The only way in which one human being can properly attempt to influence another is the encouraging him to think for himself, instead of endeavoring to instill ready-made opinions into his head.—Sir Leslie Stephen.

: : EDITORIAL COMMENTS : :

We have learned that some churches are raising special donations for their pastors that they may be better able to attend Bible conferences and summer institutes for study, rest, recreation and Christian fellowship with other ministers. This is a splendid idea; it encourages those pastors to pursue for a few weeks courses of study which will benefit them in pastoral work; and it will be the means of leading other churches to do likewise for their pastors.

In the work of the ministry, there is always opportunity for educational advancement, spiritual growth, and for the betterment of the local church and community. Pastors and lay-leaders of the church and the Sunday School deserve every consideration which the church can offer for their educational and spiritual improvement. Bible conferences and summer institute courses of instruction, through lectures and class study, are designed to greatly benefit those who will avail themselves of those opportunities.

The North Carolina State Woman's Auxiliary Convention, in its recent annual session, took a forward step, when it went on record to send a delegate to the National Woman's Auxiliary Convention, convening in July, and to become responsible for the delegate's expenses to that convention. It was a good move, and each district and local auxiliary in the State is given the privilege of sharing in this expense of the delegate to the National Convention. The cost will be three hundred dollars for the round trip to the Convention in California and return.

It is expected that other states will make similar provisions for some of their delegates who have been elected to attend this National convention in California. Some churches are raising funds to help share their pastor's expenses to the National Association in July. Chartered buses are being arranged for in some states to take many of the delegates to these National bodies, and thereby enabling them to make the trip with least expense.

The youth will follow. They are following good Christian leadership in the churches whenever they are given opportunity to manifest their concern for Christ and the betterment of their church and community. In a great many places they are taking the lead in Youth Rallies, Youth Bible Study course, Summer Institutes, and the like. They are becoming more and more interested in learning more about the Bible and the way they should live before the world.

With this good thing before the ministry and the church, pastors, Sunday School superintendents, Woman's Auxiliary workers, and other lay-leaders of the church should encourage, assist, and offer financial help to the youth in their endeavors to grow, and to become better qualified to do Christian service in the local church and community. With proper guidance, and opportunities offered to them, the youth will make the spiritual life of the church much more felt and appreciated by the older people of the church.

A great many pastors are learning this truth. They are consequently making provision in their churches for youth activities of the church and community. They know that it pays to give the youth something to do for Christ. Other pastors and churches are taking notice of this move of the young people for God, and they are looking forward to giving their young people in their churches opportunities to organize and become workers for the cause of Christ. And may the good work of the youth of the church spread, move forward in the right direction, and bring forth spiritual fruit for the glory of God.

force. Thus the Communists of the United States are seeking to destroy true American, Democratic, and Christian principles, by first creating government ownership and destroying private industry. Step by step has been the way with the Communists in countries where they have taken over. They wait until the time is ripe and then they strike.

The principles have been and are being taught in our public schools, colleges and universities. It is in a great many schools. It is taught secretly by fellow-travelers and "red" sympathizers. Finally, it comes to such power that there is no way to prevent its teaching. A teacher was reprimanded by the Educational Board of a certain school and her position condemned, but she stayed right on and taught.

A young man attended a leading North Carolina institution of learning. When he came home at Christmas he said to his father who was a minister, "Papa, I have learned that there is no confidence to be put in the so called miracles of the Bible." From whom did he learn these new things, things that deny the inspired Word of God? He learned them from a professor who was being paid by tax money from the parents.

A young preacher, who was attending a certain religious college, said to me: "Preacher, if you will throw away the Book of Genesis we can agree pretty well." If we throw away the beginning where can we begin? As Christians, let us be careful where we send our children to school, and how we live and whom we support in politics in every way of life. Let us be true to God and His church, and then we will be true to man in every respect.

A gallant foeman in the fight,
A brother when the fight was o'er;
The hand that led the host with might
The blessed torch of learning bore.

No shriek of shells nor roll of drums
No challenge fierce, resounding far,
When reconciling wisdom comes
To heal the cruel wounds of war.

Thought may the minds of men divide,
Love makes the heart of nations one,
And so, thy soldier grave beside,
We honor thee, Virginia's son.

SOUTH CAROLINA LEAGUERS HOLD CONVENTION

The Young People's Leagues of the Central Conference of Free Will Baptist churches of South Carolina assembled on Saturday, May 13, for their semi-annual convention at White Savannah F. W. B. Church. The convention was opened by devotional singing and prayer. Brother L. L. Cole of Little Bethel Church presided over the meeting. After the secretary gave his report, and the different leagues were recorded and given a hearty welcome, the Junior League of White Savannah Church rendered a beautiful program. Following this program, everyone present sang several choruses.

Little Star leaguers then gave their program which was very good, especially since she had just recently organized a League. Brother L. P. Brown, speaker of the morning, used for his subject: "Ephraim is a cake not turned" (Hosea 7:8). He substituted F. W. B. for Ephraim, thus reading, "Free Will Baptist is a cake not turned," and he brought a very inspiring message.

After the morning message, everyone enjoyed an hour for lunch and good fellowship on the church grounds.

At the beginning of the afternoon session, the devotional reading was taken from Philippians, the fifth chapter. Brother Cole delivered a short talk on the theme: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Following this talk, Little Bethel leaguers rendered their program. This was given by the seniors and adult leaguers.

A very much interesting part of the day's activities was the Sword Drill which was participated in by members of each league. Following this drill, a business period was entered into for the good of the convention. In the line of new business the Little Star Leagues were taken into the organization. Brother L. L. Cole and Brother Franklyn Eddy of Little Bethel Church were chosen as delegates to represent the Central Conference of Free Will Baptists at the Nation-wide League Conference which is to be held at Norfolk, Virginia, June 13 through 15. The Constitution and By-Laws were read, discussed, and adopted. Following this the election of officers was as follows: president, L. L. Cole of Little Bethel; vice-president, M. C. Todd of Little Bethel; reading secretary, Ruby Johnson of Oak Grove; corresponding secretary, Iris Eddy of Little Bethel; treasurer, Dora Lee Thompson of Little Star; chorister, Mildred Altman of Little Bethel; pianist, Norma Baxley of Little Bethel.

The next convention is to be held with Oak Grove church on Saturday, November 11, 1950.

ternoon after each first and third Sundays of each month. This church is young, but we believe that the members are eager to do things for the building up of the kingdom of God in the community. Reverend Forest Sellers of Bainbridge, Georgia, is the pastor.

We are asking those who read this announcement to be much in prayer for the success of our church and auxiliary that we may go forward, and advance with Christ by our good works.

Special Call to N. C. Auxiliary Women!!

The North Carolina State Woman's Auxiliary Convention met last Thursday at Shady Grove Church. It was well attended and a most enjoyable convention. Every phase of the work was represented by an interested person or persons, and the work showed a great deal of improvement.

We were so sorry to have missed some of you and hope you will strive to be present next time. These conventions are a source of inspiration to us, and we need to attend them.

The convention elected a delegate to go to the National auxiliary convention which meets in California this time. It will cost around $300.00 to pay the expenses of a delegate to go. The convention appropriated $75.00 to help this delegate's expenses and voted to ask each of the auxiliaries in the State to send a contribution to the treasurer. Mrs. M. A. Woodard, Winterville, N. C., right away to help defray the expenses of such a delegate. If you are not financially able to send as much as five dollars, just ask your pastor if he will ask, or let you ask your church to help you pay this. I am sure he will help you to make it possible to send at least one delegate.

We can send as many as ten delegates, but it is too far and too expensive to ever consider sending that many. So you see if we get more than it takes to send one we can help to send two. So don't hesitate to send as much as possible.

Please get your contribution to Mrs. M. A. Woodard, Winterville, N. C., right away. The delegate will have to leave around the first of July.

GREENWOOD WOMAN'S AUXILIARY HOLDS MEETING

On May 18, 1950, the woman's auxiliary of F. W. B. Church convened for the regular monthly program. The theme for the day was: "Advancing with Christ through Stewardship Study." The meeting was called to order by the president, and the members sang, "Onward Christian Soldiers," for their opening hymn. Mrs. G. T. Harvey offered prayer, after which the program chairman took charge of the meeting, and led in the responsive scripture reading.

Those taking part on the program were: Mesdames Abbie Harvey, Dorothy Johnson, Clyde Harmon, and Mrs. J. V. Shutes. Following the discussion of the lesson, a chain of prayer was offered for the sick members, and for the church that it may grow to love one another more and more.

The members then entered into the business session by having the roll called and the dues paid. A motion was made to buy some flowers for one of our members who had been sick and in the hospital for some time. There being no other business to be transacted, the meeting closed to meet at Circle meeting the last of May.

NEW AUXILIARY ORGANIZED AT FATHER'S HOME CHURCH NEAR HOPEFUL, GA.

On May 14, 1950, it was our happy privilege to meet with Fathers' Home F. W. B. Church in Mitchell County, Georgia, near Hopeful, for the purpose of organizing a woman's auxiliary. After some discussion, it was organized with the following officers.

Mrs. Francis Wishum, president; Mrs. Bernice Wishum, first vice-president; Mrs. Louise Baily, second vice-president; Miss Eiron Holmes, third vice-president; Miss Hilda Holmes, fourth vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Wishum, fifth vice-president; and Miss Bernice Wishum, secretary-treasurer.

We have 17 charter members in this auxiliary. We are hoping to gain many new members in the very near future. We agreed to hold our meetings on Friday af-

LEE'S CHAPEL AUXILIARY AND BIBLE SCHOOL

Lee's Chapel auxiliary convened on Thursady night, May 18, in the home of Mrs. M. M. Stone, with 19 members present, and one honorary member, Mrs. John Smith. Mrs. J. H. Elmore directed the program, "Advancing with Christ through Stewardship." Many helpful thoughts were given in the discussion on how we should tithe our time, talent, and love, as well as money.

A report was given concerning the prayer meeting, and also concerning one to be held on Tuesday night with Mrs. Lula Sills who has been sick for some time.

Our Bible School will be held during the second and third weeks of June. We are hoping that everyone will plan to attend this school. Pray for the success of our auxiliary, that it may become more spiritual and grow in grace.

YEAR'S WORK OF "GO-TELL AUXILIARY"

The fifth of May, 1949, Mrs. Annie W. Boyd met at Shiloh Church, with a group of nine girls and organized its first "Go-Tell Auxiliary" with nine members present. We met in the church every first Saturday afternoon for a while. Then it was decided to meet in the homes of its members, which proved to be successful. Our auxiliary has gone forward in its work. We have raised with our dues about $30.00

We are using the Year Book of Programs for the Go-Tell Auxiliary. Our last meeting being our meeting ending our first years work, seemed to be enjoyed very much. With twelve members present and four visitors, we met in the home of Miss Peggy Harrison. We were favored with a special number at the meeting by the hostess and her cousin, Miss Peggy Harrison, and Miss Lois Biggs. The Title: "Dust on the Bible" which was beautifully done. We now have 16 members present. They all are interested in the work of the Lord. Pray for our success.

MALACHI PLEADS FOR WHOLEHEARTED RELIGION

(Lesson for June 18)

Lesson: Malachi 2:10-17; 3:7-12; 4:5-6.

Golden Text: Malachi 2:10.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

Malachi wrote his small book of only fifty-two verses during a time of religious declension of Israel. He belongs to the period of the closing half of the fifth century before Christ. His name means "my Messenger." During his time, the people of Israel were sinful, careless of their temple worship, and openly disobedient unto the Lord. Some of their worst sins were a depraved priesthood, alien marriages, neglected tithes, and the quarrels among the most vile people of the nation. The Old Testament closed with a dark and gloomy picture to the prophet, and a period of around four hundred years intervenes before the coming of our Lord.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. All men have one common Creator, believers also have one common spiritual Father (Mal. 2:10).

2. It is necessary to return to the Lord in exactly those things in which we have gone away from Him (3:7).

3. Withholding from God what properly belongs to Him is the same as taking it away from Him (vs. 8).

4. A nation that neglects its obligations to God is doomed to loss and failure (vs. 9).

5. God wants a dedication in which there is no reservation, mental or otherwise (vs. 10).

6. Though man has sinned against God, it is God who calls him to come back (vs. 7).

7. If we fear those who rob men should we have any fellowship with those who rob God? (vs. 8).

8. If robbing men is subject to punishment by men, does it seem strange that robbing God brings a curse from God? (vs. 9).

9. The tithe is a token and a test of obedience to the Lord (vs. 10).

10. God sent a special messenger to announce the coming of Christ, and He has many messengers today proclaiming His Name (4:5, 6).

11. Our lesson text is short, but our lesson title and topic bring to our attention a subject that is inspiring indeed. If there is anything in the wide world about which we ought to be wholehearted it is our religion. But the sad fact is that multitudes devote nearly all their time and strength to their own selfish pursuits and give religion little place in their lives or none at all. This was true in Malachi's day, and it is true yet. One test of wholeheartedness in religion is the keeping of the ordinances of God. Malachi complains that the Jews had departed from these ordinances even from the days of their fathers. One flagrant example which he discusses in an unprinted part of our lesson (2:11-17) is the putting away of their wives that they may marry other women. This was indeed a grievous sin, which caused the Lord to say, "I hate putting away" (2:16 RV). And we may be very sure that God still hates this evil, which is distressingly common in our own day.—Arnold's Commentary.

12. Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. Isaiah 40:3 and Malachi 3:1 clearly indicate that John the Baptist was chosen and sent of God to become the forerunner of Christ when He came first. There were Jews at that time who believed that John the Baptist was Elijah who had returned to the earth. Some Bible readers today are of that same opinion. But we find in Matthew 11:10 and John 1:21 that John the Baptist was not Elijah. We are told here very definitely that Elijah is to come before the great and dreadful day of the Lord. "As Moses in verse 4 represents the law, so Elijah represents the prophets. The Jews always understood it of the literal Elijah. Their saying is, 'Messiah must be anointed by Elijah.' As there is another consummating advent of Messiah Himself, so also of His forerunner Elijah: perhaps in person, as at the transfiguration (Matthew 17:3; cf. 11, 'Elias truly shall first come and restore all things': cf. Acts 3:21, 'the times of restitution of all things,' which proves that the time of the second coming is referred to). He in his appearance at the transfiguration in that body on which death had never passed, is the forerunner of the saints who shall be found alive at the Lord's second coming. Revelation 11:3 may refer to the same witnesses as at the transfiguration, Moses and Elijah."—A. R. Fausset—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Danger of Covetousness

A shepherd boy, of small experience, was one day leading his little flock near the entrance of a mountain cavern. He had been told that precious stones had often been discovered in such places. He was, therefore, tempted to leave his charge, and turn aside to explore the dark recesses of the cavern. He began to crawl in, but as he proceeded his face took on a veil of cobwebs, and his hands mittens of mud. He had not gone far when he saw two gems of a ruby glow lying near each other. He put forth his eager fingers to seize them, when a serpent bit him. In pain and fear he crawled quickly back to the light of day, and ran home to the chief shepherd to obtain some remedy for the bite. The good man, who was also his elder brother, sucked the poison from the wound, and applied to it a healing balm. Never afterwards did that shepherd covet the treasures which may lie concealed behind mountain rocks.—Hervey's Manual of Revivals.

The Mission Work Goes Forward In North India

soon number 50 trees, the fence which surrounds more than three acres of land, and the tent which is 40 feet by 18 feet, or our oxen. Nor yet the two houses under construction, or the little Indian school house which we are building for our Girls' School.

Of course, Miss Barnard has given largely from our Indian Mission Fund at the sacrifice of our other work. They have given indirectly. My immediate family had contributed many hundred rupees. We have given some, and friends have sent some. Thus, for the first time, the Free Will Baptist have a plant of their own in India, and plans are completed for their first church. Too much praise cannot be given to our Indian Director who has supported the effort in every way.

The Cronks are directly and indirectly responsible for quite a bit of the work. In the first place, they sent us their first convert who is in charge of the building program, and is helping us in both our medical work, and in our evangelistic efforts. In the second place, the group who have forsaken Hinduism first learned of us through a brother of the leader of the group who became acquainted with the Cronks in Kishan-ganj where he was working.

Be much in prayer for the above items. We realize that without your prayers and support they could never have been started. We have recently learned that several copies of our books have not yet been sold, due to the economic conditions particularly in Va. Remember that now, since the cost of the publication has been paid, every cent from the sales of the books will go to the Orphanage. Our second book about India has been given to the Woman's Auxiliary to whom it was dedicated.

May God continue to bless your every effort for his kingdom.

LETTER CONCERNING MISSIONS

Dear Friends of Missions:

The Missionary Prayer Band greets you again in the name of the Lord Jesus.

We have had many wonderful experiences at our College this year. One of the high lights was the Bible Conference which was recently held under a tent on the campus.

We have also heard from our mission work in Cuba. Brother Damon C. Dodd was there recently for their annual convention and graduation exercises. He brought back an inspiring report of the work.

However, what we believe will interest you most is the news brought us by Miss Laura Belle Barnard, director of our mission work in India. She told us of the work there and also of some definite needs. She gave us some very special requests and we would like to quote them to you:

One of the greatest needs is for sixteen new missionaries. Eight new stations in unevangelized territory are now open to us for immediate occupation.

Twenty thousand dollars is needed for the purchasing of new property in Kotagiri and the completion of the Woolsey's home in Purnea. These are most urgent because the building in Kotagiri which is being used (and has been for the past fourteen years) is outgrown and the owner is requiring its use, and in Purnea the rainy season starts in June and the Woolseys live in a tent.

Two pioneer missionaries, John-roju and wife, Sundri, have gone from Kotagiri to Purnea. This is a big step for these newly-weds since it was a fifteen-hundred mile trip and their first time away from home. Pray for them as they study the language and adjust themselves to the new and strange conditions.

Pray for a new convert, Mr. Singh Gill, who is hoping to go into full-time Christian service. Pray for his wife and family as he witnesses to them seeking to win them to Christ.

Recently there have been about ten new converts who are awaiting baptism, please pray for them. Also about fifteen or twenty others who are asking to be baptized, but in whose lives we are waiting to see clearer evidence of a work of grace.

Under the new government in India, new regulations have been inaugurated respecting the entrance of missionaries into the country. Pray that the door will be kept open for Miss Barnard's return, also for the entrance of these sixteen new missionaries into the country for whom we are calling.

Pray for the whole Indian Christian Church that it may be revived and become a witnessing church and evangelize its own people.

Our mission work is in greater need of prayer and money now than ever before. The monthly checks of our missionaries have been late several times. They are entirely dependent upon us for support.

God will hold us accountable if our missionaries suffer on the field for the lack of financial support. Will you do your part in praying and giving so that the above needs may be met?

In Him,
Missionary Prayer Band

REPORT OF PROGRESS OF NEW CHURCH AT MALONE, FLORIDA

We haven't been in the news yet, but we wish to let you Free Will Baptist people hear what we are doing in our church here in Malone, Fla. Our church was organized September 25, 1949. The following Sunday, we organized a Sunday School. On November 7, 1949, we organized a woman's auxiliary under the direction of our pastor, Rev. Chester A. Huckaby. We had an enrollment of ten members. We meet twice a month in our church. We meet on Monday afternoon after the first and third Sundays. We have sponsored the program on "The Light of Stewardship," which is in our Year Book, at four churches. Our young people took active parts in the program which, we feel, gave them an inspiration in the work.

This led us to organize a girls' auxiliary, of which we are extremely grateful. We have also organized a woman's auxiliary at Pleasant Ridge Church.

We have sponsored one chicken supper and we are now working on a quilt. We have in the treasury around seventy-five dollars. We have made numerous sick calls, took trays, made floral offerings, and sent five dollars for the car fund, after we held our week of prayer.

Together with Brother Huckaby we are doing well in our new church. We have bought benches and have paid for our piano. We have a Sunday School with 56 on roll and a league with 56 on roll. We have midweek prayer services, and, of course, two auxiliaries, one for the women, the other for our young girls. We have twenty church members. Brother Huckaby is doing a wonderful work here in Malone. We are thankful that God has sent us a fine Christian person like Brother Huckaby.

We are asking all Christians everywhere to pray that we may go forward as Christian soldiers in the advancement of Christ's work.

Boost National Home Mission Program

Get a Tag for Your Car! Don't Delay! Do It Now!

This is a picture of the plate which the National Home Mission Board is selling to car owners. It fits on your car license tag, and looks swell.

The National Home Mission Board is selling the tag for one dollar each for you to use on your car. We want every Free Will Baptist who drives a car to buy a tag and put it on your car. The purpose is to raise funds for the treasury of the National Home Mission Board.

The need for home mission work among Free Will Baptists is greatly needed in the towns and cities, and also in the rural districts of this country. Mission points need to be established in a great many places. New churches can be established in the cities and in the country if only we had sufficient funds to carry on the work. We are, therefore, requesting our church people to buy a tag and to urge others to do the same.

Simply enclose your dollar for the tag in your letter, and address it to Rev. J. B. Bloss, Route 5, Columbia, Tennessee. Be sure to put your correct address on your letter when you mail to us your money for your tag.

Your brother in Christ,

Rev. J. B. Bloss

WARREN LEE CLOUD PASSES

It is painful to thus give the news that on February 24, 1950, the death angel called my brother to his eternal home, to sleep until Jesus comes for his own.

Brother was born on April 21, 1894. He joined Damascus Free Will Baptist Church while he was in his early teens. He was a faithful member in this church for the remaining days of his life. He will be sadly missed, as he was a well known and a likable man in his church and community.

He leaves, besides his friends, to mourn his passing the following members of his family: the widow, Annie Mae Cloud, six daughters, Mrs. Katie Lee Simmons, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. Myrtle Rhea Blackman, Ft. Myers, Fla.; Mrs. Ruth Sexton, Panama City, Fla.; Mrs. Edna Mae Henderson, Pensacola, Fla.; Mrs. Ollie Vie Rehburg; and Miss Louise Cloud; and two sons, Robert R. Cloud, Marianna, Fla.; and Warren L. Jr., of the U. S. Navy, in Sicily. He leaves also his aged father, W. J. Cloud, Marianna, Fla.; and one brother, G. W. Cloud, Jacksonville, Fla.

Tearfully submitted by his only brother, G. W. Cloud.

BROTHER LUKE GRADY CALLED TO REST

The passing of Brother Luke Grady of Lenoir County on January 31, 1950, brings to a close the work of a faithful church worker.

He was born in Wayne County, North Carolina, near St. John's F. W. B. church. His parents moved to Lenoir County while he was quite young. Brother Grady joined Daily's Chapel F. W. B. Church while he was in his early twenties. He was married twice: first to Emma Rolins, and his second marriage was to Miss Suddie Dale. He was the father of six children, and lived to be 73 years old.

He started a prayer meeting at Daily's Chapel, and worked hard to keep it going for the upbuilding of God's kingdom. Many of his testimonies are still dwelling in the hearts of the people of Daily's Chapel. He would say, "Do the most good, and the least harm to everybody."

STORYLAND

WHERE DID THEY GO?

Beulah Myers

Donald Burrows turned the radio on Saturday morning to see if the fishing would be good that day. Presently he heard a deep voice saying, "Saturday and Sunday excellent for fishing!"

"Hurrah!" Don shouted, dashing for the back door. "Mon, I'm going to get Billy and head for the creek. Hope I catch a whopper today!"

In no time at all they had a can full of big fat worms and were heading for Miller's Creek. And the man on the radio must have known what he was talking about—for both the boys caught a long string of fish before noon!

They hurried home and had a fish fry in Don's kitchen. About two o'clock they went back to the creek and caught another string of nice fat perch!

Don exclaimed on the way home, "Fishing is the best I ever saw, and the worms are so easy to find. And, just think, it is going to be this way again tomorrow! Wish tomorrow wasn't Sunday! I sure would like to come back."

Don woke early the next morning. When he remembered about the fishing he jumped eagerly out of bed—then he remembered it was Sunday.

"I don't want to go to Sunday School," he exclaimed gloomily to himself, as he thought of the big fish waiting with open mouth to grab the fat worm on his line. "I'll slip over and see if Billy will go fishing with me today."

However, Billy firmly refused to go fishing on Sunday morning.

"But the radio said the fishing would be good again today," Don argued. "Just think how much fun we'd miss."

Billy shook his head. "I'm going to Sunday School anyway," he said.

Don knew his mother would not let him go, if she knew—so he had to wait until after nine, then slip off dressed in his best clothes.

The old shovel with the broken handle was still lying by the rotting stump where where he had found such large worms Saturday. He grabbed it and began to dig industriously, turning over the rich, black soil and scratching carefully through it. But, strangely, the worms did not seem to be there today! He dug several other places, but found only two skinny ones.

Maybe he could do better nearer the creek. He picked up his fishing pole and the shovel and walked on. It was not so much fun without Billy. But anyway it would be fun pulling the fish out, and Billy would be sorry he had not come when he saw his nice string of perch this afternoon.

Down by the creek, he dug and dug, but the worms were scarce there too. Where could they have gone? He was tired and panting for breath from the long walk and all the hard work. "They must have gone clean to China!" he exclaimed in disgust, leaning against a tree trunk to rest.

He finally had enough to start with, so he baited his hook and threw the line out over the water. As he sat patiently holding the long pole, he wished for a sand-wich. He was awfully hungry. Usually he brought something to eat, but had not dared try to get out with anything today.

Let's see—Sunday School would be about over now. Somehow, he almost wished he had gone. Suddenly he remembered it was Missionary Sunday. Now, he would not get to put his missionary offering in one of the little envelopes and write his name on it! And he really liked to do that too.

Seems like, there was something else too—oh, yes! They were learning the Ten Commandments, and he had learned them all. Now, why should that one about "Remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy," suddenly have to pop into his mind? He certainly did not want anything to spoil his day.

Suddenly, as Don sat quietly on the creek bank, he remembered that the fish were not biting as they had Saturday! Why, he had not even had a nibble!

He moved to another place where he had caught several the day before. After waiting patiently for fifteen or twenty minutes, he still had not had a bite. He had to be so careful about his new clothes. He could not afford to get them muddy.

Finally something yanked his line sharply. Don perked the pole eagerly, jumping up in his excitement. Then his feet were slipping on the muddy incline, down toward the slimy water. He screamed, threw his arms out wildly, but nothing could save him. He slid down the steep bank and—kersplash—into the water.

Poor Don! He was an awful spectacle as he dragged himself shamefully home to face his mother—and without a fish too! Then, to add to everything else, just as he crossed a clearing near his own barn lot, some of the boys were passing along the road on their way home from church. And they saw him! He hid as quickly as possible, but their loud amused laughter told him that they had seen him.

It was awful for his mother to scold all the time she was bathing him, but it was worse when she made him answer the phone when his Sunday School teacher called, and tell him that he had gone fishing.

Late that night he was still wondering what had become of the fish, and the worms. Maybe they had gone to Sunday School, Don thought to himself with a sob of regret and shame. And if Jesus would only forgive him, and let him live to see another Sunday, he would go to Sunday School too.

REV. DAVID HANSLEY HOLDS
GOOD REVIVAL

Reverend David Hansley, of Ayden, North Carolina, was the evangelist who held the revival meeting recently at Oak Grove F. W. B. Church in Bladen County. The meeting began on Monday night, May 1, and continued through Tuesday night, May 9. He was ably assisted by our pastor, Rev. C. B. Hansley.

We feel that Brother Hansley is a very consecrated man of God, and a bold and fearless preacher of the Word. He dug deep down into the scriptures, and preached uncompromisingly the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. He is just the preacher that we need today.

Some of the subjects which he used are as follows: "The Simplicity of the Gospel;" "The Foundation of the Church;" "The Second Coming of Christ" and so on.

We hope to be able to have him with us again. We pray for the success of his labors.

Yours in Christ
Mrs. W. G. Wilson

CONCERNING DESIGNATED MONEY FOR MISSIONS

In the recent sitting of the Foreign Missions Board in its annual meeting, which was held in Nashville, Tennessee, the following resolution was adopted as relating to money sent to the treasury earmarked for certain purposes:

"On motion we ask Bro. Davis to write to our church publications reminding our people that the Board is held responsible for the allocation of all funds, therefore the funds earmarked for special purposes will be used where, in the judgment of the Board, it is most needed."

We trust you will take special notice of this resolution. The Board is supposed to know where money is most needed and is responsible for placing it accordingly.

We are happy to report that we are now caught up with our obligations on both fields, India and Cuba. However, in only a few days the regular allotment will be due again. We are hoping we can meet them. Thank you for all your support in the past, and for what we trust you will continue to do in the future.

Jesus Our Joy

JESUS, Thou Joy of loving hearts!
Thou Fount of life! Thou Light of men!
From the best bliss the earth imparts
We turn, unfilled, to thee again.

Thy truth unchanged hath ever stood;
Thou savest those that on thee call;
To them that seek thee thou art good,
To them that find thee, all in all.

We taste thee. O thou Living Bread,
And long to feast upon thee still;
We drink of thee, the Fountain Head,
And thirst our souls from thee to fill!

Our restless spirits yearn for thee
Where'er our changeful lot is cast,
Glad, when thy gracious smile we see,
Blest, when our faith can hold thee fast.

O Jesus, ever with us stay;
Make all our moments calm and bright;
Chase the dark night of sin away;
Shed o'er the world thy holy light.

WHAT I EXPECT OF MY PASTOR

"See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant" (Jer. 1:10). Just as the prophet is declaring here that his office was to be exercised over nations and kingdoms, so should the pastor officiate over his church and congregation. Just as the prophet's work was divided into two parts, so is the pastor's: (1) To discourage evil, that is, "root out, pull down, destroy and throw down." (2) To encourage good, that is, "build and plant." The Church is God's House—God's Building—and the pastor is appointed to pull down the rubbish and together with God build a good foundation. The Church is also God's Garden, and the pastor is appointed to work in it, that is, to root out weeds and plant good fruit. Since this is God's command, I expect my pastor to pull down and root out evil and then build and plant good.

Because the office of pastor is laden with endless anxieties, great responsibilities, and rare opportunities, one must be capable of handling the job. The basic requirement is that he be called of God and properly ordained. Unless he meets this one fundamental, his work will amount to nothing. "Woe be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture! saith the Lord" (Jer. 23:1).

After a preacher has received a definite calling, the first thing I expect of him is the command given in 2 Tim. 4:2, "Preach the word." Since the blind cannot lead the blind, there are certain essential qualities for one to preach the Word. First, a definite experience is needed. One must be able to say with Paul, "I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." Or to exclaim with the blind man, "I was blind, now I see." One must be converted and live a holy life. Just as the telegraph wire must be insulated before it can carry the electric message, so the pastor must be insulated from his old life of sin before he can carry the gospel message to lost souls.

By Mrs. Martha H. Everson

A love for souls is needed, along with a realization that souls are lost, and he might be held responsible for them. J. C. Penney, Eddie Rickenbacker, Branch Ricky, and Lowell Thomas are among a group of prominent laymen who have organized because they realize the need of a religious revival in America today. These men, who call themselves "Guidepost, Inc.," distribute religious tracts and literature as well as sponsor lectures and other religious activities. Our pastors should become sin conscious, too, and preach the Word wherever they may be. Christ never failed to teach no matter where he went—in the synagogue, on the mountainside, in a boat, or wherever He was. Our pastors should be equally zealous in carrying the Word.

A working knowledge of the Bible is very necessary. One must be persistent in the study of God's Word in order to teach the spiritual truths found there. He must spend much time in prayer—asking for divine guidance, so that he may preach the Word of God faithfully.

I want to hear the pure unbiased gospel regardless of whom it hits. Too often our preachers let the people, rather than God, make them and even tell them what to preach. One clergyman went to one of the leaders of his Church to apologize because he was afraid that he had offended the man in his message that morning. But the layman was wiser than the minister; for he very politely replied, "My dear sir, it is a very poor sermon that does not hit somebody."

Preachers should do what God says rather than what man says.

Therefore, I believe a pastor should have: (1) a definite experience, (2) a love for souls, (3) a message to carry, no matter where he goes, (4) a working knowledge of the Bible, (5) fear of no man but always showing obedience to God; then I expect him to "Preach the Word."

The second thing I expect of my pastor is leadership. To be a good leader, one must love his church members. Jesus said, "The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep, but the hireling fleeth." So the good pastor loves his people and works under great difficulties sometime to lead them into better and greater paths.

He leads his people in soul winning by bringing souls to Christ himself and stressing the fact that every Christian should be a soul winner. He leads his people in stewardship by practicing, as well as preaching, righteous living, tithing, and good character. He leads his people in right thinking by encouraging Bible study, family altars, and religious literature.

He leads his people in prayer. True prayer is a spiritual experience. Conversation with God should be a constant habit, not a maddened plea when one is at wit's end. And, it is to a Father, not a Santa Clause, that we must learn to speak in trust and obedience. The supreme model was given in the Gethsemane prayer, "Not my will, but thine be done." Man prays not only that God should remember him, but also that he should remember God. Men habitually use only a small part of the power they possess. Therefore, the pastor should lead his people in exercising the power of prayer because prayer is power.

Thomas E. Dewey has said that our most important shortage today is a lack of faith. The pastor leads his people in faith by being entirely dependent upon God for his daily bread. Christ told the apostles to

New fields for operating Home Mission enterprises will be presented and action taken when the Home Mission Board reports.

All of this, plus much more, will be interspersed with preaching, singing, and Bible discussion based on the theme "Stewardship." It is hoped that each department will prepare displays for the association.

THE DARK HOURS

I never knew night so black
Light failed to follow on its track.
I never knew a storm so gray
It failed to have its clearing day.
I never knew such bleak despair
That there was not a rift, somewhere.
I never knew an hour so drear
Love could not fill it full of cheer!

Four Things that Constitute a Progressive F. W. B. Church

FIRST—FULL TIME PASTORATE

Rev. O. M. Hilburn
Darlington, S. C.

John 4:35, Jesus said: "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

There are forward steps taken in many localities, even in rural districts, to put our Free Will Baptist churches on full-time basis. Once we get a vision of the rapid progress being made in so doing, we will never be satisfied to drop back on the old drag type of one fourth, or one half time service.

No pastor can successful pastor more than one church at the time, and do justice to himself, and the church which he is serving.

I Peter 5:2 says, "Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind."

If God is furnishing the feed, and the pastor is the medium by which the flock is to be fed, he is only able to make his round once in a whole month, though he may be freighted with a good feed from the Chief Shepherd. It may have the proper vitamins for the soul; it may have all the calories that belong to a God-sent heavenly meal, but he bids his flock good bye, and does not see them in a month. If we were to treat our physical bodies in that manner, somebody would be called upon to conduct a funeral.

We marvel at even the thought of Free Will Baptists frequenting the movies, swimming holes, ball parks, road houses, cocktail lounges, and even dens of vice on Sunday. There is a reason; they find the church doors closed on the Lord's Day. The Devil's play houses are air conditioned, and every thing running in full blast. And idle minds are the Devil's work shop, and they at once become a sequel to the Devil's folly, and soon become members of Vanity Fair. Churches sometimes try to plead poverty, by saying that they are not able to go on a full-time basis. That may be true; but we Free Will Baptists generally do any thing we want to do. If we want a new car we buy it. If we want a house, and lot we buy it, and if we want a new set of furniture we get it.

Haggai 1:4 says, "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie waste?"

Old Deacon Jones says that our aim is to go on full-time basis, as soon as we get to where we can support our pastor. That statement makes sense, but we are getting in any better shape financially? It has been said of our Jewish Brethren, if there are ten families in a colony, they call for them a priest, and set up a synagogue.

God has given us the best financial system under Heaven: namely, the Tithing system.

Matt. 23:23, "Woe unto you, scribes and pharisees, hypocrits! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought you to have done, and not to leave the others undone."

If we Free Will Baptist would preach and practice the system of giving tithes and offerings, we would soon be able to put our churches on a full-time basis, build our pastor a parsonage, and take care of Him. If ought is a binding command, we feel quite sure we are in keeping with the word of God as we consider John 13:14, where it says, "Ye also ought to wash one another's feet." Then we, in conclusion, take the ought in Luke 11:42, to be just as much a duty, when Jesus said, "Ye ought to pay tithes." Paul the great Apostle in Acts 20:28 said, "You pastors, are overseers;" so if the Holy Ghost hath made us overseers, our duty is to feed the church of God. Jesus said, Matt. 24:45, "give them meat in due season."

If a church is in need of a pastor, and the matter comes before you, as a prospect, then give them to understand, to begin with, it will be on one condition, namely: full-time basis.

It may look like a slow go to begin with, and we may have to pinch pennies, and stir soup thin to get by, but if we will work, and pray, and take the Lord with us in our feeble efforts, it will eventually pay off, for our souls will be like watered garden.

SECOND—SUNDAY SCHOOLS

It has been said that Sunday Schools are the "plant beds" of the church. The life of a church is generally estimated by the activity of the Sunday School.

If you want to see a Sunday School die with the dry rot, have the time set to begin at 9:45 A. M. and come dragging in about 10:30 A. M.; then as soon as Sunday School is dismissed, walk right out from under the pastor's nose, and not stay for preaching, after the humble man of God has been on his knees for a week, grappling with the throne of God, to try in his weak way to prepare a message that will be soul food for his flock, and they not have respect enough for the humble servant of God to stay and hear him deliver his sermon. They are next seen at a Sunday ball game, or some honky tonk place of amusement. The next Sunday come back and take their place as officials in Sunday School; and, being looked upon as leaders, to point sinners to the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world.

We need consecrated men and women as officials of our Sunday Schools; true, we want men, and women, boys, and girls in all walks of life in our Sunday Schools; but they need to be taught by precept, and example. Education is a wonderful blessing, and we should encourage it by all means in every respect by going down deep into our pockets to put it over, but education, with no salvation, will never run a successful Sunday School.

Last, but not least, we find some Free Will Baptist Sunday Schools teaching other types of literature in their classes. We do not mean to say that there are not other good Sunday School Literature available; but, if I were a farmer, and went over to my neighbor's farm to borrow a tool, it only means that I have not got the tool that I stand in need of to turn out a better job. Personally, I don't think our Sunday School literature is second to any.

THIRD—WOMEN'S AUXILIARIES

A church may exist, but it will never be at its best without a Women's Auxiliary. A pastor may think his church is on the mountain top, but if he has not as yet caught a vision of what it would mean to his church to have an Auxiliary organized in it, he would be gladly surprised at the wonderful results cropping out of a real wide awake Women's Auxiliary.

The Board of Deacons may be qualified in every respect; they may work in harmony with the church, and the pastor. The church may be making progress, yet, if you do not have a Women's Auxiliary organized in your church, it is more, or less like a bird with a broken pinion, and the pastor is the first one to feel the effects of it. We will have to agree, that the Woman's auxiliary is the most complete organization in our Free Will Baptist body. First, the Local President; second, the District President; third, the State President; fourth, the National President. All of them are good, consecrated, and qualified women, and each of them with their staff of wide awake workers. The first Vice-president, on the alert, is ever reaching out to secure new members, and promote the great work for the master. The second vice-president is to work with the young people, the Y. W. A.; G. A. and the G. T. auxiliaries; and cooperate with the Sunday School Superintendent, and the pastor in conducting vacation Bible Schools in our churches. The third Vice-president carries along with her other duties a study course. She keeps a keen eye on the mission progress that is being made, and is deeply concerned about stewardship, and

"Provide neither gold nor silver nor brass in your purses, nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves; for the workman is worthy of his meat." A preacher who thinks he cannot devote full time to his pastoral work because he must earn a living demonstrates a lack of faith. The apostles ordained deacons to look after the business of the early Church so that they, the apostles, could give their full time to the ministry. And, I believe the same holds true today. God calls preachers for full time work. Christ wants men to have faith in Him.

Since the pastor must be the leader, a few of the things he should lead his people in are: (1) Love for Christ and fellowman. (2) Soul winning. (3) Stewardship. (4) Right thinking. (5) Praying. (6) Faith. The good shepherds sets good examples before his flock.

The last thing I expect of my pastor is service. I expect him to serve willingly and faithfully. God's chosen servants must yield Him absolute subjection. What God bids, they must do; where He sends, they must go. Ministers of Christ must be willing to accept His demands entirely and without question; to lay themselves out for any service which may be for the good of their people; to spend and be spent in the Master's service. Self-sacrificing obedience to God enforces its lesson on others. People will heed consecrated lives though they may ignore eloquent words. A living sermon has vast power. I expect my pastor to love people and serve them rather than grudgingly do with a "What will I get out of it?" mood. You know some preachers are cisterns while others are wells. Cisterns are anxious but wells are peace. Cisterns are good so far as they go; but their reserves are limited; and they cannot stand a long drought. Artesian wells run deep—they never run dry. "In Him who strengthens me, I am able for any thing" should be the sentiment of every pastor. Then more and greater service for God and his fellowman would be rendered.

One thing that most pastors shun today is visiting in the community through the week. This seems to be especially true in the rural churches—and country churches make up our association. Many pastors do not even attend the midweek prayer service. The importance of visiting cannot be overlooked. I read about a rural Church in Maine that the State Board wanted to close because it was not being used, and then, too, it had only five members. But these five people called a retired minister to this Church; and in a very short time, the membership had grown to almost one hundred, and the spiritual atmosphere was remarkable. How did the other ninety get interested enough to go to Church? The old preacher had responded when the five challenged him, "What kind of a man are you if you can't help us save a church?" He had gone out in the highways and hedges and ask them to come. This Church gives the credit for its attendance to their pastor's visits. I believe every pastor should devote part of each week to visiting in the community where he preaches. He should not only visit the sick in the Church, but the community at large—the church members who are neglecting church services as well as the non-church members. Many times a family visit and an invitation to Church from the pastor proves to people that he is truly a shepherd of God and is seeking lost sheep. Usually this causes people to think of their own spiritual welfare.

Then, a pastor should be a peacemaker. He should be one who can help to settle difficulties peaceably—one who is truly an ambassador for Christ. He should be steadfast in serving God—one that his church members can always depend on to carry his share of the work through; one who is eager to spread sunshine and help those who are in need, not necessarily with money, but as Peter did when he healed the man at the gate of the Temple that had been lame since birth, telling him, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have I give thee." Now, I don't mean that I expect my pastor to perform miracles of healing; but I do expect him to help heal the souls of people just as his own soul has been healed through Christ Jesus. Christianity is contagious, and a true minister wants to share it.

A pastor should always be ready to offer comforting words to those who are bereaved; to encourage his church members in their Christian work; to help the various organizations and auxiliaries in all religious activities; to carry the gospel wherever he goes, warning sinners, encouraging Christians, comforting those that mourn and rejoice with those that are happy. He should truly be a minister for Christ.

One of the best illustrations of service that I know is the story of the good Samaritan that Jesus tells about in Luke. The traveler from Jerusalem to Jericho had been beaten and robbed. He needed help. Do you remember whom Christ declared his neighbor? It was not the priest or the Levite, both of whom passed the wounded man, but rather the Samaritan who bound his wounds and helped him to shelter. Like the man of Samaria ministered unto the needy man, so should the pastor be a true neighbor to those around him and minister to their needs.

Some of the things I expect my pastor to do in the way of service are: (1) Be willing to do whatever God might want him to do. (2) Have the strength and courage to hold out. (3) Visit among the people in his Church community regularly. (4) Be a peacemaker. (5) Be dependable. (6) Serve as a physician to help sick souls find a remedy. (7) Be ready to comfort and cheer. (8) Be ready to warn. (9) Be ready to encourage. (10) Be a neighbor. In other words, a pastor should be a true friend—a comrade—to his people. His life should be one of service.

"Has some one seen Christ in you today?"

Pastor, look to your heart, I pray; The little things you have done or said—

This is gratifying news. Most every week we receive news of new woman's auxiliaries having been recently organized in churches where there never had been one. These reports state that the women of the churches are becoming interested in doing work for the Lord through such an organization, as the women of other churches have been working through their well established auxiliaries for sometime.

These new auxiliaries will add greatly to the work of the local church, and also to the effectiveness of the District and State Woman's Auxiliaries in their work, because they will join in with the district and state work, and help to move forward the religious activities of the whole church. However, there are still a great many churches throughout the denomination that do not as yet have Woman's Auxiliaries established in them. They should get busy and fall in line with the other churches that have them. They cannot afford to lag behind in the battle for Christ.

This issue of the Baptist paper contains some worthwhile messages for those who read our church paper. Bro. O. M. Hilburn of Darlington, S. C., has said some good things concerning whole-time pastorates for the progressive and strong rural churches. His line of thought is worth careful consideration by the pastors and the members of those churches. Progress in religious thinking and real Christian service constitute the essential thing in this modernistic and strenuous age of the world's history.

Mrs. Martha H. Everson, of Colquit, Georgia, in her article on "What I expect of My Pastor," has given for the readers something worth studying, and accepting as truth needful today for the good of the church, and those who are standing in need of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Read and take to heart what she "expects of a pastor."

For those who are hoping to attend the National Association in July, there is no time to delay in making plans to take the trip to California. Some will go by chartered buses, others by air, and some by private cars.

From this section of North Carolina, plans are being made by several ministers and delegates to go on cars and buses, and their arrangements are to take an early start on the long trip to the city of Richmond, California, where the Association will convene, July 11 through 14, 1950.

Did they accord with the way you prayed?
Have your thoughts been pure and words been kind?
Have you sought to have the Saviour's mind?
The world with a criticising view Has watched; but did it see Christ in you?
"Has some one seen Christ in you today?
Pastor look to your life, I pray;
There are aching hearts and blighted souls
Being lost in sin's destructive shoals.
And perhaps of Christ their only view
May be of what they see of Him in you.
Will they see enough to bring hope and cheer?
Look to your life !does it shine out clear?

Now, summarizing my statements:

In addition to the fundamental requirement that my pastor receive a definite call from God, I expect him to (1) preach the gospel, (2) lead his flock and (3) serve his people.

I challenge every pastor in the Midway Association to be a pastor rather than a mere preacher. If every minister in our association would do this, we would see a definite improvement in all of our churches. Will you give all your talents, all your time, and all your self to Christ and His Church for the rest of this year? I dare you, pastors, to do this!

PASTORAL ANNOUNCEMENT

This is to advise that I will be available for pastoral services on the third Sunday for next year, and also for revival work during the months of July, September, and October. Those interested in having my services may write to me, or call to see me.

Yours in the service of the Lord,

The following letter was received and approved by the State Mission Board of North Carolina, in its quarterly session at Ayden, N. C., June 1, 1950. A copy was ordered published in the Free Will Baptist paper for information. It follows:

"State Mission Board of Free Will Baptists of North Carolina. Greetings:

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Raleigh, N. C., in a called meeting May 28, 1950, voted for the cancelling of the application for further pastoral help for our church, at present, from your Board.

The church is progressing very nicely at present, and we want to thank you for your assistance in the past.

Done by order of the church, May 28, 1950."

Herman Wooten, Pastor

This report from the Raleigh Church will, no doubt, be very gratifying to all who are interested in the progress of the church. May we pray for continued progress of the work in Raleigh, as it pertains to the growth of our church there.

"BEHOLD MY HANDS AND MY FEET"

Scripture: Luke 24:36-48
By Fred John Meldau

THE MOST ASTOUNDING MIRACLE of all time is the bodily resurrection of Christ. A few other people in the history of the Bible have been raised from the dead by the voice of a prophet, apostle, or by the Son of God Himself. But the Lord Jesus Christ, after being dead for three days, came back to life, in a glorified, resurrected body, without the voice of command from without. He had said, "Destroy this temple (His body) and in three days I will raise it up" (John 2:19). In similar vein He had said, "I lay down My life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from Me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (John 10:17, 18). Consider well those important words. They tell about a miracle so unbelievable, so vast, so incomprehensible, that it is only possible to God Almighty. This is what our Lord said. "The Jews are going to kill Me; they will destroy this temple, this body of mine. And yet, it will be by my permission. I, myself, will lay down my life. Then, without any one helping, I Myself will raise Myself from the dead." The only way that is possible, of course, is to recognize this fundamental fact: Jesus Christ was more than mere man; He is the eternal God. Once you see that and admit that, it is obviously possible for Him to both permit His body to be nailed to a cross and later to raise it, by His own infinite power, from the dead.

If we were to demand full proof of a resurrection, we would insist on these three things: (1) There must be full proof that the man died, that he was really dead. Otherwise, a clever deception might be practiced, and death be faked. Then, of course, there would not be a genuine resurrection. (2) There must be full proof that the once-dead body is now really alive, and gives the customary, well-known evidence of life, such as speaking, walking, eating, etc. (3) There must be full proof that there was not a substitution of bodies—the putting of a live man in the place of the dead man. Such a swindle, of course, must be avoided.

It is a remarkable fact that the closer one studies the account of the death and resurrection of Christ the more the honest investigator is convinced it is a real resurrection, with no fraud or swindle involved. Let us face the facts as presented in all four Gospels, and give special attention to the record as given in Luke 24:36-48.

In the first place, it is evident that Christ, after Crucifixion, was dead; really dead. His body, pierced by five wounds, could not hold blood; and a bloodless man cannot live. It is worthy of note that the Roman soldier pierced His side after He was dead. (See John 19:33, 34). This huge wound in His side, by the Roman spear, would have been enough to kill Him. So, in a sense, one might say He was doubly dead.

In the second place, let us see if the risen Lord gave full proof that He was alive, after His death. This proof we find in the four gospels, much of it in the passage we are considering. Note, He spoke unto them: "Jesus saith unto them, Peace be unto you" (Luke 24:36). Then He invited them to "handle Him" and so make sure He was not a spirit, but a MAN, in the flesh. To further convince them, He ate before them—"broiled fish, and of an honeycomb" (vs. 42, 43).

In the third place, let us be sure there was not a substitution of bodies, the putting of a live man in the place of the dead man. So, the Lord definitely said to them, when they who is, and who is not paying tithes, and offerings into the church to which she belongs.

The fourth Vice-president is a great publicity booster. She wants to know if you are taking our denominational periodicals, and if not, why not. She is keeping the weeks of prayer ever before her ladies circle, and other gatherings of like nature. The fifth vice-president is one of the most deeply consecrated women in the entire set up. She is a good mixer, very graceful in her appearance, she is ever mindful of the orphanage work, superannuation, making sick visits, with garments, trays, baskets of commodities, Bibles, good literature. In spirit, the women's auxiliary carries the spirit of Dorcas of old (Acts 9:36, and 39) looking for an open door of opportunity, that they may drop a little ray of sunshine in some body's pathway. All of these good women working together in perfect harmony, like perfect clock work, with one aim, which is to please their Lord, and to hear it said: "She has done what she could."

FOURTH—LEAGUE WORK

Every Free Will Baptist church is in great need of a wide awake League. Some years ago it was called the Young Peoples League; but now it is called the League, for it has a place for the young, and the old, for there is no age limit, all are invited to membership in the League. It is the greatest local training that we can offer to our church today. It is properly organized into groups, namely: the Junior Group, the Intermediate Group, the Senior Group, and the Adult Group; it is sometimes suggested that the Seniors and the Adults be in the same group, and that the adults have recognition as "honorary members," but do not be granted the power to cast a vote. In other words, just a bench warmer, then they begin to feel like they are in the wrong pew, they may excuse themselves, slip out the back way, and not be seen hanging around any more.

Place each group within the age limit, see the F. W. B. L. Manual, and she or he will feel more at home, and the efforts put forth will be a pleasure.

It has been said of some that they did have an organized league in their church, and it turned out to be a play house, and a courting parlor for the young folk, and they decided it was best to close it down.

Well, if that has been the trouble in your church, there is a reason you, by all means, should put Christians in office, as leaders of the various groups, and they should be very consecrated men, and women, boys, and girls. They need to be trained for religious service. The pastor and his Board of Deacons want to be present at each League service, and by so doing, everything will be carried out in a more graceful manner. Prov. 29:2, says, "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked rule, the people mourn."

When a church is put on full-time basis, and it has a good Sunday School, a wide-awake women's Auxiliary, and a well-organized League, with good Christian leadership, and by all means, people with some age, and experience, then it is like the well developed, physically fit babe that visits the home, give it the attention that is required, and the proper nourishment that nature demands, with good environment, and watch him grow.

supposed they had seen a spirit, "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself" (v. 39). Why did He select His hands and His feet, and show them to the disciples especially? Because they were nail-pierced. THERE WAS THE INESCAPABLE PROOF THAT HE WAS THE VERY SAME ONE WHO HAD BEEN CRUCIFIED. No, there was no swapping of bodies, no putting up a live man to take the place of the dead man: THIS WAS THE VERY SAME MAN: the nail holes proved it.

Yes, it is glorious reality: JESUS THE SON OF GOD, the One who was raised on the cross to die for our sins is the very same one who was raised from the dead. HE LIVES!

Having assured ourselves, from indisputable facts, of the resurrection of Christ, let us now face some important lessons that the living Lord gave to His disciples at that time.

1. Our Lord explained to them that the things which happened to Him in His death and resurrection are the very things He said would happen, to fulfill the predictions concerning Him in the Old Testament. "And He said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning me" (Luke 24:44). The one great theme of the Old Testament is not Jewish history, it is not Jewish religious customs, it is not primarily the biographies of men and women; the one great theme of the Old Testament is CHRIST. Woven in the narrative is the main message: the coming Messiah.

2. Christ is not only the chief subject of Scripture, He is the chief Interpreter of Scripture: "Then opened He their understanding, that they might understand the Scriptures" (v. 45). We understand the Word, not by intellectual power only, but by being taught by God. A person must be born again, and then be enlightened by the Holy Spirit, to properly understand the Word (I John 2:27).

3. The main reason why Christ had to suffer and die and rise from the dead the third day was "that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem" (vs. 46-48). The death and resurrection of Christ are the GOSPEL, that is, the "good news" that He died for our sins, that men might be saved by trusting HIM. And this "good news" is so vitally important its acceptance means eternal life to all who hear and accept it!—Christian Victory.

A LETTER FROM MISS ZALENE LLOYD

To my friends and co-laborers with Christ: "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Our triumphant God has led from victory unto victory. Unto Him be all glory and honor and praise for the accomplishment of His Grace. I have been filled with amazement, as I've seen the performance of His wonder working power in guiding me to know and do His will.

No doubt, it is well known now that I am on the staff of a large Anglo-Indian Orphanage in Kalimpong, West Bengal. I thank the Lord for opening this door of service for me. It is an interdenominational work and offers a great scope for Christian witness. I trust that you will not feel that I have forsaken the Free Will Baptist Church. I am still a staunch Free Will Baptist, and always will be. I love our Church and all it stands for. It was there that I learned to know and love the Lord Jesus as my personal Saviour. Yes, I am still a Free Will Baptist, but first of all I am a Christian—a child of God. I have been commissioned by Him, and I must carry out His orders. "Behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it." I have heard His voice saying to me, "This is the way, walk ye in it." I have no other choice, nor do I desire any other choice but to follow Him. My life is in God's hands, and I do not believe He would have me turn away from a door that He, Himself, has opened.

I am very happy in this new work, and praise the Lord for the numerous opportunities I am having each day to minister in His Name.

I came up from Calcutta on May 5, with two other new workers and fourteen new children. Since the trouble with Pakistan, train travel north of Calcutta has been very difficult and we were not able to get even seat reservations. Arrangements were made for a special plane to accommodate our party as there were too many of us to get passage on any one of the regular daily flights, at least for week to come and we could not wait indefinitely with the children. Among the number were two babies, one of whom was sick before we left Calcutta. Most of the others were sick during the two hour flight. The Steward was most sympathetic and helpful. We were met at the airport and a bus brought us the remaining fifty miles to Kalimpong.

There are nearly five hundred children here in this institution. Not only are there Anglo-Indian and Indian, but there are also children from Nepal and Tibet, which, as you know, are now closed to the Gospel of Christ. We pray that this may prove to be an avenue through which the Light and Life of Christ may reach them.

Kalimpong is located about five thousand feet in the mountains near the border of Nepal. When it is clear enough, beautiful snow-clad peaks can be seen looming high above the mountains in the distance.

At the present I am sleeping at one of the girls' cottages and working down at the nursery during the day. Things come to life at five o'clock in the morning when the girls start the fires and prepare breakfast. After breakfast I make my way down the hill to the nursery where there are thirty five children from five years downward. We now have three bottle fed babies, their ages being six weeks, two months and six months. Upon my arrival at Lucia King, for that is the name of the nursery, the children have had their breakfast and are in the process of being washed. For the next two hours I am busy inspecting each child to discover any ailment which might have occurred since the day before. I remove the splinters from little feet, doctor scratches and bruises, bandage cut fingers and stubbed toes. The little bodies are examined for rash or infected mosquito bites, and sore throats are painted. Anything of a more serious nature is treated at the hospital here on the campus. This work is a privilege that I treasure. A great measure of love goes out to each child as I minister to its need in Jesus' Name. One's work is not done at close of day when little prayers are said and little ones tucked in bed, for there are the twelve student nurses who need supervision in the evening's activities. These nurses are girls from sixteen to eighteen years in age who have grown up in this Institution, and are training in child care. Oh, what a great and white harvest field God has led me to enter!

I trust that you will continue to pray for me in my new work, that God will use my unworthy life to win many souls for Him. My thoughts and prayers are ever with you and for you. I pray that you will ever feel that I am your friend and fellow soldier of the Cross. Praise be to our victorious God who causes us to triumph in Christ!

Yours in His victorious love,

Tennessee Personalities and Events

C. F. Bowen

The Rural League Union, composed of leagues in the rural churches of the Cumberland Association, met recently at Head's Church with approximately 400 in attendance. The program, directed by Rev. William Mishler, pastor of the host church, high-lighted a sword drill with contestants Duane Scott, Bonnie Herron, and Faye Langford; and a consecration service leading to the dedication of six young people. The Union was organized January 14, 1950 at New Hope Church. The board of directors are Mr. Mishler, chairman; Mrs. L. C. Raymer, secretary-treasurer; and Frank Murphy. They meet quarterly.

Four well-appointed Sunday school rooms have been added to the church at Head's. The Senior league is launching a building program that includes the building of a vestibule to the front of the church building.

Rev. Ralph Lightsey, former instructor at the Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, was the commencement speaker at recent graduation exercises. There were twelve graduates, many of whom plan to return for a third year. The college has launched a four-year course leading to the B. A. degree. Next year, according to President Johnson, the first B. A. degrees will be awarded to four-year students.

Rev. Damon C. Dodd has recently closed a successful revival at Cofer's Chapel. Rev. J. L. Welch is pastor. Rev. Charles Thigpen assisted Rev. Walter Reynolds, pastor, at Sylvan Park Church in a series of meetings sometime ago.

More than fifty leaguers from Tennessee plan to attend the Third Nationwide League Conference at Norfolk, Virginia. About forty of these will leave from the Nashville area.

Rev. N. Bruce Barrow to Leave Bryan in August

N. Bruce Barrow, Pastor of Bryan Free Will Baptist Church, has resigned effective August, 1950. He has been with us since January, 1948, and has rendered unselfish and valuable service to the church and for the cause of Christ.

The indebtedness on our church property has been paid during his ministry. The balance of approximately $1,600.00 has been raised in cash and pledges, and the debt will be retired and the mortgage burned on June 18, 1950.

Yours in Christ,
Rev. Gaston Clary

HOW MAY I KNOW I AM SAVED!

Lizzie Owens
Fountain, N. C.

When God sent His Son into the world to die for our sins, He did it so that we may be saved and know we are saved. Really, we would not get much joy from something which were not quite certain we had.

If an unregenerated person were to ask you this question: "How do you know you are saved?" What would be your answer? Would you really know what to say? The purpose of this article is to give five definite answers which you could give concerning this question. But first, let us see what it is that so many people lack this real assurance of eternal life.

The very first reason is the lack of faith in what God says in His holy Word. They are afraid to trust the promises of God. We must really believe in Him; and, by believing in Him, we believe what He tells us in His Word. In the next place, some people have never been born again. They have substituted religious ceremonies, or similar things, for a vital experience with God. There are some persons who are dumb enough to think that being in church every Sunday will save them, but there are many people who attend church every Sunday and they are not saved. They will find themselves in hell unless they become saved persons.

After a person is saved from sin, he will have a desire to be in church with other Christians. But merely going to church will not do much good, if a person does not take in what he hears there in the church.

In the third place, some are seeking salvation through their own self-righteousness, or their own good works. They seem to forget that salvation is by grace alone; it is a gift from God. Now we will try to answer the question: "How may I know I am saved?"

First, I may know that I am saved by the witness of the Spirit. After you have been saved, there comes a feeling that something definite has been transacted between you and

God. But it is hard to describe it, nevertheless we know it is there.

Second, I may know I am saved by the testimony of God's word. To me this is the most important one of all. By believing on the Lord Jesus and believing what He promises in His word, we are saved.

Third, I may know I am saved by my love toward the brethren. A great many people who, before they accept Christ, they hated the Christians, but declare that later they accepted Christ, they love the fellowship of other Christians. It is said that Cain hated his brother Abel because his own deeds were evil. In other words, if his deeds had been righteous, he would have loved his brother.

Our fourth reason of assurance is the fact that I may know I am saved by my desire to keep God's commandments. Salvation is like wind. We cannot see the wind, but we can see the results of it. We cannot see salvation itself, but we can see the results of it. First, we would mention repentance, a real turning from sin. We cannot keep God's commandments without God's help. That is impossible.

Last is the fact that I may know I am saved by the transformation of my life and my desires. After we are saved, we change our opinions about many things. Some unsaved people sympathize with us simply because they think we are tied up, bound about with bars, when the truth is we are free to do anything that we think is pleasing to God.

JONAH LEARNS GOD'S MISSIONARY PURPOSE

Lesson: Jonah 3:3-6; 4:1-11.

Golden Text: Jonah 2:9.

I. Heart of the Lesson

We do not know whether the incidents described in the book of Jonah occurred prior to Assyria's battles against Israel or not. If Jonah's ministry and the experience related in his book occurred somewhere between 800 and 780 B.C. (II Kings 14:25), then there is evidence that Assyria had already, in some measure at least, dealt with Israel. Shalmaneser II fought against some of the soldiers of Ahab of Israel in connection with his attack upon Hamath in 854 B. C. While Assyria's hostility against Israel would be no reason for disobeying the known will of God, nevertheless, it is not difficult to see that the patriotic Israelite would have some question about going to those who were the pronounced enemies of his people with a message which possibly would result in their salvation. In any case, Assyria had already come upon the horizon as a great nation, and Israel could readily understand that here was a power with which she would have to deal in years to come.

Note that Jonah's message was evidence that God's purpose was for Israel to reach out to the Gentiles of her own day with the message of God.

Our lesson does not deal with Jonah's disobedience, nor what happened to him in connection with his voyage to Tarshish, but that material is certainly the background for the text selected for our study. Of course, there is no question as to the historicity of what occurred. After all, our Lord put His seal of approval upon these incidents (Matt. 12:39-41).—Moody Monthly.

1. There is not a single city which would not deserve destruction, except for the mercy of God (Jon. 3:3).

2. Whenever God fixes a time limit for the coming of His judgment, it is possible for men to repent and to escape from it (vs. 4).

3. God knows whenever the repentance of men is insincere, and also when it is sincere (vs. 5).

4. It is well for that city or nation whose ruler heeds the words of God's messenger and repents of his sins (vs. 6).

5. It is strange and very wrong when a servant of the Lord is displeased because men have repented of sin at his preaching (4:1, 2).

6. It is very wrong for anyone to pray for death because he has had a disappointing experience (vs. 3).

7. It is wrong for a Christian to sit by and wish for God's judgment to fall upon repentant human beings (vss. 4, 5).

8. God can easily provide temporal comfort even for a servant who is peevish (vs. 6).

9. It is very easy to complain upon the loss of a comfort which had come to us without deserving it (vs. 9).

10. The God who is interested in Nineveh is interested in the salvation of the whole world (vs. 11).

11. The Book of Jonah is an illustration of how much God can say in a few words.—Selected.

12. Here is a strange thing: Jonah first winning the people of Nineveh to the cause of righteousness; and second, becoming angry because they turned unto the Lord by his preaching. Personally, Jonah had no good feeling for the heathen of Nineveh because they were not friendly toward the people of Israel. It is thought that Jonah did not want to see that pagan city, famous for its cruelty, spared by the mercy of God. "He was a Jew, a member of a race that feared the Assyrians, a people that would ultimately suffer much at their hands." — Peloubet's Select Notes.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

13. It was in perfect accord with God's just and merciful perfections that He should spare Nineveh for the sake of the 120,000 children, who, by their incapacity of reasoning, were free from actual, though not from original, sin.

14. This wonderful Book of Jonah has given us a picture of the human heart, not in its lowest degradation, but taught by revelation, restrained by conscience, influenced more or less by piety, but stripped of its disguises and company dress. God takes us behind the scenes to show us how in nature His hand and purpose are working by storm and sunshine, fish and worm, and so puts a window for us in the heart of man. Jonah speaks out to God, and acts out before us, and writes down for us to read, without suppression, palliation, or extenuation, the sinful thoughts which often men have, but do not make known. We have at once a picture of God's character, and a mirror in which to behold our own.—Homiletic Commentary.

II. The Lesson Illustrated Bad Advice

The story is told of a revival sweeping through the university at Princeton, New Jersey. Aaron Burr came to the president of the university and said: "Mr. President, I have made up my mind to consider the claims of Christ. Now, Mr. President, what would you do?" And the old president of the university gave him this advice: He said, "Burr, if I were you, I would wait until the excitement of the revival had subsided, and then I would think it out carefully." Aaron Burr bowed his head a moment, and then he said, "Mr. President, that is exactly what I will do." And, it is stated as a fact, that never again in his life did he express a desire to be a Christian, and they say he died without such an expression.—J. Wilbur Chapman.

Nationalistic Hatred

The late Dr. George Adam Smith, the Scotch scholar, told of the awful hatred of the "infidel" Turks by the Oriental churches in Turkey. He said: "For centuries they have had no spiritual intercourse with them; to try to convert a Mohammedan has been for twelve hundred years a capital crime. Once I asked a cultured and devout layman of the Greek Church, 'Why, then, did God create so many Mohammedans?' The answer came hot and fast, "To fill up hell!" In a lesser degree Johnah, with his strong nationalistic spirit, hated the Ninevites.

try to show you that you have been wrong in your religion, and that you are lost, if you do not accept of their interpretation of the Bible. Read your Bible for yourself. Let God interpret it for you. Give your heart to Christ. Get so fixed in Him that you are ready for any event. Be able to stand on the Word of God. You cannot lead a person off after false doctrines who knows the Bible and who is a Bible believing Christian. He is usually the man who is in a backslidden condition, one who is ignorant of God's truth who falls for these new modern cults. So be ready to say, "I know in whom I believe, and I am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." The Psalmist said, "I am fixed." Then he said, "I shall not be moved." Brother, get so fixed in Christ that you can hide away in God with Christ, and then you can sing of a truth "I Shall Not Be Moved."

TO ATTEND NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

We are planning to leave New Bern the First Sunday in July, in company with Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Davidson and go to Darlington, S. C., where we are to be joined by Rev. and Mrs. Seldon Bullard and head for Richmond, Calif., to attend the National Association, if it is God's will this be done. Pray that it may be His will for us. Remember! the National Association begins proper on the 11th day of July. It is a long ways from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but no further from here there than from there here, so let us go and expect the people of the extreme West to come to the East some time. We expect to return home from the National Association about the 21st or 22nd of July, the Lord's will. We have no engagement week before the Fifth Sunday. Should any one want service that week, either in evangelistic or Picture-Lecture service, we will be glad to serve.

"THE BEST THAT I CAN"

I find many people who are puzzled, due to the conflicting preaching of many who call themselves Christians. Here is the argument that comes to me: "This new preacher comes along and he preaches that, unless you join his church you are lost."

Well, old Joe Smith, according to his word, got a special vision, and found something as good as the Bible, and then got the idea that as a "Prophet" he could write Scripture as good as the prophets of old. That is their teaching. Of course, the true church was lost a few centuries after the beginning, and all the hundred of years passed while the whole world lay in darkness, God chose to restore the work of the church "in Joe Smith," a man with several wives, thus plural wives was one of the beliefs of the new day. So it goes with every new religion: "Everybody else is headed for hell who does not believe in our way." Even the folk who say "there is no hell," if you don't go with them you are lost. If there is no Hell, where can you go? Of course, there are too many honest-thinking Christians in the world to swallow Russell "stock and barrel," and turn all the churches into "Kingdom Halls," likewise Mormonism, Eddyism, Spiritualism, which is Devilism. When I say "Spiritualism" I mean that "ism" where you are told that on certain conditions you have communication with the dead. This "Spiritualism" is a long way from "Holy Ghost Power," as far as heaven is from Hell, as far as light is from darkness.

Not only is it claimed by these new "cults" that they are the only "pebble on the beach," but ever now and then some of those, called a regular church, get men in the field who claim, "If you want to be right, you had better take our name, or you had better drop all your theology and get right by coming to us?"

Brother! It is not your little church that saves. It is the Lord Jesus Christ. And are we saved because we join some church or because we are immersed in water, or because we have been christened? "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ as our Personal Saviour." Join in with Christians who "believe as we do," and work for the glory of God, because we believe in Christ, having the knowledge that our sins are pardoned because we believe in Christ. "What must I do to be saved?" "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and all thy house."

God has caused to be written, "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that you have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God" (I. John 5:12, 13).

WHAT A RELIGION

I find people who change their religion. After this change comes, they will hardly look at the brother whom they worshipped with before the change. If it is a look, it is one of scorn.

Every now and then we find some fellow who has "out-grown his church," that is, he has just stepped up a little, and if he has not found something better he is looking for something he thinks is better. Often he lands with some cult, a church destroyer, a critic. He is one that puts his course on all churches, and he preaches as a "Come-outer." This fellow usually heads the gross path of sin and curses the "Lord's Day"—the Resurrection day of our Lord—and he goes under the law and disregards Grace altogether.

News from Marion, N. C.

We recently closed a wonderful revival at the First Church in Marion, North Carolina. There were 47 professions, and 14 addition to the church. Our pastor is the Reverend Marvin Dameron. There were four young men who accepted the call to preach the gospel, and three young girls who accepted the call to do missionary work. The ministers are: Johnnie Floyd, Jr., James Clayton, and Lewis Halmrick. The girls were: Betty Floyd, Joyce Harlerood, and Charlye Cuthleron.

There were 210 in Sunday School on May 14, Mother's Day. Everyone enjoyed a good time in the service. A floral service was held and flowers were given to the youngest mother, and to the oldest, and the one with the most children. The oldest mother was 80, Mrs. Hill Hawkins; the youngest, 20 years old, was Mrs. Jasper Finney; and the one with the most children was Mrs. J. E. Floyd, who had nine children.

Rev. James Clayton conducted the morning service and the Lord did certainly bless in the service. We had with us for this service the Reverend and Mrs. O. M. Hilburn of Darlington, S. C. They were with us for two weeks in a Bible study, and they were a blessing to us.

We wish to say that the Lord has blessed us with a consecrated girl who is now waiting and praying for the time when she will be able to go to the foreign field to do mission work. She is Miss Volena Wilson. Pray for her, for I know she desires your prayers.

We are asking that you pray for our pastor who has been in ill health. Our church needs your prayers also, and we need the prayers of those who love the Lord.

JIMMY'S AIRPLANE RIDE

Dorothea Goodrich Boyd

"How would you like to go up in one of those planes?"

Jimmy jumped up and down and squealed with delight. "Oh, yes! I'd like to go up for a ride."

Father smiled. "O. K. Come on."

Father and Jimmy strutted out across the grass, past the big pumps and the flapping air sock, toward one of the yellow and red planes that were standing near the runway.

Jimmy watched one plane as it circled the field and came down toward the wind, then it taxied back toward them. This would be exciting.

Father got into the plane and the pilot helped Jimmy up high into his lap. There were only two seats in the small cabin, one in front for the driver and the one right in back of that where Jimmy and his father sat.

The plane roared and rolled down the field.

"We're going up, now," said Father.

Jimmy nodded. It hardly seemed as though they were going, until Jimmy looked out the side window and saw they were zipping over a big red barn and the tall trees.

"It makes an awful noise," he shouted to his father over the roar of the motors.

Father nodded.

The houses and barns down below looked smaller than those to his electric train set. The people were even tinier. It was pretty way up here in the sky. Everything looked so nice and clean and neat down below. You could see where the farmers had plowed in straight rows. It made a nice pattern of brown and green.

"There's our church," yelled Jimmy as they circled over the small town.

"That's it," said Father, Jimmy liked the way the church stood out white and tall, grander than anything else in town.

"It's pointing right up at us," said Jimmy. He was all excited.

"It points up to God," said Father. "Churches point the way to Heaven."

"Could we go right on up to Heaven now?" asked Jimmy. It sounded like such a wonderful idea.

"No. There is only one way to Heaven, and that is through the Lord Jesus Christ," Father answered.

"Oh!" Jimmy thought a moment and looked back down out the window.

"There's our house."

"Sure enough," laughed Father. "That's the tiny place we'll live in until we go to Heaven."

"Couldn't a rocket ship reach there?" "Where?" asked Father.

"Couldn't a rocket ship reach Heaven if it went real high?"

"No. It might sail out into space some day far, far away into the sky. But it could never reach God. Jesus said, 'No man cometh unto the Father, but by Me.'"

"Jesus is better than a rocket ship then, isn't He, Papa?"

"Yes. Jesus is better than anything because He created everything, Jimmy. He came down from God, died for our sins, rose, and went back to God. No one else could ever do that but Jesus."

Jimmy looked across into the clouds that seemed so very near and big. Then he looked up into the blue that stretched above. There seemed to be no end to the sky.

"Suppose Jesus can see us from way up there in Heaven?"

"Sure. He sees even the little birds." Jimmy looked down again. People were so small they looked like tiny black dots. Jimmy shook his head. "I can't hardly see people from here. Jesus might be so far away now that He can't see us and He'll forget us."

"No, Jimmy. Jesus said, 'I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.' You see, Jimmy, God's eyes are far superior to ours—even better than the best microscopes that we use to watch the tiny germs."

Jimmy sighed contentedly and settled back against his father. "I'm sure glad of that. I'd hate to have Him forget me cause then I might not get to heaven ever."

"Some day Jesus has promised to come down again in the sky and we're going to meet Him in the air." Father pointed out the window and Jimmy could almost see it.

The plane hit an air pocket and Jimmy got a funny thrill in his stomach as they suddenly dropped and then rose again.

"Will we go higher than this plane, Papa?"

"Higher and faster and safer," said Father.

Jimmy looked down at the pretty earth that was coming closer. "That surely will be keen. Wish we never had to go back down," he said.

"The Lord has left each of us a job to do down there on that earth. We must love Him and serve Him until He comes again."

They were flying low over the junk yard now. Jimmy scowled. "That junk doesn't look too pretty down close."

"Sin always gets worse as you get closer to it," said Father. "The Bible says, 'All have sinned.' Jesus is the only One who can clean up the sin in the world. That's why it's so important that we stay and tell others the Good News."

The plane circled over the field and came drifting down as the motors were cut.

"I'd hate to see anyone missing out on Heaven," said Jimmy as they bounced over the ground. He handed the pilot a Gospel tract as they got out of the plane.

"Hope we see him in Heaven," said Jimmy as he and his father walked back toward their car parked next to the big hanger. "I was thinking. It surely is nice of the Lord to let us work for Him, isn't it?"

"It surely is," echoed Father.

MISSIONARY TO INDIA NOW IN STATES

Glennville, Ga.
June 3, 1950

Dear Baptist Readers,

This is my first word to you through the Baptist columns since I returned to U. S. A., and the weeks are slipping by all too fast in view of all the deputation a missionary-on-furlough ought to be doing, and in view of the urgent calls that have been coming steadily. I take this opportunity to greet those whom I did not meet at the Nashville Conference and to assure all of you that I will do my very best by all your kind invitations to visit your churches. It has not been easy to say "No," and each time it has been with sincere regrets.

The India work is prospering, though shorthanded. God is giving us precious fruit, and is opening up new villages and new opportunities far beyond what we are prepared to undertake. This is a day of opportunity in India. While indeed many opposing situations meet us, nevertheless, minds are reaching out for some new and better teaching to meet the needs of a new day in India. The common people, too, are hungry. Communism and other "isms" are ready with their propaganda as usual, but these open minds will as readily receive our "Way of Life" if we reach them ahead of the false doctrines. Our missionaries and our Indian co-workers are zealously working to this end, with results that are humbling to us.

When I have recuperated better, I hope to give you better information about the work, about God's gracious rewards in fruitfulness, and about the future prospects.

Yours in Christ,
Laura B. Barnard

A WORD FROM CALIFORNIA

As I sit here with a borrowed copy of your paper before me, and read the good things that are written therein, I bow my head and humbly pray that God may grant you, and those who work with you more strength and power with which to carry on this good work. Words cannot say just how much I have enjoyed reading this paper.

I never had the honor of reading one of our Baptist papers until a few weeks ago, when a friend brought a copy of it to the church with her, and I had about five minutes to look it over. Well, the results were, I borrowed some of her back copies of the Baptist paper, and I am still busy reading them.

At last I have the price saved to buy a year's subscription for myself. The friend let me have about a dozen copies, and I have read most of them. There was not a thing in any of them that I did not enjoy.

We had an election in our church a few weeks ago, and re-elected Brother H. A. Lewis as our pastor for another year. Mrs. Rosa Duren was re-elected as clerk, and Brother Columbus Howard as assistant clerk. Brother Truman Mimms was elected as chairman of the Building Fund. Alta Watkins was elected reporter.

Our young people had a business meeting, and the following officers were elected: L. C. Crosswhite, president; Verdell Howard, vice-president; Onta Holloway, secretary; and Maxine Bernard, treasurer. A program committee was appointed by the new president, and Mrs. Watkins was retained as advisor for the program committee.

Mrs. Alta L. Watkins,
Box 781,
Saticoy, Calif.

Should anyone in the country, or in town desire my services, please write, or get in touch with me. I will be glad to go on week-ends. My services are free and I take no offerings, and ask for no money. I only desire a place to work.

MRS. BILL HESTER PASSES

On January 8, 1950, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Bill Hester of Bladenboro, North Carolina, and called to her reward Mrs. Alma Guyton Hester, wife and mother of the home.

She joined White Oak F. W. B. Church several years ago, and until her sickness prevented here from attending services, she was always in her seat at church. Those who associated with her daily loved her. The home feels a great loss, and the church does too, but we bow in humble submission to the will of the heavenly Father.

The funeral services were conducted from the church by her pastor, Rev. C. B. Hansley, and interment was made near by. The large crowd of people present, and the lovely floral offering attest in part to the love and esteem in which she was held.

To the family, the woman's auxiliary extends deepest sympathy, and may each one live close to the Lord.

BESSIE JEAN AND DALTON WIGGS CALLED TO BE WITH THE LORD

It is with a sad heart that I attempt to write of the death of my brother, Dalton Wayne, age 8 months, 20 days old, and also Bessie Jean, age twelve years, 5 months, and 2 days old. They lost their lives in a fire which destroyed our home on March 5, 1950.

The funeral services were held at Edgewood F. W. B. Church. They were laid to rest beneath a beautiful mound of flowers at the Fountain Cemetery. They leave to mourn their loss their parents, Rev. and Mrs. P. C. Wiggs, two brothers, Billy and Phil, and four sisters, Ruth, Agnes, Gladys, Rachel, and Lynda Fay, several aunts, uncles, and three grandparents survive.

Though they are gone, they are not forgotten,

And never will they be;
As long as we live and our memory lasts,
We will always think of thee.

Beneath the flowers where they are laid,
Their memory lives while their flowers fade.

He took them away to be with Him on high,

So they could sing as angels in the sweet bye and bye.

AH! Grand is the world's work, and noble forsooth,
The doing one's part, be it ever so small!
You, reaping with Boaz, I gleaning with Ruth,
Are honored by service, yet servants of all.

NO drudge in his corner but speeds the world's wheels;
No serf in the fields but sowing God's seed—
More noble, I think, in the dust though he kneels, Than the pauper of wealth, who makes scorn of the deed.

IS TOIL but a treadmill? Think not of the grind,
But think of the grist, what is done, and to do,
The world growing better, more like to God's mind,
By long, faithful labor of helpers like you.

THE BROOM, or the spade, or the shuttle, that plies
Its own honest task in its own honest way,
Serves heaven not less than a star in the skies—
What more could the Pleiades do than obey?

ETERNAL LIFE

"Who His own self bore our sins in his own body on the tree" (I Peter 2:24). Bethlehem is the scene of God's greatest gift of all gifts—the sum and substance of all other gifts. Bethlehem is the scene of the angel's glad message, for he said, "Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." (Luke 2: 10, 11).

Is it any wonder that there is a universal celebration of the Saviour's birth. Nazareth is the scene of the only perfect life that ever lived on earth. The Word said, "He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them, but his mother kept all these things in her heart." We are taught that Jesus increased in wisdom and in stature, and in favor with God and man.

But Calvary is the scene of the finished work of the Saviour of men. There the infinite price was paid for our redemption. It was paid in full on the cross. And what a price that was! By his blood we are saved through repentance, faith and baptism, for Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law. He was made a curse for us, for it is written, "cursed is every one that hangeth on the tree" (Gal. 3:13).

All the wealth of all the world, all the gold, silver, precious stones, all the products of man's brawn and brain could not purchase salvation for a single soul. It was necessary for the Lord Jesus to go to the tree, and die for you and me. It was our sin that took him there. It was on the tree at Calvary that the sin question was settled once for all. It was to God's entire and eternal satisfaction. The Lord Jesus is no longer on the tree, nor in the tomb. But he is risen from among the dead, in his triumph over sin, death and hell. He offers the wonderful gift of eternal life to everyone who will believe on him.

He is the most costly gift that was ever given to mankind, because the wages of sin is death, and without his sacrificial death on the cross, sin would prevail over everyone, and eternal damnation would be the lot for all. It is an ideal time for sinners to accept Christ, for it costs us nothing to receive him as our Lord and Master. This gift comes wrapped in all the love of the gracious heavenly Father. It is for you to receive, and to reap the blessings of salvation. Now is the time for turning to him. Remember, "as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe in his name" (Jon. 2:12).

There will be morning services and special singing in the afternoon. Dinner will be served on the church grounds in the old-fashion picnic style. A special invitation is extended to Christian people, choirs, quartets, trios, etc. Those who are interested in worship by song service and hymns of prayer and praise are given special invitation to come. Bring well-filled baskets of food for the noon hour.

The revival services will be held each night at the church for the week preceding home-coming occasion. The Reverend C. M. Coates of Selma, North Carolina, will do the preaching. Everybody is invited to attend these services, and it is hoped that each one will be greatly blessed. We desire the prayers of the Christian people for this meeting.

IF YOU SHOULD ASK ME WHY

WALTER E. ISENHOUR

If you should ask me why I smile
When others fret and pine,
And why I'm peaceful all the while
And do not fume and whine,

I'd tell you that within my soul
There is a well of grace;
That God holds o'er my life control
And keeps me in my place.

If you should ask me why I pray
When some would curse and swear,
And why my soul keeps sweet each day,
Though burdens great I bear,

I'd tell you that our God above
Has taken out all sin,
And so there is abundant love
That never fails within.

If you should ask me why I give My talent and my time
To help my fellowmen to live
And seek the things sublime,

I'd tell you that the God I serve,
Who's worthy of my all,
Holds wealth for me in safe reserve
I'll get when He shall call.

PASTORAL ANNOUNCEMENT

This is to advise that I will be available for pastoral services on the third Sunday for next year, and also for revival work during the months of July, September, and October. Those interested in having my services may write to me, or call to see me.

Sowing and Reaping Wild Oats

Rev. R. W. Allman
Kannapolis, N. C.
Route 5, Box 853

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."—Gal. 6:7-8.

Every man has a field to sow, to cultivate, and to reap; and he will plant it with good or bad seed, and at best he will have some tares among the wheat, however he sows. Death starts upon the track of every man, and follows him idly through the period of his lusty planting, and when he turns in middle life or old age to reap his crop, death still follows and helps to gather his sheaves for the grave and the judgment. Sometimes the harvest is reached sooner, sometimes later; but surely the harvest will be reaped, and the grave will be reached.

Our text says: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The crop will correspond with the seed sown, and although, as in all planting, every seed will mature for the harvest. If we had no Bible, in the nature of things this text would be true, for we cannot sow without reaping, nor can we fail to reap in kind the crop we sowed, or else reap the kindred consequences or punishment attached to the planting of evil upon the field of life. However shrewd we may be, however much we may cover our tracks from others, however we may imagine ourselves fortified against results, however we may conceive that God has forgotten or that his law has been healed of its violations by time, or that nature has outgrown its evil crop by a better culture, it is nevertheless true that we shall reap that we have sown, either in kind, consequence, or punishment.

We cannot eradicate the scars upon conscience, the stains upon the heart, the blunt upon sensibility, nor can we recall blight and ruin we have afflicted upon others. Punishment awaits every man, in some form or other, even the man converted from the error of his sowing. God can forgive our record, but he never reverses it. If we once wasted the fields of life by sowing wild oats, we must in due time reap them. To illustrate this truth; if I wreck my physical body, shatter my mind, regeneration cannot repair that loss, nor can it rid me of the regrets of the evils brought upon myself and others.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Jacob cheated Esau, and Laban cheated him. He deceived his father with the skin of a kid in order to get Esau's blessing, and his sons deceived him with the blood of a kid, into which they had dipped Joseph's coat of many colors. God and nature are sure to get even with us for every violation of law, physical, mental, or moral.

Stick your finger in the fire, and you will get burned. Hang around with the Devil's crowd, and you will soon be numbered with them. Our reaping is always more abundant than our sowing, some thirty, some sixty, some a hundredfold more than the sowing. No one can tell what one little seed planted in evil soil may bring forth in the long run of time. The oak comes from an acorn, and the Mississippi flows from thousands of little springs.

Again, we are much longer reaping than we are sowing. It doesn't take long to sow a crop of wild oats, but O how long we are in reaping the superabundant crop. It takes a long time to repair, if we ever do, and injury done to our fearfully and wonderfully made being, and nothing short of the grace of God can ever finally rid us of the consequences of sowing to sin and the devil.

Children, young men, and young women, why not sow now to the Spirit, and reap life everlasting? Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth. They who seek God early shall find him.

Ray up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where the bank never fails and the cashier never steals, and where the gold never cankers. Instead of death upon your track, the angels of God will camp round about you upon the fields of life. Make not the field of life a drear desert, but make it a beautiful garden-spot, scattered with the seeds of kindness, blooming with the flowers of happiness, fragrant with the perfume of fruitfulness, rich with the harvest of eternal life.

Young man, young woman, if you have already started to sow wild oats, stop your sowing today. Ere long it may be too late to stop. Remember, before it is too late, the awful admonition: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

A True Servant

In Deut. 15:16, 17, we read these words: "And it shall be, if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee: because he loveth thee and thine house, because he is well with thee; then thou shalt take an aul and thrust it through his ear unto the door and he shall be thy servant forever. And also unto thy maid servant thou shalt do likewise."

Let us notice some characteristics of a good servant:

1. A True Servant Loves His Master

Through the ages there have manifested the life of both good and bad servants. Evil servants have betrayed and even sold and destroyed their masters. While good servants have even laid down their own life for the cause of their master. Truly this is so in the church of Christ. Millions out of true love have given their all for the cause of the Christ and His church.

2. A True Servant Loves the Church of Christ

Those who are true do not only love the organism, the invisible, but we love the visible part of the church. This includes a church pride, which pride is built on the foundation of Love for Christ. I cannot believe that a person who loves Christ, can be satisfied when the church building where we worship is going down for lack of repairs. I believe that a true servant wants to see a church edifice built to meet the demands of the community. A building that is comfortable and complete in every part for the progress of the church as a whole. A man who loves his church will strive with sacrificial efforts to show his love for the church.

3. The True Servant Loves to Go to Church and Perform Church Activities

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord" (Psa. 122:1). And again, "I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee" (Psa. 22:22).

A man who loves his church, and the Christ who bought us with his own precious blood can not be satisfied without attending worship at the stated time and place. To willfully stay away from church worship is a betrayal of Christ. How can anyone waste the day in foolish lounging around and needless visiting of places and people? If you love God and the church, how can you neglect to worship Christ in the congregation of the righteous?

4. A True Servant Wants to Obey His Lord

"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works. Not the forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another" (Heb. 10:24, 25).

We disobey the commandment of the Lord when we absent ourselves from the worship of the Lord. To stay away from regular church worship is to disobey the Lord. God says, "It is better to obey than to sacrifice" (1 Sam. 15:22). "We ought to obey God rather than man" (Acts 5:29). "His servants ye are to whom ye obey" (Rom. 6:16). "His voice will we obey" (Josh. 24:24). Let us remember that God is not pleased when we disobey. To stay away from church worship is to displease God, because it is disobeying God's command. A true servant will obey God. King Saul was not obedient unto the Lord. So when we stay away from the worship of God willfully, we are the loser. Don't tell me that you love God and Christ, if you do not love to attend the regular worship of God. Don't tell me that you love your church, when you willfully stay away from its services. God's word is against you.

5. A Good Servant Loves the Fellowship of Good Servants

"A new commandment I give unto you, that you love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if you have love one for another" (John 13:34, 35). "That which we have seen and heard we declare unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ" (1 John 1:3).

6. Liberality the Mark of a True Servant

"And they spake unto Moses, saying, the people bring much more than enough for the service of the work, which the Lord commanded to make" (Exe. 36:5). "Moreover, because I have set my affection to the house of my God, I have mine own proper good, of gold and silver, which I have given to the house of my God, over and above all that I have prepared for the holy house" (1 Chron. 29:3). "And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and one soul . . . Neither was any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them . . . "And distribution was made unto every man as he had need" (Acts 4:32-35). There is no place for a "tight-wad" in the service of our Christ. "God loveth a cheerful giver." The man that buried his talent was a "tight-wad." The poor widow who gave her little—her all—was a "cheerful giver." Ananias and Sapphira were "tight-wads." They had the goods for the Lord but lied about the price.

I heard of a man, who named his right pocket "the world," and when you asked him for money for the church he would say: "I haven't a cent in the world," and then slap his hand on his right pocket. "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 7:21). It is the will of the Father that we give our TITHES AND OFFERINGS to support His Church. Why not OBEY God? This is God's only way. Man and the devil have concocted many ways and have said, "Just so you get the money, it is allright." But God does not say so. GOD SAYS, "TITHES AND OFFERINGS." Some folk dance and sell suppers and actually gamble, by a game of chance, to raise money for the church. God does not want such tainted, filthy lucre.

BIBLE SCHOOL AT PINE LEVEL

The Vacation Bible School was held in Pine Level F. W. B. Church the week of May 29 through June 2, under the direction of Mrs. John Crocker. Miss Freddie Hinnant served as pianist, and Miss Hilda Crocker as secretary and treasurer.

There were 103 students enrolled in the school, and 18 teachers. The average attendance each day was 100 present.

The teachers of the school were as follows: Cradle Roll, Mesdames Thaddeus Parker and Rudolph Peedin; Beginners, Mesdames Norman Peedin and Wade Crocker; Primary Class, Misses Mary Ann Oliver, and Magdalene Crocker, Mrs. Belvin Strickland, and Mrs. Wilbert Woodard; Junior Class, Mesdames Paul Pittman, Charlie Thornton, and John Crocker; Intermediate Class, Mesdames Tommie Garner, Roger Crocker, Person Pittman, and Dewey Crocker.

Each class was divided into four periods which consisted of Bible, music, craft, and recreation. The pupils were taught many useful things during the week, and everyone enjoyed being together in the work. The students and the faculty were served refreshments each day by the Woman's auxiliary of the church.

The closing exercises were held on Friday night with each class giving a short playlet of what they had been taught during the week, and a display of their craft.

Ministers Hold Annual Conference at Cragmont June 5-8

A highly successful conference has just been concluded by the Free Will Baptist Ministers at Cragmont. This was the fourth annual conference which the Ministerial Association has conducted. This year's enrollment was the largest yet, with 36 ministers enrolled for the week. Leading ministers from all parts of the state were in attendance. The inspiration and fellowship of the week greatly enriched the conference.

Rev. R. N. Hinnant, President of the Ministerial Association, directed the program which consisted of preaching and inspiration by the ministers in attendance.

The conference officially began on Monday evening, June 5, at 8 p. m., when Rev. J. C. Griffin preached the introductory sermon with the text: "As my Father has sent me, even so send I you." His subject was "COMMISSIONED ONES." The devotions for the evening service were conducted by Rev. Wm. Burkette Raper. Following the sermon Brother Griffin showed us pictures of previous Ministers' Conferences at Cragmont, followed by another picture entitled "The Open Door."

Tuesday

The program for Tuesday began at 9 a. m. when Rev. Wade Calvert conducted the morning devotions. A portion of the time was given to testimonies by the ministers, with nearly everyone testifying. It was a deep religious experience to share in the Christian experiences of our fellow ministers.

At 10 a. m. Rev. Hinnant began a presentation of the new discipline as it has been worked out by the committee appointed by the State Convention. The discipline was read and discussed.

Rev. D. W. Hansley preached the 11 o'clock sermon after the devotions had been conducted by Rev. Hinnant. Rev. Hansley was introduced by Rev. L. E. Ballard. "Our Needs" was the title of his message. A field for labor, a vision of our tasks, and faithfulness to perform them was the three-fold need pointed out by Brother Hansley. In meeting these ends the necessity of unity among our ministers was emphasized.

Dr. Daniel Russell, visiting minister from Texas A. & M. College, was the speaker at the 8 p. m. service. Dr. Russell was introduced by Brother Hinnant. He spoke on the areas of service wherein the rural church can function. He emphasized the importance of the rural church taking an active interest in better government for its citizens, providing

ORPHANAGE CONCERT CLASSES ON THE FIELD

The North Carolina Orphanage at Middlesex has four Concert Classes on the field. They are being directed and supervised by competent class managers. This early in the season, the classes are visiting the churches chiefly located in the trucking belt of the state, and also in the mountain districts. A little later on, they will visit the churches chiefly in the tobacco belt of the State, and the extreme eastern sections where the fishing industry is in the full summer swing.

All pastors, church and Sunday School officials are especially requested to be on the alert when the Concert Classes are to visit their churches. They should have it announced ahead of the coming of the classes, and encourage the church and community people to attend the concerts to be held in their churches. Financial support is greatly needed at the Orphan Home during this season of the year when funds usually run low. It is hoped, therefore, that all churches visited by these classes this summer will make their offerings larger than heretofore. Be sure to make the offerings large this summer for the Middlesex Home.

The travelling manager, Mr. R. R. McLeod, dropped in our office a day or so ago, and gave us a splendid report of progress being made in the different departments of the Home. The farm crops, he stated, are looking prosperous, and the stock and poultry are doing well on the pastures. The children and the Home Personnel, Brother McLeod stated, are all feeling well, and keep busy all the while.

oooOoOoo FLORIDA FREE WILL BAPTIST MINISTER AWARDED

Reverend Daniel F. Pelt, a leading Free Will Baptist minister of Florida, recently received a splendid award for his outstanding religious services as a rural pastor, and social-civic worker among the young people of the State. The award was given by the Progressive Farmer Magazine, and the School for Town and County ministers, Emory University, Atlanta.

Upon receiving a telegram, stating that he had been given this honor, Reverend Pelt said, "I have no idea why I was chosen . . . I did just what I thought best; . . . none of that was so outstanding." Pelt had given much time and thought during the past years to youth activities in religious matters and community life. He, together with thirteen other ministers in as many Southern states, will receive a Scholarship to the Sixth Annual Town and Country School at Emory University, July 3 through 20, 1950. His untiring efforts, simplicity of manner as a rural minister, and devotion to the cause of the spiritual and educational aspects of the youth of his State, speak well for Free Will Baptists in the State of Florida. Heavenly blessings upon Brother Pelt.

oooOoOoo EVERETT, WASHINGTON, WITNESSES GREAT REVIVAL

The city of Everett, in Snohomish County, Washington, has experienced a wonderful revival. Forty churches were represented in the meeting. The Youth for Christ organization joined in as one great band of young people for the cause of Christ and the salvation of souls. Ministers and lay-leaders of the various Protestant churches of the city gave loyal support with their interest and prayers for the fourteen day meeting.

The evangelist was the Reverend Hyman Appleman, the well-known Jew Evangelist for Christ, who delivered stirring and convincing messages of salvation for lost souls. The report stated: "According to all reports, the meeting, with its many hundreds of decisions for Christ and the churches, as well as its great crowds, broke all records for Everett and Snohomish County, and left an indelible impression for Christ upon the entire community."

With Billy Graham, Appleman, Bob Jones and scores of other noteworthy evangelists of today, the day of revivals is not over. No, evangelistic campaigns did not end with Moody, Sunday, Sam Jones, and many other noted evangelists of a few decades ago. Christ is ever real to those who have the Word proclaimed to them with conviction, zeal, and the prospect of a better day to come. May the revival fires spread from city to city, county to county, and from state to state until all America shall arise to witness for God. May there come such an awakening for Christ as this country has never seen in all of its history. May all churches, Sunday Schools, Bible schools, etc., witness a yearning for God, as never before, by multitudes of people, the young and the old, the high and the low, the weak and the strong, turning to Christ. Let it come, Lord Jesus.

WHERE WERE YOU!

"I came to your church last Sunday, I walked up and down the aisle, I noticed your seat was vacant,"
Said the Master, with kindly smile.

"Yes, I was at home," I answered,
"Some folks from up Salen way

Drove down for a week-end visit,
So we stayed in the house all day."

Or, "I had an awful headache,"
"I had a roast in the pan,"

Or, "We overslept this morning,
But I go whenever I can."

The Master gazed at me sadly,
As He was about to speak,

"My child," He replied, "Are there not Six other days in the week?"

I saw I had grieved my Master,
As slowly He turned away,
And I vowed He'd not find me absent
Again on His holy day!

better education and better roads for its people, offering recreational facilities to our young people, conservation of our soil and promoting medical aid to rural people. Yet, Dr. Russell hastened to point out that the fundamental task of the rural minister was the preaching of the Word. A proclamation of the Gospel, he emphasized, must be the foundation upon which the program of the rural church is to be built. Special music was furnished for the evening service by Miss Betty Floyd and Mr. and Mrs. John Floyd of Marion. John, the son of Rev. J. E. Floyd of Marion, is a young man twenty-two years of age who plans to enter the ministry.

Wednesday

Rev. R. N. Hinnant conducted the morning devotions at 9 a. m., after which Rev. L. B. Manning preached from the text "Be strong in the Lord." (Ephesians 6:10). The conviction of Brother Manning was that we needed "more agonizing and less organizing" in our church. The importance of prayer and a study of the scriptures was stressed if one is to be strong in the Lord.

The new discipline was taken up again at 10 a. m., and this time the presentation and discussion was led by Rev. James A. Evans. A friendly and lively discussion was carried on.

Rev. S. A. Smith who preached the 11 o'clock sermon was introduced by Rev. C. D. Hamilton. "The successful ministry" was the title of Brother Smith's sermon. The ingredients for a successful ministry are cooperation, unity and evangelism, Brother Smith iterated.

The annual business session of the Ministers' Conference was held at 1 p. m. The treasurer's report revealed that there was $150.16 on hand. In addition to room and board it was voted that the Ministerial Association pay to Cragmont Assembly $35 as overhead expenses for the past two years. A motion was made and carried that each registered minister at this year's conference and each year hereafter be issued a membership certificate in the Ministers' Association. These certificates will be mailed shortly. It was decided that for next year's program for the ministers' week at Cragmont that a speaker shall be a Free Will Baptist. He is to be selected by the Executive Committee. It was voted that next year each minister in the state be mailed an invitation, by the Ministers' Association, to attend our conference at Cragmont. The program for the conference is also to be enclosed with the invitation. The following officers were elected:

President, Rev. R. N. Hinnant, re-elected

Vice-President, Rev. Roy Rikard, re-elected

Treasurer, Rev. J. C. Griffin
Secretary, Rev. Wm. Burkette Raper.

Rev. Roy Rikard conducted the devotions at the 8 p. m. service and introduced Rev. Wayne W. Smith from the French Broad Association who brought the evening message. His text was Matthew 4:1-11. Brother Smith reminded us that the same "slew-footed monster" who tempted our Lord is still at large.

Thursday

The 9 o'clock devotions were conducted by Brother Rikard after which Rev. Walter Jernigan preached a very inspiring sermon on faith.

At the 10 o'clock hour the study of the new discipline was led by Brother Evans, and each minister present expressed the thought that a new discipline was a good idea.

Rev. Raper preached the 11 o'clock sermon on the title of "Having an Experience with God." It was pointed out that the minister has no right to preach beyond that which he has experienced. The text was drawn from The Transfiguration of Jesus.

The Ministers' Conference was formally concluded at the evening service when Rev. R. C. Ambrose conducted the devotions and Rev. M. L. Baxley preached on the subject "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today, and forever." At the close of the service another testimonial service was held. Those that participated in this service included the employees at Cragmont during the week of the Ministers' Conference. The special music was furnished by all of the employees. Misses Lois Harrell and Ernestine Sasser rendered two duets and Miss Dorothy Rae Boykin a solo.

Much more could be written and said about the heavenly discourse which we had at Cragmont. It was a week which those of us who attended will not soon forget. We had fellowship and sight-seeing, but most of all we had communion with our Lord. Truly, it was good that we went, for our souls were fed and our spirits were nourished.

Among our visitors for the week were Charles David Hansley, son of Rev. D. W. Hansley, the wife of Rev. Paul Jenkins and their son, Richard, Mrs. Wayne W. Smith and daughter, Miss Betty Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. John Floyd, and Brother Arthur Kennedy.

The employees at Cragmont performed a marvelous job in making our stay pleasant and comfortable. Mrs. C. G. Pope with her kitchen help, Lorraine Evans, Earnestine Sasser, Lois Harrell, and Mr. Kenneth Raper, made each meal a bountiful repast. It seemed as though everything were perfect.

Mr. Edgar Raper and his son, Kenneth, who were repairing the roof during the week of the Ministers' Conference were very pleasant guests.

Miss Dorothy Rae Boykin, Secretary at Cragmont this year, perhaps deserves special recognition—at least one of our ministers thought so!

Following are the names of the 36 ministers who registered for the Ministers' Conference this year at Cragmont: J. E. Floyd, R. N. Hinnant, Charles Brown, Noah Brown, Charles Manness, Willie Stillely, K. W. Kaskill, R. C. Ambrose, S. A. Smith, Steve English, W. H. Willis, W. B. Carter, W. R. Millard, Arthur Kennedy, W. Burkette Raper, D. W. Hansley, L. E. Ballard, W. H. Calvert, Ray Rikard, E. R. Tyner, C. D. Hamilton, Paul Jenkins, W. L. Moretz, W. L. Jernigan, M. L. Baxley, L. E. Ambrose, Sherman H. Oakes, J. C. Griffin, C. B. Hansley, W. E.

Next year we hope to meet all of these along with you who are not present this year. Thank God for Cragmont!

William Burkette Raper,
Secretary of Ministerial Assn.

FLORIDA'S TOP RURAL MINISTER DOESN'T KNOW HOW TITLE CAME

By George Whittington

Marianna (Staff Correspondence)
—Florida's Rural Minister of the Year—the 41-year-old Rev. Daniel F. Pelt—can't figure out how he earned that title.

Rev. Pelt, the pastor of three Free Will Baptist churches in Northwest Florida, received notification of his selection yesterday, but admits he still doesn't know what it's all about. He received only a short telegram, which gave scant details.

The award was made by Progressive Farmer Magazine and the School for Town and Country Ministers, Emory University, Atlanta. They chose 13 ministers in as many Southern states.

Each minister will receive a scholarship to the Sixth Annual Town and Country School at Emory, July 3-20. The scholarship includes tuition, board and room. Alabama's winner was the Rev. Robert Glenn of Valhermoso Springs.

Rev. Pelt has no idea of how he came to be chosen for the honor. A committee makes its selection from names submitted by church groups throughout the South. But Florida's top rural minister doesn't even know who might have recommended him.

As to the success of his ministry—chief basis of the award—Rev. Pelt has done "just what I thought was best." And, he modestly declared, "none of that was so outstanding."

At present, he holds pastorates at the Traveler's Rest Church in Calhoun County, near Carr as well as Christian Home and Hickory Grove churches in Jackson County. Christian Home is near Blountstown, while Hickory Grove is at Bascom.

In addition, Rev. Pelt teaches social studies at Sneads High School—a position for which he prepared himself by eight years of study at Troy State Teachers' College, while serving as a minister in his native Jackson County.

Rev. Pelt explained that after entering Troy State, he found himself able to attend only two full school years. So he began taking Summer courses working toward his Bachelor of Arts degree. He got it only last year.

If he's done anything worthy of special recognition, the modest minister figures, it might have had something to do with his youth work. He helped to establish a camp for boys near Cottdale on the Panama City highway. And in addition, he's worked constantly toward establishing Sunday School departments for young people in Northwest Florida's rural churches.

But, he declared, "Mike and Ronald have done most of that work." Mike, he said, is his younger brother—also a rural pastor—and Ronald is his 19-year-old son. Both are graduates of Chipola Junior College, where Ronald was an honor student. He now helps his father with youth activities.

In addition, Rev. Pelt has another son, Daniel, Jr., 15, and a daughter, Ramona, 17.

FREE UNION LEAGUE MEETS

The Ever Ready Senior League of Free Union Church, Beaufort County, held its regular business meeting on Tuesday night at 8:00 P. M., May 30. The devotions were begun by the members singing a hymn, and the Bible reading was by Mrs. Nathaniel Webster. Following this another hymn was sung.

The business period was entered into and the minutes were read and approved. There were 8 members present for this meeting. They answered to their names, at the roll call, by quoting a Bible verse. We appreciated the presence of ten visitors who were with us in this meeting.

In taking up the new business, it was decided to buy another book for the Church Library. The book decided on was "On the China Road." It was written by Martha L. Moenmick. A general discussion about the League Conference was given. An offering was taken to the amount of forty cents. Evelyn Webster invited the next meeting to be with her.

After the business matters were completed, we were dismissed with the League Benediction. Following this the hostess served delicious refreshments which everyone enjoyed very much.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY FIRST FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH, PORTSMOUTH, VA.

We have chosen for our circle the name, "Faithful Workers." The name is very descriptive of each of the members. We have on roll thirty active members. The circle meets Thursday evenings twice monthly in homes of the members. We do enjoy the fellowship and feel that we are making progress.

The circle has put on several dinners. The proceeds are going to the building fund, as do the proceeds from other projects, such as selling greeting cards, rummage sales, and most recently, the sale of vanilla and lemon extracts.

Our last meeting was held with Mrs. Lillian Chambers. The meeting for June 8, 1950, will be held at the home of Mrs. Paul Davis.

Mrs. J. W. Alexander is conducting a most interesting Mission Study—"His Name Among All Nations."

It is the hope of each member that we will be successful in the work, and ask the prayers of all the Christian people that we will go forward.

Mrs. D. G. Girmes, President
 Mrs. L. H. Matthews, Corr.-Secy.

JACOB, A MAN OF STRIKING CONTRASTS

(Lesson for July 2)

Lesson: Genesis 35:1-7, 9-12.

Golden Text: Genesis 28:15.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

1. The story of Esau selling his birthright to his brother Jacob is full of thrilling interest, and contains a solemn spiritual lesson, which people of God do well to ponder deeply. Jacob was destined to have the birthright, in the mind and purposes of God. The Lord told Rebekah before the birth of Esau and Jacob, that the elder should serve the younger. This was determined upon by the sovereign will of God, according to His elective purpose in grace (Rom. 9:10-13). (Read Genesis 25)

2. Esau was not suited for the birthright. Esau signifies "the man who feasts" and his after life fully evidenced the fact that he was true to his name. He was a wild, witty, fierce and venturesome sportsman. He was of a roving disposition. He loved the fields and recreation. He was destitute of faith and had no religious tendencies. He was self-willed, unrestrained and controlled by his appetite. In short, he was a man of the world and entirely for the world, and had no heart whatever for things Heavenly.

3. Esau was out in the fields hunting. Jacob boiled for himself pottage, a kind of Oriental bean soup. Compare II Sam. 17:28; 23:11; Ezek. 4:9. Its color was red. While it was boiling and about done, Esau came in all exhausted, weary and hungry. He was so hungry and weary that he was faint. He was just about played out and at the end of his strength. When he saw the pottage it pleased his eye, for it had the color suited to him.

Says the Genesis record: "Esau despised his birthright." How pathetic! Think of it! It can scarcely be believed that a man would despise what he should highly appreciate. But Esau did.

4. The way of the transgressor is hard (Prov. 13:15), and the case of Jacob was no exception. Rebekah had to pay the penalty of her trickery in helping Jacob deceive his father. She probably never saw Jacob again. (Gen. 27:41-45; 35:27-29).

Through their scheming, Jacob had received the promised blessing (Gen. 27:41), but he was not safe at home, and he was sent to Padan-aram, his mother's home, to find a wife (Gen. 28:1-5).

5. Maybe we do not think very highly of the old patriarch Jacob, but we will have to give him credit for believing the promises God made to him at Bethel. Most of us would have picked out a better man, perhaps one who had not deceived his own father so recently, and running for his life because he was in trouble with his brother. But God has always been a gracious God, and Jacob was a better and a richer man because he found it out. I always smile when I read those words in Gen. 28: 20, 21: "If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the Lord be my God." And that is exactly what God did for him: He was with him—as even Laban discovered (Gen. 30:27) and testified—and did keep him, and supplied him with food and raiment and did bring him back to his father's house (Gen. 35:2-6).

6. We need to read Genesis 32 and 33 here.

"Conscience doth make cowards of us all" and Jacob was no exception. He feared and dreaded to meet the man whom he had so bitterly wronged. Though he was fresh from a marvelous experience with the Lord and the dews of God's grace were upon him (Gen. 32:24-32), yet the crafty old "Jacob-nature" is still with him, as the "old nature" is still with believers (Gal. 5:17; I Cor. 9:27).

Jacob had prevailed with God (Gen. 32:28) but now self prevails in him, and he plans a demonstration and a suitable gift with which to appease the wrath of his brother.

The sin of Jacob in this instance was the sin of doubt and distrust of God, and yet he is not alone in this. It is a sin common to God's people. Look at Elijah! Even after his wonderful experience at Carmel, where God had set His seal to Elijah's confidence in Him by a mighty miracle (I Kings 18:37, 38), we have Elijah whimpering like a spoiled child (I Kings 19:4).—Selected.

7. Read Genesis 35.

Having met the command of God to go to Bethel, Jacob is met by God in special blessing. The Lord tells him that his name shall indeed be Israel, even as the angel had spoken in Genesis 32:28. He speaks of himself as El Shaddai, and promises that Jacob shall be fruitful and multiply and that a nation and a company of nations shall come out of him, that kings shall be born in his family. In addition, there is the reiteration of the promise of God to Abraham and to Isaac that the land of Canaan would be given to these individuals and their posterity.

Surely there is encouragement for all of us in the word used in the Psalter, "The God of Jacob is our refuge" (Ps. 46:7, 11). This man, despite his obstinacy and his self-will, at length met God, and God wrought for him and gave him great and glorious promises. This same God can meet us today if we will but turn in repentance and faith—repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ (Acts 20:21).—Moody Monthly.

The Blessing in the Blow

In ancient times, a box on the ear given by a master to a slave meant liberty; little would the freedman care how hard was the blow. By a stroke from the sword the warrior was knighted by his monarch; small matter to the new-made knight if the hand was heavy. When the Lord intends to lift His servants into a higher state of spiritual life, He frequently sends them a severe trial.

He makes His Jacobs to be prevailing princes, but He confers the honor after a night of wrestling, and accompanies it with a shrunken sinew.

Be it so! Who among us would wish to be deprived of the trials, if they are the necessary attendants of spiritual advancement?—C. H. Spurgeon.

in the state legislatures making it a felony to sell gasoline and liquor under the same roof.

MAN OF DISTINCTION

Joseph Sullivan of Detroit is back in jail again. At 60 years of age he admits he's a failure at crime. His latest offense is a hold-up and he blamed his crime on drink. According to a newspaper report he says, "I get drunk and decide to pull a job. That's the way with these young hoodlums. They ought to get wise or they'll end up like I am." He probably drank the same kind of liquor that other "men of distinction" drink.

Joseph Sullivan is a man of distinction who never appears in the liquor ads but is listed in the Who's Who among criminals. He has already spent 19 years of his life in prison and with a new sentence of from 10 to 20 years, he'll probably die in prison.

WHEN THE WETS ARE DRY!

In one of his great speeches, the late Senator William E. Borah of Idaho once said: "The man in the automobile may be opposed to the 18th Amendment, but he will instantly discharge a drinking chauffeur. The train may be crowded with delegates to the anti-prohibition convention, but they would mob the negineer who would take a drink while drawing his precious freight. Where Safety is involved, we are all drys."

The great use of life is to spend it for something that will outlast it.—William James.

Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "Some men help this world by what they do. Other men help this world by what they are."

An Ohio physician proposes this query: "Our church has 1,000 families. At the lowest estimate the average income is $1,000 a year which makes a total of $1,000,000. The tith of that is $100,000. Our budget is $12,000 per year. What becomes of the $88,000?"

Buying dimes with dollars in Bay State Massachusetts is not quite paying one dollar for each dime of liquor revenue, but according to Judge Joseph T. Zottoli, Chairman of the Legislature's Commission to study the problem of alcoholism in that state, she doesn't miss it very far. Judge Zottoli cites the estimate of direct costs totalling $61,000,000 annually but says this figure does not include the approximate $46,474,953 expense imposed upon the state by absenteeism, highway and industrial accidents and similar losses due to inebriety. The true figure should be $108,474,953, seven to eight times the $13,139,266 in liquor revenues. Stupid folly for any state. Pity the poor taxpayer.

"The foolish and the dead alone never change their opinion."—Lowell.

WHO IS IN THE PARK WITH YOUR CHILDREN ?

ALCOHOL A NARCOTIC POISON

Alcohol in beer, wine, whiskey is a narcotic, a poison, a habit-forming drug. That's why it is "no good for our children."

Dr. Emil Bogen, noted toxicologist says: "The very first thing that alcohol does is to attack the highest abilities, the parts of the brain that have to do with judgment, reason and the control of behavior . . . Alcohol slows down the brain." Mankind never can have "the brains to use them the way liquor should be used," because alcohol destroys the kind of brain power needed to tell a drinker when he has had enough.

A TOWN WET AND DRY!

A recent editorial in The Rutherford County News, R. E. Price, editor, gives comparative figures from the police records of Rutherfordton, So. Car., before and after beer and wine were voted out in February, 1949. Here are a few examples: Arrests for public drunkenness in Rutherfordton the six months before beer went out were 172. Six months after it went out they dropped to 35. Total arrests in Rutherfordton one year with beer, 383. First year after beer went out, 127.—Biblical Recorder, Raleigh, S. C., March 11, 1950.

TRAFFIC SAFETY AND DRINK

At the forty-sixth annual meeting of the American Automobile Association, held in San Antonio, Texas, in November, 1948, Lou E. Holland of Kansas City, Missouri, chairman of the A.A.A. National Traffic Safety Committee, declared that there are about 10,000 filling stations in the United States today where liquor is sold, an estimated gain of at least 20% during the last 12 months. He said, "Drastic action must be taken." Bills will be introduced

JOHN'S SALUTE TO THE FLAG

SARAH SCHUSTER

Nels Hansen, Arthur Amendsen, Martin Moe and Robert Thorsen, four nine-year-olds belonged to John Warner's class.

"Why so dejected, John?" asked Pastor Fretstad in a kindly voice as he saw John Warner leaving his classroom with knitted brow.

"Pastor, those four young ruffians cannot even be taught to respect the Bible, much less to learn from it. You should see their Bibles, Pastor, which I just put into the bookcase," the young man continued with disgust, "pages turned down, dirty, leaves torn, bindings broken; the whole Book actually mutilated. They let them fall on the floor and don't even bother to pick them up. One of them shoved a Bible aside with his foot rather than pick it up. I get so I cannot teach a thing. Pastor, if they dragged a United States flag around as they handle the Bible, they would be put in jail, young as they are."

"It is true, John," answered the pastor sympathetically "but the lads are very young, and do not realize what they are doing. You'll get them out of their habits, and I'm going to help you. Bring them over to the parsonage on Monday evening. Mrs. Fretstad and I would like to give you and the boys a Flag Day surprise."

Monday night came, and John Warner and his four lively lads appeared at the parsonage, wondering why Pastor Fretstad and Mrs. Fretstad had this special gathering in their honor.

The pastor and his wife had just welcomed them cordially when in came little James Fretstad, aged four, carrying a besmeared, bedraggled American flag. The boys greeted the little fellow and one of them stopped to pick up the soiled, wrinkled flag little James had heedlessly dropped on the floor and stepped on.

"James," called his father, "Bring that flag to me and sit down there with the boys in your little rocking chair."

The boys grew very still and attentive as Pastor Fretstad took the dirty flag and held it over his heart and then pressed it to his lips. The lads knew that he had been a chaplain in the army and that the little finger of his right hand was gone. They loved and respected him and gloried in the fact that he had been wounded for his country. They expected to hear a war story and sat very quietly.

Instead, he asked, "Boys, do you love this flag?"

With one voice they replied, "Yes, Pastor, we do."

"I do, too, Daddy," added little James.

The boys smiled and Nels Hansen ventured to say rather shyly, "It doesn't look as if you loved it, James."

"I do, I do, too, Daddy," protested the little fellow running up to his father.

"I know you do, my son. Now you go out to Mother in the kitchen, for she has told me that she will need you to help get the ice cream and the cake ready for us. By-and-by you may come in."

As soon as James had gone to the kitchen, Pastor Fretstad said, "Boys, why does it seem to you that James does not love the flag?"

He is a little fellow and didn't know any better than to dishonor the flag," kindly interceded John Warner. He loves it as much as anyone in this room."

"Yes, John, you are quite right," answered Pastor Fretstad appreciatively.

"But tell me, boys, why does it seem as if he did not care?"

"The flag is dirty," spoke up Robert. "A flag must be kept clean."

"It is all torn and ragged," continued Arthur. "You are supposed to handle a flag carefully and not tear it. It must never touch the ground."

"It looks as if he left it out all night. A flag must be brought in at sundown," added Nels.

"He dragged it on the floor and stepped on it," said Martin Moe hesitatingly, as if he hardly dared lay such an awful charge upon the minister's son.

"He is too young to know any better and is forgiven," again interceded John Warner.

"Yes, John," answered the pastor with a kindly nod.

"Now tell me, lads, what is the only object that is ever allowed to lie on the flag?"

The boys sat thinking while Pastor Fretstad spread the torn, dirty flag over a small table which he had brought into the room for that purpose. The boys searched each others' faces and looked at John inquiringly, but no one seemed to know what object could properly lie on a flag.

Then Pastor Fretstad stepped out into the adjoining room and returned with the weather-beaten, badly-handled Bibles belonging to John Warner's class.

"A Bible may lie on a flag," they all answered at once.

As the pastor laid the four half-ruined Books upon the tattered flag the boys recognized their Sunday School Bibles.

"Pastor," spoke up Robert shamefacedly, "our Bibles look just like James' flag, all torn and dirty."

"Just as if we didn't love our Bibles," quietly added Martin Moe his face reddening as he spoke.

"But we do love the Bible, Mr. Warner knows we love it, don't we, John?" continued Robert Thorsen as he looked squarely with confidence into his teacher's face.

"I know you love the Bible, boys," answered their teacher as if he never dreamed of thinking otherwise.

Again Pastor Fretstad stepped into the adjoining room and this time brought out five brand-new Bibles with stiff covers, just the kind boys love to handle. Presenting John Warner and each one of the boys with a new Bible as a gift, he asked them to draw up their chairs to the large library table.

"Now, fellows, we will begin right here and now to show that we love and respect the Bible. I will show you the proper way to open a Bible, or in fact any new book. At the pastor's direction each one held his Bible with the back on the smooth table. Then they put the front cover down, next the back cover. Then they opened a few leaves at the back, next at the front, and so on, alternately opening the back and the front. Then they gently pressed the sections until they reached the center of the volume.

"Do this two or three times," the pastor admonished, "and you will have good results. If you open the Bible violently or roughly in any one place you will break the back of the Book and loosen the leaves. Never force the back of any new book."

"Pastor, we can tell that you love the Bible," Nels ventured to say, "because you turn the pages so gently."

"Mr. Warner handles it that way, too, in class," Martin piped up.

John Warner actually had a tear in his eye.

Just then the dining room door opened and little James came in with a beautiful new flag which he carried proudly indeed. Pastor, teacher, and the boys instinctively arose and saluted the flag. Pastor Fretstad quickly handed John a large Bible which he held high over his head. The boys understood and again their hands were raised in salute. "We pledge allegiance to the Bible," they said heartily and Nels added quietly, "and we'll take care of it."

"Three cheers for the flag; three cheers for the Bible; three cheers for Pastor; three cheers for John Warner," they cried lustily as Mrs. Fretstad welcomed them into the dining room.

When John and his class left the parsonage a little later, and Pastor Fretstad watched each lad carefully and affectionately tuck his Bible under his arm he knew that respect for the flag had called to the attention of these young Americans that they must show respect for the Bible and by no means take it for granted.

"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to Thy Word. . . Thy Word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against Thee" (Ps. 119:9, 11).—Juvenile Pleasure.

AS IT SHOULD BE

C. F. Bowen

The recent action of the Foreign Mission Board relative to all gifts sent to the mission treasury being placed in the general fund and not used for designated purposes, certainly meets the approval of many of us who have long since hoped for just such a settlement of this problem.

Too long we have handicapped the work of the Board by earmarking our money for certain projects and persons, which has resulted in some areas of our foreign mission work having to undergo hardships for lack of sufficient funds with which to operate. Moreover, it should be quite clear to see that everyone cannot have a voice in the expenditure of mission money, else the whole program suffers.

As for me, I am quite sure the men on our Foreign Mission Board have done the best they can to meet all obligations—as far as our cooperation and support have allowed them. While they might well have done better in some respects, the chances are none of us could have made very much improvement. The least we can do is to give them every support in good faith.

On the other hand, if we feel that their methods have been poor and if we think others could do better, the proper procedure is to elect new members to the Board or get an entirely new one at the next session of the National Association in California. But as long as we retain these men in this position, it remains for us to stand by them and give regularly and consistently of our money to the foreign mission cause—and to give it to them to be used as they see fit. I am willing to risk the judgment of a group of men closer than I am to the heart of our mission work.

So, I am glad to see this step taken. It will not be approved by some. A few will find it hard to comply with the request of the Board, but I believe those who are most interested in the work and those who give most consistently to the cause will welcome this mature attitude and contribute more freely in the months to come.

TO NORTH CAROLINA LEAGUERS

This Is an Emergency Call, and Must Be Given Immediate Attention!

I have been asked to arrange for a State-wide Intermediate Sword Drill, to be held in connection with the N. C. State League Convention at Kenly, July 3-4, to choose a contestant for the 1951 Nationwide Intermediate Sword Drill. The fact that our N. C. contestant, Jane Smith of New Bern, won first place in the nationwide drill at Norfolk, Va., last week should encourage many to want to enter the contest for 1951.

There are two ways for local leagues to choose a contestant to compete in the state-wide drill. The first and best way is to have a drill in the local league, letting the one receiving the most points go to Kenly for the statewide drill. The other plan is for the league just to elect someone to go, in the same manner delegates are elected. Whatever is done must be done NOW—"the time is at hand!"

Since time is so short, no registration of contestants prior to the convention will be required. If you do chose one in time to send the name to me, well and good. If not just have your contestant at Kenly on July 3.

This is to advise that, since only a few people have indicated that they would want to go to California on the "Pullman Car," we are cancelling this engagement. The number to go was too small to justify the use of the pullman.

The Homeland

The Homeland! Oh, the Homeland!
 The land of the freeborn
 There's no night in the Homeland
 But aye the fadeless morn;
 I'm sighing for the Homeland,
 My heart is aching here;
 There is no pain in the Homeland
 To which I'm drawing near.

My Lord is in the Homeland,
 With angels bright and fair;
 There's no sin in the Homeland,
 And no temptation there;
 The music of the Homeland
 Is ringing in my ears,
 And when I think of the Homeland,
 My eyes are filled with tears.

My loved ones in the Homeland
 Are waiting me to come
 Where neither death nor sorrow
 Invades their holy home:
 O dear, dear native Country!
 O rest and peace above!
 Christ bring us all to the Homeland
 Of His eternal love.

Notice

Any service will be gladly rendered to any organization of our church, upon request and presentation of manuscript for such service.

Nashville, Tulsa,
Norfolk, these three;
but the Greatest . . .

ELL, of course, there are varying opinions concerning which of the three truly great Free Will Baptist League Conferences that have been held to date has been the greatest, but there are those who will agree that the Third Nation-wide Conference which was held in Norfolk, Virginia, June 13-15 was one of the most inspiring gatherings of Free Will Baptists in history. From the very first minute of the conference until the very last word had been spoken, it was good. In its precious fellowship, differences, if there were any, had to melt away. From the east to the west, we struck hands in peace at Norfolk!

In the excitement of these early afternoons, while the afterglow still is almost blinding in its brightness, it would be impossible to write an account of the conference which would present its worth to the thousands of ardent nationwide conference fans, who could not go to see for themselves, but whose prayers and concern wins for them the right to share it's benefits. Hundreds of pictures were made, and many of them will grace these pages in future numbers. Many, who want to share their joyous experiences with others, will be writing letters to this and other church publications telling about their Norfolk adventure in fellowship and service under the control of Christ.

For the time being we shall content ourselves by venturing a few highlights of the great conference:

The Attendance. While total figures on the registration are not now available, it must have run close to 1,000, and in addition many hundreds came and went for some of the features of the conference without bothering to register. The ones present were representative of the whole of our church life in that they came from all sections, and in that they were of all ages, and more equally divided between the various group ages than in former conferences.

Speakers. Speakers who thrilled audiences during the conferences included local celebrities, national denominational leaders, our beloved missionary, Miss Laura Belle Barnard, A native Cuban pastor, the editor of the league publications, volunteer missionary students, and just plain leaguers—and the last but not by any means less important in this conference than the others. Messages were rich with spiritual truth, and truly enlightening.

Drama. This conference was especially rich in drama. Three outstanding works of dramatic art were presented during the conference, one by the local league, one by students of our Bible College, and one by a guest troupe from a Norfolk church of another faith but the same Spirit.

Divisional Conferences. Unusual interest was manifested in the divisional conferences during the afternoon of each day. A nice group assembled for each of the four conferences, and entered heartily into discussions designed to bring each group more definitely under the control of Christ.

Singing. Singing during the conference, directed in fine F. W. B. L. style by our own Billy Melvin, was truly soul stirring and uplifting. The swelling of the choruses was like the swelling of a Jordan of inspiration to all.

Recreation and Fellowship. The committee had made plans for two special tours of interesting places in and around Norfolk, including the world's largest Naval base. These plans had been well made, and the result was most excellent opportunities for recreation and fellowship for a period each late afternoon. This association with one another and with great places in history got everyone in good condition for the great meeting each evening at the Municipal Auditorium.

Nationwide Sward Drill. North Carolina's Jane Smith, of New Bern, won first place in the Nationwide Intermediate Sward

Drill, in which there were entries from several states.

League Board Present. For the first time in the history of the nationwide conference all members of the National F. W. B. L. Board, promoters of the conference, were present. They are: Rev. Henry Melvin, Chairman; Rev. C. F. Bowen, Secretary-Treasurer; Rev. W. S. Mooneyham, Rev. J. B. Crawford, and Mrs. Gertrude Ballard. A picture of this group of earnest workers will appear on these pages soon, we hope.

➤ The Art of Christian Living ◀

In the Epistle of Paul to Titus 2:7-8, we find these words, "In all things showing thyself a pattern of good works; in doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, sound speech that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you." In this passage Paul is instructing Titus how he must exhort young men to be discreet, and impress upon him the importance of the example he sets for his fellow believers. This is somewhat like Paul had said to young Timothy, when he told him to be an example to the believers. The qualifications that he presents here are very interesting; notice, "uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, sound speech that cannot be condemned." The art of correct Christian living is a very fine art, and he who will give credit to the profession of his faith must be constantly on guard in relation to his conduct. In the Scriptural background "uncorruptness" is the first item of importance here. This gets down to the very basic qualities of honesty and straight forward truth that can neither be bribed nor bought. I believe there is a special call today for young men to be on their guard against corruptness, as well as young women.

A good illustration is given to us in the book of Daniel. There were four young men of the children of Judah who were made the special objects of the enemies attack. They were splendid specimens of manhood, with unmovable faith in God. It is very interesting, in the first chapter of Daniel, to see how Nebuchadnezzar made his plans to corrupt these men. It is a well laid scheme, with definite steps to destroy their noble character. First of all, he wanted to change their names, then he wanted to change their diets, and lastly, he wanted to make them bow to his image. These are the steps of assault which the Devil always seeks to make against godly young men. First of all, Nebuchadnezzar sought to take away the names which these young men had acquired in their godly heritage and substitute for them heathen names. We may be very sure that in these days the devil would try to change the names of Christian young men, so that instead of being famous for Christian qualities, and instead of being known among their fellows under the name Christian, they should rather acquire a name in the godless world in which they live. The first thing the Lord does for any of us, when He takes us up in His Grace, is to give us a Christian name, as He did for Simon Peter. Simon, son of Jonas, upon his first contact had his name changed to Peter or Cephas, meaning "a stone." It was an indication that the past history of this man had come to a close, and he was beginning a new career born anew, born of the Spirit, old things had passed away. He was given a new life, with the name of Christ upon him. Of, course, he continued to be called by the combination name, Simon Peter, but there is a day coming when he will be known only as Peter, a bit of the Rock, a part of the Lord Jesus Christ, a living stone in His building, and the Simon characteristics will be left behind forever when the new creation is inaugurated.

Rev. A. B. Bryan

Then, Nebuchadnezzar's second attack or assault was his efforts to corrupt these Hebrew children in changing their diets. He wanted them to sit at his own table and partake of godless food which he and his nobles partook of. Daniel and his companions would have none of it, and they chose the simple diet of a slave rather than defile themselves with the king's meet. What a lesson there is in this for Christian young men and all Christians of today. The devil would seek to feed us mentally, and even physically with the rich and idle philosophy of this poor world so that we might become enslaved by his power and lose identity as God's children; thus branding us as children of the devil. Nebuchadnezzar's scheme failed entirely for the simple reason that Daniel and his companions were young men of purpose, and they "purposed in their hearts" that they would not be defiled with the king's meat. We are living in an age when Satan is making a grand assault upon our young people and he is corrupting them mostly by the diet he sets before them. It is the diet of worldly entertainment, of corrupt literature, and so-called harmless pursuits. Yet, the simple wholesome fare that is set before Christian young people in the Word of God is not quite agreeable today. Young people, it takes purpose of heart to cling to the Word of God when there are so many entertaining and corrupting influences around us.

Nebuchadnezzar's last assault upon these young men was to force them to bow to his image. The reason Daniel and his companions were enabled to refuse to bow to the image was that they had retained their Hebrew names in faithfulness to God, and, secondly, their food had been the simple diet of Godly men. The devil will never get us to bow to his image if we continually shine in our true colors as Christians, and faithfully look after our Spiritual diet. The Lord Jesus Himself said, "I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." The only way in which you and I may combat the power and attractions of this poor sinful world is to feed upon Christ. The young man whose heart is fixed upon Christ supremely will find that he is perfectly satisfied, and then the allurements of the world have no power over him. All of these I see in this simple exhortation of Paul to the young man Titus that he should teach "uncorruptness, gravity, and sincerity."

Then, the next expression found in

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

Revival at St. Mary's Grove

We closed a week's revival meeting at St. Mary's Grove, Johnston County, Sunday night, June the 18th, with ten additions to the church. Eight were baptized by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Ferrell, Sunday afternoon and one more confessed Christ and was admitted as a candidate for Baptism Sunday night, who is to be baptized later. One was reclaimed and received into full fellowship, making ten in all.

Although Brother Ferrell and I were brought up in the same County (Nash), this was our first opportunity to work together in a revival meeting. He has been pastor of this church for about fourteen years and is well acquainted with his members and we visited several homes where the sick and aged were held in, and we took dinner (lunch) and supper in different homes each day for the seven days. It was a great pleasure to have had this fellowship. People seemed to enjoy our visits and we could not get to see every one who wanted us to visit and take meals and spend nights.

I spent all my nights in the home of Brother W. J. Langdon where I enjoyed the greatest of old-fashioned "southern hospitality."

The people of St. Mary's Grove, not only the members but those who are not members, all seem to love their pastor, and the pastor shows that he is deeply appreciative of the fellowship.

The church building which is well seated had a capacity house from the beginning to the last service, the congregations were the largest that this writer has had the privilege to preach to in many years.

We cannot close without saying that we had two good choirs. The Senior choir is extra good, and your servant gathered a large group of junior boys and girls that are just as devoted as we have ever seen in our forty years of ministerial service. I shall never forget the happy faces as they expressed their joy in the song service.

Vacation Bible Schools

Reports are coming to us from all directions, telling us about the great Vacation Bible Schools in the State, especially the eastern part of North Carolina. Mrs. Griffin is now in her fourth school, having taught at Morehead City, and directed at Sts. Delight, Craven County, Edwards Chapel, Carteret County, and now (June 19) at Ruth's Chapel—a very small congregation,

New Bern, Rt. 1, where 78 students registered Monday morning. The second day (Tuesday) 89 students registered.

At the sitting of the Eastern Conference, October 1949, there were 39 members of the church, now there are 52, thus 13 being added. We give the number of church members to show that great possibilities are in the wake of this little church, which is running on half time. They have services on Second and Fourth Sundays. This is all the pastoral work that I have at present, therefore, I am devoting much of my time to evangelistic services and Bible teaching—Ministry of the Word. God is blessing. Will be glad to see my old friends of other congregations at Ruth's Chapel on Second and Fourth Sundays.

In the Vacation Bible School we are using four of the class rooms that we started back in the spring. We hoped to get the other one ready but could not get to it by this time.

In regards to the class rooms, we have been paying as we go. It has been at much sacrifice. It has been done with "tithes and offerings." We have sold no pies, cakes, creams, etc., and run no shows nor gone out begging, however, we have had some outside help which was an answer to Prayer.

Those who have come to our aid have been those who knew that we were trying, out of our little, to do something for the cause of Christ, and God placed it in their heart to give and we highly appreciate their offering. We know that God will bless them. Two of these making special gifts are TITHERS, and thus they contributed the Lord's portion (some of it) to Ruth's Chapel.

We lack the painting on the inside and the painting of shingles on the outside. But we are praying that all this may be accomplished before cold weather. Pray for us at Ruth's Chapel, the little church just outside of New Bern, on Route 2. (Oak Road) A LETTER FROM REV. PAUL WOOLSEY

We received today (June 20th) a letter from Rev. Paul Woolsey, one of our missionaries in India. We quote:

Sonapurhat, Purnea Dist.
Bihar, June 8, 1950

Dear Brother in Christ:

"We are very busy with our building program and plans for the organization of our first Indian church. We have, or soon will have, a plant here that will be worth between Rs 30,000 and Rs 50,000 (between $5,500.00 and $10,000)."

Brother Woolsey has written books, one of which has been printed and another in the making, which has been dedicated to the Woman's Auxiliary. He expects to aid the work in India with the proceeds from the sale of his books. I have the first book that Bro. Woolsey wrote, "God, a Hundred Years and a Free Will Baptist Family." Every Free Will Baptist should have this book in his collection of books and get the knowledge it contains, and also help to preach the gospel to "those who sit in darkness."

Among other publications that you should read is "Personal Soul Saving" by Mrs. Eunice Edwards. This book can be obtained from the Gem Press at Monett, Mo., or from this writer. The book is the property of the Board of Publications and Literature, of the National Association, and endorsed by the publishers.

Other books to help you along are "The One Foundation;" "The Upper Room Ought;" "Hell, or Endless Punishment of the Wicked." These are all "booklets." The first sells for 40 cents, post paid; the other three for 15 cents each, post paid. These three last mentioned can be secured at the F. W. B. Press, Ayden, N. C., or from this writer. Let us hear from you, friends, and help a good work to go forward.

THE POET WHO MADE A BLOT

Did you ever make a blot? I have, and I want to tell you about a little girl who made one, and it resulted in her death. There it was a great, ugly, black spot! She did not like the looks of it, and thinking to get rid of it, licked it off with her tongue. Sin is like a blot. Oh, how it mars the life, the conscience, the heart! How can we get rid of it? By anything we can do? By licking it, as it were? To do so only transfers the blackness, so that the outward blot becomes an inward blot. God says, "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper" (Prov. 28:13). Such attempts are sure to end in death.

After the little girl had licked her blot she was taken ill. Then she got worse, and at last died. The doctors examined her after death, and found that the ink had poisoned her. When Jesus undertook to remove our sin-blots it cost Him His life. "Christ died for our sins" (I Cor. 15:3). Thus He "died away sin by the sacrifice of Himself" (Heb. 9:26). Now, "if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sin, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (I John 1:9). When Heber wrote the missionary hymn,

"What through the spicy breezes

Blow soft o'er Ceylon's isle,

Though every prospect pleases,

And only man is vile."

he made a blot over the word "Ceylon." Years after I saw a reproduction of the verse in the poet's own writing, and the ugly blot was still there. How dreadful to have our sin-blots preserved! They will be, unless the Blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us (I John 1:7).—W. L., in Tract.

Common sense is the knack of seeing things as they are, and doing things as they ought to be done.—C. E. Stow.

National Association of Free Will Baptists Will Convene in Richmond, Calif. July 11-14, 1950

REV. BRUCE BARROW
Moderator National Association

During recent years the Free Will Baptist denomination has been steadily moving toward the west, with churches in new territory being organized almost weekly. This westward trend will no doubt continue, and it is to be hoped that it will not stop until there are progressive associations or conferences in every state of the union.

California seems afar off to Free Will Baptist ministers and others who live east of the Mississippi, and perhaps many are saying, "I wish I could go, but I don't see how I can." Do not decide too hastily that you cannot go. It is an opportunity of a lifetime, and worthy of any reasonable sacrifice. It will be a great trip for all who go, and this associational meeting will be a great historical event to the Free Will Baptist denomination. It will be the signal that Free Will Baptists are no longer little and narrow but truly great. It will be a sign of our triumph over difficulties in our forward march. It will show to the struggling Free Will Baptists of the west coast that they are not forgotten by their brethren of the east, who have many advantages they do not have.

The coming session of the National Association of Free Will Baptists will be one of the most important meetings of this kind to be held in recent years. Many items of importance to the program will be presented for consideration. The various Boards will propose their budgets for the coming year, the Stewardship Commission will report for the first time, the revived Christian Workers' Institute set-up will be introduced nationally, a new and workable Home Mission plan will be presented, the Foreign Mission Board will have a revitalized plan of work.

The city of Richmond, California, is situated on the east coast of San Francisco Bay and has a population of 104,000. Pastor George McClain of the Free Will Baptist church there has secured the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce and other Civic organs, and the city is ready to officially extend a welcome hand to F. W. B. from everywhere. Special sight-seeing tours are being arranged and other surprises are in store for those who attend.

The National F. W. B. Radio Commission will offer a thirty minute program which will be broadcasted over one of the San Francisco stations directly to the National Association.

The Free Will Baptist Bible College Board of Trustees will have some definite reports and proposals relative to expanding the college.

The Promotional Department will present a unified five-year program of Spiritual Advance for Free Will Baptists.

All of this, plus some more, will be interspersed with preaching, singing, and Bible discussion based on the theme "Stewardship." It is hoped that each department will prepare displays for the association.

Delegates and visitors to the National Association will find accommodations in the following Hotels and Motor Courts:

Motor Courts

El Rancho San Pablo, 3150 San Pablo Ave., Phone Beacon 2-4102.

Motel Richmond, On highway 40—East Bay.

Freeway Motel, 1907 San Pablo Ave., El Cerrito, Cal., U. S. 40. $4.00 for single, $6.00 for double. Ph. Beacon 4-5581.

Hotels

Hotel Don—single, $3.00-$4.00; double, $4.00-$5.00.

Homes

There will also be a limited number of homes available for those who want them.

Write to Rev. George McClain, 440 S. 24th Street, Apt. 1-B, Richmond, California, for reservations in the homes.

Meals

Arrangements have been made for meals to be served by the Methodist church at 85 cents per meal for the noon and evening. Breakfast can be had at one of the local cafeterias at a nominal cost.

GOING TO CHURCH

is a habit to be warmly commended, but we must bear in mind that attending the services of God's house, or participating in any religious forms or ceremonies, will never take the place of saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

It is "not by works of righteousness" (such as going to church) that we become Christians, but "by grace . . . through faith." "Grace" is God's part in our salvation. He "so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son" to die for our sins. "Faith" is our part—we accept God's great gift by putting our trust not in our own character, good works or church affiliations, but in Jesus Christ. "Whosoever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life."

Going to church may edify a man and inspire him, and it may even reveal God's plan of salvation to him. Only by receiving Jesus as his Saviour, however, can he become a Christian, or child of God. "As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name."

We should go to church not to earn favor with God but because we know and love Him and want to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—Sel.

WHY SUPPORT MISSIONS!

Miss Elsie Dunn
Fountain, N. C.
Route 1, Box 97

If some one should ask, "Why do Free Will Baptists support foreign missions?" would you be able to give a good answer? One good reason for the support of foreign missions is that it was God's command that the gospel be sent to all parts of the world. Christ said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15).

Another good reason why people should support foreign missions is that there is only one Saviour for all men. If the people of the foreign lands do not hear about that Saviour, and therefore can't accept Him as their Lord and Master, then they will be lost. "For there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

There are many other reasons why we should give to foreign missions, but the two given above are sufficient to show that we are pleasing God when we help the missionaries in the work which they are doing.

The aim of the missionaries is to tell the heathen all about Jesus, and to lead them to accept Him as their personal Saviour. They do have a hard task in trying to lead some of the heathen people to Christ, because a great many of them are opposed to the missionaries, therefore they will not listen to them. Nevertheless, the missionaries keep on telling them of Christ and what He came to earth to do for them.

We should ask this question: Are we as eager to do something for God, as we are to do things for ourselves? Well, if ye are not, then we should be, because God should come first in our lives. Think how the missionaries have given up their homes to go and serve in the foreign lands, but what have we done or given up for Christ?

I should like to say in closing that I think the missionaries are wonderful people, and I admire them for being willing to give their all in the service of the Lord. Since they are willing to do this, certainly we here at home should be willing to give wholeheartedly our support for the foreign mission cause. Think, dear friends, if the missionaries could have the money that is spent for worldly amusements here in the home land, how much it would help them. If this money were spent in taking the wonderful messages to the heathen people, think what a blessing it would be. It would not be very long before most every one would have had opportunity to hear the gospel preached to them.

Christian friends, are you going to cause some soul to suffer in hell because you spent your money at the shows, ball games, or in some other useless way?

Do st thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of.—Franklin.

NEW CHURCH IN PROCESS OF BEING ERECTED IN VIRGINIA

Dear Friends in Christ:

As we are getting ready to build a new church by the name of Menton Memorial Free Will Baptist church, St. Charles, Virginia, we realize that it will cost us quite a sum of money. But we are laboring to build a house for the Lord, so that we can worship him in it with great satisfaction.

We are needing some help in order for us to be able to move forward with the construction work, therefore we are calling on our friends to help us all they can. We will certainly appreciate it very much if a number of our church people will send to us donations for this purpose.

If anyone should be interested in learning more about this building project, you are requested to get in touch with the bank of Johnsville, Virginia. That is where we are doing our banking business. We have half of the money needed for this building in this bank. All contributions should be mailed to:

Church Treasurer,

FALLING AWAY

Falling away has come, and who is responsible, the church members or the preachers? I say that it is the ministry, the preachers, because they are supposed to lead the flock. But, if the blind lead the blind, they will all fall in the ditch together.

Christ said that if the preachers would follow Him, and do as He said, then we can ask what we would and we would receive it. I have heard the preachers pray and their followers pray, but the prayers seemed to have been in vain. No results. What did the Devil say? "Oh, it is just a form; God will not hear their groans."

Remember, God will not listen to any way but his way. He will not use any substitutes. What He wants us to do, He means for us to do it; not follow the Devil. Many preachers do not make any big talk about this way, but when I hear some praying, I know about what they will get. When the preachers and the church people fall down and pray as they should, then He will hear and answer their prayers. When the evil spirit is in the church, it does not matter how much they pray, unless they pray in humility and sincerity, asking God to answer their prayers, they will not get an answer.

The old Devil kept the disciples from casting out that dumb spirit in the child because they did not fast and pray. They did not know what was wrong until Christ came and told them. That is the way some of the preachers are today. They fail to get results. As long as the Devil can get them to listen to him, they will not get results.

Old Daniel fasted and prayed and the lions could not do him any harm, for God was with him. If the Devil can get the preachers to listen to him, he is glad.

Why did John the Baptist teach his followers to fast and pray? He knew that there was not an evil spirit that God could not cast out, if proper prayer and fasting were used. The Devil could not stop Him from casting him out, by prayer and fasting. There were seven spirits in one woman on earth, which the Devil put in her, but Christ cast them out. Did He fast, oh yes, He did fast forty days and nights.

Preachers, do what God tells you to do, and you will be able to have your prayers answered. There will not be so much falling away, if you will do it.

THE HOME MISSION PROGRAM

Home missions among Free Will Baptists in this country have been poorly boosted and indifferently supported with financial means for a goodly number of years. As a result, the Free Will Baptist cause in the United States has suffered immensely, both in the rural areas, and in the villages, towns and cities. Consequently, the growth of the Free Will Baptist church in our country has trailed far behind other denominations, and is still trailing far behind. Nevertheless, we have been making some progress for the past decade in this field of labor. A goodly number of churches have been established in towns, and cities, as well as in the rural districts in the various states. While this is gratifying to many of us, yet we are doing very little in the field of Home Missions.

The National Home Mission Board is at work on some far reaching plans, and they are planning to present before the National Association in July their program for the coming year. This Board feels the responsibility, as well as the great need, of setting up a more comprehensive and far reaching program of Home Mission work among Free Will Baptists in all of the states where we have F. W. B. Churches. With such a program adopted by the National Body, and the necessary machinery set in order, the pastors, Sunday School officials, and the Woman's auxiliaries of the various churches of the denomination can get busy, and put the Home Mission program over in a great way for the ensuing year.

This writer firmly believes that the Free Will Baptist denomination can never go very far in the Foreign Mission work until it has a strong, progressive Home Mission program functioning properly in every church throughout this nation. On the other hand, whenever we set up and carry forward a strong and workable Home Mission program, then we will begin to see within a short time great results of this most needed work among our churches wherever they are located. It is not for the lack of means that we are so far behind other denominations in this respect. No, it is not that. What we have needed is vision, qualified leadership, a workable program, and the proper corps of workers to push the Home Mission program forward for the glory of God.

Suffice it to say, whenever the Free Will Baptist denomination has developed an excellent functioning Home Mission program in every church of the denomination, then it will be shown that the established churches will expand, new mission fields will be entered in the towns, cities, and the rural areas. As a result, new churches will be organized, new pastors will be supplied, and new church buildings will be erected for those new congregations. Yes, it can and will be done in a surprising way in just a few years, if the National Mission Board, and the National Association will, in the coming

July meeting, set in operation an adequate program, and then lay plans by which every pastor, Sunday School superintendent, every Woman's auxiliary, and every organized Young People's League of the denomination are requested and held responsible for the raising of substantial funds for this great cause.

Furthermore, the boosting and the giving of substantial offerings systematically and periodically during the year, and the years to come, will mean more and greater giving to Foreign Missions. It will mean a growing church membership here in the home land, as well as in the foreign fields. It will mean the increase of local support of each individual church activity. Church members will give to the support of Home Missions when they are led to see what it will mean to the denomination home and abroad. May God speed the day when we will have a Home Mission program second to none in this country.

—oooOOooo— SUNDAY BASEBALL versus CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES

Sunday baseball has become a popular sport all over this land. Professional baseball, both of the major and the minor leagues, is constantly drawing great crowds of people each Sunday to those games. A great many of the church people patronize these sports on Sunday and Sunday nights, when they should be attending church services instead. The fact is, a great many people stay away from church because of their having more interest in seeing these games than they are in going to church on the Lord's Day. These enticements are standing in the way of the best interests of the church, and they serve to lead a great many people into the habit of staying from church on Sunday as a customary thing.

We feel that the church people should rise up and file protests with the Baseball Commissioner, A. B. Chandler, Cincinnati, Ohio, and seek to wield an influence against Sunday baseball. We believe that sufficient pressure can be manifested by all the Protestant churches in America against Sunday baseball as to influence the officials of the major and minor clubs to cease having Sunday and Sunday night games altogether.

Furthermore, in a great many instances gambling and drinking (under the cover supposedly) are attendant vices at such Sunday games. God created the Sabbath day to be a holy day, and that people should use it as a day of rest, devotion, and service unto his holy name. But some will say that Sunday games are all right, because the church people attend these games, and they think there is no harm in them. That is the "rub," for if the church people would not only stay away from Sunday baseball games, but also raise a protest against them, then such an influence would be aroused against them until, we believe, the officials in charge of the major and the minor leagues would cease to have games on Sunday and Sunday night.

THE STORY OF AN INDIAN CONVERT

Language School
Landour, Mussoorie,
U. P., North India
June 12, 1950

Dear friends,

One day last winter, our first winter in Kishanganj, while I was studying, suddenly, someone appeared at the door. I saw there a tall slim Sikh standing in the door. (Sikhism is one of the religious groups of India.) I knew that he was a Sikh because of his tall stature, big black beard and neat turban. I might add that he looked just like you have imagined an Indian to look according to romantic stories of India, etc. He immediately let me know that he knew absolutely nothing about Christianity but that he wanted to learn something about it. I discussed the Christian religion in a general way, gave him a tract, and asked him to come back the next day and we would discuss the Word. The next day he came early and spent most of the day quietly reading the New Testament in English in our living room. I felt that since English was his third language, and because of the difficulty of trying to explain to some one who knows nothing of the Christian religion, and who might have false concepts of the Christian Way, that he would be better reached by bringing him directly in contact with God's Word. As the close of the first day of his reading the Bible I spent three hours teaching him the first three chapters of John. He seemed very impressed with God's Word. For the next few weeks he spent as many days as possible reading the English New Testament and completely read it through. We had no literature available in his mother tongue.

Now let me tell you of the marvelous way in which the Lord led this man to our home. One day while I was on tour, a man came to the house to ask me to read the Bible in a service at the public parade grounds, in honor of Gandhi's death day. They were going to read from the sacred books of the Hindus, Moslems, Sikhs, and Christians, and therefore asked me to read from the Bible. Since I was not home Trula went to read from the Bible. She had only a few minutes to prepare and as she didn't know which language she should be asked to read in she decided to read part of the fourteenth chapter of John. Unnoticed by her at the time, a young unknown Sikh man sat near her at the the service and heard the reading of the Word. This man as we later came to know was A. Singh Gill. He related to us some time later in words to this effect, "When Mrs. Cronk read from the Bible on the Midan it was the first time I had ever heard a word from the Bible. I thought as she read, 'People have always told me that the Christian Scriptures were bad books, but this is not bad teaching, in fact, this is wonderful teaching. I must go and find out more about it.'" So for several days he searched the little town to find out where we lived and thus appeared at our door.

The Word of God had a tremendous grip on Mr. Gill. It drew him with a strong power. One day after he had been reading the Bible for nearly eight hours, I offered him a news paper to read, thinking that he must be very tired from reading the Bible so long at one sitting but he replied, "No, this (the Bible) is more important." So day after day he read in English comparing it with the Urdu translation of the Bible. Urdu is his second language.

One day I was thinking that in only a few short days we have to go to the hills and I can't go without giving this man an opportunity to accept the Lord. So after prayer I approached Mr. Gill about coming out and out for Christ and this is what he told me.

"Mr. Cronk, about the second or third night after you began studying the Bible with me, late at night

I was suddenly awakened in my sleep as if by someone. I sat up and thought "What is this?" Then I thought that this must be the God of the Bible trying to talk to me so I said in my heart, "If this is from God then he may do something again that I might know that he is the true God and I will follow him." He went back to sleep but soon was awakened again because it seemed that someone had rushed from the room and slammed the door. He sat up and looked around the room but the door was locked. He thought, "This is the sign from the True God. I will follow him." Then his room mate sat up and said, "Who was in this room?" But Mr. Gill just lay back down and prayed to the True God.

Then he told me of later events, "When I was in Katihar I went to the missionary there, as you suggested, and while we prayed and read the Bible I felt strongly drawn by the Power of God, and finally admitted to them that I was interested in Christianity."

So all this time he was following Christ in her heart but he had never said anything to me nor confessed to others that we was a Christian. He told me how God had answered his prayer one day when he was without money and had to travel back to our city. Then I gave him some Scriptures on assurance and asked him to confess Christ as his Saviour openly in prayer, and to ask God to give him strength that he might live a life of prayer and Bible Study as a Christian.

God is still working in a marvelous way. Gill has been going out with Mr. Woolsey for preaching in the villages. God has laid on his heart a burden for preaching the Gospel in unevangelized villages. I quote from a letter received from him some days ago. "Brother, I am thankful that your company gave life. I was dead and through you I have found life. Now I request you to pray for me that I may be having a burning ambition in my heart for our Saviour's service, that is, always praying to him and carrying his Word to my brothers who are still dead. As He has given resurrection to me who was dead in sins through you, in the

FOURTH UNION MEETING REPORT

The Fourth Union meeting of the North Carolina Central Conference convened with Spring Branch Church in Greene County, April 29, 1950. Rev. A. G. Baker conducted the devotions. The welcome address was given by Jannie Dilda, while the response was by Rev. R. C. Proctor. The minutes were read and approved as read. There were fifteen churches that represented in the meeting. The ministers present were as follows: Marshall Joyner, L. B. Manning, R. C. Proctor, J. D. Vernelson, T. P. Ellis and Allen Parker. The visiting ministers were Stephen Smith, of the Third Eastern Union meeting, and Rev. C. L. Patrick, of the Second Union meeting.

Following the roll-call of ministers, the morning business session was then entered into. A. J. Tyson was elected as treasurer of the union to fill the unexpired term of J. C. Cobb, deceased. An offering was taken to the amount of $28.42 for the Middlesex Orphanage. The union voted to accept the invitation of Saratoga Church to meet with it in July, on Saturday before the fifth Sunday. At this point the business was called off for the Union sermon.

After singing a hymn and prayer, Rev. J. D. Vernelson delivered a splendid message. His text was taken from the fifth chapter of Jeremiah. He used for his subject: "What Have I Done?" At the close of this service, dinner was served on the church yard, and everyone enjoyed a good feast and sweet fellowship together.

The afternoon devotions were led by Rev. L. B. Manning. Special music was rendered by different people throughout the meeting. A motion was made and carried to pay for the clothing of the adopted child at the orphanage. A motion was made and carried to pay for the flowers which were bought for Brother J. C. Cobb's funeral. A motion was made and seconded that the moderator of the union to purchase flowers for the funerals of any minister, or official of the union. A motion was made and carried to grant privilege to F. W. B. Leagues to organize a League Convention on Saturday night, July 29, at Saratoga Church, with the full support of the Fourth Union meeting.

The reports of the different committees were adopted. A motion was made and carried to send $50 to the Foreign Missions treasurer. A motion was made and carried to pay the treasurer of the union $5 at each union meeting for his services.

Upon completing the business of the union, a standing vote was given to Spring Branch Church and community for the kind hospitality shown this union. The next meeting will be held at Saratoga Church, July 29, 1950.

Believe on Jesus

What must I do if I would be,
From every guilt and sin made free?
Believe on Jesus

His loving grace and it alone,
Can for each sinful act atone.
Believe on Jesus.

A heavy burden on me lay,
I prayed to him, it passed away.
Believe on Jesus.

The day and hour of my release,
I knew a sweet, abiding peace.
O trust in Jesus.

I yield my life, he gives his grace
It is enough in every place,
To trust in Jesus.

His power can guide, and it alone,
My wandering feet till life is done.
I trust in Jesus.

His gentle touch can comfort bring,
And help and strength for any thing.
Depend on Jesus.

His hand can lift the fainting form,
And shield it from life's raging storm.
Just look to Jesus.

Upon his cross our sins he bore,
His love can save forever more.
So look to Jesus.

The altar is a gateway for individuals and families to discover the love of God and dedicate themselves to Him.

same way may I be able to bring back the Saviour's lost sheep. I am nothing and can do nothing, but He Himself will do good to others. This desire is increasing in this heart of mine. May He fulfill it soon."

One day when Mr. Woolsey was unable to go to a village to preach, Gill went and brought his first message alone. I have just heard from Mr. Woolsey that Mr. Gill had such a strong desire to be baptized and that from Mr. Gill's work and testimony, and his progress in the Word of God and spiritual understanding, Mr. Woolsey felt that he ought to be baptized immediately. So they didn't wait but slipped off to the river and Mr. Woolsey baptized Gill. I feel, and Mr. Woolsey also, that Gill has an amazing grasp of the Bible and Spiritual insight, for one who has known the Lord such a short time.

Some of you may say, "But what is there to be so excited about?" Just this, The prayers of the Free Will Baptists at home and in India are going through to God. Our area is in North India, a cold area, noted for its lack of converts. Yet God reached down and used us Free Will Baptists to give the Word and God saved an Indian man, a Sikh, our first convert in North India. Not only that but other missionaries are amazed that a new convert in so few months has read the Bible through in English, and parts of it through several times in English, Urdu, and Punjabi and is already preaching to others. As you can see from this story there is no praise to a mission nor a missionary but to the power of God's Word working in the heart of a man. It looks like Mr. Gill may become the first Indian F. W. B. to be set apart for the ministry of the Gospel.

I might add that Mr. Woolsey has been used of God in leading several people of a Christian caste in a knowledge of Christ and now are ready for baptism. So it looks like we will soon organize our first church in India.

Praise God that Free Will Baptists lifeless dollars are turning into living souls.

Yours in His Faithfulness
Daniel R. Cronk

THE UNPARDONABLE SIN

Mrs. Nat Cox
 Blounts Creek, N. C.

What is this sin against the Holy Ghost? We see that the doctrine of the unpardonable sin arose out of a discourse which Christ gave when the Pharisees had attributed our Lord's miracles of healing to Satanic agency.

The Pharisees knew deep down in their hearts that Jesus was the Messiah; but, due to prejudice and envy, jealousy, and uncalled-for hatred, they refused to acknowledge this truth. On the other hand, they sought always to hinder, and to hold back the masses from believing on the Son of God. To have acknowledged his claims and his Messiahship would have been very embarrassing and most inconvenient to them by doing so. They would have to retract their whole previous career, and this would have put a question mark in the minds of the people as to their good judgment and wisdom. It would have meant that they would have been put at the feet of Jesus to have been taught by him.

Instead, there was nothing left for them to do but to accredit the miracles of healing the blind and dumb man to the works of Satan. They knew deep in their hearts that Satan would not work against those who do not love the Lord. Such will always find some excuse for not serving the Lord in spirit and in truth. And we hear Him cry out: "Whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come" (Matt. 12:32). Read also verse 31 of Matthew, chapter 12.

How do we commit this sin? What members of our body do we use to commit this sin? To speak, a man or a woman uses the tongue, and what a dangerous member this tongue is! It is a very dangerous thing. Read James 3:6, and see what it says about the tongue. It is the member of our body which damns our soul by speaking against the Holy Spirit. That would mean that Christ was in league with the Devil. Think how we do need to watch how we use our tongues.

God's ministers are chosen vessels. They have been set apart to preach His word, therefore they need to be careful at all times as to what they say against God's children. They are to be sure that it is not the Holy Spirit working, before they speak lightly about others, for it is the Devil who leads a person to blaspheme against the Holy Spirit.

WHY IT IS CALLED "THE WHITE HOUSE"

In 1814 when the British marched into Washington, the commander marveled at the beauty of the buildings, especially the house where the President of the United States lived. But the rules of war demanded that government buildings should be destroyed. So it was set on fire, and only four smoke-stained walls were left standing. After a while Congress appropriated $100,000, for rebuilding the President's house, not, however, without strong opposition to spending so much money on it. This amount was soon sued up, and the contractor asked for another $100,000. This time there was much stronger objections by some members of Congress, but that sum was finally voted to complete the work. When this was spent, everything was completed except the redecorating. For this the builder wanted still another large sum. President James Monroe, knowing the strong feeling in Congress against spending any more money on the building, said it was out of the question, and for the building to be painted plain white, inside and out, from top to bottom, as the most economical solution to the problem. This was done, and the result was so pleasing that it has since that time been so painted, and became known as the "White House."

A TESTIMONIAL

We would like to say that we enjoy reading our church paper. Sometime we are made to rejoice, and then again we are made to be sad. But we do thank God for the great work which our churches are doing in the State of Alabama.—R. K. F.

A will of your own will help you to succeed better than the will of a rich relative.

MOSES LED HIS PEOPLE TO GOD

(Lesson for July 9)

Lesson: Exodus 19:16-25; 35: 4, 5, 21.

Golden Text: Exodus 19:5.

I. Heart of the Lesson . . .

1. The book of Exodus opens with the seed of Abraham, the Children of Israel in the land of Egypt. They were brought there by Joseph and settled in Goshen.

The redemption of Israel with its previous affliction and galling yoke was foretold, prophetically, in a vision to the Patriarch Abraham. We find this recorded in Gen. 15:13, 14.

"And He said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years; and also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge; and afterward shall they come out with great substance."

Pharaoh attempted to kill all the male children in Israel by giving command to the midwives to kill all the sons born to the Hebrew women (Exod. 1:16). But the mid-wives were pious and God-fearing women, and did not execute the king's command.

When Pharaoh saw his attempt frustrated, he called upon his own people to commit murder by the wholesale. He charged them to throw every son born to a Hebrew family, into the river Nile. This was a murderous edict; it was wholesale murder in intent. But behind it was the devil. The Lord Jesus Christ called him a murderer.

"He (the devil) was a murderer from the beginning" (John 8:44).

"Surely the wrath of man shall praise Thee; the remainder of wrath shalt Thou restrain" (Ps. 76:10).

We see this beautifully illustrated in the history of the preservation of the child Moses.

The Lord led Moses' mother to hide him at the very place where he knew the king's daughter would come to bathe.

The Lord led the king's daughter to come at the very time the child was placed there.

The Lord caused the king's daughter to be moved with compassion toward the child, by causing the babe to cry.

The Lord caused the sister of Moses to suggest his own mother for a nurse of the child, and moved upon the king's daughter to spare the child and to adopt him as her son. What a marvelous chain of providence!

Here we see God using and restraining the wrath of man. He used the king's wrath to drive the mother of Moses to hide him; He used the compassion of Pharaoh's daughter to restrain the king's wrath, which if unhindered would have meant Moses' death. Surely, we have a wonderful God—wonderful for counsel, wisdom and might!

4. Israel's deliverance through the Red Sea at the hand of Moses is a spiritual picture, a typical picture of the deliverance of the believer from the power of sin and the world. The Red Sea was the border of Egypt; it marked the dividing line between Egypt and the wilderness. The Red Sea stood before Israel. Their deliverance came by an opening through it. The path through it was Divinely made. It was made by Moses extending the rod in his hand over the sea (Exod. 14:16, 21). The rod is the symbol of authority and power.

Manna was one of the every good and perfect gifts which came from above. Israel spoke against God; they said, "Can God furnish a table in the wilderness? * * Can he provide flesh for His people?" (Ps. 78: 19, 20). This showed their evil heart of unbelief. God said to Moses, "I have heard the murmurings of the Children of Israel." Some people murmur with their mouths so full that they can hardly express their murmurings. How unthankful and dissatisfied man is! Most blessed of all His creatures and yet the most ungrateful!—Selected to Moses, but through Moses he revealed his attributes and his will to Israel. In a day when the former Hebrew slaves had no Bible and no other books, Moses became the great medium of revelation to the Children of Israel. As our lesson title says, he led them to God. He helped them to understand the character of the true God. While in Egypt, many of the people had turned aside to other gods (Josh. 24:14). Moses helped the people to know the Lord as a holy and jealous God who required holiness of his people (19:6) and their undivided allegiance and who will not approve of worship of himself thru any likeness or image—Arnold's Commentary.

6. Not only did God reveal himself

7. The location of Mount Sinai has been commented upon by F. B. Meyer as follows: "No spot on earth, it has been affirmed, combines in a more remarkable manner the conditions of commanding height and of a plane in which the sights and sounds described here could reach the assemblage of two million souls. 'That such a plain should exist at all in such a place,' says Dean Stanley, 'is so remarkable a coincidence with the sacred narrative as to furnish a strong internal argument, not merely of this being the actual scene of the giving of the law, but of its having been described by an eye-witness. All the surroundings suit the narrative. The awful and lengthened approach, as to some natural sanctuary, the long retiring sweep of the plain, enabling the people to remove and stand afar off, the cliff rising like a hugh altar, and visible from end to end of the whole plain.'"

8. Here is a pattern for the giving of God's people. Having had declared to them the need as it exists, that which is upon the heart of God and which has been communicated to one of His servants is set before the people of God. Then, in answer to that information, because of all that God has done, because of His grace, His love, His provision, God's people should gladly and spontaneously and generally meet the need. To get all the blessings that God has for us in our giving, we should follow such a pattern. See Exodus 35:4-21.—Moody Monthly.

Free Will Baptists Erect Modern Buildings

All over the country Free Will Baptists are erecting modern churches to take the place of the little churches of the past, which served their purpose in a most wonderful way, but must now give way to progress. Not only are new and finer places of worship being built, but educational buildings are being erected to care for the expanding program of Sunday school and youth activities, and homes are being built for pastor's to live in. Many of the smaller churches in the rural sections are adding Sunday school rooms to their church buildings, in units of two or more class rooms. Shown on this page are a number of the more modern churches erected during the past few years, together with one picture that shows a building program in progress—the erection of a modern educational building, to house the Sunday school and Free Will Baptists Leagues of a growing city church. Also there is the picture of a new parsonage.

Scene during construction of Religious Education Building at Saint Mary's F. W. B. Church in New Bern, North Carolina. This building has been completed at a cost of around $50,000.00 and is now being used by the S. S. and Free Will Baptist League. The scene is typical of hundred of building operations among Free Will Baptist during recent years verse eight is very interesting; "sound speech that cannot be condemned, that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you." Perhaps one of the features that Christians have neglected more than anything else is the quality of sound speech. No Christian has a right to speak in a sloven fashion. You and I are not judged only by what we say but the way we say it. There is no suggestion that we should be occupied with the grandeur of language merely for its own sake, for this is apt to build us up in pride. On the contrary, let us remember that the Bible, which the simplest Christian takes in his hand is the greatest classic in all literature. The excellency of the language of God's Book is unsurpassed, and a Christian who will read his Bible will adopt a mood of expression which will do honor to the Lord whom he follows. I have known men who have never gone beyond grammar school, some of them from the very lowest type, brought to know the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour and became so attached to His wonderful Book that its transforming power was not only noticed in their life but in their language. As the years rolled on these men became able ministers of the Word in language and faithfulness as if they had been to the finest university. The Scripture itself says, "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." God's holy Book to me is one of the greatest inspirations toward an elegance of language and phraseology that will do honor to the Lord Jesus. We often find ungodly men foulmouthed and uncouth but in the Christian realm our language should always be becoming. May I say that any Christian who in any way takes the name of the Lord in vain and continues to use pet by-words is a disgrace to the Christian profession and a dishonor to his Master. We should do our utmost to avoid uncouth language, or slang, or anything that relates to unsound

A WONDERFUL COMMUNION SERVICE

Mrs. Steve Bush

The Patmos Free Will Baptist Church held its annual communion service on Saturday night, June 10, with more church members present than we have had in many years. It is gratifying to report that all of the deacons were present for this sacred service, along with some visitors whom we were glad to have with us.

Following the message from our pastor, Rev. C. R. Houston, our oldest deacon, Brother W. B. Griffin, prepared the bread and the wine for the celebration of the Lord's Supper. After the bread and the wine were taken by each Christian present, the members assembled for the service of washing the saints' feet. While this was being observed, Mrs. Sally Woodard led the group in some of the old songs of praise. It brought us closer to the Lord. Not only does the ordinance of washing the saints' feet bring us close to Christ, but also it brings us closer as church members.

speech as being unworthy of the lips of a follower of Christ.

Listen Christian, it is our business to live a victorious Christian life, using the art of Christian living. This can not be done without the keen consciousness of Christ in our lives day by day and moment by moment. Unsaved friend, our heart goes out in deep sympathy for you to know the condition that exists between you and a Holy, loving God. He wants to save you ten thousand times more than you want to be saved. Will you be aroused to see your condition, your need of the Saviour and extend to Him the invitation to come in and settle the sin question with His own blood that was given on Calvary?

Thy Will Be Done

Thy will, O God, is best,
By Thee the victory's won,
In Thy strong will we find our rest,
Thy will, O God, be done.

Thy will, O God, is strong,
Resist Thy power can none,
Thy throne is raised above all wrong,
Thy will, O God, be done.

Thy will, O God, is law,
Thy word through worlds hath run,
Teach us to say with holy awe,
Thy will, O God, be done.

Thy will, O God, is love,
Thou art our shield and sun,
In earth below, in heaven above,
Thy will, O God, be done.

Thy will, O God, is life,
Thy life and ours is one,
Be Thou our master in the strife,
Until Thy will is done.

Auxiliary of St. Mary's Grove Holds Meeting

Saint Mary's Grove Auxiliary held its regular meeting on Thursday night, June 8, in the home of Mrs. Hilda Lowrey, with 28 members present. She directed the program, the theme being: "Advancing with Christ through Soul Winning." Many helpful thoughts were brought out in the discussion of the duties of the auxiliary members as soul winners, and also concerning the danger of neglecting our duties as Christians.

Our next meeting will be held with Mrs. Eula Coates. The closing prayer was offered for the success of our auxiliary. We are hoping that it will become more and more spiritual and that it will grow more and more in grace and usefulness for the cause of righteousness in the world.

Why Offer a Four Year Curriculum and A. B. Degree in F. W. B. Bible College

J. P. Barrow,
3609 Richland Ave.,
Nashville, Tenn.

We, the school family, have been making the expansion of our institution a matter of prayer for several years. This theme was the burden of our prayer and discussion in the last faculty meeting before the 1950 Bible Conference. We here agreed that both a four years' prep school program and a four years' Bible College curriculum were essential to meet the needs of our Free Will Baptist right now. In view of the fact, however, that only one branch of this expansion could likely be achieved at present, it was decided that the prep school idea should be held in abeyance for the present; and that we advise the move that several of our board members were in sympathy with; namely, the adding on of two more years to our present curriculum and the awarding of the B. A. degree. The board in its 1950 session took a forward step by authorizing the administration to make this expansion move. Therefore we now offer a four years' course awarding the B. A. degree with a Bible major.

Many of our students need the training offered in this four years' course. Even though nearly all of our graduates feel that the most profitable two years of their lives are those spent here in our college, they do not feel that they have a sufficiency to meet the demands upon the field. Most of them have from time to time expressed a desire to return for the two years that were not offered when they left. Four returned for the third year last term and are planning to come back for their B. A. degrees next year. Several who have taken one year or more in other schools in addition to the two years formerly offered are coming back to finish the four years' course and receive the B. A. degree next year because they are aware of the need of further training in our own school.

We have no other institution in which students may be prepared for Christian service beyond our former two years' course. This should impel all interested Free Will Baptist into a sufficiently strong desire to give them an active voice in furthering sentiment favoring this recently added two years' work. Many lay workers both urban and rural have completed a four to six years' course of study beyond high school to enable them to carry on in the field of their secular duties. Even though many of these have been patient and considerate as they have served as assistants to our ministers who have had two years or less, beyond High School, they are keenly aware of the fact that their spiritual leaders lack that in training that would make them and their service reach a maximum height in success. Thus our work is hindered, not because we do not have intelligent lay workers, but because our spiritual leaders have not had the Biblical or Theological training to bring them up to the standards that are called upon to set. II Timothy 2:2, "And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also" and II Timothy 2:15 "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." One must study before he can teach. Many of our spiritual leaders have made a failure because they are ignorant of the simple teaching of God's Holy Word. If your child is going to study Geometry, you want him to have a teacher who understands the science of geometry, especially its fundamentals and how to apply these fundamentals. If he is going to study chemistry, you don't want him to sit under some one that is ignorant of the fact that several certain elements exist and that under certain influences they react certain ways. You want him to study under some one familiar with laws governing these reactions so he can correctly inform your child that he may not handle these with an unskilled hand but that with a skilled hand he may become a successful chemist. Now every Free Will Baptist should have correct Biblical teaching because every Christian needs this. Your minister is your spiritual teacher. Teacher of teachers, if you please. Your spiritual teaching is the most important teaching in the universe because it is more permanent. If a chemist makes a major mistake he may blow up something, kill several people and so on, but that isn't nearly so important as wrong spiritual teaching. Those who lose this physical life if Christians, will do that only to enter that blissful state that Paul desired. Phil. 1:23 "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better:" Luke 12:4-5 "And I say unto you my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him." Matt. 6:33 "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 16:26 "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Whereas, those who lose the life beyond this stage of existence as a result of wrong spiritual teaching have an eternity of woe to suffer. This being true, we should put forth more effort, which can be done in this four year course, to give correct spiritual instructions.

In many other denominations four years of work leading to a baccalaureate degree are being offered. This is needed to sufficiently train men to give them an adequate back-ground preparatory to special training in law, medicine, the various fields of education, the ministry, etc. These denominations have graduate schools for their men to further their training in the specialized field of their needs. Since we are not, at the present able to do that, we can offer approximately two years each in secular studies, such as English, science, history, Greek, education, etc., and give the remainder two years to Bible and kindred subjects. By kindred subjects I mean Evangelism, Bible doctrine, archeology, theology, etc. We must of necessity make this four years' program a minimum. II Timothy 1:13 "Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." I Timothy 4:1 "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils;" Many religious zealots today who, with the passing days, are increasing with knowledge and ability to confound the teachings of the Saints of God, are spending ten to twelve years in Institutions that once rang clear with the truth of God but are now sold over to the Devil. Men of this caliber can put our inadequately trained orthodox men to shame in argument. Some of our prospective ministers have been going to these schools because we do not have a school that meets their needs, our needs, if you please.

"During the whole six years that I have been here in our school I have heard the cry of many voices who ask for a program leading to a B. A. degree. These voices have come from every nook and corner where there is to be found a Free Will Baptist who is sufficiently aware of the crying need of our young people.

There is great danger in not having at least a four year curriculum. I feel that no one can appreciate more than I the need of more training than our own schools have offered up to now. When I had completed the course of study the best institution we

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

"NOT SICK BUT BUSY"

A friend in Pitt County said, "I was afraid that you were sick, when we missed NOTES AND QUOTES." No, sister, I was not sick, but busy, doing evangelistic service and building Sunday School class rooms at Ruth's Chapel.

To one and all: Do not be surprised, nor think me sick, if NOTES AND QUOTES should cease at anytime to go forward. There is an end to all material things. We thank the Lord for our friends who have sent us so many kind and encouraging words during the past.

A WORD FROM ELDER HEARRON

Sometime back we received a letter from Elder W. R. Hearron, 202 E. Tulsa, Sulphur, Oklahoma, which we appreciate very much. Quote: "Dear Brother Griffin, we have read your good articles for years . . . and respect your views." Thank you, Brother Hearron. Such words, as given by you, are comforting in the face of so much criticism in a world like we live in today.

CEDAR ISLAND MEETING

We have just booked a meeting to begin at the Free Will Baptist church in Cedar Island, Carteret County. It will begin on Monday night, after the fourth Sunday in July, and will go through the fifth Sunday. Pray for us in the work of our Master.

LET ME HEAR FROM YOU

To my many friends who have written to me in the past and new ones who read, if you would like for NOTES AND QUOTES to continue to be published in the columns of the Baptist, let me know by dropping me a card or a letter saying as much. I am now 71 years of age and am too busy to throw away my time. If people read my writings and are helped thereby, I shall be happy to continue to write as long as I am able.

A PECULIAR SITUATION

A number of churches without pastors and a goodly number of preachers without a pastorate. What is wrong?

BAPTISM OF THE HOLY GHOST

The question came to me sometime ago regarding the "baptism of the Holy Ghost." As I am planning to write a book on the subject, and have already a part of the manuscript prepared, I shall not enter into the discussion. Perhaps the one asking the question would take issue with me if I

Alumni of F. W. B. Bible College Hold Good Meeting

Plans Set Up for Student Loan Fund

The meeting of the Alumni Association of the F. W. B. C., which was held at the Band W. Cafeteria in Nashville, Tennessee, April 26, was a grand success from every point of view. This was the second annual meeting of the group, and it was attended by thirty graduates, six faculty members, and guests of honor, members of the 1950 graduating class, twelve in number.

Following the luncheon, at which the president, J. Reford Wilson, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, presided as toastmaster, a short program of the group and special singing were enjoyed by all present.

The business session was marked by a spirit of enthusiasm, and definite goals and objectives were set by the group. Perhaps the most far-reaching enactment was the adoption of a resolution calling for a Student Loan fund to be set in operation, as soon as finances became available. A goal of one thousand dollars has been set for this purpose, and to be reached by December 31, 1950. A committee to formulate this program, and to begin to the making of loans was elected, consisting of the following persons:

D. C. Dodd, Tennessee
Homer Willis, Michigan
Adam Scott, Tennessee

The officers who were elected for the coming year are as follows:

J. Reford Wilson, Pres., Okla.
Adam Scott, Vice-President, Tennessee
Mrs. D. C. Dodd, Secretary-Treasurer, Tenn.
Miss Gertrude Bowe, Asst. Secy., Missouri
The executive Committee consists of the following members:

D. C. Dodd, Tennessee
Rashie Kennedy, North Carolina
Adam Scott, Tennessee
Luther Gibson, Mississippi
Everett Hellard, Michigan

were to tell her what the Baptism is. I will only quote some Scriptures and leave it for the inquiring one to study.

"I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire" (Matt. 3:11). So Christ is the administrator—"He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost." "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me . . ." (Acts 1:8).

Christ promised the power in the sending of the Holy Ghost. It is not our power, but His: we do not get the power but the power gets us, as we yield our all unto Him.

"For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one body" (I Cor. 12:13).

So, according to Paul, every true believer, every born again child of God, is Baptized into one body by the Spirit.

NOTICE!

I am in a position to preach in the afternoons of the First and Third Sundays, provided I can get such work, in Carteret County or near by, Morehead City, N. C. Should any church desire my service, you can write me at 1115 Evans Street, Morehead City, N. C.

➤ The Mission of the Church ◀

Please turn to Matthew 28:19 and 20 and read Christ's last charge to His Apostles. It was His last appointment with them on earth, and He delivered to them a brief but very definite command. It was a clear outline of their responsibility in His church. Only recently three of them had heard the Father's voice admonishing them to heed the Son's words. Now the Son's final charge comes to them in the form of a direct commandment to evangelize the world, and He couples with it a promise to be with them unto the end of the world.

It is not the purpose of this article to point out the advantages and benefits springing forth out of evangelization, but to insist that the true mission of the Church of Christ is definitely evangelistic in its nature and aim.

Immediately after the fulfillment of Christ's promise to the disciples that they should be endued with power from on high, they went out on the day of Pentecost and launched the tremendous and long-range evangelistic program of the church. So mightily did the Holy Spirit move and use them that three thousand souls were won to Christ that day in the city of Jerusalem, filled as it was with uncertainty and confusion.

During the days of the persecution of the saints, following closely upon the day of Pentecost, the efforts of the church were very definitely evangelistic. God called Paul and Barnabas, and the church at Antioch ordained them, for this very purpose (Acts 13). Wherever the persecuted disciples went, they preached Christ to the men as the Son of God and the Saviour of men. But believers were instructed also as to the true relationship of man to man, and man to God. Neither the Gospels nor the Epistles of the New Testament leave us in darkness nor doubt as to the correct attitude and proper conduct of Christian living. Along with the evangelistic tenor of New Testament teaching, there is also a clear presentation of Christianity in action.

Rev. J. E. Wooten
615 South Lee St.
Ayden, North Carolina

So it has been throughout the ages of the history of the church. The church has made itself felt as a force of righteousness in proportion to its zeal in the great work of evangelization. We do not set forth and advocate a Revivalistic Theology as the sole pattern for the church program. That would leave the church as unbalanced in its activities as a steam engine with one weight of its governor missing. But the spirit of evangelism must be the vitalizing force back of its every activity, if the church would fill its divine mission in the world.

Neither is the church to join itself to any organized political or economic group to regulate governmental affairs, or to fraternal organizations, which are not its own auxiliaries and under its own personal supervision. The true church is distinctly the body of Christ. He said, "My kingdom is not of this world" (John 18:36). Government departments appear to be as full of unprincipled men as the nests of the forest are of young life, and worldly societies seem to be bulging with efforts to promote the works of unrighteousness. It is the church which must remedy these conditions by producing men and women of character and wholesome ideals to replace those in responsible positions who are prompted and governed by unscrupulous selfishness and fantastic ideologies.

There is a wide-spread idea among many intelligent people that men and women are brought into relationship with Christ through and by the operation of favorable and easy political and economic machinery. A hand-out, or what appears to the individual to be an equal opportunity with others to obtain the necessities of life, invites personal gratification and leaves few openings for outbursts of wrath occasioned by oppression and insult. But does appeasement through favors shown give assurance of regeneration? Make the test if you would find the answer. It has been made on a national scale many times in recent years. "Salvation is of the Lord" (Jonah 2:9).

Assurance of justice and economic equality bring satisfaction and ease of mind, and thereby provide an easy and friendly approach to most individuals. But in order to win the soul for Christ the messenger must deliver the divinely inspired message. There is something in man, even though he does not recognize and understand it, that responds to the call of His Maker. Man alone cannot call forth that response from his neighbor, because he has nothing to offer more than the other already possesses. The Holy Spirit opens the receptive heart to receive the truth when it is presented. Herein lie the opportunity and task of the church through earnest efforts in evangelism.

Apparently there is a strong notion among the Protestant churches today that evangelism has no definite place any longer in the church program. Individual revivalists have become active recently, and in some instances seemingly have accomplished marvelous tasks. But this is not enough; the church needs to renew its evangelistic efforts, and place emphasis on salvation through faith in Christ.

There are said to be more than three hundred different religious bodies in the United States. A great majority of these are of the Protestant faith. The leaders of some of the larger bodies have well-nigh discontinued their efforts in evangelism, and are now emphasizing the social gospel notion. They teach that religion must express itself in action, and prove its character through its ability to minister to the needs of men. Good! The social gospel idea is an essential factor in the teaching of true religion when it is used in coordination with and subservient to the true Gospel of Christ, and placed

AUGUST 7-12 TO BE BIG WEEK AT CRAGMONT

The week of August 7-12 will be a big week for Cragmont Assembly, Inc., this year. The reason? Rev. Paul Ketteiman, who is preaching in South Carolina now, is coming with about twenty-five young people to invade our Assembly Grounds that week. I have been informed also that about fifteen fine young people from West Virginia are planning to attend that week. Here in North Carolina, Rev. R. P. Harris announces that Cragmont Assembly now has a bus of its very own. The bus will be used the week of August 7-12 to take young people from all points listed on our schedule below, beginning in the city of New Bern, N. C. All who are interested in riding the bus will meet it at one of the points mentioned. The price for the round trip is ten dollars per person. (If this price is not correct, I'll let you know.) Registration fees are the same this year as they were last year as follows:

Registration fee, $2.00.

THE PORTSMOUTH CHURCH MOVING FORWARD

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Portsmouth is still in business for the Lord, under the leader ship of the Rev. J. A. Alexander of Norfolk. Bro. Alexander and his good wife are doing a good work here. The work is moving along nicely. Those of you that know these good people, remember that they are an elderly couple, and anxious to serve in any way they can.

Bro. Alexander is a good preacher, a good mixer, and a man who loves the Lord. He likes to be about the Lord's business. He preaches the old-time gospel, in the old-fashion way. The church should enjoy a long spiritual life with the leadership of this splendid man of God. Bro. Alexander has accepted full time work as pastor of the church.

I hope to have a picture of the church in the Baptist in the near future. Look for it, and in this way you will have first hand information on the progress that is being made, and also you can see where your gifts have gone.

The construction of the building is under the watchful eye of John G. Flowers. He and his family were active members of the church at New Bern before coming to Portsmouth. Along with Bro. Flowers, all labor is being done free of charge to the church. At this time the four walls are up, window frames in, and most of the weather boarding is on the walls. The carpenters are ready to begin with the roof, and put the paper on the walls. I understand that the building and what material that is on the lot up to this time has been paid for. The building is badly in need of the roof at this time, as some of the material has been exposed for some time.

Most of us know what happens to lumber when it is exposed to the weather for a period of time, especially church material. It seems that old Satan works on the churches full time, both on people and buildings.

The roof is going to be rather expensive, and at this time the building fund treasury is very low. The pastor, church, and I will appreciate any donations that you may feel led to send to help carry this work on in the name of the One who gave his life on the cross that we may have life everlasting.

As Dad said on his last visit with this church, "The harvest is white in and around Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Newport News." The Norfolk church has already launched out in the field of harvest under the leadership of the Rev. W. A. Hales. Won't you ask the Lord what you should do about helping the Portsmouth church, and also the church at Newport News, to take its place in the field of harvest of Souls for Christ our Lord, and Savior?

Thanking every one for past and future donations to the church, I remain,

Stanley H. Everett,
424 Barclay Ave.
Portsmouth, Va.

THE ONLY THING THAT COUNTS

"Fame," said Horace Greely, "is a vapor. Popularity is an accident. Riches take wings. Those who cheer today will curse tomorrow. Only one thing endures—character!" How little else it is that matters. For, in a way, our world is a college, events our teachers, happiness the graduating point and character the diploma God gives to man.

PASTORAL ANNOUNCEMENT

This is to advise that I shall be available for pastoral work for another year. I shall also be open for holding revival meetings this summer and during the fall months. Those interested in securing my services, either for revivals or for pastoral work, are requested to write or to get in touch with me at the following address:

N. C. STATE LEAGUE CONVENTION

The North Carolina State League Convention convened in its annual session with the Kenly Church, July 3, 4, 1950. Oscar Webster, the president, presided over the convention in a good way. The attendance of delegates, ministers, League directors and visiting friends was all that could be expected, in view of the fact that in the tobacco belt of eastern Carolina a great many of the people are busy with housing the tobacco crop.

The program of special music which was rendered by the young Leaguers was splendid and greatly appreciated by those attending the convention. The president's message impressed the Leaguers to go forward in every phase of the League work for the glory of God. The president challenged the youth of the church to move forward for the cause of Christ and the enlistment of other young people in the F. W. B. Leagues.

Rev. R. B. Crawford's timely message on "Stewardship" was gladly received, and much appreciated by not only the Leaguers, but also by the entire congregation. He stressed the need of the Leaguers making a full surrender of their life to God, and to render loyal Christian service to Christ.

Mr. Fountain Taylor, treasurer of Cragmont, gave a good report of the financial condition of that institution. He emphasized the need of more and systematic giving, on the part of all of the churches, Leagues and Sunday Schools for the further development of the Assembly, and the extended opportunities of its usefulness to the denomination. Mrs. N. E. Harris, field representative, also spoke of the work at Cragmont, and she urged the Leaguers to go back home and to boost the work of the Assembly. She urged pastors, and lay leaders of the churches to raise more money during the coming year for Cragmont.

Rev. R. P. Harris spoke of a plan which some of the leaders of the Leagues of the State concerning the publication of a monthly magazine for the leagues of the State. The discussion of this matter was deferred until the afternoon session. Brother David Wooten spoke in the behalf of Rev. L. C. Johnson, who could not be present for the convention. His message was timely and inspirational. He challenged the Leaguers to be true stewards of their time, talents, and religious activities. Brother Wooten urged the Leaguers to establish the system of tithing in all of their leagues.

The Kenly Church and community entertained at the noon hour the large crowd of people with a bountiful dinner, cold drinks, and ice water. The fellowship was great among old friends, ministers, delegates, and Leaguers and visitors.

The afternoon session was featured with special music by Rev. J. Albert Harris and others. Several special numbers were rendered beautifully and impressively. The Reverend Glenn of Durham brought a timely message to the youth. He emphasized, by appropriate illustrations, the need of proper use of one's time, means and talents for the Lord. He pointed out to the Leaguers that they are to go forth, using time and talents for the Lord in such a way as to draw other young people into the League work.

A glowing report was given of the Nation-wide League Conference, which had just recently convened with the church in Norfolk, Virginia. This report was received with great interest by Leaguers, ministers, visitors and friends at the convention. The young man who gave this report is a member of the Norfolk church, and an enthusiastic worker among the young people of that church.

On the whole, the convention showed that the Leagues of the State are making progress in their various activities of the League work, and that much interest is being shown on the part of the youth of the church to go forward for the cause of Christ, and to enlist during the coming year a great many more of the young people of the church in the League work. The interest taken by the older people in this convention was representative of much interest that is being shown in a great many of the local churches by the adult members. The next annual convention bids fair to go beyond this one, if the inspiration and zeal of the young Leaguers is taken back home and put into practice during the coming months.

IN MEMORIAM

This is written in loving memory of my husband who passed away September 29, 1949.
Today brings sad memories of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of you today are those who loved you best.
Those years, almost thirty one, when we were together,
Oh how the days are changed now that we're not together.

I never thought your death so near,

Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting of farewell.

There is a vacant place in my home,
A lonely widow left alone;
But I'm praying each day that I
May meet you in glory some day.
Written by his widow, Mrs. Pearl Sutton,
La Grange, N. C., Route 3.

THE REAL TEST

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man, but for every hundred who can "take it on the chin," there is only one who can really survive prosperity.

"TOMORROW'S CHURCH DEPENDS UPON TODAY'S INTERMEDIATES"

Mrs. Melvin Bingham, Second Vice-Pres.
Woman's National Auxiliary Convention
1922 N. Lewis Street
Tulsa, Oklahoma

Our churches will grow as surely as they guide their young people into places of responsibility. Give your young people a chance to win!

In this world of uncertainties, it requires a lot of well planned activities to reach and hold Intermediates. Provide wholesome activities, and at the same time give emphasis to the spiritual side of life. In so doing, we hold the Intermediates for the Lord. Spend much time in prayer for your Intermediates of your church. Adopt a theme to work to, for example, "It Can Be Done." Then go to work and reach intermediate boys and girls for our Christ. Win them, train them and keep them.

Planning Your Program

Re-arrange your program each time that you meet, planning them far in advance. Boys and girls crave a change and a pleasant surprise.

Organize a young people's visitation program. Meet at the church and visit in the homes of shut-ins. Spend at least twenty minutes in each home. Sing gospel hymns and have a scripture reading, prayer and a brief testimony from each of your young people. The testimony of a young person can soften the hardest heart. After the visitation, return to the church and have a short period of fellowship and refreshments.

Study the Word

The one hundred and tenth Psalm is very fitting when studying about young people. When we are thinking of how Jesus counts on His young people, we see He used this Psalm in His controversies with Jewish theologians and politicians on the last day of His public appearance (see Matt. 22: 41-45) and compare (Mark 12:35-37, Luke 20:41-44.) He did it to show how confused and mistaken they were in their ideas about Christ. Peter quoted it in his Pentecost sermon to explain that Jesus, now sitting at God's right hand, sent the Holy Spirit for power in the Christian enterprise. Hebrews 1:13 uses it to show the superiority of the Son of God to all the angels. It is used elsewhere in Hebrews.

The third verse emphasizes especially the reliance of the conquering King upon "His Youth." Here we compare Peter's quoting on Pentecost from Joel to the effect that, when the Spirit is poured forth upon all flesh, your sons and your daughters shall prophesy. Young men shall see visions for inspiration, planning and leadership, while old men shall dream dreams, to promote the age-long work of God.

"A Challenge to Leaders"

Everywhere we see Nature bursting forth with new life. Flowers are blooming, trees are showing their beautiful greenleaves. The same with our youth, there is new life. Shall we cultivate it or let it die? Arise—Awake—Free Will Baptist Youth Leaders! God is calling, not later but now! Do you hear Him in the whispering breezes? Bestirre yourselves, you who work with our youth who themselves are throbbing and tingling with new life! Let us make this the most glorious year we've ever experienced, with our youth for the name of Christ. By uniting our efforts and certain definite aims, striving together, we will be able to accomplish great things. It can be done.

"Mission Minded Youth"

We must teach our youth to be "Mission minded" if we expect a mission minded church of Tomorrow. Youth needs missions. Missions need youth. Let us give missions to youth. Lives of pioneer missionaries as well as experiences of missionaries on mission fields today should be used in teaching our youth. Provide Missionary periodicals and books for the young people to read. Ask yourselves these questions and answer them by training today's Intermediates for tomorrow's church.

Youth awaits leadership. Who will provide that leadership?

Youth dreams. Who will guide his dreams? Youth Dares. Who will lead to dare the right?

Youth Does. Who will lead him to do right? Youth seeks a rich full life. Where will he find such a life?

Youth must be devoted to something.

Where will he find something worthy of his devotion?

Cragmont Assembly News

The Intermediates and young people along with a few Juniors of the Free Will Baptist churches of Eastern North Carolina met at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, N. C., June 19-24, under the direction of the Rev. R. B. Crawford, Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, N. C.

Each day there was an interesting worship period at 9:00 o'clock, and classes began at 9:15. Mr. Crawford taught the seniors the course in "Personal Evangelism." He emphasized the purpose and value of personal soul-winning. Emphasis was directed to scripture memorizing. He also taught the courses in "Stewardship" and "Missions." In these courses he emphasized that we are to be good stewards of God; and, in the mission class, he said if we did not receive the call to the mission field, we should give of our prayers and means.

J. B. Narron taught the book of "Acts" to the class of intermediates. He emphasized the forgiveness of sins and the power of the Holy Spirit and that the book of Acts was a record of the early church. There was also a class in Missions with emphasis on the call of Christ to preach the gospel to the whole world.

Billy Morris taught the course in Stewardship, and the F. W. B. League Administration. He taught the course in Personal Soul-winning, with emphasis on knowledge of scripture plus zeal. Mrs. Rashie Kennedy taught the juniors the Story Hour, and Handcraft.

There was supervised recreation of Bible Baseball; a tour to Black Mountain, Ridgecrest, Montreat, and Blue Ridge; and Mountain climbing at Cragmont.

We had as our guest the last night three returned missionaries from Portugal who sang and gave their testimonies.

The most inspiring service was held each evening at 8:00 o'clock. Five boys, Eugene Wadell, C. H. Overman, Bobby Jackson, Billy Morris, and J. B. Narron did the preaching at these services. There was much inspirational singing of hymns and choruses. There were periods of testimonies, and by the last service all had testified to the saving of their souls and the love of God in their hearts. During the week there was an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. There were a large number of young people who made their profession of faith in the Lord Jesus as their Saviour. At the last service the young people became so concerned for the souls that they went to their rooms to pray definitely that God would save them that night. God answered prayer. The Holy Spirit led the young people again to group in the chapel. Here requests for prayer were made and those that were saved gave their testimonies. Below are few of the testimonies that the young people gave:

"I am thankful I came to Cragmont because I came as a sinner but I am going home as a Christian. I am thankful for the friend that won me to Christ."

"I am grateful for the wonderful opportunity of spending a week at Cragmont. I want to be worthy of my stay. I want the Lord to bring me back next year. I want to thank the Lord for the privilege of meeting all the Christians."

"I want to thank the Lord for the wonderful things that he has given us. Being in His mighty service, seeing people saved, has lifted me up in the spirit of love. I will always cherish Cragmont as one of the dearest treasures of my memory."

"I learned a lot this week and if God be my helper I shall go back home and put it into practice."

"Infants are more intelligent than we realize," says a doctor. That's right, Doc; look how they yell the moment they see what a world they are in.

Fremont, North Carolina

We wish to let the readers of the Baptist paper know how the Fremont F. W. B. Church is progressing. We do not have the time or space to give all of the accomplishments that have been made in our church since last October. This church is growing in numbers and also in spirituality. Rev. M. L. Tyndall is our pastor, and he has been doing splendid work every since he has been with us. The work is still progressing in a good way.

It is simply wonderful when we think of what has been done since last October. We are hoping that the church will soon be able to do many things that are needed to be done. We want to be able to support all of the programs of our work. When Brother Tyndall came to be our pastor, the church was not able to support him, but in less than a year now the church has voted to go on half-time service. It has stipulated a salary for Brother Tyndall. There were but few people attending services when he came to pastor the church. But now we are having a splendid congregation of people for our services each Sunday. Approximately, there have been taken into the church 60 new members since last fall. God has wonderfully blessed Brother Tyndall and our church, and He is still blessing us.

We are asking the prayers of all Christian people that our work here will be for the glory of God. We are sure that Brother Tyndall will appreciate your prayers offered to God for him and the church. There is nothing impossible with God. Some tried to discourage Brother Tyndall, when he accepted the work, but he said, "God is able, and we are to trust him."

Georgia Bible Conference a Success

In accordance with plans and courtesies extended the writer of this article, the Free Will Baptist Bible Conference and Ministers Institute, held recently at Mt. Bethel Youth Camp, Ashburn, Georgia, was in every way a success.

We had ministers from practically all sections of the state, and of different associations who are progressive, or who aspire to be progressive, present for the conference. While in session the writer, as director, felt divinely inspired to organize, or call for a Ministers' Association to be composed of ministers who are orthodox and loyal to the teachings of the Free Will Baptist Church, upon such impulse, the effort was put forth which met with unanimous consent, and the first Ministers' Association for ministers of Georgia Free Will Baptists was organized.

Rev. Thos. B. Mellette, Hilton, Ga., was chosen moderator; Rev. K. V. Shutes, Camilla, Ga., assistant moderator; Rev. E. C. Morris, Tifton, Ga., was chosen secretary-treasurer.

This Ministerial Association has for its objects; (1) the creation of greater fellowship by cementing the ministers and laity together; (2) to stimulate a greater zeal for missions and Christian Education for the furtherance of the gospel; (3) the promoting of all phases of church activities at home and everywhere; (4) to sponsor the annual meeting of the Free Will Baptist Bible Conference in Georgia for the ministers and the laity.

The sponsors of the Bible conference recently held at the above mentioned camp are grateful to the head official of the National Bible School of Nashville, Tenn., for the courtesy of the presence of Dr. J. P. Barrow, as representative of the National F. W. B. Bible College and instructor who gave lectures in the Mt. Bethel Bible Conference. Dr. Barrow was instructor in Church and Bible Doctrine.

Rev. E. C. Morris, promotional secretary of the Georgia State Association, gave the lectures on Church History of the Free Will Baptist church movement, etc.

The writer, who for many years taught in the Zion Bible School, lectured on Christian Education.

A course in Evangelism will be added next year and continually there-after in the Bible Conference and Institute.

The spirit and fellowship was enjoyed by all and everyone felt the leadership of the Holy Spirit. Surely God is leading and blessing this movement for a greater missionary cause in Georgia and everywhere.

T. B. Mellette, Hilton, Ga.

The funny thing about your dreams is that you have to stay awake to make them come true.—Martin Vanbee.

WASH ME

Veda Group

"Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow," sang Gladys in clear, sweet voice. She often sang for her grandfather, and he especially loved the hymns that he had heard over and over again, and that would always hold beauty and fine meaning for him.

He often sat silent while she sang for him one number after another, sometimes expressing her own longing, her own conviction, her own aspirations, in the songs she chose to sing for the grandfather she loved so dearly.

Now he stirred, and she looked at him expectantly. Any comment of his was so apt to be well worth heeding.

"Ever think much about what it means—washing?" he asked slowly.

"Well, it means—getting clean, scrubbing the dirt off—I suppose," she answered.

"Yes," agreed Grandfather, "that's exactly what it means; and I'm glad you used the word scrub, because scrubbing is what it takes to get some of our faults washed out of our nature. It's surprising how quickly they can get ground in, too—and then it's work—water, and soap, and scrubbing, it takes, to get the black out."

Gladys flushed. Just what was Grandfather driving at? Had Grandfather noticed a growing carelessness in her use of some doubtful words lately? Had he?

Her flush deepened. Her mind ran back quickly to the first time she had let those words slip into use. She knew well, deep in the heart and mind of her, just when it began. Yet—why, it surely could not have been a year ago—but she knew it was.

"It's nice to think of soft, warm, soapy water," Grandfather went on, "washing away the sand and soil when we've been working in the garden, or enjoying some sport that gets us grimy; but—"

He laughed softly.

"I mind once when I was a youngster, and I'd been out playing with my brother and another boy, all afternoon long. Oh, we'd dug a cave; and we'd climbed trees; and we'd built a little dam; and what we hadn't done I guess wasn't in the catalogue.

"Well, when we got home I want you to know we were so black and dirty nobody but our mothers would have recognized us. Mother peeled off my brother and me and dropped us in a tub of hot water—and then she scrubbed. We hollered, and ouch, but she got us clean.

"Well, it's just that way in getting rid of faults, Girl, if we let them get a deep hold on us. If we'll just confess our sin the first time we're guilty of it, then God in his graciousness gently washes the soil of the day from us, and we start fresh and clean again. But if we think it doesn't matter, and we don't confess, and leave it, but keep right on doing what we know is wrong—it's a serious matter. God forgives us as soon as we really and truly repent; of course He does; and with the help of God any fault can be blotted out of our lives—but the deeper we've let it strike in, the more scrubbing it's going to take to get rid of it. Remember that, Girl, when you're tempted to say some words I'm afraid I've heard you using once or twice."

Once or twice! Gladys flushed again. She came and put an affectionate arm around her grandfather's shoulders. "I will remember," she promised, "and I wish I never had said those words; and I want to be washed so clean that I never will say them again."

"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. * * Create in me a clean heart" (Ps. 51:7, 10).

A GOOD BIBLE SCHOOL AT RAINS X ROADS

During the week of June 12 through 17, Rains Cross Roads church held its Daily Vacation Bible School with an average attendance of 110. Rev. J. E. Sporenbery of Princeton was the director. Some of the women of the church were teachers and helpers.

Refreshments were served each day by the ladies, and the children enjoyed them very much. On Friday afternoon the children gave Mr. Sporenbery a pounding of groceries to show to him their appreciations for his good work.

On Sunday night, at seven o'clock the closing exercises for the Bible school was held at the church. We are looking forward to having a Bible school next year.

FAR ENOUGH

Casey consulted a chrystal gazer.

"My partner O'Malley died the other day," he explained. "I want to know if he went to heaven."

"If you give me five dollars, I will look," said the crystal-gazer.

So Casey gave her five dollars.

"Your partner O'Malley is just fifteen feet from the Pearly Gates."

"Tell me more!" pleaded Casey.

"It will cost you another five dollars."

"All right. Here's another five."

"Now I see him just five feet away from the Pearly Gates."

"Tell me more."

"It will cost you five dollars more."

"Nuts," said Casey. "If O'Malley can't jump the last five feet, let him go to the Devil."

Ruth, a Symbol of Family Loyalty

(Lesson for July 16)

Lesson: Ruth 1:8-22.

Golden Text: Ruth 1:16.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

We should bear in mind that Elimelech and his wife Naomi lived in Bethlehem with their two sons, Mahlon and Chilion. Because of a terrible famine in their land they moved into the land of Moab. Later Elimelech died in that land. In the course of time Mahlon married Ruth and Chilion married Orpah, young women of the land of Moab. After about ten years Mahlon and Chilion both died, leaving their mother Naomi alone in a heathen land with her two daughters-in-law. The famine was over in Palestine, and Naomi decided to go back to her home in Bethlehem.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. It is a good recommendation if people can say of a man or woman, that he or she dealt kindly with those who have departed (Ruth 1:8).

2. It is one thing to bestow outward tokens of affection, such as kisses, but quite another thing so to love as not to leave (vs. 14).

3. The soul determined to know God will not be deterred by the contrary example of a weaker one (vs. 15).

4. Separation unto God often involves numerous other separations, and weak souls are not willing to make them (vs. 16).

5. Human weakness might have made the keeping of Ruth's vow impossible, but the power of God supported her choice (vs. 17).

6. Let us seek to persuade others to follow the Lord instead of trying to turn them away from Him (vs. 18).

7. The return of one wayfarer to the people of God will always be a very stirring event (vs. 19).

8. "Pleasantness" is quite certain to turn to "bitterness" when we leave the place of fellowship with God (vs. 20).

9. Is it fair to blame God for bitter experiences when they have come as a result of disobedience to Him? (vs. 21).

10. The "beginning of barley harvest" marked a new beginning for both Naomi and Ruth (vs. 22).—Selected.

11. The never to be forgotten words of Ruth in which her loyalty to Naomi and to God were expressed are contained in our memory selection today. They are words which give expression to a decision from which she would not be turned aside. It was a decision which was to affect profoundly her whole subsequent life. There was involved in it a choice of friends. Would she choose her own relatives and the people of her native land, or would she turn from all these in order to enjoy continued fellowship with her Hebrew mother-in-law? Connected with this was a choice of countries. Would she cast her lot in the future with Moab or Israel? And lastly, there was a choice of gods. Would she thenceforth serve Jehovah, or Chemosh, the god of Moab? Ruth made her choice deliberately and finally. She would choose Naomi; she would choose the people of Judah; she would choose the Lord. No choice was ever made more unselfishly, and from it nothing could dissuade her. She was not acting merely upon the impulse of the moment, but had fully counted the cost. Would that there were more decisions for God and the people of God made today with equal wholeheartedness and finality! Said William Jennings Bryan, "We cannot hope to contribute to literature a sentence so exquisite and so thrilling as into that which Ruth poured the full-measure of a noble heart, but we can imitate her in devotion."—Arnold's Commentary.

Making right decisions in life are acts which lead most often to peace and happiness, noble service and great fame. Young Timothy made a good choice when he decided to go with Paul on his missionary journey. Cornelius, the centurian, made a great decision when he sent to Joppa for the Apostle Peter to go to his house and to preach Christ. People today are called upon to make decisions for their own good and for the benefit of others. Dr. Benjamin L. Olmstead says, "Doubtless Ruth had come to know much about the true God through her intercourse with Naomi, and as a result of her marriage to a worshiper of Jehovah. She was making her decision intelligently."—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

II. The Lesson Illustrated

A Gospel That Saves

Said Dr. Millard A. Jenkins, "When I was pastor in Macon, Georgia, I saw a distinguished-looking man in the congregation. When I greeted him at the close of the service, I was startled to hear him say, 'I am Green-Eye Johns.' I had heard that name. He was the operator of a saloon and gambling hell. It was evident that an act of God had brought him there. Tears welled in his eyes as I talked with him. He requested that I come to his home next morning. It was a day never to be forgotten. I tried to make the way of salvation plain. In the evening I left him still smitten by conviction over the enormity of his sins. Early next morning he was ringing my doorbell. 'Come in,' I said, 'and tell me about it.' Said he, 'It was one o'clock this morning. I was reading the Scripture you marked for me when the Light came. Now, I want you to come and help me get my wife saved!' I went, and that day salvation came again to that house. He moved away and engaged in the syrup business. A couple of years later I had a letter from his wife telling me he was ill. I went to see him. When I was taking my leave, he reached out his fevered hand and said, 'Good-by! I'll soon be in Heaven with the Lord; and when you come, there will be an old, saved saloon keeper waiting to give you a royal welcome!' A week later, I received a telegram telling me he had gone on to be with the Saviour. And I said, "Thank God for a Gospel to preach that saves like that!"

Ruth and this converted saloon keeper were alike in one important way. Both were fully determined to break completely and eternally with the devil and to live for God for the remainder of their lives.—Selected.

ED BUNDY GONE TO REST

Sometime ago the Lord called my husband, Ed Bundy, into the great beyond. I have often wondered why He took him so soon, leaving me behind with heartaches and sorrows and pain.

Some day I hope to go and be with him in glory. Then I will not be left behind. Then we will be together for ever and ever. When that day comes I will say goodbye to all here below. Then I will not be left alone.

had offered, I was obliged to seek further training elsewhere. This took me to several Institutions, some of them as true to God's Word as could be but with doctrinal views different in some respects from those I had been taught in our Seminary at Ayden. This made it hard for I wanted to be loyal to the school that was kind to me and had taken me in to offer what my own denomination couldn't. Some of these schools were not true to the teachings of God's Word but in some instances denied it and in others questioned it. I took no religious subjects in these ungodly schools but had ungodly religious views imposed upon me as did all other students in my physics, psychology, sociology, history, or what. This had a bad effect upon my experience for even though I did not side with the views I had my spiritual fervor dampened for in many instances it was not possible to refute these views with my own soul. I did this in some instances for the sake of fellow students and as a result I suffered in grades.

Finally I must say that no student ever goes away from any class without absorbing something. This being true, any student will, to some degree, carry away from any institution somewhat of its stamp upon his life and character. The Moody graduated Free Will Baptist is going to be a Moody Free Will Baptist, The Columbia Bible College graduated Free Will Baptist is going to be a Columbia Bible College Free Will Baptist, the Duke University trained Free Will Baptist is going to be a Duke University Free Will Baptist, the Emory University graduate who is a Free Will Baptist is forever a Emory University Free Will Baptist, an Atlantic Christian College graduate who is a Free Will Baptist is an Atlantic Christian College Free Will Baptist, a Wake Forest graduate who is a Free Will Baptist is a Wake Forest Free Will Baptist, a Taylor University graduate who is a Free Will Baptist is a Taylor Free Will Baptist.

Well, you say, what effect have these hybrid Free Will Baptist teachers had upon our denomination, for we have graduates from these and many other schools. Here it is. Instead of us having unity as a result of all these schools having put their trade marks upon so many of us there has been a tendency to the other side. Whereas, without compromise we, one time, believed in Baptism by immersion and tenaciously held to that mode, giving sanction to no other mode of Baptism. We have men, so I hear, who think it would be all right to admit a sprinkled Methodist into our church without requiring Baptism. We once looked at the ordinance of washing the saints feet as one of our characterizing features, now some of the graduates from some of the above named schools, I have heard, are swinging their audiences from the old Free Will Baptist trait so fast that it is making some of the good old saints who practiced this from childhood wonder what will be next, while others who have attended these schools are putting forth effort in the field of Calvinism, especially are they emphasizing eternal security.

All the teachers, and so far as I know all the supporters of the Free Will Baptist Bible College are the "old-time, dyed in the wool" Free Will Baptists that uphold and teach all the original doctrines and practices of our forefathers. We are Free Will Baptist and don't care who knows it, and don't care who doesn't agree with us because of this, our personal as well as denominational belief; and we are not going to soft pedal any phase of it to meet one's lack of faith. We believe this conviction is needed and should be set forth in church, home, and school. This we aim to do with all our might. Nothing I know of will better serve us in our effort to return to the straight and narrow way walked by Free Will Baptist a generation ago than this four years' course which places major emphasis on a more thorough knowledge of God's precious Word.

FELLOWSHIP WITH GOD

Andrew Murray

The first and chief need of Christian life is fellowship with God. The divine life within us comes from God and is entirely dependent upon Him. As I need the air to breathe every moment, so it is only in direct living communication with God that my soul can be strong. The manna of one day was corrupt when the next day came. I must every day have fresh grace from heaven, and I obtain it only in direct waiting upon God Himself. Begin each day by tarrying before God and letting Him touch you. Take time to meet God.

To this end let the first act in your devotions be a setting yourself humbly before God. In prayer or worship everything depends upon God taking the chief place. We must bow quietly before Him in humble faith and adoration. God is. God is near. God is love, longing to communicate Himself to you. God, the Almighty One, who worketh all in all, is even now waiting to work in you and make Himself known. Take time till you know God is very near.

When you have given God His place of honor, glory and power, take your place of deepest lowliness and seek to be filled with the spirit of humility. As a creature it is your blessedness to be nothing, that God may be all in you. As a sinner you are not worthy to look up to God; bow in self-abasement. As a saint let God's love overwhelm you, and bow still lower down. Sink down before Him in humility, meekness, patience and surrender to His goodness and mercy.

Then accept and value your place in Christ Jesus. God delights in nothing so much as in His beloved Son, and can be satisfied with nothing less in those who draw nigh to Him. Enter deep into God's holy presence, in the boldness which the blood gives and in the assurance that in Christ you are most well-pleasing. In Christ you are within the veil. You have access into the very heart and love of the Father. This is the great object of fellowship with God, that we may have more of God in our life and that God may see Christ formed in us.

Christ is a living Person. He loves His people with a personal love, and He looks every day for the personal response of your love. Look into His face with trust till His love really shines into your heart. Make His heart glad by telling Him that you love Him.

We have not only Christ's life in us as a power and His presence with us as a person, but we have His likeness to be wrought into us. He is to be formed in us, so that His image can be seen in us. Say to God, "Father, here I am for Thee to give as much in me of Christ's likeness as I can receive." And wait to hear Him say, "My child, I give thee as much of Christ as thy heart is open to receive."

The likeness of Christ may be described as the likeness of His death and resurrection (Rom. 6:5). The death of Christ was the consummation of His humility and obedience, the entire giving up of His life to God. In Him we are dead to sin. As we sink down in humility and dependence and entire surrender to God, the power of His death works in us, and we are made conformable to His death. Then we know Him in the power of His resurrection, in the victory over sin, and all the joy and power of the risen life. Therefore, every morning present yourself unto God as one that is "alive from the dead." He will bestow the grace to live as a risen one.

All this can only be in the power of the Holy Spirit who dwells in you. Count upon Him to glorify Christ in you. Seek in God's presence to have the anointing of the Spirit of Christ so truly that your whole life may every moment be spiritual.

As you meditate on this wondrous salvation and seek full fellowship with the great and holy God, and wait on Him to reveal Christ in you, you will feel how needful is the giving up of all to receive Him. Seek grace to know what it means to live as wholly for God as Jesus did. Let every approach to God and every request for fellowship with Him be accompanied by a new, very definite and entire surrender to Him.

"By faith." Here, as through all

Scripture and all the spiritual life, this must be the keynote. As you tarry before God let it be in a deep, quiet faith in Him, the invisible One, who is so near, so holy, so mighty, so loving; in a deep, restful faith, too, that all the blessings and powers of the heavenly life are around you and in you. Yield yourself in the faith of a perfect trust to the ever blessed holy Trinity to work out all God's purpose in you. Begin each day thus in fellowship with God, and God will be all in all to you.

in its proper setting in Christian living. But such teaching, erroneously placed and emphasized, takes the backbone out of worthwhile life, and makes it merely a set of highly polished abstract conceptions, without the vital element of living content. It is a kind of teaching which finds a ready and large acceptance among those who like to play-up their religion in order to gain personal advantage, or to use it as a curtain behind which to formulate plans and schemes through which they impose their vicious wills upon the innocent and unsuspecting multitudes.

But what can the church do about it? The answer: Get busy in the work of true evangelism, and carry out the purpose of Christ for His church in the world. Let it convince the world that it is engaged in the business of producing men and women who are capable and qualified to fill any position in life. Christians do not bottle up their religion in airtight containers, but they allow it to speak freely of its character through its benevolent efforts in the interest of others. The Christian does not deny the place and value of social gospel and the need of a strong brotherhood of men, but he believes in men becoming brothers in Christ and giving Him pre-eminence in their lives. It is the business of the church to contribute to the welfare of mankind by producing such men and women through its efforts in evangelism.

Sweet Hour of Prayer

Sweet hour of prayer! sweet hour of prayer!
That calls me from a world of care,
And bids me at my Father's throne
Make all my wants and wishes known.
In seasons of distress and grief
My soul has often found relief,
And oft escaped the tempter's snare
By thy return, sweet hour of prayer!

Sweet hour of prayer! sweet hour of prayer!
Thy wings shall my petition bear
To Him whose truth and faithfulness
Engage the waiting soul to bless.
And since He bids me seek His face,
Believe His word, and trust His grace,
I'll cast on Him my every care,
And wait for thee, sweet hour of prayer!

Sweet hour of prayer! sweet hour of prayer!
May I thy consolation share,
Till, from Mount Pisgah's lofty height,
I view my home and take my flight;
This robe of flesh I'll drop, and rise
To seize the everlasting prize;
And shout, while passing through the air,
Farewell, farewell, sweet hour of prayer!

FREE UNION AUXILIARY REPORT

The Woman's auxiliary of Free Union Church met on Saturday, June 10, 1950, at the church. Mrs. Dora Carraway, Miss Patty Carraway, Mrs. Nina Mae Carraway, and Mrs. Raeford Carraway were joint hostesses.

The meeting began by the members present singing the hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves." Mrs. Viola Tyndall led in prayer, and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Lucy Tyndall. There were 36 members present for this meeting. Each member answered to her name when the roll was called by paying her dues. The amount raised was $6.70. We discussed sending a delegate to the National Convention which convenes in July with Richmond Church, California.

We then sang a hymn, and Mrs. Viola Tyndall and Mrs. Ruth Harrell had charge of the program. Following the program we closed the meeting by singing the hymn, "Jesus Calls Us." Mrs. Lucy Tyndall dismissed the meeting in a word of prayer.

The hostess served delicious refreshments which were enjoyed by everyone present.

Mrs. Thomas Harrell, Cor.-Secy.

WHY STAND YE GAZING?

Centuries before the disciples stood on the Mount of Olives and gazed into the heavens which had received their Lord, another man gazed into the same sky. He, too, like the disciples, heard the command that God was giving forth. Nor was Abram disobedient to the command of God; for immediately or at least as quickly as possible, he gathered together his movable possessions "and got himself out of the land of Ur" into the place that God was to show him.

God's blessings to obedient Abraham are uncountable. In the face of adversity the old patriarch trudged on from place to place at the direction of God. Only in thanksgiving to his God, the True God, do we see him raising his eyes toward heaven. No longer does he spend hours of long hopeless gazing into the heavens; for now he gazes with a purpose in his heart. That purpose is to please God. His obedience to the Master's will caused Abraham to be chosen of God as the beginning of the channel through which the Redeemer of the world was to come. Had Abraham remained in Ur of the Chaldees gazing at the heavens, created by an omnipotent God, no matter the things of beauty he beheld, he could never have been used to bless the world as he was when he obeyed the command of the Creator of those heavens.

No, it is not enough to gaze upon the beauty of Jesus' life deeds while here on the earth; for every follower of Christ's recognizes that admiration of those deeds brings no reward, but "to do the will of my Father which is in heaven" is glory, and peace, yea, and happiness to every believer.

The concern of the disciples over the departure of their Lord was not at all strange. For they had cherished hopes of Christ establishing an earthly kingdom in which they might have a place. The full weight of the messages that Christ had given them throughout His Ministry had not come to bear upon their minds. They were troubled and confused by His Acts 1:11: "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

going away so soon after He had risen from the dead. They had been loyal to Him in face of trying circumstances as He had led them these three and one-half years of His ministry. They had listened often times to His messages without having received the full impact of their meaning. Now their leader had disappeared miraculously into the heavens while they stood and gazed in despair. No, their concern about His departure was not at all strange, but the despair, which we are led to believe loomed in their hearts, was certainly most uncalled for at this hour.

Immediately before His departure, when the disciples were quizzing Jesus as to whether or not this was the time He would restore the Kingdom to Israel, He reminded them that it was not for them to know the times nor the seasons, but that they were to receive power after that the Holy Ghost was come upon them, and that they were to be His witnesses unto the uttermost part of the earth. Yet, when He disappeared only a few seconds later, His command seems utterly forgotten as they stand there gazing hopelessly into the heavens. It was at this moment that God sent His angels to shake them out of their despair and remind them of their obligations as followers of the Master. The angels do not go into details about the Master's commands, nor do they rehearse each command that He has given but only the question, "Why stand Ye gazing," and the statement of the fact that should bring joy to the heart of every follower of Christ, "This same Jesus shall so come as ye have seen Him go." It is as though the angels had said to them, "You have no time to stand here gazing. If you remain thus, you will have nothing to offer Him when He returns."

The question of the angels brought to their minds all of those important commands that Jesus had given, even better than a rehearsal of the scene they had just witnessed could have done. Had he not told them this was to be? Had He not given instruction for them when the time came? Had He not mentioned, just before His departure, a power which they were to receive? Where was the Comforter of whom He had spoken? Now they knew that the hill outside Jerusalem was no place for them to remain, but that they must hastily return to Jerusalem to await the fulfillment of His promises. So, without any further information of the happenings on the Mount of Olives, Luke says, "Then they returned to Jerusalem—". And there in Jerusalem began the prayer meeting that ended only when everyone present at that meeting was of one mind and one accord. Into the atmosphere filled with brotherly love, kindness, and a willingness to serve came the Holy Spirit of God, resting upon each of their heads with cloven tongues like as of fire. The Comforter had come to begin His office work in the hearts of men.

The coming of the Holy Spirit added fuel to the fire that had begun to burn in the hearts of the disciples because of the Angels question, "Why stand Ye gazing?"

There was no hesitancy in their hearts as they went about the tasks which the Master had assigned to them. There was no thought of fear in their minds even though Satan's onslaught against them was continuous and terrible. With a power not His own, the once fearful Simon Peter stands boldly before the multitude to declare that the thing which they were beholding was that which was spoken of by the prophet Joel. Stephen went to His death praying for those at whose hands he was being

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

The Last Days

Upon the authority of the Word of God we believe that we are living right at the end of time. The prophecy concerning the "end of the age" speaks out in its fullness, showing us that the "coming of the Lord draweth near." One of the outstanding signs of the times is the utter disregard for the things that pertain to God, by people everywhere. Often these people are members of some church but they are indifferent towards the welfare of that church, which they joined one day and promised to support. All kinds of excuses are rendered when spoken to about their indifference. Paul tells us about these people in these words, "For the time will come when people will decline to be taught sound doctrine and will accumulate teachers to suit themselves and tickle their own fancies; they will give up listening to the truth and turn to myths" (2 Tim. 4:3, 4—Moffatt).

Certainly this time, as spoken of, is here. Even church members are lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof."

They will holler themselves hoarse at a Sunday baseball game and be as speechless as a stone when it comes to praying, testifying or supporting the church. Then there is a class that belongs to some church, who run around and hinder every one possible from doing what they ought to do.

I think that one of the most contemptible agents of Satan is the fellow who deliberately goes over to his neighbor's home right at the hour of church or Sunday School and perches himself, if it is a "him", and stays right there until it is too late to go to church, talking about the things of the world. Of course, this class don't bother me now, some of them used to when I was a young Christian.

One Sunday morning when I was about to get off to Sunday School (I was superintendent then) one of these fellows came up with his wife and children. I invited him, with his, to go with us, but they said "No." Then I said, "Just go right in and make yourself at home, we will be back in about two hours." They chose to go back home or somewhere, but when they came again it was not at the hour of church or Sunday school. It took grace to stand for Jesus and the church, but God gave us the victory. I meant that I was not going to let a Christ rejecting sinner stand between me and my Lord's work. It takes a little "grit" as well as grace to walk off and leave the fellow, but it "pays to serve Jesus."

Afflicted Saints

It has been our privilege and duty, by call, to visit and pray with two very sick children of God recently. We have utmost confidence in those precious souls. Neither of them could understand why they were suffering so greatly. We talked to them, and read Scripture which told of God's people being sick, as recorded in the Bible. We gave examples of our own observation, and then we assured them that "All things work together for good to them that love God" (Romans 8:28), which is one of God's consoling utterances.

There is a doctrine which goes like this: "If you get sick or afflicted it is because you have committed a sin to bring about the sickness." I want to say right here that such a doctrine is not true. Of course people are often sick and even die because they choose to live for the devil, but some of the truest saints that ever lived have been afflicted, and were great sufferers in the flesh. Some people eat themselves into sickness. Some people are born with diseased bodies and make great, strong, efficient giants in the Lord. Some become great after affliction strikes their bodies, even in old age.

Our Pastoral Work

The year that is soon to end according to many of the churches rule, the yearly call, finds many churches going into half and whole time pastorate. This makes a shortage of pastors in some sections. Personally, I would be happy if we could get away from that "Yearly Call."

Recently I was called indefinitely to serve Ruth's Chapel. I have been giving this church two Sundays per month for the last nine months, but now there is no more "Yearly call." Thank the Lord! I serve this church second and fourth Sundays. We are praising God for the blessings that He is giving us. Sunday night, June the 25th, at the regular service we had three confessions of faith, one of these had been a member of a church in another section of the state. Friday afternoon (June 30th) we baptized three, one of these making her confession at the water. At 8:00 o'clock the same evening we received them, four in all, into full fellowship of the church. Yes, God is blessing.

We have been called to pastor Antioch Free Will Baptist church, about four miles from New Bern. We pastored this church many years ago. At that time we moved the church building from one section of the community to another where it was better situated to the convenience of the majority of the people. It was a weak church then. Now it is a strong church, with a beautiful church building, well arranged with classrooms. We are to serve this church on first and third Sundays. This makes us to have full time work and live right close to each of our churches. Pray that God will bless in a great way and that many souls may be led to Christ.

Our Business

A young preacher went into a field where a sinner was at work and said to the man, "Are you a Christian?" The reply, "Wish that you would attend to your own business." The preacher said, "That is exactly what I am doing." It is the business of every God-called preacher to lead folks to Christ.

"Yes, it's pretty hard," the optimistic old woman admitted. "I have to get along with only two teeth—one upper, one lower—but, thank God, they meet."

Why not Expect Our Pastors to Heal the Sick?

PETER HEALED THE LAME MAN AT THE TEMPLE (Acts 3:6, 7).

I have just read sister Everson's article on the subject, "What I Expect of My Pastor." It is fine, and I think if the pastors of our churches will study and let it have action in their pastoral service the remainder of this associational year, they will, by the beginning of next associational year, have a vision of their responsibility that will make them more anxious to put the very best they have in their service to their churches than ever before. It is wonderful to be dependable by the church, and it is great to be a person the Lord can depend on, both church and pastor, and then to depend on the Lord. That is what Peter was doing, and he was not disappointed.

Yes Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee; In the name of Jesus Christ rise up and walk." Notice, dear reader, that Peter saw how the people were amazed he said, "Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye on us so earnestly, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk? The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus."

Peter was telling them here that it was not by their own godness or power that this had been done; but that it was by faith in this Christ whom they had crucified, that he had been made whole. You see that he had said that the Father had glorified his son Jesus Christ. How? Surely by proving to them that his promises would do to depend on. It was by faith in Christ Jesus that Peter had brought the blessing to the lame man. Not because they were so good themselves, but because they believed Christ. To him that believeth all things are possible (Mark 9:23). The power of faith in God had no limit when it comes to the salvation of souls. Notice Jno. 14:12-14. Jesus said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father. And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the son. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it." You see here what a promise he made to those that believe on him, and just notice why the promise would be effective that the Father might be glorified in the Son. That is, the Father might be raised in honor and dignity in the Son. In the healing of this lame man the Father had honored and dignified his Son Jesus Christ in the presence of the people who had denied him, and you see how it made them marvel.

Eld. A. L. Sellars,

When Christ sent the twelve he gave them power to perform miracles, the seventy was sent with the same commission. They came back thrilled with joy because the devils were subject unto them through the name of Christ. They went believing and came back rejoicing because of their success. In Luke 10:18-20, notice what he said to them in the way of caution, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the powers of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven." He did not send them out to prove that they were his apostles, that he was the Christ, or that there was a God; but as his witnesses of the salvation of man by the almighty God, Father of us all, through his Son and our Savior the Lord Jesus Christ.

Christ did not take any time to display his power, or to prove that he was the Son of God, but in all his doings there was some body in need some way, and he was relieving that need. Peter speaks of him as going about doing good in Acts 10:38. That is just what he wants us to do as his witnesses, and I don't know a better way for us to witness for him than to be partakers of the things that he pertook of. Not imitators, but partakers of his life. "The works that I do shall ye do." Then in Jno. 20:21, he said, "Peace be unto you; as the Father hath sent me, even send I you." I believe that Christ meant what he was saying here, and that as the Father was with him So he be with us; as the Father loved him, so he loves us. We also say that we believe that his promises are dependable. Let that belief have action in our lives and he will use us as he used Peter. Then the world will wonder at our accomplishments as it did at Peter's accomplishments. Notice what Christ said in Jno. 14:23, "If a man love me he will keep my words; and the Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." I am saying that this is really true, and it being true if we love him, we will not only keep his commandments, but we will keep his word, and then notice the results: "He and the Father will come and make their abode with us." If we really love Jesus, he and the Father are living with us and are present to help us to do those things that should follow those that believe as spoken of by the apostles, and to protect us from all the dangers of the enemy; therefore he said let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

I know that we have many things being done by people today that claim that it is by the power of the Holy Ghost, and a manifestation of those signs that should follow those that believe. If that is true good for them. But notice that Christ said, "I saw Satan as lightning fall from heaven." He is some where deceiving the people, and we know that he did deceive the Pharisees and made them believe that God was their father. In Matt.

Bible School at Black Jack F. W. B. Church

The fourth annual Daily Vacation Bible school was conducted at Black Jack church the week of June 5 through 9. There were 145 pupils, and 16 teachers and helpers who attended this school. There were seven groups, according to ages: the Cradle Roll, Beginners, Juniors No. One, Juniors No. Two, Primaries, Intermediates, and Seniors.

A commencement program was given on Friday night, June 9. This was to give each student a chance to show part of what they had learned during the week. Each child who had a record of four days attendance out of five was awarded an attendance certificate. A small prize was given to each class that was thought to be the best all-around.

Each day a group of seven members of the church served delicious refreshments. The school is sponsored by the Woman's auxiliary of the church, and they sincerely thank everyone who helped them to have this school.

CHURCHES WITHOUT SUNDAY SCHOOLS

It is appalling to learn that there are still some rural churches, here and there over the country, that do not maintain a Sunday School for their members and the people of the community. What can such a church look forward to for the future, if it continues to have no Sunday School. The truth is, it will die in due course of time. Such churches are not "bringing up their children in the knowledge and admonition of the Lord." But it is to be thankful for the most of us that not a great many of the Free Will Baptist churches are of this type.

We are reminded of a certain father many years ago. He was told that he could not have a Sunday School in his old rundown country church, because the people in the community were few, and they were not interested. But he said, "I will have a Sunday School, if none go but me, my wife, and my five children. We will go to the church, sing and pray, and study the Bible every Sunday."

That man did that very thing for a few Sundays. Then others came, and before the year was out he had over three dozen in Sunday School. He meant business for the Lord. And the church prospered, and the community was blessed. No, his church did not die for the lack of training the youth of the community in the Word of the Lord.

But, today, the emphasis is even greater. That church which neglects to have a Sunday School, because they say so few will attend, will eventually die. The young people will go to some other church, and that is the thing they should do. We urge, therefore, every Free Will Baptist church that does not have a Sunday School to get busy and organize one. Do this, if you know you will not have more than twelve members to begin with. Do like the Father did with his five children. Go into business for God and do not delay, and you will soon have a growing Sunday School. Be not ashamed to do small things for God in the beginning. He will bless you, and give you the increase.

CHURCHES WITH ONLY ONE SERVICE PER MONTH

In this modern age, churches that have, as a customary thing, only one church service to the month is not performing its full duty to its membership, nor to the people of the community as a whole. With everything else moving forward at a rapid speed in this country, and in every line of activity, that church which continues to hold only one Sunday service for the good of the people is not doing all that God is expecting of it.

Christianity is an active and growing process in the hearts of those who are "on fire" for God, but how can they do all that God wants them to do, when their church holds only one preaching service to the month? In fact, those churches, wherever they are, cannot hope to do their best work in a spiritual way for the people in their communities until they move up to holding more preaching services each month in the year. Only one preaching service, however good it may be each month, is far behind what God would have that church do. Certainly, this is worth serious consideration by every church that is holding only one preaching service each month.

Orphanage Farm Hit By Hail Storm

On June 29th, the hail storm which did an estimated damage of $2,000,000 to crops in the Samaria area of Nash County, covered the Orphanage farm. The hail and rains fell only moderately hard on and immediately around the orphanage campus. The crops in this area were damaged some, but not severely. On the northern part of the farm (formerly the Massey Farm) the hail was unusually large and fell very rapidly. Most of the corn was shredded, leaving little more than stalks standing. Young soybeans were killed and many of the older soybeans were beat down badly. The tobacco crop was considered by the Adjuster to be almost a complete loss. Young garden crops were also damaged moderately.

This was an unusually hard blow to our farming operations here on the farm this year. We had what we considered an even better crop than the one that we had last year which proved to be quite profitable to us. We are striving to make adjustments in our farming program as rapidly as we can by planting late peas, beans, garden crops and working with the tobacco in the ways that appear to promote the possibility of making a partial recovery crop. We are sure that we will feel the results of the recent storm throughout the year because it will mean for us less feed with which to feed our livestock, less food with which to feed our children, and less income with which to help operate the Home. We have received more than $1,700 from the insurance that we had on the tobacco and this will be quite helpful to us. We are sure that our many friends throughout the State will help us in any way they can through contributions of food and money to help us bridge over the loss we have had.

Spring Branch Church News

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the Spring Branch Free Will Baptist church,

Walstonburg, North Carolina, was held the 5th through the 9th of June. There were four classes; the primaries, taught by Mrs. Billy Smith; the Juniors, taught by Mrs. R. H. Jackson; the Intermediates, taught by Mrs. Paul Thigpen; and the Adults, taught by Rev. R. H. Jackson. We had an average attendance of 120 pupils each day. The Bible School closed with the awarding of certificates with gold stars to those with a perfect attendance, and just a certificate without the gold star to those that missed only one day. We had our Bible school picnic the last day at the park in Farmville.

Each one enjoyed the Bible School, and they are looking forward to it again next year. You could tell that by their bright shining faces. You could see the shining light of Jesus as it burst forth from each young face.

AN EDITOR'S APPRAISAL OF BILLY GRAHAM AS AN EVANGELIST

Thousands Flock to Hear the Gospel

"Graham as an evangelist may be credited to God and the Youth for Christ movement. He has held few campaigns, probably only six in America and a few in England. He is exactly what you would not expect. In fact, there is no way of accounting for what happened in Los Angeles, by any analysis of the young man who was at the center of the campaign—his planning, program or sermons didn't do it. That was perfectly clear.

Physically, Billy Graham is very tall, very thin, very frail. His face is clean cut, attractive and open. He has fine eyes. He preaches with vigor and impresses his hearers as being dreadfully in earnest. He is not sensational either in his platform appearance or sermon content. He sprinkled Bible quotations copiously throughout his messages.

He is a fearful preacher in that he preaches the horrors of sin and the terrors of hell. Yet he holds up the mercy of the Lord in every sermon. He is a Southern Baptist. But no Methodist in the days of the great revivals in Methodism ever preached a simpler, straighter, more challenging gospel message than characterized the preaching of Billy Graham in Los Angeles.

This young evangelist does not deal in funny stories. He jokes but little. He has no catchy phrases. His altar calls are free from design or trap. He is above everything else a pleader. He pleads with sinners and they come. He is humble. He magnifies the Holy Spirit, and over and over gave credit to the Holy Ghost for the results that at times simply electrified the great audiences.

He does not attack. He scarcely ever criticizes even the modernists, though he never compromises with them. He does not upbraid the churches that are not cooperating. He has no word of harshness for the preachers that stand off and criticize. He gives you the impression that he is so busy with souls that he does not know or care as to what's going on outside the tent in which he pleads with the lost.

A policeman assigned to the tent told me that the crowds ran all the way from 6,000 to 12,000 every night. One Monday night, the crowd was estimated by the police at 20,000. Streets were blocked in all directions. Thousands stood for hours to hear the message.

The interest spread to all parts of the city. The revival was talked in barber shops, at news stands on the corner, in stores and factories, on street cars, in busses, everywhere. The daily papers finally took it up and began to headline this phenomenal spiritual outburst. Then the Magazines.

Life and Time and other popular journals featured the revival. The strange thing was that these worldly mediums that approached this revival with serious understanding."

IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

What a song, what a meaning! I wonder if the average Christian lets his or her imagination drift back to the cross of our Lord, as they sing or hear that beautiful hymn, "Living in the Shadow of the Cross."

Do we see with our mind's eye what took place there that day?

Can we hear Pilate say, "What evil has he done? I find no evil in him." But yet Pilate turned Jesus over to the chief priests and elders who were the leaders or politicians of that day and time. They crucified Christ.

Pilate knew in his heart who Jesus was. He also knew that Jesus had done no wrong or evil. Pilate was a big man who held a big position, Governor of Judea, and the priests and elders, no doubt, were Pilate's cabinet members. Pilate, no doubt, owed much to the priests and elders for their support to his office, and the same priests and elders to the people. These high positions, so to speak, kept these men in high honor, with the best of every thing to eat and wear, best means of transportation, wealth—every comfort of that day.

Pilate wanted to free our Lord, but what did he do? Rather than do what he knew to be right, he did, as many of us do today, followed the wishes of the multitude. But Jesus went to the Cross that you and I might live, and have life ever lasting.

Are we as Christians crucifying our Lord with most every breath we breathe and most everything we do? Christ our Lord went to the cross without a murmur, He suffered there hanging by his hands and feet, nailed to the cross, his body pierced by swords, his life's blood running out, carrying our sorrows that he might pour gladness into our fearful hearts, and that our tears might be wiped from our eyes for ever. Christ, died there that we may live always. But are we going to continue following the largest crowd, that we may have a bigger portion of this world's goods? If we do we will miss our heavenly reward when we stand at the judgment bar of Christ. He does not ask us to suffer as he did. He only asks that we repent, and follow him. Christ went a lone, bearing the sins of the world, excepting having a small group of his followers. They could only stand helplessly by, and watch this brutal murder take place. This is not so with us today. He is pleading to us that we might follow him. Follow me and I will be with you always, not part of the way, but all the way.

How many of us having arrived home at an unusual late hour at night, after having what we like to call a good time, turning the door knob with the uttermost of care hoping not to wake Mother, Dad, or Wife? When the door has opened just a wee bit, we hear Mother, Dad, or Wife, call from their bed room "Son, Daughter, Tom, or Mary," which ever the case may be. This is the love of our earthly parents or loved ones. Our earthly parents, and loved ones are anxious about our returning home safely, so much so that their sleep and needed rest is broken, probably getting out of bed several times to look at the clock, maybe going back to bed to listen for the old car to drive in, or the door to squeak, any sign that will assure them that their loved ones have returned home. How much more anxious Jesus must be about our safe arrival to our heavenly home. There will be no sleepless nights or broken rest, in this Home. Only in God's home will we find perfect peace and rest, the home that was promised that day on the Cross of his Son Jesus. "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me: for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:29, 30).

Have You Prayed?

Have you prayed aloud today?
If not why don't you pray tonight?
The Lord will hear if you will only say?
"Lord make me clean and right."

The Lord hes no deaf ear;
He is listening every hour,
For you to ask Him your burdens to bear
He is willing to give you of his power.

He will guide you each step you take
It matters not where ere you go;
Always be on the job and awake
His mercy and goodness to you He will show.

He will always hear our prayer
If we will always do His will.
Yes, friends, He will meet you anywhere
With His Spirit your soul He will fill.

He says for us to ask Him, believing,
What-so-ever we ask he will do;
Then His blessing we will be receiving,
And our sinful hearts He will renew.

Tho' sometimes we are loaded with sorrow
But He says I will your burdens bear,
And make for you a bright tomorrow
If you will only call on Me in prayer.

He has a home prepared for me,
It is built by God's own hands;
We can purchase it without any fee
By only keeping His command.

CRAGMONT CALLS to WOMEN

1950 CONFERENCE EXPECTED TO EXCELL ALL PREVIOUS GATHERINGS

The call is being sent out to women of the Free Will Baptist churches everywhere to come to Cragmont Assembly, in the inspiring mountains of Western North Carolina, for the big conference of Christian women, August 14-21. Interest manifested to this date indicate that this conference may excell in attendance, inspiration, and fellowship all previous meetings of women at Cragmont, as wonderful as they have been. From here and there have come the encouraging assurance from women who have been to former conferences, from women who plan to go this year, and from women who may never be privileged to go: "I am praying for the Woman's Conference at Cragmont."

CONFERENCE DIRECTOR

Mrs. L. E. Ballard

Women are invited from everywhere, north, south, east and west. But registrations must come in early if you are not to run the risk of receiving a little note, which would be sent with as much regret as received, "Sorry, but every place at Cragmont has been taken." Today is the day! Now is the accepted time! (Time you may be accepted!) So, women, register at once by sending your name, full address, church, and conference, together with the registration fee of $2.00, plus the 50c camp insurance fee, and say, "Reserve a place for me at Cragmont." The cost of room and board for the week is $15.00, which you will pay at the assembly.

A bus is being arranged for women going from eastern North Carolina, with the following schedule of fares: Round trip from New Bern, $12.50; from Kinston, $11.75; from Wilson, $11.25; from Raleigh, $10.50; from Durham, $10.00. Those desiring reservations on the bus should send in request at once, accompanied by the required deposit of $5.00, which will be applied on the fare, balance to be paid upon boarding bus.

INSTRUCTOR

Mrs. Ethel Whaley

Let me give you a pre-conference introduction to some of the people who will help make your stay at Cragmont a pleasant and helpful one: Rev. F. B. Cherry, pastor of Edgemont Church, Durham, N. C., will bring us a message, rich in Bible truth and inspiration, each day at 11:35 a. m.; Mrs. Walter Carter, of Rockingham, N. C., will have charge of morning devotions, and will also give the stewardship talks at 9:00 each morning; Mrs. Ethel Whaley, of Jacksonville, N. C., will have a period at 9:35 each morning to give instruction on "Women Launching Out," and at 11:00 each morning on "Fishing for Our Youth." Our pianist will be Mrs. Marvin Moore, of Scotland Neck, N. C.

The general theme for the 1950 Conference will be "Launching Out Into the Deep." The conference will be featured by gospel and chorus singing, vesper services, devoted to missions, wholesome recreation and fellowship periods, and, we trust also some "surprises" not listed on the conference program.

Send your registration to the conference director,

Mrs. L. E. Ballard,
826 Pollock Street,
New Bern, North Carolina

YOU CAN

You can be a blessing,
To some one it is true;
Though you may often wonder,
What is there that I can do?

Sometime—perhaps—you've said,
"I have nothing to give";
But remember, it takes more than money
Or material things to live.

Of these you may have but little,
But you can surely give;
You have a lot of treasures,
That will help another to live.

You can bring some sunshine
To some lonely heart you meet;
By speaking of pleasant things,
And being kind and sweet.

You can have a cherry greeting,
And a few kind words to say;
To another who is groping—
Sadly—on life's way.

Just a pleasant look will help,
And a bright sunny smile;
To lift some brother's burden
And make his life worth while.

You can pray a little prayer,
For another every day;
You'll never miss the effort
And it will surely pay.

So many little things you do
Brings sunshine to some one;
Though you may never know it
E're your stay on earth is done.

You may say these little things
Are not even worth the while but How would you feel if you never heard
A kind word nor saw a smile?

Our tiny deeds might not be,
So great to us 'tis true,
But when done in Jesus' name—
It's great—What'er we do.

News from Bethel Church

On May 13, 1950, Little Bethel F. W. B. Church, in Bleakley County, Georgia, held a meeting for the purpose of organizing a woman's auxiliary. The service opened with song, scripture reading and prayer. The organization was perfected, and the members chose to hold their meetings on the second Sunday afternoons of each month at the church.

The officers elected are as follows: Lula Parker, president; Carolyn Nix, first vice-president; Estelle Wynne, second vice-president; Katie Wright, third vice-president; Ida Foye Bryan, fourth vice-president; Mavis Jones, fifth vice-president; Alice Davis, recording secretary; and Mamie Davis, corresponding secretary; Vivian Manning was elected treasurer.

We desire the prayers of all the Christian people that we may do the Lord's will in our auxiliary work. Pray for our church that we may go forward in the work of the Lord. This meeting closed with a song and prayer.

WHY STAND YE GAZING?

put to death. Such was the zeal and determination of the church. Their differing obligations were discharged as they came with the calm, ever-abiding confidence that "This same Jesus shall come again as ye have seen Him go;" and their work was constantly before them because of a question that rang in their ears, "Why stand ye gazing?"

Yet, today, men are idly gazing into the heavens; claiming to be anxious and concerned about the Master's return. They view the Scriptures with considerable interest studying to find the answer to the question that has perplexed Christians ever since His disciples asked it—"Is it time for God to restore the Kingdom to Israel?" They are concerned, so they say, about the death of Christ and about His departure from the earth. They are concerned about many of the great truths of the Scriptures. They will argue loud and long on age old discussion on the great doctrines of the Bible. But it is quite evident that, as yet, some of them have not caught the message of the question which the angels asked—"Why stand ye gazing?"

The commands which Jesus gave to the early church are still ringing out to us today. His return is even nearer than it was then, and nearer than some of us think. Certainly, now is no time to gaze into the heavens. For soon Jesus shall return to demand of us a report of our stewardship here on this earth. Some will say, "Lord, I've argued loud and long with other preachers from other denominations, and have worked hard to get them into our church, but they had no foresight." I'm quite sure Jesus will remind them that such 'heaven-gazing' will never give them any recognition in heaven. We need to be busy in the highways and in the by-ways compelling all whom we see to come to Christ. We have no time to gaze at the work of Christ that must be done before His return. "This same Jesus shall so come as ye have seen Him go."

A Visit— to Camp Mount Bethel JUNE 18, 1950

We have just returned tonight from the Free Will Baptist Youth Camp near Ashburn, Georgia. We went up Saturday morning to take two boys from Unity Free Will Baptist Church, Jacksonville, Florida, for the first two weeks encampment.

Those of you who have not visited the camp should make arrangements to do so. I can assure you of a hearty welcome, and wonderful Christian fellowship. Accompanying us on our trip were Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Pitts, Brother and sister L. L. Farmer, and Brother E. H. Harris from Unity Church. We have never had a more enjoyable week end. Services were held at the camp this morning with Rev. Pitts bringing the message. We had a great spiritual feast, and the meals at the camp were delicious. Rev. Harvey and his good wife showed us every consideration while we were there. May God bless them greatly for their kindness to us.

I wish tonight that I could talk in person to every Free Will Baptist about the great work that is being carried on for the Lord at Mount Bethel. I have been reading the reports of the work there, and the great blessings our young people are receiving, but I wish that each of you could visit this camp and see for yourselves what is being done, and the great future that is in store for the coming generation of Free Will Baptists.

I arose early this morning and watched the sun come up over the hills around the camp, and as I did so God was very near to me, and I saw a vision of what this camp will be. Thank God for the brave people who have been working so faithful to have this camp. They have already accomplished great things when the beginning looked impossible. But with God nothing is impossible, and they have faith in God.

Mount Bethel needs our support. They need our contributions either in cash or groceries. There are many other things needed to make the Camp more comfortable, and the work lighter for those who are carrying on this work. They also need our prayers. May each of us ask God what he would have us do to carry on this phase of His work.

If we want our young people to get closer to the Lord, and become better informed as to how to carry on His work, why not send them to Mt. Bethel?

Revival at Rains X Roads

On Saturday night, June 24, Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain, N. C., closed a one-week revival in our church, Rains Cross Roads. We, the members of the church and visiting friends, really enjoyed the soul-stirring sermons which Brother Manning brought to us. We want to thank him for this, and welcome him back to our church very soon.

Along with the good sermons we had special music each night. Our choir was led by Bob Williams and Mrs. Major Radford played the piano for us. Mrs. Major Williams helped our little folks sing which they looked forward to each night.

A large crowd attended these services and we hated to see the meeting come to a close, knowing that there were many more in our midst who needed to come to Christ and surrender all. Our baptismal service was held on Sunday afternoon by the pastor, W. R. Williams. May God bless our church and help us to carry on his work for another year.

REVIVAL AT OLD MOTHER CHURCH, NEW ZION, S. C.

On the first Monday night in June, the Rev. L. L. Powell of Hanna, S. C., pastor of Old Mother Church, began a series of meetings which lasted two weeks. These services were very profitable. The church was revived, the members were drawn closer to God, and to one another. The Rev. L. L. Powell was ably assisted by the Rev. J. W. Smoak of New Zion, S. C. On Friday night, June 9, Rev. Smoak preached and the following Sunday night Rev. Poston of Hanna, S. C., preached.

We feel that these pastors are very consecrated men of God. They are bold and fearless preachers of the Word. They went deep down into the scripture and preached uncompromisingly the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. They are just the preachers we need to day. We hope to be able to have them with us again. We pray for the success of their labor, in which they may win souls unto the Saviour, Jesus Christ.

DAVID, A KING WHO HONORED GOD

(Lesson for July 30)

LESSON: 2 Samuel 7:1-28

I. Golden Text Illuminated

"Thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like thee" (II Sam. 7: 22).

The real significance of our text for today is seen only when we realize that David's great creedal ejaculation was framed against a background of bitter disappointment! Almost anybody can praise God when things are going the way we desire them to proceed, and when we are within reach of the desires of our heart. When all our prayers have been answered in the affirmative and God has graciously poured out His beneficence in the channels of our desire, of course He is great, and the only One worth serving.

But can we sing the same song when our prayers are answered with a grim and final "No?" A few of us can, I suppose, but most of us probably doubt the wisdom and justice of negative decisions which block our plans and frustrate our dearest wishes. With obvious reluctance we say, "well, I suppose it is for the best, if it is the Lord's will," but deep in our hearts we harbor a dim suspicion that maybe God is not all we were taught to expect, or that maybe He just was not listening to that particular petition.

David had a great ambition. The idea came into his mind one night as he lay upon his bed, meditating upon all God's goodness to him. He remembered his humble origin, and in his mental ears was the familiar soft murmur of feeding flocks. From the sheepcotes and pastures the Lord had led him to a throne, and the hand of God had made of the one-time shepherd the most powerful monarch of his day and place. Rulers of other nations paid tribute to him whom

God had so established, and one great monarch had built David a splendid palace. His armies had devastated the lands of his enemies and he dwelt in safety and walked canopied under the invincible might of the Lord God whom he worshiped and served.

Counting his wealth and counting his blessings, David felt his heart expand with gratitude and a warm desire to do some thing to repay the Lord in a small measure. The thought popped into his mind—"I will build Him a great and magnificent Temple. He finally came to the place where he felt he must decide the matter, so he talked the idea over with Nathan, the man of God.

The Prophet was delighted with the scheme, and encouraged the king to do as his heart urged him to do. This convinced the king that his idea was right, and he called for his architects and began to assemble the material for the great dream. And just then Nathan appeared, to tell him sorrowfully that God would not permit him to go ahead with his beautiful act of practical worship and gratitude.

He must have been stunned for a time, then he remembered that God never makes mistakes, and out of his great disappointment David cried, "Thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like Thee." What triumph of faith over circumstances those words displayed! Instead of sulking and demanding reasons and explanations, as a man who was serenely confident in God's eternal purposes, David praised God for denying the king his deep desire!—Selected.

II. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

1. David is one of the great characters of the Bible. More information is recorded about him than there is about any other person of the Old Testament. The record of his life begins with First Samuel, and continues through to the second chapter of First Kings. First Chronicles, chapters 11 to 29, also give the story of his reign over Israel. He was well known as a shepherd, musician, poet, soldier and king. In each of these, he achieved success, and he became a loyal worshiper of the Lord. He was anointed by Samuel to be king over Israel, and he became the greatest of the Hebrew kings.

David had the Ark brought into Jerusalem (ch. 6), because he thought the capital the proper place for sacred worship of his people. Accordingly, as a temporary place, he pitched a tent in the city for the Ark of the covenant, which had been for a long time in the home of Abinadab in Gibeah (ch. 6:3). (Read all of chapter 6 for the account of the removal of the Ark to Jerusalem.) In connection with this read the Twenty-Fourth Psalm which David wrote to celebrate this great event.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

2. God's Promise to Build David's House (vs. 17-22)

That the prophecies immediately preceding this passage have to do with another who is greater than Solomon is evident. Great David's greatest Son is certainly before us in the language of the covenant. "I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever," and "thy house and the kingdom shall be made sure forever before thee: thy throne shall be established forever" (vv. 13, 16).

In response to such a pledge on the part of none less than Jehovah, David appropriately waited upon the Lord, acknowledging his own nothingness and God's greatness in power and in grace. It was altogether true that the Lord had taken David from following the sheep, had chosen him from a very humble family, had protected him through the years, and now had crowned his mercy and his blessings upon him by speaking of the perpetuity of his kingdom. The attitude of adoration, of worship, of praise becomes anyone who is the recipient of such grace.

Need we be reminded that we are the objects of such grace? For God laid hold upon us when we were without God in the world, when we were afar off, strangers from the covenant of promise, and has brought us nigh, made us His children, made us a kingdom of priests unto Himself. There is no room for pride, no place for self-glory. What David did is the only thing we can do, that is to bow before the Almighty with thankful hearts. Such grace so overwhelms us that there is little that can be said, but, oh, how much there is to be felt in one's heart.—Moody Monthly.

24:24 we have this quotation from Christ, "For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; in so much that if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect." It is likely that some of these are being deceived, but that does not make the promises of God any less effective. They are dependable, and if we will obey and trust they will be ours to enjoy as much as it was Peter and John's. We are missing great blessings because we are not contending for that faith. As I see it that is the reason we don't expect our pastors to heal the sick, as Peter did.

I have written this article because I see where I have missed many wonderful blessings because I did not have faith. This is written with a hope that it would encourage you, dear reader, not to be satisfied until you have gotten the faith that was once delivered to the saints. God bless all the Baptist messengers and pray for me.

ATTENTION!

Free Will Baptist Women of Georgia

Beginning on July 30, 1950, there will be a week of training for the Woman's Auxiliary workers at Camp Mt. Bethel, four miles north of Ashburn, Georgia. The subjects to be taught are: Missions, Stewardship, Personal Evangelism, and Woman's Auxiliary Manual of Methods.

Mrs. Chester Pelt of Marianna, Florida, and Miss Laura B. Barnard, returned missionary from India, will be the instructors. There will be a singspirational period each evening, followed with a message by Miss Barnard.

Each person attending will be expected to take with them towels, bath cloths, soap, two sheets, a pillow and case, notebook, and pencil. If you have one of Miss Barnard's books, "His Name among All Nations," be sure to take it along with you. If you do not have one, borrow one from your neighbor.

The board will be only one dollar per day. If you have small children and want to take them, bring them along with you. We will care for them while you are on class.

This will be the first time that F. W. B. Women of Georgia have ever had a training course at the camp. We feel that it will prove to be a blessing to everyone who attends this camp. If you want to become a more efficient worker for the Lord, come and study with us. We urge every president of the local auxiliaries to come if possible. We want a representative from each local auxiliary of the State. Ministers are given a cordial invitation to attend if they so desire. This study course will be a help to them to promote the auxiliary work in their churches.

Remember the time: July 30 through August 4, 1950, and the place: Camp Mt. Bethel. It is located four miles north of Ashburn, Georgia, U. S. highway No. 41.

his death there were 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Our sorrow at the loss of him can never be fully overcome, but our broken hearts are at least partially mended by the thought that he lived a true and faithful life unto his death. We join together in praying that we might live such a life that will merit our being reunited with him where we can join in singing praises to our Almighty-God around His throne in Heaven.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in the Baptist.

IN MEMORY OF SISTER ALMA HESTER WHO DIED JANUARY 8, 1950

Death has again entered our church and auxiliary, and called to the eternal home a dearly beloved sister who has completed her faithful labors here in ministry to the cry of orphan, to the call of want, and to the piteous wail of sorrow, and as a recompense has received the welcome plaudit, "Well done," from the Great Master.

And whereas, the loving Father has called our beloved and respected sister home, and she having been a true and faithful member of our church and auxiliary, therefore be it resolved, that White Oak Free Will Baptist Church of Bladenboro, in testimony of its loss, drape its walls in mourning, and that we tender to the family of our deceased sister our sincere condolence in their deep affliction and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

"Over the hills of time to the valley of endless years;
Over the road of woe to the land that is free from tears:
Up from the mount of men to the place where angels are
This is the road of mortality to the Wonder goal afar."

Mrs. H. C. Adcox, Mrs. Mary Storm

MRS. E. B. LANIER

On the 27th of May, 1950, at the age of 65, Mrs. Elizabeth Lanier passed from this life to her eternal home to be with the Lord. She was the wife of Bro. E. B. Lanier of Kinston. Mrs. Lanier united with Saints Delight Church, Pitt County, when a young girl. She moved her membership to the Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston about the year 1902, and remained a faithful worker in the church until her death.

The funeral was conducted from the First F. W. B. Church in Kinston by the pastor, Rev. A. L. Reynolds, assisted by Rev. J. C. Moyer of St. W. Hill, and Rev. Clifton Rice of Kinston.

She leaves to mourn their loss her husband E. B. Lanier two girls, Mrs. Clifton Rice, and Mrs. J. E. Harris all of Kinston, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Lonely the house and sad the hours
Since our dear one passed away,
To join the host and forever live
In a land of endless day.

When day is done, and night shades fall,
To unto the room we steal,
To talk with God before we sleep,
Then we her presence feel.

Her voice not audible we hear,
Her counsel day by day,
Seems ever clear, "Do your best,"
And "From evil turn away."

We fancy now we see her,
Walk gently down the aisle,
While the organ plays the prelude,
In a low melodious style.

Her church she loved, and sought to do,
The things she felt was right.
No fear had she, no sad remorse,
When to friends she said, "God Night."

DEATH OF M. W. WOODALL

It is with saddened hearts that we attempt to write of the death of our loving husband and father, whom God called from this life on January 30, 1950.

He had been a member of Tee's Chapel F. W. Baptist Church for about 40 years. He had been a Ruling Elder about 25 or 30 years. He was devoted wholeheartedly to his church and Sunday School, which he held in higher esteem than anything else he knew, and he was always ready to lend a helping hand to its needs. During the 40 years of his Christian life, he worked tirelessly for the upbuilding of his church and community and was especially interested in his Sunday school and the youth of his community. The vacancy which he has left in his church and community cannot be regained, but he has left with his many friends and loved ones a pleasant memory of him that will never fade.

He was married to Hettie B. Davis on April 1, 1906, and to this union were born nine children; six girls and three boys. At

Fifth Eastern Sunday School Convention

The Sunday School Convention of the Fifth Eastern Union will be held at the Mt. Zion Church, July 30, 1950. This church is located near Cash Corner, on the Vandamere Highway. A welcome is extended to all Sunday Schools of the District and a large attendance is expected to assemble for a most enjoyable day of Christian fellowship.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

Will You Be the Next?

Sarah C. Lewis

David did not really want to go to the meeting that evening, but he saw no way to get out of it. Father and Mother would be so hurt if he did not go, and would talk to him until it would be worse than listening to the preacher. He would just as well go without all that bother, he thought. And anyway, it wouldn't be so bad if Jack and Bill were there, for they could all have fun on the back seat together. And of course, they would be there, for their parents were just as strict as his own. What was the matter with fathers and mothers anyway, he wondered? Why did they make their children go to meetings and want them to act like "old fogies" just because that was what they liked to do themselves?

When David got to the meeting, he found Bill and Jack there as usual, on the back seat, and he joined them. The boys found so much to talk about, and so many amusing things to do, that they heard very little of what the preacher said that evening. They were so engrossed in their fun that their voices grew quiet loud, and the preacher stopped halfway through his sermon and spoke to them. He had been speaking of how suddenly death comes to many people, and had just said that it is very often those who apparently have a long life ahead of them, who are taken. So he said to these boys who were disturbing the meeting:

"Stop, boys, and think of your precious unsaved souls. Death comes to the young as well as to the old. Perhaps one of you, who are sitting there on the back seat, young and in good health, may be the next to go, who knows? Think where your soul would be if your call came tonight!"

The boys were sobered up a little by this, and there was quiet for the rest of the meeting. But when the last hymn was sung and the people started to leave the meeting, the solemnity vanished, and the boys rushed out to continue their fun on the outside. They disturbed the peaceful Lord's Day evening with their fun and pranks, and helped to take away the solemnity which the message had left upon the people. Especially did they mock the preacher who had spoken to them so earnestly.

"Do you think I'll 'be the next'?" asked David with mock solemnity, trying to lengthen his face and look very pious, and the other boys screamed with laughter.

On the next Lord's Day, David slipped off after dinner, saying that he would soon be back. But unknown to his parents, and against their often-expressed wishes, he went to see a young man of his acquaintance and borrowed his motorcycle, and sped out of town for an afternoon of fun.

An hour later he rounded a curve at a terrific speed and met a car head-on, which was in the act of passing another car. He was directly in its path, and there was no way to avert a collision. In a matter of seconds, David was lying unconscious on the highway, the motorcycle being completely demolished.

He was taken to the nearest hospital at once. His name and address were in his pocket and his parents were quickly notified. They came at once, but they were too late to see their boy alive. He breathed his last just as they entered the room. He had never regained consciousness. He was "the next" indeed! Though a young man in his teens, who might have been expecting to have a long life ahead of him, he had been suddenly ushered into eternity, and worst of all, he was totally unprepared!

Dear boys and girls, what about you? Are you looking forward to many years of pleasure and sin ahead of you, and thinking that when you are old and good for nothing else, that you will offer the dregs of your life to God? Stop and think of the risk you are taking! At any moment God may decide to cut off your breath, for it is held in His hand (Dan. 5:33), and so would end your last opportunity to be saved. If you for one moment realized your great danger, you could not lie down and sleep again until you were sheltered from the coming wrath by the Blood of Christ.

Many people suppose that they will have an opportunity to be saved on their deathbed, but few people have a deathbed these days. Sudden death by accident or heart failure seems the rule rather than the exception.

To come to Christ, you need only one qualification; your guilt. For it was sinners that He came to save (Luke 5:32). God says in His Word that "all have sinned" (Rom. 3:23), and that "the wages of sin is death" (6:23). But the holy and spotless Son of God laid down His sinless life in atonement for your sinful one; He bore the punishment which you should have borne. And because of that fact, He can now say to you:

"But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His Name" (John 1:12).

Notice carefully what this verse does not say. There is no mention of embracing a "religion," or of observing ordinances, or of living a good life to merit salvation. For God's salvation is in a Person, the Lord Jesus Christ, who paid our penalty and died that we might live.

He said of Himself, "I am the Way," not "I am a way." There is no other way!

"He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (1 John 5:12).

A SPLENDID FATHER'S DAY PROGRAM AT OLD MOTHER CHURCH, NEW ZION, SOUTH CAROLINA

Old Mother Free Will Baptist church has again been blessed by the mighty hand of God. We all enjoyed a wonderful Father's Day program in honor of the living Fathers, and the heavenly Father. The program represented the Fathers whom God created, and the Cross of which Jesus Christ was crucified. We wish to say that the leaders went all out for this program.

We are very proud of the little group of members that took a part in our program. May the Lord greatly bless them. We are asking all Christians everywhere to pray for us here at Old Mother church, and for the Free Will Baptist work wherever it may reach.

Mt. Zion Church Has Good Revival

Mount Zion F. W. B. Church, Washington County, North Carolina, held a successful revival meeting, beginning on June 11 and continuing through June 18, with Rev L. B. Manning doing the preaching. He was assisted by our pastor, Rev. E. E. Edwards, of Chocowinity, N. C.

There were two souls who were won for Christ during this meeting. Many of the church members, as well as others, received blessings from this revival. The messages were inspiring and helpful to everyone who attended the meeting.

Everyone seemed to have enjoyed the children's choir, as they sang several songs for us each night.

We always extend a hearty welcome to visitors and friends to come and attend our church services whenever convenient. We have services each first and third Sundays of the month. Brother Edwards is a good preacher. Our Sunday School superintendent, Tommie West, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend Sunday School with us each Sunday morning. Our school is growing all the while, and the work is moving along in a very good way.

Marsh Swamp Church Holds Successful Bible School

We held the seventh annual Vacation Bible School at the Marsh Swamp F. W. B. Church, Rock Ridge, North Carolina, with the commencement exercises being held at the church on Friday night. The parents of the students joined the group for a picnic dinner which followed the Friday morning session.

There were enrolled in this session 175 students, and the average attendance was 160 for each day of the session. There were 139 who received certificates for perfect attendance. This year's age groups ranged from four years old through sixteen.

On Thursday of this week we took an offering for foreign missions, giving each child an opportunity to share in this mission program of our church.

THE 101st BLOW

When nothing seems to help, I go and look at a stone-cutter hammering away at his rock, perhaps a hundred times without as much as a crack showing in it. Yet, at the 101st blow it will split in two, and I know it was not that blow that did it, but all that had gone before.—Jacob A. Riis.

It isn't the whistle that pulls the train.

REMEMBER THE AGED

E. B. SNAVELY

There would scarcely be a youth anywhere, who has not at some time felt the kindly touch of an older person in his life. Perhaps a grandparent, neighbor or friend offered encouragement at the right moment, during a childish difficulty. How good it was to know that someone cared and understood!

There is somewhat of a tendency in our day for the younger generation to be independent, often clinging to their parents and not wanting advice from their grandparents. Older people love to be consulted, too, at times, and it cheers their hearts to feel they are not slighted. It is very unkind to make anyone feel he is not wanted, and even worse to make fun of him; for remorse is likely to come back on the doer.

One beautiful Saturday afternoon two small boys were helping their father to sort apples in the orchard. As they were carefully picking the good ones from the imperfect, the younger spoke up:

"Tommy, let's take some of these nice rosy apples to poor old Mrs. Lane. She lives all alone, and hardly ever has any company since she moved into that little cottage."

"Yes, let's do," said Donald eagerly. When supper was over, the happy pair hurried down the road with their filled basket.

Many were the smiles on the faces of the three as Tommy and Donald shared, and dear old Mrs. Lane received. The Lord Jesus looks down on such scenes with rejoicing, as whatever is done for others in His Name is done for Him. He is the most pleased when something is given without expectation of return.

When Jesus rules the hearts of His followers, He whispers precious things to them. When He lived on earth, even His very presence brought comfort and healing to those who followed Him. Nothing was ever too much trouble for Him to do, and He lived so close to God, His Heavenly Father, that He knew just what He desired.

Boys and girls, do not become weary in well doing. The Bible tells us not to faint, also, to not mistrust God's wonderful care.

"By love serve one another" (Gal. 5:13). That means to be of service wherever God calls us, and to whom.

NOTICE!

I am in a position to preach in the afternoons of the First and Third Sundays, provided I can get such work, in Carteret County or near by Morehead City, N. C. Should any church desire my service, you can write me at 1115 Evans Street, Morehead City, N. C.

Life's Lessons

I learn, as the years roll onward
And I leave the past behind,
That much I had counted sorrow
But proves that God is kind;
That many a flower I had longed for
Had hidden a thorn of pain,
And many a rugged by-path
Let to fields of ripened grain.

The clouds that cover the sunshine
They can not banish the sun;
And the earth shines out the brighter
When the weary rain is done.
We must stand in the deepest shadow
To see the clearest light;
And often through wrong's own darkness
Comes the weary strength of light.

And so I learned my lesson;
And through the weary years,
His helping hand sustained me,
And wiped away the tears.
And ever the glorious sunlight
From the heavenly home streamed down,
Where the school-tasks are all ended,
And the cross is exchanged for the crown.

I broadcast over the air from Station WDWD, Dawson, Georgia, from 1:45 to 2:15 P. M. Monday through Saturday, and also on Sunday at 2:P. M. These programs are given on Eastern time.

There may be some people taking the Baptist paper, living in reach of these stations, who may not know of this "Faith Program," which we are broadcasting.

The Mission Board of Georgia is backing this program, but they have had to pay only about one-fourth of the expense of these broadcasts. Will you pray for us while we preach to half of the State of Georgia? Please help us to evangelize a million people. This is the quickest way that I have found to spread the cause of missions among the people of the State.

To Be Conducted by Rev. Charles Craddock

There will begin a youth revival meeting at Mt. Tabor Church, near Creswell, North Carolina, on Sunday night, July 30, 1950. The Reverend Charles Craddock will be the evangelist.

Then, on Monday night after the first Sunday in August, which will be the fourth, our annual revival will begin. This meeting will be conducted by the Reverend Herman Wooten of Garner, North Carolina. He will be assisted by the pastor, Rev. L. E. Ambrose.

We are extending a cordial invitation to everyone to attend this meeting. We are asking also the Christian people to pray for the success of this meeting. Pray that many may be saved, and that the church may be revived, and much good be accomplished. Truly the field is ripe unto harvest, and there is work for all to do to lead the lost to Christ.

Sound Advice to a Young Preacher

(Scripture from American Standard Version)

Rev. George Waggoner,
Mt. Vernon, Illinois

This sound advice is none of my own, but it is that of one of the greatest preachers that ever lived, the Apostle Paul. It is to his young son in the ministry, Timothy. The full account, II Timothy, was probably written from Rome about 66 A. D. and contains the last recorded words of the Apostle. Paul was in Rome at that time. He had been deserted by many of his former associates, and was expecting very soon to be led out to execution. But he must leave this last bit of counsel. If it was good to encourage and instruct this young pastor in his ministerial work, it is good instruction to us in this modern day. It is vitally related to our own lives, coming as it does from the aged apostle who knew what it meant to be fully surrendered and to suffer for his Lord and Saviour.

Timothy had gone along very well so far. He had the unfeigned faith, which dwelt first in his grandmother, Lois, and then in his mother, Eunice. He had had the strong arm and experienced life of Paul in the ministry to lean on in times of trouble and discouragement. The protection was comforting to him. Now fifteen years after the establishment of this union, Timothy is about to be left alone. It is probably the darkest hour of his life. His many duties as head of the great Ephesian pastorate, with its many outposts, seem to press him down. Heresies and spiritual declension were on every hand. In this dark hour what could he do? That unfeigned faith must be exercised now. It wasn't easy to do. How could this timid, self-pitying, fearful preacher rise to meet the challenge in the face of such circumstances? "Through Christ," we would say. Yes, but that is so general. How? Paul knew the answer.

Chapter 1, verse 6, "For which cause I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift of God, which is in thee. . . ." Some believe that Timothy had an unusual gift of some kind, to which he refers. Others believe that it was simply the gift that is given to all Christians—faith and ability to witness in some way. At any rate the application is easily made. The figure is used here of a fire that is beginning to die down. The fire must frequently be stirred up and fresh fuel added or it will go out.

I remembered that when I was a boy at home we burned wood in our heating stove. On cold days we constantly had to stir up the fire, turn over the stick of wood, and add new. The fire then would burn brightly for a while. Before long the process had to be repeated. So it is with the gift of God in His people. Stir up the gift that is in you by its usage and it will increase. Let it alone and it will go out and your gift will have been given to you in vain. Use the faith that you have and God will increase your faith. He will not give you more faith until you use what you have. "To him that hath shall be given. . ." that is if he faithfully uses that which he has. Isn't it true that many of us need to stir into the flame the gift that is in us, and to return to the zeal and passion of our first love? It isn't that we are doing "big things" against the will of God, but that we aren't doing those little things in life that make a fully surrendered and victorious child of God.

Chapter 1, verse 8, "Be not ashamed therefore of the testimony of our Lord nor of me his prisoner. . ." Timothy was a timid preacher. Paul, therefore, continues to say to him, "Don't be ashamed." Don't be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord—that is, the gospel in general. In the sight of the world there once appeared to be a reason why a man should be ashamed of this—be ashamed of Him who was crucified as a malefactor. But when the gospel became the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, it was a subject in which to exalt. How often are we ashamed of the testimony, of our Saviour and the gospel! At church or among Christians it is easy to give a testimony for Christ. But among the unsaved often it is different. We are afraid or ashamed. We ought not to be because we ourselves are the living proof of the power of the gospel. The great hindrance of usefulness is this slavish fear. Therefore the apostle warns the young preacher against this very thing. Stirring up the gift in you will help to overcome it.

Chapter 11, Verse 1, "Thou therefore, my child, be strengthened in the grace that is in Christ Jesus." Some one has said that no one is saved without a struggle. If then you are going to struggle (against the Devil, of course) you must be strengthened. The strengthening must be in Christ, too. Peter was strong in his own grace. You remember what happened to him. Be strengthened by stirring up the gift and by being not ashamed. This is what he is saying: "Timothy, we've been together these many years and have been a strength to each other. Now you are alone. Rely the more on Christ. But don't neglect to be strengthened also by committing to faithful men those things that you have heard from me that they might be able to stand and that you might become a strength to them." Be strengthened through fellowship, through prayer, through witnessing, and through the study of the Word of God.

Chapter 11, verses 3 and 4, "Suffer hardship with me as a good soldier of Christ Jesus. No soldier on service entangleth himself in the affairs of this life; that he may please him who enrolled him as a soldier." The soldier who faithfully preaches the true gospel of Christ will be exposed to hardships and difficulties. If he is to please the one who enrolled him as a soldier, he must not become entangled with things that are useless. He must "burn the bridges" behind him lest he should be tempted to re-cross to the place from whence he

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

Revival at Rock of Zion—

I am scheduled to conduct a series of evangelistic meetings at Rock of Zion, Grantsboro, N. C., beginning week after the Second Sunday in August and going through the third Sunday, the Lord's will.

Open dates before the fall, or periods that I can conduct meetings are from August 1 to the 8th, and also some time for meetings in September and October, and on for the future. If we can be of service to the church and our Christ we are happy. The Lord is blessing me greatly in these days, both physically and spiritually. You who pray for self, remember me when you go to the Lord.

We have so much to praise the Lord for: 71 years of age today (June the 22) the longest day in the year. Able to go with more ease than ten or twelve years ago, teaching and preaching the Gospel of our Christ.

A Wonderful Testimony—

I am in possession of a small booklet, or tract, put out by Joseph Zacchelle, D. D., the title of which is, "The Priest Who Became a Christian." Mr. Zacchelle gives the account of how he was converted, but he is not like a great many people who are converted to a new way, he says that he "Loves the Roman Catholics," and he works among them to lead them to a definite knowledge of and experience in the saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.

In his monthly magazine, "The Convert," he has an editorial headed, "Back to Christ," which is one of the most Biblical and the most logical editorials that I have read in a long time in any religious magazine. It was a strong admonition to people not to trust in any power, nor person, nor religion, but the Lord Jesus Christ. Mr. Zacchelle does not condemn those who are Roman Catholics, like some whom I have read after in other magazines, he only blames the doctrines. I quote from his tract which states "My Conversion from the Pope to Christ." Quote: "Every time I see a priest walking in the street it seems impossible, unbelievable, a dream, that once not long ago I myself had been a Roman Catholic priest, that I had to believe what he has to believe; that I had to teach what he has to teach. I clearly know why I left the church of Rome, but what I cannot fully understand is why priests stay in the priesthood; why I stayed in the Roman church as a priest." Then Mr. Zacchelle goes on to place the blame. I quote: "Should I blame my parents for sending me to a seminary at the age of ten to become a priest? Indeed, I cannot blame my parents, but only the Roman Catholic teaching about the dignity and power of a priest which had lured and induced my beloved mother and father to sacrifice their only boy to the Pope. They wanted me to become a priest because, deceived by false doctrine, they had been promised to become parents of another God." Mr. Zacchelle says, in stating his conversion, and I quote: "It was on a Sunday, February, 1944, when I turned on the radio and accidentally turned it on a Protestant church program. The pastor was giving his radio message. I was going to change the program because I was not allowed to listen to protestant sermons, but (I do not know why) I kept listening."

Dr. Zacchelle closes out this tract, by saying: "I could not stay any longer in the Roman Catholic Church because I could not continue to follow two masters, the Pope and Christ. I could not believe two contradictory teachings, tradition and the Bible. I had to choose between Christ and the Pope, between tradition and the Bible; and I have chosen Christ and the Bible: I left the Roman priesthood and the Roman religion on February 22, 1944, and now I have been led by the Holy Spirit to evangelize Roman Catholics, and urge Christians to witness to them without fear."

Church Members—

There is a vast difference between just ordinary church members and those who are members of the Body of Christ—The Church. All that a number of church members want is just to make Christ a "Fire Escape"; just miss hell and get into heaven—just inside. Usually these people get all they can for as little as they can. They go to church occasionally, when it does not take them from their worldly pleasure. They rather criticize the pastor than to support him. If the paint is all off and gone from the church walls, "It is all right, after all it is only another house—just a meeting place," they say.

The real Christian is not so. He is anxious about the welfare of his physical plant—the church building and educational buildings and the parsonage. He is interested in the program of the church. He longs to see the lost brought to Christ. He is willing to spend his time and talent and money to bring Christ to the hearts of men everywhere.

He goes to church to associate with God's people. He worships because he loves the Christ who bought the church with His own precious blood. He does not merely seek to get to Heaven. He is anxious to take others along with him. He cannot be satisfied only in doing his best for the Christ he loves and those for whom Christ died. He shakes the pastor's hand with a smile of gladness. He never hangs around, he just makes it his business to be among those who are leading with a forward "Let's Go." He wants God to use him. He never tries to use God. He usually prays "Lord use me." He wants the Holy Ghost to have control and use him. Instead of saying, "I've got the Holy Ghost," He lets the Holy Ghost do the work, and gives the glory to Jesus. Why not be a real Christian. The way is through being born of the Spirit, filled with the Spirit and being used by the Spirit." "A full surrender, brings a full blessing," said Francis Havergal, and this is my testimony.

THE CHURCH OF TOMORROW

This is a part of the message Dad left with this church, Sunday, April 25, 1948, just five days before being called to his heavenly reward. I am going to quote him the best I can, from one of the outlines I think he used. I quote: "The world is facing the greatest crisis in its history; everything has changed. Larger visions and greater responsibility are coming to us every day, but the most vital of all is that of our church life. It must be a Spiritual Church.

Stanley H. Everett
424 Barclay Ave.
Portsmouth, Va.

whole Gospel, one that reaches the whole man and his various needs. It must recognize only ONE MASTER, and seek to make His Life and His standards realized throughout the world. Right now the church is facing the greatest Missionary opportunities of the Christian Centuries."

PORTSMOUTH FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH

"It must seek to transform into every day life, the Spiritual principles of Jesus. It must not proclaim a new Gospel, but just simply get back to Christ. Its cry must be unanimous and from the heart: 'Lord, to whom shall go?' It must be a Church emphasizing the democracy of Jesus, and His band of fisherman disciples. The future generation will demand such proof of our profession in Christ, and it behooves us to be at our very best, if we are to make the world safe for democracy. The same loyalty, faithfulness, and service to our great Commander will enable us to carry on the task that is ours to do. Christian brotherhood must take the place of 'Everyman for himself, for 'No man liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself,' whether we live or die we are the Lord's. It must be a Humanitarian Church. A church with a larger program, as we are facing greater opportunities, and meeting with greater needs than ever before. It must live and proclaim the

"He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father" (Jon. 14:12).

After this message Dad said that he saw great opportunities for the church here, and that he was leaving for home on Thursday. We have often wondered, if he had a vision of the coming week, and knew that his call was near and his work on earth was about to end. Again we wonder if he wasn't speaking of his Heavenly Home. I did my best to keep him with us until Friday noon, so that I could take him by car, knowing that he wasn't much for riding busses. But he would not be persuaded to remain over even for a day. He often remarked that the Lord willing, he would like to be called from his pulpit, or from New Bern, as most of his friends were in and around New Bern. His last words to the church in Portsmouth were those of his own; "Children keep on keeping on."

The Portsmouth church again wishes to thank each of you who have made it possible. The going hasn't been easy, but it is keeping on, and will until victory has been won, the Lord willing. The pastor and the church solicits the prayers of all praying people, that the church may forge ahead under the banner of Christ our Lord. The membership is now fifty five, twenty two male members, seventeen of whom are the head of families. I am sorry that I don't have the figures at this time, that you may know how these people are really working. Perhaps I can pass this information on to you later.

SOME DAY IS TOO LATE!

A little girl with shining eyes—
Her little face aglow,
Said, "Daddy, it is almost time
For Sunday School, let's go.
They teach us there of Jesus' love,
Of how He died for all
Those who on Him will call."

"Oh, no!" said Daddy, "not today,
I've worked hard all week,
And I must have one day of rest,
I'm going to the creek
For there I can relax and rest,
And fishing's fine, they say,
So run along; don't bother me,
We'll go to church some day."

Months and years have passed away
But Daddy hears that plea no more:
"Let's go to Sunday School,"
Those childish days are o'er.
And now that Daddy's growing old,
When life is almost through
He finds some time to go to church.
But what does daughter do?

She says: "Oh Daddy, not today—
I stayed up almost all night
And I've just got to get some sleep,
Besides, I look a fright!"
Then Daddy lifts a trembling hand
To brush away the tears,
As again he hears the pleading voice
Distinctly through the years.

He sees a small girl's shining face
Upturned, with eyes aglow,
As she says, "It's time for Sunday School;
Please, Daddy, won't you go?"

1950 CONFERENCE EXPECTED TO EXCEL ALL PREVIOUS GATHERINGS

The call is being sent out to women of the Free Will Baptist churches everywhere to come to Cragmont Assembly, in the inspiring mountains of Western North Carolina, for the big conference of Christian women, August 14-21. Interest manifested to this date indicate that this conference may excel in attendance, inspiration, and fellowship all previous meetings of women at Cragmont, as wonderful as they have been. From here and there have come the encouraging assurance from women who have been to former conferences, from women who plan to go this year, and from women who may never be privileged to go: "I am praying for the Woman's Conference at Cragmont."

Women are invited from everywhere, north, south, east and west. But registrations must come in early if you are not to run the risk of receiving a little note, which would be sent with as much regret as received, "Sorry, but every place at Cragmont has been taken." Today is the day! Now is the accepted time! (Time you may be accepted!) So, women, register at once by sending your name, full address, church, and conference, together with the registration fee of $2.00, plus the 50c camp insurance fee, and say, "Reserve a place for me at Cragmont." The cost of room and board for the week is $15.00, which you will pay at the assembly.

A bus is being arranged for women going from eastern North Carolina, with the following schedule of fares: Round trip from New Bern, $12.50; from Kinston, $11.75; from Wilson, $11.25; from Raleigh, $10.50; from Durham, $10.00. Those desiring reservations on the bus should send in request at once, accompanied by the required deposit of $5.00, which will be applied on the fare, balance to be paid upon boarding bus.

Let me introduce to you in advance our guest minister, who will bring us messages of inspiration and instruction each day at 11:45 A. M. He is Rev. F. B. Cherry, pastor of the Edgemont Church in Durham, N. C., and has been a successful evangelist for a number of years. Brother Cherry is a man of fine Christian character, a likable personality, and a speaker whose manner is pleasing and whose message rings true to God's Word. We consider ourselves most fortunate in securing his service for this conference.

Other speakers and instructors beside the Rev. Mr. Cherry include Mrs. Ethel Whaley, of Jacksonville, N. C., who will bring instruction on "Women Launching Out," and "Fishing for our Youth"; Mrs. Walter Carter of Roanoke, N. C., who will conduct morning devotions and give instruction on Stewardship; Mrs. Marvin Moor of Scotland Neck, N. C., who will be the conference pianist. All the addresses and instruction will harmonize with the conference theme, "Launching Out Into the Deep." We hope in addition to the scheduled features to present some "surprises" during the conference.

AN S-O-S CALL

The Woman's Auxiliary Convention of North Carolina is sending out an "S-O-S" call to all local auxiliaries to push the Anna Phillips Loan Fund forward with all possible power during the next few weeks. There are worthy needs which cannot be met at this time in connection with making it possible for some of our finest young people to enter the Bible College this fall. Auxiliaries having cards are urged to complete them at once and send the money in. Mail all donations to

National Sunday School Convention
Convening August 8-10, 1950

The National Sunday School Convention will convene with East Tupelo F. W. B. Church August 8-10, 1950.

Saratoga Reporting Good Bible School

Miss Sherley Little

Our Daily Vacation Bible school began June 12 and continued through June 16. Mrs. Paul Thigpen was director, Miss Mary A. Whitley was secretary, and Mr. Jimmy Letchworth was the assistant director. Miss Joyce Proctor was the pianist, and Miss Jannie Dildy was song leader.

As each pupil brought a new student to the Bible school a gold star was placed on his crown. The enrollment reached 228. There were seven classes, namely: Beginners, Primaries, Junior No. 1, Junior No. 2, Junior No. 3, the Intermediates, and the Adults. The Beginners enrolled 45, and the teachers were Mrs. Joel Ellis, and Mrs. Hubert Burress. The Primary class enrolled 39, and the teachers were Mrs. Albert Proctor, and Mrs. Robert Bynum.

Class No. 1 of the Juniors enrolled 15, and the teacher was Mrs. Mary Lou Jackson. Class No. 2 of the Junior department enrolled 24, and the teacher was Mrs. Jessie Lou White. The Junior class No. 3 enrolled 27, and the teacher was Mr. Albert Proctor. The Intermediate class enrolled 39 and the teacher was Mrs. Mabel Bunch. The Adult class enrolled 42, and the teacher was Rev. Ranton Jackson, the pastor of the church. Mrs. C. W. Burress, Mrs. Sadie Beamon, and Mrs. Lucile Burress had charge of hand work for the girls, and Mr. Albert Proctor, and Rev. Ranton Jackson had charge of the boys in the handicraft work. The following had charge of the devotions during the week: Monday, Mrs. Mary Lou Jackson; Tuesday, Miss Margaret Price; Wednesday, Miss Lillie Mae Owens; Thursday, Miss Ann Webb; Friday, Miss Annie Burress. During the week we had special music directed by Miss Peggy Varnell and Connie and Willa Jackson.

The average daily attendance was 192. The refreshments were donated each day by different members of the church. The Christian Church across the street from our church generously offered two of their Sunday School rooms for our use for class work during the Bible School. This offer was accepted, and we as a church wish to express our appreciation to these church people for their generosity.

Mr. Jimmy Letchworth was the driver of the bus which belongs to the church and Sunday School. He conveyed by the bus many of the pupils to the Bible school. We awarded 172 certificates on Friday afternoon, and closed the school by giving the children an old-fashion picnic in the park in Wilson. Everyone declared that it was the best Bible School we have ever had. They said that it was a full week of instruction, inspiration, and recreation.

Tulsa Leagues Report Good Camp

New Officers Installed

We, the First Mission Leaguers, would like to report our Youth Camp through the columns of the Baptist paper. We had an enrollment of 143 in attendance. There were 17 of this number saved upon making a profession of Christ as their personal Saviour.

The camp lasted for ten days, beginning June 26 and running through July 5. Rev. John H. West, pastor of First Church of Tulsa, Oklahoma, was the General Director of the camp.

We held our Annual League Business day on Thursday, July 6, and the new officers are as follows: President, Rev. Wade Jernigan; Vice-President, Don Wagner; Recording secretary, Carolyn Franklin; Corresponding secretary, Thelma Lister; Treasurer, Shirley Day; Sponsor, Rev. W. C. Day.

We are asking the prayers of the Christian people for our Leaguers that they may go forward and do great things for the glory of God.

came. We, as soldiers, need the courage to face the future, knowing that we shall be victorious and knowing that all things work together for good to them that love God and are the called according to His purpose. When Cortez landed in Mexico in the days of early conquest of this continent, with a handful of soldiers, he faced three million hostile Indians. He had to conquer or be conquered. You remember also that after the Lord's death Peter said, "I go a fishing." He had saved back his nets, just in case. So all he needed to do was to unpack them and go back to his old trade. He should have destroyed them. Young soldier of the Cross, if you would preach the gospel thoroughly, and give full proof of your ministry, you must have no other work. You won't need to have anything to fall back on nor to become entangled in the affairs of this life.

Chapter 2, Verse 15, "Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the Word of truth." This verse has been interpreted to mean several different things. I thing the apostle had no reference of how to correctly interpret Scripture; nor was he referring to the care taken to divide the sacrifice under the Law. This is what he is saying: "Young preacher, endeavor to cultivate and improve your heart and mind that thou mayest not be a reproach to Him from whom you profess to receive your commis-

“YET YE SAY, WHEREIN”

Fred E. Maxey
126 Woodview Ave.
Norfolk, Virginia

TEXT: Malachi 1:2—“Wherein”

Malachi 3:7—“Wherein”

How often we hear these words “Wherein”? We all know that “Malachi” means “My Messenger” or “Messenger of God.” We learn from Nehemiah of the time of confusion during Nehemiah’s absence. It seems that this is the time that Malachi must have prophesied. The burden of his message is the love of Jehovah and the sins of the people and the Day of the Lord. He established the house of God among them, but their worship was formal and insincere. Nehemiah 13:1-12. The Book of Malachi is only four short chapters and only fifty-five verses. It is in four natural divisions:

- First: The love of God for His people.
- Second: The sins of the priest rebuked.
- Third: The sins of the people rebuked.
- Fourth: The Day of the Lord.

The first five verses tell of the love of God for His people. Yet the people question God’s love. They say, “Wherein hast thou loved us”? The next eighteen verses are concerning the sinning priest. Yet, these priests want to know “wherein have we despised thee”? The Lord tells them, literally, “I would that one among you would shut the doors of the temple, that no more vain fires should be kindled on my altar.” This reminds us of Isaiah 1:11-15. What could you expect of the people when the priests were insincere? The spirituality of the people can go no higher than the leaders. If the preacher and the teacher are insincere, you will find the church full of insincere people. A preacher that is not an example to his people is a stench in the nostrils of God. Verse ten in chapter two emphasizes sins against the brotherhood. This refers to the marrying into foreign families. God’s people were to be a separate people.

Next: Verses 11-16 deal with sin against God in the families. This also covers marriage among the heathen, and also pretending to be a separate people—shedding many tears on the altar and pretending they were separate from others. God had set Israel aside to be His people and to represent God in the earth. Surely, this is as true of His Church in this day of grace. He did not form His Church for the purpose of becoming a great ecclesiastical organization, to become a power in politics, in finance, nor to deal in the marts of the world system; but to represent God in the earth by a life that would represent Him. Verse 17 speaks of the sin of insincere religious profession. They worried God with their words, mere lip profession. They called evil good and doubted that God would send judgment upon them for their sins. How many sermons do we hear today that mentions God’s judgment against sin? I think you will agree with me that we are living in a day when almost anything will go. We have become so anxious for numbers that we have sacrificed quality.

The third chapter tells of the “Judgment of the Lord.” Verses 7-14 tell of the people robbing God, and they say, “Wherein have we robbed thee”? O, but this is a delicate question. It would probably be diplomatic to pass over this. This is one load in the gospel gun that will certainly hit a big flock of folk that claim to be Christians. But I did not load the gun, and we are commanded to preach the whole Counsel of God. This is a terrible charge God makes against His people. If a man rob his neighbor’s home or his chicken house, he is a bad citizen. A banker who steals the money intrusted to him is a bad fellow. It is robbery. Well, this is just what God charges His people with. Everything they had and everything we have is His, and He requires them and us to pay into His store house 10 per cent of what He made them, and us, stewards over, and they robbed Him of this 10 per cent. Oh, but some one says, “That law of tithing was under the old law.” Yes, we always look for something to justify us when we fail God, but the tithe was required long before the dispensation of law. The very first act of worship recorded in the Bible was accompanied by offering of material values, Genesis 4:3-7. Again, Abraham, the father of the faithful, gave a tenth to the priest and Melchizedek, as a token of his love for God. Genesis 14:17-20 and Genesis 15:1-5. True tithing was brought over into the dispensation of the Law, but even then, with the faithful Israelite, it was not merely a matter of obeying the law, but it was a joyful gift unto the Lord as a part of worship. Deut. 14:22-23 and Prov. 3:5-10. When the Pharisees get in bad concerning the tithe and received such a stinging rebuke from Jesus, was when they failed to recognize that the tithe meant not only the tithing of their earthly substance, but also submitting themselves along with their tithe and offering. They left off mercy, judgment and faith, Matthew 23:23. Jesus saw to it that the act of worship-tithing was carried over into the dispensation of grace, and He made it a part of worship, 1st Cor. 16:1-3; and there cannot be true worship without tithing and giving unto the Lord. True worship arises from an attitude of the soul, love is the passionate urge that gives expression in worship. I would have a hard time convincing you that I love a man while I had my hand in his pocket robbing him. Lip service is the cheapest form of worship. You have heard the expression, “that man is as close as the bark on a tree.” Well, this is a mother Hubbard fit compared to some so-called Christians. I have heard of a man who was so close he would chew his tobacco, then take it out and dry it in the sun, snuff the ashes, sneeze and grease his shoes. I would not vouch for the authenticity of this story, but if there was such a man, I imagine he was a member of some church. Churches hold more robbers than all the prisons in America. In the strictest Biblical sense, no man has the right of membership, or voice, or vote in the work of a New Testament Church (if he has been taught) who does not consistently tithe. In other words, no robber has a right in a church of Jesus Christ, and God says the non-tither is a robber. Let us notice the result of robbing God, the church has secularized herself. Shows, bazaars, etc. We claim to believe John 3:16, but we do not believe Matt. 6:33 and Phil. 4:19. We are living on cheap wafers instead of the Bread of Life.

Verses 16-18 show that a revival has broken out. Note if you please, that seven times the people, so to speak, tried to argue with God. When He would correct them, they would say, "Wherein have we done wrong?" It was only when they stopped and thought upon His Names, did they get right. Here are the Names:

- "Jehovah-jireh"—(The Lord will provide)
- "Jehovah-rapha"—(The Lord that healeth)
- "Jehovah-nissi"—(The Lord our banner)
- "Jehovah-Shalom"—(The Lord our peace)
- "Jehovah-ra, ah"—(The Lord our Shepherd)
- "Jehovah-tsidkenu"—(The Lord our Righteousness)
- "Jehovah-Shammah"—(The Lord is present)

When the people thought on these names, they found that God was an all sufficient God.

The name "Almighty God" is taken from the compound Hebrew word "El Shaddai." The qualifying word "Shaddai" is formed from the Hebrew word "shad" (the breast) invariably used in Scripture for a woman's breast as in Genesis 49:25, Job 3:12, and many other passages. This is the Great Qualifying Name of God, occurring thirty-one times in the Book of Job alone. A mother pours her life into her babe, nourisher, satisfier, quieter, strengthener, care for etc. They thought on these things. Hear the admonition of Paul in Phil. 4:8. In Malachi 4:16 "God harkened," literally, stooped, bent forward, to listen to them, and He remembered. He opened a book of remembrance and wrote their names and their prayers in a book. That is just like our loving Father when we pray and when we trust. Listen again, "they feared (that is they reverenc-ed) the Lord." They looked at themselves in the presence of a Holy God, then they spake often to one another, not about one another. All bickering gone, selfishness gone, envy gone, and suspicion gone. What a gathering! In love with God and in love with one another. Believe me, that was a real revival. Then the Lord makes a declaration concerning His coming. This little company, He says, "Will be Mine in the Day when I make up My pewels." Praise God for this promise. Yes, He will come as a thief in the night. In other words He will take only the precious jewels, not the rubbish. ARE YOU READY?

Do You Love the Lord?

Elder Robert Hiddle

We read these words spoken by Jesus: "If ye love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:15). The question is: Do we love God as much as we should? Let us notice the text, which says, "If ye love me, ye will." It does not say "maybe."

We are made to wonder sometimes, when we see some church members do certain things, if they really love the Lord? Many of them will go to church and Sunday School, and pay their pastor some money. This is what they should do, and most Christians will do this if they love God as they should.

But let us notice some of them after church and Sunday School are out. They will take their children to Sunday picnic, a show, to some ball game, or to some other worldly place of amusement. In Proverbs we read these words: "Train up the child in the way that he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." In this day, there are so many parents who are not being fair to their children.

How can we expect your children to grow up in the right way, and be God-loving men and women, when parents do not teach them the Bible, but set bad examples of living before them. This great commandment of God is being broken more and more each week by all classes of people. On Sundays, the highways are full of cars with people in them who have been fishing on God's holy day. A great many church people are saying that Sunday is the only day they have off from work, and it is the only day they can go fishing, to the shows, ball games and the like. Do they love God as they should? Do they regard Sunday as a holy day?

The Apostle James says for us to keep ourselves unspotted from the world (James 1:27b). In Matthew 6:24, Jesus said, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." When a person tries to do that, the Devil will draw him his way. It is easy for us to do what the Devil wants us to do. It is plain that when we let the Devil lead us, then we let our love for God slacken. In Hebrews 4:16, we find these words: "Let us come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

I am afraid that most of us are not calling on God as much as we should. It is when we fail to pray that we yield to the Devil, and then we fail to love God as we should. Therefore, we should pray more and love God more, and keep the Devil's temptations away from us. It is time for all Christians to wake up, and to get busy for the Lord. There will come a day when it will be too late for some to wake up, and to get busy for the Lord, as was true of the five foolish virgins. Some will find the door closed if they do not wake up in time to do the Master's bidding.

A PRAYER

By Mrs. Edwin Roper, Ransomville, N. C.

Keep me gentle, Precious Saviour,
Always tender, kind and true;
Never let me stray, nor fail Thee
In Thy work for me to do.

Keep me sweet, and ever patient,
Fill my heart and soul within
With Thy Holy Spirit's presence
Cleanse me daily of all sin!

Let Thy light reach down from heaven,
And shine through unworthy me,
That some dying soul be rescued;
Saved through all eternity.

Keep me humble, oh, so humble,
That all glory and honor too,
May be accredited honest, and justly,
To Him to whom all honor is due.

Pocahontas Experiences
Great Revival

The Sunday evening service, May 14, marked the climax of a very successful revival held at the Pocahontas F. W. B. Church, Pocahontas, Arkansas. The evangelist, Reverend Damon Dodd, did some soul-stirring, heart-searching, and old-time gospel preaching. There were 32 souls who came to an old-fashion altar, and they received the forgiveness of their sins.

Twenty converts were received into the church and eighteen were baptized. Plans are now being made for Brother Dodd to come back again in October to hold a three-weeks institute.

Elijah, a Courageous Prophet

(Lesson for August 6)

LESSON: I Kings 18:30-39.

GOLDEN TEXT: I Kings 18:21.

I. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

1. Elijah, a Man of God

Today we consider the man who by many later Jews was regarded as the greatest of the Hebrew prophets. The four interesting chapters in our lesson reveal that Elijah was a man of action and a great religious reformer. He has aptly been called the Martin Luther of the Hebrews. As our lesson title indicates, he was a courageous prophet. He appeared at a time of great religious declension in North Israel, due to the introduction of Baal worship by Jezebel, the daughter of the king of Tyre. When we think of the arbitrary power of life and death possessed by ancient kings we can appreciate something of the courage it took for Elijah to face Ahab on different occasions and deliver messages that were unwelcome in the extreme. At what was probably their very first meeting, Elijah said to the king, "There shall not be dew nor rain these years but according to my word." Then he disappeared from view for about three years. Meantime Ahab had exhausted every resource in his endeavor to apprehend the audacious prophet, whom he apparently regarded as responsible for the grievous drought and famine which afflicted the country. Under such circumstances it was no easy thing to obey the divine command, "Go, show thyself unto Ahab." When Ahab saw Elijah he greeted him with the gruff question, "Is it thou, thou troubler of Israel?" (18:17 RV.) To this the prophet boldly replied that it was Ahab, rather than he, who had been troubling Israel.—Arnold's Commentary.

To be fair to God and ourselves, we should read prayerfully all that the Bible has to say about Elijah.

2. Elijah's Honesty (vss. 33-35)

Elijah did this to prevent any kind of suspicion on the part of the false prophets of Baal that there was no fire concealed under the altar. It is said by an ancient writer that he had seen under altars of the heathens holes dug deep with funnels proceeding from them, and communicating with the openings on the tops of these altars. In those holes the heathen priests concealed fire, which communicated through the funnels with the holes, set fire to the wood and consumed the sacrifice. In this way, the people gathered around were led to believe that the sacrifice was consumed in a miraculous way. Elijah purposed to show that no such deception would be practiced in his case. The great amount of water poured on the sacrifice and the wood was to assure the people that, if there were any hidden fire in the wood or about the altar anywhere, it certainly would be put out, even to the very last spark. Elijah purposed that no one should have any suspicions whatsoever concerning any fire that might be hidden about the altar. He meant first to convince the people of this truth, so that when the fire should come from God they would believe in His divine existence and power.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

It is quite evident that Elijah was not seeking any personal advantage in order to become popular. He was the servant of the God of heaven, and he desired to have the people understand it. The children of Israel were his own people, and the great desire of his heart was that they might forsake their evil ways and return to the Lord their God. He prayed that the people might recognize him as the true servant of Jehovah, striving to do His work and His will.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

3. Truths Briefly Stated

1. God's true messenger calls people to himself only to bring them near to God (I Kings 18:30).

2. Many a family altar has been broken down and needs to be repaired in order to end a great spiritual drought (vs. 30).

3. In spite of Israel's sin and apostasy, God has never forgotten His call to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (vs. 31).

4. We have no right to tempt God, but we know He is willing to show His superiority over all false gods (vs. 32).

5. God waited for Elijah to proceed in an orderly fashion with his preparations, even to the pouring of water over the sacrifice and the wood (vs. 33).

6. True servants of God never resort to trickery to make it appear as if God had manifest His power (vs. 34).

7. The most difficult circumstances will never be able to hinder the purpose and power of God (vs. 35).

8. It is not only important for people to know that the Lord is God, but also that His servants have fully obeyed Him (vs. 36).

9. God is able to turn the hearts of men back to Himself when His servants pray for them (vs. 37).

10. The Israelites believed, but there are some people who refuse to believe the most convincing proof of God's reality (vss. 38, 39).

11. Elijah was in a class with Moses. You will remember that they were the ones who visited our blessed Lord on the mount of transfiguration. His name was on the lips of Jesus frequently. His name is a great name to this day.

12. Concerning Elijah we read in James 5:17 that he was a man like ourselves. Elijah could have been a coward if he had wanted to be: he was human. Let us remember that we can be as brave as Elijah was, if we want to be. Folks who wait on the Lord will have all the courage they need, not only for the trials of life, but for God's business.

13. Communism is a bitter enemy of God, of Christ and of His Church. Islam is fighting every effort of Christians to witness to Moslems and win some to Christ. We who are followers of Christ should be faithful in obedience to Him, loyal in His service. We should let His love and grace control and direct our lives so that in every contact with our fellow men, Christ should be honored and exalted.—Selected.

FREE UNION AUXILIARY REPORT

The Woman's auxiliary of Free Union Church met on Saturday, June 10, 1950, at the church. Mrs. Dora Carraway, Miss Patty Carraway, Mrs. Nina Mae Carraway, and Mrs. Raeford Carraway were joint hostesses.

The meeting began by the members present singing the hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves." Mrs. Viola Tyndall led in prayer, and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Lucy Tyndall. There were 36 members present for this meeting. Each member answered to her name when the roll was called by paying her dues. The amount raised was $6.70. We discussed sending a delegate to the National Convention which convenes in July with Richmond Church, California.

We then sang a hymn, and Mrs. Viola Tyndall and Mrs. Ruth Harrell had charge of the program. Following the program we closed the meeting by singing the hymn, "Jesus Calls Us." Mrs. Lucy Tyndall dismissed the meeting in a word of prayer.

The hostess served delicious refreshments which were enjoyed by everyone present.

Little Bethel Auxiliary Holds Good Meeting

Mrs. Clifton Lyerly, Cor. Secy.

The Woman's auxiliary of Little Bethel Church, Johnsonville, South Carolina, held its regular monthly meeting on June 22 in the home of Mrs. Thomas Brown. There were 18 members present for this meeting. We had also four visitors present for the meeting.

The meeting was opened as usual by the members singing a hymn and having a prayer which was offered by Mrs. Avis Powell. Following these devotions, the president turned the meeting over to the program committee. Mrs. Marvin Todd, the leader, rendered a very interesting program. Along with the program she had some interesting readings given for the benefit of those present. The topic for the program was, "Advancing with Christ through Soul-Winning." Each one on the program was present and performed her part, after which the president took charge, and called for the transaction of the business of the auxiliary. After the business matters were transacted, we adjourned the meeting.

The hostess, Mrs. Thomas Brown and Mrs. Allen W. Baxley served refreshments which everyone present enjoyed very much. Following the refreshments, we gave to one of our members a surprise shower. Our next meeting will be held the last week of July in the home of Mrs. J. G. Eddy.

We are asking the prayers of the Christian people that we may become a greater blessing to our church and community, and be able to do more for the upbuilding of God's kingdom.

Reedy Branch Church Holds Good Bible School

Mrs. E. C. Davenport

The third annual Daily Vacation Bible School was held at Reedy Branch F. W. B. Church, June 12 through the 15, with an average daily attendance of 89, and a perfect attendance of 55 during the week.

The Bible School was started, and is being sponsored by the two auxiliaries of the church. The original auxiliary was responsible for the refreshments which were served each day during the recess period, and the young women's auxiliary was responsible for the classes and the selection of teachers.

Mrs. Thomas Langston, who acted as superintendent this year, had a most interesting schedule for the classes, including Bible study, music, art, and handicrafts. The children made many nice and useful articles, including communion racks for our church pews.

We held our commencement on Friday night, with a very good audience of people who enjoyed the program which was prepared by the children. All seemed to have been pleased to see the articles that were made by the children during the week. They also enjoyed visiting our nursery which has recently been re-decorated, and also they were glad to see the splendid work which was done by Class Number 5 in their class room.

Available for Pastoral Work

I am in a position to consider pastoral work for two Sundays in the month (any Sundays), if not too far from Ayden, North Carolina. Mrs. Ballard will be free to work with me this next year, doing the same type of work she has done for the past four years in New Bern, not as an employee of the church, but as the pastor's wife.

Rev. L. C. Garner Passes

Rev. L. C. Garner was born in Craven county, North Carolina, on November 5th, 1873. In early life he united with the Free Will Baptist church, and when he was about 23 years old, he was ordained as a minister of the Gospel. His ministerial life covered a period of 54 years; but during 36 years of that period he was badly afflicted, and for about 15 years he was confined to his bed in an almost helpless condition. His activity in the ministry continued even after afflictions came upon him, and his earnestness and zeal were characteristics that made many wonder, for it was evident that he oft-times went in the strength of Another.

In early manhood Brother Garner married Miss Emma Lee Swain, who was a faithful wife and help-mate to him through all the years. There were born to them three sons and two daughters, and these mourn today because of their loss of a devoted father, and a faithful husband. His death occurred June 15th, 1950.

The funeral was conducted from Holly Springs church in Carteret county, by the writer, who was ably assisted by Rev. J. R. Bennett, the pastor of the church; after which his body was buried in the family cemetery near the home.

We trustingly leave him in the hands of the One who has done all things well; who is glorious in holiness; fearful in praises; doing wonders, and may His never failing love soothe and sustain the bereaved ones.

J. W. Alford

MRS. E. B. LANIER

On the 27th of May, 1950, at the age of 65, Mrs. Elizabeth Lanier passed from this life to her eternal home to be with the Lord. She was the wife of Bro. E. B. Lanier of Kinston. Mrs. Lanier united with Saints Delight Church, Pitt County, when a young girl. She moved her membership to the Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston about the year 1902, and remained a faithful worker in the church until her death.

The funeral was conducted from the First F. W. B. Church in Kinston by the pastor, Rev. A. L. Reynolds, assisted by Rev. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill, and Rev. Clifton Rice of Kinston.

She leaves to mourn their loss her husband, E. B. Lanier, two girls, Mrs. Clifton Rice, and Mrs. H. L. Avery, two boys, Elmer and Elton. Five grand children, one sister, Mrs. J. E. Harris, all of Kinston, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Lonely the house and sad the hours
Since our dear one passed away,
To join the host, and forever live
In a land of endless day.

When day is done, and night shades fall,
When to the room we steal,
To talk with God before we sleep,
Then we her presence feel.

Her voice not audible we hear,
Her counsel day by day,
Seems ever clear, "Do your best,"
And "From evil turn away."

We fancy now we see her,
Walk gently down the aisle,
While the organ plays the prelude,
In a low melodious style.

Her church she loved, and sought to do,
The things she felt was right,
No fear had she, no sad remorse,
When to friends she said, "God Night."

A Tribute to— Deborah E. Hardison

By Leone S. Mercer

Many hearts were filled with sadness Wednesday evening, June 7th, when it was learned that the mystical angel of death had silently entered Kafer Memorial Hospital, New Bern, N. C., and taken back to God who gave it the spirit of Mrs. Deborah E. Hardison. Words fail to express the grief we feel when we realize that she is no more with us. But in the midst of our sorrow comes the comforting thought that, though she has been taken from us, we know her life was not lived in vain. She was a loyal and faithful member of Saint Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, and was never absent from the services when it was possible for her to be there, even going at times when her physical condition might well have justified her staying in more comfort at home. But she always hid her own troubles behind a cheerful and smiling face, which was an inspiration to all.

"Mrs. Hardison," as the writer knew her and loved her, was one of the sweetest Christian characters it was ever my happy privilege to know. She will be sadly missed by all. She leaves to mourn her loss four daughters, five sons, grand children, great-grand children, and a great host of friends. To all these let me say:

"Tis hard to break the tender cord,
When love has bound the heart;
'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words
We must forever part.

Courage then, dear faltering ones,
Wait a while, and you will know
That God took her home to heaven
Just because He loved her so.

You will see her at the judgment,

Robed in angel's radiant gown,
In her hand a harp of glory,
On her head a golden crown.

(Written by a friend of the family, and one who loved her.)

ANOTHER ANGEL FOR JESUS

Little Earl Van Turnage, two-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Turnage, died in his sleep and was found Tuesday morning, June 20, in his bed. His soul has gone to be with Jesus. The cause of his death was not determined.

The funeral services were held at the home by Rev. Clifton Rice, pastor of Hugo Church. The burial was in the family cemetery. A large crowd of friends and relatives attended the service. There were many beautiful floral offerings to adorn the grave. He was a faithful member of the Hugo Sunday School.

The one who was loved by many
With such abiding love;
Has found the shining path
Leading to heaven above.

The Home where joy ever dwells,
Where loved ones but await;
For us to share their happiness
Beyond the heavenly gate.
Submitted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Turnage

Mr. Freeman H. Gaskins

I am writing this in loving memory of my dear Daddy, Mr. Freeman H. Gaskins, Jr., of Vanveboro, North Carolina. He was better known as Babe Gaskins, and it was on Sunday night, July 9, 1950, that he left us.

Father had been critically ill for several months with cancer. Every thing was done for him that doctors, the family and friends could do, but God knew best, and took him Home to be with Jesus. He was 63 years old on March 19, 1950.

The funeral services were conducted at the home by the Reverend W. A. Dail of Winterville, N. C. The remains were laid to rest in the family burial near the home, with a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss.

Papa, we know you were very ill,
A voice we loved is still;
A place has been made vacant in our home
Which no one else can ever fill.

You were so patient in your suffering,
And no hand could give you ease;
But God the helper of the helpless
Saw the pain and gave you relief.

Papa, you are gone but not forgotten,
Never will your memory fade;
Sweetest thoughts will ever linger
'Round the grave where you're laid.

CHILDREN'S

LITTLE PAUL

In the city of S—— lives a little boy who has been an invalid for a few years; and as they also had a little baby, and his grandma was living with them, she used to nurse and care for little Paul, (for this was his name), as though he had been one of her own. So, of course, Paul dearly loved his grandma, and told her what he would have told but few.

He was now about five years of age, and as he was growing stronger, his dear aged grandma left him for several months, to go and see one of her daughters.

Before leaving, when little Paul would ask her if she would do this or that some day, her answer would be, "Yes, if I live," for she was very old, and she knew that she must shortly leave this world to await the resurrection, if the Lord did not come very soon. This troubled Paul, and during his grandmother's absence, he often asked his mother to sit down, and he would dictate to her what to write to his grandmother. He wrote nice letters, and often inquired about her health.

But soon something else than his grandmother's health troubled him, and perhaps you will be surprised, dear reader, when I tell you what this was. It was nothing about grandma or any one else; but it was about himself, about his sins, and about where he would spend that long eternity, if the Lord should come, or if he was to die. Again he wrote and told his grandma, and said,

"Often I am so worried, because I am afraid I don't believe on the Lord Jesus Christ."

This surprised her very much for she had often heard him speak of Jesus very nicely, but knowing the great difference between talking about Jesus, and really believing on Him from the heart, she once more told him of the love of God to poor sinners, and how He had said in the third chapter of John, the sixteenth verse,

"God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life;" and that God was willing to save him, for He said, "Him that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out;" and, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto Me: for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven" (Matt. 19:14), and "The Blood of Jesus Christ His (God's) Son cleanseth us from all sin" (I John 1:7).

Well, dear little Paul thought of all this, and told his papa, who read to him many more passages of the Bible, and asked the Lord for his little son. Soon after this Paul accepted Jesus as his Saviour, and wrote to his grandma, that now his "worniness" was all gone, and he was happy, for he believed on Jesus, and was sure he was saved, for God said so.

Since then, he had had no more trouble but has been happy in the thought of going to be with Jesus.

And now, dear reader, what about you? Do you think perhaps that you have never done anything very bad, and of course you will go to Heaven? Little Paul had never done anything very wrong, but he knew that he was a sinner, and he had had some naughty thoughts, and at times naughty actions, and as God was perfectly holy, and sin could not enter His presence, he could not go to God in his sins, so he needed a Saviour.

You, too, my dear children, all need a Saviour, and you must not wait until you grow up before you think of these things, for the Lord Jess says, "Surely, I come quickly."

"Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (II Cor. 6:2).

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).—Messages of Love.

sion. Continue in the true doctrine and teach every person, finding out the necessities of your hearers and preach so as to meet those necessities. Only by being strengthened in the grace that is in Christ Jesus can you do this." Study? yes; work? yes; pray? yes; witness? yes; fellowship with God and with Christians? yes; but let all these work together that you might be approved by God and not be ashamed.

Chapter 2, verse 22, "But flee youthful lusts, and follow after righteousness, faith, love, peace, with all them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart." This verse is plain enough. If you want to be a success in God's business, flee not only all irregular and sensual desires, but flee also from pride, ambition, and the lust of power for which most men will sacrifice all that they have. These are the most bewitching passions in the human heart. They prove a ruin in everything. These are the special temptations of older youth. It is not how close you can come to sin and not sin but how far away you can stay. So run from youthful lusts which seek to pull you down.

Chapter 4, verses 1 and 2, "I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His kingdom: preach the word; be urgent in season, out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching." This final charge is before God and Christ Jesus to proclaim the doctrine (1) that Christ was crucified for the sins of the whole world; (2) that Gentiles are invited to be fellow-heirs with Jews; (3) that for Jews and Gentiles alike there is no salvation but by faith in Christ; and (4) that "whosoever will" may partake freely. This doctrine is committed to the minister's trust. It is too great a trust to be betrayed. This is what he is saying: "Timothy, whenever and wherever you meet a sinner speak to him the word of reconciliation. Do not be contented with stated times and accustomed places merely; all times and places are proper for His work. When and where it can be done, then and there it should be done. Satan will omit neither time nor place where he can destroy. Be ye as faithful in the work of the Lord. Neglect no part of thy sacred function and profession. For I am now being poured out as a drink offering and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. So Timothy, you are to carry on. But you must remember all these things if you are to be God's successful servant. I'm counting on you to do it."

There is nothing so near to the heart of this aged apostle, who knew that he was about to depart from this world, as that the faith which he himself had received and preached should be kept pure. So he is committing it to Timothy, who was to commit it to others and to us. Let us faithfully keep it.

ASK, AND YE SHALL RECEIVE

O praying one, who long has prayed,
And yet no answer heard,
Have ye been sometimes half afraid
God might not keep His word?
Seems prayer to fall on deafened ears?
Does Heaven seem blind and dumb?
Is hope deferred? Believe—believe—
The answer time will come!

"Ask what ye will"—His word is true,
His power is all divine;
Ye cannot test His love too far;
His utmost shall be thine.
God does not mock believing prayer;
Ye shall not go unfed!
He gives no serpent for a fish,
Nor gives He stones for bread.

Thy inmost longings may be told;
The hopes that turned to shame,
The empty life, the thwarted plans;
The good that never came.
Say not, "Thy promise is not mine,
God did not hear me pray;
I prayed—I trusted fully—but
The grave hath barred the way."

God heard thee—He hath not forgot,
Faith shall at length prevail!
Yea—know it! Not one smallest jot
Of all His word can fail.
For if ye truly have believed,
Not vain hath been thy prayer!
As God is true, thy hope shall come—
Sometime, someday, somewhere.

The Creaking Wheel

Did you ever see a wagon coming down a hill in the country, and every time the wheel turned over there was a terrible noise? One of the wheels had a creak in it. Did you know that sometimes boys and girls get a creak in them? Did you ever see a boy or girl who was told to do something, but all the time they were doing it, they were complaining and fussing, because they had to do it? God's Word says, "Do all things without murmuring."

There is also the creak of laziness. When boys and girls have this, they always say, "Can't somebody else do it?" when they are asked to do something.

Or if some playmate has something they do not have, they grumble because they think they are not treated fairly. That is the creak of selfishness. Don't you think it would be a good thing to oil our creaking wheels? One cross, fussing boy or girl fills a house with unhappiness. Ask Jesus to help you do all things without murmuring.—Wayside Talks.

A child of God can see more on his knees than can a philosopher on his tiptoes.

Peace conferences may be fine but prayer meetings produce more results.

DIVINE REVELATION

"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets.

Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds;

Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high;"

Hebrews 1:1-3.

When we say Divine Revelation we mean the Revelation which came from God to men through Divinely appointed agents and agencies. Revelation came more as a progressive order, not all at one time because it has never been God's method to reveal all His relations to mankind at once. He lifted the veil fold by fold. As the needs of men progressed God met their needs, whatever they were. How he revealed Himself is seen clearly in verse one as translated by Goodspeed, "It was little by little and in different ways that God spoke in old times to our forefathers through the prophets." Then as we study these first three verses of Hebrews we will be able to see: (1) The source of Revelation, (2) The times of Revelation, (3) The methods of Revelation and, (4) The agents of Revelation.

This first sentence in Hebrews is one of the most magnificent passages in the whole Bible; it stands side by side with the opening sentences of Genesis and the Gospel of John. The very first word of this epistle, God, calls our attention, indicates the source of Revelation and gives the writer authority. Scripture never proves the being of God. It always assumes it. God is then properly placed at the beginning of this epistle because He is writing to Jewish people and the Jewish people are very much interested in the unity of God. Most of the Old Testament writers had made this fact very plain, especially Moses and Isaiah. Here are two passages found in Moses' writing: (1) Deut. 4:35, "Unto thee it showed that thou mightest know that the Lord He is God, there is none else beside him." (2) Deut. 6:4, "Hear, O Israel the Lord our God is one Lord." Then two passages in Isaiah's writing: (1) Isaiah 43:10, "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servants whom I have chosen; that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am He: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after." (2) Isa. 44:6, "Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his Redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last, and beside me there is no God."

Then it was necessary that the writer begin this book by making mention of God, thus making it easier to contrast the Old Revelation or Old Testament to the New Revelation or the New Testament. He tells how God spoke to the fathers of old in many manners and at different times, but now in these last days he has spoken to us in or through His Son.

"Sundry Times" tells us that at various times God revealed himself to man. "Sundry Times" as translated in the Revised Version is "Divers Portions" which means in different pieces here a little and there a little, in broken parts; given progressively, as men needed it and were able to understand, but the writer of Hebrews is doing this to show that God was revealed fully and finally in Christ.

The Bible is conveniently divided into dispensations. "A dispensation is a period of time during which man is tested in respect of obedience to some specific revelation of the will of God." (Scofield) There are seven such dispensations in the Bible, thus we can see from these how God spoke in "Sundry Times."

(A) The first of these is the Adamic dispensation. During this dispensation God did not reveal Himself so much because man was created in innocence and placed in a perfect environment where God could come and walk and talk with his creatures. All of this sweet fellowship was ended between God and His creatures because of sin, they disobeyed God and thus God separated Himself from them but even after the fall of man He revealed that he would provide a way of escape for fallen mankind.

(B) Then comes the second dispensation known as the Noahic. God began to reveal Himself more and more now. Because of sin man was expelled from the garden and placed under a responsibility to do all known good, to abstain from all known evil, and to draw nigh unto God through sacrifices. This dispensation included the judgment of the Flood.

(C) The next dispensation is known as the Abrahamic dispensation. It was during this dispensation that God chose a special race to reveal Himself to, the great nation of Israel of which Abraham was to be the father. It was the duty of this nation to make God known to all the world but they completely failed. This dispensation ended when Israel accepted the Law (Ex. 19:8).

(D) The fourth is known as the Mosaic dispensation. This dispensation extended from the giving of the law until the Prophets. God, during this time, revealed Himself through the law which had been given through Moses to the people. The law was an index finger pointing to the messiah that was yet to come.

(E) The fifth is known as the dispensation of the Prophets. The people had violated the laws of God, so God sent his prophets to plead with and urge His people to come back. So, more and more, God is revealing Himself to the people.

(F) The sixth is known as the dispensation of Grace or the Christian dispensation. It was during this dispensation that God revealed Himself through his Son. He gave to us the way of Salvation which was for all mankind. It was also during this dispensation that the Church of Christ was started and God is still revealing Himself to the world through this Church of which every true believer is a part. This dispensation had not ended yet and does not end until the coming of Christ.

(G) The seventh and the last dispensation is known as the Kingdom dispensation. This will be the time when Christ shall set up his Kingdom on the earth. It will be the time when oppression and misrule ends by Christ taking His Kingdom, the time when testimony and divine forbearance ends in judgment, the time when toil ends in rest and reward, the time when Israel's blindness and chastisement ends in restoration and conversion, and the time when Gentile domination ends with the manifestation of the Son of God.

Not only did God give Divine Revelation to us in "Sundry Times" but also in "Divers manners." "Divers Manners" refers to different ways in which God spoke of old. As you read the Scripture you can readily see the different ways in which God has spoken. It would take hours if we went into every one of them in detail, but let us notice just a few:

The first which would catch our attention would be the ways in which God spoke to Moses. Moses was tending Jethro's, his father-in-law's, sheep on the back side of the desert and God spoke to him through a burning bush. Then when he went back to deliver the children of Israel from under the bondage of the Egyptians. God spoke to Moses as well as Pharaoh through the ten plagues that came upon the Egyptians because Pharaoh would not let the Israelites go. Then when the Israelites were out of Egypt, across the Red Sea and at Mt. Sinai, "God spoke to Moses mouth to mouth," giving him the law for His people. Then after Moses' death the leader of Israel was Joshua so thus God spoke to him in many different ways. He spoke of his strength through the fall of Jericho, He spoke of sin in the defeat of Ai, and He spoke of His command of the Universe through the standing still of the sun. Then to the Judges and Kings he also spoke in

OUR TRIP TO THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

The roads over which we traveled to the National Association were in some sections mountainous and others stretched out over level plain and several hundred miles over desert lands with very little life. In these sections it was extremely hot, but when we reached Richmond, Calif., we found the weather cool. A fine place to sleep at night under spreads and blankets was furnished us. On our way back we traveled by a northern route where we saw mountains showing only rocks, others showed some snow on their tops, while others were covered with fine forests and beautiful scenery. We passed by beautiful lakes where flowers bloomed while in the distance we could see snow. We saw Indians, Chinese, Japanese, in fact, many nationalities.

We found the people of Richmond very hospitable, that is, the Free Will Baptist with whom we resided. These great people were led by a very energetic and efficient pastor who had made arrangements for the entertainment of the attendance at the association. This man was the Rev. George McLain, who has led this young congregation to a very great success in the spiritual work of the Master, and also in the erection of a very beautiful and commodious church edifice. Brother McLain made every effort possible to give to the visitors efficient care. He wanted us to see the many wonderful scenes that are in Richmond, Oakland, and San Francisco.

The Association Proper

The Association was one of the best in spiritual cooperation. Reports were in general encouraging. Every one seemed to want to go on to greater things in the denominational program.

There was a recommendation brought forward by the General Board that the National Sunday School Convention and the League meet prior to the convening of the Woman's Auxiliary which is followed by the National Association, with all these meetings being held at the same location, so as to do away with going from ocean to ocean in the same year for meetings. The recommendation was received by the National Association.

The devotions and sermons were of the highest spiritual fervor. People seemed to be happy with the fellowship. We call it "A great Association."

FREE WILL BAPTIST IN THE WEST

The Free Will Baptist cause is growing out West. The Western States are moving much faster, as we observed, than we are here in the East. They are pressing the doctrinal truth of our denomination to the front. Five years ago in California, there was only one church. Today California has 28 churches in working order. The people are receiving the Gospel of Christ and are being saved in great numbers.

OUR PICTURES

We made pictures of the church in which the Association was held with the people who attended coming out of the building, also pictures of the beautiful flowers, which cannot be excelled anywhere that we know of; with scenery of the mountains and valleys and fields, thus bringing back to our friends that which they have not, and perhaps can never see. This picture will be ready for showing, as soon as it can be developed, where ever it is desired.

GOD IS BLESSING

Reports from those who are in the field of evangelistic services are encouraging as many old-fashioned revivals are resulting in the salvation of great numbers. Another sign of a true revival is that many church members are getting saved and dedicated to the work of the Lord.

OUR SINCERE THANKS

To those who have written in urging the continuance of "Notes and Quotes," I wish to say "Thank you," and this is from the very bottom of my heart. I wish that I could say it so that you could hear the words. But it is almost impossible to write every one a personal word, so I am using this means, as you readers of Notes and Quotes are the ones whom I thank.

May God bless you. Such people as you who read and appreciate will keep me going as long as I feel as good as I do at this time.

OPEN DATES

Due to a conflict in another church our meeting at Rock of Zion was postponed for a week, which conflicted with our plans, so we have the week after the Second Sunday in August that we can use for a meeting should any one desire our service during that week. Also I have the week after the Second Sunday in September, and part of the week after the third, that I can use for a revival meeting, should it be desired. I would like to have the work near to the place where the State Convention is to be held, so as to attend the Convention at Rain's Cross Roads and preach in revival at night.

Faith, like light, should always be simple and unbending; while love, like warmth, should beam forth on every side, and bend to every necessity of our brethren.—Martin Luther

New Church in Prospect of Erection

BLACK ROCK, ARK.

Mrs. Sherman Robertson

Dear Friends in Christ:

We are underway to build a new F. W. B. Church, and hope to get it finished some time during the fall months, as we are holding our services under the shade-trees of the church grounds.

We are in great need of funds to get this work finished before cold weather comes. We have only about $150 on hand now for this work. We are not planning to erect an expensive building just at this time. We want to complete it sufficiently so that we can begin worshipping in it very soon.

We will appreciate it very much if the good church people will help us on this church building. Will you take it up with your church, and raise for this purpose a donation for us? We will appreciate your help very much. Anyone can give to this most worthy cause. Send your donations to the Building Committee: Sherman Robertson, Deacon, Leonard Milligan, Deacon, or to Mrs. Sherman Robertson, Church Clerk and Treasurer. All of these are of Black Rock, Arkansas.

Officers and Teachers Hold Good Meeting

The officers and teachers of Liberty F. W. B. Church held a meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ridgeway on July 9, 1950. There were 8 teachers, with the superintendent present, and a few visitors. The superintendent, Brother Hearly Brewer, called the meeting to order, and it opened with song and prayer. The teachers and officers made reports. A brief talk was made on the lesson by Early Brewer. A discussion was entered into on the subject: "The Duty of the Teacher."

The topic assigned for the August meeting was: "The Way of Approaching Un-Christians." The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Zula Ridgeway on Friday night after the first Sunday in August. The meeting closed with song and prayer. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ridgeway, and were enjoyed by everyone present.

PRAYER REQUESTED FOR AN INFANT

We sincerely request the prayers of the Christian people for our baby. It is in the Taylor Hospital in an incubator. She is very weak, but we know that God does answer prayer.

Piney Grove Church Moves Up to Full-Time Program

Our church has been moving forward for almost two years. In 1948 we elected Rev. Rufus Hyman as our pastor, and one of the first things that was done was the dedication of our educational building which the church has just finished, after our present pastor began his work with us.

It was the plans of the church to hold all class work in the new educational building, including the general assembly, but in a very short time the building was overcrowded, and the opening and closing exercises of the Sunday School had to be held in the church auditorium. At the present time, we have five classes in the education building, and the Men's class is being held in the auditorium of the church. The Sunday School has around one hundred in attendance.

In the spring of 1949 (April), our pastor held a very successful revival. In reality the church had been in a revival in the winter time. All we can say is that we were in the revival wave which has been sweeping over the United States. It was in the early period of this revival that we had two conversions who gave the church two of its best deacons, namely: Brothers Houston Toole and Robert Owens.

In August, 1949, Rev. J. C. Griffin of New Bern, N. C., conducted a revival for our church. He did the church much good. During 1949 we had around 30 additions to the church. In the summer of 1949, we organized a F. W. B. League, and a Woman's auxiliary. The educational building again was too small to furnish us adequate space for our people. The Woman's auxiliary has been very active, among the women of the church. This year the church has purchased our own Sunday School literature for the first time. Instead of large orders going to independent publishing houses for Sunday School literature, our Press at Ayden, North Carolina, is getting this patronage.

In the spring of 1950, we called Rev. H. A. Grubbs, of Perry, Florida, for a revival. In June we had the Reverend M. L. Hollis for our summer revival meeting. Brother Grubbs and Brother Hollis both had large congregations. Splendid interest was manifested in both meetings.

In the spring of this year, the church decided to call a full-time pastor. Finally Rev. C. A. Huckaby of Phenix City, Alabama, was secured. The church is planning to build a parsonage for the new pastor and his family.

This news item was written by order of the church in conference on May 13, 1950.

The Boy Enlists

His mother's eyes are saddened
And her cheeks are stained with tears,
And I'm facing now the struggle
That I've dreaded through the years;
For the boy that was our baby
Has been changed into a man,
He's enlisted in the army
As a true American.

He held her for a moment
In his arms before he spoke,
And I watched him as he kissed her
And it seemed to me I'd choke,
For I knew just what was coming
And I knew just what he'd done;
Another little, loving mother
Had a soldier for a son.

When we pulled ourselves together,
And the first quick tears had dried,
We could see his eyes were blazing
With the fire of manly pride;
We could see his head was higher
Than it ever was before,
For we had a man to cherish,
And our baby was no more.

Oh, I don't know how to say it!
With the sorrow comes the joy
That there isn't any coward
In the make-up of our boy.
And with pride our hearts are swelling,
Though with grief they're also hit,
For the boy that was our baby
Has stepped forth to do his bit.
Anon.

Following the Christ

The great God of heaven sent His only begotten Son to earth to set up a plan wherein his people might have eternal life. He set up his kingdom, his church, and founded it upon the solid rock, and said, "upon this Rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Christ has told the people how to get into His Church, which is by "the water and the blood." But we cannot follow Jesus until we enter the trinity, that is, accept the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost as One in unity, and One in purpose. The Apostle Peter did not really know Him until he had received the Holy Ghost.

How can we follow Jesus until we know Him and are willing to do what He wants us to do? He tells that if we will do as he says, that we can ask and He will give to us those things that we should have. If we believe Him, He will keep his sayings. We should do what Jesus says without fear or trembling. We should not seek to climb up to heaven some other way, for there is no other way by which we can be saved. We should not hesitate to do whatever Christ says for us to do. If it is to wash the saints' feet, then we should obey his command, because lowly service for him is always rewarded in the end.

If we do not do the things Christ says for us to do, then how can we expect to receive his blessings? We are to be faithful, and not stingy with our support of the church and the cause of righteousness. Christ said that if we will hold out to the end we will be saved. We are to pray without ceasing, giving thanks to God for his manifold blessings.

God loved the children of Israel, and called them his own. He said that he came to his own and his own received him not. They suffered often because they failed to follow him. Disobedience brings on trouble, and therefore it is our duty to obey Christ. I do not want to be a stumbling block to anyone. We are to believe God and follow Christ in preference to the Devil.

News from Heads Church, Cheatham Co., looks up. They report a splendid vacation Bible school, headed by the pastor, Rev. William Mishler, and with an enrolment of 51 and an average attendance of 41. Assisting the pastor as teachers were Mrs. William Mishler and Myrtle Pembroke, the latter from Missouri.

Esterlene Ellis was named president of the newly organized woman's auxiliary at Heads Church. There were ten charter members. Mrs. Helen Balthrope serves as secretary.

Homecoming Day will be observed at Heads on July 30, opening with a revival and featuring a dedication of the new Sunday school rooms at the evening hour. A picnic lunch will be served on the church lawn at noon. Among the former pastors expected are Rev. W. B. Davenport and Rev. W. R. Carroll. Pray for Heads' revival.

Shady Grove Church, near Clarksville, held what is believed to be its first vacation Bible school the first of the month with an average attendance of 50. Workers in this school included: Mrs. William Poole, Mrs. Edward Poole, Mrs. Riley Albright, Mrs. Virgil Albright, Mrs. Maidell Rinehart, Mrs. Bayless McDonald, Billy McDonald, Rev. Bayless McDonald, who is pastor of the church, and Mrs. Elsie Major. A picnic was held on the closing Friday with the commencement program following. A most interesting fact about these young people is that every Junior and every Intermediate has accepted Christ as his personal Saviour.

Revival is in progress at Friendship Church, Davidson County, with the writer doing the preaching. He is scheduled for another revival at Bethel Church, Neptune, beginning August 13. Rev. George Ludwig is pastor of these churches. Pray for revival.

THE THREE MONKEYS

Three monkeys once dining in a cocoanut tree,
Were discussing some things they had heard true to be.
"What do you think! Now listen you two, Here, monkeys, is something that cannot be true,
Why, it's simply shocking—a terrible disgrace.

A PROTEST OF SUNDAY NIGHT BASEBALL GAMES

The whole question of professional baseball on Sunday may come up soon. Let's be not asleep. Some church members like baseball and other do not, but all should be against it on Sunday. If all church people would make their sentiments felt by hundreds of letters and telegrams to the baseball commissioner we might do something about it. At least, we might do something about the Sunday night game. This is almost certain to come up.

Minor leagues play on Sunday nights but major leagues do not as yet. A game was scheduled for July 16th in St. Louis but apparently has been called off because the baseball commissioner did not feel that it "was in the best interest of baseball." He gave consideration to church people. The St. Louis team that scheduled the game said that they had not received a single protest from church people. They felt that if it is not best for them and other major league clubs, then it is not best for the minor leagues. So the proposition will probably be either to forbid all Sunday night games or let all play.

What we say might have some effect. Let's write Commissioner A. B. Chandler at Cincinnati, Ohio, and protest playing both Sunday afternoon and Sunday night games in both major and minor leagues.

Sincerely in Christ,

"Who ever heard of a monkey deserting his wife?

Leave a baby to starve and ruin its life?
And have you ever known of a mother monk

To leave her darling, with strangers to bunk?

Their babies are handled from one to another

And scarce ever know the love of a mother.

"And I've never known a monkey so selfish to be

As to build a big fence around a cocoanut tree

So other monkeys can't get a wee taste,
But would let all the cocoanuts there go to waste.

Why, if I'd put a fence around this cocoanut tree,

Starvation would force you to steal from me.

"And here is another thing a monkey won't do:

Seek a bootlegger's shanty and get on a stew,
Carouse and get on a whoopee, disgracing his life,
Then reel madly home and beat up his wife.
They call this all pleasure and make a big fuss—
They've descended from something, but not from us!

While there is abundant Bible evidence to prove that Christian patience will be rewarded, yet, hope of reward is in itself not enough to keep one patient. Back of the patience stands a Person whom the world cannot see but who is real to His own and whom here counts it a privilege to follow. "For My sake" press thou with patience onward,

Although the race be hard, the battle long,

Within My Father's house are many mansions,

There thou shalt rest, and join the Victor's song.

And if in coming days the world revile thee,
If 'for My sake' thou suffer pain and loss,

Bear on, faint heart, thy Master went before thee,

They only wear His crown who share His cross."

A day of national prayer should, we believe, be declared in this country by the Congress and the President of the United States. We believe a definite hour should be announced on some day in the week, and all people should be asked to assemble in the churches for one hour of consecrated worship for peace, and agreement among the nations of the world.

We believe that, if this were done in sincere earnestness unto the Lord, God would answer such a nation-wide prayer for peace, and that He would direct the leaders of the nation to settle their differences on reasonable terms. We believe that war would cease, lives would be saved, and troubled hearts would rejoice, if such a prayer meeting were held in all the churches in the land on that Special Day of prayer to God.

Prices of commodities are beginning to rise in various sections of the country, due to the war in Korea. Obviously enough, this war is not a good reason for the advancing of the prices of goods. The commodities on the markets over the country should have no greater value than before the war began. Only a small part of them have a greater demand than before the war started, but some profiteers seize upon every opportunity possible to get a greater profit from their already stored away commodities in their storehouses. This is evidence of greed for more money, regardless of how it affects the poor consumer class of people over the nation.

Such unjustifiable practice is quite evident that those merchants are not caring about the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." If this should become general and continue for sometime, then wages of the average laborer will consequently rise to offset the increased cost of living. But what right have I as a merchant to charge ten cents additional per pound on the meat which cost me no more than before the war began? What right have I to charge five cents per yard more for goods which I had already in store before the war began?

Announcement

This is to advise that I expect to be in a position to render some pastoral service next year. I am not discontinuing my connection with the Free Will Baptist Press, but, owing to some changes which we contemplate, I plan to have some time to devote to pastoral activities. I shall be open and happy to arrange with any church which might desire my service within reasonable distance of Ayden. Address Box 244, Ayden, N. C.

Mission Program Held at Black River Church

The Woman's Auxiliary of Black River F. W. B. Church presented a Mission Program at the church on Sunday night, July 9th at 8 o'clock. Program opened with a song by the congregation. Prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams. Scripture reading was by Mrs. Margaret Powell. Talk on mission was by Mrs. Eva Benton. The acts of the program; 1st, Delighted Cross; 2nd, The Sign; 3rd, Change of Heart; was carried out by the young boys and girls of the church. Closing remarks were offered by Mrs. Effie Powell, then a song was sung, "Send the Light,"

The answer is plain. I, for example, seek to use opportunity for unfair gain simply because I can get by with such practice, or at least until the government does something about it. And that is the way many merchants are now taking advantage of the present situation. Moreover, a great many of these men are church members, so-called Christian gentlemen who would not do their brother any harm. The Apostle Paul knew the greed in the heart of man when he said: "The love of money is the root of all evil" (I Tim. 6:10).

With the increase of learning and with continuing prosperity in this nation, there is the increase and spread of crime and wretchedness all about us wherever we go. Culture and enlightenment are no panacea for the ills of this nation. People allow themselves to fall for the allurements of Satan, regardless as to how much they know, or how much they possess. In fact, with some, riches and knowledge are means by which they are allured on to cater to their sensual pleasures and to the lusts of the flesh. They take chances to drink the bitter, and risk their lives for the sweet, if there be such awaiting them. They run their own business without God, or the concern for the rights and privileges of their fellow men.

Many a person would have been much better off if they had never been educated. That is to say, their knowledge and skill were used for evil purposes against their leffow man, that they might get a living by ill-gotten gain. So it has been with many of the rich. They pile up and hoard away more riches at the expense of those who labor for them by the sweat of the brow. And such riches become corroded and moth-eaten, lying away in seclusion, doing civilization very little good. Such people should never become rich, for a meager livelihood for them would mean much more to the world, and in all probability God would be able to get more from their lives. Hoarded money, misused knowledge, and wasted lives are detrimental both to God and man.

Contribution was taken up for missions. Eleven dollars and thirty-four cents was donated and an interesting talk with benediction was rendered by the pastor.

We ask the Christian people who read the Baptist to pray for us, that our efforts to go forward in advancing with Christ will mean much success for our church and community.

Mrs. Effie Powell, 2nd Vice-President

Talk to the Lord about sinners; then talk to sinners about the Lord.

HONESTLY!

A millionaire hired a friend to build a lavish home with no thought for the expense involved. He trusted the contractor's good taste, and asked that the home be made to whatever specifications the friend himself liked. The builder, grasping at an opportunity to become wealthy, accepted the job and used the most inferior materials he could purchase—knowing full well that in a matter of five or ten years the house would deteriorate.

After several months the home was completed and the contractor handed the millionaire the key to the door. The rich man in turn gave it back and said, "My friend, I've wanted to do something for you for a long time, and this is my opportunity. You take the key—I am presenting the house to you as a gift."

Tears of sorrow welled in the man's eyes as he slipped the key into his pocket, and he went away with the torturous thought, "I could have had the very best of everything, yet because of my dishonest heart my house will be worthless in a few years."

How many people the world over have had to pay the price of dishonesty? "Honesty is the best policy," and "It pays to be honest" have long been common expressions. Would they were followed seriously rather than being flippantly tossed about. Even Shakespeare recognized the value of honesty. He wrote:

"To thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

That is, the secret of being honest in our dealings with others is to cultivate the habit of being honest with ourselves—of not attempting to deceive ourselves as to our motives and character. Honesty begins within our own hearts.

But so much easier said than done! How can we possibly have a heart of truth and honesty when the natural man is full of greed, hatred, pride and selfishness? When we turn to the Bible, we find many exhortations to honesty: "The good ground are they, which in an honest and good heart, having heard the word, keep it." "Re-compense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men." "Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men." "Now I pray to God that ye do not evil . . . but that ye should do that which is honest." "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." "Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles." "That we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty."

Honesty can only be the result of God's grace, given in answer to our prayers, enabling us through life to walk holy and acceptable not only to God but to those around us. "Let us walk honestly as in the day,"—in other words, live in a manner becoming disciples of Christ. "That ye may walk honestly toward them that are without"—or, have a deportment that is honorable and reputable among believers and unbelievers alike. "We trust we have a good conscience, in all things willing to live honestly"—uprightly, in a manner suitable to a child of God.

We can see all around us the uncertainty of life and the aftermath of a war brought on to a great extent by dishonesty. We can feel the tension, the fear, and the distrust—the consequences of past dishonesty.

Then how can we be honest? In the midst of sin, greed and ungodliness, how can we be honest not only with ourselves but with those with whom we live and come in contact? It is only as the grace and love of the Lord Jesus Christ are allowed to fill our hearts that we will be able to abide by the laws God has given for honest living. When a sincere heart searches after God and desires spiritual things, God changes that life and Christ dwells within, making completely new the old heart of sin and rebellion. We know that it is the heart that needs to be changed, for we read in the Bible, "A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil; for of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh."

When Jesus Christ is allowed to enter, and His love is shed abroad in our hearts, we then know that dishonesty takes flight and into our lives and hearts come joy in place of sorrow, life instead of spiritual death, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control—and HONESTY!

About "Notes and Quotes"

H. Pipkin, Mount Olive, N. C.

In a recent issue of the Baptist paper, Brother J. C. Griffin, author of "Notes and Quotes," asked that those who want him to continue writing for the Baptist paper to write to him, and to tell him so.

I believe every reader of the paper wants him to keep on writing as long as he can. While we sympathize with him in his work, and realize that he is not a young man any more, at the same time his long experience in dealing and working with the people, and his knowledge of our denominational work, are all of great value to the Free Will Baptist people.

I feel that it would be a very great loss to both the paper and to the denomination if Brother Griffin should discontinue his "Notes and Quotes." I suggest, therefore, that every reader send him a card or letter, letting him know that we do appreciate him and his great work, for it has meant so very much to us, and the Free Will Baptist cause. Let us give this man of God a few flowers now while he can appreciate them, for I am sure that he will greatly appreciate our interest in reading his "Notes and Quotes."

FAIRMOUNT PARK F. W. B. CHURCH BROADCASTING

This is to announce that Fairmount Park F. W. B. Church is now broadcasting each Sunday evening from 8:00 to 9:00 P. M. over Radio Station WCAV, Norfolk, Virginia.

Turn on your radio to dial 850 for this Sunday evening program for good music, and old-time gospel message.

The pastor is Rev. W. A. Hales.

An old lady asked by a minister visiting her if she had religion. She replied: "I have slight touches of it occasionally."

When We Prayed for Rain

The cycle of drought from which the new settlement in South Dakota had been spared in the years following 1884, arrived. Rains were plentiful in spring, but the rest of the summer months passed without rain; but the settlers did not give up that year, or the next, or the next.

They still sowed grain and planted corn in hope, for the melted snow and the generally generous rains in spring renewed their hopes.

But the hottest southeast winds scorched all before them. The few surviving garden vegetables seemed to cook. The window panes in the house felt too hot to touch. Corn which in the morning stood up straight would be torn and shredded, the tattered leaves rattling in the suffocating winds. Dust storms added to the discomfort of humans and beasts. The little ponds which had once dried up, and the bottoms caked and curled up in hard, dry crusts.

The numerous wells which had been dug were dry. The shade trees gave up life. The poplars died. The long-suffering cottonwoods, which had so bravely withstood the drouth and still merrily twinkled their leaves, were attacked by another enemy, a small yellow-striped bug. They accomplished what the drouth had failed to do. The little groves died.

The settlers were completely downcast. Every morning as the sun, like a fiery red ball, rose to give them another day of torment, they said, as the prophet said Israel would lament, "Would God it were even!" And during the suffocating nights, "Would God it were morning!"—Deut. 28:67.

It was in August that a day came in which cattle lowed for water, and there was none to give.

A young, newly-ordained minister, serving in a nearby county, came to our house in the noon hour. "Mr. L., don't you realize that something must be done?" he asked my father.

"Yes, but what?" was the answer.

The young minister looked at father with kind, friendly eyes, and said, "Where is your faith? Get your young men out on horseback to summon the congregation to prayer to-night."

The families came driving to church early in the evening. The young preacher stood ready. "Girls," he said to us, "Where are your umbrellas?"

"Umbrellas? What for?"

"Well, aren't we going to pray for rain?" He produced a big cotton umbrella. "See, I'm taking mine, and you'll get all wet. Have you no faith?"

We evidently had not, for we took no umbrellas.

Many prayers went up for rain that night. Only one stands out clearly in the writer's mind. I recall the worn weary face, uplifted to plead for water, for ourselves, for our children, and for our cattle. I remember his slight form, the worn, gray checkered suit, the small, hard, brown work hands. I have heard burning prayers since then, but none that have so touched my heart as that did with its pathos. I remember that even then could be heard the plaintive lowing of thirsty animals.

Happening to sit near the clear-glassed window on the northwest side of the church, I saw a blue line appear on the far horizon, the faint, far-off lightning flickers. With a wonderful speed the blue line grew into clouds, and distant thunder rolled. There was no wind, but every minute like a fast express train, the clouds came rushing on. Finally lightning flashed through the room, and thunder rolled.

Several men hastened to protect their horses, but the minister dismissed the congregation hurriedly, saying, "Hurry home; it's going to rain!"

It poured while we were running home. Clothing and shoes were soaking wet; but the young preacher did not run. Calmly he walked home, and laughed at our dripping clothes. His were dry.

"What did I tell you? Where was your faith?"

The wagons rumbled by, the lightning flashed, thunder roared, but the cattle were still; they were drinking. Many years have passed. I am seventy-three, but the young minister's faith and the wonderful answer to prayer are still vivid in my memory.

Bethany Go-Tell Band Holds Good Meeting

The Go Tell Circle of the Bethany community held their third meeting on July 13, at the home of Mrs. Dick Granger, with 30 members present for this meeting. The program was based on the spreading of God's word. The scripture lesson was given by Mrs. Granger, while Mr. F. J. Kirby led the group in prayer, after which Miss Dot Granger read a poem. Then a reading came next, and the title was "The Bible." It was rendered by Miss Annie Dell Jones. Next came some good music by a group of the members present. Shirley Hancock presented a reading, entitled, "Missionary Work at Home." A story, "The Hidden Packet" was rendered by Mrs. Elsie Vause after which the group sang the song, "Jesus Is Calling."

The business session was entered into and after the business was completed, the hostess served delicious chicken salad sandwiches, assorted cookies, potato chips, mints and iced tea.

Open Pond Church Holds Good Bible School

The Vacation Bible school and the youth revival of Open Pond F. W. B. Church were enjoyed very much by all who took part. The directors were Mike and Roland Pelt. There were 52 students enrolled in the Bible school, and it was very educational to the students in attendance.

The youth revival services were held each night at 8:30 P. M. The messages were very good. Our church has been uplifted very much spiritually. On Friday, the last day of the Bible school, we enjoyed a splendid picnic lunch at the church. Our Sunday School attendance has increased 25 per cent from the results of the Bible school.

We have started now on our new church building program, which we hope to complete as soon as possible. Pray that God may bless us in this undertaking.

Doris Pace, Jakin, Georgia

Christian stewardship is the recognition that ALL we have—of money, of talents, of life—are a divine loan to be used wisely, and ministered as a sacred trust.

Many Christians spend more each year for candy, gum, cosmetics, and the like, than they do for the church. What must God think of the poor manner in which some of us have administered our trust?

Investment

"I can't get interested in missions," remarked a young lady.

"No," was the reply given to her, "you can hardly expect to. It is just like getting interest at a bank: you have to put in a little something first and the more you put in—time or money or prayer—the more the interest grows."—M. G. D.

GOD LISTENS

Quite often, after Sunday School Emma-Lou would stay for church. Sometimes she did not quite understand all of the minister's sermon, but always she understood enough of it to enjoy it. It gave her things to think about during the week.

One Sunday the minister's sermon was called "God Listens." There was a great deal to think about in that sermon. The minister said that God listens when you do not even say the words aloud. He said God hears you even when you cannot put the feeling you have into words at all. It is what makes prayer so wonderful, because God understands the things you can not always say in words.

EmmaLou thought about that often. When ugly thoughts came to her she was ashamed and tried to put them away quickly because she remembered that God was listening even to those. When happy moments came to her she rejoiced because then she was sharing something lovely with God.

One afternoon EmmaLou and her friend Esther went for rides on their bicycles. They rode out toward the edge of town and came to a very large hill. On one side the hill was very steep with only a pathway leading down.

"Let's ride down the path," EmmaLou suggested. "It would be fun! I guess we could go a hundred miles an hour down this hill!"

Esther laughed. Of course she knew EmmaLou did not really mean they might go a hundred miles an hour. But it was fun pretending. She laughed and said, "Oh, more than that! Maybe two hundred miles an hour! Yes, let's ride down the path!"

"Keep your foot on the brake," Esther called as she started down the path. Then you won't go so fast."

But EmmaLou had already started down the hill and she had discovered that, for some reason, the brake on her bicycle was not working. It did not hold her back. Instead the bicycle kept going faster and faster.

Faster and faster and faster. EmmaLou could hardly keep it going straight. The wind whipped through her hair and one of the little bows flew out. But she could not stop. Faster and faster she went until she knew she must be going to crash. She would be hurt and perhaps ruin her bicycle too. But what could she do?

Only a miracle could save her and her bicycle too. But what could she do? Only a miracle could save her and her bicycle now, she thought.

And now she remembered, "God listens!" Was He listening now? Was He hearing the wild beating of her heart and knowing how frightened she was? But what could He do about it? She closed her eyes very tightly, clung to the handle bars and cried out, "God, please help me."

The words were hardly said when it seemed that a great hand had come out of nowhere and taken hold of her bicycle. EmmaLou felt a quickly gentle slowing up and knew that once again she had control.

What had happened. She opened her eyes and looked about her. She saw that she had unconsciously turned off the little path and straight up the side of another small hill that was near the bottom. How had she done it? She had been too frightened to even see the other hill. And then she knew that alone she had not done it. The cry in her heart had been answered.

Esther came up panting. "You surely had me scared," said Esther. "I thought you were going to crash. It was fortunate you turned off when you did."

Yes, it was fortunate. It was more than that, too. But how can you explain to someone else what you can hardly explain even to yourself? As they rode their bicycles home again EmmaLou felt very close to God. And she knew that He was listening and that He, too, must be as happy as she was. For God, who never forgets His children is always happy when they remember Him, too.—The High Trail.

I knew him for a gentleman

By signs that never fail,

His coat was rough and rather worn,

His cheeks were thin and pale—

A lad who had his way to make,

With little time for play—

I knew him for a gentleman

By certain signs today.

He met his mother on the street;

Off came his little cap.

My door was shut; he waited there

Until I heard his rap.

He took the bundle from my hand,

And, when I dropped my pen,

He sprang to pick it up for me,

This gentlemen of ten.

He does not push the crowd along;

His voice is gently pitched;

He does not fling his books about

As if he were bewitched.

He stands aside to let you pass;

He always shuts the door;

He runs on errands willingly

To forge and mill and store.

He thinks of you before himself;

He serves you if he can;

For in whatever company

The manners mark the man.

At ten or forty 'tis the same,

The manner tells the tale;

And I discern the gentleman

By signs that never fail.

The Kingfisher's Song Is a Rattle

Fern Berry

If you live near a pond, lake or stream, you are sure to hear the rattle of the kingfisher, for this bird, unlike many of his neighbors of the woods and stream-sides, is unable to sing a beautiful springtime song but utters a rattling series of notes—something like the sound of an anchor chain, or of the shaking of bones or, perhaps, of a few pebbles in a can. The rattle probably sounds musical to other members of the kingfisher tribe.

The kingfisher, a shrewd and clever fisherman, is careful to observe all of the rules of sportsmanship except when he finds a fish hatchery, and with little consideration for the ways of mankind, he will call together his friends and make merrily with the fish confined within the narrow ponds. However, the kingfisher will not intrude upon the privacy of a fellow bird's fishing grounds.

Watch for the kingfisher family this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Kingfisher will be seen a-top some leaning tree or stub or a post, over water; every day. One day in summer you will be likely to see a family of young birds along with the father, learning to fish for themselves. Once sighted in the shallows, a fish has little chance, for the quick darting movements of Mr. or Mrs. Kingfisher and the sharp spear-like bill is almost sure to capture the luckless victim.

The kingfisher nests in a hollowed-out hole in some sand or clay bank.

Love Without Service

Love without service is like a sunbeam without light. The mother must minister to her child. A friend must seek to be helpful to his friend. The first recorded word of Christ was: "Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business"? and His last, "It is finished." What lies between these words? Constant ministry. When He said, "whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all", He outlined the form the Christ-life must take. "Ah," you say, "that was all very well for Him who came for the accomplishment of a special work, but it has no meaning to us." No meaning for us? Are there not as great evils today as when He came? Do not millions bend beneath indescribable sorrow? Have all men even yet the Truth? Do all know that they are the children of God? Have the doors between this and the Spirit-life been thrown open? The very work which faced the Master still remains. He began that which His followers must complete.—Sel.

Join thyself to the eternal God, and thou shalt be eternal.—Augustine

The Elder Brother

It was during the dark century when the powers-that-be in Scotland had forbidden all attendance at the church on the Sabbath. A little lassie was crossing the heath toward a secret meeting place, when she was stopped by a great soldier who pointed his sword at her throat and demanded where she was going. The heart under the little Scotch plaid yoke mak have been beating at double time, and the childish voice may have trembled a bit, but still she answered truthfully: "And if it please ye, kind sir, my Elder Brother has died; sould I no' gang to my Father's hoose for to see what he has left me in his last will and Testament?"

This must have sounded like good thrifty commonsense to the Scotch soldier for he said to her: "Ay, ay, lassie! Gang yer gait!" And the little girl went her way to worship her Father with others who had braved imprisonment and death for their love of God and His Church.—First Church Flashes.

Evil cannot really harm us so long as we hate it. Recognized as an enemy, it never gets inside our guard. But the slightest friendliness to it begins the danger.—Selected.

The Decisive Moment

Priscilla Leonard

When things are at their worst

Is the time to fight.

It is easy to be brave

When things go all right;

But the lad who battles on

Though he sees no chance,

Finds the key to victory,

Finds the secret of advance.

When things are at their worst

Is the time to smile.

Any heart can be content

When life looks worth while.

But the girl whose cheerful face

Meets the hardest day,

Finds the sunshine in the end,

Finds the joyous way.

When things are at their worst

Is the time to trust.

It is easy to accept

What seems happy and just;

But the soul that holds to faith

Through its storm and pain,

Finds the everlasting strength,

Finds the things that remain.

Ezra, Interpreter of God's Word

(Lesson for August 13)

LESSON: Ezra 8:1-18.

I. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

A long gap of about four centuries intervened between the time of the prophet of whom we studied last week and the priest and scribe whom we consider today. Meantime North Israel, and finally Judah, had gone into captivity, and half a century later there had been a return of about 50,000 people to Jerusalem under Zerubbabel. The temple had been rebuilt after considerable delay. Then there is a blank of fifty-seven years in Palestinian history until Ezra appears on the scene. Remember, Ezra was not of the first generation of exiles that returned. His return, recorded in Ezra, chapter 7, was in the year 458 or 457 B. C., about eighty years after the return under Zerubbabel. An entirely new generation was on the scene.—Arnold's Commentary.

1. It is good for any people to know what is written in the Word of God (Neh. 8:1).

2. It is good for any people to have a leader who makes it his business to acquaint them with the Word of God (vs. 2).

3. It is good for the people of any country to gather in crowds to hear the Word of God (vs. 2).

4. It is a fine indication of a proper attitude toward the Lord when a crowd of people will listen to the Word of God for a whole day (vs. 3).

5. It is good for the preacher or teacher to occupy a place where he can be seen as well as heard (vs. 4).

6. It is a fine thing for people to give an indication of reverence at the reading of God's Word (vs. 5).

7. It is a blessing for the people to participate in the prayer that is offered in a public meeting (vs. 6).

8. It is a blessing to have spiritual leaders who can make plain the meaning of God's Word (vs. 8).

9. It is a thrilling experience to see the Word of God producing repentance and faith (vss. 9, 10).

10. It is strengthening to the believer to read the Word of God day by day (vs. 18).—Selected.

11. Ezra is spoken of as "a ready scribe in the law of Moses." He assembled the Hebrew people in a large open space or court in Jerusalem. The water gate was in the southeastern part of the city. It received its name because people carried water through it from the spring called "Virgin's Fountain." Ezra called the people together on the first day of the seventh month (Tishri-October) the day set apart for the celebration of the Feast of the Trumpets (Num. 29:1-6). Note, the people called for the book of the law; they wanted to understand the law requirements, and they would have Ezra the scribe to read it to them.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

12. Besides reforms accomplished, Ezra deserves honor as the one responsible for arranging, editing and publishing the book of the Law, or the canon of the early Scriptures.

Copies of the Mosiac writings were scarce, and moreover, after nearly a century of residence in Babylon, the language in which they were written would hardly be intelligible. In collecting and editing these manuscripts, Ezra substituted the better formed and finished letters of the Chaldee alphabet for the old Hebrew character.

13. Ezra conducted a wonderful open-air meeting. The record says that he "stood upon a pulpit of wood." This is the only time the word "pulpit" appears in the Bible . . . and the occasion was very likely the first instance of preaching from a text.

Ezra made sure that the hearers understood the 'sense,' or meaning of the Word. This is the preacher's task. The man in the pulpit has a grave responsibility. He can warp, twist and do violence to the Scriptures . . . and even create doubt as to their credibility. Or he can study them consistently, prayerfully and with reverence . . . and interpret them in a way to meet the eternal needs of those who sit under his ministry.

14. It would be sacrilegious to compare the modern Zionist organization, with the great spiritual movement which supplied the inspiration for Ezra and Nehemiah. Political Zionism and its program of world domination through international Jewry, stems from the same anti-Christ source as Communism. Lenin and Trotsky were early Zionist sympathizers.—Defender Magazine

Treasure Unreceived

A nobleman once gave a celebrated actress a Bible, telling her at the same time that there was a treasure in it. She, thinking he meant religion, laid the Bible aside. She died, and all she had was sold. The person who bought the Bible, on turning over its leaves, found a note for $2,500 in it. Poor creature! had she read the book, she might not only have found the note, but the "pearl of great price."

Rescue the Perishing

A newspaper writer, commenting on the craven conduct of the officers of the Larchmont, which went down in Long Island Sound not long since, compared it with the valourous spirit of Captian Luce of the Arctic more than fifty years ago, who remained with his ship until she sank into the depths of the sea. It was not his fault that he survived. He was rescued, by no attempt of his own, from the waves in which he had been engulfed, but he passed his remaining days in avoiding society. Though it was no fault of his that he was living, he was ashamed to be alive while his passengers were dead. If, by the grace of God, we find ourselves in the home of the saved, rescued by infinite love, will it not tinge the happiness of heaven with bitterness to reflect that, while we have escaped destruction, we did little or nothing to rescue the perishing?—1000 Evangelistic Illustrations

Jacksonville Bible School

The Woman's Auxiliary of Jacksonville, F. W. B. Church sponsored a Vacation Bible school which began on May 22, and closed on June the first. We praise the Lord for the success of this school, for it was the best we have ever had.

On the first day of the school we had only 36 pupils present, but during that afternoon different members of the auxiliary went out on personal walks, making visits in homes, and the children who were not in Bible school elsewhere, and urged also our regular Sunday School members who had not enrolled to do so at once. As a result the class rooms began to fill, and much interest was soon being manifested.

We had 20 little ones in the cradle roll with Mrs. Willis Parker in charge. She was assisted by Mesdames L. H. Batson, Herman Albright, and George Gilbert. There were 21 in the Beginners' department with E. D. Patten and Mrs. G. R. Howell in charge. There were 20 in the Junior class with Mesdames E. E. Tosto, and Liston Parker in charge. Mrs. J. W. Wiggins had 18 Intermediates, with the help of Rev. Lee Whaley.

Mrs. Lee Whaley was General Director, Mrs. J. K. Rhodes was pianist and Mrs. Hattie Jordan was the secretary. The total enrollment was 121 in the Bible school. The daily attendance was eighty-seven.

We sincerely regret that all of those attending the school are not in this picture which was taken of the group. The children received twenty hours of Bible study, and five and one half hours of music during the two weeks.

At the closing exercises the Juniors and the Intermediates expressed themselves as having received much knowledge concerning the Saviour, and they expressed a desire to live more closely to Him, because they had learned to love Him better. We gave a picnic feast on the church grounds at 6 p. m., with the commencement exercises coming at 8:00 P. M.

Woman's Auxiliary Report

The Woman's auxiliary of Little Rock F. W. B. Church met in the home of Mrs. Everette Godwin. The meeting opened with singing and prayer. The theme was "Advancing with Christ through Publicity." It was led by Mrs. Hubert Ferrell. Others taking part were Mesdames Guy Ferrell, Mildred Watson, and Miss Omettie Raper.

During the business period the fifth vice-president reported that she had sent 146 coupons to the Middlesex Orphanage this year. Twenty-five dollars is to be sent to the Home extra, since the crops were damaged by the storms.

We secured four new subscribers to the Baptist paper at this meeting. It was decided at this meeting that our Auxiliary would send a member of the Junior auxiliary to Crumpton for the week August 7 through 15.

We closed this meeting with song and prayer. The hostess served refreshments which were enjoyed by the eleven members present.

STORYLAND

TWO COATS

Esther M. Payler

Shirley opened her sleepy eyes and saw the sun was streaming into her bedroom. She burrowed more comfortable into the covers, and complained: "It's Saturday, Mother, why aren't you letting us sleep?"

Jim, in his bedroom across the hall, grunted and kept his eyes closed. "Aw, let a fellow sleep, Mom! This is the one day of the week I can sleep. Week days, I got to go to school early, and then to Sunday School on Sunday!"

"Today's the clothing drive for overseas missions," said Mother patiently. "I want you to go through your cupboards and drawers to see what you can spare. At 11:00 is the rally when Sue's Aunt, Miss Hayne, will talk. At 11:30, Jim, you're supposed to help with the pick-up trucks! Shirley and I are to help with sorting and bundling clothes which the trucks bring in."

"O. K.," snorted Jim, rolling out of bed. "It will be fun to ride the trucks."

Shirley, stretched and yawned: "Give clothes away again? It's more clothes, more new ones, I need instead." Shirley wrinkled her turned-up nose like a rabbit, the way she always did when she was displeased.

Jim bellowed from the other room: "Sis, you were just complaining yesterday you didn't have enough room in your room cupboard, and you wanted part of the big one in the hall." He mimicked her: "I just haven't a thing to wear! That's because you can't decide which of all you have."

"Keep quiet, Jim," retorted his sister. "You should talk, you walking clothes ad! You wear a different sweater every day of the week, and you always got slacks to match! And shirts, well—it looks to me like you could start a store!"

"Children!" came Mother's voice from downstairs, accompanied by the odor of boiling cocoa, and browning toast. "Stop bickering! Come down and eat breakfast. Then sort your clothes."

Soon afterward, Mother was helping the children pick out the clothes to send, when a telephone call came from the church for her to come early to see that everything was ready for the sorting and receiving. "You finish up, children, and be sure to be generous," she instructed. "If Jesus, Himself, were to come asking for clothes, you'd give Him without stinting. When you're giving to those who need it, you know you are really giving to Him, because He said: 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me.'"

"Yes," answered Shirley absently, tossing the blond ringlets, which were falling into here eyes, as she bent over a drawer.

"Sure," replied Jim, frowning until there was a wrinkle between his dark eyes.

Shirley was going through her skirts: "I won't send this one! I can still wear it!" She looked critically at a red and black plaid. "I won't send the blue one! I can use that some time. I'll just send this green one! I never did like the way it bulged." She help it against her and looked into the mirror, making a face.

Jim had a pile of sweaters his mother had put aside for the drive. He went through them looking at each one. "I think I'll keep this one for hikes and rough stuff! This red one is just the shade to look fine with my new slacks!" Soon he had only about half the pile his mother had sorted out. He tossed some socks back into the drawer, and tried to shove it shut, but it was so full it stuck.

Shirley kept putting back sweaters, blouses, and underwear. "This is all I have!" she said to Jim, as she carried her bundle into the hall. "Haven't you got more than that?" she raised her eyebrows as she eyed his small pile of clothes.

"That's all," said Jim, brushing his burr hair cut bricly. "If Mother sees this, she won't like it a bit! Come, we must hurry, it's nearly 11:00 now!" answered Jim.

When they got to the church hall, most of the seats were already taken. Jim slipped into a row with some of his fellow Boy Scouts, and Shirley sat with her classmate, Sue. The children had put their clothing with the pile at the door. Mother, busy elsewhere, did not notice the size of the bundle. Shirley breathed easier for that, and Jim winked at her.

Sue's aunt, Miss Hayne, had been a teacher in a mission school in Greece. "How thin and white she looks," exclaimed Shirley to Sue. "She used to look stouter than that."

"It will take time for her to get back her weight and strength. She has been on a starvation diet so long," answered Sue.

Sue's aunt was talking in a clear, ringing voice. "A picture speaks louder than words. So I am going to show you some pictures which I took at our mission. I am sure they will help you in realizing how desperately help is needed. And that you will remember everything you share will be appreciated and help those in need to know you love Jesus so much, you are willing to share what you have with others who are also His precious children."

As the lights were turned off, Shirley could hear the sound of the projector machine. Light was thrown on the screen.

Shirley gasped, for the first picture showed a group of little children dressed in rags and they were barefoot. She saw plates with a tiny bit of food on them: "That is all those children will get in a whole day! Some will not get that much." Shirley thought of the heaped bowls on their table at home, and how often she had failed to clean her plate. "This can't be now!" she said aloud.

"Oh, yes," replied Sue. "Auntie just took them before she came home."

Shirley saw little babies wrapped in rags; eyes the biggest features in their pinched faces. "Look at the lines of people waiting for food," said Miss Hayne. "They may get only a tiny bit, or none, after waiting most of the day."

She saw people who looked like walking skeletons, with just skin stretched over their bones. Some of the little ones had had abdomens too big for their skinny legs and pigeon chests, which Miss Hayne explained were due to poor nutrition.

As the pictures were shown, Sue's Aunt told stories about these children and people calling them by name. "They're real people," wondered Shirley, out loud, and not knowing she said it. "Like you and me."

"Sure," snapped Sue, staring at Shirley. "You'd get just as hungry!" Shirley could feel her eyes staring at her in the darkened room. There seemed to be eyes all around, and they were looking not only at her and Jim, but also at the pile of sweaters, blouses, skirts and socks, in her cupboard at home. Shirley felt hot with shame and she knew red was coming up over her face from her neck.

Shirley knew those eyes would still be looking at her the next time she wasted any food. "I didn't realize," murmured Shirley to Sue.

"We didn't either, till Auntie came to our house," replied Sue, and now she stared no longer, but her voice sounded softer than usual. "Doesn't it make you want to give and give?"

"Yes," answered Shirley. "I must go home at once. Please excuse me."

Passing where Jim was sitting as she tiptoed out, she tapped him on the shoulder. "Come home with me," she whispered. He arose at once and followed her. Shirley did not care if others wondered.

The lights snapped on. At her shock to find herself standing so conspicuously, Shirley impulsively did what she would not have had the nerve to do otherwise. "Miss Hayne," she said loudly. "May I say something?"

"Of course! Just go ahead," answered Miss Hayne.

"Jim and I are going home to get some more clothes we can spare, now that we realize the need. I was just wondering if everyone would not want to do the same? Perhaps take a half hour to go home and get other things they didn't give which they could give and then come back and go to work as if Jesus, Himself, had directly asked each one and depended on Him alone."

"Yes!"

"We do!"

"Sure thing!" There were murmurs, calls, and clapping.

"Thank you, Shirley. That is a fine thought in keeping with the words of Jesus who said if we have two coats to give one to someone in need. He was God's Son and everything belongs to Him, but His wardrobe was only a seamless robe given to Him."

Mother whispered to Shirley, as she passed her: "I'm proud of you."

As they hurried down the street Jim grinned. Shirley said: "I'm ashamed of myself for being such a pig!"

"We just did not realize. We were selfishly thoughtless just like so many more, but from now on, we'll do better, God being our helper." Jim's blue eyes were serious for a change.

"Yes siree," answered Shirley, her dimple showing like it did when she was happy. "I wouldn't be one bit comfortable in my clothes, if I forgot about Jesus' idea of the two coats."

many ways, it might have been by the Angel of the Lord, by the spoken word as he spoke to Gideon through the test of the fleece. When it came to the time of the prophets God spoke more in dreams, visions and word of mouth.

The vision method can be divided into two kinds, the ones seen with the inner spiritual eye and do not need the aid of the physical and the ones seen only by the physical. Likewise the word of mouth method can be divided into two kinds, the inner voice which does not need the aid of the physical and audible spoken words which need only the physical to hear.

During the time of Christ he spoke to man through the different miracles and Parables which Christ did and told while here on the earth.

There is one method God used through all the ages to speak to men and is still using it in this age in which we live and that is the Holy Spirit. Yes, even in our own day He speaks in different ways to different people; to you he might speak through the still small voice of the Holy Spirit but to me he might speak through a minister or some Christian worker. The thing that you and I need to do is stay so close to the Lord until the moment he speaks in whatever manner He chooses that we will be able to discern and know that God is speaking to us.

Now we come to the last section of the lecture—the agents of revelation. In these three verses we have two agents spoken of although there were others, such as angels and the Holy Spirit, we are interested in only the two mentioned for the time being.

By the prophets, the author means one who has a message from God for the people. In this phrase the author might mean to include all persons whom God has ever been pleased to use as mediums for communicating His will to men. I think the main reason for bringing in the prophets is to contrast the prophets with Christ showing how much superior He was to the prophets or all the other agents used by God for communicating a message.

"In Christ all the fragments of previous revelation were compiled, all the methods of it concentrated, and all its apparent perplexities and contradictions solved and rendered intelligible. Sonship naturally suggests heirship, and in Christ was fulfilled the immense promise to Abraham that his seed should be heir of the World." (Farrar).

However, by this we do not want to discredit the older revelation but rather to show its richness, its fullness and its adaptation to the increasing needs of mankind. The contrast between the old and the new is drawn in the phrases which are added as a comprehensive description of the Son. There are six of these phrases and from these we can see why Christ was the superior agent to deliver the Divine Revelation.

(A) "Whom he hath appointed heir of all things." This points to us that God appointed, constituted or ordained Jesus, His Son, to be a possessor with Him of all things. Because Jesus is the Son, then this makes him an heir. Then by acceptance of Him we become an heir with Him, Gal. 4:7, "Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then and heir of God through Christ." Does not this help to prove that Jesus is the superior one.

(B) "By whom also he made the worlds." So then the heir of all things was also the creator of all things. Jesus the Son was God's agent in the creation of the world. Paul, in describing the activity of Jesus in the work of creation, gives us these words in Col. 1:5-8: "Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities or powers: all things were created by him, and for him: And he is before all things, and by him all things consist. And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." (Farrar).

(C) The next phrases are: "Being the brightness of His glory and the express image of his person." "There may have been a time when there were no "Worlds;" there never was a time when God was without glory, and that glory was ever being revealed through the Son. He is related to the father as the sun's rays are related to the sun." (Erdman).

These statements describe the relationship between God the Son and God the Father. Both of the statements are metaphors. The first meaning the bright shining forth, thus the brightness of God was shining forth from Jesus. The second statement, "Very image" means the stamp cut by a die, and so the impress made upon a seal; thus this statement signifies that the essence of the divine nature was stamped on the person of Christ. He was in essences, God.

(D) The fourth phrase is "Upholding all things by the word of his power." He who is the heir of all things, the creator of all things, the essence of God, is also the sustainer of all things. He not merely supports, as one would support a heavy weight, but he carries forward, he guides, he governs, he brings to its right conclusion the whole course of nature and of history.

(E) "When he had by himself purged our sins." This tells us about the work of Christ during His earthly ministry. It emphasizes the atonement made by Christ on calvary where He gave Himself to purge our sins. The writer of Hebrews deals with this doctrine very much and puts much emphasis on it.

(F) The sixth and last phrase is "Sat down on the right hand of the majesty on high." This position at the right hand implies commanding, ruling and administrative authority. After His lowly position as a servant, which ended with his death on the cross, He was exalted to a high position at the right hand of the majesty on high.

The six phrases are not the summary of the writers conception of Christ and does it not help us to better understand more about the relation that exists between God and Jesus, and because of that we better see just where we stand? May God help each one to draw closer unto Him and learn more of Him daily.

A VERY HIGH CHURCH MISSIONARY

A good and devoted missionary was sent out to the mountains, where most of the people had grown up Baptists. An old man of the local Baptist church died and his family wanted him buried from the church. The missionary, uncertain whether he might use the church for an unconfirmed sectarian, telegraphed to the bishop, asking what he should do. Back came the cordial answer, "Bury all Baptists you can."

Available for Pastoral Work

I am in a position to consider pastoral work for two Sundays in the month (any Sundays), if not too far from Ayden, North Carolina. Mrs. Ballard will be free to work with me this next year, doing the same type of work she has done for the past four years in New Bern, not as an employee of the church, but as the pastor's wife.

Candle-Light

Distressed, I looked out on the world
So torn by strife and sin,
And felt a thrill of thankfulness
For calm and peace within.

But pity surged up in my soul,
And through my tears I prayed,
"Oh, blessed Lord, how can I help
Lost souls, forlorn, who've strayed?"

I wish I had an angel's voice
To sing of Thy great love,
Or moving eloquence to make
Their hearts to look above.

I'd like to be a tall lighthouse
So drifting lives might see
My streaming ray, and in its path
Come safely Home to Thee.

But I am small and useless, Lord,
There's little I can do.
Then, all at once, a whisper came,
"The Lord needs candles, too."

"Oh, wilt thou light my candle?"
I cried with heart aglow.
"Perhaps some soul will see its flame
And know the way to go."

So let Him light your candle!
Although it may seem dim,
A thousand candles burning
Will guide a host to Him.

≈ A Greater Than Angels ≈

Heb. 1:4-14

Two disciples of Christ, Matthew and Luke, dared to record in their Gospels that "A greater than Solomon is here." Solomon, who was no doubt the richest and wisest man that ever lived; yet Matthew and Luke said that Christ was greater than he. The writer of Hebrews goes even further than that. He says that Jesus is greater than Angels. Then he sets forth his argument or proof in the latter part of chapter one. Knowing that the writer is well acquainted with the Hebrew laws, traditions, and customs it is not surprising to find that he proves the superiority of Jesus over Angels by quotations from Old Testament passages.

He begins by saying that Jesus is greater because of his name, "He hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent Name than they." Jesus was the only begotten Son of God. "For unto which of the Angels said he at any time Thou art my Son." There is not an Angel who could become the Son, not one that could be exalted high enough to be called a Son. Jesus is greater than all the Angelic host of God.

The writer of Hebrews has plenty of Biblical basis for saying that Jesus has "A more excellent name than they (The Angels)." For we find especially in Paul's writings this fact, that Jesus' name had been exalted above all names. Here is a passage found in Eph. 1:21: "Far above all principality and power and might and dominion and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come." So then the name of Jesus is above all principality, all powers who ever it belongs to, all might no matter how mighty, all dominion no matter how great, in fact. His Name is above all names that have ever been named in this world or the world to come. Then in Phil. 2:9-10 Paul has this to say in regard to the greatness of Jesus' name, "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a Name which is above every name: That at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth." You may never bow your knee and confess to Jesus while you live here on the earth but one day for sure you will stand before the judgment bar of God with Jesus as the righteous judge. Then you will bow your knee and confess to the name of Jesus. Oh, but how much different the outcome of the judgment if you would only bow your knee now and confess him as your Lord and Saviour. Luke in Acts 4:12 says, "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." For all who do not have salvation and desire it there is none other NAME to turn to than to the name of Jesus. There is no Angel whose name is great enough for you or me to find forgiveness of our sins. No man that ever lived has a high enough name through which we could receive salvation. "There is none other NAME under heaven."

Then to the Christian, Paul would say in Col. 3:17, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." If we want the things that we do to be worthy of reward at the judgment, whether it be by what we say or the deeds that we do, it must be done in the name of Jesus. So then the writer of Hebrews has established his statement that Jesus has a more excellent name than angels.

Then he proceeds with the proof of Jesus' greatness by saying that Jesus is greater in position. What is the position of this one who is so great, the one who was with God in the beginning, the one who was laid in a manger some 1900 years ago, and the one who died on calvary for the sins of all mankind? Is not his position that of a Son, was not he a Son in the beginning and has not he always been a Son and will He not always be one? "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? . . . And again I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son?"

What about Angels, what is their position? Certainly it is not that of a Son that are created spiritual beings of a nature exalted far above that of man, and far inferior to that of God. Their duties are "to do Him service in Heaven, and by his appointment to succor and defend men on earth." Yes, they are to praise and glorify Jehovah the true and living God and protect His saints from all danger and harm that would come from the evil spirits of Satan.

Christ was exalted so high in position above the Angels until the Angels were commanded to worship Him. "When he bringeth in the first begotten into the world, he saith, and let all the angels of God worship him." As the Angelic host of God announced the birth of the Saviour to the Shepherds even there they worshipped Him. Luke 2:9-15, "And, lo the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another. Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass,

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

It was our happy privilege to attend the Carteret County Union meeting of Free Will Baptist churches July the 29th. It filled our heart with joy to see the work which has been done by this Union for the past few years. It was our happy privilege to help to organize this union back near a quarter of a century ago. On several occasions I have visited, as well as being a member, for about three years of the life of the union.

For the past year J. R. Davidson of Davis, N. C., has been the moderator, but due to his leaving the Union District, in that he is becoming the pastor of St. Mary's church in New Bern, his assistant, Brother Ralph Wilkins, was elected moderator.

The reports coming in from the churches showed a healthy growth since the last union three months ago. It is encouraging to hear reports that show an increase in conversions and additions to the church along with an increase in the finances and attendance at worship, etc.

The speakers for the day were Revs. J. R. Davidson, Clifton Styron and L. E. Styron. They were all good messages, centered on the "Worship of God." Several special selections were rendered by individuals. A quartet by the Davidsons, and a duet by the ladies of the Russell Creek church, and special music by the choir of the host church, and a solo by Rev. J. Albert Harris, with congregation singing sandwiched all through the services. The closing part of the services was a testimony service piloted by your servant—J. C. G.—in which many witnessed to the "Saving Power" of the Lord Jesus. Truly it was good to be there. We cannot close without saying that the host church is tops when it comes to taking care of a union meeting. They really did it in a great way. God is blessing the union. It was a great joy to our soul to meet with those whom we have worked with in past years and to meet new spirit-filled workers of the Lord. We were very happy to meet with Sister J. F. Harmon, Sr., of Georgia and her son J. F., Jr., the latter being stationed at Cherry Point Marine Base. Sister Harmon is visiting Junior.

HEINOUSNESS OF SIN

With all the hateful, destructive, deceptive characteristics of sin, millions of people prefer to follow after sin and the Devil instead of accepting the Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus Saves. Sin Damns. Jesus takes the believer to heaven. Sin administered by Satan, prepares the soul for a Demon's Hell.

Yet in the face of the facts men prefer to follow the broad way of death and hell. You preach to them and they think you are silly, in many instances, if you condemn the sin in their life. But brother, here is one who cannot compromise with sin. The thing that damns the souls of men will not be "soft peddled" by me.

"No man can serve two masters", therefore, we are either on the Lord's side or we are living for the devil. Too many preachers are compromising with sin and patting folk on the back, telling them that they are good fellows, when actually they are on their way to the "Lake that burneth with brimstone and fire. I don't think that a man can please the devil better than to live in the church—the visible church—when his life is so corrupt that he stands in the way of lost souls. Jesus said, "Take heed that your light be not darkness." The one who professes to have light and then walks in darkness is a well-pleasing servant of the devil. "By their works ye shall know them."

HYPOCRITS

Often I find some good-for-nothing, self-righteous servant of Satan who stands back and hides behind some fellow whom he calls a "hypocrite," saying, "I'm as good as that fellow." That may be true or it may not be true. I am satisfied that all the hypocrites in the world are not members of some church. There are some very big ones who are outside the church, criticizing "weak-kneed Christians." Every fellow who falls down is not a hypocrite. Often it is one who is weak in the flesh. Jesus said "the flesh is weak." A great many of the Bible characters committed some sin. Jesus said, "He that is without fault, cast the first stone."

I had rather see a poor weak Christian who keeps repenting and following after righteousness than to look at the self-righteous criticiser.

I have known weak Christians to grow stronger and finally reach the place of entire consecration and die happy in the Lord; but I have never seen a "self-righteous" man leave this world happy. I have seen them go as wretched undone sinners.

Pastoral Announcement

I am now an ordained minister of the gospel, and will be available for pastoral work, or to render any service that the Lord's people may want me to hold for them. I shall be glad to get churches to pastor for the coming year. Anyone interested can contact me at the following address.

The Need of Humility

Various circumstances burden people with feelings of dejection, suppression, and subordination, which, in many instances, subject individuals to the terrible malady of inferiority complex. This feeling of humiliation often renders one unfit for living the fullest and most useful life, and it is not the humility which we believe to be the ground work of the criterion, or the remedy, for this confused, distrustful, and sin-blighted generation.

Christ gives us the pattern for true and effective humbleness in Matthew 18:1-4. He very definitely declared to His disciples that no one is fit for the kingdom of heaven, neither can one enter therein, without the simple humbleness of a child. The childlike kind is not brought on nor strengthened by pressure or force, but it has its setting in a feeling of innocent dependence upon and trustful confidence in the one to whom the helpless one looks for protection, support, and guidance. Love and the innate longing for someone to trust and lean upon humbles the child before the parent. That is the kind of humility God looks for in His people.

We notice also that there is power in that kind of humble submission. Jesus said that those who possess childlike humbleness before God are greatest in His kingdom. Evidently, then, those who are greatest in His sight have most power at the Throne of Grace. The entire New Testament places strong emphasis on the value of prayer. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much" (James 5:16).

A truly humble servant of God can discern more divine truth on his knees in his private bedchamber than an egotistic theologian can standing atiptoe on the misty mountain peak of theological learning. Christians would have more power for good in the world today if they spent more time in communion with God in prayer and less time riding those who spend their time trying to devise ways and means of carrying on without Him.

If the leaders of the so-called Christian nations were childlike humble before God, and spent as much time in fervent prayer for the safety of mankind as they spend in conferences in efforts to devise means of destruction, God would hear their appeals for peace and safety, and use them to work out answers to their prayers. We pray for peace, but we work for destruction. Such prayers cannot go heavenward because they are bound to the earth with selfishness, greed, and hatred. We have power for good according to our humbleness before God. Let us humble ourselves before Him so that He may use us during these days of uncertainty and peril.

PREACHER WITH A PURPOSE

Garland Knott

Florida. He was a good schoolman. For the school year 1945-46 he received the Florida Education Association citation for having the best junior high school program in the state. All of this time he was preaching.

To give his children opportunities that he had not had, the Reverend Mr. Pelt bought a farm five years ago near Marianna. The family moved in during the Christmas season. On January 17 the house burned to the ground, and with it nearly all the family possessed—hard luck again! But hard work and generous contributions from grateful church and community members soon put a better house in the place of the old. Mr. Pelt farmed personally sixty-five acres for two years while he performed his duties as principal. Now two of the children are in college and the third nearing completion of high school, partly on money they have made in FFA projects.

All of this time Daniel Pelt was preaching, and 1950 has seen the culmination of his career. For the Progressive Farmer Magazine has this year awarded him recognition as Florida's Rural Minister of the Year. His educational work may have had some bearing on the choice, but the real basis lies in church leadership and community service.

At present, Mr. Pelt is serving three churches in north-west Florida. When he went to Christian Home Church in Blountstown twelve years ago, it was a tiny, unpainted, one-room structure. Now it is a modern building with six Sunday School rooms in addition to the auditorium. It is cooled in summer and heated in winter. "There is no excuse to stay away because of the weather," he smilingly tells the congregation. There has been a like spiritual improvement. During 1950 there have already been four baptisms held. At one of these there were seven new members received, and two or more at all.

The story at Hickory Grove Church, Bascom, is much the same. On Mr. Pelt's coming in 1942 the membership had been losing ground for ten years. Now there is a harmonious, growing congregation worshipping in a new church building.

This is Mr. Pelt's first year at Traveler's Rest Church at Altha. Already there is a building fund of $800 and a forward-looking spirit among the people. Besides these three church building programs, Mr. Pelt has organized and built three churches in southeast Alabama.

What is the secret of his success? One thing is to get help. "I don't do anything that a member of the church can do just as well or better," Mr. Pelt declares. That is the human side; but there is another side, too. "My few accomplishments have been the Lord's blessing and leadership. I was so timid that I almost fainted the first time I spoke in public," professes Mr. Pelt. That timidity is gone, and in its place is a confidence and optimism built on faith and experience.

Another secret has been in the handling of church finance. Mr. Pelt gets each church on a percentage basis in the disposal of its funds. This replaces the old system of paying current expenses and giving the rest to the preacher. Mr. Pelt believes that many congregations feel the preacher receives an unfair share the old way. "When selfishness is removed from the picture, God lays it on the hearts of the members to give more and more," he declares. Incidentally, by giving up the greater part of the church funds, he has found his monthly income from one church increasing from eight dollars to sixty for quarter-time work!

Mr. Pelt's influence has not been merely local. He has founded a summer camp to which young people from churches all over Florida may come for religious instruction. Five years

This is a hard-luck story—but more than that. It is the story of a man who has met hard luck with courage, foresight, and Christian conviction. And he has overcome it, with something to spare.

Daniel F. Pelt seemed marked for obscurity when he was born, the second of ten children, on a little farm near Marianna, Florida, in 1909. His family had little of the world's goods. In spite of this fact, Daniel made a beginning in school and managed to complete the tenth grade before he had to quit and help his father farm.

Thus, when Daniel married Ruby Carroll in his twentieth year, he was virtually unschooled and without prospect for any life beyond what he already knew. But he had something else.

A year before, he had become a Christian and had joined the local Free Will Baptist Church. Then, a few weeks before his marriage, he received the call to preach and answered it. Now he faced life with the hope of bettering himself in order that he might better serve the rural church. What is more, he did something about it.

Daniel Pelt finished high school and two years at the Free Will Baptist College in Nashville. Then he went on to get a degree of Bachelor of Science in Education from Troy, Alabama, State Teachers College. This was long before the days of the G. I. Bill. All of this time he was preaching. While at Troy, he served nine rural churches, drove three thousand miles a month, and preached from three to five sermons each week end. It took him ten years to get a degree since much of the time he went to school only in summer. His small church income was all that made schooling possible.

And Daniel Pelt had family responsibilities. To him and Ruby were born three children, Roland, Ramona, and Daniel, Jr. So Preacher Pelt—for preaching was his primary concern—undertook another job. He became a teacher and principal at Central Junior High School, Jackson Co.,

Tennessee Personalities and Events

Good revivals have been held in Middle Tennessee within the past few weeks. Rev. Raymond Riggs, Detroit, Michigan, held a successful meeting at New Hope Church during July with many results. Ronald Creech, Bible College student from Kenly, N. C., closed a sweeping revival at Oaklawn Church about the same time. The writer held a two-weeks meeting at Friendship Church near Nashville the latter part of July with 43 responses, about half of them conversions. Rev. George Ludwig is pastor. The writer will hold another revival in Mr. Ludwig's Bethel Church beginning August 13.

The Foreign Mission Board of the National Association plans to hold a special conference on missions at the Bible College in Nashville October 10 and 11. The evening services will be held in the East Nashville Church.

Two important meetings are scheduled for East Nashville Church this summer and fall: The Cumberland Woman's Auxiliary Convention will meet there on August 23. The State Association of Tennessee will convene there in October.

Advance reports show a heavy enrolment at the Bible College this fall . . . The College Girls Quartet has started its tour in Middle Tennessee, visiting many churches in this section . . . They sang at East Nashville last Sunday . . . Rev. T. O. Terry, pastor of Ashland City church, is in an extensive revival tour during August . . . Twenty-four from the Nashville area attended the National Association in Richmond, California in July . . . Many Free Will Baptists, on the way home from the Association, stopped by the College and some of the churches to exchange greetings.

WHEN THAT MORNING COMES

When earthly graves have opened,
And surrendered all their dead;
When bodies in the ocean awake
And see that light ahead,
Then Jesus' voice I will hear,
For from that great beyond,
He will take us home to glory
When that eternal morning comes.

I'm going home to glory,
When that morning comes.
I'll sail away to glory,
When the battle's won.
I will see the one called Moses,
And Peter and James and John,
And I know I'll see my Saviour
When that morning comes.

When mountains start to crumbling,
And this earth is all ablaze,
Then we'll see our Saviour
On that great Judgment Day.
He'll put his arms around us,
Wipe away our tears,
Because we'll never cry again
WHEN THAT MORNING COMES.

Life's Arithmetic

Add to your store of knowledge
Such learning as you may;
Let each day find you wiser
Before it pass away.
The chain across the river,
Stretching from brink to brink,
It was not forged and cast at once
But link was put to link.

Subtract from all your service
The things that mar and spoil;
Face duties with a cheerful heart,
Without a grumble toil.
Your childhood will be sure to lead
The poet said of old;
And you shall find a wiser truth
Has never yet been told.

Sweet deeds of love and service
Still learn to multiply;
There is so much that you can do.
If you will only try.
For little hands small tasks are set
That men could never do,
And you may speak so many words
That helpful are and true.

Divide your time up wisely;
Within each separate day
There is a time for you to work,
A time for you to play;
And if your time is wisely spent,
And portioned out like this,
Your childhood will be sure to lead
On to an age of peace.

Watery Branch Church Has Good Bible School

Our Vacation Bible school was held the week of June 19 through 23, under the leadership of L. V. Jones. There were five classes which were conducted for the different age groups of the school. Our pastor, Rev. T. P. Ellis, taught the adult class. Some of the women of the church served as teachers and helpers in the school.

On Friday afternoon a picnic was enjoyed by all the children and young people who attended the school. The church people gave to the pastor, Brother Ellis, a "pounding"—good things for his pantry. This was to show to him how the church appreciates his services.

Our church people are looking forward to having a good Bible school next summer.

WHY NOT GIVE AS UNTO THE LORD?

Some individuals, churches, and church organizations have the habit of giving very largely of their means to certain objects, or specifically designated purposes, or projects. They say, on the whole, that such projects stimulate, or interest persons to give more liberally and cheerfully than giving to some fund for a certain movement. While there may be some truth in this way of giving, yet we believe that it serves, in a great many instances, to hinder the larger purposes for which the money is given. For example, if certain members of a local church give only to the support of the pastor, then they withhold their support of church improvement and expansion. On the otherhand, if there be some who give very little for the support of the pastor, they make it hard for those who do seek to support him. Consequently, the church program is not receiving a balanced financial support, not to say anything about the support of the National program.

We believe that every local church should give "as unto the Lord." By this we mean, let the church set up a balanced budget at the beginning of the year, including in the budget of different phases of the church work both for the State and the National work, and then set plans by which the money can be raised at different periods during the year to reach the goal. Since money is needed in the church treasury every week in the year, it is necessary for the local church to keep the budget plan before the church people, and train them to give cheerfully all along during the year.

This plan will be greatly helpful, when carried out, to the State and the National work. For example, Christian education, Missions, Superannuation, the Orphanages, and other denominational projects must receive support month after month during the year. They cannot wait for certain seasons for money to be placed into their treasuries for their use; they must be supported each month, as is true of salaried and laboring individuals in this country, whatever may be their vocations. The missionaries, the orphans, the Christian workers, as well as the pastors, must be paid each month if they are to be able to meet their bills. And the church people want them paid on time. It would be a shame not to want them to receive their checks in due time each month.

In view of these things, this is what we are coming to: Since all local church, State and National work of our denomination receives its support in a financial way from the church people in general all over the denomination, it therefore is the fact that the money must come from the pockets of the families that go to make up the churches of the denomination. They are the ones who are to assume the responsibility for the adequate support of Christian education, Missions (home and foreign), Superannuation, Orphanages, etc. Each church of the denomination is duty bound to do its part in a liberal and cheerful way for these causes, in addition to the liberal support of its own local church obligations. No church can afford to sit idly by and see the mission cause suffer. Certainly, God would not be pleased with such indifference. No pastor can afford to neglect emphasizing the necessity of liberal and systematic giving, on the part of the churches which he is pastoring, to the State and National programs of our denomination. Certainly, every pastor is to be alert concerning these vital matters of our denomination. The church people will do, on the whole, the things that their good pastors lead them to do for the cause of the gospel in the world.

FATHER'S VOICE

Dear Friendly Boys and Girls,

If I were to ask you if you knew your father's voice, you would look at me in wonder and say, "Of course I do!" You would think I was ignorant to ask you such a question, would you not?

It is a good thing if you do know your father's voice. Now I will tell you what kind of boys and girls do not know their father's voice. They are the kind who do not obey him. Father will say to them, "Come home at such and such a time," and they will say, "Yes, Father." But when that time comes, playing goes so well and they wish to stay away a little longer. They think that perhaps Father will not care if they stay just a little longer. So they stay. Boys or girls who do this kind of thing have heard their father's voice all right, but it means little to them. Just the sound of his voice was familiar to them.

They could tell whose lips the words came from, but to them the words meant nothing. They took their own way and did just as they pleased. They did not really know their father's voice, because they did not obey him.

A boy may go out to skate. After he has been out for an hour, Father calls that he shall come home now. But he skates on a while longer, really disobeys his father. Do you think that boy really knows his father's voice?

One time the Lord Jesus said the sheep follow their shepherd "for they know his the voice of strangers" (John 10:4, 5). A-f- but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers" (John 10:4, 5). Afterward He said: "I am the Good Shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of Mine" (vs. 14). He is the Good Shepherd, and if we are his sheep we will follow Him, for we shall know His voice. When we know His voice, we will obey Him. We cannot say we know His voice unless we do what He tells us to do. He is faithful and He may often speak to us and tell us when we are wrong, or tell us to do things for Him.

When good children do wrong they are sorry and will confess the wrong. The parents then know that they can trust them. When a sheep goes wrong, and the shepherd seeks it, it will hear his voice and come with the shepherd to the fold.

So also, when we are Jesus' sheep or lambs, and go wrong, and He shows us that we are wrong, we will feel sorry and repent and Jesus will forgive us.

Are you Jesus' little lamb? Do you know His voice?

Yours, in the Lord Jesus,
Leota L. Knopp

BEGGAR OF IRAN

C. D. Carter

"No papa, no mamma, no bungalow," whined the little beggar pitifully.

"Backsheesh Backsheesh!" he cried again and again as he held out his hand expectantly for money. The little fellow kept dogging the steps of the American soldiers who were stationed in Iran, always begging for "backsheesh" and whining, "No papa, no mamma, no bungalow."

At night, he slept on the floor of the railroad station, if no one booted him out. All he had to sleep under was an old piece of gunnysack, which he also used as a coat when he was awake. Apparently he was only ten or eleven years old, and what little clothing he had was too filthy for words.

Finally the American boys decided to adopt the little beggar, and what a tremendous change they made in him! They had been calling him "Ali" or "Hassan," but now they changed his name to Matthew J. Casey. He was inducted with a haircut, a bath, and the destruction of his old rags.

ADOPTED

An American uniform was cut down to fit him, and you could hardly imagine it was the same little boy. Now he brushed his teeth night and morning, took a shower several times a day, and had a soldier's bunk to sleep in. He was easily earning his keep by running errands, shining shoes and taking his turn at K. P. And he seemed to be a completely happy little boy in his new position. Instead of continually begging for "backsheesh," he was now able to dig down and lend a soldier a few toman—pending pay day.

And what these boys did for "Matthew J. Casey" is a nice little picture of what the Lord will do for you, if you allow Him to adopt you into His family.

For in your natural condition before God, you are only an unclean, filthy sinner like the little beggar of Iran. Oh, you may be a good moral person, and you may even have a religion of some kind, but you are still utterly sinful and filthy in the sight of a holy God. "We are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags" (Is. 64:6). So if your very best deeds are only filthy rags in His sight, how can you expect God to accept them? And what do you think your sins look like to Him?

STRANGE BUT TRUE

If we are so sinful and filthy in His sight, then why does He want to adopt us? Only God knows why. I cannot understand it myself why a Holy God would think of adopting me and made me His own dear child, and my heart rejoices in this fact. I know He loves me, and He loves you too, dear friend. And He is ready to cleanse you completely from all sin, and adopt you today into His royal family! It is astonishing but it is true.

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). "Having predestinated us into the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to Himself, according to the good pleasure of His will, * * in whom we have redemption through His Blood, the forgiveness of His grace" (Eph. 1:5, 7). "That we might receive the adoption of sons" (Gal. 4:5) "But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God" (John 1:12).

So you see that God loves you and desires to save you, and He offers to adopt you into His family and make you one of His own dear children, if you want to be. But He will not adopt you against your will. You must want Him more than anything else in the world, or you will never become His child.

Think of the tremendous change that will take place if you let Him adopt you! For you will be "born again" into His family, you will be cleansed completely from every stain of sin, and you will be clothed completely with the righteousness of Christ. Then instead of being a beggar, always begging God for something, you will be His dear son, and

He will give you what it takes to make you happy. And you will also have something with which to help other people when they are in need of spiritual help and comfort.

So if you would like to be adopted into God's family, look to the Lord Jesus today. For He is the only One who can do it. He says to you, "Look unto Me, and be ye saved" (Is. 45:22). "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. 11:28).

Christian Evidence

A generation ago Charles Bradlaugh, an atheist, challenged Hugh Price Hughes, a godly minister, to debate with him the truth of the Christian faith. The challenge was immediately accepted in these words: "The courts, as a rule, in rendering their verdicts, do not rely solely upon the arguments of the lawyers on either side. They carefully scrutinize the evidence offered by those who have firsthand knowledge of the facts. I will bring with me to the debate one hundred men and women who have been saved from lives of sin by the Gospel of Christ. They will give their evidence and you will be allowed to cross-examine them. I will ask that you bring with you one hundred men and women who have been similarly helped by the gospel of infidelity which you preach."

The debate was abandoned. The agnostic had no evidence. The Christian had evidence.—H. T. Kerr, in the Elim Evangel

REAL OR IMITATION

The world is full of imitations and counterfeits. It is the same in connection with the Christian life. There is much hypocrisy and imitation.

It is said that the way to reveal the real and the imitation pearls is to hold them up close to the fire. If they are real nothing happens. If not, the skin of the imitation curls up. The sure test to distinguish the hypocrite from the real Christian is to watch the imitation under fire. No doubt he will get all ruffled up. The true Christian can stand the white-heat. But no Christian is any stronger than he is under "the fiery trial which is to try" him. Never measure your genuineness except under the white-heat of trial and persecution.—The Prairie Overcomer.

CONCERNING THE INDIA CAR FUND

An Open Letter

I understand there has been considerable objection because of the fact that the money, which was turned in designated for the purpose of purchasing a car for the India mission field, has been used as general funds to keep our missionaries on the field during the past year when funds became so scarce. I desire in this letter to make myself clear concerning the matter. I hope you will read every word.

On July the 19th, 1949, I received from Rev. J. W. Alford, Missions Treasurer for North Carolina, the amount of $2,026.06, which amount was designated to apply on the car for India. I had received some money before that, and have received quite a sum since; making a total received to date (July 27, 1950) of $3,247.91, all designated for the India car. When I received the money from Bro. Alford in July, 1949, I immediately corresponded with the Director on the India field, and told her I was ready to send all the money I had for the purpose of purchasing the car. She answered and said cars were too high to buy in India. Asked that I hold the money until she returned home for furlough in 1950, and perhaps the purchase could be made in the states while she was home. Naturally I followed her instructions and held the money. In the mean time, during the year of 1949-50 the treasury became very low. Different times there was not enough money to send to the fields promptly as it should have been sent. In my desperate efforts to keep up with the allotments due the foreign fields, each month I proceeded to use the "car money." The intention was, and still is, that this money be replaced from the general funds when the time comes that it is deemed the time to make the purchase of the car. Had

I not transferred this money to the general funds for use in the past emergencies our workers on the foreign fields would have suffered. They came near suffering as it was. I thought it best to keep our workers on the field by the use of this money rather than let it lay in the treasury doing no one any good for the time then present.

Please understand that this money could be replaced most any month from the general funds, and that we will do any time the officials get ready to purchase the car. Of course, when we replace the money from the general treasury it will mean that our workers on the foreign fields will be compelled to do without for a while unless there is a sudden quickening of pace in receipts for foreign missions. But they would have had to do without had we not used the money, and so it will just be a matter of postponement of the unpleasant situation for them, understand.

When you people get to where you are willing to give your money, "as unto the Lord" instead of giving to some person or object, and let your foreign missions board distribute the money, as and where it is most needed, we will be spared these unpleasant situations. We have prevailed with you for years to quit designating your money. Seems it has done little good. You continue to designate. Are you afraid to trust your board? If so, then why not dismiss it and get one you can trust? Why are you not willing to give your mission money to "missions?"

In closing let me say please rest assured that when the "green light" is given for the purchase of the car for India the entire amount as stated above will be turned into that channel.

THE STORY OF THE SPRINKLED BLOOD

This old, old story of the lamb that was slain, the blood that was sprinkled, and the boys that were saved, never grows old. How could it when it is a picture of the Gospel which is "old, yet ever new," and just as mighty to save all who believe it, as it was hundreds of years ago.

The lamb chosen (Exod. 12:3) from the flock, without a spot or blemish, is just like Jesus—God's Holy Lamb. During the four days it was kept, nothing but gentleness was seen; so with Jesus during His earthly days. The Babe of Bethlehem, the Boy of Nazareth, the Man Christ Jesus, everywhere, always, Jesus was perfect. This is how He can be a Sacrifice, a Saviour.

But the lamb chosen, and kept with its snow-white fleece, its gentle ways, was not enough. It had to become the lamb slain (Exod. 12:6). Yes, its blood had to be shed, its life poured out. And so the Lamb of God—the holy, gentle Jesus—had to die. Apart from His death, there could be no shelter from wrath, no salvation from sin, no title to Glory.

And soon after the lamb had been slain, its blood was taken by the Israelite father to the door of his house, and with a bunch of hyssop taken from the wall, the lintel above and the posts on both sides were blood sprinkled (Exod. 12:13). That lamb has died instead of the first-born son, that blood is sprinkled to save him from judgment. Then they all pass in under the shelter of the sprinkled blood, and God has told them—"When I see the blood, I will pass over you." "The firstborn son" (Exod. 12:13) was safe by that blood outside: he was made sure by the Word of God. Yes, safe and sure, while the angel of death passed thru the land, smiting wherever no blood was seen.—Little Ones' Treasury.

In the one hundred and seventh Psalm four verses are alike—the eighth, fifteenth, twenty-first and thirty first.

No names or words with more than six syllables are found in the Bible.

COBWEBS AND CHAINS

Edwin Adams

"Sin often begins in cobwebs and ends in chains." Does that need explaining? Nothing could be thinner or more easily broken than a spiders network. And few things are stronger or less easily broken than chains.

In the Middle Ages a smith was imprisoned for some crime, and was chained to prevent his escape. He anxiously examined the chains that bound him. But suddenly he found on them some marks which proved that they were of his own making, and he had always had the reputation for making flawless, unbreakable chains. He at once gave up all hope of getting free. The chains of habit that we make ourselves are the most difficult to break. "Be sure your sin will find you out."

You know the saying:

"Sow a thought and reap an act;
Sow an act and reap a habit;
Sow a habit and reap a character;
Sow a character and reap a destiny."

"The older I get," said habit, "the longer I shall live." The great Duke of Wellington said, "Habit is ten times nature." He perhaps had in mind the habit of discipline in an army, but it is true that when a boy or girl keeps on practicing a certain wrong thing, whatever it may be, the cobwebs, as it were, grow stronger and stronger, until, at last, it becomes like a chain. Anyone in chains is certainly not free.

"Frank" means free. But whatever your Christian name may be, you are not really free if your sins are unforgiven, and if you are the slave of any habit or practice. And sin, of whatever kind, is an enemy that is too strong for us. We cannot deliver ourselves. In spite of all we try to do, a real cure of sin cannot even begin in that way.

But a cure for sin is possible. We cannot forgive our sins, but Christ can. We cannot cleanse our hearts and lives of sin's power, but Christ can. And He wants to come into our hearts, forgive all our sins, give us a new life, and a new start. Do you want to be freed from sin enough to let Him come in, and take control?

Then let this be your prayer:

"Into my heart, into my heart,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus;
Come in today, come in to stay,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus."

GOD'S ANSWER

Sarah Schuster

Jesse and Danny Thorsen were Boy Scouts. Every day, of course, like all fine scouts, they did their good deed. Once in awhile at the supper table Father, by way of conversation asked. "Well, sons, have each of you done your good deeds today?" When hearing how Jesse had helped a poor little frightened squirrel across the street through thick traffic and how Danny had picked up a parcel for an old lady, he often led the family in hearty applause.

"Give the boys a clap," he would call out and Mother and even Jimmy with his two-year-old chubby fists clapped heartily.

On Sunday, however, Father made the rule that the good deed should consist of a good thought learned in Sunday School or from the pastor's sermon. At the dinner table after he or Mother had asked the blessing he always inquired, "Now boys, what is the good thought for the day?"

Jesse, the older answered, "Pastor spoke to our department today on prayer and said that we must listen after we pray to see what God answers to our prayer."

Danny's eyes brightened excitedly as he said, "That was my good thought, too. Papa." He went on to explain, "Pastor said that prayer was a conversation and we ought to listen to what God says, too."

"That is a very good thought. Practice it, boys," said Father as he began serving the food to his hungry family.

The next night, after a busy day at school and a rollicking hour in the school playground the boys got their homework done as quickly as possible so that after supper they could work a little at their workbenches in the basement and get to bed. At nine o'clock sharp they were in their room ready to tumble into bed. Two sleepy boys knelt at their bed.

"Prayer is a conversation—listen as well as speak." Danny heard the pastor's voice, clearly. He wondered whether Jesse could remember.

Danny talked to God, and he thanked Him for the fine day, for the sunshine, for good health, and a good home, he listened and he thought he heard God say, "Thank you, Danny, My child; you are welcome."

Then he arose from his knees and wanted to tumble into bed but Jesse was still kneeling and, of course, he could not disturb him.

"He's listening," he thought earnestly. "I wonder what God is saying to him?"

At last Jesse arose.

"What were you praying so long for?" asked Danny with frank surprise.

"Listening," answered the older brother.

"What did He say?" asked Danny, his sleepy eyes open wide with curiosity.

Jesse blushed with shame, "He said I'd better make up with Joe, the fellow I had a fight with at school today.

"Didn't he beat you up? Isn't that enough?" inquired Danny.

"No," answered Jesse. "I have to say to him, 'Let's be friends, Joe'."

Ncah was 600 years old before he knew how to build an ark—don't lose your grip.

NEW BETHLEHEM TO HOLD REVIVAL

Our revival is to start at New Bethlehem Church August 14th, Monday night after Second Sunday, with Rev. Clinton Lupton of Bayboro, our pastor, doing the preaching. It will go on through third Sunday, and every body is cordially invited, and will be welcomed each night. Pray for it to be the best revival we have ever had and that many souls will be converted, for if we ever needed a revival, it's now.

JOHN, PREACHER OF REPENTANCE

(Lesson for August 20)

LESSON: Luke 3:7-20; Matt. 14:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 3:8.

I. HEART OF THE LESSON

From the very beginning of human history, God has made preparation in advance for every important event which had to do with His programs for man's benefit and welfare. When He knew that it was time for Christ to make His appearance in the world, He sent a man to prepare the way for Him by preparing the hearts of the people to receive Him. John the Baptist was the man whom God sent for this purpose.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. The "seed of the serpent" has become a "generation of vipers" and is under the wrath of God (Luke 3:7).

2. There is no profit in being a descendant of a Godly father unless by personal choice we put ourselves on his side (vs. 8).

3. The ax of God's judgment will not fail to find the lives that are fruitless in God's sight (vs. 9).

4. Whosoever honestly seeks to know what God would have him do is sure to get an answer (vss. 10, 12, 14).

5. Kindliness and helpfulness in place of selfishness is one evidence of repentance (vs. 11).

6. Honesty in all matters of business in the place of deceit is also an evidence of repentance (vs. 13).

7. Satisfaction in the place of greediness and violence is a further evidence of repentance (vs. 14).

8. Even well-meaning people can make the mistake of overestimating a servant of the Lord (vs. 15).

9. The greatest Prophet that ever lived has not sufficient merit of his own to untie a shoe string for the Lord (vs. 16).

10. The baptism with fire is the baptism of judgment which shall one day purge this world (vss. 16, 17).—Selected

11. It is significant that in Acts 1:5 Jesus mentions the baptism of the Holy Ghost for believers but, He does not say they are to receive a baptism of fire which is evidently for the ungodly. See Acts 11:16.

12. According to John 8:39, the Jews boasted of being children of Abraham. They held to the idea that no son of Abraham could scarcely ever be lost. But the Old Testament prophets had warned them long ago that special privileges of the children of God, without religious duties performed by them, were no assurance of perfect security (Jer. 7:3, 4; Mic. 3:11b; Isa. 48:2, etc.). We see from Matthew 8:11 how Christ taught the Hebrews that Abraham's seed had no exclusive offer of salvation. John the Baptist impressed upon their minds the fact that their most important need was repentance.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

13. The heart of John's message was a call to repentance in preparation for the coming of the Christ. He said, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 3:2). But he did not leave the matter there. He helped his hearers to understand what repentance meant, and what fruits would reveal a genuine sorrow for their past sins. It is one thing to give a well-rounded homiletical discussion of the place of repentance in God's plan of salvation; it is something very different and much more essential to arouse the conscience and produce, with the help of the Spirit of God, such conviction of sin as will lead to amendment of life. To all classes of people John gave advice that met their specific needs. He even rebuked Herod for his sins, though eventually this cost John his head. Real preaching of repentance is something that is never likely to become popular. There is "loss of face" in making confession and restitution, where necessary, and in changing one's pattern of life. Nevertheless, repentance is just as needful as it ever was if a person is going to experience the joys of salvation and become acquainted with Christ.—Arnold's Commentary.

II. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED

The Correct Label Necessary

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman told of a distinguished Methodist minister who preached on sin. He did not beat around the bush. He called sin "this abominable thing which God hates." One of his church officers afterward came to see and talk with him in his study. He said to the minister: "Mr. Howard, we don't want you to talk as plainly as you do about sin, because if our boys and girls hear you talking so much about sin, they will more easily become sinners. Call it a mistake if you will, but do not speak so plainly about sin." The minister took down a small bottle and showed it to the visitor. It was a bottle of strychnine and was marked "Poison." He said: "I see what you want me to do. You want me to change the label. Suppose I take off this label of 'Poison' and put on some mild label, such as 'Essence of Peppermint,' don't you see what happens? The milder you make the label, the more dangerous you make the poison."—W. S. Bowden.

Two Knees, or One?

William Dawson once told this story to illustrate how humble the soul must be before it can find peace. He said that at a revival meeting a little lad went home to his mother and said, "Mother, John So-and-So is under conviction and seeking peace; but he will not find it to-night, mother." "Why, William?" said she. "Because he is only down on one knee, mother; and he will never get peace until he is down on both knees." Until conviction of sin brings us down on both knees, until we are completely humbled, until we have no hope in ourselves left, we cannot find the Saviour.—1000 Evangelistic Illustrations.

The ninth verse of the eighth chapter of Esther is the longest verse in the Bible.

The thirty-fifth verse, eleventh chapter of St. John is the shortest.

An Urgent Appeal to North Carolina Women

Dear Sisters in Christ:

Are you pushing the Anna Phillips Loan Fund as you should in your local auxiliaries and churches? Right at this time we have more than the usual number of fine young men who are seeking preparation for the ministry. Some of them have gone to our Bible School under the "G-I Bill" about to the limit of their credit, and need help to finish. Others are entirely "on their own" and have labored hard during the summer months to make their own way as far as possible, but are going to need some help to get through the coming year. Still others are about to enter school. Some who are entering under the "G-I Bill" will need some help during the early weeks, or until their money begins coming in from the government.

I feel that it will be to the glory of God for us to push this fund with all our power during the next month or two. If you have cards now, fill them as soon as possible. If you do not have cards write to the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C., for as many as you think you can get filled at once. Send in a contribution out of your auxiliary treasury, if you can spare it. Get your pastor to say a word for you from the pulpit. PRAY! PRAY! PRAY! Let us not fail these young men and women who have surrendered their lives for full time service to Christ. Remember, the more we have to use for these now, the more we will have with which to help during future years for all Anna Phillips Loan Funds are only loaned out (on good notes) and are paid back to those who borrow get out into the field.

Send all monies for the Anna Phillips Loan Fund to Mrs. M. A. Woodard, Winterville, N. C.

Oak Grove Auxiliary Reporting

The Woman's auxiliary of Oak Grove church met at the church on Thursday before the first Sunday in July. Mrs. J. Walter Sheffield, our president, opened the meeting with song and prayer. Mrs. C. E. Crozier had charge of the program. The subject for the day was: "Advancing with Christ through Publicity." Different members gave comments on the subject, and everyone enjoyed the talks very much.

After a brief session, the group of twelve ladies went out on the church grounds and enjoyed refreshments which were served by Mrs. H. A. Harbin, and Mrs. Lester Smith. We as a united group of women are trying to advance in Christian service, and are trying to help the cause of righteousness in every way possible. We extend an invitation to visitors and new members to become active in our auxiliary by coming and taking a part in the meetings. We feel the need of prayers of all of God's people.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

HOW KETURAH WAS COMFORTED

W. N. Burr

It was the last day of school, and in that log school house up among the Colorado mountains this meant just what it used to mean to your papa and mamma when they were children and went to "district school" in the country. The last lesson had been recited, books and slates were gathered in neat piles ready to be taken home, and now some of the older girls were to "speak pieces," after which the good-bys would be said, and school would be over.

Annie Brooks was one of the first to be called upon "to speak." She took the place assigned her beside the teacher's rude table and recited clearly and without any hesitation a sweet poem entitled "Little Ministers:"

"A single word is a little thing,
But a heart may be starving for just one glance
For lack of the comfort a word may bring
With its welcome help and its sweet surprise."
As the words of the first stanza fell upon the ears of the listeners one girl who was about Annie's age might have been seen to drop her head, and set her lips as if to keep back tears.

"A kindly look cost nothing at all,
But a heart may be starving for just one glance
That will show by the eyelid's tender fall
The help of a pitying countenance."

Keturah Strong's head dropped lower and the tears sprang from her eyes and made way down her cheeks in spite of all her efforts to keep them back.

"It is easy enough to bend the ear
To catch some tale of sore distress;
But men may be fainting beside us here
For longing to share their weariness."

Keturah was holding one corner of her apron to her eyes when Annie finished the third stanza, and the tears were coming up from their fountains faster and faster.

"These gifts nor silver nor gold may buy,
Nor the wealth of the richest of men bestow,
But the comfort of words, or ear, or eye
The poorest may offer wherever he go."

And then Annie noticed her weeping schoolmate just as she stepped from beside the table to take her seat—poor motherless, fatherless Keturah Strong, who seemed to live in a world of her own to which none of her schoolmates were ever invited by look or tone or gesture.

"I wonder if she's crying because—why, perhaps it was my piece, Keturah don't have many kind words spoken to her, I guess, and it may be she misses them as much as any of us would, though she acts so cold sometimes one don't like to have much to do with her."

This was the character of Annie's thought as she sat casting hurried glances toward Keturah. As the next speaker finished she was saying to herself: "If it is a kind word she wants, I'm going to find it out after school."

Annie stopped to say a few hurried good-bys and then ran from the school-room to join Keturah who she knew would be walking alone along her usual way through the pine woods.

"O Keturah, wait a minute!" she called, as she saw the rapidly retreating form of her schoolmate before her.

The poor girl whose eyes were so filled with tears that she was only hurrying to get a little farther into the pine forest that she might "sit down and have her cry out," as she afterward said to Annie, stopped as she heard the call and waited, wondering what could have caused Annie to leave the other girls and come after her.

"I just wanted to know what made you cry so," Annie said, as she came up and threw one arm about Keturah.

This occasioned a fresh burst of tears, and without speaking another word, Annie led her to a pine log, and sitting down upon it drew the head of the weeping girl to her shoulder and sat quietly waiting for the storm of grief to pass.

"What is it, Keturah?" she at length ventured to ask.

"No matter, Annie. I'm foolish, that's all," was the sobbing reply.

"Is it anything you really don't want to tell me, or would you like to if you thought I'd care to hear it?" Annie asked very kindly.

"You'll think it's very foolish of me if I say a word about it, and so it is. I wouldn't have thought of crying, but something in your piece—"

Keturah could not finish the sentence, but Annie was sure now that the secret was what she had imagined it, so she said:

"The girls haven't been very friendly with you this term, that's true, and I'm as much to blame as any of them. I knew in a minute this afternoon what it was troubled you, and I don't see why I didn't think much about it before."

Miss Britton, the teacher, had noticed Keturah's tears, and was sure, too, that she knew the secret of their appearance. As soon as she could leave the school house she took Keturah's well-known path thru the woods, and came upon the two girls as Annie was trying to speak comforting words to the unhappy schoolmate who sat beside her.

"Do you know what your name means, Keturah?" she asked, after Annie had told her all that she knew about Keturah's trouble.

"I don't want to know or to hear anything about my name, Miss Britton," was the reply. "That just a part of my trouble. Everybody laughs at such a name, and I'm getting so I almost hate it."

"Keturah means 'incense,'" continued Miss Britton, kindly. "The sweet pine fragrance made me think of it as I came along. Don't you think you can make your name a help to you now by remembering it's sweet meaning though the name itself may seem odd and old-fashioned? It's like some of the sweet old garden herbs, very dear to us just because they are old-fashioned. Out of the life of one who carries such a name should rise every day the incense of patience, and thankfulness and love, and all pure, good qualities which are so pleasing to the Father. I am sure we will all be more careful hearer for to show you the love we feel for you," and then Miss Britton took Keturah's hand in her own, and offered a prayer to the Father-Friend, thanking Him that He had put it into Annie's heart to select that helpful little poem to speak on that day.

And Keturah went home comforted.—The Child's Paper.

which the Lord hath made known unto us."

As he continued to set forth his proof of Jesus' greatness, He points out that he is greater in His title. What could be the title of one whose name was so great, whose position had been so highly exalted until the angels worshipped Him. "But unto the Son he saith thy throne." Do not kings sit upon thrones? Then we come to the conclusion that Jesus' title was that of "King of kings and Lord of Lords." But what is more amazing is the fact that this kingdom is an everlasting, a never ending kingdom. "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever." Not only is it an eternal kingdom but it is a kingdom of righteousness, "A scepter of righteousness is the scepter of thy kingdom." As the righteous king rules and reigns in the hearts of his believing children he sheds abroad to the world righteousness. The King "loved righteousness and hated iniquity," thus if he rules on the thrones of our hearts we shall take the same position—love righteousness and hate iniquity.

God has not said at any time to any angel, thou art "King of kings and Lord of lords." Thus Jesus is the one who claims this as His title; Angels are ministering spirits, servants, not Princes or Kings.

As he continues his argument he says that Jesus is greater as seen in His creative activities. The beloved apostle John wrote in John 1:3, "All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made." Now the writer of Hebrews confirms this by saying, "And thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands." Then to show that Jesus was even greater than all the creation, the earth, the heavens, and all the beings that dwell therein. He says, "They shall perish; . . . and they all shall wax old as doth a garment: and as a vesture shall thou fold them up, and they shall be changed." When you or I buy a new suit of clothes we take the old suit and fold it up and put it away somewhere in a rag box. Why? Because it has lost its usefulness as a suit, it has served its purpose and now it ceases to be of any service, thus it is put away. The same with the creation when it has served its purpose, lost its usefulness and ceased to be of any more service. It has waxed "Old as doth a garment." God is going to fold it up and put it away to be burned, "but thou (Jesus) remainest . . . but thou art the same, and the years shall not fail." Though all the creation would perish and pass away Jesus would remain the same. He confirms this in Heb. 13:8 when he says, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Jesus is the same now that He was in the beginning with the Father, the same as He was when he was a babe in Bethlehem of Judah, the same as he was when he walked the earth doing good to all men, the same as he was when he died on calvary, laid in a tomb, and rose again victor over death, hell and the grave. He is the never changing Son of God.

Now as he concludes this argument that Jesus is greater than Angels, He does it by saying that He is greater in his mission. What was the mission of Christ? Why did he become incarnate in the flesh? Why did he become a servant? Was it that he might perform miracles, tell parables to the inhabitants of the earth? No, Christ had a mission greater than performing miracles, greater than telling parables. The mission, the purpose, the reason Christ became a servant was that he might die on Calvary, might give his life for many. Every thing else that Jesus did while here on earth was secondary, the one purpose was to die, to give his life a ransom.

Then what about the angels—what is their mission? "Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation." The angels minister to us, the children of God. As we read God's word we see how in times past the angels have ministered to those who have lived before us. It was the angels who delivered Lot from Sodom. God was about to pass judgment upon the wicked city of Sodom but before the judgment was to be passed two angels came and delivered Lot. It was the angels that delivered Daniel from the den of hungry lions. Daniel had been cast into the lion's den because he had disobeyed the decree of Darius. But Daniel had courage, He had faith, He believed that the God he served was going to deliver him. When the king came to the den the next morning to see if Daniel's God had delivered him from the lions, here are the words of Daniel himself, "O king, live forever. My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lion's mouths, that they have not hurt me." Not only these but there are many more the angels delivered. They delivered Jacob from Esau, Peter from Herod and the Jewish Sanhedrins, and the nation of the Israelites successively from the Egyptians, Canaanites, and Assyrians.

It was an angel that conducted Joseph and Mary when the life of the Baby Jesus was endangered by King Herod, to depart into Egypt. It was an angel that conducted Cornelius to Peter when he was seeking the way of salvation and as a result of this Cornelius, along with his family and friends, accepted the Gospel as it was told to them by Peter. It was angels that instructed Abraham, Joshua, Gideon, David, Elijah, Daniel, Zachariah the Prophet, Zachariah the father of John the Baptist, the Virgin Mary, the Apostles, and their fellow disciples.

It was angels that comforted Jacob at the approach of Esau, Daniel in his peculiar sorrows and dangers, Zachariah in the sufferings of his nation, Joseph and Mary in their perplexities, Christ in his agony, Apostles at Jesus death, Paul before his shipwreck, and the church universally by the testimony and instruction given in the Revelation of St. John.

The mission of angels is great but the mission of Christ far surpasses it in glory and results. This is the Christ you and I serve one who is superior to the angels in His name, His position, His title, His creation and His mission.

I wonder if we believe that Christ is as great as we say He is. Can the world-tell that we serve one so great as Christ? We lack faith in Christ, lack true belief in his greatness; thus, the world can see in us just how great we believe Christ to be by how far we are willing to trust and have faith in him.

The hymn writer, Stead, wrote these words: "Jesus, Jesus, How I trust Him! How I've proved Him o'er and o'er! Jesus, Jesus, Precious Jesus; Oh, for grace to trust Him more."

The last phrase should be our prayer to God—"Oh, for grace to trust Him more," that we might show to the world the greatness of Jesus.

It's easy enough to be pleasant
When there isn't a jolt or a jar,
But the man worth while is the man who can smile
When he has no gas for his car.

ago he led in the formation of a Florida State Association of Free Will Baptists. This organization has been an important instrument for cooperative church effort.

One feature of the Minister of the Year Award was a scholarship to attend the School for Town and Country Pastors at Emory University, Ga., July 3-19. "Through this school I have learned things that I can look for in my own situation and do something about them," says Mr. Pelt.

This hard-luck story has not ended. Undoubtedly there are great problems that lie ahead. But Daniel Pelt will meet them stoutly. He is young at forty-one, and past accomplishments foretell future ones.

He has done highly creditable work in other than church fields, but this is what he says: "All the outside things I have done—going to school, teaching, farming—have been to fit me better for the work of the rural church. That is my real dedication." A man like Daniel Pelt will turn hard luck into achievement and misfortune into an opportunity to serve God and man.

PORTAL TO PORTAL

All of us enter life by the same portal. Birth is an arbitrary process by which we are thrust into the world without our knowledge or consent. Having arrived, we are free to choose our destination.

God has prepared a way for us from the foundation of the world. That way is Christ. But we are not compelled to follow God's way. We may choose our own way, which leads in the opposite direction. It is left to us to decide which way we shall take on our brief passage from the portal of birth to the portal of death.

The parting of the ways is at the Cross of Christ. Here we inevitably face the decision as to whether or not we shall receive Christ, "The Way, the Truth and the Life" (John 14:6). Receiving Christ is a definite act of the will by which we surrender our self-centered life for a Christ-centered life. The issue is vital, for it is a matter of life and death.

"He came unto His own and His own received Him not" (John 1:11), and for nineteen centuries the Jews have exemplified the tragedy of rejecting Christ. "But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name; which were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1:12, 13). To receive Christ is to be born again by the power of the Holy Spirit; "not of blood," that is, not by any process of moral evolution or human perfection; "nor of the will of the flesh," through piety or good works; "nor of the will of man," by virtue of baptism or church membership; "but of God," through spiritual rebirth; for "flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God."

A complete transformation is wrought in those who receive Christ as their personal Saviour, for "if any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold all things are become new" (I Corinthians 5:17). To those who receive Christ, His word, "Ye must be born again" (John 3:7), is a factual experience; but it is hidden from the world, for the dead have no perception of life.

We are saved or lost by our attitude toward Christ. "God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved" (John 3:17). The world is self-condemned by its failure to receive Christ, for "this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil" (John 3:19). God does not condemn the believer for his sin, for Christ took the believer's sin upon himself, once for all: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus" (Romans 8:1). It is rejection of Christ which shuts men outside the pale of God's mercy; for His love is centered in Christ. "He that believeth on Him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God" (John 1:18).

God in His great love provided the only sacrifice that could save us. "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). On the cross Jesus died that we might live; as the "Lamb of God" (John 1:29) He did what all the animal sacrifices of Old Testament days could never accomplish. "For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins" (Hebrews 10:4), but we are "redeemed . . . with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot" (I Peter 1:18, 19).

The world today is full of spiritual fifth columnists, traitors to God and Christ. They proclaim one world, a common destiny, the universal fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man; they betray Christ with a kiss by hailing Him as the Great Example and not as the Lamb of God.

Two thieves died on Calvary. Both were notorious sinners; both were justly condemned to death; both met Christ face to face. There was no time to reform, no way to acquire merit, no priest to grant absolution. One sinner received Christ, and entered the portal of the eternal city "whose builder and maker is God" (Hebrews 11:10). The other, sharing the same condemnation, facing the same Christ, equally free to make his choice, went out by the dark portal into the blackness of eternal night, without God, without Christ, without hope.

Forever three crosses stand on Calvary's hill to mark the parting of the ways. You must decide between Christ and chaos. There is no alternative, no detour around Calvary's hill. Your decision is personal, but it involves your loved ones, for "none of us liveth to himself" (Romans 14:7). "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." (Acts 16:31).—Stephen E. Slocum.

"THE LAST SHALL BE FIRST"

The Lord has told us, the first shall be last and the last shall be first. What a fulfillment of these words will there be when His servants stand before His tribunal to receive their rewards! Popularity and notoriety will have no place there; the cup of cold water given for love of Him will in no wise lose its reward there!—Springing Well.

The life of the Christian is not freed from pains, but out of the pains come rich blessings. The crown of thorns must be worn by the Master's friends who follow Him faithfully, but the thorns burst into sweet flowers as the light of heaven's morning touches them.—Tract.

The Life That Counts

The life that counts must toil and fight;
Must hate the wrong and love the right;
Must stand for truth by day and night:
This is the life that counts.

The life that counts must aim to rise
Above the earth to sunlit skies;
Must fix its gaze on Paradise—
That is the life that counts.

The life that counts must helpful be;
In darkest night make melody;
Must wait the dawn on bended knee—
This is the life that counts.

The life that counts must helpful be;
The cares and needs of others see;
Must seek the slave of sin to free—
That is the life that counts.

Introduction to Hebrews

Walter Reynolds
3528 Murphy Road
Nashville, Tenn.

The Epistle to the Hebrews differs in form from all other of the New Testament books. The question has been raised by some as to whether or not it is an Epistle. "It begins as an essay or treatise; it progresses as a sermon or homily; it ends as a letter." (Erdman).

The Epistle to Hebrews along with the first Epistle of John is not addressed to any particular person or church as many of the other Epistles are, but the tenor of the Epistle is unmistakable to the Jews. The traditional and commonly accepted view held by most scholars is that it was addressed to the Jewish Christians of Rome; though some think it may have been to the Jews of Palestine, or a colony of Jews in Alexandria, or elsewhere.

"The purpose of the author is to prevent his readers from abandoning their faith in Christ. He is not attempting to keep them from relapsing into Judaism, as many have supposed. What he fears is a complete eclipse of faith, an actual apostasy, a 'falling away from the living God.' It is not the appeal of the Jewish ritual, or the attraction of an elaborate ceremonial, which is endangering their souls. It is rather the pressure of persecution, the assaults of sin, or the peril of religious indifference. The writer's aim, therefore, is set forth the incomparable glory of the person and work of Christ. He intends to show that the greatest sufferings are infinitely compensated by the supreme blessings secured by Christ for his followers." (Erdman). Through this he intended to encourage and inspire the Christians to meet the challenge of the enemy with fortitude and heroism.

The Epistle was written to explain that the Old Testament laws of sacrifices were fulfilled in Christ, and that now there was no need to continue the sacrificing of bulls and goats. Christ had once for all laid down his life and become a sacrifice for all. It was now through Christ that they found pardon from their sins not in the old temple sacrifices. So through this the writer is trying to show the superiority of the Christian religion as based upon the facts of Christ, its founder.

It was never an easy thing in the first century, especially to the Jew himself, to reconcile Christianity with the Old Jewish faith. To the minds of the Jewish people, it was a fundamental belief that the Old Testament contained the final and complete revelation of God and that in the law of Moses God had made known completely his will and purpose to them, and so far as they were concerned it was a closed book. But the Epistle to Hebrews denies that the Old Testament contains a complete and final revelation of the will of God—God spoke to the prophets "in broken fragments," 1:1. It is only in Christianity—in the revelation through God's Son—that He has given to mankind a final and complete manifestation of His will.

What was the name of this writer who had found such blessedness in Christ and who had such deep concern for his fellow believers? To this question no final answer has been given. For it is quite impossible to determine who was the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews. Origen, writing about the year 225 A. D., said, "Who wrote the Epistle to the Hebrew God only knows," and modern scholarship today is equally incompetent to arrive at a sure decision. Although no one is certain who is the author of the Epistle, the traditional view held through the centuries, on the whole and still widely held, is that Paul was the author.

Although we do not know the name of the author of this great book we know many of his characteristics: (1) He was first of all pre-eminently a preacher. He speaks of the Epistle as a "Word of exhortation," 13:22. (2) He was a man of great literary ability. There is no other book in the New Testament written in better Greek than this Epistle to the Hebrews. (3) He was a man of wide philosophical knowledge. (4) If he was a Jew, as he possibly was, he belonged to the more liberal school known as the Hellenists. The Bible which he used and quotes from is the Greek translation known as the Septuagint (LXX), and not the original Hebrew text. (5) In interpreting the Old Testament, like all the scholars of Alexandria, he used the allegorical method. The best illustration of this method of interpretation is his treatment of Melchizedek in 7:1-10. (6) He was passionately devoted to the Christian faith. To him it was the only adequate and final religion.

"The limits within which it is possible for the Epistle to have been written lie between the years 60 and 96 A. D. . . . Within these limits there are two dates which have been warmly advocated by different scholars of repute. The earlier, which puts the Epistle between 64 and 67, connects it with the period immediately following the Neroian persecution. The main argument upon which this theory rests is the absence of any reference in the Epistle to the destruction of Jerusalem, which occurred in the year 70 A. D. . . . The other date suggested for the Epistle falls in the reign of Domitian (somewhere between 80 and 90)." (Andrews). From the external and internal evidence the book was unmistakably written before the destruction of Jerusalem. This would put the date of the book somewhere between the years 61 and 64 A. D.

It is rather surprising to find that an Epistle of such value and richness as Hebrews had some difficulty in securing its place in the New Testament Canon and that it was a long time before it won general accept-

Saved Sinners Proclaim the Gospel

Alexander Whyte

"Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" Why does the Lord ask that question with such anxiety when He has all these shining seraphs standing at His side, and each one of them with six wings? Why was Isaiah, the son of Amoz, a man of such unclean lips, and a man so woeful and undone, so accepted, and so sent? Seraphs, not sinners, should surely be the preachers of such holiness as that of the God of Israel, and the heralds of such a Saviour—that is what we would have expected. But God's thoughts in these things are not as our thoughts. It was not a seraph burning with heavenly love which was sent to preach to Jerusalem in Uzziah's day, but a young man who but a moment before had been laden to the earth with his own and his people's sin. It was Isaiah, the son of Amoz, who took boldness to say, "Here am I; send me." And it was to that same Isaiah that the Lord said, "Go, and tell this people." And this has always been God's way in choosing and in ordaining and in sending prophets, and psalmists, and priests and preachers for His church on earth. Only once did God choose a completely sinless preacher. Always, but that once, God has chosen sinful men; and, not seldom, the most sinful of men He could get to speak to their fellowmen about sin and salvation.

Gabriel might come with his six wings to announce to Mary that the fullness of time had come and that the Word was to be made flesh, but it was John, who was less than the least in the kingdom of heaven, who was sent to preach repentance to the vipers of his day, and to urge them to flee from the wrath to come. And, just as for the awakening and the warning of sinners, so for the edification and the comfort of saints. "For every high priest (is) taken from among men . . . who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself also is compassed with infirmity."

Isaiah, accordingly, of all men on the face of the earth at that moment, and of all angels in heaven, was the man chosen of God to preach repentance to Jerusalem, and to prophesy to her, as never before, the coming of her Messiah. He preached on all these matters as no angel in all heaven could have only a leper could preach to his brother lepers, and as only one undone man could preach to other men.

Just hear him in his first sermon. "The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib. Ah, sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evildoers. Why should ye be stricken any more? The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it; but wounds, and bruises, and putrefying sores."

All God's seraphs taken together could not preach like that. It takes a great sinner to preach as well as to hear like that. You must call, and ordain and inspire a leper if you would have passion in your pulpits like that. And you must be lepers yourselves to put up with passion in your pulpits like that. You cannot have preaching like that from your commonplace men, and from your commonplace sinners. You must have a man of men to see, and to feel and to say things like that. And then, on the other hand, no seraph of them all, with all his eyes and with all his wings, had seen down so deep, and had come up so close to the holiness of God as Isaiah had seen and had come close. The seraphs cry, Holy, Holy, Holy, to one another, but they do not know what they are saying. The seraphs are innocent children. And He whom they so innocently praise charges His seraphs with folly. But, "Woe is me; for I am undone!" The Lord likes to hear that. He takes great pleasure in that. He bows down from His high throne at the sound of that. He sees what pleases Him in every syllable of that. With that young man will I dwell. He says to Himself, as He see and hears Isaiah on that day of atonement.

This young preacher, then, having seen both sin and holiness as no ser-aph ever saw these terrible things, proceeds in his sermon in this way: "Wash you, make you clean; cease to do evil. Learn to do well; judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow: though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

Every syllable of that is out of Isaiah's own experience. Preaching like that never yet came out of the schools of the prophets, any more than it ever came out of the mouth of an angel. Isaiah had done it all to himself, and had had it all done to him of God. From unclean, he had washed him and made himself clean. From doing evil, he had put away the evil of his doings from before God's eyes. He had judged the fatherless, and he had pleaded for the widow. We hear him doing all that in tremendous words in this very sermon. And then the Lord had commanded His most evangelical seraph to take a live coal with the tongs from off the altar till Isaiah's iniquity was taken away and his sins purged, and till all Jerusalem knew that a prophet of the Lord had arisen among them.—Selected.

A Little Missionary

I may not go to India,
To China, nor Japan;
To work for Jesus here at home
I'll do the best I can.
I'll tell of His great love to me,
And how I love Him too,
And better far, I'll show my love
In all that I may do.

The little waterdrops come down
To make the flowers grow,
The little rivulets flow on
To bless wherever they go.
The little seeds make mighty trees
To cool us with their shade.
If little things like these do good,
To try I'm not afraid.

I'll be a missionary now,
And work the best I may,
For I want to work for God,
There surely is a way.
I'll pray for those across the sea.
My offering, too, I'll send,
And all within my power I'll do,
This great bad world to mend.

F. W. B. Bible College Continues to Grow

A Fundamental School for Christian Training

Almost nine years ago the Free Will Baptist Bible College opened with nine students. At that time we occupied one building which had an indebtedness of about $10,000. Shortly after we opened, sufficient money had come in for us to retire the indebtedness on the property we owed at that time. From the very outset everyone associated with the College recognized the blessings of the Lord upon the institution. Today in almost every state where there is Free Will Baptist work you will find former students of the Bible College. Our denomination is already feeling the impact of their ministry. For each of the last two years we have registered nearly one hundred students.

In the meantime another building has been purchased for which we were able to pay cash. As most of you know we have been operating on a two-year level and giving a diploma at completion of two years' work. It was necessary for us to do this for these first few years. But during the years the Bible College has become stabilized to the extent that it has been deemed necessary for us to go to a four-year program. So beginning next year, the Free Will Baptist Bible College will be offering four years of Bible College work at the completion of which the student will receive a B. A. degree in Bible.

There were two major reasons that made it necessary for the Board of Trustees to authorize a four-year school program leading to this degree. First, the demand from our people and from our students made it necessary. All through the years students who have come to the Bible College and completed two years of work have insisted that we offer them the other two years which would enable them to receive their complete Bible College training in our own institution. We have had to deny them this privilege. Students finishing the two years here have had to transfer to other institutions to complete their training. Naturally these institutions to which they have transferred have received the credit for giving them their degrees, and they go out not so much students of the Free Will Baptist Bible College as students from these other institutions to which they have had to go to receive their training. Our students were not to blame for this, but it was a situation over which none of us had any control.

The next thing that made it necessary for us to go to a four-year program was the need. It is absolutely necessary that there be a certain degree of unity in the Free Will Baptist Church. If there is to be unity in our church, there must be unity in our leadership. With students going to various schools and coming back to places of leadership within our church we cannot expect to have a great degree of unity. These schools to which they transfer will color their thinking and will give them a different slant on interpretations of the Scriptures and various other things that will cause us to have a heterogeneous group of leaders with very little degree of unity. It is highly essential that the Free Will Baptist Denomination have Free Will Baptist leadership. If we are to exist as a denomination or have any right to exist, we must emphasize the things that make us distinctive as a church. Everyone has recognized this need and even though it is a tremendous undertaking, we felt impelled under the leadership of God to take this step which would give well qualified Free Will Baptist leadership to the Free Will Baptist Church.

Now if this undertaking is to be successful, every Free Will Baptist who is interested in the growth and development of our church must pray for and support with his money the Free Will Baptist Bible College. We have never had a financial crisis in the history of the institution. The Free Will Baptist people have always rallied to the support of the institution sufficiently to give us all the money necessary over the past years.

But we have not been able with the income to lay up a great surplus in the form of endowments or cash assets. We are asking every friend of the Bible College who has been supporting to continue his support and if possible increase his support to the College. We are asking those who have not been supporting the College to definitely pray about the matter and help other loyal Free Will Baptists support this institution which means so much to the on going of our church.

Many have said as the colleges or training institutions of a church go so goes the denomination. If we remain loyal Free Will Baptists and true to the Word of God with an evangelistic fervor and a passion for lost souls here at the Bible College, we are going to send out ministers who have this same passion to fill the pulpits of our churches. I believe the things that Free Will Baptists stand for are the things that the world needs today. Many churches are going modernistic, and are denying the virgin birth and the atonement of the Lord Jesus Christ; many are denying the fundamentals of the faith in these days of apostasy. God is looking for a group who are true to the Word and who have a missionary and evangelistic fervor. If we have properly trained leadership in the closing days of this age, we can give to the world the gospel that it so much needs.

Friends, pray for the College, support the College, and let us hear from you with an offering either through your church or individually.

Good Springs Church, near Nashville, schedules a revival beginning August 13, with Rev. Everette Hall of Owensboro, Ky., doing the preaching. The Good Springs church, having undergone extensive remodeling during the past year, was formally dedicated June 11, 1950. Rev. J. B. Parsons is pastor.

Gifts still come in for Jeffrey B. Bowen, the writer's nine weeks old son. Many dear friends, especially from our former churches, have been so thoughtful. While Mrs. Bowen has acknowledged these gifts with a card or letter, please let TENNESSEE PERSONALITIES AND EVENTS also say, Thank you!

School officially opens at the Bible-College, Nashville, on September 6. Many students have already arrived and are hard at work doing first one thing and then another. Some are preaching in revival meetings, some are leading singing in revival meetings, some are out among the churches with sacred concerts, and some are doing chores around the college buildings. Then, too, there are the students at work in the administrative offices. The enrolment looks good for this time, and as usual, the college will be taxed for adequate space.

THE MORNING STAR

I awoke and the night was passing,
And over the hills there shone
A star all alone in its beauty
When the others stars were gone.

For a glory was filling the heavens
That came before the day
And the gloom and the stars together
Faded and passed away.

Only the star of the morning
Glowed in the crimson sky;
It was like a clear voice singing,
"Rejoice, for the sun is nigh."

O children, a star is shining
Into the hearts of men;
It is Christ with a voice of singing,
"Rejoice, for I come again.

"For the long, long night is passing,
And there cometh the golden day.
I come to My own who love Me,
To take them all away.

"It may be today, or tomorrow;
Soon it will surely be,
Then past are the tears and sorrow,
Then Home forever with Me."

Our Foreign Missionary Program for Year

1950-1951

Following is a table showing the missionary quota and the State Director for each state in our national connection for the national associational year, which opened with July 1, 1950.

The director in each state is to take the oversight of the missionary program in his respective state during this year. He is to strive toward the raising of the quota assigned to his state before the closing of the year, which is June 30, 1951. Every possible effort should be made to raise the full amount of the quota. All itinerate work is to be under his supervision. He is to plan all itineraries within the state and employ all itinerate workers that may work in the state; these workers are to be employed at his own discretion. Furthermore, he may do itinerate work himself if he desires. No more than $7.00 per service plus travel expense is to be paid himself or any other itinerate worker.

Please take notice of your assigned quota. May every one work hard during this year to reach the goal.

ance. Speaking generally, it may be said that the Epistle at the end of the second century A. D. was accepted in the Eastern division of Christendom and rejected in the Western division. But today it has been accepted by all Bible believing Christians as a part of the true word of God.

The book seems to be divided into two general divisions: (1) Doctrinal 1:1—10:18 and (2) Practical 10:19—13. The first part deals more with doctrinal points about Christ. The latter part of the book seems to deal with the practical application of the doctrinal portion.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

We are informed that the National Foreign Mission Board has outlined its mission program for the ensuing church year. Quotas for the different states and the directors for the states are named.

We believe that this is a step in the right direction because the quota for each state is specified, thus setting up the goal to be reached by the end of the year. The plan gives definite meaning as to what each state is expected to raise for foreign missions. Moreover, the director of each state is given the opportunity to set up his plans to work toward the raising of his quota through the churches of his state. A well arranged program by each director for the churches, together with adequate publicity for the cause of missions, and the co-operation of the pastors, will enable the movement for mission funds to move forward in a good way.

When church people are properly informed concerning the need of a greater support of foreign missions, and the good that they will be doing for the cause of righteousness in the world, they will respond cheerfully and liberally to such need. By this plan the directors in the different states are given a splendid opportunity to do a noble piece of work for the cause of Christ, and the extension of interest among the church people for the missionary program. Let us hope that each state will go beyond its quota before next June 30.

THE COLLEGE IN NASHVILLE TO OFFER FOUR-YEAR COURSE

President L. C. Johnson has an announcement in this issue of the Baptist paper setting forth the fact that the F. W. B. Bible College will step up its curriculum from two-year to four-year program of studies. It will give the Bachelor's degree in Bible to students completing the four-year studies in Bible training. This will enable many of the former students to return and complete their studies in Christian education for the degree.

It is gratifying to learn that the college is making splendid progress, and is now planning to put on an expansion program for additional buildings. More room is necessary, president Johnson states, to enable the college to accommodate the students who are seeking entrance for the pursuit of Bible training. It is quite evident, therefore, that greater financial support on the part of the church people in the various states is becoming more and more necessary. When church people spend money for the training of Christian leadership in the denomination they are preparing the way for greater efficiency, and an extended service on the part of the ministry of the denomination. Others found this to be true years ago, and they have realized wonderful fruits from their investments in seminaries, Bible schools, hospitals, orphanages, and so on.

The growth and improvements of great numbers of our churches in the various states for the past several years have brought about a greater need for better trained pastors, Bible school directors, Sunday School teachers, mission workers at home and abroad, and the like. And the calls keep coming for well trained young men to fill the pulpits of the leading churches of the denomination. The Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, is seeking to do all it can to train young people for these places of Christian service. It is going to take time, money, and much sacrificing for quite a while before all of our pulpits can be assured of being able to get the leadership they will need. This being true, it behooves the church people throughout our entire connection to give liberally of their finances for the expansion of the college in Nashville, Tennessee.

UNITED EFFORTS AND FRUITFUL SERVICES

Once a small son asked his father why was it that he failed to kill a single bird when he shot in the tree where a great number of birds were sitting. His father's reply was that the reason he did not kill a single bird was that he did not hold his gun still on the bird but that he kept it moving about, and it was not directed on a single target. Thus, the boy wasted his load of ammunition.

Some church people are like that sometimes. They don't concentrate and pull together long enough to bring about gratifying results. Their shots are scattered, consequently their labors often bring poor results. They should, we believe, first count the cost, reason out future results, and unite their efforts to achieve the goal in view.

When the enemy invaded Judah, and proceeded to enter the city of Jerusalem, they concentrated their forces upon certain strategic spots, and fought ferociously until they broke through the city wall, and won their objective. Their method of centralized attack gave them the victory.

In the support of denominational enterprises, or objectives, church people, when united in efforts and have the willingness to give freely of their financial means, will achieve much success and attain the goals which they set for the cause of Christ. Obviously enough, united efforts and fruitful service on the part of loyal Christians will bring the victory for the cause which is dear to the hearts of the people.

Many a poor struggling congregation has contributed more to the advancement of the Kingdom of God than many of the so-called successful churches.

"Next to love, sympathy is the divinest passion of the human heart."—Burke.

Don't Blame the Lord for Your Sins

No, dear people, do not blame the Lord; blame yourselves for your mistakes. God does what he says that He will do, and you need not to expect that he will run to you as a dear mother runs to her children when they get into trouble. As long as you sit astride the fence, with one foot on the side of the world, and the other foot in the church door, how can you expect God to be mindful of you? How can you expect him to answer your prayers, even though they are long and attractive to the ears of the church group? You cannot fool God with your false worship.

There is something else, dear people, that you may fool the people with in this life, but you cannot fool Christ when you get to that door of salvation, for He said that He is the door. To enter his door you must get right in heart and in your daily living. You cannot get into the kingdom of God with your mind clogged with corrupt things of the world.

Please remember that every good work and every evil work will be brought into judgment when the great day of the Lord comes, and you will have to face your deeds then before a great and just God. You will not have there any lawyers of your class to plead for you before the great and final Judge. I do wish that many of you people could see as I do about this matter. I wish you would stop following after the worldly things, as beer drinking, dancing, going to the wild shows, and so on. Unless you repent, you will have to spend your future time in torment. You have the right to choose for yourselves to serve the Lord, and be assured of a place in heaven when this life is over.

Remember, God can run his business without you, but you cannot get to heaven without obeying him and serving him. He will gladly accept you as his dear child if you will turn unto him and do as Christ said for you to do. But if you prefer the joys of Satan for a season, then you are headed to a demon's hell. The way is open for you to turn unto God and live, or you can continue on down the road of despair and eternal damnation. There is plenty of room for you in either place. Your choice will determine where you will go, when this life is over. You are to look down the two ways, and then see the one which will mean the most to you, and then follow therein. Remember, when you call upon God he will answer, if you mean business.

Listen, dear people, those wild shows, shorts, and bathing suits will finally come to an end and don't think they won't. They will do you no good when you are called before the great Judge, nor will you be privileged to wear them at that time.

There is one thing I do not believe: God has never seen one of his angels with shorts on, unless it was some of those that he cast out of heaven because of their sins. Remember, God clothed Adam and Eve when they recognized their nakedness. He put a curse upon Noah's son for looking upon his father's nakedness. What does God think about the nakedness today of those women who put on shorts and bathing suits and are seen in public? We believe he is not pleased about it, for the Word says he does not change.

Active in the promotion of the meeting will be the Rev. Ulphin A. Davis, of Portland, Oregon, who will conduct a number of pre-convention rallies in the church within 150 miles of Philadelphia for several weeks preceding the convention.

Theme of the convention is "Revival Now Through the Sunday School."

A Good Way to Raise Money for Missions

Each member of the Intermediate Sunday School class of the Free Will Baptist Church of Morehead City saves one penny every day for foreign missions. At the monthly meeting it is all put together. In about five months we raised around $16. We hope that other leagues and S. S. will start saving more for missions, because we realize that much more money is needed in order to spread the Gospel.

Let Us Turn to Fasting and Prayer

Dear Friends:

Do you have loved ones who are eligible for training for military service in this present war? If you do, I am very sure that you are anxious to save them from having to go to the battle fields.

Listen, I believe that I can help you, if you are willing to co-operate with me and others who will enlist in the crusade of fasting and prayer for stopping this cruel bloodshed.

Please remember that in the two former world wars, after months and even years of fighting, suffering, and dying, we resorted to repentance, fasting, and prayer for peace, which soon came.

And now that another great war is upon us, and the enemy is making haste to destroy our young men to bring us under their cruel will, we now find it very necessary to blend our faith, fasting and prayer to counteract their deadly onslaught. May we not wait as we did before, but let us act in the living present. Let us turn to God in faith, fasting, and prayer, and call upon him to stop this bloody conflict.

The church people everywhere should set a day of fasting and prayer, and call upon the Lord for the war to cease. Read Isaiah, chapters 58 and 59. Jesus said that something go not out except by fasting and prayer.

NEW CHURCH ERECTED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Organized in November, 1949

This is the picture of the new church, Enoree Free Will Baptist Church, and the congregation gathered in front. This church was organized on November 20, 1950 with nine charter members. As a result of a revival meeting which was conducted by Rev. J. W. White (who is shown at the extremem right in the picture) several new members were added to the church membership.

It was on Easter Sunday that the new building was occupied, or services were held in it for the first time. We now have twenty members. This church is located near one of the large textile mills, and it is expected to become one of our strongest churches in the near future.

 "WHO'S WHO" IN HEAVEN

There is a book of which some people think highly and in which, for some great attainment or service, you may have your name written. This book is called "Who's Who." It contains the names of the so-called aristocrats of earth.

I want to tell you about another book. There is only one copy of it, and no human eye has ever seen it. It contains nothing but names, and there are no mistakes in it. It is Heaven's edition of Who's Who, and in it are the names of the "saved" of all the centuries. The names of some prominent people, which are often in the newspapers and are sometimes on church rolls, are not in this book, for God has written it, and He is "no respecter of persons."

The book I have in mind is the "Lamb's Book of Life," often mentioned in the Bible, in which are listed the names of all those who know the Lord. It contains the names of those who have already reached Home, and of those who will reach Home, by the way of the cross.

The Gospel of Luke tells us how the Saviour sent His disciples on a preaching tour. When they returned to Him they told Him with joy of their great success. "Lord," they said, "even the demons are subject unto us through Thy name." But Jesus said to them, "In this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven."

In other words, no amount of success, even in Christian work, ought to make us as happy as the knowledge that our names have been written in the Lord's Book. Paul writes to the Philippians about certain of his fellow laborers "whose names are in the 'Book of Life.'" He adds: "Rejoice . . . again I say rejoice."

When the Book of Life is finally opened (Revelation 20), those whose names are not in it will be forever lost. Thus it is of the utmost importance to you that your name be included in that volume. Your eternal welfare is hanging in the balance.

People get their names into "Who's Who" by what they do, but no name was ever added to the Book of Life because of "works of righteousness which we have done." Names are entered in Heaven's Who's Who because of Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Tell Him, as a repentant sinner, that you want your name written in His book. "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ." Ask Him to cleanse you from all your sins by His precious blood. Then trust Him to do it.

This is all you can do and get your name in the Book of Life, and it is all you need to do."—Anon.

Paul's Perseverance

There was a time when Paul said to the Lord Jesus, "What wilt Thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:6). He meant that and his own testimony later on is, "I was not disobedient unto the Heavenly vision" (Acts 26:19). From that point on his persevering was not for self or selfish interests, but according to the Divine choice for his life. As the Lord's will was revealed, he went unhesitatingly forward. No tears, no temptations, no danger from enemies lying in wait (vs. 19), could hold him back. The secret lay in the fact that he counted not his own life dear unto himself (vs. 24). Every Christian has received a ministry of the Lord Jesus. Every one has the privilege of finishing their course with joy. The reason so many do not is because they shrink from suffering. Saving their own life is more important to them than "to testify the Gospel of the grace of God." "I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 21:13), said Paul when friends would have held him back from suffering, and until we are ready with a like consecrated determination we can hardly place ourselves in the ranks of those who really persevere for God.

There is a race before each one. I cannot run yours and you cannot run mine. God Himself has marked out our pathway. How we cover the course is not a private matter that we alone know of, however. We are "compassed about" with a great "cloud of witnesses." Best of all, we know the Lord is beholding. And as we keep "looking unto Jesus" it becomes easy to "lay aside every weight" and run with patience." Not for a moment it is safe to look elsewhere. "The sin" of unbelief is lurking always by the way and if not thoroughly ignored—"laid aside"—will "beset", and as the old negro said, "upset" one, before the race is scarcely begun. Jesus endured more for us than we have ever endured for others and as he despised the shame of the Cross, it is possible for us also to persevere for the "joy" that is "set before" (Heb. 12:1, 2).

BE CALM IN THE LORD!

Peace, troubled souls, need'st not fear
Thy great Provider is still near;
Who fed thee last, will feed thee still,
Be calm, and sink into His will.

The Lord who built the earth and sky,
In mercy stoops to hear thy cry;
His promise all may freely claim,
Ask, and receive His precious name.

Without reserve give Christ your heart,
Let Him his righteousness impart;
Then all things else He will freely give,
With Him you all things shall receive.

Thus shall the soul be truly blest,
That seeks in God his only rest;
May you that happy person be
In time and in eternity.

Mary, the Mother of Jesus (Lesson for August 27)

LESSON: Luke 1:46-48; 2:48-51;
Mark 3:31-35; John 19:25-27; Acts
1:14.

GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 1:46, 47

I. Heart of the Lesson

The mother of Jesus has a special place in Christian thought and religious literature. She, with Hannah and other outstanding women of the Bible, occupies a place of first importance. Saint Luke gives us in chapter one, verses 25 through 56 the principal account concerning Mary as the Virgin mother. Gabriel's annunciation of the divine will of God concerning her, as becoming the Mother of the blessed Son, was received with her submissiveness and a sense of great joy.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. There is no joy so great as the joy of salvation through the God who is our Saviour (Luke 1:46-48).

2. A proper estimation of Jesus Christ will never think of Him as the Son of Joseph (2:48).

3. The business of the Lord Jesus Christ is the work God planned before the foundation of the world (vs. 49).

4. Not even the mother of Jesus could understand Him when He was only twelve years old. Is she any better qualified now that He is in the glory? (vs. 50).

5. The mother of Jesus had authority over Him only when He was a Child in the home in Nazareth (vs. 51).

6. The mother of Jesus was not permitted by Him to interrupt His ministry to men, let alone direct Him in it (Mark 3:31-35).

7. The mother of Jesus appealed to the multitude to help her get in touch with Jesus. How then can she intercede for them? (vs. 32).

8. To be the mother of Jesus, or one of His human brothers or sisters, is of less value than to be one of His believing disciples (vss. 34, 35).

9. The mother of Jesus stood helpless when He died. Is it possible that she should have as great, if not greater power than He today? (John 19:25-27).

10. The mother of Jesus needed to pray with the other believers. Could she then possibly answer the prayers of others? (Acts 1:14).—Selected.

11. In the Gospels Mary is pictured simply as a beautiful example of a pious and devoted mother. The New Testament affords no ground for any undue exaltation of her. In fact, a warning which Jesus uttered against this ought to be sufficient. Look up Luke 11:27-28. But in the course of time false ideas and improper practices arose. From the fourth century on, there was an exaggerated reverence in the church for the ascetic life and also for celibacy, as monasticism became strong. Mary became the type and ideal of perpetual virginity, and from about that time the title "Virgin" was associated with her name. The theory was that her marriage to Joseph was no real marriage, but merely nominal. This is believed by Roman Catholics to this day. This idea is contradicted by the plain import of Matthew 1:8, 25.—Arnold's Commentary.

12. She came of the kingly line of David (Luke 3:23). Her father's name was Heli, and he was a descendant of David through Nathan. Because of her descent from David she had a right to hope that she might be chosen of God for the incoming of the Messiah, but there is nothing to indicate that she expected it.

She was a highly favored woman (Luke 1:28). That is what the angel Gabriel told her when he came to announce the wondrous fact that she was to become the Saviour's mother. God had graciously accepted her for this great service, and in that consisted her favor. Some four thousand years earlier God had given a promise concerning the "Seed of the woman," and that was now to be fulfilled through her.

But none of this gave her a higher spiritual standing than that of other sincere believers in the promises of God. We are so prone to ascribe some spiritual superiority to any man or woman whom God had signally blessed. The evangelist or personal worker who has a marked success in winning souls for the Lord is easily put upon a pedestal in our minds and looked upon as one who is more holy than others. And so many men have thought of Mary as a woman of spiritual superiority, even as one born without sin. But there is nothing in the Scriptures that leads us to think anything else than that as an ordinary woman Mary was a sinner, born in sin like the rest of us. Rather, the Scriptures point out that this was the case: (1) Because she needed to bring a sin offering for her cleansing after her Son was born.

This was in compliance with the Mosaic Law for the purification of women (Lev. 12). There was no thought in her mind that she was free from this obligation because she had given birth to the Son of God. (2) Because she needed a Saviour. In that wonderful song "The Magnificat," to which she gave expression in the home of her cousin Elizabeth, she said: "My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour" (Luke 1:46, 47). She was a highly favored woman, but she needed the Saviour God provided for all men.

Furthermore, she was a woman who needed natural care. From the Cross the Lord Jesus committed her to the care of the Apostle John, and the disciple "whom Jesus loved" gladly and lovingly provided it for her (John 19:26, 27). Surely, there is no indication of anything supernatural about her in all these things.

Finally, she was a woman who needed to pray (Acts 1:14). After the resurrection and ascension of the Lord Jesus, she met with the disciples who gathered in Jerusalem and waited for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit which He had promised. They met for prayer, but they did not pray to her; she was a part of the praying company. This is the last mention of Mary in the New Testament; but what a beautiful record with which she moves from the scene—with the disciples praying!—Dr. Thiessen.

Fellowship with God

Andrew Murray

The first need of Christian life, the very basic need of man, is fellowship with God. The divine life within us comes from God and is entirely dependent upon Him. As I need the air to breathe every moment, so it is only in direct living communication with God that my soul can be strong. The manna of one day was corrupt when the next day came. I must every day have fresh grace from heaven, and I obtain it only in direct waiting upon God himself. Begin each day by tarrying before God and letting Him touch you. Take time to meet God.

To this end let the first act in your devotions be a setting yourself humbly before God. In prayer or worship everything depends upon God taking the chief place. We must bow quietly before Him in humble faith and adoration. God is. God is near. God is love, longing to communicate himself to you. God, the Almighty One, who worketh all in all, is even now waiting to work in you and make himself known. Take time till you know God is very near.

When you have given God His place of honor, glory and power, take your place of deepest lowliness and seek to be filled with the spirit of humility. As a creature it is your blessedness to be nothing, that God may be all in you. As a sinner you are not worthy to look up to God; bow in self-abasement. As a saint let God's love overwhelm you, and bow still lower down. Sink down before Him in humility, meekness, patience, and surrender to His goodness and mercy.

Then accept and value your place in Christ Jesus. God delights in nothing so much as in His beloved Son, and can be satisfied with nothing less in those who draw nigh to Him. Enter deep into God's holy presence, in the boldness which the blood gives and in the assurance that in Christ you are most well-pleasing. In Christ you are within the veil. You have access into the very heart and love of the Father. This is the great object of fellowship with God, that we may have more of God in our life and that God may see Christ formed in us.

Christ is a living Person. He loves His people with a personal love, and He looks every day for the personal response of your love. Look into His face with trust till His love really shines into your heart. Make His heart glad by telling Him that you love Him.

We have not only Christ's life in us as a power and His presence with us as a person, but we have His likeness to be wrought into us. He is to be formed in us, so that His image can be seen in us. Say to God, "Father, here I am for thee to give as much in me of Christ's likeness as I can receive." And wait to hear Him say, "My child, I give thee as much of Christ as thy heart is open to receive."

The likeness of Christ may be described as the likeness of His death and resurrection. (Romans 6:5). The death of Christ was the consummation of His humility and obedience, the entire giving up of His life to God. In Him we are dead to sin. As we sink down in humility and dependence and entire surrender to God, the power of His death works in us, and we are made conformable to His death. And then we know Him in the power of His resurrection, in the victory over sin, and all the joy and power of the risen life. Therefore, every morning present yourself unto God as one that is "alive from the dead." He will bestow the grace to live as a risen one.

All this can only be in the power of the Holy Spirit who dwell in you. Count upon Him to glorify Christ in you. Seek in God's presence to have the anointing of the Spirit of Christ so truly that your whole life may every moment be spiritual.

As you meditate on this wondrous salvation and seek full fellowship with the great and holy God, and wait on Him to reveal Christ in you, you will feel how needful is the giving up of all to receive Him. Seek grace to know what it means to live as wholly for God as Jesus did. Let every approach to God and every request for fellowship with Him be accompanied by a new, very definite and entire surrender to Him.

"By faith." Here, as through all Scripture and all the spiritual life, this must be the key-note. As you tarry before God let it be in a deep, quiet faith in Him, the invisible One, who is so near, so holy, so mighty, so loving; in a deep, restful faith, too, that all the blessings and powers of the heavenly life are around you and in you. Yield yourself in the faith of a perfect trust to the ever blessed holy Trinity to work out all God's purpose in you. Begin each day thus in fellowship with God, and God will be all in all to you.

Roman Catholics Bring Pressure

Cardinal Spellman and Bishop McClay (Brooklyn) are reported to have secured the backing from high State Department officials in putting pressure on President Harry S. Truman to appoint Myron C. Taylor's successor to the Vatican.

Our source of information says that the Roman Catholic Hierarchy is saying that if we had had a Vatican Envoy we would not have been caught off guard in Korea.

Actually, our State Department had been warned of the possibility of the attack by the Communists on South Korea well in advance of hostilities. Thus, war hysteria is being used to regain the unconstitutional appointment of a Presidential Envoy to the Vatican.

Now is the time to act! Protestants must deluge the President with telegrams and letters expressing opposition to such an appointment. If enough of us will wire and write we will protect our heritage of separation of church and state, which enables us to preach the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Kindly bring this to the attention of the members of your church and request them to write or wire immediately. Act Today!

STORYLAND

A SCRAPBOOK

"Listen, Ralph, I want to sit in this chair now. You were sitting here all morning. Now, go away!"

Phyllis snuggled into the big chair more comfortably as she said this to Ralph, who was gathering his stamp collection from the floor where she had pushed it.

"Well, you didn't have to throw my stamps on the floor to sit down, did you?" scolded Ralph, frowning, as he crawled under the bookcase to get some stray stamps.

"Oh, yes, you want your things treated nice, but you think you can treat mine any old way you want to," Phyllis said, winking back the tears that would come, just remembering about it! It was only yesterday morning that she had found her doll's best dress—the one she had made all herself with ruffles and even a pocket—lying torn and dirty on the back porch steps where Ralph had carelessly thrown it after dressing Skippy, their yellow kitten, in it. Skippy had not liked it and had crawled under a woodpile before Ralph could take the dress off!

"Why must boys be so mean anyhow!" sighed Phyllis beginning to read.

"Ah, doll's clothes aren't anything to cry about," retorted Ralph, feeling a bit guilty, for the dress had been a mess!

The next day passed without any bitter outbreaks between the two until supper-time. When the cake was passed to Ralph, there were two pieces left, a big one and a smaller one. Ralph took the big piece! An outburst from Phyllis, quick retorts from Ralph, and another storm was in the air.

"Children! Children!" began Mother, "do stop fighting. You behave more like a cat and dog than like a boy and girl. Cats and dogs don't know any better, but an eight-year-old girl and a ten-year-old boy ought to know how to live together in peace."

The next day, Saturday, was rainy and cold. The children had to play indoors, and before eleven o'clock, sounds reached Mother's ears that were not happy sounds. When she went to see what the trouble was, she found, as usual, a tearful, pouting girl and a flushed, angry boy.

"Phyllis and Ralph," Mother said firmly. "This quarreling must stop. Both of you sit down until I come back."

She left and returned in a few minutes carrying a scrapbook.

"We are going to try to cure this annoying habit—for much of it is habit, I believe," said Mother, sitting down between them. "If you would stop finding fault with each other, you would discover that you really love each other.

"I know you both like scrapbooks. You each have two or three. I want you to make this scrapbook together and you will either be proud or ashamed of it, just as you choose. Every day you quarrel or scrap, I am going to write all about it on a page of this scrapbook. If you have been good and kind that day, you can paste your favorite pictures or poems on the page. Shall we try it?"

The children agreed eagerly, for they did love to have scrapbooks.

Each evening during the next week they discussed the day, deciding if it were good or bad. On Saturday evening, after they had seven pages done, they looked at them. Two of the pages were pretty and interesting. But five of the pages the children did not like to look at long. Every single quarrel was written on those five pages!

"It's so awfully hard," sighed Phyllis, looking very sorrowfully at the five pages. "It makes things see so much worse when they're written down where anyone can read them," Ralph said soberly.

"God has a book, too, where He keeps the record of our lives every day. It is filled with an account of either our sins or praise for doing good. Shall we ask God to help us so that we need not be ashamed of our scrapbook and so much more serious of our pages in God's record book?"

Phyllis and Ralph nodded and the three knelt and asked forgiveness for their past sins and help for the coming days.

The following weeks were not easy, for the children did not change over night, but in two or three month's time they could look through their scrapbook with pleasure. Only a "bad" page now and then would spoil their joy.—Words of Cheer.

NINE MUST DIE!

By Jessie L. Miller

First squad all present, second squad all present, third squad . . .

Our nerves grew more tense, why did this have to happen, could they really have "taken off"? "Oh! God be merciful: put a little love in those Japs' hearts, if that's at all possible."

Fourth squad all present. As the "bango" (roll call) came closer to us our hearts beat more fearfully. We knew the penalty. We had seen it happen before, in front of our very eyes. Nine men must pay the price if one man escapes. We were hardened: We had seen death in every way, shape and form. We had watched our buddies die (seventy-five percent of them) on that horrible death march out of Bataan. But now the finger points at us. "Oh God! not us! not me!" It was coming closer; sixth, seventh squad had reported. Why did they have to ask the ninth squad this evening? But it was coming, coming. Eighth squad all present. Ninth squad—one man absent.

Immediately the Japanese rushed us over to their headquarters, Nip guards ran out of the building with arms. How our fellows hated them! They were ruthless; they loved to see the Americans tortured. Hurriedly ammunition was pumped into the chambers of their rifles. "Get over there," howled a Jap in Nipponese. One can't realize the ghastly fear that gripped the fellows. "Oh God, have mercy," I heard as the thoughts of one fled heavenward.

Oh, I was praising the Lord that I had that peace of God which passeth all understanding. I had life in abundance which no man could take away. Death had no more dominion over me; for back there in 1937, placing my faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, I had passed from death unto life. Christ had said, "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation: but is passed from death unto life" (John 5:24). As I saw the guards and the rifles, from deep within me were welled up a great "Thank you, Lord, for saving my soul."

Innumerable thoughts were flashing thru my mind; but there was joy, that same joy I had when Jesus first came into my heart, that same joy I saw in my buddy, Fred, the day he came to know that Jesus loved him and took Him into his heart. I remembered the first time I had seen Fred, Satan had dominion over him: he was drunk. But Jesus loved him, and a few days later I had the privilege of telling him that Jesus was knocking at his heart's door and that if he would hear His voice and open the door, Christ would enter in and sup with him. I never had to tell Fred that we were shapen in iniquity and sin at our fleshly birth; he knew there was lots wrong in his life. I did tell him, however, that we were all in need of a spiritual birth and that if he let Jesus enter his heart, Jesus would remove from before him his poisonous cup of sin. Christ bore it all on Calvary.

Oh what a joy came over Fred when he passed from death unto life! Coming out of Bataan wasn't a death march to Fred because he had life. He proved it, for when he dropped from the column exhausted, he went to be with Christ.

"He is there with Christ this very moment," I thought. "Are those Nip guards going to pull those triggers? Am I going now up there where Fred is, up there in the arms of my Saviour Jesus? It would be grand to be with Him away from this war, away from tears and pain, disease and starvation. What joy He gives me, even here on the firing line!"

The seconds of waiting seemed to lengthen as my thoughts jumped to others. Joe knew this same joy. It was before the war that his sister sent him a letter from America saying that at an old-fashioned altar she had accepted Christ as her personal Saviour. Through Him joy came into her heart, and her prayer was that Joe also might experience that same joy. His heart was troubled when he came and asked me, "What can I do?" Rings of fresh soil showed on the knees of his trousers as he went to the barracks that day. Tears of joy were flooding over. That is what you call being saved and knowing it. As all these events raced through my head I could see again that first day of war, December the eighth. Joe was right out in the bombing, driving an ambulance with not a fear or a doubt. Christ called him then, with the bursting of a bomb.

"Is this my departure from the earth?" I asked myself. "Am I going up there with Jesus, my soul in the arms of Jesus? Is my body going to fade away for a while?"

I could not have been any closer to Jesus, dead or alive, than I was at that moment. He was within my heart, speaking softly, "Won't you reveal Me to others that know not this joy?" "Yes, Lord, if need be to the uttermost parts of the world . . . even Japan, back to the Philippines."

Immediately I knew then there would be no massacre. As badly as the Japs wanted to press their triggers, they couldn't. The Lord is all powerful. Oh, what a joy, what a privilege it is to have a Lord up there in heaven making intercession for you. "I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from evil" (John 17:15). God intervened; there was no slaughter. For some reason, those Japs commanded us to return to the barracks and to be prepared for the shooting, tomorrow morning. Tomorrow morning came and left. The Lord has brought me home to tell you the story.

And I'm thinking, as this is being written, of the reader. What experiences have you had with the Lord? Are you ready for that long journey? These are good questions to die for your faith? These are good questions to meditate upon. "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:15).

But remember God's Servant did the job, a lowly Man some ridiculed. "He made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross . . . that He by the grace of God should taste death for every man" (Phil. 2:7-8; Heb. 2:9). That Servant who came from heaven and paid the price for your sin is none other than Jesus Christ. If you haven't received from Jesus joy, peace and eternal life, accept Him now. Get on your knees and receive Him as your personal Saviour. "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:12).

"Jesus is the joy of living; He's the One I'm waiting for."

William Perry Gaskins

On Saturday, July 8, 1950. God saw fit to call suddenly the soul of our dear father, William Perry Gaskins, from this world of conflict and strife to his heavenly home of rest. He was 71 years old and made his confession of faith early in life at Macedonia Free Will Baptist Church, Ernul, N. C., where he served faithfully until his death. His love and talent for Gospel music gave him many opportunities to witness for the Master. His greatest pleasure was in rendering services unto others.

We do miss him very much, but we know that God's will is best and that he has joined the heavenly choir and is now at rest.

The funeral service was conducted at the home of his son, Cyrus C. Gaskins by Rev. W. C. Foster and Rev. Ballard conducted the service and the Gospel Quartet were in charge of the music. The large crowd of relatives and friends present and the numerous beautiful flowers attested to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The survivors are his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Gaskins, one daughter, Mrs. Henry L. Dixon, one son, Cyrus C. Gaskins, two grand-children, Carol and Eleanor Dixon.

Death of M. M. Woodall

It is with saddened hearts that we attempt to write of the death of our loving husband and father, whom God called from this life on January 30, 1950.

He had been a member of Tee's Chapel F. W. Baptist Church for about 40 years. He had been a Ruling Elder about 25 or 30 years. He was devoted wholeheartedly to his church and Sunday School, which he held in higher esteem than anything else he knew, and he was always ready to lend a helping hand to its needs. During the 40 years of his Christian life, he worked tirelessly for the upbuilding of his church and community and was especially interested in his Sunday school and the youth of his community. The vacancy which he has left in his church and community cannot be regained, but he has left with his many friends and loved ones a pleasant memory of him that will never fade.

He was married to Hettie B. Davis on April 1, 1906, and to this union were born nine children; six girls and three boys. At his death there were 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Our sorrow at the loss of him can never be fully overcome, but our broken hearts are at least partially mended by the thought that he lived a true and faithful life until his death. We join together in praying that we might live such a life that will merit our being reunited with him where we can join in singing praises to our Almighty God around His throne in Heaven.

Mrs. M. M. Woodall and Children

Mr. R. A. Winstead

On June 7, 1950, Mr. R. A. Winstead suddenly passed away to join his friends and loved ones who are gone to rest. He was loved very much by everyone. He did all he could to help those about him in need.

He was a faithful church worker and everyone looked to him for advice. He was about the oldest member of People's Chapel Church, being 72 years old. He had been a member of the church for over fifty years, and had held several offices in the church.

We do feel his absence very much, but we hope and trust that he is at rest with the Lord. Surviving are his wife, seven children, and several grandchildren. There is one great-grandchild. We pray that God may direct and guide them in their grief and great sorrows.

Auxiliary Report of Shady Grove Church

Durham County, N. C.

We are glad to report that our Woman's auxiliary is going strong, and the ladies are really doing things for our church and the Lord. Indeed we are enjoying the privilege and opportunity to work and serve in a religious way.

We held our regular monthly meeting on the third of August at the home of Mrs. Esther Pickett. After we had entered upon our business, and completed it, iced watermelon was served to nineteen members of the auxiliary. Our auxiliary agreed to adopt John H. Rowe at our orphanage as our child for clothing him. Our women raised $37.50 as payment on our parsonage, and $10 has been raised for missions.

We wish to solicit the prayers of all Christian people that we may never fail as an organization of our church. Pray that we may continue to carry on for the blessed Master.

Cramerton Auxiliary Doing Good Work

The Woman's auxiliary of the Cramerton F. W. B. Church held the regular monthly meeting on August 5 at the home of Mrs. Bill Allen. The subject for the program was: "Advancing with Christ through Christian Education." Mrs. R. B. Paris was in charge of the meeting. It was a very good program.

Following the routine business of the auxiliary, the officers for the coming year were elected. A homecoming was observed in honor of the fourth year of the organization in the church. The Reverend Wayne

Smith spoke during the morning service in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Roy Rikard, who is in the Memorial Hospital, recovering from injuries received from a fall which he received while working on the new parsonage, which is being built at the church. Rev. Walter Carter of Rockingham spoke at the evening service.

Fourth Union Auxiliary Report

Mrs. David Gay, Secy.

The Fourth Union Auxiliary of the Central Conference of North Carolina met with Saratoga on Sunday, July 30, 1950, with Sunday School at 10:00. The devotions were led by Rev. R. H. Jackson, whose scripture lesson was taken from the second chapter of Titus. The welcome address was made by Miss Joyce Proctor and Miss Jamie Dildy responded. We were favored with a solo by Mrs. Pauline Whitley. A collection was taken for the orphanage, which amounted to $54.24. We were favored with special music by the Daniel's Chapel Quartet. Rev. L. B. Manning introduced the guest speaker of the morning, Rev. C. I. Patrick, who delivered the morning message, was enjoyed by all. We were dismissed for lunch by Rev. T. P. Ellis.

Afternoon devotions were led by Miss Joyce Proctor. A special selection in song was rendered by the Spring Branch Trio, after which the Daniel's Chapel Quartet again rendered special music.

The business session was entered into with roll call of Sunday Schools and Ladies Auxiliaries. There was only one Ladies Auxiliary not represented by a delegate and two Sunday Schools. However, all three of these were represented by report and donation—a record of which we were very proud.

It was moved and carried that this convention send a delegate to the next District Auxiliary Convention, which meets in September. Mrs. R. H. Jackson was appointed as the delegate.

The Banner Committed decided that the Ladies Aid Banner should go to La Grange and the Sunday School Banner to Aspin Grove. The Finance, Banner and Program Committee reports were accepted.

Following a short program by the local church, we were adjourned by Miss Joyce Proctor to meet in October with Aspin Grove.

Revival at Dublin Grove Church, Royal, N. C.

On the first Monday night in July, the Rev. W. H. Willis of Kinston, N. C., pastor of the Dublin Grove Church, began a series of meetings which lasted two weeks.

We, the members of the church and visiting friends, really enjoyed the soul-stirring messages which Rev. Willis delivered.

Along with the good sermons we had some special music. The little folks enjoyed having a part in the singing each night.

The church was revived, and the members drawn closer to one another. We feel that Rev. Willis is a consecrated man. We need more men like him to day.

A large crowd attended these services, twenty took membership with the church, there were more in our midst who needed to come to Christ and surrender all.

The baptismal service was held on fourth Sunday afternoon by Rev. Willis, at Cayton's landing.

May God bless our church and help us to carry on his work for another year. We pray for the success of our labor, in which he may win more souls unto the Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Rules for Daily Life

Begin the day with God;
Kneel down to Him in prayer;
Lift up thy heart to His abode,
And seek His love to share.

Open the Book of God,
And read a portion there;
That it may hallow all thy thoughts
And sweeten all thy care.

Go through the day with God,
Whate'er thy work may be;
Where'er thou art—at home, abroad—
He still is near to thee.

Converse in mind with God,
Thy spirit heavenward rise;
Acknowledge every good bestowed,
And offer grateful praise.

Conclude the day with God,
Thy sins to Him confess;
Trust in the Lord's atoning blood,
And plead His righteousness.

Lie down at night with God,
Who gives His servants sleep;
And when thou tread'st the vale of death,
He will thee guard and keep.

THE SO-CALLED SOCIAL GOSPEL

W. A. Criswell

"Take heed that no man deceive you"

Men with a passion for social righteousness are to be commended. The lot of many in this life is sad and weary. Poverty and disease and hunger oppress a vast portion of this earth's humanity. May heaven's richest blessing rest upon whoever can help alleviate human misery whether he be preacher or legislator or judge, "Englishman or American or Turk." The clearance of slums, the abolition of liquor and gambling, the amelioration of working conditions, the building of better community playgrounds, the organization of groups for the peace and good of the world, all these things and a thousand others like them are acceptable to God and to men.

It is not for these things that we arraign the social gospelers. We would support these humanitarian movements with all our hearts and souls. Then what is the indictment against these men, it is this: The social gospelers "have committed two evils; they have forsaken the Lord God, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water."

The Origin of the Social Gospel

The roots of the so-called social gospel go back through many years. It has a philosophical, a pseudo-scientific, a social, and a religious background.

In philosophy it reaches back to Jean Rousseau, the French rebel and dreamer who lived an unspeakably immoral life but who promulgated the most naive and felicitous of all happy doctrines. He taught the doctrine of the perfection of the natural man. "If it is natural it is good." To Rousseau the nature of man is inherently good. Let man be himself and he'll be perfect.

In pseudo-science it goes back to Charles Darwin with his theory of evolution. Darwin changed the intellectual outlook of the modern world. From him developed that school of thought which sees in human history nothing but certain and inevitable progress, like the expression invented by the pseudo-psychologist Coe, "Every day in every way we are getting better and better." The biological facts that Darwin thought he discerned in the origin of species, observations which caused him to believe that life has ever evolved upward, the historian applied to all the departments of human story. Not only were we evolving physically, but we were progressing socially, nationally, morally, and every other way.

The social gospel has a collectivist background. Much of the attitudes and doctrines of Karl Marx is to be found in it. Like him, the social gospelers hope to find in a new economic order the source of all the blessings of the human family.

And, of course, the social gospel has a religious background. Its prophets are Washington Gladden and Horace Bushnell. These preachers believed that we are born Christians, that we grow up into Christianity in the same way that we grow up into citizenship. The famous sentence of Horace Bushnell is, "The child is to grow up a Christian and never know himself as being otherwise." If the child is never taught he is a sinner, he will never be one. So thought Bushnell. Since human nature is naturally good, all we need to do to build a paradise here in the earth is just to get our environment adjusted and the kingdom will be realized. So preached Gladden.

The Doctrines of the Social Gospel

The first thing the social gospel did was to sentimentalize the relationship between God and man. They invented a watchery for the new religion. "The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man." That God should be a God of judgment and of wrath was impossible. That man should be a sinner lost and undone was not vicious. But that God should be all sentiment and no discipline, and that man should be by nature all goodness and godlikeness seemed to be flattering to both parties. So the flabby God and the deified man become partners in the new gospel to build the new heaven here in the old earth.

Here is a summary, therefore, of the doctrines of the social gospel:

1. The doctrine of God.

He is no longer a sovereign judge who will hold men accountable for their sins. He is a soft, yielding father who has so made the world that we inevitably grow better and better. That one should think there is a final reckoning for evil or a hell awaiting the wicked is to insult the sentimental fatherhood of God.

2. The doctrine of man.

If man is already a child of God, is of the same nature of God, then there is no need for the old-fashioned Pauline theology of salvation and redemption in Christ. We only need ethical teaching, the development of the divinity that is within us. The life and death of Christ become merely moral influences for the encouragement of the human race in its climb toward perfection. Conversion becomes a matter of religious education.

3. The doctrine of sin.

Sin is no longer the black curse that the Scriptures make it to be. In the social gospel sin becomes "a loss of direction." It is a "stumbling upward in the process of evolution." It is "a wrong against the social good." It is "the transgression of certain taboos established by custom."

4. The doctrine of the social order.

The social gospel has a vision of the coming Golden Age that is as naive as it is impractical. Their idea is that we shall inevitably grow into it. The evolution of life assures it. It will come through the preaching of the principles of the Sermon on the Mount. It will come through education, ecumenicity, reform. The new socialism will dissolve all troubles, create perfect governments, eliminate wars, supply an abundance for all. The great end and aim there-

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

WICKEDNESS ABOUNDS

"When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn" (Prov. 29:2).

We are in a state of mourning; and, by the signs of the times and the fulfillment of prophecy, we are in for a greater state of mourning. It does not take a wise man to see what is just ahead of the nations of the world. Sin abounds on every hand. Wickedness with all manner of crimes grows daily. The world "waxes worse and worse." Rape, murder, homes destroyed by drunkenness, and adultery, fornication, and the like become more evident with each passing day. Why not the people mourn, when our National Capitol is set on the fires of hell in drinking and gambling, even in the highest ranks gambling is reported. Our Government is rotten to the core.

Let me quote some facts gathered by those who keep tab on official Washington. Quote: "Washington drinks more intoxicating beverages than milk. So it was announced by a nationally-known radio commentator during the recent milk strike here." This is a serious condition, but what could we expect better when the head of our government, our law makers, advocate alcoholic beverages and drink themselves, many of them, unto drunkenness, according to reports.

Quote: "Arrests for drunkenness are steadily increasing in Washington. Since the war the population of the city has decreased slightly, but in the same period the number of jail drunks has increased thirty-three per cent. More than 2,000 persons were hospitalized last year for physical and mental ailment arising from alcoholism. More than 100 persons died from drunken driving, homicides, poisoned alcoholic drinks, and other such troubles associated with the free use of liquor. The city's population has declined but in these last five years licensed liquor stores have increased from 1,962 to 2,396. More than 37,000 arrests for drunkenness were recorded last year."—The Evangelical News-front in the UEA.

We need not to be surprised at wars being in the world. It is the sinfulness of the rulers and law makers together with the population of the world. People have turned their backs on God. Russia is the damnable communistic country in the world with the most BLOODTHIRSTY, and GOD DEFYING ruler on earth. He is setting every nation on the fires of hell, and yet crying peace. Other nations have gone after the gods of this world. The whole world lieth in wickedness. We call ourselves CHRISTIAN AMERICA, but where is much Christianity. Yes, thanks to God that there are yet those who have not defiled their garments with the "mark of the beast." They are looking for the "COMING OF THE SON OF GOD," who will clear the mountains and fields, and the principalities of sin from the face of the earth. Then the works of the devil shall be put down once for all. Wait patiently brethren, it will not be long. Praise the Lord for His early coming.

"Be patient therefore, my brethren unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh" (James 5:7, 8). Get your Bible and read the whole chapter preceding these verses.

THE COMING OF THE LORD

From the ascension of Christ the faithful have been looking for His return. The early church looked for Him to come from the heavens with a shout and the trump of God. Christ taught His disciples the truth: "If I go away, I will come again." The men in "white apparel" said, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11).

Notice that it is the same Jesus that is coming again. He was seen with the natural eye of men. They beheld him going up as they "stood gazing up into heaven." He went away in clouds, and now listen, "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen" (Rev. 1:7). So it is an established fact that Christ is coming just as he went away.

THE SIGNS OF HIS COMING

The disciples of Christ wanted to know what were the "signs of his coming." Christ told them that there should be wars and rumors of wars. . . . For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places." Then Christ said, "All these are the beginnings of sorrows." "Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations" . . . "And many false prophets shall arise, and shall deceive many. And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations; then shall the end come." All these things have come to pass; every sign given here by Jesus has been fulfilled. Read the whole 24th chapter of Matthew.

Jerusalem was to be captured, "not a stone was to be left one upon another of the Temple." This prophecy was literally fulfilled 70 A.D. The other prophecies have been fulfilled up to the minute. God's word cannot fail. "Jerusalem was laid waste, the inhabitants were led away captive into all nations to remain until the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled." See Luke 21:24. So the Jews have gone and are going back to the land that God gave to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. God scattered them because of their sin, and God has regathered them because of HIS FAITHFULNESS, as He promised. Now all is set for the Lord Jesus to come.

"Now we beseech you brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and by our gathering together unto him, that ye be not soon shaken in mind, or be troubled neither by spirit, nor by word nor by letter as from us, as that the day of Christ is at hand . . . For that day shall not come except there come a falling away first, . . ." (2 Thess. 2:1-3).

The falling away is here. Modernistic teachers are denying the "Virgin Birth" and the Atoning Blood of Jesus Christ, His literal resurrection and "His return in Glory." They have deceived the masses, and thousands and thousands, led by these deceivers, are falling headlong into everlasting death. Church pews are empty on the Lord's day and seats are filled at the movies and ball parks, sea shore resorts, and thousands of places of amusement. They are denying the Lord Jesus Christ and are counting His blood worthless. Thousands of church members go to church only on Easter or attend the annual revival, or a Christmas pageant. They are lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. These deceived persons are being led by modernistic preachers. "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God," says the Lord Jesus. The church is full of unconverted people.

Think of a church member who cannot get up in time to get to Sunday school and church. But he can rush to the ball game, or the movies, or to the beach, or lake, as soon as he can eat his noon day meal. That man needs salvation and without it he will cry for rocks and mountains to fall on him and hide him from the Lamb of God. See Rev. 6:16.

UNCHANGING LOVE

C. H. Spurgeon was talking to a farmer who had on his barn a weather-vane on the arrow of which was inscribed, "God is love." He said to the farmer, "What do you mean by that? Do you think God's love is changeable—that it veers about as the arrow turns in the wind?" The farmer answered, "Oh, no! I mean that whichever way the wind blows, God still is love."

If the New Testament Were not True--What Then?

By MAX I. REICH

It is a very serious matter for a Jew to reject the testimony given by his own Jewish brethren, in the pages of the New Testament, to the person and work of the One whom that book proves to be the Hope of Israel. For a Jew not to believe in the New Testament reflects discredit upon his own accepted Scriptures, the writings of Moses and the Prophets.

1. The prophets raised up since the carrying away to Babylon and the return—Daniel, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi—spoke of the coming of the Messiah as to be expected during the existence of the rebuilt Jerusalem and of the second temple. (See Daniel 9:24-27; Haggai 2:7-9; Zechariah 9:9, 10; Malachi 3:1). Jewish unbelief therefore not only reflects on the veracity of Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Paul, Jude, James and Peter, but also charges the holy prophets of the Old Testament with having uttered false predictions. The second temple has been destroyed, and unless the Messiah came before that calamity took place the post-exilic prophets were deceivers.

2. Jewish unbelief also relegates the rest of the Old Testament to the rubbish heap. The line of Messianic prophecy begins in Genesis with the germinal revelation of the suffering but triumphant "Seed of the woman," and extends through each book to the coming to His temple of the long-absent "Angel of the Covenant" in Malachi. Only the Messianic hope explains the Old Testament and gives meaning and consistency to its story. Was that hope a chimera, an hallucination?

3. The portrait of Jesus as it is given to us in the four gospels has appealed to nineteen centuries. Considered as literature, these brief books are by far the greatest writings coming out of the first century of our era. And yet they were produced in a decadent age, conspicuous for the absence of genius and originality in art and literary output. Jewish unbelief, when it denies the accuracy of the story recorded in the Gospels, compels us to acknowledge an inexplicable first-century literary miracle. How could the gospel writers have forged this picture of Jesus? It must be a portrait from life, for the wit of man never could have invented it. It is an inspired record of the greatest event in the history of this planet—the appearance in the flesh of "Immanuel," God with us.

4. It is unthinkable that the God of Israel should have permitted the destruction of His people, and the cessation of the sacrificial system He once established, without putting something better in their place. Had this occurred, God would have been defeated by the forces of evil. What has happened is that the outward temple has been superseded by the more wonderful spiritual temple made up of the entire body of the redeemed. They are the present dwelling-place of the Shekinah. The oft-repeated sacrifices of bulls and of goats have come to an end because a sacrifice of richer worth, the atoning death of the spotless Lamb, has put away sin. The glorified Messiah, now in the heavenly sanctuary, has a more excellent minister than that of the Old Testament priests and is the Mediator of a better covenant, established upon better promises.

5. Jewish unbelief implies that the millions upon millions of enthusiastic followers of Jesus down through the centuries have been the victims of a delusion. Christian experience, however, is a universal phenomenon which cannot be disposed of by sophistries. While on the margins of professing Christendom there is a confusing babel of sects, at the center all true Christians are absolutely one. There is no people on earth more united. In spite of racial, educational, social and environmental differences, they share the same life and speak the same language. They have drunk of the same fountain, and have felt the same Spirit. Their experience is the same everywhere—in the orient or the occident—in the present or centuries ago.

Jews enter upon this experience, along with believers from all other backgrounds, when their hearts bow before the Lord Jesus in penitence and faith. The yellow man of China—the black man of Africa—the cultured gentleman of Caucasian blood—when they come with their sins to the feet of this divine Saviour they all find pardon, peace, purity and power. They become members of a new fellowship, the larger and universal "Israel of God," of which the Messiah is the center and sun. The unity of Christians in spiritual experience is a rock against which no criticism can prevail. The gospel of Christ is "the power of God unto salvation, to the Jew first." Will you, as a Jew, receive as your Saviour the One who came "to the lost sheep of the tribe of Israel?"

August 6 was a significant day in the life of Bethlehem Church, near Ashland City. According to the best information the pastor, Rev. Adam Scott, could secure, the church held its first homecoming on that day in its history which covers more than a hundred years. The large congregation that was present gave an offering of $425.00 to be used for building of more Sunday school rooms. Rev. T. O. Terry, pastor of Ashland City Church, recently closed a successful revival at Bethlehem.

Mrs. Mary Reed, second vice-president of the woman's auxiliary of Bethlehem Church reports three study classes held there in the past few weeks: stewardship, manual of methods, and vacation Bible school.

The Bible college at Nashville is launching a nationwide offering Sunday, October 1. This united offering, to be received from every church in the denomination, is expected to exceed the $10,000.00 hoped for as an initial fund for the new four-story addition to the college plant. Rev. Henry Melvin, college business manager, has already begun mailing out literature on the project.

Rev. Charles Thigpen, Bible college instructor, is holding a revival at Shady Grove Church, Hickory Point. Rev. Bayless McDonald is pastor.

Rev. LaVerne D. Miley, Bible college graduate and graduate in science from Northeast Missouri State Teachers College, has been added to the faculty of our college as professor of Greek and science. His home is Kirksville, Mo. Mrs. Miley is the former Lorene Norris of Benton, Ill., a graduate of our Bible college.

Rev. J. L. Welch, pastor of Cofer's Chapel, Nashville, has been in revival services in eastern North Carolina with Rev. J. W. Alford of Columbia, N. C.

HUMAN SACRIFICE

In the Korean war many American boys are being sacrificed in battle for the principles of right and justice. Democracy stands for the right of the individual to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, and to grant him the privilege to pursue gainful occupations for the good of self, family, and the nation.

It is because of the stand which our country takes for human rights and Christian privileges that many American boys are suffering. It is tragic that this war was brought on by those who have little regard for the rights and privileges of honest people. War is always a poor means by which justice for any people can be obtained. Then when it is over, the devastation and ruins of the areas of the country where the battles were fought become practically useless for a long time. Poverty and starvation among the masses of the citizens of those areas are always tragic and heart-breaking.

Things accomplished by this war, when it is over, can never justify the loss of human life and the expense to which the warring nations were put to end the struggle. And usually the signed agreements do not stand very long before further trouble arises. The truth is, many soldiers have died in vain, and many a family has born sorrows and heartaches through the passing years, all because their sons were forced in the conflict of battle.

Peace among the different peoples of the earth cannot be secured for long by wars, treaties, and parliaments. Those are not the sources for lasting peace, nor are they a panacea for the shedding of blood. Lasting peace will have to come another way. It will have to come thru the Prince of Peace. Christ came to give peace to all mankind, but the nations, as a whole, will not seek peace for the world through and by His divine teachings. As long as men seek peace through their own knowledge and wisdom, that long will they fail to effect a lasting peace among men.

In view of these things, we believe that the great need today is for the Christian people to turn to God in sincere prayer, petitioning Him to intervent in this great struggle, and to bring peace among the nations that are involved in this heartrending struggle. God can in some mysterious way bring the conflict to a speedy end, but the Christian people are to call upon Him and to trust Him to effect a lasting peace. Think how multitudes of people would rejoice, and think how many lives would be spared, if this war would cease without further destruction and carnage.

FIRST SUNDAY IN OCTOBER DESIGNATED FOR SPECIAL OFFERINGS

We have information that the Bible college in Nashville, Tennessee, is laying plans to ask the churches of the denomination to raise special offerings on the first Sunday in October. They are hoping to realize from this drive at least ten thousand dollars for the purpose of applying it to the construction of a new college building on the present campus. This new building is vitally needed to enable the administration to make room for the Four-Year College program. The present conditions for classroom facilities are very poor, and it is very necessary that the college officials get more money to enable them to expand, and to give more room for the young men and women who are desirous of taking training in Nashville.

May the pastors of the various churches over the country stress this great need, and encourage their church people to give liberally to this most needy cause on the first Sunday in October. Each church should feel responsible for raising a creditable offering for this special purpose. The returns will be forthcoming in the future when well trained young men and women will go out from the college, prepared to render efficient Christian service to the churches and communities of the whole denomination. Every dollar raised and well spent for this cause will mean much to the cause of Christ in the world. No church member should hesitate to give liberally for this purpose, for God has promised to bless the cheerful giver, and the ways in which He does this are manifold. He never fails those who have faith and trust Him with all their heart. Inexpressible joy is always in store for the Christian who does his part for the building up of God's kingdom in the world.

Why Worry?

Why worry? Are tomorrow's skies more blue

If on our beds we restless roll and toss
With burning sleepless eyes until the morn,
Building bridges that we may never cross?

Why worry? Are we not the children dear
Of Him who like a shepherd feeds His sheep

And in His bosom gently holds the lambs Safe from the slinking wolves that nearby creep?

Does not the one who numbered every hair,
And marks the little sparrow when it falls,

Give ear to us in His own image made
As well as to the raven when it calls?

And does He love the lilies of the field
That do not toil or neither do they spin
More dearly than His helpless storm-tossed child

For whom He gave His life to save from sin?

Is He who weighs the mountains with His scales

And measures in His hand the mighty deep,

Who meted out the heavens with a span,
Not able every trusting soul to keep?

Then why these weary hours of nameless dread

That bring but shattered nerves and hoary hair,

When He who rules the earth and restless seas

Bids us to cast on Him our every care?

MAKE MUCH OF YOUR HOMES

By J. C. Massee

The oldest human institution is the home. God created it. Its foundation is marriage. It sternly stands for and encourages sex and social purity, as well as faith in God.

The home is a garden spot in which all graces are rooted. There we learn how to live together. Its laws are simple but very vital. They are courtesy, patience, forbearance, unselfishness and kindness. All these are spelled in one word, love. In the home the holiest and most intimate relations are seen and understood in the light of chaste and pure thoughts.

Here are twelve laws for building and keeping a happy and successful home.

1. Marriage is the foundation of the home.
2. Love is the law of the home.
3. Purity is the health of the home.
4. Unity is the power of the home.
5. The family is the glory of the home.
6. Simplicity is the beauty of the home.
7. Joy is the atmosphere of the home.
8. Hospitality is the blessing of the home.
9. Sorrow is the sanctifier of the home.
10. The Altar is the security of the home.
11. Christ is the Saviour of the home.
12. Heaven is the hope of the home.

Obey these simple rules and your home will be a sanctuary of peace and joy.

Live much at home. Love best the folks at home. Trust, love and obey Christ the Saviour of the home. Build your home into the church. Keep the home out of debt. Keep all impurity away from the home. Cherish the children of the home. Train them in the way of faith, truth, love and obedience. God save the home.

The truly Christian home is the most perfect institution in the world. Christ saves it, in an all embracing way. Here love finds its perfect theatre of action. Here man and woman, parent and child, employee and servant, age and youth, host and guest, the home body and the stranger find their perfect opportunity to fulfill the two greatest of all commandments, to love God supremely, and to put the interests of others before one's own interests.

Here the voice of rancor must never be heard nor the spirit of contention be permitted a place. The constraint of Christ will provide the restraint of the spirit.

The marvelous cluster of fruit produced by the Spirit of God ripens so perfectly no where else: Consider, love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control.

What an atmosphere is created by the rich aroma of that cluster. Surely its fragrance will fill the whole house, even as the sweet odor of Mary's precious spikenard when she broke the box of alabaster.

In such an atmosphere authority is not, cannot be arbitrary, nor discipline harsh, or impatient. In such a home self-denial becomes easily the way of privilege and joy, rather than the path of duty. Here personality truly expands by giving. And faith, trust, confidence and love put to rout all the flying squadrons of jealousy, suspicion, bitterness and censoriousness.

Make your homes Christian. Enthroned Christ to reign in your hearts. Give the Holy Spirit free reign, and soon the God of peace will guard your hearts and homes in Christ Jesus.—
F. W. B. Messenger.

A PUSH-OVER

The Seeing Eye dog boarded the crowded streetcar with his master and led him to the only available space on the seat running the length of the car. It was too small to accommodate even a child, but the dog began pushing the passengers on each side farther apart with his nose. Every other passenger in turn squeezed against his neighbor. When there was room enough to accommodate two people, the dog signaled his master to be seated. The passengers' pleased expressions dissolved into laughter when the dog climbed into the remaining space beside his master and relaxed with his head on the blind man's lap.—Contributed by Elna Cuthbertson.

The Most Important People

The boys and girls in their teens are the most important people in the world. It is they who settle all the great questions of life. These great matters are:

What calling are you going to follow? What are you going to do with your ideals? What will be your philosophy of life—will you be materialistic, egotistic, or altruistic, a lover of right and beauty?

All of these subjects are disposed of by young people under twenty.

It is the boy that selects the profession or trade the man has to follow. It is the girl who chooses the husband the woman has to put up with all her life. It is the child that, as a rule, determines the religion the adult must adhere to until death or be called an infidel.

When we remember that the most weighty, important and fateful issues are in the control of the children, we realize that the happiness and welfare of this world is in the hands of the boys and girls.

We look on the age between ten and twenty as a sort of interlude to life. But there is need to remember that teen-agers need more love, more companionship, more sympathy and more attention than they ever needed before or will again.

—Mutual Moments, F.

MY GREATEST AMBITIONS

I would be true,
for there are those who trust me;
I would be pure,
for there are those who care.
I would be strong,
for there is much to suffer,
I would be brave,
for there is much to dare.
I would be friend to all—
the foe, the friendless;
I would be giving,
and forget the gift.
I would be humble,
for I know my weakness;
I would look up —
and laugh — and love — and life!
—Howard Arnold Walter

I have so much to do today that I cannot get along with less than three hours of prayer.—Martin Luther.

WHAT DO YOU STAND TO LOSE

Many years ago this story came out of Russia; long before the Communistic regime.

It seems that a certain Athiest was parading up and down the country side, pouring out his verbiage against the very thought of God, and ridiculing all those who believed in God.

On one occasion he addressed a group agthered in a large hall. He stirred them to a high pitch, and then he hurled an invitation to God, that if there be a God, He reveal it by smiting him to death. Of course, God did not, and so he turned to his audience and said: "See there is no God."

Whereupon a little Russian peasant woman with a shawl about her head arose to speak. She addressed her remarks to the speaker and said:

"Sir, I cannot answer your arguments; your wisdom is beyond me. You are an educated man! I am merely a peasant woman. With your superior intelligence will you answer me one question?"

"I have been a believer in Christ for many years. I have rejoiced in His salvation, and I have enjoyed my Bible. His comfort has been a tremendous joy. If, when I die, I come to learn that there is no God; that Jesus is not the Son of God; that the Bible is not true; and that there is no salvation nor heaven; pray, sir, what have I lost by believing in Jesus Christ during my life?"

The room was still. The audience grasped the woman's logic, and then they turned to the Athiest, who by that time was swayed by the woman's simplicity.

In quiet tones he remarked: "Madam, you won't stand to lose a thing."

At which the peasant woman answered: "You have been kind and answered my question. Permit me to ask another. If, when it comes your time to die, you discover that the Bible is true that there is a God; that Jesus is His Son; and that there is a heaven and a hell; pray, sir, what will you stand to lose?"

Of course, the logic was so over-

You can't believe everything you hear—but you can repeat it.—Answers (London) whelming that the crowd leaped to its feet and shouted in ecstasy.

The Athiest had no answer.—Anon.

COOPERATION NEEDED

The Home Mission Program Needs to Go Forward

Rev. J. L. McIntosh, Lyles, Tenn.

There is a close relationship between the general home missionary program, and the future success and well-being of our church. If we are to fulfill God's thought for us as a church, escape the penalty of unfaithfulness, and see the church go on to greater heights, we must forge ahead with the general home missionary activities. If we are to expand in this great work, it is imperative that our entire constituency must rally to the support of the home missionary program.

Occasionally, visionless souls look with disdain upon the work of others, and with little or no appreciation of the church and the kingdom of God. Being materially minded they ask why this outlay of dollars. Why this added expense? But we should remember the great commission of our Lord Jesus is bearing upon us in these words: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." The darkness of sin and the ever increasing unbelief here in the United States is appalling.

As a church we must not fail in our duty to take the Word to lost souls. We must be true to the souls of men. The spiritual condition of the world should alarm us today. We are living in a day of popular holiness, of compromised conviction, and of lowered Christian principles. Religious standards are not what they should be. Our church needs to be alert herself, and with unified effort, establish strong spiritual churches in every community, town and city. But it seems that we are becoming more a church people. Much of religion is being carried on with a social and recreational slant. The confused condition of the sinner, and also that of some church members bring a challenge to the home missionary program of our church.

The problem facing the Home Mission Board is not a lack of vision, nor is it the lack of opportunities. Our board members have the vision, and before us are the open doors, but they must have the co-operation, and the support of our entire constituency. Fellow Free Will Baptists, it is to be seen what can be accomplished, if together we will do our best. Shall we not acquaint ourselves with the Home Missionary department, and its program of work, and then rally to its support? There is a three-fold need facing this department. The first is prayer. If we have financial resources, and a personnel equal for the occasion, we must of necessity have guidance of the Holy Spirit. Every Free Will Baptist can join with us in this great movement.

We need further workers for this great task. This means more than to have a minister with a certificate in his pocket, and an ambition to get a large church to serve. We need workers who have a vision, a willingness to sacrifice, and a desire to serve the cause of missions. Such will succeed in establishing the work of God in new places.

Thirdly, we need finance. In this day of high prices, we need an increasing flow of dollars into the treasury of this great program of missionary work. At the present time the funds are very low. Let us rally wholeheartedly to the support of Home Missions. Let us actually do our best. Every church and each individual of our denomination should get busy and do something for this cause. Yes, Free Will Baptists all over the country should support the Board of Home Missions in this great work. God will be pleased if they will do this very thing, and our hearts will rejoice to go forward with this great work.

fore, of the gospel is this: through preaching, conferences, adjustments, to lead mankind into a Garden of Eden.

The Golden Age

Through countless generations men have dreamed of a perfect world to be realized by setting up better social systems. From the days of Plato's "Republic," written 400 years before Christ, through the days of Sir Thomas More's "Utopia," written 1500 years after Christ, through the days of the present sentimental gospel dreamers, the race has sought a way out of the terrible oppression caused by the heavy hand of the wicked in the earth.

We have manipulated our political machinery for thousands of years; we have experimented with despotisms, dictatorships, autocracies, democracies, bureaucracies, obligarchies, monarchies of several types and republics of every kind; and still the Golden Age has never come.

We have been seeking to create social orders that were just and equitable; we have tried capitalism, socialism, communism, fascism; but still the Golden Age has never come.

We have even tried political ecclesiasticism, we have let the church run it all. Surely, surely, if there were ever a social, political utopia, it would be realized when the church sat on the throne. But oh, that is the worst of all. When the church governed the earth we call the years "the Dark Ages."

Is there, then, to be no Golden Age? Is there to be no kingdom of God, no reign of righteousness? Yes, yes, indeed. The prophets foretold it. Listen to Isaiah:

"The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid. The suckling child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice's den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

Listen again to Micah: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

If the old prophets pictured the glories of that coming day, what could we say of the incomparably beautiful pictures of the age of righteousness painted by the Apostle John in the Revelation? It is like Handel's "Messiah," ending with the Hallelujah Chorus: "The kingdom of this world is become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever, King of kings and Lord of lords. Hallelujah."

What is the matter, then, that the Golden Age never comes? Just one thing—sin. Human sin must be reckoned with first. Isaiah 11:5-9 describes the coming kingdom of peace, but only after Isaiah 11:4 says that the Great King "shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked." No cheap, flabby, sentimentality about that King. Micah 4:1-5 describes the abiding blessings of the age of righteousness, but only after Micah 3:8-12 had "declared unto Jacob his transgression and to Israel his sin" and "Zion for their sakes was ploughed like a field." Evidently, it was a God of judgment that had His hands to that plough.

Revelation 21 and 22 picture the new heaven and the new earth and the holy city, new Jerusalem, but only after Revelation 20 describes "the great white throne and him that sat on it, from whose face heaven and earth fled away . . . and death and hell were cast into the lake of fire . . . whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." He who sat on that throne was certainly a God of wrath.

It is just here that the social gospel fails. It does not recognize the depravity of the human heart nor the judgment of God upon human iniquity. Man has one need above all other needs; it is the need of redemption. If he cannot be saved from his sins, no system in which he is placed will work toward peace and perfection.

What God Says About the Future

God's Word is diametrically opposite to the easy, liberal conception of historical evolution. God's Word is realistic and says the truth about the world in which we live. God says it is a wicked world; the daily newspapers say the same thing. God says it will be wicked until it is judged in the great, final day human history says the same thing. It is a sheer theological fiction that all men are brothers and sons of God. They are sons of the Evil One and every headline of every paper screams the same thing. The myth of inevitable and perpetual progress based on the theory of evolution has been atomized by the recent wars that make the battles of the ancients look like tournaments of tin soldiers. The words of the scientists today are terrible words of threatened judgment, words that sound like the sermons of the old-time fire and brimstone preachers.

God's Word does not speak of a world getting better and better thru the eternal processes of evolution. Rather, it speaks of a final Judgment Day which will bring the day of man to an end. If you listen you can always hear the ominous trampling of the hoofs of the Apocalyptic steeds. They are riding and riding hard. If you look around you you can see the helplessness of mankind in striking contrasts to the idealistic assumption that we will remake this world to our will. This world is not soft modeling clay but hardened granite, a stuff so set and steeped in sin that our banners break against the resistant material.

Jesus pictured the last days, "As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man. As it was in the days of Lot, even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." Paul's picture of the last times in I and II Thessalonians and in I and II Timothy was no different. The Revelation is full of the agony and woe born of the travail of the closing chapters in this world's history.

These social gospels, these utopian dreamers, these impractical idealists, are like the false prophets in Amos' time who were describing the coming day of the Lord as the perfect era when man is triumphant. But Amos thunders, "Woe unto you that desire the day of the Lord! to what end is it for you? the day of the Lord is darkness, and not light. As if a man did fless from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Shall not the day of the Lord be darkness, and not light? even very darkness, and no brightness in it?" The day of man is the day of sin, of misery, of death. It is a day of wrong and war and violence. It is a day of failure and catastrophe. The day of the Lord is the day of judgment and the day of reckoning with sin.

What, then, is the basis for the hope and optimism of the prophets and the apostles? How could they sing in the face of so stark a reality? It was because the hope in their hearts was Messianic, heavenly. It rested, not upon their confidence in man, but on their trust in God. The heavens may be dissolved in fire and the elements may melt in heat but "we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" (II Peter 3:12, 13). These men of God saw the gloom and the darkness and the night. But they also saw over and beyond it. They saw the light of the glory of God. They say Jesus coming in power, reigning triumphant.

The Work of the Church

What, then, is the work of the church? What is the task God hath called us to do? Has God laid upon us the burden of the reformation of Sodom and Gomorrah? No, no. Lured by the theories of Darwin and Marx, beguiled by the false prophecies of Gladden and Bushnell, we can find ourselves buried in the morass of economic determinism and lost in the utopian hopes of a false optimism. God has revealed to us in His immutable, unchanging, eternal Word, the true nature of man, the only way of salvation and the ultimate destiny of this earth.

On the basis of this revelation He has plainly told us what to do. The primary task of the church is to preach the Gospel of salvation to all men everywhere, to tell them of redemption from the bondage of sin and eternal life in Christ Jesus now and in the world to come. Our main business is everlastingly one of evangelism. We can never have a better world until better people live in it.

There is more lasting social good accomplished by bringing men to Christ than by all the high-spun theories of all the arm-chair philosophers in the world. Social reform at best is palliative rather than regenerative. The root of all our trouble is not in the system but in the sin of the soul. Liberal churches today, with their abandoned Sunday evening services, their deserted prayer meetings, their cold, intellectual sermons, are occupying themselves with the pimples on the skin when the disease of death lies in the blood scream of the heart.

Our hope lies in the Gospel of repentance and faith. We sin individually. We sin collectively, but we still must repent individually. Each one of us must accept for himself pardon in the atoning grace of Christ Jesus and eternal life through a personal faith in Him. However we may change these social orders and these economic systems, our world is ruined by the presence of sin and death. Until One comes who is able to deliver us from these foes, we helplessly face the pale horseman whose scythe has cut down every man, every nation, every civilization, the world has ever known.—Christian Digest.

A WORD ABOUT YOUR MISSIONARY CHART

You have noticed on your missionary chart it was dated for both 1950 and 1951. The reason they were so constructed was to make them fitting for use in this coming national associational year of 1950-1951 as well as during the past year of 1949-50. We have a supply of these on hand and if any State Director of Foreign Missions will let me know how many you can use in your state I will gladly mail them to you for distribution. They should be in our churches for use this coming year, but it will take co-operation on your part to get them out.

However, if you would rather not undertake to distribute a supply again this year then I have here a plan to offer whereby you may continue to use the one which may now be posted in your church or churches. First, adjust, if need be, the figures on the chart in keeping with the states' quotas for this present national year, especially should you make that change as to the quota for your own respective state. The table of these quotas has been given in all our leading denominational papers. While it may be that your state quota is the same as that of last year, hence will need no changing. Second, take a narrow strip of white paper, which has been carefully cut out for the purpose, and paste carefully over the red mercury, which has been raised on your chart during the past year, and thus you have a white center again on which to begin raising the mercury in keeping with the receipts from your state, month by month. Watch the papers closely each month for instructions as to the raising of the mercury on your charts. We hope to have the careful cooperation of every one possible in the use of these charts. Remember, if you desire a new supply, please let me know.

PETER, WHO BECAME A MAN OF POWER

(Lesson for September 3)

LESSON: Acts 4:7-20.

GOLDEN TEXT: Acts 5:29.

I. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

Please take time to read Matthew 21:42-44.

There is a very striking and beautiful story linked with these verses quoted by our Lord. It is said that they have reference to something that occurred during the building of the Temple. It will be remembered that Solomon was seven years in constructing this glorious Sanctuary. From the Book of Kings we learn that the stones for the Temple were all hewn and cut to order in the quarry before being set up to the great platform on the top of Mount Moriah where the Temple stood. It is a marvelous picture of God's present temple.

The Jews say that these stones were practically all of the same size and shape but that one stone was sent up which was so different from the rest that they were at a loss what to do with it. It did not seem to fit anywhere. After consultation they decided a mistake had been made, and so they placed it upon rollers and pushed it over to the edge of Mount Moriah and tumbled it down into the vale below. "The stone which the builders rejected!" But as time went on and the Temple was nearing completion the day drew near for the placing of the chief cornerstone. There was nothing suitable on the platform. Word was sent down to the quarrymen to send up this cornerstone as they were now ready for it, but the answer came back. "We sent it to you long ago; you must have it there upon the Temple site." But a thorough search failed to reveal it. Then an old workman said, "I remember now there was a stone sent up when we first began to build, but we saw no place for it and we hurled it down into the abyss. Go down below and you will find it." And so they sent a searching party and eventually discovered it almost covered up with debris and overgrown with moss. They raised it with great effort to the platform above and found it fitted exactly in the place prepared for it. Thus the rejected stone became the head of the corner. Now our Lord appiles all this to Himself. "He came unto His own, and His own received Him not." They did not realize who He was, and so they fulfilled their own Scriptures in rejecting Him. The Apostle solemnly charged them after the Day of Pentecost concerning this saying, "Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain," but, he adds, "God hath raised (Him) from the dead." And in I Peter 2:4 we read, "To whom coming, as unto a living Stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious." This is indeed the Lord's doing and it is marvelous in our eyes.—Dr. Harry A. Ironside.

1. The Spirit-filled man is not afraid to address those who hold a superior position (Acts 4:8).

2. No Christian should ever be brought to trial before a court because of an evil deed he has done (vs. 9).

3. The best proof of the power of Christ is in the changes He brings about in human lives (vs. 10).

4. The rejection of Christ by the Jewish rulers was used of God to make salvation possible for the whole world (vs. 11).

5. There are many "names" in religion, but the only name in which there is salvation is the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth (vs. 12).

6. Not boastfulness but a holy boldness will convince men that we have "been with Jesus" (vs. 13).

7. One human being saved from the power of sin is a testimony that the greatest haters of Christ cannot gain-say (vs. 14).

8. The evidence of supernatural power in the life of a Christian is perplexing to unbelievers (vss. 15, 16).

9. Down through the centuries the world has tried in vain to silence the lips of true believers (vs. 17).

10. Christians are expected to obey the laws of any government except when that involves disobedience to God (vss. 18, 19).

11. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh" (comp. vs. 20).—Selected

12. Peter was pointed and dynamic in his words to the council members on this matter. He declared "there is none other name under heaven . . . whereby we must be saved" (12b); God has not made any other plan by which one can be saved; and those who refuse to accept Jesus as Lord and Master will be eternally lost. All other means were only subordinate, and referred to him, and had their efficacy from him alone."—Adam Clarke. Peter here advanced from the healing of the lame man to the matter of the salvation of the human soul. Moreover, since Christ was able to heal the lame man, he could also, from this fact, exercise the divine power over sin, and thus free a rank sinner from the burden of his past sins.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

13. The members of the council found themselves in an embarrassing position, for they were placed between two known facts with no apparent outlet for escape. They were aware of the fact that all the people of the city who knew the healed man recognized in his healing a notable and convincing miracle. Along with that, they realized that if the work of healing in the name of Christ, and the preaching of His gospel, continued with such amazing power and conviction the people would receive the gospel and accept Jesus as the Saviour. The question with them was, What shall we do to these men?—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

We should behave toward our country as women behave toward the men they love. A loving wife will do anything for her husband except stop criticizing and trying to improve him. We should cast the same affectionate but sharp glances at our country. We should love it, but also insist upon telling it all its faults. The noisy, empty "patriot," not the critic, is the dangerous citizen.—J. B. Priestly, Rain Upon Godshill (Harper)

"When Christ Controls"

By Nadine Shadrack
General Director, East Nashville Church
Nashville, Tennessee

Have you ever looked forward to some event so long and wished so fervently for it to happen that, when it actually did happen, you felt as if you were dreaming? That is the way most of us leaguers felt Monday morning, June 12, as we boarded the chartered bus that was going to take us to the Third Nationwide League Conference in Norfolk, Virginia. Actually, dreaming was one thing we did not do on the bus. Several people gave humorous readings and we sang, ate, and joked. Eva Ellen Coville, the Best All-round Traveler, kept some entertainment going all the time. We rode the entire day and night making stops at various towns and cities. It was a very tired group of travelers that rode the ferry to Norfolk across the Elizabeth River from Portsmouth early Tuesday morning. All of our thoughts can be summed up with the words of one leaguer who said, as she registered in her hotel, "At last, we are here!"

On Tuesday evening strains of organ music filled the municipal auditorium as we waited for the first service to begin. Many people were already seated, and yet the ushers continued to lead more and more people down the aisles to their seats. We waited tense and excited until Billy Melvin walked to the center of the stage and said, "Let's sing." How we sang! The old hymns that we had sung so many times before had never seemed so beautiful. But Tuesday evening was just the beginning; we sang much more Wednesday and Thursday. The congregation, college quartets, our own girls trio, college chorus, several choirs, and soloists sang magnificently. But if the joy, which no words can describe, that rippled through our hearts could have been put to music and sung, it would have resounded across the nation.

There were dramas, too. Some made us laugh, some showed us God's need of us in His service, and all thrilled our hearts.

All of the programs were enriched by excellent speakers. Outstanding among them was Miss Laura Belle Barnard. She spoke of the need of money and sixteen new missionaries in India. She said that we must supply our missionaries' needs "for Christ's sake, for the Gospel's sake, and for the sake of dying multitudes.

Other features were morning discussion groups and afternoon conferences. We got much information and the leaders answered our questions concerning full-time Christian service. There were tours to the naval base, Ocean View, and Seashore State Park where a beach dinner was served.

During the last service, the North Carolina contestant, Jane Smith, won first place in the nationwide sword drill and the Tennessee contestant, Nadine Walker, won second place. North Carolina led in attendance with Tennessee second. At the close of the service, six young people dedicated their lives in full-time service to God. All too soon, the two full days and three wonderful evenings were over and we had to come home.

But we returned home with grateful hearts. We are grateful unto God for the many blessings we received. To Mr. Bowen goes much sincere gratitude for planning the program so well and doing so much to make the conference a success. We thank the National League Board for sponsoring the conference. Everyone who received interest on money saved in the conference bank is grateful to the church for help. And some leaguers thank friends for special gifts that they received.

Perhaps the conference is over, but never will we forget it. We will remember how you suffer, do you think that you cause vividly. It was an experience that will help us live fuller, happier, and more Christ-controlled lives this year as we look forward to the Fourth Nationwide League Conference.—"Contact."

An Open Letter Concerning Prayer

Dear Editor:

In regards to your article on National Prayer which was published in the August 2 issue of the Free Will Baptist, the members of Tabernacle Church of Coward, S. C., join with you in believing that a day of National Prayer should be declared in this country. Let us ask God to cease the conflict. He wants His people to live at peace with all nations.

God answered our prayers during the last war and not one casualty from Tabernacle Church was reported. God hasn't changed. He's the same now as He was then. He still hears the cries of His children and answers their requests.

Many of us can't join the service nor work in war plants, but we can prove our love for our boys by remembering them in prayer. Even if we do enter the war we can ask God to save our boys so if they are called into service and later into eternity they can meet Him in peace.

But why wait until the eleventh hour to pray? Begin now! If we ignore God now and wait until the crucial moment to call upon Him, surely He will laugh at our calamities and mock when our fear cometh.

Set a day and hour and pray for peace until victory is won. Then let us continue to pray and thank God for what He has done.

Sincerely,
Ella McAlister

On Trial!

Allen E. Claxton

There is an old story about a man who walked in the front door of the Boston Art Museum and observed a company of persons with a guide studying a large painting near the entrance. After glancing at its main theme, the visitor passed along the corridor to inspect the contents of the museum. Within an hour he had rushed through the Egyptian Room, the special exhibits, and a dozen other departments containing statues and paintings valued at millions of dollars. As he was leaving the building, he was amazed to find that same company of people still standing before that picture at the entrance. He approached an attendant and asked, "Are those the same people I saw when I came in?"

"They are," was the reply.

"Well, what are they doing here all this time?"

"They are studying the picture," answered the attendant.

"Do you mean that they are over an hour studying one picture?"

"Oh, longer than that sometimes," came the answer.

"Well, said our visitor, "that doesn't make sense to me. I surely don't know what they can see in that painting."

The attendant, being something of a connoisseur himself, and a student of Rembrandt, made this simple reply, "Sir, that picture is not on trial. You're on trial."

For nearly two thousand years people have been testing the Gospel of Christ with its Golden Rule, its law of love and its message of forgiveness and redemption. Speaking of the Ten Commandments, Jesus Himself said, "Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven." The commandments are not on trial; we as human beings are. The Gospel is not on trial. We are.

CHILDREN'S STORYLAND

THE YELLOW KEY

Grace Simon Swanger

On Sunday afternoon Robbie brought Mother her Bible, and Baby Neil was allowed to hold the yellow key. Then the children got their Bibles.

"The first thing we want to know is what the yellow key unlocks. Luke 11:52 tells us."

Howard found it first and read: "Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered."

"We see the yellow key is the key of knowledge. What does yellow make you think of?"

"Corn," said Ruthie.

"Gold," said Big Brother.

"Pumpkin pie," said Howard.

"Let us find Proverbs 8:19 and Proverbs 3:13, 14, and see what God says about knowledge."

Big Brother was the first to find the passage and read: "My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver."

"Solomon is here speaking of the value of knowledge, and saying it is better than gold," exclaimed mother. "Who is really with Proverbs 3?"

"I am," answered Robbie. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold."

"I made the key yellow because wisdom is spoken of in terms of gold," said Mother. "Now there are two kinds of wisdom. The useful kind and the useless kind—and we want to see what God's Word says about it. Howard, find I Corinthians 3:18, 19, and Robbie, find James 3:17."

"Where is Corinthians, I can't find it?" said Howard.

"In the New Testament. Look! Mother, he's hunting in the Old," laughed Big Brother.

"That is one reason I wanted you all to hunt the verses," said Mother, "you need to know your Bibles."

Howard soon found his verses and read, "Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."

Robbie continued with, "But the wisdom that is from above, is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy."

"You have to belong to Jesus to have that kind of knowledge," remarked Big Brother. "I'm sorry I made fun of Howard for not finding his verse," he continued haltingly.

"Yes, even ignorant people can have that kind of wisdom if they are Christ's," said Mother. "Ruthie, here is Acts 4:13, you may read it to prove it."

Ruthie read, "Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus."

"Big Brother, after you have mastered your lesson in algebra at school, what do you do?" asked Mother.

"Put it on the board, and explain it to the others," he replied.

"That is just what true knowledge of Christ causes us to do. Tell others of Him. We are living epistles to be read of all men."

"Do you remember the woman who came and asked me how we liked corn flour?"

"Yes," said the children.

"Why did she ask me?"

"'Cause you had used it and knew about it," said Ruthie.

"Read Revelation 12:11," said Big Brother read, "and they overcame him (Satan) by the Blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony."

"That is far enough," said Mother. "I gave a testimony about corn flour. I told what I knew. That is giving testimony, to tell others what we know. When we belong to the Lord, then we will love to tell others of His power to save. How did Jesus prove His love for us?"

"He died for us," came the answer.—The S. S. Times.

Wisdom from a Watermelon

William Jennings Bryan

I was passing through Columbus, Ohio, some years ago, and stopped to eat in the restaurant in the depot. My attention was called to a slice of watermelon, and I ordered it and ate it. I was so pleased with the melon that I asked the waiter to dry some of the seeds that I might take them home and plant them in my garden. That night a thought came into my mind—I would use that watermelon as an illustration. So, the next morning when I reached Chicago, I had enough seeds weighed to find out that it would take about five thousand watermelon seeds to weigh a pound, and I estimated that the watermelon weighed about forty pounds. Then I applied mathematics to the watermelon.

"A few weeks before, someone, I know not who, had planted a little seed in the ground. Under the influence of sunshine and shower that little watermelon seed had taken off its coat and gone to work; it had gathered from somewhere two hundred thousand times its own weight, and forced that enormous weight through a tiny stem and built a watermelon. On the outside it had put a covering of green, within that a rind of white, and within that a core of red and then it had scattered through the red, little seeds, each one capable of doing the same work over again. What architect drew the plan? Where did that little watermelon seed get its tremendous strength? Where did it find its flavoring extract and its coloring matter? How did it build a watermelon?"

"Until you can explain a watermelon, do not be too sure that you can set limits to the power of the Almighty, or tell just what He would do, or how He would do it. The most learned man in the world cannot explain a watermelon, but the most ignorant man can eat a watermelon and enjoy it. God had given us the things that we need, and He has given us the knowledge necessary to use those things, and the truth that He has revealed to us is infinitely more important for our welfare than it would be to understand the mysteries that He has seen fit to conceal from us.

"So with Christianity; if you ask me if I can understand everything in the Bible, I answer; No; I understand some things that I did not understand ten years ago, and if I live ten years longer, I hope some things will be clear that are now obscure. But there is something more important than understanding everything in the Bible, it is this: If we will only try to live up to the things that we do understand, we will not have time to worry about the things that we do not understand."

Note, one thing is perfectly clear and may be tested by anyone. "But as many as received Him (Jesus Christ), to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His Name" (John 1:12).

Here is another clear statement:

"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36).

"O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him" (Ps. 34:8).—Selected.

CONSECRATED LIPS

"The sweetness of the lips"
(Prov. 16:21)

Spiritual conditions are inseparably connected with our physical life. The flow of the Divine life-currents may be interrupted by a little clot of blood; the vital current may leak out through a very trifling wound.

If you want to keep the health of Christ, keep from all spiritual sores, from all heart wounds and irritations. One hour of fretting will wear out more vitality than a week of work; and one minute of malignity, or ranking jealousy or envy will hurt more than a drink of poison. Sweetness of spirit and joyousness of heart are essential to full health. Quietness of spirit, gentleness, tranquility, and the peace of God that passes all understanding, are worth all the sleeping draughts in the country.

We do not wonder that some people have poor health when we hear them talk for half an hour. They have enough dislikes, prejudices, doubts and fears to exhaust the strongest constitution.

Beloved, if you would keep God's life and strength, keep out the things that kill it; keep it for Him, and for His work, and you will find enough and to spare.—A. B. Simpson.

The Faults of Others

Charity does not imply ignorance relative to the faults of others, but it covers them and magnifies the good. We should remember what God does momentarily for us, including also the most unworthy creatures. Contempt for others is generally accompanied by harshness and arrogance, which can only emanate from a heart at enmity with the Cross of Christ. Should we be less forgiving toward others when they are weak? Fenelon queries: "You, who complain so much of what others make you suffer, do you think that you cause"

Jules Verne was the only convert to the by your neighbor's defects, do you imagine that you are perfect?" How astonished you would be, if all those whom you cavil at, should begin to make all possible comments about you. Does it never occur to you that your God will hold you responsible for your attitude toward your brother, as implied in the words of Jesus: "Judge not, and ye shall not be judged; condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned; forgive and ye shall be forgiven" (Luke 6: 37). "Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy" (Matt. 5:7).

A Lost Chord

Seated one day at the organ,
I was weary and ill at ease,
And my fingers wandered idly
Over the noisy keys.

I do not know what I was playing,
Or what I was dreaming then;
But I struck one chord of music
Like the sound of a great Amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight
Like the close of an angel's psalm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit
With a touch of infinite calm.

It quieted pain and sorrow,
Like love overcoming strife.
It seemed the harmonious echo
From our discordant life.

It linked all preplexed meanings
Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence,
As if it were loath to cease.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine,
That came from the soul of the organ
And entered into mine.

It may be that Death's bright angel
Will speak in that chord again,
It may be that only in heaven
I shall hear that grand Amen.

"The Task of the League in Training for True Worship"

Worship, as defined by Webster is: "Courtesy or reverence paid to merit or worth; respect; especially reverence or adoration paid to God."

The League as the training service of the church plays an important part in training for true worship. However, before one can be trained for true worship, he must learn to whom true worship must be paid. Let us look at Matthew 4:10, "Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence Satan; for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." In Revelation 19:10 we learn the testimony of Jesus—"Worship God." Now let us look at Psalm 99:5, "Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool: for he is holy."

After learning to whom true worship must be paid, we must learn that the house of the Lord (the church) is the true place to worship and that it must be entered with reverence. Many young people seem to think the church is no more than any other building and that they may act there just as do any other place. Young people need to respect and reverence the house of the Lord in order to develop a true spirit of worship. Psalm 5:7, "But as for me, I will come into thy house in the multitude of thy mercy and in thy fear will I worship toward thy holy temple."

In the League, we are now training people from the youngest ages of learning to the ages of full maturity. Beginning with the Story Hour League, we can begin training our children for true worship. Here are a few things with which to begin:

- (1) Teach them that they are worshipping a true and living God.
- (2) That the church is the house of the Lord and that they are to reverence above all places.
- (3) That they must take part in the worship services of the church. Psalm 100. "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing. Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that made us, and not we ourselves; he is his people, and the sheep of his pasture. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and bless his name. For the Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations."

By beginning with this plastic stage of life, we are able to lay the foundation which, to a large extent, will determine how they will worship in later life. We need to train and teach our youth respect for things in the church. Song books, Bibles, pews, furniture and instruments of the church must be respected and taken care of. Nothing of any kind must be taken into the church that will detract from true worship. The sticking of chewing gum on the benches is a terrible thing which young people, as well as older ones do. The strowing of paper in the church is a thing that many people seem to do rather than disposing of it so as to keep from littering the church. Many children seem to think the church hymn books are things with which to play. We notice many things, writing in song books as well as many other kinds of marring marks.

Many young people, as well as older ones, have a bad habit of placing their feet on the church pews and other furniture. Many parents stand their children on nice church pews, and this, as well as putting feet on the pews, mars them and causes them to be less beautiful. Discipline which proposes to prohibit this type of practice among youth and adults will stimulate a true spirit of worship.

In many church auditoriums, there are various types of denominational placards, as well as those of other types, advertising different phases of church work. The auditorium of worship should never be used for this type of thing as it detracts from the worship service. The vestibule is the proper place to have these.

Adding also to the marring of the beauty of the house of worship is that people heedlessly and thoughtlessly come in the auditorium without taking care to wipe their feet on mats provided for such, thus marring the beauty of the floors and carpets. These things mentioned are things which Leaguers should be taught to avoid, and in turn, the Leaguers instructed in these things so as to produce a better atmosphere for true worship.

Giving in the League is training to worship the Lord with the means which He has given unto us—not by given or stated amounts, but by any amount which one may wish to give. Also in the League, singing in the house of the Lord should be that which is conducive to true worship. Talking while others are speaking is a big hindrance in the church, and through the League we train our youth to avoid such things.

The things mentioned being given to those of the plastic stage of life, will be continued through the Junior League, in which age-group more young people are reached and brought to Christ than at any other stage in life. After we leave the Junior group, we come into the most difficult age-group with which to deal—the Intermediate. However, if the Leaguers through the years until this age have been trained for true worship, they will be more susceptible to better and more advanced training. Then we leave the Intermediate age-group and come to the group upon which the church will, to a large extent, look for examples. The steps of training for true worship from the youngest of Leaguers up through the Intermediates, will thus enable those of the Senior group to go forth in true worship of the Lord as well as making useful workers of the church for tomorrow.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

Sinning Saints

I heard a preacher speak of the "Sin of Saints," and he said, "The best of believers commit sin." While on the other hand, I heard a preacher say over the air in his weekly broadcast, and I quote: "There is no such thing as a sinning Christian." Then later he said, "I'm living above sin, I don't commit any sin."

Well, perhaps both of these men were sincere in their statements, but I think that it all depends on what we call sin. What one man calls sin another will say, "That is no sin to me." Man wants to be his own judge.

I have known some who say, "I do not commit any sin;" and I have heard them say things about some one that I consider to be sin, at least it would have been sin to me. There are many people who run their tongues spreading false rumors. In other words, they spend their judgment on some one whom they dislike. But this is my thoughts, so let me go back to the man who said, "All believers sin."

This man says, "to eat too much is sin, or to let your eyes gaze upon that which is of a worldly nature." This man, when passing a baseball game, or a foot ball game, would not turn his head to see the players in action. He says, "It is of the flesh, it belongs to the carnal mind, and the carnal mind is not subject to God." I know a man who would close his eyes before he would see the action. He argued: "Shun the very appearance of evil," as taught by the Lord and the holy apostles. It is sin to speak falsely of any one. It is a sin for a man "to look upon a woman to lust after her." Christ says that he has committed adultery in his heart. I am afraid that there are a large number of mighty good people—good in their own sight—who have committed heart adultery.

I actually knew a man who argued that he was "living above sin." This man broke up a home and took the wife of another man, but it was all right with that preacher, because they were both God's children, they thought.

Thousands, define sin to suit their own minds. But God says, "There is a way that seemeth right to man, but the end thereof is the way of death." It is not what you, or I might say that is sin, but what God says that will stand. One man says, "It is no harm to take a drink of alcoholic beverages." But God says, "Look not upon the wine when it is red." Not even look, but some good-for-nothing church members will guzzle it down, not only wine, but hard liquor and say it is all right. But God will see you in the judgment and you will be judged by His word, and not by your measure.

I met a preacher who said in the pulpit, "I've not sinned in fourteen years." But when I went to his community, I could not find any of the people who would believe it. They knew the tree by the fruit. The fruit is as far as we can go. What we see we know. I cannot believe what everybody says.

I do believe that no born again child of God will wilfully sin. I believe that every true child of God disdains sin. We hate sin. We hate the devil, the author of sin. I hate to hear a person say that he is living above sin, when actually he cannot get credit at a grocery store where he is known.

The Sin of Omission

I hardly think that there is a man living who has done everything that might have been done for the salvation of lost souls and for the on-going of the church. Thousands and thousands have given a nickle to the cause of Christ, when they could have given a dollar, and then lie by saying, "That's the best I can do." Ananias was a professor of the Christian faith, but lied to the Holy Ghost, and "kept back part of the price," which cost him his life. Brother, you better be careful how you spend your money, or the money that God has made it possible for you to put in your pocket. You better give God the part that He calls for and not lie about it. The man that buried his talent, got in trouble along with the "teeth gnashers." God has plainly told us to do things, which if we leave off and refuse to do, we are sinners by omission. Thus we are obedient to God's command. "Therefore, thou oughtest to have put my money to usury, that I might have received my own." It is a sad thing to refuse to obey God. Sin is sin whether it is by commission or omission.

Have you visited every sick person that you ought to have visited? Did you ever say, "Sorry, friend, but I just don't have the time." If you denied when you could have accommodated the needy, you sinned according to God's word. Did you ever tell a lie about your money? And then sing, "Oh, How I Love Jesus." When some brother asked you for money to help paint the church, or to make a payment on the church debt, did you say, "Sorry, but I don't have it to give," when you did have it. You have been robbing God since the day you joined the church. If you are guilty of any of these things, don't come around me, testifying to your goodness. You have to prove your life by doing. Did you ever stay away from the prayer meeting or the regular worship when you could have gone, and then offer a poor excuse as an alibi? What are you going to do about it when you stand face to face with God? No getting by when we meet God face to face. He knows all about us. It is a sin for a professing Christian to stay away from worship. Paul says, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together, as the manner of some is." Are you guilty? It is a sin of omission. What did you say when the preacher said, "I missed you this morning from the school and service." Then, what did you say, when the preacher found out that you had not told the truth? One of your children or your wife let it slip out as to your whereabouts.

Lovers of Pleasure

Just a few Sunday nights ago, I passed a movie, and two or three "Drive-in theatres," and about all the parking space at each place was taken. Along the same highway I saw two churches where services were going on, and I drove slowly, and as the doors were open I saw plenty of vacant seats, and plenty of parking space on the church yard. Don't tell me that you love God and His church, when you leave the house of God and go to the movies. What would you do if Jesus should step over the battlement of heaven, ride down on a cloud, and sound the Trump of God? First place, you cannot convince me that you have ever been born again. You are not worth much to the church. I would not give five cents for your religion. "No man can serve two Masters." We either love God or we are hypocrits when we say we are Christians. If the love of the world is in us the love of the Father is not in us. Let us see what God says in John: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him" (1 John 2:15); and again, "They are of the world: therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them" (1 John 4:5). Such people are ". . . lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away" (2 Tim. 3:4, 5).

THE LEAGUER

MARTHA ANN'S SONG

For the past several years our Leagues throughout the state and nation have been in need of a news paper or magazine of their very own. As time changed from year to year the need became more and more apparent. Before World War II our young people were getting strong enough in their organization to make such demands but during the days of the war their interest was lessened because of so many upsets in league groups and because of the war interest many of their activities were curtailed. Since the war many of our groups have failed to reorganize and for the need of a publication to encourage them through the medium of the printed page they have not as yet regained what they lost.

Now, the present officers of the State League Convention and certain other interested parties are determined that such a news paper shall be made available. It was during the business session of our last Convention held at Kenly that the green light was given. We are most happy to announce to you through the pages of the Baptist paper that the first edition of our young people's paper is scheduled to be distributed on or around the 20th of September.

In a recent executive board meeting of the convention held at the home of your writer he was duly elected acting editor of the paper. I immediately set out to make preparations for the first issue. I am glad to announce that our paper will be our very own and will be printed here in the city of Durham. It will not cater to syndicated materials but will insist that all materials shall be prepared by our own young people and adults who are interested in making such contributions for publication. It is our desire to place into the hands of every Free Will Baptist church in the state copies of our publication will be determined by the channeling of the right kind of materials and their use in our churches, augmented by your constant support in prayers, introducing it to your friends and the enthusiasm by which it is received and used.

The cost of the publication is high due to the fact that your editor refuses to have anything "cheap" about it. The paper will be good book stock paper. The print will be No. 8 leaded type and will be set up in four-column standard newspaper print. This will give the reader the advantage of non-gloss, non-crowded, highly legible print, the kind every one may enjoy reading. To begin with, the paper will be only four pages 9 by 12 inches. The name of the paper is The Leaguer and will carry picture cuts of our young people, our League emblem and many other familiar markings of the Free Will Baptist Leaguers.

The publication will carry all news items worthy of publication, editorials, snappy sermonettes, illustrations, games, quizzes, helpful "The-Way-to-Do-It" ideas for socials, business meetings, training courses, pertinent "sayings and expressions" of known Free Will Baptists and others. The paper will also be most happy to print programs, announce outings, assemblies, Bible schools, mission drives and all things which will be needed for the general good of our cause.

Now, what do you say we get down to business? We are offering this kind of consideration to all League or young people's groups who wish to give us a punch in the forward direction. The first 50 Leagues or Sunday School groups sending in ten subscriptions at one dollar each will be given the distinction of being a Charter Member Instigator of our publication. These fifty names will appear in our publication with high honors. Not only this, but should our publication grow with the strength and power we anticipate, a bronze plaque will be made up and will grace the wall of our office or be placed in the most conspicuous place possible to give them the place of honor they deserve. Will you take this up immediately with your league group and insist that ten or more turn in their dollar immediately and forward it to The Leaguer, Post Office Box 1265, Durham, N. C.? I shall be counting the hours when Martha Ann was out in the back yard hanging up the weekly wash of the Brown family. As she toiled she sang, loud and clear, a merry little song.

The grocer's boy, trudging along in the dusty street, heard it, and whistled the same tune, forgetting that the basket he held was almost too heavy for him to carry.

Mrs. Brown heard it, too. Poor Mrs. Brown! She was always at work in her stuffy little house, and always tired, but the song flew in through the open window, and she smiled at it, because it was a careless, happy little thing, and before she knew it, she was singing, as she moved about, something she had not done for many a weary day.

Baby Mary heard the rippling sounds. Her little white teeth were pushing their way up into sight. They hurt the little maid, those tiny hidden teeth, so that she fretted uneasily and cried to be comforted. But the merry song laughed at her, and she listened and cooed it and dimpled with delight and reached out her pretty arms as if she would catch and hold it fast.

A little girl who had been a shut-in for several weeks, and was down-hearted and blue because she could not go about, also heard the song, and unconsciously hummed the merry tune.

Just a little song, such as any one might sing, quickly sung and quickly sinking into silence, but what a pleasant mission it had in the world!

It is worth while to be a Martha Ann; to drop a little oil of gladness on the grinding wheels of life, to make them run a little easier and a little smoother. Even you and I can do that.—Selected.

these subscriptions shall come rolling in. Let us make this the very best Christian News Paper ever to be printed!

Yours in Christ's name,
R. P. Harris, Acting Editor

Echoes of the Third Nationwide F. W. B. League Conference

HEY are still showing pictures and talking about the Third Nationwide F. W. B. L. Conference all over the country, so here we let our readers take a look and a listen to some of the things that are being talked about. It was a great meeting. Did you go? Aren't you glad! Don't you wish you had?

Benito Rodriguez, Cuban convert, and student at our Bible College last year, was a popular speaker at the Conference.

Miss Laura Belle Barnard, home on furlough from the India mission field, thrills a group of young people with her experiences. This is typical of many groups that gathered around her at the Nationwide F. W. B. L. Conference.

Rev. Henry Melvin, Chairman of the National F. W. B. L. Board, speaks at a luncheon attended by national, state and district leaders, only a few of whom are seen in this picture.

WE MUST PRAY MORE

YOUNG man had been called to the foreign field. He had not been in the habit of praying, but he knew one thing, how to prevail with God; and, going one day to a friend, said, "I don't see how God could use me on the field. I have no special talent."

His friend said, "Brother, God wants men on the field who can pray. There are too many preachers and too few pray-ers." He went.

In his own room in the early dawn a voice was heard weeping and pleading for souls. All through the day the shut door and the hush that prevailed made you feel like walking softly, for a soul was wrestling with God.

To his home hungry souls would flock, drawn by some irresistible power. In the morning hours some would call and say: "I have gone by your house so many times and have longed to come in. Will you tell me how I can be saved?"

The prayer power has never been tried to its full capacity in any church. If we want to see mighty wonders of Divine grace and power wrought, in place of weakness, failure and disappointment, let the whole church answer God's challenge: "Call unto Me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not" (Jer. 33:3).—J. Hudson Taylor.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE BAPTIST

As has been true heretofore, the fall of the year is a good time for the renewal of subscriptions to the Baptist paper. It is also a very good time for our old solicitors to get busy in the churches and secure large numbers of new subscriptions. Each church should have some active member to be responsible for soliciting the church membership for subscriptions.

Remember, each solicitor has the privilege to give to some worthy person the Baptist for one year free when she has secured ten annual subscriptions from her solicitations. This offer holds true for each group of ten subscriptions which a solicitor gets. Last year, for example, one person was able to give five free subscriptions for one year to persons who wanted the paper but were not able to pay for it. In this way those persons were greatly benefitted by having the Baptist paper in their homes to read.

A great many children in the church homes enjoy reading the Boys and Girls' story each week on the Children's Storyland page. More children could have this privilege in their homes if their parents would subscribe to the church paper. It will be a good incentive to get them to read good religious stories each week if those parents would take their church paper, and request their children to get acquainted with the Story page of the Baptist paper.

BETTER EQUIPMENT TO DO BETTER WORK

Within recent months the Business management of the Press has been able to do much better work in printing the covers for the Sunday School and the League literature. This has been brought about by the purchase of better equipment and new machinery. The results are gratifying, and many compliments have been made in the interest of better workmanship now shown for these publications. As time passes, further improvements are expected to be made in other phases of the work here at the Press.

With the new press machine having been installed a few months ago the business manager is in position to do more work in the way of printing for the denomination. It is now arranged so that two press machines run at the same time, in case of increased business, and a greater output of printed matter is possible as time passes. We can print the various reports and minutes of the church organizations, and other matters for publication of the denomination. The Press at Ayden is always ready to render services for the church people whenever possible to do so.

THE NEW HONOR ROLL

The new Baptist Subscription Honor Roll will begin September the first, as has been the custom in previous years. We are urging that more of the friends of the Baptist paper get on the Roll this coming year than got on during the closing year. From a search of the records, it is shown that a goodly number had three and four subscriptions to their credit, but did not get on the honor roll because it takes five to be placed on the roll. We are hoping that this will not be the case during the new year, for we want each solicitor to be able to get as many as five, at least, so that the name of every solicitor can be entered on the roll.

It takes a little work to do this, but it will be well worth it because the more subscriptions you get the more homes will be receiving the Baptist paper week after week. And more people will be reading the church paper each week. We are asking each one to put forth more effort, and never stop short of getting at least five subscriptions for the paper.

HONEST CHURCH MEMBERS

What is really embraced in the term, "Honest Church Members"? How should a church member live so as to be classed as an honest member?

In the first place, for a church member to be honest and fair with God he is to be loyal to the cause of Christ, and obedient to the commandments regarding the way a Christian should walk. To be honest with God, he is to be a regular church attendant, performing the duties which becomes a good church member. He is to give of his means to the cause of the gospel, and do what he can to build up the cause of Christ in his church and community. On the other hand, the church member who is negligent of his Christian duties, who stays away from church without valid excuse, and who puts other things first in his life is a dishonest person.

The honest church member will treat his neighbors right. He will be a good friend to those with whom he deals. He will be just and upright in his home among the members of his family. The honest Christian will seek to lead the members of his family in the Christian way of life, and to set before them Christian principles which will influence them for their own good. Such a Christian will seek to improve the conditions of his church and community by exercising a good influence among the people. The honest member will not seek to take advantage of anyone in order to obtain personal gain or prestige. He will be trustworthy at all times.

CHRISTIAN GRACIOUSNESS

Ilion T. Jones

In II Corinthians 8:7 Paul writes, "As you excel in everything . . . see that ye excel in this gracious work also." The work to which he is referring is making a contribution to the fund for the relief of the poor Christians in Judea. Christians are supposed to "give graciously," not "grudgingly or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver." In the original language the word "gracious" is the same as the word "grace," which means literally that which bestows or occasions pleasure.

Live Graciously

Since God has so generously and graciously provided us with life and everything that nourishes and redeems life, we should live always under the consciousness and compulsion of a great thanksgiving, a great obligation, a great dedication. Dr. George Washington Carver used to sign all his letters, "Your humble servant in God." In one letter to a friend he said, "I am taking better care of myself than I have. I realize that God has work for me to do and consequently I must be careful of my health."

Work Graciously

Think of doing our work graciously. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said he was sustained by "the larger perspective of cosmic truth which but glorifies dull details and uplifts and sustains weary years of toil." One of his favorite quotations were these lines from George Herbert's poem,

All may of thee partake;
Nothing so small may be
But draws, when acted for thy sake,
Greatness and worth from thee.

What kind of lawyers and judges and policemen and politicians would we have if they lived their lives under the domination of "grace"? George Elliot made the builder of violins, Stradivari, say that if he slacked in his work he would rob God. What kind of manufacturers and craftsmen would we have if they also did their work under the influence of "grace"?

Be Appreciative

Again, think of maintaining human relations graciously. "Manners," said Emerson, "aim to facilitate life, to get rid of impediments . . . they are a happy way of doing things." The best manners should come from Christians who have been touched by the graciousness of Christ.

Some years ago on New Year's day an accountant in a certain office in New York committed suicide. Everything was found in order. He left a brief note on his employer's desk in which he said, "In twenty years I have never had a word of encouragement. I'm fed up." Encouragement is as essential to life as bread and water. Dr. Henry H. Goddard devised an instrument to measure fatigue in his Vineland Training School for boys in New Jersey. When they found fault with a boy his energy curve would go down. When they praised him his energy curve would soar. Praise is actually a physical tonic. What if we were gracious in all our relations with our fellows?

Be Good Graciously

Still again, think of being good graciously. We were made, so Peter tells us, to be a "royal race," "a holy people." God equipped us with reasons, consciences, moral judgments, and wills in order that we might be good. But he wants us to be good, not "grudgingly or of necessity," but joyously and graciously. "Hast thou virtue? Acquire also the graces and beauties of virtue," enjoined Benjamin Franklin. It is not sufficient to be good: we must be good good-manneredly. What kind of a world we would have if people were good spontaneously, from the heart, because they themselves were touched by the graciousness of God!

Do Good Graciously

Finally, think of rendering service graciously. The Macedonians gave

JESUS NAILED TO THE CROSS

The manner of nailing the criminal, or the victim, to the cross was laid upon the ground, and the one to be crucified was stretched upon it and spiked there. The hole for the cross was previously dug. Then the cross was carried to the hole and dropped into it. This, of course, drew every nerve and muscle into tension and produced the greatest imaginable suffering.

A teacher of a class of working girls showed them a steel engraving of a famous picture of the crucifixion. Three crosses were upon the ground. Soldiers were struggling with the two thieves, and forcing them down upon the crosses, while others drove the spikes. Upon the middle cross Christ lay down. Quietly, He extended the quivering palms to receive the spikes. As the young women looked at the picture, one cried, "Oh, was Christ nailed there alive! I thought that He was dead before He was nailed there." The teacher replied, "Yes, He was nailed there alive for you." The girl, weeping, said, "Then I am His forever."—Alliance Weekly.

Out duck hunting with a friend, Irvin Cobb was so anxious to shoot that he aimed his shotgun at the ducks the moment they settled on the water. "Irvin," protested his friend, "you mustn't shoot now. Wait until the ducks are on the rise, and give them a chance."

Cobb turned patiently toward the other hunter: "When I shoot, the ducks always have a chance."—John Newton Baker.

graciously. They were extremely poor. They were severely afflicted. But Paul said of them: "in a severe test of affliction their abundance of joy and their extreme poverty overflowed in a wealth of liberality." (Moffot's Translation). Lowell once spoke of "a graciousness in giving which doth make the smallest gift greatest." Any service for God, however small, is really large if rendered graciously.

If we are filled with "divine passion"—the passion which gave us the grace of Christ, we will indeed excel in every "gracious work."

:- It Is Time for Christian Honesty :-

Joseph T. Lawson

Christian honesty is one of the greatest needs of the present age. In the midst of sinfulness, graft, theft, slander and crookedness, Christian people should set an example of honesty.

Christ said, "But that on the good ground are they, which in an honest . . . heart have heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience" (Luke 8:15). This is Christ's estimate concerning those who hear the Word of God and do it.

Honesty is essential for all classes of people. "Honesty is the best policy." It is essential in business, in service, in conversation, and in governmental positions. "Provide things honest in the sight of all men." The tale-bearer is seldom honest; he hears things in a distorted manner and reports them still more exaggeratedly. "Thou shalt not be a talebearer in the midst of thy people." "Do that which is honest" (II Cor. 13:7).

Things done in the sight of men may seem honest, but is it honest in principle before God? To contract bills which one does not intend to pay is dishonesty of heart and of action. Businessmen appreciate honest dealings with all customers. Honesty in intentions, thoughts, words, usually precedes honesty of action. "Let us walk honestly as in the day" (Rom. 13:13), "that ye may walk honestly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing" (I Thess. 4:12). "In all things willing to live honestly" (Heb. 13:18), "that ye may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty" (I Tim. 2:2).

Some people are not honest before a searching sermon; they rebel against the truth intended to correct their errors.

Some people expect conversion without repentance, peace without cleansing from sin, forgiveness without confession of sin, Christianity without Christ, saving faith without conversion, feeling without faith, the love of God without punishment for sin, and power of God without His presence. They expect sonship without the Lordship of Christ, eternal glory without suffering for Christ here, righteousness without justice, and peace in heart without restitution for wrongs done!

A cowboy working for President Theodore Roosevelt, showed his boss some cattle he had taken. "You're fired!" roared Roosevelt. "Any man that will steal for me, will steal from me!"

To steal someone's good name is as dishonest as cattle rustling. Pray to God to make you always 100 per cent honest.

It is time to practice honesty. There should be honesty in daily life and business dealings. Leaders and members need to exercise honesty in dealing with one another. Servants of God need to be supported by His people. To smile sweetly, and to say, "God bless you, I enjoyed that sermon," and then go forth with another report is hypocrisy. To speak well of a person at one time, and ill at another time, is double-dealing. There needs to be honesty of interpretation of the Bible, in daily living, and in abstinence from that which is dishonest.

Dishonesty is expensive. Cost what it will, honesty pays! Honesty for Christ's sake is a good policy. An honest and cleansed heart, made so by God, is the foundation for Christian honesty. Destructive criticism may be overstating a truth, in writing, thus making it dishonest. Readers need to be honest in their acceptance of God's Word and in appropriating His truth.

A thief is one who takes something from another without consent, be that money, time, or merely little things. Twice in one week $5.00 too much was handed to me by bankers or other persons in such a way that when I returned it the correction was appreciated.

Honesty in paying debts builds up a credit rating and promotes confidence among all people. Let us pray to God for honesty. Let us practice honesty. God will reward honesty to the one who deals honestly. Many a man has attained positions of trust because it was learned that he could be trusted.

Some years ago, a Danish-American man sitting in the state-house at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, saved the people about $400,000,000 per year by stopping fraudulent schemes. They even sought to bribe him with large sums but his honesty and character were not for sale. Thank God for honesty, and may we all have more of it!

It is time for God's truth to go forth, for revival to come, for salvation to be manifested and for grace to be experienced! His truth will be our constant inspiration, His presence our power, His life our life, His holiness our shield, His purpose our purpose. Indeed, "It is time for Thee, O Lord, to work, for they have made void Thy law."

SOME years ago a favorite author published for the comfort of little children Little Pillows. How many of the Father's larger children are poor, weak, unwise, sick, and so tired that they need soft pillows! Our Bible is a storehouse of them. Let us number a few. We all remember how deftly our grandmothers numbered their pairs of pillow cases. In many a home is some beautiful relic of a more regular penmanship than may be found among even the excellent specimens of our modern school upright writing.

1. "I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the Lord sustained me" (Ps. 3:5). "I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep for Thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety" (Ps. 4:8).

2. "Return unto thy rest, O my soul" (Ps. 116:7). "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. 11:28). (How wide the bidding! "All"!)

3. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee" (Ps. 55:22). "Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you" (I Peter 5:7).

4. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble" (Ps. 46:1). (A help, a present help, a very present help.) "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne * * that we may * * find grace to help in time of need" (Heb. 4:16).

5. "The meek will He guide in judgment; and the meek will He teach His way" (Ps. 25:9). "I am meek and lowly in heart" (Matt. 11:29). (He was lowly in heart then—in His humiliation. He is lowly in heart now—in His incomparable glory. For He is "the same yesterday, and today, and forever.") Is not this knowledge a soft pillow?)

6. "Even to your old age I am He; and even to hoar hairs will I carry you: * * (yea,) I will carry, and will deliver" (Is. 46:4). "For this God is our God for ever and ever: He will be our guide even unto death" (Ps. 48:14). Blessed be God * * the God of all comfort" (II Cor. 1:3).

7. "And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy" (Is. 35:10). "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither * * pain" (Rev. 21:4).

I am glad Mark thought to write the simple item about Jesus sleeping on a boat pillow. He slept and rested just as we do.

"Let us labour therefore to enter into (God's) rest" (Heb. 4:11).—The World's Crisis.

Baptist Church Oldest in Village

The Baptist church, which was the first to have a building erected in Breckenridge, was organized April 10, 1878. It was started as a branch of the St. Louis church, under the direction of Rev. P. P. Farnham, who was the first pastor.

Nine members constituted the original membership of the church.

William Kipp was the leader of the first choir, which was composed of H. Gladwin, Cynthia Howd, Addie Comstock, Dr. C. S. Watson and wife, and Belle Watson. Ada Watson was the organist.

The church became an independent organization April 10, 1879, with a membership of 24. The present church edifice was erected in 1882 and was dedicated Feb. 20, 1883, with Rev. Shafelt of East Saginaw and Rev. H. C. Beals conducting the services.

For the past two years Rev. Everette D. Hellard has been pastoring in the Baptist church. He graduated from the Free Will Baptist college, Nashville, Tennessee, in 1948. He was born and raised in Tulsa, Oklahoma and is married and has a five-year-old daughter.

Last year, the church came into the Free Will Baptist organization, changing from First Baptist. This made the church a member of the Free Will Baptist Wolverine Association of Michigan and also a member of the National Free Will Baptist Association of the U. S.

Sunday School Board—John Corbett, Jim Briggs, and Mrs. Earl Dutcher.

The church has made recent plans to sell the present parsonage which is located on Third street, and erect a new home on the church property. Plans also call for re-decorating the exterior of the church and repair the steeple.

John Corbett is the church pianist and Rev. Hellard directs the choir which has ten members.

Until just recently the church did not have much organization and there were no officers in active positions. Today, the church officers are on the move and advancement is beginning to take place.

GOD ANSWERS

I wandered into quiet woods
Distressed that things went wrong.
My heart rose up to God in prayer,
And He filled it with song.

I felt His strong hand clasping mine
And as we talked it over
He led me gently by the hand
To fields dew-fresh with clover.

And suddenly the answer came
To the problem that distressed me.
A course of action opened up
To solve what had oppressed me.

New hope within my soul was born
When I felt Him so near me
I know that when I truly pray
God answers—for He hears me.

To be 70 years young is sometimes far more cheerful and hopeful than to be 40 years old.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

In My Heart

Lord Christ, I'm blind!
I cannot see
How Thou wilt work this out
For good to me.
But, Lord, by faith—
Though not my own—
I take Thee at Thy word,
Trust Christ alone.
He never fails!
He satisfies
As God and Lord and Friend!
And joy supplies,
Though dark the day,
And weary—I Can't understand just how,
Nor why;
Yet by Thy healing hand I know
That darkness will depart,
And I shall see as well as hear
Thy handwork in my heart!

For This I Pray

O God,
For great consistency of thought,
For steadfast aim that falters not,
For power to do the things I ought—
For this I pray.

Make me
To run the race courageously,
To falter not, nor fail to see
The path Thy hand hath set for me—
For this I pray.

Forgive
My sin—my inconsistency,
The pride which clothes my human frailty;
Create in me a real humility,
Dear Lord, I pray.

Give me
The faith to take Thee at Thy word,
To know that Thou, who seest each little bird,
Dost know the way where it to me seems blurred.
Guide me, I pray.

Help me
To cleanse and keep my soul from dross,
To count my righteousness but total loss,
To point another to Thy blessed Cross—
For this I pray.

My Subscription

My paper I do not want to miss,

For I read each line with care;

It helps me my worries to forget,

And to breathe a silent prayer.

If the people would heed the warning,

That's printed within its pages;

We could shout and sing to Christ our King

Throughout the eternal ages.

The "Notes and Quotes" are very plain,

So we all can understand;

Just what for us to do upon this earth,

That we may reach the Promised Land.

My subscription is a Birthday Gift,

And it fills my heart with cheer;

For it's not gone within a week,

But lasts throughout the year,

And may the Lord bless the giver,

And all who read our paper, too;

For I'm so thankful, dearest Lord,

That my subscription I can renew.

No Trespassing

Rev. James B. Orth

Very often as we pass through the country we see a sign "No Trespassing." Sometimes a farmer puts it up to keep hunters off his land. Often we see it in front of a flower bed in a city park to keep people who are thoughtless from destroying its beauty.

"Trespass" is a very interesting word. It means "to cross the line." When the farmer puts that sign "No Trespassing" on his fence he means that no one may cross the line of his farm.

There are several lines in life which carry this "No Trespassing" sign which will warn all who would be tempted to cross. First, there is the truth line. There was a good man long ago who said, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth." I am sure that there is not a father or mother who would not say the same thing. It is a great joy when you walk in truth. Sometimes boys and girls and men and women do not walk in truth. They step over the line. When a person steps over that line he is on dangerous ground and may find himself in serious trouble.

Second, there is the line of obedience. After the surrender of General Cornwallis at Yorktown in the Revolutionary War, a French officer was one day introduced to Mrs. Washington, the mother of the great American general. One of the first things the Frenchman said to her was, "I wish you would tell how to train a boy so that he will become a man like your son, General Washington." Mrs. Washington answered, "I taught him to obey." How often one sees no reason in obedience and yet is thankful later on that he did not cross that line.

Third, there is a line of purity. David once asked who was fit to come before the Lord, and this was his answer: "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart." None of us would think of going to church or Sunday School, with anything but clean hands. But there is something else that is very necessary. It is a heart that is pure, one in which evil thoughts are not allowed to set up housekeeping and take over our lives. If you lived in Texas and were to cross over into Mexico, some years ago, the moment you crossed that line you were in danger. In the same way when you cross the line of Truth, and Obedience, and Purity, you are trespassing. May God keep us on the right side of the line.—The Youth's Evangelist.

John Mark, Who Made Good

(Lesson for September 10)

LESSON: Acts 12:25; 13:4, 5, 13;
15:36-40

GOLDEN TEXT: Philippians 4:13.

1. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

1. Cottage prayer meetings may be as rich in blessings and results as gatherings of much larger proportions (Acts 12:12).

2. Service for the Lord may begin in a very humble way, but may lead to great results (vs. 25; 13:5).

3. It is cowardly for anyone whom the Lord has called to service to forsake it for any reason whatsoever (13:13).

4. Workers out of fellowship with God sometimes lead to division among the believers and other workers (15:37-40).

5. Satan sought to hinder the Lord's work by the separation of Barnabas and Paul, but the Lord knew how to bring blessing out of it (vss. 39, 40).

6. It is possible for the most zealous of Christian workers to have differences of opinion on vital matters (vss. 37, 38).

7. It is a blessing to go into the Lord's work with the approval and blessing of Christian brethren (vs. 40).

8. There should always be a fine spiritual relation between the one who is saved and the one who led him to Christ (I Peter 5:13).

9. By the grace of God it is possible for one who was a failure once to become profitable in the work of the Lord (II Timothy 4:11).

10. The account of John Mark is that of a man who started out nobly in the Lord's service, then turned his back upon it, and finally came back to it again. Someone has called his experience, "The Gospel of the second chance"—not a second chance for salvation but for service.—Selected.

11. The first passage of our larger lesson pertains to the night of Christ's betrayal. It tells us that after Christ's arrest a certain young man followed him who had only a linen cloth about his body. He was seized by some of Jesus' enemies, but escaped by leaving the linen cloth in their hands and fleeing in the darkness. This rather trivial incident is recorded in the Gospel of Mark alone. How did Mark learn about it and why did he tell it? There is now a very widespread belief among Biblical scholars that the young man was Mark himself, and that "here we have in a hidden corner of his Gospel his own signature." If that young man was Mark, then almost certainly it was at his mother's house that Jesus ate the Passover with his disciples that night. Then when they left the upper room, the curious youth got out of bed and in his nightrobe followed them to Gethsemane.—Arnold's Commentary.

12. After the initial successes and the blessing of God, the two preachers, Barnabas and Paul, determined to sail from Paphos to Perga in Pamphylia. When they arrived at Perga, it is recorded "John departed from them and returned to Jerusalem" (v. 13).

Many have been the conjectures as to why John Mark went back to his home. Some suggest homesickness; others, anxiety for his mother's safety; others suggest that there were home duties which called for his attention. There are those too who indicate that he wanted to rejoin Peter, who had won him to the Lord Jesus. Of course, there are others who suggest that the perils and rigors of the journey were too much for the young man.

There is also a suggestion that he turned back because he objected to the offer of salvation to the Gentiles on the condition of faith alone. One advocate of this view finds some corroboration of his opinion in the fact that in both Acts 13:5 and 13 he is called John. The name John is Jewish, Mark is Roman. While certain incidents which occurred on Cyprus and the determination to go on into Asia Minor and what happened there may also be used as corroborative material for such a view. Whatever the reason, John Mark did turn back. Thus his period of initial service was definitely cut short.—Moodly Monthly.

13. Go over the lesson material in our Advanced and Senior Quarterlies prayerfully.

14. No one has mentioned the fact that it was unnecessary for Paul and Barnabas to quarrel. They neglected to ask their Leader, the Holy Spirit, whether he wanted John Mark to go with them.

II. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED

"It's What's in You"

It is interesting to walk through a big shop and watch the workmen at their work. But it is even more interesting sometimes to listen to them talk.

"Can't do it, Bill; 'tain't in my line."

"I could do it if I had fittin' tools," says Bill, flinging his chisel upon the bench.

A passing workman, an eagle-eyed, shaggy-bearded old man, picks up the chisen and runs his thumb over the edge. "What yer trying to do?" he snaps.

"Mortise this piece. 'Fraid it's going to split."

"Gimme room. Git out of my light." And in five minutes the job is done, with Bill's derided chisel.

"Young man," says old Eagle Eyes, "it ain't what's in your tools that counts; it's what's in you."—Edward Leigh Peel.

Wholly Consecrated

General Booth lay dying. He had lived a great life. By his influence countless thousands "down," if not "out," had been made new again. A friend said to him, "Tell us, General, be fore you go, what has been the secret of your wonderful life?" The old veteran of "The Way" thought a moment, and then said, "If there is any secret it is in this, that Christ has had everything there is in me." Has He had everything in us? What a searching question in these perilous days!—Congregationalist.

Four Things God Wants You to Know

1. Your Need as God Sees It—

For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. Romans 3:23.

There is none righteous, no, not one; there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God.—Romans 3:10, 11.

The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it?—Jeremiah 17:9

We are all as unclean things, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags.—Isaiah 64:6.

All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own.—Isaiah 53:6.

Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of oGd.—John 3:3.

2. Your Own Helplessness

Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.—John 14:6.

Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.—Acts 4:12.

By the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.—Galatians 2:16.

For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all.—James 2:10.

There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.—Proverbs 14:12.

3. God's Provision for Your Need

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.—Isaiah 53:6.

Him (Jesus) who knew no sin he (God) made to be sin on our behalf; that we might become the righteousness of God in him.—II Corinthians 5:21 (R. V.)

For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God.—I Peter 3:18.

4. God Provides Perfect Security—

The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished.—II Peter 2:9.

In that he himself hath suffered being tempted he is able to succour them that are tempted.—Hebrews 2:18.

He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.—Hebrews 7:25.

THEREFORE

Repent—

Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.—Luke 13:3.

Believe—

Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.—Acts 16:31.

Confess Your Sins to God—

For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.—I Timothy 2:5.

Confess Him Before Men—

If thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.—Romans 10:9, 10 (R. V.)

WEALTHY nobleman, suffering from depressing melancholy, went to consult a famous physician, who told the count he could discover no trace of disease.

"That is strange," said the nobleman, "this melancholy endangers my reason, so help me."

The doctor said, "What subject most occupies your thoughts?"

"I am a skeptic; I do not believe in the Bible; but one of its dogmas haunts me like a specter."

"What one?"

"The judgment. It is constantly before me. There is One on the great white throne whose look of justice terrifies me."

"What makes you fear?"

"My life is deemed irreproachable, but in the presence of such dazzling purity my best actions seem blank. That Eye searches my heart and I feel guilty and long to hide."

"Is this the cause of the melancholy?"

"I suppose so. This terrible vision is always before me."

"I have an old Book that contains the remedy for your disease," the doctor said, handing him a Bible opened at Isaiah 53. The count read aloud the first six verses, then stopping at "the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all," he asked, "What does that mean?"

"That the Son of God took the sinner's place, and bore his punishment. He became the willing victim, and God laid upon Him the iniquity of us all, and with His stripes we are healed."

"What! did the Son of God take my place and die for me?"

"Read on a little farther." Reading two more verses the count stopped and said: "Oh, what great love to sinners!"

Finishing the chapter he cried out, "I see it clearly—justified by another. Doctor, such salvation could never have originated in the heart of man. None but God could carry it out. What love in God—What love in His Son! What grandeur, what beauty! My load is gone." And the count went out of the doctor's office a saved man.—Christian Life.

At a particularly loud clap of thunder, a lady walking along a London street involuntarily and visibly startled. "It's all right, lidy," said a passing urchin. "It ain't 'tler, it's Gawd."—Janus in The Spectator.

A man is rich in proportion to the things he can afford to let alone.—Thoreau.

CHILDREN'S STORYLAND

How the Bird Came Back

Sannie Shelly Berry

Ann was a happy little schoolgirl. She liked her teacher and the boys and girls in her second grade room, and especially she liked Yellow Bill. All the children liked his merry songs, and everyone was his friend. I know that you have already guessed that Yellow Bill was a bird—yes, a bright yellow canary.

Each week some pupil was allowed to take Yellow Bill home to care for him over the week end. Only children who were good in school and diligent in their work were given the privilege of having Yellow Bill for a guest. The children considered it a great honor to take care of him, and every week Ann hoped she would be the one chosen. At last her turn came, and she happily carried the bird in its cage to her home. You may be sure he received the best of care. How Ann and all her family delighted to hear his merry trills!

On Saturday afternoon Ann wanted to play on the lawn, but she did not wish to be separated from her bird friend. So she decided to take him out with her. As she was carefully carrying the cage out to the lawn something happened—the bottom fell out of the cage! Now this was no fault of Ann's, but resulted from a defect in the cage which her father could easily fix. But I need not tell you that Yellow Bill was freed, and flew upward to the top of a tall tree. He rested there a bit, then flitted away out of sight. Poor Ann! She burst into tears and sobbed, "Oh, how can I ever go back to school without Yellow Bill? What will the teacher and the boys and girls think of me?"

All the family felt sorry for Ann, and tried to comfort her. All afternoon and evening they watched, but the bird did not return. That evening they put a tall stepladder on the lawn and put the open cage on top of it, hoping Yellow Bill might come back during the night. Sunday morning came, and Ann's first waking thoughts were on the bird. She hurriedly dressed and ran down to the lawn. She mounted the stepladder and looked into the cage, but Yellow Bill was not there.

That Sunday morning, as usual, Ann and her two older sisters and her father and mother went to church services where her father was superintendent of the Sunday School. It was here, as well as in her home, that Ann had learned about Jesus, the Friend of little children, and of how He went about doing good, healing and feeding people, and how He said of children, Let them "come unto Me." During Sunday School Ann decided to tell the Lord Jesus all about her troubles, and ask Him to send Yellow Bill back to his cage. Ann felt better after her little talk with Jesus.

Monday morning came, and again Ann hurried to the lawn where the cage was. Again she climbed the stepladder and looked into the cage—and Yellow Bill was there! Her prayer was answered. It was a happy and thankful family that gathered around the breakfast table that morning.

As Ann proudly carried her precious bird back to the schoolroom she thought she had never heard Yellow Bill sing more sweetly than he did that morning. And again the Lord Jesus' blessing rested on a little one who trusted in Him.—The S. S. Times.

Jesus, the Children's Friend

I love to think, though I am young,
My Saviour was a child;
That Jesus walked this earth along,
With feet all undefiled.

He kept His Father's word of truth,
As I am taught to do;
And while He walked the path of youth,
He walked in wisdom, too.

I love to think that He who spake
And made the blind to see,
And called the sleeping dead to wake,
Was once a child like me.

I know 'twas all for love of me
That He became a child,
And left the Heaven so fair to see,
And trod earth's pathway wild.

Then, Saviour, who was once a child,
A child may come to Thee;
And oh, in all Thy mercy mild,
Dear Saviour, come to me.

David Not to Build God's House

Truly, King David was a man who honored God! He did love the Lord, and above everything else wanted to please Him. One day as he sat in his house thinking, he knew he wanted to build a house for the Lord. A place where God's people could come and worship Him. David lived in a house made of cedar wood, and the house was beautiful. He wanted the Lord to have a house more beautiful. So he said to Nathan a Prophet of the Lord: "See now, I dwell in an house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains." He meant the people had to worship God in a tent. And this did not suit David at all. So Nathan the Prophet said to the king: "Go, do all that is in thine heart; for the Lord is with thee."

But that night God spoke to Nathan and told him to tell David that he could not build the house of the Lord, but his son would do it. David was a man of war; that is, he had been a brave soldier and had fought with the enemy, and had seen blood shed. God wanted David's son Solomon, to build His house. David could gather together the material to build the Temple, he could make the plans for it, but when he died, Solomon would see to it the Temple was built. David was glad that God would have a beautiful place where His people could come and worship Him. And we are sure David planned a very beautiful place.

When Nathan told David that God wanted his son to build His house, David sat before the Lord. This means, he was at rest, and was not a bit excited over the news Nathan told him. He prayed and told the Lord: "Who am I, O Lord God"? David knew he was unworthy to build God's House, but he was glad his son could do it. Whatever God said was all right with David. He loved the Lord enough to let God do all his planning for him. And this is the way we should all live. Let God had supreme rule, and we will be a happy people.—L. L. K.

KEEPING BY THE WORLD

"I am determined to keep by the world," said a giddy girl to an earnest servant of God, Robert Murray McCheyne, who was pleading with her to care for her soul's interests.

"Determined to keep by the world." Yes, this is the definite intention of many who listen to the Gospel's proclamation week after week. The world's pleasures of sin, the world's plans for success, the world's prospects of satisfaction. By all these they will keep. By all these they mean to abide as long as they can.

The condition of the world is therefore glossed over. The fact that the Son of God has been scorned and crucified is conveniently forgotten. The Scripture declarations that "the whole world lieth in wickedness" and that the friendship of the world is enmity with God" are explained away or unheeded. Thus deceived by the god of this world they drift on toward the certain judgment pronounced against it, little reckoning that keeping by the world now will involve their keeping by the world when wrath is poured out by a righteous God.

The preacher before-mentioned heard the girl's decision with sorrow of heart and penned the following lines:

She has chosen the world,
And its paltry crowd—
She has chosen the world,
And an endless shroud!
She has chosen the world,
With its misnamed pleasures;
She has chosen the world,
Before Heaven's own treasures.
She hath launched her boat
On life's giddy sea,
And her all is afloat
For eternity;
But Bethlehem's Star
Is not in her view;
And her aim is far
From the harbor true.

When the storm descends
From the angry sky,
Ah! where from the winds
Shall the vessel fly?

When stars are concealed,
And rudder gone,
And Heaven is sealed
To the wandering one!

The whirlpool opens
For the gallant prize
And, with all her hopes,
To the deep she hies!
But who may tell
Of the place of woe,
Where the wicked dwell—
Where the worldlings go?

For the human heart
Can ne'er conceive
What joys are the part
Of them who believe;
Nor can justly think
Of the cup of death
Which all must drink
Who dispise the faith.

Away, then—oh, fly
From the joys of earth!
Her smile is a lie—
There's a sting in her mirth.
Come, leave the dreams
Of this transient night,
And bask in the beams
Of an endless light.

TOMORROW

God is in every tomorrow;
Therefore I live for today,
Certain of finding at sunrise
Guidance and strength for the way;
Power for each moment of weakness,
Hope for each moment of pain,
Comfort for every sorrow,
Sunshine and joy after rain.

God is in every tomorrow,
Planning for you and me;
E'en in the dark will I follow—
Trust where my eyes cannot see:
Stilled by His promise of blessing,
Soothed by the touch of His hand,
Confident in His protection,
Knowing my life-path is planned.

God is in every tomorrow.
Life with its changes may come;
He is behind and before me,
While in the distance shines Home!
Home—where no thought of tomorrow
Ever can shadow my brow;
Home—in the presence of Jesus
Through all eternity—now.

Facing the Sun

Don't hunt for trouble,
 But look for success;
 You'll find what you look for—
 Don't look for distress.
 If your eyes see the shadow,
 Remember, I pray,
 That the sun is still shining—
 You're just in the way.

Don't grumble, don't bluster,
 Don't dream and don't shirk;
 Don't think of your worries,
 Just think of your work.

The worries will vanish
 The work will be done—
 No man sees his shadow
 If he faces the sun.
 —Optimist Magazine.

SERENITY

Be serene, with the sweet, strong, life-giving, joy-imparting serenity of sunshine—joyously happy.

Happy in the Lord, not necessarily in self or surroundings, yet serenity of spirit will bring mental, moral, physical forces in line, and our entire being will be kept in perfect peace.

Serenity is one of the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit, and by it through Him strength is imparted, quiet strength which is real power. Ye shall receive power, not pow-wow, as I formerly thought, but calmness and gentleness, quietness and assurance forever. Serenity is strength. Strong ones are serene; strong in the Lord. "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

Resolute and cool, determined and self-possessed and self-reliant, and ever trusting in the Lord, for in Jehovah is everlasting strength. Be serene at all times, under all circumstances.—Stephen Merritt.

Piney Grove Auxiliary Report

The Woman's Auxiliary of Piney Grove Church, Johnston County, held its monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Ora Davis, Friday evening at 8:00 p. m. The program began with song and prayer. The program topic was: "Advancing with Christ through Christian Education."

Following the program, the roll was called with ten members and four visitors present for this meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. After the business meeting closed the hostess served delicious refreshments which were enjoyed by all present.

We are asking the many friends to pray for us in our auxiliary work. Pray that we may go forward in the work of the Lord.

Mrs. Rachel Hinnant, Cor.-Secy.

Wouldn't It, Now!

Wouldn't this old world be better
 If the folks we meet would say,
 "I know something good about you,"
 And then treat us just that way?
 Wouldn't it be fine and dandy
 If each handclasp warm and true
 Carried with it this assurance,
 "I know something good about you"?

Wouldn't life be lots more happy
 If the good that's in us all
 Were the only things about us
 That folks bothered to recall?

Wouldn't life be lots more happy
 If we praised the good we see?
 For there's such a lot of goodness
 In the worst of you and me.

Wouldn't it be nice to practice
 That fine way of thinking, too?
 You know something good about me;
 I know something good about you.

Looking for the Good

Anybody can point out anybody else's bad qualities. If you want to distinguish yourself, go around pointing out good qualities.

Pick out the man whom every one dislikes. Select the one you feel could best be spared from your office, from your circle of acquaintances, from the community in which you live. Ask yourself if there is not something good about him.

Put him on a mental dissecting table. Cut him to pieces and see what is in him. Remember—you are looking for the good. Throw away the bad in him and forget it. Make a list of his good qualities. It will surprise you how many you can find.

The next time you hear him criticized tell people the things you know about him—the good things. You will at least be different and you will find that it does you more good than it does him.

How would you feel if you knew that people whenever they talked about you talked only about what was bad in you? You know it is there, plenty of it, but you would rather not have it talked about. It is much nicer to have only your good points discussed.

Give the other fellow the kind of a deal you would like to have yourself. If you can say nothing good about him, say nothing.

There are mighty few people in the world we cannot say something good about if we try. The trouble is, we do not try.

And yet, the more good you find in other people the more good other people find in you.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

Enoch

He walked with God, by faith, in solitude,
At early dawn or tranquil eventide;
In some lone leafy place he would abide
Till his whole being was with God imbued.

He walked with God amid the multitude;
No threats or smiles could his firm soul divide
From that beloved presence at his side Whose still small voice silenced earth's noises rude.

Boldly abroad to men he testified
How "the Lord cometh" and the judgment brings;
Gently at home he trained his "sons and daughters";
Till praying, a bright chariot he espied
Sent to translate him, as on angels' wings,
To walk with God beside heaven's living waters.

"Go Tell Circle" Entertained at Bingham Home

The "Go Tell Circle" of the Bethany community was entertained in the Bingham Home Thursday, August 17. Dot Bingham and Joy Langston served as hostesses.

The subject for the program was: "The Turning of the Youth Toward God." The scripture lesson was read by Miss Dot Bingham. It was taken from the book of Psalms. Miss Louan Welch led the group in prayer, which was followed by singing by the group, "Jesus Is Calling." Next a poem was rendered, entitled, "Have You Prayed?" by Miss Annie Ruth Lee. A reading was then given by Shirley Hancock, "In the Shadow of the Cross." The Bethany Trio, consisting of Misses Joan and Ruby Jean Cusco, and Jean and Louan Welch sang, "Wait upon the Lord." Another poem was given, entitled, "You Can," by Mrs. Elsie Vause.

Following the program the group was dismissed by Miss Winnie Lou Vause. The hostess served a delicious plate consisting of sandwiches, assorted cookies, mints and tea. The group closed the program after the business was over by repeating together the Lord's Prayer.

A Brief Message from M. A. Woodard

While sitting alone in my room of study, my mind wanders back over the past. I think of the many friends I have met, and the many churches which I have pastored. I think of the many couples that I have married, and the many funerals that I have conducted. It is wonderful that in all the battles that I have fought the Great God has been my buckler and shield.

The first church that I pastored was Hugo in Lenoir County, and the last was Smyrna in Beaufort County. I wish that I could go back and visit the churches that I have pastored. It would be a great pleasure to me, but I am now retired from active service on account of my health. The Lord is wonderfully blessing me, nevertheless, for I am up and able to be out. I conduct a funeral occasionally and marry couples for other ministers when called on.

I have served churches in Florida, Georgia, and North Carolina. When I was in active service, I never had to advertise for work, for more calls came than I could fill. Calls would always come to me more than I could fill without being sought. I do not wish to boast, but I attribute this to the life that I have lived. I have tried to live right, and to be honest with all mankind. I have defrauded no man. I owe no man anything, but love. I have lived in many places during my active life, and I am glad to say that I can go back to any place that I ever lived, look every man square in the face, so far as debts are concerned.

My advice to the young preachers who are now beginning their life's work as gospel ministers is to stay out of debt. Live within your income, because debts always hang heavy upon the soul of an honest man. Keep your life straight and clean, for there is no use of a preacher having crooked tales following him every place he lives.

My life's work is in the past, but I approach the future days as a good soldier of the Cross. I can say as did the Apostle Paul in his closing days: "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith," and I know that there is laid up for me a crown of glory. To those of my brethren and sisters in the Lord who chance to read this, pray for my soul. I need your prayers, for more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of; for the whole round world is bound by golden chains about the feet of God.

People often ask about my age, so if I should live until the sixth day of September, 1950, I shall witness my 73rd birthday. May God bless and keep you all is my prayer.

Do You Just Belong!

Are you an active member,
The kind that would be missed,
Or are you just contented
That your name is on the list?

Do you attend all the meetings,
And mingle with the crowd,
Or do you stay at home
And complain both long and loud?

Do you take an active part
To help the organization along,
Or are you satisfied to be
The kind to just belong?

Do you ever go to visit
A member who is sick,
Or leave the work for just a few
And then talk about the clique?

There's quite a program scheduled
That means success if done,
And it can be accomplished
With the help of everyone!

So attend the meetings regularly
And help with hand and heart
Don't be just another member,
But take an active part.

Think this over, Fellow Member,
Are we right or are we wrong?
Are you an active member,
Or do you just belong?

Request for Prayer

A letter from a soldier in Korea is requesting prayer. He says it's terrible over there and getting worse, to pray for him that prayer is the only thing any body can do now.

Christian people, where ever you are offer up a prayer for this terrible situation. The soldier in question is:

Sgt. Charlie Tripp, 6948342

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

They Cry "Peace"

"They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people, slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace" (Jer. 6:14).

This Scripture is given concerning the Jews, who have been a problem in the world. Yet, God has preserved the Jew. They have been persecuted in every land wherever they have gone, except Great Britain and the United States. But where the Jew has been persecuted, a curse has fallen on the persecutor. That is in keeping with God's promise to Abraham. "And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: . . ." (Gen. 12:3). One reason that the United States has been blessed so greatly is that it has furnished the Jew a home without cursing.

"Slightly Healed"

The UN, that organization of nations that was formed without seeking the advice of God; that organization that was ashamed to invoke the blessings of God-Almighty (out of respect for God-hating, Christ-rejecting Russia and her Communist buddies), has managed by the powers of man to "heal slightly the hurt" of Israel—the Jews—and given them part of the land that God gave to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. For months, this organization formed by man without God, has been saying "there is no danger of war," that is, some of the head leaders of our government have said, "we think there is no immediate danger." But all the while the danger line was seen by those who have discernment, and very likely those in authority saw it, and cried falsely, or otherwise they were blind leaders. This saying, "Peace, peace," actually went on until almost the very day that our boys were ordered to the shooting war yonder in Korea. Thus the "cold war" ceased and the "hot war" broke out in reality, and now we stand at the gate way to the bloodiest struggle that the world has ever known. The "crisis is on," as I see it, and I am not alone in seeing this destruction. The war is gathering momentum daily, nations are being drawn in, and finally it will involve the whole earth.

Russia wants to rule the world. Communism is a deadly foe to the Christian faith and to all democracies, and she is ready to strike as soon as she sees an opportunity to get her selfish desires accomplished. Major Alexander P. de Seversky says: "The present challenge to peace is far more serious than any in the past. Should war come, America, its cities, industries, communications and population, will be the main target. It will be a relentless struggle between two worlds, two ideologies, with absolute victory as the only conceivable goal. And this time we shall face a foe with total resources and man power greater than our own."—Taken from Readers Digest, September, 1950.

But in the face of the present conflict and the danger of the two worlds coming hand to hand in the death struggle there are those who are taking it lightly and saying, "Peace, peace," when there is no peace.

Too Many Like Nero

It is said that "Nero fiddled while Rome burned." Millions of people are going crazy after the "pleasure god," while the United States and the world are being set on "fire of hell" to destroy the human family. While our boys are giving their lives, at the command of our Government yonder in Korea, even the brothers and sisters, mothers and fathers, of those boys are going wild after base-ball—Sunday Base Ball—and leaving off the Worship of God. They are going to the movies, the dog-racing, horse racing, and every conceivable habit of sin and recklessness. They are spending and drinking alcoholic beverages, and dancing even in so-called church festivals, benefit shows, etc., and taking the matter of war in Korea as a light thing.

If John the Baptist were to come back on the scene today I am pretty sure that when he looked at some of our so-called churches, he would say, "Oh generation of vipers." The writer of holy writ would say, "Ye eat and drink, and rise up to play." Just think of a church festival when they dance to the music of the devil.

The Great Need of the Hour

The great need of the hour is not more weapons of war and soldiers, and other service men, but more love for Christ and His word to be manifest in the lives of men on earth. Men have rejected Christ and lined up with the modernists, unbelievers, and false prophets, and from all appearance, we have a religion that is of the devil in many places, even in "high places."

God has said as recorded, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways: then will I hear from heaven, and forgive their sin, and will heal their land" (2 Chron. 7:14).

We are called "Christian America." But the call is false. America is not Christian except in name. Many in high authority, who should be Christian leaders, are known to be gamblers and drunkards and haters of others. Prayer from the mouth of such is an "abomination in the sight of God." Search the Scriptures and see if God has promised to hear a prayer of any man who "regards iniquity in his heart." Sin must be confessed unto God, not to man, but to God. Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh to the Father, but by me." If those who are called "Christians" would humble themselves, clean up their wickedness and beg God's pardon for their hypocrisy, in the name of the Lord Jesus, then all of Russia and her communist buddies in the rest of the world would not destroy our foundations. Gideon put the whole Midianite army to flight with his three hundred faithful soldiers. (See Judges, chapter 7.) David licked the giant Goliath with a single stone in a sling, because David went "In the name of the Lord." The name was a

"The Will of God Concerning You"

"Men's hearts (are) failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming to the earth." These are troublous days, economic unrest and atomic fear grip the heart of our nation. Men and women, young and old, walk today as blind men in the dark groping for light. America and the world seek security for self and have left off the seeking of the WILL OF GOD. We must repent and seek to know the sweet will of God in this crisis hour. Isaiah speaks to us very pointedly when he says "your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you." Peace can only come to an individual or a nation as Christ, the Prince of Peace, is enthroned.

In Paul's first letter to the Church at Thessalonica, the fifth chapter in verses 16 through 18, he tells us three things that are the will of God concerning every believer in Christ. Here Paul presents a perfect three-point homiletical outline which I have chosen to use as the basis of my message. This message from Paul has been a particular blessing to me in recent days, thus I feel led of the Spirit to pass it on to the readers of the Free Will Baptist paper. My prayer is that this truth might be blessed to the innermost part of your hearts.

Each of Paul's exhortations seem quite paradoxical in meaning. By paradoxical I mean contrary to natural logic. The question is, How can one "rejoice evermore," pray without ceasing, and "in everything give thanks"? These seem like hard requests until we have really studied them, then they blossom as a rose in the morning dew. Let's discuss the first point first—REJOICE EVERMORE. According to Webster the word "rejoice" means "to feel great delight or joy in the soul." Certainly every born-again child of God has something to rejoice about, doesn't he? Then why do we see so many long-faced, down-in-the-dump, blue-Monday Christians? Paul evidently did not believe in this kind of religion. Neither can I say that I believe in the kind of religion which the colored people sing about "sometimes up and sometimes down." God has planned it from the foundations of the world that His people should be genuinely and consistently joyful. To prove it we take three portions of Scripture. According to Job 38:7 the world was born with joy "when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God (or angels) shouted for joy." We know also that the world was redeemed with joyfulness. In Luke 2 we read how on the same night in which our Saviour was born, a choir of the heavenly host descended from heaven to sing "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." This world will also end with music in the air, because we read in Revelation 15:2-4 about when the saved of all ages will stand on the glassy sea in the New Jerusalem and with the harps of God will join in singing the song of Moses and the Lamb. Won't that be 'joy unspeakable and full of glory'?

Speaking of rejoicing evermore or at all times, reminds me of an incident which took place about two summers ago. I was teaching in a Daily Vacation Bible School held in the West Nashville Free Will Baptist Church and staying in the home of a saintly old Methodist lady in the community. She was a widow and had taken the responsibility of rearing five motherless children. From my viewpoint I considered her a very unfortunate woman, but her brave and joyful spirit convinced me of my mistake. She refused money for my week's stay but finally consented to my helping her with her unusually large weekly wash. That afternoon she preached to me an unforgettable sermon. The subject was "a formula for JOY." It was at a time in my life when I needed the message of the hour desperately, thus I applied it by faith as she gave it. Praise God, it works! This is the message she gave me: "Let the 'J' stand for 'Jesus,' put Him first in everything in your life and I guarantee happiness, let the 'O' stand for 'Others,' if Jesus has first place then the joy of serving others will follow, then let the 'Y' stand for 'Yourself,' always consider your own interest last and the joy of the Lord shall be yours." Are you happy in the Lord today? You should be. Remember when Jesus sent out the seventy two by two into every city whither He Himself would come. In Luke 10:17-20 we read how they "returned with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, rejoice not that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven."

Next, we look at the second point of Paul's outline to hear—Pray without ceasing. The question is, How can I? It has been said that 'Prayer is the breath of a Christian,' then it must be essential and needs to be constant and unceasing. Prayer must become habitual with the Christian. Prayer to Hannah was just speaking to God in the heart. I Samuel 1:12, 13 says "she continued praying before the Lord—she spake in her heart—but her voice was not heard." Prayer can become just as natural to the believer as breathing and it ought. I once heard Brother Henry Melvin say, "A prayerless Christian is a juiceless and a useless one." How true it is that if we are going to be used of the Lord and keep sweet in our personality we must literally soak in prayer daily. The Psalmist must have known the joy of prayer when he said "In the presence of the Lord is fulness of joy." One never knows real and lasting joy until he has lingered in the presence of the Almighty for a revelation of His Will.

The Prophet Samuel believed in the same kind of praying religion which

BOOM AND BUST

THE COST OF ALCOHOL

We spent $320,000,000 more for alcoholic beverages in 1946 than we did on every kind of educational, religious, cultural, and social movement for the building of stronger character and better life. When you add to that the indirect expenditure for police forces, jails, accidents, broken homes, days lost from work, and hospitals, an intelligent guess is perhaps another eight billion must be added in indirect costs. In direct and indirect costs we are spending twice as much to tear down society thru alcoholic beverages as we are spending to build it up thru all social, cultural and educational efforts and religious efforts.

The cost does not end with the financial bill. It is estimated that there are today 3 million to 4 million people who are in the clutches of excessive drinking, and perhaps a million more of them are alcoholics—people whom the liquor traffic has practically ruined and who are a liability to themselves and to their community.

When we consider the accidents, the blurring of right and wrong, the going over into immortality of hundreds of thousands of young people, the social and moral unhappiness toll taken by the alcoholic beverage traffic, the cost is literally incalculable in this country.

If our Lord, and Paul were alive today, I have little doubt where they would stand in regard to the alcohol traffic. While Christ did not teach total abstinence, He did not say anything against the slave traffic, either. He did teach, as Paul did also, that we should not do the things to cause our brothers to stumble, that we who are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak and that if any man would follow Christ, we must take the burdens of mankind that are not his and put them upon his own shoulders. That is the teaching spirit and example of Christ.

“YOU CAN’T DO IT”

Would your boy and your girl have a better chance in life if there were no saloons and no organized vice of any kind? The only reason for allowing a traffic which causes so much peril to our young people, and so much disaster to all of us, is the false Wet slogan: “You can’t do it!”

Why can’t we do it? Have we ever tried to do it? How many people are there in your church who are not registered to vote? Up in Pennsylvania, investigators found to their astonishment, that a substantial majority of the State’s stay-at-home voters are church members! Maybe if all of our people would get out and vote, we could do something about all of this vice and crime—even do something about inflated taxes which are the direct result of the governmental inefficiency which is always the product of liquor politics. “When the wicked rule, the people mourn.”

Road-side picture shows are becoming more and more popular in this country with a certain class of people. Every enticement conceivable is offered to people who will be allured to patronize such worldly amusements, and spend money foolishly for sensual pleasures. The Devil and his agents are doing everything imaginable to entice people to drive in and see the worldliness of sinful people displayed on the screen. And thousands of people, both old and the young are patronizing such places of amusement, and think nothing of it.

But, is that the place for Christians to go? Do they have to see such demonstrations of theft, murder, drunkenness, trickery, false love scenes, etc., to be entertained? Do such pictures elevate their thoughts, raise their standards of life, give them a feeling of serenity and peaceableness? Do they? Are they better in spirit, and can they rejoice more in the Lord after having sat in their cars and looked upon those pictures on the screen for an hour? Can they go home with a clear conscience, and turn unto the Lord in prayer, as they retire for the night for rest and sleep, when they know what they have seen displayed on the screen was on the whole anything but uplifting to the soul?

What are people thinking about, anyway? What is it that constitutes their peace and happiness? Must they cater to the low and vulgar, the questionable and the indecent types of entertainment to satisfy their longing for pleasures and pastime? Are there not ample opportunities available for most people to obtain a high type of pleasure and happiness in this country? Certainly, Christians should seek this type of enjoyment rather than to be habitual visitors of the road-side shows and city theatres. Indeed, it will be more wholesome to their mental bearings if they would seek to find wholesome and refined kinds of entertainment for themselves and their children.

We will grant that there are some pictures cast upon the screens that are instructive and beneficial to the average person, but they are too few to justify the time and the expense of people who make a habit of visiting the shows by the roadside or in the cities. Why can't people see what such places are doing for this country? Don't they know, from authoritative statistics, that the roots of the great crime wave are embedded in the acts displayed in the pictures flashed on the screens of the theatres and shows? Surely they know that picture shows are the places where the youth acquires ideas of crime and adventure, of chance and fortune, and of victory, or defeat. Why set examples, then, before the youth of the church, you mothers and fathers, in making a habit of visiting the shows, when you know that no lasting good can come from ninety percent of them? It is time to think, and to think seriously, in regards to this matter.

ORDERS FOR FOURTH QUARTER LITERATURE

Since the shipping force at the Press are rushed with booking, filling and shipping orders for the Sunday School, and the League literature at the beginning of each quarter, we are requesting this time that the Sunday School and the League secretaries mail in to us their orders ahead of time. If they will do this, more time will be given to the employees for the filling of the orders for the literature. Most of the quarterlies for the last quarter of the year are now ready for wrapping and shipping to the various Sunday Schools and Leagues. As a usual thing, the calls for literature are greater for the fall quarter, therefore it will be advisable for the secretaries to make their orders a little larger than usual, and avoid having to make out a second order for their Leagues and Sunday Schools a little later on.

N. C. STATE CONVENTION TO CONVENE

The North Carolina State Convention will convene at Rains Cross Roads Church, September 13 and 14. This session is expected to be well attended by delegates, ministers, and church people in general from the various churches of the State. There will be representatives of the National Boards from other states present for this annual meeting of the State Convention. There is expected to be present returned missionaries from India and Cuba to deliver messages from their respective fields of labor. All in all, it looks now that this will be a very busy session, and one that will go on record as setting forth forward movements for the state work.

Rains Cross Roads Church is located near the town of Princeton, and in a progressive community that has prosperous farmers living not far from the church. They will entertain the convention in a good way, and the delegates, ministers and visiting friends will be shown splendid hospitality. The Christian fellowship for the two days of the convention will be gratifying to everyone who will attend this annual meeting.

THE UNSPEAKABLE GIFT

The things which are freely given to us of God are so many and so great that we cannot know them all unless He gives us the Holy Spirit to make us know them.

Once two young friends of mine set to work to make a list of all God's gifts mentioned in the Bible. They found 530 gifts, and wrote them in a scroll, and it was more than 2 yards long in 3 columns, and in small writing, too! Suppose you try and make out a list one yard long at least.

Joseph W. Lawler of Waltham, Mass., doesn't see why it is considered news when a man bites a dog—he does it nearly every day. Lawler trains dogs, and says that his method of curing a vicious dog is first to let the dog bite him, then bite the dog right back.—AP.

Paul talks to us about here. In I Samuel 12:23 in answer to the cry of a backslidden nation, He says "God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you." Yea, the Prophet goes beyond prayer and says, "I will teach you the good and the right way." May I leave you with two illustrations in connection with our relation to God in prayer. Asa, a king of Israel, had a sore foot and instead of praying and relying on God for healing he put all his confidence in the physicians. He died. On the other hand, we look at Hezekiah who was warned to set his house in order because he was going to die. He turned his face to the wall and prayed without ceasing until God heard and rewarded him with fifteen additional years of life. Prayer changes things.

I believe it was John Bunyan who said "Prayer will make a man cease from sin or sin will entice a man to cease from prayer." If we want to chase the Devil away just breathe the name of Jesus Christ in prayer. Truly, 'the Devil trembles when he sees the weakest saint upon his knees.' Prayer is a prerequisite for blessing and happiness according to John 16: 24 where Christ said "Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full."

"When Christians pray as they prayed of yore

With living faith for souls implore,
In one accord, united stand

Revival fires shall sweep the land,
And sinners shall converted be

And all the world God's glory see."
(Amen. I believe it!)

Thirdly, may we consider Paul's last point in his message on the will of God concerning you who are in Christ Jesus.—In everything give thanks. To many people Thanksgiving only comes once a year in November, but to Paul it was an hour-by-hour celebration. He sets before us an example of courtesy here. Men, have you ever gotten up on a bus or streetcar to offer a lady your seat and then regretted it because of her lack of appreciation? Just those two little words "thank you" go a long way toward the keeping of good-will among men. Suppose you gave someone a gift and they failed to show any sign of appreciation, how would you feel? Thanksgiving has a very strange multiplying effect. Start thanking your wife for all the nice meals she cooks and see how she will begin to cook more of them. I know it works because I have tried it. Jesus took five loaves and two small fishes and after He had given thanks it fed a multitude of five thousand men besides the women and children. They took up of that which remained twelve baskets full. Does not this show the value of thanksgiving? What does "everything" include? When you are forced to fill a sick bed—when you lose your job and your finances are low—when death calls away a loved one—thank God and remember Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

The all-inclusiveness of thanksgiving is again repeated by Paul in his letter to the church at Ephesus. We read his exhortation in Ephesians 5: 18-20 "Be filled with the Spirit; speaking to yourself in psalms (such praise songs as 'The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want!'), in hymns (prayer songs such as 'We praise Thee, O God, for the Son of Thy Love, for Jesus Who died and is now gone above') and spiritual songs (testimony songs such as 'Blessed Assurance, Jesus is mine') singing and making melody in your hearts unto the Lord; Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." Thus, everything we do should be done with a heart of gratitude.

Besides having a multiplying effect, expressing courtesy, and bringing joy; thanksgiving also creates new friendships. Remember when Christ once healed ten lepers, only one returned to thank him. This one, no doubt, became a real friend to Jesus. Christ says, "Ye are my friends if you do whatsoever I have commanded you." He has commanded us to pray without ceasing, rejoice evermore, and in everything give thanks. Are you obedient, are you happy? This is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning us who are 'born from above.'

living reality in these instances. Often that which we call prayer "In His Name" is a sham; there is no reality. If our life is stained with sin, God pays no attention to our prayer. Confess our sins and get right with God, and then God hears. America has got to confess, that is, our Government. Our churches must confess unto God. When I say churches, I mean these institutions that are really orthodox and fundamental in faith—those who believe in the Deity of the Son of God and His atoning blood. Men can believe about those things and yet live out of fellowship with God and be under the curse of sin. We have on the American dollar, "In God we trust," but really we trust in the dollar and its purchasing power, rather than the God who blessed our forefathers with victory which gave to us the land of Freedom—the U. S. We are selling this freedom to the Communists. It started with socialism, regimentation, government ownership and the craving for political power.

There is a way out; let us find it. That way is through the Lord Jesus Christ. I mean Christ, in reality. Not through everything that is called religion. The modernists will have to go back to the faith of our fathers. Church members will have to be Christians. Our rulers and Government leaders will have to get in touch with God through the Lord Jesus. Our homes will have to become homes where Christ abides. Our schools will have to cut out the teachings of Marxism and teach the truth of God. The whole nation will have to get right with God. When this is done the World will stand back and the name of Christ will be exalted. Yes, this old world needs Christ more than everything else.

SANCTIFICATION

Sanctification, and the equivalent, is recorded one hundred forty-one times in the A. V. of the King James Bible. It is preached, and taught more or less in all the Evangelical Denominations in Christendom. The writer, as he has made careful and prayerful search, and as he views it, will admit that there are twenty-eight phases of sanctification. But out of that number, there is only a small number that apply to the human family.

We are sanctified by the blood of Jesus Christ (Heb. 10:10). But the great question is: how, and where, and when, does it take place? Some believe it to be a "first definite work of Grace," and some believe it to be a "second definite work of Grace;" still others believe it to be a progressive work of Grace, while other dismiss it as a fancy. It has become such a vital issue in Christendom until it is retarding our spiritual progress.

The great Apostle Paul said: "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment" (I Cor. 1:10). The Rev. Mr. John Wesley wrote a little catechism on Christian perfection laid out in questions and answers, and I quote: "When does Sanctification begin? Answer, The very moment that we are saved." If Mr. Wesley was correct, and we take it for granted that he was, why should we teach that sanctification by the blood of Jesus Christ is a "second definite work of Grace," and not put the emphasis where it belongs? and teach that it is the first definite work of Grace? For without shedding of blood is no remission (Heb. 9:22). It is the blood that maketh an Atonement for the soul (Lev. 17:11). The first thing that God does for a sinner when he, or she, meets the conditions, and repents of his sins, is to sanctify him by the blood of Jesus Christ, which will give him the akinship to Heaven.

Some who teach this branch of theology would have you believe that when you repent of your sins, you are only pardoned of your actual transgression, that you are a candidate for sanctification, as a second definite work of Grace. But that is not in keeping with the volume of inspiration: "Then said he, lo, I come to do thy will, O God." He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second. We are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once and for all (Heb. 10:9, 10). The first that was taken away was the blood of calves, goats, young pigeons, and doves the second that was established was the blood of Jesus Christ.

The blood of those domestic victims, in keeping with the Mosaic law, was offered as an Atonement; the word "Atonement" in the Hebrew means to cover, or to wrap up, but it did not stay put when it was covered up; but in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again made of sins every year. For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins (Heb. 10:3, 4). "Nor yet that he should offer himself often, as the high priest entereth in to the Holy place every year with blood of others; for then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world; but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself" (Heb. 9:25, 26).

Rev. O. M. Hilburn

Jesus does not wrap up sin, he taketh it away. If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the Blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin (I John 1:7). When a following of that belief makes a profession of faith in the Lord, then if he happens to get on slippery ground, or go a little ruff raff, he is admonished to seek sanctification as a "second definite work of Grace," that he is living an amphibious life, or in other words a "hybrid life," living only justified in the sight of God.

We question the philosophy of such theology, in view of the fact, that justification is the highest standard that can be achieved by angels, or men. Justification does not take place in the hearts, and lives of redeemed saints of God on earth, it takes place in the heart, and mind of God, when he looks down from the battlements of the Glory world, and views that poor lost sinner, he turns about right, stacks arms of rebellion against God, repents of his sins, and by faith accepts Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour by the merits of the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ on the cross of Calvary. Then He (not we) pronounces us justified.

When the Apostle Paul was airing out a few of the most outstanding sins practiced in, and about Corinth, he said: "And such were some of you, but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God" (I Cor. 6:11). So you can readily see that in keeping with the word of God, we have to be sanctified by the blood of Jesus Christ, before we can be pronounced justified in the eyes of him with whom we have to do. "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication: that every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour; Not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles which know not God" (I Thes. 4:3-5).

So you can see, at a glance, that we are either sanctified, or we are in the class with the heathen world that know not God. Sanctification by the blood carries with it a cleansing process. "For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh: How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God." (Heb. 9:13, 14). If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth. "But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his son cleanseth us from all sin." (I John 1:6, 7).

Those who lay emphasis on sanctification as a second definite work of Grace, never tarry with you long enough to give you one Bible verse on one of several phases they have reference to, for the Word of God teaches that we are sanctified by the blood of Jesus Christ. When the honest-hearted saint of God happens to contact those constructive, back bone builders, he at once wants to know what it is all about. In other words, what phase of sanctification do they have reference to, and where is the scripture that backs up such theology? They at once point the honest gold digger to (Eph. 5:26). That he (Jesus) might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, the Centenary Translation gives it thus: "In order that after cleansing in the bath of baptism, he might sanctify her (the Church) by his word, so as to present her to himself, the Church glorified, without spot or wrinkle or any such blemish." So you can plainly see that sanctification takes precedence, and that the washing is by the blood, and is continually going on as a purging process, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son CLEANSETH us from all sin.

Simple words handed down to us from the English language with the three letters e-t-h attached to the end of it, means progressive tense, so you can readily see that this cleansing begins in our life the very moment that we are sanctified as a first definite work of Grace; and not a second definite work of Grace. If the second, and third definite work of Grace theologians lose that bridgehead, they then refer you to John 15:2: "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit."

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in the Baptist.

Mrs. Lola E. Kennedy

On Tuesday, June 13, 1950, at 7:30 o'clock P. M., God saw fit to call from us the soul of our dear neighbor, Mrs. Lola Kennedy, widow of Rev. G. W. Kennedy. She was 73 years old and had been in declining health for a number of years.

Mrs. Kennedy was a faithful member of the Cabin Free Will Baptist Church. She was always willing and ready to do her duty in all things when she was able. Mrs. Kennedy was a true and devoted wife, a patient and loving mother, and a kind friend to every one.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Walter Jernigan, assisted by Rev. Lloyd Vernon, and Rev. Steven Smith.

Her body was laid to rest in the church cemetery under a beautiful mound of flowers, expressive of the esteem in which she was held by loved ones.

Surviving are six sons: Roy, John, Leslie, Amon, George and Rev. Sam R. Kennedy, all of the home community.

Written by a friend,

Mrs. Roland Thomas

Mrs. Cora Ferrell Lamm

On the twenty-ninth of June, nineteen hundred and fifty, Mrs. Cora Ferrell Lamm passed from this life to take her place with the saints of God in the mansions above prepared for them by Jesus. She was loved and esteemed by all who knew her and it can truly be said of her she was a Christian. The humble manner in which she bore her afflictions and sufferings was evidence of her faith in a supreme God. It was a joy to work and worship with her. In all of her activities she was a very kind and friendly person to deal with.

She was a member of Little Rock Free Will Baptist Church at Lucama, N. C., and also a member of the Woman's Auxiliary. She was always found ready to do her part and was a loyal and faithful member as long as she lived. She was a devoted mother and wife and spared not herself in performing her duties in her home.

Her absence will be felt by all who knew her but she has left a pleasant memory that will not fade and her Christian influence will be felt as time passes on. The many relatives and friends and the beautiful floral offerings at the funeral were evidence of the high esteem in which she was held.

She was a charter member of the Woman's Auxiliary of her church and her passing has left a vacancy in the life of every member; therefore be it resolved.

First, that we feel deeply the loss of a devoted member and co-worker.

Second, that we recognize the faithful, loyal and unselfish service that she rendered.

Third, that we shall miss being able to render the small deeds of kindness to one who was so faithful.

Fourth, that we recognize the friendly acts and kind deeds that she did for the disabled and unfortunate in our church and community.

Fifth, that the members of the Woman's Auxiliary extend to her family and relatives our deepest sympathy and may they find comfort and peace in God who can supply their very need and doeth all things well.

Sixth, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to the Press for publication in the Baptist paper and a copy be placed on the minutes of the auxiliary.

James, Leader in the Jerusalem Church

(Lesson for September 17)

Lesson: Acts 15:13-20; Galatians 2:9-12.

Golden Text: James 1:22.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

The man about whom we are to study in this lesson is James, the son of Mary and Joseph, and the brother of Jesus. He was the leader in the Jerusalem church, and he is the author of the Book of James. He is not to be confused with two other apostles, namely, the son of Zebedee and the son of Alphaeus. He was called James "the Just" and was considered by Paul with Peter and John as "pillars" of the church at Jerusalem. He was pious, and a sincere leader of the brethren in the Jerusalem church.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.)

1. Not while men disputed, but when they held their peace, was it possible for the Holy Spirit to reveal His will (Acts 15:13).

2. Not the conversion of the world, but the taking out of a people for His Name is the program of God for the present age (vs. 14).

3. The message of the Old Testament Prophets is never out of harmony with the revelations of the New (vs. 14).

4. The Second Coming of Christ will occur after God has completed the work of gathering out a people for His Name (vs. 16).

5. The Second Coming of Christ will bring about the complete restoration of God's ancient people Israel (vs. 16).

6. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only source of salvation for both Jew and Gentile (vs. 17).

7. There is no such thing as chance or accident in the works of God, for He knows all things from the beginning (vs. 18).

8. It is a splendid policy not to seek to make the Christian life burdensome to anyone, especially young believers (vs. 19).

9. It is very important that, although we are not under the Law, we should lead lives that are clean before God and man (vs. 20).

10. Having been saved by grace, it is important for us not to seek the righteousness that comes by the Law (Gal. 2:9-12).

11. James the Unbeliever—In the Gospels James is explicitly mentioned only in two parallel passages which give the names of the four brothers of Jesus (Matt. 13:55; Mark 6:3). It is an interesting fact, and one which may have caused Jesus considerable pain, that during his public ministry his own brethren did not believe on him. During the years they lived together, until Jesus was thirty years old, his brothers and sisters had no idea that he was the Son of God. His life before them was pure and spotless, but he was engaged in commonplace work as a carpenter and he did not reveal to them the mysteries of his person. Later there was point to Christ's words as he applied them to himself: "A prophet is not without honour, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house" (Mark 6:4). At the time of the feast of Tabernacles about six months before Christ's death, his brethren sarcastically told him to go up to Jerusalem and show himself to the world if he really did the works which he professed to do, for they did not even then believe on him (John 7:2-5). But the events in connection with the crucifixion probably made a profound impression upon them; and after his resurrection Jesus appeared to his brother James, which undoubtedly dispelled his unbelief (1 Cor. 15:7). Before Pentecost we find him with the 120 in the upper room (Acts 1:14).—Arnold's Commentary.

12. James the Martyr—James the Lord's brother, like James the brother of John, laid down his life for his faith. He was martyred in Jerusalem, probably in the year 62, during Paul's first imprisonment in Rome. Two accounts of his martyrdom have been preserved which do not agree in all respects, one by Josephus. and one by Hegesippus, a second century writer whom Eusebius quotes. The account of Josephus is more reasonable and is doubtless true. He says that after the death of Festus and before the new governor, Albinus, arrived, the high priest, a bold and insolent Sadducee, "assembled the Sanhedrin of judges and brought before them the brother of Jesus, who was called Christ, whose name was James." He was charged with breaking the sacred laws, was found guilty. It was at the Passover season, not many years before the final destruction of Jerusalem, when they led him to a pinnacle of the Temple and demanded that in the presence of the multitude he should speak against Christ. But instead he testified that Jesus had ascended to the right hand of God, and would one day return in the clouds of Heaven. This enraged the assembled mob and they cried out, "Even the just has been deceived!" After this they cast him down to the ground and stoned him. It is said that he was still able to bow his knees and offer prayer for his murderers after he reached the ground, and one of the priests cried out, "What are you doing? this just man is praying for you!" But another, who was very angry, came near and crushed the skull of the kneeling man with a club. Josephus reports that his execution caused so much dissatisfaction among the people that the new governor removed the high priest from his office.—Selected.

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Not Like James

At a missionary meeting in Edinburgh, the Rev. W. C. Bunning related that a friend of his was once riding between Glasgow and Greenock, when the train began to flag, and at length stood still. The gentleman got out, and going up to the engine, said to the driver, "What's the matter? Have you run out of water?" "No," was the reply, "we've plenty of water, but it's not boiling."

—R. Brewin.

They would have the followers of their dogmas believe that this scripture does teach an instantaneous, definite, second work of Grace, subsequent to regeneration. But let us be honest with God, and take the scripture at face value. Jesus said, "I am the true vine, and by Father is the husbandman." (Jon. 15:1). Jesus has declared himself else where in the scripture that he is the vine, and that we are the branches.

He was drawing his illustration from a fruitful vine: hence a grape vine.

Would my reader go to a grape vine early in spring time, looking for ripe grapes? In no wise, but you could see, as the sap began to rise, as the buds began to swell, and as the foliage slowly cropped out, a tiny stem, and lovely little bunch of flowers. Those petals drop off, and leave a bunch of tiny grapes, and at the proper season of the year you find rich grapes, and delicious juice in the hull. So, it is all progress, and nothing instantaneous concerning the subject, they contend.

In keeping with the faith and doctrine of those good people, one has to get saved, and then get sanctified, as a "second definite work of Grace," and then get baptized with the Holy Ghost with the evidence of speaking with other tongues. So, as they would have it, God has to make three efforts to get that poor lost sinner saved, and on his way to Heaven.

True, he may run well for awhile, but if he should get on slippery ground, and get his eye on some man's wife, or steal some farmer's mule, or a car, or something of like nature, then we all would agree at once that he would be backslidden. Then if it should be in keeping with the plan of Heaven for God to make three mechanical efforts to regenerate that man, and set him forth for the Glory world, then what if the devil came along, and slipped up on the poor fellow, while he is loitering, and at one stroke undo a job which it took God three workings of Grace to do? If that is in keeping with such theology, how can it be said of them that God is Almighty? If the Devil can tear down as much at one stroke, as God can build up at three constructive efforts, then what? When the honest-to-goodness seeker of Bible truths contacts those of like theology, they give him to understand that they are not able at present to give book, chapter, and verse, but that was their experience. They give you to understand that when God saved them, they again went to the mercy seat and received a wonderful blessing in their souls, and they called that blessing sanctification, as a second definite work of Grace.

We would be more than glad, for the sake of sharing good Christian fellowship with those saints of God, to teach, to preach, and embrace the theology of sanctification, as a second definite work of Grace, if we only could back such a statement by the Bible. But we are frank to say hat there is not one thread of scripture, from Genesis to Revelation, that teaches that any phase of sanctification, directly, or indirectly, is a second definite work of Grace.

The great Apostle Paul did not preach it, neither did he exhort his hearers to seek after it; and there is not one verse in all the Bible, when the apostles, prophets, or disciples of the Lord ever testified to such an experience; yet this theology has sown more discord in Christendom than any other thing under the sun; especially in our great Protestant Christian world.

Second Peter 1:4 to 8 "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the Divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge; And to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The Apostle Peter was one of the most constructive ministers in the Apostolic day; but he did not one time hint to us that sanctification of any phase is a second definite work of Grace.

May we conclude by a word of warning to our good ministers; preach the word.

No Disappointment with the Lord

Wait, and be strong, and let thine heart take courage!

Fear not the shadows lying on the way.

The Light of God illumines every shadow . . .

The Path is upward to the Perfect Day!

Wait, and in waiting, listen for His leading.

Be strong. Thy strength for every day is stored.

Go forth in faith, and let thine heart take courage;

There is no disappointment with the Lord!

A NEW F. W. B. CHURCH IN HECTOR, ARKANSAS

This new church is moving forward in a good way. Our revival began on July 7 with Rev. Elvie Johnson as the evangelist. He is a home boy who has just received his Minister's Diploma from Southern Baptist college at Walnut Ridge, Arkansas. His good preaching has proved the worth of his having gone to school. We are hoping that his influence will cause other young ministers to do likewise.

The revival meeting was a success in many ways. While the revival was going on, we held also our Vacation Bible school, and we feel that it was a success in every way. There were 52 certificates that were given out to those who met the requirements set up in the school. As far as we know this was the first Vacation Bible school that was ever held in a Free Will Baptist church in Arkansas, and the first in this association. We had the cooperation of Walnut Grove and also of Welcome Home churches. Many were blessed by having this school.

This new church building is 40 by 60 feet, and it is about completed. We are hoping to dedicate it free of debt before the year closes. Our membership is small in number, but the people have a mind to work. I have been serving the church as full-time pastor since it was organized. We would like to contact some young preacher who would like to consider pastoring this church next year. If any young man is interested, please write to me at once, giving references from your association, or from your church board. There is no need to write if you have not had ministerial educational training. May God bless all of the brethren is our prayer.

J. D. Coffman, Pastor
P. S.—I am also clerk and treasurer of Arkansas State Association.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

Something Glen Learned

Mildred Hyslop

Glen was having lunch with Geraldine at her home. Glen was a newcomer to the neighborhood; an only child and had only recently come with his parents from across the sea. He was ten years of age.

Glen and Geraldine had been playing ball, just back of Geraldine's home. It had been great fun, so he thought. Geraldine's mother had prepared lunch and she called them in from the back yard.

When Glen saw the nicely-set table before him, and the abundance of good things to eat, his eyes opened widely—

"Why, you have ever so many nice things to eat," he cried happily.

"Well," Geraldine's mother said, "I am glad you are pleased Glen, and I trust your appetites are both good."

"I know I'm hungry," Geraldine giggled, "and I'm sure Glen is too, after playing hard and running for the ball."

When they were seated at the table, Geraldine bowed her head and her mother said, "Geraldine, will you please repeat the blessing?"

Then Geraldine prayed very reverently over the food they were to eat, and asked the Lord Jesus to bless it.

Glen glanced at Geraldine very surprised. In Glen's home no one ever thanked God at the table for the food they enjoyed, so it was something very different to him.

While they went on with the tasty meal, Glen could not help feeling especially thankful for the good food. In the country where he had come from, sometimes they hardly had enough to last the day out and now he and his parents were living in a country where food was really plentiful and the very best. All this kept running through his mind while he enjoyed the meal. It was certainly something to be thankful for. Then Glen made up his mind that he, too, would thank the Lord at mealtime every day from then on.

Before Glen and Geraldine went out to the garden to play ball he thanked Geraldine's mother for the nice lunch and Geraldine's mother told him he would be welcome anytime.

Then Glen became engrossed with a game for a while. Then suddenly he said, "Oh, Geraldine do you always give thanks to the Lord for every meal?"

"Why, of course," she told him, "if I don't give thanks for our daily food, Papa generally does. It's only a Christian-like thing to do."

"I really think it's what we all should do," the boy said, thoughtfully, "but no one in our family ever takes time to thank the Lord."

"Then perhaps you would like to be the one to start 'giving thanks' at meal time," Geraldine kindly suggested.

"I certainly will be the one to start 'giving thanks,'" Glen declared, stoutly, "now I feel we have so much more to thank the Lord for than we have had for years. Now here, we have peace, good friends, and plenty to eat in this wonderful country, and I am sure my father and mother are thankful and happy to find a new home in a grand new country like this."

"And I'm glad that you all like our wonderful country," Geraldine said, "and I'm sure we will all have nice times together especially at school and at church, Glen."

Glen's face beamed happily and he promised he would be at Sunday School, the next day.

We trust that Glen found not only the blessing of a peaceful country, but also heart peace through believing on the Lord Jesus Christ.

HOLD FAST TILL I COME

A Hindu was one day writing letters with the doors all open because of the heat, and to let the breeze come in. His little boy, three years old, was playing near him. Presently a servant came to call the Hindu gentleman to see a friend on business; and calling a little child outside, said to him: "Put your hand over my papers to keep them from blowing away, and hold them fast till I come back."

Many Hindu children are disobedient, but this child came at once and did as he was told. As he stood there with his hand on his father's papers he counted first how many spiders he could see in the roof, then how many squares there were in the mats, and so on. But as the minutes went by he became so tired, though he kept changing the hand, and many a little sigh and big yawn said very plainly: "I wish father would come back." But the father had to stay more than an hour, and though many a time he remembered his child, he supposed that some of his servants would go and put away his papers. When he came back at last and saw the dear little thing still there, patiently standing, he snatched him up, feeling that he could not love him enough for his obedience.

Jesus has given us each something to hold fast till He comes. May each of us prove as faithful to our trust as a Hindu child did to his.—Canadian Baptist.

N. C. State Convention to Convene with Rain's Cross Road's Church

The North Carolina State Convention will convene this year on September 13-14 with Rain's Cross Roads Church near the town of Princeton, North Carolina.

All church clerks of the State are sincerely urged to get their church letters to the Convention Secretary, Rev. R. N. Hin-nant, Micro, N. C., at once. Please do not fail to attend to this matter, because it is very necessary that these letters be in his hands by the time the convention convenes. It is also important that each church fill out the letter and send a contribution to the convention.

For the benefit of those who might not know where the church is located, we give the following information: Those going from Smithfield and Selma, take Highway Number 70 to the town of Princeton, and there inquire the way to the church, which is about four miles. Those travelling west from Goldsboro, take Highway Number 70 to Princeton, and there inquire the way out to the church.

Let Us Stand by Our Students

My heart has been burdened for some time to write this letter, and I feel that it is the proper time, as the boys and girls are leaving home for school.

They will need all the encouragement we can give to them, especially the young men who will study for the ministry. Should they not need your help financially, they need your moral support. Cause them to feel assured that you are all for them, for they are soldiers in the army for God. They become discouraged often as we do, and such hinders their school work, therefore they need your prayers and encouragement.

Moreover, do not let them feel that their home churches have lost interest in them. Believe me when I tell you that I know what it will do to them to let them down. Keep them encouraged by letting them know that you are interested in them.

The accompanying picture is of the King's Cross Roads choir, members who until now, have been broadcasting from other radio stations than WGTC in Greenville, North Carolina. We have a number of fifteen minute continuous transcriptions that we are willing to loan to any of our churches that might need them.

The transcriptions are of the familiar hymns of the church. They are particularly appropriate for programs for old people and shut-ins. And of our churches desiring the use of these transcriptions can contact us, and we will gladly forward the same.

THE MAGIC OF PERSEVERANCE

The soul of Perseverance cannot be beaten. Imprison it and you will find a Eunyan to produce a Pilgrim's Progress. Blind it, and a Milton will give us a Paradise Lost. Deafen it and an Edison will search out the miracles of electricity. Isolate it in a log cabin and a Lincoln will work his way to the White House. Turn it loose in the frozen Arctic and a Peary will seek out the North Pole.

F. W. B. Church, Malone, Florida, Holds Good Meeting

Our revival meeting, which was held beginning July 5th Sunday and continued through August the first, was one of great inspiration to all who attended the services. It was a great success. Reverend Chester A. Huckaby from Phenix City, Alabama, the pastor of our church, brought the messages. They were filled with power and the Holy Spirit, causing each heart of those present to be filled with spiritual food.

There were fourteen members added to our church, and with this addition we have grown in membership to thirty four. We feel that the blessings of the Lord have come our way, and we are growing as a church as time passes.

We were indeed fortunate to have had Brother C. L. Cook and his good wife with us, as they were conducting a two-weeks singing school for us. The revival was held during the second week of the singing school, which was a very good one for our church people. The attendance was very good in the school, as well as it was for the revival. Together with the co-operation of the other churches, it was a wonderful time of rejoicing in the Lord.

HAPPY WHEN NOT HAPPY

I heard a young Christian, who had been a wild lad, express his happiness in a peculiar way. He said: "I'm happier now when I am not happy than what I was when I was happy before." Read it twice and you'll see the sense. Even when a cloud had come over his Christian experience it was better than all the pumped up joy when he was unsaved. He was right. A miserable saint is better than a rejoicing sinner. Then what must a truly happy saint be? It is better experienced than explained!

BETTER THAN DEBATING

To debate an issue with God when He is so lovingly striving to guide us is to thrust self into the place that Christ would occupy in our lives. Listening is better than debating when God speaks. No plan that we can offer to Him is a good substitute for the plans that He so lovingly offers to us. It is of no moment for us to prove our own wisdom, but it is of infinite moment for us to perceive His ways. HoHw good it is to be still and know—not that we are wise, or able, or far-sighter, but to know that He is our God!

—The S. S. Times

O B E D I E N C E

While all the world was waiting to hear whether the Republican party had nominated his father for president, Charles E. Hughes, Jr., was in camp at Plattsburg, in military training. Just as he had lathered his face preparatory to shaving, the order came, "Turn out the police squad and clean up the rubbish." Instantly he wiped the lather off his face, and fell into place and helped clean up the streets of the canvas city.

"What's the use," you ask, "of a college man and the son of a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States doing that?"

He was training for an officer in case of possible war. The very first lesson that any man has to learn before he is fit to command others is obedience. The very first requisite for good citizenship is obedience. On the courthouse at Worcester, Mass., are the words, chosen by Senator Hear as a suitable inscription, "Obedience to law is liberty." Every boy ought to learn that lesson and live it. America has some of the best laws in the world, and the least obeyed.

The reason is not far to seek. It goes back to the lack of reverence and respect for authority—beginning at home.

Obedience is the first law of the page in the Knights of King Arthur, as well as being prominent in the Scout law. For in no other way can a boy become efficient or skilled in the craft of his chosen club or organization.

The Scout law reads: "A Scout is obedient. He obeys his parents, scoutmaster, patrol leader, and all other duly constituted authorities."

This includes the highest authority which men or angels know—God. It is He who puts in every boy's heart the feeling and the message, "I ought." That is every one's highest duty—to obey this inner command. Every boy ought to live up to his convictions. That is real religion—"To obey God at any cost."—Wellspring.

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

We should mind little things—little courtesies in life, little matters of personal appearance, little extravagances, little minutes of wasted time, little details in our work.

And it seems that a thing cannot be too small to command our attention.

The first hint Newton had leading to his most important optical discoveries was derived from a child's soap bubble.

The art of printing was suggested by a man cutting letters in the bark of a tree.

The telescope was the outcome of a boy's amusement with two glasses in his father's shop.

Goodyear neglected his skillet until it was red hot and the accident guided him to the manufacture of vulcanized rubber.

The web of a spider suggested to Captain Brown the idea of a suspension bridge.

Henry Ford's idea about a perfect watch plant gave him a plan for his giant motor industry.

J. L. Kraft's idea to put cheese in a sanitary package was the start of his enormous business.

Watching a spider weave its web gave Robert Bruce the courage to try again.

Little things! Every one a little thing. Yet how important they proved to be to the man who had the wit to correlate these little things with the idea in his head.—Church and Home.

Rev. M. L. Hollis in Meeting at Black Jack

The Reverend M. L. Hollis of the State of Mississippi is conducting a revival meeting at Black Jack Church, Pitt County, North Carolina. The meeting will continue for about two weeks, it is thought. The attendance at the opening of the meeting was very good and the interest seems to be increasing all the while.

Reverend J. R. Davidson is the pastor of the church, and is assisting Brother Hollis in the services. He has been the pastor of the church for the past two or three years, and has done a good work with those fine church people.

It is expected that the results of this revival meeting will prove a great blessing to the church and the entire community. People are praying that many souls will be saved before the meeting shall come to a close. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend these services, and to receive a spiritual blessing of the Lord.

News of Woman's Conference, 1950

The Woman's Conference of North Carolina for 1950 is now in the past, so far as the Conference is concerned. In the minds and hearts of the large number who was fortunate enough to compose this conference, it is still a living, breathing reality. The wonderful experiences at Cragmont this year seemed to rise above all others of past years, for many said, "Each year at Cragmont is better than the one before." Mountain top surroundings and experiences, both in the physical world and in the spiritual, brought a desire to many hearts to continue to live amid such environments and surroundings. Each day was a continual feast, not only for the body, but best of all was the spiritual feasting, which came from various messages and lectures from God's Holy Word. Rev. F. B. Cherry, of Durham, brought soul inspiring messages each day. Mrs. Ethel Whaley, of Jacksonville, N. C. in her usual earnest manner spoke to us from day to day on "Women Launching Out, and Fishing for Our Youth." Mrs. Esther Carter, was responsible for the devotions each morning. Our Director, Mrs. L. E. Ballard rendered valuable service from time to time, in keeping us informed on various topics of interest, also arranging recreation and sight-seeing trips by bus to places of interest. We had twelve or more women who had never visited Cragmont until this time, who were loud in their praise for having such a wonderful place of retreat for our women, as Cragmont, and each one expressed their desire to return next year.

Sunday morning, August 20th, we went by bus to the Swannanoa Free Will Baptist Church to attend Sunday School and the worship service. We were given a warm welcome by pastor and congregation, and several of us were invited to teach some of the classes, which we did. The message by the pastor, Rev. Sparks, was an old time gospel sermon which lifted our hearts in adoration and praise to our heavenly Father. Sunday evening, Mrs. Esther Carter brought to us a stirring message on the "Second Coming of Christ," after which testimonies were heard from nearly all present, as to what the week had meant to them in fellowship, inspiration, information and in comradeship one with another.

By Mrs. Alice E. Lupton

Closing the evening service, the writer, heralded throughout the week as "Mother Lupton," reminded the women of the valley service, where work in the Lord's vineyard awaits each one. She spoke of the value of the "Peak of Vision," but that we have to go down in the valley of service in order to receive benefits from our visions and to bless other lives through them. There was hope expressed that each woman present would be drawn closer the Master and to keep in mind that "We are workers together with Him."

An outstanding feature of our week at Cragmont was that we were fortunate in having Mrs. Sarah Morris, of Fremont with us. She is nearing her 88th birthday, and is alert, active, did not miss a single lecture or message, nor miss a meal. We are looking forward to having her with us next year if the Lord spares her, and us.

Another feature worth honorable mention was the fact that we were blessed with a good bus driver, Mr. Carlton Jarman, of Jacksonville, who gave his undivided attention to his duties and responsibilities from beginning to ending of the week's activities. His service was greatly appreciated. Many expressing the hope that he would be able to go as our driver next year.

With what has already been said, we feel sure that we can truthfully say, "The half has not been told." We had several visitors during the week, among whom was Rev. W. L. Moretz, of near by Swannanoa, who spoke for us at the Wednesday evening service on "Witnessing for Christ, or The GO Tell." We also had Rev. Wayne Smith, of Canton, visit and speak to us Thursday evening, on "The Power of Kindness" (Acts 28:2).

The entire week was taken up in feasting on the good things the Lord provided for us, and we were very grateful for His presence and leadership. Surely we can say with David in Psalm 103, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits."

Some Things We Were Asked to Do for Cragmont:

How we respond to this call will determine just how much we appreciate Cragmont in reality.

We found a new roof had been added since last year, and showers had been provided in the basement, but there is still much to be done. Supplies of various kinds are needed.

After facing these facts, it was agreed to ask each Auxiliary in the State of North Carolina to send not less than $5.00 to Mr. Fountain Taylor of Richlands, by March 1, 1951, to be used for supplies and other needs. This is a small sum to ask—however we do not put a limit on how much more you may give. Ask the Father in heaven, and be guided by Him. Let us send enough to furnish necessary supplies and to screen the building before next summer. We can do it, if we want to do it bad enough.

Mr. Taylor will give credit to each Auxiliary, or person, who contributes to this cause, if you send your address. Be sure and give name of your church and the conference to which it belongs. Please keep this in mind.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

Spiritually the Same

"For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother" (Mark 3:35).

May we notice that Jesus did not say, "father," but he included all humanity when he said "whosoever." He had no earthly father, His Father was God. Therefore, there was no place to include Him in these words of Jesus. "Whosoever shall do the will of God," thus all human beings that do the will of God are on equal footing, "Mary the mother of Jesus included." From the spiritual standing Mary was no more to Jesus than any other mother, neither is she any more to God today than any other woman who has lived on earth and done the "will of God." Mary was a human being who gave birth to the physical body of the Lord Jesus, but the real Christ was God manifest in the flesh, therefore He (Christ) said to His mother, "wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" (Luke 2:49).

We are not taught by the holy Scriptures to pray unto Mary, the Mother of Jesus, but He said Himself, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy might be full. These things have I spoken to you in proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall show you plainly the Father. At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you: For the Father himself loveth you because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God. I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again I leave the world, and go to the Father" (John 16:23-28).

Here Jesus makes it plain that we can go right to the Father in Christ's name and receive what we ask for. But we are to know that "the Father loves us for believing on the name of Jesus as the Son of God" and because we love Jesus Christ as the Son of God we can go to God in the name of Jesus and get our request. I like to capitalize that statement because the Devil hates the name of Jesus, and others have been made to believe that you have to add to the name of Jesus to get the blessing, but there is no other name necessary.

Since my mother who believed in and loved the name of Jesus, and Christ said, himself, she was or is "the same as my mother" due to that fact that she believed in Christ, I could as well ask her to get me in touch with the Father as to ask the mother of Jesus. Mary was only human, a virgin, and a virgin is a virgin and a woman is a woman, thus Christ said, "Woman, behold thy son." Notice that word "son;" there is no capital, it is the "son" of the woman, but when he is spoken of as the "Son of God," it is capitalized. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him" (James 1:5). Here James teaches us to go direct to God, and because we believe in and love His Son whom He gave to die for us, God hears and answers our prayers, when it is in keeping with His will. John says if we ask anything according to his will he heareth us. And if we know that he hears us, whatsoever we ask we know that we have the petitions that we desired (I John 5:14, 15).

Another important fact for us to remember is that Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh to the Father, but by me" (John 14:6).

Thank God, we do not have to ask any saint, nor angel, to get us in touch with the Father, but because we accept and love and obey the Son of God we are already in touch with the Father. We ask Him and He gives us our needs.

The Son and the Father with Us

May we notice another saying of the Lord Jesus which proves absolutely that we are already in touch with the Father and the Son, and they in touch with us. This is heavenly fellowship. "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." (John 14:23).

Christ says further, "But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you" (John 14:26). Thus Christ and the Father takes up their abode with the believer by the only vicar given to the church—the Holy Ghost. Yes, the Holy Spirit is the only one to teach us, and comfort us, and empower us, as we are believers in Christ. He reminds us of the things of God. He teaches us the way of truth and we need no other Vicar. Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father. And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life. These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you all things, and is the truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him" (I John 2:24-27). Notice that it "is the same anointing," the "same" means the acceptance of Christ, the Son of God, thus being born of the Spirit, not another blessing or the so-called "second" but the "same."

Since the Father and the Son, and the Holy Ghost are one, I hold that you cannot receive one without receiving the whole Godhead bodily. "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, (the Word is the Son) and the Holy Ghost; and these three are one" (I John 5:7).

Let Us Beware

"Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of man, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all the principality and power. In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sin of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ: Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead. Are you being dead in your sins and the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened (the word "quickened" means made alive) together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses" (Col. 2:8-13). Here again, we are taught to beware of "tradition of men." God's written word is to be accepted by the teaching of the Holy Ghost.

"These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God." Thus the written word is sufficient; "beware of tradition of men."

Meetings to Be Conducted

I am due to conduct a meeting for St. Paul's F. W. B. church, Elizabeth City, from September the 15th through the 24th, and one at Mt. Elon, S. C., from Sept. 27th through the 8th of October.

Brother T. F. Davenport is pastoring the St. Paul's church through whom we received the invitation, and Brother Paul J. Kettman is the pastor of Mt. Elon, Pamlico, S. C. Pray for these meetings. Pray that God will direct every move.

A NOTE OF THANKS

I wish to thank each one of my many friends for their beautiful birthday cards and gifts which I received during the week of August the 23. I was just 74 years old. I want everyone to know how I did appreciate the cards and the gifts. Come to see me when you have the time. It will be a blessing to me to see you and to have you visit with us in our home.

Your brother in Christ Jesus,
Rev. W. A. Dail,

Texas State Encampment Reporting

Mrs. H. Ray Berry

The Texas State Free Will Baptist Encampment for 1950 was held at Pineywoods Baptist Encampment at Woodlake, Texas, August 13-18th inclusive. There were 82 people young and young in heart listed for the week, and 141 total registration with part time campers.

We had 5 wonderful days and nights of teaching, preaching, inspirational programs and recreational activity. The army cots in the big dorms and faculty house were comfortable with innerspring mattresses and our meals (which were so good) were served cafeteria style, all for $2.50 a day each, of which a nice portion was covered by donations from the East Texas and Central Texas Districts.

Rev. and Mrs. Damon Dodd and Marilyn, of Nashville, Tenn., were with us for the week and each contributed much to the success of the encampment. Bro. Dodd taught a Soul-winning class daily, and held conferences with the unsaved, which was climaxed by 8 conversions and 15 rededications.

Mrs. Dodd taught a study course on the 1950 Women's Auxiliary Manual and helped to organize a State Convention which is to meet yearly at the Encampment for one day. The list of officers will be found in another section.

The following courses were offered in morning classes daily: Bible History, A. F. Halbrook; Bible Doctrine, N. G. Tuttle; Flannelgraph Bible Stories were under the capable direction of Mrs. Calvary; Morning Devotions and Vesper Services were handled alternately by Bruce Barrow, A. F. Halbrook, Damon Dodd, and H. Ray Berry. J. L. Bounds, pastor from Houston was Camp Director, and Wesley Calvary, Waco, directed Singspiration. The eleven o'clock hour was given to Bro. Dodd's Soulwinning, and the afternoons were given to recreation, swimming, Intermediate Sword Drill and Ministers conference. Mrs. Ruby Withers was in charge of First Aid, and Mesdames Dovie Fears and O. V. Breedlove were lifeguards. Other adults served as counsellors. Bro. Calvary directed a Talent Show each day, and Marilyn Dodd sang various hymns in Spanish, to the children's delight.

The State League Conference was held on Friday 10-4 o'clock. Highlights of the program were heartening reports (nine new Leagues over last year) inspiring message, special music and songs, a most interesting "History of F. W. Baptist Missions" by Miss Marvis Anderson of Hederston, and a play, "Think on Thy Way," by the Mt. Olive League. A revised Constitution and By-laws were read and adopted. The Conference voted to take as a project the financing of preparations to send Rev. and Mrs. Wesley Calvary as Foreign Missionaries to Japan when they are ready to go. Jane Perry, from Laneville, won the State Sword Drill for the second consecutive year.

Another interesting feature was the report from the League Board of Directors in which they announced the gift of 20 acres of land 3 miles out of Nacogdoches off the Houston highway, which has been surveyed and deeded to the Texas Free Will Baptist Association, with the League Board of Directors as temporary trustees. It was also announced that a ground-clearing meeting would be held Labor Day, Sept. 4, to clear the grounds of underbrush and make ready for building. Friends far and near are invited to attend, bringing work tools and lunch. A jeep station wagon with large Encampment sign will be on the city square from 8-11 a. m. directing people to the grounds. Wouldn't you like to be a "Charter Member" in this great denominational enterprise?

Oldest City in the World

Damascus, situated southwest of Mt. Ararat, is said to be the very oldest city in the world. To-day it has a population of about 300,000, which makes it a center of commercial importance and of considerable influence. It is celebrated for the cloth made there, for its steel blades, its plums and its turpentine trees.

Twenty-seven centuries have passed into history since Rome was founded. Damascus was an ancient city when the Roman empire was merely beginning its childhood. The mysterious pyramids and still more mysterious and awe inspiring sphinx have reared their towering and massive outlines above the shifting sands of Egypt for more than 3,000 years, and yet the city of Damascus is older than they.

Even the ancient wall of China is a work of modern construction when viewed from the ancient standpoint of Damascus. And as for the cities of Northern and Western Europe and the very oldest cities of the Western hemisphere, they are as saplings compared to an ancient oak when the antiquity of Damascus is taken into consideration. In fact it makes America look like a baby.—Grit.

THE SPIRIT OF THE WORLD

Paul R. Roffe

The man or woman who has responded to the call of Jesus Christ and tasted of the grace and love of God has been lifted to a high plane and introduced into a rich life of heavenly powers and blessing. Yet, strange to say, many who know this unspeakable privilege fail to apprehend it and seem content to live very much as other people whose lives were never touched by the divine hand of the Saviour. In appearance, habits and thought, most of us who bear the name of Christ can scarcely be distinguished from everybody else, so that the Church, which was meant to be a light in the midst of darkness, has apparently been content more and more like the very darkness it was expected to dispell. Saddest of all, however, is the fact that even in those circles where spiritual fervor seems keenest, little or nothing is ever said about the way Christian people ought to carry themselves in the midst of a world which does not and can not recognize Jesus Christ as Lord. The result is that a drift towards worldliness has set in which, sooner or later, unless it is checked, will surely sap the vigor of our testimony and leave us powerless to serve the interests of our Master.

First of all, then, we face the question: What is the spirit of the world? John tells us that what is in the world is lust, or in other words, desire; and that both the world and its desires are of very short duration—they pass away. A very good example can be seen in the case of Esau, the day when he came in from his hunting, ravenously hungry, and found his brother cooking a pot of lentils. His appetite so completely filled his mind that he could not think of anything else. He must get something to eat, and get it in a hurry. Whatever else happened, he must eat, and eat at once. In such a frame of mind he was willing to barter away the spiritual blessings of eternal value for a meal that would tide him over for a matter of four or five hours. That, actually, is the spirit of the world. It is more interested in immediate gain than in future riches; willing to forego all future satisfaction for immediate happiness. It turns from the hereafter to clutch at the "now"—from the invisible to embrace what it can see and feel and possess at once.

You see it on every hand. In business people are urged to "Get it now—pay for it later." In Bible times the slogan of the world was, "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." Today it is pretty much the same: with movies, literature, conversation and custom all extolling the life of pleasure and freedom from restraint, with education based on self-expression, with psychologists urging people to get rid of their inhibitions, and with the courts treating criminals merely as unfortunate victims of their environment, it adds up to the same old spirit of the world: "Go after what you want, regardless of consequences." Dress it up as you will with culture, diplomacy and anything else, worldliness is still what the Word of God declares it to be: "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes and the pride of life" and it is definitely "not of the Father, but of the world."

Over against this spirit the Scriptures present the appeal of the Spirit of God which is exactly the opposite. He urges us to buy of Him true riches, those that will never pass away. It seems as if He deliberately chooses to withhold them from us now, except in part, so as to make the contrast all the greater. He wants us to be able to say "I can afford to wait." And so the man of faith turns from the trashy gilded toys of time and chooses to await the day when heaven's wealth will all be his, by divine grace. No man ever sets out on the Christian pathway without choosing between some present advantage and eternal life. The way of life becomes in very truth a pilgrim way, and those who walk it are never more nor less than strangers in this world. It is not their permanent residence, but merely a scene that they glimpse briefly as they pass through.

One of the most beautiful developments in Christian character is the grace of patience. It is a grace which springs from the pruning work of discipline. What strength of character comes from holding one's desires in check! That is one reason why the Lord has so ordered our lives that we must work for whatever we want. We do not find everything packaged and waiting for us to pick up whenever we want it. A crop has to be sown and sweated for before it is stowed away in the barn. A home has to be paid for with the toil of many a weary month and year before we can call it our own. An education must be won with diligent work, painful concentration and deep thought. None of these things is to be had just for the asking. The very toil, the long delay, the patient, hopeful waiting all contribute to develop that firmness and stability of character, that soundness of judgment and that toleration towards others that are absolutely priceless.

When it comes to spiritual things the Lord will never hand out true riches without putting us through this discipline of delay. Knowing this, and knowing also our hasty spirit and our natural desire to get what we are after immediately, the devil offers all kinds of things with an immediate return. Food, comforts, gadgets, amusements, business, politics—all appeal to us these days as things to satisfy us now. Marriage, if it does not work at once, is tossed aside at the least provocation. A job, if it presents some disagreeable feature, is lightly abandoned with the irresponsible hope that something better will turn up. Feverishly we run from one thing to another, always looking for something that will satisfy our cravings, and never waking up to the fact that nothing, absolutely nothing can satisfy us but God Himself.

You can know Him and have His friendship. But that experience will never come the devil's way. It comes only when you turn away from all else that men hold dear, renounce the spirit of this world, crown Him King, the Sovereign of your life and leave yourself utterly in His hands, to do His will, to wait His time and hold nothing dear except as it is hallowed by His approval.

WHAT ARE FREE WILL BAPTISTS GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

It is evident that, in a great many instances in towns and cities, Free Will Baptist churches have been and are losing many of their youthful members to other churches. And there is a reason, or a cause, for this situation.

For example, we personally know of some instances in which teen-age members of our churches have left our churches and taken membership with other denominations. Our observation in these cases is simply this: Churches of other denominations in the towns in reference furnish various recreational features for the young people in their buildings at stated times, for the enjoyment of those young people, regardless as to the churches they belong. This type of church entertainment has been and still is attractive to the youth of Free Will Baptist churches in those centers, as well as for all other young people of other churches. Consequently, after awhile many of our young boys and girls take membership with those churches which have been giving them enjoyable entertainment. And the answer is plain.

This situation has grown up in such places due to the fact, according to the statements of some of our young people, that our churches are not providing for them wholesome recreation periods and entertainment which they are seeking to enjoy from time to time. Not that they do not like our church, but that they find this feature of religious entertainment lacking in a great many of our town and city churches, and that they go out seeking such entertainment among other young people of the other denominations. And, of course, sooner or later they are moved to take membership with them.

Free Will Baptists, this is our problem. How shall we handle it? Are we to rear up from childhood our children in the Free Will Baptist church and Sunday School to lose them to other churches when they grow into their teens? Are we going to be willing to make adequate religious entertainment for our youth in connection with our church and Sunday School work, or are we going to go on as in the past, and continue to lose them? That is the question. Their youthful nature is the same as that of other young people of other churches of other denominations. And our neglect to provide, as church people, wholesome and clean recreation and entertainment for our own young church members will not change their urge for this type of entertainment among church people. If we will not arrange it for them, they will go where they can get it with other church groups. Do you blame them?

Obviously enough, this is a matter for consideration for each individual Free Will Baptist church in those towns and cities where they are confronted with this kind of problem. Some of our churches are taking care of this condition in some of the states; and they are doing it in a commendable way, we are told. However, it does appear that in other places where our churches are not taking care of this condition, the churches of other denominations are doing it in a way as to be able to interest and entertain our young church people. Wherever this has become a problem among the town or city churches, it certainly behooves those Free Will Baptist churches to do something to hold their young people in the church. Feed the child with wholesome food, and give it a good place to stay, and it will love you. Provide adequate and wholesome spiritual recreation and entertainment for your young church members, and let them know that you love them, and they will not be so prone to join the ranks of other church groups for the very thing you are giving them. The Free Will Baptist denomination has lost hundreds, during the last quarter of a century, of our young church members to other denominations because of this situation, and it will continue to lose many more in years to come unless our church people are willing to wake up, and do something for the youth of the church. You need not doubt it.

THE PRINTS OF CHARACTER

Professor Marsh some years ago gave to Yale University the finest collection of footprints that ever was made. A collection of footprints! Yes, great slabs of red sandstone, on which are not only footprints of birds and reptiles, but even the autographs of raindrops left by a passing shower. These marks were made thousands and thousands of years ago. The stone was soft sand then. It hardened, as the centuries went on, but the marks are there. Boys and girls and young men and young women are making marks on their lives like that. A man's character means a man's "marks." Character is just a Greek word which means "mark." These footprints of your thoughts, and words, and decisions, and actions will remain, and gradually they will make character. Judged by your tracks in the soft, yielding sand of your fast-hardening nature, as it matures toward manhood and womanhood, what sort of a character are you going to have?

VISION THROUGH PRAYER

God is calling His people to give more time to praying. As we give ourselves to prayer, realization of the appalling situation seizes us. "Where there is no vision, the people perish." As we pray, God gives us a vision of the lost world; we appreciate the value and preciousness of souls. We see them through the eyes of Jesus and feel for them after His heart. We shudder as the awfulness of sin is revealed to us, and then it is that we ask for souls until our asking becomes the most wondrous intercession; then it is that we come forth from our closet with a passion for souls that inspires us to press the battle to the very gates of hell.

Men of achievement are men of vision. This is invariable true, and especially so of evangelism. If we do not see in men marred by sin great possibilities for God, why, of course, we will not put forth an effort to secure their salvation. This is where the vision comes in, and the spirit of prayer will enable us to arise above the discouraging outward appearance and trust God to give us "brands from the burning." No man has gone down the scale of life so far but that the grace of God can reach and save him. Doubtless in the worst sinner there is a diamond in the rough, perchance a great soul-winner, why not?

Co-operation with God

The Church to-day needs a vision, but vision and prayer are inseparable. Oh that God's people as a whole had a vision of His perfect holiness, His matchless love, His limitless grace, and His infinite power! Everything is complete on God's part, and nothing can be added to completeness. God is able and willing to give revivals. "The eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew Himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward Him." Now on the manward side we need to see the great possibilities to faith and the life that is saturated with the spirit of prayer. We must co-operate with God, and then God will gladly do what is in His heart to do, but which He cannot always consistently do because His people are not in the place where He wants them. The church that prays can have a revival, but the people must not only agree to pray, they must agree to get the answer. Prayer is the course leading to the revival goal, and if there are obstacles in the way God will remove them as we pray.

The Time to Pray

An evangelist whose ministry was mightily owned of God relates to us how he was invited to conduct a revival campaign in a certain denominational church. Most of the members were rich and influential. It was not, therefore, a question of financing the meetings; but it was a question of having a revival. The first night the people sang while the evangelist wept. They thought it strange, but let it pass. The second night the same thing happened again. Now they began to think they had secured the wrong evangelist. The third night they were about to begin singing again, when the evangelist rose and said: "Brethren, if you want a revival, in God's Name close those hymn books, shut down that organ and get down on your knees; this is not a time to sing, this is a time to pray." With this pointed exhortation they all dropped to their knees. Soon they were sobbing and weeping as though their hearts would break, and before the service was over many confessions were made, reconciliations were effected, and some must needs make restitution. Then the revival broke out, and the tide of power rose every night and many souls were blessedly saved. Had not God given this evangelist to see conditions as they were, the revival would not have broken out. It took prayer to break up the deeps of the people's hearts and make them responsive to God and His demands. Once the spirit of prayer took hold of them the hindering causes were rapidly removed.—Publisher Unknown.

NEWS FROM MOTHER CHURCH, NEW ZION, S. C.

Our Free Will Baptist league reorganized, and elected officers as follows: Pres., L. B. Morris; Vice President, Mrs. Rhames Morris; Secy.-Treas., Ivey Wallace; Group Leader, Mrs. Rhames Morris; Group Captain, Mr. F. B. Robinson; Sword Drill, Mrs. Ashbelle Knowlton, and Daily Bible reading explained by Hugh Baker.

We are happy to say that our League is wide awake and progressing very nicely. Our young people take an active part in our programs, especially our younger group, which of course gives them great encouragement and inspiration in their work. Our League isn't only enjoyed by the younger people but the older people are also interested. We feel that our organization has no age limit but we find a place for both young and old.

We are asking all those who read this announcement to be much in prayer for our League. And not only our League but our church also, that we may advance toward the training of our young people and that our church might go forward towards winning souls to Christ.

Liberty Officers and Teachers Hold Meeting

Liberty officers and teachers held their meeting on August 18. They opened the meeting with prayer by Clarence Baggett. The superintendent read the scripture lesson. A discussion concerning the duty of the teacher was entered into, and Mrs. Mary Brewer, who attended the National S. S. Convention, gave to us a brief report on what a teacher's duty really is. It was an interesting report.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Anderson on Friday night after the first Sunday in September. The meeting closed with a song. Prayer was offered by Brother Early Brewer. Mrs. Zula Ridgeway served refreshments, which was enjoyed very much by all present.

THE BIBLE

Dr. Henry Van Dyke

Born in the East and clothed in Oriental form and imagery, the Bible walks the ways of all the world with familiar feet and enters land after land to find its own everywhere. It has learned to speak in hundreds of languages to the heart of man. It comes into the palace to tell the monarch that he is a servant of the Most High, and into the cottage to assure the peasant that he is a son of God. Children listen to its stories with wonder and delight, and wise men ponder them as parables of life.

It has a word of peace for time of peril, a word of comfort for time of calamity, a word of light for the hour of darkness. Its oracles are repeated in the assembly of the people, and its counsels whispered in the ear of the lonely. The wicked and the proud tremble at its warnings, but to the wounded and the penitent it has a mother's voice. The wilderness and the solitary places have been made glad by it, and the fire on the hearth has lit the readings of its well-worn page. It has woven itself into our dearest dreams; so that love, friendship, sympathy and devotion, memory and hope, put on the beautiful garments of its treasured speech, breathing of frankincense and myrrh.

No man is poor or desolate who has this treasure for his own. When the landscape darkens and the trembling pilgrim comes to the valley of the shadow, he is not afraid to enter; he takes the rod and staff of Scripture in his hand; he says to a friend and comrade, "Good-by, we shall meet again;" and comforted by that support, he goes toward the lonely pass as one who walks through darkness into light.—"Hints and Helps."

Bring the hopeless case to Christ! Lay your burden at His feet like a palsied man, and your burden will vanish. Christ is the Magnet for the needy ones—yield then to His sweet attraction, and let nothing prevent you reaching the place of blessing and comfort and joy, at His feet. Only the sinners seek a Saviour, and only to them that mourn is given the joy of the Lord. Your need is your "ticket" to His supply, therefore present it.—H. H. D.

The Picture-Show

Mabel Hale

"Mother, George wants me to go with him to a picture-show to-night. What shall I tell him?" The mother looked her son straight in the eyes for an instant. He was a manly fellow, possibly seventeen, and a student in the city high school.

"Do you wish to go with him?" she asked quietly.

"Of course not, mother, that point is all settled; but I want an answer which will make my refusal clear to him. He thinks it is simply a notion of mine. I want to win him, too, if I can."

I happened to overhear this conversation, and the mother turned to me and said, "Will you answer his question, please?"

Only a few days later a girl of the same age asked me almost the same question. She, too, was a high school pupil and the question had come up in their school work. Both of these young people were earnest Christians, most anxious that their lives should be good examples.

Putting aside all question as to what the picture-show might be, let us look at it fairly as it is. The pictures commonly shown are not calculated to enlighten an inquiring mind, but their purpose is to tickle the fancy of fun-lovers. There is nothing about them to awake the powers of the intellect, but rather to lull them while they please. Even if the moral tone was not low in the pictures, this would be condemnation enough to keep earnest, truth-loving people away.

But the moral tone is low. Scenes are portrayed which are suggestive and indelicate. While they may not always be really indecent, they carry the mind on to things that are very much out of place. Young men and women, boys and girls, sit together looking upon these suggestive scenes, each conscious of the thoughts of the other. How can such a course help but break down those feelings of delicacy and propriety which are the bulwark of morality?

These are also displayed before the eyes of these same young people scenes of love-making in the boldest and most daring manner. The heroes and heroines are pictured acting out scenes; there is no modesty, shyness, or embarrassment manifested in these scenes, and they can not but place wrong ideals before our young people.

Again, scenes of crime are depicted with the same truthness to life. Our boys and girls are schooled in methods and reasons for crime. Such pictures can only be demoralizing.

There are some good, educational pictures, but in with them there are generally thrown those of a foolish and light type.

This has to be done to keep interest in the good show. The thirst of the people is for the lighter kind.

When the downward trend of the show is so apparent, can a young Christian afford to yield his influence in going? While he might escape uninjured, is he ready to stand the blame for those who are emboldened to go by his example? What has been said of the picture-show is equally true of the theatre. "Lead us not into temptation."—Gospel Trumpet.

CHRISTIAN CHAPEL TO HAVE HOME-COMING DAY

There will be a Home-Coming day celebration at Christian Chapel F. W. B. Church observed on the first Sunday in October, 1950. The church is on Route One, out from the town of Pink Hill, North Carolina. We are expecting to have a great occasion on that day, with good music, a splendid service, and a fine dinner at the noon hour.

All members of the church, friends, former pastors are given a cordial invitation to be present for this all-day occasion. Come on time and bring a basket of food with you, and let us enjoy a splendid day together in the service of the Lord. Old friends and relatives, and the visiting people with us can all get acquainted, and have sweet fellowship together in the name of the Lord. There will be good singing in the afternoon by different choirs, and the congregation, which everyone will enjoy greatly.

An Appeal for Help

My Dear Christian People:

I have never begged for anything for myself before, but it looks like the time is now come for me to ask for some financial help from the brethren.

I have, the doctor says, cataracts on both of my eyes. And the doctor says that they are now ready to be taken off. I am a poor, feeble preacher, and do not have the money to have it done. I want the churches to help me all they can to have the cataracts removed from my eyes.

If anything should happen that I did not get them removed, I will refund the money, if they will let me have their address, if they want the money back. But if they would rather for me to keep it, then let me know. I will appreciate anything and everything anybody will give to me for this purpose.

New Sandy Hill Auxiliary Makes Good Record

The picture which you see with this article contains the members of our woman's auxiliary of the New Sandy Hill F. W. B. Church, which is located near the town of Bailey, Wilson County, North Carolina. These women are proud of their record made in Christian service. They are thankful to the Lord that they have been able to grow from a few in number to twenty members in a very short time.

This group of willing workers has among them the president of the Western conference of the second district, Mrs. Hattie Bunn. They have recently collected 4,676 coupons for the Middlesex Orphanage. They are life to right, first row: Mesdames Inez Bunn, Geraldine Williams, Frances Hall, Sennie Davis. Second row: Jennie Lee Sherrod, Shirley Creech, Evelyn Bunn, Thelma Sherrod, Hattie Bunn. Third row: Daisy Griffin, Janie Williams, Sadie Bunn, and Mary Creech. Those who were absent were Mesdames Z. C. Bissette, Bettie Lee Teddar, Cleo Bunn, Laura Bunn, Doris Bunn and Deliah Bissette. They were the 1948 winners of the banner in their district.

Notice

Dear Co-Workers,

I want to call your attention to superannuation work. Do you remember that I asked all the auxiliaries and the preachers at the first of the year to lay aside every week for superannuation month. I hope that you have done this. I feel that the Lord will bless us for our preachers having preached the gospel, and we ought to hold them up.

Preachers, remember, I want you to give ten per cent of what you make one Sunday out of the year.

For you will be old someday and would appreciate the thought of someone in the superannuation movement thinking of you in your old age.

Let's put our shoulder to the wheel and push the work, because it is a great work. Let's make this the biggest year in history. Preachers, push your churches and let's show them that we love them, and appreciate their prayers and the work for the church, and let the Lord be our guide in the work for the Lord, and may the Lord bless us in this work.

EAST NASHVILLE AUXILIARY REPORT

The East Nashville Church Auxiliary met at the church Aug. 29th for their regular meeting. The newly elected President, Mrs. Edna Harris, presided over the meeting. Mrs. Fannie Polston who recently visited our Tennessee children's home thrilled every one present, as she told us of her visit. They have fifty children from two years old up to eighteen. She told of the wonderful training Brother and Sister Stanley had given them. It made our hearts glad, and made us want so much to visit the home. It's to bad that our entire church could not have been present to hear her message. The meeting closed with a prayer of dedication for the new officers, led by Mrs. Polston.

Respectfully submitted by Mrs. O. C. Briley, Corresponding Secretary.

Nashville, Tennessee, Aug. 30.—The Woman's District Auxiliary Convention met Aug 23rd with the East Nashville Church, with a large attendance. Bro. Scott from the Bethlehem Church brought a stirring message at the eleven o'clock hour, which was enjoyed very much. The laides of the church served a bountiful dinner. Officers were elected for the coming year. Several churches were represented, with one new church coming into the convention.

LITTLE BETHEL AUXILIARY REPORT

We are glad to report that our Woman's Auxiliary is growing strong and we are enjoying the privilege and opportunity to work and serve the Lord.

We have changed our meetings from the 2nd Saturday to the 2nd Sunday on our regular preaching day, having our preaching service at 11 o'clock in the morning, and our Auxiliary meeting at 6 in the afternoon at the church.

At our last meeting we had 4 new members to join us in our Auxiliary meeting and was glad to have each one and hope it will grow stronger. We solicit the prayers of all the Christian people to pray for us as we carry on for our Saviour.

Mrs. Mamie Davis, Cor.-Secy.

THE LEAGUER

I am sure that you are interested in knowing more about our publication, The Leaguer. I am happy to report to you that subscriptions are pouring in, even before the announcement is circulated in the Baptist. It was my privilege to be guest speaker in the Fairmount Park Church in Norfolk, Va., August 27, and told them about our paper. Before I left twenty-three subscriptions had already been turned in. The churches are beginning to send in their subscriptions for the CHARTER MEMBERSHIP honors. These have responded thus far: Fairmount Park, Norfolk; Calvary, Durham; Dawson Grove, Scotland Neck; Rose of Sharron, Williamston. I also have the assurance that others will be forth coming. I want you to take the matter up with your church immediately and send in at least ten subscriptions at $1.00 each and get your name on our Honor Roll. Churches out of the state of North Carolina are graciously invited to participate with us in this great drive for subscriptions.

I must tell you of the change we have already made in our first issue. Instead of having just four pages we will have eight and with an art picture on the front page. Our first issue is scheduled to be off the press on or near September 20th. If you want to get your subscriptions in by that time get busy and send us all you can at $1.00 each. The number you may send is unlimited, but there must be at least ten to get in on the Honor Roll.

From now on, unless we notify you of a change in schedule, our press dead line will be on the 10th of each month. It may be necessary to move this up just a few days ahead, but we will try to hold to this until you are notified. Send articles prepared by our own people. Elect or appoint a reporter in your church and have them forward all items for publication to The Leaguer, P. O. Box 1265, Durham, N. C., not later than the 4th of each month. This will give me time to prepare the copy for the press.

PAUL, WORLD EVANGELIST

(Lesson for September 24)

Lesson: Acts 26:1-29.

Golden Text: 1 Corinthians 2:2.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

We deem it fitting to state briefly that Paul made five defenses of his life and Christian faith before the time when he was taken to Rome. His first defense was to the mob in Jerusalem at the time he was rescued by the captain (Acts 21:33-40; 22:1-6). Paul's second opportunity of defense was before the Jewish Sanhedrin (Acts 23:1-6). Paul was at Caesarea Philippi when he made his three succeeding defenses: one before Felix (Acts 24:10-21); another later before Festus (Acts 25:10:11); and the last defense was before King Agrippa (Acts 26:1-29) which was the most extended of the five he made while in Palestine.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.)

1. Obedience to the Heavenly vision will stop one from doing anything contrary to the Name of Jesus of Nazareth (Acts 26:9).

2. Obedience to the Heavenly vision will keep one from doing injustice to the servants of the Lord (vs. 10).

3. Obedience to the Heavenly vision will not seek to cause anyone to take a stand against the Lord Jesus Christ (vs. 11).

4. Obedience to the Heavenly vision supersedes the authority of any other power (vs. 12).

5. The light from Heaven surpasses any other light and penetrates the deepest spiritual darkness (vs. 13).

6. The light from Heaven reveals to us the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ (vs. 15).

8. The light from Heaven brings the call of God to service for Him among men (vs. 16).

9. The light from Heaven brings the assurance of God's care and protection in His service (vs. 17).

10. The light from Heaven reveals the purpose of God through our obedience to His call (vs. 18).

11. Paul's sincerity of purpose is worthy of notice. His error lay in the fact that he verily thought within himself, and refused to let God direct him in his thoughts. It is possible for one to have conscientious motives, and yet be grievously wrong. One might be blinded by selfishness or prejudice, and at the same time have great zeal for a cause without sufficient knowledge and understanding to act wisely in the matter. It was so with Paul while he was Saul the persecutor.—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.)

12. How wonderful that Saul could say to King Agrippa, "I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision" (v. 19). In obedience to the call and commission of Christ, Paul had gone throughout Jerusalem and Judea and to all the Gentiles with the message that they should repent, be converted, do works worthy of repentance (v. 20). Paul's was a full message. He undoubtedly made clear to those to whom he ministered that genuine faith involved a life which honors God.—Moody Monthly

13. We can hardly realize how much time and energy this great Apostle gave to prayer. In a number of his Epistles he states that he is always praying for the churches (Rom. 1:9; Col. 1:9; Eph. 1:16; I Thess. 1:2; II Thess. 1:11), and also for those who were his associates in the work (II Tim. 1:3). No doubt when he spoke of his daily "care of all the churches" (II Cor. 11:28) he also included prayer. But he also offered up intercessory prayer in another direction. He never forgot that he was an Israelite, the race from which the Saviour came, and with all his heart he prayed to God for the salvation of Israel (Rom. 9:1-5; 10:1).—Selected

II. The Lesson Illustrated

How About Paul?

Some years ago in the Northwestern University, near Chicago, a rescue crew was organized. Their purpose was the rescue of the drowning on the lake. One day the news came that a magnificent vessel was wrecked just off shore. The young men hurried at once to the scene of the disaster, and plunged into the angry waters to rescue those who were going down. Soon they all returned, but one. Finally he came in bringing one man with him. Immediately he returned, and soon brought another, and then another, and so on until he had rescued ten. During this time his mates had built a fire and were warming themselves, all the time trying to persuade the young hero against his conviction of duty. By the time he had brought the tenth man he was completely exhausted, and had to rest for a while. Regaining sufficient strength, he again plunged into the water and brought another man. Now he was completely overcome. During the night he died from exposure. It was a sad scene. While friends stood around weeping, and his fellow students were regretting that they had not forced him to do as they had, he called one of them to his bedside, and said in a low subdued tone, just before he died:

"Did I do my best?"

Instantly his friend said: "Yes, I should think you did do your best. You saved eleven, but you have lost your life."

"But," said he, "did I do my best, my dead level best?"

"Yes, you did your dead level best."

Then a smile seemed to come over his face as if to say: "Then I am satisfied to die."

Oh, my friends, this will be somewhat of our experience when we are in the presence of God in eternity! "Did I do my best, my dead level best?"—L. G. Broughton.

Great talkers are often little doers.

Third Union Report, Eastern Conference

The third union of the Eastern Conference of North Carolina met with North East Church on July 29, 1950. It was opened at ten o'clock with the devotions which were conducted by Ralph Summers, and prayer was offered by Rev. A. L. Reynolds. The temporary committees were appointed and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The list of ministers was called with 11 present. Rev. M. E. Godwin of the Cape Fear Conference was with us. Rev. C. L. Patrick of the Central Conference was also with us. The list of churches was called with only two churches not representing. The union sermon was preached by Rev. A. L. Reynolds. He took as his text Phil. 2:5, and his subject was, "Let This Mind be in You Even as It Was in Christ Jesus." At the close of the sermon the union was dismissed for the lunch hour.

After enjoying a fine lunch, we re-assembled in the church for the afternoon session. The reports of the various boards were read and adopted. It was moved that the Finance Committee retire and settle with the treasurer, and the the treasurer make his report. This motion was carried.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Brought forward from last union was $2.03. Received today, $224.50, making a total of $226.53.

The petitions were taken up for the next union, and by vote it was agreed that the union will meet the next time with Beulaville F. W. B. Church on October 28, 1950. Rev. Alton Hill, Jr., will preach the union sermon, and Rev. A. L. Reynolds his alternate.

A motion was made that the chair appoint a Planning Committee for the district assembly grounds. Rev. Lloyd Vernon, Fountain Taylor, and N. L. Tadlock were appointed. A motion was made and carried that the church that invites the union, if they have the oldest right, gets it. It was moved and carried that we extend a rising vote of thanks to this church for their kindness shown this session of the union meeting. It was moved and carried that Rev. Alton Hill preach tomorrow. A motion was made that an offering for Brother H. Pipkin, and for Brother Robert Kennedy, and that it be divided equally between them. There was raised $52.00.

By motion the union adjourned.

SECOND UNION DISTRICT OF CENTRAL CONFERENCE OF NORTH CAROLINA

Our Union met at Marlboro Church fifth Saturday in July. Rev. C. J. Harris, the moderator, was present to preside over the meeting. Brother Cicero Smith was present to give the opening devotions. Brother Leroy Forlines led in prayer and continued the program speaking on the subject, "Who Is a Missionary." He explained that a missionary is one who is sent by God to carry God's message to those who know not Christ."

Ten of our ministers were present. We had six visiting ministers. They were M. L. Tyndall, Allen Bryan, D. W. Hansley, L. B. Manning, James Evans, and J. T. Forrest.

Sister Marvin James told "Who Are Our Missionaries." She named nine and told where they are today.

Rev. James Evans spoke about "The Revival of Missions Among the F. W. B."

Preceding the Union sermon Brother Leroy Forlines led in congregational singing. Rev. W. B. Nobles preached the sermon using as his topic, "Love, Our Motive of Missions."

That concluded our morning session so Rev. D. W. Hansley dismissed us and we went out to enjoy the nice lunch prepared for us.

Rev. M. L. Tyndall opened the afternoon session. After his devotions we had special music. Miss Leah McGlohon and Brother Leroy sang, "Nailed to the Cross." Miss McGlohon and Mrs. Guy Corbett sang "Whispering Hope."

Miss McGlohon took another part on the program, speaking about "The Local Church in Redemptive Program of Missions."

During a brief business period we voted to go to King's Cross Roads church for the next union. We extended Marlboro church a rising vote of thanks for their kind hospitality shown the union.

Rev. J. T. Forrest spoke on "The Divine Message and Mission of Christ." Rev. M. A. Woodard told "What This Union Can Do for the Continuing Work of Missions."

We have a new rule as to when we will elect our officers. It was moved that we elect them at the last union in the calendar year.

West Fork Association, Tex. Program

The F. W. B. West Fork Association of the State of Texas convened with the Pleasant Mound church near Buffalo Springs, Texas, on August 25 through 31.

The officers for the coming year include Rev. Tiff Covington, pastor of the First F. W. B. Church of Bowie, as moderator; C. J. Hearron, pastor of the Gartman's View Church near Comanche, assistant moderator; Mrs. A. F. Ferguson Weatherford as clerk; and A. J. Fielding, pastor of Bonnie View Church, Dallas, as treasurer.

A Home Mission Board, composed of three ministers and four laymen, was named to raise funds for the purpose of starting more Free Will Baptist churches within the bounds of the West Fork Association. This board was granted the authority to appoint a missionary, when sufficient funds have been raised, to work under the supervision of the Board. Rev. M. L. Sutton, Route 3, Box 48, Arlington, Texas, was elected chairman of the Board, and C. J. Hearron, 1114 Lewis Bellemead, Texas, was elected secretary-treasurer. The Board asks each church in the association to contribute $25 per member per month to promote the cause of Home Missions. Fifty dollars was received at the association from those attending.

A committee of two members was appointed to work with the young director to formulate plans for a Youth Camp for the association. These plans are to be presented at the next session. Rev. W. H. Richards and Norman Ferguson were appointed to work with Mrs. Marie Bassham toward this goal.

Sincerely,
C. J. Hearron

A Prayer

Dear Lord, I pray for guidance,
Lest I should go astray;
When the way's dark and dreary,
Lead me aright, I pray.

Here in this world about me,
Are clouds of doubt and grief;
I need your presence always,
For life is incomplete.

I know that Thou didst suffer,
Whil hanging on the cross;
That all men through you might live,
And not a soul be lost.

So, when I seek Thee earnestly,
To guide me all the way;
I know that you'll be with me,
You paid the price that day.

—Beatrice Walker Wallace

You can not be wholly successful by half-hearted efforts.

BUTTON UP YOUR LIPS

If you heard a bit of gossip
Whether false, or whether true,
Pe it of a friend, or stranger,
Let me tell you what to do.
Let me tell you what to do.
Button up your lip securely;
Lest the tale you should repeat
Bring sorrow unto some one
Whose life now is none too sweet.

If you see a careless action
That would bring its author woe,
If it were construed unkindly,
Let me tell you what to do.
Button up your lip securely;
'Tis far better to keep silent
Than to cause a tear or sigh.

If you know of one who yielded
To temptation long ago,
But whose life has since been blameless
Let me tell you what to do.
Button up your lips securely,
His the secret, God alone
Has the right to sit in judgment,
Treat it as to you unknown.

Sometimes life is filled with troubles
Oft its burdens are severe,
Do not make it any harder
By a careless word or sneer,
Button up your lips securely,
'Gainst the words that bring a tear
But be swift with words of comfort,
Words of praise and words of cheer.
—Unknown.

A PARENT'S PRAYER

Thou who a tender parent art
Pegard a parent's plea;
My offspring, with an anxious heart,
I now commend to Thee.

My children are my greatest care,
A charge which Thou hast given;
May charge their every heart prepare
To seek the joys of heaven.

If a centurian could succeed
Who for his servant cried,
Wilt Thou refuse to hear me plead
For those so near allied?

Almighty Father, God of grace,
Be to my children kind;
Among Thy saints give them a place
And leave not one behind.
—George Whitefield

WORTH REPEATING

Science says man can live forever.
Philosophy says man wants to live forever.
Ethics says man ought to live forever.
Christianity says man will live forever.

Lessons learned in hard times are forgotten in good times.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in the Baptist.

Brother C. H. Baggat Passes

On July the 16, 1950, Brother C. H. Baggat laid down his life in a good old age, and went home to be with his fore fathers. He was born on August the 31, 1871, and surrendered to the righteous life of Jesus and joined Liberty F. W. B. Church when he was about twelve years old. He remained with the same church all his life, a loyal member and devout Christian. Bro. Baggat served as Deacon of his church the major part of his life. It was his delight to talk and pray with the sick and suffering of the church and vicinity. As his former pastor, the writer never was embarrassed to go to him for advice and counsel.

Brother Baggat leaves a devoted wife, two sons and three daughters, and a host of grand and great grand-children to mourn, not over his future life, but his absence from them.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB

"Mary had a little lamb" when she lived in the mountains, and a big dog, too. The lamb was called "Toodles" and the dog "Big Oodles." She loved them very much and had happy times with them.

Early one morning a terrible thing happened. Toodles found a hole in the fence, crawled through it, and ran away. Big Oodles was watching an eagle that was flying near. When the eagle swooped down, Big Oodles saw the lamb. Barking loudly he jumped over the gate, only to see the eagle pick up Toodles and fly away. At once the big dog started up the mountain to the rescue. He knew where the eagle lived.

The climb was steep and dangerous. The dog's fur coat and feet were torn by thorns and sharp rocks. Once a snake hissed at him, then a lion roared, but he kept on. Running, jumping, walking carefully, he finally arrived at the nest. The eagle saw him and started toward him, but Big Oodles barked and barked. This scared the eagle away, and the big dog stretched over the ledge, picked up the trembling little lamb in his mouth, and started back down the mountain to safety. It was a long trip.

Meanwhile the family awoke, and Mary soon saw that her pets were gone! They searched everywhere. Everybody was puzzled and Mary was in tears. She couldn't even eat, until Daddy said, "I'm sure that Big Oodles is with Toodles and will bring her back, Mary. Dry your tears, dear, and get ready for Bible Club. It is Saturday, you know."

At club the teacher said, "Our verse today is Isaiah 53:6. 'All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned everyone to his own way.'" Mary interrupted, "My little lamb is l-l-lost." The children knew Toodles. They felt sorry for Mary. The teacher said, "We'll ask the Lord Jesus to bring back your lamb, Mary." "Yes," sobbed Mary. The teacher prayed and asked the Lord to help the big dog find the little lamb.

Then the teacher put up a lovely picture of a steep mountainside, with the little lamb hanging in a thorn bush over the cliff and a great eagle in the sky. She held her hand over part of the picture. She said, "You are like this little sheep, children. He was foolish. He went his own way. We do that, too, don't we, children? The verse Isaiah 53:6 says so. The Bible tells us, 'Children, obey your parents,' but we disobey them. We go our own way and get into trouble. We have an enemy, too," and he pointed to the big eagle. Our enemy is Satan. He wants children to come his way.

But we have a Saviour, the Lord Jesus (she lifted her hand). Just as this shepherd is stretched out over the cliff to reach down to save the sheep, so the Lord Jesus came to die on the cross to save us. The sheep should die because he ran away, but the shepherd loves him and risks his life to save him. The Lord Jesus loves us and died that He might save us. 'The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all.'

"What would you think if the sheep would say, 'I like these thorns. It's fun here! I want the eagle to get me and eat me!'

Wouldn't that be foolish?" Mary's eyes again filled with tears. She cried out: "I-I-I know my lamb wants to be saved AND I WANT JESUS TO SAVE ME, TOO!" Teacher let Mary read Romans 10: 13—"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Mary's heart was filled with joy. When she came home, she saw big Oodles coming down the mountain carrying Toodles in his mouth! Saved! How happy and thankful she was.

You are lost and need a Saviour. God tells us so in His Word. Jesus is willing and able to save you today if you will trust Him.

Altitude

Duke University Library
82 1330
Durham, N. C.

"It's safer flying high," declared the pilot;
We climbed another thousand feet or so;
"The higher up we are the better landing, Emergency airports ahead, below."

"It's safer flying high"—sometimes it echoes
When conscience indicates the need of care,
When tempted to some base of fleshly interest,
And sin presents itself in colors fair.

The sky way is the highway for the victor,
For those who wish to live among the few,
So evident in life as in air travel—
The farther from the earth, the fuller view.

The hills of difficulty are no longer,
The mountains of despair are ironed smooth;
When high and looking down upon your problems,
The deep and darker valley seems a groove.

No fogs will blur the lines of demarkation,
And make the black of wrong a blended gray.
When you are living in the open sunshine,
Where altitude will brighten all your way.

"It's safer flying high," says the apostle,
The world beneath, and God's own blue above;
Remember Christ is seated in the heavens,
And you are with Him there—climax of love!

How worthless then the world, how dull its glory,
When you live high, and far enough away
To get a sense of values, wise and proper;
Then why not live your altitude today?

To Free Will Baptists Everywhere

Introduction

Free Will Baptists are a people of different opinions and customs but they are a people who love God and will reflect the very image of Christ under the right leadership and tolerance.

We have the woman preacher and the anti-woman preacher.

We have the tobacco crowd and the anti-tobacco crowd.

We have the feet-washers and the non-feetwashers.

We have the progressive and non-progressive.

We have the educated and the uneducated.

We have the mission minded and the non-mission minded.

We have the post, the pre, and non-millennialists.

We have the high emotional and the cold and formal.

We have the tithers and the non-tithers.

We have a past record, a present challenge, and a future possibility.

We are on the Rock. We are not on the sand.

We are on the One Foundation, but we need to take heed how we build thereon. From the extremes let us find the medium and "attempt great things for God," and "expect great things from God," praying, asking in faith, nothing wavering.

The Medium Is "World Evangelism"

One of the best and quickest ways to stop any kind of trouble, or erase any doubt or suspicion, that may arise in a church, is for that church to get souls saved. Sinners coming to Christ in a church, will stop wagging tongues of gossip, it will break up the fellow ground in hearts, it will solve the problem of finance and will gain for that church the confidence and respect of any community.

Free Will Baptists everywhere believe this. The only reason for a church to exist is that we might lead the lost to Christ. Men everywhere are lost, thus we must either go everywhere in person or by proxy in order that lost men may be saved. It is high time that Free Will Baptists everywhere stop "dickering" about our own "fancies" and take our eyes off "personalities," crucify our own "whims," and see only a lost world and the Lord Jesus Christ as the only Savior (Acts 4:12).

It matters little whether or not we shall spend a thousand years with Christ here on the earth, or in the air, or whatever it may be, the thing to be concerned about is that we shall be with Him, and "we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as he is." It matters little, through whom we channel our services in carrying out this program of world evangelism, but it matters much if we fall short of our task.

Proof that some of us here at home have failed in some way is revealed in the following letter recently received from our Mission Director in Cuba: We believe that Free Will Baptists everywhere should know these facts. Please read the letter prayerfully, and then may we all ask ourselves the question, "Where have I failed?"

Rev. Raymond Riggs

Dear Brother Riggs:

Greetings. We are rather up-to-date on discouragements—long ago we learned to take them in our stride.

We had planned to begin school September 18—the students coming in on the 11th to get the buildings in order, but under the circumstances the best thing we can do is to suspend school for five months.

At the present the check is a month and fifteen days behind and we are running on one month's credit with our merchants. Our name for being prompt in business is of great value to us in Pinar and we want to maintain that reputation. I think this would be a shock to our people here in Cuba as well as in the States.

Our expenses for this coming year naturally will be much higher. We have placed our four graduates in full-time service and with pay corresponding. We are expecting seven new students and have refused as many or more. We are just taking men. In order to prepare those we could not accept, we are arranging a correspondence course. Hence if we start on time it will depend on the finances being sent to us in time. I would like to know your reaction to this proposal: To suspend the opening of school for five months.

Bob and Jerry Wilfong have a baby girl, born August 18. This means additional financial support for them—the hospital alone was over $300.00. They are desperately in need of a house. Where they are living can only be called a hut; I had thought of asking for additional funds to build them a small cottage.

Benito married one of our graduates last month—this means additional financial step up due to an increase in his salary. We managed to repair the old dormitory for them. Mario, one of our graduates, who taught last year, is making plans to marry next summer. He is pastor of San Juan. Victor, another graduate, is begging me to help him get his house ready for his bride—he can't marry till he has a house. Estenio, pastor of Jibicos, who is to graduate this coming year, wants to marry. So on, and on, and on. I am sure the Lord is coming soon. (Not because everybody is getting married.) Then all family troubles, along with divers others, will be at an end. These boys really sacrifice, living alone and cooking for themselves. They really need wives.

We have no desire to take hasty ac-

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

THE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE

Free Will Baptist BELIEVE in the INSPIRATION of the Bible. We believe that it is "God's revealed word to man." We believe that God said write thus and so and it was written accordingly, as God dictated to the writer. We have a reason for such belief and here it is:

"And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount. We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star rises in your hearts; knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:18-21). Thus, since we are fundamentalists, we believe in the whole Bible. Here is another scripture which gives us further evidence as to the inspiration of the Bible:

"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Tim. 3:16, 17).

"And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth; and I will be with thy mouth and with his mouth and will teach you what ye shall do" (Ex. 4:15).

With these scriptures and many others that we might record from the Word of God, why should any one be misled by minds that have been seduced by doctrines of devils? But, in the face of God's Word, some men are led off after such false doctrines as "Christian Science," which is neither Christian nor science, as Russellism, or called of late "Jehovah's Witnesses," Mormonism, or Seventh-Day Judaizers, Modernism and many other "isms" that deny some of the fundamental doctrines of the Bible.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST

We Free Will Baptists believe that Christ's body was literally resurrected from the grave. The reason that we believe it is based on the God's revealed Word to man. "The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre . . . Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him Rabboni; which is to say, Master" (John 20:1-16). Get your Bible right now and read verses 2 through 15 and then read on through the whole chapter and see what the inspired John wrote concerning the resurrection of Christ. Notice the 26th verse which reads, "And after eight days again the disciples were within and Thomas with them; then came Jesus and stood in their midst, and said, Peace be unto you." Notice that it says "After eight days" Sunday and Sunday is eight—one Lord's Day and another Lord's Day make EIGHT. This is Christ's Resurrection Day. He arose on the First Day, Eight days from then makes another FIRST day of the week. Pentecost came on the First day of the week. It was a Holy day. Thus the first day of the week became the Christian day of rest and worship. The anti-type is set up in the 23rd chapter of Leviticus. Be sure to read and understand God's inspired Word.

Some of the false prophets believe that the body of Jesus was "stolen while the soldiers slept." Satan wants people to believe that falsehood. But some of the false prophets of later times would have you believe that the body of Christ "Turned to gasses, and escaped the tomb." But one of the latest and most daring false prophets, would have you believe that God took the body off in hiding and it is reserved by God, Thus, "God stole the body of Christ." The Jews said His disciples stole the body, but this false doctrine teaches that "God stole the body." or that is the teaching in substance.

When any one comes to your door with books, and records to play or any literature, regardless as to what class they belong, find out what they believe, as to the "Atoning Blood of Jesus Christ," "His substitutional death," "His sorrowful Soul," "His literal resurrection," and His "Coming again." Then get your Treatise of the faith and Practice of Free Will Baptist and see if their doctrine disagrees with anything that you find in the Treatise. You say, preacher, I don't have a Treatise. Well you can get one from either of our presses for 30 cents. Get it and be prepared for all false doctrines. We believe the whole Bible. Any doctrine that denies any of the fundamental doctrines, and inserts man made theology, and calls it religion, I refuse to tolerate. I refuse to "bid them God's speed."

ANOTHER FALSE DOCTRINE

It is claimed by the Mormons that their prophets can write Scripture as good as that of the Bible. But I don't believe a word of it. Where is the man that God has talked to and told to write? Of old, God said to the writer, "Write, thus saith the Lord." I believe that when the book of Revelation was closed that God had finished writing. John said "these things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that you may believe on the name of the Son of God" (I John 5:13).

EAST NASHVILLE F. W. B. CHURCH
518 Woodland Ave. Nashville, Tennessee

The Foreign Mission Board of the National Association of Free Will Baptists is sponsoring a Missionary Conference in Nashville, Tenn., on October 3rd, 4th, and 5th.

Miss Laura Belle Barnard, our missionary on furlough from India, and Rev. Thomas H. Wiley from Cuba will be the principal speakers.

In addition to the hours of inspiration and information, there will be periods for open forum and special clinics to which we urge all State Mission Board members, State Mission Directors, Field Workers, Missionary Candidates and Pastors to attend. We appeal for your presence at this Conference as we analyze our Foreign Mission Program.

One of the highlights of the Missionary Conference will be the showing of the Missionary Film, "Letter to Melittle." This film is produced by Missions Visualized, Inc., an arm of the National Association of Evangelicals, and is a dramatic production of our own Missionary Program in Cuba. The film will be released to be shown in churches for the support of Foreign Missions, after the Missionary Conference.

You can't afford to miss the Missionary Conference. First of its kind in the history of Free Will Baptists.

Shady Grove Celebrates First Centennial

Shady Grove has had an interesting history. The exact date that it was founded is not known, but 1850 has been set as the date of its organization. During the first years, the membership was made up of Free Will Baptist and Christ's Disciples. The believers in these two faiths met and worshipped together in a small log building across the road from the site of the present building. In 1857 a dispute arose between the members of these two doctrines and a separation became necessary.

In 1858, a group of loyal believers in the Free Will Baptist doctrine met and organized again. There were 24 charter members in this new organization, and they chose the following officers:

Deacon—Wiley West

Clerk—Wm. A. Jackson

Elders—John A. Butler and John Raynor

Treasurer—Robert Dawson

When the officers were ordained, the church called Elder Wm. Byrd, who served three years, as its first pastor. Since then the church has had 29 other pastors. 13 of these serving one year only. Elder Lundy Lee served the church for 10 years on 6 separate calls, Elder R. A. Johnson, 9 years on two calls, and Elder W. R. Coats, 8 years on one call.

The church grew and put forth sprouts. Lee's Chapel, Robert's Grove, Oak Grove and St. Paul grew out of Shady Grove membership. In spite of heavy losses to these churches the membership had reached 357 by 1900, and 434 by 1925. (It's present membership is about 313).

As the membership grew, it was necessary to replace the small log structure with a frame building on the same site as that of the present building. This was done in 1865. In 1894, the main body of the present building was erected. Sunday School rooms were added in 1925 and again in 1949.

As the church completes its hundredth year, it has a very progressive Sunday School with an average attendance of 162. Also to help the church push forward there is an active Ladies Aid of 29 members.

Like the lives of people, churches are built on love, sacrifices, offerings, and prayers. Many dollars have gone into the material structure as it now stands, but love, sacrifices, and prayers are the things that have made the church what it is, and have kept it moving forward. These gifts have not only kept our own church moving forward, but also the educational program of all F. W. Baptist Churches, Missions, the Orphanage, and other church programs have been supported continually through the years.

Rev. L. R. Ennis, present pastor, will deliver the Centennial sermon. Hon. William B. Umstead will deliver the Centennial Address at 2:00 in the afternoon. Special music will be a feature of the celebration. Dinner will be on the grounds. The public is invited to attend this celebration.

COMPETITION—WITH WHAT!

In 1949, according to liquor trade reports, the consumption of alcoholic beverages remained at a very high figure. Nearly $9,000,000,000 was paid for liquor at the retail figure, which might have gone into the purchase of food, clothing, shelter, equipment, savings, recreation, religious and educational support.

Based on accepted estimates of the number of alcoholics, the loss in time to American industry is more than 75,000,000 days of labor a year that might have been devoted to constructive endeavor, and this would have netted workers a return exceeding $750,000,000 in that time.—American Business Men's Research Foundation, Chicago, April, 1950.

Revival at Harrel's Chapel

A revival will begin October 8th, at Harrel's Chapel, Greene County, North Carolina. The pastor, Rev. T. P. Ellis, of Fountain, will bring the messages. We're looking forward to a wonderful time in the Lord. We extend a cordial invitation to each and everyone, also we especially invite all groups of singers to come, and render music each evening.

Dogology

When your dog loves you because it is dinner time, you are not sure of him; but when somebody else tempts him with a bone and he will not leave you, though just now you struck him, then you feel that he is truly attached to you . . . True affection does not depend upon what is just now receiving.

AND CONVENTION NEWS

LEAGUE BRIEFS FROM HERE,
THERE, and EVERYWHERE

Edited By LOY EVERETTE BALLARD

By Way of Introduction

This department has been absent from the Free Will Baptist so long that perhaps a word of introduction is in order. We propose now to present the department regularly, in co-operation with Youth's Banner, our young people's paper, as a medium through which leaguers may express themselves, and for the passing on of F. W. B. L. news. The news items coming in through our correspondents will be given in condensed form in this column, and in more detail in Youth's Banner from week to week.

An Opportunity for Leaguers

We are seeking a special correspondent on each F. W. B. L. organization over the country to keep us informed of league activities. We believe that our proposition will prove attractive to young people who are willing to co-operate with us. Just take a penny postal, write on it a bit of news about your league, and say "Please tell me about your proposition." Address the card to F. W. B. L. DEPARTMENT, The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.

63 New Banner Readers

It was the privilege of the editor of this department and of Youth's Banner to attend the North Carolina State Convention during the past week. While the F. W. B. L. work was not given any special emphasis during the meeting, we distributed copies of Youth's Banner, and samples of the league quarterlies, and moved quietly among the people, saying a word here and there in behalf of our youth publications. As a result there will be sixty-three new North Carolina readers of The Banner beginning with the issue for October 1st. The interest was good, the criticism of a helpful nature, and the encouragements many.

Oklahoma Youth Camp

A report has been received that around 63 young people attended the Youth Camp sponsored by leaguers of the Center Association of Oklahoma during the summer. Evangelistic services conducted in connection with the camp resulted in 29 conversions. Youth evangelists were Gilbert and Rupert Pixley of Arkansas.

Union Instruction Meet

With the editor of league literature as principal speaker, leaguers from New Bern, Oriental and Trent (North Carolina) churches met at Trent on Monday evening, September 11, for a union get-together for instruction in improved methods of league work. An Oriental group, under direction of Mrs. Evelyn Barker, demonstrated most impressively the sword drill, while intermediate leaguers from St. Mary's in New Bern demonstrated features of a Sunday evening league meeting. Rev. W. L. Moretz, pastor of Oriental and Trent churches had arranged the meeting and presided over the affair.

"The Task of the League"

Leaguers everywhere are urged to read "The Task of the League in Training for True Worship," which was printed in the August 30 edition of the Free Will Baptist, and will be reprinted by special request in Youth's Banner for October 1st. This fine article was written by James Emory Davidson, of Davis, North Carolina, and will prove a source both of inspiration and information to those who read it.

PATIENCE

Patience governs the flesh, strengthens the spirit, sweetens the temper, stifles anger, extinguishes envy, subdues pride. She teaches humility; bridle the tongue; restrains the hand; tramples on temptations; endures persecutions; consummates martyrdom. She comforts the poor; moderates the rich; makes us humble in prosperity; cheerful in adversity; unmoved by calumny and reproach. She teaches us to forgive those who have injured us, and to be first in asking forgiveness of those whom we have injured. She delights the faithful; invites the unbelieving; and is beautiful in every sex and age.—Bishop Horne.

IT IS BETTER

To frown on a lie than to tell a half-truth.

To speak the truth than to repent of a lie.

To build up a character than to tear it down.

To please the good than to please the wicked.

To do one deed of kindness than a dozen selfish deeds.

To reprove a transgressor than to try to prove him innocent.

To offend a guilty conscience than to defend a guilty person.

To help people find the right way than to turn them into the wrong way.—S. S. Herald.

: : EDITORIAL COMMENTS : :

THE NEED OF MISSION FUNDS

Our attention is called again, through the columns of the Baptist paper, to the need of the support of the cause of missions in our denomination. Reverends Raymond Riggs and Winford Davis, members of the Foreign Mission Board of the National Association, are laying before the readers of the Free Will Baptist paper in this issue the critical situation of the finances for the mission cause. In Cuba, it is thought that the school will have to defer its opening some months due to the fact that insufficient funds make it necessary to delay the opening of school. This situation is too bad for those students who are very desirous of being in school this fall. Unless the church people get busy and raise sufficient funds for this great need, Brother Thomas Willey will have to notify the students to stay out of school, at least for a while.

At this season of the year, when most churches are able to raise larger funds for different purposes, it should not be hard to send to the National Foreign Missions treasurer large offerings to take care of this urgent need at this time. Certainly, the people at home cannot afford to be indifferent, and withhold their offerings when so great a work as the school in Cuba should be running on regular schedule during the fall and winter months. It behooves, therefore, every church to get busy and send right away an offering to Winford Davis, the treasurer of the Mission Board, so that he will be able to take care of this emergency in Cuba.

SHADY GROVE TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

Shady Grove Free Will Baptist Church of the Original Free Will Baptist denomination in Sampson County, North Carolina, will observe its first centennial celebration on the fourth Sunday in September. The picture of the church and an historical sketch will be found in this issue of the paper.

Reverend L. R. Ennis, a native of Sompson County, is pastor of the church, and will be the program director for the day. Great care has been taken, by the way of announcement of this occasion, and also for the entertainment of the visitors and friends who are expected to be present for this celebration.

The Honorable William B. Umstead, of Durham, N. C., will be the principal speaker for the occasion. He will speak in the afternoon, according to schedule. Mr. Umstead is a well-known attorney-at-law in the State, an ex-Congressman, and a prominent citizen of the City of Durham. It is gratifying to learn that he will speak on this occasion to this great throng of church people who will assemble at Shady Grove for the centennial celebration.

A goodly number of Free Will Baptists and others are expected to be present for this occasion from the surrounding churches, as: Oak Grove, Lee's Chapel, Robert's Grove, Corinth, Johnson's Union, Bethel, Powhatan, Smithfield, Selma, Tippet's Chapel, Durham Churches, the Raleigh Church, and others.

N. C. STATE CONVENTION A SUCCESS

The North Carolina State Convention, which convened with Rains' Cross Roads Church, in Johnston Co., on September 13 and 14, was a success in many ways. The attendance was good, the hospitality was not to be exceeded anywhere, and the business transactions of the conference showed marked improvements over previous years.

The messages and the various reports from the different bodies were good and those present were interested to hear them, and to see that progress has been made by our church people of the various churches of the State.

"NO TIME TO THINK OF IT"

A Christian lady, having missed her train one day, went into the waiting room of the railway station. Sitting down, she began to think that perhaps God had allowed her to miss the train for some particular purpose, so she silently asked Him to help her to speak to each person who might come into the room.

The first who entered was a young girl, to whom she spoke of eternal things; but she resented it, and at once walked out. A second one, on the contrary, seemed much interested, and even wept at the thought of her sinful condition; but she had to leave quickly to catch her train.

Presently in walked a tall, business-looking man, and the lady felt a little timid at speaking to him on such a subject.

Sitting down, he cast his eye round the room and remarked that, wherever you go in these days, you see advertisements about insuring your life.

"Yes," replied the lady, "it seems strange, does it not, that people should be so careful about insuring their lives here and yet not trouble about their soul's salvation in the future? The Lord Jesus not only invites sinners to be saved, but says that they will not come unto Him that they might have life."

"Yes, it is," said he; "I once heard a beautiful sermon on the text, 'Ye will not come to Me, that ye might have life' (John 5:40).

"Did you get life through hearing that

"Yes," he replied, "I had life before through faith in Christ, but being a business man in a large way, with many men under me, I scarcely seem to have any time to think much about these things. It is strange that you should have spoken to me about Jesus. I hope it may be the means of recalling my heart to Himself.

What a sad confession! A possession of life in Christ and yet no time to think about it!—Gospel Stories for the Young.

Those who are risen with Christ will naturally seek the things that are above. Their heart is there. Their affection is there, centered upon Him. He is their chief attraction. Nothing else attracts.—

Tell me, sir, what you know about God.
—Helen Keller.

An Appeal for Help

My Dear Christian People:

I have never begged for anything for myself before, but it looks like the time is now come for me to ask for some financial help from the brethren.

I have, the doctor says, cataracts on both of my eyes. And the doctor says that they are now ready to be taken off. I am a poor, feeble preacher, and do not have the money to have it done. I want the churches to help me all they can to have the cataracts removed from my eyes.

If anything should happen that I did not get them removed, I will refund the money, if they will let me have their address, if they want the money back. But if they would rather for me to keep it, then let me know. I will appreciate anything and everything anybody will give to me for this purpose.

Your friend in Christ,

THE ROAD THAT SEEMETH RIGHT

The sun was dipping behind the western hills as Ruth Andrews and Maud Clark paddled their canoe down Lake Glencoe toward the old dock. These girls, of high school age, were camping on the lake with their families. Just now they were engaged on a fishing expedition. The old dock was the place selected. Anchoring here, they sought to allure the finny denizens from beneath. A bystander would have noted that even in this occupation, they were dolled up with all the "fixins." Their minds were centered chiefly upon themselves, and their ability to attract the attention of others. To this end they used all the outward lure in vogue in the feminine world.

Unseen by them, "Old Liz," formerly Elizabeth, stumbled along the path that led to the dock. At first glance one would have rightly concluded she was a "down-and-outer." She was not as old in years as in body, but sin and its ravages had taken heavy toll. Repulsive and vile, she was an outcast, even the dens of infamy refusing longer to harbor her. She had reached the end. But where would the end be spent? Home was the one thought that came to her. If she could only reach the place that held the greatest appeal for her now, she would be content. Years had passed since she had ventured beyond its portals, never to return until now. In her closing days, she would once more feast her eyes on the scenes of old. Traveling as best she could, she neared the place called "Home." Coming down the old path, approaching nearer to her destination, her heart beat faster, her steps quickened. To be sure it wasn't home now for father and mother were dead, and strangers occupied her birthplace. But she wouldn't bother them. Looking would suffice her.

At the edge of the dock, she viewed the old home. Tired and weary she sat down, resting her back against a tree. The two maples by the house were still living, waving to her to come play beneath them as she had in days of yore. Tender memories welled to the front, causing her to again explore the days of yesterday. A loud snicker caused her to look up in time to discover the two girls in the nearby canoe. Instinctively she knew she was the subject of their laughter. The heel was once more crushing the down-trodden worm. Anger welled up within her. She arose to her feet, and walked out on the dock.

"I suppose you girls were laughing at me?" she queried them. "I suppose I am a subject for mirth, but it doesn't show the best of breeding to make fun of anybody."

While waiting for them to reply, she noted every detail about the girls. Their youthful figures recalled her girlhood days, anger slowly departed and pity assumed its vacated place.

"I wonder if you might listen to an old woman's story, and take a bit of advice," she continued to address them. "I've been studying you and I've decided you were laughing at yourselves for in me you can see yourselves at the end of the road. Oh, I know. I can tell. Listen to me."

Her voice rose to a higher pitch as she went on with her story.

"Do you see that house before you? That was my old home. Out from its room I went to seek education. I attained my object, and had a position of teaching others. I made one serious mistake, while educating my head I neglected my heart. I thought it was smart to do the things that startled conservative people, and by doing it I became the center of attraction. I became puffed up, I lost my common sense, and went from one step to another, each one taking me deeper."

Old Liz paused to catch her breath. Ruth and Maud forgot their fishing in their interest in this strange creature.

"I lost my self-respect, friends, position, everything that was worth while. I became the pawn of humanity, tossed here and there. For years I kept up my outward appearance but the time came when that failed. Cosmetics can't cover up the effects of sin. What am I to-day? An outcast of society, vile, repulsive. Even the lowest of the low have no further use for me. I've come home to die. And what a home-coming it is! You may not thank me for this advice, but you've got brains and common sense. Now, use them. Remember, the way of transgressors is hard."

Old Liz stopped, a look of surprise overspreading her face. With hands clutching convulsively at her breast, she staggered and fell. Over the edge of the dock she plunged to disappear beneath the disturbed waters.

The screams of the girls brought aid from the camp. The body was removed from the water but Old Liz was beyond help. Needless it is to say that in the days that followed, whenever there was a question of the right road to choose, Ruth and Maud had before them the memory of the derelict of society standing there on the old dock in the quiet of the evening hour, preaching by her appearance alone as well as by word of mouth the old truth that "the wages of sin is death,"—mental, moral, spiritual, and physical death.

NATIONAL BIBLE COLLEGE SUNDAY

Proposed Administration Building

1. Will Free Will Baptists Give $10,000 in a United Offering?

This is a $10,000 question, and you have the answer to it . . . But before we hear your answer, let us examine a few queries that may arise in your thinking:

2. What's This All About?

Sunday, October 1, 1950, has been designated as "National Bible College Sunday" by the National Association in its recent session. Every church in the Free Will Baptist denomination is asked to cooperate by receiving an offering for the Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, on that day. Our sincere hope is that these thousands of offerings will amount to a united offering of $10,000 when finally tabulated at the College.

3. Why This "United Offering" of $10,000?

It is genuinely needed to help construct the new administration building, authorized by the National Association. Plans for the building, so badly needed now, and necessary to future growth, have been completed and we are on our way in this very vital step in the expansion of the Bible College.

Of course, $10,000 will not construct the beautiful four-story addition to our plant, pictured here, but be assured that every dollar of it will be applied to the overall cost.

4. Who's To Give This $10,000?

Every Free Will Baptist Church is asked to receive an offering on Sunday, October 1, 1950, during a regular worship service. This offering to be above and beyond the local church's regular contribution to the Bible College.

In event your church does not have services on Sunday, October 1, then, receive the offerings on the Sunday in October you do have services nearest that date.

Offerings will be cheerfully accepted from Sunday Schools, leagues, woman's auxiliaries, and from any other organization in your church. Moreover, individuals are cordially urged to make liberal contributions direct.

5. Where Send These Offerings?

The treasurer of each local church will send the total offering to the state treasurer of the respective states, in those states where the state work is functioning—

Or, the offering may be mailed direct to the

FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE
3609 Richland Avenue,
Nashville, Tennessee

So you see . . .

We have answered your questions, and will gladly answer more if possible. Now, will you give your answer to the $10,000 question:

6. "Will Free Will Baptists Give $10,000 In A United Offering?"

We know they can and we believe they will. And you can best answer this question of the Mid-Century for Free Will Baptist by making your liberal offering on October 1, 1950.

Will You Do It?

HOME-COMING

Little Creek Church of Greene Co. will hold its annual home-coming day the first Sunday in October. A morning and afternoon program is planned with lunch spread at the church. All former pastors, members and friends are invited.

What Is Christian Living?

(Lesson for October 1)

LESSON: Matthew 5:13-16; Philippians 1:27-30; I Thessalonians 5:
15-23; James 1:22-27.

GOLDEN TEXT: Philippians 1:27.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

1. Let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ.—Philippians 1:27, A. S. V.

The Word of God lays strong emphasis on the necessity of those who bear the name of Christian, living for God. Yet we must always keep in mind that the basis for Christian living is not an attempt to emulate the good life of the Lord Jesus; it is not a mere imitation of the choice virtues of Christianity. Christian living must always be based on repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ (Acts 20:21).

Works have their place in Christian teaching and living, but they are always the evidence of faith in Christ. It certainly is true beyond controversy that faith without works is dead (James 2:17). On the other hand, works, even though they appear to be very meritorious, if they are not the result of a living faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, are of absolutely no avail, and actually in the sight of God are not good, inasmuch as they do not honor Him nor have His glory in view (cf. Rom. 3:10-12).—Moody Monthly

2. As salt preserves food and makes it palatable, "so the disciples are to purify the society in which they move, setting a good example and counteracting every corrupt tendency. For this purpose their Christianity must be genuine. The salt which has 'lost his savour' is the Christianity which is only worldliness under another name" (Dummelow). (vs. 13)

3. By their lives and by their words Christians should bring spiritual enlightenment to those who are in ignorance and sin. (vs. 17)

4. A measure holding about a peck and a half. What nobody would do with a light in the natural sphere, too many do with their spiritual light. (vs. 15)

5. At a later time Jesus said concerning them, "They say, and do not." See the woes pronounced against them in Matthew 23. Christian teachers, and layment too, need to practice what they teach and what they know. (vs. 20)

6. The gospel is to heathen adversaries an omen of their destruction, because they are not living up to it and yet have an inward feeling that they are wrong and will suffer a penalty imposed by God. (vs. 28)

7. Literally, giving graciously or granted. Suffering for the sake of Christ, like believing on him, is granted them as a privilege. It should not be regarded as a terrifying prospect. Faithful endurance of it will bring an abundant reward. (vs. 29)

8. Here is a respect in which the spirit of the gospel is diametrically opposed to the spirit of the world. Instead of repaying evil deeds in kind, the Christian should do good to all. (vs. 15)

9. This is possible because a Christian has something to rejoice about, irrespective of his condition in life. (vs. 16)

10. Have the habit of prayer and live in such an atmosphere of prayer that we can easily lift our hearts to God at any time. (vs. 17)

11. Paul does not say, "For everything give thanks." But in whatever circumstances one may be we should have a spirit of thankfulness to God. (vs. 18)

12. If we definitely sense the fact that the Spirit of God is prompting us to do something—perhaps to pray, to bear testimony, to exhort, or to talk with someone about spiritual things, we should obey and not resist the divine impulse. (vs. 19)

13. We should use discernment and test by the Bible and by the experience of devout Christians and what others say or write. (vs. 21)

14. Rather, "every form of." To strictly reject some things of evil tendency and then be careless about others is not enough. (vs. 22)—Arnold's Commentary.

15. We are sanctified wholly at the second coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we can be kept blameless by the power of God until then. The flesh (the human body) is not freed from the carnal nature until the resurrection (Philippians 3:20, 21) but our new, glorified body will be without any trace of sin.

16. Make good use of our Advanced and Senior Quarterlies with this lesson.

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Entire Consecration Necessary

Suppose you were to buy a house and lot and an elegant residence, pay the money and get the deeds, and the day you were to go in the gentleman said: "Here's the key to eight rooms, I have reserved two rooms." "Didn't I buy the house?" "Yes." "Well, what do you mean?" "I want to keep four tigers in one room, and the other I want to fill with reptiles. I want them to stay here." You say: "Well, my friend, if you mean what you say I would not have your house as a gracious gift. You want me to move my family into a house where one room is full of tigers and the other full of snakes." Many a time we turn over our whole hearts to God, and when He comes in we have reserved some rooms for the wild beasts of pride and the hissing serpents of iniquity. Let me tell you, brethren, I won't ask God to come and live in a house that I won't let my family live in. Empty every room in the house, and then the heart is the center of gravity to Jesus Christ, and He will come in and live with you.—Sam Jones.—1000 Evangelistic Illustrations

Thank You Notice

I'll take this means, through the Baptist paper, to thank the members and others that were present, of the Fremont F. W. B. Church, for the love offering they gave my son, before his return to the F. W. B. Bible College and all others who showed their love by encouragement and deeds of kindness.

I pray, if there have been any wounds left by the thoughtfulness of some, may they be healed by the thoughtfulness of others.

He desires the prayers of all Christians.

Sincerely,

Mrs. C. H. Overman,
Kenly, N. C., R-1

ON SPEAKING TERMS

DOROTHY B. MORRIS

"Well, Judy, how do you like the farm?" Mr. Preston set the milk pails down and smiled at his granddaughter.

"Oh, it's wonderful, Grandpa. I've had the most fun this afternoon. Those little goats are just darling. I wish I had one at home."

Mr. Preston laughed. "I'm afraid a goat wouldn't like to be cooped up in a city apartment so well."

Judy laughed, too, "I guess not," she replied. "Anyway, I'm glad I have another week here before I have to go home."

"I'm glad, too. Now, do you want to go with me to get the cows?"

They walked along in silence for awhile and then Mr. Preston said:

"Judy, I've noticed that you haven't prayed once since you've been here. I mean you haven't prayed when we have had our family worship. You always did when you were here before. Of course, you pray when you are alone. But I've missed hearing your voice leading out in prayer."

Judy looked straight ahead for a few minutes before answering. What she was going to say was going to hurt Grandfather, she knew, but it was true and she might as well admit it.

"I don't pray at all any more, Grandpa."

"You don't?"

"No, not even when I'm alone."

"That's strange," Mr. Preston said quietly. "I don't think I understand it. Could you tell me why?"

"Well," Judy said slowly, "I prayed for two whole months for something I wanted very much and I didn't get it. I decided there was no use to pray any more."

"So, you're not speaking to God any more (for that's what prayer is), because He didn't say yes to your prayer?" Mr. Preston said.

Judy expected him to say more, but he did not. He even changed the subject of their conversation.

"That's funny," Judy thought. "I was sure he'd try to get me to see it differently."

Mr. Preston interrupted her thoughts. "Well, here we are back at the barn. Do you want to watch me or would you rather tell Grandma it won't be long till we're ready to tackle that fried chicken?"

"I guess I'll go tell Grandma," Judy laughed. "I'm getting hungry. It seems as though I'm always hungry when I'm in the country." The week slipped by all too quickly, and Judy wanted to stay longer. She was talking it over with her grandparents on the last morning of her visit.

"I'll tell you what, Judy. Suppose you call your mother and ask if you may stay a few days longer," Mr. Preston said.

"Do you really think she'd let me?" Judy asked, her eyes shining.

"I don't know about that but it won't hurt to ask."

Judy went immediately to the telephone. "I'm going out to feed the chickens," Mr. Preston called. "Come out and tell me what she says."

A few minutes later a sorrowful Judy met Mr. Preston outside.

"Why, Judy, she didn't say no, did she?"

Judy nodded. "Did she say why you couldn't stay?"

"No." "Well, now that's too bad. I'm sorry, too. I'm sorry because you can't stay, and I'm sorry for your mother when you get home."

"Sorry for Mother?" Judy questioned. "Yes," Mr. Preston said. "Since you won't be speaking to her I imagine it will be hard for both of you."

"Grandpa Preston, what do you mean? Of course I'm going to speak to my mother."

"You are? That's strange. You know Judy, I can't figure this out. You asked God for something and He said no, so you aren't speaking to Him any more. You asked your mother for something and she said no, but you are not going to stop speaking to her. Don't you think you are a little inconsistent?"

Judy stared at her grandfather for a minute, and then she burst into a laugh. "Why, Grandpa, of course I am! Why didn't you show me before?"

"Well, I thought a good opportunity would come along to help you to see it, and it did. You see, Judy, your mother said no; and though she didn't give you a reason you don't intend to stop speaking to her. God loves you a million times more than your mother loves you, and she loves you better than her own life and would not refuse you anything that was for your good. So don't you think you'd better start speaking to God again? I'm sure He's been missing your prayers."

"Oh, Grandpa, haven't I been foolish? I'm sorry, but I'm going to make up for it, you wait and see."—O. P. Boys and Girls.

SPIRITUAL GIFTS

"Now, concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant."—I Cor. 12:1.

No one person is to have all of the gifts which Paul spoke of in the first twelve verses of this chapter. Because we note that Paul in verses 29 and 30 asks this question: "Are all apostles? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? etc." The thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians teaches us that charity is the chief thing. None of these gifts are of any value without love in the hearts of the people who have them. Paul said, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing."

I hear some people say how can any one help from having evil thoughts. The answer is that those who have love. We are not to rejoice in iniquity, but to rejoice in the truth. We see that charity is the more excellent way for us to live. In the fourteenth chapter Paul gives instructions concerning speaking in tongues. This is all right if there is an interpreter present to interpret the meaning of the speech in tongues. Paul said that if there be no interpreter, then let him keep silent in the church. Paul said for Christians to follow after charity, and desire spiritual things. But he preferred prophecy to speaking in tongues. Anyone speaking in the unknown tongue edifieth himself, but he that propheseth edifieth the church. He that speaketh in an unknown tongue speaketh not unto men but unto God. Paul was explaining the difference in speaking in tongues and in prophesying. This means that prophesying is as one preaching the Word or teaching the Word of God. Then Paul said that he thanked God that he spoke in tongues more than that they all, meaning that he knew more languages than others did, and could converse

There are some people today who are like Paul was before he was converted. They are fighting against God and persecuting the saints. Remember how Paul had persecuted the Christians before he was converted on the Damascus road. Thank God, that when Paul found Jesus precious to his soul, he turned around, and began to confess the Lord Jesus Christ. Then he became Christ's messenger to the lost everywhere.

To Free Will Baptists Everywhere

tion—in the meantime, we are all praying.

We are in the midst of a cyclone and have had six days and nights of pouring rain. All rivers and streams are out of their banks with a large loss of life and crops. It will be fully three months of repair on roads and bridges. Great numbers of bridges were washed out below us and people by the thousands are without homes and hungry, many of them are our own Free Will Baptist Cubans. There are cases of mothers losing their children and in despair hanging themselves.

Miss Yeley was pastoring San Juan Church and the waters came up so that she had to wade in water above her waist. Some one said up to her neck. She can't get to Pinar as all bridges are washed out. This of course, is a great blessing. They will have to build new bridges.

We suffered a little at the school—about four sows about to litter were caught in the stream and lost. The root crops are a total loss to the farmers.

But tomorrow the sun will be shining. We know that beyond every cloud is the silver lining. God is greatly blessing and using us. After all that is why we are here. Please pray much for us.

I am sincerely in His service,
Thomas H. Willey

Further Disturbing Facts

Further disturbing facts are revealed in the following paragraph taken from a recent letter from Winford Davis, treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board.

"I just mailed to Miss Barnard last Saturday the check of $1200.00 for India for the month of July. I wrote Brother Willey and told him there would be no money for them for Aug. at least until up into Sept. sometime. Just when I send it depends upon what comes in from N. C. and Missouri for August, which checks I should receive this coming Monday if not tomorrow (Sat.) the second. Instead of a brought forward figure for August 1st we had a deficit of $680.00 which had to be taken care of from early August receipts so that has knocked our ready cash for the August disbursements back quite a bit."

It is an unpleasant thing to me to have to reveal these things, and I personally did not know that such an emergency existed, at least to this extent, until I received these letters, thus, I knew of nothing else to do but to transfer these facts to "Free Will Baptists everywhere."

What to Do

During the last year it became necessary for the Foreign Mission Department to send out S. O. S. calls to meet our needs on various occasions. Free Will Baptists everywhere responded to each call—and the need was supplied. I have faith and confidence that you will rally to the need of the present.

I also have faith to believe that after this immediate emergency, and after our people are informed, and kept informed, that no longer will it be necessary to send out the unwelcome, alarming S. O. S. signal.

I'm sure that all of us want to see our School of Missions in Cuba open on schedule. If so we must act quickly. We cannot wait another day. If all the pastors and preachers will read these letters to their congregation and give them an opportunity to give, sufficient funds will come in. If every Free Will Baptist who reads this article will just mind the leadership of the Holy Spirit, sufficient money will be sent to the Foreign Mission Treasurer to meet every need.

In order to save time, and just for this emergency, we suggest that you send your special gifts direct to—Rev. Thomas H. Willey, Apartado 27, Pinar Del Rio, Cuba. Send in the form of a certified check, and don't forget to send it air mail and register the letter. Brother Willey will keep a careful record, and report to our treasurer, so the books will be kept straight. Remember this is just for this one time. If you cannot send direct to Brother Willey before Sept. 15th then send through regular channels to Foreign Mission Treasurer.

It is hoped that many of our folk, especially the pastors, and State Mission Directors, and State Mission Board members will attend the Missionary Conference scheduled for October 3, 4, and 5, at the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee.

The evening services will be held in the East Nashville Free Will Baptist Church, Rev. C. F. Bowen, pastor. Miss Laura Belle Barnard and Rev. Thomas H. Willey will be the principle speakers.

On Tuesday, October 3, the Foreign Mission Board is scheduled for a special meeting at which time new officers of the board will be elected. Please pray for this important transaction.

In the meantime, send those special gifts at once for Foreign Missions.

Rev. N. Bruce Barrow Is Now in North Carolina

Brother N. Bruce Barrow and his family have just recently returned to their home at Arba in Greene County, North Carolina, from Bryan, Texas, where they had been living for around three years. Brother Barrow was pastor of the Bryan Free Will Baptist Church in the city of Bryan, Texas, and student of Texas State College in Bryan, where he pursued and completed college courses for his Bachelor's degree.

Brother Barrow will pastor churches in eastern North Carolina. Should any church or churches desire his services, we feel certain that he will be glad to serve them, if he is not already occupied with full-time work for the coming year. Those interested may write to him. His address is as follows: Rev. N. Bruce Barrow, Snow Hill, North Carolina, Route 2.

"DID YOU HEAR WHAT JOHNNY SAID?"

Two little boys who ought to have been down at the river fishing together, were rolling in the dust of the road, engaged in a first-class scrap. Want to know how it started? A third little boy had said to one of them, "Do you know what Johnny said about you?" and to the other one, "Did you hear what Jimmie said you did after Sunday School last Sunday?"

Mischief-making! Most of the trouble in the world is "made" trouble. Practically all wars are "made" wars. If you left it to the American and Russian peoples, they would never fight.

Just remember this when somebody tries to set you against your neighbor, tries to convince you that your neighbor does not have the same human impulses, the same Christian conviction and purposes you have. If the people who are exploiting the human race to their ruin can get just such people as you suspicious of other good people, they don't need to worry that their activities will be stopped.

Another thing: Promotion of "turmoil," confusion, chaos, never helped any good cause and never will. Disorderly politics, disorderly economics and the disorder which is immorality are always subversive of every good interest.

Some time ago, we were talking about a public issue with a man, whom we certainly credited with sincerity, and he said that the time had come for "turmoil." We kept our mouth shut, which was difficult, but inside, we were thinking: "Did you ever see a man die by violence? If this turmoil comes, you will go to bed, sleep on an innerspring mattress, get up in the morning to breakfast on orange juice, eggs and coffee, and you will read all about the 'turmoil' in the paper. Other men will be dying, will be mutilated, will be suffering all the hardships and pains of 'turmoil.'"

If there is anything that really needs doing, let's not do it the hard way, and that means we must have confidence in our neighbor.

Mt. Zion to Hold Revival

Mt. Zion Free Will Baptist church in Onslow County, North Carolina, will begin their revival on Sunday night, September 24, at 7:30. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the Goldsboro Free Will Baptist church, is the evangelist. All are invited.

Yours in His will,

RASHIE KENNEDY

If I But Read—

The Lord I love went on ahead To make a home for me. He said He would come back again, and He— Oh, gracious love—He wrote to me! He knew I was so weak and blind And foolish that I could not find The road alone. He told me things That all earth's wise men, and its kings,

Have never guessed, yet I foreknew If I but read His Word. And, oh, Such depths of love on every sheet! My soul is trembling at His feet. What would He think of me If when I saw Him I should say: "I was too busy every day To read what Thou didst write to me; I really hadn't time for Thee!"

Here Am I

My will would like a life of ease,
And power to do, and time to rest,
And health and strength my time would please
But, Lord, I know thy will is best.

If I have strength to do thy will
That should be power enough for me,
Whether to work or to sit still
The appointment of the day may be.

And if by sickness I may grow
More patient, holy and resigned,
Strong health I need not wish to know
And greater ease I cannot find.

And rest—I need not seek it here;
For perfect rest remaineth still;
When in thy presence we appear,
Rest shall be given by thy will.

Lord, I have given my life to thee,
And every day and hour is thine;
What thou appointest let them be:
Thy will is better, Lord, than mine.

There are two ways to spread light: to be the candle, or a mirror that reflects the candle's light.—E. Wharton.

Godliness Profitable

The man of the world cannot understand that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come" (I Tim. 4:8). All that he values is earthly gain. King Solomon, who had all that his heart could wish of this world's goods, was very decided in his testimony that all was "VANITY AND VEXATION OF SPIRIT" (Ecc. 2:11). In Proverbs 15:16, 17 he said, "Better is little with the fear of the Lord than great treasure and trouble therewith." The Psalmist also said, "A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked" (Ps. 37:16).

There is sweet contentment in the life of the godly. They have no anxious care about anything that concerns this life, nor the life to come, because they are trusting in the Lord, who will "supply all (their) need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." And when this little life is over they have "promise" of the life that is "to come." They have a title clear for Heaven, and their treasures are laid up there where "neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal" (Matt. 6:20).

The Apostle Paul experienced that godliness is profitable, and he courted everything that was gain to him in this life, all less for Christ (Phil. 3:7), and ran for an incorruptible crown. He knew that "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him" (I Cor. 2:9).

The life "which is to come" was a reality to the Apostle Paul. He had great anticipation of the future glory, and what it shall be to live eternally with the Lord and be like Him.

Godliness is profitable in health and prosperity, in sickness and in death, because of the "promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."—D.B.R.

A "SOFT ANSWER"

Two little girls were playing with their dolls. The older one had a beautiful new doll which she loved very much.

As they went along the younger one crept up softly behind her, and gave her a sharp slap upon her cheek.

A friend of their mother's, unseen and unheard, saw it all. She expected to see and hear another slap, a harder one, in retaliation. But no. The victim's face flushed and her eyes had a momentary flash of indignation. She rubbed her hurt cheek with one hand, while she held the doll closer with the other. Then, in a tone of gentle reproof, she said.

"O Sallie, I didn't think you'd do that!"

Sallie looked ashamed, as well she might, but made no reply.

"Here, Sallie, continued the elder girl, "sit down here in sister's chair. I'll let you hold dolly awhile if you'll be very careful."

Sallie's face looked just then as if there were some "coals of fire" somewhere around, but she sat down with the doll on her lap, giving her sister a glance of real appreciation, although it was mingled with shame.

The hidden looker on was deeply touched by the scene. It was unusual, she thought, to see a mere child show such calm dignity and forgiveness under persecution. Presently she called the child and questioned her.

"How can you be so patient with Sallie, my dear?"

"O," was the laughing answer, "I guess it's cause I love Sallie so much. You see Sallie's a dear little girl," excusingly, "but she's got a quick temper, and—and Sallie forgets herself sometimes. Mamma said if Sallie would do angry things to me and I should do angry things to her, we'd have a dreadful time, and I think we would. Mamma said I should learn to give the 'soft answer,' and I'm trying to."

The lady took her in her arms and kissed her.

"My little dear," she said, fondly and earnestly, "I think you have already learned the lesson."

What could be more natural after that than for the girls to kiss each other and then put on their bonnets and take all the dolls out for a walk?—The Little Christian.

Will You Meet the Cuban Emergency?

THE MISSION SCHOOL CAN'T OPEN WITHOUT FUNDS

Thomas H. Willey

We can't begin to tell you what sorrow we had to take a step backward in the program of missions. We had to send a hurried note to thirty young men and women, Cuban Free Will Baptists, telling them that the opening of school this year would have to be suspended.

Here on the mission field we are wondering if our people who have hitherto been so interested have lost that interest. Is it plain, old indifference? Have you forgotten us? It is so easy to forget.

We can't begin to tell you, by writing, the work the Spirit of God has wrought in Cuba. This year great numbers have knelt in humble repentance and accepted the Lord through the ministry of your mission. On one of my trips into a new place thirty-three knelt in prayer at an old palm plank used for an altar. In another service there were twenty-five and in another we saw fifty people on their knees seeking God. This was not something that required a prolonged revival either.

I went to the most abandoned place in Cuba—the very end of any highway. We rode along the Gulf of Mexico. I heard the people commenting on who and what I might be. Finally the owner of the bus said, "We are wondering who you are." I said, "A missionary of the Gospel." Then began a discussion that lasted five hours as we bumped along over those terrible roads. They wanted to know how one might be saved from their sins. On nearing the small town as dusk was falling I said, "I shall speak tonight at a certain home on 'The Man That God Called a Fool and Why He Called Him Thus'." They all promised to be there. Without any previous announcement, advertisement or solicitation there were fully two hundred people standing. They had no church building and no benches. When I asked them what they were going to do with this great message they cried out, "Accept it." On a public confession the owner of the bus stepped out, his son, the telegraph operator, a merchant, the owner of the house, a blacksmith. Their plea was come and teach us—live with us. I could not do that, but a prepared Cuban young man could if we would prepare him. Now these seven young men, including eight more—fifteen earnest, young Free Will Baptist students, must go into the fields. We are not asking you, our people, for beautiful, commodious buildings although we need more. They were for years willing to live in huts. We are asking that you get under our burden.

We have seven young men who are graduates of our School of Missions. These boys ride on horses from early until late, then come home to cook themselves a little rice and coffee. They live self-denying and self-sacrificing on $30 a month. Words fail me to be able to convey to you the extent they are willing to go to tell the old, old Story.

Our trust is indeed in the Lord and in you, our people. Ask yourself the question, "Have I failed God?" "Have I failed to pray for Cuba and India?" There are not just a few American missionaries here—Miss Yeley, the Wilfongs, and the Willeys. There are Cuban pastors: Ricardo, with two small children; Sanchez, with an invalid wife; Rojo, with a new baby and his wife ill; Rafael, with three growing daughters. In all there are twenty-one full time native missionaries—fifteen of these are graduates of our School of Missions. I am going to leave it to you, our people, to answer. We cannot operate without your support.

We are financially "broke." Our workers will have to resort to credit. Shall we let them go into debt? I do not feel that we are pleasing God in doing so. We are not broken in the spirit to carry on. We look to the Lord, who made the heavens and the earth and whose we are.

GOD'S SPIRITUAL KINGDOM

Christ was born King of the Jews, but not an earthly king, as Herod had thought. See Matthew, chapter two. The Jews made a sad mistake when they were looking for Christ to come and set up an earthly kingdom.

Shall we do the same thing? Shall we look more to earthly rulers than we do to Christ the heavenly King? Christ said, "My kingdom is not of this world" (Jon. 18:36). Remember, Christ taught his disciples to pray, "Thy kingdom come." Again Christ said, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation, . . . Behold, the kingdom of God is within you." Then, it must be a spiritual kingdom.

In Jeremiah we read where it is prophesied, "Thy King cometh riding on a certain colt," and this prophecy was fulfilled when Christ entered into Jerusalem, riding upon this colt. This is recorded in Matthew, Mark, and Luke. Now, some people may say that Christ has never taken over the throne of his father David, but let us see what God says about it. Mark 11:9, 10 reads like this: "And they that went before, and they that followed, cried saying, Hosannah; blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosannah in the highest." Luke 19:40 reads like this, "And he (Christ) answered and said unto them, I tell you that if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." Is not this the power of God speaking to the people?

Now we can finish the prayer: "For thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory for ever and ever. Amen." May we ever seek first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and then we will be certain to receive his blessings.

Tifton, Georgia

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

NORTH CAROLINA STATE
CONVENTION OF F. W. B.

The Thirty-Eighth annual session of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists became history with the closing on Thursday afternoon, September 14th. As we see it, much progress had been made in the work of the denomination in the past year. All departments are on the upward trend toward greater things in the work of the Lord. However we can see where mistakes have been made, and thereby there have been less success than might have been, but as a whole we certainly are becoming more efficient in business transactions and reaching for greater things.

I was in the first session ever held of the State Convention. I attended the last session of the old Ministers' Conference and Union Meeting which evolved into the State Convention in its last session at Ayden, N. C., which session was held in the old Free Will Baptist church which was located on the Southern corner of the old Seminary lot located on Lee Street, and which now is the High School property of Ayden.

Having had experience in the work of the State Convention from the beginning, we believe that we are in a position to know that we have come a long way up, since the first session of the State Convention thirty-eight years ago, in spite of many failures and discouragements, there have been a steady growth and if the Lord Jesus does not come we are looking for great strides to be made for the cause of Christ, even greater than has ever been made.

One sign for our optimism is the great number of young men who are being trained in our Orphanage and denominational Bible College at Nashville, Tenn., who are proving their efficiency in administrative matters as well as being great soul winners for the Lord Jesus.

If I should live to be an old man, I expect to rejoice in the Lord as I shall see many of these "Youngsters" do things for the ongoing of the church.

Education does not make preachers. God calls and makes preachers, but get it fixed in your hearts and minds that a "God Called Preacher" who is educated is much better prepared to carry on the work of the Lord than the uneducated; and, due to better advantages for the young men and women, much better than we older fellows ever had, I am expecting greater things in the near future when these men will take over and carry on. And here is a man that has always loved to see a young man step up into greater responsibilities and greater achievements in the work of the Lord.

SOME OF THE HIGHLIGHTS OF THE CONVENTION

Rev. L. B. Manning, elected President; Rev. S. A. Smith, Vice-President; Rev. R. N. Hinnant, recording Secretary; Rev. Burkette Raper, assistant secretary. The vacancies on all boards were filled with very efficient persons. It would take too much of our space to give the names of all members of these various boards, just wait and get the minute that belongs to you and see who is responsible to us as a church and Convention for the success of the 1950-51 (Year of Convention history). Let us be much in prayer for the leadership of the Holy Ghost for those who are responsible for the ongoing of the work.

SOME SPECIAL BLESSINGS

It was a great blessing to have with us Miss Laura Belle Barnard, our leader in the Indian Mission field in India who, as always, brought a great, inspiring and informative message on the work. The last message on Missions given by Sister Barnard, before going to the Field in India, was delivered in our State at Black Jack in Pitt County when she just poured out her heart for those who "Sit in darkness." She gave such an inspiring message that many hearts rejoiced. From that day until now Sister Barnard has faced many great problems in the work, but she, under the leadership of the Holy Ghost, has been able to solve those problems and made a glorious history in winning the lost of India to the Christ that she loves and adores, and with whom she desires to acquaint others, especially those of India, for whom she is giving her life. I think that every body was glad to have Sister Barnard with us.

Another great blessing came by the presence and the message delivered by Rev. Damon C. Dodd, the Promotional Secretary of the National Association of Free Will Baptists. Brother Dodd is well informed as to the needs and accomplishments of the National work in all of its departments, and he is well prepared to deliver messages that are informative and inspiring. We are always glad to welcome Brother Dodd and Sister Barnard to our meetings, and our homes.

REPORTS AND OUR COMMENTS

The reports that were read and received of the past year were very encouraging, in general. I think one of the best reports ever coming from the Orphanage at Middlesex, was made by the Superintendent, Walter McD. Croom, in which much progress was reported, but yet there are great needs to be met. The mission report given by Rev. J. W. Alford, Treasurer, was very good, but perhaps his receipts could have been better. But when we think of the mission work in our state as of ten years ago, and of today we have great many things to praise the Lord for, and we do, Dear Jesus, thank you for heights that we have reached, and we are looking for greater heights.

Under the very efficient service of Brother Fountain Taylor, the treasurer of Cragmont, we noted the "best year in the history of the Cragmont work." Expenses were met, and debts were decreased and the prospects great. Yes, Cragmont is going on successfully. The women and young people are those who are leading in the life and success of the Cragmont work.

Preachers, we are the lagging ones in this great movement. Let us wake up and as the Negro Preacher said: "Brethering, when you's wake up, git up!" Yes, we need to wake up and get up and lead the work in Cragmont instead 45 preachers at the Ministers' Conference, as was the case last June, let us make it a HUNDRED in 1951, if the Lord has not taken us all to glory ere then.

Time will fail me to take up every report, but I must say that the only discouraging report was that of Education. Far too many people are neglecting one of the most important works of the denomination, that of PUSHING CHRISTIAN EDUCATION. As we said before, education will not make preachers, But GOD-CALLED PERSONS for any specific purpose ought to avail themselves of every advantage to obtain an education. If God calls us to work; God calls us to prepare for that work. Christ said, "Search the Scriptures." Paul said; "Study to show thyself approved unto God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Christian education is one of the most vital needs of our work. To let down on this work is to let down on God. We have a growing Bible College at Nashville, Tenn., Let us stand by it, Yes, make liberal offerings to the work of EDUCATION, AND SEND THE MONEY TO OUR TREASURER OF THE STATE EDUCATIONAL BOARD. Watch the Baptist paper to see who the treasurer is, and where he is located. If you do not take the Baptist subscribe and keep posted as to the matters pertaining to the church.

Bible College Opens for Ninth Year

With a record enrollment of 95 from 16 states the Free Will Baptist Bible College began its ninth year on September 6. Not only was this year's opening significant from the fact of an all-time high in registration but it also marks the beginning of the College as a full four year degree conferring institution.

The Free Will Baptist Bible College is owned and operated by our National Association of Free Will Baptists. It is the training agency of the Church, proposing to train those called to full time Christian service in the fields of the ministry, missions, religious education and music. Thus the College is offering the A.B. degree with a major in Bible to meet the need of all those conscious of God's call to full time service. The work is of the highest academic standing and our students, when necessary are able to transfer to other institutions quite satisfactorily.

New Faculty Members

The Reverend Laverne Miley of Kirksville, Mo. has been added to the faculty as professor of Greek and instructor in certain biblical subjects. Mr. Miley holds the B.S. degree from the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, studied one year at Free Will Baptist Bible College and has completed the required work for the B.D. degree at Northern Baptist Seminary, Chicago, which will be conferred at the 1951 commencement.

Mrs. Anna Barrow, wife of our Dean, the Rev. J. P. Barrow, came to the faculty this year as librarian. Mrs. Barrow is a graduate of Moody Bible Institute and holds the Th.B. and A. B. degree from Trevecca College and will complete within the next few months the requirements for the M.A. degree in Library Science from Peabody College.

Summer Activities of Faculty Members

Rev. L. C. Johnson, president, attended National Association in July and carried "The Evangeliers" the girl's quartet of the College on a three weeks itinerary during August. Brother Johnson also conducted two revivals during the summer months.

Professor J. P. Barrow, Dean of the College, taught at the Minister's Institute at Bethel Assembly in Georgia and attended summer school in Denver, Colorado and Pittsburgh, Pa., working on his Ph.D. degree which will be conferred within the next few months.

Reverend and Mrs. Charles Thigpen, professor of Christian Education and professor of Speech and English respectively, attended summer school at Winona Lake Theological Seminary working on their M. A. degrees which will be conferred next summer. Mr. Thigpen also preached for two revivals during the summer season.

The Gospeliers

The Gospeliers, the male quartet of the College, made a two months itinerary through Tennessee, North Carolina, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Oklahoma. The boys carried the gospel of redeeming love in song and testimony and saw many lives dedicated to the Lord and several saved. Our people responded to the financial call of the College with nearly $8,000 in cash and pledges. The personnel of the quartet was Irvin Hyman of S. C., as first tenor; Billy Sherrill of Missouri as second tenor; Bobby Picirilli of S. C., as baritone and Reedy Saverance also of S. C. as bass. Billy Melvin, a graduate of F.W.B.B.C. served as director.

The Evangeliers

The Evangeliers, referred to earlier, went out under the direction of President Johnson on an itinerary that took them into Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. The quartet was composed of Jane Reeder, Texas, as first soprano; Wanda Edwards, Missouri, as second soprano; Virginia Hales, Virginia, as first alto and Lucy Wisehart, Missouri, second alto. Beth Davidson,

North Carolina, daughter of Rev. J. R. Davidson, our former Treasurer and Business Manager, was the accompanist. The girls did a splendid job of singing the gospel and again our people responded in a fine manner with gifts in cash and pledges amounting to nearly $5,700.

Much Evangelizing Done

The general report from all the returning students to the campus is that all were busy in the great harvest field. Nearly all the boys conducted one or more revivals, or conducted the music for revivals and worked in Daily Vacation Bible Schools. The girls reported a busy season as they conducted Daily Vacation Bible Schools, worked in Youth Camps, and singing for revivals. All reported many brought to the Lord as a personal Saviour and the seeing of many of our finest young men and women consecrate their lives for FULL TIME SERVICE for CHRIST and the FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH!

Mrs. Fannie Polston has been employed as a member of the Home for Children staff at Greenville. She left the latter part of September to assume her duties there which include dietician's work.

The home mission board of the Cumberland Association is sponsoring a mission station in the New Town community of Springfield. Plans are to buy a lot and erect a building for this purpose. Rev. Raymond Mayo and others are in charge of this project. Contributions for the work are welcomed and may be sent to Rev. William Mishler, chairman of the board, Rt. 2, Cedar Hill, Tennessee. Miss Myrtle Jones reports a new Sunday school organized by the district field worker, Garner Caldwell, with 37 present.

Students from sixteen states have enrolled at the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, for the fall term. Of these there are forty-three freshmen enrolling for the first time. The student body totals ninety-four which is by far the largest enrollment in the history of the school. However, everyone is being taken care of with sufficient rooms and apartments, if a little crowded.

A foreign mission conference is to be held in Nashville the first week in October. Day services will be conducted at the college and night services at East Nashville Church. The consensus is that this is a vital meeting of our people at a very crucial period in the life of our foreign mission endeavors. It is hoped that many of our people from every state will attend.

Dr. Judson Rudd, president of William Jennings Bryan University, Dayton, Tennessee, worshipped with the East Nashville Church congregation on a recent Sunday.

Revival at Spring Hill

A revival meeting will begin at Spring Hill F. W. B. Church, Sunday night, September 24th. The Rev. C. H. Coates of Four Oaks will do the preaching. The public is cordially invited to attend these services each evening. There will be special music rendered during the week. The church is located on highway 70 between Goldsboro and Princeton.

ATTENTION— N. C. Free Will Baptists— "October Is Superannuation Month"

Once again we come to that month in the year which has been designated, by N. C. Free Will Baptists, as Superannuation Month. The Board of Superannuation wishes to express its sincere thanks to all who have given for this worthy cause in the past, and to solicit your continued support.

At the present time there are 25 of our Retired and Disabled Free Will Baptist ministers receiving regular pension checks from this Board, and there are others asking to be placed on the list. We hope to be able to include them soon.

In addition to the Retired and Disabled ministers who are receiving pensions and those now making application, there are several worthy and deserving widows of our deceased brethren in the ministry who are in great need of assistance from this cause. The Board has set as its goal to start the payment of pensions to the widows in the very near future, however, we must depend upon you in the field to provide the funds for this work.

In order for the Board to render the assistance that our people are asking of it, and to provide the assistance needed by our retired and disabled ministers and ministers' widows, we will need $10,000.00 during the next year. This amount has been approved by the State Convention, and in order to reach the goal we are asking each church to try to send in as much as 25 cts. per member for this work. Also asking all of the Auxiliaries, Conventions, etc., to increase their offerings as much as possible. Of course if your church can not raise the amount of 25 cents per member, we urge you to send all that you can. On the other hand, if your church can send more than 25 cents per member it will help to make up for those who do not support this work. Yes, we still have some who are not willing to support those who have given the best years of their lives to our churches. Can those who are now in need, depend upon "YOU" to show your appreciation?

Please send your Superannuation Offerings to:

THE PRESS IS MAKING PROGRESS

From the Business Manager's report, it was shown in the recent Stockholders' meeting that the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina, made commendable financial gains during the past year. The work in all departments showed improvement. With more and better machinery now installed and in operation, the Press bids fair to do even better work in the future.

The sales of literature showed an increase during the year, as well as was shown in other departments of the business. Decided improvements in the covers of some of the quarterlies are meeting the approval of many of the church people. Further improvements will be made, the Business Manager stated in the Stockholders meeting of September 21.

A new Business Manager was elected to have charge of the production department of the business of the Press. The outlook is that, for the coming year, the business should make even greater progress, and that a greater service can be rendered to the denomination as a whole than ever before. With the new Business Manager taking over the production end of the work, as a relief of much of the routine work which Brother Dunn had carried on for many years, it should be a great help to the business as a whole. Brother Dunn was elected as Executive Secretary-Treasurer with the duties and responsibilities of the said office. This arrangement in the business should prove a blessing to all concerned. No changes were made in other employees of the Press.

The new Business Manager is Reverend D. W. Alexander, of Bethel, North Carolina, who had been the president of the Board of Directors for several years. With his knowledge and understanding of the business in general he should become a good Business Manager. May God continue to bless the institution that it may be able to serve, in the coming years, the denomination in a more efficient and praiseworthy manner.

GOD IS ENOUGH FOR ALL

LAURA A. BARTER

"We are hard pressed, yet never in absolute distress; perplexed, yet never entirely baffled, pursued, but never left un-succored; struck to the ground, yet never slain" (II Cor. 4:8, 9, Wey. Trans.)

"Who is sufficient for these things?" (II Cor. 2:16).

"His reply has been, 'My grace suffices for you, for power matures in weakness'" (II Cor. 12:8, Wey. Trans.).

God is enough for all—

For weary days, when with ache and pain
We strive to take up life's tasks again,
And find our weakness, ah! then the power
Of His sufficiency hour by hour,
Meets us just where we are, and gives
The touch we need, and within us lives—
Yes, God is enough for all.

God is enough for all—

For the deeper problems that life unfolds,
For the wider knowledge that round us rolls,
For the misunderstandings of fellow men,
Who scoff and jeer—ah, we find Him then
The refuge for all we need to know,
The haven to which we can always go—
For God is enough for all.

God is enough for all—

For the sudden upsets coming unawares,
For Satan's designs and subtle snares.
How could I gauge the false from the true,
How stand firm and know what to do,
But for the certainty of a power

Loving, enwrapping me hour by hour?

Yes, God is enough for all.

God is enough for all—

For the difficult places we have to meet,
For the tired brain and the weary feet;
For the children's questions that puzzle us so,

Making us learn how little we know;

For the silent moan when we say "Farewell!"

To our best beloved, then we learn to spell—

Yes, God is enough for all.

—The Word of the Cross.

No other love so pure.

The new life in Christ Jesus

Draws from His boundless store.

For the brotherhood eternal

Is the family of God;

The "ought" of love controlling

Each member through the Word,

And what it means is evident;

Changed lives the story tell.

The brother heart though wounded sore

Still whispers "All is well."

BROTHERHOOD

Brotherhood, what does it mean?

Tell us if you can,

You who think that wisdom

Starts and ends with man.

Days, and years, and centuries

Tell their tale of woe;

Oppression, wars, injustice,

Everywhere you go.

Earthly love's not lasting,

Human hearts are cruel:

Self-seekers lauding brotherhood

But use it as a tool.

But turn from earthly standards

And let the Bible speak.

Where Christ is really "Master",

"All ye are brethren," meek.

No other tie so binding,

AFTER VACATION

Perhaps the Auxiliary women of N. C. have wondered why their Field Worker has not sent out any news of the field work in some time—well, the truth of the matter is, that I have been on a six weeks vacation and have been unable to keep in touch with the progress, nor with the needs of the auxiliaries. However, I am glad to inform you that I am back on the field, and ready for service. Any Auxiliary who desires to have the Manual of Methods taught, or our National Plan of Work explained, write me as soon as convenient, and we shall be glad to arrange an appointment. At the Executive session of the Woman's Auxiliary Convention, held recently, it was agreed that the Officer's Training Classes be continued throughout this Convention year. I was glad of this decision, because it was such a success last year. We have seen, and are experiencing worth while results from these efforts. Each Convention in the State is supposed to sponsor one or more classes between now and next May. In case of a large area in any one district, plans can be made to hold two or more classes in order that a greater number may be able to attend. Please keep this in mind, and notify me of any plan or decision you make regarding these classes. It is highly important that all of our women acquaint themselves with the work of the auxiliary, which furnishes such a splendid opportunity to those who really desire to become "Workers together with God."

I was very sorry to miss the woman's Conference at Cragmont this year. Circumstances that I could not control called me elsewhere at this time. However, it has been a real inspiration to me to hear of the wonderful experiences in fellowship, in study of the Word, and in the various interests of the conference. I was especially pleased that we had the largest conference that we have ever had, and that the manifestations and testimonies of all were for a greater and better conference next year. Some one said, "The conferences at Cragmont grow better each year."

Another thing gave me much joy, that was the resolution of the conference to ask each auxiliary in the State to send a contribution of $5.00 or more, to Mr. Fountain Taylor, of Richlands, by March 1st, 1951, for supplies for Cragmont.

May we put our shoulders to the wheel, as the old saying goes, and pull, push and pray for a full surrender of our lives, and a deeper spiritual awakening to the needs and opportunities before us in service for, and with the Master. May we unite in earnest prayer, acknowledging our dependence on Him, who is able to lead us to victory in His name.

"BE STILL, AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD"

In this great world upheaval men and women, boys and girls are "panicky" over conditions surrounding us. Fear seems to be in almost every heart, fear of the atom bomb and the still more deadly H-bomb, fear of war and all that war brings, fear of one another, fear of our very shadows. Yet, there is a remedy; the Father has said, "Be still, and know that I am God"—"Perfect love casteth out fear," "Fear not, little flock: for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom" (Luke 12: 32). In II Thess. 3:3 "But the Lord is faithful, who shall establish you, and keep you from evil."

In the days of the apostles, men were admonished to look for the second appearing of Christ in the clouds—today we are being warned of danger on every side. We are being reminded daily of the nearness of the coming of the Prince of Peace, yet fear, procrastination and unbelief are three of the things that are bringing terror into men's hearts. Many are crying, "peace," but finding it not. The world at large has forgotten that the Gentile age is nearing its close. It has forgotten, or ignored the fact that God has said through Paul, in I Thess. 5:3, "For when they shall say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them—and they shall not escape." Perilous times are upon us, as was predicted by Paul and other inspired writers. II Timothy 3:2-5. "For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those who are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God: Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." In verse 13, we are told that "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." Let us take time to "Be still and know that our God is "our hiding place; thou shalt preserve me from trouble; thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance." We need to give God a chance in our lives, that He may mold and make them according to His own will. He says, "Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth (Psa. 46:10).

We need to "Be still," many times when we are not, for unless we take time for silent meditation and prayer, how can we hope to be endued with power to meet the needs of a lost world. I am sometimes impressed with seeing so much hurry in and among those on whose shoulders rest such heavy responsibilities in the kingdom work of our Lord. In our haste, I wonder if He is pleased with us, and the attitude we sometimes assume. We need so much to "Be still" and commune with Him, that we may be fitted to go out in His name and win souls to Christ and to promote His kingdom here among men.

Some one has said, "The midnight hour is upon us"—"And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet Him." One by one the lights will go out all over the world. Too late to make amends for our careless living, our indifference, our lethargy—too late to put Christ first in our lives—the midnight hour has struck. May we be prepared to meet the Lord in the air, when He comes in all His glory to gather up His Bride, the Church. We know that "Men's hearts are failing for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken, and then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory" (Luke 21:26, 27). "Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man." To those who are ready, the Midnight hour will mean joy unspeakable, to the lost it will mean "Verily, I say unto you, I know you not" (Matthew 25:12).

Corinth "Go-Tell" Auxiliary Holds Meeting

On Sunday, September 10, the "Go-Tell Auxiliary" held its meeting at Corinth Church, near Dunn, North Carolina. Edna Earle Naylor called the meeting to order, the members present sang a hymn, Linda Faye Norris read the scripture which was taken from St. Matthew 2:1-6, and prayer was offered by her. Then the program chairman, Linda Faye Norris read the program which was given by the different members present who had a part in it.

Following the rendering of the program, the roll was called by the secretary, Ethel Gray Gainey, with ten members present. The offering taken amounted to two dollars. The business matters were then taken up, and after they were completed we adjourned the meeting. We will meet the next time on the fourth Saturday afternoon at 3:30 with our leader, Ida Strickland.

"IN THE INWARD PART"

Through the five senses of the body we become conscious of the outside world. We can say that we know the world in which we live, for this world has made its way to us through these senses, and our great consciousness within cries out, "I know."

Within this body is a soul. The soul has senses also,—I do not know how many; but with these senses it reaches out and knows its kind. For those the soul loves it would sacrifice and sometimes die. The consciousness with the soul rises up and says of the personalities of others, "I know them."

Deeper still within us is the spirit. God breathed this into Adam's nostrils and man became a "spirited soul," or "living soul." The spirit should be able thru its senses to know God, but sin has blinded its eyes, seared its conscience as with a hot iron to keep it from feeling God, spoiled its taste for God, and through its smell (if it has one) it is not even able to discern the presence of God. God calls,—oh, how many thousands of times He has knocked and called,—but sin has made the ears deaf.

All mankind is in this condition by nature. God has said, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him." Jesus came as our substitute to put away all sin of this spirit, soul, and body, and to regenerate this spirit. He calls it "the new birth." When we are born again by accepting Christ as our Saviour and our very life, the One who has put away all our sins, we understand that God is our Father, and immediately His Spirit speaks to this newly regenerated spirit within us that now has eyes, ears, nose, mouth, and tongue. To this spirit the Word of God says, "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God; and if children, then heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ."

When our spirits were blinded in sin, instead of drawing from God all the delights and pleasures in Him we turned and began to draw our delights through the body; the spirit and soul became subject to the lusts and the desires of the body. All mankind, until released by Jesus, are the bond-slaves of the desires of their natural mind, natural tastes and natural lusts and passions; but when He comes in we give the Holy Spirit the very throne of our being, which is our spirit. He here communes with us, fellowships with us, and our disposition or soul becomes subject to the spirit, and the body becomes subject to both, to this newly regenerated heart, if we consent to let the Lord have His way. In this sense our body then becomes the temple of the Holy Spirit, and the Spirit of God keeps it a clean temple.—Paul Rader.

A FAITHFUL MOTHER

After a recent fire, in which a barn was almost completely destroyed, the owner, walking over the ruins, came upon an old black hen. He wondered that she did not move her head to look at him as he came near her, but he thought that she must be asleep. He poked her with his cane, and to his surprise the wing which he touched fell into ashes. Then he knew that she had been burnt to death. But out from under her came a faint, little peep, and pushing her aside with his cane, the man found ten, live yellow chickens. The hen had sacrificed her own life to save them.

This was the love of a hen for her chickens. But He who made all living things and planted a portion of His own affection in everyone of them, yet feels a deeper love than they can for the creatures He has made. And yet how many despise His goodness and reject His love. Thus of old the Jews rejected the Saviour of mankind, which He wept over their folly and said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not. Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord" (Matt. 23:37-39).

GOD'S PROMISES ARE DEPENDABLE

A. L. SELLERS

Some say there is no God. Others say there is nothing to the church, and many say they can live as good out of the church as they could in the church. Regardless of what they say or think about it, God's promises are coming, as he said they would.

Eve was made to believe that she would not die, as God said she would, if she ate of the forbidden fruit. But to her sad disappointment, when she ate, she found the effect to be just what God said it would be. What she believed was no relief when God came on the scene.

The people did not believe Noah, when he advised them that God had promised to send a flood because of the wickedness of the people, and that he was instructed to build an ark in which those who would believe might be saved. He built the ark. He and his wife, his three sons and their wives were saved, but all the rest were lost. In Matt. 24:39 Christ said, "They knew not until the flood came and took them all away." It was not that they had not heard the message concerning the flood, that they knew not, but because they would not believe. The flood came, but when they were convinced that the message was true, it was then too late. The door was shut. So they were all taken away. Can you imagine the sadness of their disappointment? God's promise became a reality to them, but it was too late to do them any good. Dear reader, are you going to let it be too late with you when you let God's promises become a reality to you, to do you any good? You can if you want to, and OH HOW SAD!

I quote from Lev. 26:14-17. "But if ye will not hearken unto me, and do all of these commandments; and if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will do all my commandments, that you break my covenants: I will also do this unto you; I will appoint over you terrors, consumption, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it. And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you." This is what God promised to the children of Israel if they would not be obedient. They did not believe it; and, if you will study their history you will find that they were punished as it is here stated that they would be. It was so sad with them because they would not be instructed. Whether we believe it or not God is going to fulfill his promises, and it will be blessings to those that believe, but OH HOW SAD to those that don't believe.

Some critics say it is not true, for God did not destroy Nineveh. They are on the list with the man that said, "There is no God," and is fooled just as bad as he was. They are all fools, not for the lack of intelligence, but because they are fooled, they have believed the truth to be a lie. It was not the people that God was wanting to get rid of in Nineveh, but it was their wickedness. Any one with any sense of reason can see that it was the wickedness, and it was his purpose to destroy that wickedness if he had to destroy the people, but they repented, and that destroyed the cause for his wanting to destroy the city. God always has a reason for wanting to do things, and when that reason is moved his attitude is changed.

Studying this makes me sad. I know that we as a nation have left God; and, as he turned his back on the Israelites, I am made to wonder if he will turn his back on us. He does not love us any better than he did them, and it appears to me that, according to opportunity, we have left him as far as they had when he turned his back on them. When we study the life of our nation we don't see much likeness of Christ, but do see a lot of the likeness of Satan. Who then is our God as a nation? "Thou shalt have no other God before me." This means just as much to us as Americans as it did to those people in Moses' day, and I am convinced that God does not take second place any where, and there is safety anywhere that he is allowed to have first place. We are headed, I feel, for the greatest destruction that we as a nation have ever experienced, because we have let Satan have first place in our life as a nation. May God help us to see as Nineveh saw, that we may put on "sack cloth and ashes," and proclaim a fast and prayer of three days from the capital to the most humble hut in the nation. That is our surest way to victory. Can you imagine what the results would be if every citizen of this great nation would get down "in sack cloth and ashes" in a three days' fast, and prayer for a victory over this great strife we are in? I challenge the citizens of America, as one who is willing to try it, that we might have the experience of knowing what the results would be.

The rich man was sadly disappointed when he reached his destination, but his disappointment gave him no relief. He could have said "I did not believe that it was like this, if I had I would have lived differently." That would have done no more good than what he did say, but he was there and no relief for him. He had had Moses and the prophets, but no doubt he had laughed at them. "Woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation! Woe unto you that are full for ye shall hunger. Woe unto you that laugh now! for ye shall weep." Abraham reminded him that in yonder world he had his good things. Notice that it was His GOOD things that he had had. His good things did not last long, but brought him destruction. "Now thou art tormented."

No doubt in my mind but that he had heard the messages of Moses and the prophets and called them foolishness. He sees now where the foolishness is, but too late. The door of mercy is shut to him. His doom is fixed.

Christ in Luke 25:30 said, "Then shall they say to the mountains, fall on us; and to the hills cover us." When they see what they have missed, and what they are in, surely they will want to go out of existence, but God's promise is that we can't do that; but we can let them become realities in our lives now and live accordingly, and enjoy the blessings of being an heir of God and a joint-heir with Christ.

Above all things, dear reader, don't forget that God's promises are dependable, if it is good it is coming, if it is bad it is coming, and we determine what it will be by the way we live. God help us that each of us may so live that ours will be good, is my prayer.

The Empty Pew

The empty pew has an eloquent tongue. Though its message is unpleasant, it is one that all may hear. To the preacher it says, "Your sermon is not worth while." To the visitor it whispers, "You see, we are not quite holding our own." To the treasurer it shouts, "Look out for a deficit." To the stranger who is looking for a church home it suggests, "You had better wait a while." To the members who are present it asks, "Why don't you go visiting next Sabbath, too?" The empty pew speaks against the service. It kills inspiration and smothers hope. It dulls the fine edge of zeal. The empty pew is a weight. The occupied pew is a wing. "Thou wilt be missed because thy seat will be empty" (1 Sam. 20:18).—Selected.

Sitting next to me in the bus station of a large city was a man so old and frail that I wondered that he was traveling. Before long he turned and said, "Where you bound for, son?"

"Chicago," I replied. "Where are you going?"

"Shucks, boy, I ain't goin' nary a place. A feller can see more sights, pantomines and melodrammer just a-sittin' in this waitin' room than you could see at any of your movin' pictures. An' it don't cost you a cent!"—William T. McFadden (Decatur, Ill.)

THE TOUCHSTONE

If I could deliver but one discourse to a congregation composed of all nations of the globe, this should be my text, "Jesus Christ died for our sins."

This is the truth that has lain closest and warmest to the Christian heart in every age of the Church.

This is the touchstone for every pulpit. Wherever the highest spiritual power has been attained there has been the most faithful preaching of the guilt of sin, and of salvation only through the redemptive work of Christ Jesus on the cross of Calvary.

It is the duty of every minister to thunder against injustice and intemperance and fraud and selfishness and hypocrisy and covetousness and every form of wickedness, but the true vantage ground from which to assail them is beside the cross where Jesus died to condemn all sin and to save the sinner.—Theo. L. Cuyler.

Personal Commitment to Jesus Christ

(Lesson for October 8)

Lesson: Matthew 16:24, 25; Mark 1:16-20; Philippians 1:19-26.

Golden Text: Philippians 1:21.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

Our Lord presented the fact of discipleship frequently in His teaching. It is evident He frowned upon rash and ill-considered discipleship. He always wanted men to count the cost. Then, no persecution came as a deterrent and no circumstance arose that made them feel that they were out of the will of God simply on the basis of hardship to be endured.

That there is need of emphasis on this truth today is all too apparent. So much that goes by the name of Christianity is weak and emaciated and effeminate. Continual emphasis seems to be placed on what one gets out of coming to Christ, instead of the fact that when one does come to Christ, it is a life for Christ that is involved.—Moody Monthly.

1. To come after Christ is not to follow him in a mere physical sense, but to submit ourselves in full obedience to him and to pattern our life after his. He who does these things is a real disciple. This involves a renunciation of everything that would hinder true discipleship. (vss. 24)—The disciple must endure whatever comes upon him for Christ's sake. (vss. 24)

2. He who avoids through compromise the burdens and sufferings, or even the bodily death, which would come in the path of discipleship, will lose everlasting life. Also in a very real sense he will lose his life in this world in that he will fail to accomplish or enjoy what he might. (vss. 25)

3. Their immediate obedience is a fitting example to all who receive a call from God. (vss. 17)

4. The fact that there were hired servants indicates that Zebedee was a man of some means. No doubt he would be able, without hardship, to hire others to take the place of his sons. (vss. 19)

—Arnold's Commentary

5. Right in the center of verse 24 is the fact that we are trying to express, "let him deny himself." This verse does not say, "let him deny things to himself." It has absolutely nothing to do with the custom of some people who during a part of a year won't do this and won't do that, and save a little money and give it to the church. The denial of things to yourself is not necessarily the denial of self. As a matter of fact, you can deny things to yourself and be very proud about it. And that very action proves that you don't know anything about death to self.

The Lord Jesus is talking about taking up a cross, and a cross always means crucifixion. This cross of which the Lord Jesus is talking is not any ordinary trial or difficulty that comes to any of the children of men. Rather, it is that which we are called upon to suffer because of our allegiance to Christ.

Discipleship means a response to the call to service, whatever it is and wherever it is. Whether it be at home or abroad, whether or not it be in connection with what we sometimes call secular employment, these choices are not ours. Our choice is to be absolutely obedient to all the will of God. Every child of God, whether he is in what is sometimes called secular occupation or in Christian ministry, should be living 100 per cent of his time for God. God calls us all to live that way.

Discipleship Means Willingness to Live or Die for Christ (Phil. 1:19-26)

What a wonderful passage this is. The apostle speaks of his imprisonment, of the opposition of some who preached Christ of envy and strife

(v. 15), as turning out to his salvation, that is, to his growth in grace, to his conformity to the image of Christ. So far as he was concerned, he wanted Christ to be magnified in his body, whether by life or by death (v. 20).

How true it is that for the child of God to die is gain, but to live is Christ. Thank God, Christ is life to us who believe in Him. It is only as the Lord lives out His life in us that we shall really live for God. Not only is to die gain, but for the child of God to depart and be with Christ is far better (v. 23). However, no child of God will want to leave this earthly scene one moment before the Lord's time. The Lord has His work for us, the work that He wants to do in and through us for His glory. Thus shall Christ be magnified in us, whether by life or by death.—Moody Monthly.

II. The Lesson Illustrated Dedication of Self

At a Christian celebration on the west coast of Africa a few years ago, when converted natives brought of their meager possessions to show their devotion to Christ, a young girl only recently saved from paganism brought a silver coin worth about eighty-five cents, and handed this to the missionary as her gift to the Saviour. The good man was astounded at the size of the offering, and hesitated to accept it, supposing it must have been obtained dishonestly; but when he delicately asked for an explanation of this lavish gift, the convert told him that she had gone to a neighboring planter and bound herself out to him as a slave for the rest of her life for this coin. Thus she brought the whole monetary equivalent of her life and placed it as a single gift at the feet of her Lord. That is the kind of consecration which Jesus expects of those who have sworn eternal fealty to Him. It is not our duty to enslave ourselves to any human master. It is our rare privilege to dedicate ourselves and our substance entirely to our Lord.—Rev. G. P. Eckman.

STORYLAND

THE DECISIVE WHISTLE

A. MARIA CRAWFORD

OM MARTIN stared gloomily at his little pine desk. It was a plain desk, the gift of his father the Christmas before he died. He always sat there to solve his problems of life as well as those of algebra, for it seemed to lend a certain dignity to work at one's own desk. The possession of it seemed to help him to think properly. The great problem of this young life was before him now and he sat there studious, thoughtful, trying to wrestle with and overcome the difficulty which confronted him.

"If Fred whistles again before I count ten, I'll go to old man McNulty and ask for a job eve nif he does turn me down," he said to himself and began to count slowly. When he had counted seven, his brother's cheery whistle determined his course of conduct.

Tom pulled on his somewhat worn gray overcoat and taking his cap down from a peg, squared his shoulders and went down to speak to his mother. "I'm going to give up school for this term, Mother, and go to work. I've thought it all over and I know that is what Father would have me do if he were here to advise me. You've worked yourself to a shadow and I'm not going to stand it any more."

"Oh, no, Tom," begged his mother. "We'll get along some way and you must have an education. I've set my heart on that."

"I'll get one, too. Where there's a will there's a way, Mother. Just you watch and see."

"You have heard about McNulty wanting a boy. Don't go to him, Tom, for he and your father had some difference once and he will turn you down and then you will become discouraged."

"No, I won't. The head of a family must have plenty of courage and I guess I'm head of this place from today."

He kissed his mother, taking care to hide his own anxiety from her. "Will you pray for me, please?" he asked gently.

She held him in her tired arms for a minute, all the mother love in her welling up in a simple prayer to the Father for this son who had early taken his yoke upon him.

"Mr. McNulty," he said when he had been ushered into that gentleman's presence, "I understand that you are looking for a boy. I'm Tom Martin and I need work. I wish you would consider me an applicant for the job."

"How old are you?"

"I am sixteen. I expected to graduate from the city schools in June but things are not going well at home and I have decided to give up school for this year and go to work. Can't you give me something to do right now?"

The boy's sacrifice and his evident eagerness to help his family touched the gruff old man more than he would have acknowledged.

"Your father beat me in an election once," he said, "but I guess it's not right to hold anything against the dead." There was a shrewd look in his faded blue eyes. "The position you want won't be open until next week, but in the meantime I need an errand boy and if you are not above a little hard work, I'll take you at four dollars a week."

"Thank you, sir, I'll take it and do my best."

It was Saturday and Tom ran errand after errand through the ice and snow. At night he was tired but cheerful.

"Want to give up the job?" asked old man McNulty when he started to supper.

"No, sir, not if I please you."

The McNulty Wholesale Sugar House was a big establishment and Tom found plenty of work to do. At the end of the first week Mr. McNulty heard Tom was studying at night trying to keep up with his school fellows. "There's something in that boy," he said to himself and straightway decided to create a new office and give the boy a chance.

"Didn't you tell me that you expected to graduate in June?" asked McNulty on Monday morning when Tom went to work.

"Yes, sir," answered Tom quickly.

"You do first rate as an errand boy. Fact is, you do a little better than any boy I've ever had, so I suppose we had better patch up this school business between us, what do you say?"

"Oh, that's all right," said Tom. "I'm glad to help mother and I ca nstudy nights. Lots of boys have made a good living on less education than I have now."

"You go back to school this morning, Tom," said McNulty who had a reputation for loving nothing but money, "and report to me every afternoon as soon as you can. You're worth twenty-five a month to me now and I've talked it over with your mother and she says that she can get along fr mously with that until June. Then I'll see what I can do for you and you can go up just as fast as you are willing to work."

How Tom did work through the winter and spring! The tired look left Mrs. Martin's eyes and she seemed to grow young again. There was a pair of strong young shoulders on which she could lean, a son on whom she could depend.

"How did you happen to take up that Martin boy, McNulty?" asked one of his old clerks when Tom had risen to an enviable position in the house.

"For two reasons," said McNulty quietly. "First, His sacrifice for his mother, he was so earnest about it. Then I wanted him because of his influence on my other employees. There wasn't a man in my house, old or young who didn't respect, yes, respect that boy before he had been here a month. I never would have stood for any preaching around here, but that boy lived his Christianity every day. He gave half his lunch on pretext that he was not hungry to my janitor every day while the old fellow's wife was sick. Nobody ever thought of old McNulty before he came. I was just the old boss who was not supposed to be human at all. Every night last winter when the streets were slick with ice, that boy made some excuse to walk along with me and lend me his arm at the bed places. I tell you, Smith, that boy's influence is worth something to any man's house."

"How did you make good, Tom?" asked Fred when he was ready to go out and try his fortune.

"I worked hard. I was courteous and I had faith in mother's prayer," said the young fellow leaning over to kiss the forehead of the little woman whose heart he had made to blossom with the flowers of hope and love and comfort.—Pub. Unknown.

Home-Coming at Christian Chapel

Christian Chapel, near Pink Hill, N. C., is to have a home-comig celebration on first Sunday in October. All members, former pastors, and friends are urged to be present for this occasion. A cordial invitation is extended to one and all. Come with well-filled baskets of good foods and enjoy the day with us.

We expect to have some good singing by some of the choirs of our neighboring churches in the afternoon. Come, friends, members, and former pastors, and let us have a good day together in the service of the Lord. May we make it a day of Christian fellowship in praise and thanksgiving unto God.

Mrs. Marvin Howard,
Pink Hill, N. C.

Women have considerable moral sense when they don't love a man. Mighty little when they do. With a man, it's the opposite. If he doesn't care for a girl, he's without scruples. If he does care, he is likely to develop a moral code only the angels can live up to.—Mark Reed, Yes, My Darling Daughter (French)

Fred C. Fitzgerald

Brother Fred C. Fitzgerald died at his home, Kenly, Route 1, on July 2, 1950, after an illness of three months.

In early life he united with the church and had been a member of Rains Cross Roads church for many years. Not only his church but the community and surrounding churches and communities realize they have lost a real friend and co-worker because he was always ready to help and to do more than his part. Every one that knew him liked him, because of his friendliness, cheerfulness and pleasant smile, which he always took with him. There was a motto he kept over his desk and in his heart, "Why worry when you can pray?" The young people dearly loved Brother Fitzgerald. For many years he worked with them in the League, Sunday School and church.

He was a great lover of music, and people everywhere loved to hear his voice. He took part in the vocal unions. There are many boys and girls that have to thank Brother Fitzgerald for helping them get started as real singers. At the time of his death he was clerk of his church, member of the pastoral and building committees, and assistant teacher of the Young People's Sunday School class. His body has passed from this earth but his influence still lives on.

Besides a host of friends and loved ones he leaves to mourn his wife, Mrs. Flora Edgerton Fitzgerald, four daughters, Mrs. Fate Best, Route 1, Goldsboro, N. C., Mrs. R. S. Garner, Route 2, New Port, N. C., Mrs. George Ivey, Route 2, Four Oaks, N. C., and Mrs. J. W. Hinnant, Route 1, Kenly, and 9 grandchildren.

To them we say "May Heaven seem much nearer to you now since one your love is there."

Written by a friend of the family

Brother Willey Wellons

We, the members of the church of Rain's Cross Roads wish to pay tribute to the passing of one of our members, Brother Willey Wellons. Therefore be it resolved: First, That we bow in humble submission to God's Holy will; Second, That in the passing of our Brother the church and community have lost one of their beloved faithful members. Brother Wellons will long be remembered by his many friends and co-workers;

Third, That to his wife, children and loved ones we extend our deepest sympathy. May they find comfort in the one who came to heal the broken hearted; and, fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy sent to the Baptist Press for publication and a copy placed upon the church records.

EMPTY SEATS

Ezra Clark

"Are you going to church this morning, Susie?" asked Dr. Clarke, lying back in his easy chair, with the morning paper. "A Doctor who is out day and night can't be expected."

"No, I made jelly yesterday, and I'm tired. I'm faithful enough to stay at home this cloudy morning," and Mrs. Clark curled up on the couch with the Bible she hadn't opened for a week, but it soon dropped from her hand. She was aroused by a strange voice saying:

"Now my good imps, what have you done today to weaken the kingdom of God?"

The voice came from a suspicious looking person seated on a throne. Around him was gathered a crowd of terrible beings, each with a crown of fire, in which gleamed some name, such as malice, envy, pride, hatred, and kindred passions:

"We have been busy today making empty seats in churches," said one.

"Nothing could please me better," answered their king.

"I persuaded one man that he had a headache, and kept him from a sermon that might have changed his whole life," said one.

"I induced one good man to slip into his store and fix up his books," said another with a horrid grin.

"Good!" said the king. "He'll soon give up Sunday altogether."

"I was able to get one devoted young man to visit some old friends," said another imp.

"I worried a good sister about her bonnet until she decided to stay at home until she got a new one," spoke up the imp labeled pride.

"And I made several women who were hungry for God's Word to stay home to repine over trials. I just said to them, 'Oh, these rich people don't care for you, you can't wear fine clothes, so I wouldn't go where I was looked down upon.'" That way I kept many poor people whom the rich would have been very glad to see."

"That is one of the best ways to cheat poor people out of heaven that I know of," answered the king with approval.

"In induced a good many men and women to think they were not strong enough to get out," said one called "Indifference." "Of course, all these men will be at business tomorrow, even if they feel worse. But they could not go to church, where they would have no special mental or physical strain. And ladies would have been able to go calling or clean house, but I made them think they could not walk to church unless they were perfectly well."

"Very good," said the king, with a sulphurous grin. "Sunday headaches might often be cured by getting out into the fresh air, and backaches forgotten by thoughts driven to higher things. But you lying imps must use every weakness of the flesh to help make empty seats."

They all smiled, for in their kingdom lying was a great compliment.

"To make ladies think that their servants need no Sunday privileges is good," suggested one. "Very true," said the superior, "as long as we can get Christian people to cause or allow men and women to work during church hours, we can keep many empty seats in the churches, and men and women away from God."

"I'm the weather imp," said one gloomy fellow. "I go around persuading people it is going to rain, or it is too cool, or too damp, or too hot to venture out to church. It is enough to make even your gloomy majesty start out the next day in wind and weather. One would think it is a sin to carry an umbrella and wear gum coats to church."

"I am able to do a good deal with some of the ladies of the congregation," spoke up the imp labeled "Fashioned of this World."

"I can make some people stay at home because the new hat did not come, or because their clothes are out of style, or they have not gotten a new cloak."

"I have a better scheme than that," said another. "These people you keep away are indifferent—generally good-for-nothing folks, who are hardly worth getting into the kingdom of his Satanic majesty, but I have a plan that empties seats of the workers in the church."

"That is just what we want," said the king.

"I make these people overwork on Saturdays. For instance, I induce some good man the preacher depends upon, or some devout Sunday school teacher, to make Saturday the busiest day of the week. I just keep him rushed with neglected things till late at night, and then he oversleeps or is sick the next day, and can't get out."

"Splendid plan," cried Satan.

"Yes, it works well with delicate women. If they clean house, or have Saturday company, they can be kept at home. A church party late Saturday nights helps make empty seats."

"You are doing finely, my imps," his majesty said warmly—for his breath was a breath of fire! "Preachers may work and pray over their sermons all week, but there will be no results in preaching to empty seats. One of the most important things we have to consider is how to keep people away from church on Sunday. Your plans are excellent, but I may suggest another good point. All preachers have human imperfections—some fault of manner or speech. Get Christians to criticize their pastors, especially before their children. If you can stir up a spirit of faultfinding against the preacher, it will help empty seats. People who get made at each other do not care to go to church together. If the seats are empty, the preacher may be a saint, and preach like an angel, but to no purpose. See the result of your labor on High Street Church today. Not only did the two hundred people who stayed at home lose a blessing, but each empty seat did its work against the Lord's kingdom. The preacher made unusual preparation, and went with his heart on fire, but the empty seats chilled him, and he did poorly. There was a special collection, but the best givers were away, so it was a failure. It isn't a smart congregation; nor a good location, nor a paid choir, that makes a church successful. It is the church members always being there that draws in the unconverted, and makes an eloquent preacher. As soon as a Christian begins to stay at home, I have a mortgage on his soul which, I will foreclose on the judgment day."

"You have none on mine!" cried Mrs. Clark, who had been listening with bated breath, "I'll go to church if only to defeat you."

"What's the matter, dear?" asked the doctor, "have you been dreaming?"

"Perhaps so, but I am going to church if I get there just in time for the benediction. I'll cheat Satan from this day on out of one empty seat."

She has kept her word, and influenced many others to let nothing trifling keep them from God's house, and one "down-town" church has begun to grow, and will soon be a great power for God, because of no "empty seats."

Rev. N. Bruce Barrow Is Now in North Carolina

Brother N. Bruce Barrow and his family have just recently returned to their home at Arba in Greene County, North Carolina, from Bryan, Texas, where they had been living for around three years. Brother Barrow was pastor of the Bryan Free Will Baptist Church in the city of Bryan, Texas, and student of Texas State College in Bryan, where he pursued and completed college courses for his Bachelor's degree.

Brother Barrow will pastor churches in eastern North Carolina. Should any church or churches desire his services, we feel certain that he will be glad to serve them, if he is not already occupied with full-time work for the coming year. Those interested may write to him. His address is as follows: Rev. N. Bruce Barrow, Snow Hill, North Carolina, Route 2.

On one of the busiest corners of New Orleans, George Pinell, former cartoonist, does a big business tattooing Social Security numbers on the wrists and arms of hundreds of people who want a record that can't be lost or forgotten.—Grit.

And there he went to work handing out what brings miseries.

OTHERS MAY—YOU CANNOT

If God has called you to be really like Jesus in all your spirit, He will draw you into a life of crucifixion and humility, and put on you such demands of obedience that He will not allow you to follow other Christians, and in many ways He will seem to let other good people do things which He will not let you do.

Other Christians who seem very religious and useful may push themselves, pull wires, and work schemes to carry out their plans, but you cannot do it; and if you attempt it, you will meet with such failure and rebuke from the Lord as to make you sorely penitent.

Others can brag on themselves, on their work, on their success, on their writings, but the Holy Spirit will not allow you to do any such thing, and if you begin it, He will lead you into some deep mortification that will make you despise yourself and all your good works.

Others will be allowed to succeed in making money, or having a legacy left to them, or in having luxuries, but it is likely God will keep you poor, because he wants you to have something better than gold, and that is a helpless dependence on him, that He may have the privilege of supplying your needs day by day out of an unseen treasury.

The Lord will let others be honored, and put forward, and keep you hid away in obscurity, because He wants to produce some choice, fragrant fruit for His common glory, which can only be produced in the shade.

He will let others be great, but keep you small. He will let others do a work for Him, and get the credit for it, but He will make you work and toil on without knowing how much you are doing; and then to make your work still more precious, He will let others get the credit for the work which you have done, and this will make your reward ten times greater when Jesus comes. The Holy Spirit will put a strict watch over you, with a jealous love, and will rebuke you for little words and feelings or for wasting your time, which other Christians never seem distressed over. So make up your mind that God is an infinite Sovereign, and has a right to do as He pleases with His own, and He will not explain to you a thousand things which may puzzle your reason in His dealings with you.

He will take you at your word; and if you absolutely sell yourself to be His slave, He will wrap you up in a jealous love, and let other people say and do many things that you cannot do or say. Settle it forever, that you are to deal directly with the Holy Spirit, and that He is to have the privilege of tying your tongue, or chaining your hand, or closing your eyes, in ways that He does not deal with others. Now when you are so possessed with the living God that you are, in your secret heart, pleased and delighted over this peculiar, personal, private, jealous guardianship and management of the Holy Spirit over your life you will have found the vestibule of heaven.—Selected.

NO CARES

O Lord! how happy we should be
If we could leave our cares to thee;
If we from self could rest,
And feel at heart that One above,
In perfect wisdom, perfect love,
Is working for the best.

For when we kneel and cast our care
Upon our God, in humble prayer,
With strengthened souls we rise;
Sure that our Father, who is nigh
To hear the ravens when they cry,
Will hear his children's cries.

How far from this our daily life;
How oft disturbed by anxious strife,
By sudden wild alarm!
O could we but relinquish all
Our earthly props and simply fall
On thine Almighty arms!

We cannot trust him as we should,
So chafes weak nature's restless mood
To cast its peace away;
But birds and flowers around us preach
All, all, the present evil teach,
Sufficient for the day.

O may these anxious hearts of ours
The lesson learn from birds and flowers,
And learn from self to cease,
Leave all things to our Father's will,
And, in his mercy trusting, still Find in each trial peace.

The Waiting of God

Rev. Edgar L. Vincent

How waiting does eat the heart of a man out! The young man knows something of this while he is fitting himself for his life-work. He wears his book-leaves out trying to make the knowledge of other men his. His lamp runs dry long before he is ready to go to his rest. Far on in the night he leans back in his chair, and wonders how long it must be before he can take up the work he has set himself to do.

Before he comes anywhere near the realization of his ambitions, the artist must cover acres of canvas with his colors; and well for him if the best he can do does not seem to him the veriest daubing!

How the wife turns her eyes across the sea waiting for the whitening speck of sail which tells her that her dear one is on the way home! What long days these are! It seems sometimes as if the nights never would come to an end. The heart grows so tired waiting!

A mother's hand sets a lamp in the cottage window when the shadows begin to lengthen. For years she has trimmed the wick of that lamp, and poured oil in to keep that light alive. Now high she lifts the curtain. Down the road the cherry rays fall so bravely, and the mother turns back to her work.

But the waiting of God? How can that be? When we think of Him we remember the mighty enterprises which engage him. New worlds to shape and fling out upon their course; old worlds to hold in His hand; nations to lead along the pathway of the ages; empires to shake into a consciousness that right is right and God is God; little republics which honor God to be exalted—surely all this must give God no time for waiting.

And yet, it is only because we have not lifted our eyes from our playthings, the daily cares and the frettings and the worryings, that we have not seen the face of God bending down over us in tenderest longing. It is because our ears have been so confused with the noises of this world of ours that we have not heard Him say to us so gently: "Therefore will the Lord wait, that He may be gracious unto thee."
—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

REPENTANCE

Repentance is the gateway out of a prison. Whoever passes through that door feels a great load lifted, breathes the air of freedom, and sees the light of love in blue skies. Whether we can repent without God's help, whether God can give us His help until we do repent, are theological questions which we can debate forever. The truth is that He bids us repent and be forgiven and be saved. And they will all happen at once to any one who wants them to. And when they do happen, it is life, new life.—Publisher Unknown.

DID YOU PAY GOD?

By L. Everett Ballard

I met him on the street and he told me of the prosperous year he had had. "I got out of debt," said he. "I paid a note off my farm that had been running a long time, and I paid a bill that I owed at the hospital, and I paid an old debt at the store."

"Did you pay God?" I asked.

He looked at me in a strange sort of way. "Pay God?" asked he.

"Yes," I said. "You know according to the teachings of the Bible in the eternal law of God, the law of Moses, and according to the words of Christ himself, we owe God the tenth of all our income. Did you pay Him His tithe?"

"How could I?" asked he, "when I owed all these debts, and these people needed their money?"

And I said, "God needed His money mighty bad, too. Last year a large number of missionaries had to be withdrawn from the foreign fields where they were badly needed, because there was not money in God's treasury on earth to take care of their needs. In the homeland many churches went without pastors, and many others did not have the services they needed. Also hundreds of little children without parents were turned away from the Christian orphanages because there was not money to provide a place for them. And all this was because many thousands of church members did like you. They paid other people, but they did not pay God"

"Perhaps I should have paid God His tithe first," said he.

"Yes," said I, "God should always come first."

"But if I had paid God first," asked he, "what would the hospital and the merchant have done?"

"Well," I replied, "thousands of people have obeyed God's law and put his claim for the tithe first, and I have never heard of a person who has sincerely and consistently done this but who has been able to testify that he got along better with his earthly obligations as a result. God has promised thirty-eight times in the Bible to bless and prosper those who obey him in the matter of their substance, and He keeps his promises. He would have made good those promises to you as He has to others."

Then he declared, in a tone that denoted earnestness, "From now on God shall come first. I will bring my tithe to the storehouse of God, and try him, and see if He will not pour out a blessing upon me."

And I said "Amen!"

SUPERANNUATION

As most of you know, the month of October is set apart in the united program for North Carolina Free Will Baptists as Superannuation Month. We praise the Lord for the support our people have given to this worthy cause in recent years, however, we have not as yet done anything like we want to do, or what we hope to do. Our retired and disabled ministers throughout the State are worthy of much more than we are doing at the present time, therefore, let us all rally to the cause of Superannuation during October this year as never before.

At our last session of the State Convention at Rains Cross Roads Church the Board of Superannuation recommended and the Convention accepted a goal of $10,000 for this fiscal church year. This is a small per capita for the 40,000 Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, and I hope and pray that our active ministers and layment everywhere will do their part in making this goal possible.

We say that we appreciate the noble services that our elderly ministers have rendered our denomination and the cause of Christ. Now, let us prove what we say by taking special offerings in our Churches, Sunday Schools, Leagues, and Woman's Auxiliaries and forward to Rev. M. L. Johnson, Wilson, N. C., as early as possible. The Board will meet in December to determine the amount available for our ministers each month during the coming year, and what you send in will determine the amount they will receive. Let us pray much about this deserving cause and give whatever the Lord puts on our hearts.

Otter's Creek Church Holds Three Weeks Meeting

Friday night marked the end of the nightly meetings of a three weeks' revival at Otter's Creek F. W. B. Church. Only the meeting has closed; the revival lingers on in the hearts of the people. Those who were saved, those who were lifted up spiritually, and those who rededicated their lives anew to the Lord certainly remember Rev. W. H. Calvert of North Belmont, North Carolina, as the man who preached the gospel truth and led the lost and dying souls to Christ.

Truly, we are thankful that such a man ordained of God, and endowed with the power of the Holy Spirit had been sent our way to bring to us a great revival meeting. The Lord did surely bless in the meeting.

TRUSTING

Oh, how sweet to trust in Jesus,
Just to feel His presence near;
Joy to rest upon his bosom,
And to know He really cares.

In simple faith, in child-like manner,
To trust Him fully day by day;
Hand in hand along life's pathway,
One can never go astray.

He our rock, our full salvation,
No need to doubt, nor ever chide,
When storms of life roll in upon us,
In the solid Rock, we can hide.

Oh, yes, I'll trust Him now and ever,
'Till the storms of life are o'er;
Then my soul in sweetest slumber,
Shall find port on heaven's shore.
Mrs. Katie W. Roper

Elwood Lane S. S. Class Holds Good Meeting

Elwood Lane Sunday School class held their regular class meeting on September 23 at 7:00 P. M. at the home of Rev. Paul Jenkins. A barbecue supper was sponsored by the men of the class, with all of the trimmings of a fine supper. Following the supper the class held their meeting, or business matters, and the officers were elected for the next three months as follows:

Program Committee: George Lambert, Ben Collier

Welcome Committee: Gilbert Barton, W. White

Treasurer, F. M. Steel, and George Pulliam, secretary

There were present for this meeting 31 persons. We covet the prayers of all of God's people that they may pray for our church and Sunday School.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

THE SAME DOCTRINE

As I entered a certain place of business some time ago, a gentleman said, "there comes a man who was preaching the same doctrine forty years ago that he is preaching now." Everybody (for there were several in the place of business) got quiet and listened for my answer, and here is what I answered: "Yes, it was good enough then, and it is good enough now. If I ever find a better doctrine, then I will shift. In fact there is no better doctrine ever presented to man, then the doctrine of the Free Will Baptist Church."

The reason that I say "there is none better" is because it is the doctrine as presented by the Lord Jesus Himself. No man can deny it. Yes, if I live to preach forty more years, I shall preach the doctrine as given to us by the Lord Jesus, and as believed by all true orthodox Free Will Baptist people.

BROTHER HILBURN'S MESSAGE

Did you take special notice of that wonderful, Biblical message on "Sanctification" as presented by Rev. O. M. Hilburn in Sept. 6 issue of the F. W. Baptist? It was one of the best on the subject that I have read in a good while. It was as sound as God's Word, and therefore will stand when "earth shall pass away," for God says, "My word shall not pass away."

Certainly, sanctification begins when God makes a sinner a new creature and continues as man lives in the bounds of God's will. "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:10).

Yes, created in Christ Jesus. Can you imagine that God would create an imperfect thing? Is it not reasonable that when God makes a thing, He "sanctifies" that thing? We are God's creation. When God created the heavens and the earth and all things therein, it was a perfect work." All things were good, and it is said, man "was very good." So sinful man must be made a new creature. He "must be born again." Not half way born, neither the third part born again. Not created in three parts. But created completely in Christ Jesus. "And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power" (Col. 2:10). Yes, complete. Who did the work of creating? Remember that we are "created in Christ Jesus." It is a complete work. Can you add to completeness?

Yes, God finishes His work in making this new creature, due to the power of the finished work in Christ. No place for a "second definite work" as taught by some. You are right, Brother Hilburn.

A CHILD OF GOD

When we are born again we become a child of God. Thus we become the property of God. We are not our own. "We are bought with a price." We are not half-way on the Lord's side, or half way in God's family. We are wholly a member of the body of Christ, who gave Himself for us to make us "free from the bondage of sin." Not half way "free," for "if the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36). "Being made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness" (Rom. 6:18). "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death" (Rom. 8:2). All these scriptures teach a complete "freedom" in Christ; not a half way freedom. Yes, it teaches that we are made a complete new creature, who loves and willingly obeys God. A person who hates sin "shuns the very appearance of evil." My affections are set on heavenly things when I look for the Lord Jesus. My affections before I was made a New Creature in Christ were on worldly things, things that I hat now.

NO CONDEMNATION

"There is therefore no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 8:1). "No more condemnation?" Why no more condemnation? Because we are Christ's. Being in Christ Jesus we are dead to the world and alive to God. "Old things are passed away and behold all things are become new." Not half-way new. But a complete new work. God does the making. And when God makes us, we "are partakers of divine nature" (2 Peter 1:4). This nature leads us into the avenues of righteousness. This nature never leads us to the Sunday baseball, nor the beer gardens nor the dance halls, nor even to that church (so called church), place of dancing. A religious dance is inspired by the nature of the devil. It is the lust of the flesh. A child of God has another nature from that of the world. A child of God with no condemnation will not love the world, nor the things of the world. Get your Bible right now and read, First John, Second Chapter, verses 15-18. You may have to be "born again" to understand it.

OAK GROVE TO HOLD REVIVAL

Oak Grove Church near Vanceboro, N. C., will hold its revival, beginning Wednesday night after the second Sunday in October. It will continue for about ten days. Rev. Sam Kennedy of Beulaville, N. C., will do the preaching. He will be assisted by our pastor, Rev. Herbert Tripp. The public is cordially invited to attend these revival services.

Mrs. W. N. Barrow, Church Clerk

Good Revival at Old Mother Church, New Zion, S. C.

On the first Sunday night in September, the Rev. L. L. Powell of Hannah, South Carolina, began a series of revival services which lasted two weeks.

We the members of the church, and the visiting friends really enjoyed the soul-stirring messages that Brother Powell delivered. Along with the good sermons, we had some splendid music by a band of singers from Lake City, S. C., and from the Church of God. We did enjoy having them, and wish to have them again with us in the very near future.

Beginning with the second week of the revival, Rev. Hoyite Powell from Hannah, and Rev. Dewey Powell, preached, helping out our pastor in the meeting, Brother L. L. Powell who became ill. But he was able to be back with us later, and we were so glad that he could come back before the meeting closed. We did miss him the few nights he was away.

A large crowd of people attended these services each night. There were eight who took membership with the church. There were more in our midst who needed to come to Christ and surrender their lives to him. The baptismal service was held on the second Sunday afternoon by Rev. Powell.

May God bless our church, and help us to carry on the work for another year. We are praying for the success of our labors.

Mrs. Rhames Morris

A PRAYER

O Lord, Thou knowest what is best for us. Give what Thou wilt, and how much Thou wilt, and when Thou wilt.

Deal with me as Thou thinkest good, and as best pleases Thee, and is most for Thy honor.

Set me where Thou wilt and deal with me in all things as Thou wilt.

I am in Thy hands; turn me round, and turn me back again, as Thou shalt please.

I desire not to live unto myself but unto Thee and O that I could do it worthily and perfectly.

Let Thy will be mine, and let my will ever follow Thine, and agree perfectly with it.

Grant that I may die to all things that are in the world, and for Thy sake may love to be contemned * * and in Thee to have my heart at peace.—Thomas a'Kempis.

$100 Founder's Award

Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Goldsboro, North Carolina, has just received a $100 check from the Evangelical Teacher Training Association of Chicago, Illinois. A copy of the letter which came with the check is written here.

Rev. Rashie Kennedy

Dear Mr. Kennedy:

The Evangelical Teacher Training Association is glad to commend you for your fine work in teacher training during the past year. Our records indicate that you have issued since September 1, 1949, no less than 220 certificates of credit, and are entitled to the first of the Founder's Award, $100. We are, therefore, pleased to enclose herewith our check for this amount.

We congratulate you and sincerely trust that you may be sufficiently encouraged by our token of appreciation to maintain your splendid record in succeeding years.

Cordially and fraternally,
Clarence H. Benson

This was won by taking first place as teacher of the Preliminary Teacher Training Course for Sunday School Workers. Taking first place means that he had more classes, more students and gave out more certificates of credit for work accomplished than any other teacher in the Association. The Association includes over 100 Bible Colleges and Institutes in the United States and Canada. The Preliminary Teacher Training Course is one of the best courses for Sunday School Teachers and Workers, being offered today. It is being offered in College, Bible Institutes, Community Sunday School Institutes, and in local churches. Every one that can possibly do so should avail themselves of the opportunity in taking the course.

The course includes 3 units in Bible covering the entire Bible, and 3 units in Sunday School methods. Other units that fit into the course are, Daily Vacation Bible School, Evangelism, Missions, Biblical Introduction, and Bible Doctrine. These last units are elective but credit is given for each unit toward the Gold Seal Certificate of the Association.

The Preliminary Teacher Training Course, when all six units are completed, will give 4 Semester hours in the F. W. B. Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, should all the students decide to attend that college later.

Mr. Kennedy has the following S. S. Institutes scheduled: Goldsboro F. W. B. Church 9:45 a. m. each Sunday morning, October — June, 7:30 p. m. each Wednesday night.

West Goldsboro F. W. B. Mission October 12, 7:30 p. m.

Union Grove F. W. B. Church Oct. 17, 7:30 p. m.

Hugo F. W. B. church, November 7, 7:30 p. m.

Registration is $1.00 per student, including book and certificate. Tuition in proportion to number in class, distance to place, length of institute or number of trips. Write or call Rashie Kennedy, Goldsboro, N. C. Ph. 449 m.

At a round-table conference always be square in your thinking.

Do you read your church papers?

THE LILY'S NAMESAKE

Alice Montgomery Barr

"Of all the pretty names in the world from which to choose, I wonder why you called me 'Lily,'" a little girl complained to her mother, one morning as they went about their daily tasks of cleaning the house.

Mrs. Lamb looked at her little daughter in astonishment. "Why, Lily," she answered, "never for a moment has the thought entered my mind that you were displeased with the name I gave you."

"I am not to say displeased, mother," Lily answered, "but I was just wondering why you named me after a flower."

Mrs. Lamb dropped the broom and, seating herself in a chair near the window, she called her daughter to her side. "Now, my child, since you have asked the question," she began slowly, "I am going to tell you exactly the reason I called you 'Lily.'"

"When you were a tiny little baby, the one thing that puzzled me most was naming you; and as my friends came in to see me I'd ask them to suggest a name, and finally I had a list of over a hundred names.

"One day, a friend came by, and when I asked her for a name, she laughed. 'Oh, no,' she said, 'I have no name to leave, but I brought you some magazines.'"

"After she was gone I began looking over the papers, and in the first one I picked up a little story that ran something like this: 'Once upon a time an angel came down to earth and brought a little brown bulb to Mother Nature. "Take good care of it, Mother Nature," the angel said, "for it is to be the most beautiful and perfect flower in your garden. Its petals will be like ivory, its heart like purest gold, and it shall bloom at a certain time, into a splendid white flower.'"

Lily's eyes were large with surprise, but she couldn't speak, so her mother continued:

"After I read that story, I thought of how Christ came to earth, a tiny baby, of all the good deeds He did, the promise He gave His disciples. I thought of how He died, of His burial, and how after His ascension the people chose the lily as His flower because of its beauty and perfection. Then I looked at the tiny baby by my side and I said, 'Surely an angel sent you to me, and I'll call you "Lily."'"

"Oh, mother," the little girl cried, "don't say any more. I am sure I'll never be a perfect flower, nor have a heart of pure gold, but I'll never again be sorry I was named Lily; for from now on I'll remember the ugly brown bulb, and how God made it into a beautiful white perfect flower.—The Youth's Counsellor.

We never have a need that the Lord Jesus will not fill, if we trust Him and let Him do it for us.—M. G. H.

THE BIBLE AND THE USE OF LIQUOR

The passages in which the evils of wine and strong drink are vigorously recognized and where red signals are lifted above the roads of life make an impressive code of caution. There are not fewer than 28 of these signposts, directing men away from the paths of poverty and imbecility. They are all fearfully climaxed in the warning of Proverbs:

Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine: they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.

Then, there are the passages in which the social dangers are noted and by which men are called away from dealing in the poison of society. The borderline between this list and the last named list is not easy to establish, yet at least 37 times wine and strong drink are presented in their cruel social effects. When Paul, in I Corinthians, named conditions which unfit men for the final and glorious society, he pronounced one dreadful word of expatriation and wrote over the portals of the Lord's realm: "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God."

We discover the passages in which the individual effects of drink are given in anecdotes: Noah lying in the naked shame of his drunkenness; Lot betrayed by his daughters into an inconceivable paternity; Amnon made silly with wine by the scheming Absalom, only to die soon like the drunken dog; the Corinthians moving to the Holy Communion, debauching bodies and hearts, and sleeping in premature graves.

We happily select the passages which describe the ideal life, or fitness for sacred duties and meditations. Here, first, is the counsel to Aaron, the pioneer of the Lord's priesthood, as translated by Moffat:

The Eternal said to Aaron, "When you or your sons enter the Trysting tent, never drink wine or liquor, lest you die; this to be a standing rule from generation to generation that you may distinguish what is sacred and what is profane; what is clean and what is clean."

Here are the Rechabites, the sons of Jonadab, standing true to total abstinence and winning a continuance of their tribe down through the centuries. Here are the Nazarites, set aside to God, and to set aside from the false stimulations of drink.

Here is the priest's rule ere he enter the deeper sanctuary to stand between God and man. "No priest shall drink wine when he enters the inner court." Here is the mysterious Lemeul in the last chapter of Proverbs, receiving his oracle from his mother:

Son of mine, heed what I say, Listen, O son of my prayers, and obey. Waste not your strength on women, Your love on these destroyers of a king. It is not for kings to be quaffing wine, Nor for princes to be swilling liquor.

In the ideal royalty praised by the ideal mother the cup of fire is an outlaw. Here, finally, is the case of John the Baptist where the promise of the trembling Zacharias is:

Thy wife Elizabeth shall bear a son, And thou shalt call his name John. And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and Many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb, And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

The growth of special consciousness is apparent in the Scriptures. It attacked all kinds of wrong—false balance, cruel usury, financial oppression, as in these words, "Woe to him who stores ill-gotten gains, seeking to set his nest on high, safe from the clutches of calamity."

The biblical community sense urged that all the cluster of duties be observed between man and man. But it had its narrowed point in its attack upon wine and strong drink. The unknown writer of the Proverbs, evidently not trained in the modern percentage distinction among intoxicants, declares after the Moffat rendering:

Wine means mockery; liquor, brawling; there is no sense in reeling under drink.

The minor prophets became major in the Scotchman's version again:

Woe unto him that makes his neighbors drain the goblet of his fury, and makes them drunk, to gloat on their disgrace! Drink yourself now and stagger, for the cup in the Eternal's hand comes round to you. And shame, not glory, guts you.

Amos saw the fierce attack on the idealism of the young and wrote the awful plaint:

I raised up sons of yours as prophets and Young men to be Nazarites. Is it not so,

O Israel? But you gave Nazarites wine to drink, and forbade prophets to prophesy. So now I make your steps collapse, as a cart collapses, laden with sheaves.

Joel wrote the unbelievable thing. In a tragic passage he said:

They have sold a girl for wine that they might drink.

For centuries there has been a natural alliance between the traffic in liquors and the traffic in prostituted bodies!

Amos again saw the effect of drink on women and wrote of it thus fiercely:

Listen to this, you cows of Bashan, you women in high Samaria, you who defraud the poor and are hard on the needy, Who tell your husbands, "Let us have wine to drink!" As sure as I am God, the Lord eternal swears Your day is coming.

Just now the United States is facing an appalling increase of drunkenness among women. Many who frequently abide at hotels will tell you that more and more, masculine and maudlin shouting is accompanied by feminine and vomiting shrieking, while the sanitariums for drunkards are compelled to enlarge their quarters for women.

Doubtless Paul's two laws bring the whole case to its personal and social climax. We must all be smitten at heart by the individual appeal:

Whether therefore you eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

The particular matter of which the Apostle was writing was of far less destruction than our twentieth-century problem of drink. Without question millions more people have been destroyed by liquor than were ever slightly tormented by the ethical problems of meat that had been offered to idols.

Without question an evangelized people becomes a sober people. The deepest relation of the Bible to abstinence and prohibition is in this region. A widespread revival of religion such as came to our land in the fifties and seventies would give the surest protection against the flood-tides of rum now overwhelming us. Such a work of grace would substitute for the vulgar stimulation of wines and liquors the holy stimulation of the Spirit of God.

We face the deplorable fact that some of our people, members of our churches, have been caught in the whirlpool of this disaster. Even when they have not become the physical victims of rum, they have sometimes become its financial and spiritual victims. We see them in the hotel

BIBLE TRAINING COURSES

During the winter and spring months of the present year, there were conducted quite a number of Bible Training courses in North Carolina, and other states by qualified teachers and leaders of the church for those who were seeking training in Sunday School work. The results of these Teacher Training schools in different church centers were certainly commendable, to say the least. As a matter of fact, those conducting them and giving religious instruction to Sunday School superintendents and teachers, and also lay workers of the churches, were people who were both proficient in instructing others in Sunday School work, and deeply interested in seeing better equipment provided for the Sunday Schools wherever possible.

The coming winter months ahead and long nights should serve, in a great many instances, many church groups to avail themselves of the opportunity of setting up Teacher Training courses for their Sunday School teachers and superintendents. In a great many cases, well qualified leaders and instructors can be secured for a nominal sum, we believe, to do the organizing of the Bible Training course, and give the instruction in teacher training that is so greatly needed among our Sunday Schools. As was true last winter and spring, groups of churches in certain areas can and should arrange to hold a Two or Three Weeks' Teachers' Training school. They should arouse interest among the Sunday School teachers, superintendents, and laymen of the church, of their surrounding churches, and get them to come together, and secure qualified instructors to conduct the Institute for them in a centrally situated church for the Institute.

Moreover, the Sunday Schools and the individual Sunday School classes, whose superintendents and teachers take these courses, will greatly benefit from said Institutes conducted in their districts. Since this has been true in the past where Teacher Training courses were conducted and many received training from them, it will prove equally true in the future for those who set up training courses for their teachers and superintendents during the coming winter months. Better teachers will produce better work in the Sunday Schools.

THIS IS THE SEASON FOR BAPTIST SUBSCRIPTIONS

A goodly number of old subscribers of the Baptist paper are now renewing their papers for another year. Some new subscriptions are coming into the office, but not as many as we would like to see for this season of the year. We are hoping that many of the Honor Roll solicitors will get busy this fall and send in long lists of names for the Baptist paper. There are always a number of homes in every church and community that should be getting our church paper. There are many children in these homes who are missing the good religious stories found in the paper each week, while other children in other homes where the paper is going are enjoying reading these good stories. The parents should see to it that their children have in the home good religious stories to read each week of the year. Forming the habit of reading good literature is satisfying and enlightening, therefore every home should provide good literature for their children.

The ministers and pastors will be doing a good deed if they will keep constantly before their church people the need of having the Baptist paper going to their homes every month in the year. The good derived from reading the Baptist paper each week by both parents and children will be far greater than the expense of the paper to the home, for it is always a good investment of one dollar and fifty cents, the subscription price for one year. We urge our pastors to encourage their congregations to take the paper, and to read it each week. A few minutes of reading each night, before retiring, of the Baptist paper and the Bible will benefit each heart, and bring consolation to many a soul.

N. C. CONFERENCES TO CONVENE

The Western North Carolina Conference will convene with People's Chapel, near Elm City, North Carolina, on October 11 and 12. This church is located in a fine rural section of the country, and the people are hospitable, greatly interested in the conference meeting with them this time, and will entertain the delegates, ministers and visiting friends in a splendid manner.

It is expected to be a great occasion with good music, fine preaching, and the transaction of the business of the conference in a good way. The local church people are looking forward to entertaining many of the visitors in their homes on the first night of the conference, and to furnish, for the two days' session, abundance of food on the church grounds at the noon hour. A welcome is extended to one and all to attend this meeting.

Then, the next week, October 18 and 19, the Eastern North Carolina Conference will convene with Antioch Church near the town of Bridgeton, North Carolina. This will also be a great meeting of delegates, ministers, and visiting friends from the various sections of the State. The people of Antioch Church and community have always been noted for their hospitality, abundance of food for the gathering of church bodies at their church, and the generous entertainment of ministers and delegates in their homes. This two days' session is expected to be a great one in many ways: fine music, good preaching, pointed discussions on matters of vital importance to the conference, and Free Will Baptists in general. Large attendance is expected upon this annual meeting. All churches of the conference are expected to represent with large donations for the work of the conference.

How Much Training Should A Woman's Auxiliary Do?

Mrs. D. C. Dodd

Several hundred years ago an outstanding preacher of the Word urged the young Christian worker, Timothy, to "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of Truth." This same admonition applies to every Auxiliary worker today. The Woman's Auxiliary study course is designed to inform and inspire each member who will study with alert mind and eager spirit. The W. N. A. C. plan of study, if followed, will make each woman more missionary minded and a better steward of her time, talents, and money, and will enable her to pray with a greater fervor for the lost of every land. Then, too, she will come to love and appreciate the Bible more and more each passing day. Thus, a great responsibility rests upon each third vice-president. Let us endeavor to do our very best to keep our members informed.

On page eight in the Year Book, under the Calendar of Activities, the Auxiliaries are reminded to study during the month of September the duties of officers. This could well be done by sponsoring an "Officers Clinic." During this clinic, The Manual of Methods should be thoroughly studied so that each officer might be definite on her line of duty.

The Standard of Achievement required at least five study classes during the year. One third of the Auxiliary members are expected to attend and complete the courses. Books on prayer, missions, stewardship, personal service and the Manual of Methods can be used in these study courses.

It should be the goal of each third vice-president to get every Auxiliary member to read two books on Missions during the year, and at least one Stewardship book. An approved list of such books is printed in the Year Book of Programs on pages 55 and 56. Let me take this means to urge each Auxiliary to use Miss Barnard's book, entitled, "His Name among All Nations," for the study class in Missions. Such classes help us to see the needs of our missionaries and come to a personal feeling of responsibility toward them.

The Stewardship Commission of the National Association has prepared six lessons to be used by Free Will Baptists everywhere. Many of our women are ordering these lessons for study classes. For years we have longed for books written by our very own; now we have them. Let me urge each local third vice-president to order these lessons from the Stewardship Commission, 3609 Richland Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee.

"Study"

J. E. Lambdin

Study to know the grace our Lord bestowed on thee;
Study to know the love He has for you and me.
Study to lift thy soul above the din of things;
Study to hear His voice which thru the ages ring.
Study about the price He paid upon the tree;
Study to know His plans that span eternity.
Study that thou a workman unashamed may be,
Study to share the Word of Truth entrusted unto thee.

Woman's Auxiliary of GreenWood Church

The Woman's Auxiliary of Greenwood Church, Mitchell County, Georgia, met for the regular monthly meeting on September 14, 1950. The service was opened by singing, "I Want to Be a Worker for the Lord." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Nora Mae Worslum. The president then turned service over to program chairman, Mrs. Janie Harvey, who gave a short message on "Lost Opportunity." The program theme was announced. Program leader gave scripture reading and introduction. We then had a special arrangement of songs: "To the Work;" and "Work for the Night Is Coming."

The first topic, "The Urgent Need," was given by Mrs. George W. Wishum. Mrs. Mary Poitevint gave the second topic "Methods." The fourth topic was given by Mrs. Mary Ann Singleton, after which we sang "Our Best." Then sentence prayer was offered by all present.

Program chairman turned service over to president. We entered into business by calling roll, reading minutes of last meeting and collecting dues. A motion was made and seconded to give Brother Shutes money out of treasury to pay for one broadcast on radio program. After which we were dismissed to meet again on Thursday after second Sunday in October.

Our Auxiliary is weak and we feel we need your prayers, that we may not become discouraged, but that we might be found always pressing forward in His Name.

HOW TO PROMOTE— WORLD TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

Editor, The National Temperance Digest

World Temperance Sunday, October 29, 1950, should be an important date on your church calendar for it will give you an opportunity to promote the ideals of total abstinence for the individual, and for the community the legal elimination of the Organized Liquor Traffic.

The following suggestions are listed for your consideration in making plans that will make the best use of this important special date.

For the Church

Initiate and implement a program of alcohol education. Begin with a committee of interested leaders in the church to initiate a program of alcohol education that will include all ages, the aim of such a program to be conviction and decision based on accurate knowledge.

Present this cause from the pulpit at a morning service. When properly and intelligently used, preaching is more powerful than almost any other means to form community attitudes. A presentation from the pulpit by the minister or by a special speaker will reach many youth and adults. Such a speaker has a choice of presenting the topic from several different angles, any one of which is of interest because it is an important part of the contemporary American life.

Distribute high-type effective literature. This literature may be placed on the literature table, or in the church library, or distributed by the ushers. Some persons receiving the literature will be concerned about their own drinking habits, or of those of members of the family, or friends.

For the Youth

Plan to use visual aids at the Sunday School hour and during the evening youth meetings, or have the young people present a drama to which are invited friends and relatives.

Use posters throughout the church buildings. Sponsor a poster making contest during October among the children and young people with special recognition being given to all poster makers through a public showing on World Temperance Sunday.

For the Community

Sponsor a community mass meeting during the afternoon or evening. Have an outstanding national leader as a speaker with plenty of local musical talent. The use of the high school band, and or choral group will contribute good music, will attract the interest of the local people, and will be an inspiration to the speaker.

(Might be a good place to display the posters, too).

Store window displays. Those merchants who have definitely taken a stand on the side of total abstinence will doubtless be glad to fix up a window display.

Other merchants who may never take a personal or business stand against beverage alcohol may, nevertheless, be glad to use a window display on some special phase of the alcohol problem in which both wets and drys are interested (such as highway or industrial safety).

These window displays will need to be planned with the merchants with as much detail as will your mass meeting if they are to have any impact upon the community.

For the Individual

Every individual should have an opportunity to make a personal commitment to total abstinence. Commitment cards may be handed to the worshippers as they enter the sanctuary, or may be distributed by the ushers at an appropriate time in the service. Leaders in the Church School and in the Youth Fellowship Groups should also make plans for the securing of personal commitments.

This is not only sound Christianity but also sound psychology. Professor William James, speaking from the standpoint of sound psychology, said in regard to any great decision: "When once the judgment is decided, let a man commit himself irrevocably. Let him put himself in a position where it will lay on him the necessity of doing more, the necessity of doing all. Let him take a public pledge if the case allows."

Every individual should have an opportunity to make a personal financial contribution (including the children and young people), for a person cannot long sustain an interest in an enterprise unless he is brought into a personal relationship with it, "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." (Mt, 7:21).

Giving to the cause of temperance should be a part of the Christian stewardship of money.

Every individual should have an opportunity to do something for the cause of temperance. Children and young people as well as adults can help in the distribution of literature from house to house at frequent intervals, can help with local option campaigns, can "buy dry and say why," as well as take an active part in the temperance programs and activities of the church.

These suggestions are given with the hope that this important church date can be made meaningful to all, and result in a new awakened Christian conscience.

It will be seen who fare the best in the end, those who are obedient to their parents, or those who are not. Boys and girls who take their own way are not only mean and to be pitied, but they are bringing great future suffering upon themselves.—

HOW MUCH DOES A PRAYER WEIGH?

Joseph Sadony

How much does a prayer weigh? The only man I ever heard of who tried to weigh one still does not know.

Once upon a time he thought he did. This was when he owned a little grocery store on the West side. It was the week before Christmas, after World War I. A tired looking woman came into the store and asked him for enough food to make up a Christmas dinner for her children. He asked her how much she could afford to spend.

She answered, "My husband did not come back. I have nothing to offer but a little prayer."

This man confesses that he was not very sentimental in those days. A grocery store could not be run like a bread line.

So he said, "Write it on paper," and turned about his business.

To his surprise, the woman plucked a piece of paper out of her bosom and handed it to him over the counter. She said, "I did that during the night watching over my sick baby."

The grocer took the paper before he could recover from his surprise, and then regretted having done so; for what would he do with it, what could he say?

Then an idea suddenly came to him. He placed the paper, without even reading the prayer, on the weight side of his old-fashioned scales. He said, "We shall see how much food this is worth."

To his astonishment the scale would not go down when he put a loaf of bread on the other side. To his confusion and embarrassment, it would not go down though he kept on adding food, anything he could lay his hands on quickly, because people were watching him.

He tried to be gruff and he was making a bad job of it. His face got red and it made him angry to be flustered.

So finally he said, "Well, that's all the scales will hold anyway. Here's a bag. You'll have to put it in yourself. I'm busy."

With what sounded like a gasp or a little sob, she took the bag and started packing in the food, wiping her eyes on her sleeve every time her arm was free to do so. He tried not to look, but he could not help seeing that he had given her a pretty big bag and that it was not quite full. So he tossed a large cheese down the counter; nor did he see the timid smile of grateful understanding which glistened in her moist eyes at this final betrayal of the grocer's crusty exterior.

When the woman had gone, he went to look at the scales, scratching his head and shaking it in puzzlement. Then he found the solution. The scales were broken.

But as the years passed he often wondered if that really was the solution. Why did the woman have the prayer already written to satisfy his unpremeditated demand? Why did she come at exactly the right time when the scale was broken? What confused him so that he did not notice it and kept piling on the food, with only a scrap of paper in the weight pan? He had felt like a fool and hardly knew what he was doing.

Well, faith is a funny thing, anyway. And prayer is a funny thing. And miracles may not be mysteries after all—not if faith's intuition picks the right time, when the scales are broken. Why, faith could even move mountains, if we picked the hour before the earthquake to pray to get them out of the way!

The grocer is an old man now. His head is white. But he still scratches it in the same place, and shakes it slowly back and forth with the same puzzled expression. He never saw the woman again. And, come to think of it, he had never seen her before, either. Yet for the rest of his life he remembered her better than any other woman in the world and thought of her more often.

He knew it had not been just his imagination, for he still had the slip of paper upon which the woman's prayer had been written: "Please, Lord, give us this day our daily bread."

OUR LORD IS COMING

Yes, our Lord is coming back to earth again,

Just as He went away;
He may be here before morning,
Or any hour of the day.

Are we watching for the coming,
With our lamps shining bright?
For He surely is coming—
It could be this very night.

He asked us to do the will of our Father
As we travel on life's way;
And to love one another—
As He loved us every day.

Have we grown so weak and foolish,
As to let the Devil have his way?
When we all could do better—
If we'd take time to pray.

Let us fill our lamps with the oil of Love,
Keep them ever shining bright;
Then when He does come we'll be ready,
Though it be morning or night.

"SOMEBODY MUST STOP FIRST"

There is a fine story of two little girls who fell into a noisy quarrel. They kept saying, "You did't!" and "I didn't!" and growing more angry every minute.

Suddenly Susie stopped speaking, and shut her lips tight. She would not say another word for awhile.

"What makes you keep still, Susie," said another girl near by, "when Sophy keeps on teasing?"

"Somebody must stop first," said Susie. "I just remembered that mamma said so. So I'll stop first, and then the teasing will be over quicker."—Apples of Gold.

trades, in the restaurant business, in various other lines related to the liquor trade.

Some of them are ashamed to go to church, lest consciences trained in the fine sanctities of a joyful Puritan regime shall reassert themselves. Others become angry with their ministers, and raise the cry of political preaching. Is the Bible political because it warns against strong drink? Was the prophet political when he pronounced a woe upon him that puts a bottle to his neighbor's lips?

Let no one say that I have overstated my case. I have not. No rhetoric can equal the recital of the multiplied griefs that flow from the poisoned fountain of liquor. My words have made only a feeble statement of the terrible evils of the liquor oligarchy. Today I am on business for my King. He, as I write, has stood with me. Be thou my witness and advocate, O, my Saviour, now and in the judgment day of destiny.

"Uncle Joe," said Albert Edward Wigam, the author, meeting an old darky who was always cheerful in spite of having had more than his share of life's troubles, "how have you managed to remain so cheerful and calm?"

"Well, I'll tell yo'," replied Uncle Joe. "I've jus' learned to cooperate wid de inevitable."—Matthew N. Chappell in Forbes

Union Meeting Report

The Fifth Eastern Union of the Eastern Conference convened with British Chapel Church, Lenoir County, Saturday before the fifth Sunday in August, 1950.

The morning devotions were conducted by Rev. Williard Willis and prayer was offered by Rev. E. E. Edwards after which the moderator welcomed the delegates, ministers, and the visitors to this session of the union.

The list of ministers was called and the minutes of the last union were read for correction.

Rev. Burkette Raper of the second union of the Western Conference of N. C. was present and was made welcome by the moderator.

The different committees were appointed by the moderator after which prayer was offered.

The list of churches was called and thirty churches responded to the roll call. Rev. Williard Willis was selected by the devotional committee to bring the eleven o'clock sermon. This message was an inspiration to all present. Rev. A. C. Austin was asked to conduct the afternoon devotional service.

Dinner was spread on the yard by the laides of the church and community.

The noon hour being over the union reassembled for the afternoon devotions and the transaction of business.

The list of churches was recalled. Mrs. J. Oglesby reported the serious illness of one of our aged ministers, Rev. J. A. Ringold, and an offering was taken for him. The amount received was $37.65.

A motion was made and carried that all money sent from this union to the orphanage today be "ear-marked" for the Orphanage Stove Fund, so that the Home may have a badly needed stove.

The churches petitioning for the next union were Core Creek, Juniper Chapel, and Winter Green. Winter Green received the highest vote. Rev. Clinton Lupton was selected by the delegates from Winter Green church to preach at the next union, Rev. Willard Willis to be the alternate.

Rev. A. C. Austin spoke on the attendance of the union, saying, "This is the Lord's Business and we should be willing to go to the Union Meetings, so that our churches and our youth would look for our churches to make progress, as we help them, by attending all the meetings of our church organization. "Give your best, and the best will return to you."

USING THE BIBLE

(Lesson for October 15)

LESSON: Psalm 19:7-11; Acts 8:26-39.

GOLDEN TEXT: Psalm 119:11

I. The Heart of the Lesson

1. The first section of our lesson speaks about the law of the Lord, and what it can do when it is understood and obeyed. It has power to convert or restore the soul. A young man, Senhor Felix, picked up a single crumpled leaf of the Bible on a street in Palmeiras, Brazil. He was interested. He searched until he found and bought an entire Bible. Ten years later a missionary crossed his path and found him to be a true believer. Many are the reports of similar results when the Bible, or portions of it, are read by honest souls. It has power to enlighten the eyes and make wise the simple. It can lead a person out of the dark. Through the commandments of the Lord men may understand what is pleasing and displeasing to God, and they are warned of the results of sin. Such instructions are needed by all. There is not a man alive who is able through his own speculations to attain unto a genuine and satisfying religious experience apart from some revelation from God. In the Scriptures there is recorded a revelation that is sufficient to meet the needs of all. (vss. 7-9).

2. God's instructions, which teach us how to live, are of more value to those who obey them than any amount of gold. (vs. 10)

3. Human laws have penalties for their violation attached, and God's laws do also, either expressed or implied. The fearful consequences of disobedience set forth in Deut. 28:15-68 caused King Josiah to rend his clothes and the results of ignoring Christ's teaching are portrayed in Matt. 7:26-27.

4. In the third section of our lesson (unprinted), Paul briefly states what the Scriptures are able to do. They are able to give us the kind of wisdom needed above all else, even that which leads to salvation. And they are profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, and instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be fully equipped for every good work. This is the kind of equipment we all need, and we cannot afford to neglect it. There are many things which we may not be able in this world fully to understand, but we may have knowledge enough to meet our practical needs and to make us useful in the cause of Christ.—(2 Timothy 3:14-17)—Arnold's Commentary.

5. The man whom the Lord used in this incident was Philip. He was not one of the Apostles, but one of the seven who had been chosen to minister to the poor by the church in Jerusalem (Acts 6:1-5).

When persecution arose upon the martyrdom of Stephen, Philip, along with many others, was compelled to flee from Jerusalem. In fact, with the exception of the Apostles, the whole Church was scattered throughout Judea and Samaria.

Among those who went to Samaria was Philip, and here, among people greatly despised by the Jews, he began to preach Christ. The Lord richly blessed his labors and many of the Samaritans became believers (Acts 8:5-8). A great revival followed so that even the Apostles Peter and John were sent from Jerusalem to visit them. The same Philip whom God had used in Samaria was the messenger used in the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch.

6. The eunuch had not found satisfaction for his soul in the elaborate ritual of worship he had seen in Jerusalem. But he had brought one good thing with him from that place. Perhaps as a souvenir, perhaps for the purpose of obtaining further information, he had purchased a portion of the Jewish Scriptures. The Spirit of God had also seen to it that he had opened the Book at the proper place for his need at this time. He was reading that wonderful 53rd chapter, the great prophecy of the substitutionary suffering and death of the Lord Jesus. But he could not understand the message.

7. Philip dealt with the man from the Scriptures. He did not use human arguments, but that which is written. He knew the Scriptures so well that he was able to use the very passage the eunuch was reading at the time. Not only did he know the passage, he also knew its meaning. He preached Christ to this man from the Word. He preached Him just as He is presented in this passage from Isaiah; namely, as the Lamb of God who had suffered in silence for the sins of men.

It takes Christ to save from sin, for there is none other name given under which there is salvation. And there is no salvation apart from the Saviour. It is absolutely impossible to be saved from sin except through faith in Christ.

8. We are not left in any doubt as to the eunuch's salvation. Nothing is said about a long period of penitence, or a long period of instruction or in coming into the membership of a church. Evidently Philip succeeded in making the message clear. The man understood that Jesus is the Saviour. It would seem as if Philip also taught him how baptism symbolically sets forth the work of salvation, namely, by death and burial as far as the old life is concerned, and resurrection to a new life in Christ Jesus. The message had its effect upon the listener. He believed what he was told and knew that he had been saved. And when they came to a stream of water he requested baptism as a confession of his faith. The only further thing Philip asked him to do was to confess with his mouth that he believed with all his heart. Philip's work was done and the Lord caught him away, and the eunuch gave proof of his spiritual experience by going on his homeward journey with rejoicing.—Selected.

9. The eunuch, Cornelius, and Lydia (Acts 16) were honest, sincere and devout proselytes to the Jewish faith, but they were not saved until they heard the gospel and believed on the Lord Jesus Christ. Paul tells us that he was perfect in his observance of the law God gave Moses, but even he was not saved until he accepted Jesus as his Saviour and Lord.

HULL ROAD WILL BEGIN REVIVAL OCTOBER SIXTEENTH

Hull Road Church, Greene County, North Carolina, will begin their revival meeting on Monday night, October 16. Reverend C. L. Patrick will be the evangelist. The meeting will continue for a week or longer. The public is cordially invited to attend these services. There will be special music each night by the choirs of the church, directed by the choir leaders.

R. B. Spencer, Pastor

Piney Grove Revival

On September 14 Rev. C. L. Patrick began a series of meetings at Piney Grove Church, Beaufort Co. The attendance was not so large the first night or two, but it gradually grew until we had a full house for the last week. Brother Patrick did not have his best sermons for the last few nights, for all of them were best, if I am any judge of good preaching. He did not fail to declare the whole counsel of God. The sinners can't have any excuse that he didn't warn them of the impending wrath that awaits them if they die in their sins.

"Custom to whom custom is due, and honor to whom honor is due," so says Holy Writ. So we must give Mrs. C. L. Patrick some honor or thanks for the part, or interest she took in the meeting each night except two, and she was sick with a cold then. She directed the Junior Choir in singing choruses, you (or I) could tell they really improved during the ten nights.

The Bear Grass Trio were with us one night and sang 4 selections. Mrs. Marshall Wilson and son were with us on two occasions and sang a duet. You should have heard Mrs. Wilson's little boy sing. He is only 6 years old. On Sunday, September 24, a choir of about 20 from (I forget where) rendered several selections. Then we were dismissed and ate dinner on the church grounds.

On Sunday we had the following visiting ministers: Rev. Marshall Joyner, Rev. D. W. Dail, and a Rev. Mills. After dinner we met at shepherd's Mill Pond and Rev. Graham Baker, our pastor, administered baptism to the two converts, then we met back at the church and received the new members in full fellowship. We partook of the Lord's supper, washed each other's feet. Thus we closed a very enjoyable revival. But we trust the seed sown by Bro. Patrick will not have been sown in vain, but will bring forth fruit 30, 60, and 100 fold.

New Bethlehem Church to Hold Quarterly Conference

We will hold our quarterly conference at New Bethlehem Church on Saturday, October 14, and have the homecoming celebration on the 15, which will be the third Sunday in October. There will be a sermon at the eleven o'clock hour, and dinner will be spread on the church grounds at the noon hour.

In the afternoon there will be singing by different groups, and the congregation. All former pastors, members and friends are invited to be present for this celebration.

CHILDREN'S STORYLAND

Just A Dime's Worth

William J. Murdock

"What, Bob?" said Mr. Clark in surprise. "You aren't going to plant a vegetable garden this year?"

"And you raised such nice radishes and carrots and peas last summer!" exclaimed Bob's mother. "Whatever made you decide to give it up?"

Bob swallowed a mouthful of toast and took a drink of milk. His hair shone golden and his eyes sparkled like clear blue water in the bright spring morning sunshine that came in through the windows of the breakfast nook.

"Oh, it's too much work, digging up that ground by the garage," he said.

"Too much work!" said Mr. Clark. "Bob, this country needs all the vegetables it can get. I'm surprised—a strong boy like you complaining about a little garden."

"Well—," Bob said, rather ashamed.

"Never mind," said his dad, smiling. "You'd better run along to school or you'll be late. We'll talk about the garden some other time."

When Bob came home that afternoon, his mother met him at the door.

"At least go out in back and look at the old garden, Bob," she said. "Maybe if you walk around it a little you'll become interested again."

So Bob went out in back. He looked at all the weeds and dead leaves, and he shook his head. So much work to do! He turned to go back to the house, but something in the weeds caught his eye. He leaned over. It was a penny! He quickly picked it up. Then he saw another. And another.

Bob straightened up and ran to the house to show his mother.

"Did you lose them, Mother?" he asked eagerly. "Or may I keep them?"

"I'm sure I didn't lose them," she said.

And Bob's father said no, he had not lost any money.

"Then it's all right for me to keep them?" Bob asked. "Good! But I wonder how those pennies got there?"

Bob's father shrugged his shoulders. "I don't wonder about that," he said as he leaned back in his easy chair. "But I wonder if there are any more there?"

"I never thought of that!" he cried. "Tomorrow I'll look!"

The next day passed slowly for Bob. He was anxious to search that old garden spot thoroughly. Who knew? There might be a lot of money there! After school he hurries home and changed his clothes. "I'm going to do this right, Mother!" he said as he put on his overalls. "Is that old shovel of mine still in the garage?"

"Yes, but don't be disappointed if you don't find any more money."

In a few minutes Bob was hard at work. He had dug up only a few shovelful of dirt when he found another penny.

"Hooray!" he shouted, and fell to shoveling harder than before. He found another penny. And another. He made the dirt fairly fly.

By the time his mother called him for supper, Bob had found seven pennies that afternoon. Tired, but feeling very fortunate, he trudged into the house.

"I found seven cents more, Dad!" he said at the supper table. "That makes ten cents in all, so far. Tomorrow I'm going to dig again for more money."

"No," said Mr. Clark, and he smiled at Bob. "I wouldn't do that, Bob. There isn't any more money out there."

"Aw—," Bob grinned. "How can you tell?"

"Because I put the pennies there, Bob."

"You did?" Bob exclaimed, his eyes nearly popping. "You did? But why?"

"Because I wanted to see just how much work it was to dig up ground for a garden," Mr. Clark told him. "I put the pennies in the ground the other morning just after you said digging was too much work. And just think—you dug a whole garden for only ten cents!"

"Well, that's a good joke on me!" he said. He reached into his pocket. "Here, Dad—here's the money."

Mr. Clark shook his head. "No, Bob, it's yours. Give a nicker to the church and buy yourself a treat with the other five cents. You've earned it."—L. & L. Primary Paper.

An Urgent Appeal— to all Free Will Baptists

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

We are situated in the San Diego, California, area and the nearest Free Will Baptist Church is more than one hundred miles to our north, in other words, we have about 15,000 square miles with a population of a million or more without a Free Will Baptist Church.

San Diego has one of the largest naval and Marine training centers in the U. S. A., and many of our boys are coming here from all parts of the U. S. for training. Many of these boys are Free Will Baptists, and are compelled to attend churches of other denominations. Most all of these boys are several thousand miles from home and are very home-sick. Now as much as we would like to entertain all of these lads in our home, that would be impossible. However, if we had a nice church with proper recreation facilities we could certainly entertain them. Now listen to this. "A million dollar blessing for the price of a meal." And this is how it works. We prayerfully urge every Free Will Baptist to fast one meal and mail the price of the meal to us for this worthy cause. Now this is not asking too much, is it? We believe that if there ever was a worthy Home Mission cause, that this is it.

Dear friends, we are poor folks. I have to work six days a week to support my family, nevertheless we are putting all we can into this worthy cause. May God bless you as you give. I am sure He will open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

Please mail your offering to:

Dear friends, I know what our service boys are up against, for I am a veteran of world War 1, and the Father of three veterans of World War 11. If every Free Will Baptist would send us $1:00 we would have more than enough to meet the present need, and our Lord would be glorified and thousands of hearts would be blessed. So we cry as Asa of old, it is nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power; help us, O Lord our God; for we rest on thee."

Yours in His service

America's First Stamp

In 1845 the first stamp was made in America. Before then if you wanted to mail a letter you paid the postmaster the amount of postage with money and he stamped it "Paid, Post Free," with a rubber stamp.

In 1840 the first stamp was made in England, and soon the postmasters of the cities asked the United States Government to furnish them with some and when they could not get them from the government they made them themselves, each one different.

In New York the postmaster used a stamp with the picture of George Washington upon it. In Baltimore, Postmaster J. M. Buchanan, afterward president of the U. S., wrote his name on small slips of paper, stamped 5 cents underneath and sold them for five cents. In 1847 when the Government found that everybody wanted stamps they decided to make them, and so in that year the first stamp was printed by our Government.—The Boy's Weekly.

SEEDS AND WEEDS

If you live where you have a garden, you want in that garden only useful or beautiful things. You took a great deal of trouble to plant your seed, and you have little patience with the tough little weeds that come up without being planted (without being wanted). But, unless the weeds are torn out by the roots, they grow and flourish, and crown out the more useful plants.

The weeds in our lives—laziness, envy, bad temper—act very much like the weeds in the garden; they spring up and take the place of the good things we really want there. And there is only one way to get rid of them, whether in our garden or in our life—dig them up as fast as they show their heads above the ground.—The Way.

ATTENTION! FLORIDA WOMEN

We invite all Auxiliary women of Florida to be present at the State Association on Nov. 3, 4, 1950, at the Piney Grove Church in Chipley. Plans are being made to effect a State Woman's Auxiliary Convention at that time.

We beg you to respond with a delegate and any report and suggestions you think will make this organization the very best of its kind.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Chester Pelt

TILL IT IS DONE

Tomahawks in hand, the Indians crept toward the strange tent. As they cautiously peered under the flap, their intention to kill was forgotten. They were overwhelmed with astonishment.

There, in the center of the tent, was a man on his knees. As he prayed, a rattlesnake crossed his feet and paused in position to strike. But the snake did not strike. It lowered its head again and glided out of the tent.

It was a long time later when David Brainerd, the man in the tent, found out why the Indians at the village received him with such honor as they did. He had expected that they would want to kill him. The reason for their change of heart was the report their comrades had brought of the marvelous thing they had seen.

The Indians looked upon David Brainerd as a messenger from the Great Spirit, which indeed he was. He had come into the deep forest to preach the Word of God to the savages.

Surely it is a great thing to feel that in all good work the protection of God is with the worker.

Fear takes flight before the thought that if God is with us, no one can stand against us.

As a motto for life, as a strong help in all good work, could we not gain much

REPENTANCE

Repentance is the gateway out of a prison. Whoever passes through that door feels a great load lifted, breathes the air of freedom, and sees the light of love in blue skies. Whether we can repent without God's help, whether God can give us His help until we do repent, are theological questions which we can debate forever. The truth is that He bids us repent and be forgiven and be saved. And they will all happen at once to any one who wants them to. And when they do happen, it is life, new life.—Publisher Unknown.

THE TOUCHSTONE

If I could deliver but one discourse to a congregation composed of all nations of the globe, this should be my text, "Jesus Christ died for our sins."

This is the truth that has laid closest and warmest to the Christian heart in every age of the Church.

This is the touchstone for every pulpit. Wherever the highest spiritual power has been attained there has been the most faithful preaching of the guilt of sin, and of salvation only through the redemptive work of Christ Jesus on the cross of Calvary.

It is the duty of every minister to thunder against injustice and intemperance and fraud and selfishness and hypocrisy and covetousness and every form of wickedness, but the true vantage ground from which to assail them is beside the cross where Jesus died to condemn all sin and to save the sinner.—Theo. L. Cuyler.

LIFE'S JOURNEY

Life is like a journey taken in a train
With a pair of travelers at each window pane

I may sit beside you all the journey through,

Or I may sit elsewhere, never knowing you.
But if fate should mark me to sit by your side,

Let's be pleasant travelers—it's so short a ride!

The Divine Architect

It has been our privilege to watch men building a fire-proof building. Blue-print after blue-print was brought to sight. Patiently the workmen scanned and pondered over every item of writing and every line of architectural work. Every direction was to be carefully noted and followed. Beautiful white stones were chiseled and formed to fit in here and there. Pieces flew off here and there. Edges sharp and unsightly were chiseled off with one hard stroke of the hammer. Lighter work was done to smooth the stone and to do the finer work upon the stone. Carefully the workman toiled on and on until the stone was brought up to its desired size, shape and beauty—fashioned according to the plan on the blue-print. Stone upon stone was put into its place until the building was in perfect order, fully completed and brought up to the directions of the blue print.

What a striking illustration this is of the Christian life! There is a Great Master Architect back of every individual life. He has planned and wrought His plan in the life of many of His chosen ones. He has planned everything in accordance to His own glorious will and purpose. He knew what He could do through human lives if yielded to Him. Before Him lies His plans—His blue-prints. He scans them over and therefore day by day He works upon the rough lives brought out of the filth and slime of the world. He sees necessary to chisel off big lumps of sin and the world here and there. How unsightly the object before Him appears with all the dross upon it! But He sees in that very object the thing of beauty which He desires to bring to light. He toils on, and on, and on, never ceasing. The object may squirm. The chisel and hammer may seem like instruments of torture; but back of them is a great hand of love carefully wielding and ministering every blow.

The finer work of the Great Workman upon His object of choice is what causes the most excruciating pain and distress. Why these strange, peculiar trials? Why the unseemly coldness and storms? Why the separation from that held so dear? Ah, the Workman knows His work. He knows every stroke that is necessary. He will not let one stroke come that is not necessary to perfect the work. He does not delight in causing pain and suffering to His child, but it is necessary in order that His workmanship may be brought out in its perfect beauty. On and on He patiently toils. He knows the weakness and frailty of the object of His choice; but He also knows how to wield the instruments to accomplish the work. Some day, yes, some glorious day the work will be fully completed, the beauty will shine forth in splendor. Eye to eye we shall behold Him and be in His own likeness—a work of perfect glory to adorn His Kingdom. Until then let us hold still and allow Him to work out His purpose in our lives regardless of what storms and trials may come to us. He knows His work and therefore works on faithful to accomplish His purpose in each individual life.—P. E. M.

And changed earth's darkness into day.

His heart was pierced, the heart that burned

To comfort every heart that yearned!
And from it flowed the cleansing flood,
The river of redeeming blood.

His hands, and feet, and heart—all three
Were pierced for me on Calvary;
And here and now to Him I bring
My hands, feet, heart, an offering.

"Precious in the Sight of the Lord"

Precious, Oh, how precious is that blessed sleep,
Folded in His bosom, wrapped in slumber deep;
None but Jesus giveth rest so true and sweet
For the weary body and the way-worn feet.

Precious, Oh, how precious, He alone can know
What a blessed respite after human woe;
Only He can measure their eternal gain,
When they leave for ever earthly care and pain.

Precious, Oh, how precious, armour here laid down,
Welfare here accomplished, won the victor's crown;
Gained His sweet approval and His welcome smile,
For the patient labour of this little while.

Precious, Oh, how precious, to behold His face,
Even to be with Him and to praise His grace;
Ah, when Jesus giveth His beloved sleep,
'Tis the tenderest token of His love so deep.

DRINK AND ECONOMIC SECURITY

HARRY C. FRANCE

The writer of this important article, Mr. Harry Clinton France, is a financial writer and lecturer. He has been connected with the Loan Organization of the United States Treasury, the Guaranty Trust Company, and the Hamilton National Bank. He has served as Secretary-Treasurer of the Holmes-France Security Corporation, and has lectured on finance at various universities. He is treasurer of the New York Deacons Association, a trustee of the church of St. Paul and St. Andrew, and a member of the Board of Managers of the New York Bible Society. He is fully competent to speak of what drink does to American Leadership.

A distinguished man died in abject poverty recently in New York City. He was a great artist—the leading man in his field for thirty years. Private charity saw him through his final sad days. The irony of his fate was that for over a quarter of a century he enjoyed high income. His yearly earnings were always in five figures.

A number of things brought about his economic ruin. Liquor was one of them. The kind of stuff he served at his studio was expensive and when he gave a party, there was never any consideration given to the quality and quantity of the refreshment. It flowed freely and was of the most costly make.

It will never be known how many small fortunes went down his liquor drain. A hundred dollars wouldn't go very far in quenching the thirsts of the imbibers who were his frequent guests. His formal parties were especially extravagant; and the day to day expense of treating individuals who made casual calls ran high.

This liquor business did something else disastrous to his economic life: it killed all thrift and savings plans. Once he had a fair line of life insurance but in the stresses of his life when bills piled up, he dropped policies and cashed in others. In fact, liquor was the principal force behind his economic disintegration.

The road he traveled during his most productive years is the same road being traveled today by thousands of people. Many will come to the same sad end. I have lived long enough to recognize dangerous situations in these careless days. Liquor is helping greatly to usher in the Welfare State.

Here, for instance, is an advertising executive of ability and capacity. At age 38 he is earning $10,000 a year. After state and Federal income taxes, he has net income of $7,000. To him everything is rosy. He laughs derisively when some person, thinking of his economic future, suggests that he cut down his monthly liquor bill. It runs to $100 or $200 every thirty days. And the way he is going now, his drink bill will keep pace with any salary increases that he will surely get in the future.

Take a look at him: he is a creative artist. He is right in his prime. He is confident—even headstrong. And the numerous people who tell him he is capable only feed his vanity. If anyone, looking ahead 25 years, were to tell him he is riding for a fall, he would get a shot of wrath for his pains.

By the time this executive cracks up—if he does—it is probable that the politicians will have passed favorable legislation that will ease him over the sad years brought about by his willful improvidence. Even today in our legislative halls one can hear beautiful speeches about the necessity for provisions for 'an honorable old age' that has no social or moral qualifications.

The tragedy in the lives of thousands of our people is that when the economic opportunities to build future economic security are abundant, habits of wastefulness and extravagance are practiced. In America there is a great army of able men and women in their thirties, forties and fifties who are squandering money, quite forgetful of the inevitable rainy day.

From year to year I read the liquor-spending statistics with interest and alarm. There is something insidious about them. Sure, a billion dollars worth of booze business is a billion dollars! But how many artists, advertising executives, business and professional men and women are being led to economic destruction in the process?

From my earliest youth I have seen what liquor can do to impoverish people. Drunkards in families have thrown impossible burdens on parents and children. And during my life in New York City I have come into contact year in and year out with economic conditions of pathetic import that drink has brought about.

During 1949 the country's liquor bill was more than $8,500,000,000. It is possible to read these figures in a dozen different ways. But, having seen the degradation that $100 and $1,000 drinking parties can generate, I choose to stress the economic factor in the situation.

Behind these significant figures stand many classes of people who, in the coming years, will pay dearly for their drinking pleasures.

First is the man who spends a dollar or two every day. When he dies he may leave $500 in insurance (enough to bury him, as he boasts), not a dollar in the bank and a widow who won't know which way to turn. Of course, she will become a ward of the state.

Second is the man who spends 10 to 30 per cent on 'habit' comforts. Considering his station in life, his savings program will be inadequate. Sociability may actuate his uneconomic spending. Our big urban centers harbor hundreds of such individuals.

Third is the man who, like the artists, has his professional, social and economic life all messed up. Here in New York thousands of drinking parties are given yearly for 'business' reasons. Their productivity is very questionable. The artist gave many such parties every year.

One day I said to him, "What did this party cost?"

"$500," he replied.

"Wouldn't it have been better," I

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

AN "S. O. S." CALL

We are in possession of a letter from Rev. Ramon Riggs, Chairman of our Foreign Mission Board, with an attached letter from Rev. Thomas H. Willey, with paragraphs taken from a letter written to Brother Riggs by Winford Davis, Treas., of the Foreign Mission Board of the National Association.

The statements in these letters and excerpts from Brother Davis' letter are certainly alarming, I am sure, to every true Free Will Baptist who loves the lost for whom Christ died. We have been getting hold of the facts that "receipts to the Foreign Mission Treasurer, were at a low ebb." But we had no idea that our school in Cuba would have to delay opening on schedule as planned for lack of finance. Every Free Will Baptist in the United States ought to bow his head in shame; I do, for I could have left off something of less importance, and given more to this worthy cause. I hope that we will not say, "We have done our best," for we Free Will Baptists have not done the best that we could.

If Free Will Baptists would drink less cold drinks and just stay off of harmful habits for one day out of every five, and send the price of all these drinks, and non-necessary things to our Foreign Mission Treasurer for twenty days, the cause of Christ would not go begging and no "S. O. S. Calls" would have to go out. Self denial is an outstanding characteristic in life that should be molded and fitted in the heart of every person who professes to be a child of God.

My dear reader, are you a child of God? Do you have the love of God shed abroad into your heart? If you do, can you stand to use the Lord's money on things that you can do without?

Remember that the rich man of St. Luke 16, "fared sumptuously every day." Yes, he too, lived in luxury. While a "man lay at his gate full of sores." Remember that the rich man died and lift up his eyes in hell. The Bible does not say that this rich man was an adulterer, a liar, a criminal, nor any vile character. He was just satisfied to pass by a poor suffering man and pay him no attention.

My dear reader, there are thousands and thousands and thousands of people in Cuba, who are suffering with that dreadful disease of sin and superstition and who will some day die and go to hell, if not saved through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The only way for them to know about Christ is for some one to tell them. The only way to get someone to tell them is to "send them." It takes money to get the Gospel of Christ to them. Have you helped to send the message to them?

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace and bring glad tidings of good things!" (Rom. 10:13-15); and then the 17th verse says, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."

Let us ask the Lord this serious question right now; "Lord have I done my best to get the Gospel to the people of Cuba, by supporting the work there under the supervision of Rev. Thomas H. Willey? And what is true of Cuba is also true of India and other fields. Don't you feel a little guilty of sin and neglect when you find that because we Free Will Baptists have not supplied the funds, the school in Cuba had to postpone its opening? Let us as a people quit robbing God of tithes and offerings and then we will never have to bow our head in shame and say, "I'm sorry that our mission work is not going as it should." It is not because we do not know better. But it is because, "We believe in God and live in Sin." "The devils believe and tremble." I am afraid that a great number of people who sing and shout and testify, "Oh, how I love Jesus," will wake up some day and find that there is a record in heaven against their name, and they will hear the Lord say, "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these ye did it not unto me."

Christ said, and He is still saying, "Go ye unto all the world, and teach all nations . . . and lo I am with you always." Read the last words as recorded by Matthew, in the book bearing his name, and see if you can "Thank the Lord for His presence." He only does with them who go. We can go in person as a missionary. We can go with our Lord's money. We can go in our prayers. We can go by encouraging others who can go in person and those who can give.

May God, forgive us for our wilful neglect in the sending of the gospel to those who are in darkness.

A PARAGRAPH FROM BROTHER
RIGGS' LETTER
"THE MEDIUM IS WORLD EVANGELISM"

"One of the best and quickest ways to stop any kind of trouble, or erase any doubt of suspicion, that may arise in a church, is for that church to get souls saved. Sinners coming to Christ in a church, will stop wagging tongues of gossip, it will break up the fallow ground in the hearts, it will solve the problem of finance and will gain for that church the confidence and respect of any community."

Free Will Baptists everywhere believe this. The only reason for a church to exist is that we might lead the lost to Christ. Men everywhere are lost, thus we must either go in person or by proxy in order that lost men may be saved. It is high time that Free Will Baptists everywhere stop dickered about our own fancies and take our eyes off personalities, crucify our own whims, and see only a lost world and the Lord Jesus Christ as only Saviour (Acts 4:12). To these words, Brother Riggs, I say, Amen.

WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE DOING?

Every believer in Christ believes that "The same Jesus went up into heaven will come again in like manner as he went away. Let us quote: "And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; Who also said, "Ye men of Galilee why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go up into heaven" (Acts 2:10,11).

Listen, my dear reader, what would you like to be doing when Jesus comes? Would you like to be somewhere dancing to the music of Satan—music by unbelievers in Christ?

Would you like to have a bottle of beer in your hands, and guzzling it down when the Lord Jesus sounds the trumpet? Would you like to be sitting in your home playing cards, and it Prayer Meeting night, when the Lord comes? Would you like to be in an A. B. C. liquor store, when the Lord comes? How would you like to be "waging" your slanderous tongue, against some one that you do not like when the Lord comes?

How would you like to hear the Lord say, "You let the missionaries suffer, and the lost in darkness go lacking in hearing the Gospel?" Well, if you are not right with God, for Christ's sake get right.

Pastor of Richmond Church
Very Ill

The Richmond, California, F. W. B. Church wishes to report that our beloved pastor, Rev. George McLain, has become ill. He left Richmond on August 25 enroute to Rochester, Minnesota, to be admitted to the Mayo Clinic for an indefinite length of time.

We should like to request the prayers of all Christian people for Brother McLain that it might be God's will to restore him again, so that he can return to his church where he is much needed.

Sincerely yours,
Shirley Miller, Church Reporter

A MESSAGE FROM CUBA

Mrs. Mabel Willey
Apartado 27
Pinar del Rio, Cuba

Our dear Co-laborers:

Have been meditating these days on a few words found in Second Kings 4:18, "and it fell on a day." You remember the story. The Shunamite had been blessed of God with the desire of her heart—a son. The boy was her pride and joy, but when he was about twelve years old, "it fell on a day" that he became ill and died. The mother took him to the prophet's chamber and closed the door, left him there.

God has wrought what has been termed a miracle of modern missions in our work here in Cuba, and to-day our work as a whole is in the best condition that we have seen it for years. God is blessing. We have had a large number of young people begging for entrance in the school but have only been able to give permission for entrance to a few because of lack of space and the funds to maintain them. We think we have the finest group of young men thus far, waiting to come in, but "it has fallen on a day," our school doors are closed and our students waiting, prepared to come at any moment's notice, but as yet we are helpless to give that notice. The opening of school was announced for the 11th of Sept. Now it is almost the first of October, and there is no hope, human hope that we can open soon.

This is a grief to our hearts but not so much so as to see our workers in dire need. The last salary that any of us received was the first of August. With the very small amount that they receive it is all that they can do to live, then when they have to live two months on one month's meagre salary it is next to impossible. If we, the American missionaries were the only ones affected, there would be no complaint, but it is all that I can bear to see these, your works, our workers suffering, for that is what they are doing. I do want you to know that they are not complaining. I have my first word of complaint to hear from them. They always say "God has a purpose in it all."

These nights I haven't been able to sleep, their faces come before me, and I cry and pray that God will supply for them and not let them go hungry, or the renters be angry with them for not paying the rent. We have a large family now, a precious one, so willing to sacrifice, to suffer for His sake, willing to go at any time, to any place. It doesn't matter how difficult, if it is to reach the lost.

Some few have sent help direct, as Brother Riggs requested, and we are profoundly grateful for your ready response. You have received your receipts by now and Bro. Davis will give you credit on his books. Our hearts have been deeply moved by the interest from Bro. Riggs' church. Without having been solicited, his members have sent $156, besides their regular $200 per month gift to missions. I am sure this has been a sacrifice, but I am also sure that the Lord shall doubly bless them. They will never know on this earth what their offering has meant to us.

This letter to you is not one of criticism. You have always been so ready and so willing to respond. Every night at seven those who live here on the school campus meet in our thatched-roof chapel for prayer. How God has blessed us! If you could hear the prayers that ascend in thanksgiving for you. Thanking God that you have made it possible that they have the Gospel, and asking Him to reward you according to His riches in glory. They are deeply grateful, as we all are, and we are sure in this time of need you will not fail us.

We plead your prayers that school can start soon, that we will not have to run on so long in the intense heat. Pray that our students will not become discouraged as they wait, and that our workers will be kept strong in faith during this testing.

We have taken this burden to a Throne of Grace, and left it there. He knows best, He has promised never to leave us alone, or forsake us. We believe Him, for He has never failed.

At this writing Mr. Willey is in the States planning to attend the Missionary Conference in Nashville. Our children are in school at Toccoa for another year. This is Tommy's last year in High School, and Barbara is a Junior. This shortage has affected them also as it has been registration month, so please remember them in prayer. I have felt quite alone here these days, and feeling the strain of the responsibility, but how precious it has been to feel His everlasting arms about and underneath, keeping, sheltering.

A Mission Campaign

Members of the Intermediate Sunday School Class of the Black River F. W. B. Church, Andrews, S. C., directed by their teacher, Mrs. Eva. Benton, put on a three weeks mission campaign drive, to raise funds for foreign missions. We in success collected thirty-two dollars and ninety cents for missions. The class turned in two hundred and sixty-seven Bible chapters that they read during that time.

We hope that other classes will start raising funds for missions because we realize that much more money is needed in order to spread the gospel. And he said unto them, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." How shall they preach except they be sent; as it is written, "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things."

Free Will Baptists Building New Church, Newport News, Virginia

The ground breaking ceremonies for the First Free Will Baptist church in the city of Newport News, Virginia, were held a short while ago, and the structure began to go up. It is located on Jefferson Avenue, and at the corner of Brooke Street, and Holton Homes. Materials for the ten thousand dollar structure are at the site, and the work is now going on in a good way. It will be a cinder block building, and is expected to be completed in about ninety days. The dimensions will be thirty feet by sixty feet. There will be an assembly room, or auditorium, and four Sunday School class rooms.

The Reverend D. W. Cherry is pastor of this church, and he is doing a good work with those fine Christian people. The membership is not very large, having thirty-eight members, and a splendid Sunday School of a round fifty enrolled. This church was organized in the home of George Johnson, 3709 Huntington Avenue in September, 1947. Reverend W. A. Hales, pastor of the Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, assisted in the organization of the church, and rendered much assistance during the first months of its history. A number of Free Will Baptist ministers of eastern North Carolina, made visits from time to time, and encouraged the members in moving forward with the work.

Brother Cherry, of Portsmouth, Va., began his pastorate with the church in November, 1948, and he has been a faithful worker with the congregation. He is a good leader, and they look to him for spiritual guidance and good leadership in the work. The church has a woman's auxiliary which is doing good work, and assisting in a great way with the building program.

THIS IS IMPORTANT

Brother ministers, has it occurred to you that in a few years each of us young and older pastors will be on the retired list? Whether you had given it any thought or not it is a fact. Too, had you considered that like produces like? In other words, we are what we are giving out, if I give mercy I receive mercy. If I give unkindness I receive unkindness. If I give hate I receive hate. If I give love I receive love. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." If we support, and lead our people into supporting our great superannuation cause those who follow us will do an even better job towards supporting us than we are doing now for the retired pastors, for we reap more than we sow. North Carolina pastors and laymen, let's do our best for Superannuation this month, and God will greatly reward us for our faithfulness. Send all offerings to our chairman Treasurer, Rev. M. L. Johnson, Route 1, Sims, N. C. Thank you for your fine spirit of cooperation.

THE BAPTIST PAPER GOES TO TWO DOLLARS

This is to inform our church people everywhere that the Baptist paper will be two dollars per year after November 15, 1950. After that date, all subscribers will pay at the following rate: Six months, $1.00; One year, $2.00. For every ten yearly subscription, solicitors will be given credit for a free yearly subscription for anyone who desires to have the paper, but is unable to pay for it. Names and addresses are to be mailed to us, so that we can enter all free subscriptions on our records.

"THE LEAGUER"

We are in receipt of the first number of "The Leaguer," sponsored by the North Carolina F. W. B. L. Convention, with Rev. R. P. Harris as editor, and published from Durham, N. C.

"The Leaguer" is an eight page monthly, published to boost work in general, and the work of the North Carolina convention in particular. The first number contains many interesting items, among them being some newsy "briefs" and articles of special interest to league leaders.

The original plan, according to writings of Rev. R. P. Harris, was to publish "The Leaguer" as a small newspaper, printed in Durham. This plan was later abandoned in favor of the use of a nationally known "Parish Paper" service, which makes possible the production of "The Leaguer" in the form of a religious journal, with art covers, and printed on highly glossed paper. In literary form, "The Leaguer" is in about the same class as "Youth's Banner," our Free Will Baptist Press publication for leaguers and other young people, in that it contains a mixture of news, original articles, and syndicated material. The editor, however, promises more original articles if leaguers over the state will co-operate with him. It is to be hoped that articles from the pens of North Carolina youth leaders will be forthcoming, so that Brother Harris can carry out his good intentions.

"The Leaguer" is offered for subscriptions at the price of one dollar per year, and the address to which all correspondence should be directed is P. O. Box 1265, Durham, N. C.

Bon voyage to "The Leaguer"!

EVERY NEW CONVERT A COPY OF THE TREATISE

Whoever conceived this idea had in mind a good thought. Every new convert to the Christian way of life, and who joins a Free Will Baptist church should receive immediately upon being received in the church a copy of the Church Treatise, or as some may say, "The Book of Discipline." Each new convert should be requested to study the Treatise. As a matter of fact, some pastors put on a Study Course in their churches immediately after they have finished a successful revival meeting, and teach the new converts the Free Will Baptist doctrine, principles and practices of our church. Recently, a certain minister purchased 150 copies of our church Treatise with the views of giving instruction to the youth of his churches. This is certainly commendable, and other ministers are taking note, and are planning to do likewise.

The doctrine, principles, and teachings of our church are worthwhile, and should be taught so that new converts will know what they believe, and why they believe it. Any number of copies of the Treatise may be had by mailing orders to the F. W. B. Press, Ayden, N. C.

SOME GOOD MANUSCRIPTS NEEDED

Yes, like a certain young bride who had not been kissed but twice and needed another one, so the Baptist paper needs a few more good manuscripts. The editor would welcome some at any time to brighten up his columns of the church paper.

What to write about? Well, you can tell us about that new church project which your church has just completed. Or you may give a write-up concerning the splendid results of the Mission Drive in your church just recently put over for the mission cause. Perhaps, some one else should like to write about plans under way at his church for an entirely new church building and parsonage. Anything that is worth reading and knowing on the part of the church people, here and there. Yes, tell them that you have done things for the Lord, and that you are not ashamed of it! And here it is in the Baptist paper, stated in black and white. Can you do that? Well, do it then, and we will thank you.

RALPH STATEN LEADS IN SUBSCRIPTIONS

Reverend Ralph Staten of Red Bay, Alabama, is leader for the week in sending subscriptions for the Baptist paper. He mailed to us in one letter forty yearly subscriptions; a total of sixty dollars in cash. This shows that he is a "go-getter." And what is more those forty subscribers are sure of getting the paper at the rate of one dollar and a half for the whole year.

We say, "Thanks a lot, Brother Staten!" But the price will soon be changed from one dollar and a half to two dollars per year for the paper. This will be announced through the columns of the Baptist paper by the Executive Secretary-Treasurer of the Press. Most church papers the size of ours are priced two dollars and a half per year, and have been that for some time.

Arkansas State Association

The Arkansas State Association of Free Will Baptist held its 53 annual session with New Hope Church near Rose Bud. The state was well represented. Many thought this was the best association in years, both in attendance and work. Truly it was a harmonious session. The preaching was fundamental, and a spiritual atmosphere was felt in every service. The devotions were so effective that it was difficult to close for the preaching. The singing was excellent. Quartets, duets, solos, etc. Professor Luther G. Pressley of Stamps Baxter Music Co., with Mrs. Pressley, gave a soul stirring message with their gospel singing.

New officers for the association are:

Rev. J. D. Coffman, Moderator,

Spring Branch Church News

The week of September 3, 1950, marked another milestone in the upbuilding of God's Kingdom at the Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church, near Walstonburg, N. C. This was the week we held our revival. The visiting evangelist was the Reverend Floyd Cherry, Durham, North Carolina. His messages were very interesting. It was food for the hungered and the way of salvation for the sinner. There were three converts. This may seem a small number to some, but to us it meant three more souls that will be marching in the path of righteousness, going forth for the glory of God. Three souls that Satan could not hold on to.

Our pastor, Reverend S. A. Smith, was with us each evening. In the future we hope to win more and more souls to Christ. Will you help by praying for the lost?

Our annual home-coming was held October 1, 1950. There was a large crowd present and each one thoroughly enjoyed the day. We had a splendid day for the gathering. Our pastor, the Rev. S. A. Smith, delivered the morning message. After the message everyone enjoyed getting together, meeting new and old friends, and enjoying the very tasty dinner, which was spread on the church grounds. After dinner we had some real good singing inside the church.

So, already beginning to think about next year's home-coming, we were dismissed for the day.

The Central Auxiliary Convention Holds Good Session

Marlboro Church Entertains in a Good Way

The Central District Woman's Auxiliary convention of North Carolina convened on Wednesday, September 27, with Marlboro Church near Farmville, North Carolina. After an inspiring devotional conducted by Mrs. Thomas Tyndall, the following ministers were recognized: Reverends M. A. Woodard, R. H. Jackson, C. L. Patrick, R. B. Crawford, and L. B. Manning. Mrs. R. H. Jackson of the 4th union district was the only delegate from other conventions present.

The first vice-president gave an interesting report of her work. Then the fifth-vice-president made her report, and she urged the auxiliaries to report to her the things they do during the next six months, and to be sure to keep records so they can report their accomplishments at their next convention. The Central district has been allotted fifty sheets (50) to buy for the orphanage at Middlesex. After dinner an offering for this purpose was taken, and with appropriation from the Finance Committee, the amount was raised to buy them. Mr. Walter McD. Croom was present, and gave a very interesting report on what our auxiliaries have been doing, and what the orphanage has been doing for itself. Our usual offering for the orphanage was taken and the amount was $60.34.

At this time, Mrs. J. C. Moye consented to sing a solo. She chose the message in song: "Why Should He Love Me So?" We regretted that Mrs. Ethel Whaley was not with us for this meeting. Rev. R. B. Crawford spoke to us about some of the great women of the Bible, and how they prayer and worked for the glory of the Lord. It was a good message.

After the committees were appointed, Rev. L. B. Manning made some comments concerning the lunch which was to be spread on the church grounds. Then we had a song and Rev. R. H. Jackson dismissed us for lunch.

Our afternoon devotions were led by Mrs. Herbert Dickerson, who read from Second Timothy, second chapter. She talked to us about "Open Houses for God." Mrs. Marvin Moore sang a solo, "Others." Mrs. Gertrude Ballard was not with us to talk about Cragmont, but Mrs. N. E. Harris agreed to speak for it. She asked that each auxiliary be sure to send $5 before March 1, 1951. They still need screens, and bedspreads at Cragmont. Mrs. Carl Barrow, in her second vice-president's report, urged that all auxiliaries report their work to her during the next six months. She also reminded us of the $10,000 Bible College needs, and of the Anna Phillips Loan Fund.

Mrs. R. S. Pollard, the third vice-president, made her report and she asked for an offering for Cuban Missions to help them in their time of need. The offering amounted to $29.59. There was only one of our delegates to other conventions present, Mrs. J. J. Carroll who reported on the State Convention. The report of the fourth vice-president was given and there were five A-1 auxiliaries reported. She urged us to get subscribers to our Free Will Baptist paper, and for each auxiliary to be an A-1 auxiliary by March, 1951.

The sixth vice-president gave her report and reminded us to send Birthday and Christmas cards, and include a little gift if possible. Our field worker reported that she had visited two auxiliaries. We are to remember that she cannot go unless she is invited to visit your auxiliary.

We entered upon the business period by having the minutes read. Then came the reports of the different committees and the treasurer. Delegates to the other conventions were appointed. The convention is to meet with Free Union in March, 1951. Mrs. Thomas Tyndall gave a hearty invitation to everyone present, and all those who were not present to attend the next convention. After a song Mrs. R. S. Pollard dismissed us in a word of prayer.

We do feel sure that everyone present had a wonderful time together with the good people of Marlboro. They had many beautiful flowers, and the dinner was enjoyed by all present. Everyone present surely did feel that our theme was carried out in a good way: "Whatsoever ye do do all to the glory of God."—First Corinthians 10:31.

Some Bible Truths Worth Remembering

Here are a few things I believe: When God chose Mary to be the mother of Jesus, He believed she would be loyal to Him. She being a good woman would obey him in every command, because she was the Virgin Mother of our Lord. I know she was a woman in the flesh, and not part of the Godhead, but she was supposed to obey God and to keep His commandments, as any other woman.

It was a great honor which God bestowed upon her, but that did not make her part of the Godhead, for she was a woman in the flesh, though she was the mother of our Lord. When some of the Pharisees called to Jesus and said that His mother called for Him, He made it plain that she was no higher esteemed than other good women. Christ said that he that doest the will of my Father was the same as His mother, brother, and sister. I do believe that her soul is resting in the paradise of God. Christ said that He was the first of them that slept.

Why should anyone pray to her, or to any saved soul who is sleeping in paradise? Those living spirits do not have the power to save from sin. Listen, God said that David was a man after His own heart. Why not pray to him, if he was so righteous? No, I have never found in the Bible where God ever gave to a single person the power to forgive a person of his sins. We can forgive them when they sin against us, but they still have to get God to forgive them before they become true children of God.

Let us not pray unto King David, nor unto the Virgin Mary. Let us pray to God, for there is no other way under heaven whereby a person can be saved but by the shed blood of Christ which was shed on Calvary's Cross. The dead in Christ will rise first to meet Him in the air, together with the living saints on that day of the Lord. All will rise in time to see Him, for He says that every eye shall see Him (I Rev. 1:7).

Board of Superannuation of the N. C. State Convention of Free Will Baptists

This Letter Is Important
Dear Co-Workers:

This letter is being addressed to you, as pastor, clerk or other leader of your Free Will Baptist church or organization. Please see that it is called to their attention.

The purpose of this letter is to remind our people that, again this year, "October is Superannuation month."

There are 4 definite goals set up for the Board of Superannuation to work to this year. They have all been approved by the State Convention and are as follows:

1. To increase the monthly pensions to those superannuated ministers who are now on our list. We are now paying regular pensions to twenty-five Superannuated ministers. The amounts being paid are still far below what these ministers need and should receive.

2. To approve the application, and begin the payment to other ministers who are entitled to these benefits. There are several other ministers who are asking to be placed on this list. They are entitled to the regular pensions. We want to add them.

3. To begin the payment of pensions to the widows of deceased Free Will Baptist Ministers. Perhaps this is the most neglected need of our work at this time. There are many widows of our departed brethren who should be receiving pensions. Several of them are in very great need at this time. The Board of Superannuation feels that we, as a denomination must do something about this. However we are dependent upon you for the funds.

4. To continue the Ministers' Protection Benefit Program thru the National Board of Superannuation, for the ministers who are now active. This is the Insurance Program in which the ministers under fifty years of age are asked to help provide for their retirement through Retirement Insurance. Ten per cent of our regular receipts will be sent to the National Board to help pay one half the premiums on this Insurance for those who will take it.

The above are the goals of the Board of Superannuation for this year. In order to reach the goals we will need $10,000.00 during the year. This amount has been approved by the State Convention. In order to raise this amount we will need at least 25¢ for each Free Will Baptist in North Carolina.

May we count on you to help reach these goals?

Gospel Music School

On Monday night, August 14, Marvin P. Dalton of Tulsa, Oklahoma, began a Gospel Music school which lasted for ten nights. This school of music was conducted in the F. W. B. Church in Cordova, Alabama. On Tuesday of that week it was turned into day classes also, having both day and night classes.

This school meant very much in a spiritual way to those taking part, as well as meaning much to the church and the town from the point of view of music. On the first night of the school a revival broke out, and it was really a revival throughout the entire time of the school. Several souls were saved during the devotional services.

Brother Dalton is a man of God. He is fortunate in having a twofold calling from the Lord. He is a minister of the gospel, and also he is a writer of music. I should like to recommend him to our F. W. B. churches for either conducting music schools or preaching the gospel of Christ. If you have never had the privilege of using him for the conducting of a music school, I recommend him to you. I think we should be proud of such a man as he is, when we consider his talents in the religious work. He is a student from our Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee.

Stoney Creek Church to Have Homecoming

There will be a homecoming celebration at Stoney Creek F. W. B. Church on the third Sunday in October. This church is located in the country, five miles northeast of Goldsboro, North Carolina, in Wayne County.

Claxton Sasser, president of Wayne Co. Sunday School Convention, will teach the Sunday School lesson at ten o'clock, and Rev. Clifton Rice, pastor, will deliver the morning message. Sister Pluma Sullivan will have charge of the Memorial service in the afternoon.

There will be good singing during the day besides the church choir. We are expecting Rainbow Trio, the Sasser Trio, and the Wooten singers to be with us and to render some special music.

All members of the church, friends, and former pastors, are given a special invitation to come, to be on time, and bring a basket of food. Come and enjoy the day with us in the service of the Lord.

GOD IS LOVE

(I John 4:8)

By Edwin Runyon

Practically everyone recognizes a god of some sort. Man is inherently a religious being. He must have a god to worship. If he does not worship the true God, he erects himself an altar to some other god. This may be done sub-consciously at times, but nevertheless, it is done. When he recognizes something as the great cause behind the workings of the universe, he is recognizing in his way a god. When he substitutes his theories about science and the material world, he is bowing down to some sort of god. When he accepts the philosophy that money can buy everything, he is erecting an altar to filthy lucre. Regardless of the thing that has taken first place in his life, it has become to him a god. He may boast loudly that he believes in no god, but some sort of god rules his heart.

The Jews believed in God, the true God, and worshipped Him. But their worship was not ordinarily a spiritual worship. Some of their people rose to the spiritual concept of God, but most of them merely went through a form of worship. If they ever thought of God at all, they thought of him as a far removed being that had all power. Their God was a god of power and little else. Their god was a God of destruction if they did not obey his teachings. Only the great thinkers of their time thought of God as being a God of love.

Many so-called scientists today think of God as the "Cause" behind the universe. They grudgingly give that much recognition to him because they can find no other cause with which to credit creation. God to them is far from being a personal being. He is merely a cause, something akin to nature. But we Christian people have a different opinion of God. He is not merely an impersonal cause. He is not merely a far away power. To use he is the God of love.

God Is a Person

It makes quite a difference as to how we think of God. It even makes a difference in our actions. If we think of God merely as a cause, we will not be so disturbed about our actions. If God is about the same as nature, when we do wrong, we are merely out of harmony with the laws of nature and nothing so very bad has happened. We are merely not well adjusted to our surroundings. The fault may lie in our environment rather than in us. But if God is a personal God, then our actions do make a difference. When we do wrong it becomes sin. We are no longer just out of adjustment with our surroundings. We have offended Almighty God. We have offended a Person.

Jesus came to reveal just such a Person to us. He told some of his followers that the ones who had seen him had seen the Father. In other words, he was the manifestation of God the Father. Regardless of what bodily form God may take, he is a personality. Jesus revealed him as such. After this revelation, God can no longer be a mere cause to any thinking person. He can no longer be an impersonal power. Those who continue to hold such foolish notions have never really given thought to the subject and have never asked God to reveal himself to them.

God is a jealous God. He requires that we worship him. He will not tolerate our placing something else in the first place in our lives. He demands to be first. And he has every right to make such demands. We belong to him, and he knows what is best for us. God is a personal being that we can worship. It would be rather hard to worship a power or cause, but it is easy to obey the command to worship a personal God who is interested in our welfare and who loves us so much that he has blessed us with the blessings we enjoy.

Then comes the supreme test. God is personal because he speaks to me. A power or a cause could not bear witness with my spirit. It could not speak to my troubled soul. It could not convict me of having sinned, because it would have no medium with which to communicate with me and I would not have really sinned against the cause but would have been merely maladjusted. An impersonal cause would not convict me of that. But God convicted me of sin. He showed me that I had offended a Personal God and that God communicated with my soul and left me in no doubt as to my state of being. After having convicted me by his Holy Spirit and after I had pled for forgiveness, that same God spoke peace to my troubled soul. There was no escapism. That was no release from tension caused by weeping. That was no flight of imagination. A being that could communicate with my being forgave me of my sins. He is a personal God.

God Is Love

Jesus also revealed that the God of heaven and earth is a God of love. In fact, God revealed that himself when he sent his son to die for us. All through the ages he has been revealing himself as a God of love as quickly as any man was able to grasp the idea. He has the interest of all his people at heart. Even when we think that we are having our difficulties, perhaps there are hidden blessings to be found in them. Perhaps when we selfishly complain of some turn of affairs that is not to our liking, God is using that very thing to bless someone else. God sees the whole picture whereas we see only a small part of it. But God is love. He loves each one of us. He has even my interests at heart. He loves me and he loves you. He seeks to help us. But he is not merely a Santa Claus.

We love our children and see their best interests. But sometimes they do not think so. Sometimes they rebel against the things that are really best for them. We wish they could live sheltered lives. We wish they could stay away from all temptation. We wish they might never know hardship. But such is not life. They cannot always remain babies. They cannot always remain in a sheltered atmosphere. They will be tempted. They will have hardship. But it is by meeting these things and overcoming them that they mature. Muscles never develop that are not exercised. Minds will never develop that are never used. Morals will never develop in those who never make decisions. As we parents wish our children to grow into well developed men and women, so does God wish his children to grow into well developed Christians. Oh, how much more God wants us to develop our Christian lives. He wants us to grow up. He uses this life to mature us in Christian experience, and all the while he is guiding by a gentle hand of love if we will but follow.

Effect of His Love

One provision of his love is that no temptation will be too great for us. It is comforting to know that God watches over us and will not let Satan tempt us too greatly. He may use the temptations of Satan to strengthen our spiritual muscles, but he will call a halt before we go down under the onslaughts of the foe if we will do our part. The athlete must put forth an effort in his training. It is not enough that the athletic equipment is in readiness for use. He must use it. He must strive against the problems that arise. He must punch the punching bag, he must run the race-track, he must lift the dumb bells, etc. So it is with the spiritual warfare. We must fight against temptation. We must strive to overcome obstacles. It is by so doing that we develop. It is by putting forth my every effort and by calling upon the Lord to help me, that I begin to mature in the Christian effort. Then the effect of God and love upon my life and upon your life is a gradual process of ripening and maturing in the spiritual life if we will only let God direct our actions. May we so give ourselves over to the Spirit of God and let him so direct us that we can eventually say with Paul, "For me to live is Christ."

Conclusion

God is a personal God. He speaks to us. He is a God of love. If we place ourselves in his hands, he will develop us and mature us in his service so that we will become great warriors for him. Then let us each renew our covenant with him to place ourselves completely in his hands. With our lives safely in his keeping we can meet our foes with confidence, because he will not let us be tempted above that which we are able to bear. Neither will he let us fall before our foes. As we press on with a serenity of our confidence in God, let us be about our Father's business. Let us witness to his saving power and to his love for his people.—General Baptist Messenger

Rosebud Church Moves up to Half-Time Services

Rosebud F. W. B. Church of the Western Conference of North Carolina has moved to hold services two Sundays to the month for the ensuing pastoral year. This church is located not far from the city of Wilson, N. C., and is located in a good farming section. Although the church membership is not so very large, yet the people are interested in having more preaching than heretofore to the month.

Reverend C. J. Harris of Greenville, North Carolina, is their pastor for the coming year. Brother Harris pastored for them last year for one Sunday to the month, but now he will hold services for them on second and fourth Sundays. Brother Harris is a middle-aged man, and a good preacher. He is deeply consecrated, and vitally interested in church work. He loves to preach the gospel to lost and dying souls. He is friendly, sociable, and a splendid character whom the church people like when they once get acquainted with him.

Rosebud should feel fortunate in being able to secure Brother Harris as their pastor for the ensuing year. They will be able, we feel certain, to do a great work for the Lord with such a fine man as their pastor. The church should expand its work in a large way, and be able to increase its membership and the attendance of its Sunday School.—R. B. S.

Freedom of men under government is to have a standing rule to live by, common to every one of that society, and made by the legislative power vested in it; a liberty to follow my own will in all things, when the rule prescribes not, and not to be a subject to the inconstant, uncertain, unknown, arbitrary will of another man.—Locke.

Free people, remember this maxim: We may acquire liberty, but it is never recovered if it is once lost.—Rousseau.

Let Me Be a Giver

By Kathryn Blackburn Peck

Dear God, if I can share some simple gift
With one, oppressed, who walks my path today,

I know my heavy burdens, too, will lift,
And smoother and more fair will make the way.

My candle's tiny flame glows no less bright
When lifted high to guide a groping friend,

For always when I share my little light
I keep a blessing greater than I lend.

Let me keep giving out whate'er I have
Of food and raiment—shelter from the cold,

Or greater gifts and cheer and faith and love,
Laughter and song—which far outweigh life's gold.

Let me keep giving from a loving heart,
That other lives may richer, fuller be;
I would be quick to see the teardrops start,
And swift to lend a hand of sympathy.

Make me, I pray Thee, Father, unafraid
To give myself again and yet again.
When day is done, if I my all have paid,
It shall be counted then, I know, as gain!

When to Say, "No"

The "token" drinker says: "I don't like the custom of drinking alcoholic beverages and I would prefer to abstain, but I don't like to say, 'No.'"

Unless you are willing to drink to the point of drunkenness, you are compelled to say, "No," and the question is whether you will say "No," after the first drink, the second, the third? Will it not be as easy to say "No" before you drink at all?

As a matter of fact, it is easier to say "No" before you begin since "one drink takes another." The effect of the alcohol is to depress the sense of judgment and after one drink is consumed there is a much greater impulse to say, "One more won't hurt." Your friends will respect your total abstinence but if you drink with one fellow, they will expect you to drink with all. Say "Yes" once, and it is afterward much more difficult to say "No."

It is not to taste sweet things, but to do noble and true things, and vindicate himself under God's heaven as a God-made man, that the poorest son of Adam dimly longs.—Carlyle.

The interesting and inspiring thing about America is that she asks nothing for herself except that she has a right to ask for humanity itself.—Woodrow Wilson.

Growing Through Prayer

(Lesson for October 22)

LESSON: Matthew 6:5-13; Luke 11:1-13; Philippians 1:3-11; Colossians 4:2-4

GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 11:9

I. The Heart of the Lesson

The disciples did a wise thing when they went to Jesus with the request, "Lord, teach us to pray" (Luke 11:1). It was important for them to know how to pray, and it is important for us. In our larger lesson Jesus first told them how not to pray. They should not be as hypocrites who loved to pray in conspicuous places that they might be seen of men. Such a saying of words was not real prayer; it was just a performance designed to impress the public with the actor's piety. Such men had their reward, the praise of men; they could expect nothing from God. Many "an eloquent prayer" has been prayer to a congregation and not to God, and has received as its only reward the admiration of the performer's eloquence.

Another danger to be guarded against is vain repetitions in prayer (Matt. 6:7). They do not consist in repeated requests for the same things, if the soul is in earnest. Rather, they consist in a mechanical saying of set words and phrases, when there is no true desire of real devotion connected with it. Sometimes the mind is upon something else, especially in heathen countries, this degenerates into pure magic, the worshiper thinking that there is potency in the prayer itself to achieve results, if prayed just right or often enough.—Arnold's Commentary

1. We can find no better Example in prayer than the Lord Jesus Christ.

2. The best Teacher in the subject of prayer is the Lord Jesus Christ. Have we asked Him to teach us?

3. If others know that we are praying, it may be an encouragement to them to pray also.

4. It always takes time to pray, but we can be sure that it is time well spent.

5. The best order of prayer is first to glorify God, and then to present our personal needs.

6. Prayer for forgiveness of the past should always be coupled with a petition for victory in the future.

7. God answers the prayers of His children, not grudgingly, nor of necessity, but cheerfully.

8. Earthly supplies may sometimes be borrowed from friends, but spiritual benefits come from God alone.

The answers to prayer God promises are just as definite and specific as the prayers that are offered.

10. Neither earthly parents nor the Heavenly Father will ever offer substitutes for the needed things for which we ask.—Selected

11. True prayer is concerned with God and His glory. Even though God is our Father, we have no permission to take undue liberties in His presence and in our manner of addressing Him. Just as human children are taught to honor father and mother, so the children of God are expected to be reverent when they come before their Heavenly Father.

12. Paul's great concern for the Philippian brethren sets forth true Christian love for the followers of Christ. It teaches us that the true gospel minister should hold in high esteem those believers in Christ whom he has labored among for the planting and spreading of the seeds of the gospel of Christ. It was Paul's sincere prayer that those Christians would be ever true, zealous and patient in manifesting their love one for the other, and all for Christ. In like manner, ministers and all religious workers today should be much in prayer for the brethren in Christ.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

13. Being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God. The fruits of righteousness as mentioned here are described by the same writer in Galatians 5:22 and 23 as love, joy, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. It is the life which bears the fruit of righteousness which really counts in the kingdom of Christ, and it takes constant and earnest prayer to live the fruit-bearing life.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Mr. Moody tells us a remarkable incident in connection with an early visit to London. He had gone there for a visit. He was unknown in London, hence he did not expect to preach at all; but a little while after arriving there he was invited to preach for a certain church, which he did. He said it was a very cold and uninteresting service to him, but he announced that he would preach again that night.

Upon reaching the church, he noticed that the atmosphere had changed, he did not know why. At the close of the meeting he was led to give an invitation for those who wanted to be saved to stand. A great crowd of people stood. He left the next day for Dublin, Ireland. Shortly after arriving there he received a telegram from the church to return, stating that the whole community was in an upsurge and clamor for a series of meetings. He went back and found that a great revival was beginning, and hundreds of people were being converted.

Not long after he learned the secret. An invalid lady, who could not attend the church, was praying for a mighty outpouring of the Spirit upon the church. She prayed for months. Once she saw in the papers accounts of some of the Moody meetings in America, and, although she had never heard of Mr. Moody before, she began to pray that God would send him to her church in London for a revival. One Sunday morning her sister, upon her return from the service, informed her of Moody's presence and his preaching, whereupon she spent the whole afternoon in prayer that God would make that night a night of power. That explains the difference between morning and evening services!—1000 Evangelistic Illustrations

"Clouds Without Water"

Leon Tucker

The Book of Jude uses more extraordinary, original and unique figures of speech than perhaps any other book in the Bible. It speaks of "raging waves of the sea," "wandering stars," "trees whose fruit withereth," and "clouds without water, carried about of winds" (Jude 12). In these Jude makes reference to the apostates of his day; they are good figures of speech concerning the apostates of any day. Those men who deny the things which are revealed in the Holy Scriptures are clouds without water. Clouds without water leave nothing. So ministers without the Gospel make a desert where faith should bloom like a rose.

1. Men who exalt human reason above divine revelation are "clouds without water."

It is not what man reasons, it is what God reveals. It is not what man thinks, it is what God says. The mind of man can never discover the heart of God. By wisdom this world has never come to know God. God's wisdom is foolishness to men, and man's wisdom is foolishness to God. We are not left to reason, we have a revelation. There are no dark secrets in the Gospel. He who runs may read. Christianity differs from the world religions in that they seek after God while Christianity is God seeking man.

2. Men who exalt human attainment above divine atonement are "clouds without water."

Attainment is possible to man. Atonement is possible only with God. Attainment is what man can do. Atonement is something that God alone can do. Attainment is within man's power. Atonement is in the power of God only. Attainment makes man appear better before man, but atonement is the means by which man may appear before God without guilt of sin. Attainment has for its big word "character." Atonement has for its big word "cross." Attainment makes for education. Atonement makes for salvation. Attainment is for the mind. Atonement is for the soul. Be not a cloud without water!

3. Men who exalt human philosophy above divine prophecy are "clouds without water."

Philosophy is what man thinks he knows. Prophecy is what God foreknows. Philosophy is man's little candle which a gust of wind can blow out. Prophecy is God's lamp, which shines in a dark place until the day dawns. Philosophy is a maze from which man never emerges, while prophecy is light upon every step of the believer's pathway. Philosophy knows a little about the here and now.

4. Men who exalt human advance above divine advents are "clouds without water."

The world does not advance without Christ. In his absence it takes the downgrade, not the upgrade. With Christ out of the world there can be nothing permanently better in the world. It is not human advance, but the divine advents that have brought into the world help and holiness for man. Be not a cloud without water. Let God's thoughts be sufficient for you. Think God's thoughts after Him.—Christian Digest.

Union Grove Has a Good Year

Our church, Union Grove, Wayne County, North Carolina, has had a good year in various ways. In the first place, our young people of the church have taken great interest in church attendance, Sunday School work, and Youth for Christ Rally movement. Their interest has been great, and their activities have been greatly appreciated by the older people of the church. They have been quite active in the Youth for Christ movement, and as a result quite a number made a profession of faith in Christ and were baptized and received in the church.

Our Sunday School is growing all the while, and this year it has been greater in attendance and support than ever, and the teachers are doing a most splendid work in all of the departments of the school. All officers seem to be much interested and the superintendent is a wide awake man in the school. Many of the classes are already too large and need to be divided into smaller groups so that even better work can be accomplished by both teachers and the students. We are planning on arranging for more room for our classes.

The church services during the year have been very good. Brother R. B. Spencer was our pastor, and he did bring us good sermons, and the people were moved by his messages. As a result, we have had during the year around forty new members added to our church. Brother Lupton, of Bridgeton, North Carolina, held our revival which closed a few weeks ago with several new converts who were baptized by Brother Spencer and received into the church on his last appointment with us in September. In every way, it was a good year for our church and Sunday School.

Our new pastor is Rev. Bruce Barrow of Snow Hill, North Carolina. He will begin his pastorate with us on the fourth Sunday in October. We are looking forward to having a very good year in all departments of our church work. Brother Barrow is a young man who is well qualified in the work of the Lord, and we are expecting great things to be achieved in our church among the young people, as well as among the older people.

We invite those of our church and community to join in with us in our church services and Sunday School work for the ensuing pastoral year, and let us worship the Lord together in spirit and in truth. We want everyone to feel welcome to come and be in our midst for Christian fellowship and to enjoy our church services.

Cigarettes and Funerals

We had a funeral at our church recently. It was conducted by a minister who was not our pastor. As soon as he went outside the building, he lighted a cigarette and began to smoke.

Now, there was a large crowd of people there, and you should have heard the remarks made about the minister who began smoking. It was something the people were surprised at for a minister to do such a thing in the midst of a funeral.

I do not believe all of our preachers do this, but we have some who are as good as can be found anywhere. As for me, I will say, "Away with any of them who will suck a cigarette during the course of a funeral.—J. H. O.

SCRATCH!

Dear Young Friends:

Not too long ago I found this nice little poem, and found quite a lesson in it. Perhaps when you read it over, you will find something in it, too, to think about:

"Said the first little chicken,
With a queer little squawk,
'I wish I could find
A fat little worm!'"

"Said the next little chicken,
With an odd little shrug,
'I wish I could find
A fat little bug!'"

"Said the third little chicken,
With a small cry of grief,
'I wish I could find
A little green leaf!'"

"Now see here! said the mother,
From the green garden patch,
'If you want any breakfast,
Just come out here and scratch!'"

We can suppose that many of our boys and girls know what a treasure hunt is. But have you ever thought of the Bible as a mine of rich treasures? Perhaps you have not. But when I read the above poem, I thought how many people say, "I wish I knew more Bible verses!" Or, perhaps they say, "I wish I understood my Bible better." Or, another excuse is, "I wish I loved to read my Bible, so I would not be so embarrassed when asked questions in Sunday School or in Young People's meeting." We should give such the advice the old mother hen gave her chicks: "Just come out here and scratch!"

Diamond miners do not scratch the surface of the mountain to get diamonds. They dig! Farmers do not grow wonderful crops of grain by flinging out handfuls of seed in the spring and then saying to the seed: "Grow away!" It would seem to us it would blow away before it would grow. No, a farmer must plow the ground, make it smooth, plant and cover the seed with care. Then he trusts the Lord to make the seed grow after he has done his part. We work for what we get in this old world, and boys and girls find that out as they grow older day by day. With regard to God's Word, we cannot learn Scripture until we get our minds down to it, and study! We cannot learn the interesting events and historical periods of history recorded in the Word, until we get our minds down to it, and study! We cannot learn the interesting events and historical periods of history recorded in the Word, until we get down and dig out the precious nuggets of truth for ourselves. Paul told Timothy, a young man whom he was training for the Lord's work: "Give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine" (I Tim. 4:13). By doing this he would learn.

So, we, dear boys and girls, have to scratch to learn. We cannot sit back in a listless manner, and expect God to pour into our hearts and minds what He wants us to work for.

"Neglect not the gift that is in thee."

James Harris, III

Death entered the home of James Henry Harris, Jr., on June 22, 1950, and took away their dear little boy, James Henry, III—Jimmy, as he was known by his many friends and loved ones.

He was a boy of sterling character and every one who knew him loved him. But surely God loved him best, and needed another angel to help decorate the heavenly mansions above, where Jesus has gone to prepare a place for all those who love and serve Him.

Jimmy was a member of Dawson's Grove church. He was a fine League worker and a member of the Junior choir. He was a good singer and was always found at his place in church and League.

Surely a good boy has gone to his reward in Heaven where the angels sing in glory, praising God day and night. It was so hard to his parents, relatives, and friends to part with Jimmy; but truly we can say as Jesus did on the cross, "Not My will, but Thine be done." We feel his death gives us another hold on Heaven and there we will shout and sing God's praises forever more.

Sleep on, Jimmy, and take your rest, We loved you, but Jesus loved you best; Grieve not, dear parents, for your dear boy, But strive to meet him in glory

Where all is peace, love, and joy.

asked, "if you had put that into a life insurance policy?"

He gave me his best anti-Prohibitionist smile.

Yes, if America's liquor bill of eight and a half billions of dollars during 1949 could have gone to finance a sound long range economic security program, the social and economic distress that will be visited upon thousands of families in the future could be somewhat mitigated and in many instances entirely eliminated.

The rise of the Welfare State that penalizes the thrifty and those of sobriety will be hastened by the growth and prosperity of the liquor business. It is a problem to be fought at the grass roots of our society.

The Wrong Name

In Dublin a zealous policeman caught a cabdriver in the act of driving recklessly. The officer stopped him and said:

"What's yer name?"

"Ye'll better try and find out," said the driver peevishly.

"Sure, and I will," said the policeman, as he went round to the side of the cab where the name ought to have been painted; but the letters had been rubbed off.

"Aha," cried the officer, "now ye'll git yerself into worse disgrace than ever. Yer name seems to be obliterated."

"You're wrong!" shouted the driver triumphantly. "'Tis O'Sullivan!"—Youth's Companion.

PRIDE GOETH BEFORE A FALL

NE day a very plain little girl dropped down into the school. She dressed very plainly, talked in an old-fashioned way, and seldom ever spoke of herself. The other girls shunned her, and talked unkindly about her. But the quiet little girl went quietly on her way, learning her lessons. Of course she noticed the way the girls treated her and she felt hurt.

The leader of these girls was Jane. She had been abroad for a year, and now the day had come for her to arrive, and the girls were anxiously waiting for her to come to school.

One afternoon the girls stood about in the school room when Jane came in with a smile and word of greeting for everyone. In the midst of the excitement the quiet little girl was overlooked, but presently Jane saw her and then how quickly things changed. Jane stopped in the middle of a sentence and with a surprised look on her face ran toward the timid little girl.

"Why, you darling!" she said, excitedly, "you dear, darling old girl. I'm very glad you're here. Why, I've missed you so terribly since we left France. Oh, Clarice, are you going to stay with us for awhile? I am so glad—" But the rest was smothered in Clarice's warm ulster.

All the little uppish misses had to stand back and watch Jane's extravagant love for this quiet girl, and, of course, they couldn't understand it. Even when Jane got her breath back she found it hard to tell.

"You favored girls, to have had this dear girl here with you all winter," she said at last as she stood with her arms about Clarice's waist. "She was my very best friend while we lived in France. Her father is a count, with a dozen other titles to his name, and her mother was an American girl who was a school friend of mother's. We stayed with them at Troyes, in a glorious big castle, which is their real home, but they have a great house in Paris, and another down on the Riviera, and a villa in Italy, and ever so many other places, and she's my very best friend. Oh, Clarice, I'm so glad your father has come to America for this season. But I'm terribly surprised, because I'd been hoping we'd get back from London before you got here. Oh, now we are going to have some fun, I tell you. Good-by, girls. See you tomorrow."

Imagine the surprise of those haughty, proud girls who had shunned and snubbed that dear little girl just because she was not dressed as they were.

WHEN TO PRAISE THE LORD

MABEL GLENN HALDEMAN

HERE is never a time when it is not right for us to praise the Lord. There are times when we do not feel like praising Him. There are times when others would not have us praise Him. It would seem sometimes that when everything appears to go wrong for us, that such a time it would not be fit to praise Him.

But His Word does not say so. It just says we shall praise the Lord. In the 113th Psalm the Psalmist says, "Praise ye the Lord. Praise, O ye servants of the Lord, praise the Name of the Lord. Blessed be the Name of the Lord from this time forth and for evermore. From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same the Lord's Name is to be praised" (vss. 1-3). Then in the last verse of the last Psalm (the 150th) the Psalmist says, "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."

If we praise the Lord when our life seems dull, or when we have sorrow, our dull and sorrowful times will not seem so hard to bear. Praise in our hearts toward the Lord makes our burdens lighter, and it makes us love the Lord more than if we grumble.

It is never the wrong time to praise the Lord. It is always right to praise Him, because He is always worthy of praise. If everybody should praise Him every minute of their lives, they could not give Him all the praise He is worthy of. It will take all eternity to praise Him for all He has done for us, and to give Him the praise due His most wonderful Name.

Boat or No Boat

"All right, we're going to start in on our practice-the-verse contest." Miss Givens' face beamed as she made the announcement. "Now, everybody ready, Bibles open, go!"

Don Ross glanced at some verses he had checked with blue pencil in the margin of his Bible. But they didn't just seem to be his verse. One minute was gone. Two minutes—three! Oh, here he had it—the 16th chapter of Proverbs, the 32nd verse:

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." Down went Don's face into his Bible, and how he studied! Then up shot his hand. He could say it every bit with his eyes shut.

Miss Givens praised all their verses, but especially Don's. Then she said, "Now, we are all going forth to live our verses."

The next Wednesday was July 4. Don Ross and Ted Richards were sailing their boats in a small creek of water running down the roadside. What fun to chase along and watch the boats hurry with the current. Soon they were coming to a tile culvert, through which round opening the water swished under the road, then ran on down on the other side of the highway.

"Better not let your boat get in there. It might get fast," shouted Ted.

"Now, she'll sail right on through," Don answered proudly. Ted fished his boat out to safety. But Don crossed over to the other side of the road, expecting to see his good ship come racing through. But she did not come. And she did not come! He peeped beneath the bridge—and there it was, stuck fast! His painted ship. His red, white, and blue Old Glory, as he had named her.

"Oh-a"—Don's anger flamed and he lifted a foot to stamp it on the ground. "Slow to anger," came to him in a flash, and "he that ruleth his spirit." Don put his foot down quietly, nor did he finish what he had started to say.

"What are you goin' to do about it?" squinted Ted, his own boat safely under his arm.

"Goin' out there in the willows and pray, I guess, Ted."

"Going to pray God to get that boat out for you?"

"No, goin' to pray God to help me rule my spirit so I won't get angry and act up till I can find a stick long enough to poke it out myself," Don called back. As he ran, he was asking God to help him rule his spirit and not be angry, even if he might not be able to get his boat at all.

Soon he and Ted were back with two of the longest willow sticks they could find. They got down on all-fours at the end of the tunnel into which the proud Old Glory had sailed majestically. They poked their long sticks back, but alas! Their sticks were just about two inches too short.

Ted began stamping and saying things—but not Don. Quietly he started home. He would rule his spirit. He would be one of God's heroes, boat or no boat.

Then suddenly a thought struck him. They could splice their long sticks together, tying them with their shoe-strings, and make one stick long enough to reach the boat! They did. A few pokes, and out sailed Old Glory, racing along ahead of the boys as grandly as could be.—Junior Challenge.

The Consecrated Life

F. B. Meyer

When a man is right with God, God will freely use him. There will rise up within him impulses, inspirations, strong strivings, strange resolves. These must be tested by Scripture and prayer; and if evidently of God, they must be obeyed.

But there is this perennial source of comfort: God's commands are God's enablings. He will never give us a work to do without showing us exactly how and when to do it, and giving us the precise strength and wisdom we need.

Do not dread to enter this life because you fear that God will ask you to do something you cannot do. He will never do that. If He lays aught on your heart, He will do so irresistibly; and as you pray about it, the impression will continue to grow, so that presently, as you look up to know what He wills you to say or do, the way will probably open; and you will probably have said the word or done the deed almost unconsciously. Rely on the Holy Ghost to go before you, to make the crooked places straight and the rough places smooth.

Denton Church Launches Building Program

Help Is Needed to Push the Work Forward

We have organized a F. W. B. Church here in Denton, Texas. We are members of the West Fork Association of the State. We have on a building program at this time, and we find that we do not have sufficient money to go on with the work. Will some of the Christian people who hear our call and help us in this good work? By the time we members have to pay the rent, light bill, for song books, and payment on our piano, and so on, we do not have very much left to help on the building program of our church.

We do have our lots paid for, and we have a man who says that he will let us have two-thirds of the money needed, if we can raise the one-third. Now, will you good people help us on this building program so that we will be able to go forward with this work? We are praying God's blessings upon everyone who will help us on this building program.

Those who desire to make inquiry about this church, may ask most every pastor in the West Fork Association of Texas. Ask anyone at the bank in Denton if you like, for information concerning this church. Or ask the moderator of the Hopewell Association of Oklahoma.

Aaron Joined with Moses

And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, he cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and will teach you what ye shall do.

And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him instead of God.—Exodus 4:14-16.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Go into the wilderness to meet Moses. And he went, and met him in the mount of God, and kissed him. And Moses told Aaron all the words of the Lord who had sent him, and all the signs which he had commanded him.—Exodus 4:27, 28.

Revival at Hugo Church

God really blessed us in our revival at Hugo during the week of September 18-24. Brother W. L. Jernigan of Bladenboro did the preaching and brought us some inspiring messages.

His texts for the week were:

Monday night—"Looking Unto Jesus"

Tuesday night—"Hearing Jesus"

Wednesday night—"Seeing Jesus"

Thursday night—"Following Jesus"

Friday night—"Knowing Jesus"

Sat. & Sun. night—"Anchoring in Jesus"

There were 18 who accepted the Lord as their Saviour and united with our church.

Our prayers go up for them who have turned their backs on Satan and we covet your prayers that they may ever follow in Jesus' footsteps and be the means in leading others to Christ.

Mrs. Wilton Faulkner

Did you ever hear of a man who had striven all his life faithfully and singly toward an object, and in no measure obtained it? If a man constantly aspires, is he not elevated? Did ever a man try heroism, magnanimity, truth, sincerity, and find that there was no advantage in them—that it was a vain endeavor?—Thoreau.

Until He Comes

The love of Christ constraineth me
To preach the Gospel full and free,
At home, abroad, o'er land and sea
Until He comes.

If that the aim of all could be,
Of all who claim to follow Thee,
How soon this weary world would see
Thy Kingdom come!

Oh, sad it is that we who know
Thy saving grace are, oh, so slow
To follow Thy command to go
And tell the Story.

Oh, friends of Missions, hear the cries
That from this sin-sick world arise.
Haste, bring it help before it dies
Without the Story.

Help speed the day when nations all,
The proudly great, the humbly small,
Shall bend the knee and lowly fall
Before His throne.

It is no good to say to some people, "Believe, believe." People need somebody's fingers to unravel the knots, to untie and straighten things out; and who is to do it? Those whose whole life has been cursed from their very birth, they are handicapped in their very blood, and who is to deliver them? Can anybody do it? Is there no God who can do it? Listen, the fingers that weave the rainbow into a scarf and wrapped it around the shoulders of a dying storm, the fingers that painted the lily-bell and threw out the planets, the fingers that were dipped in the mighty set of eternity and shook out on this old planet, making the ocean to drop and the rivers to stream—the same fingers can hold on these tangled lives and can make them whole again, for He came to make the crooked straight, and the rough places plain. Blessed be God, Jesus can do for Matthew what nobody else can, and He can do for you, my brother, what your friends cannot do. He can take the desire for drink out of you; He can cure the love of gambling that is eating the soul out of you; He can put out the fires of lust that are burning in your being and consuming you by inches; He can take the devil of lying out of you, the devil of cheating out of you, of fraud out of you, of hypocrisy out of you, Jesus can do what nobody else can; the preacher cannot, the Church cannot; but the Lord Jesus, who loves you, is mighty to save.

What Will You Leave Behind?

High lights of the message delivered by the Reverend D. W. Cherry, pastor of First Free Will Baptist Church, Newport News, Virginia, at the evening worship service, October 8, 1950.

Scripture, St. Matthew 6:20-21
Text, All three verses

19. Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:

20. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal:

21. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

We in the western world fight a losing battle against materialism, for the world is too much with us. We are so infatuated with material interests we can scarcely raise our eyes toward the Kingdom of God. Yet with all our possessions, what can we take with us, when we are called by death? What will we leave behind?

We must leave behind the trinkets and belongings we have labored so hard to accumulate. We shall not be able to carry along any of the luxuries we have struggled so feverishly to possess. When man stands at the brink of eternity he is stripped of all his possessions. Only the character he has developed, his words and his deeds abide with him, and these he must account for in the day of judgment.

Autobiography by M. K. Gandhi (Public Affairs Press, Washington, D. C.), epitomizes the gospel of simple living taught by the man of India. Mr. Gandhi left a few personal possessions: slippers, sandals, his watch, bowls, spoons, his favorite songbook, and glasses; but to millions he left a spiritual legacy which earthly treasure can never buy.

According to his autobiography, Gandhi in his formative years determined to strip off all superfluities and nonessentials. He sought truth; and though he may never have grasped it fully, his whole life was spent in trying to help others.

What does man leave behind? His houses crumble, his lands pass to others, his wealth is fought over by ungrateful relatives, and even his name is soon forgotten.

Actually all that a man leaves behind, that endures, is his influence. If he has helped a youth to have faith in God and in his fellow man, that lives on. If love has flowed from his heart to others, that endures. He may leave no rich legacy, he may not find a niche in the Hall of Fame, but God remembers his loving service.

What did Jesus leave behind when He died on the cross? Only a few garments for the Roman soldiers to gamble over? No, this was not all! He left the love of God in human hearts: He left salvation from sin and the assurance of eternal life.

Over and over again, Jesus taught the futility of material treasures. To the rich young man that asked the way to the Kingdom of God, the Master said, "Go sell all thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me" (Matt. 19:21).

To the man possessed by the dream of hoarding wealth and getting riches, God said, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided" (Luke 12:20).

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God," must be paramount.

It is time to strip off non-essentials, to turn to a simple way of life. Material possessions are not wrong in themselves. It is when men make little gods of them that they destroy the soul. Every material possession should serve one purpose only: to give more time to the individual that he may live for Jesus Christ and serve his fellow men more acceptably.

It is time for every Christian to take an inventory of his possessions: If investments and savings, accumulated in time of prosperity, were placed on the altar of sacrifice, they would do much to turn the whole world to Christ. Those treasures would send missionaries to the millions who have never heard of the name of Christ.

If your heart is set on the wealth of earth, it will probably remain here, with that which vanishes away. If your heart longs for the kingdom of God, you will have accumulated treasures up there, through your gifts of love.

Jesus said to Cornelius, in Acts 10:4, "Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God."

How is your stewardship to God? Think beloved! Think! "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Ecc. 12:14).

NEWS FROM FIRST FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH, NEWPORT NEWS, VIRGINIA

We are glad to report at this time that our Free Will Baptist Church is making progress. It is slow but sure. Knowing the Lord to be our rock, our strength, and a very pleasant help in time of need, we hesitated not to begin our building program, even though we are few in number.

The last of June we were notified that we must either buy or vacate the church which we had been renting since Christmas. Our church membership voted, almost unanimously, to build on the lot which we had purchased and paid for.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

MY VISIT TO SOUTH CAROLINA

I had quite an enjoyable trip to South Carolina from September the 27th to the 8th of October. I was with the Rev. Paul J. Ketteman, pastor of Mt. Elon church, near Pamplico. It is a whole time church with a nice parsonage right close to the church edifice. The parsonage is nicely furnished.

I preached each night while there and twice on Sunday until the 8th of October, when I concluded my services at the 11:00 o'clock hour. It certainly was a privilege that gave us great joy to visit the various homes in the community and share the hospitality of those good people. A goodly number of church members rededicated themselves to the work of the Lord, and some confessed the Lord Jesus as Saviour. God knows the number saved. I do not. But we rejoiced to see people come to the old-fashioned altar, and then to hear them say, "I'm saved."

My wife taught in the Auxiliary work for five days. Three at Mt. Elon and two at Horse Branch, near Turbeville.

We attended a District Woman's Convention on Saturday, September 30th at Manning, S. C., which church is pastored by Rev. Louis Holliday. And on Saturday, October the 7th, we attended the State Convention of the Woman's Auxiliary, where we were honored, to preach the Convention sermon. We used the Convention theme—"Stewardship"—which theme has become a familiar one everywhere in our churches and especially with the women. The State convention was held at Liberty church. At both these conventions the hospitality was great and every one seemed to enjoy the fellowship. Mrs. Griffin conducted an open forum at the State Convention and talked at the District meeting also. The women of South Carolina are marching along with the auxiliary work to great heights and the promise is that some day soon, they will be accomplishing greater things in their noble undertakings.

CONFUSED

I find many people who are confused today on religious questions. I find some afflicted people who are not saved, and because their affliction is not healed, they think that God does not save them, because they have been told that "Salvation means a healing of the body as well as the saving of the soul." This is foul doctrine, certainly not taught under grace. Man can and will be saved from the guilt of sin and his soul be made absolutely free from sin, and at the same time his diseased body may never be healed. It is possible for the body to be divinely healed and the soul saved, but it is not always done. I have known patients with diseases that kill, to be saved and go out rejoicing in the presence of their Saviour. Soul saved. Body lost from the presence of this life.

Then we find children of God who have been led to believe, if they get sick or affliction comes on them, that "it is because that they have sinned and that sin must be repented of before they ever get well." Often they realize that they cannot live and they become confused. When I find sick Saints, "I try to get them to accept Romans 8:28, where we are told that "All things work together for good to them that love God." When a child of God gets sick, the affliction works out good. If the Devil can get the mind of a seeking sinner confused and make him doubt God's grace to save from sin, because his body is not healed, then the Devil gets the victory over that soul. If the Devil can make a child of God lose faith because the bodily affliction is not done away with, then Satan has his victory. It certainly is a pity that the Devil can and does use those who claim to be Christian to weaken the faith of a believer or to defeat the sinner, seeking salvation.

"GETTING THE HOLY GHOST"

Every now and then we hear some one say: "I got the Holy Ghost," naming a certain time or in a certain meeting, or perhaps some one through an eye of criticism will say, "He" speaking of some one, "got the Holy Ghost in a certain meeting." These terms are misleading and often offensive to some one who is honestly trying to please God. I cannot find, nor believe that God wants us to use the term, "I have got the Holy Ghost." I find that the Lord Jesus said; "If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever" (John 14: 15, 16).

But some one may say, "Christ said Comforter" yes, Christ did call the Holy Ghost Comforter, but let us read further, "Even the Spirit of Truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; for he dwelleth with you and shall be in you" (verse 17). Here Jesus called the Holy Ghost the "Spirit of Truth." Now let us go to the 23rd verse. Jesus answered and said unto him (Judas), "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." Here Jesus puts the abiding presence in the plural: "We will come." Now let us go to the 26th verse. "But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." Here Jesus says the Comforter is the Holy Ghost. The Father and the Son will come and abide with the Christian. But the Holy Ghost comes in the name of the Lord Jesus, the "only begotten Son of God," therefore, the Holy Ghost is the Vicar of Christ—the representative of Christ. He is the only Vicar on earth. He is the Divine teacher who reminds us of right and wrong. He takes us the message of the Father and the Son. He is their Representative. He came on the whole church at Pentecost. The whole body of believers were baptized by His presence.

We are born of the Spirit (John 3). We are filled with the Holy Spirit. Acts 4:31, "And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost . . ." The seven Deacons were to be "full of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 6:3). Steven was "full of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 7). Barnabus "was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 11:22-26). The Holy Ghost "fell" on the whole household of Cornelius when Peter preached to them. Hear his words: "And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning." He was telling what to do to be saved. Read the verse before this, namely, verse 14. Paul commands, "Be filled with the Spirit" (Ephesians 5:18). We are all, that is every believer in Christ, baptized by the Holy Ghost into one body. Quote; "For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body being many, are one body: so also is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit."

The Holy Ghost (King James Version) the Holy Spirit (the Revised Version) mean the same. The Spirit as used here in these quotations means the same Person—"There is one body, and one Spirit even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; One Lord, one faith, one baptism. One God and Father of all, who is above all, and in you all" (Eph. 4:4-6). Notice that Paul says, "in you all." So, God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost, "three persons in one," are in every believer; and as I see it, we do not have the Holy Ghost, but the Holy Ghost has us. We are His. We are not to use Him, but we are to yield to Him that He may use us. We should not pray "Lord give me the power." But we should pray, "Here am I Lord, send me"; "Lord use me." If we had the Holy Ghost we would not know what to do with Him. But He knows what to do with us. "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God" (Rom. 8:14). "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit" (Gal. 5:25).

It has been said that there will be three things which will surprise us when we get to heaven, one, to find many whom we did not expect to find there; another, to find some one there whom we had expected; a third, and perhaps the greatest wonder, to find ourselves there!—Dwight L. Moody

REV. RAYMOND RIGGS, Promotional Secretary-Treasurer
242 VICTOR AVENUE HIGHLAND PARK, MICHIGAN

A Tribute to Rev. Winford Davis

By Rev. Raymond Riggs

At the special called meeting of the Foreign Missions Board of the National Association of Free Will Baptists, in conjunction with the Missionary Conference in Nashville, Tenn., October 3rd, 4th and 5th, Rev. Winford Davis submitted his resignation on the Foreign Missions Board. Motion was carried to accept his resignation.

The Free Will Baptist Church is indebted to Bro. Davis for the many years of service he has rendered in this department. For almost a quarter of a century he has served our church as chairman, treasurer, promotional-secretary and, in many instances he almost carried the burden alone. He has been faithful with the National Association of Free Will Baptists.

Bro. Davis has expressed a desire to be relieved as a member and officer of the Foreign Mission Board now. Many of us felt that his experience, his wisdom and counsel would be an asset to the activities of the Board. Thus, he continued to serve until his recent resignation dated October 4th, 1950.

Brother Davis will still be interested and will still promote the work of Foreign Missions. He is not mad at anybody, has a heart of love for all his brethren and a compassion for lost souls everywhere.

The present members of the Foreign Mission Board extend to Bro. Davis our heart felt thanks for his services rendered and we want him and all of our people to know that we appreciate what he has done. The compensation that he has received for this laborious task he has performed has certainly been inadequate but the Lord of Heaven knows how to reward his servants and some day Bro. Winford will experience a real pay day.

REV. BERT RODGERS ALSO RESIGNS

Rev. Bert F. Rodgers also submitted his resignation at the recent session of the Foreign Mission Board. Motion was carried to accept his resignation and we have notified the Executive Committee of the National Association of Free Will Baptists of the two vacancies now existing with the Foreign Mission Board.

We ask our people to pray that God will lead in the selecting of men to fill these important positions.

Rev. Raymond Riggs

An Open Letter to Foreign Missions Directors

DEAR FOREIGN MISSIONS DIRECTORS:

Under separate cover you will receive literature for distribution in your state relative to our Missionary program. Please use this material to the best advantage of our work. As you know we are in a crisis at this time. We are over $5,000.00 behind with our missionary allotments, and of course the current expense keeps mounting up. We must make a strong effort to meet this emergency and to stabilize our program for the future. You have been appointed as the key man in your state to promote Foreign Missions. What we need now is money. What we must have now is money. These are prosperous days, there is more money in circulation than ever before. We must tactfully, diplomatically, and prayerfully present to all our people the facts and figures and solicit with emphasis their continual support in a financial way to our Foreign Mission program.

Your state has been allocated a certain quota to be raised by July 1, 1951. You understand, of course, this quota is a minimum, all who can do more certainly should. If our people are informed of the facts and we relay to them the burden of our heart concerning lost souls everywhere they will respond.

As most of you know, I have been recently elected as Promotional-secretary and Treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board. This is a big job especially when you come into an office that is over $5,000.00 in arrears. The job is too big for anyone of us, but all of us working together I believe we can have things on an even keel by January 1, 1951. I appeal to you for your earnest co-operation. If you cannot work at this task and you feel you cannot do the job please let me know at once and at the same time recommend another man in your state whom you believe has the work at heart and will promote it. The film, "Letter to Melitino," is being commended wherever it has been shown. The Board has recommended that each state purchase a copy of the film to be used in promotional work. The cost of this film is $150.00. If your state does not care to purchase a copy and you would like the services of Rev. Kenneth Turner with his machine and film, please write him at Monett, Mo. You understand, of course, that you should be responsible in arranging for his itinerate. If you care to do your own itinerate work or appoint some one else to do the same, who can get results, you have the authority and commendation of the Board. You are asked to submit a report of each service held in the interest of Foreign Missions and to instruct all your itinerate workers to do the same. Special forms will be sent to you for this purpose.

Respectfully submitted,
Rev. Raymond Riggs,

Foreign Missions Office Move to Highland Park, Michigan

At the recent session of the Foreign Mission Board, Rev. Raymond Riggs was elected Promotional-Secretary and Treasurer. Bro. Riggs states that the address of the office will be, 242 Victor Avenue, Highland Park 3, Michigan.

Following is a motion passed by the Foreign Mission Board in the recent session: "Motion carried that Bro. Riggs be authorized to employ such assistance as he may think necessary to maintain office as Promotional-secretary and Treasurer, the cost not to exceed $75.00 per month." As most of the work will consist of bookkeeping and stenographic help, Mrs. Hubert B. Sloan will be in charge of keeping the books and other help will be secured, if needed. Mrs. Sloan is an experienced bookkeeper and has proved very efficient as treasurer of the Highland Park Free Will Baptist Church.

The books will be audited once per year and the facts and figures will be open to our people at any time.

Please send all correspondence and mission money to Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Board, 242 Victor Avenue, Highland Park 3, Michigan.

The new set of books will be set up as of November 1, 1950.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Make checks payable to The Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

Over Five Thousand Dollars In Arrears

Now let's talk turkey. It was revealed in our recent Missionary Conference in Nashville, Tenn., that the Foreign Missions Department was over Five Thousand Dollars behind in our allotments to our Mission Fields.

The time has come when we must do more than talking, planning and even more than praying. We must give. The S. O. S. call will continue to be sounded long and loud until we are even with the board in this department of our work.

The reason for this situation is not that Free Will Baptists aren't interested in Foreign Missions, but it is because the demands on each of our Foreign Fields have been greater than the growth in stewardship at home. In order for us to be relieved of this financial crisis we are appealing to churches and individuals to send in immediately special offerings to expedite the amount in arrears.

FIFTY MEN TO GIVE ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS EACH

We are challenging fifty individuals or churches to give one hundred dollars each between now and November the 15th, to relieve us of this condition. The following persons have pledged themselves for the following amounts to be paid by November the 15th, to relieve us of this condition. We are very grateful to: Rev. J. W. Alford, $100.00; Rev. Rashie Kennedy, $100.00; Rev. Raymond Riggs, $100.00; Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Johnson, $100.00; Rev. E. C. Morris, $200.00; Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Thigpen, $25.00; Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Ludwig, $25.00; Rev. W. S. Mooneyham, $10.00; Rev. Wayne Tucker, $25.00 and Rev. and Mrs. Henry Melvin, $25.00. There are many more in our ranks who are able and, I believe, interested enough to come to our rescue at this crucial time.

First, ask yourself the personal question, "what can I do personally?" If you cannot be a One Hundred Dollar man by November the 15th, then pledge what you can. Perhaps your church would make a hundred dollar pledge to be paid any time before November 15. Folks, we must have your help. We cannot let our missionaries down. They are standing in the gap in our stead. Let's rally to their support now. Please pray about this matter and ask God exactly what you should do, then fill out the blank below and send it immediately to the Free Will Baptist Foreign Missions Board Promotional Office, 242 Victor Ave., Highland Park 3, Michigan.

Cuban School of Missions Has 30 Students

By Rev. Raymond Riggs

Rev. Thomas H. Willey, director of our Foreign Mission work in Cuba, informs us that there will be thirty students in our Cuban Free Will Baptist Bible School this year.

The minimum cost of maintaining one of these students is $20.00 per month. We would like to suggest and recommend that various churches in our denomination adopt one of these students and be responsible for their support during the year. This is what we mean by personalizing our mission gifts. Not necessarily to a particular person with a particular name, but at least be responsible for the amount necessary to maintain the support of a student, native missionary or an American missionary.

Maybe your Sunday School, League or Woman's Auxiliary would accept partial or total support of one of these fine students.

TWENTY-EIGHT FULL-TIME WORKERS IN CUBA

It is also revealed that our mission work in Cuba has expanded to the extent that now we have twenty-eight full time native Christian workers.

The minimum cost of supporting one of these native full time workers is $30.00 per month. Thus, we need churches, Sunday Schools, Leagues and Woman's Auxiliaries or individuals who will assume partial or total support of all these native workers.

Most of these workers are graduates from our own school and they are either full time pastors, teachers, evangelists or wives to our pastors, teachers and evangelists. We have the ideal set-up for a missionary program in the school in Cuba. The school can be operated with a small staff of American personnel as the natives are trained to carry the Message to their own people. Will you or your church accept partial or total support of either student or a native worker? If so please fill in the following blank:

I, We, would like to support a Cuban Student, Native Worker in the amount of $_____ per month. Please send us the name and address of our student or native worker.

CHANGE IN PRICE!

THE BAPTIST PAPER GOES TO TWO DOLLARS

All subscriptions sent to us before November 15, 1950, will be accepted at the old price of $1.50 per year. After that date the price will be $2.00 per year, $1.00 for six months.

We had hoped to avoid this change but the recent upward swing in the cost of materials and labor, due to the general advance in the cost of living, has compelled us to act. Other regulations concerning subscriptions remain as before. We are urging all our friends to send in as many subscriptions as possible before the 15th of November.

THE DISABLED MINISTER

The disabled minister likes to be remembered by those for whom he labored in the gospel ministry while he was well and active for the Lord. Knowing that he is no longer able to minister unto the lost, the sick, the bereaved, and the dying, he reflects in his home on his bed of afflictions upon the days when he was happy in the service of the Lord. But now he is forced to realize that those days of activity are over, and that his necessities of life must come from those church people who are well and strong, and able to render assistance unto him during his closing days.

And what a privilege it is for consecrated church people to render adequate assistance to such "wornout" men of God. Think what joy can come to the hearts of loyal church members when they use the opportunity to give to the cause of Superannuation of our church. How true it is, those disabled servants of the Lord are depending upon our church people for food, shelter and clothing, many of them at least, and think how God is blessing the church in many ways today with growth, better equipment, better trained pastors, greater Sunday Schools, and the like. Yes, the church is growing stronger financially, and in membership, and greater opportunities are being extended to it as time passes.

In view of these facts, can any local church, Sunday School, Woman's auxiliary, or League organization sit idly by, and not do their part now, before the month of October passes, for Superannuation? Can a single church have a clear conscience if she should fail to take an offering as soon as convenient for this purpose? Other churches will not forget to do their part, but is your church going to do its part? That is the question. Let every congregation contribute as the Lord has blessed, and no one will be the loser, for God has promised to bless the cheerful giver.

"THE LEAGUER"

We have received a sample copy of "The Leaguer," a new monthly magazine which is designed to publicize, from time to time, the Young People's League work of North Carolina, in particular, and to boost the Leagues of the denomination in general.

We have looked it over, noted its different messages, and find it commendable. It is a forward step taken by the North Carolina League convention which should prove quite beneficial to all Leaguers interested in furthering the cause of Christ among the youth of the church. It is hoped that they will rally to its support, and give their hearty co-operation to Brother R. P. Harris, the editor.

As we see it, there are three things that the Leaguers should do in order for "The Leaguer" to become highly beneficial to the young people of the church. First, Leaguers will need to subscribe to it, and read its contents regularly each month. Second, Leaguers should prepare League news each month and mail to Brother Harris for publication in "The Leaguer." In the third place, Leaguers will need to co-operate with Brother Harris in every way possible to help him to make it an interesting and worthwhile magazine for the young people.

News from Raleigh Church

CHRISTIAN FRIENDS:

You are cordially invited to attend Fellowship Day with us 5th Sunday, October 29. This is not a day to raise money, but an all-day Fellowship. There will be a picnic dinner served on the grounds, so just pack your dinner and come and eat with us! We promise you a good program of religious worship. We are anxious to have as many of our people visit us here as possible because we believe that in mingling together we all become stronger in love for each other and, in turn, better Christians and Church Workers.

Although this invitation is extended from all the members of the church, I would like to add a word "of my own."

This church has come to mean a great deal to the group of people working here and we believe it could grow into one of the best Free Will Baptist churches in our denomination. However, until we have had a chance to grow in membership and spiritual and financial strength, we need the help of all of you—we need your help in the form of prayer, faith, visits, and, of course, whenever you have money to give, we need that too! We pray that none of you, or none of us here, will allow anything to stand in our way of performing our Christian duty to this church.

Remember, come and visit with us 5th Sunday!

In all sincerity,
Edith Whitehurst,
Raleigh, N. C.

Black River Auxiliary Holds Good Meeting

The Woman's auxiliary of Black River Church held its regular Wednesday night meeting on October 4 in the home of Mrs. Blanche Etheridge. The lesson for study was: "Advancing with Christ through Missions in India." Different members present took part on the program, as Mesdames Stella Etheridge, Harry Powers, Ray Mixon, Lois Casselman, Mrs. Effie Powell sang a solo.

There were eleven members present for this meeting, and there were three visitors with us. After the business period was over we closed the meeting with the benediction offered by one of our visitors, Mrs. Sarah Etheridge.

The delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, and everyone enjoyed them very much. We are asking the prayers of the Christian people to pray for us that our auxiliary may go forward and do the will of God. Mrs. Ray Mixon, 4th V.-Pres. Andrews, South Carolina

Attention N. C. Free Will Baptists

October Is Superannuation Month

Free Will Baptist people of North Carolina, may I remind you that Oct. has been designated as Superannuation month for the State? I should like to thank each one of you personally for what you have done in the past on behalf of this worthy cause. Your support has been fine, as far as it has gone, but you must keep giving in this worthy cause.

We, your Superannuation Board, should like to have done more for our needy ministers who are disabled, and also for the widows of others, but we could only do for them as the Free Will Baptist people of the State gave. Our funds were insufficient to meet the needs of those on the retired list. Two years ago, when I was placed on the Board of Superannuation, I thought as one of our ministers passed on to his heavenly reward, that we would have funds to enable us to place a new applicant on the retired list. But, Brethren, it is not that easy. We had to overlook the needs of the widows left behind. Surely, they should not be neglected by our church people of the State, as they are so often done.

I can recall very vividly when my Dad, who was a F. W. B. minister and passed on to his reward, and also my Mother who has gone, too, to be with him, how she was left as a tenant farmer, and with eight children to care for, and how hard it was for her. You can be sure that she had a hard time, trying to make ends meet. But, thanks be to God, who giveth us victory, if we will trust him. I am sure that Mother did trust him with all her heart. I shall never forget the expression on her face when she received $16 from a church conference to erect a marker to Dad's resting place. How proud she was of our church.

I am sure that we have some in our retired and disabled ministers' ranks who are now living in not much better circumstances financially than we were left in when Dad died. Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, wake up, and let us rally to this worthy cause. We must not sit still and neglect the old pioneer soldiers of the Cross. We should feel very proud of them, and thankful for the splendid work which they have done for our denomination. We, your Superannuation Board, are asking you for $10,000 this year. This means about 25 cents for each Free Will Baptist member of the State. We are asking for this that we may be able to do more for this worthy cause. I feel sure that you good people will respond to this call during October and thus enable us to do more for our disabled ministers.

Now, churches, Sunday Schools, Ladies auxiliaries, Young People's Leagues, and friends, will you send in your Superannuation funds right away to Rev. M. L. Johnson, Sims, N. C., Route 1?

Yours for a greater program,
M. V. Avery, Board Member

Give to Superannuation!

Disabled Ministers, and Widows Need Help

We have noticed that others have been writing in the Baptist paper about Superannuation funds for our disabled ministers, and also for the widows of deceased ministers. We understand that October is designated in North Carolina as Superannuation month. All F. W. B. churches in the State, we understand, are urged to raise an offering and send it to Brother M. L. Johnson, who is treasurer of the Superannuation Board of North Carolina.

Here is what I want to say about this matter. The majority of our preachers never get too much for their preaching. We know also that their families never get too much to live on, for all of them are poor people. Some of them have large families, and it takes much to support them, and when the father dies, and leaves the widow and the little children behind, it is hard for them to make a living.

I feel that our church people cannot afford to neglect this cause. They should do all they can in their church and Sunday School to raise a good offering and send it to Brother Johnson at Sims, North Carolina. By doing this more money will be raised, and our disabled ministers will be able to receive from Brother Johnson a regular amount each month. Church people, we cannot afford to forget those poor men who are now in need. Think of it! We can give and never miss the money we give, if we will do it for the love of those who are in need.

Most any church can give twenty-five or thirty dollars, and never miss it. Our Sunday Schools can give that amount from their funds, and never miss it. The Lord will bless us if we will do these things. It will be a shame for us to sit still and see them suffer for the want of the necessities of life. If we do that, God will withhold some of his blessings from us. You need not doubt that.

The women of the auxiliaries of the churches are always doing things for the cause of Christ. Let them wage in their churches a campaign drive for this cause. They will raise good offerings if they will get busy and do this very thing before the month of October is over. What more joy could there come to those good women than to start a campaign for this work in their own church? Not only church members will give but other people will give for this worthy cause when they go to them and ask them for a donation to help the disabled ministers of our denomination. This will be rendering a noble service which will greatly repay everyone who shall take a part in this work.

Yours for a noble cause,
Jack Denton

Sunday school workers, evangelical denominational officials and others interested in all phases of Christian education will gather in Philadelphia's Town Hall November 2 to 4 for the fifth annual convention of the National Sunday School Association.

Co-sponsors of the convention are the Evangelical Teacher Training Association and the Philadelphia Area Sunday School Association.

A galaxy of 40 persons, many of them leaders in the Sunday school field, will take part in the conference. In addition, there will be demonstrations, skits, and illustrated messages that will quicken the pace of the three-day gathering.

With the theme, "Revival Now Through the Sunday School," there will be an emphasis on the urgency of the hour. Many leaders are praying that the Philadelphia gathering will get impetus to the Bible-centered Sunday School movement, and give many a new vision of the importance of this channel of blessing.

Speakers include Dr. Clarence H. Benson, general secretary of the Evangelical Teacher Training Association; Dr. Robert C. McQuilkin, president of Columbia Bible College; Dr. James DeForest Murch, president of N. S. S. A. and editor of United Evangelical Action; Dr. R. A. Forest, president of Toccoa Falls Bible Institute; Dr. Archer E. Anderson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Dulute; Dr. Harold C. Mason, of Asbury Theological Seminary; Dr. G. A., Mrs. George (Billie) Davis, of the Gospel Publishing House, Springfield, Missouri, Miss Eunice J. Fischer, of Scripture Press.

Leaders of workshop groups and departmental sessions, in addition to those already mentioned, are the Rev. Paul Copeland, of the Assemblies of God; Victor B. Growcock, of Churchcraft Pictures; the Rev. Frank A. Kehrl, of the American Sunday School Union; Miss Dorothy L. BE EVER WATCHFUL

May's Chapel to Have Services on Second Sunday

There is much emphasis placed on the five-letter word, W-A-T-C-H. "Watch, therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come, But know this, that if the good man of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up."

Jesus' own words tell us to be ready, not knowing the time when some trouble or temptation may come upon us. Webster's Dictionary says the meaning is: "To be awake; keep wakefulness; to be attentive; be on the lookout, watch and pray."

On one occasion, Jesus said, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death. Tarry ye here and watch." In the days of His flesh, when He offered up prayers and supplications with tears, He did it for the good of mankind. By faith we can hear Him say, "I Thank Thee, Father," because He was thankful for those who had followed Him in his gospel ministry. Perhaps, if Peter had been watching and praying that night, he would not have had that bitter experience of denying his Lord. He went out and went bitterly, after he had turned away for fear of the enemy.

We are reminded that Paul said, "Godly sorrow worketh patience." We should be temperate, or moderate in thought and action. We need to have self-control; to be calm and watchful at all times.

It may be that some of our friends should like to know of the change of appointment here at May's Chapel, near Dudley, North Carolina. We will say that for the past two years, Rev. R. H. Jackson, of Saratoga, N. C., had been serving us as pastor on the fourth Sundays. Now, since Brother W. R. Millard is our pastor for the coming year, preaching service will be held on the second Sunday of each month. We want the people of the church and community to remember this date and come to our services, and help us to build up a stronger church in our community.

Yours for a greater service for the Lord,
Mrs. May Rouse

Winford Davis, Treasurer

Years ago in London there was a large gathering of noted people, and among the invited guests was a famous preacher of his day, Caesar Milan. A young lady played and sang charmingly and everyone was thrilled. Very graciously, tactful and yet boldly the preacher went up to her after the music had ceased and said, "I thought as I listened to you tonight how tremendously the cause of Christ would be benefitted if your talents were dedicated to His cause. You know, young lady, you are as much sinner in the sight of God as a drunkard in the ditch or a harlot on Scarlet Street, but I am glad to tell you that the blood of Jesus Christ, His Son can cleanse from all sin." The young lady snapped out a rebuke for his presumption. He said, "Lady, I mean no offense. I pray God's spirit will convict you." They all returned to their homes. The young woman retired but could not sleep. The face of the preacher appeared before her and his words rang thru her mind. At two o'clock in the morning she sprang from her bed, took a pencil and paper and with tears dripping from her face Charlotte Elliott wrote that famous poem:

"Just as I am, without one plea
But that Thy Blood was shed for me
And that Thou biddest me come to Thee,
Lamb of God, I come, I come!"
Billy Graham, in Great Gospel Sermons

Should the Church trouble itself with Society's problems? We think it should! We believe it must if it is to be faithful to Christ and do the full work of the Gospel. An appalling impotence has come on the Protestant church in America. We have blamed the conditions on Modernism—rationalistic pulpist attitudes which maintain a form of godliness but deny the power thereof; and certainly the prevalent denying of faith in many churches is responsible for the pathetic powerlessness of present-day Protestantism. However, orthodox Fundamentalism also has something to answer for, and stern charges are being brought against us in many quarters. We are accused of being negative in our message; we are told that in an hour of world crisis we are continuing to present a detached Gospel and an innocuous program, with no interest in such crying social programs as war, race, class, liquor, imperialism, crime, and juvenile delinquency. It is true that we are standing aloof while the world bleeds? Can we be rightfully accused of indifference to human suffering while other institutions are rolling up their sleeves to tackle things that threaten our very existence of truth and righteousness in our land? Many Godly conservative Christians are waking up to the fact that the Church is indeed too often passing by on the other side. Perhaps we need to study the parable of the Good Samaritan anew and learn how Jesus thought of genuine neighborliness and how much it might contribute toward the establishment of the Kingdom of God in the hearts of men!

Dr. Wm. Ward Ayer, in Christ's Parables for Today (Revell).

"I WONDER"

CPL. JAMES HENDRICKS

*If I could hear my conversation
Repeated at the end of day,
Would it make to me a difference
In saying what I say?*

*Would I say that little thought
That's lurking in my mind?
Would I say those words of truth,
Even though it be unkind?*

*Would I talk about that person
Whom I claim to be my friend?
Would I say that fatal sentence
Bringing friendship to an end?*

*If I could hear as others hear me,
If I could see myself as you,
I wonder if there'd be a difference
In doing what I do?*

Some Middlesex Orphanage Notes

OFF TO SCHOOL

These pictures show the boys (above) and girls (below) of the Free Will Baptist Orphanage, Middlesex, N. C., boarding buses for the two mile trip to school in the town of Middlesex. It is always a time of rush and excitement, of last minute "priming" for the girls, and adjusting ties and tying shoe laces for the boys, but by and by they are off—and matrons can relax and get a bit of well earned rest. Happy days, kids! Boys don't get into mischief; girls don't flirt with the boys!

Molly and Her Pet Bird

When Molly Brown had her last birthday, a friend gave her a bird, and Molly has made a real pet of him. She allows him to come out of his cage and he will perch on her finger, and perform a number of interesting little tricks that she has taught him.

Some one asked Milly the other day how she managed to tame her bird so well.

"Oh, I suppose it's because I have always tried to be kind to him," she answered.

There is no doubt that Molly told the secret of her success in these words. Kindness counts more than anything else in dealing with birds and animals. It is also the best quality we can show in dealing with everybody around us.

"Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you," wrote Paul to the Ephesians, and these are good words for us all to remember at the present time.—Apples of Gold.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

JAMES LOGAN (JIMMY) POWELL

"Jimmy" Powell has been a real asset to the orphanage during his stay. He has served as director of the F. W. B. L. and superintendent of the Sunday School, and his influence on the campus has been wholesome. Everybody is rejoicing that Jimmy has won a tuition scholarship to the University of North Carolina for the college year 1950-51.

"NO, ME NO GO"

This pretty little story is told of a spelling class in China. The youngest of the children had by hard study contrived to keep his place so long that he seemed to claim it by right of possession. Growing self-confident, he missed a word, which was immediately spelled by the boy standing next him. The face of the victor expressed the triumph he felt, yet he made no move towards taking the place, and when urged to do so, firmly refused, saying, "No, me no go; me not make Ah Fun's heart solly."

That little act implied great self-denial, yet it was done so thoughtfully and kindly that spontaneously came the quick remark, "He do all same as Jesus." After being saved by the Lord Jesus, the next thing is, to "follow in His steps," and keep longing for His appearing.—L. W., in Boys and Girls.

THE BLESSED KING

Jesse Bone
Butler, Georgia

What a blessed Saviour and King our Lord is!

He spared the lives of Noah, Lot, and many in days of old;
And taught them how they were children of His,
And rescued the Israelites from destruction times untold.

Our blessed King led Samuel during his youthful days,
And He cared for Daniel through war and peace;
He gave Solomon wisdom, and led him in many ways,
Nor did His people worship idols in the least.

And, O He sent to us a Saviour, who bled and died
To wash away our sins by His atoning blood;
For as He hung there on that cruel and rugged cross,
He paid the price to redeem us in that crimson flood.

So, we are to thank our blessed Lord and King,
As we journey along life's rugged way;
Then, some day we'll join Him in the glory world,
For He has shown us the light of a new day.

The cross is an "I" crossed out—and the Cross of Christ means death to self. A man who was afraid to testify in public said, "I'd die first." That is what we must do! It means conflict, struggle, agony, for we die hard. It may mean being misunderstood in school, in business, at home. The world will think us queer and our conduct strange. (I Peter 4:4) We have read of two girls, later converted from a life of worldliness, who answered an invitation to a dance by saying, "We are dead and can't come!" It was a Scriptural answer!

Vance Havner, in Great Gospel Sermons (Revell).

If you do not shine at home, if your father and mother, your sister and brother, if the very cat and dog in the house are not the better and happier for your being a Christian, it is a question whether you are really one.—J. Hudson Taylor.

Growing Through Reading and Meditation

(Lesson for October 29)

LESSON: Acts 17:10-12; Philippians 4:8-9; I Timothy 4:12-16; 2 Timothy 2:15; 4:13.

GOLDEN TEXT: Philippians 4:8.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

The world is flooded with various types of literature. One type is designed to furnish information, another to amuse, another to mislead, and still others for other purposes. But the fact still remains that the Bible, and Christian literature which defend and advance the doctrines of the Bible, should be stressed above all other books and papers. Healthy minds and pure thoughts foster correct conduct and godly lives. The kind of literature read has much to do with the kind of life lived.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. It is a noble thing to receive the preaching of the Word, but it is still nobler to make sure that it corresponds with the written Word.

2. The careful examination of the Word of God is bound to lead honest searchers to faith in Christ.

3. With the whole Bible in his hand, it should not be difficult for the Christian to find proper subjects for meditation.

4. Meditation on the things of God by an honest believer will bring the peace of God to him.

5. It is easy to hate young Christians, but not if they become an example of the believers in the right things.

6. The conscientious reader of the Bible will not be a stranger to its vital doctrines.

7. One of the most profitable of spiritual exercises is meditation in the revelation found in the Word of God.

8. The reading of the Scriptures is profitable not only to the reader but also to those with whom he has contact.

9. It is a good thing to have a good education, but it is still better to have a thorough acquaintance with the Word of God.

10. No book is so valuable to the Christian when he faces death as the "parchments", i. e., the Word of God.—Selected

11. Paul's Christian conduct had been so clearly shown while he labored among the Philippians that he dared to set himself as an example before them. The things that he had taught them from the Word of God, they were to exemplify before the people in their daily walk. Paul assured the brethren that, if they would do those things, then God would be with them to bless in all their Christian endeavors.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

12. God's Word says, "Think on these things." God does want us to think! He has made us with an intellect. Some of us perhaps have neglected the development of our minds. Others of us have turned in directions which are not pleasing to God. Both of these attitudes are wrong. May God help us really to think, and to direct the channel in which we think, so that we shall meet with His approbation.

13. Then comes a specific exhortation to ministers (I Tim. 4:12-16). Of all those who should be diligent in their study of the Word, there is no question that the minister should have special concern in this direction. Not without reason did Paul write to Timothy, his son in the faith—this son who was ministering in the church of God—that he should "give heed to reading, to exhortation, to teaching" (I Tim. 4:13). This word is further emphasized in verse 15: "Be diligent in these things; give thyself wholly to them."

So important is this instruction that God's Word is, "Take heed to thyself, and to thy teaching. Continue in these things; for in doing this thou shalt save both thyself and them that hear thee" (v. 16).—Monthly.

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Why He Fell

You have heard of the little boy who was asked by his mother why he fell out of bed. "Guess, mamma, it's cause I stay too close to the gettin'-in place." We need to move forward in our Christian life if we want to keep from falling.—H. F. Sayles.

God's Book Works

Did you ever hear a man say: "I was an outcast, a wretched inebriate, a disgrace to my race, and a nuisance to the world, until I began to study mathematics, and learned the multiplication table, but since that time I have been happy as the day is long. I feel like singing all the time; my soul is full of triumph and peace"? Did you ever hear a man ascribe his salvation from intemperance and sin and vice to the multiplication table or the sciences of mathematics or geology? But thousands will tell you: "I was wretched; I was lost; I broke my poor mother's heart; I was ruined, reckless, helpless, homeless, hopeless, until I heard the words of the Bible.

When Sir Walter Scott was on his deathbed, he asked the attendant to read to him. In answer to the question, "From which book?" he said, "There is only one Book now." Let us not wait until our deathbed to get the help and the comfort which the Scriptures provide.—Selected.

LETHA GETS ANOTHER CHANCE

"Come, children," called Mrs. Morrow. "Breakfast is ready."

Ray and Jewel bowed their head while father returned thanks and then began eating their oatmeal, but with scowling faces.

"My, it sure looks cloudy in here this morning," said Mr. Morrow. "You must have lost the spelling bee last night."

"Yes, we did," said Jewel. "And all because of Letha, too. I'm not going even to speak of her today."

"Neither am I," said Ray. "She just lazed around last week and didn't study. I hope she feels good and miserable now."

"My! My!" said Mr. Morrow, "it doesn't seem to me that my son and daughter have very forgiving dispositions this morning. It sounds as if they were harboring ill-will against one of their schoolmates."

Ray and Jewel looked down at their plates and said nothing for a few minutes. Then Ray said,

"I know, Father, but it wasn't right for Letha to cause us to lose that spelling-match. Why shouldn't we be provoked?"

"Because Jesus wants His followers to be forgiving," spoke up their mother. "We cannot be resentful and forgiving at the same time. We are to forgive, just as Jesus does, and when He forgives, He does not go on being provoked and resentful toward us, does He?"

"No," agreed the two children.

After breakfast was over, the Morrrows had family prayer. Ray and Jewel both asked the Lord to help them to be truly forgiving, and to show that spirit at school.

"This isn't going to be so easy," said Ray and he and Jewel hurried along to school a half-hour later. "If we are friendly with Letha the others will be mad at us."

It was at recess that some of the children called Jewel and Ray to them and said,

"None of us are going to have anything to do with Letha any more. Don't choose her on a team or do anything. Will you promise?"

"No, I can't do that," replied Ray.

"Oh, you can't?" sneered one of the boys. "And just why can't you?"

"You'd better," threatened one of the girls, "or we'll have this week's captain leave you out of the spelling team."

"Well," answered Ray, "I'd like to be on the team, of course, but I won't promise to show an unforgiving spirit toward Letha. The Bible teaches us to forgive even our enemies. It displeases God for us to hold hard feelings against anyone. I know Letha did wrong in not studying better, but we'll be doing wrong, too, if we don't forgive her."

"That goes for me, too," said Jewel. "I'll tell her myself that she did wrong, but I'll not be unfriendly, nor talk about her."

"All right," said the leader, "we'll see that you don't get to be on the spelling team." And all week long the boys and girls were unfriendly.

"It doesn't seem fair not to be on the team just because we won't hold a grudge against Letha," said Jewel to Ray.

"I know," said Ray, "but we're pleasing Jesus. He'll look out for us some way, I know."

The day came for the choosing of the spelling teams; but instead of letting the room choose the captains, the teacher said,

"I'm doing something new this week. I'm going to appoint the two with the highest grades to be captains, and they may choose their own teams. These two are Naida and Jewel."

Jewel chose both Roy and Letha on her side. "I'm going to give Letha another chance," she explained to the others at recess. "She promised to work hard if she were allowed to be on a team again."

For several days the two teams drilled, getting ready for the contest. On Friday they lined up to spell.

Finally, after about an hour, the teams were tied. Then the teacher gave out the word "cranary." One after another on both sides missed it. At last Letha was the only one who had not tried to spell it. She spelled it correctly, winning the contest.

Immediately, the children's attitude toward her changed. Now that she was the winner, several of the girls asked her to walk with them as they went home from school, but Letha loyally walked with Jewel as usual.

The Morrrows had a real time of thanksgiving that evening at the family altar.

"God not only let us be on the team again, but He let us be the winning team," said Ray.

"And now all the children have forgiven Letha," said Jewel. "I'm so glad the Lord helped me to give her another chance."

"The thing that pleases me most," said Mrs. Morrow, "is that God helped you to be forgiving first."

"Yes," agreed their father, "that's the kind of forgiveness that pleases God the best."—Gospel Herald.

Religion, you say, has broken down? Well, it may be that your puny prejudices, your preconceived ideas, your home-made theories and selfish philosophies have broken down—and that's a good thing. But that's not religion! There is a great difference between the failure of a conception and the failure of the reality itself.—Peter Marshall.

in the city, had been so great that we had only $400.00 accumulated in our church treasury, from the time we finished paying for our church lot until we were forced to start building. We remembered, however, that God said, "Call unto me and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not" (Jer. 33:3). We remembered also Jno. 15:7, "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." We called upon the Lord for help, knowing that He was able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we might think or ask. Surely He heard our prayers and has done great things for us.

On Sept. 2 the ground-breaking ceremony was held for the beginning of our new building. At the present time the outside walls are up and we are ready to go on with the roof. We could have had the roof on but our funds ran low, causing a waiting period.

Our chance for a rapid growth in membership has been poor. Our pastor lives 40 miles from the church. The expenses of the toll bridges from his home in Portsmouth, Va., to the church in Newport News, keeps one from traveling the distance as often as if things were different. Then, too, we have been holding services in an old section of the city where there was 3 old established churches around us. This gives a newly organized church little chance to grow. The greatest hindrance to the growth of our church though, is that the people of the city know nothing of Free Will Baptists. To them we are just another "sect" of people trying to settle in their city.

There are only about 20 adult members working for our church, but if God be for us, then who can be against us. Some of us are working day and night, trusting in the Lord with all our hearts. We must raise $1500.00 within the next four or five weeks or the work on our building will come to a standstill.

If any of your good Free Will Baptist readers can see your way clear to help us out in our building program, your donation will be greatly appreciated by all. After all, all that we have to give is His. He has entrusted it in our care. Should we not use part of it helping to promote God's work in a Mission Field? We people are giving our all. What will you give to help us?

Yours in His Service,
 Mrs. D. W. Cherry

During an earthquake that occurred a few years since, the inhabitants of a small village were generally very much alarmed, but they were at the same time surprised at the calmness and apparent joy of an old lady whom they all knew. At length one of them, addressing the old lady, said: "Mother, are you not afraid?" "No," said the mother in Israel, "I rejoice to know that I have a God that can shake the world!"

Charles H. Spurgeon, Volume II of Great Pulpit Masters (Revell).

The foundation for all Christian service is a superabundant conviction of the value to God of every human life. Pause on your way and look straight into the most degraded face you meet, and remember that soul is as dear to God as you are. If it can come to feel this, and know it; if it can become part of our very life, then we shall sing when that soul comes home, and count contact with defilement as a precious thing if it means that we are helping that one back to purity and to God.

G. Campbell Morgan, in The Parable of the Father's Heart (Revell).

How Much I Owe

When this passing world is done,
When has sunk yon glowing sun,
When we stand with Christ in Glory,
Looking o'er life's finished story,
Then, Lord, shall I fully know—
Not till then—how much I owe

When I stand before the throne,
Dressed in beauty not my own,
When I see Thee as Thou art,
Love Thee with unsinning heart,
Then, Lord, shall I fully know—
Not till then—how much I owe.

When the praise of heaven I hear,
Loud as thunder to the ear,
Loud as many waters' noise,
Sweet as harp's melodious voice,
Then, Lord, shall I fully know—
Not till then—how much I owe.

Even on earth, as through a glass
Darkly, let Thy glory pass;
Make forgiveness feel so sweet;
Make Thy Spirit's help so meet—
Even on earth, Lord, make me know
Something of how much I owe.

We need only obey. There is a guidance for each of us, and by lowly listening, we shall hear the right word.

Emerson

"TO OBEY IS BETTER THAN SACRIFICE"

(I Samuel 15:22)

When we think of God's love for the human race, we see how God made man in his own likeness. He was made to honor and obey God. We see how he was given a help mate and a place in the beautiful garden. He gave everything to man that he needed. He was in perfect fellowship with the Creator.

He was given everything there for his good and just one tree forbidden, and it was the tree of knowledge. But just like people today they were persuaded to try things which God said, "Thou shalt not do." We have no Bible reference of just what kind of fruit it was, but we believe it was very attractive and the eye was ever looking upon it.

We have a lesson here of just what God expected of man. He wanted man to be obedient to his voice, but we find the serpent, who is always busy and was also in the garden, just like he is in the world today. He was there to tell God's Creatures that God didn't mean what he said, and the tree was good for food, and that they would not die. So, they failed to obey God and took of the tree and to their surprise God proved to be true. They were cast out of the garden. They were dead spiritually and were to die physically later.

God means just what he said. He told Moses if he would obey he would give him the land that flowed with milk and honey, but Moses failed. He told Solomon in a vision that if his people that are called my his Name will humble themselves and pray and obey he would hear from heaven, and forgive their sins and heal their land, but the king let wild living draw him away from God.

We try to excuse ourselves but will God excuse us of our feeble excuses? He kept his word with the prophet that came out of Judah and cried against Jeroboam's altar in Bethel. God said, "Neither eat or drink nor return by the same way that thou comest," and the prophet disobeyed, and was killed by a lion. God's Word will stand (I Kings 13). I and my Father are one (Jon. 10:30). We know that Christ came from God. He came in this world in the flesh. Born of a virgin to live and teach man the way to inherit eternal life. His path was rugged and hard in this world. He was a real man to endure the hardships as he did, yet he was the man of God to do the many things which he did while on earth. He raised the dead, healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, opened deaf ears, and cast out devils.

We say we love him, but will we do his will or will we side track his will for our will on the account of pride or criticism from the serpents of this world?

GRIMSLEY REVIVAL

Sunday night, October 8, marked the close of our revival services, although we are sure it will live on and on in our hearts. Rev. L. B. Manning, our pastor, conducted the revival, the closing of which also marked the close of his seven years service with us.

He has grown very dear to our hearts and we couldn't help but feel a little sad at Brother Manning's leaving. But we are so happy to have Brother C. L. Patrick come to work with us next year and I know we will learn to love him and are looking forward to his coming very much.

We only had one to come accepting Christ for the first time as her personal Saviour, and two came moving their membership to our church. Brother Manning brought some wonderful messages straight from the word of God. His first messages were directed to the church members and I do believe they were drawn closer to the Lord.

Thursday night, Brother Manning gave an old fashioned altar call which resulted in many kneeling and pouring out their hearts to God in love and redemption. I believe our churches need more old fashion altars where people can kneel and get closer to God.

On behalf of the entire church, I wish to thank the many friends who attended our revival. Especially do we thank Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moyer for their help.

At this time we have a building program on at our church and we ask your prayers as we go forward.

Come and visit us at any time.

The Trinity: God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Spirit

The Omnipresence of Christ

Sherman H. Oakes
West Gastonia, N. C.

" . . . Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."—Matthew 28:20.

"I will not leave you comfortless: I will come unto you. Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me; because I live, ye shall live also. At that day (the coming of the Holy Spirit) ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you."—John 14:18-20.

Christ, in his glorified body, is sitting at the right hand of God in heaven, yet he is ever present, and in the heart of every born again person. Christ is God the Son, therefore he is omnipresent everywhere. The idea that one can have Christ dwelling in him, and not the Holy Spirit, will not stand the test in the light of God's holy word. Some teach that Christ and the Holy Spirit are separable. The fact that Stephen, when stoned to death and being full of the Holy Spirit, saw Christ standing at the right hand of God in heaven, is used to teach the separableness of Christ and the Holy Spirit. Note what Paul says in Galatians 4:6, "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, (my) Father."

The above Scripture has reference to the coming of the Holy Spirit at the last Pentecost, hence you see that the Holy Spirit in your heart is Christ in your heart. According to Colossians 1:27, we read: "To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory." Christ is sitting at the right hand of God making intercessions for us, and at the same time he is dwelling in the hearts of every saved person. You can readily see this when Jesus said, "Yet a little while and the world seeth me no more, but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also." He said, "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come unto you." After his death, the world saw him no more, but God sent forth his Spirit of his Son into your hearts. The words of Christ, "I will come unto you," were fulfilled when the Holy Spirit came at Pentecost.

No one argues that the Holy Spirit is not the Spirit of God, and that Stephen was full of God's Spirit. If he could be filled with God's Spirit and God sitting on the throne, he could be filled with the spirit of Christ, and Christ on the throne. The truth is, the Trinity of the Godhead is one, and Christ and God are one in that sense. The Holy Spirit is not separable from the Godhead. When a person believes on Christ as personal Saviour, that person is of God, that is, born of the Holy Spirit. Then it is said that he has partaken of the Godhead. When a person is born of the flesh, he becomes a part of the flesh and blood of his parents. You become God's child when you believe on Christ as your personal Saviour. "He that believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is born of God" (I Jon. 5:1).

Rev. Sherman H. Oakes

Since God is everywhere, it is easy to see how the Father and the Son can be sitting on the throne in heaven, and at the same time be in the hearts of the saved here on earth. It is easy to see that upon receiving the Holy Spirit, one is receiving the Son and the Father also. Christ Jesus, as God incarnate in the flesh, is revealed in the following scripture: "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made . . . He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not . . . And the world was made flesh (Jesus), and dwelt among us . . ." (Jon. 1:1-14).

The sameness, or unity of God, Christ and the Holy Spirit are set forth in Romans 8:8, 9 in these words: "So then, they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now, if any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." The Devil starts, sometimes, a doctrine contrary of the doctrine of Christ, and his servants frequently twist the word, misconstrue it, to suit their own notions. The worldly-minded people misconstrue the scriptures to prop up a doctrine of theirs which is without foundation. But it is the business of God's ministers to guide, by the leadership of the Holy Spirit, in the right way to explain the meaning of the Holy Bible. They are to show up the false doctrines, and to point people to the right teachings of the Bible. Some will be offended, you will say, but let them be offended if they do not want to believe the true doctrines of the Bible. You had better offend everyone rather than to add to or take away from God's Holy Word.

In the Trinity is meant that there are three persons in One: God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit. If you have one dwelling in your heart, you have all three dwelling in you. We cannot fully understand this mystery, but it is true. You are even a trinity, for you are spirit, soul and body (I Thess. 5:23). The word Christ means Messiah—God, and the word Jesus means man—flesh. Therefore, we have God incarnate in the flesh—"The word was flesh, and dwelt among us."

The oneness and omnipresence of the trinity, or Godhead can be understood in a measure by comparing the trinity of God with the trinity of the sun. There is the orb, the light, and the heat—three in one. Physically, you receive life, light and heat from the sun. Without the sun there would be no life on the earth—the cell would not develop; no seed would germinate. You have light, you have life, and you have heat, and all come from the sun, though it is millions of miles away from us. In spite of this fact, you are partaking of its life-giving properties. When you believe on Christ as your sin-bearer, you then receive the Holy Spirit of the Godhead, and are greatly benefitted by his divine power to save, and to give you a new life. "For in him (Christ) dwell all the fulness of the Godhead bodily, and in him ye are complete" (Col. 2:9). " . . . He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the son" (II John 9). Unsaved friends, won't you, in all your sins, simply trust him now as your personal Saviour? He never fails. Christians, won't you see Christ as your all in all, and not forget your resting place in him?

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

PREACHING AT RALEIGH

At the time these lines go to press, if it is the Lord's will, I shall be in an evangelistic meeting in the Free Will Baptist church in Raleigh. I hope that the world has reached our many friends in Wake, Johnson, Durham and Sampson Counties, along with those of Nash County, the place where I was "born twice." I saw daylight first there, I met the light of the world there. It is a precious spot to me, however, I have worked there but little since I entered the ministry, God leading me into other fields.

OUR LONGSUFFERING GOD

"The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (II Peter 3:9). Reader, take good notice of that word "Longsuffering." It shows that God is merciful. It shows that God loves sinners and that His love is so great that he is "Longsuffering." "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3:16). Yes, God is a loving heavenly Father who wills the salvation of sinners. He is ever seeking that which is lost. Jesus said, "I came to seek and to save that which was lost." It does not take a seeking sinner long to find a seeking Saviour. We do not have time to get God in a notion to save us. However, I have heard people pray as if they thought that God was not ready to save.

I think that often the sinner who is praying is not in a notion and tries to think the same way about God. I do not like that song, "I Would Not Be Denied." It sounds as if God wanted to hold the fellow off, and the sinner would not let God go. "I would not be denied." I cannot believe that God ever wanted to deny a repentant sinner the forgiveness of sin and the gift of eternal life. Yet the song says, "I would not be denied." No, my Lord is not a hard bargainer. He loves and is ready before the sinner starts. The Prodigal Son was met by a loving Father, who was ready to disrobe the wayward son of the scent of the "hog pen," get the old dirty filthy shoes off and get some real shoes on his feet, and get the "best robe" to be had and a "ring on his finger." This does not look like the prodigal had to "beg" the Father to take him in. All the boy had to do was to go back and confess his sins. The Father did the rest, so it is with all sinners. We just go to the Lord by the way of Calvary where our sins are blotted out and we become a child of God. Where is the place to sing, "I Would Not Be Denied?" We certainly can sing "Hallelujah! What a Saviour," and that grand old hymn, "Amazing Grace How Sweet the Sound." And "My Hope is Built on Nothing Less, than Jesus' Blood and Righteousness." Yes, these and hundreds of others are appropriate for the sinner saved by Grace. I do not like to think that I have to beg God to save me, and go off saying "I would not be denied." Praise God, he never has wanted to deny a lost sinner the joys of salvation. Jesus said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest, take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30). Jesus said, "He that believeth on the Son hath eternal life: . . ." (John 3:36). It is by faith in Christ that we are saved, not because we prayed much, or because "we would not be denied," but because we accept the Son of God as our personal Saviour. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God; Not of works, lest any man should boast" (Ephesians 2:8, 9). We have nothing to boast about, "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him that is begotten" (I John 5:1). "He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." These who became "sons of God" did not have to beg the Lord to give them their sonship. They only had to receive the Lord Jesus and by faith in Christ they were made sons of God. "What must I do to be saved?" said the jailer at Philippi, and they said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:30, 41). Some one might have told this man today, "Just pray through." But Paul said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Some preachers would have said, "Let us take you to the lake or the river and baptize you and you will be saved." Others would have told him to "learn the catechism and be faithful in go to Mass," and some one thing and some another. But they said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Praise the Lord, it is all of Grace on God's part and all of Grace on our part. "Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God" (I John 5:5).

" . . . The word is nigh thee, even in thy heart:" that is, the word of faith which we preach: "That is thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the Scripture saith Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed" (Romans 10:8-11). "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in the hope of the glory of God" (Rom. 5:1, 2). "But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness."

DO PAUL AND JAMES CONTRADICT EACH OTHER?

James says, "Even so faith if it hath not works is dead, being alone. Yea, a man may say, thou hast faith, and I have works: shew me thy faith without thy works and I will shew thee my faith by my works" (James 2:17, 18). James is saying "faith is seen in action." Paul says, "We are having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed and therefore have I spoken; we also believe and therefore have I spoken" (II Cor. 4:13). So there is no difference. Paul is saying in substance, "My faith makes me speak." Believe and speak Speaking without faith would be an empty vessel. "Faith without speaking would be a dead faith, "Faith being alone is dead." The only way that we can shew to the world that we believe in the Lord Jesus is by our works. "By their fruit, ye shall know them," said our Master. "For as the body without spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also" (James 2:26). So James and Paul do not contradict each other, but rather they agree that faith must be evidenced by works. I preach because I believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. I am His because I believe in Him. I do not purchase my wife a hat to make her my wife, but because she is my wife. I never fed and clothed my children to make them my children, but because they were my children. So I do not work for the Lord Jesus to be saved, but I work with him because I believe in him, and believing on Him, I am saved. Praise God for salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus.

A NOTE OF THANKS

I want to thank every church, every Sunday School, and every individual who has given me any donation for operation on my eyes. I want to thank all of the Woman's auxiliaries that have sent donations to me for this purpose. I do not know how to tell them how I do appreciate these gifts.

I am planning to go to the hospital on October 19 for the operation, and I want the good people to pray for me. I think that I have almost enough money to have the operation performed on both eyes.

FOREIGN MISSION DEPARTMENT NEEDS $3500.00 MONTHLY

By Rev. Raymond Riggs
242 Victor Avenue
Highland Park 3, Michigan

In order for the Foreign Mission Department to effectively and efficiently operate, we must have at least Thirty-Two Hundred Dollars every month. Even this is not a safe margin for us to operate on, but is just about the actual cost of maintaining the budget on the respective fields and the promotional work at home.

We appreciate so much the response that has been given to our emergency need. However, others must be enlisted and rally to our cause. Our present plans and hopes are to bring our Foreign Mission Department out of the red, and on an even keel by January 1, 1950.

Cuban School of Missions to Open

Recent communications from the mission field in Cuba and upon the recommendation of the Foreign Mission Board, the Cuban school of missions expects to open this month. All of us regret very much that school had to be delayed for even one month because of lack of funds. Let's not let it happen again. Surely there are thirty churches in our denomination who will be responsible for the support of one student at a minimum cost of $20.00 per month. There also must be twenty-eight churches in our ranks who would be responsible for the support of one of our full time native workers at a minimum cost of $30.00 per month.

Rev. Raymond Riggs

Send your endowment cards, pledges and all offerings immediately to Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Board Promotional Office, 242 Victor Ave., Highland Park 3, Michigan.

THE HOPE THAT NEVER FAILS

This hope is the object of our Lord and Saviour. It is our "life star" that guided the wise men, and it will never disappear until it brings us into the glorious reality. The hope of eternal life, with God's plan for perfect living, as revealed in the Bible, is a hope that will never fail us. At Christ's second coming the Christian's hope will be fulfilled. It is a hope that is set above all others; the hope that will never be disappointing, the hope that maketh not ashamed. This hope is that hope which draws the Christian's heart forward in faith and confidence.

Faith and hope in religion have reference to the promises of God and these are sure and steadfast. There is no reason for uncertainty here. If God is the promiser upon whose promises our hope rest, then all uncertainty is removed. Life is short, our days are limited, and we need a hope resting on something beyond this world, and God has given us one through the resurrection of our Lord Jesus from the dead.

Our Lord taught, in the plainest language, the reality of a future life. Before leaving his disciples, He assured them of victory through His power, and then said, "I go to prepare a place for you." After promising that he would rise from the dead, He did arise, and thus He broke the power of death for his followers. He made it plain that a world unseen and eternal awaits us hereafter. "Because I live, ye shall live also," was a promise of our Lord. The hope that our Lord Jesus brings into the life of man or woman who yields all to him is an anchor, both sure and steadfast (Hebrews 6:19). It is the hope that purifies the heart and purges out sin.

How many a man has made money his hope, and confidence, and has rejoiced because his hand has gotten much, who found out when too late that he had been building his life upon a foundation of sinking sand. He found out what a poor pillow money makes for a dying head. What a wretched comfort for a troubled conscience! How empty it is, too! "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lost his own soul." The hope of the Hypocrite shall perish (Job 8:13). But blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord and whose hope the Lord is (Jer. 17:7). It is a living hope; it is a hope that will never perish.

A CORRECTION FOR ROSEBUD CHURCH

Rosebud F. W. B. Church, of Wilson Co., North Carolina, and of the Western Conference, has moved to hold services twice a month again, after not holding services on but one Sunday for last year.

Rev. C. J. Harris, of Greenville, N. C., is our pastor for this pastoral year, which began on the second Sunday in October. Prior to Brother Harris coming to Rosebud, our deceased pastor, Rev. J. Frank Parrish, who had been with us for a number of years, held services on second and on fourth Sunday night. Brother Harris was called to fill out the unexpired term, plus one year, which has just ended.

Brother Harris, at the beginning of last year, asked to cut it back to fourth Sunday and Sunday night, which was granted. In calling our pastor for this year the church insisted on two Sundays per month, the second and third Sundays for our services. It was stated in the Baptist paper for October 11 that our services would be on the second and the fourth Sundays, which was an error. We want everyone to know that we will hold services on the second and the third Sundays during this pastoral year. The people in our church and community are to take note of this and to come and worship with us on these Sundays.

FREE GOSPELS AND TESTAMENTS FOR JAPAN

Rev. Victor B. Beattie, Jr., Pastor of the Ocean City, N. J., Baptist Church, left by plan from New York's Idlewild Airport on Columbus Day to spend two months in Japan. He is the most recent in a succession of American pastors and evangelists invited by the Pocket Testament League, of New York, to participate in the League's nation-wide campaign of evangelization and Scripture distribution in Japan.

Alfred A. Kunz, executive director of the League, reports that the Gospel and Testament distribution is ahead of schedule in the enormous task of placing 10 million copies in the hands of the Japanese. To date 5 million Gospels and Testaments have been given out under the agreement with General McArthur laid down in the answer made to his three questions:

1. Will you distribute these Scriptures Free?
2. Will they be printed in Japan, and in Japanese?
3. Do you have a plan to finance this program?

The testimony of all who have had a part in this great campaign is that infinitely more has been accomplished by making these Scripture portions available to the Japanese people without charge than would have been possible if a price had been set. Distribution would have been reduced to a fraction of that which has been achieved, and thousands of souls who have been won through the reading of the Gospels and Testaments would still be groping in darkness and despair.

During the campaign in the northern island of Hokkaido in August and September, half a million Gospels and Testaments were distributed in scores of cities and towns, and over nine thousand decisions were recorded. The governor of the island and the mayors of many of the cities gave the campaign hearty support.

The Pocket Testament League has reprinted the story of the conversion of Captain Mitsuo Fuchida in tract form. It was Capt. Fuchida who commanded the air armada that raided

Pearl Harbor. He is now a member of the League's evangelistic staff in Japan. Copies of the tract may be obtained free from the League's headquarters, 156 Fifth Avenue, N. Y., New York.—Pocket Testament League, N. Y.

"LEST WE FORGET"

Give to Superannuation

Our readers have been very graciously reminded twice through the Baptist, that October is Superannuation month, when all of our churches are under lasting obligation to rally to the loyal support of our old ministers.

If, perchance, some of us have been somewhat remiss in responding to these calls, or reminders, we trust that you will not delay, but take this matter to the Lord in earnest prayer, open your hearts in sympathy and appreciation for these, who have reached the even-tide of life, after many years of faithful service in the ministry of our Lord and Saviour, then open your pocket books and give.

October, 1950, will soon pass into history, so what is to be done for our aged ministers must be done quickly. We may call October the "sunset" of the year, for only two months, then a New Year. It is the harvest time of the year. Men gather their grain and store it, or sell it. They have a fine sense of "taking things easy for awhile," knowing they have enough and to spare. This is also the sunset of life for our aged ministers. The only harvest they will reap here is what we do for them to make life a little more comfortable, except, of course, their joy in knowing that they have "fought a good fight, they have kept the faith," and that a "crown of righteousness" is laid up for them in the Glory World.

"And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake" (1 Thess. 5:12:13).

Make your contributions as generous as possible and send direct to the Chairman-Treasurer, Rev. M. L. Johnson, Sims, N. C., Route 1.

Alice E. Lupton,

A NOBLE UNDERTAKING FOR THE CAUSE OF CHRIST

Hundreds of high school students of the New York metropolitan and Camden-South Jersey areas gathered to renew their pledge to reach their classmates for Christ through the Hi-B. A. Clubs in a series of area wide "Kick-off Rallies" the week of September 11. The first rally was held at Haddonfield, New Jersey, with 200 high school teen-agers in attendance. One of the outstanding results of that first rally came when, among a number of young people accepting Christ as Saviour, a local high school football star gave his heart to the Lord.

The recreational program of the rallies followed a "football pattern," with games, refreshments at half-time, and decorations in harmony with the theme. Members of the staff of High School Evangelism Fellowship drove home graphically the importance of witnessing and the value of the Hi-B. A. Clubs through a skit, "Youth Triumphant."

Kenn and Jane Clark, who will leave this month for Japan to set up a Hi-B. A. Club program in high schools throughout the Land of the Rising Sun, gave their testimonies and told of their plans. The young people responded by pledging their efforts and gifts to help buy a panel truck equipped with public address system for the Clarks.

Rallies were held each night thru the week, covering Bergen County, Essex and Union Counties, in North Jersey, Brooklyn and Westchester. Throughout the week, hundreds of high school youth responded to the invitation given by A. Brandt Reed, National Director of the HSEF, who found that the young people came already geared to the challenge of the Hi-B. A. program.

Unanimous response came to the request for Hi-B. A. members to take coin banks to be filled for the Hi-B. A. Gospel Sound Truck for Japan. Already a number of new high school students have been won through the enthusiasm of members of the Clubs.—High School Evangelism Fellowship, N. Y.

"CHURCH PEACE MISSION"

N. C. EASTERN CONFERENCE HOLDS GOOD SESSION

The "Church Peace Mission" of the United States and Canada is staging conferences to be held in a great many cities of this country and Canada for the purpose of waging peace drives against modern warfare. These conferences will be held in some of the larger cities where large numbers of people can be reached by the sponsors and speakers so that great emphasis might be brought to bear upon the minds and hearts of thousands of influential people for the purpose of developing a greater sentiment against war, and to strengthen and encourage a greater movement for world peace and good will among all peoples.

It is hoped that, from the results of these great conferences in many of the leading cities of the country, interdenominational meetings will result in many metropolitan centers, and that the spirit and good-will for peace, unity and brotherly love may be felt throughout the country. It is hoped that, from these great conferences and their influence upon thousands of people in various sections of the land, city pastors, evangelists, and laymembers of the churches will hold local conferences, group meetings, and stage lecture, or speaking campaigns, encouraging the people to seek peace instead of war, to pray for peace rather than to talk of war and devastation. There should be a concerted action taken in the name of Christ and righteousness by church leaders to take a stand against modern warfare.

The "Church Peace Mission" has named October 15 through December 15 as the period for the holding of the conferences in designated cities of Canada and the United States. During this time some of the leading churchmen, pastors and evangelists, will take part on the program of the conferences, and speak in the interest of Christianity, and against war. They will urge a greater loyalty to Christ, a greater interest in prayer, and a deeper study of the Bible for spiritual guidance, contented hearts, and unity in Christian action for the good of all mankind.

Since the true way to peace and happiness is through the great commandment: "Love thy neighbor as thyself," it behooves Christians everywhere to seek that peace and happiness for the world by standing resolutely together in the light of Christian doctrine for brotherly love and good-will so that the greatly desired peace may come to the world. Where there is Christian unity of purpose and plan for world peace, there will be felt a greater force for world peace and human happiness everywhere. The "Church Peace Mission" seeks to encourage and to further the cause of Christ and righteousness in the world and to extend a greater feeling against war, wherever it may occur.

The annual session of the Eastern North Carolina Conference convened at Antioch Church, Craven County, on October 18 and 19. It was well attended by ministers, delegates and visiting friends from the various churches of the conference. There were quite a number of ministers and friends from churches of the other conferences of the State. It was a great occasion, the hospitality was all that could be expected, and the Christian fellowship was not to be excelled at any church gathering.

There were some splendid messages delivered during the two days of the conference. Reverend Thomas H. Willey, Cuban Missionary, made a most impressive speech on the Cuban Missions, and the school that is progressing so well there for the training of native missionaries for the preaching of the gospel to the unsaved in their own country.

Reverend J. R. Bennett brought the conference sermon in a most appealing manner. He, as is his custom, spoke with power, emphasis, and deliberation, impressing the congregation with the great need of a deeper and greater concern for the cause of righteousness in the world. It was a very good message.

There were made several reports concerning the national organizations, institutions, and programs of work of our denominational enterprises. These reports were given as information to the conference, and the encouragement of the work in general. The conference endorsed on Thursday the proposed N. C. Discipline, which had been prepared by a committee of the North Carolina State Convention. It was presented to the conference by Rev. David Hansley.

Brother C. K. Dunn, Business Manager of the F. W. B. Press, Ayden, North Carolina, made a splendid report of the business of the Press and the success that it is making in all departments of the work. The people expressed great pleasure in knowing that the Press is going forward in a splendid way, and that its publications are constantly increasing in sales as time passes. Mrs. J. C. Moyer gave a glowing report of the State Woman's work in all departments, showing that the women are making gains all the while in these phases of our church work, namely: Missions, Christian education, Superannuation, Orphanage work, Cragmont, and the like. Her report was received with interest by everyone present who heard it.

All in all, it was a good conference, and one that the people attending enjoyed very much. The next session of the Eastern Conference will be held with Deep Run Church, near the village of Deep Run which is twelve miles south of Kinston and on the Kinston-Wilmington Highway.

PROGRAM NORTH CAROLINA AUXILIARY CONVENTION WEEK OF PRAYER NOVEMBER 13-17, 1950

FOREWORD

After prayerful meditation and study, we have made the following arrangement for our Week of Prayer in November, 1950.

Our Watchword for the year, as given in our Year Book, is "Advancing with Christ" ((Ex. 14:15). If there is anything we can do to put this text into greater action than we have yet done, perhaps it can be done through witnessing. Therefore, we have selected our topic for the week with this in mind.

Theme: "Ye are my witnesses."

MONDAY, NOV. 13

(Lesson One)

Thought for the day: "Search the Scriptures."—Jn. 5-39.

Hymn: "In the Service of the King."

Prayer: That God will show us ourselves just as we are, and that as we cry aloud unto Him, we may become true witnesses for Him.

Hymn: "O, for a Thousand Tongues."

Prayer, for your pastor, church and all sick and shut-ins.

Scripture lessons: Isa. 43:10; 63:7; Psalm 66:16.

May We Notice—

A—Special marks of true witnessing for Christ, as it relates to our personal experiences: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my pathway" (Psa. 119:105). "Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against Thee" (Psa. 119:111).

WHO ARE TO BEAR TESTIMONY?

If it is really true that we have a saving knowledge of our Lord and Saviour, then we are required to reveal it by our mode of living, and by the testimony we bear. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy" (Psa. 107:2).

Through the departmental work of our auxiliaries God is calling one and all to yield ourselves as living witnesses for Him. May we recognize the fact that our testimony is an outgrowth of our faith in the Lord Jesus. If we are full of His knowledge and grace, we will be able to say with the apostle in Acts 4:20, "For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard" (II Cor. 4:13), we have further testimony.

"We having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I spoken."

WHERE OUR TESTIMONY IS NEEDED:

A story is told of a tribe in Africa, who had recently been turned from cannibalism, which had been forced upon them by the government. It was commonly reported that they would eat their own dead. Mothers of other tribes would sometimes frighten their children by saying, "If you do not behave, I will give you to the Gios," which was the name of their tribe.

It is said that one day the Missionary looked out and saw quite a number to his door. Each man carried a large basket of rice on his back. They had been traveling for ten days to find a market for their grain. Some one told them of us, he said, and encouraged them to try us before starting out for the coast. So they came. "The Lord was in this change of plan, for He brought them to our door," the missionary said. We quickly arrived at an agreement for the rice, and while doing so, asked, "Do you know about Jesus?" Some of them repeated the name after me, "Jesu, Jesu." They looked blank, but shook their heads, saying "No, we never heard of him." One of them seemed to have a bright idea, and he said, "Oh, maybe he is the chief around here." The Missionary said, "No, He is not chief here—He is God's Son." When he mentioned God's Son, those who had been listening carefully, looked with amazement and exclaimed, "God's Son! Why we did not know that God had a son." "Oh, yes," he was told, "God had only one Son," and "God so loved us that He gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (Jn. 3:16).

The story continues, that the group of thirty six men were so amazed and so interested they sat down to hear the story of Bethlehem and of Calvary for the first time in their lives. After prayer, one of the men arose and said, "White man, we want to thank you for telling us this story. We never heard that God had a Son, and we did not know that He loved us." Then with deep emotion he exclaimed, "White man, why can't some of you come to our country and tell us this story often; then our wives and our children will hear it, too." The missionary testified further, that that appeal has never left him, and that on that day he began praying to the Lord of the Harvest, to send forth laborers into His harvest, that this Tribe should hear the Gospel of His grace. It is said that the answer to this prayer would be amazing to those who can hardly convince themselves that God does really hear and answer even when we go to him in sincere earnestness. Our prayers must be, or should be offered with the spirit of Isaiah, when he said, "Lord, Send me." C. H. Spurgeon once said "The Christian should work as if all depended on him, and pray as if all depended on God. He should be nothing in his own estimation; yet he should be one of those gloriously active nothings of which God makes great use of."

Hymn: Tell me the Old, Old Story."

Rededication of ourselves and our all to Him who died to save us from our sins.

PROGRAM FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 14

(Lesson Two)

Thought for the day: Bearing witness for Christ.—Jn. 15:27.

Hymn: I Love to Tell the Story

Prayer: Praise and Thanksgiving unto the Lord.

Scripture Lesson: John 15:27; Acts 5:20, 21.

Hymn: "Praise Him, Praise Him."

Prayer for your State and District officers, ministers and all church leaders.

CHRIST, THE ONE GREAT WITNESS:

No greater testimony was ever given than that of Jesus, who bore true witness of the Father and of Himself. He said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (Jn. 10:10). In Luke 19:10, He says, "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

CHRIST IS OUR PATTERN

He said, "If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him and will come unto him" (Jn. 14:23). If our lives are hid away in Christ, our will is to do His will. Selfishness, vain glory, indifference, pride, propping ourselves up to be something when we are nothing, and many other things that Satan uses to deceive, decoy and ruin, are standing between some professed Christians and the God of their salvation, hence, their testimony for Christ is nil. If our testimony is to mean anything to a lost world, it must be genuine. The Lord cannot use people for His glory, who do not know him, regardless of what they profess.

What we really are in our hearts, will manifest itself by our outward testimony, both by the way we live and in what we say.

To gain spiritual strength in the Lord, we must exercise the faith we have in Him. Prayer, or daily contact with the Lord will enable us to realize the true spirit of witnessing for Him.

LET THIS MIND BE IN US:

"I want to speak a word of cheer

To wretched folks that sin has crushed,
And shed a sympathizing tear,
Though Satan seeks to keep me hushed.

I mean to breath an earnest prayer
From day to day as moments fly,
And have within my heart a care
For those whom other folks pass by."

COMMISSIONED OF THE LORD

It is our privilege to be "commissioned of the Lord," as witnesses for Him. "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord."

It may be that some pruning will have to take place before we can become effective witnesses. It is said that a little girl was visiting her grandmother for the first time in more than a year. In the meantime her grandmother had found Christ, and the little girl saw such a change in her, she could not understand it. One day while going down the street she noticed that several people stopped to ask some favor of her grandmother, and that they were readily granted. It impressed her so much that she asked, "Grandmother, you had to give up a lot of things when you became a Christian, did you not?" meaning that being a Christian was not only giving and doing, but it consisted in a real change. Her mother replied, "Yes, being a Christian did really cost me a lot. There had to be a "pruning" in my life. When I found Christ, I had to give up my high temper, my determination to have my own way in everything, regardless of others, I had to lay aside the idea that I was some specific person, with the thought that my way, my plans, my will were the only right way. All of these had to go when Christ came into my heart. He taught me that "He is no respecter of persons." He convinced me that I was a new creature in Him, and that I was to walk in newness of life, and become a true witness for Him in all I do or say, and now joy and peace fills my soul.

MAY THIS BE OUR PRAYER:

"Jesus, confirm my heart's desire
To walk, and speak and think for thee;
Still let me guard the holy fire,
And stir up thy gift in me."

Not my will, but thine O Lord—
Help me thy will to know,
That I may follow in thy steps,
Help me thy way to know.

May I bear witness day by day
To thy redeeming grace,
That others may find Christ in me
And seek my Saviour's face.

Hymn: Jesus Calls Us.

Closing prayer, that God will take away all delusions from us, that we may see ourselves as God sees us and enter more fully into His plan for us, through the leadership of the Holy Ghost.

(P. S.—The three succeeding lessons will be published in the following issue of the Baptist paper.—Editor.)

W. N. A. C. WORKING TOGETHER WITH CHRIST THROUGH RECORDS MADE IN 1950

Digest of State and District Reports,
June, 1949—July, 1950

1. Sixteen states reported and sent in W. N. A. C. dues. They are Alabama, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Michigan, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia.

2. States reporting the most new members are Arkansas, California, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

3. Eleven of the sixteen states are co-operating in the W. N. A. C. Financial plan of Work (The Co-Laborer Band Fund). They are Alabama, California, Georgia, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Special recognition is due the following states for their regularity and faithfulness in supporting their National Convention's adopted financial plan of support to the National Boards of our denomination.

Oklahoma, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, Texas, and Virginia. These names appear here in the order of their promptness and faithfulness with their Co-Laborer Offerings.

4. Two states report having carried out the Officers' Training Day as suggested by the W. N. A. C. Plan of Work, and with gratifying results relative to better reports, and note members informed concerning the Auxiliary Plan of Work. (See the 1950 Statistical Report for proof of this statement.)

5. Study Course Records as compared with last year's record reveal the following facts:

1. For the first time every woman in 5 auxiliaries read a mission study book.

2. There were 1123 women who read mission study books.

3. More study courses were held than ever before, but with fewer pupils. Why?

6. There were 225 new Woman's Auxiliary organization reported organized and off to a good start this year, and 16 new G. T. A. organizations were reported organized since January 1, 1950, and 5 Y. P. A. organizations were reported off to a good start. The states in which these organizations were reported are as follows:

Arkansas, California, Georgia, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

7. Some items in which our records show that we have made some progress over last year are as follows:

1. Offerings made to the Co-Laborer Band Fund are the largest since the plan was adopted.

2. Convention dues were nearer to being paid 100% than ever before in the history of W. N. A. C.

3. The training of Auxiliary Officers is gaining recognition, and bearing fruits.

4. The organizing of Free Will Baptist youth into auxiliary groups for missionary education is noticeably on the increase.

5. There were more F. W. B. women enlisted as new members in Woman's Auxiliary organization than in any year in its history.

6. There were fewer inactive members reported. This speaks well for auxiliary organizations and their plan of work. We are sorry to hear of any inactive or suspended from roll even temporarily.

8. The offerings contributed by Free Will Baptist Auxiliary Women to all phases of the National Association's program last year was the best record ever made by them. The total offerings from the 16 co-operating states was $98, 922.67.

9. Being true to our Auxiliary Motto "Laborers together with God," and also true to the purpose of our organization "aid the Church in its evangelistic and missionary work," we used less than one-tenth of this amount for the promotion of our own program. Thus you see that more than nine-tenths of all our offerings as well as our activities went to the support of that Body of which we are an auxiliary both in name and in deeds. Is there any wonder, then, that Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary continues to grow and be blessed of our Lord and Master?

Read Malachi 3:10, 17-18 for an explanation.

Yours sincerely for more and better "Laborers together with God" in 1951.

Mrs. J. E. Frazier, Executive Secy.

ST. MARY'S AUXILIARY HOLDS GOOD MEETING

The Woman's auxiliary of St. Mary's Grove Church, Johnston County, North Carolina, held its regular monthly meeting recently in the home of Mrs. Greta Langdon. There were several members present for this meeting. The program leader gave a very interesting talk on the subject: "Advancing with Christ through Missions in India."

It was decided in our business session that we help the orphanage with a contribution of canned goods, and also to furnish some bed linens. It was a good meeting and everyone seemed to have been greatly interested in doing things for the cause of Christ.

Our next meeting will be held with Mrs. Joel Johnson, Jr. After all of the business matters were attended to, the meeting came to a close with the members present repeating in unison the Lord's Prayer.

MRS. J. C. GRIFFIN HOLDS STUDY COURSES IN SOUTH CAROLINA

At the District Woman's Auxiliary Convention of the South Carolina Conference, which met at the Manning church, September 30, plans were made for two study courses to be given at centrally located churches during the following week by Mrs. J. C. Griffin of New Bern. N. C. Rev. and Mrs. Griffin were visitors at the Convention, being in a revival at the Mt. Elon church, Pamplico.

On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, members of auxiliaries from Sand Hill, Beulah, and High Hill churches, met with the Mt. Elon auxiliary for a study of the Manual and of Stewardship.

On Thursday and Friday of that week, members of the auxiliaries from Bethany, New Town, Salem, and Manning churches, met with the Horse Branch church auxiliary for a Manual study.

At both study courses, the attendance was good, averaging for the entire group over 30 women each day.

Mrs. Griffin presented the Manual in a challenging and practicable way, stressing the spiritual side of each member's duty and the joy that comes through consecrated service. None went away feeling that their place of service was too small to require the best that they could do. The study was an inspiration to all and will prove helpful during the coming years.

Appreciation was expressed by each auxiliary represented for Mrs. Griffin's willing service.

Mrs. Paul Ketteman
Fourth Vice-President
S. C. Woman's Dis. Aux. Conv.

AUXILIARY NEWS

Reports from the various district Auxiliary Conventions that have come in, are very gratifying to those of us who are watching, praying, and serving that the work may go forward, with our Master leading. Our women are becoming more interested, and the Departmental work under the direction of six vice-presidents, who made splendid reports in the Eastern Auxiliary, which met with St. Mary's Church, in New Bern, September 21st, showed reasonable gains in the various departments.

The work of the State Field Worker last year is being felt very keenly in the district conventions. She started out last year, working toward a "Revival of Fitness" among the auxiliary women of the State. She conducted Officers' Training Classes in several districts, taught the Manual of Methods, and visited in many of the local churches where she led class work on various subjects. Mrs. Griffin was re-elected by the State Auxiliary Convention to serve in this capacity during 1950-1951. She hopes to get even better results from her efforts this year than she did last. To do this, she must have your support and co-operation, auxiliary women. It is an opportunity to become better acquainted with the Auxiliary work as a whole, and to understand the duties of the Vice-Presidents, and be able to serve with a greater degree of efficiency as an officer, or better prepared to co-operate as a lay member.

Let us be in earnest prayer daily, for our Field Worker, that the Lord may use her in a greater way in behalf of our work for the Master. Look out for the Week of Prayer programs for November. They will appear real soon, we hope in time for necessary preparation in the local auxiliaries. Unite in prayer at 9 A. M. each day in behalf of Missions, and at 1 P. M. with the Bible College Band, who also prays for our missionaries and for the mission fields. Keep in mind that our Lord wants His children to be obedient and lean on Him for all our needs.

PACKSVILLE F. W. B. AUXILIARY HOLDS MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of Packsville Woman's auxiliary, Packsville, W. Va., was held in the home of Mrs. George Lucas. The meeting was opened by the members present singing the hymn: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and Mrs. Jarvis Combs led in a word of prayer. Mrs. Ralph Steven had charge of the program in which eleven members took part. Following the completion of the program, the business period was entered into by the group.

When the business was over, we had two Biblical games, followed with the serving of refreshments by the hostess. This being over, she opened the gifts that were brought to her by those present.

Our new officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Mesdames R. L. Williams, president; Hubert Bias, first vice-president; George Lucas, second vice-president; Gene Cantley, third vice-president; Ralph Stover, fourth vice-president; Jarvis Combs, fifth vice-president; Garnet O'Mears, secretary; and Mrs. John Scarboro, treasurer.

The Hull Road Free Will Baptist Senior League Class has had Lindley Barrow as group captain for the past months. The class has about twenty members, and hopes to add new members in the coming year. The class has followed the Senior Adult Free Will Baptist League Quarterly, and there has been some study on some important characters in the Bible. There has been special emphasis on more reverence for God's word and God's house.

The class hopes to have more participation by the members and more social activities during the coming year. In Christ the class will go forth to draw others to Him.

OVERCOMING TEMPTATION

(Lesson for November 5)

LESSON: Matthew 4:8-11; John 6:15; Romans 13:12-14; I Corinthians 10:12-13.

GOLDEN TEXT: James 1:12.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

The word "temptation" may have either of two connotations. It may be used simply to speak of testing or trial, or it may be used in the sense of solicitation to evil. Both these ideas are brought together in two verses in James 1. There we read, "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God; for God cannot be tempted with evil, and he himself tempteth no man; but each man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his own lust, and enticed."

That God tempts in the sense of testing or trying is apparent, for we have that very word used in Genesis 22:1 (A. V.). There is a trial of our faith which even though it is proved by fire will resound to the praise and honor and glory of our Lord at His revelation (I Pet. 1:7). On the other hand, God does not tempt any man with evil. Such a temptation comes from our own hearts or is directed toward us by the devil and finds a response in us because of the waywardness and selfishness of our own hearts.—Moody Monthly.

1. The devil's great ambition is, and always has been, to occupy a position of authority where others will worship him.

2. The promises held out by the devil in temptation may be very alluring, but to yield to them would be rebellious against God.

3. When the devil is defeated he may withdraw his presence, but it is only "for a season." He is sure to come back.

4. The only interest some people have in the Lord Jesus is the possible physical benefits they might obtain from Him.

5. Though the darkness of sin surrounds us everywhere in the world, it is possible for us Christians to walk in the light.

6. The "armour of light" not only serves to illumine our pathway, but it also helps to keep attackers away.

7. The negative teachings about the Christian's conduct in the world are just as important as the positive ones.

8. If we make use of the provisions God has made for us in the hour of temptation, we will not want to make provision to fulfill fleshly desires.

9. Temptations can come to us only by Divine permission, and they are always under Divine control.

10. God never intends for us to succumb to temptation, but stands ready to deliver us.—Selected

11. Here are some suggestions that are good in times of great temptations: When tempted to seek revenge for wrong done you, pray for God's guidance. When tempted to cater to the lusts of the flesh, ask yourself what will be the result if you yield. When tempted to seek honor, high position, prestige, etc., think of what Christ said to his disciples who wanted the high seat in the kingdom.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

12. Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. The verses of this topic are taken from Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, and they sound a clear note of warning to those who live under the influence of evil practices. It has been pointed out that "a boastful self-confidence in the presence of evil is a veritable trap-door to sin." This warning should be taken seriously by all people today, and especially by young Christians who are unacquainted with the tactics of Satan in using depraved human beings to carry out his will. We must consider our weakness and unpreparedness against such a formidable foe as Satan, and completely trust Him who said, My grace is sufficient for thee.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Alcoholism a Vice—

There has been too much said in recent years about alcoholism as a disease. No doubt alcoholics and people who make men alcoholics are pleased to regard alcoholism merely as a disease. Such an attitude appears to relieve them of responsibility, at least to a very great extent. The very word seems to take much of the sting out of what has commonly been called plain drunkenness. But calling anything by a new name does not change its character. The Scriptures never talk about alcoholics or alcoholism, but they have a plenty to say about drunkards and drunkenness. And one thing they say is that no drunkard will inherit the kingdom of God. The Bible never says that any paralytic or epileptic or leper or any diseased person is thus barred. Drunkards are invariably classed with other sinners and not with the diseased. See the list in I Cor. 6:9-10. Drunkenness is pictured as a vice, and is described in our lesson in connection with other vices: "Let us conduct ourselves becomingly as in the day, not in reveling and drunkenness, not in debauchery and licentiousness, not in quarreling and jealousy" (Rom. 13:13 RSV). It is primarily because drunkenness is a vice and easily leads to other sins that we as Christians are concerned about it. With the knowledge that we have of the dangers of alcohol, if we are ever tempted to drink our immediate response should be no.—Arnold's Commentary.

Bible Study Class at Hugo F. W. B. Church

The "New Testament Bible Class" will begin on Tuesday night, November 7 at Hugo F. W. B. Church. Please make this announcement in your church and Sunday School. Hull Road Junior Leaguers, Greene County, N. C.

The Hull Road Free Will Baptist Junior League and the Junior Choir comprise of the same members. Mrs. Robert Waters was elected as group captain for the coming year. Mrs. Gilbert Jones is choir director, and Mrs. C. B. Barrow and Miss Glenn Hill are accompanist for the group.

The Junior Choir plays a very important part in their church program. It was thru the efforts of the Junior Choir, several years ago, that a building fund was started to build Sunday School rooms. They gave programs and asked for free will offerings, which went into this fund. The church, seeing the noble efforts of her 'little flock,' rallied and built eight Sunday School rooms and two rest rooms. This choir gives a special program at Christmas and Easter time. The church is on half time, and one Sunday a month the Junior Choir has charge of the special music. Each Sunday night is practice time. After spending part time on the league lesson the rest of the time is devoted to learning new choruses and songs.

It is not all work and no play for this group, they enjoy picnics and swimming parties in the summer, and weiner roasts and Hallow'een and Christmas parties in the winter.

The choir has visions of starting another building fund to build a parsonage, so they may have a pastor to live near enough to work with them, not only on Sundays but all through the week, and to put the church on full time. "And a little child shall lead them."

Helen Hill, Carol Wade, Flora Turnage, Joan Heath, Jimmy Heath, Michael Jones, Mrs. Gilbert Jones, Kieter McCoy, and Carol Hill.

Second row, left to right:

Bertie Ann Hill, Quincy Harrison, Bobby Waters, Alma Hill, Phyllis White, Brenda Barrow, Peggy Wooten, and Carol Barrow.

First row, left to right:

Aubrey Hart, Hugh Hill, Suellen Hart, Preston Waters, Marsha Barrow, Cora Harrison, and Sandra Ginn.

GUM SWAMP CHURCH EXPERIENCES A GREAT REVIVAL

On the fourth Sunday night in September, the Rev. F. A. Rivenbark of Durham, North Carolina, began a series of revival services which continued for two weeks. We, the members of the church, and the visitors and friends who attended the services really enjoyed the spiritual messages which Brother Rivenbark delivered. We had with us each night our pastor, Rev. D. W. Alexander, and we did appreciate his presence very much.

Mr. Griffin, from Greenville, North Carolina, directed our song service, and we greatly appreciated his services. The Junior Choir opened the service each night with splendid singing. We are hoping to have Brother Griffin to be with us again in our services in the near future.

The Lord blessed us in many ways during the meeting. There were thirty-four confessions of faith in Christ as their personal Saviour. There were several who took membership with us from other churches. We are praying that others will give their hearts to God before it shall be too late. We are praying that we may be able to have Brother Rivenbark with us again sometime in the future to hold for us another meeting.

We are asking that the Christian people pray for the unsaved in our community.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

CHRIST AND IAN

Ian was a blue-eyed, rosy-cheeked little laddie who lived in a distant missionary home in China. From his name I think he must have been of Scottish birth. Being far from all other white children his earliest education fell to his parents who taught him of the love of God in Christ Jesus. One day little Ian saw a magazine on which in big letters was the word "Christian." He spelled it out aloud, "C-H-R-I-S-T, Christ; I-A-N, Ian." His mother at once pointed out that this was a true description of a "Christian"—Christ and Ian. If he went through life with Christ first, Ian could not fail to be a bright Christian, and would prove the keeping power of his great Master in all circumstances. Thus he was helped to realize God's rightful place in a Christian's life, and that no life without Christ could be Christian.

Ian never forgot this, and when later he went to the China Inland Mission School at Chefoo, China, it was more deeply impressed upon him. When he left school and went to Sydney, Australia, to work in a bank, he maintained this stand. His companions knew that he was a Christian, and that his life matched his profession—it was Christ and Ian.

Then came the war. Ian became one of the R. A. A. F., training as a navigator. When he took his oath of allegiance he turned to Psalm 91, and placed his fingers on verse 1: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." In this way he claimed God's help in his new path, again realizing it must be—Christ and Ian. One of his friends hearing he was joining the Forces said that Ian would be "all right" and be able to withstand the snares and temptations which would surround him. Immediately came the reply alone. I must have Christ as my strength, or I shall fail." Time proved that with Christ and Ian there was victory, as his companions testified.

He was sent to England and from there a letter speaks of his leading the hour for service men one Sunday morning, and singing the chorus:

"Heart-aches, take them all to Jesus;
He will take your heart-aches all away."

He spoke to the men of the disciples' being in the boat and of the stormy waves until Jesus came into the little ship. Then the storm ceased and all was calm. Ian told them how he had taken Christ into the boat, and how safe life is through all its storms when Christ is with us—for him it was Christ and Ian. It was arranged that he was to take part in the service hour on the following Sunday, but that very day Ian was called higher. He lost his life in an air crash in Rutland, England. That bright promising young life which had brought cheer and blessing to so many was suddenly cut off. Had God kept His word about those who "dwell in the secret place of the most High"? Yes! Ian had been abiding under the shadow of the Almighty all through the spiritual dangers which press so sorely on the soul, and now he is dwelling in wonderful gladness in the presence of the Lord he loved—Christ and Ian together up there. He has gone from his earthly home, just a little ahead of his loved ones, and some day we shall all be forever with the Lord.

Ian's partners who wrote thus of their son, have added something for you, which their loss, indeed, their double loss, for ten days after another equally promising son, Gordon, was lost over the North Atlantic—makes more affecting. This is their question: "Have you taken Christ into your life? He alone can save from the power of sin. Without Christ life is meaningless. With Christ first, life is radiant.

Christ and Ian means "Christian."

Christ and Gordon means the same. Will you put it to the test and prove it true of Christ and you?—The S. S. Visitor.

THE LAND WE LOVE THE MOST

Lord, while for all mankind we pray,
Of every clime and coast,
O hear us for our native land—
The land we love the most.

O guard our shores from ev'ry foe,
With peace our borders bless,
Our cities with prosperity,
Our fields with plenteousness.

Unite us in the sacred love
Of knowledge, truth, and Thee;
And let our hills and valleys shout
The songs of liberty.

"WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED!"

A. J. Lambert
Brilliant Boston, Ala.
Box 148

As you know this question was asked by the Philippian jailer (Acts 16:30), and this is the only record that this question was ever asked by any one in the Scriptures. The answer given to him by the great Apostle Paul still is the only true answer to this question: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved and thy house." Had Paul told him to be baptized in water he would have been stating that man had to do some kind of works in order to receive salvation. But Paul knew what he was doing, for he said in Ephesians 2:8, 9, "For by grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God. Not of works, lest any man should boast."

Salvation is a gift from God to any one who will believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. First John 5:1 says, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." The Philippian jailer believed, then works followed as evidence of his faith, for he took Paul and Silas out of the prison, and they went with him into the house, the same hour of that night. After Paul and Silas had preached the Word of the Lord unto all who were in his house, they also believed on Jesus Christ as the Saviour of men. The jailer and all his household were baptized straightway, not in order to be saved, but as evidence of faith in Christ.

Note the words, "and is by grace," Then is it not the grace of God who gives this salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus? Otherwise grace would be of no avail. But if salvation be of works then there would be no significance of grace. We read in Romans 11:6, "It is the grace of God that brings salvation," Titus 2:11, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men." Therefore, it is clearly shown that salvation cometh "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to God's mercy he saved us by the washing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost" (Titus 3:5).

There is nothing by works that man can do to be saved. Works of righteousness will always follow true salvation, as the only evidence that one is saved.

JESUS WANTS TO SAVE YOU

You know you are lost,
Bound for an eternal hell—
The Saviour died on the cross
That with your soul all may be well.

Won't you trust him this hour?
For some day it will be too late.
Yes, Jesus has all the power.
For you he may close the gate.

Come and confess every sin,
Ask him now to forgive you.
Promise a new life you will begin
Then he will help you through.

Jesus is so loving and so kind,
That he died to save everyone.
No other Saviour can you find,
So why don't you now come?

Oh let him come into your life
While he is pleading with out-stretched hands.
He will remove all your sins and strife
If you will only keep his command.

He can make your pathway bright
And help you along life's way,
For to you he will be a shining light
That will lead you every day!

WHAT HE LEFT

In Memory of a Faithful Deacon

Departing from this world on July 16, 1950, was the soul of a faithful servant of the Lord. Brother Calvin Baggette, age 79, was a member of Liberty Free Will Baptist Church, Manning, South Carolina.

His departure, a sorrow it was seen
But it made heaven glad
For, a song they sang,
"He's one of God's whom Christ redeemed."

He left behind a pathway
Exhibiting signs of service for his Saviour—
King
A trail both wide and plain that leads to the Home of the Lord where he sought to exalt
His Holy Name.

His was a testimony of a friend
Who sticketh closer than a brother
His was an influence for Jesus, and
A challenge to both sinner and friend,

Silence My Heart

Silence my heart, Lord Jesus,
Bid the tumult within be still.
Quiet the raging billows,
And a holy hush instill.

I would hear Thy voice, oh Jesus;
But the tempest's ceaseless roar
Doth oft drown out the message
That my soul so longeth for.

Silence my heart, Lord Jesus,
That I may hear Thy voice,
Yea, even Thy faintest whisper,
And in Thy great love rejoice.

May Thy all pervading presence
My waiting soul infill,
Till my every thought is captive
Into Thy blest holy will.

Grant me Thy peace, oh Jesus,
That nothing can molest;
So shall my heart be silenced,
So shall my spirit rest.

ARE THE HEATHEN LOST?

Louis H. Moulton
Glennville, Georgia

This is a question that has been a source of disturbance for many of God's children and the answer can only come by searching the Scriptures, as they are the only authority that we have on this subject. The Bible teaches very emphatically that salvation is through the Lord Jesus Christ, and through Him alone . . . else Christ died in vain.

Acts 4:12, "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under Heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." In Mark's record of the great commission in Mark 16:16, we read, "He that believeth not shall be damned." I Corinthians 3:11, "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." John 14:6, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life; NO MAN cometh unto the Father but by me." I Timothy 2:5, 6, "For there is one God and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for us all, to be testified in due time." I John 5:11, 12, "And this is the record that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his son. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." There are many other scriptures that could be given but the Bible does plainly teach that all are lost, that those who have never heard the gospel shall be lost, and it is only by the grace of God that any are saved. Romans 3:23 "... all have sinned and come short of the glory of God," and Romans 3:10 "There is none righteous, no, not one."

Everyone of us would like to feel that someday, somehow, God would eventually save those that have never heard the Gospel, but God's Word is truth and we cannot inject human reasonings or human feelings in this matter. Romans 2:12, "For as many as sinned without the law, those shall also perish without the law." The context here teaches that none have ever lived up to the light that is in him apart from the revelation of God through his word. If we examine the first chapter of Romans, verses 16-32, we will see the way God looks on the heathen world, lost . . . and with out excuse. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith. For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; Because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath shewed it unto them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; So that they are without excuse: Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but because vain in their imaginations and their foolish hearts were darkened."

Even in the darkest parts of the earth, God has revealed himself to man and man has turned from God and the light and rejected it. Romans 1:25, "Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever." There is no place in the scriptures where we have any evidence of salvation apart from Jesus Christ. Romans 10:13, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," but verses 14 and 15, "How shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things."

I shall never understand why, in spite of this clear, simple teaching of the Bible regarding the necessity of being born again, many professing Christians in addition to the unsaved do not definitely accept the Lord Jesus Christ. John 3:3, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." These are the words of Christ, Himself.

If a man must be born again and accept Christ to get to heaven, then I say to every Free Will Baptist, let's accept God's challenge and command in Matthew 28:19 where Jesus said, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations," or "disciple all nations." If there is another way that the heathen can be saved aside from the gospel of Christ, why go to them? Why waste our money and our time and our lives?

The logic of the missionary appeal is contained in the words of Francis Shunk Downs, "The church of every generation is commissioned by Christ to evangelize the world in its generation. To evangelize the world is to present Christ as the only Saviour and divine Lord that every human will have a fair opportunity to intelligently accept or reject Him."

Perhaps it may be news to Free Will Baptists that in mission lands the heathen population is still increasing far faster than the Christian population, that if 1000 missionaries were today to land in India, each one could have a parish all his own of 550 villages, that Arabia with a population of seven million, has less than 50 openly confessed Christians, that the heart of South America is "the greatest stretch of unevangelized territory in the world," that here at our back door, so to speak, Latin America with a population of 125 million, there are still 60 million unevangelized with only one missionary to every 40 thousand population.

While vast continents still lie shrouded in midnight darkness and hundreds of millions still suffer the horrors of heathenism, are we as F. W. Baptists going to sit or stand by

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

THE NEED FOR PREACHERS

Almost everywhere I go I find that there is a shortage in ministers. That is not only true with the Free Will Baptist, but also many other Protestant bodies are suffering because a lack of qualified ministers to lead the different congregations. But in our church the need is great. Churches are having to resort to the use of licensed ministers to fill the pulpit in order to have service in the ministerial leadership. Of course, these licensed ministers cannot function as ordained ministers, but they can help, providing they are qualified to be a real "licensed minister."

There are several reasons that there is a shortage in ministers. I shall not try to give them all, but just a few that we may think of that is facing us as a denomination.

I. For several years we had no college to train young men for pastoral duties. Almost any well qualified layman, who has been saved, and is led by the Holy Spirit can preach. I have heard some good biblical messages by men who would not even consider being licensed, let alone being ordained. But now we have a Four Year Accredited College. Our Bible College in Nashville, Tenn., is offering every one who wants to qualify and make good as a leader. And may I say right here, any person who is not willing to lay everything on the ALTAR and get all the knowledge possible to help him to be well qualified for real Christian leadership is making a grave mistake to ask for license to preach to say nothing of being ordained to pastoral duties. The time has been that a man could beat along and preach once a month and keep a church living, but that time is past. Every congregation is made up of high school and college graduates, in a large measure.

Not for anything in the world would I discredit the conscientious man who desires to preach the Gospel, and who feels that God has called him. But I certainly cannot agree that God is pleased with the man who thinks that he can jump right into the pulpit, and that God will give him EDUCATION so that he can intelligently, and rightly divide the word. God will never pour language down a man's throat, or fill his mouth with words. That is not the general rule with God. Of course, God has made exceptions when it was necessary for a message to get across for his glory. But Christ taught us to "search the Scriptures," and Paul said "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman not ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." God places upon those whom he has called the responsibility of getting knowledge. God has blessed us with a college where our young people can get biblical training, so as to be prepared for pastoral and whole-time Christian service. The churches are desiring such leadership and therefore they are beginning to hold off from employing those who do not have the training. Thus we have a number of preachers without any pastoral work, and churches without pastors.

2. A great number of young people who really desire to go into full-time Christian service are hesitating because they realize that the financial support of those who labour as Christian leaders, pastors included, is so meager that they are not willing to make the sacrifice. A leading pastor, whom I happen to know and who could take his carpenter tools, and go out and make from ten to fifteen dollars per day, is doing whole-time pastoral and evangelistic work, and is getting an average of six or seven dollars per day, and has to do a lot of visiting of the sick and burying the dead and other things that the minister is called to do, and keep up an automobile to do his pastoral work. Since this is true, a great number of young people are entering other callings instead of the ministry. Some of you may say, "Won't God look out for the man he calls? Yes, but Paul said, "How can they hear without a preacher? and how can he preach, except he be sent?"

No church should be satisfied to pay their pastor less than an average salary made by the majority of the membership. If the head of the family makes $10.00 per day then the pastor ought to get $10.00 per day. I heard a man who is doing carpentry say just a few days back that he was making $15.00 per day doing work for the government. His pastor was getting less than $5.00 per day. Jesus said, the "servant is worthy of his hire," and Paul said, "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel" (I Cor. 9:14).

No man can do manual labour four or five days to the week and do the work of pastoring and evangelizing. The ministry is a whole-time job. No man can serve two masters. We cannot divide our time between the ministry and fill the full-time service of God.

3. I seldom hear any one pray: "Father send us labourers into the field." We are not praying for God to call our sons and daughters, and those of our neighbors. But, as said before, many are being called and they "play Jonah," due to the hardships of the ministry. I heard the wife of a good Methodist minister say once, "I don't want my sons to be preachers. The road is too hard." This good woman knew about the sacrifice. I know of wives in other churches, or denominations that have expressed similar views, in action if not in words. Together with the complacency of parents and the discouragement in other things, even though God does call, it is hard to decide to "suffer with God's people." Yet God can make the urge strong enough to compel them as He did with Paul, for he said, "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel." From experience, I know that God can make a man miserable whom He has called, and then make him happy when he says, "Yes" to God. Amen.

4. Often older ministers obstruct the way to progress for the younger ministers, for fear that the young fellow might get ahead, and this causes younger ministers to seek for other fields in which to work, rather than with the church in which they were raised. That discouragement given by those who ought to teach differently makes a shortage. This ought not to be. Every experienced minister should encourage every young minister and every one that aspires to the ministry, and thereby help to keep those who have started in the work.

5. Then there are those who get too BIG for the church. They sum it up like this: "It is a little denomination. It is a poor church. It does not have so many advantages as some others, so I will seek for richer fields." Since I began preaching, I have witnessed several who became dissatisfied with the church, and went to stronger denominations. Several of them I have kept in touch with, and I have found that in general they had not reached what they wanted when they "jumped the fence" and went over in the other pasture. Some of them have miserably failed. Some of them have gone down with regrets.

LET US SEEK BETTER THINGS

May we get right down to real business with God and His work, as given to us as Free Will Baptists. Let us support our Bible College, our mission work, support the ministers, and prepare ministers to take the places of those who are wearing out themselves to preach the gospel. In fact, let us quit ROBBING GOD and live up to the Bible, and the Treatise of the Faith and practices of F. W. B. denomination, and let the world and the devil know that we are on the Solid Foundation, and, in spite of obstacles, we are going on to the glory of God.

I have learned that we are not to find solace in our own strength; we must seek it in God's omnipotence. Fortitude is good, but fortitude itself must be shaken under us to teach us how weak we are.—Charlotte Branch

URGENT—

Funds for Missions Needed

(Copy of Letter Sent to Welch)

October 19, 1950

Rev. J. L. Welch
Chairman, General Board
3609 Richland Ave.
Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Brother Welch:

I am sure you have been informed that there is a vacancy of two men on the Foreign Mission Board as a result of the resignations of Brothers Davis and Rogers. I think it becomes your duty to take the initiative in seeing that these vacancies are supplied. At least I would like for you to notify the Executive Committee of the National Association and take what ever steps you deem necessary. Of course, if you think it best for us to go along with just three men until the next annual sitting of the National Association, we shall do our best to function.

As of this date (Oct. 19th), the allocations for Cuba have not been paid for September nor October. The allocations for India have not been paid for August, September or October. This means that in reality our mission fund is (7,000.00) in arrears. Then, too, the current expenses will keep mounting as the November payments will be due soon. I trust you will help to relay this information to all our people, and do what you can to enlist them to share the burden at this time.

I didn't quite realize the tremendous weight of this thing until I assume the responsibility as Promotional Secretary and Treasurer. I shall actually set my books up as of November 1st, 1950. Brother Davis is supplying me with the information that enables me to disclose these facts. I see nothing else to do but to inform our people as a whole of the existing conditions. We have put our hand to the plow, and we cannot afford to turn back. This job is too big for one man, it is also too big for one board, it becomes the task and responsibility of every Free Will Baptist pastor, evangelist, teacher and layman to rally to our support at this time. Please do what you can as soon as you can and send all monies to the Foreign Mission Board, 242 Victor Ave., Highland Park 3, Michigan.

Respectfully yours,

Rev. Raymond Riggs
Promotional Secy.
and Treasurer

THIS SHOULD STARTLE YOU

C. F. Bowen, Pastor.
East Nashville Church, Nashville, Tenn.

Let me quote from a recent letter I received from a correspondent in Cuba, Illinois: "I have seen your address in Western Voice and am writing you. There is a Free Will Baptist Church about one mile from my home and there has been much discussion about whether the Free Will Baptists still exist as a denomination."

The writer continues by telling something about her church, how they have spent $4,000 last year for improvements, giving its age as 92 years, and showing the dire need for pastors in that area.

This amazing lack of knowledge on the part of these Free Will Baptists is not necessarily an indictment on Illinois Free Will Baptists, but more appropriately the blame lies with all of us. Whoever is responsible, one fact remains: as a denomination we have been tragically derelict in the field of publicity, advertising, and promotion. Other groups, far smaller than ours, are well known all over the country. We have boasted of the great, peculiar blessings God has endowed us with, and at the same time have either been ashamed to tell the world about it or have been terribly negligent. Indubitably the latter is the case.

Our mediums of communication are sadly inadequate. Our church papers reach so few and tell so little when they reach them. Our literature only partially satisfies the need for information, much of it syndicated or borrowed from other religious periodicals having no bearing on our denomination and meaning little to us. And while the great medium of radio is being used locally in many places it is not exploited nationally. Thousands of communities in these United States have no Free Will Baptist churches, or have ever heard of one. And for years our home mission boards have merely talked and resolute and wished and talked some more. Only just recently have we seen a small flurry of interest among them, prompted by, in all probability, a sheer demand from our people for some sort of action, and reflected the injection of new enthusiasm brought by some who really care.

About ten young people in our Bible college are preparing for the foreign mission fields and have no assurance that when they are ready we will be ready for them. Salaries of our present missionaries have been inexcusably behind not for weeks, but in some cases months. Our mission school in Cuba, reputed to be the best in that area, has been forced to postpone its opening more than six months for lack of funds and its personnel accumulating debts. Our missionaries have been reduced to the position of beggars—begging 300,000 Free Will Baptists, as well-to-do as any other people, for merely a chance to represent them in carrying the gospel to a sin-sick world; begging for less than a pitiable per capita of twenty-five cents! and now they must not only wait for us to get converted, but must get out and hustle for themselves! Which may be all right if they had the time. But millions die daily while we dally and dilly the time away and allow the greatest business on the face of the earth to suffer.

Dim picture? It tells only a fraction of the story. There is the chapter that tells of some of our states with more than 10,000 Free Will Baptists giving less than $1,000 to missions annually. It tells of churches with memberships over 500 giving less than $50 to missions annually. It tells of other churches with still more members giving nothing to missions, and many of them so void of the understanding of God's Word as to boastfully declare they do not believe in missions! What an accounting God is going to have some day.

There are other chapters in this unpopular edition, but you know them already. The question is, What will you do about it? May God in His heaven move on the hearts of our great people and arouse us to a fighting spirit in Christ. May God give us men and women and young people who will consecrate themselves to this way of Christian living and accept the challenges so obvious before them.

When a beautiful soul harmonizes with a beautiful form, and the two are cast in one mould, that will be the fairest of sights to him who has the eye to contemplate the vision.—Plato

Evangelicals and the Social Gospel

George A. Turner

Evangelicals, as a whole, have always been interested in the social implications of the Gospel. That is, they have been quick to recognize that the first commandment, to love God, is followed closely by the second, to love one's neighbor; they have agreed with John that he who loves God should love his brother also.

In coming to this position they have been influenced by their Spirit-enlightened consciousness and by the Spirit-inspired Word of God. They have found this two-fold emphasis, for example, in the peasant-prophet Amos in the eighth century before Christ. No one was more emphatic in stressing man's relationship to Jehovah—"prepare to meet thy God, O Israel" (Amos 4:12) and no one was more incisive in pointing out God's intolerance of "devotion" devoid of justice. Bible readers have been impressed by the great prophet of the exile as he described Jehovah's determination to champion the cause of the under-privileged against the strong "sheep" who took advantage of them (Ezek. 34).

Evangelicals have noticed also that Jesus' parable of the Good Samaritan defines "neighbor" as anyone in need regardless of race or creed; that the rich man went to hell, not so much for his action as inaction—he lacked compassion for Lazarus. The reflective reader of Acts may even have noticed that Peter and John, after Pentecost, while regular attendants at the temple services, did not content themselves with a dole to a beggar, but fastened their eyes upon him, and, in the name of Jesus, "raised him up." While evangelicals, for the most part, have followed the three-fold pattern of Jesus' ministry—healing, casting out demons, and preaching, too often they have contented themselves with preaching only.

The Gospel has never been without its implications for the sins of society as well as its application to the sins of the individual. In Paul's day Christianity made its greatest numerical gains among the poor, included the slaves. This was true even in cosmopolitan Corinth (I Cor. 1:26-28). Consequently, the apostles had to urge upon their converts the Christian duty of submission to secular authority (Rom. 13:1; I Pet. 2:18). In Luther's day the realization of the worth of the individual, that resulted from the evangelical doctrines of the Reformation, may well have been one of the contributing factors of the Peasants' Revolt. No one was more concerned with the matter of the individual's relation to God than was George Fox; no one was more sensitive to the cries of the oppressed, or more critical of the religionists who ignored them, than this same lonely man.

Modern critics of Wesley and the Evangelical Revival of the eighteenth century complain unjustly that the early Methodists spent so much time "plucking brands from the burning" that they had no time to put out the fire. But, the Holy Club at Oxford not only fasted, prayed, and read their Bibles in Greek and Hebrew, they also visited the prisons. Wesley's last letter (to Wilberforce) was in support of the abolition of slavery. The Evangelicals did far more for the unchurched masses than did "liberal" elements in the Anglican Church.

Students of American church history point out that in the second "Great Awakening," the revival of 1800 had several far-reaching effects; it augmented the numerical strength of the churches, it fostered the formation of missionary societies, it inaugurated the ecumenical movement by the formation of interdenominational agencies for the propagation of the Gospel, and resulted in the formation of interdenominational organizations for reforms by social action. The evangelical elements in the churches became to an increasing degree the conscience of the nation. Among the national evils directly attacked by the evangelicals was lynching. As the leaven of Christianity led to the outlawing of gladiatorial combats in the Roman Empire so now an enlightened Christian conscience, spearheaded by Lyman Beecher's sermon against duelling, led to abolition of this practice. Alcoholism was condemned officially by the Presbyterians and Congregationalists in 1811.

In 1826 the organization of the American Society for the Promotion of Temperance marked the first time in history that Christians organized specifically to improve the beverage habits of a nation. Later, the Temperance Movement became the Prohibition Movement and sought, by directly influencing legislative action, to have written into law the Christian attitude toward intoxicants. Among the later crusaders for social action none was more influential than an evangelist, Wm. A. Sunday. While a century ago such activity was a new thing, few evangelists will now maintain that it was or is ill advised.

During the same nineteenth century, the "greatest century" in Christian history, another movement ran parallel to those just described. Biblical criticism, especially in Germany, and the dogma of evolution, especially in England, worked slowly, silently, and devastating in the American churches. Many traditionally evangelical denominations welcomed the new "liberalism" and compensated for their loss of orthodox theology by retaining and emphasizing this social application of the Gospel. In proportion as they abandoned the grand central themes of their Protestant heritage they came to emphasize the secondary aspects of Christianity, borne along doubtless by the tide of public opinion which increasingly endorsed "the social conscience." The carry-over from an evangelical heritage, together with a humanistic ideology, often results in the "social gospel" being promulgated with evangelistic fervor. Both history and philosophy agree, however, that humanism alone lacks adequate motivation for a sustained effort.

Meanwhile, the "fundamentalists" in correctly insisting on the basic importance of the individual's relation to God grew suspicious of the "modernists" emphasis on the relationship of the Christian to his neighbor. To agree with the liberals on this point

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Who is responsible if your church is not what you think it should be? In the first place, you are responsible, in part, for the poor condition of your church. Other members are also responsible for your church's lack of zeal and progressiveness. Probably, your pastor is partially responsible for the poor showing which your church is making. Certainly, the responsibility rests with those who constitute your church, for it will go no farther nor do any more for the cause of Christ in the world than what the church people choose to make it do.

Two things are essential: a good leadership, and a good following. If you cannot lead, or be a member of the group that can lead, you can at least be a cheerful follower, and co-operate with that group of the church members. Few military leaders can plan military strategy for quick and sure success in the conflict by the soldiers who are trained to work together. It is also true in church work that efficient church leaders must have loyal followers to help carry out the program of the church. Every phase of the work, from the least to the greatest, can and will become a success if you will share your responsibility in carrying forward the work. And this applies to each member of the church who is capable of rendering any service for the cause of Christ.

There are too many in the average church who wait for the rest of the members to do what is done in a material or a progressive way. Which group do you find yourself standing with, the producers of good results, or the indifferent and complainers? Gideon won the great battle against the enemy with three hundred strong and active men; men who were ready for any challenge. Are you one of the three hundred strong and active men of your church? Are you doing your part to share the responsibility which the church has for the cause of righteousness? God holds you responsible for your share of the load. What is your attitude toward Missions, Christian education, Superannuation, Orphanage support, and other causes of the church?

Each church needs a revival of interest in its program. Inactive members need to be aroused to their duty concerning the work and success of the church. God is holding negligent church members responsible for their inactivity, and non-support of their church, and his cause of Christianity in the world. On the other hand, he promises happiness and a great reward unto everyone who is active and greatly concerned about the welfare of the Church. If your church is failing, you are partly responsible for its failures. Ponder this thought.

OUR WAY IS NOT ALWAYS GOD'S WAY

By Dorothy N. Harris

Jacksonville, Florida

Have you ever been so over-anxious in working for the Lord—having your heart so set on doing a certain thing until you failed to be submissive and let God have His own way in your own life? I believe if we would pass our experiences on to others they would serve as road signs to keep them on the right road, and by so doing remove rocks over which they might stumble.

We must be where God desires. If we are where God wants us to be, He will see to the supply of our need. As long as God says stay here, or there, be sure that He is pledged to provide for us. "They shall mount up with wings as eagles" (Isaiah 40:31). This promise is to be ours if we wait upon the Lord. We shall be able to soar above disappointments—no matter how great—if we wait for God to lead us. To do this we must be fully surrendered to Him—realizing that His way and not ours is the right way.

Have you planned a week's work for the Lord in your church, which you felt was very essential to His cause, and at the week's end none of it accomplished? Then did you feel resentment because Christians and non-Christians had drawn so heavily on your time, asking for a comforting word, or help on a problem in their lives? Take time out for this—God has sent it your way. Talk to them, pray for them and with them. There is a message in God's Word for each grieved or disturbed heart—pass it on. If we are talking and working in the name of Jesus, He understands. We may never be a great teacher, or leader, nor in the place we feel (not God) we could be used to greater advantage, but Jesus said "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matt. 25:40).

God has a plan for each of us, and if we come humbly to Him, asking Him to use us, putting aside our own ways and desires, we will be ready then for His Service. It is then, and not before, we can claim and receive His wonderful promises. The reason for failure in work Christians try to do for the Lord is it was not God's way to begin with. Let's be sure that we are doing what pleases God, and that we are in the center of His Will.

More bashfulness without merit is awkward: and merit without modesty insolent. But modest merit has a double claim to acceptance.—Hughes

GOD GIVETH THE VICTORY

"Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it."

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all our Brothers and Sisters in Christ for the marvelous way in which they are responding to our appeal in the October 4th issue of the Free Will Baptist paper.

It is only through the goodness of God and His people that we will be able to put over this worthy project.

Little things count. David chose five little stones when he went out to meet Goliath and God took care of the big fellow.

So if we are careful about the little things, God will take care of the big things. Now, a dollar isn't much in this day of inflation, you cannot buy much of anything with a dollar now days, but if you can scrape together enough dollars you can buy most anything even a new automobile. And so it is with building a new church. If enough people will give one dollar each the need will be adequately met.

Now, my good Brothers and Sisters, you just ask God what you should do about this work at San Diego, Calif., and mind Him, for unless God is in it, we don't want any part of it. "Except the Lord build the

TOPIC—THE VISION OF TESTIMONY:

A—The voice of the Lord to Paul, Acts 18:9, "Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace." Had it not been for the testimony of Paul and others, we dare not think what the Christian world would have been like today. In looking back through our Bibles we find many characters who were not ashamed to stand up courageously for the cause of righteousness, for God and for His Son, Jesus Christ. Their testimony has borne fruit. We cannot name them all in this lesson, but we might think of Abraham, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, Joshua, Elijah and Elisha, Isaiah, David, Job and others. Think of the Mother of Moses, Samuel and his mother, Deborah and women of the New Testament. In studying the lives of these men and women, we are made to feel ashamed of ourselves for our lethargy, indifference and lack of boldness in living and proclaiming the gospel of Christ through our witnessing. Job said, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him." Joshua said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

B. What Prompts Our Testimony?

1. Our love to Christ. 2. A passion for lost souls. 3. A desire to have a part in promoting the gospel of Jesus through either going to the mission fields, or sending others, but better still perhaps, if we have the love of God in our hearts, we will make every sacrifice possible for those who are already on the mission fields, in Cuba, India, and Africa, where we have those who should be dear to us, labouring under many untold hardships that souls may be brought into His kingdom. We need a new vision of Christ and his great undying love for mankind.

Mrs. Alice E. Lupton

C. God Is a Great Photographer

He has a true portrait of each one of us. The Bible paints a very vivid picture of the human family. God does not, like the usual photographer, tone down our faults, such as wrinkles, frowns, etc., with rosy tints and smooth brow, but God paints our pictures just as we are. He says, "There is none righteous, no not one" (Rom. 3:9). He states further that "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23).

Another very outstanding touch from His divine paint brush reads thus: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" (Jer. 17:9).

Then God paints for us another picture, which can be called the masterpiece of the ages, and it is only thru this second picture that we can take hope. This picture is the Christ of Calvary, whose love for us was so great that he bore our sins in his own body on the cross that we might be free from sin and death.

Sing one verse of: "Alas, and Did My Saviour Bleed."

Call an old fashioned testimony meeting for about ten minutes. Pray that the divine love of the Lord Jesus may control our lives to the extent that we shall be happy to bear witness of Him at anytime and in any place.

If we have the assurance that nothing can separate us from the love of God, that if we abide in Him, and that He is our refuge and strength, then we shall have peace with God and bear record of these experiences.

TOPIC—BEARING WITNESS TO THE TRUTH THROUGH THE HOLY SPIRIT

A. Who are to bear witness? Psalm 107:2, "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy." This means each one of us who has been redeemed by the shed blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. Where?

Acts 1:8, "But we shall receive power. After that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

B—We need to be ready witnesses: I Peter 3:15, "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear." We must know the truth, because the truth will make us free. We must know the way, because we would not lead a person in the wrong direction. In John 14:6, "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life—" assurance, Rom. 8:16, "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." Jesus said in Jon. 14:23, "If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto Him, and make our abode with him." The story is told of an incident in World War 11, where heavy fighting was going on. The enemy seemed to be gaining ground, for they were dropping bombs thick and fast. Finally one of the bombs burst too near some of our boys and one was struck fatally, all the others escaped. This boy, called Bert, had a pal named Tiny Jim, not because he was small, for he was 6 ft. 3 in. The boys all came to the rescue, but as there was no dressing station near, they tried to make him as comfortable as possible, knowing that it would not be long. Suddenly the wounded boy called his pal, and asked "Tiny Jim, can you tell me the way to heaven?" The question startled Tiny Jim, and he could only say, "Bert, I am sorry, but I don't know the way myself, but I'll ask the other fellows." He went from man to man seeking to find the way to heaven, that he might bring comfort to his dying pal. He had asked 16 American boys, from what has been called Christian America. Oh, the tragedy of it! A soul going out, and no one near to show him the way to heaven. When the 17th boy was questioned, he said, after hearing the details, with a smile lighting up his face, "Yes, I know the way to heaven, but I dare not leave my post to go to him. Take my testament, turn to John 3:16, and you will find the way. He marked the place, fearing that it would not be found otherwise, and said, "Tell your pal that this is the way to heaven." Tiny Jim hurried back to his comrade, and said, "Look Bert, I have it, old chum, here it is, in John 3:16. "For God so loved the world, that He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Poor Bert's eyes were wide open, he was drinking in every word. It was a scene that even angels could have wept over. Tiny Jim kneeling in the trench beside him, his great hand holding the Testament, tears rolling down his cheeks, reading over and over again these life-giving words: "For God so loved the world"—a look of peace settled over Bert's face, as he kept gasping out "whosoever." All at once his face lit up with a glow of joy and with one last gasp, said "Whosoever," and was gone. We can say Thank God for the boy who knew the way to heaven.

C—What if such a question came to us, would we know the answer? I heard a woman, supposed to have been a Christian many years, confess that she did not know how to deal with the unsaved. I learned later that she was a woman whose life was not a living testimony for her Lord, but that she carried a "chip" on her shoulder at all times. Nothing pleased her that did not agree with her ideas and plans. No wonder that such a person had no influence for Christ, for she had no witness. "Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord" (II Tim. 1:8).

Hymn: "Higher Ground."

Silent prayer and meditation, followed by softly singing one verse of "Take Time to be Holy."

TOPIC—THE HOW OF CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY

By remembrance, Jon. 14:26, "But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." Some one has rightly said: "A Christian is a mind through which Christ thinks; a heart through which Christ loves; a voice through which Christ speaks; and a hand through which Christ helps." Complete surrender and dedication to the Lord means that He not only can, but He does use these minds, hearts, voices and hands of ours in bearing witness to a Saviour's undying love.

If we want our neighbor to see her pastor for help, was asked: "What do you see in life?" She replied, "I suppose I see what every one else sees, a big question mark, written in large letters across the horizon." Then the experienced and wise pastor said: "Don't see a question mark, see a cross." This is what Jesus told His disciples to do, this is what He came to do, for all through His ministry He had His face turned steadfastly toward Jerusalem. He never lost sight, even for one brief hour, of the fact that the cross was just ahead.

The cross is meaningless to the world to-day, but to us who have been redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, our Saviour, the cross with the broken body of our Lord hanging upon it, suffering as never man suffered, is ever before us. If we were to lose sight of the cross, and what it stands for, we should be among the most miserable creatures in our day.

B—Jesus testified, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (Jon. 8:32).

1. Knowing the truth makes it impossible for us to have a "cloak" to cover us, or for us to hide behind excuses, for the "truth" is to make us free, for the Master in continuing His message on "freedom" said in verse 36, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

Read Hebrews 11th Chapter. This is the finest picture gallery in all the world. There they are in fine array, some vital truth being said of each. Notice Abel in verse 4—"he offered to God a more excellent sacrifice, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: And by it, he being dead yet speaketh." His witness has borne fruit all down the centuries. What is said of him is also manifest in the lives of all of the others. It is a real inspiration to me to take my Bible and sit down with these old patriots, who lived and witnessed for the Lord hundreds of years ago. In my imagination, I place them one by one on the walls of my room, then meditate on the lives of each, trying to gather to myself all the good that came from them, as well as observing the hardships they had to encounter. Try this out sometime, it will be worth your while.

The World Needs Our Testimony

We should take time to look around on a world gone mad with greed, lust for power, and other wicked things. Every device of Satan is drawing men away from the truth. The Bible, the Christian's only weapon of defense in the warfare between the spirit and the flesh, is being hurled back into the faces of those who are proclaiming the gospel of Christ.

We know we are trusting in a God of might, of power, of justice, of compassion and mercy, as well as being a God of love so great that He sacrificed His only Son to die on the cross for our redemption. Let us bear witness:

1. In our homes—"Go forth to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath compassion on thee" (Mark 5:19).

2. In our community—"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5:16).

3. In our Church, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching" (Heb: 10:25).

4. In all the world, or wherever the Lord has need of us. "Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage" (Matt. 22:9). This is Home Missions and other Christian activities. "And go quickly, and tell his disciples that He is risen from the dead—there shall ye see Him: lo, I have told you" (Matt. 28:7). "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." Read Matt. 28: 13, 19, 20 and witness for Foreign Missions.

Read Acts 1:8 and following verses.

It is reasonable to think that the mind grows by what we feed it on. Our devotion to Christ through daily Bible reading and study, our humble sincere prayers, our faith in God, daily dedication to our Lord of ourselves and all we are and have, will strengthen us to become "doers of the Word, and not hearers only" for our words will be as empty vessels unless they are backed up by the lives we live and the things we do in His name.

Consecration Hymn: "Take My Life and Let It Be."

"To every man there openeth
A way, and ways, and a way,
And the high soul goes the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low:
And in between, on the misty flats,
The rest drifts to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go."

GOODSPRING AUXILIARY HOLDS MEETING IN THE CHURCH

SENDING OUT URGENT CALLS FOR NEW MEMBERS

The Woman's auxiliary of Goodspring Church held their October meeting in the church. There were thirteen members present for this meeting. Mrs. J. B. Parsons had charge of the program for the day. It included interesting and challenging discussions of the India Mission work. Mesdames J. C. Mosier, Buford Tomlin, Vara Parker, and Mrs. Irvin McMahan took part on the program.

A special missionary program was planned to receive a special gift for foreign missions. We are working this year for a greater increase in our auxiliary membership than we had last year. Our last year's record was 33 percent increase. We are inviting those women of our church and community to come and join us in the great work. We want to make our church and community better, and to do our part to make Jesus known everywhere.

Our Auxiliary meetings will be held in the church each month through the winter months. Be sure to attend these meetings, and help us to do a greater work for the Lord.

seemed to some a potentially dangerous concession, hence a prejudice against "the social gospel." The history of every heresy shows that it has left some scars on orthodoxy. Neither Augustine nor Luther would have gone as far as they did in insisting on the "bondage of the will" had it not been for Pelagius and Erasmus respectively. It is difficult to keep a proper perspective in a controversy, especially as serious a battle as that between naturalism and supernaturalism in this century. Difficult it is, but of vast importance!

Many will point out that the Acts and Epistles make clear that the Christian community need only concern itself with evangelization. It is true that Paul did not organize a society for the abolition of slavery, nor go to Rome for the purpose of urging the Senate to forbid gladiatorial combats. The question is whether Paul, had he lived in the fourth century, would have devoted a small fraction of his time to encouraging the outlawing of unchristian institutions. Christianity in the first century was an "underground" movement. Until the government became nominally Christian the church was naturally more concerned with self-preservation than social legislation. In the Old Testament, however, the prophets made it clear that God expected national leaders to carry out His will in all phases of community life. Just as many supposed that keeping up the sacrificial system would excuse them from brotherly love and ethical conduct, so now we must not assume that preaching alone or loyalty to orthodoxy will compensate for by-passing ethical issues.

Evangelical missionaries do more than get people converted. They concern themselves with every phase of the new Christian's contact with pagan society. Education, health, economics and legislation engage part of their attention. Many times little communities of converts, in the midst of pagan society, are necessary to establish Christian character and express God's will in society. How then can a Christian be unconcerned with any attempt by education or legislation to make this nation more expressive of God's will for men? Let us rather be consistent and admit that salvation begins, but does not end, with the individual's transformation, but that it also aims at the ultimate transformation of society. Jesus' command is to work as well as watch—"occupy until I come."

That human rights will ultimately triumph over "state's rights" is a certainty. The question is whether evangelicals will remain aloof from the struggle and wait for the liberals and the communists to do what the Bible and Christian conscience indicate should be done. To do so will write another embarrassing chapter in the annals of the American churches; embarrassing because we may be justly suspected of being too ignorant, too unconcerned, or too cautious to declare our position. To justify such inertia by insinuating that every one who is articulate is a "moderate" or a "communist" may be to add sin to sin. By thus declaring ourselves we will be in a much stronger position to lead an aggressive campaign against modernism and communism and towards a revival of New Testament religion.

What is now needed is not less stress on the sins of the individual, but more upon the sins of society; not less stress on the individual conscience but more upon the "social" conscience. Leadership is needed in praying through, studying, and thinking through the Christian attitude toward what is called our national cancer—racism.

As should be apparent from the above, this writer has no tolerance for a mediating theological position, nor towards atheistic humanism in church or state. He repudiates any merely humanitarian ends; instead he is convinced that religion without its humanitarian aspect is partial and sterile. To "visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction" is no less part of "pure religion" than "to keep oneself unspotted from the world." This is simply a plea for Biblical Christianity, for a recognition that "if ye fulfill the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well: but if ye have respect of persons, ye commit sin, being convicted by the law as transgressors." This is no plea for "one race"; what is needed is not the obliteration of racial distinctions, but the equalization of opportunity. Christ's method is as important as Christ's end. His method is not force, but the method of enlightenment, persuasion, exemplification. Christ will not convert the heathen without our aid, nor will He preach love for one's neighbor except through His disciples. He needs our united, emphatic, and repeated WITNESS.—Reprinted from the Christian Digest

Fellowship with Other Christians

(Lesson for November 12)

LESSON: Acts 11:11-18; Philippians 2:1-5

GOLDEN TEXT: Philippians 2:4-6.

I. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

Fellowship with other Christians was shown in a striking way by Peter in the home of the Roman centurion at Caesarea (Acts 10:17-48). It was endorsed by the church in Jerusalem (Acts 11). The apostles taught the "all-embracing" principle of Christianity for all races of people, regardless of rank, position or training. One way to enrich Christian fellowship is "face-to-face" contacts with other Christians in the home, church and community. Another way, either direct or indirect, is with Christians of other nations, races, and creeds.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. Two verses stand out strongly in Peter's report. He asserts, "The Spirit bade me go with them, making no distinction" (vs. 12). This observation undoubtedly was based first of all on the vision which God gave him, in which the Lord made clear that what He had cleansed Peter was not to speak of as common. The relevancy of the vision to the mission of the men who came to Peter in Joppa is quite evident, inasmuch that Peter could definitely say the Spirit of God made the application and that he (Peter) understood that there was to be no distinction drawn, even though this mission had to do with a visit to a Gentile.

The second scripture in this connection is verse 17: "If then God gave unto them the like gift as he did also unto us, when we believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I could withstand God?" The very fact that the Lord gave the Holy Spirit to the Gentiles when they believed on the Lord Jesus was full and sufficient answer to any question that could be raised as to the legitimacy of Peter's action. It is not without significance, therefore, that we read in verse 18, "When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life." Moody Monthly.

3. Since we have the consolation, comfort, and fellowship that we enjoy as Christians we are under obligations to live as Christians.

4. The consolation, or comfort in Christ, is the comfort that comes from the knowledge of sins forgiven, which brings peace to the soul.

5. The comfort of love is the work of the Holy Spirit who is able by love to persuade us to live as He would have us live.

6. The fellowship of the Spirit means that every individual Christian has been made a partaker, or sharer, in the Holy Spirit.

7. Bowels (or tenderheartedness) and mercies mean kindness and thoughtful consideration of our fellow Christians.

8. Quite often we condemn only such outward sins as drunkenness, immorality, etc., but overlook tattling, striving, backbiting, selfishness.

9. It is one of the greatest joys of a pastor to see the members of his flock act genuinely Christian in all their conduct.

10. It is impossible for Christians to think alike on many matters, but they can still be harmonious with one another.

11. As Christians, we owe love to every child of God, and every child of God is obligated to love us.

12. Christ appeared in the midst of the disciples, and the nearer they got to Him the nearer they got to one another.

13. Let this mind be in you, which also was in Christ Jesus. Paul concludes his exhortation here by pointing out the Lord Jesus Christ as man's perfect example. He laid aside His heavenly glory and came to earth and suffered for us, and He did it willingly that we might live. Paul's exhortation to us here is, that we strive to let this same mind be in us which was in Christ. We also should be willing to forego some of our comforts and pleasures in order to administer to the necessities of others.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. F.)

II. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED

A Japanese Girl Speaks

The following letter was written by a thirteen-year-old Japanese girl, Hideke Inourie, to a girl in another nation. She does not mention the fact that she lost her right hand thru a bomb.

"To Some Schoolgirl in Australia:

"I am afraid you may not like receiving this letter or answering it, because I am Japanese. But I hope it is not so.

"I am not your enemy. It may help a little if I tell you that I too have suffered—my three brothers, they are asleep; and my house, it is burned.

"Out of all this cruelty and hatred and mistake, could we not arrange that there should be peace and prosperity and happiness for all countries? I want it that way.

"Even to a war-scarred land like mine, spring will come. It is coming now, with plum-blossom and cherry and happiness and warmth. How do we arrange that it might be spring for all the world?

"I would beg you believe that I write this letter not with my pen, but with my heart." International Youth Review.

Fellowship with Men Like Pih

Many a lonely missionary in a far-away land his found in reliable native Christians a fellowship that meant much. James O. Fraser, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, thus described such a man whom he knew in southwest China. His name was Pih. Said Fraser: "Pih is simply splendid. He is not much of a preacher, but a quiet, unassuming man of moderate education, willing to do just anything. Always on hand when there is any drudgery or hard work to be tackled, making things easier for everybody. You don't notice him much, but—like the boy's definition of salt is 'the thing that makes the porridge taste nasty when there isn't any'—he is the kind of man who makes things difficult for you when you haven't got him—Arnold's Commentary.

REVIVAL AT MT. ELON CHURCH PAMPLICO, S. C.

Rev. J. C. Griffin of New Bern, N. C., was the evangelist for a twelve-day meeting at Mt. Elon F. W. B. Church, Pamplico, South Carolina, September 27 through October 8. Services were well attended each night. There were a number of young people who gave their hearts to Christ; others rededicated their lives to is service. Christians were blessed and strengthened, and everyone was made to realize the seriousness of the times in which we are living and the early coming of the Lord Jesus. Hearts were burdened for the unsaved.

The pastor, Rev. Paul Ketteman, led the children in choruses each night. Their eagerness to sing about the Saviour and His love was an inspiration to the grown-ups who looked forward to hearing and joining with them each night.

Special music from visitors and from the local church was enjoyed and appreciated.

Mrs. Griffin inspired the women to consecrated service for the Master through the Woman's Auxiliary, as well as the other phases of our Christian work. The practical, down-to-earth teaching of the Woman's Auxiliary Manual and Stewardship each afternoon, Monday through Wednesday, made every woman more conscious of her place in God's Kingdom and her ability to fill that place thru Him.

Prayer groups before the service each evening proved that "Prayer Changes Things."

We give God the glory for answered prayer during the meeting and trust Him for the increase through the seeds that were sown.

THE GOLDEN KEY TO TRUE HAPPINESS

(This message was delivered at the League Convention held at King's Cross Roads Church, and was requested to be published in the Baptist paper.)

Surely, some who have looked at the title of this article know what the key to happiness is, but there are some who do not know. May I tell you how king Solomon tried to find happiness by his seven keys? We shall follow him as he turns each of the seven keys, opening seven different doors, all marked the door of happiness.

The first key that king Solomon used was the Key of Knowledge. All of us remember king Solomon as the wisest of all men. He wrote 3,000 Proverbs, and 1005 songs, and knew much about a great many things. Today we find man seeking happiness by the possession of great knowledge, but through the misdirection of his knowledge he is about to destroy himself and his civilization. So we see, as king Solomon did, that knowledge is not the key to happiness.

The next key that King Solomon used was the Key of Pleasure. He decided that he would give up all the strain of studying the problems of his kingdom, and have a good time. In modern language he was saying that he would go to the movies, the dances, the beaches, and other things of that type, and that would surely bring true happiness. Today we find people who are seeking happiness in the same way that Solomon did. This is especially true among the young people. They are seeking to have a good time, and they want to be happy, and many are making the same mistake that Solomon did in his search for happiness. He soon realized that the Key of Pleasure was not that Golden Key. Each of us must realize that fact also.

The door that Solomon opened next was the Door of Self-Indulgence. He had become weary from study and saturated with worldly pleasures. So he turned to the tavern. He had the idea that if he would drink liquor, it would cause him to forget his troubles, and he would be happy. There are many people who have the same idea that Solomon did, but forgetting trouble will not bring either peace or happiness.

The next key that king Solomon tried was Great Possessions. He had the great Temple of Solomon built and he had a big place built for himself, but his great possessions did not bring to him happiness. Man today must realize that great possessions are not the key to happiness.

Key number five opened the door to Deceit and Passion. King Solomon had seven hundred beautiful and attractive young wives. Being infatuated with their beauty, he began to neglect his duties to God and to his kingdom. He lost his moral efficiency, and the mastery of himself. King Solomon married for beauty, lust and political power more than for love. But his great household did not bring him any peace and happiness.

The next key that King Solomon used opened the door of wealth. But this wealth did not bring to him the peace and happiness which he wanted. Today there are many people who think that in order for a person to be happy he must have great wealth. Many times the man with the most money is one of the most unhappy creatures you can find in the world. So, we see that wealth is not that Golden key to true happiness.

The seventh key that king Solomon used was the Key of Music. He thought that music would, perhaps, bring peace and relief from all the ugly things of his youthful life. But music is not a cure for sin, and it was not effective in dealing with the results of sin.

All the things which king Solomon had done were not entirely wrong, but he had failed to use the key to true happiness, which is Obedience to God. So, he is warning the youth against making the same mistakes that he had made. Many of you know that there is one way to heaven, which is through Jesus Christ. As there is only one way to heaven, so there is only one key that will open the door to peace and happiness. Don't fool yourself by thinking that knowledge, pleasure, self-indulgence, great possessions, desire and passion, wealth and music will open the door of true happiness. There are thousands who are travelling the broad road which leads to death, who flatter themselves that they are on the path to happiness. We all must realize that we cannot find happiness by seeking it. When we forget self, and seek the will of God, then we will have found the golden key to the one and only true happiness. God's will is that we believe on Jesus whom he sent to die for us and he wants us to keep his commandments. When we find the Golden Key to true happiness, we have also found the key that opens the door to eternal life.

In closing I would like to say that each and every person can have peace and happiness if they will accept Christ as their personal Saviour. This is something that I know from the experience in my own life. Since I accepted Christ as my personal Saviour a little over a year ago, I have had peace and happiness in my heart. You can have that peace and happiness too. It is left for you to decide.

NEWS FROM HARRELL'S CHAPEL GREENE COUNTY, N. C.

Dear Christian Friends and Co-Workers:

We want you to know that we are trying to do our part in the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom on earth. We held our first service in our new church on the fourth Saturday in November, 1948. Our regular quarterly meeting should have been held in October, but we did not have the seats installed in the church at that time, so we postponed our meeting until November.

We organized our Sunday School in January, 1949, and now have 119 members on the roll. Our attendance each Sunday is very good. Several have won their Perfect Attendance pins for the first year. Some of them have perfect attendance thus far for their second year pins.

We organized our Woman's auxiliary at our church in January, 1949, and have 22 active members. The people of the church and community have enjoyed two revival meetings at the church this year; one was in April, and the other was in October. Both were held by our good pastor, Rev. T. P. Ellis. He preached some stirring messages straight from the Word of God. There have been 64 new additions to the church during the past two years.

Visitors are always welcome to come to our church and to worship the Lord with us. We want them to come and see our new building, which all of us are very pleased to have as our place of worship.
Mrs. R. E. Hart, Snow Hill, N. C.

A WORD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks, and deep appreciation to our many friends for the many expressions of sympathy extended to us during our recent bereavement of the loss of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. W. L. Hart.

Judge not that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

ITINERARY WORK SCHEDULED AMONG THE CHURCHES

Rev. Noah Brown

This is to announce that I am planning my itinerary work which will begin around the first of the year, 1951. Those who wish to correspond with me concerning the work, and who may be seeking information concerning it may write to me at the address given below. Many church people should certainly be interested in having this itinerary work carried on for the good of our church people. We are hoping to be able to do a good work for the cause of Christ wherever we are called to render service for the Lord.

These do not make beautiful headlines: "Cuban School unable to open due to lack of funds" "Missionaries In India receive half sustenance" "Missionary Salaries three months behind." May we never hear God's voice crying, "What hast thou done? The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground." God forgive us! God arouse us! Shame us out of our callousness! WE SHALL SLEEP

Published in memory of Mrs. A. B. Barrow

We shall sleep but not for ever,
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part, no never
On the resurrection morn.

From the deepest caves of ocean,
From the desert and the plain;
From the valley and the mountain
Countless throngs shall rise again.

When we see a precious blossom
That we tended with such care;
Rudely taken from our bosom
How our aching hearts despair.

'Round the grave we linger
'Till the setting sun is low;
Feeling all our hopes have perished
With the flower we cherished so.

We shall sleep but not forever
In the lone and silent grave;
Blessed be the Lord that taketh
Blessed be the Lord that gave.

In the bright, eternal city
Death can never, never come;
In His own good time He'll call us
From our rest to home, sweet Home.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, our heavenly Father, in his great wisdom, has taken our beloved Brother Vernon Deck and wife, Gertrude and son, James, who lost their lives in a car wreck, May 14, 1950, Dickson, Tennessee,

We, the members of Western Quarterly meeting of the Cumberland Association of Free Will Baptists, do hereby resolve the following:

First, That, in the passing of our brethren and co-workers in Christ, we have lost three of our most active, and beloved members of our quarterly meeting. While we miss them, we gratefully submit, and humbly acknowledge that our Master doeth all things well, for we know that all things work together for good to them that love God;

Second, That, to their loved ones, we extend our deepest sympathy, and assure them that we share in their sorrow. We look forward to the time when the dead in Christ shall rise; and Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to their family, a copy be kept by the clerk of our quarterly meeting, and that a copy be kept by the Pleasant Ridge Church Clerk.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS

We should like to express to Brother L. E. Ballard how much we like the topics in the last two quarterlies of the Senior and Adult League booklets. We think that they are wonderful. If missions were taught more, it might be that the missionaries could get what they need. We are praying that God will bless and instruct you to keep on in the good work.

MISSIONARY POCKETS

"What are you going to do with my coat, Mamma?" asked Robert, watching his mother as she laid out a pile of little garments.

"It is for the missionary box, dear," said Mrs. Vincent. "It is too small for you and, being almost new, will fit some smaller boy nicely. My boy is getting so big he hardly has a chance to wear out anything."

"Please wait a minute, Mamma. There are some things in the pockets I want."

"And, Mamma, if you are going to send my little white apron, there are some things in the pockets that I want," said Amy, putting aside her doll to hurry to the pile of garments. "I couldn't think of giving away this lovely blue hair ribbon."

"And my jack knife, and three of my best marbles are in the pockets of these trousers. Mamma, would you have given these clothes without examining them?" he asked, turning over everything in the heap, as he looked through other clothes for treasures.

"You have so many playthings, Robert, that I thought you wouldn't miss a few of them. If I were a little boy 'way off in a lonely little home out West, I think I should like to find a few pretty things in the pockets of the clothes that come in the missionary box; don't you?"

"Missionary boys are different," muttered Robert; "they don't expect playthings."

"No, I suppose not," said his mother; "but do you think they would enjoy them?"

"Maybe they would, but I can't spare these."

Mrs. Vincent went off to the meeting with the little clothes and her own gifts, but not until every pocket had been searched. Robert and Amy carried the treasures to the playrooms, and put them in their proper places, but somehow neither was happy. They tried playing, but little Bobby wanted to play, too, and the game broke up in a quarrel. Then they both wished it was a schoolday, so there would be something going on. Finally they sat down on the floor to look at the big illustrated Bible which was one of their treasures, and baby Bobby came up behind them so he could see, too. It was strange that the first picture they turned to should be that of Christ teaching His disciples and that the words underneath it read, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

"I'm going down to Mrs. Upton's with some of my things in those pockets," said Robert, suddenly. "It isn't fair that we should have so much and those other children nothing."

"That is just what I was thinking," said Amy. "Let's fill every pocket full."

When the ladies saw the children coming with their hands full of gifts, they said, "Let's not send the box today, but give all the children a chance to fill the pockets of their garments, too."

When the box was opened in that lonely little home out West, I wish you could have heard the squeals of delight from the four little children. The oldest was only eight and the baby three, but every one had been remembered, and the floor was covered with marbles and little toys and trinkets. They liked the clothes very much, but the pockets filled to overflowing with nice things they liked best of all.

When the letter came, telling about their great joy, Amy said, "Let's see that the missionary pockets are full instead of empty." And ever since then the boys and girls save up all the year, so there will be no pockets empty when the big box goes on its long journey.—Wide world.

Honoring God

Charlie was going home with his uncle. All night they were on a boat that was furnished with tiny beds on each side of the cabin, called berths. When it was time to go to bed, his uncle said:

"Hurry and jump into your berth."

"May I first kneel and ask God to care for us?" asked Charlie.

"We'll be taken care of," said his uncle.

"Yes, but Mother always told me not to ever take anything without first asking for it."

Charlie's uncle had nothing to say to that, so Charlie knelt down, just as he did at his bed at home, and asked God to care for them through the night. That was honoring God. It took courage, but Charlie set a good example.—Selected.

AMERICA'S DREADFUL SPIRITUAL PLIGHT

"People spend eight times more hours at movies than at Sunday School; only one out of twelve persons in our country attends church, seven out of eight children quit church and Sunday School attendance before they reach 15 years of age; fifteen million "sex" magazines are printed monthly and read by one-third of the American people; there are more bar maids in this country than college girls; one million—ONE MILLION—American girls have venereal disease; one hundred thousand girls disappear EVERY YEAR into white slavery; one million illegitimate babies are born annually; there are almost a million illegal abortions performed annually; our nation harbors three times as many criminals as college students; a major crime is committed every twenty two seconds; an aggravated assault or rape every hour; a murder every forty minutes; there are sixty suicides in our nation daily; two out of three adults, both men and women, smoke; three out of ten who start as light drinkers, end up drunkards; as a nation we spend about seven hundred fifty dollars on pleasures, sins, cosmetics and amusements to every dollar given to foreign missions. Read, pray, weep, as you consider America's dreadful spiritual plight."

The Three Wise Monkeys

In a temple at Kioto in far-away Japan,
The little Apes of Nikko are sitting, wondrous wise;
And the one they call Mizaru—he's a funny little man!
Mizaru sees no evil with his eyes.

The next is Kikazaru—quite funny, too, is he;
But ah! the people tell me he is wise beyond his years;
As fine a little gentleman as any ape could be;
Kikazaru hears no evil with his ears.

The third one is Mazaru, and, like the other two,
His way is often quoted by the folk he dwells among;
And that which makes him famous is a simple thing to do—
Mazaru speaks no evil with his tongue.

Now the temple at Kioto few of us may ever see,
Or the Little Apes of Nikko, they're so very far away,
But if we would do as they do, I think you'll all agree,
We might in time become as wise as they.

Her Sight Was Restored

In the Philippine Islands lived a little girl named Maria. She had a brown skin, like the people of that island have, but what about that? She need not have a brown heart.

There were beautiful palm trees round about her house, and the sea was quite near, too, so that she could hear the splash of the waves against the shore as the wind drove them in. Little Maria often watched these beautiful things about her house.

One day the sun shone as bright as ever as Maria lay upon her mat bed. It came creeping over her eyes and awoke her, but she could not see all the beautiful things that she saw before, for she was almost blind. Some sickness had come upon her, of which her father and mother did not know, and it had made her blind. Now all was dark and the world was not the same to her.

But a strong man had come to the town where Maria lived. He was a white man and he looked kind and friendly. He always carried with him a box and a book. Sometimes he opened his box and took medicine out of it and gave it to the sick folk. Maria's father and mother saw the wonderful things the kind man did for the sick people, so they carried their blind little girl to him, too. He looked at her eyes, put medicine upon them and bound them up with soft linen cloths. Little by little the pain went away.

One day the kind doctor (for that is what the kind man was) took off the bandages and said, "Look little Maria, look!" Maria looked, and oh, how lovely, for she could see the bright sunlight she used to! The waves were as blue, and the trees and flowers were also the same. Had they ever been different? No; the only different was, she could now see as well as ever. The kind doctor had made her blind eyes to see again. How thankful and how happy she was for what he had done for her!

But this was not all. The kind doctor opened his Book, which was a Bible, and read to her about the Lord Jesus, who can heal all diseases. He too had made the blind too see and the lame to walk, when He was upon earth. All this He can do now yet for those who trust Him. He is just the same powerful One today as He was when He walked upon this earth. "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever" (Hebrews 13:8).

Our mind's eyes, too, have been blinded by sin, and we cannot see the beautiful things that God has in Christ for His people. The Lord Jesus can open our blinded eyes and give us new sight. When He has washed away our sins, the blindness will also go away from our eyes, and we can see His beauty. We can see how ugly and sinful we are, and how beautiful and gracious He is. Do you want Him to take away your blindness? He is ready to do it for you just now—only believe in Him as your Saviour from sin and trust your all to Him forever.—Anon.

Please, a Word for Your Publishing House

By Loy Everett Ballard

Perhaps the information given below will help some of our people to understand and appreciate more the work being done by the Free Will Baptist Press each quarter in producing literature for the denomination. Naturally there are many things we are not doing (and this is true of every institution and department of work of the church) which need to be done, and some among us seem so keenly conscious of the need of publications not being printed, that they can hardly appreciate that which is being done.

Let us take a look in upon the staff of ten men and four women who are now laboring day in and day out preparing the literature which you will be using in your Sunday Schools and Free Will Baptist Leagues during the first quarter of 1951. Just what is being done, and will be done, to provide the first quarter literature?

Well, let us begin with the editors, since the preparation of the copy is the first essential. We employ three resident editors, and, beginning with 1951, will use the services on a part time basis of one non-resident lesson writer. These editors will write, edit contributed articles, select and otherwise prepare for the typesetters material for the Sunday school and league quarterlies, The Free Will Baptist, and Youth's Banner, which will contain approximately 875,000 words. They will write the Sunday school lessons seven times and the league programs three times. To prepare for this task they have read many thousand pages of material in research. They have written almost twice as much as will go into the publications—writing, rewriting, discarding and writing over again. They will read word by word every contributed article before it is marked for publication. They will read many syndicated and clipped articles and stories which will never be used. For example, the editor of Youth's Banner read seven stories during October which were not used in the November Banner for various reasons. It is our policy to reject all articles and stories that fail to hold up a high standard of Christian living, or fail to give worthwhile information to the readers. We also try to avoid using articles not in harmony with our church doctrine. (Here we are faced with difficulty because of the fact, so ably set forth by Rev. Raymond Riggs in a recent article, that our people are far from being in agreement on some subjects.)

After the editors have prepared the original copy, they are far from being through. One or more word-by-word proofs must be checked, and a final press proof. Most of the 875,000 words referred to above will be read by the editors at least three times before you read them. Perhaps it will be interesting to know that of these 875,000 words approximately 310,000 go into the Sunday school publications, 98,300 into the league quarterlies, 356,700 into thirteen numbers of the Free Will Baptist and 110,000 into Youth's Banner.

Moving now into the printing department, we learn that the Linotype operators use approximately 7,500 pounds of metal to set these 875,000 words up in lines which average eight words to the line. After the type is set up it goes to the make-up department where it is assembled into 580 page forms, many headlines being set in by hand, and all the material carefully spaced out to give a good appearance, cuts from which pictures are printed are fitted in, and the pages are then assembled in the chases for printing.

We are printing around 170,000 copies of quarterlies for the first quarter of 1951. To print the pages that go inside these books our presses will have to make 427,100 individual impressions. We will use around 26,000 pounds of paper and 200 pounds of ink. Another 110,000 impressions will be required to print The Free Will Baptist and Youth's Banner for the first quarter. To provide covers for the first quarter quarterlies special designs have been made up, and five different colors of ink are being used in connection with their printing. Our special cover press will have to make around 185,000 impressions to finish the covers according to plans.

Let us now go on to the finishing department. Here all the 400,000, more or less, printed sheets must be folded so the pages will come out just right. The folders must be then properly assembled, covers must be folded and placed on each book, the books must be stapled and trimmed. In the finishing department all the 170,000 quarterlies are handled by at least four different people. Since two staples are put in each copy, there must be 240,000 operations of the stapling machines. Since each copy must be trimmed three times, and not more than 100 can be trimmed at the time, around 1,100 operations of the paper cutter is required.

Let us leave our 170,000 quarterlies, stacked in neat piles, almost to the ceiling in the mailing room, and go in the office of the Press for a minute. There will be approximately 2,500 separate orders received for first quarter literature. Each letter must be opened in the office, the orders carefully checked. Orders for book stove items, Youth's Banner, etc., must be separated from the orders for quarterlies. The orders must be entered in books, labels must be typed to accompany the order sheets to the mailing department.

Back now to the mailing department.

Each of these orders must now be taken in hand by a clerk, who carefully counts out the number of each quarterly ordered, assembles the lot, wraps in a neat package, pastes on the labels, and puts the package in the proper place for mailing. In the case of The Free Will Baptist each copy must be stamped with the name and address of the subscriber, the copies going to each post office be wrapped separately, and the packages put in mail bags according to the direction they are to go.

Time fails us to tell of the much book-keeping necessary to keep up with this volume of business, the many letters that must be written, the hundreds of statements that must be mailed out each month to customers with charge accounts. Time fails also to allow us to tell of the many services rendered the denomination through the book store, the printing of minutes, special publications for religious groups, envelopes, letter forms, etc., for use of our people.

Yes, time flies, and we must get busy, for there is much yet to be done here before 221,000 copies of literature can go out to Free Will Baptists, north, south, east and west, for the first quarter of 1951.

Wade Jernigan Holds Good Meeting at Cabin Church

Rev. L. E. Ballard New Pastor for Church

On October first, the Reverend Wade Jernigan of Oklahoma began a revival meeting at the Cabin F. W. B. Church. He was assisted by Rev. Bailey Thompson, State League Evangelist of Oklahoma. The meeting closed on October 11, with many people having rededicated their hearts to the Lord. There was one new convert added to the church. We were blessed with a great spiritual blessing, and many stated that they were greatly helped in many ways.

We are asking all Christians to pray for us as we strive to go forward in the service of the Lord. May we be able to do his holy will at all times.

Our pastor for the coming year is Rev. L. E. Ballard of Greenville, North Carolina. His good wife will assist him in rendering services for us during the year. We are inviting the people of the church and community to come and worship the Lord with us fourth Sundays for our morning and evening services.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

Growth in the Eastern

The Eastern Conference of Free Will Baptists of North Carolina showed a healthy growth in its Fifty-Fifth session which convened with the Antioch Church, Craven County, October 18-19. According to the "Digest of Reports" there were added to the conference last year 998 members, above all losses by death and other ways. Also, one old church, that had been dormant for several years, was revived and reported and also one new church organized. The financial report was approximately $1,000 above the previous year for all purposes of the denominational work.

As for the particulars of the conference as related to its internal affairs we will let you read the minutes as arranged by the clerk.

Indifference

I find a spirit among many Free Will Baptist people as well as other denominations that "one religion is as good as another." This being true many Free Will Baptist moving into cities and in communities where it is not particularly convenient to attend a Free Will Baptist church, join with other religious faiths. Often these faiths are adverse to all that is taught by the Free Will Baptist. Often it is said, "We are headed for the same place." That can be true, or it may be false. There are certain faiths that deny the "Virgin Birth of the Lord Jesus," and I am sure that according to the Word of God that any faith that denies the Virgin Birth of the Lord Jesus is of the devil, therefore such faith is under the curse of the Word of God. Paul said:

"But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed" (Gal. 1:9).

Paul preached that Jesus Christ was the Son of God. He also preached that we are saved, by the "Shed Blood of the Lord Jesus." There are denominations who preach "salvation by works." Here is Paul's word as revealed by the Holy Spirit, "Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasures of his will. To the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved. In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our sins, according to the riches of his grace" (Gal. 1:5-7). So to preach the forgiveness of sins without the atonement made by the shed blood of the Lord Jesus is to preach under the "curse." That kind of religion is in absolute contradiction to that which is believed and taught by the inspired Word of God, and as accepted and believed and taught by Free Will Baptist. So let me say to you Free Will Baptist members everywhere when you are about to trade your faith—the faith of your church—be sure that which you are about to join is in keeping with the inspired Word of God. We can be tolerant toward others, but we cannot afford to be indifferent. God condemned indifference severely in these words: "Because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth" (Rev. 3:16).

To be indifferent about knowing and living up to the truth of God is equal to saying that God does not care what is right and what is wrong, what is evil and what is good. Some one has said that God cares more for the man on the wrong side of the fence than for the man who is straddling the fence. The Lord condemned Israel for its indifference, and here is what He said: "I will search Jerusalem with candles, and punish the men that are settled on their lees: that say in their heart, The Lord will not do good, neither will he do evil" (Zephaniah 1:12).

Let me say again, as I have said before in my writings, to deny the "Virgin Birth" and the divine revelation of the Lord Jesus to the Father is to openly denounce the Word of God. God has declared that Jesus Christ was His Son. At the baptism of Christ God said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased"

(Matt. 3:17). And again at the transfiguration: "And there was a cloud that overshadowed them: and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son; Hear him" (Mark 9:7). Now see I John 5:10 and there you will see that to dispute this Scripture is to dispute the record that God has given. I warn you to not dispute the Word of God nor to join with them that do deny God's record of His Son.

The Cape Fear Union

I had the privilege of attending the Cape Fear Union meeting October the 28th.

It was an extremely spiritual gathering. Everybody seemed to be in good spirits.

All the churches in the entire union represented, but two, I believe. The reports were good, coming in from the various churches. The union and the conference are launching out on a number of progressive moves for the denominational work; among which are now requirements for those who aspire to the work of the ministry. One requirement is that those who are ordained must continue to study and improve his knowledge of the Scriptures. In the work of improvement they must take periodical examinations and without improving their talent, they are censured for their lack of improvement and are likely to lose their credentials. To use the exact words as we gathered them in the charge, it was said, "We no longer ordain and turn ministers loose to do as they please about study. If they do not improve in the ministry we demand their credentials to be returned to the ordaining council."

At this union meeting two licensed ministers were ordained, namely Albert Coats, a member of Hopewell church and T. C. Smith, a member of the Goldsboro church. The ceremony was very impressive from start to finish.

The Church in Raleigh

The membership of the church in Raleigh is small, but there are some of the work than his hearers are for their work. He must think for an of the most interested members to be

LETTER FROM CUBA

DEAR FRIENDS:

Just a few lines to say a few things that I have kept in my heart for sometime. I have still alive in my mind the precious time I spent in the U. S. in the company of many American brothers, especially with our own Free Will Baptists.

For two months, beginning on the 24th of June 1949, I traveled day after day with our leader and father of our Cuban mission, Reverend Thom. H. Willey. It was a long trip, through several states, in which we visited a large number of churches, enjoying the best welcome in each one of them.

Words are weak to express the many impressions and experiences, especially in the spiritual field, that I received all along my trip.

Thousands of Christians in these churches approached me with the most Christian and friendly smile, so that they made me feel right at home even when we had some difference in the language and perhaps in the manners. How can I forget such a big experience?

After this two months came the sad moment in which Mr. Willey and I had to separate from each other, for me to go to Nashville and for him to come back to Cuba. On my arrival at the school in Nashville where I spent nine months studying, getting finally the two year diploma with the help of credit for some of the subjects I had studied in our Cuban Bible School. I had the best welcome by the teachers and other workers of that institution.

As the months went by my understanding and compenetration with that nice and lovely group of teachers and students grew up so much until I did not feel any longer that I was a foreigner or a stranger. I was one of the group as some of them told me. Those were nine months of joy, learning and growing in necessary experiences.

Another thing that moved my heart with gratitude was the spontaneous contributions of the pastors and church members of the surrounding churches, to help me through school all the time until I finished. As to the school in Nashville, I received such nice treatment from the faculty and students that I got to love it as much as I love ours in Cuba, so I have the greatest and best desire for the growing of that institution.

I want to say thanks to the faculty and students of the Free Will Baptist Bible College and to all the pastors and church members that in some way contributed to my stay in the U. S., with their offerings, kindness, care or any other help. I ask for your prayers for me and our work and promise to pray for you every day.

I married just a short time ago. Now my wife and I are living in the school and ready to start at any moment our task as teachers in the school.

Today is the 23rd of October and our school is still closed for the lack of money. Five or six days ago we received the check for the month of August, but we were so far behind that it was impossible to cover the debts. Now we are in expectation of some more money to cover the debts and have something to start with, but we believe it is already in the hands of the Lord and soon will get to us.

In spite of the economical crisis we can observe the best willingness in every worker and students and the Lord is certainly blessing the fields. We are praying for the Lord to be glorified in everything.

We, the Cuban workers and Christians appreciate and are deeply grateful for the love with which the American Christians have helped us thru in the knowing and carrying on the Gospel of Christ. The same would say the Willeys and other American missionaries who are with us here and are such a great blessing to us and to our country.

Mr. Willey is still in the States. Let us pray for him and although it is a little bit late for the school year to start let us pray and do our best that this may prove to be the best school year we ever had in the Lord's work.

Thanks again and may the Lord bless you in His service every day.

Miss Barnard's Letter to the People

Glennville, Georgia
October 31, 1950

Dear Friends:

Man proposes but God disposes! So, somehow in His infinite wisdom He has seen fit to dispose of my cherished plans to visit our churches for the next few months. September 1, I began what I hoped would be a continuous itinerary, to have fellowship with as many groups of our people as possible, acquainting them first-hand with the India field and needs while glean- ing information, suggestions and counsel from you, until nearer the time for me to return to India. But after the Mission- ary Convence in Nashville I had a flare- up of trouble for which I required medical aid. While offering me relief from my immediate distress, the doctor insisted upon a series of thorough examinations, particularly in view of my long residence in India and my record of illnesses there. I spent some days in hospital for this purpose, and was dismissed with an unquali- fied order for complete rest until January. The doctor is one in whom we have reason to have great confidence, as he is prominent on the Vanderbilt Hospital Staff, well known all his lifetime in Nashville, and known to me professionally for a number of years. I could not conscientiously disregard his advice. I am therefore inactive for the pres- ent, and shall not be free to visit the places I had counted on visiting this year, nor even to plan any future itinerary, as I am advised to refrain from laying any plans until I have seen the doctor again in Janu- ary.

As I write this, I have somewhat the feeling of hanging black crepe on my own doorknob! Maybe you, too, know the feel- ing. If so, you know how bitter it is. But my better judgment accepts it as the only possible path of victory and assurance of future usefulness to Him and to you. Inas- much as several have already asked me if I had been forbidden to return to India, I judge the same question may be raised in your minds, and I am glad to answer it here. If the doctor has any doubt about my being able to return to India in due time, he has not revealed such to me. He has said that I certainly ought not to return until I had fully recuperated, but he holds out every hope that the course he prescribes will enable me to recover full strength. So, while I trust I shall always be ready to go or to stay at His bidding, I have no reason thus far to change my original plans for returning to India not later than May, 1951.

Things continue to happen in India—many of them not conducive to complete rest! Miss Kamala Nanaka, the tall, fine-looking teacher whom many of you have seen in the India pictures, has recently been taken from us in a cholera epidemic, leaving us in greater need for workers. Typhoid also has invaded our ranks. Missionaries and Indian Staff are pitifully overworked, and my own plight right now makes me feel sad to think what those on the field at present may face a few years hence, with the demands so great and the "laborers" so few. Please remember the challenge: "Pray ye!" Blessing also conditions and the faithful witness of converts and workers keeps us cheered. As I remain here at home I hope I can write a letter to the papers occasionally and through this medium still keep you in touch with India. That is, if I can do this and still keep within "doctor's orders"!

Yours in His quieter, but yet glad, service,
 Laura Belle Barnard

The Car Fund for India

In a called session of the Foreign Mission Board in Nashville, Tennessee, on October 3, 1950, Rev. Winford Davis, the former treasurer, reported that the car fund had been re-established. When Miss Barnard is ready to purchase the car for India, the money is ready.

Let it be understood that there was no intention to the part of Brother Davis to misuse the funds, it was only to meet the emergency of the delinquent salaries of our missionaries. It was his plans from the very first to replace the funds as soon as the treasury could afford it. Brother Davis resigned from his position as Promotional Secretary-Treasurer, and from the Board. As a Board we want to speak words of appreciation to Brother Davis for his long, faithful and untiring service. He has served faithfully since the very beginning of our Foreign Mission efforts. It is our prayer that he will serve the Lord as faithfully in another field as he has in this one.

The present officers of the Foreign Mission Board are as follows:

Rev. Rashie Kennedy, Chairman, 713 Simmons Street, Goldsboro, North Carolina.

Rev. J. W. Alford, Vice-Chairman, Columbia, North Carolina.

Rev. Raymond Riggs, Secretary-Treasurer, acting as Promotional Secretary, 242 Victor Avenue, Highland Park 3, Michigan.

FOREIGN MISSIONS DEPARTMENT
 OVER FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN ARREARS

(This is run again for emphasis.—Ed.)

Now lets talk turkey. It was revealed in our recent Missionary Conference in Nashville, Tenn., that the Foreign Missions Department was over Five Thousand Dollars behind in our allotments to our mission fields. The time has come when we must do more than talking, planning and even more than praying. We must give. The S. O. S. call will continue to be sounded long and loud until we are even with the board in this department of our work. The reason for this situation is not that Free Will Baptists aren't interested in Foreign Missions but it is because that the demands on each of our Foreign Fields have been greater than the growth in Stewardship at home.

In order for us to be relieved of this financial crisis we are appealing to churches and individuals to send in immediately special offerings to expedite the amount in arrears.

FIFTY MEN TO GIVE ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS EACH

We are challenging fifty individuals or churches to give $100.00 each between now and November 15th to relieve us of this condition. The following persons have pledged themselves for the following amounts to be paid by November 15th—Rev. J. W. Alford $100.00; Rev. Rashie Kennedy $100.00; Rev. Raymond Riggs $100.00; Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Johnson $100.00; Rev. E. C. Morris, $200.00; Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Thigpen $25.00; Rev. and Mrs. George Ludwig, $25.00; Rev. W. S. Mooneyham $10.00; Rev. Wayne Tucker $25.00; Rev. and Mrs. Henry Melvin $25.00. There are many more in our ranks who are able and I believe interested enough to come to our rescue at this crucial time.

First, ask yourself the personal question "what can I do personally"? If you cannot be a one hundred dollar man by November 15th then pledge what you can. Perhaps your church would make a hundred dollar pledge to be paid any time before November 15. Folks, we need and must have your help. We cannot let our missionaries down. They are standing in the gap in our stead. Let's rally to their support now. Please pray about this matter and ask God exactly what you should do, then fill out the blank below and send it immediately to Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Board, Promotional Office, 242 Victor Ave., Highland Park 3, Michigan.

ANOTHER SIGN OF SPIRITUAL PROGRESS

A great many churches are getting away from the old idea that one revival a year is enough for their people. In the early days, each church looked forward to having a revival meeting sometime in July or August, and that no other time of the year would be suitable for such a meeting. Moreover, very little thought was given to the reviving of the church members, but that the sole purpose of the revival was to get new converts to swell the church roll, and to get some of the people, young and old, to show some interest in the religious life of the community. Those revivals, however, meant much to the church and community, and we would not minimize their value in their day to both the church and the community.

But, in this modern age, when so many things are moving at a rapid pace, a great many of the churches and ministers have conceived the idea that even two revivals in the average church year are not too many. In fact, we have reports that some churches have held this year as many as three revival meetings for their people, and that the results were gratifying indeed. A greater spiritual awakening seems to have come to those churches because of having had two and three revivals in them for this year.

When viewing this from a religious standpoint, it is quite sensible for church people to look forward to having more than one revival meeting in their churches for a period of twelve months. As a usual thing, church members need to have two to three revival meetings each year in their churches for the reviving of careless members and the quickening of active members to a greater sense of their duties in church work. Furthermore, the un-Christian people of the community, who usually attend revival services once a year, will be greatly benefited by having the privilege of attending the services of two or three revivals in their community during the year. Such meetings bring to their attention the need of spirituality; the need of turning to Christ for the forgiveness of their sins; and why they should stand for all that is good and upright for all the people of the community. These revivals are reminders of the great need of being aroused from a religious viewpoint, and placing the community on a higher spiritual basis as the years pass.

We believe, with the rapid movement of things in this modern world, it is becoming more and more necessary that every church should hold each year at least from two to three revivals for the good that they will do for the people as a whole. Greater joy, peace and happiness will come to the people of those churches and communities as time passes that will set up the practice of having two and three revivals each year for the cause of Christ in their midst.

GOOD REPORTS FROM UNIONS AND SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTIONS

In this section of the country, good news has come to us from some of the Union meetings and Sunday School conventions. The Second union, for example, of the Central North Carolina Conference, which was held at King's Cross Roads Church on Saturday before the fifth Sunday in October, had a very good session. The attendance was all that could be expected, the different reports of the work of the union were good, and the messages on various subjects were far above par. The Union sermon was of a high type, and quite fitting for the occasion. Everyone seemed to have enjoyed it very much.

At the noon hour an old-fashion picnic dinner was spread on the long tables on the church grounds, and the entire crowd of people enjoyed a feast of good things to eat, while they also enjoyed the sweet Christian fellowship together. Quite a number of the ministers of the Union district were present and shared in the fine spirit of brotherly love and Christian fellowship. It was a fine day and all were made happy because of its pleasantness, and the splendid accomplishments of the Union for the glory of the Lord.

The Sunday School conventions convening in the different districts have reported that they held good sessions, and that the attendance was very good. Great interest was taken in the different phases of the work of these conventions, and much progress is being shown from time to time. Certainly, these Sunday School conventions which come each fifth Sunday of the quarter in their respective Union districts are meaning much to the welfare of the Sunday Schools and churches of those districts. It would be a near tragedy should any of them decide to cease operating. On the other hand, as they continue to function down the coming years, it is to be expected that they will be doing even a greater work for the cause of righteousness in the world than anyone can foretell.

As a matter of fact, a great many of these Sunday School conventions are looking forward to having a better training system for the Sunday School teachers of their various Sunday Schools of their districts. My God speed the day when this idea will be more completely realized, because there is a serious need of better trained Sunday School teachers in all of our Sunday Schools throughout the entire denomination. May the ministers, the Sunday School superintendents, and lay-leaders of all the churches of the denomination arise, and set in order methods and means by which this thing can be realized in the not distant future.

Special Notice to Cape Fear Auxiliary Women

Mrs. J. C. Griffin, our State Field worker, for the Women's auxiliaries will teach the Manual of Methods, beginning the 15th and the 16th of November in the Cape Fear district. The first day's classes will be conducted at the Smithfield Church, and the second day's classes at Shady Grove Church. The classes will begin each day at 10:00 a. m.

I am urging that all Cape Fear auxiliaries to attend the class most convenient to them. Each person attending these classes is requested to take lunch, and an offering along with them for Mrs. Griffin.

Mrs. Almond Warrick, Pres., Cape Fear District.

Holly Springs Auxiliary of Newport Moving Forward

The Holly Springs Auxiliary is still making progress for the Lord. It was reorganized two years ago, with our pastor's good wife, Mrs. J. R. Bennett being elected president with 48 members enrolled. It now has 75. Brother Bennett and his wife are doing a good work here. They mean so much to our Aid; also the church.

We are very fortunate to have Mrs. Bennett for our president, one who loves the Lord and is anxious to see work carried on for the glory of God.

The Annual Meeting was held at the church Wednesday evening, Oct. 4, with a good attendance. The meeting was called to order by the president. The Devotional was led by Miss Nellie Cannon, the subject being "Advancing with Christ through Missions in India," which was enjoyed by all.

The president called for the minutes of the previous meeting, which were read, approved, roll called, and payment of dues.

Regular dues collected for the month of October were $17.15.

Cash on hand October 1, 1949, $81.17. Received during the year 1949-50, $678.49, making a total of $759.66.

Officers were elected for the year 1950-51: Mrs. J. R. Bennett, President; Mrs. Roy Garner, Secretary; Miss Nellie Cannon, Treasurer; and it was moved that the vice-presidents stay just as they are.

After closing prayer by Brother Bennett the hostess served sandwiches and drinks.

The next meeting will be held at the church Wednesday evening before the 2nd Sunday in November.

Thanks be unto the Lord that our church and its auxiliaries are growing. Pray that we may be true and faithful always, and co-workers with God.

Special Call to Eastern Auxiliaries

This is to remind all local auxiliaries of the Eastern District of the Eastern North Carolina conference of my request at the recent auxiliary Convention that I am asking each of you to send me, not later than December 12th, some amount for Super-annuation Christmas gifts. The total amount that I receive will be equally divided among the retired and disabled ministers of the Eastern District. Let us not neglect this all-important duty. Let us not spend too much this Christmas for toys to be torn up before the New Year begins.

Let the Revival Be a Revival

Vance Havner

It is regrettable that with many to-day the terms "revival" and "evangelism" should be thought of as synonymous and interchangeable. Of course, there is a profound difference. Evangelism is the proclamation of the Gospel in order to win the lost.

Revival must precede evangelism among us today. "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation . . . and sinners shall be converted unto thee" is the divine order. The evangelist who said he would rather wake up five hundred Christians than convert five hundred sinners was right: if five hundred Christians are really aroused, they will soon win five hundred sinners.

Yet we speak of evangelistic campaigns as revivals. A drive for more church members often obscures the real issue in a church where what is really needed is an awakening of the members it already has. The average series of special meetings usually begins with a few messages, on revival and an appeal to backsliders, but soon turns to the unsaved, leaving a complacent church untouched. Preaching to the church is often resented. It is sometimes taken as a reflection on the work of the pastor or a rebuke to the people, who immediately become very anxious to have the preacher turn to the unsaved, because that leaves church members comfortably untouched. It is more pleasant to comfort the afflicted than to afflict the comfortable, and the prophet is sure to be accused of scolding.

Fruitless Confusion

We are politely ignoring real revival and confusing it with a number of things. The real trouble is untouched, and we are treating the saints as convalescents before they have been operated upon. The farmer breaks up his land, sows the seeds, cultivates, harvests. In the fields of the Lord, the teacher sows the seed, the pastor cultivates, the evangelist harvests. But too often this is done on fallow ground that has never been broken up, and we "sow among thorns." The harvest is scanty and the pickings meager. Something was overlooked at the start. To be sure, if a farmer did nothing but break up the soil all the time, he would reap no increase, but he will never fill his barns if he does not break up the ground. Undisturbed ground is unproductive ground, and some of us have been alone a long time.

The New Testament order is not accidental: John the Baptist, our Lord, Peter and Paul and John. We need a John the Baptist ministry to tear down the high places and build up the low places and straighten out the crooked places and prepare the way of the Lord. Finney wrote: "There is only here and there in the country a minister who knows how to probe the church when it is in a cold and backslidden condition so as to effect-

HOW TO BE SAVED

By Rev. L. W. Wheeler
Warren, Arkansas

"For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:8-10).

This passage of Scripture declares the utter inability of any other way to save man. Some declare that salvation is by good works, religious observances and such like, which man himself must do or observe, in order to be saved. There are some who say "If I cannot save myself, if I cannot be saved by anything I can do, how can I be saved?"

First, note, God says that it is by grace we are saved. Until I take the position of a lost sinner, unworthy and undone, a proper subject for grace, there is no hope for my soul. When I humbly take that position, the grace of God which has supplied a Saviour steps in, and the gracious words of the Lord Jesus fall on my ears—"Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." God's gracious promise reaches me in all my sins. "Whosoever believeth on Him (the Lord Jesus Christ) shall not perish, but have everlasting life." Oh, the grace of God in giving His only son! Oh, the grace of the Son of God, who though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we through His poverty might be made rich! Truly, by grace are ye saved, but the Word of God says also, "Ye are saved through faith." Faith is the hand that reaches out and takes salvation which is the gift of God. Faith is taking God at His word. Faith lays hold of God's promise and says, "I believe it."

And what does God's Word say about us? God's word says "All we like sheep have gone astray." Faith says, "That's true of me." I've wandered far from God. God's word continues to say of us, "We have turned every one into his own way." Faith replies, "Alas, that is also true of me. God be merciful to me a sinner." It is then that God's Word meets us in our need and adds, "The Lord hath laid on Him (Christ) the iniquity of us all." Hearing this good news faith cries out, "Praise be to God, that is also true." Christ Himself bore my sins in His own body of the tree, but my sins are all atoned for, because I now accept Christ as my Saviour, I am saved by the grace of God through faith.

Dear reader, salvation is the gift of God. Delay no longer. Now as you read these lines, stretch out the hand of faith and grasp the gift of God, then humbly falling on your knees give thanks to God for His marvellous grace in saving a poor sinner like you.

Nature's Flytrap

G. H. Clement

All children know that spiders like to catch flies. It builds its web as a trap for the unward fly; and once a fly gets its feet entangled in this fine mesh it is soon food for the hungry spider and its family. "Come into my parlor said the spider to the fly," is a line from a rhyme that all boys and girl's recite at school, which tells of the spider's cunning ways to catch the fly. But there is a plant that also catches flies, and feeds upon them.

This plant which is called Venus's fly-trap is found only in a small area about Wilmington, North Carolina. It is a wild semi-aquatic herb which has leaves that end in two plates. Let an insect light upon this leaf and it snaps together, imprisoning the insect. Now to look at this plant one would never suspect any danger. Its little flowers and innocent-looking leaves do not speak of treachery. But a fly needs only to light upon its very edge and it will be trapped. The points on the edges of the plates act like bars on a prison; and the insect cannot get away, but dies a slow death. Now we cannot understand entirely the purpose of such insect traps, except that the plant feeds upon them, apparently. But I wonder if God seeks to teach us an important lesson through this strange plant? There are many sins that look harmless enough. Young folk ask, "What harm is there in this and that?" Satan knows that he cannot get all his victims by very obvious, glaring sins. He knows that there are many folk who would be repelled by them, so those he cannot get one way, he tries to entrap another way. He makes the sin look very innocent, and attractive. But sin is sin no matter how beautiful it may appear, and once one has been enticed by its allurements, he finds himself hopelessly ensnared.

Sin means death. Our only way of escaping its deadly effects is to take refuge in Christ who overcame sin and its penalty on Calvary's Cross. He alone can set the prisoner free, and keep him henceforth free as he trust in Him.

If you have an illustrated dictionary you will find a picture of the Venus's-flytrap in it. Study it, and then pass along to others the lessons that God intends it to teach after we are sure we have learned them ourselves.

Had I a dozen sons,—each in my love alike,—I had rather had eleven die nobly for their country, than one voluptuously surfeit out of action.—Shakespeare

I am not bound to win, but I am bound to be true; I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to what light I have.—A. Lincoln ually waken the members and keep them awake. They have a form of piety which wards off the truth while at the same time it is just that kind of piety that has no power or efficiency. They are often employed about the machinery of religion and pass for good Christians, but they are of no use in a revival."

The Church Must Repent

Dr. Sidney Powell, in his book Toward the Great Awakening, tells us that Moody and Gypsy Smith in their later years preached more than ever to the church. Gypsy Smith said he did so "because the world knows the present condition of the church and it listens to the preacher who is frank and honest about it. He wins the outsider by preaching to the church."

The church must first repent. To five out of seven churches in Revelation our Lord said, "Repent." But just try preaching repentance in the average church today and see what happens. We will do anything else but repent. We will invent all kinds of excuses and alibis and substitute any number of good activities, but we will not repent.

It would be a fine thing to begin a new type of special services in our churches just to mend our own fences and sweep out our own back yards. We mix such endeavors with other objectives, and rarely is the church itself cleansed. We can well afford some meetings where we pray only for ourselves. We need to declare a moratorium on much we deem more important and drastically clear the track for a real revival at any price. We can never do other things well until we attend to this. Enlistment, stewardship, personal work, evangelism, all of these flow from, but do not constitute, a revival. The church, as well as the individual, needs to set aside time for self-examination, repentance, confessing and cleansing, and not clutter up that program with any other interests until these have been taken care of. Let the revival be a revival, and not a mixture of a dozen different endeavors! The objectives that take up so much of our time these days would soon be realized if we let them alone until we first got right with God and each other.

Concerning California Church Fund

Dear Brother Garnett:

I saw your appeal in the F. W. B. paper a few weeks ago, which appealed to me very much. I am herewith sending two dollars, which is a very small offering, but my prayer is that many may be moved to respond to your appeal, that you may be able to erect a soul-saving station there in your section of California.

Surely, God moved you to make that appeal, and I am praying that many will respond to your call. I wish that I were able to respond with a real worthwhile offering, but God knows my ability. I assure you that I shall be praying for the success of your efforts. I want to say that you are not asking too much, for I feel that God is leading us as Christians out through your appeal.

May God prosper your every effort.

Yours for his service,
Mrs. Troy Hickman

Dear Editor:

After reading Sister Hickman's letter, this text came to my mind:

"Whatsoever He Saith unto You, Do It"

Looking at this text from the standpoint of Homiletics, we see three imperatives: First, Recognition. We must recognize the Lord when he speaks. We must recognize him, not only as the sovereign Ruler of the universe, but as the ruling power in our lives.

Second, Obedience. We must obey him in every phase of our lives. We must do what he tells us to do, go where he tells us to go, and say what he prompts us to say. Our hearts must be in complete submission to his holy will. This full surrender to God of our lives is the recognition of God's claim upon man, and also the acknowledgement of his call to holiness.

Third, Courage. We must be courageous in every phase of our Christian activities, for it takes courage to obey the will of God. Daniel proved his courage when he defied the decree of Darius, and when he prayed three times a day with his window open toward the city of Jerusalem. Again, we say that it takes a lot of courage to be a real Christian.

"Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it." We do feel so much alone in this extreme southwest corner of the United States. True it is that there are many Christians here, but we do want the Free Will Baptist to take a place (which we feel rightly belongs to us) along side the other denominations here in the west, and we are working to that end. We are praying that the Lord of the harvest will send in laborers and finances to help us in his kingdom work here in California.

Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and "whatsoever He saith unto you, do it." Please mail your offerings to Rev. W. A. Garnett, 808 First Avenue, ElCayon, California.

Some Rambling Thoughts

The testimony of this writer for 1950 is that the Lord has been very gracious unto us, from both a physical and a spiritual point of view. I heartily agree with the Psalmist who said, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, and serve the Lord with gladness; come before him with singing. Let every one praise ye the Lord."

May we who profess to know the Lord have more praise and thanksgiving, so the world may know we have been with Jesus. In the writer's experience, we have come in contact quite often with some things like Jesus did. As he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men who were lepers, and they stood afar off. They cried for mercy and Jesus had compassion on them. The scriptures say that as they went, they were cleansed. But only one turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God. We learn that this one was a stranger, but he felt very humble, and he gave thanks to Christ for healing him.

Remember what Christ said: "Were there not ten cleansed, but where are the nine?" Sometimes we are made to wonder about the unthankfulness of some people.

We do enjoy reading the Baptist paper so very much. We are wondering about the western part of the state since we do not get so many articles from that section, as we once did. We also have not seen anything from Dr. Fred Mexey in the Baptist paper for quite a while, and a number of others, too numerous to mention. I have been taking the Baptist paper for more than forty-eight years, and I have never let it expire during that time.

Who Will Do Likewise?

Dear Brother Riggs:

Enclosed you will find seven dollars to be used for the Foreign Missionary causes. We hope the need has been met in Cuba and that the school has opened. Our prayer is that the work may go forward in the name of Christ.

Tennessee Personalities and Events

Newly elected officers of the State Association which met recently at East Nashville Church include Rev. E. M. French, Greeneville, moderator; Rev. William Mishler, Cedar Hill, assistant moderator; I. L. Stanley, Greeneville, clerk; Rev. Adam Scott, Nashville, assistant clerk; Rev. C. B. Thompson, Nashville, treasurer; and Rev. George Dunbar, Chuckley, statistician. Perhaps the most outstanding thing done at the association was the appointment of a committee to locate, construct, and direct a youth camp ground for Tennessee Free Will Baptists. This committee was composed of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Tennessee Home for Children and two additional members, I. L. Stanley and C. F. Bowen.

Officers of the Eastern Quarterly Meeting which was held at Goodsprings Church recently are as follows: Rev. William Mishler, moderator; Rev. Lester Jones, assistant moderator; Mrs. William Mishler, clerk; Marjorie June Ellis, assistant clerk; and Mrs. Lester Jones, treasurer.

The following new ministers were received into the Presbytery of the Cumberland Association at its October session with Heads Church: Charles Craddock, Edward Corn, Damon C. Dodd, Bayless McDonald, B. A. Moore, Walter Reynolds, and T. O. Terry. Edward Corn, formerly of North Carolina and now a student in the Bible college, was ordained at this session.

Head's Church, Cedar Hill, reports a fine revival conducted by Ronald Creech recently. There were 10 conversions during the meeting and 4 more came the Sundays following. These were service men from nearby Fort Campbell. Rev. and Mrs. Rupert Cravens have just closed a successful singing school at Head's with an enrolment of 47. The woman's auxiliary purchased table cloth material during October for the Home for Children, according to Esterline Elliis. Rev. William Mishler is pastor of Head's Church.

East Nashville Church has adopted a budget of $13,440, the largest in its history, for 1951. Of this amount $1,100 will go to foreign missions and $500 will go to the Bible college. There are 285 members of East Nashville Church.

The Nashville City League Union plans another Thanksgiving service with all Free Will Baptist churches and the college participating. The proceeds will go to the Home for Children. It is hoped that I. L. Stanley, superintendent of the Home, will be the speaker.

Pardon the personal note, but this reporter has had his baby's name changed from Jeffrey Bryon to Clarence Floyd Bowen, Jr. Everybody seems much happier about it for some reason.

The Important Question

"Run and hand Father the Book, Charlie, and we will have worship," said his mother, when tea was finished.

"Let us find the place," said the little boy, opening the Bible where the red marker lay at the third chapter of the Revelation.

Charlie listened very attentively all the time of the reading. But when his father repeated that beautiful verse, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me," he could not wait until his father had finished, but ran up to him with the anxious inquiry, "Father, did He get in?" Let me ask the same question of every child. Has the Saviour got into your heart? He has knocked again and again—is knocking now. Open your heart and bid Him welcome, and this will be the happiest day of your life.—Sel.

Turned a New Leaf

Yes, that is what Lenwood F. W. Baptist Church in Jackson County, Florida, has done. After nearly seventy years of one service per month, our church has gone on half-time basis, or two services per month. This will be on the second and fourth Sundays of the month for the new church year. Reverend Rufus Hyman is our new pastor for this pastoral year. We are hoping for a prosperous year in the work of the Lord. J. F. Fillingim, Deacon of the Church

A Note of Thanks

I wish you much success in your work, and you have my prayers.

Are We Going to Forget

Christmas will soon be here, the birthday of our Lord and Saviour.

About this time of the year, most of us are thinking of gifts for our loved ones and friends. There are many, no doubt, that have their gifts listed, and plans prepared. I wonder if we have forgotten to include a birth-day gift for our Lord? No doubt we have the names of many special friends on our gift list, and will think our-selves very fortunate indeed if we can keep the cost within one or two week's salary. Have we the name of Jesus on this special list? Jesus is a special friend at all times. It never gets too cold, or rains too hard that He will not visit his children. Jesus is never too tired to visit with us, when our troubles are great, and we need a friend most. Our earthly friends will give us the cold shoulder, so to speak, just when we need them most.

Jesus never gives or turns the cold shoulder to anyone. He is always on call, and ready to serve. He will go with us where-ever we go, or when ever we go. All that is asked of us is that we be willing to take Him into our homes and lives. Can we afford to forget such a friend? Let us remember December the twenty-fifth this year in a special way, and add the name of Jesus to our gift list. Let's remember Christmas as the birthday of the best friend the world has ever known. This Friend came into the world that you and I may have birthdays ever lasting.

I have before me a little paper that is printed in the Norfolk Naval Shipyard. This paper is printed once each week, and carries the news, and happenings of the yard. Last Monday in each corner we saw the word Extra, Extra! The head lines in very large type we saw $25,642.38 pledged in five days to the chest drive. Did you say good going? I agree with you whole-heartedly. Can you imagine what one day's pay given by each Free Will Baptist would do for Jesus through your local church? It means your church could increase its support to the many different programs that depend on it for finances.

Those of us that take the Baptist paper know what these programs are, and how they are pressed for money. A day's pay given as a birthday present to our Lord and Saviour this Christmas would mean much to the work He expects you and me to do. Did you ask how are we to give a day's pay when every thing is so high? That is a good question, and I think this is a good answer. I am going to get that extra church envelope, and inclose a day's pay in it as a combined Christmas, and birthday present for my very best friend. Then, I will do the best I can with what's left to secure gifts for the family and friends.

Christ expects the first fruits, the best we have. He wants to come first in our thoughts, and lives. So let's observe this Christmas by letting Him take His place at the top of the gift list. If we will do this, all of us will retire much happier by doing so.

Instead of wearing a red feather in our hats, let us wear a smile of happiness, and peace of mind, and heart, in knowing that we gave a day's pay as a birthday present to one that gave his life that we might have birthdays everlasting. Just a small gift to our very best friend.

I gave, I gave my life for thee, What hast thou giv'n for me?

I left, I felt it all for thee, What hast thou left for me?

I've borne, I've borne it all for thee, What hast thou borne for me?

I bring, I bring rich gifts to thee, What hast thou brought to me?

CHRISTIAN WORSHIP

(Lesson for November 19)

LESSON: Isaiah 1:11-17; John 4:19-24; Colossians 3:16.

GOLDEN TEXT: John 4:24.

I. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

Though fellowship with other Christians is a large factor in making public worship worth while, the primary purpose should be to render homage to God and to receive spiritual strength from him. A church is the last place in the world where a person should try to "show off." A person who goes to church to display his (or maybe we should say her) clothes, or to obtain patronage for his business, or to try to impress others with his importance or with his ability as a singer or even as a preacher, should read the words of Isaiah (v. 12) about trampling God's courts. Worship that is a mere pretense is no real worship at all. The person who receives real profit from a church service is one who worships God in spirit and in truth. He comes with the purpose of coming in touch with God and of receiving fresh inspiration in his own soul and of imparting inspiration to others. Whether we sense God's presence or not will depend upon the atmosphere of the worship service—whether it is spiritual or cold—and upon the leader, and upon our own spiritual condition and attitude of mind. There should be on the part of the worshippers an attitude of expectancy and faith. True worship helps to lift us above the petty things of life and gives us a broader vision and greater equanimity of soul—Arnold's Commentary.

1. The Lord is not looking for quantity in our worship but for quality.

2. Even the worship which God has prescribed may become obnoxious to Him, if we go through the form only.

3. The keeping of sacred days and seasons is pleasing to God only when it is really done unto the Lord and not as a mere custom.

4. It is possible to assume the attitude of prayer and to go through the words and motions of prayer without receiving any attention from God.

5. Clean living, honest dealing, and doing good will flow from hearts that have learned to worship God acceptably.

6. It is a good thing to follow the customs of the fathers, if the fathers were right.

7. The mountain or the valley, the closet or the open space, are equally acceptable as places of worship.

8. The salvation which has come to us through the Jews is not known by a great multitude of Jews today.

9. The worship that is acceptable to God must come from our innermost being and be offered in utmost sincerity.

10. There is a blessing in it when a group of believers gather themselves together for the worship of God.—Selected.

11. Going merely through a form of worship, simply to make a show of religion, is an insult to God. Those who practice a form of worship today, but are void of the true spirit of worship, are just as guilty before God as were those Jews in Isaiah's day. He cried out unto those false worshippers to cleanse themselves from hypocrisy, and all sinful practices. "Wash yourselves" that is, cast off your filth of sin; your blackness of heart, and your stained soul. Be clean in heart, pure in spirit, and sincere in worship. You can do nothing more noble, more praiseworthy, and more pleasing to God!—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. E.)

12. In our seminary days years ago the professor of homiletics once remarked about the prevailing absence of testimony in churches, but he said he did not know what the rescue missions would ever do without it. Well, we do not know either. They would close their doors. They must have services to accomplish anything that is worth while. And there also needs to be something more than formal, routine services in our churches if church members are to keep spiritually alive. There should be opportunity for lay participation, other than doing church chores, somewhere in the program.—Arnold's Commentary.

13. We are asking you to read all the comments in our Senior Quarterly and underscore seven truths you believe to be especially timely.

II. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED

Exterior Adornment Insufficient

Those who adorn only the exterior, but neglect the inner man, are like the Egyptian temples, which present every kind of decoration upon the outside, but contain within, in place of a deity, a cat, a crocodile, or some other vile animal.—"Clement of Alexandria."

Why He Couldn't "Catch Up"

"You're just out of date," said young Pastor Bate to one of our faithful old preachers who had carried for years, in travail and tears, the Gospel to poor sinful creatures. "You still preach on Hades and shock cultured ladies with your barbarous doctrine of Blood. You're so far behind you'll never catch up; you're a flat tire stuck in the mud." For some little while a wee bit of a smile enlightened the old pastor's face. Being made the butt of ridicule's cut did not ruffle his sweetness and grace. Then he turned to young Bate, so suave and sedate. "'Catch up,' did my ears hear you say? Why, I couldn't succeed if I doubled my speed. My friend, I'm not going your way!"—Christian Victory.

The Blessing of Intercession

Andrew Murray

Of all the promises connected with the command, "Abide in me," there is none higher, and none that sooner brings the confession, "Not that I have already attained, or am already made perfect," than this: "If ye abide in me, . . . ask whatsoever ye will, and it shall be done unto you." Power with God is the highest attainment of the life of full abiding.

And of all the traits of a life-like Christ there is none higher and more glorious than conformity to Him in the work that now engages Him with out ceasing in the Father's presence—His all-prevailing intercession. The more we abide in Him, and grow unto His likeness, the more will His priestly life work in us mightily, and our life become what His is, a life that even pleads and prevails for men.

"Thou hast made us kings and priests unto God." Both in the king and the priest the chief thing is power, influence, blessing. In the king it is the power coming downward; in the priest, the power rising upward, prevailing with God. In our blessed Priest-King, Jesus Christ, the kingly power is founded on the priestly "He is able . . . to save . . . to the uttermost, . . . because He ever liveth to make intercession." In us, His priests and kings, it is not otherwise; it is in intercession that the Church is to find and wield its highest power, that each member of the Church is to prove his descent from Israel, who as a prince had power with God and with men, and prevailed.

The place and power of prayer in the Christian life is, however, too little understood. As long as we look on prayer chiefly as the means of maintaining our own Christian life, we shall not understand fully what it is meant to be. But when we learn to regard it is the highest part of the work entrusted to us, the root and strength of all other work, we shall see that there is nothing that we so need to study and practice as the art of praying aright. We shall all admit that it is only when the Church gives herself up to this holy work of intercession that we can expect the power of Christ to manifest itself in her behalf. It is my prayer that God may make clearer to His children the wonderful place of power and influence which He is waiting for them to occupy, and for which a weary world is waiting, too.

There is another truth that has come with wonderful clearness concerning the teaching of Jesus on prayer. It is this: that the Father waits to hear every prayer of faith, to give us whatsoever we will, and whatsoever we ask in Jesus' name. We have become so accustomed to limit the wonderful love and the large promises of our God, that we cannot read the simplest and clearest statements of our Lord without the qualifying clauses by which we guard and expound them.

If there is one thing more than another which the Church needs to learn, it is that God means prayer to have an answer, and that it hath not entered into the heart of man to conceive what God will do for His child who gives himself to believe that his prayer will be heard. God hears prayer; it is a truth universally admitted, but of which very few understand the meaning, or experience the power. We must go to the Master's words, and take His wondrous promises simply and literally as they stand.

Thousands have found an unspeakable blessing in learning how completely Christ is our life, and how He undertakes to be and to do all in us that we need. It may be we have not yet learned to apply this truth to our prayer life. Many complain that they have not the power to pray in faith, to pray the effectual prayer that availeth much. The message I would fain bring them is that the blessed Jesus is waiting, is longing, to teach them this. Christ is our life; in heaven He ever liveth to pray; His life in us is an ever praying life, if we will but trust Him for it. Christ teaches us to pray not only by example, by instruction, by command, by promises, but by showing us Himself, the ever living Intercessor, as our Life. It is when we believe this, and go and abide in Him for our prayer life, too, that our fears of not being able to pray aright will vanish, and we shall joyfully and triumphantly trust our Lord to teach us to pray, to be Himself the life and the power of our prayer.

May God open our eyes to see what the holy ministry of intercession is to which, as His royal priesthood, we have been set apart. May He give us a large and strong heart to believe what mighty influence our prayers can exert. And may all fear as to our being able to fulfill our vocation vanish as we see Jesus, living ever to pray, living in us to pray, and standing surety for our prayerlife.

Mt. Beulah Church Making Splendid Progress

We are glad to let our Baptist readers know that we are making progress in Mount Beulah Church. In recent months we have had twenty new members added to our church roll. Our Sunday School is increasing, and we now have a goal set for 150 members, and this goal has almost been reached already. Our church has installed a new heating system, along with the other improvements. Sunday we held a baptizing at Crenshaws Pond.

The Woman's auxiliary of our church is making great progress all the while, and the Lord is blessing in a great way. The pastor, Rev. Noah Brown, is preaching harder than ever to be able to lead his people into a greater spiritual consecration, and into a greater work for the Master's cause. In fact, we think we have one of the best churches in Richmond County, N. C.

A revival meeting will begin at Mount Beulah on November 5, and will continue for several days. The evangelist will be Reverend Fred Rivenbark of Durham, N. C. The services will begin each evening at 7:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend these services. This will be our third revival in our church for this year. We thank the Lord that we now have full time work, and our pastor's salary has been increased to $2,600 per year.

We are also very happy to report that many souls are being saved, as the good work of our church is going on. Please pray for us, and for the work of our church.

O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity.

Take with your words, and turn to the Lord: say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously: so will we render the calves of our lips.—Hosea 14:1, 2.

ERIC'S ADVENTURE

G. A. Neilson

Outside the great wonder city of New York, in a small suburban town, lived a little lad.

Within his little heart burned the consuming desire, to see the sights which he had heard so much about, the great skyscrapers, such as the Woolworth and the Empire State Buildings, the dazzling lights of Broadway, the wonderful Natural History Museum.

A sinister plot was eventually at work in his mind, and this is how he carried it out. He carefully watched Mother's movements, and when she went out one morning the bold Eric rifled her purse and filled his pockets before making his silent departure.

In a few minutes he was around the corner, and without delay found himself leaning comfortably against a seat in the train, city bound at last.

His eyes stared out the window, not wanting to miss any of the on-coming sights, while excitement grew more and more intense as the train rolled nearer the city. There, sure enough he could see the tall buildings.

Emerging finally from the great crowd in the Central Station, he found himself out in the greater crowd, all jostling and hustling along. Then after wandering around for a few hours he felt decidedly hungry, so promptly disappeared behind the doors of a cafe. His courage never failed him, and he managed to order a substantial meal, much to the amazement of not a few there.

His disappearance at home caused consternation indeed. The mother was frantic with grief, thinking that he must have been kidnapped or run over. Not a line had been left to tell where he had gone. The police were informed, the father was phoned, and the neighbors all helped in the fruitless search.

On the third night the 'phone bell rang in the home. Eric's father answered the call. "Is that Number So-and-So?" "Yes. Have you any word of my boy?" "I have indeed," replied the missionary. "He is safe and sound. I spotted the strange boy outside, and invited him in, gave him something to eat, gave him a warm bath and bundled him off to bed; so now he is fast asleep. I'll put him on the seven o'clock train in the morning, and you can meet him. Will that do?"

Next morning arrived with mingled feelings for Eric, feelings of fear and remorse on the one hand, feelings of gratitude on the other, seeing that his wandering had ceased. Both parents greeted the arrival of that train with palpitating hearts, and their joy knew no bounds as he flew to the end of the train and in a moment was in his mother's arms, crying repentance and begging forgiveness.

Such was the adventure of Eric, and such has been your adventure, though perhaps you had not realized it. Have you not said repeatedly: "I want my own way, and I'm going to have it." You have been saying "No" to God.

Let us have a little chat and see what God has to say about our rebellion. "All we like sheep have gone astray" (Is. 53:6). Who are lost? Yes, all of us. And whom does that include? It includes me and it includes you. Then He says: "We have turned every one to his own way." So you can't slip into Heaven by trying to do good deeds, for all have sinned.

Now let us look at the second half of the verse. "But the Lord hath laid upon Him (just like a huge, heavy load) the iniquity of us all." What did God do with our sins at the Cross? He laid them on Jesus. Just as though He had been guilty of these sins of ours. Now, then, let me ask you this. If you truly believe that the Lord Jesus bore all your sins and that means their punishment, where are they now? All gone, you say. Of course they are, and believing in Christ you are forgiven. God has blotted them out and forgiven you forever. Eric got a wonderful reception and a wonderful pardon, but nothing to the welcome and forgiveness Jesus gives to all who come to Him.—The Soul Winner.

Home, Sweet Home

Here is a story from the Louisville Courier Journal (7-25-50) which is so typical that it might have happened in any city of any state on any day of the year and The Clip-sheet wishes to discuss it with that fact in mind.

Wilbur Cox, a 25-year-old machinist, killed his father-in-law and wounded five other persons with a shot gun. His terrified wife was looking on, and saw her father killed her mother and two brothers wounded, two passers-by hit by stray shots.

This is the information we get in the first two paragraphs of the story. Skipping down 13 paragraphs, we find this statement: "Cox had a few beers on the way home from a ball game during the afternoon." At home, he got into an argument about his drinking. He threatened his wife and the four-weeks old baby with the shot gun and she thought she had talked him out of it, but she was mistaken.

Here's the set-up: A 25-year-old man, with a wife, a three-year-old son and a four-weeks old baby. He served 20 months in Italy with the 88th Infantry Division and was wounded once. Whether or not he drank beer before he came into the army, we do not know. Many thousands of other young men were abstainers from this mischief-making beverage until they learned to drink it in the military establishment, because of temptation which involved a direct working agreement between the U. S. Government and the brewers.

Seventy-five per cent of all beer consumed today is consumed in the home. This shift in consumption has been brought about by the character of beer advertising, the perfection of a can in which beer can be marketed, and the use of grocery stores as distribution points.

As a result, thousands upon thousands of babies, small children and women, are constantly terrorized, brutally assaulted and subjected to other outrages because of the consumption of beers which are advertised over the radio and by colorful advertising in the magazines. Home life in America! Well, there it is! What are we going to do about it? The Clip-sheet, Washington, D. C.

Fort Wayne Moved for God

In Fort Wayne, Ind., recently Jack Shuler, son of Dr. Bob Shuler of Los Angeles, met with no less success for the Lord than Billy Graham. The meetings began in the Gospel Temple seating 2400. Later the committee of ministers and laymen brought in a tent seating 5000. The final night 12, 000 people crowded an open-air stadium. During the three weeks over 1000 came forward for salvation and reclamation. This number included many Jews and Catholics.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

O'ituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in the Baptist.

Resolutions of Respect (Fitzgerald)

Since God in his tender mercy has seen fit to call from our midst our beloved brother, Fred C. Fitzgerald, we the members of Rains' Cross Roads Church wish to submit the following resolutions of respect:

First, That we bow in humble submission to God's holy will, realizing that our loss is His eternal gain;

Second, That in the passing of our brother and co-worker in Christ, we have lost one of our most faithful and beloved members of our church. Brother Fitzgerald was always present, ready and willing to do more than his part of the church work. He was very cheerful about his church work, for he was enjoying his work for the cause of Christ. Even though he is gone, his memory will still live on and on, and he will be remembered by those with whom he so faithfully laboured;

Third, That we strive more diligently, and prayerfully to go forward in the work of the Master, as a tribute to the memory of our departed brother, and in remembrance of his devotion to the cause of righteousness;

Fourth, That to his wife, children, and loved ones we extend our heart-felt sympathy, and may they find comfort in the One who said, "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also;" and Five, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy be sent to the Baptist Press for publication, and a copy be spread on the church records.

Memorial Tribute of Mrs. Ava Tripp Braxton

It is with a sad heart that I write of the death of my loving mother-in-law, Mrs. Ava Tripp Braxton. She died five minutes to one o'clock in the early morning of December 28, 1949. She was 72 years old on December 11, 1949. Everything was done for her that could be done, but the Lord saw fit to take her to live with Him.

For many years she had been a true and faithful member of Reedy Branch F. W. B. Church. She enjoyed going to church, and doing things for her Lord and Saviour. She lived a good life, and enjoyed doing things to make others happy.

The funeral was conducted by her pastor, Rev. David Hiansley. She was laid to rest beneath many beautiful flowers in the Winterville Cemetery beside her husband.

The survivors are Bernice Braxton, her son, two sisters, Mrs. Annie Brown, and Mrs. Sudie Faulkner. One Brother, Mr. Willie Tripp, and seven grandchildren.

God took her away from earthly pain,
The family's loss is heaven's gain.

God bless memories she left behind,
Never will her memory fade;
Sweetest thoughts will ever linger
'Round the grave where she's laid.

Written by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bernice Braxton, Ayden, N. C.

He Remembers His Mother

Mrs. Ina Fagan, deceased, widow of the late Mr. M. S. Fagan of Dardens, North Carolina. Mrs. Fagan who was a devoted member of Corinth Church and a regular attendant to her church until she departed this life. She was always willing to show her loyalty in a financial way. Her son, Mr. Bruce Fagan, who is now a business man and travels different states, we regret to say has never been a member of his Mother's church, but he still thinks of his sainted Mother's loyalty to her church, which she loved so well. Bruce faithfully and generously is helping to support her old place of worship, both by attendance and in a financial manner. We, the entire membership, certainly appreciate his help and we wish we had many, many boys who would not forget their Mothers and their kind way of living, and the noble deeds they did while they were young. But we do have so many who have passed by the favors received from their mothers, but Bruce still remembers her. He has taken up her deeds where she has laid them down. May God bless you, Bruce.

A Special Invitation for You Revival Days Are Here

Beginning Wednesday, November 1, thru Sunday, November 12, Reverend Paul Jack Ketteman, Pamplico, South Carolina, will hold revival services daily at 7:30 and at 11:00 a. m. on Sundays at the First Free Will Baptist Church on the corner of Granet at Stephenson Street in Hazel Park, Michigan.

Rev. Ketteman is a graduate of Columbia Bible College, and clerk of the National Association of Free Will Baptists. He is noted as a youth speaker and "fiery" evangelist.

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Pastor

Then Daniel went in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would shew the king the interpretation.

Then Daniel went to his house, and made the thing known to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions.—Daniel 2:16, 17.

Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven.

For Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do. Dr. I Watts

THE BAPTIST PAPER GOES TO TWO DOLLARS

All subscriptions sent to us before November 15, 1950, will be accepted at the old price of $1.50 per year. After that date the price will be $2.00 per year, $1.00 for six months.

We had hoped to avoid this change but the recent upward swing in the cost of materials and labor, due to the general advance in the cost of living, has compelled us to act. Other regulations concerning subscriptions remain as before. We are urging all our friends to send in as many subscriptions as possible before the 15th of November.

found. These few are making a great sacrifice to carry on the work. They were extremely nice to your servant. I went into several homes. Their hospitality was grand. To those who do not know we want to say that there is not a prettier location for a church in the city of Raleigh. It is located on Bloodworth and Franklin streets surrounded by a splendid citizenship. Of course, the building which is the old mansion used by Governor Aycock has some age, but it is good material and well arranged for an educational building, or so arranged that it can be made into a splendid educational building. At present it has a seating capacity, with extra chairs from the other rooms, of more than one hundred persons, as we counted while there. They have six class rooms that are in use. There were only two additions to the church while we were there, but they were of the very best people to be found. One came by confession of Christ as Saviour, and the other came from a Missionary Baptist church, her husband was already a member of our church. We are sure that the work we did there will bring much more fruit in the future. The meeting closed Sunday (October 29th) after a week's service only at night. A nice picnic dinner was served on the grounds after the 11:00 o'clock service Sunday. Several visitors from Shady Grove, Sampson County, and St. Mary's Grove, Johnston Co., were present for the services Sunday.

There is a debt on the property, which could be expunged if half the Free Will Baptists in North Carolina could see fit to sacrifice a little and pay off the debt. The property is worth a great deal more than the debt, as I see it, perhaps three times the amount of the debt.

Young Preachers

It is a well known fact that young preachers cannot do that which a more experienced minister can do, but every young preacher should be encouraged and helped by the older ministers. I well remember that when I was ordained, that Elder B. B. Deans and others of his day helped me right into the work. Brother Deans, of precious memory to me, resigned two churches and recommended me as his successor and I was elected to take up where he laid down the work. Some how there has always been a spirit about me since those days to rejoice when a young preacher makes good.

At this time we have a large number of young men who are getting into pastoral work for this ensuing year. At Beaufort Rev. L. E. Styron, who was ordained October the 21st in the F. W. B. church at Beaufort, is taking the full pastorate. At Kinston, Rev. J. B. Narron has started on his first year as pastor. This is a whole time church. We understand that Rev. Albert Coates has work, we do not know as to the churches. Rev. T. E. Smth was called and has accepted the church at Morehead City, which is a whole time work. It is quite an undertaking for young ministers to take on whole time churches for it takes a lot of study and prayer and going for a young man to jump right into such responsibility at first. These young men need the prayers of all of God's children. Not only do they need the prayers, but they need encouraging and instructive words by those who have experience. We older preachers are soon to lay down our armor and join the great number who have gone on to their reward. So let us encourage these young ministers and try to help them to real efficiency. God bless you "boys." I shall pray for you and the work under your charge. Paul writes to Timothy saying, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). Not only is the young man to study, he is to work according to all the admonitions and commandments. The next verse says, "But shun profane and vain babblings for they will increase unto more ungodliness" (2 Tim. 2:16). So the young preacher, as well as the old, must shun many things that other people participate in. He must be better prepared, for be a mouthpiece for the church. He must live clean. He must be an exam-

Paul says again, "If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, nourished up in the words of faith and good doctrine, whereunto thou hast obtained" (1 Timothy 4:6). Read the preceding verses in your Bible for the "things" that Paul is asking Timothy to keep. A preacher has more to do than to get up two or three messages per week to deliver on Sunday. He must live out the Gospel for seven days of the week. He has to visit the sick, administer to the needs of the sorrowing, encourage the weak, seek to lift up the fallen and be a real "shepherd over the flock." A shepherd is a leader and one who watches over. He cannot drive the flock. Sheep are not easily driven, but they are to be led. Most Christians will follow a spirit filled, all on the altar pastor, who seeks the good of all and one who loves all the flock. Paul said, "I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barnabians, both to the wise and to the unwise" (Rom. 1:14). So, a preacher must love every body and feel that he owes his best to all alike. He can have no pets. He must be the servant of all.

Let Our Prayer Be

I believe that if there was ever a time when we as Free Will Baptists need to pray, "Master, send laborers into the vineyard," more than another, it is now. There is a shortage of ministers in many sections. Mission points and churches need to be established and maintained. We have the best advantage that we have had in many years for preparing those whom the Lord calls in that we have a four year college in Nashville, Tennessee, where those who aspire to the ministry can be prepared in Bible knowledge and church administration. Let us pray, that God will call more young men and women into the field. And after they have accepted the call, let us who are Christians stand back of them, and help them to prepare by encouraging, and actually opening our purse strings to the need of the College and the needs of the students. Then open the purse at every opportunity to take care of our prayers.

Thank the Lord

By Vida Munden Nixon

Thank the Lord for safety,
Bringing Pilgrims over sea,
And for making hearts so brave
As to baffle angry wave;
Thank Him for the faith of men
Strong enough for trusting when Tempest battled with the sail,
And their bark was light and frail.

Thank the Lord for motives pure
In those hearts that did endure
Hardships for their freedom's right,
And looked not for burdens light.
Thank Him for foundation laid,
And for ev'rything that made
Of the Puritan's estate
This, our country, good and great.

Thank the Lord for men of might
Who stood for their country's right;
Thank Him for the hand of love
That directed from above,
And, through all adversity,
Kept a nation glad and free.
For our church and state and store
Thank the Lord for evermore.

GOD WILL KNOW YOU

One evening a gentleman was strolling along a street in Toronto, with apparently no object in view but to pass the time. His attention was attracted by a remark of a little girl to a companion in front of a fruit stand: "I wish I had an orange for Ma."

The gentleman saw that the children, though poorly dressed, were clean and neat, and calling them into the store, he loaded them with fruits and candies.

"What's your name?" asked one of the girls.

"Why do you want to know?" queried the gentleman.

"I want to pray for you," was the reply. The gentleman turned to leave, scarcely daring to speak, when the little one added, "Well, it does not matter, I suppose, God will know you."—Unknown.

Our Baby

In Memory of Our Baby Who Was Born
 And Died on August 20, 1950

Our baby came but not to stay,
 For God had called for her that day.
 Her hair was black, her cheeks were red,
 We never dreamed that she'd be dead.

We never will forget the day,
 When God looked down and took her away.
 It seems we cannot understand,
 But God knows better than any man.

Our baby is gone to Heaven we know,
 To be with the Angels on that bright shore.
 And some sweet day we hope to go,
 To live with her forever more.

We know that when we reach that land,
 To sing with all the Angelic band,
 We'll see her than so pure and white,
 And sing and shout to our delight.

We'll draw her close to our breast,
 And on our bosom she can rest.
 We'll be so happy all we three,
 And live throughout eternity.

Lawrence D. Boykin

It is with a sad heart that I attempt to write of my dear husband's death. He passed on to his eternal home on April 8, 1950, being at that time 72 years and seven months old. He was born and reared in Wilson County. We were married October 11, 1898, and had lived together 51 years and five months, lacking three days. He united with the Free Will Baptist Church at White Oak Hill in Nash County, where he attended regularly about 15 years. Later he united with the Missionary Baptist Church at Naple Chapel closer home. He was laid to rest in the church cemetery at Marsh Swamp.

Aim at perfection in everything, though in most things it is unattainable. However, they who aim at it, and persevere, will come much nearer to it than those whose laziness and despondency make them give it up as unattainable.—Chesterfield

Let Us Be Careful, Brethren

By L. E. Ballard

Some years ago a quiet, earnest servant of God labored for a number of years to build up a little church in love, fellowship, and good works. His people were simple people, and the church was located in a quiet little community. Sin was there, of course, for sin is everywhere, but the vile forms of iniquity so well known in some places was something about which these people knew little. So the pastor did not preach so much about dancing, gambling, and the like. He proclaimed righteousness, and set up Jesus Christ as an example to follow. He sought to bring the girls and boys under the divine influence early. He preached repentance to be sure, and faith, and love. And many a precious soul found the Lord at his altar, and the church grew in fellowship, and in works of love. When they erred in the way, the good pastor prayed for them, admonished them in love, and won them back to God.

Came one day another preacher, when the good pastor was away for a period of time holding a meeting in a distant village. This new preacher went to some of the leaders of the church. "God has sent me here," he proclaimed with boldness. "I have some messages from God for the people, and I want to hold some services in the church. I come in the name of the Lord."

Now these people were God-fearing folks. They did not want to stand in the way of God in any good thing He might want to do. They did not know how to contact their pastor at the moment. So they acted themselves in the matter, and said to the visiting preacher, "Go ahead, give us the message you have from God".

For three or four night he thundered away from the little pulpit. He condemned quiet preachers as agents of the devil. He told the people that they were on their way to hell. He blasted away against dancing, card playing, gambling, drew vivid pictures of the iniquity of the road-houses (about which none of the simple people knew anything) and the whole tone of his preaching was that they were all guilty of all sin. He blasted their ways of doing things in the church to kingdom come.

In short, he blasted the church into quarreling factions, disturbed in their faith. And he blasted the simple pastor who had been leading them out. And his final blast was: "Don't blame me, folks, blame God. He sent me here and told me what to say."

I knew of another man in a certain church, who loudly proclaimed in the church one Lord's Day that certain things were said and done in a meeting during the week before, which he had not attended. "How do I know?" said he. "Well, the blessed Holy Ghost told me; that's how I know." The next day an humble but Godly man who had attended the meeting saw the "loud speaker" on the street. "Brother," said he, "do you believe that the Holy Ghost lies?" "O, No!" said the man, "The Holy Ghost never lies." "Well," said the other man, "yesterday you accused Him of lying, for you said that he told you that certain things were said and done at the meeting, and I was there every minute, and these things were not done nor said. Now, if the Holy Ghost doesn't lie, He did not tell you that they were."

O, my brethren, we need to be careful! If we have convictions about things, let's give them out earnestly, but soberly. If we feel deep down within us that God is leading us, we may say, "I feel that God would have me say these things." If it is something God has spoken His will about in His Word we may declare "Thus saith the Lord," but be able to tell where and when He spoke. But if we are endeavoring to interpret Scripture, let us stay within the bounds of interpretation. Let us echo God only when there is a voice to echo. Let us not proclaim our own ideas, no matter how good they may be, about things, then hide from those who might differ with us, or whose feelings may have been wounded by our criticism, "Don't blame me, blame God."

Brethren, I have written this in all sincerity. I believe that God wanted me to write it. But I say to you if you differ with me, or if you think I am wrong, or if I have hurt your feelings, don't blame God, blame me!

MARY'S NEW GLOVES

A little girl whose name is Mary had a pair of black kid gloves given her, and she was very proud of them. One day she went on a visit to her aunt, dressed in her best dress with her new kid gloves on. She tripped along the lane quite merrily thinking herself quite a little lady, and every now and again kept wiping the perspiration from her brow with the finger of her glove.

As she passed a row of workmen's cottages, the children came out and looked at her very curiously. Mary thought they were admiring her pretty dress, and I fear she was a little proud of it. But when she arrived at her aunt's, her pride was humbled, as she learned the real cause of attraction. The black dye had come off her new gloves, and right across her brow and on both her cheeks, there were great black marks, making her look quite funny.

Her aunt led her into a room in front of a mirror, and when Mary saw herself as she had been seen by others, her thoughts were quite changed, and instead of being proud of her appearance, she was very much ashamed. It was the sight of herself in the mirror, that changed her opinion of herself. This is just how it is with many a sinner, old and young. A sight of oneself in the looking-glass of God's Word (you will find one in Isaiah 1:6, and another in Romans 3:10-16) humbles pride, and shows how unfit for Heaven the sinner is, apart from being cleansed from sin in the precious Blood of Christ. Have you seen yourself in the mirror of God's Holy Word? —Gospel Chimes.

I know of no more encouraging fact than the unquestionable ability of man to elevate his life by a conscious endeavor. It is something to be able to paint a particular picture or to carve a statue, and so make a few objects beautiful; but it is far more glorious to carve and paint the very atmosphere and medium through which we look, which morally we can do.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

What Is Our Relationship with God?

"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

My dear reader, who is leading you? Does the Holy Spirit lead you to talk unbecomingly about your brother or your sister in Christ? Does the Holy Spirit lead you to the show, and especially on Prayer meeting night? Does the Holy Spirit lead you to take that can of beer that some of you, who claim to be believers in Christ, drink, sneakily sometimes, when you think that your pastor might pass by and take a peep into that cafe or beer joint? Does the Holy Spirit lead you to forsake the worship services for worldly pleasures? Does the Holy Spirit lead you to make debts that you know your income will not meet? Then, does the Holy Spirit lead you when you dodge the one who befriended you and let you have that which you do not intend to pay?

Brother preachers, have you made debts that you do not try to pay? Some preachers have a bad name when it comes to paying their honest debts. Are you one of them? You who read these questions will agree with me, I am sure, that the Holy Spirit does not lead a person to do any of the above things. Then if you are guilty, how can you claim to be a son of God. Years ago a number of people were assembled at an altar in a certain church where I happened to be, a man was at the altar seeking to know Christ. Several had prayed with the man, then a fellow with an unusual voice broke forth loudly in prayer for the man, whereupon the man who was seeking the Lord got up and left the altar. When asked why, his answer was, "that man who was praying for me owed me a debt and would not pay it." Only those who are sons of God indeed can pray for the unsaved constantly. "He that would labour must first be partaker of the fruit," says the man of God.

How Many Members Have You Got?

This question was asked some time back when I was conducting an evangelistic meeting in a certain church: "How many members have you got for the church?" My answer was, "I'm trying to get people saved, and then let them become members. Un-saved members in a church are a hindrance to the ongoing of the church. Ninety-nine percent of all the trouble that is in the churches is caused by un-converted church members. I have had a lot of trouble with them and know what I am talking about. Those who are truly saved and spirit-filled may differ in matters pertaining to the work of the church, but they will not dispute with anger and show malice and envy, and destroy the work by that old slogan, "rule or ruin." That is "Divilism" which comes from those who are blinded by the god of this world.

If you want a preacher who is set on adding to your church roll, you do not want me; but, if you want to get those who are out of Christ saved and all on the altar for Christ, I shall be glad to help you when possible.

Some times I find some who will say, "I want us to get . . . into our church," calling the name of some particular person. Then very likely they say these words, or to that effect; "He is well to do and he can be of so much help to us," or perhaps they say, "He can help us so much financially"

A few years ago a man who did not confess to be a Christian was asked by a certain minister to take membership with his church. This honest man said, "Preacher, I am not a Christian, and I have no business to join any church until I get right." This preacher wanted that man to join his church because he was a well-to-do-citizen, and pretty well fixed financially, but the sinner had more real sense than the preacher had. Men do not join the church to become Christians. They should join some church because they have accepted Christ and are believing with all their heart that Christ saves them from sin and death.

Looking for the Good

Anybody can point out someone else's bad qualities. If you want to distinguish yourself, go around pointing out good qualities.

Pick out the man whom every one dislikes. Selecte the one you feel could best be spared from your office, from your circle of acquaintance, from the community in which you live. Ask yourself if there is not something good about him.

Put him on the mental dissecting table. Cut him to pieces and see what is in him. Remember, you are looking for the good. Throw away the bad in him and forget it. Make a list of his good qualities. It will surprise you how many you can find.

The next time you hear him criticized tell people the good things you know about him. You will at least be different and you will find it will do you more good than it does the one who finds fault about him.

How would you feel if you knew that people, when ever they talked about you, talked only about the bad in you? You know it is there, plenty of it, but you rather not have it talked about. It is much nicer to have only your good points discussed.

Give the other fellow the kind of deal you would like to have yourself. If you can say nothing good about him, then say nothing. There are very few people in the world whom we cannot say something good about, if we try. The trouble is we do not try. Yet the more good you find in other people the more good other people find in you.

My father used to say, "If you know nothing good to say about a fellow, say nothing." However, there are times when we have to speak of the bad, when it comes to a state of justice. There are things that face us some time which are hurtful. Some fellow goes to the bad, and we are asked for the truth, then we cannot afford to lie. But we certainly can refrain from magnifying the bad and enlarging on it at every turn of the road.

The City Where the Pilgrims Lived

NEARLY forty miles southeast of Boston on the highway leading to Cape Cod and Provincetown, along the bay and for some distance inland, lies the old town of Plymouth, Massachusetts, to which thousands of pilgrims journey each year for the sake of viewing the landing place and first home of those other Pilgrims of long ago.

Although Plymouth is an industrial center, having the largest cordage works in the world, and with a neighboring town harvesting a large percentage of the cranberries in our country, the noise of these industries does not intrude upon the older section of the town, which is very quiet and restful and very much as one would expect to find it.

While Court Street, the main thoroughfare of the town, is very lovely with its magnificent trees lining each side and its fine old houses with their unique chimneys, it does not bear the distinction of being the oldest street in Plymouth. That honor goes to Leyden, the first thoroughfare to be laid out in New England, although it was nameless until 1802 when the name it now so appropriately bears was given. Along this street the Pilgrims built their little settlement and began life in the New World, undergoing many hardships and dangers.

Many of the personal belongings of these first brave settlers are to be found in Pilgrim Hall, a granite structure resembling a Greek temple which was erected on Court Street many years ago for the purpose of housing these priceless relics. Among these are Governor Bradford's Bible, the famous broadsword of Captain Miles Standish, Elder Brewster's chair, and the queer little cradle made of wicker with rockers of wood in which Peregrine Whitt, the boy born on the Mayflower while the ship was anchored in Provincetown harbor, was later rocked by his Pilgrim mother.

whose summit stood the old fort and watchtower, built as protection for the early settlers, the sites being now suitably marked. Here lie buried many of the Pilgrim band and their descendants. Among the many interesting markers is a great boulder erected to the memory of Thomas Clark, the mate of the Mayflower, who died in 1695 at the age of ninety-eight. Another is the grave of Tobitha Plaskett, the first woman school teacher in America, who wrote the quaint epitaph for her own stone.

It was on Coles Hill, nearer the water front, however, that fifty of those who perished during that first hard winter of three centuries and more ago were buried. So that the Indians might not know how few remained, the last sad rites were performed at night; then the earth was leveled so that no trace of graves could be seen. A handsome monument covers the spot.

Thanksgiving

Mrs. Sallie Carraway
Robersonville, N. C.

I oft do wonder why some folks think
That one day of the year;
Is enough to thank our heavenly Father
For all the things we hold so dear.

Especially for His only Son
Who suffered, bled and died;
Shedding his precious blood for all
On the cruel cross when crucified.

Yes, we need to thank him more and more,
While here on earth we stay;
Every minute, every hour and not Just Thanksgiving Day.

If you will count all of your blessings,
And name each and every one;
It will fill your heart with gladness
As you recall what He has done.

We need to be much more thankful
Than we've ever been before;

For time is swiftly passing,
And soon time will be no more.

Won't you listen and heed the warning?
Get down on your knees and pray;
Thank Him for all He has done for you
And be more thankful every day.

I'm Thankful

I'm thankful for the sunshine,
I'm thankful for the rain,
I'm thankful for the summer wind
That blows the golden grain.

I'm thankful for my country,
I'm thankful for my God,
I'm thankful for the flowers I love,
The rose and goldenrod.

I'm thankful for my health and strength
And nerves that are not jerky,
But most of all I'm thankful
That I wasn't born a turkey.

WHAT OUR CHURCHES NEED

In the Book of Revelation, chapter 3, verses 15 and 16, we read these words, as John the revelator wrote of the church of Laodicea:

"I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.

So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth."

I am persuaded to believe that this is the condition of many churches today. I know that there are some few who are still on the firing line for God. But as a majority, we find them in a lukewarm state. I would to God that all churches were really on the firing line for the Lord. That is what we as a nation need today. If this country of ours would turn back to God, He would reach down his hand of mercy and save us from our sins.

Most of the churches have done away with the old-fashioned altar. It seems that people have become too good to kneel and pray. He was far better than any of us are. I believe what Jesus did was a good example for all people today. I do believe with all my heart that if all the churches would put back their altars, and use them that we would see great things taking place as they did when Jesus walked on the earth.

We need to pray to God from the depth of our hearts, not just from our lips, and believe when we pray, that God will do just what we ask of him to do. If we will only believe and trust him, we would see the mighty works of God working in our lives in a miraculous way. People would get saved as we have never seen before. God is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

I believe that God will bless a church more if they have an altar and then use it as they should. Jesus fasted and prayed until his sweat became as it were great drops of blood. We should be so zealous as to pray in great earnestness. May God help those churches that do not have an altar to see that altars are established in them.

Indeed, we do need to come back to God as never before, and cry out unto him, and let him have his way in our hearts and lives. Then we would see great things taking place with us. He has blessings untold for us if we will only humble ourselves and receive them. God alone can save our nation if we will turn unto him in sincere prayer, and live true Christian lives.

LAUNCHING OUT— TAKING CHANCES

The Church Must Go Forward

Those who are seekers; day dreamers; planners; organizers; and producers, have very little time for "roadside chats."

The Pilgrim Fathers were seekers of religious freedom and freedom of conscience. They bore many hardships and deprivations in order to secure for themselves and their posterity the joys of peace, free worship, and love of fellowship.

Samuel Morse, Thomas Edison, Benjamin Franklin, and scores of other noted men were dreamers, vision-minded, practical, aggressive and producers. Their achievements, benefactions live after them. What they possessed was insight, faith, hard work, endurance, discouragements, zeal, etc. The cloud of adversities did not stop them. They succeeded. They were producers and organizers.

The Apostles Peter, John, Paul and others of the Gospel Ministry went forth into strange cities, countries, and among strange peoples with a mission—a deep purpose. They launched out, by the leadings of the Holy Spirit. They took chances of persecutions, jail sentences, whippings, death at the stake. They had in their hearts one objective: that of winning the lost to Christ. Their minds and hearts were entered upon victory for Christ.

They left for the world an heritage of truth, light, and hope. They died in faith, and with the promise from the Father of the joys of eternal rest. Their sacred writings and admonitions unto all men will last through all time—an eternal heritage for those who follow in their footsteps.

The church is launching out. It is taking chances in the midst of a world distraught with envy, greed, suspicion, war. The Church is to ever fight for victory over sin and Satan. It is to seek with a greater zeal than ever to supplant evil with good, the lack of faith with righteousness, and hatred with true Christian love. The church is to launch out with multitudes of men and women who have faith, vision, determination, and love in their hearts for the winning of the greatest victory of all time—Victory for Christ. These men and women must be strong and brave soldiers of the cross, patient in hope, and enduring hardships for the salvation of the lost.

These teeming multitudes of Christian leaders will create new mission posts, open doors of new churches, establish new orphanages, found new Bible schools, etc. It will mean the launching out into broad fields of service for the greatest cause on earth. They will bear the Light of all Truth, the blessed Word of God. Their flag will be the White Flag of Peace, Love, and Hope. When they come to lay down the Book and the Flag, they will have left for those behind them a heritage worth remembering.

No home church, mission, or any other religious organization can afford to be complacent, lukewarm, or indifferent; it must launch out, assume responsibilities, let come what may.

Rev. Jack White

DEBTS FORGIVEN

In a Scottish village lived a doctor noted for his skill and piety. After his death, when his books were examined, several accounts had written across them in red ink: "Forgiven—too poor to pay." His wife, who was of a different disposition, said: "These accounts must be paid." She therefore sued for the money. The judge said: "Is this your husband's handwriting in red?" "Yes," she replied that it was. "Then," said the judge, "there is not a tribunal in the land that can obtain the money where he has written, 'Forgiven.'"

So when Christ says, "Thy sins be forgiven," we are released from our spiritual debts.—Selected.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE HOLDS GOOD MEETING

The Central Conference of Free Will Baptists met Wednesday and Thursday, November 8 and 9, 1950, with the church at Reedy Branch in Pitt County. The sessions were well attended, and the fellowship and spirit good. Ministers and delegates from the churches of the conference and visitors from various outside places were well entertained by the people of the community.

Rev. Dan Beaman, Snow Hill, delivered the Introductory sermon at 11:30 Wednesday, bringing a message on the Church of Christ and its Mission. He brought some very interesting thoughts on the subject. On Thursday, Rev. L. B. Manning followed up with the conference sermon, discussing some of the things that hinder the progress of the church.

Speaking on Wednesday as the special guest of the conference, Rev. L. C. Johnson, President of the Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, brought some inspiring information about the student body, the plans and prospects, and the building program of the college. Present also during the conference and representing various phases of the state and national program were Rev. Rashie Kennedy, Chairman of the National Mission Board, who spoke in the interest of missions; Rev. J. W. Alford, mission treasurer for N. C., who gave a financial report for information of the conference; Rev. M. L. Johnson, Secretary-Treasurer for Superannuation and Church Finance Corporation, who represented these two causes; Mr. Walter McD. Croom, Superintendent of the F. W. B. Orphanage, who reported on conditions and needs at the orphanage; and Rev. David Hansley, state educational treasurer, who gave a report on the funds for Christian education.

Two important items of business considered by the conference on Wednesday were: First, the endorsement and adoption of the proposed N. C. discipline, as handed down to the conferences of the state by the State Convention. Second, the passing of a notion, upon recommendation of the ministers of the conference, asking the State Convention to set up a special committee to prepare a uniform question to be used in the examination of candidates for the ministry by the various conferences and associational ordaining councils of the state.

In the closing session of the conference Wednesday, the following officers were elected: Moderator—Rev. C. L. Patrick; Assistant Moderator—Rev. Bruce Barrow; Clerk—Leo Tripp.

MRS. R. B. SPENCER PASSES

We are possessed of a feeling of deep sadness as we write these words to announce the death of Mrs. R. B. Spencer, wife and companion of the Editor of the Baptist. Her illness was of short duration, only a little more than twenty-four hours. After a few hours of suffering at home she was taken to the hospital in Greenville where she received the best possible medical treatment, and the most attentive and courteous professional attention. Sister Spencer was taken ill during the early evening of November 7, and passed away about ten o'clock Wednesday night, November 8.

The Central Conference, of which Brother Spencer is a member, was in session during those days. The following message of sympathy, signed by Rev. D. W. Alexander, Moderator, and Brother Leo Tripp, Clerk, was sent to Brother Spencer and family:

Rev. R. B. Spencer and Family, extends to you the deepest sympathy of this assembled group. May God bless you.

THANKSGIVING AT ORPHANAGE

The Free Will Baptist Orphanage at Middlesex, North Carolina, will observe Thanksgiving as usual this year with a special service and program rendered by the children, and dinner on the ground. Friends of the Home everywhere are cordially invited by the superintendent to come and visit on Thanksgiving Day, November 23. Those who can do so are asked to bring baskets, as this is the day the children eat with their visitors.

A great Thanksgiving Day is in prospect for all who visit the orphanage.

How Much I Owe

When this passing world is done,
When has sunk yon glowing sun,
When we stand with Christ in Glory,
Looking o'er life's finished story,
Then, Lord, shall I fully know—
Not till then—how much I owe.

When I stand before the throne,
Dressed in beauty not my own,
When I see Thee as Thou art,
Love Thee with unsinning heart,
Then, Lord, shall I fully know—
Not till then—how much I owe.

When the praise of heaven I hear,
Loud as thunder to the ear,
Loud as many waters' noise,
Sweet as harps' melodious voice,
Then, Lord, shall I fully know—
Not till then—how much I owe.

Even on earth, as through a glass
Darkly, let Thy glory pass;
Make forgiveness feel so sweet;
Make Thy Spirit's help so meet—
Even on earth, Lord, make me know
Something of how much I owe.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

The following message on Foreign Missions was clipped from some church paper by Rev. J. W. Alford and handed to me to be used in behalf of our Mission Program:

"God had only one Son, and He was a Foreign Missionary."

The followers of Jesus were first called Christians in a Foreign Missionary church.

Every Epistle in the New Testament was written to a convert of Foreign Missions or to a Foreign Mission Church.

Every book in the New Testament was written by a Foreign Missionary.

The Book of Revelation was written to seven Foreign Missionary churches.

The Book of Luke was written by a foreign Missionary convert.

The book of Acts describes the first Foreign Missionary journeys.

The only Apostle who did not become a Foreign Missionary became a traitor."

You see from this message that "the only Apostle who did not become a Foreign Missionary became a traitor and that was Judas. It seems that we have a lot of traitors today who do not believe in Foreign Missions. So many preachers and laymen in the church are like the disciples were when they saw the god woman come to Jesus, and pour the "very precious ointment on His head. When the disciples saw it "they had indignation; that is, they were wrought up over it, and said, "To what purpose is all this waste? For this ointment might have been sold for much and given to the poor" (Matthew 26:6-13).

Judas was so wrought up, so mad over this ointment being wasted, as the disciples called it, until he planned another scheme for money. In Luke 22:3-6 we have these words, "Then entered Satan into Judas—and he went his way, and communed with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray Christ unto them and they were glad and covenanted to give him money"—"thirty pieces of silver" (Matthew 26:15)."

Listen to me friends, as you withhold your prayers and gifts from the cause of Foreign Missions, you are betraying Christ. You are betraying Him for the amount of money that you could give and are able to give, yet you don't love Him and His cause enough to give. Your excuse is that we have too many poor heathen at home.

What are you doing at home to win the lost to Christ? Like Judas, those who do the least at home and abroad hollow the loudest. Those who pray, give, and go that Christ may be made known to all the world are like the good woman when Christ said, "she hath wrought a good work upon me" (Matthew 26:10). Jesus said to His disciples after His resurrection, "Go ye, therefore and teach all nations." He is still saying that to us today. Free Will Baptists have endeavored to go teach and preach the Gospel to other nations, as Jesus commanded. We have sent missionaries to India, Cuba and Africa. We sent them with our gifts of love. It will take our gifts of love to keep them on the field. Brother Riggs informs us that it takes $3500 a month to keep them there so they can preach and teach the Word of God. This means that it will take close to $50,000 this year. North Carolina has been asked to raise $11,000 this year from July 1950 to July 1951. Dear Christian friend, how much of this will you give? How much will you encourage your church to give? Many of you are able to give $20 a month, which would take care of one native student missionary. Others are able and can give $30 a month which would take care of one native missionary teacher or preacher. Some have been blessed of the Lord so much that they would be able to pay the salary of an American Missionary which is $75 a month. Pray about it! Ask God how much He would have you give as an individual. Ask Him how much He would have you lead your church in giving monthly to Foreign Missions. One of our pastors told me the other day that the Lord had lead him to adopt the "penny a meal plan" and that he was giving that much this year for Foreign Missions.

If all of our people would adopt this "penny a meal plan" there would be plenty of money for Foreign Missions, and prayer would be offered three times a day. What the Lord leads you to give send it quickly to Rev. J. W. Alford, Columbia, North Carolina. The need is urgent at this time, all North Carolina funds for Foreign Missions go to Brother Alford and he sends it to Brother Riggs for the missionaries.

NOTICE

Having tendered my resignation as member of the National Foreign Mission Board, which of course terminated my office as Promotional Secretary-Treasurer, and Rev. Raymond Riggs having been elected to this office in my stead, you will, therefore, from this time forward send all remittances for foreign missions to the following address:

Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church Celebrates

Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift. II Cor. 9:15.

We are indeed grateful to God for His wonderful favors shown for the past several weeks. We believe a mighty sweeping revival has been launched, and especially in the Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church.

For several weeks now, there has been seen in the everyday life of the pastor, the Rev. W. A. Hales, an agonizing of deep burning passion for the lost. He has expressed himself many times in the presence of this reporter of how he yearns to see lost souls saved. This has been followed by many in his congregation. Therefore the unity of the Spirit of God, the pastor, and membership brings the church into the desire of a mighty revival.

For several weeks before we began our work here, we have been told that weekly baptisms were performed and souls brought to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus in nearly every service. This proves to us that the congregation was really ready and on fire for a real revival.

On October 15, the Rev. Damon C. Dodd came in our midst as our Evangelist. He too, saw a golden opportunity of readiness for a mighty revival and thanked God. Every service there were many who stepped out for Christ either conversion or dedications. The question was asked the reporter, "How could anyone sit or stand when God was dealing and persuading and under a ministry as Brother Dodd preaches and practices?"

Special music consisted of the choir and several visiting choirs. All the arrangements was made by the Rev. J. Albert Harris, our educational and Music Director, who took office with us October first. Mrs. Elizabeth Harris is our organist. Their working with us and with the assistance of several other very capable friends and members of the church helped the music in a great way. The music was enjoyed by everyone and high compliments were paid to Rev. and Mrs. Harris for the work they have done in such a short time being with us.

There were over one-hundred decisions made for Christ during the two-week Revival Series, out of which fifty-one new members by baptism and letter came into the church. We surely praise the Lord for His mighty works. In the past six weeks, there has been several baptized and received into our church seventy-six new members. On September 17th the five-hundredth member was received into the church who was Mrs. Louise Baker Morrisette. At the close of our revival, there had been added to our roll as membership to make the total of 596 members.

Sunday October 29th brought our series of evangelistic services to a close with a great Home-coming Day for all. The Church celebrates its 7th anniversary and the 5th anniversary of Brother Hales work here, his 48th birthday and a drawing to close of a mighty revival series with a great Home-Coming. A picnic lunch was spread on the grounds and a throng of people crowded the grounds all day. The attendance for the days service was estimated near 1800 people.

For a brief history of the church—This church was organized by the Rev. W. A. Hales, present pastor, in October 1943 with 27 charter members. This church called as its first pastor the Rev. Mr. Harden who served one year. Then the church called the Rev. W. E. Richardson who served as pastor the second year. During the time the Bros. Harden and Richardson served the church held its services in the Woodman of the World Hall in South Norfolk. The Rev. W. A. Hales assumed his duties as pastor November 1945 and shortly thereafter the church began building its sanctuary on the present location. This building was completed and held its opening services in March 1946. The congregation began its worship at the present site with 66 members. Immediately after the opening service in the new building, the church and Sunday School, the Free Will Baptist Leagues and the Woman's Auxiliary experienced a very rapid growth, and immediately began the construction of an educational building which was completed in March 1948.

The value of the church property at present including land, buildings and furnishings is approximately $100,000. The membership of the church is at this time 599, counting two additions November 5, and the revival still lives within the hearts and lives of the people. There has been received into the church under Brother Hales ministry 576 members.

We would not forget to covet the prayers of the praying people. We have such a growing ministry here in the city of Norfolk that we have become in need of a director of Religious education and the church has called the Rev. J. Albert Harris and his good wife to work with us. We feel that they are a great blessing to our folk and have noticed quite a change for the betterment in our music department as well as our educational work.

We are really climbing in our attendance in the Sunday School and F. W. B. Leagues.

WHEN WE PRAY—

Jennie Staplin

If we regard iniquity in our heart, the Lord will not hear us (Ps. 66:18).

But—"If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (I John 1:9).

Then—"If our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God" (I John 3:21).

And—"This is the confidence that we have in Him, that, if we ask any thing according to His will, He heareth us: and if we know that He hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of Him" (I John 5:14, 15).

We should manage our Fortune as we do our health—enjoy it when good, be patient when it is bad, and never apply violent remedies except in an extreme necessity. —La Rouchefoucauld

Tibetan Greeting!

Mont Hurst

Tibet is the mysterious mountain country adjoining China. The custom of greeting one another by the people is very odd. When two men greet one another they will approach with a bow, extend both hands with palms open and stick out their tongues. In sticking out the tongue it means that the person has no evil words in his mouth and in holding out his open palms he signifies that he has no weapons and wants to be friendly.

He will certainly not say, "Well done."

His words will be: "Depart from me,
For I did my very best;
To show you the way that you should live
Then with me you could ever rest.

But you heeded not my teachings,
Went on in your sinful way;
Leaving your Christian friends and loved ones
To wander where you'll be that sad day."

It grieves our hearts to think of you,
The ones we love so well;
To know you have forsaken Christ,
And have doomed your soul to hell.

Steps to Eternity

That Depends upon the Way One Is Headed

From the cradle to the grave is life's pilgrimage. Responsible characters are their own choosers. Life's road leads ahead. On this way, there is the road that leads to the right, and there is the road that leads to the left.

Steps to eternity are markers of the way each individual travels. Steps to the haven of rest at the end of the journey had guideposts of truth, love, justice, mercy, purity, patience, hope, etc. These steps were not all easy. Some were most difficult, others were shaky, doubtful, but the guideposts pointed ahead where the sunset of life shone brightly, gloriously, for there the pilgrim rested his weary feet when the day's work was done.

The steps leading down the left road mark the way of the traveler on a dangerous pathway. The markers are sensual pleasures, greed, lusts of the flesh, pride of life, envy, ill-will, deception, etc. Each weary traveler must chose his own steps, bear his own burdens, and endure his own punishments. When he hears his own punishment of life, he finds no happiness, no friends, no consolation. Darkness stands before him; regret in his heart; and shame upon his record, all because he made steps to eternity on the wrong road. What he had once gained, was but as vanishing perfumes on the desert air, never to return.

Steps to eternity are of one's choosing: One on the right is the Shepherd, the light and the truth; on the left is the old Dragon, the seducer, tempter, murderer, destroyer of all happiness. Ways of thinking, acts of daily living, and modes of human behaviour are all steps on the road to eternity.

Count your steps to eternity; watch the guide posts; make your pilgrimage steadfast, sure, safe for evermore.

When the Trumpet Sounds

WHAT WILL BE YOUR CONDITION?

Friends, where will you be when the trumpet sounds,
And time will be no more;
Will you be in the pool room, shooting pool?
Or standing by some bar-room door?

Or at a filthy picture show
Which is not fit to see;
Such places are condemned by our Lord
And so they are by me.

The Sunday baseball games
Are another place of woe;
Yet, it seems as if such places
Are where most folks want to go.

You never hear a word about the church,
Or when they heard a preacher pray;
But all about these sinful places
You hear them day by day,

It could be you'll be in some swimming hole,
Having what you call fun;
But if the Lord should call you then,

The Stewardship of Money (Lesson for November 26)

LESSON: 2 Corinthians 9:6-8; Philippians 4:10-18.

GOLDEN TEXT: 2 Corinthians 9:7.

I. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

A maker of abstracts once told us that strictly speaking we do not buy land, but a title to it. He remarked that the land all the time belongs to God. Not only does God own the land, but the coal and oil and gold and silver and other metals that are in it. He also owns all the water in the world, and he has made wonderful provision for sending the rain and sunshine which make possible the growth of plants and the existence of animals and men. As an acknowledgement of God's ownership, and of the material blessings which come from him, it is fitting indeed that we set apart a portion of our income for God. This is not all that we owe him, as we shall see in the lessons that follow, but we surely do owe him this. In a loose sense we may talk about giving to God, but strictly speaking we do not give things to him any more than we buy land. We render to him what is his due.—Arnold's Commentary.

1. Faithfulness is the essential qualification in a steward whether it be in great things or in small.

2. No man can be fully faithful in his spiritual life unless he is also faithful in using his money for the Lord.

3. Some men seem to find it easier to conduct another man's business honestly than to be honest in using their own possessions for God.

4. God and mammon are exactly opposites and therefore it is impossible to serve both at the same time.

5. "A contented mind is a continual feast." If Paul could be content with his lot as a prisoner, we ought to be contented with our privileges today.

6. Paul was not omnipotent, but he could do all things which lay in the path of duty, through the help of Christ. And what Paul could do in this respect, we can do. See 2 Cor. 9:8, in the lesson text.

7. Riches make favorable impressions on many people in this world, but not in the next.

8. Riches have great power but they are unable to ward off death, and are also unable to purchase Heaven.

9. Poverty will bar no one from Heaven, if the poor will hear and obey the Word of the Lord.

10. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work. God's children need not fear that if they will be unable to give more tomorrow. He gives back in a multitude of ways we never dream of until we realize the blessing. He is not only able to make His grace abound toward His people, but He is able also to abundantly supply them with all necessary things.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

11. Notwithstanding ye have well done, that ye did communicate with my afflictions, verse 15. Paul expresses his appreciation for the kindnesses which the Philippian brethren had shown him in his afflictions. Great hearts are always thankful to those who befriend them in time of need. This is especially true with those who have to labor for Christ under adverse circumstances. Those Philippian brethren had sent Paul a gift which would cause his imprisonment to be easier to endure. John Bunyan spent twelve years in Bedford prison, England; and, while in that confinement, he wrote the book entitled "The Pilgrim's Progress." Christ gave him strength and vision to write this wonderful book.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

Notice, however, that this word to give is definitely qualified, first of all by the expression, "as he hath purposed in his heart." Giving is not to be haphazard, but the result of heart purpose. We can have such purpose only as we know something about that to which we are giving and as we have prayed about it.

In the second place, this giving is qualified by the expression, "not grudgingly." Somehow or other, it is true, even though we can't explain it, that God can take little, when it is given gladly and joyously, and multiply it. On the other hand, a great deal given grudgingly does not carry such blessing from God.

The third word of qualification is "or of necessity." The idea expressed here is that of someone forcing us to do something against our will. Our giving is not to be forced, is not to be the result of coercion; but is to be done cheerfully—Moody Monthly.

II. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED

A Living Thief

Dr. Lorimer once asked a man why he did not join the church. The reply was that the dying thief did not join the church, and he was saved. "Well," said the minister, "if you do not belong to a church, you help to support missions, of course?" "No," said the man. "Thy dying thief did not help missions, and wasn't he saved?" "Yes," said Dr. Lorimer, "I suppose he was, but you must remember that he was a dying thief, whereas you are a living one."

Giving to God

Dr. Adam Clarke once preached on the words, "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely." At the conclusion of the discourse he announced a collection. "How can you, Doctor," asked a lady later, "reconcile the freeness of the water of life with the collection at the close?" "Oh, madame," answered the learned and venerable divine, "God gives the water without money and without price; but you must pay for the waterworks, for the pipes, and the pitchers which convey the water to your neighborhood." Remember, you pay nothing to God; you are charged nothing for the water; but you cannot have convenient chapels to sit in without paying for them, nor a regular ministry to urge the water on your acceptance, without making a suitable provision for its support.—1000 Evangelistic Illustrations.

A Just and Righteous Peace

The UN General Assembly opened its fifth regular session in an atmosphere of lively hope and spirited determination. The hope was mostly realistic, springing from the decisive United Nations stand against aggression in Korea. The determination appears to stem from a deep conviction on the part of many delegations that the present crisis must be resolved so that out of it will develop a more effective international organization.

The United Nations has previously dealt with conflicts in Greece, Palestine, Indonesia, and Kashmir, and halted the fighting for negotiations pointed toward a permanent settlement. In Korea, however, armed force authorized by the UN is, for the first time, carrying on a police action to restore order. Initial United Nations collective action has been successful. If we can now do what is fully important, insure an independent, united Korea, this resistance to aggression may well prove to be, as Dr. Ralph J. Bunche has suggested, "a turning point in modern history."

The police action in Korea has led to several proposals for making the United Nations a more effective guardian of the peace. Secretary of State Acheson's "peace packet" is receiving special attention as a possible means to increase the powers of the Assembly by making it "a veto-less Security Council." The American plan provides for (1) emergency sessions of the Assembly on 24-hour notice if the Security Council is prevented from acting; (2) maintenance of a security or peace patrol to investigate, upon invitation of the nation or nations concerned, a threatened breach of the peace; (3) establishment of UN military units by member states, to be on constant call for United Nations service; and (4) appointment of a committee to devise further ways to effect collective security.

These proposals aim to transform the Assembly into a more efficient organ to attain a larger measure of international order. Whether or not adopted wholly or in part, they have the notable advantage of focusing the world's attention on ways and means to strengthen the UN organization.

Of even more significance than the peace packet proposal, in the long view, was Secretary Acheson's urgent call for Assembly action against the root causes of international anarchy—the hunger, disease, oppression, and social injustice that bedevils the world's peoples. This stress is urgently needed at a time when our military budgets skyrocket and when we too easily place reliance on the use of force as the primary means to save our civilization. The crucial test of our era comes precisely at this point: can we build a gargantuan military machine to resist overt aggression and yet channel adequate resources into a more positive program? That is, can we develop throughout the world the conditions that would make possible, in Lincoln's phrase, "a just and righteous peace?"

The United Nations during the past five years, has already made significant gains in the economic and social fields. Epidemics have been checked and chronic diseases controlled. Concerted efforts have been and are being made to provide for such distribution of the world's food and clothing that hunger and nakedness may be diminished. The UN, moreover, has assisted the orderly development of indigenous movements in former colonial areas and among dependent peoples—movements that strive to achieve political independence and basic human rights.

While recognizing such signal contributions to world community, it is all too apparent that these efforts, in the light of human needs, have thus far been minuscule. Our preparations are colossal for possible war, which if it came would multiply our problems a thousand-fold and threaten the very values on which our civilization is built. By contrast, our preparations for peace are feeble, obscured as they are by our nationalistic prejudices and obstructed by our individual fears and limited vision.

In this context men and women of high faith and steady purpose must activate in their communities certain principles which are moral in nature:

To recognize the inescapable necessity for a powerful military apparatus, while combating with vigor the tendency to believe that increased armaments alone can save us.

To resist the hysteria and extremism that already undermine fundamental human rights in this country.

To persuade ourselves that we must make vastly larger sacrifices in order to provide adequate economic and spiritual resources for the encouragement and assistance of backward peoples—in our own and other countries—thereby helping them to realize a fuller life.

Only in this way can we develop a groundswell of new confidence and faith. This, in turn, will strengthen the determination of United Nations leaders to achieve security and well-being for all members of the human family. The decisive contest to win "the peace the world wants" will thus be given impetus and a moral directive during the critical days ahead.—In World Alliance News.

A Wonderful Word

There is a lamp whose steady light
Guides the poor traveler in the night;
'Tis God's own Word! Its beaming ray
Can turn a midnight into day.

There is a storehouse of rich fare
Supplied with plenty and to spare:
'Tis God's own Word! It spreads a feast
For every hungry, thirsty guest.

There is a chart whose tracing show
The outward course when tempests blow:
'Tis God's own Word! There, there is found
Direction for the homeward-bound.

There is a tree whose leaves impart
Health to the burden'd, contrite heart:
'Tis God's own Word! There, there is found
And makes the guilty conscience clean.

Give me this Lamp to light my road,
This Storehouse for my daily food;
Give me this Chart for life's rough sea;
These healing leaves, this Heavenly Tree.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

Little Grandmother's Thanksgiving Story

You want to hear about Thanksgiving days a long time ago? Well, let me see. I think I will tell you about the first one I remember clearly."

The children drew their chairs closer to Little Grandma, their faces eager and expectant, for Little Grandma's stories were almost as good as grandma's Thanksgiving dinners. Little Grandma was grandma's mother, and one of the treats of coming out to the old farm for Thanksgiving and Christmas was gathering in Little Grandma's room to hear the stories of long-ago times.

"Of course I can remember farther back than this one, but it just seems like a confused picture made of kinfolks, turkey, pumpkin pies and poundcake.

I remember this one so well because it was different from all the others. My father—your great-great-grandfather—was a squire, and I was very proud of this, for not everyone had the education or ability to be squire. To be sure, there were not many cases to be tried in those days, for the country was not thickly settled then as it is now, and every one was so busy getting a start in the new country that there did not seem to be much time for wrongdoing, so you may well imagine the excitement when a man was brought to our house on Thanksgiving morning to be tried for horse-stealing. Father did not have an office, so all cases were tried in our big living room. A number of relatives had come to eat Thanksgiving dinner with us. The women went out to the big log kitchen to help Mother prepare the dinner, but the men stayed in the living room to hear the trial. I was just a little girl, too small to help with the cooking, and not big enough for it to seem unseemly for me to stay where the men were, so I divided my time between the two places. I can see how the old living room looked just as plain as if it were only yesterday. It was a big room, with two high fourposter beds in two corners of it. Our best blue-and-white coverlets were on the bed, and a hugh bolster and two fat pillows on each bed. There was no carpet on the floor, but mother had scoured it until it was very white and clean. In another corner of the room was the big china-press, with the blue and white set of china, and the white set with pink rosebuds on it. In the fourth corner stood the old-wall-sweeper clock that told the hours of the day, the days of the month and the changes of the moon. But the best ornament of that room was the wide fireplace.

with its big back-log and forestick glowing red, making the brass andirons glitter like gold.

"The prisoner was a young fellow, scarcely more than a boy, and I was terribly sorry for him. He did not try to deny taking the horse—it wasn't any use. They had caught him riding it, and they knew the horse by its white forefoot and the white star in its forehead. All he would say when father tried to question him was: 'I wanted to get back home, and I meant to return the horse.' But this did not satisfy the owner of the horse, for horse-stealing was a serious crime, and he wanted to make an example of this case that would frighten all others from undertaking such a thing in that neighborhood.

"The old clock's hands crept around to eleven. The womenfolks had carried the blue-and-white china and the white china with pink rosebuds out to the log kitchen to set the long table. Then it was dinner time, and Mother came to ask the folks out to dinner. Father stood up and looked at the young man with his hands tied behind him. Then he looked at the owner of the horse, and this man frowned, as much as to say: "I won't eat dinner at the same table with a horse thief." He was a good neighbor and Father did not want to offend him; so he said to the prisoner: "We will go to dinner now, and, later, I will loose your bonds and allow you to eat while I guard you." The young fellow's face flushed scarlet, and he dropped his head in shame.

"In those days children always waited until the older people had eaten. As it happened, there were only myself and small baby brother and two little girl cousins to wait that day, for all the older boys had gone hunting. Mother fixed a platter of things for myself and two cousins to eat in the living room, to keep us from getting too hungry; but I could not eat with the poor, tied man watching me.

"He kept moving restlessly until at last his chair was against the door. Watching him when he did not see me, I saw him wrench and twist the ropes until, at last, he slipped one hand out, his wrist scratched and bleeding; then I heard the rattle of the doorlatch as he reached up behind him, and I knew what he meant to do. My first impulse was to run and tell Father, but my pity for the young fellow stayed my feet. The door he was by was on the opposite side of the house from the one which went out toward the log kitchen, and the orchard and then the woods came up close to that side of the house. He stood up and looked at me. The younger children were too small to understand anything about why he was here, and paid no attention to his movements. I looked back into his pleading eyes and said promptly: 'I won't tell!'

"A look of relief flashed over his face. 'Are you sorry you did it, and will you promise God not to do it any more?' I asked. 'Mother says that is the way to make things right—to be sorry, and promise not to do it again—it's all God asks of us, you know.'

"Indeed I am sorry, and I won't do it again—I promise you little girl; and I promise God, too,' he said, earnestly. 'I was so homesick, and wild to get home for Thanksgiving, and I thought I could bring the horse back. I never meant to steal it.'

"I know you didn't! I answered. 'Now, wait a minute; I want you to take this with you, and I'll open the door so it won't rattle or squeak.' I took the towel off the platter and wrapped up a drumstick of the turkey and some slices of the white breast meat, and some mince pie, some of mother's homemade bread with butter on it, some pound cake and doughnuts. You see, in those days they let the children eat whatever the older people ate. I gave him the bundle and opened the door, closing it behind him so gently that the old wooden hinges did not make any sound. Then I watched from the tiny window beside the door until I saw him slip from tree to tree down through the orchard and disappear in the thick woods.

"It was some time before the folks got through with their dinner, for there was so much to eat, and they took plenty of time to enjoy it. The dinners were not served in courses then, but all put on the table at once, and each one ate as long as he was able.

"I saw the men come out of the log kitchen, picking their teeth with their quill toothpicks, looking much better-natured than when they had gone in; but when Father opened the door of the living room, I gave one wild glance about the room. I suddenly realized what I had done.

"'Betsey,' he said sternly, 'come here!' And all at once I was the prisoner on trial. I had been trained to be a truthful child, and I told exactly what had happened, although I was shaking with fright at my father's solemn face and Mr. Hamilton's angry exclamations. I had also been trained to always show proper respect for my elders, but when Mr. Hamilton, the owner of the horse, started toward the door, saying, 'We will saddle our horses and catch the thief,' I screamed out, 'He is not a thief, and you shan't go after him,' and I planted my body squarely against the door. 'It is Thanksgiving time, and you ought to be ashamed,' I said. "You've got your horse, Mr. Hamilton, and you ought to be thankful over that. Now, let him go home to his mother so he can be thankful too. He said he was sorry, and he promised me, and he promised God, that he wouldn't ever do it again, and Mother says that's all God asks of us.'

"I can feel the stillness of that room to this very minute. Mr. Hamilton's angry face changed slowly, then he laid his hand on my head, and, turning to father, said: "It seems we have a new squire in our neighborhood, and I think I will abide by her decision."

"Mother was wiping her eyes on the corner of her apron, and one of the aunts sobbed out loud, then one of the little cousins began to whimper "I'm hungry. Betsy gave all our dinner away!"

"The womenfolks hurried us out to the kitchen and gave us a bountiful dinner; but I remember I could hardly eat for thinking about the poor fellow who was running, running toward his home, but could not get there in time for the Thanksgiving Day."

Little Grandma started up, saying that she must go remind the other grandma to look at the turkey, for fear he was browning too fast, but the children's hands clung to her dress and her apron while they clamored: "Did he get home, Little Grandma?" "Did he keep his promise?" "Was he always good after that?" "Don't you know any more about him?"

"Yes, he got home safely," Little Grandma answered. "And the next spring he came back to our neighborhood and Mr. Hamilton hired him to work for him all summer; and in the fall Father and Mr. Hamilton persuaded him to go to the academy that winter for he was so quick at learning, and, after that winter, he went to college, and he decided to be a minister, and"—Little Grandma's face flushed a rosy pink—"and—he always said that all the good he had been able to do in the world was due to a little child's trust in him, and her simple creed of right living, which she gave to him on that Thanksgiving Day."—Christian Standard.

BURDEN BEARING

If we are to carry out one of the most humane injunctions of Holy Writ, we must learn how to be compassionate, sympathetic and deeply interested in mankind. There are many ways in which we can place an arm underneath and help to carry the load of another, whose strength has given out. Sometimes one will unburden his or her woes to us, yearning for just a sympathetic word, or for a little encouragement, when many times we fail in our Christian privileges, and show up our own self-righteousness by words of criticism and rebuke. We make them think that God has apparently chosen us for some mighty place in the Christian life, therefore to condescend to utter a word of compassion, or pray a little prayer, or send one on his way rejoicing in the Lord, is so far beneath us that we lose many blessings from the hand of God, that would otherwise be ours if we would let the scales fall from our eyes so we could see the divine compassion of Jesus as He went about healing the sick, restoring sight to the blind, raising the dead and doing other mighty works. Not a person went away from His presence without a blessing, if they came for one. Not a soul cried out to Him for mercy that He did not hear. He knew that weakness belonged to the human race, and that that which pertains to physical life was uppermost in their minds. To overcome and make anew, each life must undergo a change and become new creatures in Christ Jesus, "For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power" (I Cor. 4:20).

Let us not be too slow in showing forth the real spirit of the "Good Samaritan." Recently we had occasion to see many "Good Samaritans" in action, and since we were the object of the kind attentions, the care, the sympathy and the service which was rendered so graciously, we feel deep down within our hearts that, even though we cannot name the many kindnesses received at the hands of these good people, that our heavenly Father took knowledge of these blessed acts of love in His name, and they will not go without their reward.

I was ill and among strangers, so to speak, in a strange hospital where I was not known and where I knew no one, not even the doctor.

The gratitude I feel toward the hospital and staff, together with the many kindnesses rendered to me while there, will ever live in my heart as a "tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season."

May we help to bless other lives by passing on the kindnesses that come to us, and that will make our own lives shine out as living witnesses for the Christ of Calvary.

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ" (Gal. 6:2).

SECOND SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION HOLDS GOOD SESSION

Speeches on Methods of Teaching Very Good

The Sunday School convention of the Second Union meeting district of the Central Conference of North Carolina convened with King's Cross Roads church on Sunday, October 29. The convention began with congregational singing, using the hymn, "Praise Him, Praise Him."

The first speech was by Brother Tripp who made a very interesting talk on the subject: "The Need for Training S. S. Officers and Teachers." His message was followed by Mrs. Bertha Tripp's talk on the theme: "Methods of Teaching Beginners, Primaries and Juniors."

Mr. Jasper L. Lewis was invited by Mrs. Spivey to speak on the subject: "Methods of Teaching Intermediates, Seniors, and Adults." All of these talks were greatly enjoyed and appreciated by those present.

The various committees were appointed and the ministers present were enrolled in the convention, and given recognition. The convention adjourned for lunch, and everyone enjoyed the splendid dinner which had been prepared by the members of the local church for this occasion.

At the beginning of the afternoon session, the Rocky Mount Sunday School was in charge of the devotions. The convention then entered into a business period, following which Brother Zeb Morgan rendered a musical solo. Oral reports were given by different delegates from the various Sunday schools. Following these reports we again had some splendid music which was rendered by the Conway Quartet.

After the different committees made their reports, a motion was made to give a standing vote of thanks to the local church for the kind hospitality shown this convention. It was then moved that the convention stand adjourn.

A Gentle Deed

In a collection of sermons to children the following beautiful story which is well worth repeating is told. It was in a school of black children in Jamaica. The teacher had made a law that a lie told in the school should be punished by seven strokes on the palm with a strap. One day Lottie Paul told a lie, and was called up to receive the punishment. Lottie was a little girl to whom pain was a terrible experience. But the schoolmaster had to enforce his law, for untruth is an evil thing in a school, and in a child's life. Lottie stood before the master's desk in great fear. Her cry of pain when she received the first stroke went to the teacher's heart. He could not go on with her punishment, but he could not pass by her sin. This is what he did. He looked to the forms where the boys were seated and asked, "Is there any boy who will bear the rest of Lottie's punishment?" A little fellow called Jim started up at once, and said, "Please, sir, I will!" Stepping from his seat to the desk, Jim received without a cry the six remaining strokes. It was a loving heart that prompted the boy to bear the pain for a poor little schoolmate. The teacher did not fail to direct the scholars' vision, as with tears in his eyes, he gathered them around his desk and told them of Him who long before bore the punishment of death for a sinful, ruined race.—Selected.

KEEP COOL!

David F. Nygren

It isn't easy I'll admit
To just sit still and thus permit
Some one to rave and swear and hit
And say you're headed for the pit,
To let him tear just bit by bit
Your name to shreds till not one whit
Is left, and then the field to quit
And take it all and just submit—
It isn't easy, no, it's hard,
You'll have to watch, be on your guard;
But let him rave and play his card,
And carry on his wild bombard,
Each accusation just discard,
His ire and gestures disregard—
In short, though he is wild and coarse,
Smile and consider well the source—
A rule: Just how to treat a fool:
Keep cool!

"I Am Not Fit to Live"

The screams of a woman being beaten to death rent the damp night air near Birmingham, Ala. A husband was beating his wife to death. Early in the morning the husband sought out a friend to help him find his wife. They found her—beside the road, dead!

The man wailed out, "If I killed her, I am not fit to live." Well, he did it but had not planned to, he was drunk at the time. He and his wife started drinking with three men. It was 1:00 p. m., and at a night spot. At 5:00 a. m. he was wailing out his cry.

All the road houses in the land are not worth a single life. Nor all the billions involved in liquor traffic worth a single soul. Those endorsing this condition in our society are endorsing murder multiplied many times, and cannot wash their hands of this blood by not being personally involved in the act.—Editorial in The Alabama Baptist, Sept. 28, 1950.

There are people who seem to take pride in peddling the faults of others. Such people are hard to convince that they are in the wrong. I heard a conscientious preacher say, "I had a lady, a member of my church, and she was a 'tattler' in reality. One day I prepared a sermon and preached on tating, and did every thing that a man could do to present that truth to her, except call her name. When I had finished, this lady met me at the pulpit and said, 'preacher, I am so glad you preached that sermon today, maybe it will help Sister _____, calling the name of another sister in the church.'" So, we cannot see our own faults. But we can see and peddle the faults of others. Some times we go out of our way to expose the faults of some fellow, who may be just as good at heart as we, but the weakness of his flesh overpowered him. Instead of lifting him up, I find some people who seem to want to push him deeper in the mud. Those fellows who brought the woman to the Lord Jesus had "the spirit of stoning in their heart," but Jesus said, "Ye that are without sin cast the first stone." Their mouths were stopped. They had to back out.

Silence does not always mark wisdom.

Thanks for Pain

My God, I thank thee who hast made
The earth so bright;
So full of splendor and of joy,
Beauty and light;
So many glorious things are here,
Noble and right.

I thank thee, too, that thou hast made
Joy to abound;
So many gentle thoughts and deeds
Circling us round;
That in the darkest spot of earth
Some love is found.

I thank thee more that all our joy
Is touched with pain;
That shadows fall on brightest hours;
That thorns remain;
So that earth's bliss may be our guide
And not our chain.

I thank thee, Lord, that thou hast kept
The best in store;
We have enough, yet not too much,
To long for more;
A yearning for a deeper peace
Not known before.

I thank thee, Lord, that here our souls
Though amply blest,
Can never find, although they seek,
A perfect rest;
Nor never shall until they lean
On Jesus' breast.

A FEW BIBLE TRUTHS

B. E. Coxwell

Eve was the first person on earth to commit sin, and Adam was the second. From their transgressions, all came under the curse of sin. In Christ all was made alive. He removed that Adamic transgression so that all people might be relieved of the curse who did not sin, or until those who sinned themselves. A person has to become as a little child, innocent, to be able to enter heaven.

God caused Solomon to be the wisest man that ever lived, because he preferred wisdom to riches. Now, Christ said that there was not any man born of woman greater than John the Baptist, who had to suffer his head to be executed from his body because of a sinful woman. Remember, Peter was Christ's first disciple, and He sifted him as wheat, and prayed for him. Peter would have fallen away and have been eternally lost if Christ had not prayed for him.

Dear people, the Devil has tried me several times, thinking that I would fall and become one of his subjects. Has he tried you and are you standing firm for Jesus. Samson was a great man, according to the Bible, for the Lord gave to him strength, but his wife betrayed him. Like Eve, she transgressed, and Samson lost his strength when his hair was cut short. The Devil is wise and deceitful at all time, and you have to watch him on every hand. Noah preached a long time, some say about 120 years, and not a soul did he save. But I would not say that, for we do not know how much influence he had on his wife and his three sons and their wives. Only 3 souls entered the Ark. Others might have been saved before the flood came. There will be some who will not be saved when Christ returns again to earth.

Some say that there are a great many more divorces now than there were years ago. And some claim that they did not get the right person for a husband or wife, and that is the cause of so many divorces, and that the Lord did not have anything to do with them, that is, He did not join them together. Remember, the Devil still has his eye on you, seeking to cause you to stumble, or to fall into his sinful ways. Note, he fooled Adam and Eve, and so he is fooling people today, and causing many divorces everywhere.

John the Baptist was the first to baptize by immersion, which represented Christ's burial and resurrection (Romans 6). Christ was the One Who taught the sacred ordinance of Feetwashing as a token of love. Paul also taught it, as he was a close follower of Christ. This is what we should do, in accordance to Christ's command, if we want to enter the pearly gate, because that is a great example of humility and service which Christ instituted in the Upper Room when He established the Lord's Supper.

"THOU ART INEXCUSABLE, O MAN"

I have just been reading an article in the Baptist by Rev. C. F. Bowen, about our mission work. It should awaken us to the point that God isn't slack concerning His promises. Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." Jesus has sent men and women forth into the mission fields, but we who are home are slack in our duties to God and our fellow man. We are very slack concerning our promises to God. How many times when we want God to do something for us, that we promise, God that we will obey him, will just do everything God wants us to do. If He will just answer our prayer to put over what we want done. But then after our prayers have been answered, we soon forget.

Christians, how many times does God tell us to leave off unnecessary and trivial things, and pay our debts? To whom? To our fellow man, who has not heard of the name of Christ. Aren't we at least in Zion when we can recline in our easy chairs with a full stomach and say, "Let someone else do it, I have a big job to feed my own family." Feeling you can justify your selves, and just keep on reclining in your easy chair.

Let us look at a great man, when he was only twelve years old. He said, "Don't you know I must be about by father's business?" Jesus sets the example, to start at an early age to be about our Father's business.

How must we know what is our Father's business? First, after we are converted, God puts a loving spirit in our heart of wanting to tell others. It is a heart of love and compassion for others. Jesus says, "Love thy neighbor as thy self." Who are our neighbors and who should we be neighbors to? Those we can help, of course. If our neighbor is cold, give him clothing. We owe that to him for he is in need. If he is hungry feed him. We owe it to him. If he is sick minister unto him. We owe it to him, for we are well, we are God's children to walk in the way Jesus set the example for when He was on earth. He doesn't tell us to do something He wouldn't do Himself. He ministered to the needs of others, and told us to do likewise.

Jesus did missionary work. He took his gospel of love to the lost. We owe it to our heathen friends. Jesus died that they might have this same salvation we enjoy in our own lives. We are indebted to our neighbor to take the gospel to them, we have it, and it's for them too. We must not forget our missionaries, for our Bible tells us: "A workman is worthy of his hire." If our brothers and sisters are laboring in God's service to keep our neighbors, we have not done our duty to God until we have fulfilled our part that we can do here at home, give, give, give, and pray and pray until we are willing to let God have His way in our lives, that we are completely surrendered to the will of our Father.

Christian brothers and sisters, this missionary problem is weighing heavily on my heart. The question keeps coming to me: What are our missionaries thinking since their projects had to come to a stand still? Their zeal is hanging loosely in their hands, and their burdens weighing heavily on their hearts. Just stop and think, Christians, how would you feel, and how could you take care of your family if your employer failed to hand over your pay check at the end of the month? Your depending on him keeping his word. In other words you are dependent on him, for his word means the livelihood of your family is by your labor.

That is the same way with our missionaries. Our word means the financial backing to our missionaries, and their labors mean the salvation of many who know not Christ, until through their efforts have brought the Holy message of God to them.

Let us make a vow and keep it to pay off this debt to our missionaries, and then keep ourselves clear of indebtedness, by being careful and pay our tithes first. God will bless us, and we can get along good on our salaries.

By keeping in touch with God, our hearts will be touched by the pleas of our missionaries when they say, "Do your part that we may do ours."

Remember, God says, "Owe no man." We are in debt to our fellowman. Let us mind God.

Expressions of Thanks and Appreciations

We take this method of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends, relatives, and neighbors, for their words and tokens of sympathy and consolation during the hours of our deepest sadness and bereavement of the loss of our loving companion and Mother, Mrs. R. B. Spencer. Her sudden illness and unexpected death in a few hours were so sudden and shocking that we were unable to understand just why she had to go from us as she did.

We shall long remember the kind words, deeds of kindness, and tokens of love from our many friends, churches, woman's auxiliaries, conferences and Sunday School conventions who were so thoughtful of us in our moments of deep sorrow and heartaches.

Again we want to say that we thank everyone who sent telegrams, cards and letters and flowers to us, expressing their sympathy and deep concern over the passing of our dear companion and mother.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

OUR VISIT TO THE CENTRAL

We had the privilege to visit the Central Conference of North Carolina in its "two-hundredth and second session" on the 8th of November. I was only there the first day. I was accorded the happy privilege of presenting the book, "His Name Among All Nations," by Miss Laura Belle Barnard, by the courtesy of the moderator, Rev. D. W. Alexander. We sold several copies to friends of the Foreign Mission cause by our people. We praise God for these who wanted more knowledge of history of our church and at the same time more willing to take a copy of this fine book. Every minister should have a copy of this book. Not only does the book carry a message, but the $2.00 for it helps the treasurer of the Foreign Mission program.

DAWSON'S GROVE CHURCH

It was my happy privilege to take my wife to Dawson's Grove church, near Enfield on the ninth of November where she taught the Woman's Auxiliary during the day and I showed pictures of our work at the Bible College and Cragmont Assembly together with "The Door to Heaven," and "Good Tidings," these being sound pictures. I have never visited a people that seemed to be more appreciative than these good people. "By their fruits ye shall know them," said the Master. Our reception was grand and we enjoyed the fellowship. Dawson's Grove is not large in membership, but it is strong in the faith. Several years ago, Brother J. H. Harris, Sr., moved to that community and purchased property. The church is made up largely of the Harris family. The children of Brother J. H. Harris, Sr., and his children's children with some other fine Christians are deeply interested. Rev. J. R. Forest of New Bern, is the pastor and doing a fine work.

RUTH'S CHAPEL

We closed out a series of meetings at Ruth's Chapel last Tuesday night (Nov. 7th) in which God wonderfully blessed. The congregation from the beginning was good. The seating capacity of the church was overrun several nights so that extra chairs had to be brought in for the seating. Mrs. L. E. Ballard conducted the singing, in which she led the children in chorus singing and the regular congregational singing was "tops."

We were favored with three different male quartets during the meeting and one solo by a visitor who desired to help in the work.

We said that the meeting closed the 7th, but it did not close in results. For a large attendance was evidenced in the prayer meeting on Friday night and then Sunday November the 12 we had three more who gave themselves unto Christ and who testified that they were "saved," and one received by letter. We baptized sixteen Sunday afternoon. In all there were seventeen conversions according to testimony and three received by letter and there is one more to be baptized now, which will make twenty additions to the church from the meeting and with the following Sunday.

I know that some are about ready to say, "Griffin is bragging." But not on Griffin, bless your life. I am "bragging" on Jesus Christ, my wonderful Saviour who can save and who will save when people will repent and call on His precious name.

May I say that Ruth's Chapel has one of the finest groups of young people to be found anywhere. There are others who are just as good, but you have to pick for them.

SEA LEVEL MEETING

I have promised to conduct a revival meeting at Sea Level, Carteret County, in the Free Will Baptist church for the pastor, Rev. L. E. Styron, beginning Monday after the third Sunday. This meeting will be going when these lines are in print. If you get these lines in time, just whisper a prayer for the salvation of lost souls.

GETHSEMANE CHURCH REVIVAL

Rev. Sam Kennedy, pastor of the Gethsemane F. W. B. church, Tuscarora, N. C., closed out a meeting for his congregation Sunday and had the baptism jointly with us at Bridgeton F. W. B. Church. The Bridgeton people granted us the privilege to use the baptistry, which privilege we greatly appreciated. I believe that Brother Sam baptized nine. He led the devotions and I preached the sermon and we made the altar call in which God blessed and two fine boys confessed and were baptized for Ruth's Chapel, which made the three for Sunday as referred to under the caption, Ruth's Chapel.

ANNOUNCEMENT

This is to inform my friends that we have moved from Saratoga, North Carolina, to Davis, North Carolina. Those who should like to communicate with us may do so by addressing their communications to us at the new address.

LOYAL CHAPEL CHURCH, COLUMBIA, TENN.

By Freda Price

Monday night, October 30th, 1950, Rev. J. B. Bloss, pastor of Loyal Chapel Church, was greatly surprised when he answered the door of his home to be greeted with a chorus of voices singing, "Happy Birthday."

The throng of people who flocked to his house to celebrate his sixty-sixth birthday were but few of the many who love this humble man of God, with his concern for the lost and great love for humanity.

God has blessed Loyal Chapel Church by putting Brother Bloss in its midst and our prayer is that, in the years to come, God will give him more abundant, physical and spiritual strength to lead the souls who seek a refuge in the wisdom of his teachings and guidance.

Loyal Chapel Church celebrated its traditional Home-Coming Day, Sunday, November 5. The church was organized November 9, 1938, by a small, but zealous group of people, twelve years ago. God has blessed in a mighty way throughout these years and it has grown abundantly.

The usual morning services, Sunday school and the eleven o'clock message, conducted by Rev. Bloss, were followed by dinner, which was served in the basement.

The Maury County Singing Convention met with us in the afternoon. There were numerous quartettes and special singers from various parts of the country.

The church could not hold the hundreds of people who came to hear the praise of God ring out in joyful song.

We can but humbly thank God for this place of worship, for what it means to this community and the Holy Spirit which dwells, immeasurably, in the hearts of those who congregate within its walls.

We'd like to take this opportunity to invite all those, who can and will, to meet with us for singing; held every fourth Sunday night at seven o'clock. If you can sing or if you enjoy good singing, we give to you a hearty welcome.

Our pastor, Rev. Bloss, asks us so often, "Are we as close to God as we should be?" Let each and every one of us search the very realms of our hearts and draw nigh unto Christ, our Saviour.

It is often better to have a great deal of harm happen to one than a little: a great deal may rouse you to remove, what a little will only accustom you to endure.—Greville

Stanley's African Letter

Harry J. Albus

Lots of people know about Henry M. Stanley, the famous explorer, who found David Livingstone. In fact many people even know that Stanley discovered the second largest lake in the world, hidden away in the jungles of Africa. Stanley named the lake Nyasa in honor of England's great Queen Victoria. But few people know the amazing story of a special letter Stanley once wrote.

He wrote this letter one day in an African village during one of his travels. On this particular journey he visited Uganda. When he first landed in Uganda he was met by a large crowd. Bright flags waved, tom-toms sounded and trumpets blew.

Through the rows of welcoming people Stanley was led to the king. The king's name was Mutesa. The old king was half heathen and half Mohammedan.

For many days Stanley told the king about the great world outside and about the white man's God. It was about the white man's God that Mutesa was most interested and he would sit for hours listening while Stanley told about God, the heavenly Father, and about Jesus.

Tears streamed down the old dark-skinned warrior's face as Stanley told him about how God had sent His Son to the earth to live and die among men, and how Jesus had been spit upon, pierced and nailed to the Cross.

"And best of all, Mutesa," Stanley told him in the native tongue, "is the fact that Jesus died for you. He died for you, King Mutesa, that your sins might be forgiven."

The old chieftain was so moved by the story that he begged his white friend, who was not a missionary, to send them a teacher to tell them more about God.

That night Stanley paced the floor of his tent as he prayed to God for wisdom.

"Lord, how can I get a missionary to tell this tribe more about Jesus?" Stanley prayed. "I'll not get back to England for months and I must soon leave this tribe to go further into the jungles. Oh God! What will I do?"

After much prayer over the matter, Stanley suddenly came upon an idea. Why not write a letter asking for missionaries.

In a matter of a couple of hours the letter was written. But there was no postoffice, no train, no stage-coach and no letter carrier and he was a thousand miles from any ship.

His next problem was how to get the letter back to England.

After further thought and prayer, he decided to send a young Frenchman, who was anxious to return home, back to England with the letter.

Early the next morning the young Frenchman set out, with the letter, on the dangerous journey down the Nile through the wild country towards Egypt.

Making his way through the jungles he was soon discovered by a wild tribe of savages. Soon the tribe took out after the Frenchman, determined to take his life.

When the young Frenchman saw the tribesmen following him he increased his speed, in a desperate attempt to escape. Running through the jungles he prayed, "Oh God, somehow, some way get the letter through."

But the tribesmen vastly outnumbered him and on the banks of the Nile he was killed by the band of savages and robbed. His dead body was left unburied on the dry hot sand.

Months passed . . . the letter seemed destined not to reach England.

Then one day some English soldiers found the bones of his body. His boots were lying nearby. Searching through the boots they found to their amazement a letter hidden inside—it was the letter written by Stanley.

They sent the letter to the governor in Egypt, who sent it to England. After seven months it finally reached London and was printed in The Daily Telegraph.

Here is part of that letter:

"King Mutesa of Uganda has been asking me about the white man's God. Although I had not expected turning a missionary, for days, I have been telling this black king all the Bible stories I know—he has further caused the Ten Commandments as well as the Lord's prayer and the golden commandment of our Savior, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," to be written on boards for his daily reading.

"Oh, that some pious, practical missionary would come here!"

Do you know what happened as a result of that letter? Seven Christian young men who read it in the Daily Telegraph went to Uganda as missionaries, preaching Christ.

One of these young men was Alexander McKay, the famous missionary who won thousands of African natives to the Lord Jesus.

I thank Thee God for the wind that blows,
For the sun that shines so bright,
For the beautiful moon above that glows,
And the stars that twinkle at night.

For the rain that falls from the clouds

And the snow so soft and white,
For the birds that sing their songs of love
And the peacefulness of night.

I thank Thee God for the trees so green,
And the cool of the shade beneath;
For the rippling waters ever to be seen
And the flowers disseminate as a wreath.

I thank Thee God for a peaceful land,
Over here, where all is quiet;
Where children frolic hand in hand,
No bomb shelters to run to with fright.

Auxiliary of White Oak Grove

The Woman's Auxiliary of White Oak Grove met on Friday night, November 3, 1950, at the home of Mrs. Frank Lane. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. William Coltrain. The Lord's Prayer was repeated by all. The scripture was read by Mrs. Reginald Foss. The program for November, "Advancing with Christ through Tithing," was enjoyed by all. After the program was completed, the secretary called the roll, and read the minutes of the last meeting. At this meeting 26 members present; 176 sick visits made; 12 trays given to the sick; 19 bunches of flowers carried to the sick; 502 chapters read; 3 wreaths bought; 5 sunshine baskets given this year.

An offering was taken for the aged ministers, amounting to $5.00.

It was agreed to send $5.00 to the Orphanage. In the spring $10.00 was given the Orphanage for an electric stove.

$5.50 for missions in April.

A few minutes of silent prayer for the boys in Korea were had at this time.

The closing prayer was by the president, Mrs. Coltrain. The hostess then served refreshments that were enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Catherine Wood, Friday night before 1st Sunday in December.

Thanks be unto the Lord that our church, Sunday school, Woman's auxiliary, and League are growing. Pray that we may be true and faithful always, and co-workers with God.

LEE'S CHAPEL AUXILIARY HAS GOOD MEETING

Harvest Day Great Success

Our auxiliary women met in their regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Myrlene Hawley for the month of October. There were twenty members present for this meeting. Mrs. Harvey Hinson, the president, conducted the devotions, and offered several helpful suggestions for the good of the members present. She said, among other good things, "It is not the things we say, but those that we do that count most."

Mrs. Nathan L. Godwin gave a very helpful talk on the study: "Advancing with Christ through Missions in India." Some mission work was done by one of our members, Mrs. Anna Stone who wrote a little playlet entitled, "Go Tell." It was given by some of the members of the Y. W. A. This inspired us very much to be more missionary-minded for the cause of Christ in the foreign lands.

The Harvest Day at the church proved to be a great success. At the eleven o'clock hour there was a sermon delivered, and following this a splendid dinner was served on the church grounds.

The afternoon session was opened with the selling of the products that were brought to the church. These products were given by the different members. Mr. Harvey Hinson auctioneered them off for the auxiliary, and he did a fine job of it. It was a good day for all of us, and much interest was taken by everyone present.

Our next auxiliary meeting will be held with Mrs. Allene Elmore in November. We especially invite all of the members to be present for this meeting. Also visitors are invited to come and be with us.

Saint Mary's Grove Auxiliary Holds Meeting

Our Auxiliary held a very good meeting Thursday night, November 9, in the home of Mrs. Joel A. Johnson, Jr. The program leader presented a very interesting program, the theme being: "Advancing with Christ through Tithing." It told of the great work the Free Will Baptists are doing toward advancing with Christ by sending out missionaries, establishing orphanages and hospitals, and expanding our Bible College, which takes our tithes to support.

We all brought groceries to Mrs. Lula Beasley who is sick, and we also agreed when to take our supplies to the orphanage.

Our Christmas meeting will be held with our president, Mrs. Cora Coats. We agreed to exchange gifts also.

CO-WORKER IN CHRIST

How I wish I could chat awhile, but I am having a "desperate race" with the post-man because I want you to have this in time to get it in the next issue of The Free Will Baptist.

For years, as you know, there has been request after request for report slips to be used at our Auxiliary meetings. They can now be had and since I did not know this when I sent out the letter in September which announced Auxiliary literature available this year, I know of no other way to let our women know quickly about his new item. I am having some price leaflets mimeographed but it will be several weeks before they are ready for mailing. I will be so grateful to you if you will give this announcement a very prominent place on your page in the next issue of the paper.

Happy Thanksgiving to you and yours!

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Agnes B. Frazier

AND BE YE THANKFUL

The Psalmist asked, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" (Psalm 116:12).

Perhaps this question comes to us from time to time, especially at this season of the year, when the harvest has been so bountiful and God has been so good. He knows our needs and supplies them according to His will. We hear much muttering, fault-finding and grumbling, because something dear to us has not been set in pleasing places, or in keeping with our pet

BECAUSE OF RUSHED CONDITIONS, ORDER LITERATURE EARLY

Here at the Press the employees are quite busy getting the Sunday School and League literature for the first quarter of the new year ready for shipments before the Christmas holidays begin. Some orders have already been received, and others are still coming. Since the orders will be larger and also since the sales are constantly on the increase, it will press the employees to be able to fill all orders as they come in, therefore we are urging all Sunday Schools and Young People's Leagues to place their orders right away, so that we will have ample time to fill them on time for use beginning with the new year.

Last quarter quite a number of the Sunday Schools increased the size of their orders over the previous quarter. We are expecting this coming quarter to be even larger in a great many cases than the closing quarter. But, if the secretaries will see to it that they make out their orders in full and ample to care for all their needs during the first quarter, we shall do our best to supply everyone with all the literature that they shall need for their Sunday Schools and Leagues. A greater interest is being shown all the while in our Sunday School and League quarterlies. This is due, probably, to the improved appearance of the quarterlies.

It has been said by some that a number of our Sunday Schools are buying their quarterlies from other publishing houses. Well, that is their privilege, however, we would be glad to serve them as we are other Sunday Schools. We receive frequently here at the office commendations from leaders of other denominations concerning the contents of the quarterlies. Those persons have said that our lessons are on par with other Sunday School quarterlies with respect to scripture content, comments and expositions by the writers of our quarterlies. For these favorable comments we are thankful, and greatly appreciative of the same. For, after all, the worth of any Sunday School quarterly is contained in the contents of the lessons, and the spiritual good that Sunday School classes derive from the study of them. We stand ready to serve one and all alike.

desires. Sometime during the year rebellion against the misfortunes that have been ours has perhaps filled our hearts, and we have turned away from a loving Father who would have gathered us together as a "hen gathereth her chickens, and ye would not." He would have quelled our uneasy experiences with "All things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose." (Rom. 8:28). "Do you thus requite the Lord, O foolish people and unwise? Is not He thy Father that hath bought thee? Hath He not made thee, and established thee?" (Deut. 32:6). This is what He is saying to those whose hearts are filled with ingratitude this Thanksgiving Day. Christ knew ingratitude from personal experience, for He said in Jn. 10:32, "Many good works have I showed you from my Father: for which of those works do ye stone me?" We need to "Let the peace of God rule in our hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body: and be ye thankful" (Col. 3:15). "In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you" (I Thess. 5:18).

In Psalm 107, the Psalmist exclaims three times, "Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men." In the 1st and 2nd verses of this chapter, he reminds us again by saying, "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for his mercy endureth forever. Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy."

Regardless of the fact that we are living in "perilous times," that the world is apparently in chaos, men are having a form of godliness but are denying the power thereof," greed for power among the nations is filling hearts and minds of our national leaders and war and rumors of war are devastating to the extreme, and we say, "The end is not in sight." This is true, but if we stand firm and faithful to the Christ who has bought us with His own precious blood, we shall not "fear what man can do unto us, for they are not able to kill the soul," but may we trust Him who is able to make all grace abound toward us. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee" (Jer. 17:17).

If sickness, death, disappointments, financial reverses, troubles and sorrows, mental disturbances or other bitter experiences have been ours, if we really know our Lord, we can say with Job, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him." This is a manifestation of our faith, when we submit humbly to the Father's will concerning us. Let us notice how the Psalmist answered his own question in Psalm 116:13, 14. "I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people." Maybe we need to renew our covenant with the Lord, and enjoy this salvation that was purchased on Calvary, that we might be saved and have access to the throne of grace, through His shed blood, and that our fellowship with Him might be free of restraint or hindrances.

Not in mere words should we praise Him, but with the first fruits of all our increase, with our tithes and offerings, our love one toward another, which is the badge of true discipleship. "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my Redeemer" (Psalm 19:14).

May we strive to forget the things that make us unhappy—things that we cannot alter, no matter how we may complain and mutter against them, but let us take the advice of David in Psalm 37:4, 5. "Delight thyself also in the Lord: and he shall give thee the desires of thy heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord: and he shall give thee the desires of thy heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and He shall bring it to pass." May we never cease to give thanks unto the Lord for all His blessings and benefits unto us. Ingratitude for His unmerited favor makes Satan rejoice, while it brings sorrow to the great heart of our heavenly Father.

"And a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye His servants, and ye that fear Him, both small and great" (Rev. 19:5).

"Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise; be thankful unto Him and bless his name" (Ps. 100:4).

Evangelicals Active in Missions

Missionary Help Goes to Korea

Office of Affairs
National Association of Evangelicals
542 South Dearborn St., Chicago 5, Illinois

Evangelism in Hawaii—Dr. Clyde W. Taylor, reporting on his trip to Hawaii, from Tokyo, Japan, says: "The Islands offer an unusual challenge to Evangelism. There are at least 200,000 Buddhists, not more than 40% of whom have heard the Gospel. The large number of mixed oriental races have many thousands of young people who are leaving their traditional beliefs and must be reached with the Gospel now. In a majority of the new churches up to 75% of the congregations are composed of young people under thirty years of age. United Evangelical effort in the Islands will help meet the tremendous challenge at this hour.

Relief for Korea—Many organizations are trying to gain publicity by sponsoring drives for relief for Korea. The relief situation is in a wild stage at the present time and evangelicals are warned to watch out for a recurrence of the same tricks that were used after the last war.

Pathetic appeals have come from Christians in Korea for clothing before winter. As Christ's own, we are anxious to help immediately. The World Relief Commission of NAE and the Washington Office have been working on the problem of sending aid to Korea "on an evangelical basis." The answer is that this is impossible at the present time. Free cargo space on Army Transports has been promised but is not available. Anything sent to Korea stands the danger of falling into the wrong hands, either through the government or black market operators.

More appeals will come as the work of reconstruction and relief grows. Evangelicals are assured that when the time comes that relief can be placed in the hands of Christians in Korea to be used with a witness for Christ, their goods will have space "on the first boat". Requests for information and offers for help will be handled by the World Relief Commission, Frank D. Lombar, Executive Director, 536 West 46th Street, New York 17, N. Y.

News about Korea—Mr. Kilbourne of the Oriental Missionary Society in Japan has sent news that the government is giving permission for ten missionaries to enter Korea from Japan. He says, "They hope to be off soon, and one of our group is among the ten." This is heartening news for Christians indeed.

More News from Colombia—The "Mensaje Evangelico," monthly paper published for forty years in Cali by Mr. Chapman, was suspended by the government. An appeal was made and the suspension was revoked. Thank God that this witness can continue.

Evangelical Indians of the village of Ortego, municipality of Cajibío, Cauca, are being fined $10.00 pesos for having Bibles in their homes. These things, along with the packages of books being returned to the U. S., and the fact that the Bible Society is having difficulty getting import licenses for scriptures, show again that there is no religious liberty in Colombia.

Announcement

I have just purchased the new sound color movie film of our Bible School and Missionary work in Cuba to be used in North Carolina. Any church that may desire to have this picture shown to their people for their information and inspiration may arrange it by writing to Rev. Rashie Kennedy, 713 Simmons Street, Goldsboro, North Carolina. At each showing a free will offering will be taken for Foreign Missions.

FROM THE FIELD

Rev. Raymond Riggs
Promotional Secretary
F. W. B. Foreign Mission Board
242 Victor Avenue,
Highland Park 3, Michigan
Dear Brother Riggs:

May I speak, sir?

Spasmodic giving and special drives can never bring us financial security in our Mission endeavors. We must settle upon some specific and definite plan and stick to it. The quicker we get to a regular monthly income from our churches, the sooner the headaches will be relieved.

While this Board is planning to go along with you in promotion of a monthly system of giving, and we are working with our churches in that direction, we know it will take time to develop it, and in the meantime the work will be financed. You can count on us. Gifts, will, of course, go through our State Office.

We are going all-out, in-so-far as it is possible, to develop a penny-a-meal, plan among our churches. We will subscribe to support a part of the students, and a part of the native Missionary Workers. It will take us a few weeks to get it set up, but we are going after the job.

One native Worker at minimum of $30.00 is subscribed. It is a definite certainty. Send us, please, the name and address of the native worker assigned to pledge.

THE STEWARDSHIP OF LIFE

(Lesson for December 3)

LESSON: Romans 12:1-8; 2 Corinthians 8:3-5; Philippians 2:25-30.

GOLDEN TEXT: Illuminated.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service" (Rom. 12:1).

Our text for today is a forgotten verse by most of our generation. We are at the crest of a wave of self-indulgence in America, and the appetites and pleasures of the flesh are the chief concern of too many of our people. The high-priced restaurants which serve the most exotic dishes are the most popular, and the cocktail bars in the average city are more crowded than the church services and the prayer meeting rooms. More than seventy per cent of the national income is squandered on the body in one form or another—less than three per cent goes for spiritual purposes.

In the face of these facts it seems as though the words of our text for today as wasted, falling upon deaf ears. But it is not to the world at large God addressed these words—they are beamed at the choice minority of the saved who also desire to make their lives count for God. To them Paul cries, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." This is a challenge that is directed mainly to common sense: it is the service required by "reason."

There are many logical reasons why our bodies, as well as our souls, should belong to God and be used in His service. It is in this world and right now that God needs our aid, and most men are afraid of "spirits!" Only when you come to them in a physical body will men meet you on the ground of common understanding. It is your fleshly tongue that must preach the Gospel and sing of God's grace, and feet are needed to carry the message, even as hands must serve Him in this world. The great salvation which He has so freely provided entails an obligation on all who revel in its freedom—this is the "therefore" which impels the Apostle to beseech you to be reasonable and repay God as far as you are able with service that is full and complete.—Selected

II. THE HEART OF THE LESSON

1. "Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith," verse 6. People differ as to their talents or capabilities, some become good teachers, others excellent preachers, while still others make splendid musicians. Paul, recognizing this fact, urged the Roman brethren to make use of their God-given talents for the cause of righteousness. He pointed out to them that individual talents differ with the grace that is given to each person. If a specific talent, for example, is that of prophecy, they were to use it in proportion to their faith. If it were practical Christian service, as helping the poor, visiting the sick, offering prayer for the bereaved and suffering—whatever it might be—let them attend to that service for the glory of God.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

2. "And this they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God."

Three truths regarding giving may be stressed in these verses. First, that the Philippians had sent their gift in time of need. Verse 10 indicates that these Christians had been willing to send a gift to Paul previously, but "lacked opportunity." The opportunity arose, the time of need came, and the Philippians were not slow in sharing in Paul's need. The apostle speaks of their fellowship with him in their gift as "ye did well that ye had fellowship with my affliction" (v. 14). Certainly the children of God should keep informed and be as sensitive to the leading of the Holy Spirit as possible in order that they may ascertain the proper time for sending their gifts.—Moody Monthly.

3. In the last section of our lesson Paul speaks of Epaphroditus, who was worthy of honor "because for the work of Christ he was nigh unto death, not regarding his life." He may be taken as an example of people who are willing to make real sacrifices for the cause of God. In this regard Paul himself was a pre-eminent example. How many of us know the meaning of real sacrifice for Christ's sake? There are some who do, and some who go to distant lands and even risk their lives to carry the gospel to others. In years past there have been many who have undergone severe privation in order to proclaim the gospel in our own land. Where sacrifice is necessary to achieve that end yet, let us through our gifts or in other ways help to bear the load, as Epaphroditus and the people who went with him did in bringing cheer and the necessities of life to Paul.—Arnold's Commentary

We can make this last section of our lesson practical by placing gifts in Brother Riggs' hands for our missionaries in Cuba and India.

III. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED

A policeman in Birmingham, becoming a Christian, was so greatly troubled by the sights and sounds and sin among which he worked that for a long time he and his wife prayed: "Lord, take me out of the police service. Give me some other work." Still no answer came and no other work was opened for him. At last he said to his wife: "I think we have been making a great mistake. We have been praying that I may be taken out of the force, and I begin to think that he has put me there to work. Now I am just going to pray that he will help me serve him where I am."

This was the beginning of a life of marvelous usefulness. His influence over the men was so great that he was promoted to be the head of detectives. He was instrumental in saving many criminals.—W. A. Burch.

Second Union, Central Conference of North Carolina

The second union meeting district met with King's Cross Roads church, on October 28. Rev. C. J. Harris, Moderator, was present to preside over the meeting during the morning session. Rev. R. B. Crawford, Assistant Moderator, filled the chair during the afternoon.

A number of ministers attended the meeting. There were nine present who are members of this union district. Four were visiting ministers. They were: Reverends M. L. Johnson, N. D. Beaman, Bruce Barrow, and Allen Bryan.

Rev. J. E. Wooten brought the first message for the day. The program theme was Orphanage and Superannuation. Brother Wooten's subject was "What Is Superannuation Work?"

The second message was delivered in song. Miss Claudia Pollard and Mrs. Jean Pollard sang "Near to the Heart of God."

Rev. C. L. Patrick spoke on the subject: "Our Accomplishments, Opportunities, and Obligations," as a Union relating to Orphanage and Superannuation. After this very interesting talk the ushers received an offering for our Middlesex Orphanage. It amounted to 50.00.

Rev. D. A. Windham led in congregational singing. Rev. M. L. Johnson preached the Union sermon. His topic was "Serving Our Saviour thru Superannuation." Rev. N. D. Beaman dismissed us for lunch.

At 1:00 we reassembled. Rev. Allen Bryan had charge of the opening devotions. King's Crossroads choir sang a song. Rev. Bruce Barrow spoke on the subject: "Opportunities of an Orphanage."

Rev. D. W. Alexander made a report on our F. W. B. Bible College. He urged that all churches help raise money for the college building fund. It was moved that the union take an offering which will be divided equally between the college and foreign missions.

This collection amounted to 32.20, before it was divided.

Saints Delight Church at Ormondsville invited the Union to meet there next session. We voted to accept the invitation. Another item of business was to elect an assistant moderator and Program Committee chairman as Brother R. B. Crawford is moving to another district, thereby leaving his two offices vacant. The union regrets to see Brother Crawford leave, as he has been a great asset to our union. His services will not be forgotten. The moderator appointed Mrs. N. A. Clark to fill his place on the program committee. He did not appoint an assistant moderator as we will elect new officers in our December meeting.

We extended a rising vote of thanks to the King's Cross Roads Church for the splendid hospitality shown the union.

Sleep is Death's younger brother, and so like him, that I never dare trust him without my prayers.

Sir T. Brown

HOW ARE YOU CLOTHED?

"BE CLOTHED WITH HUMILITY"

(I Peter 5:5)

A. B. Simpson

No Garment is more becoming to the child of God than the gracious garment of humility and none is better styled to please the Lover of our souls.

Humility will save you from self-consciousness. It will take away from you the shadow of yourself and the constant sense of your own importance. It will save you from self-assertion and from thrusting your own personality upon the thoughts and the attention of others. It will save you from the desire of display, from being prominent, from occupying the center of the stage, from being the object of observation and attention. It will save you from vanity about your personal appearance, your dress, your style of living, or your abilities or attractions.

Humility will save you from that which is deeper and more subtle—the pride which does not care for vain display but which finds its secret satisfaction in ones own superiority or talents or birth or spirituality or wealth or success. It will give you that modesty which "vaunteth not itself," and give you a love which "doth not behave itself unseemingly," literally, "which is not rude," which does not slight others or show its sense of irritation or superiority by rude manners.

Humility will keep you from talking about yourself or your own affairs and assuming that other people are as much interested as you are in your achievements. It will save you from taking offence because people seem to ignore you, because people are as much interested as you are in your achievements. It will save you from taking offence because people seem to ignore you, because perhaps your pastor did not recognize you or call upon you. It will save you from arrogance, haughtiness, and self-importance in your manners and bearing.

Humility takes all that out of us, and makes us unassuming, natural, and simple. It will save you from reviewing your own work after it is done, and from feeling self-complacent because you have done it well; or, what is equally vain, chagrin because you did it poorly. The very chagrin shows that you expected something for yourself and, in your vanity and pride, were disappointed. It will save you from looking for flattery and praise from others when your work is done. The humble Christian will simply do his best and leave it with the Lord, and not look for any reward in the plaudits of men; his supreme recompense: "The Master praises; what are men?"

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

"TOO MANY BANANAS"

Dorothea S. Pfautz

Too many bananas! Who ever heard of a boy having too many bananas? That's what Jimmy Norton thought when his mother brought home a dozen from town one day and gave him only one. Yes, it was the biggest one in the sack, too.

"I just know I could eat every one of them. Please, Mother, one more anyway, just one more," Jimmy pleaded.

Mother smiled and gave her boy another one but said, "Too many bananas will make you sick."

Jimmy could not answer because his mouth was too full but he was thinking, "Mother may know a lot of things but I can't figure how a fellow could get sick eating bananas." Anyway, he decided he would never have a chance to prove his mother was wrong because he did not always get even two to eat like he did today. "Sometimes I want to save the rest to eat with our cereal for breakfast," or "I think your father would like banana pudding for supper tonight."

Jimmy came to this conclusion: he would never have all the bananas he could eat, that is not until he was big like his father. Then he got to thinking about all the things he would do when he was grown up.

Jimmy ran out in the yard and began playing with his dog. "You know, Spot," he confided quite confidently, "I've about decided that I'd rather run a fruit market like Toni than be a railroad engineer. Yes, sir, Spot, I think that would be nicer. Don't you think so?"

Spot wagged his tail hard and his young master was sure he agreed.

Perhaps this is why Jimmy was tempted so severely one day. He and his mother went to town to do their weekly marketing. Mother drove the car and Jimmy always opened the garage doors and shut them. He liked to do that for he was sure he was growing up pretty fast. Just last year he learned how to lock and unlock the garage doors. You had to know just how to put the key in, too, to make it work.

They stopped at a department store and Mrs. Norton bought some dress material. Then they went to the ten-cent store, of course. Jimmy bought a whistle and he had a hard time to keep from blowing it in the store. He liked the sound of it very much. "I think it sounds almost as good as Mr. Jackson's, the policeman. Don't you think so, Mother?"

Mrs. Norton only smiled. Jimmy sometimes wondered why his mother just smiled and did not always answer all his questions. She seemed pleased though and that is all he cared about, for he was dreaming how nice it would seem to be a "traffic cop."

After they had bought the whistle and two or three other items, they drove to another part of town to a large super market. While Mrs. Norton was busy buying groceries, Jimmy was looking around. He came to the vegetable and fruit department and saw a large table loaded down with bananas. There were a few lying loose near the edge of the table.

A voice whispered, "Why don't you grab one and eat it real quick? No one will see you."

Jimmy looked all around and sure enough no one was near, and he started to take one.

Then another voice seemed to say, "That would be stealing."

Jimmy had been taught in Sunday School and at home that it was wrong to steal, but he looked all around.

"Go ahead and take one. You know you never get enough bananas, and your mother will never find out." A little Black Imp was sitting on Jimmy's shoulder and talking as if he were his friend.

Jimmy knew he should not listen and a Bible verse came to him he had learned in Sunday School once. This was it: "Be sure your sin will find you out."

The sly answer came back, "How can anyone find out when no one is looking and there are too many bananas for anybody to miss just one." And Jimmy looked all around once more, grabbed the biggest one he could see and ate it real quickly. He was sure it was not ripe or something for it did not taste as good as usual.

Now, what was he going to do with the skins? He could not throw them down for someone might wonder how they got there; so he said to himself, "I'll put them in my pocket and hide them when I get home."

About this time Mrs. Norton came by and questioned, "Where have you been, Son? I've been looking for you."

"Oh," he answered, "Just looking around." "Well, we'll have to hurry for I promised to meet your father at 4:30."

Soon they were at Mr. Norton's office and he was waiting for them. When they were settled in the car, Jimmy said, "Papa, you ought to see the new whistle I bought today. It's a dandy." The boy put his hand in his pocket and pulled out the whistler, but with it came a piece of banana peeling.

Jimmy turned red in the face and his mother questioned him, "What's wrong?" Then she saw the peeling. "What are you doing with a banana skin in your pocket, Jimmy?"

Jimmy hung his head and began to cry. He knew his sin had found him out. He finally had to confess what he had done.

Mr. Norton was very thoughtful for a few minutes, then he drove around to the market. "Jimmy," he said, "I think we will go in here and have a little talk with the manager." They went in the store and found him.

It was even harder for young Jimmy to tell the manager he had stolen from him than it had been to confess to his parents. Afterwards, Mr. Norton paid for the banana and said to a clerk, "I'll take six more, please."

Jimmy wondered why his father was buying more for he felt sure he would never have any given him again. Mr. Norton took the sack and gave them to his boy. He then picked him up, set him on the counter, and kindly remarked: "Son, Mother and I will be waiting for you in the car. You may get down and come to us when you have finished eating all six of those bananas."

Jimmy thought that was the hardest thing he had ever been made to do, but he knew his father meant what he said and there was no chance to beg off. All the clerks found out what he had done and tried to sympathize with him, but they only made him feel worse. Customers thought it was very odd for a boy to be sitting on a counter eating. He heard one old lady remark, "You'd think that little boy's parents would make him get down. Some children just don't have any training." He finally got the last one eaten and quickly ran to the car. Nothing more was ever said to him about the incident, and for that he was glad.

Jimmy is a grown man today and has a large store of his own. He said, "It was a long time before I ever wanted another banana; but I have never again stolen one." He laughed when he said, "I guess after all, I proved Mother was right; a boy can have too many bananas."—The Junior Class Paper.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in the Baptist.

Mrs. Rebecca Boyette

On July 3, 1950, the Lord called Rebecca Boyette from our midst. She was one of the oldest members of the Marsh Swamp Free Will Baptist Church and always took an active part in all the activities of the Sunday School, the Auxiliary, and the church which she loved so dearly.

Widowed in 1915 and left with seven children, ages ranging from two to thirteen, she found time not only to bring up her children and with their help to run the farm, but to be a good neighbor to all, especially those sick and in need. She faced all obstacles of life, even her last fatal illness, with humility, courage, graciousness, sweetness, and faith. Truly, she was a Christian.

She is survived by seven children, two step-children, twenty-one grand-children, and six great-grand children.

The memory she has left her friends and loved one is an inspiration to live a better and nobler life for our Master.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. M. L. Johnson,

A. (Dock) Hinant, we the committee wish to submit the following resolutions of respect:

First—That we bow in humble submission to God's Holy will, realizing our great loss is His gain;

Second—That the passing of our much loved members has saddened our church as a whole. For each one was a faithful and beloved person, always cheerful and willing to render their service, wherever and whenever health would permit;

Third—That we strive more diligently and prayerfully to carry on our Master's work, where they left off, as a tribute to their memory and the cause of righteousness;

Fourth—That to their families and friends we extend our heartfelt sympathy and that they may find comfort and consolation in Him who doeth all things well. May they strive to ever follow in the footsteps of their Lord and Master; and Fifth—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each bereaved family, a copy be sent to the Baptist Press for publication and a copy be placed on our church record.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Eddie Flowers,
Mrs. Henry Watson,
Mrs. Bernard Ferrell,

How many more do you think you could assign us, and how quick could you furnish us with the names and addresses?

We are advocating a little sticker on small glass jars and placed on the tables. Would it not be fine if you could furnish such stickers?

Dear Mr. Riggs:

We would like to help support a Cuban student, native worker, in the amount of ($5.00) per month.

Our Sunday School class decided to do this after a few of us saw the moving picture, "Letter to Melitino."

We are glad to help. I thank God for this interest my class has in Cuban missions.

Cora Wells, teacher
Kenansville, N. C.

Dear Sir:

We would like to support a Cuban student in the amount of twenty dollars ($20.00) a month for the time of one year.

Twenty members of the Woman's Auxiliary from the Kinston F. W. B. Church have joined a mission band to pay the amount each month.

Mrs. J. E. Harris
Kinston, N. C.

Dear Brother Riggs:

You will find enclosed a money order for ten dollars. This was our Sunday School offering last Sunday for foreign missions. The S. S. offering on every 1st Sunday in the month is to be given for missions. I hope the amount will be more hereafter. However I promise to always make the amount of ten dollars or more.

Fourth Union Meeting Makes Report

The Fourth union of the Central Conference of North Carolina convened at Aspin Grove, Wilson County on October 28, 1950. The devotions were conducted by Rev. L. B. Manning, and the welcome address was by Rev. T. P. Ellis. Rev. R. C. Proctor gave the response. The ministers present were as follows: W. L. Hart, E. L. Abrams, L. B. Manning, P. C. Wiggs, R. C. Proctor, C. D. Hamilton, T. P. Ellis, and A. G. Baker. Visiting with us was Wade Calvert of the Piedmont Association.

Fourteen churches were represented with delegates and offerings. An offering was taken for the Middlesex Orphanage which amounted to $37.24. During the business period of the morning session, the union received a report from the Referendum Committee relative to what progress had been made. The union voted to go to Otter's Creek Church for the next time which will be in December.

The union sermon was delivered by Rev. E. L. Abrams, who brought a splendid message from the fourteenth chapter of St. John's Gospel, and verse twenty-nine. His subject was "Peace." Following the message the union was dismissed for the dinner hour, and everyone present enjoyed a splendid feast of good things to eat which were spread on the tables on the church grounds.

The afternoon session opened with singing and prayer. Rev. W. L. Hart led in the devotions. A motion was made for the union to have programs printed for each union meeting in the future. There was some discussion concerning the support of the League work. It was moved that we receive or adopt the reports of the different committees. A motion was made to send $25 to the Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee.

At this time the officers of the union were elected for the ensuing year and they were elected as follows: Moderator, Rev. R. C. Proctor, Wilson, N. C., Route 3; Vice-Moderator, Rev. H. T. Sowers, LaGrange, N. C.; Clerk, Hubert Burress, Box 56, Saratoga, N. C.; Treasurer, A. J. Tyson, Route 1, Box 171, Fountain, N. C.

After a rising vote of thanks was given for the splendid way in which Aspin Grove Church and community entertained the union, it was moved that we adjourn the meeting until the next time. The union will convene with Otter's Creek Church in December, 1950.

Autumn Is Like the Christian's Life

I know no scene so picturesque
As autumn in her jaunty dress;
When all the treetops overhead
Are robed in crimson, gold and red.

It takes the showers and sunshine bright
The summer's heat; the chill Fall night;
To set ablaze the old oak tree,
The prettiest sight of all to me.

The rain must fall, the wind must blow
Before the leaves such beauty know;
The seasons all must give a share
To make a crown for Fall to wear.

So like the Autumn is the Christian's life
Who has borne the toil, the pain and strife;
His soul reflects a radiance bright.
Only those can know who love the right.

The winds of fear may blow, but he
Is patient like the sturdy tree,
At last old age comes like the Fall,
With sheaves of gold to crown it all.

M. L. Johnson Holds Good Meeting at Core Creek Church

MANY GREATLY BLESSED BY THE SPIRITUAL MESSAGES

Reverend M. L. Johnson of Sims, North Carolina, began a revival meeting at Core Creek Church on the fourth Sunday night in August. The meeting continued for one week, closing on the first Sunday night in September. The members of the church were strengthened spiritually, also the visiting friends who attended this meeting. Everyone enjoyed the services and the wonderful messages which Brother Johnson brought during the week.

We had with us each night our pastor, Rev. L. B. Manning, and we certainly did appreciate his presence. We held prayer meetings each night just before the regular services began, and feel that much good was received by everyone who attended these services. We were greatly benefitted to have had in our services Mrs. Lee Whaley from Jacksonville, North Carolina, to direct the music in the meeting.

There were three confessions of faith in Christ as their personal Saviour. Their uniting with the church will be a blessing both to them and to the church it is expected, and we are praying that they will do what the Lord would have them. They were baptized by our pastor on Sunday afternoon, and that evening they were received in full Christian fellowship of the church. We had Communion service that evening, and it was a lovely service.

We are hoping and praying that the revival fruits will live long in the hearts of those who attended the services. Brother Johnson preached the Bible, that is, he preached soul-stirring sermons. They were food for our souls. We are hoping that he will be able to come back and preach for us again sometime in the near future. May the Lord bless him wherever he goes in bringing gospel messages to the lost.

TRUTH NEVER DIES

Truth never dies. The ages come and go.
The mountains wear away, the stars retire.
Destruction lays earth's mighty cities low;
And empires, states and dynasties expire;
But caught and handed onward by the wise,
Truth never dies.

Though unreceived and scoffed at through the years;
Though made the butt of ridicule and jest;
Though held aloft for mockery and jeers,
Denied by those of transient power possessed,
Insulted by the insolence of lies,
Truth never dies.

It answers not. It does not take offense,
But with a mighty silence bides its time;
As some great cliff that braves the elements
And lifts through all the storms its head sublime,
It ever stands, uplifted by the wise;
And never dies.

As rests the Sphinx amid Egyptian sands;
As looms on high the snowy peak and crest;
As firm and patient as Gibraltar stands,
So truth, unwearied, waits the era blest
When men shall turn to it with great surprise.
Truth never dies.

CHRIST AND HIS CHURCH

Philip L. White
Box 42, Salisbury, Md.

“And I say unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it,” Matthew 16:18.

This statement made by Jesus Himself was prompted by Peter's statement that Christ was the Son of God. Previous to this Jesus was asking His disciples what the public opinion of Him was. There was much confusion as to who this Christ man was, but Peter didn't have a doubt in his mind who He was, and he spoke his mind and said, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.” In response to Peter's answer, Christ said, “Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven,” v. 19. The church of Jesus Christ is built on a divine revelation of God; an experience, not just a card signing religion or a hand shake of some dignity of today; but on a real born again experience.

Jesus says, “Blessed art thou, Peter,” so you see the Lord's church is a blessed church, and if a blessed church, then there surely must be some manifestation of such blessings, and this excludes the modernists who just sign a membership card of some church, to try to streamline God's truth and try to climb up some other way.

Now let's go to another class. This class of people are those who have a form of worship but deny the power of God. The Word says, “From such turn away.” Jesus said on one occasion, “All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.” So if Christ has all power, seeing that He, Jesus, is the Head of the church, then the Church should have power, too. The early church had power, such power that on one occasion, when they prayed, the place was shaken where they were worshipping, and the church had such prestige the men would lay their loved ones along the roadway so the shadow of its members might overshadow them that they might be healed. But we have some in the ranks of Pentecost who are lowering the standard and putting on their dignity to gain favor with the public. God forbid such profanity. The early church didn't use beautiful phrases, or church socials, or bingo parties; no, my friend, not even three years of college and five years of seminary. But Jesus, standing up, lifted up his voice and said, “These are not drunken, as ye suppose . . . but this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel.” His message sank into the hearts of the masses of people, and thousands of them repented, made

With What Body Are the Dead Raised?

Go with me to I Corinthians 15:35 for my text: "But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?"

My friends, this is the language of the Apostle Paul to the church at Corinth concerning the resurrection of the body. As we enter into a discussion of this great subject, let us notice that there are two questions involved—How are the dead raised? What body do they come? Perhaps more people are confused with this subject than any other in the Book of God. Paul was preaching the resurrection of Christ, which he declared to be the Gospel that saves. He further declares that if Christ be not risen, our preaching is vain and our faith is vain also. But, praise God, he did not leave us in doubt. But, "now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."

First, I will discuss the element that will raise the body, in answer to the first part of the text. Ist Peter 3:18, "For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God; Being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the spirit." Quickened—(made alive by the Spirit; brought from the tomb.)

That same spirit will quicken our bodies and bring them out of the graves. Romans 8:11, "But if the spirit of Him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, He that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you." Note the word quicken—to make alive, to revive or resurrect; to make alive as from death. Paul in Ist Corinthians 12:13, "for by one spirit are we all baptized into one body." Therefore, the same Spirit that puts us into Christ will quicken our bodies and bring them out of their graves. Revelation 11:11, "And after three days and an half the spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet." So my friends, it is the Spirit of God that quickens, makes alive, brings our bodies from the graves. Ezek. 37:13-14, "And ye shall know that I am the Lord when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you out of your graves, and shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land; then, shall ye know that I the Lord have spoken it, and performed it, saith the Lord." Now beloved, I have shown from the Word of God the element that raises our bodies and makes them alive.

I will proceed with my discussion as to the second question in the text, "And with what body do they come?" This question is being asked today. What kind of body will we have in the resurrection? Paul made it perfectly clear when he took them who asked this question into the grain fields. Here is the thought: If you sow wheat, it will come up and produce wheat. You cannot plant corn and reap wheat, the thing we sow is the thing we expect to reap. Then, he carries us out to the heavenly bodies: the sun, the moon, the stars all differ one from another. So is the resurrection of the dead. If it is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption. It is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. Paul uses the personal pronoun "it" eight times with reference to the body in this one chapter. But someone says, "preacher, flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God." Of a truth no, we lose the corruptible element in the grave and the spiritual takes its place. Then it is a spiritual body and death has no more dominion over it. 3:20-21, "for our conversation is in heaven, from whence also, we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ.

Who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby He is able to subdue all things unto himself."

Our body will be like him. Isa. 17:15, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness." First John 3:2, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." Isaiah 26:19, "Thy dead shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." Isaiah said his dead body would rise from the grave and sing. Job 19:25-27, "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; And though, after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me." Job said after the worms have destroyed his body, yet in his flesh he would see God. Yes, we will have our same personality, our same individuality and identity—minus the corruptible element. Romans 8:22-23, "For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the firstfruits of the spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body." Beloved, the above Scriptures are sufficient on how are the dead raised and what body do they come. Yes, Jesus had His same body after He was resurrected.

He walked and talked and ate before the disciples and said, "I am not a spirit, as ye suppose. A spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." Then our bodies will be fashioned like His glorious body, the next question; will we know each other in heaven? Yes, I believe we will know our friends and loved ones. We go

OUR VISIT TO THE CAPE FEAR CHURCHES

It was my happy privilege to take my wife to the church in Smithfield on the 15th of October where she taught a group of Auxiliary women. I observed the interest manifested in these women, for they showed that they really wanted to be, and to do their best for the cause. It was a pretty good session lasting from 10:00 a. m. until about 3:00 p. m., with a few minutes off, about the noon hour for refreshments. This period was much enjoyed by all, I think. I know that it was by your scribe.

On the 16th we traveled down to Shady Grove, Sampson county, where another very much interested group assembled for the study. These were some of our extra friends of years ago, as I learned to esteem them highly when I was their pastor. The group seemed to be very happy in the study. They, too, served refreshments about the noon hour. Like the one at Smithfield, this serving was done in richness of taste with many good things to enjoy.

These study courses are growing in popularity among the Auxiliary women and much good is being derived.

HOLIDAYS

Many of the holidays that were intended to be HOLY DAYS have been so abused and misused until it is a sin to even think of the observance. The word holiday means a "holy day; a day set apart for commemorating some important event in history," for instance, "Thanksgiving" set a part to thank Almighty God for the harvest. When I was a boy people assembled at the churches and worshipped the Lord. But now there is more said about the "turkey" than about the Lord. It is a day of feasting. Men and women eat, and drink and visit, and show very little respect for God or man. The world is too steeped in sin to be thankful. "We eat and drink and rise up to play. People will drive hundreds of miles to see a foot-ball game and would not drive around the corner to a place of worship to give thanks to God for the blessings of life. As a nation we are like the Jews of old: "We believe in God and live in sin." Yes, we live in open disrespect of God's grace and manifold blessings. I think that if God was to speak to us, as so-called Christians today, he would say as he did through Isaiah, "Bring no more vain oblations into my house." I believe that a great deal of what is called worship is an abomination in the sight of God. It is a formality. Therefore, because of the domination of sin in the hearts of men, there is no place for real Thanksgiving.

CHRISTMAS

The holiday known as Christmas which is set apart as the Birthday of the Lord Jesus, is fittingly kept by many as a day of devotion to some pagan god or goddess. There is but little reverence for God or for His church. The "myth" Santa Claus is talked more about than the little baby Jesus. Children are taught to believe in this pagan myth, instead of being taught the reality of the Birth of the Son of God.

Useless toys, cow-boy suits and cap pistols which make the little fellows real heroes in which they get out and play gangsters, slip around corners and hide behind hedges and play killing, and, no doubt, many a child gets the idea of being a gangster in his mind only to absolutely practice his ideal in later years.

There are others who try to drink all the liquor that they can hold, and some more than they can hold. No child of God will celebrate Christmas under the influence of alcohol. In fact, only those who are demon possessed will drink liquor any way. It does not belong to the child of God. If I were so disposed to get drunk every day in the year, I would try to sober up for Christmas, the day observed as the Birthday of the Lord Jesus.

HALLOWE'EN

Then there is Hallowe'en, which is abused with the greatest degree of foolishness, which has of late run into real low down abuse of property and crime. There is not a single thing about the event that resembles sacredness nor worshipfulness. All kind of false faces and ridiculous make-ups and all kinds of pranks are played. Vulgarity is written on automobiles and public places, language that would place a person in prison if written in the open. These writings some times are done by youngsters who ought to be at home with their parents. But because it is a time of fun, many think it perfectly all right to scratch up the paint on an automobile or to write some ugly, vulgar words on the car with soap and some times with tallow or colored crayons, and many other pranks that are not in keeping with decency and right living.

WHAT ABOUT EASTER?

Then comes the event that we call Easter—the day that our Lord arose from the grave. There are those who take pains to be very religious for forty days prior to this occasion, then they close out their pious period with a dance, a drunk, and many other ungodly actions. It is a day of new dresses and hats, and those who have not gone to church since Christmas venture out to church on that day with a sanctimonious attitude, wondering who will have the nicest dress or hat. And many of the children are presented with artificial rabbits and chicks, and other things that have nothing to do with the Resurrection of the Lord Jesus.

WHAT I BELIEVE

I believe that all these holidays should be observed in the most sacred manner, and that the purpose of the day should be fully manifest in the activities of the day, and especially by those who profess to be Christians.

Before the Lord saved me, I belonged to get in on every Christmas parade and serenade where foolishness, even with dancing to the music

Free Will Baptist Church at Deep Run, N. C.

This is a picture of the new Free Will Baptist Church at Deep Run, North Carolina, which is nearing completion. The present pastor of the church is L. E. Ballard, who began his pastorate there October 1st.

The church was begun around two years ago, under the pastorate of Rev. P. C. Wiggs, who proved an able leader of the congregation in the erection of the building. The people have erected their church on the "Pay-as-you-go" plan, and have it almost finished. It is modern in every respect, with heating, ample rooms for Sunday School work, etc.

Recently a fine youth choir was organized by Mrs. L. E. Ballard, who is serving as music director. This choir of around thirty voices will be formally presented, with their new robes, in connection with the Christmas services of the church.

LIFE'S HELPERS

Some people are gifted with the power of doing the right thing in the right way, and at the right time. They are kind, gentle, sympathetic, and responsive. They think of others. They anticipate danger and point it out. They are on the lookout for service, and ready to perform it. They make it easier for those about them to be good and to do good. They hesitate not to lend a helping hand at every opportunity. They speak the encouraging word. They straighten out the tangles that perplex and annoy companions. They smooth rough places. They go out of their way to relieve distress or to supply a need. In their presence the day passes pleasantly. Away from them things look drearier, and burdens grow heavier. Welcome and blessed are life's helpers.—Publisher Unknown.

Young People's Auxiliary Organized

On September 27, 1950, the young people of the Ashland City F. W. B. Church of Ashland City, Tennessee, organized the first young people's auxiliary.

The group is to meet once each month for their program and plan some social service to do each month. They have already contributed to the morning worship service by forming the Junior Choir.

The following persons were elected as officers:

President—Murriel Walker
 Vice-President—Jerry Nicholson
 Secretary—Helen Landrum
 Treasurer—Fred Allen Nicholson
 Their Leader is Mrs. T. O. Terry, Jr.

EASY ENOUGH TO FIND FAULT

It doesn't take any genius at all to find fault. Even a very dull and futile sort of a person can do that. On the other hand, it takes some one with vision, insight, and ability to recognize the good in every person and every situation, to discover and acknowledge that which is fine and constructive.

A certain woman once said with a cynical expression, "I can't stand hypocrites anywhere—and especially in the church. There is that John Smith who doesn't have the best sort of a reputation for honesty in his business, but to hear him talk, you'd think he was next door to being a saint!"

The minister's wife was listening and she laughed happily.

"Everybody in the community knows," she said cheerfully, "that John Smith's family is not of the best; that his brother is in prison for a serious crime; and that the children were brought up under adverse circumstances.

"So all in all, I am sure we ought to admit John Smith who is really considerate, a very fair kind of a citizen, and a generous and kindly neighbor, has been benefited greatly and given high ideals through his attendance at church, his fellowship with Christian people, and the vision he has caught of better things.

"I don't believe that John Smith thinks of himself as a saint at all, but I do think he is happy in having a part with us and that he wants us to know it. It's a real opportunity for us to be able to encourage him along the upward pathway."

After all, a community or an organization or a church should scarcely be judged by its list of experienced members. That isn't fair. It is the pace-setters who are establishing standards for the others to follow, who light the way.

Yes, it is easy enough to find fault but it takes a big soul to recognize the good qualities—the God-qualities in others, and the evidence of God at work in their lives.—The Youth's Evangelist.

THE OLD LAMP

A lamp once hung in an ancient town,
 At the corner of a street;
 There the wind was keen and the way was dark
 And the rain would often beat,
 And all night long its light would shine,
 To guide the traveler's feet.

The lamp was rough and plain and old
 And the storm had beaten it sore;
 'Twas not a thing one would care to show—
 Whate'er it had been before,
 But no one thought what the lantern was,
 'Twas the light that within, it bore.

NEW SANDY HILL CHURCH CONDUCTS GOOD PROGRAMS

The Woman's Auxiliary of New Sandy Hill Church recently held a very successful week of prayer. Though the five programs were combined into two, and it was wonderful how the Lord blessed each one.

The first meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Inez Bunn, where the first two programs in the F. W. B. paper were carried out. Everyone present was asked to pause and pray next day at noon for the good of the meeting and an increased attendance next night. It was wonderful, because the next night, at the home of Mrs. Doris Bunn, almost twice as many attended and a soul-stirring program was given.

An average of 15 members were present at each meeting, plus 7 visitors.

Mrs. Jessie Bunn was leader for both meetings, and she is to be commended for her good work.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Sennie Davis, Reporter

The First Christmas Tree

Mrs. E. W. Knight, Jr.
R. M. Star Route
Roanoke, Alabama

As I understand this Scripture Jeremiah 10:1-5: "Hear ye the word which the Lord speaketh unto you, O house of Israel:

2 Thus saith the Lord, Learn not the way of the heathen, and be not dismayed at the signs of heaven; for the heathens are dismayed at them.

3 For the customs of the people are vain: for one cutteth a tree out of the forest, the work of the hands of the workman, with the ax.

4 They deck it with silver and with gold. They fasten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not.

5 They are upright as the palm tree, but speak not: they must needs be borne, because they cannot go. Be not afraid of them; for they cannot do evil, neither also is it in them to do good."

I just want to say here, that that great imposter Santa Claus and the Christmas tree as it has always been called ever since I can remember, is one of the greatest mistakes or errors a professed Christian has ever taught their children. We have so often left the Spirit of Christ out just by glorying in the beauty of the tree and thinking of the gifts we were going to give and wondering what we were going to receive. But let it be far from us from this day on to glory in any thing except our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. We know that Jesus was born of a virgin but in the Scriptures of the New Testament it does not give the name of the day or month so let us be thankful that God saw fit to send his blessed Son down to earth to live among men and be crucified on Calvary's Cross and raised again the third day that we might have everlasting life through his atoning blood. I want to relate a little evidence why I say that Santa Claus and the Christmas tree are such a great mistake. I was made to believe that Santa was one man who went all over the world in one night and many of other children have been made to believe the same. When they should have been taught to believe more thoroughly in the Lord Jesus.

Here in our little town of Roanoke, Ala., there was a little boy whose parents had taught him about Santa Claus, and after he grew large enough that he knew the truth about Santa Claus, some one spoke to him about Jesus and he made this remark: "Well, now that I know about Santa Claus, How do I know but what I may find out the same thing about this Jesus story?"

Brethren and Sisters in Christ we should be very careful what we plant in the hearts and minds of small children. We should be very careful not to link falsehoods such as Santa Claus with the truth of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Today the sinner and professed Christian celebrate Christmas alike. They have their Christmas tree and Santa Claus. We as Christians have even taken them into our church buildings, and I believe our Lord is saying these things ought not to be.

For he tells us in his word to come out from among the sinners and be a separate people. I had always thought that the Christmas tree as it is called today, was something to have in honor of Christ, but every time I would start to fix one I would have a peculiar feeling as if I were not quite sure whether I should fix it or not and now that my eyes have been opened I can truthfully say that I am no longer ignorant, therefore I do not want another Christmas tree for my home. We should all read God's Word more and then we would not be ignorant of what God would have us do.

The Christmas tree as we call it is only a custom of the people and according to Jeremiah, and when it was written, it was a custom 600 years before Christ was born, for the heathen people to get a tree and deck it with silver and gold. So to me it is very poor worshiping to get a tree and deck it as the heathens did, and claim we are worshiping our Lord and Saviour and that we have gotten it in honor of him. Let us not worship him in this manner any longer, on what we suppose is his birthday but let us as true believers in Jesus Christ worship him every day of our lives in spirit and in truth, for he seeketh such to worship him.

THE McADAMS IN AYDEN ON TOUR

Sister Lizzie McAdams, her husband, Brother McAdams, and Mrs. Agnes Brown, all of Huntsville, Texas, called by to see us Monday morning, and paid us a short visit. Everyone at the Press was glad to see them, to welcome them again, and to show them how the business has grown since they were last in Ayden.

They will make a mission tour among several of the churches in eastern North Carolina prior to the Christmas holidays. Beginning with the New Year, they will visit other churches of the State and make talks on missions. Many of the churches in other states they will visit as they go south into South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and so on in their visitations in the interest of missions among the churches.

Those desiring to contact them by mail or otherwise between now and the first of the New Year, may address them at Ayden, North Carolina.—Editor.

AUTO WRECKS AND HUMAN SUFFERING

In spite of all that the State and National authorities are doing to curb highway accidents in this country, automobile wrecks and human suffering are constantly on the increase the nation over. While much is being done in various ways to save human life and the cost of property damage and suffering, yet reckless driving continues on the highways, and people are being killed every day. Many are ruined for life by their bodies having been crushed and ruined in highway accidents, and rendered helpless to hold a job or to earn a living for themselves and their families.

We are convinced that, so long as cars and trucks are made to run 70 to 100 miles per hour on the highways and intoxicating beverages are sold all over this country, there will continue highway hazards, death and destruction up and down the paved roads of this land. The careful drivers and innocent people on the highways are injured, suffer and die at the hands of the wild and reckless people who speed down the roads, with little regard for human life.

It is becoming more and more necessary that speeding and drunken driving be rigidly checked. The truth is, the business world is in a too great rush for money, for profits, and for wealth. It is a race of wild competition, hurry, eagerness for the dollar, which makes speed necessary, they think, for the great success of their business. And pleasure seekers are the same way. They are in a hurry, rushing at break-neck speed, to get to the place they are going, for sport and fun. Death and destruction, in a great many instances, follow, or result from these two main aspects of human life. Pleasure-seekers, and money-makers are racing with time to get what they want, and to get it in the shortest possible time, with little regard for the rights and privileges of others. Cut down the speed and lessen the drunks, and driving will become more safe.

It is going to take more than law enforcement to bring highway accidents to the minimum. A greater regard for human life must come before a greater safety will be secured on our State and National highways. A deeper concern for human rights and privileges, and human suffering must be sensed, and keenly felt in the hearts of the people before a greater care will be taken in driving on the public highways of this country. People need to get closer to God, and then seek to be more thoughtful of their fellow man in every endeavor of life. If driving on the highways were considered, by those who drive, as dangerous as skating on a lake of ice with hidden weak places, there would be more precaution taken on the highways by every driver, and less harm would come to the people.

CHRISTMAS GIVING

A great many people are beginning to think of Christmas giving. They are beginning to consider the friends and relatives to whom they expect to make gifts, and what their gifts will be to bring happiness and glad-some hearts. Some will be simple and inexpensive, appropriate and suitable for the occasion, while others will be most expensive and elaborate, bringing great surprises to loved ones whom they hold dear to their hearts.

But there will be the multitudes who will see very few, if any gifts of value, for their joy and comfort. They represent the very poor and needy individuals in city slums and unprogressive areas of the country side. To them Christmas giving will have but little effect, because they, in their poverty, will have but little to give to anyone. Nevertheless, their hearts beat with hope for better things to come. God is as near and dear to them as to those of better circumstances. Be they far or near, at home or abroad, they deserve something of the best at the hands of those who can and will do great things from the bountifulness of life.

God's Gift of Love, his dear Son, is the great example of sacrifice for everyone. The giving of self for the good of others is a noble trait, and the sharing of temporal blessings with those in need is a commendable act. This Christmas should be marked as the greatest in the history of giving to religious causes. Instead of making elaborate gifts to loved ones and friends, God's people should make their chief gifts to the cause of Missions, Christian education, the support of the ministry, Christian orphanages, and the like. Since the need is great, missions should come first, and Christian education next. Certainly, the support of disabled ministers should never be ignored at any time of the year.

May the church people plan to make their largest giving this Christmas to the different religious causes than to any other cause or project. May they see the need more than ever of giving larger sums of money to the orphanages, missions, disabled ministers, orphan children and the widows in need. Greater blessings will come to their hearts if they will share their giving of presents to the poor and needy, charitable institutions, Bible schools, mission causes in foreign lands. Money and material commodities given to such institutions and persons in need will bring lasting values to the hearts of those who share in this kind of giving at this Christmas season.

We see only half of the bow; if we could get high enough we should see a complete circle of beauty. God sees all His promises complete in Christ. It is our privilege to do the same by faith.—Sel.

THE PRICE OF A SOUL

Genesis 2:7—"God formed man of the dust of the earth and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." God created the land, the sea, and the trees, the mountains, and all the living creatures, but never did he repent for making any of these. On the sixth day God, not yet satisfied with his creation, from the dust of the earth he formed a being in his own image. God was very much pleased with his creature, until man saw something that was only good for the flesh. He disobeyed God by eating the forbidden fruit, and since that time God has been seeking a way to redeem the soul. But man seems to reject all efforts that God has given for his redemption.

I have said this to try to get you to understand the price of a soul. God has come in many ways to try to redeem that soul. He appeared in a cloud. He appeared in a whirlwind, and in many other ways to try and redeem that soul he lost in Eden. Then after he had come in the form of a servant and was rejected he gave the command to all, to go into all the world and preach the gospel. Mark 16:15.

"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me." Jn. 12:32. We as Free Will Baptists could do much toward building the kingdom of God, and if we love the Lord as we should, we would do something for our Lord. We are just as able as any other group, but what we need is a clear vision of the lost.

One great way to help our mission work is by prayer. Prayer is the key to the kingdom of God, but prayer without legs will not accomplish very much. We need to give of our means. I'm sure everyone has read about those 50,000 Koreans who were captured in Seoul. I had the privilege of hearing a missionary speak from Seoul who was forced out of the city after shots had been fired. He said that two thirds of those people were Christians and they died rather than to deny Jesus. My friend, those people died for their Christ. We in America have the freedom of worship. We can go to the house of God and praise the Lord, but the heathens do not have this privilege. When we want or need money for the home, for a car, for clothes, and many other things we don't wait, but we go to some finance company and borrow the amount we want.

My friend, some of these things we can do without. Jesus said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Matt. 16:24). We must deny ourselves.

Some day we are going to have to stand before God to give an account of ourselves. How wonderful it would be to be able to look around and see the heathens saved by grace through our effort of giving.

I wonder how many would give a day's pay to our mission work? I wonder if there could be a day set aside for each F. W. B. to give one day's pay to missions? May the Lord bless our every effort is my prayer.

A Brother in Christ,

Power through Prayer

The mighty Holy Spirit moves to mighty prayer. This prayer is continually round us, like a shield which nothing can pierce; it is behind us with immense driving power. When we go on our Master's errands, we are consciously enabled, consciously uplifted; often we know that something not to be accounted for by the little we could do has been done.—Amy Wilson Carmichael.

"Lord, be Thou my Helper"—the word is the same as in Genesis for the helpmeet provided for Adam, because it was not good for him to be alone. So David in his misery and need, could not be alone, but must have the help which God had provided for him in His own blessed companionship.—Esther Hare.

The Seven Wise Men engraved on the Temple of Apollo at Delhi: "Meden Agan"—Nothing in excess. The eighth wise man adds, "and some things, not at all."

Sometimes we hear people say, "It's not what we do, but what we are, that's important." The truth is that we are very apt to be what we repeatedly do.

OLIVET FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH SCHOOL HOLDS FACULTY MEETINGS

Two Church School Faculty meetings have recently been held at Olivet Free Will Baptist Church in Montgomery County, Tennessee, on Guthrie, Ky., R-1. The Rev. W. C. Clearman, pastor of the church and the officers and teachers of the Sunday School made up the attendance. The objects of these meetings were to discuss the work of the Sunday School, its aim and its goals, and to solve problems which confront the Sunday School.

At the first meeting, presided over by the Rev. Clearman, it was brought out that no business can run successfully and bring in dividends unless there is a common understanding about the business. The Rev. Clearman stated that the church and Sunday School work was the biggest business in the world, and that the teaching ministry could bring in the most dividends if there was co-operative thinking and acting of every person involved.

In the round-table discussion the group agreed that the chief aim and goal of the Sunday School should be to win souls and to keep them won, and to enlist their services. The problems of the Sunday School were named, including attendance, attention, daily Bible Study and teacher efficiency.

In discussing the way of overcoming these problems suggestions were given to increase the visitation program over the community, to make the Sunday School work more attractive, and to increase the teacher efficiency.

Qualifications of a good teacher was discussed. The first was to be a consecrated Christian who is burdened for the lost. Another quality listed was love—love for God, love for Sunday School, and love for boys and girls. Other qualifications named were a knowledge of the Bible and the proper methods of teaching, a thorough understanding of pupils, and to be a praying teacher.

The problem of the Junior age inattention was discussed since Juniors seem to have at least two-thirds of the world's energy leaping from their small statures. Any time is play time for them. But this factor must be turned into a profitable asset in some way. Those in attendance offered many suggestions for this age group. Plans were discussed whereby examples of reverence might be set by all adults attending thus hoping to imbue pupils with the same spirit of reverence, and hoping to thus help them to assume more worshipful attitudes in future services.

This the first meeting of the faculty and officers in this type of council meeting is sure to serve as service training. The group decided to meet monthly. The second meeting was held on November 8.

Plans were made at this second meeting of the Church School Faculty to use a

Reverend Robert B. Crawford has accepted a call to pastor the Bryan Free Will Baptist Church, Bryan, Texas. He will assume his ministry there on December the first. Brother Crawford has served the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina, since October 1, 1948. During this period the Greenville church has made great advancements in every department of its work. The material progress, the spiritual life, and the financial status of the church have all been good. The church has been outstanding in its contributions to the different denominational enterprises, and also in adding converts to its local group.

Brother Crawford is a member of the Free Will Baptist League Board, Stewardship Commission, and Radio Commission of the National Association of Free Will Baptists. He has been active in organizational and revival work in this section of North Carolina, holding positions of leadership and importance.

We predict that Brother Crawford will do a great work in the Bryan Church of Texas, as well as being able to render noble service to the cause of Free Will Baptists in that State. He is a man of knowledge and experience, and takes an important part in the national work of the denomination.

of the devil was carried on. But when I accepted Christ and He entered into my life and took over, I got into the parade for Jesus and I am still in this, the greatest parade ever brought into existence.

I used to get into every Hallowe'en party possible, now since the Lord saved me, I prefer the "Hallelujah party," and the singing of praises to the lamb of God. Amen.

May we praise God for the Christ who was born of the virgin Mary, and observe Christmas in the greatest of sincerity, and may we look forward to Easter as the Resurrection of the Lord, and the making of a possibility for our resurrection in his likeness.

"But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live" (Romans 8:11-13).

SHOCKING

The value of trained personnel in dealing with juvenile delinquency is being stressed. These people must know when a child is being really bad and when it is being merely diabolically childish.

The Atlanta Journal relates a story concerning the late Mrs. George Hardwick, one of Augusta's most beloved women.

One day Mrs. Hardwick discovered three small boys in the act of hanging a cat in her back yard. She halted the lynching, the Journal says, and assured the young culprits in strong language that they were incorrigible and were all headed for a bad end.

As it turned out, one of the trio, Joseph Recker Lamar, became a justice of the United States Supreme Court. Another, Pleasant A. Stovall, became a famous editor and Minister to Switzerland. And the third, Thomas Woodrow Wilson, became President of the United States.—Chattanooga Times.

The Sunday School's new Record System was discussed and plans were drawn up to make it function more effectively. It was decided to give a social for the most efficient class in the Sunday School at the end of each quarter by using the record system to determine the efficiency. It was also decided to recognize the 100 percent students in each department each Sunday.

CLEANER, BUT NO WHITER

While we were holding a meeting on the streets for Tamils, I observed a Tamil mother bathing her little boy at the water tap. Now I noticed that the little black boy was not a whit whiter after his wash, but I do believe he was very much cleaner. The Indian cannot change the color of his skin, neither can the tiger lick out the color of his stripes.

Now I know thousands of boys and girls who have pretty white faces, and lovely pure skins, but they have black, wicked hearts. Most of them know this quite well. But instead of turning to the cleansing Blood of Jesus to wash away this inward blackness, they try to reform their outward ways. A reformed boy or girl is certainly very much cleaner in his outward life and in the sight of men, but he is not one whit whiter before God.

God requires truth in the inward parts. Reformation begins at the outside, but never enters any deeper than the skin. Regeneration commences within, and then works its way out to the very nailpoints of our hands and feet. Make sure you are regenerated or "born again." Read John 3:1-17, and put your name in "whosoever."—T. B., in Sunlight for the Young.

The liquor traffic is always going to clean up. Why doesn't it do it? Because it can't. There are plenty of men in the liquor business who would like to clean up, but the stuff they sell isn't the kind of stuff which will permit it.

Mere numbers never give wisdom.

EVEN KEEL—!

$11,000.00 Needed by January 1st

You heard me the first time. If the Free Will Baptists of the U. S. A. put their Foreign Mission Department on an even keel by January 1st, we must give at least $11,000 by that time.

Here is what we mean—

India:
October	$1,200.00
November	1,200.00
December	1,200.00
January	1,200.00
<hr/>
Total for India	$4,800.00
Cuba:
November	$1,700.00
December	1,700.00
January	1,700.00
<hr/>
Total for Cuba	$5,100.00
<hr/>
Total for India and Cuba	$ 9,900.00
Film & Promotional Expense
(Approx.) (It may be less)	1,100.00
	$11,000.00

At first this sounds like an enormous sum. But if we would stop and consider that there are approximately four hundred thousand (400,000) Free Will Baptists in America—then we see it is a very small amount for so many. In fact it would only be just a little more than .02½cents per capita. However because we have not enlisted all of these 400,000 people then—all of us must give more.

If every state would see that one half (½) of her year's quota was met by January 1st, we would just about be on an even keel.

Check with your state Director and watch the papers for what your state is doing for Foreign Missions.

Hurry Up! Send an offering to-day. Times' e' wastin'!

I have just purchased the new sound color movie film of our Bible School and Missionary work in Cuba to be used in North Carolina. Any church that may desire to have this picture shown to their people for their information and inspiration may arrange it by writing to Rev. CHECKING YOUR FOREIGN MISSION OFFERING

We look forward every day to mail time, and it gives us a thrill to receive these letters with contributions for Foreign Missions.

We are gradually catching up—but we must give regularly.

Don't let a single week go by without you and your church doing something for Foreign Missions. Send in a nice offering at least every month.

We have not been able to send India's quota for October or November, neither have we sent Cuba's quota for November, and of course December is almost here.

Folks, this is the season of the year to remember our Missionaries—Hurry up with those gifts! Send them to:

"CHRISTMAS SHOPPING FOR THE LORD"

Dear Baptist Family:

At this season of the year we read and hear much about gifts to be found here and there for the approaching holidays, at which time we claim to celebrate the birth of our Saviour, but for a long while it has seemed to me that we are far from doing it in the right way, and I for one, have decided to do differently.

Of course, it will deprive me of a lot of pleasure to leave off giving a "Christmas present" to kinfolks and friends but here is my plan—to make a list, as usual, of those I would give some thing to, and give the value of the gifts to missions, or maybe a portion of it to some ones who are really in need.

If all Free Will Baptists will do this, it will help to fill in our more than empty treasury for foreign missions, and give cheer, comfort and courage to some who are destitute.

I sincerely believe that it is wrong to rack our brains trying to decide what to give, when perhaps those whom we have in mind do not really need it, go out shopping and patronize firms who are just commercializing on this sacred event. So, instead of this, lets do some Christmas shopping for the Lord, in the name of the great gift which was given for us, where the need was so great.

This plan which I suggest is not to take the place of tithes and offerings, we would make otherwise, but add to them.

The Place of the Church in A Modern World

"The Church must be the teacher of the principles of conduct; a voice of judgment; a guardian of moral and spiritual values already won; and the herald of a better day."

This four-fold charge to the Church from the Detroit Conference on the Church and Economic Life has been chosen for emphasis by local churches and church groups during the third annual Church and Economic Life Week, January 14-20, 1951.

"During this special week, designated by the Federal Council's Executive Committee, local churches, church groups and councils of churches join in calling upon their members to study the application of Christian principles and teaching to their own jobs and to the work life of the community and the nation," said Rev. Cameron P. Hall, Executive Secretary of the Federal Council's Department of the Church and Economic Life.

With the cooperation of the religious press, radio stations and church program planners widespread attention is given during this period to denominational and interdenominational statements, and to Biblical, theological and ethical teachings. These are related to the experiences of businessmen, industrial workers, farmers, cooperators, educators, housewives and professional and office workers who "must discover for themselves what is the right decision in an endless variety of concrete decisions" they make daily in the process of earning a living.

In addition to numerous articles, press and radio references, the Department of the Church and Economic Life provides each year program and study materials adaptable for community, church or church group meetings, forums and discussion classes. The 1951 emphasis will be placed on bringing the report of the Detroit Conference on the Church and Economic Life and the recent statement of the Executive Committee on "A Christian Approach to Mounting Economic Pressures" to the attention of more and more local church people.

Other program aids will include: "For the Sake of His Kingdom"—A Worship Service in Recognition of the Relation of the Church to Economic Life. (3 cts. each, $2.40 per 100).

"The Christian Conscience in Economic Progress"—A One-Meeting Program for a Church or Church Group based on the Detroit Conference Statement and Reports. (10 cents)

A program Source Book, listing pertinent church publications, books, films and radio programs. (20 cents)

"The Herald of a Better Day"—A folder on "Church and Economic Life Week in Church and Community" with further suggestions for programs and other methods of observance. This will be furnished free of cost (except for postage) in reasonable quantity for distribution to churches and church groups.

The publications are available at low quantity rates from the Department of the Church and Economic Life, the Federal Council of Churches, 297 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

NEWS FROM FAIRMOUNT PARK CHURCH, NORFOLK, VIRGINIA

We are sure that everyone present enjoyed the wonderful inspiring messages brought from the Word of God by Brother Dodd. Surely we were sad to see his services end with us.

Did you know that Brother Dodd has promised to come and work with us again in January? He will come and direct us in a Christian Workers' Institute beginning January the 1st and lasting through the 15.

In this Institute, there will be work offered to assist every interested person into training to be a qualified Christian worker.

A course in League, Sunday School, Auxiliary, and methods of teaching along with some Bible will be offered. There will be two forty-five minute classes each evening for the entire two weeks.

A wonderful thing about this is, that every person from any denomination may attend. Also, anyone who takes this course and plans to attend a Bible college, may acquire credit toward an E. T. T. A. Certificate.

Sunday School Thermometer

At the last Sunday School Council meeting plans were discussed for increasing our Sunday School attendance. A suggestion was made—"Let's set a goal for a certain number and get a thermometer drawn and seek to push the mercury to the top." The first Sunday we had 214 present. The second Sunday 245 and the third Sunday since beginning which was Homecoming we had 259 present.

Let's keep up the good work. Let's be here every Sunday and please don't just come; but bring someone. That someone might hear the gospel and accept Christ, who knows?

If It Is A Gift, Take It

In the height of the fame of the great evangelist Dwight L. Moody, he visited a man who was the owner of large vineyards and orchards. The host informed Mr. Moody that he was to make himself perfectly at home there. Everything on the farm was at the guest's disposal, who was told, "Mr. Moody, if there is anything in the orchard or vineyard that you would like to have, it is already yours. Just take it."

Said the evangelist later, "When I wanted an orange, I did not go to an orange tree and pray that an orange would fall into my pocket, but I walked to a tree and, reaching up, took the orange that I wanted. It was already mine."

"The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23). Almighty God has given to you His beloved Son and life in Him.

THE STEWARDSHIP OF THE GOSPEL

(Lesson for December 10)

LESSON: ACTS 8:4-8; 2 Corinthians 5:17-20; Philippians 1:12-18

GOLDEN TEXT: I Corinthians 4:1, 2.

I. The Heart of the Lesson

Quite frequently when one lays emphasis upon the work of missions or world-wide evangelism, a strange look comes into the face of some professed Christians and strange expressions are heard coming from their lips. Why should this be so? Are missions a strange enterprise? Is missionary work a new and strange work? We think not. It is rather because they do not know what the Scriptures teach, neither are they possessed by the missionary spirit that such is the case. This is quite evident when we honestly and prayerfully study the Scriptures.

The great commission which the Lord gave His Apostle, however, was the basis for Gospel ministry among all the nations (Mark 16:15; Luke 24:46, 47). The evangelization of the world had its roots in that great commission. The Holy Spirit Himself, in His personal presence, power and energy, is the spirit of evangelization.

1. This persecution set little blazes into action everywhere. These small fires became large ones. If ever Satan erred in judgment it was here. This proves to us that, although he is in the business fighting God for six thousand years, to our knowledge, he still is not all-wise, and is learning. Of anything that could have befallen the Church, this campaign of affliction was the most beneficial to God's cause. Not only did it keep the church on its toes, but spread it by leaps and bounds into every corner of the known world.

2. When people really listen to the preaching of the Gospel there is bound to be a spiritual revival.

3. Amusements and worldly pleasures may bring a passing enjoyment, but real joy comes only where men experience salvation.

4. It is only reasonable that the human being who experiences a second birth should be a new creation.

5. It was not our sorrow for sin but the work of God in Christ that effected our reconciliation with God.

6. There is no greater service possible for any man than the ministry of reconciliation.

7. An ambassador is expected to do only the authorized business of the country he represents. Thus we should do our service for Christ.

8. Because Christ became our sin it has been made possible for us to become His righteousness.

9. Disappointments may bring a blessing to others if we bear up under them as a Christian should.

10. If Christ is truly preached we should rejoice even though it might be possible to raise questions about the preacher.—Selected.

11. The thought of this verse has to do with the inner man, the spiritual life and not the physical. Since Adam's transgression all people have been born into the world under the condemnation of sin. They remain under this condemnation until they are set free through the New Birth. Then it is lifted up by the grace of God as it is in Christ Jesus, and the born-again one becomes a new creature in Christ the Lord. (vs. 17)—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.)

12. Paul here shows the nobleness of his Christian character by thinking more of the cause of Christ and the consideration of the lost about him than the hardships which he was enduring in Rome. Indeed, Paul rejoiced because he knew that the Lord's gospel will be effective wherever the apostles preach it among both Jew and Gentile. (vss. 14-18)—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

13. An ambassador is an official messenger or representative of one government to another. In our lesson Paul declares that he and his fellow ministers are ambassadors of God, who bring a divine announcement to men of salvation through Christ. This salvation, he says, makes it possible for one to be in such a spiritual union with Christ that he is a new creature. It is Christ in the heart that works the transformation. Truly an ambassador by which one can proclaim such news as that is more important than any other on earth.—Arnold's Commentary.

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Recently I stood beside the hospital bed of a seventeen-year-old girl who was about to die. She told me the story of her life—a life of tragedy and sin. Not once had anyone spoken to her of Jesus. Not once had she been inside a church.

The day before she died I was again at her bedside, pleading with her to receive Christ, when she turned her eyes on me and asked, "Where were you Christians before I got into trouble? Why do you wait till I'm dying to tell me I need Jesus to save me?"

Where were you Christians before I got into trouble?

How can you and I, who know the Lord Jesus Christ, answer a question like this? Yet hungry souls are even now crying out, begging for the Bread of Life, not knowing how or where to receive it. And we have it in our power to bring the gospel to them.

Let me ask you in Christian love, earnestly as I ask myself, "What are you doing with the gospel?" Are you telling others—on the street, in your neighborhood, in your circle of friends and loved ones? Are you pointing those under your ministry in Sunday school, church or church organizations to Christ Himself? Are you living Christ so that your testimony has real meaning?—Moody Monthly.

Schopenhauer said that we must see "in the constant change of matter, the fixed permanence of form." Schopenhauer's philosophy had many falsities but this is true.

EARNING YOUR OWN LIVING

There is something admirable about the young man who, regardless of his father's wealth, earns a living for himself. Man is born naturally indolent, and riches are an incentive to self-indulgence. Therefore, the young man who is not contented to nestle back in the lap of luxury but strikes out boldly for himself is a man who is developing his own character. A reputable character is one of life's greatest blessings. Inherited wealth is treacherous. But the earning of one's own money gives a man character and courage, and helps him to know the worth of the dollar he has earned.—Unknown.

WATERY BRANCH CHURCH EXPERIENCES
GOOD REVIVAL

TWENTY-THREE PROFESSED CHRIST

Our revival meeting began on October 29 and continued through November the eighth. Reverend T. P. Ellis was called to pastor our church, Watery Branch, in November, 1949, and the attendance upon church services has doubled under his leadership.

Brother Ellis is a young man in the ministry, and we believe that he is a God-fled minister of the Gospel.

Concerning the revival, we had good attendance all during the meeting, the crowds increasing as the meeting continued. Those attending seemed to be happy in the Lord and interested in the messages. Many expressed themselves as having experienced a soul-feast of spiritual things. Surely the Spirit of the Lord was with the speaker, and had sway in the meeting.

The church members were revived in the spirit of the Lord, and were drawn closer to the heavenly Father. There were 23 persons who came to accept the Lord as their personal Saviour. There were four who moved their membership from other churches to our church. There was great rejoicing over the good results of the meeting.

We do appreciate the co-operation which was shown by other churches in attendance upon our services. Special music was rendered each night of the meeting, and everyone seemed to enjoy it very much.

Brother T. P. Ellis will be our pastor for another year. The church services will be on each second Sunday of the month at the eleven o'clock hour. The public is cordially invited to come and worship the Lord with us.

THE WATER CARRIER

When Jesus was a child I think He walked Beside His mother through the purple dawn,
Down to the village well for their supply
Of water for the home. They may have gone
Aside to watch some snowy bloom unfold
Its dewy petals to the coming day,
Or listened as a brown bird sang its song
And smiled at woolly lambs that frisked at play;
For when the Christ had grown to be a
Man
He spoke of birds and trees and rocks and sand—
Such simple things, that simple folk like me
Might hear, and in their hearts might understand.

Christ and His Church

peace with God, and became members of the church.

The early church had power with God, so God added to the church daily such as should be saved. All members of Christ's church are converted people. The church Jesus will present to Himself will be a perfect church without spot or wrinkle or any such thing, holy and without blemish. "And he gave some, apostles; and some prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," Eph. 4:11-13.

Christian friend, have you reached this place of His fulness? Have you just made yourself at ease in Zion? If so, God said, "Woe unto them who are at ease in Zion." Could you believe Jesus will come for a church that has no power, no vision, some believing one thing and some another? No. I say "no" on these grounds: that He healed all who came to Him. He made deformed bodies whole and opened blinded eyes, and His church will not be deformed or sick, but a church that is whole and sound, being able to see eye to eye and all speak the same thing. "So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment," I Cor. 1:7-10.

"For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am Apollos; are ye not carnal?" I Cor. 3:4.

The church that Jesus purchased with His own blood is the one that we must feed and perfect, and he, Paul, calls it the Church of God (Acts 20:28). What do you call yours? Col. 1:18, "And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence." Christ has a church which He sets the members in as it pleases Him. Not through church politics will God bless and honor His church, but by the leading of the Holy Ghost, for the Holy Ghost will lead and guide you in all truth and show you things to come. The church must and does have members full of the Holy Ghost to be its leaders. Acts 6:3, "Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business."

How can any people be the real church when they don't have leaders or even believe in the Holy Ghost? Come on, Church of God, as Joshua and Caleb came back with the report, "We are well able to take the land," so are we, the Church of God, able to gather in the masses of them who are saying, "Come ye and let us go up to Zion the house of the Lord, for out of Zion shall go forth the word of the Lord."—Selected.

Rev. C. E. Orten Passes

On Saturday, July 8, 1950, God called one of our oldest and most beloved members to be at rest with Him. Stoney Creek Church has lost a very dear and loyal member.

Brother Orten was 82 years old last March the tenth. He had been a faithful worker for the Lord while he lived. We feel that he is gone to enjoy that mansion that he used to sing about. Brother Orten will be missed in the church and in his home, and community.

He was always ready to help those in need in any way that he could. His health had been failing him for a long while, but he had not been confined to his bed. He leaves 6 children, and several grandchildren. We would say to the children: weep not for him, for we feel that he is at rest.

His funeral was conducted at the church on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by Rev. Clifton Rice, assisted by Rev. W. H. Lancaster. He was buried in Willow Dale Cemetery, Goldsboro, North Carolina. The large crowd of people and the beautiful floral wreaths showed how he was loved by all who knew him.

MRS. ANNIE MOORE STILL PASSES

On Thursday, November 2, 1950, God sent his angel to the home of Rev. and Mrs. T. B. Mellette, and claimed by death Mrs. Annie Moore Still, Mrs. Mellette's mother.

Mrs. Still was the only daughter of Rev. A. S. Moore. Soon after her marriage to John B. Still, Sr., she united with Zion Free Will Baptist Church, Early County, Georgia. She was a faithful member until her death.

Mother was a devout Christian, and loved her church next to her family. It was always a privilege of hers to attend services and to perform her part well in all auxiliaries of the church. She read with great joy every issue of the Free Will Baptist paper.

Soon after the death of my Father (her husband) she made her home with us, and for almost ten years she was my constant guide in our home. She performed her duties cheerfully with a smile, and around the family altar her voice reached up to God with thanksgiving in Jesus name for blessings daily received.

Mother was in her seventy-sixth year, and for nearly four months suffered intense pain which she bore in great faith and patience.

Some how she is not dead,
She is just away;
Somewhere in God's own way,
She is just away.

IN MEMORIAM

*In memory of my loving Father,
Josephus Moye*

My Father was a farmer,
A strong, good man;
Straight were the rows
Where his sharp plow ran.

Straight were the thoughts
In his unschooled head;
And straight from the Scripture
Was the life he led.

Gnarled were his fingers,
From life-long toil;
But mellow his heart
That loved the soil.

Close after God
In his soul came labor;
And an equal feeling
For every neighbor.

My Father was a farmer
Who knew the worth;
Of kinship with
The planted earth.

Today the life of my Father,
Who was Josephus Moye;
Lives in the hearts
Of all who knew him.

A BOY MAKES A KITE

BEN L. BYER

There's flour paste in all the jar lids,
And all the string is gone,
The porch is filled with slender sticks,
And there's paper on the lawn.

The breeze that blows is soft and balmy,
The air is filled with spring,
The countryside is filled with boys
And kites are on the wing.

There's paste spots on the floor and walls
The place is filled with litter,
But then he got his kite to fly
And refused to be a quitter.

One thing is sure: This country will get a lot dryer or a lot wetter.

With What Body Are the Dead Raised?

to St. Mark 9:2-5, "And after six days taken with him Peter, James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain apart by themselves; and he was transfigured before them. And his raiment became shining, exceeding white as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them. And there appeared unto them Elias, with Moses; and they were talking with Jesus. And Peter answered and said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias." Moses and Elias had been dead over one thousand years. Peter had never seen them, though he saw them that day and called them by their names. St. Matt. 8:11, "And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven." My beloved friends, I want to see Abraham, for he was a friend of God. Paul said, "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; But then shall I know even as also I am known" (I Cor. 13:12) as we are known, we will be the same in heaven. The rich man knew Lazarus in Abraham's bosom. He could see, hear and talk.

Then, when Jesus sent his disciples out and they came back rejoicing because the devils were subject unto them. He said unto them, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; nothing by any means hurt you; but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven" (Luke 10:18-20). "In that great day of the Lord the graves shall give up the dead, and that angelic host will move out from this old world with its sorrows and shame, to be wafted into the palace of an eternal God, to that great eternal Homecoming to be reunited with our friends and loved ones.

Here is the answer to my text; How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

DESTRUCTIVE FOXES

E. G. REIFF

In that striking little message, called, "The Canticles," or "The Song," the writer pleads: "Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines: for our vines have tender grapes" (S. of Sol. 2:15). Foxes, he says, spoil the vines. This implies that these little foxes were sneaking around in a vineyard. Instead of openly appearing and disappearing, the characteristic of the fox is to creep and sneak along in such a manner as to be scarcely able to be detected. The fox in the vineyard is doubly destructive. He does not merely rob the vines of their fruit, by his sportiveness, but he also destroys a lot by pulling down and tearing loose the vines as well as by biting the bark of the vines. Can we then understand why Solomon is so intensely interested in his vineyard?

Let us apply these "little foxes" to what many people term, "little sins." These "little sins" are very destructive in the lives of our young people. They destroy the "tender grapes" of love, joy and happiness, if allowed to sneak in the tender lives unnoticed and unchecked. The first, and possibly one of the most destructive "little foxes" we shall begin with is the fox of

SELFBISHNESS

This is a nasty little "fox." He is a very important little "fox." In a very short time, if not caught, he will take full sway where he is allowed to get in. This "fox" will destroy the tender little grapes of love. He will mar its gracious influence. He will hurt its tender workings. A young person whose love is prevailed upon by this mean little "fox," called selfishness, will be mean in bearing. He will be selfish in his desires, in his wants, in his personal claims and rights. Oh, the destructiveness of this little neaky "fox" called selfishness!

Where this "fox" of selfishness is permitted to lurk and sport, love, which is the very opposite, will finally vanish. The two cannot dwell in the same place. One or the other must change quarters. Love thrives on being a blessing and sacrifice for others. Selfishness lurks in the shadow of gloom, a frown, unhappiness.

We pray that selfishness may not gain control of the pure, simple young lives and destroy the tender grapes of ripening love.

The next, and in some cases just as mean and degrading a "little fox" we want to write to you about is the "fox" of

DISCONTENT

Look at him peeping out from every nook and corner of a self-controlled life. The very sight of him is mean and contemptible. He destroys the love for work, the love for home, the love for friends, the love for everything that is right and good. Contentment is a characteristic of Godliness. Discontent is therefore a characteristic of ungodliness. Discontent spoils every task and every joy that comes along in the lives of the young. Pray to be delivered from the "little fox" called discontent. There is blessed deliverance for those whose lives are spoiled and destroyed by this devilish "little fox." The Lord Jesus can cleanse the heart and life of those who humbly and sincerely seek His face.

Following this "little fox" of discontent invariably comes the "fox" of

ANXIETY

Now watch his subtle workings. This is a seemingly very tender "little fox." His every move and action is oh, so tender! But you undertake to hinder him in his tender (?) prowlings, and the dust will fly. Phew! Everything in an uproar! Yes, simply because this tender (?) "little fox" has been discovered and taken hold of. This "fox" of anxiety will be the disturber of peace. There is absolutely no peace where he reigns. This "fox" creates distrust to a nerve-racking point. He tries to show ghostly trials and troubles, failures and disappointments where there is no actual reason for it.

Are you hampered by the evil workings of this creator of disturbance, the "fox" of anxiety? Claim the promise: "Thou (Lord) will keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on THEE." God is faithful.

Yet one more "fox" to conclude with. This time it is the "little fox" of

IMPATIENCE

Have you ever lived with or around some one whose life was being destroyed by the "fox" of impatience? My, but it means jealous watching and praying, or before you are aware of it, this mean little sneak of a thief, impatience, will have your life under control. Once under his sway, it will mean a work of grace in the heart through the operation of the Holy Ghost to be delivered from his fiery little onslaughts.

When the "fox" of impatience is hiding somewhere in the heart, the words will be raspy, the actions rude and inconsiderate. Bitterness is also a sign that the "fox" of impatience is within working distance. It requires a lot of patience, in fact more than any one has without the Lord Jesus, to live around and put up with an impatient person. His tender love in the heart will, however, make those patient who are thus Divinely controlled. Gentleness is one of its by-products.

It is an exquisite pleasure to be surrounded by young people, and older ones, as well, who are Divinely patient. Patient people will never blame. Patient people will never be jealous. Patient people will never feel slighted. They are too sensible and too unselfish to feel those things. I am speaking now of those who are exercised in Divine patience. No one can be Divinely gentle and at the same time bitter, or jealous, or rude in speech or action.

Pray the Lord to keep you clean and free from the sinful "fox" of impatience.

There are many, many more "little foxes" that could be named and enlarged upon, but we trust and pray that those "foxes" we have here designated will not be found in the lives of our young readers. If there should be, always remember there is an absolute Divine Remedy for all sin and uncleanness—the precious cleansing Blood of Jesus. His Blood truly washes whiter than the snow. He can make the heart and life altogether clean and fill it with His very own love and gentleness.

Pray daily, dear young reader: "Take the mean 'foxes' out of my life, dear Lord, through Thy Divine operations by the Holy Spirit, for Thy name's sake. Amen!"—Gospel Herald.

A Christmas Thought

Oh Christmas is coming again, you say,
And you long for the thing he is bringing;
But the costliest gift may not gladden the day,
Nor help on the merry bells ringing.
Some getting is losing, you understand,
Some hoarding is far from saving;
What you hold may slip from your hand,
There is something better than having;
We are richer for what we give;
And only by giving we live.

Your last year's presents are scattered and gone;
You have almost forgot who gave them;
But the loving thoughts you bestow live on
As long as you choose to have them.
Love, love is your riches, though ever so poor;
No money can buy that treasure;
Yours always, from robber and rust secure,
Your own, without stint or measure:
It is only love that we can give;
It is only by loving we live.

For who is it smiles thru the Christmas morn—
The Light of the wide creation?
A dear little Child in a stable born,
Whose love is the world's salvation.
He was poor on earth, but He gave us all
That can make our life worth the living;
And happy the Christmas day we call
That is spent, for His sake, in giving;
He shows us the way to live,
Like Him, let us love and give!

IF! IF!

If every boy and every girl,
Arising with the sun,
Should plan this day to do alone
The good deeds to be done;
Should scatter smiles and kindly words,
Strong, helpful hands should lend;
And to each other's wants and cries
Attentive ears should bend.

If every man and woman, too,
Should join these workers small,
Oh, what a flood of happiness
Upon our earth would fall!
How many homes would sunny be
Which now are filled with care!
And joyous, smiling faces, too,
Would greet us everywhere.

I do believe the very sun
Would shine more clear and bright,
And every little twinkling star
Would shed a softer light.
But we, instead, must watch to see
If, other folks are true,
And thus neglect so much that God
Intends for us to do.

CAPE FEAR S. S. CONVENTION

The Cape Fear Sunday School Convention convened on October 21, 1950 at Shady Grove Free Will Baptist church. There were five churches representing with choirs and two by letters.

Group singing was enjoyed by all present and a delicious dinner was served on the grounds at the noon hour.

A business meeting was held immediately following dinner, which was presided over by the moderator, Warren Jackson. A contribution of $135.00 was made to the orphanage.

The convention adjourned to meet next year at St. Paul church, Newton Grove. All churches are urged to represent with their choirs.

☞ The Three Requirements for a Healthy Life ☜

If we are to maintain our physical life at a good level, we need three requirements. They are fresh air, food, and exercise. It is that same way with our spiritual life. If we are to have a good, healthy spiritual life, we also have three requirements that we must follow. They are prayer, Bible reading and service. We cannot afford to neglect any one of these without disastrous results to our spiritual life. Many Christians has caused shipwreck to his life by neglect of one or more of these three requirements, and therefore his life has been robbed of all joy and usefulness.

The first of these three requirements we want to consider is prayer. Paul tells us in I Thess. 5:17 to pray without ceasing. Prayer is not merely asking God for something we would like to have, nor is it a routine exercise that has to be carried out from time to time. Prayer is a means by which we establish living contact with God. It is not merely asking God for what we want but it is asking for something that He wants us to have and seeking to find what it is. We are told that if we ask according to His will that He heareth us. By prayer we find God's will for our lives. Although God's promises about prayer are wonderful there are certain conditions that we must carry on. In Ps. 66:18 He tells us that if we regard iniquity in our hearts He will not hear us. In an electric circuit a little bit of dirt may stop the flow of the electric current; so with our dealings with God, a little bit of sin may interrupt our contact with Him. If there is any sin between us and Him we must put it away and seek His forgiveness for it. Another condition that God lays down is that prayer must be unselfish. In Jas. 4:3 He tells us that we ask and receive not, because we ask amiss, that we may consume it upon our lust. There are many people who think only of self when they pray and we know that sort of prayer cannot be answered. Another condition is that prayer must be offered in faith. (Read Jas. 1:6, 7.) Is the lack of faith the cause of our ineffective prayers? If God gives us an answer and grants our requests, are we surprised? Too often this is the case with many. A man once said, "Prayer will make a man cease from sin, and sin will entice a man to cease from prayer, and this certainly is a true saying.

Just as we need food to sustain our physical life so do we need spiritual food to nourish our spiritual life. It is God's Book, the Bible, which provides us with that food. Just as we have breakfast in order to prepare ourselves for the work of the day, so do we need spiritual food to begin our day's work. In the first place, the Bible tells us of something we greatly need to know, and which we could in no otherwise find out about what God thinks about the deep problems of life. It may be very interesting to read man's opinion about certain problems of life, but what these men think will not get us very far. It is what God thinks that really matters, and the only way we can find this is by reading His word. The Bible tells us of God's plan of salvation and His remedy for sin. In the Bible we find not only a guide to what we should believe but the way we should conduct ourselves. It is wonderfully true that although the Bible was written, in its latest portions, 1900 years ago it is the most up-to-date Book in the world, since it exactly meets the needs in the present day.

As we have already seen not only do we need fresh air and food for our physical well-being, but we need exercise as well. In the spiritual life service takes the place of exercise. Some people may wonder why we are left here after we have become His children through faith in Christ. But if Christ took us to be with Him as soon as we are saved, then who would be here to witness for him? He leaves us here so that we may pass the good news on to others. Later in heaven we will serve Him but perhaps in a different way. Our service here may be preparation for that higher service later. Grudging service is of little value. Service of which the motive power is love and gratitude is the only kind which is really effective. The form of service may be extremely varied and includes service in life as well as by lips. In fact, everything we do and everything we say could be done and said as part of our service to Him. Our service is not confirmed to slated periods. It is not true that part of the day is God's and the rest is our own. We are on duty for God all the time. Service by lip can be either to an individual or a gathering of people. God desires us to work for Him and He must choose that way for us and we must prayerfully find out from Him what His choice is for us. We must be willing to obey His will for us and one thing to remember is that however simple and humble the task is it must be done in the strength of God. We must not feel that the work is too hard or beyond our power. When God spoke to Moses about leading His people out of Egypt, he hesitated in giving God an answer. He felt that it was beyond his power but God told Moses that He would see Him thru. So it is with us. When God calls us to a particular piece of service, we must not doubt that He will give the needed strength and wisdom to see it through. In Phil. 4:13 we are promised that we can do all things through God which strengtheneth us. So just remember, when you are called on to do something for God, don't say "I can't," or "Someone else can do better than I can." Just remember Phil. 4:13.

"Your every voter, as surely as your Chief Magistrate, under the same high sanction, though in a different sphere, exercises a public trust."—Grover Cleveland.

It is one of the great mysteries that a man who is sensitive and considerate in small groups, so frequently becomes foolish, violent and cruel in a crowd.

FALSE. PROPHETS. PREDICTED

The word of God declared that false prophets shall come in the last days. Certainly we are living in the last days. Every Bible student will admit and preach that according to the word of God that we are living in the last days. There is no one that knows when the last day will come and the Lord shall descend from heaven and catch His waiting Bride up to be with Him for evermore. But all prophecy points to His early return.

Many prophets have preached and set days for the ending of the age, but all these set prophecies have fallen flat, and the old earth continues to revolve as nature declares when the Creator placed it in its respectful place and set the bounds thereof.

It was prophesied by certain prophets that the Lord would come in the year of 1914, then it was changed and the date set for 1924. Then, as nothing unusual took place, these prophets began to make it general and to say that "millions now living will never die." This latter prediction may be true, or it may be false. Only God knows when the day will come. Notice what Jesus says: "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no not the angels of heaven, but my Father only" (Matt. 24:36). Thus to set dates is mere religious speculation. These false prophets have won thousands by playing on the ignorance of these who know not the truth.

Many people are indifferent to the teachings which come right into their own family often and take from them their children and loved ones. As we said in writings recently, "We can tolerate these false teachings, but we cannot afford to be indifferent towards them." That would be saying, that God does not care as to right and wrong. God does care, and that is why Paul said, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lust they shall heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; And they shall turn away their ears from truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Tim. 4:1-4).

So when false prophets begin to set dates, just search the Scriptures as Christ admonished us, and find the sure word of God and stand there waiting for His return, or the day when you shall end your earthly pilgrimage. Christ said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away" (Matt. 24:35). His word is that "No man knows the day nor hour."

TO NOT BELIEVE HIS COMING AGAIN IS INFIDELITY

Not long ago I heard a minister of the Gospel say, that in his conversation with another preacher, that it was said by this particular minister: "The second coming of Jesus to this earth, was an old 'hobby-horse' that sentimental preachers had been riding to advantage with emotional hearers," or words to this effect. I made no note of the exact words used by the minister, but the essence is expressed in the above word. Well, the apostle Peter has this to say about it: "This second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance; that ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour: knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lust, and saying where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. For this they are willingly ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of the water and in the water: Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water perished: But the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men" (2 Peter 3:1-7).

A few years ago I was told that a professor, who was at the head of a high School said in reply to one of my messages, that, "I do not believe in the return of the Lord Jesus." Now this gentleman was a member of a modernistic church that took the bread and the fruit of the vine and called it the Lord's Supper; and, when this supper was observed, he would partake of the emblems of the Lord's broken body and shed blood. Now this is inconsistency; because the Lord said, when He had taken bread and had given it to His disciples, and also the fruit of the vine, "But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it now with you in my Father's kingdom" (Matt. 26:29). Read the whole account of the Supper, as given by Matthew, Mark and Luke, and also John. Then turn to First Corinthians, the eleventh chapter, and get what Paul says. I quote the twenty-sixth verse "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do shew Lord's death till he come." So when you take of the emblems of the broken body and the blood of our Lord, remember that it is commanded by the Lord Himself, as a sacred ordinance of the church, pointing back to the cross and forward to His second coming. And if you do not believe in His return, be consistent and leave off the Lord's supper.

But His returning is sure to be close at hand. "And as he sat upon the mount of olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, "Tell us when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world? And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you. For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ and shall deceive many" (Mat. 24:3-5). Read the whole chapter. Here Christ

THAT MISSIONARY SERMON

"I never heard anything before quite like that sermon," remarked Phil to his Uncle Philip, as he entered the sitting-room of his home. "Were you out this morning, Uncle!"

"Yes, Phil."

"Well, I'm glad of that, although the sermon was addressed chiefly to us younger folks. It was all about systematic giving, you see; and the preacher said that even the children should be trained to give their own money. It rather surprised me. I had always considered that what I had was my own, and Father generally supplied me when the extra collections came round."

Uncle Philip looked amused, but said nothing.

"Now, this morning I had no idea the appeal would be so stirring, and as I had spent all my allowance, and forgot to ask Father for more, I couldn't give one cent when the gifts were gathered. I tell you, Uncle, it made me feel small."

Uncle Philip was now thoroughly aroused.

"Does this state of affairs often occur, Phil?"

"Well, no, Uncle, not very often; only just when I forget to ask Father; he never denies me when I want money for such a cause."

"Yet whose gift is it, yours or your father's? Didn't that missionary sermon state something on this very subject?"

"I believe it did, Uncle," said Phil, blushing. "I suppose the truth is, the gift is really Father's, and I deserve no credit for it."

"You now state the truth as it really is. Suppose, for instance, that I should spend all my money in gratifying self, and when I wanted to give to any branch of the Lord's work, I went to your Aunt Hetty and said, 'Will you please give me something for the missionary cause today; I'm entirely out of pocket; spent all mine yesterday.' Now, Phil, whose gift would it really be? My own or your Aunt Hetty's?"

"Oh, Uncle Phillip, how could you ask such an absurd question?"

"Because I wish to rouse you thoroughly, my boy. How much does your father allow you for spending money?"

"Oh, he's very liberal, uncle. He generally gives me two dollars each month."

"And that is all your own. Well, Phil, it seems rather strange that you cannot manage to save something out of it for Christian giving. Would you object to telling me how it goes?"

"Why, no; certainly not! I'm awfully fond of candy; that takes a good deal; then I buy a good many games; that tennis set is my own."

"Well, Phil, are you going to act upon the sermon?"

"I wish I could, Uncle; but how shall I begin?"

"I know of no better way than just to set a sum aside each month, as soon as your father gives it to you, as belonging entirely to the Lord. Then, upon no account, allow yourself to spend it, no matter how pressing your need may seem."

"But, Uncle, how much shall it be?"

"What did that missionary sermon say, Phil?"

Phil hesitated a moment, then answered:

"It said something like this: that as the gift is really to God, it should be worthy in every particular. Is that what you mean, Uncle Philip?"

"I do. Now, what is the best you feel you can offer Him?"

"Since I have lost so much time, as you say, spending my own and giving Father's money in its place, I'll undertake to give twelve dollars this first year."

"Bravo, Phil," cried Father. He had entered the room unobserved, and had only caught the last remark.

"But see what I have here," he continued. "We are about to distribute pledge cards among the young, as the best way to train them in Christian giving. If you are fully decided in your own mind, Phil, that you wish to give one dollar each month, you have only to write your name and the amount here."

With Phil, once to form a resolution was to act upon it.

"I'll do it, Father," he said; "but after all, I don't know which has stirred me up most, that missionary sermon, or Uncle Philip's practical comments upon it and me."

Phil never regretted taking the pledge card, but was a better and happier boy all the year because of it.—Young People's Paper.

TRYING TO PLEASE EVERYBODY

ARTHUR BRESTEL

There was once a man who had a fish store and had a big sign in the window: Fresh Fish For Sale Here Today.

One day a friend said to him, "Why do you have that word 'today' on your sign? People can see that you have the fish for sale today."

"I guess you are right," said the fish salesman, and he had a new sign made.

In a few days another man said, "Say, Mister, why is that word 'here' on your sign? People know that your store is here and you are selling your fish."

"I guess you are right," he replied, and he had a new sign made: Fresh Fish For Sale.

It was not long until another fellow came and said, "What is the use of having 'for sale' on your sign? Anybody knows that you could not stay in business and make money if you give your fish away."

"That is so," he answered, and he had another sign made:

FRESH FISH

In about a week someone said, "That word 'fresh' is not necessary on your sign. People would think you were foolish if you should try to sell stale fish."

The salesman agreed and made a big sign: Fish.

It was not very long until a man said,

"Why do you have that sign on your store? People can see that it is a fish store." So he decided that it was not necessary to have a sign.

The very next day a stranger came to him and said, "Say, Mister, you should have some kind of a sign on your store. All business places have signs."

He said, "I have been trying to please everybody and it looks like I can't please anybody. I am going to have a sign like I want it."

Now, children, let us not try to please everybody or we will fail. Let us serve God with all our hearts and try to please Him in all things.—P. H. Advocate.

MRS. McADAMS WRITES

DEAR CO-WORKERS:

Greetings in the name of our wonderful Saviour! No doubt, many of our friends know that we are in North Carolina now. Many are wondering why, and what mission we are on, we feel quite sure.

Well, we will give it to you as the Lord gave it to us. Several months ago, we were led to take a "Farewell Missionary Tour"; that is to say, to encourage the church people to do more for missions, and especially to the help of our Foreign Mission cause. We want to help put it over.

Listen, we are boosting for our Foreign Mission Directors, and any place that has not had Brother Rashie Kennedy to present his marvelous picture of Cuba, they should engage him at once to visit their church. Then they will have a greater vision for that field of service than ever before. We saw it in Goldsboro on our visit when we first came. You have a most splendid director for your state. Let him show your people his picture.

Upon leaving Goldsboro, we went to Maury, and heard Brother Tyndall deliver a wonderful message on Sunday. While there we met a number of our old friends whom we had not seen in several years. It was a surprise to those dear workers when we arrived on Monday in Ayden, and went into the Press. We shook hands with a number of them, and looked around to see the improvements which they have made since we were last in our publishing house.

When we left Ayden, our next stop was in New Bern with Brother and Sister J. C. Griffin for a few minutes. It was a great joy indeed to be with them again in sweet Christian fellowship. While there we failed to contact Brother and Sister J. R. Davidson, but were able to speak with Sister Alice E. Lupton and Ballard over the telephone.

Leaving New Bern, we went on to Morehead City to see Brother Smith a few minutes. In fact, we stopped at all the churches as we came on down to Cedar Island. We will mention our trip here in our next writing. We have had two splendid nights at Cedar Island, and will start back to visit other churches.

We are asking for your prayers that we may be a blessing to all the churches which we have privilege to visit. We are hoping that this will not be the last Farewell Visiting Missionary Tour. We have been in the work for 41 years last October. We cannot expect to make as many tours in the future as we have in the past.

May God bless each of you dear people. We expect to see some of you very soon.

UNITED EFFORTS ESSENTIAL TO THE BEST OF RESULTS

Decades ago a poor farmer was striving singlehandedly to clear a parcel of ground upon which to grow food for his small family. The heavy logs that he had cut, together with the underbrush, were more than he could handle alone. He was at a loss as to what to do, and became almost ready to give up in despair.

One day his wife suggested that he ask the neighbors to help him to "roll the logs in piles" for burning, then he could burn them with the underbrush. He thought that it was a good suggestion, and went to see several of his neighbors, and told his difficulty. They agreed to go and help him on a certain day.

His wife and a few of the other neighborhood women made ready and prepared dinner for the "log rollers" that day. From this they received great joy, preparing the vegetables and cooking dinner.

The neighborhood men came bright and early with hand-sticks prepared to lift and carry the logs in piles on the plot of ground this farmer who had cut down the trees. With four men on each side of the log, they piled one after another in heaps until the noon hour. It was heavy work, but they enjoyed it, and had great fun, talking and laughing while they piled the logs.

They enjoyed a good dinner at the house with the good women who had prepared the large country dinner for them. With a period out for rest and some jokes after dinner, they enjoyed a good time together.

That afternoon they went back into the clearing, and by nightfall they had piled in heaps all of the heavy logs and saplings which this farmer had cut down. Before letting his neighbors part to go to their own homes, this grateful farmer thanked each one for his help and interest in making the "log rolling" a success, and promised to help them whenever they needed him, for he fully realized that he could never have gotten the logs together and burned off the growth without their help.

The work in a home of a large family may be compared with this story of the "log rollers." The help of each one is necessary for the work to be done easily and well. Mother cannot do all of the domestic affairs of the home. Daughters and servants must help if the work is done easily and in a good way. The old adage is true: "Many hands make light work."

More than this, this store of the farmer and the "log rollers" may be used, or applied in a good way to the local church. The pastor cannot do all of the work, nor is it his responsibility. The Deacons, or Stewards, or other officers of the church cannot do all of the necessary things to be done in the church and for the spiritual upbuilding of the community. The truth is, all members of such a church should share, according to their means and strength, in the work of the church. When it comes to making material improvements of the church, the male members can be as the "log rollers" who helped the poor farmer. They can, with united efforts, make the church the type of edifice for the Lord that they want for his glory and for the spiritual welfare of the people of the community. When it comes to financial support of the church and its program for the upbuilding of the gospel of Christ, all the church members, as one great body of Christian workers and supporters, can be cheerful giving of their means bring about great results in their church and community, and for the cause of missions, and other religious causes. With willing minds, as was true of those "log rollers" with that poor farmer, they can do things easily and well, and at the same time get great joy from their concerted efforts for the cause of righteousness home and abroad.

The "log rollers" long remembered what they did for their neighbor farmer, and how they blessed him. Cheerful and active church members, who are "all-on-the-altar" for Christ, cooperating together in peace and harmony, can long remember the good results of their wholehearted labor for the Lord Jesus. When years have passed into history, and their records have been reviewed, they will have nothing to regret for the loyalty of Christian service which they rendered to the generation to come after them.

May the coming days, as this old year passes moment by moment toward midnight of December thirty-first, be days of thoughtfulness of how we should end the year, and how we should not forget God and His goodness, and thereby be reminded to give of our means, as God has blessed us, to the work of missions, to the orphan children and the widows, to the support of disabled ministers, Christian education, and the like. May selfishness and greed, sensuality and earthly pleasures give way to thoughts of kindness, deeds of charity, and brotherly love for our fellow man. May our spending of strength be, as it were, like the strength of those "log rollers," be used for the good of others. May our happiness around the Christmas season be the result of the joy of Christian service, as was the joy of those "log rollers" which came to their hearts in knowing that they had done a good service to a brother farmer in need.

CROP 1950 PROGRAM GETS UNDERWAY

The Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) officially opened its 1950 harvest appeal to rural Americans to help underprivileged and hungry people overseas with relief in kind by dedicating an entire shipload of foodstuffs on United Nations Day in Chicago. The cargo was made up of advance contributions from 17 states where CROP this year operates and government surplus of powdered eggs and dried milk. Participating in the colorful ceremony were DP children seen above in Ukrainian national costumes who sang "America" in English and in the Ukrainian tongue. Some of the government surplus is seen in the inset during loading ceremonies flanked by Walter Parr (left) and Carl Key (right), CROP's Regional Field Directors.

CHRISTIAN RURAL OVERSEAS PROGRAM BRINGING FAITH IN GOD TO FORGOTTEN PEOPLE

In the view of a man of practical bent who has been around the world observing the needs of hungry millions, the Christian Rural Overseas Program is not only "filling the wrinkles" in men's stomachs, but is also bringing faith in God to people who had thought they were forgotten.

Leaders and friends of CROP heard this inspiring message on United Nations day in Chicago at ceremonies speeding the friendship Food Ship in its way with a food cargo symbolizing the beginning of the 1950 flow of food from American farms to the destitute in Europe and Asia. Speaker of the day was Dr. Raymond W. Miller, consultant to the Food and Agriculture Organization of UN.

"I have a very definite opinion and that is that all normal men throughout the world are religious," said Dr. Miller, a prominent Methodist layman. "It is the abnormal man that denies God. It is the abnormal man that has no relationship between himself and God.

"We as Christians in Christian America have definitely taken on ourselves as the followers of Christ, as the humble followers of the man of Galilee, to try as much as possible to put into operation some of those things that we get out of His teachings.

"And what are His teachings? I am not a theologian. I am a farmer, but as a farmer I see many, many things in the New Testament out of which have come the Philosophy of CROP. Christ said that man could not live by bread alone, but remember that He left in bread, a combination of bread and the divine spirit that we get from God, and that is the thing on which CROP is based.

"Last year I was in Central Europe, in some communities where the people had received aid from CROP. They'd eaten the food; the food was gone, but behind the food was this—that there were people across the world with a common faith and a common God that hadn't forgotten."

"The FAO of the United Nations," said Dr. Miller, "feels that CROP is one of those operations that can help the world to help itself by taking information from where it is needed through the medium of seeds and through the demonstration of the actual shipment of actual food that was grown by bona fide farmers. That is a lot better than money."

In Italy, Dr. Miller saw the results of a small planting of hybrid seed corn sent through CROP, he related.

"Let me bring it down to this," he said to his food ship audience, "you increased the yield in those small areas in which your seed were planted until it was the most talked about thing in the whole Po Valley. You have shown the people that it is possible with the same soil and the same labor to take the selected seed and do the things that we do in America."

In Hong Kong, he saw a project conducted among the Chinese by a Jesuit priest, a Quaker, a Presbyterian, a Methodist and several Episcopalian lay women. "They tripled the production of rice in two years' time," he said, "by good seeds and good methods through the same type of thing that CROP is using."

With the food ship on its way to sea, CROP, which has its national headquarters in Chicago, turned its attention to the gathering of gifts from the 1950 harvest to continue the flow of needed food overseas. There are state units in 17 states, and all of them were represented in the cargo aboard the ship.

In its three years of existence, CROP has collected and sent abroad, 3,555 freight car loads of food. There the food is distributed by the three parent agencies of CROP: Catholic Rural Life, Church World Service and Lutheran World Relief.

This season's goal is 1,350 cars. The continuing need to "fill up the wrinkles in men's stomachs," as he put it, was expressed by Dr. Miller in his food ship talk when he said:

"There are hundreds of millions of people who go to bed hungry every night. Half the world's population is hungry all the time. A child is born hungry, it lives hungry and it dies hungry. That is what CROP is attacking."

THE BIBLE AND SOUL WINNING

Will H. Houghton

The Bible is uniquely a personal book. It contains governmental laws and imparts principles which, properly interpreted, and applied, would bring right adjustment in every social relationship; but it is, after all, a book with a message to individuals. Each individual reading it can say, "This means me."

Thousands in every generation have recognized this fact and have found comfort in the realization that, not only is the Lord the shepherd of His people, but "the Lord is my shepherd."

It is this appropriation of the personal message of our Bible that this age seems to have lost—even those who are faithful in proclaiming that "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The "whosoever," the universality of it, is always before them; but when some Philippian jailer as a lone soul asks, "What must I do to be saved?" they haven't the answer.

The revival in the church is always the making personal of the Bible message. As long as the Bible is the private possession of the king, of the church, or of the scholar, the Book fails of its end and purpose. But, let the releasing of it come and let it reach the people, and a spiritual awakening is on.

When Tyndale and his associates gave the Bible to the people of England in their own tongue, he opened the door to a spiritual awakening. The nave of St. Paul's held the first five or six copies, and the multitude turned to this church to hear the Word of God read. Later the Bible was reproduced in such fashion that it could enter the homes of the people; and out of an atmosphere of boldness and corruption a revival was born.

The revival of the Puritan period was due to this giving of the Word of God to the common people one by one. It is popular today to ridicule the Puritans; but, as someone has said, "Better the age of the Puritans than the age of the impuritans."

Geneva has had the fortune to be the center of the world's interest for many reasons, but none more significant than its association with the name of John Calvin. He was the man who helped divinity students realize the power of the Bible in personal life. They called Calvin "the man of one book." But students gathered with him for study of the contents of that book, and soon the awakening had come.

John Wesley found the church ignoring the Bible, brought its power to bear on individual lives and a revival was the result.

Every student of missionary history knows the story of Madagascar. When the missionaries were ordered to leave, they hurriedly finished the translation of the Scripture and placed copies of it here and there. When the door of Madagascar was open to the Gospel years later, it was found that the Bible had done its work, and there were many Bible-born Christians awaiting the missionaries.

We are fortunate in our day that the Bible is made available to everyone in his own tongue. But a Bible distributed and a Bible read may be two different things. It is the Bible read, released, received, that operates for the salvation and sanctification of life.

The ministers of today might heed the words of McCheyne: "It is not our comment on the Word that saves, but the Word itself." How frequently in Acts we read that the early Christians "spoke the Word," and that they went everywhere "preaching the Word." Paul exhorts young Timothy "to preach the Word," and reminds him of how much this Word has meant in the lives of Timothy's mother and grandmother, as well as in his own life.

In the eighth chapter of Acts, one person, Philip, brought the Bible to bear upon the life of another person, the Ethiopian, in such a way that, through the Scriptures, the Ethiopian was brought to the knowledge of the Divine Person—Jesus Christ. This is the method and means of revival and of the lesser thing we call evangelism.

That the Word of God is "quick and powerful" is the claim of the Apostle. The word quick is old English for alive. The Apostle Peter says it is the living Word. It possesses life, but it also imparts its life; for in the same Scripture (I Peter 1:23) he says that we are born again by this Word.

Church history itself is the corroboration of the fact that men may be born from above through the Scriptures. The useful servants of God in distant and recent generations have been Bible-born and Bible-bred. It may be a Wesley in his day, or a Moody in his; but the operating agency is the same—the Spirit of God through the Word of God. Oh, yes, says James (1:18): "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth."

It is said that when Mr. Spurgeon was enlarging and remodeling his great Tabernacle, when the work was about done, he went to the platform to test the acoustics. Thinking the auditorium was empty, he lifted his voice in the recital of John 3:16. High up on a bit of scaffolding was a workman just finishing his task. The Word of God found its place in his heart at that moment, and he became a born-again Christian.

The blessing of God is on His own Word according to His own declaration to Isaiah: "For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but

ALL SMILES!

Yes, Sir! This makes us happy. It's real joy to read your Missionary correspondence and to know there are so many who are holding this work up in prayer. The missionaries are happy, too, and not only that, but the angels in heaven rejoice, because through our prayers and gifts the Gospel is preached and those who sit in darkness are brought into the marvelous light of the Lord Jesus Christ. WHY NOT SMILE!

After the mail is checked thoroughly, it is turned over to Mrs. Hubert B. Sloan, bookkeeper, with instructions for acknowledgement and posting.

Have you given this week for Foreign Missions?

IN YOUR GIVING, REMEMBER FOREIGN MISSIONS

Dear Friend,

With business letters, the briefer the better. With love letters, the longer the lovelier. This is both, but mostly the latter as you'll see.

Because you are a supporter of The Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Program, we know you love souls and are anxious for them to hear the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. We also know you love our missionaries who are standing in the gap for us. But there are such different degrees of affection, all the way from cold deference to passionate devotion.

Do you agree, that other things being equal, the intensity of our love is pretty fairly revealed by our eagerness to give the utmost possible, in money, as well as in time and service?

Perhaps you really love this cause more than you have actually given, and you are glad of this chance to increase your contribution now.

You know, of course, that the Foreign Mission department is delinquent in funds, thus we are appealing to you, that as we observe this Christmas in praising God for our Christian heritage and the bountiful supply of the good earth, that we think of those who are famishing for the "Bread of Life."

Maybe your class, auxiliary, or your church would give a special Christmas offering for Foreign Missions. Surely you will want to do something personally.

I hope you won't consider this letter a "dun" nor even a call to duty. It's merely an affectionate suggestion that you indulge in a real delight—showing your loyalty by your devoted support.

Will you consider this whole matter conscientiously now, in communion with your God, and if you have not already done so, make the whole transaction a true sacrament.

We eagerly await your response,

Most loyally yours,
Rev. Raymond Riggs,
Promotional Secy.-Treas.

WHAT IS WORSHIP?

William Ford

When our Lord was talking to the woman of Samaria He said unto her, "Ye worship ye know not what" (John 4:22).

It is true that thousands of people have a form of worship. Even the heathen in dark Africa and the red Indians have a form of worship, but as Paul said to the Athenians, the inscription of their worship was to the "unknown god" (Acts 17:23). Paul preached unto them the true God who made the world and all things therein. His Son gave His life for the salvation of lost souls and is now risen from the dead and exalted to God's right hand, a prince and a Saviour who will also be the judge of all men in God's appointed day.

Worship is mentioned sixty times in the New Testament and fifteen of those ascribe to Christ directly some of God's manifestations of love and grace. This is the means of drawing out intelligent adoration and worship.

Our Lord said to the woman, "They that worship him (the Father) must worship him in spirit and in truth" (John 4:24). To worship in "spirit and in truth" means that the Spirit of God reveals Christ through the Word, and the soul responds in joyful gratitude, crying out "To whom be glory" (Heb. 13:21). This is clearly seen in the life and the writings of the Apostle Paul, from his conversion right up into heaven's glory.

He "gave himself for our sins" (Gal. 1:4) What did Paul see? The great sacrifice on Calvary's cross. The fire of our grateful praise is kindled from the altar of God's sacrificing love and grace. This is given in type in Leviticus 16:12-14. As the believer looks at the cross with its suffering Saviour, he cries out in the language of the song:

With pleasing grief and mournful joy,

My spirit now is filled
That I should such a life destroy,
Yet live by Him I killed.

Paul cried out, "To whom be glory for ever and ever" (Heb. 13:21).

The Saviour

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (I Tim. 1:15-17).

When we realize what we were, and how we rebelled against Him, and what His grace has done for us in sending His own Son to suffer, bleed, and die, we "fall at His feet and the story repeat, and the Lover of sinners adore."

Paul once held the clothes of those who stoned Stephen and persecuted God's dear people, but when he saw that Christ Jesus came to save even a sinner like him, we could expect nothing else but that he would cry out, "To whom be glory forever and ever" (Heb. 13:21). This is worship of humble gratitude.

What did Paul see this time? Oh, he saw the exhaustless riches of God's grace when he wrote to the saints at Philippi, "My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory . . ." (Phil. 4:19).

How little of the ocean can a child carry in his hand. Even so does the ocean of God's love and grace meet our every need when we come to Him in humble prayer. It is inexhaustible.

As Paul saw the vision of His love, his heart opened in worship again, "Unto God and our Father be glory for ever and ever" (Phil. 4:20).

The New Covenant

"Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant . . . to whom be glory for ever and ever" (Heb. 13:20-21).

"I will put My laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people . . . For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more" (Heb. 8:10, 12). All the riches of God's grace, through the death of the testator (Jesus), are bestowed on us who are the recipients.

This is the new birth, given to us in the form of a will signed to every believer by the God who cannot lie. How could the Apostle Paul help but shout, "To Him be glory for ever."

The Source of All Blessing

"For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things" (Rom. 11:36). From this source the stream of God's love and grace flows out from God through Christ into the heart of the believer, then flows back in worship to His God. Our Lord said, "Come unto me, and drink. He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water" (John 7:37, 38), and the believer can sing in worship to his God,

A monument of grace, a sinner saved by blood,

The streams of love I trace, up to the fountain God

And in His sovereign counsels see,
Eternal thoughts of love to me.

So with Paul we sing, "To Him be glory for ever. Amen."

Passing through the Valley

The Apostle Paul said, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand . . . The Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen" (II Tim. 4:6, 18).

Here the apostle stood as it were on the very portal of glory. His friends had deserted him. He saw the never-failing God who would preserve him unto His heavenly kingdom. The glories of heaven were filling out again, "to whom be glory."

Divine Wisdom

"To the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God" (Eph. 3:10). "To God only wise, be glory through Jesus Christ for ever. Amen" (Rom. 16:27).

The angels in heaven behold the Church with the display of God's wisdom in His glorious redemptive purposes of grace, and millions of redeemed sinners, now washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb, will be filled with the expression of worship. They will all join in giving glory to Him that sitteth upon the throne, saying, "Amen: Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen" (Rev. 7:12).

True worship comes by way of Calvary. Does Calvary and Christ's dying love mean anything to you? If not, no matter what your religion may be, you cannot worship God. The Lord Jesus said, "No man cometh unto the Father, but by Me" (John 14:6). Accept Him now as your Saviour.—Selected.

SMYRNA CHURCH EXPERIENCES GOOD REVIVAL

Reverend Ralph Osborne Did Some Good Preaching

We held our revival meeting during the first week in September. Brother Ralph Osborne of Pinetown, North Carolina, was the evangelist. He brought each evening some very good sermons for the congregation to enjoy. As a result of this meeting there were added to the church ten members. Nine of these were baptized. The Spirit of the Lord was certainly with us in this meeting, and much lasting good was accomplished, we believe.

Our pastor, Brother Elton Harper, was with us during the meeting, and he rendered much help in the services each evening. We are glad that we have added some strong workers to our church, and we hope that the church will be greatly benefitted by their joining with us. This is what we need in our church today, members who are willing to lay aside sin, and turn from the Devil's crowd, and serve the Lord in spirit and in truth.

We are asking the dear readers of the Baptist paper to offer up unto God a prayer for our church here at Blounts Creek, for we do want it to grow in truth and righteousness day by day, and in love with every one.

I do enjoy reading the Baptist paper, for it has many good articles which bring joy to my heart. Come on, readers and write more articles for the paper, so that others may read your good messages.

Yours in the service of the Lord,

Mrs. R. C. Bell,

VICTORIOUS DAILY LIVING
(Lesson for December 17)

LESSON: 2 Corinthians 11:18-30;
12:18-10.

GOLDEN TEXT ILLUMINATED

"My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing" (James 1:2-4).

Christian patience is synonymous with fortitude. And this is a quality which too many Christians lack. When the way is hard and rough, when adversity presses upon us, when the hand of every man seems against us and even Heaven seems deaf to our cries, it is far too easy just to quit and turn back from the Christian warfare. He who so does lacks an essential element without which no man can succeed gloriously in the battle we wage for God. Some call this quality courage, some call it endurance, others refer to it as manhood. The New Testament calls it "patience."

The dictionary says that "patient" means to bear or endure pain, trial, or affliction without complaint and with equanimity, exercising the power to endure, displaying forbearance or self-control under provocation, kindly and long-suffering in dealing with the weaknesses of others. All of this, and more, is in the Biblical meaning of the word, and the word by itself is a sermon we all need to apply to ourselves.

The "more" that is in the word in its New Testament sense we can discover from the ancient Greek, which Paul and James spoke, and in which the New Testament was originally written. It was a military term, taken from the vocabulary of the Roman army, and it conveys a different idea from the modern conception of patience. In those days of hand-to-hand fighting, warriors often formed a line and locked their shields to repel an assault. If a soldier was hardly enough to stand in that line without wavering, giving and taking stalwart blows, and could hold his place and defend his fellow on each side, he was honored with the term "a patient soldier."—Selected

II. HEART OF THE LESSON
Introduction

Today our printed text is from a well-defined section of 2 Corinthians, comprising chapters 10-13, which may be labeled Paul's self-vindication. In these chapters Paul condemns certain agitators in Corinth who have been working against him and recounts at some length his apostolic labors and sufferings and also the extraordinary revelations given him. His purpose is so to vindicate his apostolic authority that there will be no need of exercising discipline against anyone upon his impending arrival in Corinth. Thou we would regret the unjust opposition against Paul, nevertheless we are thankful to receive in his words of defense important items of information about him found nowhere else.—Arnold's Commentary

Paul's Boasting

While the Corinthians boasted of their wisdom, wealth, learning, etc., Paul could boast of being an Israelite, son of Abraham, and of being a staunch follower of the Lord Jesus. While they talked of material things, and earthly pleasures, Paul spoke of spiritual matters, and concerned himself about the salvation of the lost.

He is the world's great example of endurance, tenacity of purpose, and the willingness to suffer for Christ's sake.

His life of endurance and sacrificial service for God's glorious kingdom stands out in all Christendom, thus showing to the world "what Christ has been able to do with such a humble servant." — Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

God's Sufficient Grace

We have to refer to verse seven to understand what Paul is speaking about in this verse. This thing or condition or infirmity, whatever it was, was what he called a thorn in the flesh. There is no language to tell us directly what it was in his life, neither is there any certainty in any reference given. Paul himself said that it was the messenger of Satan to buffet him. He took it to the Lord in prayer three times before he received an answer. Next read the comment of S. D. Gordon in our Senior Quarterly.

II. THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED
Devil's Best Tool

It was once announced that the devil was going out of business and would offer all tools for sale to whoever would pay his price. On the night of the sale they were all attractively displayed, and a bad looking lot they were: Malice, Hatred, Envy, Jealousy, Sensuality, and Deceit, and all the other implements of evil were spread out, each marked with its price. Apart from the rest lay a harmless-looking wedge-shaped tool, much worn and priced higher than any of them.

Some one asked the devil what it was. "That's discouragement," was the reply.

"Why do you have it priced so high?"

"Because," replied the devil, "it is more useful to me than any of the others."

"I can pry open and get inside a man's consciousness with that when I could not get near him with any of the others, and when once inside I can use him in whatever way suits me best. It is so much worn because I use it with nearly everybody as very few people yet know that it belongs to me."

It hardly need be added that the devil's price for discouragement was so high that it was never sold. He still owns it and is still using it.—1000 Evangelistic Illustrations

Communism is evil because it violates the law of freedom. The Greeks who were going into battle were told, "Before all, remember liberty."

Attempts to establish equality by centralization and ownership of power in the hands of a few men, leads only to a disruptive inequality which is destructive of everything in character.

tells us of the "false prophets." Yes, they are here—right here in the United States, crying: "Lo, here is Christ, or there; believe it not. For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and show great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect. Behold, I have told you before. Wherefore if they shall say unto you, Behold he is in the desert; go not forth: behold he is in the secret chambers; believe it not" (Matt. 24:24-26). Thus if it is dug up from the forest or the desert, or it makes no difference where, if it conflicts with God's pure Word as recorded in the Bible, we are warned to not follow their calling, "Lo here and lo there." Another last day warning. "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of themselves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient unto parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God: having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away. For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lust. Ever learning and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth" (2 Tim. 3:1-7).

WHY WORSHIP REGULARLYBecause of

The example of our Lord. "He went as His custom was."

Because of

The Scriptural exhortation that echoes through the centuries, "not forsaking our own assembling together as the custom of some is."

Because of

The uplift which comes through worship. Who is not conscious that his greatest need in these days is "A Presence which disturbs me with the joy of elevated thoughts"?

Because of

The harmonizing of the soul with the music of the spheres. Our age cries out for those who are "in the spirit on the Lord's Day."

Because of

The joys of Christian fellowship. "Behold, how pleasant and how good that we, one Lord confessing, together dwell in brotherhood, our unity expressing."

Because of

The courage and Christian optimism received. "I had fainted unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living."

Because of

The contribution that worship makes to the building of a peaceful world. "The rich and the poor meet together. The Lord is the maker of them all." World brotherhood can be realized only as it finds its source in the hearts, our homes, our communities, our nation.

Because of

The development of a sensitive conscience. It is when we see "the Lord high and lifted up" that we cry "Woe is me for I am undone, for I am a man of unclean lips and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips."

Because of

The acquiring of a passion to serve. It is the love of God nourished in the sanctuary which leads us to "love our neighbor as ourselves" and to serve in the spirit of Him "who came not to be ministered unto but to minister."

Because of

The glory worship ascribes to God.

"Worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." Our age needs to recover its lost appreciation of the glory and majesty of God.—Selected.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciations to the many friends, relatives, and neighbors for their words and tokens of sympathy and consolation during the hours of our deepest sadness and bereavement in the loss of our loving mother, Mrs. Celia L. Mallison, on November 19, 1950.

We shall long remember the kind words, deeds of kindness, and tokens of love from our many friends and neighbors.

Again we want to thank every one for their sympathy and deep concern over the passing of our dear mother.

watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it" (Isaiah 55:10, 11).

Our age is not new in its needs. What other ages required, we require. What has brought blessing to other men, will bring blessing to us. The Holy Scriptures are still "able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (II Timothy 3:15).

How can a powerless church find new power? How can a scorned church find new victory? How can the indifferent be aroused, the skeptical be convinced? Where is a spiritual awakening to be found? What will produce the faith which transforms character and gives life point, purpose, poise and power? All the answers are in one answer: "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Romans 10:17).

The Bible has always been the instrument for soul winning, whether in the period of revival or in the gleaning of quieter periods. God has used His Word. He will use His Word. —From Evangelical Beacon.

MRS. REDDEN JONES CALLED TO GOD

The death angel visited Brother Malachi Jones' home, and took away his father, Brother Redden Jones on the fourth of June, 1950. He was born on January 23, 1866, thus making his stay on earth 84 years, 5 months, and 11 days old at the time of his death.

He was a member of Smyrna F. W. B. Church of Blounts Creek, North Carolina. He was a faithful member, and was always doing things to help the upbuilding of the church so long as he was able to attend services. He served as one of the deacons for sixty years. He never missed but two of the quarterly meetings of the church, so long as he was able to attend the services.

Brother Jones was in declining health for the last two years of his life. He leaves behind to mourn their loss 8 children, several grandchildren, and many loved ones and friends. Rev. D. W. Alexander of Bethel, North Carolina, preached his funeral. The body was laid to rest in his family cemetery near the home beside his wife who had departed about one year before. The flowers were beautiful that covered his grave, and were tokens of the love and esteem in which his friends and loved ones held for him.

Sleep on Brother Redden and take your rest,
Just lean your head upon Jesus' breast;
We all loved you dearly
But Jesus loved you best.

—Written by one of the members of his church, Mrs. R. C. Bell, Blounts Creek, North Carolina.

MR. CLYDE A HYMAN

On September 23, 1950, the Lord called Clyde A. Hyman to rest with him in Heaven. He was going home from town one morning when he was killed in a car and truck accident.

He was a preacher teaching the gospel to every one with whom he came in contact. He was a member of the Darlington Free Will Baptist church. He took an active part in all the activities of Sunday School, preaching services, prayer meetings, League services, and of the church he loved so dearly.

He was known as a wonderful preacher, husband, father, uncle, and friend to everyone.

He is survived by six children and two grandchildren.

The memory he has left is an inspiration for others to live a better life, so that we may be ready to die when God calls for us.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Nancy Hyman, Mother
Miss Dora Hewitt, niece

ABOUT RIBS

Snakes have a greater number of ribs than any other animal, the number of ribs varying according to species. The boa or python has the greatest number, having no fewer than 320 pairs of ribs. The rattlesnake has 171 pairs. The python or boa sometimes attains to an enormous size, and has been reported by creditable authorities as reaching the length of thirty feet. The shark has ninety five pairs of ribs, and the conger-eel sixty. The chelopus, or two-toed sloth, has forty-six ribs, twenty three on each side, as against the twenty-four ribs of man. The bradypus, or three-toed sloth, has thirty-two.—Tit Bits.

A heart filled with the love of God brings forth good fruit for our Lord Jesus.—L. L. K.

SADNESS AND SEEDTIME

CHRISTINE GOLDENBERGER

"Servant of Christ, stand fast amid the scorn

Of men who little know or love thy Lord:
Turn not aside from toil; cease not to warn Comfort, and teach. Trust Him for thy reward:

A few more moment's suffering, and then Cometh sweet rest from all thy heart's deep pain.

"For grace pray much, for much thou
needest grace;

If men thy work deride, what can they more?

Christ's weary foot thy path on earth doth trace;

If thorns wound thee, they pierced Him before;

Press on, look up, though clouds may gather round;

Thy place of service He makes hallowed ground."

Sadness is followed by rejoicing; seedtime is followed by harvest time; and through all time the Lord has given His precious "I will's" to strengthen the child of God.

Sadness comes and then rejoicing. "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him" (Ps. 126:6). There is the seedtime and the harvest, too. And the three precious "I will's" about which I just told you are: "I will strengthen thee"; "I will help thee," and "I will uphold thee with the right hand of My righteousness." They are all three found in Isaiah 41:10. You boys and girls should not be content unless you walk closely with the Lord, day by day, asking Him to show you His ways, and His paths for you, so that you may walk in truth and under His leadership all your days. There is never a burden, a headache, which He does not share and waits to bear. As the sunshine follows the storm, as harvest follows seed-time, as joy follows tears, so does Jesus walk beside you, dear readers. Are you following Him step by step, through the years? Each sinner who is trusting in Him, He will freely save. That is why He came to earth from Heaven, to seek and save the lost, and for this purpose He gave His own precious life.

Have you, in simple, faith received this Saviour, and bravely owned Him as Lord? Are you then loyally serving Him, gratefully singing His praises, and growing in grace and in knowledge of Him? Are you winning others, too, from darkness and sin, and bringing them to Jesus, that they may know Him in resurrection, as King? Have you told them the Blood of Jesus Christ alone can save them, can bury their past sins deep in the sea, hidden from God's eyes, never to rise again? You may do all this, when you seek to plant the seed of the Gospel, and your harvesting time may be one of joy. Go forth weeping, and come again rejoicing, bearing sheaves!

PRAYER

DEAR FRIENDLY BOYS AND GIRLS,

"Therefore I will look unto the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation; my God will hear me" (Mic. 7:7). Boys and girls of your ages should be able to pray with some intelligence. In fact, if you are a Christian you would probably have things to pray for the people to remember in prayer.

God wants His children to talk to Him in prayer. What kind of family life would it be if we refuse to speak to our parents? We have heard, sad to say, about boys and girls, or brothers and sisters who have refused to speak to one another. Such a life! We hope none of our boys and girls ever are guilty of such a thing! But speaking of talking to our parents: Don't Father and Mother enjoy having you come to them for things? Do they not enjoy it when you come in from school or play and tell them what a fine time you have had, what you have learned, and how you love your teacher and playmates? Surely. No matter how busy our parents are, they never are too busy to be Father and Mother to us.

So it is with God. He is our Heavenly Father. He loves to have us come to Him with what—everything! Not just the good things we think we do, but all the bad things, too. We can tell God things we cannot tell anyone else. One time a dear little boy told me he felt so wicked in his heart that he ran off to tell God about it, without telling Mommy! We know Mother always is glad to pray with us, but how nice it is we can raise our hearts to God in prayer even when Mother is not around. God can hear us any time, in any place, and we can talk to Him about anything. He always is pleased when we come.

We do not approach our parents just when we want something, do we? No, we sometimes throw our arms about Mother's neck, and say, "Dear Mother, how I love you!" And how pleased she is! Even when she is especially tired, she seems to have new life when her children show love to her. Even Father likes a fuss made over him sometimes. And we cannot show too much love for our parents especially when they work so hard to make a good home for us.

So it is when we pray. Let us tell God how much we love Him, and then show it by our actions. If we truly love our parents we will obey their every wish. If we love God we will prove it by living according to His will and wishes for us.

Never neglect your prayer life, dear boys and girls. It is vital to your Christian living.

Yours, sincerely,
LEOTA L. KNOPP.

THE GOSPEL ALPHABET

ALL men have sinned, God's Word declares,

And thus come short of Heaven;

BUT 'twas for sinners, vile and base,

That God's own Son was given.

CHRIST died for the ungodly ones,

For those whose strength is gone,

DELIVERS them from hell's deep pit,

And brings them to a throne.

ETERNAL life He gives to all

Who bow to Him the LORD.

FORGIVENESS free they know, e'en now,

Who trust His faithful Word.

GRACE brings salvation to the lost,

No sinner need despair.

HOW shall we then escape, unless

We to the LORD repair?

IN CHRIST all condemnation's gone,

And God is glorified.

JUSTLY He pardons, all who come

And trust in HIM who died.

KINGS they are made, and priests to God:

Their sins are washed away.

LOVED with a Father's love, they know

Christ as their strength and stay.

MERCY and truth can now agree,

And peace and justice meet.

NOW GOD can gladly welcome man

Before the mercy seat.

OH, wondrous love! Oh, matchless grace!

The plan devised by God.

PARDON and peace are now revealed

Through faith in Jesus' Blood.

QUICKENED by God the Holy Ghost,

And new-born from above.

REDEMPTION now is known in Christ:

Fruit of the Father's love.

SALVATION is of God alone,

To Him all praise is due.

THERE'S nothing wanted, blessed thought,

For we could nothing do.

UNTO His name, the Saviour God,

Be ceaseless praises given.

VAST is His love! boundless His grace!

The triumphant song of Heaven:

WORTHY of homage and of praise,

Worthy to be adored

EXALTED on the Father's throne

We hail Thee, Saviour Lord.

YES, blessed Lord, Thy claims we own,

For Thine alone are we,

ZEALOUSLY would we serve Thee here

Until Thy face we see.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

BEING A WHISPERER

"I don't like her," said a little girl of a new playmate the other day, "cause she's always whispering. I don't mean in school, but just all the time."

"Well, s'pose she does whisper, what harm is that?" said another girl.

"Why, she whispers mean things. She doesn't like to say 'em out loud, and that's why she whispers. I don't like her a bit."

She was right too. The whisperer is not a good companion for any one to choose. And being a whisperer is not good for any girl. The things we do not "like to say out loud" are usually things which are better not said at all. When we must lower our voice, and take another girl into a corner to say something, the chances are that it is an unkind thing or an unworthy thing, girls—don't you really think so? Of course, there are sometimes little harmless "secrets" between intimate friends, but they do not keep us whispering all the time. The confirmed whisperer is not a wholesome playmate to have around, for there is no more contagious habit, and we need to avoid its contagion.

As far back as the days of the wise King Solomon this habit made trouble. In the Proverbs we find the saying, "A whisperer separateth chief friends." The little girls in Jerusalem were very like little American girls today. They had those among them who would take one of a pair of friends into a corner and whisper, "Do you know what Ruth said about you yesterday?" and then repeat some thoughtless word, twisting it perhaps in the repetition so as to seem unkind. Friends can be separated very easily if they listen to whisperers, and whisperers are just the same as they were in Solomon's day. "Where there is no tale-bearer, the strife ceaseth," is another of the Proverbs, and the word translated "talebearer" is one that also means "whisperer."

This habit, then, is held up as wrong in the Old Testament. When we turn to the New Testament we find the great Apostle Paul writing twice about whispering to his converts. "Such a little thing!" I hear some boy or girl say. "Why should Paul take the trouble to write about it?" But all the great sins grow from little beginnings, you know; and Paul puts whispering right into the catalogue along with "envyings, backbitings, tumults," in one place and in another, with maliciousness, deceit, and murder. Paul knew how a whisper of evil has made murder happen in the end; how a whisper of slander has ruined a whole life; how a whispered lie has brought destruction after it. Some of our worst temptations come in a whisper. The less we have to do with whispering the better boys and girls.

What ever we are ashamed to say out loud can be dropped from our conversation without losing anything. We shall be better liked by all if we do not yield to the whispering habit. The rules of good manners have long ago settled the point that whispering in company is ill-bred. The ill-natured whisperer, the sharp little laugh—these will not make us favorites, we can be sure. Being a whisperer is a great mistake for a young person to make. Openness and kindness of speech are the better way. Let us leave whispering and slander and envy and evil thought—the whole kindred group of them—out of our lives, and we shall never miss them, but rather profit greatly by their absence.—Juvenile Pleasure.

Thankful for All!

Thankful for this:

For the wealth of the fields,
For the amply filled barns
And the fruit autumn yields;
For assurance that God
Continues His care
For the children He placed
In this earthland, so fair!

Thankful for this:

For the blessing of friends
Who are loyally true
Till the road of life ends;
For the Friend above all,
The Sun of the heart,
Whose love shall not fail
When life and earth part.

Thankful for this:

For the dreams of our sires,
For the victories won
By conflict's fierce fires;
But more for the dreams
That are dawning—for peace,
When throughout the wide earth
All warring shall cease.

Thankful for all!

May no morning light dawn
That finds us despairing,
No faith to go on.
May no day cease its tasks
As the evening shades fall
Without praise to the Giver.
Thankful—for all!

The union opened with congregational singing, and the devotional service was conducted by Brother Z. C. Bissette. Brother C. J. Barnes gave the response. The usual committees were appointed, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The list of ministers was called with only two present to answer to their names. The union sermon was preached by Rev. L. H. Boylin. An offering was taken for the Orphanage to the amount of $20.03. The union was then dismissed for lunch for one hour.

The people assembled at one o'clock in the church for the afternoon session. Rev. D. Bissette conducted the devotions, and the list of churches was called with 16 representing with delegates. The total money raised from the various churches was $71.00.

SUNDAY SCHOOL EVANGELISM

First of all, the definition of Sunday School evangelism is Christian education at its best. In our Sunday School, we are to teach the way of salvation through Christ, and then endeavor to bring every student to a personal acceptance of Jesus Christ as their Saviour. Not only are we to do this, but we are to show them how to live a victorious Christian life. My, what a great responsibility we have as teachers and officers of the Sunday School.

According to the statistics, seventy-five per cent of the church members, eighty-five per cent of the church workers, and ninety-five per cent of the ministers and missionaries come from the Sunday School. So we can see, the Sunday School offers the most fruitful field for evangelism.

The individual teachers of the Sunday School are without doubt the greatest evangelists. Realizing this, it is of great importance, that every teacher should know in his or her own heart that God has called them into this field of service. Every teacher should be filled with love for God and their pupils. All too often a person may accept a position as teacher of a Sunday School class simply because some one has asked him to do so, and not because God has called him.

There are five methods for Sunday School evangelism. These are:

(1) The Bible

The Bible is the basic material to be used. Every lesson should be a Bible lesson. The Word of God must always be the foundation of true Christian education.

(2) Memory Work

God has promised that His Word would not return unto Him void. Who knows but what a verse of scripture committed to memory and stored in the heart may some day bring about conviction and perhaps confessing Christ as Saviour.

(3) Worship

Worship is the approach to God. We all know there is only one way to

Laura Edna Kenemer
Hazel Park, Michigan

approach God and that is through His Son Jesus Christ. People must be evangelized before they can truly worship.

(4) Song

Songs used should be reverent and should fit in with the Scripture. They should teach some Bible truth. There are many types of songs to be used—songs of praise, faith, prayer, warning, and services. Certainly jazzy songs and worldly choruses should be avoided. It is my personal opinion that there are some songs used in worship services that have no more worship in them than some worldly song. A good, reverent, worshipful song will reach the heart of most any sinner.

(5) Visual Aids

A student will remember five times as much of what he sees as of what he hears. So, visual aids are very important. A visual aid is a drawing, poster, chart, map, or anything that presents to the eye the truth to be learned.

The aid must be visual. It must be a real aid, not a hindrance to learning. The message of the visual aid must be Christian and Scriptural.

There should be nine departments in the Sunday School. First, the cradle roll department includes children from birth to three years of age. The Sunday School should try to persuade the parents of these youngsters to dedicate their child to the Lord and also to build a Christian home for him.

Second is the nursery class. This is the class for three year olds. The teacher should create a friendly feeling of the child toward Sunday School. We can introduce Christ to them with pictures, songs, and stories.

Third is the beginners. These are the four and five year olds. He begins to receive systematic training in Bible stories and verses.

Fourth is the primary department for the six, seven and eight year olds. The primary child is an observer and does make comparison of people.

Fifth is the junior department which includes children from nine through eleven. The junior is described as an investigator and a hero worshipper.

Sixth is the intermediate department, ranging in ages from twelve through fourteen. The intermediate years represent the "peak of conversion." This is the period when a large per cent accept Christ, and also when a great majority of criminals begin their careers.

Seventh is the senior group. These are the ages of fifteen, sixteen, and seventeen. They need our love and understanding. We should certainly appeal to them to accept Christ.

Eighth is the young people's group including the age of eighteen to twenty-four. The teacher of this group should be an outstanding soul-winner.

Last is the adult department. The unsaved adults are tragic reminder of Sunday School neglect. A class for young married people could be formed as a part of the adult department. Also a class for men and women of similar age and interests may be built up.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

MORE ABOUT FALSE PROPHETS

In our last issue of the Baptist, we spoke out concerning the false prophets as predicted in the Word of God. Not only are there false prophets who misconstrue, pervert God's Word concerning the return of the Lord Jesus, but also the word of God is perverted in many other respects. Pervert means "To turn from truth, propriety or from its proper purpose; to corrupt; misinterpret wilfully."—Webster.

This can apply to taking a scripture out of its setting and making it appear to be something else. When this is done there is always a conflict in the interpretation. When ever there is a conflict you may know that it is not set forth by the Spirit of God. The Holy Ghost never crosses Himself. Man can get his "wires crossed," but not so with the Holy Spirit; therefore, it is said, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn in your hearts: Knowing this first, that no prophecy is of any private interpretation: For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:19-21). Then, in chapter 2, verses one and two, he writes: "But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that brought them and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of." So, according to this scripture, for man to deny the inspiration of the sacred Scriptures, is to bring in damnable heresies. These are called false teachers. Thus when any part of the Scriptures is perverted, or side-tracked, it is a damnable heresy. Anything that contradicts the Word of God is of the damnable heresy class.

Paul says: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

To deny that the Scriptures are given by the inspiration of God, is to deny both Paul and the apostle Peter. In fact, it is to deny both the Old and the New Testaments.

"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron. Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them that believe and know the truth" (1 Tim. 4:1-3) So, beloved, you may watch those persons who cry against eating meat and forbidding to marry. Watch every move of these false teachings. Why? "For every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving: For it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer" (1 Tim. 4:1-5). John says: "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets have gone out into the world" (1 John 4:1). Here John calls a false spirit a false prophet. So, all false prophets are dominated by false spirits. As the sons of God are led by the Spirit of God, so false prophets are led by the spirit of the evil one, who is the enemy of God. But John tells us what it is to believe the false spirit or the false prophet.

"Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of anti-Christ, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now is already in the world" (1 John 4:2, 3).

So, to deny that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, who came through flesh to a lost world, is to follow the spirit of the anti-christ. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God" (John 1:1, 2). Verse 14 says, "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father) full of grace and truth." To deny that Jesus has come in the flesh is to join the antichrist gang.

That which denies his "virgin birth" is anti-christ. Let us see. "Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily. But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call His name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us" (Matt. 1:18-23). So, to deny the virgin birth is to deny the word of God, both in the old and the New Testament Scriptures. If Jesus was no more than any other man, how could it be written as the above Scripture declares? This is God's record. Now notice what John writes in the epistle bearing his name. "If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God which he hath testified of his Son. He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself: he that believeth not the Son of God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son hath not life. These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God" (1 John 5:9-13).

If we fail to believe His VIRGIN BIRTH, we make God a liar and Jesus Christ a bastard. How can such a man be saved? You just as well take your Bible and place it in the fire and burn it to ashes as to deny the VIRGIN BIRTH of the Lord Jesus. You have no foundation for the FORGIVENESS OF SINS. "He shall save his people from their sins," the word declares, but if he is only man, how can he forgive sins?

To deny the creation of man is to flatly dispute the word of God. Free Will Baptists believe that the Scriptures are the WORD OF GOD. We do not believe that we came up by the ape or monkey route. If that old guy in England wants to disbelieve the Word of God and claim kin with the monkey let him keep his infidelity to himself and his family. I cannot believe that my grandparents hung by their tails to the limbs of the trees. I am claiming no kin with the ape family. Here is the way I came along—my forefathers started on this way: "And God said let us make man in our image, after our likeness . . . So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: . . ." (Gen. 1:26-28). If we were first apes, then we were made in the image of God. None but an infidel would believe such argument. No Christian would dare say that God's image was an ape-like creature.

"I never saw a city or village yet whose miseries were not in proportion to the number of its public houses."—Oliver Goldsmith.

Respectfully submitted,
Rev. RAYMOND RIGGS,
Promotional Secretary-Treasurer

Dear Mr. Riggs:

We are sending ten dollars to help relieve the awful crisis our mission board is in.

Our hearts and prayers really go out for our missionaries. It's awful to know they are over there giving their all, and no money coming in to relieve the burden.

We trust there can be some plan worked out, whereby this won't happen again.

Yours truly,

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Britton
Surgoinville, Tenn.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

We Free Will Baptists of Santa Paula, Calif., are herewith enclosing $10.00 to help support our Foreign Mission work. We do hope to send more money as we can afford it. We have just begun here in this city.

May the good Lord be with you all and pray for us when you pray.

H. A. Lewis, Pastor

Dear Sir:

The League of Liberty Free Will Baptist Church has pledged $10.00 a month to missions, but I am sending last month's and this month's now.

Yours truly,

Mrs. Addie H. Holliday
Manning, South Car.

Dear Brother Riggs:

Knowing of your interest in our foreign mission program and to help to relieve the burden on your mind, I am happy to inform you that last Sunday my people voted, or accepted a plan to support one of our full-time native preachers in Cuba. For many months I have been giving this some consideration, and I rejoice in the wonderful way my people responded. I fully believe that in less than a year we will be supporting another missionary.

Yours for missions,
F. A. Rivenbark

The following letter comes from "South African General Mission, Inc." Mrs. Stevens, a F. W. B. is working under this Board and is supported by her local association in North Carolina.

Dear Friends:

We wish to thank you for the gift of $150.00 sent for the support of Mrs. Josephine Stevens.

This is the first time we have received a remittance directly from you, and we are placing you on our mailing list that you might receive our magazine and prayer letter.

Rev. and Mrs. Stevens are indeed two admirable missionaries. Our field throughout are very enthusiastic about them. They are doing excellent work, and we praise God for them and the services they render for the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ and the preaching of the everlasting and eternal Gospel.

May we wish you God's richest blessing.

Sincerely yours in Christ,
Rev. E. A. Shank

PAUL WOOLSEY REPORTING FROM INDIA

Sonapurhat, Purnea District,
Bihar, North India
November 17, 1950

Dear Folk:

Four years have passed since we offered ourselves at the command of the Holy Spirit, to the National Free Will Baptist Board of Foreign Missions and were accepted. We have keenly missed your physical fellowship but have enjoyed, as never before, that glorious fellowship of the Spirit that one Christian can have with another man when they are whole heartedly engaged in mutual work for the Master. These years have passed as swift as the eagle's flight. When we think of the little accomplished in these years, we feel indeed ashamed and realize that we are unworthy and unprofitable servants. The little that God has accomplished through us has been by the grace and mercy of the Saviour. We have now been in the Purnea District two years and here in Sonapurhat more than a year. We feel that you who have and are making our work possible should have at least this brief report of the past year's work. May God forgive its smallness.

Although this does not include the work of the Cronks, they have given us assistance in many ways. They led the first convert of this area to Christ; it was also through them that we first became acquainted with the group that later accepted Christ, was baptized and constituted our first Church. Brother Cronk aided in the organization of the Church and baptized eleven of its members.

Some of the above figures are not complete and some are only approximate.

A large part of our time during the past year has been consumed in the gathering of materials for the Mission house and overseeing the building. Beside the main house, we have built a small one with two rooms, one for cooking and one for the cook. The Mission house has 3 larger rooms and two smaller ones and a larger veranda. We have two wells, one for the house and one for the irrigation of the garden, trees, flowers, etc. As we are about 40 miles from the nearest small town, we have been handicapped in securing both materials and laborers with the necessary skill.

In order to get corrugated iron for our roofs, we were forced to buy at a tremendous price, three small houses. However, after several unsuccessful trials we found some aluminum paint which made things O. K. Cement is rationed and permits are hard to get from the capitol of the District, a round trip of three days. But God has blessed in a wonderful way and although our compound and buildings do not in any way compare with the others in those Mission Stations better situated, we are proud of the results after a year in a tent through the heat, cold and tropical downpours.

It is much too early to make any statement but if God continues to lead it begins to look as it would not be entirely impossible to organize the First Association of Free Will Baptists in India within the next year. The Church organized this past year consist of people who came straight out of Hinduism. There are some groups whose parents were at least nominal Christians. These are beginning to think seriously of "the thing most needful." However as yet we can only teach, pray and trust the Master.

A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours for a greater year in the Master's vineyard,
Rev. and Mrs. Paul Woolsey

NEWS FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Dear Free Will Baptists:

I feel that it is necessary for me to introduce myself to you, although this is a shame when coming at such a late date. I am Josephine Mumpower Stevens, from Swannanoa, North Carolina. I am a member of the Free Will Baptist Church here. My husband and I have been on the mission field for a year and a half. Since arriving here I have purposed to keep in touch with the paper and with friends through the paper. But as you see, I have failed. These months here have been filled with adjusting ourselves and carrying on the work here. We have sent out circular letters to friends, and now one has suggested you might be interested in printing these, so we plan to send you the future letters. In case you should find them useful, we would be very happy to have them published.

My husband and I are here working under the SOUTH AFRICA GENERAL MISSION. This is an interdenominational mission. I am supported by 41 churches of the Free Will Baptist Associations—

UNIVERSAL PRAYER FOR PEACE

Alfred Lord Tennyson once wrote: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." It is said by some that sincere prayer changed the course of the American revolution, and the war was won for human rights. Fervent prayers of the devout men and women of God changed the course of the Civil war, and Negro slavery in this country came to an end. When God's people of old turned to prayer and supplication for relief of suffering and great troubles, divine relief soon came to them.

During these later days of the Korean war, when the struggle seems to be increasing more and more, a great many of the church people of this country are holding seasons of prayer in their places of worship. A certain town, for example, in North Carolina called together the people for daily prayers at a certain place of worship. They continued this for several days, praying for universal peace. Other cities in other states are doing a similar thing, gathering the people together for prayer at certain hours, and there turning unto the Lord, calling on him to bring about peace and harmony among the warring nations of the world.

There can be no better time for universal prayer for world peace than now. There can be no better time for Christians to turn their hearts more closely to God than now, and beseech him at the Throne of Grace to work in the hearts of the rulers of earth in such a way as to bring about peace and brotherly love, one nation toward another. During this Christmas season, prayer bands in the cities over the country will do well to join others in offering up to God their sincere prayers for Korean war to cease, and for the troubled peoples to become friendly and peaceful. One hour each day given to prayer by groups of people assembled in churches in populated areas over the land will do much, we believe, to bring quietness and peaceful attitude in the hearts of everyone.

God has promised to be with his people in times of trouble and disappointments if they will turn unto him and seek comfort and consolation. He has ever been a loving God, visiting upon the people his manifold blessings, and giving to them warnings of dreadful things to come lest they walk in the right way. He never fails to teach and direct aright the course of human life when individuals seek his word for guidance and the assurance of peace and security. In a time like this, when all the world seems to be torn with suspicion, strife, and contention, God will come to the rescue of the right, if Christian people everywhere will turn unto him in most earnest prayer and seek for relief from war and bitter strife.

Human life is too precious to be sacrificed on battlefields. God has a specific purpose for mankind: to build a world of peace and prosperity; to glorify his holy name by establishing righteousness everywhere and living the Christ-like life in a world of opportunity and boundless resources. Other things often fail to bring satisfying results, but prayer never fails when offered to God for right purposes and in the correct spirit of devotion unto the Lord. The hearts of the people must get right before the Lord through earnest prayer and an unwavering faith if their desires for universal peace are to be soon realized.

French Broad, and Jack's Creek of the Western part of North Carolina.

I am afraid that these facts are little known to our people for the Lord has so guided that we work under the South Africa General Mission, and not the Free Will Baptist Board which does not have a work in Africa. I do trust that I shall be more faithful in the future to keep other friends informed through the medium of the Free Will Baptist paper.

(You could let me know if you could use articles or pictures in the future.)

We do rejoice in the way the Lord is blessing here, and so many things have happened to rejoice our hearts which would have the same effect upon you folks at home, if we could just put them upon paper and send them on.

I HAVE NO LOVE FOR JESUS IN MY HEART

This incident is very precious to us so we send it as a true story to young and old who pray for His working in the hearts of the heathen.

THE ZULU WOMAN

"I have no love for Jesus in my heart," the old Zulu woman replied. These words were spoken a year ago. We had just arrived at Mseleni and on this particular day the Christian women and I were having a meeting in a kraal about four miles from the station. After the preaching I turned to Edith, the native pastor's wife and asked her to talk to this old "koko" about the Lord. She looked so old and her spare clothing of dark oily rags and unhappy face betrayed her as a heathen. In her soft voice Edith began to speak of Jesus and the other women who believed would murmuringly agree as she continued speaking. With a gesture of tiredness the old woman raised her matted head and said, "I have no love for Jesus in my heart." This ended the meeting. Each of us had a heavy heart as we walked the path home.

I could not forget this woman and we on the station prayed much for her and our next prayer-letter that went out to our praying friends asked for special prayer

WHAT MAKES US CROSS

J. H. Horsburgh

A great fact is stated in Mark 10: 45 concerning the Son of man. The speaker is our Lord Himself, who in this, as in all matters, left us an example that we should follow in His steps.

The incident which gave rise to His words is a sad one. Two of His disciples, James and John, wanted to be ministered unto by being granted the chief places in His glory (vs. 35-37). When the others heard it, they were indignant, for they wanted to be ministered unto by having the chief places themselves. But out of the ferment the Lord brought good. He made it an occasion to remind His disciples that they were not of the world, and that their distinguishing mark must be lowliness and readiness to serve one another.

Notice the tenderness and pathos as "Jesus called them to him" (vs. 42). He has been telling the twelve about Himself: of the awful betrayal, the cruel sufferings and indignity, the shameful death that awaited Him at Jerusalem (vv. 32-34). Surely their hearts are melted? Nay, they seem unable to think of Him. They begin to quarrel among themselves as to who should be the greatest. Picture their flushed faces, their angry tones, their passionate gestures! "But Jesus called them to him," and gently quelled the storm. Earthly rulers, He tells them, exercise lordship over others; "but so shall it not be among you: but whosoever desires to be great among you must be your servant, and whosoever of you desire to be first must be the bondsman of all, for even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (vv. 42: 45). In a word, "Remember you are my disciples. The disciple must be as his Master."

Evidently this is something which closely concerns us all if we are Jesus' disciples. It tells us something of what spirit we should have and what our life ought to be today—and every day.

The passage tells us that the Son of Man came to minister. That is a great subject. It is not that incidentally He ministered unto a few or to many; but He "came to minister." It was His set purpose.

This wonderful passage also tells us something else about the Son of Man. He "came not to be ministered unto."

We are apt to forget this, or perhaps to pass it by altogether unnoticed. The disciples of Jesus are to be "even (as) the Son of man" in coming not to be ministered unto."

This coming to be ministered unto is the spirit which is in the world. It is at the bottom of disagreements in the nursery, fights in the school, quarrels amongst private individuals, wars among nations. And, alas! not only in the world is this spirit prevalent, but in the church also. As Christians we do not adequately realize, perhaps we hardly realize at all, how much of sin and failure, how much of vexation and discontent, how much of peevishness and irritability, how much of discord and unhappiness in our lives, is due to our coming to be ministered unto instead of coming not to be ministered unto.

Are we not too often cross, vexed, rasped, indignant? Some times we show it by a foolish exhibition of temper; sometimes we restrain ourselves; but there the nasty feeling is! Why? In all probability because we have come to be ministered unto and have been disappointed.

The fact is, we are always wanting to be ministered unto by people, by circumstances, by fortune, by the weather, by something. To be ministered unto is so natural, so necessary, so proper! We have been brought up to expect it. We regard it as our right. And if we are thwarted, as we often are, we are apt to get cross, sulky, moody, nery, often ending by making ourselves quite miserable, and others too.

How different it would be, if, like the Son of Man, we always "came not to be ministered unto."

You are slighted, ignored, brushed aside. Your employer or employee does not show you proper consideration, or your neighbor does not treat you with the respect due to your position, your abilities, your character. You feel it very much; in fact, you are quite upset about it. Why? Is it because you came to minister and were deprived of the privilege? No, not that at all. It is because your feelings, your rights, your gifts, your position, your dignity, your importance were not recognized. You were not ministered unto. And you came to be ministered unto. Hence the storm!

Or, consider that most hateful thing, Jealousy. What is it? Another is praised or put before you. Another does better than you. Another is more fortunate than you. The honor, the success, the money, the popularity, the reward has gone to him. You wanted it for yourself. You came to be ministered unto. Because he has been ministered unto, and not you, you are jealous!

You have been kind to someone. You have rendered him a service. It has cost you something to do it. Naturally you thought your goodness would be appreciated. It was not, at least not so much as you think it ought to have been. You expected profuse thanks, and quite a little fuss to be made over it. And your friend took it coolly! You are disgusted. You wish you had not helped him. You feel half inclined to say in your haste you will never do any body a kindness again. Why? You have ministered unto another: you have helped someone who was in need. Yes, but you have not been ministered unto. You wanted to be thought exceeding good and kind and generous. That is to say, you expected to be ministered unto by exuberant thanks and praise, and a little flattery, too, perhaps! Yes, when we come to be ministered unto we do meet sometimes with severe shocks.

You are a person of excellent taste, sound judgment, good common sense. You find your advice has been ignored, perhaps it was not even asked, in a matter, too, in which you pose as an authority. You cannot understand it. You feel rubbed the wrong way. Your spirit within you is ruffled. Your equilibrium is quite disturbed. What is the trouble? Is it that you came wanting to minister unto your friend, and by neglecting to take your advice he has got himself into a sad mess? Not at all. As it happens, he has managed very nicely indeed without your help. The trouble is this: you have not been acknowledged. Your reputation as "an authority" in a matter of taste or judgment has not been ministered unto. You came not to minister but to be ministered unto. You have been disappointed!

You are engaged in Christian work. You are a Sunday-school teacher or a district visitor, or a church officer. Or perhaps you help at the missions. Now you are thinking of giving the work up. Why? Has your health failed? Have you now not the time for it? Are home duties too pressing? No, none of these is the reason. Then are you not wanted? Is there no longer need of your services? Is the opportunity to minister withdrawn from you? No, the need is as great as ever. The door of opportunity remains wide open. Then why are you giving up?

Well, you are tired of the work, so you think you will drop it. You expected it would be an interest to you, would bring you into touch with others, would give you a position in the church. In fact, you thought you would like it. And you did like it for a time, but now you are tired of it. Ah, we are beginning to understand. You thought the work would minister unto you. As long as it ministered unto you, you were willing to go on with it. Now that it no longer ministers unto you, you will give it up. But "the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life . . ." You are His disciple.

Sometimes everything seems wrong. There is nothing big, nothing we can lay our finger upon; but we are always coming to the world with our likes and dislikes, our whims and fancies, our wishes and hobbies, our fads and foibles, and if we are not ministered unto in these little things, we are apt to be distressed and to get put out with ourselves and with everybody else.

I am persuaded that the happiness of our lives depends enormously on the spirit in which we come fresh into the world each day. If we come to be ministered unto, we shall soon be fretting and inwardly fuming. But if we come not to be ministered unto but to minister, it will be delightfully different.

Our text does not say that we are always to be slighted, never courted; that we are never to meet with success; that no rewards and prizes are ever to come our way; that we are to go about the world looking for injustice, insults, and ill-treatment. Nothing of the kind. There is no harm in being ministered unto. The Son of man was often ministered unto, and He appreciated it very much. We shall often be ministered unto; perhaps all the more if we do not expect it. The harm is in coming to be ministered unto instead of to minister; in wanting to be ministered unto, in seeking it, setting our heart upon it, and in being disappointed, chagrined, ruffled, and cross if we are not ministered unto.

Be well assured that at the bottom of the trouble, and in all its ramifications, is Self. And this old enemy Self must be mortified, put to death. What right has Self to live? None at all. As a believer, my Old Man, Self, was crucified with Christ. As a believer, I am risen with Christ, having left behind, buried in Christ's grave, my old Self-life. Judiciously, this is the true position. I must take my stand upon it. I must see to it that it becomes actually true in my daily experience. I must reckon myself to be dead indeed unto sin (including the Self-life) but alive unto God in Christ Jesus. (See Romans 6:6-11.)

When Self raises its ugly head and claims its old place in my life, I must remember that, when I died with Christ, I put off the Old Man with his doings, and put on the New Man (Col. 3:9-10). Self has no right of entry here. I must give it no quarter. Whenever Self appears I must consign it to its proper place—death.

Yet it is not enough that Self dies. Something else must happen. Christ must live. Self dying—Christ living. And it is in proportion as Self dies in us that Christ can live in us. Let us not then be afraid of death, death to the Self-life. It is only as Self dies and Christ lives in us that we shall be able to come fresh into the world each day "not to be ministered unto but to minister," and in our tiny measure to give our lives, to sacrifice ourselves, for the glory of our God and the good of our fellows.

Our program for discussion was given by program chairman and some of those present. The topic being, "Advancing with Christ through Tithing."

After the business session all those present enjoyed two Bible quizzes and some Thanksgiving games. Prizes were won by Mrs. Jarvis Combs, Roseland Omeara, Mrs. John Scarboro, and Mrs. George Lucas.

REPORT OF WOMAN'S AUXILIARY POCAHONTAS, ARKANSAS

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Pocahontas Free Will Baptist Church met on Monday night, November 24, at the home of Mrs. Sherman Fowler. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Huey Gower. The meeting opened by the members singing "When Free Wills All Learn How to Tithe," after which the scripture was read by Miss Marjorie Atkins.

Mrs. Veral Jones gave the introduction to the program, which was "Advancing with Christ through Tithing." Mrs. Huey Gower, Miss Thelma Brown, Mrs. Opal Phillips and Mrs. Marjorie Mellon discussed topics on the program. A duet, entitled "Bring Ye All the Tithes into the Storehouse," was rendered by Mrs. Pauline Star and Mrs. Huey Gower.

After the program the secretary called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. There were 35 members present and 3 new members were received, making a total enrollment of 44. Reports were given by the five vice-presidents.

The auxiliary has just quilted two quilts for the Orphanage in Oklahoma, and the auxiliary voted unanimously to investigate the prospect of adopting a child to support.

Baskets of food were presented to three sick families for Thanksgiving. The monthly missionary offering was $11.00 and the dues $10.50.

The next meeting will be held at the church on December 18th.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. George Broadway and Mrs. Mary Rapert, served delicious refreshments. The table was lighted with candles and beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums.

The program leader, Mrs. Lindon Powell, rendered a very interesting program with some special songs and every one on program rendered a very interesting talk on "Advancing with Christ Through Tithing."

After the program the secretary called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. At this meeting we took canned food and clothing for the Orphanage as a Thanksgiving gift. We had twenty-five members present for the meeting.

After the meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Raueigh Haselden and Mrs. Reginald Eaddy, which were enjoyed by all.

Our Christmas meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clifton Lyerly, December 21, 1950.

Mrs. Clifton Lyerly,
Corresponding Secretary,
Johnsonville, S. C.

LEE'S CHAPEL AUXILIARY MEETING

The Ladies auxiliary of Lee's Chapel met with Mrs. Allene Elmore for the November meeting. Seventeen members and nine visitors were present. A very inspiring program was given by Mrs. James West; the topic being, "Advancing with Christ through Tithing." She stressed the thought of tithing, not only with our money, but also with our time and talents. She emphasized the fact that the service is the rent we pay for the space we occupy in this world, and we are saved to serve in the cause of Christ. Then she asked, "How well are we doing it?" Rev. and Mrs. Coats, along with several members from Prospect Church, were present with us, and we did enjoy having them in this meeting. The testimonies given were splendid.

Our December meeting will be held with

Mrs. Harvvy Hinson, and all the husbands are invited to attend this meeting.

LET US CONSIDER THESE THINGS

L. E. BALLARD

From time to time the opinion is expressed that the Sunday school and Free Will Baptist League publications printed for use throughout our denomination should be denominationally controlled. Now, of course, we do not know how diversified may be the interpretations put upon the term "denominationally controlled," but we want to advance for earnest consideration the declaration that, as organized and chartered under the laws of the state of North Carolina, the Free Will Baptist Press, publishers of our literature, is at present "denominationally controlled," and, prospectively at least, subject to an ever increasing denominational control.

May we advance a few facts to sustain this declaration:

First: Stock in the Press is sold only to Free Will Baptist organizations, such as conferences, associations, union meetings, conventions, etc. These organizations choose representatives to sit on the stockholders' committee, or board, which meets annually to pass upon important matters of policy, and to elect a Board of Directors, and other officials, who have direct control over the Press during the year, all of their actions and decisions being subject to acceptance or rejection by the stockholders. Each stock-holder representative votes in the meeting the stock owned by the organization he represents, but has a full right to enter into discussion of any issue which may arise, expressing his opinion, and endeavoring to win support for his views. Now if these organizations holding the stock are Free Will Baptist, then the Press is "denominationally controlled."

Second: Stock may be sold just as freely to Free Will Baptist organizations in other states as it is in North Carolina—the chartering state—and organizations out of North Carolina (and there are some now) holding stock have the same rights and privileges as North Carolina stock-holders, to represent and vote their stock in the annual stock-holders' meeting. This opens up all kinds of possibilities for more and more "denominational control." For example let us suppose that Oklahoma (and we choose this state for no special reason, other than that we wanted to use a state somewhat removed from North Carolina) should desire to share in the control of the Press. Through their various organizations they can purchase stock in the Press, knowing that their purchase money can be used only to expand the Press for more service, for the corporation is strictly "non profit-sharing." Then representatives of these organizations can attend the stockholders' meeting, where they can exert all the influence they have, and put forth persuasive argument in favor of any particular changes or advances they may want to see made. They will find that they sit with others who are willing to be convinced by reason, and won to the support of new projects. Therefore, though the Oklahomians might not represent a large block of stock, they might yet exercise a large degree of control over the policies of the Press. Since stock would be sold only to Free Will Baptist organizations in Oklahoma, as in North Carolina, the Oklahoma voice in the Press meeting would be a denominational voice, and her part of the control would be denominational. So would be the control exercised by all Free Will Baptists in all the states, who are willing to make possible the expanding of what we now have into that which we need for the future.

Do you not see, my dear brethren, that "denominational control" of our publications is limited only by denominational willingness to put into what is now a going concern that which will make it go farther and farther in providing needed literature for the denomination we all love, north, south, east, and west?

I HAVE NO LOVE FOR JESUS IN MY HEART

for her. So we know that many hearts were lifted to the Lord for her.

The second instant happened several weeks ago. A little herd boy was brought to the hospital. He had been gored by a cow as he was tending to his father's cattle in the fields. He was accompanied by his grandmother and the fourth wife of his father. To those that spoke to the boy about the Saviour he said that his father had forbidden him to become a Christian. He died two days later. As we entered the room to comfort the family, I recognized the grandmother as the same old woman who a year ago said, "I have no love for Jesus in my heart." Again she was spoken to about the Lord Jesus by Mrs. Jameson. She told us that she was too grieved to listen but agreed that we could come to her home for a meeting on Friday.

As we arrived in the home we were greeted by the father and the four wives and the old grandmother. She silently took us to the grave of the little herd boy. It was at the edge of the field and covered with thorn bushes to protect it from the animals. Then we returned in silence for the meeting. Mrs. Jameson spoke and then she and the women sought once more to bring the lost sheep into the fold. She argued and said that her time to accept had not come yet. But after a time of silence she raised her matted head and said, "I choose Jesus very much." I quickly glanced at the Christian women to see if this was a real choosing of the Lord, and by their satisfied expressions and nodding heads I knew that she had truly and sincerely come into the fold. We prayed. I choked with tears of joy as it dawned upon me that this was an answer to prayer that I was seeing.

"I have no love for Jesus in my heart" . . . one year passes . . . "I choose Jesus, very much." PRAYER CHANGES PEOPLE.

As a result of the little herd boy's death we now have a herd boys meeting for his brothers and other herd boys under a huge spreading tree about two miles from the station.

Let us ask Him for more souls like this one for the future.

Communitistic Radicalism is a deadly foe of liberalism. It is the ally of paganism and the relentless enemy of Christianity.

THE SAVIOUR IS BORN

(Lesson for December 24)

LESSON: Luke 2:1-20; Philippians 4:4-7.

GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 2:10, 11.

1. The Heart of the Lesson

Last week our lesson was about victorious living, whereas today we shall study the vital truths about the birth of our Lord through whom such living is made possible to men. This beautiful and wonderful story of the coming of the Saviour of men is always studied with joy and thanksgiving by true Christians during each Christmas season as the years come and go. All other events in human history are superseded by it, because man's eternal rest in the world to come has its foundation through the birth of the Son of God, and the atonement made on the cross for the sins of the world. A sincere and careful study of this lesson should draw us closer to the Lord, and bring great joy to our hearts during this Christmas season.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

1. God can move a heathen monarch to issue edicts that will fulfill the Word of God.

2. God is pleased to reveal Himself to men who are faithful to their daily tasks.

3. God's glory is too much for the human eye, and a vision of it brings fear to the human heart.

4. God's message to men through the Saviour Jesus Christ is able to remove fear from their hearts.

5. God sent the greatest newsflash ever received by the world—"Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour."

6. The Son of the Almighty God humbled Himself to appear on earth in the body of a helpless human infant.

7. The work of God which sent a Saviour to the world moved all Heaven to praise.

8. God's message of salvation is not to be kept a secret, but to be published to all men.—Selected.

10. In the East it is the custom now, as it was in those days, to wrap the infant round and round with a long strip of cloth three or four inches wide all the way from the neck to the toes. Very likely Joseph and Mary were staying in a home which was partly a cave where domestic animals were kept. The manger made a good crib.—(vs. 7)

11. The shepherds accept the angels words as a message from God.

The news was of such great importance that they were eager to act upon it and see the child. They were able to find Mary and identify the child because of the sign given by the angel that it would be found in a manger. Note that they were not led to the place by any star. That was a method of guiding the wise men to the spot some time later.—(Vss. 16, 17).—Arnold's Commentary.

12.

"O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie!
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by.
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight!"

13.

"It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold:
'Peace on the earth, god will to men,
From Heaven's all-gracious King:'
The world in solemn stillness lay,
To hear the angels sing!"

14.

"Joy to the world! the Lord is come:
Let earth receive her King;
Let ev'ry heart prepare Him room,
And Heav'n and nature sing,
And Heav'n and nature sing,

And Heav'n, and Heav'n and nature sing."

II. The Lesson Illustrated

Christ the Saviour of the World

In September, 1878, a dreadful accident happened on the Thames, when an excursion steamer, named the Princess Alice, was cut down by the Bywell Castle, an outward bound merchant steamship. More than seven hundred persons that day found a watery grave. Among the brave efforts that were made on that occasion to save the drowning people, one of the noblest was made by a man who was in charge of a small boat at some distance from the scene of the collision. Rowing with all his might into the midst of the struggling passengers, he pulled several of them one after another into his little boat, which was now full and in danger of sinking, and prepared to row away. But when he saw the white, upturned faces of many others, and heard their piteous cries: "Oh, save me, sir!" "Don't leave me, sir!" it is said that in agony he threw up his arms and cried: "Oh, God, that I had a bigger boat! Oh, God! that I had a bigger boat!" His heart was large enough to save all who were perishing, but his boat was too small; his power was limited. It is not so with Christ. He is the Life-Boat of Perishing humanity, and in Him there is room for the whole race, for "He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world."—R. Brewin.

"THE DEVIL'S MOST POPULAR BAIT"

By MISS O. B. GREEN

With Modern Pleasures Come Aching Hearts

The outstanding sin in the day before the flood was—lust, fornication, and adultery. I have just been studying in Genesis about the flood and the account of the wickedness of the people. "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually."

I'm assured they were not far ahead of the people of today if any. In fact I firmly believe there is more ungodliness now than then. There are more people. More evil devices to seduce. It was the same devil then as now only he has had years of experience and I believe a little more efficient in his business.

Not many of you would or could believe it if you were told the lascivious acts of immorality that are going on today. It is unbelievable. Wickedness is not only found in this town or some of the larger cities but right in your own small town—community and schools. It seems to me the young race has gone wild. If something isn't done we will be asking is there any virtue left. One preacher said if it wasn't for the salt of the earth (God's people) the generation would rot on its feet. I have no trouble believing that, I'm overwhelmed by the boldness and immorality of the girls today. "WILD" is the only name for them. Just two weeks ago I observed three girls around sixteen years old in our tent meeting. They were sitting in front of three boys. Instead of sitting up and acting as ladies should act listening to the preacher, they lounged all over the seat and kept their heads turned toward the back, smiling and making eyes at the boys. I'm telling the truth when I say the boys tried their best to ignore the girls and to give their attention to the sermon. I finally moved over and sat with the girls and asked them to turn around and face the front. I am glad I did. One of the boys went to the altar as soon as the invitation was given. The devil tried his best to keep those boys from hearing the Word. He used three girls. How unladylike, how bold and how unchurch. Are you guilty of such an act? May God have mercy on you if you are. If you belonged to me I think my heart would be crushed to see my girl act in such a manner. The only remedy I know that would help is a good old time punishment with the belt. Don't you know that kind of specimen of womanhood is most disguising. The boys or no one else can have any respect for you. Why not just be your own sweet self and let the boys do the advancing? You don't have to be a Christian to do that . . . JUST A LADY.

I have been amazed lately as I have heard of incident after incident of terrible things which have happened just recently. The Greenville, S. C., News carried an article of the arrest of a group of teen age boys and girls. A neighbor noticed a nude girl in the car with a young man. She called the police and upon investigation they found around eighteen girls—all nude and partly drunk. A house to seduce young boys and girls.

A teacher of a leading high school close by told that eighteen girls were sent home in one month—mothers to be. When she went to the principal to do something about it she was told that he didn't intend to do anything about it. He said times have changed. Boys and girls aren't like they used to be. No—a thousand times no, they aren't. Would to God they were. But what are we going to do? The professors are teaching and encouraging free love. The high schools have become a house of prostitution. Many of the teachers are nothing short of crooks. They prey upon girls who come to them for advice and tell them to "cut loose and sow some wild oats." Their stock advice is, "Go out and express yourself," and girls who take their advice and seek to "express themselves" in order to find happiness in life, sooner or later come to a terrible awakening, and then they recklessly plunge to their death from a hotel window or a high bridge, or by some other method. God have mercy, our young people don't have a chance unless they are under the Blood.

There used to be a time when a girl did stoop to immorality she had enough modesty left to commit her act out of the public eye. She tried to hide her shame. Not any more. I had a girl to tell me out of her own mouth of the shameful act she committed in the presence of two other girls and boys. Why that is getting down in the animal way of living. Modesty? That is a thing of the past in the lives of two-thirds of our young people. In Salisbury, N. C., a woman told me of a very sad and disgraceful thing. Her husband was putting up some lights in the gym of one of the high schools there. Upon returning from his lunch he walked in on six boys and girls in one corner of the gym. Did they care? Surely one would think caught in such an act they would have hid their faces and ran away. No the man had to hide his and leave. They paid no attention to his presence although he let them know he was there.

I know many of you feel like your mouth is dirty after reading of such ungodly acts and want to spit it out. Think of how Christ must feel looking down and seeing it all. It is a wonder He doesn't spue the whole generation out of His mouth, and send them to Hell alive.

I am more disgusted with the girls than the boys. After all a girl is supposed to be a lady and she has to let the bars down. A girl can keep herself clean and be respected by the vilest sort of a boy. But I guess I shouldn't be too hard on the girls. Many of these girls have no mother to teach them. When she sees her mother go out into public half naked with a cigarette between her fingers she naturally follows in her mother's footsteps.

A girl who feels perfectly at ease in shorts, bathing suit, low neck, sun back, or any other garment which shows half her body has already lost her modesty.

When God clothed Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, because they had eaten of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, He meant for the human body to be covered from that time on. Because people are disregarding the laws of God, crime is rampant all over the world today. The beast nature is stirred in man after he looks upon dozens of half naked women until they revel in crime and lust. Indecent clothes is just a bait of the devil to catch more and more victims. Keep up with the times—you say. Dress as all modern girls dress. If you want to please the devil you will.

Up to now I have had in mind the "Wild," "Bold," "Don't Care," "Boy Crazy" group of girls—

I believe most of you girls reading this article can say you know you aren't like that—but watch out. The devil is no respecter of persons and in his subtle, slimy way he will bait many a hook and will seduce you into evil if you aren't very careful, and prayerful.

One of the devil's baits for nice decent unsuspecting girls is the cigarette. Sure he wants you to learn to smoke them, then have to have them. The constant smoking of cigarettes somewhat deadens the sensitiveness of a girl. She isn't the pure clear thinking girl she was before. Sure, just about every girl smokes now. Is that the reason you do? Many girls have told me they began because they lacked the courage to face the ridicule of their friends who indulged in the vile habit. DON'T BE A COWARD. You've got just as much right to leave them alone as they have to smoke them.

One great result of the cigarette habit is the large number of girls who have become dope addicts. There are cigarettes made with the frightful degenerating marihuana weed rolled in them. If I did smoke I would be scared to death to accept a cigarette from a stranger and especially a man. Many a girl has been robbed of her virtue as a result of one marihuana cigarette. It is sad but so that a great many men use them on their dates. One marihuana cigarette and all barriers of self restraint are down that the girl ordinarily displays. Then the girl is at the mercy of her lust-inflamed companion.

Don't turn your nose up and say that is in the class of the underworld. Just this week a dear mother and daddy came to our house heart broken over their daughter. This particular family is a well-to-do, well thought of family. Their daughter was a fine, decent girl with a good reputation. She met a man, gave him a date. He gave her a marihuana cigarette and when her mother and daddy found her she was in a strange city in a hotel with him. Her mind wasn't clear and she really didn't know what had taken place. That could be your daughter—young lady that COULD BE YOU. The devil is very cunning and he likes to deceive and catch decent girls. His bait is such innocent looking things. Then when he gets them to just nibble his hook he catches them in his old slimy fingers and pulls them on down the broad road to hell.

Another bait the devil uses to catch girls unawares, and to rob them of all that is near and dear is the dance. Many of you girls wouldn't dare be caught on a public dance floor, yet you say I don't see a bit of harm for two or three girls to dance in their own living room. The devil put those thoughts in your heart. He has you just where he wants you. HE WANTS YOU TO LEARN HOW TO DANCE. He wants you to learn to love it. Then he will have no trouble at all when the time comes to tempt you right into the arms of a vile thinking man onto the public dance floor.

The only way I can in the least show you the harm in dancing is to be perfectly plain. The dance has always been the favorite amusement of the vile everywhere—in every town. The worst places in our cities are the dance halls. They are usually full on Saturday nights and running over.

There is an intoxication about the dance that you cannot deny. That same intoxication leads to moral ruin. Many girls and young women have become so wild at the dance as to yield easily to the seduction of social sin.

A noted champion dancer and ex-dancing master said publicly, "No woman can dance well and dance virtuously. Because to dance well she must yield her person completely to her partner." He said further, "The most perfect dancers in the land are, as a rule, prostitutes."

Some old worldly minded hypocrite in the church says, "Would you stop our young people from good exercise?" No indeed, but I think good clean exercise out in the open with God's fresh air would be more beneficial. How can young people benefit from exercise in a room filled with foul, smoke laden, beer scented air—filling their lungs with such foul oxygen?

You can get plenty of good exercise without being immoral and filthy to do it.

So many times have I heard men say they don't dance with any wrong in their hearts. They say, "Dancing is no harm to me. I just like the music, the rhythm, the exercise." Why don't they put their arm around another fellow, put their two old hairy cheeks together and his knees between his limbs and dance up a cool breeze? With the best music and rhythm in town it wouldn't be long before those birds would stop and say, "There's no kick in this." Then it isn't the music and exercise they are seeking. The truth is those men and all others dance because they like and deliberately seek the sex excitement of the dance. Whether you know it or not girls, you are placing yourself into the hands of the devil when you dance, and he is using you for bait to tempt the boy or man you dance with.

You or no other girl can go to a dance and place yourself in the embrace of the average young man who will dance with you and come away with as much modesty as you had when you arrived there. No, not even in your own front room.

Every married woman knows what is wrong with the dance. No good woman wants to be used of the devil to cause another man to lust after her in his heart. God knows you ought not to. I do not say by any means that every woman who dances is an adulteress. I don't believe that is so. But I do believe she is headed that way.

Jesus said in Matthew 5:27-28 "Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time. Thou shalt not commit adultery: But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." It will do you good to think this verse over.

I do not say that dancing young people always intend to do wrong. They are looking for and intend to have a good time. Just because though they don't intend to do wrong doesn't change the wrong to right—the evil to good. I'm warning you girls the dance is wicked and a bait of the devil to lure you on to worse things.

Another of the devil's baits is "Petting." My, how careless girls have become nowadays. You pet right out in the open and let any boy you date paw and fume over you. High school boys and girls walk to and from school with their arms around each other. Where have the principles of young girls gone? You think because you want to be popular you are duty bound. Let me tell you, the rest of the world is going to hell fast and if you follow the crowd that is where you will go. "Enter ye in at the straight gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in theret;"

Because straight is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Matt. 7:13 14. It couldn't possibly be love for every boy you let kiss, fondle and paw over you. If it isn't love, what is it? It is nothing short of lack of sense and good reasoning on your part and lust on his.

Do you think any decent man will want you for a wife? You go to a store and start looking at a certain piece of merchandise. Many times you have told the clerk that particular article is "shop worn" and dirty. You want one out of stock that hasn't been handled. Are you "shop worn"? If you are you can never be back the same sweet virtuous girl you once were but praise the Lord your heart can be washed as white as the driven snow in the precious Blood of Jesus if you will only let Him save you.

Are you still in the "stock room" unhandled? Well praise the Lord for it and stay there. Petting is dangerous. Many girls have lost their virtue. Many have ended up committing suicide. Many others are in trouble which started merely by yielding to the "petting" of the boys.

Thank God there are a few girls left with enough backbone and principle left to keep the boys' dirty hands off them. I am praying for you to stand true no matter what bait the devil uses to try to lure you away.

Of course there are hundreds of other baits the devil uses, like the movies, cards, drinking, and oh, so many others to catch our young people. I do not have the time or space to discuss this subject in its entirety but I have tried to name a few and maybe the most popular ones to try to help you girls to recognize the devil's bait and not be caught on his hook. May God help you not to pass this up lightly but to really stop and think.

If you are not saved won't you give your heart to Jesus and let Him wash you as white as snow right now?

"Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." Isaiah 1:18.

NEWS FROM NEW BERN

St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, of New Bern, N. C., has recently closed a ten days' revival, conducted by the new Pastor, Rev. J. R. Davidson. There were a goodly number of confessions and re-dedications. There were several additions to the church, quite a number for baptism.

Soul stirring messages were heard each evening, as Rev. Davidson spoke with such zeal and earnestness to the unsaved, warning them of the danger of delay, and appealing to those who professed to know Christ, to live close to the Master at all times, that their light might be kept burning before the world as a living testimony for Christ.

The music and special selections, together with congregational singing, played a large and exceptional part to the success of the meeting.

During the Week of Prayer, Nov. 13-17, sponsored by the auxiliary women, the pastor spoke each morning at 10 o'clock on, "Ye Are My Witnesses."

He brought out many facts concerning personal witnessing, the witnessing church and the influence on the world of a real live testimony for Christ by those who love the Lord. These services were strengthening and inspiring throughout. Altogether, the church as a whole is pleased and gratified with the results of the efforts that have been put forth during these two months, and of the service that has been rendered by our new pastor and his good family. The Young People's work seems to have taken on new life, under the direction of James Emory, son of the pastor, and each phase of the work is moving forward. Perfection has not been attained, nor will be, for Satan is not dead, and as long as he lives, he will do his best at all times to jeopardize the Lord's work and destroy it if possible. The church, to offset him, must "Be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord." Christians should pray for one another. May we ask the prayers of the Lord's people that we may go on to a higher spiritual standard in the Lord than ever before.

A SUCCESSFUL REPORT

I am sending some news for the Baptist Paper.

Mable Ave. Free Will Baptist Church had a very successful revival during the month of November. During the two weeks' meeting there were twenty-one professions and five additions to the church. Rev. Carl Shook of Spartanburg, S. C., was the evangelist, and Rev. L. D. Gray is the pastor of the church.

Yours truly,

Dannie Gray

Baptist churches win to Christ each year one out of three of the lost people enrolled in Sunday school, whereas, they win only one out of 240 lost people not in Sunday school. Churches that do not have a Sunday school average one baptism each year. All good Sunday school work results in evangelism.—J. N. Barnette, The Sunday School Builder.

THE TESTING FIRE

"Oh, I'm so glad you had a nice fire, Uncle Dick! You knew how cold we'd be after skating so long, didn't you?" exclaimed Helen.

"You don't have anything to eat, do you, Uncle Dick?" There was an anxious tone in James' voice as he asked this.

"James! Mother told you never to ask for food away from home," scolded his little sister Judith.

"Never mind, Judy," said Uncle Dick. "I knew you'd be hungry, so I decided to use the new corn popper you gave me for Christmas. While I get the corn and dishes, you get ready to enjoy yourselves and everyone find a seat near the fireplace."

In a moment Uncle Dick was ready to pop corn over the fire.

"Uncle Dick, would you mind telling us another story?" teased Celia.

"Why, no! Have you any suggestions?" asked Uncle Dick.

"Oh! something about—about, oh I know—a fire," said Judy, her puzzled expression giving way to anticipation.

"All right, another story from the Bible," said Uncle Dick. "You've all heard about Daniel in the lions' den, haven't you? Well, this story happened just before that.

"When Nebuchadnezzar was king in Babylon, there were four men in the palace who loved God. One was Daniel; the other three were Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego. The king sent out an order that whenever the people heard the sound of a cornet or any music they were to fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar had made. These three men loved God and they refused to do it. When Nebuchadnezzar heard about this, he had them come before him, and he told them they must worship as he decreed. He even said, 'Who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands?'

"You see, he didn't believe God was real and alive, but the three did, and they answered, 'Our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and He will deliver us out of thine hand, O King.'

"This answer made the king angry, and he commanded that they should be cast into the fiery furnace, which was to be made seven times as hot as usual. The three men were bound and thrown into flames so hot that the men who went near to throw them in, were burned to death. Much to the king's surprise, the three boys walked around in the fire, unharmed. Furthermore, there was a fourth One. The king went closer and said, 'Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, ye servants of the Most High God, come forth'. The boys walked out.

"Nebuchadnezzar told all the people to worship the True God who had sent His angel to take care of the boys in the fiery furnace. God was real to these three men and He wants to be real to us, too. Don't you want to know Him as a real Saviour and Friend?"—The Pilot.

- God moves in mysterious ways
His miracles to perform.
He walks upon the waters
And stills the tempest storm.
- God moves in mysterious ways
His power to reveal.
He sends the lightning racing
Across the trembling hill.
- God moves in mysterious ways,
His love to be seen,
He opens the eyes of the blind
And makes the leper's clean.
- God moves in mysterious ways,
To justify the weak and slain,
He breaks the bonds of grave and iron
And sets man free again.
- God moves in mysterious ways
That He might be heard,
He made a perfect Saviour
Out of His spoken word.
- God moves in mysterious ways
To bring His lost sheep to the fold,
He receives them into glory
And redeems their lost soul.

MIDNIGHT SONG

It is the hour of midnight,
The village lights are low.
The rosy chapel windows
Send forth a welcoming glow.

Within the organ is playing
An old familiar strain.
It's music fills the frosty air,
Re-echoes over the plain.

"Silent Night, Holy Night,"
I hear the choir sing.
Oh! what a joyful message
The happy carolers bring.

It makes me think of Bethlehem,
The never forgotten night,
When shepherds abiding in the field
Beheld the wondrous sight.

When the Heavenly Portals opened,
And out of the night so still
Came the angel voices singing
Of Peace on Earth, Goodwill.

As I listen in the distance
I think of those who sleep,
Wrapped in robes of darkness
Of war-torn worlds that weep.

When all the while the Savior
Awaits to right the wrong,
To bring to the trouble-hearted
The solace of the midnight song.

NO ROOM for CHRIST

Rev. Ralph Staten
Red Bay, Ala.

The coming of Christ Jesus gives overwhelming indications that the world is in a sad plight. We would never know how wicked the human heart can be if we should have never known what men did to Jesus Christ. The poor reception of the unspeakable gift of God revealed men then and shall when he comes again. For an authentic narration let us observe closely the following quotations of Scripture:

"But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel: whose goings forth have been from of old from everlasting" (Micah 5:2).

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this" (Isaiah 9:6-7).

"And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn" (Luke 2:7).

"He came unto his own, and his own received him not" (John 1:11).

After the primeval fall of man from his pristine glory and expulsion from the Garden of Eden, a divine promise of salvation by grace through faith, through a coming Redeemer, was given and guaranteed. It was promised that the seed of the women would bruise the head of the serpent (Gen. 3:15). The person designated to destroy the work of the devil was to be the progeny of the woman without the concurrence of man. The Genesis text speaks of the virgin state of the one of whom Christ, according to the flesh, should come.

For hundreds of years Jewish mothers had been looking for the time when they would have the honor of being the mother of the Prince of Peace. Many Jews were looking for him to come and restore the kingdom to Israel with an earthly reign. Now He had come and the first thing we read about Him is that "there was no room for them in the inn." Many lives of today are very much like that little inn in Bethlehem; we have no room for Jesus. In the midst of a worldwide struggle when there is in the hearts of many a longing for international peace, we see among that number many who haven't made any preparations for the Wonderful Saviour and the Prince of Peace. Christ came into the world that we may have good tidings of great joy and on earth peace, good will toward men. Did you ever think of the great condescension that He underwent that the world may enjoy such blessings, if it would only receive God's unspeakable gift? "For we know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich" (2 Cor. 8:9).

The Wicked Never Wanted Him

"He came unto his own, and his own received him not." The Jews really did not want him. Herod sought his life. He was without honor in his own country. The Romans crucified him and one who was supposed to have been one of his most intimate friends betrayed him and sold him for thirty pieces of silver. "For the love of money is the root of all evil . . ." (1 Tim. 6:10). "Behold, these are the ungodly, who prosper in the world; they increase in riches" (Ps. 73:12).

Do we want him today? Are we too busy looking after material things to let him have room in our lives? If the nations at war today had the opportunity to have him reign personally over them, would they welcome Him? Do you think that there is any nation that would welcome his coming now to reign over it as a dictator as it had already enthroned? Do you believe that if it should be put to a popular vote in the United States for Him to be our president that he would become our chief executive? Where could Jesus go today and get a warm reception? In fact, is there any such thing now as a Christian nation? Did not the people of the United States, when they repealed the eighteenth amendment to the constitution to license the damnable liquor traffic throw off the cloak of Christianity as a Christian nation? Do not statistics show that immorality, drunkenness, and juvenile delinquency have greatly increased? Why was this done? It was the transaction of a Judas Iscariot and Esau. We have just sold out for a mess of pottage and a few pieces of silver.

Christ came to seek and save that which was lost. He came that the wicked might forsake their ways, return unto God, and let Him abundantly pardon them. Remember, salvation is far from the wicked.

NOTES AND QUOTES

BY J. C. GRIFFIN

Christmas

We are now approaching another Christmas. It is the holiday that we claim to observe as the "Birthday" of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. But do our readers believe that Jesus is pleased with the way that the majority of the people keep that day? I am sure that God is not well pleased with the attitude of millions, even those who claim to be Christians.

Christ was born to die. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

But do we appreciate that love? That was a great event in the world's history. It is indeed great to the born again child of God. But had the Christ, who was born of the Virgin Mary had only been born there could have been no salvation. Because the sin of man required an atonement and Christ was born to make that atonement, so we see in His birth the working of God's plan of redemption for lost humanity. When we appreciate His birth, we really appreciate His death.

If you have gone down the street shopping—Christmas shopping—you have noticed around the stores that people are busy picking presents for their relatives and friends. A great number are purchasing toys that are soon torn and broken and thrown into garbage cans. Thousands and thousands of worthless gifts are purchased that make the world no better, the busy "hum-drum" of people see but little of the blessing of the Christ child or the Slain Lamb of God. There is absolutely nothing seen among the great number of shoppers that acknowledge the birth of Christ. When Christ was born, that first Christmas He was worshipped, by those who found the manger, mother and child. He should be worshipped, but as said before, Santa Claus has robbed the Christ of much worship.

I have reached the place that I feel indignant when I see that stuffy fixed up person who goes to cities and towns all dressed up in red and making promises and fooling little children, having letters written which are broadcast over the air. This tom-foolery does not honor Jesus Christ but instead it is a mockery of the Christ child.

Infidels can observe the day with as much respect as many who claim to be believers in Christ.

"In olden days when a child was born among the Jews, two or three local musicians waited outside to know if the new arrival was a boy or a girl. If it were a boy, they immediately beat the drum, and played upon whatever instruments they had, accompanying the din with improvised rhymes, complimentary to the dignity of the family. This peculiarity is in agreement with a statement in the Talmud: "the birth of a male child causes universal joy." But the moment they learned from the silence and sad looks of the visitors that a daughter had been born, the drum was lowered and the musicians walked away" Dr. U. A. Michelson, in the Jewish Hope.

Dr. Michelson says, again, "While attending the Rabbi school, we discussed one day the duties of a Jewish woman and I asked my Rabbi why a Jewish woman was making a blessing over lights on the evening of the Sabbath, and why there was rejoicing over the birth of a male child and not over a female child. He answered that the Jewish woman was not making a blessing over the lights of the Sabbath, but prayer, since the Messiah, when he comes, is to be the light of the world, that God would grant her that one of her children should be that light; likewise there is rejoicing over the birth of a son, because in such a son the Messiah might appear, hence the singing and the psalms of welcome." Certainly with this expectancy the Jewish woman could rejoice in the birth of a son. But one mother beyond all others had the real joy, even before her. Son was born that she was to be the Mother of the Messiah. Because the angel had informed her of that which should be. She had the evidence, for "She pondered all these things in her heart." Not only did Mary, but Joseph who was a man of God and who was to take Mary as his wife, was informed that when Mary should bring forth, that the man child should be the Messiah. But to the masses it was a secret, and the place of birth was so much away from the pomp and glory of the world, that there is nothing said as to the singing of men and women at the birth of Christ by men and women, but the Lord furnished the music by sending a heavenly host of angels to celebrate the occasion. Heaven rang with the grand music of those heavenly beings. It was a sacred time in heaven and on earth. "Peace and good will was heralded across the horizon of the universe, but it soon died away and the wicked forgot the occasion and the wicked took over and sought to destroy the Lord Jesus, even old Herod had all the boy babies killed that the name of Jesus might be blotted out, but he failed to destroy the child. Since the devil could not destroy the Lord Jesus, it has been the idea of old Satan to destroy the work of the Christ born in Bethlehem near 2,000 years ago. But, in spite of the devil in substituting his religion and his method of observing the event, there are still to be found those who will not compromise with the devil, but believe that the birth of the Lord Jesus should be observed with reverence and deep devotion. The "wise men" worshipped Him at birth.

"Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, Saying, where is he that is born King of the Jews. . . . And when they had come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshipped him: and when they opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh" (Matt. 2:1-11). Now this is the way

CHRISTMAS MEDITATION

Alice E. Lupton
New Bern, N. C.

As one meditates on the great truth that "God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life," we are brought face to face with the real meaning of Christmas.

As we meditate prayerfully on the greatness of God's love, the blessedness stirs our hearts to praise, thanksgiving and worship. It is wonderful and past all our comprehension why the Father of all light should come down to sinful man as a little Babe, born in lowly circumstances, his lodging place a manger, His mother a virgin, who bore all the gossip, mean sayings, faithlessness of supposed friends, with fortitude and faith, for she counted it a great privilege to be so favored of the Lord. She said, "My soul doth magnify the Lord. And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour. For He hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden; for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed" (Luke 1:46, 47, 48).

As we meditate on these thoughts, other truths force themselves upon us. No other babe has ever had songs of "halelujahs" by an angelic choir fill the air with such blessed news. No other group ever had such an experience as did the shepherds on that memorable morning so long ago, when "The angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone around about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

If we listen carefully, with our minds centered on this event and our hearts in tune with its reality, meaning, and purpose, surely we can almost hear the "multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

We might do well to take a journey into old Palestine at this Christmas season, in our imagination, of course, and try to catch the reality of the nativity of our Saviour. Then the purpose for which He was sent, the life he lived among men, the death He died on the shameful cross for other men's sins. He had none of his own, but the love of God was so great for His most glorious creation, man, that He sacrificed His only begotten Son, sent Him to earth that he might "Save the people from their sins," through giving his own life in exchange for ours. He died that we might live, for "without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22). We should remember that Bethlehem was only the first step down from the heavenly City to the "place of a skull," at Golgotha. It makes us almost cringe sometimes, to think how little and insignificant we are, and how headstrong and disobedient we often are, when such a sacrifice was made for us. We know that when our Saviour paid with his own life on the cross for our redemption, that men trembled with fear, not for their sins, but because the earth went into mourning and a veil of darkness hung, as a black crepe before the sun, which refused to see the blessed Son die, the earth shook and great havoc was wrought. It seemed that all nature honored Him, although sinners did then as they are doing now, rejecting Him and saying "No," to all the pleadings of God through His ambassadors, to profit by this great sacrifice of Jesus, in taking Him as their personal Saviour.

Where Do We Stand?

Shall we, as the wise men of old, come this Christmas bearing gifts saying, "Where is He that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship Him" (Matt. 2:2)? Have we seen His star? "When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts: gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

Will we forego the promiscuous spending this Christmas, and bring our offering to Christ, our Saviour, in honor of His birthday. We all appreciate little remembrances on our natal day, how much more does our Lord appreciate our remembrances of him, when we stretch out our hands to the needy, open up our hearts in love for little orphan children, look out across the seas to where our missionaries are laboring so hard to win souls to Christ, looking around us where Home Mission work is needed so badly, and where we find many who are willing and prepared to go with the gospel of Christ to hungry souls, both in the home land and on foreign soil, but we have withheld the means. Please, dear friends of the Master, let us bear gifts to relieve want, gifts that are like the alabaster box of Mary, full of love and fragrance when broken for mankind, gifts inspired by the Star that shone over Bethlehem so long ago, pointing to the Babe, who is the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world. As we travel this old, old journey to Bethlehem, may we go prayerfully, with gifts inspired by the Star that shone over the City of David nearly two thousand years ago, and breathe out a prayer that God will open our hearts and our pocket books, and that we will give Him first place in our lives, Even a "cup of cold water," if it is our best, will have its reward.

A happy Christmas to all in Christ's Name.

RECOGNIZING THE DIVINE

By Mrs. W. Stillely
Route 1, New Bern, N. C.

The innkeepers didn't recognize in Mary and Joseph, the divinely chosen parents of the Son of God. If they had they would have found room for him, and it would have been their delight in giving up their own places for Him. It was really by not knowing that they lost their opportunity to entertain the King of kings. The story always fills our hearts with pity and disappointment that our Lord had to be born in such an unfit birthplace. We wish we could have welcomed Mary and Joseph into the best part of our home and surrounded Him with our love, generosity and hospitality.

John 1:9 reads: "That was the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." By this we know that there is a divine spark in everyone that God has created in his image. To be sure, many are like Mary, that have within the folds of their being the potential Son of God as yet unborn, but He is there none the less. Our re-birth is made possible when we receive Christ and believe on His Name. Therefore every Christian has the marvelous opportunity to recognize the Divine possibility in every person that passeth our way in life's journey, and treat them as God's choice whom he has honored as the recipient and protector of Jesus. Let us honor them by realizing that the divine is there. Even if we cannot see it, let us not judge by outward appearance but realize the truth that the true Light lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

By realizing this divine light is hidden in the hearts of those without God we can help them to re-birth. This comes about in the same way sun and rain help a seed to spring open and produce new life. This recognition sees with faith the true nature God has planted in that soul and honors it. This faith is positive and therefore more powerful than the cold indifference the innkeepers gave to the Holy Family. It does not relegate them to the stables with the animals where it is so easy to put the sinner. So often they are associated (so completely) with the stubbornness of the mule, self-satisfaction of the cattle, bull-headedness of the ox, swill loving of the swine and dumbness of the sheep. Jesus always recognized the divine soul in every sinner he contacted and honored it. He was a master-obstetrician of the soul because he could be so positive in a negative situation. When a group of angry people were about to stone a woman taken in adultery, his words were: "Neither do I condemn thee, go and sin no more." Jesus didn't criticize or condemn. He made it so easy for her at that time by having great love and forgiveness, and surely she could not help but respond to his love.

The shepherds who were watching (looking and praying) for the Saviour's birth, and the wise men who recognized the light (star) which was a sign of his appearance, are the good characters that had a share in the joy at seeing the infant Jesus. It was a wonderful occasion and filled them with great joy.

To be sure the wise men came thru the territory of the enemy, Herod, as we who hope to be wise men must admit we have done. The enemy has told us what to do and where to go, and when we left him he was still insisting upon our return. Though Herod asked to know where Jesus was so that he might worship Him, he had no such intention. God knew this and appeared to Joseph in a dream, telling him Herod would seek the young child to destroy him. The wise men were given a dream telling them to depart another way. Yes, God's way and the enemy's way are in opposite directions. When we come to God we must continue in the direction of his leadership and his guidance. This is the only way we have his loving protection.

The wise men not only recognized the light and journeyed to worship Jesus, but they came to offer their precious gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. It is still possible to come to Jesus with our gold, frankincense and myrrh. Our gold represented by our possessions, the frankincense by our prayers, which are like the incense of the altar in the tabernacle, continually going upward, and the myrrh by love which is the most healing of all balms. Let us honor Jesus by presenting these worthy gifts to him and remember that praying for, loving and helping others is one way we can do it.

It is significant that the wise men came from the East from where the source of light comes, and also, that they saw the star in the east and continued in the eastward direction. This is one reason the wise men were wise because they knew that they would find the light in this direction and it would be increased with every minute the light would come. They didn't look to the north because it would be the wrong direction to look for the new born infant. Indifference, disgust, intolerance, impatience, and a "holier than thou attitude" are too cold to warm the divine spark in the heart of the sinner into new birth.

They did not look to the south because they knew the heat of criticism, hate, envy, jealousy, and fault finding would dry up the life giving elements within the divine seed of God's love and it would be useless to find Jesus in that direction.

They did not look to the west because they knew that was where the light went down and produced shadows. God's Son would be sent to

CHRIST IN CHRISTMAS

Will Christ Be in Your Christmas?

During these days of commercialism and great concern for making money, we often wonder if the people really do put Christ in their Christmas. From what we hear over the radio, and see advertised in the daily newspapers in the way of Christmas ads, we are made to wonder if most people are more interested in selling and buying Christmas goods, toys and gifts than they are in making Christmas a Christ centered date.

Christmas is the time for rejoicing in the right way—for giving thanks to God for His Son who came to redeem the lost from sin and condemnation. It is the time for meditation, religious services, and worship unto the Lord. Indeed, it is a time of sacredness, when people should celebrate the occasion in deep thought for the love which God has in sending His Son into the world to bless all mankind. People should not forget this fact. They should not lose sight of its meaning and value to everyone. But a great many are too busy with material things to take the time to put Christ in their Christmas. They are worshipping the god of mammon rather than the God of love, mercy and peace.

Are people justified in making the Christmas season a time of trade and traffic, pleasure seeking, sporting, drinking and carousing, as a great many do? Are they really thoughtful of the source of the blessings which they are permitted to enjoy? From their actions and attitudes, they certainly show that they are not, nor are they thoughtful enough of God's time to give Him credit and honor for what He is doing for them day by day. This class of people take in consideration themselves and their own, and what they can get out of life more than they do for the good of others and what God means to them.

We wonder if such people are really satisfied and happy when the Christmas holidays are over each year, and when they have time to think of the things that they did before and during the week of Christmas. We often wonder if any of them become ashamed of some of the things which they did during those days, and whether or not they turned to God and asked Him for forgiveness. On the other hand, we guess that the lusts of the flesh and the pride of life are of more concern to them than anything else in life. But what shall it profit them for all of their earthly doings, when they pass God by on the other side? Like the hog under the acorn tree that keeps his head to the ground, busy eating the fruit of the forest oak, they center their minds on material gains and pleasures, paying God little or no thought as the source of their heavenly blessings. Who is man anyway, and what is he like?—J. C. Outland.

The Rev. W. E. Anderson of Morehead City, retired Free Will Baptist minister, filled all three recent appointments at churches in and about his home town of Wendell. Preaching at the Christian Baptist, the Methodist, and the Missionary Baptist churches marked his 54th year in the ministry.

Rev. W. E. Anderson

At the Wendell Baptist church flowers were placed by the Anderson family in honor and in memory of his wife who is no longer living.

A welcome on the church bulletin read: "We welcome Brother W. E. Anderson to our church today and we feel honored to have him fill the pulpit. His has been a long and fruitful ministry and we are grateful that he has chosen our church in which to bring the closing message of his active ministry. His many friends pray the continued blessings of God upon him, and wish for him many additional years in the Master's service."

Following the service the congregation had a fellowship luncheon. Fried chicken, ham, turkey, all kinds of cake were served, including "one special cocoanut," Mr. Anderson said.

"This is the time of my life," he declared, "and I thank everybody for their kindness."

William E. Anderson was born December 9, 1872, near what is now Wendell. He is the son of the late James Lawrence Anderson and Mollie Holder Anderson, both members of pioneer families of this community. Born seven years after the close of the War between the States, life was not too easy and securing an education was both difficult and expensive.

Converted at 17

At the age of 17 Mr. Anderson was converted at Clydes Chapel Baptist Church and soon after joined Hephzibah Baptist Church, of which the late O. L. Stringfield was then pastor. Just below the wooden bridge over the old Raleigh Road there is a flat rock at the edge of Buffalo Creek. From this rock literally hundreds of people have been baptized into the membership of Hephzibah. From it Rev. O. L. Stringfield baptized Mr. Anderson.

Soon after joining the church he was elected teacher of the Baraca class, one of the first in the state, and at 18 he was superintendent of the Hephzibah Sunday School.

Shortly after that time he joined the Free Will Baptist church and was licensed to preach on July 27, 1895. He was ordained to the ministry November 15, of that year.

On the Ordaining Council were the Rev. E. T. Phillips of Ayden, the Rev. P. T. Lucas of Lucama, and the Rev. B. W. Tippet of Wendell, all of whom are deceased, said Mr. Anderson.

Served 36 Pastorates

"Tomorrow will make my 54th year in the service of the Lord. I have had the pastoral care of 36 churches. I have been happy and I feel as Paul did, 'I am the least of His servants,'" said Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson is well-known and loved in Carteret county. He served for several years as the pastor of the Free Will Baptist church in Morehead City, and from all indications, it will be impossible for him to retire. He is in demand constantly to fill pulpits near and far.

The First Christmas

The first Christmas eve was glorious,
Glad tidings were brought to the earth;
Such wonderful tones of soft music
Heralded the sweet, holy birth.

The Inn was over-crowded with people,
The stars beamed brightly all night;
The stall that cradled the Babe
Was aglow with heavenly light.

Shepherds envisioned the Infant,
They heard the holy angels sing;
Then moving in great exultation,
They sought out the heaven-sent King.

Wise men of the East came to worship,
They followed a lovely Star;
And bearing rich gifts for the Christ Child,
They reached His side from afar.

They loved much this Child from heaven,
Their gifts unto Him were pure gold;
Then we must bear gifts unto Jesus
Like the three wise men did of old.

The Sound of Children's Voices

Reach My Ear

Mattie M. Beacham, Arapahoe, N. C.

Christ, God's Gift of Love

I love the sound of Children's voices, and love to watch them play. As I watch them, I often wonder what the future holds for them, and in my heart I breath a prayer to God for them. May he save and use them for his glory.

I often think of the words of Jesus when he said, "Suffer the children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God." During the tender years of childhood is the best time to lead them to the Lord Jesus. Children who have Christians parents are certainly blessed, for they are given the proper Christian training, or should be by those parents. Parents should live the lives before their children that will set right examples for them to follow.

As children behold the life of Christ in their parents, they will be more easily led to love the Lord. If our lives are filled with the spirit of joy and gladness, then our children will soon be filled with a longing for Christ and his goodness. Let us pray for them and love them into the kingdom of God.

During this Christmas season, let us search our hearts and surrender to God everything we find in them that would hinder the children from loving him, and also others from coming to him. Let us turn our hearts to the music of the angelic choir for joy. Let us close the door of our hearts to the things that would draw them away from the beautiful scenes of heaven and the music of the angels. When our hearts are turned toward heaven, and our eyes are looking unto Jesus, then we will feel the presence of the Holy One, and with praise, adoration, and love we can worship at His Throne of Grace.

When the curtain is drawn aside of the portals of heaven, then we can behold the wonderful Saviour in all of His glory, eternal in the heavens, and think how he came to earth to save the lost from sin. With love he spoke the words of life, and he is the Bread of Life to everyone who believes. He fed the hungry multitudes with a few loaves and some small fishes. He healed the sick and suffering, and made the lame to walk, and the blind to see. He made the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak. He blessed the children and invited them to him. He lived for the good of others, and died for all men everywhere that they may receive life eternal.

We think of the parable of the lost sheep, how the Good Shepherd left the ninety and nine, and went out to find the one that was lost until he had found it. Christ said himself, "I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep." Yes, he gave himself on the cross for lost souls; the lost sheep in the world of sin. He suffered the cruel death that men might live for ever more in heaven above. He arose from the grave the third day, triumphant over death and the grave, as a proof of his resurrection power. He was raised for our justification. He ascended to glory to be at the right hand of God, and there to make intercessions for us everyone. Oh, how our hearts should thrill with joy because of what Jesus did for us! We have the blessed privilege of worship unto him because he did so much for us. We pray that many in the world may come to know Jesus and his marvelous love for them.

There are some who are giving themselves that some in darkness might see this great light of the gospel, and be redeemed by the shed blood of Christ on the Cross. The missionaries have left home and friends to witness for Jesus unto the lost in foreign lands. Our part in this good work is to pray and give that those who are called to go unto foreign fields may be supported and fully equipped to be able to obey the Lord's command.

Let us consecrate ourselves, and draw ourselves nearer to the cross of Christ, and be willing to make greater sacrifices than ever before that others may learn to love our precious Saviour and Master.

The Wise men from the East brought gifts

Unto the heavenly King;
Let us with joy this Christmas tide
Richest gifts unto Him bring.

A NOTE OF THANKS

I desire to thank the Woman's auxiliaries and the churches, and the good people for their kindness and thoughtfulness of my dear departed husband while he was disabled to work, and while he was sick. I want you to know that I do appreciate all that you did for him. The Lord certainly did lead you in the help that you gave to us.

I am asking each one to keep me on your prayer list, as I am lonely in this world by myself. I would like to work, but I am not able. I am trusting in the Lord, my dear Saviour to come and take care of me. May the Lord bless each one of you is my prayer.

My Christmas Experience

plishment—only to make it harder for us to believe the next time.

This experience has given me the greatest vision of God's love, as a Father for his children, of any experience of my life. There is nothing that we as parents can do for our children, that we see they really need, which we will not do. Our ability to do and love is nothing to his. Why should we doubt any of his promises? For us to comply with the conditions upon which these wonderful blessings are offered, and then Christ fail to give them, God would not be glorified in the Son, for it would make the impression that Christ had promised something that God did not tell him to. Or God had failed on his part, but that is impossible. We often fail, but Christ and God never fail. If you want a blessing from the Lord, take the Bible and study it prayerfully until you understand the conditions on which it is offered. Then comply with the conditions and feel sure that the blessing is yours, and the blessing will come. Ask and ye shall receive.

There is no day like Christmas to me, and when I begin to think of the blessings it has been mine to enjoy, because of that great event, I can't tell the joy that it brings to me. How thankful I am to the Lord for that day. Just think what the world and life would be to us without a Christmas day! Our missionaries tell us of just such places today, and it is awful to hear them tell of the kinds of religion and the kind of lives that are being lived there.

For the world to have a Christmas day Christ had to be given to it. As Christ had to be given to the world for the world to have a Christmas day, so for you to have a Christmas day, Christ must be given to you. For him to be of real benefit to you, you must receive him, and that is what makes it a real Christmas day. If we can make the twenty-fifth day of December a real Christmas day, why not have him with us three hundred and sixty five days, and have a Christmas year. If you have not tried it, begin now and for the next year be careful to have him with you in what ever you do or say, and have the most glorious year of your life. A Christmas year!

To live each day as though Christ was with you, and to make it a reality, so that you will keep his word, and by keeping his word, he and the Father will come and make their abode with you, will bring joy that you can't express. A life with them is the only life that is worth living. No wonder that folks commit suicide, get drunk, and do the other bad things they do, trying to get out of their trouble. It is because they have this great Christmas Gift. Since I felt the assurance that Christ was with me, I would not exchange the joy I had with this great Christmas Gift during the time I was afflicted with the carbuncle, I have spoken of, for all the pleasures of a life without him. The Church members who have to go to the places of worldly amusement for recreation have my sympathy. It is evident that they have not accepted this great Christmas gift, therefore they are still hunting that joy and peace which the world does not give. May God bless each of us that we may be the recipients of this great Gift that the twenty-fifth day of December, 1950, be a real Christmas day to us, and not just another holy day, is my prayer.

A NOTE OF THANKS

I wish to take this method to answer the many cards and letters from our friends. We thank those who sent to us gifts last Christmas, as well as those who are thinking of us this Christmas. Last year I received gifts on my birthday, January 6, from individuals, churches, and Woman's auxiliary societies.

I am too feeble to get out to preach, and my wife had a stroke sometime ago. We are at home alone, and I cannot leave my wife, she is so feeble. She is almost 75 years old, and I have been a minister of the gospel 49 years.

We are hoping to hear from many of our friends during the Christmas holidays and on my birthday. May God richly bless everyone is my prayer.

RECOGNIZING THE DIVINE

bring light and therefore it would be useless to look westward reflecting upon disappointments, sadnesses, misunderstandings and fears.

The East represented hope and faith in the new day. They looked for the Light of the World to come from where they knew the Father of Lights would send Him, in the direction where it is always known to appear. Yes, the wise men were wise because they knew the child Jesus would be born in the east and went in that direction and continued until they found him. Let us help to bring God's harvest fields into fruition by having a positive warm-hearted love and faith in those God wants to come into his kingdom. We would not be innkeepers delegating the sinners completely in the area of the hopelessly separated and forever lost without hope because it would be too cold and insulting a reception to the God spirit within them. Let us recognize the divine unborn Son of God our heavenly Father has entrusted them with and honor them by keeping watch by our prayers as the shepherds did, present our gifts of gold, prayer and love as the wise men did, and in so doing may God, this Christmas season, make us the kind of inn-keepers we would like to have received the Holy Family that Christmas so long ago.

A Note of Thanks and Appreciations

Since expressing thanks through the columns of the Baptist paper some days ago to those who had expressed to us sympathy over the loss of our dear companion and mother, a great many other persons and churches have since sent cards and letters of sympathy to us, expressing their sincere regrets of our loss and bereavement, we consider it fitting, therefore, to say in this way that we are grateful to each one for their words and sympathy and consolation. Many of these came from a distance, and from people whom we have never seen.

Again we express thanks, and say that we do hope each one will have a joyous Christmas and a happy New Year.

Rev. Wingate Hansley Elected as Orphanage Ass't.

Brother Wingate Hansley, pastor of Kenly Church for the past two years, has been recently elected as the assistant superintendent of the Middlesex Orphanage. He is quite a young minister and very active with the young people of his church. He will continue to hold services for the Kenly church for sometime, or until they can secure a preacher to take Brother Hansley's place. He has been doing a good work at Kenly and the church people liked him very much as pastor. They will miss him very much, but he will be able to do a splendid work at the orphanage, assisting the superintendent with the many duties and responsibilities of the institution.

Brother Hansley will be able to do a fine work with the children at the orphanage in leading them in their religious activities, League and Sunday School work, and helping them with their different programs of activities from time to time for the good of the Home. Everyone is expecting that Brother Hansley will make a most splendid assistant superintendent, and prove to be a noble leader of the children in the Home.

I take this means of expressing my sincere thanks to the Eastern Conference, for their nice offering and also to the Third Union Meeting district for their nice offering. I can't express my appreciation in words, but may the good Lord bless you all is my prayer. I haven't been home very long from the hospital.

Pray for your humble brother in Christ.

LIVING FOR JESUS

By REBECCA CANNON
Ayden, N. C.

When ebbs of life are presented,
When life seems too heavy to bear;
When earthly joys you have resented,
Just think of the eternal One there.

Do you become discouraged over minor affairs,
When the blues of gloominess you face?
Be prayerful, don't forsake One who cares,
Think of your Heavenly Father's Grace.

Tomorrow may be much too late to think,
Of Christ who died on the cross with a groan;
Another day you may certainly sink so deep
That your precious breath passes on.

It's time to think serious: what will it bring?
A land of torment and trouble and pain;
Or the land where the harmonious chorus sing.
Live in the sunlight, throw out the shadow and sing.

GROWING THROUGH FELLOWSHIP WITH CHRIST

(Lesson for December 31)

LESSON: John 15:1-5; Philippians 3:8-16

GOLDEN TEXT: Philippians 3:13-14

I. The Heart of the Lesson

1. Various means which help us to maintain our fellowship with Christ after we have attained it, and which contribute to our growth, have already been considered this quarter. In this last lesson it would be fitting for us to recall some of them, for these are not matters to which we should give assent and then dismiss from our thought as though the last word had been said. To maintain fellowship with Christ should be a chief concern of our lives, and upon this our spiritual usefulness depends. Unless we give continual attention to prayer and to the Word of God and day by day live as in his presence, in full obedience to him, our sense of his fellowship will become dim. Indeed, persistent neglect will eventually cause it entirely to disappear—Arnold's Commentary.

2. Jesus spoke of Himself as the true Vine, and His disciples as the branches. It is only reasonable to expect that the branches will bear fruit. For that purpose they exist. No one would be so foolish as to suppose that he could remove the branches from the vine and yet have them produce fruit.

3. If any branch fails to fulfill its purpose it is sure to be cut back to give it a new chance.

4. God not only desires that each one of us should bear fruit, but the we should bring forth "more fruit" and "much fruit."

5. Good works done without Christ are like the ornamental fruit hung on a Christmas tree.

6. Spiritual arithmetic sometimes produces great gains through what appears to be severe losses.

7. The only righteousness which is acceptable before God is that which we obtain through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.—Selected

8. It was through personal fellowship with Christ that Paul came to know him as the Saviour of lost souls. Paul came to know Christ by his spiritual experience with him, not by intellectual knowledge. Dr. James A. Robertson gives this explanation of these difficult words, "the power of his resurrection" in this sentence: "This is not the power which brought about his resurrection, but the power which his risen life gives to those that are in him, victory over the flesh, the assurance of immortality, a quickening and stimulating of the whole moral and spiritual being." Paul shared the sufferings of Christ through his daily life of cross-bearing and self-denial as he preached the gospel to the lost.—Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.)

9. Two things are declared here. First, there is a prize to be won. In the next place, that prize is definitely worth effort and perseverance. That prize is not salvation, for individuals do not win that; it is the gift of God. The prize of the heavenly calling of God through Christ Jesus is the crown of righteousness and added glory which are laid up for all those who love his appearing.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. Children of S. C. Visit the Darlington Church

The children of the F. W. B. Orphanage, Turbeville, South Carolina, were visitors at the Darlington Church on Sunday, December 3, at the eleven o'clock hour for the services. They were in charge of the morning service, and rendered a very splendid program. Each child stood and told who he was, and gave a testimony. The children told how grateful they were to be able to have such a good home in which to live, and to be cared for by good people. They said that they enjoyed the privilege of being able to go to Church and Sunday School, and to serve the Lord.

Following the closing of the morning program, the children were taken to various homes for dinner. Mr. Julius Vause, the superintendent of the orphanage, gave a timely and inspiring talk to the fathers and mothers at the morning service for the good of everybody present. The orphanage was started in September, 1949, with seven children received in the home. The home now has twenty children. Plans are now being made to build an addition to the home, which will cost around $10,000. When this is done, the home will be able to care for 50 children.

in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord . . . And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men" (Luke 2:8-14).

Again this teaches us that the only way to properly observe the birth of the Lord Jesus is by worshipping Him and making gifts in His name spreading of the gospel of the Lord and the helpful giving to those who are in need; not foolish giving to those who do not need, or the giving with expectation of getting gifts. Let us worship in the beauty of holiness and give God praise for sending Jesus into the world that through Him all can be saved who will believe in and accept God's Wonderful Gift to the world. "God so loved that He gave." Yes, He gave us a Saviour. May we worship that Saviour on Christmas.

"Son, go work to day in my vineyard" (Matt. 21:28).

"Let Us Go... Unto Bethlehem"

By Col. Richard T. Stretton

STUNNED and amazed, the shepherds heard, on that first Christmas Eve, the heralding of the King by the angelic host on the Judean hills. Then the angels were gone, and the shock and surprise gave way to glad anticipation. They must find the new King. And so they went, "ever unto Bethlehem."

There they found the streets empty; no crowd was milling about the town, seeking to catch a glimpse of the King, as they might have expected. There was only a simple Jewish maiden, bending over a little Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger.

Today let us go with the shepherds to gaze on this evidence of God's mercy, thankfully acknowledging His kingship and deity, and with humble and contrite hearts confessing our sins and accepting the gift of His love as our Saviour and Redeemer.

The writer of the book from which comes this article's title tells us there was one who "kept all these things and pondered them in her heart." Here we have a glowing example of the sacred art of holy meditation. Christmas is especially a time to ponder "these things," to meditate upon them, and to harmonize God's plan with the plan of our lives.

As we meditate upon God's goodness we discover the beauty and perfection of His design. The temptation is to neglect meditation and thrust from our slothful minds the things we do not understand; our modern world is in itself a discouragement to quiet thinking. But what a wealth of blessing there is for us when we "think on these things."

"Let us now go even unto Bethlehem." The shepherds must have examined their hearts as they gazed on the purity of Jesus. The test of true religion is self-examination. Without this the heart cannot be right with God, nor can the mind be set on things above. To be brought into intimate touch with the Almighty we must examine our hearts, thoughts and actions, and seek to know and do His will.

"Let us now go even unto Bethlehem." We may go with our fears—the fears that beset us, that darken our way, that dim the light of God—and they will flee away in the light of His presence.

We may go with our burdens and cares and failures, and come away with lighter hearts, for the great Bearer of all life's burdens will share them with us.

We may go "unto Bethlehem" when we are tempted to assepect an easier way, and learn from Him how to overcome—for we remember that He faced manhood with the same fierce temptation to be content with dazzling carnal glory, instead of winning His way to eternal renown through suffering and self-denial, as that which faces us.

Those who go with Him to Bethlehem must also bear His cross, for there is no other way to enjoy His presence. It is not he who shirks life's battles who will be accorded an abundant entrance into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, but he who overcomes the Tempter and endures to the end!

herds sent them on their joyous way with faith in their hearts, and by an unerring instinct it led them to Jesus.

There at the cradle they beheld the outcome of the eternal counsels of the Godhead, the immeasurable love of God, the miracle of grace.

There, in the early light of Christmas morning, they saw the Holy Child whose birth had been heralded by celestial visitants in harmonies unheard at any other time.

Those well-known plains and night skies of Bethlehem had become a cathedral for celestial choirs. And, lo! The common manger is the cradle of Deity, and their common day had become a red letter day because they had met with God.

A Christmas legend tells that when the shepherds who were watching their flocks heard the song of the angels, they all started at once for Bethlehem—all but one. A lamb had been taken sick, and one of the shepherds felt it his duty to care for it.

So, although he was bitterly disappointed, he stayed to nurse his charge while the others followed the Star.

Later on, the shepherd fell asleep, and in a wonderful vision he beheld the Holy Infant crowned as a real King.

And the Child King turned and smiled on the shepherd, assuring him that in tending an ailing creature he had done a good deed for the Savior of men.

What better deed is there than to lend a helping hand to an ailing human being!

Christmas is the time when hearts overflow with sympathy, affection and generosity.

Christmas is also a time for remembering—the sweet and tender memories of childhood—the more mature memories of adulthood. For many, in this sixth Christmas of the peace, there may be pain in remembering—but for all of us—whether we lost those dear to us during the World War II or during the present conflict—there should be a remembering that will never let us forget the cost at which a peace-time Christmas is purchased.

Our remembering should take the form of making ourselves worthy of the price that was and is being paid.

Christ is still the world's greatest Hope, as He was thousands of years ago. That we can remember with comfort, as the glory and immortality of another Christmas season now dawns upon the whole world.

There is not another time like Christmas. It is the light that will never go out; it pays in love, in honor and in tribute to the One who is the Light of the world. It is truly the gift of God.

Each year the Eternal Light shines brighter and brighter—pointing to the sure return of the One who will come back to earth again in God's own chosen time.

Now, looking back with the perspective of nineteen hundred years, we can say with assurance that no life has ever so tremendously affected the course of human history. Millions of persons have served Him joyfully to the point of danger and sacrifice, and, when necessary, have sealed their testimony to Him with their blood.

"Let us now go even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which is come to pass." And let us go in the Christmas spirit, making this lovely little prayer our very own:

O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us, we pray;
Cast out our sin, and enter in—
Be born in us today.

We hear the Christmas angels
The great glad tidings tell;
Oh, come to us, Abide with us,
Our Lord Immanuel.

The Great, Glad Tidings ---

By E. C. Hoffman

THE earth was engrossed in sleep when Christ was born. However, on the plains of Bethlehem a few shepherds were keeping watch over their sheep by night, when the angel of the Lord came upon them bringing glad tidings of great joy as they announced most convincingly the birth of Christ, the Savior.

This revelation of the angels to the shep-

NO ROOM FOR CHRIST

Churches Have Crowded Him Out

Ours now is a battle between modernism and fundamentalism. The fact of the supernatural, extraordinary and genuine virgin birth of the Son of God has been made by many in their criticism a laughing stock. In the face of the Old and New Testaments records as a well-known and established fact of his virgin birth modernists continue to deny this glorious truth. He is the only begotten Son of God (Jno. 3:16), from heaven (John 8:23), from God (John 8:42), sent from God (Gal. 4:4). God is the father of his physical nature (Heb. 1:5). "For which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son?" There is no incarnation of deity apart from the virgin birth. It is blasphemy and sacrilege when a man born of human parents proclaim himself to be God. If the pre-existence and virgin birth are denied, our Lord is reduced to the level of a religious genius removed but little above Socrates and other sages. Jesus is the product of something infinitely higher than mere nature, for He was "conceived of the Holy Ghost, born of the virgin Mary." His sinlessness, Saviourhood, resurrection, and return are bound up in the fact of his Holy Spirit conception and virgin birth. If one should deny one, he just as well deny all. If God cannot intercede and perform in one, he cannot in the others.

Formalism and a socialized gospel have taken place of the living Christ among many churches. Compromise with sin and modernism have environed us with lukewarmness and coldness. Christ is standing at the door of many churches knocking for admittance. There is no room for his bowels of mercy, his missionary spirit, his teaching, and the enlargement of his church.

Institutions of Learning Have Closed Their Doors Against The Christ

When our nation was in its infancy, our higher institutions of learning were founded in a religious and spiritual atmosphere. Had it not been for the love of religious freedom and the churches' concern for the spiritual enlightenment of our people, many of our old historical institutions would not have been in existence today. Now that modernism is the form of infidelity, atheism, evolution, and higher criticism has largely taken over we cannot but expect deterioration in the moral fabric of our social and economic structure, as well as it has in our spiritual phases of life.

The Bible has been thought of as a part of the curriculum. In many states the Bible has become almost a forgotten book. Much of this is due to the negligence of professed Christianity. If Baptists and all other Protestants are not mindful of the trend of our national affairs, what Bible reading is now permissible may be substituted for some sort of catechism or subversive ideology. The suppression of the reading of the Bible to a great degree has paved the way for canceling of religious broadcasts on certain radio stations. This may lead soon to something much more plightful.

Nations Have Crowded out the Christ

Just before his ascension Christ gave the commission to go and teach all nations (Matt. 28:19). His people were to be witnesses for him to the uttermost part of the earth (Acts 1:8). In the known world of the apostolic period the gospel had been preached to every creature under heaven, went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world (Col. 1:23; Rom. 10:18).

What can now be said about the picture? Has the gospel been preached to every creature under heaven today, and gone into all the world? Some nation has crowded him out or someone has failed to go. No doubt, in many areas Christ is not even mentioned in word or song.

Totalitarian forms of government and New Testament Christianity can not thrive together. Suppress the reading of the Bible and close the church doors, then one will readily see the tenacles of dictators reaching for their hold upon that nation. Dictators and Christ do not go hand in hand. There are very few nations that can be classed as a Christian nation.

Christ Left Out of the Season's Celebration

Will you be among the great number that will crowd out the Christ in the observance of what is known as his date of birth of the virgin Mary? So many people have quit spelling out the word 'Christmas'. The letter 'X' has become a substitute for the word 'Christ.' The algebraic expression carries the idea of an unknown number or quantity. Will Christ be the forgotten or unknown person in our observance of Christmas? How we need to go back to the Person of the Birth rather than the birth of a person! We need the lesson of the wise men! They came to see Him that was born king of the Jews! They brought gifts to Him and worshipped Him! They sought Him and found Him and finding Him the wanted nothing more. . . "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these (unfortunate, sick, prisoners, etc.) my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matt. 25:40). We cannot give of our means directly to him now; but we can do that which will be equivalent of doing something for Him. Let us not forget our church publications, orphanages, Bible College, missionaries, and church indebtedness. Let us be wise in our observance of the birth of the Prince of Peace and Wonderful Saviour. May we make room for Christ in our celebration. Too, may our celebration not follow such customs and traditions that will make us lose sight of the Christ.

Let Us Make Room for Him

There is just one way to make room for Him and that is just give Him complete right of way in your life. Let Him become our Master." That Christ may dwell in our hearts by faith, (Eph. 3:17). "But as many as received Him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:12).

The Lord wants to come into a clean heart for his abode. "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any an hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in unto him, and will sup with him, and he with me" Rev. 3:20). Lost friend, do not shut the door in the face of the Son of God. Open the door and let the Prince of Peace, the unspeakable gift, the wonderful Saviour, the Resurrection and Life, and the Hope of the world come in just now.

Christmas Tree

As ever there a more beautiful sight
 Then a lovely Christmas tree at night?
 Strung with colored lights that glow
 On a bank of imitation snow.

Shining artificial rain
 Neglected on the windowpane,
 Ornaments of red and blue,
 Gold and silver, green ones, too.

Shine from the highest bower there shines
 A gleaming star that reminds us why the Christmas tree so bright
 Cheers our homes and hearts tonight.

Mrs. R. B. Spencer Asleep in Jesus

Mrs. Cora Ellen Sasser Spencer, wife of Rev. R. B. Spencer, and Mother of Franklin and Ruby Lee, went to her eternal Home of peace and happiness on November 8, 1950, at 9:30 p. m. She was taken seriously ill on the night of November the seventh, and died in Greenville Memorial Hospital the night of November the eighth with a cerebral hemorrhage. The nurses and doctors, and the loved ones did all they could to relieve her, but death came after a few hours of suffering.

Mrs. Spencer joined Pleasant Hill F. W. Baptist Church, near her home in Wayne County, N. C., while she was a young girl, and was interested in her church and took an active part in her Sunday School. Prior to her marriage, she had been a public school teacher for several years.

On August 20, 1916, she married R. B. Spencer, of Hobucken, North Carolina, and to this union were born three children: R. B. Jr., deceased, Benjamin Franklin, and Ruby Lee. She was a devoted wife, a loving Mother, and a friend to everyone. She was always interested in her home life, and was active and helpful in the Woman's auxiliary of the Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church. She served as president of her auxiliary for several years, and loved the members dearly, co-operating faithfully at all times with them in the work of the Lord. Her Christian life and faithful labors for the cause of truth and righteousness among her friends and church members were always humble and true. Her departing has caused deep sadness among her loved ones, close friends, and her Woman's auxiliary, and members of her church.

Mrs. Spencer was born on December 7, 1885, near the town of Princeton, North Carolina, and was reared in Wayne County. Her life on earth was 64 years, 11 months, and 1 day. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sasser, deceased. Her living brothers and sisters are: Daniel and O. W. Sasser of Wilson, N. C.; Kirby Sasser of Snow Hill, N. C.; Mrs. Willie Pearce, Kenly, N. C.; Mrs. Essie Cramer, Goldsboro, N. C.; Mrs. Berta Hill, Clinton, N. C.; and Mrs. Rosa Rowe, Ayden, N. C. There are several nieces and nephews of the family.

Her funeral was conducted in the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church by her pastor, Rev. Bruce Barrow, of Snow Hill, N. C., assisted by Rev. R. B. Crawford, Greenville, N. C., and Rev. J. E. Wooten, Ayden, N. C. The interment was in Ayden Cemetery. The many flowers which were spread upon the mound of her resting place were lovely tokens of the love, and esteem which her friends and loved ones had for her. She is asleep in Jesus.

I cannot say, and I will not say

That she is dead, she is just away!

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand

She has wandered into an unknown land
 And left us dreaming how very fair

It needs must be, since she lingers there,
 And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
 For the old-time step and the glad return
 Think of her faring on, as dear

In the love of There, as the love of Here,

Think of her still as the same, I say,

She is not dead, she is just away.

The Family

Pearl Elizabeth Hodges Gone to Rest in Jesus

On May 21, 1950, the death angel visited the Hospital in Wilmington, North Carolina, and took to be with Jesus the soul of Pearl Elizabeth Hodges. Her stay here on earth was 8 years, 1 month, and 17 days. It was so very hard to give her up, but God saw best and took her to be with Him.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. C. Griffin at Ruth's Chapel. Her body was laid to rest in the Dixon Cemetery at Chocowinity, North Carolina, beneath a beautiful mound of lovely flowers.

Darling, you were patient in your suffering,
 No hand could cool your fevered brow;
 But God the Helper of the helpless
 Saw your pain and gave you relief.

A place is vacant in our home,
 And no one else can fill;
 But you had to go to glory
 Because it was God's will.

She leaves behind to mourn their loss her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hodges, one sister, Sandra, two brothers, Clyde and Graham, and one half-brother, Billy.

Written by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hodges, 302 Oaks Road, New Bern, N. C.

CHILDREN'S

STORYLAND

HER CHRISTMAS GIFT

Maude H. Kahl

Once upon a time on a certain Christmas night a little girl went with her parents and brother and sisters to see the exercises at the big brick church.

The house was all decorated with pine boughs, holly and bunting and most of all there was a beautiful tree—a large pine that reached almost to the ceiling of the church. Oh, how it thrilled her childish heart as she sat watching the lights, tinsel and numerous gifts that adorned its branches!

She enjoyed the recitations and songs of the children but her eyes were ever wandering to the curly-headed dolls dressed, some in blue, some in pink and others in white. One dolly in particular, with a coat and hood, caught her fancy. "Oh, if it might only belong to me!" she thought.

At length the presents were taken from the tree, the name on each read aloud, and were given to several small children to take to their owners. The pretty dolly was taken down, she listened eagerly for the name but it belonged to another little girl, sitting near by with her arms already full of gifts.

"Well one of them at least would be hers," she thought as she had never failed to receive a dolly at Christmas time. But she did not know that her father had just lost a lot of money in a business venture and there was nothing with which to buy presents as formerly, so to her great surprise and dismay the last thing was taken from the tree and her name had not been called once.

Almost too surprised and disappointed to speak at first as the truth dawned upon her she burst into tears. Her mother, burdened with other cares and worries, chided her and bade her stop crying. She dried her tears but it was a sad hearted little girl that walked homeward that Christmas night.

However before going to bed she set a pan on the table, as had always been the custom in the home, to receive her Christmas presents. She had never known a Christmas morning to dawn without finding a full pan.

Morning came and what do you think she found? A little candy, an orange and a ten cent story book. Her delight knew no bounds. Never had she enjoyed a Christmas present so much. The book was paper bound with colored pictures inside and out.

She followed her sister about the house for days and weeks always asking her to read the story to her until her sister would grow impatient and say, "You know every word now. Why should I read it to you again?"

Possibly if this little book had been received at another time together with other and better gifts she might not have cared so much for it, but it was so much better than receiving nothing at all that she was satisfied and delighted.

Likewise, little children, our Heavenly Father sometimes keeps from us things we very much desire that we may be glad and thankful for His every gifts and blessings.

There are many little boys and girls in our country who are given so much that they care very little for that which they have, and are always wanting more and greater things.

After we are deprived of much that we long for and some things we count necessary, we learn to thank God for the many common blessings that surround our lives.

When we think of the poor heathen and the starving children of the "Near East" we should thank God for health and home, food and warm clothing.

Paul says, "And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content." And "Godliness with contentment is great gain."

Come to the Lord Jesus, children, and you will be happy whether you have much or little.

Above all let us thank our Heavenly Father for the dear little Babe who was born in a manger—God's priceless Gift, His only Son.—Herald of Light.
