Year may bring to the world and the church an increasing knowledge of our Father in heaven and his Son Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit as our Comforter.

I. W. JOHNSON.

NINETEEN HUNDRED THIRTY-FOUR.

As you read this Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Three will be history; Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Four will be a present reality. As we let the old year go we feel that we have turned from a friend whose face we shall never see again. As time sweeps us out into the New Year, we feel as if we were standing on holy ground. Another year with its opportunities is spread out before us. As we attempt to count the value of time we resolve in our own minds to work more diligently and to serve more effectively than in previous years. I do not know from whence came the custom of making New Year resolutions, but I do wish that all good resolutions would be kept and that humanity might be permitted to share richly in the fruitage of such achievements. It is fine to make resolutions. It is finer still to dedicate the highest and best that there is in us to see that these resolutions are carried out. I am wondering what your resolutions are. I trust that as you make up your program, Elon College as an institution of the church may receive the proper emphasis and be accorded due considerations. As president of the College, I am greatly encouraged as I face the New Year by the evident interest in the institution on the part of the church as a whole. I have been talking with members of the church in different sections; others who have been working for the College have been in constant touch with many who are interested in the whole program of the church, and with but few exceptions, expressions concerning the College reveal a deep concern for her future, and a real desire to be of service that she might continue to train and prepare young people for the service of the church and the kingdom.

On Wednesday, January 3rd, classwork begins after more than two weeks' Christmas vacation. We are hoping for the return of all who were enrolled as students at the beginning of the fall semester. On January 24th, the spring semester begins. The first semester I was at the College, we enrolled forty-one new students. Among this number thirty-one came from Atlantic University. The spring semester of 1933 we enrolled twenty-six new students. The prospects at present are that we will exceed the 1933 enrollment and we are hoping to exceed the 1932 enrollment. A number who were in school last year are planning to return for the spring semester. We have inquiries from a long list who are planning to enter College in January. From the office we are using every possible advantage to induce students to come. May I say to the church at large that if you know of a young man or young woman who is desirous of entering College this spring, I will appreciate you putting us in touch with such persons that we may offer the advantages of Elon College with the hope of enrolling them as students here.

Mr. Chas. D. Johnston, Superintendent of the Christian Orphanage, was in my office Saturday. He was rejoiced and I rejoiced with him. He has reached his goal for the Orphanage for 1933.

This is a notable achievement. Brother Johnston has worked hard and deserves this success. Of course, he could not have succeeded without the cooperation and help of the church. Our next goal is for the College. The Board of Trustees set this goal at $25,000.00. The Conferences in Carolina and Virginia have approved the goal set and pledged themselves and their churches to an honest and universal endeavor to reach this goal. There is in the church a combined membership of about 25,000. This means about one dollar per member if the goal is reached. The Conferences have adopted a plan whereby if churches will raise an amount equal to fifty cents per member, that the College itself will undertake to raise the other fifty per cent through special donations. Let's undertake this job with faith and enthusiasm, not only with the consciousness of the fact that it can be done, but with the determination to see that it is done. If I can reach this goal it will enable us to balance our budget completely and to settle a pretty good share of our indebtedness. Every dollar that you give Elon College will be made to count for more than 100 per cent in carrying on the work of the College and in settling claims against the institution. We are a great people. We have a great task. We would not care for anything else. With faith in ourselves, love for our institution, and trust in God, let us go forth to do battle and to achieve great things for him and for the church.

L. E. SMITH, President.

THEY NEED A CHANCE.

In the fall of 1927, I was asked to speak to the patrons and students of a large high school in Johnston County, N. C. After I had spoken my attention was called to a sixteen-year-old boy by some of his relatives. I was told that he was a steady, unassuming youth, that could be depended upon, but unfortunately he had dropped out of school because of his inability to learn and was working here and there in the community where he could find employment. So I became interested in him, as I always do in fatherless boys and girls, and drove over to see him the following afternoon. He seemed to feel, at once, that I was really interested in him, and talked with me freely and very confidentially, which gave me a good chance to sound him out and to know better how to place him. I then wrote some of my old pupils here and there, calling their attention to the young fellow, and asking them to help me place him with some intelligent farmer who was painstaking and who would take an interest in his future, and give him a chance.

In about six weeks a good home was found for him, where he spent two years, having made marked improvement as an employee and where he made a good name. At the end of 1929 he went to a different section of the State, where he has been employed on the farm of a successful business man, who has taken great interest in him and who has helped him establish himself in the esteem and best wishes of the people, until he is now regarded as one of the first young men in the community.

This is just one of the many boys of this type that I have had an opportunity to work with, through the years of my active life; and I am now very proud of them. Some of them are now filling very responsible positions in this and other States. So do not push these boys, and sometimes a girl, aside, for there is a real man or woman there that you can help to develop.

Julius Caesar was a dull boy; Martin Luther was a dull boy, Daniel Webster was a dull boy, and many others that might be mentioned. The fact is, these boys are not dull, but just out of the ordinary.

A. R. FLOWERS.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We are very grateful for the splendid cooperation we have had from the churches and friends in our Thanksgiving offering. We have only four churches in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference that have not sent in the Thanksgiving offering, only four in the Western North Carolina Conference, only six in the Valley Virginia Central Conference, thirteen in the Eastern North Carolina Conference, nine in Eastern Virginia, five in the Georgia and Alabama Conference, and ten in the Alabama Conference.

We will close our report on January 6th. We are holding it open for a few days to give all the churches time to get the offerings in. We are wondering what Conference will be the Banner Conference.

We will begin in our next report to make a report of things sent in during the month of December. We have held this back because our reports were so long.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER 28, 1933.

Brought forward ..... $15,883.65
Sunday School Monthly Offerings:

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Apple's Chapel .....	$ 4.42
Belew's Creek .....	2.28
Greensboro, First .....	$11.69
O'Kelly Bible Class .....	43.05
	54.74
Berea .....	5.50
Bethlehem .....	3.27

70.21

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Auburn .....	$ 2.20
Mt. Hermon .....	4.00
Damascus .....	1.00
Liberty Vance .....	4.33
Mt. Gilead .....	.65
Henderson .....	3.85
Youngsville .....	1.00

17.03

Western North Carolina Conference:

Shady Grove .....	$ .40
Pleasant Grove .....	1.50
Zion .....	.89
Smithwood .....	.97
Graham .....	1.54

5.30

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Wakefield .....	$ 1.77
Holy Neck .....	5.83
First, Richmond .....	5.48
Spring Hill .....	.79
Suffolk .....	25.00
Mt. Zion .....	1.90
Bethlehem .....	4.53
Burton's Grove .....	6.52
Dendron .....	3.76
First, Norfolk .....	4.47

60.05

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Newport .....	$ 1.94
Dry Run .....	4.88
Winchester .....	4.88
Mayland .....	1.00

13.73

Alabama Conference:

Pisgah .....	$ 1.31
Noon Day .....	1.37

2.68

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Vanceville .....	$ 1.00
Noon Day .....	1.37

Special Offerings.

F. C. Owen, gdn. James Brown..	$ 12.50
Mrs. Saunders, support children..	10.00
Willing Workers' Class, Palm St. Church .....	5.00
Twiddy Bible Class, Christian Temple, Christmas treat for children	11.50
C. E. Society, Belew's Creek Ch...	3.00
Birthday offering, 1st Richmond..	6.50
A friend .....	10.00
4th and 5th grades of Midway School .....	1.00
Mrs. Dalton, support children...	12.50
A friend .....	1.00
Miss Byrd's Class, Bethlehem Sunday School Class, Va. ....	11.00
New Hope S. S., Ala., to buy chicken dinner .....	5.93
Wakefield, special offering .....	11.44
Holland & Beamon Co., Suffolk, Va., donation of cost of half a car of coal .....	39.31
Sale of cow .....	31.00
Ladies Prov. Memorial Church, Graham, N. C. ....	4.60

A. J. Morgan, support children.. 20.00

196.28

Thanksgiving Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Apple's Chapel .....	$ 15.30
Mt. Zion .....	13.01
Howard's Chapel .....	10.05
Elon College .....	69.00
Reidsville .....	35.68
Lebanon .....	4.75
Third Ave., Danville .....	15.93
Shallow Ford .....	5.96
Liberty .....	6.05

175.73

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Cary .....	$ 9.25
Wake Chapel .....	67.65
Mt. Hermon .....	5.00
Damascus .....	4.50
Raleigh .....	16.35
Youngsville .....	5.00
Christian Light .....	10.62
Adult Bible Class, Turner's Chapel	5.75

124.12

(Continued on page 15.)

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600	Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ..... $2.75
01603	French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ..... $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 7/8 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815	French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ..... $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

No. 02112.	French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ..... $2.50
------------	---

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

No. 07523x	French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ..... $3.25
------------	---

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x ..... $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 15 1/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 4 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT Bible

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x
As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x ..... $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

No. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ..... $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.
0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ..... $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition.
No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ..... $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

STOP THE DROP.

WILL THE CHURCH BE THE FIRST OR LAST TO RECOVER?

What deep waters we have all passed through in these last three and a half years! Depression, unemployment, losses, strain have taken heavy toll from every church and from every member. No wonder our hearts have cried, "Oh Lord, how long?" Yet we have not lost faith, hope, or courage. Many spiritual values have been increased; when days were dark, we have been driven back to prayer. "Thanks for our daily bread" has taken on new meaning. There has been a sharing with those who have suffered more deeply than ourselves. Although the churches throughout the land have cut their budgets heavily, adjusted their programs and may be now carrying deficits, yet all together we have carried on with substantial faith and commendable strength, waiting for the new dawn.

Now we face a brighter day. Since March 4th events have marched rapidly. Under remarkable leadership, our government through new and sometimes startling legislation, has brought about a rapid rise in commodity prices and in all industrial values. Employment is increasing; business speeds up. Farmers receive much better prices for their products. The curve of business activity has actually overtaken and passed beyond the figures of 1932. An hundred signs give definite proof that we have passed the corner at last, and pessimism gives place to a new courage and hope. In three short months, many billions of dollars have been added to the value of our nation's crops, and even security values have risen sharply. Closed banks are now reopening at the rate of 145 a week, and each one brings joy and decreased suffering in some community. While much uncertainty remains and the future is far from clear, yet it is evident that we are on the road back together.

It will rest with each individual church whether it seizes aggressively upon this first opportunity of recovery or yields the lead to all other local needs and organizations. Things seldom drift in the right direction, and the Way Back demands alert leadership and definite decision. Many churches will find it possible to face some of their financial problems now, taking advantage of the new hopes and the decreased fears, knowing that each member will gladly share the task of balancing the budget and moving forward to recapture lost ground.

If a community has benefited at all by the new conditions, unpaid pledges can be paid now, where it might be impossible to secure the larger sum necessary at the year's end. Many who were unable to subscribe last December may find it possible to help now, if an opportunity were given in which all the church members come to know the facts. It is even possible that some budget cuts might be replaced and the programs of work be reestablished in the fall. There is inspiration in the thought that hundreds of churches and boards of church officers will plan to take advantage of the rising tide of Recovery.

This is the way to "Stop the Drop."

HAROLD B. BELCHER.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

TWO WEEKS ENDING DEC. 23 & 30, 1933.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged ..... $ 845.67
Pleasant Union, Lillington, N. C. .... 6.50

Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.....	5.17
Berea, Driver, Va. ....	5.00
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C. ....	4.16
Roanoke, Ala. ....	1.00
Suffolk, Va. ....	25.00
Apple's Chapel, Brown Summit, N. C.....	6.23
Richmond, Va. ....	4.51
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va. ....	4.82
Reidsville, N. C. ....	5.76
High Point, N. C. ....	2.70
Newport, Stanley, Va. ....	1.33
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.....	4.42
Big Oak, Eagle Springs, N. C.....	.75
Class No. 7, Shallow Ford Sunday School, Elon College, N. C. ....	3.00
First Christian, Norfolk, Va. ....	4.05
Berea, Elon College, N. C. ....	8.00
Lebanon, Semora, N. C. ....	.80
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C. ....	1.00
Dendron, Va. ....	6.32
Ether, N. C. ....	1.70
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C. (duplicate of check No. 131, returned unpaid, 2-28-33, account bank closed).....	14.38
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.....	13.31
Burton's Grove, Wakefield, Va. ....	5.30
Hopewell, Va. ....	1.10
Graham, N. C. ....	5.14
Durham, N. C. ....	8.18
Noon Day, Wedowee, Ala. ....	1.37

Total ..... $ 996.67

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged ..... $	637.47
Pleasant Grove, Lafayette, Ala. ....	2.00
Miss Annie Clapp, Brown Summit, N. C..	1.00
J. W. Payne, Wedowee, Ala. ....	5.00
T. J. Holland, Ambrose, Ga. ....	10.00

Total ..... $ 655.47

Specials.

Previously acknowledged ..... $	637.38
Woman's Missionary Society, Mt. Bethel Church, Stokesdale, N. C. ....	5.16
Burlington S. S., Burlington, N. C.....	26.61

Total ..... $ 669.15

Summary.

Previously acknowledged ..... $	6,012.46
Sunday Schools, Regular ..... 151.00
Individuals and Churches ..... 18.00
Specials ..... 31.77

Total ..... $ 6,213.23

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

CHRISTMAS IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Dear SUN Readers:

We truly believe this has been the happiest Christmas ever spent by the people of our Carroll County Home Mission Station. From many places and persons we received useful gifts, which have been and are being placed in the hands of those whose needs are greatest.

From Rev. M. T. Sorrell and his good people of Danville Church, came 315 bundles of cheer to assist greatly in making boys and girls here realize the happiest Christmas they ever saw. To the good people of Danville who read this, we say you are generous in spirit. May the Master richly reward you and your good pastor and his wife. And may Brother Sorrell continue to be a blessing to the fine Christian workers who labor for the Master with him. May the New Year be one of progress in God's Kingdom work for each and all.

From the good people of Burlington Christian Church came these words that made us rejoice: "Dear Brother Grissom—Enclosed find money order for $10.00 (ten dollars) to be used in buying treat for your people there." The fine gift came from the Men's Bible Class, and Ladies' Bible Class. Dear friends of the Burlington Sunday School Bible Classes, we say for more than three hundred who received your treat: "Thank you!" We hope our efforts for the Master will make you glad that your fine hearts were turned our way in the form of giving.

From Mrs. W. D. Foster, Jr.'s class of junior boys and girls of Liberty Vance Church, Henderson, N. C., came Bibles for the mountain junior boys and girls. We thank those fine boys and girls for the very best Christmas present to those who are not as well acquainted with Jesus as they are.

From the Winchester Christian Endeavor Society came fine toys, clothing, and other useful gifts. We have not forgotten your generous gifts last year, nor this. Your gifts were very helpful in making Christmas joyful for the people of the mountains.

Fine personal gifts of clothing came from Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, and Mrs. J. P. Barrett, Elon College. These Christian workers were great aids toward making our Christmas in the mountains complete.

From South Vienna, Ohio, came 22 gifts, precious to girls 14 to 20. Thank you, Vienna, Ohio. And to you, Mrs. Stagle, who teach such fine girls; we say, "May the Master make you happy in your task."

Now, to those who have wondered about Christian cooperations: We received from the Hanes Knitting Company, 24 new warm suits of underwear. From Galax Hosiery Mills came 120 pairs of hose and socks. From Durham Hosiery Mills, 72 pairs of hose and socks. From Mt. Airy Hosiery Mills, 120 pairs of children's socks. Mt. Airy Knitting Mill, 42 suits of underwear. Stein Clothing Co., New York City, one nice warm coat and one suit. Norris Candy Co., Atlanta, Ga., 10 pounds of mixed candy. Heinz Pure Food Co., Norfolk, Va., two dozen No. 2 cans of select beans. Mock, Judson Vochringer Co., Long Island City, N. Y., one dozen pairs fine hose. The A. & P. Tea Co. donated $3.00 worth of confections. Gilbert Bros. & Company, Baltimore, Md., gave us an assortment of school supplies. Montgomery Ward & Co. sent remnants of dress goods. Southern Silk Mills, Greensboro, gave silk remnants. To you of all the leading factories in various parts of the United States, we say you have made poor mountain people warm and happy this Christmas time, and may the Master make you prosper materially and spiritually.

REV. AND MRS. R. T. GRISSOM.

Fancy Gap, Va.

SHIRTS OUT OF STOCKINGS.

The dump heaps of America would clothe and house the poor folks of India, declares Miss Oline E. Nicholson of the Criminal Tribes Settlement, Sholapur. It is shivery business for the little Crims when the temperature drops from 108 to 70 degrees, especially when they wear the same ragged little shirt until it drops off. "I have been cutting up old cotton stockings to make undershirts for them," Miss Nicholson reports. Some Christian and non-Christian women in the Settlement have formed a Dorcas Society and out of their little, plan to make some clothes for these children.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

[This is the ninth of a series of articles, by Roy C. Helfenstein, Minister People's Congregational-Christian Church, Dover, Del. This installment continues "The Life and Customs in Palestine."]

The people of every land and all of us are influenced by some kind of superstitions. It may be unconsciously. And likely in our own case we do not recognize such as superstition and would bitterly resent being told we were superstitious. Nevertheless, there are traces of superstition in every person's life. The more educated and the more enlightened we become, of course, the less will be the trace of superstition. But if we were to analyze all our decisions and reactions, everyone of us would find at least thoughts, hesitations, etc., that reflect superstition. The more primitive a people, the more is their life influenced by superstition. The more enlightened a people, the less is their life so influenced.

We speak of the natives of Palestine today as being Arabs, and the Anthropologist tells us that though they are Arabs in a sense, the fact is they are the descendants of the Canaanites and other early Semitic inhabitants of the land, whose blood stream was tintured with European blood during the period of the Crusades. But the Semitic element prevails in their lives. They are of a mystical, dreamy nature—the trait that makes poets and artists. But they are also of a superstitious nature—"the trait" which makes fools. Indeed, it is pathetic how much their lives are influenced by superstition, for their superstitions are many. We cannot mention them all, but will mention a few by way of illustration.

One superstition characteristic of Palestine is that known as "The Evil Eye." The people invariably wear what they call "an evil eye" to keep away the evil spirit. The evil eye is a round "eye-shaped disc" of different sizes, worn singly upon the front of one's garment or several of them strung on a string are worn around the neck. The natives of Palestine believe these "evil eyes" will keep away the evil spirit, or what we would call bad luck. Similarly "evil eye" blue beads are strung around the donkey's necks, on the camel's saddle horn, and around the radiator cap of an automobile. The peasants who live in the little villages and the Bodouins who live in the black tents in the open country nearly all believe in the power of the "evil eye" to keep away the evil spirit or bad luck and ill fortune. And the same superstition concerning the evil eye bead is practiced by the natives who live in the cities. It is said that anything decorated with an "evil eye" is thereby protected from being molested or stolen, as the people believe that the evil spirit would fall upon them in punishment for such an offense.

Another common superstition is the use of the "Massula," a small ornamental wooden or metal holder in which a piece of paper having the Ten Commandments written on it is placed. The "Massula" is nailed on the side of each door leading into the home as a constant invitation to God to come into the home with his blessings.

They have another superstition which might not be bad for the whole world to take over. When selling grain or produce of any kind the measure must be full and running over, else it will be bad luck for both the seller and the purchaser. "The good measure, pressed down and running over" which is spoken of in the Bible has been handed down through the centuries in Palestine, but is now observed more as a superstition than as an expression of social conscience and fair play.

The bargaining method of doing business which prevails throughout Palestine and Syria and Egypt is very confusing to Americans, who believe in the one price plan of doing business. You find the bargaining method of doing business is practiced in all the Mediterranean countries. The practice consists of the merchant or street peddler asking a certain price for whatever he has to sell, the price being many times what the item is worth. Then when the purchaser starts to walk away, a lower price is given, and such a reduction will be repeated as often as the purchaser refuses to buy, until the price comes down near the real worth of the article, then, if no interest is shown, the seller will ask the purchaser what he will give, etc., etc. It is a most disgusting method of doing business, but it is the prevailing practice in the Mediterranean countries. In southern Italy they will usually ask a price about a fourth higher than they expect to receive. In Greece the price asked will be about fifty per cent higher than they expect to receive. The same is true in Turkey, Syria and Palestine. But in Egypt, the bargaining method of doing business is the worst we found anywhere. There the prices asked are often a hundred per cent more than they expect to receive. If a person does not have some idea of values and is not familiar with the custom in these countries, "it's just too bad" for his pocket-book, should he make many purchases, for the vendors gladly take the first price asked if the purchaser falls for it.

The markets of Palestine are extremely interesting. The peasants bring their farm produce to the cities or larger towns for sale. The camels carry the heavy loads of produce on their backs and when arriving at the market place the camels drop on their knees in response to the owner's call "ichi, ichi, ichi," in order for him to be able to unload the pack of vegetables, or melons, or grain, or chickens, or fruit. The wide circle of kneeling camels and the unloaded packs of produce displaced in front of them, and the marketers busy here and there bargaining for their purchases make a picture one can never forget.

Then another common picture in Palestine is that of the beggar. The street beggars are to be found in every country of Europe and are even more numerous in the Mediterranean countries and other eastern countries. The poverty conditions in the rest of the world can hardly be realized by people in America. All of the old world, including the nations of Europe, would be glad to trade the brightest prosperity day they have ever known for America's present depression, giving a fifty per cent favor in addition. These countries, all of them, have more real poverty in a city of a hundred thousand people than can be found in an entire state in our country, notwithstanding the fact that those countries have had for centuries beer, and wine, rum, gin and every other intoxicant to bring them prosperity. Following their example as we are starting to do in again licensing the liquor business, will give America the same consequences the old world has experienced in multiplying the number of beggars.

The beggars of Palestine today are quite like the beggars that Jesus saw in his day, when he went along the roads of the country, and through the streets of the villages and cities. They sit on the ground at the cross roads and street corners, mothers with crying, hungry babies in their arms, men who are crippled, men who are blind—you see them by the hundreds every day. They call pleadingly, "backshish, backshish," which means, "give me money." One cannot pass them all by without responding to some. Their pitiful condition draws upon the heart strings too much. But naturally one cannot give to all. It would take a Rockefeller to have a sufficient supply of coins to respond to all the beggars one sees each day in Palestine. The children are early taught how to beg. One day, while taking a walk with a group of friends on Mount Zion outside the walls of Jerusalem, I saw a little baby not over two years old reaching out its little hand to us, calling "backshish," and behind a large cactus plant I noticed the mother hiding with a smile on her face as she saw her little child learning the trick so well. One cannot get rid of the beggars in Palestine with an English "No." But we learned the word they understood for our "No," and would answer them with the word "le," meaning "no." If they continued to follow us, we would say "maprut," meaning, "I have nothing for you." If they still continued to annoy, we would say "ruha," meaning an emphatic "Get away from me." And at that the children beggars would scamper away.

The caravans of donkeys and camels frequently seen in Palestine carrying their cargoes of passengers and merchandise make a lasting impression on the mind of the visitor, not only because of the picture they present, but also because of the imagination they stir. They make one think of the Bible characters centuries past who rode their camels over those same roads, and gazed upon those same landscapes, stopping perchance at the same springs to quench their thirst, for springs are few and far between in Palestine. And perhaps they found rest and shelter from the burning sun behind the same high rocks that offer shelter in their cool shadows for us today. The shadow of a rock in Palestine at mid-day in July is one of the most inviting shadows one ever hopes to find.

(Article No. 10 will appear in an early issue.)

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage paid and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER—To a new subscriber or for renewal, $2.50, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Ladies' Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address: THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU.

A very Happy New Year to each of you who read this page and to all the host of young people of the Southland for whom the page is written, this is the wish and prayer of the editor.

The New Year can be happy for each of you even though Prosperity still loiters around the corner, temptations beset you on every side, and troubles meet you at every turn. The beauty and value of the Christian religion is that its joy is not dependent upon outward circumstances, but radiates from the soul and can transform surrounding conditions and paint a rainbow on the clouds. Only those who know not Christ need bear their own burdens, hug to their hearts their worries, and walk in the way of gloom. The Master walks the Shining Way, and bids us follow him through the days and nights of another year.

The path we must travel will be new and often strange. Changes we cannot now see, nor then understand, may come. They often do. We may "walk through the valley of the shadow," or climb a mountain of exquisite joy. We know not now. All that we need to know is that God leads the way, and all is well.

WHAT IS THE COMING YEAR?

It is a door,
By which we reach new fields
Of service for our God and fellowman:
A door by which we can Explore
Wide spheres of usefulness
Our world to bless;
And reap the sheaves God's Word of witness yields.

It is a task
Set by the Master of our souls,
A little part of our life's work below;
And so we ask
The holy wisdom, which alone controls
Our labors, teaching what and where to sow;
That the year, at its end,
May show God's glory and man's profit blend.

It is a book,
With many pages and, as yet, all white,
On which to write
The history of thought, and deed, and word
In this new group of days.
We pray the Lord,
As thou shalt look
Upon the book, when written o'er, may all be to thy praise.

—William Olney.

THE OLD YEAR.

The year just passed will be remembered in history for certain things and by individuals for others. History may tell of the turn towards prosperity of the nations of the earth; it may recount the failure of negotiations for peace and the beginning of the building or armaments; and it may tell of a social and political revolution in America that scrapped prohibition and put the Government in business.

But individuals will have their own memories of personal things. To some the memories will be sad, but to most they will be sacred. Tucked away in our hearts will be things that the multitude never knew, but things that were sweet and beautiful, even though they came at the cost of sacrifice and suffering. Perhaps through the years only those things will seem to be of value that did come at the cost of suffering. Who knows?

Some of us would like to do the things suggested by Clarence Urmy in the little poem called "The Old Year." Read the poem and then lay the Old Year, with all its memories, in God's hand:

What is the Old Year? 'Tis a book
On which we backward sadly look,
Not willing quite to see it close,
For leaves of violet and rose
Within its heart are thickly strewn,
Marking love's dawn and golden noon;
Dimly recalled through memor's haze;
And tear-stained pages, too, that tell
Of starless nights and mournful knell
Of bells tolling through trouble's air
The De Profundis of despair—
The laugh, the tear, the shine, the shade,
All 'twixt the covers gently laid;
No uncut leaves; no page unscanned;
Close it and lay it in God's hand.

FACING THE NEW YEAR.

We pledge ourselves
To follow through the coming year
The light which God gives us:
The light of Truth, wherever it may lead;
The light of freedom, revealing new opportunities for individual development and social service;
The light of Faith, opening new visions of the better world to be;
The light of love, daily binding brother to brother and men to God in ever closer bonds of friendship and affection.
Guided by this light,
We shall go forward to the work of another year with steadfastness and confidence.

—Author Unknown.

UNDERSTANDING OURSELVES.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC, JANUARY 14, 1934

Hymns—"Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," "O Jesus, I Have Promised," "Take My Life, and Let It Be."

Scripture—Romans 7:12-25. Paul's description of the inward conflict between the law of God and the law of sin is vividly enacted in every conscientious man. But when he cries, "Who shall deliver me?" the answer is at hand. So every sinner has found that his only salvation is in Christ Jesus. Romans 12:1, 2; 11-21; I. Cor. 13; John 10:10; Phil. 4:8.

Prayer Thought—Psalm 19:14.

Leader's Talk. The climax of the story of the prodigal son is, when it is said of the wanderer that "he came to himself." Coming to one's self, understanding one's self, is the first step in planning a life that will count for much. The prodigal son, after a period of sinful conduct, when brought to himself by his suffering, was moved to make comparisons between what might have been and what was. Then he buried his pride, and started back along the hard road of repentance, content to be a servant in his father's house. The forgiveness of the father, when he found that the reckless young man had discovered himself, was narrated by Christ as a means of showing with what spirit God receives repentant sinners.

"Understanding ourselves" need not be the tragic sort of inventory that this man had to take.

He could have learned how fine an opportunity was his as the son of a kindly and forgiving father in a land of plenty without ever leaving home. Judas came to himself, too, after his betrayal of Jesus. But why delay analyzing one's self?

The purpose of this meeting may well be to help all of us to begin the exploration of our own minds and hearts and consciences, a form of first-of-the-year inventory of what goes on within our lives and how we may improve that which we think and that which we do.

OTHER TALKS.

1. Do we have worries that could be cured by understanding ourselves?—How does Christian faith help us to overcome worry? Why do "good people" worry, and how may we help them by example? (Searching our own hearts should not make us smugly secure, but rather should help us to share a quiet confidence and sympathy and faith in God with our fear-ridden friends.)

What does conscience mean to us?—How did Jesus encourage the self-study that conscience helps us to make? (Jesus constantly criticized those who tried to give others the impression that they had become perfect.) How will conscience help us to forgive others their trespasses?

How many persons are we?—It may be a comfort to us to know that even the noblest characters have found this inconsistency in themselves. Paul spoke of it. John Wesley confessed what a miserable sinner he was, although it is well known that he was far nobler than most Christians. You can be sure that the noblest person you know has constantly to fight against the same unworthy thoughts and desires that you have. This means that we must not worry unduly about our sins; we must not be content to say "Everybody is that way, so why bother?" We must find out what causes our greatest problems; we must make a plan by which our "better self" will win out over our "lower self."

Planning a program of life.—Make your own suggestions; then consider such as these:

(a) Write out a few steps by which you expect to make progress.

(b) Spend a few minutes each morning reading good literature (the Bible, perhaps), and spend a few moments in prayer.

(c) In planning your reading select the kind of things which you think you need most: the Gospels, Psalms, essays, etc. Plan to read slowly and thoughtfully.

(d) Learn just what prayer is. Learn to stop and appreciate sunsets, storms, flowers, art, people. Develop the sense of appreciation and gratitude. Penitence and prayer for strength and courage will also be included.

(e) Keep yourself as much as possible in the company of people who will help you to live at your best.

(f) Never do it "just this once." Make no exceptions after you have determined what you are going to do.

(g) Tackle some large task.

(h) Do not allow yourself to mope after a failure.

(i) In playing and working hard avoid the extreme of getting yourself too tired.

I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know;
I don't want to stand with the setting sun
And hate myself for the things I've done.
I want to go out with my head erect;
I want to deserve all men's respect;
But here in the struggle for fame and pelf
I want to be able to like myself.
I don't want to look at myself and know
That I'm bluster and bluff and empty show.
I can never fool myself, and so
Whatever happens I want to be Self-respecting and conscience-free.

—Author Unknown.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

BIRTH AND INFANCY OF JESUS.

LESSON I—JANUARY 7, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins."—Matt. 2:21.

LESSON TEXT: Matt. 2:1-23.

Seeking Jesus.

"There came Wise Men from the East to Jerusalem, saying 'Where is he that is born King of the Jews?'" These same Wise Men were astrologers, students of the stars, the forerunners of our modern astronomers. They had seen a new and strange star in the heavens, and in keeping with the custom of the time, they associated it with the birth of some royal person, or some one of high rank. They set out to find such a person.

This is life's supreme quest—to seek Jesus. We have more light than the Wise Men. We know whose star it was. We have the full noon-day sun where they had only the early twilight. We should seek Jesus. And if we seek him we shall find him, for he already seeks us.

Herod, too, sought Jesus. But he sought him to kill him. He was jealous of his position and his power, which by the way he held illegitimately. Modern Herods seek to destroy everything that gives promise of threatening their position and their power. Ideals of national sobriety, ideals of international peace, ideals of racial justice and brotherhood—these and many other ideals associated with the Kingdom of God are objects of the venom and the wrath of the brewers and distillers, the war-jingoists, and the "white supremacy" groups.

Finding Jesus.

The Wise Men did not have much light, but they followed what light they had and they found Jesus. Obedience is the organ of spiritual discovery and knowledge. The man who follows the light he has will always have more light. He who seeks Jesus will find Jesus. Many wait for full light before embarking on any high enterprise. Follow the gleam, be true to such light as you have, and you will come to more light.

Rejoicing in Jesus.

"And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy." To find Jesus—this is life's supreme joy. To know that one is walking in the light and coming to the light—this is life's supreme happiness. Christ is altogether lovely, the fairest among ten thousand. One wonders if many people have ever found Christ in any vital way—there is such an absence of joy and radiance in their Christian lives.

Worshipping Jesus.

"And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him. (It is to be noted that they worshipped him, not them, or her.) These Wise Men undoubtedly did not know all about the possibilities and the unfolding of this young life, but they realized in some way, taught by the Spirit of God, that they were in the presence of royalty. And they worshipped him. He is worthy of our worship. We can never realize our finer selves unless we give ourselves to worship him. He is God's finest and best. We should adore him and worship him in spirit and in truth. Indeed when we see Jesus in his moral beauty, we will worship him.

Giving to Jesus.

The Wise Men worshipped Jesus. But they did more—they presented gifts unto him. There is an eternal fitness in the order. First, worship; then, giving. Each needs the other. Mere worship may become weak sentimentalism. Giving may be perfunctory. But worship and giving give reality and life to religion. The nobler impulses awakened by worship should find expression in practical service.

Teaching Points.

- 1. Following such light as we have is the way to come to more light.
2. The coming of Christ disturbs those whose ways are evil.
3. Obscure places and humble homes often make great contributions to the world.
4. Those who have most often appreciate their privileges least.
5. God guides those who give themselves to follow his guidance.
6. To find Christ is life's supreme joy.
7. It is the part of true wisdom to worship Christ.
8. True worship will give impulse to giving and sharing.
9. God warns as well as guides.
10. God fulfills his promises and his purposes.

A GREAT DAY.

I think the past two Sundays have been the best in my ministry. Three weeks ago I made an appeal for our mountain work at Fancy Gap, Va. On last Sunday 320 gifts were laid upon the altar for the mountain folks. We had two large congregations throughout the day, as well as a large Sunday School. Again yesterday, we had 380 at our Sunday School, and the church was filled to its full capacity. Brother Ricketts went to our Farrow Street Mission in the afternoon and brought a message that stirred his hearers. Brother Jerry K. Jones went with me to Happy Home, where we found one of the largest Sunday Schools since our ministry there. The school has grown rapidly during the past two years under the leadership of Brother Hudson. After Sunday School, Brother Jones brought a message to a full house, which was well received by his hearers. At the close of the service the pastor was presented with a gift from St. Nicholas, and a gift it was, just the things one needs most and can best appreciate: jams, jellies, sausage, flour, canned fruit—one of the largest poundings I have ever received. The Ford was loaded until one doubted if it would make the journey back home.

Then back to Danville, where we found a large number of young people presenting Christ as the Great Missionary, at their C. E. Society. Out into the auditorium, and a packed house was awaiting the evening service. After a fine song service, and an old fashioned testimonial service, the congregation was in the right attitude for the message. The day was soon brought to a close. The writer arose early Monday to take his usual Monday's hunt, not with a blue Monday before him, but with one happy in the Lord Jesus Christ.

M. T. SORRELL.

LIFE'S MELODY.

Seek to make life, henceforth, a consecrated thing; that so, when the sunset is nearing, with its murky vapors and lowering skies, the very clouds of sorrow may be fringed with golden light. Thus will the song in the house of your pilgrimage be always the truest harmony. It will be composed of no jarring, discordant notes; but with all its varied tones will form one sustained life-long melody; dropped for a moment in death, only to be resumed with the angels, and blended with the everlasting cadences of your Father's house.—J. R. MacDuff.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES. Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps. $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold. $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools. 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

TODAY'S CHALLENGE.

"This word signifieth the removing of those things that are shaken, as of things that are made, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain. Whereby we receive a kingdom which cannot be moved."—Heb. 12:27, 28.

There is written in almost everything the words "passing away." The age long oak decays, falls and crumbles to dust; the hills are washing down; the mountains are crumbling; and scientists tell us that even the stars are burning out like candles in their sockets.

But there are some things that do not pass away; principles, character, love and charity.

Ancient Greece is gone, but the songs of Homer sing on. Imperial Rome lies in dust, but Virgil's voice is still heard. Midaeval potentates are forgotten, but Dante still lives; customs change rapidly, but each age faces truth.

One significant fact of the ages is that mankind engulfed in the pursuit of comforts and pleasures, or puffed up with pride and prosperity, forgets these enduring things and what it takes to realize and enjoy them, and something has to happen to reduce him to the true things. Hence God in his dealings with man throughout the ages has said, "I will shake the sky, the earth, the sea, and the dry land, and shake all the nations till the treasures of all nations are brought hither and my house is filled with splendor." and history reveals that wars, catastrophes, pestilence, depressions, and economic and material failures have shaken the world from time to time; and from all of them have come the fulfillment of the prophecy of our text: Things that are made are taken away that the things that are eternal may remain and reap a kingdom that cannot be moved.

Prayer—Our Father, our dreams often fail and our hopes vanish away, but thou knowest all things, and thou knowest us. Make us thy servants and make us true to the true and the good in all life's way.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

CHRISTIANITY'S PLEA.

"There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the ends thereof are the ways of death."—Prov. 14:12.

"The house of the wicked shall be overthrown; but the tabernacle of the upright shall flourish."—Prov. 14:11.

There is a way that man makes, and there is a way that God intends. There are principles of life which man fosters himself, and there are principles which have issued from God from the foundation of the world. There is a character which man builds of his own thinking, and there is a character patterned after the thinking of God. The whole plan of Christianity, as it is in Jesus Christ, is that man shall live the principles and build a character after God's thinking.

There is a great breach between man-made life and that which God intends, and great shaking times come to man in order to open to him the awful contrasts, so that man may find the enduring things and shape life accordingly, thus coming more nearly to what God intends. Carlyle said, "Much as I deplore the excesses of the French Revolution, had it not been for the Revolution, I could not have known what to think of God."

We believe that some day some prophet may point to the hard times of our country and show wherein a vision of God and the things he intends to be are the direct fruit of upheaval and distress.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, give us vision to see that thou art all wise and good and that thou doest all things well. Give us more trust in thee to stand fast in the faith that thou dost assure will at last set us free.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

SOME FRUIT SHAKEN DOWN.

"No chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous; nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby."—Heb. 12:11.

It is too early to say what may be the ultimate fruit of the World War, much less our present economic depression; but let us suppose some results.

Suppose we reap ultimately a less competitive spirit and a more cooperative one; suppose it develops the brain of man into good for man and banishes a lot of selfishness and greed for gold; suppose it gives to man a keener sense of fighting for right and a greater hate for evil, would you say that the war, or the depression were justified? Why knows?

Prayer—Our Father, we pray for assurance in our hearts of the things vitally real but which are held by thee as a reward for faithfulness and are not now visible. O God, have mercy on us, poor, weak, faltering creatures. We give ourselves to thee.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

WHAT FOR?

"Every one that heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand, great was the fall of it."—Matt. 7:26, 27.

Read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews carefully and continue on through the twelfth. The preacher gives us a roll of heroes who in times of great stress and shaking came through "by faith" and won the true incorruptible crown of God.

We, too, are to live by that faith if we are to look for a society that cannot be moved. What is our hope? If we wish for better things in order to have more money, more comforts, more pleasures, more automobiles, then we are doomed as was Rome in ancient days, which now "boasts not even of a tree."

Christ warned us against this in our text; it is building on sinking sand which building must fall when the storm comes. We need to pray for the lesson that the chief values in life are not in material possessions, not stocks and bonds, bank accounts and vast estates; but the chief values in life, the ground that holds firm in stress and storm, are in spiritual entities, such as love, joy, peace, honesty, justice, mercy. Some one has rightly said that the first necessity of our times is "deliverance from the lure of secular prosperity."

Prayer—Our Father, we feel the foundations slipping from our lives every day. We pray for something from thee that will tune our ears to thy voice and turn our thoughts and our feet thy way. Grant unto us our prayer and plant our feet on solid ground.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

AN ARMISTICE OF SELF.

"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice wholly acceptable unto God which is your reasonable service."—Rom. 12:1.

On Armistice Day, last November, we tuned in on our radio and a voice blasted in our ears,

"Have you made Armistice with yourself? Are you at peace with yourself? Are you at peace with your intimate relations? Are you at peace with your fellowman?" That was an astounding sermon that left us thinking.

Patriotism for the sake of a "hurrah for our country" has no place in the thought of God. The truest patriotism has its setting in righteousness and the thought of God is personal righteousness. Everything else must fail.

So then life challenges us to look to ourselves and place ourselves where we should be in the light of righteousness. It appears that that place is in succession of those noble heroes of "Faith," who by that faith in God and his kingdom conquered not for self, but for the common good of all.

That faith called for total self-abnegation for they had to live in God's thought, God's way, and in the hearts of their countrymen. Jesus has told us about this when he said, "He that would be chief among you let him be your servant." The man who is greatest is the man who renders the greatest service to his fellowmen.

"By faith," we may expect the supremacy of ideas; "by faith" we can expect a society that cannot be shaken; and "by faith" we can dedicate our bodies and all that we are to this cause. Will we? The whole success of life depends on the answer.

Lord God of hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE GREATEST CHALLENGE.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

Roger Babson said recently, "The need of the hour is to change the heart of all classes, the rich and the poor, to new motives, new purposes, and high ambitions. These must precede the return of prosperity. This calls for Christian education in our homes, and schools, and colleges."

The same sentiment was expressed by Dr. S. Park Cadman, of Brooklyn, when speaking in the hope of the future ahead he asked, "Should not every child be taught to tell the truth and not a lie? Should not every child be taught to be obedient, and not rebellious?" There is only one sensible answer. If that be so, our greatest challenge is to do that very thing; and there are two ways to guarantee it: First, be genuinely that way ourselves. The second is, to teach and train our children that way. By no other means will the future be invested with right living; by no other means will the next generation have a background of the eternal values when they come to bear the burdens of society and the responsibilities of mankind, save in this way.

All righteousness demands that the world have justice, tolerance, honesty and moral courage. These are modern virtues of the thought of God, without which the forces let loose among us cannot be controlled; but with them the world can be shaped in splendor.

Prayer—O Lord our God, can we discard ourselves? Can we discard our false estimates of value? Can we acquire virtues and ideals that accord with thy thought? O God, help us to answer. May our every passion cry out the answer, "O God, we must."—Amen.

SUNDAY.

PREACHING INWARD PEACE.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord who made heaven and earth."—Psalms 121:1, 2.

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

MORAL RELATIVITY.

By J. DELMAN KUYKENDALL, D. D.

"Whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it."—Eccl. 3:14.

If two automobiles, A and B, moving at speeds of twenty and forty miles an hour, respectively, pass in opposite directions two other automobiles C and D, moving at speeds of thirty and fifty miles, respectively, each of the cars is not only moving at a different speed from every other according to the speedometer, but at a considerable variety of speeds relative to each of the other cars. This is a very simple proposition that everyone knows and has always known. Its application by science to the whole physical universe has come to be known as relativity, which is the great word in the parlance of the day, and the sign of a learned man, or one who desires to be thought learned.

The magic of the word arises from the fact that science seems to have discovered that the entire universe is in motion—that nothing is fixed, and that all physical values are relative, rather than positive. There is no center, there is nothing of which we can say it is immovable, and that everything else can be referred to it. Everything is absolutely in flux, in activity, constantly changing, relatively, to everything else. Prof. Einstein has expressed it by saying that there is no hitching post in the physical universe. Even the least of the atoms composing what seem to be material substances, is itself a microcosm in activity. Its protons and electrons and what not, are characterized chiefly by the fact that they are intensely in motion. Nothing has any quality except in relationship to something else, which is itself without character outside of its relationships. Black is only black in relationship with white, and white with red, and so on. Stone is only hard in relationship to the soft hand that touches it. Movement is only fast or slow in relationship to the road over which it is in progress, or to other moving objects, such as the fleeting cloud or the whirling planet. It is quite improper to say that your car is moving at sixty miles an hour. It is really moving at a thousand speeds, and may even be moving backward when it seems to be going forward.

It is all very weird and mysterious, but may be accepted as true. We know, in fact that to the extent that it can be observed relativity is true, although it seems a little strange, if every part of the universe is constantly in motion, that we can come back here week after week and find here what seem to be the same stone walls, with the same shape and color and texture.

The theory of relativity has usefulness only as a speculative doctrine for scientists and mathematicians. It is of no great concern in everyday living, or would have if it had not been carried out of its proper field and made to apply to certain phases of thought where it does not belong.

For instance there are those who insist that there is no such thing as absolute truth, that nothing can ever be known with sufficient certainty to make it a reference point for other supposed truths, that we can never be sure of anything, because nothing is true except relatively to something else.

As a speculative theory this may not be objectionable, but as a working theory in life it has had large influence in bringing about the age of uncertainty in which we are living. Men no longer anchor themselves to dogmatic truth, and there is a vast deal of intellectual floundering in the present day. The danger in this is that it may bring ineffectiveness and futility of purpose, and ultimately of activity.

The theory of relativity has also been carried over into the field of ethics and morals, and we are being told quite frankly that there is no such thing as an ethical or moral standard, by which behaviour may be measured and judged. Morality is relative. What is immoral for one person or one group of persons is highly moral for another. In the natural sequence it follows that everyone creates his own moral standards, and there is no final authority to which his conclusions may be referred. The reasoning is false, as I shall try to show later, but there is little doubt that this theory of moral relativity is widely accepted today, and is finding application in life in many ways, which may easily prove disastrous, if we do not recover some plain, common-sense thinking about this matter.

The discussion of today is based on the thesis that the theory of relativity is limited in its legitimate application. There are standards of measurement and of movement in the physical universe, there are standards of logic in the intellectual realm, and there are standards of behaviour in the field of ethics and morals. All of these standards are positive, fixed, final, and authoritative, and we cannot with safety be indifferent to them.

May we go back to the physical universe. If it were absolutely true that there is no hitching post, there would be no universe. Anarchy cannot prevail among the stars or the light of the stars will go out. There may be no solid center to which all moving parts refer, but there is in the universe a controlling factor or force that is in a very real way a hitching post. You may call it what you will, the cosmic law which has come accidentally into being, the infinite intelligence which directs all things, the laws of nature, or God. It is because this controlling force continually operates that we may repose some confidence in the universe. If it were not present we should not know this minute what our circumstances will be the next minute. We should not be able to order life with the slightest degree of assurance.

That hitching post does exist, and if it were to be withdrawn, everything would vanish. It may be said also that when anyone abrogates the authority of that controlling force he imperils himself. Suppose that nature were capricious and suddenly reversed what we call the seasons here on our tiny speck of matter called the earth. We already know from observation of the effects of variation in the seasons from year to year what would come about if winter were suddenly to take the place of summer. It would shortly bring about the death of all growing things, with what disastrous result to mankind we can easily conjecture. In the authority of God as expressed through the laws of nature there is a fixed, a certain finality that we cannot safely defy. When we do defy it, by setting out tender plants in the frozen soil, for instance, or building our houses upon the sides of a latent volcano, failure or catastrophe are certain to follow. "Whatsoever God doeth it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it." There is an authoritative, controlling force in the physical universe.

It is not easy to indicate that there is a standard of truth, but reason and sound sense point to the conclusion that if there is any reality at all there must be a body of truth that is final, ultimate, that cannot be controverted, to which all other supposed truth may be referred for measurement and verification. There must be facts which are fixed. That we have not yet found final truth in so many matters, that we flounder along in search of truth, replacing destroyed dogma, proves nothing. We may reasonably be sure that we have found much ultimate truth and are not aware of it. Much that faith accepts, which the intellect rejects, is probable truth, unrecognized, even while we act upon it with perfect safety. There must be intellectual hitching posts if we can but find them and tie to them.

It is in the field of ethics and morals that the theory of relativity is operating most dangerously. Whatever may be true of the physical universe there must be hitching posts when we come to the matter of human motives and behaviour. If there are no final standards to which conduct may be referred for measurement, if every man is the legislator and the judge and the executive of his own moral law, the result can be nothing other than ethical anarchy and the ultimate destruction of humanity. We cannot get along with millions of divergent and conflicting standards of conduct and of thought.

There is no reason for assuming, as so many do today, either that God has created man and left him utterly without moral guidance, or that man is the product of purposeless evolution and that no standards of behaviour have evolved along with man's evolution. However, man has come to be there are fixed, final, authoritative moral standards. They may have come from God, or from experience, or from an innate moral sense, or from all these—but whatever their source they must be recognized and accepted if there is to be any safety or success or happiness in life. And that ultimate moral law is not subject to constant amendment by the individual or the group who may object to its restraints. The moral law cannot be defied any more safely than can the laws of nature.

Those who declare that no moral standard can be recognized are speaking either from ignorance or from wilful desire. They do not want to recognize it. The ultimate moral law has been formulated clearly enough. This is accomplished by experience, by observation, by a rational consideration of the needs of life, by the innate sense of decency which is in every right-thinking person. There are some of us who believe that the inherent moral sense which is in man is the voice of God, and that the Word of God shall stand forever. There is no going beyond it.

Any intelligent person, of reasonable observational powers, whose judgment has not been warped by perverted training or perverse desire, is quite well aware of the nature of the moral standards which are necessary and adequate to proper and safe living. The moral law beyond which it is not possible to go, may be expressed in a very few words—some of them are justice, honor, cleanness. Mighty words, these, that in their implications may touch every element and avenue of life—mighty words in the obligations which they involve. They assuredly do not admit of many of the adjustments and alterations of our moral codes which are made with so great facility and casualness today.

A mode of thought or behaviour is not made moral simply because it is an accepted custom of an individual or a group. Take the matter of murder. This is a commonplace among certain tribes of headhunters and cannibals, and is often excused on their behalf because it is their way of acting and their way of thinking. There is a moral standard which says that murder is immoral, and it is not made moral by its common practice by any individual or group. The moral standard continues to exist and prevail. There is a kind of organized murder which is accepted as legitimate among civilized nations. We call it war, and it is the subject of wearisome discussions in international law and in a myriad treaties. The fact that it is so widely recognized does not make organized murder moral, even though a whole world defies the moral law and destroys itself in its defiance. The moral law continues to exist, even while men murder each other by the wholesale.

(Continued on page 14.)

THE SUN'S PULPIT.
(Continued from page 13.)

It must not be forgotten that whatever men may do, fixed, authoritative moral standards are not subject to veto. They may be nullified in practice, and immorality may be given a specious guise of morality by common consent. This does not make the act moral, nor does it mitigate in any degree the force of the moral law. It only demonstrates the grosser immorality of the one who refuses the sanction of the moral law and seeks to justify his act on the theory that morality is relative.

Nor should it be forgotten that any lowering of moral standards below the ultimate standard which a rational mind can discover, and even nullification of faulty forms of moral law put into civil and criminal codes is likely to bring misfortune, if not disaster, and that it has ramifications reaching far beyond the specific act.

Not all laws which are made by men for the guidance of human conduct, are demanded by the ultimate moral law and by the universal moral standards, and many such laws have no effectiveness in creating better modes of behaviour. There are many laws which are merely irritating. They are not necessary. They are not the best way of accomplishing the end desired. They ought not to be in the codes.

Even so it is very often true that the practical abrogation of such laws produces such an effect that wide damage is done, and the fundamental moral law is itself abrogated. Defiance of law often does not stop until it has brought about defiance of the ultimate moral standard, and may result in effects far-reaching and dangerous.

A law which does not become a vital issue by some circumstance which forces it into public notice, and which is an unnecessary and undesirable law, may, perhaps, be safely nullified by common and universal neglect. This has happened many times. It is not always safe to nullify a law which has become a vital issue, accomplishing that nullification by a course of direct opposition to its enforcement. The second law may be just as objectionable as the first or just as unnecessary, but when it becomes the football in a contest between observance and nullification some dangerous repercussions are likely to follow. One of these is that men may be led into playing football with all laws, even those which are necessary.

This works to the weakening of all laws, not only the legal code, but the moral law and social conventions. The spirit of lawlessness is ordinarily held in restraint sufficiently at least for a measurable safety to society, by the law-abiding mass of public opinion and public behaviour. When the supposedly law-abiding element represents a law to the point of winking at its infraction or conniving in its infraction, even though it be an undesirable law, they are doing something much more than merely protesting against that particular law. They are justifying anyone in defying any other law which anyone may find it inconvenient to obey. And they are weakening the whole moral code, by destroying one of its important girders.

Law is not something imposed on one by another. It is a common enterprise for social safety. Even if those who make particular laws act unwisely it is still dangerous to destroy the foundations of society for the sake of securing relief from an unwise and objectionable statute. There are other and better ways of remedying the unwisdom of the legislation. Moral relativity cannot be carried too far, with safety, in the realm of humanly made laws. And it certainly cannot be carried too far, with safety, in the realm of human conduct when age-long experience has set up certain conventions and modes of behaviour as necessary and desirable. It will probably be found that our free and easy conventions, our Renos and our complaisant divorce courts, that our palliation of large scale gambling and the spirit that goes with it, that our studied indifference to the value of human life—that all these and many other of our modern institutions and methods of conduct, will bring ultimate disaster—are bringing it, in a seriously weakened moral sense. The Word of God shall stand forever and the moral law is not subject to recall at the whim of anyone who finds it uncomfortable.

This naturally suggests a question which has vexed men in all ages—whether there is or can be such a thing as free will if back of every individual stands an ultimate and inexorable moral law, with the compulsions of divine authority which has power to enforce its edicts. Where is freedom of will if there is not moral relativity, and if every man is not to some extent the maker of his own moral standards.

Accepting the idea that there is an unchangeable moral standard which may be recognized by any intelligent person, and which actually operates in human life there is in that fact no destruction of freedom of the will. Men can and do defy the moral law. Sometimes they seem to "get away with it," though in doing so they weaken character and personality, even when they themselves do not know it.

Neither the moral, nor any specific code of laws is intended to act as a whip compelling men to do what they do not will to do. It is intended as a guide to their wills, as a lamp to their feet upon a dark pathway, as a gleaming goal luring them on toward the attainment of the best. The moral law is a standard to which men may adjust their thought and behaviour, to their own very great advantage.

No one was ever seriously hurt by adapting his conduct to the best standards dictated by an understanding of the moral law. No rational person, honestly searching for the moral standard by which life can be lived in safety and happiness, is likely to be seriously led astray from the way of life. The highest moral standard allows a sufficient leeway in action for achievement and for happiness. These do not come by way of defiance of or indifference to the moral standards which human experience and the revelations of enlightened minds set up. Moral relativity has decided limitations, and we cannot go far astray in following the lead of one who said, "Think not that I come to destroy the law and the prophets. I came not to destroy but to fulfill."

The law and the prophets. The moral law graven deep in the human soul, and the interpretations of that law wrought out through the experience of the ages in codes and conventions. These are not subject to hasty repeal in our free and easy age—for it is still true, that the word of Jehovah shall stand forever.

Cocoanut Grove, Fla.

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing      The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5.      Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-rèth, he came and dwelt in Cà-pèr'nà-ùm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Nèph'tha-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31. CHAP. 4. <small>Is. 9. 1, 2. Lu. 10. 7.</small>	934 CHAPTER 5. <small>3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.</small> AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-
--	--	--

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
<small>With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness</small>
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

---

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

ST. MATTHEW, 5.      Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup>The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Nèph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jòr'dan, Gál'y-lee of the Gèn'tiles;	A. D. 31. <small>k Is. 9. 1, 2. Lu. 42. 7. Lu. 2. 32. m Mark 1. 14.</small>	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3 <sup>b</sup>Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
---	---	---

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above.....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

THE CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE.
(Continued from page 7.)

Western North Carolina Conference:
Shady Grove .....	$ 1.00
Pleasant Ridge .....	12.65
Burlington Add:
Mr. Kernodle .....	$ 3.00
Church .....	14.25
C. T. Holt's Class.....	2.40
M. C. Stafford's Class....	50.00	69.65
Bennett .....	4.00
Parks Cross Roads .....	7.15
Grace's Chapel .....	5.00	99.45
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Bethlehem .....	$ 25.00
Union, Southampton .....	$4.70
C. E. Society .....	1.00	5.70
Old Zion .....	15.00
New Lebanon .....	10.00
First, Richmond .....	6.60
Barrett's .....	5.04
Suffolk .....	191.87
Cypress Chapel .....	16.04
Burton's Grove .....	5.18
Dendron .....	13.75
First, Norfolk .....	38.37
Suffolk, Add A. T. Holland.....	25.00	357.55
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Whistler's Chapel .....	$ 1.77
Leaksville .....	12.25
Concord .....	15.22
Newport .....	11.20
Palmyra .....	4.11
Joppa .....	5.60
Dry Run .....	12.95
Bethel .....	2.71	65.81
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Richland .....	6.00
Individual Thanksgiving Offerings.
Mr. Marvin Gunn .....	$ 1.00
Mr. J. W. Drake, Rocky Mount, N. C. ....	25.00
Miss Celeste Penny, Chapel Hill, N. C. ....	5.10
Mr. P. L. Kivett .....	10.00
Mrs Nannie L. Hawkins .....	1.00
Miss Thelma Holland, Elon Col- lege, N. C. ....	1.00	43.10
Total for the week .....	$ 1,240.04
Grand total .....	$17,123.69

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

The meaning of the Psalmist in this passage is found in his experience as a Shepherd when he rescued a lost sheep from the hills. David put himself in the place of the sheep, and as the poor lost thing heard the call of his shepherd from the hills yonder, he said, "I'm a lost sheep of my Lord's. I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord."

Your writer is still reveling in memory and imagination in the sight of the great Sequoia trees of California's forests, and in the gigantic overmastering presence of the Sierra Mountains. Having a keen sense of the things God revealed in these, his soul naturally repeats the words of David.

There is nothing that makes one realize his dependence upon God more keenly than the magnificent grandeur of the mountains. The soul breathes an inward peace and gently turns to prayer.

Prayer—O Lord, baptize us anew with thy Holy Spirit. Grant us new visions of grace and mercy, new wisdom and understanding, new loyalty in service, new joys in justice and righteousness; make our home thine, make our people holy; establish our work in righteousness; in Jesus' name we ask it.—Amen.

It is well known among veteran hunters that when a tenderfoot goes into the wilds with a new compass and gets lost and "turned around," he will not trust the compass. He thinks it is broken or at least has something wrong with it. He will deliberately turn and travel in the direction he "feels" is right, regardless of how the needle points. He may be traveling in a circle, and probably is, but he "feels" like he is going right. He is not lost, but the compass is. And what would you think of a man standing before a Western Union clock cogitating about like this: "Now, let's see, according to that clock it is nine-thirty. But that is a mistake. I feel like it must be at least eleven-fifteen. To be safe, I'll just set my watch at eleven-twenty-three. Some cannot trust the Bible for accurate information in religion. They are not satisfied to believe what it teaches an indefinable something they think is "Holy-Ghost religion," because that is the way they feel about it. Better stick to the compass. Your feelings are not more reliable than a compass, a Western Union clock, or the Bible—C. E. Wallace.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D..... Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D..... Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D..... Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D.... Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D... Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D..... Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE.... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year .....$2.00
- Six Months ..... 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

BROWN.

Brother Milton V. Brown passed to his reward December 1, 1933, being 74 years, 7 months and 16 days old.

He leaves to mourn his departure one sister, Mrs. Belle Clapp, and one brother, Geo. W. Brown, both of Brown Summit, N. C., besides many other relatives and a host of friends.

He had long been a member of Apple's Chapel Church, having been teacher and superintendent in the Sunday School and deacon in the church, and influential in the community, and will be much missed. A large congregation and many pretty flowers bespoke the esteem in which he was held.

Burial services at Apple's Chapel by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. A. Brown of Burlington, N. C.

T. J. GREEN

HAMMOND.

Doris Lee Hammond, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Hammond of Burlington, N. C., a member of the Christian Orphanage family at Elon College since June 1, 1933, was born May 29, 1921, and departed this life at Rauvey Hospital, Burlington, N. C., November 13, 1933, at the age of twelve years, five months and fourteen days.

Doris was a lovely child and all the Orphanage family had learned to love her. She had a bright, sunny disposition and always seemed to see the good in all that she came into contact with, and never finding fault with anyone even though she was mistreated. Though she was only twelve years of age, she endured her suffering with great fortitude and calm resignation to the divine will.

The funeral services were conducted at Johnston Hall, Christian Orphanage by Dr. W. C. Wicker, and the interment was made in the Magnolia Cemetery. During the funeral, little Ellena Morgan, the baby of the institution, sang "Jesus Loves Me," while the ninety Orphanage children and visiting friends and near relatives stood by and many of them were weeping. A male quartette from Burlington composed of Messrs. M. Z. Rhodes, E. N. Pierce, Lewis T. Catse and Talbert King, sang "Jesus the Saviour, Pilot Me" and "Crossing the Bar." Many beautiful flowers and the large group of friends who attended the vices bespoke eloquently though silently the high esteem in which Doris Lee was held by all who knew her.

W. C. W.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 13.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

Come to Nashville, the Educational Center of the South, and prepare for Christian leadership. A Graduate School open to both men and women, with opportunities for self-help.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBELT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN
JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1934.

NUMBER 2.

ELON COLLEGE CAMPAIGN NUMBER

$25,000.00 FOR ELON

AUTHORIZED BY THE CONVENTION.

MAIN ENTRANCE TO COLLEGE GROUNDS, SHOWING ADMINISTRATION BUILDING.

Conferences in Carolina and Virginia have endorsed this Campaign and pledged their churches to a conscientious effort to raise their quota. Elon College needs your help!

Let Every Member Make Sure That He Does His Part!

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Managing Editor gladly yields the front page this week to the cause of Christian education as sponsored by his Alma Mater.

Everybody wants the kernel without the hull. How many would want John D.'s fortune, if his ninety-odd years had to go with it.—Milton Lee.

January and February are Elon College months in our churches, and every congregation should realize the merit as well as the needs of our College.

Several churches have sent in their Christmas offering for Ministerial Relief. J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C., is the Treasurer of the fund and will gladly receive funds intended or collected for this worthy purpose.

Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom report that the Christmas trees, treats and pageants given at our Elk Spur and Rocky Ford Churches, Carroll County, Va., proved to be great and happy events, carrying cheer and gladness to many grateful hearts.

Rev. D. M. Spence, Walkerton, N. C., is happy in his new field of service, having in his parish Salem Chapel, Belew Creek, Pleasant Ridge and New Hope Churches, and these good churches are equally as happy in having their pastor located in their midst.

Large congregations are hearing Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor of our Suffolk Church, and are appreciating his inspiring, helpful messages, as well as his pastoral activities. It was the writer's privilege to be in the congregation in a recent Sunday service and enjoy the worship and fellowship with these good people.

Rev. T. Fred Wright, formerly pastor at Sanford, N. C., changes his address to Waverly, Va., to which place he moved recently with his family, and becomes pastor of our Waverly, Spring Hill and Centerville Churches. Brother Wright has our best wishes as he faces the opportunities and obligation of his new field of service.

We learn with real sorrow of the death of Brother John Fonville, R. F. D., Burlington. This sad event occurred on Thursday, December 28th, at his home near Long's Chapel Church. Brother Fonville was the faithful and beloved teacher of the Adult Bible Class of Long's Chapel, and a loyal and active member of that church. He will be greatly missed in church and community.

Through some error either at the postoffice or on the train last week, part of the papers addressed to Suffolk, Va., were sent to Norfolk. We have received notice of the following, and are mailing duplicate copies this week: J. M. Darden, H. H. Byrd, J. W. Brinkley, Mrs. T. A. Barbee, Miss Julia Brinkley. If there are others who did not receive their paper, if they will notify the Richmond office, duplicates will be sent as long as our over-run lasts.

Rev. G. C. Crutchfield changes his address from Colfax to Burlington, N. C., R. F. D. No. 2. Brother Crutchfield is now centrally located and is in easy access to his work, being the pastor for the present year of Bethlehem, Berea, Graham Providence Memorial. He reports his work starting off well, and he is happy in the service of this large and important pastorate. In addition to his work as pastor, he is president and financial secretary of the Christian Missionary Association of his Conference and is seeking to interest the constituency of the Conference in the Association.

WHAT IS MY SHARE?

By L. E. SMITH,
President of Elon College.

According to the action of the Board of Trustees and the vote of the Conferences in North Carolina and Virginia, with the exception of the Valley Virginia Central Conference, which met before plans had been formulated, the members and friends of our church are asked to raise a minimum of $25,000.00 for Elon College this spring. This means that they have asked me, as a member of the Christian Church, to make a definite contribution for Elon College. I love my church and have always tried to do what it asked me to do. Now, I want to know what I am expected to give. In answer to this question, may I say that individuals are asked in this campaign to contribute to Elon through the churches. The amount to be raised directly through the church is fifty cents per member per enrollment. For instance, if my church has a membership of two hundred, my church is expected to raise $100.00. In order to arrive at the amount I am to give, I should consider my financial ability to contribute in comparison with the membership of my church. If I can give largely, it is my duty to give; if I cannot give but a little, it is my privilege to give what I can, according to my ability. I have the promise and the faith that my blessings will be multiplied, if I can give no more. The minimum contribution asked for through my church is fifty cents per member. If I can give a hundred times that amount, it should be my privilege to make a contribution in the amount of $50.00.

By looking at the Convention's askings in the above light, every individual member of the church should be able to ascertain what is expected of him. You have my congratulations in your effort to help put this campaign over successfully and I hope that I shall be able to congratulate every church in the Convention on complete success in this most worthy undertaking in behalf of the College. Please allow me to thank you individually, and your church, for your help in this campaign.

VALLEY LETTER.

The work is moving along fairly well in our Conference. Most of us have been busy in revival meetings during the fall season, but we are through now until spring opens again. Some good meetings have been held, though in most cases the ingathering has not been large.

I have held five meetings in my own field this year, covering a period of about three months. Preaching about every night during this time, and two or three times every Sunday, teaching a Sunday School lesson almost every Sunday, preaching a funeral now and then, visiting the people all the time, and driving a Ford about 1,000 miles a month is a good sized job, and one that takes about all there is of a preacher. However, I am blessed with health and strength to do it, and feel first-class all the time.

The visible results in my meetings were unusually small this year, though in some other respects there is reason for encouragement. There were three conversions at Bethel, one at Palmyra, three at Leaksville, two at Joppa, and five at Concord. Rev. R. L. Williamson, a former pastor, and his good wife were present several nights at Leaksville, and preached to the delight of all. His many friends were glad to see him and hear him preach again.

Bethel, Concord and Dry Run had splendid Christmas services this year. These services were largely attended and much enjoyed by all.

Our mid-year session of Conference will be held at Bethlehem, March 29th. By vote of our last August session this is to be an official session, and the churches are entitled to representation by delegates, just as in the August session.

A. W. ANDES.

Harrisonburg, Va.

NEWS FROM WALKERTON, N. C.

SALEM CHAPEL.

On Friday evening, December 22nd, the young people of this church gave a Christmas program which was interesting and inspiring.

At the close of the program the Sunday School was given a treat around the Christmas tree, which was enjoyed by everyone present.

Some of the good members often stop by the pastor's home, bringing good things for the pantry.

BELEW CREEK.

On Saturday evening, December 23rd, there was a Christmas program given by the children to remind us of the meaning of Christmas. There was a Christmas tree and treats for all the Sunday School.

The good people pounded the pastor with many good things to eat, such as one desires to place on the pantry shelf and table.

PLEASANT RIDGE.

Sunday evening, December 24th, the young people gave a Christmas pageant, showing the true spirit of Christmas. Everyone seemed to thoroughly enjoy this service.

At the close of the service the pastor was pounded with many good things for the pantry.

NEW HOPE.

The writer is also serving this church. With the few loyal members and the interested people of the community, it is hoped that this church may be able to serve acceptably, and grow as it serves.

Each church has a preaching service every two weeks. The good people of all these churches are to be commended for their cooperative efforts in carrying on the work of the church in their respective communities. And their pastor appreciates the privilege of serving such a loyal people.

D. M. SPENCE.

AN APPRECIATION.

Many friends in many places remembered us at the recent Christmas season with cards, letters, telegrams, gifts and donations in money. Thus, in spite of our being absent from friends "back home," we had a most happy and enjoyable Christmas, and the memory of the many kindnesses shown will cheer and hearten us along the way during the New Year and beyond.

Friends have never before, perhaps, meant quite so much to us as at this particular time, and we would like to express our deep appreciation to each one who remembered us in any way. Your thoughtfulness and interest contributed far more than you can ever know to our happiness and encouragement, and may the Giver of "every good and perfect gift" abundantly bless and enrich your hearts and lives. In his blessed and holy name, I wish to express for myself and family our appreciation and gratitude.

Yours in love,

G. O. LANKFORD.

Memorial Home, Penney Farms, Fla.

A BRIEF FROM AN EARLY ALUMNUS OF ELON.

By REV. C. E. NEWMAN.
Virgilina, Va.

It was the early settlers of our country who established our first institutions of higher learning. These were church institutions, presided over by Christian men laboring in the interest of Christian education. State institutions for higher learning came into existence later and were never intended to take the place of nor to conflict with church institutions. The latter are as imperative a need today as at any time since Harvard first opened her doors.

There were many church colleges among us before Elon began her career, but the Christian Church in the South needed just such an institution for her own maintenance and growth and for what was of greater importance still, that she might accomplish a greater work in carrying on the great commission delivered to the church.

The influence of Elon upon the history of the church in the past four decades has doubtless gone beyond the fondest hopes of our most progressive and self-sacrificing ministers and laymen among her founders. To meet the needs of the enlarged opportunities occasioned by the merger of the Congregationalist and Christian Churches, Elon enters upon a new and more glorious career.

The writer matriculated at Elon on the opening day of her fourth session, remaining until he received a diploma and has kept in touch with the progress of the institution and her influence upon the church. At present he visits there some half dozen times a year. I am of the opinion that she is now doing the very best work in all her history. And this is being done under apparently great handicaps.

Elon was established by the heroic sacrifices of noble men and women of nearly half a century ago and maintained to the present by those of a like spirit. Surely after a constituency of ten thousand established her and she has been maintained to the present, now with more than thirty thousand, together with the aid of the Congregationalists of the same area, her present needs can be met. This will make possible a more glorious Elon in the next generation, and a greater Elon will make a greater church in influence and power for the Kingdom of our Christ.

ELON FOR ME.

By REV. S. E. MADREN,
Henderson, N. C.

Education is a give and take proposition. One may be able to get a lot, but unless one is willing to share, it will not amount to much. A colored preacher remarked that, "Education is like a boat; if you keep putting on and taking off, it will work all right; but if you keep putting on and never take anything off, it will sink." Secular education has its place, but it should never take the place of Christian education. If education prepares one for service, it is true that Christian education will prepare one for better service.

One's training, however, may be blessed. One may be highly educated, mentally, and, at the same time, not possess a trained heart. To be well balanced, one needs to be trained in a Christian atmosphere that the mind and heart may develop equally, and thus prepare one for the proper place in life.

I am reminded of the man who did not believe that religion should be taught; but, that children should grow up naturally. One day while he was visiting a friend, his friend took him for a walk into his garden where many weeds had matted together. The man then asked him why he did not pull up the weeds and plant flowers. His friend replied with a smile, "O, I want my garden to grow up naturally, as you think children should do."

This age is demanding better leaders. To have better leaders, we need Christian trained boys and girls who shall be responsible for the church of tomorrow. Where shall we go for such a training? This question may be answered without any hesitation. "To Elon College." Why do I say, Elon? Because it has a place in my heart, and should have a place in the heart of every loyal member of the Christian Church.

Elon belongs to the Christian Church and we cannot be proud of our church without being proud of "Our College." We would not think an individual very loyal to his country if he were not loyal to the government which makes the country safe for democracy. Without the College to prepare Christian leaders, the spirit of the Christian Church would soon cease to exist.

Elon is prepared for leadership training—and training of the best type. No college in the South is better prepared for its task than is Elon. Its laboratories are complete; its location is ideal; and its faculty is well prepared, as well as Christian in character. Never a better spirited soul lived, and has been thought more of by his students, than has Dr. J. U. Newman, the veteran Bible teacher. The church should be proud also to have at the head of the College, a man with the ability of its president, Dr. L. E. Smith.

I have a son in school for his first year, but in 1944 I expect to enroll him at Elon. I know of no college where I had rather for him to attend. I have the utmost confidence in the College and its leaders. The College atmosphere is wholesome and the curriculum is ideal. For leadership training and character building, I can depend upon Elon. Therefore, it is Elon for me—first, last and always.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....
Street No. or R. F. D.....
City..... State.....
Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER

C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL

ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

TEACHING RELIGION.

"Religion is caught and not taught." This is one of those axioms of language that carries enough truth to make it stick, but enough error to make it dangerous. Christianity is primarily the religion of revelation and regeneration, rather than of investigation and reformation. Our Lord made this distinction, and quite clearly and forcefully, when he said to Peter, who had declared that Jesus Christ was the Son of the living God: "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." Thus, through revelation from above, and not by study and investigation, had Peter "caught" the real meaning and might of Jesus.

And Jesus made clear and forceful the same truth when Nicodemus, man of culture and scholarship, came to him and, with the spirit of the inquiring scholar, said: "Rabbi we know that thou art a teacher." But Jesus turned and said to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God." This same truth Jesus conveyed also in the words, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

The error conveyed in our axiom, however, is dangerous, since it may convey to the mind the idea that all religion, or sufficient religion, is "caught" and not "taught." Although Peter had made the great discovery through revelation, Jesus did not cease, even to his last moments with him, to teach Peter the better way, and both by precept and example, point out to him the dangers and pitfalls, as well as the heights and glories, of the good life. The best one can say of the axiom is that while religion is caught and not taught, only enough of it caught to inspire the mind to learn more of it, and to fire the heart to yearn for its deeper truths, and inflame the soul with a passion for Christian character. The spark, when struck, is only the beginning, and is in no measure the dull and sweeping flame. Revealed religion, or the religion that is caught, is and should be the spark, as it was in the case of Peter, from which the passion of a soul may be aroused to the formation of undaunted Christian character. The goal of religious education is the formation of character, and to this end the Christian College gives itself with all its energy and power. This is its supreme motive and task.

Unless our own Elon College can and does develop Christian character, send out men and women from its classrooms who are equipped for religious activity and training, and peculiarly prepared for Christian service in pulpit and in pew, it has no place worthy of distinction and support. But because through its forty-three years of experience and training it has been sending out men and women equipped for this task who are today, hundreds of them, in a very marked manner, revealing to the world their Christian character as developed and directed at their Alma Mater, the College deserves our hearty and most liberal support and devotion.

We do not claim that Elon College is the best college in the South, but we, Congregational-Christians, do claim that it is the best college that we unitedly have thus far been able to make here in the South, in training our boys and girls to go out into the world in the strength and the might of their Christian character. We do not claim that it is the best we might have made, but it is the best we have made, and the leaders in pulpit and pew, whom it has sent out, may not be the best leaders in the South, but they are the best leaders that we have, and the ones that are leading us in the things that we undertake through the church for righteousness and the kingdom. This month and next, the churches are called upon, every individual in the churches is called upon, to make some contribution to the support of Elon College. This should be a blessing and not a burden, a real privilege and not a thing to be shirked, because through this offering we make a real contribution to Christian character, and to the character of the boys and girls, men and women, who are to be our preachers, teachers and leaders through the years ahead of us.

THE HIGHER LAW.

The amazing address of the Honorable Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, before the Federal Council of Churches, assembled in Washington in December, still reverberates through the land, and is proving to be not only the outstanding address of that great assembly, but of any assembly in our land during 1933. The papers are still printing striking paragraphs from the Secretary's great utterance, while many are yet spreading the address in full before their readers. It was the more startling because, coming from an office overwhelmed with the stern and stubborn facts of everyday affairs in the field of agriculture and business throughout the land, this man stood before the outstanding Protestant preachers of America, from all over the land, and literally out-preached them all. It was the power of early training and constant reading of the Prophets, particularly in the Old Testament, with their "thus saith the Lord," that seemed to speak through this man of the President's Cabinet. Hear him as he declares his message of Evangelism to the assembled representatives of twenty million Protestants:

"We have all sinned in one way or another, and we are all sick and sore at heart as we look at the misery of so many millions of people, including among them many of our close friends and relatives; and we ask again and again why this should be so in a nation so blessed with great resources, with nearly half the world's gold, with great factories, with fertile soil and no embarrassing external debt. We look at all this and ask what main-spring inside of us is broken, and where can we get a new main-spring to drive us forward?"

And then Secretary Wallace names the remedy by declaring that the personal initiative conferred by the Protestant religions, must in some way be merged into a powerful religious attitude toward the entire social structure. In such words and in such spirit, this man from the President's Cabinet, out of the deep experience of early religious training, calls upon the preachers and churches to hold up in every community and before the world, the great ideals of our Lord in seeking the regeneration of society, and the redemption of man, from his sinful and selfish nature to the spirit of friendship and cooperation. This is the higher law that must supplant the lower law of selfishness and greed, if society, civilization and government are to be preserved. Not communism, not socialism, with their empty philosophies, but a social order based on a redeemed and unselfish individualism is to prove the salvation of our country and of mankind. It is the higher law of cooperation for which the Secretary pleads, which higher law is only possible as it replaces the lower law of selfishness and greed. The closing paragraph of this wonderful address reveals the spirit of the man and his message, and should appeal to every CHRISTIAN SUN reader, and to all who care for the spiritual welfare and salvation of individuals and society:

"The religious keynote, the economic keynote, the scientific keynote of the new age must be the overwhelming realization that mankind now has such mental and spiritual powers and such control over nature that the doctrine of the struggle for existence is definitely unmoded and replaced by the higher law of cooperation. When cooperation becomes a living reality in the spiritual sense of the term, when we have defined certain broad objectives which we all want to attain, when we can feel the significance of the forces at work not merely in our own lives, not merely in our own class, not merely in our own nation, but in the world as a whole—then the vision of Isaiah and the insight of Christ will be on their way toward realization."

Unless we can substitute that higher law for the lower law of "dog eat dog," then our State and civilization are doomed. J. O. A.

OUR GREAT NEED.

Our friend, V. E. Kitchens, Roanoke, Ala., calls our attention to five "great needs" as stated by President Coolidge some years ago, as he stood at the grave of the unknown soldier. We wonder if these are yet among the five pressing needs of the present. They are as follows:

"We do not need more national development; we need spiritual development.

"We do not need more intellectual power; we need more spiritual power.

"We do not need more knowledge; we need more character.

"We do not need more government; we need more culture.

"We do not need more law; we need more religion."

Government, knowledge, even patriotism and benevolence are not enough. And if we are to go further and forward, we must go deeper. No building is safe and permanent without a sure and safe foundation. J. O. A.

POSSIBILITIES OF A COLLEGE.

By STANLEY C. HARRELL,

President of the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches.

To the unthinking and uninitiated a college is just a college. One frequently hears the expression: "Just another small college," or "a little denominational college." The way people speak of colleges one might be led to think that they are all as exactly alike as two Fords of the same model. Perhaps, if the standardizing fanatics could have their way, all colleges would be as nearly alike as two peas, and almost as valuable.

But when one comes to know a real college, it is an entirely different story. Real colleges are as individual as persons. A real college has a heart, a mind, a soul, a spirit. It does more than enable a student to pass a prescribed number of courses. It interprets life. It implants ideals. It develops personality. It moulds character and shapes the development of the soul that comes under its benign influence.

There are those who contend that the education of all youth should be left entirely in the hands of the State. To such individuals the denominational college is a waste of time and money. There are also those who contend that the maintenance of individual homes for the rearing of children is a foolish and expensive thing; that all children should be placed under the control of the State to be reared by experts. But there are some of us who think that both positions are equally illogical and mistaken.

If we are correct in our assumption as to what a real college is and what it is expected to do; then if we of the Christian Church have worth while character, personality and ideals, we owe it to ourselves and our children to build a college that will foster in the hearts of our children the things that we ourselves hold dear. In the building of such an institution we not only perpetuate the best that we have and are; but we also aid in the perfecting of the good that is within us.

In Elon College we have an institution that does exemplify the best that the Christians of this section have been able to attain. Elon College has not only shown itself able to inspire one generation with the best that the preceding generation had attained; but it has inspired those which it has trained to perfect that which has been entrusted to them.

There are, as it seems to me, but two possible courses open to us. We may confess defeat, acknowledge that we have nothing individually, that is worth the expense of teaching our children, and turn their education into the hands of those more competent than we. Or we may determine that the best of yesterday shall be the foundation for today, upon which we shall build a greater tomorrow. It is for us to decide which course we shall take.

ELON COLLEGE.By C. H. ROWLAND, Pastor,First Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C.

It is time for the children and friends of Elon College to quit talking about luck—that is the talk of a baby mind. Let us throw our souls into gear and pull her out on higher ground. The fire of enthusiasm can turn the trick. Enthusiasm makes men strong. It wakes them up, brings out their latent powers, keeps up incessant action and develops things.

It was Dr. W. S. Long, the first President of Elon College, who had a vision of a Christian College for his own people. He saw the everlasting inspiration to the future generations. The influence of this one man, with his heart on fire for the young men and women, inspired others, and began a work that cannot die. He believed that the safety of the younger generations depended on a Christian education. He knew that real progress could not be divorced from religion.

It is true that many young people have been induced to attend college with the thought of preparation for securing easy money. This is a dangerous ideal, and will not only defeat the individual, but will wreck state and society. It was G. H. Lorimer who said, "It's good to have money and the things that money can buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy."

It is not the lamps that make the streets as bright as day at midnight, but the electricity that passes through them. It is not beautiful buildings and great endowments that make colleges, but the spirit. A Christian college must give forth light through the spirit of the boys and girls instructed. Jesus did not remain in person with his followers, but they were always inspired by his spirit. Colleges are sending abroad those who have studied within their walls to reveal the true, spirit of Christian education. When the college spirit dies in her children, the college itself will die.

Horace Mann said, "It is well to think well; it is divine to act well." We know that life was given us for acting, rather than indolent and aimless contemplation. Our worth will be determined by the deeds we do, rather than by the fine emotions we feel. One thing, and only one thing, has the stamp of eternity upon it—what we have done for the good of others. Much we do is undertaken for the love of the Master, and the work, and this will be wages itself to them that go through with it.

A man stood before one of Turner's great paintings and said, "I see nothing in it;" the great artist replied, "Don't you wish you could?" Many of the friends of Elon stand before her, but see nothing except bricks and mortar. If the friends of the College could see the very life and spirit and the possibilities within her, and would act their part, her influence would be even more far-reaching than it is. Don't you wish, my reader, you could see the real Elon? We will see her, for she is our very own, and will do our part for her.

CHURCH COLLEGES AND THE MODERN WORLD.

By H. S. HARCASTLE,

Pastor Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.

Our modern world puts a great deal of emphasis upon education. It insists that young men and young women—and for that matter, older men and older women—should be trained of hand and head if they are to keep pace with the times, and if they are to make their contribution to their day and generation. Every aspiring young man or woman should try to get all the training possible for life work, even from a selfish standpoint, for it pays in dollars and cents. Modern life, and especially modern business life, puts a premium on education and training.

But our modern world is beginning to sound a new note in the matter of education. It has come to see that mere education, no matter how comprehensive or how thorough, is not enough. It has come to see that education apart from integrity of character may be a positive menace. It has come to see that education is like a sharp tool, or a high explosive. Put it at the disposal of a child or a maniac, and it becomes a dangerous and a destructive force. It has come to see that a heart, as well as the hand and the head, must be trained in any complete and safe scheme of education. Even secular education is putting a new emphasis upon character-education. The hope of the world of tomorrow lies in its leaders who are well-trained men and women of high ideals and of unselfish purpose, who use their education not as a means to selfish ends, but as a means to unselfish ends. Education must be redeemed by, and consecrated to, religion in its finest sense.

It is because of this fact that the writer believes that there is still, and always will be, a place for the church college. Not, of course, to teach sectarianism or narrow denominationalism. But the church college has a distinctive contribution to make both to the lives of its students and through them to the life of society. The necessary and desirable limited student body, the distinctive religious atmosphere, the specifically religious courses, the religious interpretation of general courses, the general background of the church college as an institution—these and many other factors make it possible for the church college to do a distinctive and much-needed type of education. And its scholastic standing need not suffer by comparison with state institutions.

All this does not mean that state institutions do not have a place in our educational system, or that they are not doing good work. It does mean that if all the church colleges in the country should close their doors, sooner or later—and sooner than we perhaps suspect—there would be a difference in the tone and quality of life. The church colleges are no parasitic growth on our educational life. Neither are they out-worn institutions. They have a practical and vital place in our modern life.

Elon College is our church college. She makes a distinct contribution to our Southland through her Christian leaders, and to the cause of education in general by acting as leaven in the lump to transform mere secular education into Christian education, inspired by high ideals and dedicated to unselfish purposes. She demands and deserves our support in every way.

WHY SUPPORT ELON COLLEGE?By W. C. WICKER, President,Eastern North Carolina Conference.

Elon College is the child of the church, the Alma Mater of a host of students and graduates of the institution, the dream of our forefathers, the ideal of our best thinkers, the hope of the coming generations of the youth of the church. "There are those who love it." Thousands who have been inspired, stimulated and awakened to higher educational ideals have either patronized or attended the College and their love for Elon can never die. Old students who attend the College now as visitors recognize the spirit of loyalty as they converse with members of the faculty and student body, hear words of commendation as they converse with citizens of the community, and feel the spirit of self-sacrifice as they know more of the conditions under which our capable and consecrated president assumed the responsibilities of leadership in our educational institution. All who visit the College and catch the spirit which pervades the life of the community, come into contact with the real and genuine religious atmosphere of the church services, hear the inspiring music and deeply spiritual messages which characterize our religious activities, bespeak a bright future for the church which provides such an environment for the education of our young people who are to become the preachers, religious leaders, educators and professional men and women of the future.

Because of such conditions, actual and potential, at Elon College, we should support the College with our good will and expressions of loyalty (Continued on page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

When I entered Elon College the curriculum provided for two years' preparatory work in the Academic Department, and four years in the College Department. Not many young people, in those days, were sufficiently advanced to enter college, after they completed the course in the public school. My previous educational opportunities were limited to the advantages of a one-room public school, which I entered at the age of five years. I was, therefore, prepared to enter the first year of the Academic Department, and this gave me a six-year course before I could win the coveted diploma. By hard work, I covered this six-year course in five years, and graduated with the A. B. degree. Twenty-four years later I won the M. A. degree from my Alma Mater.

During my college days the plant consisted of two buildings which were heated by stoves, or fire-places, and lighted by kerosene lamps. Every young man, in dormitory or private boarding house, was expected to cut and carry wood to his room for heating purposes. The old college well furnished water for drinking purposes for all who roomed in the college building.

Rigid social rules were enforced. The young men were allowed to make dates to call on the young ladies on Thanksgiving, George Washington's Birthday and at Easter. After the first year I was elected leader of the music for Chapel and Church services, and this gave me many coveted opportunities to talk with the pianist and young lady members of the choir. I was, at that time, especially thankful that the Lord gave me a love for music. Suffice it to say that music was not always the topic of conversation. College students can say a great many things while turning the pages of a song book.

Many of the young ladies and men who enrolled as students went from the farm. The College was poor. The equipment and living conditions compared favorably with living conditions in the average home. The rooms were comfortable and the board was good. But when a young man goes from the farm where he warmed himself before the open fire-place, read by the light of a kerosene lamp, drank water from a gourd and took his bath in a washing-tub, and takes up a ten-months' stay in a college dormitory with steam-heat, electric lights, porcelain bathtub and shower baths, something is going to happen to him when he turns his face homeward at vacation time. Nine times out of ten he is dissatisfied with his home surroundings. For the average young man there is something yet to be said in favor of his patronage of the small college with plain and simple, but adequate equipment. Every hardship and privation of a college, and of college students, makes a college education more valuable in the end. The poverty of Elon College, from its founding, has been one of its greatest assets.

In this day, when many of the colleges have discovered that faculty and students rebel against a daily Chapel service, it seems like ancient history to say that there was a time when Elon College had Chapel service every morning before beginning the daily recitations. These services were brief, but worth while. They gave a religious tone to the work of the day. It is as important for a college to have daily prayers, as it is for the individual Christian to pray daily. I am glad Elon College had the daily Chapel service, while I was a student there. Real revival meetings were popular, and every student was required to attend Sunday School or church every Sunday, unless physically unable to do so.

Elon College gave me free tuition for five years. This courtesy was extended to all ministerial students. Since graduation I have been able to give to the College five times more than the cost of the tuition given to me. I appreciate what the College did for me, and I rejoice in the privilege of paying this money back with interest.

Elon College is the property of the Christian Churches. The history of this institution is a story of personal life and character. It has entwined itself into the life and devotion of hundreds of people. Some of its ambitious leaders who had a vision of immense and finely equipped buildings, contracted debts which the church, at this time, is unable to pay. This indebtedness will eventually be liquidated with great loss to many of the creditors. The financial program of the College will be reorganized and the institution will go forward in its work. In the Educational Period, churches and individuals will be given an opportunity to make contributions which will enable the College to continue its good work. The College must be freed from death-dealing debt. Give as God has prospered you.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE TIME HAS COME.

For more than two years we have been talking and planning for a campaign to raise funds for Elon College. Heretofore, it has seemed inadvisable to enter into an aggressive campaign for the College. The depression has been on, money has been scarce, the needs of our local churches have been many, and we have felt that in the light of existing conditions an effort to raise money for the College would result in but little or no good. We seem to be coming out of the depression a bit. The other day I saw this sign in a store: "Wasn't the depression awful?" indicating that the depression has passed. This is not true entirely, however, it is true in part. There is a great deal more money in circulation now than at any time during the past two years. Everybody will tell you that business is better, that conditions are improving. Other denominations have found that it is possible to raise a bit of money now for a cause that is just. Our own experiences in the local church and our efforts for other institutions of the church have demonstrated that it is possible to raise money now. The people of the Christian Church will support their institutions when they are able to. The time has come, it seems to me, when every individual member of the Christian Church should feel a personal responsibility for the continuance and support of Elon College.

In this Educational Number of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, a number of loyal friends of the institution have written. There is a great host of others who likewise would be glad to express themselves in print. I trust that you may read every single article and that under the inspiration of these articles you will arise to do something definite about the offering to be made by your church.

January and February is the period in which we are to talk about the College, to work for the College, to give to the College, and to pray for her service and future. We, perhaps, have done more talking, working and praying than giving.

The officials of our church have tried to make it convenient for all who will to make their contribution for the College. The Board of Trustees has set the amount to be raised at $25,000.00. The Conferences have accepted their quotas of this amount and allocated the same to their individual churches. The amount that your church is expected to raise for the College in this campaign is equal to fifty cents per member per enrollment. I know that it is bad psychology to announce a campaign for money on the per capita basis. As a rule, the individual who should give largely will send in his per capita requirements and excuse himself of further responsibility. I trust, however, that this will not be the case in this campaign, but that the stronger ones in each church may feel that it is their privilege to help bear the responsibilities of the weaker ones. That is to say, that the plan is for every minister and his local congregation to look at his quota as the church's responsibility and for every church member in the church to do his best to see that their quota is raised. If every minister and layman will do his part, our goal will be reached; those interested in Elon will be greatly enriched, and the College, itself, will be wonderfully helped.

I believe in the Christian Church; I believe in the members of the Christian Church; I believe that they will rally to the support of the institution which was founded by the leaders of the church nearly one-half a century ago. The time has come, then:

1. For us to think of the College and its purpose.
2. For us to think of those who founded the College and who supported it in the days of its beginning.
3. For us to think of the unparalleled service it has been to our denomination.
4. For us to think of the sacrifices made for Elon College by those who are no longer with us, simply because they loved it.
5. For us to think whether or not we will be less faithful and less loyal than they.
6. For us to forget all differences, forgive all wrongs, and out of a Christian heart and from a consecrated purse bring our gifts to the College even at a sacrifice.
7. For us to put forth every possible endeavor to influence every other member of our church to take a stand that we have taken; to unite our efforts and our gifts that the quota of our church for the College may be raised.

Indeed, the time has come for me not to withhold my gifts any longer because I cannot give largely, but for me to give as I have been prospered, trusting God that he may bless my gifts and that he may prosper me more, that my gifts may be more nearly in keeping with my desire and love for his cause.

L. E. SMITH,
President.

FOUR WEEKS AMONG THE CHURCHES.

By W. M. JAY,
Pastor Christian Church, Holland, Va.

It has been my pleasure recently to spend about four weeks among the churches of the Eastern Virginia Conference, soliciting funds for the College. My church very kindly voted to lend its pastor to the College for this work.

It was strenuous work to spend five days in the field for the College, and then return to my work to prepare for my pulpit on Sundays.

May I say, with appreciation, that everywhere I went, the pastors and people received me most cordially in behalf of the College. Each had his hard luck story to tell, but for the most part, those with whom I came in contact had a warm place in their hearts for Elon, and were willing to share what they could in the interest of this institution.

Many there were, both pastors and laymen, who expressed the opinion that "Elon must go on with its work," and "Without Elon our churches would enter upon a period of decay from which it would be hard, if ever, to recover."

Even when donations or pledges could not be secured, the most hearty good will and the best wishes were expressed for the welfare of the College, and a promise to aid all they could in helping to raise their church's quota on the basis of fifty cents per member. Some pastors went so far as to guarantee the quota for their churches.

In behalf of the College and myself I want to express a sincere appreciation to the pastors and their people whom I visited for their kindness and hospitality toward me, the generous response for the College, and the further interest manifested.

I would like to make this further appeal to the pastors and churches of this Conference. Let us make the most of Elon College Day on the second Sunday of January, or the nearest Sunday possible. Let us as pastors and church leaders manifest a true interest in raising our quotas if we may expect the rank and file to do their part.

Only a few times did I meet up with that unbalanced type of church member who would pit one of our church enterprises against another; who would say, "I am for the Orphanage, but not the College," or vice versa; "I am for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but not for Missions," or vice versa.

The constituency of these essential church enterprises is the same for each, and we are too few in numbers to divide that constituency.

It is a lack of balance in our thinking, and judgment to sponsor the one and neglect the other.

It puts in question our sense of loyalty and makes us creatures of prejudice not to support to the extent of our ability our whole church program. The year 1934 challenges your loyalty to God and the church.

"CHRISTIAN CHARACTER FIRST AND ALWAYS AT ELON."

(A Reminiscence.)

By REV. E. CARL BRADY.

I have always been proud of our church, our name, and our College. My own particular home church was a long way from a main line railroad station, and from the regular routs of the dailies, but amongst the first pastors which I recall there was an ex-president of Elon College, Dr. W. S. Long. From him, my parents, and Elon catalogs came my first impressions of the College. Of all the significant information, none caught the eye nor struck the fancy to the same extent as did Elon's motto: "Christian Character First and Always at Elon."

Upon graduation from high school the writer, after one year spent in other fields, entered Elon in the fall of 1921. The circumstances at home in early September were such that two or three weeks had elapsed before I could start. Father, brother, and I loaded the packed trunk on that September Sabbath and journeyed for three or four hours through parts utterly unknown to us. We reached our destination just before the lunch hour. There we were pilgrims in a weary land. Dozens of boys were awaiting the dinner signal in from of the North Dormitory. As the Ford stopped, all eyes turned toward us. Glad was I, because my life had been spent largely in my native neighborhood and certainly not in meeting strangers. Then Rev. Wm. T. Scott, having seen our dismay, came and introduced himself, took us to lunch, introduced us to the President, and made himself so congenial in general that the memory of "Bill" will linger as long as soundness of mind and body are mine. On that day for the first time in my life that motto of our College was made real.

The general routine of getting started, accommodation, etc., having been disposed of, class work and its preparation occupied most of my time. Hardly had a novice time for anything else. However, about the middle of October, a persistent longing to see my homefolks seized me. For me at that time and season of the year a visit home was impracticable; so I packed my trunk and went to the President's office to say goodbye. But alas, his fatherly attitude toward me and his friendly understanding of my care worked wonders. Also one of his friends from Burlington was summoned and his Christian advice turned me from my devices. Again there was an exemplification of Christian character and Christian leadership.

No sooner had I signified my intention to preach than my membership in the Young Men's Christian Association was sought. Likewise, various invitations came from members of the Ministerial Association. Thus it was throughout my college career.

There were some who complained that things were not as they ought to be at the College. Accusations and charges of misrepresentations and falsifications were rumored, but in all candor and in all fairness to the administration and to those pointing the accusing finger, I have not until this glad day been given any consideration which would shake my faith in the work of my Alma Mater.

The most gratifying part of Elon's work comes from a panorama of her services. In 1926, it was common report that only one Senior had graduated from the College whose name was not upon some church roll. This is a bountiful fruition from a bountiful task. May Elon never be ashamed to display its matchless watchword, and may its services be so Christian as ever to attract young men and young women, eager for development of soul and body.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of 1s'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 3/8 x 3 3/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 5/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

hea

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges.

With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S BIBLES

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

A MISSIONARY RELIGION.

By REV. G. WILBUR SHIPLEY.

"Christianity is nothing if it is not missionary. Your Christianity is nothing if it is not missionary," said Dr. John A. Broadus. Christianity in action is Andrew going after Simon; Philip finding Nathaniel; the woman, leaving her waterpot at the well, running to tell the populace of a city that she had found Christ and leading them out to meet him. Paul's missionary enthusiasm was not kept alive solely by the command of his Lord. He felt another urge within his own soul, "The love of Christ constraineth us." The mainspring of missionary enterprise and enthusiasm is the regenerated heart of the believer. Perfunctory obedience to a command is not the most worthy impetus to service. The spirit of Christ in the disciple is the real compelling force. The satisfaction and joy which the Christian finds in his glorious Lord creates the desire to carry the Good News to others. If a man finds a bag of gold, a treasure hid in a field, a pearl of great price, he grasps it for himself. But when a man finds Christ, there immediately arises in his soul the impulse to impart him to his fellowmen.

Scores of examples show that this is the secret of the foreign mission work of the church. . . . It is foreign mission effort that preserves the life of the home church. It gives a purpose, an enterprise, which draws out her dormant forces and capabilities. As exercise develops the body so mission activities bring vigor and strength to the Body of Christ. Thomts Chalmers said, "Foreign missions act on home missions, not by exhaustion, but by fermentation." Alexander Duff said, "The church that is no longer evangelistic will soon cease to be evangelical." The responsibility of a great enterprise begets in a man creativeness, initiative, and the spirit of adventure. The supreme task of the church, seriously accented and earnestly undertaken, will energize and empower our drooping and flagging life. Expansion is the very essence of Christianity. "It is a commodity, the more of which you export, so as to share freely with others, the more you have for use at home."

The supreme overpowering mission of the church, the design of our Lord in its establishment is the evangelization of the world. It is not a mere incident in her life—a side issue, a pious diversion—it is her chief business. It is the Master's great concern. It filled his mind, flamed in his heart, tingled his nerves, throbbed in his blood, thrilled his soul when he walked in Galilee and it is no less dear to him now. His love impartially girdles the globe. His great heart yearns for the redemption of all nations. It lays paramount claim to the energies of the church. It rises above all other obligations, eclipses all other service, and stands supreme in its demands. Our duty is not optional. It is unalterably fixed. It cannot be changed by tastes, prejudices, opinions, likes, or dislikes. It is God's specific for saving a lost world.—The Christian Observer.

GO YE THEREFORE.

Since the world is dead in sin, go ye therefore; since the Cross has power to win, go ye therefore; since the Devil and his host madly vaunt and ever boast, warring to the farthest coast, go ye therefore. Brief the years of mortal life; go ye therefore. Timeless issues and its strife; go ye therefore. Men are passing, early, late, passing to eternal fate, and the season will not wait; go ye therefore. Christ has come, the crucified; go ye therefore. To the souls for whom he died; go ye therefore. All his words, his toil, his pain, once are given—not again; let them not be given in vain, go ye therefore. Yours the power to do the work; go ye therefore. Yours the order, do not shirk; go ye therefore. Christ, your comrade, goes with you, ever able, ever true; he will see the journey through; go ye therefore. Yours will be a high reward; go ye therefore. Yours the "well done" of the Lord; go ye therefore. Yours the blessed, sweet renown of the jewels in your crown, yours the home in Glory Town; go ye therefore. GO!—By the late Amos R. Wells.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JANUARY 6, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 996.67
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	8.04
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	1.40
United Church, Lynchburg, Va.	6.61
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	4.34
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	3.05
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	3.50
Flint Hill, Star, N. C.	.39
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	3.10
Palm St., Greensboro, N. C.	6.00
Brown's & Providence Chapel, Hemp, N. C.	1.00
Holland, Va.	4.50
Henderson, N. C.	2.67
Ramseur, N. C.	5.00
First Christian, Portsmouth, Va.	8.30
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va.	1.40
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va.	1.60
Newport News, Va.	10.00
Wakefield, Va.	1.95
Palmyra, Edinburg, Va.	.66
Total	$ 1,070.18

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 655.47
Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Green, Elon College.	2.00
Total	$ 657.47

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 669.15
Pleasant Hill Christian Endeavor Society, Liberty, N. C.	2.15
Total	$ 672.30

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 55.10
Bethel Sunday School, Harrisonburg, Va.	1.00
Total	$ 56.10

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 6,213.23
Sunday Schools, Regular	73.51
Individuals and Churches	2.00
Specials	2.15
Coin Card Offering	1.00
Total to date	$ 6,291.89

EXCUSED FROM GIVING TO MISSIONS.

Those who believe the world is not lost and does not need a Saviour.

Those who believe that Jesus Christ made a mistake when he said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Those who believe that the Gospel is not the power of God, and cannot save the heathen.

Those who believe that it is "every man for himself," in this world, and who, with Cain, ask, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Those who want no share in the final victory of Christ.

Those who believe they are not accountable to God for the money entrusted to them.

Those who are prepared to accept the final sentence: "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me."—Horace Bushnell.

NEWS ITEM.

FROM MRS. W. M. JAY.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Damascus Church, Sunbury, N. C., observed its annual Guest Day at its December meeting.

After a brief business session, the devotional program, based on Friendship, was given. As a prelude, Miss Katie Pierce rendered a piano solo, "Nearer, My God to Thee." The call to worship was given by the president, Mrs. Roy Parker, followed by a poem by Miss Frances Pierce.

Miss Irene Corbitt gave the selection, "The Making of Friends," and Mrs. J. E. Corbitt, "Old Friends." "Have You a Friend Like That?" was sung by Miss Frances Pierce and Mrs. Roy Parker.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Arthur Hofler, followed by a prayer by Mrs. Elmira Hinton. Mrs. Walter Nixon gave a reading, "The House By the Side of the Road." Selections by Mrs. Joe Byrum, Mrs. J. E. Corbitt, Mrs. L. W. Bray, Miss Irene Corbitt, Miss Annie Lassiter and Mrs. Sam Pierce formed a Friendship Chain.

A most inspiring talk, based on the friendship of Jonathan and David, was given by the pastor, Rev. E. B. White. The hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was sung.

After the conclusion of the program, the members and guests retired to one of the Sunday School classrooms, where they were served tea and sandwiches and cakes by the Third Circle of the Society. Holly sprigs were given to each one present as a token of friendship and good luck.

The Society is proud of having gained four new members at this meeting.

JAPAN AS A MEDIATOR?

The Japanese people as mediators between the East and the West is the dream of Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Member of the House of Peers and Japan's chief delegate to the Institute of Pacific Relations this year, as he addressed Doshisha University students in Kyoto. "We are a mixed race . . ." declared Dr. Nitobe, "being thus a nation which represents in its racial blood practically all of the races of the world, the great mission of Japan should be world-wide in significance. Geographically we are of the Orient; but psychologically we are nearer the Occident. The mission of the Japanese race is to act as the mediator between the Orient and the Occident." Japan, though out of the League, still remains in the family of Nations, he maintained, and is not to be isolated from other nations. Here he emphasized the need at this critical time for leadership of the right kind. "Unless," he told Doshisha students, "the leadership comes from students such as you who are fortunately studying in an institution where there is an appreciative understanding of western ideas and culture, especially American, there may be danger of our returning again to the age of feudalism."

SOME WEAKNESSES IN EDUCATION, AND THEIR REMEDY.

By A. W. ANDES,

Secretary, Valley Virginia Central Conference.

We boast much of our educational system in this country. Undoubtedly it is worthy of many fine compliments. However, in many States there seems now to be a tendency, for the sake of saving money, to cut down on appropriations for education. It is said that thousands of rural schools over the country failed to open last year; that the school terms in nearly every great city are today one or two months shorter than they were 70 or 100 years ago; and that thousands of rural schools are operated on less than a six-months' term.

The public school teachers of the country have suffered heavily from the cuts in appropriations to schools. In some States 80 per cent of the teachers receive salaries below the minimum of the NRA code for unskilled labor, even though they have spent years of time and thousands of dollars in preparation for their work. One-fourth of American teachers receive less than $750.00 a year.

Two results will follow from this unwise cutting of appropriations. It will drive from the profession of teaching the best teachers, and open the door for second and third best. This, in turn, will imperil the future of our youth and our citizenship generally. If the masses of our people are not up to the highest standard in intelligence, our government, our morals, and our highest and best interests of every kind must suffer.

To suffer in point of scholarship is bad enough, but we face even a more serious danger, and that is spiritual illiteracy. What doth it profit us though we have a high degree of intelligence if still we have a low degree of morality? With all our boasted educational institutions and attainments we find ourselves in the clutches of the worst economic, social, political and moral conditions we have ever faced.

We have not overemphasized scholarship. I think we have, in many cases, overemphasized athletics, at the expense of scholarship, and students have often spent their own time and their parents' hard-earned money for that which hindered scholarly attainments rather than helped. But while we have not overemphasized scholarship we have increasingly underestimated the value of moral and religious teaching. Theodore Roosevelt once said: "A man who is educated in mind and not in morals is a menace to society." Our failure to give the necessary moral and spiritual education along with the mental training may, and I believe, does, account in a large measure for the recent crime waves, and the shockingly low state of morals found in our country, and the low spiritual ebb of many of our churches and the shameful backward steps taken in prohibition recently. Such conditions as we find in our country today certainly are unbecoming to an educated people and a so-called Christian nation.

While I am not laying all the blame for these conditions at the doors of our schools and colleges, I certainly must lay much of it there. But what can be done about it? Our public schools, with their reduced appropriations, and their very noticeable timidity about teaching the Bible and things religious, are not likely to fill any large place in the solution of the problems very soon. Our State institutions of higher learning with all their advantages in point of scholarship, and abundant financial backing have never yet distinguished themselves even a little as promoters of religion and morals.

The most likely agency for leading us out of our present wilderness, so far as schools are concerned are those schools owned, controlled and supported by the church. The church is the greatest religious organization in the world. It has many fields of work, prominent among which is the field of education. Education under the supervision of the church must certainly include education of the heart as well as the head.

Such was the vision and settled convictions of the founders of our own Elon College. Such is the ideal and purpose of that institution today. Such is the aim and ambition of its President, its faculty, and its Board of Trustees. May such high purpose appeal to our people, calling forth students, money, prayers to the end that the College may flourish as never before, and fill its God-given place in the mental, moral, and spiritual make-up of the world.

A WORD FOR ELON.

By JOHN G. TRUITT, '17,

Pastor Christian Church, Suffolk, Va.

"Will you say just a word for Elon?" Indeed, I shall. Elon has meant entirely too much for me to let this opportunity pass without putting in my praise for her. What other institution could have entered our little home in Rockingham County, N. C., and changed it as much as Elon did? There are other colleges, that is true, but they might have been too high and mighty, or too little and visionless. As I see it now, none could have done what Elon did.

Through an Elon College trained pastor, our little home became a recipient of the influence of Elon. It was like this: Rev. L. I. Cox was pastor of the little Mt. Bethel Christian Church, to which church our family regularly went. The Rev. Mr. Cox was not a graduate of Elon, but such training as he had he received from Elon. He was proud of his Alma Mater. He delighted to visit in our home, and around the fireside after supper he talked about Elon. A group of young children listened eagerly to his recitals of experiences at college. What a good man, and great he seemed to us! And what a "fairy-like" and far-away blessing a college must be! In short, the Elon trained pastor made good.

And we caught the spirit and wanted to go away to school. Was not Elon College fulfilling her mission in a mighty fine way through that Elon trained pastor? I say it was. It had opened windows to a world hitherto unknown to us. Nor do I think the recitals of the Elon experiences were deliberately done by that pastor to win us to Elon, for he perhaps was just having a good time talking (as ministers do delight to talk), never thinking that the little boys playing in that firelight world would ever dream of going beyond the one-room school of the neighborhood.

But they did so dream. And their parents, helped by the preaching of that pastor and his church, not only dreamed but dared. And just like that the thing was done. I see by the records: "Bulletin of Elon College, Alumni Directory, 1931," that the first of those little boys, Howard E., graduated in 1911; that the second of those little boys, James S., graduated in 1912; that the third one of those little boys, John G. (the writer of this word for Elon), graduated in 1917; that the fourth one of those little boys, W. J. B., graduated in the same class of 1917; that the fifth one of those little boys (fifth in order of graduation, not birth), was graduated in 1919; and that the sixth one of those little "boys" was the one and only girl, Essie Mae, and I see by the records that she was graduated in 1921.

What other institution would have had the patience, and the power, and the personality, and the pull to have achieved that piece of family transformation? I say the Elon faculty, the Elon fathers (or founders), the Elon student body, in short, the Elon spirit made such a thing possible. Do you blame me for loving Elon? Do you blame me for thinking that the churches and homes of the Southern Christian Convention should love Elon—not for what it did for our family, not that—but because of that selfsame sort of help and inspiration that has been rendered scores of churches, and homes, and persons across the years and across the States.

There was nothing narrow, nor little, nor limited about the lessons Elon taught, for those same little boys went on and out to add five post graduate degrees to the bachelor degrees of Elon. I think they have all learned enough to know how humble they still are, and how much humbler they might have been without that "something" caught as it were through an Elon trained pastor, and nurtured by an Alma Mater that thought first of her sons and daughters and last of her self! On the whole, I thank God for parents—determined, consecrated, and courageous; and I thank God for the little church, and its pastor that little boys could love—and I thank God for Elon College. Through Elon I have learned to appreciate all colleges that are good and true. I respect and honor them everyone. And as long as the church shall dream its dreams, and see its visions, the church college with the church culture and the church spirit, will be needed.

WHY SUPPORT ELON COLLEGE?

(Continued from page 5.)

and devotion at every opportunity. We should support the College with our prayers at all church services. We should keep the College ever in the minds of the children as they grow to maturity and inspire them with the laudable ambition and purpose to secure their collegiate education at the college of their church, where religious ideals and influences are constantly impressed upon their minds. We should remember that a great undertaking like that of providing Christian education for all the young people of the church, from age to age and from generation to generation, is too big a task for only a few members of the church. It is a task which is big enough to challenge the love and service and sacrifices of all the membership of the church. If there are suggestions that improve the work of the College, they should be contributed and would be heartily welcomed by our open-minded President. If any information which would be helpful in securing new students can be given, such help should be rendered by writing to the President. Such cooperation would make all who render such service partakers of the blessings that come to those who help in a good cause.

After passing through such a period of financial depression as we have suffered during the last few years, especially following a big building program, forced upon us by a disastrous fire, and preceded by a period of financial prosperity, we naturally have suffered more than other institutions, but we have the plant that is not surpassed in fitness and equipment by any institution which bids for a student body of five or six hundred students. If anyone doubts this claim, let him come and see. It is the verdict of the best educators who have inspected the plant from near and far.

We should support the College with our financial aid at this time, and the various Conferences took the right attitude when they agreed to contribute the $25,000.00 to meet present needs. If churches will individually contribute an average of fifty cents per member this amount can be contributed to the College and every church will be better for having had a part in this service.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

To the cause of Christian Education, the Intellectual, Social, Moral and Religious Development of Christian Youth, as Represented by Elon College, this Page is Dedicated this Week by its Editor, Who Loves Alma Mater.

HERE'S TO DEAR OLD ELON!

ELON IS BORN.

For nearly a hundred years, the followers of James O'Kelley, Rice Haggard and the group of Methodists from North Carolina and Virginia, who decided in 1794 that they would be known as "Christians" only, preached the Gospel of freedom and salvation without establishing a college for the training of youth. In Eastern Virginia where the church was first organized at the end of a century there were 5,292 members. The Conferences of North Carolina reported 8,057 members. In the Valley of Virginia were 207 members in four churches. Twenty churches in Georgia and Alabama reported a membership of 1,174 members. At the end of a century of evangelistic fervor the Christian Church in the South had 14,793 members. And it must be remembered that many of these members came from the Methodist and Episcopal Churches as followers of O'Kelley, Rice Haggard, and others who seceded from the Baltimore Conference.

But just before the century closed, certain leaders began thinking of the need for trained leaders. Seven laymen and seven ministers met in Graham, N. C., and decided to build a college. A committee selected a place in the woods four miles west of Burlington, kneeled down under a black gum tree and prayed to God for the college to be built there. Through suffering, sacrifice and prayer, Elon College was born, and was dedicated to God in its infancy.

ELON GROWS.

It is not strange, therefore, that Elon grew "in wisdom (curriculum), stature (buildings and equipment), and in favor with God and man." Dedicated things seem to do that way.

People now living tell with delight of how they lugged wood and water to the third floor of the two early buildings for their own heat and cleansing. They recall the "good old days" when college men were really men and maidens were crowned with distant admiration.

The fame of this new college for the Christians spread abroad, and to its guiding care came sons and daughters from Christian Church homes in Virginia, Carolina, and even from the far South.

More students meant more buildings and more faculty. After the fire of 1923, an extensive building program gave Elon a group of five buildings as fine as can be found on any college campus. The Religious Education Building, the first on any college campus, sent the fame of Elon to the ends of the earth.

From the College have gone men and women throughout our nation and to many foreign countries. They have entered all the professions that are worthy and share in making Elon grow.

ELON IS BURIED.

"A green bay tree" may spread its branches far and reach high up, but it must know a burial. Great men rise high in fame, but all of them must be buried before they do their best. Institutions never succeed until they are buried deep in the hearts of those who love them.

Elon was born out of the love of Christian people. Elon, like an oak tree, has reached deep into the affections of thousands of people through the years.

Elon now lies buried deep in the souls of men and women who have been inspired by her wisdom and purified by her religion. The storms may rage furiously about her resting place, but Elon rests in peace. When faculty members will work without pay, students will stick amid discomforts, and thousands will sacrifice their savings for Alma Mater, there is no danger for the College.

THE RESURRECTION.

After death comes the resurrection. Elon lives anew every year in the lives of her graduates. From shore to shore there are those who rise up to call her blessed.

This writer believes that Elon now lives in the Christian Churches of the Southern Convention and that her radiance shines afar.

It took a century without a college for the church to become 14,793 people. In a third of a century after Elon was buried in the heart of the church, the membership increased more than 17,000 in members. The hands of the church were strengthened so that property values increased tremendously, and contributions to all causes multiplied.

There is much yet to be revealed, but Elon is being resurrected in the churches, and shall live through the centuries yet to be.

LOCAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LEADERS.

Our Youth Fellowship Movement of the Southern Christian Convention is not progressing as the leaders would like for it to. Perhaps the failure to attain high rating lies in the fact that there has not been placed before us solutions for our various problems. One will observe, however, that an answer to a problem that confronts one group may not solve the problems of another. In order that the young people's work in the local church may progress, the leaders, together with the committee chairmen, must counsel together and build programs around the wholesome interests of the young people in the Society. Let the programs vary from time to time but do not become radical. Dramatize religious and missionary stories and use great care in selecting hymns for the evening services. Make programs interesting and the young people will attend. If I can help in solving problems, please do not hesitate to write me.

There was passed at the Defiance Holiday Conference, a number of resolutions that will, perhaps, appear on this page in the near future. These resolutions were submitted in order that they might aid Young People's Societies in making this year's work more progressive than last year's. If these resolutions fail to appear in THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and one would like a copy of them, please write me and I will send at once.

J. EVERETTE NEESE, President,
N. C. and Va. Youth Fellowship.

Elon College, N. C.

WHY I WANT TO GO TO COLLEGE.

There are various reasons why I want to go to College.

First, I want to seek a higher education. A football coach once said, "Do not be satisfied with your best." I think this applies to our preparation for life. I once thought that a high school education was sufficient; I see now that it is not. I am not satisfied with only that, but I want to seek an education which will broaden me in every respect. College education not only teaches us facts, but gives us different views on life.

My second main desire for attending college is that it gives us a certain culture that we cannot secure elsewhere. In college we come in contact with different types of boys and girls. Meeting these different types of people helps us to overcome our selfish, egotistical ideas and makes us consider others.

I also want to learn to meet responsibilities for myself. The things mentioned above, and others which I think I can obtain from college and college life, will develop and prepare me to make my own way in life.

DOROTHY JONES.

Norfolk, Va.

GETTING ALONG WITH OTHERS.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR JAN. 21, 1934.

(Romans 12:3, 9, 10.)

Through Mutual Honesty (Gen. 31:43-53).
Mutual Forbearance (Eph. 4:1-3).
Unselfishness (Gen. 13:1-13).
Through a Kindly Spirit (I. Cor. 13:4-7).
Through Mutual Esteem (Phil. 2:1-5).
Through Self-Control (James 3:1-8).

Hymns—"I Would Be True," "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee," "Help Somebody Today," "Blest Be the Tie."

Prayer Thought—

"Help me to live from day to day
In such a self-forgetful way,
That even when I kneel to pray
My prayer shall be for others."

"Think on these things." Are too many of my friends those whose background and interests are almost the same as my own? Do I take enough pains with those who do not "mix well?" Am I prejudiced concerning my point of view? Do I accept disappointments and set-backs without becoming bitter or disillusioned? Am I honest, frank, and clear in dealing with my associates? Is it true that the church and the society should be training schools for getting along pleasantly and peacefully with others? Is my educational background a help or a hindrance in getting along with others? Am I using my Christian faith and activities to change unfavorable habits or temperament?

Leader—"Getting along with others" is the secret of the deepest happiness which life has to offer. These words also suggest one of the greatest problems in the world today. The Century of Progress last summer revealed how man has learned to master material things and to accomplish the seemingly impossible through inventions, electricity and scientific knowledge. But beyond all this we hear the cries of those who suffer through war, because statesmen have not learned any other method of settling disputes. We know the sorrow and broken homes because the ones who started out to build those homes did not know the secret of getting along with each other. We see suffering because the employer has not learned the lesson of getting along with his employees in a way that means happiness for both. Even, in the church, sometimes discord has displaced harmony.

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

BAPTISM AND TEMPTATION OF JESUS.

LESSON II—JANUARY 14, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "It behooved him in all things to be made like unto his brethren."—Hebrews 2:17.

LESSON TEXT: Matt. 3:1-4:11.

Baptized.

When Jesus came unto John to be baptized, John unknowingly spoke the sentiment of humanity when he said, "I have need to be baptized of thee." As a representative of a nation, as a representative of organized religion, as a representative of man, he felt the need of the spirit which he had already recognized in Jesus. What the world and what the church and what the individual needs today more than anything else is a baptism of the Spirit of Jesus Christ.

But why was Jesus baptized? Certainly not for sin, for he knew no sin. Certainly not as a means to salvation as he was already saved. Certainly not as a mere gesture to make John feel better. It would seem that at his baptism Jesus openly and definitely and publicly, committed himself to, and entered upon his ministry, the sense of which he had had even as a lad when he stood in the Temple with the doctors and told his parents that he must be about his Father's business. His baptism was an outward symbol of an inner attitude and covenant. Baptism should always be that. Baptism does not and cannot save. Baptism is a symbol outwardly performed to bear witness to an inner cleansing and change.

After Jesus was baptized the heavens were opened and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and lighting upon him, and he heard a voice, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." God is always pleased when his children yield themselves to do his will, and he gives them his approval even though it does not always come in the outward visible form as in the case of Jesus. He who seeks to do God's will has God's approval and blessing.

Tempted.

Jesus was tempted. He was tempted in all points as we are tempted. Indeed he was tempted in more searching ways than we are tempted. Therefore, he knows how to help us when we are tempted.

Baptized, then tempted. It is no coincidence, it is true to life. Spiritual privilege, then the temptation to use that privilege for wrong purposes. Great spiritual experiences precede and prepare for spiritual testings. Power spells responsibility.

Many and various interpretations have and can be given to the temptations of Jesus. They were very real temptations. And we lose the point of the whole story if we think that Jesus could not have yielded to the temptations. The central fact in the temptation of Jesus is not that he could not have yielded, but that he did not yield.

Make bread from stones—use your power selfishly, demand for yourself special privileges, satisfy your lower appetites, even legitimate appetites at the expense of the higher spiritual sensibilities, exempt yourself from inconveniences because you are the Son of God—this in essence was the temptation that came to Jesus and it is the temptation that comes to us.

Cast thyself down . . . He shall give his angels charge concerning thee—presume upon God, resort to the spectacular, claim for yourself exemption from the natural laws, break God's laws and expect exemption from the natural consequences, make capital of your divine sonship—this in essence was the second temptation. And it is a subtle temptation which comes to us, whether minister or layman.

If thou wilt fall down and worship me—There was nothing that Jesus wanted more than the kingdoms of the world. But he did not want them at the easy price of falling down and worshipping the devil. It was the temptation to take the "short cut," the temptation that the end justifies the means, the temptation to sell our souls for the thing we want, the temptation to believe that we can have some things for an easy bargain. Jesus wanted the kingdoms of the world, but he knew that he could not have them on the devil's terms. He knew that man's supreme worship should be directed to God, his Father. He knew that there were some things that were not for sale except in terms of life and service and sacrifice.

It is to be noted that the devil quotes Scripture, but that he does not quote it exactly and in its true meaning and setting. It is to be noted, too, that Jesus answered the devil each time with Scripture. The Word of God is quick and powerful and helps to furnish the man of God both for defense and offense.

"Then the devil leaveth him, and behold angels came and ministered unto him." Resist the devil and he will flee from you. The reason why so many of us get licked is because we temporize and compromise with the devil. At heart he is a coward. And who is there of us who has not, after he has conquered some temptation, felt that angels had come and ministered unto us? The ancients believed that when a man killed a wild animal or an enemy the strength of the animal or of the man came into the conqueror's life. It is a crude belief, but there is an abiding truth in it. Victory over today's temptations makes us stronger to overcome tomorrow's temptations.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

mony, jealousy has driven out love. The younger and the older, the boy and the girl, the white man and his colored brother, the Baptist and the Methodist—all of these may suggest areas in life where folks need to learn to live together happily. What causes conflicts? Where does trouble root? What are the difficulties? And most of all, what are the solutions? To discover these should be the purpose of this discussion.

Suggestions for discussion:

1. Getting along with others—at Home.
2. Getting along with others—at School.
3. Getting along with others—in the Church.
4. Getting along with others—Folks of Other Churches.
5. Getting along with others—the Older Generation.

Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
Where the races of men go by.
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Wise, foolish: so am I.
Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat,
Or hurl the cynic's ban?
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

—Sam Walter Foss.

Where will you live? How will you live?

You will have observed that personal devotion to Christ and belief in his divine mission are here laid down to be the test of true discipleship. The devotion is personal, and the faith out of which it springs and on which it reposes is personal. It is active faith in a living Saviour, and not an intellectual acceptance of a series of opinions.—Brooke Foss Westcott.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES. Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

. 133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3¼x5¾ inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¼x5¾ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5¾x8½ Inches and 1¾ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

THE FOURTH TEMPTATION.

A DISQUIETED SOUL.

"Sirs, we would see Jesus."—Jno. 12:21.

We are not accustomed to think of Jesus as having but three temptations. Stanley Jones gives us another which seems quite potent.

It was when the Greeks came seeking Jesus, represented as one of the most fateful moments in Christ's life, comparable with the wilderness temptations and far more subtle than they. The latter were temptations at the beginning of his career; the Greek one is a temptation which came at the zenith of his career.

This temptation is the temptation which one has when he feels that his work is done, that he should take care of himself, and let down, and take it easy.

The proposition of the Greeks to Jesus, Moffatt says, was to beseech him to come over to their country and take it easy the balance of his life. He had done enough. Besides they saw a storm ahead and knew that he would be killed if he kept on, and why "butt his brains out against a wall?" Jesus is quoted as saying, "My soul is disquieted within me." If Jesus gave the matter much concern, the struggle must have been great. To him it was Athens or the cross. The battle was not one between the good and the bad; it was a battle between the good and the best—good without a cross and the best with a cross.

The most of us would have taken the easier way. But Jesus seems to have argued this way: "Life comes through the giving of life. Fruit is the product of death. 'Except a grain of wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, it beareth fruit.'" The salvation of mankind was not yet completed. One thing man had not learned yet, which was, a mission of good cannot be accomplished by conserving one's own self and resources. Man needed to be taught yet that the saving of life loses it, but the losing of life for the sake of others finds it. The Greeks were asking him to save his life and have it; they were asking him to bless without bleeding, and all nature, which it appears they might have known, cried out, "It cannot be done." Besides, what he needed most was not life, but to give mankind the life that comes through death.

TUESDAY.

INTEGRITY OF SOUL.

"The Lord is in his holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before him."—Heb. 2:1.

While the writer was driving through the forest of the gigantic red wood pines of the Yosemite National Park the other day, the following was copied from a bronze slab erected there to remind man of God:

"These Sequoias Gigantia are of a noble lineage that bridges humanity back through eons of time to the age of reptiles. Here live venerable forest kings in reveries that carry back a thousand years before Jesus Christ walked the Shores of Galilee. In their majestic shadows fretting men may well pause to ponder values—to consider the ironic limitations of three score years and ten. Here, through a compelling humility, men may achieve a finer integrity of soul."

In the city or amidst hurrying, bustling, noisy civilization, one is admittedly swept away from life's truest, sweetest thoughts by preponderant superficialities. In the silence of the forest, the gigantic grandeur of the mountains towering to the skies, and the silent presence of these age-long monster trees, one is made to bow his head in reverence of a greater presence still—God.

Prayer—O Lord, most merciful Father, thou who makest the earth thy abiding place that men may know thee, we bow to thee in a contrite heart beseeching thee to teach us to know thee. Thou dost build the earth with thy hand without a sound, instruct us by thy counsel and in thy way. Thou art clothed with majesty and the earth is thy handiwork, do thou make us thine also, and we will extol thee forever.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

AT THE MASTER'S FEET.

"One thing is needful; for Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her."—Luke 10:42.

How familiar is the story of Mary and Martha—Mary choosing to sit at the feet of the Master, listening to his words.

Sitting in the presence of the Sequoias (big trees) of Yosemite, a soul attuned to God feels that this is the "good part," and a part which none can take away. Adapting McDonald's poem called "Mary," we quote:

We sit at the Master's feet
In motionless employ,
Our ears, our heart, our soul complete
And drink the tide of joy.
Ah! Who but us his glory knows,
His life, pure, high, intense,
From this eternal silence blows
The winds beyond the sense,
We glance with heavenly reason bright,
Around the trees so tall;
His words, his spirit, life and light
Make glad our hearts so small.
Like Mary's joy, awakes our heart,
To do the thing it would,
It seems, like her, he takes my part
And calls my choice "the good."

Prayer—

Oh needful thing, oh Mary's choice,
Go not from me away;
The trees, speak now thy living voice,
Inspire me every day.

THURSDAY.

TREES AND TRUTH.

"Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me. Whither shall I go from thy spirit? Or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there."—Psalms 139: 5, 7, 8.

We are still enjoying the Big Trees, some 350 feet high, 78 feet in circumference, and 26 feet in diameter. How they hold us! We cannot get away from them. Our soul sings the song:

Where'er I go, the Saviour will go with me,
It matters not how rough and dark my way,
With tender love he circles all my journey,
I cannot get beyond his loving sway.
I cannot get beyond the circle of his love,
His presence goes before me,
And his lovelight shineth o'er me,
So I cannot get beyond his love.

There is nothing that represents truth more than nature. We are told that these trees stood here years before Christ, and the truth of them bespeak the truth of an eternal God, filing in complex glory from the beginning of time to the present.

God opens the Scriptures, he opens his world, he opens the realm of the dead, and he opens the future of eternity and compels us to feel that even this worship is but the first outbreaks of an eternal fountain which will flow throughout eternity.

Prayer—Almighty God, we call to mind thy loving kindness and tender mercies. We praise thee for what thou hast given us: for the world in which we live, for work, for truth, and for the hope which leads us on to better things. Accept our thanksgiving in the name of Jesus.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

GRACE.

"He dwelt among us full of grace."—Jno. 1:14.

The writer is still gazing in wonder and reverence at the great trees of California's forests. What is more graceful? What bespeaks more wonder? What bespeaks more the revealing grace of God?

We see Christ across the revealing distance of the ages as he sits under the trees at eventide or meanders along through the groves of Bethsaida. His whole bearing is that of divine love earnestly seeking to overcome all obstacles of time, live above the mean and the low and save man to the heavenlike spirit. It is a life living practical love, descending in the midst of men's sufferings and sins, and earnestly laboring to relieve them.

Prayer—Our Father, we adore thee, we worship thee. As a child should know the will and mind of its parent, so teach us to know thee. As we contemplate nature, we know that this glory has proceeded from thee. How small we are in thy presence! As the sunbeams have flown eternally over the forests and hills, we pray that thy light may fly over our lives and our eternal future.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE SILENCE OF HIS PRESENCE.

"Be still and know that I am God."—Psalm 46:10.

"Empty wagons make more noise than loaded ones," my professor used to tell me. A match makes more noise than the breaking of day or the bursting sun. All great movements of the universe are silent.

The Bible teaches us that it is in the quiet when the mind and spirit learns its best lessons and becomes aware of God. It is in silence that the Son of God comes forth with the radiance of glory.

We are carried away from our good judgment by noises. We limit our horizons and mould our vision by worldly attachments. The Word often enjoins us to be quiet and think.

Prayer—Our Father, make us willing to follow our Master and live alone with thee and pray much. We ask in Jesus' name.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

HOW TO ATTAIN REAL SELF-KNOWLEDGE.

"Search me, O God, and know my heart."—Psalm 139:23-24.

The utterance of the Psalmist seems to us one of the most precious in the Scriptures. The human personality is the most delicate and complex of organisms. We must watch and pray, and strengthen ourselves by divine grace.

If we lay our whole heart and our secret thoughts open to our Maker and Judge, he will prove our best friend, reproving us with tender and loving kindness. So we will become truly acquainted with our moral delinquencies, cast out our evil ways, be pure in word and deed, and rise to lives of spiritual holiness and beauty, walking in the way everlasting.

Prayer—By one of the parents, asking that we may be strengthened in faith and divinely led to do God's will, knowing that if we fully trust him we shall be guided aright.—Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

MICAH'S CODE FOR JUDAH.

[A sermon preached in the Piedmont College Church, Demorest, Ga., December 3, 1933, by Rev. Henry Buckingham Mowbray.]

"Do justly, love mercy, walk humbly with thy God."—Micah 6:8.

In the verse, "Do justly, love mercy, walk humbly with thy God," Micah summarizes his code for the nation of Judah. A code is a set of laws with sufficient teeth to enforce them. At various times in their history Judah had Codes of Holiness. The Code of Hammurabi gave unalterable laws for the Babylonians as far back as the 24th century before Christ. Napoleon Bonaparte established his Five Codes. President Roosevelt calls his rules for a new industrial order, Codes. Here in Micah we have a code for Judah so worth while and altogether true that it ought to be applied to this day by every nation on earth.

In the six short chapters of that Old Testament book called by his name, Micah prophesies (literally speaks forth) this code for right living, and he does it with authority invested in him as a man of God. He does not preface it with phrases of uncertainty like, "it seems to me," "I suspect" or "it might be better." With authority he pronounces to the nation: "The word of Jehovah came to me," and repeatedly asserts: "Thus saith the Lord."

The first of the code says, "Do justly." What is justice? The definition of the Emperor Justinian in about 500 A. D. defined it, and Roman and English courts uphold it: Justice is the steady and abiding will to give each man what belongs to him. Such is the justice on which is built law and order of our western civilization.

Our troubled nation lacks this justice. You read of, or perhaps you have observed, seemingly upright men in industry exploiting their employees. They even deprive little children of their right to go to school or have hours for play, by working them long hours in mills. You have seen employees lay down on their jobs and not give those who hire them fair and honest labor. You have seen your fellows on the college campus go back on their contracts, fail to keep their appointments or deprive others of their property or even their good name. You have seen women unfair and overbearing with other women who toil for them in their kitchens. Well may we Americans be thankful that against many such forms of flagrant injustice President Roosevelt has established codes with power to help bring in a new industrial order.

The incidents that called forth Micah's pronouncements against Judah were that certain false prophets were prophesying that wine and strong drink would bring prosperity (history repeats itself), others were "stripping the robe" off those that pass by, and others were giving small ephas and asked large shekels. And to atone for such crimes they proffered rivers of oil and bullocks from a thousand hills on the temple altar. But to such offerings Micah sternly responded with "Woe unto you! . . . Be just!" Unlike Micah, we, alas, condone injustice. We see much successful injustice around us, and we say, "I reckon it can't be helped, for offenders seem to get away with it." No! They do not get away with it. The reason is that there is still a God in Israel. And if perchance he seems to "get away with it," his son or his son's son or his son's son's son is pushed to the wall.

For the iniquities of the father is punished unto the third and fourth generation. This is, when all is said and done, a moral world; the moral persists; the immoral are punished. A keen psychologist once remarked that he had seen the wicked flourish as a green bay tree, but that later when he made observation, he looked, and lo! they were not. Jesus Christ said concerning Micah's rules of righteousness and others like them that not one jot or tittle of them should ever be changed.

When a man or a nation breaks the laws of God, the law breaker, or what seems worse, some one connected with the law breaker, is punished. And the same thing is true concerning the laws made by man—most of them are wholesome. So when a high school pupil disobeys a high school rule, or condones another pupil in doing so, he never "gets away with it," but in every case there descends on him or some one connected with him, punishment. Let no college student vainly imagine that there is no punishment for cheating in a classroom, smoking in buildings where smoking in buildings is forbidden, breaking in any ways the laws of sex-chastity. "Woe unto you who pervert iniquity and abhor justice," thus saith Micah's God and ours.

Another part of Micah's code says, "Love mercy," or as it is in the Revised Version, "kindness." Justice and kindness, in the Bible teachings go hand in hand. At the same time we are to be both just and merciful. "The chief business of a Christian"—a theme on which Henry Ward Beecher said he rang the changes in all his sermons—"is to live with one's fellows justly and charitably." Perhaps the greatest problem of a wise and genuine Christian is to determine in any given case the proportions of justice and charity. The hero of the Odyssey, as he sailed through the Straits of Messina, had to avoid being devoured by the sea monster, Scylla on the one side, and the sea monster Charybdis on the other. The efforts of a Christian in everyday living is just the opposite. He has to partake of both justice and charity.

In the New Testament God is represented as the wise parent, not the indulgent parent. For an indulgent parent love is a mush of concessions, and in justice he has no backbone. Because God is Love, he organized the world so that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, and the wages of sin is death. Justice, then, is a more basic virtue than mercy, kindness or love. In his code, Micah first mentions justice, and afterwards mercy. To be both just and merciful requires all our judgment, patience and what somebody calls "Christian sense."

The third part of this condensed code is to walk humbly with God. A man who obeys this will doubtless come more and more to know exactly how to live both justly and kindly. The difference between a godly man and an ungodly man is right here. They both live in the same world and sense the same things but with this difference: the godly man is ever aware that he is in the presence of God, while the ungodly man has not this awareness. From this fact comes a great value of the Old Testament, recording as it does that Abraham, Deborah, David and Micah walked with God. True, they were not always just and kind. But somehow, even in those early days, undeveloped days of religion, they were able to better adjust themselves because they walked with God.

Never before, and John Ruskin contends never since, has religion been reduced to such a workable formula as when Micah spoke forth to his nation that the requirement for right living was to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God. "Woe unto Judah," and woe unto any nation which fails to do so. You recall the story of Judah. She heard her prophet and heeded not. And the inevitable result occurred that occurs to any nation disobedient to God's laws. In the third and the fourth generation those Judeans were pushed to the wall and were carried away captives to a hated foreign country.

For you and me and for the American nation Micah's code still stands. Unfailing as the law of gravitation, it works for human welfare. Iniquity visits those who disobey. For those who obey God's everlasting laws, mercy comes to thousands and thousands.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim. . . . . 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. . 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85. . . 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. . 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim. . . . . $ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim. . . . . 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined. . . . . 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

THE WHY OF ELON COLLEGE.

By DR. N. G. NEWMAN.
Pastor Holy Neck Christian Church.

Why Elon College? Why any church owned and church controlled college? Why any college? Why education? And a dozen other questions more glibly asked than intelligently answered. The reasons given are many and various—some of them too old and hackneyed for consideration.

Increases Earning Capacity.

We are told that a college education increases a man's earning capacity and this is proven by statistics galore. This reason is good as far as it goes, but not high. It is a bread and butter argument—"of the earth earthy."

Increases Prestige.

Another reason assigned is that it adds to one's prestige and influence so that wherever he may find himself the advantage will be on his side. There is not so much to this as in former years. The college man today is only one of a crowd—an ever increasing crowd. The distance between him and the "stay-at-home" is being continuously lessened. Cultural influences outside of college life have been greatly multiplied.

Foundation for Higher Learning.

We are told that a college education is necessary as a foundation for professional courses and highly specialized studies. There is much to this and will be more in the future. Universities are demanding this. There can be no structure of great height or weight without a foundation of corresponding breadth and solidity.

The fundamental reason for the church owned, church controlled and church supported college is: Man is God's creation. He lives in a God-made world. He has to do continuously with God-made laws and principles. There is a God designed purpose in his existence. The development of his powers, the achievements and happiness of his life, therefore, depend on his relations to God—the extent to which God can come into his life. God enters through every avenue of intellect, emotion and will opened up to him. The foundation of education is to open up these avenues of divine approach. The function of Christian education is to complete the cycle in its fullness—to educate Christian folks in a Christian atmosphere, in Christian principles and by Christian instructors. The Christian college is the only institution that can do this and strives to that end. This is the Why of Elon College.

ELON IS OUR COLLEGE.

By W. M. JAY,
Pastor, Holland Christian Church.

Yes, Elon is our College. What a fine slogan! If only every member of our brotherhood could feel the sense of this slogan, the College problem would be easily solved.

Elon College did not spring up like a mushroom up there in North Carolina, then stretch out her arms for help and ask for a handout. No, the Christian Church of the Southland actually felt the need of such an institution as Elon and set about the matter with faith and courage to bring it into existence. It is here, and not by mere chance or mistake but by the prayers and faith and sacrificial efforts of our early church fathers.

The primary purpose of establishing Elon College was to train Christian ministers for the Christian Churches and to provide training under Christian influence for the young men and women of our churches, even though they chose to enter the fields of law, medicine, or business. Of course, its mission is undenominational also, and a hearty welcome is extended to students of all faiths.

In most of our churches now you will find these Christian trained leaders serving as pastors, superintendents, teachers and active workers. Yes, I heard what you said, and I admit it at once. There are exceptions, and what rule does not have its exceptions? Without Elon how is the morale of our churches to be maintained. The fact is it cannot be done, and many there are who have so admitted this to me in the past few weeks.

It is surprising to know how many folks ask the question, "Why is Elon not self-supporting?" In my recent canvass for the College, I had to answer that question several times. To make any college self-supporting from student income, or in other words to make the students pay in full for the cost of their education, simply means to bar from college walls the vast majority of those seeking to enter college. If any institution of learning should be self-supporting the State schools should be the ones, for they have the students in great numbers; yet look at the thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars that are voted by the legislatures to these institutions. The fact is that each student in the average college pays for about one-half of the cost of his education, and the other half must be made up from income from endowments and gifts.

The present need for the College is funds to the extent of $25,000.00 to balance the budget for the year and to enable the College to carry out its program for the present session. This is not only our direct responsibility, but an heroic challenge to our faith, loyalty and integrity to meet this responsibility in a practical way. Of course, individuals of wealth and means should generously respond to this need, but the rank and file must also respond if the goal is to be reached.

In regular order a faculty was employed for the year, and the doors of the College were opened for a new student body. About 260 or more responded to that call. They came; they are there now, and nearly half of the year is passed. Some 40 or 50 of this number are candidates for degrees at the close of the year. Friends and well-wishers of Elon, what do these facts mean to you? To retreat or block progress by non-support would seem tragic. Do these facts not constitute a binding responsibility on the part of the church and friends of the College to keep faith with these young people and those who have been employed to train them?

Of course, we will keep faith with these young people and the faculty and the office force, and our most worthy President. The very fact that I, personally, in conference and in private, counseled that Dr. Smith should give up his great church, the Christian Temple, and become the head of Elon College, challenges my loyalty and support to him that our College may be delivered out of the slough of despond onto the mount of success and achievement.

Yes, we will keep faith with the College. It means life to the Christian Church, South, and it means life more abundant to the youth who yearly go out from its walls into the world of experience.

Just received notice today of the quota expected of our church. It looked rather formidable. How shall we face it? Boldly and courageously, of course; there is no other way that is worthy. We shall hope to place Elon and its interests upon our hearts during this educational period. May we not allow the local burdens of the church to blind us in our duty toward the College at this time. With our obligation to the College met, we can then turn with greater zeal to our own local problems.

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES
Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently
BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-rèth, he came and dwelt in Cà-pèr'na-ùm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Nèph'tha-lim:	A. D. 31.	934	CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.
" Isa. 9. 1, 2.		AND seeing the multitudes; " he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4½x6¾ inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

---

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES
Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps
Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup> The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Nèph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jòr'dan, Gál'i-lee of the Gèn'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
---	-----------	---

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above.....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

Christian Orphanage

WHAT IS ELON WORTH TO YOU?

By CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent, Christian Orphanage.

Our Church has three major institutions in the Southern Convention—Elon College, Missions and the Christian Orphanage. All of them have their mission to perform and deserve the love, confidence and loyal support of our entire membership.

In this letter I want to say a word in behalf of Elon College. I am afraid our church people do not realize the worth of Elon College and the great part it plays in the life of our denomination? We have one of the most beautiful and most modern plants of any small college in the South. We should feel a personal pride in it. We have a President and faculty that are the peers of any small college in the South—fine Christian characters—worthy of your confidence and respect. We should educate our boys and girls there because they are to be the leaders in our church and community life. Our ministers who are filling and are to fill our pulpits in our churches are educated there.

The College is in dire financial distress. We must come to its rescue and save it to our denomination. It needs two things: It needs our boys and girls to make up a student body of four hundred students. Let us be loyal and send them there. It needs money as never before in its history. Let every member of the church help. Let us be loyal with our gifts of sacrifice to wipe out the College debt.

If we stand behind our beloved President, Dr. L. E. Smith, he will pull it out of debt. He can't do it without our help. I want to appeal to every member of our denomination to stand by him now in his great undertaking and let us all sacrifice together and help him succeed in his big task. It is our College. It is a big asset to our denomination. We cannot afford to lose it. Now is your opportunity to help.

Dear Friends:

We reached and passed our goal of $17,000.00 for the year 1933. We want to express our appreciation to each church and Sunday School and each individual for the loyal support we had during 1933. It was fine, with financial conditions as they were nearly all the year. We pray God's richest blessings on each and every one, and may the year 1934 have many rich blessings in store for us all.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

[NOTE.—Mr. Johnston sent in a list showing articles sent in since the last report of same. We are taking the liberty of holding this list until next week, because of lack of space.—Managing Editor.]

REPORT FOR DEC. 28, 1933—CONCLUDED.

Brought forward .....	$17,123.69
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Pleasant Grove .....	$ 8.03
United, Lynchburg .....	7.36	15.39
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
N. Clayton .....	$ 1.00
Pleasant Hill .....	3.29	4.29
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Holland .....		5.00
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Palmyra .....		1.10
Alabama Conference:
New Hope .....		2.46

Thanksgiving Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Hines' Chapel, V. Gerringer.....	$ 1.00
Union, Va. ....	20.00
Pleasant Grove .....	10.30
United, Lynchburg .....	2.10	33.40
Western North Carolina Conference:
Browu's Chapel and Providence
Chapel .....	$ 1.00
Big Oak .....	.75	1.75
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Newport News .....	$ 28.95
Sarem .....	4.00
Johnson's Grove .....	1.00
Ivor .....	3.56	37.51

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Bethel .....	$ 2.80
Dry Run .....	9.35	12.15
Individual Thanksgiving Offerings.
W. J. Ballentine, Fuquay Springs, N. C..		12.00
Special Offerings.
First Church, Albemarle, Christmas
Offering .....	$ 5.00
W. P. Perry, support Billy Perry.	10.00
Interest on loan .....	90.00
Christmas Offering, Waverly Ch...	9.05
Beginners' Class, Waverly S. S...	.50	114.55
Total for the week..... $ 239.60
Grand total ..... $17,353.29

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

 Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.
J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE. . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.
One Year . . . . . $2.00
Six Months . . . . . 1.00
Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

STONE—FAIR.

At Belew's Creek, N. C., December 24, 1933, the writer united in marriage Mr. William E. Stone and Miss Minnie Grey Fair, both of Walnut Cove, N. C. Friends of this young couple congratulate them and wish them happiness.

D. M. SPENCE.

MABE—MURRAY.

At home, Walkertown, N. C., December 23, 1933, the writer united in marriage Mr. Odell J. Mabe and Miss Thelma Opal Murray, both of Belew's Creek, N. C.

Their many friends congratulate this young couple, as they start out on this new adventure.

D. M. SPENCE.

JOYCE—BRADY.

Mr. Jack Joyce and Miss Cloyce Brady were happily married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Brady, December 23, 1933, in the presence of a few relatives and friends.

These young people are popular in their home community and their friends wish for them a happy wedded life. The ceremony was performed by the writer.

T. J. GREEN.

HILLIARD—LYNCH.

On December 29, 1933, at Graham, N. C., Rev. Henry C. Hilliard, of Franklin County, and Miss Hester Lynch, of Warren County, N. C., were united in marriage by the writer.

The friends and relatives present at the marriage vied with each other in heartiest good wishes to the bride and groom for a long, prosperous and happy wedded life.

P. H. FLEMING.

WILLIAMSON—WILLIAMSON.

At my home, Virgilina, Va., November 30, 1933, Mr. George Reuben Williamson and Miss Willie Lee Williamson were united in marriage.

Mr. Williamson is the son of John Williamson, of Buffalo Junction, and is engaged in farming.

The bride is the daughter of Luther Williamson, of Virgilina, Va., Route 3. This is a popular young couple with a host of friends who wish for them much happiness.

C. E. NEWMAN.

LILLY—GRIM.

Mr. James Frank Lilly and Miss Lucile Grim came to my home on the afternoon of December 27, 1933, and were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. They are from the neighborhood of Mt.

Olivet (R) Church, and are splendid and popular young people.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Fannie Lilly and the late Charles G. Lilly. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Grim. They will continue to reside in the home community, where the groom is a farmer. May peace and happiness attend them on their way.

A. W. ANDES.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN
JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES

LOW FEES : THOROUGHLY

CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1934.

NUMBER 3.

Seventy-Fifth Anniversary.—

The Sunday School Times has just celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary. Founded by the American Sunday School Union, its first issue appeared January 1, 1859. It was edited for many years by Dr. Henry Clay Trumbull, father of the present editor, and one of the outstanding leaders in the religious world.

Cyclones Cause of Many Disasters.—

Statistics compiled by the Red Cross indicate that the tornado, or cyclone, is the most frequent type of disaster in the United States, claiming a heavy toll of life and property. During the past year tornadoes killed 326 persons, injured 2,755 and rendered homeless as many as 21,000. The Red Cross gave relief in 44 tornadoes in 18 different States.

Babe Ruth Takes a Cut.—

Babe Ruth at last gets his, along with State and National employees, to say nothing of thousands of others. The daily press announces that he has taken a cut of $17,000 a year in signing up for the present baseball season. However, there are still many in the business world who would gladly accept what is left of his former salary, which was $52,000 a year.

Uses for Waste Lumber.—

For over a hundred years it has been known that fermentable sugars could be made from wood cellulose. The first plant for the production of alcohol from wood was established at Georgetown, S. C., twenty-four years ago. The method was developed and improved by the Germans during the World War. There is now a great probability that the processes will be simplified to the extent that the saw-dust, mill-ends, etc., from saw mills can be utilized to advantage to produce sugars, alcohols and proteins.

Science's Most Powerful Rays.—

A new ray has been developed at the University of California, composed of neutrons, and said to be more powerful than either radium or the X-ray. This ray is the most dangerous yet produced, but it shows vast possibilities for experiments both in medicine and in chemistry. The ray, itself invisible, consists of a flow of 10,000,000 neutrons a second. The neutron was discovered in England some three years ago. It is supposed to be the final particle (as the atom once was) of matter. Until the present time these neutrons have been available only in small quantities.

Still Faster Flying.—

Announcement was recently made at Langley Field of the designing of an airplane that would speed through the air at the rate of 544 miles per hour. Present designs of planes have reached the limit of speed because of the "hardening" of the air which packs up in front of them. This new design meets the hardened air by refinement in streamlining and the removal from the plane's surfaces of even small projections. Engine and pilot would be entirely enclosed and the landing gear would be completely retractable. Mr. John Stack, the designer, says: "The computations are made for a hypothetical airplane, which, however, is not beyond the limits of possibility. The airplane is a scaled up model, which has been tested in the variable density tunnel . . . and represents one of the best wing-fuselage combinations thus far produced."

Pollard Refuses Pardon for Jones.—

Requests that, as a final act of clemency, he pardon J. P. Jones, former treasurer of the Virginia Methodist Conference Orphanage, were refused by Governor Pollard. Jones was sentenced to five years for embezzlement of orphanage funds, though alleged shortages were made good. The hopes of his friends, many of whom still believe in his integrity, were aroused by the action of the Governor in pardoning G. N. Sanders, who was committed for stealing nearly $100,000 from the Baptist Mission Board. Sanders was sentenced for 20 years and had served about seven years. The reason given for his pardon by the Governor was that the sentence seemed excessive.

What It Cost.—

Among other clippings from the editor's office comes this, which we appropriate for the front page: "A vivid idea of the appalling havoc of the late World War can be gleaned from figures recently published in the Congressional Record at the instance of Senator Hatfield of West Virginia. The figures were compiled by a German statistician who estimates that the World War resulted in casualties of 11,000,000 killed and 19,000,000 maimed, with an expenditure of more than $500,000,000,000, a sufficient amount of money to buy a $2,500 home in a five-acre plot, with $1,250 worth of furniture, for each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Belgium, France, Russia and Germany, and in addition a hospital, university, and schools, including the salaries of teachers, nurses, doctors, and professors for every group of 20,000 inhabitants."

Ancient Alphabet Found.—

The Christian Science Monitor tells us that there have been made recently discoveries by archaeologists which will throw quite a bit of new light upon the Scriptures. Ancient tablets which were found at Ras Shamra on the coast of Syria several years ago are said to be found to contain an alphabet of 27 characters, the first in cuneiform ever to have been discovered. Several of the inscriptions on these tablets bear close resemblance to passages in the Old Testament. The term for Deity, "El," with its plural form, "Elohim," used so often in the Old Testament, occurs frequently, while the Hebrew form of Jehovah, "Yahweh," appears as "Yah." The sacrifices described in the Old Testament are referred to, and there are many points of similarity with the Mosaic code. These tablets are supposed to have been the work of Arab worshippers from the steppes of Southern Palestine. Just the connection between them and the Israelites has not yet been determined.

Asks that Congress Share Responsibility.—

President Roosevelt has not lessened his determination to cut the dollar's gold value, but he wishes that Congress share the responsibility for his action. He asks that Congress give the Treasury title to "all supplies of American-owned monetary gold"; that it "fix the upward limit of permissible revaluation," and that it give the Secretary of the Treasury full power to purchase foreign exchange as well as deal with domestic gold, establishing a "fund of $2,000,000,000" with which to do this. The very boldness of the President seems to have downed most opposition, but a few conservatives have had the temerity to oppose or to talk back. Probably the most bitter is Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, worn and discouraged in his attempt to prevent the President's action. He is quoted as saying: "Humanitarianism can find some excuse for a man who steals when he has to, but what excuse is there when there is no need?" He says that regardless of the evasions thrown around the question, the country has "repudiated the national debt . . . the whole currency is now irredeemable . . . that is all you can call it, legalized theft." The Richmond News Leader, which has been an ardent supporter of Mr. Roosevelt, says: "We do not go to the length of Senator Glass in saying that the policy advocated by the President involves repudiation of the national debt and the legalized theft of the impounded gold of the Federal Reserve Banks. . . . At the same time, we cannot see the moral justification for expropriating the value of gold that has belonged to individuals and has been called into the treasury." It adds that if the government appropriates the profit on the gold commandeered during the present year, it "can be called by any name one pleases . . . but if it had been done by one individual to another, it would be a case of getting money under false pretenses." It is hard to see the good that this radical step can accomplish. It is foolish to think that the country can be more prosperous with two fifty-cent dollars than with one dollar worth a hundred cents. A contemporary calls it "Bryanism triumphant." It seems more nearly "Bryanism gone to seed."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Richmond papers carried the notice, last Tuesday, of the appointment of Russell T. Bradford, of Nansemond County, Va., as assistant United States District Attorney. Russell Bradford is a graduate of Elon College, and the son-in-law of THE SUN's editor, having married Jennie Willis Atkinson. We offer him congratulations.

Mr. W. E. MacClenny, historian, Suffolk, Va., has an important notice in another column of THE SUN. Many years ago Rev. Mills Barrett, of sainted name and memory, brought out a Hymn Book for use in our Christian Churches, which book was extensively used, but has long since been out of print and general circulation. We feel sure that some CHRISTIAN SUN reader has a copy of this Hymn Book, now needed and desired by our historian. A response to Mr. MacClenny's request will be deeply appreciated.

All SUN readers will, we think, give ready assent to the declaration that last week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, our Educational Number, was great and not only worth reading but worth keeping. It reflected not only the mind of those now connected with Elon College, but the spirit of fellowship, and the attitude toward the College and Christian education throughout our brotherhood. It will pay anyone who failed to read that number to look it up, and get from its pages the spirit of zeal, devotion and inspiration so apparent there.

Dr. L. E. Smith is this week attending the annual meeting of the American Association of Colleges, St. Louis, Mo. On Wednesday, the 12th annual meeting of the Association of Colleges of Congregational and Christian affiliation will be held, of which Association Dr. Smith is president. At 1:30 P. M., Dr. Smith will address the Association on the topic, "What Makes Education Christian?" From the St. Louis meeting Dr. Smith goes the following Monday, to attend the mid-winter session of the full meeting of the Commission on Missions of the Congregational and Christian Churches, at Evanston, Ill., Dr. Smith being a member of the Executive Committee of the same.

A recent issue of the Durham Daily Sun carried quite a complimentary reference to the fine work of our young friend, Joel Holland, formerly of Franklin, Va., and for years a singer in and a member of our Franklin, Va., Christian Church choir. Mr. Holland is now director of a large and growing choir of the First Baptist Church, Durham. Quoting The Sun: "For the past three years the choir has been directed by Joel C. Holland, who is himself one of the city's best singers. He has gradually built up the choir with well blended voices, now numbering forty-four persons, many of whom have been actively identified with the musical life of Durham for years." We congratulate friend Joel, who is using his great talent as a musician in such a commendable fashion.

A WONDERFUL LITTLE BOOK.

[Extract from address by J. H. Dillard at Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, December 6, 1933.]

The other little book is, after the Bible, perhaps supreme among books dealing with the Christian life. The author died twenty-one years before Columbus discovered America. I said the author.

I might have said the supposed, commonly accepted author, because the authorship is not absolutely certain. Probably no book has had such an interesting history. Written first in Latin it has been translated into over fifty languages. It has been published in over six thousand different editions. I saw a new edition in New York two weeks ago. Some months ago I walked into a small book-shop in Chicago and asked the man if he had a copy on hand. He had copies in three editions. John Wesley published an edition, and there is an edition issued by a Baptist Publication Society. It is the most entirely spiritual book ever printed, and yet, if you allow in some passages for the fact that it was written in a monk's cell, it is as much up to date as a morning newspaper. The strangest fact of all is that in this age which we constantly accuse of being very materialistic, this book, next to the Bible, is still the best seller of all the books in the world. It seems to have first appeared without the writer's name and without special title. We know it today as "The Imitation of Christ," by Thomas A. Kempis. The best English translation is probably that of the Rev. W. H. Hutchings, a clergyman of the Church of England. It is not a book to sit down and read through. It is a book in which to read half a page every day. If ever book told the secrets and mysteries of the human heart with its longings and needs, it is this marvelous little book on "The Imitation of Christ."

"AMERICAN PREACHERS OF TODAY."

This is the interesting title given to an unusually interesting book written by the always interesting writer, Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, of Detroit.

Of course, Dr. Jones has not been able to include all the great preachers of America in his list of thirty-two prominent clergymen whom he introduces to the reader in the appreciative biological presentations given, nor indeed would all the men of the thirty-two qualify for membership in "America's One Hundred Greatest Preachers." There are three of the group out of the six of the number who come from Dr. Jones' own fellowship—the Disciples of Christ—who are in no way nationally known characters as is the case with most of those taken from the other denominations. But the list in all is indeed a remarkable company. And the fact that some of the men are not so well known outside their respective denominations, but who are so worthy of being known, makes the book of all the more interest and value.

This series of character studies of religious leaders in our day will prove of interest and profit to every minister who reads them. Indeed the book is one of the unique contributions of the year to the minister's library.

In the introduction, the list of about two hundred names of ministers from the various denominations has several names misspelled and the wrong addresses given. But these are so well known in their respective denominations that they will be easily recognized even by their misspelled names.

The book contains appraisals of thirty-two ministerial leaders in their respective denominations, and as already stated, the majority of the group are nationally recognized as inter-denominational leaders. I covet for my brother ministers the privilege of becoming better acquainted with the background and activities of these leaders in Christian work by reading this stimulating book published in an unusually attractive edition by the Bobbs-Merrill Company of Indianapolis, at the very reasonable price of $2.00.

ROY C. HELFENSTEIN.

Dover, Del.

THE HONOR ROLL.

By vote of the Conferences in Carolina and Virginia, individual churches were asked to raise for Elon College during the months of January and February an amount equal to fifty cents per member per enrollment. We shall endeavor at the College not only to properly record every dollar that is sent in, but to credit it to the local church. We are anxious, therefore, that everyone who sends in money, if he wants the contribution credited to his local church, to please state the same and give the name of his church.

In this column each week, we will publish amounts sent in from the churches. Brother T. J. Holland was present at the Eastern Virginia Conference when that Conference took the vote to raise money for the College. Brother Holland went home and sent $25.00 in cash to be credited to the Ambrose Church. His church, therefore, will head the Honor Roll:

1. Ambrose Church, Georgia and Alabama Conference . . . . . $ 25.00
  2. Elon College Community Church . . . . . 630.00
- L. E. SMITH, Pres.

HELPING YOUTH.

Rev. A. R. Flowers, a well known Sunday School and Christian Endeavor worker, spent the last week of the year 1933 in this section. There is no man anywhere who receives a more cordial welcome in our homes and in our community than Brother Flowers. He began his career as a teacher in this community thirty-one years ago, and many of our leading citizens are his old pupils, while several who had a business turn of mind have gone to the towns and cities; others have gone into the professional world and are holding responsible positions in this and other States. Our children who have grown into young manhood and young womanhood, some of whom are now college graduates, are always glad when A. R. Flowers comes this way to help them with his splendid lectures. We certainly need more of such work done among the youth of our country.

L. A. BOYETTE.

Route 1, Clayton, N. C.

A BULLETIN IDEA FOR PASTORS.

The Layman Company is now putting out its Tithing Pamphlets in four-page bulletin form, printed on two inside pages only, other two pages blank, for local material. The cost will give a saving of at least $5.00 per week to any pastor who uses four-page bulletins in his Sunday services. A good opportunity for five or ten weeks of tithe education without expense or special distribution. Thirty-two subjects to choose from. Sample set, 15 cents. Prices 40 cents per 100; $3.00 per 1,000.

Please give your denomination, also please mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

THE LAYMAN COMPANY,
730 Rush St., Chicago, Ill.

DEFIANCE CHRISTMAS CONFERENCE.

Requests for reports on the Defiance Christmas Conference have been sent out, and most likely reports will be given in next week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The few facts which have come to me indicate that the conference was of a high order and very helpful to those present. I am sure that those who were present will gladly share with the rest of us who could not attend.

F. C. LESTER.

"Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of."—Benj. Franklin.

A CALL TO SPIRITUAL ADVANCE.

The heads of thirty national communions, with an aggregate membership of over 27,000,000 have joined in issuing a call to spiritual advance at the beginning of the New Year. Included among the signers of the statement are the recognized leaders of most of the important American churches. While not undertaking to speak in an official capacity, their statement carries great weight by virtue of the fact that so many outstanding representatives of the various churches have found themselves in such agreement as to be able to unite in a joint statement to the churches and to the nation.

The statement bears the striking title, "The Present Crisis as a Summons to Spiritual Advance." It grew out of an informal conference convened by Rev. Albert W. Beaven and Rev. Lewis S. Mudge, president and vice-president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Being unofficial in character, the conference included representatives of several communions which are not members of the Council.

The message in which the presidents, moderators, presiding bishops, or other official heads of the thirty communions unite begins with an affirmation of unchanged faith in God and in Christ—"eternal verities which stand unshaken amid the present chaos"—and records the conviction that "the personal experience of fellowship with God in Christ" is "the foundation of any Christian program adequate for a fear-stricken and bewildered world." They declare that "unless the Gospel is first lodged in the heart of the individual as a renewing and transforming power, it can have no healing for society as a whole."

The emphasis upon a renewed spiritual life for the individual, it is insisted, "must lead us straight out into the great social issues of our day—not away from them, and make us think of them in spiritual terms." As a result, the signers of the message analyze the spiritual aspects of our present economic, social and international situation. They conclude that the spiritual tasks of the present hour are "a clear summons to greater cooperation among all Christians."

LITTLE DEEDS MAY COUNT.

I have never felt that it is the Christian way of life to wait until you had reached the goal of your own ambition before you took time to help others on the way. Jesus blessed people when and where their request was made known. I am, today, in receipt of an encouraging letter from a deserving young woman who is nearing her eighteenth birthday.

One beautiful Sunday evening, in the summer of 1930, after I had spoken in the First Christian (Disciples) Church in Rocky Mount, N. C., and had shaken hands with a goodly number of people in the front of the auditorium, I was passing down the aisle toward the door where I was met by a group of four or five girls, one of whom was but a visitor to the city. I stepped aside for a friendly little talk with them, which gave this modest little visitor a chance to tell me of the passing of both her parents in little more than a year, and of her lonely life, and of the little hope that she entertained of finishing high school because she was having to live with relatives who were some distance from a school, and besides were not much interested in education.

I took her name and address, with the promise that she would hear from me within a few days, and in less than a week I had written her an emergency letter and at the same time told her that I had begun a search for a real Christian home in which she might be placed and that with the assistance of some loyal helpers in my field of work, I was quite certain it would be found.

And it was found, with the result that she has had a chance to finish her ninth, tenth and eleventh grades in high and is working in the hope of saving enough money by the beginning of the next scholastic year to enter college. I have heard it said, many times, that "There is nothing like having a friend in the right place at the right time." I have learned long ago, that many men and women who have to bless this world, were at one time poor, handicapped boys and girls, whose chance in life others helped to give.

A. R. FLOWERS.

NOTICE.

Wanted to borrow a copy of Rev. Mills Barrett's Hymn Book, published for the use of the Christian Church. This is wanted for historical use, and will be returned.

W. E. MACCLENNY,
Suffolk, Va. Convention Historian.

GROWTH.
My life is such a cramped and stunted thing,
Yet there's a garden where the robins sing,
An open window looks into the sky;
I hear the honk of wild geese flying by.
My heart beats oft against its narrow bars,
Yet from my cage of life I see the stars,
And though my restless heart should beat more free,
I'd still look up into their majesty.
My soul is smug and dwarfed, I fear, some-time,
Yet a little share of loving can be mine,
And bit by bit my tiny soul can grow
So large, that it will fill the world, I know.
Pomona, Fla.

MISS DORA BYRONS.

Keep your fears to yourself but share your courage with others.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....

Street No. or R. F. D.....

City..... State.....

Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELSHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THIS WE HAVE NOT REPEALED.

While only about twenty-five per cent of the qualified voters in the United States cast their ballots in the election for repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, a big majority of that twenty-five per cent voted for repeal, and so the Eighteenth Amendment is duly repealed. There is no doubt about that. There can be no question of it. Its death warrant has already been signed. It is a thing of the past. In dying, however, one government official in Washington paid prohibition possibly the highest compliment, and gave prohibition the highest commendation, yet received. He said, in estimating the prospective income to the government for taxes on liquor: "Whiskey consumption will be one-half of pre-prohibition record, because there are fewer habitual drinkers." And so the government, in making its estimate of revenue to be secured from this source, was forced to base that estimate on the contribution that prohibition has made to our country by decreasing by at least one-half the estimated amount of liquor consumed, because through prohibition there are now fewer habitual drinkers.

The fact, however, that faces one and all of us, both those who favored and those who were opposed to repeal, is that while the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, we haven't repealed the liquor problem. The Christian Herald declares it in these searching terms:

"You can't repeal the liquor problem," was Senator Arthur Capper's searching comment upon the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"You can't repeal the liquor problem," is essentially the testimony of every State liquor control commission now trying to deal with the situation resulting from the ratification of the Twenty-First Amendment by thirty-six States.

"You can't repeal the liquor problem," is the testimony of the Honorable Alfred E. Smith, as he pleads before an anti-crime commission in New York City for the boycotting of the bootlegger.

"You can't repeal the liquor problem," should be the caption of a paragraph from a Washington letter of October 28th, which reads: "One government official says whiskey consumption will be one-half of pre-prohibition record because there are fewer habitual drinkers."

"You can't repeal the liquor problem," is a fair warning to 'Oscar' of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, who, through the medium of a news reel, urges the American home to consume seven kinds of wines at a seven-course dinner, plus an opening cocktail—a fair warning for 'Oscar' and all his money-eager associates. Liquor intoxicates, but never learns.

"No, you can't repeal the liquor problem!"

Because we cannot repeal the liquor problem, and because we cannot ignore it, or its deadly work that goes on by night and by day, it is up to every man, woman and child, who loves sobriety and the peace of a sober home, to be aware and on the alert against the liquor problem, which is the deadliest foe to human happiness and has, through the ages, been the most awful curse ever visited upon the human race. J. O. A.

COMES THE DAY.

As the day dawns and the fresh morning comes, do we count this among our blessings? Why not? God in creation does not repeat himself. His resources are too abundant for that. So, no two mornings, no two days are identical or even alike. Each day is a new day, each morning a new morning. Just as the world dumps its filth and refuse into the surging salt seas, and purges itself of dregs and dross, so God dips the dying day into that mysterious abyss called night, and from it brings a new day, free and fresh and vigorous as the first day that gladdened Adam in the Garden of Eden.

"Morning means a fresh revelation of God as the mind awakens once more to the wonder of the world and the zest of life. It means another opportunity to overcome one's imperfections and to be his best self. It means the ever-renewed promise of the New Day when, by Divine Grace, life shall be transformed by the coming of the Kingdom of God." So writes one in his little volume entitled, "The Valor of the Soul," as he calls us to morning worship and devotion.

Because we poor mortals fall into routine and spin about ourselves a web which we fear to break and have not the daring to disturb, we easily conclude that all the days are about the same, and life but ceaseless, strenuous days tied together. False notion, base idea. "Each day is a gift of God coming with rich gifts, token of his undying love in its hand.

"Out of the bosom of God comes the day—
Flood of his tenderness nothing can stay;
Life but the symbol that broadens for aye,
Out of the bosom of God comes the day!"

So James Buckham, and so all of us, say when with fresh courage, unflinching faith and new hope we lay hold of the new day as a source of strength, an opportunity for service, and a privilege of trying again. J. O. A.

IN THE WORLD—TRIBULATION.

By nature we shrink from hardship, trial, tribulation. It is not our desire nor inclination to suffer, to endure, to bear; and yet all these come upon us not to crush and subdue, but to give us challenge, cheer and courage. Our Saviour, in speaking quite personally with his disciples, said, "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer." Thus he links comfort and cheer with trial and tribulation. We dread and are depressed by the day of cloud, but rejoice and are cheered with the glow of the shining sun. And yet the cloud brought the rain, made the earth rejoice, as the rays of the glowing sun shone upon it. Out of tribulation comes cheer and sunshine.

It was the greatest trial of Jesus, when he faced and agonized beneath the burden of his approaching Cross, when he cried: "If it be possible let this cup pass from me."

And yet our Scripture teaches that even Jesus must needs be made perfect though suffering, and it was the Cross that not only tried but called out the power of the Son of God.

In a recent writing, Harry Emerson Fosdick points out the eternal truth:

"As for our own spiritual life, we know well that we never tap the deepest levels of power until we face something hard, where we crucially need it. No man ever gets his second wind save in a long race. It is only when we have something for which we need power that power can come. We say that Jesus had inner power with which to face the Cross. Turn it around. It was facing the Cross that called out the power. O, my soul, grasp that philosophy. Make your hardships develop your resources. Make your tasks call out your reserves. Face the tragedies of life like a veritable pessimist: 'In the world—tribulation'. Never blink that fact. But make tribulation release the deeper levels of divine resource, so that you too may say, 'Good cheer, I have overcome the world!'"

In . . . the world . . . tribulation, yes, but in and through tribulation . . . triumph.

J. O. A.

"THEE, THOU AND YOU."

One wonders by what law of logic or language some of us poor mortals put ourselves on such familiar terms with our Lord Jehovah as to address him in prayer or praise, with the term "You." This pronoun of the second person is used in common everyday speech in conversation with our equals, and certainly sounds shockingly and amazingly out of place in addressing or appealing to the God of heaven and earth, Creator of all mankind. One certainly should be more respectful of the Deity and more considerate of the feelings of all who are trying to worship than to use the term "You" in speaking to the Lord or his Son, our Blessed Saviour and Redeemer.

There is certainly no Scripture for such usage. Neither the prophets nor the sons of the prophets, nor David in the Psalms, nor Solomon in the Proverbs, left us record of such familiarity with Jehovah as to address him as "You." It is ever and always, "Thou, Thee, Thine"—that pronoun of honor, exaltation and reverence. In the New Testament, of course, it is the same. Even the disciples, who walked and talked with our Lord in the flesh, never so far forgot themselves as to put themselves on an equality with him by using the familiar colloquial pronoun of equality, "You." Nor did strangers coming to inquire of the Christ, or his enemies, do so. It was always "Thou art a teacher," "We come to thee," "Thou hast the words of eternal life," etc.

There is certainly no justification for this familiarity from the point of view of our language. Not even does our language justify the usage in addressing individuals amongst us who have been honored with positions of trust and esteem. We speak of our judges as "Your Honor," our governors as "Your Excellency," in order that even through speech we may express an attitude of respect and adoration.

(Continued on page 12.)

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

[This is the tenth of a series of articles, by Roy C. Helfenstein, Minister, People's Congregational-Christian Church, Dover, Del. This installment continues "The Life and Customs in Palestine."]

The hills and mountains and landscapes of Palestine make a lasting impression upon one's mind, not only because of their unique character but because of the memories of the centuries that cluster around their heights.

Abraham, when he "went up not knowing whither he went," walked across these same valleys and over these same mountains. Caleb and Joshua, in their search for the Promised Land, walked along those same ancient sheep paths, many of which have long since become roads. And the Promised Land they found is even to this day one of the most inviting parts of Palestine. Saul, the first king of Israel, and his successors, King David and King Solomon, traveled over those same winding highways that take us from place to place in Palestine today. Jesus and his disciples often in their journeyings from Jerusalem to the Galilee district, went by the same thoroughfare over which we may ride today. Never shall I forget the feeling that came over me when we came to "the road to Emmaus," as I thought of those lonely heartsick disciples who, after the crucifixion, had walked over that same road to Emmaus, and how their hearts so strangely burned within them as he walked with them by the way.

And one day, as we met a long caravan of donkeys and camels upon the road between Nazareth and Bethlehem, slowly making its way across the valleys, over the mountains and along the wadies, I thought of that other caravan in the long ago on that first Christmas Eve, that went over the same road on which we were traveling, that caravan which went from Nazareth up to Bethlehem, and which included in its number a man named Joseph and his wife, Mary. I thought of how their donkeys trudged along over the then stony road which is now smooth surfaced. But all the roads in Palestine were stony in that day just as the by-roads there are today. But their donkeys insured their riders safe passage. For no animal is more sure-footed than the donkey.

When twenty of us rode donkeys out over the rough mountain paths through the Wilderness of Judea to the old home of the Prophet Jeremiah at Anathoth, we felt as safe, but of course not as comfortable, as if we were riding in a Pullman car across the American prairie. So carefully and seemingly with such measured step these sure-footed little donkeys carried us on our way over boulders and rocks impossible for a person to walk over. Joseph and Mary and their neighbors from Nazareth came all that distance of more than sixty miles from Nazareth to Bethlehem on donkeys such as we rode to Jeremiah's home, and such as we saw carrying people along the highways of Palestine every day from early morning until late at night.

The day we motored from Nazareth to Jerusalem, I thought of still another day when Joseph and Mary, with the twelve-year-old boy, Jesus, rode along that same highway on their donkeys requiring twice as many days as it took us hours to cover the same distance. As we met the caravans of country folk—the women with their interesting oriental garb patterned after the same design down through all the centuries, and the men with their "Kaffa Aggas" upon their heads and their white flowing robes or long skirts (umbaj) the same as the men of Palestine have attired themselves in for thousands of years, I thought of those days so long ago when people looking so much like the people we met, were on their way to Jerusalem for the Passover. And when we came to the village of Biroth, eleven miles out from Jerusalem, where Joseph and Mary first missed the boy Jesus from the company when he had stayed behind in the temple area talking to the doctors, learning new ideas "about his Father's business," that incident seemed so much more vivid to me. And as we visited the primitive homes in Biroth which are said to be the oldest houses in Palestine, going back tradition states, to the time of Jesus, and earlier, and as we saw in that ancient town the primitive ovens in which the people bake their bread today in the same kind of oven and the same kind of way as they did in Jesus' day, the simplicity of the home life of our Lord seemed so much more real, and left a picture on my mind I shall never forget.

The type of oven in which the peasants do their baking is a contrivance made of mud, brick or stone in a dome-shape about eight feet in diameter at the base. Inside the dome-shaped exterior is another dome as a sort of miniature reproduction of the exterior part of the oven. The grass and brush are placed between the outside of the inner dome and the inside of the outer dome, the blaze heating the surface of the inner dome. The fire made from the brush and grass "which today is and tomorrow is cast into the oven," heats the stone dome on which the dough is later placed after the ashes are brushed off. And thus the slow baking process takes place. As stated previously, each family does not have its own oven, but instead several families have an oven in partnership—thirty or forty families using the same oven. A schedule for each group of families is adapted in doing their baking, perhaps a half dozen or more women doing their baking task at the same time. Seeing the women put the dried brush and grass into the oven to create that with which to bake their bread made a lasting impression upon my mind. The process seemed so slow, the method so primitive, and the finished product looked so uninviting. While I stood watching the process and saw the hungry look upon the children's faces, as they anticipated with eagerness the taking of the bread from the oven, I wondered what American children would do if they were required to eat such bread. And when one of the native women superintending the community baking that day smilingly passed a large tray of the bread cakes around to our group to sample, it was not strange that none of us were sufficiently hungry to want to try it, but instead we politely declined with the excuse relayed through the guide that it hadn't been long since we had eaten dinner.

These ovens used by the peasant folk of Palestine today are the same as those that have been used in that country for more than four thousand years. Jesus was familiar with the sight that we witnessed that day, in watching the process of baking bread. He often saw the women gathering the brush and the dried grass for fuel in the oven for baking. And his words on the cure of anxiety have new meaning to one who sees the ovens of Palestine, "Wherefore if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

Another thing that leaves a lasting impression on the mind of a visitor to Palestine is the fact that in all the cities three Sabbaths are observed. On Friday the Moslems or Mohammedans observe their Sabbath. The day is held by them in deep reverence. Their stores, shops and other places of business are all closed. On Saturday the Jews observe their Sabbath. The laws of the Sabbath are strictly observed. Their stores and shops and other places of business are all closed and all labor stopped from sunset Friday evening until sunset Saturday evening. On Sunday the Christians observe their Sabbath, but with much less rigidity. Without question the indifference of many of the so-called Christians in Palestine to the proper observance of their Sabbath, in the face of the strict observance by the Mohammedans and the Jews of their respective Sabbaths, weakens greatly the claim of the Christians that theirs is a superior type of faith.

One sees little to remind one of Christ in Palestine today. He came unto his own, the Jews, and his own received him not in that long ago. And he is seeking a true witness from his own, the Christians, today in the land of his birth, but so many in Palestine who claim to be his followers give so little evidence of his spirit. Contention between the various branches of the Catholic Church in Palestine is a most pitiful and lamentable situation, the Roman Catholics contending against the Greek Orthodox Catholics, the Jacobites contending against the Copts, and the Armenian Christians, and each group discrediting all the other groups, while the Protestants hold themselves aloof from all of these.

Nineteen centuries ago, our Lord wept outside the walls of Jerusalem, as he looked upon the city which rejected him then. He weeps again today, because it still rejects him.

It is little wonder that the great majority of the natives of Palestine are absolutely indifferent to the claims of the Christian faith today when we think of the type of testimony the people there have witnessed down through the centuries from that given by the Crusaders with their gleaming spears and swords and their campaign of human slaughter, to the present rival and contending factions of Catholicism that have entrenched themselves in the land of his birth.

Conditions in Palestine reveal the price that the whole country paid for rejecting and crucifying the Man of Galilee and what a price the country of his birth and the people, even those who unworthily bear his name there today are paying for rejecting him now.

A visit to the Holy Land impresses upon one's mind and heart in a special way the fact that there is no other name but the name of him who walked those crooked streets of Jerusalem, and those crooked paths and roads of Palestine, seeking to make straight the lives of the people, no other name but the name of him who sought by his teachings and by his life to build the Kingdom of God among men, no other name but the name of him who lived by the waters of the Sea of Galilee, strolled and meditated along the banks of the River Jordan, walked and rode over the hills and mountains and across the valleys and plains of Palestine, meeting and living with the people, revealing by his life, by his message, by his service, and by his death the love of God for mankind, no other name but the name of him who not only loved his native country, but who also loved every country where dwelt the sons and daughters of his heavenly Father, no other name but the name of him whose teachings seek to make all lands to become the Kingdom of God upon earth, no other name but the name of him whose name is above every name—Jesus of Nazareth can make that ancient land to be Holy in fact as well as in name, and can make "your land and my land" and all the lands of the earth to be blessed with the brotherhood of peace for which all men, in their better moments, long and pray.

What an incalculable debt the countries of the world owe to the little country of Palestine for giving mankind the one whose name is above every other name among the sons and daughters of men!

(Article No. 11 will appear in an early issue.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The church is in a place where two roads meet. These roads lead in different directions. One points to criticism; the other to construction; one to fighting; the other to fellowship; one to disintegration; the other to unity. Which road will the church take?

What is the program of the church today? Is the church seeking to save itself, or, to save others? What is the next number on the program at this present time? Is the program adequate to the needs and the requirements of the hour?

From the day Jesus arose in the synagogue, at Nazareth, and announced the beginning of his ministry, until the day he stood upon Olivet and delivered his farewell commission, he insisted that his kingdom should have power and a program. While in the flesh he was the power. After his ascension the Holy Spirit came and endued his disciples with power from on high. This power is available and adequate. It is undergirded with divine authority. It is destructive and life-giving. It can destroy evil and give life to the victim of sin. "Ye shall have power." That is the promise. And that is the divine provision. Devils may delay the exercise of this power, but they cannot stop its progress. It will endure. It will be triumphant. It will be victorious.

Jesus gave the church a great program. He spoke with such grace that the people said, "Never man spake like this man." The congregation "wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth." But before he finished his discourse, on one occasion, they "rose up and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill—that they might cast him down headlong." "But he . . . went his way." He moved on. He is going forward today. And he wants the church to move forward with him. How slow it has been in doing so! After nineteen centuries the church has not attempted to adopt his full program as the objective of its effort. People want to be saved, but they are unwilling to serve. People want to hear, but they will not bear witness. People want to get, but they are unwilling to give.

The church of Jesus Christ should have a message and a motive to offer the commercial and professional world. Capitalism is not the final system of business. Communism, socialism and sovietism are not the final methods for nations to adopt. Socialism and communism are as dangerous and as selfish as capitalism, unless they are motivated by the Spirit of Jesus Christ. Jesus has a plan and a program much better than any of these systems. The church has not yet fully discovered it, but it is revealed in the Gospel and in Jesus Christ. Society cannot redeem itself by legislation; but Jesus can redeem society by his life and his Spirit.

The church should have a distinct message and spirit for schools and colleges. In some circles of intellectuals, it is considered smart to sneer at the Gospel of Jesus Christ. These intellectuals are to be pitied more than blamed. They have not seen much of the Gospel way. They have not heard much Gospel testimony. The church has not been willing to bear abundant witness to the Jesus way of life. If the church had done its full duty toward the schools and the world, the situation would be different. The people who criticize and crucify Jesus Christ "know not what they do,"

The church should have an adequate religious program. It should include all nations and races and conditions of human society. It should seek to win the lost and improve the best. Every denomination should aim to be better than any other denomination. Never mind about members, or the size of your church. How good is its life, and how broad and far-reaching is its program?

I. W. JOHNSON.

WHAT FIFTY CENTS WILL DO.

We are in the midst of our Educational Period as authorized by the Convention and accepted by the Conferences and churches. During this period the ministers, Sunday School superintendents and active workers of the church are expected to instruct the rank and file of our membership about the College, its possibilities and needs. It would be helpful, indeed, if every member of the Convention and the Christian Churches in the South, at least, knew Elon College. The most of them know something about it, but very few indeed really know all. If the membership of the church knew what Elon is, what it has, and what it is here for, it would be much less difficult to secure universal support for the institution. A lack of information oftentimes is responsible for the lack of support.

At Elon College we have ten buildings on the campus, five of which are practically new, and of the most modern type. Our equipment ranks first class. We have an efficient faculty numbering twenty-two, and a student body of about two hundred and sixty. We do class work six days in a week and have a regular church program for Sunday.

The entire budget for the College amounts to $86,000.00. In addition to the budget, we have certain other obligations that must be met if we are to continue as a College. The College was indebted to the First National Bank of Burlington, N. C., in the amount of $6,000.00, plus interest for nearly three years. The bank proposed to settle this amount in full for $600.00. We did not have the $600.00. I went to the bank and personally borrowed the money, settled the account, and have the note and collateral back in the hands of the College. This $600.00 must be paid February 1st. It looks now that the North Carolina Bank and Trust Company will settle its claim against the College, which amounts to $36,500.00, on the same basis. In the event they should propose to settle, this will require an additional $3,650.00, making a total of $4,250.00 cash for cancelling a total indebtedness of $42,500.00, plus nearly three years' interest. These are the first two steps in our proposed program to clear the College of its debts. If we are able to take these two steps, one of which has already been taken, it will be a tremendous factor in helping us to reach our desired goal. I believe that the entire membership of the church will be greatly interested in these achievements, and will be willing to lend its support to the extent of its ability in helping to relieve the College of the financial burdens that have pretty nearly taken its life.

If we can reach our goal in this financial campaign, the above claims can be settled, our budget met completely, and other obligations can be taken care of. When you think of $25,000.00 as a lump sum, it seems to be a tremendous undertaking, and it would be if only ten or a dozen people were expected to give it, but when you think of 25,000 people undertaking the task, it does not appear so tremendous, and when you think of what $25,000.00 just now would do, it certainly lays a challenge at the door of every individual member.

The churches have been asked to raise one-half of this amount or an amount equal to fifty cents per member. If you knew that for fifty cents you could cancel more than $45,000.00 of indebtedness, pay faculty salaries, and other indebtedness, would you not, my brother, give fifty cents, and see that the rest of the members of your church and your friends gave fifty cents. Your fifty cents will not do all of this, of course, but your fifty cents together with the 24,999 others and the amount to be raised in special gifts, would do this very thing.

This is a task that challenges the faith, the generosity, and the loyalty of the membership of the Christian Church and every friend of the College. We are facing conditions that are serious, but we are also face to face with an opportunity without parallel. Elon College is looking to the church, to her friends, and her sons and daughters for help in this time of need. Let not one fail his Alma Mater. She has been loyal to the church, true to her task, and faithful in the discharge of her duties. She has a right to expect as much from those whom she has served.

L. E. SMITH, President.

WHAT RELIGION MEANS TO ME.

We all agree that religion is an important matter. And yet, oddly enough, we cannot all agree as to exactly what it is or is not "religion," nor what the word ought to mean, nor what the Romans meant when they said religio. Attempts at definition run all the way from visiting the sick to keeping one's self unspotted from the world, which is pure morality and not religion at all.

The thing that strikes one most about the mystery of religion is that it is foreign to the native air of our minds, that it is dark to human intelligence. It is certainly grasped, yet it is not understood; if it reveals itself, it also conceals itself from rational comprehension. Attempts to define it have failed. Such riches, we feel, can hardly be compressed within the limits of a formula. On the whole, probably, the best working definition is Matthew Arnold's oft-quoted, "Religion is morality touched with emotion."

There are some who cannot see the importance of religion in the life of the individual and society. Cultured and highly trained people are discussing its place in modern life. They are wondering if it will play as important a part in the future as it has in the past; or if there can be anything in the world of supreme importance, apart from religion; or if religion, personal religion, can mean anything less than fellowship with God, the Source of all Power. Religion cannot mean anything less than fellowship with God. Religion is not something that man and society can live without; rather it is "the natural, normal fulfillment of life itself; life blossoming out into perfect beauty and significance."

"Thou madest us for thyself." Man and society are made for religion, for conscious fellowship with God, and can never find repose, can never be at peace with themselves, until this conscious union with God has been attained.

I can speak from my heart and say that this conscious union with God has been attained within my own life. What does religion mean to me? Why! It means everything. I can say with the Apostle of old: "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord."

Religion to me means:

First: A life of quiet contemplation. As Jesus saw the necessity of going out a "great while before day," and there in a secluded place talk with his heavenly Father, I have seen it. That early Sabbath hour, easily becomes the sweetest part of life. There in a secluded place one may pour out one's heart to God, and receive in return peace and the Holy Spirit. Real ministry is based upon quiet study and meditation; and when the minister neglects this study and meditation, he neglects the greatest source of power in all the world.

Second: It means taking Jesus seriously. Bundy, in his significant book, "The Discovery of Jesus," tells us that Jesus really gave only one commandment, and that was, "Follow me."

He meant for me to give him my personal loyalty, believe in his way of living, walk in it by the help of God, and thus grow day by day in the knowledge and grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. When I became a Christian, I said to myself, as I looked, with my new spiritual eyes, into the face of Christ: "What he is, I want to be; what he thinks, I want to think; what he says, I want to say; what he does, I want to do; what he loves, I want to love." When I said this my heart burned anew with the spirit of God. Although the way has been dark and weary at times, Jesus has never failed and he never will, as long as I take him seriously.

J. EVERETTE NEESE.

Elon College, N. C.

LINES OF A LAYMAN.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

Too much was expected of the Eighteenth Amendment, and because it did not serve as a cure-all for the evils of liquor, those who held Utopian hopes of the measure began to condemn it. Repeal has already been placed in the same category. The repealists blamed nearly all social evils on the dry law and promised everything if it were repealed. Expense of enforcement was to be wiped out, the bootlegger annihilated, and society freed of a multitude of curses. The rec'n allotment of $500,000 by the National Government to carry on liquor control is one of the first eye-openers to the nation that a vote on a measure is not all the issue. The prices being charged for liquor leaves the temptation and the opportunity for the bootlegger—and these he will continue to seize. Weaknesses are more often found in individuals than in laws.

It is unfortunate in recent years that so much glamour has been attached to many trials, the temples of justice in many instances being made a theatre of curiosity. In many instances the people and press have made such show of the occasion that the reading public lose sight of the purpose of the trial, and in some cases prejudge the guilt or innocence of the accused on the basis of how much glamour is made for or against the prisoner at the bar. It is high time that some of our judges call a halt to making court sessions a Roman holiday.

Public sentiment should be distinguished from public opinion. Public sentiment is often based on emotion, impulse, and maybe right or wrong in its acts. Public opinion, while it may not always be correct, is based on deliberation, a thoughtful consideration of advantages and values—a conclusion reached after hearing evidence on both sides. Public sentiment is often akin to resentment, a spirit of animosity, and cannot always be trusted. Public sentiment may be no more than mass psychology. Lynchings (or Rolphings) are usually based on public sentiment rather than public opinion.

THE CROSS.

The Cross is the central figure of the Bible as Christ is the central personality. Without the Cross all that came before would be shattered and that which came after would have been chaos. There would have been no Christ without the Cross for the purpose of his coming was to make atonement between God and man; to bear in his own body on the Cross the sins of a lost world.

There was no glory in the Cross then, it was only a piece of wood, yet it entered into the plan of the ages for upon it God's love was revealed through the free gift of his Son, and man was justified freely through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus. To the Lord Jesus Christ it was a Cross of sin, of shame and sorrow, of suffering and submission to sacrifice and self-denial. The thief on the Cross at one side of that central Cross was the first to see the glory of the Cross which has been revealed, throughout all the ages since, to those who kneel in faith at the foot of the Cross and take the cup of salvation from the pierced hands that were outstretched thereon. As the Lord Christ spake to the thief, "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise," and exclaimed, "It is finished," he opened to us the Holy of Holies that we might enter into the sacred fellowship and communion with him as we walk this earth-life. The door stands open today and no man can shut it; a great door and effectual, but there are many adversaries, yet the Christ of the Cross has all power in heaven and earth to deliver from the power of the evil one. The Cross of shame and woe has become the Cross of love, light, and power today. Love that reveals redemption's plan; light that opens eyes blinded by sin that they may see the glorious gospel as revealed in Christ Jesus; power more effective than any power of man's device.

It is the power that lifts fallen souls, that breaks the fetters of sin, that reconciles to God, that separates from the world, that removes the claims of the law, that saves from the guilt and power of sin. An ordinary piece of wood made in the form of a Cross, yet made holy and sacred by the precious blood of the Son of God. "God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world."

W.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ----- $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ----- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of 15 years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ----- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

- No. 02112 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ----- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ----- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x ----- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk ----- $5.50

head

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. ----- $5.50

No. 03255x ----- $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x ----- $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible ----- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ----- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ----- $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

MISSION APPEAL TO UNCOMMON SENSE.

Rev. Vincent H. Gowen, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who has spent his entire ministry in the mission field in the Orient and is now a missionary in the Philippine Islands, declares that Missions do not appeal to common sense, but to uncommon sense. Come to think of it, there is something in that, especially since so many people make "common sense" the final court of appeal in their decision as to character and conduct of all kinds. "Why should I pay money," common sense will demand, "to educate children in China or the Philippines when there is not enough money to pay the teachers in many cities of my own country?"

Mr. Gowen admits that this appeal comes with peculiar force in this time of depression, though it has been coming with more or less force through all time. "The truth is," says Mr. Gowen, "the Missions of the church do not appeal to common sense: they appeal to uncommon sense. The two are as wide apart as the poles. Common sense gets us into muddles and flounders from expedient to expedient trying to get us out of them again, out of them for another ten years' breathing spell. Uncommon sense seeks to avoid the muddle entirely; it looks forward to a world where there are no muddles."

Missionary Gowen is of persuasion that it is high time Christians everywhere were learning to depend upon something other than common sense, or upon hard-baked business horse-sense. Jesus Christ never intended nor attempted to build his church on "common sense." There was not much common sense in calling together eleven disciples without money, prestige, organization or backing, and sending them out to conquer this wide world in his name. There was no common sense in the conduct of William Carey going out in the face of threatened death, from every source, to win India to Christ, no more than there was in the conduct of David Livingstone going out to win Africa to Christ. In fact, the common sense of the world told these men they were fanatics and fools, just as they told Robert Morrison when he went to China to try to reach one-fourth of the world's population for Christ, especially when he knew that it was the penalty of death for any man who would come in and preach a "foreign doctrine." What common sense was there in the preaching and teaching of a lonely Nazarene, who, single-handed and alone, went about doing good in a remote Roman province and yet teaching and preaching a doctrine that was to conquer Rome, the Caesars and the entrenched powers of this earth. It is uncommon sense that has carried the message of our Lord to the uttermost parts of the earth, in the face of all hazards and all dangers and all fears. It is uncommon sense that carries multitudes of missionaries to all parts of the earth to suffer hardships, endure trials, work on meagre salaries, deprived of the luxuries and comforts which could have been theirs in the homeland if they had not followed the leadership of uncommon sense.

Quoting Missionary Gowen further in his striking article in The Spirit of Missions:
 "We have tried so many plans to make the world safe for ourselves and our children. Without God these plans have failed just as certainly as the Jewish dreams of world empire, dreams too impatient to tolerate our Lord's message of love, were stamped out—an insignificant flurry in an insignificant province—by Titus and his Roman legions. We think we have tried the Christian religion: we have tried only an Anglo-Saxon or, at best, a European version of it. Our religion has become in-bred just as the virtues of a family stagnate into vices.

"Our Lord said, 'Go ye into all the world.' Whether we have his exact words or not, we have their spirit. And by going into all the world, He meant not simply to dispense the surplus of our bounty, not to bring up Chinese children or Japanese children in our image and grateful for our nickels and dimes and dollars; he was not commissioning us to be generous when we had more than we needed, generous toward inferior peoples who had not the advantage of being born in our race and our country. That is Pharisaism, the Pharisaism of Kipling's 'lesser breeds without the law,' salvation by the acceptance of a Law which the Jews themselves lived up to in form more than in spirit. Our Lord would not wish all men to be Americans or Europeans any more than he wanted them all to be Jews. He would not draw a distinction, between the church at home, the church, and its poor relations, the Missions of Africa and Asia. He did not envisage a Mission which could be taken up or dropped at our convenience. It will never be convenient to drop the church's Mission, not till war and depression, till selfishness and poverty and disease, are things of the past."

The writer declares that the missionary is not pleading for his job, for if he were, he would quit the job "if he could." "But he feels that, however trivial his own share may be, however many times his ideal may be fogged by his own mistakes or the misunderstanding of others, he is doing something that has to be done if the world is to find peace. So he learns that it is not, as common sense would indicate, a case of starving one's own children to feed the children of others. It is an attempt to communicate the uncommon belief that they are all our children, to prevent, by the help of God rather than by the self-sufficing shrewdness of man, their children and our children from flying at each other's throats in bitter, wasted years to come."

A missionary cannot give up the task even in the face of the plea that it is common sense to take care of things at home and let things abroad go. There is something in this world higher and holier than common sense, and that is the uncommon sense that removes mountains and faces every hardship for Christ and his Gospel. There is that in the mind and love of God which carries one beyond common sense if one is to share that fellowship and know the joy of Christian service.

J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JANUARY 13, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,070.18
Union (Southampton), Franklin, Va.	2.00
Sanford, N. C.	1.00
Mt. Bethel, Stokesdale, N. C.	1.52
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.	.53
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	5.02
Wentworth, McCullers' N. C.	3.20
Providence-Memorial, Graham, N. C.	4.37
Newport, Stanley, Va.	1.56
New Elam, New Hill, N. C.	1.54
Liuville, Va.	4.29
Zion, Sanford, N. C.	1.12
Mt. Pleasant, Cameron, N. C.	2.18
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	.97

Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	4.56
First Christian, Norfolk, Va.	4.68

Total ..... $ 1,108.72

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 672.30
Mebane Sunday School, Mebane, N. C.	2.00

Total ..... $ 674.30

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 6,291.89
Sunday Schools, Regular	38.54
Specials	2.00

Total to date ..... $ 6,332.43

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

MISSIONARY REPORT.

The N. C. C. Woman's Missionary Board submits the following report for the first quarter of 1934:

Women's Societies.

Burlington	$143.98
Catawba Springs	7.00
Danville	9.00
Durham	51.50
Elon College	48.84
Elk Spur	1.60
Fuller's Chapel	13.40
Greensboro	67.48
Hank's Chapel	5.70
Ingram	5.00
Liberty, Va.	1.42
Liberty (Vance)	25.00
Lynchburg	8.13
Monticello	5.00
Mt. Bethel	3.50
New Lebanon	4.50
New Hope	3.00
Palm St., Greensboro	5.00
Parks Cross Roads	4.35
Pleasant Hill	4.00
Pleasant Ridge	8.00
Pleasant Union	3.90
Piney Plains	4.00
Raleigh	25.00
Salem Chapel	3.00
Virgilina (Union)	8.95
Wake Chapel	35.25
	$ 505.50

Young People's Societies.

Durham	$ 11.69
Greensboro, Jr.	5.00
Sanford	3.75
	20.44

Willing Workers.

Burlington	$ 3.76
Durham	10.79
Elon College	.45
Greensboro	6.00
	21.00

Cradle Roll.

Durham	3.23
Total	$ 550.17

MRS. W. R. SELLARS, Treas.

Burlington, N. C.

A lawyer was talking learnedly about the constitutionality of the prohibition law. A farmer who was listening sat up when the lawyer was done, shut his pocketknife with a snap, and said, "I do not know anything about the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of the law, but I have seven good reasons for voting dry."

"What are they?" asked the lawyer.

"Four sons and three daughters," was the grim reply.—Selected.

"EVANGELISM."

Reported by WM. T. SCOTT,
Winston-Salem, N. C.

Dr. Jesse M. Bader, Associate Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, addressed the Winston-Salem Ministers' Association, Monday, December 4th, in a stirring message on "The Evangelism for Today." Dr. Bader is a thorough believer that the evangelistic passion in the pulpit and pew will be a definite way out of our present economic stress, which is also very largely a moral and spiritual stress. Dr. Bader is not only a leader of the department of Evangelism of the Federal Council, but during his 12 years as pastor he made his greatest contribution. During his 12 years in the pastorate he averaged one conversion each day.

In addressing the ministers in an impassioned plea for a new evangelistic spirit, he defined evangelism as "sharing Jesus Christ with someone else." "As sunshine is to a flower; as is rain to the growing crop; and as a boat is to a drowning man, so is the message of Jesus Christ to a lost soul and a bewildered world." He declared that delivering the Evangel into the hearts of men and women is not a trivial thing. It is sharing the greatest thing in the world with needy mankind, and which evangelism is not the only work of the church, it is the church's official task. It was for that purpose that Jesus sent out those first disciples. In quoting a recent author who said that the crises in the United States are economic, political, and moral and spiritual, with all demanding serious attention, the speaker declared, "We will never get a better America economically or politically until we get better men, and the church is the foremost in our society concerned with this 'new man'."

Dr. Bader named four problems of evangelism which are very real to the Christian messenger of the Evangel today: "The lost sense of the need of God; the low spiritual temperature within the church; the problem of shepherding the people; and the problem of securing a hearing for the Gospel message." He declared that men have lost their feeling of the need of God. "We have thought ourselves sufficient. Humanism has crushed in many lives the first step toward a genuine religious consciousness, the feeling that we need a 'higher-than-self' It is hard to preach 'the bread of life' to men who think they have 'cake.' It is hard to preach the cross, with its nails, its blood, and its hardwood, in a world of comfort, but if you want to warm your church, be evangelistic in your entire program." He declared that many ministers are anxious to add new names to their rolls for statistical glory, but very few pastors look after these members, seeking to make them members of Christ in daily life. "He said that the ministry is in dire need of 'the shepherd heart.'" "We don't look after the people in our own church and parish, and we fail grossly in looking after people who move from one parish or town to another." (How many of our Congregational-Christian ministers ever write a letter to a pastor as a follow-up of families moving from one town to another?) "Unregenerated men are not going to church today! We can almost count them on our fingers! The church must take the message where men are—in the office, the factory, the home. Too many have been ringing church bells who should be ringing door bells."

In closing, Dr. Bader declared that quick action on the part of the church is imperative. "In these days of uncertainty, men want something for their souls of which they can be sure. Don't preach your doubts. People don't want to hear them—they have enough of their own! Men of the pulpit, preach affirmations. That is the message of Christ! Look on the bright side but that does not mean your message must be a silly optimism. If you are possessed of the Good News, preach it! It is the hope of the world!"

THE ROCKEFELLER LIQUOR REPORT.

By J. A. CRAIN, D. D.

"Toward Liquor Control," by Raymond D. Fosdick and Albert L. Scott, with a Foreword by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is the most pretentious effort yet made to provide an alternative to national prohibition. The fact that this proposal bears the imprimatur of so important a personage as Mr. Rockefeller, will incline many citizens to support the proposal without subjecting it to that critical analysis which it would otherwise have to undergo. There are indications that the report has already influenced State commissions seeking a solution to the liquor problem. Under the circumstances the dregs feel that certain facts in the Report should be pointed out and given careful consideration.

1. The Report breaks squarely with prohibition as a method of solving the liquor problem. It would divest the federal government of all control over the traffic, except that which can be exercised through taxation. It believes that Statewide prohibition will be subject to all the evils alleged against national prohibition. It allows local option, but destroys the force of the method by insisting upon a wide variety of options in each election.

2. The Report apparently regards the moderate use of liquor, especially of liquors of moderate alcoholic content, as harmless, if not socially desirable; at any rate, as inevitable. It advocates the "frank acceptance and treatment of beer of not more than 3.2 per cent of alcohol as a non-intoxicating beverage." For purposes of distinction between "intoxicating" and "non-intoxicating" it proposes "the natural and convenient division between fermented beverages and distilled liquors. Such a proposal ignores all scientific data upon the subject and would legalize with little restriction 96 per cent of the pre-prohibition liquor trade.

3. The Report proposes a "State Alcohol Control Authority," to monopolize the retail distribution of liquor within the State. It would be empowered to operate retail stores, warehouses, blending and processing plants and such other facilities as might be needed. It would have complete authority to regulate the business, even to subpoenaing of witnesses and making binding decisions. Its operation would require a sizeable corps of executives and employees.

4. The chief merit claimed for the Plan is that it removes private profit from the liquor business. It should be noted that the Authority Plan relates only to the heavier liquors, so that beers and wines up to 12 per cent alcoholic content would be exempted from control and left to private exploitation. Nor does the Report indicate that the manufacture of the heavier beverages shall come under the provision. Applied to the pre-prohibition liquor traffic, averaging about 2,000,000,000 gallons annually, this Plan would have taken the private profit out of the retail sale of less than 200,000,000 gallons of distilled liquors and heavier wines.

Without discounting the excellent intentions of Mr. Rockefeller, this reviewer is unable to accept its underlying philosophy or to agree to the solution it proposes.

"CAN'T CURE CRIME WITH CRIME."

Rev. Calvin J. Felton, pastor of the Second Christian Church of Irvington, N. J., condemned at his evening service, Sunday, December 3, the lynching of the kidnapers of Brooke Hart in San Jose California. His topic was "Can We Cure Crime With Crime?" We publish herewith some extracts from his discourse:

"The men who kidnapped and brutally murdered Brooke Hart were criminals of the most yellow and detestable variety. They deserved punishment, not in revenge, but for the protection of society. But there is no doubt they would have received this punishment at the hands of the law. Hence their murder at the hands of a wild and lawless mob was inexcusable and the Governor who condoned and excused them has proven his unfitness to hold such an office.

"Not even Governor Rolph would dare justify the lynching as an act of revenge. It is a great tribute to the Christian sentiment of the country that he does not dare do so. But his excuse for condoning the act is as a protection of society against such acts of crime as theirs.

"Yet the action of the lynchers was one of open revenge. They, apparently, had no other thought in mind except that of revenge. They would make these men suffer as they had made another suffer. It was a clear case of resort to savagery to satisfy a desire for revenge. It had less sense and more brutality than the American savage used against his victims. And such a spirit can never cure crime nor protect society.

"There can be but one result of such senseless brutality. And that is an increase of lawlessness. For such action encourages crime and makes criminals. There is but a step between the murder of one who has been guilty of a great crime and the murder of one who is innocent.

"Such action has a demoralizing effect upon our courts and the regular machinery for law enforcement set up by the government. It encourages armed rebellion and violent revolution.

"The experience in California is startling proof of how easy our people throw off the thin veil of civilization and become savages again. Religious leaders, regardless of faith, have been practically unanimous in their condemnation of the lynching in San Jose. But there is something else which the church and religious leaders need to realize, and that is the necessity to lay the foundation of religious training and character development so well that all who come under their influence shall be prepared against the temptation to resort to such crimes.

"You can't cure crime with crime; you can't stop deeds of the criminal by wreaking vengeance upon the one who has been guilty of a crime. But you can stop crime by following the principles of Jesus and seeking to save life rather than to kill."

MORE FOR THE MORO.

The Moro farmer is a hard worker. But his lack of knowledge of scientific agriculture robs his fields of much of their fertility. Miss Minnie K. Schultze, of Mindanao, P. I., tells how they plow with a one-handed iron which barely scratches the surface. Then they pull up all the grass and burn it, not realizing that by so doing they throw away much of the fertility of the soil. So our American Missionaries are helping them. On a 30-acre farm they demonstrate new food-stuffs and seeds. The American Army some 30 years ago introduced the avocado pear but it took the missionaries to teach the people of its benefits as a food product. Now Mr. Torres, a Filipino agriculturist, hired by the mission and trained in Iowa State College of Agriculture, is helping teach the Moro farmer better ways.

There is more joy in winning one soul to Jesus Christ than in three presidential nominations.—William Jennings Bryan.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

LEST WE FORGET.

January, February, July, August and September have been designated by the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches as the time in which the educational interests of our church are to be presented. There are several colleges whose voice should be heard and whose claims should be presented. The Board of Christian Education is specifically named by the Convention.

In our eagerness in Carolina and Virginia for one institution we are liable to forget the other and more extensive interests. To do so would be tragic, for all the enterprises of the United Church are so closely related that if one suffers all must suffer. The mental horizon, the spiritual fellowship, and the financial support of our church people must never be confined to one institution—State.

If THE CHRISTIAN SUN is to serve the Southeast, it must present all the causes represented therein. Institutions in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, or Kentucky must not be neglected. Colleges must have their say, but not the only say. If the Convention is for Congregational and Christian Churches, all the interests of all the churches must have a place in our hearts and publications.

All of which is written by one who is greatly interested in the success of Elon College, as can be witnessed by articles on this page, and by his personal contributions of time and money.

THE BOARD OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

The Board of Christian Education aids the churches with their local educational work. Leadership training, educational problems, programs for special days, books for leaders, Bibles for ten-year-old boys and girls, Christian Endeavor helps, Youth Fellowship promotion, and all phases of religious education and young people's work—these are the things that the Board does for the people of the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches.

Just now plans are under way for the Elon Summer School to be held in July, 1934. It is hoped to have some outstanding leaders to speak to pastors. Southern Union programs will soon be in the making. The Youth Fellowship is being aided in planning a great youth meeting at the Suffolk Convention in May.

All these things we are undertaking to do with a bank balance to date of $63.00. The Convention says the Sunday Schools should contribute to the Board of Christian Education. If the Sunday Schools in the South will send to this Board a collection for one Sunday during January or February, the Board can fulfill its mission. May I kindly ask, and urge, that you present this matter to your school. Here is a chance for you and your school to do a real service, one that may bring back to you much more than you give as well as aid others in their needs.

BIBLES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Attention is again called to the fact that the Board of Christian Education wants to supply copies of the New Testament and Psalms to all boys and girls of Congregational-Christian Sunday Schools in the Southern Convention, when they reach their tenth birthday.

Sunday School superintendents or teachers should write to the chairman of the Board, who is the editor of this page, making requests for these books and giving the name and date of birth of all the children for whom the books are requested. Why not start the New Year right by checking up on this matter and sending in the requests at once.

A young business man who received a Bible on his tenth birthday pays for these books, and the Board of Christian Education is glad to send them out. The children who received them seem to be delighted with them, and many good reports have come concerning the value the books have been. One little fellow called for his book and held it in his hands while he passed out into the next world. There is no telling how much good may be accomplished by a Sunday School teacher or superintendent who will take the pains to get these books and deliver them to the boys and girls of their Sunday School.

THE PLACE OF YOUTH IN THE CHURCH.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR JAN. 28, 1934.

The Place of Youth. II. Tim. 2:20-22; I. Tim. 4:12.
Working for the Young. I. Sam. 3:1, 15.
Training for Service. Acts 16:1-5.
Teaching Youth. Luke 2:42-46.
Youth An Example to Youth. Tit. 2:6, 7.
Crusading Youth. I. Sam. 17:33-37.
Advice to Youth. II. Sam. 4:1-5.

Call to worship—"Lord of our lives, open wide the window of our spirits; fill us full of light; open wide the door of our hearts, that we may receive and entertain thee with all our powers of adoration and love."

Hymns—"I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," "Give of Your Best to the Master," "O Jesus, I Have Promised," "Lead On, O King Eternal."

Prayer.

A Story (Condensed from "The Young Man With the Daring Dream," by Blanche Carrier.)
Discussion Period.

Benediction. (Eph. 6:23, 24.)

Leader.

Our Congregational-Christian program materials are stressing four great emphases for youth's study and action. Our allegiance to Jesus Christ may express itself in at least four important areas of life. They are these:

(a) Personal religion, evidenced in our own growing spiritual life and our Christ-like attitude toward others.

(b) Intelligent and effective loyalty to the church that it may carry out the mission of Jesus in the world today.

(c) Christian citizenship as we strive to do all we can to make America genuinely a Christian nation.

(d) The expression of brotherly attitudes and the maintaining of such brotherly Christian relationships with people of all races and nations, thus sharing in the building of a Christian world.

Your meeting may be planned around these four emphases. Use a tall white taper representing the light of Christ, and four others surrounding it standing for Myself, Our Church, Our Country, Our World, and have talks given by these people stressing youth's responsibility in regard to each.

Other Talks.

What Youth expects of the Church.

What the Church expects of Youth.

Opportunities in the Church Life Investment.

Youth's Resources to meet the Church's needs.

The Church: a Partnership.

Questions on Youth and the Church.

1. How did Jesus Christ use organized means of dealing with the work of his early followers? (Read Luke 9 and 10.)

2. What help is likely to come from Christian Endeavor meetings and leadership activities to those who will become Sunday School teachers, officers of the church, members of a finance committee of the church, pastors or missionaries?

3. Are young people in the church likely to become what Theodore Roosevelt called "parlor performers"? (There were persons who studied social uplift, but never stood up for them.)

I AM CHRISTIAN YOUTH!

I am the vitality of the church today, and will be its leadership tomorrow;
I have accepted Jesus Christ as my Lord and Saviour and as the pattern for my purposive life;
I possess the priceless heritage of Christian faith handed down to me by countless hosts of devout believers and enriched by my personal devotion;
I am neither sanctimonious nor pious, but am striving to adapt the principles of Jesus to a modern busy world;
I am searching for truth through the medium of accurate research;
I defend my own generation from the judgments of our older colleagues;
I crave the sympathetic confidence of my predecessors;
I consecrate my virile body, my developing mind and my adventurous spirit to the Master of men.
I am Christian Youth!

—J. T. Morrow.

A LITTLE RHYME AND A LITTLE REASON.

By REV. HENRY ANSTADT, D. D.

If a man would be a soldier, he'd expect of course to fight;

And he couldn't be an author if he didn't try to write.

So it isn't common logic, doesn't have a real, true ring,

That a man, to be a Christian, doesn't have to do a thing.

If a man would be a hunter, he must go among the trees;

And he couldn't be a sailor if he wouldn't sail the seas.

How strange for any member of a church to think that he Can stay away from worship and a worthy member be!

When you join associations, you must pay up all your dues;

And you pay for all you purchase, from your hat down to your shoes.

There are social clubs for women, and the same for men and boys,

But the members all expect to pay for what each one enjoys.

Then how is it that the members of a church can sit in pews,

And expect some few to run it without others paying dues?

The costs of operation must be met in church the same

As in home or corporation or work of any name.

Let us honestly consider why this difference we find,

Between our church relations and every other kind.

Our business obligations MUST be met, the laws provide;

But the church is not insistent, so we let the matter slide.

May we undertake our duties for our church and for our Lord

With such measure of devotion as accords with his own word.

If our human obligations thus are recognized, why then

Surely God should have our service, now and evermore.—Amen.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

JESUS BEGINS HIS MINISTRY.

LESSON II—JANUARY 21, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."—Matt. 4:17.

LESSON TEXT: Matt. 4:12-25.

After John had been put into prison Jesus left Judea and went into Galilee, where he spent the greater part of his ministry. The open-minded, somewhat under-privileged Galileans were more responsive to Christ's message and his ministry, than the self-sufficient and bigoted religious leaders of Judea and especially of Jerusalem. Christ also left his Nazareth home and came down to Capernaum on the shores of Galilee, where in a center of population and of trade his message would have a wider hearing. Thus he began his ministry.

Repent.

Christ began his ministry with the call to repentance. REPENT! The word really means, "Change your mind," but it involves such a radical change of mind that it means change of heart and change of life. Repentance needs to be differentiated from conversion. Repentance is man's responsibility and part; conversion is God's work of grace. Repentance is the condition which makes possible conversion.

The Kingdom of Heaven.

It was a phrase often on the lips of Jesus, especially as recorded in Matthew's Gospel. The Kingdom of Heaven—Jesus was not talking about heaven as we so often use the term. He was not talking about something away off in the heavens, he was talking about something that was to find embodiment and expression right here on earth. The kingdom of heaven was to come on earth—Jesus taught us to pray for exactly that. It is the realm in which individuals and groups and nations carry out the will of God here and now. It was "at hand" for Jesus himself was the King. It comes slowly and progressively. The kingdom of God has many enemies even after these twenty centuries, but many factors are working to bring it in. Jesus said that we were to seek it first. We are to give it our best thought and energy.

Fishers—Fishers of Men.

Peter and Andrew were fishers of fish. Christ told them He would make them to become fishers of men. He always calls men to the higher and better. Sometimes he calls men to leave their old tasks to take up new ones. More often he calls men to stay at their old tasks in new spirit. The father who becomes a Christian ought to be a better father. The mother who claims Christ as Saviour should be a better mother. The business man, the professional man, the laborer, young and old, one and all, should find new meaning in old tasks when they follow Christ. It should be noted, however, that our main business is to catch men. Christians are primarily fishers of men. We should all be dominated by the evangelistic passion for individuals.

Follow Me.

These two words sum up in a way the essence of being a Christian. A Christian is one who is trying to follow Christ, one who takes Christ as his example and one who tries to do what Christ would have him do. It is not primarily believing something, but trusting and obeying Someone. They Left Their Nets—They Left Their Father.

Allegiance to Christ comes first. We must be willing to forsake all to follow him. We may not have to give up everything, but we must be willing to give up everything. The one thing we must be willing to give up is OURSELVES. That is the hardest thing to do, but it is the absolutely necessary thing to do.

Casting Their Nets—Mending Their Nets.

In both cases the men were busy men. Christ wants no idlers. The King's business requires not only haste but dependability. Christ demands and deserves our best at its best.

To Become.

In Luke's account of this story he reports Christ saying, "Follow me and I will make you to become . . ." Christianity is a process of becoming. We are to grow unto the measure of the stature of fullness in Christ. Today's stopping place is the starting point for tomorrow's journey.

Teaching—Preaching—Healing.

His teaching and his preaching shade off into each other. It is difficult to distinguish between when he was preaching and when he was teaching. But in either case there was a note of freshness and authority and vitality about his work that drew crowds to hear him. His theme was the Kingdom of Heaven. We still need a Gospel for the individual. But there is a crying need for the Gospel of the kingdom in these days of the interrelationship of life and the social problems of life.

Christ's healing revealed at least three things: It showed his power. It pointed to his work as a spiritual physician. It revealed his great compassion. Alas, that the Christian Church (the term is used in its inclusive sense) should have allowed the ministry of healing to get away from it and to go to freak cultures and "isms." Of course, Christ heals through physicians and surgeons and nurses. He heals even through adjustments of the mind. But he also heals by the direct touch of his Spirit. There are many today who have been made whole, whole in the sense of bodily health, by the direct touch of Christ, the Great Physician. We ought not to allow the extravagant and fantastic claims and reports of a few prejudice us against a central fact of Christ's ministry of today as well as of yesterday.

And Great Multitudes Followed Him.

Some of them came, of course, because they wanted to hear Christ's words. But many of them came because they wanted to take advantage of his healing ministry. This is no reflection upon them. It is natural that a man with a grievous ailment would want to be healed. It ought to be said, however, that then as now, there are many who are more concerned with physical healing than with health of soul. People will go great distances and spend large sums to get physical health, who will not go around the corner to church. Today as then people are more concerned about getting relief from their suffering than with getting rid of their sins.

It is also worthy of note that Jesus did not want to be known as a wonder worker. Again and again he cautioned those whom he had healed not to tell the fact abroad. His ministry, of course, was to the body and to the mind, but his supreme ministry was to the souls or spirits of men. Wholeness—the word salvation really means that—was the goal of the Great Physician.

And He Healed Them.

They misunderstood his mission, but he did not turn them away. Then, as now, his great heart was filled with compassion upon all who had any need. He rejected no one who came to him. There is no kindness like unto his.

This is the noble advantage of faith: it can look on the means and the end together. This is the great reason of our impatience and censuring of God, because we gaze on the evil itself, but fix not our thoughts on what is beyond it.—Richard Baxter.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black. Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps . . . . . $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold . . . . . $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold . . . . . $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools . . . . . 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

WEEK'S THEME.

We believe in the Fatherhood of God, the Responsibility of Man, the Leadership of Jesus, the Victory of Good, and the Life Everlasting.—Amen.
—The Christian Leader.

MONDAY.

Prayer—"O God, lay thy hand upon some potential leader of thy people. See how sick we are for lack of leadership, how the world plunges on its way, longing for light and not finding it! Have grace upon us who, in the midst of our vehemence and violence, have opportunity for world-wide brotherhood of world-wide chaos and turn our faces so habitually toward darkness. Strengthen all minds that plan for disarmament and peace. Steady all hearts in places of need in this day of disturbance and trial. Grant unto us such wisdom that we may find the way out of the darkness into the light. So beyond the power of any eye to see or any tongue to speak it. Spirit of the Highest, supply the wants of thy people this day. We ask it in the Spirit of Christ.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof."—I. Cor. 10:26.

We should remember that this is God's world and the prevailing current is towards righteousness. If we first of all set the current of our life in the direction of the main stream of the kingdom we shall move forward in spite of back currents and the little eddies and whirls of life. The cure of anxiety is to set the mind resolutely on the far goal, on the ultimate end of life's endeavors and not lose faith nor slacken efforts in achieving that end.

Use all your hidden forces, do not miss
The purpose of this life, and do not wait
For circumstance to mold or change your fate.
In your own self lies destiny.
Love largely and hate nothing; hold no aim
That does not chord with universal good.
Vainly they ask God for a sign,
Who do not think to find;
While those who in their faith go on—
With radiance are blind.

—Catherine Cate Coblenz.

WEDNESDAY.

WHAT IS CHRISTIANITY.

In the home, it is kindness. (Eph. 4:32.)
In business, it is honesty. (Lev. 19:35.)
In society, it is courtesy. (Rom. 12:10.)
In work, it is thoroughness. (Rom. 12:11.)
In play, it is fairness. (Heb. 13:18.)
Toward the fortunate, it is congratulations.
(Rom. 13:13; Isa. 41:6, 7.)
Toward the unfortunate, it is pity. (Gal. 6:2.)
Toward the weak, it is help. (Acts 20:35; Rom. 15:1.)
Toward the wicked, it is resistance. (I. Peter 5:8, 9.)
Toward the strong, it is trust. (Isa. 41:6, 7.)
Toward the penitent, it is forgiveness. (Luke 6:37.)
Toward God, it is reverence and love. (Heb. 12:28.)

—William DeWitt Hyde.

Prayer—Dear heavenly Father, we thank thee that thy love is light to our souls for every phase of right living. "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil," that all the traits of Jesus may be in us, for Jesus' sake we ask it.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

WHAT HEAVEN IS LIKE.

"If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be."—Jno. 12:26.

There are three absolute values or revealed attributes of God. They are related each to the other, and become false if separated from one another, and yet each stands in its own right. He who knows what love means, what devotion to truth means, and what beauty means, knows God. Do not make a mistake: it is by these three paths that we are brought into God's presence. The attributes of reality, which, as far as we know constitute his entire being, are spiritual. They belong to the eternal world which obeys laws of its own, and of which the world of common experience is only a pale copy. Do we want to know what heaven is like? It is the place where the love of right and truth and beauty reign, and on earth, as the poet says, duty, truth, and goodness are three sisters, friends of man, living together under the same roof, and never to be parted without tears.—Dean Inge.

FRIDAY.

UNFAILING FAITH.

"I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not."—Luke 22:32.

There is nothing more urgent for our New Year than unqualified faith in God, in man and in the true values of life.

When Jesus prayed for Peter, it was that his faith fail not. He might have prayed for Peter to have more power, more wisdom, a greater understanding, more money, a deeper insight into his teaching, that he might know the greater verities of the Lord, that he might be less impetuous, and a blunderer; but none of these things seemed to concern Jesus: He was concerned about Peter's faith.

The fact is, that faith was the chief object of Jesus' concern throughout his ministry of the kingdom. When he saw great faith he called attention to it; when it was lacking, he reminded them of it; when he found it, he never failed to reward it; and one of his last questions to the disciples was: "When he, the Son of Man, cometh, will he find faith upon the earth?"

There is a spirit abroad right now that seeks to do away with God in the belief of man, and that is bowing God out of life. Man is setting up his own God, and it is seen in self-righteousness, man's own ideals, his own ideas of pleasure, and his refusal to believe that God has anything to do with it at all. As a result religion is becoming bankrupt and life is over-run with suicide, crime, racketeers and gangsters, and prevailing disobedience and lawlessness.

Maybe we do not need primarily the prayer that our "faith fail not." Perhaps we need now the harking back to the old faith and to pray daily that this faith fail not. Only by this faith may we expect recovery that satisfies and is eternal.

Prayer—

O, for faith that will not shrink
Though pressed by every foe:
That will not tremble on the brink
Of any earthly woe.
Lord, give such a faith as this:
And then, whatever may come,
We'll taste 'e'en here, the hallowed bliss
Of an eternal home.

—Amen.

SATURDAY.

IMMUNOLOGY.

"Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me."—Read Psalm 19:7-14.

The Nobel Prize for medical research has come to the United States for the second time, the winner being Dr. Karl Landsteimer, who is called "the greatest living immunologist," and who is devoting his life to making men immune to various diseases.

Immunization is far better than cure, and especially in regard to the worst of all diseases, those of the soul. There is only one way to avoid falling into sin, and that is to be so completely filled with the Holy Spirit of God that sin has no attraction for us, and that we hate it with all our being. That is what is meant by the petition in the Lord's prayer that we be not led into temptation, but so fully delivered from evil that it has no chance at us whatever.

Prayer—Let the love of thee, O Christ, drive out the love of all that thou dost hate. Let iniquity have no dominion over us whatever.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

MAKING OUR DARKNESS.

"Light shall shine out of darkness."—Read II. Cor. 4:1-6.

Many poems have been based on the old saying that "it is always darkest just before the dawn," but the scientists have upset that notion, at least in regard to regions where many houses are found, for there it is darkest just after dawn. The reason is that the starting up of innumerable furnaces throws into the air a vast volume of smoke, which obscures the rays of the rising sun.

So it is often with the rising of the Sun of Righteousness in our lives. He is ready for us, "with healing in his wings," but our sins throw up a black barrier between us and him. How much sunshine God has for us that we reject and cast back at him! How much more love and cheer and strength and purity God wants us to have than we are willing to have!

Artificial darkness there is in the land of the soul. We make our own gloom; God never sends it upon us.

Prayer—Forbid, dear Father in heaven, that we fill our foolish existence with sorrow that is wholly unnecessary. May we open our hearts to thy world of light and joy.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

"THEE, THOU, YOU."

(Continued from page 4.)

In all kindness and sincerity, if any CHRISTIAN SUN reader, minister or layman, has by inadvertence fallen into the habit of using "You" when addressing Jehovah, please refrain from this, at least, in public, where there are assembled those whose sensibilities are shocked and feelings are wounded by the use of this familiarity in speech, which does record proper respect and adoration for our Lord and his anointed. We know that these who have fallen into this habit have no thought of dishonoring their Lord, but if the usage of our language is not to be followed, then, at least, let us follow the example of the inspired writers of the Word of God and accord to our Lord and his Christ this mark of preferment, esteem and adoration.
J. O. A.

Opening the door and letting God in is faith.
—Lyman Abbott.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

CHRIST'S COLLEGE.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"Come . . . learn."—Matt. 12:28, 29.

Two words are selected from the full text indicated in Matthew's Gospel to make them stand out in our thinking this morning. The College of our Convention claims a right to be remembered as the hand-maiden of our church, and today designated as a special time of our remembrance. If our College is not a part of the Gospel program, and if it is not the Gospel's servant—if it is not a part of the church which we all love—then it does not belong to exist at all, and deserves no place in our remembrance, and prayers; aid, on the other hand, if it is a servant of the church, of the church's pulpits, of the church's Sunday School classrooms, and of the church's homes of culture and loving service, then it does have a perfect right to ask us to give it a place in our thinking today.

Probably no church in the Southern Convention has had more to do with the establishing, manning, and maintaining that College than has Suffolk. Always it has done its part. When has it ever failed? From the years before our College was founded until now the Suffolk Christian Church has stood out as among the foremost of the churches which delighted to ring forth the challenge of the Christ: "Come . . . learn!" I stand in a sacred place, and feel most deeply the obligations of its honor and opportunity. Our College has never listed a name more loyal and devoted, nor one more generous and gracious to it than was the late Reverend Dr. W. W. Staley. His wisdom and counsel were always eagerly sought and gladly given, generously he gave of the earnings of his hands, loyally he enrolled his children in its sacred halls, and for eleven years he presided over its fathers and trustees as chief executive. The power of his influence still abides, for even today more than fifty members of this church are trained at our College. His successor, and worthy colleague, my personal friend and your former pastor, the Reverend H. S. Hardcastle, was himself a graduate of Elon College—even as I am. And thus, wherever our church throughout our entire Convention shall lift its voice today, it must confess its debt of abiding obligation to our College.

But that is by way of parenthesis, and is not my sermon. My sermon are the words of Christ: "Come . . . learn," and what those words may mean to us in the light of our today's thinking. The words of our text invite us to come to Jesus. Jesus is the world's one College. He is the world's supreme Teacher. He is the world's complete course. College, faculty, and curriculum is the Christ of Galilee! Not everyone can go to college, but everyone should have the privilege of sitting at the feet of Jesus. To that business this pulpit is dedicated. And for that purpose the classrooms of our church are opened. To further that very program of carrying the college of Jesus Christ to the common pews and classrooms of our entire Convention our College was established.

Jesus called only twelve out of the vast thronging multitudes of those populous Eastern people to sit especially under his teaching. Not everyone can go to college. It was never so intended. But everyone can be brought under the influence of the teaching, even as Jesus desired that everyone should have his message. So, then, the first thing Jesus said was: "Come!" And that call he is making to each one of us today. Come to him. There are other panaceas, but they all fail. There are other challenges, but when we stand before the main issues of life, and service, and death, and the eternal hereafter, they are empty.

Christ still needs to call out his choice ones today. Out from the ranks he calls them. From the fishing nets, from the receipts of customs he is calling; and may it please him to call more of the young people of this church to sit at his feet in some special manner, and for some special work in his kingdom. If he calls you, and if you desire, and seek to obey, some way will surely be provided for your progress as his pupil.

II.

The second thing he says is: "Learn." "Come . . . learn." "Learn of me." There, he is your supreme textbook. "I am the truth," he says. One of his pupils cried out in the midst of his lesson: "Show us the very fundamental beginning of things; show us the ultimate reality; show us the final thing upon which we can depend—show us the Father, and that is sufficient." His answer we all know: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." "Open our eyes that we may see."

Now the church is that agency which is supposed to have its eyes open—its spiritual eyes. The outside world is not expected to see the spiritual values, except as it is led to see them and taught to see them. That is the fundamental difference in church schools and state schools. The church school has an eye for the whole realm of knowledge—all the sciences, philosophies, and literatures come under its tutelage. And above them all, and beyond them all the gentleness of heart and culture of soul which emanates from the teachings of Christ. Practically the only main difference in a church college and a state college is that definite responsibility for promoting the spirit and teachings of Jesus. It is the fathers and mothers in the church saying among themselves, we know and love and serve the Lord Jesus; it is he that has brightened our homes and lightened our civilization, and set us to the task of making a new and finer earthly realm, and we delight to trust our sons and daughters to the glory and beauty of his teachings along with their study of the other general arts and sciences. And the church college is formed. And the church college, if at all to live and serve as it should, must be able to stand for Christ and with him, and issue his call to "Come . . . learn of me!"

"Of me," brings me to the crux of the whole matter. As I have already said, "Christ is all in all." The person of Jesus is the outstanding, that is, if the church college is to be like Christ's school of disciples—or learners. Jesus had the art of making his disciples know him, learn of him, study him, follow him, love him, die for him, and be his. As beginners in his class they said: "Master, where dwellest thou?" About you we wish to learn; you intrigue us; you draw out the finest and best within us; you challenge us; therefore, we wish to see you as you are—in your home. The disciples were asked to come and see! See the appointments of the dwelling place of Jesus. See its books, its reading matter, its culture, its quality—and to feel its atmosphere.

In the light of that the church must demand great things of its college faculty. They must be a continuation of the spirit, and grasp, and per- sonal touch of the Christ. There is not a pastor in our pulpits with a greater responsibility, or a greater opportunity than the teacher of the boys and girls of the church as they are becoming men and women in the school of their church-loving parents! Of these professors, and their college president, we may rightly say: "Where dwellest thou?" What kind of a home is your home? What are the signs of culture there? What are the magazines on your tables? What is the innermost language of your living-rooms? And God bless that college, and happy may it be, which has a faculty that can say with their Lord and Master, "Come and see!" That is the hope and dream of our forefathers in the founding of our College.

The students of Jesus—Peter, James and John, and others, seeing his power, his personality, his

(Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We are very much gratified that we reached and passed our goal of $17,000.00 for 1933. By very close figuring, cutting the number of children, and cutting every other expense, we lived within our income. The Christian Orphanage can care for one hundred children if it had funds to support them.

We should do more this year than we did last year. Times are better and conditions are improving and prices have advanced and more people are at work. The same organization can care for 100 children if we can secure the funds.

We always like to work toward a goal. We then know what to strive for. It is like climbing a ladder—it is the top rung we strive to reach. We are going to set our goal for 1934 at TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS. It will be like twenty rungs in a ladder. Every thousand dollars will count on rung. Let us see how quickly we can reach the first one. Let everybody cooperate and everybody pull together, and we all will rejoice as we reach and pass each rung. Remember the Orphanage in your prayers—remember it with your offerings.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

Following is a list of articles which have been sent in, and which was not reported last week because of lack of space:

- Foster Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C., 17 pairs hose.
- Mrs. E. S. Martin, sec'y, Golden Rule Class, Raleigh, N. C., 1 box clothing for Velma Dorsett.
- Mrs. R. A. Hinton, Harrisonburg, Va., 1 pair sheets.
- L. Banks Holt Mfg Co., Graham, N. C., contribution in goods.
- E. M. Holt Plaid Mills, Burlington, N. C., contribution in hose and goods.
- Mrs. E. M. Richardson, Dendron, Va., coats, hat, dresses, etc.
- Mrs. E. R. Bryant, Jr., Syringa, Va., dresses, sweater and hat.
- Ladies' Aid Society, Waverly Church, Waverly, Va., dresses, suits, pillow cases, towels, coats, shoes and quilt.
- Flint Hill Church, coat, dresses, sheet, canned goods.
- Mrs. Mattie Sutton, Burlington, N. C., 1 coat.
- Mrs. J. M. Fix, Burlington, N. C., Church, Circle No. 2, coat, sheets, towels, pillow cases, dresses and soap.
- Mrs. Nannie Dickson, Nathalie, Va., 1 dress and 1 pair of hose.
- Olive G. Class, Ramseur Christian Church, 2 quilts.
- Philathea Bible Class, Wuehester Christian Church, Wuehester, Va., 2 dresses, 1 little suit, towels, sheet, slips, sweaters, etc.
- Biscoe Christian Church, Biscoe, N. C., pillow cases, spread and sheets.
- Mrs. Joel Harrell and Mrs. J. D. Luke, Suffolk, Va., sheets, towels and wash rags.
- Mrs. L. E. Carlton, Paees, Va., clothing for two girls.
- Ladies' Bible Class Wakefield Christian S. S., 14 sheets.
- Hines' Chapel Church, wheat, canned goods, sweet potatoes, 1 hen, etc.
- Berg's Bakery, Burlington, N. C., 18 pkgs. rolls.
- Mrs. W. B. Bagwell, Durham, N. C., 1 dress.
- Mrs. W. H. Floyd, Abanda, Ala., pillow cases, coat, dress, shoes, shirt and waist.
- Women's Missionary Society, United Church, Chapel Hill, N. C., coats, pants, shoes, gloves, underwear, soap, etc.
- Mrs. R. L. Ross, Sanford, R. 5, Turner's Chapel Church, socks, sheets, pillow cases, towels, boy's suit, etc.

- United Christian Church, Lynehburg, Va., pillow cases, sheets, towels, suit, shoes, soap.
- Mrs. R. E. Coggsdale, Carrie Beale Class, Franklin Christian Church, Franklin, Va., 1 box clothing for Ellena Morgan.
- Columbia Mfg. Co., Ramseur, N. C., contribution in sheeting.
- Mrs. E. W. Neville, Chapel Hill, N. C., suit clothes.
- Woman's Missionary Society, Haw River Christian Church, Haw River, N. C., 9 ehiekens.
- Ladies of Bethlehem Christian Church, R. F. D., Suffolk, Va., contribution of canned goods.
- Eli Whitney School, canned goods, turnips, towels, dresses, wash cloths, etc.
- Mr. B. Drake, Franklin, Va., 1 pair shoes.
- Missionary Society and Pleasant Ridge Church, Guilford College, N. C., 1 coop ehiekens.
- First Christian Church, Norfolk, Va., coat, dresses, Christmas gift for each child and one box of candy for each child.
- Mrs. L. J. Daughtrey and Ladies of Holland Christian Church, Holland, Va., 1 box of gifts for each child.
- Mrs. J. B. Farrell, Graham, N. C., 1 cake.
- Palm Street Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C., 1 box of white gifts.
- Suffolk Christian Church, Suffolk, Va., 1 box of white gifts.
- Burlington Christian Church, Burlington, N. C., 1 box of white gifts.
- First Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C., 1 box of white gifts.
- Providence Memorial Church, Graham, N. C., 1 box of white gifts.
- Providence Memorial Church, Graham, N. C., 1 box of white gifts.
- J. C. Carden, Durham, N. C., 1 coat and cap.
- Waverly Christian Church, white gifts, dresses, towels, pillow cases, handkerchiefs, etc.

Antioch Christian Church Sunday School and Ladies' Aid Society, four beautiful quilts.

REPORT FOR JANUARY 18, 1934.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Mt. Bethel .....	$ 2.36
Lebanon .....	.68
Durham .....	15.06
Union, N. C. ....	2.80
Uniou, Va. ....	1.00
Salisbury .....	2.00
Happy Home .....	3.20
Third Ave., Danville .....	5.02
32.12
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
New Elam .....	$ 1.50
Beulah .....	10.00
Sauford .....	1.00
Oak Level .....	1.00
Mebane .....	2.00
15.50
Western North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Pleasaut .....	$ .69
Ramseur .....	5.64
Flint Hill .....	.24
Hanks Chapel .....	2.13
8.70
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Mt. Carmel .....	$ 7.21
Cypress Chapel .....	4.36
Rosemout .....	13.42
Liberty Spring S. S. and Classes..	7.00
31.99
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Timber Ridge .....	$ .84
Linville .....	5.36
6.20

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLO BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Nāz'a-rēth, he came and dwelt in Cā-pēr'nā-um, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zāb'u-lon and Nēph'thā-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31.	934	CHAPTER 5.
1 Isa. 9, 1, 2.	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ ureth on them a good example, etc. AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup>The land of Zāb'u-lon, and the land of Nēph'thā-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jōr'dān, Gāl'i-lee of the Gēn'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
1 Isa. 9, 1, 2. 1 Is. 42, 7. Luke 2, 22. Mark 1, 14.	3 <sup>b</sup>	3<sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners earmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above.....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

Alabama Conference:
Mt. Zion .....	$ 1.2
Roanoke .....	1.92
	3.12
Special Offerings.
Birthday Offering, Oakland, Va.,
Sunday School .....	$ 8.69
Union, Va., Birthday Offering....	3.00
Mrs. Dalton, support children....	12.50
Jr. Philathea Class, Suffolk, Va...	2.50
A friend .....	2.00
Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Green, Elon	*
Elon College, N. C. ....	2.00
	30.69
Thanksgiving Offerings.
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Bethel Wake .....	2.85
Western North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Pleasant .....	3.78
Eastern Virginia Conference .....	33.10
Individual Thanksgiving Offerings.
Mrs. John R. Foster, payment on pledge..	20.00
	33.10
Total for the week .....	$ 188.05

THE SUN'S PULPIT.
(Continued from page 13.)

human understanding, and his consummate wisdom, asked: "What manner of man is this?" No one thinks that mere man can be what Christ was. But is it too much to believe the words of the Christ when he said; "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto the Father." If the pastors in our pulpits, the professors in our church colleges, and the teachers in our Sunday Schools should take that blessed promise seriously and labor in the spirit of personal consecration and prayer, and divinely inspired scholarship and learning, the Saviour's will would surely be done in their lives. The world would begin to say: "What manner of men and women are these; what manner of movement is this?" Let us, you and I, do our part in helping our number of those teachers to be their best, and do their best by the cooperation and help and prayers which we give them. Then we shall be able to say: "We are co-workers together"—and then may we be able to add, "with God."

In that first school about which we are thinking the pupils said: "Never man so spake." May it not be true that as our sons and daughters come under the influence of our president and professors; feel their horizon widening, and catch a new meaning, a larger view of life; that they, too, may realize that their wisdom and understanding is somewhat beyond the ordinary run of man's thinking and speaking, and that it is divinely inspired from above.

The teacher is the test of the college. Just as Jesus was the test of the strength of the movement which he launched. One day as Jesus took his pupils into the sublime heights of his lecture-room, and was transfigured before them, they exclaimed: "It is good to be here!" They looked on the beauty and glory of his life, and felt the spell of his wonderful personality. "They saw no man, save Jesus only." May we not recognize that in a church college we can demand that our professors be prophets of God; that they be in close contact, which is not possible in large state universities, with their pupils; and that they may thus be shown life clear and whole. Going down from that transforming visit in that first school, they found they still lacked something their Master had, for when they tried to do the test of life's laboratory they could not yet quite make it. They saw their teacher able for the tests, and they asked: "Why could not we?" It was then that he gave them a further lesson in prayer, meditation and self-denial.

And it was ever thus, from lecture to laboratory, and from laboratory to actual living before them, Jesus led them at last to the hill of supreme self-denial, and demonstrated to them in a manner well-nigh impossible to approach, how they were to use their wonderful advantages, not for self, but for the saving of other individual lives and society at large. They had a new goal in life, and a new dream for tomorrow, and a new daring for their day. To them, then, Jesus could say, as a graduating challenge: "Go—go into all the world . . . go, teach everyone the larger meaning of life and tie that life up to God—in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

The students of our College are too precious to us, and the professors of our College are too powerful for good or ill in the influencing of their lives, for us to let them suffer on account of any lack of ours, either in prayers, cooperation, or support. Let us pray:

O God, our heavenly Father, may we give to our College, our professors, and our student body a new, and larger place in our love, and in the program of our church; ever remembering that Jesus, thy Son, our Lord, placed the training of his disciples in the very forefront of his program for the church. In his name we pray.—Amen.

God's remedy for the deeds of sin is pardon, for the nature of sin is extraction. Both remedies are adequate and sensible; they constitute the ever-blessed double-cure.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun
 Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
 A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc.,
 is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. .... Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. .... Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D. .... Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. .... Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D. .... Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D. .... Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE .... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year ..... $2.00
- Six Months ..... 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

BRADSHAW—CHANDLER.

On Saturday, December 23, 1933, at 3:30 P. M., at Virgilina, Va., Mr. Thomas Rensaleer Bradshaw, of Burlington, N. C., and Miss Margaret Elizabeth Chandler were united in marriage. The home of the bride was beautifully decorated with potted plants and evergreens. Mrs. Henry Farlines presided at the piano. Mr. J. J. Battershill, uncle of the bride, sang, just before the ceremony, "O Promise Me." A number of relatives and friends were present. The Christian Church ring ceremony was used.

The groom is the son of Mr. L. F. Bradshaw, of Burlington, N. C. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Chandler, of Virgilina, Va. Both were educated at Elon.

After visiting for a few days with the brother of the bride, Mr. Jack Chandler, Luray, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw will be at home to their friends in Burlington, where Mr. Bradshaw is engaged in the manufacturing business.

C. E. NEWMAN.

OBITUARIES

COOK.

Lillie Virginia Cook, born September 12, 1929, died November 23, 1933, age 4 years, 2 months and 11 days. Lillie was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cook, faithful members of Apple's Chapel Christian Church. She had been ill about three weeks with diphtheria, had improved sufficiently to be up and playful, suddenly taken with heart trouble and passed away.

She leaves to mourn her passing a father, mother, one sister and two brothers, and many other relatives. Services were conducted by the writer, interment in Apple's Chapel Cemetery. May the Holy Comforter abide with the bereaved. She has gone to play in God's beautiful garden of love.

H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

LOY.
 Mrs. Sarah Catherine Loy passed to her reward December 31, 1933, at the age of 74 years, 11 months and 10 days. She died suddenly at the home of her brother-in-law, where she had made her home since the death of her husband, who preceded her in death by 9 years. Her nearest surviving kin are 6 nieces as follows: Miss Corrina Smith and Mrs. Bessie Moore, of Greensboro, N. C.; Mrs. Callie Burton and Mrs. Lelia French of High Point, N. C., and Mrs. Bessie Steed and Mrs. Eunice Dawkins, of Burlington, N. C. Burial services at Shallow Ford by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. A. Brown, of Burlington, N. C. A good woman has gone to her reward. Peace to her ashes.
 T. J. Green.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE
Located in
"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.
 SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write
DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
 DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation
(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)
 AFFILIATED WITH
Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write
WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
 330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
 NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN
 JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
 LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
 CHRISTIAN.
 * * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write
DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
 WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1934.

NUMBER 4.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

A Starchless Potato.—

A potato that has most of the characteristics of a regular potato, yet is said to be starchless, may prove to be a boon to the diabetic who is especially fond of potatoes. We are told that the starch in the ordinary potato has been replaced in this particular kind by a sugar called inulin. The developer of the potato says that a potato was first selected in which the enzymes, under the influence of light, convert the carbon dioxide and water of the air first into sugar and then into starch. A bacterial culture was introduced into the young potato plant by way of the stem, and thus was formed a new potato of the starchless variety.

Church Mergers.—

Only recently the Reformed Church and the Evangelical Synod, both known to outsiders as Lutherans, but heretofore two separate bodies, became organically one, with a combined constituency of 625,000. The union was effected because of the "conviction that the two denominations are one in the ideals of the Christian life as contained in the Old and New Testaments and as defined in their respective standards of doctrine." The name adopted is to be "The Evangelical and Reformed Church." A plan is also under consideration whereby, if carried out, the Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian Churches will combine with a membership of 2,200,000, becoming the Presbyterian Church of North America. The same form of government as now exists in the two bodies will continue and "in no instance has there been any surrender of anything essential in doctrines, discipline or worship." The union plan will be presented to the General Assemblies of the two bodies this year with recommendation that it be submitted to the constituent Presbyteries for direct affirmative or negative vote. Final action will probably be taken in 1935.

The Cost of Ignorance.—

The late Chief Justice William Howard Taft once said: "No one can sit in a court of justice and not realize how society suffers, how injustice is done and cannot be remedied, through the ignorance and blundering of men who have acquired the right to practice law. The interests of the people demand that legislation and those charged with legal education shall put up the bars against accepting candidates inadequately prepared." In connection with this statement it is interesting to know that only two States in the Union—Delaware and Pennsylvania—require that a candidate for admission to the bar have a college degree. Seventeen States require two years in college, nineteen require a high school education, and three have minor academic requirements. Eight States, among them Virginia and North Carolina, have none. Thirty-four States do require three years in a law school, and six more, this time North Carolina is included, require two years. Again Virginia is among those requiring no attendance at a law school. No other profession is as loosely guarded as is this one upon which the common masses are dependent for their legal rights. There is possibly none outside of the profession who would not, and probably many within, who would concede that a lessening of quantity and an improvement in quality would be well worth while.

Ahab's Ivory House.—

The twenty-second chapter of I. Kings mentions the fact that King Ahab built for himself an "ivory" house. Now comes the announcement that Harvard University has acquired twenty fragments of this one-time famous show-place of the Israelitish king. Dr. Kirsopp Lake, Professor of History at Harvard, and his associates in excavations in Samaria, have identified these ivories as belonging to Ahab's palace and reflecting the idolatrous splendor of his court. The palace stood on the summit of the hill of Samaria in an open court of seven or eight acres and was surrounded by a massive wall. Several thousand fragments were discovered, but many had been ruined by fire. Only thirty or forty were found in a good state of preservation. We are told that the collection "includes carved pieces of great variety, both in size and decoration. Some are sculptured 'in the round,' other plaques in low relief. Among them are silhouetted or 'pierced work' and a few were originally cut out to receive colored inlay." These various plaques show marks of having been at one time applied to thrones, tabels, couches, etc. Some of the pieces were overlaid in gold or set with semi-precious stones. Definite traits of Egyptian art are shown on some pieces while the others were evidently the work of skilled Samaritan craftsmen. Some of the designs correspond with Biblical descriptions of Solomon's Temple.

A New Interpretation of Monroe.—

In President Roosevelt's recent address at the Woodrow Wilson memorial dinner, this nation was committed to an important change in its traditional foreign policy. The Monroe Doctrine, which had been developed through a century as a reason or a justification for intervention by our marines whenever "law and order" were disrupted in some Latin-American nation, was sharply modified by the President's flat declaration that "the definite policy of the United States from now on is one opposed to armed intervention." The President's viewpoint is that law and order in any country are primarily the concern of the people of that nation. If conditions become intolerable and the local government is obviously incapable of remedying the situation, then the difficulties become a matter of concern to the whole American continent, and not just to the United States. In other words, we will not arbitrarily send our marines into Latin-American countries, but will cooperate, if intervention becomes necessary, with other American nations. In this new declaration of policy, President Roosevelt has gone for toward the establishment of permanent peace and justice between ourselves and our American neighbors. He has materially contributed to the ultimate defeat of "dollar diplomacy." He has helped counterbalance to some extent the tragic mistake of his naval-building program and the futility of his general peace proposals.—The Christian-Evangelist.

Giving Comfort to the Enemy.—

Writing in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, Westbrook Pegler gives some interesting sidelights on the liquor situation since the Eighteenth Amendment has been repealed. He says: "Far be it from me to give aid and comfort to the enemy, but it is a good idea not to be too naive about things, and to realize that the liquor industry, which never was the most conscientious business in the United States, has not yet shown any signs of a great moral awakening. Up to now, under repeal, the whiskey industry is evincing the same larcenous tendencies which characterized it in the days before Prohibition, and has adopted the bootleggers' old trade practice of cutting one bottle of genuine liquor into half a dozen or more bottles of hooch. . . . The legal hooch which is being sold by the liquor industry is a worse grade of goods than the bootleggers were providing in all the big centers where the bootlegging industry was well regulated. The Prohibition movement is not dead, but just playing dead. It is a smart policy on their part, to let the liquor interests poison, chisel and cheat the citizens until they find themselves in a frame of mind to be steamed up against the ingrate industry which found it impossible to turn square. I do not believe the citizens who voted for repeal had any such development in mind, and it seems likely that if hooch is the best that the liquor interests have to offer in exchange for the great boon which the citizens have conferred upon them, the citizens will presently become seriously annoyed. If they should ever restore Prohibition by a popular vote, in retaliation for some of the tricks which are being played on them, that would be Prohibition which would stick for a long time."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Figures are now printed which show that 852 persons were killed by motor cars on the highways in North Carolina in 1933. According to Professor Harry Tucker of State College, 15.5 per cent of these deaths were due to drinking and drunkenness on the part of drivers. It becomes increasingly dangerous to travel the highways.

Rev. Milo J. Sweet, Elon College, N. C., will very much appreciate prompt reply from church secretaries to letter and blanks sent to all secretaries so that the data from the churches may get into the Year Book. This is important and urgent, as the Year Book will be compelled to carry blanks for churches from which no report comes in.

January and February are Elon College months and if the $25,000.00 so very much needed by the College, called for by the Board of Trustees and the Conferences of churches, is to be raised, the pastors and those who bear the responsibility will have to bend every effort and do their full duty. Elon needs, deserves and should have every dollar of that $25,000 by February 28th.

Rev. Walter Metcalf, pastor of the church at Tampa, Fla., is on the Tampa C. W. A. and Emergency Relief Council. Other members of the Council are Mayor Chancey, the President of the Chamber of Commerce, the Presidents of the leading banks, and other citizens of Hillsboro County. He has also appointed a member of a committee to study ways and means of carrying on after the C. W. A. and emergency relief have been discontinued. In his church during the year 1933 there has been harmony and a fine spirit of loyal service in spite of difficult financial conditions.

First Christian Church, Troy, Ohio, on Sunday, January 14th, extended a call to Rev. Archie H. Hook, now serving a pastorate at Goshen, Ind. Brother Hook is a graduate of Elon College, in the class of 1924, who later took his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Yale University, in New York. Our Troy Church seems to have the happy faculty of choosing great and good men to serve in its pulpit. The present pastor, Rev. James H. Lightbourne, who went to Troy from Holland, Va., closes his ministry with the Troy Church, February 25th, and begins his pastorate in the Burlington pulpit, Sunday, March 4th.

The First Congregational Church of Mount Dora celebrated its fiftieth anniversary, Wednesday, January 17th, at 8 P. M. The service was in the church parlors. The program included greetings from former pastors and local ministers, a historical sketch of the church, addresses by Dr. Fred R. Marsh, of Eustis, and Dr. David B. Spencer, present pastor of the church, also special music. A congratulatory letter from Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, superintendent, was read, he being unable to attend, as the mid-winter meeting in Chicago conflicted with the celebration. The church was organized December 28, 1883.

THE SUN's editor and his good wife, were called by long distance Wednesday night, January 17th, with the sad and shocking announcement that their devoted mother, Mrs. S. A. Williamson, had died suddenly at her home in Nansemond County, Va. Another and a steadier pen will write of this good woman and her passing, but this unworthy son-in-law will be pardoned this personal line of praise and tribute. No more devoted and unselfish mother ever lived, and because of her devotion and sacrificial life, "mother-in-law" will always stand next to the word "mother" in the memory and in the loving esteem of this writer. She loved her own with sacred and undying loyalty and devotion, and in turn her own loved her. All six of her living sons and daughters, gathered about the bier of one who was as dear as life to each of them, and the sadness of that gathering, and that hour, was only softened and relieved by the ministry of loved ones and a whole neighborhood, on whom the deceased and lavished her loving service of well nigh eighty years.

ELON COLLEGE DAY AT ELON.

The Elon College Community Church observed Elon College Day, Sunday, January 14th, in a very fitting and successful way. Mr. Leon Newman, the son of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Newman, spoke, giving his impression of Elon College from the standpoint of a Freshman. Mr. Bradshaw Holland, of Norfolk, Va., president of the student body, spoke on, "What Elon Means to Me as a Senior." Rev. James L. Foster spoke on, "The Value of Elon College to the College Town and Community." Judge D. J. Walker, of Burlington, N. C., spoke on, "The Services That the College Has Rendered to Alamance County and Burlington, in Particular." The pastor of the church spoke briefly on, "What the College Has Meant and is Meaning Today in the Christian Church at Large."

At the close of the services, envelopes were distributed for the offering, which amounted to $630.00 in cash and subscriptions. Many of the members of the church have not made their contribution. We are hoping that the amount will reach $1,000.00.

L. E. SMITH, President.

FROM MT. ZION.

As the New Year has already dawned upon us, there are two things that I would like to see accomplished within the churches of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference. First, THE CHRISTIAN SUN in every home; second, more letters in THE SUN from the churches.

I am going to start the ball to rolling, so here comes Mt. Zion.

The work at our church seems to be going forward satisfactorily under the leadership of our consecrated pastor, Rev. J. Frank Apple. Bro. Apple has been with us eighteen years, except for an intermission of four or five years and we called him last year to serve indefinitely.

We went to Conference last year as a Banner Church, with pastor's salary, Conference fund, and all financial obligations paid in full.

Our church cooperating with the other churches of Brother Apple's field presented him with a new Bible for a Christmas present.

Sunday School was reorganized the first Sunday in January. All officers and teachers were reelected, the writer being elected teacher of the Bible Class for the ninth consecutive year. A move was started about a year ago to build additional rooms for the Sunday School. We hope to accomplish this before the end of the year.

I will close by passing this thought along to SUN readers: Let's face the New Year with a renewed hope and put our shoulders to the wheel and not let the church be the last thing to pull out of the Depression.

ZEB H. LYNCH.
Mebane, N. C.

WHAT ELON MEANS TO ME AS A SENIOR.

On being asked to speak a few words as to what Elon means to me as a Senior, I find that I could talk at some length and still not cover the subject. So in these brief moments, I shall endeavor to hit a few of the high spots.

With the beginning on this, my Senior year, came the realization that my days here are numbered, and though a diploma means a lot, I have a feeling of regret at the thought of having to leave—not so much of having to leave the material things, but those which are finer and purer. To illustrate this, I speak of the fine spiritual nature of the campus life which serves to build Christian character and to establish friendships that are true and lasting.

While speaking of character and friendship, Elon seems to have the faculty of bringing out most of the good and bad in us. I am thankful for this because it enables me to select my friends, distinguish just a friend and a true friend, and estimate an individual at his or her true value.

The work in college is not one hundred per cent study. It is, in my estimation, about one-third study and about two-thirds college life. This college life affords most, if not all, of the joys, sorrows, happiness, decisions, problems, and relations with one's fellowmen, as he comes in contact with them when he is out on his own in the world. As a Senior, I can see that Elon has done this for me: she has taught me how to take care of and handle myself in complex and difficult situations that may come up, thus enabling my life's journey to be brighter, freer and unhindered, and enabling me to be happier and a more useful being in society.

BRADSHAW HOLLAND.

ARE YOU AT EASE?

"Woe be to them that are at ease in Zion," is a text that is applicable to entirely too many church folks. There are too many Bibleless homes. There may be a Bible placed away in some corner, but it is certainly not taken into the home life. Say what you may about true Christian discipleship, but I don't find much of it in communities where people ignore the importance of Bible reading.

Since about September 20th, I have visited more than a half dozen church conferences and associations of different denominations, and I have failed to find one single wide-awake, progressive church that did not have a wide-awake, progressive Sunday School. I find very little Christian growth in people who relegate their Bible to the morgue of worthless literature.

The person who is unwilling to learn will soon desert his purposes and find himself incapable of rendering an acceptable service in the Master's kingdom. I think it was Wendell Phillips who said: "Learning is the only interest worth the deep controlling anxiety of a thoughtful man." It is virtually true, that our achievements are but objectified growing thoughts, which express themselves in our disposition, toward peace, prosperity, happiness, good-will and salvation of those about us. Jesus was far from releasing men, but he challenged them to a keener insight and a deeper consciousness of their respective obligations to duty.

Things do not "just happen" in this life; there is a cause. Did not the Bard of Avon know whereof he spoke when he wrote the immortal lines: "There is nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so." The important question in my mind is: How shall we proceed to create an interest in our church membership, for Bible reading, that they may think righteously in this present world?

A. R. FLOWERS.

THE SITUATION IN GERMANY.

By DR. CHARLES S. MACFARLAND,
Secretary-Emeritus of the Federal Council of the Churches.

[Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, now in Europe, happened to be in Geneva on the day that Germany withdrew from the World Disarmament Conference, and from there journeyed to Berlin. He sets forth in this statement a few observations made from these vantage points.—Editorial Note.]

Just before leaving Geneva for Berlin I showed to a well informed delegate to the Disarmament Conference a copy of the statement of demands handed me by the German delegates to the Assembly. His quick reaction was, "It means that either the Disarmament Conference will break up or else it will go on without Germany. The German terms will not even be considered." His prophesy was fulfilled before the Conference met.

On arrival in Berlin I found attitudes of gravity and seriousness at both the German Foreign Office and the American Embassy and here learned that a message from the German Cabinet was awaited. That evening the streets were filled with the cries of newsboys—Germany was in open rebellion against what she terms the "armed powers."

Sunday the streets were filled with brown shirts, including bands of marching young men and young women. The Nazi flag abounded sometimes (in accordance with the law) with the national ensign, but oftener by itself.

The situation precipitated by Germany's withdrawal from the Conference was aggravated by the long-continued parleys between the representatives of Great Britain, France and the United States, before the scheduled reopening of the disarmament parley. Germany was left out of these preliminary discussions. One is reminded of the Washington Conference, when France was in an uproar because Hughes and Balfour fixed up a formula and handed it to Briand, ready-made. But, even if Davis had withdrawn from the triumverate earlier, the situation had gone too far to recover. When the German delegate handed me the statement quoted in my last letter I asked, "Is this a trial balloon or is it final?" His answer was quick and explicit: "It is absolutely final."

"The Nazi office here tells me that advices indicate favorable reaction in the United States to Hitler's speech. Every man, woman, and child in Germany heard it or read it. Even Tammany is not ahead of the Nazi leaders in reaching every nook and corner of the nation. Indeed, it is the effectiveness in action of this government that commands the admiration and support of the great body of the German people.

Two years ago, when I was here, the people were downcast, almost to dejection. Today they are just as serious, but have an air of confidence and self-respect and esteem. There is a very general desire that they be given opportunity to explain. As one reports the stories of excesses that have come to the United States, he receives either vehement denials or qualifying explanations. For example, at the German Foreign Office I called the attention of one of the ministers to a story that had appeared in an American newspaper to the effect that a plot had been discovered at Geneva to secure the names of all Germans who had signed peace petitions in order that they might be punished or at least watched. The minister asked, "Do your people believe such ridiculous stuff as that?" The charge is frequently made that the American correspondents are not allowed by those who control their papers to print many favorable things and that in one case a correspondent who did so was forced by the paper to retract it.

UNDERGIRDING NRA.

"All too eagerly have we fallen down to worship the gods of gold, to admit that only in profit can we find such forces as will enable us to make our machinery operate. Slowly and in a dazed fashion we have awakened to find that when we worship selfishness, the very temples of our selfishness come crashing about our heads. And when we sneer at God and the moral life, and think, in the midst of our glee, that we have outwitted the Ten Commandments, we wake to find ourselves robbed by the very men whom we worshipped. Can we not learn that it is not only morally but economically true that righteousness exalteth a nation, and that sin is a reproach to any people? Can we not realize the profound truth beneath the words of the Master, that 'He that saveth his life shall lose it'? For, while selfishness may seem to help some at first, ultimately it wrecks us all.

"For the very permanence of our nation our citizenry must recognize the fundamental place of these moral laws. We must face the fact that without them there is no base for the structure we hope to rear. There is not a single proposal for recovery that has been made by our courageous president which does not rest for its success far more upon the moral attitudes within our citizens than upon the laws on our statute books. The most serious question which we should now ask is this, 'Does the moral idealism necessary to make these proposals for cooperation a success exist among our people?' That question is now in process of being answered. If it should be answered in the negative it would be a tragedy. If it is to be answered in the affirmative, however, it will be because all those who see those values unite to create them. This calls for a program of morally and spiritual recovery to undergird the program of industrial and financial recovery."—President Beaven to the Federal Council of Churches.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....

Street No. or R. F. D.....

City..... State.....

Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE CAMPAIGN.

Let it be told again and again, in all our churches and households, that January and February are Elon College months, and that during this period the Conferences have asked their various churches to raise in donations for the College an average of fifty cents per church-member. Where there is a church with 250 members, that church is asked to contribute to the College $125.00 during January and February. A church with 500 members is asked to contribute $250.00. Since there are about 32,000 members in the churches, composing the Conferences of the Convention, if every church reaches its quota, the returns would only be $16,000.00, but President Smith of the College is undertaking to raise the remaining $9,000.00 through individual gifts. If every church will do its part the work can be done and the goal reached. There are not funds in the treasury to employ men to conduct a high-powered campaign or to employ high pressure methods. Unless the pastors and the churches can feel their responsibility and do their duty, the goal cannot be reached.

It need not be said again that the College sorely needs the $25,000.00 at this time. It is essential to the welfare of the institution, and very much depends upon the outcome of the campaign.

It is exceedingly easy to get an excuse for not giving, or to find some cause for not helping. Fault-finding, criticism, excuses for withholding are always easy. In this case all members of our communion, and the friends of Elon College everywhere are urged to find an opportunity to give and to make giving a personal privilege.

Elon College, like all institutions committed to human care and keep, may have made its mistakes and committed blunders, but any fair-minded person can see at a glance that its contribution to the church and to the cause of righteousness has been and is so obvious, so enormous, so praiseworthy that comparisons are invidious and out of place. Of any local church or Sunday School one find faults, defects and causes for individual censure. This is no excuse for not supporting the church and the Sunday School, because the church itself is divine and is the best that heaven has given to earth. So, likewise, institutions of the church may offend individuals here and there, or may make egregious individual mistakes, but these institutions are dedicated to the service of making the church stronger and more effectual in the world. Elon College is a church institution and, as such, it has not only paid the church well for all that has done for it; it has increased the power, and efficiency of every local church throughout the Conferences of the Convention. So, we love Elon College for her marvelous and matchless history, for the contribution it has made to our churches, our homes and our country, for the fellowship that we have one with another through the College, and for the promise and prospect it gives of continuing a blessing and a benefit to the church and to the kingdom of our Lord.

The time has come, the time now is, when every man, woman and child of our fellowship, and united brotherhood, should do his bit and his best for the College.

J. O. A.

A PROPHET TO THE NATIONS.

That is what the North Carolina Christian Advocate calls Dr. E. Stanley Jones. Those who have been fortunate enough to hear Dr. Jones will agree, we think, that this is no misnomer. Surely a prophet, a real prophet of God to all nations has come in our day, and the nations are hearing him gladly. Every one is asking, "Where is this man's power and greatness?" For sixty days before Christmas, all who could crowd into the largest auditoriums to be had in cities of the North and Northwest, flocked to hear E. Stanley Jones, and thousands were turned away, unable to gain admittance. Winston-Salem, N. C., in the earlier fall, furnished him its largest auditorium, which was more than filled before the hour to speak. Early in the New Year, Norfolk, Va., gave him its largest auditorium, and only those who arrived half an hour before the speaking was to begin gained admittance. Of his appearance in Richmond, Dr. Plyler, of Greensboro, writes:

"Five minutes of twelve I crowded my way up the steps of old Centenary to be told, 'it's no use, for hundreds have already been turned away.' I managed to get by police and the ushers for a place just inside the door. Main floor, galleries and ground floor were filled to hear Stanley Jones. This prophet of the nations moves men as no other missionary of his day and leaves a spiritual impress all his own."

Just before returning to America last summer, he made a tour of China, and prior to that a tour of Japan, and prior to that a tour of India, speaking especially to thousands of students who thronged schools, colleges and universities. Truly a man has arrived who has caught the ear of his fellowmen through the nations, as few, if any, in our generation, or the past two or three generations, have been permitted to do.

And what is this man's message? Just this: "Jesus Christ and him crucified, the world's only hope, her all-sufficient Saviour, her one and only Redeemer." And it is marvelous to hear this man of God tell in words so simple that the most unlettered and even the child may understand. Dr. Jones first went out to India as a missionary under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church. When he first arrived as an humble and unknown missionary in India, he says himself that he tried to stretch, to fortify and defend a line of battle stretching from the first chapter of Genesis to the last chapter of Revelation. He discovered, after many skirmishes and hard-fought battles, that his line was too long, and, as a result, his defense was too weak. He was broken in health, wasted, weary and worn, and his physician told him that he was down and out physically and must give up and quit. And then one night he told the Lord that he was in India not to do man's work, but God's work; and that he was not out to make battle for man, but to make battle in the name and for the sake of Jehovah, and in his strength, and if the Lord would give him the strength for that he would devote the remaining days and years of his life in the use of that strength. And then he drew his long line in and threw up just one short bulwark of offense and defense, and that was "The Cross of Jesus Christ." He took his stand behind that Cross, and from that day till this his one aim has been to lift and live an dreflect, to stand behind and show to the world, the Cross of Jesus Christ. Here, indeed, is a man who, addressing great public audiences, usually four and five times a day, does not break down in health, but goes forward, pressing the battle for righteousness, peace and salvation through Jesus Christ.

He seems to be an evangelist with a message peculiarly adapted to students, scholars, psychologists and philosophers of the day. He tells a good story of an experience, both exciting and revealing. A group of psychologists and professors of Columbia and other universities in New York got hold of him and put him on the witness stand and kept him there for nearly two hours, "shooting" hard questions at him and using their most subtle art and skill to entangle and bewilder him. At the end of the two hours' drilling the group apologized to him for their own unfairness and seeming cruelty and thanked him for his unbroken patience, his smiling courtesy and his remarkably satisfying answers to their many questions. "No apologies are necessary, gentlemen, for I have not felt so much at home anywhere in America as I have felt for these two hours, nor have I had a better time."

One recalls that there was another in history to whom Pharisees, Sadduces and lawyers went with their subtle questions, only to receive replies that were simple, straightforward and satisfactory. When one arrives at fundamental facts, one is equipped for every emergency. J. O. A.

DRY FORCES ORGANIZED.

North Carolinians, wherever you go, are happy over the great majority piled up against the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment last November. This stand for sobriety and righteousness has given the State some mighty good publicity and advertising throughout the nation. One hears the acclaim far and near that North Carolina, at least, dared to stand up what her sober citizens believed to be right.

The fact that other States voted for repeal did not daunt the courage of North Carolina voters. On Tuesday, January 16th, the dry leaders from the various walks of life met, several hundred strong, in Greensboro, N. C., and completed a permanent organization so that the full strength of North Carolina, in behalf of law enforcement, should be properly directed. This writer was unable to attend, but the editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate gives the following account (from which list it will be seen that Democrats and Republicans, mixed and shared honors of the occasion, as well as college professors, federal officials and the good women):

"The assembly was a fine body of citizens who spent little time in glorying in the great victory at the polls last November, but rather gave themselves to the tasks ahead. What has passed is but the beginning in an effort to make North Carolina a model State, not only in the successful overthrow of liquor, but in all other things that go into the making of a great people.

"Dr. William L. Poteat presided through the morning session and Judge Johnson J. Hayes presided in the afternoon. We were permitted to hear only three addresses. Mrs. Charles G. Doak gave a review of the 1933 campaign and it was a comprehensive, and at the same time, an interesting and illuminating story that will become one of the most thrilling and instructive stories of successful campaigning in the history of the long warfare against the liquor traffic in this country. We have not at any time heard a better account of a great campaign in behalf of temperance and morality.

"Judge Hayes delivered an address that offered many fine suggestions as to the legislation we need in North Carolina, particularly in licensing filling stations, lunch stands and places of amusement on the highways. He would put these men under bond not to sell liquor.

"Col. John D. Langston dwelt chiefly upon the need of the selection of dry officials of all sorts. He spoke with clearness and force and brought round after round of applause when he declared that he expected to use his utmost efforts to make his county dry from top to bottom. The audience, of course, understood that by implication he meant that every other citizen should go and do likewise.

"Work in the office prevented our hearing Zeb Vance Turlington, of Mooresville; Mrs. Raymond Binsford, of Guilford College; Robert N. Simms, Jr., of Raleigh, and other speakers who brought timely messages.

"Kale K. Burgess, who led the campaign with such fine success, continues at the head of the organization, and with 120 trustees distributed to each county on the same basis as the lower house of the legislature, will be in charge of the organization. The whole tone of the meeting was judicial, but there was the same fixed purpose that characterized all the meetings of the last campaign. The dries last Tuesday in the First Baptist Church, Greensboro, did a fine day's work that will count for law and order and sobriety in the days that are ahead."

J. O. A.

HONOR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER.

It is a sad day in the life of any boy or girl when he or she loses respect for, or treats with disrespect, father or mother. Not the least of all the Commandments is, "Honor thy father and thy mother"—not the least, but among the greatest, because it is the first Commandment with promise.

This came vividly to the mind of this writer recently when one, in his presence, said of a certain daughter: "She treats her mother shamefully." The mother may have many heart pangs on account of this treatment, but that daughter has lost something good, sweet, and noble from her own life, which will tell in results with the coming years.

On the same day this writer read of a scene from the other side of the picture. The papers printed the story of it all. Hon. Josephus Daniels, now Ambassador to Mexico, and his distinguished brothers, Judge Frank Daniels, of Goldsboro, N. C., and the Hon. Chas C. Daniels, of New York City, have remembered, with loving devotion and respect, the mother and father of other days in the good old church "down home," and so there comes from Mexico almost a priceless "hammered quadruple silver service," made by Mexican silversmiths into a beautiful communion service, and presented as a token of devotion as follows:

"In memory Josephus Daniels (born 1828—died 1865) and his wife, Mary Cleaves Seabrook, (born 1835—died 1933), communicants of First Methodist Church, Washington, N. C. Presented by their sons, January 1, 1934."

It is, indeed, beautiful for men of honor and renown to still love, cherish and memorialize the name and memory of father and mother—humble saints of God, long since gone, but not forgotten.

J. O. A.

THE STRENGTH OF THE CHRIST.

One frequently hears a complaint that painters and artists, generally, picture the Christ as a weakling, physically. Those who thus complain declare that pictures of the Christ should show a robust figure, a smiling face, and features full of joy. One wonders if either the critics or the painters are just and accurate in their judgment. One will never know the true physical form and features of the "Nazarene." Why should one want to know?

It was the Christ of the soul, of moral make-up and spiritual power, whom the world is concerned in. Some of the strongest, most stalwart and courageous souls of this earth have weak frames, emaciated forms, decrepit bodies. Our Lord's kingdom was not of this world. It was a heavenly kingdom, to take the place of the earthy and to become the kingdom of heaven on earth. The Christ never intended that he would like for us to remember his physical features or know what the manner of his form was. It is significant that before he left, he enjoined his disciples to remember his death and suffering till he come. He put death at the center of his life, and made suffering the fundamental thought and theme of his precepts and his examples. He came to teach men and women how to bear their burdens and not break beneath them; how to face dangers without dread; how to suffer afflictions without murmuring; how to endure hardships without complaining; how to face trial and tribulation without vain words or disputation.

This requires the greatest strength and the more noble courage. Those are the bravest souls who learn to bear the burdens, trials and tribulations of life without complaining and who can bear grief and sorrow with courageous Christian fortitude and resignation.

J. O. A.

WHAT ELON COLLEGE MEANS TO ALAMANCE COUNTY.

The most obvious meaning of Elon College to the citizenship of Alamance County is the opportunity the College affords the young men and women of Alamance County of obtaining a college education, and training for life. There are many men and women in Alamance County who are achieving success, and many more will achieve success by reason of the fact that Elon College was and will be accessible to them. As long as Elon College continues a going concern, excepting those with physical infirmities, there will not be a boy or girl in Alamance County who cannot obtain a college education. The opportunity that Elon College affords the young men and women of Alamance County of securing a first grade college education at minimum cost constitutes Elon College an invaluable asset to the citizenship of Alamance County.

Elon College is the crowning glory of the public school system of Alamance County. Located as she is in the midst of this system; equipped as she is with all the physical equipment necessary for a great institution of learning; manned as she is by a great president and faculty second to none, Elon College becomes for the boys and girls of Alamance County a "City that is set upon a hill, whose light cannot be hid." The first hand information that comes from Elon direct to the homes in the county by means of the alumni, students and teachers, makes the very existence of Elon College an inspiration and a challenge to our youth. This inspiration and this challenge constitutes Elon College an asset to Alamance that cannot be measured in terms of money.

The opportunity that Elon College affords our boys and girls of securing college training is an opportunity that fits them for a life of large usefulness. Elon College feeds these well equipped men and women into the business and professional life, not only of our county, but the whole country. These well equipped people have advertised Elon College over the country as one of the leading educational institutions of the South. Elon in turn has become an advertising medium for our county. She is a splendid advertisement of our people, our towns, our business, and our county.

The character of work Elon College has done and is doing has added greatly to the wealth of Alamance County by bringing to our county from other States and communities men and women of marked ability. These men and women first came to Elon College. They have added to the wealth, the health, and happiness of our county. In this way Elon College has been and will continue to be a great asset to Alamance County.

Elon College has been and will continue to be a great asset to the business life of our county. A center of learning and culture is conducive to good business. It is an invitation to good business to come to the community. Good business will seek out such a community and will remain for the operation of that business. It is the consensus of opinion that Burlington and Alamance County have enjoyed better business in the recent trying years than any other business center in the State or adjoining States. The location of Elon College here gives a better outlook for business and business success.

The contact of this great institution of learning with life around the firesides of our people serves to stir within their hearts "the eternal fires of life." Our youth look up and catch the vision without which a people perish. The fond parent dreams for his child dreams he never dared dream before, and together they hitch the child's wagon to a star and pull upward. The beneficent rays of intellectual and spiritual power emanating from this institution, and mellowing down to and through the life of our people, brings them to realize the issues of life, and enables them to meet these issues and live life. It brings them to feel with the poet when he said, "I have felt a presence that disturbs me with the joy of elevated thoughts."

We think that we have no substitutes for the intellectual, the cultural, the social, and the business values attached to Elon College. When we add to these the spiritual and moral values that are distinctly hers, we know that there is no yardstick, no dollar, that can measure for us the value and worth of Elon College to the citizenship of Alamance County.

A person and an artist stood before the latter's masterpiece. The person said to the artist, "I see nothing in it." The artist replied, with a tinge of pity and sadness in his voice: "Don't you wish you could?"

Friends of Elon College, citizens of Alamance County, forbid that it shall ever be said of us, "We see nothing in Elon College."

D. J. WALKER,

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Mrs. Samira Adelia Williamson, daughter of the late Mr. William Henry Jones and Mrs. Emma Copeland Jones, was born in Nansemond County, Va., March 4, 1854, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Regina Warrington, near Driver, Va., January 17, 1934, at the age of 79 years, 10 months and 13 days.

She was married to Mr. Reps Williamson on April 29, 1874. Her husband died October 15, 1919.

On the day of her death she spent the greater part of the day in Suffolk, returning home about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Soon after returning home she complained of a pain in her head and arm. In a few minutes she was suffering great discomfort and died within a half an hour after being stricken by the sudden illness.

She is survived by three daughters: Mrs. J. O. Atkinson, of Elon College, N. C.; Mrs. W. B. Warrington, and Mrs. R. A. Savage, of Bennett's Creek; three sons: W. T. Williamson, of Norfolk, Va.; Reps Williamson, Jr., of Great Bridge, Va.; and Fred C. Willamson, of Roanoke, Va. She is also survived by seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, one brother, T. A. Jones, of Bennett's Creek, Va., and a half sister, Mrs. R. J. Kernodle, of Durham, N. C.

Mrs. Williamson was a faithful and consistent member of Berea Christian Church. Her home, until the death of her husband, was a center of interest and hospitality for many people. Soon after the death of her husband she sold the old home and made her home with her daughter.

During the residence of our late friend in the Driver community, she was associated in the Berea Church and community with a number of outstanding leaders. Only three or four of these older community leaders remain to carry on the work so dear to their hearts. Their vacant places are being filled by younger people.

The funeral was conducted by the writer and Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor of the Suffolk Christian Church. A quartette composed of Mrs. J. R. Vann, Mrs. A. D. Brinkley, Mr. W. W. Ballard and Mr. James Harrell, sang "Asleep In Jesus" and "Safe In the Arms of Jesus," during the service, which was held in the home. The body was laid to rest in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Suffolk, Va.

For the pastor there are two extremes of emotion in his work among the people of the church. One is the marriage altar, when two hearts are united in the holy bonds of matrimony; the other, the funeral service, when the home is darkened and the heart saddened by the presence of death. The wedding is the sunrise, the funeral the sunset. Joy and sorrow, rejoicing and weeping, success and failure, health and sickness—these are scattered along the road of life, and every person, sooner or later, may write them down in the record of human experience. No one knows what experiences may be for our growth in the spiritual life. When Jesus knew that his friend Lazarus was dead, he said to his disciples: "And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent that ye may believe" (John 11:15). If Jesus had been in the Bethany home, at the time of this sickness, Lazarus would not have died. There is no record that anyone died in the presence of Jesus when he was in the flesh. But Jesus had something better than keeping Lazarus alive, to give to this dear family and their friends.

He raises him from the dead—"to the intent that they may believe." For the living that means more, and is more faith-inspiring, than postponing death. The prospect of increasing faith caused Jesus to say, "I am glad." Think what it means to heaven and earth when we may have faith in God. There is One who is with us, if we believe in him, and he will sustain in the hour of sickness and death. He attends all the funerals of the faithful. He takes the hand of the sorrowing and offers comfort. Trust him and he will not fail you.

I. W. JOHNSON.

ECONOMY IN CAMPAIGNING.

A few years ago financial campaigns or "financial drives" were the usual order of things. Churches, church organizations, schools and colleges sponsored such drives. The Christian Church in the South put on what we called the "Men and Millions Campaign." Elon College put on the "Standardization Fund" drive. In the former campaign we raised more than a half million dollars, in the latter about three hundred thousand dollars. It was comparatively easy to get money then. People were making money and it was popular to give. Whether a man had it or not, he usually gave, if not in cash, in subscriptions.

These campaigns meant a great deal to our church interests, and particularly to Elon College. As the result of the Standardization drive, Elon gained the rating of a Standard College, which brought to the College prestige and influence.

We are now faced with the necessity of making another campaign for Elon. This campaign is equally necessary as was the Standardization drive—just as much depends upon it, and everybody is just as anxious for the effort to succeed. But conditions are not so favorable. In general people are not prosperous, they do not have money in the amounts that they had at one time, but they are feeling better about conditions and are hopeful of easier money in the near future.

Elon College needs twenty-five thousand dollars this spring and needs it badly. This amount of money at this time would certainly bring relief along many lines and start us on the upgrade again.

The members of the church, the alumni, our friends of the College, are amply able to give the twenty-five thousand dollars, and they will if approached fairly and effectively. It only means a total of less than one dollar per individual. Surely, there isn't a church in our brotherhood but that could and would give its share, and certainly the alumni and friends could and would give as much as one dollar each if approached for a gift. The problem that we are confronted with is carrying the appeal plainly and convincingly to all who are interested. In the former campaigns the appeal was carried to practically everyone related or interested in our cause. This cost money—it was expensive then, it is expensive now. The College does not have the money with which to pay for an individual campaign conducted by the College from the office. I do not feel justified in setting up such an organization, and I do not believe that those who are most interested want that such expenses shall be incurred. I am trying to conduct the affairs of Elon College in such a way as to net the greatest possible amount to the College of what is actually given. We, perhaps, would raise more money for the College with an expensive set-up for the campaign, but would actually have less for the College.

The people, however, must be reached at this time for the College, and must be appealed to to give generously. This can be done through the organizations that we already have. We have a number of organizations in existence that can be effectively used for this purpose.

First: We have our pastors. The pastor knows his membership better than anyone else and has more influence with his people than an outsider. They have confidence in him and will heed what he says when they know that he is in earnest. He also knows the College and its needs as well or better than any one else. He knows the value of the College to the church and to the individual himself. In most instances the pastor has been a student at Elon and can speak from experience. This pastors' organization covers the whole church. Where could you find a more appropriate or a better organization than the pastors to make this campaign. Elon College is sincerely hoping that the pastors of the Christian Church may count it a privilege to do this bit of work for Alma Mater. Brother pastor, the membership of your church will be listening for you to make this appeal and your church will be proud to find its name on the Honor Roll appearing in THE CHRISTIAN SUN during the campaign.

Second: There is another organization in our church that will be glad to be used in this campaign for our College. This organization is composed largely of young people who know something of the value of a college. If they have had the privilege of attending themselves they know what it means to them. If not, they know the need of such training and are glad to work for the support of the College that may continue to offer advantages for training to the young people of our church. This organization is composed of Christian Endeavor Societies and Youth Fellowship Units, and when they start after a thing, they usually get it.

Third: We have another organization in our church that is most efficient and successful when it starts after money. This organization carefully sets its goal and then deliberately starts out to reach this goal. I wonder if we dare to hope to enlist this organization in the College campaign. This organization is our Woman's Missionary Association. Well, why not? Elon College is the greatest home missionary enterprise ever undertaken by the Christian Church. The Missionary Societies of our church could do nothing better or more helpful to the whole church than to give themselves whole-heartedly to this campaign until March 1st. Missionary Society in the church, this is what you can do: Just join hands with your pastor and the other forces in your church to see that every church raises its quota.

Fourth: Then there is another organization in our church that can join in this campaign and see that it goes over the top. This is the largest and most inclusive organization that the church has. I am speaking now of the Sunday School—superintendents and teachers. They are in every church. They are accustomed to asking for money and getting it. If every Sunday School superintendent and every Sunday School teacher would enter heartily into this campaign with the determination to see that our goal is reached when March arrives, we would be there.

I am appealing for common sense and economy in this College Campaign. When we have so many fine and efficient organizations right in our church that can easily make this campaign, without cost to the College and with great help to themselves, why go to the expense of setting up an additional and expensive organization? I can't see the wisdom.

With faith in our cause and confidence in our folks, I am appealing to pastors, young people's organizations, missionary societies, our Sunday Schools—superintendents and teachers—to unite your forces, to speed your efforts and together let us put this campaign over for our College. It can be done and it must be done.

L. E. SMITH, President.

SAFE INSURANCE.

The life insurance policy had lapsed after many hundreds of dollars had been paid to keep it in force and the principal had been borrowed to the limit. The company had sent out warnings that grace would expire at a certain time, but nothing could be done. Finally came a letter asking that the difficulty be explained to them as they might be able to help. The difficulties were explained and at the close of the letter attention was called to a tract which was enclosed. Perhaps it was all out of order to send a tract to a business concern especially when it was extolling a rival company; but into the envelope it went nevertheless with the explanation that it was the insurance which was being relied upon for time and eternity.

This insurance company which has been so well written in tract form, is called "The King's Insurance Company," and is the greatest, oldest, and only absolutely reliable fire, marine and life insurance company in the world. Extravagant claims, indeed; but as we think that the cash capital is the unsearchable riches of Christ, we know that it surpasses all others. The real estate of this company is reserved in heaven for each one who is injured (I. Peter 1:4); the cash in bank is gold tried in the fire which is owned by the President of the company, Jehovah, the King of the Universe (Rev. 3:18). Anyone may be insured in this company and the invitation has resounded down through the ages to whosoever will; the condition of the policy being repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ (Acts 20:21).

The fearful and unbelieving need not doubt for he is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think (Eph. 3:20). The General Agent is the Holy Spirit, who speaks to the hearts of all and is ever faithful to represent His company. Why should we insure in this company? Because it is the oldest company and most successful in operation, for it gives satisfying peace and joy in this life; such a blessed feeling security. The fires of the great Judgment Day will not destroy those whose names are written upon the books of this company; they need not fear when they come to the river of death. The policies never lapse because earthly banks fail, but stand for time and eternity, for he is able to keep that which has been committed unto him against that great day of his coming when he shall judge the quick and the dead.

Each one insured is their own beneficiary, and will receive the full value of their policy, for it is written, "Behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."

There is no time to be lost in taking out your insurance policy; now is the accepted time; tomorrow may be too late. The hazards of life are too great to put off your decision; so decide now. "The Spirit and the Bride say, 'come,' and let him that heareth say 'come'. And let him that is athirst, come. And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely (Rev. 22:17).

W.

NEWS FROM LANETT, ALA.

It may not be out of order for me to pen you a few lines from Lanett, Ala. We have entered the new year with great hopes. There are signs of increased interest along some lines of church work.

We are gradually growing into a more systematic program of church work. I think some of our people are becoming more spiritually inclined and our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor show signs of progress.

Our young people of Room No. 2 have recently beautified the interior of their room at a cost of about $40.00 or $50.00, practically all of which has been paid by the classes of the room, who are taught by Miss Stella Yarbrough and Mrs. Posey Sorrell.

They are planning to carpet the choir stand and re-carpet the pulpit, and also seat the choir stand with new chairs in the near future.

Our finance committee has done a fine piece of work in these last days in reducing our church debt. Brother J. A. Roquemore, who is chairman of this committee, and also treasurer of the church, led in this effort, and as a result our debt has been reduced again. Our Woman's Missionary Society gave $50.00 on the building debt, and all told the debt was reduced from $907.57 to $689.00 (this in three months). Some other smaller matters have also been paid and we are now on the home stretch for our goal, which is to pay this debt in 1934. We must and we will, if it is God's will, get an easy breath in 1935. Just a little more than a year ago our church building debt was $1,377.67. The Lord has amazingly blessed us. It has been, and is yet, a hard job, but we are facing it in a heroic way. God bless the faithful women, who never know when they have done enough. They are happy in service, and joyful in praise. And we have a few men who are standing by the church, and we are praying that their kind may be increased. Will not the whole brotherhood pray for us?

G. D. HUNT.

Rev. H. C. Hilliard changes his address from Louisburg, to Cary, N. C. Brother Hilliard is now located at Cary, and is pastor of our church in that town.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

Nos. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O LORD. 11 Mercy and truth gathered together; righteousness kissed each other. 12 Truth shall spring

Nos. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 Gen. 15. 1. Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. 11 For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.

Nos. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 'Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, inner lined to edge, silk round corners, red under gold edges, silk

hea

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x
As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handy some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

THE OUTSTRETCHED HANDS.

When Alexander Duff, the great Scottish missionary to India, returned to Scotland and made a tour, preaching in the churches, he found that money, although in abundance, was not finding its way into the Lord's treasury. He said: "It is invested in stately mansions, splendid equipages, extravagant furniture, costly entertainment, and idle and useless luxuries. The churches are treating the cause of Christ as Dives treated Lazarus."

Has not the same condition existed in America in the days of prosperity? Even in this time of depression much is wasted in useless entertainment and luxuries, and in a thousand different extravagances.

The outstretched hands of the heathen pleading for help are the outstretched hands of our Saviour, and shall he walk up and down the aisles of our churches in the attitude of a beggar calling for some of the crumbs of our plenty?

From all countries the Macedonian cry is sounding, "Come over and help us." God has opened fields before us, and if human agencies would but cooperate with divine agencies, many, many souls would be won to Christ. But professing Christians have been sleeping over their allotted work, and in many places the need remains comparatively untouched. God has sent message after message to arouse us to do something, and to do it now. But to the call, "Whom shall I send?" there have been few to respond, "Here am I; send me."

We plead for the money that is spent on needless things. My brethren and sisters, waste not your money in purchasing unnecessary things. You may think these little sums do not amount to much, but many little make a great whole. Cut off every extravagant expenditure. Indulge in nothing that is simply for display. Your money means the salvation of souls. Let there be systematic giving on the part of all. Some may be unable to give a large sum, but all can lay aside each week something for the Master. Let the children act their part. Let parents teach their children to save their pennies to give to the Lord. The Gospel ministry is to be supported by self-denial and sacrifice. Through the self-denying efforts of God's people others will be brought into the faith, and these in turn will help to increase the offerings made for the carrying forward of the Lord's work.—Missionary Review of the World.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JANUARY 20, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,108.72
Bethlehem, Broadway, Va. ....	4.68
Ocean View, Va. ....	4.01
Youngsville, N. C. ....	2.00
Leaksville, Luray, Va. ....	2.33
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C. ....	.81
Antioch, Harrisonburg, Va. ....	9.34
Spring Hill, Waverly, Va. ....	.87
Union Grove, Seagrove, N. C. ....	.71
Ingram, Va. ....	10.00
Fuller's Chapel, Henderson, N. C. ....	3.56
Bertie Johnson's Class, Liberty Spring
S. S., Whaleyville, Va. ....	3.00
Wadley, Ala. ....	1.00
Total .....	$ 1,151.03

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 657.47
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C. ....	5.15
Mrs. W. L. Wells, Raleigh, N. C. ....	5.00
Ebenezer, Morrisville, N. C. ....	4.00

Total ..... $ 671.62

Specials.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 674.30
Ladies' Class, Rosemont Sunday School,
Norfolk, Va. ....	25.00

Total ..... $ 699.30

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 6,332.43
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	42.31
Individuals and Churches .....	14.15
Specials .....	25.00
Total to date .....	$ 6,413.89

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Following is the report of the Treasurer of the Woman's Board of Missions, Southern Christian Convention, for quarter ending December 31, 1933:

Receipts.

Valley of Virginia Central Conference:
Women's societies .....	$ 65.32
Young People's Societies .....	8.65
	$ 73.97
Alabama Conference:
Women's Societies .....	$ 80.08
Young People's Societies .....	20.65
Willing Workers' Societies .....	6.00
Cradle Roll Societies .....	6.29
	113.02
North Carolina Conference:
Women's Societies .....	$505.50
Young People's Societies .....	20.44
Willing Workers' Societies .....	21.00
Cradle Roll Societies .....	3.23
	550.17
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Women's Societies .....	$619.00
Young People's Societies .....	148.00
Willing Workers' Societies .....	82.00
Cradle Roll Societies .....	1.00
	850.00
Total Receipts .....	$ 1,587.16

Disbursements.

Home Missions:
Ocean View .....	$200.00
Mountain Work .....	200.00
Raleigh Church .....	180.00
South Norfolk .....	100.00
Porto Rico Kindergarten .....	$ 10.52
Porto Rico: Gen. Work .....	150.25
	160.77
Elon Orphanage .....	2.75
	843.52
Foreign Missions:
General Mission Work .....	$506.13
Dr. M. J. W. White's Hospital,
Philippines .....	237.36
	743.49
Total Disbursements .....	$ 1,587.01

MRS. H. S. HARDCASTLE, Treas.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER.

On February 16th, the women of the Southern Convention are urged to join, with increasing interest, the women from numberless places around the world in the Day of Prayer.

Last year the program was given us by Mrs. C. C. Chen, of Shanghai. This year it is by Mrs. J. W. L. Hofmeyer of South Africa, and brings greetings of peace from the women of that country to the Christian of all nations.

This program, together with the Service of Worship for Girls, and the Call to Prayer by Mrs. Robert Forgan of Scotland, may be ordered through our denominational headquarters, or the Council of Women for Home Missions, 105 E. 22nd St., New York City.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.,
Woman's Mission Board, S. C. C.

REASONS WHY.

YOU should be a member of the Missionary Society and work for Missions:

Because Missions are God's thought. He asks your cooperation.

Because of our love for the Lord Jesus Christ whose commands are explicit (Matt. 28:10-20; March 16:15; Luke 24:47; Acts 1:8).

Because we are the fruit of missionary effort. Because your example will help others to obey the Lord's command.

Because the need is urgent. Thousands die daily who never saw a Bible, or heard of Christ.

Because larger efforts are needed in Home Mission work.

Because all nations are now easily accessible, and with more means and more workers the work might be indefinitely increased.

Because the work of the Missionary Society is to help the heathen abroad and the spiritually needy at home.

Because of the reflex influence of Missions on the home churches.

Because Missions are the work of the church, and all Christians should be active church-workers.

Because millions are yet in darkness and the laborers are so few.

Because the security of our nation now depends upon the civilization of all.

Because the Lord has left the work of carrying his message to the world in the hands of his followers. He expects YOU to help.

SOME BENEFITS OF TITHING.

The supreme benefit of tithing is not the money it brings to the church. It is the joy, the contentment, the individual personal happiness it brings into the daily life of the tither. To these the money standard does not apply. They can be neither weighed, measured nor counted, yet these and not the money are what God cares for. His glory is enhanced by the happiness of his children. To think that he cares for the money involved is absurd.

True, our tithes are needed and do infinite good in the extension of his kingdom, but his kingdom, his church, is made up of individuals. God especially cares for individual people, just such people as you and me.

All of God's laws, including his law of the tithe, are intended to promote the highest good and greatest happiness of those who obey them. God's laws are God's will. When we pray, "Thy will be done," we are praying for obedience to his always good, kind, wise, loving laws, and joy, peace, contentment, happiness and prosperity are the perfectly natural and to be expected results of obedience.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

ARTICLE No. 11.

"ANCIENT METHODS OF WORK STILL IN USE."

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN,

Dover, Del.

Palestine today has the same type of peasant folk that Jesus knew. The Bedouins with their large families dwelling in black tents made of goat skins and of goat hair have been living in Palestine for more than four thousand years. Palestine has always been characterized by its numerous herds of goats and sheep. Jesus saw the shepherds of his day, dressed in the same way as they dress today, herding their flocks on the mountain sides just as one can see the shepherds watching their flocks in Palestine today.

The same primitive methods of seeding and harvesting that Jesus and the prophets Elijah, Isaiah, Hosea and the rest before them witnessed are still practiced in Palestine today. Much of the modern farm machinery and many of the modern farming methods would be impracticable in Palestine because of the stony condition of the ground and because of the small fields. Moreover, modern methods and modern machinery would be detrimental to the people themselves, as the primitive methods meet their needs and at the same time offer opportunity for work to more people of whom there are so many. To displace the human labor with machine labor in Palestine would be perilous to the people, for even as it is they have plenty of idle time on their hands.

The plowing for the most part in Palestine is done with a crude wooden plow, or crooked stick we would call it, drawn by oxen, but you would not call it plowing, for it is merely scratching the surface of the ground. This same method of plowing and the same method of threshing seen in Palestine are also practiced throughout Asia and Asia Minor as well as on the islands of the Mediterranean. Of course, in some of the Zionist Colonies the modern implements and modern methods are used. But the Zionist Colonies are few in number compared with the great number of natives who still hold to the primitive methods.

The threshing scenes in Palestine today are the same as those of the Old Testament times. The grain is cut with sickles, the work being mostly done by the women. When the grain is ready for threshing it is piled upon a plot of smooth ground and then a team of oxen, hitched to a flat rough-bottomed sled are driven around and around over the pile of grain to thresh the grain out. Then the tedious process of winnowing the grain from the chaff and the straw takes place. Thousands upon thousands of the peasant folk of Palestine are thus employed for several weeks during the threshing season. It requires fifty people a whole week to thresh as much grain as a crew of seven men would thresh in a single hour in this country. All the threshing done in Palestine requiring as it does now five or six weeks of time and many thousands of laborers could be done by one of the threshing crews of the Middle West in one week if the grain were brought to a single setting of the machine.

The ox and the donkey were the common beasts of labor in Palestine in the days of the Old Testament, just as they are today. The horse is rarely used for farm purposes. The Arab Sheiks have their beautiful Arabian riding horses which one so often sees in Palestine upon the highway. But the peasants, the people living in the country and in the villages use either the ox, the donkey or the camel both for farming and driving. One will frequently see all three of these animals—the ox, the donkey, and the camel—all hitched together at work—an interesting combination indeed.

There are very few automobiles in Palestine in proportion to the number of inhabitants. Those that are there are owned mainly by transportation companies or by individuals who use them for commercial purposes in conducting tourists and other visitors from place to place. Of course, some foreigners who live in Palestine, and a few of the rich natives have their automobiles. But the number of privately owned and privately used cars in all of Palestine, I was told, could easily be counted with three figures. The automobile is a decided luxury in Palestine. For instance, a Ford car costs nearly $2,000.00 in Palestine. A Buick car costing $1,500.00 in America would cost about $4,000.00 in Palestine. The same comparative prices obtain regarding other makes of cars in Palestine. Gasoline, or what they call "petrole," costs 40 cents a gallon. So riding in an auto is still considered a great luxury in Palestine by the natives—nearly as much so as is traveling by airplane in our country.

The common mode of transportation in Palestine among the natives who do not make use of the auto bus service is the camel or the donkey. Long caravans of little donkeys and great tall camels or dromedaries are always on the roads carrying passengers with their large baskets of provisions, or carrying loads of merchandise upon their backs. Whenever the donkeys or camels are conveying a family from one town to another in Palestine, it is the prevailing custom for the husband and the smaller children to ride while the wife and other children walk along by the side. It is very seldom that the husband walks and the wife rides. Of course, sometimes the family is able to afford enough donkeys and camels so that all the members of the family can ride. But if anyone has to walk the wife or mother is the one, for the native women of Palestine are shown but few courtesies by their husbands. And because the Arab men think of the women as being inferior to them, the women have to do all kinds of heavy work around the home and in the field.

The Palestinian women have a hard life. They appear as old at forty as American women do at seventy. Of course, the men also have a hard life, especially if they do not have a wife to do their work for them. It is a common sight to see men using a strap across their forehead to steady a heavy load of wood or lumber or farm produce which they carry along the road on their back. The loads these men carry seem almost unbelievable.

But the women of Palestine work harder than the men. The farther east you travel, the less consideration does woman receive. And nowhere else in all the world does woman receive such respect and such kindly consideration, as she does in America. The women of the poorer families in the Orient occupy a place but "little better than slaves."

"Oh!" panted Mother Bee, "this is glorious, fine, but thoughtless and ungrateful. We should even now be hanging near the farmhouse, not circling through the air like this."

Just then the swarm made a curve and swooped downward, and the queen mother fell—where do you think? Into Tom Smith's straw hat; and in a moment the whole swarm lay, one upon another, a great golden cluster of happy, panting bees.

And Hum and Buzz, laughing and clapping their wings, circled around Tom and the swarm, telling how they had planned this jolly march and joke, at the same time not forgetting the commands of their dear mother, the queen of the bees.

Tom put a basket over the swarm and hived every bee.—Christian-Evangelist.

A Story for the Children

THE ADVENTURES OF HUM AND BUZZ.

(Adapted from the book, "When Mother was a Little Girl," by Frances S. Brewster.)

One day early in summer Tom Smith found a large swarm of bees hanging from the branch of an apple tree, waiting to be caught and hived. Just as he and his father had caught the great hanging mass, the queen bee fell into a pail of water. Tom saw the poor little thing struggling in the water, plunged in his hand and drew it out, wet and limp, but alive.

He covered her gently in his hands, then blew upon her until, warm and dry, she fluttered about as strong as ever, a superb and beautiful creature, "every inch a queen."

The hive was in a state of great confusion, the drones crying for their queen and mother, the workers doing their best to still the noise; but when she flew in among them the commotion ceased and all flew to her, giving a royal welcome to the new home that was to be.

The mother then gathered her family around her. "My children," she said, "this day has been full of adventure; had it not been for the gentle goodness of that nice boy, Tom, I, your mother, would have drowned and all this family would have been separated.

"Now I want you to remember this, when our work here is done and we, with new members of our family, go out to form another home, do not selfishly seek some place away from here, but stay near by, where Tom may easily reach us." She then left them to sleep.

Then came a busy time. The little cribs must be made to hold the babies, honey must be gathered for the winter store, and bee-bread made with which to feed the babies. So the wax-makers set to work making the pretty six-sided cribs in which the queen mother would lay the tiny eggs. Gangs of bees went off for honey, and the nurses flew away to fill their little baskets with golden flower dust.

On their return, so heavily laden that they could scarcely crawl into the hive, they packed the cribs where the eggs lay with this good flower food. After several weeks, when the cells were filling with honey and babies were beginning to come out of the cribs, full-fledged bees, and the new queens were commencing to move and hum in their cells, the old queen grew restless, for she knew she must take her family and be off to another hive or there would be trouble between herself and the new queen over in the corner, who was giving her a warning cry.

She called her children to her and told them they must prepare to find a new home. "Hum and Buzz," she said, calling two handsome young workers to her, "I make you my captains; find us a good place in which to swarm not far from here, where farmer Smith can easily find and hive us."

Hum and Buzz looked downcast.

"I know, my wild young bees," she said. "Your wish is for the shady woods, the hollow of a maple tree. That is the home I, too, would choose, but one good turn deserves another. Tom saved my life and the life of this whole hive. We must not selfishly seek our own pleasure. See to it that you do not take us far away."

They both flew off and in a short time returned full of busy importance. "Follow!" they buzzed. Out flew hundreds of humming, buzzing bees, their queen in the center. How they circled and whirled as they flew, filling the air with their swarming song. On and on they went; where the captains led all must go.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

DEFIANCE CHRISTMAS CONFERENCE AND YOUNG PEOPLE.

During the last days of 1933, 53 young people and leaders met at Defiance Christian College, Ohio, to consider what young people can do in these fast moving days to make the world a bit more Christian. They came from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and North Carolina, and for three days they gave themselves to fellowship, worship, and serious study of problems that confront young people today.

A sixteen page booklet tells who was there, what was done, and the resolutions that were passed. Copies may be had for five cents each by writing Miss Lucy Eldredge, C. P. A. Building, Dayton, Ohio. The remaining articles on this page are taken from that report.

NINETEEN HUNDRED THIRTY-FOUR.

What glorious days in which to live! Days whereby we can make happier the lives of little children; days wherein we can make possible a more abundant life to those of narrowed environment; days wherein we can encourage the zeal of those attempting to uplift mankind, wherein we can breathe hope in the breasts of those disheartened, days wherein we can point out to men the countless values of the eternal over the mere temporal and be enwrapped in the things spiritual rather than engrossed in the material; days wherein we can make pleasure our servant rather than our idol; an age which demands that the kingdom of God be placed uppermost in our hearts and in the world; a time which demands that we love all men irrespective of race or creed; a time wherein we can have visions that reach beyond our own selfish interests and desires; days wherein we can live in close relationship with God—these are the days that are opening to us this coming year and throwing back the doors of glorious opportunities.

REV. FRANK GARDNER.

REPORT OF GROUP ONE.

Topic: "How Can We Help Young People to Live the Christian Life?"

It is the conviction of this group that the question of helping young people to live a Christian life is of supreme importance because, if we as individual Christians, really live daily the Christian life just so far will our other problems more easily be solved. Therefore, we recommend that the major emphasis of our young people's groups for 1934 be helping young people to live a genuine Christian life.

1. Our idea of the Christian life. To live as far as we are able the kind of life that Jesus Christ lived in his relation with God and man. To live every day in the spirit of Jesus by the help of this unseen presence.

2. The part the Bible should play in helping young people to live the Christian life:

(a) The Bible is the source book for our religious ideals and conduct. It presents the life and teachings of Jesus, which are the basis for a fundamental philosophy.

(b) The Bible also affords material for personal devotions and group worship. It gives us inspiration, comfort, courage and strength.

3. That we can put into our church program for 1934 that which will help young people to live the Christian life:

(a) Music. To keep the music from becoming professional. To endeavor to select hymns that have inspirational and spiritual value.

(b) Drama. To put on helpful religious plays and pageants.

4. The real purpose of our Youth Program:

(a) To live in our own lives the teachings of Jesus Christ.

(b) To so live as to bring others into relationship with the personality of Jesus Christ.

(c) To share Christian experiences with others (through service, conversation, etc.).

(d) To rededicate ourselves to the four-fold purpose of our Youth Program as expressed in "A Program Guide for Young People":

"In the presence of God and these, my friends, I pledge allegiance to Jesus Christ and promise to endeavor to make of my life the best that I can be, to serve my church that it may be true to the mission of Jesus in the world today, to help make my country a genuinely Christian nation, to work for the brotherhood of all of the people of all lands."

5. Ways to lead young people to a world view:

(a) Where it is possible have students from other nations come to our homes and churches. Give them an opportunity to share with us their views and customs.

(b) We should read missionary books and periodicals.

6. Ways to lead young people to personal consecration:

Lenten Season. Ask the minister to make the Meaning of the Cross the theme for the Lenten Season. This season offers opportunities for more serious consideration of Christian living and a deepening of spiritual values.

To urge young people's groups to cooperate with the church in the observance of special services during Holy Week.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S PART IN THE INTER-DENOMINATIONAL WORK.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FEB. 4, 1934.
Luke 10:1; Phil. 4:15-19.

Theme—"Christian Recovery Through Co-operation."

Hymns—"We've a Story to Tell to the Nations;" "O Zion Haste;" "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Ask three members to read and comment briefly upon these scriptures: Psalm 133:1; Ephesians 4:3-6; Ephesians 4:11-13.

Prayer thought: John 17:18-23, read while pianist plays softly just before prayer by a number of young people asked in advance.

One common faith unites us all,
We seek one common goal;
One tender comfort broods upon
The struggling human soul.
To this clear call of brotherhood,
Our hearts responsive ring;
We join the glorious new crusade,
Of our great Lord and King.

Ozra S. Davis.

Thoughts for Leader.

How many youth agencies working through the International Council of Religious Education have been choosing great emphases which they have studied and worked upon together? (The truth about Prohibition, the economic situation, etc. In the future youth will be thinking about "The Christian Mission in the World Today.")

What great common purposes do we have in our youth organizations and programs? What is the value of united effort? Study? Worship? How may we carry out this emphasis on Christian missions in our group, and with the groups of the churches of our community?

Suggestions for Discussion.

"Witnessing for Christ" and "I will be Christian," are keynote phrases in Christian Endeavor Societies this year. This will be accomplished through personal growth, loyalty to church, a Christian social order, because we acknowledge that "The Christian has a two-fold task; to develop a character that grows more Christlike from day to day, and to join with other good citizens in building a social order that is true to the spirit and teachings of Jesus," and world cooperation through active support of Christian missions.

Dr. Stock has said: "No young people's group should do alone anything which can be done with others effectively." Do you agree? Why?

What values come from joint meetings of young peoples' societies? How often should they be held? Why?

So make we all one company,
Life's golden cord our tether,
And come what may we'll climb the way
Together—aye together.

THE UPPER ROOM.

One wonders if we young people could not make our work more meaningful if we would spend a few moments each day in the upper room with Jesus. Plan our work by his leadership and labor in the field of service as co-worker with him. The writer experienced a new vision of the "Nazarene" in the upper room at the Defiance Holiday Conference. The program called for an upper room vesper service before retiring each evening. As the trumpet sounded, "Come All Ye Faithful," we started climbing the flight of steps leading to the upper room. In the bend of the stairs there hung before us a sign portraying the following words: "And they went into the upper room to pray." A spirit of silence was prevalent when one entered the door to the room. Once seated it was quite easy to see Henry Stanley Todd's picture, "The Nazarene." I am sure that there will always be stamped in the minds of those who attended the upper room services, that wonderful picture, "The Nazarene."

Perhaps there will be an occasion when the reader will want to have a service of this type. Following is an outline of the service used on Saturday night, led by Ethel Hurley.

Instrumental prelude—"Jesus Calls Us."

Reading—"Once walked on Galilee's shores, a young man, the Son of God, destined to be the Saviour of the world. At his call, young men gladly turned from their tasks, the fishing boat, the market place, the seat of customs; they heard 'Follow Me,' and willingly left all and followed him. These he sent forth, saying, 'Go ye into all the world.' Inspired by his life, on fire with his spirit, they counted their lives worthless save as devoted to his cause."

Cornet solo—"Jesus Calls Us."

Meditation—"How wide is my love? Is it wide enough to live out God's will for my life? Is it wide enough that I will make opportunities to promote a spirit of Brotherhood in the group with which I come in contact?"

Prayer—"We praise thee, O God, for our fellow workers, for the touch of their hands and the brightness of their faces, for the cheer of their words and the overflow of good-will that refreshes us. Grant us insight of love that we may see them as thou seest, as radiant children of God. May naught mar the joy of our fellowship here.

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

STANDARDS OF THE KINGDOM.

LESSON IV—JANUARY 28, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

LESSON TEXT: Matt. 5:1-48.

The Sermon on the Mount was the platform which Jesus proposed for the Kingdom of God or of Heaven. It is a summary of the ideals and the embodiment of the spirit of Jesus himself. It contains principles rather than details, and hence it has universal and permanent meaning and value.

The Character of the Citizens of the Kingdom.

The Beatitudes, as they are familiarly called, put in a compact and arresting way the qualities of mind and heart which characterize the members of the Kingdom of God. The poor in spirit, those who have the capacity to suffer, those who are humble, those who aspire to higher and nobler things, those who manifest the spirit of mercy in dealing with others, those who are not only pure in heart, but those of undivided purpose (the word pure as used here means that), those who promote the spirit of peace, those who are willing to pay the price of their convictions—these are those who are eligible to and who have entrance into the Kingdom. It is significant that the word which we translate "blessed" is the same Greek word which may be translated "happy." Happiness does not come from the possession of things, but from inner qualities of life. Happiness comes not from having but from being.

The Mission of the Citizens of the Kingdom.

"Ye are the salt of the earth . . . ye are the light of the world"—in these homely figures Jesus presents the mission of his followers. They are to cheer, and to cleanse, and to guide, and to heal, and to give life. They are to be more than good; they are to be good for something.

The Righteousness of the Citizens of the Kingdom.

"But whosoever shall do and teach them"—notice the order, do and teach. Outward conduct was to be the expression of the right inner life. The righteousness was not to be the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, formal, external, cold, exclusive, lifeless, but inner, vital, winsome, inclusive, life-giving.

In a series of striking sentences Jesus shows both his superiority to those who had gone before him, and also the new, because inner, demands which the moral and spiritual nature of the kingdom made upon its citizens. He takes murder and shows that it is not simply a matter of the external act, but rather a matter of inner spirit and attitude. He who hates has already committed murder in his heart.

So likewise with worship. Worship is not primarily a matter of forms and ceremonies, no matter how meticulous and impressive, but primarily a matter of inner spirit and right relationships both with God and with man.

Adultery is more than the physical act. It is a matter primarily of secret imaginings, lascivious thoughts, evil passions.

And so with a man's word. It should not be necessary for a man to swear by anything to give faith in his word. A man should have such integrity of character that his word is as good as his bond—and better. A man's yes ought to mean yes. A man's no ought to mean no. "Whatsoever is more than these cometh from the evil one."

The Discipline of the Citizens of the Kingdom.

"If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out; if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off." It is a hard saying for many who believe in the theory of expressing the self, that is any old kind of self. Jesus says that whatever keeps a man from being his best self, whatever causes him "to stumble," must be resolutely put out of life and kept out of life. No matter how dear it is, it must go. Our modern world needs this note of discipline. The member of the kingdom should give all diligence to the matter of self-discipline which is both the most difficult and the most important and the most rewarding of tasks.

The Spirit of the Citizens of the Kingdom.

Going the second mile, giving, forgiving, enduring, loving, suffering—these are characteristic attitudes and practices of the members of the citizens of the kingdom. The willingness to do more than mere duty demands, the willingness to share more than the desire to hold, the willingness to obey the law of love rather than the law of hate—this is the spirit of those who are members of this kingdom of love and good will.

The Ideal of the Citizens of the Kingdom.

"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." Perfection in the sense of completeness is to be our goal. Sainthood is not an elective but a required subject in the school of the Kingdom. We are to accept as our goal nothing short of being God-like in character and conduct. We cannot achieve our goal all at once. Indeed it is a progressive goal. Those of us who are professed followers of him who spake as never man spake in this platform of the Kingdom are to seek to grow unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. "Is it Christ-like?" is the question which we must ask ourselves concerning our attitudes and our conduct. It is high and we cannot attain unto it, but it is the only way. We cannot do more; we dare not do less. And he who is our Ideal, is also our Helper.

THE UPPER ROOM.

(Continued from page 10.)

May none remain lonely and hungry of heart among us. Let none go hence without the joy of new friendships. Give us more capacity for love and a richer consciousness of being loved. Overcome our coldness and reserve, that we may throw ajar the gates of our hearts and keep open house this day. Lift our human friendships to the level of spiritual companionship. May we realize thee as the eternal Lord of our unity. Shine upon us from the faces of the servants, that in loving them, we may be praising thee. Teach us to lose the life thou hast given us. Teach us how to make our lives large through sympathy, rich through loving, great through service. Teach us to walk in the footsteps of Jesus Christ, wherever he may lead. May our prayer ever be (solo voice):

Silently now I wait for thee
Ready, my God, thy will to see;
Open my eyes, illumine me,
Spirit divine!

Soft music as response.

Prayer benediction.

On Friday night, there was a picture interpretation of Henry Stanley Todd's picture, "The Nazarene," and the service based on the thoughts of Jesus. The following lines bring a message to us:

No picture likeness of my Lord have I
He carved no record of his ministry on wood or stone;
He left no sculptured tomb or parchment dim
But trusted for all memory of him.

J. EVERETTE NEESE.

Pres. N. C. and Va. Conf. Youth Fellowship.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black. Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps . . . . . $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold . . . . . $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold . . . . . $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools . . . . . 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

Prayer—Let light shine on our path today. Amid practical problems very complicated, amid questions of right and wrong very confused, thy children cry for light. Help us to bring a little sanity into the madness of this world. May the touch of Christ upon our spirits make us wise enough to make the world a little wiser.

Strengthen us, we beseech thee, to bring new courage to those whose lives move near our own, an unconquerable faith that despite the bewilderments of this present time love can conquer hate, peace rise triumphant over war, justice prove more powerful than greed, and the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ.

Break up the fountains of the great deep of charity in our spirits. Warm our hearts and dedicate our minds that through many opening channels our philanthropy may pour forth in a steady stream to all who want. So great, we pray thee, that coming in need we may go in strength to the praise of the name of Christ.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

BEAUTY FOR GAS TANKS.

"One thing . . . will I seek after . . . to behold the beauty of Jehovah."—Read Psa. 27:1-6.

A new search for beauty is springing up in the world, a desire to beautify common things. We are painting our kitchen utensils in harmonious colors. We are decorating our bathrooms most artistically.

The Bible makes much of the beauty of religion. The Creator of all natural loveliness is our God and Father. There is to be nothing ugly and forbidding in our thought of him. If his church is not a thing of delight, it is not his true church. We go to his Book for beauty, and prayer drives all that is not comely out of our lives.

Prayer—Make all our days exquisite with thy presence, O God. Give this world the charm that we shall find in the next.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

WEDNESDAY.

THE POWER OF GOD.

"Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."—Luke 23:34.

These words were among the last words of our Saviour and were uttered from the cross. They are the most significant words of Christ's entire ministry, for they embrace the whole plan of salvation and the heart of God. They represent the power, the wisdom and the spirit of heaven in its relation to man. The power of God is said to be the force from above manifested in those spiritual wonders which transforms a heart from sin, and from a lack of Christ in the life, to a life of righteousness and to an understanding of the fullness of Christ and the glory of God.

That power lies in the reality of the cross. Had Christ exercised his power and slain his enemies for this great indignity heaped upon him it would have been a display of mob violence, and that would have been a very poor display of power; anybody could do that if only he possessed the necessary physical power. But to look upon one's enemies with love and prayer for forgiveness, and to regard their cruel treatment with endurance to death, being willing to forgive them because they knew not what they did—that is power worthy of God.

Our question: How far can we go in our every day life with the Christ love and the Christ suffering for the sake of righteousness? It was the cross that made him our Saviour, and if we can go along with him, he will make us saviours in many ways as we go along.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we would conquer evil. Thou alone through Christ our Saviour can take our sins away and fill our souls with thy power of life. We bow in humiliation and submission to thee. Do thou grant us thy spirit.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE WISDOM OF GOD.

"Christ, the power of God and the wisdom of God."—I. Cor. 1:24.

The "Wisdom of God" is that light which breaks into one's life, when, in Christ, one beholds the glory of righteousness and the horrors of sin; when he comes to love righteousness and to hate sin; and when he becomes willing to pay any price necessary to stand by his conviction.

That wisdom is within the reach of all. The wisdom of man is understood by only a few, and even the few do not understand the wisdom of some men. If the world had to be saved by the wisdom of man, how much of it would be saved? But the wisdom of God is for all, for the simple, the untutored and the childlike, as well as the more gifted minds.

Prayer—O Lord, dear Lord, empty us of all that is vain and of this world, and fill us with that which is true and eternal. Help us to do away with the vain philosophies that perplex the head and leave us in doubt or spiritually dead. Water thou our souls with thy showers from heaven. Endow us with the richness of thy love, and the welling, bubbling, incessant wisdom of thy grace. As the strong current of thy love flows may we embark upon it for the eternal shores of thy eternity.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

THINGS PREPARED FOR THE LOVER.

"Whatsoever things God prepared for them that love him."—I. Cor. 2:9.

The apostle has just been speaking of those invisible blessings which come to the heart of a man and become a reality to him when he believes and trusts the Lord—blessings which the world knoweth not of.

These words of Paul seem to reflect Isa 65:17, which says, "Men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen a God beside thee, which worketh for him that waiteth for him."

Paul appears to be teaching that there is about the Gospel, wisdom and truth, which they, who reject him, cannot see, but which to those who accept him, there is truth, life and joy. To him who rejects Christ, no record of facts, not witness of the spirit, no entering upon his life can be had, without special action of the Holy Spirit bringing these traits home to him.

This necessary action of the spirit does not mean that there is no salvation to the unbeliever, for all men have in them the image of God, hidden away in those powers of perception, of love, of feeling, to be kind, to act righteously, and "whosoever will may come," and whosoever "cometh," saith Christ, "will in no wise be cast out."

All of which means that any soul who lays himself liable to Christ will have unveiled to him God's wisdom, his love and his life; thus coming into the knowledge of the whole gift of salvation. God has, through his only begotten Son, prepared all this, and much more for those that love him.

Prayer—Our Father, we know that the ordinary faculties of man receiveth not the things of the Spirit. We are altogether unfit to be called thine. Of ourselves we cannot perceive spiritual truth. Of thee we believe we may be able to see thy way and follow thee. Grant unto us thy spirit; give us spiritual apprehensions of truth, life, thee and eternity. Thus we pledge our faith to thee forever.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE BEST CURE.

"Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ."—Gal. 6:2.

"Judge not that ye be not judged."—Matt. 7:1.

"Forgive and it shall be forgiven."—Luke 6:37.

"Be of one mind and have compassion one of another."—I. Peter 3:8.

Arnold Bennett says, "The best cure for worry, depression, melancholy, brooding, is to go deliberately forth and try to lift, with one's sympathy, the gloom of somebody else. Let both those who can and those who cannot do good works, make a practice of benevolent thought."

Let all think kindly of others; never criticize them, never condemn, never judge; on the contrary, let all condone, excuse, justify, seek to comprehend, seek to put themselves in the place of others. This mental attitude has to be perseveringly cultivated. It cannot be adopted by mere good resolutions."

Prayer—O Lord, God, thy word brings us close into thy presence and thy Spirit. We would be more like Christ. O thou who dost rule all things, rule thou us in all we do and say.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

EYE TO EYE WITH GOD.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

Only the spiritual eye can see spiritual truth. This explains why God is not real to everybody, and is so real to some. Dr. Sloan Coffin says it is like sound waves upon the body. These waves fall upon all parts of the body but only our ears hear them. It is something in the ear, then, that makes hearing possible. Likewise, we will say, color-waves reach all parts of the body alike, but only the eyes see the colors. It is something in the eye that sees color. So it is with a soul, it must be endowed with a power to see spiritual things. This endowment Jesus called the new birth, "Ye must be born again."

But how can we be born again if it is true that we must first have spiritual eyes to see the spirit? It is like saying we must be Christians before we can be Christians. Let us not forget that God is already in man from the foundation of the world. Music is basically in one before he can be a musician, and friendliness must be in one before he finds friendship. That innate kinship to God is the power to know the Divine, to quote Coffin, when the light of his face shines upon us. Only he who rejects Christ and refuses to allow the light of God in his soul is lost without hope.

Prayer—Dear Lord and Father, we pray to thee for light and life, and the glory of God in us this day. In Christ's name we ask it.—Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

OUT OF THE WOODS WITH JESUS!

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"Arise; let us be going."—Mark 14:42.

Out of the woods my Master went,
 And he was well content.
 Out of the woods my Master came,
 Content with death and shame.
 When death and shame would woo him last
 From under the trees they drew him last;
 'Twas on a tree they slew him—last!
 When out of the woods he came.

—Sidney Lanier.

Within the last two weeks I have hastily read about thirty sermons. They have filled me with thinking about God and folks. In that same time I have carefully read seventy-three chapters from the Bible. And they have filled me with a desire to carry my people back to where I have been: the Cross of Christ. A new age is full of an old need: Jesus! Many things have been tried, and are being tried, but standing above them all is the Cross of Christ.

"Towering o'er the wrecks of time."

And not only will the history of nations, but the biography of the soul will encircle the Cross.

"Arise: let us be going." How little preparation the three disciples to whom those words were addressed by Jesus had made for that going! Jesus had been preparing for it. Three times had he gone into the "woods" of Gethsemane in prayerful preparation for the journey he was about to begin. Little the disciples had done to help, but he did not blame them, he blessed them with the privilege of going on with him. He realized that he was going to the Cross for them, and that eventually, empowered with his mercy and love, they would go to the ends of the earth for him. "Arise: let us be going."

I.

"Into the wood my master went." And with what a great sorrow did Jesus go into Gethsemane! (Lam. 1:12.) "Behold, and see if there is any sorrow like unto my sorrow, which is done unto me." It was not his own sorrow, but one "which was done unto him"; a sorrow laid upon him, so crushing and mighty that it bore him down with bloody sweat upon his brow.

The other day I stepped in the hospital to call on some friends, just as I entered the door I saw in the reception room a father and mother simply breaking under the load of sorrow. Five sons they had reared, already death had taken its bitter toll of three of them, and now the fourth was helplessly dying with a bullet wound inflicted while serving as a policeman at his post of duty. It was a sorrow which was "done unto them"—not one of their own inflicting. And it was a very great sorrow. But there was never sorrow like the sorrow of Jesus as he went into Gethsemane to suffer for others. (I. Peter 2:21.) "Christ suffered for us . . . who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth."

What a load he carried bearing the sins of the world on his back (I. John 2:2). "For he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world" (John 4:29). "Behold, the lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world." It used to be in olden times that "Aaron should lay his hands on a live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel (but on Jesus the iniquities of the whole world, and for all time), and all their trespasses and all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat (but now putting them on Jesus), and shall send him away by the hand of a fit man (but now the hand of Judas an unfit man) into the wilderness; and the goat (and Jesus) shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited ("Into the woods my Master went"): and he shall let the go the goat in the wilderness" (Lev. 16:21, 22).

God forbid that we should read that story, or recite it again while still thinking it was far away and for others! It is well enough to know its historicity in the pages of humanity, but it is something else to accept its hope for the recesses of our own sinful hearts; it is well enough to look upon it as something far away, but it is better still to take it home to ourselves and find it "nearer than hands and feet." We should not be content, and God forbid that we shall, to say and see that he was bearing the sins of Judas; the negligence of Peter, James and John; and the iniquities of the priests and people who were seeking to crucify him, but rather let us by faith know (I. Peter 2:24), "His own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sin, should live unto righteousness; by whose stripes we were healed."

II.

"Out of the woods my Master came." "Arise: let us go." Into the woods for you, and me: and out again! Out of the dark, out of the night, out of the doubt, out of the despair. Like a great Dane dog in search of a lost child—into the woods, and storm, and night—and eventually his shrill bark, and hasty return tells the searching, anxious parent the child is found, and driving a path ahead through the darkness with his sense of smell and his instinct of direction, with the parent close on his heels the rescue is made—and then, "Out of the woods!"

Thus may we see Jesus coming out of the "woods" with trophies just as precious, and triumphs just as great. For a transaction was fixed there for you and me—and it was achieved on the Cross! (Col. 2:14.) "He forgave us all our misdeeds, canceled the bond which stood against us with its requirements, and put it out of the way when he nailed it to the Cross" (Goodspeed).

"Out of the woods he came," with something you and I cannot bear, namely, our own sins! Beneath all our profession of piety, beneath the sham of seeming, is a consciousness of powerlessness which bears us down. We can rid ourselves of this by accepting the fact that Jesus bore our sins upon the Cross; that he blots them out forever; and that he has the power of the victorious life for all who come unto him. Yes, you say, but I do come unto him, and I still feel weak and undone. I do not feel the hilarious joy which I know should be mine in Christ Jesus. Have you come all the way? Have you really repented of every sin, with a sorrow which forbids your returning to a single one of those sins? We cannot achieve this never-returning-to-those-sins of ourselves, but if we mean business, Jesus will gladly achieve this victory for us. Victory is lost in procrastination, compromise, and half-heartedness.

Is it not our heart-hungering cry that Christ Jesus will bring us "out of the woods"? That he will bring our church, our nation, our very times, out of the woods! Not until we quit compromising with evil; not until we begin to yield to the "still small voice within;" not until we stop professing piously and acting evilly—not until we come fully and truly unto him can he lead us out of the woods.

Have not we overlooked something very vital and necessary? Jesus in preparing his disciples for his departure assured them that it was not exactly a departure—"that he would not leave them orphans"—for he would send the Holy Spirit who would teach them, and lead them. Have we not been all too willing to glorify the Holy Child of an ancient era, to the forgetting of the Holy Spirit of here and now? Through the Holy Spirit Jesus is "with us always even unto the end of the ages." The coming of the Holy Spirit was tremendously emphasized by Jesus as an absolute prerogative to Christian performance in the early church. Have not we too overlooked, or side-stepped the Holy Spirit in the

(Continued on page 14.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim. . . . . 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. . 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85. . . 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. . 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim. . . . . $ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim. . . . . 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined. . . . . 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We are very happy that our income for 1934 has started off so nicely. We are more than half-way to our first thousand dollars (the first rung in our ladder to our goal). Let every one see how much they can help us climb on up this year.

We have one little girl in the hospital, the result of an operation for appendicitis. She is doing nicely.

We have one case of pneumonia—a little girl 7 years old. She is much improved at this time.

Our head matron in the "Baby Home" is in the hospital and will be confined there for several weeks.

You can readily see that we have our troubles and anxious moments in this work. We are afraid of pneumonia. It does its work so quickly. We cannot shake off the responsibility. When one of our children gets sick it gets the best of attention, so if anything should happen we can feel all was done that could be done for it. Being a father to nearly 100 children carries quite a responsibility.

We want to get every Sunday School this year to make monthly offerings to support the Orphanage. The North Carolina and Virginia Conference came very near to being a 100 per cent Conference during 1933. Every church and Sunday School in the Conference gave something except one, during the year. We did our best to persuade that church to make a Thanksgiving offering, but it failed us. The Western North Carolina Conference was a close second.

We are going to offer a prize for the year 1934. We are going to give to the President of the Conference that comes nearest to being a 100 per cent Conference in Sunday School monthly offerings and Thanksgiving offerings, the best Stetson hat we can buy—not to exceed $10.00. Every Conference has an equal chance. If you feel proud of the President of your Conference, make him happy by getting every Sunday School on the monthly giving list in your Conference, and at Thanksgiving see that all the churches and Sunday Schools make a Thanksgiving offering for your Orphanage. If two or more Conferences come up a 100 per cent, then the President in each Conference will get a hat of equal value. Let us all get to work.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR JANUARY 25, 1934.

Brought forward .....	$ 188.05
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Greensboro, Palm St. ....	$ 6.00
Ingram .....	6.00
	12.00
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Wentworth .....	$ 5.90
Turner's Chapel .....	.82
Western North Carolina Conference:
Ether .....	$ 1.17
Pleasant Ridge .....	2.07
Shiloh .....	1.00
Pleasant Cross .....	1.48
High Point .....	3.35
Pleasant Union .....	1.25
Pleasant Hill .....	3.67
Burlington .....	27.00
	40.99
Eastern Virginia Conference:
First, Richmond .....	$ 4.61
Spring Hill .....	1.09

Cypress Chapel .....	5.42
Barrett's .....	.50
Wakefield .....	2.24
	13.86

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Leaksville .....	$ 1.40
Dry Run .....	6.35
Antioch .....	12.76
Bethlehem .....	3.60
	24.11

Alabama Conference:
Wadley .....	1.00

Special Offerings.
Sale of ducks .....	$ 1.25
A friend .....	6.00
Mr. T. L. Chandler, Durham, N. C. ....	3.00
Mr. J. C. Peale, Franklin, Va. ....	10.00
Alamance County .....	45.00
	65.25

Thanksgiving Offerings.
Valley of Virginia Conference:
Bethlehem .....	3.17

Endowments.
Lawrence S. Holt Endowment Fund....	150.00
Total for the week .....	$ 317.10
Grand total .....	$ 505.15

Habitually he looked at people in terms of their possibilities. He valued men not at all for what they possessed, not primarily for what they had done, not even for what they were, but most of all for what they might become. Many people, noting this attitude of Jesus, ascribe it to kindness, but that misses the mark. It was not primarily kindness, but insight.—Harry E. Fosdick.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

life of the modern Christian, and in the movements and programs of the modern church?

It is too late for me to prophesy a re-emphasis of the teaching and practicing the presence of the Holy Spirit, for it has already begun to come. Time-honored men of God in the forefront of battle, and young students in countless colleges and universities, are feeling the need of a new appreciation, the acceptance of the abiding Presence. To the Holy Spirit they look for daily guidance, and a new sharing of his power is being observed in many quarters. Will we not then turn regularly to our Bibles and to the act of praying, as Jesus requested, for the gift from the Father of the Holy Spirit? Then truly will be achieved in our own lives the coming out of the woods with Christ.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN ON THE BIBLE.

"I come to present to you the Bible as the Word of God, and to protest against the enemies, open and secret, who would lift man from his knees, take from him his faith in God, and withdraw from his life the restraining influence of a belief in immortality.

"The bright spots in my life are the days in which I learned that I had been a help in bringing men back to God. There is more happiness in bringing souls back to God than in three presidential nominations.

"There is not a thing that a wicked heart wants to do that an intelligent brain can not find a reason for doing. The higher critics who are trying to please such men are attempting the impossible task of suiting the Bible to a skeptical brain."

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized version—Self-Pronouncing      The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5.      Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-per'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31.  CHAP. 4. <small>Isa. 9. 1, 2. Lu. 4. 21.</small>	934 CHAPTER 5.  3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.  AND seeing the multitudes; he went up into a moun-
---	--	---

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
<small>With Helps as described above. Size 4½x6¾ inches. One inch in thickness</small>
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5.      Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup> The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gál'lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.  Is. 9. 1, 2. Is. 43. 7. Lu. 2. 32. Mark 1. 14.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
---	--	--

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
 A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above .....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES

CLEMENTS.

Mrs. Annie Estella Lynn Clements, wife of Deacon E. W. Clements, of Morrisville, N. C., was born January 5, 1875, and was called home November 17, 1933, age 58 years, 9 months and 12 days. She was united in marriage to E. W. Clements, February 20, 1895. She united with the church in early childhood, and has lived a consistent Christian life all these years. Her highest ambition was to be a good mother in the rearing of here children. There were six children given to her for whom she lived as a devoted mother—three sons and three daughters: Staley, Ralph, Helen, Edith, Rebecca and Milton, who bear testimony to their mother's devotion and loving care throughout her life.

Their love and devotion to their mother only reflects the spirit of the mother who poured out her soul for them in loving sacrificial service. They can truly call her blessed, and in her they shall have a blessed memory and example of beautiful motherhood.

The funeral service was conducted by Dr. W. C. Wicker, her former pastor and a personal friend of the family, assisted by her present pastor, Rev. J. S. Carden. Many friends attended the service from Raleigh and Durham to express their sympathy for the family. The floral designs were beautiful and significant of the life she lived. The selections of Scripture, and songs, and poems used at the service were fitting for the character and spirit of her in whose memory they were used. The interment was made in the family cemetery of the deceased.

Life's labor done,
Life's blessings all enjoyed,
Serenely to her final rest she passed,
While the soft memories of her virtues yet
Linger like twilight hues, when the bright sun is set. W. C. W.

MOORE.

L. C. Moore was born August 11, 1867, and died November 21, 1933. Age 66 years, 3 months and 10 days. He was the son of Joseph and Mary Moore. When a young man he married Miss Rosa Noblin, of Granville County, N. C., who, with two sons, Joseph and Clarence, and seven grandchildren, survive him. In addition to these, there are two sisters, Mrs. Johnny Williamson, of Nelson, Va., and Mrs. Hiram Farlines, of Virgilina, Va.

Brother Moore had been a member of Hebron Christian Church since a young man. For more than fifteen years he was church clerk, and on several occasions represented his church in general church gatherings. He was a quiet man in manner, devoted as a husband and father, useful in church and community, and ever ready to help a neighbor.

The burial was at Grassy Creek, Granville County, N. C., by the Masonic fraternity, of which he had been a member for years. The funeral was conducted by the writer and Rev. Mr. Teague, of the Baptist Church. A large crowd of relatives and friends was present and with bowed heads and saddened hearts they covered over his grave with rare and beautiful flowers, and then turned away with the feeling that loved one and friend had entered upon that rest that remains for the people of God.

C. E. NEWMAN.

RESOLUTIONS.

Dr. Elwood W. Jones and his wife, Mrs. Grace Jones, came to the Franklin Christian Church in December, 1931. From the beginning of Dr. Jones' pastorate, Mrs. Jones took an active part in church and Sunday School work and assumed the leadership of the Cradle Roll Department. She was untiring in her work until illness prevented. On October 20, 1933, God in his infinite wisdom, saw fit to take her and relieve her of her sufferings. She was a devoted wife, a kind neighbor and a loyal Christian.

The deacons tender the following resolutions:

- 1. That we, as a church and Sunday School, have sustained a great loss.
2. That we hereby give expression to our feelings of sorrow and our appreciation of her life.

3. That we extend our deepest sympathy to her husband, daughter, sister and parents, and pray God's richest blessings upon them in their bereavement.

4. That these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of the church, a copy sent to her family, and a copy be sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

- E. L. BEALE,
W. H. JONES OF "A",
J. A. WILLIAMS,
L. R. JONES,
L. B. NORFLEET,
E. J. PONES,
R. H. HARRELL.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE . . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year . . . . . $2.00
- Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas our heavenly Father has seen fit to take from our midst our beloved Brother M. M. Martin, and inasmuch as we, the remaining members of the High Point Christian Church and Sunday School, realize our loss, and desire that our records bear permanent testimony of the character and stewardship of our brother; now, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That in the passing Brother Martin the church has sustained a heavy loss.
2. That his consistent love and loyalty toward God, the church and his fellowman made him an outstanding member in his church and community.
3. That we bow submissively to the will of an all-wise Father, whose love is everlasting.
4. That we, who remain, labor ever more earnestly to carry on the work our brother loved so well.
5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, copies to "The Christian Sun" and "High Point Enterprise" for publication, and a further copy be transcribed to the permanent records of the church.

MRS. D. L. WOODALL,
B. P. MOFFITT,
J. L. DEVER.

SINE.

Jacob H. Sine was born March 18, 1862, and died November 25, 1933. He had reached the good old age of 70 years, 8 months and 7 days.

For many years he and a brother, Charley, and sister Jennie, lived together at Hawkinstown, and I enjoyed stopping with them occasionally. One by one they have gone down the valley of death—Jacob being the last. All were faithful members of Palmyra Christian Church, though they seldom could attend. The funeral services were held at Hawkinstown U. B. Church, November 27, 1933.

A. W. ANDES.

JOHNSON.

On November 13, 1933, God in his infinite love, saw fit to remove from our midst one of our beloved members, Mrs. Sarah Harris Johnson. She was a devoted wife, loving mother, and a loyal member of the Waverly Christian Church and Ladies' Aid Society.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society tender the following resolutions: deepest sympathy, and we point others to the faithful Christian life she lived.

1. While we regret and mourn our loss, we humbly submit to the will of him who doeth all things well.
2. That the influence of this good woman will linger with us, and make more real the loving Father whom she has served so faithfully.
3. That we extend to her family our
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, one to "The Christian Sun," for publication, and one be placed in the minutes of our society.

MRS. O. C. OSBORNE,
MRS. J. J. LITTLE,
MRS B. E. WHITE,
Committee.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN
JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1934.

NUMBER 5.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

No Such Word As Russia.—

Robert Ripley, on his return from a visit to the Soviet Republic, divulges quite a few "Believe It Or Nots" in a current magazine article. Among others he declares that "there is no such word as Russia. It is Soyus Sovietskikh Sotsialisticheskikh Respublik, which we call Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and indicate with the letters U. S. R. R." He adds that these republics consist of 180 different nationalities, who speak about 150 different languages.

Brothers' Ball Team.—

The town of Vandergrift, located in Westmoreland County, Pa., boasts a semi-professional baseball team. We are told that it is a very successful team and might well attract a crowd by its superior brand of baseball. There is said to be, however, another reason for its popularity. This team is composed entirely of one family—all of the players are brothers, and three of their youngsters serve as mascots and bat boys. At least half of the ten Spaniel brothers can pitch, and most of them can play several positions. They are well known on the playing fields of their native State.

It Pays to Read the Bible.—

The above is not news to the Christian, but an odd incident is the cause of the Boston Transcript recently reiterating this statement. "The oddest thing we've read lately," it says, "is that the discovery of the Standard Oil wells in Egypt resulted from a tip given in Exodus 2:3." The quotation referred to says: "She took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch . . . and laid it in the flags by the river's bank." A director of the company, reading this passage, was struck with the idea that where there was pitch there probably would also be oil. Acting upon this, a search was made, and now on the ground near where Moses was born are a number of oil wells.

First Trans-Atlantic Airline.—

Some time ago mention was made on this page of the formation of a German air-transport company with the intention of undertaking Trans-Atlantic service. This airline, the Lufthansa, is scheduled to begin operations during the present week, carrying mail from Germany to South America. Land and sea planes will cover the distance each way in five days, flying from Berlin, by way of France and Spain, to British South Africa; thence across the Atlantic to Brazil. As stated before, there is stationed at the half-way point in the Atlantic a "floating island," fitted with radio and special equipment for weather forecasting, care of planes, etc. The "island" is a converted steamship.

Drink and Child Mortality.—

On the subject of drink and child-mortality a recent issue of the Methodist Protestant Herald has the following comments to make: "Investigations by Dr. Teav, university professor of hygiene in Finland, of the drinking habits of 5,736 parents of 19,515 children, show that among abstainers there was a child mortality of 13.45 per cent; among moderate drinkers, 23.17 per cent, and among heavy drinkers, 32.32 per cent. And the Austrian investigation by Herr Kickh shows that the mortality of children under one year totaled 18.6 per cent in abstainers' families, and 36 per cent in the families of drinkers." Certainly there can be no stronger plea made for the cause of abstinence.

Wool as Strong as Gold.—

When the writer was a small boy, he enjoyed visiting his grandparents in the Piedmont section of North Carolina. Among other interesting things on their thousand-acre farm was a flock of sheep. It was not a large flock, but it was large enough that each year the wool was clipped and sent to the nearby town of Leakesville. And back came just the softest, warmest blankets that one could imagine. The writer has a pair now that his grandmother gave him more than twenty-five years ago. The farmers who have flocks of sheep probably know more about wool than he does, but one wonders if they know that there are over two hundred kinds of knitting yarns, ranging from the heavy, and coarse yarns used in making their sweaters to the tiny strands of Angora yarn used in the making of an infants soft garments. A contemporary writer tells us: "The art of blending wools to produce a fine knitting yarn for a particular purpose takes years of experience, just as the dying is the outcome of the very latest researches in the chemical laboratory." He continues: "Wool fibre weighs less than any other textile fibre of the same dimensions, so that wool is light to wear. It is remarkably elastic, for a fibre can be stretched over 70 per cent of its original length without breaking and will immediately return to its former length when released." A woolen garment is very strong. This can be readily understood when it is known that a single hair of wool, only two or three thousandths of an inch in diameter, will stand the same tensile strain as a strand of gold of the same diameter. Some wool is said to be so fine that an ounce of it, if made into a single strand, would measure a hundred miles or more.

The Dollar Revaluation Plan.—

The President's "Dollar Revaluation Plan" has passed both houses of Congress, with minor changes, and will more than likely have received his signature before this is put in print. Carter Glass, Senator from Virginia, led the forces attempting to limit or materially change the bill. He was supported by several conservative Democrats and nearly the entire Republican constituency, but was overwhelmed in the final vote. "The bitterest criticism of the bill, says the Literary Digest, "had little to do with the fiscal strategy of the President's recommendations. It expended itself on their moral aspects." It quotes papers from various sections including the Charleston News and Courier, which says, as we all know, "Devaluation of the gold dollar is impossible without violation of existing contracts to pay debts in gold dollars of a defined weight and fineness." Another phase of turpitude occurs to the Denver Post: "The proposal that the Secretary of the Treasury be authorized to use up to $2,000,000,000 of gold speculating in gold, foreign exchange and government securities, both in the United States and abroad, is one of the most amazing turns the New Deal has taken. For a nation which has such a terrible hang-over from a debauch of individual speculation to even think about embarking upon a gigantic program of international money gambling is the limit." This is now water over the dam, and moral aspects seem at the present time to weigh little, anyway. From a fiscal standpoint, even the country's conservatives appear to be glad that the President has done something definite. Roger Babson is quoted as saying that "President Roosevelt's plan, as a compromise, should receive the approval of business, providing he stops experimenting now." "From the conservative press," says the Digest, "there has ascended a sigh of relief." It gives the following resume of the bill which has just passed: The President's recommendations fall under three main heads. First, he asks that Congress vest in the Government 'title to all supplies of American-owned monetary gold,' after payment to its owners . . . $20.67 an ounce, the statutory price. Secondly, he would have Congress fix the upper limit at which he is permitted to revalue the dollar at 60 per cent of its gold content, leaving the lower limit, as at present, at 50 per cent. Thirdly, he urges that the Secretary of the Treasury be empowered to create out of the profits of revaluation . . . a fund of $2,000,000,000 with which to buy and sell gold at home and abroad and deal in foreign exchange and government securities." As said above, the program as outlined, was passed by both houses of Congress, and has by this time become law. Regardless of the results it will have upon the domestic market, it seems now that a currency war with England will be the outcome, unless a speedy agreement can be come to as to the relative value of the pound and the dollar.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES

Don't worry if your job is small
And your rewards are few;
Remember that the mighty oak
Was once a nut like you.—Ex.

Congratulations, Dr. J. U. Newman. We know that the readers of THE SUN will join us in wishing you many happy returns of your birthday.

The eleventh commandment is probably "Thou shalt not envy." One may try not to, but it is hard for the publishing staff of THE SUN not to wish that they might share the balmy weather of Florida with its editor for the past three days.

The Annual is being completed this week, and will be sent to the secretaries of the various Conferences within the next few days. It has been delayed somewhat in an effort to get in pertinent information, but could not be held longer on that account.

On page seven of this issue is an article which was sent in some time ago by the editor, but has not been printed heretofore because of lack of space. It is from the pen of the late lamented Dr. W. W. Staley, and can be read with profit by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Carlton, who now live at Paces, Va., with their sister, Mrs. Nannie Carlton Parrott, of Newnan, Ala., were visitors in Richmond during the past week. We are always glad to see them. Mr. and Mrs. Carlton have been much missed by the Richmond Church since they moved from the city.

Rev. J. G. Truitt, in the "Suffolk Christian Church Bulletin," makes announcement that they have raised to date on the Elon College Fund, $549.90. He adds: "We need $117.10 to bring us to the goal of $667.00. Have you made your offering through the College envelopes yet? Make it today, or next Sunday. Suffolk should make it $1,000.00." Here's hoping that Suffolk will. What's your church doing?

The returns from the "Special Offer" which has appeared for the month of January, have been held over until the February 8th issue of THE SUN, as this issue is necessarily on the press before the time limit expires. The label on the outside of your paper will not show the change in date of expiration until next week. This is also due to the month of February coming in on Thursday (publication day for THE SUN).

A WORD OF APPRECIATION.

Permit me this brief word of appreciation for what has been done in behalf of our Elon Orphanage during the past year. In view of the terrific strain through which we have been passing economically, I feel that $17,000.00, plus, has been a splendid achievement.

Will it be in order for one who has had only a very modest share in keeping Elon College going during these trying times, to express the hope that the minimum goal of $25,000.00 set for the months of January and February be more than realized?

P. S. SAILER.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

A FRESHMAN'S IMPRESSION OF ELON.

I entered Elon last fall with high hopes and ambitions. I had long looked forward to the day when I should enter college. Now I have even higher hopes and ambitions, thanks to my experience here during the past four months.

I was completely at sea when I started out to register. I had an idea that college professors were hard, cold creatures. This idea soon vanished. Everyone seemed to be anxious to help me in straightening out my course. Everyone was busy, but never too busy to give information to freshmen.

I knew only a few students, but everyone spoke. The feeling of coldness soon left me, and I began to enter into friendship with other students. Soon it began to seem to me that Elon was just one large family, of which I was a member. I have been here only one semester, yet I feel as if I would be out of place in any other college. I believe that the other freshmen share such a feeling with me.

What was a college class like? This question had long preyed on my mind. I had an idea that one merely sat up straight and listened to professors lecture or probably give a test. This conception likewise soon vanished. My professors appear to be desirous of our entering into sensible discussion. They seem to want to help us all they can, to want us to do good work. They seem to take a personal interest in each of the students and are always willing to discuss any problem with us.

There seems to be an atmosphere at Elon that combines work with happiness. The students are happy as they go about their college activities. In such an environment we freshmen soon become content.

Fellowship with the students is a great asset to anyone. Elon promotes good fellowship. There are students here who are friendly and popular with everyone although when they first entered this institution they seemed to desire to be left entirely alone.

Above all there is a Christian spirit found at Elon that does not prevail at all institutions of higher learning. Religious activities play an important role in a student's life. We go to Sunday School and church just as we did before leaving home. I was talking with a friend the other day who is attending a State institution of higher learning. He informed me that he seldom arose before noon on Sunday. I am very thankful that Elon has not allowed us to form any such habits.

In conclusion, I wish to say that my first ambition here was to complete one year's work, but now my goal is to graduate from this institution.

LEON NEWMAN.

RACE RELATIONS SUNDAY.

The twelfth annual observance of Race Relations Sunday falls on February 11, 1934. The special message for the day, issued by the Department of Race Relations of the Federal Council of Churches, through whom the day was initiated, emphasizes justice to racial minority groups in national recovery plans. "The spiritual and moral values so essential to national recovery cannot be realized when the material advantages are offered to members of one race and denied to those of another," states the keynote of the message.

A special call to the Christian Churches urges them to foster advancement in race relations by the prevention of discriminations threatened or taking place under any of the recovery measures and to work for unequivocal demand for equal opportunity for all without regard to race, creed or color. This theme will be carried by radio stations throughout the country, in the interracial exchanges of pulpits, speakers and choirs in hundreds of churches and other religious organizations. Special mass meetings, interracial dinners and exhibits will be featured in many communities during a week of special interracial events.

A leaflet has been issued by the Department, giving helpful suggestions for a church service, programs for women's societies, for students, for young people, and for children's groups. Up-to-date information on Negroes, Indians, Mexicans and Orientals furnishes data for speakers.

"With the resurgence of lynching and mob violence," said Dr. George E. Haynes, Executive Secretary of the Department, "and the many human injustices which are perpetrated against racial minority groups including discrimination in economic and social life, the observance of this day in 1934 by churches and other religious agencies is a time for special emphasis on the power of good and the forces of law to overcome evil and lawlessness."

SOME ONE HAD PRAYED.

The day was long, the burden I had borne

Seemed heavier than I could bear;
And then it lifted—but I did not know
Someone had knelt in prayer.

Had taken me to God that very hour,
And asked the easing of the load, and he,
In infinite compassion, had stooped down
And taken it from me.

We cannot tell how often as we pray
For some bewildered one, hurt and distressed,
The answer comes—but many times those hearts
Find sudden peace and rest.

Some one had prayed, and faith, a reaching hand,
Took hold of God, and brought him down that day!

So many, many hearts have need of prayer—
Oh, let us pray.

—Grace Noll Crowell.

LIVING OR DEAD?

Sometimes I wonder if we are like the fig tree Jesus saw as he went to the temple on the Monday in April before he was crucified on Friday. The tree was supposed to bear figs, but it didn't. It appeared to be living, but it was dead. Monday it looked green, but Tuesday it was wilted. The only difference was the leaves. Why have green leaves on a dead tree? It does not deceive the Master.

Young people may well study this parable, and then think of the fruits of their own lives. Are we really doing the Christian things, or are we just talking about doing them? I am asking you, not telling you.

NOTICE.

I am selling Magazine subscriptions "to help along," and will appreciate handling your RE-NEWALS. Do any of your Magazines expire soon? If so, you will receive Special Renewal Offer from publishers. I not only meet their offers, but allow 10 per cent further discount from any offer. Please send me your Renewals through my Agency. Here are a few of my Special Offers (New or Renewal): American or Good Housekeeping, $2.25 each; McCall's, Pictorial, Woman's Home Companion, Ladies' Home Journal, 75c each per year; Christian Herald, $1.00 per year. These Specials are net.

J. EDWIN HARRIS.

Suffolk, Va.

WORTH LIVING.

During these recent years of momentous change there have been many who have asked themselves, "Is life worth while, does it really justify the effort added burdens impose?" Having been accustomed to draw close to the window of life and enjoy the sun, the flowers, the sky, rejoicing in the beauties of a day yet to be lived, they have seen the vista suddenly changed and found themselves face to face with sorrow, and pain, and hopelessness.

The mother who in the spring of 1917 had so proudly participated in the graduating exercises of her first born—a ceremony pregnant with possibilities for great achievement—the happy moment she had so confidently prayed for since first he came into her life, a few months later awoke to find all her dreams shattered by the fragments of a death creating shell. Without her boy—her life seemed unliveable; God unloveable.

The young athlete, fresh from his victories on field and track, strong in body, vibrant in soul, faced the journey to France as a great adventure. He left joyous, sparkling, carefree, but returned home with eyes forever dimmed, and every picture he had painted of his future permanently blotted out. Sensitive, forlorn, disheartened, he groped blindly along the newly darkened pathway of life—and wondered.

The underprivileged boy—handicapped by lack of opportunity, yet blessed with the ability to overcome difficulties and a will to succeed—who made a record for valor and service so definite as to merit his country's grateful benediction of "duty well done," but who returned home with ideals so distorted, with outlook so disturbed, that restlessness displaced ambition, inertia supplanted action, vice destroyed morale, and he faced the real battle of life—hopeless at 22.

The industrialist who, through long years of labor and self denial had courageously surmounted seemingly insuperable obstacles and developed a commercial organization of immense resource and influence—the custodian of the happiness and ambitions of hundreds in his employ—rich, honest, generous, a builder of men, a creator of civic opportunities; at the height of his career—with position, wealth and the adoration of a happy family—suddenly found himself fighting a battle against economic forces, so strong, so inexorable, that humiliating disaster supplanted the success won at the expense of so much of sacrifice, so much of faith. More vulnerable because of the very greatness of his accomplishments, he looked into life's future—a failure at fifty.

The banker—courageous in his outlook in both speech and action, conservative in his judgment, giving freely of himself that the confidence in him reposed might be faithfully protected—who, without warning, found those he had trusted unable to meet their obligations, and carefully selected securities so depreciated in value, as to bring failure to the institution whose interests he had so jealously guarded, and sorrow to thousands who had believed in him. His personal losses are cheerfully borne, but his pride has been shorn of its allurements, his self-confidence has been shaken, while depreciation in the community well-being and the individual financial problems of its men and women daily add to his distress and disappointment.

So on through all the phases of life. Men here, women there, boys, girls, and even children have had their rude awakening to the realities of changed conditions and darkened outlook. Here a voice lost; there property; sight impaired, health destroyed, power disintegrated, position weakened, reputation clouded, the very necessities of life endangered, poverty, unemployment, shattered ideals, have all taken their toll of hopes frustrated; have each contributed their bit of darkness to the encompassing gloom.

And yet the very darkness augurs well for the brightness of the coming day. There is no smile quite so bright as the one moistened by tears. Souls are being reborn, ambitions rekindled; tested in the furnace of disappointment characters are being developed. Possibilities have been modified but destinies made more certain. Values have been reestimated while new goals were being developed.

As one looks through the window of life the darkness of the room behind enhances the brilliance of the living day. Life goes on to enlarged opportunities, chastened by its discouragements but more liveable because of them. The overcoming of difficulties, the superbly courageous conquering of all handicaps make men and women—and men and women make life—pulsating with faith in ultimate achievement.

Without Calvary there could have been no Christianity, and without its crosses life would be barren of those foundations upon which alone it can build a structure of realized faith.

I want to live because never were the realities of life more challenging; never its ideals and opportunities more definite. I want to live, that though I be blind physically, I may see more clearly the way and so attune my other senses to the life around me that I may walk steadily and cheerfully onward that others may safely follow the path I tread.

I want to live, that though I be discouraged I may become so courageous that disappointment merely becomes a challenge to greater effort and so encourage others that their sorrows will become their stepping-stones to real happiness.

I want to live, that though I have sinned and even committed crime I may value these acts as anti-toxins, out of the bitter experience of which have been developed a fortitude and self control which will enable me to make adequate restitution to society, by being a living example that through courage and faith a human life can be redeemed.

I want to live, that though I be a failure and the creations of my brain and industry be in ruins—I may yet meet with success in life. A success which in truth embodies courage, faith and human kindness.

I want to live, that though I be poor yet shall I be rich—rich in love, rich in the appreciation of the beautiful, and in the ability to put a true valuation upon those qualities and desires which are really worthy of possession.

I want to live, that though I be sad, my sorrow may be so controlled that it may ever urge me to bring joy to others; that I may never forget how to smile nor so to live that others will find happiness in my presence, and my own sadness thus be converted into a cheerfulness, which through its influence on life around me becomes its own panacea.

Yes, I want to live because there is work to be done, there are blessings to be enjoyed, there are harvests to be reaped, and because there is no such thing as defeat to one who really wants to sacrifice, achieve and—live.

I want to live, that through the years
I may be chastened, cleansed, and healed,
And, in my earthly pilgrimage,
See Truth revealed.

I want to live, that I may give
A helping hand, a cheering smile
To those who find their journey sad,
For yet a while.

I want to live that I may find
In sacrifice the joy complete,
And fail not, though the way be hard,
Nor know defeat.

—Selected.

WE NEVER CONSIDER THE CONDITION OF THE SHIP UNTIL THE SEA BECOMES CHOPPY.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

Mark Twain once remarked that there was more said about the weather and the least done about it of any subject discussed. It reminds us of the present widespread talk about money, a thing so universally known, and yet in theory few know but little about it. Those who claim to be experts on the question of money are largely experts in their own opinion. Students of economics are as far apart in their opinions as the two political parties are on the tariff, or as certain branches of the church are on the forms of baptism. Fortunately, the masses do not seem to take seriously the opinion of any man on the theoretical question of money, otherwise there would be widespread fear and distrust which would result in hoarding such as was never known.

Little is said about controlling money during periods of so-called good times. When money is plentiful we do not seem to be concerned about it other than to have a desire to acquire more and more of it. We are now talking about controlling the dollar. Back in the boom days, 1929 for instance, we were not trying to control the dollar; rather the dollar was controlling us. It was then and not now that the dollar destroyed us. We now discuss seriously the question of inflation. We can now see that we were in the midst of a great inflation during 1928 and 1929, yet it gave us no concern. Bootblack and banker alike, as viewed from the distance now, seemed to have no conception of values. Large sums of money were loaned on worthless stock certificates, worn-out farms, and chattels of questionable value. If the economists could tell us how to control the dollar in prosperous years they would render us a more practical service than trying to tell us how to control the dollar in lean years. If a people can be controlled by the dollar, can those same people control the dollar? The answer appears to be in the negative.

THANKSGIVING AND CHRISTMAS AT THE PARSONAGE AT RICHMOND.

Sunday morning before Thanksgiving, the pastor and his family attended Sunday School and church, which is nothing unusual. But oh! what an unusual experience they had when they returned home. On entering the dining room, our eyes beheld a beautifully decorated box, full of everything good to eat, in the middle of our dining table. For this expression of love and affection we are most grateful. But hardly had we ceased talking of our good fortune, and enjoying these good things, before we began to realize that the Christmas season was so near. On Wednesday before Christmas Day, a crate of assorted fruits, a home-made fruit cake, candy and hams came to our door. Then came fresh pork, three more hams, a nice turkey, ties, socks, hose, gifts for each of the children and last, but not least, that very necessary part of living—money. There really is a Santa Claus in Richmond.

It is needless to say that these gifts and expressions of love and good will really and truly make one want to render more and better service in the name and spirit of him who was given for us all—Jesus Christ! JOSEPH E. MCCAULEY.

The Very Reverend Ronald Mackintyre tells of a Highland shepherd accustomed to the silences of the high hills. Said he, "I canna' doubt the end, for God was at the beginning."—London Morning Post.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

IN FLORIDA.

(EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

Religion is not dead. Christianity is not asleep. The church is not paralyzed. Conversion has its place in the world, and the old story of redemption is still the new and ever living message. E. Stanley Jones, a returned missionary out of India and China is touring our country and is getting such hearings as few if any conquering heroes get. He spoke here in Orlando last Friday night, and according to the papers, the city auditorium seating 3,700 was filled to the limit, and the great audience hung upon his words for more than an hour and a half. The report of his speech made first page under large headlines in the daily.

And what was it all about? The simple story of his own conversion in a small church in Baltimore some years ago. Of how, as he knelt at the altar and prayed something came over him, and within a few minutes his desires, ambitions, outlook on life had all changed, and since that change he had been trying to let Christ have full and complete sway in his life. Of how he went out to India to bear testimony there to the saving power of his Lord, and of how he had learned the sore and deep need of India for Christ, and of how Christ could save even the lowliest and the most needy of those who walk the Indian road.

Life is defined as sensitiveness, and many in the church, professing Christians, are about as sensitive to human need as some plants in the vegetable world are. Christ was and is the highest type and form of life and so he was sensitive to every human need. And he was sensitive to the needs of the most lowly and backward human beings as he was to the most advanced. He was as sensitive to the needs of one race, creed or color as he was to any other. The preacher of this day, whether in America or in Africa, had nothing as complete and perfect and helpful to offer the people as the simple message of Christ's redeeming love. There are defects in our Christianity, but none in our Christ. Moreover America has much to learn from the Indians and the Africans. Some of the highest, best, noblest Christians today are to be found among the mystics of India, and the quiet, meditative converts of China.

Dr. Jones is telling the same sort of story—the story of Christ's power and adequacy throughout this country, and wherever he goes—North, South, East or West—the people are flocking in thousands to hear him. The man with a message of salvation still gets a hearing. Neither the subject nor the substance of religion has been relegated to the scrap-heap.

In the current (February) number of Harper's Magazine, the leading article is by a clergyman, and the topic is, "God Save the Church." The thesis of the clergyman's essay is that the church in Russia went the way of all earth, was despised and rejected because "the church (in Russia) was a vicious caricature of the Bride of Christ. It was a blasphemy. It knew no peace save the sullen, silent submission of slavery. It knew no love save of its own power." Now what the Czar and the ruling class were to Russia, such today is the economic order to present-day America. And unless the church can bring a message of relief, redemption, salvation from present conditions, conditions brought about by the overlords of industry, and the capitalists, then indeed "may God save the church" in our land also. The church is on trial and unless it can show itself a friend, a real true friend of the needy and the oppressed, its doom is sealed in America, as it now is in Russia. The preacher must realize that his calling is not a profession, but a passion, and he must cry aloud and spare not, if he is to save the church from at least temporary wreck and ruin.

"God save the church!" God will save the church, if the priests of the church will reveal in their living and in their messages the real life and saving message of their Lord.

It is beautiful and glorious in Florida now, especially to those of us who seek, and seemingly must have at this period of the year, an even temperature, and a climate that invites you out into the broad open and the fresh air at all hours of the day.

J. O. A.

CONGRATULATIONS.

On Saturday evening, January 20th, Deacon and Mrs. M. W. Hall, of our Berea Church, Great Bridge, Norfolk, Va., celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The occasion was indeed a most happy and appropriate one. Rev. Joe French, their pastor, in writing to the editor, says:

"The happiest occasion I have experienced recently was the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Martin W. Hall at Great Bridge, Saturday night. Invitations had been issued to a group of friends for the reception at their home. An entertaining program had been planned. Guy Hall, Jr., a grandson, played appropriate music at intervals during the evening. Rev. J. F. Morgan and Rev. O. D. Poythress sang some appropriate songs. Mr. M. W. Hollowell, who was a school boy with Mr. Hall, added to the joy of the occasion with some interesting and amusing events of their long friendship. The pastor had the privilege of presenting a beautiful clock to Mr. and Mrs. Hall as a gift from Berea Church in expression of appreciation for their devoted lives of service to their Lord. I also read a golden wedding poem. Mr. Morgan paid a deserved tribute of praise and honor to Mr. and Mrs. Hall for their beautiful lives in the church and community. Mrs. Earnest Waterfield, the youngest of six children, expressed in a poem the great experience that has enriched the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Hall.

"Mr. Hall united with Berea Church September 7, 1878. He was ordained a deacon November 4, 1901. Mrs. Hall has always sung in the church choir. As the children came of age every one of them united with Berea Church. Truly, Mr. and Mrs. Hall have been a joy to each other and a blessing to their children and to all who have come under the influence of their lives. The many gifts they received were an indication of appreciation.

Following is the poem by Mrs. Waterfield:

On January 17, 1884,
A beautiful ship took leave from the shore;
It rose on the swells with pleasures of life,
And sank with the billows in sadness and strife.

Her captain was handsome, kindhearted and bold,
Who weathered the storms, no matter how cold.
His mate was a lassie, as brave as was he,
So together they sailed fifty years on the sea.

Her voyage was a long one, though short it has seemed,
To the captain and mate as they sit now and dream
Of the years as they came, and the years as they went,

Thanking God each hour for the blessings he sent.
The time has now come for the good ship to land,
The voyage is over, the trip has been grand;
Her cargo she'll empty, her treasures unfold,
As now she has reached her harbor of gold.

PROHIBITION AND GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

Here is what happened after the United States voted in the Eighteenth Amendment (Statistical Abstracts U. S., 1923-1931):

Deaths from alcoholism decreased 42 per cent; alcoholic insanity decreased 66 per cent; general crime from drink decreased 54 per cent; drunkenness decreased 70 per cent; auto wrecks (per 100,000 cars), deaths, decreased 50 per cent; drinking (as admitted by the liquor forces' own figures) decreased 77 per cent.

Here is what happened in Canada under legalized liquor (Dominion of Bureau Statistics, 1928-1929):

Deaths from alcoholism increased 100 per cent; general crime increased 89 per cent; drunkenness increased 55 per cent; drunken drivers increased 830 per cent; immoral crimes (Ontario) increased 76 per cent; auto wrecks (per 100,000 cars), deaths, increased 42 per cent.

—American Issue.

TEN THOUSAND TIMES TEN THOUSAND.

Trees full of ripe, red apples grown from tiny plants; coffee trees full of white blossoms; eucalypti which were but saplings when Rev. and Mrs. Daniel A. Hastings, of Bailundo, West Africa, left on furlough, greeted them on their return to the field. "But the best of all was the steady and remarkable growth in the church membership," he declares. Lacking 18, it now totals 7,000. Since his return 188 new members have been baptized. In two more years, he prophesies, the Bailundo church will have 10,000 members. And a group of cultured and educated young Christians have grown up. No minister needs to "tone down" his sermons. Rather if he cannot bring from the store-house of spiritual things facts "new and old as well," and deliver them in the finest style, his audience will be disappointed.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF CATAWBA SPRINGS CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

By CHAS. H. UTLEY.

Some time after the close of the Revolutionary War, the people living on the south side of Swift Creek, along the old Adkin road and the adjacent territory, in Wake County, N. C., as was the custom in those days, built a union meeting house. To its pulpit all denominations were welcome, for preachers were scarce, and preaching seldom. At the close of the century there must have been less than half dozen churches in Wake County. Like the early residences of the pioneers the churches were located near springs of good water; so within easy walking distance of this pioneer Union meeting house there was a fine spring whose waters were so sweet and refreshing that already it was known to all the country round as Pleasant Spring; it is said to be one of the largest and coldest in the whole county.

Few clearings dotted the primitive forest of giant oaks. Like the Druids of our remote ancestors, here, their no less worshipful descendants found a favorite spot for prayer, reverence, and worship. The church took the name of the favorite spring. Traditions of the builders have long since perished with the memories of those heroic woodsmen, some of whom had followed Washington, while others had faced the notorious Fanning in defense of homes and families. Who the first preachers were is now unknown. But in 1802 there was organized a Christian Church. This church, too, was called by the name of the spring. Rev. Abel Olive was the minister who, the old records say, organized the church and served it as pastor for a short time, when his removal to the West closed his ministry. The names of certain persons are given as having joined in 1802, while the minutes specify that Abel Olive organized the church in 1803; the list of those joining in 1803 is also given. These dates may be reconciled in this way: perhaps in 1802 some visiting evangelist held a meeting and took the names of those who would go into the organization, but for lack of a pastor the matter ended there until the following year when Olive came and then taking the names of others at the close of a special meeting, he completed the organization. This probably solves the problem correctly.

Male members 1802—Alexander Myatt, Anthony Franks, Sr., John Utley, Jacob White, Lewis Franks, Nimrod Myatt, Jacob Utley.

Female members 1802—Patsy Myatt, Nancy Myatt, Mary Utley, Sr., Rebecca Utley Franks, Polly Myatt, Sarah Franks, Polly Deford, Francis Utley, Tilitha Utley, Mariah Utley, Anny Franks.

Male members who joined in 1803—"Little John" Utley, Anderson Taylor, Jonathan Utley, Green Austin, James Woodward, Alfred Hamilton, T. Honeycutt, Peter Pinkston, Isaiah Penny, Lewis Franks, Jr., Henderson Perry, Grey Utley, Eldridge Austin, T. Woodward, Anthony Franks.

Female members—(These are not dated for that year; in fact it was several years before the dates are given for these, which is very unfortunate.)

PLEASANT SPRING PREACHERS.

The old minutes specify that Abel Olive, who got the church on its feet in 1803, remained pastor but a short time, removing to the West. Kernodle gives no sketch of this pioneer preacher. On leaving the newly organized church he doubtless advised the calling of Rev. John Hayes, then living in Wake County; and Hayes was called, the date not given, but he continued in this relationship until 1825; the membership had grown little during his administration, for in 1832, the first year the membership was reported to the general conference, the membership was only 25. Rev. John Hayes officiated in the ordination of Little John Utley in 1822. Utley evidently belonged to the church until a few years before he died; and he succeeded Mr. Hayes as pastor and just how long his pastorate continued is not clear. However, he presided over the conferences held annually to select delegates to the general conference almost continuously until after 1850; and in 1854 he and Rev. Anthony Franks were the representatives chosen. Rev. H. B. Hayes presided over the conference in 1850 and again in 1858. But the record does not show that he was pastor, and the fact that in February, 1858, when he presided as moderator, the church adopted anew certain rules of faith and order which the general conference had recommended; and the probability is that H. B. Hayes, who was a leader, simply visited the church with a view to getting these rules adopted, and, if so, he succeeded. From the fact that J. W. Wellons presided over the conferences during 1858, 1859 and 1860, indicates that he was pastor for the three years preceding the Civil War. In 1857, the church had only 51 members, and this seems to be the last year the number of members was reported to the general conference.

REV. JOHN N. FARRELL.

Kernodle says that he was born in Chatham County about 1825, and died in Texas in 1893. Kernodle says Farrell was licensed to preach by the conference at Pope's Chapel in 1858; and was ordained in 1860; and that at the same conference the committee on itinerancy assigned him to the Cape Fear circuit, then composed of Christian Chapel, Antioch, Pleasant Spring, Wake Chapel, Pleasant Hill in Johnson, and Utley's. And this newly ordained brother, now 35 years old, had only six places to preach at. He seems to have remained the pastor for two years. Kernodle says of him, that he was pastor of Catawba Springs and Wake Chapel in 1876, removing a little later to the great State of Texas.

REV. DANIEL T. DEANES.

In the old minutes the name is spelled Deenes; and no initials are given; but the fact that the above named minister was the only man in the conference whose name fits, he was evidently the gentleman; in fact, he reported to the general conference in the fall of 1864 that he had served the Cape Fear circuit. His ministry here was during the very heat of the Civil War, when practically all the able-bodied men were in service. The remembered fruits of his labors lie buried with those who along with him struggled through those dark days of poverty, sacrifice and suffering. But such churches as Catawba Springs and Wake Chapel are the silent, but impressive monuments of men like Deanes, silent memorials, but eloquent in their silence.

REV. H. B. HAYES.

At two conferences, one in February, the other in September, 1866, H. B. Hayes presided as moderator. Kernodle says Hayes served Pleasant Spring during 1847, but the minutes make no mention of the fact. The minutes do state that from the third Sunday in August, 1847, they had a great meeting which continued eleven days and that twenty united with the church for baptism; it is also stated that during the year twelve members died or moved away. No intimation as to who held the meeting. Kernodle says in parentheses, in connection with Hayes' pastorate of one year, that, "Joseph Thomas preached here twelve months, at which time Wentworth was organized."

From the fact that Rev. Anthony Franks presided over many conferences when there seemed to be no regular pastor, the probability is that he filled most of the appointments himself. Locally he was held in the very highest esteem and carried the confidence of the whole people. He is still remembered and referred to by the children of those who were his personal friends and co-laborers in words of appreciation.

REV. WILLIAM H. FRANKS.

In August, 1867, Rev. William Franks was called and accepted the pastorate. He had always lived among his boyhood friends and playmates. He was now 44 years old, had been married 22 years, and had grown children. His education, like practically all his contemporaries, was limited, but what he lacked in educational equipment he made up in piety and upright living. His sermons were simple gospel messages, often reinforced by apt quotations of Scripture, with which long and diligent study had made him familiar. He believed in heartfelt religion, his hearers saw the man and Christian back of the message, his neighbors heard him gladly. He served the church two years as pastor, but felt he could accomplish more good elsewhere. He was a man with a fine Christian spirit, lived an unselfish, sacrificial life, and left to his children the legacy of a fine example, and they have cherished and honored his memory. In connection with the pastorate it is interesting to note that when he was called it was the first mention of calling a pastor through the 65 years of the church's history.

On the retirement of Rev. William Franks, Rev. J. N. Farrell was again called and served the church until the close of 1875. During this pastorate two things of far-reaching consequence had taken place: the church was three score and ten years old, and for the first time mentioned salary, and promised the pastor, Mr. Farrell, $75.00, and the treasurer reported that the pastor had been paid for the year closing, $50.00. But evidently the church did not find it easy to raise the salary, for at the close of the pastorate of Mr. Farrell, Rev. William Franks was again called and the salary set at $50.00.

The second important step of progress: The old church had been abandoned, a new site secured, a new house built in a much more suitable location, in a grove of fine oaks, near another good spring, and a location much more convenient to the public generally; and the name changed to Catawba Springs.

REV. W. G. CLEMENTS.

He was called to the pastorate in November, 1877, and seems to have served the church until the close of 1881. The moving of the church, the building of a new church home, intensified interest in the whole community. Mr. Clements was an educated man, a man of the people, everybody's friend. He used simple language but was a clear thinker. Perhaps he prepared his sermons with more care and diligent study than any other pastor the church had had up to this time. His ministry was popular and successful—the old heard him gladly and the young very profitably.

For many years he was County Superintendent of Schools of Wake County; and left an impression on his generation in the county only for good.

J. PRESSLEY BARRETT.

This scholarly gentleman served the church during 1882 and 1883. And this writer recalls how, as a boy, he was almost charmed by the choice language and fine phrases coming fluently and freely from a mind apparently well stored with gems of truth. Up to that time no personality in the pulpit had been seen that was so impressive, so interesting and so arresting with logical arguments and appropriate illustrations. To my wide open eyes and eager mind he pre-

(Continued on page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

For a generation the churches have emphasized the importance of money. All denominations have united in this movement. Money is useful and necessary. But "the love of money is the root of all evil" (I. Tim. 6:10). The church needs money today. The State needs money. The national government needs money.

The two principal questions before legislatures and Congress are: "How may taxes be levied?" and "How Shall the Money be Expended?" The National Congress and every State Legislature, in session, will deal with these questions during the next few months. There has never been a time, in the history of the United States, when so many people looked to the State or National Government for employment and support. Quite naturally all these employees, in a time of depression, are anxious for this condition to continue. As a result any attempt to lower taxes or discontinue any expenditure of public money meets with organized opposition.

In the State of Virginia, State schools and roads are given liberal consideration by those in authority. For several months the representatives of these departments have been considering the immediate needs to carry on the program outlined. Members of the Legislature are being flooded by letters and appeals for increased funds for these and other departments. In the midst of a financial situation which makes it difficult for individuals and business corporations to make expenses, there is a demand for increased appropriations, when there should be an effort to reduce taxes. The people who pay the taxes are entitled to as much consideration as those who are on the pay-roll of the State and National Governments. Many people have to practice strict economy to pay their taxes. Why should it be counted out of place for those who receive money from the public treasury to share in this experience?

But what has this to do with the church? Why discuss this in a church paper? Because there is a growing tendency for the individual to look to the State for financial help, and to the church for moral and spiritual leadership. The individual, in many cases, thinks the State should bear the responsibility of caring for his material needs; and when prices are low, and people are not employed, he is inclined to blame the Government for this condition. On the other hand, there are many people who regard the church as the proper custodian of moral and spiritual uplift. When lawlessness and crime and greed threaten the safety of society, the church is called to account. Both of these attitudes are based on a fallacy. Governments cannot legislate justice and prosperity. The church cannot arbitrarily guarantee moral character. Justice and prosperity rest upon individual initiative and equitable social cooperation. High moral character and spiritual power must always depend upon individual consecration, and not upon ecclesiastical decree.

Why ask the question, "What can the State do for me?" or, "Can the State give me a job?" The State does owe something to the individual. But it does not owe every man a job. If it owes some people a job, why does it not owe all people the same privilege? If it is responsible for the employment of every person, who is to pay the bill? The individual should recognize his personal duty to the State, and give as well as get. Do you expect the church to remake human society? Is the church to be held responsible for all moral depravity? Is it not time for the individual to assume his own personal responsibility for the use of his moral and spiritual opportunity?

I. W. JOHNSON.

ELON.

January and February are College months. During this period all who are interested in the larger program of the church are expected to face, together with the College authorities, the problems that confront our institution. We are to think about the College, talk about the College, pray for the College, and give for the support of the College. Perhaps not in our day have the institutions of higher learning in this country faced such uncertain conditions. According to reports made to the Association of American Colleges in annual session at St. Louis last week, there are hundreds and thousands fewer students enrolled in our institutions of higher learning in the United States than last year.

Financial income for the colleges constituting the Association has been drastically and dangerously reduced. State schools are suffering quite as much as are private or church related schools. No one seems to be certain as to what the future holds for higher education in the United States. This is by no means a comfort to us who are vitally interested in Elon College. It only makes our problem quite acute. If Elon College is to continue, it must have the generous support of the membership of the church. It is a church school, our church school, founded by our Convention for the young people of our church and for others who may desire to come. If we are to have a leadership for our church that is interested and efficient, it is necessary that we see to the training of that leadership ourselves. This was the conviction and vision of the founders of Elon College. They were not mistaken. They wrought faithfully and labored well. The fruits of their labors have been handed down to us. Our task is easier than was theirs. May we not fail in the task divinely committed to us. We do need your sympathy. Sympathy always helps. Christ looked upon a suffering world. He loved it and had compassion upon it. When an honest person representing a worthy cause battles with the odds against it, he always elicits our sympathy and we are inclined to lend our assistance. We need your interest manifested in words of commendation and evidences of cooperation in a great cause. We need your best wishes. Your expressions setting forth approval of those who lead in a great undertaking are always encouraging and helpful, but now we sorely need material assistance. Buildings must be kept comfortable, the business affairs of the College must be kept going, and the ones of us who teach and work here must have the necessities of life.

We are in the midst of the campaign for $25,000.00. This amount would greatly relieve our situation and make it possible for us to continue with honor. We are now in the midst of our campaign to raise this amount through churches and by gifts from Alumni and friends of the College. Everyone interested in Elon is greatly concerned for the success of this campaign. We are not putting an expensive organization in the field to raise this money. We are venturing one more time to put our trust in the pastors of our churches, Sunday School superintendents, and our officials. With these interested leaders rests the success or failure of this important undertaking for the College. If these pastors will interest themselves in putting the College and its needs intelligently and intellectually before their people, the chances are that those who listen will respond in this campaign. We are not asking for large amounts, but we are asking for a large number of people to give as freely and generously as possible. The amount asked for from the local church will not exceed fifty cents per member unless the church undertakes to raise its full pro rata share of the $25,000.00, which would mean approximately $1.00 per member.

By the time this paper reaches the membership, the educational period will be more than half gone. It is my hope and prayer that every official of the church may give their full and hearty cooperation. If the church could realize fully what the College has meant and how necessary it is for the continued progress of our cause, I am sure in my own mind that everyone who possibly can would give out of what he has, whether it be much or little.

My dear reader, has your church put on the College campaign? If not, will you not take it up with the leaders of your local church at once and see what can be done? The College, in her dilemma, is turning to the church with every confidence and in the full belief that the church will come to her rescue and bring whatever is necessary for her relief and continued existence.

L. E. SMITH, President.

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

I am sending this note to THE CHRISTIAN SUN by way of an appeal for aid for the old State Line Congregational Church, located on the State line highway, thirteen miles north of West Point, Ga., on the Alabama side.

The church has been practically deserted for many years. The scattered membership are endeavoring to remodel the building and otherwise take care of the property.

Two dear, faithful women have raised for this purpose $150.00. They have the new roof on the building. They have some window lights and some ceiling on hand with which to repair the interior of the building. This material is all paid for. They need two windows and about 500 feet more ceiling. These good people have been heroic in their efforts, and having practically exhausted their resources, they ask that the loyal, generous souls who desire to do a good work, send a little donation for this old landmark of our country.

A volume could be written upon the history of this old church. Some of the old pillars of Congregationalism were members here. It would mean more to the church, and be more easily done, to save this historic church than to undertake some other project.

Will not every one who reads these lines say a prayer and send a little mite, to help this needy cause? We are planning to begin service there the first Sunday evening in February, and hope to be able to carry the work regularly in the future.

I visited the community yesterday (the 24th inst.), and met some of the people who are intensely interested in the work. Just a little help from the willing hearts will put the program over.

Any contribution sent to the undersigned will be duly acknowledged and faithfully applied. "The time to favor this old church; yea, the set time is come."

G. D. HUNT.

Lanett, Ala.

WHERE THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH HAS LED By DR. W. W. STALEY.

[EDITORIAL NOTE.—The following is a characteristic presentation of a great theme in a very plain and practical way from the pen of the late, lamented Dr. W. W. Staley. It is a very timely presentation of a great theme now, though written and published in pamphlet form some fifteen years ago. In the presentation Dr. Staley, though his voice is now still, speaks a message of rich and rare inspiration to the membership of the Christian Church, for which he gave the rare talents of a great life.—J. O. A.]

"The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; the calf, and the young lion, and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them." Isaiah 11:6. It is a long way from the inquisition to the present friendly relation between denominations; and we may be the "little child" that has led, in some measure, from acrimonious divisions up to the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. To claim the least, the Christian Church has been friendly toward all other religious bodies for one hundred and twenty-five years; and that can hardly be said of any other denomination. Leadership does not depend on prestige, but on spirit and example; and the Christian Church has embodied a good spirit and exemplary history. It would be boasting to claim too much; but true history is humble as well as useful. A few lines may be presented to show where the Christian Church has led:

I. In Christian Democracy.

The Reformation was a revolt against ecclesiastical autocracy. Luther expressed what many felt, and the sixteenth century Reformation set in motion ideas that work to this day among the nations, through the churches. The Christian Movement was a further step in the direction of individual and organic freedom. That was a new day, when James O'Kelly plead for Christian liberty. It was a Patrick Henry stroke in the church for clerical and lay rights; and practically all his contentions have been adopted by the body from which he withdrew. Episcopacy is the only distinctive thing that remains, and that in modified practice. Individual and local rights are finding their way into the conscience of Christianity, and into all Christian organizations. Lay-representation, including women, is well nigh universal. Even in Episcopal bodies women are elected as delegates to official meetings. They serve on Mission Boards, Sunday School Boards, and in regular conferences and conventions. Thirty-two States now have woman's suffrage, in addition to denominational suffrage, and this grows out of co-education in which the Christian Church has led. Equality of rights for men and women has been taught by the Christian Church from the beginning of its history. There is no real democracy that excludes any member of the human family.

II. In Christian Journalism.

Permanent ideas create permanent means of propagation; and it was logical for this movement to open a new channel of reaching and informing the public. Creeds and catechisms had failed; and it had to be done through public print. It was out of this burning desire to reach the public that The Herald of Gospel Liberty, the first and oldest religious newspaper, was born in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in September, 1808. That paper was first issued by Rev. Elias Smith, is now issued weekly from Dayton, Ohio, and has been continued for one hundred and twelve years. As the Christian Church issued the first religious paper in the world, she has led in religious journalism. This paper, as the leader, has been followed by hundreds of denominational papers, and many independent religious papers. The fruit of this is what is known as the religious press. Then there is the secular press. In all great moral reforms the religious press leads and the secular press follows. The secular press did not lead in the fight for National Prohibition; but the religious press did. The religious press safeguards civic and social morals, raises the tone of political and commercial life, and quickens the religious conscience of the nation. It would be as difficult to adequately estimate the power of this first religious newspaper, as to estimate the value of the locomotive perfected by George Stephenson, whose invention now throbs in every engine throughout the railroad world.

III. In Christian Education.

The Christian Church founded Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, with Horace Mann as President, in 1852, the first college in the world to admit both sexes on equal terms. The Christian Church has, therefore, led in co-education which is essential to Christian education. To educate men, only, makes a lopsided race. Women were not even admitted to the Jewish Church on equal terms with men; but Jesus admitted women on the same terms as he admitted men. This idea of equality has grown until co-education has taken possession of the educational activities of this nation and part of Europe. The public school admits the sexes on equal terms, and all State universities, except Louisiana and Mississippi, admit women. A few years ago the Virginia Legislature spent much time and money, and many great educators delivered great addresses, and wrote great articles, discussing co-education and co-ordinate education, and finally passed it over for lack of funds. Now the Board of Visitors says the very thing I wrote for THE CHRISTIAN SUN at that time, that women have the right and have always had the right, to be admitted to the university, and they will be admitted to graduate and professional schools September, 1920. Christian education undertakes to educate the whole man—mankind—and the whole human race, and to do that under the sanction of God's Book and God's Spirit.

IV. In Christian Unity.

The rejection of human creeds, as tests of Christian fellowship and church membership, initiated all the modern movements toward Protestant oneness. Organic union may be a remote consummation, but Christian comity is a forerunner of practical unity. This principle was certainly included in the prayer of Jesus for his (Continued on page 14.)

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible: Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el. 2 years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. Mercy and truth gather; righteousness hath kissed each other. Truth shall sprin

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better than a year elsewhere. 11 Truth shall sprin

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 10/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x $5.50
As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handy some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

WHY ARE CHRISTIAN MISSIONS WORTH WHILE?

By L. G. H. SANSFIELD, M. SC.,
London, England.

[A paper read before a philosophical and religious club in London. The club includes Protestants, Roman Catholics, Jews and Agnostics.]

How is activity in any sphere justified? One may look to at least four lines in order to draw some valid conclusions—demand, authority, precedent, and results.

These four lines of inquiry may be profitably examined in the case for Christian missions.

What are Christian missions? What is their aim? This is set forth in the magnificent message which Christ, catching the prophetic word of Isaiah, used when he announced his program in the Synagogue of Nazareth:

- To preach the gospel to the poor;
- To heal the brokenhearted;
- To preach deliverance to the captives;
- The recovery of sight to the blind;
- To set at liberty them that are bruised;
- To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

The Christian missionary's task is to continue the preaching of the Good News—the revelation of God's manifestation of himself in Jesus Christ, the message of redemption from sin through the Cross and the hope of eternal union with God. The Christian missionary knows and declares that Christ's "touch has still its ancient power" to heal, to deliver, to give sight and to set at liberty.

Christ himself originated Christian missions and thrust forth his disciples with stirring words. Christ, then, is our authority.

Authority for Christian Missions.

We accept the Bible as the Word of God, Jesus Christ as the unique Son of God, and the Gospels as a true record of the facts concerning his life, teachings, death and resurrection.

Christ gave definite instructions to his disciples: "Go ye to the lost sheep of the House of Israel, as ye go preach . . . heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils, freely ye have received, freely give." Christ's purpose of mercy included the Gentiles. "He shall show judgment to the Gentiles . . . and in his name shall the Gentiles trust."

After the crucifixion the scope of the commission to the disciples is widened to the whole world when the risen Christ met his disciples after the resurrection. The Galilean meeting, it is significant to note, was by appointment made before the crucifixion. He said to his chosen apostles: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them and teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always."

Compelling as the command is of itself, it is not an isolated dictum born of a spontaneous idea. It is the crystallizing into a definite instruction the principles for carrying on the work which Christ during his ministry inaugurated with the same universal aim. His message was: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whoso believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

The Christian missionary movement is not based only on one single passage from the Founder of the faith. The missionary enterprise is woven into the very fabric of Christ's teaching, personality and work, and in addition to the collective command after Christ's ascension specific instructions were given to individuals. Two examples will serve. First, Paul, at his conversion, received his call to missionary service through Ananias to whom the Lord had said: "He is a chosen vessel unto me to bear my name before the Gentiles and Kings and the children of Israel."

Second, Philip, when released from his duties as deacon in Jerusalem, went down to Samaria and in the middle of a successful preaching campaign had a most interesting foreign missionary call to go "unto Gaza which is desert." There a man of Ethiopia was converted. Thus Christian gladness was first brought to Africa's Negro races.

How could the Apostles and early Christians forbear to embark on the missionary enterprise which has in greater or lesser degree continued ever since?—Missionary Review.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JANUARY 27, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,151.03
Lawrence Memorial Bible Class, Elon College S. S., Elon College, N. C.	1.85
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	3.80
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	17.42
Flint Hill, Star, N. C.	.31
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	11.00
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	3.45
Roanoke, Ala.	1.00
Winchester, Va.	4.85
Newport News, Va.	10.00
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	3.10
Mt. Auburn S. S., Class No. 2, Manson, N. C.	1.00
Franklin, Va.	19.44
High Point, N. C.	2.00
Class No. 2, Lanett S. S., Lanett, Ala.	1.00
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	4.96
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
Total	$ 1,261.21

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 671.62
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	3.35
Total	$ 674.97

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 699.30
Pleasant Hill C. E. Society, Liberty, N. C.	1.10
Total	$ 700.40

Woman's Board, S. C. C.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,636.84
Received of Mrs. H. S. Hardecastle, Treas.	1,587.01
Total	$ 5,223.85

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 6,413.89
Sunday Schools, Regular	110.18
Individuals and Churches	3.35
Specials	1.10
Woman's Board, S. C. C.	1,587.01
Total to date	$ 8,115.53

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

Cleaning the church, hiking in sun or rain, feeling "always tired," a young Filipino pastor, writes, "Never mind; it is a pleasure, a great privilege to witness for my Master. My clothes are always soiled with mud . . . but I love the task."

WORLD'S DAY OF PRAYER.

A call to prayer goes out to all people everywhere to unite in observance of this day February 16, 1934. This is a World Day of Prayer for missions and the excellent program for that day has been prepared by Mrs. J. W. L. Hofmeyer, of Cape Town, South Africa, using the theme, "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem." The program may be obtained for 2c each, by writing to the Commission on Missions, 102 Congregational House, Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Robert Forgan, of Edinburgh, Scotland, has prepared the "Call to Prayer," a splendid little leaflet to give out in advance of the meeting as an invitation. This is free and may also be obtained from the above address.

Then there is a delightful program for the children entitled "Follow Thou Me," which may be secured for 1c each. Many churches like to have the children observe this great day, too, so they find this program very helpful.

One of the best helps in advertising a meeting is by posters and a beautiful one 11x17 in. with a cut on the front like that on the call may be obtained for 5c. This is fine for use in store windows, offices and vestibules of the church. Why not order several of them?

This is one of the greatest, if not the greatest days that our Missionary Societies observe, and let us make all our plans toward a great day. Some churches have all-day meetings, and some have one service in the afternoon or at night, but however you do it, be sure that your plans are well laid so that a great spiritual help may be felt by all who attend. Remember, you will be a part of a great chain of women all around the world in practically every land who will be lifting their hearts to God that day. Let us lay our duties aside and go to the house of worship and have our strength renewed.

MRS. W. M. JAY.

NEWS ITEM.

The Young People's Missionary Society of Franklin Christian Church, Franklin, Va., is very proud of the Christmas pageant, "Children of the Starlight," in which they put forth so much effort to make it one of the most colorful and impressive entertainments which the young people of the church have ever given.

The pageant, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Williams, president of the Society, and Mrs. W. Hunter Scott, superintendent, with Miss Mattie Bracey as organist, was presented Christmas Eve, in the church before a capacity crowd.

The setting was of the long ago in Bethlehem of Judea. The son of a Bethlehem shepherd desired to accompany his father to the fields outside the town for the night watch. The lad loved the fields, the sheep and the stars, but of late he had given much attention to a large star which seemed to him unusually bright. The father told him to devote his time to the studying of the law in the synagogue schools, and to pay no attention to the stars, so he left him there to study while he hastened on to his duties of a shepherd just outside the city gates.

The son studied, but soon fell asleep after which the star beams from the beautiful star above came to him and the remainder of the pageant was unfolded through lovely songs and acting out of the story by about forty characters dressed in beautiful costumes. After the Star Beams the 20th Century Children spoke to the lad in a vision. The shepherd father joined his companions in the fields to watch over the flocks. While there an angel appeared to them and at that time they heard the heavenly host praising God. The angel messenger told them of the Christ Child's birth, and directed them to go to Bethlehem telling them that they would find Him wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. So to Bethlehem they went.

After the shepherds had found the Christ Child, and having worshipped Him, they met the Wise Men from the East, who inquired of the whereabouts of him who was born King of the Jews. At first they doubted what the shepherds told them but when they saw the large star, which had guided them on their long journey, had stopped directly over the stables which the shepherds had pointed out, they too worshipped Him and laid gifts at his feet.

To the shepherd's son, who had wondered about the bright star, came a revelation that it was the star of the Christ Child. The story moved on in song, pageantry and story to unfold the meaning of the Christ Child's coming to the earth to lift up childhood in all nations. Children representing Judea, Japan, China and America, Christians of the Centuries, Children of the 20th Century, and the Christian of Today, all came to express their need of Him, who was born that day in a manger. In the midst of this, the Star Beams formed a lovely star of silver tinsel, a little child representing childhood stood by, and the pageant came to a grand finale with the closing song, "Children of the Starlight."

Proper decorations, lighting effects and the cooperation of all who made the presentation possible, made this an interesting and beautiful pageant, and one long to be remembered.

DEATH WELCOMED.

Alachie—bathroom scavenger—victim of age-old caste, came cheerfully to her work at the Edson Lockwood's in Madura, India. "Fever," said her 10-year-old daughter, when she was absent one day. A substitute followed: "Fever," she explained when questioned about Alachie. Suspicious, the missionaries investigated. They found mother, daughter and son sick with small-pox while a second son lay dead. Later the daughter came back to work, but not Alachie. "Her eyes hurt and she has gone to her village," was the explanation. When next she appeared, at the request of the missionaries, she was emaciated, shorn, BLIND. Weeping, she pointed to bruises on her throat where a brutal husband, tired of a useless wife, had attempted to strangle her. Her child was born an idiot. Then Alachie died. "We have no funeral money," sobbed her daughter. So the missionaries gave her money. There were a few flowers, a rough litter, betel and music. The unhappy mother was burned in a Christmas gift sari. Said the Ayah at the Lockwood home: "She was glad to die. Life was sad. Don't be sorry for her."

SPONGE CAKE AND SPIRITUAL CARE.

Just beyond a stretch of cool tropical forest near Mt. Silinda, East Africa, lies a suffocating trail winding among native villages. Round mud huts with cone-shaped roofs predominate, but here and there like light-houses rises a different house, square, airy, raised on stones and surrounded by gardens and orchards. These are the homes of Christians. To one such village went Mrs. Samuel J. Curtis to teach the women child care, cooking and give them spiritual refreshment. While a hot water sponge cake was cooking in the pot over an open fire a devotional service was held. Mothers walked miles carrying babes on their backs to join this group. "If the motherhood of Africa is trying to go forward how can our people fail to advance?" exults Mrs. Curtis, as at dusk, weary and foot-sore, she reaches the mission station.

THE FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER.

The author of the daily devotions of the Fellowship of Prayer for this Lenten season is Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, honorary pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York City. This is the sixteenth year of the fellowship.

For thirty-two years Dr. Jefferson was the active pastor of the Tabernacle. Of "stars" in the Broadway firmament, Dr. Jefferson preaching twice on Sundays, addressing a mid-week service and speaking at special observances had with more than 4,000 "performances" by many times the longest "run". Attendance at his Wednesday night prayer-meetings averaged 125. Upon the thirtieth anniversary of his pastorate in 1929 he was hailed in an editorial of the New York Times by Dr. James H. Finley, as "the saint of the Great White Way."

The purpose of the Fellowship of Prayer is to promote the observance of Lent as a special period for deepening the devotional life and to further unity in worship among persons of all communions. A manual of suggested devotions comprising a Scripture reading, a meditation and a prayer for each day, is issued annually. The movement is sponsored officially by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, by the National Council of the Y. M. C. A., by the United Church of Canada and by most of the denominations in the United States. Millions have been helped in their personal religious life by Fellowship and its annual Lenten manual has become the most largely read devotional literature of modern times. The daily devotions are published as a Lenten feature by hundreds of newspapers as well as by numerous religious papers and are circulated in booklet form. The booklets can be secured for three cents each or twenty-five for fifty cents from the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life, 287 Fourth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Incisive teachings fill the meditations prepared for the Fellowship of Prayer this year by Dr. Jefferson. The Lenten theme is, "Men ought always to pray." Among what Dr. Jefferson has to say are:

"Many amiable people do not believe in prayer. They think it bunk. But Jesus of Nazareth had a different opinion."

"We do not realize what a rabble of undisciplined thoughts we have in our head until we make a serious effort to induce them to bow at the throne of grace."

"A long prayer in public is usually empty and always boring. It is worth noting that our Lord's prayer can be repeated in less than a minute."

"Rambling prayers do not find God. When we ask for blessings in general we get nothing in particular. Our desires should be so definite that they can clothe themselves in words."

The majority of Congregational and Christian pastors make the Fellowship of Prayer part of their Lenten program. Dr. Williams Horace Day, of the United Church, Bridgeport, says:

"We have used the Fellowship of Prayer since the first issue with profit to the spiritual life of the church. We are greatly pleased that this booklet for Lent which began as a distinctly Congregational project has found its way into churches of all denominations."

Dr. Roy C. Helfenstein of the People's Church, Dover, Del., says:

"We use the Fellowship of Prayer as a guide in Bible reading and in teaching the people the way of prayer. It is an evangelistic help of very great value."

A thousand copies of the Fellowship manual were used last year by the Smithfield Evangelical Congregational Church, Pittsburgh, Pa.; twelve hundred copies by the Grand Avenue Congregational Church, Milwaukee, Wis.; a thousand copies by the Grace Congregational Church, Holyoke, Mass.; nine hundred copies by the First Congregational Church, Montclair, N. J.

SKETCH OF CATAWBA SPRINGS.

(Continued from page 5.)

sented a most pleasing personality, the best dressed minister I had ever seen; and to me his brief sermons were beautiful, entertaining and impressive.

J. Pressly Barrett must have been every inch a refined, cultured, Christian gentleman; deservedly popular with all classes and successful as preacher and pastor. His influence lives and will for all time to come; for such men are immortal through the influence exerted upon all who come under the refined, radiating influences from a character shaped and moulded by the highest ideals the race has set as goals to be realized.

REV. JOHNNY A. JONES.

The year 1884 Catawba Springs enjoyed the ministry of this neighbor pastor. A man of limited education, but his name was the synonym of piety, and he had enthusiasm enough for two or three men, while he was a congenial guest in any home—a fine pastor, always welcome at any fireside. Then it seems Mr. Barrett was again called, for in February, 1885, a motion was made and carried, in church conference, to release Mr. Barrett and call Rev. J. L. Foster. Here the old minutes close. I am not able to tell whether or not Mr. Foster served as pastor. Mr. B. F. Branch, the present clerk, informs me that on October 31, 1885, Rev. J. P. Barrett was called, so it appears that Mr. Foster may have served only as a supply during these months as he was pastor of the Raleigh Church at the time. The term of service of Mr. Barrett continued from October, 1885, until February, 1887, when Rev. J. W. Wellons was called and served until January, 1888, when Rev. E. G. Pusey was called to the pastorate and served until February 1, 1889, when Rev. W. G. Clements was again called to the pastorate. His pastorate, this time, lasted for two years, for in January 1891, Rev. W. H. Roach was called, and served until succeeded November 4, 1893, by Rev. J. O. Atkinson. Dr. Atkinson served the church until February 1896, when he was succeeded by Rev. J. A. Jones, whose pastorate lasted only a few months, for in October, 1896, Mr. Jones was succeeded by Rev. P. H. Fleming. Mr. Fleming served for only one year, for in November, 1897, he was succeeded by Rev. W. D. Howard. Mr. Howard served for two years and in December, 1899, he was succeeded by Rev. G. R. Underwood.

(To Be Continued.)

THOROUGHLY CONVERTED.

Mama Yangu is a convert of the Heart of Africa Mission, a former hemp-smoker, polygamist and all-round sinner. He gave his heart to Christ, taught himself to read, abandoned his vices, organized a little church in his home, which has grown into a church with its own building, and goes every market day to preach the Gospel in a market town five miles away. He does not confine his preaching to the natives, but speaks to traders and officials who highly respect him. He is a blacksmith by trade, and with his earnings sends out evangelists to surrounding villages. Often he rises in the night, lights a lamp, and searches the Scriptures to find out the way of salvation more perfectly.—Sunday School Times.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

NORFOLK CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

A novel, interesting and helpful feature of the recent meeting of the Norfolk, Va., Christian Endeavor Union was the pantomiming of parables. Each society presented a parable of Jesus in pantomime. The audience guessed the parable by the antics of the performers. One group gave a modern interpretation of the parable of the talents which was unusually good.

Christian Church young people are leaders in the City Christian Endeavor Union, and also in the City Young People's Inter-Federation, as well as in the District Christian Endeavor Union.

DEFIANCE CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY CONFERENCE.

To the young people in Youth Fellowship organizations in North Carolina and Virginia who were not able to attend the Defiance Christmas Holiday Conference, I want to say you sure did miss a lot.

This was the first time I had ever attended one of these Holiday Conferences. I have never enjoyed a meeting or a conference of any kind as much as I did this one.

There were fifty-three delegates at the Conference from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, North Carolina and Virginia.

On Friday night, which was the first night of the Conference, after the meeting had been called to order, and Miss Lucy Eldredge had made a very appropriate talk, all the young people were divided into six groups to discuss the main points in Dr. Walter H. Judd's little book called, "A Philosophy of Life that Works;" each group discussing a separate point. This was very interesting and helpful because each point that Dr. Judd brings out in his book is very vital. After our group discussions we all came together in a body and gave our reports and the conclusions we reached.

After all the reports had been given we all went to a special upper-room prayer service which was very impressive, inspiring and helpful.

Saturday morning we all assembled together again. The group was then divided into four groups, each to discuss a certain religious question pertaining to young people's work, and to make a report of conclusions reached.

The writer was in Group No. 1, which discussed this most vital question: "How Can We Help Young People to Live the Christian Life?" To me, this seemed the most vital question that we discussed during the whole Conference. As some one at the Conference said: "If you can solve this problem, you will be able to solve all the rest." We discussed this question all day, and likewise the other groups their questions.

That night we all came together and submitted our reports to the whole group for approval, corrections and suggestions for improvements.

Sunday morning we attended worship service at the College Church and heard a fine sermon on the subject: "Pinch Hitting," by Rev. Cleon Swarts, pastor of the Defiance College Church.

Sunday afternoon all of the delegates from each State were divided into certain groups. The different groups took up business and discussed various problems in their organization.

Sunday night we all went over to the girls' gymnasium and played games. Afterwards we went to the boys' dormitory and sang songs and ate popcorn for awhile. Before we left the dormitory that night several appropriate talks were made by some of the older members present. Then an opportunity was given the young people to share their feelings and impressions concerning what the Conference had meant to them. This was fine, and many of the young people had something to say about how much the Conference had meant to them.

Attending this Conference gave me the greatest inspiration that I have ever received. As I looked around me one night, and noticed how interested young girls and boys were in religious work of this kind, in helping other young people to live the Christian life, in doing what they could to bring people to know Jesus Christ, it seemed to me that I was just beginning to realize the place that young people have in helping to establish the kingdom of God here on earth. And I was so filled up that I just felt like saying for all who were present that all of us were going to do better in living for the Lord Jesus this coming year and the years to come.

Attending this Conference was truly enough to make anyone resolve in his heart that his life is going to be lived for the Lord Jesus more than ever. There are many things I would like to tell all of you young people concerning this Conference, but it would take up too much space. I just hope more of you will be able to attend the Conference next year. Because if you ever go to one you will want to go to them all. And may the Lord help us to accomplish much for him this year.

ROBERT M. KIMBALL.

Elon College, N. C.

DOES GOD ALWAYS PUNISH WRONG? HOW?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FEB. 11, 1934.
(Gal. 6:6-8.)

Worship Period.

Theme—"The God of Justice and Mercy."

Call to Worship—Isa. 55:6, 7.

Hymns—"O, Jesus, Thou Art Standing," "Evening Prayer" (James Edmeston), "Near to the Heart of God," "Break Thou the Bread of Life."

Responsive Reading—Psalm 96.

Prayer—For pardon and for new opportunities to serve God.

A Scripture Message—Prov. 2:1, 2, 5.

(Select one of the above suggested hymns, and while the pianist softly plays, read the words of the hymn.)

Discussion Period.

This problem of punishment runs all the way through the Bible. Three cases may be studied:

(a) The Story of Ananias (Acts 5:1-6).—Here is a case of a deceiving thief who fell dead; this was regarded as a direct punishment from God. What would happen if all similar wrongdoers were to suffer the same punishment? There would have to be special elections in most cities and States to elect new officials; the big corporations of the land would find their boards of directors without leaders; many seats in the school-rooms would be vacant. The fact is God does not strike down evil-doers with a violent punishment for their sin. Would it be a more just world if God were to do this? Would he be a kind and fair Father, or a cruel and unsympathetic taskmaster?

(b) The Case of Job—Here was Job, one of God's good men. The adversary, Satan (the modern cynic), said that Job was being good just because it paid him to be good; let God take away his crops, his wealth, his health, and Job would stop being good. God did not believe this; but he accepted the challenge and afflicted Job by one dread calamity after another. Still Job continued to trust in God; he refused to believe that this was a punishment for a bad life, for he had tried hard to do what he believed to be God's will. Job refused to get angry or to lose faith in God, and one of the highest notes of faith in the Bible is found in Job 13:15: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him."

(c) The author of Ecclesiastes saw the same kind of seeming injustice in the world, but he came up a sour pessimist instead of a religious optimist. Read portions of the first, fourth and ninth chapters. What's the use of being good, what's the use of working hard, what's the use of trying to find out and to follow the will of God? These are the questions which this man raised and which many people raise today. Why indeed? Do not the rich oppressors continue to have their summer and winter places, while the poor laborer is without bread or home or hope for the future? This is the age-long problem of justice in the world. No complete answer has been found for it. Job's faith, however, is much more satisfying than the pessimism of the author of Ecclesiastes.

God works through so-called "laws of nature" which he has established and which he maintains.

1. Study carefully Gal. 6:6, 7. What do you think it means? Does it seem to you to express the truth? Here is a person who eats too much candy; something happens to his skin. But this is only an evidence that something is happening to his whole system. It is a warning. If the person uses good judgment and eats candy only moderately, his system will doubtless right itself. This shows two things about the laws of God: the person who abuses his system must pay a penalty; but the person who heeds a clear warning finds that the laws of nature are "on his side"—they help him to "come back."

Illustrate this further by the use of alcoholic drink, the loss of sleep, the failure to exercise muscles, lack of care of teeth, etc.

2. One boy spends most of his spare time experimenting with radio; after a time he becomes something of an expert in this line. Another boy likes to hear good music and good lectures and goes to church regularly. In a few years he has become well informed on most current issues, he has an appreciation and understanding of music, and he has a knowledge of what God can mean to a person. A third boy saturates his mind with the trashiest kind of stories; he wastes his time and money on cheap news stand fiction; his conversation becomes debased, and he has lowered himself in his own estimation and in the eyes of people whose friendship should mean something to him.

One may regard the good results in the first two cases as a "reward" from God; they are, however, just the natural fruits of a life well spent. One may consider the bad results in the third case as a "punishment" from God; they are, however, just the sure fruits of unwise human action.

3. The Wages of Sin. "The wages of sin is death," not because God wants it that way, but because the universe is so created that sin destroys its unity and its spirit of love and helpfulness.

4. If we hate others. Does God punish us for hating others? Yes, by his law that hatred in the heart is a consuming, destroying fire. Hate blurs our vision; we cannot judge others fairly. Hate destroys our faith in others and in God.

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST.

LESSON V.—FEBRUARY 5, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. 6:33.

LESSON TEXT: Matt. 6:1-34.

Citizens of the Kingdom and Prayer.

"And when thou prayest"—Jesus knew that prayer was instinctive in the heart of man and he naturally gave heed to it in his Sermon on the Mount, which dealt with the fundamental principles of the kingdom, and of the attitudes and actions of the citizens of the kingdom. Because it was an instinct he wanted to make sure that it was neither neglected nor misdirected. In these few words he does not tell us everything about prayer, but he tells us a great deal.

Prayer is to be sincere. "Thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are"—they prayed to be seen of men rather than to be heard of God. They prayed not because they felt a sense of need and a desire for fellowship with God, but because they wanted to appear religious, and appear better than their fellowmen. They were not praying; they were simply saying prayers. Jesus did not mean that a man should not pray except when he "felt" like it. He was trying to impress upon his disciples that if they lived up to their high privilege, if they took their religion seriously, they would pray.

Prayer is to be secret. "Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret." Prayer is inner and vital. When it is sincere it will express the inner aspirations and longings and desires and purposes of the heart. A man can pray "in secret," however, when he is walking down the street. And when he prays "in public," the words of his mouth ought to be the expression of the thoughts of his heart.

Prayer is to be simple. "When ye pray, use not vain repetitions." Do not try to use high-sounding words and long sentences. Talk to your Father in simple and sane language. This does not mean that a man ought not to use good language in praying. It does mean that he ought to talk in a heart-to-heart way with his Father, rather than to be trying to make an impression on his hearers.

Prayer is to be submissive. "Your heavenly Father knoweth what things ye have need of." Prayer is not so much getting things from God as a means of preparing ourselves to receive the things God has for us. Prayer does not change God; it changes us and others.

Prayer is to be social. "After this manner, therefore, pray ye: "Our Father, . . . give us our daily bread, forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors, lead us not into temptation"—throughout what we call the Lord's Prayer, there is the social emphasis. This does not mean that we are not to pray for ourselves—God knows we need to pray for ourselves, but it does mean that we shall present the needs of others.

There is neither time nor space to unfold the meaning of the Lord's Prayer. There is a whole series of sermons in it, and it cannot be compressed in a Sunday School lesson. Some significant points can be noted. We pray to a Father. We come to him in a spirit of reverence. We are to put the needs of the kingdom first in our prayer. We are to pray that it might come on earth and that God's will might be done on earth as in heaven. We are to pray for today's bread, not tomorrow's bread, and not today's cake. We are to ask for forgiveness for ourselves on the basis of our forgiveness to others. We are, if possible, to be kept from temptation. We are to ascribe to God the power and the glory.

The Citizen of the Kingdom and Treasure.

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth"—the citizen of the kingdom is not only not to seek to amass earthly treasures, he is to use such as he has for social purposes. There is as much significance in the words "for yourselves" as there is in the words "upon earth." Material things have no abiding value. The past few years have made us see that Jesus was no impractical idealist. A man cannot fortify himself against the real issues of life with material treasures. Furthermore, in laying up for themselves upon earth material things, men are very apt to neglect the kingdom. Men start out to get riches and end up very often by finding that riches have got them.

"Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven." Even gold has a fluctuating value. It is an absolutely gilt-edge investment. Personality, character, spiritual life—these are the coin or exchange of the kingdom and they abide. And he who invests in these things is rich both in this life and in the life which is to come.

The Citizens of the Kingdom and the Kingdom.

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Jesus did not say that we were to seek the kingdom of God. He said we were to seek it first. The interests of the kingdom must have first place in the life of the citizens of the kingdom. Personal interest must be subordinated to kingdom interest. And Jesus flings out a challenging word here. He boldly asserts that he who seeks first the kingdom of God and his righteousness will have the things he needs—"all these things shall be added unto you." All too many of us give all too much time to what we shall eat, what we shall drink, what we shall put on, and all too little to the thought of the kingdom. The man who really lives is the man who gives himself to something big outside himself, and he who lives most is the man who with single-hearted devotion is giving himself to the work of the kingdom.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

Hate corrodes hope and optimism; it is impossible to see better days ahead and to believe the best of one's associates and neighbors if jealousy and intense dislike of others have done their work within us. God punishes hatred, not by launching a bolt of lightning at the wrongdoer, but by applying his laws that say: "Love one another," and "thou shalt not hate thy brother."

5. Suppose another robs me. Some one has wasted or stolen funds that you and I have entrusted to him. Is he punished even if not imprisoned? God has provided for that.

Question:

1. Do you believe God punished America for permitting slavery, for exploiting the American Indian, for selfish wealth-gathering in the "years of prosperity?" Why must any such punishment fall on the innocent as well as the guilty? How can you reconcile the sufferings of the poor in the several winters of the depression with what you believe to be God's fatherly love for his children? Is our civilization so faulty that God cannot work through it to help us as he would?

Closing Thought—How does my Christian Endeavor Society aid young people to see righteous living as a goal that requires bravery, devotion, constant effort, prayer, and hard work?

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather; Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps . . . . . $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold . . . . . $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold . . . . . $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools . . . . . 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

CHILDREN.

MONDAY.

CHILDREN'S RELATION TO GOD.

"Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." (Revised Version: "For to such belongeth the kingdom of God." Matt. 19:14.

"Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 18:3.

The bringing up of children is the bringing up of a life simple enough, maybe, for to take lightly, but great enough for God to be interested in, and precious enough for our Saviour to die for. Not only so, but if we are to believe the above word of God, they are the embodiment of the principles of the kingdom of God, and God dwells in them. We are not to expect them to become like we are, but we are to become like them.

Let alone, children may act the heathen. Some one has said, "All children are little heathens." They may lack the power and intelligence to go right, but they are religiously capable, they are innocent, they do love, they live by faith, they trust implicitly, they take everything as it is, they forgive one another their trespasses in a few minutes' time, they are humble, they are pure and divinely dependent. These characteristics seem to express the same characteristics expected of us as Christian men and women.

"Whoso receiveth such little children in my name, receiveth me."

Prayer—Our Father, who lovest thy children in this world with infinite love and blessing, teach us the heavenliness of the young life in our children, and through them may we see the Divine life and bless them.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

"And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy might."

"And these words which I command thee, shall be in thine heart:

"And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou raisest up."—Deut. 6:5, 7 (and read on, please, in your Bible.)

A father would soon be jailed if he set out deliberately to train his child to be a robber. Nevertheless, it is true that the most of the present robbers, murderers, and thieves, and all evil-doers, are products of parental neglect in spiritual values, untaught and untrained in the knowledge of God and in Christian character. They are the product of unsanctified parenthood.

It was said in our yesterday's meditation that "children are not to become what we are, we are to become what they are." It is recalled that this was spoken in the conception of ideals in which God affirms are the principles of the kingdom of God, to which ideals we must come ourselves. On the other hand, children cannot maintain that ideal, cannot always be the manifestation of God, if their guardians do not come to that manifestation themselves and develop that little kingdom of life. They must, most naturally, become what their parents are. Deceitful living, selfishness, stealing, advantage, and all the practices register their impact in this new life and produce the same in kind. Yea, the requirement of rigid obedience engenders rebellion; inferiority complex makes a cripple; "manners more than morals deny Christ, and these make the church impotent and fill the ways of life with infidelity and devilishness.

Prayer—Our Father, grant unto us a full realization of our responsibilities in the bringing up of those dependent upon us. Give unto us the infinite love of God, his knowledge of human destiny, and make us true guardians of his little children.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

A CHILD'S INHERITANCE.

"It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and be cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones."—Luke 17:2.

A guardian who would cheat his ward out of his inheritance is a thief and is prosecuted in the same manner.

There are certain heritages of a child which we do care for diligently: the body; we spare nothing to keep it well and develop it rightly; the mind: we educate our children to the limit of our ability that they may know how to behave in life and cope with opportunity. But there is in every child a heart—a soul—an invisible "I Am" self in which is locked all the motive powers of life, the impulses, intuitions, spiritual sensations, passions, urges, and such like. It is so common to let these alone. One said the other day, "I will not have anything to do with this side of my child's life. I will let him grow up and choose for himself." This is a common attitude. This heart is as much the heritage of the child committed to our care as is his body and mind. To neglect this side of his life makes one guilty of cheating him out of his most important birthright.

Prayer—Our Father, have mercy upon us, poor sinners. We have failed in our duties to children. Make us true to our trust to them now, and never to fail.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

INDEPENDENT CITIZENS.

"Speak unto the children that they go forward."—Ex. 14:15.

There is in the city of San Diego, Calif., today, a man by the name of Snow. He is about fifty-eight years of age. At the age of twenty-two months, in an accident, he had the misfortune to lose both hands, leaving just short nubs below his elbows. He writes a very good hand, attends to all his personal needs without aid, has driven his car for the past twenty-five years without an accident and made his own living. Here in California they have refused him driver's license because he has no hands.

The point in this meditation is: This man pays tribute to his mother as being the one inspiration of his life that has made his independence possible. From the time of the accident until he left her to make his own way, she held before him every possibility and encouraged him in meeting every problem until he won the victory. This mother was not slack in her responsibility to speak to her child that he go forward. What a man! He says that if he had hands he would not know what to do with them.

We have no right to pray for our children unless we are laboring ceaselessly to lead them to the overcoming life. We, both by precept and example, must inspire in them the right way, for what registers in the mind in earliest years determines his thinking and what he will do in later years.

Prayer—Our Father, we would pray for a consciousness of the dangers of life without God. We would pray for the gift of wisdom, love, grace and heaven. In Christ's name we ask it.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

CHILDREN AND THE CHURCH.

"Of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 19:14.

Since children embody the very likeness of the kingdom of God, and since the ultimate of a child's life is God, and since the church is the militant organization for the culture which leads and develops one to that ultimate; the most vital relation of the child is the church. This is a heritage which, if taken away from him, becomes most tragic.

Children have a relation to the home, and we see to it that they sustain that relation; they have a relation to schools and we see to it that they are educated; they have a relation to play, and we give them full choice; they have a relation to entertainment, and the Lord knows that they are getting more than their share of that. In like manner, children are related to the kingdom of God, and this relation should have equal demand upon their life.

It is not a question as to whether children understand what they do; it is a question of life-expression in its noblest and most outstanding instincts, and, as their education is that which is to aid them to make the most of their intellectual powers, so the church is to develop their character on the sweetest side and make it a continual flow unto God. If a child's ultimate is God and the likeness of God, he should be told so, and shown the way. It is a fallacy to teach him that he is heathen and will be until later in life when something may happen to him and he will be converted and join God's family. Our prayers and our efforts for them should be not "touch and tender" (they are already touched and tendered, tender as a lily), but it should be, "keep, teach and lead."

This relation of the child to the church sustained and followed consistently results into the glorious state of full and intelligent choices in life, void of all fear or dread of the shaking of sudden conversion. His conversion will then be as unobserved as the ripening of the summer's fruit, and he will rejoice in affirmations of the continued purpose of the heavenly Father in his life.

Prayer—Our Father, O, for the power of the hidden man of the heart to be manifested in our lives.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

OYSTERS SETTLING DOWN.

"My heart is fixed, O God."—Read Psalm 108:1-13.

The Government has been making a special study of oysters, and has discovered that for two weeks the larva of the oyster swims about freely in the water, and will not settle down and become an established member of society until it gets from the water a minute dose of copper—about one part in fifty millions of water. Lack-

(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

MY RELIGION FOR 1934.

[The following sermon was preached to the congregation of the United Church, LaGrange, Ga., by Rev. J. H. Dollar, pastor, on Sunday morning, December 31, 1933]:

"I am resolved what to do."—Luke 16:4.

Three hundred and sixty-four days of 1933 are history. If we failed, our failures will be made known to the coming generations as they glance through the pages which shall carry to posterity the story of the history we have written. It is too late to make 1933 a success if we have waited until now. We have only time enough left to review the things we have done.

Tomorrow every business man in our city, if he has the interests of his business at heart and is willing to face the facts of what he has actually accomplished, will begin taking stock. Every article with the price will be put down. He wants to take the stock he has on hand and compare it with what he had on hand last New Year's Day. The difference in the figures will tell the story of success or failure when the volume has been accounted for and compared. That is good business. The business institution which does not interest itself in what has been done may expect that lack of interest to express itself in the probable failure of that institution.

If the merchant must inventory his stock to find out what has been done in 1933, why is it not even more important that we look carefully into the stock we have in the warehouse of our hearts and minds? To do that is good, honest Christianity. If, when we have carefully checked our stock of habits, ambitions and ideals, we find that we have much that has been brought over from the years since childhood, is it not wisdom to look it over in order to determine if it is moth-eaten and shop-worn? Will this supply of Christian essentials of life be sufficient to put on display in the new storehouse into which we must move with the turning of the clock tonight?

Some of our wide-awake merchants have already begun to advertise special sales on items which are passing out of season. They want to move such items out of the way to make room for up-to-date merchandise. Such a move is not only good business for the merchant, it is wise for us who call ourselves Christians, and we had best be honest with God and with ourselves.

Christian people are too ready to pride themselves because they recite the creed grandfather said. One might as well be satisfied to display the styles in vogue when mother was sweet sixteen. Not that religion is nothing more than a style, for it is more, much more! But its strength lies in its ability to be applied to the times and problems of the day in which we live; not in its boastfulness that it has lived through nineteen centuries without a change.

The central fact of Christianity is Christ. The primary motive of Christianity is salvation. The only hope of Christianity is its ability to lift men of every generation to the height that they may exercise their greatest possibilities and thereby discover for those who may live in the tomorrow of life new and better ways of living one with the other, and with the common Father of us all. That hope can best be realized by Christianity's willingness to fit itself into the problems of the universe as they now exist, not as they used to be, and thereby prove itself to be the dominating and elevating influence sufficient to guide surely through whatever conflict may arise in one's own life, or in the lives of the nations of the earth. The lack of such adaptation is in a large measure responsible for the chaos out of which the world is now trying to emerge. Of the ability of Christianity to change with the demands of the times and remain the same (Christ) we may rightly boast. But to be satisfied with what our forefathers discovered and be content to make the application of its meaning to them as sufficient for our needs is nonsense.

I have said all this by way of emphasizing the point and need of an inventory for our Christianity. It should be brought up to date. Not only that, but it should be projected over the year which lies ahead of us. If its projection does not cover the needs of the most abundant life, the best of the projection is insecure. Some articles of faith need revising. Some habits need discarding. Some new truths need discovering.

If Christianity cannot make the transition from the past to the present and give hope for the future, Christ is proven to be impracticable and the world must seek a new Saviour. By this deduction we reach the ridiculous, but the fact remains that we must measure our religion by the needs of this hour, and judge it by its ability to serve us as such.

If, when the inventory of our religion has been completed, we find that our stock of merchandise is inadequate for the New Year, and that our methods of Christian living have failed us in 1933, what shall we do?

Let us take the lesson of the unjust steward from which we drew the words of our text. He took an inventory. He found that his stewardship was a failure—not that stewardship itself had failed, but it was his way of exercising it that had brought about his downfall. If he had not found that he had failed he never would have made a resolution. It was when he stood face to face with the fact that his stewardship was to be taken from him that he said, "I am resolved what to do."

The only way for a Christian to be able to resolve to do better is for him to face the reality of past failure. The only way for him to tell whether he has succeeded or failed in the business of Christian living is to look carefully at things as they are and then at things as they should be or might have been. If they are not as they should be it is time to resolve to do better by making the necessary adjustments.

The steward of the text realized his dilemma and determined to do something about it. The thing he did was by no means the Christian thing, but it was at least better than what he had been doing. Before the resolution he had managed badly for himself and his master. By the resolution he at least began to do something for his own benefit, and for such action he was to be commended.

The greatest mistake anybody can make is to do nothing about the thing they know to be unjust or unwise. I am leading myself to believe that during this time of study each one of you has given some thought to things he has done and the way he has lived in 1933. You are conscious of your failures and you rejoice at your success.

Your success and mine, during 1934, lies not in our rejoicing over a measured success, but in our willingness to correct the evils that have hindered us and bridge the gaps through which failure has crept into our lives.

Let us use the wisdom of the General who faces the enemy on the battle front. When he finds where the enemy is charging he sends reinforcements to that point and makes it secure. He calls for reserves and places them there. He does not boast that there are certain portions of his front line that are not being fired upon. For us to boast of whatever degree of success we have experienced in 1933 and not do something about our failures would be stupid. Let us look carefully over the weak places in our Christianity and resolve to make them strong. Let us review the program of the church and determine to succeed where we have failed. To boast of success and at the same time do nothing about our failures is to make success a failure.

"I am resolved what to do!"

1934.

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear;
I shall waste no moment whining and my heart shall know no fear.

I shall not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread about me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty, and be more concerned with mine.

—Church Management.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85... 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Several years ago, Mr. J. L. Hatch, of Salisbury, N. C., donated one hundred dollars to buy books to start a library at the Christian Orphanage in memory of his father, O. T. Hatch, and same to be known as the "O. T. Hatch Library." The books were well selected and the children have enjoyed reading them. It was a splendid idea, and anyone can add books to increase its usefulness at any time.

Our good friend, J. L. Hatch, went to his reward last year. He was interested in the thing he had undertaken and when he made his will he provided that $250.00 of his estate should go to the Christian Orphanage to buy books to add to this library. We had notice some weeks ago from the executor of his will that the money would be available about August, 1934. We are very happy our beloved friend remembered us, and perpetuated a gift that will be a blessing to our little children for many years to come.

I wonder, dear reader, if you have written that important document? If you have, did you write a clause in it that reads something like this:

"I give and bequeath unto the Christian Orphanage, Elon College, N. C., for its use and purposes, the sum of $....."

If you wanted to designate some special purpose it would be fine. Though Brother Hatch has passed to his reward, his gift will be used by the boys and girls as they come and go for years to come.

We were looking over our income book last week, and we find that the loss to the Orphanage during the last five years on account of the death of liberal givers, amounts to nearly five thousand dollars annually. What if each of the givers who loved and supported the Orphanage during their life time had written a little clause in their wills to give even the same amount each year—what a blessing it would have been to the Orphanage! Please think on these things.

We want to apologize to the ladies of Berea Sunday School Class, Alamance County, for failing to report in THE CHRISTIAN SUN their splendid donation of nine Christmas cakes. In copying the long report, it was missed. The cakes were fine and very much appreciated.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 1, 1934.

Brought forward .....	$ 505.15
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Mt. Zion .....	$ 1.07
Union, Va. ....	1.70
Berea .....	2.00
	4.77
Easter North Carolina Conference:
Liberty Vance .....	$ 4.35
Mt. Auburn .....	3.35
Fuller's Chapel .....	2.97
Bethel, Wake .....	4.00
	14.67
Western North Carolina Conference:
Union Grove .....	$ 3.00
Zion .....	.71
	3.71
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Suffolk .....	$ 25.00
First, Portsmouth .....	6.30
Berea Nansemond .....	5.00
Oakland .....	11.00
Holy Neck .....	5.47
	52.77

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Newport .....	$ 1.59
Winchester .....	3.83
Mt. Olivet, G. ....	3.25
New Hope .....	3.66
	12.33
Alabama Conference:
Beulah .....	5.75
Special Offerings.
Overpayment to Standard Oil Co.
of New Jersey .....	$ 7.88
Mrs. Dalton, support children....	12.50
Refund on gasoline by State.....	18.15
Thanksgiving Offerings.
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Centerville .....	2.75
Total for the week .....	$ 135.28
Grand total .....	$ 640.43

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

ing this copper, it swims aimlessly about until it dies.

This is much like the human soul that lacks religion. It is without a stabilizing element. Man's will has no lasting aim apart from God's will. It wanders in ways of so-called pleasure it seeks, but all its life is vain and disappointing without God.

Prayer—Therefore, O God, we would acquaint ourselves with thee. We would set our mind on things above.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

A WARNING TO HIKERS.

"Enter not into the path of the wicked . . . avoid it, pass not by it; turn from it, and pass on."—Read Prov. 4:10-19.

Not far from where I am writing, on a recent evening, an automobile whose driver was blinded by approaching headlights plunged into a party of school girl hikers and seriously injured three of them. Hikers should remember that they can see the automobile lights, but the driver back of the lights often cannot see them.

And this is true of walking on all the high-ways of life. How often Christ urged his followers to watch, to be on their guard against evil! We can see it rushing down upon us. Many voices warn us against it. There is ample room by the side of the road. Steer clear of sin! Keep out of the way of the wicked!

Prayer—To that end, O Lord, may we walk ever in thy ways. Thy safe ways. Thy guarded ways. Thy ways of peace.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

WHERE CHRISTIAN CHURCH HAS LED.

(Continued from page 7.)

church; and the world cannot be won to him by a divided household. Protestantism must have one common motive, one common purpose, and one common objective; and this can be realized only by placing Kingdom interests above denominational interests. Selfishness is culpable in individuals; but it is offensive in denominational bodies. There is such a thing as denominational trespass, and four churches in a village of four hundred arcuses suspicion that some organization has trespassed upon ground already occupied by others. Divisions of territory by denominations, on the foreign field, admits the necessity for unity, fraternity, and co-operation in the Kingdom work.

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing

The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Naz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Ca-pér na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zab'u-lon and Neph'tha-lim:
14 That it might be fulfilled

A. D. 31. 934 CHAPTER 5.

3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.

CHAP. 4. A<sup>d</sup> seeing the multitudes; and he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... $4.00

4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers..... 4.75

THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION

With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness

630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... 7.00

633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding..... 8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

15<sup>k</sup> The land of Zab'u-lon, and the land of Neph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jör'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gen'tiles;

A. D. 31.

2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

Is. 9. 1, 2.

Is. 42. 7.

Luke 2. 32.

Mark 1. 14.

3<sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit:

for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker.. $5.00

812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type..... 6.00

733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above..... 10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES

FONVILLE.

John W. Fonville, son of Frederick W. and Eliza Tarpley Fonville, died at his home on Route 5, Burlington, Thursday, December 28, 1933, age 76 years and 6 months. He had been in declining health for three months, and after a critical illness of five days, passed to his reward. Surviving him are his wife, who was Miss Agnes Coble, and the following children: John, William, Jamie, Walter and Miss Rachel of the home, and Fred, of Texas.

In early life he attended Graham Academy, taught school a few years, and for a number of years was a licentiate Christian minister. After he discontinued his ministerial work, he was superintendent of Sunday Schools at Carolina and Hopedale, a member of the Christian Church of Burlington, and for the last five years a member of Long's Chapel Church. At the time of his death he was teacher of the Senior Bible Class, which position he had held for 12 years.

Brother Fonville was a high type of intellectual, social, business and religious man, and though frail in health, his mental faculties were unimpaired, and to the very last, he faithfully studied and taught the Word, and sought to prepare himself and others for entrance into the great beyond. He was faithful in all relations of life, a good neighbor, a firm, yet kind and devoted husband and father, a Christian gentleman.

Bro. Fonville will be missed in the home, community and church, and we, on behalf of the church, Sunday School and Missionary Society of which he was a faithful member, adopt the following resolutions:

1. That while we mourn the passing of our beloved co-worker and brother, we bow in humble submission to the will of an all-wise Providence, who doeth all things well, and

2. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy and prayers to the bereaved family in this hour of sadness, and

3. That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of these organizations, a copy sent to the family, and a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

R. W. BARNETTE,
MRS. J. A. GENTRY,
MRS. J. W. JOHNSTON,
Committee.

IN MEMORIAM.

As the autumn breezes sighed among the forests, that staunch veteran George Washington Suits, began to show unmistakable signs of physical collapse only too obvious to his near and dear ones, until at the ripe age of 91 years, 4 months and 15 days, he dropped his militant vestments and donned the triumphal robe of victory reserved for the faithful.

He was a veteran of three conflicts: he was one of the first volunteers of the Confederacy, answering the call to arms to the best of his knowledge and belief. To the cause he was faithful to the end, and came out with scarcely a scratch.

He professed faith in a crucified Saviour, and cast in his lot, with the little band that held together in the community of old Park's Stand, under the auspices of Mt. Bethel Christian Church, awaiting the erection of a house of worship nearer his home. When Howard Chapel was built, he became a charter member, was ordained one of its first deacons, the duties of which he most conscientiously filled to the day of his passing.

In the first phases of resentment to the destructive indulgence in and debasing effects of the traffic in alcoholic beverages he expressed himself in no uncertain terms.

At a working of one of his neighbors, he, as an elder and esteemed church member, was requested to ask a blessing at the bounteous table set for the "hands," as the helpers were called. As he looked over the table and spied at a conspicuous place, the decanter filled with an ardent beverage to be taken by any who indulged, he, in his quaint decisive tone, at once remarked, "No, I can't ask a blessing as long as that bottle is on the table. I can't ask God's blessing on that." The bottle was removed, and he promptly proceeded to comply with the request. Thus in duty he was instant, "in season and out of season;" an honor to his profession; attesting his high calling in the service of his divine Master.

In his going surely a "strong staff is broken, a beautiful rod;" yet God is abundantly able and willing, if implored in spirit in truth, to raise up some other on whom his mantle will fall.

He was warmly regarded by all his church, highly respected by his friends.

His funeral was attended by many near friends, brethren and sisters, and he was gently laid to rest by his wife and other members of his family, at New Lebanon Christian Church.

"Surely, a good name is more to be desired than great riches."

A BROTHER DEACON.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun
 Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
 A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc.,
 is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D..... Editor
 E. C. GILLETTE, D. D..... Associate
 S. C. HARRELL, D. D..... Contributing
 C. R. RAYMOND, D. D..... Contributing
 ELISHA A. KING, D. D..... Contributing
 W. C. WICKER, D. D..... Contributing
 J. T. KERNODLE..... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year .....$2.00
 Six Months ..... 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

GOODE.

Mrs. Alice Wilkerson Goode, daughter of the late David Young and Drewry Ann Wilkerson, was born August 1, 1870, and died at her home near Halifax, Va., January 9, 1934, age 63 years, 5 months and 9 days.

She professed religion when young, and united with Union Christian Church, Virgilina, Va. She married Mr. Eddie Goode. To this union were born three daughters and two sons. Her husband, two daughters, two sons, and three grandchildren survive. The children are David and Johnny, of South Boston, Va.; Mrs. Lida May Smith, of Halifax, Va., and Mrs. Thomas Gordou, of Cluster Springs, Va. Miss Rubie Goode, the youngest daughter, died in 1930. The grandchildren are James and Annie Goode.

She is also survived by two brothers, Tommie and David, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Sneed, Mrs. Henry Eastwood and Mrs. Bessie Walker.

The funeral was conducted from her church on Thursday afternoon, January 11, 1934, and interment in the Virgilina Cemetery. Her loved ones sorrow; may God in his mercy comfort them.

C. E. NEWMAN.

HELBERT.

Mrs. Mattie A. Helbert was born March 22, 1862, and died December 3, 1933, making her age, therefore, 71 years, 8 months, and 11 days.

Sister Helbert was a faithful member of our Bethlehem Church, though for some years not able to attend much.

She is survived by two sons, one daughter, four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at Bethlehem, December 6, 1933. The writer was assisted in the service by Rev. S. C. Hutton, pastor of the Baptist Church at Broadway.

A. W. ANDES.

HUFFMAN.

John H. Huffman was born August 29, 1872, and departed this life December 19, 1933, at the age of 61 years, 3 months, and 20 days. He was a member of Concord Christian Church, and a native of that community, though for the last twenty or more years he lived near Washington, D. C. Surviving are his widow, one son, one brother, and one sister. Funeral services at Concord, December 21, 1933.

A. W. ANDES.

the New Hope neighborhood, and a member of the United Brethren Church at Mt. Clinton.

Funeral services were held at Mt. Clinton, December 29, 1933, conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. J. W. Wright, pastor of the U. B. Church of Harrisonburg, and by Rev. James Swain, pastor of the U. B. Church at Mt. Clinton.

A. W. ANDES

LISKEY.

Mrs. Bertie Donovan Liskey was born February 27, 1896, and died December 27, 1933, age 37 years and 10 months. She was the wife of Freeman Liskey, of

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
 DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
 330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
 NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN

JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES

LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY

CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
 WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1934.

NUMBER 6.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

Rev. F. C. Lester
505 S. Main St.

Fogs and Horse Racing.—

Much is heard about the fogs of England, but few Americans, even among the racers, realize that on many occasions these fogs become so dense that horse races have to be called off. Twice recently this has happened, and the race promoters are anxiously looking about for some way to overcome their difficulty.

Opened After 410 Years.—

Four hundred and ten years ago the bishop's door of the famous Cathedral of St. Maurice and Ste. Catherine was closed to open no more until the fifth of this month. The massive door was sealed when the powerful bishopric went Protestant, and was only opened to admit the new Nazi bishop of the Province of Saxony, the Rt. Rev. Friedrich Peter, on the occasion of his consecration by Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller.

Finger Prints Reach New High.—

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation of the Department of Justice, announced this week that the business of finger printing had reached a new high. Four hundred and seventy-six identifications were made by this means during the month of January, and an average of 2,000 prints a day are still arriving from various States and federal agencies, as well as from forty-five foreign countries. A staff of 235 handles this collection of more than 4,000,000 criminal finger prints, said to be the largest in the world.

World's Gold Output Increases.—

The output of the precious metal showed some gain during 1933 over the previous year and was more than 55 per cent above that of 1922. December also showed an increase over November, and the output of all producing countries, as reported by the American Bureau of Metal Statistics, totaled 2,095,000 fine ounces. Production for the United States for December was 270,000 ounces; for Canada, 255,000 ounces, and for South Africa 894,000. The world production for 1933 amounted to 24,282,000 ounces, or using the new dollar basis, $847,656.00.

Dollar Revaluation.—

Possibly the outstanding feature of the past week was the re-establishment of the gold standard on a bullion basis, with the dollar revalued at 59.06% of its former gold content. This step is recognized as an important move in what is hoped will soon be international stabilization, but the situation is greatly complicated by the rush of gold back to the United States. The situation has already become acute in France, and if that country should abandon the gold standard at this time, the resulting confusion will probably do more to unsteady the international situation than the American action has done to stabilize it. The sooner an agreement can be reached between Great Britain, France and America, fixing the relative value of their currencies, the better it will be for all concerned except the money speculator.

Competition in Sports Honors.—

From the New York Times comes the following: "Babe Ruth may be the hero of American fandom, but Amar Nath, young Indian cricket player, recently took the populace of India by storm to such an extent that women stripped jewels from their fingers to give him. Amar Nath was the hero of the test match between England and India, being the first Indian in history to score a century in an Indian test match. Checks, cash, jewelry, cups, medals, food and an automobile were showered upon him in a great wave of popular emotion at the conclusion of the game. It was estimated that the gifts totaled $15,000 in value. He had to engage several coolies to carry his presents to his hotel, according to the story from Bombay."

Drop in Naturalization.—

Fewer aliens gained their citizenship during the fiscal year which ended last June than in any other year for the past sixteen. The number of applications for first and second papers also showed quite a decline. Harold Fields, executive director of the National League for American Citizenship, says: "Aliens in this country, of whom there are still 6,000,000, are finding it more and more difficult to meet the high fees incident to the naturalization process. . . . While educational and moral requirements remained the same, the fees were increased in 1929 by from 400 to 700 per cent." The results of these increased fees have been a large drop in the number of naturalizations, which Mr. Field believes to be not conducive to the best interests of the individual or the nation.

The Nazis Rewrite the Psalms.—

Word now comes from Germany that it is necessary that the Psalms of David be "thoroughly purged" of their "Jewish taint." To do this a volume which consists of seventy-five revised Psalms, instead of the original 150, has been issued by Wilhelm Teudt, a pioneer in the movement. Herr Teudt has entirely rewritten and thoroughly "Germanized" the poems. In his foreword he asserts that Christ was of pure Aryan blood, "His whole spirituality being foreign to Jews." The Herr would not eliminate the Old Testament entirely, but thinks that many features in it are obnoxious and should be pruned. He says that he stands for a new religion which "unites conceptions of God, nature, morality and heroism, which are the imperishable, God-given heritage of Germans."

School System Needs a Change.—

One hardly believes it would happen in the South. It might. But 45 per cent of five thousand New England high school seniors failed to identify the name of Chief Justice Hughes, though all of them could readily place Al Capone. From a group of "thirty leaders of current times," the 5,000 seniors recognized and identified correctly only the name of the notorious gangster. Commenting upon this the Boston University Press Bulletin says: "When 45 per cent of this same high school senior group does not even recognize the name of Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the United States, it is none too soon to dig beneath the surface of high school history, economics and civics teaching and find the reason for such abysmal ignorance." Many of the same group had decided that the gold standard was "a flag used by the 'Forty-Niners' in their rush for gold across the country to California."

Khublai Khan's Paper Money.—

One who imagines inflation to be an invention of modern times is more or less mistaken, for Marco Polo tells us that Khublai had "more treasure than all the kings in the world." And he accounted for this situation by telling of the Khan's simple, yet effective, method of printing all of the paper money he wanted and then making it legal tender, and then monopolizing the purchase of gold, silver and jewels. As early as 970 A. D., the Chinese emperors printed paper money and tried to control the currency, until, after several centuries of experience, they gave up the effort. Yung Lo of the Ming Dynasty gave up the issuing of paper currency at the beginning of the fifteenth century, and it was not tried again until the year 1851, by which time the Celestial Kingdom had presumably forgotten its effects. About the year 1294 A. D., Khai-khatu Khan, in the Mongolian empire of Persia, found his treasury depleted by his extravagant expenditures. On the advice of his brain trust, headed by Izzudin Muzzafar, we are told that recourse was had to paper money. Extensive preparations were made for carrying out the issuance, a numerous staff of officials was appointed to carry out the details, and "all who issued false notes would be summarily punished." As soon as these "auspicious notes were put in circulation, poverty would vanish, provisions become cheap and the rich and poor be made equal. A short while later, however, Izzudin, who proposed the issue, so some accounts say, paid for his suggestion with his life.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES

Only three Sundays left in which to take the offering for Elon, and surely every church of the Convention will give all the people a chance to make a contribution to this essential cause of our church life and growth.

Many friends of W. Knighton Bloom, D. D., recognized his birthday, February 1st, with messages of affection and congratulation. Dr. Bloom retires on April 1st, from the office of Secretary of Missions for the Eastern Division, having reached the official retiring age limit. Dr. Bloom's co-workers in the Southeast deeply regret this fact. The poem, dedicated to Dr. Bloom, given elsewhere in this issue, was composed by Dr. Clarence A. Vincent, of Winter Park, Fla., in honor of his birthday and retirement.

Our Sanford and Shallow Well Churches have called Rev. R. F. Brown to become their pastor. Of Brother Brown and his coming to Sanford, the local paper carried the following: "Rev. R. F. Brown, of Winchester, Va., has accepted the call to the Sanford and Shallow Well Christian Churches, and will preach his first sermon as pastor next Sunday morning. Rev. Brown will move his family to Sanford about February 1st. He was reared in North Carolina, a graduate of Elon College and the State University. He has preached in many churches in this state, Ohio, Virginia, and West Virginia. Rev. Brown received his training for the ministry in the Presbyterian Seminary at Richmond, Va., and while there was given work by the Presbyterians. He was reared in the Christian Church, and upon going to Ohio, served that denomination in the capacity of pastor. By invitation he came to Sanford and preached in the Presbyterian Church some time last year."

The annual mid-winter meeting was held in Evanston, Ill., January 22nd-24th. This is really a group of meetings including the annual meeting of the Commission on Missions, the Home Boards and the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and also the meeting of the Superintendents' Conference. Questions of budgets for the coming year, adjustment of percentages, missionary promotional programs, and other similar matters are discussed. The meeting this year, while facing serious problems was, nevertheless, a meeting full of hope and great encouragement and a desire to face the problems of all our churches in the finest Christian spirit. Those attending from the Southeast were: Dr. L. E. Smith, of Elon College, and Mrs. Marston Freeman, of Chatanooga, Tenn., both members of the Commission on Missions; Secretary W. Knighton Bloom, and Superintendents Fred P. Ensminger, Edwin C. Gillette, and Milo J. Sweet. Others attending who are close to our Southeastern fellowship were: Dr. W. P. Minton, Supt. Simon A. Bennett, of Indiana, and Secretary A. W. Sparks, of Dayton, O.

His multitude of loved ones and friends will deplore the loss that Dr. J. U. Newman and family sustained Monday, January 29th, when their home at Elon College burned to the ground. Some furniture, books and clothing on the first floor were saved, but all effects in rooms and halls on the second floor were destroyed. Dr. J. B. Newman (son, and dentist, of Burlington), his wife, also Miss Lila, art teacher at Elon, roomed on the second floor, and all their furniture and wearing apparel were burned. Tragic, indeed, that this should have occurred on the very day when hundreds were gathering at the College, by invitation of President and Mrs. L. E. Smith, to honor Dr. Newman on attaining his 74th anniversary. He has served on the faculty at Elon since its founding in 1890, and the other living teachers of that first faculty were invited to share the honors of the occasion with their beloved associate. Despite the fire, the reception was held, and many admirers of this great teacher gathered, and while expressing regret at his great loss, rejoiced that he had been spared and so abundantly blessed through the years.

DR. J. U. NEWMAN'S HOUSE BURNED,

Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the quiet town of Elon College was disturbed by the sounding of the alarm, "Dr. Newman's house is on fire." The fire started in the roof from undetermined origin. Fire departments from Gibsonville and Burlington were called, but arrived too late to save the building. The building was dry, the wind was rather high, and the flames spread rapidly until the entire roof was in flames. Students and faculty members rushed to the scene and were able to save practically everything on the main floor. Contents on the second floor were destroyed. This is a great calamity to our College town, the school, and Dr. Newman's family, in particular.

Preparations were being completed for a reception in West Dormitory in the evening honoring Dr. Newman and the original faculty of Elon College. Dr. Newman has taught at Elon since the day it opened its doors as a school. He has given forty-four years of faithful service. It was marvelous how Dr. Newman, Mrs. Newman, their daughter, Lila, and their son and daughter-in-law, Joseph and Anne Rawles Newman, could go right on with the reception, take their places, and enjoy the occasion as if the disaster had not befallen them. We have seen nothing yet to equal the spirit manifested by them. They are now living in a small house here. Dr. Newman is going ahead with his work at the College as if nothing had happened. They hope to rebuild on the home site.

I feel that former students, friends of Dr. Newman, and every member of our church every where will want to have a part in providing for them the comforts of a home in their declining years. I have mailed out a number of letters to those who wish an opportunity to help in this pleasant task. I do not have the names of everyone and cannot send letters to you all. If you have not received a letter and wish a part in this undertaking, please send your contribution to the writer, who will receipt you. L. E. SMITH.

THE NEW OPPORTUNITY OF THE CHURCH.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

You can ridicule and burn a John Huss, persecute and condemn a John Calvin, mock and scorn a Martin Luther, but you cannot destroy an ideal or confine a noble purpose to legislative records. The same flame that burns a martyr at the stake may be the fire that illuminates his ideals to shine around the world.

By the use of the franchise democratic America has rescinded an act of her own in making null and void the Eighteenth Amendment. What a people living under a democracy can do they reserve the right to undo. On this basis there can be no just criticism that a sufficient number of States, through the vote of their people, repealed the Eighteenth Amendment.

The repealing of the Eighteenth Amendment is not throwing to the winds the spirit and the ideal of prohibition. Prohibition in its larger sense is not merely making it impossible for the individual to procure or have access to liquor, but rather it is bringing the individual to a point and place in his social, moral, and religious life that his own self-respect will prevent him from entering into an indulgence that degrades him as an individual, lowers his standard as a human being, and incapacitates him for the duties that are his to perform as a creditable citizen.

Will and desire may overthrow the law. The desire and the will to kill often overthrow the law against murder. Do away with the desire and will to murder and you will do away with murder. Do away with the desire for liquor and you will do away with liquor. The law of supply and demand prominently figures in this connection. So long as there is a demand for liquor there will be a supply; but there will be no demand for liquor when we have eliminated the desire for it.

The church in her united efforts to combat the influence and the evils of liquor is not defeated. What may happen over a period of a few years cannot be considered a gauge for the progress of the church. There are millions of people today who feel that all their efforts in behalf of the prohibition cause have been lost. It is not temporary disappointment or defeat for the individual that counts most. The paramount issue is that the ideal of the church, the ideal of the nation, has not been defeated. Fifty or a hundred years hence may reveal to the nation that in its haste to eradicate the evils of liquor from the land it made some mistakes. The nation may see that it developed a law much faster than it developed Christian and social consciousness. Laws do not change the heart of the individual, but rather individuals collectively change the heart of the law.

Real prohibition must have its roots in a form of education, Christian education, that type of education which refines the individual at heart as well as develops his mental and physical faculties. Never in the history of the church has she had such a golden opportunity to launch her greatest program for the diffusion of such education.

The opportunity of the church comes in facing, as well as full acceptance, of that wide-open opportunity to teach the people the evil influence of strong drink on the moral and physical man. The church has not had a set-back in her crusade for prohibition; she has merely been called upon to modify her program. That she will modify it is confidently believed. To that end let the church bring a new prohibition through the slow, yet sure, process of Christian education.

VALLEY WOMEN MEET.

The Woman's Mission Board of Virginia Valley Central Conference met at the home of its President, Mrs. A. W. Andes, January 27th, to discuss some of the problems of its work.

Ten members of the board, three pastors and three visitor were present. It was planned to send two delegates to the Southern Woman's Mission Convention at Suffolk, in the spring.

The treasurer's report shows that our churches have been very slow sending in their mission funds the first half of the Conference year.

It has been planned that the District Rally programs be arranged by the Superintendent and her helpers in each district, and that each plan the time of their own programs as suits their group of churches best.

The date for the annual Woman's Missionary Conference was set for July 19th, at Bethel.

Rev. and Mrs. A. R. VanCleave, of Winchester, were present, and both gave very interesting talks along the line of missions.

MRS. B. F. FRANK.

JANUARY SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENTS.

The response to our special offer for January met with quite encouraging response. There are quite a few, however, who did not respond. We are hoping that some of these will at least write us, letting us know what action they wish to take in regard to their paper. We will be glad to carry them until such a time as it is convenient.

We again call attention to the fact that we are unable to change the label on your paper till the month following the time your payment is received, usually the second week. This is because it is a great deal more economical to print the labels for a month at a time than to reprint each week. If your label is not changed by the second week of the next month, we will appreciate your notifying us.

Thanking each and every one listed below, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

J. T. KERNODLE, Mg. Editor.

Mrs. Mamie F. Alpin, Sunbury, N. C.
 Miss Margaret P. Alston, Route 1, Henderson, N. C.
 Mrs. R. H. Adams, 232 Burwell Ave., Henderson, N. C.
 Mrs. W. B. Baker, 1045 23rd St., Newport News, Va.
 J. Worth Barker, Route 2, Greensboro, N. C.
 Mrs. Alice A. Barrett, 623 Jefferson St., N. W., Washington, D. C.
 Mrs. Lula M. Benton, Suffolk, Va.
 J. B. Bland, Carrsville, Va.
 Mrs. D. J. Bowden, 508 W. 29th St., Norfolk, Va.
 F. E. Branch, Waverly, Va.
 Walton E. Brill, Hook's Mills, W. Va.
 Miss Julia A. Brinkley, P. O. Box 196, Suffolk, Va.
 J. W. Brinkley, 151 Saratoga St., Suffolk, Va.
 Mrs. J. T. Britten, Holland, Va.
 Mrs. W. W. Brown, Bennett, N. C.
 Wm. B. Burke, Seven Fountains, Va.
 Mrs. Harvey Byrd, 1235 21st St., Newport News, Va.
 Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, 128 N. Saratoga St., Suffolk, Va.
 J. H. Carter, Sunbury, N. C.
 C. R. Clapp, Route 1, Brown Summit, N. C.
 Mrs. T. M. Cobb, Franklin, Va.
 F. G. Coffin, 47 W. 4th Ave., Columbus, Ohio.
 S. F. Coghill, Route 4, Henderson, N. C.
 A. P. Cole, 214 Hargrave St., Durham, N. C.
 Miss Lydia Creswell, Hook's Mills, W. Va.
 E. F. Cullifer, Route 3, Suffolk, Va.
 J. E. Davis, Route 3, Youngsville, N. C.
 Wava Diamond, McCoy St., Reidsville, N. C.
 H. G. Earp, Route 2, Milton, N. C.
 T. J. Earp, Route 2, Milton, N. C.
 Rev. George N. Edwards, 9-A King St., Charleston, S. C.
 Hermon Eldredge, 519 C. P. A. Bldg., Dayton, Ohio.
 Miss Sarah Ellison, Route 1, Box 32, Asheboro, N. C.
 T. Z. Fogleman, Route 3, Liberty, N. C.
 E. K. Freeman, Route 1, Box 92, Eagle Springs.
 T. R. Friddle, Route 1, Summerfield, N. C.
 K. S. Gammon, Hickory, Va.
 M. C. Garvin, Gore, Va.
 Mrs. J. J. Gomer, Route 2, Whaleyville, Va.
 Miss Evelyn Hardy, Wadley Ala.
 Mrs. Herbert Harrell, Box 104, Driver, Va.
 Mrs. W. J. Hill, Como, N. C.
 Mrs. Ben T. Holden, 707 N. Main St., Louisburg, N. C.
 A. T. Holland, 512 W. Washington St., Suffolk, Va.
 Mrs. C. C. Holland, Holland, Va.
 Mrs. E. T. Holland, Holland, Va.
 R. L. House, 2308 Roanoke Ave., Newport News, Va.
 R. L. Hurdle, 207 Holt St., Burlington, N. C.
 P. W. Isley, Route 1, McLeansville, N. C.
 Mrs. J. K. Jones, Holland, Va.
 Mrs. J. A. Kelley, Route 5, Sanford, N. C.
 Mrs. Martha Kernodle, Reidsville, N. C.
 E. C. Kitchens, Lanett, Ala.
 Mrs. Allen Lassiter, Sunbury, N. C.
 Mrs. J. F. Laymon, Broadway, Va.
 Mrs. W. V. Leathers, 111 Linden Ave., Suffolk, Va.
 E. M. Lilly, La Crosse, Va.
 Mrs. J. R. Louderback, Charles Town, W. Va.
 I. T. McAdams, Mebane, N. C.
 Mrs. J. C. McAdams, Elon College, N. C.
 Mrs. A. F. Matthews, Route 3, Waverly, Va.
 D. E. Michael, Route 1, Brown Summit, N. C.
 Mrs. L. E. Morris, Dyke, Va.
 W. P. Perry, 516 McMannen St., Durham, N. C.
 Mrs. W. R. Perry, Louisburg, N. C.
 Mrs. J. C. Pierce, Route 3, Suffolk, Va.
 J. W. Price, 18 Albemarle Ave., Richmond, Va.
 Miss Lessie Pugh, Box 32, Morrisville, N. C.
 Mrs. Lura Rabey, W. Washington St., Suffolk, Va.
 Mrs. D. P. Rawles, 1407 Monterey Ave., Norfolk, Va.
 Mrs. E. L. Rawles, Holland, Va.
 Miss Augusta Rhinehart, Linville, Va.
 J. H. Richmond, Route 3, Ruffin, N. C.

R. H. Riedel, Holland, Va.
 Mrs. J. F. Rountree, 1310 24th St., Newport News, Va.
 H. E. Savage, Route 1, Whaleyville, Va.
 Mrs. J. D. Senter, Route 2, Apex, N. C.
 Mrs. L. A. Sharpe, Route 4, Burlington, N. C.
 A. L. Smith, 326 44th St., Newport News, Va.
 E. F. Smith, Route 1, McLeansville, N. C.
 Paul R. Spaid, Hook's Mills, W. Va.
 A. H. Spivey, Wakefield, Va.
 Mrs. C. H. Stephenson, 1220 Burlington Road, Atlanta, Ga.
 W. J. Thomas, 306 Union St., Burlington, N. C.
 John G. Truitt, Suffolk, Va.
 Jesse F. Turner, Route 1, Suffolk, Va.
 G. R. Underwood, Goldston, N. C.
 J. E. Vincent, 204 Cedar St., Suffolk, Va.
 Mrs. K. B. Way, Route 1, Box 13, Sanford, N. C.
 Dr. W. T. Whitsett, Whitsett, N. C.
 Mrs. J. D. Whitt, Route 1, Nathalie, Va.
 Miss Birdie Wilson, Route 3, Box 35, Virgilina, Va.
 Miss Sallie B. Wilson, 1836 Easley Ave., Lynchburg, Va.
 Rev. L. L. Wyrick, Elon College, N. C.
 E. R. Yow, 304 E. Salisbury, Asheboro, N. C.

SERVICE FOR CHRIST.

By MISS MARY E. HALSTEAD.

Rosemont C. E. Society, Norfolk, Va.

When we repeat the topic, "Service for Christ," what are the things which come to mind as ways of rendering this service? How many think of teaching in the Sunday School, taking an active part in the Christian Endeavor Society or Union, or doing some other type of church work? I wonder how many have a broader view for service and thought of some full-time service, such as preaching or being a missionary on the home or foreign field?

Of course, we want to do some specific religious work for Christ, and we want to remember, too, that we can be a witness for him and render great service for him in a general way by living our daily lives in the manner which he exemplified for us, by rendering service whenever and wherever the occasion arose. I read this little poem the other day, which impresses me:

I read in a book
 Where a man called Great
 Went about doing good.
 It is very disconcerting to me
 That I am so easily satisfied
 With just going about.

How many of us does this apply to?

So we want to think for a while of the specific and the general service which we can render for Christ, thereby thinking of service in its entirety.

I wonder how many of us are doing the specific work for Christ which we should do? When we decide that we would like to be a Christian we should also realize that there are certain obligations which we must meet if we are to be the kind of Christian we should be. James tells us that we should "be doers of the Word, and not hearers only." So are we meeting our obligations? Are you teaching that Sunday School class which the superintendent asked you to take? Did you accept that position as secretary of the Missionary Society which the nominating committee wanted you to take? How about that position in your Christian Endeavor Society or Union? Are you filling that office to the best of your ability, or did you say, "No, I just can't do that," "I won't have time to do that," or offer some other excuse, shirking your responsibility? You know, we can do those things, if we really want to. What we need is more faith—more faith in ourselves, more faith in God, believing that he will give us the necessary wisdom and strength to accomplish these things.

Then, too, I believe we can find time to do the things we really want to do. Isn't it generally the busiest person in your society, church or community who will take on something else to do?

The wisest minds of all ages have sought to lengthen human life. The practical thing for us to do is to try to get more of the time we do have. We do not have a modern Joshua to make the sun stand still. But if we can get more into the days as they are, make the years mean more, we serve far better than if we could perform the miracle of prolonging life or making the sun stand still. The secret lies in the little word NOW.

The quotations are taken from Charles Miller in "Nautilus."

"All that we are or have, all that we ever were or had, all that we ever will be or have, all our dreams, hopes, possessions, loves, associations are ours by virtue only of that slender thread of an instant—NOW. Many of the greatest lives in history have been short in years, but full of achievement. According as we use NOW, our lives are large or small."

If we feel that God is calling us for full-time service, then let's begin now making preparation for this work, even if we don't see just how we can finance it, or otherwise do it, at present. Let's have faith enough to believe that God will provide the way.

Now, let's think about the general service we can render in "going about doing good" in the common, every-day tasks of life. The way in which Christ would have us serve him is by serving our fellow man. And sometimes the greatest service which we render is not when we are doing some specific religious task, but it is done by the way in which we live our daily life. We remember in our Scripture lesson, those whom Christ awarded were not aware that they had been serving Christ, and they asked the question: "When saw we thee hungry, naked, and in prison and administered unto thee?" And Christ informed that inasmuch as they had done it unto one of the least of these, they had rendered that service unto him. So we should be careful to make the best of the opportunities which we have of helping those about us, for we remember the reward of the faithful and the fate of those who were neglectful.

And we don't have to sit down and wait for the opportunity to come right to our door—but let's be interested enough to look about us a little and we will find so many things that need to be done, just little things that you and I or anybody can do. Matters not how small the deed, if it helps to make just one person a little happier than it has not been done in vain. Jesus has promised that the giving of a cup of cold water in his name shall not be unrewarded.

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of man, and bearing about all the burden he can.

Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue, and the smile would have helped him to battle it through.

Did you give him a hand? He was slipping downhill, and the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.

Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road? Or did you just let him go on with his load?

Did you help him along? He is human, like you, but the grasp of your hand would have carried him through.

Did you bid him good cheer? Just a word and a smile were what he needed most that last weary mile.

Did you know what he bore in that burden of cares that is every man's load, and that sympathy share. Did you try to find out what he needed from you, or did you just leave him to battle it through?

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight, when a lift just in time might set everything right?

Do you know what it means—just the clasp of a hand—when a man's borne all that a man ought to stand?

Again we can emphasize that little word NOW. So often we intend to speak that word of cheer, pay that friendly visit, do that deed of kindness, but we are prone to be procrastinators. Lately we have heard much about the needs of others for food and clothing. We think of a dress or

(Continued on page 14.)

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

IN SUNSHINE.

(EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

Umbrellas and parasols have gone out of style for use in shielding one from sunshine. This is because the doctors have decreed, or discovered, that there is healing in sun rays. It is not fresh air only that the system needs, and must have, if the body is to be strong and healthful. This frame needs the unhindered rays of the shining sun both as creative and preventive. They flock to Florida in hundreds of thousands during the winter not to avoid the cold only, but to get out into the beaming, bracing, balmy, curative sunshine. The whole human race should be thankful that whatever is essential to life, God has created in abundance and for the most part it is free to all, or inexpensive. Fresh air, sunshine, water, salt, corn or wheat, vegetables—basic things of life—our Creator provided an infinite abundance.

Well, it is good to be in a climate warm enough now so that one may enjoy the blessed and beneficent sun rays all the day long.

Tragedy is everywhere. Man is not content to obey the laws of safety and security. So he courts death and wins. Three nights ago, at midnight, when rest and security are in order of nature, five Rollins College students went on a joy ride of death—and won. The high-powered Packard in which they were riding was reported by an eye witness to be at its top speed and failed to take a turn in the street two blocks from which I write. One wheel of the car struck a water-main and sent the whole car with terrific impact head-on against a giant electric pole across the street. Two of the young men, one the owner and driver of the car, a lad of 20, whose home was in New Jersey, were instantly killed, the other three injured and ambulated to a nearby hospital. Two young lives snuffed out, as the coroner's jury later found, "in an accident that could have been avoided."

Of course! Why drive 70 miles an hour when half that speed will suffice in safety? One need not wonder why a father will let a son of 20 years of age go off to college with a Packard. The lad, no doubt, wished to do it. And why not indulge his wish? Ours is an age of freedom, and youth to be strong, must grow up naturally—unhindered, unhampered by old fogey notions and parental restraint. And the son, when he gets into his high powered car, why shouldn't he speed up if he wishes? That is nature's bent. Why not follow nature's lead, and thus grow to be a strong man naturally?

Well, our sympathies are with the father and mother now who are bereft indeed—both of an automobile and a son.

Tragedies have become so frequent now that they cease to be other than local news. The

KNIGHTON BLOOM.

Small in stature, great in heart

Is our dear friend, Knighton Bloom;

Ever doing well his part

In the field or office room;

Cheering every worker's heart,

Yet expecting each one's best;

Stern to him who slacks his part,

Or is selfish in his quest.

Riding day and night the train,

Carrying messages of truth;

Stopped not by cold or rain,

To the adults and the youth;

Patient with us all, thank God,

Fearlessly he speaks his say,

Hates to use the cutting rod

As he walks life's busy way.

Friend of mine for thirty years,

We have known each other well;

Years of toil, of hopes and fears—

How impossible to tell

Of the love and high regard

That I feel for you, dear "Pard,"

Here's my hand—you have my heart.

May not sickness' fiery dart,

Nor dark sorrow pierce your soul,

As you travel toward the goal

Of the life that is to come

In our fair and heavenly home.

Many words of wisdom give,

And may He who is the Way,

Brighten every passing day

CLARENCE A. VINCENT.

Orlando papers published this tragedy in the news of the day, but it is doubtful if papers in other localities did. They had tragedies of a similar nature to publish in their own news columns.

The fruit growers of Florida, orange and grape fruit producers in particular, are up in arms and all at sea. The orchards—"groves"—are just loaded with unusual abundance and quality. Trucks and trains cannot seem to reduce, or make any serious inroads into, the enormous supply. There seems to the casual observer to be enough citrus fruit here to feed the world at breakfast for many months to come. But the "C. W. A.," the "A. A. A.," the "R. F. C.," nor any other governmental arrangement of the alphabet, does not seem to help the grower—give him a living price for his output. In fact, a Federal judge here in Florida in court session one day last week declared the "A. A. A." unconstitutional, and now Washington says it can't help because its law intended as a help, is unconstitutional, and so inoperative in Florida.

Meanwhile, thousands of crates of luscious golden oranges and grape fruit are rolling out of Florida every day to grace the tables and carry their savory tastes to millions of Americans who are not worrying about the inevitable law of supply and demand.

The writer had the privilege of visiting briefly, the other day, Rev. G. O. Lankford and family at Memorial Home, Penny Farms, Fla. Dr. Lankford is improving in health, strength and hope, and it seems now, by the grace and power of God, that he will stage a come-back, and be able one day to reenter the world he so much loves, and in which he has been so abundantly blessed. The happy family of three, Dr. and Mrs. Lankford and Wilbur, have a "cute" and comfortable apartment on the "Penny Farms," so named not because anybody there "farms," but because of the broad open and boundless acres that stretch out in the far distance, purchased and kept in order by the Penny (of Penny chain store fame and fortune), as a place of rest, refuge and recreation for disabled ministers and returned missionaries and their families. It is a colony of cultured, refined, genteel Christian men and women, gathered from fields of religious service all over the world. A great idea, indeed, and most benevolent, that man Penny had—and has. He comes occasionally from his busy life, and visits his "Farms" on which thrive and grow to usefulness again those who wait upon the Lord, and thus renew their strength in this goodly place.

J. O. A.

THE CHURCH AND THE HOME.

In our thought and vision we draw the line between worship and work, between religion and daily life. We use the words "secular" and "sacred." The Bible, however, makes no distinctions as these. It draws no line between the synagogue and the house, and the reason we fail to harmonize and understand the manifold experiences of life is because we do not recognize this fact. Life is a unit. It cannot be separated into different compartments, saying there is a sacred part, and there is the secular part.

In their work the church and the home should be one, for the church reminds us that heaven and earth are calling, and church and home symbolize the needs of the soul and the needs of the body; fellowship with God and fellowship with man, and the value of true religion lies not in its contrast with the daily life, but in its communion with daily life. The unlovely places in life, the unpleasant experiences should find a relationship with our worship of God. The church is a place that brings a sense of escape from the strain and pain of things. It does record great hours and epochs in the soul's life. That is part of its value, but it teaches us that when we have worshipped as we should it is easier, not harder, for us to go forward and answer the calls of life. The church and the home are not unrelated parts of our life. They are one and Jesus intends to weave all that is richest in one into all that is neediest in the other, to make the church a sacrament of help and the home a place of peace and both part of the great presence chamber of God's eternal love and mercy. He intends us to return and work at our daily tasks in the very spirit with which we are blessed in our worship in the church. In passing from the church to the home there need be no change in atmosphere, for with his presence life's trial can be sweetened, and the peace of God abound. Is the connection tight between church and home, worship and work, Christ and your heart?—Rev. J. S. Willett.

HISTORY OF CATAWBA SPRINGS CHURCH.

(Continued from last issue.)

In November, 1901, W. H. Roach was called to the pastorate and served until October, 1903, when M. W. Butler was called and accepted. The pastorate of Mr. Butler lasted for three years, when in November, 1906, he was succeeded by Rev. A. P. Barbee. Mr. Barbee's pastorate lasted for five years, and continued until the beginning of the pastorate of the present pastor in November, 1911. In November, 1911, Rev. J. Lee Johnson was called to the leadership and continues at the present time in that relationship. It appears, therefore, that Mr. Johnson has been pastor for 22 years. This appears to be the second longest pastorate in the history of the church, that of Rev. Little John Utley only being of a longer duration. The pastorates of these two men have covered more than one-third of the long history of the church. The best information as to the length of the pastorate of Rev. Little John Utley to be gathered from the old minutes, show that it was approximately 25 years. It therefore appears that he and the present pastor have served the church no less than 47 years.

Dr. Rainsford, for many years pastor of one of the great churches of New York City, has said that no pastor can see the results of his labors until he sees children grow up in the church under his ministry and take their places as men and women in its service. Granting the truthfulness of Dr. Rainsford's statement, then the average pastor in the average congregation never sees the results of his labors. Among all Protestant denominations, the Episcopalians and the Presbyterians are to be envied by ministers of other denominations, and commended to all Protestants for the length of the pastorates they support. This writer knows one Episcopal pastor who has served one congregation for 38 years, and he is apparently still in the prime of a vigorous manhood, popular with his people, a social and civic leader in the community that has witnessed his long service for the people.

From the old minutes it appears that the pastorate of the Rev. John Hays lasted from 1803 to 1825. He, therefore, served the church for the same length of time—22 years—that Mr. Johnson has been pastor. The three pastorates combined make a grand total of 69 years, and since the church is now 130 years old, it is clear that these three men have served the church more than one-half of its history. It seems clear that the church has had at least 24 pastors; six of whom were called the second time to the pastorate of the church. From general information it appears that a hundred years ago a pastor was expected to, and served, a church much longer than the average one is permitted to serve today. Restlessness of both pastor and people has been assigned as the most probable cause for short pastorates. And when we turn from Protestantism to Roman Catholicism, we find far more permanency in pastoral relationships. A Catholic priest practically has a life tenure.

Conscious of trespassing on space, detailed tributes to several faithful pastors who served the church between 1885 and 1911 have to be omitted. However, the writer asks permission to say a few words concerning two of these men, namely, Rev. J. L. Foster and Rev. J. W. Wellons. This urge probably comes from the fact that as a young man these two men were often listened to with much pleasure and no little profit.

J. L. Foster was the Raleigh pastor at the time known. He is an educated gentleman, far above the average man in native talents and accomplishments, a genial companion, a fine conversationalist, refined and cultured, he preached well prepared sermons, had a pleasing delivery, a winning, persuasive voice, a pleasing personality, and won many friends. His manners were always polished and very democratic; his sermons were brief, clear and concise, and the attention given them was perfect on all occasions.

Rev. J. W. Wellons was a strong individual; he had a rather large body, and a large head well stocked with useful knowledge, especially select passages of scripture which were always at tongue's end. He believed the Bible as few men did during his generation or as few men do in this generation. His convictions were strong and positive, as a preacher he spoke as one having authority, his doubts seemed few, if any, his faith seemed clear and strong. He preached most vigorous sermons; but in an attractive style, he impressed people with the fact that the influence of Jesus Christ had made him a Christian and a gentleman. Nature made J. W. Wellons a born leader in thought and service; without ostentation he was a prominent and conspicuous specimen of vigorous manhood in any crowd. He lived far beyond the term allotted to men and died crowned by the rich harvests of his labors, the plaudits of his denomination and the unnumbered friends he had made during a long life of faithful service.

REV. J. LEE JOHNSON.

Soon after entering the ministry he was called, and now, for 22 years, has gone in and out among the people composing the membership of Catawba Springs Church. If he had only filled his regular monthly appointments, preaching on Saturday and Sunday morning, he would have preached no less than 528 sermons. But during these more than two decades he has conducted many funerals in the congregation. Mr. Johnson is a popular preacher and pastor. His health in recent years has not been very vigorous which somewhat interferes with his visiting as much as he would like to do. He is an agreeable, congenial gentleman, liked by everybody. He prepares his sermons thoroughly; preaches effectively, never too long, and is listened to attentively. He is a conservative religious thinker, apparently has no inclination to liberalism along religious lines. He interprets the Bible rather liberally, but makes practical applications of its teachings. He has little, if any, sympathy with modern trends in religion. He preaches popular sermons. His ministry is highly successful among the people. He is a good pastor, able to sympathize with people in every hour of trouble, and has won many strong friends by his friendliness and by his devotion to the church and the people.

Mr. Johnson is no stranger from afar; he grew to manhood in the adjoining neighborhood. He is a graduate of Elon College, reads current news and conservative religious literature. He is a man of strong faith; and is a scrupulous and conscientious teacher of religious truth. He stands for every cause making for the betterment of the people. There would seem to be no cause why his ministry should not continue permanently with the church, for in language he is discreet, in judgment excellent, and in deportment most exemplary. He thinks clearly, speaks distinctly and persuasively, neither offending in speech or manner.

CLERKS.

The first minutes signed are dated October 1937, and are signed by Jonathan Utley, Recording Clerk. At a Conference in January, 1938, acting upon a request from the General Conference to procure a suitable book in which to keep all records, on motion of James Woodward, Jonathan Utley was chosen clerk and instructed to secure a suitable book for the records. The old records up to this time appear to be in the handwriting of Jonathan Utley; so it seems evident that he had formerly acted as clerk or securing a book transcribed the records for permanent preservation. He continued in this capacity for 18 years resigning in 1856. He wrote a beautiful hand; and is said to have been a fine business man. He was the first cousin of Rev. Little John Utley; Jonathan was the son of Isham, while Little John was the son of Jacob. The mother of Jonathan was Mary Myatt, she is, without doubt, the Mary Utley, Sr., who joined in 1802. Jonathan was married on November 2, 1799, to Francis Sugg, he must have been born during the Revolution. He was the father of several children, all of whom became useful citizens; and when he resigned as clerk he was succeeded by his son.

ALEXANDER S. UTLEY.

A. S. Utley served as clerk for fifteen years, or through 1871. He was regular in church attendance, a prominent citizen and prosperous farmer; before the abolition of slavery he and his slaves belonged to the same church. In this connection it may be of interest to note the fact that at the close of the Civil War there were 44 slaves in the membership of Pleasant Spring Church, but they do not seem to have been counted in the number of members sent up to the General Conference. After the close of the war, a resolution was passed, dropping their names unless they asked to be permitted to remain, and their names seem to have been dropped from the roll of membership. A. S. Utley was the father of the late Mrs. Tom Council, also of Dr. B. S. Utley, both of whom were lifelong members of the same church as their father. On the resignation of A. S. Utley as clerk, he was succeeded by Squire Allen Adams.

Allen Adams was the son-in-law of Jonathan Utley, and the records say he joined the church in 1771. He had therefore donated the plot of land for the new church, Catawba Springs, prior to his uniting with the church. And he was chosen clerk a few months after becoming a member. He served the church as clerk ten years, resigning in 1881 on account of his age. This date was February 5th. On November 5, 1881, the minutes specify that there was no preaching on account of the death of "our lamented Brother Allen Adams." For many years he was the leading magistrate in his part of the county, and his contemporaries considered him the equal, in legal ability, of the average man on the Superior Court bench. His legal advice was sought from far and near. He had a legal mind, fine common sense, a fine judge of human nature, impartial in his decisions, a man of more than average ability, prominent as a citizen, influential among his neighbors, liberal in his views and progressive, well informed on current events, a man of vision and considerate of other people's feelings, rights and interests. His body must have been one of the first to find a resting place in the new cemetery at the church; his body lies buried near the entrance of the east wing of the church. A simple headstone marks his resting place. From the minutes it appears that the records of the church were kept for three-quarters of a century by Jonathan Utley, his son and son-in-law, three outstanding, upstanding men, the memory of whom lingers as a rich legacy to their church, families, and the children of the former generation.

JESSE WINBORN.

The recording pen fell from a legal hand and mind to one deft in all matters financial. For the name of Jesse Winborn was the synonym of financial success. Shrewd in all business transactions, able to balance cost and income, he could see where the profits lay; he made wise investments, made profits where others sustained only
(Continued on page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Last night a light snow fell in Suffolk. This morning only a few patches were left as a reminder of the storm. These white spots on the ground seemed to be a protest against the gray, drab earth on which they lay. The ground looks filthy when partly covered with snow. The earth is beautiful when sleeping under a blanket of fleecy white, which has been gently wafted from the heavens above. But when it melts and the bare earth appears the picture is changed.

There are twenty-five references in the Bible to snow. Some of these Bible references suggest that snow is a type of purity. In Psalm 51:7, these words are found: "Purge me with hyssop and I shall be clean; wash me and I shall be whiter than snow." And in Isaiah 1:18: "Come now, let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

The earth looks different in a snow storm because there is a contrast with everything in the range of the eye. Life is different when it is made white and clean by the salvation of Jesus Christ. The Christian life differs from the life of the unsaved. It is a difference between being saved and lost, pure and impure, holy and unholy, clean and unclean. To many people, the difference is very painful. Young people are challenged by this difference when they face the friendship and companionship of the world. Especially is this true in the social contacts of the young.

A minister very frankly said some time ago: "My daughters wish to enjoy the fellowship of other young people, but when they go out to parties they are expected to play cards and dance and engage in many other kindred social activities of the present age. If they stand by the teachings of our home, they will not be invited out to these parties. Consequently they feel that they are compelled to conform to the customs and wishes of their friends, or they will be criticized and ostracized for being different."

There is the problem. It is painful to be different under such circumstances. Shall life go on in the regular routine? Is it to be expected that we live a life of conformity? "And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." (Romans 12:2.) The world expects a Christian to be different. The difference is more painful to the unsaved than to the saved. A follower of Christ may feel uncomfortable in a social group, which engages in some amusement in which he cannot consistently take a part. That is not as painful as the experience of one who is conscious of a moral deficiency and a spiritual need.

A few days ago a man was riding with me in my car. He is not a member of the church. He is advanced in years. The conversation turned to the church and the spiritual life. I said: "I have been very deeply interested in you. I want to see you identified with the church." "Oh," he replied, "it is terrible to live and die without being spiritually satisfied. I know there is something in the Christian religion that I should have, and I wish I had faith enough to pray until I can get it." He represents the frank experience of every normal person who has had the privilege of spiritual contact with real Christianity. The snow is winter's beautiful gift to man to teach him the purity of nature when the earth is cold and drab and uninviting. And in the earth are many sleeping bulbs, which, when springtime comes, will burst forth in green foliage and crown this with white lilies to impress the passing throng with their purity, beauty and fragrance. God wants those who believe in him to be different. He expects them to be clean and uplifting to others.

I. W. JOHNSON.

TELL US WE CAN DO IT.

At the mid-year meeting of the Congregational-Christian Church Boards held in Evanston, Ill., January 22nd, Dr. Chas. E. Burton, executive secretary, delivered the keynote address that outlined for us many of the problems confronting the church today, but he said: "We are able to solve these problems. We are able to do whatever is necessary to be done to succeed. All we need is somebody to tell us WE CAN DO IT." He delivered a really great address and inspired the officials of the church as they faced the task of that meeting and of the church at large.

Our churches in the Southern Convention have their problems—problems that are extensive and exacting. There has been a tendency on the part of too many of us to feel that our problems entail responsibilities too great to be borne. We must evade the idea of defeat. Thus far we have succeeded in our Convention program. Let this fact encourage us. We are now in the midst of our second major item on the program, namely, a campaign for the College. We have been asked to raise $25,000.00 for Elon. This fact has been put on the mind and heart of every pastor. Every church has been given its quota. Both pastor and church have been urged to put forth their very best efforts to see that their quota is raised so that we may not fail in this supreme effort for our College.

If we are to succeed, it will take the cooperation of every loyal soul and generous heart. The days and weeks are passing. As we near the close of the campaign, we need somebody to tell us that WE CAN DO IT. Let this message of confidence and assurance be carried to every church whether large or small. The faithful pastor with his rural congregation needs somebody to encourage him and to say with an air of confidence that YOU CAN DO IT. When a pastor and his people believe in a cause and are determined to do their part, there is nothing human that can defeat them.

Perhaps you are saying, it is well enough to say that we can do it, but you are listening for someone to tell you how it can be done. May I offer a few suggestions. For example, here is a church in the country with a hundred members, all of whom are farmers. They have preaching services once a month. The pastor arrives at the church on Sunday morning in time for the morning service, delivers his message, and drives hastily to the next point. This is the only visit he will make during the month. He wants to reach the quota for his church and the church would like a place in the roll of honor in this campaign. How can the quota for this church be raised? They are due to raise $50.00. The responsibility rests with the pastor. IT CAN BE DONE!

There are different methods that might be used. Perhaps the more effective method would be to divide the membership into four groups of twenty-five each and ask each group to raise $12.50 that each group is organized, with a responsible each, and he, that is the pastor, personally see leader at the head. Allow two weeks in which to complete the task. With such a plan, if the pastor will do his part, I think there will be no question but that the money will be raised.

On the other hand, here is a church in the city, say of eight hundred members, many of whom have been out of work—$400.00 is to be raised. How can this be done? This amount, perhaps could be raised on a similar plan. The membership would be divided into thirty-two equal groups with a captain over each group, each group having the same amount to raise. The success of the campaign depends largely on the number of people you are able to interest and use in the campaign.

Many of the churches are using envelopes. This is a fine way to keep track of who gives and the amount given, but if a church is to succeed, it will require some definite organization with someone back of the organization to see that it functions.

Another method, of course, to be used would be an individual canvass, dividing the membership of the church into groups as above suggested and then have individuals to canvass every member of the church for his individual contribution.

These are only suggestions. Perhaps the pastor will have other plans more suited to his individual case. This one fact, however, should be borne in mind, and that is that for the Conferences to vote to raise $25,000.00 for Elon College and request the pastors and churches to cooperate in raising this money, will not get the money. If we are to succeed in this campaign it will mean that every pastor plus a committee in every church will have to give some serious thought and much effort to the campaign. If every pastor in the Convention with at least a committee of five from each church will work at this campaign sufficiently long to see that every individual in the church is given an opportunity, under favorable conditions, to contribute, the campaign will be a success. The goal will be reached, and the College will be greatly benefited. It is a big undertaking. IT CAN BE DONE, and it will be done, if pastors and members of the churches will give themselves to the task. Elon College is depending on YOU!

L. E. SMITH, President.

A SOUTHERN EXPONENT OF RACIAL JUSTICE

[Dr. J. H. Dillard, told of in the following article, was born and spent his early life in Nansemond County near our Holy Neck Church, and is a close reader of THE SUN, and occasionally contributes to its columns. J. O. A.]

When a poor man has a university named after him it is prima facie evidence of unusual worth on his part. Yet one of the happiest incidents connected with the endeavors of the Methodist Church, the American Missionary Association and the citizens of New Orleans to establish a high-grade institution of learning in that city has been the spontaneity and enthusiasm with which they adopted the name Dillard University.

His long service and broad vision have made James Hardy Dillard a conspicuous leader in racial movement. Born in Virginia, educated at Washington and Lee University, for over thirty years a teacher in various Southern schools and colleges, he embodies the classical tradition of the South. At one time or another he has taught thirteen different subjects. His literary achievements include a book of arithmetic exercises and the editing of editions of Wordsworth's poems, Cicero's letters and a selection of German verse. His last years of teaching were spent as professor of Latin and dean of the Academic College of Tulane University in New Orleans. He has received honorary degrees from four Southern universities and from Harvard.

The year 1907 found this exponent of the classics serving on the boards of three Negro schools which were then competing with one another in New Orleans. He was seeking to evolve some sort of a merger when he was invited to become the directing head of the newly established Jeanes Fund for the improvement of rural Negro schools. This opportunity had not particularly impressed him until a prominent banker of New Orleans stopped him on the street to say: "If Northern people are willing to give the money for such a venture, we of the South should be willing to supply the leadership with which to do the work." This statement was one of the influences which led Mr. Dillard to abandon the teaching of Southern white boys and serve instead for twenty-four years the cause of Negro education as president of the Jeanes Foundation and director of the John F. Slater Fund. In this capacity he was responsible for putting into the field a multitude of county supervisors of manual arts instruction among the Negro schools of the South. So successful has his method of stimulating educational progress proved that an increasing proportion of the expense has been borne by the local school authorities. Through the Slater Fund, Mr. Dillard has worked for the advancement of colleges and high schools. To both of these Funds the General Education Board has contributed liberally.

For the last two years James Dillard has been technically "retired," though that is hardly a passive verb when applied to a man of his physical stature and intellectual versatility. When asked, on a recent visit to New York, as to the history of the interracial movement in the South, he outlined four stages through which it has passed:

1. The post-war years, during which even good people in the South honestly doubted the advisability of educating the recently freed slaves.

2. The pioneer period, during which the objective was to persuade the white people and the school authorities to do something for the Negro children. At this time James Hardy Dillard spoke in all of the State universities of the South in behalf of the Negro and led in the organization of the University Commission, which met two or three times a year to reconsider racial problems. During these years the agitation on behalf of the Negro was carried on almost exclusively by white men, the main purpose being to influence white people.

3. The interracial era, with the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, under which a number of local commissions were organized on which the two races met together and discussed common matters. In this period the Negro came to speak increasingly on his own behalf.

4. The day of Negro self-reliance, which is now with us, in which the colored race undertakes to look out for itself, without asking any favors of the whites. "Fine—if it does not go too far!" was the comment of this veteran of all four periods.

"Talking about race relations is like uprooting a flower to see how it is growing," is a favorite statement with Mr. Dillard. He believes that in the South better conditions will be brought about more rapidly by "natural association" and the increase of education than by agitation. He expressed profound respect for the character and attainments of a host of individual Negroes who have made for themselves positions of large influence in their communities by their own inherent worth. He believes that the hope of future lies in an increasing exercise of political suffrage on the part of the Negroes, and cited a number of incidents to show that they are both voting more freely than in the past and are actually being consulted in regard to community problems. Best of all was his belief that this was coming about in a natural and sane way.

The man after whom Dillard University has been named is not a sentimentalist, but his whole life has been an exposition of his interracial philosophy of justice adorned with courtesy.—From The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

ELON COLLEGE DAY AT DAMASCUS.

Elon College Day was observed at Damascus Church, of Sunbury, N. C., Sunday, January 14th. A large number were present.

A very interesting talk was made by Dr. J. E. Rawls, of Suffolk, on the subject, "Education." Special music was rendered by the College Alumni of the community.

Damascus is a thriving little church. Its Woman's Missionary Society has grown greatly within the last few years, and special effort is made to accomplish greater ends with its increasing membership.

It also has a progressive Young People's organization and a large Sunday School.

Under the leadership of Rev. E. B. White, the pastor, great interest in all activities is being shown by the church members, and much progress is hoped for during the coming year.

NEWS ITEM.

For some time I have been thinking that I would let SUN readers hear from us, but one thing or another has kept us busy. We have been getting along fine, with large congregations at every service.

There is very little sickness at present. We have had only two deaths since Conference in our field.

Santa Claus was exceedingly nice to us, bringing us many valuable presents during the Christmas season. Since that time, the good folks of Union Ridge and Stony Creek sections presented us with a pounding, and a pounding it was. Everything one could imagine: things that always come in good and handy for table use. We extend our grateful appreciation and sincere thanks to these fine folks for their generous remembrance.

G. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

Missions are becoming a two-way bridge between people.—E. Raymond Wilson.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¾ x 1¼ inches.

—Type in Junior's Bible—
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of 137 years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even faint-eth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 10 Mercy and truth together; righteousness kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 2½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 7 Jē-hōy-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red un-edges, silk

hea

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x.-----
- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x.-----$6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¾ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave: death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35
- Oxford India Paper Edition Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

THE CHANGELESS CHRIST IN A NEW YEAR.

Seeking "effective ways of working" in the task of making Christ known to the world is a noble endeavor. The old Message, to be acceptable, needs to be cast in the mold of present-day thinking, aligned with new social trends and thought currents, garbed in the best mode of the day and given a flavor assuring its palatability. The commendations received by this department editor, from the foreign as well as the home constituency, testify to the keen relish with which contributions to this department are appropriated by missionary workers in all divisions of church life. We are endeavoring to do our missionary tasks in a more attractive way than ever before.

What is the reaction to the pragmatic test, namely, how does it "work?" While we are hoping much from the younger generation now in training, we cannot at present deny that the "Great Depression" seems to be at its maximum in the matter of missions, and that the motivations by which we have previously energized the enterprise are failing us. Dr. H. Paul Douglas, of the University of Chicago, sent out a questionnaire to 12,000 persons in twenty-eight denominations inquiring their attitude toward foreign missions. Fifty-one per cent of those who replied indicated that they would hesitate or refuse to support even the foreign missions of their own denomination. If we face these facts with the candor which is a prime characteristic of modern youth, we must admit that something is seriously wrong—not with our methods but with our dynamics. We need not only to "Re-think Missions" but to re-think the whole matter of our personal Christianity and our public church life. Apropos of the proposed changes of the organization in Baptist missionary machinery, the editor of Missions says:

"All proposals made at Washington (where the annual meeting of the denomination was held last year), concern mechanics, whereas our primary need is one of dynamics. Of what use are blueprint surveys of a machine, gear shifts or wheel changes, or more accurate articulation of cogs, if the power in the machine is lacking? We have lost a dynamic. There is no longer among us a driving urge to share the Gospel with the world. We have lost an impelling conviction so finely expressed by the missionary conference at Jerusalem five years ago:

"We cannot live without Christ; and we cannot bear to think of men living without him. Christ is our motive and Christ is our end. We must give nothing less. We can give nothing more."

"But how can we give the world something that we ourselves no longer have? It is futile to attempt to reorganize the denomination if its motivating missionary spirit is no stronger after re-organization than it was before. As Baptists we will make no further progress until that missionary urge and that impelling conviction are recovered. Stanley Jones summarized it well: 'We cannot go farther until we go deeper.'"

What denomination facing its facts dares assert that the problem referred to above is limited to any one? Think ye that these Baptists on whose world-wide endeavors the depression has fallen were sinners above all men that sat in church pews? "I tell you, nay; but except ye repent, ye shall likewise perish."

The supreme need of this day is for an intensive personal "practice of the presence of God"; the results of that divine leadership in forming our plans, their infilling with the activating Power, and the outgoing of Christ-born love of the uttermost parts, as much needed motivation. All this may be done in modernized "ways of working." There is no virtue in harking back to old trends and methods. Christ was the greatest iconoclast and reformer of history. Instead of merely crying for "an old-fashioned revival of religion," inclusive of mission, why not drop the "fashion" as negligible and concentrate on the Leadership and the Power? These are the needed dynamics. Instead of juggling with the "old" and the "new," let us all earnestly seek an infilling with the unchanging Spirit of God for our New Year's endeavor.

Says Earnest Fremont Tittle:

"Today I am more than ever convinced that Jesus is indeed the Way, the Truth, and the Life. History, which has so often vindicated him, is certainly vindicating him now. They that took the sword are perishing with the sword. They that sought selfishly to save their own lives and investments are losing them. A society divided against itself is not standing. A society which laid up for itself treasures upon the earth—and none in heaven—is going to pieces. And behold what is being added unto a society that sought first, not the Kingdom of God, but wealth, pleasure and power! Jesus is no longer on trial. What is on trial is a civilization which piously called him "Lord, Lord," but refused to do the things which he commanded."—Missionary Review.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 3, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,261.21
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C.	1.00
Wentworth, Raleigh, N. C.	1.56
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.00
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	6.76
Palm St., Greensboro, N. C.	6.00
New Lebanon, Summerfield, N. C.	5.50
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	3.28
South Norfolk, Va.	7.25
Christian Light, Varina, N. C.	.85
Ether, N. C.	1.08
Ramseur, N. C.	4.50
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	4.31
Durham, N. C.	6.60
Hopewell, Va.	1.20
Wakefield, Va.	2.32
Park's Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	4.75
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.	15.82
Ebenezer, Cary, N. C.	2.00
Total	$ 1,336.99

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 699.40
Burlington Sunday School, Burlington, N. C.	26.81
Total	$ 726.21

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 8,115.53
Sunday Schools, Regular	75.78
Specials	26.81
Total to date	$ 8,218.12

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y,

MISSIONARY REPORT.

Woman's Board, Eastern Virginia Conference, Quarter ending January 15, 1934:

Women's Societies.

Berea, Nansemond	$ 6.70
Bethlehem	83.00
Christian Temple	97.50
Cypress Chapel	7.00
Damascus	9.00
Dendron	14.00
Elm Avenue	9.11
First, Norfolk	20.55
First, Portsmouth	10.50
First, Richmond	10.00
Franklin	50.00
Holland	18.00
Holy Neck	37.50
Hopewell	2.90
Liberty Spring	30.00
Mt. Carmel	14.00
Newport News	12.60
Oakland	12.50
Rosemont	70.73
Suffolk	55.00
South Norfolk	10.00
Wakefield	14.00
Waverly	12.50
Windsor	5.60
Total	$ 612.69

Young People's Societies.

Bethlehem	$ 32.00
Burton's Grove	7.50
Christian Temple	7.60
Cypress Chapel	10.00
Dendron	6.80
First, Norfolk	4.12
First, Portsmouth	5.00
Franklin	18.75
Holland	6.08
Holy Neck	7.50
Liberty Spring	15.00
Mt. Carmel	5.00
New Lebanon	3.60
Oakland	8.75
Rosemont	3.10
Suffolk	19.30
Windsor	2.00
Total	$ 162.10

Juniors.

Berea, Nansemond	$ 3.00
Bethlehem	5.00
Christian Temple	13.00
Cypress Chapel	1.00
First, Portsmouth	1.00
Franklin	15.00
Holland	5.18
Holy Neck	10.00
Liberty Spring	2.50
Mt. Carmel	2.00
Newport News	5.00
Oakland	1.00
Suffolk	15.00
Windsor	3.88
Rosemont	3.09
Total	$ 85.65

Cradle Roll.

Cypress Chapel	$ .50
Oakland	1.00
Total	$ 1.50

Summary.

Women's Societies	$ 612.69
Young People's Societies	162.10
Juniors	85.65
Cradle Roll	1.50
Total	$ 861.94

MRS. W. V. LEATHERS, Pres.

HISTORY OF CATAWBA SPRINGS CHURCH.

(Continued from page 5.)

losses, and became reasonably independent. In his old age his denomination not only turned to him for advice in emergencies, but for contributions in tight places and always received liberal benefactions; at his death he gave all he had away.

T. M. Franks served from 1885 until November 6, 1897, a period of 12 years. Whether or not Mr. Franks succeeded Mr. Winborn as clerk, I am not able to tell; however, it appears that he did.

In 1897, Mr. E. B. Morris was chosen clerk, and served until November, 1901, when he was succeeded by M. C. Sorrell, who kept the records until succeeded in 1906 by T. M. Franks. Mr. Franks retained the books again for nine years, or until 1915, when the books were placed in the hands of H. M. Rhodes. Mr. Rhodes served as clerk until November, 1917, when the present clerk was chosen. It therefore appears that the present clerk, Mr. B. F. Branch, has kept the church records for 15 years.

The clerks whose terms of service appear to have been longest have been: Jonathan Utley, A. S. Utley, T. M. Franks and B. F. French.

PROMINENT MEMBERS. . . .

From 1831 the minutes tell us who the delegates were to the annual conferences; and from these the inference is easily drawn as to the leading men in the membership. Rev. Anthony Franks lived until 1871; he had represented the church as a messenger ten times; Green Austin was sent as a delegate nine times; Jonathan Utley died in 1862; he had represented the church eight times as the annual representative; Lewis Franks, a charter member and the father of Anthony Franks, represented the church seven times. For some unexplained cause he withdrew from the church; date not given. A. S. Utley represented the church six times; James Woodward, five times; William H. Franks, four times.

Other names occurring, but less frequently, are: Elridge Austin, Lewis Beman, J. D., Theophilus, and Austin Franks; N. Hunter, Elias, and James Langston, father and son; A. J. McLean, Henry Murry, John Utley, B. S. Utley, Young Jones, Samuel Rowland and Matthey Sorrell.

MINISTERS TRAINED BY THE CHURCH.

Rev. Little John Utley joined Pleasant Spring Church in 1803; he was then 28 years old. Twenty years later he was ordained a minister in the Christian Church, and for 36 years was an active pastor, living to the age of 84. He died at Chapel Hill, N. C., in 1859. He had one son, Jacob Utley, first a Freewill Baptist; but the last twenty years of his life a Missionary Baptist minister. Little John Utley was the grandson of a Revolutionary soldier who fought at battles of King's Mountain, Guilford Court House and the Cowpens; while the father of Little John had served as Lieutenant in the army of Governor Tryon at the battle of the Alamance and, without doubt, had fought at the battle of Moore's Creek, under Colonel Hinton, and was an active Whig and prominent as a militiaman. A man of wealth and influence, when Little John became a minister, he is said to have returned to the old home, gone to the cemetery and kneeling between the graves of his mother and father, offered fervent prayers. The late Mrs. Nancy Strain is authority for the above facts as to the prayers. She said, as a little girl, she had accompanied him at his request. From the old minutes, Little John Utley seems to have served the church to which he belonged approximately 25 years as pastor in an unbroken line. He had conscientious scruples about receiving a fixed salary, but appreciated gifts for his service. He and the Rev. H. B. Hayes organized the Christian Church in Raleigh, in 1842. Rev. J. E. McCauley, of Richmond, Va., is the great grandson of Rev. Little John Utley.

Rev. William Franks, son of Rev. Anthony Franks, was born the year Little John Utley was ordained to preach. He grew to manhood under the ministry of Utley, and at the age of 20 he was converted. Eighteen years later he was licensed to preach, and four years later was ordained. He was therefore 42 years old when he was ordained. Little John Utley was 48. For six years father and son were co-laborers together.

Rev. Anthony Franks, who, from the old records, united with Pleasant Springs Church in the year 1803, was therefore a charter member. He must have been but a boy at this time. He was the son of Lewis Franks, and the grandson of Anthony Franks, who was a pioneer settler on the hills of the branch known to his descendants as Dutchman; and said to have been so named because Anthony Franks was a German, and people usually referred to the Germans as Dutchmen. He was in the truest sense of the term a pioneer—son and grandson grew up under pioneer conditions. His father was under 16 years old in 1790. Anthony, Jr., must have been born soon after the first State capitol was completed.

Churches were very scarce and schools were unknown, while Sunday Schools were undreamed of in this new county and had but recently been started as an experiment by Robert Raikes, an Englishman, soon after the close of the American Revolution. Nothing is known of the boyhood of Anthony Franks, but since the boy is said to be the father of the man, we can reasonably infer he lived a clean, wholesome life, spent much time in God's open country, thought clean thoughts, had few neighbors and fewer books, knew nothing of the dissipations and mad rush of modern life. He was without doubt converted in early life, uniting with the church while yet a mere boy—perhaps its youngest member—feasting his hungry mind on every sermon and digesting every wholesome truth. To him God was real and religion essential. He became an Elder in the late thirties, his name first appearing as a minister in 1840; then for thirty-one years he was a minister, dying in 1871. In homes and school houses he had preached many sermons; and for many years was regarded a father in Israel by the local congregation whose wise counsellor he was always justly considered. And now, after the passing of half a century, his name is yet fragrant, as gentle spirited, conscientious and faithful to every trust, leaving a name without blemish and a reputation without a stain.

For twenty years, William Franks was an active minister, a man of sterling character, noted for his rugged honesty, a good neighbor, a Christian gentleman, the father of eight children, an exemplary Christian and a noted Bible student.

Dr. Oscar Atkinson, too, grew to manhood in this old church. His life and ministry are too well known to need discussion. For more than thirty years he has been a prominent leader in the denomination as professor at Elon College, editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN and Secretary of Missions, a scholarly gentleman, a fluent speaker and able writer, the champion of prohibition and Christian education.

Rev. Herbert Sholtz, too, grew up in Catawba Springs Church. He graduated at Elon College, located in Warren County, established a fine school, is a prominent teacher, a man of learning and a popular pastor. He grew to manhood in the home of Jesse Winborn, clerk of the church, and benefactor of Elon College; but his greatest contribution to society was the education of Herbert Sholtz, an orphan boy with a brilliant mind.

Rev. Jesse Franks, grandson of Rev. Anthony Franks, and nephew of Rev. William Franks, is a member of this church and for years a prominent citizen, a leader in educational movements locally, a progressive citizen, a successful farmer and local minister, he is an asset to the kingdom.

In closing this sketch of these men, all from one country church, it is a fact worthy of note, that the mothers of Dr. Atkinson and Jesse Franks, the wife of Rev. William Franks, the god-mother of Rev. Herbert Sholtz, and the mother of Dr. Chas. H. Rowland were all sisters, all the daughters of Austin Jones. Blood must tell. The grandfather of Austin Jones is said to have been Major Matthew Jones, of Chatham County, a Revolutionary patriot, a legislator, a man of wealth, owner of 42 slaves in 1790.

REV. M. T. SORRELL.

Rev. M. T. Sorrell, now located in Danville, Va., also grew to manhood in Catawba Springs Church. He is the son of Mr. Charlie Sorrell, for many years superintendent of the Sunday School, a leading member and for years the most liberal supporter of every beneficent cause calling for money. The son is the grandson of Matthew Sorrell on his father's side, and on his mother's side the grandson of Mr. Thomas Council, a veteran of the Civil War, and for three-quarters of a century a prominent farmer and citizen, now nearly a hundred years old. He married the daughter of A. S. Utley, for fifteen years clerk of the church, and for many years one of the most faithful members. Young Mr. Sorrell is therefore the great-great-grandson of Jonathan Utley, who for sixty years took a leading part in the development of Pleasant Spring Church, helping to guard and guide the church through the vicissitudes of fortune and misfortune. These worthy sires have transmitted to their offspring many of their traits that differentiated them from their contemporaries as men of strong character and abiding worth. Rev. Mr. Sorrell graduated from Elon College (married soon afterwards and settled in the pastorate. For several years he has been pastor in Danville, and has the reputation of being a faithful pastor, in sympathy with the laboring people, who so largely make up his present membership. Along with other inherited traits he has fortunately inherited the very valuable and essential trait of industry and does not mind work. A faithful pastor, consistent preacher, discreet and guarded in his language, he is justly popular with his own members and with members of other denominations.

All these men are worthy sons of a great country church that for one hundred and thirty years has stood as a beacon light of life, peace and happiness.

CHAS. H. UTLEY.

HEALING FOR THE HELPLESS.

From locust-ridden, drought-scorched Mt. Silinda, Africa, Nurse Minnie Tontz writes of medical work developing by leaps and bounds. "We are gradually winning the confidence of the people," she says. "During October alone there were 102 in-patients." They came in such numbers that a new hut had to be built. Everyone, even some of the other patients, went to work on it. A half hour after it was completed it was filled with 12 boys suffering from yaws. There has been also a bumper crop of baby orphans at Mt. Silinda. One of the more recent arrivals was brought in because his mother and grandmother had been killed by lightning.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

WHAT ABOUT THIS?

Norfolk Christian Endeavorers, at their recent banquet, heard this story which I think is worth passing along to others.

When the name of a certain athlete was called at the commencement of Edinburgh University, Scotland, and the young man appeared to receive his diploma the audience stood and cheered. As the procession passed from the auditorium, people standing on the streets continued the cheering. Back of this cheering was this incident.

This young college student, through high school and college, had wanted to run in the Olympic races. During his senior year in college the races were held in Paris and he was prepared well to run the 4,000 meter race. He was scheduled to run on Sunday afternoon, but being a good Scotch Presbyterian, he refused to desecrate the Sabbath by engaging in this sort of sport. On Monday the coach put him in the 8,000 meter race, for which he was not trained, and he won. The people in Edinburgh cheered him not because he won the 8,000 meter race, but because he saved Sunday for better things.

REPORT OF GROUP TWO.

Topic—Thinking of the fundamental principles taught by Dr. Judd: "How May They Affect the Building of the Program of the Local Church Group?"

We, the committee on program building for the local church, submit the following practical suggestions to be fitted into the local church program. We recommend:

1. Read more books.

(a) Form a circulating library or a reading circle among the young people.

(b) Borrow books from the minister or other leaders and the public library.

(c) Write to the Young People's Department of the Congregational-Christian Education Society for a good list of books (These books may be reviewed for the entire group if this can be done well and not become boring.)

2. Conduct a Leadership Training Course in the local church unless there is a community course. Cooperate with the Community Course, if there is one.

3. Have "Go-to-Church" emphasis from the first of the year until the Lenten season.

(a) Stress personal evangelism and place emphasis on personality rather than numbers. (In asking young people to come to church or to any gathering, invite them because you want them personally and not because you look on them as the means to the end of getting out a crowd.)

(b) Check the church attendance of the young people in some way each Sunday. (This could be a project of the Young People's Group.)

(c) Have young people share in the life of the church. (Have youth take charge of one entire church service occasionally, as during C. E. Week; serve as ushers, some of them serving as ushers each Sunday preferably; organize a young people's choir to provide music occasionally for the church service.)

4. Make community service and citizenship a project for study and activity of young people.

(a) Give to the orphanages, old folks' home, etc. (Programs are especially good and acceptable.)

(b) Have self-denial week during the year, perhaps in Lenten season. Then bring money saved to buy something that is needed for someone else.

5. Assist in the financial program of the church. Each individual young person make a penses and benevolences.

6. Make a greater use of dramatic presentation to the church including both local exhibitions as a means of teaching religious truths effectively, and give missionary plays to stimulate a greater interest in missions. (Write for copy of "Fifty Plays and Pageants," free, from Department of Missionary Education and World Friendship, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.)

7. Make an attempt to make church membership mean more:

(a) Cooperate with pastor in organizing a class for prospective church members.

(b) Study the subject of church membership in the young people's meetings for the benefit of those who are already members.

8. Stress careful consideration by the nominating committee and the pastor as to the personality and abilities of the young people to be nominated for office, in the interest of providing better leadership for the young people's program. Make the entire group more aware of the qualifications needed for each office.

9. Plan worship program well. Have a variety of them (candlelight, consecration, etc.) Have meetings occasionally to explain what we are trying to accomplish in worship services and to explain the function of each part of the service.

10. Hold regular council (executive committee, cabinet) meetings both as a means of leadership training and as a means for making the year's program more effective.

(a) At the first such meeting of the year plan the worship programs for the entire year deciding on the emphasis to be made or blocks of time to be devoted to particular themes.

(b) Plan the year's recreational program at the first council meeting also, so that those events will not conflict with others planned for and by the young people and also so that there may be sufficient variety in the year's program of recreational events. (Plan only the skeleton of (a) and (b) with details to be planned later.)

11. Lent may be made a period of self-denial, sacrifice and enrichment of the spiritual life by reading devotional material such as "The Valor of the Soul," and "The Fellowship of Prayer," and other material which may be secured from the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life, 287 Fourth Ave., New York City.

HOW TO MASTER TEMPTATION.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FEB. 18, 1934.

(Matt. 4:1-11; I. Cor. 10:13.)

PLANNING THIS MEETING.

(The leader who desires to do "something different" may plan an informal beginning for the discussion of this topic. As the members arrive have ushers direct them to one of three groups, each of which has a leader who is there early and is charged to keep things going in his or her group. Group A may be asked to seek the answer to the question: What are outstanding temptations which young people face today? endeavoring to have as complete a list as possible by the time "time" is called, and the groups come together for general discussions. Group B may be faced with the question: What are some of the effective ways through which temptation may be overcome? Group C may be given the important query: How can our Christian Endeavor Society help young people to overcome temptations. The group leaders will be responsible for enlisting the participation of all in this informal discussion. After about twenty minutes, call them together with a song, and then the leader will call for the report of each group, allowing time for a discussion period which should be bubbling with enthusiasm. Reserve the last ten minutes of the meeting for the worship service.

"Managing One's Self," or "Secrets of Effective Living," both by James G. Gilkey, will furnish excellent source material. Extracts from books by Overstreet or Dorsey and other well-known writers may be found helpful to the leader and the groups.)

HELPS FOR GROUPS.

A. Temptations of Youth—

To secure desirable ends with methods unworthy of his nature and character was perhaps the most common temptation that Christ faced and conquered. Read about these temptations in Matt. 4:1-11. Do these suggest any temptations of youth today? Are such temptations as the following about us:

1. Follow the crowd, wherever it may lead, in order to have a good time. One must be popular. No one wants to be a prude or a sissy.

2. Waste time with things of little value, and then claim "no time" for good books, work in the church, etc. What temptations does the use of our time present?

3. Again, "style" of the crowd calls to things which make one less than his best—smoking, drinking, cheap talk, impure thoughts. What temptations are most difficult to meet here? Why?

4. In a recent interview, Stanley Jones, the great missionary of Christ in India, is quoted as follows: "The greatest need of American youth is a deepening of their lives. Most of them are terribly shallow. . . . There is a genuine spiritual hunger. But are Americans, young Americans in particular, ready to pay the price? They would take what they need and want, if they could get it cheaply. Yes, there is a hunger but not readiness to pay the price of abundant life." Another great educational leader says that young people today seem to see a thing through. Do you agree? Is there temptation to accept an easy present rather than to work for a tomorrow with more for self and others? Illustrate.

5. There is a temptation today, a real temptation, to become discouraged. One cannot go to college. There seems to be no job.

6. Closely connected with the temptation just mentioned is the tendency to become cynical, critical, even unfriendly and unapproachable. Does this confront youth today?

7. Unwillingness to pay the price demanded by high ideals has overcome many a boy and girl. There are ideals of boy and girl friendships which are thrown overboard for the sake of a "thrill." What temptations threaten one in this realm?

B. Methods of Mastery—

Personal experiences may be given which will help the other members and friends to overcome temptation. Here again you may think of the temptation experience of Jesus and remember the long hours of meditation and communion with God, the preparation for life in the carpenter shop, the home, the synagogue and the temple which made Jesus strong in the hour of trial.

1. One must recognize and acknowledge the temptation and desire to master it. Then it is that an important step toward mastery has been taken.

2. The building up of reserve power is a mighty force. How far do the following help? Good health, a strong thought life, reading, biography, history, poetry, friendships (young and old), morning watch, attending conferences the memories of which help one to keep at his best.

3. Keeping busy with worth while things to

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

TIMELY WARNINGS.

(TEMPERANCE LESSON.)

LESSON VI—FEBRUARY 11, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Every tree that bringeth not good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire."
—Matt. 7:19.

LESSON TEXT: Matt. 7:2-29.

The Golden Rule.

Jesus was usually if not always positive in his emphasis. A great Jewish teacher had said, "What you would not have another do to you, do not to him," but Jesus said, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." His emphasis was upon positive goodness, upon doing rather than upon not doing. He would make reverence for personality, respect for the rights of others, sympathy with the position of others, the governing principle of all action. Love is to be the law of life. What a world this would be if we should do to others as we would have others do to us! What a world this would be if love was the governing principle of life! We are far from it. Christ's Golden Rule is slowly but surely finding application in many phases of life.

False Prophets.

The Master put his disciples on their guard against "false prophets," against those whose public ministry was not based on private practice. He knew how easy it is to make pretensions of religion cover a multitude of sins. The ultimate test was production, not profession.

By Their Fruits.

"Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them." It is a wise saying. A man is ultimately to be judged by the fruitage of his life. True orthodoxy is not to be tested by intellectual preciseness of belief, but by manner of life. It is not primarily a matter of what you believe, but how you live, and what you do. Of course, belief is important, but a man may be painfully correct in his theological thinking and yet not bring forth any evidences of the fruit of the Spirit. Jesus was no impractical idealist. He was a very practical man. He believed Christians should not only be good; he thought they ought to be good for something. And he rightly insisted that in the long run the man who was wrong inside, could not bring forth good fruit, and he insisted just as strongly upon the truth that if a man was right inside he would bring forth good fruit. The blight of many Christians today is not the fact that they are bad; it is that they are unfruitful. They are content with being good; they have no passion to be fruitful. It is a solemn warning which the Master gives that the unfruitful life is "hewn down," it loses its power to bring forth fruit. Later Jesus gives the secret of fruit-bearing. He that abides in Christ shall bring forth fruit and his fruit shall remain.

"Not Every One That Sayeth, Lord, Lord."

"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." The kingdom of heaven is the realm here on earth where men do the will of God. It is not enough to call Jesus Lord; one must do his will and thereby make his words have meaning. There will be many, says Jesus, who have done work in his name, but they have not done it in his spirit. "I never knew you, depart from me, ye that work iniquity." It is a hard saying, but it states a hard fact of life. There are those who profess to be doing the Master's work who have no part with him.

Hearing and Doing . . . And Not Doing.

The words of Jesus about the wise and foolish builders are familiar to all. It is significant to note that Jesus states very frankly that the storms shall come alike to the wise and to the foolish. The fact that a man is good does not mean that he will not have temptations and reverses and sickness and sorrow and bereavement. The rains descend, the floods come, the wind beats upon a man, no matter what kind of man he is. But the result is not the same. The man who has "heard" and "done" is the wise man; he has inner resources, he has foundation in the day of stress and strain. The man who has "heard" and "done not" has no inner resources, he has no foundation. It is sound psychology as well as sound religion. "There is no impression without expression," is a favorite expression of psychologists and pedagogues. Jesus said in another place, "Take heed how ye hear." In another place he said, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." In another place he said, "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things I command you?" Doing, doing, doing—we need an emphasis upon this phase of religion today. The subtle danger about Christianity is that we shall do nothing about it. Noble impulses must find expression in action, ideals must become real, service must follow worship.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

do and think about keeps one away from the arena of temptation.

4. The boy with a worthy purpose in life is guarded from temptation. How?

5. One who recognizes the results of yielding to temptation has an additional protection.

6. A hero has kept many a boy and girl from wrong actions. How does Jesus furnish that ideal for youth today?

What other methods have you used?

Can one always overcome temptation? Read I. Cor. 10:13. What are the ways of escape that you need most in your life?

C. Christian Endeavor's Ministry—

A Christian youth is responsible not only for overcoming his own temptations, but for strengthening his comrades as well.

1. Does your program provide any interesting hours for those who have leisure time on their hands?

2. Do the worship services of your society give youth help to live up to Christian ideals? Are you teaching folks to pray? Does the Bible mean more to those who come to your meetings? Are personal problems discussed in a way to give help in their solution?

3. Have you created an atmosphere where boys and girls coming into your group will feel that they are finding there good friends?

4. Is there any plan whereby a young person may naturally and easily arrange for an interview with your minister, or some other friendly adult who may help him see and live straight?

5. Are your officers watching for opportunities to put every member to work at a job which will command his interest and train his powers?

6. Is a C. E. Society responsible in any way for the existence in its community of commercialized recreation which constantly presents temptations to the weaker youth? What can you do?—Adapted from the Sunday School Herald.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 1/2 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

THE SURRENDERED LIFE AGAINST EVIL.

"Commit thy way unto the Lord, and he shall bring it to pass."—Ps. 37:5.

Bible Reading—I. Jno. 3:4; 5:17; Matt. 15:19; Deut. 25:16.

Technically speaking, "evil" is objective and lies in the destructive forces of life. For example: murder, war, pestilence, famine, unsanitation, fire (when a conflagration), strong drink, prostitution, laziness, procrastination, disease, reckless or careless driving, lust, greed, envy, wrath, malice, selfishness, etc. These are forces of destruction, and all other forms of destruction may be included. Think them over.

Sin is subjective; it is something within one which moves one to commit the destructive act. He who does something which produces evil is a sinner.

The Bible frequently uses the two interchangeably and there would seem to be no wrong in thinking of evil as sin and sin as evil, but it is not hard to see that sin, that thing which sends the soul to perdition, is a living thing, and cannot be attributed to inanimate objects. Therefore sin is in the heart; it is a perversion there that makes one a sinner.

William Adams Brown says that if sin were in the objective, we would turn to science to correct it. If sin is within, we see that something radical must happen within us. "Our hope of deliverance must be sought in religion." Right! And it is the new birth that makes this change.

By surrendering wholly to God, which, practically speaking, is surrendering unreservedly to the highest and best we know, we become introduced to a god which conquers both fields, sin and evil, we become masters of ourselves and we set at naught evils without, and ultimately God will be in control. Surrender to God to day.

Prayer—O God, make my life an evidence of the transforming power of God that they who see may know thee.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

AMBITION.

"How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him."—I. Kings 18:21.

"A noble ambition is among the most helpful influences, and the higher the ambition the better. No man can work well unless he can speak as the great Master did 'of the joy set before him'."

This quotation is taken from a window of the famous memorial church at Stanford University. However true is the saying, it reminds us that "ambition" may be a god of personal glory which one may set up for himself, and be so enamored about it that he may forget everything else and worship his ambition supremely instead of God. In this way it is one of the "gods of this world."

"A noble ambition" is necessary as a safeguard and as a stimulating influence to noble living, but we must make sure that ambition has its setting in "noblest" ends, and to make thus sure one must choose between "gods of this world, and him who is called "the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." He is the giver of all good gifts; he is the source of all good; he is the end of all noble achievements;

he is the builder of moral character; he is the redeemer from sin; and the blesser of souls; therefore, consecration to him with a conservative amount of personal modesty about ourselves make life achieving.

Prayer—O Lord, give unto us the noble ambitions of life, the inward assurance of victory in Christ, and suffer no doubt to dim our faith or slacken our effort to press on to victory. In Christ's name we ask it.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

HOW GOD MAKES HIS PRESENCE KNOWN.

"He that would save his life shall lose it, but he that would lose his life for my sake and the Gospel's, the same shall find it."—Matt. 10:39.

I have just finished reading Dr. William Adams Brown on the subject which is the title of our thought today. Nothing better can be said than to quote him. He says: "God makes his presence known with irresistible conviction in the act of the will by which man surrenders without reserve to the highest he knows." "But the surrender must be made to the highest known, and it must be without reserve."

Lankards adds: "God is made known by practicing his presence. Get the habit of looking for God; by sharing your time with him. One cannot live all the time with things and expect to find God. Look for the beautiful; it always lifts up and inspires; it never lowers. Look for him in duty and look for him in people." Try this and see how fast you become conscious of God.

Prayer—Dear Lord God, keep us to be a complete expression of thy life, in us each day.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

A NEW WORLD.

"If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature."—II. Cor. 5:17.

"A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you."—Ez. 36:26.

"The world is new to every soul when Christ enters that soul."

When an unsaved soul meets God, like Paul of old, that soul changes his ways. His conversion is no mere acknowledgment of belief, nor is it a splitting up of his life, but it is a full and complete surrender, a lifting of the whole man to new levels of existence where the soul has fullness of perception in divine things and knows by a consciousness and a power within that God is his all in all, and he goes forward living that way. He goes forward in a new direction with new ideals, toward new conquests.

Prayer—O Lord, our Father, grant unto us thy cleansing, thy new life, thy indwelling spirit, and thy principles of living that will keep us clean and make us to walk in thy statutes and keep thy judgments forever.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

DIVINE PROTECTION.

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."—Psalm 91:1.

"Then shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling."—Psalm 91:10.

"We can never perish if we remain in the arms of the Almighty." A wonderful assurance.

When a man goes out to seek God, God meets him more than halfway. This divine reality is a mountain of strength to all believers.

What is the "Secret Place?" "The Secret Place of the Lord is with them that fear him."

We were told awhile ago that the "secret place of the Lord" is to us as the secret knowledge of an apt pupil, it is only to him who is interested and is willing to pay the price to learn.

We are told that the Old Testament use of "the secret place of the Lord" originated from the refuge idea when a fugitive commits himself to the keeping of a friend. He places his life in the hands of his friend who has power of life or death over him. So when he, who dwells in the "secret place of the most high" is one who ventures his all upon God.

It is a very strengthening exercise to meditate daily to see if we are thus hid with Christ in God, with a singleness of view that we make the full sacrifice necessary to be resting under his everlasting arms.

Prayer—O Lord, help us this day to launch out on the bosom of God; to press into his mysteries; to pursue his knowledge and his truth; and to grow in spiritual insight and power.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

FEAR AND PRAISE.

"Ye that fear Jehovah, praise him."—Read Psalm 22:22-31.

That is a strange combination of words, "fear" and "praise." We should rather expect the sentence to read, "Ye that love Jehovah, praise him."

But that is because we do not fear in the right way or love in the right way. We have lost much of the wholesome fear of God which is the backbone of the Old Testament. Christ has taught us to love the heavenly Father, but he never taught us not also to fear him.

Because of his holiness that would be content with nothing less than holiness in us, God sent his beloved Son to be the sacrifice for our sins. That sacrifice is the foundation of our praise.

Prayer—Work, therefore, in us, O God, a blessed awe of thee, such a fear as will bring us into thy righteousness, such an awe as will lead us to thy love.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

WILD WELLS.

"There he wasted his substance with riotous living."—Read Luke 15:11-19.

When an oil well or a gas well shoots forth unexpectedly in the process of drilling, there is an enormous waste. A gas well in Pennsylvania for days poured out natural gas before being brought under control. The loss was estimated at $106,000 a day.

The prodigal son, in his riotous living in the far country, was like that unharnessed well. So is every uncontrolled, intemperate life. The world's greatest waste comes from this abandonment to sensual appetites. The world's most needed economy is spiritual self-control.

Prayer—Strengthen our will, O Holy Spirit of all power. May we keep ourselves under thy control at all times.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

A minister without boldness is like a smooth file, a knife without an edge, a sentinel that is afraid to let off his gun. If men will be bold in sin, ministers must be bold to reprove.—Gurnall.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

A NEW USE FOR SUNDAY.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"Upon the first day of the week let each one of you lay by him in store, as God has prospered him, that there be no collections when I come."—I. Cor. 16:2.

What memories the very word brings to our minds: Sunday! Sunday with all its holy associations, and hallowed reflections; Sunday with its church of our childhood, and teachers and preachers and friends thereof! Sunday, for many of us with its little white church, along side the country road in some pretty grove of beautiful trees! Sunday with many of its old-fashioned visits, its lovely dinners, its romantic missions, its resolutions, and its dreams! Sunday with its rest and recreation in summertime beauty of the out-of-doors, or the wintertime glow of the open fireplace inside! What a great blessing Sunday is! It is an ally of every age. The benefactor of childhood, of youth, of maturity, and of the sunset years. It is a special blessing—a gift each week from the good hand of God himself.

They tell us that one time the French tried to lift it from their calendar, and take it from their lives. They tried to wreck Sunday, and almost wrecked themselves. Their government had to return to the seventh day. Some people have tried to overlook its sanctity, and forget even God himself rested on the Sabbath, and blessed it, and hallowed it, in order that it should be blessed and hallowed for all time! They have tried to forget, but behold, the world has soon forgotten them, and that they forgot the Sabbath day. They have done little damage to the day. It is still as hallowed, sacred, beautiful, and fraught with its ancient power of blessing, as ever before. It is of God, and God is eternal.

It is an old day. Began in the beginning. On it God rested, and they to whom he revealed himself finally learned to rest with him on that day. He commanded it so. "Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh is a Sabbath unto the Lord thy God, in it thou shalt do no work." Before psychology was known; before psychiatry was a science; before the physician held one of the first places of honor and trust among men, regular rest was prescribed by the Creator of us all. Labor and rest in rhythmic regularity is one of the first secrets of long life, and good success. So one of the first uses for the Sabbath day was rest.

When men began to realize that there was far more to themselves than the mere physical, the muscles of which were sore and the bones of which ached, they began to seek a rest for the mind and the soul. Indeed, their experience soon taught them that unless the mind and spirit were at ease there was very little real refreshment for the body. That if anger and ill will, bitter hate and evil thoughts, possessed their minds and souls there was no chance of real rest. Thus their unresting consciences blessed their resting hands for the opportunity to seek a peace from God which would permit real rest for the whole being. And so it came about that another of the first uses for the Sabbath day was worship.

Jesus gave a new glory to the Sabbath. He revealed a triune relationship. He showed forth the glory of man; he revealed God as Father; and man as forming an universal brotherhood. In his life and teachings, as well as his death and resurrection, man came to see that added rest of himself on Sunday, and worship of God in synagogue or temple, was a third requirement of blessing others. Jesus taught that a man would be foolish to leave his only sheep in a ditch into which it had fallen on Sunday, and added, "How much then is a man of more value than a sheep!" Again in the presence of all, and in the synagogue itself, when he was being chided for this new idea about the use of the Sabbath, he called to a man with a lame hand to stand forth, and asking whether it were lawful on the Sabbath to do good, or to do evil, he healed him. And thus the business of being a blessing to others became a third use of the holy Sabbath. Indeed, Jesus said: "The Sabbath was made for man (that in the very beginning God had so made it), and not man for the Sabbath." Here is the Sabbath. Do not make a fetish of it. Do not load it with burdens grievous to be borne. Hundreds of negations had been laid upon the Sabbath by the over supercilious Pharisees and scribes in the day of Jesus; and he sought to dig deep down into the rubbish of that ritualism and resurrect the holy and hallowed day of his heavenly Father.

Most likely if Jesus were with us today he would find the Sabbath overloaded with crass materialism, with all its attendant pleasure-mad programs, and would point out some better way of hallowing the day of rest, and worship, and blessing.

Paul gave the Christians of his day a new use for Sunday. Throughout Asia Minor Paul had gone preaching the Christ, and building his converts into worshipping congregations. They had been singing and praying and witnessing to the work of the Spirit in their lives as regular features of their Sunday services. Meeting in the homes of the members, and having a preacher who made his living weaving tents, they found little demand for the collection plate, and had perhaps not begun the practice of passing it. To the old religion of the Jews there was a great deal of expense, and a liberal tithe had been exacted from everyone. But this new way had been set up after another fashion. In some places communism had been tried, but where that had not been practiced perhaps little, if any, sharing of one's temporal blessings had been observed.

And so, to the church at Corinth, Paul writes: "Upon the first day of the week (Sunday) let each one of you lay by him in store (in a common, set-apart treasury) as God hath prospered him, that no collections be made when I come." Here then is the divinely inspired method of financing the church of Jesus Christ. It came out of the necessity and inspiration. It has been seen to be common sense. It is the method adopted out of actual experience by your board of finance for this particular church. It is a scriptural method, and approved by the centuries ever since the beginning of the Christian movement. It is the business side of the Cross of Christ. It is so simple and easy and right that we do not recognize how profound it is. Let us examine it more closely.

Dr. Robert E. Speer has pointed out that it is: Periodic; Personal; Provident; Proportionate and Preventive; for notice: Periodic ("upon the first day of the week"—worshipful, habitual, prayerful, cheerful); Personal ("let each one of you"—each man, each woman, each boy, each girl; no proxies, no merging); Provident ("lay by him in store"—forehanded, deliberate, thoughtful, intelligent); Proportionate ("as God hath prospered him"—generous, careful, not to toy with God, responsible, faithful); Preventive ("that no collections be made when I come"—no deficits, no interest on loans, no worry, no retrenchments). I am indebted to Dr. W. H. Leach for this diagram.

What a principle! And how it has been used in hundreds of ways by banks, insurance companies, and other institutions, and by countless numbers of individuals who have set out to save up a sum for a rainy day! Regularly, a little bit each week—not too much to be impossible or burdensome, and not too little to be worthy—but each week, week after week. One cannot pay a big sum, but a little bit can be paid while it is still a little bit—before it has accumulated to a staggering amount. It is the very principle of life itself. Happy is that church whose members observe it!

I like that "let each one"! As individual as prayer, as personal as the soul itself. Each one! There are two little records I am trying to keep clean: the church's record of the gifts of my two little children. Since the time of their births they have been giving regularly to the church. Some day, please God, they will appreciate their record and seek to honor it! When I was a child my poor and humble parents gave for me, thus teaching me to give; and God has given their (Continued on page 14.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85... 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We know you want the President of your Conference to win the hat that has been offered by the superintendent of the Christian Orphanage to the president of the Conference that comes the nearest to being a 100 per cent Conference by giving a monthly Sunday School offering each month and a Thanksgiving offering at Thanksgiving.

Now is the time to begin to win the prize and make your president happy. If your Sunday School is not now making a monthly offering, please start making this offering right away. The Orphanage is largely dependent on the Sunday School monthly offering for its support. We have 236 churches in the Convention, and if each church would give the Orphanage a liberal offering each month, it would go a long way toward paying bills at the end of each month.

Each church has an interest in the Orphanage. The churches are responsible for its support. If your church takes no part in its support, have you not failed in the discharge of your duty? If a man in your community should desert his family or fail to support it, you would criticize him. The children in the Orphanage are a part of your church family. Is it not a part of your duty to see that your church does its part? It is a privilege you have to do a real service in the Master's Name.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 8, 1934.

Brought forward ..... $ 640.43
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Greensboro, First ..... 13.68

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Poplar Branch .....$ 1.00
New Hope ..... .70
Youngsville ..... 2.00
Henderson ..... 3.14
6.84

Western North Carolina Conference:
Park's Cross Roads .....$ 5.25
Smithwood ..... .58
5.83

Eastern Virginia Conference:
Bethlehem .....$ 5.05
South Norfolk ..... 6.25
11.30

Special Offerings.

Woman's Board, S. C. C. ....$ 2.75
W. P. Perry, support Billy Perry.. 10.00
A friend, support Thelma Long.. 20.00
Mr. V. H. Lane, Burlington, N. C. on payment of Thanksgiving pledge ..... 100.00
F. C. Owen, gdn., James Brown.. 12.50

Total for the week ..... $ 182.90

Grand total ..... $ 823.33

Money is influence; it is power; it stands for toil and sacrifice! it is the blood of toilers changed into the permanent coin of the commonwealth. It has cursed some people, it has blessed others. But when we shall learn its Christian use, the curse will pass away. It will no longer be "filthy lucre," but a sacred instrument which may bless the soul of its possessor, increase the happiness of mankind and extend the kingdom of God on earth.—The Christian Evangelist.

SERVICE FOR CHRIST.

(Continued from page 3.)

a coat or something else which we have at home which some one would appreciate so much and intend to give them to a relief organization, but somehow, we just forget about it, and the garments hang in our wardrobe while somebody shivers from the cold. Let's think intently for a moment. Don't you know of someone who is finding the way a little rough at present, whom you could help cheer up a bit? Besides giving them new courage and hope, it will give us much happiness, too. Let's resolve that we will help someone in the very near future.

Let us remember to be ready to go the second mile at all times. Most everybody will do what they have to do or what is really expected of them, but the ones who go the second mile are the ones who make a success of whatever they are doing.

Another way by which we can render a great service for Christ is by setting the proper kind of example in our social life. We need more young people with courage enough not to follow some of the social ideas and practices of today, but who are big enough to launch out with new ideas for wholesome fun and entertainment.

In summing up the things which I have said, let us remember that we should do some specific religious service for Christ, and that we can do these things, if we really want to bad enough. We can also find time to do them, if we make use of the time which we usually waste. The way we use NOW determines whether our life will be great or small. That we serve Christ by serving our fellow man, and that the little services which any one can render are the things which count so much. That we should be a witness for Christ in our social life, thereby rendering a much needed service to him.

Let us make the thoughts contained in this little poem, our sincere desires:

Give me the strength to see a little farther,
Give me the strength, I ask to point the way;
Give me the strength to be a little stronger,
Give me the strength to live right every day.
Give me strength to help the weary hearted;
Give me strength to ease their aching pain.
Give me the strength to bring them days of gladness,
Give me the strength to help them smile again.
Give me the strength to walk my way rejoicing,
Rejoicing in the things life brings to me;
Give me the strength to show the way to doubters
The road that leads to peace eternally.
Let not one chance of serving pass unnoticed,
Let not a day of life be lived in vain;
Give me strength to spread the joy of living.
That others, too, may profit by my gain.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

son back a thousandfold more than he has ever given to God! And if God's gifts to me had been far less I should still have wanted my little children to learn the art of giving each week to God for the sheer joy of it.

The child who is taught to give in babyhood will probably never have to worry about the portion he gives to God for the culture of his soul and the help of his Saviour's church. Oh! may God grant that you and I shall take seriously this Gospel plan of providing for the church's needs, and may he grant that we give regularly some portion—however large or small it may have to be—as an act of our own personal worship of almighty God; but more than this, I pray, that we shall train our children in the noble art of giving as well as the necessary art of getting for their own sakes and for the sake of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim:	A. D. 31.	934	CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urged on them a good example, etc.
	Isa. 9. 1, 2.	AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup> The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gál'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	Is. 9. 1, 2.	3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit:
	Is. 42. 7.	for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
	Luke 2. 32.
	Mark 1. 14.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above .....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

OBITUARIES

SIKES.

Obituary of little Myrtis Sikes, daughter of Brother John Sikes and wife, of Lanett, Ala. Myrtis was born February 15, 1920, and died January 6, 1934. At about the age of two years she was afflicted with infantile paralysis, and for more than eleven years she was a helpless invalid. Her life was a great tax upon the rest of the family, and it almost broke their hearts to part with her.

She could talk but little, her little limbs had become so emaciated that she was just a skeleton. She was the idol of the home. The mother had given her constant care during this long period.

These hearts are richer for having her committed to their care. Her little soul rests with Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." She leaves to mourn her loss a loving father and mother, two sisters and one brother, and a host of sympathizing relatives and friends.

The funeral was held at the Christian Church at 1 P. M., January 7th, this writer in charge, assisted by Revs. Burks of the Baptist Church, and Gray of the Christian Church, after which we carried her remains to County Line Baptist Church for interment, where she will sweetly sleep until the resurrection morn.

"Little one, thou wast mild and lovely—
Gentle as the summer breeze;
Pleasant as the air of evening
As it floats among the trees.

"Peaceful be thy silent slumber—
Peaceful in the grave so low;
Thou no more shall join our number,
Thou no more our songs shall know.

"Yet again we hope to meet thee—
When the days of life are o'er;
Then in heaven with joy to greet thee
On that happy golden shore."

G. D. HUNT.

PARKS.

James Alfred Parks, a deacon and charter member of Ramseur Christian Church was born January 24, 1856, and peacefully passed away from his earthly to his heavenly home January 18, 1934.

He was twice married. His first marriage was to Elizabeth Edwards, and they had three children. Only one is living, Fields Luther Parks, of Meggett, S. C.

His second marriage was to Dora Edwards, a sister of his first wife, and to this union were born six children, four of whom are living: Hurley C., James Arthur Parks and Mrs. J. O. King, of Ramseur, and Paul V. Parks, of Elk Park, N. C.

Brother Parks was a true and faithful believer in Christ and a devoted and loyal member of his church. Ramseur Christian Church and its Sunday School—now of 250 members—owes much to the never failing loyalty and devotion of him. He had been a teacher in the Sunday School from the organization of the church, and both the school and the church rise up to call him blessed.

We buried him at Park's Cross Roads, the church of his boyhood. The church was filled with his relatives and friends that truly loved him. There in the midst of great silence and tears, we read great promises from the Book which he believed was the Word of God, and a quartette from Ramseur sang beautifully the songs he loved—one of them being, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone?" which he sang just before he passed away.

Simple in his faith, unassuming in his manner, honest in his dealings, faithful to his church, tender in his home—such was James A. Parks. God rest his noble soul.

His funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. G. M. Tally.

T. E. WHITE.

NORTON.

Sereno E. Norton, for nearly thirty years member and secretary of the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute, Thorsby, Ala., contributed a goodly portion to the eminence of that notable school.

In his passing, September 30, 1933, the Institute and the whole State have suffered a loss in their educational ranks not easily refilled. Although Mr. Norton was born in Jefferson, Wis., he was a true Alabamian for thirty years, interesting himself to the week of his release in all its fortunes, with an enthusiasm as fresh and glowing as the myriads of daffodils he raised for the support of Thorsby Institute. His mind was full of plans for good works to extend through the years—plans which he was unfolding from the bed from which he never arose. "Though blind, he saw with the eyes of faith."

Mrs. Norton, who also has the seeing eye and the youthful enthusiasm, goes cheerfully on with the plans they jointly fashioned.

F. P. E.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College.

North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE . . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year . . . . . $2.00
Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

GERRINGER.

Mrs. Martha Emmer (Randolph) Gerringer, wife of Mr. J. M. Gerringer, was born September 14, 1872, and died January 12, 1934, age 62 years, 3 months and 28 days.

April 27, 1892, she was united in marriage to Mr. J. M. Gerringer, and to this union were born six children. She is survived by her husband and the following children; Talmadge of Greensboro, N. C.; Claude, Alamance County, N. C.; Blonzie, Caswell County; Alves, Alamance County; Walter, Caswell County; and six grandchildren, one brother and one sister, two half-brothers.

Early in life she professed faith in Christ and united with Mispah M. P. Church, in Rockingham County. A few years ago, she moved her membership to Bethlehem Christian Church, to which she remained faithful to the end. She was a loving wife, a devoted mother, a good neighbor and a devout Christian.

The funeral service was conducted by the writer, January 13th, assisted by the Rev. Lance, of the M. E. Church, South. Interment was in the Bethlehem Cemetery.

May the heavenly Father comfort the bereaved ones.

G. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

McDOWELL.

Carl Harrison McDowell was born January 29, 1933, and died November 17, 1933, age 9 months, 19 days, making his stay on earth long enough to wrap him up in all our hearts with love.

Surviving are his father, mother, one brother, C. G., two sisters, Ethel and Annie, and one brother gone on before.

The funeral service was held at Pleasant Union Church. May the bereaved trust in God until they shall meet with him to part no more.

B. H. LOWDERMILK.

RITENOUR.

Maynard Irvine Ritenour, infant son of Brother and Sister Wesley G. Ritenour of Dry Run, was born June 16, 1933, and was called away in death December 11, 1933, at the age of five months and twenty-five days. In the home, besides the parents, are three brothers and two sisters. Funeral services were held at Dry Run, December 12, 1933.

GIBSON.

E. M. Gibson died January 11th, in his 72nd year. He married Hannah Cox and they had nine children, six of whom are still living: Mrs. D. R. Moffitt, of Coleridge; Mrs. T. E. Moon, Mrs. W. C. Richardson, Mrs. M. L. Moffitt, T. E. and O. E. Gibson, of Ramseur.

Early in life he professed his faith in Christ and joined the Pleasant Grove

Christian Church. He was buried at Shiloh, and his funeral was conducted by the writer. May God comfort the bereaved ones. T. E. WHITE.

When a thing goes out of our ken, that is not the same as going out of existence. Death takes our friends out of sight, but not out of our lives.—Alexander Worth.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN

JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES

LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY

CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1934.

NUMBER 7.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

Boy Scouts Gain in Membership.—

Notwithstanding that last year was "one of the most difficult through which the Boy Scouts of America has passed," the organization increased in numbers 27,326. A report from 553 councils for the period ending December 31st, showed membership of 904,240 for the United States. The association, formed in 1908, is now known in every country of importance throughout the world, and has a total membership of more than 2,000,000.

War Is On In Vienna.—

In a territory smaller in area than the United States are 6,000,000 men armed to the teeth and waiting the word to fight. Europe, today, is divided into war camps. It took only a spark to start the conflagration that culminated in the World War. Vienna might well offer that spark, for civil war is a fact in that city now. Press dispatches tell of the wrecking of the Karl Marx Apartment and of the loss of thousands of lives in the fighting. This is but the beginning. No one knows what the end will be.

Bible House Dedicated in Tokyo.—

The new structure which houses the activities of the American Bible Society in Japan is located in the heart of the city of Tokyo at No. Shichome, Ginza. It is constructed of steel and conforms to earthquake requirements, being thoroughly modern in equipment and design. The building was dedicated on December 15th, and among those present and speaking at the dedication were His Excellency Ryutaro Nagai, Minister of Overseas, and Joseph Clark Crew, the American Ambassador. The society has had a distributing agency in Japan since 1876.

Virginia Enacts New Auto License Bill.—

The automobile license bill adopted by the Virginia House of Delegates will, if concurred in by the Senate, save the average automobile owner about $8.00 in license fees. Under the proposed schedule licenses will run from $9.60 for some models of Fords, to around $22.00 for a Packard or Lincoln. Cars in the classes from 2,100 to 3,000 pounds will show a saving of from $6.30 to $9.90. But there is still a joker to come, for what is saved on automobile licenses seems certain to be lost in a general sales tax or some other scheme, for the State needs the money, and taxation is the only way in which it can be gotten.

To Observe Calvin's 425th Birthday.—

American Presbyterians and Scottish Calvinists will join with French Protestants on July 10th in observing the 425th anniversary of the birth of John Calvin, in Noyon, a short distance from Paris, where his birthplace has been transformed into a Calvin museum. This ceremony will inaugurate a series of celebrations which will mark the 400th anniversary of the famous "Institutes of Religion," written by the great reformer. The Huguenot Society of America, of which Dr. William J. Schieffelin is president, and Miss Margaret A. Jackson has promised to cooperate in the anniversary ceremonies. It is expected that official delegates will be sent to Paris, Noyon, Poitiers and Geneva by many Presbyterian Churches.

A By-Product for Motor Fuel.—

Butane gas, which is now a waste product of the petroleum refining business, can be used for running automobiles by attaching a special mixing device to the engine. The present price of this "liquid gas" is three cents a gallon, and it is claimed that it will give nearly twenty per cent more mileage than ordinary gasoline. Popular Mechanics tells us that among the advantages of this gas are its lighter weight, the fact that it forms no carbon, it does not dilute the oil in the crankcase, and no priming or pre-heating is necessary. The special attachment used sprays the gas into a chamber attached to the exhaust manifold where a "hot spot" thoroughly evaporates the liquid. Thence it flows to the mixer, where it is combined with air in proportions of about one part in thirty-two, and on into the regular intake manifold and to the cylinders. The butane gas is liquified by compression and delivered in special steel cylinders.

Dates Mean Nothing in Music.—

Artur Rodzinski, Director of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, thinks that "the year in which music is written means absolutely nothing." He tells us that there are no "vintage years" in music, and that "contrary to popular belief, music does not improve with age." Developed taste may increase the appreciation of an inspired composer, but his music "was good when it was written." He says that music one would condemn upon the first hearing, is often liked when heard a second time, and loved when the opportunity is offered to hear it for the third time. "Only by providing repeated opportunities for the hearing of . . . worthy music can we be assured of a growing musical public. I play music that is alive and that has meaning, music that lifts and thrills. There is no need for music to be 'high-brow,' but there is still less reason for it to be 'low-brow.'" Stating that there was at one time much opposition to the playing of Wagnerian music by some American critics because it was alleged that the "people do not like him," a famous orchestra leader replied, "Then we will play him until they do."

He continues: "Wagnerian music was played, and we found Wagner's powers stupendous, his music bold, original, beautiful. So, too, we discovered the impressionism and sensuousness of Debussy; the irony of Ravel; the romanticism of Schumann and Mendelssohn, the mysticism of Caesar Farnck and the orderliness of his great disciple, d'Indy. We learned to relish the so-called barbarism of Rimsky-Korsakoff, Prokofieff and Stravinsky, the awakened voice of England in Elgar, the bite of Irish wit in Stanford; the Norwegian of Grieg, the Bohemian of Dvorak and the Finnish wailing of Sibelius. What was necessary was hearing these works again and again."

Sun Heat for the Bath Tub.—

Did you ever take one of the old-fashioned, round laundry tubs, fill it with water and put it out in the sun to warm—then use it for your bath? Now the Soviet scientists are going one better. They have invented a peculiar boiler, with a glass top, to be used for the especial purpose of providing hot water for the bath. However, if it proves a success here it will surely be adapted for other purposes. The New York Times tells us that "this method of harnessing the sun proves to be simple enough. The water trickles in a thin film under glass. From the 'boiler' it flows into the bathtub. Boiling water can hardly be expected; yet it is warm enough for its purpose." Water, at sea-level, boils at a temperature of 212 degrees; but this temperature may be changed by changing the atmospheric pressure. The probable temperature of the water in this sun boiler would hardly reach above 10 degrees, yet it could "nevertheless run a low-pressure engine, which with the aid of a vacuum, would cause the water to give off steam." The Times calls attention to the great heat of the sun, and continues: "Crude as it is, the Soviet solar boiler indicates that the hope of utilizing the sun's energy will not die. The reason is to be found in the astounding amount of heat that beats upon the earth from the sun. Enough is received to melt a terrestrial layer of ice 424 feet thick every year. At noon on a clear day in June the sunlight falling 133 square miles of Philadelphia is equivalent to the power of 100 Niagaras. (The maximum output of Niagara Falls is estimated at 4,000,000 horsepower.) In an eight-hour day in the tropics the sun lavishes, on a single square mile, energy equivalent to that released by the combustion of 1,400 tons of coal. About 1,800 times more energy inundates Sahara than is contained in the coal mined in the course of a year. Burn 6,000 million tons of coal and you unlock the amount of solar energy that Sahara receives in a single day."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. Jesse H. Dollar has a Church Program for 1934 that is well worth while. It will be found on the opposite page. Read it, you may be able to adapt it to your own use.

Rev. F. C. Lester, editor of our young people's page, has been "enjoying a fine case of flu" the past week. We are glad that it has proved enjoyable to him (he has the faculty of making the best of everything), but cannot restrain a wish that his enjoyment, and his ailment as well, will be of short duration.

The managing editor is sorry that the following names were inadvertently left off the list of "January Subscription Payments" printed last week. All were credited and their labels advanced, but failed to get on the list. They are: W. T. Morris, Geer, Va.; R. L. Munford, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Eva Gunn, Wentworth, N. C., and Mrs. A. B. McFarland, Guilford College, N. C., who, in remitting, wrote: "I love THE SUN more all the time—look forward to the day for it to come." The many letters similar to this gives us courage to work just that much harder to make the paper a success.

Keep open the date of Friday, February 23rd. The annual banquet of the Eastern Virginia Elon Alumni Club will be held at 7 o'clock on that evening, and if you are eligible for admission, a good time is in store for you. Dr. I. W. Johnson, the president, will have something unusual in store, and of course the Elon Singers, with Professor Strece and Miss Chamblee, will be present. Mrs. Calhoun has sent out notices to those on her mailing list, but if you belong there, be on hand whether you have received a notice or not. Banquet tickets are only 75 cents, so be early enough to see that you get one.

Word comes to us from Tennessee which pictures the strange doings of the annual meeting of the Pilgrim Congregational Church of Chattanooga. At this meeting the pastor, Rev. Alfred W. Hurst (formerly college pastor of Elon Christian College), was called before the assembly and formally given a "life sentence," or a life call to the pastorate of Pilgrim Church. This is all the more extraordinary since this pastor was first called to this church only one year ago (on Friday, the 13th, by the way), and was a complete stranger to the whole church and community at that time. However, the writer happens to have known this pastor and his good wife from their undergraduate days and can well understand why Pilgrim Church seeks a "life hold" on such a pair.—Hermon Eldredge, in The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Dr. C. H. Rowland, celebrated the tenth anniversary of his pastorate of First Christian Church, Greensboro, Sunday, February 4th. Dr. Rowland preached and administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the morning service, and Dr. L. E. Smith, President of Elon College, and a former pastor of the Greensboro Church, preached at the evening service. Writing in The Bulletin of the ten years together, Dr. Rowland says: "In these testing days we have had to surrender many of our cherished plans and fond dreams because of the changing conditions which we have had to face. And yet for all that we feel that some things have been accomplished, that God's guidance and goodness has been round about us. For every loyal soul that has stood fast, for every heart that has stood by, we are grateful—but for the allegiance and faith and encouragement of these, we could not have carried on. 'God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in trouble.' Some one has said, 'God hath set our eyes in our foreheads to look forward, not backward; not to be proud of that which we have done, but diligent in that which we are to be.' We need to plan for the future, bigger and better things. To each of you I appeal for more personal consecration. We have learned that we cannot trust in the things which are seen. The only abiding things are the things not seen. Let us undertake for him together to do the things he has for us to do."

A CHALLENGE.

From Brother M. J. W. White, of Norfolk, Va., comes the following letter, which is a challenge to every minister in the Eastern Virginia Conference:

"Dear J. T.:

"I am enclosing my check for my fifty-seventh renewal to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. I have read THE SUN weekly all of my life, as my father, Deacon Edward T. White, was a subscriber as far back as I can remember.

"I want to make this offer to the pastors of the Eastern Virginia Conference: If they will make a careful canvass of their memberships and do not find that fifty per cent (50%) of all their church collections are paid by subscribers to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, I will pay for one year's subscription for that pastor, or for any worthy member he may designate.

"Respectfully,

"M. J. W. WHITE."

Mr. Pastor, will you accept this challenge? It comes from a layman who has been faithful to his church and all of the causes it represents. He knows whereof he speaks. If statistics of a few years ago hold good today, he might have safely increased his percentage to 75.

J. T. KERNODLE,

Managing Editor.

CHAPLAIN H. E. ROUNTREE REPORTS FOR 1933.

Chaplain H. E. Rountree, who is stationed in San Diego, Calif., on the U. S. S. Whitney, makes the following report of his activities for the year 1933:

Number of divine services held, 101; attendance for the year, 5,539; holy communion services, 4; number making their communion, 49; Sunday School sessions held, 21; attendance, 41; military services other than own ship or station, 4; attendance at above, 918; civilian services or addresses, 18; attendance, 2,551; baptisms, 10; men joining church, 5; marriages, 6; funerals, 3; number of books issued, 4,080; magazines received, 237; papers received, 3,250; conversions, 20; visits to ships, 70; visits to the homes of enlisted personnel, 147.

The welfare fund has provided professional services of musicians and singers regularly, and in addition to these, quartettes, orchestras and choirs of the local churches have assisted at church services aboard.

Attention regularly has been given to the Roman Catholic constituency and provision made for their attendance at Mass every Sunday and other special occasions.

The library contains 1,246 volumes, a part of which is old or obsolete and rarely referred to. The fiction shelves are fairly alive, and the quarterly allowance of twenty-five to thirty books adds considerably to the reader's zest. One hundred and sixty-seven new books have been added during the year. Men in the sick-bay received special attention in reading matter.

In addition to the above, intermittently, the chaplain has held choir rehearsals in the city for the church music, visited the sick both at the naval and local hospitals, identified himself with the local ministerial association and church conferences, and taken the morning "Good Cheer Hour" of radio station KFS, San Diego. Navy representation in the field of local religious and civic interest serves to bring the navy and these interests to a closer acquaintance and better understanding of one another.

The year has been a satisfactory one in every way except in the harvest of souls for the kingdom; but since soul-saving is a spiritual thing and cannot be determined by the number of confessions; and since Christian living, preaching and personal work, is also a spiritual thing and does not register fruitage in the number of souls who may be influenced by it; and having rendered loyal, and faithful service personally, it is not fitting to be dissatisfied. It is gratifying to observe that among the enlisted personnel of this area, there are conversions and additions to the local churches of the city nearly every Sunday. One church enjoys the distinction of having over three hundred navy men on its roll. In fairness to all, it must be added that credit for much of this goes to the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., and the concentrated leadership of its executive officer and religious secretary.

WHY DOES A HEN CACKLE AFTER LAYING AN EGG?

This characteristic is supposed to have been inherited from the wild jungle fowls of India and the Malay Peninsula, which scientists believe were the parents of our domestic chickens. In their wild state they usually run in small flocks of six or eight—one cock and several hens. When a hen is ready to lay she steals away from the flock, lays her egg in a concealed nest, and then cackles to attract the attention of her mates which have wandered away in the meantime. In response, the cocks in the neighborhood begin to cackle, and the lost hen recognizes her flock by the voice of its leader. This cackling characteristic has never been bred out of our domestic fowl.—Ex.

NOTICE.

I am selling Magazine subscriptions "to help along," and will appreciate handling your RE-NEWALS. Do any of your Magazines expire soon? If so, you will receive Special Renewal Offer from publishers. I not only meet their offers, but allow 10 per cent further discount from any offer. Please send me your Renewals through my Agency. Here are a few of my Special Offers (New or Renewal): American or Good Housekeeping, $2.25 each; McCall's, Pictorial, Woman's Home Companion, Ladies' Home Journal, 75c each per year; Christian Herald, $1.00 per year. These Specials are net.

J. EDWIN HARRIS.

Suffolk, Va.

AN APPRECIATED GIFT.

Some time ago I received a real Christmas present. The churches which I serve—Bethel, Mt. Zion, and Pleasant Ridge (R)—presented to me a Scofield Reference Bible, the new and improved edition, India paper, real Morocco binding. My churches could not have given me a better gift, nor one more appreciated.

I have a fine people to serve. May the Lord bless them and help me to use this gift to their edification and to the glory of God.

J. FRANK APPLE.

OUR CHURCH PROGRAM FOR 1934.By J. H. DOLLAR, *Pastor,Congregational-Christian Church, LaGrange, Ga.I. Every-Member Enlistment in the Church Program.

- a. Special effort to enlist the presence and help of every member of the church.
- b. A treasure hunt, to find and enlist the unused talent of the membership:
  1. To improve leadership.
  2. Courteous and anxious fellowship—it takes talent for both.
  3. A greatly improved musical life, in the choir and congregation.
  4. To develop the character of boys and girls, and help them to find the work they love best and encourage them in it.
- c. Insist upon the parents and heads of families attending Sunday School and church vices of all kinds. When this task is well done, every department in the Sunday School will be crowded with eager children seeking the bread of life.

II. Evangelism and World Service.

- a. Every member of the church in a special effort to win a soul to Christ.
- b. Every Sunday School teacher busy at the task and the noble privilege of winning every child or grown-up in his class.
- c. An enlarged and more active Missionary spirit through which the Gospel, or Good News of the Kingdom may be sent out to the world.
- d. Every woman in the church an active and enthusiastic member of the Woman's Missionary Society.
- e. The organization of Missionary Societies for every group down through the Junior Department of the Sunday School.
- f. Organization of Cradle Roll and Home Departments.

III. Create a Consciousness of Business-like Methods in the Church Work.

- a. Pride in Church pledges on the part of each member.
- b. Business-like disposition of all church business.
- c. A consciousness and responsibility in the exercise of every office of the entire organization.
- d. Eagerness to do promptly what is expected, however small.
- e. Every member eager to help his church discharge its obligations as promptly as he desires to discharge his own.
- f. A feeling of personal interest and responsibility.

IV. Community Enlistment and Service Program.

- a. How many families live in the same block with you and are not connected with any church? Your duty: To discover their church preference and enlist them or call the pastor of the church or report them to an interested member.
- b. Assign yourself the pleasant task of bringing those you find to be inclined to your church.
- c. Be a father to the fatherless. Discover and report needy families whom your church should serve in any way.
- d. Report promptly those you know to be sick in order that your pastor may offer them his services and the comfort of your church.

V. Religious and Social Activities for Young People.

- a. Organization of young people into definite groups with a definite purpose in view.
  1. Dramatics and pageantry—young people and intermediates.

2. A play or pageant for a church service once each quarter.
3. Young people's social once each month.
4. A determined effort to double the present membership of all young people's organizations during 1934.

VI. The Program of the Men of the Church.

- a. Organization of Fellowship Forum with every man a member.
- b. At least one meeting each month.
- c. The goal: promotion, service, fellowship and fun.

ANOTHER GOOD RECORD.

Several weeks ago there was an article in THE SUN telling of the splendid records of Brothers Jimmie Cash, of Durham, N. C., and E. W. Neville, of Chapel Hill, N. C., in their Sunday School attendance. I know both of these men personally, and congratulate them on their interest which caused them to want to be so regular at the house of the Lord, and I am also glad that both have formed such a good habit. Since I am a preacher, I know something of the influence that such men wield. It encourages the preacher to do his best. These men also are to be congratulated in that nature has been so kind as to allow them the good health for so long.

I know another brother of North Carolina who holds a record of attendance at Sunday School and church that is to be coveted by all who love their church. It is P. E. Coble, of Liberty, N. C., who is a member of the Pleasant Hill Christian Church. Brother Coble has been secretary of the church for twenty-two years this year. During that time he has not missed a regular business session nor a call meeting. He has been a teacher of the Men's Bible Class for eighteen years. He has missed nine Sundays during the eighteen years—six times due to sickness at his home. It has been my privilege to be his pastor. I have been in his Sunday School Class. He always has the lesson well prepared and his class knows that he will be ready for them. The most of the members of the class are usually ready for him. For they certainly have some interesting questions for discussion on the Bible.

The church records are kept in good condition. It was in Pleasant Hill Christian Church that the first Christian Temperance Society was organized in 1833. It was an hundred years old last year. The records are so kept that one may get a history of the proceedings of the movements of the temperance society from its organization.

There may be other members of the Christian Church with as enviable records as these three brethren. If so, will the readers let us know about them.

Truly, "Their children shall rise up and call them blessed." JOSEPH E. MCCAULEY.

HAS THE CHURCH A RIGHT TO MEMBERS?

With 50,000,000 people or more outside the churches in the United States there is surely a large opportunity for expansion. But mere expansion is hardly worth considering. It might be a detriment both to the outsider and to the church to get him enrolled as a member. If he has not been prepared for membership by faithful instruction, by creating the right spirit in him, by regeneration and renewal it is misleading him to take him into the church and make him believe he is a Christian.

Merely adding names to the roll may be sorry deceptive business. A church has no right to receive a man and to tell him he is now a "church member," unless it is willing to enter sympathetically into his life and helpfully into his burdens. We should never let the new member fail in his duties of attendance, reading, contribution and personal evangelism; but the matter does not end there. The church is bound to take an interest in him; to rally him if he is noticed to falter; to give him the experience of a brotherly environment; to extend the hand of help when he is being crushed; to comfort him when trouble befalls him. And all this is to be done in the divine spirit. For the church is much more than a club, or a good fellow association or a mutual aid society. It is the family of God on earth.

We have often twitted negligent church members with the witticism, if it has that dignity, of being like the lad who fell out of bed one night. When asked why, he said, "I guess I went to sleep too close to where I got in bed." Many men and women might make the reply, "the church forgot me as soon as it registered my name."

All this happens, when it does happen, and unfortunately it happens frequently, because there is a lack of faithful, sincere and warm-hearted pastoral work. The failure is to be laid at the preacher's door only in part. The whole church is a pastoral society, a life-saving institution. There are many reasons for failure to be helpful to individual members but with none of them should the church be satisfied. Only one thing will do and that is for pastor, church officials, and members to enter sympathetically and helpfully into the lives of the members who need it. Expand the church by making the members bigger as well as by making the membership roll longer.

It would not be a mistaken kindness to show a little pastoral care to the pastor. He carries very heavy loads, if he is really a pastor, and needs the same kind of spiritual interest, prayer, sincere and affectionate sympathy and inspiration that we ordinary mortals must have in order to get along with satisfaction to ourselves and with credit to the church.—Editorial in the Christian-Evangelist.

WHITEFIELD AND THE ROBBER.

In one of his journeys, Whitefield was told of a widow with a large family whose landlord had distrained her furniture and was about to sell it, unless her rent was paid. George Whitefield's purse was never large, but his sympathy was great, and he immediately gave the five guineas which the helpless woman needed. The friend who was traveling with him hinted that the sum was more than he could reasonably afford; to which the reply was given, "When God brings a case of distress before us, it is that we may receive it."

The two travelers proceeded on their journey, and before long, encountered a highwayman, who demanded their money, which they gave. Whitefield now turned the tables on his friend and reminded him how much better it was for the poor widow to have the five guineas than the thief, who had just robbed them. They had not long resumed their travel, before the man returned and demanded Whitefield's coat, which was more respectable than his own. This request was also granted, Whitefield accepting the robber's ragged garment till he could procure a better one.

Presently they perceived the robber again galloping towards them most furiously; and now, fearing that their lives were threatened, they also spurred their horses, and, fortunately arrived at some cottages before the highwayman could stop them. The thief was balked and no doubt, was immensely mortified; for when Whitefield took off the man's tattered coat, he found in one of its pockets a carefully wrapped parcel containing one hundred guineas.—From the Gospel Magazine.

Politics is like a bumblebee: all right as long as you are at the right end of it.—Milton Lee.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

IN FLORIDA.

(EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

Florida Sanitorium, Orlando,
February 10, 1934.

I see by the morning paper that 4,500 passengers left New York yesterday for Florida. This number on the railway trains; possibly an equal number in automobiles and airplanes. Just coming to Florida to escape a frigid climate and get into the healthful, wholesome sunshine of these glorious days of the tropics. Florida increases her population hundreds of thousands in winter and thus makes an invaluable contribution to the health and happiness of no small part of humanity. Skilled physicians and the science of healing are here in abundance to aid the invalid, the frail and the needy of body, and all nature is here with strong and ready hand to strengthen the weak and stimulate the strong. Roses are in bloom now, flowers of every tint and hue enrich lawn and landscape with rich and rioting color, the song of mocking birds cheer you by day and lull you to sleep by night, citrus groves of golden fruit and green foliage spread out in endless acres to gladden the eye and relieve the thirst for those who hunger for the most palatable of acids and juices. Moreover the vegetable gardens are in their full growth and generosity now: lettuce, celery, spinach, cabbages, peas, beans, beets, cucumbers, strawberries. Verily, the God who made Florida was good, not only to Floridians and the dwellers here, but to the nation and the world (Florida products, they tell us, go out in greater or less quantity, to every part of the world). People come here, some to play, some to get health, some to simply pass the the time away, but all to seek sunshine and warmth when there is cloud and chill and cold elsewhere.

Great biographies usually appear after the actor and hero are dead. Not so in the case of John R. Mott. The papers are saying that Basil Matthews, interpreter of great personalities has, in presenting the real, living, breathing, active John R. Mott, given the public a life story of penetration, power and performance. For one thing it may be said that Matthews chose a mighty good subject for his volume, and prejudiced it with the personality of one of the world's farthest known and most widely loved private citizens. John R. Mott, not yet an old or inactive man by any means, is much loved because he loves much. It may be truly said of him that he is a world figure, known, honored, esteemed, loved in practically every nation on the globe. His biographer points out the fact that in some forty years of service, weaving together world forces, he traveled over a million, seven hundred thousand miles, or the equivalent of more than sixty times around the earth.

Again and again has he appeared before college and university student groups, in particular, in over sixty nations, and thus "has created the greatest international student fellowship on earth, and is now president of two other world organizations federating national movements in some fifty lands." In John R. Mott, as in possibly no other man who has lived, has been drawn together men of good will among the peoples of the world. He has been and is a man interested not only in the races of one kind, but in the human race as a great potential family of one Father. While busy, preaching, teaching, evangelizing among the nations with the message of good will and redemption through Jesus Christ, he has raised "at least three hundred million dollars for philanthropic work across the world.

Two years ago, when I was recuperating at this sanitarium, Dr. Mott was here, one of us for treatment, and in daily contact. On a long ride in his car one day, I asked him how it was that he kept in touch with the trend of things and religious activities of the various nations of the world. His reply was that he had a secretary who could speak and write twelve languages readily, and this secretary got his facts and points of view not from an outsider, but an insider, that is a native, of the various countries of the world. Thus a native Turk supplied data constantly about trends and times in Turkey, a native Indian about trends and times in India, and so on, around the world, and the one work of this linguist-secretary was to secure and collate these facts, trends and events. John R. Mott, like the Saviour and Redeemer, lives, teaches and preaches, and so loves the world that he gives his life to bring men and women to a knowledge of Him whom to know aright is life eternal. Only by living, teaching, practicing Christianity could John R. Mott have so bound together the peoples of good will in all the nations. Basil Matthews has written a great book about a truly great man—a Christian world figure.

J. O. A.

THE WHO'S WHO OF THE ETERNAL.

The following editorial appeared the other day in the Democrat-Tribune of Carmi, Ill.:

"There is one task in connection with editing a country weekly newspaper that we dislike, and that is writing the obituary of an old lady. It seems so futile trying to set down in writing the things she has done. She was born, she grew to womanhood, joined a church, was married, became a mother, and passed on to her reward in the future life. The dates of her birth, marriage, and death are mentioned, for they are the high points of her life. The story of her life is pitifully short. The life story of her husband would record the facts of his existence, and also of his business or professional life. Perhaps, too, it would tell of political triumphs, and of what he had done for his town, the county, the State, and the nation. The stranger who might read it would understand that the community had lost a valuable citizen.

"We cannot tell, in writing the obituary of a woman, of all the triumphs and disasters of her life; they would sound too petty. When as a bride she and her husband set up a home she assumed the responsibilities that she had never known before. She learned to spend long hours doing toilsome work that was never finished. Day after day the same things had to be done, and she became an expert in doing them. But these things that she did so well do not deserve mention in the final story of her life; they were not outstanding.

"She risked her life each time a child was born and, perhaps, once or twice, ventured so far into the shadow of death that she almost slipped away, and it was only by fighting with every iota of her strength that she was able to pull through—not always because she wanted to live but because she was needed; there was a family for her to care for. But we can't give credit for that; mothers have been doing that since the dawn of time.

"She brought her children into the world, and washed them, and dressed them, and loved them, and kissed away their tears. She bandaged their injured fingers and toes. She nursed them through sickness and she smoothed their paths through life, and all the while she was encouraging her husband and helping him to become successful. She made her home cheerful and restful. She listened to needless stories of his troubles and encouraged him to try again when disaster overtook him. And when success would come and his head would begin to rise among the clouds she would gently pull him back to earth and continue the process of making a man of him. The life story of the average man would not sound so thrilling and would not be so successful were it not for the guiding influence of a good wife and mother behind him.

"But she gets no credit for any of these things. It was what she was put on earth to do.

"And at last she comes to the end of life's toilsome journey and is laid to rest—perhaps the first rest she has known in her busy life. Her funeral is attended by many who did not know her but who came out of respect to her husband or to her children, who are their friends. The minister reads from a slip of paper the uninteresting facts of her birth, marriage and death, and gives the names of the members of her family who survive, but he does not tell all the things she did, partly because they are taken for granted. You can't put all that into an obituary; people might laugh at you for writing it."

It falls to the lot of practically all ministers to write for local papers the obituaries of deceased members. I often had this task when in the pastorate and have for twenty years written obituaries of ministers and their wives for The Congregationalist. Those of us who perform this task know exactly how the village editor felt about it. One is so helpless in attempting to set forth the sorrows and joys, the heartaches and the mountain-top experiences of those who, though plain people, have lived greatly, but have not been appreciated by their own nor by the world at large. We should like to broadcast to the universe the worth of these lives. Perhaps we ought to be satisfied with the fact that these lives, however commonplace they may have seemed, are written in the Who's Who of the Eternal and forever fixed in imperishable character. The words of the village editor may serve to remind us again of their greatness.—R. W. G., in the Congregationalist.

MAN'S INTEREST IN LIFE.

[The following article is from the Daily Press, Newport News, Va., January 22, 1934.]

At the First Congregational-Christian Church yesterday the Rev. Robert Lee House declared that the measure of a man is the nature of his interest, in a sermon on "My Son Was Dead and Is Alive." He took his text from Luke 15:24.

"Progress has taken place as people have become alive to new and finer interests. The measure of a man is the nature of his interest, the things to which he is really alive. But the text recalls a tragedy: 'My son was dead.' As one may be alive in so many ways, in just so many ways may one be dead. What could death do for this young man which had not already been done? Death cannot kill interest which does not exist. Could it take away his love of virtue and truth? He had none. Could it kill his love for his family? It no longer lived. Could it extinguish the candle of hope? It had already ceased to burn. If death is the absence of life, and interest is the substance of life, certainly he had little for which to be called alive. He was spiritually bankrupt—he was dead.

"It has no doubt occurred to you that life is quite a relative thing. One is alive to a certain degree or per cent. There is death in the midst of life. Cut the optic nerve, the kingdom of beauty goes out, but man lives. Cut the nerves of hearing and of speaking, cut the nerves of memory and intellect, the spark of life still burns. Cut off hands and feet, extract the teeth, amputate half the body and man is yet relatively alive. Many exist, few are really alive. Shylock was alive only to his ducats and his daughter. Many a man has lived and died and never been really alive to the kingdom of service and goodwill. Is it not so? Talk to some people about beer, bridge or finance and they are very much alive, but talk to them about the church, benevolence or missions and they are virtually dead.

"My son was dead.' Is that the confession of some father today? Is there a son even now somewhere on the highway, bereft of all that which characterizes a child of God? Is there a son tonight as dead to his home and church as if he had never breathed the breath of life? The text may be in the form of a parable, but some of you know prodigals of 1934.

"My son was dead and is alive.' Professor Goodspeed translates it "he has come to life." Just so. There had been a new ordering of his life, and now his faculties are reaching out in a different direction. Now he is alive to his father, alive to his home, alive to repentance and forgiveness. There has been a renaissance of the mind and a rejuvenation of the spirit, 'he has come to life.'

"Let us remember that we have been born onto a world which constantly urges us toward a higher degree of life. One of the unconscious functions of poetry and music is to waken the dead. Not that those without any sort of appreciation of such are actually dead, but they are frequently in a state of perpetual hibernation. The one thing needful is a heightening of sensibility. To illustrate, we can compare it with the body performing the average actions of daily life. We have to see a fine athlete to have it brought home to us at once how much of the body's potentialities lie dormant. The daily dozen enables us to realize the sense of pleasure and well-being which exercise inevitably brings. At once, something has come which was not there before; a sense of power has been added, the spark of life has burst into a flame.

"There comes to us the message of the Master. He called us to the life abundant and urges us to be supremely alive. He calmly asserted, 'I am the life,' for his interest and affection were coextensive with the totality of life. He was ever vigilant to see the best that glimmers in the worst, to hear the melody of the lark within the songless egg, to discern the wisdom of the sage in the prattle of the child. He was alive, at once, to the simplicity of the child's world and all the complexity and heartache of maturity. O, my soul, am I alive to all that?"

REV. JOS. E. EACH.

The sudden termination of a ten years' pastorate in Thorsby by the death, January 19, 1934, of Rev. Joseph E. Each, was a great shock to the whole community without regard to church affiliations.

Brother Each had been under the doctor's care for some weeks, but occupied his pulpit on January 7th. He was confined to his bed less than ten days, and laughingly protested on the Sunday before his death that he was not sick. Few, if any, seemed to have any idea of his serious condition to the day of his death. At the union prayer meeting at the Baptist Church, Wednesday night, a prayer of thanksgiving was offered for the favorable reports which had come from the hospital as to his condition (he had passed through an operation for appendicitis). But on Friday morning the word came to Thorsby that he was dying. His children hastened to his bedside at the hospital in Birmingham, and were present when he passed away at 9 o'clock that night.

For many years Mr. Each has been vice-president of Thorsby Institute's Board of Trustees, and was very active in its affairs. Four of his children are graduates of the Institute, and another is now a pupil there. It was known that the Congregational Church building could not accommodate those who would wish to attend the funeral. Services were arranged for the Institute auditorium at 11 o'clock Sunday. All other services in the town were given up. Rev. E. W. Butler was in charge of the services. Six other ministers were on the platform and assisted, among them were: Rev. Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, of La Grange, Ga., President of Atlanta Seminary when Mr. Each was a student there; also President for many years of Thorsby Institute Board of Trustees; Rev. Dr. F. P. Ensminger, of Birmingham, Superintendent of Alabama Congregational work, and former intimate associate of Mr. Each in pastorates in Tampa, Fla.; Rev. W. H. Tillman, Crestview, Fla., intimate friend and associate for more than twenty years; Rev. A. C. Nelson, pastor of nearby Congregational Churches at East View and Mountain Springs, Clanton, Route 6, a friend of many years standing; Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of Thorsby Baptist Church, near neighbor and close friend of Mr. Each for the past five years. Dr. Ensminger left an important meeting in Chicago Saturday afternoon and returned to that city Sunday night.

Joseph C. Each was born in Iowa, September 21, 1874, spent his boyhood in that State and in Nebraska, removed at the age of 14, with his parents, to Lake Charles, La., where he made his home for more than twenty years. In 1908 he was married to Miss Ethel Cox, of Lake Charles, who survives him with six children: Cecil and William, of Birmingham; Alta (Mrs. Horace Franklin), Juanita, Lucile and Marie, all of Thorsby. Two children died in infancy.

Mr. Each graduated from Atlanta Theological Seminary in 1912, spent ten years in pastorates in Florida, coming from Crest View, Fla., to the pastorate of the Congregational Church of Thorsby, in December, 1923.

In these ten years he has won for himself a large place in the affection of the people of Thorsby and of Chilton County. More than once in the funeral services Sunday he was referred to as "the best loved man in Thorsby." Burial was in the Thorsby City Cemetery.

To the little Congregational Church of Thorsby, with its less than one hundred members, the death of its beloved pastor seems peculiarly distressing by reason of the fact that within less than four months past, three other men of the church, all of whom had been active in its work, all of whom had held one or more of its important offices, all of whom had been on the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute have been called away from earth. To the names of Norton, C. C. Peterson and Goddard, now with sorrow we must add the much loved name of Each.

E. W. BUTLER.

A PROPHET WHO LIVED AHEAD OF HIS TIME.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

Many readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN knew William Jennings Bryan personally, or have heard him speak from pulpit or platform. In either place he was a master of his subject, as well as the King's English.

In these days of so much talk about money, especially concerning what part silver should play in our monetary system, it is easy to recall that the main plank of Mr. Bryan's platform, on which he sought unsuccessfully the Presidency three times, was his "16-1" plea for silver.

Mr. Bryan, like many other great men, lived ahead of his time. He was a greater statesman than a politician, which fact no doubt was the cause of his defeats. Were he living today, a time in which statesmanship is replacing politics, he would no doubt be elected to the highest office within the gift of the nation's franchise.

After Mr. Bryan left the House of Representatives, and shortly after his last defeat for the Presidency, he addressed his countrymen by saying:

"You may think that you have buried the cause of bimetalism; you may congratulate yourselves that you have laid the free coinage of silver away in a sepulchre, newly made since the election, and before the door rolled the veto stone. But, sirs, if our cause is just, as I believe it is, your labor has been in vain; no tomb was ever made so strong that it could imprison a righteous cause. Silver will lay aside its grave clothes and its shroud. It will yet rise, and in its rising and its reign, will bless mankind."

This quotation from the "Commoner," as he was well and favorably known, gives a striking insight into his knowledge of the Bible, which fact those who had the rare privilege of hearing him speak can and will readily attest. It has been well said of Mr. Bryan that he was the greatest unlicensed preacher the nation ever had. A man of courage and conviction, he carried his ideas as well as his ideals to a point that caused many to look upon them as hobbies of the master orator. Let this be as it may, he never failed or faltered in his convictions, and he entered life's sunset valley in the midst of fight which he deemed to be right. This closing incident of his great and colorful career is still too well known to be mentioned here.

One thing the world needs most just now is a few more girls like Mother used to make.—Milton Lee.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Fifty years ago, the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference required every church secretary to submit his local church record to a conference committee for examination. These books were carefully examined to see if the minutes of the quarterly conference were properly and neatly written, and if the membership roll was accurately recorded. For some reason not known to this writer, that custom was discontinued. It would be well to consider reviving this ancient order of the Conference.

Every church should carefully keep an accurate record of its work, and preserve this for future reference. The books should be kept in a safe place. A few years ago, while writing a history of a local church, it was interesting to study the motions made and passed in the quarterly conference. In many churches the records will reveal that it is a custom to pass a motion asking for a committee to be appointed to revise the church roll before the report is sent up to the annual conference. I cannot remember how many times this matter has been brought up in my own work as a pastor. Time and time again I have heard this expression, when the matter of paying the Conference Apportionment was under discussion: "I think we have a great many members who are not paying anything, and we are assessed for these members as well as for the active members. We should have our roll revised."

Well, I have learned some interesting lessons about "revising the church roll of members." Not very long ago, I had an opportunity to look over the membership roll of my old home church, Mt. Carmel, where I was received into membership, when I was about 15 years old. Of course, my work has prevented me from attending the quarterly meetings for more than thirty years. My contributions have been made to the churches in my own field. I did not find my name on that church roll. It had been dropped for non-attendance and failure to contribute, I presume. So, for several years, my name has not been on the church record as a member. That church roll has been revised.

I cite two other cases. Three people recently asked for letters to unite with a large city church. Two of these were members of one church, the third was a member of another church. When application was made for letters of transfer one member was informed that her name had not been on the church record since she moved away from that community. The facts in the other two cases were: the persons had been dropped from membership during an absence of one year. All of these people were worthy of membership in any church, and were regarded as persons of high moral and Christian character. Not one of them had been communicated with, or notified of this action of the church. These churches did these people an injustice in spite of the fact that I happen to be one of the persons involved. There are scores of such instances to be found in our church records.

What is the church doing to reach the delinquent members? Is there a committee in each church to study this problem and earnestly work and pray to enlist them in the active work of the kingdom? If there is such a committee, what have they done? What can they do? What will they do? There are members who do not attend and support the church. Some one should face the opportunity of reaching these precious souls for the work of the church. Visit them. Pray for them. Love them. Win them. Carry the spirit of Christ to them. Make your church so spiritual and helpful that they will be glad to share in your fellowship. Do not drop them from the roll until you have discharged your personal responsibility towards them in seeking to enlist their cooperation. Wait until they make a personal request for their names to be dropped from the roll, and do not be hasty in taking action. The church is a family. Parents do not disown a son because he makes his home in a distant State.

I. W. JOHNSON.

OFFERINGS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Just a few more days and the months designated as Educational Period by our Convention will be gone. A large number of churches have sent in offerings, either as fifth Sunday offerings or Dollar-a-Month Club dues, since Conference met. It has been agreed that all such offerings should count on the campaign for $25,000.00 for the College and should be credited to the churches respectively. Only a small number of churches have actually made their canvass for the College and have sent in the money raised.

The following churches so far constitute the Honor Roll:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Ambrose, Georgia and Alabama.....	$ 30.00	$ 35.00
Elon College, North Carolina & Virginia	229.00	688.00
Seagrove, Western North Carolina....	18.50	32.00
Waverly, Eastern Virginia.....	113.00	169.00
Carolina, North Carolina & Virginia..	15.50	15.50
Mt. Bethel, North Carolina & Virginia	37.00	37.91

The following churches have sent in contributions from the church during the campaign:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Windsor, Eastern Virginia.....	$ 49.50	$ 46.00
Holland, Eastern Virginia.....	212.50	159.50
Eure, Eastern Virginia.....	178.50	25.00
Wakefield, Eastern Virginia.....	47.50	25.75
Liberty Springs, Eastern Virginia....	171.50	61.00
Mt. Carmel, Eastern Virginia.....	87.00	32.00
Holy Neck, Eastern Virginia.....	166.50	67.31
Newport News, Eastern Virginia....	132.50	30.43
Mt. Zion, North Carolina & Virginia..	73.00	38.00
Haw River, North Carolina & Virginia	96.00	29.50
New Lebanon, North Carolina & Va...	65.00	60.18
Catawba Springs, E. North Carolina..	105.50	40.50
Liberty Vance, E. North Carolina....	202.50	51.50
Wake Chapel, E. North Carolina.....	102.50	101.08
Ramseur, W. North Carolina.....	59.00	33.00

You will note that five churches have raised and sent in the amounts asked for. A number of other churches that have reported have already reached their goal, and others have made a good showing. It is hoped that these churches will put forth further effort that they may be taken from the list of churches sending in contributions and placed on the Honor Roll. Comparatively speaking, a very small number of the churches have reported. I know that a large number have been working faithfully on the canvass, and just as soon as the canvass is completed, they will submit their reports.

I would like to have just a word further with the pastors. It is much better for the pastors to see that the campaign is made in their own churches rather than to have someone representing the College come in and make the canvass for them. When the church raises its own money, it evidences confidence in its own ability to do what is expected of it, and it will be much easier next year to meet the requirements.

Monday, I happened to meet with a young man who is in college, but who is serving two churches in the Convention. He said, "It is squarely up to the pastor. If he wants to raise this money, he can. His people will respond if he goes after it. If he does not make an effort himself, no one else can raise the money for him. I expect to see that both of my churches raise the amounts asked for." With these statements, I think he has sized up the situation pretty accurately. I am hoping that every pastor will feel that it is not only his duty, but that it is a great privilege to go to his people for the support of an institution that has meant so much to the church that is ours. I hope that no pastor or people will fail in this undertaking. Just as soon as your church completes its canvass, will you please report to the College?

L. E. SMITH, President.

WAKEFIELD PASTORATE.

The writer has been asked, "Why don't you write more often for THE SUN?" That question is answered in that statement: For reasons best known to myself, I don't. But I decided in face of it all, that I would write again.

It does not seem so, but the writer has been serving the same group of churches for the past seven years. During that time a great many changes have been wrought here. So many have gone home, others have moved away from the various communities, while others have come to take their places, and the work and the world moves on.

These people (and that includes all races, denominations and strata of society) have been very patient, kind and gracious to me and my family, making us feel perfectly at home, and that means a great deal.

The first quarter of this conference year has passed, yet the writer has not been idle, even if he has not written so often. He has had nine funerals, besides standing beside the grave of his best friend, and that alone is enough to occupy his time for awhile. Though the way is lonesome without her, and the load is difficult, yet I must find my way along, for these others who need me.

Others have written of poundings. I do not have need for that word, but I do find a great need for another, and that is "a pouring," for things that are good to eat and valuable to have are constantly pouring into our home. We have been supplied with the best fresh meats imaginable since the season began and the other good things that go along with that.

At the Christmas season each member of the family received several nice gifts, which were greatly appreciated.

Under the leadership of splendid men, the different churches have splendid Sunday Schools, and in two of these churches there are two splendid Missionary Societies doing good work.

The Ivor Church has received two coats of paint, and several pieces of shrubbery for the lawn.

Barrett's and Burton's Grove Churches have received new roofs for their buildings and repairs in other ways. The Wakefield Church has been painted on the inside and outside, and shrubbery set, besides other general repairs.

The parsonage has been painted on the outside and papered, and shrubbery set about it, all of which has added to the beauty of all of the buildings.

At the present we, like others, are in the grip of the cold, and there is considerable sickness, but am glad to report Mrs. E. W. Carroll, wife of Superintendent Carroll, of Burton's Grove, is much improved.

C. E. GERRINGER.

"Lost! Somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."—Horace Mann.

WHICH WOULD BE EASIER FOR YOU?

By GEORGIA ROBERTSON.

If your doctor said it was necessary in your case to give up candy, of which you were fond, would it be easier if it were banished from your home and office, or would it be just as easy to let it alone if it were within reach all the time? You know without making the test.

Or, if it were your child, would you feel you were giving him a square deal in carrying out the doctor's orders if you kept candy in his sight and also ate it before him? Would he be more likely to disobey orders with it in easy reach all the time to tempt him, or if you planned so he would seldom see it and would have difficulty in getting it? You know the answer.

Will it lessen drinking to have beer and light wines sold in a multitude of places where men, women, young people, and children continually have occasion to go—as grocery stores, drug stores, lunchrooms, restaurants and hotels?

Will there be less temptation to use alcoholic beverages when sold in these respectable places where everyone must go—even women, girls and boys—with beer and wine bottles on display and freely sold, with apparent perfect respectability and "good form" to partake of, or to have the same beverages sold in the old-time saloon behind darkened windows and screened doors as though something to be ashamed of, and indulged in only when hidden from sight and where women and young people were forbidden to enter, and into which self-respecting men used to be ashamed to be seen going?

And what of the vast army of young girls and young men who must virtually become bartenders in these stores and eating places unless they give up their jobs and face starvation for themselves and their dependents? If they remain they will also have constant temptation thrust upon them.

These new-time saloons frequented by women and girls will cause more drunkenness than the old-time saloons.

Are you going to be one of those who by your example will help to make serving of alcoholic beverages fashionable and popular among your "set" and so be instrumental in causing drunkenness? Are you going to make no protest against having hundreds of licensed places in your town? Dare you say it does not concern you?

WRONG DIRECTIONS.

In an English exchange we find the following incident, a true occurrence:

I was going west one time during the winter. The train had two engines ploughing along. There was a woman, with a little baby in her arms, who wanted to leave the train at a certain little station, where they stop the train if you come from a certain distance. The brakeman came in and called the name of the station when we were getting near. The woman said, "Don't forget me," and he replied, "Sure." There was a man there who said, "Lady, I will see that the brakeman doesn't forget you—don't you worry." A while later he said, "Here's your station." She hopped out of the train—into the storm. . . The train had gone on about three-quarters of an hour when the brakeman came in and said, "Where's that woman?" The traveling man said, "She got off." The brakeman said, "Then she's gone to her death; we only stopped the train yonder because there was something the matter with the engine." They called for volunteers and went back to look for her. They searched for hours and finally found her out on the prairies, covered with a shroud of ice and snow woven about her by the pitiless storm, and with the little babe folded to her breast. She followed the man's directions, but they were wrong.

She followed the wrong directions and they led her to her death and the death of her little one. How great the responsibility of the man, who sent her into the night and the raging storm! Greater still is the responsibility of the men who stand up as preachers and teachers of Christianity and who give to lost men and women and to their children the wrong directions. Instead of sounding the alarm and warning them to flee from the wrath to come, they preach that all is well. Instead of pointing out God's way of salvation by the blood, they obscure the cross, deny Christ's atoning work and send their hearers down the road which leads to eternal darkness and misery. How awful will be their remorse when they discover the work they have done by preaching the devil's lie, instead of God's eternal truth! Of such who give the wrong directions, who preach error and a delusion in the place of the Gospel, our Lord spoke in his severe denunciation of the scribes and the Pharisees. They are the blind guides and the hypocrites, who shut up the Kingdom of Heaven against man. (Matt. 23.)

MY RULE OF LIFE.

To let no thought go unexpressed
That might give someone pleasure;
To say no word I might regret
In later hours of leisure;
To do the kindly little deeds
That make life worth the living;
To overlook another's faults,
Nor fail to be forgiving;
To strive to leave each task well done,
And make a joy of duty:
Unceasingly to give God thanks
For life and love and beauty:
To honor God, and loving Him,
Love, as myself, my neighbor,
This, the high test of perfect love
The goal toward which we labor.
But I shall fail for I am weak;
Doubtless there will be sinning,
Then I shall humbly pray for help,
And make a fresh beginning.

ELLA COLTER JOHNSON.

Some people instead of making a mark in the world only make a stain.—Milton Lee.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¼ x 1¼ inches.

Specimen of Type
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, 3 years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 10 Mercy and truth together; righteousness has kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better than a year, all

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type
8 ¶ Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under gold edges, silk

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x $5.50
- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¼ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and hook-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references, and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

ONE TRACT—TWO BROTHERS.

BY ONE OF THE BROTHERS.

"One day in the fall or winter of 1884, a young business man stood in front of his office in a certain little courthouse town in southeast Alabama, taking an early morning sunbath preparatory to entering upon the details of his day's work.

"From up the street came one of those well-known specimens of the genus homo, whom we all instinctively feel to love and honor—a country preacher. His tall, gaunt form was slightly bent with age, for many a preceding winter had left more or less of its snows amid his locks.

"Scarcely slackening his gait, he handed the younger man a little tract called 'What We Owe and How to Pay It.' And with a kindly smile and a slight nod of greeting he simply said, 'Read that,' and continued his onward way.

"Thus did two of God's trains meet and pass each other on schedule time, at an obscure little station on the great railway of life. But we shall see.

"The young man went slowly into his office, holding the tract before him, reading and soliloquizing as he went. 'What We Owe, and How to Pay It.' That's just what I want to know, and if this will tell me, it hasn't hit me a minute too soon. He spent from thirty minutes to an hour in a careful study of the tract and in that brief space of time a most natural thing occurred. Foundations, based upon the central truth of God's Word, were laid in his life, destined never to be destroyed.

"It was a tract on tithing, and the writer believes that no printed message within equal space limitations (excepting, of course, portions of the Bible itself) was ever so effective in straightening out the tangled thread of business, and pouring the relish of heart's ease and contentment over life's rugged bill of fare.

"And thus it was that the young man was grappled, as it were, with hooks of steel, and in his joy at being put in possession of this, one of the simplest and sweetest of all Bible doctrines, he ordered one hundred of the tracts for distribution. This story will include the history of just one of those tracts.

"In a distant part of the state he had a younger brother, who had become involved in litigation. At the time this story opens he was 'heels over head' in debt to the lawyers and was facing a hopeless future, with a young and dependent family. To such a man at such a time came one of the one hundred tracts above mentioned.

"This younger brother was a merchant, and the very title of the tract appealed to him. In the unique little message he easily found providential guaranty, prearranged benevolence, cheerful giving, and temporal success. The tempter was, of course, on hand with his stereotyped suggestion to 'wait until all other debts were paid and then begin.' But this young business man had caught a glimpse of sunshine through rifted clouds, and there became a faithful tither. After more than a third of a century he is today in what business men call 'fine shape,' a merchant of almost unlimited credit in the commercial world. His title is no small item in the benevolences of the day, and those nearest to him believe that he would regard it as business suicide to discontinue tithing.

"A period of thirty-five years has been covered. Both the brothers have children who tithe and who, in turn, are teaching their little ones the blessed doctrine. Where will it end? And who but God himself can at last announce the grand total?

"Many of us have heard of the old blacksmith one of whose customers became dissatisfied over a bill for shoeing a horse. The old smith, good-naturedly, proposed a compromise. He said if the customer preferred he would let him off upon his paying one cent for the first nail, two cents for the second, four for the third, and so on, doubling on each nail until the thirty-two nails were paid for. To this apparent concession the customer readily agreed, but soon found, to his amazement, that there was not a bank on earth able to pay the bill.

"There is a fantastic or shadowy analogy—the old country preacher as the first nail; the two brothers the second; their families the third, and so on to the end of time.

"If I were writing a book instead of a tract, I would fill it with many thrilling chapters and these should be some of the chapter headings: 'A Seed Sown,' 'Good Soil,' 'More Good Soil,' 'A Sunday School Library Installed,' 'New Church and Pastorium Made Possible,' 'A Sunday School Missionary,' 'Tens of Thousands from Two Brothers,' etc.

"All the time I have been writing this tract, and now that it is finished, I have been hearing and yet do I hear, a still small voice of insistent pleading, which I long to leave in the heart and soul of him that hath ears and will hear; 'In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.'"

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 10, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,336.99
Mt. Bethel, Elon College, N. C. ....	3.00
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C. ....	2.36
Zion, Sanford, N. C. ....	.93
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va. ....	3.00
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va. ....	1.50
Shiloh, Ramseur, N. C. ....	1.00
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C. ....	.57
Sanford, N. C. ....	1.00
Ocean View, Va. ....	7.12
Third Avenue, Danville, Va. ....	5.19
Newport, Stanley, Va. ....	1.17
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va. ....	1.23
Linville, Va. ....	4.16
Damascus, Chapel Hill, N. C. ....	1.00
Winefeaster, Va. ....	4.24
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va. ....	1.51
Noon Day, Wedowee, Ala. ....	1.00

Total ..... $ 1,376.97

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 674.97
A friend, Burlington, N. C. ....	14.00

Total ..... $ 688.97

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,218.12
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	39.98
Individuals and Churches .....	14.00

Total to date ..... $ 8,272.10

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

DR. FRANK C. LAUBACH.

[Note.—Miss Cushing, News Editor of the American Board, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., will furnish each issue, for some weeks, a sketch of one of our missionaries now on the field.—J. O. A.]

The Moros, those virile descendants of warlike Moslems in Northern Mindanao, Philippine Islands, constitute the most difficult problem under the American flag today, says Dr. Frank C. Laubach of Lanao, Dansalan, Philippine Islands, who, incredible as it may sound, has invented an alphabet for Moros that can be learned in 15 minutes to half an hour, and that it is revolutionizing the intellectual life of a whole people. Up to now, only a small percentage of 400,000 Moros could read and write Arabic, and there has been nothing printed in Arabic.

Dr. Laubach has been called the most admired American missionary in the Philippines. His new literacy method is becoming known around the world, and has been translated into 16 Filipino dialects and four foreign languages. He is now working on Arabic and Turkish charts. As many as 10,000 have learned to read in one month.

Dr. Laubach has started a little newspaper called The Lanao Progress, printed in the new alphabet and in the Maranaw dialect. This has bits of news telling what is going on in the world, and touching on ethics, morality, justice, and religion. Municipal, high schools and colleges, members of constabularies, and even Catholic priests and sisters have asked Dr. Laubach to teach them the new language.

Probably no one knows or understands the Moros better than Dr. Laubach. He holds both their love and respect. When he first went to the Philippine Islands, he was stationed in Manila. He was born in Benton, Pa., and after graduation from normal school, taught three years, and then went to Princeton and later to Union Seminary and Columbia. He is a psychologist and sociologist, as well as an author and educator. Perhaps his best known books are "The People of the Philippines" and "Seven Thousand Emeralds." From the first, Dr. Laubach has majored in educational work, being connected with the University of Manila and the Theological Seminary before going to Mindanao to work among the Moros. Dr. Laubach early saw the need and championed the cause of a union theological course for the training of the Filipino ministry.

An interesting organization of Moro young men which Dr. Laubach has encouraged is the Society of English Speaking Moros, who plan to serve their own people by teaching them improved methods of agriculture, animal husbandry, and proper health measures. One of their purposes is "to act as peace makers among the Moros, and between the Moros and Christians." They also put themselves on record as desiring to "prepare themselves to be worthy of the leadership of this province, which will fall upon our shoulders as we grow older."

SONG BOOKS RECEIVED.

To the good people of Liberty (Vance) Christian Church we express our thanks for your generous gift of song books to us. On a previous occasion you have given books to help the mountain work.

May you continue to progress in the Master's service.

Sincerely,
REV. AND MRS. R. T. GRISSOM.

Fancy Gap, Va.

A man will not grow old as long as he is in love—with something or other.—Milton Lee.

READING LESSON FOR TEACHERS.

By J. H. DILLARD.

There is a fact which most teachers already know, but I have always had the thought that it is a fact of which all teachers ought to be reminded at the beginning of every school year. It goes to the very heart of managing, influencing, helping children. In dealing with children the simple fact is, that what we really are in our inmost selves counts for more than anything. In the schoolroom it counts for more than method or curriculum, counts for more than even knowledge. Of course these things are highly important, but they are not so important as character and its cousin, which goes by the name of culture.

This cousin is a mysterious, undefinable sort of thing, but it is as real a thing as chalk and blackboard. It shows itself in clothes, speech, manner. It shows itself in all our attitudes and characteristics. You cannot say just what it consists of, but you know it when you see it. Children know and feel it when they see it. They do not know, or think about, or care about, any name for it, but in a subtle sort of way they know when it is there. Their opinion of their teacher depends more on this than on anything else.

Now how to get this thing? Believing sincerely in at least one of the ways of getting it, I beg here to urge teachers to try the plan. My title tells the plan. In reading books we have a choice of associations, and it is by associations that culture largely comes. There is no surer way of getting it than by reading sincere books, whether histories, essays, poems, tales or novels. I should like to suggest three little books that I think would be of profit and delight to any teacher.

I suppose many readers have had the experience, after reading some good book, of feeling like wanting everybody to read it. That is the way I felt after reading some years ago the three books I shall mention. They are "Adventures in Contentment," "Adventures in Friendship" and "Adventures in Understanding." The author gave his name as David Grayson. I suppose most readers know by this time who David Grayson is and that he is now engaged in studying and writing about Woodrow Wilson.

The three little books recommended are good literature. They are full of humor, fine spirit and healthful influence. They are religious without being preachy. When I first read them some years ago I remember thinking that if I were a millionaire I would present a copy to every teacher and every graduating high school pupil in the land. Few books have been published in this country within recent years that are so well suited to set young teachers forward on the road to a culture that is simple, wholesome and sincere.

I wish I could give a taste of some of the interesting episodes. Chapter X on "Friendship" is one that can be read many times, which is the true test. The whole description is charming. When you read this chapter, Chapters IV, VII and XI in "Contentment," and others in "Understanding," you will feel like persuading everybody you meet to read them. The reader of these books makes the acquaintance of simple men like Charles Baxter and those who met in his shop, and delightful Doctor North. There are a number of good stories told about Doctor North. Here is one:

A man in the neighborhood by the name of Horace tells how he met the Doctor on one occasion driving his old white horse in the town road.

"Horace," called the Doctor, "why don't you paint your barn?"

"Well," said Horace, "it is beginning to look a bit shabby."

"Horace," said the Doctor, "you're a prominent citizen. We look to you to keep up the credit of the neighborhood."

Horace painted his barn.

In such stories we become acquainted with the Doctor and with the other plain folks of the neighborhood, and we learn the lesson that there is as much of real interest, as much of real comedy and tragedy in any common place as can be found in any far-away land. We learn that we should not think of literature or art or culture as things that are remote, but should think of them as near at hand ready to become a part of ourselves.—Reprinted from the Virginia Journal of Education, November, 1933.

DEATH IN THE QUICKSANDS.

Victor Hugo's familiar description of the traveler in the quicksands of Brittany is perhaps one of the most vivid and terrible stories of death by such means ever written. It runs thus:

"It sometimes happens that a man, traveler, or fisherman, walking on the beach at low tide, far from the bank, suddenly notices that for several minutes he has been walking with some difficulty. The strand beneath his feet is like pitch; his soles stick to it; it is like glue.

"The beach is perfectly dry, but at every step he takes, as soon as he lifts his foot, the print which it leaves fills with water. The eye, however, has noticed no change; the immense strand is smooth and tranquil; all the sand has the same appearance; nothing distinguishes the surface which is solid from that which is no longer so; the joyous little cloud of sand fleas continues to leap tumultuously over the wayfarer's feet. The man pursues his way, goes forward, inclines to the land, endeavors to get nearer the upland. He is not anxious. Anxious about what? Only he feels as if the weight of his feet increases with every step he takes. Suddenly he sinks in.

"He sinks in two or three inches. Decidedly he is not on the right road; he stops to take his bearings. All at once he looks at his feet. They have disappeared. The sand covers them. He draws them out of the sand; he will retrace his steps; he turns back; he sinks in deeper. The sand comes up to his ankles. He pulls himself out and throws himself to the left; the sand is half-leg deep. He throws himself to the right; the sand comes up to his shins. Then he recognizes with unspeakable terror that he is caught in the quicksand, and that he has beneath him the fearful medium in which man can no more walk than the fish can swim. He throws off his load if he has one, lightens himself like a ship in distress; it is already too late; the sand is above his knees. He calls, he waves his hat or his handkerchief; the sand gains on him more and more. If the beach is deserted, if the land is too far off, if there is no help in sight it is all over.

"He is condemned to that appalling burial, long, infallible, implacable, and impossible to slacken or to hasten, which endures for hours, which seizes you erect, free, and in full health, and which draws you by the feet, which at every effort you make, at every shout you utter, drags you a little deeper, sinking you slowly into the earth while you look upon the horizon, the sails of the ships upon the sea, the birds flying and singing, the sunshine and the sky. The victim attempts to sit down, to lie down, to creep; every movement he makes inters him; he straightens up; he sinks in; he feels that he is being swallowed. He howls, implores, cries to the clouds, despairs.

"Behold him waist deep in the sand. The sand reaches his breast; he is now only a bust. He raises his arm, utters furious groans, clutches the beach with his nails, would hold by that straw, leans upon his elbows to pull himself out of this soft sheath, sobs frenziedly; the sand rises. The sand reaches his shoulders; the sand reaches his neck; the face alone is visible now. The mouth cries; the sand fills it; silence. The eyes still gaze, the sand shuts them; night. Now the forehead decreases, a little hair flutters above the sand; a hand comes to the surface of the beach, moves and shakes, and disappears. It is the earth-drowning man. The earth filled with the ocean becomes a trap. It presents itself like a plain, and opens like a wave."

Alas, that death should come to anyone in such hideous fashion. But sin does that and worse. It slays, not merely a lone traveler now and then, but it betrays and ruins its millions. Like the deadly quicksands, sin may look harmless and even attractive until the victim is in the power of some deadly habit. Like the quicksands, help must come from some source outside of self-determination and struggle, and that is just the kind of help Christ delights to bring to the repentant soul sinking down under the power of hell's deadly grip. "Life hath quicksands, life hath snares," says Longfellow, but it is the good news of the Gospel that Christ brings a mighty deliverance from the most treacherous quagmire of evil habits that ever engulfed a soul when he has a fair chance to work, but be sure to call on him in time.

MORAL DECAY: POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

Moral decay is always followed by political corruption. The sin engendered thus is always the gangrene of a nation. The inevitable curse of such a state is that it produces no men—this was true in ancient Israel; it still remains true. At that time the people were stupid, the priests served for hire and the prophets went into the office for a piece of bread. The false peace of ritual settled over the land and immorality of life was the lot of the people.

How fearful the lot of a people in whom the profit motive rules; the ministers of God are filled with greed and easy self-indulgence; and the prophets of the Most High have no ringing challenge for a stupid people in moral and political decay. At present we are in the depths. Our ordinary church life, efforts at legislation and undertakings in business have failed us. The wages of such sin is death. Can we get a new grip on God and show forth such a heroic spirit with this new sense of God as to escape the present moral and political decay?

That the church and her constituted ministers must lead in this no one need to be told. There are none others unto whom we can look. This is their business. They must break through the formalism of worship and rebuke the immorality of life and keep vigorous the outposts of advance in religious conquest. No ordinary ministry can do this. Love of ease and needless self-indulgence, so manifest among the staid and respectable and indifferent nobodies, must give place to mighty men of God with such a burning message from God that they will send the people away from the house of God with the conviction that they have been in the presence of God. Then we will raise up saints and missionary spirits among and for the nations. Our fathers' God only can save us.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Meditation is not an act of the mind only, but of the whole man, so that the Word stirs thought and thought stirs prayer, and prayer passes into communion, and communion reveals new matter for meditation.—Mary Guy Pearse.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG.

The whole world came to hear him speak that day,
 And all the ages sent their scribes to see
 And hear what word the new land had to say
 Of God and man and truth and liberty.
 Homer was there, and Socrates and Paul,
 Shakespear and Luther, Pitt, Cavous, and Bright,
 With Washington—staunch friends of freedom
 all;
 Nor did he fail; he lifted there a light
 For all the earth to see, from fires of truth
 That surged within his breast. Yet that crude throng
 Of men knew not that through this man uncouth
 God spake as through old prophets, stern and strong.
 They turned away, these men, but angels bent
 From heaven to hear those flaming words, God-sent.
 —Thomas Curtis Clark.

LINCOLN

A blend of mirth and sadness
 Of smiles and tears,
 A quaint knight errant
 Of the pioneers.
 A homely hero
 Of star and sod,
 A peasant prince,
 A masterpiece of God.

—Walter Malone.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP RALLY.

The Executive Committee of the Youth Fellowship of Eastern Virginia met in Suffolk, Sunday afternoon, February 4th, and planned for a rally of the Fellowship to be held in Suffolk Christian Church on Saturday afternoon and evening, March 10th. The program will begin at 1:30 o'clock, and will close at night with a communion service led by Rev. J. G. Truitt.

There will be a Fellowship supper with speeches, entertainment, etc., the cost of which will be 25 cents.

During the afternoon various groups will be studying out the plans suggested by Dr. Walter Judd in his little book called "The Philosophy That Works." During the evening program there will be group meetings, discussing the work in local churches.

Young people of Eastern Virginia should plan now to be present for this very fine rally.

FLORIDA CONFERENCE.

The young people of our Florida churches had a rare experience recently in their World Friendship Rallies, planned and directed by Miss Pattie Lee Coghill. Two very interesting characters shared in the programs.

One of them was Epra P. Young, a graduate of Chicago Seminary, who has recently returned from three and a half years as a playground director and adviser of young men on personal problems in Adana, Turkey. Dr. Goodsell, of the American Board, says, "He is a vibrant, winsome young man, deeply spiritual, eager and able to communicate what he knows."

The other man was Rev. E. E. White, who is well known by Wadley and Elon Summer School students, and who is doing a great work in the mountains of Tennessee. Mr. White stirs the hearts of people wherever he goes. They do not forget him, and they are better for having known him.

Meetings were held at Clearwater, Avon Park, Miami, West Palm Beach, Melbourne, and Daytona Beach, which places were in reach of all our young people in Florida.

Young people in Florida are fortunate in having Pattie Lee to aid them, for she is always thinking up something fine like these rallies.

GREAT RELIGIOUS LEADERS OF TODAY.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR FEB. 25, 1934.

(Cal. 1:11-24.)

WORSHIP PROGRAM.

Theme—God Glorified Through the Service of Men. (See Gal. 1:24.)

Piano Prelude—"Prayer (Rienzi)," Wagner.
 Call to Woship—

A charge to keep I have; a God to glorify,
 A never-dying soul to save, and fit it for the sky;
 To serve the present age, my calling to fulfill;
 O, may it all my powers engage, to do my Masters' will.

Hymn—"Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart."

Scripture—Gal. 1:11-14.

Hymn—"O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Prayer—That God will abundantly bless and strengthen those who are called into places of leadership and large influence in all those causes and walks of life that represent Christianity in action, etc.

Prayer Hymn—"Saviour, Thy Dying Love."

Leader: (Secure suggestions from the members as to whom they think the great religious leaders of today are. These may be world figures—American leaders, missionaries, folks whom you know in your own community. Libraries, magazines, church papers, etc., will provide excellent material for this discussion. This topic can be developed into a very interesting missionary meeting.)

DISCUSSION.

1. What Makes a Religious Leader?

Show how both great and humble folks may be religious leaders if they go into partnership with God. If you were to give five qualities essential in religious leadership, what would they be? Does position in a church or other religious institution make one a leader? Does the size of the church determine how great a leader a person is? Why?

(a) Bob is a student looking forward to the ministry. "My, I hope I'll never have to work in a little church," he said to a friend. Why do you think he said this? Do you agree with his attitude? Why?

(b) Think of the person who has had the deepest religious influence upon your life. It may have been a friend, a minister, a teacher, father or mother, but whoever it was, can you tell why you believe that the influence was helpful to you? Would you call such a person a religious leader?

II. Who Are Our Religious Leaders Today?

(a) Mahatma Gandhi. A young Christian in India, now studying in an American university, was recently asked what he thought of his fellow-countryman, Gandhi. This was his answer: "He is a very sincere man. He has a fine spirit—better than any Christian has. He really practices self-denial and is very humble. He is always thinking of the conditions of the poor. I do not know how he, a Hindu of an orthodox family, came to have the qualities of a Christian saint. He has the spirit of Christ and uses it in his political campaigns. He practices reverence for God, the equality of mankind, kindness to animals. He has discovered and manifests the love, friendship, peace, long-suffering, and meekness spoken of in Galatians and in the Sermon on the Mount."

People point to Gandhi as a great religious leader, not simply for what he teaches, but because he practices his own precepts so well.

(b) Toyohiko Kagawa. Kagawa is a man in his middle forties, an exceedingly hard worker in spite of poor eyesight and health that is none too good. As a young man he was turned out of a wealthy uncle's home for deciding for Christianity and planning to be a Christian minister. He works to do away with slums, to eliminate war, to organize cooperative societies for a fairer economic order; he writes books; he preaches constantly; he is a man of many interests who works in a dozen fields, for he thinks that Christianity belongs in every area of life and that it should affect governments and living conditions and business and every day living. For many years he lived in the slums, simply to help the people there and to work for removal of slum conditions. Such a choice reveals character. (Kagawa's story appeared in the Sunday School Herald for January 28th.)

(c) Schweitzer of the African Forest. This is the title of a leaflet by H. W. Peet, which you can buy for a nickel. It tells the story of this outstanding German Christian whose work at a forest hospital has attracted the eyes of the world. He is a great musician, a great theologian, and author of books. But though he had a reputation in these two fields, with two doctors' degrees already, he decided that he could best use his life in reducing the physical misery of the world. In Africa he has been most of the time for the past twenty years as a medical missionary. He sometimes raises money for his work by giving organ recitals in Europe; sometimes by lecturing; and friends in many countries contribute to his work. A man like Schweitzer may work in the primeval forests of Africa, but his influence is world wide.

(d) Dr. E. Stanley Jones. He has been called "the ambassador of Christ to the people of Asia." He has three times refused to be elected bishop of the M. E. Church, preferring to carry on his unique ministry in India. In a recent address, he said, "The world is sick of leaders. The world is perishing for servants, and it is by becoming the servant of all that a man becomes the leader of all."

Learn more about Stanley Jones through his books. He has written five, four of which are: "The Christ of the Indian Road," "The Christ of the Round Table," "The Christ of the Mount" and "The Christ of Every Road."

(e) Rev. and Mrs. Vere W. Abbey, who represent Christian Endeavor in India.

Among writers and speakers of unusual influence are:

S. D. Gordon, Dr. George W. Truett, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, Dr. Charles E. Sheldon, Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, Mrs. Grace Noll Crowell, whose religious verse is achieving a national reputation; and many others.

SOME QUESTIONS.

Do we find that creeds and ceremonials form an important part of religion for those that we

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

JESUS' POWER TO HELP.

LESSON VII—FEBRUARY 18, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I desire mercy and not sacrifice; for I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."—Matt. 9:13.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 9:1-9:34 (verses 1-13 only printed).

The Final and Unanswerable Argument for Christianity.

The final and unanswerable argument for Christianity is a changed man. The story of the healing of the man with the palsy presents this in a dramatic way. The story in brief is as follows: A man was helpless with the palsy. Jesus' words later would indicate that his physical infirmity was due to sin. Some of his friends, hearing that Jesus was in the city, carried their friend to the house where Jesus was stopping, and finding the way to Jesus blocked by the huge crowd, they went up on the roof, dug through the roof, and let the man down directly in front of Jesus. When he saw their faith—and it was the faith of the friends of the man as well as of the man himself—Jesus said, "Thy sins be forgiven thee." But the scribes accused Jesus of blasphemy, on the assumption that God only could forgive sins. Jesus said, "All right, I will show you that I have power to forgive sins, by making this man to walk." Turning to the helpless man he said, "Arise and walk, take up your bed, go back to your own home." To the amazement of the crowd and to the chagrin of the scribes the man actually did the impossible.

Now the point of the story is this: Jesus was willing to stake his reputation and his claim to authority on the changed conduct of a man. One can readily see what a tragic thing it would have been if at this strategic test, Jesus had not been able to give evidence of his power to work an inner miracle by working an outer miracle, or by giving "a sign." But Jesus vindicated himself and his claim through the changed man. And this is the final and unanswerable argument for Christianity and for Jesus. Christianity's supreme contribution is its power to change men and women, boys and girls. By our lives we help or hinder the cause of Christ.

There is, of course, help in this story for us. Christ has not only the power, but the willingness to forgive sins. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. There is the truth, too, that healing of soul is more important than healing of body. There is the truth that Jesus "knows our thoughts." There is the truth that we can help to bring our friends to Jesus.

The Call of Matthew.

"And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of customs." Others saw only a hated tax-collector, a publican, a renegated, unpatriotic Jew, who has sold himself to Rome for gold. Jesus saw in him a MAN, a man of tremendous possibilities, a man of fidelity to trust, a man with latent ability as a writer, a man who would later give to the world one of its greatest pieces of sacred literature, a man who helped to make history. That hated, ostracized Jew, sitting there that day, was Matthew, one of the Twelve, and the author of the "saying of Jesus," which Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God is the essence of the Gospel according to Matthew. looketh on the heart. Jesus sees us in the light of what we may become.

"And he saith unto him, 'follow me; and he arose and followed him.'" Here in a few words are packed one of the great moments of a man's life. It was an act of surrender and faith. Matthew gave up his profession, he gave up his earthly ambitions, he gave up many of his old associations; it would appear that he had given up all. But in giving up all for Christ, he had found all. If he had remained there that day we would never have heard of him. But when that authoritative call sounded in his heart, he obeyed it and became one of the world's immortal characters. With Paul, he could say, "Wherefore, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision." Alas for the man, who when the Master calls, does not rise up and follow him.

Matthew made a feast for Jesus. It was an expression of his appreciation. But it was also a means of introducing his friends to his Friend. When we find Christ, the first normal impulse is to introduce our friends to him. One wonders just how much Christ means to us if we are to judge by the lack of effort or the faint-hearted effort which we make to bring others to Christ.

"Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners? . . . They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." In reply to the question of the carping critics Jesus gave that reply. His ministry was not to those who had no sense of sin, no sense of need, those who were already righteous, but to those who were sinners, the sick of mind and soul as well as of body. He came to call all such to repentance, to a change of mind, to a change of life. His call is not to formal sacrifice, meticulous performance of rite and ceremony, but to mercy, to the kindlier virtues, to the law of love in life.

MITE BECOMES MIGHT.

The mite boxes had been brought in, emptied, counted, credit given to each owner, and they were placed in a row on the piano. The varied colors made them a pleasing array, even though they were empty. As one box was handed in the owner remarked that there was so little in it, and that seemed to be the case with all. It was not that they did not want to give, but that circumstances were such that it was impossible to give any great amount. But before the secretary gave her report, a bill was handed to her by one who did not have a mite box. With a glad and thankful heart the amount was added to what had already been received and the total surpassed all previous receipts, save one. The little had been multiplied in her hands and she praised God for his wonder working power.

If we do what we can God will see to the rest and in his hands the mite boxes will become "might" boxes. No amount is too small to give to his treasury and because we cannot give a large amount, let us not withhold the little we can give. "The world crowns success; God crowns faithfulness," and we need to be faithful in the small things. So many times we sing, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord; over mountain, or plain, or sea," yet we know that our place is in a secluded spot and we are staying there because it is his will for us to stay instead of go. But there is never a life so secluded but we can go if we will. Not in the physical sense, for it has a mighty hold to keep us bound, yet there are powers more mighty with which to go. So let us give our pennies, nickels and dimes, trusting God to multiply, and he will. It is surprising how they will count up and make a total much larger than we ever thought it could be. Remember the little lad with his loaves and fishes. Our small coins will help to feed the five thousand even today if we wing their flight with faith and prayer.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

. 133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 1/2 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black. Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 1/2 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps . . . . . $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold . . . . . $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold . . . . . $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools . . . . . 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

THEME FOR THE WEEK.

WHAT RELIGION MEANS TO ME.

Foreword—An article in a recent sermon by Rev. J. E. Neese, under the above caption, is calculated to set one thinking. To imagine one's self in a group of educated men who might think for themselves and are thoroughly qualified to ask questions and argue their question, and being asked by them to answer the question, "What does religion mean to you?" brings to an honest soul a confusing moment. What would I say, if what I say is to be something definite in my own personal experience which would be seen by them, tangible and conclusive to them? Certainly, every soul who has been born again should be able to give an intelligent reply, but can he? Try it! Saying nothing about the fruit of a Christian life in everyday living, which, of course, is the greatest argument for God, try putting your experience in a statement which will at least name the things that are the realities of God in a heaven-born soul. This is our task this week. The extent of my success will be registered on you. I wish I might know what you think about it.

MONDAY.

RELIGION MEANS CONSCIOUSNESS OF GOD AND HIS REWARDS.

"Seek and ye shall find."—Matt. 7:7:

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Matt. 58.

"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me."—Matt. 11:29.

"If any man will do his will he shall know."—Jno. 7:17.

To realize God's presence in everyday life is a wonderful reality, and that is one of the objectives of Christ in his sole command, "Follow me."

God is surely not in some distant region invisible and inaccessible to us. He is not hid in some far-away heaven where we cannot reach out and touch him. God is where we live, and where we are, and in what we do and say. We can see him in every demand for justice, right, and honor; in every act of bringing harmony out of discord; in every inspiration to noble deeds; in every beam of affection; in every movement that transforms things from what they are to what they ought to be. These things are the throne of God, and represent his presence in that throne, and it is readily seen that these are the vital things of our every-day living. To give our lives to obtaining these things, means to come into a consciousness of him.

Prayer—Dear Lord, that is what we want. O, come, thou into our lives today and forever.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

RELIGION MEANS CONSCIOUSNESS OF SIN AND ITS DAMNATION.

"The way of the wicked is one of darkness."—Prov. 4:9.

"There is a way which seemeth right to a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."—Prov. 14:12.

"The Lord God may show us the way."—Isa. 42:3.

"Sin, when it hath conceived, bringeth forth death."

There are two ways in life, and these ways are ever before us: the right way and the wrong way—the way of life and the way of death. To know what to do and which way to take, is supremely important. To know what to do, one must have a knowledge of the way—to what it leads.

When a light is brought into a dark room it reveals all that is in the room even to the minutest detail. If anything is not right it reveals it. So is the light of God in the soul.

Prayer—O God, may I know how to avoid sin and see the destruction of wrong. Show me the plain path to thee and thy glory.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

RELIGION MEANS POWER TO CHOOSE THE RIGHT WAY.

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."—Joshua 24:15.

"We know thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth."—Matt. 22:16.

"He will show thee, O man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy Lord."—Micah 6:8.

What a power and inspiration it is to be able to distinguish between right and wrong, the imperishable and the perishable, the exalted and the base! What a joy it is to be able to cling to the fine and cut lose from the coarse, the selfish and the false! What confidence there is in feeling that we are masters of our souls!

Religion floods the life with light, superb delights, and an understanding of the nature of God, and produces harmony with God. So every moment we are being born again.

Prayer—Our Father, we want this power of thine. We humble ourselves before thee and claim thy promise to be with us and lead us all the way.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

RELIGION MEANS THE POWER TO LIVE THE BEST LIFE.

"Ye are the light of the world."—Matt. 5:14.

"I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain."—Jno. 15:16.

Our title today is submitted by my wife. What do you think of it? Does it not cover the whole spread of a human soul in its relation to God? If we can live the best life, as God knows what is best, we need not concern ourselves so much about the consciousness of God, nor the hope of reward. That will follow. To cast one's all on him in implicit faith produces a soul aglow with the light of the best life; a soul verdant with life and abundant in fruitage.

Prayer—Our Dear Lord, who art "the way, the truth and the life," shine along the way today and every day, and I will live the best life.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

RELIGION MEANS, TO ME, COMMUNION WITH GOD.

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him and will sup with him and he with me."—Rev. 3:20.

What a fellowship,
What a joy divine,
Leaning on the everlasting arms.
I have blessed peace
With the Lord so near
Leaning on the everlasting arms.

Who of us has not at some time in life, having been away from home a long while, returned home and as we pressed our lips against those of a saintly mother, felt the warm embrace of a loving father, mingled our thoughts and our laughter with brothers and sisters, and sat down in the family circle with our feet stretched out toward the fire, enjoyed a fellowship unsurpassed by any other experience in life.

Have we not felt, at the same time that this is but a foretaste of the heavenly fellowship with God and the saints, just a little bit of heaven brought down to earth for us to enter that we may be lifted a little nearer that goal.

There is a sweet fellowship still. To think of God in everything. I find God at church, I find him at home, in the song of the birds, in the orchards and fields, in the seas, the mountains, the canyons, the forests, the flowers, and, not only in all nature, but in the way I take, and every day he directs my path aright.

God preaches—a noted clergyman,
And the sermon is not long
So instead of going to heaven at last
I'm going all along!

What a fellowship!

Prayer—Dear Lord, thou art so near to me now I do not need to look away. I can just talk to thee and be glad.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

RELIGION MEANS CULTIVATING AND ACHIEVING THE LIKENESS OF GOD.

"Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—II. Peter 3:18.

"We know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."—I. John 3:2.

In the fall of man, man lost the attributes which make him a supernatural being. In religion man is destined to recover these attributes and to enter into his true self and his true home in heaven where love, harmony and eternal joy are forever, and where the soul is made perfect.

Prayer—Dear Lord, this is our aim today. Keep thou this end of life ever before us, that we may be thine and like thee forever.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

RELIGION MEANS ALWAYS LOOKING UP.

"Thou couldst have no power at all except it be given thee from above."—Jno. 19:11.

"Seek those things which are above."—Gal. 3:2.

"Except a man be born from above he cannot see the king of God."—Jno. 3:3. (Moffatt version).

As the tree lifts up to the sun, and as the sap rises in the tree, to get its light and life, looking to the day of its fruitage, so must the soul ever look to God through Jesus Christ for its light and life.

The wonderful thing about this divine relation of the soul to God is that we do not lift ourselves, we only look up, and God comes down and lifts us up. Jesus came down to earth and took upon himself the likeness of man that out of that touch with his children man might be transformed from what he is to his spirit and likeness, and it is just the look. He took the dead girl by the hand and lifted her up—James said, "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord and he shall lift you up," and as he is lifted up he will draw all men to him. We must have the power from above or we will go down and be lost.

Prayer—Our Father, it is in thy name we come to the Sabbath day. We beg to see this day as typical of thy love and life for us. Grant us the upward look and the glorious life.—Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH?

By REV. GEO. N. EDWARDS.

Circular Church, Charleston, S. C.

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go unto the house of the Lord."—Psalm 122:1.

There is such a deal of criticism of the church, honest criticism, too, in these days, that it may perchance be permitted to voice a little honest enthusiasm for the church. Knocking the church is not a new sport; it has been pretty common from the beginning of its history. "Shatter the infamous thing," said Voltaire, and the French revolutionists did their best to do it, but it still lives, even in France. Theodore Beza, the courtly scholar of the Reformation, made a memorable remark of Henry of Navarre: "Sir, it belongs to the church, in whose name I speak, to receive blows rather than to give them. But it will please your Majesty to remember that it is an anvil that has worn out many hammers." In more recent days, Dr. Charles R. Brown of Yale has remarked that it is true that the church of our day shows no "celestial perfection," and "so long as they maintain the cheerful habit of receiving human beings into membership," it can hardly be expected.

It is rather difficult to deny that there is something fundamentally right about the purpose of the church, expressed for example in the simple words of a present-day scholar: "It exists to spread faith in the good God and to unite men in a world-wide brotherhood." It is a good thing to remember that it is the church which has laid the spiritual foundations of present-day society. It has taught its morals, inspired its faith in life, fortified its soul in the presence of death. Those who profess to maintain their ethical ideals without religious support, get their ideals from the foundations already laid for them, and are themselves a part of a society nourished by the Christian Church. Even if the church were no longer a living institution, human society as we know it is interwoven at its best with the work of the church. What have been called the lost daughters of the church—education, philanthropy, the universal care of the sick and wounded, art, architecture, music—have not been lost, but bestowed, poured into life deliberately, sacrificially, patiently, generation after generation, as barbarism has been moulded into civilization.

There is something about the Christian Church that has quickened man's genius, brought forth heroism, revealed the goodness latent in men, set standards in individuals that have become the inspiration of the masses of men. It will find its task so long as the world is human and stands in need of God. Worship itself is uplifting; the "stoop of the soul, that in bending, uplifts it, too." If the present church did nothing else, it would be worthwhile to keep its buildings open. There is a church in New York City which has a sign by its door reading: "This church is never closed." It has been found that more people stop in to rest and pray during the week, than all that come to its Sunday services.

But the church is more than a shrine. Its present-day activities make an important contribution to the lives of millions. Apart from all church colleges and seminaries, the church, in its Sunday Schools, gives religious education to 21 million youth, only one-sixth less than the number in the public schools of this country. While the teaching may be criticized, an outstanding change in methods, outlook and literature by international agencies has greatly increased the efficiency of teaching in nearly all denominations, and the church now essays to train its teachers as well as its pupils.

The church is not marking time. For over a hundred and twenty-five years, the Protestant Churches have been sending their missionaries through frontiers of race and nationality to the remotest parts of the earth. They have spent over $32,000,000 a year on this work until the impact of the Christian idea and personality has been upon nearly every non-Christian nation and tribe the world around. In this work wherever needed in backward nations the church has founded schools and colleges, ministered to the uncared-for sick, taught men to save life rather than to destroy it, put its word into the hands of the untaught and showed them how to print the unknown tongue in which they talked. The church has worked its silent revolutions in changing men's minds in the great nations of the Far East. The leaven is at work.

At the same time these churches have spread their influence over our own great land as fast as the population has moved westward. 232,000 churches are scattered among our States. They are valued at $3,800,000,000, the church buildings alone, and their people spend eight to nine hundred millions a year maintaining their work. And when giving is needed for community purposes, it is no secret that the bulk of it comes from these same people. But the finest thing about this work is the lives that are given, not the money. If the critics of the church call for courage, self-devotion, willingness to die for one's cause, here it is in the young men and women who, with sound health, trained intelligence, and utter loyalty, have gone to the frontiers of Christendom and far beyond them to render service in the most difficult and unpleasant parts of the earth to people that they never knew, but for whom they cherished unconquerable good will and to whom they have given years of faithful service and even life itself. What other institution or society in our times is producing intelligent devotion like this?

A keen-minded Canadian preacher (Richard Roberts) has suggested that we would better understand the nature and quality of the Christian Church if we think of it as a river rather than as an institution that stands fast in one place. The church is a process, a moving power that makes for life as it flows. It has come down through the ages throwing off streams of influence to enrich life by the way as well as receiving human life into itself. What it now needs to do for a primitive people was done long ago for civilized nations. But our problems are no less acute. It is ever the function of the church to set right what is wrong. We are not yet fully civilized, much less Christian. When the Great War broke out men cried out at once that Christianity had failed because it had not prevented the war. The vitality of the church is shown in the fact that it dares to express its mind on present-day questions that are unsolved. The church will never be satisfied with anything less than the Christian solution of such problems as war, intemperance, poverty, race hatred and social injustice. These are the danger points, the morally unsettled points of present times. The fact that the church is not keeping still about them indicates that here the heart of the church suffers because men are disunited and unbrotly. It can hardly be said to be unneeded while it can still prophesy a new age. It must be admitted that society as a whole is far from the Christian ideal. It needs a change, a moral change, a spiritual change, a Christian revolution—not to develop hate, to use men as pawns in the game of the great, not to drop bombs and shed blood, but to move men toward justice, love and forgiveness.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50

- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our financial report this week shows that we have reached and passed the first rung in our financial ladder for this year. You remember we set our goal for Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00). That means that each thousand dollars represents one rung in the ladder. If we can raise the Twenty Thousand Dollars it will run the Orphanage and permit us to do some very much needed repairs. We have quite a lot of painting that ought to be done to keep the buildings in good condition.

We seeded 40 acres in oats in the fall and the bitter cold zero weather seems to have killed them, and in that case all this expense will be a total loss. This does not often happen in this section, but it has happened this year. The Orphanage needs corn and it needs oats. If some of our friends who have more oats and corn than they have money, it would be fine if they would send us some.

Let all the Sunday Schools see how well they can do in making monthly offerings for the Orphanage and help us reach the second rung in the ladder quickly.

Our good friend, Mr. J. M. Darden, sent us five hundred pounds of lard, a very useful contribution and we appreciated it.

The following items have been received since our last report:

- Antioch Christian Church, Sunday School and Ladies' Aid Society, Chatham County, Va., 4 quilts.
  - Brown Hosiery Mill, 45 pairs of socks.
  - Riverside Hosiery Mill, 5 dozen socks.
  - Carolina Knitting Mill, Inc., 2½ dozen ladies' hose.
  - Miss Louisa May Hilliard, 1 box toys for the children.
  - Kirk-Holt Hardware Co., 1 box Christmas toys.
  - Young Ladies' Class, Pleasant Grove Church, Va., 1 quilt.
  - Woman's Missionary Society, Pleasant Grove Church, Va., 1 quilt.
  - Mrs. J. Alec Holt, Burlington, N. C., 1½ gallons preserves.
  - Mr. Vitus Holt, Burlington, N. C., 1 electric pad.
- We are grateful, indeed, for these useful contributions.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 15, 1934.

Brought forward .....	$	823.33
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Mt. Bethel .....	$	2.75
Union, Va. ....		2.55
Lawrence Memorial Bible Class..		1.68
Lebanon .....		.55
Third Avenue, Danville .....		5.19
Happy Home .....		2.55
Durham .....		16.89
Carolina .....		2.80
			34.96
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
New Elam .....	$	3.75
Wake Chapel .....		7.13
Damascus .....		1.30
Oak Level .....		1.00
Catawba Springs .....		8.60
Sanford .....		1.00
Plymouth .....		4.00
			26.78
Western North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Cross .....	$	3.12
Hank's Chapel .....		2.00

Glendon .....	14.00
High Point .....	2.40	21.52
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Barrett's .....	$ .53
Berea, Nansemond .....	5.00
Liberty Spring S. S. and classes..	7.00
Rosemont .....	13.36	25.89
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Timber Ridge .....	$ 1.36
Mayland .....	1.00
Linville .....	5.16
Dry Run .....	2.55	10.07
Alabama Conference:
New Hope .....	$ 1.91
Roanoke .....	1.00
Noon Day .....	1.00	3.91
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Vanceville .....		1.00
Special Offerings.
Mr. R. O. Browning, Burlington, payment, Thanksgiving pledge..	$ 5.00
Mr. J. Spencer Love, Greensboro, N. C., support of a child.....	60.00
Damascus S. S., birthday offering	1.40
A. J. Morgan, support girls.....	20.00
Mr. Grover Moore, Burlington, payment on Thanksgiving pledge..	10.00
Ladies Society, Richland, Ga., support of Arlene Morgan .....	5.00	101.40
Total for the week .....	$	225.53
Grand total .....	$	1,048.86

SETH PARKER AND WORLD PEACE.

Phillips H. Lord, of Jonesport, Maine, better known as "Seth Parker," has purchased a four-masted schooner in which to tour the world. We are told that he has a contract with the National Broadcasting Company to "bring him back by radio from several remote places," these to be the biggest broadcasts since radio came into being, covering Europe as well as America. We understand, too, that he has a contract with the Winston Publishing Company for a series of new books for boys, to be called "Phil Lord Before the Mast," "Phil Lord in India," etc. A certain large motion picture company also is said to have engaged him to make thirteen short pictures of the expedition which will be sent back to this country to be run while he is away. He will also make six short "Seth Parker" pictures based on the character of "Seth Parker," a Down East, Maine Yankee, seeing for the first time the strange things the remote places of the world have to offer.

He will produce all this and much more for the sake of us at the "Home Base." But think of the international, interracial possibilities of this tour of the good peace ship, Seth Parker! Mr. Lord, acknowledged by most of us to be one of America's great religious influences—will be a veritable ambassador of the Lord of Love and Peace to all peoples. In personality, in character of contact, in method of approach, he will do a work for international understanding and peace that even our highest grade missionaries cannot do. The spirit of this earnest Christian will permeate every community he touches. Let's wish him bon voyage.—Missionary Herald.

Some people are like blotters—soak up everything, but get it all backwards.

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Nāz'a-rēth, he came and dwelt in Cā-pēr-nā-ūm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zāb'u-lon and Nēph'tha-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31. CHAP. 4.	934 CHAPTER 5. 3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc. AND seeing the multitudes; he went up into a moun-
--	----------------------------------	--

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

---

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15<sup>k</sup> The land of Zāb'u-lon, and the land of Nēph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jōr'dan, Gāl'y-lee of the Gēn'tiles;	A. D. 31. Is. 9, 1, 2. Is. 42, 7. Luke 2, 32. Mark 1, 14.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3<sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
---	---	---

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on #712 and same large self-pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above .....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

A Story for the Children

SPRAINED ANKLES.

"I just can't do anything at all with this ankle of mine all sprained," Jimmy whined. "How will I live in the house for days and days?"

"Oh, Jimmy, don't be a baby," answered his mother, "maybe some of the boys will stay and play with you after school."

"Yes, they won't," said Jimmy, "they'll be playing ball or something and they can't just sit around here with me." He stopped complaining, though, long enough to listen closely as his mother went to answer the door bell. Maybe one of the fellows would stay and play after all. He was a bit disappointed when he recognized Roger's voice, "I thought maybe Jimmy would like to play some."

"Come in, Roger," mother's invitation was indeed cordial, for she liked Roger and she was pretty well worn out with trying to keep Jimmy amused, "I'm sure Jimmy will be glad to see you."

"Perhaps he's better than nobody," Jimmy muttered to himself, "but he's crippled himself. How can he know what to play?"

"Hi, Jim!" Roger's greeting seemed to bring cheer. "Do you like target practice?"

"I like any old thing now," answered Jimmy a little ungraciously, for he was still wondering what a crippled boy could think of to do. He watched Roger as he limped around arranging the target so that it was in a good place for Jimmy. "Let's play we're Indians, Rog," he added more genially, getting interested in spite of himself.

"All right, good idea," agreed Rog briefly, and as he handed three arrows to Jimmy, "you take the first turn. Shoot your three arrows and then I'll try."

Jimmy was surprised at Roger's unusual accuracy in shooting. He began to really try hard to hit the bull's eye. The boys shot first over the right and then over the left shoulder and became so absorbed in their stunt shooting that they scarcely noticed mother when she brought in some sandwiches, cookies and milk. They enjoyed the feast, though, and decided that they were sitting beside a campfire and began telling of marvelous adventures, as is the custom of hunters. Darkness came all too soon and Roger clambered up saying:

"I'll have to hurry home, supper'll be ready and then I'll have to study. See you tomorrow."

He was starting off almost before Jimmy knew what was happening. "Oh, call your mother and eat with me tonight; then we can study together."

Roger was only too glad to do so; he quickly gained his mother's consent over the telephone and a happier boy you never will see. It was the first time one of "the gang" had ever wanted to have him stay and keep him company.

Every day after that, Roger would stop and play with Jimmy, and the boys would study together. They were in the same grade at school, so Jimmy was able to keep up with his class. Thus it was that Jimmy and Roger really came to be great friends.

In a few weeks Jimmy's ankle was well and he was back at school. Roger was happy to have him back, but he couldn't help thinking about the long days when he must play alone, for the boys seldom had time to wait for Roger to go along. He listened anxiously after school as they gathered around Jimmy and begged him to "Come on and play ball." Imagine his delight when Jimmy threw his arm around his shoulder and said:

"Sure, we'll play ball, but we'll take Roger. He can play until he's tired. We'll take turns running for him. And don't forget, he is a good sport as you'll find out, especially if you get sick or laid up or something."

That was several years ago. Jimmy and Roger are still the best of friends. Often one of the boys will say, "Think what we all would have missed if Jimmy hadn't sprained his ankle."—The Christian World.

BETTER THAN FARMING.

A state health officer in Virginia relates in The Survey the story of a farmer who was delivering vegetables to a public sanitorium. A patient saluted him. "You're a farmer, ain't yuh?" was the next query. The farmer allowed that he was. "I used to be a farmer once," said the guest of the state. "Did you?" "Yes, say stranger, did yuh ever try bein' crazy?" The farmer never had, and started to move on. "Well, you cughta try it," was the ex-farmer's parting shot. "It beats farmin' all hollow."—Christian Register.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES. (Continued from page 10.)

regard as great leaders? If not, what do they substitute for those outward expressions of faith? How did Jesus' use of prayer suggest one source of power in religious leadership?

"What I am is God's gift to me; What I become is my gift to God."

E. F.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College. - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE. . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year . . . . . $2.00
Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

CRAFT—CLAPP.

On December 24, 1933, at 3:30 P. M., at Apple's Chapel Church, Mr. Emmett Craft of Grifton, N. C., and Miss Annie Clapp, of Gibsonville, N. C., Route 1, were united in marriage. The bride is a faithful member of Apple's Chapel Christian Church.

After a short visit among the bride's relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Craft will be at home in Grifton, N. C.

H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

OBITUARIES

GUNN.

In memory of John Henry Gunn, who died at Lanett, Ala., January 24th, at the age of 70 years. Brother Gunn had lived for more than 30 years in this city. His loving wife preceded him to the grave 32 years ago. He was the father of 7 children, 6 of whom survive, and 5 of them were present at the funeral services.

Brother Gunn had been for many years a member of the Christian Church. He was a member of several fraternal orders, among which was the Masons. These had charge of the services at the grave. This service was attended by a large concourse of people. The flowers were in abundance.

Our sympathy goes out to the children, but especially to the eldest daughter, Miss Maggie, who with her father, had kept the home since the mother's death. May his soul rest in peace.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer. G. D. HUNT.

ELLIOTT.

William Manly Elliott, of Ramseur, died very suddenly January 29th. For 47 years he had been an employee of Columbia Manufacturing Co., and during all those years he was the faithful and dependable engineer, and was rarely absent from his post. The company trusted and respected him, and closed the mills to attend his funeral. Faithfulness to duty was his chief characteristic. To his position, to his family and to his church, he was true, devoted and faithful.

He was twice married. He first married Addie Davidson, and they had one child which died in infancy. His second marriage was to Mrs. Globiner Phillips, who with his step-son, Joseph, survive him. These mourn in sincerity the loss of a good husband and father. Bro. Elliott was a son of the late James Elliott, and the only member of the family now living is W. E. Poe, of Ramseur.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. H. M. Stroupe of the Baptist Church, from the Ramseur Christian Church, where the deceased had for a long time held his membership. The pillars of this church are passing. God bless the church and the homes so sorely bereaved. T. E. WHITE.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN

JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES

LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY

CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1934.

NUMBER 8.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

The Sun Eclipsed.—

At dawn on Wednesday, February 14th, a total eclipse of the sun ended the day off the coast of the Malay Peninsula before it had begun. The eclipse swept westward across the Pacific, ending near the Alaskan coast at sunset, on the evening of Tuesday, February 13th. No, it is not a mistake: the eclipse, in its course, passed the 180th meridian, lost a calendar day, and thus ended the day before it began.

Emptiness of Space.—

The Literary Digest tells us that "if all the matter in the universe visible with the largest telescope (a sphere about 600,000,000 light years in diameter) were divided into pieces the size of small marbles and evenly distributed through the area, each piece would be 62,500 miles from its nearest neighbor. If all the matter were divided into molecules and scattered evenly, each molecule would be seven feet from the next—a more complete vacuum by many times than it is possible to make artificially."

Washington's Birthday.—

Today is being celebrated as a national holiday in honor of the Father of his Country. Yet George Washington was born on February 11th—not the 22nd. As evidence we quote from the record in the Washington Family Bible, as written by his mother: "George Washington, son of Augustine and Mary his wife was born ye 11th Day of February 1731/2 about 10 in the morning," etc. The explanation is simple enough: The old style or Julian Calendar had in the seventeen centuries in which it had been used accumulated an error of eleven days. Pope Gregory ordered a revision of the calendar, making century years leap years, i. e. years with 366 days, only when they were divisible by 400 instead of 4 as with other years. Making this calendar retroactive, made it necessary, when the new style calendar was adopted by the United States, that eleven days be dropped, thus February 11th became February 22nd, and we celebrate that day in Washington's memory.

The President and the Air Mail Service.—

Until the public gets all the facts, it should not pass judgment upon the President for the cancellation of the air mail contracts, yet Business Week says that thoughtful critics think "it would be hard to find justification for the way in which the matter was handled." There were other and better ways of getting the same results, if there was a desire to get rid of contracts tainted with fraud. It continues: "Admitting that many of the air mail people have behaved badly and foolishly . . . still it wasn't fair to crack down on all without discrimination, and without a chance for defense. Most disquieting of all was the impression created in some quarters that the President had here shown an impetuosity that, if it cropped out again elsewhere, might be highly dangerous. . . . There are millions of dollars invested in the lines. Insiders may have cleaned up in stock deals; if they did cash in, that merely means that innocent members of the general public are the owners today. . . . This time, even good friends think, he struck too quickly and too hard." Air mail contracts have been costing the government approximately $14,000,000 a year. It is estimated that it will cost the army $30,000,000 to do the job.

New Kinds of Glass.—

Nearly everyone knows today that the ordinary glass used in making window panes for homes and other commercial purposes, filters out many of the health-giving rays of the sun. It is because of this that there has of late years been introduced a particular kind of glass which will admit these rays which are so necessary to the health of the human family. Now come still different kinds of glass. One to be used in connection with "air-conditioning" on railway trains and elsewhere is known as Aklo, and it has the unusual property of being able to transmit 70 per cent of the visible energy of the sun which strikes it, but holds back an equal amount of the heat rays that pass through ordinary glass. Thus the Aklo window pane brings in the wanted light with a minimum of summer heat. Science tells us that energy in summer sunlight is distributed roughly 44 per cent in the visible region, 4 per cent in the ultra-violet, and 52 per cent in the infra-red segment. The highest efficiency type of this glass is slightly greenish in color, but for those that object to the greenish tinge, there is being made a similar glass that is slightly less efficient. Another glass is being made by the same company which makes this glass that in thickness of over one-eighth inch passes no visible rays, but transmits as high as 40 per cent of the sun's heat rays. The value of this glass is in the making of special therapeutic lamps.

The Drinker's Dollar.—

The following excerpt is from an address delivered by Senator Morris W. Sheppard in the United States Senate, January 16, 1934: "Liquor, in its long reign upon earth has never helped the man consuming it to place a single dollar in the bank. It has never been worth a dime to him upon going to the grocery store for flour, meat, milk or butter for his family and himself. It has never helped him to place a single cent's worth of coal or wood or gas in his house to keep the home fires burning. It has never helped him to get a job, although it is on record as having lost him many jobs. It has never in its long life convinced a single railroad employer that a man smelling of liquor would make a better engineer or fireman than the fellow with the liquorless breath and an unclouded head. It has never been of any value to anyone in starting a life insurance policy. Liquor is not on record as helping the man consuming it to buy a home, or to start one through a building and loan association. It has never once helped him to pay his doctor or to contribute to the life of his church. No instance has been found where it has helped him to educate his children for citizenship or for manhood and womanhood. Two small groups profit by liquor—the tax-evading millionaires and those who manufacture and distribute it. Yet, it means prosperity for them, but it also means a living hell for its countless victims."

Seventh Day Economy.—

A correspondent of The Christian Evangelist thinks that the Seventh Day Adventists get more credit for missionary giving than they deserve. He says: "The tithes of the Seventh Day Adventists get more credit for missionary giving than they deserve. He says: "The tithes of the Seventh Day Adventists go into a common missionary treasury, and from this treasury the salaries of all their ministers are paid as missionaries. Now just where they would stand if they figured their missionary giving like other religious bodies, and where would others stand if they figured their missionary giving by counting in all of their preachers' salaries? It will also be interesting to note that each preacher receives the same salary, save a very few who have much traveling to do." In commenting on this, Dr. F. D. Kershner has this to say: "The information given above is new to us, but assuming it is correct, it still does not remove the fact that every Adventist gives ten per cent of his income to the church. If all our people did the same thing, we would have less trouble with the budget." The latest figures available for Christian Churches in the South show a total raised for the year of $178,397.77. If the 32,030 communicants reported at the same time had an average income of $25 a month (the per capita income for 1932 was $424), and if each of them were tithers their tithes would amount to $960,000. In other words the Christian Church could, in a five-year program, double the amount raised for Missions, the Orphanage and other benevolences; give each pastor a 50 per cent raise in salary; pay off the Elon College debt and give Elon an endowment of a Million Dollars; put a $250,000 plant at Wadley together with an endowment of similar size; pay off the local church debts to the last dollar; put the Orphanage on a secure basis; establish an endowment which would ease the worries of the Publishing Board, and still have a Million left to give where it might be most needed. Just a dream, but a wonderful dream nevertheless.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has plenty, not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some.—Dickens.

We wonder if it is bashfulness on the part of our ministers that causes them to refrain from telling of the happenings in their local churches. A habit of sending in at least a postal card a month would be well worth forming.

The Annual for this year contains an "Appendix" giving much interesting information regarding the ministers and sessions of the Eastern Virginia Conference. Following this is a table giving the comparative statistics of the various Conferences for the past three years.

Dr. L. E. Smith, who has been out in the field in the interest of Elon College recently, stopped in Richmond Wednesday for a short while. He went from there to Waverly, where he joined the Elon Singers group, who were giving a concert there Wednesday night. He and Mrs. Smith expect to be at the Eastern Virginia Alumni Banquet on Friday night.

Dr. S. T. A. Kent, of Ingram, Va., and Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, of Paces, Va., were among the attendants at the Grand Lodge session of the Masons of Virginia last week. In this connection, it will be of interest to his many friends in the Christian Church to learn of the elevation of Dr. William Moseley Brown to the office of Grand Master of Virginia.

NEWSOM'S CHAPEL.

My brother, Rev. A. R. Flowers, gives an encouraging report of the work at Newsom's Chapel, Lucoma, N. C. Brother L. E. Newsom was one of my most highly esteemed school teachers in my boyhood days, and has proved himself to be a clean Christian gentleman through the years, and it is to him that the work at this point owes its beginning. My brother, A. R., is one of these quiet unassuming fellows, who has a remarkable way of getting hold of young people. So the work at Newsom's Chapel has a good chance to succeed.

J. H. FLOWERS.

Sims, N. C.

ROANOKE, ALABAMA.

At the regular Sunday morning services recently at the First Christian Church, Roanoke, Ala., the pastor, W. Millard Stevens, was granted a leave of absence for four months by members of that body. Mr. Stevens has gone to enter school at Elon College, N. C., where he goes from Southern Union College, which has closed, to complete his studies for the scholastic year.

Regular monthly services will be held on the third Sunday of each month. A special committee has been appointed to arrange for speakers during the pastor's absence.

Mr. Stevens carries with him not only the interest and love, but also the prayers of this group with which he has worked so loyally the past few months. He will resume his pastoral duties upon his return.

CHRISTIAN CHAPEL.

The people at Christian Chapel seem to be well pleased with the new pastor, Rev. C. H. Hilliard, who preached on Sunday, February 11th. Brother Hilliard preached from St. Luke 19:5,

"Make haste and come down." He explained that Zaccheus did not climb up the sycamore tree just for curiosity, but for a better purpose, which was to see Jesus, so he might make reconciliation for unjust collections made, and to repent for the same. We, too, should climb the sycamore tree and find Jesus, and make reconciliation for our wrongs.

People of today are seeking pleasure and fame, instead of spiritual knowledge, and had rather dwell in sin than be doorkeeper in the Lord's temple.

We are pleased to note that Mr. Hilliard is continually improving. However, his first sermon was fine, and we are sure that when the weather becomes better the congregations will increase.

A. M. COTTEN.

Merry Oaks, N. C.

ORGAN DEDICATED AT ROSEMONT.

A very beautiful and inspiring service was held at Rosemont Christian Church, Norfolk, Va., Sunday morning, February 11th. The occasion was the third anniversary of the dedication of the church, and was celebrated with the dedication of a new organ, given in memory of Mr. Carl Smith, who was a well loved and highly respected member of the church until his death, some years ago.

The customary devotional service was conducted first by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Morgan, with Mrs. Morgan accompanying on the organ. Special music was rendered by the choir. Remarks of presentation and acceptance were made by Mr. O. F. Smith and Mrs. O. S. Mills, after which the dedicatory service was conducted by the pastor. Mr. Morgan's sermon was entitled, "The Voice of the Organ," and was very appropriate for the occasion. The service closed with a hymn and benediction. Notwithstanding the rainy weather, it was well attended, and much enjoyed by all present.

WM. M. SPARKMAN, JR.

DENDRON, VA.

Just a few lines to break the silence as to the Dendron circuit, former pastor, etc. I am doing very little writing these days.

It is generally known that I have no work for this year. I am glad to say that my mind is active and I like to read, and while I can talk, I find it more difficult to articulate since my last attack, more than a year ago. I am still trusting that if it is the Father's will, I shall be restored to my health. Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to again be active in the work in which I have found such great delight in other years.

I am now prepared to add my testimony to that of others, that it takes more grace and patience to wait than to work. The Lord has been very gracious to us. His promises are comforting and while waiting we are endeavoring to meet the condition spoken of in Isa. 40:31, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their faith." Our friends have been very mindful of our needs. We have received many cheering messages and we have had many people visit us. At Thanksgiving and at Christmas time we were very generously remembered in gifts of food things to supply the needs of the physical man, and this not only from the people of this, my last charge, but from those of other churches which we have served in other years. Through the kindness of the churches of this circuit, we are still furnished a house in which to live. To all these kind friends who have thus remembered us, we wish again to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks.

W. D. HARWARD.

ELON CORRESPONDENCE.

An unusual scholastic record has been made by the students of Elon College the past semester. The registrar's office has announced that seventeen members of the student body made an average grade of 90 or over for the semester just closed. The highest attainable grade is 95, and an average of 95 for all his subjects was made by one student, William Horton, of Ellington, N. Y. Two students, Oliver Cook, of 1820 Willoughby Ave., Norfolk, Va., and A. L. Granger, Jr., of 405 East Liberty St., Norfolk, Va., made an average of 94 each.

Others averaging 90 or above, which places them on the Honor Roll, are:

Jennie Belle Abernathy, Mebane, N. C.....	92
Maysie Joyce, Norwood, N. C.....	91½
Marcella Ackenhausen, 3310 Wabash Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio .....	91
Billy Andes, R. F. D. 4, Harrisonburg, Va....	91
Joy Grigsby, Elon College, N. C.....	91
Hilda Lee Heatwole, 604 E. Davis St., Burlington, N. C. ....	91
Sara Virginia Hook, Elon College, N. C.....	91
Fletcher Moore, 115 Anthony St., Burlington, N. C. ....	91
Leon Newman, Virgilina, Va.....	91
George Taylor, R. F. D. 1, Newton, N. C.....	91
W. W. Howell, R. F. D. 2, Box 64, Goldsboro, N. C. ....	90 5/6
Bradshaw Holland, 714 W. 36th St., Norfolk, Va. ....	90
Robert Kimball, Manson, N. C.....	90
Aubrey Todd, 1207 Bainbridge St., Norfolk, Va. ....	90

C. M. CANNON.

ANNOUNCEMENT WINONA LAKE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

The management of Winona Lake School of Theology announces the following instructors and courses for the summer of 1934: Dr. J. Campbell White, Dr. Gaius J. Slosser, Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, Dr. Kyle M. Yates, Dr. J. A. Huffman, Dean.

The subjects which are included in the curriculum for the coming session are: Ministerial and Church Efficiency; Church History; Comparative Religions and Missions; English Old Testament (Isaiah); English New Testament (Romans and Galatians); Greek New Testament.

There will be two semesters of the school of fifteen days each, the first one beginning on July 5th, and closing on July 21st; the second semester beginning on July 24th, and closing on August 11th.

The school is entirely inter-denominational, and annually almost a score of States and countries are represented in the student body, and about an equal number of denominations.

A 12-page prospectus may be had by addressing the Dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman, 302 Morton Boulevard, Marion, Ind.

NOTICE.

The mid-year session of the Virginia Valley Central Congregational-Christian Conference will be held with Bethlehem Church on Thursday, March 29th. There will be two sessions, the morning session opening at 10 o'clock. All matters pertaining to the work may be considered except annual reports, which will not be submitted. Churches are requested to elect and send delegates as to the Annual Conference. We hope that there will be a full representation. Lunches at reasonable prices will be served to those who desire. Those desiring lunch will please notify Mrs. J. C. Bradford, Broadway, Va. That will help the ladies to know how many plates to prepare. Thank you.

R. L. WILLIAMSON,
President.

YOU CAN CHANGE THE COURSE OF A STREAM BUT THE WATER WILL CONTINUE TO FLOW.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

In these troublesome times we hear much about getting back to former ways of living. This advice comes from well-meaning sources. There is a host of men and women throughout the nation who contend that our present economic ills can be cured by returning to the simple life of our forefathers. Our forefathers could not and did not return to the exact ways of living of their forefathers; and this generation cannot return to the modes and methods of living of any past generation. The truth of the matter is we cannot go back or get back if we wanted to and tried.

Humanity may change its course. Revolutions have been known to cause a change in the course of a nation, but to go back to a former state of living, socially or economically, is impossible.

Whether we are willing to admit it or not, we are in the midst of the greatest social revolution the world has ever known. The events of the past 20 years have been so sweeping and far-reaching that they pushed our social revolution ahead at such a rapid pace that it has caught us in the vortex of all its angles and smothered us beneath its cries for a practical solution.

When a certain successful candidate for the Presidency coined the slogan more than 10 years ago declaring that our need in this country was "a return to normalcy," millions who had adjusted themselves to the rapid pace of events after the World War repeated the slogan and believed in it most explicitly. What actually happened was that we did return to "normalcy" in a mental attitude, but in an economic and social way we did not. Events moved on in their silent and unnoticed course. This thought of living in normalcy when we were not, added greater suddenness to our economic shipwreck when its crash came.

Progress of the human race is measured by desire for change. Nations not rated by us as being fully civilized have the lowest possible desire for change, and because of this they carry on in a very large measure as their forefathers did a thousand years ago. Divorce a people from a desire to change and you separate that people from the path of progress. What may be progress and pleasure to one generation may be pain and servitude to another. There will always be types of people in every age who resist any and all changes. It is from this school of thought that the advocates of "live as our forefathers lived" come. To carry their idea to its logical conclusion we would still be in the ox cart period.

Readjustments are always necessary, but readjustments do not mean retrogression. Our present readjustments are more difficult because of our failure to see ahead and prepare ourselves for conditions thrust upon us. That these adjustments will be made is sure. Under a new and more enlightened leadership, not necessarily political, America will be a new land with a new idea for a new era.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY A SYMBOL OF RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

To churches and synagogues the celebration of Washington's Birthday has always been associated with religious freedom, which Washington stressed repeatedly. His messages to the various religious denominations exude this spirit.

To the Roman Catholics in the United States, Washington wrote (December, 1789): "As mankind becomes more liberal, they will be more apt to allow, that all those, who conduct themselves as worthy members of the community, are equally entitled to the protection of civil government. I hope to see America among the foremost nations in examples of justice and liberality."

To the Hebrew Congregation in Newport, R. I., he said: "All possess alike liberty of conscience and immunities of citizenship. It is now no more that toleration is spoken of as if it was by the indulgence of one class of people, that another enjoyed the exercise of their inherent natural rights. For happily, the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens, in giving it on all occasions their effectual support."

To the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States (May, 1789): "While all men within our territories are protected in worshipping the Deity according to the dictates of their own consciences, it is rationally to be expected from them in return, that they will be emulous of evincing the sanctity of their professions by the . . . beneficence of their actions."

Messages of similar import were also addressed by Washington to the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the United Baptist Churches in Virginia, the Society of Quakers, the Hebrew Congregation of Savannah, the Universal Church, the New Church in Baltimore, and the Protestant Episcopal Church.

WHEN TO STOP A PRAYER MEETING.

The following suggestions are taken from "Prayer Meeting Methods," by Amos R. Wells: When the hour is up—stop.

When the meeting has been brought, by some strong testimony, to a fitting climax that will dwell in the memory, if it is near the time to close, introduce some form of concert testimony that will give utterance to those who have not taken part, and then—stop.

Without waiting for the pauses to lengthen—stop.

Without giving a chance for restlessness and yawning—stop.

Without scolding the members for failing to "occupy the time"—stop.

With no announcement that "there are just four minutes more"—which no one will be selfish enough to take—stop.

With no preliminary nervous looking up a closing hymn, and then looking around to see if any one is about to speak, and then looking for a better hymn and reconnoitering again—stop.

With a few brisk words of encouragement, and a few reverent words of prayer, and a verse of a parting song, with the benediction—stop.

But if no meeting follows, and the members are evidently eager to speak and eager to listen—don't stop.

If there is one hesitant member, with whom you know the prayer meeting committee is working to lead him into fuller expression, and if you think him on the point of taking part, though the rest are through, wait a minute—don't stop.

If the impression of the meeting is deepening—don't stop.

If souls are being born into the kingdom—don't stop.

If the visitors are getting restless, but the members are eager and interested—don't stop.

With tact, with common sense, with a prayerful desire for the best, hold on—don't stop.—Selected.

To be honest; to be kind; to earn a little and to spend a little less; to make on the whole a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but without capitulation; above all, on the same grim conditions, to keep friends within himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—Stevenson.

STRANGE NAMES OF CHURCHES.

In the Northwestern Christian Advocate "Justus Timberline" writes about the strange names of churches. An Eastern preacher, he says, calls for more sensible names. He dislikes, for instance, hyphenated names such as "Asbury-Delaware." He objects to number names, such as First Church, Second Church, and so on. He complains about street names, because a street may be miles long, and Fourth Avenue Church may be in the suburbs or the slums. He has a number of other complaints besides, but he admits we shall not start any general re-naming of the churches. However queer names may sound to strangers, they have a way of coming alive to those who live with them. Then "Justus" goes on in his inimitable way to say: "You'd think that 'Hezekiah' might be a handicap on a boy's career, but we oldsters remember with real regard Hezekiah Butterworth, who had so much to do with the Youth's Companion. And 'Jane' isn't much of a name to some people, but I know others who think Jane Addams as real a saint as Saint Bridget. 'The Little Church Around the Corner' might easily get a shorter—and less affectionate—name, and 'Old John Street' means more for that church, than 'St. George's' ever could. The farmer-Christians of the Middle West found in the Bible good names for their country churches, though sticklers for accuracy might not always approve. How many hundred country preachers are making their rounds of these churches every Sunday! They go from 'Salem' to 'Zion,' from 'Tabor' to 'Hermon,' from 'Lebanon' to 'Nebo,' from 'Paradise' to 'Palestine,' from 'Hope' to 'New Hope,' from 'Ebenezer' to 'Triumph,' from 'Sinai' to 'Olivet,' from 'Peniel' to 'Bethel,' from 'Carmel' to 'Hebron,' and the list has been but begun.

"It's an interesting subject—one of those I like to think about, partly for the very reason that there's nothing else to do. You can't change church names easily, and we're about out of the era of new churches. I can imagine some satirist having fun with American church names. But he would have to be an outsider. To the insiders, history is hidden in these names. They tell of doctrinal conflicts, more than of real-estate promotions. They speak of people long since dead, but not forgotten yet."

However, it isn't only the names of particular churches that can be called into account—how about denominational names? Dean Kershner, of Butler University, writes in The Christian-Evangelist a severe and on the whole a justifiable criticism of denominational terminology. If there are some among us who object to the proposed name for the Union Church into which we are proposing to enter, let it be remembered that fault can be found with most of the names now in use. Dean Kershner writes as follows: "Mose denominational titles are either nicknames or misnomers. The term Roman Catholic is a contradiction because Roman is a particular designation, while Catholic means universal. To be Roman one cannot really be Catholic, and if one is truly Catholic he cannot be Roman. Both Baptist and Methodist were terms of derision in their original application. Even Presbyterian is a misnomer, as a former moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. once observed in our hearing. He said that the government by elders was about the least significant thing in the church to which he belonged, and the title is therefore largely a misapplication. Even the word Protestant is an unsatisfactory term from the larger point of view. Of course personal titles, like Lutheran, Wesleyan, Calvinistic, or Campbellite, are totally inadmissible as names for the real Church." Yes, and some of us know what it means to be asked, "Reformed what?"—Reformed Church Messenger.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

PROSPERITY COMES!

(EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

Orlando, Fla., February 17th.

According to the local morning paper, prosperity is no longer "just around the corner," but is actually here—for Florida, at any rate—and "home." In streaming headlines across the whole page of the daily today is this line in large letters that all, even those who run, may read: "Thirty Million Dollars Wagered to Help State Turn Corner." Then in big bold type as a sub-heading carries the lines: "Betting Turns Depression Tide. Ten Million Already Bet this Season." And then the following Associated Press Dispatch is given to the world:

"Miami, Fla, Feb. 16—AP.—Times may still be hard in many places, prosperity still flitting one corner ahead, but for Miami in particular, and the State of Florida in general, legalized betting has turned the depression tide. It was estimated by Walter H. Donovan, secretary of the Florida Racing Commission, today, that some $30,000,000 will slide through the pari-mutuel windows of the seven dog tracks and two horse parks in the State before the season ends April 1st. Already $10,000,000 has been bet in the machines alone, not counting at all money the pool parlors and betting commissions have handled." After further details of the wonderful season for betting, Miami in particular and Florida in general is having, we are told that without doubt before the season closes $1,500,000 persons will have paid admissions" to the legalized gambling tracks.

And now the juicy plum for Florida to rejoice over, and the rest of the world envy her for:

"Out of all this" (we are still quoting the Associated Press dispatch) "Secretary Donovan estimates the State will profit to the extent of at least $1,000,000 this year as compared to a total of $775,000 collected in taxes on gambling last year. For a city that rode up with prosperity and down again when it failed, Miami today presents an optimistic sight."

And so on for a whole column of gleeful and approving comment on how Florida as a State has staged a successful comeback to prosperity. So Florida rejoices, according to this Associated Press dispatch, that by the great feat of $30,000,000 changing hands in gambling, the State gets one million, and thus while other States are still struggling with the depression, the great and noble State of Florida has turned the trick and already has prosperity from a million dollars (estimated) paid this year into her treasury through legalized gambling! And so prosperity comes to a great State through gambling! One sees that some of our States are considering the enactment of laws allowing lotteries for public revenue while several States—Arkansas for one—are seeking to get ahead of Nevada in easy and quick divorce laws for revenue. So a large part of the population, at least, have decided that the way to recovery and prosperity is through drunkenness, gambling and lust.

May we not purchase prosperity at too great a cost? Is prosperity a god at whose shrine all must bow down and worship? Is there not something even more desirable, more enduring, more comforting than prosperity? Paul was writing in a very sane, safe manner to Timothy when he said: "They that are mindful to be rich fall into a temptation and a snare and many foolish and hurtful lusts, such as drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil; which some reaching after have been led astray from the faith and have pierced themselves through with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, faith, love, patience, meekness."

I am now reading a wonderful little book by A. E. Garvie entitled "Can Christ Save Society?" Dr. Garvie was born a Russian Poland, but has studied at great universities of the world, and is primarily an economist. In this book he declares that Christ is the only hope of recovery and safety for a torn, distraught and unsettled world. He says in his preface: "The wisdom of the world is showing itself foolishness before God. Good intentions abound, but are proving ineffective, because the leaders of the nations dare not be drastic enough in their remedies, nor searching enough in their diagnosis of the world's disease. Can we apply today Paul's challenge to that wisdom?" "Seeing that in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom knew not God, it was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." "It is in this connection (declares Garvie) that this book has been written, for I believe that Christ is the only Physician who can heal society as he heals individuals."

In the closing paragraph of his preface, Dr. Garvie makes this plea: "Will the church heed the call of Christ to speak frankly and boldly in his name, to show the sufficiency of God in him, when everywhere the insufficiency of man, apart from him, is being shown?"

The fact is if one reads the daily papers only one will conclude that the world revels in the bad, delights in killing, and is obsessed with wickedness only. While a comparatively few tourists in Florida go to the gaming tracks and tables the vast majority go to the house of God and places of righteousness. The good God wonderfully blessed the United States in making

Florida and it is a shame for man to desecrate and abuse its wonders and its glories.

J. O. A.

PISTOL SALVATION.

I see in the paper where an Oklahoma pastor declines to be dismissed before his term expires some months hence, and emphasizes his preferences by drawing a gun on a congregation. Naturally, there was also some mention of a jail-house and a bond signing.

These are perilous times for preachers, but I recommend, as a matter of policy, that it is better to be fired than hold your job at the point of a gun. Some congregations can act so that some preachers would like to kill a few of them, but the Good Book says take "the sword of the Spirit," not the pistol of salvation.

It looks a little like the sword of the Spirit wouldn't even be second choice with the Oklahoma preacher. If he had to give up his pistol, he would probably prefer a butcher knife. If the brother will point his gun the other way a minute, I will read him a few texts.

"Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven; for so persecuted they the prophets that were before you." (Matt. 5:11, 12.) "Avenge not yourselves, beloved, but give place unto the wrath of God; for it is written, Vengeance belongeth unto me; I will recompense, saith the Lord." (Rom. 12:19.) The text also says something about feeding your enemy, but it doesn't mean to feed him hot lead.

It is possibly wasting time and good ammunition to quote the Scriptures to a mad preacher, but there is something unusual and fascinating about this one in Oklahoma. When a preacher is looking right at you over the barrel of a gun, you at least know where he stands. There is nothing compromising or hypocritical about the situation. He might have done worse. For instance, he might have circulated around among his friends and by smooth and fair speech built up a faction around himself and divided the church. Church busters are not ordinarily as naive as this pistol-toting parson in Oklahoma. He is possibly an amateur. Maybe he can manage it next time so he can stay out of jail and look like a martyr instead of a criminal.

Take a tip from me, parson. If you want to get along, put up that pistol and cloud up and rain. Sobs carry farther than bullets.—C. E. Wallace in Gospel Advocate.

MIKE AND THE PRIEST.

Seldom has a better answer been made than that of a poor Irishman to a priest, while defending himself for reading the Bible.

"But," said the priest, "the Bible is for the priests, and not for the like o' you."

"Ah! but, Sir," he answered, "I was reading in my Bible, 'You shall read it to your children,' and, sure, the priests have no children."

"But, Michael," said the priest, "you cannot understand the Bible. It is not for you to understand it, my man."

"Ah! very well, your Reverence. If I cannot understand it, it will do me no harm; and what I can understand does me a heap o' good."

"Very well, Mike," said the priest, "you must go to church; and the church will teach you. The church will give you the milk of the Word."

"And where does the church get it but out of the Bible? Ah, your Reverence, I would rather keep the cow myself."

THE CHURCH POINTS THE WAY.

Writing in a recent issue of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, John R. Scotford presents this most timely article, "The Church Points the Way to a Cooperative Commonwealth." Mr. Scotford is a writer of unusual ability and he handles his subject remarkably well. We recommend its reading, and re-print it in full below:

"The year 1933 has dramatized the change in the life of our country which has been imminent for two decades.

"Rugged individualism prevailed during the first three centuries of the white man's residence in America. Our fathers assumed that the quickest way to speed the development of a new continent was to allow each man to get all that he could grab. Instead of curbing selfishness, we sanctified it. Thanks to the magnificent distances and the abundant resources of our country, the encouragement of private enterprise, unlimited, worked fairly well for a surprising period of time.

"But the old order came to its climax and its close on the fourth day of last March, when the most conspicuous exponent of the old individualism retired from the Presidency with industry at a standstill, the banks of the richest nation in the world unable to face their depositors, and a surprising proportion of our people dependent upon public charity for their sustenance. This was not the fault of any man or group of men; it was the inevitable outcome of an era in which each man did that which was right in his own sight with the minimum of interference from either the government or his neighbor.

"It has become increasingly clear that the only escape from the calamitous consequences of unhampered selfishness is in the development of the United States into a cooperative commonwealth. From one angle this is merely the application to our total life of a principle whose effectiveness has been amply demonstrated by modern industry. Whether we step into the chain store on the corner or visit the mammoth factories where Mr. Ford creates his masterpieces, we see the results of scientific planning in which the means are carefully calculated to serve the desired ends and each individual activity skillfully fitted into the framework of a common purpose. Obviously some such ordered economy as this must be substituted for the selfish scrambling of the past if our people are to enjoy a reasonable degree of economic security. And so we are embarking upon a plan which calls for a more complete regulation of private enterprise than has ever been seriously considered even in wartime.

"One of the encouraging features of the situation is that circumstances, rather than the wish or will of any man or group of men, have brought us to where we are. This is not an emotional conversion to a glittering ideal such as wrote the Eighteenth Amendment into our Constitution, and then deserted it. Business is acquiescing in the present program, not because it wants to, but because there is nothing else to do.

"Fortunately there is nothing Messianic about our proposed program. It does not come to us as revealed from Sinai, or even as conceived on some such peak of inspiration as that on which Woodrow Wilson discovered his Fourteen Points. Our President does not promise that it will work, but merely suggests that it is worth trying. And, thanks to this attitude, it will be difficult for his political opponents to make capital out of any failures which may occur.

"But how far will this new ideal of our common life succeed? As individuals are we willing to limit our working hours and our incomes so that there may be employment for all? Will our great corporations abide by the codes which the various industries have been adopting more or less willingly? Can the energies of the American people be diverted from the wasteful competitions of the past to an ordered program designed to serve the best good of all?

"In the heat of the present emergency and under the pressure of an aroused public sentiment the present proposals are almost certain to function effectively for some months—at least until we are safely out of our present predicament. After that there is danger that we may repeat the same procedure as followed Armistice Day, when almost immediately our ideals were adjourned and selfishness leaped gaily into the saddle for the mad scramble of the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

"Unselfishness as an end in itself appeals to only a very small group of people. Most of us are willing to give way to the other fellow merely as a gesture of goodwill. But on the other hand, if there is some purpose which we deem worthy to be served we can rise to unsuspected heights of self-sacrifice. More or less secretly many of us are yearning to give ourselves to some 'great cause.' It is this latent unselfishness of human nature which makes possible both wars and all movement working for real progress.

"It is at this point that the church has wisdom to offer the state. For many years it has been struggling with the same problem in its own life of which our people have just become conscious in a larger way—unrestrained individualism. In the facing of this issue the church has anticipated the church.

"Our fathers were as prolific in the founding of religious organizations as they were in the setting up of grocery stores, real estate subdivisions and banks. Those who did not like the deacons in the First Church blithely started the Second Church. In not a few of the older sections of the country it would be possible to pitch a rock out of one Congregational Church into another! Those who thought that they had new ideas founded new denominations. In the name of religion it was not only right, it was praiseworthy for each individual to follow his conscience, no matter where it led him. The result was the fifty-seven varieties of Protestantism and a host of communities with far more churches than they had need of. But we should remember that the evils of over-churching and competitive denominationalism are not peculiar to religion alone. Rather they are symptoms of the rampant individualism which marked every phase of pioneer life. Our fathers made just as big a mess of their political and business organizations as they did of their religious institutions.

"From necessity the church has had to face the problems of unrestrained individualism rather earlier than has the state. In our own group of churches the situation has been particularly acute, as our fathers were the most independent of all the independents! The right of each congregation to manage its own affairs is the most sacred of all our traditions. Yet without setting up any external authority over our churches we have been able to travel an astonishing distance toward denominational unity and practical cooperation.

"Unity of action has usually been secured in much the same way. Neither churches nor individuals will give way to one another out of pure altruism. They do not unite just to be united. It is a common purpose which brings both men and institutions together in an effective fashion. And the more outstanding the goal which they seek, the closer the union!

"Among both the Congregational and Christian Churches it was missionary enthusiasm which preceded and prepared the way for denominational organization. The churches felt certain common impulses to carry forward certain tasks, and so they set up a series of boards and societies charged with specific responsibilities. The result of this individualistic and piecemeal way of going at things was overlapping, competition, confusion. Our denominational organization grew up as a more or less unconscious effort to control and direct our missionary activities. But if it had not been for the enthusiasm which created the original societies we would not now have our system of associations, conferences and the General Council. And the effectiveness of all these bodies depends wholly upon the ardor with which we pursue our common purposes.

"There are three enthusiasms which have brought our churches together in the past and which still enlist their loyalties. The expression of these interests has changed with the years and yet a certain underlying purpose remains constant.

"First, our fathers believed that the institutions of religion should be made available to every community in our land. That meant the sending forth of a host of home missionaries to organize churches along the frontier and the financial support of those congregations until they either died or became able to go it 'on their own.' Today the need of our country is not for more churches, but for better ones. We are actually taking pride in the congregations which are disbanding. Yet that does not mean that this task is done—rather has it changed its form. The present need is to lift the level of the life of our churches everywhere that they may the better face their common problems.

"A second ideal which our churches have cherished is that everyone who lives beneath our flag should be included in one Christian brotherhood. We have been deeply concerned over the alien groups whom circumstances have thrust into the midst of our common life—the Indians who have survived from the long past, the Negroes who were brought here to serve the white man's cupidity, the aspiring peoples of Europe who have sought opportunity upon our shores, the men and women of Spanish tongue who have come beneath our flag in various ways. Today there are a host of people in our churches who sincerely desire to understand our neighbors of other colors and tongues, and who are anxious to share with them our best. The impulse toward interracial fellowship is one of the inspiring and unifying forces in our church life today.

"A third of our historic enthusiasms has been for a world-wide Christianity. The first missionaries to other lands were primarily interested in the making of converts. To this was soon added the desire to improve conditions by the introduction of Western medicine, education, and social ideals. Today another note is being sounded—the sharing with other peoples of our best and their best that a better understanding may prevail between the nations of the world. The missionary is the most intimate, the most persistent, and the most idealistic of our representatives in other lands. Behind him stands the conviction of our churches that we must create a Christian internationalism which will render war forever impossible. And nothing is doing more to bring our churches together than this common purpose.

"Only as our nation pursues unifying ideals such as have brought our churches together will our people be moved to such a degree of unselfish living as will make possible the creation of a cooperative commonwealth in which each will work together for the good of all. Unless we are to again wallow in the same chaos from which we are now endeavoring to escape, the nation must follow the path toward unity in which the church has long pioneered."

It would help if more folks found they were lost.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Berea (Nansemond) Christian Church, located at Driver, Va., was, for many years, one of the leading rural churches in the Eastern Virginia Conference. Among its members were those who liberally supported the general enterprises and institutions of the Christian denomination. The membership has never been large, at no time has it reached over one hundred and fifty. But the membership has been active, liberal and loyal.

For several years the church has suffered losses by removals from the community, by deaths and by financial reverses. Four of the most active families have moved to other places during the past three or four years. However, during the past year there has been an increased attendance, especially in the Sunday School. The Sunday School attendance during the winter has surpassed any previous record, now extant, in the history of the church.

The outlook is more encouraging than it has been for several years. In the past the members have given to the building of other churches so liberally that they did not feel equal to the task of providing modern Sunday School rooms and other equipment for the local church. The time has come when something must be done to provide this necessary equipment. The children and young people are in the community and they are attending the Sunday School. They demand, and the work requires, additional building facilities. How shall this be erected and paid for? That is the question and the problem.

A short time ago Mr. Herbert P. Harrell offered to donate the old Beech Grove M. E. Church building to Berea to be used in the construction of Sunday School rooms. Several men dismantled the old M. E. building and hauled the lumber to the Berea Church grounds. This is the beginning of what we hope will be a good Sunday School plant for our church. Plans have been drawn and adopted by the Building Committee, for a seven-room addition at the rear of the church building. Several men have offered to give their time and labor in helping to erect the building. In addition to this free labor, the rooms will cost at least $1,500.00. About $800.00 has been pledged to date. The Building Committee has been instructed not to go in debt for this work. The movement has been launched on the "pay-as-you-go" plan. This plan may move slowly, at first, but there will be no long drawn out debt to pay after the work is completed.

Church debts are hard to pay. If all the members of the churches would give as God prospered them in the periods of prosperity there would be no occasion for incurring church debts. Many people say during a depression: "If conditions were like they were a few years ago, I would be glad to give liberally." But very few people will give liberally at any time, in prosperity or adversity. We are devoutly hoping and praying that the way will be opened to carry this good work to completion without debt. I believe it will be done. The members are willing to cooperate, and that is a promise of final success. The suggestion has been made that families, or groups, finish a room in memory of some deceased member of the church. It will cost about $75.00 to finish the interior of one room. Three or four families have already expressed a willingness to consider this plan for making contributions to the Building Fund. We would greatly rejoice to see this work pushed to completion as soon as weather conditions permit.

If any SUN reader wishes to make a contribution to this work, send it to Mr. H. P. Harrell, Treasurer of the Building Fund, Driver, Va. We are not soliciting outside of our membership, except in a few instances where persons were formerly members or friends of this congregation. Any help will be greatly appreciated by the members and friends of the church.

I. W. JOHNSON.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE.

Elon College was founded in 1888. In 1890 it opened its doors to students. Dr. W. S. Long was the founder and the first president. We are approaching the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the College. The freshman class that enters September, 1934, will be the half-century class so far as the founding of the College is concerned. There are certain achievements desirable for the College as we reach its fiftieth anniversary in 1938. We should have the largest graduating class in the history of the institution. If we succeed in this particular, it means that we must enroll a large freshman class in September of this year. To this end we are asking hearty cooperation upon the part of the alumni, members of the church, and friends of the College. Naturally, we are looking to the homes of the Christian Church for our students. We are always glad to welcome young women and young men from homes other than our own, but we feel that the College deserves to be supported by its own. If all friends of the College and members of the church will lend their efforts freely, and enthusiastically recommend Elon College to their friends, we will measure up to their expectations. We strive constantly to improve the College in every particular, and by your help we will.

The next job that we would like to see done by the time we celebrate our fiftieth anniversary is to settle all of our debts. As difficult as the first may seem, this one, I am sure, appears even more so. Our debts run into the hundreds of thousands, but you would be surprised how quickly they would disappear if every individual, alumnus, friend of the College, and member of the church who earn would set apart a small per cent of his earnings for the support of the College.

In the past, colleges have looked to individuals of wealth for large contributions for their support. In these latter days, however, those who have an understanding of existing conditions realize that we must now begin to look to a large number of individuals who may make comparatively small contributions. It would be a fine thing for someone to give Elon College one-half million dollars, but it would be a finer thing still to have five hundred people give a total of one-half million to the College. It is not only money that the College needs, but it needs friends. A large number of givers is preferable by far, to one large giver. We appreciate greatly the large gifts in the past and are more anxious for them today than we have ever been; but if there cannot be large gifts for the College, then, certainly, there must be a large number of individuals who will contribute.

I would like for the church and friends of the College to begin thinking about the possibility of settling the debts of Elon, and not only to think about it but to begin working, saving, planning and giving to that end—all together for a clean slate for the College in 1938.

When we are fortunate enough to cancel our debts, it will take one further step, if we are to stay out of debt; and this step must be to increase the endowment and thereby provide an increased annual income for the College. Elon needs at least an additional half-million endowment. When we think of settling more than a half-million-dollar debt and then the additional task of raising another half million for endowment, the job appears too difficult for us. We should tackle this job as individuals with a determination that we shall do our part and trust the other fellow to do his. We have a pledge of $150,000.00 for endowment when our debts are paid and we raise $350,000.00 for endowment. This seems a long way in the future, but let us begin to pull in that direction.

The time has come for us to think about success, work for success, and to be determined to achieve success, and to stop thinking about losses, misfortunes, and failures, and the possibility of additional failures. Our deeds are governed by our thinking. Our thoughts are the products of our vision. The prophet said, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Let's strive to see that Elon is clear of her debt and that she has an additional half-million endowment by the time we turn from the first half-century of her history and enter the second half. These things are possible.

We are now in the midst of a task that is tremendously important and definitely challenging. What are we going to do about this $25,000.00 campaign? Just a few more days remain in which you, as a church, are to complete your canvass, get your gifts together, and forward the same to the College. May I make this last-minute appeal to every church and every pastor to complete the job? By way of illustration: We have a basketball team, and it seems that they are beaten at the game every time they play until the last few minutes of the game. In the closing minutes of the game they usually win. I hope that this may be true with the pastors and the churches of the Convention during the closing days of this campaign. Ask God to show you how it can be done; then follow the leadings of the Spirit and it will be done.

Last week we published a list of six churches that had raised the amounts asked for and sent the same in to the College. We published a longer list of churches which had sent in a part of what they were asked for. One of the churches in the partial payments list last week joins the number on the Honor Roll this week. This church is Wake Chapel. Last week we reported $101.08 from this church. This week there is $54.00 from this church, making a total from Wake Chapel of $155.08.

The following church so far constitute the Honor Roll:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Ambrose, Georgia and Alabama.....	$ 30.00	$ 35.00
Elon College, North Carolina & Virginia.....	229.00	688.00
Seagrove, Western North Carolina.....	18.50	32.00
Waverly, Eastern Virginia.....	113.00	169.00
Carolina, North Carolina & Virginia..	15.50	15.50
Mt. Bethel, North Carolina & Virginia	37.00	37.91
Wake Chapel, Eastern North Carolina	102.50	155.08

The following churches have sent in contributions from the church during the campaign:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Windsor, Eastern Virginia.....	$ 49.50	$ 46.00
Holland, Eastern Virginia.....	212.50	159.50
Eure, Eastern Virginia.....	178.50	25.00
Wakefield, Eastern Virginia.....	47.50	25.75
Liberty Springs, Eastern Virginia.....	171.50	65.00
Mt. Carmel, Eastern Virginia.....	37.00	32.65
Holy Neck, Eastern Virginia.....	166.50	67.51
Newport News, Eastern Virginia.....	132.50	30.43
Oakland, Eastern Virginia.....	196.50	13.30
Union, North Carolina & Virginia....	185.00	58.50
Mt. Zion, North Carolina & Virginia..	73.00	38.00
Haw River, North Carolina & Virginia	96.00	29.55

New Lebanon, North Carolina & Va...	65.00	60.18
Hebron, North Carolina & Virginia...	73.50	12.00
Catawba Springs, E. North Carolina...	105.50	50.50
United Church, E. North Carolina....	43.50	6.10
Liberty Vance, E. North Carolina....	202.50	51.50
Mt. Auburn, E. North Carolina.....	88.50	45.00
Ramseur, W. North Carolina .....	59.00	33.00
Randleman, W. North Carolina.....	46.50	3.20

I trust that other churches appearing on the list of those which have made partial payments may redouble their efforts and see that their names are placed on the Honor Roll, and, further, that we may have many, many encouraging reports as we come to the close of the educational period.

I want to thank everybody who has given the College anything or in any way contributed to its success.
L. E. SMITH, President.

PRAISE!

"Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion."—Psalm 65:1.

"In the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee."—Heb. 2:12.

The strains of the long meter Doxology pealed through the church and the choir filed in, the pastor raised his hands and all arose and joined in singing that old, old hymn. It is old, yet it is the grandest of our hymns of praise, so all inclusive in its call to praise the triune God. How our hearts should thrill as we sing it and ponder over the words so God-inspired. How we need to tune our hearts to sing this hymn of praise.

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow." O, that word "all" we cannot comprehend its fullness for it is impossible for us to name or count the blessings that God showers upon us. When man failed God in the Garden of Eden the great compassion of God was poured out in the promise of the Redeemer who should come to buy back for fallen man the fellowship and communion with God which he lost when he sinned. The love of God worked out the precious plan of salvation which we may enjoy in all its fullness and through this great salvation comes every blessing, for Christ is all and in all.

"Praise him all creatures here below." Webster says in his unabridged dictionary that "creature" means everything not self-existent. And here below the broad canopy of heaven we have upon this earth all kinds of animal life, besides the plants and water in abundance; these are all called upon to praise God, the Creator of all things. To each one God has given a voice to praise him, no two are keyed alike yet all bring a harmony of praise to his ear. The song of the birds, the contented murmur of the lower animals, the beauty of the plant life, the grandeur of the waters, all praise him who giveth us richly all things to enjoy. Oh, how we should join in this glad hymn of praise with all the other creatures upon the earth. Well might we sing with another hymn writer: "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty; early in the morning our song shall rise to thee; only thou art holy; there is none beside thee, perfect in power, in love and purity."

"Praise him above ye heavenly host." In the lower heavens are the sun, moon and stars fulfilling his will, shining in their brightness upon this dark world to illumine and to give warmth to every creature. The darkness also which shuts us in with God; the air which sustains physical life are all of his creation and praise him in their own way. But in the heaven of heavens are the angelic heavenly hosts and the redeemed of all ages past who ever encircle the throne singing praise unto him who sits upon the throne.

"Praise Father, Son and Holy Ghost." The triune God-head to whom all praise belongs. God the Father, the Eternal, Invisible, Omnipresent, Omniscient, Mighty in Power, full of faithfulness and truth, goodness, mercy and love. The Father of all created things, who holdeth the world in his hands and pours out upon us the riches of his grace in the person of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord and Redeemer who left the glories of heaven to come to this sin-cursed world. He walked among men as man that he might know the weakness of human frailty, its suffering and woe, because of his great love and divine compassion. But that was not enough for he had to be led as a lamb to the slaughter and upon Calvary's hill his love for us was manifested when he bore our sins that we might be forgiven and set free from the bondage of sin. Only the shedding of his blood atoned for sin for "there was no other good enough to pay the price of sin; he only could unlock the gates of heaven and let us in." Oh, dearly, dearly, has he loved and still loves and yearns over fallen humanity. For all of this his praise should be continually in our mouth. When he went away, ascending up into heaven in bodily form, he sent the Holy Ghost as he had promised, that he, the Holy Ghost, might abide in the hearts of those who would accept the atonement upon the cross as their sacrifice for sin, cleansed and made holy through the precious blood shed thereon. The Holy Ghost, the third person of the God-head, who convicts of sin, strives with sinners, imparts the love of God, comforts, teaches, guides, keeps from sin those who are fully surrendered to God in this present evil world.

Well may we sing, "All hail the power of Jesus' name! Let angels prostrate fall! Bring forth the royal diadem, and crown him Lord of all." Call upon the stars to crown him and the sinners whose love should ne'er forget what God, through his grace, Christ through his sacrifice, and the Holy Ghost through his faithfulness, have done for them, can never stop praising.

What a praise service that will be when Jesus is crowned King of kings and Lord of lords! The hallelujahs will ring out in one grand unending Doxology of praise in the song of Moses and the Lamb, and with them will be those who are called and chosen and faithful. God grant that we may be among that number! What a joy it will be to join in the song of praise; let us practice it more as we go through this world.

W.

"The poorest of trades and the noblest of callings," is what Doctor Cuyler called the ministry of the Gospel.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- No. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 3/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. b To Mercy and truth gathered; righteousness kissed each other. c Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/4 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. c 2 Pt. 1. 1. or, au

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ 'Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 4 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

head

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACH

les
Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/4 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- No. 04153. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04153, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

STARTING ANEW WITH GOD.

We have just returned from the forty-first meeting of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America held at Garden City, January 3rd-5th. It was the most progressive gathering of Mission Board delegates that we can recall. So much so, in fact, that we are still rubbing our eyes as if waking from a dream.

Could this progressiveness have been due to the Laymen's Inquiry Report or to the boards' being driven together by their financial difficulties, or to Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal psychology? Who knows—and who cares? Sufficient is the fact that in foreign missionary circles we have entered upon a new day of progress together.

A new spirit is within us. The world situation today seems full of God. When in human history has there been such a world-wide breaking up of old systems? When such a reorganization of human society along new lines? When has the human mind been so truly in flux, so responsive to the touch of leadership, so malleable, so capable of taking on new and better forms of thought and purpose? When has God's hand been more evident in breaking up the crust of deadening tradition, of cruel, stifling systems of thought and life, of national and international organizations that have threatened the soul and life of the masses to the material benefit of the few? When has the mind and heart of humanity been so really open to the love of God as expressed in Jesus? When has there been a greater demand for Christian missionary service of the highest order? And has the cause we serve ever had a surer, nobler sense of a peculiar mission under God than it has today in this great period of revolution and reconstruction?

The Lord is indeed making all things new. So must we. We must be ready to lose, if necessary, all the material investments of the past; to scrap every established system of work; to discard old policies and principles of administration; to follow God out into a new day of activity. The times demand, not masters of retreat, but re-creating spirits.

Nor can we be thwarted in our re-creating purpose by any spirit of defeatism. The enemy is upon us without a doubt. On the American Board field alone scores of missionaries are being withdrawn; schools and hospitals are being closed; stations and even missions are being given up. The missionary morale is beginning to suffer; here at home the receipts have fallen off by the hundreds of thousands, and the Board has begun to draw upon its capital and to use up its reserves.

But to those who re-create with God the situation is always "excellent." Our right may be rolled up, our left shattered, our communications threatened, yet we attack with our center in full-confidence.

And the situation is excellent. We are where we can have a new start in life if we will. We are becoming free to reconstruct along new lines. God grant we may take advantage of our position.—Editorial in Missionary Herald.

YOUNG MEN, PRAYER IS POWER!

"It is because young people do not understand the meaning and practice of prayer that they have temptations," said Dr. Kagawa, Japan's great Christian social leader. "Kneel down and pray and then you will feel the power of God . . . Young men, prayer is power."

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 17, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,376.97
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	1.42
Holland, Va.	5.00
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	1.32
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	2.00
Union Grove, Seagrove, N. C.	.41
Total	$ 1,387.12

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged	$ 688.97
Miss Mabel Hammer, Greensboro, N. C. (Palm Street Church)	2.00
Total	$ 690.97

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 8,272.10
Sunday Schools, Regular	10.15
Individuals and Churches	2.00

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

REV. SHERWOOD F. MORAN.

By D. P. CUSHING,

News Editor, American Board.

"A missionary's business is to make some definite contribution to the country to which he goes," says Rev. Sherwood F. Moran, energetic young Christian social worker in Osaka, Japan. Mr. Moran, known by many friends both at home and abroad as "Sherry," put his philosophy to work by building up in the heart of the factory belt of Osaka, the sixth largest city in the world, a thoroughly Christian institution known as the Yodogawa Neighborhood House. Here is supervised recreation, gymnasium, reading rooms, clubs and classes, as well as regular religious activities. Kagawa, Japan's great Christian social leader, has called this the "best planned and most attractive" social center in any country that he has ever visited, while government inspectors point it out as a model settlement.

Swapping humorous stories with a Japanese prince, while a newspaper reporter listened aghast at such familiarity, Mr. Moran told his celebrated visitor of the work being done. Japan's business men, officials, and members of the royalty alike commend it. Representatives of the royal household have visited Yodogawa Neighborhood House. The Governor's lady, President of the Woman's Patriotic League, which cooperates with Yodogawa on health clinics, planned to see Mr. Moran off when he sailed for his last furlough, a most unprecedented recognition for a foreigner. Prevented from so doing by illness, she sent a deputation with flowers to the steamer.

"We decided to work among the laboring classes, but we did not want to do slum work," says Mr. Moran. "We felt that our efforts should be among the progressive artisan type, which is practically untouched by the Gospel—the upper lower classes, you might say. We felt we would be doing well if we could even talk about Christianity within a year's time, but inside of two years we had a band of believers numbering fifty. Now there are 150."

Mr. Moran was born in Covington, Ky., but his family moved to Brooklyn when he was a year old. Following high school, he worked for five years in New York banks, where, as he expresses it, he met all types of men, and found himself "equally at home with a bum or a bank president." He had always said to himself "rather sheepishly," he now admits: "If ever I become what I call a Christian, I should want to be a REAL one." He became seriously interested in religion by going to the Y. M. C. A., where he met a different type of men, and decided to give up business and go to Oberlin College. While there he took time off to travel around the world as Sherwood Eddy's secretary, and later attended Union Seminary and Columbia University. He majored both at Oberlin and Columbia in philosophy. Mr. Moran went to Japan in 1916.

Sherwood Moran is not the kind of man who wants to tackle any job. "I am not willing to do a thing unless there is a big challenge and a big opportunity," he says. "I look at my work in Japan in just such terms—opportunity and challenge." And there you have Sherwood Moran.

DR. AND MRS. WOODWORTH RETURN TO MEROM AFTER 41 YEARS IN JAPAN.

Dr. and Mrs. Alonzo D. Woodworth, who returned to Merom to reside last fall, after Dr. Woodworth's forty-one years as a missionary in Japan, were residents of Merom before going to Japan. Dr. Woodworth, who has the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the old Union Christian College at Merom, was a member of the faculty of the old college until he resigned in 1892 to go to Japan. Dr. Woodworth is 77 years old. The following article was printed in the Tokio, Japan, Advertiser last September, when the Woodworth's left for this country:

Retiring from missionary work after forty-one years in Japan, Dr. Alonzo D. Woodworth, with Mrs. Woodworth, sailed last Monday for the United States, and yesterday intimate American and Japanese friends of long standing joined in expression of tribute.

"He was a man who devoted his entire life to straightforward evangelism," they agreed, explaining to a representative of The Japan Advertiser that one type of missionary represents business-like organization ability, whereas those of the other type are straight evangelists. Dr. Woodworth, they said, belonged distinctly to the latter group, and "with abounding faith in his work served his Master with unlimited enthusiasm."

"There has been no missionary who has so neglected material things and plunged his whole life into direct spiritual contact with the people," one friend said. "He is perhaps the only missionary in Japan who preached in the streets and to thousands who crowded the illuminated quarters of Azabu Juban."

"He never sought for any material accomplishment which might remain in Japan in his memory, such as a school, or church, or a society, for his first interest in life was to preach the Gospel."

"The Bible to Dr. Woodworth was not to be viewed critically, but to be believed. He was a conservative and a fundamentalist who based his entire life on faith and faith alone, and his speeches in the streets vivified his character, which dictated that his way of life was to save people."

Dr. Woodworth was deeply interested in students and young men, it was pointed out. He contacted them personally as he taught in the Azabu Middle School and the Theological School of Toyama Gakuin, both in the classrooms and at his own home. He invited students to his home and gave discussions on the Bible, and he taught them English, occasionally coaching his students in speech in preparation for oratorical contests.

Many students under the evangelist's leadership were sent to the United States through his assistance and returned as teachers or preachers while many lives were turned to the spreading of the Gospel through his personal influence on people both within the Christian Church Mission, which he represented, as well as in other missions. His activities continued even after his mission and the Congregational Church merged into the American Missionary Board in 1930.

Especially in recent years, Dr. Woodworth has not been widely known, it was indicated, as his personal associations both with American as well as Japanese outside of his field were very limited.

"He was so involved in his chosen work that he cared very little to associate widely," it was pointed out.

Of late years, it was told that Dr. Woodworth had to discontinue his active street preaching, as his voice gave out, but it was added that this did not hamper his work with smaller groups, which he always gathered around him.

The evangelist little cared for the conditions of his room or his house, but his wife, although she did not participate in evangelical work, kept their home in order. She was attached to her home and her associations were very limited, it was said.

The missionary was graduated from Oberlin College, where he later received his Master's degree. He was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity by the Union Christian College, Merom, Ind., where he was a professor until he came to Japan as a missionary in 1892.

All except two of his 41 years in Japan were spent in evangelistic work in Tokio. He was president of the Bible Training School in Tokio until it was discontinued in 1914.

At the Azabu Middle School he was a teacher of English and Bible, while at Anayama Gakuin he taught New Testament Greek for the last 12 years until his retirement after the summer quarter this year.

Although his retirement was due several years ago, Dr. Woodworth continued to teach and engage in evangelistic work.

The evangelist had no special interest or hobby as evangelism took all of his time. According to his friends he had no particular "Golden Age" in his missionary work, but they referred to him as having pridefully said, "it is the same as ever." He was a steady, hard worker. Consistency ruled his life.

Dr. Woodworth will retire from strenuous activities in the United States, but according to his friends, he said before leaving Japan that he will lecture in the United States about Japan. He will go first to Merom. During his stay in Japan, Dr. Woodworth visited America about every eight years.

"We have lost a great friend who was devoted to his work," his friends said. "He was the old type of missionary who preached by faith.

"He had a vitality in his evangelism rarely seen among the newer missionaries, and although the modern missionaries have newer wisdom and certain abilities Dr. Woodworth did not have, his type of faith and devotion was necessary because his heart was always open to his fellow-men."—Merom, Ind., Times.

HOLLAND AND HOLY NECK SOCIETIES.

An all-day service was held at the Holland Christian Church, Friday, February 16th. The program was sponsored by the Holland and Holy Neck Woman's Societies, with several of the ladies from the Baptist Church as invited guests.

The three local pastors, Dr. N. G. Newman, Dr. W. M. Jay and Rev. W. H. Corbitt, were present and participated in the program.

The World Day program was used as the devotionals in both the forenoon and afternoon ses-

A Story for the Children

WHEN TONY CRAYFISH GREW.

At an early time in his life Tony Crayfish became very much dissatisfied with everything. He didn't like this, and he didn't like that; and he was forever wanting to stick his nose into things that didn't concern him, possibly because he thought that by so doing he could find something or other that would satisfy him. He finally did find a thing that made him have an entirely different outlook upon life.

Tony's mother had repeatedly told him not to go near Mr. Hardshell's house. Mr. Hardshell lived only a short distance up the creek, under the roots of a big sycamore. He was contented for the most part with staying in the neighborhood of his house; and so Tony Crayfish had never had sight of him. For Tony was a small Crayfish, and his mother had kept him pretty close home, in the protection of her rock-bottom house. At the slightest warning of danger all the Crayfish family could find shelter under the roof of the friendly rocks.

But one day Tony had that feeling of dissatisfaction which had so often of late come upon sions, and was very impressively led by Mrs. B. D. Jones.

The Home Mission Study Book, entitled "The Christian Mission in America," was taught with most thorough efficiency by ladies of the Missionary Societies.

Mrs. A. J. Holland, president of the Holland Society, presided with grace and dignity during the day's services. Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Norfolk, Va., introduced the book and taught the first chapter, "The Ever Challenging Gospel." Mrs. H. V. White taught the second chapter, "The Faith of Our Fathers and Our Faith." The forenoon session was closed with the third chapter, "The expansion of the Gospel Yesterday and Today," taught by Miss Lillie Holland.

A delightful covered dish luncheon was served at noon to the sixty persons present.

Following the devotionals of the afternoon, the fourth chapter, "Bridging the Generations," was taught by Mrs. L. J. Daughtrev. Mrs. J. R. Darden taught the next chapter, "What Is Right With the Church?" and the concluding chapter, "The Cross, the Missionary Dynamic," was taught by Mrs. W. M. Jay, with the aid of a lighted cross.

The program was delightfully interspersed with special music, solos by Mrs. Sumner Rawles and Mrs. Joe E. Holland, duets by Mrs. G. D. Underwood, Mrs. J. O. Davidson and Mrs. Vernon Holland and Mrs. S. L. Wright, and a ladies' quartette by Mesdames Sumner Rawles, W. M. Jay, S. L. Wright and A. L. Jolly.

The day's service was loudly acclaimed as the most successful plan yet tried by the two societies in observing the World Day of Prayer and Mission Study. It is cheerfully recommended to other societies or groups as a satisfactory plan.

At the night service, the Barrett Missionary Society of Young People rendered a splendid program, partly of a miscellaneous nature, emphasizing Peace, and closing with a brief playlet, "And They Left All," written by a member of the society, Miss Frances Everett.

The young people of the Holland Church conduct regularly a Missionary Society and Christian Endeavor Society, both of which are doing good work. Mrs. J. R. Darden is the efficient superintendent of the Young People's Missionary Society, and directed the play.

W. M. JAY.

him. "I'm tired of staying around this old house," he grumbled, after his mother had gone out to search for beetles. "I'm going to make a little journey downstream." At that, he started off on his journey.

But Tony didn't go downstream. No, he must have been so dissatisfied when he started out that he didn't realize in which direction he was going. For his wanderings took him in the very neighborhood of Mr. Hardshell's house. He nosed along through the mud—for he had left the rock bottom of his neighborhood—and he picked up a small bug here and there, a fact which made him think that he was very much grown up. "I'm getting big enough to shift for myself," he observed. "No use of my staying around here any longer, for I can take care of myself. I can catch bugs as well as Mother!"

Then he strutted as he caught a beetle a bit larger than any of the others. But it happened that he strutted right along in front of Mr. Hardshell's house!

If there is anything that Mr. Hardshell won't stand for, it's a Crayfish strutting by his house. Mr. Hardshell was out of his door in a moment, and the next moment he was upon Tony Crayfish. He seized Tony and started off with him.

Tony knew in a moment from his mother's description, that he was in the powerful clutch of Mr. Hardshell. He also knew all at once that he was not able to take care of himself as well as he had thought. But he thought he had found this out too late. Still, with all his might he gave a lunge downstream, in the direction of his home.

A sharp pain in his shoulder told him that something very unpleasant had happened to him. And yet, he was overjoyed to find out that he was not now in the hold of Mr. Hardshell! For Mr. Hardshell had fortunately clutched only his hand.

Happily Tony made record time to his mother's door. Mr. Hardshell was left far behind by a much frightened Crayfish. Tony met his mother at the door, just returning from her beetle hunt. "See what fine beetles I have for you, Tony," she began. And then, "But Tony, where is your arm?"

While Mrs. Crayfish cried, Tony told her his sad story. After he had finished, Mrs. Crayfish cried a bit more, partly because of his missing arm, partly because she was glad to have Tony back even with only one large arm. "Tony, why did you go near Mr. Hardshell's house?" she sobbed.

Then Tony told the whole story of how he had been dissatisfied and had thought himself large enough to seek his fortunes alone. "But now, Mother, what'll I do? Just one arm! What will happen to me now?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Tony, what will happen. If you'll be careful with that shoulder, another arm will grow to take the place of the old one. It may not be so large, but it will be a good arm just the same. So if my little Crayfish will be satisfied to stay here for a while and grow, I think I can promise that he will not need to go out into the world finally under a handicap."

And Tony promised that he would be satisfied. For he had already grown with his experience, even more than his mother realized.—By J. Arthur Dunn, in Presbyterian Advocate.

Providence is the care and superintendence which God exercises over his creatures. He that acknowledges a creation and denies a providence involves himself in a palpable contradiction; for the same power which caused a thing to exist is necessary to continue its existence. Some persons admit a general providence, but deny a particular providence, not considering that a general providence consists of particulars—Webster.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

WHAT IS LOVE?

Around my sick bed recently gathered a group of young people. As is the custom in such groups, somebody soon said, "What is love?" I want to give an answer.

Picture for yourself a court room in which Mr. B is being sued by Mr. A for the alienation of his wife's affections. The court has gone on at some length. Evidence has been brought in to show what in the beginning of the acquaintance between Mr. B and Mrs. A, the gentleman who is now being sued tried to be a friend of the family with the hope of relieving some difficulties which had existed for some time. It appears from the evidence that Mr. A was cruel to his wife. He demanded that she do exactly what he said, regardless of what she might wish; that in order to accomplish this she had to give up the kind of life she had lived, which incidentally was a good type of life, and had had to make believe that she enjoyed the house in which he lived, though it was but a prison.

The prosecuting attorney was asking a few unimportant questions and then rather insinuatingly remarked, "Did you love the woman?"

The reply of Mr. B was quickly given, and is as follows:

"If by love you mean that passion which drives certain husbands, philanderers, and beasts to seek their mate because she is a female, the answer is No! But if by love you mean that celestial fire which purifies the human soul and welds it to its mate with ties that are longer than life and stronger than death, and makes one forget that life has value other than as it can be used in serving the object of its devotion, then the answer is 'Yes!'"

I HAD A FIGHT.

If most boys, and some girls, would be strictly honest, they would have to say, "I had a fight." But it is nothing to be particularly proud of usually. Not many school boys who go home with ragged clothes, dirty hands, bleeding faces or black eyes, are willing to run up to mother and father and say, "I had a fight," even though that is exactly the cause for the dilapidated condition in which they appear at the family altar.

Yet sometimes one can be proud of the fact that he has had a fight. I am now. And it is about this personal fight which I want to tell you.

A week ago today, some tiny little enemies, which I cannot see with my natural eye, and which are too small to be dignified with the name of animals, made an attack on my chest. I said, all right, I take the challenge. I go to bed and knock you out." I went to bed, but the knocking was the other way. They soon flattened me out. They bit my ear; they blackened my eyes; they made my head sore; they hit below the belt; in fact they went all over my system playing havoc everywhere. But I never left my guns. I stayed by and waited my turn. Because I was bigger and older and wiser (I hope) I would be able to put them to rout. They are now running to cover and I am winning the fight. It has been a noble combat, and I give influenza germs a medal for willingness to do their dastardly work. But if a human being is perfectly resigned for nature, aided by the Lord and a bit of medical skill, to have its way there is usually a chance to win the fight over the deadly germs.

Which reminds me that oftentimes we little human beings want to stick our heads into the running of the universe and we are willing to challenge the forces of nature and nature's God. We go into battle with society, as represented by politics, economics, or religion, but often find ourselves crushed in the conflict. I suppose we should take some pride in this senseless willingness for our personal sacrifice. But the wheels of time—they turn slowly—usually grind down those who get themselves into wrong places.

TAPS AND THEN—LIGHT.

Perhaps it was just an imagination of a wobbly old brain that was inspired to a little extra activity because of fever, but the vision was pretty enough to pass along. It may have some truth, and, if so, is certainly worth repeating.

While thinking rather seriously on certain personal problems and wondering what the future may bring; wondering, indeed, if the hope which seems to linger within the heart will be fulfilled; there came before my eyes a brief but beautiful picture.

It was a twilight scene, outdoors. Two men dressed in military uniform stood quietly; one of them with book in hand. Before them was a mound of flowers and around about was quiet and perfect peace. No word was spoken, but one was conscious that Taps was being sounded for some human person. For one brief passing moment this picture tarried and then it all faded out into a beautiful white light. I was not asleep, though my eyes were closed.

When the last round-up comes and Taps are sounded, it will be quite all right provided there is a halo of white light to follow the dark. I do not know what the picture may mean to me or to any who may read this; I do not know what life or death may bring; but I do believe that whatever may come, beyond the shadows is a shining light. Into that shining light, let us go.

JESUS IN POETRY.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR MAR. 4, 1934.
(Rev. 5:11-14.)

Planning This Meeting.

The purpose may be to help some young people to see Jesus more clearly than they ever have before, and this purpose should guide the leader in the selection of poems, and also in the choice of those who will read and interpret them.

Ask the young people to bring a favorite poem about Jesus, telling why this poem appeals to him. A collection of these poems, arranged in book form might be helpful to some shut-in.

Arrange the room with dim lights, candles, with a picture of Jesus placed before you during the meeting.

The Meeting.

"The Magnificat" (Luke 1:46-55).

1. The Babe of Bethlehem. Hymn, "Silent Night." (Luke 2:11.)

The Star of Love shines in the East
Tonight, as in the long ago,
To bless the greatest and the least
Who look toward its radiant glow.
Again we hear the angels sing
In sweetest message ever heard,
Faith, hope, and joy around it cling,
We cherish every precious word.

And on the eve of that glad day
When Christ, our Saviour, came to earth,
The grace divine we humbly pray
To grant anew his gift of worth,
More deeply lay on heart and mind
The great commission that he gave—
Service of life to all mankind
The nations through his name to save.
—Ina Duley Ogdon.

2. The Lad of Nazareth. Hymn, "O, Master Workman of the Race." (Luke 2:52.)

FIDELITY.

O Son of Man, thou madest known,
Through quiet work in shop and home,
The sacredness of common things,
The chance of life that each day brings.

O Workman true, may we fulfill
In daily life thy Father's will;
In duty's call, thy call we hear
To fuller life, through work sincere.

Thou Master Workman, grant us grace
The challenge of our tasks to face;
By loyal scorn of second best,
By effort true, to meet each test.

And thus we pray in deed and word,
Thy kingdom come on earth, O Lord!
In work that gives effect to prayer
Thy purpose for thy world we share.
—Milton S. Littlefield.

3. The Man Jesus. Hymn, "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee." (Mark 1:36-38; 2:1, 2.)

OUT OF WORK.

If Christ the Carpenter were here
With feelings such as men,
Yet with no sin, would he, too, fear
When winter comes again?

Would he know fear for Mary's health
When all their food was spent,
And she was worried since they could
Not pay for coal and rent?

Or, if he went from door to door
With chairs that he had made,
Would our housewives refuse with scorn
His meager stock in trade.

And when he could not earn his bread,
Too proud for charity;
Would he be starved in plenty's midst,
Or charged with vagrancy?

Would he be brave, while asking work,
With hungry, frozen breath;
If Christ should live in our town
Instead of Nazareth?

—Elizabeth Garbutt, in The New Outlook.

4. Jesus, the Saviour Who Calls Us Today. Hymn, "Jesus Calls Us." (John 21:15-17; 21, 22.)

It is in Christ that I am living;
Therefore, I am constrained to be loving.
Because I am living, and loving,
I, therefore, must give myself to lifting.
But my lifting
Can be effective only when I am higher up
Than is the one whom I would lift.
So, it is only Christ above me,
Living in me,
Living in me, and loving me,
Also lifting me,
That makes possible for him and for others—
My Living and Loving and Lifting.
—W. C. Loucks.

Closing Thought.

Make of my heart an Upper Room, I pray,
Swept clean of pride, let self be but a door,
Through which young lives may come to thee this day.
Speak through my voice that they may hear thine own,
Shine through my life in beauty and in truth,
That they may see the comrade Christ alone.
And in the glad impulsiveness of youth
Rise up as did those fisher lads of thine
Who left their boats and nets to follow thee.
So may they walk beside thee, these of mine,
Who out of all the world, thou gavest me.
—Molly Andrews Haley.

Response.

Into my heart,
Into my heart,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus!
Come in today,
Come in to stay,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus!

(Adapted from The Sunday School Herald.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

THE TWELVE SENT FORTH.

LESSON VIII—FEBRUARY 25, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into the harvest."—Matt. 9:37, 38.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 9:35-11:1.

Teaching—Preaching—Healing.

We call him "Teacher," and we do well, for he is THE TEACHER. Never man taught like he taught. Sound pedagogy cannot go either beyond or beneath his principles of teaching. His sincerity, his simplicity, his freshness, his ability to put abstract principles into symbols and concrete images, his use of what is called "the point of contact" in teaching, his use of illustrations, his originality—these and other factors made Jesus a great Teacher. And his friendliness and his winsomeness made the common people hear him gladly.

Jesus was also a preacher. He was THE PREACHER. In Jesus' preaching and practice, precept and example were one. He came preaching. There was a note of reality and authority in his preaching, a spiritual urge and appeal, a simplicity and a power of clearness and yet a profundity, that made him the Dean of all Preachers for all time. His theme and his message was "the Gospel of the Kingdom," the Good News. The Gospel is not good advice, it is good news, good news about God, about the worth of the common man, about a Saviour, about the glory of the life that now is, and the certainty of one which is to come. Jesus not only preached the good news: he was the Good News.

And Jesus was a healer. "Healing every sickness and every disease among the people." The church has too often overlooked this phase of the Master's ministry. And because it has neglected it, a great many people have gone off to other isms and cults which give some place to it in their programs. Of course, God uses physicians and surgeons and natural forces and agencies in healing, but he also heals by the direct touch. There are hundreds of people who are sane and dependable who can bear testimony to God's healing touch. Dr. E. Stanley Jones gave a striking personal testimony to this effect during his recent visit to Norfolk. Christ can heal body, mind and spirit, and by the direct touch.

Compassion.

The word means to feel with or to suffer with. When Christ saw the multitudes, he had compassion on them. He entered sympathetically and vicariously into their lives and into their experiences. He cared for them; that is the heart of the matter. One trouble with so many modern preachers and teachers and church members is that we do not care enough for folks. We do not love folks. We talk about loving humanity, but we do not love human beings as individuals. We are more concerned about programs than about personalities. Our world needs a compassion for folks, a concern for people, a care for others.

A Great Harvest—Few Harvesters.

"The harvest is truly plenteous, but the laborers are few." As Jesus looked out upon the multitudes he saw their hunger and their unexpressed longing. If only he could have multiplied himself, or had enough workers to enter into that great opportunity. But then as now there were not enough workers. The laborers were, and are, comparatively speaking, few.

When one thinks of the large opportunities at home, and the larger opportunities abroad, he sees how up-to-date Jesus' words are.

Jesus' remedy for the situation is not exactly the one which we always use. We try to have a drive from without. Christ suggests that we pray the Lord of the harvest that he would put on a drive from within. Dr. Staley used to say that a man ought not to go into the ministry if he could stay out of it. His meaning is, or ought to be clear. A man ought to have an impelling urge from within as a factor in Christian work. One wonders if the church prayed more if there would not be more workers called into the harvest fields.

These Twelve.

What a motley group they were! How varied in temperament and disposition! How unpromising from the human standpoint! Peter, ardent, impulsive, uncertain, now good, now bad, but always intense; Thomas, melancholy, prosaic, unimaginative, lacking in vision and enthusiasm; John, sometimes pictured as gentle, quiet, tender, almost effeminate, but according to the Scripture also hot and terrible in temperament, bigoted, narrow, self-confident, ambitious, bold; James, quiet, unassuming, self-effacing; Matthew, a hard-headed business man, a publican, a renegade Jew; Judas Iscariot, two-faced, greedy, mercenary, traitorous; Andrew, and Thaddeus, and Simon, the Zealot, a revolutionist, hot-headed—what a group they were! What a Master Jesus was that he could be Master of these men! What a patience he had that he could bear with them! What a spiritual power he had that he could transform their lives! These twelve show that in the fellowship and service of the Son of Man. The only test of discipleship is the one he named: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another."

Jesus called these men "that they might be with him and that he might send them forth. He wanted them to learn of him and then to go out for him. The greatest work which Jesus did was the "training of these twelve."

"He gave them power." He called them to difficult tasks, tasks far beyond their powers. But as they accepted his challenge, he gave them power equal to their tasks. When Christ calls, he equips.

"Go not into the way of the Gentiles." It was not narrowness on Jesus' part. The Gospel must first go to the Jews. The middle wall of partition had not been broken down. The task was adapted to their present preparation. They were not prepared to go to the Gentiles. God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.

"He that receiveth you, receiveth me, and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me." If we go in Christ's name, he goes with us. God and Christ go with the one who attempts to do what the Holy Spirit tells us to do.

NOTICE.

I am selling Magazine subscriptions "to help along," and will appreciate handling your RENEWALS. Do any of your Magazines expire soon? If so, you will receive Special Renewal Offer from publishers. I not only meet their offers, but allow 10 per cent further discount from any offer. Please send me your Renewals through my Agency. Here are a few of my Special Offers (New or Renewal): American or Good Housekeeping, $2.25 each; McCall's, Pictorial, Woman's Home Companion, Ladies' Home Journal, 75c each per year; Christian Herald, $1.00 per year. These Specials are net.

J. EDWIN HARRIS.

Suffolk, Va.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 3/4 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

GOOD THOUGHTS YIELD GOOD RESULTS.

"Finally brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."—Phil. 4:8.

"It is in your power to make this day one of the best and brightest of days. Begin with an inspiring thought and a deep desire to make the most of your present opportunities. As you sow good thoughts you will reap good results. Open the windows of your mind and let in the sunshine of good cheer, optimism, and generous good will. A right mental attitude will help you and others with whom you come in contact to live well and happily. Make this day bright and productive by filling it with ambitious and purposeful work. Look only for the good and you will find the good. The mental power which you now possess will grow still greater in the process of right use, and each day be brighter and brighter than ever before."—GRENVILLE KLEISER.

Prayer—Dear Father, according to our thinking so shall we direct our lives. Keep thou before us right thoughts, thy thoughts, and thine shall we be forever.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE CURE OF ILLS.

"Ye will not come to me that ye might have life."—Jno. 5:40.

"I am the way, the truth, and the life."—Jno. 14:6.

In December's Forum there was a story of a man who learned how to "lay down his load." Once a devout Christian, but war-torn, he came to hate everything religious. Everywhere, he sought something to satisfy his soul, but to no avail. Finally, in desperation, he carved upon a piece of wood the image of what he chose to call his "God." Then he knelt down before this image and prayed, "O God, help me; O God, make me whole." Immediately something that was tight in him began to loosen, deliverance began in his soul, and there he laid down his load.

The point is, there is no salvation for anyone until that one realizes his helplessness, his dependence upon God, and, like the sinner whom Jesus mentioned as praying, "Lord, have mercy upon me a sinner," so we all must realize our limitations, and cry out:

"O Lord, help me;
O Lord, heal me;
O Lord, make me whole."—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE PURE IN HEART.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

Who are "the pure in heart?" Perhaps you think it is one who lives the sinless life. Such shall indeed see God. But does that give you your hope? How many are sinless? Is it not true that the more of the light of Jesus there is turned upon us, the more we see things that are wrong about ourselves, the greater the distance seems to perfection, and the more unworthy our souls seem to be, so that we feel like falling down and crying, "Lord, have mercy on me a sinner."

It only seems that way. His light only reveals our shortcomings. If we can live in his light, we will clean up, and thus come closer to him.

What does "the pure in heart" mean? It means getting rid of our deceit, our hypocrisy, our selfishness, and living with an eye of singleness to God's glory, for we are made—created—for his glory.

Prayer—O Lord, help us; O Lord, make us pure; O Lord, make us whole; in Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE HEALING OF THE NATIONS.

"The leaves of the trees were for the healing of the nations."—Rev. 22:2.

There are those who believe that a new order of things will set our country right. There are those who believe that Communism will be just the thing to save our country. There are those who believe that Socialism will save the people. There are those who believe that President Roosevelt will save the country. We are trusting the C. C. C., the C. W. A., P. W. A., and all the other methods of employment now operating. All of these have their value and may make things better, but none of them will save us and give us recovery. The healing of the nation lies in our limitations. We are a proud people and pride is a state of self-sufficiency, meaning, "I don't need God." We are dependent upon God, and we must realize it. Recovery lies in this realization, and actually casting our all on him. When this is done, recovery begins, and it grows as we continue to trust him. The "leaves of the trees," in God's Word, represent the life of God. So long as we believe in our own devices, we are lost. We must have the life of God.

Prayer—O Lord, help us; O Lord, heal us; O Lord, give us thy everlasting life and make us whole.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

ADMIRAL BYRD'S QUESTION, "WHERE CAN WE MOOR?"

"God is my record . . . and this I pray . . . that ye may abound in all judgment; that ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offense till the day of Christ."—Phil. 1:10.

"Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world."—I. Jno. 4:1. (Read I. Jno. 4.)

There are so many ways of living, so many teachings, so many conceptions of God, so many conflicts of thought, and all those things change so rapidly that it is very difficult to decide what is right in the sight of God, and in the maze of it all we overlook the "unity of the life of faith." Like Byrd in the Antarctic, trying to get a mooring and a fast hold, every time he lands, the ice sluffs away and either leaves him stranded or again adrift in the bay with nowhere to land. How helpless!

We cannot tie to the things of this world and be secure; everything seems to be changing and passing away. Do you feel that way?

If so, the following lines may help:

There is a land that is fairer than day;
And by faith we can see it afar;
For the Father waits over the way
To prepare us a dwelling place there.

Looking back over the past we see that all generations have found Jesus the satisfaction of their deepest needs and have gotten from him inspiration for their finest achievements. This is something we can tie our ship of life to, and it will justify any trust we will put in it. It is solid rock and its securing is fast—it will not let us go.

Again we know things which have proven their value throughout the ages, and we swear by them. Has not Christ and Christianity presented us with permanent spiritual significance? If so, tie up to him!

We know persons whose character outlasts their lives, leaving humanity the permanent possession of an eternal guidance to high and holy things. Is not the character of Christ more than these? Is he not the author of these? We tie to such persons, why shouldn't we tie up to Christ?

To "commit our way unto the Lord," will bring the following to pass: a sense of true value of life and a sense of the unfailing Christ; a vision of God and his cleansing of the soul; a consciousness of the sinfulness of sin and a hate for all that is wrong—yea, and much more of these—the ability to do good all along the way of life.

Prayer—O Lord, help us; O Lord, heal us; O Lord, make us whole.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

REMBRANDT'S "BANKRUPTCY."

"In this year of jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession."—Read Lev. 25:8-17.

Van Loon, author and journalist, being of Dutch descent, has been worried over the fact that the famous Dutch painter, Rembrandt, was declared a bankrupt thirteen years before he died, and at his death was heavily in debt. He died in 1669, but Van Loon has been trying through the Dutch law courts to remove the stigma of bankruptcy at this late day. The courts have refused to act.

Mr. Van Loon's motive is praiseworthy, but his effort was entirely unnecessary. Fame such as Rembrandt's genius has won is like the Jewish year of jubilee, erasing all debts and restoring the status quo.

We do not sufficiently honor the world's great men of the past, and certainly we do not begin to honor sufficiently the men and women of genius who are living with us and blessing us today.

Prayer—Thou, O God, hast no bankruptcy decree for any of thy faithful servants. Here in this world thy favor shines upon them, and through the endless years.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

LIVE WIRES.

"Handle not, nor taste, nor touch."—Read Col. 2:16-23.

Two workmen in Pennsylvania, the other day, were on a swinging platform engaged in a building operation when the wind drove their platform against a live wire carrying 33,000 volts of electricity, and both the unfortunate men were killed.

There are live wires also in the spiritual world, wires carrying deadly currents of doubt, of fear, of greed, of envy, of jealousy, of lust, and many other evil passions. Just a touch is often enough to fire us with the fatal passion or burn our souls to death. "Touch not, taste not, handle not"—the wise old motto was never more needed than today.

Prayer—Be eyes to our soul, O thou Holy Spirit. Show us the lurking sin, the devil's fire. May we make no experiments with wrong-doing.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

CHARACTERISTICS OF TRUE GREATNESS.

By REV. J. E. MCCAULEY.

Scripture References: Matt. 4:17-25; 28:30; 28:19; Luke 10:1.

Subject: "What Are the Characteristics of True Church Greatness?"

Is wealth the norm of a church's greatness? It may, or it may not be; for money may make or it may break. Wealth will help to develop greatness if it is consecrated to and used for God. But it will destroy the very soul of an individual and even the church itself if used only for prestige and power.

Are the characteristics of her greatness to be found in the number that compose the church? Here, again, it may or may not be. It is one of the marks of success and greatness when the church is functioning according to her numerical strength. The small church may be as great in fulfilling its mission as the larger one.

Is the greatness of a church to be determined by its creed or controlling principles? Again, we may answer this question either in the affirmative or in the negative. I challenge any denomination to set forth a more comprehensive, yet a more liberal document than that which is contained in the government and principles of the Christian Church. So thorough are the five cardinal principles of our church that the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America adopted three out of the five unaltered and unchanged as a basis of union of the Protestant Churches. Yet we have not grown very fast. What, then, is our need if we are to attain true greatness as a church? What are to be our characteristics? It shall be my purpose to point out three chief ideas which are contained in these passages of Scripture.

I. The Church Must Win to Christ.

I conceive this to be the foundation of Christ's ministry. Without helpers we cannot carry on his earthly program. Neither can the church carry on without new strength being added to her forces. Luke 19:10: "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." According to Matthew, Jesus preached his first sermon, after which he walked by the Sea of Galilee. Seeing two brothers fishing, we hear him say to them: "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men. And they straightway left their nets, and followed him." Later, he called James and John. One by one he called the other disciples until he had the twelve with him. They were his regular students. They followed him to learn as well as to help. I am glad that the Master called others into his fold while here in person. One by one he called men and women unto him. He won Mary Magdalene, the woman at the well, Nicodemus, Zaccheus, and multitudes of others. The Master did not wait for people to drop in at his services or come to a meeting. He sought them and won them. This is the mission of the church today. No church can ever become great if it fails in this. The church is Christ's agency on earth today to win lost souls to him.

II. We Are to Train Them for Christ.

It was not enough for Christ to call his followers. He trained them for a definite work. Immediately after Matthew tells of Jesus' calling his disciples, in chapter four, he tells of the lessons he taught them by the Sermon on the Mount. In these three chapters he gave his disciples enough philosophy, theology and practical ideas for Christian living to occupy the minds of disciples and preachers from then until time shall be no more.

In Matt. 11:28-30, Jesus invites all men everywhere to come to him and learn of him. Thus we see the process of building them up in Christ.

It is the duty of the church to teach its people. It is the duty of the Christian home, the Sunday School and the church to carry on what Christ began. But there is a limit to these sacred organizations, therefore, we have our church college. It is the duty of that institution to carry to completion and supplement what our homes and churches cannot do.

Christian education is essential if our nation, state and church are to serve. This Christian training is not given in all institutions of the land. When Clarence Darrow, the notorious atheist and equally notorious criminal lawyer, stood before the judge and jury and made his celebrated defense of young Leopold and Loeb, the brilliant but brutal murderers of the Franks boy, he said:

"Your honor, if these boys are guilty, where did they get the philosophy which in their minds seems to justify their crime? Your honor, it does not meet with my ideas of justice to hang a nineteen-year-old boy for a philosophy of life which has been taught for the last twenty-five years in practically all the great universities of this land."

When you send your children from under the shadow of your home and church into our denominational college, I know you are not sending them into an environment that will produce such an effect as Mr. Darrow accuses the universities of wielding. Elon has a Christian faculty. They are interested in the moral and spiritual welfare as well as the mental growth. The faculty is composed of men and women who are willing to invest their lives for a cause. I thank God for that investment; it has borne fruit. The record of the past forty-four years proves this. Recently, I studied her past history. I have made inquiries concerning the student life of our college. Out of the number who have been graduated from Elon, only three that I have been able to find left any trace of having been guilty of misdemeanor, subject to punishment by law. But not one of her graduates has been committed to a penal institution.

Elon was one of, if not the first, co-educational institutions in the South. Since the first year of its history, young men and women have been uniting in marriage. From all the couples who met their mates at Elon and married, there has been but one divorce.

Many young men and women have entered Elon who did not profess any belief in Christ or belong to any church, but only one has ever gone out as a graduate without professing to be a follower of Christ and being united with some church. Such a record is worthy of the pride and support of every member of the Christian Church.

III. Send Out for Christ.

Men and women trained in an institution such as we have can be sent out for Christ. Matt. 28:19: "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." Until a man has been taught, he cannot teach. Our homes and churches may be the beginners' department of this Christian training, but our college does for us what we ourselves cannot do for our children. Often times they inculcate the spirit to go out for Christ.

It is true that many of the members of the Christian Church have never been registered in the school, but practically every member has felt the influence through the pastor or teachers. It might be interesting to you to know that one-third of the teachers in your Sunday School this morning were Elon graduates. About ten or twelve per cent of her graduates are full-time religious workers. Elon has sent her students as preachers over practically the whole of the United States and missionaries into many foreign lands. Christian business men and women, home makers, statesmen, high school, college and university professors are all carrying the Gospel of Christ in the various walks of life.

We can win, we can build up, and we can send out for Christ, if you and I will work together, pray together, and give for the cause that is so worthy. We cannot afford to leave off any of these enterprises. For true greatness consists in each phase. What has been so nobly done in the past, I believe, will move on to a greater glory in the future if we will give her a chance.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Measles are still holding onto our family of children. I feel sure that some who have had measles will never have them again. They had more than their share. I am glad to say that while we have had two cases of pneumonia, we have had no whooping cough. We grown people may think that children are carefree, and have no troubles; but we are badly mistaken. They have troubles as large to them as grown people have. Think what a little child has to face as it begins the journey of life! Big giants, like measles, mumps, whooping cough, chickenpox, smallpox, diphtheria and many other things that come to a child, mostly in its young and tender years.

These troubles most surely come to every child and in most cases before they reach maturity. Some escape, but few. When these children's diseases hit an orphanage family, you can count on most of the children having them. I heard a lady, who was on a Conference program to speak on the last day when most of the delegates had gone, say: "Why does a Conference have a last day, anyway?" We might ask ourselves the question, "Why do children have to have these diseases, anyway?" They are the children's troubles and most of them happen. Not like older people's troubles, the most of them don't happen. I was in a man's office sometime ago, and he had a motto hanging on the wall that read something like this: "I am growing old and feeble, and have had many troubles, but the most of them never happened." Some of our troubles do happen, but most of them don't. Why worry about crossing a bridge before we get to it? The crossing may be easy and pleasant!

We planted a large oat crop last fall, and expected to make a thousand bushels. They were looking fine when zero weather struck them. It looks very much like they are killed. Why worry now? They may come out and make a good yield yet. If they are killed, worry will not bring them to life.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY 22, 1934.

Brought forward ..... $ 1,048.86

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Greensboro, Palm Street .....$ 6.00
Hopedale ..... 2.57
New Lebanon ..... 5.90
14.47

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Shallow Well .....$ 2.00
Piney Plains ..... 3.50
Wentworth ..... 4.40
Clayton ..... 1.00
Turner's Chapel ..... .89
11.79

Western North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Ridge .....$ 1.50
Burlington ..... 28.60
Flint Hill ..... .37
Seagrove ..... 2.72
33.19

Eastern Virginia Conference:
Wakefield .....$ 1.74
First, Richmond ..... 5.28
Franklin ..... 10.00
Holland ..... 5.00
First, Portsmouth ..... 6.65
28.67

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Leaksville .....	$ 1.14
Mt. Olivet (G) .....	3.07	4.21
Special Offerings.
Mrs. Dalton, support children....	$ 12.50
Mrs. L. E. Carlton, Paces, Va., fruits for sick children .....	5.00	17.50
Total for the week.....	$ 109.83
Grand total .....	$ 1,158.69

THE BIBLE.

Uprooter of sin.
Begetter of life.
Revealer of God.
Light of intellect.
Fashioner of law.
Guide of history.
Foe of superstition.
Comfort in sorrow.
Enemy of oppression.
Strength in weakness.
Star of death's night.
Promise of the future.
Pathway in perplexity.
Escape from temptation.
Illuminator of darkness.
Secret of national progress.
Charter of all true liberty.
Forerunner of civilization.
Steadier in the day of power.
Ornament and mainspring of literature.
Moulder of institutions and governments.
Regulator of all high and worthy standards.
Answer to the deepest hungerings of the heart.
—Selected.

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.
New Testament Palestine. — Old Testament Palestine. — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

Eifers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $1.50
Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $2.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Naz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Ca-pér-na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zab'u-lon and Nep'h'ta-lim:
14 That it might be fulfilled

A. D. 31. 934 CHAPTER 5.

3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.

CHAP. 4. AND seeing the multitudes; he went up into a moun-

Isa. 9, 1, 2. Luke 2, 32. Mark 1, 14.

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... $4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers..... 4.75

THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION

With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... 7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding..... 8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 The land of Zab'u-lon, and the land of Nep'h'ta-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gen'tiles;

A. D. 31. 2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

3 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

Is. 9, 1, 2. Luke 2, 32. Mark 1, 14.

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker.. $5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament. Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type..... 6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above..... 10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

MARRIAGES

BURGESS—COTTEN.

On Saturday, February 10, 1934, at 7 P. M., at Dendron, Va., Mr. Roy E. Burgess, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Naomi Estelle Cotten were united in marriage by the writer. The home of the bride was decorated for the occasion. The wedding music was rendered by Miss Irene Cotten, and just before the ceremony Miss Frances Cotten sang, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." The Christian Church ring ceremony was used. Members of the immediate families and a few friends were present.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Burgess, of Washington, D. C. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cotten, of Dendron, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgess left immediately after the ceremony. They will make their home in Washington, D. C.

W. D. HARWARD.

WILKINS—BARRETT.

On the afternoon of December 28, 1933, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Barrett, Dendron, Va., their daughter, Iola Mae, was united in marriage to Mr. James Leroy Wilkins, of Colonial Beach, Va. The ceremony was performed by the writer in the presence of a few relatives and friends.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for an auto trip through the mountains of Virginia. They will make their home at Colonial Beach, where the groom is engaged in the mercantile business. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

W. D. HARWARD.

OBITUARIES

HOLT.

Mr. Lewis Henry Holt, born June 26, 1859, died February 2, 1934, age 74 years, 7 months and 6 days.

On December 27, 1887, he was married to Miss Kate Stockard. To this union three children were born: Thomas Richard (deceased), Daniel Cicero, of Liberty, N. C., and Romeo Lambert, of Akron, Ohio.

Mr. Holt is survived by his second wife, who was Miss Sallie Jane Garrett, two sons, nine grandchildren, and one half-brother, Mr. A. C. Holt, of Greensboro, N. C., and a host of relatives and friends who mourn his passing.

Mr. Holt had served twenty-three terms as county surveyor of Alamance County. He was a careful, accurate worker, hailing from a pioneer family who were leaders in civic as well as religious progress.

Mr. Holt united with Providence Memorial Church in early manhood and has since been faithful in attendance and support of the church. He has served as Sunday School Superintendent and at the time of his death was senior deacon. A quiet, unassuming man of integrity and sincerity has passed to his reward.

The burial service was held from Providence Memorial Christian Church, Graham, N. C., Sunday afternoon, February 3rd, with the writer in charge, assisted by Rev. J. U. Fogleman. Interment was in the Providence burial plot in Graham.

May God richly bless and comfort the bereaved family.

G. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

RESOLUTIONS ON THE DEATH OF REV. JOS. E. EACH, THORSBY, ALA.

Whereas, our beloved pastor, Rev. Joseph E. Each, has been called from us to the world unseen; we miss him sorely, and shall miss him; Therefore, be it resolved:

That we put on record our keen sense of a great loss. We shall cherish the memory of our pastor as among the most precious of our possessions. We desire, so far as we can, to carry on in his spirit the work which he has laid down.

And what has been his spirit? Let us remind ourselves of his cheerfulness, always, his cordiality, his diligence, his promptness, his orderliness, the neatness of his body, mind and soul, his devotion to his work, to his people, to his God, his sympathy with all the sick, the suffering, the needy; his love of his church and of the world for which his Master died, his desire to bear his full part of the fight against war and ignorance and poverty. Let us not forget his great good humor as shown in his inexhaustible fund of stories, always fresh, apt, witty, clean, pointed, but with never a sting. Let us have his spirit, or rather let us aim to honor his memory by having in ourselves the spirit of Christ, even as our beloved pastor had that spirit.

Finally, let us live in peace, which we believe was ever his hope, that when our earthly life has ended, for us also the gates of heaven shall open wide, and we, without one missing, shall meet again the loved ones whom now we miss so sorely, and the Lord who has been and is our light and our salvation.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon our church records, that a copy of them be furnished to the be-

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. .... Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. .... Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D. .... Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. .... Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D. .... Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D. .... Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE .... Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year ..... $2.00
- Six Months ..... 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

received family of our Brother Each, and that copies be furnished to our county papers and to "The Christian Sun."

Done on the 4th day of February, by the Committee of the United Protestant Church (Congregational).

- C. M. WILLIAMS,
  - MARIAN FAIRBANK,
  - E. W. BUTLER.
- Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Again the Ladies' Benevolent and Social Union of the Suffolk Christian Church has been called upon to drop from its roll the name of one of its members. In the passing from time to the life beyond of our friend and co-worker, Mrs. Fannie Brothers Bruce, we are again reminded of the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death.

Mrs. Bruce was a member of this organization for more than forty years, and was active in the work until ill health prevented several months ago.

Her faithful attendance at the meetings of the Union and her willingness always to lend a helping hand whenever an opportunity presented itself will be missed, but the will of God who ruleth over all must be obeyed.

Resolved, therefore, That we humbly submit to his will in this as in all things.

That we seek to emulate all that was good in the life of our departed friend.

That we do our part to carry forward the work of the organization in a manner wholly acceptable unto God until we, too, are called to answer the final summons.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the son and daughter of Mrs. Bruce, a copy placed on the records of the Ladies' Benevolent and Social Union and a copy be published in "The Christian Sun."

- JULIA A. BRINKLEY,
  - MRS. W. M. BALLARD,
  - MRS. HERSEY WOODWARD,
- Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

On January 21st, the angel of death again visited our church and took one of our most faithful members, Bro. France M. Farrell. He was 82 years of age.

Surviving him are a wife and four children. Bro. Farrell had been a member of Hank's Chapel Christian Church for many years, and was superintendent of the Sunday School for several years. He was a faithful worker and helper in the church.

While we, the members of Hank's Chapel Church, shall sadly miss him from our midst, yet we must bow in humble submission to the will of him who makes no mistakes. Therefore, be it resolved:

- 1. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and pray God's blessings upon them.

2. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to "The Christian Sun," and a copy be placed on the church minutes.

- ELSIE WHITE,
  - RALPH RIDDLE,
  - CLAYTON FARRELL,
- Committee.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN

JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES

LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY

CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1934.

NUMBER 9.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Rev F C Lester
505 S. Main St.

Senate Denies Cash Bonus Payment.—

With a certainty of presidential veto staring in the face, the movement to pay the veterans' bonus in cash at this time was voted down in the Senate on last Tuesday. A vote is to be taken on the bonus by the House on March 12th.

Suicides Decrease.—

For the first time since 1925 records for 1933 show a decrease in the number of suicides. Dr. Louis Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, says that "although the rising mortality from suicide extended throughout the very heights of the country's prosperity, as well as during most of the depression, it is significant that the change came at the very time when definite improvement in economic conditions became evident." The drop in the death rate due to suicide was 6.5 per cent in the year that has just passed.

Child Labor Amendment Rejected.—

On Tuesday of this week the Virginia Senate, by a vote of 30 to 9, rejected the so-called "child-labor" amendment to the Federal Constitution. In 1926, the proposal met a similar fate before the General Assembly. Although this amendment was submitted to the States for approval many years ago, it has been tied up in the Roosevelt program, and its rejection comes as a blow at the Administration. If adopted, it would give the Federal Government almost unqualified control of the labor activities of all persons under the age of eighteen years.

Dr. Peter Ainslie Passes Away.—

The Christian world grieves because of the passing away this week of Dr. Peter Ainslie, a native of Virginia, but for over forty years pastor of the Christian Temple (Disciple), Baltimore Maryland. Dr. Ainslie was only 66 years of age, but had undergone two operations at a Baltimore hospital since the first of the year. He was internationally known as a minister, lecturer, and for his work in behalf of Christian unity. He was also an active worker in behalf of world peace, and was for many years a trustee of the Church Peace Union which was founded by the late Andrew Carnegie. He was at one time the president of the national convention of the Disciples of Christ.

An "Internship" for Priests.—

A three-year "internship" for young deacons in the Protestant Episcopal Church before their ordination to the priesthood, as a means of eliminating clergy unemployment, is recommended by The Living Christ, a weekly periodical of that denomination. The young deacon would not be permitted to marry during these three years except with the express permission of the Bishop, on penalty of suspension or deposition. During the three years the deacon would be under the direct supervision of the Bishop. The present minimum length of the diaconate is six months. During this period of "internship" the deacon would be paid a small sum by the diocese, and would be available for sending into any part of the diocese to help out in establishing parishes, building up new or struggling missions, working in slums and institutions in large cities, and gaining experience in general.—Methodist-Protestant Recorder.

Dickens' "The Life of Our Lord."—

Several weeks ago cables sent around the world the news of the purchase by The London Daily Mail of the publication rights to a story written by Charles Dickens. It was "The Life of Our Lord," a story not written for publication but that his children might have an intimate knowledge of his belief in his Lord Jesus. Not until the last surviving child had died could it be given to the public under the will of the author's sister-in-law, and Sir Henry Fielding Dickens to whom she had bequeathed it died last December. It was then announced that Sir Henry's widow had decided to offer the manuscript for publication. The price paid for the publication rights was the unprecedented sum of $15.00 a word, and this did not include title to the original manuscript. The first five pages of "Pickwick Papers" brought $37,500, and what price the manuscript of "The Life of Our Lord" would bring, one would hardly hazard a guess.

Palestine Today.—

It is often stated that the depression has not reached Palestine. A million dollar Y. M. C. A. in Jerusalem was dedicated during the Easter season. Jerusalem now has paved streets, postal delivery, British police, traffic officers and a few buildings with central heat. The Iraq Petroleum Company is rapidly laying its pipes from ancient Ninevah across the desert to modern Haifa on the Mediterranean. Ten thousand men are at work and are receiving large wages. A splendid harbor at Haifa is nearly completed. A recent census of Palestine reveals that whereas Canada, during the years 1906-1911, added to her population at the rate of 298 per 10,000 every year, Palestine surpassed it with an annual increase of 354 per 10,000. The recent census recorded a population of 1,035,821. Of these, 759,712 are Moslems, 174,610 Jews, and 91,398 Christians. The ancient sect of the Samaritans now numbers 182, an increase of 30 since 1922. Since 1922 the urban population of Jerusalem has increased by 44 per cent, Jaffa by 59 per cent, Haifa by 104 per cent, Tel Aviv by 202 per cent.—Zwemer, in The Presbyterian.

Virginia Racing Bill Killed.—

The Racing Bill sponsored in the Virginia House of Delegates by Wilbur C. Hall of Loudoun County and successfully piloted by him through the lower branch of the government, met with an absolute defeat at the hands of the Senate Finance Committee. Hall appeared before the committee and made a spirited defense of his "hobby" horse, but without avail. In the course of his speech he vehemently denied the charge that the bill of which he was the author would bring "shame and disgrace" on Virginia, citing the fact that pictures of races elsewhere "show that such eminent persons as Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, President Roosevelt and the King of England patronize them." Among the members of the opposition were those who admitted that they were willing to encourage the breeding of thoroughbred horses and even enjoyed a race, but insisted that the Hall measures were not racing bills but gambling bills. The Richmond Times Dispatch, which has been backing the bills, concedes that "the evangelicals walked off with the honors and spoils of the day. Rarely, even in the last quarter century, have they been so completely victorious." The committee vote on the bills was 14 to 0 to indefinitely postpone their consideration.

Weeps Tears of Heavy Water.—

Some time ago mention was made on this page of a new kind of water, worth little to the average man as yet, but valued by scientists far beyond its weight in gold. Now comes the startling discovery that what science had only found recently was known to nature for these many years. It was found that the Weeping Willow's tears are made of "heavy water." Our informer tells us that "the good old tree has been doing unbeknownst for millions of years, the thing which is the latest and greatest sensation of science—producing heavy water." In describing the process of its production, it continues: "The willow's roots draw in ordinary water. In the process of growing, the tree breaks this water into its hydrogen and oxygen atoms. In the hydrogen one atom out of every 5,000 is twice normal weight. These rare heavy hydrogen atoms the tree seizes upon by synthesis to recombine the atoms into water again." The chemical discovery of "heavy water," as has already been stated here was considered one of the most important of modern scientific discoveries. With it an inconceivably vast number of entirely new chemical products can be made. Some idea of the number can be gathered from the fact that there are listed in present-day text books approximately 300,000 compounds of hydrogen. This discovery theoretically doubles the present number.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

We learn with regret of the death of Deacon M. W. Hall of Hickory, Virginia, father of Dr. Sidney B. Hall, Superintendent of Public Instruction of Virginia.

The managing editor is glad that THE SUN's editor has been able for the past several years to enjoy a short visit to the land of sunshine and flowers. He cannot refrain uttering a sigh of relief, however, when he (the editor) gets back on his job. It's most too much for one to try and handle.

We would call attention to an article from the Methodist Protestant-Recorder reprinted in this issue of THE SUN. There are some facts and suggestions in it which would help greatly toward not only increasing the number of subscriptions to this paper, but would incidentally secure better support for every institution of our church.

"I would rather do without one meal a day than do without my SUN," writes Bro. M. W. Hollowell of Portsmouth, Va. Brother Hollowell proves that he means this by having taken his church paper for fifty-five years. He also offers to make the same proposition to our ministers that Bro. M. J. W. White made last month. It is a pity that some minister will not take them up on it.

We are sorry to learn that Bro. E. W. Neville of Chapel Hill, N. C., has had to break his nearly a quarter of a century's uninterrupted attendance at all of his church's Sunday and business sessions. He has been compelled to be absent for six Sundays in succession because of an operation at the Watts Hospital, Durham, N. C. Our readers will be glad to know that this faithful brother is improving, and we hope may soon be back in his accustomed place.

The editor of this paper is unutterably grateful for the privilege of spending four weeks in good and glorious Florida sunshine. He has discovered that sunshine is as essential to his life and well being as food or clothing, and Florida is most accessible and most resourceful when it comes to abundant sunshine at least cost. For each week of sunshine, fruit and vegetables, he gained two pounds of good flesh for his frame and rejoices with a new lease on strength for inviting tasks and engaging labors. We wish everybody in the world could go to Florida for awhile in winter, for when God created Florida, He made a contribution to the welfare and happiness of the nation and the world.

Comes this distressing item from the pen of our good friend, Dr. J. T. Clack, of Abanda, Ala., under date of February 24, 1934: "It is with sad heart I impart the news that New Hope Church was completely destroyed by fire this A. M. It caught from the stove flue during services. We saved the piano, some of the pews, and other furnishings. There was no insurance. No plans, of course, have been made for the future. Pray for us that we may have faith to go forward." It has been a joy to the editor to worship in good old New Hope Church with a large congregation in former days. It was in a fine farming community, almost in the village of Abanda, and we are sincerely hoping that a bigger and better building will soon go up in the place of the one destroyed.

Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, who for some years has furnished "The Prayer" for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, first column, page 8, is so impaired in health and vision that this and practically all other writing and most of her reading have had to be dispensed with. "My vision is such," she writes, under date of Lawrenceville, N. J., February 23d, "that I read almost nothing except THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Book. I am glad that you could make your annual pilgrimage to Florida. Beginning here with a blizzard December 26th, there has been zero and sometimes sub-zero weather for several days running, and there has been more snow and cold weather during February, with more ice than I ever saw in any one winter." Mrs. Lincoln lives with her son, Professor Lucius Lincoln, a graduate of Elon College, who teaches at Lawrenceville, and is pleasantly known to many of our CHRISTIAN SUN family, all of whom will regret to learn of her impaired health.

Among some of the ministerial visitors to Florida recently might be mentioned Dr. Edwin W. Bishop of Lansing, Michigan, who toured the State clear to Key West; Dr. Herbert A. Jump of Boston, who is recuperating in St. Petersburg, following a serious illness; Superintendent Walter Spooner of New Jersey, who is in New Port Richey for the same purpose; Superintendent Walter H. Rollins of New York, who made a brief visit to his son in Jacksonville; Dr. Edward A. McMaster, until recently pastor at Williams-town, Mass., is spending the winter in Miami; Professor Curtis M. Geer of Hartford Seminary, who is wintering in Winter Park, and Dr. Edwin Knox Mitchell also of Hartford Seminary, who is visiting his first parish, the Flagler Memorial Church at St. Augustine. Dr. George L. Cady, Secretary of the American Missionary Association, and Mrs. Mary D. White, Associate Secretary of the Extension Boards, are expecting to visit Florida in March and April. Florida has also been glad to have Dr. J. O. Atkinson in the State enjoying the climate and benefitting by a winter rest and saying nice things about Florida and its climate.

OFFERINGS FROM THE CHURCHES.

By the time this article reaches the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, the period set aside for the church to make its offerings to the College will have come to a close. The Board of Trustees officially asked that the church put on a campaign to raise $25,000.00 for the College. The conferences in North Carolina and Virginia, in their annual sessions passed resolutions approving the campaign and called upon the pastors and churches to put forth honest efforts to raise this amount. The majority of the ministers in their monthly meetings have pledged themselves and their churches to faithfulness in such endeavors. Appeal after appeal has been sent to pastors, churches and church officials; and in some instances personal solicitations have been made.

To date thirty-four churches have been heard from. Eight of these have raised the amount asked for. Some of the other churches have raised commendable amounts, but by far the greater number of the churches have not made any report at all. I am hoping that every church will make its canvass, and just as soon as the funds are raised that the same will be forwarded to the College. Let every church make an effort and every member make his contribution. The College needs your support and your gift will be of tremendous value.

The following churches have reported:

HONOR ROLL.

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Ambrose, Georgia and Alabama.....	$ 30.00	$ 35.00
Elon College, N. C. & Va. ....	229.00	682.00
Carolina, North Carolina & Virginia..	15.50	15.50
Mt. Bethel, N. C. & Va. ....	37.00	40.41
Wake Chapel, Eastern North Carolina	102.50	155.08
Waverly, Eastern Virginia.....	113.00	169.00
Windsor, Eastern Virginia .....	49.50	71.25
Seagrave, Western North Carolina.....	18.50	32.00

The following churches have sent in contributions from the church during the campaign:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Holland, Eastern Virginia .....	212.50	165.50
Eure, Eastern Virginia.....	178.50	25.00
Wakefield, Eastern Virginia.....	47.50	25.75
Liberty Springs, Eastern Virginia....	171.50	65.00
Mt. Carmel, Eastern Virginia.....	37.00	32.65
Holy Neck, Eastern Virginia .....	166.50	68.51
Newport News, Eastern Virginia.....	132.50	30.43
Suffolk, Eastern Virginia .....	667.00	446.57
Oakland, Eastern Virginia .....	196.50	20.60
Hopewell, Eastern Virginia .....	63.00	2.37
Union, N. C. & Va. ....	185.00	64.76
Mt. Zion, N. C. & Va. ....	73.00	40.00
Hines Chapel N. C. & Va. ....	123.50	85.25
Haw River, N. C. & Va. ....	96.00	39.25
Pleasant Ridge, N. C. & Va. ....	47.50	2.52
New Lebanon, North Carolina & Va...	65.00	60.18
Hebron, North Carolina & Virginia...	73.50	12.00
Catawba Springs, E. North Carolina...	105.50	50.50
United Church, E. North Carolina....	43.50	6.10
Liberty Vance, E. North Carolina....	202.50	51.50
Mt. Auburn, E. North Carolina.....	88.50	45.00
Oak Level, Eastern N. C. ....	66.50	50.00
Fuller's Chapel, Eastern N. C. ....	107.00	6.60
Randleman, W. North Carolina.....	46.50	3.20
Ramseur, W. North Carolina .....	59.00	33.00
Leaksville, Valley of Va. ....	81.50	10.00

Please look over the above list carefully. If your church is not on the Honor Roll, speak to your pastor or other officials; or, Brother Pastor, take the matter up with your church and see if you cannot place your church along with others. If your church has not yet made its report, I know that you will soon complete your canvass and send your report to the College. You have my prayers, best wishes, and faithful co-operation. Let us hear from you.

L. E. SMITH,
President.

THE ELON SINGERS.

The Elon College Singers visited many of the churches in Eastern Virginia recently and gave musical concerts. They came to my church when I was sick in bed and could not hear them; but I heard about them.

All reports that came to me were to the effect that the concert was of a very high order, that it was entertaining, inspirational, and helpful. My people were delighted with the concert.

But other reports which came to me were even more interesting. Everyone reports that the teachers and students alike were delightful guests in the church and in the homes. Some who were reluctant to invite college students into their homes were so delighted with their visitors that they showed them special kindness by taking them for trips around the community and giving them meals in their homes rather than sending them to the church where meals were being served.

Reports that Alma Mater sends out a group of students who can really do the thing that they are supposed to do, and who are so fine in spirit and charming in personality that they win friends wherever they go, is the kind of thing that stirs the heart of an Old Grad and makes him proud of the institution that honored him with a degree. Congratulations to the Elon Singers.

F. C. LESTER.

THE EVERY-MEMBER SUBSCRIPTION.

The last week of the old year brightened our office with two new subscription lists. For more than a year the First Church and the Trinity Church of Pittsburgh have been taking block subscriptions of fifty papers each. We have been curious to know if the papers were taken from the churches and enjoyed by the worshippers. To every inquiry there came the assurance that the people were glad to get the papers and the supply was exhausted every Sunday. To say that we were glad to get such big block subscriptions would be putting it too mildly.

The block subscriptions to these churches have been changed and with this (January 5, 1934) issue the papers will go out as individual subscriptions to every home in both churches. We hope that the paper will perform a service in the homes of the members of the churches that will make the investment wise. We will do the best we can to make it so.

The First Church, Pittsburgh, took the lead in block subscriptions and a movement was begun which has held our circulation up during the past year. There are uncertainties in this form of distribution. A rainy Sunday or a visit out of town breaks the continuity of the paper and, in places where the papers are sold, may leave a number of copies on the hands of the distributing society. We are rather surprised that we have not had more embarrassments than we have had from this business. We are going to continue the block subscriptions and make a plea for them, but the new method of the two Pittsburgh churches is the better way. They have found a sure and regular plan of putting the paper in every home by putting it in the church budget.

The church paper is a part of the church. Since it created the Methodist Protestant Church it has been a creature of the church. The price of the paper, the personnel of the Board of Publication and the person of the Editor are all determined by the General Conference. We do the best we can to produce as good a paper as we can but the promotion of the circulation is in the main dependent upon the leaders within the local churches. The paper ought to be in the budgets of the churches. It looks like two and three per cent of the average budget would place the paper in the homes of all our people. This would be ideal and we urge forward looking and progressive leaders in our congregations to make this attempt.

We believe that this would be a paying investment for many churches. The return will be in knowledge, interest, vision and a sense of fellowship. These spiritual qualities have a cash value and it will be seen in increased consecration and contributions. They will produce that which is infinitely more valuable, a solidarity which is indispensable to united advance.

Every institution has its promotional paper. We get a great number of them. The journal is generally paid for the enterprise sending it out. This is the American way. This is the only way the promotional literature can be placed in the hands of those who are not deeply interested in the enterprise and whose support must be gained. There are great difficulties in the way of the church doing this thing. We know enough about limited resources to know what an addition to the budget will mean. But unless the church finds a way to circulate its papers the Kingdom of God will be deprived of the contribution which the printed page can make to its growth. The Board of Publication is taking about one-half the cost of the Methodist Protestant-Recorder. Can not more of our stronger churches follow the lead in placing the paper in their budgets and thus secure a full circulation among their members? We plead for a vast adventure in trying this investment and a test of its value.—Methodist Protestant-Recorder.

KEEP UP YOUR COURAGE!

By GREENVILLE KLEISER.

In these days days of severe trial and readjustment, fortify your courage with new and stronger resolve. Determine to go forward with increased confidence and high expectation. Be faithful to your obligations, and discharge every duty with unflinching promptitude. Be alert to fresh opportunities now available to you. Stimulate your mind with clear, strong, uplifting ideas of what you wish to accomplish, and realize the immense powers and resources at your personal command. Make this day mark a distinct and important advance in your progress toward a great life ideal.

It is wonderful how even little daily victories over inertia, weakness, uncertainty, and depression, contribute ultimately to a successful life. The practice of rising above petty discouragements and seeming obstacles soon develops a habit of self-confidence equal to any undertaking. Work was never intended to be a drudgery, but a source of pleasure and a stimulus to worthy achievement. Life is not a treadmill, a jail, or a place of punishment, but a beautiful and fascinating field of endeavor, with inspiring horizons of greater fields beckoning ever onward. Work, opportunity, effort, and service are blessings to enrich life and make it truly worth living. Blessed is the man who does his work joyously.

Rely upon your own resources. You have within yourself all the power necessary for a useful and successful life. Pluck and perseverance are the handservants of prosperity. Difficulties are for discipline. Problems promote progress. Right results and rewards come from indefatigable labor. Apply the abilities you now have and your powers will develop in the use. You are now living in a time of wonderful opportunity, with practically no limit to your possibilities of growth and usefulness. Mighty influences within and without are at your command. Decide for yourself what you will do with these resources, and whether you will work to attain a place among the successful men of your day.

You are building better than you realize. When things appear to be going the wrong way, they may be shaping themselves for the best results. A temporary disappointment is often a blessing in disguise. Seeming failure has many a time proved a stepping-stone to real success. Every trial, temptation, mistake, and apparent failure can be made to serve a useful purpose. Turn such experiences to practical advantage. Your best guides and teachers are often those very disappointments which stimulate to better self-management. Meditate deeply upon a difficult problem, and the solution will often unfold itself. There is no such thing as failure to one of courageous purpose.

What you do with your present chances and abilities, you will be likely to do with larger powers in time to come. Prove the greatness of the qualities within you; be earnest in enthusiastic effort today. Procrastination is not only the thief of time, but of ambition, initiative and courage. Do not mislead yourself into believing that under other circumstances, or in a different environment, you could and would do better. In your present position you can prove your greatness of character. Where you are at this moment is the place to begin your best work and to translate your good intentions into actual deeds.

Despite trial or hardship, loss of disappointment, keep up your courage.

Work on, though mists obscure
The steep and rugged way,
Aud clouds of fear beset:
Soon dawns the brighter day.
Keep on! Though hours be long,
And days deep-fraught with woe;
Let patience have her perfect work,
And vanquish every foe.
Hope on! Though all seems lost,
And storms beat high;
Have faith! Be still and know
That God is nigh.

—Christian Evangelist.

ROANOKE, ALABAMA.

The First Christian Church at Roanoke continues to have interesting services each third Sunday in spite of the fact that our pastor, W. Millard Stevens, is at Elon College in school.

At the last morning worship service, Bro. R. E. Owen, a Baptist minister living in our town, moved and inspired the congregation with his pure gospel message. In a very forceful manner he proved that unless a Christian lived a strong enough life to have enemies in the devil and his comrades or followers, he could not be a Christian that promotes the spread of Christianity.

Almost a coincidence was the fact that on Sunday night at the young people's meeting we had with us another Baptist minister, Bro. W. W. Lankford, who has recently come to Roanoke as pastor of the Lowell Baptist Church. Bro. Lankford's coming was more than interesting to our people because of our great interest in his brother, Dr. G. O. Lankford. He expressed at the beginning of his lecture the great joy that came to him to be able to stand in the pulpit where his brother and so many of his Christian friends had stood. Bro. Lankford's lecture was timely, and the young people were fortunate in having the privilege of hearing him.

Though our church is small our members rejoice that we have good Baptist friends and others who are interested in our church and willing to share themselves with us to try to make our church worth while. REPORTER.

WINTER!

I think the winter time is cruel,
The snow, so cold and drab
Presses down upon my heart—
Its deadness makes me sad.
The spears of ice that gleam against
A sky no longer blue,
Seem to cut into my soul
And chill me through and through.

Then I remember that the snow
Is but a blanket deep,
Beneath which tiny bits of green
Will waken from their sleep.
And knives of ice and naught but blades
Whose hurt can never last,
Their dreary power will be forgot
When winter storms are past.

So 'tis the winter times of life
That bring the spring, we say,
And hide beneath their cheerless snows
The buds of a new day.

Then, though our hearts be crusted quite
By want and freezing pain,
The sun will melt the ice away,
And they will beat again.

DORA BYRONS.

Pomona, Fla.

Have the courage to keep on keeping while others are quitting. They leave more opportunities for you.—Van Amburgh.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

OUR CARNIVAL OF MATERIALISM.

Our wide world went wild over things and the accumulation of things. Money mad we call it now. From 1920 to 1929, inclusive, not only our nation but the so-called "civilized" and "progressive" nations of the world went on a mad, reckless rush of grabbing and grasping to get things, to pile up fortunes, to secure place and prestige through the power of possession.

And then the crash came. Economic earthquakes and upheavals shook fortunes to their foundations, and millions, accumulated in less than a decade, were scattered like chaff. Millionaires became paupers over night, fortunes of a life-time crumbled in the dust, banks closed, and financial wreckage was apparent everywhere. All this was on the surface, seen and read of all men. But there was another wreckage not on the surface, and not as apparent as this of things and possessions. This wreckage was the more felt, because the more fundamental, yet less apparent to the naked eye, less talked about. We speak of the wreckage of our moral and religious life and structure.

As a consequence, we have witnessed, and are now witnessing a development of narrow and crazy creeds and cults to an amazing degree. We have swung to anything that was credulous in the name of religion, and have created cults and given credence to creeds that were unthinkable and impossible as long as there was a fixed, firm faith in the abiding things of the conscience, the church and the Christ.

Dr. William T. Ellis, world traveller and expounder of the International Sunday School Lesson for the syndicated press throughout the country, in commenting on the Sunday School lesson of March 4th, declares, "That the upheaval in the religious world in the last decade has been as marked as and more calamitous than the wreckage of fortunes in the fields of economy and finance." Dr. Ellis declares that this spectacle of cults and creeds, beliefs and bickerings among the churches and the peoples of God is enough to make the angels weep when viewed against the background of our present plight and need. One of the sad results of the moral and religious breakdown, according to Dr. Ellis, is speculation, much of it wild and furious, in the field of morality and religion, even more potent and obvious than the wild speculation in the field of economy and politics. As a result of these speculations "we have," quoting Dr. Ellis, "fighting fundamentalists fuming like followers of the Mad Mullah. Opposed to them, we have the wordy and mind-worshipping modernists with the vague and sterile creed of denial, who are themselves as intolerant in the name of liberalism as any narrow sectarian."

Quoting Dr. Ellis further, as to the division and speculation: "Fewer in numbers, but making up in vociferousness what they lack in strength, have been the prophetic crowd, who can make the Old Testament mean whatever they want; the pyramidists, who seem to see more significance in the great pyramid of Egypt than in the plain teachings of the New Testament; the Millennialists, who disregard Christ's plain teaching that of the time of his return no man knows anything; the numerologists, a crazy crew, who find more significance in certain arbitrary numbers in the Bible than they do in its plain text; the gymnastic "tonguers," who profess to speak in unknown tongues; the "second blessing" folks, who are not always a blessing to their families and neighbors; the devotees of ecclesiastical millinery; and so on through the long and incredible category. There must be something tremendously vital in Christianity to survive this assortment of Christian vagaries."

Turning from this wreckage and ruin in moral and religious speculation, we have the eternal fact, the indisputable truth clearly stated, "That any honest person, with ordinary intelligence, by reading the four Gospels, can learn enough about Jesus to shape his character, guide his conduct and save his soul." Jesus, in reply to John's question about who He was, tells what He thought of himself, and He tells the world in such plain language that any who are willing to read and learn may do so and thus lay for themselves a sure and safe foundation which no man can take away. That foundation is none other than Jesus Christ, the world's only hope and the soul's only salvation. J. O. A.

CHURCH OR CLUB—WHICH?

"Eight churches sprang from this saint's ministry. A religion that was not missionary was to him no more than a book club, a study organization, a civic order, with less than their usual zest." So declares an editorial writer in the Greensboro, N. C., Daily News, commenting on the passage of a beloved pastor and a faithful preacher of righteousness in a nearby city. There was much more to the editorial comment, but to the same end, viz: That this preacher, faithful man of God, now called up higher, believed that his church was more than a benevolent society; that a sermon was different from a lecture before a book club, and that church membership meant something more than belonging to a civic club. This man of God, according to the estimate of the news-hawks, had a conviction that a preacher had a calling and a place that differed from that of teacher, and that the pulpit had a power distinct from that of the platform. The church is a divine institution, created of God, not of man, whose primary object is to proclaim the gospel of the Son of God, call men and women, boys and girls to repentance and to seek salvation through Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

"What sort of minister was this man?" inquires the editorial referred to in the Daily News; and then the writer answers his own question:

"Well, he wasn't a liberal. In war he did not preach a battlefield atonement, and in peace he did not proclaim a sociological salvation. He believed the world was full of sin and that neither the heroics of war nor the beneficences of private philanthropy could substitute the religion of Christ Jesus. He had an academic interest in all the issues that were raised during these years of distress and deprivation, but he would not turn his pulpit into a lecture platform from which to preach the new social order. At the bottom of everything wrong in this life about him he put sin. And salvation from sin was possible to him only through the religion of his Lord Jesus Christ."

It is easy, of course, for students of theology and teachers of sociology to criticize and censure such a minister, and to declare that he was an "old foggy" and "out-of-date," and yet such men with convictions, get somewhere at any rate, and through them and their preaching, things come to pass. There is soul in their belief and power in their preaching, which takes hold of men and gets into the woof and warp of others, making them strong for durability and service. "How often men are broad simply because they are flat, that is to say, there is neither body nor depth to their belief. There is a liberalism which has no standards, which regards sin as mere error, which esteems gross animalism as 'self-expression,' which considers all religious belief of equal importance. Say what we will about the conservatives, they hope something, they believe something, and generally they do something."

This man was not content with the smug complacency of his conservatism. He did not claim that it was the only business of the preacher to preach or the only function of the church to draw and hold a congregation. He believed that a minister should be a wise counsellor and a busy executive, directing the power generated through the gospel, to the promulgation of that gospel beyond the doors of his own church, or the reach of his own voice.

How many church members, indeed, feel that they have squared matters with their own conscience when they have made a contribution for the physical comforts of others, for the relief of someone in material want.

Most truly is the church more than a benevolent society, unless indeed its pastor and its members make it only a benevolent society or a civic club. Our Lord founded and is building His church in this world that men and women, boys and girls everywhere may hear the declaration and share the revelation that "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

J. O. A.

WHAT PRICE REPEAL?

Our good friend and brother, C. B. Strickland, formerly of our Mt. Gilead Church, Franklin County, North Carolina, now of Columbus, Ohio, sends an editorial clipping from the Daily Times, Indianapolis, Indiana, which seems to be the meditation of a repealist:

"It is a little bit surprising to read that construction of seven new cutters for the coast guard, at a cost of $11,520, has just been authorized by the treasury department. In applying for funds from the PWA, the department announced that these cutters will be used to suppress rum running.

"It is easy to understand, of course, that the laying of stiff import duties on liquor shipments will provide an incentive for smugglers; and it is only proper to recall that the coast guard was on duty against smugglers long before any one ever dreamed of a federal prohibition law.

"Nevertheless, this business of seven new cutters to stop rum runners is a little disturbing. Most of us, probably, had expected the repeal of the eighteenth amendment would put the rum runner out of business almost automatically. Aren't the fruits of repeal to be quite as rich as we had supposed?"

Thus concludes the editorial which raises a pertinent question. The repealist was going to abolish all bootlegging and the bootlegging industry, and thus save the government an enormous revenue. The appropriation of over eleven and one-half million dollars for one arm of the service to fight bootlegging does not sound very much as if smuggling had ceased its activities. Further reports come from the government that much of the liquor now being consumed is not the "high grade" product, manufactured by the licensed breweries, but that manufactured by the bootlegger and the moonshiner as of old. Again it may be said, we have repealed the eighteenth amendment, which, let us hope, makes for betterment and for temperance, but we have not repealed the liquor problem. J. O. A.

GREAT BRITAIN BUYS A BIBLE.

The recent purchase of a copy of the Bible by one government from another government is significant in revealing the mind of the peoples of two nations regarding the Bible. The British Government has recently purchased for its national museum the Codex Sinaiticus, one of the three oldest Bible manuscripts in the world. The purchase was made from the Soviet Government of Russia. In 1862 this manuscript of the Bible, dating back to the fourth century after Christ, was presented to the Czar of Russia. Russia has now passed, governmentally, from a nation with an established orthodox church to a nation of atheism and hatred of the church. It, therefore, as a nation, no longer needed nor cared for this valuable manuscript, and began to cast about to see what revenue it could get out of this priceless treasure.

The British Government seized the opportunity, agreed with the Russian Government upon a purchase price, and then, from the Government's treasury, donated one-half of the price, the remaining half of the price being raised by popular subscription throughout the British Empire. The price paid was $514,000. Thus the British people show by this act their esteem and devotion to the Word of God as represented by this manuscript, and the Government of Russia shows its disregard for the same by selling that which it deemed a few years ago beyond any purchase price. Because of their disbelief in God, Russia could barter its Holy Book for revenue and for treasure which faded away and perished with the using. But Russia is not the only government now ready to trade its soul for revenue. There are others. J. O. A.

"God made the greatest gift to humanity when He gave His only Begotten Son to be the Saviour of the world. That was the heart of the angel's song and the quest of the wise men."

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

ARTICLE No. XI.

"HOME LIFE IN PALESTINE."

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D.

Pastor, People's Congregational-Christian Church, Dover, Del.

The home life of the native people in Palestine is crude beyond belief or description. Of course, the better-to-do natives and the foreigners who stay in Palestine live practically as comfortably as we do in America. But in thinking of Palestine and its people we must always exclude in our consideration that small minority of people, say one out of ten, who live there much as we do here. This small minority do not depict the life of Palestine. The people that do are the other nine out of every ten—the rank and file.

Nearly all these native people are very poor. Some, of course, are poorer than others, and yet there being no distinct degrees of poverty in Palestine such as are in evidence in our own country. The sanitation of the villages in Palestine and the sanitation in the homes themselves is an unknown concern to the people. The hot sunshine in a large measure counteracts the lack of sanitation.

Mohammedanism did away with many of the old Hebrew taboos and religious rites which Moses introduced for purposes of sanitation among the people of Palestine. And if it were not for the long months of bright sunshine and the extreme heat of the sun to kill the germs, the death rate would be increased many times.

As it is, the death rate among children in Palestine is extremely high. The average mother in Palestine bears ten to sixteen children, without any hope of being able to bring more than four or five of them through childhood. The people give little concern to the cleanliness of their bodies. The children are seemingly utterly neglected in this regard. Ragged and unkempt, with dirty faces and sore eyes—one out of every ten going blind before maturity—these poor neglected children of the villages and cities of Palestine look up into the faces of foreigners as if they must be some strange gods come from another world. One wonders how any of these can survive when he sees where they live and what they have to eat, and how little consideration is given them—no place for them to play, and but little more thought being given to the welfare of their young lives than is given to the young sheep, goats and donkeys.

Of course, we must constantly bear in mind that in every village and in every city of Palestine there are sections of the community where you find children who are not thus neglected, children who are as well cared for as those of our own country. But they are so much in the minority that they are the rare exception.

But no matter how much the majority of children in Palestine are neglected after they are big enough to crawl and walk, every child born in Palestine is given special attention for the "first" few weeks of its life. However, I imagine this special attention is not greatly relished by the child itself. All children are considered by oriental people as special gifts from God. So one wonders how the orientals can give so little consideration to the growing child's welfare. According to an ancient custom handed down through all the centuries of the Old Testament to this very day when a child is born in Palestine, it is thoroughly rubbed with salt the first day. Then its body is covered with salt as you would cover a fish with salt to salt it down, and the salted body is then wrapped tightly in swaddling cloth for a week. Strange practice, indeed, it seems to me. But we also have practices which seem equally strange to them.

The place where people live in Palestine is not considered a home but a rendezvous, a meeting place for the family and the neighbors, and as a refuge or shelter in time of storm or peril. The people live largely out-of-doors. The Palestinian house, as we call it, is indeed a crude construction of mud-brick or stone, one story high with one or two rooms for the family, perhaps a guest room, and always a room for animals under the same roof. The house has a flat or slightly sloping dome-shaped roof of baked clay or stone to catch as much water as possible during the rainy season, and run it off into a cistern for the family's supply should the village spring go dry in the late summer. Besides the private cisterns, each community has several cisterns for the community supply. And every provision is made to catch as much of the rain as possible and retain it in cisterns against a possible failing of the springs through the long dry season. We should remember that Palestine has no rain from May first to November first. Hence the water supply is the most serious problem the people have to face. They live in constant dread from year to year that the water supply from the cisterns may not last until the following rainy season, should the wells and springs fail, which is often the case toward the end of the dry season. It has always been so in Palestine. We read in the Old Testament so many references regarding the blessing of water, the water supply and need of preserving it. King Solomon's foresight in this regard is still in evidence as one visits the great pools that bear his name, a few miles from Jerusalem. The people of Palestine from the beginning of its history have always lived in constant fear not merely of water shortage—they have always had that—but of water failure—for such would mean death to all so affected.

Housewives in Palestine often have to carry their water supply from two to five miles. In the cities they are given tickets entitling them to a certain amount of water each day. And long lines of a hundred or two hundred women stand waiting their turn at the watering places in the cities each morning and evening. It is indeed a beautiful picture, though pathetic, the long line of women walking gracefully toward their homes with a five-gallon water jar balanced on the top of the head. No where do women walk with a more graceful carriage than do the women of Palestine when balancing the heavy jars of water on their heads. They walk with the ease, the grace, and the dignity of queens. Every visitor to Palestine is forcefully impressed by this unique feature of Palestinian life.

The only thing that mars this picture is the innovation of the Standard Oil Company's five-gallon oil cans instead of the artistic water pots. In some sections of the country you will see a large number of the oil cans filled with water balanced on the heads of the women who carry them full for miles without spilling a drop. But in other sections of the country the oil can is conspicuous for its absence, fortunate for visitors in Palestine; and the characteristic five-gallon water pots feature the picture.

Many of the women seem to spend most of their time carrying water. I have seen them carry a little child in each arm in addition to the heavy five-gallon water jar which they carried on top of their head. Think of carrying such a load for a mile or more! It is not strange that a Palestinian woman is old at forty, and looks older at thirty than her American sister does at sixty.

The native women of Palestine have very little house work to do. No doubt some of the less ambitious American women might envy the Palestinian woman in that respect. I wonder! The people live largely out-of-doors, sleeping on mats

(Continued on page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Elon Alumni Club of Eastern Virginia held its Eighth Annual Banquet in the Fellowship Hall of the Suffolk Christian Church, on Friday evening, February 23, 1934, beginning at 7 o'clock.

This club is composed of former Elon students from Eastern Virginia and the nearby counties of North Carolina. Dr. I. W. Johnson is president and Rev. F. C. Lester, vice-president. Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun is secretary and treasurer. The officers are elected for a period of two years.

One hundred and fifty-four gathered for the banquet, which was served by a group of members of the Ladies Benevolent and Social Union of the Christian Church. The tables were lovely with red roses in silver baskets and orange candles in silver holders. The favors were of the College colors, maroon and gold. Dr. L. E. Smith and his wife and thirty Elon Singers were present.

A feature of the program was the splendid musical program rendered by the Elon Singers, under the direction of the director, Prof. Dwight Steere, assisted by Miss Helen Chamblee of the Music Department, and Fletcher Moore, accompanist. Two violin numbers were rendered by Miss Genevieve Griffith.

In addition to the musical program, the following persons took part on the program: Invocation, Dr. N. G. Newman; introduction of the new president by Dr. J. E. Rawles, former president; response by Dr. I. W. Johnson, president; toastmaster, Rev. John G. Truitt, reading of the minutes, Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, secretary; an address on "Character" by Col. J. E. West; toast to the "Elon-in-laws" by Mrs. F. A. Holland; "Training for a Better Day," an address by Dr. L. E. Smith, President of Elon.

This club was organized with the avowed purpose of making it a medium of social fellowship and the renewal of college associations and friendships. The constitution expressly provides that no appeals for money may be made in the meetings, except for the expenses incidental to the banquet. It is not an Alumni Association, but a social club. Elon students are permitted to bring guests if they so desire. A number of invited guests were present and they were favorably impressed and enjoyed the program and dinner.

The Elon Club has justified its purpose and name. It stands for good fellowship and the Elon Spirit. It was suggested in this meeting that the letters in the words "E-L-O-N C-L-U-B" might well represent the words, "Enthusiasm," "Loyalty," "Openness," "Nobleness," "Complex," "Love," "Undergirded," and "Brotherhood." Enthusiasm is contagious. It paints pictures, grows, sees visions, and points the way to success. Loyalty is not simply faithfulness or obedience to a superior. It may express itself in criticism and co-operation. It is not blind acquiescence to the wish and will of another. It is based on truth and justice. Secret diplomacy and clandestine conferences have not been conducive to the best interests of nations or of institutions. People who put up the money are demanding Openness. Nobleness is in the field of design, character and life.

Complex is a word much used in the field of psychology. We hear much of the "superiority complex" and of the "inferiority complex." Reduced to common usage these terms mean, big I and little U, or little I and big U. Superiority complex has been overemphasized in many colleges. Students go out in life with distorted opinions of themselves and others. They soon find that they sometimes have to take a towel and basin and wash the feet of a Simon Peter or a Judas Iscariot. When one superiority complex comes in contact with another of the same type, you may have war or something worse. Equality complex is the Christian attitude.

Love is powerful. It makes lip-sticks, powder-puffs, rouge. It creates beauty-parlors, opens barber-shops, designs evening dresses, tailors full-dress suits. It makes life worth living and the world go. It converts the common-place into a shrine. Love for Elon College will solve all its problems, settle all its difficulties, pay its debts, fill its halls with students, and carry it to a glorious success.

Undergirding in character and in institutions is essential. Truth, justice and purity must abide as safe and secure foundation. Brotherhood is a far-flung spirit of the age. This includes sister-hood, of course, and completes the eight-point purpose of the Club, and becomes the keystone for strength and beauty.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE ELON SINGERS' PROGRAM.

On invitation of the ministers of Eastern Virginia, and through the efforts of Dr. Jay of Holland, Va., the itinerary for the Elon Singers was worked out.

Professor Dwight Steere, head of the Music Department, organized a group of students and trained them for this delightful and helpful service. The itinerary called for the first engagement with the Christian Church at Holland, of which Dr. Jay is pastor. We reached Holland Saturday afternoon and gave the program on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This is the second time the Holland Church has arranged for us to give a Saturday evening program. They request that the next time we come we stop at Holland for some other evening, and we hereby promise that we will grant that request. However, they gave us a good attendance and a most enthusiastic hearing.

The points included in the itinerary, other than Holland, were Suffolk, Portsmouth, Christian Temple, Cypress Chapel, Waverly, Franklin, and the Alumni Banquet, Friday evening in the social hall of the Suffolk Church. Wherever we went we were received enthusiastically, accorded every possible consideration, and helped greatly by large audiences. We feel that the effort has been tremendously worth while. The value of such a program is evident. It gives to communities separated from the College first hand knowledge of what we are accomplishing here; it helps the church to be College conscious, and starts children, young people, and older people talking favorably for the College.

It would be fine, indeed, if a tour of this kind would result in several organizations within the local churches for the College—organizations or committees of the following types:

1. A committee to keep the College, together with its interests, favorably before the church.
2. A committee to keep in touch with members of the senior class in high school who are of the homes of our church and who might be induced to attend Elon College.
3. A committee to look after the financial interest of the College within the local church,

4. A committee that would direct the prayer life of the church in the interest of the College. If the membership of the church would begin to pray for the College, it would not be long before many of our problems would be solved.

We are glad for the privilege of taking our singers into the churches here and there, and we are most anxious that such engagements may result in much good for the College.

L. E. SMITH,
President.

FROM MY FIELD.

I am at present serving five country churches, and it is a great joy to be greeted at each service with good congregations. The people are very glad to hear the Gospel and respond wonderfully.

Auburn Church. Auburn is located in a little country village. It has a membership of around 140. These are fine people and I enjoy serving them. Each service I am greeted with anxious hearts and minds to hear the Gospel of the Living Christ. I am expecting a great year with these good people.

North Clayton Church. This church is located on the north side of the town of Clayton. At present we have 46 members. We have a nice large building and plenty of people near by, and we hope through the grace of God to build a good church in this section of the town. The people are working hard, and we hope to have a good year together.

Amelia Church. This small country church is two miles west of Clayton. Each time I have been met with anxious congregations at this church. With these good people I am hoping for a great year at this church. The present membership is about 80.

Moore's Union Church. This church is located about six miles west of Broadway, North Carolina. It is one of the oldest churches in the Eastern North Carolina Conference. Its membership is over a hundred. It is a very active church. On my last visit, a group of fifteen fine, intelligent young people gathered at the home of Mr. Raymond Lett, where their pastor was spending the night, and organized a Christian Endeavor society. It did me good to see these fine young people go forward under the leadership of Miss Lett, one of their number. They carried out the program splendidly. From this group of young people I am expecting great things. I am behind them to help them all I can. With these good people, both young and old, I am expecting a great and good year.

Lee's Chapel. I preached my first sermon for this year at this church on the afternoon of February 18th. A good crowd greeted me. I hope to have a fine year with these good people.

I love the people of my field, both old and young. They are fine people and are working. All of my churches have good Sunday Schools. All of them have fine, intelligent young people who are willing to work. In their pastor, they have one who will sympathize with them in sorrow, rejoice with them in gladness, and work with them in undertakings for Christ. With all my people I am expecting a great year in the work of our Lord.

J. RAY DICKENS,
Pastor.

The Christian Council of the Missions of West Africa is offering a reward of fifty dollars to any witch who can eat a papaw at a distance, remove an object from a locked box, or change anybody into a fish, bird or beast. They hope to demonstrate that these witches are utterly powerless to do what they claim.—Indian Witness.

A NEWSPAPER THAT ABIDES, AND WHY.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

The Evening Star is considered the outstanding daily in our Nation's Capital. Founded in 1852, it has become a fixed institution in Washington. This paper has always steered clear of spectacular news. In many instances it has made no mention of sordid stories often carried in other papers. Its editorial page reflects clear thinking, scholarship, and presents liberal views. It enjoys the largest circulation of any daily in the Nation's Capital, and reflects creditably upon those who depend upon it for their daily secular reading.

The Evening Star is not only a local institution, but is nationally recognized. Every member of its staff, from bellhop to editor, enjoys the benefit of their toil in more ways than wages. An enumeration of these benefits would be too detailed for this article. Positions on this publication in any capacity are sought to the extent that even in prosperous years the applicants on the waiting list run into hundreds.

These things, however, have a more or less local and personal interest. The Star's stand on moral questions is worthy of note. Long before the Post Office Department closed its mail service to questionable advertising, this publication refused, and continues to refuse, every advertisement that has the slightest indication of fraud, misrepresentation, or failure to give value received. The yearly amount of advertising rejected by this publication would constitute a prized advertising income by many publications in cities of 25,000 to 50,000. The Star refused to carry liquor advertisements before the days of prohibition. It still proclaims that policy.

In a recent issue of this publication these words, conspicuously displayed on the front page, under a more conspicuous heading, appeared:

"In accordance with the policy of The Star, which prevailed before the passage of the national prohibition amendment, advertisements to promote the sale of consumption of distilled liquors will not be accepted. By distilled liquor is meant such beverages as whiskey, brandy, gin, rum, etc."

In the same issue its main editorial said in part:

"The Star has, since repeal, rejected, and will continue to reject all copy offered to it which advertises distilled liquor * * * Observation and experience teach that distilled liquor, with its high alcoholic content, is not nutritious or in any way health-promoting as a beverage, but is a powerful, habit-forming stimulant; in large doses a paralyzing narcotic depressant; of value medicinally if intelligently prescribed, but poisonous if used to excess, and dangerously hurtful to body and mind of the multitude of susceptibles, if habitually used even at first in comparative moderation * * * The Star believes that the use as a beverage of this hurtful commodity should in the community interest in protection of our homes and our families, be reduced to a minimum and should not be increased by The Star through the admittance to its columns for pay of this sales-promoting advertising."

It is refreshing to read such splendid words of deliberate and thoughtful judgment at a time when the whole country seems to be liquor-minded. Such expressions as these, honestly and convincingly spoken, adhered to religiously regardless of financial consequences, make The Star not only a local and national institution, but place it in the moral foreground of journalism of America.

The tide of public sentiment may find a common meeting place and change from time to time under the dome of the Capitol, twelve blocks from The Star's imposing building on Pennsylvania Avenue; congressmen may come and congressmen may go, but The Star in its policy for right and against what it conceives to be wrong goes on.

TOO LATE COMING.

Writing from Lusambo, Belgian Congo, Rev. J. J. Davis, missionary of a group of churches in Kentucky and North Carolina, sends home this challenge:

"We must, as good soldiers of Christ, follow up the brave efforts of pioneers who have gone before, and open the way for the evangelization of this people. Lift up your eyes and look upon a hundred thousand souls with eager faces, begging for the saving gospel of Christ, thousands of children, who have no day school, thousands who have been caught in the grip of unknown diseases.

"Sometime ago a big, fine-looking young man sat on my veranda and startled me as he put the question 'Why did you people of God not come to us sooner?' And before I could reply he said, 'My father used to say that he believed there must be a great Creator back of all the wonderful things we find in this beautiful world, but my father died in the dark and went out into the unknown world without ever hearing of Christ the Saviour of all mankind.'"—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

There are many signs that Modernists are becoming alarmed at the spread of Atheism. It is indeed a fearful menace. We know what such Atheism meant in the French Revolution, intolerant, conscienceless, finally murderous, ten thousand baby bodies in Paris sewers, blood flowing in the streets like water. But Modernists are direct products of Atheism, for it is a short step from Agnosticism to Pantheism to Atheism. Only a return to the Triune God of the Bible will cure Atheism. And that surely has always done it fully.—Rev. L. W. Marshall in the Methodist.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 3/8 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 2 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACH Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/8 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

WHY I BELIEVE IN CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.

By DR. DONALD W. RICHARDSON,
Richmond, Virginia.

1. I am a Christian. To be a Christian is to be a missionary; I can't be a Christian and be indifferent to the needs of others.

2. I have seen some of the need of the non-Christian world. Back of its physical, intellectual, economic, political and social ills, I have seen the need for a knowledge of Jesus Christ and the God whom He reveals.

3. I know from experience and observation that among the many panaceas and saviours which are being offered to the world today Jesus Christ alone is actually saving men and women.

4. When I entered the Christian Church I thereby became a life-member of a divinely established missionary society. If I did not believe in missions I would be false to my membership in this missionary organization.

5. I believe that the words of Christ when He told His disciples to "go into all the world to teach and heal and preach the Gospel" are to be taken literally. We who are within the Church manifest our love and our loyalty to the Lord by the measure in which we carry out His command. In neglecting the hungry and thirsty, and naked and sick and imprisoned of the world I am neglecting Christ.

6. In Christ and His message I have a vision of the possibilities of people. I see them not only as they are, but also as they may be. I see not only their achievements, but also their capacities for achievement.

7. While recognizing the many elements of value to be found in other religious faiths, I have seen that these other systems at their highest and best do not supply the value which is found in the Christian faith and Way of Life. Their essential inadequacy lies in their ignorance of Christ, the Revealer of God and Redeemer of man.

8. I believe that in Christ alone is found the solution for the needs of the individual, of society, of civilization, and that around Him alone center the noblest, the most unselfish, and the most enduring activities of man.

9. I believe in the possibility of a world in which people of every race and nation may live as the children of God—in a social order characterized by righteousness, peace and gladness. I believe that this better world must be built of men and women who have been redeemed in every land and brought into the Kingdom of Heaven by the grace of God in Christ.

10. I have seen some of the results of Christian missions—glorious transformations in character, marvelous restorations of lost mental and moral and social and spiritual order. I have seen pagan minds enlightened, bodies healed, souls saved, societies regenerated; and an atmosphere of gloom changed into one of gladness.

11. I believe that the Church and the Christian need mission work as an avenue of expression for the Christ-life within, as a field of service and sacrifice. By engaging in this work they themselves become enriched and fruitful.

12. I believe that Christ's purpose and program call for co-operation on the part of His followers. He has placed His own cause upon the hearts and in the hands of His disciples.

The completion of His will for the world, His method, His Church, His Ideal for man, is by the way of foreign missions.

13. With such a God as Christ reveals, with such purposes of grace and love as the Christian Scriptures proclaim, the foreign missionary enterprise is a moral necessity. I should be ashamed to be so spiritually obtuse as not to see the logical issue of my fellowship with Christ.

14. The best which I have I desire to share with humanity; selfishly to keep for myself and my own community would be non-Christian. That best is not some theory of government, not some system of culture, not some program of social uplift, not science, not the veneer of Western civilization, but the knowledge of a loving and saving God. Not to share this knowledge would indicate a pathetic lack of faith in my own religion.

15. I know missionaries whom the Churches have sent out—most of them humble, courageous men and women, whose names may never be written in human history; but who are the agents of God for the establishment of His Kingdom. They are in the line of God's great succession of Kingdom builders. I would share with them, to the limit of my opportunity, in the divinest, the most daring, and the most gloriously fruitful enterprise of all the ages.

16. Finally, I believe in Christian missions, because "This is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent." The greater part of the world today does not yet know, and can come to know God only through messengers whom the Christians may send out to tell the Good News.
—In the Christian Observer.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 24, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,387.12
Class No. 2, Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C. .	1.00
Durham, N. C. ....	7.60
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va. ....	10.16
South Norfolk, Va. ....	5.92
Berea (Nansemond), Driver, Va. ....	5.00
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C. ....	3.68
Roanoke, Ala. ....	1.00
First Church, Richmond, Va. ....	4.58
Spring Hill, Waverly, Va. ....	.96
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C. ....	3.25
Newport News, Va. ....	9.00
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C. ....	3.27
Total .....	$ 1,442.54

Specials.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 726.21
C. E. Society, Palm Street Church, Greensboro, N. C. ....	6.00
Class No. 3, Rosemont, Norfolk, Va. ....	3.00
Pleasant Hill C. E. Society, Liberty, N. C. ....	1.05
Burlington, (N. C.) Sunday School ....	26.26
Total .....	$ 762.52

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,284.25
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	55.42
Specials .....	36.31
Total to date .....	$ 8,375.98

J. O. ATKINSON, Secretary.

DR. HUGH L. ROBINSON.

By D. P. CUSHING,
News Editor, The American Board.

All day, and far into the night, an American worked for weeks at a time over an operating table as hundreds of suffering Chinese soldiers and civilians passed beneath his skilful fingers. It was Dr. Hugh L. Robinson, of Lintsing, North China, now of Tunghsien, who first went to China under the American Board in 1925. Wards, private rooms, isolation chambers, dining hall and chapel were filled to overflowing with wounded. Ether gave out—drugs were depleted—bandages ran short, as contending armies swept back and forth over Lintsing, leaving their wounded.

Lintsing Hospital, known as the Elizabeth Memorial Hospital, now under the direction of Dr. Alma L. Cooke, is the only medical unit within 60 miles in any direction, and serves at least 1,000,000 persons. Tungchow Hospital, also known as the Lu Ho Hospital, last year served 534 in-patients, and more than 20,000 out-patients, or dispensary visitors.

While he was at Lintsing, Dr. Robinson introduced vaccination campaigns against smallpox. He won the cooperation of the municipal government and the Chamber of Commerce. When friends in America sent Dr. Robinson a much-needed X-ray machine, the Minister of Finance granted exemption from all custom charges. The city of Lintsing donated the lumber from an old temple to make a little house in which to keep the machine. It was brought up by river and was so heavy that the doctor hired 24 men and two coffin poles to carry it from the boat. Thus significantly did he combine the symbols of life and death.

Dr. Robinson was born in Milton, N. H., and was educated at Colby College and Harvard Medical School. He remained in Lintsing until after his last furlough in 1932, when he was returned to head Lu Ho, or Tungchow Hospital. This transfer from Lintsing brought Dr. Robinson 300 or 400 miles further north, and within 45 minutes of Peiping.

Not only has he hospital work, but also the medical care of the students in the schools. Recently he wrote: "We have 800 health examinations to do in two months. We shall find a few active cases of tuberculosis to send home, a dozen cases of heart disease who must be trained how to live, numbers of diseased tonsils to take out, and hundreds of cases of trachoma, following up what the examinations reveal."

A new unit was dedicated last fall, called the Parsons Memorial Obstetrical Unit, in memory of young Dr. Edward F. Parsons, who died in 1931. This ward is already being used to capacity. In nine months of 1933, Dr. Robinson reported having more obstetrical cases than in all of 1932.

NOTICE.

The Annual Spring Missionary Rallies of the Eastern Virginia Conference will be held as follows:

Norfolk District.—Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Superintendent. Elm Avenue Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., Tuesday, April 3rd.

Nansemond-Gates-Franklin District.—Mrs. B. D. Jones, Superintendent. Berea (Nansemond), Wednesday, April 4th.

Waverly District.—Mrs. E. T. Atkinson, Superintendent. Spring Hill, Thursday, April 5th.

MRS. J. E. CARTWRIGHT, Pres.,
MRS. L. W. STAGG, Secretary.

A Story for the Children

DUANE AND DARUMA.

Duane Stuart lived in Japan because his father was a teacher in a university there. The home of the Stuart family was in the city where the university was, but Duane and his mother were spending some time in the mountains because Duane had not been well. The doctor had recommended mountain air and plenty of exercise. But winter was coming on and Duane did not like to go out-of-doors.

"You should go out in this first flurry of snow," said his mother, "then you will get used to the cold gradually." But Duane wanted to sit and look at pictures, or have his mother tell him stories. He liked to just sit and look out of the window and watch the people of the little mountain village, especially the children. He always knew when they came from school by the clatter of their wooden shoes.

There was no church or Sunday school as Duane had known them. Instead there was a Buddhist temple with a huge idol in it. And the Buddhists had a Sunday school where the Japanese children learned the teachings of Buddha instead of the teachings of Christ. Duane did not know much about Buddha, except that he was an ancient teacher, and that the idol in the temple was an image of him.

Duane and his mother always had their own worship service on Sunday, and Duane liked that. He had a set of Bible pictures from which his mother told him stories, and he learned about the people in the Bible. Duane found a picture of Jesus with his disciples, and he tried to guess which one was Peter. Duane liked Peter, because he was always doing things. He went fishing, and walked on the water, and always seemed to be doing things for Jesus.

It was the morning that they had studied about Peter walking on the water, and as Duane said, pretty nearly getting sunk, that the Japanese children, coming from their Buddhist Sunday school, beckoned for Duane to come out and play with them in the snow.

"You really must get out, son," said Mrs. Stuart. "You will have more fun with them than you would have here alone." And she hurried him into his coat and boots for an outdoor frolic.

The Japanese children, of course, were very polite. They asked Duane if he would be captain for one side of a snowball fight. Duane didn't like snowball fights, but, of course, he wanted to be as polite as they were. So he said, "Why not make a snow man?"

"Oh, Daruma, Daruma," cried all the children, and began to roll soft balls that could be packed together to make a man. Duane didn't know who or what Daruma was, but it sounded to him like the name of a man.

"Shall we try to make legs for him or have him sitting down?" he asked the boy who had joined him in rolling a big ball.

"Oh, Daruma has no legs," explained the boy. "He was a disciple of Buddha's who sat so long in one position that he lost his legs. That's why he makes such a good snow man. We don't have to bother with legs."

With so many working, the snow man was soon made, and he looked like an idol. Some of the children pressed long lines into his face with their fingers. Duane could readily see that it wouldn't do to suggest anything funny like a cocked hat or a pipe in his mouth for some one who was held in reverence.

The Japanese children had to hurry on home, and Duane went back into the house, happy and rosy after his hour of fun. He told his mother about Daruma, and they both looked out at the solemn-faced snow man.

"I don't see much to a fellow like that," said Duane, suddenly. "He just sat still so long that he lost his legs. Not much like Peter, was he?"

"How about your legs?" asked his mother, smiling. Duane looked at her a little puzzled at first. Then he knew that she meant that he stayed in the house too much, and liked to sit and look at pictures when he should be exercising out-of-doors.

"Well, I haven't lost them yet," he answered, laughing. "But I believe I should use them more. I guess it's no harder for me to get out in the cold and play than it was for Peter to walk on the water. I'll be no Daruma."

After that Duane needed no urging to get out every day, and by spring when his father had a vacation and came up the mountains to see how his family was getting along, he found Duane so rugged and well that it was not necessary for him to stay longer in the mountains. The Stuart family all went home happily together, and Duane had taken Peter for his model instead of Daruma.—Eva R. Baird in The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

(Continued from page 5.)

on the housetops or on the ground. So there are no beds to make. The whole family eat out of the same big dish, taking their portions in their fingers, so there are no dishes or knives and forks to wash. But I must not disclose too many of the secrets of Palestinian life along this line, else some of the young girls who read these lines might wish to move to Palestine. But it is indeed an interesting picture to see a whole family sitting on the floor with a large kettle of meat before them, the father helping himself first, and then indicating to the guest, if there be one present, that his turn is next, and then the members of the family according to age coming after, the mother taking her portion last. Cooking is a very simple duty to the Palestinian woman. She has no worry about what to cook, or how to have a change in the menu. But from day to day the menu from meal to meal must be largely the same.

Another reason for there being but little house-keeping responsibility for the women in Palestine is that the homes have but one, two or three rooms at the most, and these rooms have no pictures on the wall to be dusted, no furniture other than perhaps a rough table, a few boxes used for chairs, and many homes not having even these, to be arranged in their respective places, house-keeping is a simple matter. Perhaps the house might have two or three cots, but in most instances all members of the family sleep on thick mats of reed and hides laid on the stone floor of the house. No thought of decorations, no worry about broken windows, no wall paper to be kept clean or changed after a few years of use, no woodwork to be washed, no furniture to be dusted, just a small stone floor to be swept and hence no housecleaning in autumn or in spring to be done or even to be looked forward to with feverish dread all the rest of the year. How some American women would sigh for such a relief from household drudgeries!

There are no formalities practiced between the members of a Palestinian family of the type referred to. They never think of saying, "help yourself first," or "please," or "thank you," or "pardon me," to each other. Such conversation is reserved for strangers.

The women of Palestine do not expect courtesies from the men. In fact, they are really slaves to the men. But both the men and the women in Palestine think of the men of the West as being slaves to the women. They laugh about it, and joke the Western man for being such a slave to his wife that he has to take her wherever and whenever she wants to go, that he has to please her at all times, and never fail to consider her wishes. The Eastern woman thinks all this is very strange and out of place for a man to be such a slave to a woman, as they think is the case of the men in our country toward the women.

The Palestinian home life is of the patriarchal type, just as it has been down through all the centuries since the days of Abraham and before that. The father is the dictator of the household. His wishes are supreme. His word is law. His sons, when married, bring their brides to the father's home to live. The father has authority over the married sons, tells them what to do, and directs them in their work. The mother has authority over her own daughters and over the wives of her sons. She tells them what to do and directs them in their work. The sons' wives are virtually servants to their mothers-in-law.

"Woman's rights" in Palestine are confined to the right to work, and to live in subjection to her husband who considers himself much her superior. What a contrast between the privileges the women of America enjoy and the lack of privileges granted the women in Palestine! But there is no country in all the world that gives greater consideration to woman than does America—no country offers its women so many advantages. But there are many countries in the world where the women are treated with the same lack of consideration as they are in Palestine.

(The next article will be on "Lasting Impressions of Palestine.")

HOW A GREAT WORK BEGAN.

The Rev. Charles H. Posnett, the Medak missionary who has had such a remarkable work among the caste people of India, tells the following story: Miss Harris, on a jungle expedition to villages in Hyderabad State, encountered a very old man begging her to do something for a sick man on a litter. No response had come from years of work in that district by Dr. Posnett and his sister and Miss Harris. Here was a man dying of cholera. She reasoned: "If I do anything for him and he dies, people will say that I have poisoned him."

Nevertheless she did not resist the call of human need. She tended him, knowing he was dying, doing all the disagreeable things a nurse has to do for a cholera patient there in the jungle. The villagers came around and, pointing at her scornfully, said: "She must have been a scavenger" (the lowest occupation known in India).

The man died, and Miss Harris received no thanks from anybody. She was avoided and criticized and thought, "I have done more harm than good." But six months later the old man came to see Dr. Posnett and called to his memory that night: "I heard the scornful remarks about her being a scavenger. It was wonderful that she should have gone through all that to help my son who was dying. I have now brought all my family. We want to have the religion that could make her do that."

That was the beginning of the great mass movement in which these Indian outcasts have become so sure of Christ that they are making a tremendous impression on caste people so that they too are coming to Christ. They see the outcasts who become Christians have the same principle of life and service as Miss Harris revealed.—Missionary Review.

No poverty under the moon can reach the level of the poverty of riches.—Milton Lee.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

HELP FOR THE SOUL.

A tired body rests much more quickly than a weary soul. A sick body is much less dangerous than a sick soul, and recovers more rapidly. When one is weary of heart, life loses its charm.

Those who seek to live at their best, who feel keenly for their friends, who allow their souls to get under the burdens of the world today are liable to find the cross they bear a bit too heavy for their strength. Joseph of Aramathea helped Jesus with His cross, and Jesus in turn helped Joseph with his.

During recent days of convalescence I have read "Jesus and Ourselves," by Leslie D. Weatherhead, and have been refreshed. It is a good book, one that is worth reading slowly, and then reading again. It helps to bring one into the presence of Jesus.

There are illuminating chapters on "Jesus' Respect for Our Personality," "Jesus and Our Temptations," "Jesus and Our Conflicting Hungers," "Jesus' Answer to Our Unsolved Problems," "Jesus and Reality in Religion," "The Radiance of Jesus," and "The Presence of Jesus," and many other helpful themes. I can wish for you, my friends, nothing better than that you read the book and come to experience the Friendship of Jesus about which the author writes.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP OF THE SOUTHEAST.

Two years ago, at the meeting of the Southern and Southeast Conventions in Burlington, North Carolina, the Youth Fellowship was voted into the convention as a department of young people's work. This was a new and forward movement for the young people of Congregational and Christian churches in the southeast.

During the meeting of the Southern and Southeast Conventions in Suffolk, Virginia, on May 1st-4th, there will be a meeting for the young people. Representatives from every part of our Southeast Convention should be at this meeting. It is quite a long ways for some of them to come—from Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky, but the inspiration and information which these representatives can get at the meeting in Suffolk will be worth far more than the cost of the trip.

Here's hoping that conference and association leaders, leaders of young people, and young people themselves, will begin planning at once to have delegations representing each State in the Suffolk convention.

Detailed plans of the program cannot yet be announced, but will be published on this page before the meeting in May. Efforts are being put forth to have some of our outstanding leaders present to bring messages of help.

PROGRAM OF SPRING CONFERENCE.

EASTERN VIRGINIA YOUTH FELLOWSHIP.

PLACE: Suffolk Christian Church.

TIME: Saturday, March 10, 1934.

THEME: "Walking With the Master."

CONFERENCE SONG: "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

1:30 Registration.

Conference of officers and discussion by group leaders.

- 2:00 Called to Order, President.
Worship Service, Suffolk Young People.
Report on "A Philosophy of Life That Works," Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.
Conference Song.
- 3:00 Discussion Period:
"A Philosophy of Life That Works," by Walter H. Judd.
Principle 1. Led by Rev. F. C. Lester.
Principle 2. Led by Dr. W. M. Jay.
Principle 3. Led by Dr. E. W. Jones.
Principle 4. Led by Rev. R. A. Whitten.
Principle 5. Led by Rev. J. G. Truitt.
Principle 6. Led by Dr. N. G. Newman.
- 4:00 Brief report from each group.
- 5:00 Rest Period.
- 6:00 Fellowship Supper, Rev. R. Lee House, toastmaster.
- 7:00 Discussion Period:
"How Can We Make the Youth Program in Our Churches Carry Out Teachings of Christian Religion?"
Group 1. Led by Miss Irene Cotten.
Group 2. Led by Mr. C. E. Warrington.
Group 3. Led by Miss Lillye Holland.
Group 4. Led by Mrs. W. B. Williams.
- 8:00 Conference Song.
Address—"Walking With the Master," Rev. J. F. Morgan.
- 8:45 Communion Service, conducted by Rev. J. G. Truitt.
- 9:30 Adjournment.

WHAT DID RELIGION MEAN TO JESUS?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC, MARCH 11, 1934

The Worship Program.

Theme: "What did religion mean to Jesus?"

Prelude: "Immortal love, forever full."

(Instrumental.)

Call to Worship: "Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of God; He will teach us His ways, and we will walk in His paths."

Hymn: "Love Divine, All Love Excelling."

Scripture: Luke 10:25-28; Acts 10:38.

Prayer Hymn: "Take My Life and Let It Be."
(To follow a moment of silent prayer.)

Picture Study: "Christ in Gethsemane," by Hoffman.

Hymnic Benediction:

"Lord, let us now remain in peace,
Who in Thy name are gathered here;
Disclose the brightness of Thy face,
And be forever near."

To the Leader: Helpful source material will be found in the Gospels, in the bulletin, "What is Religion," issued by the Young People's Department, Congregational Education Society, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. (3 cents), and in the statement of "A Philosophy of Life that Works," by Walter H. Judd (Student Volunteer Movement, 254 Fourth Avenue, New York City, 10 cents), which is an interpretation of fundamental truths of the Christian religion by a young man of today.

Discussion.

"Religion gives us a light to follow and music by which to march."

Worship. Religion meant worship to Jesus, who as a normal man could no more live without worship in some form than without bread. Jesus knew only the true God. To Jesus the habit of worship meant more than any other, and those who love Him best come to see life and religion in that sense.

Service. The religion that Jesus practiced and revealed to us is both horizontal and vertical. "Do all the good you can to all the people you can, in all the ways you can, in all the places you can, at all the times you can." Such a life is possible only when God seems near and real.

Thought. Jesus went apart from others quite frequently to think things through for Himself. He showed that the believer after learning the principles by which God wants him to live must think through a way of life and make personal decisions based on those principles. Religion that does not call for thought would not long satisfy the active minds of this twentieth century.

Organized Activity. Jesus made His religion an organized activity to save the world from sin and ignorance. He chose the twelve and sent them forth to preach the kingdom of God. Then He chose the seventy and sent them out on a widespread series of missionary tours.

Prayer. Jesus' religion means much prayer. Prayer is reaching upward to make real some ideal of the heart, just as Langley and the Wright Brothers were reaching upward to a better way of travel when they launched crude airplanes and tried to overcome the downward pull of gravitation.

The Scriptures. To Jesus religion meant the basing of all teachings and practices on God's word given in the Scriptures. The doctors in the temple found that as a twelve-year-old boy Jesus had come to know the wisdom of the Old Testament and could ask questions that they had difficulty to answer.

Giving Light. Religion to Jesus was a means of giving light. He answered patiently and with sympathy the questions of those who came to Him troubled and doubtful. He could not induce one young man to give up his wealth and follow Him, yet the Gospel story says that Jesus loved this young man. He tried to throw all the light on the path to God.

For Children. "If we had the spirit of Him who welcomed and blessed the children," said one friend, "we shouldn't have difficulty in finding Junior superintendents when there are children who, with such leadership, could have a society." Yes, and the children He loved and helped were the daughters of pagans as well as the sons of His own people.

Serving Strange People. The tax-gatherer was despised; yet Jesus called one down out of a tree so that He might go to his house and eat. Jesus heard the cry of the poor blind beggar. He did not shun the Roman centurion.

Courage. Jesus did not quibble or stutter when facing a threatening situation. Those who follow styles and public opinion blindly and selfishly, find it hard to understand such a Saviour and such a religion.

Scripture Selections.—John 6:35; 8:12; 14:6; 10:9-11; 12:32; Matt. 28:19-20; Heb. 2:9-10; i. Peter 1:8; i. John 3:1-3.

Questions.—What does religion actually mean to the average young person today? What problems does he face in acquiring a satisfying religious life? Does it mean "taking all the joy out of life," or putting more joy into life? Is religion something we can talk about as we talk about our other activities and interests of life? Or is it a topic upon which there is reticence be-

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

JESUS' TESTIMONY CONCERNING HIMSELF.

LESSON IX—MARCH 4, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."
—Matthew 11: 28.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 11: 2-12: 50.

The Man Who Was in Doubt.

Of all the men in the world to ask the question, "Art thou He that should come, or do we look for another?" John the Baptist was the last one. He had borne witness that Jesus was the Messiah, he had prepared the way for Him, he had seen the Spirit descending like a dove and abiding upon Him, and yet here he was asking Jesus if He was really the Messiah. How could John do such a thing? The answer is rather simple. First of all, John was shut up in a dark prison, he was inactive, he was not able to do anything. He was therefore an easy prey to doubt and discouragement. Furthermore Jesus was not doing anything to get John, His kinsman and His friend out of jail. And finally, Jesus was not fulfilling John's thought of the way He ought to be doing things. John had said that Jesus would baptize with "fire," but there did not seem to be anything fiery about Jesus. John therefore began to have misgivings, he began to wonder whether after all Jesus was the One who should come.

If John showed human weakness in succumbing to his doubts, he showed good sense in dealing with them. He took them to Jesus. He felt that Jesus would at least be honest with his doubts. We will do well to take our doubts directly to Jesus. In His Person and in His Presence doubts are resolved. Jesus himself is the answer to our doubts. It is worth noting that Jesus did not condemn John for his doubts. He dealt sympathetically and kindly with the disturbed and doubting prophet. It is not a sin to doubt, to doubt honestly. Christ welcomes honest doubt.

Jesus' Answer to Doubt.

Jesus' answer to John's doubt is significant. He makes no extravagant claims for himself. He does not arbitrarily and dogmatically assert His Messiahship. He simply tells the disciples of John to tell their master what they had seen—the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them. Proof of Jesus' messiahship is not to be found in the cataclysmic or catastrophic things, not in a demonstration of material power nor in the physical overthrow of His enemies, but in the moving of His spirit in its healings, wholesome, renewing, creative ministry.

It is not by might nor by power—it is in and quieter and more pervasive ways. In the increasing recognition of the place and value of childhood, in the dignity of womanhood, in the healing of the sick, in the care of orphans and the aged, in the sharing with the underprivileged, in the preaching and teaching of the words of eternal life—in these and in countless other ways are the final evidences that Christ is the One who should come, the Messiah, the Anointed of God.

Jesus and Those Who Labor and are Heavy-Laden.

"I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth." The words are suggestive. Gratitude was a permanent quality of the mind and heart of Jesus. God was His Father. He always addressed God as His Father. And His Father, who was Lord of heaven and earth, who had all power, was a loving Father. This is the central message of the gospel—God is not only all-powerful and all-wise; God is all-loving.

"Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes." It is no plea for ignorance as opposed to scholarship. It is a plea for the teachable spirit, for the child-like mind and heart. The self-righteous and self-sufficient Scribes and Pharisees were not finding and could not find the inner secrets of God, because they did not have the humble heart and the teachable spirit. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Jesus would have us get all the knowledge we can. But He boldly asserts that the secret to true knowledge is not a brilliant head but an humble heart.

"All things are delivered unto me of my Father." It is either the ravings of a mad man, or the sober statement of one who was the Son of God. Jesus was so wholly consecrated to God's will, God could so fully trust Him, that He committed all that He had into the Son's hands. And we, who will do God's will, can have God's power.

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." These words are both a challenge and an invitation. It was a dangerous statement to make. There were in that crowd to which Jesus made this statement, and there have been down through all the centuries, those who are burdened and heavy laden. It was inevitable that some one would put Him to the test. They did, and they have. But always as men have gone sincerely and humbly and trustfully to Jesus with their burdens of guilt and sin and doubt and despair, He has given them rest.

"I will give you rest"—not an abstract principle, but a living Person. "I am meek and lowly in heart"—it is the only quality of His character. Nowhere does He say He is courageous, or pure, or unselfish, and so on, but He does say that He is meek and lowly in heart. We are to have the mind in us which was in Christ Jesus.

"Rest unto your souls"—how we need that. Bodies may be rested, minds may be rested, but unless there is rest for the soul of man—what a burden life does become. Christ is rest unto our souls. He can take away the strain and stress. He can give peace, inner harmony, rest.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

(Continued from uage 10.)

cause it seems so unnatural? Do we have to have a special tone of voice in which to talk about God? Why? "Religion has nothing to do with economics or politics." Do you think Jesus would agree? Are we looking at the matter of conversion as Jesus' words and acts show He did.

It is when we come face to face and alone with Christ, and listen to his words, and meditate upon his spirit, that we come to understand what religion meant to Him and what it may mean to us.

Without the Bible man would be in the midst of a sandy desert, surrounded on all sides by a dark and impenetrable horizon.—Daniel Webster.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

. 133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

A DOZEN PROVERBS.

"God is my record . . . and this I pray . . . that ye may approve the things that are excellent; and that ye may be sincere and without offense till the day of Christ."

The following proverbs, taken from the sayings of Charles Fillmore are suggestive of the things that are excellent and for which Paul prayed that the souls of the Philippian Church might be able to see and accept:

"Eradicate evil, cultivate good.

"Hypocrisy is counterfeit character.

"Love never asks the price of its gifts.

"Think no wrong, if you would do no wrong.

"A man without 'Go' cannot reach the goal.

"He alone is princely who stands for principle.

"It may be wrong to fight to right your wrongs.

"Dreaming about things does not bring them about.

"The strongest man is the one who knows his weakness.

"When asked to do your duty, do not say, 'Wait a minute.'

"The worst 'broke' man is the one who has broken his promise.

"Unless you endure, you are an undoer of what you have done."

Prayer—O Lord, our dear Father, enable us to find the excellent things of life and give us simplicity and purity of soul. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

PEACE AND JOY.

"To the counsellors of peace there is joy."—Prov. 12:20.

"Blessed are the peace-makers, for they shall be called the sons (children) of God."—Matt. 5:9.

Studdert-Kennedy says:

Peace does not mean the end of all our striving,

Joy does not mean the drying of our tears;

Peace is the power that comes to souls arriving

Up to the light where God himself appears.

Joy is the wine that God is ever pouring

Into the hearts of those who strive with him,

Light'ning their eyes to vision and adoring,

Strengthening their arms to warfare glad and grim.

How true it is that peace instead of cessation from action is the result of striving for right. And true joy comes not from worldly thrills but from victories in our strivings.

So, today, let us look unto the Lord who will teach us his way; who inspires us to walk in his paths; from whom comes our victories and our joys; who turns our hearts and our hands to honest labor; and beats swords into ploughshares, spears into pruning hooks, and gives peace and joy among one another and among nations.

WEDNESDAY.

GOD SPEAKING.

"He that is of the truth heareth my voice."—Jno. 18:37.

The mention of the Voice of the Lord in the Scriptures is interesting. Jesus was introduced into his ministry by a voice from heaven saying: "This is my beloved Son, hear ye him;" and the experience of John in Rev. 1:12, who "turned to see the voice that spake," is the experience of those who heard that voice from heaven; and though seeing, no man discovered it was the voice of God, and they gave a shout of glory that it was the Voice of God and not of man."

Did you ever hear the voice of God? If so, in what was it? We are told that President Roosevelt lives so close to God, and is so deeply Christian that he "actually believes that God hovers over the White House and guides him in the way he should go as a leader of his people." How thankful we are for a leadership which feels such a relation to the Divine.

God hovers about us also in a thousand different ways, and each is a voice. He speaks to us in Christian living; in good literature; in the churches; in welfare institutions, hospitals, orphanages, homes for the poor, homes for the aged; in the lives of persons whose lives live after them; in all good; in right; in the voice of conscience; and the voice of that wonderful intuition which the Holy Spirit endows us with.

Maybe the voice you hear is different. It is true that Jesus is something different to every person; it is true that to teach he shows something new; it is probably true that no other person sees just as you see; but of this be assured: that to each he is the Saviour, to teach God is speaking directly, and to all, in common; he is the Saviour, he is love, joy, peace and harmony; to all he is the claim of the right and the good." "This is my beloved Son; hear ye him!"

Prayer—O Lord, bountiful Father, grant us to hear thy will in its every call to us, and make our daily action a response to that call.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

WHAT CHRIST GIVES THEE.

"Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God revealed them unto us by his Spirit."—I. Cor. 2:9, 10.

To expose one's self to Christ and come under the spell of his light is as if a window had opened and a light had streamed in. Under this spell, immediately one finds himself craving to get rid of his sins and longing to become like him—like him in beauty, and in goodness, and enjoying the belief that his love still enfolds and upholds him.

With the realization of these longings comes a sense of true values and things vital, a sense of purity of soul, and a knowledge of the unfailing Christ.

"Cast thy all upon him for he careth for you."

Prayer—Dear Father, we pray for that humility of soul and readiness of mind that receives thy word as our light and our salvation. This blessing we ask, for Jesus' sake.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

WHY THE BIBLE ENDURES.

"Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits, whether they are of God; because false prophets are gone out into the world."—I. Jno. 4:1.

Because it testifies of and points to Jesus, and then it invites us not merely to believe but to try it; to find the excellent, and to try them whether they be of God; because it not only tells of God and his Son Jesus Christ our Saviour, but it tells us of what others have found in him and what following him has proven to be in their lives; because it not only says: "Believe and thou shalt be saved," but also says: "He will show thee, O man, what is good."

The history of Christian people bears witness to these facts, and invites us to try him for ourselves. We can never know until we have tried him and given him a chance. The experience of others cannot become our experience until we try him.

Prayer—Dear heavenly Father, we know not what to pray for, but thou knowest what we need. O God, help us to draw away from the world and just be thine wholly.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

ERGOPHILES.

"With good will doing service."—Read Eph. 6:1-9.

At the last semi-annual meeting of the National Puzzlers' League a new word was coined and offered to the world. It is "ergophile," from two Greek words meaning "work" and "love," so that the word signifies one who loves his work and rejoices in his tasks.

Long live the ergophiles! Indeed, they are sure to live long and happily and prosperously. But the work-haters (ergophobists or misergists) are sure to lead a wretched existence.

All honorable life is a service; and if we do not do service with good will, as Paul urges, we do not really do service at all. No one wants a grouchy servant in his house or a cross-grained employee in his office. Is our divine Master different from us in this feeling? When a business is sold, its "good will" must go with it.

Prayer—Our hearts are thine, heavenly Employer! We will do thy work because it is thy work and because we love thee. We will labor in thy service with happy hearts. We will be thine ergophiles.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

LIFE PRISONERS.

"I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus."—Read Eph. 3:1-13.

When Paul wrote that, he was a literal prisoner in Rome; but after his release and before his incarceration he rejoiced to know that he was a prisoner of Christ Jesus, just as he was proud to call himself the slave of Christ. No bond could be servile, no chain could be burdensome, if only it held him firmly to his Saviour.

Christ's prisoners, whether in prison or outside, rejoice in the liberty wherein Christ has set his brothers free. We are life prisoners and would not have it otherwise, for this imprisonment means life indeed.

Prayer—We have taken thy yoke upon us, our Saviour. May we never again be entangled with the yoke of bondage.—Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A little Japanese girl in Hawaii who was detected stealing from her schoolmates in the public school, was induced by the probation officer to make public confession of her sin before the whole school of seven hundred. This wise probation officer explained to the school that they must be charitable in all future relationships toward the offending member of their group, pointing to the fact that the little girl had no Christian influence at home. Her parents did not belong to any church, and she had not been encouraged by them to attend Sunday School. She told the school that during the twenty years she had been probation officer in Hawaii, she had never been called upon to investigate the character of any boy or girl who belonged to a Sunday School. The sequence to this episode was registered the following Sunday, when fifty new pupils presented themselves at the Japanese Sunday School in that neighborhood.—Missionary Review.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

UNITED WITH CHRIST.

By LOUIS S. CUPP, in Christian-Evangelist.

TEXT: "For if we have become united with him."—Romans 6: 5.

Here is a doctrine new and strange to most believers. In becoming Christians we have become united with Christ. We have begun living with Christ. Christ has begun living with us.

Christ began his earthly career by living for thirty years in a home. He was the eldest of a large family of brothers and sisters. He was familiar with all the intimate problems of family life. He knew about sweeping the floors, patching garments, carrying water and baking bread. He had friends and neighbors. People lived next door to the Son of God, and never knew it. He knew about making gardens, sowing wheat, breaking oxen and catching fish. His eyes were open to lilies and birds, and his heart was touched with pity for the poor and debauched. He knew what was on the inside of men's hearts.

Christ's first followers lived with Christ. In city, in country, they ate, slept and lived together. They were friends and constant companions. He was full of wisdom, and they sought his advice about all the problems of life. In time they felt they could not live without him. The first news of his approaching death brought the shock of impending separation. He told them death could not break their comradeship. The companionship of Christ was to persist beyond the changes of resurrection and ascension. He would be as truly with them as God had always been with him. From Pentecost forward they began dimly to discern the reality of this ever-living, ever-present Christ, who still walks all the roads of life. Paul says, "We have become united with him." Being a Christian is just living with Jesus.

We are united to Christ by a growth, as the grafted scion becomes a part of the tree. Baptism brings the believer into contact with the spiritual Christ. In time they are grown together into one. Baptized believers are to conduct themselves as men who have a new principle of life coursing through their veins. Henceforth he should live in uninterrupted communion with Christ. In baptism, having passed through a symbolic death to our old sinful life, with Jesus of his resurrection life. Jesus expressed this same vital relation between himself and believers, when he said to his disciples, "I am the vine, ye are the branches." If we remain joined to Christ, and he remains joined to us, then his life flows through us, and we become fruitful Christians. We must abide in the living Christ, and the living Christ must abide in us. Thus we have become "united in Christ."

Again, this union with Christ is illustrated by the marriage union. Writing these Jewish Christians in Rome, Paul said (7: 4), "Ye were made dead to the Law . . . that ye should be joined to another, even to him who was raised from the dead." To the Corinthians Paul said, "I betrothed you as a chaste virgin to present you to your one husband, Christ." When we are baptized into union with this risen Christ, does anything transpire which would suggest that we, also, are married to Christ? Yes, for one thing we henceforth wear his name. Before, we were sinners; now we are Christians. But there is something deeper. We are joined in a comradeship with Christ. Like married lovers, we become companions and mutual sharers of life's joys and sorrows. The most beautiful marriage union you ever knew is only a faint illustration of the joyous partnership existing between Christ and the inner life. Like a happily married couple, they go about together, live their lives together, always enjoying the same things together. Every relationship of life is glorified by this union with Christ.

Perhaps this union with Christ is the "gift" promised at Pentecost by Simon Peter: "Repent, be baptized, in the name of Jesus Christ and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." You shall receive the spirit of the holy Jesus as a gift! Who is this Holy Spirit whom it has been so hard for us to know? Perhaps it is only the spirit of the glorified Jesus, come back in a "new form," to dwell in the temple of the inner life! When John reported Christ's sermon about the water of life, and the fountains of living water which should flow from the hidden reservoirs of the soul, he paused to explain: "This he spake of the Spirit, which believers were to receive; for the Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified."—John 7: 39. If the Holy Spirit were something different from Christ, why should believers have to wait until Jesus was glorified before they could receive the Holy Spirit as a gift? But if the Holy Spirit is only the spirit of the glorified Jesus come back to dwell within the soul of the believer, then we can understand why this "gift" could not be promised believers until after Pentecost had come. Then, and not until then, Jesus had become "glorified." In the flesh he had lived with men. Henceforth, he will live in men. Hence, we should not speak of the glorified Christ as the Holy Ghost, but as the Holy Guest in the soul.

Now if we take Peter's thought about being baptized and receiving the Holy Spirit as a "gift," and put it in connection with Paul's thought about our baptism uniting us with Christ, we may come to understand they are both speaking the same language. Peter says, repent and be baptized in the name of Christ and you shall receive the spirit of Christ as a gift. Paul says, every one of you who has been baptized into Christ has been united to the spirit of Christ. Henceforth you and Christ dwell together, in the temple of the soul. You are companions and comrades for life. Paul is not talking about being united with Christ after we are dead. He is talking about being united with Christ after we are baptized. Union with Christ takes place in this life. From the day of his initiation into the Kingdom, the Christian should begin to "practice the presence of God." True religion is walking with God, living with God. Jesus lived with God every minute of his life on earth. He wants us to live with God now. "This is eternal life—to know God and Christ," now.

Our plea for union on Christ would be irresistible if we could put on a demonstration of union with Christ. We are heirs of God, yet living like paupers. A fish may die in a hole in the sand, not ten feet from the sea. He was made for the sea, the sea was made for him. Yet, he dies, because he never gets back to his native element. A miner may starve to death, with a vein of gold only a foot below the point of his pick.

In an early day an old German and his wife bought boat tickets from Cincinnati to New Orleans. They carried a basket lunch into their stateroom. While the other passengers enjoyed the sumptuous fare of the boat's dining tables, these two ate their cold lunch in the secret of their stateroom. When their food gave out, they fasted the rest of the way, staying most of the time in their stateroom. On the last day of the voyage they went out and walked the decks, trying to forget their misery. They passed the dining room doorway, and the aroma of the food floated out tantalizingly to their nostrils. They saw the dining room crowded with their fellow-passengers, enjoying the wholesome food. "My, that smells good!" said the old German. "I wonder what it would cost to eat in there?" An attendant heard him and asked, "Didn't you have tickets?" "O yes, we had boat tickets, but not meal tickets," said the German. "Why, man, didn't you know that free meals go with the boat tickets," said the attendant. Imagine the German's amazement! Living the whole voyage on cold limburger cheese, when they had three meals a day all paid for in that dining room!

How many of us are starving our souls in our own little staterooms, with God's banquet table in sight of our doors! "United with Christ." If only we could realize it, then we should begin to live.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim. . . . . 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. . 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85. . . 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. . 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim. . . . . $ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim. . . . . 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined. . . . . 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

For seventeen years the good women of our denomination have gotten a great deal of joy out of making and sending to the Christian Orphanage for Easter, dresses for the girls, both large and small, and suits for little boys up to ten years of age.

In our great need, we would not deny our good women this real joy at the approaching Easter season. Some of the most beautiful letters I have received since I have been in this work have come from good women sending dresses for the children here, telling me of the real joy they got out of the service. We want this joy to spread to all of our good women this year.

What do we need? We especially need dresses for ages from 12 to 18 years in size. We are badly in need of dresses for the larger girls, both in prints and in Sunday dresses. If you have Sunday dresses that you have worn until you want a new one, and they are in good condition, send them to us. We can sometimes make small changes and they will fit some child, and they will be glad to get one.

It will save the little bank account we have and will help us stretch it a little further. Send dresses for older girls as well as small girls, new and good second hand dresses.

Our Second Need. Little suits for little boys from three to ten years of age. Little pants and bodies. We have quite a number of pretty little boys, and they will be very happy to get a pretty little suit for Easter.

Easter Sunday is looked forward to with much joy by our children. It is the time the girls get a new dress and a pair of Sunday slippers. And the little boys get a new suit and sometimes go with bare feet.

It is a pretty sight to see them march out from their buildings all dressed up on Easter Sunday morning, going to Sunday School and to Church.

I have often wished that our good women who contribute so much from year to year to make the children happy on this occasion, could be here and see the beautiful sight. They would feel many times repaid for the service they rendered in helping to bring this joy to them.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MARCH 1, 1934.

Brought forward ..... $ 1,158.69

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Mt. Zion ..... $ 1.81
Ingram ..... 6.00

7.81

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Bethel ..... $ 4.25
Wake Chapel ..... 5.00
Auburn ..... 2.00
Moore's Union ..... 1.56
J. Ray Dickens, Moore's Union .. .44
Damascus ..... 1.50
Liberty, Vance ..... 3.58

18.33

Western North Carolina Conference:

Ramseur ..... $ 5.25
Graham ..... 1.85
Pleasant Hill ..... 3.10
Zion ..... .66
Ether ..... 1.00

11.86

Eastern Virginia Conference:
South Norfolk .....	$ 5.91
Holy Neck .....	5.10
Spring Hill .....	.67
	11.68
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Winchester .....	$ 3.98
Newport .....	1.58
	5.56
Alabama Conference:
Wadley .....	.75
Georgia Conference:
Oak Grove .....	5.00
Special Offerings.
Mrs. Dalton, support of children .....	12.50
Total for the week .....	73.49
Grand total .....	$ 1,232.18

The Methodist Episcopal Church has had encouraging results in a month of special evangelism throughout India. For example, in round figures, 800,000 people have listened to the Christian message; 13,000 are under instruction; there were 1,900 baptisms; there were 3,900 professed conversions; 1,200 were received into full church membership; and 42,000 Gospel portions were sold.

When the church records in Tondo District, Belgian Congo were read, Martha Nzali Nkoi was mentioned with the notation: "In debt to God for twenty-seven months." During all that time she had contributed nothing to the work of the Church, and it was considered time to count her out of active fellowship. She was accordingly suspended until she squares her account.—The Watchman-Examiner.

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary for the study of Bible History. New Testament Palestine. — Old Testament Palestine. — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites the

Eifers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $ 15 00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $ 20 00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book
For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim;	A. D. 31.	934 CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.
	Isa. 9. 1, 2.	AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION
4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... $4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers..... 4.75

THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... 7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding..... 8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup> The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gál'y-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	Isa. 9. 1, 2. Luke 2. 32. Mark 1. 14.	3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES

A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES
4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker.. $5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type..... 6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above ..... 10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

MARRIAGES

SHOEMAKER-RIGGLEMAN.

On February 16, 1934, my house was the scene of a quiet wedding, when Mr. Cammie A. Shoemaker and Miss Martha Susie Riggleman were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. Both are residents of Rockingham County, Va., and will reside near Harrisonburg. A. W. ANDES.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, God, in His wisdom, on the 22nd day of October, 1933, saw fit to remove from our midst our beloved friend and neighbor, Mrs. Mary Ellen Bradshaw, Be It Resolved:

- 1. That though we sorrow, we bow in humble submission to His will.
2. That Liberty Spring Christian Church has lost a devoted member and her children a loving mother; and we extend to them our deepest sympathy.
3. That her life and influence has been a blessing to us and to all who knew her, and the Christian courage and patience with which she bore her illness will ever be an inspiration to us.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and one put upon the church record of Liberty Spring.

Mrs. O. L. BAKER, Mrs. E. B. RAWLES, Mrs. I. T. BYRD, Mrs. F. F. BRINKLEY, R. E. ROGERS, E. F. O'BERRY, Committee.

McDOWELL.

Myrtle Moletia McDowell, wife of Gurney McDowell, was born November 29, 1908, and departed this life on February 17, 1934, aged 25 years, 2 months and 17 days. She leaves a husband and 2 children, father, mother, 2 sisters and three brothers.

She was a member of Tabernacle church.

She bore her suffering with patience until the end. Funeral services were held at Pleasant Union Church by the writer, assisted by Rev. Ellett, Rev. Hunt and Brother E. L. McDowell. May the Lord comfort the bereaved family.

B. H. LOWDERMILK.

WELCH.

Mrs. Emeline Welch, daughter of the late Joshua and Nancy Brown, was born June 8, 1864, and died February 11, 1934, being aged 69 years, 8 months and 3 days.

Mrs. Welch united with the Pleasant Grove Christian Church in early life and remained a faithful member until death.

She was united in marriage on October 11, 1885, to W. L. Welch, who survives with one daughter, Mrs. W. L.

Brown and three grand children, also one brother, Z. E. Brown, all of Bennett, N. C., R. 1.

She had been paralyzed for several years, bearing he affliction cheerfully and patiently to the end, when calmly she fell asleep and her soul went back to God who gave it. Burial services were held by the writer, assisted by Revs. T. E. White, D. R. Moffitt, and B. H. Lowdermilk. T. J. GREEN.

HESTER.

On May 28, 1933, Brother B. T. Hester of Long's Chapel community passed from life to the beyond. His death came at Duke Hospital after a critical illness of ten days.

Brother Hester was a son of Dr. Hester of Person County, but had been a resident of this community and a member of Long's Chapel for 27 years. For 26 years he had served as a deacon of the church

He was a quiet, unassuming man, a kind father and husband, and was loved and respected by all who knew him, as a Christian gentleman.

It is with sadness that we thus record the passing of our brother, and while we sincerely mourn his departure, we bow in humble submission to an all-wise Providence who doeth all things well.

In behalf of the church of which he was an officer we offer the following resolutions:

First. That we extend to the family in this hour of sadness our heartfelt sympathy, and assure them of our belief that he has passed from death into life, and Second. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of Long's Chapel Christian Church, a copy sent to the family, and a copy to The Christian Sun for publication.

R. W. BARNETTE, Mrs. J. A. GENTRY, Mrs. J. W. JOHNSTON, Committee.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

- J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
- E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
- S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
- J. T. KERNODLE . . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

- One Year . . . . . $2.00
- Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

HUFFMAN.

Julius Caspar Huffman was born on July 25, 1860, and died on February 18, 1934, aged 73 years, 6 months and 22 days. Bro. Huffman was a faithful member of Concord Christian Church. He united with the church there in early life, and was a faithful worker there until age and failing health forced him to retire from active service. He served the church as deacon, secretary, S. S. superintendent, and teacher, and filled other offices in the church and conference at various times. He was the recognized leader in the church for a number of years. His home was the preacher's home, and there I have always found a royal welcome and splendid entertainment. The church and the community will miss Bro. Huffman very much. Surviving are his widow and one son, and four grand-children. Funeral services were held at Concord, February 20, 1934. A. W. ANDES.

RAEMSCH.

Charlie A. Raemsch was born September 18, 1886, and was killed in a mine accident in New Mexico, December 29, 1933, at the age of 47 years, 3 months and 11 days. The remains were brought to Edinburg, Va., his wife's home town, and buried there January 16, 1934, the services being conducted by the writer, who also married this couple about twenty-one years ago in the same house in which the funeral service was held. Surviving are his widow and eight children. A. W. ANDES.

HOLLAND.

Elisha Smith Holland, son of the late Carr and Christine Holland, died at his home near Holland, Va., February 9, 1934, age 79 years. The funeral services were conducted at the home by the writer and Dr. W. M. Jay, and burial was in the family cemetery nearby. Mr. Holland leaves a widow, one brother, Carr Holland, Jr., a sister, Mrs. Julia Tomlin, one son, Willie E., and one daughter, Clara, and four grandchildren, all of Holland, R. F. D. 2.

Mr. Holland had been a member of Holy Neck Christian Church from early life and was a good man.

N. G. NEWMAN.

FAISON.

Whereas, God in his infinite love, saw fit to remove to his heavenly home our member, Mrs. Sarah Faison, who died January 20, 1934, we, the committee, submit the following resolutions:

1. We humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well.
2. We extend deepest sympathy to the family and point them to the Christ whom she so patiently served.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, one to "The Christian Sun" for publication, and one to be placed on the church record.

MRS. P. A. HINES,
MRS. L. B. FAISON,
MRS. C. E. GERRINGER,
Committee.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

FRANK E. JENKINS, Acting President.

SECOND SEMESTER WILL BEGIN
JANUARY 25th.

* * * *

STRONG FACULTY : STRONG COURSES
LOW EXPENSES : THOROUGHLY
CHRISTIAN.

* * * *

The Adult Education Department is growing rapidly, with some 150 already enrolled.

For prospectus and full information, write

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 8, 1934.

NUMBER 10.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Counterfeiting Increasing.—

Recent figures show that counterfeiting activities for the fiscal year 1934 has thus far greatly exceeded those for 1933, which amounted to 3,003 arrests and $921,499 in fake currency seized. About one-half of the fake currency is seized at the time of the arrest of the culprit, the rest is detected in circulation. Thus the country is paying a toll of approximately a half-million dollars each year to this kind of crime—a large sum. Yet so vast is the country that it amounts to less than one-half cent per capita, quite a remarkable record.

Golf by Decree.—

Throughout all of Germany, there are only 42 golf clubs at present, as compared with approximately 2,000 clubs and courses in England and Scotland, and considerably more than 5,000 in the United States. But this is to be changed. The Nazi Government has ordered exclusive clubs to lower their membership fees to two marks for adults and one mark for minors. It is preparing to dot the country with public courses, lower the cost of clubs and balls, and will soon announce a series of tournaments, beginning with a national amateur.

"Our Awakening World" Goes to Sleep.—

Readers of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty read with regret in the last week's issue the announcement of the discontinuance of Mr. Scotford's most interesting page which was carried under the above title. With the separation of the American Missionary from the above paper, and its combination with The Missionary Herald, Mr. Scotford transfers his activity to the new combination. However, he promises for those fortunate enough to be subscribers to it, that "material similar to that which has appeared on this page will be one of the features of the 'new' Missionary Herald."

Winter in the Zoo.—

Surprising facts are brought to light by observation of animal life in the zoo. Keeping these animals in captivity seems to change entirely their outlook on life. For instance, the polar bears not only seem to detest the cold weather, but are probably the dirtiest of animals during the winter months, their once white coats showing to great disadvantage against the white snow that has fallen around them. On the other hand, the monkey, native of warmer climes, seems to take to the winter with relish. We are told that "one zoo ape not only showed a complete indifference to cold, but became so enamored of the keepers' pre-breakfast game of snowballs, that he took to making snowballs and hurling them at the public, to the general delight."

"The King is Dead—Long Live the King."—

No other human drama approaches that of the death of a royal ruler and the crowning of his successor in demonstrating the awful truth that life is for the living. The King Is Dead—Long Live the King! Let the dead past bury its dead—life must go on. The sudden death of Albert, King of the Belgians, reminds the great mass of Americans, too, of the bloody days of the Great War, of the daily stories of Albert's heroic defense of his country against invading hordes of Germans, of his later visit to this country. The sympathy of our people has been extended to the Belgians, and we offer friendly hopes that the new king, Leopold III, will be able to guide his people to a solution of their domestic and foreign difficulties.—Christian Evangelist.

Takes Up the Cudgel for Science.—

In reply to the cry of Secretary Wallace that: "Science and engineering will destroy themselves and the civilization of which they are a part unless there is built up a consciousness which is real and definite in meeting social problems," Dr. Karl Taylor Compton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, calls attention to the fact that science has made many jobs by the creating of entire new industries. Some of its inventions and the number of new jobs for which they are responsible directly: Automobile, 2,400,000; electrical equipment, 1,000,000; motion pictures, 389,000; telephone, 357,000; steamship, 217,000; machine tools, 87,000; refrigeration, 72,000; airplane, 50,000; rayon, 41,000. Indirectly, it was stated, the automotive industry had employed 10,000,000, and it was inquired what these people would be doing had the old-time carriage makers succeeded in scotching the horseless buggy?

Panama Refuses U. S. Check.—

Under the Panama Canal treaty, ratified in 1904, the United States paid that republic a lump sum of $10,000,000 in gold, and agreed to make annual payments in "like gold" of $250,000. These payments are due on February 26th of each year, and on that date the United States Government tendered its check for $250,000 to the Panamanian fiscal agent in New York. It was promptly refused upon instruction from the little republic on our south. It is believed that Panama intends to demand that payment be made in gold. It is further pointed out that refusal to pay in gold on the part of the American Government may amount to abrogation of the 1904 treaty, which grants to the United States the use of the Canal Zone in perpetuity, conditioned upon the annual payments in stipulated form. Under joint Congressional resolution of June 5, 1933, all obligations public and private, to pay in gold were outlawed. If Panama persists in demanding payment in gold, it will cause the first test of the "gold clause."

Movie Star Salaries.—

Quite a bit of agitation has been going on recently regarding the salaries of motion picture stars. Samuel Goldwyn, in a recent magazine article, gives as the cause for this the fact that 400 persons in Hollywood "were drawing 51 per cent of the salaries," and adds: "I was surprised at these figures. I would have said that 40 persons in Hollywood deserved to draw 51 per cent of the Hollywood income." Mr. Goldwyn also gave to the public for the first time what was generally accepted as the salaries of the industry's foremost performers: Greta Garbo, $9,000; Will Rogers and Maurice Chevalier, $7,500 each; Constance Bennett, $7,000; John Barrymore, $6,500; Norma Shearer, Richard Barthelmess and Ann Harding, $6,000 each; and seven others with salaries varying from $5,000 down to $2,500. No, these figures do not represent their annual stipend, nor their monthly receipts. Figures are given on a weekly basis. Of course, the poor dears are only paid for 40 weeks during the year; but they, like school teachers, can pick up some other work during their vacation periods.

The Press is Spanked.—

But it howls! "Few NRA tasks have cost President Roosevelt and General Johnson more time and trouble than the newspaper code," says Time. "But there was little jubilation in the press last week. The President, vexed by the whole irksome business, had spanked the publishers. . . ." In replying to the President's remarks upon signing the code, probably the most sweeping was the New York Herald Tribune. It said, in part: "Here is . . . the first time that the President has publicly given support to the 'Smear America' campaign in which so many of his aides have participated. America has been made familiar with government by edict. Is it now to be subjected to 'government by insult'? The episode is of importance in relation to the constantly growing tendencies of the Roosevelt administration to resent criticism, however fair, and to slander all who dare cross the path of its policies." The Boston Herald thinks "The President's executive order is an amazing document. . . argumentative, bad-mannered, and offensive." Some papers have rallied to the President's defense by explaining that he "accepted the newspaper code with certain remarks which reflect the bad taste left in his mouth after months and months of unjustifiable delay" caused by "haggling for advantages . . . carried on under the camouflage of a valiant fight for 'freedom of the press'."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The church at St. Petersburg, Fla., recently installed loud speaker extension in the parish house auditorium, and Dr. Charles H. Beale had the privilege of speaking to a congregation that filled both auditoriums, a congregation of approximately 2,500 people.

Easter comes early in the calendar of the present year (first Sunday in April), and that glad and happy event, the resurrection of our Lord, the churches should be proclaiming, in order that there may be a deepening and a quickening of the spiritual life, and a re-kindled love for our risen Lord.

The church at West Palm Beach, Fla., which recently lost its fine parsonage because of a mortgage, has purchased another house for their minister which is nearer the church and is a comfortable and attractive house. The house is being reconditioned, and the pastor, Rev. Frank Atkinson, and his family, will soon occupy it.

We learn with sorrow of the death of good Mrs. W. H. Etheredge, at her home in Selma, N. C., February 14, 1934. Deep sympathy is expressed to our friend and brother, W. H. Etheredge, and the other loved ones of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Etheredge had been married fifty-four years last Christmas, having celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding four years ago. In the death of Sister Etheredge a Christian home is broken up on earth, but new ties are formed to that home above, that house not made with hands.

Rev. J. H. Lightbourne, D. D., and family, formerly of Troy, Ohio, arrived in Burlington last week and Dr. Lightbourne occupied the Burlington pulpit, to begin his pastorate there, Sunday, March 4th. We welcome Dr. Lightbourne and his splendid family to our neighboring town, to our community, and back to the South where he has served as pastor during the larger part of his ministerial career, and where he was held in highest esteem. The Burlington people are happy and fortunate in having this capable and consecrated man as pastor and his interesting and lovely family in their midst.

We are in receipt of the December and January issues of the News Bulletin, a 16-page publication from the Japan Mission of the American Board. The subscription price of the News Bulletin is fifty cents per year, and those wishing news from our missionary work in Japan will certainly find the News Bulletin worth the money and full of interest. The editors of the Bulletin are our missionaries: Mr. Roberts, Miss Angie Crew, Miss Hilbert, Rev. C. P. Garman and Mr. Huntley. All communications should be addressed to Rev. C. P. Garman, 12 Hachiyama, Shibuya-ku, Tokyo, Japan.

We learn with deep sorrow of the death of dear Sister Mrs. W. B. Madison, at her home near Wentworth, Friday, March 2nd. The funeral was conducted Sunday, March 4th, by her pastor, Rev. L. L. Wyrick, and the burial was at Howard's Chapel Church, of which she had been a member for many years. Dear Brother Madison has our deepest sympathy. The women of the Missionary Conference remember Sister Madison lovingly, because of her loyalty and devotion to the Woman's Missionary work, having a Missionary Society all her own, and attending the State Conferences regularly and paying the full dues of her regularly organized Society. The bereaved ones have our sympathy.

Rev. M. T. Sorrell, 162 Third Avenue, Danville, writes: "It seems that it falls to my part to build, but I really get a thrill out of it where building can be done to the glory of God and to help win the lost to Christ. I was at Happy Home Church on a recent Sunday, and in the morning service we received pledges amounting to $2,275.50 for a new church house, which we are praying and hoping we will start to build in the near future." Brother Sorrell is adding new Sunday School rooms to his Danville church plant, rooms required by increased attendance and enrollment in the Sunday School. We congratulate Brother Sorrell and his people in their desire and task of building for the glory of God.

Rev. H. C. Caviness, writing under date of Havana, Cuba, February 28, 1934, says: "Have recently closed campaign of six weeks for Christ in Tampa, Fla. God moved mightily, and to him shall be the glory. This is the longest campaign we ever conducted in one church (First U. B. of Tampa). We are now in Cuba on a missionary tour with the Florida Fundamental Bible Institute of Tampa. Dr. H. C. Morrison, Asbury College, Kentucky, is one of the associates. We return to Florida in March, but do not know how long we shall be there. We wish to be remembered to all THE CHRISTIAN SUN family, and crave an interest in the prayers of friends for the work we are trying to do in winning souls to Christ."

It is with regret that we received the news of the closing of Southern Union College, which failed to open its doors at the beginning of the second semester on January 25th, because of lack of finances. We are glad that our brethren in Alabama are not laying down on the job, but hope by next September to reopen the doors of a completely organized institution. A meeting has been called of the Committee on Education of the Southern Convention for today (Thursday, March 8th) at Elon College, N. C., to see what steps may best be taken relative to Southern Union. The Board of Trustees of the College met recently and elected the following committee to represent them at this meeting: Revs. G. D. Hunt, F. P. Ensminger, J. D. Dollar, Jesse H. Dollar and G. H. Veazey.

With March 1st, our annual missionary period in all the churches of the Southern Convention begins. While it is the primary function of the church to be evangelistic and to proclaim the Gospel message at home and abroad throughout the year, our Convention and the churches have deemed it wise to set aside a portion of the church year, devoted particularly to emphasizing the work of preaching the Gospel, proclaiming the Glad Tidings and the saving of souls through a knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. In other months of the church year, it is well enough to emphasize our institutional life, the care of our physically dependent and our mentally needy through benevolence and education, as the Convention has so well pointed out, but during these four months in which Easter and the resurrection come, it is most important and advisable that our pulpit and pew, our Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavor Societies and missionary organizations emphasize and re-emphasize the fact that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God, and that he must be preached to the poor and the needy at home and abroad, and that it is the foundational work of the church to proclaim the Glad Tidings through their evangelistic and missionary effort; the Glad Tidings that Peter declared to his Lord: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." And on this declaration our Lord is building his church against which the gates of hell will not and cannot prevail.

FEBRUARY PAYMENTS

Receipts from subscriptions for February are the smallest in several months. If business conditions are improving, they should certainly reflect themselves in an increasing number of renewals.

Pastors can, if they will, help wonderfully in reducing the annual deficit piled up by THE SUN, but it will take some effort on their part. The Church Paper is one of the most useful aids to the pastor if he will use it. It is also necessary to keep the laity informed in regard to the various institutions of the church. It cannot work miracles, however, and we are wondering how to get the message of the various departments' needs to some of the churches.

Here is an example: One church in the . . . . . Conference has nearly 400 members. There is a small subscription list, possibly twelve. Of these eleven, including the pastor, are in arrears. One member has sent in her subscription direct—the only remittance since the present pastor has served the church. Don't try to guess what church this is, but if yours approximates it, something is wrong.

The truth hurts. Sometimes it hurts the wrong fellow. The same thing that is causing a lack of support for your Church Paper, has caused Southern Union College to close its doors, and will ultimately wreck not one, but all of the institutions of our loved church.

There is one thing that is encouraging us: Several subscribers have written in recently asking if they might take advantage of the special offer made during January. We believe that there are possibly many others who would like to do the same, so we are renewing this offer with the hope that the blank on the opposite page will be generously used.

Possibly the small support that is being given our various enterprises makes us appreciate all the more the remittances which have been sent in this month by the following:

Mrs. A. L. Allen, 612 W. Lane St., Raleigh, N. C.
 Mrs. Iris Allison, Route 6, Burlington, N. C.
 Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.
 J. M. Ashley, Route 3, Suffolk, Va.
 Mrs. Mattie Bagwell, 605 McManet Ave., Durham, N. C.
 B. A. Barber, Elon College, N. C.
 Dr. W. H. Boone, 405 Cleveland St., Durham, N. C.
 Mrs. Numa Comer, Route 1, Wentworth, N. C.
 H. G. Council, Jr., Williamsburg, Va.
 A. S. Dunn, Route 1, Lynchburg, Va.
 W. T. Dunn, Route 1, Lynchburg, Va.
 Miss V. V. Ellis, 219 Clay St., Suffolk, Va.
 Channie E. Harrell, Route 1, Whaleyville, Va.
 Miss Jewell Hatch, 614 Fountain Place, Burlington, N. C.
 Mrs. Nannie L. Hawkins, Route 1, Cedar Grove, N. C.
 Miss Mabel I. Higgs, Stanley, Va.
 M. W. Hollowell, 15 Dahlgren Ave., Portsmouth (Cradock), Va.
 Mrs. J. W. Johnston, 110 E. Holt, Burlington, N. C.
 Rev. Ellwood W. Jones, Franklin, Va.
 Mrs. M. E. Judkins, Elberon, Va.
 Mrs. R. J. Kernodle, 1013 Watts St., Durham, N. C.
 Mrs. John W. King, 208 N. Saratoga St., Suffolk, Va. (New.)
 Mrs. L. H. Liles, 406 S. Lewis St., La Grange, Ga.
 W. T. Moore, Route 1, Wentworth, N. C.
 Rev. J. F. Morgan, 3507 Bainbridge Ave., Berkeley, Va.
 J. Herman Neese, Box 215, Haw River, N. C.
 E. W. Neville, Chapel Hill, N. C.
 Mrs. R. C. Patrick, New Hill, N. C.
 Rev. R. H. Peel, Gasport, N. Y.
 Mrs. J. H. Pierce, Sunbury, N. C.
 Mrs. W. R. Sellars, 408 Park Ave., Burlington, N. C.
 F. F. Sharpe, Route 1, Wentworth, N. C.
 Mrs. C. A. Shoop, 118 Bank St., Suffolk, Va.

Mrs. B. F. Sine, 702 Virginia Ave., Winchester, Va.
 J. H. Smiley, Warrenton, N. C.
 Miss Gladys Stephenson, Route 1, Varina, N. C.
 Mrs. J. W. Tidwell, Route 1, Suffolk, Va.
 T. W. Trogdon, High Point, N. C.
 Mrs. Jessie Tuttenton, Mebane, N. C.
 Rev. G. H. Veazey, Wadley, Ala.
 L. M. Veazey, Tifton, Ga.
 W. C. Wampler, Route 4, Harrisonburg, Va.
 M. J. W. White, 237 W. 31st St., Norfolk, Va.
 Mrs. Sam White, Pittsboro, N. C.
 W. H. Yow, Bennett, N. C.
 Mrs. R. L. Watkins, Middleburg, N. C.
 W. H. Alger, Elkton, Va.
 Mrs. Lizzie Rinker, Edinburg, Va.
 Mrs. J. S. Louderback, Stanley, Va.

Sincerely yours,

J. T. KERNODLE,

Managing Editor.

BURNING OF NEW HOPE CHURCH.

Abanda, Alabama,

February 27, 1934.

Editor, THE CHRISTIAN SUN:

Saturday, February 24th, about noon, came the shocking news that New Hope Christian Church had just been completely destroyed by fire. Having the old custom of holding Saturday preaching services a small assembly had met, the weather being cold had gathered inside the building to await the arrival of our pastor, Brother Meacham.

They discovered the building was on fire, the roof having caught from sparks from the heater. Those present made a heroic effort to save the building, but finding it impossible, turned their efforts to saving what furniture they could. They succeeded in saving the piano, some of the pews and a few other things.

The old mother church of the Alabama Christian Conference in ashes was a sad spectacle to greet its little band of worshippers on Sunday morning, but there on the hallowed spot where she had stood for almost a century, a faithful little band voiced their sentiment that we must rebuild; so with that undying faith that inspired our forefathers to press forward to overcome all obstacles, and trusting in God for guidance, and with faith in our fellowmen, we resolved to undertake to rebuild. Whereupon, a meeting was called for February 27th, wherein a building committee was appointed and given the authority to proceed with plans for the building, also a committee was appointed to solicit funds for same. We realize it will mean a great sacrifice on the part of all, since none of us are wealthy, and really it has been a struggle for many of our members to live and meet the usual requirements of the church, but with each one doing his or her part, by the help of God, we believe we can do it. We feel there are those who have gone out from the old mother church and others who have an interest in her who will want to help us, and if there be such we will greatly appreciate any contribution, whether large or small, and anyone wishing to do so, will please send same to W. H. Floyd, Treasurer, Abanda, Ala., and it will be gratefully received. Pray for us that we may have the courage to go forward and that we may soon have the pleasure of worshipping in a new building.

Fraternally,

MRS. J. T. CLACK.

AN APPEAL!

I have the sad information at hand of the burning of New Hope Church, which sad event occurred Saturday, February 24, 1934, during services. New Hope Church is the oldest of the Christian Churches in Alabama. It was established by Rev. W. M. J. Elder about the year 1850, or perhaps earlier.

Many great and good men and women have gone out from her fellowship, and many dear friends will be made sad to hear of the destruction of the building.

This is an opportunity for some constructive home missionary work. If every soul who has been blessed at her altar could know of this calamity, and express their sorrow, by the gift of one dollar, the house could easily be rebuilt. As it is the loss falls heavily upon the local church.

So, I am asking every interested friend to send a contribution to Dr. J. T. Clack, Abanda, Ala. Let us arise and rebuild for the glory of God.

G. D. HUNT.

NEWS FROM REV. G. H. VEAZEY,

My church work is about all that one could expect when all things are considered. I am serving four churches this year and it keeps me pretty busy to pay traveling expenses, but I keep going some way.

I am serving Providence Chapel in Georgia which is doing fine work, and seems to appreciate their pastor very much. They have no Sunday School, but are going to organize one when winter is over.

Rock Springs, in the Alabama Conference, has suffered greatly in the loss of some of its most consecrated members, both old and young—some by death, others moved away, and others getting feeble. However, they are still keeping house for God.

Cragford is very weak in numbers, but they have an evergreen Sunday School. The work, as a whole, is encouraging.

New Harmony has been the mother of four other churches within a range of only a few miles and, of course, does not have the territory it once had. However, we have a very enthusiastic group of young people who appreciate their church and pastor, and you know that means a great deal. They have a live Sunday School and the best Christian Endeavor Society in this section anywhere.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

(The Offer Is Continued Until Further Notice.)

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....

Street No. or R. F. D.....

City..... State.....

Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

DRY NORTH CAROLINA AND BOOT-LEGGING.

One often wonders what satisfaction, or compensation, some of the wet press of North Carolina gets out of the nauseating propaganda carried on in behalf of legalized liquor. After this good Commonwealth spoke its mind last fall, even as it never had before, in favor of a dry State, one naturally supposed that these papers would let up in their irritating propaganda, but they do not. They seem to be able to defy the popular mind and refuse to reflect the popular sentiment of the people in their blind folly to deceive, to camouflage and mislead.

A particular instance in mind is repeated editorial utterances of a neighboring contemporary—the Burlington Daily Times-News. This paper loses no opportunity in its endeavor to break down prohibition laws and sentiment in North Carolina. On its editorial page, March 2nd, this declaration is made: "It is a known fact that many racketeers, bootleggers and gangsters, having been chased out of States where the stuff is legal, have found eager and ready market for their goods in the Old North State. There is grave danger that North Carolina may become the seat of bootlegging in the nation." On reading such stuff, one might conclude that North Carolina is the greatest sufferer from the bootlegger of any State in the nation. If the editor, who wrote the above, knows anything, or gives any heed whatever to the news from other States, he knows full well that the recent vote to repeal did not in any wise abolish the bootlegger and that the bootlegger is plying his nefarious trade in the States that voted repeal with even more zeal and profit than before repeal was voted.

Maybe the editor of our neighboring contemporary never reads anything like the following, which he may have found, if he cared to, on the front page of other dailies, the same day of his editorial. We copy:

"Detroit, March 1st—(AP)—Nearly three months after the repeal of prohibition, the administrator of the alcoholic beverage unit of the Department of Justice here believes the majority of the drinking public still is patronizing the bootleggers.

"Maj. W. L. Ray, who was head of the special investigation division of prohibition enforcement before repeal, said today he was convinced that 'there are more stills in operation here since repeal, and their capacity is double what it used to be.'

"If this liquor they distill wasn't sold and consumed, these racketeers wouldn't be manufacturing it,' he said. 'The fact that the alley distilleries continue to operate—and on a larger scale—is evidence of a market for their products.

"The drinking public still calls up the bootlegger from whom it can get fair quality liquor at one-third the liquor store prices.'

"The illicit distillers, he said, having no tax to pay, are putting out a grade of alcohol comparable to the best grade of legitimate alcohol, at $8.00 for a five-gallon can. The tax alone on five gallons of legitimate alcohol, he pointed out, is $19.00."

We repeat, we cannot understand why much of the press in North Carolina, that professes at least to reflect the mind and attitude of the public, still tries to deceive the people into believing that this State suffers more than other States from bootlegging and other illicit activities, when the mind of the State was spoken and when facts everywhere are so clear that "he who runs may read," that repealing the Eighteenth Amendment did not settle the liquor problem, eliminate the bootlegger, or abolish racketeering. We have yet the problem before us of properly settling the always grievous topic of handling liquor. North Carolina has that problem along with all the other States of this nation. J. O. A.

COMMUNISM AND THE CHURCH.

We have been asking what will the church do with communism? It begins to look as if the inquiry will have to be, What will communism do with the church?

We little realize the rapid growth of communism and its menace to the church and Christianity. So rapidly has it developed even here in the United States that our National Congress, through its House of Representatives, created a special commission to investigate its character and propaganda. Hearings were held throughout the United States, and the verdict of the Congressional committee is that it is a most dangerous and deadly doctrine, and that the "surest and most effective way of combating communism is to give the fullest publicity to the fundamental principles and aims of the communists," which principles and aims are the same throughout the world. We know what it has done for Russia in bringing that whole nation to the declaration that there is no God. Speakers, missionaries and others returning from China, declare that the conflict in China now is not so much that of Christianity against paganism, but Christianity against communism. The declaration is made that the next decade will decide whether China, along with some other oriental nations, will go communistic or Christian.

Communism, of course, makes ready appeal to man with its declaration that the service of man is to his fellowman, and that the only sacred belief is the belief in man and the only service to be rendered is for man and with man. On the basis of this plea, it lays down the following as its chief principles:

1. Hatred of God and all forms of religion.
2. Abolition of private property and inheritance.
3. Absolute social and racial equality; promotion of hatred of capitalistic classes.
4. Stirring up communist activities in foreign countries in order to cause strikes, riots and civil war, for the destruction of governmental power.
5. Destruction of democratic or representative governments, including civil liberties, such as freedom of speech, of the press and of trial by jury.
6. To establish the dictatorship of one world union of soviet socialist republics, with the capital at Moscow.

The propaganda of communism is insidious, widespread, subtle and dangerous. In one form or another, it is today the bitterest foe against which the church must struggle if it is to conquer. There are thousands, increasing thousands, who right here in Christian America believe that service to man is the only service we can render and belief in man and the welfare of man is the only belief worthy of the name; therefore, eliminate God and all belief in God. The doctrine of "humanism" plays right into the hands of the communist, and is used as a mighty weapon today in driving men off their feet with the cheap slogan of "Serve Your Fellowman."

Such propagandists forget the fact that there is a power mightier than man, and that power is God, and those who would be most faithful and consistent in the service of man must first fix their faith in God, believe in Him with the mind and heart and soul and, in His strength and in His name, go forth to do battle in the service of mankind, not for the sake of man only, but for the sake of the Son of God, Who gave himself a ransom for many that, through this self-giving, He might reach and save mankind.

J. O. A.

THE POOR AND THE GOSPEL.

Jesus sent back the messengers to John the Baptist, and said: "Go tell John the things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the Gospel preached unto them." This is Jesus' testimony of himself. It will be noticed, because of its significance, that this testimony reaches its climax in the declaration: "The poor have the Gospel preached to them." All the testimony prior to this is of physical help, succor, sustenance, relief to the body. Jesus testified that he ministered to the bodily wants of man, and the Gospel has always done this; but that which he particularly emphasized was that this was the beginning only, or a means to an end, and that the climax and end of all his ministry was that "the poor have the gospel preached to them." There are thousands of people, even in the churches today, who content themselves solely with ministering to bodily needs, the giving of physical and material help to those around about them. In this the church does no more than the world, for the world is benevolent minded and a church member is supposed to do the kind deeds that those of the world outside of the church do, and to go further and minister to the spiritual needs of mankind. Preaching the Gospel is the greatest need of mankind today. These thousands of church members content themselves with a benevolent act, or a hand-out of material help for food or medicine, or clothing, or shelter to one in physical need. This is well, but it is not enough. If we would follow Jesus and be his disciples, we must declare with him that "the poor have the Gospel preached to them." Through Evangelism and through Missions, we make the effort to supply this spiritual need. Today the world is heart-sick; the world is in moral chaos; there is spiritual darkness, distress, despair. There is need today that "the poor shall have the Gospel preached to them." Who are the poor in this respect? It may be some who have riches in this world's goods, some who have plenty about them, but they are poor, indeed, if they have not the Gospel preached to them. The superlative task of the church is that of giving the Gospel to the world, sharing the Bread of Life with hungry hearts and perishing souls, giving to others the benefits and blessings of that Gospel which is food to our souls.

Our Christian Church has set aside the period, March 1st-June 30th, embracing Easter, that the churches may lend themselves with particular and undivided interest to its supreme task—that of Missions, that of sharing with the world the Gospel. In our missionary endeavor we are seeking to reach the grand climax of church activities, contribute to the end for which the church was founded, do the spiritual task in the name of our Lord, not that we may save individuals physically, but that Jesus Christ, our Lord, may save souls spiritually. Shall we, as a church, share with others in this good period, the Bread of Life, the Gospel of the Son of Righteousness?

J. O. A.

"FOLLOW CHRIST AND CARRY ON."

We are printing elsewhere in THE SUN this week (page 8) a very significant article, "Follow Christ and Carry On," signed "D. L. P." It will well repay every CHRISTIAN SUN reader to turn to the article by "D. L. P." and read carefully what is written there.

There is desertion from moral and spiritual lines, and this desertion at a crucial time is awful. We of the church must somehow fix it in our thinking that there is moral chaos and spiritual bankruptcy. On the surface we are thinking in terms of economic and political rehabilitation. We are never going to recover until the foundations are recovered. "And other foundations can no man lay than that which is laid in Jesus Christ."

If we build our national or world structure on economic or political foundations only, we are building on sand. There is a foundation, and that is a "Rock"; "it is a rock in a weary land"; it is the "Rock of Ages," even Jesus Christ. We are never going to build with safety or rebuild with security until we build on that foundation that cannot be shaken. What the world needs today as never before is the moral and spiritual recovery, the recovery of our souls. "Follow Christ and Carry On!" To ask again the question put by "D. L. P.": "Shall we desert our representatives at the front in the spiritual campaign to advance the cause of Christ, involving the saving of life and the redemption of humanity? In failing to carry on the missionary work in these needy fields we are not only deserting the soldiers of the Cross at the front, but are failing to follow the forward moving Christ of the Cross."

J. O. A.

It doesn't matter how often you put the cup to your neighbor's lips as long as it is filled with the right kind of stuff.—Milton Lee.

A LETTER FROM "DEETS PICKETT."

Dear Mr. Editor:

We people in Virginia, of course, are away behind the times. The racketeers and gangsters have, in the main, considered us beneath their notice. This has caused us to lose out on a lot of front-page publicity.

Something ought to be done about it, and in my opinion something will be done about it unless we old fogies in the churches get busy. What we need, in order to have a lot of colorful publicity which will make our State better known throughout the nation, is to establish the interests which naturally attract men and women of the character of Al Capone, Legs Diamond and the bob-haired bandits who make life so interesting in the more favored communities.

Generally speaking, these citizens, who have a genius for organizing crime in spectacular fashion, are interested, first, in liquor; second, in gambling; and third, in prostitution. Of course, they also take a great interest in the "organization" of industry and commerce, especially in the way of establishing protective associations which safeguard the pants-pressers, milk dealers and other helpless and humble people, from the danger of bombs, better known as pineapples, provided of course these people do not forget to pay their dues promptly.

The way to have gambling and plenty of it is to stimulate interest in it, so of course we need horse racing and dog racing. As conducted today, these games are made especially uncertain and therefore interesting by doping, sponging, pulling and fixing. Racing greatly stimulates business activity in a town, as poolrooms have to be operated to take care of the bets of the people who cannot get out to the tracks in the afternoon. The practice is for some energetic young chap to go around and collect bets in almost every business establishment and trot out with them to a convenient poolroom or "bookie." Without the interest created by a nearby track, this industry tends to languish.

We must, of course, have legalized prize-fighting, generally known among the fancy as the business of modified murder. The first argument for this is that the prize-fighters have been pouring into our State and conducting fights regardless of the law and of course, when you cannot control criminals, the thing to do is to let them have their own way and make it legal. Prize-fighting will also bring a great many fine citizens into the State. Of course, prize-fighting is a business, not a sport. A straight prize-fight is, briefly speaking, an effort on the part of two men to knock each other's heads off. In other words, an effort to commit serious injury. This is not a feature of the bloodless sports to which our people have been accustomed. Prize-fighting, however, like racing, is pretty much of a "sucker game." Much of it is not on the level in any sense.

Of course the pimps, perverts and touts who would be attracted to the State by our departure from the sleepiness of other days would take an interest in politics in the various localities and the day may come when we will be as well governed as New York and Chicago.

As for the liquor situation. The writer has just one big regret. If we had had sixty days to fight repeal instead of the thirty, or if we had had a thousand dollars to start with, we would have won that fight. The State was "coming fast" just before election. However, we did vote for repeal, and we voted for a liquor system. Prohibition was pretty well enforced in Virginia and there was no urgent necessity of getting rid of it. However, we had a certain wet legislature in prospect and some of the wisest and best men in the State felt that repeal of the State prohibition law should be managed by the friends of temperance rather than be left to a grand wet scramble in the legislature. The liquor system, set up by the legislature, seems to be just about as good as a liquor system can be. There is, of course, no such thing as a good liquor law. The thing to do now is to organize our forces wherever possible to shut out the whiskey stores under the local option provision of the law. Then we can observe and criticize operation of the law and in due time the people of Virginia can be counted upon to do the right thing. There is no use trying to help a chicken out of an egg.

Christian people should awake to the fact that there is an assault all along the line on religion and morals. There is a strong element which is determined to destroy the influence of the protestant church in community affairs. Returning from a hearing on the Race Gambling Bill proposed for the District of Columbia, Bishop Hughes and I were addressed by the taxicab driver who wished to express his emphatic opinion that gambling should be licensed and taxed.

"The same theory might be applied to prostitution," said Bishop Hughes. "Would you want that licensed and taxed?" "Yes, I would," said the driver, who by his appearance, might be thought to hail from the territories of the great Khan of Tartary. "It would be a lot better to license it; we ain't getting no money out of it now."

Yours hopefully,

DEETS PICKETT.

Alexandria, Va.

ONLY CHRIST.

Only Christ can give us a saving knowledge of God and this knowledge is what concerns us most. The counsel of the Greek saints was, "Know thyself." The Bible appeal is, "Know God." When we turn our eyes within we see nothing but weakness and failure and sin, and if we are saved it must be on the strength of what God, through Christ, is and not what we are. It is a matter of life and death, and this essential saving knowledge we get only in Jesus Christ. He reveals the Father full of grace and mercy. He knew God's great loving heart.

Only Christ can deliver us from the power of sin. We cannot deal with sin, but it must be dealt with by some one before we can be saved. Christ dealt with it seriously and effectively on the cross of Calvary, which was not a martyrdom but an atoning sacrifice made by the Son of God, and that sacrifice frees us from the law of sin and death. It cancels our guilt and delivers us from its power. It breaks the bondage of evil habit. It purges our soul of passion and evil desire, and places a great dynamic in one's life.

Only Christ, through his blood, can cleanse our hearts of all sin. How quickly we walk in the light after regeneration determines how soon we enter the experience of holiness "without which no man shall see the Lord." It was the sainted Christina Rossetti who said:

None other Lamb, none other Name,
None other hope in heaven or earth or sea,
None other hiding place from guilt and shame,
None beside thee.

Rev. J. S. Willett.

For in frequent prayer there is so much rest and pleasure, that as soon as ever it is perceived the contrary temptation appears unreasonable; none are so unwilling to pray as those who pray seldom; for they that do pray often, and with zeal and passion and desire, feel no trouble so great as when they are forced to omit their holy offices and hours of prayer.—Jeremy Taylor.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of Liberty Spring Christian Church recently celebrated the 20th anniversary of its organization. This Society was organized in 1914 with about fifteen charter members. Mrs. Y. C. Byrd was the first president. The following have also served as presidents: Miss Louise Savage, Mrs. C. E. Byrd, Mrs. L. F. Bradshaw, Mrs. John Ashley, Mrs. N. W. Byrd, Mrs. J. L. Byrd, Mrs. E. F. O'Berry, and the present incumbent, Mrs. R. E. Parker. Vice-presidents: Mrs. R. F. Rogers, Mrs. S. H. Rawles, Mrs. I. T. Byrd, Miss Julia Savage, Mrs. John Ashley, Mrs. L. F. Bradshaw, Mrs. F. F. Brinkley, Mrs. C. E. Byrd, Mrs. J. W. Duke, Mrs. R. E. Parker, Mrs. E. F. O'Berry, and Mrs. Lewis Horton; secretaries: Mrs. V. E. Rawles, Miss Susie Rabey, Miss Mary Byrd, Mrs. L. F. Bradshaw, Mrs. C. E. Byrd, Miss Virginia Parker, Mrs. J. W. Tidwell, Mrs. Emmett Pierce, Mrs. Lewis Horton and Mrs. G. O. O'Berry; treasurers: Mrs. C. E. Byrd, Miss Bertha Savage, Miss Virginia Parker, Mrs. W. E. Eason, Mrs. F. F. Brinkley, and Mrs. J. W. Tidwell. The present membership is forty-six.

The financial goal for the first year was $50.00. This has been increased to $200.00. The Society has raised more than $2,050.00 since 1918. In addition to the money raised for missions, the Society has made contributions to the local church as follows: $120.00 for chinaware, silver and linens; $14.00 for pulpit Bible; $36.72 for brass rod and curtain for choir; $32.00 for flower stands; $10.00 for Rev. D. P. Barrett's automobile; $5.26 for furnishing room in the parsonage at Fancy Gap.

In addition to this financial work, the Society has been deeply interested in the Spiritual Life Work. This is listed as follows: Prayer, Bible Study, Family Altar and Tithing. Only a few of the women could be induced to take part in this feature, at first, but nearly every member who attends cooperates heartily, at this time. Several have become tithers, a few observe the morning watch and have set up family altars in the homes. For several years a class has studied the Mission Study Books and these classes have experienced not only a deeper interest in missions, but a deepening of their spiritual lives.

The above information was gathered by Mrs. S. H. Rawles and presented at the Missionary Social in February. It will be seen from this history that this Society has sought to put the emphasis upon three things: information, spiritual life and giving. As a result of this type of work the whole church has felt the spiritual impact of this group of interested women. The Young People, the Willing Workers and Cradle Roll have been organized and are doing good work. The current expenses of the church have been raised with more ease since the organization of these various societies. If this type of work could be efficiently done in every local church, many of the local problems would be solved. A missionary society cannot exist on appeals for money as the only objective. There must be information. Jesus said: "Teaching them to observe." Missionary and Biblical teaching is as essential in a missionary society as in a Sunday School class. If a Sunday School class did nothing more than take up a collection, it would soon die. And such a class should die, for it does not represent the spirit of Jesus Christ, or the Bible standard of spiritual life. This information must be seasoned with spiritual prayer and spiritual purpose. Then giving becomes normal and easy, and the opportunity to make a contribution offers joy and privilege to all who support the work of the Master.

Some of these days, when we know better; some of these days, when our spiritual ideals are lifted; some of these days, when our eyes are opened; yes, some of these days, the women of the church will teach the men that it is a glorious privilege to enter into the missionary program of the church to learn, to feel and to give. Spiritual ignorance pulls down the curtain upon the vision of God and the world. It limits the horizon and reduces life to personal wishes and selfish ends. Know, live and give.

I. W. JOHNSON.

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN?

My Brother Pastor:

More than forty years ago the leaders of our church founded Elon College as an institution of higher education for the Christian Church. In founding the College they assumed for themselves and those who were to come after them the full responsibility of conducting the College and supporting its program. Those who had to do with this proposition and far visioned program for our church were loyal to the College so long as they lived. They not only realized its need, but were glad to divide their living for its support.

The College has made itself felt in the larger program of the denomination. No cause has yet outdistanced its leadership. A limited leadership is necessarily limited in its field for service. For nearly three-fourths of a century the Christian Church in the South was content to go along with what they knew as a "divinely called ministry." They were right in insisting on a "divinely called ministry," but something more is vitally necessary if the church is to go forward and render the service that God has ordained. For a minister to be all things to all men, he must be able to appreciate the positions held by those whom he is to serve. If he, himself, is unprepared and untrained, he could hardly expect to be the leader of a prepared and trained constituency.

The founders of Elon College loved their church and were jealous of its position then and in the days to come. They knew that if their church was to take its place with other denominations in the service of the kingdom that her leaders, in addition to being "divinely called," would have to be humanly and carefully trained for the exacting positions that awaited them. A trained leadership for the church was necessary then; it is equally necessary now and shall be more so in the days that are to come.

If the Christian Church is to have a trained leadership, it is obviously necessary that she do the training herself. There are State schools, of course, and there are other denominational schools as a matter of fact, but other institutions are not in a position to train the leaders for the specific needs of the Christian Church. We are not yet ready, I think, for other denominations to take over the responsibility of supplying ministers for our pulpits and leaders for our churches. They do not want this responsibility; they have their own. Nor are we ready, I think, to turn the matter of filling our pulpits and selecting the leaders for our churches over to the State. We believe in the separation of church and state.

The state is dedicating its efforts along lines other than religious. Since we are not ready to turn these important functions of our church over to outside sources, are we ready to turn the more vital and fundamental task—that of training our young women and young men for higher positions and leadership in the church, over to the state and other denominations?

Let not the church be deceived. God is calling to us to lay more securely the foundation of real religion in the hearts of those who are to have the responsibility of the church in the days that are ahead. The only way to lay a successful and abiding foundation for the church for the future is for the church to train the rising generation in matters moral and religious. Elon College is our servant in these matters. She has been serving through the years, is delighted to serve today, and is most anxious to continue to serve through the days to come, whether or not she will be permitted to serve what constitutes the church throughout the Convention.

Elon is marvelously equipped to do the work of the church college, her faculty is adequate and willing, her student body is representative and most anxious to receive the proper kind of training and preparation. The spirit of the College is Christian and optimistic. The church-at-large seems to be favorably inclined toward the College and is optimistic for her future. I regret to say in this connection, however, that the church-at-large is woefully neglectful in her material support of the College. I regret to insist on further contributions from the church for the College at this time; however, our present critical need calls for generous support on the part of everyone. It would not require large gifts from any, but it does require small gifts from many.

My brother pastor, we have been waiting, anxiously waiting, needfully waiting for offerings from your church. In very few instances, comparatively speaking, have our hopes been fulfilled. To date the following churches have sent amounts according to schedule:

HONOR ROLL.

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Ambrose, Georgia and Alabama.....	$ 30.00	$ 35.00
Elon College, N. C. and Va.....	229.00	737.00
Carolina, North Carolina & Virginia..	15.50	15.50
Mt. Bethel, N. C. & Va. ....	37.00	40.41
Wake Chapel, Eastern North Carolina	102.50	155.08
Waverly, Eastern Virginia.....	113.00	179.00
Windsor, Eastern Virginia .....	49.50	71.25
Seagrove, Western North Carolina.....	18.50	32.00

The following churches have sent in contributions from the church during the campaign:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Holland, Eastern Virginia .....	212.50	165.50
Eure, Eastern Virginia.....	178.50	25.00
Wakefield, Eastern Virginia.....	47.50	25.75
Liberty Springs, Eastern Virginia.....	171.50	65.00
Mt. Carmel, Eastern Virginia.....	87.00	40.65
Holy Neck, Eastern Virginia.....	166.50	83.51
Newport News, Eastern Virginia.....	132.50	60.43
Suffolk, Eastern Virginia .....	667.00	486.57
Oakland, Eastern Virginia.....	196.50	13.30
Hopewell, Eastern Virginia .....	63.00	2.37
Springhill, Eastern Virginia .....	32.50	5.75
Barrett's Chapel, Eastern Virginia....	38.50	5.00
Burton's Grove, Eastern Virginia.....	26.00	25.00
Union (Virgilina), N. C. and Va.....	185.00	64.76
Mt. Zion, N. C. & Va. ....	73.00	40.00
Hines Chapel N. C. & Va. ....	123.50	85.25
Haw River, N. C. & Va. ....	96.00	39.25
Pleasant Ridge, N. C. & Va. ....	47.50	2.52
New Lebanon, North Carolina & Va...	65.00	60.18
Hebron, North Carolina & Virginia...	73.50	12.00
Union (Burlington), N. C. and Va...	154.00	46.89
Liberty, N. C. and Va. ....	83.50	4.00
Durham, N. C. and Va. ....	218.50	161.94
1st Christian, Greensboro, N. C. & Va..	232.50	67.63
Catawba Springs, E. North Carolina..	105.50	50.50
United Church, E. North Carolina....	43.50	6.10
Liberty Vance, E. North Carolina....	202.50	51.50
Mt. Auburn, Eastern North Carolina..	88.50	45.60
Lebanon, Eastern North Carolina.....	16.50	8.86
Oak Level, Eastern N. C. ....	66.50	50.00
Christian Light, Eastern N. Carolina..	61.50	2.21
Fuller's Chapel, Eastern N. C. ....	107.00	6.60

consider what it has meant to your church, and what it will mean to you both for all time to come, should the College be compelled to close her doors for the lack of funds maybe—perhaps for the lack of interest and contributions on the part of yourself and those whom you serve. All the College is asking is for the love, the interest, the gifts and the prayers of the members of the church as they themselves have been blessed of God. It is my prayer that this heart appeal may find a hearty response in your soul and in your purse.

L. E. SMITH, President.

ELON ALUMNI ATTEND BANQUET.

One hundred and fifty-four members of the Elon College Alumni Club and their guests, including thirty students of Elon, members of the Glee Club, held a delightful meeting on Tuesday evening, February 23, 1934, at Fellowship Hall, Suffolk Christian Church, at which time a dinner was served by the ladies of the church.

Rev. Dr. I. W. Johnson, president of the Alumni Association, presided. In his address before the large gathering, he stressed the genius and spirit of the men and women who founded the College, its high standard of Christian manhood and womanhood, and told something of its early days.

Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, who has been secretary of the Alumni Club since its organization, made an interesting report, and greetings were brought by Dr. J. E. Rawls, who served last year as president.

Dr. N. G. Newman, chairman of the memorial committee, read memoirs for Mrs. Garland Barlow, Mrs. F. W. Everett and Mrs. Joe Bynum Gay, members who have died within the year. He also presented a memorial from the Association on the late Rev. Dr. W. W. Staley, which was made a part of the records. Dr. Johnson announced that this came with peculiar timeliness as February 24th is the 85th anniversary of Dr. Staley's birth.

G. D. Underwood, chairman of resolutions, thanked the church, its ladies, and the Glee Club and others who contributed to the success of the gathering.

The following committees were appointed for the coming year: Memorial, J. F. West, Jr., Rev. J. M. Roberts, Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, W. E. MacClenny, Miss Susie Holland; Executive Committee, Dr. I. W. Johnson, Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, Rev. F. C. Lester, Dr. J. E. Rawles, Mrs. W. V. Leathers; College Committee, Dr. J. E. Rawles, Mrs. R. T. Bradford, G. C. Mann, Mrs. W. V. Leathers; Co-Operation Committee, Rev. J. F. Morgan, Rev. O. D. Poythress, Rev. G. C. Wright, Mrs. J. G. Truitt; Resolutions Committee, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, S. E. Everett, Rev. R. E. Brittle, Mrs. B. D. Crocker, Mrs. J. E. Rawles, Mrs. Mills Riddick.

The program was presented by the Rev. John G. Truitt, toastmaster: Violin solo, "Gypsy Airs" and "The Songs My Mother Used to Sing," Miss Griffith; address by Col. J. E. West, who declared that if Elon did nothing else than teach a love of truth, a character which had honor for its basis, it has filled a great purpose. He stated

Elon College responded to the "Gospel Song" and "Here's to Erin." Miss Chamblee, by special request, sang "My Heart is a Lute."

A piano "comedy" was played by four young men of the Glee Club. The tables were decorated with red roses, tulips and evergreens, and favors were cups of gold and maroon, the College colors, filled with salted nuts.

The members of the Alumni Association and their guests numbered people from Suffolk, Nan-

December 25th, not out of celebration of the birth of Jesus, but, since it must be the celebration of a person, Japan waited until 1912, when the death of the Emperor Teisho was announced on December 25th. They then had their Person, and since that time they have celebrated the day very much as we do in this country.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 18 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the years old and upward, thro

- Nos.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gather; righteousness kissed each other.

11 Truth shall sprin

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

Gen. 18. 1. b Ps. 57. 1. 2 or, all

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 "Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under gold edges, silk

hear

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance.

No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHING Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.

04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

ing in economic support, a keener realization of our dependence on God, there is also danger of serious loss, inefficiency, and loss of ground. The faithful representatives of Christ on the mission field have been working and praying to promote friendly understanding, to make God known through Christ, to witness to the power of the Gospel to give life and to transform. They have won spiritual victories and have laid the foundations for Christian churches and communities. Now the work is threatened, and they are in danger of being shelved, because American Christians cannot keep up their gifts to missions and at the same time maintain their automobiles, enjoy their luxuries, send their children to high-priced schools and indulge in expensive tastes in their homes, in their churches and in amusements. Many Christians in America are suffering from a decrease of incomes but the needless expenditures by Christians would more than maintain all the missionary work that is now threatened for lack of support. Think what this curtailment means. One Board reports that over fifty-eight churches that have hitherto supported individual missionaries, have now so reduced or cut off their gifts that some fifty of these workers—some of the best on the field—are in danger of being stranded and may be withdrawn.

In addition to the need for standing loyally by the ambassadors of Christ who have left home and kindred in obedience to the Great Commission of our Saviour and Lord, there are needs of the work and of our fellow Christians in these mission fields. A Mission Board lists some of the work which must be given up if the church at home withholds support—for the native churches are still too weak and poor to carry the whole burden. Here are some of the important projects that gifts of from $25.00 to $2,000 will make possible of continuance—a mission boat, Sunday Schools, Christian literature, Bible institute, children's meetings, evangelists, teachers, Bible women, schools for the blind, schools for boys and girls, theological seminary, kindergarten, medical work, nurses' training school, medical supplies.

Humanity, self-interest and patriotism would stir us to carry on at great sacrifice rather than desert our soldiers at the front in a military campaign to defend home and country, though this involves the destruction of life. Shall we desert our representatives at the front in the spiritual campaign to advance the cause of Christ, involving the saving of life and the redemption of humanity? In failing to carry on the missionary work in these needy fields we are not only deserting the soldiers of the Cross at the front, but we are failing to follow the forward moving Christ of the Cross. D. L. P.

The widow gave her mite. She gave what she had, God asked no more of her.—Selected.

.....	16.71
.....	1.47
....., Va. ....	5.60
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C. ....	13.26
Flint Hill, Star, N. C. ....	.61
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C. ....	2.50
Total .....	$ 1,514.26
Individuals and Churches.
Previously acknowledged .....	$ 690.97
Barrett's, Sedley, Va. ....	.63
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C. ....	1.21
Total .....	$ 692.81
Summary.
Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,375.98
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	71.72
Individuals and Churches .....	1.84
Total to date .....	$ 8,449.54

Our Mission period—March, April, May and June—has now arrived, and it is hoped all our Sunday Schools will unite in emphasizing Missions as the superlative task and privilege of church and Sunday School. Easter approaches and nothing should come in the way to prevent the most liberal missionary offering we have ever made at Easter. Let every school and every church prepare to take the Easter offering for Missions. Thank you.

J. O. ATKINSON, Secretary.

DR. ROBERTS—MISSIONARY.

By D. P. CUSHING,
News Editor, The American Board.

Patients in the American Hospital for Women and Children, Madura, India, try to stay awake in order not to miss the doctor's smile when she comes on her nightly rounds. That describes Dr. Isabella M. Roberts, who, although born in Canada, has served over 17 years in India as a medical missionary for the American board. Every patient when she leaves brings some token of love to the Lady Doctor, a tray of fruit, sugar, beetel nut or leaf, anything—so long as it shows in some way their appreciation. And always a garland of flowers is put around the doctor's neck or a tight little bunch of blossoms placed in her hand.

"This ceremony is on the veranda of the bungalow," says Dr. Roberts, "And then in return we give them a copy of the Gospel in Tamil. If it is a mother leaving with her baby, she is also given a booklet on the care of infants. To the question 'Can you read?' we often receive the reply, 'No, but my son can,' or 'my husband can.' So back they go to their villages. Some return, some we never see again. What has their time in the hospital meant to them besides medical treatment? We trust they have received some idea of cleanliness and hygiene and that we have made them realize we are their friends. We hope the care they have had has made them see something of what Christianity means. Though they themselves cannot read, will not the copy

... unhygienic conditions in Madura for one case that is attended by a doctor or a trained nurse," declares Dr. Roberts. Nurses are trained at the American Hospital, and these Indian girls are responding well to the instruction.

The hospital has over its entrance in Tamil letters these words: "Pray that ye may be healed. Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Indian women, trained to talk sympathetically with the patients in the dispensary and hospital, tell Bible stories and distribute portions of Scripture. So are the sick healed and the Word preached to them.

Dr. Roberts has a B. A. and a M. B. from Toronto University. She served for a time in the Woman's Hospital of Philadelphia, and also studied in London and Vienna. For ten years she was on the staff of the Medical College in Ludhiana, India, and an associate in Madura from 1926 to 1927, when she received permanent appointment under the American Board.

A GHASTLY GESTURE.

The largest budget in its history, approved by the Cabinet in Japan, saw one-half the amount pledged to armaments, comments Rev. Floyd L. Roberts, of Nagoya, Japan. The navy got the biggest plum probably on account of propaganda playing up America as a potential enemy. Disfigured and maimed, 1,500 lepers are cared for on a beautiful little island near Okayama. Even so, only a fraction of the lepers in the Japanese Empire are cared for by hospital and settlement. Says Rev. Clarence McCall, of Niigata: "The price of one warship would provide isolation and treatment for all, and the disease could be eradicated in one generation. When will we learn that human life is of the first importance?"

MODEST IN HER DEMANDS.

Little Toshiko rises regularly at 6:30 each morning in Kyoto, Japan, to practice on the piano. She desires passionately to play as well as Miss Frances Clapp's more advanced pupils. "Even better," her mother assured her, "if you practice faithfully." But to attain such heights Toshiko felt she needed divine aid, so that night at prayers she was heard to say: "Dear God, please make me play one-half as well as my teacher; no, that's asking too much; one-third as well will do."

NOTICE.

The Annual Spring Missionary Rallies of the Eastern Virginia Conference will be held as follows:

Norfolk District.—Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Superintendent. Elm Avenue Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., Tuesday, April 3rd.

Nansemond-Gates-Franklin District.—Mrs. B. D. Jones, Superintendent. Berea (Nansemond), Wednesday, April 4th.

Waverly District.—Mrs. E. T. Atkinson, Superintendent. Spring Hill, Thursday, April 5th.

MRS. J. E. CARTWRIGHT, Pres.,
MRS. L. W. STAGG, Secretary.

A Story for the Children

WHAT ANIMALS EAT.

There are hosts of animals almost everywhere. The air sustains the flying swarms; the earth contains the burrows of others; and the ponds, lakes, and rivers abound in swimming animals. Others inhabit the trees and various growing things, while many parasites live within the bodies of other animals. Every living thing requires food.

Insects and their allies form the largest group of animal life on land. They feed on all parts of plants, and on every sort of plant that lives. They strip the leaves from trees, suck the juices from stems, gather the nectar from flowers, bore through roots and woody trunks, and lay their eggs in the choicest fruits and grains. Great numbers live on decaying matter and act as scavengers. They may prey upon other insects, and some prey upon larger animals and man.

Not only do insects feed upon every sort of substance found on the earth, but they are eaten by great numbers of other animals. Spiders are always catching and devouring them. Frogs, toads, lizards, snakes, turtles, and hordes of birds constantly feed upon them. Their lives are always in danger. Nevertheless, although billions of them are devoured daily, their numbers do not seem to diminish greatly.

Earthworms feed upon piece of leaves and other food particles in the soil through which they burrow at night. The food is sucked into the mouth. They must not stray far from their burrows lest they themselves be devoured by toads, snakes, or birds.

Clams, oysters, and mussels, crawling on the bottom of some stream, feed upon small bits of matter which they draw into their mouths from the water about them. In turn, they are devoured by starfish and man.

Snails slide through our gardens, stopping here and there to nibble on some tender lettuce leaves, while their own lives are being threatened by cravfish, lizards, turtles and birds.

Frogs, toads and salamanders feed chiefly on other animals. They prefer insects, slugs and worms. Large toads will even devour mice and little chickens. Their tadpoles feed on tiny plants, but must be careful lest they themselves be snatched up by water snakes, turtles and fish. Mature toads are seldom eaten because of a distasteful secretion over their bodies. Frogs are devoured eagerly by snakes, alligators, turtles and water birds.

Snakes are meat-eaters. They eat great numbers of worms and insects. A few eat vegetable matter. They have been reported to have eaten young ducks which were swimming in the water. Turtles, in turn, are eaten quite extensively by man. If you have never tasted turtle soup, you have a pleasure awaiting you.

Birds are adapted to securing various kinds of food. Wading birds (like storks, herons, flamingoes, and pelicans) gobble up fish, frogs, and other water animals. Eagles, turkey buzzards, hawks, and kites are flesh-eaters. They have strong hooked bills, and sharp claws. They are fond of frogs, toads, snakes, insects, and small mammals like the rabbit, which they swoop down upon. Turkey buzzards will feed upon animals that have been dead many days, and they usually smell like the decayed food they eat. Most other birds feed upon insects, grain, weed-seeds, fruits and such. Humming birds gather nectar from flowers. Owls sieze mice and rats, while the swifts and swallows snatch insects from the air while in flight.

Rodents (such as squirrels, mice, rabbits and beavers) feed on various parts of plants. Elephants feed on leaves and twigs, as do cows, horses, sheep and goats.

Moles, shrews and bats feed on insects. And in Australia are found the spiny ant-eaters.

The last great group of mammals includes those which eat meat, and are called carnivorous. Animals belonging to this group are lions, tigers, wolves, dogs, bears, seals and others. They feed on other mammals, birds, mussels and frogs, which they tear to pieces with their sharp teeth.

The list could be continued indefinitely. One point seems evident: that every animal is preyed upon by other living things. Each eats, and in turn is eaten. Man himself is not exempt, for many parasites invade his body, and often destroy it. The following humorous lines seem appropriate in concluding this discussion:

Great fleas have little fleas
Upon their backs to bite 'em,
And little fleas have lesser fleas,
And so Ad Infinitum!

—John Harvey Furbay, in The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

RESOLUTIONS.

[Submitted to the Eastern Virginia Elon Alumni, at the annual banquet, upon the 85th anniversary of Dr. Staley's birth.]

Dr. William Wesley Staley, son of John Tilden Staley and Melissa Jane Clendenin Staley, was born in Alamance County, N. C., February 24, 1849, and died at Virginia Beach, Va., October 9, 1932. The labors and achievements of his public life of fifty-eight years have received due emphasis and eulogy. We would emphasize some of his private virtues:

He was a student. Persistent, painstaking and accurate from youth to old age. He surrounded himself with the choicest literature and most reliable sources of information, and used them freely. Yet he so assimilated his acquired knowledge that his discourses rarely bore the marks of it.

He was a thinker. His mind was keenly analytical and severely logical. This was evident in all his public discourses. He had the capacity to think through difficult problems and reason out conclusions with an almost mathematical accuracy. It was this quality that made him so valuable in the counsels of his church.

He was patient. He could labor and wait for the fruition of his labors. He could suffer wrong in silence and wait patiently for the day of vindication.

He was unselfish and sacrificial. He consecrated himself to his tasks and never got in his own way. In the early years of his ministry in Suffolk he was importuned by friends to leave on account of his health. His reply was, "I came to Suffolk to succeed, or to die trying." This was his philosophy of life, and he maintained it to the end.

He was humble. His wants were few and simple. Luxuries made no appeal to him. He was easy to entertain. He never embarrassed his hostess. He was immune to blame or praise.

He was friendly. His friendly interest extended to all. "He lived by the side of the road and was a friend to man." But the submerged, the delinquents, the poverty stricken, the diseased and suffering, the tempted and fallen were the special objects of his care. The most confirmed drunkard or other moral wreck, of his city, felt free to enter his study and talk with him about their troubles. He would listen by the hour with tender compassion and then comfort and cheer by his wise and loving counsel. How often he entered the house of shame, skillfully protecting its victim from the scorn of a merciless public, and by prayer and counsel helping toward the new and better life, will ever remain a sealed book.

"He was a man. Take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again."

Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we place upon record our high appreciation of the life and labors and especially his untiring devotion and great service to the College we represent.

2. That we express our sincerest gratitude to our heavenly Father for giving to our generation such an example of sublime faith, moral heroism, and faithful and effectual ministry.

3. That we commend his life as worthy to be emulated by all who come after him.

4. That we extend our sympathy to his family and that host of friends who loved him as a father.

5. That copies of these resolutions be sent to the family, entered upon the records of this Club, and sent to THE CHRISTIAN SUN for publication.

REV. N. G. NEWMAN, D. D.,
Chairman of Committee.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

SYLVESTER HARRIS.

Did you see in the daily paper recently the story of Sylvester Harris? It's a good story, and reminds me of something.

According to the newspaper, Sylvester called President Roosevelt on the telephone. He says those who answered the telephone at the White House got mad and told him to quit calling the President. But he didn't quit—not until the President answered.

"Who is that?" asked the President of the United States.

"Sylvester Harris," came the reply. "I've a Nigger down here in Mississippi."

"Well, what do you want, Sylvester?"

"Dey tell me dey's goin' take my land from me. De paper said if dat happen, fo' us to call you. I did, and huh I is."

The President very calmly replied that Sylvester would hear from him soon. A few days later an extension of time was given for this Negro farmer to pay his mortgage.

Which reminds me of prayer.

In a great old Book, Jesus said: "If you get in a tight place, let me know." We may feel no more worthy of attention in heaven than a Mississippi Negro at the White House. But if we keep calling until the Master answers, we can simply say: "This is my trouble. You said call, and here I is." Then the Master will say: "You will be hearing from me." And we will!

THE BEAUTIFUL SNOW.

When the air is filled with what one has called "a white darkness," or the earth is robed in a garment of spotless white, as it has been the past week, there comes to me from childhood a haunting poetic phrase about "the snow, the beautiful snow." There is something enchanting, exhilarating, cleansing about snow.

Out of the particles of dust and moisture in the air God weaves a white robe to cleanse and cover the earth. This is often used as a blanket to draw the frost out of tiny plants of wheat and flowers so they can give bread and beauty to all of God's children.

A snow storm is a beautiful sight to those of us who have comfortable clothes and homes to shelter us from its chill. I like to watch it float from the heavens and find its earthly resting place on tree and fence, or wall and housetop, where "soft and thick they lie." What is prettier than a forest struggling beneath its fluffy white burden, beautiful because of the burden?

But to some the snow has its horrors. More food and fuel are needed, and the need is harder to supply. One of these unhappy ones came to my office this morning. The years have whitened his head. The depression took away his job. His wife is feeble. His son is sick. His own strength is failing. There was just enough fuel for today. No one knows when he can get a job again. The chilling blasts have hit him hard and the snows have hemmed him in, but like the sturdy trees of the forest, he stands manfully straight under his burden and brings to me a blessing because of the beauty of his character.

His unconquerable soul asserts itself, his head is unbowed, and out of his need he says: "We shall not be forgotten, for we trust in Jesus Christ." Today fuel will go to his bin and food to his pantry—and his pastor will be happier because this aged man tramped through the snow to the church to open a door of opportunity for those who appreciate not only the beauties of nature but of character also.

YOUTH AND EASTER.

Within a month people around the earth will celebrate Easter. This is the most sacred and solemn celebration in the church year. It marks the anniversary of the death and resurrection of Jesus, the founder of the church.

What does youth think of Easter? Does Easter have a message for youth? What will they do to celebrate this high festival of the church?

For many Easter is a bewildering spectacle; but for more it is the high tide of hope. It tells the story of what happened to the world's best man, a young man, only thirty-three. Out of an insignificant village he marched into the center of the sacred city proclaiming that old things were passing away and all things were to be made new. He heralded the beginning of a new social, economic, moral and religious order. The temple was cleansed, and the New Way was made clear. Many heard him gladly, and some said: "Surely, this is the Christ," but others nailed him to a cross where he died.

If there had been no cross and tomb, there could have been no resurrection morning. Where there is no death there can be no new life. Love shines brightest in the light of a cross.

Youth must be interested in Easter because it was youth crucified; it was youth bearing "sweet spices," early at the empty tomb; it was youth met by the Master that first Easter day; and it was youth that has walked with him to the ends of the earth bearing glad tidings of fellowship with God through suffering.

Wherever the sun shines on land and sea when Easter comes, youth will arise early and find a place of worship. There will be no empty tomb, but in many a garden Marys and Johns will seek the risen Christ, and having found him they will hasten away to tell others of the new hope, the new life which comes through Jesus.

In plays and pageants, in poetry and prose, in music and prayer, in service and sacrifice they will testify to their belief in immortality which is assured through Easter day. In our own church youth will not be satisfied with merely furnishing flowers and programs for their own local group, but they will present an offering which will send the good news of Easter to others who know it not. And their happiness will be complete because they will bring their friends into membership of the church they love.

WHAT HAS JESUS DONE FOR US?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR MAR. 18, 1934.

(John 3:16; I. Peter 3:18.)

Worship Program.

Theme—"What Has Jesus Done for Us?"

Prelude—"Beneath the Cross of Jesus." (Instrumental.)

Call to Worship—Poem, "Into the Woods My Master Went," by Lanier.

Hymn—"Beneath the Cross of Jesus." (Sung quietly.)

Scripture.

Meditation and prayer.

"Let us remember Jesus, who spent his life in service for others; who went about doing good, healing the sick, comforting the sorrowful, and strengthening the lives of his companions; who throughout his life exemplified the love of the heavenly Father in human form." (Pause for silent prayer.)

"Let us remember Jesus who not only did a great deal for us in his life, but was willing to make a complete sacrifice of death upon the cross. Let us remember this and offer a prayer of gratitude for his sacrifice upon the cross." (Pause for silent prayer.)

Vocal duet—"The Old Rugged Cross."

Story—"The Legend of the Cross," from "A Little Book of Profitable Tales," by Eugene Field. (Also published in the International Journal of Religious Education, February, 1932, page 34.)

Hymnic Benediction.

"Lord, let us now remain in peace,
Who in thy name are gathered here;
Disclose the brightness of thy face,
And be forever near."

Discussion.

1. Jesus changed Men's Idea of God. People were afraid of God; they held him in fearful awe as they would Caesar; they had no hope of having friendly companionship with him. What do we mean when we say that "everybody can approach God," that "we can take our problems to him?"

2. Jesus Changed the Idea of the Value of a Human Life. Among the Jews of that day the idea was common that the rich man, the educated man, the man who obeyed all the rules of the state-religion—that was the man who amounted to something.

Should prisons be primarily for punishment or for the cure and reformation of the wrong-doers?

3. Jesus Changed the Idea of Sin. Killing a person is sinful, but the primary sins are hatred, lack of self-control, and regard for our neighbor. Study Matt. 5:17-22.

4. Jesus Gave People Courage to Believe that Their Sins Might Be Overcome. Jesus made it clear that a person does not need to be forever bound by his inheritance or his environment; he can become Godlike even though he has a very sinful past.

5. Jesus Showed Us the Purpose of Life. He made it clear that there must be one great purpose (Matt. 6:24), and that this purpose is the doing of God's will (Matt. 6:33). So to live that others will be blessed—that was the great practical purpose of Jesus' life (John 10:10). Just what would you say is the main purpose of your life? Is there any great central purpose? If so, is it like that of Jesus?

6. Jesus Gave the World an Example of What We May Become. There is often much argument as to whether anybody today can become nearly as perfect as Jesus was. The answer Jesus would make would be something like this: "Quit arguing about theories. Try out the teachings I gave in the Sermon on the Mount. If you are willing to make this venture, you will become as perfect as you need to be. The trouble with most of you is that you spend your time in discussion instead of improving your sincerity by experimenting with the words I spoke and the ways I lived." Suppose that all the members of your group make a serious effort to put into practice this week the injunction in Matthew 5:44—what do you think would happen? Are you willing to try it?

7. Jesus Makes Us Discontent With Our Present Achievements. Perhaps the greatest testimony to the power of Jesus is the fact that all of

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM.

LESSON X.—MARCH 11, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end."—Isaiah 9: 7.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 13: 1-52.

A parable is a word-picture. The word literally means "to throw beside," or "along-side of." Jesus taught much in parables. He took spiritual things and presented them in pictures of things His hearers knew about. Today's lesson comprises a group of parables which illustrate different aspects of the kingdom.

As Mustard Seed.

The mustard seed is a tiny seed, one of the smallest of seeds. But when it is planted, it shows amazing capacity for growth, and becomes the greatest of herbs, even as a tree, so that the birds come and lodge in the branches. The kingdom is small in beginnings. It had its start in Jesus, an itinerant teacher, poor, despised, harassed, murdered, and in twelve obscure men, without prestige, wealth or earthly power. But it has grown until as it were it has covered the earth. And nations find rest in its protecting shade. Despise not the day of small beginnings in the things that concern the kingdom. Think of Livingston in Africa, Morrosos in China, Carey in India, and many others, and then think of how Christianity has grown in numbers and in power since these days of small beginnings.

As Leaven.

There are those who interpret leaven as evil in this parable. The writer does not accept this interpretation. As the mustard seed suggests the outward growth of the kingdom, the leaven suggests the inner, pervasive, permeating, transforming work of the kingdom. As a woman puts yeast in a batch of dough and the dough is transformed, so the kingdom is introduced into the life of the individual or of society, and quietly, pervasively transforms the life of the individual or of society. Eventually the whole will be leavened.

As A Treasure.

It was the custom in those days for those who had wealth to bury it for safe-keeping. Often the owners of the treasure would die or be killed, and the treasure would remain undiscovered and unclaimed. Occasionally a man ploughing in a field would turn up such a treasure. This is the point in Jesus' parable. In the case of the treasure hid in the field the man is not consciously seeking the treasure, or the kingdom. But when he finds it, he sells all that he has that he might possess the treasure. We are to seek first the kingdom, for it is the thing most worth seeking. And any man who even by chance comes into touch with the kingdom is justified in giving up everything he has in order to come into possession of the kingdom.

As a Pearl of Great Price.

In the case of the pearl of great price, the man is consciously seeking it. When he finds it he sells all the other pearls that he has in order that he may buy the one great pearl. So, says Jesus is the kingdom. Other things may be good. But the kingdom is the supreme good. For it a man can afford to pay all that he has and is. And he will be the winner at last. No one who is in the kingdom of God ever feels that he has paid too great a price for his privilege. No one who has found Christ, even at the expense of having given his all for Christ, feels that he is the loser. Paul said that he had suffered the loss of all things and did count them but rubbish in order that he might find Christ, the Pearl of Great Price.

As a Net Cast into the Sea.

The people who had heard Jesus knew what happened when fishermen cast a net into the sea. They got all kinds of fish and other things as well. The kingdom is like that. It is so inclusive and so comprehensive that the bad often gets in with the good. The church is not made up of perfect folks. It is not made up of regenerated folks. It is not made up even of all good folks. There is a mixture of good and bad and indifferent in the church. But eventually there will come a time of sifting and of sorting. When the fishermen get to the shore they sort the good from the bad. So shall it be at the end of the world. The wicked shall be severed from among the just. They shall be cast into the furnace of fire; and there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. One needs not take the words literally. Jesus is speaking soberly about something that is even worse than mere physical punishment. We may have to revise our conceptions of a literal, burning hell, but we still have to deal with the fact of hell. It is only a weak sentimentalism or a blind intellectualism which reads out of the gospel story the sober and stern and terrible things that Jesus says about those who persistently refuse to yield themselves to the loving overtures of a heavenly Father. God does not choose to send men to hell. Men send themselves there.

Things New and Old.

The teachings of Jesus and the truths of the Bible will never be outgrown. They are eternal because they are true, and they are true because they are eternal. Because a thing is old is no sign that it is not true. But because a thing is true does not mean that it may not need to be re-stated or re-interpreted. One of the problems which modern religion faces is to present old truths in terms which are valid for modern life. Science does not necessitate the discarding of truth; it simply necessitates the re-statement of truth. Christ was a modernist in the best sense of the word. He was also a fundamentalist in the best sense of the word. The alert preacher or teacher will bring out of his mind and heart things both old and new. He will make alive the old things by interpreting them in the light of the new. He will test the new by interpreting them in the light of the old. Christ's teachings need no defense; they need practice. They do not need an apology; they need an application.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

(Continued from uage 10.)

us are filled with a sense of guilt because we are not as good as we know we ought to be. Jesus is constantly before us as the Conscience of Mankind. The Welfare of All—this must be the slogan of all followers of Jesus.

8. What Has Jesus Done for Me? The discussion will have missed its final purpose if it does not result in a frank asking of this question: Have I allowed Jesus to do for me what he can do?

Suppose each of us this week follows this simple plan:

(1) Study each morning two or three verses from Matthew 5.

(2) Plan a method of applying them to our lives for that day.

(3) Spend a few moments in the evening in seeing what difference these teachings have made.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

. 133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black. Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/4 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

WHO IS MY BROTHER?

"Whom thinkest thou was neighbor unto him?"
—Luke 10:36, 37.

"Whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother."—Matt. 12:50.

The following is taken from the Talmud and commended to us all in the hope to learn from it a much needed lesson:

"Walking on the mountain one day, I saw a form which I took to be a beast; coming nearer, I saw it was a man; approaching nearer still I found it was my brother." The closer we come to one another, the better we understand one another and the more we feel that we are brothers."

Prayer—Dear Lord, God, there are a lot of folks whom we do not appreciate. Help us to see them truly as thou dost see them and be to them what thou dost wish. In Christ's name.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

SOME PROVERBS.

"Think on these things."—Phil. 4:8.

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."—I. Thess. 5:21.

"Goodness is beauty in its best estate.

"We may be as good as we please, if we please to be good.

"Every day should be distinguished by one particular act of love.

"A good heart is a letter of credit.

"To have lived so as to look back with pleasure is to have lived twice.

"You are not very good if you are not better than your best friends imagine you to be.

"He who seldom thinks of heaven is not likely to get there, as the only way to hit the mark is to keep the eye on it.

"The greatest art in the world is to have as many good thoughts as possible.

"It is better to think what you say than to say what you think.

"Many seem to prove all things and hold fast to nothing.

"Sometimes God has to break our hearts to enter them."—Selected.

Prayer—O Lord, our Father, give us the vision to see and know all of the mind of Christ that is possible and make us of that same mind. Give us the power to follow Christ in all our doings. O Lord, do thou supply all our needs.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

A MAN'S PRAYER.

"O Lord, teach me that sixty minutes make an hour, sixteen ounces make one pound and 100 cents one dollar. Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience unhaunted by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain.

"Grant, I beseech thee, that I may earn my living on the square, and in doing so I may do nothing wrong.

"Blind me to the faults of others, but reveal to me my own. Guide me so that I will have nothing to conceal.

"Keep me young enough to laugh with children and to amuse myself with their play, and when I am called from this world, may they who go on after me be glad to remember me, and make thou my epitaph simple: 'Here lies a man.' Amen."—Selected.

THURSDAY.

A MAN'S BIGGEST JOB.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

One can cut away mountains, change the river's flood, close chasms with bridges, master ocean and sky, and shape the world's destiny, but the job of moulding a boy into a man is the biggest job any man ever had.

Man can calculate what steel will bear and span the streams for the oncoming generations, but to determine what is wrong and what is right and sift out the good so that his boy shall be a stature of truth blossoming into manhood without injury of soul by careless words and thoughtless deeds and have in him no seed of ruin and misery, that is man's stupendous task.

Prayer—O Lord, Father of us all, thou who hast given us these children, grant unto us unreserved consecration to heaven, thy wisdom in knowledge and discretion; thy love in living; and be thou my soul complete to our children and all with whom I come in contact.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

"EVERY MORNING NEW."

"Old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."—II. Cor. 5:17.

This title and text is the caption of a leaflet which I have received. It says: "Let every morning be unto you as the beginning of a new life. No matter how dark the night—how disappointment, or failure, or sin has marred the past—here's a new day—begin again."

It is a grand thing to live—to open the eyes in the morning and look out upon the world, to drink in the pure air and enjoy the sweet sunshine, to realize the newness of the day and feel the pulse and thrill of the strength and power which it brings, and likewise the consciousness of the strength and power with which we may respond to it.

Prayer—Our Father, we thank thee for this day, and for every new day with all its wealth of life for us. Notwithstanding all the ills of life, help us to find the goodness and the joys of life, and do thy will all the way.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

LIGHT FOR THE DEAF.

"Hear, ye deaf; and look, ye blind, that ye may see."—Read Isa. 42:14-22.

It has been discovered that partly deaf persons can hear 50 per cent better if their heads are exposed to a powerful electric light. More and more it has been found that man is a unit. Improve one organ, and other organs respond to the stimulus; or destroy one organ and other organs are impaired and perhaps ruined.

Thus also is every man a unit spiritually. Whatever is done for the betterment of the soul in one direction has its beneficial results in all directions. More Bible reading means more prayer. More prayer means kinder thoughts. Kinder thoughts mean gentler words. Better church attendance means a nobler life. Thus there is every reason why we should be zealous for God.

Prayer—It all goes back, our Father, to thy love for us, which leads to our love of thee. May we love thee more each day, and serve thee better because we love thee more. For Jesus' sake.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

GANDHI'S FEE.

"Take heed, and keep yourselves from all covetousness."—Read Luke 12:13-21.

Gandhi, the mystic and ascetic, who is the adored leader of vast masses of India's people, was receiving a party of Americans early this year. One of his visitors asked him: "Would you go to America for a million rupees?" His answer was prompt, sincere, and wholly characteristic: "Not for a hundred million dollars; but I would go for nothing."

Men who do things for nothing, for the pure love of doing them—such men have always swayed the world. Gandhi's only garment is a loin cloth. His only food is a supper of a few dates, almond paste, and goat's milk. He is serving India, and not seeking to please himself. India follows him for that reason.

Self-control, self-denial, and self-dedication—these three make up all of life that is worth living. They alone render possible all the work that is worth doing.

Prayer—Guide us, blessed Spirit, in thine own way, and to thine own true and happy ends. We will not be self-seekers. We will seek thee and thine.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

A PIGSTY AT MAIN AND MARKET.

"Neighbors," was the keynote of President Roosevelt's informal address to a throng of his Duchess county friends on the campus of Vassar College a few days ago. He finely said:

"We have been extending to our national life the old principle of the local community, the principle that no individual, man, woman or child, has a right to do things that hurt their neighbors."

Most of our readers would applaud that principle, as applied, for example, to child labor, or, to quote the President again, "It is unfair to maintain a pigsty at Main and Market Streets." But some of us would like to ask the President whether a pigsty at the heart of the town would be as much of a nuisance to his Poughkeepsie neighbors as the saloons that are sure to be opened there and at many other crossroads if and when he puts repeal through. As one listens to the President, ringing the changes on that goodly word, "neighbor," one wonders whether he has ever read the fifteenth verse of the second chapter of Habakkuk in that great Dutch Bible which is an heirloom of the Roosevelt tribe, and which his lips pressed when he took the oath. In the King James version, it reads: "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth the bottle to him."—N. Y. Advocate.

There is not the slightest reason in the world why today you should not know and enjoy as much of God's love as anyone else. The only lack is that somewhere in your nature there is a paralysis, a want of power. The good you would do not, and the evil you would not you do. All you have to do today, in the simplest way possible, is to link your nature to that of Christ, the living, risen Lord.—Selected.

Alcohol is poison. Never have I had recourse to alcohol as a stimulant for intellectual labor.—Sardou.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

REVELATION—IN REALITY THE BOOK OF REVOLUTION.

By DR. J. EDWARD KIRBYE.

[Preached in the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., February 4, 1934.]

Blessed is he that readeth and they that hear the words of this book—the time is at hand.—Revelation I: 3.

A half century had passed since those days when the first friends of Jesus in sorrow and joy had formed for themselves a new loyalty, a new faith in him as Lord of life and death. And that faith in him had been rewarded in the organization of communities reaching westward and for nearly two thousand miles from the first center. These little groups had grown with amazing rapidity. Their call for devotion might mean death. Every leader in accepting Jesus knew that this might be the end. It was not an easy thing to become a Christian in the first century. There was real meaning in its call to devotion. Only as you sense that meaning is there reality in the words of the hymn—

"In the cross of Christ I glory—
Towering o'er the wrecks of time—
All the light of sacred story
Gathers 'round its head sublime.

James, the brother of Jesus, had been killed during the reign of Nero—Peter had been killed, and not much later Paul met a similar end. The last years of the century witnessed a new leadership that had to face all the dangers. It is not strange that the Christian leadership saw relief only in a supernatural way and could think only of Jesus as returning immediately in the clouds in judgment to overwhelm his enemies. Jerusalem had been destroyed and the power of imperial strength was seeking to destroy the Christian sect.

Jesus had said: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy; but I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." A half century and more of persecution had been their lot and the book of Revelation is their answer to those years of bewilderment and oppression.

It is historically true that Christianity, as an organized movement in the first century, developed through blood and tears of crosses and in the innermost depths of pain appealed for loyalty. Loyalty that understood the meaning of Jesus when he said, "Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness sake," and circumstances which enabled Paul to say: "I am persuaded that neither death nor life,"—and experiences which led the writer of the Book of Revelation to see the Christian communities coming through great trials and tribulations and washing their robes and making them white in the blood of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Only as we face the hard experiences of life do we catch the spiritual significance of these years.

In these things are the last defenses of human hope, the last long leap of the soul to find a rational basis for living amid difficulties which they are powerless to understand. They come to us when we cannot find any other explanation for the overwhelming experiences of life and death, and in their hopes we cling. The book of Revelation is the history of a struggle—appeal for a martyr loyalty in the Christian communities—the last refuge of the soul in God and Christ in the skies—and the assertion of an impending doom upon all enemies and the certainty of the triumph of Jesus.

Volumes of literature grow around these experiences of defeat. There is always a better day coming—impending judgments and destruction—the coming of Christ and angels, and the ultimate defeat of those who have caused the wrong to be powerful and merciless.

Why did the author use symbols and fill the book with strange descriptions? There is evidence of an overwrought mind fully understood in the light of conditions. There is extensive use of symbol which was common to the oriental mind, and not used so extensively in the West. The book of Revelation was intentionally written in Hebrew symbol that their enemies might not be able to understand it. It would be understood by all Jewish Christians, but not by the officials of Rome. Years afterward when Christian leaders were courting the favor of Roman officials, this book remained a testimony against such an alliance, and Christian leaders had to keep it in the background in their affirmations of loyalty to the government.

Nearly a century of prosecution for their unwillingness to accept the doctrine of the vice-regency of the Roman Empire had produced two results:

(1) A long list of martyrs, including all the Apostles of Jesus. And that list was becoming longer and longer as the years passed.

(2) The other was a gradual yielding on the part of many in the Christian communities. Evidently the writer is making his appeal to the churches in the Smyrna area of Asia Minor. The appeal is to seven churches, and the first chapters of the book are discussing their lacks as well as their fidelities. Some of them had been falling away, and the Roman government priestly officials were offering trade privileges to those who forsook the Christian cause. This was the mark spoken of in the 13th chapter by which trade privileges are given in exchange for forsaking the Christian cause.

Along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea, the Roman Empire stretched from Spain to Palestine, embracing various racial groups, languages and cultures. The writer has such a picture in mind in the 13th chapter—from the sea a beast has risen, and he is the personification of blasphemy. Dragons and beasts of every kind have contributed to his authority and all the world worshipped at his feet. He is the representative of power and might. For three and a half years he ruled with the viciousness of the beast, and his hand was raised against God and the saints and all whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life. But he that kills with the sword must be killed by the sword—Quite like the law of the Jews, isn't it?—not quite like that saying of Jesus!

And then there arises another beast from the earth exercising power like the first. This evidently refers to the official priestly class of the Empire exercising the power of the Emperor and bringing to trial the Christians who refuse loyalty to either. But with power he persuades professing Christians to leave their loyalty and exchange it for the mark given—or token—by which trade privileges and earthly advantages are given. And only those with such a token might buy and sell.

And then comes the climax of the indictment. Here is wisdom. The number of the beast is the number of a man. You have heard the modern expression—getting his number. That is what the writer here is saying. Here is his number—Six hundred, three score, six. What is his climax? Who is being indicted? How did he get the number 666? He took the numerical values of the Hebrew letters which spelled the name of the Latin Emperor, Neron Caesar. Their numerical values in the Hebrew language are 666. Very simple, isn't it? Nero Caesar equals the number 616 used elsewhere.

Over against the beast—the power of Rome, are the martyrs—the 144,000 whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life. They are in heaven with songs of victory—they are good people—they are those who have not been defiled and their cry of victory is heard in these words: "Fear God and give glory to him who made heaven and earth." These sit in judgment and the wrath of vengeance shall be visited upon all who do not heed. Thus you can go through the book. The heavens are warring against the earth and the victory belongs to the supernatural powers of heaven.

We need not be concerned about angels, or the spectacular coming of Christ in the clouds. We can discuss these matters without any loss to ourselves or others, and we need to be reasonable.

In this book, however, in the midst of peril—there is a passion and unbounded confidence that certain courses in life are right and others are wrong and Christians should have a concern for the higher things. From such a book as Revelation as from the others in the New Testament, and confirmed in an amazing manner in the teachings of Jesus, there is strikingly illustrated the deepest and most vital of all principles—the one principle that lifts human beings into nobility and virtue and makes personality of worth possible—the quality of moral optimism. Here is the question of questions for every one of us. Does pessimism rule us—does pessimism rule society in a blase fashion—does a non-moral attitude rule us? Or are we under the emotional compulsions of creative ideals which make distinctions between good and evil, and which may rise if occasion need be, to the heights of commanding loyalties. You have that as your greatest revelation of God in human beings in the New Testament. Therefore life which is to face personal development of its powers and meet individual and social issues heroically, must have a moral optimism as its base, for only then are there inspirations that abide as permanent elements of character.

Some say that Christianity in its superstitions and creeds is unreasonable. All of us are willing to confess this. But there is something deeper—something more fundamental. Does this seem reasonable? Would each one of you be reasonable? "Be normal and be moral. Be healthy in body and mind, be buoyantly optimistic, taking account of your moral responsibility. Be yourself and your best possible self. Be strong. Be heroic, but not by fits and starts—be not weary in well doing. Steadily do your part, and for the final outcome trust the Higher Power

(Continued on page 14.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

I have read stories where under great mental strain peoples' hair would turn gray over night. We live hours sometimes in a few minutes. I well remember on one occasion we visited a large city with the singing class, and the children were sent out in homes to be entertained with the express understanding that they were to be at the station next morning fifteen minutes before train time, so we could leave for home. Al lwere there except two larger girls. We counted off the minutes as they flew by, still they did not come. The last minute was counted off, still these girls had not arrived. The conductor called, "All Aboard!" the train slowly moved off, still the girls had not arrived. But for some reason the train was stopped and while it was standing, the girls came, all excited and out of breath. They had missed the first ferry boat. Imagine how long I lived in a space of a few minutes. I attribute many of the silver hairs in my head to that experience.

During the week from February 26th to March 3rd, we had the heaviest sleet in the section from Raleigh to Winston-Salem that we have had in thirty years. Telephone wires down, light wires down, and we were in darkness, without means of communication by phone or wire. During the worst night we had, when th esleet was so heavy and the limbs on the trees were crashing to the ground on every side, and the ground was so slippery one could hardly walk, about two o'clock in the night when I was dead in sleep, two little boys from the "Baby Home" came to my door and said the matron had sent them to tell me that the "Baby Home" was on fire. She was a new matron supplying for one out sick, and did not know to call Mr. Wagoner, my assistant, who lives next door to this particular building.

Imagine being called out of a sound sleep at two o'clock in an awful night, and informed that a building is on fire with thirty little children in it! We dressed as quickly as possible and went as fast as we could to see that the children were gotten out first. When we reached the building, we found that the power line wires running near the building had come in contact with limbs on the trees and set them on fire, and made quite a blaze. It also crossed the phone wire and ran the current into the phone and made a blaze. No damage was done, the children were all safe, and we felt much relieved. But think of being called up out of a warm bed at two o'clock in the night, when the weather was awful and limbs crashing all along the way. That is what makes one's hair turn gray.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR MARCH 8, 1934.

Brought forward .....	$ 1,232.18
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Greensboro, First .....	$ 9.88
Hines Chapel .....	6.00
	15.88
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Henderson .....	1.57
Western North Carolina Conference:
Providence Memorial .....	1.78
Eastern Virginia Conference:
First, Norfolk .....	$ 7.07
Suffolk .....	25.00
Cypress Chapel .....	3.37
	35.44

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Mayland .....	$ 1.00
Linville .....	3.40
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Vanceville .....	1.00
Special Offerings.
F. C. Owen, gdn. James Brown...$	12.50
C. M. Horner, support of Hazel
Horner .....	25.00
Chas. D. Johnston, cash item.....	5.15
	42.65
Total for the week .....	$ 102.72
Grand total .....	$ 1,334.90

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

upon which you and yours ultimately depend. This simple, normal, moral and reasonable attitude is what we mean by moral optimism." So said one of the great teachers recently.

That is not only normal and reasonable but vitally necessary to life and well being. That is fundamentally the most essential thing revealed in historic Christianity and just as fundamental to your full living now as it has been in past generations. It is the very heart of our educational processes and should be the heart of the Christian appeal in our churches.

CORRECTION.

In the notice of Eastern Virginia District Rallies, the Nansemond-Gates-Franklin Rally will meet with the Holland Christian Church instead of Berea, Nansemond. Please correct in next week's SUN. Thank you.

MRS. L. W. STAGG.

The above was received after the printing of the form containing the Rally announcements.

Eifers Sunday School Maps.

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen inlaid cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History. New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, shown by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing

The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lim:	A. D. 31.	934 CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.
	In Isa. 9. 1, 2.	AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE. Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION
4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>k</sup> The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gal'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	In Isa. 9. 1, 2.	3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
	In Luke 2. 32.
	In Mark 1. 14.

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES
4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above .....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

MARRIAGES

TALLEY—WOOTON.

On February 10, 1934, at Virgilina, Va., R. F. D. No. 1, I united in marriage Mr. W. M. Talley, of Buffalo Junction, Va., and Mrs. Florence Elizabeth Wooton, of Boydton, Va.

Mr. Talley is a deacon in the Hebron Christian Church, and a prosperous farmer. The bride is an excellent Christian lady. Their many relatives and friends wish for them prosperity and happiness.

C. E. NEWMAN.

OBITUARIES

SHIFLETT.

Mrs. Virginia Bell Shiflett (familiarily known as Jennie Shiflett) died on January 20, 1934, aged about 78 years, her exact age being unknown. Sister Shiflett was a faithful member of Palmyra Christian Church. I have met but few people that had the love and loyalty for the Church that she had. She was always anxious to do more than she was able to do, and often went to church when she was really not able to go. During the years of my ministry at Palmyra, I have often heard her faithfulness and godliness favorably commented upon. She is survived by three sons and one daughter. Funeral services were held at Palmyra, January 22, 1934.

A. W. ANDES.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

On December 3, 1933, our heavenly Father, in his infinite wisdom and love, saw fit to remove from our midst one of our most sincere and loyal members, Miss Lula Byrd. It could truly be said of her: "She lived for others."

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Cypress Chapel Christian Church offer the following tribute to her memory:

- 1. While we regret and mourn the loss of this good woman, we bow in submission to our loving Father's will.
2. That we keep in mind her faithfulness and loyalty to her family, friends, church and Ladies' Aid Society.
3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her family.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to "The Christian Sun," a copy to her family, and a copy placed in the minutes of our Society.

MRS. C. C. HARRELL,
MRS. J. P. PARKER,
MRS. MARY HARRELL,
MRS. A. J. BOUNTREE,
Committee.

RESOLUTIONS.

Adopted by Class No. 1 of the Christian Sunday School, Lanett, Ala.:

1. We, the members of Class No. 1, desire to express our sympathy for, and interest in, the home of Brother J. T. Cox, which in this hour of bereavement is heartbroken and crushed over the death of their only daughter, Mrs. Alice Cox Alexander, who departed this life at the age of 29 years.

2. We promise to remember Brother who loved the things of earth, fought a good fight, and do all in our power to point them to him who is the soul's great comforter.
3. We pledge also to prove our sympathy and love by a faithful attendance to our duties as members of our class, and to constantly pray for our teacher.

4. A copy of these resolutions to be presented to Brother Cox, one to "The Christian Sun," and one to the Chattahoochee Valley "Times," for publication.

CLASS NO. 1.

MRS. MARY F. PIERCE.

For inasmuch as on the night of November 12, 1933, our beloved sister and Society member, Mrs. Mary F. Pierce,

- 1. That we, the members of the Aid Society of Bethel Church let our wills be governed by our all-wise loving Father.
2. That we cherish her memory sweet by our association.
3. That we reconsecrate our lives to the tasks of life dear to her heart, that some day we may see her where death cannot reach.

ELON COLLEGE
AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE
of the
CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar
Elon College, - - - North Carolina
Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

SAUNDERS.

son of the late Mr. Saunders, of Nansens, his home at Wind- 15, 1934, aged 70 services were con- ter, assisted by Dr. I. Revs. J S Cobb, R. I. B. White. The burial emetry.

leaves a son, Lee Henry, N. J., two daughters, Rucker, Richmond, Va., L. Saunders, Windsor, children, three brothers, hard and Willie G. Saun- nsemond County, and two ennie Saunders, Richmond, R. M. Ashburn, Suffolk, been a member of Oakland Church for more than fifty a quiet and humble Chris- and left to his loved ones the heritage of a good name

N. G. NEWMAN.

TRUITT.

William H. Truitt was born October 7, and died February 24, 1934, age years, 4 months and 20 days. He was son of the late Lewis and Sheila Truitt, of Rockingham County.

On August 11, 1881, he was married to Miss Amanda Albertiue Tickle, who preceded him nearly four years. To this union eight children were born. They are: Mrs. H. L. Thomas, of Barium Springs, N. C.; Robert, Ashton P., and C. J. Truitt, and Mrs. E. B. Raseoe, Mrs. C. E. Creason, Mrs. C. W. Whitaker, and Mrs. H. H. Zimmerman, of Burlington.

Besides the children, 31 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren, two brothers, J. D., of Elon College, and Thomas Truitt, of England, survive.

He was a member of the Mt. Bethel Church in Rockingham County in early life. He moved his membership to Shallow Ford Church in 1881, and has since been a faithful member, having served as deacon in this church for around 35 years. He took an active part in all church work until the past few years, when failing health prevented.

Burial services at Shallow Ford, conducted by the pastor, assisted by Revs. Redd Turner and C. A. Brown.

The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful. May the heavenly Father comfort the bereaved.

T. J. GREEN.

GUNN.

Mr. William P. Gunn was born April 23, 1847, departed this life February 20, 1934, at the age of 86 years, 9 months and 27 days.

He was married December 16, 1869, to Miss Matilda Wray, who preceded him to the grave a few years ago. Twelve children graced that marriage, seven of whom survive and mourn their loss. Besides his immediate family, two brothers survive, Mr. Dolphus Gunn and Mr. Walter Gunn, a number of grand-children, many relatives and a host of friends.

Mr. Gunn was an industrious farmer, a good neighbor and a Confederate soldier. He spent his entire life in his boyhood community. He had been in declining health for over a year.

Brother Gunn professed faith in Christ when a young man, first joining the M. E. Church, South. He later transferred his membership to Howard's Chapel Christian Church, and was made a deacon, to which office and obligation he was loyal as long as he lived.

He will be missed—a soldier of the cross has laid down his weapons of warfare. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor from his home in Rock- ingham County, N. C., assisted by Rev. Mr. Overby, a Missionary Baptist minis- ter, and interment was in the family burying ground at Shady Grove May the Lord comfort the relatives, is our prayer.

L. L. WYRICK.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Play-ground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

BRAME.

Little Mary Elizabeth was born January 11, 1933, and embarked for the Spirit Land February 21, 1934, being 1 year, 1 month and 10 days of age. She was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Falton Brame, R. 3, Reidsville N. C. She was a bright, promising little girl, staying long enough to entwine her influence in the affections and love of her parents and other relatives.

Elizabeth was not sick long, her going was a great shock to her parents and friends. Heaven has gained while earth has lost in her passing.

Funeral services were conducted at Howard's Chapel, February 22, 1934, and burial was in the church cemetery.

May our kind heavenly Father comfort the grief-stricken parents is our sincere prayer.
L. L. WYRICK.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

Obituary and marriage notices, up to 125 words, published free. Over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Advertisements will be accepted on terms of publication. For rates and conditions, apply to J. T. Kernodle, Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1934.

NUMBER 11.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Rev. F. C. Lester
505 S. Main St.
5-1-33

Peanut Amendment Approved.—

By unanimous vote of the Senate the Byrd Amendment giving peanuts the status of a basic agricultural commodity, was passed the first of the week. The bill was sponsored by the junior senator from Virginia and had the hearty backing of Senator Bailey of North Carolina. Between the two all opposition was smoothed out, but not before one Senator had declared that he hoped that they would not "get any more nuts in the Senate."

The Virginia Liquor Bill.—

The penalties for violation, in the new liquor control bill, are considerably lighter than under the Layman Act. However, buyers, as well as sellers, are guilty under the new law. The law specifically forbids the sale of alcoholic liquors not covered by license; beer or wine with which other beverages of greater alcoholic content have been mixed; sale to a person under 21 years of age, to an intoxicated person, or one forbidden to buy liquor. Drinking in public places, except those licensed, is punishable by a fine of not less than $10.00.

Washington Has Mormon Temple.—

Who would ever have expected to see a Mormon Church building in the nation's capital? Yet one has been erected there on a prominent corner, and was dedicated on November 5th. It appears that Reed Smoot was not only a United States Senator, but a persistent propagandist for his faith. By the use of all kinds of influence he secured positions of one sort or another for Mormons in Washington. Quietly and persistently he kept on until several hundred members of that faith came to the city, many of them in government service. He is one of the highest Mormon officials and was present at the dedication.—Presbyterian Advocate.

An Important Mayan City Discovered.—

The Carnegie Institution has announced the discovery by its archaeologists of ruins of an important Maya city dating from before 600 A. D., in a previously unexplored region of Campeche, Mexico. Two great stone courts and twenty sculptured stone monuments, fifteen of them still standing, were found during a preliminary exploration. Hieroglyphics on the monuments indicated the city was occupied during the so-called "old empire" period of Maya history. During this period the Mayans occupied many cities in Central America, but about 600 A. D. they abandoned the old centres for an undiscovered reason and migrated north to Northern Yucatan, where new cities were built.—Methodist Protestant Recorder.

The Scotsman Justified.—

B. P. Hall, writing in The Christian Evangelist, says: "The Scotsman has been the butt of the jokers because of his national trait of being a wee bit close in dealing with money. There is a margin over which the acquisitive dare not step lest one becomes meanly averse to spending money, but a sane frugality is always to be commended." He continues with the statement that in spite of this frugality, or possibly because of it, the Church of Scotland presented the outstanding achievement of passing through the last year without a deficit. Again quoting: "At a time when British and American missionary societies were having distressingly increasing deficits, the Church of Scotland had actually increased its income by $90,000 over the previous year."

Soldier Bonus Bill.—

Despite Presidential opposition, the House of Representatives passed the Soldier Bonus Bill by a vote of 295 to 125. Opponents of the bill say that notwithstanding this overwhelming vote, the bill will never pass the Senate and reach the President. Backers of the bill are not so certain of its defeat. No matter what happens in the legislative branches of the Government, it is practically certain of an executive veto. The bill calls for the issuance of $2,200,000 in "greenbacks," and is directly inflationary. The situation is peculiar, inasmuch as the President, who has been considered in favor of every measure that would distribute money and start spending, is at this time in line with the conservatives. There are possibly representatives who voted for the bonus to save the soldier vote in the coming election, but that is a mean trick to play on the President.

The Maryland Tercentenary.—

Catholics of the State of Maryland are planning the celebration of the Tercentenary of the Founding of Maryland on the 27th of this month. But while particularly a Catholic celebration, both Protestants and Jews will participate. The Commonweal, Roman Catholic weekly, points out that there was at least one Jew in the provincial Assembly as early as in 1641, and it also points out that, "The credit we Catholics give to the Lords Baltimore and to the first Catholics of Maryland, should not subtract from the credit due to the Protestants. George Calvert obtained the consent of a Protestant king, James, to the granting of a charter. . . . Moreover, the Catholics, although holding the powers of government in the first years of the colony, may have been in the minority. Certainly many Protestants must have been willing to risk their lives and fortunes in the great adventure."

The Temple of Dagon Uncovered.—

Deep under the debris of centuries, the ruins of the Temple of Dagon have been uncovered by archaeologists from the University of Pennsylvania Museum. When Saul fell upon his sword on the slopes of Mount Gilboa, the Philistines cut off his head, and, says the First Book of Chronicles, "they fastened his head in the Temple of Dagon." This is the first time, says James C. Muir, of the University Museum, that a temple definitely mentioned in the Old Testament has been uncovered. By the side of the Temple, the excavations revealed the ruins of the house of Ashtaroth. There it was that the Philistines placed the armor of Saul. "And they put his armor in the house of Ashtaroth," is the quotation from the First Book of Samuel. Begun in 1921, on the hill of Beisan, the Beth-Shan of the Bible, these excavations are expected to continue another ten years before the archaeological resources of the hill are exhausted. Mr. Muir says these excavations are bringing to light a great mass of evidence confirming the Scriptures. They are being carried on under direction of Allan Rowe.—Methodist Protestant Recorder.

"A Bag of Earth, a Cruse of Water."—

A recent issue of the Missionary Review of the World reprints an account from the New York Times, of a Moslem community in Northwest China. These people originally came from Samarkand, in Central Asia, but have for six centuries been in the region of Kansu, on the south bank of the Yellow River. They speak Turkish, not as it is spoken by the modern Turk, but as it was spoken when the Turks first invaded Europe, and their dress is said to be of that period. The story runs, that before the arrival of a "descendant of the Prophet," in Samarkand, these Salars, as they call themselves, were the dominant tribe. After his coming, they declined to accept the moral precepts of the Koran, but received the predatory teachings. So he commanded them to leave the country and seek an abode elsewhere. And for some strange reason he was enabled to force compliance with his demand. But, "before they departed, he gave them a copy of the Koran, a white camel, a bag filled with the earth of Samarkand, and a cruse of its water," and instructed them to travel toward the rising sun to a place where the camel would guide them. They would know this place because the earth and water would be identical with the earth in the bag and the water in the cruse. When they reached this place they were to build their homes and be guided by the passages marked in the Koran. Their journey ended when they reached the Kansu region, near the end of the fourteenth century.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, left for New York Friday evening, March 9th, on official business for the College to meet engagements with interested parties in New York on Saturday, the 10th.

Brother M. J. W. White, of Norfolk, Va., was a pleasant visitor at the Richmond office one day last week. We are always glad to see Brother White, and a welcome awaits him at any time he may find it convenient to call.

Dr. L. E. Smith spent Monday night in the home of the Managing editor, arriving late in the evening. He is working hard for the cause he represents and deserves more support from the church at large than he is receiving. Let's put our shoulder to the wheel and help him start it turning.

The good women of our Missionary Societies are planning their programs for the District Missionary Rallies, both in North Carolina and Virginia during the month of April. The dates and places of the Rallies are given elsewhere in THE SUN, and the programs for the meetings will soon appear.

Among other delightful visitors at Elon College the past week were Dr. Kedzie, of the Educational Board of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, and Dr. D. Brewer Eddy, of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Both of these distinguished men brought messages of inspiration and power to Elon audiences.

We learn with painful regret that our dear friend, J. A. Kimball, of our Mt. Auburn Church, Manson, N. C., is suffering from an automobile accident and is in St. Luke's hospital, Richmond, Va. He was out in his car on an errand in behalf of Elon College, to which he is a most loyal friend, patron and supporter, when his car skidded, turned over two or three times and was almost wrecked. His unnumbered friends will wish and pray for his recovery.

Revs. J. D. Dollar, Roanoke, Ala., G. H. Veazey, Wadley, Ala.; J. H. Dollar, LaGrange, Ga., and F. P. Ensminger, D. D., Birmingham, Ala., were welcome visitors at Elon the past week. It was a joy to meet and share the delightful fellowship of these good brethren during their stay at Elon. Their visit as a committee had to do with the transfer of Southern Union (Bethlehem) College, Wadley, Ala., to the Alabama Conference.

Deacon J. A. Kimball, of Manson, N. C., is temporarily a resident at St. Luke's hospital, in Richmond, Va. About three weeks ago he was in an automobile accident, and later complications developed which made him think it best to come to the hospital. We were delighted to see him, but very regretful of the cause that brought him to our good city. He is improving steadily, we understand, and we wish for him a speedy and complete recovery. Brother Kimball's wife is with him during his stay in Richmond.

Every church, every Sunday School, every Missionary Society of our Southern Convention should be emphasizing the thought and theme of Missions in preparation for great missionary sermons, programs, service and offering at Easter time. Our Convention and Conferences have called upon all the churches, all Sunday Schools and Societies, to make an annual offering for Missions at Easter, and surely no pastor, superintendent or official of a Missionary Society will neglect this opportunity of rendering a spiritual service in the name of the church and for the sake of their Lord in this time of moral and spiritual stress and strain.

We regret the death of that distinguished divine and lovable brother, Rev. Peter Ainslie, D. D., internationally known for his zeal for church unity and world fellowship through the churches. Dr. Ainslie died on February 23rd, in a hospital in Baltimore. He was only sixty-six, and one wonders how a man could pack as much constructive work as he did into three-score years. Wherever church union was in evidence and needed an advocate, there Dr. Ainslie's great heart was. He was a trustee of the Church Peace Union founded by the late Andrew Carnegie, and was a delegate to the Church Peace Union Conference in Geneva in 1914 and 1920, in the Hague in 1919, and in Copenhagen in 1922. For fifteen years he was president of the Association for the Promotion of Christian Unity. A divided Christianity was a burden upon his heart, and his plans for church union were constant, powerful and effective. He was a native of Dunnsville, Va., was educated at Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky., and was pastor of Christian Temple (Disciples of Christ) in Baltimore from 1891 till the time of his death. The world and the church are richer because of this great man's life and, though dead, his influence will be felt in ages to come.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE.

A committee from the trustees of Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala., met the Committee on Education of the Southern Convention at Elon College, Tuesday, March 6th. The following is the official record of the Board's action and fully explains:

Meeting of Board of Education for Congregational and Christian Churches of the Southern Convention in President's Office, Elon College, N. C., March 6, 1934.

The meeting was called to order by L. E. Smith, Chairman. Prayer by Rev. F. P. Ensminger.

A letter was read from Dr. F. E. Jenkins appointing L. E. Smith as his proxy in the meeting. A letter was read from Dr. H. C. Newell delegating Dr. W. R. Kedzie as his proxy with power to vote.

In addition to regular members of the Board, Dr. W. R. Kedzie of the Congregational Education Society was present at request of the Convention, and was recognized. Revs. F. P. Ensminger, G. H. Veazey, J. D. Dollar, and J. H. Dollar were present in the interest of Southern Union College, located at Wadley, Ala. Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Secretary of the Mission Board for the Convention, Milo J. Sweet, Pastor-at-Large; Dr. S. C. Harrell, President of the Convention, and Rev. E. M. Carter were recognized and asked to participate in the discussions.

The meeting was called for the purpose of hearing representatives of the Board of Trustees of Southern Union College in behalf of the College. Revs. G. H. Veazey was asked to make a statement expressing the wishes of his group. Rev. F. P. Ensminger presented the attached request as a resolution to be passed by the Committee:

After full discussion of the whole question of Southern Union College, by unanimous vote, the attached report was passed on to the Executive Committee of the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches with the approval of the Board of Education, as follows:

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE—ELON COLLEGE,
Elon College, N. C.,
March 6, 1934.

The East Alabama Association of Congregational and Christian Churches, which includes the entire Christian Church fellowship of twenty-six churches located in Alabama, joined by the Board of Trustees of Bethlehem College, Incorporated, located at Wadley, Ala., which is popularly called Southern Union College, and also joined by the Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches, which includes the Alabama Christian Churches and the white Alabama and West Florida Congregational Churches, requests the Board of Education of the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches to recommend to the Executive Committee of the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches, Inc., to transfer all control and responsibility of Bethlehem College over to the Alabama Congregational and Christian Conference, Inc.

G. H. VEAZEY,

Secretary, Board of Trustees of Bethlehem College.

President, East Alabama Association of Congregational-Christian Churches.

Moderator of Alabama Conference of Congregational-Christian Churches.

This being approved, the Committee adjourned.

L. E. SMITH, Chairman,

E. L. MOFFETT, Secretary.

This means that all control and responsibility of Southern Union (Bethlehem) College are now vested in the Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches, surmising, of course, that the Executive Committee approve the action of the Board of Education. J. O. A.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

A pulpit Bible from Birmingham, England, where it was used by two world-famous preachers in the historic Carr's-lane Chapel, the largest Congregational Church in Great Britain, was presented to the Congregational Church, Birmingham, Ala., at the dedication of its new edifice, on Sunday, March 4, 1934.

The Bible was used by Dr. J. H. Jowett, pastor of Carr's-lane, 1905 until 1911, when he became pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City, and by his predecessor, Dr. R. W. Dale, who for half a century was a leading personality in British Congregationalism and was elected president of the first International Congregational Council, London, 1891.

The Bible was sent to America by the present pastor of Carr's-lane, the Rev. Leyton Richards, M. A., a personal friend of the pastor of the Congregational Church of Birmingham, the Rev. Arthur W. Dicer.

The Congregational Church of Birmingham was organized August 31, 1931. The membership is now 506. The first pastor, the Rev. Dr. Trevor Mordecai, was born in Wales, and the Rev. Mr. Dycer, by whom he was succeeded last October, was born in England. Both were educated in America.

Birmingham, England, is the principal home of the metal industry in the British Isles and is termed "the workshop of the world," and similarly the Birmingham of Alabama is the iron and steel center of the South with the volume and variety of its products steadily increasing. Its population jumped from 178,806 in 1920 to 259,678 in 1930.

The Sunday services of the Congregational Church of Birmingham, Alabama, were held at first in the Empire Theatre, and then in the Strand Theatre. In 1932 the church moved its Sunday services to the auditorium of the Axis Club. With the assistance of the national Congregational and Christian Church Extension Boards the property of this club comprising an auditorium seating 504 and an adjoining administration building with a site 100 by 190 feet was purchased. Chancel, altar and pews have been installed in the auditorium and the administration building has been adapted for a parish house. The property is located at 1817 and 1819 North Eighth Avenue, and is valued at $100,000.

The dedication exercises were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Fred P. Ensminger, organizer of the church. Greetings on behalf of the city of Birmingham were presented by Dewey Robinson, one of the three city commissioners, and a member of the church. The Sunday School superintendent is Arthur K. Akers.

Greetings on behalf of the General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches were presented by the Rev. D. W. Knighton Bloom, regional secretary of missions for the Southeast. Addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. William J. Campbell and Dr. W. A. Harper.

TENNESSEE COMRADES.

Quite in keeping with the general atmosphere of courageous venturing into new fields which characterizes certain sections of Tennessee, is the summer training school of the Chattanooga District Comrades. This group of young people has planned for a camp guaranteed to make real campers or quitters out of anyone who dares to attend. At the last meeting of the Comrades, held at East Lake Church, February 17th-18th, plans were made for their first real camp school. Last year they tried an over-night camping expedition and had a wonderful time in spite of rain, bugs, hard beds and inadequate cover. That whetted their desire for a full week of it, so the week from the 11th to the 17th of June was selected. Grand View, site of one of our closed A. M. A. schools, is to be the scene of the camp. Every person who enrolls will be responsible for his own bed, eating utensils and personal equipment. Campers may bring provisions or money to buy them. Cooking will be done by squads appointed in turn from the group, over a real camp fire. Mornings will be devoted to classes, afternoons to hand work and recreation, and evenings to campfire meetings. Devotional services will be held at sunrise and at sunset, and chapel in the morning. Teachers and courses are already lining up, and great times are looming ahead.

Camp planning wasn't all we did at the Comrade's meeting in Chattanooga. We had an excellent program based on the theme: "Builders of a New World." First, we discovered facts about the world we are now living in. Mr. Nightingale gave us a resume of our situation and the challenge of the future to young people with courage and idealism. Mr. Hurst outlined the Russian experiment, and gave a very fair picture of that great undertaking and its results thus far. Mr. DeJarnette, through discussion, compared the Russian, German, and American systems and made us do some thinking for ourselves. All of this wealth of information and inspiration came to us in the Saturday program. We felt the need of the social hours provided by the East Lake young people and showed our appreciation of the good supper they served.

Sunday was a full day with a great variety of activities. Discussions were conducted by Mr. Coulter, who tried to show the young people their place in building this new world; by Mr. Richard Babcock, Y. M. C. A. Secretary, who helped them check up on their attitude toward other nations; and by Mr. Rupert Hampton, Highlander Folk School Director, who presented the situation in America. Dr. Ensminger held a private discussion with the adult group. The seven young people's groups contributed richly to the program. Crossville and Sherwood led devotional services; Soddy took charge of the morning service; Pleasant Hill held the vespers; Daisy conducted the Christian Endeavor meeting; Pilgrim presented a play, "Something Big"; and East Lake just kept everybody entertained and in good spirits. In spite of the cold and threatening rain, which became in reality sleet, the whole group went to Lookout Mountain. At every conference held in Chattanooga we have had wretched weather, but we felt a bit more hopeful this time, when it waited until the afternoon of the last day. It takes more than bad weather to dampen the spirits of the Comrades. The group from Pleasant Hill carried off the banner for the best spirit for the second time. The Award Committee's duty of selecting the group with the best spirit seems to be increasingly difficult, for every year the spirit seems to be better. Tennessee young people are to be congratulated for the excellent leadership of their pastors, of their State secretary, Miss Dorothy French, and within their individual groups. Great things are happening in Tennessee, and there is a great group of folks to help them happen.

"As every blade of grass, lifting its spire heavenward to the morning sun, has its own drop of dew, not one forgotten, so God deals personally, individually, with each one of his own."—Reich.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

(The Offer Is Continued Until Further Notice.)

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....
Street No. or R. F. D.....
City..... State.....
Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

HEART, HEAD AND HAND.

We cannot serve God and fellowman with the heart only. However, the heart must come first. It represents that which is deepest, truest, most abiding. Thus the wise man enjoined: "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." And another one equally as wise declared: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." So the trained mind is not enough, the skilled hand is not enough. First of all, there must be the devotion and the right direction of the heart.

It is pointed out that while the heart is mentioned a thousand times in the Scripture, brain is not mentioned once. Mind is frequently mentioned. "Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus." The right sort of mind, the trained mind, is not discredited, but it must be directed by the devoted heart, if it is to accomplish God's will and do God's work.

Pope, the poet, declared that Lord Bacon was "the wisest, most brilliant and the meanest of men," and the world has seen many wise ones, learned in the culture of the world, skilled in reasoning and research, go wrong in experience and life.

On the other hand, some of the most faithful of God's servants had little of the world's learning, acquired little knowledge in books, but they acquired a knowledge of God through the devotion of their heart and a passion for him. The world today calls for men and women of passion, a passion for the presence of God, a passion for divine guidance and direction, a passion for the souls of others. It is often pointed out that the world needs heat as well as light, for heat has power even where light is impotent. "Blessed are the pure in heart," said our Lord. Here, indeed, is the task, here the message of the church. We should bear in mind the words of Sir Oliver Lodge: "Our religion is not a creed, it's a passion, and all those who follow Christ must be the heralds and examples of that passion."

An editorial in the Federal Council Bulletin brings home a salient fact in its appeal, that the hearts of men and women be turned and turned now in this Lenten season to a deeper fervor and faith in God:

"Our fathers may have been too sure about everything. It would be an immense gain if some of us were absolutely sure of anything.

"It would be a crushing disaster if the intellect of the church should be so occupied in dealing with the form of the Scriptures as to have no passion left for declaring the Gospel contained in the Scriptures. Some who doubt everything which the church has held for nineteen centuries, give themselves amusing airs of superiority, and seem to regard with intellectual pity the people who hold the heart of the Christian creed. As a matter of fact, however, there is no more ability in denying than in affirming, no more learning in doubting than in believing. In any case, our great asset is not a system of ethics or of philosophy or of theology. Our supreme asset is the passion and power of the Son of God. If we do not share the passion and feel the power we have not learned the meaning of the Christian religion."

In his "March of the Twelve," Bruce Barton calls attention to the fact that the mightiest army marching down the ages was that army of twelve men fired with a passion for God. They were, according to Biblical testimony, "unlearned and ignorant men," but they were wise unto salvation and had a passion for God, and for souls. We need in our thinking these days to train our hands to serve others, our minds to think unselfishly; but above all to give our hearts in unquestioned devotion to the Son of God and the effort to share him with those who are perishing without him.

J. O. A.

WAS THE MONEY STOLEN?

"The Living Church" is responsible for the following:

"The Arizona Church Record gives us this pointed story about the bishop of Southern Ohio. It seems Bishop Hobson drove up to a very wealthy parish for confirmation and stopped to lock his car. As he was doing so a vestryman said, 'That is not necessary, Bishop; we are all honest here'; to which the bishop is said to have replied, 'I don't know about that. You stole money given for missions to pay the coal bill!'"

Let each CHRISTIAN SUN reader decide for himself whether the bishop was justified in his indictment, or whether the church in question stole the money. If the bishop's indictment against that church stands, not a few other churches than the one in Arizona stand accused also. Because our gifts to missions are for a purely divine and spiritual cause, we easily confuse missions with any and every sort of thing, enterprise, interest or institution connected with the church. We have known missions to be interpreted as buying a carpet for the local church, buying lamps, supplying lights, giving bread to the hungry, clothing and fuel to the needy and shivering, etc., etc. Any and every sort of thing of a benevolent type, lump them all as missions and divert missionary money and interest in that direction. This in spite of the fact that our pleas for physical relief through benevolence are constant and always coming. The missionary aim has never been better expressed and, possibly never will be, than in the words of our Lord, who said: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," or in his words to the disciples just before his ascension (Acts 1:8): "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come unto you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me . . . unto the uttermost part of the earth."

It will help to clarify our thinking, as well as to keep our conscience clear, if we distinguish in our minds what our Lord meant and what we mean by missions, and then use the money raised for missions in obedience to his command, and in keeping with his great commission.

J. O. A.

OUR NEW AND ENLARGED MISSIONARY MAGAZINE.

Here is hoping that many CHRISTIAN SUN readers will hail with delight the good news that on March 22nd our new missionary magazine of Congregational and Christian Churches throughout the United States will come from the press. Quoting from the News Editor, Miss Cushing:

"The name of the new magazine will be The Missionary Herald, at Home and Abroad, and it will be jointly controlled by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and the American Missionary Association, the Church Extension Boards, the Boards of Ministerial Relief and the Board of Education of the Congregational and Christian Churches.

"The following Board of Directors has been elected: Representing the Home Boards, Rev. Robert V. Coe of Brookline; Mrs. Judson L. Cross of Winchester; Rev. Oscar E. Maurer, of New Haven, Conn., and Rev. Herbert V. Gates, of Newton Centre. Representing the Foreign Board, Rev. Fred Field Goodsell, of Brookline; Mr. Charles S. Olcott, of Cambridge; Miss Louise C. Hazen, of Thetford, Vt., and Rev. William G. Sargent, of Providence, R. I. Editor-in-Chief, Enoch F. Bell, of Newton Centre; Associate Editor, John R. Scotford, of New York City; Business Manager, Harvey L. Meeken, of Arlington Heights. The headquarters of this new monthly will be at 14 Beacon St., Boston.

"This magazine is, in fact, a merger of two periodicals having a rich history, namely, The Missionary Herald and The American Missionary. The Missionary Herald of the American Board which continued the Panopolist established in 1805, is recorded by the Library of Congress as the oldest periodical in America with a continuous history.

"The American Missionary published first in 1846 by the American Missionary Society was merged in 1909 with The Home Missionary, The American Missionary, the Church Building Quarterly and The Pilgrim Missionary. The present united home and foreign publication is, therefore, a merger of mergers. The new magazine is launching among its constituency a campaign for 20,000 subscribers.

The price of the new united Missionary Herald is $1.25 annually, and $1.00 in clubs of five or more."

We trust that Missionary Societies and classes in Sunday Schools and groups in churches, as well as individuals, will greet with gladness this announcement and will send their subscriptions in at an early date. The fact that Dr. Bell is to be the editor of the magazine guarantees its breadth, its vigor and its zeal for constructive kingdom work and service; and the fact that John R. Scotford is to be associate editor guarantees messages of living interest and inspiration from the home base and the work of missions throughout our borders in the United States. In fact, the names attached to the magazine guarantees a type of missionary publication that we cannot afford to be without.

J. O. A.

WHAT OUGHT YOU AND I DO ABOUT IT?

By GEORGIA ROBERTSON.

(Read before the Business Woman's Council, Washington, D. C.)

How easily the words were spoken, "I believe in true temperance. I want this debauching of our young people under prohibition stopped, also bootlegging and speakeasies done away with, so I stand for repeal."

What are you doing, or saying, now, to make repeal more successful in promoting temperance than prohibition was?

Are you protesting against the large number of licenses being asked for or granted in your community? Are you making any protest against licenses in residential sections and near school-houses and churches? Is your voice raised against liquor licenses being given drug stores (except for prescriptions) in large apartment houses where alcoholic beverages would virtually be sold under the home-roof of many families, and where their children would come in contact with it in their daily lives?

What do you think of the federal ruling allowing alcoholic liquor to be put in candy and frozen dainties? Do you know that candy containing strong liquor enough so five or six pieces are equal to a regular cocktail have been sold in large quantities in Chicago—one firm boasted the sale of fifty thousand boxes in three days—also in Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia? Political bosses in Philadelphia opposed efforts made to prosecute distributors of liquor candy to school children in drug stores and at soda fountains in that city.

Do you know that beer parlors are cashing C. W. A. checks in various parts of the country and the small pay of these workers instead of going to their destitute families is being spent in these beer parlors?

It is well to remind those who believe—as they say—that legalized sale of mild alcoholic beverages like beer and wine will promote true temperance, that thousands of years ago, before distilled liquors had been invented, Noah after coming out of the ark planted a vineyard, made some pure home-made wine on which he became so disgracefully drunk that two of his sons walked backward with a garment and covered his naked body from sight!

That was the result of drinking pure home-made, so-called, non-intoxicating harmless wine! Read about it in the Bible for yourself. And now wine and beer are to be sold freely to women and young people as well as to men!

Of course, you meant it when you said: "The saloon must not come back," but, will a room without a counter, brass rail, and swinging door prevent the alcoholic liquors sold or drunk there from causing intoxication? Can not one really drink more when sitting down without falling over on the floor than when standing with one foot on a rail? The brewers prefer to have them sit. They know it will increase their sales.

Will young people, including girls and women, be less likely to patronize the up-to-date legalized saloon into which nearly all lunch rooms, restaurants and hotels are now being converted, than they were the speakeasies hidden away out of sight in some dingy place, or the old time saloon they would have been ashamed to enter? One may walk many blocks in Washington, the capital of the nation, without finding an eating place that does not sell some kind of alcoholic beverage. Will it cause less drinking to have booze surround people when eating in perfectly respectable places and to be served it by young girls and boys compelled to do so or else lose their jobs?

Will turning grocery stores and drug stores—where women and children are forced to go—in places for selling beer and wine, promote temperance?

Brewers are now preparing, as they promised before repeal, an enormous advertising campaign. Intended, as they state in certain of their journals, to create an appetite for their beverages among young people. What the cigarette interests have accomplished through advertising in making cigarette addicts of girls, boys and women, they expect to accomplish with beer and wine advertising that will make heavy drinkers of them.

No one can shift his individual responsibility to do his part to lessen in some way the number of drunkards that will surely be made by legalizing the manufacture and sale of beer and other alcoholic liquors. Saying that "Liquor is here now and legalized by the Government," does not lessen one's duty to work against the spread of its use. It has not expunged the statement from the Bible, "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it sparkleth in the cup, when it goeth down smoothly; at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

FARMING.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

Farming in America started as a means of making a living, not the means of making money. The farm supported the family. A surplus was depended upon to furnish the family with clothing and other necessities that could not be produced on the farm. These things were often paid for with products rather than with cash.

Since cities grew up, the western farmer with his suitable soils, climate, and thousands of acres, has been depended upon to feed the city folk. Southern and eastern farmers lost their independence when they attempted to follow the commercial ways of their western brother farmer. The emphasis from making a living on the farm shifted and, in the attempted change, the southern and eastern farmers lost their shirts, to use a common parlance.

Farmers went in for money crops. Little of the money they made went back to the farm. It went for more land to make larger crops to acquire more money; it went into pleasure cars that called for time and money to support. They found themselves like the manufacturer who takes out all his profit and returns none for upkeep and depreciation. A breakdown is the result, and nothing with which to recapitalize; and with no capital, the farmer turned to public works where the weekly wage would sustain. This added to an already over-crowded field, leaving land idle and cutting off the family bread supply.

There are millions who could return to the soil, but they refuse to do so because their primary interest in farming is the production of money crops and the plea is, "I cannot get anything for what I grow."

The farmer must have a certain amount of money. Regardless of a farmer's habits and modes of living, it takes more money today than it did in the age of the shoe cobbler. The farmer must have machinery, tools, stock and something on which to live until his crop matures. And herein comes, it seems to this writer, a place for a more practical solution for thousands of cases now being handled by direct relief. Land is in abundance and may be had at a reasonable price or agreement, and it would be better for relief organizations and avenues to add a few more dollars and get some of these people to a point where they can produce for their own sustenance rather than to keep them indefinitely on relief and charity rolls, for in this way they will never gain their independence, but on the other hand so long as they remain idle, their value as citizens will become less.

MORAL AND SPIRITUAL RECOVERY.

In the midst of discussions about commerce, and industry, and production and consumption, we need to go to some holy place where we can escape from our obsession with profits and frantic striving to heap up material power, and come to realize that by any sensible standard of measurement human and not material values are greatest; that any method of organized society is only as good as the chance which it gives the mass of its people to live the full life. We need to realize that any system which produces so much food that its people starve and so much clothing that they freeze, any system that can pass a law limiting the number of fish a man can take from a lake but cannot pass a law limiting the number of millions of dollars a man can take out of his fellowmen, can make one man stop expectorating in a subway for fear others will catch his disease but cannot stop another from selling arms, for profit, to gangsters who will shoot us down on our streets, or to other nations who will mow down our youth on the battlefield of tomorrow, any system that can protect property but seems impotent to protect folks—is a tragic reflection on our sanity and a repudiation of all the principles of religion.

All too eagerly have we fallen down to worship the gods of gold, to admit that only in profit can we find such forces as will enable us to make our machinery operate. Slowly and in a dazed fashion we have awaked to find that when we worship selfishness the very temples of our selfishness come crashing about our heads. And we sneer at God and the moral life, and think, in the midst of our glee, that we have outwitted the Ten Commandments, and we wake to find ourselves robbed by the very men whom we worshipped. Can we not learn that it is not only morally but economically true that righteousness exalteth a nation, and that sin is a reproach to any people? Can we not realize the profound truth beneath the words of the Master, that "He that saveth his life shall lose it?" For, while selfishness may seem to help some at first, ultimately it wrecks us all.

For the very permanence of our nation our citizenry must recognize the fundamental place of these moral laws. We must face the fact that without them there is no base for the structure we hope to rear. There is not a single proposal for recovery that has been made by our courageous President which does not rest for its success far more upon the moral attitudes within our citizens than upon the laws on our statute books. The more serious question which we should now ask is this, "Does the moral idealism necessary to make these proposals for cooperation a success exist among our people?" That question is now in process of being answered. If it should be answered in the negative it would be a tragedy. If it is to be answered in the affirmative, however, it will be because all those who see those values united to create them. This calls for a program of moral and spiritual recovery to undergird the program of industrial and financial recovery."—Albert W. Beavin, President Federal Council.

In order to make the Scriptures available for world-wide work, the American Bible Society not only publishes Scriptures in the United States, but has publishing centers in Tokyo, Manila, Shanghai, Bangkok, Vienna, Beirut and Cairo.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Many of the larger churches of the Eastern Virginia Conference are in debt. What is true of this Conference is true of the other Conferences in the Southern Convention. This condition makes it more difficult to support the institutions of the Convention, and to enlarge the general work of the denomination.

As a rule church debts are easy to make and hard to pay. And this is also true of personal debts. The present attitude of many people makes it impossible to put all financial transactions on a "cash and carry" basis. But that is a commendable program for individuals, church and governments. Much of the suffering and discomfort of the "depression" is due to failure to pay debts.

Nearly every issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN carries some appeal for money to meet the pressing needs of the church. This is important and necessary. The needs are great and the calls are urgent. And if every church in the bounds of the Convention could be given an opportunity to state its needs and objectives, the information gained would be surprising. Scores of churches, and many pastors of churches, are suffering from the burden of debt, incurred in seeking to carry on the work of the kingdom. It is not a disgrace to be in debt, but it is humiliating to be unable to take care of financial obligations.

The Southern Convention will meet in Suffolk May 1-4, 1934. In all probability, one of the most perplexing problems, for the consideration of that body, will be the matter of Convention obligations. The Convention is heavily involved in debt. In the last analysis it must look to the churches to provide the money for its support, and for the payment of the outstanding obligations. The principal Convention debtor is Elon College. Under present conditions it seems that the income is not sufficient to meet the current expenses and pay the interest on the outstanding indebtedness. Whenever this worthy institution makes its appeal to the churches for financial support, it is handicapped by the sad fact that many of the stronger churches are also struggling under the burden of their own debt. And when the appeal is placed before the individual members of these churches, personal debts, like great millstones, are hanging about the necks of many church members, and they are struggling lest they be drowned in the financial storm.

Is the situation hopeless? No! But it is challenging. Debts are made in times of prosperity. When people are prosperous they are willing to take great risks, and assume unusual financial obligations. They are not usually deeply concerned about the immediate payment of these debts, until the wave of prosperity begins to recede. In a depression the matter of payment becomes acute, and gives one more concern. Now is the time for churches, conferences and Convention institutions to consider seriously the possibility of paying debts. It would be a blessing, it would bring a revival of new spiritual life and interest, for the churches within the bounds of the Southern Convention to pay off their entire indebtedness. The time will never come when that will be easy to do. It will mean consecration and sacrifice. It always means that to undertake to accumulate property. Do not think for a moment that the road to financial independence is easy. It is unpaved and uphill. It is straight and it is narrow. What is true of individuals and local churches is applicable also to every enterprise and institution of the denomination. Brethren of the Southern Convention, this is an appeal and a challenge to every church and institution to get out of debt.

I. W. JOHNSON.

THE $25,000 CAMPAIGN.

Closing up a campaign for money is even more important than the beginning. As a rule, there is a good bit of talking and publicity that enters into such an undertaking. There are those who are for it and others who are against it; there are plenty to prophesy failure, and few to express faith. Those who are most interested and who feel the responsibility for the success of such an undertaking are tremendously concerned that everything be in readiness and that it be launched in good and proper fashion. This is fine, but as we say in golf, if the stroke is to succeed, you must not only begin rightly, but you must swing through to the finish. In a campaign of this kind, it is not only necessary that we begin rightly, but it is also necessary that we end rightly. One thing that has been encouraging about this campaign is that a number of the churches that sent contributions in at first have since sent additional contributions. Two or three have sent in enough later to put their churches on the Honor Roll. So few of the churches, comparatively speaking, have sent in their full quota, that it would seem to be a ringing challenge to every church that wants to do its part to make a second effort, with the determination to reach the quota set by the Conferences.

The amount asked from the church is not exorbitant, but most reasonable. There are many ways in which the majority of us could deny ourselves over a period of thirty days, if necessary, and save the fifty cents that we are asked to contribute to the College. It does not even require sacrifice on the part of most of us to raise this amount, but it does require a spirit of earnestness and of interest; and, if this call for the College is to be heeded by the local church, some individual within that church must himself hear the call, must be moved by a sense of responsibility and inspired by consciousness of a privilege. It is possible, I think, for the average church among us, certainly, to raise fifty cents per member. Now, my brother of the local church, have you and your church done your best, have you taken the matter seriously, have you felt an individual responsibility for this worthy cause?

I have been in correspondence with a brother who is tremendously concerned about what his own individual church does about the offering for the College. The first of this week I received a letter from him in which he wrote in part: "I have been working in our church. Yesterday, I asked for a show of hands, whether all wanted to see our church go over the top, and had a very good response. I have the greater part of our quota already turned in. We asked all who had not yet turned in to do so next Sunday, so I can send it in the next day; and, I am sure, we will raise ours and hope others will do the same; but it will not be done if somebody in each church does not push it. Some churches have merely had it mentioned by the pastor and told to think about it. You know very well that will not produce results. I am extremely interested in the College and hope all churches will do their utmost to raise the amount asked."

Won't you please take a suggestion from this good brother's letter and see what you can do in your own local church.

The following churches have taken offerings and sent in the amounts placed to their credit:

HONOR ROLL.

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Ambrose, Georgia and Alabama.....	$ 30.00	$ 35.00
Elon College, N. C. and Va. ....	229.00	752.00
Carolina, N. C. and Va. ....	15.50	15.50
Mt. Bethel, N. C. and Va. ....	37.00	42.66
Wake Chapel, Eastern N. C. ....	102.50	155.08
Waverly, Eastern Virginia ....	113.00	179.00
Windsor, Eastern Virginia ....	49.50	71.25
Franklin, Eastern Virginia ....	129.50	224.00
Seagrove, Western N. C. ....	18.50	32.00
First Christian (Graham), W. N. Car.	7.50	13.50

The following churches have sent in contributions from the church during the campaign:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Holland, Eastern Virginia ....	212.50	165.50
Eure, Eastern Virginia ....	178.50	25.00
Wakefield, Eastern Virginia ....	47.50	25.75
Rosemont, Eastern Virginia ....	171.90	146.53
Liberty Spring, Eastern Virginia ....	171.50	65.00
Mt. Carmel, Eastern Virginia ....	87.00	40.65
Holy Neck, Eastern Virginia ....	166.50	83.51
Newport News, Eastern Virginia....	132.50	60.43
Suffolk Church, Eastern Virginia....	667.00	486.57
Oakland Church, Eastern Virginia ...	196.50	13.30
First Christian (Norfolk), E. Va.....	147.00	16.70
Hopewell, Eastern Virginia ....	63.00	2.37
Springhill Church, Eastern Virginia....	32.50	5.75
Portsmouth, Eastern Virginia ....	112.50	77.73
Barrett's Chapel, Eastern Virginia....	38.50	5.00
Burton's Grove, Eastern Virginia ....	26.00	25.00
Union (Virgilina), N. C. and Va. ....	185.00	64.76
Mt. Zion, N. C. and Va. ....	73.00	45.00
Hines Chapel, N. C. and Va. ....	123.50	85.25
Haw River, N. C. and Va. ....	96.00	48.77
Monticello, N. C. and Va. ....	41.00	13.00
Pleasant Ridge, N. C. and Va. ....	47.50	2.52
New Lebanon, N. C. and Va. ....	65.00	60.18
Hopedale, N. C. and Va. ....	35.50	6.28
Hebron, N. C. and Va. ....	73.50	12.00
Elk Spur, N. C. and Va. ....	38.00	2.50
Union (Burlington) N. C. and Va. ...	154.00	46.89
Rocky Ford, N. C. and Va. ....	32.50	2.50
Liberty, N. C. and Va. ....	83.50	5.00
Durham, N. C. and Va. ....	218.50	161.94
1st Church (Greensboro), N. C. & Va.	232.50	67.63
Bethel, N. C. and Va. ....	76.50	1.60
Catawba Springs, Eastern N. C. ....	105.50	65.08
United Church, Eastern N. C. ....	43.50	6.10
Liberty Vance, Eastern N. C. ....	202.50	51.50
Mt. Auburn, Eastern N. C. ....	88.50	53.10
Lebanon, Eastern N. C. ....	16.50	8.86
Oak Level, Eastern N. C. ....	66.50	50.00
Christian Light, Eastern N. C. ....	11.50	2.21
Fuller's Chapel, Eastern N. C. ....	107.00	6.60
Randleman, Western N. C. ....	46.50	3.20
Pleasant Ridge (Ramseur), W. N. C....	114.00	2.80
Ramseur, Western N. C. ....	59.00	33.00
1st Ch. (Burlington), Western N. C....	337.50	130.72
Leaksville, Valley of Virginia.....	81.50	10.00
Winchester, Valley of Virginia ....	102.50	6.21

I greatly appreciate these offerings. Surely, there are many more churches that want to make an offering. Won't you please complete the campaign and send the amount asked to the College?

L. E. SMITH, President.

DEACON MARTIN WESLEY HALL.

The subject of this notice is no more with us, having passed away Monday evening, February 26th. As I try to pen a few thoughts about his life, my heart fills with sadness, for we were life-long friends. For five winters in our boyhood days we romped and played together at school, and there a friendship that was tried and true was acquired that has never wavered.

About the age of nineteen years, Brother Hall professed conversion and came into our church on September 7, 1878. The next spring, I also sought the Lord and found him, and joined the church on April 15, 1879. He just beat me seven months and eight days in entering the kingdom.

Along in our early twenties we each launched out seeking a helpmeet, a life companion. I found a little blonde girl whose name was Miss Alice Curling, who agreed to share life's burdens and joys with me, so I led her to the altar on February 1, 1873. The next January 17, 1874, Brother Hall led a brunette (another Curling) Miss Laura Curling, to the marriage altar. I beat him one year less fourteen days to the marriage altar. Fortunately, he and his companion have lived together for fifty years. We celebrated his fiftieth anniversary on January 19th, last, at his home.

His father, our much beloved senior deacon, died on August 10, 1901. On the 19th day of October, following, Brother Martin was chosen as deacon to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father. He was ordained to the deaconship on the first Sunday in November, Rev. M. P. Porter performing the ceremonies. I was elected and ordained to the deaconship in January, 1891, beating him ten years.

Since those days our cooperation and sweet fellowship in our church have been wonderful. He has always been active in church work, and helpful in every good cause. As I write, it seems I can almost hear his earnest, appealing, searching prayers that he so frequently offered by request of his pastor.

He and his good wife have raised six children: three boys and three girls. A finer set of children I have never known. Everyone of them has come into the Lord's service at an early age, and immediately followed their mother in the choir at every service, and they are still praising the Lord with their melodious voices in every service today.

His youngest daughter is now our pianist, and his youngest son is the Superintendent of Public Instruction of our State. We will ever lament his passing out and leaving us so forlorn, but we will not forget to forever cherish his memory.

M. W. HOLLOWELL.

MEN'S CLASS GIVEN OYSTER SUPPER.

Friday night, March 2nd, the Men's Bible Class of Providence Memorial Christian Church, Graham, N. C., was given an oyster supper by the teacher, Brother Junius H. Hardin. It was a delightful evening, with plenty of oysters to your liking. The occasion was well attended.

After the supper had been served, the crowd was delightfully entertained by the Imperial Quartette of Graham and Burlington, composed of Mr. Ben Ferrell, of our own church there. Mr. C. F. Clapp, Mr. Glenn Coble, and Mr. Wade Fogleman. The piano was well taken care of by Mr. Henry Easley, blind pianist, of Burlington. These gentlemen delighted our hearts with several selections. Then Brother Hardin called on this scribe, who happens to be the lucky parson of this church, for a few feeble remarks, after which Brother Hardin spoke. His message was brief, but a great one. He is truly a great teacher, teaching a great and fine class, with an enrollment of upwards of one hundred. It is needless to say that everyone enjoyed the occasion.

This is truly a great church to serve—a loyal, sympathetic membership, always ready with some word of encouragement, ready to dare and do when called upon. We are greatly enjoying our work with the good people of Graham.

BEREA.

Things are happening here also, for here is truly a bee-hive. The work is most encouraging. Our Sunday School, under the leadership of Luther Isely, is going good, the Young People's organization is one of the finest of its nature I have ever had the privilege of working with, and truly has one of the finest leaders in any church. Miss Flora Taylor cannot be beaten. The young folks are responsible for one Sunday evening program in each month. These programs draw large congregations. They are sponsoring a movement that we hope will result in the erection of a nice brick hut, the which we are in so great need of, to help house our Sunday School. It is indeed a pleasure to labor with such folks as these. The writer is in his sixth year as pastor of this church.

BETHLEHEM.

The work is new here, the writer having been pastor only four months, but the work goes well. Large congregations have greeted us at every third Sunday service. A Young People's Society has been organized, with Miss Ethel Boone as leader. Much good talent is being discovered, and good programs are the menu. We are finding the folks at this church to be loyal and sympathetic—fine folks to serve.

G. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

IMPORTANT AFFAIRS AT WINTER PARK.

The past week has been most significant in the life of our church at Winter Park, Fla. The fiftieth anniversary of the organizing of this important church was celebrated and it also marked the closing of the significant seventeen-year pastorate of Dr. Clarence A. Vincent. Both events were especially recognized at a largely attended supper on Wednesday, February 28th. The church history was read by Rev. C. DeW. Brower, a former pastor of the church, and also at present a resident of that city, though serving the church at Interlachen for part of the year. There were other speakers expressing appreciation for the church and especially for the long pastorate of Dr. Vincent. On Sunday morning, Superintendent Gillette preached the anniversary sermon, and on Sunday evening at a union service of all the churches of the city, Dr. Vincent preached his farewell sermon. This service was made a union service in his honor.

Dr. Vincent has always been a leader in the inter-church fellowship of Winter Park, and also a leader in many civic enterprises. During his seventeen years' ministry there the church has grown largely, both in membership and in the number and strength of winter congregations, and a beautiful colonial church has been built and (Continued on page 15.)

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/4 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el. years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O living God.

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 5/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jê-hôî-â-chîn was e years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk hea.

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x $5.50
- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACH

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/4 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

LAYMEN TO THE RESCUE.

"No more significant challenge comes to the laymen of the church today than the work of Christian Missions—the program of the church today to bring Jesus Christ and his message to the whole world.

"Witness the struggle which is on between Christianity and such gigantic forces as atheistic communism, Godless secularism, gross materialism, narrow nationalism, moral laxity, racial hatreds and international conflicts.

"When we face these tremendous forces we realize anew that the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ alone offers the promise of victory.

"It is, then, every christian layman's duty to get back of the missionary work of his church."

How the pastor is to challenge his laymen to this conviction and rally his members in a co-operative movement to give the Gospel of Jesus Christ, our only hope to a world in spiritual, moral and economic chaos, is, indeed, a challenge to the pastor's courage and a trial on his faith and strength.

The above paragraphs are sent out from the Committee of One Thousand of all Protestant communions who realize the gravity of the situation and discern the sole hope of solution through the power of the Gospel of the Son of God. Can our laymen be made aware that this is no empty challenge or false alarm, or cry of the wolf at the door when there is no wolf? Can our laymen be awakened to a sense of opportunity and responsibility in the present crisis?

It is needless to call attention to the aggressive forces of evil and the deadly effects of sin and crime about us. These things are apparent, and all of us know full well the uncertainty, the doubt, the fear and the dread, the calamity and the chaos that obtain and are aggressive on every hand. These are facts so apparent, forces so obvious that they need not be dwelt upon here. Let it suffice to say that there can be no safe political and economic recovery until there is moral and spiritual recovery. And this recovery must come by the awakening of the souls of men and women to the saving power of our Saviour and Redeemer.

The greatest notes of triumph and victory through Jesus Christ have been struck in times of man's greatest need and in the hours of deepest human darkness. Israel was never in such subjection and bondage as when Moses sounded his clarion call to courage, to God's promise and to victory through obedience to Jehovah's command.

These same Israelites were never seemingly further away from God and without any claim to the presence and power of God, more remote from his outstretched hand, more prostrate and helpless as a nation and a people than when Israel's voice cried out: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call upon him while he is near."

Our Saviour's ministry on earth, from every human point of view, seemed to have failed. The gloom and the darkness of the crucifixion were closing about him, the forces of evil seemed to be having their full sway and dominion, when our Lord Christ, without logic or history or experience to sustain him, cried out to his few frightened followers: "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world"

And from every human point of view, defeat seemed inevitable and victory seemed as far away, and faith so wavering everywhere, as when John wrote, out of the passion of his soul: "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."

Will the laymen of our Christian Churches accept this challenge of the pulpit, this clarion call out of suffering and darkness, and doubt and gloom and help to rally the forces of righteousness and, through self-denial, do their part in driving back the darkness and turning on the light, through a new-born zeal for Jesus Christ and him crucified?

This is Mission Period in our pulpits and in our pews with young and old of our Christian forces. We are called upon to go to our knees for divine guidance, to go to our Bibles for information and direction, and to go to our purses for sacrificial donation in this time of need. Our mission cause suffers. We have had to close up preaching places. Every pledge and promise to help at home and abroad, in the matter of giving the gospel to the poor and needy, is unfulfilled and the cause of the Lord suffers. What will the laymen do about it?

We are living in a benevolent time. This Government, civic orders, benevolent societies, all of them, join in taking care of the physical and material wants of boys and girls, men and women, about us. The church alone undertakes to give spiritual relief. What will the laymen of the church do about it? Our women, through their Missionary Societies, are making their contribution and are ready to help in every movement for righteousness through missions and the spiritual task of the church. Most of the women bear the burden and thus receive the blessing. Or will the laymen of the church give heart and hand, in this time of need, and through faith help bring again the cause of righteousness to a glorious victory in Christ our Lord? To this end may God help and direct our laymen.

J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.
WEEK ENDING MARCH 10, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,514.26
Ether, N. C. ....	1.00
Monticello, Brown Summit, N. C. ....	5.33
Mt. Bethel, Stokesdale, N. C. ....	.70
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C. ....	1.00
South Norfolk, Va. ....	5.51
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va. ....	1.25
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va. ....	.67
Third Avenue, Danville, Va. ....	5.96
Youngsville, N. C. ....	2.00
Newport, Stanley, Va. ....	1.02
Noon Day, Wedowee, Ala. ....	2.00
First Christian, Norfolk, Va. ....	4.76
Sanford, N. C. ....	1.00
Liberty, N. C. ....	4.04
Winchester, Va. ....	4.44
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va. ....	.48

Total ..... $ 1,555.42

Specials.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 762.52
Mebane Sunday School, Mebane, N. C. ..	3.30

Total ..... $ 765.82

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,449.54
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	41.16
Specials .....	3.30
Total to date .....	$ 8,494.00

Will not all of our faithful pastors join us now in emphasizing our "Christian Message?" Our Convention and our Conferences have voted that we do. Let us all read and heed the message. Here it is for all of our churches now:

"Our message is Jesus Christ. He is the revelation of what man through him may become. He makes known to us God as our Father, perfect and infinite in love and in righteousness.

Jesus Christ, in his life and through his death and resurrection, has disclosed to us the Father, the Supreme Reality, as almighty Love, reconciling the world to himself by the cross, suffering with men in their struggle against sin and evil, bearing with them and for them the burden of sin, forgiving them as they, with forgiveness in their own hearts, turn to him in repentance and faith, and creating humanity anew for an ever-growing, ever-enlarging, everlasting life.

"We affirm that God, as Jesus Christ has revealed him, requires all his children, in all circumstances, at all times, and in all human relationships, to live in love and righteousness . . . in preparation for the coming of his kingdom in its fullness.

and must always remain the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

"The Gospel is the joyful message of redemption both here and hereafter, the gift of God to sinful man in Jesus Christ. Through his life and teaching, his call to repentance . . . he has brought to us forgiveness of sins, and has revealed the fullness of the living God and his boundless love toward us. By the appeal of that love, shown in its completeness on the cross, he summons us to the new life of faith, self-sacrifice, and devotion to his service and the service of men."

In our Mission Period may we emphasize this message.

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

NORTH CAROLINA RALLIES.

Guilford District—Mrs. O. H. Paris, Superintendent. Greensboro, N. C., Wednesday, March 28th.

Vance-Warren District—Miss Margaret Alston, Superintendent. Youngsville, N. C., Saturday, April 9th.

Durham-Wake District—Mrs. C. H. Stephenson, Superintendent. Wake Chapel, N. C., Tuesday, April 10th.

Alamance District—Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Superintendent. Haw River, N. C., Wednesday, April 11th.

Lee-Chatham District—Mrs. R. L. Ross, Superintendent. Shallow Well, N. C., Friday, April 13th.

Randolph District—Mrs. Ray Caviness, Superintendent. Park's Cross Roads, N. C., Saturday, April 14th.

Halifax District—Mrs. L. E. Carlton, Superintendent. Pleasant Grove, Va., Tuesday, April 17th.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND, Pres.

EASTERN VIRGINIA RALLIES.

Norfolk District—Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Superintendent. Elm Avenue Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., Tuesday, April 3rd.

Nansemond-Gates-Franklin District—Mrs. B. D. Jones, Superintendent. Holland Christian Church, Wednesday, April 4th.

Waverly District—Mrs. E. T. Atkinson, Superintendent. Spring Hill, Thursday, April 5th.

MRS. J. E. CARTWRIGHT, Pres.,
MRS. L. W. STAGG, Secretary.

REV. OTTO B. GITHENS.

By D. P. CUSHING,
News Editor, American Board.

They call it "the Hampton of South Africa," this unique school for Zulus named Amanzimtoti Institute, of which Rev. Otto B. Githens is the principal. Amanzimtoti is in Adams, Natal, South Africa, and each year finds an increasing number of applicants clamoring for admittance.

"There is a big demand for our boys trained in building, trades, and agriculture," says Mr. Githens, who comes from Kansas where he received his B. S. at Kansas State Agricultural School. He also attended Oberlin College, earning his B. D. and M. A. in education, and his S. T. M. in religious education.

Amanzimtoti Institute was founded by the American Board in 1855. It is located among the hills on 500 acres of land, about 22 miles from Durban, Africa's third largest city. Of this land, 150 acres are planted to sugar cane for revenue, and the remainder is cultivated by the students.

Amanzimtoti Institute is highly commended both for its moral standing and academic grade by government inspectors. It has theological, normal, industrial, and academic departments, and until this year, 1933, a very fine agricultural department. This had to be closed because of cuts necessitated by reduced income. Various types of industrial work, such as brick making, tile manufacturing, carpentry, etc., prepare the boys for economic independence.

"Native women are still reticent when men are present," says Mr. Githens. "It is a long, hard pull for her to cast off the idea so deeply ingrained that she is man's inferior, working mainly to care for his children and till his garden. Gradually, however, she is grasping the idea that she is a companion and partner in the great enterprise of building a home. Part of our work at Adams is to help the young men and women make the proper adjustments which will be, and are, demanded by their changing civilization."

"I see you are fat. How do you like South Africa?" This was one of the first native greetings which Mr. Githens received in an outstation near Adams. On a similar visit he carried a gramophone and a group of curious villagers gathered around to listen. "How many men are in that box?" asked one of them. "Golden Slippers" and "Hear Dem Bells" were much enjoyed, in fact, soon the entire kraal was dancing. The native people love music and at the school give concerts which include selections from the Messiah and other beautiful productions.

STANLEY JONES ON THE OCEAN ROAD.

Stanley Jones sailed for India yesterday. The secular press has no conception of what this one man has done since he came to America a year ago. He has faced nearly a thousand audiences. They numbered millions. Yet he is scarcely mentioned in the newspapers, except in the local notices. His books, which are profoundly religious, are published and sold in editions which are comparable with the novels of Dickens and Scott. Yet the literary columnists of the great dailies ignore them. Their titles fail to appear in the current lists of non-fiction best-sellers. Yet his publishers at times have difficulty in filling their orders. Why this neglect? Is it mere indifference, or is it purposeful?

How is it then that this missionary, who sounds no trumpets and shuns notoriety, continues to draw the largest congregations, and to appeal to a reading public which is numbered by the hundred thousand? The most obvious explana-

A Story for the Children

A HAPPY DAY.

(THRIFT.)

Bill sat on the edge of his bed. He held in his hands a rough old pigskin pocketbook. "Thirty-eight, thirty-nine, forty," he counted the bills in his possession. "I can pay Jim every cent he spent to help me get well," he mused to himself; "and, besides, I've helped mother every week." He folded the bills and put them deep down inside the pigskin. He turned down the cover. Then he fell on his knees beside his bed. "Dear God," he prayed, "I thank thee for making me able to do this. Do help me on. I must make good." Bill slipped between the sheets and was soon peacefully asleep.

In the morning he was up with the rising of the sun. "Mother," he called as he left the house, "I'll be back in just a little while; I am going out to see Jim."

Mrs. Brown knew what a happy day it was for Bill. She knew that for months he had been working and saving that he might be able to tion of the amazing fact is that there exists all over the world, in India, China and America, a vast number of people who are spiritually starving. This man has a spiritual message which is as the "bread of life." His hearers are in fact a bread-line. They want nourishment for a side of their nature that has been too long neglected by those who have misinterpreted the command: "Feed my sheep." They are hungry and they know the taste of bread, the Bread that comes down from heaven. This man showed first in every page of his book, "The Christ of the Indian Road," that he had what they craved. When he came to America his readers came to see and hear what he was like. They were not disappointed. Here was one who had been with Christ and learned of him, and not at second hand. He had a message by which he lived and which he loved to share. It was as old as the hills of Galilee and as limpid as Siloam's shady rill. Anyone could understand it, and no one could resist its charm. Some of his hearers who would never have "hit the sawdust trail" began to "follow the road," to take Christ as the pattern of their living. This is what has been going on wherever this Christian believer gives his message. He will give it next week in the pulpit in City Road, London, which was consecrated by John Wesley's use. Of all the followers of Wesley who have stood in that high place there has been none with a fairer right than Stanley Jones to call himself Wesley's successor, yet of all the Methodists in the world this truly humble minister of the Jesus Christ of every road would probably be the last to claim that distinction. He is just Stanley Jones, missionary, a "lighted soul," who has the precious gift of being able to bear the light to others.—Editorial from Christian Advocate, New York.

AGRICULTURE IN CHINA.

China is awakening, from an agricultural view point, said Charles F. Shaw, Professor of Soil Technology in the University of California to the delegates at the Institute of World Affairs, but it takes time to arouse 400,000,000 people. It is a slow process and necessitates continuous and persistent effort. "The agricultural missionaries in China, said Professor Shaw, are doing excellent work in introducing new methods of culture, and in improving varieties of seeds and breeds of animals."—New York Times.

repay Jim for his wonderful help when Bill could do nothing for himself. "Bless my dear, brave boy," she said. "I wouldn't take the world for him. And, dear God, bless his splendid friends," she added, with a prayer of thankfulness that came from her heart. "Bill would not be where he is today had he not had such friends." Mrs. Baker went into Bill's room. There on a little table by his bed she found a notebook. She looked inside. There she found a record of every penny Bill had made since he first began to work. She saw an accurate account of what her boy had done with all he had made. "He has done well," she whispered—"very, very well."

Bill came home early, as he had said. He ran into his mother's room. "Here is a flower for you, dearest," he said simply, as he placed a beautiful blooming geranium on the table.

"Oh, my precious boy!" Mrs. Brown kissed Bill lovingly on the forehead. "Could you spare that much money?"

"I wanted it for you, mother. I'm celebrating. I have paid all I owe with money I have made myself. It is the best feeling I have ever had."

Mrs. Brown took the little pot in her hands. "It is beautiful, my son. I shall water it and care for it tenderly. I want it always to live and bloom."

"Come, let me show you my account book, will you, mother?"

Bill told how he had worked and saved, spent little and carefully. He showed his mother an accurate account of it all.

"I still have my job, mother," he said. "I expect to continue to spend carefully and save. We can have some of the things we've always wanted now. I am sure I shall never want to waste my money or my time again."

There was a shout in Mrs. Brown's yard. The boys had come for Bill. Together they were going to clean up Mr. Melton's entire lot. The money was to be used in improving the playhouse.

"I'm coming, boys," Bill answered the shout. "Excuse me, mother; I'll be back for lunch," and Bill joined his pals.

"We have four seventy-five," Albert told them when they were nearing Mr. Melton's place, "and we'll make two dollars more today. That will give us six seventy-five. Bill, do you think that will buy those real rugs the girls are so eager for?"

"Yes, I really think it will, Albert. They are not expensive rugs."

"Should we spend all our money for rugs? What of it, Jim? What do you think, Carl?"

"They will just make the house inside. It is just about as pretty outside as it can be now, I think," Carl observed. He was always eager to do what he felt the girls wanted. "After all," he said, "it's their house."

When the boys finished the work, the girls met them at the playhouse. "Guess what we have done?" Carolyn called as soon as they were in sight. "We've made two dollars to go on our rugs—fifty cents each!"

"How ever did you do it?" Albert hastened to ask.

"We cleaned that big vacant house at the corner. Mr. Nelson has rented it to a family from Detroit. He wanted some one to clean it up, and we asked for the job."

"Hooray!" the boys shouted. "Hooray for our thrifty, shifty girls! Now we shall have our rugs!"

"But we haven't nearly enough yet," Louise hastened to correct them.

Albert advanced, "How about adding our share of the income?" and he smiled as he presented six dollars and seventy-five cents.—Louise G. Thompson, in Gospel Advocate.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

SNOW OR NO SNOW, THEY MET.

People in my part of the "old home town" have a way of staying away from church if it snows or rains or is too cold or too hot. The weather in many parts of the world seems to have a great deal to do with the religious enthusiasm. I hope to live long enough to see at least one church whose attendance does not depend upon the weather.

The Youth Fellowship of Eastern Virginia was scheduled to meet in Suffolk on Saturday afternoon of last week. Saturday was a snowy day. Beginning early in the morning and continuing far into the night, the beautiful snow came down out of the heavens to cover the earth in its robe of white. Some of us wondered if the young people would brave a storm to assemble in Suffolk.

They did. Eleven preachers and 65 or 70 young people, representing twenty churches, were there at the time appointed, and stayed until the services were all ended. One heard little or no complaint concerning the weather. These young people had planned to meet for worship, study, and fellowship, and they were there at the appointed time regardless of the snow and the cold, and they stayed to "resolve." The Suffolk young people led an excellent worship service, which was followed by a review of "A Philosophy of Life that Works," by Dr. Judd, given by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle. Six groups met to discuss the six major points in Dr. Judd's philosophy and then reported the findings to the entire body.

Group number one agreed with Dr. Judd that people are essentially alike the world around. They are alike in their loves and hates, desires and ambitions. They agreed further that this knowledge makes us feel a kinship to all people, which helps to develop human brotherhood. This knowledge should be spread abroad so that others may share in it, and this can be done by the study of Dr. Judd's booklet, other missionary materials and the cooperation of differing race groups wherever practicable.

Group number two, led by Dr. W. M. Jay, agreed with Dr. Judd that we all stand or fall together, and made the following resolutions:

1. That we go on record as being opposed to war.
2. That we favor the embargo on arms and ammunitions at war or preparing for war.
3. That we are opposed to any compulsory military training in our educational institutions.
4. That if left alone, the question of social equality among races will solve itself.
5. That as Christians we believe equal rights and privileges should be given to all races for the attainment of the highest standards of living possible to them. (Acts 17:26 and 10:34 give the Bible position on the race question.)

Dr. Elwood Jones led group three, which decided that, first, there is no solution for problems in life except men; second, there is no hope except in man, and no way of building men of character adequate for this task save as they are introduced to and follow Jesus Christ; third, whatever work we engage in if we try to build the character of Jesus in boys and girls it is a worthwhile work; and fourth, that the building of individual character in the life of a person is the ultimate goal of Christian activity.

Discussion of principle four, "The Way of Love Works," was led by Rev. R. A. Whitten, and the group agreed that love works: first, in resisting evil; second, in resisting him who is evil; third, turning the other cheek; fourth, regarding international problems; fifth, in sharing burdens; sixth, in prayer; seventh, in international problems, and eighth, in loving one's enemies.

"The way of love leads to a cross" was discussed by Rev. John G. Truitt and his group. They agreed that the cross is that which fears not to give all, to suffer all, in spite of pain or shame, and that love does lead to a cross. "Jesus endured the cross, despising the shame."

In the absence of Dr. N. G. Newman, who was detained on account of a funeral, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle led group six in the discussion on "God gives adequate strength for every need. This group readily agreed with Dr. Judd that God does give the needed strength for whatever he wants people to do. This strength is dependent on the intimate relationship of the individual with God.

UNIQUE ADVERTISING.

The director of leadership training, Miss Lottie Mae Cross, and the secretary of Youth Fellowship, Miss Irene Cotten, had prepared a playlet showing the activities of the Elon College Summer School in a fine dramatic way. These leaders with a group of helpers lived out the daily program at this young people's training school. This is the best piece of advertising that has been done for this school.

They prepared resolutions calling for fifty representatives from Eastern Virginia to be at Elon, July 23rd-30th, next, and suggested that young people begin saving their money so they can go, that they go in groups, sharing in the expenses of the car, and that the preachers who are supposed to be there take a load of their young people, who will share in the expenses of the trip.

Announcement was made by the dean that Mrs. Stewart will be hostess and Miss Irene Cotten registrar again this year, and that the cost will be only $7.50 for the entire week.

THE CROSS AND THE CROSS-WAYS.

See there!—God's sign-post standing at the ways
Which every man of his free-will must go—
Up the steep hill, or down the winding ways—
One or the other every man must go.

He forces no man, each must choose his way,
And as he chooses so the end will be;
One went in front to point the Perfect Way,
Who follows fears not where the end will be.

THE WAY.

To every man there openeth
A Way, and Ways, and a Way,
And the high soul climbs the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low;
And in between on the misty flats
The rest drift to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go.

—John Oxenham.

WHAT DOES JESUS REQUIRE OF US?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR MAR. 25, 1934.

(Matt. 16:24-28.)

Jesus said:

- (1) "Come." Matt. 11:28; 16:24; Mark 1:17.
- (2) "Seek." Matt. 6:33; 7:7.
- (3) "Know." John 7:17; 13:17.
- (4) "Give." Matt. 5:42; Luke 6:38.
- (5) "Bear." Luke 14:27.
- (6) "Deny." Matt. 16:24; Mark 6:35; Luke 9:23.
- (7) "Follow." Matt. 4:19; 16:24; John 12:26.
- (8) "Go." Matt. 5:41; 28:19.
- (9) "Be." Matt. 5:48.
- (10) "Love." Luke 10:27, 28.

Ask those to whom these words and references are assigned to study the situation in which they were spoken by Jesus, and to give at least one way in which they feel a Christian today can carry them into action because he believes they reveal something which Jesus would require of one who is to be a faithful follower today.

Worship by Candle Light.

The room may be arranged with candles to throw light upon the piano, the leader's desk, possibly upon a picture of Jesus which occupies the most prominent place in the room. As each person takes part in the meeting, have that person light a candle to represent the command about which he or she is to talk.

Begin with music played softly, using familiar hymns with a message.

Leader: Read Scripture lesson.

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world." (A tall white taper may be lighted to represent the life of Christ.)

"God said, let there be light, and there was light."

"Those who walked in darkness have seen a great light. For unto us a child is born and unto us a child is given . . . and his name shall be called . . . Prince of Peace."

"In him was life, and the life was the light of men."

Jesus said: "I am the light of the world, he that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Jesus said: "Come." (One young person may light a candle, and interpret this requirement of Jesus.)

(Music: "Jesus is Tenderly Calling.")

Jesus said: "Know" and "Seek."

(Music: "More About Jesus Would I Know.")

Jesus said: "Love."

(Music: "My Jesus, I Love Thee.")

Jesus said: "Give."

(Music: ("I'll Live for Him."))

Jesus said: "Bear," "Deny," "Follow."

(Music: "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone?")

Jesus said: "Be."

(Music: "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee.")

Jesus said: "Go!" (The last candle may be lighted, with a short message about ways in which we can go to others with the message of Jesus, both through our own ministry and through our representatives the world around.)

(Music: "Follow the Gleam.")

Leader:

A little light in Bethlehem,
No larger than a candle's flame;
A wee white light in Bethlehem,
Silver and small it came.
And many slept and did not see
The faint far gleam when dark unfurled—
The little light that grew to be
The Light of all the World.

Let us wait in silent thanksgiving for all the light that has come into the world through Jesus

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

THE MEANING OF DISCIPLESHIP.

(REVIEW LESSON.)

GOLDEN TEXT: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."—Isa. 9:6.

LESSON TEXT: John 10:7-16.

The Gospel According to Matthew.

It is generally agreed that Matthew specifically had the Jews in mind when he wrote his Gospel. This is why he traces the genealogy of Jesus from Abraham, through David to Joseph; why in the first fifteen chapters he makes ten quotations from the Old Testament; why we find such phrases as "It is written" and "That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet." Matthew undertakes to show that Jesus is the Messiah because he fulfills the prophecies concerning the Coming One.

The author of this Gospel did not aim at setting forth with chronological exactitude the events in the life of our Lord. Hence we find in his record of his teaching incidents and sayings topically grouped. The Sermon on the Mount is believed to be the outstanding illustration of this, which embraces chapters 5 to 7. Chapter 10 records the call of the disciples, which is immediately followed by sending forth the Twelve, with many instructions, some of which seem to have been taken from his later ministry. It was done for the convenience of the reader, possibly also as a memory aid, and certainly with no aim to wrest the truth. Chapter 13 is an illustration of how the parables of the kingdom are grouped. Matthew indeed put so much stress on the idea of the Kingdom of God that his Gospel is often spoken of as the Gospel of the Kingdom.

Birth, Baptism, Temptation.

One of the greatest and most significant things about the birth of Jesus, is that "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." Mystery? Undoubtedly. Every birth is a mystery, and the simple fact of life is the greatest of all mysteries. Redemption had to come to man on his own plane and through his own experiences. Angels had no power of redemption; the most truthful teaching could not do it; life alone was necessary to redeem life. It must come first of all through the child. This is seen in the way Jesus welcomed and stressed the importance of childhood. Kahlil Gibran says: "Your children are not your children. They are sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself. They came through you, but not to you. You may give them your love, but not your thoughts, for they have their own thoughts. You may house their bodies, but not their souls, for their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams. You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you. For life goes not backward nor carries with yesterday."

His baptism was his public manifestation, and his experiences in connection therewith additional assurance that God had raised him up to be the Messiah. His temptation was the testing of that assurance and a searching of the ideals that should dominate his ministry. He had not come to minister to the material side of life, but the spiritual; not to follow the methods of the world by working magic or establishing a kingdom on force, but to build his kingdom into the hearts of men through faith and love.

Standards, First, Warnings.

If there is to be a kingdom, then there must be standards, ideals, goals. These are set forth in the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus presents his teaching about happiness in paradoxical form. The man in the street may think of it as contradictory, and far removed from common sense. Those, however, who take time to think, will find it to contain the highest truths. This teaching put to the test actually works. The Christian life is a happy life. There is happiness in it even when we must suffer for our ideals. The apostles and martyrs were happy through all their sufferings. Then this kingdom of Jesus gets on in the world, not by slaying enemies, but by loving them, and praying for those who abuse us. When will the nations measure up?

Help, Twelve, Jesus Testifies.

Jesus was always helping somebody. We find him helping sailors, helping sinners, helping a sick man back to health, helping Matthew and calling him to follow him, and helping Matthew's fellow-sinners and publicans.

Jesus was a great missionary. He quickly saw the need for training other missionaries. He appointed his disciples to be missionaries, and he expects every one of his followers to be a missionary.

Jesus gave this testimony concerning himself: "All has been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows the Son except the Father—nor does any one know the Father except the Son, and he to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

Parables, Faith.

A parable is a story that keeps itself in circulation, aids memory, and increases understanding of truth. It is a "picture for the eye, a story for the ear, a lesson for the heart," and an "earthly story with a heavenly meaning." These are some of the reasons why Jesus used this method of teaching.

Outside of his own geographical borders he found greater faith than he had found within them. A Canaanitish woman wails after him and his disciples in behalf of her daughter. He tests her faith, and grants her request. Mothers of all nations have the same love for and interest in their children. The human heart is the same everywhere, and God is no respecter of persons.—W. G. Johnston in Christian Evangelist.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

and the lives of those who have sought to meet his requirements. Let us not refuse it nor be blind to its presence.

Period of meditation.

Period of prayer. (Ask a number of members to voice prayers of thanksgiving and petition.)

Solo: "Lead Kindly Light."

Leader:

O Light that followest all my way,
I yield my flickering torch to thee;
My heart restores its borrowed ray,
That in thy sunshine's blaze its day
May brighter, fairer be.

O Love that will not let me go,
I rest my weary soul in thee;
I give thee back the life I owe,
That in thine ocean depths its flow
May richer, fuller be.

Closing prayer.

—Adapted from The Sunday School Herald.

"A university professor has said: 'God is the integrating principle of the universe.' We cannot say: 'O thou integrating principle of the universe, forgive us our sins.' You might as well pray to the law of gravity."—Reich.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

WHAT RELIGION MEANS.

.. "Whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world."—I. John 5:4, 5.

Since religion means life, one can hardly get away from the subject. Everything in life suggests the meaning of religion. Every act has a religious bearing. Therefore, the writer is again writing about it.

A man said the other day: "I can very quickly tell what religion means to me. It means crapping, fighting, victories and defeats, successes and failures; it means a constant resistance of evil and withstanding opponents to religion, and, therefore, it makes enemies and calls for a lot of endurance of criticism."

The speaker did not mean to say that he had to be pugnacious in character, the crude expression was just simply his own way of stating what he was everlastingly up against in his endeavor to live a Christian life.

The way of Christ is not always an easy way—fundamentally it is the same that it was when Christ trod the ways of Galilee. But it is a way of victory. It is impossible to overestimate the terrific hold that sin has upon life; but when a person is born again through the blood of Jesus Christ, the power of sin is broken, the conqueror becomes the conquered, and the soul is free.

We are not to assume that God's children are perfect, or without spot, stain or defilement; but we do say that in the matter of living the Christ-life, every one that is born again is free and is quite a new man. He does not view sins lightly; he no longer, like the chameleon, changes his color to suit his environment; he no longer thinks a little swearing, a little Sabbath breaking, a little fornication, a little drinking, is a trifling matter; but he looks upon it all as against God, and he abhors it, and he fights against it with his whole heart, mind, soul and strength, and this makes differences even with our best friends sometimes.

Prayer—O Lord, make us as wise as thy will and as harmless as thy love and kindness. Grant us the power of the Holy Spirit and the glory of the victory of the upward way.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

DOES IT PAY TO BE HONEST?

"What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"—Mark 8:36

Our subject today is taken from the question of the young man in the February issue of the American Magazine. He says that honesty does not pay, and cites instances. He says it pays to be crooked, and cites instances. What do you say? He asks for one convincing reason showing that honesty pays. This young man does not discuss values. From his allusions we infer that his conception of value is money and what it will buy for him. Nothing else matters.

So long as this is his highest conception of values, he may be able to prove his point. Many persons may grow wealthy through dishonesty and most honest people may have to live with limited means. But even this argument breaks down, for money has no value only as we give it value, and that value is guarded by supply and demand. Demand is a thing within us.

It is what we desire, and he whose ambitions are no higher than his own desires, though prospering for a time, "like a green bay tree," finally arrives at nothing but torment, like the rich man of the Bible, while poor, honest Lazarus was rich in the blessedness of eternal joy.

The story of the rich man and Lazarus and that of the rich young ruler, are two sermons of our Lord in which he covers this particular point.

Prayer—Our Father, as we go along, grant unto us the inspiration of thy thought, thy way, thy wealth, thy glory, and teach us the true and the good of life.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

TRUE VALUES.

"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—Luke 12:15.

"Riches profit in the day of wrath; but righteousness delivereth from death."—Prov. 11:4.

"He that trusteth in riches shall fall; but the righteous shall flourish as a green leaf."—Prov. 11:28.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold."—Prov. 22:1.

Everyone faces the problem of riches and poverty. And one does not go far to find that some are enormously rich, but abjectly poor in truth, honor, trust, virtue, and the excellent and the praiseworthy—utterly lacking in the things that are rich in honor. Witness: Insull of today. A man without a country and a fugitive from justice. How much better it would be for him if he had a conscience void of offense and a life in which his countrymen imposed confidence and honor. That there may be those of his like flourishing and in power is beside the point. History foretells that they too are headed for a collapse.

"Silver nor gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of the Lord's wrath. . . . For he will make an end, yea, a terrible end, of all them that dwell in the land."—Zeph. 1:18.

Prayer—Our Father, today we are still thinking of that which is honorable, just, pure, virtuous, and of good report, and what these traits bring to us. Guide thou our thoughts and our souls to the rightful end.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

AN ESTIMATE OF VALUES.

"Ye tithe the mint and rue and all manner of herbs and pass over the judgment of God."—Luke 11:42.

"Ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith."—Matt. 23:23.

On the other hand, we have not far to go to find those who are abjectly poor but enormously rich in the sight of heaven.

The rich young ruler was told to sell out and follow Christ. But his idea was money and servants and comfort, so he declined the opportunity and went away. As he did so, Christ said, "A rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle."

Walt Whitman said, "I love God, flowers and little children." Such a life is insured against all bankruptcy. He was poor in the world's goods, but he lived the abundant life.

These are types. The former is a type of those who want money, comfort, pleasure, appreciation, honor, influence, names in the paper, etc., and they are willing to pay for it. They will give money, give dinners, give favors, time, sacrifice principle and anything to have bestowed on them these values, but who, like the rich man of the parable, come to disaster. The latter represents the true and the good, and like Lazarus, come to wealth of soul. Which would you take?

Prayer—Our Father, come to us now, we need saving. O thou Saviour, save us from the glamor of fleeting worldly things and fill us with love and goodness and like for others.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

LIFE A LOAN.

"Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price."—I. Cor. 6:19, 20.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein."—I. Cor. 10:26.

"Thou shalt surely tithe the increase of thy seed."—Deut. 14:22.

The Word of God is authority for the status of possessions and how these possessions are to be used. This authority is supported by experience through the ages, or facts lie and all great persons of the past lie.

That God's Word requires the tithe of our income reflects both his ownership and his right to what we have. The experience of the ages stands as solemn witness to the fact that he who is faithful in the payment of this obligation to the Lord never lacks for his necessities, nor for heavenly blessings. (See Matt. 4:10.)

Thus our possessions mean something to us only as we use them.

No possession can keep a man alive and no possession is worth more than one's use of it. Mr. Chas. Pratt said, "I never got anything out of my wealth until I began to use it."

Therefore, it is to be said that our possessions are the Lord's and are only loaned to us for use in some good objective, and that objective is to make the world better than we found it, and to glorify Him. (I. Cor. 6:20.)

Thinkest thou that thy home is thine own? Why, in an hour it may go up in smoke, or be carried away by a storm, or be taken by the demands of the crooked and the cunning. If thou dost die, whose is it then? "Thou broughtest nothing into this world, and it is certain that thou canst carry nothing out." "The Lord gavest and the Lord taketh away," and it is his design that we should live and so use what he hath loaned us that we can say, "Living or dying, we are the Lord's." "Blessed be the name of the Lord."

Prayer—O Lord God, our God, in thee we live and move and have our being. It is by thy grace that we have anything. Help us to dedicate our lives and all we possess to thee.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

OWNING THE EARTH.

"The righteous shall inherit the earth."—Matt. 5:5.

There is a kingdom to come, when righteousness, the foundation of all happiness and peace, shall prevail, or we make God a lie. This kingdom cannot, however, come by the unrighteous. Thieves, nor the covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit this kingdom. (I. Cor. 5:9, 10.) Neither can money buy it, because it is a kingdom in which money has no value. This kingdom is a spiritual king-

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

THE RELIGION OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

By WALTER METCALF.

[From a radio address by Rev. Walter Metcalf, pastor of First Congregational Church, Tampa, Fla., over Station WDAE, in the "Forum of All Religions."]

The "Religion of the Unemployed!" What a misnomer! We are inclined to say: "There ain't no such animal!" How can an unemployed man accept our comfortable creed? Grits and bacon make a poor foundation for belief in a kindly Providence! A loving heavenly Father is much nearer when wife and children are warmly clad!

Personally, we marvel at the fundamentally religious beliefs manifested by the millions of our unemployed. "Faith," "Hope," and "Love" are cardinal religious virtues everywhere, and sit enthroned in our New Testament as the greatest of Christian characteristics. We may look in vain for these regal passports among certain overfed, and therefore, underprivileged members of "High Society," but God's poor have nothing else to live for, but Undying Faith, Whispering Hope and Eternal and Abounding Love!

You have just GOT to have faith when the rent is overdue, the wife is sick, and the children cry for bread! Under these tragic circumstances a man without faith must jump into the river! How can a man face the future without hope, when he realizes that practically every other man in the country is dependent upon governmental bounty for some kind of "relief"? To face these things without God and without hope, would mean the insane asylum for every thinking man! And what could the very poor do without love? Big business may turn them down; society as at present organized may pass them by "on the other side;" but no matter how poor a man may be—there's always the wife and kiddies awaiting him with open, though perhaps emaciated arms of love. He is generally welcome at home!

Some people are morally "hopeless;" others are inhuman; quite a lot of us are definitely sinful; but when we consider the patience, the mutual helpfulness, and sacrificial love of earth's poor, we understand why Jesus loved them! The finest and best that humanity has yet produced—Jesus, the Carpenter—looked with sympathy upon those who sowed the seed, mended broken nets, ground wheat at the family mill-stone; and at the children at play in the market place; and declared: "Blessed are the poor!" It is the hardest word Jesus ever spoke!

We are sure the Master did not give his blessing to grinding poverty! We know he did not wish to perpetuate the conditions that made such poverty prevalent! No! We would rather think that he saw the rare blossoms that sometimes grow in the unattractive soil of penury—the sacrifice, the cheerfulness, the patience, the hope, the strength, and the great love of the common people—especially of the poor!

"The Religion of the Unemployed." We have, perhaps, inadequately suggested some of the basic tenets of all religion, as well as the religion of the poor—patience, forbearance, service, kindness, mutual helpfulness, and practical brotherhood. These virtues grow more readily in lowly surroundings. The painfully rich seldom need these things! How hardly shall they that have riches enter the Kingdom of Heaven! Perhaps our recent experiences of crashing banks, tumbling fortunes, and bread-lines, "knee-deep in wheat," may teach us some of life's most treasured virtues!

The first tenet of every unemployed man's creed must be—Bread! A man must live! Hunger is the primal urge of life! The babe's first cry is for food! Man drives the plow, tends the machine, feeds the furnace, and presides at the bank—ultimately for food! Bread is the basic need of man! Other things are also necessary, but without bread—everything is worthless dross. The unemployed ask for bread; and we are sure the Master Workman of the Race does not wish us to give them a stone!

The creed of the unemployed also insists on—WORK!

Here many of us part company. The idle rich do not know this word; but it is drilled into the poor from childhood! Too many in our high schools and colleges thoughtlessly jump at the thought of living without work. We have trained our children to dream of either making, or inheriting a fortune; then having other people work for them! Most of us do not want anything harder to do than to clip coupons (whatever that means), or stand excitedly by, watching securities rise in value without our doing anything. Then we turn round and criticize the workingman who is occasionally indisposed toward manual labor!

But the vast majority of the unemployed want —work. Not a dole: not charity, not emergency relief, not even the fine provisions of the C. W. A. program, but regular assured work! A few among all groups of society would rather take the unearned increment of property or securities—and rest on the handle of the proverbial shovel; but the vast majority of the unemployed want a regular assured job! They would gladly subscribe to St. Paul's hard words: "If a man will not work, neither shall he eat"; though they know such a doctrine would go pretty hard with the sheltered sons and daughters of many rich.

Our unemployed believe in Economic Security. This might lessen the initiative of a few people, but it ought to produce more initiative than our present system supplies! What initiative does Emergency Relief offer that engineer, or that architect, two and three years out of a job? There are literally thousands—yea, millions—of trained teachers, and farmers and bookkeepers, who are losing all their initiative and hope, waiting for C. W. A. jobs to turn up! What will these fine people do when the First day of May dawns, and they are thrown on Emergency Relief? The old regime offers nothing of expectancy or initiative for these people.

We must find permanent jobs for every man willing to work. Our country needs development and workers by the million are waiting for the jobs! We have unlimited wealth at our disposal—why not develop statesmen, who, in an orderly manner, can bring jobs and workers together? The task is herculean, but surely worthy of the steel of some great statesman-warrior!

The unemployed ask for JUSTICE! It is hard work. Socrates did not get it; Jesus did not get it; and the workers today are not getting it! Millions are willing to work for a fair return on their labor—yet they know that about seven per cent of our population own about ninety per cent of their only means of subsistence! Banks, factories, railroads; bonds, stocks, securities, are all held by men and women of wealth—and by these things the workers must live! Their one cry is for economic security, and their cry is just!

We hope the skies are clearing for our poorer brethren. Some slight progress has been made. These signs do not mean much to the man with an empty larder, and threadbare clothes! In patience these people have possessed their souls. Red Revolution has signalled to them from across the seas; but the American workingman has miraculously kept his eyes on the Stars and Stripes of the good old U. S. A.

The Unemployed hopes his long vigil is nearing an end. Never again will his country dare allow him to go hungry! Every effort must be made to open up avenues of useful labor to him. He does not want to aimlessly cut weeds; but he does look for human sympathy, justice, and work, by which he can live, and feel himself—a MAN!

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Two years ago the good women and children collected and sent to the Christian Orphanage one hundred thousand Octagon soap wrappers, with which to buy a milk cooling plant for our milk house, which has been a great blessing to us. It keeps the milk cool and sweet and wholesome for the little children at all times.

We need some kind of a cooling plant for our three buildings to preserve the left-over food through the summer months. I wonder if our people don't have a great many Octagon soap wrappers on hand which could be gathered up and sent to the Orphanage to help us buy these much needed necessities?

Every little boy and girl, as well as older people, could help in this undertaking. Sunday School teachers could ask all the children to gather up all the Octagon soap wrappers and bring them to Sunday School on a certain Sunday, and the teacher could mail them to the Christian Orphanage. Every little tot can have a part in this. Let us see if we can gather up one hundred thousand by May 1st.

We have had lots of measles, but we are glad to say we only have one patient now.

Our first snow fell Saturday night, March 10th, but was very light. The children have not had any sport snow-balling this winter, but this does not mean that we have had no cold weather, for we have had near-zero weather, but there was no snow on the ground.

We received a letter this morning from the good women in Goshen, Ind., telling us that the good ladies are at work on Easter dresses, and they would be mailed in time for Easter. If our good women who have never visited the Orphanage and probably never will, are so vitally interested, should not our good women who have visited the Orphanage, and have seen what it is trying to do for homeless children, be more interested. I wish I had the space in this letter to tell you about two little boys and a little girl we received some weeks ago. I went to their home to see them before they came. When I saw the conditions, I immediately made up my mind to take them. If you could have been with me you would have whispered in my ear, "take them!" I knew you would have. All three of them are sweet little fellows and are so nice, kind and gentle that they just win their way into your heart. Who can tell what this investment will mean to these three little children? Who can tell what it may mean to the church and society? Just an investment in human life.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR MARCH 15, 1934.

Brought forward ..... $ 1,334.90

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Happy Home .....	$ 1.94
Mt. Bethel .....	2.75
Bethlehem .....	5.72
Union, N. C. ....	1.65
Durham .....	16.38
Third Ave., Danville .....	5.96
	34.40

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Sanford .....	$ 1.00
Mebane .....	3.35
Oak Level .....	1.00
	5.35

Western North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Hill .....	$ 3.43
Liberty .....	3.75
Hank's Chapel .....	2.75
Biseoe .....	2.48
	12.41
Eastern Virginia Conference:
First, Richmond .....	$ 4.69
South Norfolk .....	5.50
Mt. Carmel .....	10.71
	20.90
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Timber Ridge .....	1.98
Alabama Conference:
Roanoke .....	$ 1.00
Noon Day .....	2.00
	3.00
Special Offerings.
Mrs. Dalton, support children....	$ 12.50
W. P. Perry, support Billy Perry..	10.00
T. B. Roberts, support children..	10.00
Mrs. J. M. Story, Burlington....	2.00
	34.50
Thanksgiving Offerings.
Mr. C. M. Fields .....	$ 5.50
J. L. Fonville, Burlington.....	5.00
Miss Josephine Farmer, Elon, N. C.	1.00
E. H. Wilkins, Burlington, payment	25.00
on pledge .....	25.00
C. M. Horner, Burlington, payment	25.00
on pledge .....	25.00
	61.50
Total for the week.....	$ 174.04
Grand total .....	$ 1,508.94

"You would have a queer kind of Bible if everybody cut out what he wanted to."—Moody.

Eiffers Sunday School Maps.

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary for the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, shown by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Nāz'a-rēth, he came and dwelt in Cā-pēr'nā-um, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zāb'u-lon and Nēph'thā-lim: 14 That it might be fulfilled	A. D. 31.  CHAP. 4. Isa. 9. 1, 2.	934 CHAPTER 5. 3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc. A <sup>d</sup> seeing the multitudes; he went up into a moun-
---	--	---

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>b</sup> The land of Zāb'u-lon, and the land of Nēph'thā-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jōr'dān, Gāl'i-lee of the Gēn'tiles;	A. D. 31.  Is. 9. 1, 2. Luke 2. 32. Mark 1. 14.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, 3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
---	---	---

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
 A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers). French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper. Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above .....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

THE FAMILY ALTAR.
(Continued from page 12.)

dom and only such things as make it up have value.

To sum up the whole matter; true values consist not in the material things of this life, but in the things which one can take with him after death—love, joy, peace, obedience to God, unwavering faith and loyalty to God and man, longsuffering, gentleness, meekness, mercy, goodness and good works, sincerity, helping the needy, a soul void of spot and a conscience void of offense. These are the things man has found to be the living and the eternal values. These are the things that live after one passes from this earth. These are the things that shall make heaven, if we are to believe God. Yea, to do less is to live on the level of an animal and not a man's life at all; there are the things that must be eternally true, unless the world's best men and women have been the world's greatest liars.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we realize that the allurements, glamor, comfort and thrills of material things enthrall us. We are sucked in by them and forget the true values, and thee. God forbid, and make us right in thy light.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

IF THERE WERE NO GOD.

"I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision."
—Acts 26:19.

There is no doubt that the leadership of God is often in the form of an illusion. If a young man were told how his journey of life lay and could see what is to happen to him as he strives on for the prizes of life, such a sight would probably break his spirit, but God spares us that, and lures us on with the heavenly vision of that which is good. If obedient to that vision, like Paul, we shall arrive.

The world might well be interested in the testimony of Cannon Raven, one of the world's outstanding religious leaders of today. He is quoted by Dr. Wm. A. Brown, in his recent great book, "God at Work," as saying:

"It was during my first night in France on my way to Vimmy Ridge that (Jesus) vindicated for me my hope that when everything else failed, he would stand sure. * * * When death looked me in the face, I was a coward, my manhood withered and collapsed. . . . Men talk of honor, patriotism, and a flag—I would have forsaken any earthly loyalty for the gift of life; or of immortality. When one yearns for the dear small things of earth (dear ones at home), sacrifice and heroism is a fine theme for talk, but poor consolation if all one's dreams are to end in a shattered pulp of blood and brains. And suddenly, as if spoken in the very room of his words, something said, 'for their sakes I consecrate myself.'"

He says: ". . . For the next nine months God was never absent, and I was never alone. If he who was with me when I was blown up by shell, and gassed, and sniped at; with me in hours of bombardment and the daily walk of death; was an illusion, then all that makes life worth living for me is an illusion, too; and I can only thank God that in this mockery of existence there has been a dream so beautiful, so realistic, so potent in its effects."

How true this presence with all God's children, and how true it is if all the benefits of being right and honest are only an illusion, God grant us the illusion.—Amen.

"I am sure that if God hates anything more than another, it is religious hypocrisy."—W. I. Pettingill.

AT WINTER PARK.
(Continued from page 7.)

fully paid for. Dr. Vincent has always been a leader in the Florida fellowship, having been elected to all posts of honor in the Association and Conference, and has represented the Southeast on the Commission of Missions. He has been most brotherly in his relations to all the other pastors of the State and has been deeply interested in the progress of the kingdom through Congregational agencies, his church having been the largest giver to missions in the State for a number of years.

Dr. Vincent came to Winter Park following a pastorate at the Mount Pleasant Church in Washington, D. C., and prior to that he had been pastor in Boston, Mass., Galesburg, Ill., and Sandusky, Ohio. He began his life ministry in the Freewill Baptist Church, and was at one time National Secretary of that denomination. Dr. Vincent has been in demand as a supply preacher during his summer vacations in the North and will probably serve in that way during the coming summer.

During the past week there was also held in Winter Park the annual Convocation of Rollins College. This event this year was made significant by the presence and addresses on the program by two members of President Roosevelt's cabinet: Secretary Roper and Attorney-General Cummings. These men received honorary degrees, as did ex-Ambassador Kellogg, author of the Kellogg Peace Pact. Dr. Harry Dewey, pastor of the Pilgrim Church, Minneapolis, preached the Convocation sermon, and received the degree of L. H. D.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr
A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc.,
is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE . . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year . . . . . $2.00
Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

DUKE.

Claude E. Duke, Jr., son of Claude E. and Christine Copeland Duke, of Baltimore, Md., died March 2, 1934, at the age of six years and seven months. The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. W. M. Jay, at Somerton Friends Church, Nausemond County, Va., on Sunday, March 4th, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

This was an only child and his taking away has brought great sorrow to the devoted parents. May our heavenly Father comfort and keep them in their hour of trial. "He will gather the lambs in his arm and carry them in his bosom." (Isa. 40:11.) N. G. NEWMAN.

ETHEREDGE.

Mrs. W. H. Etheredge, prominent and highly esteemed resident of Selma, died at her home there, after an illness extending over a period of months.

She was 77 years of age, and four years ago, on December 26th, she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

The deceased was, before her marriage, Miss Stella Winston, daughter of Sidney and Julia Winston, of Franklin County. She was an active member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy for years, a member of the Henry L. Wyatt Chapter, also an honorary member of the Woman's Club, a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church, where she always took an active part in missionary and other activities as long as her health would permit.

Besides her husband she is survived by four children: Misses Margaret and Stella Etheredge, of Selma; Mrs. S. F. Leonard, of Rocky Mount, and Robert W. Etheredge, of Spring Hill, N. C.; and two grandchildren, Margaret Winston Leonard and Bobby Etheredge, and two brothers, Thomas W. Winston, of Oxford, and John P. Winston, of Wendell.

The funeral was held from the home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by her pastor, Rev. D. F. Weddell, assisted by Rev. J. G. Johnson, of Laurinburg, and Rev. L. T. Singleton, pastor of the local Methodist Church. Special music rendered was a quartette by Mrs. L. P. Leonard, Raleigh; Mrs. M. R. Wall, R. E. Suber and John Jeffreys, "Lead Kindly Light," and a solo by Mrs. LeRoy Thiem, of Raleigh, "Crossing the Bar."

A good and noble woman has gone to her reward. Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved ones.

BAKER.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Madison Baker began her earthly career January 5, 1854, and finished her pilgrimage February 22, 1934, age 80 years, 1 month, and 17 days.

On April 3, 1876, she became the loving wife of Mr. Geo. W. Baker, who preceded her to glory some years ago. To that wedlock were born seven children, six of whom survive, as follows: Mr. Carl Baker, Spray, N. C.; Mr. Avery Baker, Reidsville, N. C.; Mr. Reuben Baker, Wentworth, N. C.; Miss Lillie Baker, Wentworth, N. C.; Mrs. Eugene Hester, Reidsville, N. C.; Miss Mary Madison Baker, Reidsville, N. C.

Mrs. Baker was a member of a family of four children, Mr. W. B. Madison, a brother, being the only remaining member of her family.

She spent her time and talents in the community and Reidsville, N. C. Her life was an example of virtue and industry at home and in the neighborhood as long as physical ability permitted.

Sister Baker professed Christ as her Saviour in girlhood, united with the Christian Church here, later joining the Quaker Church with her husband, never entirely leaving the church of her first choice. She was a fine worker and a teacher in the Sunday School. Also an ardent student of the Bible and secular history. Moral prohibition has lost a staunch friend. She taught public school a number of years successfully, and was a member of the Eastern Star.

She loved the fellowship of Christian people and often admonished, "Be slow to leave the old land-mark of truth and sobriety." Previous to the end she expressed her resignation to the Father's will and good pleasure. A good woman has gone.

Funeral services were conducted in Howard's Chapel in her memory at her request, and the Scripture text was Matt. 5:6, according to her wish. Interment was in the family plot at Smyrna Presbyterian Church.

May the Lord comfort the bereaved.

L. L. WYRICK.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 1934.

NUMBER 12.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

"Hitler First, Then God."—

Dr. Reinhold Krause, recently elevated to the Bradenburg Synod Council of the "German Protestant Church," has declared that the "idea of obeying God more than man is impossible." He adds: "Christianity has always been international, but our national interests come first—not only in daily, but in religious life."

The President Turns Author.—

The President has written a book, "Looking Forward," which is running up heavy sales abroad, having been printed in seven languages. Royalties are pouring in. The domestic sales, however, are said to be below expectations. Another book entitled, "On Our Way," is reported nearly ready for publication. One can but wonder when he finds time for writing.

Bill for Philippine Independence Passed.—

A bill, said to be acceptable to Philippine leaders, was passed by the lower house of Congress on Monday of this week. This bill provides for the establishment of an independent Philippine Republic by presidential proclamation within the next twelve years. It imposes certain conditions which must be met by the Philippines, including the calling of a constitutional convention by October 1st of this year.

King Leopold's Allowance.—

The Belgian Parliament has set the remuneration of their new King Leopold at 12,000,000 francs. King Albert received a much smaller number of francs, but, figured in gold his remuneration at the beginning of his reign was equivalent to 23,000,000 of the present francs. He, however, suffered from the effects of the depression, and after his original pay was increased three-fold, it only amounted to 9,500,000 francs.

Dr. Bloom Retires.—

On April 1st, Dr. W. Knighton Bloom was to retire from the office which he had so graced in the Southeast. For years he had served the Congregational Churches in this section as head of their department of Missions, and during the later years, since the union of his church with the Christians, he has become endeared to the latter body also. Perhaps, He who knows all, knew that Dr. Bloom would rather die fighting in the cause he loved. So he called him home on March 15th. Elsewhere in this issue of THE SUN are tributes of love from those associated with him in his work.

Loans to Home Owners.—

Loans to 114,678 home owners, involving a total of $325,151,720 were made by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, up to March 9th, ac-ording to a Federal report covering the first six months of the corporation's active operation. This report also showed that 540,000 other dwelling owners had been placed on the list for early refinancing of their mortgages. Practically all of the loans effected so far have been by the exchange of bonds for mortgages, though in a few cases cash loans had been made. The average loan to date has amounted to $2,833, and the amount advanced has been approximately 70 per cent of the appraised value of the property.

Colonel John R. Saunders.—

In the passing of Colonel John R. Saunders, for more than sixteen years Attorney General of Virginia, that State has suffered a loss that is momentous. He died early last Saturday morning after an illness of several weeks, at the age of 64 years. Probably the best known man in the State, he was loved and admired by hosts of friends. He would go far out of his way to serve those needing his assistance, no matter how humble, but could not be swerved from his position when he believed himself right, by the most powerful pressure. He was also director of prohibition, and performed this hard task well. When the wet interests demanded a let-up in enforcement after the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, he came out boldly declaring that as long as the law was on the statute books it should be enforced. The writer, who, since childhood, had known and admired him, will miss his cheery smile and hearty greeting.

Strikes Threaten.—

The revival of production in the automobile industry, with its consequent aid to the return of prosperity for the country at large, seems in grave danger, due to the threatened strike which is being fomented by the American Federation of Labor. The trouble seems to hang upon the recognition of the American Federation by the various companies. Heretofore most of these companies have had their own labor organizations, which have evidently functioned well. It is quite a pity that there should be retardation of a general return to prosperity by strikes to uphold the "principle" of a matter. The railroads have answered a demand that the present "temporary" wage reductions instituted quite a while back, be removed, by threatening to "impose an added 15 per cent slash in basic pay, unless workers agree to keep the present scale." The temporary cut was 10 per cent, and the railroads have asked for its continuance until April 30, 1935. CWA workers walked out in Harrisburg, Pa., refusing a 20 per cent cut in pay. The county board decided to continue the original pay of 50 cents per hour.

A Talking Book for the Blind.—

Simple and obvious as the conception is," says the New York Times, "it has taken the technical resources of a staff of physicists and engineers and the financial aid of the Carnegie Corporation and certain rich friends of the blind to reduce to practice" the idea of having a library of records of the best popular and educational literature, that the blind may be able to hear these books. And even now these books are not available to the blind, but they soon will be. The Library of Congress has undertaken to establish libraries of them, so that it will be possible to borrow them wherever Braille books are now available. There are present twenty-four of these depositories throughout the United States. There are approximately 80,000 people in this country who are blind, and it is hoped to make the books available to at least 5,000 within the next year. The machines used for reproduction are to be sold by the American Foundation for the blind at cost, being priced as low as $20.00. Some of the newer talking machines will play the book records, but it takes a special machine to make the most of the book and to save wear and tear on the records. These records are unusually light, almost non-breakable, and eighteen-minute playing on each side.

A New Electric Light.—

It is a far cry from the old carbon light that lighted the street corner where the writer played when a child, to the incandescent bulb of the present. But even the incandescent bulb may soon become a thing of the past. Scientist and small boy have been equally failing in their attempt to fathom the mystery of the light-bug's flash or a firefly's heatless glow until now. It has been left for a young Brooklyn scientist, Gilbert T. Schmidling, to finally imprison the firefly's cold light in an electric light bulb. This recent invention, which makes possible heatless illumination, a secret which scientists have searched for centuries, is based on the use of a fluorescent mixture of minerals spread upon the inner surface of the bulb. Instead of the usual white-hot filament in the center of the lamp, there is a sphere from which is sent out "a terrific bombardment of electrons or cathode rays," causing the mixture on the bulb's surface to become luminous and to glow brilliantly without producing any heat. Multiplying the light of the firefly many thousand times, this bulb is said to be six times as efficient as the best of the present type bulbs. That is, it uses only one-sixth as much current for the light produced. And best of all, the bulb may be used in our present light sockets, "if and when" produced in sufficient quantities and at prices low enough for us to buy.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Piety and true morality are inseparable. Piety is love with its face towards God, morality is love with its face towards man—Fausset.

On this page is a poem entitled "The Christian Sun," from the pen of our venerable brother, Rev. A. K. Scotten, of Ramseur, N. C. The idea it conveys is pertinent, and we hope his appeal is not in vain.

We now face the week of the passion and suffering of our Lord, and then the day—April 1st—on which is celebrated his glorious and triumphant resurrection, and on that day, as obedient and faithful servants and followers of him through self-denial, we shall seek to make an offering to help carry the story of his love and life to those at home and abroad whose souls are hungry for the Bread of Life.

The envelopes for the Easter missionary offering have now gone to all the pastors and churches with the earnest solicitation and prayer that every member of congregation, Sunday School and church will, at least, be given an opportunity to make a self-denial offering in the name of their risen Lord for missions. Shall we "stop the drop," and recover our souls, and faces, in presenting a solid front to the forces of evil that are pressing hard to destroy even the power of the Gospel and the message of the church?

The Mission Secretary was with pastor Rev. J. Lee Johnson in his appointments, Sunday, the 18th, at New Elam Sunday School and church service in the morning, Bethel in the afternoon. Brother Johnson has begun well in the pastorate of these two active and largely attended rural churches and his people are delighted with his ministry. It was a joy, indeed, to speak to and worship with these people in the atmosphere created by a consecrated leadership and the devotions of consecrated people. Brother Johnson is very happy and hopeful in his work at both of these churches, which he serves this year for the first time.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, president, calls attention to the fact that the Missionary Rally in the Guilford District is to meet with the First Church, Greensboro, Tuesday, March 27th, instead of Wednesday, March 28th, as heretofore announced. The Greensboro Daily News gives the following: "Attention of Christian Churches in Guilford and Forsyth Counties has been called to the meeting of the Guilford District to be held at the First Christian Church in Greensboro, Tuesday, March 27th. Plans are already shaping up for an interesting and worthwhile program. Mrs. O. H. Paris, district superintendent, has announced that Dr. J. O. Atkinson, of Elon College, Mission Secretary of the Southern Christian Convention; Mrs. Mary D. White, of New York City, one of the Home Board secretaries, will head the list of speakers. About ten churches are included in the district."

Burlington Church is painting up "spic and span" for its new pastor, the painters having had charge on the interior for two or three weeks, expecting to conclude their work this week. Dr. Lightbourne has been greeted with great gladness and cordiality not only by the local church, but by many of his brethren and friends in other churches of this and nearby Conferences. The work begins well and hopefully under his ministry. Rev. Redd Turner, who has served as interim pastor, won the hearts of our Burlington people by his friendly contacts and his pure, powerful Gospel messages. He recently married one of our good Christian girls, as SUN columns have shown, and at an early date begins the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, Portsmouth, Va. Brother Redd, though a devout Presbyterian, is a graduate of Elon College and is held in loving esteem by our young people amongst whom he is well known. It seems a singular coincidence that three of the pastors of churches in Portsmouth are Elon men—pastor First Methodist Church; pastor First Christian Church; pastor First Presbyterian Church. We congratulate Portsmouth, which will certainly have some sound, sane, soul-stirring preaching.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

By A. K. SCOTTEN.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, a golden crumb,
To lead us on to heaven;

If we partake, and keep awake,
'Tis manna to us given.

It represents with money spent
The cause for which it lives
And has a creed we so much need,
And this is why it lives.

It gives the home a generous loan,
The work that's going on;
If it should fail, it's loss we'd wail,
And miss it when it's gone.

And every church, however much
That they may think it cost,
To keep a dime for all the time,
Thus help to save the lost.

And now to say some coming day
The Lord will own and bless,
The labor done, THE CHRISTIAN SUN,
For all the more or less.

O, hear us friends, on you depends
Help sow the precious seed;
Helping hands and Christian bands
So much, so much, we need.

Ramseur, N. C.

GOOD NEWS FROM NEW HOPE.

I am writing a few lines concerning New Hope Church, which was one of my churches for this conference year. I regret very much its burning, but I am happy to state we are going to build back immediately and am sure our building will be more modern in style.

I have never seen a more beautiful spirit exist among a people all working so lovely and smoothly together. The ground has already been graded down, the rubbish all cleared away, the men are cutting and hauling stock to the mill, which is being put down on Dr. J. T. Clack's farm, right at the church. Brother Clack is one of the great pillars of the old New Hope Church, together with a large number of others.

As has already been stated by Brother Hunt, I will also state as pastor of the church, any amount will be greatly appreciated, not because of its intrinsic value, but to be applied to the rebuilding of our church.

Just a few words concerning my church work for this conference year. I am enjoying my work just fine. I have three churches, namely, New Hope, Pleasant Grove, and Bethany. The spirit that seems to exist is what I would call excel-

I am asking an undivided interest in the prayers of all who pray, that my service as pastor may be a real success for God.

W. T. MEACHAM, Pastor.

CONTRIBUTIONS FROM CHURCHES.

Soon our appeals through THE CHRISTIAN SUN for the churches to complete their canvasses and forward the money received to the College must cease. We are now in the Mission Period and the churches are expected to make their contributions for this cause. I am making this appeal to the churches that have not made or completed their canvass to do so at the earliest possible date and send the results of the same to the office of the College.

You will observe that to date we have received a total of only $4,139.94. The following churches have made the canvass and sent funds in:

HONOR ROLL.

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
Ambrose, Georgia and Alabama.....	$ 30.00	$ 35.00
Elon College, N. C. and Va. ....	229.00	759.00
Carolina, N. C. and Va. ....	15.50	15.50
Mt. Bethel, N. C. and Va. ....	37.00	42.66
Ingram, N. C. and Va. ....	116.00	116.11
Wake Chapel, Eastern N. C. ....	102.50	155.08
Waverly, Eastern Virginia ....	113.00	179.00
Windsor, Eastern Virginia ....	49.50	76.25
Franklin, Eastern Virginia ....	129.50	266.15
Burton's Grove, Eastern Virginia.....	26.00	33.00
Dendron, Eastern Virginia ....	24.00	31.25
Seagrove, W. North Carolina.....	18.50	32.00
First Christian (Graham), W N. Car.	7.50	13.50

The following churches have sent in contributions from the church during the campaign:

Holland, Eastern Virginia .....	212.50	175.50
Eure, Eastern Virginia .....	178.50	25.00
Wakefield, Eastern Virginia .....	47.50	35.75
Rosemont, Eastern Virginia .....	171.90	146.53
Liberty Spring, Eastern Virginia ....	171.50	65.00
Mt. Carmel, Eastern Virginia .....	87.00	40.65
Holy Neck, Eastern Virginia .....	166.50	83.51
Newport News, Eastern Virginia.....	132.50	60.43
Suffolk Church, Eastern Virginia.....	667.00	486.57
Oakland Church, Eastern Virginia ....	196.50	13.30
First Christian (Norfolk), E. Va.....	147.00	16.70
Hopewell, Eastern Virginia .....	63.00	2.37
Springhill Church, Eastern Virginia....	32.50	5.75
Portsmouth, Eastern Virginia .....	112.50	77.73
Barrett's Chapel, Eastern Virginia....	38.50	5.00
Union (Virgilina), N. C. and Va. ....	185.00	64.76
Reidsville, N. C. and Va. ....	175.50	10.20
Mt. Zion, N. C. and Va. ....	73.00	45.00
Hines Chapel, N. C. and Va. ....	123.50	85.25
Haw River, N. C. and Va. ....	96.00	48.77
Monticello, N. C. and Va. ....	41.00	13.00
Pleasant Ridge, N. C. and Va. ....	47.50	2.52
New Lebanon, N. C. and Va. ....	65.00	60.18
Hopedale, N. C. and Va. ....	35.50	6.28
Hebron, N. C. and Va. ....	73.50	12.00
Elk Spur, N. C. and Va. ....	38.00	2.50
Union (Burlington) N. C. and Va. ..	154.00	46.89
Rocky Ford, N. C. and Va. ....	32.50	2.50
Liberty, N. C. and Va. ....	83.50	5.00
Durham, N. C. and Va. ....	218.50	161.94
1st Church (Greensboro), N. C. & Va.	232.50	97.63
Bethel, N. C. and Va. ....	76.50	1.60
Long's Chapel, N. C. and Va. ....	76.50	1.60
Catawba Springs, Eastern N. C. ....	105.50	65.08
United Church, Eastern N. C. ....	43.50	8.10
Liberty Vance, Eastern N. C. ....	202.50	51.50
Mt. Auburn, Eastern N. C. ....	88.50	53.10
Lebanon, Eastern N. C. ....	16.50	8.86
Oak Level, Eastern N. C. ....	66.50	50.00
Christian Light, Eastern N. C. ....	11.50	2.21
Fuller's Chapel, Eastern N. C. ....	107.00	6.60
Pleasant Union, Eastern N. C. ....	55.50	12.50
Randleman, Western N. C. ....	46.50	3.20
Pleasant Ridge (Ramseur), W. N. C. ...	114.00	2.80
Ramseur, Western N. C. ....	59.00	33.00
Ether, Western N. C. ....	47.50	3.00
1st Ch. (Burlington), Western N. C. ...	337.50	130.72
Leaksville, Valley of Virginia.....	81.50	10.00
Winchester, Valley of Virginia .....	102.50	6.21
Timber Ridge, Valley of Virginia ....	108.50	2.75

We have a few new churches this week. I hope that many more may come in for next week. Please see that your church is reported in the list that will appear in the next issue of THE SUN, which, in all probability, will be the last list to be published.

L. E. SMITH, President.

AMERICA'S MOST POWERFUL CIVIL FORCE.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

The often spoken and much repeated statement that money is America's most powerful civic force is a fallacy. The most powerful civic force is public opinion. Money is sought for what it will buy. Public opinion is used for what it will accomplish.

Public opinion is the barometer by which the acts and deeds of men and nations are registered; and once public opinion becomes aroused, crystallized, decided, definite and concrete, action is always the result.

It was not the wets who brought about repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. They did not. It was public opinion. People generally were not dissatisfied with the Eighteenth Amendment. They were dissatisfied with the abuses which it had brought about—unqualified and unreliable enforcement officers, graft, and illegal methods used in flouting the law. Public opinion had focused itself on a deplorable situation and a change was the result, this result not alone being achieved by the friends of liquor.

When a party in power, whether State or National, reaches a point where the taxpayers feel that the financial outlay is too much, that party is always retired. The reverse is also true. A government, whether local, State or National, that becomes niggardly in its expenditures for public improvements, education, and like necessities, is always changed by the forces of public opinion.

Legislation legalizing the sale of liquor, except in certain States, will remain until public opinion decides otherwise. That decision will be based entirely upon the abuses of the law rather than the uses of the law. If liquor stores become brawls, as did the old saloons, decent citizens will not stand for these conditions, and a correction will be made by the vote of the wets as well as the dries.

We have reached a place in our American life when public opinion is crystalizing against crime. Laws against crime do not stamp out crime. You cannot legislate against a man's ideals, emotions, and actions, especially when they are under duress, strain and stress. Law can never be a substitute for good blood, good training, and the ideals of honorable citizenship. Law is only an adjunct to these things.

We are spending annually four times more for crime than it costs to operate our National Government, even at the present high peak of expenditures. Our annual crime bill is five times what we spend for schools, colleges, and universities. Some citizens become alarmed at the high cost of maintaining the National Government, while a fewer number criticize the amount we spend on education. Few of these same citizens, however, ever raise a voice of protest against organized crime that excels the cost to support the National Government.

When we reach the place where public opinion has been sufficiently arrayed against the gangster, against crime in all its forms, we will be able to suppress crime to a very large degree. No law is stronger than public opinion. Public opinion is law. It is for this reason that public opinion remains, and will continue to remain, the most vital and potent civic force in America.

WEST TAMPA MISSION.

Having in mind the famous saying of a great missionary: "The prospects are as bright as the promises of God," even in the face of tremendous obstacles. Under the clouds of depression which hang so heavily over the world today, one of the bright places you may find is at West

Tampa, Florida. This Mission, under the care of the Congregational Church Extension Boards and deeply devoted trustees, some of other denominations also, is reaching, in a remarkable way, many of the forty thousand Latin peoples of Tampa, with regular and special church and Sunday school services, Christian Endeavor societies, social activities among young and old, the Church Day School, which ranks favorably in educational standards with the public schools, and in addition gives special Bible and gospel training of exceeding value; open-air evangelism, and house to house visitation with the distribution of large quantities of gospel literature.

Twenty-seven hundred and twenty-five calls were made by the pastor in 1933, and many calls were also made by the young lady teachers. Here is good evidence of the cordial welcome which is given to gospel workers among the lovable Latin people of Tampa. Attendance at regular church services is very small as a rule, and the pastor at the close of the Sunday night services goes on the street to preach to the passing crowds. On a recent Sunday night, after speaking to perhaps a hundred of different groups, he went into a coffee shop and asked permission to speak to the men who were seated at the tables. After speaking briefly and handing out gospel literature in Spanish to those who wished it, he was leaving the place when one of the men behind the counter called to him to go into the back room where other men were also seated at tables.

An especially encouraging "token for good" has been the taking up of active gospel effort in three new branch fields within the last two years. The young people of the congregation are very active. Many very spiritual prayer meetings are held by the young people. In their happy enthusiasm an open-air prayer and testimony meeting is perfectly in order at the end of an early morning hike. CARL CORWIN.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

(The Offer Is Continued Until Further Notice.)

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....
 Street No. or R. F. D.....
 City..... State.....
 Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A REVIVAL—BUT HOW?

From all quarters and communions comes the cry of need for a religious revival. It is the cry of anxious hearts, the plight and plea of burdened souls. All who observe conditions now realize the vital need of a revival of genuine, spiritual religion.

This need is felt, if one looks at the alarming statistics of the churches for the last four or five years. It was declared in public recently, by one who seemed to know and was not disputed, that there are today 22,000 churches closed in the United States and 25,000 unemployed ministers. We have at hand no way of verifying or denying the accuracy of these figures. We do know, however, that every Mission Board, trying to do mission work at home and abroad has had to curtail its grants, even to the extent of closing churches, and we do know that hundreds of churches that were scarcely able to support a pastor and pay current expenses, are making shifts without pastors, by either closing their doors or securing some one to hold services for a most meagre compensation from Sabbath to Sabbath. We are told that last year one-third of the Presbyterian Churches in the United States did not receive a new convert, and that only one-third of the churches received more than five converts, and that the entire membership suffered a net loss of 41,000. Like figures are given out from most of the other large denominations. This is the negative side of the situation.

The positive side is that those who have the church at heart, and are deeply concerned for its welfare, feel the pinch and pull of the hungry heart, and are themselves anxious for a spiritual revival. In our economic and political uncertainty, our souls crave for that which is certain, sure, immovable and steadfast. There must come a revival.

The great question is, HOW? Time was when great evangelists stirred the heart, kindled a new zeal in the churches, set on fire a whole community with zeal for the Lord. Somehow this method seems to have lost its pull and power.

The claim in many parts now is that religion is more "taught" than "caught," and if we are to have real religion planted in the heart, we must teach it. Thus far nothing of great prospect or promise has come from this source. Teaching has its place, but religion does not make much headway and progress in the souls of men and women, boys and girls, until it has been "caught," until a zeal and a compassion for it have been kindled in the soul.

God speaks in a language that can be understood at the time and the age in which he speaks. He revealed himself to Moses in the flame that did not consume that which gave it heat and power. He revealed himself with equal force and fervor to Saul on the Damascus Road, through blindness and a voice that called, with no visible person to give the voice utterance.

God's voice calls today. He is ready to revive the bewildered souls of men and women and to bring light into the dark places and relief to burdened souls. Who will catch that voice and how will he give such utterance to it that we may hear and heed? Evidently the church will find a way and the revival will come, but this will only be through prayer, consecration, anxiety to know and to realize the presence and the will of God. Yea, a real spiritual revival must come. The souls of thousands are hungering. Who will give them to eat, break to their souls the Bread of Life, and HOW? J. O. A.

DR. W. KNIGHTON BLOOM.

The shocking news came on March 15th that Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, Washington, D. C., had died suddenly in New York City on Wednesday evening, March 14th, of a cerebral hemorrhage. Dr. Bloom had been in a doubtful state of health for some months and was to retire from active service April 1st. His only grandchild—a little girl—who had spent a great deal of time with him and Mrs. Bloom, had suddenly died in their apartment in Washington and the funeral was to have been held in New York on the morning of the 15th, and Dr. Bloom had gone to his son's in New York to attend the funeral of this beloved grandchild. Evidently the strain and shock were too much for him after his serious illness. He was exceedingly devoted to this little granddaughter, who spent much time in his home and who was a constant source of joy and comfort. Dr. Bloom leaves a wife and one child, a son bearing his own name, who lives in Jackson Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y. The funeral was conducted Friday P. M., from the Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, by the pastor, Dr. Allan Chalmers, and associates from the Mission Board.

Dr. Bloom was favorably known and much beloved throughout our Southern Convention and the Southeast. He looked from his "Washington Window" always to the South, and his heart was in the work as he sought with tireless energy and superb strength to carry forward the work of building up the kingdom through our Congregational-Christian fellowship. He was wise in counsel, far-seeing in judgment, a capable and competent executive, a forceful preacher of the Word and a beloved brother.

At the 1932 session of our Southern Christian Convention he was elected Associate Mission Secretary conjointly with Mission Secretary, J. O.

Atkinson. He was chairman of the Committee of Ten, whose work was so effective in harmonizing and merging the various interests and enterprises of the church throughout the Southeast. Item 4, Report of the Committee of Ten, adopted by the Convention at Burlington, reads:

"That Dr. J. O. Atkinson and Dr. W. Knighton Bloom be recognized as Associate Secretaries of Missions of the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches, Incorporated, their duties to be mutually determined by cooperation and counsel with their respective Boards and the Executive Board of the Convention."

The Convention also elected Dr. Bloom on its Committee of Christian Union, and in other measures showed its esteem for this good man and its faith in his counsel and fellowship.

The writer feels a very keen and heavy loss in the going away of this good man. Our counsels together were sweet and always harmonious and helpful, and our correspondence through the years of our acquaintance reveals the poise and power of this Christian statesman and great churchman. He was of English birth, but had been Mission Secretary for the Southeast for some twenty years and had traveled to all portions of our Southeast and made friends wherever he went. We shall miss his counsel and fellowship, and, as Secretary of Missions for the Southern Convention, the writer has lost a great, good friend, a happy fellow-worker and the counsels of a man on whose judgment he had learned to rely with implicit confidence.

Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved family. J. O. A.

PROPOSITION OR PERSON?

As we face the Easter period, which emphasizes the passion and resurrection of our Lord, we should bear in mind that it is not a principle that we are honoring, or a proposition we are called upon to believe, but a Person who is worthy of our adoration and calls for our love. Again, let it be said that we are to deal not with a principle, but with a passion, not with a proposition, but with a Person. It was not a mental phenomenon that appeared to Mary in the tomb, but a Person who spoke with a tongue and language that Mary understood, and that strangely warmed her heart and stirred her emotions. It was not a principle or a proposition that traveled with the disciples on the road to Emmaus, but a Person who walked with them and talked with them, and kindled their emotions and stirred their hearts. It was not a proposition or a theory that met Thomas, but a Man who said, "Reach hither thy hand and thrust it into my side."

The religion that we embrace and seek to share with the world is not a religion of the intellect, of abstract propositions, of complex principles. The religion we accept is a Person, a living, breathing, virile personality. The message that warms our hearts, the courage that calls us to action, the vision that appeals to our imagination is a Person, even the Person of Jesus Christ, the Incarnate Son of God. Our dealing is with a Person.

And so the Word had breath, and wrought
With human hands the creed of creeds
In loveliness of perfect deeds,
More strong than all poetic thought.

J. O. A.

The way in which the American Bible Society meets various publication problems confronting it is illustrated by the recent appearance of a copy of the Gospel of St. John for the Valiente Indians of Panama with their language and Spanish appearing in parallel columns.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

ARTICLE No. 12.

"LASTING IMPRESSIONS OF PALESTINE."

By ROY C. HELFENSTEIN, D. D.

Pastor, People's Congregational-Christian Church, Dover, Del.

I doubt if any other country in the world leaves so many lasting impressions upon a visitor's mind as does Palestine.

There are other countries that are just as primitive in their manner of life, and many countries much more primitive, but no other country has so much history connected with its landmarks, or so many traditions associated with its life as has Palestine. Every valley, every mountain, every plain, every river, and even many of its wells and springs have historical interest. Palestine is rich in its traditions, and entrancing in its history.

Places do not make history. It takes personalities to make history. A mountain is only one of many elevations—only a mountain with no historical interest until some great life has been associated with that mountain, having lived on its heights, or having fought in a battle there, and then that mountain has historical interest. And so it is with a stream of water, a lake, a city, a house, a rock, or even a tree.

People go miles out of their way just to see the house where a great author lived, or where a great statesman died. Cities have become famous, and their visitors multiplied into the millions, simply because they could boast of being the birthplace of a great artist, a great reformer, or a great teacher. How far people will go to see the house in which some illustrious character once lived! A rock is only a rock, having no interest except its formation or position. But if an Oliver Cromwell, a Martin Luther, a John Calvin, or a George Washington once sat on that rock, it thereby received historical significance. The Old Elm at Cambridge, Mass., under which George Washington took command of the Continental Army, was only one of many stately elms of that day, but it was the only one of them all that was protected with an iron fence and preserved so many years. This was because of its association with a great historical character, and a great historical incident. And since it was destroyed in a storm, its pieces have been carefully preserved in a million libraries, lodge rooms, and State buildings of our land. Only a tree! Thousands of other trees equally as beautiful and as stately as that old Cambridge Elm have been cut down and burned for firewood. But the Old Elm of Cambridge, under which George Washington assumed his high commission, will be preserved in separate bits for all the ages to come, simply because of what happened under its spreading branches.

The Old Elm at Cambridge has made a lasting impression on many of us who were privileged to see it years past. Its picture will never fade from our mind, not because of its unique shape or beauty of symmetry, or its unusual size or height, but because of its historical significance. So with that great boulder rock at Plymouth on Cape Cod, where our Pilgrim Fathers landed, all who have seen it will forever remember it—not because of its size or shape or appearance in any way—but because of its historical significance, due to the fact that more than three hundred years ago the Pilgrim Fathers set foot upon that same rock.

These facts just stated help to emphasize the reason for the unique impressions one receives in a visit to Palestine. If a tree at Cambridge, Mass., made its lasting impression upon those of us who have seen it, because the father of our country took command of the Continental Army beneath its branches, think you what lasting impressions are made upon one's mind in visiting the country where our heavenly Father issued his commands to the children of Israel and to all mankind! And if Plymouth Rock leaves its lasting impression upon the minds of all who look upon it and those of us who were privileged to stand upon it before the iron cage was placed around it—if that rock makes such an impression upon us because of its association with the founders of our nation, think you what lasting impressions Palestine makes upon one because of the associations with the founders of our faith! The country itself makes a lasting impression upon one's mind because of its historical background.

The people of Palestine today make a lasting impression upon one's mind because they dress, and live, and act in many respects much as the people of Palestine always have. The homes of the peasant folks who live in the villages and farm their patches of ground close by or engage in fruit growing or stock raising in the vicinity of the village where they dwell, have the same kind of homes as were the homes of Jesus' time and before. The houses of the peasant folks who largely live in little villages, are made of stone or mud brick, one story high with walls from three to four feet thick. Half across the back of the room a rowyeh or sort of mezzanine floor is built about five or six feet high, supported by stone pillars. The family lives on this mezzanine floor which is reached by a very steep stone stairway. The winter's provisions are kept on one side of the mezzanine floor, the provisions of wheat, barley, and fodder for the animals at one end, and the provisions of vegetables and dried figs, dates and raisins and large jars of olive oil, etc., on the other. Very little space is kept for the family, no matter how large it is, for not much room is required, there being no furniture—the people sitting on the floor when they eat and when they visit, and heavy mats being thrown upon the floor in the rainy season when they sleep. In the dry season, they take their mats out under the trees on the ground or sleep on top of the flat roofed house. The lower level of the house, or ground floor, is reserved for the animals—the donkeys and poultry occupying the part under the family's living quarters, and the other animals occupying the space under the section where the food provisions for both the family and the stock are kept.

Such a home life cannot help leaving a lasting impression upon one's mind. And to see the men with their long skirts (or umbaz), instead of wearing trousers as they do in the Occident, to see the men dressed in their long flowing skirts and their heads covered with the "Kaffi Agga," a long white shawl held on with two circlets of black rope, with artistic tassels at the ends, making the same picture as portrayed by the prophet Elisha and his contemporaries nearly three thousand years ago; such a primitive and unique manner of dress and such primitive customs make a lasting impression on one's mind.

It is very interesting to the American traveler to see the housewives of Europe doing the family washing on the rocks along the streams and rivers, drying the clothes on the branches of the trees and on the grass. But in Palestine, even a more unique picture on "wash day" is presented to the visitor's eyes. Streams and rivers are so few and so far from where the people live and water is so scarce that the housewives have their "community wash tubs." Near the springs of wells of the village, a large basin is hollowed out of the solid rock and into this large basin or trough fifteen to thirty feet long, two feet deep and two or three feet wide, the water is poured. A score or more of housewives will gather at this community wash tub at the same time and do their washing, all using the same water, rubbing the clothes on the stone edge of the basin or trough, and drying the clothes on rocks nearby. The hot sunshine seems to make up for whatever the lack of fresh water failed to do. A happy lot of women they seem to be when gathered around the "community wash tub," laughing and singing, and joking and racing to see which can rub the garments the fastest, they happily perform their task.

"The community ovens" and "the community wash tubs," like "the community wells" and springs, offer the women folks opportunity for their daily gossip with each other—a sort of community center. The peasant women of Palestine do not have telephones to enable them to do their daily gossiping. Bridge parties and other means of getting together are absolutely unknown to them, so that the community wash tub, the community oven, and the community spring, well or cistern no doubt has saved the life of many a Palestinian woman who was dying to tell all the rest of the women of the community the last bit of scandal she had heard. Being able to go to one or all of these community centers, namely, the spring, the wash tub, and the oven, she has ample opportunity to tell the news, and so her life is spared.

When a son or daughter in Palestine leaves home to go away to work, the "Ridde Waldain," or parting blessing, is given by the father. A young man or young woman of Palestine would feel that there was no possible chance for them to get ahead in the world without having that "Ridde Waldain," or parting blessing pronounced upon them. The parting blessing runs something like this: "My son (or daughter) may the stars of heaven watch over you, may the angels of heaven protect you, may the God of heaven bless you, may you never be without food and drink, may you never be without friends, and may you find wealth and happiness."

It is striking how this practice of giving the parting blessing has come down through all the centuries. But in ancient times the blessing was reserved for the oldest son only. Whereas now it is for any child leaving home. When Jacob supplanted Esau and stole from him the supreme privilege of receiving the father Isaac's blessing, because of the superstitious belief that this old traditional blessing gave one a special advantage in life, Esau felt keenly how much he had missed and how handicapped he would be to face life without the father's blessing. And with broken heart and dejected spirit he cried to his father Isaac: "Bless me, even me also, O my father."

No doubt that bitter disappointment of Esau was repeated in the lives of thousands of the sons and daughters in Palestine both before and after Jacob's times, and the injustice of such special privilege finally impressed itself so on the minds of the patriarchal fathers of the past and the present that somewhere down along the chain of years they decided to revise the custom and instead of the father giving his blessing to only the oldest son, it was decided that every child of the home was entitled to the father's blessing when leaving the home to go out on "his own." The practice now in vogue indicates something of the feeling that the children of Palestine have toward their parents—a feeling toward the father almost approaching reverence, in spite of the scant love and consideration the father gives to the children.

The married women of Palestine are not identified by their heavy gold band wedding ring as they always are in the European countries and as they sometimes are in America, but by a heavy

(Continued on page 9.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

In 1868, Major I. W. Duck, a member of the Antioch Christian Church, in Isle of Wight Co., Va., started a mission Sunday School at "Paradise." This was a local name for a farm on which Mr. J. G. Johnson lived. It was situated about three miles from Antioch Church. After about one year the school decided to meet at "Ducksville," a store owned by Major Duck. At the end of the following year, or about the beginning of the year 1871, Major Duck, the superintendent, advocated the organization of a Christian Church. He appointed T. J. Clements, J. C. Johnson and Thomas Spivey a committee to select a suitable location for a new church. This committee met and after careful consideration decided to recommend a location on the county road leading from Windsor to Franklin.

Out of this Sunday School Mt. Carmel Christian Church was organized in 1871. Dr. Wm. B. Wellons and Rev. M. B. Barrett were the leading ministers in the matter of the organization. Rev. M. B. Barrett preached several times for this school before the church was formally organized. After the organization he was elected pastor and remained pastor until his death April 14, 1891.

The early records were destroyed by fire several years ago, and all the charter members of the church are dead, I have been informed. On this account it is not possible, at this time, to secure data which would be very valuable in writing a history of this church. This information is brought to the attention of SUN readers in the hope that someone may be able to furnish further information as to the date of organization, names and number of charter members, and other important facts concerning this church.

The following ministers have served as pastor: Revs. M. B. Barrett, J. T. Kitchen, H. H. Butler, Stanley C. Harrell, E. T. Cotten, T. E. White, W. D. Harward and Elisha Bradshaw.

The church was admitted into the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference in 1871, at the session held at Berkley. In 1872, the report to Conference showed a membership of 88. The membership grew rapidly and in a few years the report showed a total of more than 200 members. For some reason the membership of this church has shown great losses for several years, and many additions for other years. This great variation is probably due to the fact that the church has a rule requiring all members to attend quarterly conferences, unless a valid excuse is given in writing or by proxy. Every male member failing to attend quarterly conference for one year, without a good excuse, is automatically suspended. If this rule were enforced in every church, it would remove many people from our church rolls.

The church has sent three young men out into the ministry: Revs. H. H. Butler, I. W. Johnson and Floyd D. Ballard.

It may be of interest to state that the Annual for 1874 has the following facts relative to the Eastern Virginia Conference: There were 21 churches reporting to the Conference; the total membership was 2,810; 395 new members were received during the year; pastors were paid a total of $3,440.00; the churches raised $210.00 to educate young ministers; Antioch had a membership of 548; Cypress Chapel, 364; Bethlehem, 196; Mt. Carmel, 129; Holy Neck, 401; Liberty Spring, 88; Oakland, 60; Suffolk, 183.

The present membership of Mt. Carmel is 176. The church has a splendid house of worship with several Sunday School rooms. The Sunday School enrollment is 160. It has been a source of spiritual strength to the community. Many gracious revivals have been held during its history. Many men and women have enjoyed the rich fellowship of these precious years. Hundreds of young people have accepted Christ and united with this church. May it continue to shine for the Master.

I. W. JOHNSON.

PRAYER AND ELON.

It has been the practice of man through all the ages to pray. Instinctively, he turns to forces outside of himself and greater than he for the satisfaction of desires that cannot be satisfied by things within his reach. Christian people, in their need, turn to God with their petitions. They have been encouraged to pray to God for their needs by definite promises. Recorded facts where individuals have obtained their desires by prayer also encourage the individual to pray. Unquestionably, there are many things in this world about us which we cannot fully appreciate nor enjoy without prayer. Prayer has been defined as "an expression of man's sincere desires in harmony with the will of God." That is to say, if a man possesses the ability to meet your desires without injury or loss to himself, but with profit and satisfaction to you, and the whole transaction would be in keeping with the will of God, that if you ask God for what you need that God will in turn influence the individual who possesses what you need that he may satisfy your needs; that is to say, if you are unable to persuade your fellowman to do what you would like for him to do, then you have recourse with God, who, in turn, will accomplish for you that which you have been unable to accomplish for yourself. This, I think, is a correct statement of the Christian's philosophy of prayer. All people have been moved to act at times against their own wills because of influences, playing upon their lives from sources other than human. When we are face to face with problems too difficult for us to solve and as these problems force themselves upon us for solution natural desires leap from our hearts and take hold of him possessed with wisdom and power sufficient to solve our problems.

One of old came to a judge of the law with her request. The judge did not believe in her request. "Nevertheless," said he, "because of her importunity, I will grant her request." The moral being, that if an unjust judge would grant the request of a widow in her need, how much more would one who is our heavenly Father grant satisfaction for the desires of his children?

At different times we have come to the place in our personal experiences when relief could be found only in communion and fellowship with God through meditation and prayer. At different times we have reached the place in our experiences when guidance could be secured only by humility and petitions. Such was the case when the leaders of the Christian Church in the South had a vision of progress and the future for the cause which was theirs. To old Providence Church, Graham, N. C., these pilgrims of faith journeyed and for days were in communion and prayer, seeking to know the will of God in their ambition for the future of their church. As a result of these days of communion and prayer, Elon College took shape and came into being. Her history is one of progress, her services have been seriously handicapped at different times for the lack of material support, her responsibilities have been great and her burdens have been weighty. Rev. J. W. Wellons, of sainted memory, perhaps prayed longer, more effectively, and more fervently for the material and spiritual advance of Elon College than any other mortal. The fine thing about prayer is that it never dies. Those who pray may rise up and lie down and are with us no more, but their prayers for us continue to the end.

Elon College has now come to the place when her needs are acute, the need for the College is greater now than ever. Its future is more promising than in years past, but her present needs are great and immediate. There are sufficient resources to abundantly meet her needs and more, but they are not within her grasp. If those of us who pray have faith, the resources that are yonder may be brought here for the satisfaction of our needs and the solution of our problems. As we stand in the face of facts of this kind, we are made to pray with one of old: "Lord, we believe; help thou our unbelief."

Recently, I sat in the office of a man who is an official of a great corporation, one of the greatest in this country. This man, a man of high culture, great intellect, and unusual executive ability, said to me: "There is money that could be had to meet your needs, but whether you can get this money by human efforts is another question. Say what you will, there is something in prayer, and I believe it. Let me tell you a story," he continued.

"Some years ago, I was sitting in this office and the man for whom I was working, and who had large resources, was sick in bed. At 10 o'clock he phoned me to look up the records of an institution (he named the college) and said to me that he thought he would give to that college $5,000.00. At 12 o'clock the president of that college came into this office and inquired for the man for whom I was working. I told him he was ill.

"He said: 'I want him to give me $5,000.00 for my school. The faculty and student body are in prayer this moment, and have been all the morning, to the effect that I may be guided and that those who have money may be inspired to give a total of $10,000.00, which the school needs badly now. I have secured the conditional promise of another man in this city to give me $5,000, provided I can secure the other $5,000.'

"Strange," said the official, "Mr. A. called me over the phone this morning stating that he was ill, but asked that I look up the records of your school, that he had in mind to make it a gift of $5,000. I called Mr. A. on the phone, and he authorized me to draw a check to the president of the college, who had come into my office, which I did, and he went away rejoicing."

This official turned to me and said: "I hope this story may give you courage and influence you to make your request known unto him who is able to give."

This advice was from a layman, the official of a great corporation, and a man who recognized that the swift movings of this day can only be comprehended by contact with God himself.

I know that there are men and women by the scores; yea, by the thousands, who are interested in Elon College, love Elon College, and who are willing to sacrifice for Elon College, who would, if they had it, give generously. It is my hope and prayer that they may be blessed and prospered according to the will of God. It is further my hope and prayer that in every church throughout the Southern Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches, there may be those who will band themselves together to pray daily for the College in its need, that they may be able to do what they themselves cannot do, and that those who have abundance may be influenced to divide, so that the needs of Elon College may be abundantly met and that the problems which confront her today may be solved, and that the financial burdens that threaten to crush the life out of her may be lifted, and, further, that it may be their petition that the College may be an agency for the church and an institution in the hands of God for the coming of the Kingdom through our people here, there and everywhere.

Some years ago, I heard Dr. S. D. Gordon speak on the topic: "Prayer Changes Things." I have not forgotten that talk, nor the impression it made upon his audience. Prayer changed things in the days of the Apostles. It still changes things when it rests on faith.

L. E. SMITH, President.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. BLOOM.

A golden cord has been loosened in the going of Dr. Bloom from our fellowship in the South. He had endeared himself to us all in a wise leadership and in a consecrated devotion to Christian unity. It was one of the great dreams of his soul to bring together all our Christian and Congregational Churches in the South into a real working unity program. His interest was deep and sincere in the Raleigh Church enterprise. Seven years ago when the enterprise was started he saw the making of an influential church. In the first year it seemed to me to be an impossible task. The financial burdens were so great and the lack of numbers so apparent that it seemed impossible to realize a church on the foundations. After my first few months here there came a call to a church in Ohio. It gave promise of future growth. This United Church enterprise would have 700 members with which to start. The opportunity appealed to me very much. It was Dr. Bloom who changed the course of my thinking and persuaded me to remain at Raleigh. Never for an instant has his faith wavered in connection with the Raleigh enterprise and in every financial crisis that has arisen during the past seven years he has been a wise counsellor and friend. The United Church, Raleigh, owes Dr. Bloom a great deal of gratitude, and his going from us brings a very sincere sense of loss.

His dream for building a United Church in Raleigh was but one of fifty others for the Southeast. He rejoiced in the fellowship of the Congregational-Christian Churches, and upon more than one occasion said to me that he had in his program fifty centers in the Southeast where he hoped to have churches of not less than 300 members. That was the task that he had set for himself to accomplish.

He was painstaking, firm, and careful as an administrator. He seemed to know what to do in a difficult situation. There are a lot of administrative problems in connection with a fellowship such as ours in the South. He secured every fact relative to a local situation, and his judgment could be relied upon when once it was made.

His devotion to our young people was that of a wise brother. Nothing gave him more joy than the development of the Blue Ridge Conference, the Elon Conference, and other young people's gatherings throughout the South. His mantle of leadership here will fall upon the shoulders of the younger people who have known his ministry and shared his ideals.

All of us regretted when it was announced on April 1st that he was to be retired on account of the age limit. But we also rejoiced because he was to be connected with the Southern Seminary Foundation and thus remain among us as a leader and friend. Then came the distressing news that he was ill to be followed with days of improvement and letters of encouragement. We were expecting him in Raleigh this week or the next. We had asked him to come for a meeting on Wednesday evening. On Wednesday morning we received a message of the death of Patty Lou, his grandchild. He loved her with a passionate devotion. He was leaving Washington to go to New York to attend her funeral, and then from New York was flashed the message that he was dead from a hemorrhage, and our friend, the friend of all our churches, was gone.

At his home address in Washington there is a letter which he will never read. It has to do with Patty Lou, the little child of his love. And as I write these words this morning, remembering that his funeral is taking place today, I am wondering whether his immortal spirit in union with Patty Lou, is not rejoicing. Few of us have known Mrs. Bloom, but in our love for Dr. Bloom we include her in the reaches of our friendship and prayers. Her sense of loss will be greater than that of anyone else. And yet, after years have passed, the beauty and glory of the other world will be greater because her two loved ones are there. In the silence of eternity interpreted by love they are now together, and we can only breathe a prayer for the calm of hills above.

J. EDWARD KIRBYE.

Raleigh, N. C.

NOTICE.

To Delegates and Visitors to the Mid-Year Session, Valley of Virginia Central Conference:

While, as stated in a previous notice, the Conference will be a delegated body, a general invitation is given to all interested in our work. It will be largely deliberative. We hope all will be free to offer suggestions and plans. Have you tried something new in your church this year that has been helpful? Tell about it: it may help some other church. If you have problems, be prepared to state them. Let's talk them over, and we are sure all will be benefited.

R. L. WILLIAMSON, Pres.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ----- $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ----- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¾ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ----- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 10 Mercy and truth gathered; righteousness kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ----- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ----- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x ----- $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ "Jō-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk ----- $6.50

hea:

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. ----- $5.50

No. 03255x -----

- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x ----- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¾ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ----- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and hook-mark. A beautiful gift edition ----- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ----- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

SPIRITUAL RELIEF.

Our Mission Period is a time when the church seeks through consecration to help give spiritual relief to a suffering world. On this account, our efforts and self-denial offerings for Missions are not burdens to be shunned, but opportunities to be embraced. It will not add to the burden of the churches, nor aggravate the task of its preachers to bring home to the minds of all the missionary message, which is the message of our risen and conquering Lord, and give all the people an opportunity through self-denial to make an offering for spiritual relief. Because of our widespread governmental efforts and appropriations to bring physical relief, it is very easy for us to decide that this is the world's greatest need. We forget the soul and the heart hunger of the world. In our Mission Period, we are called upon to bear in mind, and emphasize the fact, that the church is the one institution, and the only one, that undertakes to carry spiritual relief to a perishing world. If I am to choose between helping an individual, who is in need, in my neighborhood, rather than in Africa, or India, or China, I would, of course, choose to help the individual close by. If, however, I am to obey my Lord and show my devotion to him, and my willingness to give spiritual relief, I will make some effort and some donation through self-denial that I may share, not my love, but his love, not my life, but his life, not my choice but his choice, with those whom he wants to reach and save, and who are as near and dear to his heart as my next door neighbor is to me.

If there is to be spiritual recovery, the church will have to recover and will have to share its love and life and power with those who are perishing without it. J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING MARCH 17, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,555.42
Haw River, N. C. ....	16.00
Palm St., Greensboro, N. C. ....	6.00
Carolina, Burlington, N. C. ....	1.70
Hopedale, Burlington, N. C. ....	3.65
Antioch, Harrisonburg, Va. ....	8.91
Mayland, Broadway, Va. ....	1.00
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C. ....	5.23
Leaksville, Luray, Va. ....	1.88
Union Grove, Seagrove, N. C. ....	.50
Wakefield, Va. ....	.18
Ingram, Va. ....	6.00
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C. ....	.53
Palmyra, Edinburg, Va. ....	.59
Total .....	$ 1,607.59

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 692.81
Miss Mabel Hughes, Greensboro, N. C. (Palm Street Church) .....	1.00
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C. ....	5.25
Total .....	$ 699.06

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,494.00
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	52.17
Individuals and Churches .....	6.25
Total to date .....	$ 8,552.42

Shall we give our Sunday Schools, churches and friends the opportunity of making an offering to Missions at or about Easter? "The love of Christ constraineth us," and under this constraint and for his sake, every professed follower should have the opportunity of contributing something. Envelopes have been sent to all pastors and each individual may have one. The need is pressing indeed. J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

LEST WE FORGET;

We shall not forget that this is Mission Period in the churches. This is the time when in pulpit and in pew we shall emphasize the saving power of our Lord through his shed blood and then through his victorious resurrection and triumphant acclaim. The church cannot hope to advance, to grow, to live unless it is missionary; unless it proclaims the fact at home and abroad that Jesus Christ is Saviour and Redeemer. The soul of the church is saved through sharing the love of their Lord and the power of his resurrection with others. It is well enough to share our goods and make our gifts to others, but above all, the church is called upon to make known our Lord and to share his love with those who are perishing without him. The message of the Gospel is as powerful as it ever was and God is as near to us as he has ever been. We only need to cry aloud and spare not in our effort to make him known to the world and to share with others the Bread of Life on which our own souls feed.

We face a world not only hungry for bread, clothing and shelter; we face a world perishing morally and spiritually. If we are to recover, we must recover our souls, and this we do out of a passionate devotion to our Lord in seeking to see to it that the poor have the Gospel preached unto them, and that the message of salvation is given to those who are hungry for it and perishing without it. J. O. A.

OUR CHRISTIAN MESSAGE.

Our message is Jesus Christ. He is the revelation of what God is and of what man through him may become. He makes known to us God as our Father, perfect and infinite in love and in righteousness.

Jesus Christ, in his life and through his death and resurrection, has disclosed to us the Father, the Supreme Being as mighty Love, reconciling the world to himself by the cross, suffering with men in their struggle against sin and evil, bearing with them and for them the burden of sin, forgiving them as they, with forgiveness in their own hearts, turn to him in repentance and faith, and creating humanity anew for an ever-growing, ever-enlarging, everlasting life.

We affirm that God, as Jesus Christ has revealed him, requires all his children, in all circumstances, at all times, and in all human relationships, to live in love and righteousness . . . in preparation for the coming of his kingdom in its fullness.

The message of the church to the world is and must always remain the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The Gospel is the joyful message of redemption both here and hereafter, the gift of God to sinful man is Jesus Christ. Through his life and teaching, his call to repentance . . . he has brought to us forgiveness of sins, and has revealed the fullness of the living God and his boundless love toward us. By the appeal of that love, shown in its completeness on the Cross, he summons us to the new life of faith, self-sacrifice, and devotion to his service and the service of men.

Because he himself is the Gospel, the Gospel is the message of the church to the world. The Gospel brings peace and joy to the heart, and produces in men self-denial, readiness for brotherly service, and compassionate love. It offers the supreme goal for the aspirations of youth, strength to the toiler, rest to the weary, and the crown of life to the martyr. The Gospel is the sure source of power for social regeneration.

Sympathizing with the anguish of our generation, with its longing for intellectual sincerity, social justice and spiritual inspiration, the church in the eternal Gospel meets the needs and fulfills the God-given aspirations of the modern world. Consequently, as in the past so also in the present, the Gospel is the only way of salvation. Thus, through his church, the living Christ still says to man: "Come unto me! . . . He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

This is the message that we, through Missions, are trying to deliver to the world.

J. O. A.

THE MISSIONARY MOTIVE.

If such is our message, the motive for its delivery should be plain. The Gospel is the answer to the world's greatest need. Its very nature forbids us to say that it may be the right belief for some but not for others. Either it is true for all, or it is not true at all.

Our true and compelling motive lies in the very nature of the God to whom we have given our hearts. Since he is love, his very nature is to share. Coming into fellowship with Christ we find in ourselves an over-mastering impulse to share him with others. We are constrained by the love of Christ and by obedience to his last command. He himself said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly," and our experience corroborates it. He has become life to us. We would share that life.

We are assured that Christ comes with an offer of life to man and to societies and to nations. We believe that in him the shackles of moral evil and guilt are broken from human personality and that men are made free, and that such personal freedom lies at the basis of the freeing of society from cramping custom and blighting social practices and political bondage, so that in Christ men and societies and nations may stand up free and complete.

We believe in a Christlike world. We know nothing better; we can be content with nothing less. We do not go to the nations called non-Christian, because they are the worst in the world and they alone are in need—we go because they are a part of the world and share with us in the same human need—the need of redemption from ourselves and from sin, the need to have life complete and abundant and to be remade after this pattern of Christ-likeness. We desire a world in which Christ will not be crucified, but where his spirit shall reign.

We believe that men are made for Christ and cannot really live apart from him. Our fathers were impressed with the horror that men should die without Christ—we share that horror; we are impressed also with the horror that men should live without Christ.

Herein lies the Christian motive; it is simple. We cannot live without Christ, and we cannot bear to think of men living without him. We cannot be content to live in a world that is un-Christianlike. We cannot be ideal while the yearning of his heart for his brethren is unsatisfied.

Since Christ is the motive, the end of Christian missions is nothing less than the production of Christlike character in individuals and societies and nations through faith in and fellowship with Christ the living Saviour, and through corporate sharing of life in a divine society.

Christ is our motive and Christ is our end. We must give nothing less; and we can give nothing more.

This is the motive for our missionary work and activity.

J. O. A.

THEY SAW A WAY OUT.

When the word came, "No Money," the Boys' School, Sholapur, India, seemed doomed. But there were 150 boys and 8 teachers to be considered. "We must carry on, somehow," said missionaries, staff and students. The Manual Training teacher said: "We will stop our classes temporarily and let the experienced boys help. We will do only commercial work. The orders will come." They did, says Miss Margaret G. Hammaker, and, she adds: "Many a mother's son has toiled over work-bench with plane and hammer and saw to help his school." In spite of all, at the Thanksgiving service, Hindu and Christian boys and girls stood side by side at the offering table and shared their little with the sick and the poor.

The translation of the Bible is a continuous process. Groups of translators and missionaries in many parts of the world are steadily giving their time in order that the Scriptures may appear in new languages. So faithful are their efforts that a new language is added to the constantly growing list at the rate of one about every five weeks.

NORTH CAROLINA RALLIES.

Guilford District—Mrs. O. H. Paris, Superintendent. Greensboro, N. C., Tuesday, March 27th.

Vance-Warren District—Miss Margaret Alston, Superintendent. Youngsville, N. C., Saturday, April 9th.

Durham-Wake District—Mrs. C. H. Stephenson, Superintendent. Wake Chapel, N. C., Tuesday, April 10th.

Alamance District—Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Superintendent. Haw River, N. C., Wednesday, April 11th.

Lee-Chatham District—Mrs. R. L. Ross, Superintendent. Shallow Well, N. C., Friday, April 13th.

Randolph District—Mrs. Ray Caviness, Superintendent. Park's Cross Roads, N. C., Saturday, April 14th.

Halifax District—Mrs. L. E. Carlton, Superintendent. Pleasant Grove, Va., Tuesday, April 17th.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND, Pres.

EASTERN VIRGINIA RALLIES.

Norfolk District—Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Superintendent. Elm Avenue Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., Tuesday, April 3rd.

Nansemond-Gates-Franklin District—Mrs. B. D. Jones, Superintendent. Holland Christian Church, Wednesday, April 4th.

Waverly District—Mrs. E. T. Atkinson, Superintendent. Spring Hill, Thursday, April 5th.

MRS. J. E. CARTWRIGHT, Pres.,
MRS. L. W. STAGG, Secretary.

A Story for the Children

HARD TIMES AND ROVER.

"What makes Rover cry so?" asked Polly.

"I believe that dog's hungry," said Paul. "He never used to carry on like that."

Rover was the next door neighbor's dog. He was tied to his kennel and he was howling and howling.

"Mr. Jones is out of town looking for work," said the children's mother, "and Mrs. Jones has had to go to work herself. There's nobody home but little Mary. Perhaps she has forgotten the dog. Here she comes now, on her way to school. Do you want to ask her?"

Paul ran out to meet Mary. He didn't mean to hurt her feelings. He was just thinking about Rover.

"Mary," he called, "did you forget to give Rover his breakfast?"

Little Mary hung her head.

"I didn't have anything to give him," she said. "We don't have much ourselves since hard times."

Mrs. Kane, the children's mother, heard and was very sorry for Mary, and for Rover, too.

"Never mind, Mary," said she. "Polly and Paul will take Rover some breakfast."

"Thank you, Mrs. Kane," said Mary, politely.

Polly and Paul had heard a great deal of talk about hard times.

"What's the meaning of hard times?" asked Paul.

"It means," said Mother, "times when many people are out of work and cannot buy the things they need."

"What do they do then?" asked Polly.

"Other people must help them. Everybody who has work ought to do something for those who have not."

"Daddy has work," said Paul, "but I don't suppose there's anything we can do, for Polly and I just play and we don't have any money except our pennies."

"There are lots of kind things that can be done without money," said Mother. "And there is one thing you can do right now and it won't cost a cent. Can you think what it is?"

"I know," cried Polly, her eyes shining with delight. "We can feed Rover till Mr. Jones gets work."

"And we can begin right now," said Mother. "There's a nice bone and a plate of scraps in the kitchen that you can take him."

The children both ran to the kitchen. The bone was on the plate with the scraps. Both Polly and Paul wanted to carry it.

"Rover will want a drink of fresh water, too," said Mother. "So one of you take the plate and the other a pail of water to fill his drinking pan."

Rover jumped with joy when he saw the nice breakfast, but, hungry as he was, he took a drink of water first, for his pan had been quite dry till Polly poured the fresh water in.

"Did Jesus love dogs?" asked little Polly when they came home.

"I'm sure he did," said Mother, "and when he told us to feed the hungry, I'm sure he meant the hungry animals and birds as well as people."

"May we take Rover his meals every day?" asked Paul. "It takes a lot of grub for a big dog like that."

"Yes," said Mother, thoughtfully, "it does. I'm sure we haven't enough scraps to feed him, especially meat."

"If we'd each give him a bite of ours at the table, you and Daddy and Paul and I, that would be four bites," said Polly.

Mother smiled. "Four bites would help, but I think Rover would need more than that."

"I'm going to ask the butcher how much it would cost to buy him a bone. We have our pennies," said Paul.

When the butcher heard, he was very kind. He said he thought he could sell the children a pretty big bone for a penny.

"We're going to do without so much candy so we can buy him a bone every day," said Paul.

When Daddy came home to supper, the children, happy in their sharing, told him about Rover.

"We're going to buy him bones and carry him fresh water," said Polly, "and Mother's going to save him some scraps. Don't you want to help?"

Daddy laughed. "I think I'll have to have a hand in it, too," he said. "I'll give him a box of dog biscuits every week to piece out when Mother is short of scraps."

"It's fun having hard times," said Paul. "If all the boys and girls would hunt the hungry dogs and cats and feed them—"

"Why, Paul," interrupted Polly, "then the animals would never know anything about hard times. They wouldn't ever have to be hungry." Etta W. Schlichter, in the Methodist-Protestant Recorder.

A VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND.

(Continued from page 5.)

string of dowry coins strung around the head or across the forehead. Often these dowry coins worn by a poor peasant woman are of more value than the home in which she lives. But she will never spend them regardless of how much she may be in need, for to her they are sacred and to part with them would be parting with a greater source of help than would be compensated for by the help their exchange value might give. She wears this heavy string of coins when she works and when she sleeps. No matter how brutal her husband may be, or how much he might need money, he would never ask her to take one of the coins from her dowry string or much less would he steal one. Even robbers who would steal any other money they could find or any other jewel or valuable of any kind, would not stoop so low as to take a woman's dowry coins, even though often these are of more value than anything else the thief might secure from the house. No doubt there is some superstition back of this attitude toward dowry coins, a superstition that reaches far back into the history of their people—perhaps the superstition that to spend, trade or steal the dowry coins would incur the displeasure of the gods for both this life and the next. The lives and practices of the native people of Palestine today are influenced by so many superstitions. All down through the centuries, the people of this historic land, because of their facial background and temperament, and perhaps because of the climatic conditions and the surroundings, have been greatly influenced by superstition. The prophets and Jesus had to combat this tendency. And it was because, even in that distant past, many of the leaders of that country rose above superstition and were obsessed by religious idealism, that the land became known as the Holy Land, and that out of the experiences of the people of the Holy Land, the Holy Bible grew, showing the spiritual development of the leaders and the people who sought the truth about life and about God.

It is estimated that the total number of Scripture volumes issued by the Bible Societies and by commercial Bible publishers exceeds 27,000,000 volumes annually.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

TASKS FOR YOUTH.

Sometimes one becomes sympathetic with modern youth and wonders how the new graduating class will entertain itself in the world where there seems to be too many workers. Such pessimism arises only when one is thinking in terms of making money. The tasks of today are more challenging to young people of mettle than they have been for centuries. Note a few of the things to which youth can set its mind and heart and hand.

In the current news letter published by the department of social relations of the Congregational Education Society, Miss Helen G. Murray, editor, there is a statement from Mr. Arthur Holt which presents a task to modern youth. Mr. Holt said he went with a family from the sugar-beet fields to bury their baby. There was no money to pay priest or undertaker. The baby had died without medical attention and had been born the same way six months before. The sugar refining companies have an investment of about fourteen million dollars, and since 1905 have made annual profits of about six million dollars. Young people might try changing an economic condition like that.

Gangsters still take away their victims and hold them for ransom, sometimes destroying innocent life to save themselves from apprehension. In broad open daylight robbers take money from our banks at the point of guns. Crimes of all sorts reach from the lowest to the highest circle of society. Young people might try to get rid of crime.

On my way home from the office yesterday, I saw a little white boy throwing rocks at some little black boys whom they had frightened into a corner of a church. So long as the rocks were from the whites to the blacks nobody would say a word, but if the rocks had come from the black boys toward the white boys the community would have been infuriated. Why? Youth might try to solve this kind of problem.

In a so-called Christian country only one-third of the population has any kind of church relationship. Our Sunday Schools have only about one-third of our people. Those who have enrolled make only about fifty per cent in attendance. Half of our church members do nothing at all to advance the cause of Christianity. Critics tell us that the church services are hopelessly formal or ineffective. Christ is a living personality who is eager to fill life with joy and power, but it appears that only a few really know him as a companion in daily service. Young people might try to change this condition.

These are a few of the things that need to be done immediately in our own native land. If you search for a task that will challenge all the powers God has given you, you can find it. If you are interested in nothing but accumulation of wealth, the chances are against you unless you belong to a very small class in whose hands rests the wealth of the country. It is my belief, and high hope, that the youth of our day will give more thought to work which is worthy and less to the accumulation of wealth than did the youth of a generation ago.

"HOW CAN I FIND GOD?"

This is the title of a new book just published by Leslie D. Weatherhead, one of the leading British preachers. It is a question which many people are asking. Dr. Weatherhead, in a very straight-forward manner, makes answer to this very important question.

He says that God is constantly in search of individuals, but that people often do not really want to be found of God. He contends that in service to man, in our familiarity with religion, in misusing religion, in refusing right relations with other people, and in other ways, we close the gate that separated us from God.

It is his belief that "finding God" often means conversion. By this he means a change from selfish interests to doing the will of God. There comes to those who seek the way of God a sense of calm, purpose and power that cannot be found otherwise.

It is a delightful and profitable book to read, and will help many to answer the question, "How can I find God?"

The article following gives a challenge for leaders of Christian Church services in our day, and is a paragraph from Dr. Weatherhead's book.

CHURCH WORSHIP.

"If only the wayfarer dropping in to any church service was enwrapped with the atmosphere of friendship, was made to feel by the psychic atmosphere of the worshippers that this was a place where people prayed—if only the living Christ were always offered in a service in which every part pointed to him, and every heart was lifted to him so that he became savingly real to all within the walls—then our churches would be thronged each Sunday. For men and women who are sick of the squabbles of denominationalism, confused by the wrangling of theologians, hurt by the glib slovenliness of the chapel, and chilled by the cold formalities of the church, are desperately hungry for the Bread of Life, almost frantic in their search for a real way of life, for the secret of the mastery of the art of living, and they know from their own failures that only One can help them and they know the churches pretend to function in his name. But it is not that they will not come to him that they may find life. It is that when they do come to our services he is obscured instead of offered. We ought to try and remember that the only value in the existence of the church is to offer Christ to those who seek him."

TIDEWATER C. E. TO MEET.

The Tidewater District of the Virginia Christian Endeavor Union will hold a rally, Sunday, April 15th, at the Christian Church, Waverly, Va. Mr. Watson Cobb, Chairman of the Program Committee, is arranging a splendid program with the assistance of Misses Dora Martin, Norfolk, and Iris Dewel, of Waverly. The program will begin promptly at three and continue through an evening session. Conferences and discussion groups will be held during the afternoon session. Supper will be served by the host church, at 6, followed by a model Christian Endeavor program. The evening session will close with an inspirational address.

William F. Hampshire, Norfolk, Chairman; Misses Bertha Maul, local representative, and Elizabeth Ellis, of Savedge, will compose the Registration Committee. Registration of 25c will be received by Miss Bertha Maul, Waverly, Va., at your earliest convenience.

The Publicity Committee is composed of Mrs. May Warrington, Secretary of the District; and Misses Edna Fulcher and Violet Salmon, all of Norfolk.

The Reception Committee: Mr. Oscar West, Jr., C. B. Harrell, Jr., and Miss Beatrice Carpenter, will assist out-of-town friends in every possible way during their short visit here.

It is hoped that a large number of Endeavorers and friends of Endeavorers will attend from each Society in the District.

ELIZABETH SHARPE, President.

DOES THE RESURRECTION MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE IN OUR LIVES?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR APRIL 1, 1934.
Col. 3:1-4.

A special day often means a special meeting, and it is a growing practice of many churches to have an Easter service, either an Easter Sunrise Service or an Easter Vesper Service in the late afternoon or evening. Current magazines furnish lovely Easter stories and poems. Easter hymns, like Christmas music, have their perennial message.

The topic has a real question which may arrest the attention of many. We sing of the resurrection, and we talk of its power at Easter time, but does it make any difference in our lives? If possible, try to discover someone to whom it has made a tremendous difference and have them, if they will, come to the meeting and tell about it. Or the leader may appoint several of the young people to interview a number of people, young and old, and report their ideas as a basis for discussion for the meeting.

If you can secure a copy of Dr. Walter Russell Bowie's book, "On Being Alive," turn to the last chapter, "On Life After This," there you may find many suggestive thoughts for the evening. Dr. Bowie's phrase, "Life After Life," may be the keynote of the leader's introduction of the topic. We have often heard discussed, "Life After Death." Is not the thought of a continued life more appealing? What preparation are we making to make our lives worth such a continuance?

The topic is a direct question, one we cannot get around: Does the resurrection make any difference in our lives? Some may claim "Yes," others, "No." The idea is not to seek an argument but rather to gather all the evidence which will help us to know the truth for ourselves, and to grow through its light. The purpose of the discussion, therefore, is to help young people to see what difference the resurrection may make in their lives, and to learn how to appreciate its significance.

The discussion may possibly be divided into the following heads:

1. A Promise.

The resurrection is a promise. Jesus arose. Christ lives and, therefore, we shall live. What does that mean to you?

2. An Incentive.

Think of the discouraged, disheartened disciples. Their leader was gone. Their cause seemed lost. They had been afraid and had been untrue in his time of need. Then came the resurrection morning with new assurance of living power which sent the disciples out as new men, ready to face life or death in his name. Does that resurrection have as much incentive for Christians today? How much of the power of Christianity may be traced to the fact that Christ arose from the dead?

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

REVIEW LESSON.

LESSON XII—MARCH 25, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."—Isa. 9:6.

We have been studying the life of Christ as recorded by Matthew during the past quarter and roughly speaking we have covered about half (a little more than half) of the Gospel, and incidentally of the public ministry of Jesus. We have turned again to those intriguing and inspiring stories of Jesus' youth and then, passing over the eighteen years of silence of which none of the Gospels give us any details, we have followed Jesus in his public ministry. We have entered into imagination with him as he faced the issues of his ministry at the beginning and in what we know as the temptation we have seen the principles which he accepted for himself, the implications of what he thought his Messianism involved. We have heard him as he gave the Magna Charta of Christianity, the Sermon on the Mount, the principles which should guide his followers in their relationships with God and with men. We have looked on with wonder as we have seen his mighty works, and we have listened with awe as we have heard words such as never a man spake before. We have seen the humble beginnings of a great movement that was to sweep out into the Roman world, literally "turning it upside down, and inside out," a movement which has continued with increasing sweep and force up to the present day, and the end is not yet. We have seen the beginnings of opposition which were to culminate in his crucifixion. We have seen the beginning of what we now call the church and the calling and teaching of twelve men, who accompanied with Jesus, were trained at his hands, gradually became initiated into the larger meaning of what he meant by the Kingdom, and who were sent out by the Master to tasks which were to develop them and to prepare them for the larger tasks of the days to come. It has been an interesting study and a rewarding experience. Let us stop for a moment and in this review lesson seek to evaluate Jesus as we have seen him and heard him thus far. What shall we say about him as revealed in this story written by Matthew?

First of all we are impressed by the mastery of the Man as a Teacher. There is a simplicity, a sincerity, a spiritual passion about his teaching that at once interests and arrests. There is something fresh, something authoritative, something spiritually alive about what this Man says. Great truths are put into simple language. Details are caught up in universal and abiding principles. Letter is made alive by spirit. Old forms take on new meaning. Those who are unwilling to go any further than the human aspect of Jesus readily admit that here was THE TEACHER.

But one gets other impressions of Jesus in these pages from Matthew's Gospel. One feels that this Teacher is also a Master. He manifests his mastery over the forces of nature, over demons and evil spirits, over disease, even over death. There is a sense of poise and of illimitable resources about the Man. One gets the impression that he is deeply rooted in the Eternal. One feels that because he has mastered himself, he is Master of outside forces and powers. His word is with power. His truth cannot be denied. His authority cannot be questioned successfully. As the scene unfolds one gets the impression that here is a great Man, a Master in every good sense of the word, a Master not by physical might, but a Master by moral and spiritual power.

This Master also appears as a Friend. In spite of his lofty character he is humble and approachable. He has power, but he does not use it selfishly; he is always using it for others. He always has a kind word for those who are discouraged, help for those who are in need, compassion on those who are suffering, friendliness for those who are lonely, love for those who are lost. There is a graciousness about him that draws little children to him, and instinctively draws those who are conscious of their need to him. There is mercy in his words and healing in his touch. And one becomes more and more convinced that here is one who is THE FRIEND.

There are other impressions which one gets as he studies this Gospel of Matthew, but only one more will be given here. This Man is more than Teacher or Master or Friend: this Man is Saviour. There is something about him that awakens strange feelings within us, and quickens high aspirations in us. There is something about him that brings new life within when we respond to his teaching and acknowledge his mastery and accept his friendship. We find ourselves living in a new and fuller way. We experience life. We become saved from sin. Here after all is the Man's supreme contribution to our lives. Here is where he meets us at the point of deepest and greatest need. Here is the answer to man's supreme question: "Where and how can I find God?" As one reads the story of this Man's life as recorded by Matthew one comes to feel that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world. And as we go on through the coming quarter's lessons, and especially as we come to the closing events of his life and the closing chapters of the book, we will have missed the point of it all unless we say with the centurion: "Truly, this Man was the Son of God."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

3. A Comfort.

How much is added to the joy of life by the thought of "Life After Life?"

4. Thought to Grow.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell wrote, "As for life hereafter, I know little or nothing about it, but that is not of any great importance because I want it whatever it is." We need to recognize our answer to the question: "Does the resurrection make any difference in my life?"

It is even more important to answer: "What difference will the resurrection make in my life from now on?"

Oh, joyous is the world today,
And hearts are full of love;
While thankful echoes fly away
In praise to God above;
And gladness reigns from shore to shore
From morning until night,
For Jesus lives forever more,
And Christ makes Easter bright.

E. R.

Every pastor and every Sunday School superintendent should see to it that every member of congregation, church and Sunday School has an envelope in which to place an offering at Easter for Missions. The envelopes have been sent to the pastors who will be glad to supply everybody who wishes one. If any should lack, let them call upon the pastor or the Mission Secretary, Elon College, that all may have an opportunity to thus, through self-denial, glorify their Lord at the glorious Easter season.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black. Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

THOUGHTS FOR EASTER.

MONDAY.

MEANING OF LENT.

"Be still and know that I am God."—Psalm 46:10.

"Commune with your own heart and be still."—Psalm 4:4.

He who pauses to observe Lent in its spiritual sense recognizes God in his life and does what Jesus said do when he said, "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet and when thou hast shut the door, pray to thy Father which is in secret."

Lent calls us from the things of the world and takes us into thought, meditation, prayer, communion and fellowship with God.

It is a period of spiritual refreshing—of walking with God, of studying to attain a spiritual likeness of him.

It is a period of quiet. How necessary it is to be quiet, if we would improve mentally or spiritually. The rush of the age almost totally keeps us from quiet. It is an effort, and it takes much courage to find time to be alone and think and pray, and feel God. But thanks be to God for that provision which the church has made to call its people to prayer that they may find themselves. Lent.

Prayer—Our Father, we offer ourselves to thee this week for thy presence, thy instruction, and thy blessing—O thou, Blessor of Mankind, bless us now.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

LENT—THE NEED OF THE HOUR.

"My God shall supply all your needs."—Phil. 4:19.

Times are terrific. There are forces trying to build up and save the country from its distresses. There are other forces at large seeking to tear it all down. A year or more ago, Dr. Atkinson said in THE SUN columns: "God makes and man unmakes." It is still going on.

There are those who believe that a new order of things will save us. Communism lays claim to that power. Some think the C. C. C., the C. W. A., and other forces in motion will save us. These will help, but if we do not find our souls we are lost. There is only one name that will save us, that is the name of Jesus. "There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12), and everything that is without that name must perish (Col. 3:17).

There is one thing that we need more than anything else in these days, viz., Get rid of that rampant spirit abroad in the hearts of men, that we don't need God, and substitute for it, "O God, have mercy on me a sinner!" So long as we trust in our own devices we are lost.

Prayer—Dear Lord, in all that we get of this world's goods, forbid that we shall trust in them, for they soon take wings and fly away. Teach us how to use life for good, and how to always depend on thee.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

LENT—THE WORLD OUTLOOK.

"Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."—I. Cor. 2:9.

We have climbed many a mountain, a rough and rugged way, and suddenly come out on a point of the peak overlooking a panorama of hills and valleys with all their fruitage and glory.

Our Scripture today makes us think of that. Life is a struggle upward—a narrow, rough and rugged way at times, but thanks be to God who giveth experiences now and then which give us a wonderful outlook in spiritual delights.

As we look forward through the Lenten weeks to the empty tomb of our Lord and Saviour, we see clear through that tomb into the broad open spaces to come, and we behold the triumphs of a resurrected life. That outlook is victory. We know that Christ will reign and "the righteous shall inherit the earth." The Lenten way is the way upward to the mount of that transfiguration. The following verse, author unknown, will make a good prayer:

"It is good to be last, not first,
Pending the present distress.

It is good to hunger and thirst,
So it is for righteousness.

"It is good to spend and be spent;
It is good to watch and pray;
Life and death make a good Lent,
So it leads to Easter day."

—Amen.

THURSDAY.

(MAUNDAY THURSDAY.)

THE FASHIONS OF LIFE.

"A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you."—Jno. 13:34.

These words were said by Jesus while he was washing the feet of the disciples, on the occasion of the last supper, just before his betrayal by Judas.

The church has attached so much importance to this commandment, that it has called the day in which it was uttered "Maundy," from the Latin word mandatum, meaning "a new commandment;" and the Roman Catholic Church attaches so much importance to it that the Pope washes the feet of twelve beggars annually on that day.

Life is not fashioned for pleasures and comforts; if so, it would be most miserable and unhappy. Life is fashioned for the doing of good, for the ministry of love, for making joy, for giving peace, for being gentle and meek, and for enduring all things that might be necessary to accomplish these. Such things do not come in the ways of ease and comfort; they come through bowing down, through self-denials and sufferings, through looking upon the burdens of others with mercy. Observing the true spirit of Lent does that.

Prayer—O Lord, thou hast given us the way, grant us the grace to walk therein for Jesus' sake.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

WHO CRUCIFIED JESUS?

"When they were come to the place called Calvary they crucified him."—Luke 23:33.

How tragic this is, and coming upon the heels of the new commandment of love! Surely the "light shone in darkness and the darkness comprehended it not." We wonder how many folks in the world tonight, under the sound of the name of Christ and basking in the glory of his light, are still in the same darkness and would crucify him with the same abandonment of those who crucified him two thousand years ago.

Who crucified Jesus, anyway? We usually think the Jews did, and the Roman soldiery. But the hand that commits murder does not identify the cause of the act. There is always something back of it. It is not enough to say that sin killed Christ, for it would have to be explained, what sin!

Rev. Albert D. Stanfacher reminds us rightly that it was misplaced devotion, indifference to injustice and suffering and vested business interest. The loyalty that killed him was that loyalty to the culture of Phareism against the Greeks, the Romans and the Syrians. Everything Christ did was held in the light of enmity to them. Christ was winning and they killed him.

How oft may it be that even we may be loyal to a cause we have espoused, yet in it denying the teachings of Christ! When we do this, we crucify him afresh.

They killed him because of their indifference to injustice and suffering. The Sadducees, we are told, were the political vanguards of the Jewish aristocracy. They believed that if they did not stop this man the nation would be lost. As the Sadducees had no existence apart from the temple, it was apparent that if Christ won, they would lose their jobs, so "from that day they took counsel how they might kill him."

How indifferent we are to things when they don't affect us! Would you let go of Christ for your job?

Again, they killed him because of business interest. He had interfered with a man's business when that drove of hogs ran over the cliffs and were drowned. He interfered with certain business when he overturned the money changers. Representatives of these men were in the rabble crying, "Crucify him, crucify him!" It may even be found in our own private life. If so, we crucify him afresh.

It is also claimed that the mob spirit crucified him. My! What the unthinking mob psychology will do! One day the mob gathered by the roadside and spread palm branches along his way as he passed by, shouting "Hossanas! Glory to God in the highest." That same mob, it would seem, gathered at Golgotha and shouted "Crucify him!"

Thousands are going with the mob today, and will not allow themselves to think on Christ, nor will they allow others to teach them concerning him. So oft as ye do so, ye say, "Crucify him!"

Prayer—O Lord, save us from this ignominy.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

"CROSS CROWNED CALVARY."

"And they crucified him (Matt. 27:35) and setting down, they watched him there (2:36), likewise the chief priests were mocking him . . . if he be king . . . let him now come down from the cross." (Vs. 41:42.)

To contemplate the crucifixion and Golgotha, with those figures hanging there during those dark hours that followed, is a gruesome picture; but it brought humanity a new God with a new significance of life. This significance was that God loves us to the limit and we should love him too. The early Christians did love him, more than we do, it is sometimes thought. When they were persecuted and killed for his name, they "rejoiced that they were counted worthy to suffer dishonor for the name," and there is not a single experience of theirs that is not traced directly to the cross. It is this spirit indwelling in his chil-

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

MODERN PROFANATIONS.

By REV. W. HEBER O.HARA, Pastor,
Christian Temple, Lakemont, N. Y.

Scripture: Malachi 1:6-14.

I want to call your attention this morning to a rather unfamiliar portion of Scripture. It has to do with the history of the Jews in the period of the restoration after their exile in Babylonia. About the year 536 B. C., while under the rule of the Persians, the Jews began to return to the homeland. After many disappointments and discouragements, the temple was rebuilt and the worship of Jehovah was again established.

The prophet, Malachi, gives us a picture of the state of the Jewish religion which existed somewhere between approximately 450 B. C. and 400 B. C. Malachi is known in Biblical literature as a minor prophet, but he was really a great prophet. He courageously rebukes the priests for taking animals which were blind, diseased, and lame, and offering them as a sacrifice to God. Just think how much religion had deteriorated in the time of Malachi.

Jewish religion was based on a background of taking the very best out of the flock for the sacrifice; that which was perfect, without spot or blemish. And now the priests were taking those animals of little or no value for the sacrifice and keeping the best for themselves.

We very naturally come to the question: "What made these priests do this?" Many answers can be given. We can say that they were selfish, that they were dishonest, etc., but we finally come to this basic fact: God was not real to them.

Whenever this becomes true, God, if thought of at all, always gets a place down the line in our thoughts and gifts. Of course, we no longer believe in animal sacrifices; but the same principle that caused the priests to sacrifice the blemished animals still causes us in this day to bring blemished gifts and attitudes to God.

Let us contrast the reality of our human loves and affections with our love for God. Nothing in human relationships is sweeter than the love of husband and wife, of parents to children, children to parents, or friend to friend, but our love to God should be just as real. Jesus himself taught: "He that loveth father or mother, son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me," thus indicating that our love for God should be even more real than these earthly relationships. The outstanding spiritual leaders of all ages have proved that this is true.

Again, let us contrast what we give for directly beneficent and Christian purposes with what we spend on our own comfort, indulgences, recreation, tastes. If we have the courage now to look at ourselves frankly, we shall be surprised to find how much we minister first to ourselves, while giving God the blemished gift or even no gift at all. I have noted many an instance where a man would be spending as much as twenty-five or thirty cents a day for cigars or tobacco, all of which totalled from $75 to $100 per year. The same man might begrudgingly give $10 a year for the work of God and the church in his community. I am not going to condemn such a man; I pity him, because God is not real to him. This thought applies not only to tobacco, but to the movies, our social engagements, pleasures, anything which takes God away from his proper place.

These Jewish priests in the time of Malachi may have thought that they were fooling God, but the joker is that they were fooling themselves. The lame, sick and blind animals which they offered were just a reflection of their own lame, sick, and blind souls. Such is always the case. What we give, according to our talents, is always a reflection of our own inward selves.

The trouble was that religion had become a weight to these priests, instead of an inward leading power. Many people have looked and still look upon religion in that same light. They regard it as a great burden bending them low to the ground; something repressive and constraining which must be adhered to from a sense of duty. I believe that this conception of religion is still today more prevalent than any other. If this is your idea of religion, I advise you to leave it alone. Real religion brings liberation, freedom, and fullness of life. Anything less makes us slaves to something that is sick, lame, or blind. This explains why these priests so readily offered the blemished animals to God. Real religion is not divorced from burdens and sacrifice, but it always has an inward leading power in the soul. It carries you. You never feel burdened and crushed by its presence.

Religion concerns all of life. I wish we could see that and believe it. Religion is often thought of solely in terms of the church, the Bible, hymns, sermons, services. These are the food of religion, but the food does no good until it gets into life circulation. The food on my table does me no good until it becomes a part of my body circulation. The same is true with religion. It benefits only when it gets into everyday life.

On New Year's Day, I happened to turn on the radio just in time to hear the remarks of Mayor LaGuardia of New York City in connection with his incumbent ceremony. I heard him say that all of the people of the city were entitled to a square and honest administration, and that the city belonged to all, and was not to be the prey of any political faction or party. That is religion in circulation.

Mr. Warren C. Giles, president of the Rochester Red Wings, professional ball club of the International League, gave out this interesting statement at the Knothole Gang dinner in Rochester recently:

"You and I know that some of the 1933 Red Wings behaved badly off the field. They set a bad example, not only to the youth but to the adult. Their behavior hurt baseball. It is a sport which must be kept on a high level. While many of the players are good performers on the field, I nevertheless made up my mind that they could not remain here. I will not tolerate such actions. Even at the cost of injuring prospects for 1934, I determined to be rid of them. Whether we finish first or last, we will have a team of gentlemen on and off the field: a team we can be proud of, not ashamed of. What I am telling you is not a secret. But this is the first time it has been officially stated in public and no better time or place could be offered."

Mr. Giles wants young men on his team who are gentlemen; who are not bound down by blemished things. This is a remarkable statement from the realm of sports, and is another example of religion in circulation.

As the fruitage of some years of thought, experience and observation, I have formulated a certain life principle, and I bring it to you this morning at the close of the message. It is this: "Any experience or contact which adds to the richness and real worth of life is religious."

I am willing to apply that simple, general principle to anything. Apply it first to your own church. If it adds to the richness and real worth of life in this community, it has a right to live; but if it does not, it should die and the quicker it dies the better. Apply it to the Bible. The Bible has outlived thousands of books which have been forgotten, and continues to be the Book of books because it has always added to the richness and worth of life.

You need not be afraid of this principle. Apply it to any personal problem. Take card playing, for instance. If card playing adds to the richness and real worth of life, it is religious, and I am not joking about this either. You can (Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.. 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

- (For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)
- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
  - Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
  - Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Since we have had charge of the Orphanage work we have received offerings from California to Maine, and many other sections of the United States, but we received a Thanksgiving offering last week from China. This is the longest distance our offering has come yet. It was not a Chinaman who sent it, however. Eighteen years ago two little boys and a little girl came to make their homes with us here—fine little fellows. The little girl had flu and pneumonia and died the second year she was here. The little boys grew to be fine young men. One of the boys is now working for the Orphanage, faithful and true in discharging his every duty. The other boy joined the Navy several years ago, and is now stationed in Chinese waters. Though he is very far away on a distant part of the globe, he still remembers and loves the home that meant so much to him in his young and tender years, and out of his savings he sent a Thanksgiving offering to help support the home that sheltered him. It was father and mother to him when he had no other.

It always makes us happy to have our children remember the home after they go out to make their own way in the world. It shows a fine spirit. It shows appreciation for what they have received at the hands of Christian friends who delight in helping the helpless.

It is always a happy occasion to have the older boys and girls who are now fighting life's battles to come on Homecoming Day, and see each other and see the old home where they spent their young and tender years, and enjoy the day.

There is no place I would rather visit now than my old home where I first saw the light of day. It brings back so many sweet recollections of my early childhood. I appreciate my father and mother; I appreciate my home. I will never forget the day I left home to establish a home of my own and fight the battles of life. My heart ached as I wended my way on up the road and through the field to my new home, and the tears trickled down my cheeks because I was leaving the home I loved.

I will always have a high opinion of a boy or girl who loves their home, though it be ever so humble, and who shows father and mother every courtesy and kindness.

Did you notice our financial report this week carried us above the second rung of the financial ladder for the year—twenty to reach, two already reached and passed—just eighteen more to reach. If your Sunday School is not on the monthly offering list, please start now to have a part.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR MARCH 22, 1934.

Brought forward .....	$ 1,508.94
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Carolina .....	$ 2.66
Ingram .....	6.00
Haw River .....	8.50
	<hr/>
	17.16
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Turner's Chapel .....	$ .91
Wentworth .....	5.67
	<hr/>
	6.58
Western North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Cross .....	$ 3.14
Pleasant Ridge .....	2.04
Ether .....	.72

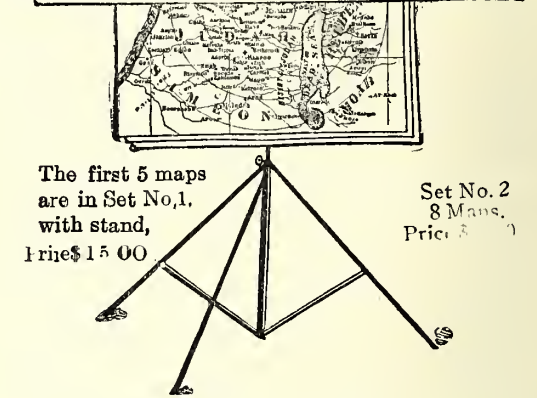

Big Oak .....	.50
Burlington .....	28.91
Flint Hill .....	.33
	<hr/>	35.64
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Liberty Spring S. S. & Classes... $	7.00
Newport News .....	14.42
First, Norfolk .....	3.61
Rosemont .....	12.43
	<hr/>	37.46
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Palmyra .....	$ 1.61
Leaksville .....	2.22
	<hr/>	3.83
Alabama Conference:
Wadley .....		.93
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Hill Side .....		2.00
Special Offerings.
Mrs. J. E. Vincent, Suffolk, Va. ....		10.00
Thanksgiving Offerings.
Mr. D. E. Sellars, on pledge.....	$125.00
Mr. J. H. McEwen, on pledge....	75.00
Mr. C. M. Horner, on pledge ....	25.00
Mr. C. A. Hall, on pledge.....	15.00
	<hr/>	240.00
Endowments.
Lawrence S. Holt Endowment Fund....	150.00
	<hr/>
Total for the week .....	$	503.60
	<hr/>
Grand total .....	$	2,012.54

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I am preparing myself for evangelistic service for this year, especially singing. Any church that would like to employ me, I will be glad to serve. My address is Route 2, Box 92, Roanoke, Ala. W. T. MEACHAM.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15 00
Set No. 2 8 Maps. Price $ 9

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 38x57, on linen inlaid Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing

The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cápér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Néph'tha-lím:	A. D. 31. 934 CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.
	CHAP. 4. AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4 1/2 x 6 3/4 inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5 1/2 inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print

ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>h</sup> The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Néph'tha-lím, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gál'i-lee of the Gën'tiles;	A. D. 31. 2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above.....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

THE FAMILY ALTAR.
(Continued from page 12.)

dren that has made character for him and become the hope of the world.

Jesus is still on the cross. He is hanging in each home, on the farm, in each store and shop, where we work and where we play, everywhere we are and everywhere we go, something is being done that is crucifying him, and what are we doing about it? It will never be different until his children make it different by putting an end to the things that crucify him. That cross must be "exchanged for a crown."

Are we in the rabble, or are we casting our lot with Joseph of Arimathea, seeking to right the wrong of it? Paul says, in effect, tell me what you think of the cross, and I will tell you what you are.

Prayer—Our Father, we are altogether too indifferent to the meaning of the cross. It is so remote from us. But thou art with us, and the cross is with us. Open thou our eyes that we may see wherein wrong is ruining life, and how right will overcome if we will embrace it, this day we dedicate our lives to that cause. Help us, Lord, for Jesus' sake.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

JESUS RIDES ON.

"He is not here; for he is risen, as he said . . . Behold he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him."—Matt. 28:6,7.

The death of the "King of the Jews" completed their plans. The nation was saved. How little did they know! Midst all these evils there was one mightier than them all. They could not understand that this was God and that they could not kill God. Their murderous work could only touch the garments of that God, and that act brought the world to the greatest victory the world has ever known.

Amid misplaced loyalty, indifference to justice and the trickery and cunning of politicians, Jesus rode on to death and to victory. Thus it is ever.

When the present corruption of this world, which is crucifying him every day, is over, Jesus will come back afresh, and he will go before us in glory. When the masses forsake the church and fill the world with hollow laughter, he will be still going on with the faithful few. As he rides on, we see that it is not a colt, nor over palm branches accompanied with Hossanas that he rides, but he goes before us with the same courage and love which he lived and taught; treading down corruption and wrong; trampling under foot indifference, lies and crafty devices, and he is setting in motion heavenly harmonies which shall reign till the last enemy is destroyed.

Prayer—Almighty God, our heavenly Father, we thank thee for the eternal beauty and power of the resurrected life. We are made glad by the affirmations of the open tomb with its outlook on the glorious prospects of eternity. Forbid that we shall do anything or think anything that shall make a mockery of his way and the blessings he died to bring. We beseech thee to raise us up into his standard of peace and love, and enable us to open our lives always to his indwelling spirit and to walk with him in complete abandonment. We ask it in the name of Jesus.—Amen.

MODERN PROFANATIONS.

(Continued from page 13.)

apply it to the theater, dancing, etc. But you may say: "Why do not preachers tell us definitely what is right and wrong?" My dear people, I have gradually learned that you cannot put the same measuring stick on all individuals. Some will cause harm and sin to come out of something which will really enrich the life of another. I have been a long time coming to this conclusion, but I certainly believe it. Let me repeat the principle: "Any experience or contact which adds to the richness and real worth of life is religious."

Those Jewish priests back in the time of the prophet Malachi, thought they were clever as they sacrificed the blemished animals to God. Their souls were poverty stricken, and they were unconscious of the deadly disease which had aleinated them from the Jehovah of their fathers. We need to watch for the same dangerous symptoms in our own lives.

Let us strive to bring a Life Offering to Our Spiritual Father which is the very Best.

"There is no use of talking about happiness if the sin question is unsettled in your life."—Reich.

THORSBY C. L. C.

Plans are being made for the annual Christian Life Conference for the young people of Alabama, held at Thorsby. The dates are to be March 30th-April 1st. It isn't often that Easter comes on April Fools' Day, but here it is. Because of this coincidence, the young people have chosen for the theme of the conference: "Partnership With Fools or With Christ?" An interesting program is being planned by the committee of young people, and they hope representatives from all over the State will attend. The registration fee will be fifty cents or the equivalent in produce. Programs will be sent out to all of the ministers and leaders of young people, as well as to the graduates of the Institute. More of the details of this conference will be published later. X.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
 E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
 S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
 C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
 ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
 W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
 J. T. KERNODLE . . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year . . . . . $2.00
 Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

TURNER—RUDD.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Anne Rudd, of Brown Summit, and Rev. William Redd Turner, of Burlington, Thursday, March 1, 1934, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Rudd, at Brown Summit. Dr. J. U. Newman, of Elon College, officiated

Music was rendered by Miss Ruby Trollinger, pianist. Anne Gordon Rudd, little niece of the bride, was ringbearer. The bride wore a suit of blue wool and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. After the service the guests went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Rudd, parents of the bride, for a wedding breakfast. Rev. and Mrs. Turner left for a trip to Georgia.

The bride is a graduate of Elon College and is now Home Economics teacher at Rankin High School. The groom is at present supply pastor of the First Christian Church in Burlington, but after April 1st will be located in Portsmouth, Va., as active pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. He is a graduate of Elon College (A. B.), Vanderbilt (B. D.). Also spent several years at Union (Richmond) and Princeton University. No student added more to the social and spiritual life of Elon.

J. U. NEWMAN.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, our heavenly Father, in his infinite wisdom and love, has removed from our midst our co-worker, Margie Carpenter Dollar, who was a loyal member of Rock Springs Christian Church, a consecrated worker in the Sunday School, one who was ever ready to lend a helping hand to the needy, a devoted companion and an affectionate mother, who always went about her tasks with a smile; be it resolved:

1. That God in his all-wise providence doeth all things well, and while we mourn our loss, we realize our loss is heaven's gain, and we bow in humble submission to the will of him who is ever mindful of us.
2. That we strive to emulate the many virtues of her useful life, in her church, and in her home.
3. That we extend our deepest sympathy and love to the family in this sad hour, and commend them to Christ, who alone can bind up broken hearts.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the record of Rock Springs Christian Church, one sent to the family and one sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

MRS. EULA MAE AUSTIN,
 MRS. EUNICE BROACH,
 MRS. MARY LOU WINDSOR,
 Committee.

MADISON.

Mrs. Sallie Mariah Jones Madison, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James M. Jones, was born September 13, 1858, and finished this life March 2, 1934, at the age of 75 years, 5 months, and 19 days. Of the remaining family, she leaves two half-sisters and one half-brother, as follows: Mrs. Nora Jones, Los Angeles, Calif.; Miss Effie Bullard, Wentworth, N. C.; and Rev. W. R. Jones, M. E. Church South, Lake View, S. C., On November 25, 1879, she became the loving wife of Mr. W. B. Madison. No more devoted people to each other have we ever seen than these. To this union were born six children, four of whom survive to lament their loss as follows: J. C. Madison, Wentworth, N. C.; J. W. Madison, Reidsville, N. C.; C. E. Madison, Wentworth, N. C.; Mrs. J. W. Brame, R. 3, Reidsville, N. C.

In this family circle were seventeen grandchildren, a number of other relatives and a host of friends.

Mrs. Madison was a good mother, a devoted wife, and a splendid neighbor. Sister Madison confessed Christ as her Saviour about 1883, affiliating with the Howard's Chapel Church as among the first members of the organization. She was a member of the Woman's Missionary Board of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference. For many years she kept a missionary society at her church all her own, keeping up the dues and attending the Conference sessions as long as she lived. A good and useful woman has fallen asleep.

 Funeral services were conducted in her home church by her pastor, assisted by Rev. B. Paul Rakerstrom, a neighbor Presbyterian minister. Interment was in the church cemetery. May the Lord comfort the loved ones.

L. L. WYRICK.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
 DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write -

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
 330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
 NASHVILLE, TENN.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 1934

NUMBER 13.

Rev F C Lester
505 S Main St. #1-33

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

"Bobby" Suffers Defeat.—

Bobby Jones was undoubtedly the most popular champion that the golf links ever produced. For several years he has rested upon his laurels, but recently he decided to attempt a "come back." For the first time in his career he suffered such a defeat, being ten shots behind the victor, Horton Smith. One wonders if the set-back is only temporary, or if Bobby has passed out of the golf picture.

The Lynchburg Holocaust.—

Facts that were developed in the official investigation of the fire in Lynchburg, Va., that caused the loss of seventeen lives and maiming of near a hundred others, have not yet been made public. One thing is certain, however, and that is that the building was not a safe place for the housing of a large number of people. Among other things making it worse, was the fact that part of the windows had been boarded up, and survivors testified that they tugged in vain at these panels in an attempt to leave the building. It is too late to undo what has been done, but it is not too late to inspect other places being used for the same purpose throughout the country and to at least make them passably safe.

Giant "Eye" to Bare Celestial Secrets.—

With a distinguished audience of scientists as well as a larger number of laymen looking on, there was poured this week in the little city of Corning, N. Y., what is to be the lens of the world's largest telescope. It had taken more than five weeks to heat the mass of boro-silicate composition to the proper temperature, and ten hours were required to pour the liquid from the furnace in which it had been heated into the mold prepared for it. The ladles which handled the 2,800 degree mass became red hot and had to be cooled by dipping in water after each trip. It is estimated that it will require ten months for the lens to cool and harden properly. If the 200-inch mirror emerges from the annealing tank flawless, as scientists hope and anticipate, it will enable men to gaze far into the now unfathomable depths now surrounding the earth.

Airmail vs. Express.—

Since having their air-mail contracts taken from them, the commercial air-lines have not been laying down, but are making a strong bid for express business. Disruption of air-mail service has given the companies who formerly handled it, a wide-open invitation to come in and get the business. Another thing that help them is the price differential. For example, it costs $2.03 to send a pound package by air-mail, but it can be sent for $1.25 by air express. The postoffice has been further dismayed by the fact that large users of air-mail have been shipping large packages of mail to distant cities by express and there having it mailed for local delivery. One postoffice statement said that this was not being done, while another one issued about the same time said it must be stopped. Commercial line officials' reply to the latter was that "in handling express we are agents for the Railway Express Agency, a common carrier. We can't tear open packages to see whether letters

Mr. Roosevelt there until we are ready to supplant him with a Stalin." Dr. Wirt objects to telling who this particular individual was, but states that, "I shall be glad to appear before a special Congressional committee . . . and if the committee asks me, and I am convinced that the welfare of the nation demands it, I shall name the 'brain-truster' who made the statement." But he adds, "I don't intend to be used as a smoke screen to single out any one or two of these radicals to take the blame for the whole program. The Doctor said that he believed that the next two months would determine the fate of the administration's "New Deal." There seems to be, on the part of some, a tendency to laugh the educator out of court, but there are others who think that the greatest issue since our civil war has been brought into the open." Dr. Wirt should in fairness to himself, and to the country, be given an opportunity to have his say, and in his own way. To heckle him will only be to increase unrest already too prevalent.

Roosevelt Settles Auto Row.—

The daily press of March 26th carried the above heading in bold-faced type on the front pages of their papers. Notwithstanding the fact that neither side was satisfied with the results, the decision certainly played into the hands of the American Federation of Labor. Commenting on the situation in its current issue, but before the announcement of the "settlement," Business Week has this to say: "The people of this country will rightly be indignant with any group that precipitates industrial warfare at this critical time, attempting to advance its special interests at the peril of the general welfare. A serious strike in the automobile industry now would throw out of employment, directly, a half million men. What its indirect effects would be are incalculable . . . it is hard to imagine any disaster which would convert recovery into retreat more quickly or effectively than a shut-down in Detroit." It continues: "It is impossible to escape the belief that American Federation of Labor leaders, not the workers themselves, are responsible for the threat which has hung over the country for the past two weeks," and adds that it is the proud boast of the A. F. L. leaders in command in Detroit that the strike was to be "not fundamentally for better working conditions or pay increases, but for the enforcement of 7a," meaning forced union recognition, and, if not immediately, eventually the closed shop. "The labor leadership which incites followers to quit work in the world's best-paid industry for such a cause (at such a time as this), is unintelligent and dangerous leadership, whether it be selfish and arrogant, or ever so sincere." One doubts if the issue is yet decided.

IF EASTER BE NOT TRUE.

*If Easter be not true,
Then all the lilies low must lie;
The Flanders poppies fade and die;
The spring must lose her fairest bloom
For Christ were still within the tomb—
If Easter be not true.*

*If Easter be not true,
Then faith must mount on broken wing;
Then hope no more immortal spring;
Then hope must lose her might urge;
Life prove a phantom, death a dirge—
If Easter be not true.*

*If Easter be not true,
'Twere foolishness the cross to bear;
He died in vain who suffered there;
What matter though we laugh or cry,
What matter though we live or die;
If Easter be not true.*

*If Easter be not true—
But it is true, and Christ is risen!
And mortal spirit from its prison
Of sin and death with him may rise!
Worthwhile the struggle, sure the prize—
Since Easter, aye, is true!*

HENRY H. BARSTOW.

are inside." Air express increased 75 per cent in 1933 over 1932, and there was a further increase last month of 120 per cent over the corresponding month of 1933. Air express is now being delivered in the country, and rates are falling as volume rises.

Who Is Dr. Wirt?—

Dr. William A. Wirt was probably unknown except to a very small circle, a few days ago. Now his name is in every paper in the United States, and why? Dr. Wirt, who is the head of the Gary, Indiana, "model school system," has made the assertion that one of the "Brain Trust" advisers of President Roosevelt had volunteered the information that he believed "we can keep

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. and Mrs. Almon O. Stevens, of Saearns, Ky., have joined the colony of ministers at the Penney Foundation in Green Cove Sprigs, Fla. The Congregational-Christian group at the Foundation now numbers thirty-two. Last Thursday evening there was a party given at the Foundation for the six couples who had been married fifty or more years.

Mrs. Frederick Held, wife of the pastor of the church at Jupiter, Fla., has returned to her home after nine weeks spent in the Good Samaritan Hospital at West Palm Beach, where she has been suffering from an attack of Malta fever. She was welcomed to her home with many expressions of joy and gratitude and is steadily recovering her strength after the long illness.

The envelopes have been sent to all the pastors and churches for our annual (Easter) offering for Missions. With the envelopes an urgent invitation goes out that every individual member of congregation and Sunday School shall have an opportunity of making an offering of some size through self-deal to the glory of our Risen Lord, at this triumphant period of the year.

Rev. G. D. Hunt, Lanett, Ala., says: "My services will be available for revival work among some of our weaker churches during the late spring and summer and early fall months. Should any church need my assistance, I will be glad to be notified at an early date." This is a fine opportunity for some of our weaker churches in Georgian and Alabama to secure the services of this able preacher and successful evangelist.

Mr. Hermon Eldredge, associate editor of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, furnishes SUN readers something to think about this week under the title, "The Grace of Giving," and "A Brighter Side," published elsewhere in this issue. Look up his contribution and see how rich, rare and racy it really is. This will explain why the depression still obtains in many churches, and is certainly worth consideration.

Our church in Suffolk has closed an evangelistic meeting with the reception of twenty-two new members, bringing the total for the present year to forty-seven new additions to the church. The pastor, Rev. John G. Truitt, did the preaching, and the Rev. J. F. Morgan, of our Rosemont Christian Church, led the singing. Large congregations attended the services in spite of some very inclement weather, and hundreds during the meetings came forward and re-dedicated themselves to the Lord.

Dr. John R. Scotford, who has been until recently an associate editor of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, and is now connected with our new combined missionary magazine, was in Richmond for the evening service on last Sunday, and provided the congregation with a most excellent address on missions. Dr. Scotford is on a tour of the Southern States, and is visiting strategic points in which we have churches. He is accompanied by Mrs. Mary B. White and Mrs. D. E. Brown, who are connected with the mission work of the home office.

Word comes that our Newport News Church suffered great loss by fire Monday night, March 19th. A correspondent writes: "A fire last night almost ruined our church building. The two rooms consisting of the ladies' parlor and the room above the pastor's study are badly damaged and will have to be entirely rebuilt. One piano was completely destroyed. The fire did not get into the main auditorium, but it is smoked and thus quite badly damaged." We sympathize with our good Newport News folks in their loss. But theirs is the courage and the faith that know no failure.

Rev. Clarence A. Vincent, D. D., who recently closed his pastorate of seventeen years at Winter Park has been making a tour of the State with Mrs. Vincent, visiting especially Key West, where Dr. Vincent preached for Rev. E. Richard Evans, the pastor; and at North Miami, where he also preached for his old friend, Rev. O. H. Denney. After Easter, Dr. and Mrs. Vincent plan to start north, making several stops and eventually going to their summer home at Henniker, N. H. They will later visit Oberlin, attending Dr. Vincent's class reunion, and also attending the General Council.

THE SUN's editor learns, with deep interest and genuine appreciation, that a liberal soul and great heart has placed new and comfortable pews in our Concord (Caswell County) Church, much to the delight and gratitude of the entire congregation. These pews were purchased and put in solely at the expense of the donor in the early part of the year, without disclosing the identity of the giver. This was a most gracious act, and one that evokes deep gratitude, since it was unsolicited and since the donor will not allow her name to be made known. The beloved pastor, Brother L. L. Wyrick, expresses the joy of the entire congregation over the timely donation of this unnamed friend.

Burlington Christian Church gave to their new pastor, Rev. J. H. Lightbourne, D. D., and family, a royal "Fellowship Supper" and welcome services in the social rooms of the church at 6:30 to 8:30 P. M., Friday, March 16th. It was, indeed, a time of good fellowship, hilarious and wholesome entertainment, and a very glad time for all who attended. A delegation of friends from Elon were honored guests of the occasion and joined the happy throng of our neighbors in making merry and in sharing the bounties of the feast spread to the delight of all who attended. Our good Burlington Church and people live up to their high reputation for happy events. It is useless to say Burlington is happy in having their new pastor and his splendid family.

Dr. W. T. Whitsett, whose occasional contributions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN made him known and esteemed by our readers, passed away at his home, Whitsett, N. C., early on the morning of March 22nd. He was the founder, and for thirty years, the head of Whitsett Institute, a high school of great achievement in Guilford County. In the last years of his life, he gave his great mind and fertile pen to the writing of history, poetry and essays on vital topics of the day. He was a man widely known and esteemed, and made a vast contribution to his day and generation. He was a prominent member of the Lutheran Church, and his funeral at Frieden's Lutheran Church, Guilford County, Friday, the 23rd, was largely attended and the services were in charge of the president of the North Carolina Synod. Several Lutheran and Christian ministers were present and joined in tokens of memory and respect, and a great congregation and a marvelous display of flowers bore witness to the loving esteem in which he was held.

HANGLING THE MOVIE PROBLEM.

By WILLIAM H. SHORT,
Director, Motion Picture Research Council.

We now realize as never before the extraordinary power of the movies over the minds and habits and lives of those who see them, especially of the children. For four years some twenty psychologists and sociologists of leading universities, acting as the Educational Research Committee of the Payne Fund, have been at work on this problem of determining the effects of the motion pictures on their audience. This research was initiated by the Motion Picture Research Council, and has included elaborate investigations involving thousands of children and adults. The results have been published by the Macmillan Company in nine volumes of scientific data. Another volume, interpreting the findings in a popular way for the ordinary reading public, "Our Movie Made Children," has been written by Henry James Forman, and has enjoyed a wide sale.

From these scientific studies we have for the first time obtained a body of facts about the movies, as distinguished from a body of opinion. We know that the average American child goes to the movies once a week, that the weekly movie audience of 77,000,000 contains over 11,000,000 children under 14 years of age, and over 28,000,000 under 21. We know that they see a vividly advertised, highly sensational output of films, in which the main subjects treated are love as interpreted by the movies, and crime—which Dr. W. W. Charters, of Ohio State University, director of the research, characterizes as "a sorry layout for children." This unbalanced diet of movie themes is made even more abnormal by the fact that the characters and settings, far from showing a true cross-section of life, show a world that is both askew and very much worse than that in which we live.

Furthermore, we now know that the effect of the films on the child mind is far greater than we had ever suspected. Practically nothing passes over the children's heads. They catch from the screen and remember 70 per cent as much as adults and this memory holds over, so that, when tested three months later, they still recall 90 per cent, or more. This is in striking contrast to the amount they remember from studying a book, for after thirty days has elapsed they remember only thirty per cent of what they recalled next morning. The movies, because they harness the drama, are the most potent educational force in the world.

Children are three times as much emotionally aroused by the pictures as are adults, and because of lack of "adult discount," they take everything they see in the movies as true. Moreover, one picture stressing an attitude favorably or unfavorably produces a marked change of opinion, and two increases the change. The effect is cumulative; seeing a number of pictures stressing an attitude favorably or unfavorably is sure to produce change. Investigation has clearly shown that the attitudes caught from the movies carry over into the children's life ideals, thought, and conduct patterns. Finally, we have discovered that boys in reformatories have picked up an extensive technique of crime from the movies and that delinquent girls believe the movies to be a contributory factor in their misfortune.

Surely, this information about the effect of the movies on our children should rouse us to action! And that action should be well considered and carefully planned. For years the Motion Picture Research Council has been trying to discover the most effective and practical way to deal with the situation. With the advice of experts the country over, it has worked out plans of action which are designed to make public opinion effective in dealing with the present situation.

$25,000 CAMPAIGN.

We are now in the midst of our Mission Period and I trust that no church or individual will allow statements concerning the College or the claims of the institution to interfere with their gifts to this important department of our work. However, I do feel that every church should want an opportunity to contribute to the support of the College, and would regret to see the campaign close without having made an effort or done its part. If your church has not sent in its contribution, won't you please see that it is done immediately.

In previous articles, we have reported the amounts sent in by individual churches. In most instances, these amounts have included the Dollar-a-Month, Fifth Sunday offerings, individual gifts, and church offerings. Since last week, the following churches have reported, sending the amounts as listed:

Church and Conference	Quota	Raised
New Elam, Eastern N. C.....	$140.50	$ 10.68
Bethlehem, N. C. and Va.....	150.00	11.05
Damascus, Eastern N. C.....	28.50	3.20
Antioch (R), Western N. C.....	30.50	2.50
Plymouth, Eastern N. C.....	36.00	8.25
Moore's Union, Eastern N. C.....	40.50	3.00
Antioch, Valley of Virginia.....	45.50	42.00

L. E. SMITH, Pres.

SANFORD CHRISTIAN CHURCH PRE-EASTER SERVICES.

The pastor, Rev. R. F. Brown, held a series of services preparatory to and including Easter in our Sanford Church. Beginning Monday, March 26th, and continuing through Thursday evening, following, the pastor preached evenings at 7:30, using as his themes: (1) "The Maining of Calvary," (2) "The Place of Calvary," (3) "The Message of Calvary," (4) "The Witnesses of Calvary." Friday, March 30th, services were held from 12 noon to 3 p. m. Six other ministers were to assist the pastor in presenting the seven messages from the Cross, using the following schedule:

- 12:00 to 12:10—Devotionals.
- 12:10 to 12:25—The first message, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." (Luke 23:34.) Rev. F. C. Hawkins, speaker.
- 12:25 to 12:35—Devotionals.
- 12:35 to 12:50—The second message, "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise." (Luke 23:43.) Rev. A. B. Gibson, speaker.
- 12:50 to 1:00—Devotionals.
- 1:00 to 1:15—The third message, "Woman, behold thy Son." (John 19:26-27.) Rev. Larkin, speaker.
- 1:15 to 1:25—Devotionals.
- 1:25 to 1:40—The fourth message, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" (Matt. 27:46.) (Speaker to be announced.)
- 1:40 to 1:50—Devotionals.
- 1:50 to 2:05—The fifth message, "I thirst." (John 19:28.) Rev. J. T. Barham, speaker.
- 2:05 to 2:15—Devotionals.
- 2:15 to 2:30—The sixth message, "It is finished." (John 19:30.) Rev. J. S. Cook, speaker.
- 2:30 to 2:40—Devotionals.
- 2:40 to 2:55—The seventh message, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." (Luke 23:46.) Rev. R. Frederick Brown, speaker.

A special invitation was given by pastor and congregation to attend these services, which were conducted for the benefit of all the people of the community in the hope that the services would be a means of enriching the spiritual life of the people of Sanford. We have no doubt that the church and community were greatly benefitted and spiritually awakened by these appropriate services.

VICTORIOUS CONFERENCE AT MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE.

The ends of the earth met at the twenty-eighth Founders' Week Conference at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, February 4th-8th. The nearly four thousand registered guests represented thirty-five States of the Union, and ten foreign lands. Attendance at the numerous services, including the overflow meetings linked by electrical amplifiers with the main auditorium, was far in excess of any previous record.

Among themes and speakers presented were: "Christ's Second Coming," Dr. James M. Gray and Paul W. Rood; "Christian Apologetics," Professor Oswald T. Allis, Ph. D.; "Prophetic Interpretation," Dr. H. A. Ironside; "Psalm Exposition," Mr. Max I. Reich; "Evangelistic Emphasis," Rev. Gustaf F. Johnson. Home and Foreign Mission interests were richly emphasized, leading addresses being made by Rev. Charles J.

Woodbridge, recently of Africa; Rev. Russell H. Glazier, of China; and Rev. Raphael C. Thomas, M. D., of the Philippines.

Intercession was directed by Rev. C. P. Meeker in two great services. Sacred praise rose to exalted heights in the spiritual messages of the Institute choir of one hundred voices, and the contribution of congregational song led by dif-

NOTICE.

I am selling magazine subscriptions "to help along" and will appreciate a share of your subscriptions. Do any of your magazines expire soon? If so you will receive a special offer from publishers. Remember, I will meet any offer made. Send me your renewals at their prices, or I will be glad to quote my special prices on any magazine or club.

J. EDWIN HARRIS.

Suffolk, Va.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:

(The Offer Is Continued Until Further Notice.)

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....
 Street No. or R. F. D.....
 City..... State.....
 Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

HE IS RISEN!

(Mark 16:9-20.)

"Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

"And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

"And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

"After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

"And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

"Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature.

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.

"And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues.

"They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

"So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

"And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the Word with signs following.—Amen."

THE LIVING CHRIST.

It is impossible, from any reckoning, to put Christ out of the way. Pilate and the Pharisees, bigoted and biased souls in all these nineteen centuries, have either tried to wash their hands of him, crucify him, or ignore him. But it simply will not work. He is the One figure in history who persists, joins the issue, will not be ignored or obscured.

The reason is very simple and obvious. He is not only alive, but he is the only person who is adequate for every need of every living individual and of every feature and phase of the social order. The adequacy of the living Christ is the world's greatest miracle, and its ever-increasing wonder. There is no need of man that is not supplied in Christ; and there is no hunger of heart, or longing of soul, that is not supplied in him. The announcement of this was very simple and in the most commonplace terms. Luke records it (chapter 24, verses 5, 6): "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen." That, in a nut-shell, is the whole story. All of those, and they are legion, who seek the Christ among the dead of the earth, or that which he taught in the dead languages of the past, fail to find him. He is not there. He is alive now and forever. None will find him among the dead of this earth. And thus, as a living personality, more powerful than death or time or change, he comes to our age and speaks to our time with a message wholly adequate to all our problems, perplexities and pursuits.

The resurrection closed one epoch of history and opened another. From that day mankind began to look forward and not backward; to base their hope not on Jehovah of Creation and the promise of a coming Messiah, but on the God of the resurrection, and salvation through him. This changed the whole order and outlook of Israel, of the church, and of the world. Till that event the seventh day of the week had been observed as Holy Day in honor of Creation. From the day of the resurrection till this good hour, the emphasis has been given more and more not to creation, but to salvation, since in the resurrection of our Lord, on the first day of the week, man saw the plan of salvation completed, perfected. So, while we annually celebrate the event of Easter, in reality we celebrate the event every first day of the week throughout the year, as we assemble in the house of God for the worship of God, or as we abstain from work and turn to worship on the Sabbath.

The word "Easter" is used only once in the authorized version of the Bible, and not used at all in the revised version, and stands for the Passover Festival, and means the celebration of the Passover Feast. The only intimation we have in the New Testament of the celebration by the early Christians of the event, is found in I. Cor. 5:7, 8: "For our Passover also hath been sacrificed, even Christ; wherefore, let us keep the fast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." And so at Easter time the triumphant note is struck, because the sting of death hath been taken away, and the glory of the resurrection shines out over the gloom of the tomb. Thus life is given a new meaning, a new light, a new power through him who could not holden of death and who declared: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die" (John 11:25). J. O. A.

THE BREAD OF GOD.

There are hungry hearts. There are perishing souls. Our God has provided for these also.

When the Hebrews hungered, perplexed in the wilderness, God gave them manna. No effort of Israel produced it. No creative act and no cultivation were required on their part. This was to show to Israel of all time the sustaining power and the sufficiency of God. Jesus taught as much when he said, in praying, "Give us this day our daily bread." Physical bread—bread of earth, sustenance for the body—is not enough. The soul is in need and hungers even as the body, and more so. To supply this heart hunger, this food for the soul, God has made provisions also. It, too, is bread: "For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth light unto the world. Then said they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread. And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life." The bread of heaven, the bread of life, this is Jesus, our Saviour and Redeemer.

In giving him to the world, we are supplying the greatest need of the world, feeding the most biting hunger of heart. When we share with others the Gospel of the Son of God, we break to others the Bread of Life that sustains their souls. This is the work of God through man's efforts. This is the work carried on through self-denial, the sacrifice and the service of his saints, and of those who have a passionate longing to please their Lord, to do his bidding, to obey his commands. J. O. A.

SUICIDES.

THE SUN'S editor was recently in company with a very intelligent and interesting gentleman who said: "I am down and out. My salary of $25,000 a year and the savings of a life-time besides are all gone. My health is also gone. I am a nervous wreck, and only by the assistance of a nurse or physician can I sleep as much as an hour at night. Do you think it would be a sin for me to commit suicide?"

It would seem from the New York Herald-Tribune that an increasing number are either asking that question or, without asking it, are answering it for themselves. These figures of the Herald-Tribune are amazing. In 1929, there were some over 16,000 suicides in the United States. In 1930, there were over 18,000. In 1931, 20,000. In 1932, 22,000. In 1933, over 25,000. Some over 101,000 suicides since 1929. These suicides are almost entirely of men (very seldom do women commit suicide). We are told that since 1900—that is, within thirty-three years—suicides have increased five hundred per cent. A further statement that the suicide rate in the United States is lower than that in any other country of the world, gives us little relief or encouragement. The number and the increase throughout the world are appalling. It is a world-wide tragedy, and the rate of increase in other countries than our own is appalling, indeed.

This a picture of gloom. Through it sounds the voice of despair. The facts are given here that attention may be directed to the Giver of life, the Sustainer of life, to the One who himself is life. Men have been increasingly putting their hope in things and the accumulation of things. The material world has engrossed them. Their faith was in bank vaults, or in the rise and fall of the stock market. As fortune after fortune was swept away and the empire of things crumbled beneath them, they snuffed out the light of life, and despised the day of their birth. Because men had tried "to lay other foundations than that is laid," when these foundations slipped beneath them, they too slipped and were gone. "The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment."

For the sake of those in our land, and in other lands, who are in despair and on the verge of ending it all, the church, at this glorious Easter time, should cry aloud through heralds to be heard throughout the earth: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

J. O. A.

SECOND-HAND RELIGION.

Much that poses as extreme orthodoxy is really only second-hand religion. He who satisfies his soul by accepting a creed on the authority of another, whether that other be pope, or church council, or the Bible itself, may indeed believe the truth, but he is trusting to a second-hand religion.

It is only when we really share the experience of which our teacher testifies that we are changed from our old life into the new life.

Christianity is a way of life, not mere thinking other men's thoughts after them, true and lofty though those thoughts may be. The truth which our teacher presents to us must be verified in our own experience. It is of no use to prime a pump with fresh sweet water unless, as a result of poring in the water, the pump can bring up an abundant supply from our own well. Read your Bible, ponder the creeds, and verify the truth thus found by passing it through the alembic of your own living experience.
C. R. R.

CHARITY PASSES WITH THE OLD ORDER.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

Closing of the Civil Works program and transferring its purpose to work divisions of the Federal Emergency Relief is the first step in what will be America's answer to an agitation for unemployment insurance. It is the entrance to a new era in which work is to be substituted for charity, for direct relief, for those who are physically able to produce.

This nation, though practical-minded, like an individual, learns best in the school of experience. When the depression set in, each community started to do its share by the less fortunate. The able and the liberal gave as long as they could. The call for help had to go to State and then to National Government. The answer of the National Government was in several forms, the largest and most practical being the Civil Works program. That was a challenge to idle millions, and that challenge was met quickly, bravely, and heroically. By available figures, plus reasonable estimates, an excess of 50,000 men and women sustained injuries in the battle line of wage earning. Of this number, approximately 500 laid down their lives, while more than 10,000 were either partially or totally disabled for life. It was a national demonstration that people prefer work to charity. With this opportunity the hopes of millions were renewed. A new day dawned, temporarily at least, for more than 10,000,000 people, directly or indirectly. Men were able to laugh and sing again. It gave them an anchor for their fading hopes, renewed their confidence, and strengthened their spirit to try again. It is this renewing of confidence, the kindling of spirit, that will bring America back to her feet.

The idle must be fed—that conclusion is final—otherwise the cost of maintaining peace and order would exceed the cost of their feeding.

Had communities, counties and States, set up work programs instead of relief stations three years ago, the country's condition would be far better than it is today. It was not what we expended for direct relief, but permitting men to remain idle, that added irreparable damage to our already wrecked economic order. This enforced idleness sent 500,000 of our teen-age boys to the highway trails, bringing them in contact with dangers and influences that will shape their future, in many instances to mar their citizenship, making liabilities, not assets, to society. Broken homes, untold sufferings, and suicides can also be added as a result of an unemployment condition that could have been avoided. How well we profit by this failure will prove our wisdom.

With confidence being restored, we are rapidly emerging from the depression. Our problem of unemployed millions is yet unsolved. Its continuance must not be considered as a continuance of the depression. We must separate the two. Our mechanical age has greatly accelerated and aggravated our unemployment problem. This problem can be solved only through the long and tedious process of readjustment; and till this is done, temporary work must be provided to avoid idleness and direct relief. These readjustments must be made separate, independent, and apart from our solutions of the present or future depressions.

The Civil Works program was short and experimental. Work divisions as now undertaken by the Federal Emergency Relief must be carried on for two or three years at least. In all likelihood the National Government will withdraw its participation in six months or a year, leaving continuance of this work to States and localities.

In the past three years localities and States have expended millions for direct relief. The experience of the Civil Works program, and what is to be experienced by the work divisions of the Federal Emergency Relief, is destined to change our whole system of charity. The word charity is soon to pass from our daily vocabulary. Charity in the form of direct relief, whether food or money, will soon be a relic of the past, except in cases where members of a family are too small or physically unable to work. Funds in the future will be exchanged for work—the common sense thing to do. This will be America's way of answering the call of charity's need. It will be her solution, as well as her practical answer, for a dole such as is provided for the unemployed in England. Charity has served well. The new order of the new era will serve better. Work will add happiness and contentment to living, where the old method provided only food and raiment, gradually robbing the recipient of his spirit of independence, a thing so vital and necessary to good citizenship.

America is changing her ways, and in the changing, charity for able-bodied men is being weighed in the balances and found wanting. Experience and common sense have taught us to exchange food and money for work. This does not imply a change in our spirit of helpfulness; it does not represent a Shylock attitude, but it is a realization that our citizens are happiest, healthiest, and most contented when their minds and hands are occupied. It is harking back to the spirit on which America was founded, a spirit of individual independence—that fundamental heritage for which the American people have willingly shed their blood and which is not offered at a price.

THE WAY OF HOLINESS.

There are many ways spoken of in the Bible, but only one "Way." There are ways that seem right, but there is only one Way that is right. When we walk in the ways of the world we are ever turning to the right and to the left until we are lost in a maze of doubt and fear; but if our hearts are honestly seeking for the right way, we shall hear a word behind us saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it." The hand of the Christ, who said: "I am the Way," will take our hand and lead us into the right way. It is a blessed way, paved with the precious promises of God, which will never give way under any pressure which may be placed upon it. Isaiah has prophesied about this highway of our earthly life, and also a way which shall be called "the way of holiness," the way to heaven. The ransomed of the Lord will be traveling on this way with joy and song, for it is a joyful way.

The poet says:

The hill of Zion yields a thousand sacred sweets,
Before we reach the heavenly fields, or walk the golden streets.

The highway upon which we travel may be rough with tests and trials, but we may take the higher road where we will feel that we are walking on wings when going through the waters of affliction, and treading on air when in the fiery trials. Yes, we will even get a glimpse of the heavenly Jerusalem to spur us on to make it through and gain the prize laid up for those who are faithful. Some one has said that the way of holiness, if along the commonest road of life, along your very way, is only going hand in hand with our Lord. Only those with clean hands and pure hearts may walk on this way; made clean and pure by the precious blood of Jesus Christ, the fountain that was opened in the house of David for sin and uncleanness. It is a plain way marked out so that a traveler may read the directions and not lose time on his journey, nor become bewildered. It is a safe way, for though ravenous beasts and venomous serpents be on either side, they cannot harm those who walk this way, for he, who shut the lions' mouths, and quenched the fury of the flames, will be at our side to guard as well as to guide our footsteps. It is a narrow way with only room enough for two to walk together; our only companion will be our blessed Lord.

It is a straight way, and every weight must be laid aside, that there be nothing to retard our progress toward our heavenly home. Then it is an excellent way, a more excellent way, for there is no way like unto it, for it is the way of love; supreme love to God and compassionate love to our fellowmen. Oh, the blessedness of this way and how many thousands have marched to Zion over this way since Enoch of old; and now we can seem to hear the steady march of feet on their way to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem.

Happy the pilgrim who walks in this way,
Traveling home, traveling home;
Christ is his Comfort, his Hope, and his Stay,
Traveling home with God.
Brighter and brighter, the pathway doth shine,
Deeper and deeper the peace that is mine;
Peace passing knowledge and joy that's sublime,
Traveling home with God.

"W."

CHRIST IS ADEQUATE TO THE NEED.

To evoke our trust . . . to disclose to us the meaning of life—to give us adequate motivation—to enlist the higher loyalties—to release creative energies, He is a life—communicating—presence, He sensitizes the conscience—He calls forth the unshakeable conviction that the ultimate victory belongs to his spirit—that he is the disclosure to us of God—that his insights concerning the infinite worth of persons and the spiritual character of our universe, that its characteristic order and structure are on the side of man's dearest values, that life is bought to fulfillment through fellowship—hence the importance of prayer and meditation, the cultivation of the art of expectant waiting, of purposive quiet, of waiting on God. It brings renewal of life at its deepest center. He becomes the integrating bond. In him all things hold together. And having committed ourselves wholly to his fellowship we find him, through our moral adventure with him, to be, indeed, both the "wisdom of God and the Power of God." Confession.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

"What is right with the church?" This question is the topic of a chapter in a recent book on Missions. It is an arresting question. For so many authors and public speakers have sought to answer the other question "What is wrong with the church?" It is refreshing to know that there is a hopeful as well as a discouraging outlook.

It is easy to talk about the weakness, the defects and the mistakes of humanity. It requires no skill, no education, no experience to "talk about folks." Good eyes, good hearing and a normal use of the organ of speech can find subjects anywhere and everywhere. Any church can be used as an example of human weakness and imperfection. But when one looks for the virtues, one must have a sense of appreciation or the ability to discern intelligently.

Humanity does not know the church. The crowds pass by the church every Sunday. They see nothing more than a building. Many tourists pass through the world's art galleries. Thousands see great paintings, and to some people these masterpieces are nothing more than a mass of paint thrown upon canvas. Others sit before these works of art, for hours, and behold the beauty wrought by the skill and inspiration of artistic souls. But Jesus knew the church. He saw its defects. And he saw its glory. To him it was a great treasure. It was a pearl of great price. He came to earth to build a church. He died upon the cross to purchase it with his own blood. He said of it: "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it." During the last nineteen centuries the enemies of Jesus have toiled in vain to overthrow the church. His words are true. The church is secure.

What is right with the church? It has a good foundation. Jesus is the foundation upon which the church securely rests. No one can find any fault in him. His enemies failed in that attempt when he was living in the flesh. Jesus is divine. He is from everlasting to everlasting. He is the Master of man and controls the worlds in their silent sweep through illimitable space. The church is in his hand and under his watchful eye. All the resources of omnipotence are at the command of the head of the church. The foundation is safe and secure.

The church offers the best life. Jesus walked by the seashore and called humble fishermen into his fellowship. They became his disciples. They learned from him and walked with him. They suffered with him. They became obedient, even unto death upon the cross, for him. They died for him and his church. The church today has the best people of the earth among its members. It offers the best fellowship to its constituents. It reveals the best life. It fosters the highest ideals known to humanity. "Whosoever will" may come, and accept the salvation preached from its pulpits. The rich and the poor meet together. It offers salvation to every race, and color, and creed, through faith in Jesus Christ. It carries its message to the cottage of the poor and the palace of the rich. It preaches the same Gospel in the rescue mission and the marble church with cushioned pews.

The church sends forth the best message. It has written the world's greatest Book. The ministers, and prophets, and teachers of the church have inspired the greatest educational movements in the history of humanity. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The school-house, the college and the university owe their existence to the church. Primitive schools grew out of religious impulses and spiritual inspiration. Its crowning glory is in revelation. It pays tribute to science, philosophy and reason, and pulls back the curtain to reveal the shining face of God on a mount of transfiguration. It heals broken hearts, comforts the bereaved, lifts up the fallen, whispers eternal life to the dying believer. Praise God for the church.

I. W. JOHNSON.

ELON MOVES TOWARD SURER FOUNDATION.

Elon College has demonstrated its value to the Christian Church and to society for nearly half a century. It has been laboring zealously and efficiently in the field of higher education. Scores and hundreds have come to her campus in search of knowledge and thorough training for life. Many of these occupy positions in the various professions open to trained leadership. In addition to farmers, business dealers, and home makers for whom life is fuller because of Elon College, there are physicians, surgeons, teachers, executives, and ministers of the Gospel, who received their undergraduate work at Elon, now occupying positions of responsibility and leadership in their respective professions.

Elon College has been most considerate of young men and young women desiring college advantages, but without funds to pay for such privileges. A large number of her most honored alumni received liberal financial consideration during their student days here. Had it not been for the generous consideration offered by Elon College, they would never have had the privilege of college life, and, of course, could never have attained the position and success that are now theirs. Those receiving such benefits from the College are profoundly grateful and are anxious to turn toward the College in its need with thankful hearts and generous hands.

Elon College has filled a most important place in our church life, and the need for her services in the future are greater than they have ever been. Perhaps because of the unusually generous attitude of the College toward needy students her financial needs have been increased at this particular time, but even so she is grateful for having had the privilege of making significant contributions to the lives of her many worthy students.

Two years ago, the position of Elon was in great question; sentiment seemed to be against her, even the church was divided as to the advisability or the possibility of carrying on. In recent months, however, sentiment has changed overwhelmingly for the College, and division in the church has largely disappeared, so that today if interest and favor would make her position secure, she would be safe for years to come. There is, however, a great financial need confronting Elon College today. Our campaign, through the churches, for $25,000, has not succeeded as we had hoped. A number of churches have sent in small contributions expressing their regrets that their gifts could not be larger. Other churches have succeeded in their efforts and reached the total amount requested. The College is profoundly grateful for every contribution that has been made and hopes sincerely that those who have not yet sent in their contributions may do so at the very earliest date. This campaign was an effort, of course, to provide for the immediate demands of the College that current bills and payments to faculty members might be met in such a way as to continue the credit and the good name of the College. We now face the greater and the more important task, that of freeing the College of its financial obligations that have already reached an amount that is staggering for an institution of this size. Our total debt, including interest, amounts to nearly $600,000. No one regrets the idea of compromising an obligation more than the writer, however, it seems an impossible task to raise this amount to pay past due obligations.

For the past two months, I have dedicated my efforts specifically to the proposition of settling the College's debts. I have commitments from creditors which indicate definitely that all of our obligations can be settled for an amount not to exceed $200,000, that is to say, if the church, the friends, and the alumni of Elon College could make available the sum of $200,000 in cash, all her debts could be paid. I know that this sounds like a tremendous amount of money for a day like this, but I would like in this article to put before the church briefly the actual situation and the issues involved. There are certain sound values represented in the assets of Elon College. The buildings, grounds, and equipment represent considerable value and could not be replaced for $750,000. The invested funds of the College total over $300,000, and are actually worth $250,000. This makes a sound value of at least $1,000,000. In the present condition of the College this $1,000,000 is scarcely worth anything. $200,000 for the College at this time would clear the College of its debts, return the endowment funds to the vaults of the College, free of liens, and make the College absolutely secure financially. This presents a most challenging situation to the Christian Church, the alumni of the College, and to the United Church. What do you say, friends of the College? What is your answer? Is the College, with its history, its prestige, its achievements, its holdings, and its spiritual values worth $200,000 to us? What we do, we must do quickly.

Dr. I. W. Johnson, of Suffolk, has offered to give the College $1,000 to clear its debts, one other member has offered to give $1,000, and another has offered to give a smaller amount. These offers have been made without solicitation. I appreciate the same and wonder if there are not others who will give equal or larger amounts. Of course, if we are to raise $200,000, it will be necessary to secure a $75,000 gift, a $50,000 gift, and a $25,000 gift. There are individuals in the church who are able to give these amounts. It is my hope and prayer that they may be willing to make such contributions and that many others will follow. This situation at the College presents an intriguing challenge to every interested soul. My dear reader, if you have a suggestion or a word of encouragement, please let me have the same. L. E. SMITH, Pres.

FIRST CHURCH, PORTSMOUTH.

We closed a two weeks' evangelistic campaign in our church March 18th. Revs. O. D. Poythress and J. F. Morgan were with us during the meeting. Brother Poythress did the preaching and Brother Morgan conducted the song services. Brother Poythress made a favorable and lasting impression for good upon the minds and hearts of our people through the Gospel messages which he so earnestly delivered. His messages were the simple Gospel story, interpreted through human experience, and delivered with an enthusiasm that gripped the hearts of his hearers.

Brother Morgan was with us last year and had already won the hearts of our people through his messages in song and personal work. His pleasing personality and persuasive appeal are real assets in revival work. We consider that we are fortunatate to have had these two busy, successful pastors who have won for themselves a place of distinction in the field of evangelism. Our people were greatly blessed through the meetings. Many rededications—some who had grown cold and indifferent—have become active again. A few who had lost out entirely in their religious experience have returned to take up the cross and follow Jesus. A number confessed Christ as Saviour and several have united with the church.

During the past year we have done a great deal to improve our church building. The interior, badly in need, has been given three coats of paint. The electric fixtures, put in twenty-five years ago, have been replaced with modern equipment. The beautiful memorial windows have been repaired and the wood work of the exterior of the building has been given a coat of paint. The old hot air furnace, which had never given satisfaction, and which had become a menace by smoking the walls of the church, and a liability through fire hazard, has been replaced with a new steam heating plant. The winter has been such that we have been able to give the plant a reasonable try-out, and we have been provided with comfortable quarters during our worship periods.

For all the improvements and blessings, we are thankful to God, and to our people who have responded to the calls with sacrificial gifts. At this time we are having a hard fight to meet our current expenses, but we face the future with faith and courage. Confident that he will supply all our needs, we expect greater things from God during the days ahead. Pray for us that we may become through Christ an instrument to bear good tidings of our Saviour's love to a lost and sin-cursed world.

R. A. WHITTEN, Pastor.

EASTER REFLECTIONS.

The time is swiftly approaching when, nearly two thousand years ago, the very foundation of Christianity had its established beginning in the crucifixion and resurrection of our Lord. No other such magnificent event than the beautiful springtime. With it comes a renewed life of all nature, which must assuredly be the handiwork of God.

The trees begin to bud, leaves appear where formerly there was nothing but bare limbs, the grass exchanges its winter garment for that of a beautiful green apparel whose color cannot even be surpassed by the artists, and flowers begin to adorn themselves with beautiful blossoms of various colors as was Joseph's coat. With the magnificently decorated orchards, nature has presented in the springtime such a marvelous landscape that the human mind is unable to fully appreciate the beauty contained therein.

It was Shelley who said, "O wind, if winter comes, can spring be far behind?" With this question is the implied thought of the anxiety of the poet for the beauty and loveliness of spring.

But far more significant than all this is the fact that Christ chose this period of the year to teach the world the great lesson of immortality. He suffered himself to be crucified at the hands of sinners. Four soldiers performed this terrible deed. The Master was taken up on the hillside and nailed to the cross between two thieves. Before sunset he was laid in the new hewn tomb of Joseph.

Thank God, this is not the end of the story. On the third morning he came forth from the sepulcher to adorn the world with a new life. This was the first Easter morn—beautiful, magnified, and immortalized by this great soul who rendered to the world substantial evidence and proof that life does exist after the grave. And so, happy is the time of Easter.

EARL S. HOLLAND.

Windsor, Va.

LANETT, ALABAMA.

We have had fine services recently in our Lanett, Ala., Christian Church. We are approaching our missionary program with a firm conviction that our church will do more for missions this year than we did last. We will not be satisfied to do less.

If we have the religion of Jesus Christ, we will desire to "share it with others."

It is also a fact that the church which gives liberally to the support of missions, will be better able to meet current and other expenses in a larger and more joyful way.

Therefore, Class No. 1 of our Lanett Sunday School has as its goal for missions "Ten Dollars." We have an enrollment of thirty-six members and we are expecting that each member will give a free-will offering to this cause. They will do that.

And in addition to that, we are asking every member of the Sunday School and church to make a self-denial offering for missions. We have designated the fourth Sunday in April as "Mission Day" in our church. Every service will point to that day until we reach it, and then we will all rejoice when our goal is reached.

Our Woman's Missionary Society is doing a wonderful work, only a few, but it is "the faithful few."

I just wonder sometimes what our women could do if their numbers could be increased. These missionary women are clothing a young girl at the Orphanage, they are paying their dues to the Convention, and they have given $50.00 on our church debt this year. They have cleared around $20.00 selling "barbecue" this last month. "The wall of the house of Jehovah was built by those who had a mind to work," and the kingdom will be carried forward by the faithful ones in the church. I am praying that God will open wide the door of his mercy to his church, and that the church may enter a larger field of service through the missionary program. May the whole church unite in payer for us Christians at Lanett, Ala. We have before us an "open door."

G. D. HUNT.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ----- $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ----- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¾ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ----- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5¼ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth together; righteousness has kissed each other.

11 Truth shall spring

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ----- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

Gen. 15. 1. Ps. 56. 1. Ps. 57. 1. 2 Cor. 1. 1.

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ----- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x ----- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jê-hôy-â-chîn was 6 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red edges, silk

hea

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. ----- $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x ----- $6.50

Oxford TEACH

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date maps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¾ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible ----- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ----- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ----- $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

"WE ARE CHANGING THE WORLD."

At the celebration of certain Days in Russia, thousands of youths, boys and girls, are massed in a public park. They are addressed through loud speakers by Communists from all over the world who tell of the missionary triumphs of the Russian Revolution. Then bugles sound, at which signal these thousands of youths chant in unison, "We are changing the world." And then bugles sound again and again, until these youngsters, thrilled with the vastness of their own numbers, and the conviction that their cause will triumph, cry out of their own accord, "We ARE changing the world."

What a spectacle, and yet what psychology and subtle use of power these Communists (who declare there is no God) are using to impress their youth with the thought that "God is a myth," and that if the world is to be saved, it must be through human effort, caring only for human beings, supplying the needs of body and mind with the labor and leisure of their own hands.

A long time ago, Jesus, our Saviour, commissioned twelve men to go out and "change the world." The march of these twelve down through the centuries has changed the world, but this change now seems to be facing its bitterest and biggest foe. Men and women coming out of the Orient declare that the struggle is no longer between Christ and Buddha, or Christ and Mohammed, or Christ and Confucius, but between Christ and Communism—the God of our Lord and Saviour, and the Idea that there is no God.

The mistake that we of our day are making is that of overlooking the power of youth. It is high time we, in the name of Christ, were assembling the youth and teaching them to say that "Through Christ we are changing the world." Under his leadership and sustaining power, our youths will change the world for God and Truth.

This is the missionary challenge and message of our day. It is a challenge to the youth, as well as to the adult, to join in the acclaim, "We are changing the world." This change without Christ means chaos, defeat, death. It is a question of whether Christ or Chaos shall rule on the earth. The meaning and significance of our missionary effort is that Christ and not Chaos shall have the right-of-way, shall have the control of our lives, and shall have access to the lives of boys and girls, men and women in all parts of the earth.

What shall we do with and about our youth at this glad Easter time? Shall we gather them in our public places of worship, and calling upon them to make a self-denial offering for the sake of their Lord, join in the glad acclaim, "We are changing the world"? J. O. A.

THE GRACE OF GIVING.

By HERMON ELDREDGE.

In the estimates or allotments of missionary giving there are many standards set by the different denominations. One of the fairest ones seems to be the one which takes into account not only the size and wealth of churches, but educational background and attitude as well. In fact, it makes very little difference how large or how wealthy a congregation may be if its attitude toward giving is that of a certain prominent churchman who agreed to make up the deficiency in the budget of his local church, provided they send no money from that church out of the city where it is located. The church which accepts and lives on that level will find that Revelation 3:17 (see) was written for them as well as for the church at Laodicea.

Another church boasts that it closed 1924 "in the black" with every bill paid. But when asked if the missionary allotment had been met, the reply was: "That was not counted in." That church surely closed its year "in the black." Do you recall that member who was reminded by his pastor of his negligence in giving to the support of the church, and his defense that while he knew that he owed much to the Lord and should pay that debt as well as his other obligations, yet the Lord was not pressing him as hard as were his other creditors? That seems to be the same attitude taken by the little boy who was given two nickels and told by his mother that one he must give to the Lord in the Sunday School collection, but the other he could spend. On the way down the street one nickel was lost down a grating in the sidewalk, and the boy's comment was: "Well, there goes the Lord's nickel."

A Brighter Side.

But there are churches which have a missionary spirit and leadership and do not forget real obligations. And these churches are not all in great cities or centers. In fact, we have just run across one out in a small town in New York which had not been reaching its apportionment before the depression, and of course it could hardly be expected that it would after that dire disaster came.

But it happened that just as the depression came the pastor came (in 1930), and he seemed to have the strange idea that if things were organized and the people had a vision of the field and its needs, that the thing could be done. So it came to pass under such leadership this little church of less than one hundred members at Stanfordville, N. Y., tackled the task and organized it by an every member canvass and a duplex envelope for missions and current expenses. The short of a long story is that each year since (all years of the depression) that little church has overpaid the amount allotted to it when previously (in "good times") this seemed an impossible thing for it to do. In fact in 1933 (the peak of its depression) this church's allotment was raised ten per cent and it again went "over the top," and the members were very happy about it. In their missionary giving there is no record of other benevolences which are over and above such giving. In these "other causes" are included Aged Ministers' Relief, Religious Education, local missionary giving, etc.

In contrast to this report of meeting the "full budget" at home and abroad by a small rural church is a report which comes to our desk of a well-to-do church of five hundred members in one of our cities which decided last year, that on account of the depression, they must eliminate missionary giving. Comment is painful.—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING MARCH 24, 1934.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,607.59
New Elam, New Hill, N. C. ....	5.50
Linville, Va. ....	4.58
Wadley, Ala. ....	.75
High Point, N. C. ....	4.00
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C. ....	3.17
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va. ....	9.56
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va. ....	4.70

Durham, N. C. ....	11.19
Newport News, Va. ....	7.00
Big Oak, Eagle Springs, N. C. ....	.50
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va. ....	9.14
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C. ....	4.15
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C. ....	1.06
Flint Hill, Star, N. C. ....	.33
Ocean View, Va. ....	6.10

Total ..... $ 1,679.32

Individuals and Churches.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 699.06
Bethel, New Hill, N. C. ....	3.53
Miss Emma W. Atkinson, Washington, D. C. ....	1.00

Total ..... $ 703.59

Specials.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 765.82
Class No. 3, Rosemont Sunday School, Norfolk, Va. ....	3.00
Pleasant Hill C. E. Society, Liberty, N. C. ....	.50
Burlington Sunday School, Burlington, N. C. ....	25.57

Total ..... $ 794.89

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,552.42
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	71.73
Individuals and Churches .....	4.53
Specials .....	29.07
Total to date .....	$ 8,657.75

Will every Sunday School superintendent join every pastor and every president of a Woman's Missionary Society in helping distribute the Mission offering envelopes and get a liberal Easter offering for Missions?

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Sec'y.

REV. PAUL E. NILSON.

By D. P. CUSHING,
News Editor, American Board.

When the Turkish Department of Education wished to secure a series of text books on the teachings of English, they talked to Paul E. Nilson of Talas, whose years of experience and knowledge of the Turkish language and people made him peculiarly suited to this important task. Mr. Nilson heads up the Boys' School, closed for several years following 1916 and reopened in 1928, where training in useful trades is stressed, and to which many country boys come, often bringing with them only enough cheese and cracked grain to feed themselves for a few days.

Walking 15 to 20 miles, sleeping on hard beds, eating bread for breakfast and lunch, with perhaps some soup at night, earning 25 cents a day, of which 12 goes into food—that is the way many of Paul Nilson's boys in the American School at Talas get ahead. The boys receive not only "book learning" and training in various lines of skilled labor, but they are taught good sportsmanship, and participate in field days and athletic competitions with other schools.

One of the big features of Paul Nilson's work, however, has not been confined to the school. With a portable movie machine, and sometimes stereopticon slides as well, he starts out accompanied often by a group of students, or a Turkish teacher, and goes from village to village showing his movies. Sometimes 400 or 500 men, women and children squat on the grass and watch the pictures as they are thrown on an improvised screen.

Often it is the first time that they have ever seen such marvelous things. The movies include educational films, a few funny reels, perhaps of "Felix, the Cat," and pictures of agriculture, or the life of some great person like Lincoln or Edison. Mr. Nilson includes pictures of Turkey, of the Gazi Mustapha Kemal Pasha and a lecture on sex hygiene for men and boys. Sometimes a doctor and a nurse join the party.

Mr. Nilson was born in Rockford, Ill., and was educated at Beloit, Hartford Theological Seminary, and the University of Chicago. In 1919, like a modern Paul, he felt the urge to go out to the city of "Paul of Tarsus." He served for a time as the head of St. Paul's College. He had many difficulties during that period, was kidnapped by bandits, his college raided by hostile forces, and his boys driven away into exile before his eyes. The school of which Mr. Nilson is now principal was allowed to open after four years of petitioning, and has a full five-year program outlined with special emphasis on vocational training and language courses.

On these many trips among the villages, Mr. Nilson has come close to the Moslem people. He speaks in a recent letter of how he was visiting in the home of a pious Moslem when all shops and restaurants were closed, but the host, thinking that his son, who was with him, must be hungry, ordered a tray of food. "Turkish hospitality!" says Mr. Nilson. "It is beautiful! Rich and poor alike share their food with the visitors within their house."

PROGRAM.

The following is the program for the Fourteenth Annual Session of the Missionary Rallies, Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, April 3-5, 1934:

Elm Ave., Portsmouth, Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Supt.; April 3rd; Holland, Mrs. B. D. Jones, Supt.; April 4th; Spring Hill, Mrs. E. T. Atkinson, Supt., April 5th.

Theme: "Heeding the Call—When and How."

Morning Session.

Call to Order—10:00.

Leader—"The Lord is in his holy temple. Let all the earth keep silence before him."

Hymn: "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult."

Leader—"As we assemble for another annual meeting, let us ask ourselves what we have done the past year to enrich our lives, and the lives of others. Have we a clearer insight and broader outlook? We must remember a great objective is set before us; to help stimulate interest in the world-wide program of our denomination, and promote it loyally. A new code rings with a summons to greater service. In this day of many material codes we should place above all others the Loyalty Recovery Act, adhere to that, and fewer others would be necessary. The idea of individual service should enter in, and the call that has come down through the ages is meant for you and for me today—The Master is here, and calleth for thee."

Audience—"We realize that we should feel the burden of world needs, and we do face problems that only love and faith can solve. The task of making Christ more fully known in every land should stir the best that is within us, but our forces are weak, and how shall we attempt to rally the masses to the standard which is set for us?"

Leader—"Go forth with hope, and not fear. We are called to venture for others, and not ourselves; to trust in God's strength, and not ours."

Greetings.

Recognition Service.

Radio Message, Station W. M. B. G.

Appointments of Committees.

Announcements.

Offering.

Special Music.

Noonday Message, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.

Adjournment.

Afternoon Session.

Call to Order—2:00.

Hymn.

Invocation.

"Listening in" on Problems.

Special Music.

Five-Minute Talks: (a) "To What Extent is Our Conference Heeding the Call?" (b) "How May We be True to the Missionary Spirit of Christ?" (c) "To What Extent is Our Church the Result of Missionary Efforts?" (d) "Can We Approve of Christ and Reject His Missionary Teachings?"

Reports of Committees.

Miscellaneous Business.

Closing service.

PROGRAM.

The following is the program for Rallies of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference: Youngsville, N. C., April 7th, Miss Margaret Alston, Supt.; Wake Chapel, N. C., April 10th, Mrs. C. H. Stephenson, Supt.; Haw River, N. C., April 11th, Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, Supt.; Shallow Well, N. C., April 13th, Mrs. R. L. Ross, Supt.; Parks Cross Roads, N. C., April 14th, Mrs. Roy Caviness, Supt.; Pleasant Grove, Va., April 17th, Mrs. L. E. Carlton, Supt.

Theme: "Heeding the Call—When and How."

Morning Session.

Call to Order—10 o'clock.

Worship led by Mrs. E. M. Carter; Mrs. J. E. Kirby; Mrs. C. C. Fonville; Mrs. Scott Thomas; Mrs. I. H. Foust; Mrs. C. E. Ferrell.

Roll Call of Societies and Reports.

Recognition of Ministers and Visitors.

Superintendent's Message.

Appointments of Committees.

Announcements.

Address, "Our Literature."

Special Music.

Address—"Our Missionary Program," by Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

Offering and Prayer.

Adjourn for Lunch.

Afternoon Session.

Call to Order—2 o'clock.

Song.

Prayer.

Address—"Our Missionaries."

Discussion—"Facing Our Problems Together," led by Superintendent.

Reports of Committees.

Miscellaneous Business.

Reading of Minutes.

Adjournment.

IT MAKES YOU WONDER.

Life is bitter for the farmers of inland North China where poverty is their natural habitat. Long established custom forbids the cutting of cotton bushes, the local crop, until after the "gleaning." This means that anyone may go through the fields and take the cotton that has been overlooked. Not a few church members are too poor to neglect this opportunity of getting enough of the fluffy bolls to wad a winter garment, says Rev. Earle Ballou, who recently toured through the Lintsing section. But when church began an interested and worshipful group filled the room. "They must have risen very early and quickly exhausted the cotton possibilities, or else religion triumphed over economics," is his explanation. Harvests were good but prices dropped and grain dealers manipulated the market. In spite of all this the people remained astonishingly cheerful, declares Mr. Ballou.

A Story for the Children

JIMMY'S INFLUENCE.

The little red school house where so many happy hours had been spent by the children was now serving as a place for a community Sunday School.

"Come on and let's go to Sunday School," yelled the children in a cheerful tone as they passed Jimmie Brown's house.

Jimmie dropped his head and said, "I'd love to go, but mamma and daddy won't let me go."

"Jimmie is a tough little chap," continued the children as they passed on, "but wouldn't he be changed if we could get him in our Sunday School class."

When the children had passed, Jimmie ran into the house and asked his mother again if he might go with the boys and girls. "There is no good in Sunday School, Jimmie. My father was a good man and he never went to church or Sunday School, either," remarked Mrs. Brown.

Jimmie was dull all day and went to bed with a headache. Mrs. Brown tried to persuade him to take some medicine, but he refused to take it until his mother promised that he might go to Sunday School whenever he liked.

The week passed slowly, but at last Sunday came and Jimmie was ready to go with the other children. Everyone was delighted to have him go with them. Jimmie was very much interested in the lesson, but the golden text upset him. "Children obey your parents in the Lord for this is right." Jimmie thought, "I've disobeyed my parents many times," but he went home with the resolution never to disobey them again.

Mrs. Brown didn't have to ask Jimmie to bring in the wood next week. Neither did she have to scold him for worrying little sister. Instead Jimmie was her errand boy when he wasn't amusing little sister.

Each Sunday after this, Jimmie was a faithful member of the primary class. The children looked for him to answer most of the questions. Jimmie studied hard and tried to put each lesson in practice. Not his parents alone, but everybody noticed the change in him. Soon Mr. and Mrs. Brown were in the Sunday School. Everyone thought surely this is a case in which a child is leading his parents to Christ.

Jimmie prayed in his weak way for his parents to become Christians. He didn't become discouraged as most people do when their prayers are not answered instantly.

Soon the little red school house was used for a church house entirely. Only a few sermons had been preached when the preacher took his text on, "A Moral Man's Influence." Mrs. Brown sat with tears in her eyes. This surely touched her case. It seemed that he was really preaching to her. He said, "It is better to follow a Christian child than to follow a moral man." When he had finished, she said, "Surely Jimmie is the one to follow instead of papa."

This night's service brought more love and understanding to the Brown home. Father, mother and little Jimmie all made new resolutions and stuck to them. Even today Mr. and Mrs. Brown love to lead others to Christ by telling them how Jimmie led them to believe.—By Mrs. Z. Agnes Jones, in the Free Will Baptist.

In Japan one Gospel given by a worker of the American Bible Society to a young man, a Christian, resulted in his teaching in Sunday School for two years and then establishing a church.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

MY EASTER WISH.

As I think of the many friends, known and unknown, who read this page from week to week, there comes to my heart a great, big wish for the Eastertide. Perhaps it is more than a single wish, for there are many things connected with it, and only a few of them can I tell in this brief article.

I am wishing first, that you may take your Bible to some quiet place and read again the story of Calvary and Easter Day. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John have told us somewhat in detail the marvelous story of the crucifixion, burial and resurrection of Jesus. Sit with these friends of the Master and hear them tell it in their own way, while the spiritual Christ interprets the meaning of those wonderful events. Do not be confused by the interpretation which men have given through the centuries since Christ died, but let the Evangelists speak to you in their own way while your own heart searches for the message of the Christ.

At sunrise, noonday, and eventide on Easter you may want to join with others in thanksgiving to God for the Easter Day. It is my wish that your songs and prayers and hopes may mingle with the multitudes who sing "Alleluia, Christ is risen indeed."

It is my wish for you at Easter Day, and every day, that doubts and fears, suffering, sacrifice and death may be turned into triumph because you believe in the Christ of Easter. Earth is not an easy place in which to live, for it has its crosses; but beyond the cross is a crown for all who can say, sincerely, "Father, forgive," and, "Into thy hands, I commend my spirit."

I wish, also, that while you walk the road to Emmaus, or the paths that lead to other places, where you needs must go, there may be a companion whose presence brings you courage and whose wisdom illumines your path. I am wishing for you a heart burning with the love of God as you dine at the table, your own table, with the Master.

This wish of mine is a prayer, and into the prayer I have put the best efforts of my pen through the months of the year, and now offer you the message of the poets as they have interpreted Easter.

FROM GETHSEMANE.

All those who journey, soon or late,
Must pass within the garden's gate;
Must kneel alone in darkness there,
And battle with some fierce despair.
God pity those who cannot say:
"Not mine, but thine;" who only pray:
"Let this cup pass," and cannot see
The purpose in Gethsemane.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

AN EASTER PRAYER.

Lord, now that spring is in the world,
And every tulip is a cup
Filled with the wine of thy great love,
Lift thou me up.
Raise thou my heart as flowers arise
To greet the glory of thy day,
With soul as clean as lilies are,
And white as they.

Let me not fear the darkness now,
Since Life and Light break through thy tomb;
Teach me that doubts no more oppress,
No more consume.

Show me that thou are April, Lord,
And thou the flowers and the grass;
Then, when awake the soft spring winds,
I'll hear thee pass.

—Charles Hanson Towne.

CALVARY AND EASTER.

A song of sunshine through the rain,
Of spring across the snow;
A balm to heal the hurts of pain,
A peace surpassing woe.
Lift up your heads, ye sorrowing ones,
And be glad of heart,
For Calvary and Easter Day
Were just three days apart!

With shudder of despair and loss
The world's deep heart is wrung,
As, lifted high upon his cross,
The Lord of Glory hung—
When rocks were rent, and ghostly forms
Stole forth in street and mart;
But Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's blackest day and whitest day,
Were just three days apart.

—Author Unknown.

REALITY.

Not from two who supped with you
At an inn as twilight fell,
Do I know that Joseph's tomb
Was an empty shell.
Not from Peter or from John,
Of from Mary or from Paul,
Did I learn how life can change
At your call.

Not on the Damascus road,
Or in some far-off place,
Did my spirit see the dawn
Of your face.
Those who lived in Galilee
Knew their Lord, and held him dear,
But my Lord has come to me
Now and here.

—Amelia Josephine Burr.

THE STONE.

"Christ is risen, Christ is risen!"
The glad voices glibly say,
Yet he lies within the prison
Of our stolid hearts today.

No angel rolls away the stone
Of cowardice and greed;
It is our strength, and ours alone,
Can answer for that need.

Grant us strength in straining, lifting,
He on his side, we on ours,
Till, at length, the boulder shifting,
Christ comes forth among the flowers.

—Kenneth W. Porter.

THE DAY OF RESURRECTION.

The day of resurrection,
Earth, tell it out abroad;
The passover of gladness,
The passover of God.
From death to life eternal,
From this world to the sky,
Our Christ hath brought us over
With hymns of victory.

Our hearts be pure from evil,
That we may see aright,
The Lord in rays eternal
Of resurrection light;
And, listening to his accents,
May hear, so calm and plain,
His own, "All hail!" and, hearing,
May raise the victory strain.

Now let the heavens be joyful,
Let earth her song begin,
Let the round world keep triumph
And all that is therein;
Invisible and visible,
Their notes let all things blend;
For Christ the Lord hath risen,
Our joy that hath no end.
—John of Damascus, 8th Century.

A PRAYER.

O God, for our redemption didst give thine only begotten Son to the death of the cross, and by his glorious resurrection hast delivered us from the power of the enemy, grant us to die daily to sin, that we may evermore live with him, in the joy of his resurrection; through the same Jesus Christ our Lord.—Amen.

—St. Gregory, A. D. 509.

THE PLACE OF BIBLE STUDY IN CHRISTIAN LIVING.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC, APRIL 8, 1934.
(Romans 15:1-4.)

Thousands of young people all over the world will declare publicly their allegiance to Jesus Christ on Easter Sunday by uniting with the Christian Church, or by renewing their vows of consecration on that day. The three Christian Endeavor meetings following Easter may be planned to give the most effective guidance and help to all young Christians, as they think of the place which Bible study, prayer and public worship have in the life of a growing Christian.

Worship Service.

Theme—"The Bible, a Guide to Abundant Life."

Hymn—"Wonderful Words of Life."

Scripture—Romans 15:1-4.

Story—"A Story With a Message."

Solo—"Open Mine Eyes."

Prayer.

Hymn—"Tell Me the Old, Old Story."

Discussion.

Different members may be asked to tell personal experiences on "How the Bible Has Helped Me," in such ways as:

1. How the reading of the Bible when I am alone helps me.
2. What the Bible means when I hear it read in church.
3. How the Bible helps one conquer temptation.
4. How Bible study helps one to be well educated.
5. The message of the Bible in time of sorrow or discouragement.
6. Bible study and its effect on my life.

Ask three young people to choose what each
(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

CONFESSING AND FOLLOWING CHRIST.

LESSON I—APRIL 1, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matt. 16:16.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 16:13-17, 27.

NOTE.—Alternative lessons are given for today, the one about Peter's confession, and the other about the Risen Christ. Ordinarily, the writer would have written these Notes on the latter, but there will be another lesson on the Resurrection at the end of the quarter, so he has chosen to write about Confessing and Following Christ.

"Whom Say Men that I am?"

It was not the question of a man with itching ears, eager to hear some flattering remark or full-some praise. It was an attempt on the part of Jesus to learn what impression his life and his ministry was making upon the people of his day. He wanted his disciples to give him a cross-section of what folks were thinking about him.

The reply is significant. "Some say John the Baptist, some say Elias, others Jeremias, or one of the prophets." They were putting him in great company. They were bearing witness to his many-sided character. They testified to his acknowledged place in the spiritual leaders of the race. But they, like others who have held a similar view, have fallen far short of the true estimate of Christ. He was indeed a prophet, but he was more than a prophet.

Whom Say Ye that I am?

It is interesting to know what other men think of Christ. The supreme question, however, is more personal—what do I think of Christ? The measure of every man's spiritual life is to be found in his estimate of the person of Christ and in his response to that Christ. The individuals and the larger groups which have regarded Christ simply as a Teacher, or as a Prophet, or as a Great Man, have not manifested any marked spiritual vitality, or any missionary zeal. Each man must face, and each man must answer the question, "Whom say ye that I am?" And in the final analysis, a man's happiness here and his destiny hereafter depend in large measure upon his answer to that question.

The Christ, the Son of the Living God.

It is a great confession. Peter, speaking for the disciples, saw in this man, the fulfillment of the hopes and ideals of THE-ONE-WHO-SHOULD-COME, that is THE CHRIST. As they had companied with him that impression had gradually been deepening until it had become a great conviction. This man was different from mere men. He was the Son of God, the Son of the living God. In a unique sense, he was God manifested in the flesh. Jesus was the Christ.

Jesus instantly tells Peter that this confession was not of flesh and blood—it was not a matter of mere human knowledge. It was the result of the Spirit of God. Of course any man may flippantly admit that Jesus is the Christ. But Jesus said that those who really saw in him the Christ, the Son of the living God, had been given spiritual insight by the Father himself. Spiritual things are spiritually discerned. The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit, for they are spiritually discerned.

Upon this Rock I Will Build My Church.

The Roman Catholic Church says this means Peter. Protestants say this means the confession, the recognition, that Christ is truly the Son of God. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. One thing needs to be noted. The church is a divine institution; it was established by Christ himself. And it is his church—I will build MY CHURCH. The church cannot be proud of all of its history. There have been some blotches on the pages of her history. She is made up of people who are human. But she is Christ's Church. She is Christ's Body. And when and where she has been true to Christ she has had power and influence. If there are those who are pessimistic about the future of the church, let them remember that Christ has given us his word that he will build his church. He will not fail. The church is built upon a Rock, and that Rock is Christ.

This Shall Not Be Unto Thee.

"From that time"—from the time they recognized him as the Christ—"He began to show them how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things . . . and be killed, and be raised again the third day." But Peter said it should not be done—treating God's Son, and the Christ that way. To Peter—and to us—it seemed a denial of all that was implied in Christ's Messiahship. But Jesus, with what seems like a rebuke on his lips, tells Peter that he savors of the things of men, and not of God. God's law of saving is through sacrifice. Men try to save themselves, but it is God's law that love voluntarily and freely suffer for others.

If Any Man Will Come After Me. Let Him Deny Himself and Take Up His Cross.

If any man will be Christ's true disciple, he must say "No" to himself, he must turn from himself, he must deny himself. Jesus did not say that he must necessarily deny things to himself. He said something far more exacting—He said that he must deny himself, or his self. He must renounce self. When self presses its claims, ideas, hopes, ambitions, desires, purposes, the true disciple of Christ is to renounce such a self. It is a hard saying, but Christ himself is our authority for it. One thing is certain—too many of us have failed to understand the first thing about the true nature of Christianity. The Christian is the one who denies self and enthrones Christ.

Saving . . . Losing.

Paradoxical as it may seem the way to save life is to lose it, and the way to lose life is to save it. Let a man think only of himself, let him seek to gratify self, let him try to save himself, and he will lose himself—that is, his larger, truer self. But let a man give himself to something outside of himself, let him lose himself to some great cause, or for others, let him forget self in serving others, and lo, he finds himself.

And let every man remember that he is worth more than the whole world. There is nothing that a man can get that is worth more than his soul.

NOTICE.

Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom, in charge of our work in Carroll County, both at Elk Spur and Rocky Ford, were welcome visitors at the office of the Mission Secretary on a recent afternoon. It is learned that a pressing need at each of these mission points is an organ or a piano for services. We wonder if some of our Sunday Schools or churches have an organ they have set aside and replaced with a piano, or have a piano which they have set aside and could be put in tune and used? If any church or Sunday School has an organ or a piano that it can donate for a most needy and deserving purpose, Brother Grissom will deeply appreciate a line advising to that effect. Address Rev. R. T. Grissom, Fancy Gap, Virginia.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.

. 133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps . . . . . $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 1/4 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavanit grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold . . . . . $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold . . . . . $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools . . . . . 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

GOD SPEAKING.

"Acquaint thyself now with him, and be at peace, thereby good shall come unto thee."—Job 22:21.

For, "God shall send forth his mercy and his truth."—Psalm 57:3.

And, "Everyone that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; to him that knocketh, it shall be opened."—Matt. 7:8.

And, "My people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the Lord."—Jer. 31:14.

"This is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life."—I. Jno. 2:25.

The writer has supplemented the conjunction at the beginning of each text. The four references read like a story, and to read them with a view of their relation to the thought of last week, they become, in a real sense, the voice of God speaking.

Prayer—Our Father, we feel like singing the song:

"Tell me the old, old story
Of unseen things above;
Of Jesus and his glory,
Of Jesus and his love."

And help us, Lord, to be faithful and find in thy presence all of life's goodness.—Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE INHERITANCE INCORRUPTIBLE.

"It is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."—Luke 12:32.

This text is one of dozens found in the Scriptures referring to the "saints inheriting the earth."

We are all "heirs of God," it seems, and "joint heirs with Christ." If that is so, the loftiest blessing which one can receive is to possess God, live in him, and be made somewhat in his likeness.

There are some sublime and wonderful Scriptures on the subject of this mutual possession in which we are told that we are the inheritance of the Lord and that the Lord is the inheritance of ours: "The Lord has taken you to be to him a people of inheritance," says Moses; "Ye are a people for a possession," says Peter; "The Lord is the portion of my inheritance," says David; and "Ye are the heirs of God," says Paul. Does this not explain how it is that "we are in him and he in us," in that way for which Christ prayed in that 17th chapter of John, and does it not make clear to us how he makes us "partakers of the Divine Nature?" Blessed thought!

Prayer—Our Father, we feel more distinctly this day thy rich promises of living and being, what true joys are, and what salvation is to them that love him. We thank thee and glorify thee.—Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE "DOUBLE INDEMNITY" OF THE LORD.

"God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever."—Psalm 73:26.

There are two thoughts in our meditation today, the strength of God and our share in that strength.

If God is omniscient, then his infinite wisdom is ours to guide us.

If he is eternal, his eternity is ours and he will preserve us forever. "He is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day," said Paul.

Prayer—Our Father, we turn our faces upward to thee. As the stars of night shed their splendor upon the universe, so fill our souls with heaven's beaming love. Fill our hearts with the desire for that which is true, gentle, kind and good, and mirror our souls somewhat of thy likeness.—Amen.

THURSDAY.

AN EVENING BENEDICTION.

"Return unto thy rest of my soul; for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee."—Psalm 116:7.

Whenever this is read, be it morning, noon or night; or be it at one sitting when this whole page is read, it becomes a part of the whole, and is a most satisfying benediction. Repeat it as you turn out the lights and go to bed for the rest of the night.

He who turns to his bed at night with a clear conscience finds a downy bed of ease and comfort. He can sleep the sleep of the just, and nature prepares him for the duties of tomorrow.

"Preserve only a good conscience toward God, and loving purpose toward your fellow men, and you need not wince or tremble, though the pack of spaniel-hearted hounds snarl at your heels."—Wm. Morley Punshon.

Rest is not quitting the busy career;
Rest is the fitting of self to one's sphere.
'Tis loving and serving, the highest and best,
'Tis onward, unswerving, and this is true rest.
—Goethe.

Prayer—Our Father, thy defense doth save thy children, and thou hast delivered all who trusted in thee, and thou art working until now that we may be saved. Grant unto us thy spirit of work and thy salvation may shine like the sun in our lives. In Christ's name, we ask it.—Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE ONE BANNER OF LIFE.

"He brought me to the banquet house, and his banner over me was love."—Songs of Sol. 2:4.

"Love is strong as death . . . many waters cannot quench it, neither can the floods drown it; if a man would give all the substance of his house for love, he would utterly be contemned."—Songs of Sol. 8:6, 7.

In the U. S. Navy there is one flag that may be hoisted above the American flag. This flag is the "church pennant."

Every Sunday morning when the bugle sounds "church call," announcing services, this pennant is hoisted to the tip of the mast, above the ensign, while worshippers sing and pray and worship God. This is in token of recognition of God as supreme, and of our obeisance to him who is the great commander of the universe.

This pennant bears the simple cross of blue in a field of white. That cross is the symbol of God's love, represented in the price Jesus paid for loving us and thus bringing the Father's love to us. So, "his banner o'er us" is love. Thank God!

Life's experiences furnish us no better eulogy than this. Here is love as a universal divine principle. It is the principle which is to govern the universe. Its floating beauty bespeaks love which is from God, which is God, in which God dwells, and the love by which, if we let him, he dwells in us.

The last line of the text represents the sacredness of that love, which is to teach that love is not a commodity to be bought, and that when one has done all he can, so high above is the worth of God's love that he is altogether unworthy. Nothing we can do can measure up with it.

The Lord does not want our gold, he wants just us; and, if we will be just his, humbled at his feet, his blessings follow.

There are many things pertaining to our lives which claim our time, admiration and attention: earning a living, social requirements, politics, statesmanship, etc., and yet all these can function right and bring true happiness only by one thing. It was for this reason that Paul said, "He that loveth another fulfilleth the law." It was for this reason that Jesus said, "By this all men know that ye are my disciples." All things are contained in this word, "Love."

Our Lord would have us wear our badges, hoist our banners, show our colors, for we are known by them; but he would have us know also that the one spirit which permeates and crowns all the others with true success is love. It is the one thing that marks him for us and us for him.

Prayer—Our Father, our Lord, and our God, thou knowest our desires. Forgive every unworthy one and fill the fountain of our wishes with the great spirit that abounds in happiness and peace and plants our feet firmly for the onward march of life until we are made perfect in thee.—Amen.

SATURDAY.

OUT OF THE PIT.

"Thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption."—Read Isa. 38:10-17.

A four-year-old boy in Bow, New Hampshire, fell down a well twenty feet deep and only nineteen inches in diameter, and was held there a prisoner, screaming in terror, for seven hours. A hundred labored frantically to release the child. There was only one way to do it: they had to sink a parallel shaft through the frozen soil and then make a tunnel across to the imprisoned boy. This at last they succeeded in doing, lifting the child to the surface, and placing him in the arms of his mother.

A scene like that stirs all our sympathy; but how many look on with indifference when a child is caught, sinking slowly but surely, in the pit of a careless and sinful life? Do men give up their hours and days to effect a rescue? Do women gather for agonized prayer? And yet the second case is infinitely more tragic than the first, as much more as the immortal soul outweighs in value the mortal body.

Prayer—Cause us, O Lord, to realize the real perils. Make us to see the true values. Oh, may we share the passion of thy evangel.—Amen.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

SAFE LETTER-CARRIERS.

"Establish my footsteps in thy word."—Read Psalm 119:129-136.

It has been discovered in Boston that, though twelve thousand persons were injured by automobiles on the streets of that city last year, only three of the six hundred letter-carriers of the city have been hurt while crossing streets in the last five years.

The reason is, of course, that they have learned how to cross the streets safely. They do it deliberately. They keep their wits about them. They make a business of crossing streets safely.

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Pastor.

THE INNER EYES OPENED.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"And when the centurion saw . . . he glorified God."—Luke 23:47.

Open my eyes, that I may see,
Glimpses of truth thou hast for me;
Place in my hands the wonderful key
That shall unclasp, and set me free.
Silently, now, I wait for thee,
Ready, my God, thy will to see;
Open my eyes; illumine me,
Spirit divine!

When the centurion saw Jesus as he really was, and for what he really was, he glorified God. When he saw, he praised God! I am not using those words as a text. I am using them as a plea. A plea to God for myself, and a plea to you to allow God to open your eyes that you may see. Let us really pray the stanza of the hymn quoted. "Open my eyes, illumine me, Spirit divine." Open my eyes and yours to see what? Jesus, "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief." That is a prophetic word from Isaiah, and perhaps you will say that that is my text. Jesus, a man of sorrows!

I.

Jesus was a man of sorrows at the table. We have to look deeper than the surface to see his sorrow there. The many wonderful things he did, and said, to cover up his sorrow. But his heart must have been breaking when he gave orders for the disciples to find the room and make ready for the feast. His heart must have been breaking when he saw his twelve taking their places about the table. His heart must have been breaking when he told them how he desired to eat this supper with them, for there had been developments—devilish, damning developments! His heart must have been breaking when the bread was breaking, and the thanks were being given to God. "A man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief." He must have been shaking hands with grief right then in his innermost soul.

Jesus' greatest sorrows were not derived from his enemies! Let us admit this fact with shame, for all too often it comes very near us! I repeat, Jesus' greatest sorrows were not derived from his enemies, but from his friends and followers. Sold, denied, forsaken, are three words that tell the story of what Jesus' friends did for him in his awful hour of need and crisis.

One of the very keenest sorrows that pierced the soul of the Saviour must have been for one of his own number to sell him for the price of a slave—thirty pieces of silver. He elected to be a servant! He did not have to be sold as a servant. He made that his choice. What a tragedy! That one of his very own should have taken the money into his own hand, the price of slavery! My friends, let us open our eyes, and see how Jesus' gentle heart full of infinite love must have been breaking under that most cruel cut of all. "When the centurion saw . . . he glorified God." "Thou, too, Brutus!" Yes, Judas sold his friend, and the Saviour of the world, for thirty pieces of silver.

What are we willing to sell him for? What would be our price? Oh! may the very asking of that question place a prayer in our hearts, and a faith in our God that will keep us from ever selling him out! Jesus did not say, "You have tried to make me a servant by selling me for the price of a slave; now then, I will not be a servant." No, he did not say that. He went right ahead, taking upon himself the form of a servant, and said, "I came not to be served, but to give my life a ransom for many." "And when the centurion saw . . . he glorified God."

II.

Jesus was a man of sorrows at his triumph. In the Garden, I mean, but at the "triumph," I say, for that was an hour of triumph, indeed! Sick, and bruised, and broken, and sad, Jesus sought his way into the Garden of Gethsemane! And God closed the door, and the eyes of sleeping disciples. "Enter into your closet, and shut the door, and pray: and your Father which seeth in secret will reward thee openly." God closed the door. What closet had Jesus, who had no place to lay his head? Into the closet of the darkness of the dense olive grove went the Son of God, and God himself hung the curtain of the night against his back, and Jesus went forward a little and fell on his face and prayed. And how he prayed! What utterances must have gone up to his Father from the infinitely merciful and loving heart of Jesus. For you and for me he prayed. For James, and John, and Peter he prayed. For the unnumbered millions for whom he was tasting death, he prayed. For the sickening, blighting, burning, breaking sins of earth, he prayed. A cup of iniquity to be poured upon his soul! "He took upon him the iniquity of us all." "The man in whose hand the cup is found, the same shall be my servant." "If it is possible, let this cup pass from me, but if not, thy will be done."

Yes, Jesus was a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief. He was not shaking hands with grief now; he was grappling with it. He was fighting your battle and mine! And thanks be unto God, he was winning! For the angels came and ministered unto him. In the night the angels came. Have you noticed how angels came to the Son of Man, and the saints of God in the night? In the night of sorrow and heartbreak, the angels have come—to Jacob, lonely and driven from home; to Jacob again, afraid and driven to home; to David; to Paul; to Jesus—have they come. "This night an angel of God stood by my side." And Jesus had won the moral, mental, spiritual battle—the remainder was divinely performing for you and me, and physically bearing the pains of death. "A man of sorrows," indeed! And yet a Saviour triumphant!

Will we not open our eyes, and see? Will we not say, "Thank you, Lord?" Will we not witness by word, and act, and deed, our gratitude to him? Will we not make it one hundred per cent for Christ by laying the greatest gift we have—more valuable than all the gold of the earth, besides—at his feet? And what a gift is that? Our lives!

Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all.

III.

Jesus was a man of sorrows at the trials, and on the tree! What travesties were the trials of Jesus. They were insulting outbursts of insolent mobs, with the soldiery of Rome acting as court fools to make the scene complete. "Open my eyes, illumine me," that I may see how Jesus is still on trial at the courts of the human hearts of the earth. "Open my eyes, that I may see" that it is worse to malign Jesus today than it was then. It must have given Jesus pain to see what fools were his foes. But the real sorrow must have been that which came from knowing that followers of his had forsaken him and fled; that when the first ill wind of oppression came, not merely the "loaves and fishes" followers were gone, but his innermost circle itself had broken and fled.

What a holiday it was for the soldiers! In the laughing business of taking orders from long-bearded Jews, and making mockery of the word "king", while the Jews overlooked the insult of it, in order that they might go ahead with their ugly business. How the centurion must have seen the joke! Bitter enemies among the ruling class of Jews becoming warm friends to make fools of themselves, and stultify common justice. But it would be only a day's work for his soldiers—a breaking of many weeks and months of monotony. They caught the spirit of it. They mocked Jesus, tying his hands and placing a reed-

(Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10. . . . . 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim. . . . . 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
- Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. . 11.00
- Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85. . . 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. . 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim. . . . . $ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim. . . . . 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined. . . . . 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Who can deny the plea of a little child? Jesus did not. When the mothers brought their little children to him, he did not turn them away, but took them up in his arms and blessed them. When the disciples tried to hinder the mothers from bothering him, Jesus rebuked them and said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Jesus, though busy as he was, took time to bless the little children.

The late Edwin Gould, of New York City, a man worth millions, was never happier than when surrounded by a group of little children. Orphan and needy children was one of his hobbies. We will always remember the day he spent at the Christian Orphanage and the good time he had pulling jokes on the little children. We all fell very much in love with him. He was so plain and easy of approach. He accumulated millions, but never got above or forgot the orphan and needy child. He visited and helped many institutions of charity throughout the country.

Mr. J. B. Duke started out in life a poor boy but accumulated millions and when he established his great foundation, he remembered the orphan child and made due provisions for it in his foundation, and more than five thousand children in North Carolina and South Carolina, in orphanages, are assisted. With great wealth at his command, he did not forget the child that was poor and orphaned.

Dear reader, you may not be able to do big things in life; but have you ever read in the Good Book that the two hundred of David's soldiers who did not cross over the stream, but stayed by the stuff, received as great reward as the four hundred who crossed over and captured the enemy and recovered the wives and children of the soldiers and took the spoils of the enemy? Do you know that when the collection plate is passed in your church for the benefit of the Orphanage that if you give an offering, and it is the best you can do according to the means you may have, that your reward will be as great as the man who gives many times as much.

Don't forget your Orphanage. It needs you. The little children are appealing to you.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

The following items have been sent in since our last report:

Mrs. J. Alec Holt, Burlington, N. C., 1½ gallons preserves.

Ladies' Aid Society, Mt. Bethel Church, Summerfield, N. C., 1 boy's suit, eight shirts, 1 pair pillow cases.

First Christian Church, Norfolk, Va., 1 raincoat, two suits, one dress, one overcoat.

Mr. Walter R. Sellars, Burlington, N. C., 1 boy's raincoat.

Miss Margaret Craven, Coleridge, N. C., 2 dresses.

Mrs. M. R. Rives, Graham, N. C., 5 dresses, 1 blouse, one raincoat.

Mrs. R. T. Brittle Dendron, Va., Union (Surry) Sunday School, 2 towels, 5 dresses.

Junior Missionary Society, First Congregational-Christian Church, Newport News, Va., 20 towels, 2 bath cloths.

Miss Lydia Cresswell, Hook's Mill, W. Va., 5 dresses, 1 pair shoes.

Elon College Missionary Society, Circle No. 1, Mrs. Dwight W. Steere, Leader, Elon College, N. C., 8 pieces material, 2 dresses, 1 piece lace, 1 pair of bloomers.

Cary Christian Church, Cary, N. C., 12 misses' dresses.
Mr. J. M. Darden, Suffolk, Va., 45 gallons paint.

Mr. J. I. Branch, Garner, birthday offering, 1 penny for each year .76
Mr. C. M. Horner, Burlington, payment on Thanksgiving pledge.. 25.00
Mrs. Dalton, support children..... 12.50
Mr. Sam G. Moore, Burlington, payment on Thanksgiving pledge 15.00

---

83.26
Total for the week ..... $ 148.64
Grand total ..... $ 2,161.18

REPORT FOR MARCH 29, 1934.

Brought forward ..... $ 2,012.54

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Pleasant Ridge .....$ 1.19
Greensboro, Palm St. .... 6.00

---

7.19

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Hermon .....$ 4.00
Anburn ..... 1.65
Liberty Vance ..... 4.22
Youngsville ..... 2.00
New Hill ..... 8.40

---

20.27

Western North Carolina Conference:
Ramseur .....$ 4.77
Shiloh ..... 1.00

---

5.77

Eastern Virginia Conference:
Bethlehem .....$ 8.94
Wakefield ..... 1.08
Berea, Nansemond ..... 5.00
Holy Neck ..... 6.27

---

21.29

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Winchester .....$ 4.37
Newport ..... 1.52

---

5.89

Alabama Conference:
Pisgah ..... 3.97

Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Vaneeville ..... 1.00

Special Offerings.
Mr. C. D. Johnston, Elon College..$ 5.00
Mr. C. M. Horner, Burlington.... 25.00

EASTER AT CHAPEL HILL.

For years our Chapel Hill Church has celebrated Easter by holding the only early morning service in the University City. To this service choirs and people from other churches contribute much toward its success. This year a very unusual feature will be the coming of one of America's greatest preachers to the pulpit, Dr. Percival Huget, of New York City.

For years Dr. Huget has been the pastor of the largest Congregational Church in this country, Tompkins Avenue Church, Brooklyn. The present membership is 2,616, as reported in the last Year Book. Dr. Huget will preach in the morning at 7:30, and again in the evening, at 7:30. All the people of the church, and many members of the University faculty and student body are interested in these services. And, better still, it is proposed to keep Dr. Huget in Chapel Hill for the full month of April, and possibly longer.

It is a rare opportunity for people of this section of North Carolina to listen to one of the world's great preachers. It will be a wonderful month for Chapel Hill. Our church there is to be thanked and congratulated for bringing this man to our State's educational center. M. J. S.

HOLMAN SUPERIOR TEACHERS' BIBLES

Authorized Version—Self-Pronouncing

The Best Editions of the World's Best Book

For Adults, Teachers, Preachers, Students, and All Who Would Study the Word of God Intelligently

BOLD BLACK TYPE—COMPACT SIZE 4½x6¾ INCHES—WILL FIT THE COAT POCKET

Part page specimen of Holman Boldblack Type Bible
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

13 And leaving Náz'a-réth, he came and dwelt in Cá-pér'na-úm, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Záb'u-lon and Neph'tha-lim:	A. D. 31.	934 CHAPTER 5.
14 That it might be fulfilled	CHAP. 4.	3 Who are blessed. 13 The disciples called the salt of the earth, and light of the world; Christ urgeth on them a good example, etc.
	Isa. 9. 1, 2.	AND seeing the multitudes; A he went up into a moun-

THIS NEW HOLMAN TEACHERS' BIBLE, Pronouncing Text, Bold Black Type is a PRONOUNCED SUCCESS. The latest Bible with NEW HELPS that are quite comprehensive and consist of an Illustrated Bible Dictionary, Concordance and additional aids all under ONE ALPHABETICAL INDEX. Also Fine Maps on Coated Paper, and a specially prepared BIBLE READING COURSE, intended to stimulate and maintain interest in the Bible. Imported Bible paper is used to improve opacity and keep down bulk. By this means you get the benefit of full Biblical information without the physical discomfort of handling a heavy volume.

STYLES AND PRICES—BIBLE PAPER EDITION

4612. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$4.00
4630. Same as 4612, with extra leather lined covers.....	4.75
THIN INDIA PAPER EDITION
With Helps as described above. Size 4½x6¾ inches. One inch in thickness
630X. Egyptian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker.....	7.00
633X. Algerian Morocco, divinity circuit, leather lining to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, extra quality binding.....	8.00

EXTRA LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' BIBLES

Large 8 Vo. Size—8x5½ inches—1600 Pages, including 400 pages of Bible Study Helps

Part Page Specimen of Print
ST. MATTHEW, 5. Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 The land of Záb'u-lon, and the land of Neph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jór'dan, Gál'i-lee of the Gén'tiles;	A. D. 31.	2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
	Isa. 9. 1, 2.	3 Blessed are the poor in spirit:
	Luke 2. 32.	for their's is the kingdom of heaven.
	Mark 1. 14.

Extra spacing between words and lines makes this Bible very easy to read.

CONTAINING COMPLETE HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY, INCLUDING ALL OF THE FOLLOWING FEATURES
A New Practical Course in Bible Reading, A Treasury of Biblical Information. The most carefully compiled, thorough and attractive form in which valuable Biblical information has ever been prepared. Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary Containing 150 illustrations, concise definitions and textual references on nearly 50,000 subjects. A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references. Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible Readers.

STYLES AND PRICES

4712. Divinity Circuit (overlapping covers), French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, silk head bands, and silk marker..	$5.00
812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages alluded to by Christ, various prophecies relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above on 4712 and same large Self-Pronouncing type.....	6.00
733X. Holman India Paper, Genuine Morocco, leather lined, silk sewed, divinity circuit, round corners carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and helps as above .....	10.65

All styles sent Postpaid at above prices—Thumb Index 50 cents extra

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

considers the most meaningful Bible passage for a young man or woman who wants to grow as a Christian every day and to tell why the choice was made.

A Story With a Message.

Mary Slessor, a Scotch lassie, dreamed of becoming a missionary to Calabar on the West Coast of Africa. In spite of heavy home duties and long days at work in the mill, her desire grew stronger each passing day. She never ceased to pray that some day she could go to Calabar and every bit of spare time she had was spent in study of her Bible. One day when a friend of hers asked for something to read, she handed her a Bible and said: "Take that; it has made me a changed lassie." Finally the dream came true and she sailed away from her beloved Scotland for Calabar. She was frail and alone, but her faith was too strong to let fear enter her heart. She once wrote to a friend at home: "We are not really apart, for you can touch God direct by prayer, and so can I." And then, too, she had her Bible, which grew more wonderful to her every day.

Mary Slessor had always been a profound student of the Bible, and when she began her mission work, her study increased. Early in the morning, just as soon as it was light enough, she would take her Bible, a fine pen, and some ink, and begin her study of either the Old or New Testaments. She underlined the governing words and sentences as she went along in her endeavor to grasp the meaning of the writer and the course of his argument; word by word, sentence by sentence, she patiently followed his thought. Then she noted whatever she had learned from the text on the margins of the pages. Many of the Bibles which Mary Slessor used are still in existence today. Each page is filled with underlined words and notes, such as, "We must see and know Christ before we can teach," "The secret of all failure is disobedience," "God is never behind time." So Mary Slessor studied through her Bible. As soon as she had finished with one, she took up another and began once more. Each time new thoughts came to her and passages which had been difficult became suddenly clear. She never hurried with her study. Often she spent several days on a chapter, but its meaning and message were stamped on her mind and heart with an indelibility that could not be destroyed.

What is your plan of making Bible study effective in your Christian living?

Adapted from Sunday School Herald.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

scepter therein, then filed by in turn taking the "scepter" from his hand, and smiting him over the head with it as they cried—Jews looking on—"Hail the king of the Jews!" How they must have spat the word "Jews," as they spat upon the face of the gentle Saviour!

They scourged him with their cruelest instruments of torture, and bound a tree to his mangled, bleeding back, and commanded him to "Carry." "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; by his stripes we are healed." They nailed him to the cross. They mocked his mighty power to come down; beneath his eyes they cast lots for his earthly estate! What a kingdom—only a seamless garment! A coat, and it discarded! But the kingdoms of the earth shall become the Kingdom of our Lord! 'Twas a small beginning, but an infinitely great beginning, for "When the centurion saw what had been done, he glorified God." Already the thief had been won, and now the centurion, and soon the disciples will be "given power," along with their three-fold forgiveness, and the calendars of the earth will be adjusted to Bethlehem, and Christianity will be on its triumphant march!

And it will march on the loyalty, and love of just such men and women, and boys and girls as you and I may, by the grace of God, prove ourselves to be. God give us grace to see our part, our place, our duty! God give us the opening of our inner eyes, in order that seeing we may glorify God with our lives, knowing that he will give us grace for every hour of need. We need a Redeemer, a Saviour—our sinful selves testify eloquently to that. "And when the centurion saw how he died, he said, 'Truly, this man was the Son of God.'" A few days later, when he had been resurrected from the tomb, Thomas said,

"My Lord, and my God." Will we not open our eyes, too, then, and accept him as our Saviour and Redeemer?

THE FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

In this they are to be imitated by those who cross the thronged and perilous highways of the spirit. Dangers meet one at every turn. Policemen are few. Crowds are selfish and heedless. But if our footsteps are established in God's Word, if we take the Bible for our guide, no harm will befall us, and we shall reach our home in peace.

Prayer—May we rest on thee, thou Leader of men. May our souls be directed by thy truth. May we walk in the spirit all our days.

—AMOS R. WELLS.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

Central Publishing Co., Inc., is complying with the President's Code

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. . . . . Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. . . . . Associate
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. . . . . Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE . . . . . Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year . . . . . $2.00
Six Months . . . . . 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

WILLIAMS.

Mr. John Hunter Williams was born June 15, 1874, and died March 11, 1934, at Morganton, N. C., at the age of 59 years, 8 months and 27 days.

On December 28, 1899, Miss Martha A. Fogg became his wife. One child blessed this union. Mrs. Williams departed February 5, 1907. In September, 1908, he was married to Mollie Bell Miller. Two children were born to this union. His last wife survives him with one brother and two sisters. C. J. Williams, Wentworth, N. C., Route 1; Mrs. J. C. Madison, Wentworth, N. C., Route 1; Sallie A. Williams, Morganton, N. C. When a young man, he professed faith in Christ at Howard's Chapel, joining the church at that time, but later withdrew of his own accord.

He expressed his desire to go home to God, and be with the redeemed.

Services were conducted at Howard's Chapel in his memory and interment was made in the church cemetery.

May the Lord comfort the bereaved.

L. L. WYRICK.

MORGAN.

Seth Augustus Morgan, son of the late William and Mary Jane Morgan, died at his home near Holland, Va., on March 8, 1934, age 74 years. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Holy Neck Christian Church, and the burial was in the church cemetery.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Addie Haskette Morgan, one son, Hilton A. Morgan, one brother, William F. Morgan, and one grandchild, Mildred Juanita Morgan, all of Holland, R. F. D.

Mr. Morgan was formerly a member of Middle Swamp Baptist Church, Gates County, N. C. He was recognized in his community as a good man, kind and generous in his home, an obliging neighbor, and a quiet and peaceful citizen. May our heavenly Father comfort and keep his loved ones.

N. G. NEWMAN.

WHITFIELD.

Mrs. Virginia Jermergan Whitfield, daughter of Henry and Nancy Holland Jermergan, of Nansemond County, and widow of Manning D. Whitfield, died at Weldon, N. C., February 23, 1934, aged 70 years. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Holy Neck Christian Church, of Nansemond County, Va., and the burial was in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Whitfield leaves two children, Edward and Birdie Whitfield, Weldon, N. C., and two brothers, Charles E. Jermergan, R. 3, Franklin, Va., and John B. Jermergan, Portsmouth, Va. Mrs. Whitfield was a member of Holy Neck Christian Church. N. G. NEWMAN.

How many a man dreams he can influence children by the precepts that fall from his lips! Child life is never so influenced. How many a man imagines he can influence his children, friends, neighbors, acquaintances, by what he desires they should think him to be! No man does so influence any of his fellows. How many a man, for long years, has kept up an outward appearance of morality and respectability, yea, even of religion, while his heart has not been cleansed; and in the deep recess of his nature there have lurked, dominating all his impulses of that life, things low, and base, and impure! Tell me, how has that man influenced other men? Has he influenced them by what he has appeared to be, or by what he has really been? Without a moment's hesitation I assert he has influenced men by what he has been within himself. Not by the appearance which was a lie, but by the baseness which was the truth of his life. Has he influenced children and friends and acquaintances.—G. Campbell Morgan.

People talk about the sanctifying influence of sickness. Undoubtedly it has a place in our spiritual discipline, but it is negative rather than positive, and corrective rather than quickening. It is often God's check upon the wilful spirit and the headlong course of disobedience; but after a time, if its voice is not obeyed, it becomes hardening rather than sanctifying, depressing rather than inspiring.—A. B. Simpson.

God speaks to us most directly in that which is nearest to us. Straining out to find him in the remote, the extraordinary, the supernatural, however it may pass for piety is the reverse of true piety.—H. W. Thomas.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

SECOND SEMESTER—JANUARY 31st.

SUMMER TERM—JUNE 11th.

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

The Summer Term, continuing for six and nine weeks, affords opportunity for college and professional study and invigorating recreation.

From six to twelve hours of credit may be earned. Special courses in Elementary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education. Public School Music and Art; School and Playground Games; Athletic Coaching.

For Fall Term or Summer Bulletin, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

Southern Seminary Foundation

(Successor to Atlanta Theological Seminary.)

AFFILIATED WITH

Vanderbilt University

The Foundation and the other Foundations that are affiliated with Vanderbilt University School of Religion comprise the only Interdenominational Theological School in the South. Through this affiliation the students enjoy the rights and privileges of Vanderbilt University.

DEGREES.

Candidates for degrees are required to have completed their college courses.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity is offered to qualified students who complete the required courses.

Vanderbilt University also offers the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, in accordance with the regulations established in its several departments.

MORE THAN A SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Because of our affiliation with Vanderbilt, our relations with other nearby colleges where our students can take courses without tuition, and the cooperation of the American Red Cross and other social agencies in the city, we prepare students for many types of Christian service.

For information write

WILLIAM JAMES CAMPBELL, President,
330 BUTTRICK HALL, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXVI.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1934.

NUMBER 14.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

A Miniature Camera, Indeed.—

Only recently a miniature camera designed to take pictures on the inside of the stomach was tried out in a Philadelphia hospital. It is said to have been a practical success. The camera is two inches long, but only a half-inch in diameter, being cylindrical in shape. It contains a lens, a roll of film and a miniature flash bulb. It takes sixteen pictures in a space of time less than one-hundredth of a second.

The President On Vacation.—

The President has been for the past week fishing and cruising in the waters of the Caribbean Sea. It was expected that he would return to Washington not later than the 6th of April, but, according to official reports, things are going so satisfactorily in Washington, and the President is enjoying himself so much, that it has been decided to delay his return until the last of next week. The President is on the yacht Nourmahal, as the guest of Vincent Astor.

Advance.—

The first issue of the oldest religious publication in America reached our desk as we were going to press. The statement seems paradoxical, yet it is true, for The Herald of Gospel Liberty, its direct forerunner, would be 126 years old at this time, and the new paper carries the following: "Vol. 126, New Series, April 5, 1934, No. 1." The mast-head tells us that "Advance is the National Weekly organ of the Congregational and Christian Churches of America, and continues The Congregationalist (1849), The Herald of Gospel Liberty (1808), The Recorder (1816), and The Advance (1867)." The representative of the Congregationalists and Christians of the Southeast, which is ninety years old itself, wishes for its elder brother the best of wishes—that it may continue for the next 126 years the work which it has done in the past.

Recovery Is Certain.—

Such leaders as Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation, seem to be of the opinion that business recovery is well on the way, and that the country is definitely emerging from the depression which has held it for the past three or more years. Taylor, speaking before the annual meeting of his company's stockholders, which met this week, said that revival was no longer a matter of opinion, but a matter of fact. Mr. Sloan, while criticising some of the aspects of the "recovery program," said in his annual report that "industrial recovery is under way with irresistible force." Other lesser great lights in the industrial world have also issued statements that are most encouraging. Unless the natural course of events is handicapped by political meddling, labor agitation, or some other outside forces which can offset the present upward trend, the country is in a fair way for a period of prosperity.

A New Language.—

The Manchester Guardian for February 2, 1934, contains an interesting article on the Etruscan language, which states that for the first time scholars are now able to understand the meaning of the pre-Roman inscriptions which have hitherto baffled them. Up to the present time, all efforts to read Etruscan have been failures. Now, however, an Italian scholar, Professor Francesco Pironti, has found the key to the language and has thus unlocked another of the world's great literatures. The Etruscans prepared the way for the Romans in Italy, and while they have not left many records of their history, the new discovery should prove of incalculable value, in reconstructing the life story of the primitive European people.—Exchange.

The College Woman and Marriage.—

Prior to 1920, the number of college women who married was proportionately considerably below the number of non-college women, and the average number of their children was less than one to a family. Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar College, asserts that today the college woman "is just as likely to marry as if she didn't go to college, and is just as much interested in children." He continues: "Psychology has helped her enormously. The little child has led in psychology in recent years. The American college curriculum has been revolutionized through the reevaluation by the students themselves of their own lives, their own interests and their own needs." Since 1920, the average number of children in the families of college women has increased to 2.1.

Boost in Income Taxes Urged.—

As the revenue bill was taken up the first of this week by Congress, it was immediately barraged by numerous amendments. Among these was one to increase the income tax rates by as much as 50 per cent. Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, proposes an increase in the normal income tax rate from 4 per cent to 6 per cent, and an increase in surtaxes all along the line. With a maximum of 79 per cent on incomes over one million dollars a year as against 59 per cent which the present bill provides. Senator Nye, of North Dakota, would increase all income taxes by 100 per cent in times of war, and would raise the rate to 98 per cent on all incomes over $10,000 for the duration of hostilities. Other amendments as radical as these were among those offered. There is evidence that the government should and must do something to redistribute the wealth of the nation on a more equitable basis, but measures that are confisca-tory will never attain the object desired. Statesmen are needed to work out such plans as necessary to carry out such a program; it should not be toyed with as a political plaything.

The Church Racket.—

Mr. Earl Wood Evans, the president of the American Bar Association, has stirred up a good deal of noise by advising members of the legal profession to go to church in order to secure clients. He admits that this is called the church racket and says: "What of it, as long as you are getting business in a quiet, genteel way?" We have an idea that there was a strain of irony in the remarks of the attorney which most of his critics did not perceive. Nevertheless, since there are "rackets" in everything else it is not inconceivable that there may be one in the church. Certain individuals profited by religious adjustments of this sort during the New Testament Era, if we may accept the evidence furnished by Dr. Luke and his associates. Some of the people criticised for these practices, if our recollection is accurate, were lawyers. Mr. Evans, of course, does not approve "rackets" of any kind, and least of all, one in his own profession. In the future, however, he should express himself with less subtlety, as the American public and especially the theologically minded end of it, is not infrequently lacking in a delicate sense of humor.—Frederick D. Kershner, in The Christian-Evangelist.

Cordell Hull Promotes Japanese Friendship.—

Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, experienced Washington correspondents, write that Secretary of State Cordell Hull has set up the ideal of improved Japanese-American relationships as one of his great goals. If Mr. Hull is as successful with Japan as he has been with Latin American countries, he will have done a good job. Certainly the task is one to which someone in the government may well devote himself. Incidentally, Mr. Hull knows, as does any reasonably well informed person, that one of the premier talking points of the Japanese jingoists is the American oriental exclusion law. Quietly investigating, he has discovered, say Messrs Pearson and Allen, that repeal of the law, in so far as it affects Japan, would not land a single additional Japanese in frightened California. Whether this is correct or not we do not know; on the face of the thing we have some doubts. But we feel now as we have felt for years that the oriental exclusion law is a serious mistake. Orientals, having heard some millions of words about "white supremacy," are particularly sensitive about discriminations, and there ought to be some way of accomplishing what we feel is necessary without offending other nations' feelings.—The Christian Evangelist.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Many pastors made an effort to get the envelopes distributed and are making an honest, faithful effort to secure a liberal missionary offering in order that the cause of Missions at home and abroad may not further suffer nor be curtailed. Only through cooperation shall we have victory.

Our La Grange, Ga., United Church has voted its pastor, Rev. Jesse H. Dollar a two-months' vacation this summer, so that he may take a trip to the Holy Land. Considerate folks; happy pastor! And besides giving the vacation the church joins in helping their pastor bear the expenses of the trip.

A Christian Life Conference of the Georgia Congregational-Christian Churches is to be held at Jones Chapel, Woodbury, Ga., April 27th-28th. The general subject is, "A Life of Christian Service." The Conference begins at 4 P. M., Friday, the 27th, and continues through until noon Sunday, the 29th.

Did your pastor distribute the envelopes? Was the annual offering taken for Missions in your church at Easter? Are we going to enjoy the blessings in the thought of a risen Lord without denying ourselves and making a gift that he may be glorified and that his name may be carried to the uttermost parts?

Our Christian Orphanage rejoices in a timely gift of $1,829.29 from the Duke Foundation, which the past week gave handsome and helpful sums to forty-five orphan homes in the Carolinas. The Foundation is non-denominational and interracial, and shares its beneficence with Catholic and Protestant, white and colored, alike, and therein is a lesson for the church.

Dr. James H. Lightbourne, pastor of our Burlington Church, held a communion service, which was very largely attended, at 7:30 on the evening of March 29th. It was, indeed, a solemn, sweet, and sacred service. There were ten deacons and a good audience present, and the service was conducted in a way and manner to bring all into a more sacred nearness and relationship with our Lord, who instituted this solemn sacrament.

Rev. A. D. Woodworth, now living happily at his home, Merom, Ind., after forty years of service as a missionary in Japan, says: "The union (merger) in Japan has been a complete success in the wider fellowship, in the satisfaction our men feel in being on the same retiring basis and in the urge to be independent. In ten years it is expected that all our Japanese churches will be independent. To me, personally, it has been both delightful and inspiring. So I hope all the difficulties that may loom up everywhere in the matter of our complete merging may be ironed out. We are quite established in our own home again after a lapse of forty-one years, in property belonging to the Mission. The scales tell me I weigh even two hundred, but I enjoy my thirty-five-year-old bicycle just the same as when I got it, and as I did on the by-ways and highways as a missionary in Japan."

The Winter Park, Fla., Congregational Church, at a recent meeting, which was largely attended voted unanimously and very heartily to call Rev.

Victor B. Chicoine, of Lyndonville, Vt., to the pastorate of the church. Mr. Chicoine has indicated that he will accept the call and will begin service with the church June 1st. Mr. Chicoine is a young man who studied at Boston University and Boston Divinity School, and has held successful pastorates at Lynn, Mass., and at Lyndonville, Vt., where he has been pastor for the last six years. He comes very highly recommended by many people in the New England area. He and Mrs. Chicoine have recently spent two weeks as guests of the Winter Park Church. Mr. Chicoine will succeed Rev. Clarence A. Vincent, D. D., who on March 3rd, closed a pastorate of seventeen years. The Winter Park Church is one of our strong Southern churches and is well organized and, especially during the winter season, has large congregations.

We are indebted to the pastor, Rev. J. H. Dollar, for a beautiful copy of The United Voice, the monthly publication of our United Congregational-Christian Church, La Grange, Ga. From

UNITED CHURCH HYMN.

The music for the following hymn was written by Mrs. H. A. Siddell, and the words are by J. Edward Kirbye:

For faith and freedom which we share,
For those whose lives are spirit thrilled—
We lift our hearts in grateful prayer,
And pray that we may always build.

As here we meet in friendship strong,
And seek the truth with hearts aflame;
We lift our hearts to conquer wrong,
And seek to know Christ's holy name.

And in this house with childhood love;
With youthful spirit all aglow;
Give always blessing from above,
That larger life may ever grow.

May light within be shining bright,
And rising hope fill every day;
The building of the kingdom right,
With Christ, our Guide, upon the way.

the "Pastor's Message" to his people on page two of The Voice, the following is taken: "The next thing I have in mind is the fact that with March began the Missionary Period in our Southern work. We shall study missions. We shall preach missions. We shall have our vision extended and our missionary spirit enlarged. We have not done our share. We have excused ourselves because we had a neck-breaking burden. But we no longer have it. We need rather to be burdened about our obligations and privileges to send the gospel to others. If you do not 'believe' in missions, won't you please write your objections and hand them to me or place them in the offering plate? If you will do that I may be able to help you. I shall at least have an opportunity to understand."

The following from Greensboro Daily News, March 15th, tells of an interesting event in our Greensboro Church. And the event was greatly enhanced by having Mrs. Scott, who is an adept in presenting the worth and message of missionary literature: The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Christian Church yesterday heard about something new in the way of an educational venture that is being carried on in Africa by Miss Mabel Shaw, of London, England. Information about this school was given in the form of a review of Miss Shaw's book, 'God's Candlelights,' which was presented by Mrs. W. T. Scott, of Winston-Salem, wife of the pastor of the Christian Church in that city. The group was delighted by Mrs. Scott's discussion. Miss Shaw has been connected with a mission school at Bantu, Africa, for the past 17 years. Mrs. Scott brought out the fact that the method used in the school is to teach the Africans by taking something that they like and building onto it. For instance, they adore their chief, and the teacher takes advantage of this by telling the natives about the great chief, God. The Africans readily grasp this and refer to God as 'Chief.' Mrs. Scott's review of the book also went into a discussion of the tribes, the belief in spirits and the various festivals held by the Africans. The session opened at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and continued into the afternoon, lunch being served at noon in the church dining hall. Mrs. John R. Foster, vice-president of the society, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. O. H. Paris, who was unable to be present. The opening worship was led by Mrs. Grace Stewart."

DR. WOODWORTH AT HOME.

Rev. A. D. Woodworth, D. D., and his good wife, now on the retired list of our faithful missionaries, after forty years of devoted and sacrificial service in the name of their Lord in far-away Japan, are now located at Merom, Ind. A recent letter from Dr. Woodworth says:

"Well, we are at Merom again and have bought a house in which we may spend the remainder of our days on earth. At present, we are camped down on the farm with our relatives, generally drink Jersey milk—three or four cups at a meal. For exercise, I work at nearly all kinds of farm labor. A few days ago, in a big wind, I was loading corn-fodder and was blown off the wagon twice in one forenoon. Some of my critics suggested that I might have been drinking 'hooch'! A further proof lay in the fact that when I was requested to drive the car into the garage, I bumped it against the coal shed.

"I still visit the churches when they have the temerity to call me, and I ride in all makes of autos there are. Many a chicken has already come to a sudden end because of my approach. I do not seem to have money enough to attract the gangsters who thrive so thickly in these parts. I suppose that in the Sunny South, you are all too civilized to have them. Some of our friends write us they would like for us to come back to Japan, but I tell them I think I can find mischief enough to do here."

How happy we, of the civilized South, would be to have Dr. Woodworth with us for a few weeks to tell us in our churches, missionary societies and Sunday Schools, something of the work he has done, and we are doing, in giving the gospel of the Son of God to the Japanese, and sharing with them the Bread of Life.

TREASURES.

Chrysostom, summoned before the Roman emperor, Arcadius, and threatened with banishment, is said to have replied:

"Thou canst not banish me, for the world is my Father's house."

"Then I will slay thee," exclaimed the emperor, wrathfully.

"Nay, but thou canst, for my life is hid with Christ in God."

"Your treasures shall be confiscated," was the grim reply.

"Sir, that cannot be. My treasures are in heaven, as my heart is there."

"But I will drive thee from men, and thou shalt have no friends left."

"That you cannot do, either, sire; for I have a Friend in heaven, who has said, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee'."—Clipped.

THE TEST OF HUMANITY.

By TIMOTHY THOMAS.

For many months humanity has been at the crossroads, not knowing which way to go. The course now having been decided upon—a course of changed ideas, a course of live and let live—the time of testing is at hand. That test is a willingness to adapt ourselves to the new order and to appropriate the opportunity of the new time.

The old idea that nature cannot be changed must pass with the old order. That time-worn theory must be discarded. The nature of man is in his heart. It is a change of heart that is necessary to insure safety on the road which we have closed to travel. Without that change of heart we cannot avoid disastrous wrecks that have wrought havoc in our social and economic order in the past.

Collapse of business and investigations during the past two years have resulted in exposures that have been sordid and shocking. If these exposures of double-dealing, unethical financing, and near treason, are to be avoided, the heart of humanity must be changed. If questionable practices that have been brought to light do not bring a better and more intelligent understanding, and the enactment of saner laws, then we have only appeased our curiosity and shown our cruel and unjust treatment to men in public life by exposing their faults. If we fail to profit by what we have deemed to be mistakes in the dealings of others, our investigations become persecutions, and our motives for bringing about these investigations can be rated no higher than the acts and deeds of those who have been exposed. It will be to our honor and a compliment for our intelligence if we do not grow bitter toward those from whom the masks have been torn. The poise and the intelligent manner in which we accept and deal with the situation will prove our sincerity of purpose. We can at least be grateful to the erring for the lessons they have taught us. Our resentment to what has been discovered should not be lessened, but we should translate that resentment into an avoidance of what has been brought to light by these discoveries. That avoidance is wholly within the human heart, no where else. Men who have been brought to the bar of public opinion for their wrong-doings took the risk for the lack of a proper social conscience of what their acts might mean to society. When the hearts of men are wrong they will continue to commit error, even in the face of law. Selfishness is first destructive to its possessor, and this truth we must carry into the new era if we are to make that period worthy of the opportunity afforded us. We are the keeper of our brother, and the words of the Master that "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," still ring out across the centuries.

Competition is no longer the life of trade. Cooperation is now the watch-word of every intelligent and civic-minded business man. But cooperation must always come through a sympathetic understanding, and the avenue through which that sympathetic understanding must pass is a heart dedicated to unselfish purposes and worthy pursuits. It is not what we do for ourselves that counts most in the realm of success, whether that success be social or financial, but how much we do for others and how well we cooperate for their welfare and happiness.

The worth of humanity in the new era will not be compared by skyscrapers, computed in millions, nor measured in acres. The real test will come in how well we live and how much we cooperate with those on whom we depend, and who depend upon us, and whose happiness is not theirs alone to make.

IF.

If you can keep your head when all about you,
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowances for their doubting, too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give away to hating,
And yet do not look too good, nor talk too wise.
If you can dream—and not make dreams your master,
If you can think and not make thoughts your aim,
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two imposters just the same:
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build them up with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe one word about your loss;
If you can force your heart, and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn when they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the will which says to them, "Hold on!"
If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it
And—which is more—you'll be a man, my son!
—Kipling.

Many a meandering discourse one hears, in which the preacher aims at nothing—and hits it.
—Whately.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To SUN Subscribers Who Are in Arrears:

In an effort to get the subscription list on a current basis, we are making these special offers, good until January 31st, to SUN subscribers who are in arrears:
(The Offer Is Continued Until Further Notice.)

OFFER No. 1—If you are in arrears as much as two years, send us Money Order or Check for $5.00, and we will give you credit for three whole years' subscription.

OFFER No. 2—If you are a year or more in arrears, send Money Order or Check for $3.50, and we will extend your subscription two years.

OFFER No. 3—If you are as much as three years in arrears, send us $6.00, and we will extend your subscription to July 1, 1934, giving you full credit for your back account.

Letters have been sent out during the past six months to all who were as much as three years in arrears, trying to induce them by special offers, to pay up their arrearages. Quite a few have responded. Others have paid no attention at all to these letters. If by any chance you were in this class, and did not receive our letter, Offer No. 3 will enable you to put yourself back on a current basis at a nominal cost. Even if you are unable to avail yourself of this offer at present, won't you write the undersigned, explaining the situation?

If at all possible, won't you take advantage of one of these offers, thereby not only saving yourself money, but helping your Church Paper?

All Money Orders and Checks should be made payable to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and letters should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

---

RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

Name..... Special Offer No.....

Street No. or R. F. D.....

City..... State.....

Amount enclosed, $.....

If sent in by another than the subscriber, please give name and address below:

Name..... Address.....

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. C. WICKER

C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL

ELISHA A. KING

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE WORD MADE FLESH.

The Word has to be made flesh if it gets anywhere. Only the word coming out of experience reaches another. "In the spiritual realm, the purely impersonal is sterile. It is only personalized truth that is created," declares Dr. Mackay. Many of our messages are meaningless, sterile, without fruit, because they are impersonal. Psychology, sociology, biology, zoology and the other "ologies" have their place in giving valuable speculations about life; they do not give life, they will not live.

The Word of God became flesh, and he is the life. He did not say, "I will teach men truth;" he said, "I am the Truth." He did not say, "I will teach men and women the way;" he said, "I am the Way." He personalized all his teachings. He is the Living Word. The words we speak live only as they incarnate our lives, come out of our heart, live in our personality. The word we speak is life—or lifeless. It has worth—or is worthless. It all depends upon whether it is clothed with our flesh.

No man seems to have realized this more fully, more emphatically than the Apostle Paul. The life he lived was hidden with Christ in God, and his gospel was the gospel of the Son of God. And so he sometimes speaks of "my gospel," more often of "the gospel" of Another. Out of the abundance of his heart and with the power of a passion for a Person, he spoke words and wrote words that live and breathe and have meaning.

Words come to have might and meaning, not in proportion to their mental accuracy, or intellectual polish, but according to the soul that is in them and the spirit that speaks through them. We speak, therefore, that which we are. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." We give to our words only that which we ourselves have become. If we would impart the truth, we must not only know the truth; we must ourselves be the truth. If we would deliver our word to men, we must ourselves be that word, since the message and the messenger are one.

J. O. A.

RE-THINKING THE CHURCH.

We are not thinking anything these days. We are "re-thinking." Thinking seems to have gone out of fashion, which means that daring, adventure, exploring, in the field of righteousness, have become antiquated. Surveys, questionnaires, maps—these are the order of the day.

Possibly we shall profit by the errors of the past and improve on our failures, and proceed into the realms of safety. Comes now a "survey" from the Institute of Social and Religious Research of Yale University. These figures are given: "Eighty-five thousand churches in the United States are too weak to support a full-time preacher. Of all churches with full-time pastors, less than one-fourth have pastors who are seminary graduates, and less than one-sixth have men of both college and seminary training. There are now between forty thousand and fifty thousand ministers (mostly of the untrained type—some well trained) that are without pulpits."

The "survey" shows that to support a minister, the church needs three hundred and fifty members, and only thirteen per cent of all churches for whites have a membership of that size. A drab picture, that. If you wish the church painted in gray, and the picture colored in black, bring it under the hand of the sociologist, the surveyor, the intelligentsia.

The church is having a hard struggle. It has always had that. It is having its trials and its tribulations. It has always had them. And, certainly, in these beneficent days, when benevolence is obvious, and spirituality is discounted, the church may appear weak and to some quite impotent. However, the church is not weak, for it is the body of Christ, and his body survived the crucifixion, and he is the Risen as well as the Crucified One. He, it is, who is building the church and gave his life for it. It is well enough for us to think about the church and discover its weaknesses and its frailties, but we shall not forget that it is of divine origin, was founded of our Lord, and is being carried on in and through him, who is its life, its passion and its power. Meanwhile let us go forward with Christ, looking unto him who is the Author and Finisher of our faith.

J. O. A.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST PERIL.

There are numerous perils at present in various countries of the earth, but there is a peril that looms now above the horizon and threatens the world. We refer to the peril of war. The actual facts are simply appalling and seem difficult, indeed, to visualize especially as we yet live in the memory of the World War with its unspeakable tragedies. Every nation is arming as never before; and world travelers declare that the stronger nations especially are feverishly arming and equipping themselves with all the expensive paraphernalia of war.

There are more troops armed and equipped in the nations of Europe today than there were in 1913. Great Britain, through her Prime Minister, and others with the weight of government upon their shoulders, declare that the war clouds are lowering, and that England must prepare for the conflict even to the verge of treaty limitations.

German, out of her war-torn fortunes and distractions, is spending millions out of an already depleted treasury to arm and equip for the war she believes is inevitable. Fiery and impulsive France realizes the gravity of the situation and is arming and equipping to the extent of her treaty limitations. The same is true of Russia, who is really expecting (at a very early date, to come to grips with Japan, and seems to be eager for the day and the event that will bring about a trial at arms with the nation of the little yellow men, with whom she tried strength and failed a few years ago. Japan is showing equal evidence of zeal and anxiety to settle scores with Russia, and is making feverish preparation for the conflict she believes is inevitable.

Our own National Congress has agreed to the petition of our army and navy officials in making enormous appropriations for building warships and sharpening the teeth of the war dogs for whatever an angry future may bring.

It is, indeed, a drab picture to look upon. The only hope of avoiding this conflict is the church of the living God, with its message of peace and good-will. Whether the church will prove its power or reveal its inadequacy is to be seen. There never was a time when the church needed, as it needs now, to present a virile and vigorous message of love and life, peace and brotherhood. If Jesus the Christ is not adequate to settle the conflicts now impending in the world, then there is no adequacy and the world is facing its greatest holocaust of all time.

J. O. A.

MOON-STRUCK FANATICS.

That is what they were called. They have been called that for many years. The prospects are that they will be called that for many years to come. Oh, the ones who used the term were quite wise and dignified enough, and the one about whom the term was used was not, at the time, held in high acclaim among the dignified of the earth.

We are now speaking about the English East India Company, who more than one hundred years ago held India in its grasps, dictated its policies and controlled its government. It does not do that any more. It is dead now. But the "moon-struck fanatic," about whom they were talking, has come to be, says a recent historian, "one of the greatest characters that ever crossed the page of time." Let us get what this East India Trading Company said about this shoe cobbler, William Carey, who went out as the first missionary in the name of the Lord to preach the gospel in India:

"The sending out of missionaries into our Eastern possessions is the maddest, most extravagant, most costly, most indefensible project which has ever been suggested by a moon-struck fanatic. Such a scheme is pernicious, imprudent, useless, harmful, dangerous, profitless, fantastic. It strikes against all reason and sound policy. It brings the safety and peace of our possessions into peril."

There are those in the world who still think the missionaries are "moon-struck folks." Possibly so. But they are changing this world and are lifting the lowly peoples to higher levels of living and activity. This adventure of William Carey's has turned out to be one of the most wholesome, the most helpful, most stupendous, most holy and divine of any of the acts of mortal man. Surely, "the foolishness of God is wiser than the wisdom of man."

J. O. A.

Satan's entering wedge is often the attempt to rob you of the joy of the Lord. Make it your aim to be a happy Christian.

EVERY MORNING NEW.

By HERMON ELDREDGE.
(A TESTIMONY.)

"Old things are passed away; Behold, all things are become new."

We were being entertained in the home of devout Scotch Presbyterians in Toronto. We went with them on the Sabbath day to their simple church service. The spirit of that church and home are blessed memories, but the years might have blotted out even these had it not been for one thing which has remained and challenged us repeatedly to enter "The Land of Beginning Again."

Simplicity with comfort was everywhere in that home. There was no hint of extravagance and yet there was no lack of the things needful. The chamber to which we retired was a cozy room. Its bed loomed large and its welcoming and roomy embrace was evidence that a bed should be the principal piece of furniture in such a room.

Some things in the day had not gone as well as we had hoped, but we were lured to slumber by the ample, downy bed and only awakened when the morning sun streamed in the window and into our eyes. As we sat up preparatory to rising, we saw a motto on the wall placed in such a way that the guest would be sure to see it and read it:

*"Let Every Morning Be Unto You
As the Beginning of Life!"*

It was the message of a great Christian soul: "No matter how dark the night—no matter how disappointment or failure or sin has marred the past—HERE'S A NEW DAY—BEGIN AGAIN!"

* * * * *

God is good in giving us our time. He might have made the years all run together into one, but instead he says: "Here's a new year—begin again." He might have made the weeks of one piece, but he didn't. He gives us a new start every seven days and says: "Here is my Sabbath—here is a new week—try again; maybe it will come out better." He might have made our days all light or all dark, but he didn't. He dimmed the day and put night on guard until the dawn came which inspired his servant to say:

*"Let Every Morning Be Unto You
As the Beginning of Life!"*

Even Shakespeare errs when he tells us that there is a tide in the affairs of men which, if taken at the flood, leads on to fortune and if that tide is missed we are bound for shallows of misery. The tides of opportunity return a thousand times to challenge us. They seek to bear us away from our littleness into their great ocean sweep of beauty and power. Walter Malone sings that challenge:

You do me wrong who say I come no more,
When once I come and fail to find you in;
For every morn I stand outside your door,
And bid you wake, and rise to fight, and win!
Weep not for precious chances passed away;
Wail not for golden moments on the wane;
Each night I burn the record of the day;
At sunrise every soul is born again!

We hark back to that motto on the wall of the little Toronto chamber as Moses might have treasured the memory of the burning bush, or as the disciples may have remembered some Galilean morning.

The poet voiced our longing when he wrote:

I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again!"

We come to every kindred longing soul with the good news that there is such a Promised Land if we will but enter it.

Every morning is "The Land of Beginning Again." God is good in giving us a new day and with it a Friend who will go with us into the uncharted path to "beset us before and behind and to place his hand upon us." (Psalm 139:5.) "Behind" to guard us from dangers we cannot see. "Before" to guide us into paths we do not know. With "his hand upon us" in fellowship in the journey—a friend growing familiar and laying his hand on our shoulder as we walk and talk along the way which he guides and guards.

*"Let Every Morning Be Unto You
As the Beginning of Life!"*

DEDICATION AT WINSTON-SALEM.

[The following from the Winston-Salem Journal, of Sunday, April 1, 1934, tells in detail the story of the dedication of the United Church Parish House and Chapel in that city, as carried out on the afternoon of the foregoing date.]

Plans having been completed, the dedicatory services of the parish house and chapel of the United Congregational-Christian Church, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The building is located on the church's lots at the corner of West Academy Street and Lockland Avenue. Congregational-Christian Church officials and many out-of-town friends were present and participated in the services. Local churchmen also participated.

The program for the day began with church school at 9:45 A. M. At 11 A. M., the morning worship was held, with sermon and declaration of Easter triumph, "The Church Bears Testimony," by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, of Elon College, mission secretary of the Southeast Convention. The choir rendered Easter music at this service.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the services of dedication of the parish house and chapel took place. Rev. Ernest M. Halliday, D. D., New York City, general secretary of the church extension boards of the Congregational-Christian Churches, delivered the sermon, using for his subject, "God, the Master Builder." The choir of the First Christian Church, of Greensboro, under the direction of H. R. Moag, presented the music for the occasion. Mrs. W. B. Truitt presided at the piano. The program for the dedicatory service follows:

Piano prelude, Prelude No. 15 (Chopin); processional hymn, "The Church's One Foundation"; call to worship by the pastor, Rev. William Tate Scott; invocation by Rev. C. F. Rogers, pastor, Tabernacle Baptist Church; anthem, "Ye Choirs of New Jerusalem" (Smart); responsive reading, led by Rev. Edgar A. Holton, pastor Ardmore Moravian Church; gloria patri; Scripture lesson, I. Kings 8:22-30, 54-60, Rev. Leon Edgar Smith, president of Elon College; prayer of devotion, Dr. J. O. Atkinson; offertory, "Beautiful Saviour" (Christianson)—a capella; greetings on behalf of Winston-Salem churches, Rev. John S. Foster, D. D., president of the local ministerial association; on behalf of neighboring Ardmore churches, Rev. M. F. Moores, D. D., pastor Ardmore M. E. Church, and on behalf of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, of which the church is a member, Rev. C. H. Rowland, D. D., conference president; anthem, "Fear Not, O Israel!" (Spicker); address, "God, the Master Builder," Dr. Ernest M. Halliday; prayer of consecration; "The Congregational-Christian Brotherhood," by Rev. Milo J. Sweet; the call to dedication and reading of the ritual; sevenfold amen; prayer of dedication, Dr. C. H. Rowland; dedication hymn, "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee"; benediction; recessional hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name"; postlude, "Marche Pontificale" (Gounod).

Rev. William Tate Scott, the pastor, has led the congregation since its beginning in 1931, and the church was formally organized October 9, 1932. He rejoices on the progress made by this young church. Starting with only a few dollars, the church within two years has made remarkable achievements. It has built up a growing congregation, and has purchased a large building site, in residential Ardmore. With the aid of the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches and the Congregational Church Building Society, the congregation built the parish house and chapel dedicated Sunday afternoon. The building which was completed and formally opened July 9, 1933, is a brick veneer structure and is on the American bungalow style of architecture, with two floors, the basement extending under the entire building.

The first floor of the building provides a beautiful and worshipful chapel auditorium with a seating capacity of over 200, and which has a church parlor separated by folding doors. The walls of the auditorium are of sand finish plaster and the woodwork painted white with dark mahogany trimmings, harmonizing with the mahogany furnishings. Back of the chancel is situated a large study used as the pastor's office. Florentine glass windows provide ample light and ventilation.

The basement floor provides room for church school departments, and is made very useable because the building site lent itself to a natural basement, thus enabling the church to get away from a dark, sunken basement.

The congregation in erecting this type of building faced the necessity of economizing, and while finances were conserved, yet the building is in keeping with the beautiful homes surrounding it, and is quite adequate for a young church. This particular type of building has combination facilities and it is hailed by leaders as a very desirable type of building for a young congregation. The edifice is so constructed that when it is outgrown as a church, and the complete church plant is erected on the corner lot of the building site, with a small expenditure it can be converted into a seven-room parsonage. In this way the congregation has provided ample room for its present activities and program and has kept away from a temporary type of building, at the same time conserving almost its entire investment.

The local congregation in having the assistance of the denominational building societies has been able to meet its building obligations to the satisfaction of all.

The organization of the United church in this city is a project growing out of the national merger of the Congregational and Christian Churches effected in 1929-31, and the local church unites the interests which both former groups had in Winston-Salem. In Piedmont North Carolina and around Winston-Salem there are many Congregational-Christian Churches and the local church provides a sort of center for this group of churches. The church also furnishes a church home for people of this faith moving into the city. The Congregational-Christian Churches offer a liberal church and free Christian message to a growing number who feel that such a church meets their religious needs.

If I have faltered more or less,
In my great task of happiness;
If I have moved among my race
And shown no glorious morning face;
If beams from happy human eyes
Books, and my food, and summer rain,
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain—
Lord, thy most pointed pleasure take,
And stab my spirit wide awake.

—Stevenson.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Easter Sunday was a beautiful day. In the Suffolk Christian Church, it was observed by an immense congregation which gathered for the 11 o'clock service by the children and young people. Years ago, Dr. Staley inaugurated a special service by the children in this church. For years it has been attended by great congregations. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Easter lilies, potted plants, ferns, baskets of flowers, and twelve singing canaries, furnished a striking background of beauty and cheerfulness. The children acquitted themselves with credit to the pleasure of those who were able to see and hear.

At 8 P. M., the choir rendered appropriate music. The following program was executed for this service: Organ prelude, "Meditation" (E. D. Sturges), Mrs. Eloise Crocker Wallace, organist; call to worship; doxology; invocation and choral response; hymn, "Christ the Lord is Risen Today"; responsive reading; evening prayer by the pastor; anthem, "Entry Into Jerusalem"; baritone solo, Robert Speight; soprano solo, Miss Susie Powell, and chorus; solo, Mrs. Paul Helman, of Greensboro, N. C.; announcements; offertory, "Elegie (Clarence Kohlmann); anthem, "Christ is Risen"; solo, Mrs. Vernon Holland, and choir; reception of new members; the Lord's Supper, meditation by Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor; hymn, "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord"; administration of the Lord's Supper, by the pastor and deacons; benediction.

Three new members were received into fellowship, making a total of fifty received by the pastor since September 1, 1933.

After Easter—what next? What followed the Easter Day after Jesus arose from the dead? What a glorious day for the disciples and the faithful women! What a wonderful walk to Emmaus! Sweet fellowship at the Supper Table with Jesus as the guest. A delightful evening. But the Lord vanished from their sight. Where did Jesus spend the night? One wonders if he went into the garden where he prayed and was betrayed! Maybe he went to the judgment hall where he was condemned, and through the streets out to Calvary, where he was crucified. The Bible is silent about all these details. But he was planning for his church. Pentecost is not far away. That is the next great landmark in the history of that period. These faithful, though troubled, believers found a new faith and a new task for the days following Easter. A new message is to be delivered by them, and they must be prepared for that task.

They studied, and counselled, and prayed, and watched, and waited, until Jesus ascended to heaven and the Holy Spirit came upon them in great power at Pentecost. From these heroes of the faith, the church today may learn some great lessons. One of these lessons is needed at the present time. Congregational and Christian Churches need to make a new study of what followed the resurrection of Jesus our Lord. A victorious, soul-winning revival followed Easter. The real time for a revival should be after Easter, if the history of Pentecost is to be repeated. The chronology of the revival is not of great importance, but the fact is essential. The doctrine of the resurrection is the most vital teaching of the New Testament. Does the church of today know this doctrine? More important still, does the church of today know the resurrection life?

The early church was not a counting house. Money and financial problems did not consume the greater part of their conferences. Prayer, and the living Christ, and the power of the resurrection—these great facts were declared and were sought by men of devout faith and fearless souls. The church was a power house. It had dynamic faith. It had saving power. Such faith and such power in the church today would sweep millions into the kingdom of God and put the church again in line for a world-wide victory. If the church could win three thousand converts within fifty days after Jesus arose from the dead, it should win three million souls in America in the next fifty days. It has the machinery and the workers. Jesus Christ has the power. What next?

I. W. JOHNSON.

ELON REDUCES EXPENSES.

For the past three years, enrollment at Elon has trailed around three hundred. Last spring increased interest seemed to point to a much larger enrollment than the two preceding years. The increase, however, did not materialize. For a number of years the student body was limited to four hundred. We have dormitory space for that number. We have classrooms and other facilities ample for a student body of eight hundred to one thousand. During my short experience in the College game, I have formed the opinion that at Elon we should have from five to six hundred students. There are enough young men and young women from the homes of the Christian Church in the South already in College to make this number. Of course, they will not all come to Elon College. Many of them are interested in courses that we do not offer. We are not prepared to give them the best training for their chosen professions. In special cases, we do not insist that they come to Elon College, but advise that they go to schools designed to prepare them for the professions desired. There are, however, many who are planning to study for medicine, law, or for some kind of definite Christian service, and a large number of others who purpose to teach either in grade schools, high schools or colleges. We are prepared to give young men and young women with such ambitions the training necessary for success. We have strong pre-medical and pre-law courses. We specialize in Religious Education and in training for the teaching profession.

I would not leave the impression that we exist only for the young women and young men of the Christian Church. Elon is a church institution, but it is not a sectarian college. All denominations are welcomed on an equal basis and are given equal privileges in every particular. Practically all of the denominations are represented in our student body.

In our efforts to increase our student body, we have arranged to offer rates that should be most attractive to young women and young men of small means desiring a college education. Expenses at Elon have always been unusually low for the grade of work done, and the advantages that we offer. For the past few years, tuition at Elon has been $100.00. By vote of the Board of Trustees in the mid-year meeting, tuition was reduced to $75.00. Room rent has been reduced from $5.00 to $15.00 per year. It has been necessary, however, to increase charges for board. In the club dining room, board has been advanced from $14.00 to $16.00, and in the College dining room from $19.00 to $20.00 per month. These advances are required on account of advanced prices in groceries and all table products. The total cost for a student at Elon for 1934-35 will be a little more than $25.00 less per student than 1933-34. Our total charge for tuition fees, room rent, and board amounts to from $324.00 to $380.00. This includes everything that the student is required to pay the College. It does not include, however, books, laundry, or the student's personal expenses.

It is the feeling of the Board of Trustees and the College that such a liberal offer on the part of the College will be a great factor in increasing our enrollment for another year. Present indications are that the Board is correct in this opinion. Mr. George Colclough, who is now in the field soliciting for next year's student body, states in his last report that he has around three hundred and fifty signed applications for next year's student body. Of course, we could hardly expect all of these to be at Elon in September, but it is most encouraging to know that many young women and young men are interested in Elon College sufficiently to sign an application for admittance when the fall term begins next September. Of course, the field has not yet been covered and there will be many more who will express their desire to come to Elon next year. Mr. Colclough states that the prospects for next year's student body are the best that he has known since his connection with the College, with the exception of one year only.

These are most encouraging reports and I am glad to convey them to those interested in Elon and may I take this opportunity to say to alumni, church members, ministers, and friends of the College, we need your cooperation in this undertaking for the College. You can be of great assistance by encouraging those who have signed their applications to stick by their decisions. Speak to members of your senior class in high school and urge them to consider Elon before deciding to go elsewhere. With everyone working together, certainly, we can increase our student body to the five hundred mark. If we had five hundred students who would pay their bills, the receipts of the College would go a long way toward meeting our budget requirements. When you influence a student to come to Elon, you render a service to the College, a help to the church, and great assistance to the youngster himself. These are the days decisions are made. All colleges are making their bids, advertising their advantages, and offering every legitimate inducement, and it is right that they should.

Elon College proposes to conduct a campaign to secure students for 1934-35 and to conduct this campaign on lines above question and on principles that will commend themselves to every right thinking individual. Alumni, church folks, and friends, come, let us unite our hearts and our efforts in order that Elon may have the opportunity to serve the largest number and the best type of college students that it has yet been her privilege to serve. We can do it if we will.

L. E. SMITH, President.

TWO EXTRACTS FROM RECENT LETTERS.

It occurred to me that the following extracts might be of interest to other readers besides myself, and I obtained permission of the writer to use them. They deal with a problem that is both old and modern. A book has been recently published concerning what the author considers our danger of returning to paganism.

I.

"Speaking of churches, I want to tell you that I was in a small village in Maryland on a Sunday some twenty years ago, and heard a sermon from a plain country preacher, whose name I do not know. He said one thing in such a striking way that I still recall his exact words: 'People are neglecting God. They are even neglecting God for Christ.' Some such thought, not put in the same blunt way, I came across in a recent book by Dr. Barry, entitled 'Christianity in the New World.' The thought of each was that to the neglect of God is due the prevalence of paganism, with greed for pleasures and discipline to the dogs. Does it not seem to you that our religion has too much lost the fear of God?

"When the Maryland preacher spoke of neglecting God for Christ, perhaps he had better have said, for a one-sided notion of Christ. Christ said, 'Our Father,' and he also said, 'In heaven,' but paganism has no heaven except a good time here, and no fear except the fear of not getting on in the world."

II.

"I read with some surprise your statemet that next to the Bible, Thomas A. Kempis' 'Imitation of Christ,' is today the best seller of all the books in the world. I have been wondering how this could be. As I intimated in a former letter, these times are accused of a sort of return to paganism, and it is certainly true that of all the books ever written the 'Imitation' is farthest away from paganism. It was written by a man steeped in the spiritual life, and at a time when not enough thought was given to the life in the world.

"It may be that the pendulum has swung too far in the direction of confusing Christianity with sociology, and that we have been stressing the second of the great commandments and neglecting the first. There is every reason why we should expect this when the pendulum commenced to swing back from Heaven, Hell and the Hereafter to thoughts of the living present. But it may be as I said, that the reaction has gone too far, and that there are many souls who are still not so happy in this world that they are careless about the consolidation that religion brings. No book brings this consolation more surely than the 'Imitation.' So, in spite of its excessive worldliness, the book still sells. This is the only way I can account for its abiding popularity as shown in new editions still appearing. Then, too, even in our busy Broadways, perhaps there are more people than one might suppose who are sincerely interested in religion.

"I guess a prevailing thought today is that religion, even including in the word the right preparation for a future life, consists in living this life right. In a famous sermon, Phillips Brooks agreed with this, and then added with intense emphasis that this life will not be lived right without the thought of the life beyond this life. This raises the supreme question between paganism and Christianity, and is the great divide between Thomas A. Kempis and Phillips Brooks on the one side, and the old philosophers and modern humanists on the other."

The above extracts were written some days apart, and yet there is an underlying connection. We can see in the mind of the writer the fundamental, vital problem, whether we are to live in the thought of this life alone or in the thought of another life also. It is evident that Christ's idea of the Kingdom of God comprised both lives, or rather one continual life.

J. H. DILLARD.

Charlottesville, Va.

A RELIGIOUS REVIVAL.

One does not have to be a keen observer of modern religious life to see the great need of a revival of genuine spiritual religion. The enemies of the life of the spirit are strong. There is atheism, not new, to be sure, but becoming strongly organized into groups of people who are seeking adherents through making addresses and spreading literature. There is humanism which claims that man can call upon no power but his own to improve himself, and against which, as Dr. Coffin of Union Theological Seminary has pointed out, both liberals and fundamentalists need to unite. Then there are the prevalent cynicism and despair of our time, brought upon us largely by cynical literature and unemployment. There have been few periods in the history of the church, if indeed any, when the masses were so indifferent to the church as they are now. Last year one-third of the Presbyterian Churches in the United States did not receive a new convert, and only one-third of the churches received more than five converts. The entire membership suffered a net loss of 41,000. A similar decline will be found in most of the major denominations. During the last generation the church has not kept pace with the increase in population.

In addition to these reasons for a revival of religion there is the heavy strain that this long depression has put upon us. Seldom have people been more restless, tried and perplexed.

What can we do about this necessary revival?

The old-fashioned evangelistic service, we observe, is still effective in some churches. But it is quite evident that it has lost its appeal to the type of mind in most of our Congregational and Christian Churches. We can, however, do much to bring about a revival of spiritual religion by preaching upon the great themes of the Christian life and by adding a strong emotional appeal to an intellectual one.

And during this Lent we can do much if we start to plan right now. Hold Lenten services. Arrange small groups for the study of religious subjects. And what is more important, I think, get some such devotional book as "The Fellowship of Prayer," by Charles E. Jefferson, into the homes of our parishes and urge our people to read it. No one can estimate the spiritual good that could be accomplished by getting multitudes of our people to read some such book. If all the ministers would concentrate upon a religious revival from now until Easter, there is no telling what they might do. LEONARD B. GRAY.

—In the Advance.

"The success of the preacher of the Gospel is proportionate to his earnestness."—Ferrin.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
- 01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/4 x 3 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible — 2 Take the sum of all the of the children of 1572-el. years old and upward, thro

- No. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. to Mercy and truth together; righteousness I kissed each other. xx Truth shall sprin

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 1/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. c 57. 1. d or, all. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ Jē-hōū-ā-chīm wās ē years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk round corners, red under edges, silk $5.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- No. 03255x As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHERS

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 3/4 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

 REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary

FROM OVERSEAS.

Miss Dorothy P. Cushing, news editor for our Foreign Missions Board, manages in some way to get the latest and best from missionaries and their activities on the field. Under date of March 28th, she sends some incidents, just in paragraph form, that our Missionary Societies in particular, and SUN readers in general, will want and should have. Here is one which, in a few lines, covers a volume:

"The sum of $2.09 recently reached the treasurer of the American Board from the children of the Vadala, India, Sunday School, because they had heard Congregational and Christian Churches in the U. S. A. were having a hard time financially. The money was collected in little white nickel coins amounting to about two cents each. The children sent this gift on their own initiative, says Mrs. Edward Fairbank."

Think, SUN readers, of children in the Sunday School in India hearing about our having a "hard time" financially, when the children in our Sunday Schools have dollars where these children of India have pennies. Which reminds us—those who are reached through missions know the value of missions, and are usually willing to share. Out of the poverty of Puerto Rico, for instance, missionary money goes to Santo Domingo and to other places of spiritual darkness.

Here is another item which shows that now and then, at least, the missionary working away at her job, comes to deserved recognition:

"Alongside the busts of Lindbergh, Ambassador Grew and such Japanese notables as Prince Tokugawa and Premier Saito, stands the bust of our own Miss Alice Pettee Adams, founder of our Hakuaikai, the social center in Okayama, Japan, and recognized by the Japanese as the mother of social service' in that country. The bust, made by a process called 'sculptographing,' invented by I. Morioka, a Japanese photographer, eliminates the customary tedious hours of posing. The subject simply has his picture taken—after that the whole business is taken care of mechanically. Miss Adams has six times received recognition from the Imperial Government and wears the Decoration of the Blue Ribbon, bestowed upon only 11 persons prior to herself. Her bust is on exhibition throughout the department stores of the Kingdom, with a silver model in Kyoto."

The following indicates that the sale of human beings has not yet ceased in the world and brings a touch of human interest from across the seas:

"Norah Tamele, Chianud young woman, was sold three times by her heathen father. Then she ran away, walking 200 miles to Mt. Silinda School, East Africa. She became the first girl teacher in an out-station school; she broke native superstitions and underwent the first major operation performed in her part of the country; when the depression struck, she volunteered to teach without pay if only she could go on in 'God's work.' Now she has taken into her home a two-year-old motherless child to bring up, and she faces a second serious operation. 'But you never saw a happier person,' declares Mrs. Mabel Lar-kins Hack."

The following, from out where our own Dr. and Mrs. M. J. W. White live and work, brings a story that should stir our hearts to sympathy and service:

"Less money, less to eat, and more illness. The vicious circle exists in the Philippines as here. The Cayagan hospital reports $35,000.00 worth of charity work during the past ten years. A million men, women and children are dying of tuberculosis in the Philippine Islands, says Rev. Frank J. Woodward, and a second million of children and young people are infected."

The following shows that the missionary may have, and in fact does have, more weight and worth in the world than the politicians:

"Winning a Fellowship in the New York School of Social Workers, Miss Yu Chen, a graduate of Bridgman Academy and Yenching University, is coming to America for further study, particularly of America at work. She has been conducting a rural center in China, living the simple life and trying to help active industries, improve home recreation and defeat illiteracy. She is a Christian pioneer of the highest order, declares Miss Laura B. Cross, of Peiping, who adds that she is the type that will save China in the long run. 'Her kind will do more than the politicians.'"

Here is a lesson that should come home to us Americans, and maybe will, after awhile:

"The United States has decided that the way to cure Depression and win back prosperity is to repeal prohibition. But Premier Saito, of Japan, announces that the way to prevent depression in Japan's villages is to enforce prohibition, and he has set about doing this by sending 14 dry villages written scrolls which are received with impressive ceremonies."

The workers die, but the work goes on! Our hearts are touched with sorrow as the following comes to us:

"Rev. William Ellsworth Strong, D. D., for 24 years a secretary of the American Board, and beloved friend of many, both here and abroad, died March 7th, after a long illness. Dr. Strong began work with the American Board in 1907, following in the footsteps of his father. He was the first editor of the Missionary Herald, then Editorial Secretary, then Foreign Secretary. Twice he was on deputations to the Orient. His book, 'The Story of the American Board,' is recognized as the official record of the first 100 years of its work . . . Dr. Gintaro Daikuhara, President of the Doshisha University, Kyoto, Japan, died about March 9th, according to cable. He was elected president in 1929, breaking a precedent of many years, since hitherto presidents had been selected from a group of early graduates known as the Kummoto Band, mostly clergymen. Dr. Daikuhara was formerly president of the Kyushu Imperial University of Fukuoka. He was a member of the Christian Church for over thirty years."

We certainly owe a debt of gratitude to Miss Cushing for the wonderful way she is informing us of the work and workers beyond the seas. In addition to these news items, she is giving CHRISTIAN SUN readers each week a sketch of the life of some missionary now active on the field.

J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.
WEEK ENDING MARCH 31, 1934.
Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 1,679.32
Dendron, Va. ....	5.75
Wentworth, Raleigh, N. C. ....	1.30
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C. ....	2.01
Palm St., Greensboro, N. C. ....	6.00
New Hope, Harrisonburg, Va. ....	4.00
Spring Hill, Wavery, Va. ....	.83

New Lebanon, Summerfield, N. C. ....	3.55
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C. ....	1.50

Total ..... $ 1,104.26

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 56.10
Miss Anna Lou Showalter, Harrioburg, Va. (Antioch Church) .....	1.00

Total ..... $ 57.10

Summary.

Previously acknowledged .....	$ 8,657.75
Sunday Schools, Regular .....	24.94
Coin Card Offering .....	1.00

Total ..... $ 8,683.69

We sincerely trust and devoutly hope that every church and Sunday School of our Convention either took the offering for Missions on Easter Sunday, or will do so at an early date. Unless the church is missionary it suffers, dwindles, dies. And no other organization than the church makes any effort whatever, or any donation, to give the Bread of Life to hungry hearts and perishing souls. Missions is the command and call of our Lord. Shall we obey and heed him, or shall we deny him?

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Secretary.

NEW LIFE FOR THE CHINESE FARMER.

[Brief sketch of one of our missionaries by Miss Cushing, News Editor, American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.]

Democracy is not possible where men and women cannot read or write. Rev. Hugh Wells Hubbard, of Paotingfu, China, who for several years has cooperated closely with the famous young Dr. Jimmy Yen and his Mass Education Movement, is now living in a Chinese village with his family, engaged in experimental rural reconstruction work whereby he applies the principles of the Mass Education Movement, plus a distinctly Christian emphasis. He is Executive Secretary of the North China Christian Rural Service Union.

Describing the beginning of this work with the Mass Education Movement, Mr. Hubbard said: "We go into a village, and as the crowd gathers about us we ask how many can read and write. Practically everyone is eager to learn, but answers, 'No money; no time.' We tell them that if they will supply the room and the pupils, we will furnish a teacher." This work of founding Thousand Character classes gave the missionaries an unprecedented opportunity for friendly contacts. The questions, "Why do you do all this?" "What is back of Christianity, anyway cmfw c" "What is back of your friendship?" "What is Christianity, anyway?" arose quite naturally. As the result, for several years Mr. Hubbard and his associates organized hundreds of Christian training classes for inquirers.

Dr. Yen is developing in his rural reconstruction work a well-balanced life for the Chinese farmer which is intended to improve his economic status, raise his educational standards, develop his recreational life, and teach him to be a good citizen. The Christian Church and such efforts as those of Mr. Hubbard, stress the spiritual side. Mr. Hubbard has already put into the Thousand Character language, "The Parables of Jesus." "The Sermon on the Mount." "Christianity in the Home," and "Christianity in China."

Before going into this particular piece of strategic work, Mr. Hubbard used to travel hundreds of miles annually by motorcycle, motor car, mule back, and on foot, supervising schools and churches in 21 counties, having a population of over 4,000,000. "Again and again as our entering wedge, we have endeavored to bring to these people concrete help—something that demonstrates Christianity through definite action," says Mr. Hubbard. "This may take the shape of flood and famine relief, dyke building, or the starting of new industries like the making of hair nets, tennis rackets, or straw suitcases."

Born in Sivas, Turkey, of missionary parents, Hugh Hubbard studied a year at Anatolia College; two years in Peseux, Neuchatel. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1908 and for the next two years taught in Government schools and Y. M. C. A., at Tientsin, China. Then he studied at Union Seminary and Oberlin Seminary, enlisting under the American Board in 1913 for life service in China.

"I am going back to China because the Chinese have asked me to come," said Mr. Hubbard happily, when he returned from his last furlough to his work.

GUILFORD-ROCKINGHAM RALLY.

The Woman's Missionary Societies of the Guilford District, met with the Greensboro Society, March 27, 1934. The meeting was called to order by the Superintendent, Mrs. C. H. Paris.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. Wm. T. Scott. She declared that each achievement is the beginning of a new advance. Winning of goals show us new goals farther on. We have no right to stop. We must continue to grow. In wisdom, character and vision there should be no limit to our growth.

The roll call of the Societies showed the following present: Greensboro, 7; Palm Street, 6; Pleasant Ridge, 8; Reidsville, 4; Elk Spur, 2; Rocky Ford, 2; Monticello, 3; Winston-Salem, 2. Ten ministers were present. Rev. and Mrs. Grissom, of our Carroll County, Va., work, were introduced.

The Superintendent gave us a fine message on the theme, "Feed My Sheep."

Mrs. Mary D. White and Mrs. B. E. Brown, Home Boards, were introduced by Mrs. Rowland.

Mr. Scoford was next introduced, and gave us some helpful information about our new missionary magazine.

The service was continued with the offering, which amounted to $7.14.

Mrs. Rowland asked that ten women be selected by the nominating committee to represent us at the Suffolk Convention May 1st.

The afternoon session was called to order by Mrs. Paris and was opened with the hymn, "Come Women, Wide Proclaim." Prayer by Rev. Grissom.

The next number on the program was an address by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, on "Our Missionary Program."

Mrs. W. T. Scott gave us some information on Mission Literature. She urged the members to put more stress on the reading of the Mission books.

Mrs. Rowland had charge of the Round Table Discussion. The discussions were very enlightening and valuable help was received.

Reports of the committees were given at this time, and the minutes were read by Acting Secretary, Mrs. D. O. Sander, who acted in the absence of Mrs. R. W. Isley.

After singing the closing hymn, "Take the Name of Jesus With You," the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Dr. C. H. Rowland.

Next year's Rally is to be held with Pleasant Ridge Church, Guilford County, N. C.

MRS. DALE O. SANDER,
Acting Secretary.

The entire Bible has been translated into 175 languages and parts of it have been translated into 765 languages or dialects, making a grand total of 940 languages and dialects.

A Story for the Children

STOPPERS.

"To me," chuckled Jerry, "there is nothing as thrilling as the bobbing of a cork."

"Yes, after hours of patient waiting," laughed Jimmie.

"There wouldn't be half the thrill in fishing, if you couldn't watch for the bobbin' of the cork," agreed Daddy. "And I'll venture to say, that of the millions of corks used every year, few people give them a thought, or have the remotest idea where they come from."

"They hang from trees, don't they?" queried Jerry.

Jimmie and Daddy laughed.

"Oh, yes," giggled Jimmie, "they hang like apples, all sizes and kinds. A wonderful sight." And he went off into peals of mirth.

"Never mind," said Daddy, observing Jerry's embarrassment. "They really do come from trees, Jerry, but they are not in this shape."

"I don't know much about them," said Jerry. "I do know that they are dandy for fishing and

MONTICELLO MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

On March 9th, the Monticello Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. John Dixon, with fifteen members present. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. R. Rudd, Mrs. D. E. Michael presided. Rev. F. Edwin Hyde led in prayer.

After the business meeting, Mrs. M. C. Faucett had charge of the program. The subject was, "How the People Lived in Turkey." Some very interesting readings and talks were given by the members.

Following this, a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Oscar Rudd, assisted by Mrs. Dixon, served refreshments. Our next meeting, on April 13th, will be held at the home of Mrs. W. R. McKinney, with Mrs. Jack Commer as leader.

MRS. D. E. MICHAEL,
Vice-President.

NON-CHRISTIANS REVERE CHRIST.

Dr. Robert E. Speer tells of a Bar Association banquet at Delhi attended by all the lawyers of that city, all Hindus—not a Christian in the group.

They had engaged a jester to entertain them and he was doing so by making jokes about the escapades of the traditional gods of the Indian people, at which sallies the lawyers roared with laughter. Soon the actor made a joke about Jesus Christ, but nobody laughed. At the second such remark, there were murmurs of dissent. Finally, the man ventured a third "wise-crack" involving the name of Jesus, whereupon the diners arose from their seats, seized him by the collar, and kicked him down the stairs.

There was not a Christian in the crowd, but the character and teachings of the Master had created in the hearts of these Hindu lawyers such respect and reverence for Jesus Christ that not one would allow a fool to speak his name irreverently.—Christian Intelligencer.

Because of requests constantly coming to it, the American Bible Society must be prepared to furnish Scriptures annually in more than 175 languages.

A force of 3,645 is employed by the American Bible Society to carry on its world-wide work of translating, publishing, and distributing the Scriptures.

have true 'stopping powers,' but that is the limit of my knowledge. Do tell me about them."

"Gladly," answered Daddy. "In the first place, upwards of fifty per cent of the world's cork is produced in Spain and Portugal. The very finest is grown in various parts of the six provinces.

"Whew," gasped both boys. "Plentiful, I would say!"

"Wait until you learn how long it takes to grow it," smiled Daddy. "As you know, cork is a very elastic tissue consisting of thin-walled and nearly cubical cells. It is really the outer bark of the cork tree, or cork-oak tree (as it is called). These trees are very tall, from twenty to sixty feet in height and about three feet in diameter. The leaves are evergreen."

"How old do the trees have to be before their bark can be used?" interrupted Jerry, eagerly.

"There is something strange about that," answered Daddy. "The age of maturity varies in different parts of the tree. From eight to nine years is required for the trunk; from ten to eleven years for the first branches, and from eleven to twelve years for the second branches. It yields its best cork when it is about forty years old, but often goes on growing new coverings of bark until it is at least a century old."

"Good night!" ejaculated Jimmie. "How do they take the bark from these remarkable trees, and how often?"

"Not until the sap flows freely through the tree—usually from June to the beginning of September—does the 'stripping' take place. And it certainly takes an artist to 'strip' a cork tree. An amateur would ruin a tree.

"First, the trunk and the larger branches are completely stripped of the outer layer of bark. A ring is cut around the trunk at the base and another one just beneath the lower branches; a vertical cut joins the two rings, and the bark is then easily removed. The bark from the first stripping is so coarse and full of holes that it is worth very little on the market, but fortunately the tree at once begins to grow a new coat, and in eight or ten years is ready to be stripped again.

"When the cork has been stripped off it is allowed to dry or 'season' for a few weeks. Then it is boiled, to remove the tannic acid and to loosen the rough outer layer so that this may be easily scraped off. The cork is then packed in bales and is ready for shipment to all parts of the world."

"But how are its 'stopping powers' formed?" asked Jimmie, quickly.

"Stoppers are made almost entirely by machinery," answered Daddy. "The layers of bark are first put through a steam bath, so that they may be softened, ready for the scraping and cleaning process. A machine equipped with sharp knives cuts the layers into strips, which are sent to a machine that punches out the stoppers. The waste pieces are sent to smaller machines for the cutting of smaller stoppers. If they are to be made smaller at one end, they go through another machine. As a final step, they are held against a sandpaper wheel until the surfaces are smooth."

"But what is done with the waste from the smaller ones?" asked Jerry, alive with curiosity.

"Some of this is used in the making of linoleum, which consists of cork powder mixed with linseed oil and spread on canvas.

"Spanish black,' a very fine color for paint, is made from the burning or carbonizing of cork waste. Cork boards, life-saving belts, floats or buoys for fish nets, shoe soles, and numerous things are all made beneficial with cork."

"Well," sighed Jerry, "Who would have ever imagined that 'cork' was as useful as all that?"—June Douglas, in The Presbyterian.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, 505 S. Main St., Norfolk, Va.

AFTER EASTER PLANS.

Now that Easter has gone, there should be no let-up in the work which young people are undertaking for the Master. The praise we have sung to him will be vain and shallow unless it is followed by a new sense of reality and devotion. We may have climbed to a high height of spiritual fervor at the Eastertide, but this will have real value only as it is lived out in sacrificial service during the days and months that follow.

The new converts that have entered our church need the kindly guidance and help of those older Christians who know more of the way than do these new-born babes in Christ.

There are still others to be won to the Christian way, and the impetus of Easter gives a good spirit for evangelistic work. One need not wait until the mid-summer revival, for "the fields are already white unto the harvest." Human hearts are already hungry for the love of God in Christ Jesus, and can never be satisfied until they find him. Young people should count it a high privilege to share the Christ with those who know him not.

If the Easter message did not express itself in an offering for missions on the part of the young people, an investigation should be made to see what was wrong with the interpretation of the Easter message, and its application in the life of youth. It is not too late for the offering to be made, and everyone needs to share in the joy that comes from a sacrificial gift which will carry the message of Jesus to a non-Christian world.

Mother's Day is only a month away. Jesus loved his mother, and from the Cross made provision for her care after he was gone. Young people should be sure that mothers are highly honored at all times, and particularly on the day set apart for church observance, which is the second Sunday in May. All denominational publishing houses can furnish a great deal of material to aid in building an appropriate program on Mother's Day and for the Mother and Daughter week which follows. The cost of this material is very small in comparison with the values attendant upon its use. Be sure that definite plans are made to honor Mother in Sunday School and church and the Young People's Society. Invitations to all mothers in the church fellowship should be sent, and some of them should certainly be followed by personal invitations. Do not wait until the last minute to make plans for Mother's Day.

AN UNBROKEN FELLOWSHIP.

Last night we sat about tables, bedecked with flowers and candles, and ate bread and drank from a cup. More than half a hundred members and friends of First Christian Church, Norfolk, had come in through the church auditorium, which was lighted by the dim rays of an electric cross, and sat down at tables in the dining room made ready for the Communion. On a platform, back of the minister and the deacons, was a table set for thirteen with communion plate and goblet. Beyond this, over a mantel, was da Vinci's picture of the Last Supper. Great hymns of the church were played softly while people meditated. Poems from Oxenham's little book called "Gentlemen, the King," were read, and considerable time was given to the reading of the stories of last Thursday night when Jesus sat with his disciples about a table in a large upper room in Jerusalem. Words from the Master seemed to sink into the hearts of those who read and listened until prayer became the sincere desire of the soul. Then the bread was passed, and the wine, and those who ate and drank pledged anew their allegiance to the Christ whose body was broken and whose blood was shed to draw all men unto him.

We were only a few of an innumerable multitude who so dined together in their places of worship on this Maundy Thursday. People around the world who have come to know the Lord Jesus have found it profitable to commune with him on the anniversary of the night in which he instituted what we call the Lord's Supper.

A large section of the Christian Church of the world believes in an unbroken succession of power and authority which has come down through the church from the hands of the Master. I would not argue the case, though I believe the contention is hard to prove. There is, however, an undisputed unbroken fellowship which has continued for more than nineteen hundred years. Every church has its Communion. We may not agree on form or interpretation of the same, but we do agree on observing it, and in the observation there is unity of spirit and an unbroken fellowship.

On Thursday night and Easter Sunday people in every country, wise and ignorant, rich and poor, will eat of bread and drink of wine in memory of the broken body and spilled blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. In this fellowship we gain strength and courage to offer our bodies as a living sacrifice to the cause of goodness, love and beauty.

This unbroken fellowship, coming from a table of Jews in Jerusalem, has passed through the palaces of Rome, the humble homes in France and Germany, and has been observed by people of all stations in life, sometimes in beautiful cathedrals, and sometimes behind closed doors for fear of governmental authorities, but always done in memory of the Master of Calvary, who said, "This do in memory of me." This beautiful memorial is the golden cord that unites Christians of all the ages and all nations in a fellowship that spans the centuries, girdles the globe and reaches up to high heaven where Christ abides. It is the most marvelous miracle of all time, and you and I are part of it.

NEWS FROM MIAMI.

The Boy Scouts of North Miami recently entertained their fathers at a Father and Son banquet. The Scout Master, Earl Henshaw, was highly complimented by Mr. McFarland, District Scout Executive, when he said that in his twenty years in scout work he had never known a finer scout master; one who so thoroughly gave himself for his boys. Mr. Henshaw is one of the most active members of our North Miami Congregational Church and greatly loved by the people of the church and community. One of the scouts in appreciation of Mr. Henshaw, read the following poem by Edgar A. Guest:

THE SCOUTMASTER.

There isn't any pay for you,
You serve without reward;
The boys who tramp the fields with you
But little could afford;

And yet your pay is richer far
Than those who toil for gold,
For in a dozen different ways
Your service shall be told.

You'll read it in the faces
Of a troop of growing boys,
You'll read it in the pleasure
Of a dozen manly joys,

And down the distant future—
You will surely read it then,
Emblazoned through the services
Of a band of loyal men.

Five years of willing labor
And of brothering a Troop;
Five years of trudging highways
With the Indian cry and whoop;

Five years of campfire burning
Not alone for pleasure's sake,
But the future generation which
The boys are soon to make.

They have no gold to give you,
But when age comes on to you,
They'll give you back the splendid things
You taught them how to do.

They'll give you rich contentment
And a thrill of honest pride,
And you'll see your Nation prosper,
And you'll be satisfied.

IS PRAYER NECESSARY?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC FOR APR. 15, 1934.

Ephesians 1:15-23.

The first main point of study may be, "What does prayer do for people?" The following six suggestions may help to answer that question:

1. Thinking and Speaking Our Gratitude. The person who never prays takes all of life's blessings without thanking the Giver. The person who thinks about life's goodness and is grateful has made a start toward prayer. Prayer begins with gratitude. It is not mere politeness to God, although it includes that; it shows our own character—whether we are thoughtless, selfish or grateful. Paul, in Ephesians 1:16, shows that it is his constant practice to thank God for his friends in Ephesus.

2. Making Clear the Highest Ideals. Young and old today, as in the time of Paul, are not always sure as to what is right or best. It is dangerous to act without thinking. It is likewise dangerous just to think; it makes a difference how we think. Some people "think" simply to try to convince themselves that what they want to do is right. Prayer may be thought of as sitting down with God, honestly trying to get his advice. This is part of what Paul had in mind in Eph. 1:17.

3. Strength to Do the Right. Part of our problem is knowing what is right. It is often even harder to make ourselves to do what we know is right. Millions of Christians have found that God helps the person who wants to do right, if he only gives him a chance.

4. Saying "Yes" or "No" Automatically. In spite of all the plans we make, we often find ourselves in a "tight place," and must make our decisions quickly. In a fraction of a minute, we either say "yes" or "no," or we hesitate and thereby find ourselves often saying "all right." That fraction of a minute is enough to permit us to say silently, "God, help me!"

5. Bearing Hardships. People pray when they are in deep trouble more than at any other time. They ask God to give them what they want—

(Continued on page 14.)

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM.

LESSON II.—APRIL 8, 1934.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for to such belongeth the kingdom of God."—Matt. 19:14.

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 18:1-14; 19:13-15.

The disciples did not wear a halo. They were not angels. They were men of like passions as we are—ambitious, vain, self-seeking. They had had a desire to be great, to have pre-eminence, to be first. They came to Jesus one day, therefore, and asked him the question: "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" It may have been that they had been quarreling among themselves as to who was greatest—they had done that very thing on other occasions. And in an indirect way, they thought they would get the Master's answer to the question.

Who Is the Greatest?

The world has given a number of answers to that question. In Jesus' day, Rome would have said that he was the greatest who had the most power, material might, the largest armies, the strongest military organization. Others have said that he is greatest who has most of this world's goods. Others say the greatest is the one who knows most. Still others would interpret greatness in terms of mastery over others, social prestige and power, and so on. But Jesus said, and says, that he who is truly great is he who is humble, who is teachable, who is the servant of all. Many of the world's great were not great at all by Jesus' standards, while many unknown and unhonored men and women have been at the head of the list according to God's standards.

The Child in the Midst.

With that amazing skill which was so characteristic of him, Jesus answers the question as to who is greatest, in a concrete way. He calls a child to him, sets him in the midst of them and says, that unless they become converted they cannot enter the kingdom, to say nothing of becoming great in it. A prerequisite for entrance into the kingdom—Jesus was not talking about going to heaven—was that they become as little children. He did not say, become childish; he said become as little children, that is to become child-like. To become child-like is to be humble, teachable, docile, unambitious, forgetful of self, trustful, willing to take the place assigned to one.

It is significant that Christianity has put the child in the midst. It insists that the child and the values for which the child stands, shall be put in the proper place. The interests of children must come first. This does not mean that children are to be pampered or spoiled. It does not mean that they are to have everything they want. It is not to say that they are always to have their own way. Far from all this. But it does mean that the highest interests of the child must be served in the home, in the school, in the church, in the community. The welfare of children must be placed above the selfishness of parents, the greed of commercial interests, the exploitation of adults, the precious theories of folks who put children second.

The Same is Great in the Kingdom.

He who has the child-like spirit, who has the heart of a child, who is humble and teachable and self-effacing is greatest in the kingdom of God. God's thoughts are not our thoughts, and his ways are not our ways. The Master was never greater than when he girdled himself with a towel and washed the disciples' feet. That is becoming as a child. That is the standard of greatness in the kingdom.

Whoso Shall Receive . . . Whoso Shall Offend, One of These Little Ones.

The Lord of Life identifies himself with children. When we do anything for a child, we do it for and unto the Lord Jesus himself. And if we offend—the word means, "cause to stumble"—and when we cause one of these little ones to stumble, well, it were better for us that a millstone were tied about our necks and to be cast thus into the sea. God be merciful to the man or woman who by precept or example, "causes a child to stumble." Let every man take heed what he does before childhood, and to childhood. Let every man see to it that he put no barriers in the way of childhood which will make it more difficult for children to come into life in its fullness and its richness.

And One Be Gone Astray.

The Master emphasizes the value of even one child by a story—he was the world's Master Story-Teller. The story of the man who had one sheep out of one hundred to go astray, of his concern for it, of his diligent search for it until he found it, of his joy when he did find it—it is all an insight into the Father's heart, it gives us some inkling of how he cares for us, for each one of us and for all of us, even the least of us. If anyone thinks little of himself, let him remember that Christ died for him. And it is not the will of our Father which is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish.

Suffer the Little Children to Come Unto Me.

When some mothers brought their children to Jesus, the disciples rebuked them. They thought the Master had more important things to do. They thought he did not want to be bothered with children. But they did not know the Master. Jesus took them up in his arms, he laid his hands upon them, he blessed them. And this incident has been the inspiration of Christianity through the centuries. Let every one that hath ears to hear, hear what the Master says. We too often forget this teaching. If we had a revival service and received twenty rich adults into the church we would think that we had had a great revival—and, of course, we would have. But if we received only twenty children, we might discount the value of the revival. But the Lord of Life would see the potentialities of those twenty children, and he would rejoice in the larger ultimate contribution to the Kingdom of God.

Our modern world has done much for children. But it has not always given proper regard for and proper emphasis to the moral and spiritual values of childhood. Our materialistic, money-minded world needs to put the child again in the midst.

MARRIAGE SLAVES.

This is not the lurid title of a movie—it is tragedy in real life. Child-bearing is but a small portion of the burden under which the African non-Christian woman labors. From morn till night she toils to till poor farms in order to secure food for her family. Not only must she raise it, but grind it in crude mortars. Water and firewood must be carried often long distances. "It is a common sight to see a woman carrying on her head firewood weighing from 60 to 80 pounds," declares Mrs. Samuel J. Curtis, of Mt. Silinda. They age quickly under this strenuous life. Jealousy, rivalry, revenge and deception sap their souls. Early in life they are sold into marriage slavery by greedy fathers. Only through the Christian church and school is offered a New Way and they never return to the old if they can possibly escape.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.
Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00
India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an inch thick.
. 133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold, $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black. Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.
65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps .....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.
Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.
7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold .....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.
1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold .....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools .....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy

MONDAY.

GLORIOUS BURDENS.

"Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation."—Psalm 68:19.

