That was the foundation on which they had built their lives together. That was the future he wanted for his son. Two hours later, he had gazed upon the tiny features of his son. "They're not usually as cute as this one," the nurse smiled unprofessionally. Mark grinned agreement, while pride and humility engulfed him, and he stood there on a bit of holy ground and vowed he'd be the best comrade and father only God could help him to be.

And they had been close! But lately he didn't see much of the boy. There was something he couldn't put a finger on; as if, the father thought uneasily, the boy stood at a crossroad swaying first this way, then that.

"Adolescence!" Ruth's eyes were clear and tranquil. "Give him time—don't hold him too close. He has to begin standing on his own two feet. His self-respect demands it!"

How simple the years of babyhood as I nestled him in his soft blue sleepers in the safe valley of my lap, Mark thought. Or at 3, when a favorite well-worn story book was thrust with daily regularity in front of the evening paper: "Read to me, Daddy!" Then he had become the slim, brown 7-year-old who demanded: "Dad, rig up me'n Tom a tent!" Or a bubbling 10: "Will ya practice a few throws with me, Dad?" At 13 as he and his son had played football one evening, he had overheard the music of the words his son told some play fellows who joined them: "Didya see my dad's kick off? He can do anything!"

It had taken some doing to get close to the boy. He cut office work to a minimum, had foregone many leisure hours, but weariness vanished as if by magic in the boy's delighted companionship.

We've shared so much, I can't let it fall apart, he thought, feeling actual pain.

A horn shrilled, brakes screeched, and Mark knew without looking Jeffrey's bright yellow convertible had halted in their drive.

"Smart aleck!" Mark muttered, watching the lanky form of his boss' son clamber out of his car. "I don't like that intimacy. That boy has too much money, too much leisure; no consideration for others; and a disregard for reverence."

They had a noisy supper about the outdoor fireplace where the boys consumed innumerable hamburgers before running to the convertible and roaring off into the night. Before they left, Mark Jr. paused briefly, laying a hand on his dad's shoulder. "See ye', Dad. Don't wear out the hall carpet pacing. I'll be in early! 'Bye Mom!"

Mark grinned weakly as he met Ruth's nificant gaze. "He knows you worry out him."

Mark nodded. "I know he's good. It's what the wrong people can do to him I worry about."

"I'm concerned, too. We can forbid Mark to go out with Jeffrey, but he'll be resentful and more determined. I'm banking on his realizing how little they have in common."

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." I've held on to that. I couldn't bear it if we failed."

Ruth spoke surely: "We have molded his character to the best of our ability. We've taken our son to Sunday school and church; taught him life is nothing but emptiness without knowing Jesus Christ. Our prayers have ascended for him always. We've done what we could, weak and imperfect though it was. Now the rest is up to God. He will lead our son to choose right."

The clock chimed midnight. Rain splattered against the windows. Mark went into his son's room to close windows, chuckling as he went, "A hurricane wouldn't wake that boy!" The single bed was empty; the bedspread an unwelcome, unruffled smoothness in the glare of light. Sleep fled. The clock ticked on in the slow-moving night. At 2:30 Mark Jr.'s door opened and closed softly.

Morning came. The boy was preoccupied and silent. Mark got the distinct impression he wanted to ask him something but restrained himself. He bolted from the breakfast table after devotions muttering something about mowing the yard.

The doorbell rang. Mark was surprised to find his boss in the doorway. "Aren't you early? I won't be ready to leave for the office for awhile."

"This visit is purely personal," Mr. Hale answered gruffly.

"Come in and have a cup of coffee then," Mark invited.

"I'll come to the point at once," Mr. Hale said grimly. "Our sons had an accident last night. Jeffrey says your son was driving; kept begging to drive; then drove recklessly he crashed into the bridge railing west of town. He begged Jeffrey to carry the blame which, of course, he won't do."

Ruth's hand on the coffee urn trembled. Mark took it from her. "Is Jeffrey hurt?" he asked fearfully.

"Not a particle! The car is dented. Insurance will cover it. I can't understand why your son would act this way. You're such a level-headed fellow and you've always got such store by that son of yours. Some of the work you've allowed other architects at the firm to do, just so you could devote time to that boy of yours, would have made you vice-president long ago. Northcross, you're going to learn too late business will give you less disappointments and more affluence than sons!"

Suddenly anger flared hot in Mark. What did this man know of his son? Outwardly calm, he accompanied him to the door. He patted Ruth's shoulder. "Our son hasn't done anything dishonorable," he said evenly, "there's an explanation somewhere."

"Thanks, Dad," Mark Jr. choked from the doorway.

"I'll come upstairs with you while you change. You can drive me to the office," he put his arm about the boy's slim shoulders.

The boy sat on the bed, tense, ill-at-ease, tears glinting on the edges of his lashes. "I don't know what to say, Dad."

"Tell me what's in your heart as you always have."

The boy choked up. Mark Sr. glanced away until he composed himself. He caught sight of the papers littering his son's desk. "Who did these blueprints?" he asked excitedly.

The story tumbled out—a dream of model cottages for a new development; modern, inexpensive homes for factory workers in that area instead of the low-class tenements they were forced to live in.

The father nodded. "I talked to a realtor the other day. The land can be bought reasonably. Say, these sketches are good! I think this will work. Tell me, how do you know so much about architecture?"

"Haven't I had it drilled into me always?" the boy teased. "Not that I mind! I'm waiting for the day I'm out of school and can be an architect, too."

Mark Sr. reached for the phone. "I'm leaving the firm," he said. The years' dim dream began to take on flesh and blood outlines.

"Did he put you out because of me?" the boy asked belligerently.

"No. This move is for your future and mine."

Hope flared in the boy's eyes. "Now I can tell you, Dad."

Mark Sr. listened to a night's ride of terror. Jeffrey Hale had crashed the car and pled for Mark to take the blame. "My old man warned me no more mishaps. You take the rap or I'll see your dad loses his job." "I was in a spot knowing how you love your work. But you and Mom have always drilled right from wrong in me. I couldn't figure out how to tell you."

"But you would have," his dad dialed the office number.

Mr. Hale sputtered, left the phone, had it out with his son, and came back with profuse apologies. "We'll make it up to him. Tell him he's invited to the seashore with us—a month's vacation, expenses paid.

Northeross, I can't understand why my son would act so yellow, brand an innocent boy—after all I've given him."

"You've given him everything but yourself," Mark said gently. "You've invested in your business—so that's your harvest. I've invested most in my son. I expect to be repaid a thousandfold over the joy I've already had. I'm leaving the firm, Hale."

"You're a Christian, Northeross. Can't you forgive and forget?"

"Freely! But the time has come to go out on my own and get established so I can offer my son a partnership when he's out of college. He has some plans ready for me to develop right now!"

"Dad! I'm glad you trusted me. I was flattered by Jeffrey and that slick buggy of his, but after seeing some of the stuff he did last night, I made up my mind even before the wreck we had to go separate ways."

"I know you pretty well," his dad grinned, "but you did have me worried awhile." Then he told him about the seashore vacation.

"Not on your life! I'm staying here to engineer the drive to get more young people interested in our youth meetings. I'm putting my heart into that this summer. If Jeffrey is around, he'll hear from me, too. You see, Dad, I want to be like you—I want to build in the right direction. I want Christ to be the center of my life."

Mark left his boy's room, his heart ablaze with joy. Quickly he told his wife. "'A wise son maketh a glad father.' That's me! Will you join me in giving thanks, Ruth?"

Together they dropped to their knees and lifted their hearts upward.—Gospel Herald.

Dad

by Eileen M. Hasse

When evening comes and darkness falls,
When things look bleak, indeed,

When e'en my dog is deaf to calls
And fright has planted seed,
I call to good old Dad.

Oh, things go wrong and folks don't see
The things I meant to do;
A fellow's heart is never free,
It's always in a stew,
Except when I'm with Dad.

There's Mother, Sis, and Brother Joe,
There's Pastor Brown and Ken,
But there is only one to know
Just how and why and when;
It's Daddy, good old Dad.

And when I'm big and grown up tall
And strong as any, then,
I'll be the one to hear the call
Of my own little men;
Just like my good old Dad.

—Junior Challenge.

NEWS NOTES

Miss Wanda Johnson Named Finalist

Miss Wanda Johnson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Johnson of Mount Olive, has been named a finalist in the 1960 National Merit Scholarship Corporation program. She was one of 10,000 finalists in the nation out of 550,000 high school students who participated in the testing program.

Valedictorian of the 1960 graduating class of Mount Olive High School, Miss Johnson has registered to attend Mount Olive College after which she plans to enter Duke University. Her father is business manager of Mount Olive College.

Children's Home Report For May, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, reports the following receipts for May, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual, auxiliary or organization contributing, but totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt:

GENERAL FUND
Albemarle Conference	$ 150.54
Blue Ridge Association	42.34
Cape Fear Conference	159.05
Central Conference	1,022.40
Eastern Conference	1,189.92
French Broad Association	19.76
Jack's Creek Association	11.62

Pee Dee Association	21.59
Piedmont Association	116.01
Western Conference	1,036.50
Miscellaneous	530.67

ANNIVERSARY PROGRAMS

Eastern Conference	152.75
Western Conference	42.30
Albemarle Conference	70.37
Cape Fear Conference	85.00

KITCHEN FUND

Eastern Conference	31.00
Central Conference	20.00
Western Conference	10.25

CLOTHING FUND

Western Conference	40.00
--------------------	-------

BED SPREADS

Eastern Conference	7.00
--------------------	------

CENTRAL CONFERENCE BUILDING FUND

Central Conference	25.00
--------------------	-------

Total May Receipts	$4,784.07
--------------------	------------

Plymouth, N. C., Church Announces Revival Services

The Rev. Joe Ange will be the evangelist for revival services at the Plymouth, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church beginning June 20 and continuing through June 24. Mr. Ange is pastor of the Central Free Will Baptist Church of Royal Oak, Michigan.

The pastor of the Plymouth Church, the Rev. Bobby Adcock, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Evangelist Bobby Jackson Conducting Revival

The Rev. Bobby Jackson, evangelist, is conducting a revival at the Milbournie Free Will Baptist Church, located on Highway 264, six miles west of Wilson, North Carolina, which began June 8 and will continue through June 19.

Everyone is invited to attend the remainder of these services which begin each night at eight o'clock.

Coming Events

June 19—Father's Day
July 4—Independence Day
August 14-19—College Youth Conference, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

Rev. S. T. Shutes

The Georgia Youth Camp will be held at Camp Mt. Bethel near Ashburn, Georgia June 26—July 1. The theme for the week which was selected by the camp board, will be "Youth Faces Life." The Rev. S. T. Shutes will be the camp director. Some of the workers in the camp will be Mrs. Paul Irvin, Mrs. Wallace Franks, the Rev. H. L. Knighton and the Rev. Paul Irvin. There will be others working in the camp, however, their names are not available at this time.

Three books which the director has decided to use for study during the camp are "Never a Dull Moment," "What Every Christian Girl Should Know," and "What Every Christian Boy Should Know." Other features of the camp will be supervised recreation, singing and preaching.

The cost of the camp is $7.00, which includes food and insurance protection. This insurance will cover you from the time you leave home until you return. Those attending are requested to bring bed linen and a blanket since it will be cool at night and also money for the study books since they will be profitable for study at home.

The director, Mr. Shutes, states: "We will be looking for you on Sunday evening June 26, for a full week of fun, study, prayer, singing and Christian fellowship."

Third Annual Meeting of Michigan State Association

The Third Annual Session of the Michigan State Association of Free Will Baptists will convene with the Free Will Baptist Temple, 19951 Dequindre, Detroit, Michigan, June 17, 18, 1960. The following the planned program for this meeting:

Friday Evening Session

- 10:30—Singing, Led by Local Director
- Prayer
- Welcome, Rev. G. E. Butler
- Response, Rev. Jas. M. Allbritten
- Announcements, Moderator
- Introductory Message, Rev. Dewey Fraley
- Benediction

Saturday Morning Session

- 10:30—Singing, Led by Local Director
- Devotions, Rev. J. B. Varney
- Receiving of Letters and Seating of Delegates
- Prayer of Consecration
- Reading of Rules of Decorum
- Appointment of Committees
- Reports:

Treasurer, Brother Clarence L. Caudill

National Foreign Mission Board, Rev. Mark M. Lewis

National Home Mission Board, Rev. William Hill

Bible College Alumni, Rev. Joe G. Ange

11:00—Worship Service

- Singing
- Prayer
- Messenger, Rev. Milton Hollifield
- Benediction
- Lunch

Saturday Afternoon Session

- 1:30—Singing, Led by Local Director
- Devotions, Rev. Leo Worley
- Reports
- Finance Committee
- Business Committee
- Nominating Committee
- Election of Officers
- Unfinished Business
- Adjournment

Saratoga, N. C., Church Announces Summer Revival

The Rev. Clarence F. Bowen, pastor of Shady Grove Free Will Baptist Church of Dunn, North Carolina, will be the guest speaker during the summer revival at Saratoga, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church, beginning June 19 and continuing throughout the week.

For several years Mr. Bowen has served as devotional director of the National Free Will Baptist League Board. A pioneer of the Free Will Baptist league work, he is the author of a number of manuals. As a pastor, he has served congregations in Tennessee and North Carolina.

The Rev. Fred S. Powers, pastor of the Saratoga Church, extends a warm welcome and invites everyone to attend the nightly services which will begin at eight o'clock. Special music will be presented by various singing groups.

Revival Services at Mt. Olive Church

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Willis

The Rev. Frank Willis of Panama City, Florida, will be the evangelist for revival services at Mt. Olive Free Will Baptist Church, Potterville, Georgia, beginning July 4. The public is cordially invited to attend these services and enjoy good singing and gospel preaching.

The Rev. Warren Owens is pastor of the Mt. Olive Church.

The Rev. Frank Davenport Closes Two-Week Revival

The Rev. Frank Davenport, evangelist, closed a two-week revival meeting at the Original Free Will Baptist Mission in Fayetteville, North Carolina, recently. A Sunday school rally was held with the regular morning service, and lunch was spread. Special singing was enjoyed in the afternoon.

The Rev. A. Frank Williamson, pastor of the mission, extends a special invitation to everyone to visit the mission.

National Superannuation Report for May, 1960

The following is the financial report of the National Superannuation Board of Free Will Baptists for month ended May 31, 1960, as submitted by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. K. V. Shutes:

Cash on Hand, May 1, 1960 $3,324.56

Receipts

Cooperative Plan of Support States Credited as Follows:

Alabama	$ 2.06
Arkansas	7.81
California	14.14
Florida	2.73
Georgia	11.31
Illinois	17.01
Missouri	28.12

North Carolina	5.71
New Mexico	3.57
Oklahoma	17.44
Tennessee	6.98
Texas	4.75
Virginia	1.79

From States:

Georgia	26.42
North Carolina	25.53
South Carolina	4.96
Tennessee	37.21
Virginia	5.06

Other Receipts

From Insured on Premiums 109.43

Total Receipts 332.03

Total to Account For $3,656.59

Disbursements

Ministers' Life and Casualty

Union for Premiums on

Insured $183.54

Secretarial Service 60.00

Postage 4.00

Total Disbursements 247.54

Balance in Treasury, May 31, 1960 $3,409.04

Cragmont Membership Increasing

The Cragmont Booster Band Drive for June is being met with good response, according to Mrs. L. E. Ballard, chairman of the drive. The plans called for the solicitation of annual members for the Cragmont Booster Band upon the basis of an annual membership gift of $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for young people under 20.

If you have not yet joined this drive, you are urged to do so immediately. Mrs. Ballard states that if you do not have a representative working in your church in behalf of this drive, you may send the memberships and fees directly to her. Her address is P. O. Box 338, Scotland Neck, North Carolina.

Virginia State Association To Meet at Norfolk

The Virginia State Association of Free Will Baptists will convene at Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, June 17, 18, 1960. The following program has been planned:

Friday Morning Session

10:00—Song Service and Devotions

10:15—Welcome

—Moderator's Remarks

10:25—Reading of Letters

—Registering of Ministers

—Seating of Delegates

10:50—Recognition of Visiting Messengers

(Continued on page fourteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Is every sin pardonable?—
Amos Jones, Louisville, Kentucky.

ANSWER: The fact that divine mercy extends to the uttermost cannot be denied in the light of many passages of Scripture found throughout the Bible; and yet, there are other Scriptures that seem to indicate that a man may become so self-willed in the rejection of God and God's way of mercy and grace that he renders himself helpless to appropriate the means of grace and mercy provided in the gift of Christ Jesus for our sins. This gift having been made by both the son and the Father under the control of the Holy Spirit. "Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (Matthew 20:28). (See Mark 10:45; 1 Timothy 2:3-6.) "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil" (Matthew 4:1). God's invitation in this, as in all other ages set forth in His Word, is to the whosoever will may come. (See Revelation 3:20; 22:17; compare Isaiah 1:8.) The unpardonable sin, spoken of so frequently in the early church, is generally thought of as being the attributing of the words of the Holy Spirit to the devil or the powers of darkness. According to Jesus' own words, this sin may not be forgiven here in this life or anywhere else. "Wherefore I say unto you, All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men. And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come" (Matthew 12:31, 32). These to whom Jesus spake, undoubtedly, were unsaved people that had well established themselves as Jesus' enemies and were both in will and purpose dedicated to His downfall and final destruction. (See Matthew 2:22-30.) In the book of Hebrews, we find what seems to be just as clear teaching that I understand to indicate that a saved man may become guilty of the same sin and thereby bring upon himself the same end. "For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, And have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame" (Hebrews 6:4-6). These, according to Verse 6, ". . . crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh and put him to an open shame."

"For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, But a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace? For we know him that hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall judge his people. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God" (Hebrews 10:26-31). In the light of the whole context, it seems that identical truth is being taught in both of these passages from Hebrews, viz., that those who have been saved by the blood of Christ as ministered by the Holy Spirit as seen in 6:4 and 10:29 for such to fall away (must do it by both attitude and deliberate effort and contrary to the convicting power of the Holy Spirit) "crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh and put him to an open shame." According to 10:26 this would be willful sin and sin in the full light of revelation, a time when the Holy Spirit is here as a willing guide into all the truth as Jesus proposed to send Him. (See John 14:16, 17, 26; 16:7-15.)

When it comes to the divine unfolding of revelation, the Holy Spirit is the last person of the Godhead to be so clearly set forth in the fullness of His present personal manifestation. When Jesus spoke the words to His unsaved enemies in Matthew 12 as quoted above, the Holy Spirit had not been so clearly revealed as the third person of the blessed Trinity. He had not made such an appearance as seen in Acts 2. He had not so empowered and energized the followers of Christ that they forgot their fears, speaking boldly in the worthy name of their Lord and Master. "And when the day of Pentecost was full come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance. . . . And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams. And on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy" (Acts 2:1-4, 17, 18).

In addition to this glorious manifestation of the Holy Spirit in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost where probably most of those to hear were Jews from various parts of the world, He makes a glorious revelation upon and among Gentiles of the town of Caesarea. "While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word. And they of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 10:44-45). These with many other definite manifestations of the Holy Spirit, whom the sending in fulfillment of Jesus' parting promise to His followers makes this sin, when committed by either the saved or the unsaved, indeed, a grievous one, when the individual from either group sets himself up as the champion denier of and propagator of unbelief on the part of one from either class, the saved or the unsaved, a strenuous effort must be exerted for him to accomplish such a fete. It is said of the saved, that in doing this he turns from the holy commandment, crucifies to himself the Son of God afresh and put him to an open shame, trodden underfoot the Son, or God . . . counted the blood of the covenant where with he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace. The unsaved must, according to Matthew 12, blaspheme the Holy Ghost before he brings himself to such a certain doom; whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him. Since the Hebrew Christian, to whom the book of Hebrews was written, had had

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

HOW GREAT IS GOD?

"For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone. . . . For great is thy mercy toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell" (Psalm 86:10, 13).

Not too long ago a friend asked me to explain to him just how great God is. I thought that my friend had asked a very easy question to answer, so I proceeded to the experience of knowing the power of the Holy Spirit in the power by which He ministers the new birth and the saving grace of Christ through the blood; the author can write in more detail as to the meaning of this awful sin that Jesus could speak to those who claimed to be saved from the law, but had not experienced this marvelous grace that operated in the Hebrew Christians when Hebrews was written.

Finally, when dealing with an unsaved person, whether or not he thinks he has committed the unpardonable sin, it is our duty to be instant in season and out of season and preach the Word. We are to make the plan of salvation by grace alone clear to such a person as Scripture itself teaches as we keep the many promises God's Word affords before him; we should pray for him and with him, if circumstances allow. This is the only certain way of being conscious that we have discharged our whole duty. When it comes to our duty in dealing with wayward Christians the requirements are quite the same, except in this case, we must make it clear that all sin must be forsaken and confessed including the sin of omission, of which so many of us are more or less guilty. The omission of regular, consistent prayer and Bible reading and of living the kind of life that testifies for Christ as we are taught by the Bible to do is the most frequent cause of backsliding and needs to be dealt with in a sympathetic, definite, Scriptural manner.

tell him that the greatness of God can be told in three words—omnipresent, omniscient and omnipotent. Then I gave him the meaning of each of these words and Scripture references to show that each is true about God.

Omnipresent, I pointed out, means that God is so great that He is everywhere at all times. Then I turned to Psalm 139 and began reading at Verse 7, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee."

Omniscient, I tried to explain, means that God is so great that He knows all things. The verses we considered here were: "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world" (Acts 15:18); "And thou, Solomon my son, know thou the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind: for the LORD searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts: if thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever" (1 Chronicles 28:9).

Then we considered the last of the three words, Omnipotent, which means that God is so great that He has all power. Job said of Him, "I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee" (Job 42:2). Jesus said, ". . . All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth" (Matthew 28:18).

Even after I had taken all the pains I possibly could to answer his questions, he seemed bewildered and confused, so I asked him if he understood and was satisfied? His reply to that was that he had hoped for an answer that would be in the language that he could understand and that would help him to find God. Well, to this I will confess that I was somewhat stunned and promised that I would see what I could do. The next weeks were taken up with some real prayerful study and careful searchings for something that would be what his soul was longing for.

Next week I will give you some of my findings on the subject, which, when presented to my inquirer, seemed to give him the understanding and satisfaction he was seeking.

Think on the two verses that follow:
"Talk no more so exceeding proudly;

Indelible Imprints

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

OBITUARIES

from the Cape Fear Conference of North Carolina

ELDER ALLEN FOWLER

Elder Allen Fowler was a native of Harnett County, North Carolina, and was born February 4, 1832.

At the age of 18 years he professed religion at Prospect Church. At the age of 23 he was ordained as deacon, and was licensed to exhort by the church at Pleasant Grove. He was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry in the month of May, 1862. He was a faithful worker in the ministry and a successful instrument in the Master's cause in turning many souls from nature's darkness unto the glorious light and liberty of the Lord Jesus Christ.

He was loved by a large multitude of people, especially his brethren in Christ who gathered together to hear him preach. The manner in which he preached was so effective that he gained the confidence of the people, which he held until death. Brother Fowler leaves three sons and one daughter to mourn the loss of their devoted and Christian father, and a host of friends to sympathize with them in their bereavement.

Remember our blessed Saviour's promise, he that is faithful until death shall receive a crown.

TIME

The only person who save time is the one who spends it well.—Alabama Baptist.

One of the greatest mistakes a man can make is to think he isn't going to make any.

It is easier to adopt the weaknesses of a friend than his good qualities.

Let not arrogance come out of your mouth: for the LORD is a God of knowledge, and by his actions are weighed" (1 Samuel 2:3).

"Great is our Lord, and of great power: his understanding is infinite" (Psalm 147:5).

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Albemarle District Conference A Success

The Albemarle Conference of North Carolina sponsored a missions conference, May 22-29, with all the member churches cooperating. There were fifty-six services held within the time of the conference. The meetings were arranged in co-operation with the state and national missions boards. The Rev. Allen B. Bryan and the Rev. Rashie Kennedy of the North Carolina State Board were active in the meetings.

National Home Missions services were held in the following churches: Sidney, Oak Grove, Hickory Chapel, Sound Side, Free Union, Shiloh and Grace of Greenville. The total cash and pledge offerings from these services was $474.57.

I think the ministers in the Albemarle District have done a great good for their local churches and for the missions work in general by arranging the conferences.

Any church, district conference or association that would like to sponsor a missions conference may write our office for details and materials to be used. We have color slides, films, and can furnish missionary speakers.

In most cases a missionary conference will raise the budget for missions in a given district within one week—in most cases more will be given in a week's conference than will be given in a whole year otherwise.

It was a real time of fellowship for me to be in the Albemarle churches, to meet so many wonderful Free Will Baptist people, and find a real spirit of concern among the preachers.

Homer E. Willis, General Director
National Home Missions Board

An Open Letter

Dear Friends:

I notice that for the first five months of this year our offerings are off about 10%, and this in the light of the fact that more missionaries are on our fields than ever before, and more are waiting to go than ever before.

Please speak in our behalf at every opportunity and represent us at all the meetings you possibly can. Talk National Home Missions wherever you go. We are the only agency in the denomination with the responsibility of beginning new churches in the areas where there are no Free Will Baptist churches. We are the only agency sending missionaries into Alaska, Hawaii, Old Mexico, Canada, New England, and the other fields such as Washington, D. C., and among the foreign-speaking people of the United States.

You may have funds which you could give for National Home Missions now. If so, please send what you can this month so it can be reported at the national meeting in California. I trust to see you at the national—be sure to visit our booth. We will have something different this year!

I think one of the best ways to promote missions is through a missionary conference. Why not plan such a meeting in your state this year? I shall be happy to furnish you materials and speakers. I find this to be one of the best ways to get missionary support.

Brother, we must do more for National Home Missions, and get more churches started in this country, or the rest of our work will soon be at a standstill. We must have more local churches to support the other causes. In all the new fields where we have started work, you will notice the churches support the entire program.

Cordially,
H. E. Willis
General Director

Greetings from the Crossroads of The Pacific!

"We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners: . . ." (Psalm 20:5).

It seems only a few days ago that we were working on last month's newsletter. Time certainly has a way of getting lost.

We are happy to report that the three of us are in the best of health, and the Lord is continuing to bless our efforts. For the month of April we averaged 38 in Sunday school and Sunday morning worship. We had a high of 46 on Easter Sunday. The attendance for the first two Sundays of May was below average. Our contacts and ministry among the military personnel are increasing daily. It is unusual for a day and night to pass without one or two homesick sailors or soldiers visiting us. We were able to lead one of our soldiers to dedicate his life to the Lord. We received a letter from a sailor's mother this week and she was thanking God that we were here to help her sailor boy. I quote part of her letter: "I want to write you and thank you for writing to me so promptly. Yes, I got a letter from Tommy the next day after I got yours . . . I believe the Lord sent you that way for a purpose and my son says he is getting a lot of help from you and your family . . . he said you keep him going the way I wanted him to go, so I will say thank a million times and may God be with you and your family . . ." Such letters as this one, that we receive from time to time from the family, girl friend, or friends of the service men, make us know that our efforts are not in vain. Please pray that God will give us the physical strength to keep up the pace.

The offerings sent in last month for the Hawaiian missions was only $169.38. Needless to say that we were very disappointed. We appreciate the fact that the national office took $70.62 out of the general fund to make our check for the month $240.00; however, this $70.62 must be paid back to the general fund from the Hawaiian account. Therefore, we urge you to do something special this month for Hawaii and be sure to earmark your offerings for the Hawaiian Fund or else we do not receive them.

Many of our friends send our mail to our old address and about one half of the mail that we get the post office advises us to tell everyone our correct address; therefore, this urgent plea: Please change our address in your files, program books, etc. to P. O. Box 1201, Waipahu, Hawaii, and so our correct address is always given on our stationary and envelopes.

This month we would like for you to meet Bill Ford by way of testimony. Brother Ford and his family have certainly been a big help in the work here. It is with regret that we have to lose him because his ship leaves this week for the South Pacific however Bill has grown so much spiritually that he will be a witness for the Lord wherever he goes. This is, I believe, one of the ministries of our mission; that is, to perfect the saints (Christian service men) to the work of the ministry in various parts of the world.

"My name is William Ford, I am in the navy, currently aboard ship in Pearl Harbor (continued on page thirteen)

NOTES

|| A
|| N
|| D
||

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

A HEAVEN-BORN REVIVAL

"If you desire an outpouring of the Holy Spirit in your district, four conditions must be observed. They are essential—mark the word, essential. Is there any sin in your heart that you have not confessed to God? Drop your knees at once! Your past must be left away and cleansed. Is there anything in your life that is doubtful—anything that you cannot decide whether it is good or bad? Away with it. There must not be a speck of a cloud between you and God. Have you forgiven everybody? If not, don't expect forgiveness for your own sins; you will not get it.

"Do what the Spirit prompts—obedience, prompt, implicit, unquestioning obedience to the Spirit. Better offend ten thousand friends than quench the Spirit of God.

"A public confession of Christ as youraviour is a must. There is a vast difference between profession and confession. You praise the Father, praise the Son; why do you not praise the Holy Spirit? You speak of Him as something! The Spirit has been smothered in hundreds of our churches, or maybe even thousands would be more correct. When the fire burns it purifies; and when purified, you are useful in the work of the Lord."—Evan Roberts. (The above tract can be secured from the Salvation Tract Society, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.)

It is a fact that the Holy Spirit is so quenched that in many churches if an old-fashioned Christian says, "Amen," the congregation turns their eyes in the direction from which the amen came. I will admit that many useless amens are said in many places and with some people. Years ago, I was preaching a sermon at our state convention and made the assertion, "People are going to hell believing about Christ." Some fellow in the congregation said real loud, "Amen!" Again I said, "The first cause of ill fame in the Philippine Islands was set up by Americans." Again this fellow said, "Amen!" I believe in amens, but I believe that they should come in the right place and for the right cause. Just continually saying, "Amen," does not help in the understanding of that which is being said. I say, "Amen," when I feel that the Holy Spirit prompts the assertion. As I have often said about Christians shouting, I can say about amens: Do not quench the Spirit; let it come of its own accord.

DAILY CHRISTIANITY

"Hear instruction, and be wise, and refuse it not. Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the post of my doors, For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the LORD. But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul: all they that hate me love death" (Proverbs 8:33-36). Note the word, daily. Christianity is not a thing to possess one day and the next day put under a bushel. Some folk seem to think that it is a mighty good thing to get hold of during the revival meeting, but it soon dies. Sometimes we have forty and fifty decisions, but get only five or six to unite with the church and follow Jesus daily.

Christ said, when He had called the people to Him with His disciples also, ". . . Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Mark 8:34). I find, upon the authority of the Word of God, that men cannot follow Christ one day and the devil the next, and get by with it. Let me repeat, the Christian life is one of persevering. As Brother W. B. Everett used to say, "Keep on keeping on." You cannot be saved today and lost tomorrow, saved the next day and lost the next.

I saw a lady in the hospital last year and, according to my custom, I inquired about her soul. I asked if she was saved. Her answer was, "No, I have been saved twice, but I am not saved now." This talk brought out the subject, "How many times can a man be born of the flesh?" Certainly not but one time! When death comes to the flesh, it cannot come back in another birth. Man can get very sick and sorely afflicted, and be made well again. However, when he dies, he is dead so far as this life is concerned. A saved person can get way down in sin; but if a spark of the first love is there, and if he repents, confessing his sins to God through Christ, his sins are forgiven and his full love renewed. Here is proof: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9).

"My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world" (1 John 2:1, 2). Again let me say, "We are born of the flesh."

Jesus said, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" (John 3:6). So there is one birth of the flesh and one birth of the Spirit. The Spiritual birth makes us children of God. Then it is up to us to be obedient to the Spirit, and ". . . walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John 1:7).

God will not fellowship with us unless we walk in the light as He is in the light. He will chastise us every time we commit a sin. One sin will hold us from the joy of salvation until that sin is confessed to God. The psalmist said, "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me" (Psalm 66:18). The only way to get back in fellowship with God is to confess and forsake our sins. David had to cry out and confess his sin before he could ever rejoice, saying, "Restore unto me the joy of my salvation: . . ." (Psalm 51:12). David had lost the joy of God's salvation. He was an unhappy man.

No true believer in Christ can be happy with unforgiven sin in his life. Sin brings condemnation—so even one unforgiven sin makes us miserable. I find a lot of unhappy Christians. I have had men to say to me, "I do not enjoy my church life as I did years ago." When I investigate, I find that they have let business, politics, family relations and many other things separate them from fellowship with God. Sometimes I find a spark of envy against others who have brought them to a low ebb, and they are not men enough to go to the persons, confess their sins, and get right with one another.

If there is an ill feeling in your heart toward another, you will never be happy until you have confessed your sin and gotten right with your brother. Get your Bible and turn to Matthew 18 and read Verses 15-19, and be a real Christian and no longer a hypocrite.

"Why Didn't You Hurry?"

A missionary on the western prairie tells us that he was coming home one night, and his little boy came running through the long grass to meet him. Suddenly the lad disappeared. When the father got near he heard a gurgling cry, and found his little boy had fallen into an old wall. He was barely in time to save him. When the little fellow came to himself, he looked up and said, "O Papa, why didn't you hurry?" That cry made the father a missionary.

Why don't we hurry? "We are dying," said a poor heathen chief; "why don't you send the gospel faster?"—A. B. Simpson.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

FOR POP—WITH LOVE

by Virgie F. Shockley

TOM BOUCHER, a long-legged eleven-year-old, walked along with his hands thrust deep in the pockets of his "high water" levis. He fingered the card in his pocket, careful not to bend it. He tilted his sun-bleached yellow hair and looked upward in a cottonwood at a nesting robin.

Today was the day!

He took the card out of his pocket, and walked along examining it proudly. It was an India ink sketch he had made himself. It showed a long lean man with heavy black eyebrows stretched out in a reclining chair. He was watching TV, comfy in Romeo slippers with a steaming cup of coffee on the end table beside him.

It said: "For Pop—With Love."

This afternoon he would buy the chair, put the tag on it, and have it delivered tonight.

He fingered the wad of money in his other jeans pocket. Forty dollars, earned fifty cents at a time.

Long before school was out, just as soon as the snow was off the ground, Tom had started searching all his spare time for the arrowheads. He had found a sandy slope, not far west of town, which must have been an old Indian campsite, for the arrowheads and spearheads were plentiful there. He had only to walk along with his neck crooked until he felt it would never straighten out again, searching the ground. Soon, he was bound to spot one.

Then, having a natural flair for drawing, Tom had sketched on 3x5 white cards a picture of an Indian squatted on the ground flaking an arrowhead out of flint with a deer antler. He mounted an arrowhead on each card. He kept them on a tray near the soda pop in his Uncle Chet's filling station. The tourists snapped them up at fifty cents apiece.

Something nice for Pop. That was what he had in his mind from the first. And then he saw the reclining chair, which could be adjusted to any position. When he had seen that in the furniture store window, he knew what he wanted to buy. Poor Pop was too long and gaugling to fit comfortably into other furniture.

He thought of his brothers and sister and of how surprised they would be when they saw his gift tomorrow. He thought especially of little Denny, just seven and a small carbon copy of Tom himself. Tom whistled a little, thinking about Denny. He was Denny's hero, and after tomorrow. . . .

He stood looking in the furniture store window for a minute—looking at the cream colored plastic reclining chair he was going to buy. He could just picture his father sitting there, relaxing after a day's work.

"Hello there, Tom! How is your mother?"

Tom turned and saw that it was Mrs. Martin speaking to him. She was a little dumpy woman. Always cheery even though she was a widow raising four small children. Mom always said Mrs. Martin was the most admirable woman in town. She could always find time for church work, even though she baked and iron for a living. Mom said it was such a sad thing that the woman had no training for other jobs.

Tom smiled into the bright blue eyes now and said, "Mom is fine, Mrs. Martin. I'll tell her you asked."

"You do that!"

Tom looked at the little family as they walked away. The two older children, were pulling a toy wagon loaded with neatly iron sheets. All four of the kids had on worn out, faded sneakers. A lump came to Tom's throat for them. How sad it must be to have no father on Father's Day.

Impulsively, he ran a few steps and caught up with them.

"Mrs. Martin!" He worked the roll of money out of his tight jeans pocket, and hurriedly counted off half of it. "Here's something I want you to have. Buy shoes or whatever the children need. I earned it myself, and I want you to have it!"

"Why, bless you, Tom! But I really shouldn't . . ."

"No. I want to give it!" He turned and walked quietly away.

But by the time he reached the corner and waited for the signal light to change, he regretted his impulsiveness. Pop's chair! What had got into him?

He turned and started back to ask her to return the money. But he saw the family, walking along talking excitedly, happily. And he knew that his twenty dollars were gone. He didn't have nerve to ask for the money. . . .

What a dumb thing to do!

Sunday—Father's Day—Tom went to church with the family. Then, after lunch he changed to his old clothes he wore when he helped his uncle around the station. He went to his room and stretched out on the bed and read.

He could hear the buzzing voices of his brothers and sister. The giggles and whispers as they wrapped their gifts for Pop.

Denny came in and Tom absently helped him tie the ribbon around his gift. . . .

At five o'clock his mother came to the door. She looked happy and excited. She was a tall, elegant woman. The kind of woman who looks better when her hair is steel gray than she did when she was younger. . . .

She ran her fingers through the sun-bleached hair of her older son. "Tom, something wrong?"

"No. Nothing much." Nothing that twenty dollars couldn't cure!

At dinner, Pop, at the head of the table, tried to look surprised at all the gifts piled around his plate. As if he hadn't heard all the giggling and whispering!

"Say, this is really my day! What have we got here? To Pop, from Denny."

Tom watched his father untie the ribbon and remove the tissue paper. He took out a white dress shirt, slightly smudged from much handling. "Denny, thanks! I'd rather have a dacron shirt. Can I ever use this!"

He opened the packages one after the other. Tom's other brother, Junior, had given Romeo bedroom slippers. Tom scowled at his plate, and fingered the gift card in his pocket. He had drawn the slippers on it, knowing that was Junior's gift. At least that much of it had come true. . . .

Tom could feel her looking at him questioning. But he couldn't meet her eye. She had known he was saving his money for a gift. She was wondering what had happened. They were all wondering. Tom could feel it, even though they were talking and not mentioning it.

He remembered suddenly that he could have bought something with the remaining money. But his heart had been so set on the reclining chair, he hadn't even thought of that!

Pop bent his head then, and said, "Let me say grace. Thank Thee, Father, for this food. And thank Thee for this family. Bless them for the sacrifices they have made to buy me these wonderful gifts on this Father's Day." He added as an after-

(continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

A Magazine?

By unanimous consent your Executive Committee of the W. N. A. C. purposes present a resolution to the convention Fresno, California, that is of the utmost importance. Contingent upon the will of the convention, we hope to present a new medium of program material for the auxiliaries in 1961—the long awaited, long desired for, long prayed for, and long needed magazine, "The Co-Laborer."

We have outgrown "The Year Book." It has served us well through the years, but it has completely outlived its usefulness to us. The programs, information, etc., contained in "The Year Book" are almost as old before the material is half used.

This move contemplated by the convention is a long step of faith—the longest since the first piece of literature was printed and made available to the women of the denomination.

As planned now, "The Co-Laborer" magazine would be published quarterly; the subscription price be set at $1.00 per year when ordered in groups of five or more and $1.25 for individual subscriptions. The magazine is to combine the materials offered in "The Year Book" and the monthly "Newsletter," providing the monthly programs, special weeks of prayer programs, suggestions, current news from the various fields as well as news about the work of the local, district and state auxiliaries.

We shall set up a standing order file for the auxiliaries and the number of copies needed will be sent each quarter. If more copies are needed, the corresponding secretary will notify the office.

We are sending out this information through every medium of publicity available to us with the hope that you will make this an earnest matter of prayer. We sincerely ask each auxiliary member to pray with us about it. We also invite your further attention to it. After you have prayed about it, will you please send us the reaction of your group? This matter is of great importance to our work. Your response to it will spell the difference between success and defeat.

My sincere prayer to God is that this new medium will be a real help to all of us in our auxiliary work and a creditable aid in the proclamation of the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, to whom be glory both now and forever, world without end.

Mrs. Eunice Edwards

Executive Secretary-Treasurer
W. N. A. C.

A Reminder

Dear Co-Laborers:

I would like to remind the officers of the Eastern District of North Carolina and the woman's auxiliaries of this area of the workshop which will be held at the Core Creek Free Will Baptist Church, Cove City, North Carolina, on Thursday, June 23. We plan to begin at 10:00 a. m. Our theme is "Life Up a Standard for the People."

This study has already proved to be both interesting and informative. Please have a good representation from your auxiliary here. Our local auxiliary will furnish the lunch.

Please make this workshop a very definite object of prayer.

Trusting in Him for a good and profitable day together, I am

Your District Field Worker,
Annie H. Heath

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

bor. My wife and daughter are here with me, and we would like to tell you what the Waipahu Free Will Baptist Mission means to us.

"We attended service on the third Sunday after Mr. Sanders started his ministry here and were much impressed. Since then we have made the mission our adopted church home away from home.

"Since meeting the Sanderses, we have come to know and love them for the true servants of our Lord that they are. We have surely been blessed spiritually, since through their ministry our twelve-year-old daughter recently accepted Christ as her personal Saviour.

"We trust that all of you will be much in prayer for us, as well as Mr. and Mrs.

Sanders and the work they are doing here."
—Bill Ford and Family.

It has become necessary for us to revise our mailing list because many of the addresses we have now are incorrect. Therefore, we request that all of you who are interested in the work here and would like to continue to receive our monthly reports to drop us a letter or card giving us your correct address, and we will be most happy to send our letters to you. May we ask that you do this, as soon as possible in order for us to complete our mailing list. Thank you for your co-operation.

I cannot go—God never called me to;

I cannot preach—my lips are far too slow;
I cannot teach—my knowledge is too small.

I cannot heal—I have no power at all
But I can help!

Yes, I can help—full well I know the way.

I surely can—for I can always pray,

And I can give, and this to Him I know
Is service precious in this world below.

Yes, I can help!

And with this help, some other one can go,
And preach the Word—as I could never do.

And when one day we've left this world behind,

With Christ in glory some souls I there may find

Because I helped!

With love and prayers,

Luther, Helen and Brenda Sanders
(Missionaries to Hawaii)

FREE WILL BAPTIST
BIBLE COLLEGE

OFFERS

A BIBLE-CENTERED EDUCATION
FOR ALL CHRISTIAN YOUTH

- One year Business Education Course
- Four year B. A. degree with 10 different programs from departments of

Bible
Theology and Philosophy
Missions
Pastoral Training
Christian Education
Music
English
Foreign Languages
Business Education
Social Studies

- Five year B. S. degree program in Nursing
Spiritual Emphasis
Evangelistic—Missionary
Practical Christian Service

Write for Catalogue at

FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE
3606 WEST END AVENUE NASHVILLE TENN.

Accredited by Accrediting Association of Bible Colleges

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

College Receives Gift Of Stock

President W. Burkette Raper of Mount Olive College announced recently the receipt of twenty shares of stock in the Mount Olive Pickle Company. This gift, presented by Dr. C. C. Henderson, president of the Pickle Company, completes a $10,000 endowment pledge made by the company as a memorial to the late I. F. Witherington, long-time manager of the local industry.

In receiving the stock, President Raper declared that the Witherington endowment would be of great value in preparing Mount Olive College for regional accreditation this fall.

Faculty Members to Continue Study

Two members of the Mount Olive College faculty will continue their graduate studies this summer. President W. Burkette Raper will enroll at Florida State University and continue his degree program in college administration. Mrs. Lorelle F. Martin, head of the science department, will do eight weeks of post-graduate work at the Duke University Marine Laboratory at Beaufort, North Carolina.

Dean Michael R. Pelt and other members of the faculty will attend the annual Junior College Conference for the south-eastern states at the University of North Carolina on June 20, 21. Mount Olive College will also be represented at the Southern State Faculty Conference at Lake Junaluska in August.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

10:55—Reading of Minutes
11:00—Morning Worship Service
12:00—Lunch

Friday Afternoon Session

1:30—Song Service and Devotions
1:45—Greetings from the Foreign Mission Workers
1:55—Report from the State Foreign Mission Director
2:05—Report from Superannuation Committee
2:15—Report on the 25th Annual National Association of Free Will Baptists to Convene in Norfolk in 1961
2:25—Greetings from Free Will Baptist Bible College
2:35—Report from the League Field Worker
2:50—Business Session
3:15—Adjournment

Friday Evening Session

7:45—Inspiration Service

Saturday Morning Session

9:00—Song Service and Devotions
9:15—Report from Woman's Auxiliary
9:25—Greetings from National Home Missions
9:35—Report on State Home Missions
9:50—Report from the Executive Committee
10:05—Business Session
10:20—Treasurer's Report
10:25—Greetings from the Executive Department of National Association
10:30—Report from Children's Home
10:45—Greetings from National League Board
10:50—Election of Officers and Delegates
11:05—Recess
11:15—Morning Worship Service
12:00—Lunch

Saturday Afternoon Session

1:30—Song Service and Devotions
1:45—Business Session
2:30—Adjournment

New Haven Church Announces Revival

The Rev. Jimmy Hughes, pastor of the Johnsonville, South Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church, will be the evangelist for revival services at New Haven Free Will Baptist Church of Caton, North Carolina beginning June 19 and continuing through June 26. The services will begin each evening at 7:45.

Rev. Jimmy Hughes

Mr. Hughes is a graduate of the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, and is attending the Graduate School of Missions at Columbia Bible College, Columbia, South Carolina.

The pastor, the Rev. Willie Stilley, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services. The church requests the prayers of all Christians for the success of this meeting.

THE MAIL BOX

NOTE OF THANKS TO AUXILIARY

"We wish to express our deepest appreciation to the Woman's Auxiliary of Cal Free Will Baptist Church of Beulaville, North Carolina, for the interest shown and for the love offering given to our mission during your week of prayer. We will be moving to a better location in the near future. May God bless each and every one of you."—Original Free Will Baptist Mission, Fayetteville, North Carolina.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

"Please make the announcement in The Free Will Baptist that after June 8, 1961 my address was changed from 713 Simmon Street, Goldsboro, North Carolina, to 16 following."—Rev. Ralph Osborne, 16 Lansing Avenue, Portsmouth, Virginia.

PASTOR EXPRESSES JOY IN SERVING CHURCH

"On the ninth of January, I announced my resignation to the Piney Grove Church, Route 1, Kenly, North Carolina, at the regular quarterly meeting, effective the fourth Sunday in August. We have served the church at Kenly for six years, during which time the church has experienced continued growth. Since the fall of 1954 the church has added two wings for Sunday school.
(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Heeding Christ's Teachings

(Lesson for June 26)

Lesson: Matthew 7:24-29; 21:28-32.

Golden Text: Matthew 7:24.

INTRODUCTION

Come now to the last lesson for this year. This lesson, "Heeding Christ's Teachings," serves as a most appropriate climax to this series of studies on the Sermon on the Mount. All that you have studied and all Jesus taught is of no value to anyone, unless we translate them into actions of life.

Our generation has become so complex that many think there is no time to stop and consider our ways. To many, the Bible teachings of Jesus have become obsolete. The Sermon on the Mount is needed as a way of life more perhaps today than any other period in man's history.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

It is not enough to claim to belong to the Lord; we must bear His seal of identification (cf. 2 Timothy 2:19).

Not all professors are possessors of the true nature, and not all prophets proclaim the Word of God (cf. Matthew 7:21, 22).

Not the smooth sand of mere profession, but the rugged Rock of Ages will survive the storms of judgment (Vv. 24-27).

No matter how big and beautiful the house of profession, without possession it will fall before the judgment of God (Vs. 28).

The teachings of justice and righteousness as well as the grace of God are still a astonishment to the world (Vs. 28).

The entire human race is divided into two great groups: the rebellious and the obedient (21:28-30).

It is possible to repent and do right after determining to do wrong (Vs. 29).

Words are to be validated by consistent action, if not the words are in vain (Vs. 23).

The Lord Jesus will receive even the harvest of sinners, if they will only come to Him (Vs. 31).

2. The kind of righteousness that follows repentance from sin is pleasing to God (Vs. 32).—The Bible Expositor.

11. "The parable was indeed a white light, and a fierce fire; and the King standing there in the temple, challenged as to His authority, instead of answering the quibble, assumed the throne of judgment, and welcomed into the Kingdom of God harlots and publicans who set their faces toward the Kingdom, and flung out the men who had professed to be the exponents of His Kingdom, who nevertheless had been disobedient to His command."—Dr. G. Campbell Morgan.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. In this lesson, we should have the whole message of the Sermon on the Mount in mind when we think of the Lord's remark concerning, These sayings of mine. The whole of His sayings, or teachings, are culminated in the parable of the two sons who were asked by their father to go work in his vineyard. The one said, "I will," but did not go, while the other said, "I will not," but later repented and went. They were both hearers of the heavenly message—the former heard gladly but resolved contrarily; while the latter heard reluctantly, but resolved subsequently to do his father's will. By this parable, the Lord revealed the heavenly Father's observation of what was actually taking place under the impact of our Lord's ministry, as well as the prophets before Him. That is, those who appeared to be in the will of the Father (the religious leaders of Israel) were not, while those hungry, outcast souls who appeared, in the eyes of the religious men of that day to be completely lost to the Father's will, were hearing the message of salvation and were entering by faith into the vineyard of His Kingdom. Thus, by simple childlike faith, the harlots and publicans were going into the Kingdom, while the stubborn and self-righteous were not and, unwittingly, were not aware of their plight.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

2. It is too late to find a solid rock foundation after the storm has swept everything away. Jesus Christ is the rock in building our spiritual temple. We must build on the Rock of Ages. It is more important than the age of rocks. (See Matthew 7:24.)

3. There were enough storms in the life of Paul to wreck a dozen buildings, but built upon the Rock he could not be moved. We have heard these sayings of Jesus, and it is up to us as individuals to build well.—The Standard Commentary.

4. Turn to Page 57 of our Advanced Quarterly and read about laying the foundation for a building in the sandy areas of South Florida. This is a wise thing to do. This is intended to teach that in the spiritual the Rock—the Lord Jesus Christ—is available to everyone, and that self-righteousness and self-efforts of any kind are unnecessary and useless.

5. Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them. There is a difference between obeying the specific commands of Jesus and our obeying His sayings. Obedience to His sayings is the ultimate in obedience. It is our walking worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing. It is our anticipating what His pleasure might be in the absence of a specific Thou shalt, or Thou shalt not. It is our giving Him the benefit of the doubt in reference to questionable things which are not specifically taboo, or prohibited in God's Word.

6. General Robert E. Lee once sent word to General Stonewall Jackson that he wanted to talk with him at his convenience on some matters not very urgent. Immediately General Jackson rode to headquarters to see General Lee, although the weather was stormy and bad. General Lee expressed surprise at seeing General Jackson so soon. General Jackson said, "General Lee's slightest wish is a supreme command to me, and I always take pleasure in prompt obedience!"—Selected.

7. The conclusion to the parable is this: there is no substitute for true religion. True faith in Christ means a repentant spirit as possessed by the first son. In Verse 31, the Pharisees, to whom Jesus addressed this parable, were forced to acknowledge that the first son was the one who had done the will of his father. Then Jesus said, ". . . Verily I say unto you, That the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you" (Vs. 31). This was indeed a drastic blow against the Pharisee's hypocritical religion. When John the Baptist came preaching, the publicans and harlots had believed him, but the Pharisees had refused (Vs. 31). Even when they saw what was happening, they would not repent. Christ actually placed them on a lower plane than the harlots, in spite of the fact they claimed to be religious. Christ calls for the committal of one's whole life. He expects obedience. Anything short of these requirements is displeasing to Him. Have you committed your life to Him?—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

Stories for Boys and Girls

(continued from page twelve)

thought, "And bless the one who would have given, if he could have. In Jesus' name. Amen."

Tom could feel his face redden. When the chicken was passed, he forked it savagely. He ate rapidly, scowling at his plate. What ever had got into him anyhow? What a dumb bunny! He thought. The Martin kids will wear the shoes out in three months. The reclining chair would have lasted Pop years and years and years!

Mom was serving the thick, bubbly apple pie, with wedges of cheese on top, when the doorbell rang.

"I'll get it," Mr. Boucher said, folding his napkin and getting up.

Tom heard his father say: "Hello, Mrs. Martin!" He wiggled in his chair. What did she want here?

Seated at the table, they could all hear her say: "Mr. Boucher, I was real taken aback yesterday when your boy Tom gave me twenty dollars. I didn't thank him properly. But I want to tell you that you have a wonderful, generous son. The children all have new shoes, thanks to him!"

Mr. Boucher entered the dining room thoughtfully. Mother heard him saying softly, "A wise son maketh a glad father." He folded his long legs in under the table, and put his napkin in his lap. Then his eyes met his older son's eyes across the table. Slowly, they both smiled.

Tom pulled the gift card out of his pocket. "Here's what you would have got, Pop!" Then he turned the card over, and he sketched rapidly on the other side four pairs of children's shoes in various sizes.

He wrote: "For Pop—With Love."

"Here's what you get instead!"

His father studied the card, then laid it carefully on top of the other gifts. He said, "You know, I think I like what I got better than what I would have got! See if you can figure that one out!"

They all laughed, and started doing disappearing acts with the apple pie.—Story Trails.

SELFISHNESS

One who cares only for himself when young will be stingy in middle age, and a wretched miser in old age.—Defender.

FATHER'S DAY

National Superannuation Day

SUNDAY, JUNE 19, 1960

Give a Special Offering for Ministers' Retirement

Send Offerings to

Mrs. K. V. Shutes
Secretary, National Superannuation Board
323 Avenue E
Thomaston, Georgia

THE MAIL BOX

(continued from page fourteen)

school rooms and the auditorium has almost been doubled, with the pulpit and choir section being remodeled.

"These additions have resulted in almost doubling the Sunday school and worship service attendance. The four worship services a month on second and fourth Sundays have a total of about 700 in attendance, with Sunday school attendance averaging 220 each Sunday the year around.

"We would like to state that it has been a real joy to serve these good people past six years. However, the other church we have been pastoring for the last six years is going on full time in September.—Rev. Dewey C. Boling, Clayton, N. C. Carolina.

SELF-IMPROVEMENT

The best investment any young man make after leaving school or college is education, in self improvement.—B. Forbes.

the Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1960

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

1960 GRADUATES OF FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE

DURHAM, N. C.

Nineteen Bible College seniors received B. A. degrees at graduation exercises, May 26, 1960, at Free Will Baptist Bible College Memorial Auditorium of Nashville. Rev. Frank Sells, professor of Bible at Columbia Bible College, delivered the commencement address. This year, 1960, marked the tenth year for students to receive B. A. degrees since the four-year program went into effect with the first degree graduates in 1951.

These graduates are identified as follows:

Seated left to right: George Allen, Bettie O'Haver, Fleda Mercer, Betty Pittman, Flora Gilliam, and Roger Phenicic. Back row: Allen Messer Jr., Milton Crowson, Gordon Hart, Jimmy Aldridge, Phillip Gilbert, James Bowman Jr., Lloyd Plunkett, David Joslin, Dean Dobbs, Donald Sexton, Roy Thomas, Charles Hampton, and Lonnie Palmer Jr.

(For further information concerning where these graduates are from, see the Christian education page in this issue.)

Editorial

WALKING CIRCUMSPECTLY

C. H. Overman

The Christians, of all people on earth, should have a knowledge of what is going on round about him. He should be informed of any given situation which exists in the world, so that he may fill his proper place in seeking to find an answer to any problem. His position may be small and insignificant, and thus seem unimportant; but it is never so unimportant that he fails to be informed. To be an informed person is a great responsibility.

There are some Christians who feel that nothing should add to their knowledge except that which is related to the field of religion, or their particular interests. Many young people fail in receiving a proper education because they are not willing to follow the plan of a liberal arts education. It is our opinion, however, that the Christian should learn all that he can about every possible subject which would make him an informed, wide-awake Christian.

We cannot help but to feel that Paul, the apostle, had this in mind when he wrote: "See that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise" (Ephesians 5:15). The verse seems to say that the Christian is to walk looking all around him. The word, circumspect, means to be watchful on every side; cautious; attentive to all circumstances of a case.

We live in a day of mass communication. News becomes world wide within a few minutes after it happens; therefore, the Christian is able to discern world needs in the light of the Bible and Bible prophecy. The gospel minister, of all persons, should walk circumspectly. He must be watchful on all sides, with attention to the circumstances in a case. How is this possible? To begin with, he should keep up with current events through the media of newspapers and various periodicals. It is also good to know what is going on in the religious world.

Not only must he know what goes on about him, but he must also watch his manner of walk. The Christian cannot help or reprove others of their wrongs, unless he walks as becomes Christ's purpose and example for him. Paul refers to the verses preceding this verse by the use of the words, see then. It is impossible to maintain purity and holiness of heart and life without circumspection and care. The Christian must not walk as the fools who have no understanding of their duty, nor of the worth of their souls. By walking circumspectly, the Christian shows his wisdom.

Verse 16, of this same chapter, reads, "Redeeming the time, because the days are evil." To thus walk, it is essential to make full use of time; to cherish and use every moment wisely. Walking alone is insufficient. There must be walking with a purpose, and this involves something else; namely, the mind of man. Man must think. This thinking will give him a higher aim and purpose in his walk than his own self-sufficient ways.

"Be ye, who have received the truth, careful of your conduct; walk by the rule which God has given you; do this as well in little as in great matters; exemplify your principles, which are holy and good, by a corresponding conduct. Do not only profess, but live the gospel. As you embrace all its promises, be careful also to embrace all its precepts; and behave yourselves so, that your enemies may never be able to say that ye are holy in your doctrines and profession, but irregular in your lives."—Selected.

A lady, waiting to see the methodist bishop in a midwest city, was seated in the office of the bishop's secretary. With her was her six-year-old girl. The child was intrigued with the secretary's use of the typewriter, and tiptoeing over to the desk, she was watching quietly.

Presently she went back to her mother and said, "Mommy, does the lady just punch buttons all day?"

The child had innocently pointed up a truth which we often overlook in carrying out routine duties. She was not too young to wonder, in her childlike way, how punching buttons all day could possibly be interesting or worthwhile.

Don't we as Christians, at times fail to realize the importance of our work in the cause of the Lord and miss the glory and of it? The secretary actually did punch buttons a large part of each day, but she thrilled to the touch of the typewriter as she wrote the interest of the church and the Kingdom of God.

There is an idea in the minds of many that Christian service consists only in preaching, Sunday school teaching and religious activities. Actually, any service rendered in the spirit of Christ for the welfare of others, is Christian service. The man who devotes his life to teaching the village folk of Africa how to cultivate their soil, or to helping them learn the principles of sanitation and health, is as truly a Christian missionary as one who teaches the Word of God to them. He is making the Word real in actual practice.

The Christian nurse who bathes sick bodies, or massages life into paralyzed limbs, or prepares food for her patients, is working with God just as surely as if she were reading the Bible or praying with them. . . .

We may be just punching buttons, symbolizing routine duties which seem to lack importance and glamor, but they are a part of the Kingdom work given us to do. But the one who punches buttons for God knows the joy of Christian service and the thrill of real accomplishment."—Elizabeth Wisner in War Cry.

Volume 75

Number

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

June 22, 1960

Edited and published weekly by the
Free Will Baptist Press
Ayden, N. C.

Approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, and entered at the post office at Ayden, N. C., as second-class matter.

Manager and Editor..... J. O. I
Assistant Editor..... C. H. Overman

Subscriptions Payable in Advance

6 months $1
1 year 2

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor on Friday preceding the publication date of that issue.

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor or the Free Will Baptist Press. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or the person sending it in.

Board of Directors

R. N. Hinnant..... Presid
D. W. Hansley..... Vice-Presid
J. W. Alford..... Secret
W. L. Jernigan, N. Bruce Barrow, Hubert Burruss and Owen Thor

Two Roads

Editor's Note: This article is condensed from an address delivered to the 1960 graduating classes of Mount Olive College by Rev. Clarence F. Bowen, pastor of Sandy Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Wm., North Carolina.)

HERE are two roads that lead from this place. To make the right choice of these two roads is to justify the efforts of this college to help you find your place in a bright new world.

THE FIRST ROAD

There is a road that leads from this college back to where you started. This is the easiest road. You can go back home and fall into a state of mediocrity and stagnation. You can go back home and your people will wonder why you came here in the first place. You can go back home and become a victim to the scourge of materialism and earth-bound things; and, because of your own personal disappointment and failure, you will soon go the way of all flesh and attempt to rationalize our failures and actions for the rest of your life.

THE SECOND ROAD

But there is a second road from this place that will lead you out into a bright new world. Its brightness, however, is a matter of one's own thinking. It is a matter of attitude. One person may see the world about him as dark, ugly, sordid, evil, deserving of destruction. Another may see it as a place of opportunity, a thing of beauty, and a joy forever. This is not to locate the head-in-the-sand philosophy, but all of us should be realistic about conditions existing in the world today. But the question remains that our readiness to respond to given situations is largely determined by our mental and emotional make-up.

This second road leads into the larger freedom that truth brings. The term, liberal arts, comes from the Latin and carries with it the thought of setting one free from superstitions and the ancient ills that have plagued man's mind and soul for centuries. You have been exposed to the liberal arts here, and this road will lead you to great truth and attendant freedom for mind and soul.

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

We are accustomed to saying that the truth makes men free. It does nothing of the kind. It is the knowledge of the truth that creates freedom. Jesus Himself said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The important thing for you to realize today is that you are a part of that 3,500,000 college students in America today who form the laboratory where truth must be demonstrated.

But do not mistake acquirement of mere knowledge for power. Like food, knowledge must be digested and assimilated to become life or force. Learning is not wisdom; knowledge is not necessarily vital energy. The student who has to cram through a college course, who has to make himself merely a receptacle for the teacher's thoughts and ideas, is not educated. He is a reservoir, not a fountain. Unless his knowledge is converted into wisdom and usefulness, it will become stagnant like still water.

This second road will lead you into further study and learning. These two years should have merely whetted your appetite for more knowledge. You have by no means received it all. How many weary and starved congregations listen hopelessly to a dejected preacher who will never give them a word, a phrase, or a thought they have not heard hundreds of times before.

This second road leads to service and usefulness. It is easy for the half-learned to assume false ideas of importance—of their own importance, that is. One Harvard University student felt that it was disgraceful for him to do menial tasks of drudgery until he saw the school's president, Charles W. Eliot, lumbering across the campus one day with a huge watermelon tucked under his arm, stopping now and then to put his melon down and mop his brow. This student said that he learned the greatest lesson that day in humility and in the integrity of honest labor.

A CHRISTIAN MANIFESTO

As you go from these halls today, take with you a Christian student's manifesto. I like to call it my own personal philosophy of life. It is very simply stated and has three parts:

1. There is a great God at the center of things. Henry Ford once said: "There is a universal principle or law working for good in the world. It will work for us if we will, against us if it must." There is much truth in Mr. Ford's philosophy, but I can see no value in preferring a principle to a personality. God is real, and God has a hand in the affairs of men. He is at the center of things, though not always the Originator of things. God does not cause wars and form sin, but He is aware of these social maladies and seeks to do something about them. Is it not comforting to know that such a great God is involved in mankind?

2. The highest manifestation of that great God is Jesus Christ. In His wake have come salvation, orphanages, hospitals, eleemosynary institutions, scientific laboratories, nurses, doctors, churches, freedom, justice, exaltation of womanhood, noble character, ennobling art, and deathless literature. He has inspired the great of earth—Luther, Wesley, Calvin, Moody. This Christ is God Himself. To know God is to learn of Christ.

3. The greatest thing man can do is to yield his life and his all to this manifestation of God. There is no true education without Christ. Manhood, not scholarship, is the first aim of education. Education does not mean teaching people what they do not know. It means teaching them to behave as they do not behave. Christian education as you have set before you in the past two years helps man to do these things, but only after he has yielded his life and his all to Christ who is at the center of true education. Such a decision, so great is it, will simplify all other major decisions in your life. It will decide what your life-work will be; it will decide whom you will marry.

A PRAYER OF DEDICATION

Let me have this prayer with you as you go:

"O Lord, let us now with earnest hearts and with exalted faith and hope again solemnly consecrate this college to its high and holy purpose. May the youth of our state and others for generations to come gather in this place to receive instruction in knowledge and training in virtue. May they find here every condition necessary to a true and enlightened education. Especially, may their teachers be examples of excellence in scholarship and character, seekers after goodness and truth, lovers of young people, enthusiasts and adepts in the finest of all arts, the development and inspiration of human souls. May these rooms always be pervaded with an invigorating atmosphere of mental and moral life, and may no student pass from these rooms to the outer world without having been made more intelligent, more courageous, more virtuous, and without having been led to think deep-

(continued on page eleven)

Time To Arrest Profanity

John W. Brandbury, D. D.

THOSE who stand for decency in the use of language have to wage an uphill fight to recover lost ground. Profanity has become so common that even children shout it at each other on their playgrounds.

The churches have been immorally silent as to this moral deterioration in our American life. Often now in Congress, legislatures, in some public speeches and in the public press vulgar and profane language seems to be taken for granted. It is a time to call a halt. We need to remind the people that decency is as much in the manner of speech as it is in anything else. Profanity is a moral menace, because it is so often a symbol of personal and public abandonment of ideals and common reverence for God, life and persons. It is the stimulant of malice and the forerunner of violence.

ONE OF OUR NATIONAL VICES

Imprecations and curses are the most awful instances of profanity. Frequently do we hear men using language of the most profligate character and associating the name of God with it. Many well-meaning persons err in this way and sometimes Christians interlard the name of God with trifling or worldly conversation. How common is this sin! It is one of our national vices. God's people should lay it to heart.

The Christian position is that profanity is forbidden by God. No reader of the Bible can plead ignorance as an excuse for profanity. It strikes at the root of all reverence for religion. How can God be esteemed, adored and venerated if men use His name profanely? It means that there is no fear of God, no regard for His holy wrath, no respect of His majesty, no acceptance of His authority. All this encourages an irreligious state of the human heart. It destroys any pious feeling and ridicules true seriousness of character.

We have to admit that in the time in which we live men struggle to be gay in an atmosphere of fear, to be as reckless as they wish, to be sensual, to be callous because they wish to be worldly. Actually it is the forerunner of almost every sin, however vile and awful. Profanity goes along with, as well as goes before, a yielding to anger, revenge and bitterness.

It is all so futile. Profanity does not gratify any passion, it furnishes no enjoyment, it produces a sense of guilt, it does not procure any advantage. It leaves men and women unclean and they are aware of it. It is a superfluity of sin, a causeless, stupid, senseless crime against the true and blessed God.

THE CURE

The cure is to develop the spirit of reverence for God and man. Reverence is the highest religious attitude. We may also say that it is the loftiest social attitude. We degrade not only ourselves but our brethren whenever we address them with profane language. Likewise a reverence for personality increases the respect which we have one to the other. This reverence will make its influence felt on society. It will check vice and keep in bounds certain glaring and impious behavior.

Profanity curses society; it blights every lovely thing; it is fearful in its effect on the young, who soon catch the spirit and imitate what they hear. Filthiness of speech leads to filthy living. As Christians we should contend against profane speech because of this very important consequence; it hardens the heart of the man who uses it.

That is the reason why to blaspheme God's name was made a capital offense under the law. "And he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land, when he blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall be put to death" (Leviticus 24:16). In turn, judgments have fallen instantly upon perjurers, upon wicked persons who have imprecated God's wrath. Heaven cannot be inhabited by the profane. It is a sin peculiar to humanity in its fallen estate. It is to be seriously doubted whether a fallen angel would ever stoop to be so vile.

Let us promote that solemn consideration of the grandeur and glory of God and the elevation of sinful man through saving work of our Lord Jesus Christ. Advocate wherever possible that people guard their lips and watch against the rising profanity in the heart. God's Holy Spirit can change any life and, when He does, the best speech will come from it. Let every Christian be a striking example reverencing God's name. Let their conduct and influence check bold transgressors, instruct children and set before them everywhere the beauty of decent speech.

"... thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. . . . Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (1 Corinthians 15:57; 2 Corinthians 5:17).
—American Tract Society.

North Carolina Ministerial Association Of Original Free Will Baptists

June 1, 1960

Resolution

Whereas there seems to be a great unrest and strife within the ranks of Free Will Baptists, with indications of a danger of a major split developing in the denomination; and

Whereas a careful study of our history reveals that in the past such conditions have been caused by infiltration of heresies, trines, policies and practices that were in keeping with those of Original Free Will Baptists; and

Whereas we believe much of the present unrest and strife is caused by the infiltration into our ranks of those who are not Free Will Baptists in doctrine, policy, practice and by the excessive use of independent or nondenominational ministers and evangelists in local churches and as featured speakers in associations and conferences

(continued on page twelve)

Intelligent Infidel

by Anne Hazelton

HE car sped through the lighted streets, expertly avoiding several other cars and narrowly missing a pedestrian who turned to glare at them. Lynn shrieked pretended terror and grabbed Bart's arm.

"Better slow down, Alex, if you don't want a cop after you," Bart said quietly.

"What's the matter, Grandpa? You scared?" Alex taunted.

"No, just bored," Bart flung back, keeping his voice light, but the anger that was part of him these days flamed in his eyes. "Drop me off when you pass my place," he said on, outwardly cheerful. "You will have more fun without me."

"Oh, Bart," Lynn wailed. "Not again! What do you do at home that is more interesting than our company?"

"If you must know, I'm going home to read the Bible," Bart said flatly.

There was utter silence, and blank dismay was mirrored on the faces of the four other young people in the car.

"Y—you're what?" Lynn stammered.

"Reading the Bible," he repeated defiantly.

"I didn't know you'd gone in for religion," Stan laughed embarrassed.

"I haven't. I'm an infidel. But I've just decided that if I'm going to be one I should at least be an intelligent one. So I'm going to see what the Christian's God has to say for Himself."

"Well, there no accounting for tastes; but yourself," Stan shrugged.

"Where'd you get such an idea, Bart?" Lynn chimed in. There was awe and the air of something not understood in her eyes as she turned to Bart.

"From a beachhead in the South Pacific," Bart said curtly and did not explain further. How would they understand the meaning behind those words? Did he understand himself?

It had been a cold gray dawn in the months of the war when a slow arm was being thrown across the Pacific, island by island. It was zero hour as the men hunched on the deck of their ship waiting for the order that would start the invasion of the island whose name was to make headlines at home. They were not talking much, but each man, tense and waiting, thought his own thoughts. Bart's restless eyes, moving from man to man under his command, rested for a moment on young Frank as he sat reading his New Testament. Unreasoning anger at one who had a solace unknown to himself struck at Bart and he spoke sneeringly:

"Look for an anesthetic for fear?"

The boy had paled but he answered quietly: "Not that, Sergeant, though I'm scared enough. I guess we all are, if we'll admit it. I was just 'improving the time,' I guess, and seeing if God had something to say to me. You don't know Him, do you?"

"I should say not. I'm an infidel, I guess."

"How can you be sure of that? To be an intelligent infidel, you have to have considered God's claims as given in His Word. If you've never read it, how can you be sure?"

Bart had looked at the boy in amazement, his anger that was always near the edge prompting a retort. But the signal they were waiting for came just then and the men sprang to the nets and over the sides of the ship into the small landing boats.

Frank had been just ahead of Bart in the first assault wave when Bart saw him fall. Already ashamed of his cheap teasing, Bart stooped to pull Frank out of the water's edge. Bullets spat around them and shells from their own guns zoomed overhead, but Bart forgot them in listening to Frank's whispered message: "Remember, Sarge, you can't be an intelligent infidel until you've weighed God's side. Here—promise me—you'll read it. I won't need it any more." And he was gone.

But if Bart had told the boys the real reason behind his reading the Bible—that he could not forget the light on Frank's face as he had put the bloodstained Testament into his hands, they would have looked at him in pity. Bart Johnson getting sentimental!

He entered his room with a reluctance that was new to him when the car stopped at his home. They had gone on, with ill-restrained eagerness to be on the move toward gaiety. Only Lynn had looked back, something hurt and lonely in her face. Lynn was a sweet girl, he thought. He should not have been so brutal in his answers. But everyone stirred him to an impatience these days which he could not understand.

He opened his Bible half fearfully, yet feeling compelled to do so. Yesterday the beauty of the words had gripped him until he could not forget them. But he loved beauty in literature. Why, then, was he more miserable as he read? Was he going to be able to stand the course he had mapped out?

It seemed to him as though the words he read that night were illumined with fire. He could not bear them, and turned hurriedly from one page to another of the New Testament, seeing the verses that stood out and flipping the pages to another portion:

"But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1:12, 13). "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Suddenly Bart saw his own need. He had hidden behind a term—infidel—because he had been afraid to face facts, and all the while he had envied, and been angry in doing so, the men he had seen go into battle, admitting their fear when questioned, but with a smile on their faces due to trust in One who walked with them. Bart was thirsty for the living water.

Dropping to his knees, straight from his heart came the penitent sinner's prayer, the one the Father could hear.

Bart's light burned far into the morning and he sat hunched over his Bible. Forgotten was his desire to be an intelligent infidel. His first impulse was to tell another of his new-found joy. Lynn's face had floated before him in memory and he saw again the hurt, wondering look in her eyes as he had left them. Was Lynn, too, hungry for something that was real in a world of tinsel and unreality? He knew that she would listen to his testimony. What if he could lead her to know the Saviour, too? He turned again to the Word—this time to read that he might become an intelligent Christian.—Good News Digest.

NEWS NOTES

Coming Events

July 4—Independence Day
August 14-19—College Youth Conferen
Mount Olive College, Mount Oli
North Carolina

Poplar Head Church Experiences Revival

Poplar Head Church near Chipley, Fla da, experienced a very successful reviv May 16-27, with the Rev. Chester A. Huckaby of Alma, Georgia, as the evangelist. The services were attended not only by local people, but also by people of Alabama, Florida and Georgia as far as eight miles away. Eleven people accepted Christ and many rededicated themselves.

The Rev. Leon Owens is pastor of the church. The members recently moved to a beautiful new block building and the church is now on full time.

Quincey, Florida, Church Announces Revival Services

The Rev. Chester A. Huckaby will be the evangelist for revival services at the Free Will Baptist Church of Quincey, Florida, June 26—July 1, with services at 7:30 p. m. Special music will be rendered each night by the Girls' Trio of Quincey Church and other groups.

During the revival, special emphasis will be placed on youth. An invitation is extended to all of the surrounding churches to attend, especially the youth.

Rev. M. L. Hollis Resigns Pastorate

On Sunday, May 29, the Rev. M. L. Hollis resigned the pastorate of the Peach Chapel Free Will Baptist Church of Mississippi. He has been pastor of this church for 35 years; during that time approximately 400 members have been added to the church. The building has been completely remodeled, Sunday school rooms added, and a recreational room built and furnished. All modern facilities have been installed. The church has completely furnished a room at the Free Will Baptist Orphanage of Eldridge, Alabama. The church is now planning to redecorate this room and to place one piece of playground equipment on the campus for the children. Donations to the orphanage are made annually during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

The reporter of this news item stated: "In the beginning we had services only once a month; then we began having services on first, third and fifth Sundays and Saturday nights before these Sundays. Now the church has built a parsonage and is ready to call a full-time pastor. Brother Hollis was invited to stay as pastor, but after much thought and prayer about the

Revival in Session At Powhatan Church

Revival services began at Powhatan Free Will Baptist Church, Route 2, Clayton, North Carolina, on Sunday night, June 19, with the Rev. Earl Glenn as the evangelist. Mr. Glenn is pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Wilson, North Carolina. These services begin each evening at 7:45 and will continue through Saturday night, June 25.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. C. M. Coats, requests all Christians to pray for the revival that souls may be saved and the church edified. Everyone is invited to attend.

Cramerton, N. C., Church Announces Revival Services

Revival services will begin at the Cramerton, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church on June 22, with the pastor, the Rev. Roy Rikard, speaking up through Saturday night. The Rev. William Calvert will conduct the services from Sunday morning, June 26, through Sunday, July 3. The Rev. Clyde Cox of Caroleen will be in charge of the music.

Services will begin each evening at seven o'clock. There will be special singing each night. The church and pastor would like all those who can to attend, and everyone to pray for this revival that many souls will be saved.

Mr. Calvert is pastor of the Ben Avenue Free Will Baptist Church of Kannapolis, North Carolina. Mr. Cox is pastor of Caroleen Free Will Baptist Church of Caroleen, North Carolina.

Peace Church To Observe Home-Coming

Home-coming will be observed at Peace Free Will Baptist Church, Edgecombe County, North Carolina, on June 26, 1960. Sunday school will begin at 10:00 a. m., followed by the morning worship service at 11:00 a. m. At noon a picnic lunch will be served.

The pastor, the Rev. Hubert Burress, invited everyone to attend and enjoy the services. This church was organized June 28, 1956.

Neutrality is out of the question; we are either for or against Christ.

Ordination Service Held At Grace Church

Rev. R. J. Kennedy

On Wednesday, June 8, Mr. R. J. Kennedy Jr. was ordained by the Central Conference Ordaining Council at the Grace Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina. Those participating in the service were the Rev. D. W. Alexander who was in charge, the Rev. Dan Beaman who presented the Bible, the Rev. Rashie Kennedy Sr. who gave the charge, and the Rev. J. C. Lynn who delivered the message.

The service was attended by approximately 150 persons. Mr. Kennedy will be working with a quartet from Free Will Baptist Bible College during the summer in behalf of the college. He will be available for pastoral work in and around Nashville, Tennessee, beginning in September.

Rock of Zion Church Announces Youth Revival

The Rock of Zion Free Will Baptist Church of Grantsboro, North Carolina, is planning a youth revival to be held June 26—July 2. The evangelist will be the Rev. Melvin Worthington. Services will begin at 8:00 p. m. each evening. Special music is being planned for the services. Christians are asked to pray for the success of this revival.

atter, he felt that he should resign and the church call another pastor. At the ne of this writing no one has been called, t everyone in the church is praying that od will direct, that the church will conue to grow, and that much good will be ne in the name of the Lord.

"Brother Hollis has been a faithful pastor d a loyal friend and advisor through the ars. He has continually prayed that God ould see fit to call to His ministry some ng person of the community. As he ves us, his prayers have been answered. o boys have dedicated their lives to rist and have gone forward laboring in e name of the Lord. They shall ever grateful to Brother Hollis for his help, ouragement and influence. One girl s also dedicated her life to Christ and preparing to do missionary work. Anoth-girl is supporting a missionary since she unable to go herself. There are many ers who will always love and appreciate other Hollis for what he has done for em."

Wayne, Michigan, Church Has Successful Revival

The Rev. Frank Thompson, evangelist, ently closed a revival meeting at the est Wayne Free Will Baptist Church, ayne, Michigan. There were 51 profes- ns during the meeting, with 23 additions t the church. The Rev. Milton Hollifield s been pastor of this church for the past e months, and during this time the embership of the church and Sunday ool has doubled.

The pastor states: "We praise God for e blessings our church has received, and st that He will continue to bless the rk here. The Rev. Frank Thompson who t closed our revival will be moving to rida this summer, and will be doing ngelistic work there. He is a dynamic le preacher and a great soul winner. e recommend him to any church who ould like to call him for revival services, d feel that his services would be profitable t the church. His present mailing address Route 3, Johnson City, Tennessee."

SPECIAL NOTICE

When sending in news items for publication in "The Free Will Baptist" which call for the use of pictures, please do not send mats or cuts. We prefer the use of clear, sharp snapshots or photographs which will be retained in our files or further use.

Books That Are Better

from
THE FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS,
AYDEN, N. C.

LIFE
IN THE SON

A Study of the Doctrine of Perseverance

..... ROBERT SHANK

Introduction by William W. Adams

For many years the doctrine of perseverance has been a vital issue among many Christian bodies. "Life in the Son" is a book to be reckoned with by all Bible scholars, both minister and layman.

This scholarly and comprehensive book was written by Robert Lee Shank, a Southern Baptist minister. The introduction was written by William M. Adams of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Concerning the book, Mr. Adams states that it is arresting and disturbing; a book to be reckoned with by all serious students of the Bible.

Mr. Shank demonstrates that the supposed proof passages have been misconstrued by those who believe the Bible sanctions the popular doctrine of eternal (unconditional) security. He shows that apostasy is shown to be an actual peril for every Christian.

There are nineteen chapters in the book; some are, "By Grace, Through Faith"; "Life in the Son"; "Can Eternal Life Be Forfeited"; "Born of God"; "If We Deny Him"; "Kept by the Power of God," and twelve more wonderfully inspiring chapters.

Order your copy today from Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mr. H. J. Corbett

Mr. H. J. Corbett, 80-year-old honorary superintendent for life of the Micro, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Sunday School, mayor of the town of Micro for 15 years, and friend to anyone who knocked at his door, died on March 20, 1960. Mr. Corbett received many business and professional honors during his life, but his most outstanding devotion and accomplishments were in religious work. Had he lived until the first Sunday in June, he would have attended Sunday school for 40 consecutive years without missing a single Sunday. Several times during his recent illnesses, the phenomenal record was almost broken, but each time members of his Baraca Class went to the hospital or to his bedside at home to conduct services and hold his record intact.

Corbett served as active Sunday school superintendent of the Sunday school for 23 years and upon his retirement at 70 years of age, he was elected honorary superintendent for life. He was chairman of the board of deacons for 32 years and even after giving up the chairmanship, continued to serve faithfully on the board until his death.

H. J. Corbett's perfect attendance record in Sunday school was just typical of the thoroughness of all his religious work. Much of the credit for the $75,000 sanctuary and educational plant of the Micro Free Will Baptist Church is his. He drew the plans for and supervised the construction of the attractive brick structure, donating his time and efforts to the project.

In 1908, he married Irene Wellons of Micro, who died 10 years later. Two children, Mrs. Katie Corbett Johnson of Clinton, and Mrs. Louise Corbett Peacock of Kenly, were bore of this marriage. In 1920, he married the former Nancy Smith of Winterville, who survives. In addition to his wife and two daughters, one sister, Mrs. S. S. Tyndall of Snow Hill; one brother, L. J. Corbett of Atlanta, Georgia; and nine granddaughters survive.

Mr. Corbett has left his lasting impressions and memories with hundreds of friends, young and old, and his activities can best be summed up in his own words, "The biggest thing I have ever done in life is to attend to my church and Sunday school work and to make friends with people."

J. W. Batten

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Please explain, "And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). On what is the Roman Catholic claim that Peter founded the church at Rome and that he was the first pope based?—Mary Gibson, Missouri.

ANSWER: Any claim that Peter ever even visited Rome could be based on nothing better than Roman Catholic tradition, for the Bible no where even hints of such a visit. The epistle to the Romans, written by Paul somewhere near A. D. 58, makes no mention whatsoever of Peter—a thing that it could hardly escape were the Roman Catholics' claim concerning Peter's relation to the church true. Were it true as Catholics claim that Peter both founded and presided over that church as its bishop for twenty years or more, how could such silence on so important a fact in the Scriptures be accounted for? Were their claims true, how could Paul's be true that indicates he did not nor would not build on another's foundation? "Yea, so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another man's foundation: But as it is written, To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they that have not heard shall understand" (Romans 15:20, 21); "Not boasting of things without our measure, that is, of other men's labours; but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, To preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's line of things made ready to our hand" (2 Corinthians 10:15, 16). Had Peter been influential in Rome, as claimed by Roman Catholics, when Paul went there bound or had he ever been present, we could expect some mention of his name in Acts 28; Colossians 4, and other passages telling of the event.

As to any primacy in Peter based on Matthew 16:18, it is certainly contradicted by Peter in passages such as: "The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed: Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away" (1 Peter 5:1-4). Notice that here he calls himself a fellow elder. Without the fear that we shall be contradicted by facts, we may freely declare that Peter was never a pope or bishop in the sense the Roman Catholics claim him to have been, or in the sense in which their bishops and pope operate, nor would he ever have desired it that way. The third bishop of Rome knew nothing at all about Peter as a former or first bishop of Rome and makes much more of Paul in his writings. It would only be logical that were Peter his predecessor and one who was regarded as being more honorable than Paul, he would have at least been mentioned as filling a place as honorable as that of Paul.

QUESTION: Why is it that I find it so hard to understand the love of Jesus Christ? I find it entirely beyond my comprehension.—M. T. Rivers, Alabama.

ANSWER: This will remain beyond the comprehension of such finite creatures as you, and we have let sin limit us so that our capacity is more narrow than it would be had we not allowed personal acts of sin remove us further from an understanding of Christ's love. In every way we fail to come up to the Bible standard for our lives, we make it harder to understand. There was a great contrast between the love God had for the best Old Testament characters and that held by them to Him or to each other. "The LORD hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee" (Jeremiah 31:3). God still had a love for us when we were at our worst, something we did not have for each other. "And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sin" (Ephesians 2:1). I think that we, who have been saved for several years and have given ourselves over to an obedient walk as taught in the Bible, see a little more light on the love of God each passing year. Yet, it is my honest opinion that there is a sense in which throughout all eternity there will be an unfolding of

His glorious person with all of its mercy, love and grace. Godliness is a mystery. "And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory" (Timothy 3:16).

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

HOW GREAT IS GOD?

"Now therefore, our God, the great, the mighty, and the terrible God, who keep covenant and mercy, let not all the troubles seem little before thee, that hast come upon us, on our kings, on our princes, and on our priests, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all our people. . . . Howbeit thou art just in all that is brought upon us; for thou hast done right, but we have done wickedly" (Nehemiah 9:32, 33).
As we further study the greatness of God, I want us to think of His great blessings to us. When we begin to count the blessings with which He has blessed us through the years we are not able to more than barely scratch the surface.

Let us never forget that God is great enough:

To love us with a great love: "But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved) (Ephesians 2:4, 5).

To save us with a great salvation: "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him" (Hebrews 3).

To strengthen us with great power: "And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: . . . (Acts 4:33).

To give us great joy: "And there was great joy in the city" (Acts 8:8).

To give us great grace: ". . . and great grace was upon them all" (Acts 4:33).

To give us great peace: "Great peace had which love the law: and nothing shall end them" (Psalm 119:165).

To lay up for us a great glory: "And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other" (Matthew 24:30, 31).

Great is our God indeed, and greatly to be feared and loved.

For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things" (1 John 3:20).

The Bible in Our Public Schools

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour
Taylorsville, N. C.

AM seventy-one years of age, and as I think back to the days of childhood and youth, I well remember teachers in our public schools who read to us the Scriptures each morning to begin the day's study and work. Then following the reading of a portion of Scripture, the teacher would offer a prayer—maybe the Lord's Prayer. These teachers not only helped us to be obedient, but they deeply impressed us to moral and even spiritual. Their influence lives on across more than half a century in the lives of their pupils. No doubt some of the pupils who have passed on to the Great Beyond never forgot the influence of those teachers, and as a result became Christians and lived for God until they departed to meet Him.

I believe every public schoolteacher could read a portion of God's Word in their classrooms every morning with which to begin the day's work. No doubt it would have a great and wonderful effect. No textbook in our schools, however important it may be, equals the Holy Bible. It is God's Book—the Book of all books. A few moments of time spent in reading some of its sacred truths is not time lost, but rather time saved. No doubt teachers and pupils could make better progress, have better understanding of each other, be more loveable and harmonious, kind and agreeable, if they read God's Word, and God Himself, first and foremost—then look to God for leadership and guidance.

As a nation we owe our enlightenment, our prosperity, our greatness, to the Holy Bible and to God. Behold the people where there are no Bibles—millions of them—would see how they are in darkness, ignorance, poverty, want, groping and groveling through life, knowing not whither they are bound. How pitiful, sad and deplorable!

To turn from the Holy Bible and God is to turn from that which has made us great—that upon which everything good, great, noble, enlightening, sublime and worthwhile is founded. It is to turn back toward heathenism, darkness, superstition, oppression, slavery, want, poverty, distress, failure, defeat and final destruction. Take from our schools and our country the Holy Bible—and I am a stickler to the old King James Version—means that we are removing from beneath us the very foundation upon which we have built. To take from a building the foundation means that the building falls. It goes to pieces. Everything worthwhile must have a good foundation upon which to stand. This is true from the standpoint of material structures, and it is equally as true from the standpoint of lives, souls, morals, spirituality, education and government. No government can long stand—certainly cannot prosper—that rejects the Holy Bible and God. Failure and final defeat are inevitable, sooner or later. Atheism and infidelity have never built a nation, but always curses it. Great and mighty men and women are Godly—not ungodly and wicked. They build their lives, faith, hope, achievements and greatness

(continued on page sixteen)

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

Journeying the New Way

(Joshua 3:4; John 14:6; Hebrews 10:20)

1. The new way begins at conversion (2 Corinthians 5:17).
Born again you begin anew (1 Thessalonians 1:9, 10; Acts 2:47; 11:21; Ephesians 2:2, 3, 12, 13, 19-22).
2. The new way is an unpopular way (Matthew 7:13, 14).
Compare with "broad" way; few travelers (Matthew 16:24; John 6:66; 2 Corinthians 6:17; 1 John 2:15).
3. The new way has divine guidance (Genesis 24:27).
Only those who are in the way, can know its leader (John 16:13; Psalm 119:105; 2 Timothy 3:15-17; Philippians 4:19).
The need is supplied (Hebrews 13:5, 6; Psalm 27:11-14).
5. The new way is a way of joy and gladness (1 Thessalonians 5:16-18).
While some seek for pleasure, we find joy in the Holy Spirit (Psalm 16:11; Acts 8:6, 8; 1 John 1:4).
6. The new way grows brighter as we journey (Proverbs 4:18).
Some paths of the world start bright, but grow dark (Psalms 1:1-3; 90; 91; 2 Peter 1:19).
7. The new way has a glorious conclusion (2 Timothy 4:7, 8).

There will be no regret that we chose this way (1 Corinthians 15:57, 58; 1 Peter 1:3, 4; 2 Peter 1:11; Philippians 3:20, 21).—
Rev. C. C. Maple.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

From Cuba to You

I have been back in Cuba one week, having shared with our future missionaries, Bobby Poole, Bobby Aycock, (also Bro. Eugene Waddell, the churches and pastors) a very precious time of fellowship in the Albenarle Conference of North Carolina. My mind and heart are full to overflowing with fragrant recollections of the moments of fellowship with each of you, of your homes, and your dear children. I don't know if

A NEW RIBBON

Did you ever try to type with an old ribbon in the machine? It's a rather discouraging job. But what a difference it makes when a brand-new, well-inked ribbon is placed in the typewriter. Every letter shows forth clearly. No more straining your eyes to see which letter is meant. No more weak, pale-looking paragraphs. Words written with a good ribbon have strength and assurance about them. They look as if they mean what they say.

So it is with men. Some men who know the Lord try to live for several days or even weeks without reading God's Word and applying it to their hearts. They are like the dull, pale, worn-out ribbon. And the testimony they bear to their fellow men is just as powerless.

Then there are those of God's children who delight in going daily to the throne of grace, there obtaining the strength and vigor they need to live all out for Christ. No more straining to determine just what they believe on a certain subject. Their testimony is clear-cut and easily understood. It rings true because it is backed by a consistent life. They live as if they mean what they say.

There isn't much doubt in anyone's mind which kind of person the Lord would rather have as His ambassador, is there?—
Dorothy M. Kieffer.

DON'T STAY DOWN

If you've floundered in the valley
And you've failed to climb the hill;
If you've let the devil keep you
From the things your life should fill;
If you're drooping, pining, sighing
Over failures in the strife,
O dear soul, look up to heaven,
God can yet redeem your life!

Go before Him in repentance,
Sorry you have failed so much;
Tell Him you are longing, yearning
For His mercy and His touch;

Ready now for future service,
Though it be an humble place;
Ready where He leads to follow
By His guidance and His grace.

Don't give up for years of failure,
Don't despair because you're down;
Just resolve to climb up higher,
Reaching for a master's crown;
Even if you never gain it,
Still it's best to look ahead,
Rather than to droop and languish
For the past that's gone and dead.

—Rev. Walter E. Isenhour.

it is so with other folks, but with me live over and over precious moments and try to treasure each gracious hour when was with you in your homes.

There are times we might call high moments such as the morning service in the church in little Washington. At the close of the service with a great group of people I stood beside our brother, Pastor Charles Keith, when a thing happened like a clap of thunder. (Naturally one hesitates to put pressure on a congregation for an additional offering. Having been a pastor I can understand and sympathize, but the Spirit of God will do things that take the nature of the unexpected.) A dear saint of God in her eighties, sitting in a wheel chair, waved a dollar bill at me saying, "This is for Cuba and I pledge one dollar a month for missions." Brother Keith's face mean things broke; people gave! How God used a dear old mother in a wheel chair and how people did respond! How do you folk are to those of us, your missionaries. We need you; we depend on your praying and paying; we belong to you. That's why we come among you—to remind you that we cannot do without you and your sympathetic help. I wished over and over that I might be able to drop in at your homes, tarry awhile in your communities. I suppose some of us seem to be what little twin boy thought about me in Elizabeth City. He took my hand and said, "You dress me." In saying that, he said a lot more—that I had won his confidence—but that was not all. He proceeded to give me the low-down when he said in a seriousness, "You're a little bit crazy, aren't you?" Well, I guess some of us are a little bit crazy in the eyes of the world for doing His will.

When we see and hear the call of the Lord who have not had the great joy and privilege of hearing the gospel any time of the day as you can hear, it is certainly hard to tarry among the comfort and convenience of our rich America. We just have to hurry back to a people so simply loving a God so spiritually hungry. In short, I am bargaining to get going but enjoying memories of you all.

I am amazed at the power of the press and the television to distort by publishing the unpleasant with not a word of the worthwhile. You cannot help being affected by what you hear and see. Communism is indeed more than a boogabear and certainly we need to be alarmed but there are some things in the good old U. S. A. more alarming than Communism. We live in a world of isms. I am alarmed when I see fine people being brainwashed by a television box. From many aspects the picture of Cuba is distorted and everything so out of focus that I would not dare deal with

(continued on page sixteen)

NOTES

A N
D

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

SOME THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

I am giving to you, my readers, this little clipping entitled "Think It Over," from the Notes of Grace Church, Monroe, Louisiana. I think that I have seen such people during my fifty years in the ministry. You pastors who shall read this, think it over. Sunday school superintendents, what do you think? Here is the clipping:

Think It Over

Go where You want me to go, dear Lord,
Real service is what I desire,
Say what You want me to say, dear Lord,
But don't ask me to sing in the choir.

Say what You want me to say, dear Lord,
I like to see things come to pass,
Don't ask me to teach girls and boys,
Dear Lord,
I'd rather just stay in my class.

Do what You want me to do, dear Lord,
I yearn for Thy Kingdom to thrive,
Give you nickels and dimes, dear Lord,
But please don't ask me to tithe.

Be what You want me to be, dear Lord,
I long to see the Church alive,
Don't ask me to come out at night,
Dear Lord,
I'm always worn out and tired.

Go where You want me to go, dear Lord,
I'll say what You want me to say,
I'm busy just now with myself, dear Lord,
I'll help You some other day.

WE MEAN IT?

We often sing, "I'll go where You want to go." We should be careful to pray and ask ourselves if we really mean what we say. I think we often sing words that we do not absolutely mean. When we sing words and do not mean them, we refuse to be sincere as we sing. What do you tell in song?

By request, we are publishing all of a poem which we only quoted a part of some weeks ago. We heartily agree with the Western Messenger on the subject. If we human beings did not like to hear gossip, we would not listen to it. Not bragging at all, I have learned to try to switch the conversation when it gets to rumors. However, sometimes it is hard to do so. Here is the whole poem:

Gossipy Ears

A gossipy tongue is a dangerous thing
If its owner is evil at heart;
He can give whom he chooses many a sting
That will woefully linger and smart,
But the gossipy tongue would be balked in its plan
For causing heart burning and tears,
If it were not helped out by the misguided man
Who possesses two gossipy ears.

Oh, the gossipy ears are the ones that believe
The evil reports they are told;
The sly, subtle tales which they gladly receive,
Would tarnish the purest of gold.
The cruel they say which goes floating about
Like a hidden foe, fostering fears,
Would lose all its force, were it firmly shut out
By the man with the gossipy ears.

When the man with the gossipy tongue happens by,
With his stories of evil and strife;
We surely should look him right square in the eye,
And ask him his mission in life.
We ought to refuse him a chance to retell
The false idle rumor he hears;
He ought to be locked up somewhere in a jail
With the man with the gossipy ears.

OUR CHURCH COVENANT

As a reminder, we are giving to you, our readers, our Church Covenant in part. We may be reminded of how untrustful many of us are in our relationship with God and the church. May we think it over seriously.

"Having given ourselves to God, by faith in Christ, and adopted the Word of God as our rule of faith and practice, we now give ourselves to one another by the will of God in this solemn covenant." This is the first paragraph in our covenant. Now may we seriously examine ourselves and see if we have really practiced what we pledged when we accepted the covenant. Did we accept the covenant in good faith, or did we just go along with the pledge with no intention of observing the covenant?

"We promise, by His grace, to love and obey Him in all things, to avoid all appearance of evil, to abstain from all sinful amusements and unholy conformity to the world, from all sanction of the use and sale of intoxicating beverages, and provide things honest in the sight of all men." This is the second paragraph. Did we mean it when we repeated or heard it read and said yes? or did we actually tell a lie? Remember, the Bible says that liars are doomed for the regions of the damned. Reader, get your Bible and turn to Revelation 21:8, and see what kind of company the liars will have as associates in eternity. Liars are liars, whether religious, political, social or slanderous. A church liar is not excepted. What about your Church Covenant? Can you look Christ in the face and say of a truth, "I love the church of Thy abode"? Can you? If not, what are you going to do about it? Keep on being false to God, or repent and find forgiveness?

"We agree faithfully to discharge our obligation in reference to the study of the Scriptures, secret prayer, family devotions, and by self-denial, faith and good works endeavor to grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." This is the third paragraph.

Let us be honest with God and His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Church for which He gave His all. Let us repent and confess our sins—our willful neglect of supporting His Church as we vowed when we were received into the church, after hearing or reading the Church Covenant. May we as individual, professing Christians remember that the writer of Hebrews says, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is: but exhorting one another: and so much the more as ye see the day approaching. For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, But a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries" (Hebrews 10:25-27). We will call attention to this later, if the Lord wills.

TWO ROADS

(Continued from page three)

ly and clearly without bias or bigotry. May each of them go from these rooms in every way more capable of just and wise, of useful and noble living.

"To this end, may the blessing of God Almighty be upon student, teacher and parent; upon the president, faculty and staff, and upon everyone whose influence will in any degree affect the work of education as it shall be conducted within these walls. This we pray, humbly, in Jesus' name. Amen."

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

AWAY RAN SPOT

by Arthur Skerry Jr.

"HEY, Spot!" Dick exclaimed. "What are you doing out here in the woods all alone? I should think you would be home helping Jane get ready for her birthday party tomorrow." Spot belonged to Jane, who lived on the farm next to Dick's.

Spot wagged his tail, "Arf! Arf!" he barked.

"I can guess," Dick laughed. "Jane is hiking in the woods, isn't she? You want me to go find her, don't you?"

"Arf! Arf!" barked Spot.

"Well, I'll fool you both," bragged Dick. "I'll climb a tree. Then I can see her coming, and she can't see me. What a scare I'll give her when she gets here!"

Dick hunted along a fence until he found a long post lying loose on the ground. He dragged the post to a tall tree nearby. By leaning it against the tree and climbing on it, he was able to reach the lowest branch.

Suddenly the post slipped and left Dick hanging by his hands. He looked down. It was a long way to the ground. He was afraid to let go and drop. His heart pounded hard in fear.

He braced his feet against the tree and pulled with his arms. He managed to get a heel over a limb, then a knee. Finally his whole body was up, and he sat there wondering what to do next.

"Oh, well," Dick sighed. "Jane should be here in a minute. She can put the pole in place, and I can get down." He could see Spot down below, sitting on the pole and looking up at him.

"I wish Jane would hurry," Dick worried after awhile. "This is no fun."

To pass the time away, he watched Spot. The dog just sat on the fallen pole and looked up at Dick and wagged his tail. "A lot of good you are right now," Dick called to him. "I wish you were Jane. Won't she ever come?"

He climbed high in the tree and looked over the fields toward the farms far away. He could not see Jane. He could not see anyone.

"Jane! Jane!" he shouted. There was no reply.

Spot jumped to his feet and ran away. Dick saw the last of him disappear through the fields toward home.

Dick sat on a limb and felt like crying. It was hard to hold back the tears. I could starve to death up here and no one would know, he told himself. Even Spot is gone. If I try to jump, I'll break a leg and starve anyway.

The sun moved lower in the sky. The air started to take on a chill. Dick knew night was coming. He rubbed his hands to keep them warm; his stomach felt empty.

The longer he waited in the tree, the more helpless he seemed. The more helpless he seemed, the more he had to trust in God. He clasped his hands together and bowed his head. That made him feel better.

After a time he raised his head a little. Did he really hear something, or was it only his imagination? There it was again. It was the barking of a dog. It was plainer now. It must be coming closer. There was a girl's voice, too.

"Thank you, God," Dick prayed. "I will soon be safe."

He hurried up the tree. He could see Jane and Spot coming. "This way, Jane!" he shouted.

Jane heard him and waved. Spot dashed forward to Dick's tree and Jane ran after him. In a few minutes Dick was down.

Before long he was home busily persuading his mother to give Spot the biggest bone she could find.—Story Hour.

HOW DO YOU PRAY?

by Albert A. Rand

THE minister was calling at Jimmy's home one day. During the call, he turned to Jimmy and asked, "Do you pray every night, my boy?"

"Naw!" Jimmy answered. "Some nights I don't want anything."

There are many boys and girls like Jimmy. They pray only when they want something for themselves. Those are selfish prayers. Jesus does not want us to be selfish in our prayers any more than in other things.

Jesus would like the prayer that Charlie Adams made the other night. Paul had played a mean trick on Charlie. That night, Charlie prayed, "Bless Paul, dear Lord, because he was mean to me today."

Jesus asks that we pray for our enemies. We have the Lord's Prayer (or the Model Prayer) which Jesus taught, as a pattern for our own prayers. Most of its petitions are concerned with God's will being done and His name glorified; the rest relate to others and ourselves. That is the way Jesus wants us to pray—first for others, and last for ourselves.—Junior Trails.

N. C. Ministers

(continued from page four)

ences; therefore be it

Resolved that we do hereby pledge that we will discourage the use in our church conferences, and associations of independent or nondenominational ministers or others whose doctrines, policies and practices are known to be in conflict with those of the Original Free Will Baptists; and be it further

Resolved that we urge our fellow ministers and our local churches to also refrain from using independent or nondenominational ministers or others whose doctrines, policies and practices are in conflict with those of Original Free Will Baptists; and be it further

Resolved that we urge those who are responsible for the selection of conference and association speakers to refrain from using independent or nondenominational ministers or others whose doctrines, policies and practices are in conflict with those of Original Free Will Baptists; and be it further

Resolved that we urge the several conferences and associations to take appropriate steps to deal with any minister who in their bounds whose doctrines, policies and practices are found to be in conflict with those of Original Free Will Baptists; and be it further

Resolved that a committee of three be appointed to draft a suitable resolution dealing with this matter for presentation at the 1960 session of our state convention and be it further

Resolved that a copy of this resolution be placed in our minutes, a copy sent to The Free Will Baptist and other denominational papers for publication, and copies furnished to the moderator of each union meeting and conference or association and to individuals who desire them.

C. B. Hansley, President
M. K. Everington, Secretary

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Has Your Auxiliary Contributed?

Let us remember our year's national project is to give for the broadening of our work in Mexico. Have you sent your contribution for this work?

Attention N. C. Auxiliaries!

Furniture per room for the new building at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, costs $240 per room. Couldn't your auxiliary like to have a part in this project?

Newton Grove, N. C.—The Annie McPhail Auxiliary of Oak Grove Church met at the church on June 15 at 8:00 p. m. The president, Mrs. Bernice Godwin, presided over the meeting and also conducted the devotional period. Mrs. Annie McPhail led the opening prayer. The group then sang "Jesus Saves." Mrs. Emma Rose read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll.

Mrs. Lollie Holland had charge of the program. Mrs. Holland gave the introduction to the program, followed by a panel discussion of the three topics. Mrs. Ada Bizzell dismissed the group with prayer. There were thirteen members and one visitor present.

The Broom Weed

by Lois Rivers

My small son was always bringing "bouquets" from our yard, generally some flowering weeds. I would absentmindedly thank him, and upon his, "Aren't you going to put them in a vase?" would answer, "Of course, darling," and find a mayonnaise jar or kitchen glass to put them in and place it on the drainboard or breadbox, and go on about my dishwashing. He would linger around and comment, "Isn't that a beautiful bouquet, isn't it?" and sometimes would insist on my putting it in the center of the kitchen table. I reluctantly complied, for we had a large family, and needed all the space at the table.

As soon as I could, I threw the "bouquet" away—for I was a tidy person. The times he came in dejectedly bearing his wilted flowers in his hand and announced, "You threw my bouquet away!" I guiltily tried to explain that they were dead. But he didn't look any more satisfied with the explanation than I felt.

Then one day he came in with a huge broom weed. The boy was only faintly discernible behind its hugeness. I had just vacuumed the floor, and my first reaction was to cry, "No, John, take it out this minute!"

Then I saw his eyes—wide and starry. This time he had brought me a golden treasure! Surely a rare gift!

I paused, stooped and kissed the boy and said, "We'll put it in the large vase under the mirror in the hall. Then there will be twice as much gold!"

For suddenly my eyes had been opened, and I saw, even as my child—it was a flower, begging description in its golden beauty, the handiwork of our Creator.

For days it brightened our room. The family remarked on its beauty as they passed through. I'll always remember its reflected glory there under the mirror.

But I'll remember most of all my small son's face, the day he laid his golden treasure at my feet, and found his gift acceptable.

THE MAIL BOX

AVAILABLE FOR PASTORAL WORK

"I will be available for pastoral work in August of this year, pending my resignation of Saint Paul Free Will Baptist Church, Elizabeth City, North Carolina, effective September, 1960. Any church desiring a pastor may contact me at the above address."—Rev. R. C. Cherry.

PLEA FOR FUNDS TO BUILD SHEPHERD STATION

"We have just received a letter from Brother Rolla Smith, and he sent us Brother Merkh's very urgent plea for funds to build the Shepherd Station. As we read his description of the country and how they will have to sacrifice to stay there to win the lost to Christ, it just broke our hearts.

The blessed Holy Spirit spoke to our hearts and said, 'You can give $10.' As I prayed, it came to me that I could sacrifice my summer shoes and give that $10.00.

"As I thought of the number of ministers, I thought how easy it should be to raise that money for the Shepherd Station if we go about it God's way. We have a number who are not ministers who will read this—you can pray with us. Let us all sacrifice something we had planned to get and see how soon the money can be raised. . . . If everyone would sacrifice something, thousands of dollars could be raised and we would have all we need.

"We wish we could send more, but we only get $20 per week for our work here; we couldn't stay if our friends didn't help us. Please pray that the amount will be raised and that hearts will be touched and opened."—Lizzie McAdams, Route 3, Huntsville, Texas.

AVAILABLE FOR PASTORAL WORK

"I am available for pastoral work and will move any distance. I am a native of North Carolina, and the son of the late Rev. E. H. Russ. My address is 804 N. May Street, Guymon, Oklahoma, and my phone number is 830R."—C. B. Russ.

PLEASED WITH LITERATURE

"We had a most successful Bible school last week, and all the teachers were pleased with the literature and craft suggestions. The clinic at Mount Olive College is a great help in preparing for daily vacation Bible school and inspirational also."—Mrs. D. W. Rose, Lucama, North Carolina.

AVAILABLE FOR PASTORAL WORK

"I have turned in my resignation as pastor of Blakely Free Will Baptist Church, effective September 1, 1960, and I will be available for pastoral work after September 1. My address is P. O. Box 373, Blakely, Georgia, and my phone number is 5714."—J. E. Wood.

FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE

OFFERS

A BIBLE-CENTERED EDUCATION FOR ALL CHRISTIAN YOUTH

- One year Business Education Course
- Four year B. A. degree with 10 different programs from departments of Bible, Theology and Philosophy, Missions, Pastoral Training, Christian Education, Music, English, Foreign Languages, Business Education, Social Studies
- Five year B. S. degree program in Nursing, Spiritual Emphasis, Evangelistic—Missions, Practical Christian Service

Write for Catalogue at
FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE

3606 WEST END AVENUE NASHVILLE TENN.

Accredited by Accrediting Association of Bible Colleges

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

1960 Bible College Graduates

Nineteen Bible College seniors received B. A. degrees at graduating exercises, May 26, at Free Will Baptist Bible College Memorial Auditorium, Nashville, Tennessee. The Rev. Frank Sells, professor of Bible at Columbia Bible College, brought the commencement address. This was the tenth year for students to receive B. A. degrees since the four-year program went into effect with the first degree graduates in 1951.

All graduates were awarded Evangelical Teacher Training Certificates.

Graduates were: George Allen Jr., Guthrie, Kentucky; Milton Crowson, Tupelo, Mississippi; Jimmy Aldridge, Phillip Gilbert, and Betty Pittman, Cordova, Alabama; Dean Dobbs and Bettie O'Haver, Kirksville, Missouri.

Flora Turnage Gilliam, Snow Hill; Gordon Hart, Ayden; Allen C. Messer Jr., Swananoa, North Carolina. Charles Hampton, Shawnee, and Lloyd Plunkett, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Fleda Mercer, Blakely, Georgia; David Joslin, Van Buren, Arkansas; Lonnie Palmer Jr., Fort Worth, Texas; Roger Phenicie, Tucson, Arizona; Roy Thomas, Artesia, New Mexico; Donald Sexton, Coeburn, and James Bowman Jr., Norfolk, Virginia.

Free Will Baptist Bible College is operated by the National Association of Free Will Baptists and has completed its 18th year of offering Christian training for pastors, missionaries and Christian lay workers.

33 Students Make Bible College Honor Roll

Thirty-three students earned grades high enough to place them on the second semester honor roll at Free Will Baptist Bible College of Nashville, Tennessee, according to Dean Charles A. Thigpen. Three students were able to maintain a straight "A" average. The others averaged "B" or higher and were distributed over the various classes.

Making all "A's" were Milton Crowson and Dorothy Elliott, seniors, and Nelda Simmons, sophomore.

Averaging "B" or higher were:

Seniors: Jimmy Aldridge, George Allen, James Bowman, Alvin Davis, Dean Dobbs, Flora Gilliam, Charles Hampton, Fleda Mercer, Bettie O'Haver and Donald Sexton.

Juniors: Earl Gilliam, Fred Hall, Jean Pittman, Don Robirds and Richard Sample.

Sophomores: Darrell Fulton, Thomas Hughes, J. W. Long Jr., Barbara McGahey, Verla Pembroke, Jackie Simpson and Inez Taylor.

Freshman: Bobby Abrams, Judy Aycock, Peggy Cox, Florine Faulkner, James Hampton, Dannie Sue Jones, Amy Robinson and Paul Robinson.

New Officers for Fraternity

Rev. Richard Mabe

The Rev. Richard Mabe, ministerial student at Mount Olive College, has been elected president of Kappa Chi Fraternity of the college. Mr. Mabe, a native of Hamlet, North Carolina, is pastor of Northeast Free Will Baptist Church of Mount Olive.

Other officers of the fraternity are Johnny Walker of Durham, vice-president; Frank Ray Harrison of Williamston, secretary; and Patrick Corbett, Newport, treasurer.

Kappa Chi Fraternity is composed of students preparing for vocations in the Christian ministry and missions.

Alumni Association Officers

New officers of the Alumni Association of Mount Olive College are, left to right (seated): the Rev. Sheldon Howard, W son, president; George W. Stevenson, K ston, vice-president; Jane Barrow, Ayden, treasurer; Peggy Mixon Potter, New Be corresponding secretary; and Elizabeth Smith, Deep Run, recording secretary.

New Official for College

The Rev. Michael R. Pelt has been elected to the newly-created office of vice president at Mount Olive College, President W. Burkette Raper announces.

A native of Marianna, Florida, Mr. Pelt joined the faculty of Mount Olive College in 1957 as head of the department of religion, and in 1958 he assumed the duty

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Men Who Spoke for God

(Lesson for July 3)

Lesson: Amos 7:7-15.

Lesson Text: 2 Timothy 4:2.

INTRODUCTION

Amos was a citizen of Judah but went, according to the call of God, to the northern kingdom, Israel, to warn them of their idolatry and social injustices. For God had told him that He would not pass by Israel any more because of these sins. To go into idolatry (idolatry) is to forsake God by allowing another object of worship to take first place (God's place) in one's life; that is, forsaking God. For God to say to Amos, "He would not any more pass by them," meant that He was forsaking Israel (Amos 7:8). It is notable that God forsook Israel only after Israel had forgotten God and become an idolatrous and unjust people. "Pass by them any more" implies that He had appealed to them many times by warning their way. Indeed there is no other illustration in the Old Testament of God's love and tender mercy toward a people.—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.)

HINTS THAT HELP

Amos 7:7: We see in this chapter that God bears long, but He will not bear always. Amos saw the Lord stand on this plumb line, not to make it plumb and true, but to check it, then wreck it.

Amos 8: God tested the people by a plumb line and showed them their wickedness. He would lay judgment "to the line, and righteousness to the plummet." The Lord had been up with all He could stand from disloyal Israel.

Amos 9: God's patience can be tried only long. The time will always come when those who have been spared so often will no longer be spared. God had said in the days of Noah that His spirit would not strive with men.

Amos 10: The priest was probably looking out for himself more than for the king and the people. He accused Amos of stirring up sedition. Remember how the shrinekeepers at Ephesus hated Paul? Priests many times were the worst persecutors.

Amos 11: It was no new thing to make false charges against the prophets of God. Is the watchman guilty who warns the people? Is the doctor guilty who warns of the danger of a disease? It seems Jeroboam paid no attention to Amaziah's words.

Vs. 12: Amaziah recognized Amos as a prophet, but he showed how little he knew about true prophets when he told one to leave Bethel. He said Amos could make a better living in Judah. Amaziah was always considering the profits and thought Amos did the same.

Vs. 13: It was difficult to engage in idolatrous worship with one like Amos around.

Vs. 14: Amos informed Amaziah that he could support his family at his trade and only prophesied because of the divine call.

Vs. 15: Amos answered Amaziah with great boldness, yet with modesty.—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. We know more about Amos than perhaps any other of the minor prophets. Although he belonged to the kingdom of Judah, for Tekoa was only twelve miles from Jerusalem, his prophecies were delivered in the Northern Kingdom. Under the powerful and popular king, Jeroboam II, Israel reached the highest point of military glory and temporal prosperity. Syria had long oppressed Israel (2 Kings 12:17; 13:22), but Jeroboam not only recovered the cities his father had lost (13:25), he also seems to have made Damascus tributary to Israel (14:28). But all this success and splendor proved the nation's ruin. Luxury and self-indulgence quickly undermined their religion and morals (Amos 3:15; 5:11; 6:7, 8, 11). Their worship at the sanctuaries of Bethel (7:13), Gilgal and Beer-sheba (4:4; 5:5; 8:14) was debased and unspiritual. The rich—greedy and rapacious—perverted justice (2:6, 8; 5:7; 6:12), and oppressed the poor (2:7; 3:10; 4:1; 5:11; 8:4-6), and all classes were tainted with worldliness and immorality (2:7, 12). It was to prophesy against these vices that Amos, the "herdman, and a dresser of sycamore trees" was called. Bethel, the seat of the royal temple, was the principal seat of the prophet's witness (7:10-13).

2. Amaziah sought to persuade Amos to stop his preaching and leave the country.

When Amaziah could not persuade the king to take action then he sought by some fair means to get rid of him. "Also Amaziah said unto Amos, O thou seer, go, flee thee away into the land of Judah, and there eat bread, and prophesy there: But prophesy not again anymore at Bethel: for it is the king's chapel, and it is the king's court" (Vv. 12, 13). Perhaps Amaziah thought that Amos' preaching was too blunt and plain for the King's chapel and there would be no inducements or results for him there.

Amos was not hesitant to state his position as a prophet of God. The authority of any messenger of God is superior to any earthly power. God's messengers can stand before kings and rulers and proclaim His greatness with no fear of man's power. "Then answered Amos, and said to Amaziah, I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was a herdman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit: And the LORD took me as I followed the flock, and the LORD said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel" (Vv. 14, 15).—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

3. The Word of God has always been the plumb line according to which the people of God are to build. In the Old Testament was found God's will for His people during the Jewish dispensation. That age ended at Calvary when Jesus fulfilled the old law, nailing it to His Cross (Colossians 2:14). Then began the present age, the Christian dispensation. Through the apostles, we learn God's will for those who would now be His people, for Jesus charged those apostles to make disciples, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: . . ." (Matthew 28:20). The Holy Spirit was given to lead them into all truth so that, as a plumb line, their word is all sufficient. The building of the church of Christ, like the building of the individual Christian life, is to be according to that plumb line. To use any other is to reject the sole criterion of judgment that God Himself was given.—Selected.

4. When we read in the books of Kings and Chronicles about the reforms under such kings as Asa, Joash, Josiah and others, we are apt to conclude that the repentance of the people was genuine. But as we read the messages of the prophets we discover that the reforms were superficial. Had the repentance of the people been real they would not have gone back into idol worship so soon.

"All about the life and ministry of the Lord Jesus is a fulfillment of the meaning of His name—salvation."—Selected.

"Christ is an all-sufficient Saviour for the vilest of the vile."

Christian Education

(continued from page fourteen)

of academic dean. He will continue in these positions along with his duties as vice-president.

Mr. Pelt is a graduate of Chipola Junior College, Marianna, Florida; and holds an A. B. degree from State Teachers College, Troy, Alabama; and the B. D. degree from Duke Divinity School, Durham, North Carolina. Before coming to Mount Olive College, he served two years as pastor of Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church, Snow Hill.

His wife is the former Betty Etheridge of Dothan, Alabama. The Pelts have three children—Cary Lafayette, 5; Teresa Lynn, 4; and Sharon Ann, 2.

Successful Bible School

A very successful vacation Bible school was held at Pine Level Church near Alma, Georgia, May 30—June 3. There was an enrollment of 79 pupils and 17 teachers and workers, with an average attendance of 90.

Mrs. Lola Hand was the director of the school. The Free Will Baptist literature was used in this school.

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

thing that God alone shall in the very near future put His hand on. There are so many things in these countries that only we who have lived here for years and have some working knowledge of the language can understand. The political picture is the only one presented to you. If you could come with us and see the hunger of a dear, gracious, gentle, cultured people—people who are more responsive than in our own land which has had the gospel for so long. Many of you have not had the opportunity to see through the eyes of your missionaries. This I want to help you do. There is a challenge here in Cuba today to present Christ as never before; the minds of the Cuban people are open to the gospel as are none other in Latin America. I think I am safe in saying this for I know Latin America. My Bible and Latin America have been for 40 years my major study. There are no people in any part of the world more interested in listening to the gospel. But they cannot believe or know without a preacher; preachers must be first sent and American missionaries must multiply themselves in national witnesses. I am ashamed when I hear the selfish, unchristian arguments of the relative needs of Christian America to the stupendous need we face here in Cuba or in any part of the unchristian world—even the smallest of the Latin American countries.

A tremendous drive is on here by the government to send teachers to the thousands in hidden valleys to teach them to read. Four thousand schools have been established in Oriente; young men and women have volunteered and have gone. In one area alone there are 100 schools all set up with no teachers. Thousands are learning to read. Communist Russia is flooding not only the newsstands of Cuba with the most beautiful books (and so cheap that the poorest can buy them), but the newsstands of all the world. What is the Protestant church doing? This question has alarmed a few of us. Yesterday Tom Jr. and I drove all morning to attend a meeting of the leaders of all the churches of Cuba. Some few came. Those few are the leading Christian statesmen of the island. One man, a pastor and public schoolteacher, a man burdened for the thousands in the high Sierra Maestra Mountains of Oriente, had taught school the day before, preached that night, took the bus and rode all night till midday the next day to be in this meeting. Then he took the bus back that same night to take up the tasks of the following morning. Who will go with the gospel? How shall we reach these thousands? We must live among them, teach them, make disciples of them and they in turn must each become a witness of the gospel. We have no time other than to make every home and mountain cabin a seminary. Oh that I were ten men! I am planning to go with this man into the high Sierras in the month of July—Dr. Pedro Abella, a great missionary.

Some American missionaries are leaving and there is much talk of retrenchment; but with us there is a growing determination to dig in, tighten every line of advance, close ranks, and stand firm. Our children, John and Barbara Moehlman are in deputiation work in the state of Texas expecting to come and help us in Cuba. These are favorable training grounds for future missionaries. You who read these lines, please stand with us in prayer and support the whole line of advance that there might not be a single letdown, but as was the motto of Dr. A. B. Simpson, "We live though He might come within the next hour and labor as if He might not come in our lifetime."

We are making plans to meet the challenge of literature, to meet the needs of a simple presentation of the gospel. We appeal to the great body of Master's Men to intensify its efforts to help us get the offset press that we might be ready in time. This is our hour in Cuba, and by the grace of God we dare not fail the unreach masses representing the whitened harvest field of all Latin America.

T. H. Willey Sr.

The Bible In School

(continued from page nine)

upon the Bible and God—or by His goodness and grace.

In these awful times of uncertainty and crisis, O how our Protestant schools and churches need to anchor to the Holy Bible and God! How our Protestant people need to wake up and see what we are facing. How we need to pray, hold to God's changing hand, and be sheltered underneath His wings of protection and sustained by His everlasting arms! Are we going to wake up, pray, pray, pray, draw nigh to God and be protected; or are we going to turn from the Holy Bible and God and down? O reader, preacher, teacher, church member, Christian, wake up! Faithful mothers, young people, citizens, lead us to wake up; get to God as never before, it is everlastingly too late!

New Ohio Motto Com From New Testament

The state of Ohio has a new motto thanks to the persistent efforts of a Cincinnati schoolboy who appeared before many committees and even addressed the entire state legislature.

The new motto: "With God All Things Are Possible." It is the first for Ohio since "Imperium in Imperio" was repealed in 1867 because its connotations smacked too much of empires and royalty.

The new motto is from Matthew 19:26—Selected.

RS

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, June 29, 1960

OUR FLAG

Our flag of red and white and blue,
Of history both brave and true;
Our flag of justice and of right,
Our flag of valor, courage, might;

Our flag of freedom's holy name,
Our flag with liberty its aim;
Our flag beloved by young and old,
With faith in every rippling fold;

Our flag of truth and trust and hope,
The light toward which the oppressed grope;
God bless it, never let it drag—
Our glorious, beloved flag!

—Grayce Krough Boller.

Christians?

Rev. Winston Swcency
Kingsport, Tennessee

“... And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch” (Acts 11:26).

HERE IN THIS SCRIPTURE we have the first mention of the disciples called Christians. I suppose many readers have been given as to why they were called such. I believe that a careful study of the first eleven chapters of the Acts of the Apostles will show why. These disciples were persons who professed faith (by baptism) in Jesus of Nazareth as the Messiah Christ, and based their activities on His teachings. There is a vast difference in this from the generally accepted usage of the name Christian.

To many, being a Christian means the individual who is a decent, respectable person. This is good, but being decent and respectable doesn't mean one is saved. Then many think because they were born of Christian parents, that automatically makes them a Christian. Also, there are many who think that belonging to a certain religious organization, bearing the name Christian, makes them one too. Nothing could be further from the truth.

In Chapter 8, Verse 4, we find that these disciples that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the Word. These individuals who professed faith in Jesus as Christ wanted to make Him known to the world. Look at the early chapters; you will find that Jesus Christ was their message. They really believed they had the message the people needed. They were strictly out for the Lord, and it was their zeal, their steadfastness (in face of opposition), their noble lives manifesting the Spirit of the Lord, that caused them to be called Christians. I wonder if we, who are Christians today, really manifest our relationship to the Lord as did the early disciples. We should be just as zealous as they were. We should be regarded as those who have been with Him and are living for Him and with Him. We did just today about a famous singer who would not sing unless he was permitted to give his testimony for Christ. Many of us are not willing to pay the price as did the early disciples. In view of this, we have to say that the name, Christian, costs much. Do we take it lightly? We are to be different. Certainly we are in the world, but not of the world! The world wants and needs to see some old-fashioned Christianity which will have its effects on the social phase of life. Real Christianity doesn't compromise with the works of darkness. Many times we sell our Christian name down the river because we fail to manifest His life in our lives.

We belong to, and endorse, organizations which carry on a lot of activities that aren't of the Lord, and seemingly our consciences aren't bothered at all. Many times we participate in school activities that aren't of the Lord. I'm not talking about sports either. Affairs at which bingo, cake walks, raffles, and various articles, under the guise that it will help the school, makes it all right. Brethren, being for the school doesn't make it right. Many people use the same argument concerning liquor. They say we will make it legal and collect the taxes. You can't legalize something God has a curse on. I realize this is in a negative area of religious thinking, but the negative needs to be preached as well as the positive. In certain areas of the United States, various religious organizations use bingo to raise money for the church and they are condemned for doing so (they should be); but we can do it for schools, civic, fraternal organizations and it's all right! No! Just plain shallow thinking! I realize a message such as this, to many people, borders on legalism, but always remember this: The apostle, James, taught that the grace that saves will produce works of righteousness.

In the book of Hosea, Chapter 14, we have some Scripture that gives a lot of light on the true Christian life. First, in Verse 5, the Lord says that He will be to the Christians as the dew. Now the dew is an intermediate force coming from above. We don't have a thing to do with it. We just wait for it to fall. God sent the Holy Spirit to help us. Also the dew is a penetrating force reaching in and down to water the entire plant, that it might grow. So is the Spirit to the Christian. Next, the dew is a proportionate force, all over. Last, but not least, the dew is a silent force. No fanfare, but slowly, surely, working. Also in Verse 5, the Lord says the Christian shall grow like the lily, which means in purity and in beauty, again manifesting the grace of God. This same verse says that the Christian shall cast forth his roots as Lebanon. Surely this refers to the hidden strength that he receives because he is anchored in the Lord.

You will also note that in Verse 6 the Christian's branches shall spread, denoting the scope and outreach of the life lived for God. The Christian's beauty shall be as the olive tree, meaning that fruit is borne. Verse 6 also says that the Christian's smell shall be as Lebanon, denoting attractiveness. Verses 7 and 8 are filled with references to the life we have been talking about. We preach grace, let us manifest grace. We preach love, let us love. We preach a clean life, let us live a clean life. The world needs a practical example of the outward manifestation of the Christian life.

Should some think this hard to do, let me close with the Word found in Titus 2:11-15: "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, Teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world; Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee."

●
"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold" (Proverbs 22:1).

●
"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6).

●
"A lying tongue hateth those that are afflicted by it; and a flattering mouth worketh ruin" (Proverbs 26:28).

●
"Confession with the mouth is the utterance of that which is believed in the heart."
—Gospel Herald.

●
"We praise, ordinarily, only to be praised."

Heaven- Or the United States?

by Jeanette Lockerbie

AN EMIGRANT! Twice it has been my lot, in the providence of God, to be an emigrant, a less than desirable state. Born in Scotland, I have been privileged to live under three flags.

In only one of the three countries, Scotland, Canada and the United States, can I claim citizenship by right of having been born there; my native Scotland.

I pondered this thought as I sat in the office of the United States Consul awaiting an interview that would finalize my application for entry into the United States. There was plenty of time for reflection and I found myself mulling over the question, "Is it easier to get into heaven—or the United States?"

In the qualifications for entry there is a close parallel.

The passport and visa—these are the requisites. But in order to obtain these, some definite measures must be taken. First, there is the birth certificate, and to my mind come the words of our Lord, ". . . Ye must be born again" (John 3:7). Even as the solemn warning of Verse 3, ". . . Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God," so is it absolutely mandatory that a birth certificate (or other acceptable proof of birth) be forthcoming for entry.

Next in order is the proof of a clear legal record: in the case of one who has lived in a number of places, it means obtaining a notarized document stating that the person in question has had no entanglements with the law, from a qualified person in each place. Otherwise one letter from the office of the Mounted Police (in the case of a Canadian citizen seeking a visa) is sufficient. To the Christian, freed from the penalty of the law, there is the reassurance of Romans 8:1, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, . . ."; again, in Romans 5:1, "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Not satisfied that the prospective new resident is a person of good moral character as evidenced by the record, the authorities are anxious to know if the applicant has any means of support! Will he be a public charge? And if the answer should be yes, it would be hardly likely that such a person would gain admittance. What satisfaction there is for the child of God in the promise, ". . . my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:19). And it is the promise of the unfailing God—not dependent upon human circumstances. How often has a relative, in all good faith, sponsored an emigrant loved one, only to fall himself upon lean times—and as a source of provision he has failed. Not so are the promises of our God. ". . . I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee" (Hebrews 13:5).

Another step that must be taken is fingerprinting, as a means of positive identification, and we are reminded that the very God who so made us that the fingerprints of each individual are different, is the God who holds us in the hollow of His hand. There will never be a case of mistaken identity in the relations between the Lord and His children. ". . . The Lord knoweth them that are his . . ." (2 Timothy 2:19). ". . . having this seal, . . ." means sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise.

The person seeking entry into a foreign country must have a valid reason: he must be going to a specific place and for a declared purpose—either to be of service at the invitation of the new country, or to engage in some type of work. John 17:24 gives us the place and the reason as we would draw a spiritual parallel: "Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: . . ."

The stipulations have all been met—the passport has been granted. Then comes the great moment of entry into the new land. And it is here that our analogy must inevitably break down; we have met all the requirements; we arrive at the port of entry and who is there to greet us? An impersonal official? But I read in John 14:3, ". . . I will come again, and will receive you . . . Not an angel, even Michael or Gabriel, but the Lord Jesus Christ, the "man in the glory" Himself!

Born into God's family—justified from all the penalty of sin—provided for by God's storehouse—sealed with the Spirit of promise—certain of a place prepared for eternity—and finally received into the Father's house.

"When I come to the river at ending of day,
When the last shades of sorrow have flown:
There'll be Somebody waiting to show me the way
I won't have to cross Jordan alone."
—Selected

Worship is not grand organs and beautiful vestments and lovely choirs. Worship is a heart in communion with God. It is to love God, which is an emotion. We seldom worship God one hour a Sunday, unless we also worship Him each day all day. Therefore teaching worship is not teaching church words or church behavior, but teaching a child to adore God and love God and speak with God on Thursday afternoon. The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois

"Just to say what He wants me to say,
And be still when He whispers to me
Just to go where He wants me to go,
Just to be what He wants me to be."

A Gallery of Great Americans

INTELLIGENT and dynamic leadership has always been the key to preserving our freedoms. As one crisis follows another, it becomes more and more apparent—leadership makes the difference.

These precious freedoms we guard today were created by dynamic leaders. When George Washington took his oath of office less than 200 years ago, the world suddenly changed. He was a big, sturdy man—but no longer young, and tired by six hard years of war. Petitioners asked him to be king, but he refused.

This great man had visions—but not of adulation. His dream was for freedom.

So it was for his fellow patriots—men like Paul Revere, John Hancock, and John Paul Jones.

Revere's father came to America from France—his name then was Apollon Riviere. A lad of thirteen, he was apprenticed to a blacksmith. When friends had difficulty pronouncing his name, he changed it to the one which since has gained immortality.

His third son—named for him—grew up to be a skilled artisan and outdoorsman. Broad-shouldered and strong, his pet diversions were to ride, skate and shoot. After serving as a lieutenant in the war between France and England, he became avidly interested in copper engraving.

He was America's first cartoonist. His best-known work stirred the hearts of patriots throughout the thirteen states—a vivid depiction of the Boston Massacre.

Revere was an active leader in the Boston Tea Party as member of the Sons of Liberty. When this group heard that a British force was moving to Concord to seize military stores, Revere embarked on the famous ride, warning the countryside that "The British are coming."

Revere gained his greatest fame for but one of his heroic acts—his great ride, which overshadowed his many other accomplishments.

John Hancock, best known for his bold signature on the Declaration of Independence, also contributed very much more to the cause of freedom.

One of the wealthiest and most influential citizens of Colonial Boston, Hancock could easily have been a proper Tory, living a sumptuous life.

He chose instead to identify himself with the cause of liberty; to risk his fortune and his life in the cause of American independence.

Hancock persistently used his influence against the Stamp Act—and when it was eventually repealed, he touched off a great celebration for his neighbors in open defiance to the British ruling body.

But the British demanded further revenues; taxed glass, paper and tea, among other things, to make up the lost revenue. Pressure mounted. On June 10, 1768, the captain of Hancock's sloop, Liberty, locked a customs inspector in his cabin and landed its cargo without paying a duty fee on the bulk of it.

Other customs officers had long hated and feared Hancock. They were waiting for just such an excuse; they seized the Liberty, and moored her within range of one of their frigate's guns.

Soon Hancock's invaluable leadership led to his installation as president of the Continental Congress. A Committee of Safety was organized—with Hancock as chairman—and the Minutemen were assembled.

Later he signed his name on the Declaration of Independence "large enough for King George to read without his spectacles." Today, that famous signature is still used as a trademark by one of the largest life insurance companies in America.

John Paul Jones went to sea at the age of twelve—a solemn young Scot. Hard-fisted skippers taught him what unfairness was—a lesson he never forgot.

Jones was spunky; advanced from apprentice to mate, then to captain and owner. But he wanted more than personal gain. Jones found it in America in 1775.

He took his old ship and decided to let its guns speak in the cause of independence. He mustered his own crews; paid them from his own pocket, pouring his health and strength into his ideal of liberty. It rendered him old at forty—but the net result was well worth it—for him and all of us today.

A precious matter, this liberty—it took great men to create it and great men to keep it alive. Captains of our present and future Ships of State can do far worse than look to the Colonial past for inspiration and guidance in these trying times. — The Free Methodist.

From top to bottom: George Washington, Paul Revere, John Hancock, John Paul Jones. Photos, courtesy John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company.

NEWS NOTES

Saints Delight Pastor Takes to the Air

Pictured above is the Rev. Ralph E. Clegg, pastor of Saints Delight Free Will Baptist Church of Route 4, Louisburg, North Carolina, beside the plane from which he distributed invitations to Sunday School Day. This was a special day at the Saints Delight Sunday School which was held on May 22. The attendance goal of 240 was broken with a total attendance of 244 in Sunday school. The Sunday school decided to make this a yearly affair.

Youth Revival Now in Session

A Youth for Christ revival began June 27 at the Sandy Plain Free Will Baptist Church near Pink Hill, North Carolina, with the Rev. and Mrs. Chester Phillips as the evangelists. These services will continue through July 2.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Rev. David Hutchinson Resigns Pastorate

The Rev. David Hutchinson recently resigned as pastor of Faith Free Will Baptist Church, Morehead City, North Carolina, to become effective August 28, 1960. Mr. Hutchinson is now available for pastoral work for the coming year. He may be contacted at 206 North 24th Street, Morehead City, North Carolina, or by calling Park 6-5651.

Crossett, Arkansas, Church Experiences Great Revival

A revival meeting which started June 6 and continued for ten days in the North Crossett Free Will Baptist Church with the Rev. O. T. Dixon of Mountain Grove, Missouri, as the evangelist, resulted in 24 de-isions for Christ and 18 additions to the church. Hundreds of people came to the meeting as blessings from God were enjoyed as the evangelist preached the Word of God night after night.

The pastor, the Rev. Cecil Sanders, has led the church as its pastor since October 1, 1959, and the attendance has continued to increase from that time. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders came to Crossett, Arkansas, from Nashville, Tennessee, shortly after Mr. Sanders received his B. A. degree from the Free Will Baptist Bible College. The church plans to complete its educational unit in the near future.

Indelible Imprints

↑ ↑

↑ ↑

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

OBITUARY OF ELDER R. A. JOHNSON

(Cape Fear Conference of North Carolina)

Elder R. A. Johnson, our beloved and deceased brother in Christ, a native of Johnston County, North Carolina, was born March 18, 1846.

He was married to Miss Margaret Johnson, September 30, 1866. In 1868, he professed religion and united with the Free Will Baptist church, November 26, 1868; and feeling divinely called to preach the gospel, he was granted license to exercise his gift in the ministry. He commenced to preach June 10, 1869, and from that time proved

Coming Events

July 4—Independence Day

August 14-19—College Youth Conference,
Mount Olive College, Mount Olive,
North Carolina

to be a great instrument in turning many souls from nature's darkness unto the glorious light and liberty of the Lord Jesus Christ, by the beautiful declaration of God's holy Word.

Elder Johnson was loved by a large multitude of people all over North Carolina. He was devoted to his family, and succeeded in providing bread for them after the manner in which God told Adam he should get bread by the sweat of his face. He was quite a swift accumulator, and a very liberal giver to all benevolent organizations, good, especially that of his denomination which he so dearly loved.

With joy and thanks, his surviving brethren in Christ can behold with more and tearful eyes, the beautiful churches which were instrumental in building, for which he has gone to be rewarded by his heavenly Father, and to inherit a home in the mansions above. Although the bustle of persecution seemed to do all it could to cause him to fall out by the way, he was like unto a house built upon a rock—he fell not. Though the storms of persecution howled around him, he was able to speak with God's holy Word, "He that putteth his hand to the plow and looketh back, is not fit for the Kingdom of God."

Elder Johnson was a consistent member of the church, faithful to go to his appointments and reserved a good name until death. He spent twenty-four years of his life in the ministry, and proved to be successful in many ministerial undertakings. He passed away in January, 1893, in the 47th year of his age. He left a wife and five children to mourn the loss of a Christian husband and father.

He was so much concerned about the spiritual welfare of his children, that just before the hour of his death, when his strength was almost gone, he called them to his dying bedside and instructed them manfully as to the duty they owed to God and especially the two youngest which were boys, and had never made a public profession of faith in Christ. He required them to get down on their knees by his dying bedside and place their hands in his and promise him that they would abstain from strong drink, and instructed them in general to quit their manner of living and live soberly, righteously and Godly in this world, that they would reach heaven and immortal glory.

Elder Johnson left bright testimony of his manner of life, and in the trying hour of death said that he was going to the glory world.

"Mark the perfect man, and behold thou upright, for the end of that man is peace"

College President Honored

THE Rev. William Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, was recently awarded an honorary degree, Doctor of Laws, by Atlantic Christian College of Wilson, North Carolina. Mr. Raper was highly praised by Atlantic Christian College a citation which was read when his degree was presented. This citation was worded as follows:

William Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, has left a significant imprint upon the educational life of eastern North Carolina in a manner which commends him for the honor for which he is cited, the honorary degree, Doctor of Laws.

Seldom indeed have such stern demands been assumed by so youthful a person with such commendable results as those assumed and achieved by William Burkette Raper since becoming one of the nation's youngest college presidents at the age of 27 years.

Born in 1927 in Wayne County, North Carolina, he was reared in the Free Will Baptist Children's Home in Middlesex, North Carolina, due to the death of his mother. After graduation from Middlesex High School in 1944, he enrolled at Duke University where he earned the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1947, and the graduate degree, Bachelor of Divinity, in 1952.

During his subsequent service as a pastor of the Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church in Snow Hill, North Carolina, from 1951-1954, and promotional director of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptist Churches, William Burkette Raper has demonstrated those qualities of courage, tenacity, clear vision and utter dedication which caused his denomination to call him to become the first president of the newly-

How to Read Your Bible More Effectively

Nathanael Olson

READ YOUR BIBLE—not as a newspaper, but as a letter from home.

"If a cluster of heavenly fruit hangs within reach, gather it.

"If a promise lies upon the page as a blank check, cash it.

"If a prayer is recorded, appropriate it, and launch it as a feathered arrow from the bow of your desire.

"If a truth is revealed in all its intrinsic splendor, entreat that its brilliance may ever irradiate the hemisphere of your life like a star.

"Entwine the climbing creepers of holy desire round the lattice work of Scripture. So shall you come to say with the psalmist, 'O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day' (Psalm 119:97)."

So says famous Bible teacher, F. B. Meyer.

organized Mount Olive Junior College which at time was without faculty, funds, facilities or students. Since assuming his office, he has presided over a program of advance which can appropriately be called Operation Bootstrap. Against discouraging odds, he has manifested undaunted courage which refused to be deterred by temporary, though sharp setbacks. His persistence, his tenacious adherence to high objectives and his inspired leadership of a dedicated faculty and staff led the college to accredited status in the North Carolina College Conference in 1958. Currently the college is nearing the conclusion of intensive preparations to satisfy all requirements for admission to the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as a fully accredited junior college.

As the youthful president of the institution which he heads, William Burkette Raper is a front line pioneer in his denomination's venture in Christian Higher Education, Mount Olive College being the only institution of higher learning of the Free Will Baptist denomination in North Carolina, and one of two such colleges in the United States.

In every way he typifies the indomitable spirit which has led to the founding of the church-related colleges throughout our land; the quality and vigor of his leadership provide glowing evidence why many have succeeded and thus have become crucial factors in the development of the unique experiment which is American higher education.

For these reasons, it is with genuine pride that we cite William Burkette Raper for the honorary degree, Doctor of Laws.

Atlantic Christian College
May 29, 1960

Here are three other helpful hints to make your Bible reading more enjoyable and helpful.

1. READ YOUR BIBLE SLOWLY

"Haste makes waste" is the old proven proverb. You miss many spiritual gems if you read rapidly. Hurried devotions become nothing but religious commotions.

The Bible says, ". . . they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength . . ." (Isaiah 40:31). In this age of jet speed and tense nerves, learn the art of waiting on the Lord with His Word before you.

So remember, read your Bible slowly. Let your soul digest its spiritual calories!

2. READ YOUR BIBLE PERSONALLY

Apply Bible truths to your own life. When you read about Abraham's faith, ask yourself, "Do I have the faith in God that Abraham had? Would I sacrifice my son if God wanted me to?" When you read that David was a man after God's own heart; check your conscience to see if God could say the same about you.

Keep a sheet of paper handy. Jot down your thoughts about the verses you are reading, and file them for future help in personal work, in speaking to church groups, in correspondence, or just sharing a Bible nugget with a Christian friend.

Be able to say, "Every promise in God's Book is mine."

3. READ YOUR BIBLE PURPOSEFULLY

Just before you read a sacred passage, think about the problems you face. Ask yourself, "What help do I need from God's Word today? Spiritual victory? Financial provision? Physical strength? Understanding for personal problems?" Then after you know exactly what you need, give your declaration of dependence: "Lord, I desperately need Thy help. I don't know how to solve this problem, but You do, Lord. And I believe You will give me the solution through Your Word."

Then begin to read your Bible with this definite purpose in mind. It sparks new interest. And because you are looking for something, you'll find something! God answers specific praying, and He rewards specific reading of His Word.

Follow these three signposts to better Bible reading—TODAY! Then the Good Old Book will take on a new, fresh meaning in your devotions.

Try them—and see!

—American Tract Society.

It takes a mature Christian to keep in mind this question: "What in my behavior is hard to my (husband, wife, or family) to bear, and how can I change it?"—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

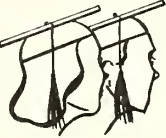

QUESTION: Please explain, "And in those days shall men seek death, and shall not find it; and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them" (Revelation 9:6).—A. T., Georgia.

ANSWER: The ninth chapter of Revelation in part describes the prophetic period called, "The great tribulation." The record of the trumpet judgment of which this verse is only a small portion, sets forth a scene of that terrible period that is depicted in the Scriptures as the most horrible of all the judgment periods to ever occur upon this earth. Apostate Christendom as well as decadent Judaism will be tried to the enth degree, while evil in all imaginable forms go unabated. The Holy Spirit who now rules here in the hearts of believers will have been taken to heaven with the true members of the Church, the body of Christ; and there will not be found anywhere one who so definitely and completely opposes evil as does the Holy Spirit now. "For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming: Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: That they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness" (2 Thessalonians 2:7-12).

The unrest and mental anguish will be so horrible that many people will resort to suicide as a means of escape; but since this will be a time of spiritual depression even for the unsaved, there will be almost no relief from all the combined sources. God will therefore bar the suicide latch by letting none be able to commit that act of violence. How glad we Christians should be that all born-again persons are to be eternally present with our Lord before such a condition settles down upon this earth.

"Wherefore is light given to him that is in misery, and life unto the bitter in soul; Which long for death, but it cometh not;

and dig for it more than for hid treasures; Which rejoice exceedingly, and are glad, when they can find the grave?" (Job 3:20-22); "So that my soul chooseth strangling, and death rather than my life. I loathe it: I would not live alway: let me alone; for my days are vanity" (Job 7:15, 16); ". . . and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted, and wished in himself to die, and said, It is better for me to die than to live" (Jonah 4:8). The above Scriptures point out two men that would have rather died than to be in their predicament, and neither was living in such outstanding day of evil as the unprecedented tribulation is to be. Throughout the Bible God continues to insist that man needs repentance and that His provision in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son, is the only means by which this can be done; and yet in spite of every plea, as a whole, man has rejected God's provision substituting his own means in the form of works, which can never be acceptable to God. It is God's way or no way. Most people prefer no way, and many are to be caught here in the great tribulation having made such an unwise choice. Then it is too late, for there will be no repentance available to those who have willfully rejected Christ and His gospel.

FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE

OFFERS

A BIBLE-CENTERED EDUCATION FOR ALL CHRISTIAN YOUTH

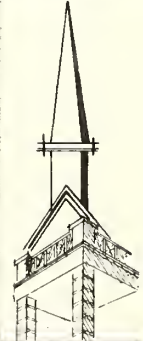

- One year Business Education Course
- Four year B. A. degree with 10 different programs from departments of
 - Bible
 - Theology and Philosophy
 - Missions
 - Pastoral Training
 - Christian Education
 - Music
 - English
 - Foreign Languages
 - Business Education
 - Social Studies
- Five year B. S. degree program in Nursing
 - Spiritual Emphasis
 - Evangelistic — Missionary
 - Practical Christian Service

With the Catalogues of

FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE

1606 WEST END AVENUE NASHVILLE, TENN.

Accredited by the Association of Bible Colleges

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THREE APPEARINGS

"For then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world: but not once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice himself" (Hebrews 9:26).

Sometime ago, Dr. E. Schuyler English wrote and published in his little magazine "The Pilgrim," the following article, which is very good, and which I am passing on to my readers with the hope and prayer that will both strengthen you and encourage you to live more and more for Him each day.

Early in September, President Eisenhower completed his historic visits to Bonn, London and Paris. To the West German he came as their former conqueror, but also showed himself to be their friend; he pledged to Chancellor Adenauer and the German people that no secret treaty would be made between the United States and the U. S. S. R., and that the American people are on their side.

To the British, the President of the United States paid his visit as an esteemed ally, and it was as if he were coming home after an absence of nearly a score of years. He and Prime Minister Macmillan exchanged views of Premier Khrushchev's scheduled tour of America and the prospects of another summit meeting.

To the French, Mr. Eisenhower appeared as their liberator, and President de Gaulle and the French people were given assurance that the interests of France were also the interests of the United States.

These three appearances of President Eisenhower, to three different peoples in three different places, as reassuring and spectacularly successful as they were (or seemed the time to have been), are dwarfed in comparison with three appearances of our Lord Jesus Christ—past, present and future. All of them are referred to in the Epistle to the Hebrews, Chapter 9: (1) ". . . in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself" (Vs. 26); (2) Christ entered ". . . in heaven itself, now to appear in the presence

God for us" (Vs. 24); and (3) "... unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (vs. 28).

1. Christ has appeared to put away sin. The allusion, of course, to the incarnation of the Son of God who became man that he might bear the penalty for our sins. "... when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, . . . To redeem . . ." (Galatians 4:4, 5). Since all have sinned and come short of God's glory (Romans 3:23), it was necessary that a Redeemer come.

This is He, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, whom God made to be sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him (2 Corinthians 5:21), that is, through faith in His death on our behalf for us. Christ has appeared to put away sin.

2. Christ now appears in the presence of God for us. There is a man in the glory. This is He who came to earth and, by the sacrifice of Himself, put away sin. He died, but He rose again and is now seated in the presence of God on our behalf. As far as the Christians' standing is concerned, the work of redemption is finished. But how vastly we need the high-priestly, intercessory ministry! Day and night He is occupied on our behalf, to guard and keep us. He intercedes, that we might not sin (Hebrews 7:25). And when we do sin, He acts as our Advocate with the Father (1 John 2:1, 2). Christ now appears in God's presence for us.

3. Christ will appear apart from sin unto salvation. Our blessed Lord, who came to earth once to pay the purchase price of our redemption, will come again as He promised (John 14:3; Revelation 22:7, 12; cf. Acts 1:11). This second advent of Christ will be without sin unto salvation, that is apart from the sin question and for the redemption of our bodies. For when He returns (and we speak of all phases of that coming), the redeemed souls will receive their resurrected bodies and be like Him (Romans 8:23; 1 John 3:2). Surely all of His own people are waiting expectantly for that appearing. Christ will appear apart from sin unto salvation.—Selected.

"When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory" (Colossians 3:4).

ward. He was only 49 years old, but had been in declining health for several years. He bore his sickness with patience.

Mr. Liles was a member of Union Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Nash County, North Carolina. His funeral was conducted at the church by the Rev. H. L. Boykin and the Rev. Paul Lee. The body was laid to rest in Middlesex Cemetery beneath a beautiful mound of flowers.

He leaves to mourn his wife, Mrs. Martha Lamm Liles; two sons; four daughters; and six grandchildren.

We loved him, yes, we loved him;

But angels loved him more.

'Tis gently they have called him

To yonder's shining shore.

The golden gates were open—
A gentle voice said, "Come."
And with farewells unspoken,
He calmly entered home.

A Sister-in-Law,

Mrs. Jennie Sherrod

The Bible is written to help "good" church people. "Good" church people passed by the wounded man near Jericho. "Good" church people grumbled when Jesus ate with sinners. "Good" church people took Jesus to Pilate and to the Cross. Yes, indeed, the Bible is written for us church people.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

EVENTS AWAITING THE RETURN OF THE LORD FROM HEAVEN

(Acts 3:20, 21)

1. The resurrection of the dead in Christ (1 Thessalonians 4:16).
Discuss—first, second, general resurrection (1 Corinthians 15:23; Revelation 20:6; Daniel 12:2).
2. The transfiguration of living believers (1 Corinthians 15:52).
Discuss—nature of resurrected body (Philippians 3:20, 21; 1 John 3:2; 1 Corinthians 15:42).
3. The translation of the Church (Christ's Body) (1 Thessalonians 4:17).
Discuss—those who see the Morning Star (John 14:3; 2 Thessalonians 2:1; Hebrews 9:28).
4. The judgment of the believer's works (Romans 10:14).
Discuss—seven New Testament judgments (1 Corinthians 3:10-15; 2 Corinthians 5:10; Luke 19:11-26).
5. The restoration of the Jewish nation (Matthew 24:44).
Discuss—the indestructible Jew (Luke 21:24-33; Acts 15:14-18; Romans 11:18).
6. The judgment of the living nations (Matthew 25:30, 31).
Discuss—nations who will enjoy age life (Joel 3:12; Revelation 5:10; 11:18).

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mr. Edward Buddie Liles

On May 24, 1960, the death angel came and took Edward B. Liles to his eternal re-

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Prayer and Praise Letter

June 9, 1960

Dear Missionary Helper:

These are supremely critical days. Many fear that we stand on the threshold of global war. Your prayers on behalf of the Free Will Baptist missionary program and the world at large are needed as never before.

What better way is there to minister to the world than through prayer? Christ's

7. The establishment of the Kingdom of God (2 Timothy 4:1).
Discuss—what the Kingdom is not, what it is (Daniel 7:13; Revelation 11:21; Luke 19:12, 13).

"The Kingdom is coming, O tell ye the story,
God's banner exalted shall be;
The earth shall be full of His knowledge and glory,
As waters that cover the sea."

—Rev. C. C. Maple.

WHEN GOD IS NEAR

In the secret place of my heart there is a little gate which, if I open and enter, I am in the presence of God. Anywhere, at any time, alone or in a crowded street, in the turning of a thought, I am where God is, rejoicing. When I open the gate of prayer, all life has meaning and music; I know without asking; my hunger is fed and fevered thirst is quenched. The fret and hurry of life are lost in a great quiet; time has melted into eternity. My sorrows flee away like shadows in the dawn, and I see the everlasting hills whence cometh my help. Big things seem small and small things become great; the near is far and the far is near. My fellow men are with me in a new intimacy of fellowship, not one forgotten, and those whom I have lost are strangely close and dear when God is near.—
Joseph Fort Newton.

HOW ABOUT PREJUDICES?

How groundless and senseless are most of our prejudices. When I was a small boy, I came home late one afternoon, as hungry as a wolf. Laying on the kitchen table was what I thought was a tempting piece of yellow cheese! I leapt for it, and took a big bite of it, only to make the sad discovery that what I thought was cheese was a partially used bar of octagon soap! After considerable sputtering, I cleared my mouth of the bad-tasting stuff. In imagination, I can still taste that soap, and I have a lingering prejudice against octagon soap!

How like this are many of the prejudices which plague people!
—Gospel Herald.

command for the church to pray is just as explicit as His command to go.

"Prayer moves the hand that moves the world!"

Jesus said, ". . . What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them" (Mark 11:24).

James said, ". . . ye have not, because ye ask not" (James 4:2).

The following news notes contain matters about which you are urged to pray.

SUFFERS HEART ATTACK: On May 1 promotional secretary, Rev. Louis H. Moulton, suffered a coronary heart attack. He and Mrs. Moulton were en route to Norfolk, Virginia, where Rev. Moulton was to have begun a revival the next day. He was taken to General Hospital in Galax, Virginia.

His condition is satisfactory. However, he will be unable to resume his duties for several weeks. He has been taken by ambulance to Georgia for a period of rest and recovery. His mail should be sent c/o Mr. W. B. Knight, Route 1, Glennville, Georgia.

On behalf of the Moultons, sincere thanks is expressed for the cards, letters and flowers which have been sent to them by their friends.

MOTHER OF MISSIONARY NURSE ILL: Mrs. George Ruchle, mother of missionary nurse Esther Ruchle, is critically ill in a hospital in Hopkins, Michigan. She has cancer and the doctors say that her maximum life expectancy is a few weeks.

DR. MILEY TO FINISH INTERNSHIP: Dr. LaVerne D. Miley will finish his work in Memphis on June 30. Since his graduation from the University of Tennessee School of Medicine, Dr. Miley has had 18 months of internship in Memphis hospitals. The last six months has been in surgery.

Dr. Miley and family plan to attend the National Association in Fresno. Immediately thereafter they will begin their itinerant work.

In addition to their salaries, at least $10,000.00 will be needed the first year to pay for their language school expense, passage, automobile, furniture, rent and other expenses. This amount does not include anything for medical facilities which must be provided before a medical work can be carried on in the Bondoukou Circle.

We trust that the needed funds will soon be sent in to the Dr. Miley Account.

We must continue to support our missionaries now on the field and at the same time send out new laborers.

Five months of 1960 are now past. How many of your state given five twelfths of its quota for foreign missions? Most states have not. Giving must be accelerated if the needs of our missionaries already on the field are to be met.
(continued on page thirteen)

NOTES

|| A
N
D ||

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

PASTORS THAT SCATTER

"Woe be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture: saith the LORD. Therefore thus saith the LORD God of Israel against the pastors that feed my people; Ye have scattered my flock, and have given them away, and have not visited them: behold I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, saith the LORD" (Jeremiah 23:1, 2).

In the days of Jeremiah, there were pastors that were unfaithful. There have been faithful pastors, and there will be unfaithful pastors in the future generation. But I want to deal with the unfaithful of our day.

UNFAITHFULNESS DEMANDED OF GOD

God has always punished the unfaithful, whether pastors or laity. No unfaithful servant can get by without punishment.

"So thou, O son of man, I have set thee watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word of my mouth, and warn them from me. When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will require at thine hand" (Ezekiel 33:7, 8). Since God is an unchanging God (Malachi 3:6), I believe that God holds us who are pastors to the line as He did in the days of Ezekiel, and as He will in days to come. Thus, are we as loyal to the work of the pastorate as we should be? Is it not a fact that we sidetrack the duties of the pastorate for the foolish things of the world. When we should be visiting the sick and shut-ins, are we not guilty of neglect in many cases? I heard a lady say a few years ago, "We have a good preacher; he is just fine in the pulpit, but we have no pastor." God wants to be pastors as well as preachers. However, some are gifted pastors according to the gift of Christ; but, whatever our gift is, we should be faithful in the use of that gift (Galatians 4:11).

UNFAITHFUL IN STUDY

Jesus Christ said, while on earth, "Search the scriptures; . . ." (John 5:39). Perhaps Christians are guilty more or less in the command to study. Bible reading is neglected by many Christians. In my travel and visitation, I find that there are many who do more searching for bargains in sale catalogs, looking at the various styles, than they do searching for the truth as recorded in God's Word. These catalogs are always kept handy; possibly, you find them on the end table or rack. But when you ask for a Bible, it takes some time to find it and get the dust off so it will be presentable. This is a sad condition with the laity; but when the man whom God has called to preach the Word goes out without knowledge of the truth, that is a tragedy. Misinformed ministers cause ignorance among the laity. God said through Hosea, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing that thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children" (Hosea 4:6).

We are commanded by the apostle, Paul, in his message to Timothy, to study the Scriptures. This command is as binding on us today as it was on Timothy. Paul says, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Timothy 2:15). How can a man rightly divide something that he does not know? In speaking of a young preacher of the past, some lady said, "He uses such big words that I do not understand what he is saying." So proper study and searching to know the truth will help us to rightly divide the word so that the ordinary people can understand. When I think of big words in a message, I think of a young Negro preacher who invited his boss to go hear him preach one Sunday. His boss accepted and attended. On the following Monday, his boss saw him down with his dictionary searching for knowledge and said, "Sam what are you doing, looking for some more big words to use next Sunday?" Sam replied, "No sah, I'se trying to find out the meaning of de ones I used last Sunday." We better have the knowledge before preaching, that is, if the people shall have knowledge of the Word.

DESTROYING PASTORS

"Woe be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture! saith the LORD" (Jeremiah 23:1). How can we destroy the sheep? Well, there are many ways, as already mentioned, to scatter the sheep. One is by misinforming them. It has been said, "It is harder to unlearn than to learn." I have heard misinformed people quote Scripture and say that it was in the Bible, when actually it was homemade and not in the Bible at all. There are too many of these quotations to mention at this time. People are destroyed by the ignorance of the truth.

Then congregations are destroyed by envious, jealous preachers—preachers who want praise and adoration for themselves, preachers who have learned little and think they know much. They divide and break the peace between Christians of the same body. The devil loves to divide. He divided the church at Corinth. Sometimes preachers help the devil to divide the people. Let us take a look at I Corinthians 1:11-15 and see what was going on at Corinth: "For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you. Now this I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ. Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were you baptized in the name of Paul? I thank God that I baptized none of you, but Crispus and Gaius; Lest any should say that I baptized in mine own name."

Paul did not mind telling where he got his information because he knew the family of Chloe could back up what he said. Many people would say, "I'll tell you, but don't use my name in it." Paul's information was a fact, not just a rumor. Paul wanted a united people—a people who put Christ first in everything. If Paul had been like many preachers today, he would have said, "You fellows that are for me, come on and we will build us a church of our own. We'll show those fellows who's who."

I could call names of churches that started out of envy and strife and divisions that are many years old, but they are not missionary churches. They have not amounted to much. I found two churches years ago that were right close to each other. Both claimed to be Free Will Baptist. They were small, weak and actually were not doing anything much as churches. The spirit of division was evident.

God wants missionary-minded churches—churches that are born in a mother church, that will go out after hearing the Macedonian call, in answer to that call. A godly number are sent out of the parent body to establish a new work for the glory of God. God unites; Satan divides.

SPECIAL NOTICE

When sending in news items for publication in "The Free Will Baptist" which call for the use of pictures, please do not send mats or cuts. We prefer the use of clear, sharp snapshots or photographs which will be retained in our files for further use.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

God Works His Purposes

by Margaret N. Freeman

IOLA WAS THE CHILD of parents who truly wanted to create in their home an island of righteousness in which their children might be reared so they would influence the world for good.

She was a bright, sunny child who went happily to Sunday school clutching her collection money. She sang songs about the home—cheerful little songs about Jesus' love. One day, somewhat to the confusion of her mother, her concern extended to the vast estate beyond and the man with the "silver hair who looked so lonesome."

The family hadn't lived in the neighborhood long, but Iola's mother had been forewarned: "He's a crabby, old man—almost atheistic in his ideas. I'd keep Iola away from him and leave him alone. He's happiest that way."

"Your daddy and I plan to visit him sometime, Iola. You run along and play now," her mother told her.

Iola persisted in her wish to visit the old fellow. "But what will you do and what will you say when you get there?" her mother wondered.

"I'll pick him some of our big, red apples. I'll rub them until they shine, and I'll say they're a present just for him. I'll talk to him and sing for him, too. Maybe then he'll look more cheerful."

Like Miriam of old, the mother watched and waited from a vantage point until the huge old gate clicked shut behind the slight form of her daughter. Would he shake his goldheaded cane in the face of her child and order her off his property in his quavering old voice? Would he cruelly reject her gift? Would some acid remark or action of his leave an ugly mark on the child's faith?

Fifteen minutes passed by—20, 30, 45, an hour. The child returned finally and was swept into her mother's embrace.

She raised her shining face to her mother's. One small moist hand clutched a shiny 50-cent piece. "He gave me a present, too! See, Mommy? And oh, he really liked the apples. He cut one with a silver knife, and he ate a bite and I ate a bite until it was all gone. He said it was the best-tasting food he'd had in years."

"What did you talk about, dear?"

"Oh," the child said vaguely, "we just talked about lots of stuff—about you and Daddy and Baby Ned; about Grandpa and Grandma and Aunt Susan; about his son who was a soldier; about Jesus and Sunday school." Then she threw her bombshell into the conversation: "He's going to Sunday school next Sunday. He said he hasn't been to Sunday school for an awfully long time. I'm going to stop by for him."

"Well, it's what we've always tried to teach her—concern for others," the father said.

"But she's so little, I'm afraid she'll get hurt. Maybe he just said he'd go to get rid of her, and she's counting on it so!" answered the mother. So they tried to be casual about it, thinking perhaps the child would forget in the intervening days.

Perhaps they were the most amazed of all, and inwardly ashamed of their own lack of faith, to watch the two turning down the street together on Sunday morning. There was shining joy in the hearts of those parents, a joy as bright as the sunbeams that played tag first on the silvered locks of the dignified old man and then on the golden hair of the dancing child beside him. Chatting like two, dear old friends, they turned into the house of God.

The old man sought the pastor after the service. "Years ago," he quavered, "I attended this church but then one of its members wronged me and I swore I'd never darken the door again. I probably would have kept that vow but for the dear little child who visited me this week. Honest concern shone out of her blue eyes—concern for me. It took me back to my mother's loving concern years ago, and I began to feel there was One who had a deeper concern than all. The One you told about in your sermon today, sir—the One who died for me."

"Yes," mused the pastor, "God often works His purposes through a child. Numerous experiences prove it. Mothers, fathers and friends have been cut to the heart and reproved of their sins and saved as a result of a child's sweet faith and testimony."—Gospel Herald.

The Little Preacher

THE SHORTEST SERMON I ever heard was preached by the shortest preacher I ever saw, on a small steamer running between Toronto and the Island. Ever since the boat left the wharf, a little voice had been asking questions, one after another, as fast as the little tongue could

A policeman took his place beside the little boy, who turned up his dear little face and said:

"Are you a policeman?"

"Yes," answered the man, looking at him kindly.

"Why are you a policeman?" was the next question.

The policeman gave a puzzled laugh, he took out the key of the patrol box and a pair of handcuffs, and told him they were to put on bad boys when he took the away.

"You won't take me away," said the little fellow bravely, looking him straight in the face.

"No, my boy, I won't take you, but whom do you belong?" asked the big man still smiling at the mite of a boy.

"I belong to Jesus," said the child.

The big policeman got very red in the face, and rising very hurriedly, left his seat.

I shall never forget that little preacher and his little sermon. The sermon was only four words. Little reader, could you preach it? "I belong to Jesus."—Selected.

A Salute to Our Flag

HERE in the United States we have a pledge which juniors say in saluting our beautiful flag of 13 red and white stripes and 50 stars.

Many years ago, in August of 1892, a man named Frances Bellamy wrote the pledge we use in saluting our flag.

He wanted to write something short, that would say much. It was hard to do that, but he got alone one day and began to write words he thought would fit.

Mr. Bellamy thought about our wonderful country, and many of the things in our history. At last he wrote these words that people have been using ever since:

"I pledge allegiance to my flag, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

There is something else to which boys and girls in all countries can pledge allegiance. That is the Bible. David said, "For ever O LORD, thy word is settled in heaven" (Psalm 119:89).

The 119th Psalm has 176 verses. It is the longest chapter in the Bible. Read it slowly and see how many of its verses say something about the Word of God.—Selected.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

STUDY IN EPHESIANS Chapter 6

The last chapter of Ephesians proclaims the warfare of the church, and urges its members to "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil" (Vs. 11).

Verses 1-3: Children, whatever be your age and circumstances in the world, obey the advice and commands of your parents, according to all laws, human and divine, as is a just debt. This is the only commandment which has a promise annexed to itself in particular, requires every one of you to think in the most affectionate and obedient and honorable manner; that through the blessing of God your life on earth may be long and prosperous.

Verse 4: Parents, carefully avoid everything unreasonable, or harsh toward your children, which might prejudice them against you or your religion; but, by a diligent example, fervent prayer and persuasive instruction and correction, bring them to the knowledge and obedience of God.

Verse 5: Servants, obey all the lawful commands of your earthly masters, who, in things pertaining to this world, have a right over you to their services. Be willing and faithful servants to them. See that you do all this with a sincere and honest heart, as therein desiring to serve the Lord.

Verses 6-8: We are told to fulfill our services with diligence, not merely to please men for your own honor or advantages, but to perform every part of your services with the thought of glorifying your Lord and Master.

Verse 9: Masters, fulfill the duties of your station with like view, in singleness of heart as to Christ, and that you behave toward your servants with gentleness and humanity—always remembering that you are the servant of Christ, who takes notice of your conduct and will call you to account for it, without paying any more respect to you than to your servants.

Verses 10-13: In these verses Paul is asking us to be strong in the Lord. For we have great need for all His help; for in our everyday living we encounter men in all ranks and stations of life. Since we have so many powerful enemies to fight, see that we are fully armored in Jesus' strength and make a proper use of every spiritual weapon, that God has furnished us with that we may overcome all our enemies.

Verses 14-17: Keep your mind, soul and body girt with the truths of God that you may daily exercise the righteousness which comes from faith and love.

Verse 18: None of our efforts can be effectual without the special aids of the divine spirit which comes from a praying heart. God not only asks us to pray for ourselves, but also for all our fellow Christians that they, along with us, may grow in light, love and grace.

Verse 19: Paul is asking that he be included in their prayers. He is asking that he be released from prison that he might be given an opportunity to preach the mysteries of the gospel.

Verse 20: Paul is an ambassador in bonds for preaching the gospel; yet, he is seeking his freedom that he might continue carrying the message of salvation.

Verses 21, 22: Paul is explaining to the people at Ephesus that he is sending this epistle to them by Tychicus, a fellow minister, to inform them of his suffering and how the Lord has cared for him during his imprisonment. Paul stated that by Tychicus' preaching the gospel, he would comfort their spirits, and encourage them to trust in the Lord and walk in His way, amidst all opposition.

Verses 23, 24: May the peace, love and grace from God the Father be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Happy are those families in which parents, children, masters and servants make Christ's law their rule, His example their pattern, His love their motive, and His honor their end, in all their conduct. Numerous and subtle are the enemies and hard the trials of every true Christian. But since they are rooted in Christ, the Captain of their salvation, His strength, and the complete armor He has provided for them, are sufficient to withstand and overcome all opposition. Happy are those who are taught of God to cleave to Him, follow His direction. Nothing is more useful than a vigorous faith and persevering and fervent prayer.

Mrs. Frank L. Walston

Scotland Neck, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Hope Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Ann Joyner for its regular monthly meeting on June 17. Following the opening hymn, Mrs. Irene Morris led the group in prayer. The president, Mrs. Nannie Harrell read the Scripture reading.

The program chairman, Mrs. Lila Croon, had charge of the program. Those taking part in the program were Mrs. Irene Morris, Mrs. Nannie Harrell and Mrs. Lila Croon.

During the business session, the roll was called with 12 members present. The minutes were read and approved. The hostess, Mrs. Joyner, served delicious refreshments.

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

be met—to say nothing of those who should soon be sent out.

Please check up and catch up.

FUTURE PLANS OF MISSIONARY CANDIDATES: The John Moehlmans are now doing deputation work in Texas. They have been approved by the board for Latin America and will leave the States as soon as their support is raised.

The James Davises are anxiously waiting for their permit to enter India. Miss Wilson in India was promised six months ago that the visas would be granted.

The Lonnie Palmers will attend the Summer School of Linguistics in Norman, Oklahoma. They have already engaged in some itinerant work and will finish their deputation work this fall.

The Bobby Aycocks hope to enter language school in Brazil in January, 1961. He has resigned his church effective July 17, and will then begin full-time deputation work.

The Bill Fulchers will continue with their church until fall before beginning their deputation work on a large scale.

The Paul Robinsons will get some on the job training in Old Mexico this summer. They, too, will begin full-time deputation work this fall. The Robinsons and the Fulchers plan to go together to some new field in Latin America.

Bobby Poole will do extensive deputation work this summer. He will enter language school in Brazil as soon as his support is underwritten.

"... how shall they hear without a preacher? ... And how shall they preach, except they be sent?" (Romans 10:14, 15).

May we count on you to help send these who have volunteered to go?

Yours for missions,
Rolla D. Smith
General Director

(Continued on page fourteen)

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Bible College Summer School Sets New Record

With 32 students enrolled, the fourth annual summer school held May 24—June 3 of Free Will Baptist Bible College broke previous summer session registration records. Eighteen were out-of-state students while 14 were regular students.

Courses were taught in Epistles of John, I and II Thessalonians, Free Will Baptist Mississippi; Mable Priest, Calvin, Oklahoma; Jennie Ruth Marker, McEwen, Tennessee; Mrs. J. B. Hall, faculty member.

Second Row—Dr. L. C. Johnson, president; Curtis Butler, Camcron, Oklahoma; Dr. J. P. Barrow, faculty member; Gerald Chester, Panama, Oklahoma; Robert Avitia, Brownsville, Texas; Larry Montgomery, Calvin, Oklahoma; Ralph L. Bell, Ashford, Alabama; John Edwards, Dothan, Alabama; Kenneth Riggs, Nashville, Tennessee; Bobby King, Cramerton, North Carolina.

Third Row—Dean Charles Thigpen;

Doctrine, Doctrine of the Holy Spirit, Sunday School Administration, and Daily Vacation Bible School.

Some of the students spoke of the session as one of the spiritual highlights in their ministerial experience.

The two-week session is offered each year as an opportunity for pastors and Christian workers to advance their Bible training.

The summer school students, pictured above, are identified as follows:

Front Row—Lucy Wiseshart Lima, Cuba; Patsy Priest, Calvin, Oklahoma; Ann Arnett, Columbus, Georgia; Agnes Terry, Springfield, Missouri; Amy Robinson, Madison Heights, Michigan; Betty Beasley, Saltillo, Kermit Argo, Norman, Oklahoma; Tommy Godley, Macesfield, North Carolina; Archie Burress, Granby, Missouri; Leroy Forlines, faculty member; Gene Anderson, Detroit, Michigan; Paul Robinson, Madison Heights, Michigan; Don Robirds, Modesto, California; Roma Stewart, Calvin, Oklahoma; Doyle Goldy, Palisades, Washington; Clifford Austin, Louisa, Kentucky; Ted Greene, Morehead, Kentucky; E. B. McDonald, treasurer; Fred Hawkins, Sweetwater, Tennessee; Grover Terry, Springfield, Missouri; Stanley Tyson, Farmville, North Carolina; Felix J. Lima, Cuba.

Not Pictured—Jean Pittman and Beverly Goldy.

MISSIONS

(continued from page thirteen)

Financial Statement Board of Foreign Missions May, 1960

Cash in Bank May 1, 1960 $14,805.38
Receipts 13,330.21

Cash to Be Accounted For $28,135.59
Disbursements 11,344.00

Cash in Bank June 1, 1960 $16,791.44

STATE QUOTAS

State	Quota	Paid	Balance
Alabama	$ 7,200.00	$ 2,671.21	$ 4,528.79
Arizona	1,000.00	145.18	854.82
Arkansas	6,800.00	1,900.16	4,899.84
California	6,050.00	2,083.48	3,966.52
Florida	5,900.00	1,659.43	4,240.57
Georgia	7,000.00	2,507.55	4,492.45
Idaho	300.00	201.33	98.67
Illinois	7,500.00	3,041.69	4,458.31
Kansas	300.00	105.36	194.64
Kentucky	5,500.00	841.64	4,658.36
Maine	915.00		915.00
Michigan	26,000.00	5,658.01	20,341.99
Mississippi	5,000.00	1,508.80	3,491.20
Missouri	15,000.00	5,836.90	9,163.10
New Mexico	1,590.00	244.47	1,345.53
North Carolina	44,400.00	13,409.94	30,990.06
Ohio	7,300.00	2,044.83	5,255.17
Oklahoma	10,000.00	3,332.07	6,667.93
South Carolina	10,790.00	2,791.74	7,998.26
Tennessee	15,790.00	5,821.85	9,968.15
Texas	8,200.00	3,355.70	4,844.30
Virginia	10,500.00	3,238.85	7,261.15
West Virginia	6,090.00	1,081.50	5,008.50
Miscellaneous	13,865.08	1,536.46	12,328.62
Totals	$222,990.08	$ 65,018.15	$157,971.93

THE MAIL BOX

PEWS FOR SALE

"The Arapahoe Free Will Baptist Church, having recently bought new pews has 22 used pews for sale. These pews are 11 feet long, have book racks, and envelope and communion cup holders. The church is asking $150 for them.

"Anyone who is interested in these pews is invited to contact Mr. N. C. Rice at the following address."—Mr. N. C. Rice, Arapahoe, North Carolina, Phone Chapel 3022.

NOTE OF THANKS

"I would like to thank everyone who prayed, who sent cards, and who sent love offerings to my husband, the Rev. J. T. Quick. He is doing fine now, and is back taking care of his church.

"We ask everyone to continue to pray for him and also our family. We need thy prayers of our friends."—Mrs. J. T. Quick, Route 3, Hartselle, Alabama.

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

"I want to express my sincere thanks to the many, many churches and auxiliaries that remembered me on Father's Day. May God's all-wise and eternal blessing rest upon each and everyone who has been so loyal to me as a retired minister."—Rev. B. F. Ringold Sr., Route 5, Box 97, New Bern, North Carolina.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Social Justice—Then And Now

(Lesson for July 10)

Lesson: Amos 5:10-15, 21-24.

Golden Text: Amos 5:15.

INTRODUCTION

Our lesson today deals with Amos' message about social injustice, the judgment of God upon sin, and God's call to repentance.

What is justice? Different men would give different answers. Men usually establish a pattern of conduct and thought in their lives; then they go to the Scriptures to justify themselves. If we have a definition of justice that all can agree on, there must be some standard to which man looks outside himself. The conduct and mind of men cannot be trusted. What is this standard to which all men may look for a definition of justice?

Amos makes it clear that the standard of justice is God's Word. Justice is the keeping of God's law, not man's. It is identified with righteousness, and is, together with mercy, a complimentary aspect of holiness. Justice is thus an absolute standard, and cannot be administered apart from God's Word and law.

With this idea of justice, let us take a look at Amos' message which shows God's hatred of injustice, His judgment pronounced against it, and His merciful call to repentance.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

Amos 5:10: Amos told the divine truth, sinning Israel hated him for it.

Vs. 11: The rich oppressed the poor. They thought only of enriching themselves. It is bad to love money more than humanity.

Vs. 12: They afflicted the just, and turned the edge of the law against the innocent. They took bribes of sinners and winked at the law and justice. The poor had no money for bribes. There was no chance for justice toward them.

Vs. 13: The prudent and wise knew that it was useless to relate wrongs to the magistrates.

Vs. 15: Some folks hate evil, but have no love for the good. Some love the good, but have no hate for the evil. The only hope for any land is to return to God.

Vs. 21: The fumes of their hypocritical sacrifices never reach heaven.

Vs. 22: The offerings at Bethel were imitations of the true worship at Jerusalem. Pretense is a pitiful thing. Hypocrisy never satisfies.

Vs. 23: God would not hear the melody of their viols. When sin is present in harmony, it hurts His ears.

Vs. 24: What beautiful language clothes this verse! Let justice be full, and let not the current of it be stopped by bribery. Let God have His way as a stream flows on to the sea.—Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Never does God warn of judgment and punishment for sin without giving a way out for those who are guilty. He would warn our nation in this day; but He would, and does, give us the choice of turning from our sins and trusting in Him.

2. Israel was admonished to seek good. This was her one element of hope. "Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the LORD, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken" (Vs. 14). God has always desired that man seek good and not evil. He would plead with each soul in sin to turn from that sin unto Him. Upon turning to Him, He promises life. In Verse 4 of this same chapter, God said, ". . . Seek ye me, and ye shall live." God promises life for a look to all those who will trust Him by faith.

3. Israel knew they were God's chosen people. However, they failed to realize that He was displeased with them because of their sins. They had even boasted of how God was with them. In the above verse, He promises to be with them, they had said, if they will but seek good and not evil.

4. The followers of God must hate evil and love good. Israel was to first seek good, then they were urged to love the good. "Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate: it may be that the LORD God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph" (Vs. 15). Loving good and hating evil is the ultimate evidence of completely following God. Amos was specific with Israel; actually, they were thus called upon to repent. Then too, they were urged to establish judgment, or justice in the gate. Even if most of Israel continued in evil and the nation was doomed, a remnant could still claim and receive the blessings of God by turning to Him in faith.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

5. "Therefore the prudent shall keep silence in that time; for it is an evil time" (Vs. 13). There is a time when we must speak and a time when we must be silent. Great wisdom is required to know when or when not to speak. Amos reveals that it was time for silence.

How wonderful it would be if we would be silent at just the right time. There would not be nearly as many hurt feelings, misunderstandings or broken friendships if we would practice being silent at the right times.—The Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

6. Amos 5:10-13: "Your treading is upon the poor. You tread them under your feet; they form the road on which you walk; and yet it was by oppressing and impoverishing them that ye gained your riches. . . . A wise man will consider that it is useless to complain. He can have no justice without bribes; and he has no money to give; consequently, in such an evil time, it is best to keep silence."—Adam Clarke.

7. I hate . . . your feast days. Elsewhere in the Old Testament it is specified that the people of Israel were to observe certain stated feasts and holy days. But their observance had degenerated into pagan practices, and their religion was used as a cloak for their rascality. Such religious activity God totally repudiates. And I will not smell in your solemn assemblies. From such sacrifices as they offered, no sweet smell ascended to God. Instead, the whole procedure was odious to Him.—Selected.

It may be that the observance of the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper may be unacceptable under like conditions. Religious discourses are not always acceptable to the Lord.

8. Something wrong with his business. The great power of Charles G. Finney (the noted evangelist and president of Oberlin) in dealing with awakened souls consisted in this: he used to pin a man down to his favorite sins, and say to him: "Are you willing to give up this in order to obey Christ?" At that decisive point came the defeat or victory. He once knelt down beside an inquirer, and as he enumerated various sins the man responded that he would surrender them. At length Mr. Finney said: "I agree to serve God in my business." The man was silent. "What is the matter?" said Mr. Finney kindly, "Can you not do that?" "No," stammered the poor fellow, "I am in the liquor trade." And in it he continued. He rose from his knees and went back to his cursed business with a fresh weight of guilt upon his head.—The Biblical Illustrator.

BIBLE COLLEGE QUARTET TO HOLD SERVICES DURING JUNE AND JULY

Free Will Baptist Bible College of Nashville, Tennessee, will send its quartet again this summer to Free Will Baptist churches during June and July.

In the interests of acquainting Free Will Baptist people with the college and its program of work in training Christian youth, churches will be visited in North Carolina, Virginia and possibly other areas.

The quartet this year is composed of (left to right): R. J. Kennedy Jr., Greenville, North Carolina; Dwight Riggs, Hazel Park, Michigan; Jakic Creech, Kenly, North Carolina; and Kenneth Riggs, Nashville, Tennessee.

The tentative schedule of churches to be visited with a night service except where indicated is as follows:

JUNE

- 15—Canton Church, Canton, North Carolina
- 16—Tippet's Chapel, Clayton, North Carolina
- 17—Faith, Selma, North Carolina
- 18—Smithfield Church, Smithfield, North Carolina

- 19—St. Mary's, New Bern, North Carolina, 11:00 A. M.
- 19—Faith, Morehead City, North Carolina, 2:30 P. M.
- 19—First Church, Morehead City, North Carolina, 7:30 P. M.
- 20—St. John's Chapel, Stacy, North Carolina
- 21—Davis Church, Davis, North Carolina
- 22—Faith, Kinston, North Carolina
- 23—Palmetto, Chocowinity, North Carolina
- 24—Core Creek, Cove City, North Carolina
- 25—Ruth's Chapel, New Bern, North Carolina
- 26—Bridgeton Church, Bridgeton, North Carolina, 11:00 A. M.
- 26—Moseley's Creek, Dover, North Carolina, 3:00 P. M.
- 26—Sidney, Pinetown, North Carolina, 8:00 P. M.
- 27—Free Union, Pinetown, North Carolina
- 28—Grifton Church, Grifton, North Carolina
- 29—Black Jack, Greenville, North Carolina
- 30—Warwick Church, Warwick City, Virginia

JULY

- 1—Hickory Chapel, Ahoskie, North Carolina
- 2—Bethany, Norfolk, Virginia
- 3—Fairmount Park, Norfolk, Virginia, 11:00 A. M.
- 3—Hyde Park, Norfolk, Virginia, 2:30 P. M.
- 3—Portsmouth Church, Portsmouth, Virginia, 7:45 P. M.
- 4—Newport News Church, Newport News, Virginia
- 5—Richmond Church, Richmond, Virginia
- 6—Rocky Mount Church, Rocky Mount, North Carolina
- 7—Grace, Greenville, North Carolina
- 8—Washington Church, Washington, North Carolina
- 9—Union Chapel, Chocowinity, North Carolina
- 10—Reedy Branch, Winterville, North Carolina, 11:00 A. M.
- 11—Bethany, Winterville, North Carolina, 3:00 P. M.
- 12—Pleasant Plains, Selma, North Carolina
- 13—Edgemont, Durham, North Carolina
- 14—Shady Grove, Durham, North Carolina
- 15—Calvary, Durham, North Carolina
- 16—Youth for Christ, Pink Hill, North Carolina
- 17—Sherron Acres, Durham, North Carolina, 11:00 A. M.
- 17—First Church, Raleigh, North Carolina, 3:00 P. M.
- 17—First Church, Goldsboro, North Carolina, 8:00 P. M.
- 18—Beulaville Church, Beulaville, North Carolina

Credit in Heaven

by Raymond L. Cox

Jeems, the doorkeeper, stood at the exit of the United Presbyterian Church in Broughton Place, Edinburgh.

The congregation had just been dismissed, following a moving sermon on the stewardship of money. The people had been requested, as they passed through the portals to the street outside, to deposit a generous offering in the money box held by Jeems.

Numerous coins clinked into the chest as the congregation departed.

Then a miserly parishioner approached. Noting that a number of people were watching he resolved that he must give something. The man fished for coins in his pocket. His hand finally drew forth two, a crown (worth about $1.25 at that time) and a penny. Accidentally he dropped the crown piece into the collection. He had meant to contribute the penny.

The man reached to retrieve the coin, but Jeems caught his hand. "In once, in forever," the doorkeeper purred with relish.

The miser frowned in irritated annoyance. He judged correctly that Jeems meant business and would strenuously resist any attempt to repossess the crown. Then his countenance brightened and he grunted in his Scotch brogue, "Aweel (O, well), Aweel, I'll get credit for it in heaven."

"Na, na," corrected Jeems. "Ye'll get credit only for the penny."—Selected.

"He that hath pity upon the poor lea-eth unto the LORD; and that which hath given will be pay him again" (P-verbs 19:17).

"I will say of the LORD, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will trust" (Psalm 91:2).

"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is deceiving: and whosoever is deceived thereof is not wise" (Proverbs 20:1).

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, July 6, 1960

White Birches and a Winding Road

White-tapered candles, slim and high,
 with leafy wicks that hide the sky
 (except for patches) from my eye.
 The patches—oh, they're beryl blue, letting ring-dappled sunlight through,
 and making shadows as they do.

White birches line the winding way,
 their canopy in heat of day,
 a shield to fend the glaring ray.
 Quite frequently this road I've trod in solitude (except for God), and fearing not His chastening rod.

For all is peace as we walk there, by God and I. If days are fair, or clouds hang low in heavy air,
 He promises that where I go—through seasons' fancies, rain or snow—
 He'll walk with me and hold my hand and lead me to the Promised Land.

—Forrest S. Hayden.

—PHOTO BY CALLOWAY

Editorial

A DIFFICULT DECISION

J. O. Fort

Although the writer has been placed in the position of having to make many difficult decisions during his ministry of more than thirty years, his decision to resign his position as editor-manager of the Free Will Baptist Press was perhaps one of the most difficult of all. When reflecting upon the six years, during which time we have been with the institution, we find a great deal which is gratifying and a great deal for which to thank God. We have enjoyed the work very, very much, and God's blessing has been upon it to the extent that the service rendered by the institution has grown and expanded continually over the years.

J. O. Fort

We should like to thank the stockholders of the institution for having selected a board of directors each year which has been co-operative with our program and hopes. Without men of vision, business ability and concern for an ever-expanding program of literature for the denomination, this progress could not have been achieved. The support and wise counsel of these men of God have served to challenge us always to do just a little more than otherwise would have been the case.

We also extend thanks to Free Will Baptist ministers, other individuals and churches for their loyalty to the Press, their patience and tolerance of our mistakes, and their encouragement from time to time. We have not felt at any time that our people have been overcritical of our products, although we ourselves could recognize many failures and weaknesses in the services we were trying to render.

We extend our thanks, furthermore, to all the employees of the Press, together with every writer who has prepared manuscript during our administration. On many occasions, we have said proudly that we had some of the most consecrated, most talented and most capable writers in the denomination. Much credit should go to these writers and employees for what has been accomplished.

Our decision to resign this position was motivated essentially by three factors:

1. The constant pressure inherent in such a position was sapping our strength and threatening our health. Among the factors which constituted a strain upon our nerves were the anxiety that dead lines be met, prompt service be given to our customers, seeing that credits exceeded debits, and many others. We found ourselves extremely tired physically and in need of release from some of the pressure.

2. An unfinished program of education haunted us. Over the years, the Lord had opened the way for us to attain bachelor's and master's degrees. When we accepted the position with the Press we had started work on a doctor's degree. In the back of our mind there has been the ever-present hope that we might be permitted to pursue our educational goal further. At the present time, we have the opportunity of work near enough to the institution with which we have started our graduate program to make it possible for us to resume our studies as it seems feasible.

3. After having served in the pastorate for twenty-five years we came to the Press with duties which did not permit us to serve as a regular pastor of a church. One of the experiences which we have missed most during these six years has been the blessed fellowship which exists between pastor and members. Although God and our brethren have been so extremely thoughtful as to provide opportunity for us to preach almost every Sunday during these years, this has not altogether taken the place of the regular pastoral experience.

Now, for the three reasons named above, we have submitted our resignation to the Board of Directors of the Free Will Baptist Press to be effective on August 31, 1960. It is with deep regret that we feel we must make the change in our place of service. We have not changed our conviction in the least degree that the brightest hope for a sound and ever-improving program of literature for the Free Will Baptist Denomination lies with the Free Will Baptist Press. We shall continue to support the institution in every possible way. We urge all our people to stand by loyally and thereby make possible a better and better program of literature.

We shall begin our service as pastor of the Harmony Free Will Baptist Church, Lake Butler, Florida, on September 1, 1960. Since we have already served this church as pastor for twelve years we can say that we do not believe God could have opened a field for us where we would be happier. We count it a real blessing and a privilege to be able to return to the people whom we have loved so much for so long a time.

Vol. 75

No. 2

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

July 6, 1960

Edited and published weekly by the
Free Will Baptist Press
Ayden, N. C.

Approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, and entered at the post office at Ayden, N. C., as second-class matter.

Manager and Editor.....J. O. Fort
Assistant Editor.....C. H. Overman

Subscriptions Payable in Advance

6 months $1.00
1 year 2.00

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor on Friday preceding the publication date of that issue.

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor or the Free Will Baptist Press. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or the person sending it in.

Board of Directors

R. N. Hinnant.....President
D. W. Hansley.....Vice-President
J. W. Alford.....Secretary
W. L. Jernigan, N. Bruce Barrow, Hubert Burrell and Owen Thomas

The Case for Orthodox Theology

by Rev. Roy O'Donnell Bowling Green, Kentucky

Editor's note: Mr. O'Donnell is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College, having graduated in 1953. He received his Master's Degree from Auburn University in 1956. He served as pastor of Free Will churches in Alabama for three years. He taught on the faculty of Free Will Baptist Bible College, 1956-57. He returned to graduate school in 1957 to work toward his doctorate. At present, he is assistant professor of English at Western Kentucky State College, Bowling Green, Kentucky. His only remaining requirement on his doctorate is the writing of a dissertation.)

THE Case for Orthodox Theology (Philadelphia: The Westminster Press, 1959), by Edward John Carnell, is the first of a series of three books presenting "cases" for three contemporary theological points of view. Carnell, an ordained Baptist minister and a professor at Fuller Theological Seminary, was asked by the publisher to present the "case" for orthodoxy because he possesses scholarly ability and is a confirmed adherent of the orthodox theological position.

Orthodoxy is defined by the author as "that branch of Christendom which limits the ground of religious authority to the Bible." Having affirmed his belief in the plenary inspiration of the Bible, Carnell sets forth the rules that should govern the interpretation of the Scriptures and states precisely, but clearly, the orthodox theological position. He recognizes Romans and Galatians as the highest ranking sources of theology, "for they alone develop the principles of the Abrahamic covenant in systematic, didactic language."

After giving an exposition of the position he defends, Carnell acknowledges the difficulties presented by modern science and cultural criticism and discusses the perils that threaten contemporary orthodoxy. In his opinion, fundamentalism and dispensationalism are two of the gravest perils facing orthodoxy. Fundamentalism he defines as "orthodoxy gone cultic," and dispensationalism, as he sees it, honors the distinctives of Judaism rather than those of Christianity.

To those who are accustomed to regarding fundamentalism and orthodoxy as synonymous terms, the idea that fundamentalism is a peril to orthodoxy may be quite shocking. However, when the distinction he makes between the fundamentalist movement and the fundamentalist mentality is understood, the idea becomes more plausible. The author comments briefly, and favorably, on the beginnings of the fundamentalist movement, pointing out that it was organized shortly after the turn of the twentieth century to combat "the tidal wave of higher criticism (that) engulfed the church." The orthodox scholars who participated in this movement sought to prove "that modernism and Biblical Christianity were incompatible." He credits the fundamentalist movement with preserving "the faith once for all delivered to the saints."

In Carnell's opinion, however, the fundamentalist movement made a capital mistake which converted it from a movement to a mentality:

"Unlike the Continental Reformers and the English Dissenters, the fundamentalists failed to connect their convictions with the classical creeds of the church. Therefore, when modernism collapsed, the fundamentalist movement became an army without a cause. Nothing was left but the mentality of fundamentalism, and this mentality is orthodoxy's gravest peril."

The dominant feature of the mentality of fundamentalism Carnell calls ideological thinking, which he describes as "rigid, intolerant, and doctrinaire." He further states, "It sees principles everywhere, and all principles come in clear tones of black and white; . . . it wages holy wars without acknowledging the elements of pride and personal interest that prompt the call to battle; it creates new evils while trying to correct the old ones."

Two of the particularly objectionable products of the fundamentalist mentality, according to the author, are intellectual stagnation and the negative ethic. Concerning the first of these, he says: "When orthodoxy says that the Bible is the only rule of faith and practice, the fundamentalist promptly concludes that everything worth knowing is in the Bible." This attitude inevitably influences the fundamentalist philosophy of education:

"Since the fundamentalist belittles the value of general wisdom, he is often content with an educational system that substitutes piety for scholarship. High standards of education might tempt the students to trust in the arm of the flesh. Moreover, if the students are exposed to damaging as well as supporting evidences, their faith might be threatened. As a result, the students do not earn the right to believe, and they are filled with pride because they do not sense their deficiency."

According to Carnell, the fundamentalist in formulating his ethical code is prompted by a "quest for status in the cult," and this quest betrays fundamentalism into glaring hypocrisy. As examples of this hypocrisy, the author cites opposition to the use of tobacco and to movie attendance. He points out the fact that coffee and television can just as reasonably be opposed, but "An attack on smoking ensures status in the cult, while an attack on coffee drinking does not." And if a fundamentalist is seen going into a movie theater he loses his "testimony," but he can watch the same films on television in the privacy of his home without risking his "status." Carnell observes that fundamentalists defend the gospel, but sometimes act as if the gospel read, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, don't smoke, don't go to the movies, and above all don't use the Revised Standard Version—and you will be saved."

No doubt, Carnell's discussion of the perils confronting orthodoxy will be offensive to some adherents of the orthodox position, but the book as a whole merits the serious consideration of all who are sincerely interested in the advancement of the cause of Christ. It should be of particular benefit to those Free Will Baptists who have not recognized the distinction between the fundamentalist movement and the fundamentalist mentality.

Special Issue July 26

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST will publish a special issue of interest to the denomination on July 26. This special issue will call attention to an important document in Baptist history—The Brief Confession of 1660—written by General Baptists of England in March of that year and presented to King Charles II of England in July, 1660.

The reader will observe that exactly three hundred years have passed since this document was first made public. It was with this in mind that members of the Eureka Society of Mount Olive College, an honorary scholarship society composed of students and alumni of the college, felt that Free Will Baptists should observe a Tri-Centennial Celebration of this event in our history.

When this idea was presented to the editor of The Free Will Baptist, he readily agreed to publish a special issue of this paper devoted to the Confession of 1660 and the place which it occupies in our heritage as Free Will Baptists.

It was the feeling also among members of the Eureka Society that a special service of thanksgiving should be observed in Free Will Baptist churches as a part of this tri-centennial observance, giving prayerful attention to our heritage and thanking God for the preservation of the Free Will Baptist faith. In order to secure the widest possible cooperation in promoting the idea of holding these services in the local churches, a proposal was made to the Executive Committee of the North Carolina State Convention asking them to endorse the idea and commend it to our people. To aid in planning for this service the secretary of the state convention will send to pastors in North Carolina (and elsewhere upon request) a suggested outline for this service. It is recommended that the service be held on the first Sunday in August or on the Sunday in August most convenient to the local church.

The reader may yet wonder why the Brief Confession of 1660 is an important part of our Free Will Baptist heritage. This article is not intended to give a complete answer to this question. That will be done in the series of articles in the special issue of this paper on July 26. However, a brief statement may help the reader to understand the significance of this document in the wider setting of Baptist history and in the particular setting of Free Will Baptist history.

The Brief Confession of 1660 is the most important statement of faith written and subscribed to by English Baptists for the simple reason that all later statements of faith adopted by General Baptists have either been revisions of this Confession or else show a great indebtedness to its contents. The descendants of these General Baptists of England were among the settlers who came to the Carolinas and Virginia and established churches in this region on doctrinal principles set forth in the Confession of 1660. Thus, these churches were General Baptist churches. Of singular importance to us is that from these churches the Free Will Baptist denomination in America had its beginning. Even more striking is the fact that the earliest statement of faith subscribed to by Free Will Baptists in Carolina is a brief revision of the Confession of 1660. The government and practices of these earliest Free Will Baptists were also patterned after the English General Baptists. An article in the July 26 issue of The Free Will Baptist will make these statements abundantly clear. It is noteworthy that the statement of faith, adopted by these early Free Will Baptists in North Carolina, continued essentially in its original form until 1916, when, in an attempt to unify the articles of faith held by different conferences in North Carolina, it was temporarily set aside in favor of a statement of faith resembling the present one subscribed to by the denomination. Even so, the former treatise continued to be printed by the Free Will Baptist Press as late as 1941 and was regarded by many churches and individuals as the "Articles of Faith Confessed by the Original Free Will Baptist Church."

Pictured above are several persons who will contribute to the July 26 issue of The Free Will Baptist. They are (standing, left to right): Daniel W. Fagg Jr. and Michael Pelt; (seated, left to right), Elizabeth Smith, Mrs. H. L. Spivey and George W. Stevenson Jr.

If it be recognized, first, that Free Will Baptists in the south are descended from English General Baptists, and, second, that the articles of faith held for almost two centuries by Free Will Baptists in the south are a revision of the Brief Confession of 1660, one can readily see how important this document is in our history. We cannot afford to should not ignore this great milestone in our past. Thus it is fitting and proper that we should call attention to this document at the time of its three hundred anniversary and celebrate this tri-centennial with proper reverence and thanksgiving, and the blessings of God in bringing the Free Will Baptist church into being and preserving it through these many years in spite of its adversaries.

Readers who have even a little interest in Free Will Baptist history will not want to miss the July 26 issue of this paper in which several articles will discuss these and other matters related to the history of our denomination.

She Slammed the Door

On one occasion John Vassar, the great soul winner, was going from house to house distributing tracts and talking with people about their souls. One woman who he was talking about this strange man and what he was doing said: "If he comes to my house, I will get the door slammed in his face. Without knowing that this woman had made such a statement, Mr. Vassar rang her doorbell the next day. When she saw that he was the man who had been talking to her, she slammed the door in his face. John Vassar sat down on her doorstep and sang:

"But drops of grief can ne'er repay
The debt of love I owe,
Here, Lord, I give myself away;
'Tis all that I can do."

The woman heard the earnest verse he sang and was convicted a sinner. She opened the door and called Mr. Vassar in who led her to Jesus Christ.—Christ the World Messenger.

"It is harder to keep oneself from being governed than to govern others."

The Christian Attitude Toward Modernism

HERE are people who are strict enemies of Jesus Christ parading in the cloak of religion and even in the ministry, as the recent, much publicized Air Force annual has revealed. I read the record of hearing before the committee on un-American activities headed by Senator Watkins. It hurt me, to no end, to learn that one of the greatest enemies that Jesus will parade under the banner of religion; and, worst of all, hide behind the ministry!

What should be our attitude toward such people? What was Jesus' attitude toward them? If we listen to some mealy-mouthed folks, and some Free Will Baptist preachers that, we will just love them and say nothing about their wickedness.

If a person does not believe in the cardinal doctrines of the Bible, should he be recognized as a Christian just as one who does believe? More specifically, if one does not believe in Christ's literal, bodily resurrection, it means, in the plain words of scripture, that he is not even saved but yet in his sins. "And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain: ye are yet in your sins" (1 Corinthians 15:17). Should he be recognized as a Christian just as the person who does not believe in the bodily resurrection?

We are to contend with the wicked. "They that forsake the law praise the wicked: but such as keep the law contend with them" (Proverbs 28:4). Everyone knows we are to love everybody, but does that mean that you yoke up with them? My mother loved me; she told me she did; she proved

But, brother, when I disobeyed and got out of line, she tore me up many times. In tears she would say, "The reason I do this is because I love you." She loved me, but did that mean she closed her eyes to my sin? No, a thousand times, no!

We are to love Modernists and Liberals just like we do other sinners and unregenerated people, but we are not to close our eyes to their sin. We are to reprove them.

Now, what did Jesus do? He is our example! What does the Bible say? What did the inspired men of God say? What did some of the best preachers who every walked the earth do and say? What are some of

by Ronald Creech
Durham, North Carolina

the same kind of preachers doing and saying today?

John the Baptist pointed the false doctrine crowd out and called them a generation of vipers. "But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" (Matthew 3:7). Jesus warned the people about the same crowd and named the crowd so everyone would know whom He was talking about. "Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. . . . Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees" (Matthew 16:6, 12).

People who name Modernists and false doctrine are despised and persecuted by them. "And as they spake unto the people, the priests, and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them, Being grieved that they taught the people and preached through Jesus and the resurrection from the dead. And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was not eventide" (Acts 4:1-3). "And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch. . . . And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison" (Acts 5:12, 18).

If you yoke up with them, they like it. If you head all the committees and lead, or rather read, all the prayers and count all the money, and they are not singled out, named and branded for what they really are, they like it. God pity Free Will Baptists if we get sucked in on this easy, soft attitude toward Modernists.

God's plan always has been and always will be separation. "Ye shall keep my statutes. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind: Thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed: neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woolen come upon thee" (Leviticus 19:10. "Thou shalt now sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of the vineyard, be defiled. Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together. Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woolen and linen together" (Deuteronomy 22:9-11). We are to separate from unbelievers so far as conduct is concerned. "But now I have written until you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such an one no not to eat" (1 Corinthians 5:11). "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial, or what hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, And will be a father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty" (2 Corinthians 6:14-18). "Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourself from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us" (2 Thessalonians 3:6). Now here is a terrible danger. If we do not obey this principle of God's Word in the matter of Christian conduct, then it will more than likely make us soft in our attitude on the matter of false doctrine. I know folks who have no convictions about necking and petting, Hollywood movie attendance, and social drinking, who are allowing Jehovah's Witnesses to have Bible study sessions in their homes right now. Better beware!

Now God gets plain and very stern when
(continued on page sixteen)

NEWS NOTES

Revival and V.B.S. to Be Held at Lovewood Church

The Rev. Chester A. Huckaby of Alma, Georgia, will conduct a revival and vacation Bible school at Lovewood Church near Cottdale, Florida, July 10-15. The church is located on Highway 164. Free Will Baptist Bible school materials will be used.

The school will meet daily at 8:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. Revival services will be held each evening at 7:30.

Miss Glenda Hayes of Quincy, Florida, outstanding pianist and accordionist, will assist in the Bible school and play and sing for the revival.

The Rev. Alvin Howell of Marianna, Florida, is pastor of the church. He invites everyone in the area of Alabama, Georgia and Florida to attend.

Elder E. B. Joyner Critically Ill

Elder E. B. Joyner, widely-known Free Will Baptist minister, is listed on the critical list at the Bacon County Hospital, Alma, Georgia.

Elder Joyner, as he appreciates being called, is 81 years old and is one of the pioneer ministers of Georgia and Florida. He has also pastored and organized churches in North Carolina. His family will appreciate your prayers for Elder Joyner and for them.

Those wishing to mail cards and letters to Elder Joyner and his family may mail them to Bacon County Hospital, Alma, Georgia.

N. C. Church Honors Mrs. Alice Lupton

Mrs. Alice Lupton was honored at a recent morning worship service of St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, when member of the woman's auxiliary of the church presented a portrait of Mrs. Lupton to the church in tribute to her many years of faithfulness and loyalty to the church and the Free Will Baptist denomination as a whole.

W. R. Sandlin, chairman of the board of deacons, escorted Mrs. Lupton to the front of the sanctuary. She was presented a corsage of white carnations tied with lavender ribbons, the auxiliary colors, with Mrs. Sandlin making the presentation. Mrs. W. E. Baldree, auxiliary president, presented her a scroll on which was written in Old English lettering an original poem by Mrs. W. J.

Coming Events

August 14-19—College Youth Conference, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

Gaskins, which told of her many service to the church and her many accomplishments.

Miss Kay Phillips sang Mrs. Lupton's favorite hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." The Rev. Ralph Lightfoot pastor, accepted the portrait on behalf of the members.

Mrs. Lupton is the second oldest member of the church. On October 1, 1907, she organized the Ladies Aid, the name by which the auxiliary was first known, and seven years later organized the Free Will Baptist league. She was the first president of the state woman's auxiliary convention and first president of the national woman's auxiliary convention.

Mrs. Lupton has been a teacher in the Sunday school for sixty-eight years and a teacher of the Julia Matthews Bible Class of the Sunday school for nineteen years. "Her life has been an inspiration to everyone with whom she comes in contact" said the tribute to Mrs. Lupton.

Rev. J. E. Floyd Sr. Concludes Revival

The Rev. J. E. Floyd Sr. closed a ten-day revival at Folkstone Free Will Baptist Church, Folkstone, North Carolina, recently. There were 57 decisions, with 22 being received into the church. The pastor of the church is the Rev. L. L. Parker, and Mr. James Earl Parker is the church clerk.

Mr. Floyd recently resigned his pastorate at Sea Level and Cedar Island, North Carolina, which he has served for two years.

N. C. Superannuation Report for June

The following is the report of the Rev. Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannuation of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists for June, 1960:

Balance on Hand, June 1, 1960	$4,682.00
Receipts
Regular Receipts for June	$ 802.00
Offering Earmarked for N. C. State	10.00
Offering Earmarked for Adopted Ministers and Widows	63.00
Total to Account For	$5,557.00
Disbursements
Ministers' Monthly Checks	$247.00
Widows' Quarterly Checks	394.50
Operating Expenses	34.09
Paid to National Board	76.81
Total Disbursements	752.40
Balance on Hand, July 1, 1960	$4,804.60
Receipts by Conferences
Albemarle	$ 35.00
Blue Ridge	18.00

ape Fear	27.45
entral	231.40
stern	168.28
edmont	5.00
estern	213.54
C. Auxiliary Convention	175.35

ncert Class Itinerary

C. Children's Home

The following is the July itinerary for the concert Class of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina. All programs begin at 8:00 p. m. unless otherwise stated. Mrs. J. R. Bennett is manager of the class.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE

Wednesday, July 6—LaGrange

EASTERN CONFERENCE

- Thursday, July 7—Kinston
- Friday, July 8—Jacksonville
- Sunday, July 10—Verona (11:00 A. M.)
- Sunday, July 10—Folkstone
- Monday, July 11—Soundview
- Tuesday, July 12—Morehead City
- Wednesday, July 13—Crab Point
- Thursday, July 14—Beaufort
- Friday, July 15—Welcome Home
- Sunday, July 17—Ottway (11:00 A. M.)
- Sunday, July 17—Edward's Chapel
- Monday, July 18—St. Johns
- Tuesday, July 19—Stacy
- Wednesday, July 20—Free Union
- Thursday, July 21—Holly Springs
- Friday, July 22—Croatan
- Sunday, July 24—St. Mary's (11:00 A. M.)
- Sunday, July 24—Bridgeton
- Monday, July 25—Ruth's Chapel

PIEDMONT ASSOCIATION

Thursday, July 28—Morganton

BLUE RIDGE ASSOCIATION

Sunday, July 31—Rocky Pass (11:00 A. M.)

JACK'S CREEK ASSOCIATION

Sunday, July 31—Fairview

icture Program Itinerary

C. Children's Home

The following is the July Picture Program Itinerary for the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, with Miss Bonnie Farmer as the representative. All programs begin at 8:00 p. m. unless otherwise indicated.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE

Wednesday, July 6—Washington

ALBEMARLE CONFERENCE

- Thursday, July 7—Free Union (Beaufort County)
- Friday, July 8—Trinity
- Sunday, July 10—Shiloh
- Monday, July 11—Union Chapel
- Tuesday, July 12—Mt. Olive
- Wednesday, July 13—Corinth
- Thursday, July 14—Williamston (Central Conference)

Friday, July 15—Cedar Grove (Central Conference)

Sunday, July 17—Hickory Chapel

Monday, July 18—Elizabeth City (Central Conference)

Tuesday, July 19—Piney Grove

Wednesday, July 20—Mt. Zion

Thursday, July 21—Plymouth

Friday, July 22—Mt. Tabor

Sunday, July 24—Malachi's Chapel

Monday, July 25—Soundside

Tuesday, July 26—Free Union (Tyrrell County)

Wednesday, July 27—Gum Neck

Thursday, July 28—Belhaven

Friday, July 29—Sidney

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Sunday, July 31—Dublin Grove

Monday, August 1—Wardens Grove

Tuesday, August 2—Mt. Zion (Pamlico County)

Wednesday, August 3—Trent

Thursday, August 4—Bethel

Friday, August 5—Oriental

Sunday, August 7—Arapahoe

Monday, August 8—New Bethlehem

Tuesday, August 9—Rock of Zion

Fort Resigns

Position at Press

The Rev. J. O. Fort has resigned his position as editor-manager of the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. His resignation will become effective on August 31, 1960. Mr. Fort has held the position of editor for a little more than six years, and his position as editor-manager for the past three years.

Concerning his resignation Mr. Fort states: "It is our plan to resume a leisurely pursuance of our educational improvement at the University of Florida, as we strive to be the best possible pastor to the Harmony Free Will Baptist Church of Lake Butler. We solicit the prayers of all our friends everywhere that we may walk in the will of God; in return, we pledge our prayers for the constant extension of the cause of Christ as Free Will Baptists interpret it."

Our Apologies

Due to an oversight in the printing of the third quarter Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly, the correct writer's name was not given.

The name should have been the Rev. Ralph Lightsey, instead of the Rev. Dan Rivers who served as interim writer for the second quarter of this year. Our sincere apologies to Mr. Lightsey.

The Publishers

THE MAIL BOX

NOTE OF THANKS

"As my birthday came of June 22, right after Father's Day, I take this method of thanking my friends for the many beautiful Father's Day and birthday cards and useful gifts received during those days. Most of all I thank my heavenly Father for health and strength to preach to do the work of a pastor, in a limited way, and that my church has given me a vote of confidence saying, 'Keep on.'"

"May God bless all who have remembered us in any way—my present church relatives and those of the past years. I am now 81 years old, according to my parent's word. My address is P. O. Box 291, Bridgeton, North Carolina, and not 1409 N. Pasteur Street, New Bern, North Carolina. I have been away from New Bern for two years, but some keep sending me mail to the New Bern address."—Rev. J. C. Griffin.

COMMENDS V. B. S. MATERIALS

"It was my opportunity to direct Bible school at Pleasant Plain Church this past week. Never before have I received such a blessing as this Bible school program afforded to me. The children were eager to learn and the teachers were dependable, but another splendid attribute was the material we had to work with.

"This year's Bible school materials, ordered from the Free Will Baptist Press, . . . is excellent. The Pleasant Plain Free Will Baptist Church and I wish to congratulate the Press for such a wonderful job you have done this year. It is a joy to teach and direct a Bible school with simple, challenging and Bible-centered material. The Free Will Baptist Press has produced just that." Dennis Wiggs, 102 East Davis Street, Smithfield, North Carolina.

AVAILABLE FOR PASTORAL WORK

"Ray Harrison Jr. was ordained as a Free Will Baptist minister on Wednesday, June 8, 1960. He is now available for pastoral or evangelistic services as the Lord leads. He may be contacted at Route 2, Box 340, Grifton, North Carolina, or by telephoning LA 4-4352. I fully recommend him."—Owen Ganey, Pastor, Grifton Free Will Baptist Church, Grifton, North Carolina.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Please give me some light on the Feast of Pentecost. What kind of feast was it?—L. J., Knoxville, Tennessee.

Answer: This feast was held on the fifteenth day after the offering of the first sheaves of barley harvest. "And ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete: Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer a new meat offering unto the LORD" (Leviticus 23: 15, 16). This feast was also called the Feast of Harvest, Feast of Weeks, Day of Firstfruits, Day of Pentecost. "And the feast of harvest, the firstfruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in the field; and the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field" (Exodus 23:16); "And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, and of the firstfruits of wheat harvest, and the feast of ingathering at the year's end" (34:22); "Also in the day of the firstfruits, when ye bring a new meat offering unto the LORD, after your weeks be out, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work" (Numbers 28:26);

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place" (Acts 2:1).

It was supposed to be perpetually observed. All men and boys were supposed to attend, for it was a time of rejoicing, a holy convocation. "And the feast of harvest, the firstfruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in the field: and the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field. Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord GOD" (Exodus 23:16, 17); "And ye shall proclaim on the selfsame day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings throughout your generations" (Leviticus 23:21); "And thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are among you, in the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to place his name there. And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt: and thou shalt observe and do these statutes" (Deuteronomy 16:11, 12).

At this feast the first fruits of bread were presented and sacrifices were made. "Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave loaves of the two tenth deals: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with leaven; they are the firstfruits unto the LORD. And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt offering unto the LORD, with their meat offering, and their drink offerings, even an offering made by fire, of sweet savour unto the LORD. Then ye shall sacrifice one kid of the goats for a sin offering, and two lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of peace offerings" (Leviticus 23:17-19).

The law given on Mount Sinai was presented to Moses on the Day of Pentecost, and so was the Holy Ghost manifested to the apostles on the Day of Pentecost. "In the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day came they into the wilderness of Sinai" (Exodus 19:1); "And be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai" (19:11); "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them" (Acts 2:1-3).

"Our merits attract to us the esteem of thinking people, and our good luck that of the public."

"The refusal of flattery is a desire to be praised twice."

"We pardon as long as we love."

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THE LOVE OF GOD

"Hercin is love, not that we loved God but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (1 John 4:10).

About a year ago there appeared in a magazine, Living Waters, published in England, an article by Oswald Chambers, under the above title and using the text quoted. This message is very good, and I want to use it for our devotional study in this issue and next. I believe it contains a message that will help us to a better understanding of God's great love for the Lord. The article follows:

Love is an indefinable word, and in the Bible it is always used as directly characteristic of God—God is love.

God and love are synonymous. Love is not an attribute of God, it is God, whatever God is, love is. If your conception of love does not agree with justice and judgment and purity and holiness, then your idea of love is wrong. It is not love to conceive of in your mind, but some vain infinite foolishness, all tears, softness and weakness.

That God is love is a revelation. Underneath I am born from above, what is the use of telling me that God is love? To me He is not love. Where is the love of God in suffering? In all the inevitable inequalities of life? No one who faces facts as they are could ever prove that God is love unless he accepts the revelation of His love manifested by Jesus Christ. John 3:16 does not mean to have any meaning to the natural man who knows nothing whatever of the revelation which Jesus Christ represents; but let him be brought up against things and be brought to his wits' end and then let him read John 3:16. Not till we realize there is something tragic at the base of human life shall we recognize the love of God.

"For God so loved the world . . ." (John 3:16). The world embraces things material and things evil, things suffering and things sinning. Think how narrow and big the love of God is made when it is in less than His own words; we make out to be exactly the opposite of all as Christ said He was. The breadth of love of God, the agony of that love, is pressed in one word, so. If you can fathom the so, you have fathomed the name of God. Our love is defective because it will not get down low enough. In the Cross we may see the dimensions of divine love. The Cross is not the cross of a man, but the exhibition of the heart of God. At the back of the world stands God with His arms outstretched, and everyone who is driven into the arms of God. The Cross of Christ is the supreme evidence of the love of God.

The Cross of Christ reveals that the center of the love of God is the likeness of God, not His kindness and compassion.

“And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him” (1 John 4:16).

(Continued in Next Issue)

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in postage stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mrs. Allie Self

Mrs. Allie Randall Self died unexpectedly May 12, 1960. She is greatly missed by her friends and loved ones. She was a native of Buncombe County, North Carolina, and the widow of the late Rev. Bob Self, founder of many Free Will Baptist churches in the state. She had been a member of Horney Heights Free Will Baptist Church for some 30 years. She was active in evangelistic work, the woman's auxiliary, and once served as a Sunday school teacher. Mrs. Self also served as a patron in our Children's Home a number of years ago.

Her funeral service was held in the Horney Heights Free Will Baptist Church by the Reverends D. L. Gray, Roy Duckett and F. T. Pressley. At the time of her death, Mrs. Self resided with a brother, Joe Randall, of Route 4, Asheville, North Carolina.

Needed to Stay Ahead of Russia: "True Believers"

Only if the American people are true believers, will this country remain ahead of Russia. So said Vice-President Richard M. Nixon at a dinner in California.

The Russian people, said the Vice-President, "are not going to catch us in seven or 70 years, as long as we remain true to our principles." But he cautioned that Americans will make their "greatest mistake" if they endeavor to face the Communists "on their own grounds of atheistic materialism."

"You can't beat true believers with leaders or people who don't believe, or worse yet, don't know what they believe," said Nixon—pointing out that the Russian leaders are true believers in the system of Communism.

Noting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's call for peaceful economic competition, the American leader declared that this country and its people "will never stand for being second best."—Selected.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

ABOUNDING IN THE WORK OF THE LORD

(1 Corinthians 15:28)

How can we abound?

1. In making Jesus known as Lord and Christ (Acts 17:2, 3). This the Early Church did (Acts 8:4, 5, 36, 37; Romans 10:9, 10, A. S. V.).

2. In preaching and teaching the Word (Acts 8:4). This zeal was seen every place they went (Mark 16:20; 1 Corinthians 9:16; 2 Timothy 4:1, 2).

3. In a life of intercessory prayer (Acts 6:4). They were of one accord in prayer (Colossians 1:9; 2 Thessalonians 3:1; James 5:16).

4. In our gathering for worship (Hebrews 10:25). The church in the Spirit on the Lord's Day (Acts 2:42; 20:7; Psalm 122:1, 9).

5. In the giving of our tithes and offerings (1 Corinthians 16:2). The Corinthian Church solved the problem (2 Corinthians 8:7; 9:6-8; Malachi 3:10).

6. In our missionary zeal (Mark 16:15). The Early Church set us an example (Acts 16: 4, 5, 9, 10; 26:17, 19; Philippians 4:17).

7. In a living, consecrated Christian life (Titus 2:11-14). That men may see faith put into action (Romans 15:13; 1 Thessalonians 5:12, 13; Philippians 1:9).

—Rev. C. C. Maple.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Know Your Missionaries

by Helen Inbody

HOME MISSIONARIES IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

Ken and Lou were born and raised in a small town in Ohio. Shortly after graduation from high school, they were married. They lived for a few years in Ohio, where Brother Walker was among other things, a Fuller Brush man.

After being called to serve in the air

AT THE CROSSROADS

He stood at the crossroads all alone,
The sunrise in his face;
He had no thought for the world unknown,
He was set for a manly race.
But the road stretched east and the road stretched west,
And the boy did not know which road was the best.
So he took the wrong road, and went down,
And he lost the race and the victor's crown,
He was caught at last in an angry snare,
Because no one stood at the crossroads there,
To show him the better road.
Another day at the selfsame place,
A boy with high hopes stood;
He, too, was set for a manly race,
He was seeking the things that were good.
But one was there who the roads did know,
And that one showed him which way to go;
So he turned away from the road that went down,
And he won the race and the victor's crown,
He walks today the Highway fair,
Because one stood at the crossroads there,
To show him the better road.

—Unknown.

THE JOY OF SACRIFICE

“. . . Why was this waste of the ointment made?" (Mark 14:4).
Companionship with Jesus was Mary's portion—her supreme joy. In that fellowship she had learned love; and with love came wisdom and clear vision to see the glorious privilege of ministering directly to the Lord of glory. All unconsciously, perhaps, she had come to see that "love's strength standeth in love's sacrifice." To give to Christ, what joy! But to give to Him sacrificially, what far-exceeding joy! Imagine how this holy longing to give to Him personally, and in lowliest worship, shaped itself into a definite purpose—how this and that were rejected as too small. At last, she sees her way to a gift, admirable in itself, but, best of all, so costly. It means, probably, a deep dip down into the painful savings of years. Shall we pity her—when the house is full of the sweet odor? Rather let us pity ourselves that we know so little of the glorious gladness of giving our best to our Lord Jesus Christ.—Selected.

force, Brother Walker and Lou were so to Texas. Being there a short time, they came in contact with some people from

Mrs. Lou Walker

Free Will Baptist Church. Upon visiting the church, they found a large group of service men and their wives very active there. It was here that Ken and Lou Walker were born again. Brother Walker is fond of saying, "I was born in Ohio and born again in Texas."

Ken was song leader and a deacon of the church there, but was being called more and more to give talks until he became known as the "preaching deacon." After much heart-searching and prayer, Ken felt that God was calling him to be a minister of the gospel. Even though Ken had two or more years of service, the Lord went before and cleared the way for him to be dismissed from the air force and the same fall of 1954, they moved to Nashville where Ken was enrolled in the Bible College.

Ken was an honor student and an outstanding leader while enrolled here. He was business manager for the Lumen and president of the senior class. Brother Walker pastored the Shady Grove Church for one and one-half years and Heads Church for two years while in Tennessee.

Mrs. Walker was president of The Waded Belles (married women's group) at the school and also served as an auxiliary officer in the state convention.

The Lord blessed and used these two young people while at these churches. They were instrumental in leading them in many missionary endeavors.

They also served faithfully as moderators of the Cumberland Quarterly Conference, director of youth camp, state league board and others.

Brother Walker made the statement that a pastor could not truthfully preach a

(continued on page eleven)

NOTES

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

LOYALTY

We people here in North Carolina have not passed through a very hot campaign in a democratic primary, and then in another hot runoff for governor of our state. Our men were running for governor. Two of these men fell by the wayside in the first primary; the two high men had a runoff. Those who were running criticized all the losers and tried to get votes by telling the merits of the others. When the runoff revealed the will of the people, all three of the defeated candidates congratulated the winner and expressed themselves as giving their support to Mr. Terry Sanford as the elected candidate, the next governor of North Carolina. May we notice, notwithstanding the differences while the campaign was on and the hard things said about each other, now all the candidates say, "Mr. Sanford, I am with you; I will support you." This is loyalty to the party.

As I meditate on the loyalty expressed by these defeated candidates, I wonder why preachers of the gospel cannot be as loyal to their church and denomination. In many instances when a preacher or a number of preachers get defeated in their plans and the election is over, they rise up and say, "Let us start another denomination or another church. We will be independent. We will not associate with the crowd that defeated us." This being true, we have many denominations and many independent organizations crying, "This is the way. This is the way." Because of this spirit, we have many weak churches, and many people have been lost because of fightings among those whom Jesus prayed to be one.

OUR PRAYER

After Jesus had prayed for the disciples, he said, "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." (John 17:20, 21).

Because of the lack of this spirit among Christians, and especially preachers, there are many unbelievers. Read the two verses quoted above and weigh the matter to see if you are born again and Spirit filled in the oneness of the prayer of Jesus.

SPLITS

About fifty years ago, many of our Free Will Baptist churches began to let preachers who were not sound in the doctrine of the Free Will Baptist church into their pulpits. These preachers brought division into the denomination which finally caused a split in the Cape Fear Conference that took about half or a little more of the church into another camp known as Free Will Holiness. Finally this group got the term Free Will Baptist Holiness. The same spirit took over the Wilmington Conference, and here and there in other sections they crept in and caused division. This is history. These people advocated, or at least their leaders did, that they were the Church, saying that all others who did not believe as they did were not Christians. Much harm was done.

ORIGINAL FREE WILL BAPTISTS

The Original Free Will Baptists have in a large measure lived and worked along the Eastern seaboard. After the split mentioned above, they have worked peacefully and successfully, preaching the same doctrine as "... once delivered unto the saints" (Jude 3). During the past few years, strange doctrines which are foreign have crept into our ranks, and many of the churches have been robbed of that original doctrine. We, as a people, are much divided.

We have premillennialism and postmillennialism. We have the many strange doctrines. We have some preaching, "Once in grace, always in grace." On the other hand, we have some preaching salvation today and lost tomorrow in the extremes. I saw a lady some time ago in the hospital. I asked her if she were saved and she said, "No; I have been saved twice, but I am not saved now." Free Will Baptists do not believe in this, according to my knowledge.

BACKSLIDING

We know that people can backslide. If you have ever been closer to God than you are right now, you have backslid that much. A great many Christians backslide right after going through a real revival. They have mountaintop experiences during the revival and afterward, when they have to pass through a valley, they get discouraged. In fact, they lose that joy. Instead of praying and looking up to God, they begin to look down and say in their minds, if not in words, "Was it real, or was I deluded?"

I heard a good old-fashioned Methodist say, "I had a great temper, and when I was saved, I felt like I would never get angry again." (These may not be the exact words, but they are as I remember them.) This lady went on to say, "When I reached home, I went out to the old well to wash some greens. I forgot that the bucket would swing as far one way as the other. So I pulled the bucket way over to one side and poured the water over the greens, then turned it loose. Before I could hardly think, the bucket came back and struck me beside the head, and I was never so mad in my life." This happened in less than two hours after she was so happy.

Often the devil says to a young Christian, "If you were really saved, you would not get angry. So you might just as well confess that you were deceived—you have not been saved in the first place."

Many believe what the devil says. They devil may speak to us through husbands, wives or friends, and even by some ignorant preachers. But God says, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). Why not listen to God rather than to some man or the devil?

If we give up because we have made a mistake, or because of a failure, we are going right down the devil's highway. The way to get on the right terms with Christ is to confess our sins. Remember that John writes, "My little children, these things I write unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (1 John 2:1).

Brother, if you have been slandering anyone's good name, or bearing false witness against anyone, you had better confess that sin to God and make things right.

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

teach missions in his church until he had faced the issue squarely with the Lord himself. God began to deal with their hearts and they vowed that wherever God had for them to go, they were willing. Kenneth said, "The day I went in to Brother Homer Willis and told him we wanted to go to Washington, D. C., I felt like a terrible weight had rolled away. I wanted to laugh and cry and shout all at once."

Brother Walker resigned his church, effective the first Sunday in October, 1959. They immediately went out on itinerant work. They spent from that time until Christmas visiting churches, telling of the need of Washington, and getting the support of the people. The first week of January, they moved in. God provided them with a place to live and has met their needs.

The battle has just begun in Washington. Will you join the fight? Will you, with the Walkers, face the question squarely? They are now holding prayer meetings in their home. So far a building has not been located. We know that God has a building somewhere in that city. Let us

(continued on page twelve)

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

The Lunch I Gave Away

by Lois Hoadley Dick

I WAS making Father wait, and he was impatient. "Come," he said, "don't bother with a lunch. I tell you we aren't going to stay that long. I just want a look at this Jesus. We're coming right back."

But Mother made us wait while she wrapped five hot buns in a cloth and laid two small fishes beside them. She packed them in my lunch basket and tied another napkin over the top. "You'll be glad for a lunch," she smiled.

Father only grumbled. "I tell you we're coming right back. Just a look is all I want."

Mother smiled. Since she had been to hear the Great Rabbi, Jesus, she was always smiling. Something had happened to her, but Father and I didn't understand it then.

I took my lunch and followed Father.

Together we walked the long dusty road which led out of our city. The sun was hot and my feet were aching. Father reminded me that we were not going to stay very long. Finally we came to a desert place where the people were gathering.

There were thousands of people there! They lined the shore waiting for Jesus, for it was said He was coming by ship. I stood barefoot in the cool water while Father leaned against a tree to rest. At last we saw the boat coming!

I listened to His disciples talk as they scrambled on shore. One of them said Jesus had come here to rest. Another one said that Jesus had not eaten food all that day. I was disappointed. Now we would have to go home without hearing Him. Surely He would not want to be bothered. It was such a long, hot walk back to town.

But no. He stood under one of the trees and began to speak to the people. I was very close and could hear every word.

The hours passed by swiftly but the people never moved. Jesus talked about the books of Moses, and the books of the prophets. He said Moses and the prophets wrote about Him. I did not know that. I looked quickly at Father, but he was listening with both ears.

Jesus said He had come to take the place of the little lamb that we Jews offer up for our sin. Many of the people protested and cried out against this and Jesus waited until they quieted down. He was not angry or even impatient, though He looked very, very tired. He explained it once more.

At that moment I understood that He meant He would die for our sins—for my sins! I could see Him dying in place of the little lamb and I believed it. Right then and there I trusted Him and felt all new inside and very happy.

If Jesus was going to die for me, then I would be safe forever! I would not need to sacrifice a lamb over and over again to cover my sin. Jesus was going to take away sin forever.

I gave Him my heart that moment and He knew it, for He smiled at me and held out His hand. He meant to talk to me, but the disciples ran up excitedly to say the people needed food.

"We must feed these people," Jesus said. "It is a long walk back to the city. We cannot turn them away."

I looked at the lunch in my hands. The crisp rolls and tender fish would make a delicious meal and I was starving hungry. But Jesus was hungry too, and I loved Him, so without a word I handed Him my lunch. He thanked me and gave orders for the people to sit down in groups. Then He prayed, holding up my lunch in His two hands. All the people saw it was only five buns and two little fish. Then He began to break the buns in pieces and filled huge baskets which the disciples brought from the ship.

There was just no end to my lunch! He divided the fish into thousands of pieces, each larger than a man's hand. Each person had two large sandwiches and some folks wanted more. Everyone had as much to eat as he wanted.

I looked for my father in the crowd and finally saw him. He said he wanted to talk to Jesus so I waited. I helped gather up the food left over and there were twelve baskets full of buns and fishes.

It was evening now, and cool, so we all sang one of the Psalms before leaving for home. It was beautiful and I will never forget that night. The disciples made ready to leave and Jesus worked right along with them, helping shove the row boat off the sand, out to the large ship.

Father and I walked home under the stars. We were both very happy. Father didn't explain why we stayed all day, instead of just an hour, but I knew. He, too, was a believer in Jesus, God's lamb.

How happy Mother would be.

What if I had not given Jesus my lunch? What if I had gone off alone and eaten it by myself? There would have been no miracle and Father might never have seen Jesus and trusted Him for salvation.

I was glad I had given Jesus my lunch, but most important of all—I had first given it on my heart.—My Pleasure.

MISSIONS

(continued from page eleven)

pray and give that the lost in Washington, D. C., might hear the Gospel message.

There are the Walkers, Ken and Lu. Now that you have gotten acquainted, what will you do? Will you forget them? Will you send your money that this week might go forward? Will you remember their names in prayer? God has called them to Washington, D. C. They have answered the call and gone. Will you do your part and help keep them there?

Services of the Bloss Memorial Free Will Baptist Church are now being held at Wilson Elementary School, 1601 Wilson Blvd., North Arlington. Sunday school is at 10:00 a. m. and worship at 11:00 a. m.; prayer meetings continue to be held in homes. Missionary Walker states: "Our purpose is to reach lost people with the gospel and to train them in the faith. We are here to have a gospel preaching and Bible teaching church."—The Promoter.

IT'S A FACT

OVER 200 U.S. DAILY NEWSPAPERS REFUSE ALL ALCOHOL ADS.

NEWSPAPER RATES AND DATA

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Wilson, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary Calvary Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Lou Cindy Amerson on June 20. Following the opening hymn, Mrs. Nancy Sawery read the Scripture. Mrs. Edith Rose led in prayer. The business program was then held. Mrs. Edith Rose rendered a solo prior to the program. Those participating in the program were Mrs. Alice Godwin, Mrs. Margie Egan and Mrs. Etta Harrell. Following the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Rena Woods dismissed the group with prayer. Everyone present enjoyed refreshments during the social hour.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Church held its monthly meeting on June 21, at 8:00 p. m., with 15 members present. The meeting was called to order by the president. Following the opening hymn, Mrs. Ada Hines led in prayer. The treasurer reported $107 in the treasury. The auxiliary sends money to missionaries every month. The group agreed to give $10 to one of the deacons of the church who is very ill. It was decided that there will be no more monthly meetings until September; however, if necessary, there will be a called meeting.

The program director, Mrs. Laura Boyce, presented some interesting questions from the Bible. The group was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Nora Smith. After the meeting, the group enjoyed cookies and drinks served by Mrs. Bernice Gray during the social period. Mrs. Carolyn Tyndall received a birthday gift from her secret pal.

Auburndale, Fla.—The monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of First Free Will Baptist Church was held at the church on June 21. The pastor, the Rev. Robert Owen, led the group in singing the opening hymn, followed with prayer. Mrs. Lois Maxton gave the Scripture reading. The program was under the direction of Mrs. Gladys Guy. Those taking part were Mesdames Sara Parrish, Marilyn Guy and Jamie Scott. The business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Guy. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Twelve members and one visitor were present. The financial report was read and approved. The group voted to help buy a freezer for the Florida Youth Camp and also an amplifier for the church. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Sara Parrish.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Church met June 23, at 8:00 p. m., in the home of Mrs. Edmond Brickhouse. The president presided over the meeting. Following the opening hymn, Mrs. Nancy Sawyer led the group in prayer. The business was transacted as usual. There were 10 members present.

Mrs. Madeline Brickhouse dismissed the group with prayer. The hostess served ice cream, cookies and drinks.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Iilda Roughten on July 21, at 8:00 p. m.

Catholic Officers Defend Kidnapping

THE "legal kidnapping" of three children of a Presbyterian father in Medellin, Colombia, which was instigated by a Catholic priest, has been upheld by Roman Catholic officials in that country.

Police seized the three children of Juan Osorio in April with an official warrant issued by the Juvenile Court judge and initiated by Msge. Tulio Botero-Salazar and the Archdiocesan Tribunal. The church based the order on its teaching that its authority over baptized children takes preference over the rights of the parents and that a Catholic government is bound to protect baptized children when their parents "apostatize."

The Osorio children were baptized in infancy by the Roman Catholic Church. Their father, a widower, was converted three years ago and now attends the Presbyterian Church of Medellin where the children are enrolled in Sunday school. The children were confined for nine days in the home of their Roman Catholic uncle and then released as a result of public indignation over the "legal kidnapping."

The "official explanation" of the seizure of the children is contained in a statement which was forwarded to the Evangelical Confederation of Colombia by the Roman Catholic Bishop's Council. Signed by Father Francisco A. Duque, the statement argued in defense of the kidnapping as follows:

"The children . . . received the sacrament of baptism at the direct request of their father, before he abandoned the Catholic faith and committed the crime of heresy by joining a Protestant sect . . .

"This means that the above mentioned children are subjects of the Catholic church and are under its jurisdiction in everything related to their moral and religious education.

"The defection of the father from the Catholic faith and his acceptance of a heretical Protestant sect does not in the least modify the promise made by him before his crime (that of joining a Protestant church—Ed.), nor does it nullify the jurisdiction which the church has over his children.

"In a matter so serious as the Catholic education of children, in which nothing less than eternal salvation is at stake, responsibility may not be evaded by the capricious will of parents. The responsibility binds them still; and if they do not wish to fulfill it, then the church, by virtue of the jurisdiction which she has over both them and their children, may take them from their care and turn them over to such persons as will give them a Catholic education . . .

"An argument from history . . . During the pontificate of Pope Pius XI a child of Jewish parents was sick unto death. He was secretly baptized by a Christian servant of the parents. The child did not die, but recovered completely, and the matter was made known to the competent ecclesiastical authority. When the truth of the fact was established, Pope Pius XI, in order that this baptized child might not be perverted but educated in the Catholic faith, took him under his care, not permitting him to live with his parents, but educating him in a catechetical school which he had in Rome. In spite of the attacks of the enemies of the church, the Holy Father upheld the educational right of the church."

And so the crime of kidnapping, universally condemned by civilized nations, is justified by the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

Family worship is not a luxury, it is a must.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

"Few people are wise enough to prefer censure, which is useful to them, to flattery, which betrays them."

"It is not enough to have good qualities; we must make good use of them."

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

College Personnel Working Toward Accreditation

Although no classes are being held during the summer months at Mount Olive Junior College several members of the college faculty and staff are engaged in the many details of preparing for a visit by a special study committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The purpose of the visit will be to determine whether or not the college meets the standards for admission to membership in the Southern Association.

No major changes will be made in policies governing the operation of the school in preparation for regional accreditation but much material must be gathered in the form of written reports, statistical data, and other information. This information will be presented to the special study committee and will furnish the basis for consultations between members of the administration and faculty and members of the special study committee when that committee visits the campus. The date for that visit will be October 2-5.

Mrs. Josephine Ricks, Registrar
Michael R. Pelt, Dean

Here is some of the work being done by personnel at the college this summer. The registrar, Mrs. Josephine Ricks, is processing applications for admission for the fall semester. She will also obtain records of all former students who have transferred to other colleges and universities and will compare their scholastic averages earned here with their averages in other colleges. This is being done to determine whether or not former students of Mount Olive College do equally as well after transferring to other colleges as they did while here. Such studies made by the college in the past have shown that on the average former students at Mount Olive do as well or better in the colleges to which they go.

This study of the records of former students enrolled at other institutions also reveals which departments of the college are strongest and which ones need to be strengthened academically. It is the desire of the administration and faculty that the college should offer a quality program of education, according to Dean Michael Pelt.

M. L. Johnson, Business Manager
Miss Leah McGlohon, Assistant

Mrs. Josephine Williams, Bookkeeper

In the business office Mr. M. L. Johnson and his assistants are constantly at work, endeavoring to operate the college on a sound financial basis. To meet the standards for regional accreditation the business manager must be able to show that financial support for the college has been sufficient over a period of time to operate a standard program of higher education. Records of student income, gifts, and endowments must be accurate and up-to-date.

In the science department more equipment has been added, according to Mrs. Lorelle Martin, head of the department. There are now enough microscopes available so that each lab station will have one microscope. Also, each table has been outfitted with suitable lighting equipment. Mrs. Martin stated that she hopes to purchase more stereomicroscopes for use in the department.

Plans for the science department during the coming year include striving for the highest standards of excellency in the classroom and laboratory. The department will continue to sponsor the Henderson Science Club, which was organized to promote interest in the sciences on the part of students at the college by means of lectures, group meetings, and individual projects. The department will also continue to co-operate with the Eastern North Carolina section of the American Chemical Society, whose members give lectures of scientific interest to students as well as to citizens of the Mount Olive Community.

Mrs. Mildred Council, Librarian
Miss Marie Barnett, Assistant

In the college library Mrs. Mildred Council, librarian, and her assistant, Miss Marie Barnett, a former student of the college and a graduate of East Carolina College, contribute their part to the preparation being made for this fall. Since the heart of a good college is its library, no effort has been spared to enable Mount Olive College library to meet the standards required of a junior college library, according to a statement by Mrs. Council.

The principal task in the library this summer is cataloguing all books that have not yet been processed. Even though the library has enough books on hand to meet minimum standards for accreditation, the librarian must have them properly catalogued and on the shelves. Since the Southern Association requires that a junior college must have at least ten magazines bought over a period of five years, this has been an area in which the librarian has been working to prepare for accreditation.

The college is especially proud of its collection of Free Will Baptist materials in the library. It is believed that this is the largest such collection anywhere in the area.

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

What Is True Security?

Lesson: Amos 6:1-8.

Lesson Text: 1 Corinthians 10:12.

INTRODUCTION

How the race of men clamor for security! We have labored for day after day, week after week, and month after month. We desire lasting and satisfying security. We desire it for ourselves and we want it for our children. This attitude toward security, however, is strictly from the physical or material standpoint, which certainly has its rightful place in our lives. With this drive toward material security, men are apt to neglect about security of soul as found in the Bible. Our souls must come to rest in God, through His Son, before we can know what true rest and security is.

Amos could just as appropriately have written his message against false security to our generation as he did to eighth century Israel. In fact, no more significant warning could be given today than Amos' message in today's lesson. Similar attitudes exist today just as existed in Amos' day. We are hoped that this lesson will help you understand the perils of false security in our day.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

To feel secure is no proof of safety (Vs. 1).

The judgments which have overtaken the nations should be a warning to us (Vs. 2).

Do not put the day of God's judgment too far distant future (Vs. 3).

The abundance of luxury can be no guarantee of security (Vs. 4-6).

The judgment of God is sure, for He has sworn by himself (Vs. 7).

—Teen-Age Teacher (F. W. B.).

A modern-day preacher has paraphrased the words of Amos as follows: "Go ye unto those who frequent expensive night clubs, who deceive themselves with champagne and priced drinks, who sprawl over chrom-plated bars and gorge themselves with rich foods, who sing raucous songs in night places, who drink liquor by the gallon and sink into stupors, calling it a gay party, who are not sick at heart over the state of the nation." Sin is most dangerous when it is committed in the midst of luxury.—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Amos prophesied during the reigns of Uzziah, king of Judah, and Jeroboam II, king of Israel. In their days, both kingdoms were remarkably prosperous in material things, but spirituality and even ordinary morality were at a very low ebb.

2. It is remarkable how low people can fall, and yet how religiously and piously they can talk. Wretchedly vile as was Israel's condition, there were still to be found among them those who professed to desire the day of the Lord, hoping to be delivered from their troubles—the fruit of their own waywardness. Quite in harmony with this pretended desire was the unreality of their feasts and solemn assemblies. Therefore God hated their feast days and would not accept their offerings.—The S. S. Times.

3. The long reigns of Uzziah in Jerusalem and Jeroboam II in Samaria were characterized by seeming prosperity. Their religion had become a form rather than a force. They sought to please God through ritual rather than obedience.

4. The people were at ease in a carnal security. They boasted of their wealth and power, and gloried in their eminence. They thought their nation was invincible; but Amos knew better. He knew that there is no security in our resources. Wealth is not to be trusted. Even our own strength and health are but for a season. We must learn that our help cometh from the Lord.

5. Israel was at ease in great pride. Connected with their carnal security was a haughty spirit. Israel prided herself in her relation to God, and looked down upon other nations. Many today are puffed up with pride and rock themselves to sleep with the idea that, because they belong to a certain church or religious sect, they are secure.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

6. Verse 4 gives a picture of luxury and idleness. Verse 5 tells how they invented to themselves, not to God's glory, instruments of music. We think this passage is not intended to teach that the use of musical instruments in worship is wrong, but only certain kinds of music. Music is a great blessing among God's people; but, like many other things, it is a curse when perverted. It should be remembered that, in our churches, music is to be used as an aid to worship. When we make it the central part of the service, we pervert its true function; and it becomes a curse rather than a blessing.—Selected.

Whenever church music is given for the purpose of mere entertainment it is not a part of true worship.

7. An oath of the Lord can only be taken by Himself, for there is no greater than He. Such words emphasize the gravity of the words of judgment that follow. God had given up Samaria, the capital city of Israel, and He had no hope that the religious and political leaders of Israel would repent; therefore, by their choice of rebellion against His will, they chose the way of evil and consequently the judgment of their evil deeds. The city was delivered into the hands of the Assyrians. About thirty years after the message of Amos, the Assyrians besieged Samaria and compassed it about for three years, and in 721 B. C. took it captive. Immediately they took the principal people into exile and made the northern kingdom, Israel, province of the fast-growing Assyrian Empire. Thus, we can see how dangerous it is to trust in an imagined security, both political and religious, that is false indeed (Psalm 127:1).—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

8. When in our early teens, we often wondered why the peoples of Judah and Israel paid so little attention to the messages of Amos, Jeremiah and other true men of God.

One answer can be found in 1 Kings 22. There was a large number of false prophets who gave lying messages to the rulers and peoples of these two countries, and deceived them to such a degree that they refused to heed the words of warning when spoken by true prophets of God.

SPECIAL NOTICE

No Free Will Baptist July 13, 1960

The yearly volume of "The Free Will Baptist" is composed of 50 issues. It is therefore necessary that we omit two issues during each year. The first issue to be omitted will be July 13, 1960.

The next issue of "The Free Will Baptist" you will receive will be dated July 20, 1960.

Please keep this in mind.

Thank you!

Christian Education

(continued from page fourteen)

nomination. Additions to this collection are made possible by friends and supporters of the college who have in their possession materials of historical interest which they are willing to give to the college. In some cases, the college has obtained materials from other libraries either as gifts or by purchase.

Two members of the college faculty are attending summer school this year. President W. Burkette Raper is enrolled in the graduate school at Florida State University for an eight-week session. He is taking courses in higher education administration. Mrs. Lorelle Martin will enroll for a six-week term in the Duke Marine Laboratory where she will take graduate courses in marine biology.

Two members of the faculty, Dean Michael Pelt and Mr. William John Thomas, head of the English department, will attend the Southern States Faculty Conference at Lake Junaluska Assembly during the last week in August.

The Christian's Attitude Toward Modernism

(Continued from page five)

He tell us what to do about those who peddle false doctrine. In 2 John, God is much concerned about the truth. That word is mentioned no less than five times in the first four verses. Then in Verses 7, 9-11, God says, "For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist. . . . Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: For he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds."

When I lived in Virginia, I ordered two women out of my house upon discovering that they were Jehovah's Witnesses. A preacher, whom I know, told some Seventh Day Adventists, who had come to his door, that he wasn't going to talk to them. He said he had more important things to do. He was better off not to bid Godspeed to peddlers of false doctrine! They have the divine method (door-to-door), but not the divine message. If they come to your house, what will your attitude be? Don't let them in! You will probably have to insult them to get them to leave. Don't argue. They can outargue you. Tell them to get gone! Remember this—they are not saved! If they do teach you, it will be the blind leading the blind. God says if they are not straight on doctrine they have not God. "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. . . ." (2 John 9).

How about being a member of a local ministerial association when the Modernists and Fundamentalists are all yoked together? I had rather be in one that was composed of only Fundamentalists. In one such Liberal-Fundamental association, a Hindu was invited for a preaching mission. If you are a part of these associations, you invite these people in reality. Jesus said, "Come out from among them and be separate." He said, "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers."

This writer has seen a Conservative minister's association organized in his city. He was its first president. He was invited by the president of the other association to come before said association and tell why a Conservative association was organized, which he gladly did. That old association has long since stopped preaching on the radio. They had recorded prayers instead. I was asked to go down and record some. I said, "No, sir!" Our preachers of the Conservative association preach on the radio. This writer believes 2 Corinthians 6:14-18 covers the matter of Fundamental and Modernistic preachers yoking themselves together in ministerial associations. The Fundamentalists will want to do things which the Modernists will naturally oppose, and vice versa. It is better to be separated.

Should Modernists be reproved for disbelieving the gospel? God says so in Ephesians 5:11, ". . . but rather reprove them." It seems clear from this message that instead of calling a Modernist a Christian brother, calling on him to pray, and jointly sponsoring a campaign with him, that God's plan is to come out and reprove him. Now, that will not make him love you; he will despise you. There is no way to kill a rattlesnake by a process that will make him love you. If you expose and reprove a peddler of filthy literature in our schools, the peddler will not like you. I had rather a peddler of obscene literature be let loose and stay exposed than a Modernistic preacher seeks to break down the faith of the people in the Bible and the Saviour! I say there is a rattlesnake in a clerical suit, defrock him, so if people want to hear they will know clearly what he is. My attitude toward rattlers is a stick on the head—not have a united evangelistic campaign with them. God commands, "Reprove them!" If you say, "Well, let's love everybody and don't judge," you sin against God. One reason some members run off to join churches that are modernistic to core is that preachers have not reproved but gone along hand-in-hand with Liberals and Modernists. You may say, "Well, I'll just not say anything." Silence is consent! If you knew of a known murder hideout, would you report him even if it was some other person's child he killed rather than yours? Yes, a thousand times yes! You certainly would! Well, friend, God is as much, if no more so, interested in exposing and reprovng folk who do not believe our Bible than He is murderers.

Now, if I know that Rev. John Jones we'll say, does not believe the Bible and we'll call him by name so my people will know exactly which Jones I am talking about, does that mean that I do not love John? No, sir! Does the seathing language of Matthew 23 mean that Jesus did not love the souls of the Pharisees and scribes? No! He did love their souls. He did not call on them to pray, however, and get them to help sponsor His campaigns and say, "Let's just love everybody." No! He rebuked them, but there is no doubt in my mind that they were included in some of His evening and all-night prayers. I imagine His prayers were that their eyes would be opened and that they might be saved.

What is the proper Christian attitude toward false doctrine and Modernists? Separate yourself from them. Call them by name and warn people not to listen to them, preach or take their literature. Witness to them and try to get them saved, because a person who does not believe the cardinal fundamental doctrines of the Bible has no God. I mean such doctrines as an inspired Bible, the virgin birth of Christ, His substitutionary death on Calvary, His literal bodily resurrection, etc. Pray for people who are thus blinded by the devil and let them, but don't let your love for them blind you to the fact that they are wolves in sheep's clothing.

DS ✓

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, July 20, 1960

DUNCAN LIBRARY
JUL 20 1960

NEW ADDITION TO CRAGMONT ASSEMBLY CAMPUS

Friends and supporters of Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, should be proud and happy to learn that the above addition to the Cragmont campus has been completed despite financial handicaps. The Lord blessed the efforts of those who encouraged the work, and the building is now in use. This mountain retreat can now accommodate a larger crowd with more ease and convenience. Cragmont would be happy to have interested Free Will Baptists visit to see this new addition.

The Challenge of the 60's

AMERICA faces the threat of an accident toll in the 60's of 925,000 deaths, 90 million disabling injuries and an economic loss of $150 billion.

"And this threat," Paul Jones, of Chicago, director of public information for the National Safety Council, emphasized in a talk here today, "doesn't come from an atomic war that the average citizen can't prevent or control.

"It comes from everyday accidents that the average citizen—and he alone—can prevent and control."

Jones delivered the keynote address at the 32nd Annual Fox River Valley and Lake Shore Safety Conference in the Weber Stanley School.

Speaking on "The Challenge of the 60's," he cited the accident toll as one of the great unsolved social problems facing this country in the next decade.

"Either we go a long way toward solving this problem by 1970," he said, "or we will have confessed to the world that right here at home we have got hold of something so hot to handle."

Solution of the accident problem, Jones predicted, won't come quickly or easily.

"Unlike many of the other major problems we face," he said, "this one can't be solved by treaty, vaccine, miracle drug or act of Congress.

"The accident problem can be solved only in the hearts and minds of the people themselves, and the toll will come down to the extent that people want it to come down—and to the degree that they are willing to assume personal responsibility for bringing it down.

"There are, of course, certain things that must be done to hold down the toll in the face of exploding population, increasing travel and the ever faster pace of living—things such as safer highways, safer automobiles, more and more driver education, tougher driving licensing exams, and stricter traffic law enforcement.

"But these things, important as they are, can never be the complete answer to the accident problem.

"The real and final answer lies in the attitude of the individual. Does he understand his personal responsibility for protecting his own life and the lives of others? Is he willing to go to some trouble to fulfill this responsibility?

"Until we can find a better way to influence the thinking of the individual along this line, we will fail to achieve the results we should and must achieve in accident prevention.

"Until we can change public apathy into action, public indifference into indignation, public resistance to safety laws into acceptance and support, we'll never really whip the accident problem—in this decade or any other."

How can the individual be sold on safety?

"By causing him to realize his moral responsibility for preventing accidents," said Jones, "and by arousing in him a sense of pride in sensible and co-operative behavior.

"I think our biggest job in the next decade is to pound home the fact that the one great safety rule is the Golden Rule—that nowhere, for example, is man literally his brother's keeper more than behind the wheel of an automobile.

"This is practical religion—and in it I see the greatest hope for winning the war on accidents. It is the only sure-fire weapon that can bring victory in that war."

Jones praised religious leaders of all faiths for their increasing activity in making accident prevention a major project of churches and synagogues throughout the country. He said the National Safety Council has been conducting an intensive campaign in this field for several years.

He pointed out that payola, rigging and the fix that seem to prevail in many areas of modern life have invaded the safety field, impeding efforts to reduce the number of accidents.

"More and more," he commented, "it seems to be the sophisticated procedure to clip a $5 bill to your driver's license when you are stopped by a traffic officer.

"More and more it seems to be a point of pride for the head of the family to brag to his wife and children that he has outsmarted a traffic officer who stopped him for speeding. And then he wonders why youngsters grow up with no respect for the law!

"More and more it seems to be a mark of erudition and casual living to have 'one for the road' before leaving the cocktail party or the tavern.

"It is amazing and distressing that so many people try so earnestly to beat laws that were made for their protection.

"I firmly believe that in trying to prevent accidents we are building a more moral and a more efficient society, a better way of life and a greater nation. We are, in fact, taking a big step toward world peace.

"In overcoming the attitudes and traits that cause traffic accidents, for example, we are overcoming the things that cause war—things such as greed, selfishness, contempt for the law, disregard for the rights of others, failure to share.

"It comes with poor grace, it seems to me, for a nation that proudly proclaims its concern for the welfare of other peoples to tolerate an accident toll that is a major threat to the welfare of its own people.

"Isn't it just possible that a nation which learns how to share a highway without bloodshed, whose people demonstrate they have a high regard for the welfare and safety of others—isn't it possible that such a nation may earn a greater respect from other nations and wield a greater influence for world peace?"

●

A MEDITATION

Have I mentioned any failing or fault of any man when it was not necessary for the good of another?

Have I unnecessarily grieved anyone by word or deed?

Have I desired the praise of men?

Have I set apart some time for endeavoring after a lively sense of the sufferings of Christ and my own sins? Have I resumed my claim to my body, soul, friends, fame, or fortune, which I have made over to God; or repented of my gift, when God accepted any of them at my hands?—Selected.

THE MAIL BOX

AVAILABLE FOR EVANGELISTIC OR MISSIONARY SERVICES

"To the Free Will Baptist people of the United States, greetings in the precious name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"The burden of a world lost without Christ lies heavy upon our heart. Truly the time remaining to get the gospel to needy souls seems short indeed. Answering the call of God, I hereby offer myself to the Free Will Baptist people of the United States for evangelistic services and/or special missionary services or conferences, also any other way God, in His providence, should see fit to use me.

"I am a graduate of our Free Will Baptist Bible College at Nashville, Tennessee. I have had quite a bit of experience as a pastor of Free Will Baptist churches in Tennessee and North Carolina. I have also had experience in revival meetings and missionary work.

"We have just recently returned from the mission field. We were working in Peru, South America, as missionary teachers. Because of the illness of our son, we were forced to return to the United States for medical treatment.

"We feel God has called us to this work and are trusting Him to open the doors for us to serve Him by serving the Free Will Baptist people in any capacity you may ask.

"I shall be happy to furnish references from leading Free Will Baptist ministers and leaders to any who should desire them. Please address all correspondence to the following address or phone TE 3-1850."—Rev. Carey Watkins, Route 1, Box 202, Cary, North Carolina.

ENJOYS PAPER

"Those of us at the Charleston, S. C., Free Will Baptist Church who subscribe to The Free Will Baptist are certainly thankful for the wonderful stories, articles and editorials that are published each week. The Free Will Baptist is our link with the activities and ideas of our sister church all over

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Tribute to Board Member

The Board of Directors of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, paused in the midst of a busy schedule to pay a tribute of respect to one of its members, R. McLeod, now deceased, who had been a devoted member of the board for a long time. Brother McLeod had also been assistant superintendent of the home for a short time.

Each member of the board present expressed nothing but the highest praise for the interest, loyalty and liberality that Brother McLeod had for the home.

We deeply feel the loss of this valuable member of the board and his passing is a challenge to the rest of us to be ever loyal, devoted and true to the cause we represent, and the cause which Brother McLeod loved.

It is hereby ordered by the board in regular session that a copy of the above be placed in the minutes of this session, a copy of same be forwarded to the Free Will Baptist Press for publication, and a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

R. L. Spencer, Secretary
Board of Directors

If we have never told Jesus that we trust our souls to Him and want Him for our Saviour, then we'd better do it today. After that let's tell Him often. He loves to hear it, and it is good for us to renew our loyalty.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

the country. It is eagerly awaited each Thursday.

"Especially in the May 4, June 1 and June 15 issues, I have enjoyed the articles referring to eternal security and the sin of blasphemy. These articles are written clearly and concisely and eliminated much of my confusion and misunderstanding, rather than further muddling the issues in my mind. Thank you, thank you for publishing these articles.

"The Charleston Church is really growing under the guidance of Rev. Noah Brown and the leadership of the Holy Spirit. . . . It is our desire to contribute for publication newsworthy items periodically.

"Thank you again for The Free Will Baptist and for the opportunity of contributing to it in a small way."—Mrs. Betty P. White, 2124 Barbour Avenue, Oakland, Charleston, South Carolina.

News from Cragmont Assembly

by J. E. Wooten

Here are happy to inform our Cragmont friends and supporters that we have made progress toward preparation for better and more efficient service, even though we have been financially handicapped. The Lord has blessed the efforts of those who have encouraged the work and the new building is now ready for use. In fact, it is already being used. It is not only convenient and comfortable. Our old building has been repaired and newly painted and looks like another building. Thanks to our loyal friends who have responded to our appeal so generously and to the Lord. A picture of the new building is on the front page of this issue of The Free Will Baptist.

Some of our friends who encouraged us to believe they would help pay for the furniture for the new building have responded encouragingly. Some, however, have not yet contacted us. We are looking forward with faith in our friends and in the Lord to the time when we can meet our obligations.

Our conferences thus far have been well attended and have been inspirational and helpful. Ask the young people who have attended what they think of the meetings and the time spent at Cragmont. The Young People's Mission Conference, held June 27—July 2, enrolled 106. We plan with our pastors, adult Christians and parents to encourage and help the young people to attend as many of the conferences as possible. You will be rendering them a great personal service, and through them a great service to the Saviour.

We plan to give a report, covering activities and finances a little later. Come to Cragmont Assembly and get personally acquainted with the camp, its objective, and its manner of operation. The invitation is to you.

LIFE'S PURPOSE

"A flower that stops short at its flowering misses its purpose. We were created for more than our own spiritual development; reproduction, not mere development, is the goal of matured being—reproduction in other lives. There is a tendency in some characters, running parallel to the high cultivation that spends its whole energy on the production of bloom at the expense of seed. The flowers that are bent on becoming double, end in barrenness, and a barrenness comes to the soul whose interests are all concentrated upon its own spiritual bell-being."—Selected.

How to Help Your Minister

by William E. Grobe

HAVE YOU EVER in enthusiasm and sincerity approached your minister with the offer, "Just let me know if there's any way I can help"? If you have—and if you've never been called upon in reply—it is probably not because there is nothing you can do. Far more likely your pastor's needs are so numerous that he is reluctant to speak of them. Let me as a minister suggest a few of the many things you can do to help.

One of the first ways to help your pastor is by responding to his ministry. If his ministry is not effective in your life, others will not look to him in confidence.

Pray for your pastor. If he does not reach the way you feel he should, don't get bitter and criticize. Pray continually that God will keep him close to Himself and bless his ministry. It is amazing how few church members really pray for their pastor.

Work up contacts for your minister among your friends and neighbors. Many people are afraid of ministers. You can be a go-between and thus be used by God.

Then be a true friend to him. Too many laymen assume that their minister as so many friends he does not need or want their personal friendship. Your minister may well be one of the loneliest men in our city.

He must constantly be of spiritual help to others. How much he would welcome spiritual help from his laymen. Some apparently insignificant reflection of your heart may be the source of untold spiritual help to your minister. A congregation may well provide for its minister's physical food and starve him to death spiritually.

Remember that your minister is human. He will make mistakes and when he does, forgive him and pray for him. Do all you can to help him avoid mistakes. How I thank God for the woman who called me to the telephone, even as I was writing these pages, to ask if someone would not be unintentionally hurt by the way something had been planned. Thank God, a soldier in our unit of God's army was alert to a mistake and it was corrected in time.

Go to your minister with your problems. You call a doctor for a physical ailment. Don't hesitate to call on your pastor with your spiritual, mental and moral problems. He may not help you solve them completely. In any case you have helped make him more aware of the problems which his people are facing.

The sincere minister is eager to be available at all times. But try to be gracious in your demands. How often the doorbell or telephone is answered and one is greeted by a cheery, "I just knew I'd find you at mealtime." And, in the meantime, the mealtime is gone and it is time to get back to work.

There may be other ways in which your pastor needs your help. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him" (James 1:5). Remember when you help your minister you are helping him to serve God better.—Suggested for Print by Rashie Kennedy.

T.N.T. for Quemoy

THE fortress island of Quemoy is once again in the news with the recent resumption of shelling by the Reds on the nearby mainland. This spring Quemoy's garrison of 2,000 officers and men received a very special consignment of T. N. T. (The New Testament) in honor of Madam Chiang Kai-shek's birthday. The Testaments were presented in her behalf by Pocket Testament League's representative, Andrew Loo.

In recent years Madam Chiang, out of respect for the suffering of the people on the mainland under Communist rule, has allowed her birthday to be marked by little more than a tea party. This year even the tea party was abandoned in favor of the suggestion made by her Woman's Prayer Group that the Testaments be sent to the Quemoy garrison. Andrew Loo was asked to make the presentation.

It had been eight years since a three-man Pocket Testament League team had last visited Quemoy to distribute Testaments. Andrew Loo found that in the intervening years the island has been made almost impregnable. Most of the installations are underground. There are modern highways, buildings and servicemen's rest centers, and a new airdrome shielded by hills from enemy observation provides safer landing facilities.

Mr. Loo went to Quemoy as chaplain to President Chiang's chapel. With him on the plane went the Scriptures, marked Priority. General Liu An-ch'i, commanded of the fortress, arranged a dinner at which Mr. Loo spoke to three hundred officers and men and distributed his T. N. T.

Archaeology Team Finds Ancient Tomb

The unearthing of a 3,000-year-old tomb on the site of the ancient city of Dothan in Jordan has been reported by the Wheaton College archaeological team. The team, under the leadership of Dr. Joseph P. Free, returned to the U. S. late in June. Along with them they brought 50 cases of material found in the tomb which is thought to date from between 1400 and 1100 B. C., or about 200 years before the days of King Solomon.

The tomb contained 989 objects, including pottery, weapons, lamps, copper bowls and eighty-four skeletons. The presence of such a large number of skeletons, Dr. Free believes, gave rise to the belief that it was a family tomb. A bronze lamp, he added, tended to indicate that it was the grave of a wealthy warrior family, since clay lamps were used predominantly in that period.

Dothan is located about 60 miles north of Jerusalem. It is estimated to have been settled about 5,000 years ago. The city is mentioned in the Bible in the book of Genesis as the place where Joseph was sold into slavery by his brothers. The tomb was discovered last year, but excavation had to wait until this year because of weather conditions. To reach the tomb, the archaeologists had to dig down 25 feet through various strata to cultural remains. This took two months.

A grumble box with a penny dropped in for missions for every "grumble" quickly ends the grumbling habit. It ends the quarreling habit in a similar way.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

NEWS NOTES

Quarterly Report of National League Board

The following is the quarterly report of the National Free Will Baptist League Board, April 1—June 30, 1960:
Cash in Bank March 31, 1960 $ 162.00

Receipts

10% of Offerings	$ 484.71
Budget Contributions	88.37
The League Monthly
Subscriptions	190.75
Sale of Promotional Items	183.13
League Manuals	34.10
F.W.B.L. Bibles	58.00
Cooperative Plan	222.66
College Kitchen Campaign	365.87
10% on Sale of Literature	684.07
Travel Income	438.66
Miscellaneous Sales	12.18
Total Receipts	2,762.00

Total to Account For $2,925.00

Disbursements

Secretarial and Promotional
Services	$1,172.46
Postage	78.19
Purchases for Promotional
Items	173.10
Printing	121.00
Office Supplies	9.39
Employees' Insurance	36.40
College Kitchen Campaign	319.10
Headquarters Maintenance	149.70
Travel Expense	398.71
Miscellaneous Expense	25.81
Internal Revenue	222.40
Income Tax Return	80.00
Total Disbursements	2,786.00

Balance on Hand, June 30, 1960 $ 139.00

National Superannuation Report for June

The following is the financial report of the National Superannuation Board of Free Will Baptists for the month ended June 30, 1960. This report was submitted for publication by the secretary-treasurer, M. K. V. Shutes:

Cash on Hand, June 1, 1960 $3,409.00

Receipts

Cooperative Plan of Support States Credited as Follows:
Alabama	$ 2.78
Arkansas	9.98
California	15.32
Florida	6.78
Georgia	7.94
Illinois	.23
Missouri	1.68
North Carolina	2.70
New Mexico	2.89
Oklahoma	18.72
Tennessee	10.89

Final Call for Conference at Cragmont

Eighty-two people attended the General Youth Conference sponsored by the North Carolina Sunday School Convention at Cragmont Assembly the second week in June. The Lord blessed the conference in a wonderful way. Several were saved; many were revived spiritually; quite a number dedicated themselves to definite Christian service.

The next state-wide conference to be sponsored by the convention will be the Youth Bible Conference the week of August 1-6. Directors for this conference will be the Rev. L. E. Ballard and the Rev. Billy Jackson. A full week's program of instruction, inspiration and recreation has been planned, with a staff of dedicated counselors and instructors in charge.

Already over thirty have registered for this week. At least twice this number can be taken care of because of extra room at the assembly this year. Reservations on the chartered bus, however, are limited, so it is important that those who wish to attend the conference register as early as possible.

Registration is simple. Just send name, full mailing address, and age to: Rev. L. E. Ballard, Box 338, Scotland Neck, North Carolina. Also send a deposit of $5 on the overall fee of $30 (which covers transportation, board and room, insurance, cost of sightseeing trips—everything except personal spending money). Groups or individuals may also register by telephoning VA 6-6092 at Scotland Neck.

This will be the final opportunity for young people (except for the Piedmont area) to go to Cragmont this year to a planned conference. There is still time for Sunday school classes and other church organizations to plan to send young people to the conference. Register now, and be ready to board the Cragmont Special at New Bern at 6:00 a. m. (St. Mary's) August 1, or Kinston (courthouse) at 7:00 a. m., Wilson at 8:00 a. m. (First F. W. B. Church), Smithfield at 9:00 a. m. (courthouse), or Raleigh at 10:00 a. m. (Memorial Auditorium).

Charleston, S. C., Church Progressing Rapidly

Members of the Charleston, South Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church are very thankful and happy about the way God is blessing the church. The Rev. Noah Brown is pastor, and he is working diligently with his congregation for the increase of God's Kingdom.

During the past quarter 27 new members were added to the church, making a total membership of 110. The Sunday school is alive and flourishing with a membership of 188. There were 39 new members added during the last quarter.

The league increased by 25, making a total of 99 members. The leaguers are praying and working for better program presentations and more daily Bible readers.

The second quarter showed a 45 per cent increase in tithes and offerings. This is an impressive increase which has brought joy and thanksgiving to all the members.

The Charleston Church is very thankful for the way God is blessing their efforts for Him. Free Will Baptists are requested to pray for this work that it will continue to grow in Christ.

State Ministers' Conference Endorses College

The following statement was issued by unanimous vote of the ministers attending the North Carolina State Ministers' Conference at Cragmont Assembly on June 1, 1960:

"In view of the recent criticism and charges directed against Mount Olive Junior College by certain individuals who expressed their personal views through the medium of the printed page, we, the members of the North Carolina Ministerial Association of Original Free Will Baptists, meeting at Cragmont Assembly during the first week in June, 1960, do hereby reaffirm our faith in the philosophy and personnel of Mount Olive Junior College and pledge to the administration of the college our loyalty and support, believing that this college is making an invaluable contribution to our denomination and our youth."

The Rev. C. B. Hansley is president of the conference, and the Rev. Melvin Everington is secretary.

Coming Events

August 14-19—College Youth Conference, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

Texas	15.09
Virginia	2.24
from States:
Alabama	67.18
Florida	28.57
Georgia	161.41
Missouri	76.24
North Carolina	421.14
South Carolina	27.56
Tennessee	14.88
Texas	17.00
Virginia	43.85

Other Receipts:

from Insured on Premiums 261.36

Total Receipts 1,216.43

Total to Account For $4,625.48

Disbursements

Premiums on Insured $472.15

Accountants 125.00

Secretarial Service 75.00

Postage 4.00

Total Disbursements 676.15

Balance in Treasury,

June 30, 1960 $3,949.33

First Union Meeting of N. C. Western Conference

The First Union Meeting of the Western Conference will convene with Micro, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church, Saturday, July 30, 1960.

Each church is urgently requested to present with the proper information by filling out report blanks. The following program has been planned:

Morning Session

9:00—Devotions, Rev. R. H. Jackson

9:15—Welcome, Mr. C. B. Hinnant

—Response, Rev. Dewey C. Boling

9:20—Special Music

9:30—Reading of Minutes

9:40—Roll Call of Ministers

9:40—Roll Call of Churches

9:25—Congregational Singing, Led by Rev. B. L. Shook

—Offering for Children's Home

9:30—Sermon, Rev. R. N. Hinnant

9:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

9:00—Devotions, Rev. Earl Glenn

9:15—Education: It's Purpose, Miss Leah McGlohon

9:35—Business Session

9:30—Adjournment

New Church Organized

Lake City, S. C.

The Grace Free Will Baptist Church was organized on June 17, 1960, in Lake City, South Carolina, with 10 charter members. The revival which lasted for 11 days was sponsored by the South Carolina State Home Mission Board with Dr. Willard C. Day as the evangelist. The church was set in order the night after the revival closed by the state home missions director, the Rev. Clarence E. Lambert of Darlington, South Carolina. He was assisted by the Rev. W. L. Jernigan of Timmonsville, South Carolina; the Rev. J. B. Vause of Pamplico, South Carolina; and the Rev. Tyler Watford of Darlington, South Carolina.

All Free Will Baptists are asked to pray for this young church that the blessings of God may be upon it.

Rev. R. O. O'Dell Resigns Pastorate

The Rev. R. O. O'Dell recently resigned the pastorate of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Fort Worth, Texas. Concerning his resignation, Mr. O'Dell makes the following statement:

"Because of the conditions, and because I feel that the Lord is leading me in this way, I have turned in my resignation as pastor. We were happy to hear from a great number of people saying they would like for me to stay, in fact the majority. We do hope God will send a man that will work with and build the church. We ask all to pray that God will open a way for us. This was a hard decision to make, but God was my helper and I am sure that all will work for good."

Mt. Zion Church Reports Successful Revival

The Mt. Zion Free Will Baptist Church, Johnston County, North Carolina, reports that the recent revival held at the church with the Rev. Dewey C. Boling as the evangelist was very successful. During the revival, held June 20-29, a total of 35 decisions were made. Backsliders were restored and sinners were saved. There were 23 first-time decisions, and 22 were baptized and united with the church.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. W. O. Lassiter, states: "We solicit the prayers of all Christians for the church and these new converts that the church may be a blessing to them, and that they in turn may be a blessing to the church."

N. C. Fifth Eastern Union Meeting

The Fifth Eastern Union Meeting will be held at Mt. Zion Church, Vandemere, North Carolina, July 30, 1960. The Rev. T. O. Terry will act as song director for the meeting. The following program has been planned:

Morning Session

9:30—Congregational Singing

9:45—Devotions, Rev. Henry Armstrong

10:00—Roll Call of Ministers

10:05—Appointment of Committees

10:10—Recognition of Visitors

—Reports of Denominational Enterprises

10:30—Congregational Singing

10:35—Reading of Church Letters

11:00—Praise Service

11:15—Message, Rev. A. Graham Lane

11:50—Offering for Children's Home

12:00—Lunch and Fellowship

Afternoon Session

1:15—Congregational Singing

1:20—Devotions, Rev. E. E. Edwards

1:30—Final Roll Call of Churches

1:40—Message, Rev. Bobby Bazen

2:10—Business Period

2:30—Adjournment

Children's Home Report for June, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, reports the following receipts for June, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual, auxiliary or organization contributing, but totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt:

General Fund

Albemarle Conference	$ 801.97
Blue Ridge Association	77.07
Cape Fear Conference	340.95
Central Conference	1,291.16
Eastern Conference	1,604.29
French Broad Association	297.11
Jack's Creek Association	13.29
Pee Dee Association	34.54
Piedmont Association	117.00
Rockfish Conference	14.00
Western Conference	909.58
Miscellaneous	1,384.21
Farmer Picture Program	569.48
Bennett Concert Class	1,472.26
Alumni Association Furniture	227.70
Student Education Fund	40.00

Kitchen Fund

Blue Ridge Association	26.00
Cape Fear Conference	15.00
Central Conference	38.00
Eastern Conference	10.00

Central Conference Building Fund

Central Conference	66.82
--------------------	-------

Total June Receipts $9,950.43

Successful Revival Held At Milbournie Church

The Rev. Bobby Jackson conducted revival services at the Milbournie Free Will Baptist Church, Wilson County, North Carolina, June 8-19, which were termed very successful by the pastor, the Rev. Dewey C. Boling. There was a total of 24 decisions during the meeting. As a

(continued on page nine)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Will you please tell me if the following passages of Scripture teach that baptism in water is essential to salvation? Mark 16:16; John 3:5; and "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38).—Marg Rainer, Illinois.

Answer: I think not; otherwise, what would have happened to the thief on the cross? One of the two thieves while on the cross spoke, "And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:42, 43). Jesus here taught that before the day on which He and this malefactor were crucified was ended, they would be together in paradise, the place at that time to which the spirits of all the righteous dead departed. If baptism by water had been essential, this thief would have been forced to depart to the place of abode in which the unsaved went in that day.

In Mark 16:16, it is not said, "He that is not baptized shall be damned," but rather, "He that believeth not." Jesus and His disciples agreed in teaching that baptism into water was an ordinance to be observed as an outward sign or witness of that inward change of the heart that takes place at the time of the new birth. They did not teach that any were baptized in order to be saved but rather because they were saved.

"To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins. While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word. . . . Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we?" (Acts 10:43, 44, 47). These Scriptures make clear to us the fact that Cornelius, his household and other friends received the Holy Ghost before being baptized into water. "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father" (Galatians 4:6). According to this verse God sends the Spirit into people's hearts because He acknowledges their relation to Himself as being sons. This being true, the men at Cornelius' house were sons before they had water baptism and not as a result of having been thus baptized. In answer to your question concerning, "Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:5), I can see no conjunction between this verse and water baptism, but rather than that I understand it to refer to the washing of water by the Word of God.

Jesus, on that memorable night when He instituted the Lord's Supper said, "Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you" (John 15:3). Also when he prayed on that same night He said, "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth" (John 17:17).

Paul in like manner writes, "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word" (Ephesians 5:25, 26). Then he further substantiates this fact when he says, "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost" (Titus 3:5). The sentiment of Peter is seen to be in full accord with such a view. "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever" (1 Peter 1:23). Jesus teaches in the same chapter where John 3:5 is found; "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). If anything besides faith were required of a sinner in order that he be saved, I do not think you would have such definite emphatic statements coming from Jesus Christ, the only Saviour and Redeemer.

Question: Please explain, "And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness" (Romans 8:10).—Rodney Jones, Tennessee.

Answer: This verse of Scripture teaches us that our redemption now is but partial. The spirit of the Christian who lives here in the body has been made alive, but this is not true of the body in which he lives.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THE LOVE OF GOD

"Herein is love, not that we loved God but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (1 John 4:10).

(Continued from Last Issue)

To continue with Dr. Chamber's message on The Love of God:

The Bible says that "God so loved the world" and the unfathomable depth of His love is in that word, so, yet it also says ". . . know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world the enemy of God" (James 4:4). The apparent contradiction can be explained in this—God's love for the world is the kind of love that makes Him go to all lengths in order to remove the sin and evil from the world. Love to be anything at all must be personal; to love without hating is an impossibility, and the stronger and the more emphatic the love, the more intense is its opposite, hatred. God loves the world so much that He hates with a perfect hatred the thing that swayed men wrong; the more He loves, the more He hates. The natural heart of man would have argued "God so loves the world, of course He will forgive its sin"; God so loved the world that He could not forgive its sin. There is no such thing as God overlooking sin.

The body is yet to be quickened. This will take place at the resurrection if he dies before the coming of Jesus for His saints. If he does not, he will be changed and caught up without having the death and grave experience that those who die before the time experience. "Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself" (Philippians 3:21). When these vile bodies are changed into bodies like His glorified body, redemption will be complete and not until then.

Therefore if He does forgive there must be a reason that justifies Him in doing so. Love is the highest moral issue—"God is love."

When the love of God is realized by grace, the sovereign preference of my person for God enables Him to manifest His purpose in me. When the love of God has been shed abroad in our hearts we have to exhibit it in the strain of life.

Before we can love God we must have the Love of God in us, viz., the Holy Spirit. And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us" (Romans 5:5).

The springs of love are in God, that means they cannot be found anywhere else. Love and life are in God and in Jesus Christ and in the Holy Spirit whom God gives to us, not because we merit Him, but according to His own grace. The surest sign that God has done a work of grace in my heart is that I love Jesus Christ best, not weakly and faintly, but passionately, personally and devotedly overwhelming every other love in my life. "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another" (1 John 4:11).

My dear friends, as I trust you have read these words by this great servant of God, this is my hope and prayer that you have been made to know and feel the love of God more and more in your hearts and lives, and that we will all strive as we go on through life to make God and His love real to ourselves and to those we contact daily. To have the fullness of the love of God we must have love for all others. The Bible says, "... If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us" (1 John 4:12). It says again, "We love him because he first loved us. If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" (1 John 4:19, 20).

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13:35).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

As a result of the revival, 13 were baptized and united with the church.

Mr. Boling states, "As the pastor of the church, we invite your prayers for the work at Milbournie. We began our ministry at this church seven years ago, and during these seven years the Lord has really blessed in a great way. Seven years ago the church did not own any property at all. Now the church has a deed to a $40,000 church, with a big lot and all modern equipment, including rest room facilities and new furniture, with a debt of less than $5,000 which we hope to pay off soon. We here at Milbournie are very thankful for God's wonderful blessings and are looking forward to greater things in His cause."

South Georgia Sunday School Convention to Meet

The South Georgia Free Will Baptist Sunday School Convention will meet with Ebenezer Church near Glennville, Georgia, July 23, 1960. The following program has been scheduled for this meeting:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Singing, Directed by Rev. Windel Long
- 10:30—Devotions, Directed by Local Sunday School
 - Welcome by Host Church
- 10:45—Receiving Reports from Sunday Schools
 - Appointment of Committees
- 10:50—Recess
- 11:00—Singing, Directed by Rev. Windel Long
 - Prayer by Rev. J. M. Cobb
 - Offering for National Sunday School Board
 - Special Singing, Satilla Church
- 11:25—Sermon, "Christian Education in the Church," Rev. James Pelt
- 12:00—Announcements
 - Lunch, Served by Ladies of Host Church

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Singing, Directed by Rev. Windel Long
- 1:15—Devotions, Rev. James Usrey
- 1:30—"Advantages and Methods of Enrollment," Mrs. Damon C. Dodd
- 1:45—"Teacher Training and Soul Winning in the Sunday School," Rev. Bill Gardner
- 2:00—Digested Report from Sunday Schools, Committee
- 2:15—Report of Committee on Finance
- 2:30—Business Session
 - Election of Officers
 - Installation of Officers, Rev. Tom Hamilton
- 3:15—Adjournment

Fourth Union Meeting of N. C. Central Conference

The Fourth Union Meeting of the Central Conference will be held at Saratoga, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church on July 30, 1960. The theme for this meeting will be "Visitation Evangelism."

The following program has been scheduled for this meeting:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Devotions, "Visitation, a New Testament Method," Rev. Hubert Burress

- 10:15—Welcome, Mrs. Martha Pipman
 - Response, Rev. Ed Miles
- 10:20—"Visitation Evangelism Is Building Churches Today," Rev. Melvin Everington
- 10:30—Moderator's Message
- 10:40—Business and Reports
- 11:25—Message in Song, Local Church
- 11:30—Sermon, Rev. W. H. Willis
 - Alternate, Rev. Bobby Joe Godwin
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions, "Now Let's Go to Work," Rev. C. D. Hamilton
- 1:15—Business
- 2:30—Adjournment

Rev. Ed Miles Resigns Pastorate

The Rev. Ed Miles has tendered his resignation as pastor of Mt. Tabor Free Will Baptist Church, Creswell, North Carolina, to be effective September 1. He will deliver his farewell sermon on the fourth Sunday in August. Mr. Miles came to Mt. Tabor Church from Mount Olive Junior College in September of 1958.

The church has improved much under the leadership of Mr. Miles. The church regrets that he is leaving after serving the church for two years. The Rev. R. P. Harris has been called to serve the church, beginning the second Sunday in September. The church feels that it is very fortunate in securing Mr. Harris as pastor.

The Ayden, N. C., Church Slates Revival for July 31

The Rev. Raymond Gaskins, pastor of the Ayden, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church, announces the beginning of a summer revival on July 31, 1960, at 8:00 p. m.

Rev. Melvin Worthington, pastor of Union Chapel and Palmetto Churches, near Chocowinity, will be the evangelist. Mr. Worthington conducted a highly successful revival at this church in April, resulting in a large number of memberships being added to the church.

Mr. Gaskins states, "It is hoped that this will be a resumption of the April revival. We ask all Free Will Baptists to pray that God will bless as we continue to go about doing His will."

A Christian teacher in a Christian high school reported that he asked a class of freshmen from Christian homes, "How many of you have ever asked God to guide you to your life's work?" Not a single one raised his hand. Didn't their parents omit a vital angle in helping their children? —The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Greetings from Brazil

June 11, 1960
Campinas, Brazil

Dear Friends:

Greetings in Christ from Brazil! "The Lord has done great things for us, whereof we are glad." The Lord has been so very good to us and we are so thankful for His sending us here where the truth of His Word is still a mystery to the people.

It is hard to realize that almost six months have passed since we left the States. We are so very happy, content and settled in our new home that we hardly have time to stop and think that we are so very far from home. Wednesday Sammy and Dave went with Esther to Sao Paulo for her to catch the plane back to her work about 350 miles south of here. Sammy said that watching all of the planes come and go made him a bit homesick, but when one is busy in the work here there isn't much time for homesickness. Though many things here are very much like they are in the States, there are still many, many things that are strange to us and make us aware constantly are we are foreigners in Brazil. We find the Brazilians are very friendly and understanding. Especially are they understanding about our handicap of not being able to speak Portuguese. It is a bit disturbing not to be able to say what one wishes to say and after a struggle of explaining to a clerk in the store what one would like it is even more disturbing to have him say it back to you in English! Many people here speak at least a bit of English because they are taught it in school as well as French, German, Latin, Spanish and Portuguese. To get an education here is very expensive but many of the teen-agers work all day as domestic helpers and go to the universities at night in order to learn. They are very eager to learn but in their learning they are educated in everything except the way of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is our earnest desire to be able to teach many of them in His way.

The children are adjusting very well to their new surroundings. It is amazing how quickly they learn to converse in another language without any apparent effort while we struggle several hours a day to learn. Kevin plays with our little Brazilian neighbors and understands very much of what they say and he in turn talks back to them in Portuguese. Kimberly understands very much of what is said to her but does not say too much yet in Portuguese. They seem as happy learning choruses and Scripture in Portuguese as they did in English. They are both well except for occasional colds. We are now having winter and though the days are very seldom cold when one is cold it seems really cold. We have had several days when a light top coat was very comfortable, but generally for the winter a heavy sweater is sufficient. I think the climate here is generally compared with that of Miami, Florida.

As yet we are not very active in the work of the church here because of our not being able to speak in Portuguese, but we attend the regular services of the church. We are able to assist only by our presence and must admit we get a bit hungry spiritually to hear a good English sermon. However, we are beginning to understand quite a bit of what is said.

The church schedule here is very full and really keeps the people busy. There is a service every night of the week. Auxiliary meeting is on Monday night. Tuesday night Ken teaches the Sunday school lesson to the adult, senior, and intermediate teachers and Eula Mae teaches the junior, primary, and beginner teachers. Also, usually there is a service in some home for those who are not teachers or else the people do visitation work. Wednesday night there is a service in the home of one of the deacons who lives quite a distance from the church in another section of town. Thursday night is regular prayer meeting at the church and a service at a farm where several families live and because of the distance from the church are not able to come during the week. Friday night one of the students of the Bible Institute has a class of reading and writing for those of the church who care to learn. Saturday is usually reserved for special services. On the fourth Saturday night the church has its regular business meeting with those who have made decisions during the month giving public professions of faith. First Saturday night is reserved for the observing of the Lord's supper and feet washing. Every Sunday afternoon of each month is reserved for baptismal services. On Sunday morning Sunday School is held at the church with short preaching service afterwards. On Saturday afternoon Eula Mae and Dave, assisted by some of the young people of the church, conduct Sunday school in another section of town in one of the believer's home. On Sunday evening there is league, a street service, and regular evangelistic service at the church.

When I say at the church, I simply mean our place of worship. We have no church building, but rent a house and use the rooms for Sunday school rooms and the two front porches for the assembly or sanctuary. The two porches will seat about 100. The people come rain or shine and through all of the services. None of them have cars, but either walk (some of the long distances) or ride the city buses. It is sometimes it seems very cold sitting on the open porches during the services, especially now that the nights are very cold and the wind blows nearly all the time here in Campinas. However, the people seem not to notice it too much. Many of the children come barefoot and without even the thinnest of sweaters on their arms. Yet they come faithfully and rejoice in their salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ. The church is now paying on a lot of land but most of the people have a very meager income and it takes such a long time to save enough money for a building. Before every service at the church there is a street meeting. It never ceases to thrill our hearts to see our people ready to witness, especially the young people. They give out tracts, sing, preach, and witness personally. We are praying that the Lord will call more of them into full-time Christian service. We now have four in our Bible Institute which Dave, Ken and Eula Mae teach. We are hoping soon to be able to have it an educational because we have already two girls who want to study.

We are most grateful for the many prayers which have been offered in our behalf but ask your continued prayers for the following requests especially.

1. Pray for us that our needs spiritual, physically and materially will be supplied. We are so grateful for the financial support that has been given us, but our account is still in the red and we ask that you pray especially that the Lord will lay upon each of your hearts what He would have you do for the cause of foreign missions through your giving.

2. Pray that the Lord will supply the need here so that our people can build a place of worship.

3. Pray for our evangelist, Fransciso, who is in the state of Minas Gerais. He is here
(continued on page eleven)

NOTES

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

SOME CHANGES IN MY DAY

When I was ordained, June 12, 1910, I was styled an Elder in the Free Will Baptist church. Those who ordained me, according to the rules and regulations of the Free Will Baptist church, referred to themselves as Elder B. H. Boykin, Elder B. B. Deans and Elder J. K. Ruffin. Being ordained to the full rights and privileges of an Elder, I had full fellowship with the brethren; and with this I became a servant as pastor, and so called by the churches and institutions

When the Free Will Baptists of the East, the West, the North and the South came together proclaiming to be one body, the revision committee signed their names with the prefix Elder J. C. Griffin, and so going down the line. There were two laymen on the committee who were designated Brother.

In some parts of the country, even here in North Carolina, laymen speak of their pastor and other ministers as Elder, at least that is what they call me and I appreciate the prefix of Elder.

May we notice what Peter said: "Peter, apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia" (1 Peter 1:1). Now we will look at Peter's salutation to Christians in his second epistle: "Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that they have obtained precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord" (2 Peter 1:1, 2). Peter never claimed to be anything higher than his assertions stated in these epistles.

There is nowhere in the Bible that proves Peter ever claimed to be a pope. In 1 Peter 5:1, we find these words: "The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and an eye witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed." So the apostle, Peter, was satisfied with the term of being called an Elder. Following the trend of Modernism, we love to put before our names, The Reverend, and in some cases there are some who say the Right Reverend.

Now I do not write this to condemn or unchristianize those who prefer the term Elder, and place it on all their literature, letterheads and envelopes; but I'm still an old-fashioned Free Will Baptist who somehow likes the old term, Elder Jones, Elder Smith, Elder Griffin, while on my stationary and etc. I just say, J. C. Griffin.

Now I may be laughed at by those of the younger ministers, and perhaps of some of the older, but brethren and sisters, I will not hate you if you disagree with me, and if you attend my church I will not look at you with an evil eye, but I will respect you and treat you as a minister of the gospel. Come and see.

GOD IS REVEREND

"He (GOD) sent redemption unto his people: he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and reverend is his name" (Psalm 111:9). God is holy—there is no sin in, nor with God. He only is called reverend. Praise His holy name.

I get letters from people who write Rev. J. C. Griffin, but when I answer I say, J. C. Griffin, with a foreword, "Yours in Christ."

NAMES I LOVE TO THINK ABOUT

Elder P. T. Lucas, Elder B. H. Boykin, Elder B. B. Deans, Elder J. K. Ruffin, Elder E. T. Phillips, Elder "Jim" Barfield, Elder T. H. Matthew, Elder Henry Cunningham, and a host of others who were living fifty years ago, and as I recall, I never saw the prefix, Reverend, before their names; they were satisfied like Peter to be called Elder.

I was talking to an elderly minister some time back, and he gave notice of some young fellows who were just licensed to preach who immediately they got their stationary ready pointing out that they were Reverend so and so. We human beings do love to exalt ourselves; we love to be called Reverend so and so, or some other name. That was not the way fifty years ago. I am just giving the difference in the terminology of fifty years ago, and in these days of religion, even in our Free Will Baptist church. As said before, if you get mad, let me know it and I will pray for you.

There is one thing you cannot do, you cannot try me except you go by the words of Jesus Christ as set forth in the Gospel according to Matthew, Chapter 18:15-19. Then you have to have your charges presented in writing and signed in your own handwriting. A man that is not willing to sign his name to the charges or accusations ought to quit accusing others of wrongdoing.

OUR MODERN EVANGELISTIC ALTAR CALLS

What about the modern way of getting people to the altar? I will answer this

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

ing much opposition but new fields are opening for him. He has been given permission to witness on a large farm where before the owner forbade his workers to listen to the preaching of the Word.

4 Pray for our new work in Moji Mirim, where Waldemar, our former pastor here, is now working. He is having opposition from the state church but souls are being won to the Lord.

5. Pray for us as we are in the middle of our second semester of language school. So far we have not found the language study extremely difficult and enjoy it very much. Pray that the Lord will continue to give us understanding and wisdom.

Pray that all of us will be the new convert who said, "I want to be strong," when the pastor talked to him about his faithfulness under opposition and pressure from other sources. Pray that we will be as faithful as the woman whose husband burned her Bible and put her out of the house. Yes, God is working and we want to be available when He needs us.

Let us hear from each of you. Believe me, nothing makes us much happier than to get a letter!

To know is to be responsible!

Sincerely in Christ,
The Wilkinsons

LIVING ON DISBELIEFS

A man who believes truth can stand on his feet. I pity those men who live on "negatives," on what they "don't believe." I met a man sometime ago, and he said he didn't believe this, and he didn't believe that, and he told me forty things he "didn't believe." I said: "Will you tell me what you do believe?" And the poor fellow didn't know what he did believe. If it's the truth, my friends, stick to it; hold on to it; but if it's not true, give it up.—D. L. Moody.

FAITH

You believe in a place of refuge when you have recourse to it; you believe in a bulwark when you lean upon it. You believe in a friend when you commit some of your cares and troubles to him. You believe in Christ when you commit all to Him, and are willing to accept all from Him. "Faith," it has been said, "is trust in Christ for everything you need at every moment." Believe and then keep on believing.—C. J. Casher.

question next week when I discuss the difference of fifty years ago and that of the modern evangelist of today.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

A Favor for Mr. Dix

by Cleva R. Hanna

VANCE moved his shoulders up and down, and waved both arms around in circles. "Whew! these boxes get heavier," he said.

"They sure do," agreed Jack, his twin brother. "But we'll have money to go to the skating rink. Coach Lane said he'd be there tonight to show us some real fancy skating. I don't want to miss that."

Each boy pulled another box from a shelf and moved it across the storeroom. After they had worked busily for another half-hour Mr. Dix, the owner of the store, came in.

"Good work, boys," he said, looking at the pile upon which they were stacking more boxes. Then he turned and looked thoughtfully at the shelves.

"Vance and Jack," he called. "I know you are tired but if you can stay after closing time to clear off those shelves across the end I'll pay you extra for it. I've just learned that the carpenters will be here tomorrow morning to begin tearing out that end, to enlarge the store."

Jack and Vance looked at each other. Jack shook his head slightly and pointed his thumb over his shoulder to remind Vance about the skating rink. They had just time to get home for supper and get dressed to meet the other boys and girls at the appointed hour.

Vance opened his mouth to tell Mr. Dix that they couldn't work any longer. Then he thought of the times the kind man had found little extra jobs for them just to help them make money, and of the times he had given them ice cream or candy. He looked at Jack again then back at Mr. Dix.

"I'll stay, sir," he said.

"I'll have to go," said Jack with a frown and a cross look at Vance.

Mr. Dix thanked Vance and told him that he, himself, would come in a little later to help him. Then he told Jack to come to the office for his pay.

Jack gave Vance one more ugly look and turned to follow Mr. Dix, but Vance caught his sleeve and pulled him back. "You know how good Mr. Dix has been to us," he said. "Is it right for us to fail him now? He doesn't know about the skating party, and even if he did he's in a pinch."

Jack looked down at the floor. "I didn't think about all that," he mumbled. "Guess I'll stay too," were his next words as he hurried off to tell Mr. Dix he had changed his mind.

Back at work the boys talked very little. They couldn't help thinking about the skating rink and all the fun the others were having. It was great just to be with Coach Lane and they wondered whether he'd miss them.

Finally they went home, encouraged by Mr. Dix's praise and the extra money they had made. But still underneath was the thought of their lost fun.

It was two days later. The boys had forgotten their disappointment. They had just come from school and were eating a sandwich when the phone rang. Their mother answered it. After a minute they noticed that she was talking excitedly, so they turned their heads to listen.

"Oh, you are so kind Mr. Dix," they heard her say. "I'll be glad for them to go. They'll come to the store at once."

"Another job!" both boys exclaimed at once, much pleased.

But it was not another job this time. Mother told the boys that Mr. Dix wished them to come to the store.

"Boys," he said when they appeared before him, "Coach Lane told me that you missed a skating party the night you stayed to help me. I'm sorry about that. Now how would you like a trip to the city tomorrow? My wife wishes to spend the day with her sister and while the women talk we could visit the Zoo then go to the wharf and learn something about ships."

"Oh, Mr. Dix, that would be great," burst out Vance with eyes sparkling.

"But we'd have to ask Mother," added Jack.

"I've taken care of that," answered the kindhearted man with a smile. "Hubert is along home now and be ready by eight o'clock tomorrow morning."

The boys hurried all right. They ran the way home and bounded up the steps. After their excitement had cooled down enough for them to talk calmly, Vance said, "This will be better than a skating party. I'm sure glad we didn't fail Mr. Dix when we had a chance to do him a favor. You know Mother is always reminding us of the Golden Rule, 'Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.'"—My Pleasure.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER JOHN MOORE

Elder John Moore was a native of Harnett County, North Carolina, was born June 1, 1832.

Owing to the manner in which his Christian father brought him up in youth and through the hearing of God's Holy Word, which is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, he was constrained to believe and professed religion at a very early age. Brother Moore is believed to have been happily converted to the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ; and, very early after he was converted, he began to hold prayer meetings, and was ordained to preach the gospel, October 13, 1874. He served the remainder of his life in the Master's cause and to Christianize that part of God's moral vineyard.

He was a consistent member of the church, and was ever ready to bear his proportional part in all benevolent causes. He never had a charge brought against him so far as the writer has been able to learn. He reserved a good name until death. When Brother Moore leaves three children and a loving companion to mourn the loss of their devoted, Christian father and husband, a large multitude of brethren and sisters, and a host of friends. He passed away December 13, 1889. Death, like a thief, came in the night and numbered him with the pale nations of the dead. His manner of life was so much of a God's nature, that we have no doubt but what he was able to say with the Apostle Paul, "I am now ready to be offered up and the time of my departure is at hand." He came home from an appointment at Wood (continued on page thirteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Greenville, N. C.—The G.T.A. of Gum Camp Church met at the home of Miss Letsy Lewis with 13 members and two visitors present. The group was delighted to have Mr. Ralph Pollard as a guest speaker.

He gave a very interesting talk on the importance of accepting Christ while young. The meeting was dismissed with prayer. During the social hour, the hostess served refreshments which were enjoyed by all.

Newton Grove, N. C.—The Annie McPhail Auxiliary met at Oak Grove Church Wednesday, July 6, at 8:00 p. m., with Mrs. Pearl Tart presiding. Mrs. Bernice Edwin could not attend because her husband was in the hospital for treatment. Mrs. Emma Rose read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Ellen Bass received the collection.

Mrs. Tart read the introduction to the program. Those who participated in presenting the program were Mesdames Pearl Tart, Emma Rose, Vira McPhail and Katie Lee. Mrs. Ellen Warren led in prayer. Ten members were present for the meeting.

Pocahontas, Arkansas—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sutton Free Will Baptist Church met in the basement of the church on June 28. Twelve members were present for the meeting. The Scripture reading for the evening was Numbers 9:17-23. The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman. Following the introduction, the topics were discussed by different members. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. The old and new business was discussed. Each officer gave a report of the activities during the month. The meeting was closed with prayer.

The hostess served refreshments which were enjoyed by all.

Indelible Imprints

(continued from page twelve)

Grove and ate a hearty supper. Afterwards, he complained of feeling bad and tired and lay down to spend the night in sleep and repose. His family knew nothing of his being more feeble than usual. He was found dead in bed by them.

Brother Moore requested his brethren to sing that old hymn, "On Jordan's Stormy Banks I Stand," while his grave was being filled with the earth. His remains were taken to Hodges Chapel and buried to await the resurrection morn.

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

No person was ever sorry that he chose Jesus.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

Cragmont Woman's Conference

Sponsored by the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary Convention
At Cragmont Assembly

BLACK MOUNTAIN, NORTH CAROLINA

August 15-20, 1960

Mrs. L. E. Ballard, Director Mrs. Carl Dudley, Co-Director

Theme: "Calvary's Call"

DAILY SCHEDULE

Morning
7:45—Calvary's Call to Awake with Christ (Morning Devotions)
8:00—Time to Eat
8:00—Calvary's Call to a Dedicated Prayer Life, Mrs. Ruth Hersey, Raleigh
8:35—Calvary's Call to Better Stewardship, Mrs. Pearl Alligood, Davis
9:10—Time to Relax
9:30—Time for Praise
9:50—Calvary's Call to Win the Lost, Mrs. Nora Winstead, Kenansville
10:25—Calvary's Call to Bible Study, Mrs. Dola Dudley, Fuquay Springs
10:15—Time to Eat

Afternoon
Rest and Recreation, Visits to Asheville and Mountain Areas of Interest Evening

8:00—Time to Eat
8:30—Time to Pray, Mrs. Marvin Moore

8:00—Calvary's Call to World Missions (Messages and Missionary Films), Mrs. Eunice Edwards

Bus Schedule and Fares: New Bern, 6:00 a. m., $12.00; Kingston, 7:00 a. m., $11.75; Snow Hill, 7:30 a. m., $11.50; Wilson, 8:15 a. m., $11.25; Middlesex, 8:45 a. m., $11.00; Raleigh, 9:30 a. m., $10.50; Durham, 10:00 a. m., $10.00.

Other Expenses: Room, board, insurance, $15.00; registration fee, $2.00; bus fares for extra trips according to places visited.

PLEASE REGISTER NOW !!

REGISTRATION BLANK

Mail with $2.00 Registration Fee and $5.00 Bus Deposit to: _____ Date _____

Mrs. L. E. Ballard, Box 338, Scotland Neck, North Carolina

Name _____ Age _____

Church _____ Conference _____

Mail Address _____ Telephone _____

Where will you board bus? _____
(Nearest Place Listed Above)

Have you attended before? _____ (If answer is yes, tell when: _____)

How much money are you sending with this? $ _____

Special: Anyone wanting a room in motel please request same. Cost will be $1 per day per person extra.

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
 Mount Olive Junior College
 Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
 Free Will Baptist Bible College
 Nashville, Tennessee

A Challenge to Free Will Baptists

Recently a group of local businesses and individuals demonstrated their appreciation for, and confidence in, Mount Olive College by presenting gifts and pledges of cash, furnishings, materials and service in excess of $7,000 to be used during the summer in our preparation for the visit by the committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. These gifts were in addition to more than $10,000 in regular gifts already given during the 1959-60 fiscal year by the local community.

In presenting these gifts, Mayor B. E. Bryan stated that the local community appreciates the progress that has been made by Mount Olive College and feels that regional accreditation will reflect credit not only upon the college and the denomination which sponsors it, but upon the local community as well.

Mr. Bryan also stated that in seeking these gifts, the group found that the response and attitudes toward the college were the best they have ever been.

We believe this generosity by the local community should serve as a new challenge to Free Will Baptists to also increase their gifts to Mount Olive College. Surely Free Will Baptists, who own and operate the college, should be as willing as the local community to provide the funds with which to build a college that can best serve our youth.

The committee from the Southern Association will visit our campus during the first part of October. This means that we have less than three months to finish writing the record of our interest and accomplishments that will be reviewed by this committee. The committee will review not only the work that has been done at the college and the interest of the local community, but it will also review the record of support from the sponsoring denomination.

You can help to complete the preparation for the visit by this committee, and the preparation to better serve our youth, by making your Loyalty Fund gift early and by making it just as liberal as possible. All gifts received now will be included in the reports for the third annual Loyalty Fund Campaign which began July 1.

All gifts received from individuals will also be credited under the name of the local church of which the donor is a member. These gifts are fully deductible for state and federal income tax purposes.

We are asking every Free Will Baptist who is really interested in our youth and in the future of our denomination to be active on behalf of Mount Olive College during the next few months.

You can help by praying for the college and by making a liberal personal donation. You can then ask others to give to the college and lead your church or other organization to make generous gifts. Remember, others believe in our college and are helping to build a better college. Free Will Baptists cannot afford to do less.

Remember too, that we demonstrate our interest in our youth by the way we help provide for their education.

Mayor B. E. Bryan, left, is shown presenting gifts and pledges in excess of $7,000 to M. L. Johnson, business manager of Mount Olive College. These are special gifts presented to the college to help in the preparation, during the summer, for the visit by a committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, looking toward regional accreditation.

M. L. Johnson, Business Manager

Youth Conference

Mount Olive Junior College will sponsor a Youth Conference during the week of August 14-19, according to an announcement by Dean Michael Pelt, who will serve as director of the conference. The college will be host to scores of Free Will Baptist youth at this conference, using all of its facilities to provide for the activities of the week. Several members of the college staff will serve as members of the conference staff.

The purpose of the conference, said Dean Pelt, is to provide an opportunity for young people of high school and post-high school age to enjoy a special week of Christian instruction, fellowship, worship and recreation at the college which is sponsored by North Carolina Free Will Baptists.

The conference will include lectures and discussion on such topics as "Choosing a Vocation," "Choosing a Life Partner," "Choosing a College," and other topics of vital importance to youth. Vesper services will be conducted each evening by the Rev. Clarence Bowen, pastor of Shady Grove Church, Sampson County.

Summing up the activities planned for the week, Mr. Pelt describes the conference as a vacation with a purpose. He points out that more than sixty young people from North Carolina, Georgia and Florida attended the first such conference sponsored by the college last summer and that all of them were enthusiastic in their appraisal of what the conference meant to them. A larger number is expected to attend the youth session this summer.

The form below may be used as an application blank. Additional forms will be mailed upon request.

APPLICATION FORM YOUTH CONFERENCE MOUNT OLIVE JUNIOR COLLEGE

Mount Olive, North Carolina
 August 14-19, 1960

1. Name Age
 (Miss, Mrs., Mr.)
 2. Address
 City State
 3. Home Church
 4. Check the one which applies to you:
High School Graduate;Graduate 9;Grade 10;Grade 11;Grade 12. Other.....
 5. Check the one which you prefer:I wish to have room and board at the college;I plan to commute daily in order to attend the conference.
 6.Enclosed is my application fee of $2, which is non-refundable. The cost of room and board at the conference will be $15, payable upon arrival.
- If my application is accepted, I agree to co-operate fully with the staff personnel at the conference in obeying the prescribed regulations.

Signed

(This application form should be completed and mailed as early as possible to Michael Pelt, Director of Youth Conference, Mount Olive Junior College, Mount Olive, North Carolina.)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

God Desires Steadfast Love

(Lesson for July 24)

Lesson: Hosea 4:1-3; 5:15—6:6.

Olden Text: Hosea 6:6.

INTRODUCTION

Of all the twelve minor prophets, perhaps Hosea was motivated by deeper compassion than any of the others. Hosea's message from the Lord was revealed to him in an unusual way. To begin with, it was illustrated in his own personal life and experience. He first learned a great lesson in his own heart, which grew out of the unfaithfulness of his wife, Gomer. It was usually believed that Gomer was not a woman of loose moral standards at the time Hosea married her, but that she was a woman inclined to harlotry. After their marriage and the birth of three children, Gomer became unfaithful and actually ran in whoredom.

From this experience, Hosea was made aware that his people had been unfaithful. They had forsaken the Lord God to serve other gods. There was no doubt in Hosea's mind as to the blessings of God upon his people; yet, they had forsaken Him. It was therefore, with a heavy heart that he stood before the people of Israel with God's message. The climax of Hosea's experience, however, came when he happened to see his wife as she was being sold on the slave market. Upon seeing her, he bought her back himself and took her back to their home. It was through deep compassion and humanity that he forgave her, and their marriage was thus restored. He not only learned how God feels regarding His wayward children; but he also learned of God's great love, whereby there is forgiveness and redemption for every lost soul. Herein we have a picture of God's redemption.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

It is sometimes very difficult to get a backslider to hear the Word of the Lord addressed to him (Hosea 4:1).

The sins that are common to unbeliefers should not be known among the people of God (Vs. 2).

3. The consequences of evil deeds are felt by the individual who committed them and also have an effect on his surroundings (Vs. 3).

4. God makes the first move in seeking to bring His backsliding people to repentance (5:15).

5. The way of repentance is the way of return to the Lord (6:1).

6. Like a surgeon, the Lord wounds in order that He might bind up and heal afterward (Vs. 1).

7. God restores backsliders that afterward they might live in His sight and not run away from Him (Vs. 2).

8. If we would learn to know the Lord we must learn what it means to follow Him (Vs. 3).

9. God's presence will bring refreshing to those who are obedient to Him (Vs. 3).

10. It is a serious matter to be God's messenger and to deliver His words (Vs. 5).

11. Sacred services have value only if they are rendered in sincerity of spirit (Vs. 6).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. While Hosea is the prophet of love and does not major on judgment as much as did Amos, he does warn the people of the consequences of their sins. Regardless of how much the love of God may mean to us, we must never forget the fact that God's love will not keep Him from bringing judgment upon sin. Some people feel that, because God is love and loves all of us, He will not let anyone perish in eternal hell-fire. Don't be deceived. God does love us, but God's love does not keep Him from allowing us to reap the consequences of our sins.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

2. Israel had been regular and faithful in making sacrifice offerings in their formal worship of the Lord, but they did not know the true nature of the Lord whom they worshiped. Once they had made their offering unto Him, and at the appointed times, they went about with their private affairs very much as they pleased without any consideration of God's right to direct them in their social relationships. Equally guilty with Israel was Judah, for they had forsaken both the justice and mercy of the Lord.—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

3. The simple message of this verse is that God will leave Israel alone until she repents. This is a hard truth for many to accept, but it is God's Word.

In the last part of this verse, Hosea gives a good description of repentance. True repentance is composed of four things: First, there is conviction—this is a knowledge of sin. No person will ever repent until he is aware of his sins. Second, there is contrition—this is a sorrow for sin. It is one thing to be sorry that you are caught in sin and another to be sorry for sins. Third, there must be conversion—this is a turning away from sin. Fourth, there must be consecration—a giving of one's self to God. There is no true repentance unless all four of these elements are present.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

4. A young man in Chicago entered an insurance office with his pockets bulging with burglar tools. The policemen caught him red-handed as he endeavored to open the safe. When the young man was investigated, it was learned that he was highly educated, having three college degrees. His latest degree was a degree in psychology, earned from the University of Kansas. He had studied law for a year, and, when apprehended by the authorities, he was working on a doctorate in psychology. An education is valuable, but it is not man's basic need. Jesus said to a cultured, educated man, "Ye must be born again."—Selected.

5. God does not approve of sacrifice without mercy. In studying this lesson and the others during this quarter, let us not forget that Israel was religious. At the same time, however, she was without mercy. God had done all for them that he could do, the rest was up to them. He had sent prophets to plead with them, but they would not heed (Vs. 5). This next verse is the crux of God's desire for them. "For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings" (Vs. 6). These people assumed that all they had to do to please God was to make their sacrifices unto Him; therefore, they had failed to show love, compassion, mercy and mutual affection between individuals, and loyalty and piety toward God.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

6. The devil is the champion deceiver. In both Israel and Judah there were actually hundreds of false prophets who were promising the people prosperity and victory over enemy nations. They boldly declared that men like Hosea and Jeremiah were liars, and also accused them of disloyalty because they predicted punishment of Judah and Israel for their many sins. We suggest you read Jeremiah, Chapters 26, 27, 28 and 29. Another interesting chapter is 1 Kings 22.

(continued on page sixteen)

ST. CLAIRE BIBLE CLASS

Seeds of National Decay

(Lesson for July 31)

Lesson: Hosea 10:1-8, 12.

Golden Text: Hosea 10:12.

I. INTRODUCTION

"On every side the young prophet faced social conditions that made his heart sick. The general feeling on every side made for laxness and looseness in personal behavior. The rulers set poor examples for the people. Property had little value, for no person could be sure of his right to keep it. The courts were corrupt. Judges made their living from bribes and excessive fees wrung from helpless people who sought to hold on to their property and their rights. Conspiracies and plots were so common that the people did not dare trust any group. Amos had watched the ease-loving people loll in idleness and luxury. Hosea saw those same people hardened and made criminal by the conditions that surrounded them. Literal bloodshed, highway robbery, murder and organized vice were visible on every hand. The priests, who were God's chosen representatives, were actually at the head of organized bandit gangs. They were the instigators of rackets. In an unstable world the people had come to lose their self-reliance. Fear and uncertainty gripped them to render them helpless . . ."—The Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

Hosea 10:1—The sins of Israel were national sins; therefore the judgments were also national. As goes the leadership, so goes the nation. There was fruit in Israel, but no fruit of righteousness to the glory of God. So Israel would become as a dead vine.

Vs. 2—There was a remaining affection for God, but a reigning affection for the idols. You cannot serve God and mammon.

Vs. 4—People who break their contracts have sworn falsely.

Vs. 6—Instead of saving its worshipers from exile, the idol must suffer exile with them.

Vs. 7—Powerful kings are powerless when they are in opposition to God. God will take care of godless Russia when His time comes.

Vs. 8—The Israelites had delighted in placing idolatrous altars in the mountains. They would someday pray for those mountains to fall upon them and cover them up.—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Hosea's comparison of Israel to a vine is not new. In Psalm 80:8-11, we read: "Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the heathen and planted it. Thou preparedst room before it, and didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land. The hills were covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof were like the goodly cedars. She sent her boughs into the sea, and her branches unto the river."

2. This was Israel as God wanted her to be, and as she would have been had she been faithful. But now that God came looking for fruit, Hosea says that she is an empty vine.

Israel was bringing forth fruit, but it was unto himself. In other words, everything they did was for the gratification of the flesh and the glory of self. The more prosperity or material blessings from God they had, the more things they did to satisfy themselves.

3. Men are still inclined to use the blessings of God for themselves, forgetting the Giver of all good gifts. We need to realize the limitation of things, and the depravity of the flesh; we need to trust in God who gives the blessings. The idols of our hands will always desert us in the time of our greatest need.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

4. Beth-aven is used instead of Bethel. The latter has sacred memories regarding Jacob, and means house of God. Jeroboam I made the city one of two centers of heathen worship. There he established the golden calf and compelled the people to worship it as though it were truly God. But Hosea does not call it Bethel, but Beth-aven, meaning house of vanities. As time went on the people lost all appreciation for God and trusted only in the contemptible image of a calf. Naturally, when the idol was removed, being taken to the king of Assyria, there was national, distraught mourning. The seeds of decay sown long before were now reaping the whirlwind.—The Bible Expositor.

5. We come now to the last verse in this lesson, which carries the greater lesson for the people of Israel and also for the lost and backslidden of our day. Let us first consider the verse: "Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground: for it is time to seek the LORD, till he come and rain righteousness upon you" (Vs. 12). May we now study this verse as it relates to Israel, and its application to our day.

Israel was urged to sow in righteousness. It is both a divine and natural law that we reap exactly what we have sown. The apostle Paul, wrote many years later: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Galatians 6:7, 8). Many individuals sow to the flesh without realizing the consequences. The reaping of a life sown in the flesh is not always easy to understand for some reap the results of their evil deeds in this life, while others will pay the consequences in the life to come, beginning with the judgment.

They were urged to cultivate the neglected ground. God said, "Break up your fallow ground." As has already been pointed out, their fruit was of no value. In other words, their lives were wasteful. In order to bring forth good fruit, or a good harvest, the ground must be properly prepared. Unless it is, there is no fruit, and the land is worthless. By sowing righteousness, they would reap mercy.

God's righteousness would thus come upon them. They must sow in righteousness, for it was time to seek the Lord. The result of their sowing in righteousness would be God's mercy and righteousness upon them. "Your hearts are as ground overrun with weeds, which have need to be plowed and broken up by conviction, humiliation, and Godly sorrow for sin, that good seed may be sown in them."—Benson—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

6. One day, on the way to Sunday school John saw some rough, ragged boys. "Say, fellows, come along and go to Sunday school with me," said John cheerfully. The boys laughed, and said in chorus, "Not us." One of the boys, however, became serious. He said, "I would go with you, but I have no coat." John took off his coat, and gave it to the boy. The two went to Sunday school—the ragged boy with a coat, John without a coat. Years passed by. The boy to whom John gave his coat was converted. He became a teacher of a Bible class. One day he told the incident to his Bible class. Then he said, "Friends I was that ragged boy, and the boy who gave me his coat was Dr. John G. Paton, the great missionary."—Selected.

the
Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, July 27, 1960

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

JUL 27 1960

A BRIEF

CONFESSIO
OR DECLARATION
OF FAITH:

RHAM, N. C.

LONDON

We are proud to present to the Free Will Baptist denomination this issue "The Free Will Baptist" which contains a special historical collection of writings, in observance of the tri-centennial commemoration of the confession of 1660. Pictured here is photostatic copy of this historical document.

Set forth by many of us, who are (falsely) called Ana-Baptists, to inform all Men (in these dayes of scandal and reproach) of our innocent Belief and Practise; for which we are not only resolved to suffer Persecution, to the loss of our Goods, but also Life it self, rather than to decline the same.

Subscribed by certain Elders, Deacons, and Brethren, met at London, in the first Month (called March, 1660.) in the behalf of themselves, and many others unto whom they belong, in London, and in several Counties of this Nation, who are of the same Faith with us.

After the Way which men call Heresie, so Worship we the God of our Fathers; Believing all things which are written in the Law, and in the Prophets, Acts 24.14.

L O N D O N,

Printed by G. D. for F. Smith, at the Elephant and Castle, near Temple-Barr, 1660.

Editorial

FREE WILL BAPTISTS AND HISTORY

C. H. Overman

Of all the hundreds of issues of The Free Will Baptist, perhaps this issue holds more of a unique position than any of the others. We trust that it will be preserved in the files of many people. To begin with some of our readers may be inclined to consider this special issue as being unimportant. Upon reading the articles, however, the reader will conclude that the information contained in each one is important in teaching that we have a background of history with which to be proud. Many people of our day are prone to be interested only in history as it presently affects them. No one, however, can sever himself from the influence of history upon him, whether past, present or future. We all are a part of history. It behooves us, therefore, to consider the paths which our forefathers charted for us, and thus endeavor to maintain the Christian principles and convictions of Christian liberty in freedom of worship and religious expression.

Those who supplied the articles contained in this special issue are to be commended. We trust that many of our readers will respond to the work of the Tri-Centennial Commission with letters of appreciation for their work. You will find their names given under Acknowledgments as given on Page 3.

It is amazing that the Confession of 1660, as shown on the front page of this issue, and written in its original style on Page 3, has been so wonderfully preserved and now comes to light in our own Free Will Baptist doctrines and practices. The different articles tie the Confession of 1660 with our present-day Treatise.

True Christian liberty is a privilege which many people of the world have never enjoyed. Others have abused it; others take it for granted. Yet, our forefathers were willing to die for it if necessary. This liberty is the sort which Christ intended for man to possess. It is by no means a liberty which gives license to moral laxity, or the right to live as one chooses apart from any consideration of God. It is liberty of mind and soul from binding laws and oppression. It is liberty from prejudiced opinions and biased convictions. It is the freedom to worship God according to the dictates of conscience. Any laws which infringe upon this liberty and freedom are wrong. The laws of many countries during past history sought to limit this liberty. As Americans, we know this was the primary factor which led our forefathers to come to this great land—the freedom to worship God.

We should never forget those who made great sacrifices for the liberties which we now enjoy. For this reason, if for no other, the historical collection which is being gathered at Mount Olive Junior College is most valuable in connecting the past with the future, and also in leading us into a deeper appreciation of those who paved the way for us.

It has only been in recent years that Free Will Baptists have given any serious consideration to their place in history and how we arrived to our present location in it. We are not here just by chance. Our presence in America did not just happen. Surely God has preserved us for a cause which will glorify His name. Our task is to determine that cause and seek to carry it out according to his divine leadership and purpose for us.

Advancing civilization brings changes, and these changes cannot be ignored by the church; for the church must adjust itself to these changing conditions, and it must do it without leaving the old, God-given landmarks or forsaking the paths of our fathers. We should constantly guard against these forces which would mold us into something different than what we have been associated with or accustomed to. We do not want to lose our identity and become engulfed by those whose practices and principles differ from ours.

Are there not forces among us now, however, which would lead us from our original identity? Do we have those who care little about our ancient landmarks, who seek to make something new out of us? If this is so, we must arm ourselves for battle against those who would do away with our inheritance.

"Free Will Baptist history is resplendent with the deeds of invincible heroes and heroines of the faith who were willing to stand on that which to them was truth and right. When we remember that in the early days of our denomination's history it was extremely unpopular and often dangerous to think for one's self in matters pertaining to the Bible, the church, and salvation, and then recall that our founding fathers dared face all odds to begin a new denomination, we begin to realize how much we owe them. The Paul Palmers, John Colbys, Benjamin Randalls and such as them, were men of God with God's will as their goal, despite ostracism or hardship. Perhaps we stand in need of such courage in this modern Free Will Baptist era. This is not to say that we are a generation of weaklings or cowards, but that rich in genuineness of conviction which characterized them. They suffered the disadvantage of being in disfavor and disrepute, fostering their beliefs. We enjoy complete freedom and favor in pursuing this way. With such an advantage, we could go far if we would incorporate this advantage with a persistent and militant denominational spirit and set as our goal the evangelism of all the world with the gospel of salvation."—The Free Will Baptist Story, by Damon C. Dodd.

Volume 75

Number

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

July 27, 1960

Edited and published weekly by the
Free Will Baptist Press
Ayden, N. C.

Approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, and entered at the post office at Ayden, N. C., as second-class matter.

Manager and Editor.....J. O. F
Assistant Editor.....C. H. Overman

Subscriptions Payable in Advance

6 months $1
1 year 2

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor on Friday preceding the publication date of that issue.

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor or the Free Will Baptist Press. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or the person sending it in.

Board of Directors

R. N. Hinnant.....President
D. W. Hansley.....Vice-President
J. W. Alford.....Secretary
W. L. Jernigan, N. Bruce Barrow, Hubert Burress and Owen Thorpe

Acknowledgment

The Eureka Society of Mount Olive College offers its warmest thanks to the members of the Tri-centennial Commission for their devoted labors which have made this tri-centennial commemoration of the Confession of 1660 possible. Especially does the Society desire to extend its thanks to the Crozer Theological Seminary of Chester, Pennsylvania, for its kind permission to reprint Dr. W. T. Whitley's article on page 9; to Dr. Ernest A. Payne, Secretary of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, London, and Dr. A. W. Argyle, Librarian of Regent's Park College, Oxford, for securing microfilmed copies of the original Confession of 1660 for the Tri-centennial Commission and other documents and books for the Free Will Baptist Collection at Mount Olive College; and to Editor J. O. Fort for making this special issue of The Free Will Baptist possible.

Members of the Tri-centennial Commission were Mrs. C. B. Council, Librarian of Mount Olive College; Mr. D. W. Fagg, Jr., former Dean of Mount Olive College and present Assistant Dean of Emory University, Georgia; Mr. Michael R. Pelt, Dean of Mount Olive College; Miss Elizabeth Smith; Mrs. H. L. Spivey, historian, Mount Olive College; and Mr. George W. Stevenson, Jr.

By order of the Eureka Society
(Mrs.) Marv Thigpen, Secretary
26 July 1960

Smith," at the "Elephant and Castle," near Temple-Barr, 1660.

A Brief / Confession / or / Declaration of Faith, / Set out by many of Us, who are (falsely) called "Ana-baptists," to inform all men (in these days of scandal and reproach) of our innocent Belief, and Practice: for which we are not resolved to suffer persecution, to the loss of our Goods, but also life it self, rather than (sic) to decline the same.

We believe and are verily confident, that there is but one God the Father, of whom are all things, from everlasting to everlasting, glorious, and unwordable in all his Attributes, 1 Cor. 8.6. Iza. 40.28.

That God in the beginning made Man "Upright," and put him into a state and condition of Glory, without the least mixture of misery, from which he by "trans-

A Brief Confession

or

Declaration of Faith

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is copied from the original Confession of 1660, which appears on the front page of this issue. It being printed as it originally appeared.

Set forth by many of us, who are (falsely) called ANA-BAPTISTS, to inform all men (in these dayes of scandal and reproach) of our innocent Belief and Practice, and Brethren, met at "London," in the first Month (called "March," 1660) in the behalf of themselves, and many others unto whom they belong, in "London," and in several Counties of this Nation, who are of the same Faith with us.

King Charles II

proach) of our innocent Belief and Practice; for which we are not only resolved to suffer Persecution, to the loss of our Goods, but also Life itself, rather than to decline the same.

"After the Way which men called Heresie, so worship we the God of our Fathers; Believing all things which are written in the Law, and in the Prophets," Acts 24. 14.—London—Printed by G. D. for "F.

gression" fell, and so came into a miserable and mortal estate, subject unto the first death, Gen. 1.31. Eccles. 7.29. Gen. 2.17, 18, 19.

That there is one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, who is the only begotten Son of God, born of the Virgin "Mary"; yet as truly "Davids" Lord, and "Davids" root, as "Davids" Son, and "Davids" Off-spring, Luke 20.44. Revel. 22.16. whom God freely "sent into the World" (because of his great love unto the World) who as freely "gave himself a ransome for all," 1 Tim. 2.5, 6. "tasting death for every man," Heb. 2.9. "a propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole World," 1 John 2.2.

That "God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance," 2 Pet. 3.9. "and the knowledge of the truth, that they might be saved," 1 Tim. 2.4. For which end Christ hath commanded, that the Gospel (to wit, the glad tidings of remission of sins) should be preached to every creature, Mark 16.15. So that no man shall eternally suffer in Hell (that is, the second death) for want of a Christ that dyed for them, but as the Scripture saith, for "denying the Lord that bought them," 2 Pet. 2.1. or because they "believe not in the name of the only begotten Son of God," John 3:18. Unbelief therefore being the cause why the just and righteous God, will condemn the children of men; it follows against all contradiction, that all men at one time or other, are put into such a capacity, as that (through the grace of God) they may be eternally saved, John 1.7. Acts 17.30. Mark 6.6. Heb. 3.10, 18, 19. 1 John 5.10. John 3.17.

That such who first orderly comes into, and are brought up in the School of Christs Church, and waiting there, comes to degrees of Christianity, rightly qualified, and considerably gifted by Gods Spirit; ought to exercise their gifts not only in the Church but also (as occasion serves) to preach to the World (they being approved of by the Church so to do) Acts 11.22, 23, 24. Acts 11.19, 20. and that among such some are to be chosen by the Church, and ordained by Fasting, Prayer, and Laying on of Hands, for the work of the Ministry, Acts 13.2, 3. Acts 1.23. Such so ordained, (and abiding faithful in their work) we own as Ministers of the Gospel; but all such who come not first to repent of their sins, believe on the Lord Jesus, and so "Baptized" in his name for the remission of Sins, but are only brought up in the Schools of humane learning, to the attaining humane arts, and variety of languages, with many vain curiosities of speech, 1 Cor. 1.19, 21. 2.1, 4, 5, seeking rather the gain of large revenues, then the gain of souls to God: such (we say) we utterly deny, being such as have need rather to be taught themselves, than fit to teach others, Rom. 2.21. That the way set forth by God for men to be justified in, is by faith in Christ, Rom. 5.1. That is to say, when men shall assent to the truth of the Gospel, believing with all their hearts, that there is remission of sins, and eternal life to be had in Christ.

And that Christ therefore is most worth their constant affections, and subjection to all his Commandements, and therefore resolve with purpose of heart so to subject unto him in all things, and no longer unto themselves, 2 Cor. 5.15.

And so, shall (with godly sorrow for the sins past) commit themselves to his grace, confidently depending upon him for that which they believe is to be had in him: such so believing are justified from all their sins, their faith shall be accounted for righteousness, Rom. 4.22, 23, 24. Rom. 3.25, 26.

That there is one holy Spirit, the precious gift of God, freely given to such as "obey him," Ephes. 4.4. Acts 5.32. that thereby they may be thoroughly (sic) sanctified, and made able (without which they are altogether unable) to abide steadfast in the faith, and to honour the Father, and his Son Christ, the Author and finisher of their faith; 1 Cor. 6.11. Therefore are three that bear record in Heaven, the Father, the Word, the holy Spirit, and these three are one; which Spirit of promise such have not yet received, (though they speak much of him) that are so far out of "Love, Peace, Longsuffering, Gentleness, Goodness, Meekness, and Temperance," (the fruits of the Spirit, Gal. 5.22, 23.) as that they breathe out much cruelty, and great envy against the Liberties, and peaceable living of such, as are not of their judgment, though holy as to their conversations.

That God hath even before "the foundation of the World chosen" (or elected) "to eternal life, such as believe," and so are in Christ, John 3.16. Ephes. 1.4, 2 Thes. 2.13. yet confident we are, that the purpose of God according to election, was not in the least arising from fore-seen faith in, or works of righteousness done by the creature, but only from the mercy, goodness, and compassion dwelling in God, and so "it is of him that calleth," Rom. 9.11. whose purity and unwordable holiness, cannot admit of any unclean person (or thing) to be in his presence, therefore his decree of mercy reaches only the godly man, whom (saith "David") God "hath set apart for himself," Psal. 4.3. That men not considered simply as men, but ungodly men "were of old ordained to condemnation, considered as such, who turn the grace of God into wantonness, and deny the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, Jude

4. God indeed sends a strong delusion upon men, that they might be damned; but observe that they are such (as saith the Apostle) that "received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved," Thes. 2.10, 11, 12. and so the indignation and wrath of God, is upon "every soul" man that doth "evil," (living and dyeth therein,) "for there is no respect of persons with God." Rom. 2.9, 10, 11.

That all Children dying in Infancy, being not actually transgressed against the Law of God in their own persons, are not subject to the first death, which cometh upon them by the sin of the first "Adam" from whence they shall be all raised by the second "Adam"; and not that any one of them (dying in that estate) shall suffer "Adams" sin, eternal punishment in Hell (which is the second death) "for of such is the kingdom of Heaven," 1 Cor. 15.22. Mat. 19.14. not daring to conclude with that uncharitable opinion of others who though they plead much for the bringing of children into the visible Church here on earth by "Baptisme," yet nevertheless by their Doctrine that Christ dyed for some, shut a great part of them out of the Kingdome of Heaven for ever. That the right and only way of gathering Churches, (according to Christs appointment Mat. 28.19, 20.) is first to teach, or preach the Gospel, Mark 16.16. to the Sons and Daughters of men; and then to Baptize (that is in English to Dip) in the name of the Father, Son, and holy Spirit, or in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ; such one of them as profess "repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ," Acts 2.38. Acts 8.12. Acts 18.27. And as for all such who preach not this Doctrine, but instead thereof, that Scriptureless thing of Sprinkling of Infants ("falsely called Baptisme") whereby the pure "Word of God is made of no effect" and the new Testament way of bringing Members, into the Church be regeneration cast out; when as the bond-woman and her son, that is to say, the old Testament-way of bringing in Children to the Church generation, is cast out, as saith the Scripture, Gal. 4.30, 22, 23, 24. Mat. 3.8, 9. such we utterly deny, forasmuch as we are commanded to "have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather to reprove them," Ephes. 5.11.

That is the duty of all such who are "Baptized," to draw nigh unto God in submission to that principle of Christs Doctrine, to wit, Prayer and Laying on of Hands, that they may receive the promise of the holy Spirit, Heb. 6.1. 2. Acts 8.15, 17, Acts 19.6. 2 Tim. 1.6. where they may "mortifie the deeds of the body," Rom. 8.13, and live in all things answerable to their professed intentions, and desires.

THE PALMER - BURGESS PETITION

en to the honour of him, "who hath led them out of darkness into his marvellous light."

That it is the duty of such who are constituted as aforesaid, to "continue stedfastly in Christs and the Apostles Doctrine, and assembling together, in fellowship, in breaking of Bread, and Prayers," Acts 2.

That although we thus declare for the primitive way, and order of constituting Churches, yet we verily believe, and also declare, that unless men so professing, and practising the forme and order of Christs doctrine, shall also beautifie the same with holy and wise conversation, in all godliness and honesty; the profession of the visible form will be rendered to them of no effect; "for without holiness no man shall see the Lord," Heb. 12.14. Isa. 1.11, 12, 16. That the Elders or Pastors which God hath appointed to oversee, and feed his Church (constituted as aforesaid) are such, the first being of the number of Disciples, shall in time appear to "be vigilant, sober, of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach," & c., "not greedy of filthy lucre" (as too many National Ministers are) "but temperant; not a brawler, not covetous," & c. Ordained as such chose, and ordained to office according to the order of Scripture, Acts 13.23.) who are to feed the flock with the word in due season, and in much love to care over them, with all care, seeking after them as go astray; but as for all such who labour to feed themselves with the fat, more than to feed the flock, Ezek. 34.2, 3. Seeking more after theirs, than them, exceedingly contrary to the practise of the Ministers of old, who said, "we seek not yours, but you," 2 Cor. 12.14. All such we utterly deny, and hereby bear our continued testimony against them, as such whom the Prophets of old bore Testimony against, Ezek. 34.

That the Ministers of Christ, that have been duly received from God, ought freely to minister to others, 1 Cor. 9.17, and that they who have spiritual things, freely ministered unto them, ought freely to communicate necessary things to the Ministers, upon the account of their charge) 1 Cor. 13.1. Gal. 6.6 And as for Tyths, or any other Maintenance, we utterly deny to be the Maintenance of Gospel Ministers. That the true Church of Christ, ought to receive the first and second admonition, to reject all Hereticks, Titus 3.10, 11. and to withdraw from such, as profess the way of the Lord, but walk disorderly in their conversations, 1 Thes. 3.6. or any wayes causes divisions or offences, contrary to the Doctrine (of Christ) which they have learned, Rom. 16.17. That such who are true Believers, when they are in Branches in Christ the Vine, (and as he saith in his account, whom he exhorts to

... the Honorable Petition of the ...
... that by ... in a Congregation of the ...
... together in this Precinct ...
... having granted same for ye use of ye said meeting,

Paul Palmer
Francis Brockett
Thomas Herenton
William Jones
Philip Torkey
Robert Wasson
Charles Leutrough

W. Burgess

To the Worshipful Court of Pasquotank Precinct now setting:

The Honorable Petition of the subscribers, humbly sheweth, That whereas there is a Congregation of the Popele called Baptis gathered In this Precinct, meeting together for Religious Worship in ye Dwelling House of William Burges, on the north side of Pascotanc, on the head of Raymond's Creek, he, ye said Burges, having granted same for ye use of ye said meeting, we Pray ye same may be recorded and we ye humble Petitioners in duty bound should pray.

W. Burgess
 Paul Palmer
 Francis Brockett
 Thomas Herenton
 William Jones
 Philip Torkey
 Robert Wasson
 Charles Leutrough

abide in him, John 15. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.) or such who have charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of Faith unfeigned, 1 Tim. 1.5. may nevertheless for want of watchfulness; swerve and turn aside from the same, vers 6, 7. and become as withered Branches, cast into the fire and burned, John 15.6. But such "who add unto their Faith Vertue, and unto Vertue Knowledge, and unto Knowledge Temperance," & c. 2 Pet. 1.5, 6, 7. such "shall never fall," vers. 8, 9, 10, 'tis impossible for all the false Christs, and false Prophets, that are, and are to come, to deceive such, for they are "kept by the power of God, through Faith unto Salvation," 1 Pet. 1.5.

That the poor Saints belonging to the Church of Christ, are to be sufficiently provided for by the Churches, that they neither want food or rayment, and this by a free and voluntary contribution, (and not of necessity, or by the constraint or power of the Magistrate) 2 Cor. 9.7. 1 Cor. 8.11, 12. and this through the free and voluntary help of the Deacons, (called Overseers of the poor) being faithful men, chosen by the Church, and ordained by Prayer and Laying on of Hands, to that Work, Acts 6.1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. So that there is no need in the Church of Christ, of a Magisterial compulsion in this case, as there is among others, who being constituted in a fleshly and generational way, are necessitated to make use of a carnal sword, to compel even a small, mean, and short Maintenance for their poor; when as many other Members of their Churches can do part with great and large Sums of Money, to maintain their vain fashions, Gold, Pearls, and costly Array, which is expressly contrary to the Word of God, I Tim. 2.9, 10. I Pet 3.3. Alas, "what will such do when God riseth up, and when he visiteth, what will they answer him?" Job. 31.14.

That there shall be (through Christ who was dead, but is alive again from the dead) a Resurrection of all men from the graves of the Earth, Isa. 26.19 both the just and the unjust, Acts 24.15. that is, the fleshly bodies of men, sown into the graves of the earth, corruptable, dishonourable, weak, natural, (which so considered cannot inherit the Kingdome of God) shall be raised again, incorruptable, in glory, in power, spiritual, and so considered, the bodies of the Saints, (united again to their spirits) which here suffer for Christ, shall inherit the "Kingdome, raining" together with Christ, I Cor 15.21, 22, 42, 44, 49.

That there shall be after the Resurrection from the graves of the Earth, "An eternal Judgement," at the appearing of Christ, and his Kingdome, 2 Tim. 4.1. Heb. 9.27. at which time of judgement which is unalterable, and irrevocable, "every man shall receive according to the thing done in his body," 2 Cor. 5.10. That the same Lord Jesus who shewed himself alive after his passion, by many infallible proofs, Acts 1.3. which was taken up from the Disciples, and carried up into Heaven, Luke 24.51. "Shall so come in like manner as he was seen go into Heaven," Acts 1.9, 10, 11. "And when Christ who is our life shall appear, we shall also appear with him in glory," Col 3.4. For then shall he be King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, Rev. 19.16. for the Kingdome is his, and he is the Governour among the Nations, Psal. 22.28. and King over all the earth, Zech 14.9. "and we shall reign (with him) on the Earth," Rev. 5.10. the kingdomes of this World, (which men so mightily strive after here to enjoy) shall become the Kingdomes of our Lord, and his Christ, Rev. 11. 15. for, "all is yours," (O ye that overcome this world) "for ye are Christs, and Christ is Gods," I Cor. 3.22, 23. "For unto the Saints shall be given the Kingdome, and the greatness of the Kingdome, under" (mark that) "the whole Heaven," Dan. 7.27. Though (alas) how many men be scarce content that the Saints should have so much as a being among them; but when Christ shall appear then shall be their day, then shall be given unto them power over the Nations, to rule them with a Rod of Iron, Rev. 2.26, 27. then shall they receive a Crown of life, which no man shall take from them, nor they by any means turned, or overturned from it, for the oppressor shall be broken in pieces, Psal. 72.4. and their now vain rejoycings turned into mourning, and bitter Lamentations, as 'tis written, Job 20.5, 6, 7. "The triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of the Hypocrite but for a moment; though his excellency mount up to the Heavens, and his head reach unto the clouds, yet shall he perish for ever, like his own dung; they which have seen him, shall say, where is he?" That the holy Scriptures is the rule where by Saints both in matters of Faith, and conversation are to be regulated, they being able to make men wise unto salvation, through Faith in Christ Jesus, profitable for Doctrine, for reproof, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works, 2 Tim. 3.15, 16, 17, John 20.31. Isa. 8.20.

That it is the will, and mind of God (in these Gospel times) that all men should have the free liberty of their own CONSCIENCES in matters of Religion, or Worship, without the least oppression, or persecution, as simply upon that account; and that for any in Authority otherwise to act, we confidently believe is expressly contrary to the mind of Christ, who requires that whatsoever men would that others should do unto them. they should even do unto others, Mat. 7.12. and that the Tares, and the Wheat should grow together in the field (which is the world) untill the harvest (which is the end of the world,) Mat. 13.29, 30, 38, 39.

We believe that there ought to be civil Magistrates in all Nations, "for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well," I Pet. 2.14. and that all wicked lewdness, and fleshly filthiness, contrary to just and wholesome (Civil) Laws, ought to be punished according to the nature of the offences; and this without respect of any Persons, Religion, or profession whatsoever; and that we and all men are obliged by Gospel rules, to be subject to the higher Powers, to obey Magistrates, Tit. 3.1. "and to submit to every Ordinance of man, for the Lords sake," as saith Peter 2. 13 But in case the Civil Powers do, or shall at any time impose things about matters of Religion, which we through conscience to God cannot actually obey, then we with Peter also do say, that we ought (in such cases) to obey God rather than men; Acts 5.29. and accordingly do hereby declare our whole, and holy intent and purpose, that (through the help of grace) we will not yield, nor (in such cases) in the least actually obey them; yet humbly purposing (in the Lords strength) patiently to suffer whatsoever shall be inflicted upon us, for our conscionable forbearance.

These things (O ye Son and Daughters of Men) we verily believe to be the Lords will and mind, and therefore cannot but speak, and if herein we differ from many, yea from multitudes, from the learned, the wise and prudent of this world, we (with Peter and John) do herein make our Sollemne, and serious appeale, "whethit be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto men" (of a contrary perswasion "more than unto God"? Oh let the judicious, judge righteous judgement! Acts 4.19, 20.

And in the beleife and practise of the things, (it being the good old Apostolical way) our souls have found that rest, a soul-peace, which the world knows not, and which they cannot take from us; whom then should we be afraid? "God become our strength, our light, our salvation; therefore," are we resolved (through grace) to seal the truth of these things, by way of suffering persecution, not only the loss of our goods, freedoms, or liberties, but with our lives also (if called thereunto.)

Moreover we do utterly, and from every hearts, in the Lords fear, declare against all those wicked, and divillish reports, and reproaches, falsly cast upon us, as though some of us (in & about the City of "London") had lately GOTTE KNIVES, HOOKED KNIVES, & the like, & great store of Arms besides what was given forth by order of Parliament, intending to cut the throats of such as were contrary minded to us in matters of Religion, and that many such KNIVES, and Arms, the carrying on some secret design, had been found in some of our houses by search we say, from truth of heart, in the Lords fear, that we do utterly abhor, and abhorre the thoughts thereof, and much more the actions; and do hereby challenge before the City, and Country (in our innocency here

Commonplace Toile

At a grand organ recital many years ago the organblower was suddenly taken ill. Immediately a famous composer, present in the organ loft, stepped forward and took his place at the bellows. At the close of the evening someone found out what had occurred and scolded the composer for doing such commonplace work.

"Commonplace!" cried he, "I love music so much that nothing I can do for it seems commonplace."

And do we, who love the Lord Jesus sometimes call some of our little everyday tasks commonplace? If we loved Him enough would we ever think of that? Wouldn't we always do our tasks willingly and gladly, just because they are done out of love for Him?—Unknown.

•

"Experience is an excellent teacher for those who are too dull to learn any other way. It is not the highest and best way of learning."

) as being not able to prove the things hereof they accuse us; and do for evermore declare the Inventors of such reports, to be liars, and wicked devisers of mischief, and corrupt designs; God that is above all will justify our innocency hereunto, who well knows our integrity, in what we here declare, the Lord lay it not to our charge. In the time of building the decayed House of "God," Sanballat and Tobiah, ("wicked Counsellors) hired" Nehemiah "to make good" Nehemiah "afford"; and labored against him, that they might have "matter for an evil report," that they might reproach him, and hinder the building of the house of God, Neh. 6.12. For I have heard (saith the Prophet) the defaming of many; report, say nay, and we will report it," Jer. 20.10.

Subscribed by certain Elders, Deacons, and Brethren met at "London," in the first Month (called "March," 1660.) in the behalf of themselves, and many others unto whom they belong; in "London," and in several Countries of this Nation, who are of the same Faith with Us.

Joseph Wright,
 William Jeffery,
 Thomas Monck,
 John Hartnoll,
 Benjamine Morley,
 Francis Stanley,
 George Hammon,
 William Smart,
 John Reeve,
 Thomas Parrot,
 John Wood,
 Francis Smith,
 Edward Jones,
 Humphrey Jones,
 Matthew Caffen,
 Samuel Loveday,
 John Parsons, Senior,
 Thomas Stacy,
 Edward Stanley,
 Jonathan Gennings,
 John Hammersly,
 William Russel,
 Joseph Keeich,
 Nicholas Newberry,
 Samuel Lover,
 George Wright,
 John Parsons, Junior,
 John Claton,
 Thomas Seele,
 Michael Whiticar
 Giles Browne,
 John Wells,
 Stephen Torie,
 Thomas Lathwel,
 William Chadwel,
 William Raph,
 Henry Browne,
 William Paine,
 Richard Bowin,
 Thomas Smith,

The Former Articles of Faith and the Present Statement of Faith of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina

by Michael Pelt

IT HAS BEEN POINTED OUT in another article in this issue entitled "The Former Articles of Faith of the North Carolina Free Will Baptists" that the earliest statement of faith subscribed to by Free Will Baptists was a revision of the Confession of 1660. A comparison between these two statements of faith indicates that early Free Will Baptists in the Carolinas were in fact dependent upon their antecedents among General Baptists in England for their beliefs and practices as outlined in the Articles of Faith.

These Articles of Faith were reprinted many times by Free Will Baptists, as early as 1812 and as late as 1941. We have reason to believe that these same articles were printed and subscribed to, by Free Will Baptists even earlier than 1812 if we may judge by a statement in the Preface to the Book of Discipline which contains these articles of faith. This statement reads, "The General Conference met at a meetinghouse called A. Jones' on Little Contentnea, Greene County, on the 5th of November, 1812. The conference then took into consideration the general interest of the gospel and especially the interest of the Baptist churches, which they did represent, judging it expedient to examine and reprint the former Confession of Faith, put forth by the former Elders and Deacons" (Italics mine). Although these articles were reprinted several times during a century and a half, they were never revised except to correct printing errors.

Since these Articles of Faith stood the test of usage for so long and are based upon an even earlier document, the Confession of 1660, we feel that they will be of interest to the reader. We have therefore included the full text of these articles below.

ARTICLES OF FAITH

1. We believe that there is but one living, true and eternal God, the Father, of whom are all things, from everlasting to everlasting glorious and immutable in all His attributes.—I Cor. 8:6, Isa. 40:28.

2. We believe that there is one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, the only begotten Son of God, born of the Virgin Mary, whom God freely sent into this world because of the great love where-with he loved the world: and Christ as freely gave Himself a ransom for all, tasting death for every man: who was buried and rose again the third day, and ascended into heaven, from whence we look for Him the second time in the clouds of heaven at the last day to judge both quick and dead.—I Tim. 2:5, 6; Heb. 2:9; St. John 3:16; Rev. 1:7; Acts 24:15; I John 2:2.

3. We believe that there is one Holy Ghost, the precious gift of the Father through His dear Son unto the world who quickeneth and draweth sinners home to God.—St. John 16:7, 8; Acts 2:4; Eph. 2:1; 4:5, 6.

4. We believe that in the beginning God made man upright, and placed him in a state of glory without the least mixture of misery, from which he voluntarily, by transgression fell, and by that means brought on himself a miserable and mortal state subject to death.—Gen. 2:17; 3:19.

5. We believe that God is not willing that any should perish; but that all should come to repentance and the knowledge of the truth, that they might be saved; for which end Christ hath commanded the Gospel to be preached among all nations and to every creature.—Mark 16:15; Luke 24:47; John 3:15-17; I Tim. 2:4.

6. We believe that no man shall suffer in hell for want of a Christ who died for him, but as the Scripture has said, for denying the Lord that bought them, because they believe not in the name of the only begotten Son of God. Unbelief therefore, being the cause why the just and righteous God of heaven will condemn the children of men; it follows against all contradiction that all men, at one time or other, are found in such a capacity as that through the grace of God they may be eternally saved.—Acts 17:30; Mark 6:6; Heb. 3:10; I John 5:10.

7. We believe the whole Scriptures are infallibly true, and that they are the only rules of faith and practice.—II Tim. 3:16, 17.

8. We believe in the doctrine of General Provision made of God in Christ, for the benefit of all mankind, who repent and believe the Gospel.—Luke 14:16-20; Matt. 28:19, 20; Luke 13:3-5; Luke 24:47; Acts 3:19; Mark 1:15.

9. We believe that sinners are drawn to God, the Father, by the Holy Ghost, through Christ His Son, and that the Holy Ghost offers His divine aid to all the human family; so as they all might be happy, would they give place to His divine teaching; whereas, such who do not receive the divine impressions of His Holy Spirit, shall, at a future day, own their condemnation just, and charge themselves with their own damnation, for willfully rejecting the offers of sovereign grace.—Matt. 11:27; St. John 6:44, 65; Ps. 1:1; Tit. 2:11, 12; Jer. 22:29.

10. We believe that man, not considered simply as men, but ungodly men, were of old ordained to condemnation; considered such who turn the grace of God into lasciviousness, denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ who bought them, and therefore, shall bring upon themselves swift destruction; but we observe that they, and such the Apostle saith because they receive not the love of the truth, that they might be saved; therefore the indignation and wrath of God is upon every soul of man that doeth evil, living and dying therein; for there is no respect of persons with God.—Jude 1:4; 11 Peter 2:1; 11 Thess. 2:11, 12; Rom. 2:9-11.

11. We believe that all children dying in infancy, having not actually transgressed against the law of God, in their own persons, are only subject to the first death, which was brought on them by the fall of the first Adam, and not that any one of them dying in that state, shall suffer punishment in hell by the guilt of Adam's sin, for of such is the kingdom of God.—1 Cor. 15:22; Matt. 18:2-5; Mark 9:36, 37; Matt. 19:14.

12. We believe that good works are the fruits of a saving faith, and that in the use of the means of grace, and not out of the use of those means, eternal life is promised to men.—Rev. 22:14, 15; Isa. 1:19, 20; Matt. 7:8; Jer. 6:16; Luke 13:34, 35.

13. We believe that no man has any warrant in the Holy Scriptures for justification before God through his own works, power or ability which he has in and of himself, only as he by grace is made able to come to God, through Jesus Christ; believing the righteousness of Jesus Christ to be imputed to all believers for their eternal acceptance with God.—Rom. 4:24; Acts 8:20, 21.

14. We believe that all things are foreseen in the wisdom of God, so that God knoweth whatsoever can or cannot come to pass upon all supposed conditions; yet not as having decreed any person to everlasting death or everlasting life, out of respect or mere choice, further than he hath appointed the godly unto life, and the ungodly who die in sin unto death.—Heb. 4:13; Prov. 8:22-31; Matt. 25:31-46.

15. We believe as touching Gospel ordinances, in believers' baptism, laying on of the hands, receiving of the sacrament in bread and wine, washing the saints' feet, anointing the sick with oil in the name of the Lord, fasting, prayer, singing praise to God, and the public ministry of the Word, with every institution of the Lord we shall find in the New Testament.—Mark 16:15, 16; Acts 8:17; Acts 19:6; Luke 22:19, 20; John 13:5, 17; Jas. 5:14.

16. We believe the Gospel mode of baptism is by immersion, and that believers are the only subjects for baptism.—Matt. 3:

16; Mark 1:9, 10; Acts 2:38, 39; Rom. 6:4; Col. 2:12.

17. We believe in a general resurrection of the dead and a final judgment at the last day.—John 5:28, 29; 11 Cor. 5:10.

18. We believe the happiness of the righteous is eternal and the torments of the wicked are endless.—Matt. 25:45.

In view of the fact that these articles formed the basis of Free Will Baptist belief and practice in North Carolina for more than a century, the question arises, how and when did we come to have our present statement of faith? For the beginning of an answer we must go back to the early years of the State Convention in North Carolina.

The State Convention had its first meeting and was organized in 1913. At that time it was composed of four conferences—the Central, Eastern, Western, and Cape Fear Conferences. The first three conferences subscribed to the Articles of Faith which are printed above, but the Cape Fear Conference subscribed to a statement of faith which was a revision of the Treatise of Faith of the Freewill Baptists (Randall Movement) first adopted and published by the General Conference of that body in 1834. Thus there were two statements of faith held simultaneously by different conferences of Free Will Baptists represented in the North Carolina State Convention.

As early as 1914 there were some persons who expressed a desire in the meeting of the State Convention held at New Bern that year to revise the book of Discipline in the direction of a unified statement of faith. This matter was again discussed in the State Convention which met at Shady Grove Church in Sampson County in 1915. At that meeting a committee of four men, one from each conference, was appointed and authorized to carry out this task and report the same at the next meeting of the convention. The report of this committee at the 1916 session of the State Convention was as follows:

"We the committee to revise and unify the discipline beg leave to submit the following report: We met in the town of Wilson and revised the discipline, the same being ratified by the last sessions of the various conferences. Later we have made an effort to unify the Articles of Faith. We have taken the two disciplines now in use and unified the Articles of Faith by taking all articles embraced in the two and placing them under appropriate headings."

Very respectfully,
R. F. Pittman
S. H. Styron
W. J. Braxton
W. A. Jackson
Committee

The above report was adopted.

The work of this committee was reported to the different conferences session in the fall of 1916 and adopted all of them. This revised Church Discipline was published later that same year. Apparently, however, this new Church Discipline was not entirely satisfactory; for a resolution was presented by Elder D. Alexander and adopted at the meeting 1919 authorizing "a committee of one who doctrine is unquestioned to prepare a treatise on our faith." In an Executive Committee meeting on February 10, 1920, a motion passed that "Elder J. W. Alford be appointed to prepare a treatise for North Carolina Free Will Baptists in accordance with resolution passed at the last session of State Convention." Such a new treatise not prepared, however; for when the State Convention met in September of that year a motion was passed which called for 2, disciplines as revised (in 1916) to be prepared and "that the Articles of Faith remain they are found in the old disciplines used the Central, Western, and Eastern Conferences." Thus, the revised Rules of Church Discipline were retained while the revised Articles of Faith were set aside in favor of the original Articles of Faith, which had served as the doctrinal statement of Free Will Baptists in North Carolina for more than a century.

The treatise of faith adopted in 1916 by the various conferences was in fact a slight revision of the Cape Fear Conference statement of faith, which in turn was based upon the treatise of faith once held by North Carolina Freewill Baptists. This may account for the fact that the Cape Fear Conference many years continued to recognize the book of Discipline of 1916 while the Central, Western and Eastern Conferences preferred a book of Discipline that included "Former Articles of Faith," as they were called. These three conferences as well as the State Convention regarded the Former Articles as their statement of faith until they accepted the statement of faith which was adopted by the National Association of Free Will Baptists. The Former Articles were reprinted as late as 1941 by the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden.

When the National Association was organized in 1935 in Nashville, Tennessee, a committee was appointed to revise and prepare a treatise that would meet the approval of the greatest possible number of Free Will Baptists who would participate in the merger of the Eastern General Conference and the Co-Operative General Association. The work of this committee was perhaps the most important factor in bringing about the union of Free Will Baptists in the East and in the West. It is said that when the committee made its report to the body, a motion was made that the report be accepted without a public reading; and the motion

The Former Articles of Faith of the North Carolina Free Will Baptists

Written by Elizabeth Smith,
Alumna of Mount Olive College

Edited by George W. Stevenson Jr.

The purpose of this paper is to show that the Free Will Baptists of North Carolina are descendants of the English General Baptists of the seventeenth century in terms of origin and doctrine.

In order to do this, one must study the Confession of Faith held before the present Treatise of Faith and Government which was adopted in 1949. The present Treatise is a revision of the 1949 treatise of the National Association which is, in turn, a revision of the 1834 credal statement of the Free Baptists or Northern Free Will Baptists who were never in organic union with the North Carolina Free Will Baptists.

The first Baptists of North Carolina were General Baptist settlers from England. There is ample original material to prove this, as Dr. Whitley's article shows. There is an abundance of testimony from ancient historians whose word may be considered authoritative. Robert Semple's History of the Rise and Progress of the Baptists in Virginia published in 1810 states that under the ministry of Paul Palmer and Joseph Parker most of the original churches were established. Palmer and Parker were both Arminians and so were the churches and ministers raised under their ministry, from which circumstance it seems undeniably evident that the first emigrants were what in England were called General Baptists as these Baptists were also Arminians. Before the death of Joseph Parker in 1791, the name "Free Will Baptist" was the common name for these former General Baptists. Lemuel Burkitt and Jesse Read published at Halifax, North Carolina, in 1803 a History of the Kehukee Association in which they show that the first North Carolina Baptist churches were General Baptist and held with the Arminian tenets. "We believe," these historians say on page twenty-eight, "they were the descendants of the English General Baptists, because we find from original papers, that their Confession of Faith was subscribed by certain Elders, and Deacons, and Brethren, in behalf of themselves and others to whom they belonged, both in London, and several counties in England, and was presented to King Charles the Second." This Confession is obviously the Brief Confession of Faith of 1660 which was long held as a standard by the General Baptists of England and which was the official confession of the Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina until 1949.

Who were the General Baptists? After the separation of the Church of England from the Church of Rome, near the middle of the sixteenth century, many groups within the English Church felt that the reformation should continue its influence until certain reforms were accomplished. They were not agreed upon the reforms, however. Some wanted to do away with the episcopacy, some were for congregational government and some were for a presbytery, some others wanted theological changes. But all wanted to remain within the Church of England. By 1580 Robert Browne began preaching in the counties about Norwich and Suffolk, advocating separation from the Church of England to bodies of Christians desiring changes. These Brownists or Separatists were hurried from the land, for they represented congregational government rather than the episcopacy. They did not, however, reject the greater part of the doctrines and rites of the Church of England, specifically the baptism of infants.

These groups; therefore, cannot be called Baptists.

In 1602 John Smyth led in the formation of a Separatist church in Gainsborough, north of London. Late in 1606 or early in 1607, Smyth and many in his church went to Amsterdam in Holland to escape persecution by magistrates. There was already in Amsterdam a Separatist church called the Ancient Church of Amsterdam under the leadership of Francis Johnson who had taught Smyth at Cambridge. Smyth, however, did not join with the Ancient Church but organized with his followers a church which came to be known as the Second Church of Amsterdam. Shortly after the formation of this church, Smyth and his followers became concerned with the efficacy of their baptism which had been administered them as infants according to the rites of the Anglican Church. They came to believe that baptism is not effective unless administered to believers, which an infant incapable of understanding can hardly be. Therefore, Smyth re-baptized himself and the thirty-one others in 1609, thus founding the first English Baptist church, though not on English soil. This first English Baptist church, however, was soon split by dissension over the Hoffmannite Christology which denied the doctrine that the human body of our Lord was made by a natural process within the virgin Mary, and over the position of the clergy as higher than that of the laity. One group, led by Smyth, accepted the Hoffmannite Christology and leaned towards a succession of ministers whose spiritual position was higher than that of the common lay members of the church. The smaller group led by Thomas Helwys maintained the Orthodox position and felt that the gospel of Christ was "free for all men, at all times and in all places," equally so far the lay members as for the ministers. Helwys and his nine followers excommunicated Smyth and the twenty-one others and returned to England in 1612, founding the first Baptist church on English soil in Spitalfields outside the walls of the city of London that same year. Helwys had accepted Arminianism and wrote in defense of the general salvation of all men. Because they rejected the election of particular persons, and held to general salvation, these Baptists came to be called General Baptists. Within a few years, however, Baptists with Calvinistic convictions arose and became known as Particular Baptists (who in America came also to be called Regular Baptists). By 1629 the General Baptist churches numbered five and in 1644 there were forty-seven churches. In 1660 their membership had increased to 20,000.

This period of phenomenal growth from 1644 to 1660 was a period of civil war and new government in England. Charles I was executed in 1649 and until 1660 Baptists and Presbyterians were free of all restraint from the Church of England which had, in effect, been outlawed by the new government under Cromwell from 1650-1660. In March 1660, a change of government was effected and Charles II was invited back to England to rule. Most Baptists were quite ready for a restoration of the monarchy but old slanders against them were being revived. They were still called Anabaptists, a name which they protested against and denied. No Baptist group, General or Particular, was willing to bear the name of Anabaptists, for in the mid 1530's a group of Anabaptists had seized the town of Munster in Germany and, after killing all resisting citizens, set up a disorderly rule under John of Leyden, a Dutch tailor. They held the city for several months and were the terror of the German states. The taint never wore off the name, and even today most historians are loathe to admit of any connection between the English Baptists and the Anabaptists of the continent. It was in the light of this background that the English General Baptists met on March 11, 1660, in London and drew up A Brief Confession or Declaration of Faith in order "to inform all men (in these days of scandal and reproach) of an innocent belief and practice, for which we are not only resolved to suffer persecution, to the loss of our goods, but also life itself, rather than to decline the same." The very first sentence denies the appellation, Anabaptist, and the closing paragraph deals with more specific charges. In order to protect their innocence, this Confession of Faith was presented to the newly returned Charles II on July 26, 1660, by Thomas Grantham with a covering letter by the General Baptists of Lincolnshire. This confession was reprinted later in 1660 and many times subsequently. In 1678 it was revised by Grantham and saw many printings again. There can be no doubt that the Brief Confession or Declaration of Faith of 1660 found its way to North Carolina and was in the possession of early Baptist settlers. The ease with which Paul Palmer, Joseph Parker and other early General Baptist ministers formed large churches is undeniable proof of the fact that the settlers were already acquainted with General Baptist ideas as set forth in the Confession of 1660. This writer is of the opinion, though the chance is remote after such a long passage of time, that there is a possibility of the existence of a copy of the Confession of 1660 in the state of North Carolina which was in the possession of one of the early families. Be that as it may, General Baptist churches patterned after those of England were quick to spring up in the state. By 1752 there were sixteen General Baptist churches in North Carolina which in that year formed the Kehukee Association, the third oldest such body in America. Each of these churches had between one and two hundred members in the mother church and several more members in auxiliary churches, or branches. The General Baptist church found fertile soil in North Carolina.

In May, 1754, however, John Gano, representing the Philadelphia Association of Particular Baptists (Calvinist) visited these churches in North Carolina. He came to reconstruct their church doctrine to accord with the emphases of the Philadelphia Association. The presence of "missionaries" from the Philadelphia Association for which he was responsible, and their mission were resented by these Baptists, but their powerful personalities intimidated them. Most of the churches and their ministers were led into the high Calvinism of the Philadelphia Association. However, three remained in the old faith until the end. These were Elders Joseph Parker, William Parker, and John Winfield with their respective churches.

Elder Joseph Parker, seeing the great loss of Baptists to a new order, began to seek new fields; first at Little Contentnea where he became pastor of a church; later he went to Wheat Swamp and under poverty-stricken conditions he organized a new church. "From the churches thus organized have come with slightly amended teachings the present Free Will Baptists of the state, who are said to number thirty thousand," said George Washington Paschal, the Baptist historian, in 1930. The present Free Will Baptists officially assumed their name in the year 1776.

Since the writer has given evidence of the fact that the Free Will Baptists of North Carolina are a remnant of the General Baptists, the next step is to determine what creed the General Baptists of North Carolina held. Burkitt and Read, referred to above, make the statement on Page 28 of their History of the Kehukee Association that "... the General Baptists preached and adhered to the Arminian or Free Will Doctrines, and their churches in North Carolina were first established upon this system." Unlike the Calvinistic creed of requiring a catechetical examination and determination by the church leaders, the General Baptists baptized one into Christ upon his simple confession of faith.

The later Free Will Baptists followed this practice and other practices of seventeenth century General Baptists. The Brief Confession was retained though revised and considerably shortened. The only known revision of the Confession occurred in 1812, although it had long before been modified in practice. The following is a brief history of the early creed taken from An Abstract of the Former Article of Faith Confessed by the Original Baptist Church, 1855:

"The General Conference met at a Meeting House called A. Jones's, on Little Contentnea, Greene County, on the 5th November, 1812.—The Conference then went into consideration the general interest of the Gospel, and especially the interest of the Baptist Churches, which they did then represent, judging it expedient to examine and re-print the former Confession of Faith, put forth by the former Elders and Deacons; the Conference then thought expedient likewise to annex a proper code of Discipline, and for this purpose Elders James Roach and Jesse Heath were appointed a committee, who accomplished the same.

"The General Conference met at Wheat Swamp, M. H. Lenoir County, on 7th November, 1835.—The Conference then judged it necessary to revise and amend the Discipline of the Baptist Churches, and for the accomplishment of this design, it was agreed that a committee of four persons be appointed, and that brethren Wirsor Dixon, John A. Fonvielle, Robert Borland, Reuben Barrow, and Daniel Cox, composed said Committee and report to the next General Conference.

"The General Conference held at Hooterton, Greene County, on the 5th November, 1836, received the revised and amended Discipline, which was adopted; and together with the Confession of Faith, ordered to be re-printed."

Attention is called to the fact that it was only in 1812 that the confession was examined and reprinted. Thereafter, though the Discipline was revised and amended, the confession was only reprinted. A careful comparison of the various copies of the confession from the Free Will Baptist collection at Mount Olive College shows that the confession was never again revised, but reprinted many, many times. The attached appendix parallels the articles of the Confession of 1660 that are similar to the revised American version of 1812. For the most part, the two are identical; however, there are a few minor changes. The basic theological position is never changed and the Confession of 1660 is the same confession that was held by the Free Will Baptists of North Carolina until 1949.

Throughout this paper, the writer has empted to show that the present Free Will Baptists of this state are in point of origin and creed descendants of the English General Baptists of the seventeenth century. There has been no attempt to make a theological comparison, but merely to draw a parallel between the Confession of Faith of 1660 and the Articles of Faith of 1812.

APPENDIX

CONFESSION OF FAITH OF THE ENGLISH GENERAL BAPTISTS 1660

I. We Believe and are verily confident that there is but one God the Father, of whom are all things, from everlasting to everlasting glorious, and unwordable in all his attributes. 1 Cor. 8.6. 40.28.

III. There is one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, who is the only begotten Son of God, born of the Virgin Mary; as truly Davids Lord, and Davids root, as Davids Son and Davids offspring, Luke 20.44. Rev. 22.16. whom God freely sent into the world (because of his great love unto the world) who freely gave himself a ransom for all, I. Timothy 2.5, 6, tasting death for every man, Heb. 2.9, a propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world, I John

VII. That there is one holy Spirit, the precious gift of God, freely given to such as obey him, Ephes. 4.4, Acts 5.32, that thereby they may be thoroughly sanctified, and made able (without which they are altogether unable) to abide stedfast in the faith, and to honour the Father, and his Son Christ, the Author and finisher of their faith; 1 Cor. 6.11.

II. That God in the beginning made Man "Upright," and placed him into a state and condition of Glory, without the least mixture of misery, from which he by "transgression" fell, and so came into a miserable and mortal estate, subject unto the first death, Gen. 1.31. Eccles. 7.29. Gen. 2.17, 18, 19.

IV. That "God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance," 2 Pet. 3.9. "and the knowledge of the truth, that they might be saved," 1 Tim. 2.4. For which end Christ hath commanded, that the Gospel (to wit, the glad tidings of remission of sins) should be preached to every creature, Mark 16.15. So that no man shall eternally suffer in Hell (that is, the second death) for want of a Christ that dyed for them, but as the Scriptures saith, for "denying the Lord that bought them," 2 Pet. 2.1. or because they "believe not in the name of the only begotten Son of God," John 3.18. Unbelief therefore being the cause why the just and righteous God, will condemn the children of men; it follows against all contradiction, that all men at one time or other, are put into such a capacity, as that (through the grace of God) they may be eternally saved, John 1.7. Acts 17.30. Mark 16.6. Heb. 3.10, 18, 19. 1 John 5.10. John 3.17.

IX. That men not considered simply as men, but ungodly men "were of old ordained to condemnation, considered as such, to turn the grace of God into wantonness, and deny the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, Jude 4. God indeed sends strong delusion to men, that they might be damned; but we observe that they are such (as saith the Apostle) that "received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved, 2 Thes. 2.10, 11, and so the indignation and wrath of God, is upon "every soul" of man that doth "evil," (living and dying therein,) "for there is no respect of persons with God." Rom. 2.9, 10, 11.

ARTICLES OF FAITH FREE WILL BAPTISTS OF 1812

1. We believe that there is but one living, true and eternal God, the Father; of whom are all things, from everlasting to everlasting, glorious and immutable in all His attributes. 1 Cor. VIII, 6. Isa. XL, 28.

2. We believe that there is one Lord Jesus Christ, but whom are all things, the only begotten Son of God, born of the virgin Mary, whom God freely sent into this world because of the great love wherewith he loved the world: and Christ as freely gave himself a ransom for all, tasting death for every man; who was buried and rose again the third day and ascended into Heaven, from whence we look for Him, the second time, in the clouds of Heaven, at the last day to judge both quick and dead. 1 Tim. II, 5, 6; Heb. II, 9; I John II, 2; Rev. I, 7; Acts XXIV, 15.

3. We believe that there is one Holy Ghost, the precious gift of the Father, through His dear Son, unto the world, who quickeneth and draweth sinners home to God. John XVI, 7 and 8; Acts II, 4; Eph. II, 1; Eph. IV, 4, 5, 6.

4. We believe that in the beginning God made man upright, and placed him in a state of glory without the least mixture of misery, from which he voluntarily, by transgression, fell, and by that means brought on himself a miserable and mortal state, subject to death. Gen. II, 17, and III, 17, 18, 19.

5. We believe that God is not willing that any should die; but that all should come to repentance and the knowledge of the truth, that they might be saved; for which end Christ hath commanded the Gospel to be preached among all the nations, and to every creature. Mark XVI, 15; Luke XXIV, 47.

6. We believe that no man shall suffer in hell, for want of a Christ that died for him, but as the Scripture has said, for denying the Lord that bought them; because they believe not in the name of the only begotten Son of God. Unbelief, therefore, being the cause why the just and righteous God of Heaven will condemn the children of men; it follows against all contradiction that all men, at one time or other, are found in such a capacity as that through the grace of God they may be eternally saved. II Peter II, 1; 1 John 1, 17; Acts XVII, 30; Mark VI, 6; Heb. III, 10; I John V, 10.

10. We believe that men, not considered simply as men, but ungodly men, were of old ordained to condemnation; considered such who turn the grace of God into lasciviousness, denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ that bought them, and, therefore, shall bring upon themselves swift destruction; but we observe that they, and such the apostle saith because they receive not the love of the truth, that they might be saved; wherefore the indignation and wrath of God is upon every soul of man that doeth evil, living and dying therein; for there is no respect of persons with God. Jude 1, 4; II Peter II, 1; II Thes. II, 10, 11, 12; Rom. II, 9, 11.

General Baptists in Carolina and Virginia

W. T. Whitley, LL. D.

Honorary Secretary, The Baptist Historical Society, London, England

(This article is reprinted from the January, 1936, issue of The Crozer Quarterly by kind permission of Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pennsylvania.)

CHARLES II GRANTED a large territory south of Virginia to the Earl of Clarendon, the Duke of Albemarle and six others. John Locke and Lord Ashley drew up in 1669 the Fundamental Constitutions, which assured religious liberty. Within thirteen years a town grew up between the Ashley and Cooper rivers, named Charleston. And here a Baptist church was constituted.

The fortunes of Baptists in the South have been somewhat obscured, for three reasons. Early Baptist historians lived in New England, and had no direct knowledge; in a few details they were misled. The Revolutionary War had altered all conditions, and attention was given rather to the expansion westward. The prevalent type of doctrine was Calvinist, and so far as differences seemed important, it was between the Regulars and the Separates; that the pioneers were not Calvinist at all but Arminian or General, seemed a regrettable fact to be apologized for, with slurring of details.

Of late a new school has arisen, which believes in ascertaining facts and publishing them. Some of these are here cited, and are matched with similar results from enquiry in England. The result is to give a picture, slight indeed, but independent of provincial boundaries, which may show the great services rendered in the South by those English Baptists who inherited the belief that the good news was meant for all men, red and white, irrespective of "election"; and who as a consequence preached for conversion, to sinners and to heathen.

So strongly did they believe this, that their organization provided for an officer, commissioned by an Association of Churches, for the express purpose of breaking new ground with missionary preaching, forming and superintending new churches. This officer was named a "Messenger", a title adopted from II Corinthians 8:23, where Paul commends the messengers of the churches gathering contributions for the poor elsewhere.

I. ASHLEY AND COOPER RIVERS

The first settlers included three Baptists: Paul Grimball, Lady Axtell whose husband had been executed for his share in the execution of Charles I, and her daughter married to Joseph Blake. This man was nephew of the admiral, and was of great value in accommodating the Fundamental Constitutions of Locke to the actual conditions of life; he was twice governor, ending in 1700.

Many of the settlers came from Somerset. A second band arrived after a trial settlement in Maine; this included William Screven, whose father of the same name had signed, in 1656, the Somerset Confession of Faith. They therefore named their plantation Somerton, after a royal manor in that county. Worship, however, was in Charleston itself, first at the house of William Chapman on King Street. Then William Elliott gave land on Church Street, where during 1699 a brick church and parsonage were built. The name of one other pioneer is known, Daniel Dingley, who came with some experience at Newport and at Boston.

They naturally looked to the home country for Elders to guide their church. And so the General Association of General Baptists, who met in June 1702, at the White's Alley Church in London passed the following resolution:

"Whereas our Brethren of the Baptist persuasion and of the Generall Faith who have their aboad in Caralina have desired us to Supply them with a Ministry or with books, we being not able at present to doe the former haue collected ye Sum of Seven pounds twelve Shillings wch wth wt can be farther obtain'd we haue put into the hands of our Bror S Keeling to Supply ym wth ye latter & yt ye sd Bror Keeling doe wright a letter to them in the name of this Assembly."

There the matter rested for twelve years, English Baptists having to fear constant encroachments during the reign of Queen Anne. Screven continued his work unaided, but would not limit his efforts to his compatriots. He moved to where Georgetown now stands, and began missionary work among the natives, which he continued until his death in 1713 at the age of 84. Thomas White, of whom we shall hear presently, just lived to land. And another pastor, Sanborn, left no mark, dying about 1710.

About 1719 a fresh element was introduced by William Peart, who has hitherto not been identified by American historians. Now a man of that name, a clothier, had done excellent work in Worcestershire, perhaps at Pershore, certainly as pastor of the church at Bromsgrove, which began its minutes under his auspices, and entered a vigorous career of extension. He ended his work there by 1719, and the church has no record why. As William Peart of Carolina was a man of similar energy, and Calvinistic traits at once appear, we may surmise that it is the same man.

He married the widow of Paul Grimball, a member of the Council. Within a few years meeting-houses were built on the Ashley river above Charleston, on Stono sixteen miles away to the south-west, and a further afield on Edisto island. Peart was followed by Thomas Simmonds, an Englishman from Pennsylvania, who could not hold together all the band. The General Baptists appealed to England, where the Ingrams were a strong family; Benjamin was Elder of Horsleydown in Southwark, Robert was a member at Webstone in Sussex. No application was laid officially before the Assembly, but the cessation of Robert's attendance coincides with the arrival of Ingram to be Elder at Stono. There was another family, the Chandlers, known from 1654, which had given an Elder to Cove Garden in 1692. About 1733 Isaac Chandler emigrated and took up work on the Ashley river. And on Edisto island the leader was Tilly, whose origin has not been traced. Legal troubles arose between the General Baptists and the Particulars as to the property in Charleston, and the civil court awarded the meeting-house to the former, the parsonage to the latter.

The General Baptists appealed again to the Assembly in England, which in 1717 "agreed that Mr. Haywood be ordained the Messengers of this Assembly to go and preach the Gospel in South Carolina in the Capacity of a Messenger."

To the same Assembly in 1756 came a Letter from Charles Town South Carolina requesting a Learned and pious Minister might be sent to them for whose support £70 a Year is appropriated." Two years later, Grantham Killingworth of Norway reported "that he had Apply'd to Broth Danil Wheeler, who had Accepted the invitation and he had Rec'd Information that our said Bror Danl. Wheeler has safely arrived amongst our Brethren there." Wheeler wrote regularly for five years, reporting ttlement at Stono; and in 1772 another publication came through Norwich for another "suitable Person to settle at Charles town, South Carolina, as a Minister." As a result, next year "Mr. Lowdell reported at Mr. Phil. Dobel was gone to Charles town South Carolina." He went from Hitchling in Sussex, where was a strong General Baptist Church.

This group all lay near Charleston. An account of the European settlements as late as 1761 declared that most of the land was entirely untilled, consisting of swamps of black fat earth, immense forests of oaks and pines, with luxuriant glades here and there, interrun with flowering shrubs and plants of the most beautiful. The same was still true 10 years later in the tide-water districts. And unfortunately the early settlers were unable to quit the estuaries and to encounter the many tribes of natives, tall, strong, fierce and warlike.

ALBEMARLE SOUND AND JAMES RIVER

A second plantation, however, was made to the north, off Albemarle Sound, on the Perquimans river. As Dr. John Hamersley figures in county records from 1718 onwards, we may reasonably connect these settlers with the Hamersley General Baptists of England.

On 1 January 1651/2 a letter was sent to Cromwell from an Association of General Baptists, whose churches were at Bitteswell, Midgorth, Burton-on-Trent, Leicester, Chichester, Monntsorrel, Parwick, Ravenshoepe, Shugborough, Stafford, Theddingworth and Walsall. It was signed also by Thomas Hamersley of "Berryhill," which hamlet is not yet identified; but the area is evident. On 15 March, 1660, the chief Confession which was long treated as standard, was signed by John Hamersley; and in January 1661 he joined in a Humble Representation to the King that Baptists had nothing to do with the Fifth-Monarchy insurrection of Venner. After that, no Hamersley was prominent in Baptist circles, though the family was known at Nantwich in 1837. The inference is that during the persecution period, 1663-1687, some Midland General Baptists, including Doctor John Hamersley, emigrated to the northern edge of Carolina.

Whether the appeal to the Assembly in 1702 came from the Perquimans group or the Charleston group does not appear. Internal troubles in the Assembly concentrated attention on English affairs until 1714, when a split had occurred, and we have the minutes only of the minority which did not include the midlanders.

On 19 May it was agreed to send a letter to several churches in the several counties to stir them up for some assistance for Robert Norden and Thoms. White who are appointed and approved by this Assembly to go to Virginia to propagate the Gospel of truth."

It seems therefore that from the group of General Baptists on the Perquimans river, some had gone sixty miles north to the James river in the older colony of Virginia. This was not on the same liberal basis as Carolina, but was aristocratic, royalist. The older towns of Henrico and Jamestown on the north side of the river were not outclassed by Williamsburg: here James Blair acted as commissary for the bishop of London, and built up the Episcopal Church. There were now 50,000 white settlers, with 20,000 negro slaves. The conditions on the great plantations are vividly sketched by Defoe in his history of Colony Jack. But the Baptists were rather of the small farmer class, whose economic condition was anything but desirable. And the Virginia Assembly had passed an act in 1661/2: "Whereas, many schismatical persons, out of their aversion to the orthodox established religion, or out of the new-fangled conceits of their own heretical inventions, refuse to have their children baptized, Be it therefore Enacted, That all persons that in contempt of the divine sacrament of baptism, shall refuse when they may carry their child to a lawful minister in that county, to have them baptized, shall be amerced two thousand pounds of tobacco, half to the informer, half to the public."

It took some time, even at Williamsburg, to convince the authorities that the English Act of Toleration extended to the colonies. And we note that only about 1714 did the Baptists of Virginia appeal for help from England.

The Assembly responded well and quickly. Thomas White was of a family in good standing for a score of years. He himself belonged to the ancient church of Bradburn and Sevenoaks. He seems to have gone to Screven's church in Carolina, and to have died almost at once; so everything devolved on his colleague.

Robert Norden appeared first at Assembly in 1704 as Elder of the church at Warbleton in Sussex; there he met Samuel Keeling of White's Alley who had responded to the request from Carolina two years earlier. Norden was invited at the Assembly to "accept and take upon him the Office of a Messenger." He hesitated, but the invitation was pressed seven years later, and the Kent Association was commissioned to ordain him if he accepted. Now the Virginia application attracted him; he was ordained as Messenger to this sphere, and was asked to start "with all Convenient Speed." A circular was printed by a new and energetic Scribe and sent "Down the Respective Churches & press a Spedy Return of the Money on the Virginia Act."

Since the publication in England of these minutes an American has been exploring the Order Book of Prince George County, and kindred early official records. Mr. Clarence H. Uner has published the following facts in the Virginia Magazine of History & Biography for April 1933:

1715, June 14. "Robert Norden an Annabaptist preacher appears in Court and takes the Oaths and Subscribes the Declarations mentioned in the Act of Parliament of the 1st of William & Mary & Entitled an Act for Exempting their Majestys Protest Subjects Dissenting from the Church of England from the penaltys of Certain Laws. Order the sd Declarations be recorded."

"I Robert Norden do Sincerely promise and Solemnly Declare before God and the World that I will be true and faithfull to his Majesty King George, and I do Solmenly promise and Declare that I do from my heart abhor, detest and renounce, as Impious and Hereticall that Damnable Doctrine and Position that Princes Excommunicated or Deprived by the Pope of any Authority of the See of Rome may be Deposed or Murthered by their Subjects or any other whatsoever, and I do Declare that no foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State Superiority, Preheminence or Authority, Ecclesiastical or Spritual within this Realm (sic) Robert Norden."

"I, Robert Norden Profess faith in God the Father and in Jesus Christ his Eternall Sonn the true God and in the Holy Spiritt, One God Blessed for ever more, and I do acknowledge the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be given by Divine Inspiration. Robert Norden."

"Matthew Markes having petitioned this court that his house be entered a publick meeting house for those persons called Annabaptists, its Ordered the same be done accordingly."

1715, July 12. "On Motion of Nicholas Robertson its Ordered that his house be recorded a public meeting house for the Sext of Annabaptists."

1719, October 13. "I give and bequeath to Edward Marks, the son of Edward Marks, t(w)o hundred acres of land more or Less, joining to Wards Creek, to him and his heirs Lawfully begotten to be by him enjoyed at the age of One and twenty years, he not prohibiting the meetings there settled. . . . I give to my daughter t(w)o beds in the fire room, one for her forth with, and the other to remain for the use of Robert Norden the time of his tarrying in Virginia. . . . 'tis my Will Robert Norden have the plantation I Live in, till Edward Marks comes of age, with the land belonging to it." [Will of Matthew Marks, made August 15, 1719.]

Marks had not left any trace in English Baptist circles. Norden was supported also by John Hamersley, who figures in the Order Book a score of times 1718-1720. He won several law-suits, witnessed wills, gave security for executors and administrators, was appointed referee. And when Charles Noden [Norden?] of Martin Brandon parish made his will on 11 April, 1724, he desired "that if any medicines should come into me in next years shipping that Doctor Hamersley may have all the Physicall part."

That year Robert Norden reported to the Assembly in England, apparently asking for a helper. No action was taken at once, but next year the Assembly agreed to send for him "Home from Virginia if he be Disposed to Return," and gave power to two men to act, calling for such assistance as should prove needful.

Norden, however, was about to go to his permanent home. On 7 October 1726 an inventory and appraisal was made of the Estate of Robert Norden, Dec'd.

In 1729, Paul Palmer appears at Perquimans in North Carolina. The latest Baptist historian of the South thinks that he came direct from England. There was a Palmer family of General Baptists on the borders of Surrey and Sussex, known from 1660 to 1790. And as Norden's death was reported, it seems very likely that Paul went to take up the work. There is a gap in the Assembly records from 1728 to 1731, so that we cannot say whether he was officially ordained as Messenger.

Palmer wrote to John Comer of Newport in Rhode Island: "There is a comely little church in the Isle of Wight county of about thirty or forty members, the Elder of which is one Richard Jones, a very sensible old gentleman, whom I have great love for. We see each other at every yearly meeting, and sometimes more often. There is another church in Surrey county where my brother Jones lives, I suppose of about thirty more."

This is typically General Baptist; an Elder, with two centres, a yearly meeting not restricted to civil boundaries, but embracing both Virginians and Carolinians, corresponding with other General Baptists at a distance. This Association is quite a landmark of 1729, and is evidently due to Palmer with his tradition of over seventy years.

The two groups were then known as Burleigh and Branden; today they are called Mill Swamp and Otterdam, names eminently suggestive of the dismal conditions on tide-water. Their modern historian sums up the people as struggling and unprogressive. Paul Palmer, however, who organized his headquarters on the Chowan river in Perquimans county, was remarkably aggressive, and his flock grew rapidly. Joseph Parker soon proved an excellent coadjutor, and by 1742 William Sojourner from Berkeley in Virginia was a third.

III. IN MODERN AMERICA*

*The reader is asked to remember that this article was written in 1935;

therefore, the figures below are not the current ones. Editor.

The Revolutionary war altered all the ecclesiastical situation. When peace was restored, there was complete reorganization. The Philadelphia Confession was adopted, with some reserve at first; this was essentially the Baptist revision in 1677 of the Westminster Confession of 1646. Thus the General Baptist distinctive principles all but disappeared in the wider current of Baptist life.

Yet visitors to the Carolinas will find three conferences of the "Original Free Will Baptists." They have about 125 buildings for their 12,000 members. As often happens they preserve in America some English customs of the seventeenth century. Every quarter they meet, wash the saints' feet, and take communion together. Once a year each conference of Elders, ministers, preachers and representatives exercises discipline over both preachers and churches; though apparently they do not use the title Messenger, even if they have such permanent officers. They strictly forbid their members to attend the race-track, the card-table, shooting-matches, or any other place of disorder.

The Revolutionary War broke off all relations between Carolina and the English General Baptists, so that each body developed independently. It is interesting for an Englishman to ponder over the contemporary experiences of the Nottingham stocking-weaver converted in a revival, evangelizing round Sutton, adopting Particular views, and as Abraham Booth of London leavening the rigid Calvinists of the south. Or to think of Andrew Fuller, scandalized at the antinomian views of Soham, coming to believe that the gospel of Christ was worthy of all acceptance, finding a cobbler at the former General Baptist meeting-house in Moulton, who declared that the gospel was worthy also of all presentation, even to Hindus and Moslems.

But these theological developments had no precise parallels in America, nor are they the theme here. This study is to recall that the English General Baptists were the pioneers in America; not only in New England, but in the southern plantations, which have yielded since so many millions of Baptists, white, red, and black.

The story is told that, one day when John Dresden was forty-seven years of age, he heard the first commandment recited in a church service. He began to reflect on his life. He had had many gods whose altars meant more to him than God—business, coveted success, distinction among his associates. When he left the church, he had resolved to let God rebuild the basic texture of his life.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

Commemoration Service

Mrs. H. L. Spivey

Historian of Mount Olive College

Local Thanksgiving Service in Commemoration of the Tri-Centennial of the Br Confession of 1660.

We as Free Will Baptists have a wonderful privilege to participate in the commemoration of the Tri-Centennial of the Confession of 1660. When we think of the courage, faith and loyal devotion of our forefathers, it should make us feel so unworthy of our heritage. When America was a virgin wilderness, they courageously blazed the trails and it was through their sacrifice, love, and endeavors that we have such a glorious heritage. Considering the price our predecessors paid for our religious freedom, it should encourage us to stand our day helping to preserve these sacred principles.

Baptistic doctrine has stood the test of the ages because the principles are set forth in the divine Word of God. Christ died to set Christians free; He did not enslave the minds of His followers as some present-day leaders would have us to believe. We are to worship God as our Creator, exercising this God-given faculty. Philippians 2:—Paul clearly states in his teaching in Philippians 2:12, that we are to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. We are not to be led by the minds of dictators who force their will on others. God's people are to stand spiritually firm and not easily swayed. Christians are capable of thinking and acting for themselves in governing affairs of the church. These principles have been challenged in the past and are being challenged even in our day. God has reserved a remnant who held the principles supreme in their minds and hearts and were willing to die for them. They are indeed a challenge and should be a beacon set before us, challenging us to follow. We should be willing to pay the price to preserve our historical identity, character and integrity, thereby counting it a privilege to hold and defend these divine principles set forth by Him in whom we believe.

Therefore, we suggest that each Free Will Baptist church in commemoration of the Confession of 1660 hold a special service of thanksgiving on the first Sunday in August. Through our love and appreciation we would honor those who laid the foundation upon which Free Will Baptists stand. We trust each church will participate in promoting a spirit of thankfulness and appreciation for our historical heritage. A suggested order of service will be sent to each church. Any changes in the program may be made as desired.

The Free Will Baptist Historical Collection

by Daniel W. Fagg, Jr.

Christianity is universally confessed to a historical religion. It is based upon revelation of God in history and upon historical events surrounding the life of Jesus Christ. No where can this emphasis be seen as clearly as in the repeated Old Testament phrase the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, clearly identifying Jehovah with the tradition of the Hebrew God. For centuries the cry, "God of our fathers, who brought us out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage," goes to remind the people of Israel of their covenant with God based upon the historic event of the deliverance. So it is with the New Israel, Christ's holy church, delivered from bondage by a mighty act of God through His Son—an act performed in history.

It is, therefore, altogether fitting that the Christian Church should study its own history, seeking to know its strengths and weaknesses, to understand the faith and practice of the fathers, to claim the stability of living tradition, to avoid the errors of the past, to know the glories which have adorned the Church militant and the humiliations which have destroyed her pride. Prepared her for her saving work in the world. It is especially important for the Free Will Baptists as they stand on the threshold of a new day to review the past of their denomination, seeking to go forward in the spirit of the fathers, preserving the unique genius of the gentle people called, "free willers."

These thoughts were in the minds of those who organized the Free Will Baptist Historical Collection of Mount Olive Junior College in 1957, soon after the College moved to Mount Olive. From a few easily obtained books and minutes the Collection has grown rapidly to several thousand separate items.

The heart of the Collection is a group of about thirty books related to Free Will Baptist history. These volumes ranged in size from Morgan Edwards' notes on North Carolina Baptists, made in 1772, through Burkitt and Read's history of the Kehukee Association, published in 1803, to Baxter's definitive history of the Northern Freewill Baptists, published in 1827 to the last one in 19....., copies of? is numerous materials on the Randall connection in the northern states. Minutes of the Triennial General Conference from 1827 to the last one in 19....., copies of the Register and Almanac from 1835 to 1902, an old hymnal, a first edition of the Confession of Faith, miscellaneous copies of The Morning Star, a denominational newspaper, various biographies and histories provide sample materials on the northern denomination.

The most valuable part of the Collection is made up of tediously assembled minutes of various denominational bodies. They now constitute the most nearly complete sets available. When printed minutes exist but cannot be acquired, they have been copied. The oldest known minute is that of the General Conference of North Carolina for 1845 in the collection of the Library of the University of North Carolina. The largest groups of minutes in Mount Olive are from North Carolina, of course, but every state in which Free Will Baptists are active is represented in the Collection. Only the minutes of the National Association are complete, but diligent search by friends of the Collection continues to narrow the gaps in the various sets. The older North Carolina minutes can be supplemented by Harrison and Barfield's summaries of earlier minutes now destroyed. Periodicals also constitute a valuable portion of the Collection. Contact is almost complete; scattered copies of the Free Will Baptist Gem are available. A large collection of The Free Will Baptist has made it possible to bind many complete years of that periodical, although many copies are still needed to complete other volumes.

In addition, large numbers of tracts, pamphlets, treatises, and hymnals are preserved in the Collection. Mrs. H. L. Spivey's collection of memorabilia related to Ayden Seminary and Eureka College, containing photographs, books, family Bibles, college catalogs, the college table silver and like items, greatly enrich the Collection.

Several items relating to the English General Baptists have been added recently through the good offices of the Baptist Union in London. The section relating to the Continental Anabaptists is growing. The works of Arminius and the theological volume of Butler and Dunn constitute the basic doctrinal writings available at the moment.

Numerous items have been acquired by purchase, largely those relating to the Northern Freewill Baptists. Donation has been the commoner method of acquisition. Elon College, the Disciplina Collection of Atlantic Christian College, the American Baptist Historical Society, Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Mr. J. C. Griffin, Mr. David Hansley, Mr. George Stevenson, Jr., and many others have contributed generously to the Collection. Mrs. C. B. Councill, Librarian of the College, is custodian.

The Collection is designed primarily for research. It is cataloged separately in the Moye Library and kept in locked fire proof cabinets. Students of the College occasionally use the materials for term papers and selected items are displayed on special occasions. Local churches make use of the records available in preparing church histories and denominational leaders find official sets of records helpful. The real purpose of the Collection, however, is the assembling of materials necessary to prepare a scholarly, objective, accurate history of the denomination. It is that great work which is in view as additional items are sought.

State of North Carolina

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

RALEIGH

July 7, 1960

The Reverend Michael Pelt, Secretary
North Carolina State Convention of Free
Will Baptists
Mount Olive, North Carolina

Dear Reverend Pelt:

In this, the tri-centennial year of the presentation of the Confession of Faith of 1660, I would like to commend the more than 40,000 members of your denomination in North Carolina on the significant contribution they have made, and are continuing to make, to the spiritual life of our State.

The great Baptist tradition, which has been a vital force in North Carolina for two and one-half centuries, is in many ways symbolic of the religious strength of all our people. Characterized by an unalterable dedication to religious freedom and basic Christian doctrine, it has exerted a beneficial and lasting influence on our development as a people and our progress as a State.

With very best wishes for the challenging years ahead, I am

Sincerely yours,
Luther H. Hodges

NEWS NOTES

Rev. W. S. Burns Resigns Pastorate

The Rev. W. S. Burns, pastor of Warden's Grove Free Will Baptist Church of Lowlands, North Carolina, and Pleasant Plain Free Will Baptist Church of Selma, North Carolina, for the past two years, announces his resignation from these churches, effective the last of August.

Under Mr. Burns' leadership, the Pleasant Plain Church has completely remodeled their old building with the addition of a vestibule. New memorial stained glass windows have been installed and the church has been brick veneered.

Mr. Burns says, "It has been a real pleasure to work in both of these congregations." He also states that he has seen marked improvement and progress in the work for the past two years in souls saved, and also in building improvements. His present address is 305 N. Sumner Street, Selma, North Carolina, and his phone number is WO-lawn 5-2608.

Revival Concluded At Sidney Church

The Rev. Johnny Eason, pastor of Hickory Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Ahoskie, North Carolina, completed a ten-day revival meeting at the Sidney Free Will Baptist Church, Beaufort County, North Carolina, on Wednesday night, July 6. The revival was termed the greatest the church has ever experienced.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Daniel Gaskins, and the evangelist met with a group at the church at 10:00 a. m. every day to pray for the revival. There were approximately 20 rededications and four accepted Christ as Saviour. The entire church was revived. The reporter, Mrs. Edwin Roper, states, "We thank God for sending a young man so dedicated to the Lord and separated from the world to our church to preach the simple gospel, and to reprove and rebuke sin."

Rev. Wayne Smith To Conduct Revival

The Rev. Wayne Smith will be the evangelist for revival services at the Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church near Columbia, North Carolina, beginning August 8 and continuing through August 14. There will also be special singing by groups from various churches, quartets, duets, quintets and choirs. Special services will also be held each morning at eleven o'clock.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Charlie Overton, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Rev. J. B. Starnes Accepts Morehead City, N. C., Pastorate

The Pulpit Committee of the Faith Free Will Baptist Church of Morehead City, North Carolina, announces that the Rev. J. B. Starnes of Kinston, North Carolina, has accepted a call to pastor the Faith Church. Mr. Starnes will assume his duties as pastor of this church the first Sunday in September.

Saratoga, N. C., Church Host to League Union

The Fourth Union League Convention will convene with the Saratoga, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church on Saturday night, July 30, 1960. The following program has been planned for this meeting:

- 8:00—Official Opening, President
- Song, "Onward Christian Lcaguers"
- Devotions, Owen's Chapel
- Special Music
- Business
 - Roll Call of Churches
 - Minutes
 - Banner Committee Report
 - Old Business
 - Committee Reports (Treasurer's Report and Other Committees)
 - New Business
- Program, Owen's Chapel
- League Benediction

Revival and Home-Coming At Mt. Tabor Church

The Rev. Fred S. Powers will be the evangelist for revival services at Mt. Tabor Free Will Baptist Church, Creswell, North Carolina, August 8-13. The services will begin each evening at 7:45.

The church will observe its annual home-coming on Sunday, August 14, beginning with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., followed by the morning worship service at 11:00

Coming Events

August 14-19—College Youth Conference, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

a. m. and a sinspiration service at 1:30 p.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend these revival services and the home-coming services.

Children's Home Announces Picture Program Itinerary

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, announces that Miss Bonnie Farmer will conduct a Picture Program itinerary, in the interest of home, as follows. All programs begin 8:00 p. m.

Eastern Conference

- August 17—British Chapel
- August 18—Friendship
- August 19—Gethsemane
- August 21—Sts. Delight
- August 22—Antioch
- August 23—Spring Hope
- August 24—New Haven
- August 25—Vanceboro
- August 26—Juniper Chapel
- August 28—Macedonia
- August 29—Reunion Chapel
- August 30—Oak Grove
- August 31—Palmetto
- September 1—Ephesus
- September 2—Smryna
- September 4—Union Chapel
- September 5—White Hill

People's Chapel Church Host to Union Meeting

The People's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Elm City, North Carolina, will be host to a union meeting on July 30, 1960. The following program has been planned for this meeting:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Devotions, Mr. Luther Bissette
- 10:10—Welcome, Rev. J. B. Ferrell
- 10:15—Response, Judy Lamm
- 10:20—Union Called to Order
- 10:25—Reading of Minutes
- 10:30—Roll Call of Ministers
- 10:35—Roll Call of Churches
- 11:00—Business Session
- 11:20—Offering for Children's Home
- 11:25—Special Music
- 11:30—Sermon, Rev. J. C. Varnell
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions, Mrs. Roma Lucas
- 1:10—Special Music
- 1:20—Report of Committees
 - Foreign Missions, Rev. Ralph C.
 - Home Missions, Mrs. Mackwards
 - Superannuation, Rev. Dee Bissette
 - Sunday School, Judith Faye
 - Education, L. H. Boykin
 - Temperance, Rev. J. B. Ferrell
- 2:00—Business Session
- 2:30—Adjournment

Children's Home Announces Concert Class Itinerary

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Wadesboro, North Carolina, announces that the Concert Class will conduct an itinerary, in the interest of the home, as given below. J. R. Bennett is manager of the class. Programs begin at 8:00 p. m. unless otherwise indicated:

- August 1—Nick's Creek, Jack's Creek Association
- August 2—Cox's Creek, Toe River Association
- August 3—East Black Mountain, French Broad Association
- August 4—Homcr's Chapel, French Broad Association
- August 5—Swannanoa, Blue Ridge Association
- August 7—Asheville, French Broad Association (11:00 A. M.)
- August 7—Horney Heights, Blue Ridge Association
- August 8—Canton, Blue Ridge Association
- August 9—Mt. Bethel, French Broad Association
- August 10—Marshall, French Broad Association
- August 11—Shoal Hill, French Broad Association
- August 12—Walnut, French Broad Association
- August 14—Red Hill, French Broad Association (11:00 A. M.)
- August 14—Terry's Fork, Mount Mitchell Association
- August 15—Green Mountain, Mount Mitchell Association
- August 16—Mine Fork, Mount Mitchell Association
- August 17—South Bend, Mount Mitchell Association
- August 18—Covey Rock, Toe River Association
- August 19—Pensacola, Jack's Creek Association
- August 21—Young's Chapel, Jack's Creek Association (11:00 A. M.)
- August 21—Bowditch, Mount Mitchell Association

Appreciation Night Church Organist

Instead of the regularly scheduled class for July, the Steadfast Class of Mount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, surprised Mrs. Esther Stephens, the church organist. Mrs. Mary Ke, class president, declared the meeting as "Appreciation Night" in honor of Mrs. Stephens.

Mrs. Stephens has rendered efficient service faithfully for seven years at Fairmount Park Church. Approximately 40 persons were present for the occasion.

Y.P.A. Honors Winner Of Essay Contest

At the recent Y.P.A. meeting of Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, about 35 members and visitors honored their vice-president, Miss Jackie Whitehurst. The president, Miss Joyce Maxwell, began the program by going to Jackie with an album and announcing to her, "This is your life." The events began in infancy and went through teen-age years. Those persons Joyce introduced throughout the affair included both friends and relatives. The surprise fete given in Jackie's honor marked the temporary ending of her Y.P.A. duties.

Miss Whitehurst recently won first place in the national Y.P.A. essay contest. In September she plans to enter nurses' training in Petersburg, Virginia.

Mount Zion Church Host to S. S. Convention

The Fifth Eastern District Sunday School Convention will convene with the Mount Zion Church at Cash Corner, North Carolina, on Sunday, July 31, 1960.

The theme will be "Seeds of National Decay" (Hosca 10:12).

Following is the scheduled program:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Prayer, Mr. Walter R. Sandlin, President
- Hymn 391, "He Keeps Me Singing"
- Welcome Address, Mr. William Barnes, Superintendent, Host Sunday School
- Response and Devotions, Mr. Herman L. Ireland, Vice-President
- 10:15—Business Period
- 10:45—Program, Children Host Sunday School
- 11:00—Sunday School Lesson, Mr. William Barnes, Teacher

- 11:20—Offering
- Offertory, Rev. Elmo Harper, Pastor, Bethel Church
- 11:30—Special Music, Mount Zion Church Choir
- 11:40—Worship Message, Rev. Elbert E. Edwards, Pastor
- 12:00—Lunch and Fellowship
- Afternoon Session
- 1:00—Devotions, Rev. Robert Rollins
- 1:15—Business Period
- 1:30—Program
- 1:45—Special Music, Evangels' Trio, Prescott Quartet, Wintergreen Quartet, Morris Sisters' Trio
- 2:45—Visitors Recognized
- 3:00—Benediction

Fourth Union Auxiliary Convention Of N. C. Central Conference

The Saratoga, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church will be host to the Fourth Union Auxiliary Convention of the Central Conference on Sunday, July 31, 1960. The following program has been planned:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Sunday School
- 11:00—Devotions, Mrs. Joyce P. Beaman
- 11:10—Welcome, Rev. Fred Powers
- Response, Mrs. Robert Oakley
- 11:20—Recognition of Ministers and Delegates
- 11:25—Offering for Children's Home
- Special Music, Male Chorus of Free Union Church
- 11:30—Sermon, Rev. C. L. Patrick
- Alternate, Rev. N. D. Beaman
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:15—Devotions, A. C. Jackson
- 1:25—Special Music, Daniel's Chapel Church
- 1:30—Business
- 2:00—Program, Local Church
- 2:30—Adjournment

Albemarle District Meetings At Sound Side Church

The Albemarle district meetings will be held at Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church of Columbia, North Carolina. The following programs have been scheduled:

ALBEMARLE UNION MEETING

Saturday, July 30

Herbert Bryan, Moderator

Morning Session

- 10:00—Devotions, Willard Cohoon
 - 10:10—Welcome Address, Local Pastor
 - Response
 - 10:15—Moderator's Address
 - 10:20—Minutes of Last Union
 - Roll Call of Ministers and Churches
 - Greetings
 - Announcements
- (Continued on Page 20)

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

"We would like to acknowledge your grateful appreciation the kind expression of sympathy by our friends and loved ones during our recent bereavement. We cannot express how much they meant to us."—The Family of the Rev. W. B. Niles.

RECOMMENDATION

"M. E. Cox of Bath, North Carolina has been licensed to preach the gospel of the Free Will Baptist denomination by the Shilo Free Will Baptist Church, Pinetop, North Carolina. He went before the Albemarle Conference Ordination Commission on May 25, 1960, and was unanimously approved for license. Mr. Cox was previously a licensed minister in the Southern Baptist church but states that he could go along with the doctrine of eternal security and felt it better to get out. Mr. Cox has experience as an evangelist and supply pastor, has college training, and is a good speaker. He is married and has two children and a lovely companion. He can be contacted by writing to him at Bath, North Carolina.

"I can recommend him to any church desiring evangelistic work or as a supply pastor."—Rev. A. B. Bryan, Chairman, Ordination Board of the Albemarle Conference.

The Witnessing Plumber

Howard E. Butt Jr., a millionaire grocer, said, "God doesn't issue a special call to pastors and leave everyone else uncalled. Every Christian should think of himself as having a divine call for making Christ known by witnessing a full-time career."

L. C. Hester of Whitehours, Texas, a plumber. He packs New Testaments with his tools. He is known as "the witnessing plumber." Said a minister, "That witnessing plumber has won hundreds of Christians since he became a Christian. Many have listened to a working man who will not listen to a preacher, you know."—Gospel Herald

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"

Sung above a coffin lid;
Underneath all restfully,
All life's joys and sorrow hid.
Never more a storm-tossed soul,
Never more from wind and tide,
Never more from billows roll
Wilt thou ever need to hide.
Could the sightless sunken eyes,
Closed beneath the soft white hair;
Could the mute and stiffened lips
Move again in pleading prayer,
Still, aye still, the words would be—
"Let me hide myself in Thee."

—Author Unknown.

And then I like to make my daily prayer
the words of another beautiful hymn's refrain:

"O then to the Rock let me fly,
To the Rock that is higher than I;
O then to the Rock let me fly,
To the Rock that is higher than I!"

"From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed:
lead me to the rock that is higher than I.
For thou hast been a shelter for me, and a strong tower from the enemy" (Psalm 61:2, 3).

New Free Will Baptist Mission

by Rev. J. Albert Harris

This is announcing that we have begun, since the first of this year, a mission in Jacksonville, North Carolina, which we call the Geiger Mission of the Original Free Will Baptists, located on Highway 17 South (across the highway from the walk-in gate at Camp Geiger). In this community there are some wonderful Christians, but there are also many unchurched, carefree and complacent people too. I trust the readers can observe from the foregoing statement the obstacles which exist. My prayers are that this article will challenge our co-laborers and friends in Christ Jesus to please come to our rescue. Souls are existing and drifting until someone will reach them.

Mrs. E. D. Batten has loaned us a building and even given material and some labor in remodeling it for our use. I am taking this opportunity to plead for help either in materials needed, donations or prayers for same. If you or your church have anything usable that we can have and are within a reasonable distance that we can drive and pick the article up, please notify me at once. The furniture we are using is borrowed for a very short time. We need everything for church furnishings, such as chairs (folding or otherwise), hymn books, literature and piano. Perhaps if you do not have anything to give in furnishings, you may have some of God's tithes you can share with

(Continued on Page 20)

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

ROCK OF AGES

"Because I will publish the name of the LORD: ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he" (Deuteronomy 32:3, 4).

Some years ago the following verses appeared in Public Opinion, London. They have in them the power to gently touch every heart and to soothe and encourage the weary. Here is but one of the many forms of the beautiful story of a life that is lived according to faith in God:

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"

Thoughtlessly the maiden sung;
Fell the words unconsciously
From the girlish, guileless tongue;
Sung as little children sing;
Sung as sing the birds in June;
Fell the words as light leaves down
On the current of the tune—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"

Felt her soul no need to hide,
Sweet the song as song could be,
And she had no thought beside;
All the words unheedingly
Fell from lips untouched by care,
Dreamed not then that each might be
On some other lips a prayer—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"

'Twas a woman sung them now:
Sung them slow and wearily—
Wan hand on her aching brow.
Rode the song as storm-tossed bird
Beats with weary wing the air;
Every note with sorrow stirred,
Every syllable a prayer—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"

Lips grown aged sung the hymn
Trustingly and tenderly;
Voice grown weak and eyes grown dim—
"Let me hide myself in Thee."
Trembling though the voice and low,
Ran the sweet strain peacefully,
Like a river in its flow;
Sung as only they can sing
Who life's thorny paths have pressed;
Sung as only they can sing
Who behold the promised rest—

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

God Loves His Erring Children

(Lesson for August 7)

Lesson: Hosea II:1-9.

Golden Text: I John 3:1.

INTRODUCTION

Perhaps no other discussion would be so appropriate as an introduction to this lesson than a discussion on the Memory Verse which reminds us that God's loving love draws us back to Him. God's final act toward man, in showing His infinite love, is that He calls us His children. In other words, He has adopted us as His family.

God is love. This truth is very vividly set forth in such passages as John 3:16 which is often referred to as the golden text of the Bible. There are other passages such as Romans 8:28, 29, which teach the greatness of God's love for even His wayward children. Let us remember, however, that it is not thus approving of one's sins or shortcomings, for He still hates sin; but He loves the soul of the sinner.

Nothing more clearly reveals the merciful character of Israel than comparison with His continuing mercy unto them, and nothing shows more vividly and tellingly the loveless heart of the nation than God's punishment of his long-suffering and patient love toward them. God's love and mercy make their wickedness all the more flagrant, ungrateful, and contemptuous of all past present blessings" (Earl Douglass).—Bible Student (F.W.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

1. God always expresses His love for us (Vs. 1).

2. Man shows his indifference for God by turning to idols (Vs. 2).

3. God's love is similar to that of a father and mother for their child (Vs. 4).

4. When man is judged by God, it is because they refuse to return to Him (Vs. 5).

5. How thankful we should be that God loves us and not man (Vs. 9).

—The Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Out of the terrible experience of the marriage of Hosca and Gomer was born the conviction that Jehovah could be depended upon to forgive to the uttermost.

2. The invasion of pagan prosperity resulted in a breakdown of moral standards throughout the land of Israel. They were persuaded that their neighbors enjoyed a superior sort of life, and began to ask the question, Does it pay to be true to the will of God?

3. "He improved his pillars" refers to the great building program staged by the Hebrews during the lifetime of Hosca. Yet there was no true repentance and obedience. Our modern Christendom is enlarging her edifices as never before, but it is hard to recognize a spirit of revival among her constituency.

4. When men lose God, they lose their souls. The Hebrews were defeated, not when the armies were overcome on the battlefield but when the people forsook their spiritual hopes and confidences.

5. True religion does not need to be supported, but rather it supports the faithful. Christians need not defend Christ—only live in His will—for He has power to defend Himself and us.

6. God is forever seeking man—not man always seeking God. Hosea preached to Israel the good news of a divine love that never gives up in its search for sinful men.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

7. Hosea reveals the love of God as much as any other Old Testament writer. God is seen in this lesson as loving Israel, even though having been rejected by them many, many times. God's great love causes His judgments to be tempered by mercy.

As God dealt with His people in the days of Hosea, so He deals with them today. We haven't done anything to merit the love of God, but He loves us just the same. We have sinned and backslidden, yet God's love has been long-suffering toward us.

Bent on backsliding: The children of Israel aren't the only ones who are bent on backsliding. Most of us today practice backsliding as much as Israel did. When our love for God begins to diminish, we are backsliding. When the church means nothing to us and we are no longer faithful to its services, we are backsliding. To be in a backslidden condition means you are drifting from God. When in this state, one needs to seek God's face and return to Him. There might be those in your class that have backslidden—this would be an opportune time to call them back to God.—The Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

8. A gentleman of some wealth and high social position was taken ill. Being much troubled about the little love he had found in his heart for God, he complained bitterly to one of his brethren. This is how he was answered:

"When I leave you I shall go to my home, and the first thing I expect to do is to call my baby. I expect to place her on my knee and look down into her sweet eyes and listen to her charming prattle; and, tired as I am, her presence will rest me, for I love that child with unutterable tenderness. But the fact is, she loves me little.

"If my heart were breaking, it would not disturb her sleep. If my body were racked with excruciating pain it would not interrupt her play. If I were dead, she would be amused in watching my pale face and closed eyes. If any friends came to remove the corpse to the place of burial, she would probably clap her hands in glee, and in two or three days totally forget her father.

"Besides this, she has never brought me a penny, but has been a constant expense on my hands ever since she was born. Yet, though I am not rich, there is not money enough in the world to buy my baby. How is it? Does she love me or do I love her? Do I withhold my love until I know she loves me? Am I waiting for her to do something worthy of my love before extending it to her?"

"Oh, I see it!" said the sick man, while the tears ran down his cheeks, "I see it clearly. It is not my love to God, but God's love to me I should be thinking about. And I do love Him now as I never loved Him before."

We think of our littleness when we should remember our Father's greatness. We bewail our weak love, when we should be grateful for our Father's great love. "Herein is love, not that we love God, but that He loved us."—Selected.

Dwell Deep

The shining face of Moses was not got by a hurried call at heaven's gate; it was obtained by dwelling in the Lord's presence for 40 days. The skill of David in slinging stones was not obtained when he met Goliath, it was got by practice in the wilderness. The blessing of Pentecost came after the tarrying in prayer. If we would know the Spirit's socialibility we must tarry in His presence.—F. E. Marsh.

NEWS NOTES

(Continued from Page 17)

- 11:15—Congregational Singing and Worship
- Offering
- Special Music, Host Church
- 11:30—Union Message, Rev. Johnnie Eason
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions
- 1:15—Business Period
- Report of Treasurer
- Announcement of Next Union
- 2:15—Closing Hymn and Benediction

ALBEMARLE LEAGUE UNION

Saturday Evening, July 30

Dennis Swain, President

- 8:00—Devotions, Bibb Swain
- 8:10—President's Message
- 8:15—Appointment of Digest Committee
- Roll Call of Leagues
- Minutes of Last Session
- Recognition of Ministers
- Announcements
- 8:30—Congregational Singing
- Special Music, Host League
- 8:45—Business Period
- Report of Committees
- Awarding of Banner
- Treasurer's Report
- 9:00—The League Program
- Bible Drill
- 9:30—Closing Hymn and Adjournment

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Sunday, July 31

William Gaylord, President

Morning Session

- 10:00—Devotions
- 10:05—Welcome Address, Local Sunday School Supt.
- Response
- 10:10—President's Message
- 10:15—Sunday School Lesson, Mrs. Morris Vanhorn
- 10:40—Enrolling Ministers
- Reading of Minutes of Last Convention
- Sunday School Reports
- Announcements
- Congregational Singing and Worship
- Offering
- Special Music, Host Church
- 11:30—Message, Rev. A. B. Bryan
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Afternoon Message, Rev. L. A. Ambrose
- 1:30—Business Period
- Treasurer's Report
- Announcement of Next Convention
- 2:30—Adjournment

Rock Spring Church Host To Western S. S. Convention

The Sunday School Convention of the Second Western District of North Carolina will convene with Rock Spring Church, Nash County, Sunday, July 31, 1960. The program is as follows:

Scripture, Romans 12

Song for Year, "Bring Them In"

Theme for Year, "Working Together"

Theme for Third Quarter, "The Teacher and His Relationship to the Sunday School"

Morning Session

- 9:45—Song Service, Mr. Russell Lamm
- 9:50—Devotions, Miss Jean Vick
- 10:05—Welcome, Mrs. Bissette
- Response, Miss Elizabeth Lamm
- 10:10—Business Session, Mr. Lester Duncan
- 10:20—Sunday School, Superintendent of Rock Spring
- 11:00—Intermission
- 11:10—Morning Worship
- Morning Message, The Reverend Paul Lee
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Song Service, Mr. Russell Lamm
- 1:05—Devotions, Mr. Jimmy Temple
- 1:20—Panel Discussion:
"The Teacher and the Sunday School"
Pastor: Paul Lee
Superintendent: James Medlin
Teacher: Mrs. Armory Strickland
Pupil: Judy Fay Bissette
- 1:35—Special Music
- 1:40—Local Program
- 2:00—Final Business
- Reading of Reports
- Field Secretary's Report
- Youth Rally Report
- Awarding of Banner and Trophy
- 3:00—Adjournment

N. C. State Convention To Meet September 14, 15

The North Carolina State Convention of

Free Will Baptists will meet September 15 at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church located near Ayden, North Carolina. The president of the convention, the Rev. Bruce Barrow, urges all Free Will Baptist churches in North Carolina to be represented at this meeting. Mr. Barrow, pastor of the Elm Grove Church, will also be acting as host pastor for the convention.

Additional information concerning the convention will appear in later issues of "The Free Will Baptist."

New Free Will Baptist Mission

(Continued from Page 18)

us. (Remember anything given to the cause can be reported on your personal income tax this year.)

We are presently engaged in a revival of our daily vacation Bible school. Our attendance thus far has reached twenty-five. We thank the Lord God for this. We have been conducting Sunday school and worship services on Sunday afternoons. We have had wonderful cooperation with our pastor of Jacksonville Church, the Rev. Leroy C. and a few people of the church. It is believed that soon we will begin our services on the usual Sunday schedule.

The Rev. Quillie Hansley from Jacksonville, Florida, is our visiting guest this week and our teachers and helpers from the Jacksonville Church and Mr. and Mrs. W. Glende and Mrs. Oliver. We are definitely praying for increased interest. The cause is white and promised interest is great, laborers are few. Please remember us in this endeavor.

Please do not let this drop. We need the backing of all Free Will Baptist prayer, gifts and boosting the need. Last year our city of Jacksonville was reported being the fastest growing city in North Carolina. Let us pool our efforts in accommodations for our Free Will Baptists who are and are coming to Jacksonville. This is our first plea for help. We will ask for the assistance of our missions boards in the Eastern Conference and the state as time permits. I must say that I know personally at least three other places where work should be established. Pray for our efforts support. All correspondence and donations should be sent to the Rev. J. Albert H. Pastor-Director, 19 White Oak Drive, Jacksonville, North Carolina.

DS /

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, August 3, 1960

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
AUG 4 1960

I Know Who Holds Tomorrow

I don't know about tomorrow,
I just live from day to day.
I don't borrow from its sunshine,
For its skies may turn to gray.
I don't worry o'er the future,
For I know what Jesus said—
And today I'll walk beside Him,
For He knows what is ahead.

I don't know about tomorrow,
It may bring me poverty;
But the One who feeds the sparrow,
Is the One who stands by me.
And the path that be my portion,
May be through the flame or flood—
But His presence goes before me,
And I'm covered with His blood.

Many things about tomorrow
I don't seem to understand;
But I know Who holds tomorrow,
And I know Who holds my hand.

—Ira Stanphill.

One Question For Mr. Kennedy

By M. L. Sutton
Pastor, Trinity Free Will Baptist Church
Fort Worth, Texas

SENATOR Jack Kennedy has been very cocky in saying, "If any pope would try to influence me as president of the United States, I will tell him that it is highly improper." Well, that doesn't mean anything. A man may tell those who are throwing him out of his hotel that it is highly improper, but will that stop them from throwing him out? Several years ago several court officers carried a man named Kennedy out of his office and bodily put him on the street. He thought that was highly improper, and told them so, but he was thrown out just the same.

The one question we would like to ask Kennedy is one that involves something which he dreads as much as he dreads death. Our question is, "What would you do if the pope threatened you with excommunication if you did not yield to his influence?" This is what all Protestant America is waiting to hear.

We remember the history of the emperor Henry IV. How he laid aside all belongings to royalty and, barefooted, stood before the gate of the castle at Canossa in northern Italy for three days in order to receive absolution, or forgiveness, from Pope Gregory whom he had displeased. This was in January, 1077, Senator. What would you do in 1961-64 if you are President and the pope threatened you with excommunication. Remember, the Catholic church teaches that it never changes.

Excommunication is the most formidable weapon the pope has. With the threat of excommunication he may, and he has been known to, bring down an entire nation. Excommunication means exclusion from all the sacraments of the Roman church. Three of which would be very important to Senator Kennedy: namely, the Eucharist, penance and extreme unction.

To the average Protestant, these terms mean little or nothing because he has never been taught their meaning; but to the Roman Catholic they are full of meaning. For instance, he believes that confession to a priest at regular intervals is very necessary to his salvation. He does not believe what we Free Will Baptists that ". . . there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Timothy 2:5). He believes that his priest is his mediator between himself and God who has the authority to hear his confession, intercede with heaven for him, and grant him absolution, or forgiveness for his confessed sins. He believes that without confession, which must be before penance, he cannot receive forgiveness. In excommunication, he is deprived of confession which in effect means he is cut off from salvation. Again we ask, "What would you do, Mr. Kennedy, if you were President and should be faced with excommunication or accede to the demands of the pope?"

The Eucharist is very essential to spiritual life for the Romanist. Again he does not believe like we Free Will Baptists that the bread and wine in the Lord's Supper are representative of the broken body and spilled blood of our Lord. Instead, he believes that his priest has the power to mysteriously and miraculously change the wafer he receives, as he kneels at the communion rail, into the actual body and blood of Christ, so that instead of receiving just a wafer of bread he is taking into his body the real body and blood of Christ. This he believes to be very essential to salvation. Excommunication excludes him from the privilege of the Eucharist; deprives him of the spiritual strength he needs; and, leaves him in the hands of Satan so that if he should die without a reconciliation with the church he would be eternally lost. In view of this teaching we ask again, "What would you do, Mr. Kennedy, if you were faced with the alternative of obeying the pope in matters of government or being excommunicated?"

We must also consider the doctrine of Extreme Unction as it relates to Mr. Kennedy, or any other Roman Catholic. This is the last rite of the Romish church. It is administered to those who are dying, and as the word, unction, signifies it is the last anointing of the church administered through the hands of a priest. It assures the dying that his sins are all forgiven and that after a short stay in purgatory to completely purge his soul he will be lifted into heaven into the company of the saints and sanctified. Those who die excommunicated are excluded from this last rite, according to the thinking of the Roman Catholic, and because of this exclusion he is lost forever. Remember, if those who have been excommunicated are ever absolved and restored to the favor of the church they must confess that they have sinned against God and His Church then do penance as prescribed by the church. This of course includes a complete turn around in thinking and conduct. We would like to ask Mr. Kennedy what he would do if he were excommunicated because he had gone against the commands of the pope. Would he turn and do penance if he were President of the United States, or would he trust in the God of our fathers and defy the anathemas of the pope?

We hear it said today that no man should be barred from the Presidency of the United States because of his religion. Well, Communism is recognized all over the world as a religion. It is pledged to overthrow all other religions. Do we want a Communist in the White House? Mohammedanism is one of the strongest religions in the world, and like Communism is pledged to destroy every other religion, especially the Christian religion. Should we elect a Mohammedan to the Presidency? Roman Catholicism is committed just as much as those mentioned to the destruction, not only of Protestantism, but every other religion. So again we ask Mr. Kennedy from Massachusetts, "Even if you did tell the pope his interference into American affairs is highly improper, would you stand up and defy him if you were faced with excommunication?"

Yes, Mr. Kennedy, unless, and until, you can assure the people of the United States that you will not accede to the demands of the pope in matters of government, you have no right to ask them to elect you to the Presidency. What you have said about telling the pope that his interference in the affairs of our government is highly improper is not enough. Senator, we want to hear you spell it out so that pope, cardinal, bishop and priest, along with every Protestant, and even the atheist and the infidel, will not misunderstand you. Until you do, you may be assured that every Christian in America who values his Christian freedom won by the prayers, toil, sweat and blood of our people through the years, and by the grace of God, will use his influence and his vote against you.

The Crisis Of Today

by Tommy Godley
Student Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville 5, Tennessee

PROTESTANTS are now facing the greatest crisis that they have ever faced before. Most Christians consider today as being the most crucial hour in history. With the rise of Catholicism, Communism and cults, we need to claim the words of the apostle, Paul, as recorded in Galatians 5:1, "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." These words can apply to us today. However, we are primarily concerned with the possibility of a Catholic president. All evidence points toward a Catholic becoming president of the United States. I have talked with several people on this subject. Some have told me that a man's religion did not matter, but it does matter. Not only is the Catholic church a religious group that influences its members, but where the Roman Catholic church is in control of a country, it also influences the government of that country.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH PERSECUTES

When Gregory became Bishop of Rome in 590 A. D., he initiated a long line of popes. This was the beginning of the Dark Ages. Several religious groups remained true to God in spite of the persecution by the Catholic church. The Albigenses were a Christian group who met in secret apart from the Catholic church. They lived in southern France. Count Toulouse ruled this province. The Albigenses were industrious workers. The pope proclaimed a crusade against these people in 1209 which lasted for twenty years. Because of the power of the Catholic church, the Albigenses lost the crusade, but their contribution made a great impact on the Reformation. The Waldenses were another group who were persecuted. They called themselves Brethren. They were well established in the Scriptures and were free from the idolatry and other evils that prevailed in the Catholic church. Pope Innocent III said these words concerning the Waldenses, "Their educated laymen undertook the work of teachers and preachers; the Waldenses would only listen to a man who had God in him." In 1380, Pope Clement VII branded these people as heretics. He had two hundred and thirty burned, took their possessions, and scattered them throughout Europe. There were several more groups who remained true to God during the Dark Age—better known as days of persecution.

THE REFORMATION AND CATHOLICS

The Reformation served as a great threat to the Catholic church. The Catholic church realized that it must do something to counteract the Reformation. One thing the Catholic church has majored on was ignorance. The Reformation awoke the Catholic church to the need of education. The Catholics knew that they had to promote education. With the promotion of education in the mind of the Catholic church, the Society of Jesus, better known as the Jesuits, was founded. The Society of Jesus was founded by Ignatius Loyola of Spain. The purpose of this organization was to oppose Protestantism. We can see why Protestants are persecuted in Spain even today. The Jesuits prevented Protestantism from spreading into Spain. Three things with which the Jesuits counteracted Protestantism were: Inquisition, missions and education. By inquisition we mean physical torture was instituted by the Catholic church to a person who denied that salvation was outside the Catholic church. Catholic missionaries, who were Jesuits, were sent out to all parts of the world to prevent Protestantism from sweeping the entire world. One of Ignatius Loyola's first companions was Francis Xavier. He was sent to Japan where he founded a society there. Xavier said these words, "Give me the children until they are seven years old and anyone may take them afterward." During the two and a half years that Xavier labored in Japan, he founded more than two hundred churches and baptized one hundred and fifty thousand people. The Jesuits founded schools by which they were able to channel many of the Protestant children into the Catholic church.

There was a Free Will Baptist family in a certain state who sent their daughter to a Catholic school. As a result of sending their daughter to that school, she left the Free Will Baptist church and became a devout Catholic. She is head of a Catholic school today. She believes the only place for salvation is in the Catholic church. What a pity! My friends, the Catholic church is stealing many of our young people today through their colleges. Catholics boast of their colleges and universities throughout the world, but the truth of the matter is this—where the Catholic church has control of a country, the vast majority of the people are kept in complete ignorance. We have seen that the Catholic church persecutes and we have also seen how the Catholic church operates.

A PRESENT-DAY LOOK

We have seen that a Catholic has a great possibility of becoming president of the United States. However, we as Protestants should be very much concerned about it. A Catholic president would affect us. The leading candidate for the Democratic primary was scheduled to speak to a joint meeting of Protestants, Jews and Catholics. The Catholic faith had a speaker to represent its faith. The Protestant speaker was present and the Jewish speaker was present, but the Catholic speaker did not come. The reason for his failure to come was this—he had orders from Catholic authorities not to speak at a joint meeting with Protestants and Jews.

The Catholic church has always been opposed to Protestants and will always be. One thing to keep in mind is that the Catholic church will do anything to achieve its goal. We, as Protestants, must stand in our Christian liberty (Galatians 5:1) and believe that God wants His children to stand up for their convictions during the days of crisis.

Let us look at an event that happened in the state of California in the 1958 elections: A Roman Catholic attorney general was the Democratic nominee for the governorship of that state. He was elected because many Christians were Democrats first and Christians second. What a shame! Christian people to bear! During the time this man was attorney general, he made a ruling to forbid the reading of the Bible or prayer in a school in California. The present Governor of California has had a great influence on the people of California. The state of California has outlawed the name of God being published in any state text-book. We can see that it does make a difference in a man's religion.

We, as Protestants, must face reality. The stage has been set and the curtain is fixing to be drawn. We can prevent our country from having a Catholic President by voting Christian first and party second. I am asking every child of God to make this a personal matter of prayer and ask God for divine guidance concerning what he ought to do. May we face the crisis of today with the smile of God's approval on our lives. We must stand fast in our Christian liberty, or else we will be brought under the bondage of Catholicism.

YOU And Christian Literature

by Robert Walker
Editor, Christian Life Magazine

POPULAR topic of conversation in evangelical Christian circles today is Christian literature. This is good and proper, but talking is not enough.

I'd like to ask, "What are you doing about it?"

So vast is the subject of Christian literature and so vital has it become that it affects all walks of life. Pastor, missionary, Christian worker, layman—no matter who we are, we are all involved. In missionary circles, it is providing fresh incentive for the thrust of the gospel in our day. In desperate haste, mission boards are setting up literature committees, launching literature studies.

On the field, low cost, popularly slanted magazines are being started by missionaries to reach the man of the street. On their pages, the gospel is plainly presented, along with practical suggestions on health, baby care, and brightly written news and feature material. Our own publication through its missionary adjunct, Christian Life Missions, had a part in helping to finance in the last three years eleven such magazines from Africa to Hong Kong.

At home, far-sighted churches and church organizations are picking up the torch. Some are writing missionary literature into their budgets. Others are seeing that the potential of Christian literature is presented at their missionary conferences and conventions.

Such emphasis is paying out in many ways. A California church the other day, sent $1500 to Japan to finance the publication of the first evangelical Bible commentary in the Japanese language.

A few Christian colleges, Bible institutes and seminaries are recognizing the need for providing courses on subjects relating to Christian literature. Although their numbers are still small, more are seeing the need each year.

One well-known college has set up a major in Christian literature. It has been given the privilege to teach Christian journalism for the past five years in a concentrated missionary literature program during the summer term at Moody Bible Institute. Several Bible institutes are seriously considering opening classes on various phases of Christian journalism.

The Christian literature snowball process started several years ago on the mission field where missionaries suddenly discovered that a rising tide of nationalism was curtailing their activities.

Previously, they had found that natives were willing to put up with their poor efforts at the language or read hastily translated English books on the gospel, in order to hear what the foreigner had to say. Now they had discovered that the proud national wants to read or hear his language in the true idiom of his own people. He is no longer interested in the white man's culture; he wants his own. Moreover, in some areas the missionaries' ability to travel the areas where the gospel had not been preached is limited by government restrictions. Here, literature often proves to be the only means by which the message of Christ can be proclaimed.

At the same time, Christians at home have come to the staggering realization of the peril of obnoxious literature in their homes and churches. Suddenly engulfed by the miasma of smutty, obscene and objectional literature that floods the newsstands, bookstores and mails, some have struck out blindly. Still others, with the help of churches and civic organizations, have seen fruit for their labors.

In a few cities, vigilant committees have been able to stem the tide. But often for every newsstand that is cleaned up or pornographic publisher put out of business, a dozen spring up in their places.

Meanwhile, in some homes and churches, determined efforts have been made to replace objectional literature with Christian books and magazines.

All of this is encouraging, but all too often the individual Christian hides behind the cloud of dust stirred up by such activity. A few Christian leaders here and there have been roused into action. The subject is so vast that to successfully employ the tremendous potential of Christian literature today complete mobilization of the church of Jesus Christ must be accomplished.

This means that each individual Christian has a responsibility. Here is what you can do about it:

First, begin at home and with the Word of God.

See to it that you have regular daily personal devotions and study the Word of God. See that your family likewise has family devotions centered on the Word of God with the use of other Christian literature.

Subscribe to one or more Christian magazines for yourself and your family. Begin a regular program of building a Christian library for yourself and your family. (Visit your local Christian bookstore for help in the latter.)

Second, see that your church has a program to advance the cause of Christian literature.

This means a well-staffed and supplied Christian library. It also means emphases on Christian reading from the pulpit and in the Sunday school. Here again, the balanced program includes Christian magazines and the basic old time Christian books as well as current late titles.

Third, see that the newspapers serving your community carry news and feature articles on the activities of the evangelical churches—others as well as your own. This means the appointment of a publicity chairman in your church who knows how to write and understands how to prepare material for the press. If other churches do not have qualified persons, you or someone else who has real vision for this ministry can soon make yourself so invaluable to the local newspaper that you may find yourself the religious correspondent or religious editor for the paper. If you have the desire, but not the knowledge or experience for such a task, you will find books available in the library on journalism. Also, at least one correspondence course in Christian journalism is available. (The Christian Writers Institute, 33 South Wacker Drive, Chicago 6, Ill.)

(continued on page sixteen)

NEWS NOTES

Second Session of Georgia Youth Camp

The second session of the Georgia State Youth Camp will be held at the Mt. Bethel Camp Grounds August 7-12, 1960. The Rev. Chester A. Huckaby will serve as director of the session. Instructors will be Miss Fleta Mercer, Miss Lavada Huckaby and the Rev. James Pelt. Those attending will meet at the camp grounds by 5:30 p. m. August 7, with their Bible, linens, several changes of clothes and prepare to stay until Friday noon. There will be services on Sunday evening, August 7.

The fee for the week will be $7.00 per person, including insurance. Those attending notify the Rev. C. J. Harvey, 664 Society Avenue, Albany, Georgia.

Successful Bible School and Revival at Lovewood Church

A very successful Bible school and revival was conducted at Lovewood Free Will Baptist Church near Cottondale, Florida, July 10 through July 15. The enrollment for the school was 80, with a daily average of 64. There were nine decisions for Christ during the revival.

The Rev. Alvin Howell is pastor of the church, and the Rev. Chester A. Huckaby was the evangelist.

Free Will Baptist Church Organized in Alabama

A Free Will Baptist church was organized in Graysville, Alabama, July 3, 1960, with 18 members. The organization followed a two-weeks revival conducted by the Rev. W. H. Ryland and the Rev. J. J. Staab, both of Birmingham, Alabama. A big tent was obtained from the State Home Mission Board to hold the meeting in and it will remain there to be used as a church while a building is being erected. A good number of young people, as well as elderly people, were converted in the revival, and the first Sunday school was held July 10, with 28 enrolled.

Graysville is located about ten miles west of Birmingham. A beautiful church lot, 200 by 200 feet, located on 7th Street S.W., has been donated by a businesswoman, Mrs. Nichols.

At the end of the second week, the church had in the treasury $1,050 and it was used as a starter on a building. The building committee had a ground breaking for the new building on July 11, and the permits and blueprints were officially cleared with the city for the building. The auditorium will be completed first so the church will have a place to hold its meetings while the other parts are under construction. When the brick structure is completed, the estimated cost will be $35,000. The building is well under construction and expects to have the top on by August 10.

The big tent will be pitched in Arab, Alabama, on August 21, for a two-weeks revival with the Rev. A. J. Lambert of Florence, Alabama, as the evangelist, assisted by the Revs. Ryland and Staab. Arab was one of the cities named for a new church to be organized in 1960. A city permit and selection of location of the tent are already obtained, and advertising materials have already gone to press. Your prayers are requested for the work at Arab with hopes of a church being organized.

The State Home Mission Board of Alabama makes this plea: "Other fields are open and making the Macedonia call. The State Home Mission Board can only act in these great calls as our churches make it possible. The special gifts for new churches have been few and small. We urge you to have a special offering and send it to Mrs. Lorene Ryland, 235 Branch Street, Cordova, Alabama. More churches will be organized and set up when we rally to this great cause."

Warden's Grove Revival and Homecoming

The Warden's Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Lowlands, North Carolina, will begin revival services on August 15-21. Services will begin each evening at 7:45. The pastor, the Rev. W. S. Burns, will be the speaker.

In addition to the revival, the church will observe its annual Homecoming Service on August 21. The afternoon service will consist of the dedication of the new Sunday school rooms and other general improvements. All friends, former members and former pastors are invited to attend this service.

Mr. Burns announces that he has resigned as pastor of the church and that the Rev. T. C. Smith of Sea Level is the newly elected pastor.

The Rev. Jack Paramore, Free Will Baptist evangelist, will conduct a Crusade for Christ in Kinston, North Carolina, August 7-27, under a big tent located on the corner of West Vernon Avenue and Herdecree Road. Weekly services will begin each evening at 7:45, and Sunday's service will be held at 3:00 p. m. only.

The crusade will be under the auspices of Free Will Baptist churches in Perquimans, Greene and Lenoir Counties, on a regional basis, and is a new approach to the problem of reaching a larger number of people for Christ.

The Rev. Thomas E. Beaman Sr. is the director of the crusade; the Rev. Carr Alexander, assistant director; and the Rev. David Paramore, treasurer. Other pastors and laymen serve on important committees.

People everywhere are urged to pray for this crusade, and those who feel led to do so may mail contributions to help finance the crusade to the Rev. David Paramore, 121 N. Heritage Street, Kinston, N. C.

N. C. Alumni to Meet At Children's Home

The regular annual fellowship meeting of the North Carolina Chapter of the Alumni Association of Free Will Baptist Bible College will meet August 16, 1960, at Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex. The program will begin at 10:00 a. m. The Rev. Carroll Alexander of Kinston is president of the association. All alumni are urged to attend this meeting.

Ordaining Council of Western Conference Meets August 8

The Ordaining Council of the Western Conference of North Carolina will have its call meeting on Monday evening, August 8, 1960, at 7:30, with the Pine Level Free

l Baptist Church, Pine Level, North olina. All candidates for license or nation must have a written recommenon from their respective churches. All ases that are expired must be reinstated he consent of the local church of which candidate is a member.
ny person or church having any busithat you would like to discuss with the ining council is invited to be present his call meeting.

Grace Church to Observe Anniversary Program

The Grace Free Will Baptist Church,
Greenville, North Carolina, will observe its Fifth Anniversary Program August 3-6.
Different speaker will be on the program each evening. On Wednesday, August 3, the speaker will be Miss Mary Ellen Rice, who will speak on missions. On Thursday the speaker will be the Rev. Carroll Alexander, pastor of Faith Church, Kinston; on Friday the speaker will be the Rev. Owen
Coy, pastor of Grifton Church, Grifton;
and the speaker for Saturday will be the Rev.
Donald Riggs, pastor of our church in Greenville, Virginia.

The Anniversary Program itself will be held on Sunday, August 7, from 9:45-11:30.
There will be an Anniversary Picnic at 12:00
p. m. Featured on the Anniversary Program will be the singing Riggs family consisting of the Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Riggs and two of their daughters, pictured above.
The evening service will consist of a picnic service at 7:45 p. m. All persons living in the Greenville area are urged to attend one or all of these services. The pastor of Grace Church is the Rev. Rashie Kenney.

"I WANT IT"

A non-Christian Chinese, who never attended a Christian service, said to a missionary, "I want to hear about your religion.
I have never heard the words of it, but I have heard the laughter in your house, and the homes of other Christians. If you can tell me anything that makes people so joyous,
I want it!"—Walter B. Knight.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

The Vandivorts in New Hampshire

225 Main Street
Littleton, New Hampshire
June 27, 1960

Dear Brother Willis:

My wife and I arrived in Littleton one week ago and we feel like we are beginning to get the feel of the situation by now.
We had a good trip; the Lord was real good to us all the way. We were delayed a few days at Fredericktown, Missouri, because of Louise's operation. The operation consisted of removing a growth from her leg which was feared to be malignant. However, tests have shown that there is nothing serious.

After being here a few days, Louise and I feel that we can't overemphasize the depressed spiritual condition of the natives in this area. We were impressed with the services Sunday, and the spirit of welcome and appreciation which the people of the church have extended toward us. There were twenty-eight in Sunday school and a few more in the evening service. They have a good order of worship and good spirit of worship. We have learned that indeed this church is a real testimony for Christ in this city. I think people are just beginning to realize that this is not a fly-by-night affair and I feel we can place confidence in the believers in this church.
They surely need quantity, but the quality is good. There is evidence of good training and leadership on the part of Brother
Mack and his wife.

We have established quarters with Brother Mack and his wife. We have prayed a lot about this before we arrived and had come to the conclusion that if they expected us to stay with them we would.
Upon arrival, we found they had a big room
all ready for us with a good bed, curtains over the windows, etc. We have our own chairs, desk, etc., and our own half bath gives us a pretty good degree of privacy.
There is so much room in this building, and the Owens and the church being in debt, we think things are going to work out fine for us to help them with their expenses and debts. My wife is helping Mrs.
Owens quite a lot as she is expecting a child in about three months. In general, we are finding it easy to adjust to the situation.

Brother Mack has been introducing me to the community, and to those whom he has witnessed to. We feel the Lord is soon going to save some of the people we have witnessed to, for some of the people are beginning to realize that the eternal truth of the living God is being preached here.

We are praying that the Lord will lead us as we investigate the possibility of starting services in one of the neighboring towns. The church here needs a sister church, for our people can't have a very co-operative fellowship with the Pentecostal and Advent people. I think they have learned that it is best to try to have a Christian attitude toward them, but not try to have a co-operative fellowship.

Our hearts were encouraged today when we learned that two ladies from the town,
Twin Mountain, are planning to bring car loads of children to our Bible school. The only church in the town is Catholic.

My wife and I feel that the Lord has surely led us up here for a definite purpose and we are praying concerning the extent of our work. We feel the Lord will show us if we should stay here longer than the summer.

In His service,
Mark and Louise Vandivort

News of the Bondoukou Circle

Mission Protestante
B. P. 54, Bondoukou
Ivory Coast, West Africa
June 19, 1960

Dear Christian Friends,

Greetings from the Bondoukou Circle, in the name of our wonderful Saviour. We do very much appreciate each one of our friends that are remembering us in their prayers, their letters and their gifts toward our account. On the desk in front of me are over seventy letters—and although I try to answer each letter, they still continue to pile up. Please accept this letter as a personal letter to you, and I will continue to eat away at the pile until you
(continued on page sixteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Did God appear in the form of a man's body when He walked with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden?
—Jo Slad, Illinois.

Answer: We are not sure of this, but it is entirely possible that He thus appeared before our first parents. Their form was probably greatly altered by the entrance of sin into their lives. Being made in the image and after the likeness of God may have meant more than a great many of our present day theologians give that credit. If the serpent walked upright as some think and was reduced to his present method of locomotion, it is quite likely that, probably in ways inconceivable to sinful man, we are different in appearance to what they were in the state of innocence in which they were created and associated with God in Eden.

When God appeared to man in Old Testament times, He often appeared in a form and was referred to as the angel of the Lord. In most of the instances, He that appeared was none other than Jesus Christ in His pre-incarnate state. In one of these theophanies, or chistophanies as some theologians call them, the form of God was in the appearance of three men as Abraham beheld and recognized. "And he lift up his eyes and looked, and lo, three men stood by him: and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent door, and bowed himself toward the ground" (Genesis 18:2). Notice that in, "And they said unto him, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, in the tent" (Vs. 9), the plural number is used which indicates that all three persons speak. Some think that from this we are to recognize all three of the persons of the blessed trinity. There is no question in the mind of one who knows his Bible but that the presence of each person in the divine trinity is everywhere at the same time, and that each of the three persons, the Father, the Son and the Spirit, is present wherever the Bible mentions the presence of one of them; but it is also true that they each are present in His own present place of abode in a different way from what he is elsewhere. The Father and the Son in their present, local abode are to be found in heaven. The Father is on His throne. The Son is seated at the Father's right hand while the Spirit's local abode is here upon this earth in the hearts of believers. Therefore, whether or not the presence of three persons being manifested in forms appearing as men at Abraham's tent signifies in any particular way the triune God I do not know; however, it is true that all three of the divine persons, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, were there in a real sense of the word. They are all omnipresent.

Notice that in Genesis 18:22 these persons are referred to as being men, while at the same time Abraham is said to yet be before the Lord; "And the men turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the LORD" (18:22). Now notice that the remainder of Genesis 18 is taken up with the conversation between the Lord and Abraham, but that the next chapter opens by giving further account of what seems to be the other two of the party of three who dined with Abraham; and it appears that while the third person of the party was the Lord that enlightened Abraham of the coming disaster that concerned his nephew, Lot, the two angels, that is the other two men that dined with Abraham, went on to Sodom to negotiate with him so as to be sure he was saved from the immediate destruction of his adopted home town.

It is certain, however, that even though Christ assumed several different forms before He was incarnated, born as a babe in Bethlehem, He did not have His human body before. "Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me" (Hebrews 10:5).

"The angel of the Lord" or "the angel of the covenant" was never a created being but the same and only person that we find referred to again and again in the New Testament as "Jesus Christ the Lord." In Joshua 5:14, He is referred to as "captain of the host of the Lord"; in Daniel 3:25, "one like the Son of God"; and in "And he shewed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD; and Satan standing at his right hand to resist him" (Zeehariah 3:1), as "the angel of the Lord." Thus we may see Christ appearing in the Old Testament as several types of personal beings, but those are not only forms in which we behold Him. Peter tells us that the rock in the wilderness from which the Old Testament fathers drank was Christ. "And did all eat the same spiritual meat; And did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ" (1 Corinthians 10:3, 4).

We are also told that the Lord looked through the pillar of fire and the cloud when He protected Israel and destroyed Egypt. "And it came to pass, that in the morning watch the LORD looked upon the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians" (Exodus 14:24). "And the LORD went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night from before the people" (13:21, 22). The Lord appeared to Moses in a burning bush: "And the angel of the LORD appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed. . . . And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I" (Exodus 3:2, 4). Note that when Moses beheld the bush, he was in the presence of the angel of the Lord, but was also in the presence of the Lord who talked with him. When we acquire the new body which is to be like Christ's glorified body, we are to know all these things without any questioning until then. We are to read and appreciate what information God gives in His Holy Word and await further revelation at His coming. "I know we see through a glass, darkly; but then shall we see face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12); "And as we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly" (15:49). The beauty of the whole is that we shall bear the image of the heavenly being like He while in heaven. It is vitally necessary that we appear in the image of the heavenly just as He here appeared in the form of the natural. It is there that we come into a full possession of our possessions as heirs of God and joint heirs of Christ. This, of course, means that not only did Christ create all things for Himself, but also that just as real a sense He created everything for those who shall bear the image of Him even such as you and I.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

OTHERS MAY—YOU CANNOT

“Be not ye therefore like unto them: for our Father knoweth what things ye have asked of, before ye ask him” (Matthew 6:

A few days ago I chanced to receive and read a tract by the above title, and since I thought it is very good and has a message worthwhile for all of us, I am passing it on to you for this week’s devotional thinking. It seems to me that it has a message for all of us in these days of extreme egotism when most of us are striving for the acclaim of man with no regard for the glory of God.

“If God has called you to be really like Jesus in all your spirit, He will draw you into a life of crucifixion and humility, and will not allow you such demands of obedience, that you will not allow to follow other Christians, and in many ways He will seem to do other things which He will not allow you to do.

“Others can brag on themselves, and on their work, on their success, on their writings, but the Holy Spirit will not allow you to do such things, and if you begin it, He will lead you into some deep mortification that will make you despise yourself and all your good works.

“Others will be allowed to succeed in making money, but it is likely God will keep you poor because He wants you to have something far better than gold, and that is a helpless dependence on Him, that may have the privilege of supplying your needs day by day out of an unseen treasury.

“The Lord will let others be honored, and will put forward, and keep you hid away in obscurity, because He wants to produce the choice fragrant fruit for His glory, which can only be produced in the shade. “God will let others be great, but keep you small. He will let others do a work for you, and get the credit for it, but He will not let you work and toil on without knowing how much you are doing; and then to make your work still more precious, He will let others get the credit for the work which you have done, and this will make your reward ten times greater when He comes. The Holy Spirit will put a strict watch over you, with a jealous love, and will rebuke you for little words and feelings or for wasting your time, which other Christians never seem distressed over. So make up your mind that God is an infinite Sovereign, and has a right to do as He pleases with His own, and He will not explain to you a thousand things which may puzzle your reason in His dealings with you. He will wrap you up in a jealous love, and let other people say or do many things that you cannot do or say. Settle it forever, that you are to deal directly with the Holy Spirit, and that He is to have the privilege of tying your tongue, or chaining your hand, or closing your eyes, in ways that others are not dealt with. Now when you are so possessed with the living God that you are, in your secret heart, pleased and delighted over this peculiar, personal, private, jealous guardianship and management of the Holy Spirit over your life, you will have found the vestibule of heaven.”—Author unknown.

“For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven” (Matthew 5:20).

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

WHAT GOD'S WORD DOES FOR US

(Psalm 119:105)

1. It furnishes the foundation for our faith (Romans 10:17).
People believe a certain thing without any foundation for that belief (Mark 4:24; Acts 8:12; 2 Timothy 2:15).
2. It reveals to man the way of salvation (Romans 1:16).
The Word brings us this knowledge (John 20:31; Romans 10:17; 2 Timothy 3:15-17).
3. It is the source of our spiritual light (Psalm 119:130).
Light on the future life (Daniel 9:2; John 5:39; 2 Kings 22:8, 11, 13).
4. It is the source of our spiritual life (John 6:63).
Where the Word is received—life (Psalm 19:7; Hebrews 4:12; 1 Peter 1:23).
5. It is the source of spiritual food (1 Peter 2:2).
The early church fed on the Word (Matthew 4:4; James 1:21-25).
6. It is the guide for the building up of the believer (Acts 20:32).
Building up in the things of God (Judc 1:20, 21; 2 Peter 3:18).
7. It is the standard by which we shall be judged (John 12:47, 48).
All things that are needful for us are there (John 20:31; Acts 8:38; 2 Peter 1:5).

—Rev. C. C. Maple.

The above recommendation was unanimously passed by the Executive Committee, this July 20, 1960.

Signed: J. W. Alford, Secretary of Executive Committee

A further motion was passed that we commend St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church and its pastor for their stand in the above-mentioned matter.

A motion was also passed that this action be published in the local newspapers and our denominational papers.

Signed: J. W. Alford, Secretary of Executive Committee

A wise man gets learning from those who have none themselves.

NOTICE

After due consideration, we, the Examining Board of the Eastern Conference of Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, this day, July 20, 1960, recommend to the Executive Committee of said Conference that Brother Cecil H. Campbell be silenced as a minister until he meets with a joint session of the Examining Board and the Executive Committee and clears himself, he having failed to abide by the Ministerial Code of Ethics and to keep proper relationship with St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, and the Eastern Conference.

Signed: Lloyd Vernon, Secretary of Examining Board.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER JOSEPH BELL

Eastern Conference of North Carolina

Elder Bell was the son of John and Agnes Bell, and was born in Pitt County, North Carolina, on the first day of July, 1823. His religious training was very deficient, as his parents were not professors of religion. He grew up a wicked and lewd boy and he often said that it was his delight to use a manner of profane language that he heard others use. He continued in this state until the year of 1846. He told Elder R. I. Hearn that he went to a circus and returned home at night and dreamed of hearing one of their blasphemous songs, which frightened him and he awoke and said that it appeared to him there was a small black form in the middle of the floor with a cloven foot, singing the song he had been dreaming about and this form followed him apparently for several days. A short while after this, a friend of his was taken very sick and died.

He was sitting up with this friend one night, with several others, and there was an old Free Will Baptist there who proposed prayer. This was unexpected to him and he said that he had never bowed his knees in prayer in his life up to that time, and while the old brother was reading a chapter, he was about to leave the house, rather than remain and bow in prayer, but he did remain and for the first time bowed in prayer, which was an arrow to his heart. He had no rest until he found peace in believing on the Lord Jesus Christ. He united with the Free Will Baptist Church at Gun Swamp in the same year; was baptized by Elder J. Utley, and was a consistent member until death. He commenced his ministry in the year 1853. A more zealous and faithful minister of the Lord Jesus could not often be found; though he was not possessed with much eloquence, he never failed to warn sinners to flee the wrath to come. It was his theme to persuade his fellow man to turn from his evil ways and serve the Lord.

He attended church at Hickory Grove on Saturday before the second Sunday in September, 1862, and preached his last sermon (continued on page twelve)

DON'T JUDGE TOO HARD

Pray don't find fault with the man who limps,
Or stumbles along the road,
Unless you have the shoes he wears
Or struggled beneath his load.
There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt,
Though hidden away from view,
Or the burden he bears, placed on your back,
Might cause you to stumble too.

Don't sneer at the man who's down today,
Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt the shame
That only the fallen know.
You may be strong, but still the blows
That were his, if dealt on you
In the selfsame way, at the selfsame time,
Might cause you to stagger too.

Don't be too harsh with the man who sins
Or pelt him with words or stones,
Unless you are sure, yea, doubly sure,
That you have no sins of your own.
For you know perhaps, if the tempter's voice
Should whisper as soft to you
As it did to him when he went astray,
'Twould cause you to falter too.

—Missionary Worker.

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THINGS THAT GOD HATES

These six things doth the LORD hate; seven are abomination unto him: A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, An heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, A false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren" (Proverbs 6:16-19). Let us list those things that are an abomination to the Lord and get these hateful things from us: "A proud look"; "a lying tongue"; "hands that shed innocent blood"; "an heart that deviseth wicked imaginations"; "feet that be swift in running to mischief"; "a false witness that speaketh lies"; "and he that soweth discord among brethren."

PROUD LOOK

Pride is a dangerous thing. "The wicked, because of his pride of his countenance, will not be humble after God: God is not in all of his thoughts. His ways are always grievous: his judgments are far above out of his sight. . . ." (Psalm 10:4, 5). There are many men and women who are too proud to humble themselves before God. Pride causes men to exalt themselves. Jesus says, however, "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; . . ." (Matthew 23:12). We can place ourselves on the top row and proudly rebounce every soul that is below our class. We may think within ourselves, but God can bring us down and will take us off our roost.

LYING TONGUE

James says: "Even so the tongue is a member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth! And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity; so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell. For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been used of mankind: But the tongue can no be tamed; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. Therewith bless we God, even the Father; and therewith curse we men, which is made after the similitude of God. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be" (James 3:5-10).

Notice, James says, Brethren—My Brethren. He was not talking to the heathen. He was talking to brethren. What peculiar tongues some of us carry around in that big hole in the middle of our faces! We go to church and sing loudly, "Oh How I Love Jesus." Before we get home we are slandering the name of someone by repeating a rumor. Some of the most slanderous tongues have been members of some religious bodies.

No wonder that the writer of Proverbs said, "The Lord hates a lying tongue." Listen for the political liar, the business liar, the religious liar, and the old street corner liar—the fellow who promises to do something when he knows that he is not going to do what he promises. Be careful of the husband who lies to his wife when he stays out with gamblers and harlots; the wife that says, "Children, stay quiet—'Mommy' is just running out for a few minutes," and stays at a neighbor's house and gambles for cut glass unto twelve or one o'clock. These liars are bad, but there is one that is even worse—he is the pulpit liar. Back about forty years ago, a preacher visited the church where I was a member, and he preached loud and long. He had a real pulpit activity, and some of the brethren thought he was the stuff. I shall never forget what he said. He said, "I have not asked God to forgive me for a sin in fourteen years, because I have not committed a sin in fourteen years." That was about the time when some Free Will Baptist laymen and preachers were becoming the holier-than-thou Christians.

I was called to conduct a series of meetings near the place where this preacher (the afore-discussed preacher) lived, and I remembered the preacher's statement and made an inquiry—but not a single neighbor would say that he believed the preacher's statement. Since then, this preacher has gone on into the hereafter. I hope that before going he realized that he was a sinner among sinners and confessed to God and made things right.

"Whoso boasteth himself of a false gift is like clouds and wind without rain . . . for men to search their own glory is not glory" (Proverbs 25:14, 27).

HANDS THAT SHED INNOCENT BLOOD

Hitler certainly would come under that hate from Almighty God, and this is not judging—for Christ said, "A tree is known by the fruit it bears." Yes, Jesus said, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits . . . Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit" (Matthew 7:15-17). So by what Hitler did we know that he was in the hate class of Almighty God. Not only Hitler, but many more who say great things among themselves speak lies. I have to deal with these book sellers, but when they come I treat them nicely and ask them have they been born of water and the spirit; hold them to it—don't let them get away without a definite answer, and while he or she is humming and hawing, say, "Well let us pray over the matter." The salesman will go away as quickly as a cat when shot with a sling-shot. Amen. Be sure not to let a false prophet get away with reading the third chapter of John. It might be profitable to get someone to read this Word of God to every political candidate for office—from top to bottom—before the November election. I say that no person is fit to hold an office that has not a definite experience in the knowledge of Jesus Christ. He should be more than a church member.

Now back to the shedding of innocent blood. Just take a look at Cuba where the Castro forces have murdered innocent women and children, along with many men—and this procedure is Communism under disguise. Take a look at Columbia, where according to the records 115 Protestant Christians have been murdered; 66 Protestant churches have been destroyed; and, 200 Protestant schools have been closed in the last ten years. This took place in Columbia, South America. Remember—it can take place right here in the United States.

Innocent blood is shed right at our doors and we read of it every day—we read about drunken drivers on the highway who killed several people, and drunken husbands who kill their wives and children. America is on the way out, unless we go back to the way of life practiced by the founders of our United States, who fought and died for religious liberty. There are so many ways of destroying innocent blood. It would take a much larger book than I have time to write now.

There is no doubt that lying tongues have caused some people to worry themselves to death. I have had to deal with precious souls who had been falsely accused and had worried until their health had completely gone under. God says in 1 Chronicles 16:22 and in Psalm 105:15, ". . . touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm."

I read a story a few years ago about a deacon who began to persecute the pastor of his church and had influence sufficient to get others to go along with him, until the preacher's heart was broken. When he had seen what he had done, that deacon went to the home of the minister who had been driven from the parsonage or manse to a humble place of abode. He went to try to help that broken-hearted minister, but the wife of the dying man refused to let the deacon see that man of God—so God still says, "Touch not mine anointed."

(To be continued.)

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

SECOND-MILE SISTER

SANDRA had never been so mad in all her 11 years, and the reason was that brat, Bart. In just six years, how could he have become such a pill? And the worst of it was he could do no wrong in the eyes of Dad and Mother.

Here she was stuck with him on a two-mile hike in Laramie's woods where the "Sunbeams" were going to hunt for bitterness.

Her friends just weren't going to understand why she had to drag that little slow-poke along! But Mother said: "It's the only way you can go on the hike. Dad and I must go to Emerson that day on business. I'm sure Bart won't be too much trouble."

Her eyes stung remembering her dad's words: Sandra, you're jealous and hateful to Bart. You'll have to watch that, Sis."

She'd have to drag him along on the hike. She knew when she was licked, which was pretty near always! She felt like leaving him in the woods. Maybe she just would! Deep down, Sandra knew she wouldn't, of course. Her little brother really wasn't so bad—if only they wouldn't poke him down her throat all the time.

The day of the hike was sunshiny and bright. Sandra had so much fun she almost forgot Bart trudging along behind, picking up leaves, stopping to look in delight at the rabbits and squirrels darting about, and talking in a constant stream: "What's this?" "Looky." "Sandra, wait for me!"

Sandra had long since given up trying to stay with the others when she heard a shriek of excited voices ahead. She ran toward the top of the knoll where her friends had found a bittersweet thicket. Sandra tore at the tangled vines. She popped open one of the red berries with its thick orange covering.

"Oh, she exulted, "that's the best bittersweet we've ever found. Mother will love it." At the thought of her mother, her breath caught in her throat. "Bart!" she screamed and ran down the hill, but there was no Bart in sight.

Fright clutched Sandra. Suppose he had wandered down the bend to the creek. It was deepest there. She ran to the creek bank calling: "Bart! Bart!"

The rest of the hikers joined her and ran along the bank calling Bart's name.

Sandra could not get one horrified thought out of her mind: what if he's drowned? And I said maybe I'd leave him in the woods—that I wouldn't care if he got lost. Oh, I didn't really mean it. Half-sobbing she prayed: "Oh, please, God, help me find Bart safe."

She looked on the water for bubbles but there were none. Then she saw one of Bart's little red sandals bobbing along. Heart pounding, she went down the steep bank. "Be careful!" screamed the watchers on the bank.

"I am careful," said a chipper little voice, and Bart stepped out from behind a bush on the opposite side of the bank. "I fooled you! I hid, but I lost one of my sandals. Mommy will be cross."

Sandra had a flashing feeling of relief—then one of hot anger. In that unguarded moment, she fell, clutching wildly at the grassy growth on the bank. She rolled, tumbling and clawing, and went with a splash into the water, under the sprawling, clutching branches of a tree that had fallen across the creek. She sputtered and gasped for breath. Her wide-open eyes saw the strange greenish light under the water. I'm drowning, she thought. She came up gulping, her heart pounding. Then something sharp and jagged scratched her and caught in her dress and threw her against the sharp rocks on the water's edge.

The frightened playmates clambered down the bank and twisted her dress off the tree branch. With her last strength, Sandra got dizzily to her feet. One of the girls wet her handkerchief in the creek and bathed Sandra's bruised face. Bart hovered over her with anxious words: "Hurt, Sandy? Hurt bad?" Big tears trembled on the edges of his eyelashes, but his face burst into a big smile when Sandra whispered: "I'll be all right, Bartie."

The last thing she remembered before she dozed off was; Bartie really is kinda sweet.

When Sandra awoke, she was in her own bed, and her anxious parents were beside her.

"Feeling better, Sandy?" her dad asked huskily while her mother sobbed. "We thank God you're all right, Sandra. You precious girl, what you must've gone through! We love you so!"

She had to ask it: "As much as you love Bart?" she whispered.

"Of course!" her mother and dad swayed in a perfect duet.

Then Sandra faltered: "I-I thought n be you liked him best."

"Oh, I begin to see," her mother said softly, "maybe we have been a little hard on you. Perhaps we've been unfair in expecting so much of you—but you have always been so dependable and good, Sandra. And don't you know, Sandra, parents sort of learn with their first child?" Sandra smiled. "But I guess we have babied Bart. We'll have to stop that. It isn't good for him. And we won't expect quite so much of you, dear."

"Oh, phooey!" said Sandra happily. "He's so little yet. I expected as much from him as of myself. But he's a pretty good little guy. If I don't show him how to act, how's he going to learn? I'm sure I was jealous of him. Yes, I truly was. Daddy, but after this I'll be real patient with him."

"You'll be the best little second-miler in the country," promised her dad.

"Second-miler?" asked Sandra. "What's that?"

"That's the way Jesus explained Christ's living. We are second-milers when we do more than is expected of us to help others."

"That's what I want to do!" exclaimed Sandra happily, "and with Jesus helping me, I know I can do it, too!"—My Promise.

Indelible Imprints

(continued from page ten)

mon. He returned home in the afternoon and on Sunday was taken sick and continued to grow worse until the third day of October, 1862, when his spirit took its flight and was no doubt wafted by angels home to glory there to receive the reward that God has promised to the final faithful. His funeral was preached by Elder R. K. Heald from Psalm 116:15. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

A MIRROR

The world is like a mirror,
Reflecting what you do,
And if your face is smiling
It smiles right back at you.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Scotland Neck, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Hope Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Helena Haddock at its monthly meeting July 15. The meeting opened with the group singing "Trust and Obey," followed with prayer by Mrs. Lila Croom. Scripture reading, Numbers 9:17-23, by the president, Mrs. Annie Harrell. The topic for the program, "A Clear Call to Cuba," was given by the following: Mrs. Agnes Eason, Mrs. Lynette Bunch, Mrs. Lila Croom, Mrs. Nannie Harrell and Mrs. Irene Morris.

During the business session, the roll was called with 11 members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Helena Haddock, and enjoyed by all.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Church met July 21, at eight o'clock p. m., in the home of Mrs. Travis Roughten with the president presiding. The meeting opened with the group singing "Jesus Saves," followed with the Scripture by the president. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Bernice Maitland. Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Winford Brickhouse, Mrs. Zennie Taylor, Mrs. Iilda Roughten, Mrs. Joseph Maitland, Mrs. Lawrence Brickhouse and Kathleen Swain. The president, Mrs. Madaline Brickhouse, gave a very interesting and inspiring talk on the lesson. The business was transacted as usual. The meeting closed with prayer.

During the social hour, the hostess served ice cream, cookies, peanuts and candy, which were enjoyed by all.

Report of North Carolina Woman's Auxiliary Convention

May 21, 1959—May 19, 1960

Balance Brought Forward	Receipts	Disbursements	Balance
$ 1,653.12
Laborer Band Fund	$ 683.70	$ 683.70	$
Angmont Assembly, Current	63.30	63.30
Angmont Building Fund	483.10	483.10
Angmont Woman's Conference	7.40	7.40
Angmont for Roof	5.00	5.00
Angmont for Paint	4.00	4.00
W. Olive College, Current	330.99	330.99
W. Olive, Life Membership	261.00	261.00
W. Olive, on Pledges	55.00	55.00
W. Olive, for Piano	70.00	70.00
Student Loan Fund	10.50	10.50
W. Olive, for Piano	30.00	30.00
W. Olive, for College	12.00	12.00
W. Olive, for Bible College, Current	246.33	246.33
W. Olive, for Bible College Student	6.00	6.00
W. Olive, for Memorial Loan Fund	60.00	60.00
W. Olive, for Anniversary	477.64	477.64
W. Olive, for Home Missions	687.80		687.86
W. Olive, for Foreign Missions	987.41	987.41
W. Olive, for Children's Home, Current	150.75	150.75
W. Olive, for Children's Home, Kitchen	90.00	90.00
W. Olive, for Clothing for Children	120.00	120.00
W. Olive, for Spreads for Children's Home	12.00	12.00
W. Olive, for Children's Home	53.00	53.00
W. Olive, for Children's Home Anniversary
W. Olive, for Gift	5.00	5.00
W. Olive, for Money for Children	5.00	5.00
W. Olive, for Youth Work	5.05		5.05
W. Olive, for Church Finance Association	11.00	11.00
W. Olive, foraskan Missions	416.72	416.72
W. Olive, for Washing Machine for Whaleys	52.00	52.00
W. Olive, for National Project for Mexico	753.93	753.93
Totals	$6,155.62	$5,462.77	$ 692.85

Operating Expenses for the Year

First Quarter:
Letterheads for Convention Use	$ 9.17
P.A. and G.T.A. Medals	5.40
Exp. on Cuban Mission Work	50.00
Exp. for National Convention Expense	25.00
Photograph Paper, Ink for Secretary	11.50
Exp. for National Convention Delegates	36.00

Mrs. Spivey for Auxiliary Pins	37.48
Gift on Luggage for Missionaries	25.00
Treasurer for June, July, August	60.00
F.W.B. Press for Convention Minutes	136.90

Total Expense First Quarter $ 396.45

Second and Third Quarters:
Letterheads for A.P.L.F. Committee	$ 8.82
F.W.B. Press for Award Pins	27.00
Expense A.P.L.F. Committee Member	15.00
Convention President, Phone Calls	12.75
Expense Executive Committee Meeting	57.80
Declamation Contestant	10.00
Treasurer, September, October, November	60.00
Convention Secretary, Phone Call, Postage	7.40
Mrs. Ballard, for 1,500 LOOK Sheets	45.50
Expense A.P.L.F. Committee Meeting	8.40
Convention President, Phone Calls	3.80
Executive Committee Meeting Expense	53.89
State Youth Chairman for Youth Work	12.88
For Cuban Mission Work	100.00
For State Youth Work	34.00
Treasurer for December, January, February	56.00

Total for Second and Third Quarters 513.15

Expense for Fourth Quarter:
President, Mileage and Phone Calls	10.30
Treasurer's Entry Book	5.00
1,000 Postal Receipt Cards	39.50
For State Youth Work	10.17
For 500 LOOK Sheets	25.00
Treasurer for March, April, May	60.00

Total Operating Expense Fourth Quarter 149.97

Total Operating Expense for Years 1959—1960 $ 1,059.57

Disbursements for the Year

By Departments	$5,462.77
Special Foreign Missions	1,793.92
Adoption Retired Ministers and Widows	370.00
Operating Expense for the Year	1,059.57
Appropriation A.P.L.F. for Operation	100.00
Allocations by Finance Committee	925.00

Total Disbursed $9,787.64

Total Receipts and Balance $11,347.46
Total Disbursed 9,787.64

Balance in Treasury, May 20, 1960, on Deposit $ 1,559.82

Mrs. M. A. Woodard, Treasurer

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

Why I Came to Summer School

W. Burkette Raper, President
Mount Olive College

"Tell the class who you are and why you are here." This was my first assignment at Florida State University, Tallahassee, where I am spending eight weeks this summer. I answered this question briefly and factually for the professor, but it has not yet left my mind.

Why am I here? I am more than 600 miles from Mount Olive, North Carolina, where my wife and five children are. No one sent me here; in fact, I had to ask permission from the Board of Directors of Mount Olive College to come. I am not bettering myself financially; rather my total expenses for these two months will be approximately $450. My hours of work have not been shortened but lengthened by an accelerated summer schedule.

But I am happy here. I am convinced that I did the right thing in deciding to attend summer school. Florida State University, which expects 8,000 students in September, is a great center of learning; and I feel fortunate in sitting under such distinguished professors and studying in such a fine library as I have found here.

A GRADUATE DEGREE

I told the class I came here to continue my work toward a graduate degree in higher education, and that information was adequate for the professor. That was reason enough. In August I will begin my seventh year as president of Mount Olive College, and certainly this responsibility demands all the training possible. The educational world, whose co-operation Mount Olive College must have to fulfill its mission, has a right to expect the head of the institution to be a person capable of furnishing competent leadership.

The fact that I spent seven years in college in preparation for the ministry has been helpful but not adequate. A college is not a church, and cannot be operated as a church. It took many painful experiences for me, and even more for the patient faculty that has endured and tolerated me, to learn this truth.

Education is a highly professional vocation. One cannot succeed by hit-and-miss methods, not long anyway. Education is a vital nerve that sooner or later determines the character and destiny of a people, whether they be a nation or a church. Work of this magnitude demands the best leadership possible. What happens to our colleges will eventually happen to America. The same thing can be said of a denomination.

In my own mind I have come increasingly to believe that I should either resign my office as president of Mount Olive College or prepare to give the institution that quality of leadership our times demand. An honest facing of this issue led me back to college for continued study.

So far as I know, there is not a person in the Free Will Baptist denomination who holds a graduate degree in college administration. This realization is awfully disturbing. A college cannot rise above its leadership, and a denomination cannot rise above its colleges.

A PERSONAL VIEW

The Free Will Baptist denomination today stands at a decisive crossroads. On the one hand, there is the danger of our becoming a sect, if not a cult. By sect, I mean that narrow and bigoted complex that characterizes those who condemn everyone who dares to think for himself and does not conform to their modes of thought and conduct. By cult, I mean those extremists who are even more narrow and reactionary than those of a sect. One does not have to search hard to find Free Will Baptists who call to mind the Scotchman that said to his wife "Mary, the whole world is a little queer except me and thee, and sometimes even thee is a little queer!"

Of the sermons you have heard, or preached, in the last six months, how many would have enough structure left to stand if all statements and references of condemnation were taken out?

What our denomination needs desperately is leadership characterized by Christian dedication and competence. Such leadership in both the pulpit and pew would give strength and hope to many Free Will Baptists who are wondering just what has happened to our denomination during the last few years. Once we believed in co-operating with Christians of other denominations; now we condemn all but the Holiness. Once we believed in congregational church government; now writhe under the dynasty of the pulpit. Once we believed in salvation by grace through faith, but now one hears more about the necessity of orthodoxy (usually, the speaker's own views and limited personal habits (views regarding tobacco, dress, recreation.) It is characteristic of sects and cults to major on minors—to strain at gnats and swallow camels. This is the mind and method of those who crucified Jesus and persecuted Paul.

We need a leadership that can lead us out of this sorry mess. Free Will Baptists want a denomination that has character and dignity and commands the respect of other Christians. We have no intention of circumscribing ourselves and becoming the laughingstock of our neighbors. We have a doctrine that is Biblically true and theologically sound, and we believe in it with all our hearts. What we want are leaders who preach and teach our faith with the intelligence that can merit the confidence of our people. We want leaders who can honorably represent us and our doctrine before all mankind, rich and poor, ignorant and educated, backward and cultured.

This is the quality of leadership Mount Olive College aspires to offer our people—a leadership that is Biblically sound and educationally competent. I am continuing my education because I want to be a leader, not a hindrance, to the progress of Mount Olive College in this service to our people.

A Call for Special Prayer And Announcement Loyalty Fund Campaign

Mount Olive College

The third annual Loyalty Fund Campaign is now being conducted in behalf of Mount Olive College. Because we believe the program of this college is an extended arm of the church and thereby Christian service and because we believe the loyalty of this college to the faith and heritage of our denomination makes it worthy of remembrance in connection with the observance of the Tri-Centennial Commemoration of the Confession of 1660, we are calling on Free Will Baptists of North Carolina and neighboring states to join with us in prayer for divine guidance in this campaign and in the program of the college.

We are asking each church and Sunday school to make this prayer and the announcement of the Loyalty Fund Campaign a part of its Tri-Centennial Commemoration Service on Sunday, August

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Personal Encounter With God

(Lesson for August 14)

Lesson: Isaiah 6:1-10.

Golden Text: Isaiah 6:3.

I. INTRODUCTION

Uzziah was one of the better of the kings of Judah, and he reigned for approximately fifty years.

Isaiah had been a friend of the court and had held King Uzziah in the highest esteem. Uzziah also thought quite well of Isaiah. When Uzziah was alive, Isaiah had been only for him and his court; but now that his earthly king is gone, he is privileged to catch a glimpse of his eternal King, the King of kings and the Lord of lords.

It is possible for us to become so attached to the things of the earth, things that might not be sinful within themselves and may be beneficial, that we allow them to blind us to the vision of God and things that are eternal. No doubt, Isaiah had been in the temple many times previous to this, and on some of these occasions God was on His throne, high and lifted up so that His glory filled the temple, but Isaiah failed to see God. When we have our eyes focused too sharply on the things of this world, even things that are necessary in their place, we fail to lift up our eyes unto the hills, and thus we miss the heavenly vision.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

1. The death of an important man should serve to fix our attention more definitely upon the Almighty God (Isaiah 6:1).
2. Although God has celestial creatures to serve and praise Him, He has chosen to give us a share in this glorious ministry (vs. 2).
3. The threefold ascription of holiness shows how important this attribute of God is (vs. 3).
4. The things of creation quake and tremble when made aware of the presence of God (vs. 4).
5. A revelation of God is sure to make us aware of the greatness of our sinfulness (vs. 5).
6. Conviction of sin should always be followed by a very specific confession of the sin we have committed (vs. 5).

7. When the confession of our lips has opened our hearts, the Lord always has ways and means of cleansing (vs. 6).

8. The process of cleansing by fire may seem quite drastic, but it is sure to be effective (vs. 7).

9. We can hear God's call to service much more clearly after confession and cleansing (vs. 8).

10. Even though people steeped in sin may not understand our message it is our duty to bring it to them (vs. 9).

11. If the work to which God calls us is difficult, He will be sure to equip us with just what we need (vs. 9, 10).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Isaiah's vision came during a time of need. It has been said that Isaiah must have been closely associated with Uzziah. When the latter died, in 735, B. C., Isaiah found himself in a lonely state. The loneliness which he experienced, however, was soon replaced by the glory which came to him in the temple. "In the year that king Uzziah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple" (vs. 1). Moses had asked to see God, but God said to him, ". . . Thou canst not see my face: first there can no man see me, and live" (Exodus 33:20). John also wrote that no man has seen the Father (John 1:18). We conclude, therefore, that Isaiah saw God in a vision. We should remember that the instance became just as real as any actual experience could have been. In fact, it was God's chosen way to speak to Isaiah.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

2. It is evident that we have here, in his own words, Isaiah's record of a very marvelous and very real experience. Standing in the presence of God, the prophet was overwhelmed by the feeling of his own unworthiness, and so he cried out, "Woe is me! for I am undone," that is, doomed, lost, to be destroyed, because I am a man of unclean lips. As a sinner, he was unworthy to sing the praises of such a holy God, to speak before Him, or to speak for Him as His messenger. Job felt a similar unworthiness in the presence of God: "I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee. Wherefore I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes" (Job 42:5, 6). I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips. To the Hebrews had been given certain rites of purification, but in spite of these, it seems Isaiah was overwhelmed by the thought that, in the presence of the holiness and righteousness of God, he and all others were unclean. ". . . we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags; . . ." (Isaiah 64:6).

—Standard Commentary.

3. Following his cleansing, Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord speaking for Himself and the heavenly host, and saying: "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" With his sins forgiven, Isaiah could plainly see the lost condition of the whole nation before the Lord, and he was immediately stricken with the burden to see them brought to salvation by faith. Therefore he became a volunteer for the task of carrying the message of the Lord to the people of his nation and the world. Perhaps no man has more completely fulfilled his mission to all mankind than has Isaiah, both in his day and all ages, and both with spoken and written word.—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

4. Woe is me! Before Isaiah had a vision of God, with a resultant vision of his own sinfulness, he said, "Woe unto them" (Isaiah 5:8, 11, 18, 20, 21, 22). Now he saw himself as God saw him—undone and unclean. Now, he said, "Woe is me!" He faithfully diagnosed his spiritual condition: "I am undone . . . I am . . . unclean."

ILLUSTRATION: Some citizens of a village offered a prize to the biggest fool who could be found in it. Search was made. A man was found who persistently refused to tell his doctor the truth about the symptoms of his disease. The judges were unanimous in awarding the prize to him. There are people all about us who are guilty of greater folly than this man. They are spiritually undone and unclean: ". . . the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint" (Isaiah 1:5). Yet they refuse to tell the great Physician, Jesus, about their condition and seek His cleansing and forgiveness.—Selected.

It's Only Fair

A dime from every dollar,
From every dime a penny,
And ten from every hundred—
That's not so very many.

I'd rather do without some things,
And give the Lord His share;
I like to give a tenth to Him—
A tithe is only fair.

—Selected.

YOU ... And Christian Literature

(Continued from page five)

Fourth, become informed yourself on the wider aspects and opportunities of Christian literature, particularly on the mission field. Evangelical Literature Overseas, Wheaton, Illinois, a non-profit agency serving all mission boards, will provide you with helpful background material. As you read about this exciting new development, you will be led of the Lord to pray and contribute to Christian evangelism and thus have a definite part of its spread.

Fifth, use all the means of mass communications open to you to present the cause of Christian literature. This means writing letters to your local newspaper editor when you see the gospel disabused. Do not write carping critical letters but friendly constructive ones pointing out that the Bible and Christian literature, presenting the gospel of Jesus Christ, is the cure to the troubles of men and nations.

Write letters to magazine editors also when you see articles that challenge your thinking.

Above all, compliment editors when material appearing in their newspapers and magazines is helpful to the spread of the gospel. You will be amazed at the fruit from this seemingly insignificant exercise.

Radio station managers, motion picture operators and managers as well are susceptible to the voice of the public.

You are the public. Too long, Christians who make up this public have remained silent and allowed Satan to dominate the mass media techniques which, in turn, so mightily influence the mind of the public.

Christian literature is nothing more nor less than communication. As Christians, we are called upon by the Holy Spirit to be "ready always to give an answer for the hope that is in us." This means that we must not only speak up as individuals in testimony to what God has done for us. It means also that we must use the mass media available to us by which our testimony for Christ is multiplied by the hundreds and thousands and millions.

These are the reasons why Christian literature today is so significant a subject. These are the reasons also why you and I must participate—not only in talking about it but in doing something about it. Let us do it now.

Christian Education

(continued from page fourteen)

or on the Sunday in August most convenient to the local church. We also solicit the continued prayers of all our people that Mount Olive College may continue its program under divine guidance.

For further information about the Tri-Centennial Commemoration Service see the issue of the Free Will Baptist for July 27 and the letter mailed to pastors from the promotional office of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists under date of July 12.

The Loyalty Fund Campaign began on July 1 and will continue through next February. Organizations and individuals are urged to make gifts to the college during this period. All gifts received will be included in the Loyalty Fund. All gifts of $100 or more will be listed on the Honor Roll and may be made in the name of an organization or individual or may be made in memory of or in honor of an individual.

M. L. Johnson, Campaign Director

MISSIONS

(continued from page seven)

have received a personal reply.

At present we are located at Koun, where Bill and Joy Jones are working. We have begun their house, and also a small maison de passage that we hope to live in until the missionary's house is finished. However, since we will be moving from station to station, we are keeping the same address and Brother Sparks is forwarding our mail to us.

The building work takes six days a week of my time, and when I am able, I have been going on Sundays over to the Bini Tribe area. We have had the privilege of preaching in more than a dozen of the villages, to those that have never heard the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is a real thrill to know that at last these precious folks have the opportunity of hearing the message of salvation. In one of the villages three came for prayer after our first message. I have been able to visit with these three or four times and the last time we had about fifteen in the service, all eager to hear more about the Lord. Please help us pray for this work. I have reached about 15 villages in the first 50 miles of the main road, and I believe that there is at least 100 miles more of the main road, not counting side roads or villages that are not directly on the main road. And remember there have never heard the gospel message. This is just a small example of what we are faced with here in the Circle. All of the Circle is literally untouched.

The children are as wild as ever, but seem to be happy. Daniel Jr. and Elizabeth are taking the Calvert's School correspondence and are getting along fine. The kids have plenty to occupy their time and when they aren't wrestling with the native children, they are chasing the dog or cat, or even the chickens, rabbits, turkeys or ducks. They never have a quiet minute. Margaret is feeling fine, but I request your prayers for her. The nearest doctor is about seventy miles away, and we must find a place for her to go and await the arrival of the fourth Merkh.

Again I would like to thank each of you for your many kindnesses to us. We do appreciate the many friends that have been writing to us, and we will attempt to answer each one personally. Please be patient if it seems your letter is never going to be answered. (Some have written asking for information for programs. They have sent their letters regular mail, which takes two months and sometimes even more, and the programs have already been given before we received their letters.) We also want to thank the many who have been giving to our account. Our account is presently in the red, but with the fine gifts last month, and those that have been giving regularly, we trust that it will soon be showing in the black.

Please continue to be much in prayer for all of us here, your representatives in the Bondoukou Circle. Please pray especially about the political changes here in the Ivory Coast. We are told that the government has asked for and received complete independence from France. This will mean a change of most of the officials and could very easily mean a change in attitudes toward the mission program.

Each of us send to you our fondest Christian love. Continue to write to us, and enjoy your letters a great deal.

Yours in His service,
Daniel J. Merkh and Family

This is always the sunshine, only we must do our part—we must move into it. It's a matter of position.

^{DS} the Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1960

A SUMMER PRAYER

Dear God, I'm glad for summertime
When days are hot and long,
When I can play out in the sun
And grow so big and strong.

Please help me, God, to stronger grow
In body and in mind,
And make me better every day
And teach me to be kind.

—Selected.

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

AUG 10 1960

RAHAM, N. C.

The Authorship of the Pentateuch

by Rev. Bobby Jackson

Fundamental, evangelical Christians need acquaint themselves with some of the theories of modern scholarship and liberal theology which undermine the authenticity of the Bible, destroy its authority, and lead to a very low view of inspiration. With some knowledge of these theories, one may more easily detect liberalism in its subtle approach. This article will very briefly present the general theological position concerning the human authorship of the Pentateuch in contrast to the orthodox, traditional view. The purpose is to aid in the detection of liberalism in its early stages.

PRE-SUPPOSITIONS OF LIBERALISM

Although the broad-minded liberal scholar claims not to be biased or prejudiced, he approaches the Bible with some narrow pre-suppositions.

First, the Bible is taken to be a book of purely human production. With this attitude errors are expected. Infallibility is not anticipated. Since it was written by mere men, it must of necessity contain mistakes. They set out to prove their supposition. Second, the theory of evolution is accepted as fact; therefore, the Bible must be made to conform to this theory. This is not only true in the realm of material, organic evolution, but also in man's understanding of spiritual truths.

Third, supernaturalism is denied; therefore, a naturalistic explanation is necessary for anything that appears to be miraculous. All supernatural events of the Bible, such as the miracles performed by Moses, Joshua, Elijah, Elisha, and even Christ, must be explained as natural phenomena, myths, or exaggerations.

With these pre-suppositions as a foundation, the liberal begins his examination of the Bible. In order to destroy its authority, he must first disprove its accepted authorship. If it can be proven that the books were not written by the men whose names they bear, or by those whose authorship they themselves claim, then doubt will be cast upon the credibility of the Book. In this sly manner, the undermining of the foundation begins.

Similar critical principles are used throughout the Bible in an effort to destroy recognized authorship of the various books. When they finish with the book of Isaiah it has two or three authors and is dated at the close of the Babylonian exile. The traditional Danielic authorship of the book of Daniel is rejected by modern criticism, and its date is set during the Maccabean period, 167 B. C.

The Synoptic Gospels are denied to have been written by the men whose names they bear. Instead, they are supposed to have originated from four major documents or oral sources: Mark, Q document, M document, and L document. Much of the material is said to be oral transmission of stories. Herein lies the possibility of mistakes in the Gospels' account of the life of Christ. Late dates are given to the written books.

Since this article is too brief to cover the authorship of the entire Bible, the Pentateuch has been taken as an example of the method and principles used by liberals to destroy the traditional view of Biblical authorship.

By considering the authorship of the Pentateuch (first five books of the Bible—Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy), one may get a good view of the contrasting positions concerning Biblical authorship.

TRADITIONAL VIEW

The traditional view is that the Pentateuch was written by a single writer, that being Moses. This position was universally held by the ancient Jewish synagogue, the inspired New Testament writers, the Early Christian Church, and by most commentators, both Jewish and Christian scholars, until the rise of modern higher criticism since the eighteenth century.

LIBERAL VIEW

The modern critical documentary hypothesis, in contrast, maintains that the Pentateuch was composed from a number of documents dating many centuries after the time of Moses, but containing Mosaic traditions. There are four of these listed in their theory. The Yahwist (J document), referred to as such because of the word used for deity, Jehovah, is dated 850 B. C. The Elohist (E document), called such from Elohim, another word for deity, is dated 750 B. C. These are supposed to have been combined about 700 B. C. by a redactor. Deuteronomy (D document) is dated at 621 B. C. It was written by priests and interwoven into the Pentateuch by another redactor about 600 B. C. The final Priestly Code (P document) is dated at 500 B. C. Then, a final redactor put together the completed Pentateuch about 432 B. C., almost 1000 years after the death of Moses.

This documentary theory is extremely popular at the present time. Although some of the critics disagree in particular concerning the material listed under the various documents, it is almost a badge of intellectuality for scholars to hold some form of this critical hypothesis.

WHY MOSAIC AUTHORSHIP?

"What difference does it make who wrote the Pentateuch?" someone asks. "If we believe it is inspired, why worry about the author?"

Merrill F. Unger lists several serious consequences of accepting this theory of higher criticism. In his book, Introductory Guide to the Old Testament, which is the best fundamental textbook on the subject this writer has ever read, Dr. Unger points out some serious dangers of denying the traditional view. These refer only to the Pentateuch, but are applicable to the entire Bible concerning its authorship. (If you are interested in a more thorough study of the subject of liberal higher criticism from the orthodox point of view, this text is recommended highly.) Following are four of those dangers.

1. Accepting the JEDP hypothesis involves rejecting all the positive Biblical evidence of Mosaic authorship.

The Pentateuch itself claims to be written by Moses. From Exodus 20 through Deuteronomy, in no uncertain terms, claims to be Mosaic. The regulations in Numbers and all of Leviticus are declared to have been given directly to Moses. The directions for building the Tabernacle in Exodus 25—31, are presented as personal communications to Moses (Exodus 25:1; 26:1). The Deuteronomic Code is said to have been written by Moses and delivered to the Levites for safe keeping (Deuteronomy 31:9, 24-26). All the books are so intricately woven together that where no explicit statement covers the authorship, the narrative was evidently put down by the same hand.

Should we reject this internal evidence and believe that the Deuteronomic Code was by no means written by Moses, as it claims to be, but was composed centuries later, shortly before Josiah's reform 621 B. C., the words being ascribed to Moses to give them authority to produce the revival needed at the time? This is unnecessary. It leaves the sacred writers under suspicion of fraud and lying, and at the best guilty of piously misrepresenting the truth.

The problem goes deeper than this. Jesus calls the Pentateuch in general and Exodus in particular the book of Moses (Mark 12:26). Jesus not only said that ". . . the law was given by Moses . . ." (John 1:17), but that he wrote it. ". . . For the hardness of your heart he (Moses) wrote you this precept" (Mark 10:5). Did Christ not know? Was He ignorant? Was He lying? Maybe He had not studied the Graf-Kuenen-Wellhausen theory of higher criticism. Doubting Christ in these matters leaves the door open to doubting Him in other teachings.

2. Accepting this critical view is alignment with those who deny the credibility of the Pentateuch and supernaturalism.

The scholars who originated and elaborated this view were unbelievers in an immediate supernatural revelation. They would set aside the reality of miracles and attempt to explain every miraculous event throughout the Bible on a purely human plane. Their insistence on a long period of oral transmission before the material was written down is a naturalistic effort to explain the miracles as popular legends and folk-lore. The history within the Pentateuch concerning the Mosaic age is fundamentally unreliable, if this theory is correct. Since the view is at variance with the internal evidence of the documents themselves, then either the theory or the Pentateuch is inaccurate. Let's stick by the Book.

3. Accepting the critics' position means the surrender of any high or worthy view of Biblical inspiration.

Anyone who accepts the documentary hypothesis will soon find that his doctrine of inspiration must be modified to fit the critical view. The once accepted doctrine of plenary-verbal inspiration becomes no longer reputable.

This is not a question of words nor technical details. The question is, "Can any reliance be placed upon the historical accuracy of the Bible?" Are the major events and vital facts reliable? If the critical theory is true, then the Pentateuch yields an unreliable record of what actually transpired during the era it describes. If this be true, it is a poor example of divine revelation and certainly no good as a foundation for theological doctrines.

This theory cannot be reconciled with the New Testament's high view of inspiration. Paul declared, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God (God-breathed), and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness" (2 Timothy 3:16). Peter maintained, "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21).

Therefore, those who embrace this hypothesis must insist that the plenary-verbal view of Scripture inspiration be re-examined and drastically revised.

4. Accepting the critical view will cast one upon a limitless sea of uncertainty.

If the Mosaic authorship is denied, the scholar is left to scan the centuries in a fruitless search for authors of the various documents. After he finds the author, claiming an infallible inspiration for him will be even more difficult. The very foundations of the partition theory are the assumption of fallibility and actual falsity of the documents.

Since the J and E documents originated by oral tradition in different parts of Palestine, they of necessity must be divergent and discordant in their accounts of events. This the critics freely confess. To say that these disagreeing documents are inspired makes it necessary to alter the meaning of the term inspired from its Biblical implications in 2 Timothy 3:16.

Deuteronomy, if not published until 621 B. C., yet claiming to be from the mouth and pen of Moses, must be pious forgery. In what sense could that be inspired? If the Priestly Code is rightly dated at 500 B. C., although it professes to be directly and divinely commanded to Moses, how could it be inspired? In what senses could redactors be inspired who incorporated contradictions, disagreements, and historical inaccuracies into their finished documents? Then, they attributed this material to Mosaic authorship, misrepresenting the facts. To claim their inspiration, one must drastically change the meaning of the word, inspired.

The foundation of unbelief and framework of anti-supernaturalism of the documentary theory casts much doubt and uncertainty upon Biblical accuracy and infallibility. Why should conservative schol-

Attention!

Stockholders of Free Will Baptist Press

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Free Will Baptist Press, Inc., Ayden, North Carolina will be held Monday, September 12, 1960, at 10:00 a. m. The meeting will be in the assembly room of the Press.

If you own or represent stock, be sure you are present for the meeting on the above date.

Rev. R. N. Hinnant, President

ars try to reconcile this with historic evangelical Christianity and conservative Judaism?

This documentary view of Biblical authorship is one of the tools of liberalism which is used to break up the foundation of orthodox Christianity. When one reads this in commentaries and religious periodicals, or hears it from professors and preachers, let him recognize it for what it is, German rationalism and the beginning of liberal theology.

NO LONGER SENSITIVE TO SIN

Said Billy Graham: "I think television having a detrimental effect on Christians. They are no longer sensitive to sin! Television has brought the night club into home along with violence and sex—things which Christians looked upon ten years ago with abhorrence. They are gradually coming desensitized, and I can cite a case after case where Christians now watch these things on television without feeling a twinge of conscience!"

Sin degrades. Sin dethrones the real God. Sin dehumanizes and depersonalizes victims.—Walter B. Knight.

WORDS

Drop a word of cheer or kindness—just a flash and it is gone;
But there's half a hundred ripples circling on and on and on,
Bearing hope and cheer and comfort each splashing, dashing wave,
Till you marvel at the wonders of the kind word you gave.

The Trend of the Times

by M. E. Cox

In the day and hour in which we live is time for us to stop, to examine, and to take an inventory of the world and the trend of the times. In Matthew 16:1-5, the Pharisees and the Sadducees were blinded by the happenings of the hour. They could not see the progress of man; they could see the clouds gathering and thereby predict rain, but they could not discern many things, and it seems that today the leaders of our land, as well as our professing Christian people, are being blinded by the powers of the world and cannot see the trend of the times.

Many things which are happening in this world should not be taking us by surprise, because God in His inspired Word has warned and enlightened us about them. The news mediums are making great headlines from daily happenings which God's Word has contained for many years. Although great heights have been reached in modern conveniences over the last decade, there has been a great downward trend in the relationship of man to God.

Scientists have undertaken to challenge God in His creation of man. Genesis 2:7 states that God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul. Not only did God create man, but He gave life to man. The trend of the modern world has been to teach the theory of evolution, which is beginning with a one cell, and through the process of cell division and evolution, developing a higher form of animal life. First it reached the monkey stage, and finally into what is now known as humanity. This theory is completely false and is without any real foundation. It is absolutely contrary to the Scriptures. Yet, this false doctrine is being taught in our public schools throughout the land. It is very important that we believe in God as Creator. We cannot take away God's power of creation. By understanding it and the fall of created man, we can better see the need of a Redeemer, a Saviour of man, a way whereby man can regain his rightful place with God.

We have seen Matthew 24 being fulfilled in our very day. Many false prophets, false creeds and doctrines have come about. Some are claiming to be Christ or the Vicar of Christ. Betrayal has become a profession, not only on a national basis but friends and Christians are being betrayed. Iniquity is abounding. There is an increase in our crime rate. Sin abounds on every hand. Men are lovers of themselves and seeking the lustful pleasures of the flesh rather than seeking God. Many of our churches have waxed cold and not only have they failed to cry aloud, but have brought the sin of worldliness into the church. There are now juke boxes and dance halls in the first floor while worship service is being conducted on the second floor. No wonder many church groups cannot reach the lost for Jesus when they have lost their first love; they have lost their testimony; they are living and conducting business in a worldly fashion. In 2 Corinthians 6:17, God has called us to be a separated people. 1 Peter 4:17 declares that judgment must begin at the house of God. It is the trend of the times to gather in a great number and have a large church roll, to pervert the gospel and lower the standards and to cater to the popularity of the multitudes. I am proud to be associated with a church organization (Free Will Baptists) which is steadfast, unmovable and carrying the blood-stained banner for Christ Jesus.

Modernists have revised the Bible to fit the desires of the times, having taken the Scriptures and put them in common, everyday language and placing it in the category of any cheap novel or magazine. The Revised Standard Version has taken from the deity of Jesus Christ by omitting the word, begotten, in John 3:16. One must believe in the virgin birth or otherwise the plan of salvation would be false. Only He who knew no sin, only He who was conceived of the Holy Spirit was in a position to bear the sins of the world. The Bible teaches that man is born in sin and shaped in iniquity; therefore, it would be impossible for a sinner to bear the sins of others. Without the shedding of blood, there is no remission for sin, and the Lamb of God had to be without blemish or spot. Only one sent from God could meet these qualifications.

The trend has been for politicians and social orders to pervert the gospel in order to further the ambitions of men and organizations. Satan is gathering his forces together under the heading of Communism and in this we find much of the hidden prophecy in the book of Revelation coming to light. God has revealed things in His Word which will come to pass (Revelation 17:4-18) in the last days. Truly the coming of our Lord and Saviour is near at hand.

Another reason for believing this is that the Catholic church is making a final thrust for world dominion and power. (Read Revelation, Chapter 17.) Realizing that the Roman Catholic church is very rich, and adding to that the wealth of the Kennedy family, we have seen a Catholic nominated for the Presidency of the United States. If we but drift back in history to that period of time from 300 to 1200 A. D., we can find the buying and selling of offices in the church. We can see the Roman Catholic church ruling the world and the corruption within the world. As the Democrats cheer Mr. Kennedy, we can open our Bible and read 1 Samuel, Chapter 8. The people of Israel had become dissatisfied with God's way and they wanted a king like unto the rest of the world. The younger generation wanted the prophet, Samuel, out and a younger and more modern man on the throne. God permitted them to have their king, Saul, who took their sons and daughters, their property, and led Israel downward to destruction.

I pray with all the fervent faith within me that the born-again believers in Jesus Christ will work and pray with me to keep this from happening to our land. God spoke to Jeremiah warning the people to return to Him and put away their abominations. Then God said, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and forgive their sins, and will heal their land" (2 Chronicles 7:14). It is not great peace treaties, or the great atomic stockpiles that can heal our lands and stop this trend that will lead us down to destruction.

(continued on page sixteen)

NEWS NOTES

Pleasant Grove Women Visits Children's Home

Mrs. Hardy Talton Presenting Check to

Mrs. J. W. Everton

Girls of the Home

Boys of the Home

A group of women from Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Wayne County, North Carolina, made a trip to the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, in June, 1960, in observance of the fortieth anniversary of the home.

Pictures show the children and cake decorated and donated by the Mickey's Pastry Shop of Goldsboro, North Carolina; also Mrs. Hardy Talton presented check for $45.00 to Mrs. J. W. Everton of the home. The ladies also presented eight homemade cakes to be used later.

Cake and ice cream were served to the children and enjoyed by everyone.

N. C. Superannuation Report for July, 1960

The following is the report of the Rev. Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannuation of North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, for July, 1960.

Receipts
Balance on Hand July 1, 1960	$4,804.85
Regular Receipts for July	245.37
Offering Earmarked for N. C. State	18.42
Offering Earmarked for Adopted Ministers and Widows	15.00
Total to Account For	5,083.64
Disbursements
Ministers' Monthly Checks	$239.50
Operating Expenses	34.46
Paid to National Board	21.09
Total Disbursements	295.05

Balance on Hand August 1, 1960	$4,788.59
Receipts by Conferences
Albemarle	$ 10.00
Blue Ridge	8.84
Central	38.70
Eastern	120.76
Piedmont	5.00
Western	70.99
N. C. Auxiliary Convention	24.50

Slides on Japan F.W.B. Missions Available for Services

The mission of the church and Christians is still the same as the day Jesus gave it, "The commission to win souls." The churches, conferences, groups, pastors and Christians that are mission minded will be soul-saving minded. These slides on our Free Will Baptist Mission in Japan will be most helpful in informing the church and people of our work in Japan. Also they will see it for themselves and hear from one which has visited and knows the problems and joys which our missionaries encounter there on the field. The slides show the Japanese people, customs, religion and our missionaries and their work. Churches, conferences, groups and pastors are urged to use these slides because God has made them possible. The Rev. J. C. H. Carter has the necessary equipment and will be happy to receive any appointment for showing the slides each night and weekends. Pastors please make use of the slides. For appointment write Rev. J. C. H. Carter, 124 West Bayshore Boulevard, Jacksonville, North Carolina, or call 450

Mt. Zion Church, Kannapolis, N. C. Experiences Revival and Progress

The Mt. Zion Free Will Baptist Church of Kannapolis, North Carolina, has recently enjoyed a wonderful revival with many decisions for Christ. Twelve of these were first-time confessions. One was a man 70 years old, and another was 62 years old. The evangelist was the Rev. Roy Ducke, pastor of Horney Heights Church, Asheville, North Carolina. The membership of the church was increased by eleven baptisms.

Mr. Gay Shepherd, clerk of the church reports as follows on the progress of the church: "The Mt. Zion Church has made wonderful progress in the last three years under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. R. J. Reynolds. We have added to and remodeled the parsonage, remodeled the church on the inside, placed new furniture and new light fixtures in the church. The street has been paved, the church parking lot has been graveled and enlarged. Last Sunday we enjoyed the music of a new organ. We have also been blessed by the purchase of twice the amount of property that we originally had.

"Besides the above material blessings God has bestowed upon us, our church has been led for the first time in a year-round program of giving to missions in a systematic manner. The Mt. Zion Church is ga

Coming Events

August 14-19—College Youth Conference, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

September 14, 15—North Carolina State Convention, Elm Grove Church, Eden, North Carolina

g in prestige in this city and the attendance is gaining continually. Our pastor has honored this year by being on the program of the graduation class of Brown High School. Brother Reynolds received an overwhelming majority of votes last Sunday in a vote of confidence by our church. "We are asking all of you that know Jesus as your Saviour and know the importance of prayer, to pray that our church may continue to make progress, especially in the winning of the lost to Jesus. This is the mother church of all Free Will Baptists in this part of the county, and it is our desire to ever do what God would have us do, regardless of the worldly conditions what man might say about us. "Our home-coming is to be held Sunday, August 14, 1960. We would like to take this opportunity to invite all former members and friends to come and bring a basket for lunch on the grounds. There will be singing in the afternoon, and all special singers please do attend. We would also like for all Free Will Baptists visiting in this area at any time to please feel welcome to come and worship with us at our church."

Program of N. C. Alumni Association

The regular annual fellowship meeting of the North Carolina Chapter of the Alumni Association of Free Will Baptist Middle College will meet August 16, 1960, at the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex. The program, which begins at 10:00 a. m., is as follows:

- 10:00—Opening Hymn, LaRue Davis
- Welcome, J. W. Everton
- Scripture and Prayer, G. C. Lee
- Quartet, James E. Raper, Eugene Waddell, G. C. Lee, Randy Cox
- Testimonies, Kirby Joe Godwin and Wife
- National Report (Alumni Project), Ronald Creech
- Choruses, LaRue Davis
- Testimonies, Bobby Aycock and Wife, and Bill Fulcher and Wife
- Quartet
- Report of Commission on Liberalism, Eugene Waddell
- Choruses, LaRue Davis
- Solo, Doris Raper
- Message, Randy Cox
- Benediction

(All who attend are urged to bring a picnic lunch.)

N. C. Children's Home Report for July, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, reports the following receipts for July, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual, auxiliary or organization contributing, but totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt:

GENERAL FUND

Albemarle Conference	$ 102.71
Blue Ridge Association	19.84
Cape Fear Conference	115.18
Central Conference	598.97
Eastern Conference	811.25
French Broad Association	55.57
Jack's Creek Association	41.10
Pee Dee Association	17.10
Piedmont Association	10.00
Rockfish Conference	150.79
Western Conference	210.98
Yadkin Valley Association	50.00
Miscellaneous	1,224.78
Farmer Picture Program	1,037.21
Bennett Concert Class	2,000.34

KITCHEN FUND

Albemarle Conference	4.00
Eastern Conference	5.00

CENTRAL CONFERENCE BUILDING FUND

Central Conference	112.19
--------------------	--------

Total July Receipts $6,567.01

St. Mary's Church Clarifies Its Position

The official board of St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, met in a called meeting Monday evening at the church to discuss what the members felt was an imperative situation that needs to be cleared before the membership of the church and also the public as a whole. As a result of this meeting the following statements are being made in the spirit of Christian love, but with the full understanding that there are times when Christians have to take a firm stand against anything that would have a dangerous trend and threaten the "goodly heritage" of the Free Will Baptist denomination.

The board voted to go on record as saying that, "It is our firm conviction that loyalty to Free Will Baptist principles and practices means loyalty to Christ. We believe our ancient landmarks and the paths which our forefathers have blazed for us will lead us in the right direction. We have little sympathy for independent movements, believing them to be motivated by unchristian standards."

The board also voted to make public the reasons why the church cannot endorse or sponsor a new church movement started by former members of St. Mary's Church.

"In the first place, the church has never been officially asked to sponsor or assist in any way. Plans have been made and meetings held without the knowledge or consent of the St. Mary's Church or the proper officials of the Eastern Conference of Free Will Baptists or the officials of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists. Secondly, the leaders have not organized according to the doctrine of the Free Will Baptist church as laid down in the Free Will Baptist Treatise.

"When informed of this, the group steadfastly refused to comply with these rules, causing much embarrassment, so St. Mary's Church has no alternative but to clear itself of any connection with this movement."

This information is being made public with no intention of trying to embarrass anyone or hinder that work in anyway, but to clear false rumors that have been circulating around for sometime.

The officials go on to say that, "We pray God's blessings upon every effort made by this group for the glory of God and we shall continue to exalt the name of Jesus Christ above everything else at St. Mary's."

Calvary Church to Be Host to Youth Rally

The Calvary Free Will Baptist Church in Durham, North Carolina, will be host to a youth rally on Friday, August 12, at 7:30 p. m. The rally will feature several outstanding testimonies by young people; special music from youth groups of various churches; and a message by Rev. Bill Fulcher, missionary candidate to South America. Young people from all our churches are invited to attend this great service. Several carloads of young people from Greenville, Ayden, Goldsboro and Raleigh already plan to attend the rally. The pastor of the Calvary Church, Rev. Conrad Williford, states that he hopes the young people of the churches in and around Durham will be enthused by this rally to have regular rallies such as many of our churches in eastern North Carolina now have.

Let's promote baby-sitter education. But by all means, along with knowledge of how to turn pan handles inward and cover exposed light outlets, let's teach sitters how to tell Bible stories. At least put them next to good Bible story books and other fascinating reading with pictures, and with Christ in it. Never forget, baby-sitters are educators. They learn to be better mothers and fathers that way, too.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

We get our children to help a great deal. I try never to refuse a child's offer of help. I try to keep work as enjoyable as possible. The real pay is a sincere "Thank you," with a smile, and perhaps a hug. I give serious attention to children's suggestions. At the first signs of fatigue I excuse them.—Mariam Holmquist in The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

by W. Burkette Raper, President
Mount Olive Junior College

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Please explain, "That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose" (Genesis 6:2). Were these sons men or angels? I have heard both.—Jo Strickner, Tennessee.

Answer: I think they were men, the sons of Seth. The daughters of men, I think, were those who descended from the ungodly line; that is, they could have descended from any one of Adam's descendants other than Seth, whom God gave to take the place of Abel, whom Cain slew. All the people on the earth, at the time, were either led by Cain's descendants or they were descendants of Seth. God allowed Cain to continue in the natural life after he murdered Abel, his younger brother, whose offering was accepted of God when his own was rejected. God did not allow him, however, to assume lordship over all the race as his position in Adam's family would have assured, him being the oldest, had he not murdered Abel, God limited him by allowing Seth to be head over a separated race, a newly planned race, one obedient to God in contrast to the disobedient group over which Cain presided. The Cain division of the human race was characterized by disobedience to God and allegiance to the devil; whereas, Seth's division of the race was characterized by obedience to God and enmity to Satan. Ever since the first disobedience which Satan influenced Eve and Adam into, he has been on the job to break down the barriers that God has set up between Himself and those loyal to Him and Satan and his followers. God's requirement of His own people has ever been the same, that they walk the pathway of complete separation. On the other hand, Satan has ever made clear his aim to destroy this identifying mark of God's subjects and in this way bring about a sin-tainted liberal union between the saved and the lost. It is Satan's influence that causes a saved person to be attracted to and marry an unsaved person; a Roman Catholic, to a Protestant; a consecrated person, to a worldly person; and a person well established in doctrine who manifests Christ in a life of charity to one unstable in doctrine, careless in living and dishonest in the claims he makes to a life of devotion to Christ. "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers:

for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? and what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty" (2 Corinthians 6:14-18); "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world" (James 1:27). Religious and domestic separation were both required of the Israelites when God led them from their idolatrous slave-masters in Egypt, but some of them insisted on returning to the Egyptian calf worship. While Moses went into the very presence of God for His instruction, His separated people demanded of Aaron that he make them a calf of gold like they were forced to worship in Egypt.

God today insists on separation; His people are inclined toward mixing and uniting. Some Christian scholars insist that these sons of God were angels since that is the often used designation applied to them in some parts of the Bible. Were it not for the fact that these had marriage relations with others than the descendants of Seth and thereby produced a mixed race of men, we might not be sure; but since that is true and since Christ Himself indicated that angels have no sex, we are fully persuaded that the author of these words had no other than two types of human beings in mind. "There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown" (Genesis 6:4). Compare, "For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven" (Matthew 22:30). When ordinary logic is applied, as I see it, all argument favoring the expression, sons of God, being angels becomes null and void.

Trueblood, Elton, The Idea of a College New York, Harper, 1959. 207 pp. Price $4.

"What is a college?" and "What is its mission?" These are the basic questions which undergird this book by Dr. Elton Trueblood, professor at Earlham College since 1946.

The Idea of a College is "must" reading for all persons engaged in college administration and teaching, but its contribution is not limited to these few persons. Parents of college students, present and prospective citizens of a college community, and all other persons concerned with the changing patterns of our civilization will find the reading of this book a stimulating and rewarding experience. Old questions are discussed in a provocative and constructive manner; the answers are neither sensational nor trivial. Here is laid bare the mind of one of America's distinguished educators who speaks from a committed life and varied experience about live issues in American higher education.

Although the American college grew out of the European ideal, it has developed into a unique pattern which today has no counterpart in the Old World. In contrast with European students who for the most part enter college with a definite educational objective, usually vocational, the typical American student enters college with a hope that his studies will help him make an intelligent decision about his vocation. Another distinguishing feature of the American college is the close connection it has to the public; Doctor Trueblood develops the advantages of this connection in a chapter entitled, "The College in the Community." Through evening classes, extension courses, adult educations, the availability of speakers of outstanding reputation, use of the college library and laboratory, concerts and other services each college can contribute to the community of which it is a part. Older people who were denied a college education in their youth, employed people who need to continue the education, and retired people who wish to add meaning to their mature years will benefit immeasurably by the proximity of a college in their midst.

Doctor Trueblood has some disturbing words for many students and their parents about the distorted concept of a college education: "The basic trouble is that in our social system we have allowed higher education to become a right rather than a privilege. It is no longer something which

(continued on page twelve)

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

WHAT TIME IS IT?

“And that, knowing the time, that now is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed. The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light” (Romans 13:11, 12).

I suppose we have asked, and been asked, a thousand times, “What time is it?” Almost always we have looked at our watches and clocks in order to give the answer to the question, and the answers have in most cases been satisfactory. But to get a satisfactory answer to the title to this article we must go to another source.

These verses were written by the apostle, Paul, to the Christians at Rome about 1900 years ago, in the early days of Christianity. The early believers were living in the midst of darkness and trial almost too great for them to endure. Many were to have to die the stake or in the arena on account of their faith in and loyalty to Christ. If for a little band of Christians may be said to have been awake, surely it must be they. Their faith in and confession of Christ cost them dearly in persecution of every kind, even unto death. Here we find those who knew the meaning of suffering for His sake. It, even to such a group there needed to be a word of exhortation, to stir them up to the responsibilities that were theirs to live a holy way and boldly for Christ, and to evaluate truly their redemption and the hope of His certain return.

Is there not a solemn and needed meaning for us in the words of the apostle? The times of the times certainly suggest the fact that our salvation, in its future aspect, is nearer than when we first believed.

Someone has said, “Among those who profess to know Christ as Lord and Saviour, there is in some quarters a strange indifference to this injunction. They evidently know nothing about separation from evil. They walk in darkness, drifting along with the crowd instead of living out and out for Christ. They endeavor to carry water on both shoulders. It is high time to awake out of sleep, for the night is far spent; the day is at hand.

“The day of which the apostle speaks is the day of Christ, that day when, as He promised, He will take His own to Himself and they will see Him face to face. For those who know the Lord the dawn of glory is imminent indeed. Is it not time, therefore, that we should awake from our sleep and serve Him both faithfully and holily? God Himself has provided the enablement—the putting on of the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the armor of light. Our loins must be girded about with truth, our hearts covered with the breastplate of righteousness, our feet shod with joyful readiness to proclaim the gospel, our bodies protected by the shield of faith, our thoughts covered with the helmet of salvation, and our hands manned with the sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God (Ephesians 6). These are spiritual weapons. To don them is to make provision for the Spirit, whereas to walk in a worldly way is to make provision for the flesh.

“The night is far spent. But it will be blacker night still to the deluded, unsaved multitudes who do not obey the gospel of Christ and who must, therefore, die in their sins. For Christians the day is at hand. May we all carry out the exhortations of this passage of Scripture, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed”

“But this I say, brethren, the time is short: . . .” (1 Corinthians 7:29).

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

CHRIST'S DYING WORDS ON CALVARY

(Matthew 27:46; Luke 23:34, 43, 46; John 19:26-30)

I. Compassion.

“Father, forgive them” (Luke 23:34). The brutality of His executioners aroused no unkind feeling in His heart toward them.

II. Authority.

“To day shalt thou be with me in paradise” (Luke 23:43). Christ realized that He had the right and the power to open the gates of heaven to admit the spirit of the penitent thief.

III. Love.

“Woman, behold thy son! . . . Behold thy mother!” (John 19:26, 27). In His love for His mother, and to show His love for and trust in John, He confided to his care the dearest object of His earthly affection.

IV. Vehemence.

“My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?” (Matthew 27:46). In taking His place as the sinner's Substitute, He had to bear the momentary bereavement of the Father's presence, otherwise it would have been lost to us forever.

V. Agony.

“I thirst” (John 19:28). Though Christ would drink the cup to its last dregs, He asks that His parched lips may be moistened, that they may utter the words yet to be spoken.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Hokkaido, Japan, June, 1960

Dear Friends in Christ,

Greetings from Hokkaido where we are having unusually cool weather for this time of the year. The farmers have sowed their seed but are afraid that it will be a small harvest because of the weather. As we plan to sow the Word during our special evangelistic meetings this summer, we covet your prayers that the Lord will grant us a good loud voice," not now with the vehemence of agony, but with the psalm of victory.

VI. Redemption.

"It is finished" (John 19:30). Once more He "cried with a

VII. Yearning.

"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit" (Luke 23:46).

The last act of His consciousness was an expression of beautiful trust in the Father who had hidden His face from Him.—Rev. Ernest Goode.

"Baptize My Pocketbook, Too!"

A railway engineer was going to the baptismal waters when he suddenly retraced his steps! Entering the robing room, he removed his pocketbook from his coat pocket. Holding it in his hand, he again entered the baptismal pool! Later he explained his strange action thus: "I wanted my pocketbook baptised with me!" Every pastor will say, "May his tribe increase!"

EXCUSES

The following are a few of the many excuses given by a young woman at Beulah Mission, with whom some of the workers labored till nearly midnight one evening.

"If I were a Christian I should have to be poor, for nearly all Christians are poor."

"It is awfully hard to be a Christian."

"I have not had all the good times I want yet."

"Sometime, not now."

"I am not such a great sinner."

"If I behave myself and do all the good I can, shall I be lost?"

"I might get up in the morning and be sorry."

"I don't want to be overpersuaded."

"You are all wasting your time."

"You all think me stubborn, but I don't want to start till I feel I ought."

"If I should surrender and say I will, and then don't, I'd be telling a lie."

"I could not go to the theater any more if I was converted."

"When I feel I ought to be a Christian now, then I will."—

The Ecclesia.

harvest. We realize that consistent prayer is needed for a spiritual victory in this land.

Just after an Asian-wide conference with other leaders of his denomination, a Japanese pastor said recently, "I've just realized that Japan is the only place in the Orient where we have such complete freedom to preach the gospel." It's true! The door of Japan are wide open. How thankful are we for the freedom that we do enjoy in this land. We realize that we should make the very most of the time because the forces of evil are very strong in this land. Pray that we might make good use of this freedom in proclaiming the gospel message. We would also ask you to pray for the Japanese workers that the Lord has given to us.

Following is a list of our special summer meetings. We hope that you begin praying now for these activities and continue to pray throughout the summer months.

July 22-26, Taubetsu tent meeting.

July 29-August 2, Shari tent meeting.

August 11, 12, Bible camp for junior high school students.

August 12-15, Bible camp for adults.

August 17-21, Abashiri tent meeting.

August 26-30, Bihoro tent meeting.

This year we have three pastors who are coming from Tokyo to do the preaching. For the Tsubetsu and Shari meetings, Pastor Kawamura will do the preaching. He is about 50 years of age. For the Bible camp and Abashiri meeting, Pastor Nobataki is coming. He is now about 72 years of age and dean of the Japan Christian College. For the Bihoro meeting, Pastor Mori is coming. He is 73 years old. These men are well known in Christian circles in Japan and we are looking forward to their coming.

It sure would encourage our hearts and also our Japanese brethren if we could hear from you that you are remembering the meetings and evangelists in prayer.

Yours in Christ,

Fred and Evelyn Her

Crisis for Missions in Congo

As the turbulence in the Congo reaches the proportions of a grave international crisis many missionaries were evacuated upon advice of diplomatic officials. Some missions left key men in the Congo while evacuating women and children, others evacuated all their missionaries, still others withdrew personnel from the most dangerous areas and left those located where conditions were more stable. The U. S. State Department estimates that of the fifty or sixty American missionaries who were evacuated, fourteen hundred were missionaries. Some of these have now returned to their positions. (continued on page sixteen)

NOTES

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THE DIFFERENCE IN ALTAR CALLS

Fifty years ago, when we invited people to the altar at the close of an evangelistic service, after the Word had been preached, we would sing a good invitation hymn, something like these: "I Am Coming to the Cross" or "I Am Coming Lord," (Nos. 304 and 305 in our Free Will Baptist Hymnal). People would rush down the aisle and kneel around an altar, according to the position of the minister. Sometimes we would sing "Happy Fathers Over Yonder," and you did not have to stand and sing. I look over some of my old outlines of sermons and messages, and just wonder why it was that God used such messages in such a wonderful way. After the altar call closed, we would sing "Old Time Religion" and everyone would seem so happy.

REMEMBER

The first year that I began to preach, we were at White Oak Hill in Nash County, home church. We had two services each week, one at 11:00 a. m. and one at 7:30 p. m. In the morning services, we cleaned house for three days. Not a single unsaved person was left in their seat. Lost souls would come when an invitation was given and then all the believers would go and pray for the mourners which was the name given in those days to those who were seeking the forgiveness for sins and knowledge of salvation. I do not know how many met the Lord in that meeting, but the response in reception reached across the auditorium, and what a love feast there was. Everyone was happy.

OTHER GREAT REVIVAL

Not too long after the White Oak revival, I was called to Friendship Church in Winston County, near Middlesex, North Carolina. These people wanted two services each day (that is, the church proper) with service at 11:00 a. m. and then go out on the grounds and enjoy a picnic lunch. At about 1:30 we would go back for another worship service. There was a big saw mill here by and those who worked at the mill would not go to either of the services. One of the mill men asked me if I would preach at the evening service which I believe was at 8:00. I consented. We had three services each day and God poured out His Spirit in a great way. All we had to do was preach the best that we could and God really worked. I saw people shout at almost every service. I remember when the son of a Missionary Baptist was saved. The father just shouted like a shouting Methodist. Methodists, Missionary Baptists, and Free Will Baptists shouted in those days. It continued until a few tent meetings were held. The people who conducted those tent meetings shouted, hollered, jumped and screamed until other people almost, quit, completely, to shout.

Now back to the meeting. I saw people start to the altar and fall on their knees before they reached the altar. I saw one man fall about half-way from the door to the altar and say loudly, "Lord, have mercy on me a sinner," and arise almost instantly and said, "I'm saved." There had been no prolonged begging and persuading, just a simple invitation.

On Sunday morning it was thundering and lightning, and the rain was pouring down. Baptism had been announced to be at 9:00 a. m. I was staying in the home of a good old shouting Missionary Baptist layman. The people were passing on wagons and carts, and I said, "Brother Corbitt, where are they going in this downpour." He said, "To the creek for baptism." and I said, "Well, I reckon that we better get going." My head was as wet as the heads of those baptized by the time it was over. We went from the creek to the church. I can still remember how the floor looked with water running down it toward the pulpit which had dripped out of the clothing of those who were baptized and those who were not baptized. All were wet alike.

Later on, about fifteen years after this, I was called by Brother M. L. Hollis to go to Smithville, Mississippi to conduct a revival, and also at other churches where he preached. The meeting at Pearce's Chapel, at Smithville, was a great out-pouring of the Spirit of the Lord. It started Monday evening and ended the Sunday evening afterwards. Sunday afternoon, Brother Hollis baptized 76 in a small river nearby and there were two which took membership by letter. Thus, 78 were added to the church.

Why such an ingathering? The answer, as I see it, was that the pastor, Brother Hollis, by the leadership of the Holy Spirit and the co-operation of the people, had prepared the way. They wanted a revival and God gave it to the church.

REVIVALS NOW IN THIS AGE

Not a single time did I have to say, "Now I want you to bow your heads and close your eyes, with no one looking around. Now, you who want to be saved slip your hand right up and take it down"; and after several calls and persuasions and much singing, say unto those whose hands had been lifted, "Now if you really meant what you said by your uplifted hand, stand up"; and after standing up, "Now if you want to be saved, just walk down this aisle and bow here at this altar, or follow the counselors into the prayer room and you will be told how to be saved."

We know nothing of such a procedure. We preachers only preached the Word, and told the people to repent and confess their sins to God and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and confess Him before men. This they did, and when they presented themselves before God and His saints, there was much rejoicing.

People were not as hard-hearted back in those days as they are now. The Word of God was all that was necessary to get them to an altar. They had never heard the admonition, "Bow your heads, shut your eyes, and no one looking around." They were not ashamed for this world or the devil to see them walking to the altar. They were not ashamed to be seen crying and weeping over their sins. They wanted salvation in the old-fashioned way. They were not ashamed to be seen.

In these days, after much hand lifting, closing of eyes, much singing and begging, we get them to the inquiry room. After almost everyone has left the church, we get them out and the announcement is made by the evangelist, pastor or some worker, "He has made his decision." But the old-fashioned way was at an altar in view of the congregation. When the seeker had found the Lord, he or she would rise in full view of the congregation in which many saints were present. They would go to the altar and weep and praise the Lord with the newly-born child of God. Then the preacher, the new convert, the mother and father and friends would embrace, and the revival Spirit of the Lord would often bring others to the altar.

I remember one meeting when we tried to close out and could not at the set time. We had the benediction at what we thought was the closing service at the church. We then assembled at the river which was near the church. Several were baptized who had accepted Christ. We went back to receive them into full fellowship, and five more were saved. We then went back to the river and baptized these. At the river, as the pastor was stepping into the water, a man came running down the hill saying, "Wait, God has saved me and I want to be baptized," so he borrowed a wet suit from another man and put it on out there in the woods, where the men dressed and undressed, and he was baptized. In those days, here in North Carolina when men were saved, they wanted to be baptized and be received into church fellowship. They were anxious to go all the way with Jesus. Things have changed in a great way in the last fifty years.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

HIDDEN TREASURE

by Hannah Moor

Tim Randolph read his memory verse again. "Yes! It said 'Ask and ye shall receive.'" Right now there was something he really wanted. He sure wished that he had a bicycle. Most eleven-year-old boys had bikes and for the past few weeks he had secretly wanted a shiny blue bike. So much he had desired one that he had cut lawns and done odd jobs to get money ahead. Now the summer was almost gone and he still needed nearly ten dollars.

"I guess I might as well quit hoping for this year," thought Tim. "But still, I dunno, our memory verse says 'ask, and ye shall receive.' I'm going to ask."

The next day was Saturday and Tim wakened to hear the raindrops playing merry tunes on his window pane.

"It's really wet out today," Mrs. Randolph said as she poured out a glass of milk and passed the box of cereal. "You'll have to stay in. Perhaps you could help me with the dishes before you read or whatever you plan to do."

Tim said a very unhearty "Okay, Mom."

He hated doing dishes but finally got a tea towel and tried to make the wet dishes dry and shiny. All the time he kept thinking, "It would have to rain the very day that I was going with some of the boys to Howard's Cove to look for hidden treasure."

"If you would like to do me a favor this morning I would be very glad," Mrs. Randolph began. "I'm making up a box for some wee boys who are really in need. You could straighten your dresser drawers and bring down anything that is too small for you. I will gather up some other things and pack the box."

Tim went to his room. He carried the top dresser drawer to the bed and took everything out. "I sure have grown this last year," he thought in surprise. "Yes sir!" Looking in the mirror, "I am a big boy now. Quite big enough to have a bike of my own."

"There are two drawers done and one more to go," Tim said after almost an hour had gone. He had a little pile of clothes at the foot of his bed ready for Mother to pack.

The bottom drawer yielded more than clothes. There were games he had liked when he was younger, and a few toys. In one corner lay something wrapped in tissue paper. He lifted it out just as Mother entered the room.

"I'm ready for the clothes and toys now, Tim. Why! Whatever have you wrapped so carefully there?"

"It's Grandma Randolph's Bible," said Tim. "You remember she left it to me when she died last year?"

"Yes, I know son. Don't you read it?"

"I haven't even opened it, Mother. I have my own Testament and Grandma's Bible is so old I was afraid it might come apart."

He now pulled the big black elastic band from around the Book.

"Oh Mother," cried Tim, "Here is a note for me." Tim read "To my dear Grandson, Timothy. Read the Bible every day. You will find hidden treasure in this Book.' What does it mean, Mom?"

Mrs. Randolph tried to explain about the wonderful promises of God and all the lovely things in the Bible that make it a real treasure.

Tim was slowly leafing through the Book. There were nice crocheted book marks with little boats and tassels on them. Tim thought that a girl would like these, he'd give them to his mother. There were pressed flowers, too. Then he saw an envelope between two pages. As he started to open this he looked on the page beside where it had been hidden. Underlined in red pencil were the words, "Ask, and ye shall receive."

Tim tore the envelope open excitedly. There was a ten dollar bill, he had enough money now for a shiny, new bicycle!

"Mom, oh Mom," he said, "Not only is my memory verse true but I have found real hidden treasure."—My Pleasure.

BOOK REVIEW

(continued from page eight)

young people desire so deeply that they gladly work hard to save in order to attend and work to earn while studying." Too many students "want to live in a fraternity house or they want to attend college dances, but they do not really desire membership in the total intellectual community which the college is. Why, then, are they present? Chiefly because they are sent. And they are sent because college attendance is now status operation, especially helpful to the social standing of parents."

A college can justify its existence only by the quality of its performance. "Few of our temporary developments are more disquieting than that represented by the cult of mediocrity," Doctor Trueblood warns. "It makes little difference how advanced our technology is if the ideal of excellence is lost in our civilization. When it is lost, men and women habitually settle for what is passing; they put in the time; they hold the job. The shame, then, is that they have nothing in their experience of which they may be justifiably proud. There are many ways in which civilizations decline, but this is one of the most obvious ways. If the colleges do not provide an antidote to mediocrity, it is hard to know where such an antidote will be found."

The climate on a campus is largely the product of the faculty. If a choice must be made, let the college have poor buildings and good teachers rather than poor teachers and good buildings. "Dull teaching is a luxury which the college cannot afford," Doctor Trueblood states simply. The administration of a college rises or falls according to its appointments, and it is at this point that the college president performs his most important function. Of much interest to this reviewer was this observation: "A good academic leader must be strong without being arbitrary. A man will not, ordinarily, be a good college president if he is greatly interested in being popular either with his professors or with his students."

But one does not have to be a college president to benefit from this book. If you have read this review, you owe it to yourself to read The Idea of a College.

LOOK TWICE!

How many a thing which we cast to the ground,
When others pick it up, becomes a gem!

—George Meredith

"If you're so smart, then have a heart
Go easy with your teasing.
In others' eyes, it's not so wise
To hurt as to be pleasing."

—Straight.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in stage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

William Ira Crocker

On January 21, 1960, the death angel visited the Carolina General Hospital, Wilkesville, North Carolina, and gently claimed the soul of Mr. William Ira Crocker. All that doctors, nurses and loving friends could do, but none could stay the hand of death.

Mr. Crocker was a faithful member of the Zion Free Will Baptist Church of Wilkesville, North Carolina, and served as deacon for several years. He was always ready to work for the Lord and help his neighbor in time of need. His stay on this earth was 71 years, 9 months and 9 days. He was married twice; first to Maurine Crocker to which was born three children. She passed away in 1921. In July, 1926, he married Blanch Pittman and to this union were born nine children.

Surviving are his wife and the following children: Mrs. Arthur Hill, Middlesex, North Carolina; Mrs. M. P. Stallings, Clay, North Carolina; Mrs. Charles Watson, Norfolk, Virginia; Mrs. Junior Watson, Norfolk, Virginia; Mrs. Ray Bunn, Norfolk, Virginia; Mrs. Adron Hall, Middlesex, North Carolina; Mrs. David Hall, Middlesex, North Carolina; Mrs. Jacob Locab, Jersey, New Jersey; Mrs. Deral Gay, Middlesex, North Carolina; Johnnie O. Crocker, Middlesex, North Carolina; and Floyd Crocker of the home. Also surviving are five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren; four brothers: Robert, Johnnie, James and Harvey Crocker.

The funeral was conducted at Mt. Zion Church by the Rev. W. O. Lassiter and the Rev. Milford Hales, after which the body was laid to rest in the church cemetery beneath a mound of beautiful flowers to await the resurrection morning but not forgotten,

never will your memory fade;
sweet thoughts will always linger around the grave where you are laid.

Mrs. James Crocker

Mrs. J. B. Jinnette

On July 4, 1960, the dear Lord took from this earth to heaven our precious sister Mrs. J. B. Jinnette of Pikeville, North Carolina. She was 80 years old and was a member of Pleasant Grove Church for over 50 years. She was devoted to her church and attended at every chance she had when her health permitted. When unable to attend she always sent me a donation to put in the offering of the church. Her last donation on earth was given on Saturday before she left us on Sunday night. Now in heaven she is getting paid back in big dividends.

Her funeral was preached by our beloved pastor, the Rev. R. N. Hinnant. She was laid to rest in the family cemetery beside her dear husband. She leaves to mourn their loss a daughter, many grandchildren, three sisters and three brothers. We mourn not as one without hope for we know "Little Sissie," as we called her, is with Jesus. Rest on "Little Sissie," we'll see you soon. May we follow in His footsteps as we know she would have us to.

Written by her youngest sister,
Mrs. Ernest Bissette

Rev. E. B. Joyner

On Saturday, June 25, 1960, our wonderful Lord called the spirit of the Rev. E. B. Joyner to be with Him in His great beyond. The Rev. Joyner was for many years a resident of Alma, Georgia, and was a patient in the Bacon County Hospital at the time of his passing.

Mr. Joyner was a graduate of the Free Will Baptist Seminary, Ayden, North Carolina, and was active in pastoral work for 47 years, serving churches in eastern North Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Born in Scriven County, Georgia, April 11, 1879, he was married to the former Pauline Long of Tattnall County, Georgia.

Survivors include two sons and two daughters: Joseph Joyner, Fernandina Beach, Florida; Aldine Joyner, Miami, Florida; Mrs. Mercedes Melton, Jacksonville, Florida; and Mrs. Marguerite Cook, Fayetteville, North Carolina.

Mrs. Marguerite Joyner Cook

Rev. M. L. Baxley

On July 9, 1960, our heavenly Father saw fit to call from this life the Rev. M. L. Baxley, a member of White Oak Free Will Baptist Church, Bladenboro, North Carolina. Mr. Baxley was a faithful member of his church and will be missed by all. He never failed to attend union meetings and church conferences, but he has finished his work and has gone to be with the Lord.

Mrs. R. L. Gainey

A TRIBUTE

REV. M. H. MELLETTE

The Board of Directors of the Free Will Baptist Home for Children at Turbeville, South Carolina, pauses to pay a tribute of respect to one of its former members and beloved friend, the Rev. M. H. Mellette, now deceased.

Brother Mellette's passing, though gain for him, meant loss for the home. He was one of those who labored tirelessly for the home's establishment, sacrificing and pleading the ease of unfortunate children. He watched his dream come true in the establishment of a children's home in South Carolina.

Brother Mellette served as chairman of the board of directors for many years. Having resigned this office, he continued to watch over the home with the heart of compassion that seemed always to dominate his life. Truly the fatherless can say of his blessings, "We have been partakers with him."

The board of trustees and superintendent do bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father, realizing He makes no mistakes, and accept the challenge set before by the life of our dear friend, and pray God's blessings upon his family and those who will continue bearing the Cross of our wonderful Lord.

The board of trustees desires a copy of this tribute to be mailed to The Free Will Baptist for publication, a copy sent to the family, and a copy kept in the files of the home.

H. W. Richburg, Superintendent

Mr. Walter Barber

On June 2, 1960, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Walter Barber and took him to his heavenly home. He was a faithful member of White Oak Free Will Baptist Church, Bladenboro, North Carolina. He will be missed at his church, Sunday school and in the community. He was 71 years old. We feel our loss is heaven's gain.

Mrs. R. L. Gainey

During his early years the child changes his ideals often, he wants to be a fireman, until he sees the new garbage truck, then he wants to be a garbageman. When the doctor visits next door the child plays doctor. This is amusing, but do we realize that it is also serious? It is God's way to help the child feel out for the purpose which God may have for his life.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Still Time to Enroll For Fall Semester At M. O. College

The fall semester of 1960-1961 will begin at Mount Olive Junior College on September 5 with orientation of new students, according to an announcement by Dean Michael Pelt. The orientation schedule will include a testing program, introducing incoming freshmen to life at the college, and registration for the fall semester. Registration of new students will be held on September 8, to be followed by registration of returning students on September 9, Dean Pelt stated.

It is expected that enrollment this fall will exceed the number enrolled for the beginning of the 1959-1960 school year. There is still time for students to submit application for admission to the college in September, Pelt declared. However, it was pointed out by the Dean that time is needed to process these applications so that students may be officially admitted before the date for registration arrives. It is important, therefore, that interested persons obtain the necessary forms for application as soon as possible. Application forms, a copy of the current catalogue, and other information will be mailed upon request.

For those who may need financial aid to attend Mount Olive Junior College there are loan funds, scholarships, and a few work opportunities available, Dean Pelt stated.

Students in the upper ten per cent of their high school graduation class may apply for academic scholarships. Loan funds and work opportunities are administered on the basis of need and preference will be given to early applicants. Those preparing to be teachers and those students whose records indicate aptitude in science, mathematics or foreign languages may be eligible for loans provided by the National Defense Education Act. Students who have applied for and received a North Carolina Prospective Teachers Scholarship Loan may receive aid from this fund while attending Mount Olive College. There are numerous sources of financial aid to worthy students who are serious about going to college, Dean Pelt pointed out.

Loyalty Fund Campaign Mount Olive College

Mount Olive College is currently conducting its third annual Loyalty Fund Campaign. The success of this campaign is vital to the future of the college, and we believe the success of the college is vital to the future of our denomination as we have known it.

The Objective of this campaign is three-fold:

1. To enlist Free Will Baptists in support of a sound program of Christian higher education through Mount Olive College.

2. To guide the board of directors and the college administration in their plans for the future. Because of the unprecedented success of the past, we now have new opportunities. We believe that our people want us to continue our efforts to build the kind of college that can adequately serve our youth. However, those who are responsible for making plans for future growth must be guided by the support given by our people.

3. To provide funds for sound operation during the year. We need to receive $90,000 in gifts this year if we are to continue our rate of progress.

The Theme of this campaign is Loyalty:

1. Loyalty to God and His teachings.
2. Loyalty to the faith and heritage of Original Free Will Baptists.
3. Loyalty to our youth.

The Plan of Procedure of this campaign is to challenge all our people:

1. We urge every Free Will Baptist in the area served by Mount Olive College to give prayerful consideration to the ministry of the college, to the need to train more of our students, and to the opportunity that we now have to provide a college that can meet the needs of our youth.

2. All gifts received through February will be included in the Loyalty Fund.

3. Gifts may be made by churches, other organizations and by individuals.

4. Gifts made by individuals will also be credited under the name of the local church of which the donor is a member. Such individual gifts are fully deductible for state and federal income tax purposes.

5. All gifts of $100 or more will be listed on the honor roll and published in The Do each month.

6. Gifts may be made in the name of the donor or in memory of or in honor of individuals.

7. Payments made on pledges will be included in the Loyalty Fund.

8. The college will furnish information and materials for any church for use in promoting the campaign. The college will also send a representative to meet with a group desiring to know more about the campaign.

9. Questions about the Loyalty Fund request for information should be directed to M. L. Johnson, campaign director.

God Speaks

by Joan Hook

God speaks loudest through nature,
Through hills and valleys green,
Through great and towering mountains
Majestic nature scenes!

He's found in every raindrop
Though dark the cloud may be.
The rainbow shouts His glory
Arrayed so all can see.

Every lake is a mirror
God's image to reflect.
Each river's course is planned by
The Divine Architect.

The wonders of the space world
By His mighty hand were wrought.
We gaze upon its splendor—
Beyond all human thought.

God speaks loudest through nature,
Take the time to behold—
Recognize His gifts as they
Before your eyes unfold.

How excellent is His name—
In all the earth be praise.
To Him be all the glory
Throughout ceaseless days.

So praise His name—adore Him,
For His goodness to our race;
Marvel at His miracles,
Thank Him for His grace.

The church-centered church or Sunday school invites people to church as the way to honor and love God's Word. The church-centered church also stresses church-going but it pushes equally hard for family devotions, daily Bible reading, and the home use of God's Word. The Christian life is not a one hour but a daily life concept.—The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Results of Self-Indulgence

(Lesson for August 21)

Lesson: Isaiah 5:1-24.

Golden Text: Isaiah 5:24.

INTRODUCTION

We come now to the temperance lesson of this quarter. It deals more directly with a strong drink than any of our previous temperance lessons; therefore, we shall give this subject more thought than usual.

Wm. P. Sinclaire has given the title, Cup of Fury, to strong drink, and surely no more appropriate name could be given it. "Of this vice, the power of alcohol to transform a bright and decent people into wretches has never been known. As the liquor traffic increases and prospers, it leaves in its wake more crimes, more filled prisons, more overcrowded asylums, more broken homes, more shattered hopes, more disastrous wrecks, more mutilated bodies, more graves, and more lost souls than any other evil in the world."—Selected.

Alcoholic beverages are being advertised more in America today than ever before, with great results for the brewery industry. In truth, the people are being washed through the media of advertisement on radio and television. As more and more of it is used by the American people, the nation becomes weaker and weaker. The end is inevitable, for we will surely see the consequences which are even now before us.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

Intoxicating liquor is able to create an appetite for its indulgence that men pursue it day and night (Isaiah 5:11).

Intoxicating liquor not only robs men of the ability to make sensible judgments, it inflames their every evil passion (Vs. 20).

Intoxicating liquor and the raucous music of a jazz band drive out all regard for the Lord and His work (Vs. 12).

Intoxicating liquor robs people of their common sense, makes them slaves of habit, and destroys all their future prospects (Vs. 22).

Intoxicating liquor will bring multitudes of men to the open mouth of hell (Vs. 14).

6. We observe that sin brings men low. Even in life here and now, those who foolishly and willfully forget God and reject the Lord Jesus Christ, and yield to the gratification of their evil and sinful desires, go down into the slime of moral filth and horrible crime. But finally sin carries men down to the region of the damned and the lost!

7. Intoxicating liquor brings down the judgment of God in this life and in that beyond (Vs. 16).

8. Intoxicating liquor is often the inspiration for the performance of great crimes (Vv. 17, 18).

9. Intoxicating liquor often causes men to band themselves together for the perpetration of great evil (Vv. 18, 19).

10. Intoxicating liquor causes men to confuse good and evil, darkness and light (Vs. 20).

11. Intoxicating liquor causes the physically weak to think he is strong, the ignorant to think he is wise (Vs. 21, 22).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. The first woe of Isaiah is not included in the Printed Text; but it should be studied because it deals with the sin of greed. Covetousness and greed lead to many other sins; and failure to recognize that all we are and have belongs to Christ leads to the misuse and abuse of His blessings.

2. Our Scripture describes the people as idle, doing nothing all day long but following after drink to satiate their ever-increasing desire, using music of a sensual nature to inflame their passions. What a picture this is of our own times!

3. It was Thomas Edison who said, "To put alcohol in the body is like putting sand on the bearing of an engine. It doesn't belong." Long ago, Shakespeare said, "Alcohol is a poison men take into their mouths to steal away the brain."

4. The people of the United States spent nearly ten billions of dollars for liquor in 1952.

5. The state of Massachusetts appointed a commission to investigate its problem of alcoholism. The commission discovered that, for every $1.00 of revenue from liquor, the taxpayers paid $4.82 to take care of the known liquor-caused court cases, jail costs, hospitalization and welfare work.

6. Strong drink also affects the muscular system. Connie Mack, the famous baseball manager, has said, "I will not bother with youngsters who drink, for the game requires quick thinking and clean living. Old man booze has put more men out of the game than all the umpires together."

7. Chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover, reported that crime each year costs the American family $488. For every dollar spent on education, it is estimated that almost $2.00 are spent on criminal activities; and for every one dollar donated to the churches of America, nearly $15.00 go to crime.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

8. Here we see the pitiful condition of the sinner. He is confused in his thinking and unable to distinguish good from evil. He has dwelt in darkness for so long that he has come to take it for granted that darkness is the natural order of things, actually coming to prefer darkness to light that only serves to blind his sinful eyes. One of the great tragedies of sin is the fact that it causes us to develop a wrong sense of values (Vs. 20).—The Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

9. Kathleen Anne, a two-months-old baby, began crying at 3 a. m. Her drinking father took her milk bottle to her. The baby refused to take the bottle. "The baby kept crying, so I shot her!" confessed the intoxicated father.

10. Going from a saloon to the scene of their horrible crime—the humble home of a hard-working farmer—two drunken brutes murdered cold-bloodedly a peace loving Amish farmer! Sitting quietly at the kitchen table, he was enjoying a late snack, rejoicing in the companionship of a devoted wife. Then it happened! The two youthful drunks first assaulted the wife. She resisted and was mercilessly beaten. They then took the husband into the yard and sent two bullets through his head and body! The murderers wanted money. They found four dollars.—Selected.

11. As a Christ rejecter emerged from a coal mine in Shamokin, Pennsylvania, a violent wind and rain storm swept the mountainside. Zigzag flashes of lightning streaked across the dark storm clouds, and the thunder rolled. Said the blatant hater of Christ, "God must be having a beer party in heaven and the thunderous noise we hear is from beer kegs colliding with one another!" Then, with clenched fist, he cursed God! As he did so, a bolt of lightning struck him down!—Selected.

The Trend of the Times

(Continued from page five)

tion. Instead, it is a return to God. God needs a people who will not fail Him in this dark hour.

God help us as Free Will Baptists to stand firm upon the faith of Jesus Christ against these trends of the times. God help us to fight a good fight and prevent the Roman Catholic church, through John Kennedy, from consuming us in their sinful organization. As we see the signs pointing to a soon coming of Christ, may we as individuals prepare for that great and mighty day. May we stand with Paul as he made the great announcement of Galatians 6:17, "... Let no man trouble me: for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." Christ is our peace; Christ is our security; Christ is our hope; Christ should be your personal Saviour.

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

Although some American missionaries suffered violence when their stations were attacked by mutinous Congolese soldiers, no missionary casualties had been reported as of July 28.

On July 21 two giant C-124 Globemasters of the U. S. Military Air Transport Service arrived at Andrews Air Base near Washington, D. C., with 122 missionaries abroad. They had been evacuated from lower Congo and were picked up at Brazzaville by the planes which had flown supplies to the troubled new republic. Almost all of the 122 missionaries were affiliated with the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society. The decision to evacuate came after three families at the society's station at Sona-Mpangu (160 miles from Leopoldville) were attacked by 13 Congolese soldiers who beat them with rifle butts and trampled on them.

Many missionaries endeavored to stand by in countries bordering the Congo in hopes of re-entering as soon as the violence subsided. They were finding it difficult, however, as new refugees constantly arriving strained the facilities of the refugee centers. In some cases missionaries were ordered to move on.—E. F. M. A. Missionary News Service.

MISSIONARY PRESTIGE SEEN UNAFFECTED IN JAPAN

Missionaries report that the recent riots and anti-Security Pact demonstrators in Tokyo have not produced noticeable antagonism toward the more than 3,000 Protestant missionaries in Japan. On the contrary, some Japanese have warmly expressed their friendship for America and regret that President Eisenhower's visit had to be canceled.

THE MAIL BOX

MINISTER DESIRES WORK

"I was licensed to preach in April, 1958. I am now waiting to go before the ordaining board. I have spoken at prayer meetings in four or five churches and the woman's auxiliary has given me a few chances. But I have not been given the opportunity to preach from the pulpit from any other church than my own home church. I had rather preach the gospel than anything I have ever done. I do not want to pastor a church. I had rather do evangelistic work. I am asking all pastors within fifty miles of Kenly, North Carolina, to please give me the opportunity. I am ready for any kind of service for the upbuilding of God's Kingdom. This is my plea to you. Help me as you see fit. My home church is Holly Springs."—Talmage Nichols, Route 1, Kenly, North Carolina.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

"... As president of the Eureka Society of Mount Olive College, let me thank you on behalf of the Society for your co-operation and enthusiasm in preparing a special issue of The Free Will Baptist in commemoration of the Brief Confession of 1660. Please extend our thanks to the entire staff of the Free Will Baptist Press and to all others who made this worthwhile achievement possible."—George W. Stevenson Jr., Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

COMMENDS PRESS

"I wish to commend you and your associates at the Free Will Baptist Press for your work in publishing the July 27 issue of The Free Will Baptist. I trust that this issue will stimulate more interest on the part of our people in our history and heritage."—Rev. Michael Pelt, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina.

APPEAL FOR HELP

"I am writing a few lines to see if there is any way I could get any help as I am in real need. I have been unable to work for ten years with a heart condition and high blood. I have a large family and am in debt all the time. I don't know what I am going to do. I have a note for $300.00 on my little home that comes due August

11. If I can't raise this amount, my home will have to go. Beside my own sickness I have a lot of sickness with my children. I preach when I am able to, and wish I could do more.

"I felt like God directed me to write this letter, so any thing anyone can do will be greatly appreciated and God will bless it."

"Please pray for me and my family, we pray God will richly bless you and your great work."—Rev. Earl James, Route 1, Box 184, Honaker, Virginia.

THANKS FOR PAPER OF JULY 27

"I want to thank God for The Free Will Baptist of July 27. I have enjoyed reading it and hope all that received a copy read and studied it. So many of our Free Will Baptists are careless and we do not study as we should. I really enjoy the paper and forward each week to receiving it. I thank God for every writer. I especially enjoy Brother J. C. Griffin's Notes and Quotes. Please pray for me."—A. B.monds, Newton, Georgia.

MINISTER REGISTERS PROTEST

"I wish to register protest concerning your book review of "The Case for Orthodoxy" (July 6 issue). I am concerned particularly about the last paragraph. In this paragraph I take it that the reviewer takes the position, along with Mr. Carver, that modernism has collapsed and that fundamentalism is an army without a commander. Nothing could be further from the truth. All should be aware that modernism is still here in full force. I might say also that this book has been reviewed by others who certainly do not take the position that the reviewer has taken."—Rev. Winston S. ney, Kingsport, Tennessee.

Have we perhaps been so worried about not building repressions into our children that we have failed to build the proper controls in them?—The Christian Parent, Ellyu, Illinois.

If you haven't learned "therewith content" you have not learned one of the basic secrets of maturity and happiness. The Christian Parent, Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?

There is nothing so strong and so many of life's knotty problems as to tell the simple truth.

"Subtle and fierce may be the attack of the enemy, but we have a strong one in our helmet, He who never yet failed. Let us trust Him."

AS ✓

the Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1960

Harold M. Lambert Photo

The Thorn In Our Side

by Rev. Melvin K. Everington
Wilson, North Carolina

IN my four and one-half short years in the ministry, I have heard a great deal about modernism. Who is a modernist? Is it someone who wants to live modern—people who want to live in fine houses, drive new cars, and have their names on the social register? This is modern living, but has nothing to do with the term, modernism, as we hear it. My thinking on modernism, and a modernist, is to accept the world as a fairy tale, to deny the inspiration of the Holy Scripture, to deny the blood of Christ, to deny the virgin birth of our Lord, and to undermine the true principles of Christianity. To my knowledge this kind of belief does not exist in the Free Will Baptist denomination. I am sure that some of our Free Will Baptist colleges are just such as this; therefore, I am not worried about modernism in the Free Will Baptist denomination. I do not believe that our people who sit in the pews believe that modernism prevails in the Free Will Baptist denomination. However, if and when these Biblical principles are violated, and just proof is given, and written statements are made concerning modernism in the Free Will Baptist denomination with a direct accusation, then I believe action should be taken. Action should never be taken because of prejudice or because a man cannot have his own way. Seldom do two or three persons have the same thoughts or approach the same problem in the same way.

Modernism in the Free Will Baptist denomination does not scare me. I do not believe we have any modernists. Calvinism and nondenominational groups, however, give me great concern. Most of these nondenominational groups do believe in Calvinism and they are continually filling the ranks of Free Will Baptists with their doctrine. This is being done because there are a great number of pastors who must not be sound in the Free Will Baptist doctrine. When a pastor allows nondenominational groups to come into his church, surely this is bound to sway the thinking of the people in the pew. Let me ask you, do you believe in eternal security? If you do, you are not sound in the Free Will Baptist doctrine and you are in the Free Will Baptist denomination in violation to your convictions. If you are a minister in the Free Will Baptist denomination and believe in, or allow those to preach their doctrine in your pulpit, then you are a Free Will Baptist under false pretense. The Bible states, ". . . be ye separate, . . ." (2 Corinthians 6:17). This does not only mean from sinners, but also from those who do not profess sound doctrine. Now we can pray for these people. We may even associate with them on occasions when it is absolutely necessary (Jesus met with publicans and sinners), but that does not mean we have to believe in their ways, accept their doctrine, and let them preach in our pulpits. It is heresy to the Free Will Baptist denomination to allow those people who believe in eternal security to preach in our pulpits. If I know of it, neither shall any one of them go into a church, of which I am pastor, to sow discord.

The Free Will Baptist people have had a great deal of trouble in the past. It seems as though every time something is accomplished in our ranks to glorify God, someone or something always interrupts the work. I believe that most of us are aware of the splits in our denomination since 1727. Why? Lack of sound doctrine is perhaps the greatest cause. Now there will always be some sort of strife or differences of opinion, but none that should end in disunity. Certainly pressure from outside sources in our denomination will, no doubt, cause conflict within the local church as well as the entire denomination. Study the split of the Free Will Baptist in 1910. Let's let it be a lesson to us.

There are some questions I think that we as Free Will Baptists should consider before we invite those from other denominations and nondenominational groups (of which I do not believe there are any — nondenominational groups) to preach in our pulpits:

1. Do they support our missionaries?
2. Do they support our Children's Homes?
3. Do they support our colleges?
4. Are they behind our church program?
5. Do they contribute to the local church?

6. Do they forward the work of Jesus Christ in our denomination? The answer to these questions is, "No!" If I am wrong, I stand to be corrected. However, these groups will come into our churches and plant their doctrine, take our money that should go to the aid of our denominational enterprises, stir up our congregation, cause strife in our churches and then have the audacity to say, "This is the Lord's will."

It is time for us to wake up. It is time for us to be more Biblical. It is time for us to seek harmony in our ranks. It is time to let God at the helm and place self under God.

In writing this article, I do not apologize to anyone. It is sound in the Free Will Baptist doctrine and these are my personal convictions under God. This article was not written to cast reflection on any one individual or any individuals as a group. It was written to warn my brethren and my fellow workers in our beloved denomination, which I believe to be the best and the most Biblical in the world.

Irresistible Power of a Holy Life

"I want you to teach me your language," said Gordon Maxwell, a missionary in India, to a Hindu. "No, sahib, I will not teach you my language. You would make me a Christian," said the Hindu. Maxwell replied, "You don't understand me.

I am only asking you to teach me your language." Replied the Hindu, "No, sahib, I will not teach you. No man can live with you and not become a Christian!"

Lord Peterborough, a skeptic, spent a night with Fenelon. In the morning he hurried away, saying, "If I spend another night with that man, I shall be a Christian in spite of myself!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

“(For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds;) Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ” (2 Corinthians 10:4, 5).

by Dr. W. S. Hottel

Ministeria

THIS passage has a very definite and peculiar background. In this part of the 2 Corinthian Epistle (Chapters 10—13) Paul turns to a vigorous vindication of his apostolic authority, which he had received from the Lord, against Judaizers who always dogged his footsteps.

These legalistic Judaizers were intent on three things in their accusations against Paul. They attempted to discredit him as a true minister of Christ; they sought to do injury to the testimony which he had declared, the gospel of Jesus Christ, and they also endeavored to rob the apostle of his influence with the Corinthians and bring about a separation between him and them.

The chief object of these enemies against Paul, it will be noted, was the gospel of Christ and of grace which he preached. These Judaizers had a bitter hatred for the gospel and they went to great lengths to oppose and discredit it. Their religious prejudices drove them to pervert and distort facts and they falsified and misrepresented the ministry of the apostle. Great ministers of Christ down through the centuries have had to pass through fiery trials like this. So, those of us who are persecuted for the gospel's sake, may take comfort from this fact. Then, as Paul has shown the way for all of us under such opposition.

In the passage above quoted the apostle makes reference to a warfare, intimates the character of the weapons employed, and declares the issue of the warfare.

THE WARFARE

In Verse 2, the apostle takes up the subject of the criticisms of his enemies and from this proceeds to the words of the text. When he writes, “But being absent I am bold toward you,” he has in mind what his enemies had said about the epistle he had written them. They belittled his personal appearance and his character, and sneeringly said, “He is bold when he is absent; he knows how to write strong letters when he is absent from you, but otherwise he is a coward.” He replies by saying, “But I beseech you, that I may not be bold when I am present with that confidence, wherewith I think to be bold against some, which think of us as if we walk according to the flesh.” What Paul's object of them is, that he may not be obliged to use his authority as an apostle when he

Conflicts and Conquests

ent with them, against those who had nged him by their false charges. He had ten boldly but could also act boldly and n authority when he was present with
n. They accused him of walking "acing to the flesh." This he repudiates aying that he walks in the flesh, which uite a different thing from walking acing to the flesh. The apostle admits he was a man like other men; but n it came to warfare, he waged no fleshonflict.

his brings us to the warfare. The word, fare, from the Greek, according to Dr.
bertson (Word Pictures) is strateia, ch signifies a "campaign." The same d occurs in 1 Timothy 1:18: "That 1 by them mightest war a good war-
." It is a military metaphor, of which apostle adapts a goodly number in his tles. It is Paul's conception of the istian ministry; it is a warfare, a cam-n in behalf of the gospel of Jesus ist, the good news of the grace of God.
is a spiritual campaign, the object of ch is the salvation of souls. The ob-of this campaign is not the reconstruc-of society, the betterment of the econ-c system, the reformation of society, advancement of civilization, neither the ancement of the material interests of kind. All these things, no doubt, have r place, but they are not the object and ose of the Christian campaign. The ctive and purpose is spiritual, centering he salvation of individuals from sin and wful judgment. All men by nature are l because of trespasses and sins, and to them spiritual and eternal life, Christ
e, died, rise from the dead, and lives eaven (Ephesians 2:1-3; John 10:10; 1 n 4:9; Revelation 1:18; Hebrews 7:25).
ll men by nature are sinners before l and under the judgment of sin, and rder that they might be justified by a God, Christ died in their behalf, ing their judgment for sin, and rose n from the dead for their justification
(Romans 4:25; 5:1; 3:24-26).

The primary object and purpose of the istian campaign, therefore, is the salon of the lost and perishing, to the that from among the nations a people l be gathered unto the name of the d, the church, the body and bride of ist and the temple of God through the y Spirit (Acts 15:14; Ephesians 1:22, 5:25-32; 2:19-22).

It is the plan of God that the lost are to be brought to faith in Jesus Christ, and to salvation by faith in Him through the preaching of the gospel (1 Corinthians 1: 21; Romans 10:14; Ephesians 1:12).

To perform this ministry, men must be called and sent of God (Romans 10:14, 15).

Those who are called and sent of God to preach the gospel, must, therefore, make the primary object and purpose of their ministry the salvation of the lost. Teaching the whole counsel of God, the great doctrines of the Scriptures, likewise has its place, and an important place at that, but it is through preaching the gospel the lost are brought to Christ and salvation by faith in Him. Afterward those who are saved, need to be taught the Word, fully, clearly and faithfully, for their spiritual growth and edification.

It is a blessed and benevolent campaign.
It bears along with it every personal, domestic and national blessing. It brings light, and life, and liberty, and peace. The gospel of Christ preached and believed brings personal blessings, domestic blessings, and national blessings. With the belief of the gospel and the embrace of Christianity there follows civilization and every form of humanitarian benefits. Contrast those countries where Christianity has extended its conquests and those where Satan, the usurper, still reigns. In the one is intelligence; in the other, ignorance. In the one is civilization; in the other, barbarism. In the one is domestic comfort; in the other, family despotism. In the one, man sinks to the level of a brute; in the other, he rises to dignity, self-respect and true manliness. Yes, this campaign produces real and abiding blessings, and spreads comfort and felicity in its triumphal course. It offers health, and peace and life.

THE WEAPONS EMPLOYED

The weapons are described, negatively, as not carnal, and positively, in their efficiency, as "mighty through God." The enemies of Paul accused him of artifices and craft, which are fleshly devices. He disowns the use of such weapons.

If the apostle's campaign were conducted on worldly principles the weapons employed would be carnal (fleshly); but the campaign is conducted on spiritual principles and hence the weapons used are not carnal, and in spite of the weakness of him who employs them, they are mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds.

The words, mighty through God, Greek students say mean, in God's sight, or for God, or through God, that is, with His help. This latter seems to fit the context better than either of the other, since what follows is pulling down of strong holds.
The weapons used are mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds. The word, pulling, is also translated casting.
It is a word which has in it the idea of tearing down a wall or buildings. It is not alone the weapons that do the casting but the weapons through God. The apostle here carries on the military metaphor.
What may be taken to be carnal weapons?

Among the carnal weapons may be noted the sword. This was the weapon by which Mohammedanism was extended.
This was the weapon Peter drew forth to defend the Saviour in the garden. This weapon has too often been employed by the intolerant, and the dominant sects of the professed churches of Christ. The use of this weapon may make slaves, hypocrites, and formalists, but it will never make real Christians.

Among the carnal weapons may be classed temporal rewards and physical benefits. In the days of Christ the multitudes followed Christ for the loaves and fishes.
Men have been known to purchase proselytes by offering temporal rewards. We frequently hear missionaries speak of rice
Christians, meaning that men will profess Christianity if the missionary gives them rice to eat. God's people should feed the destitute and hungry, but not just to make Christians out of them.

Among the carnal weapons we may list sophistry and specious reasonings. This was the chief weapon of the ancient schools of philosophers. They reasoned and philosophized, and had profound mysteries which no one could conceive. These rea-sonings are the fruit of pure worldly wisdom. These were the weapons of Paul's enemies. They walked in pride and boasted of wisdom and were governed by selfish motives.

These were not the weapons of the apostle, Paul; he employed no fleshly weapons, but only such as were from God and which God could use and work through. Listen

(continued on page seven)

NEWS NOTES

Evangelistic Meeting at Core Creek Church

A series of evangelistic services will begin at Core Creek Free Will Baptist Church, Cove City, North Carolina, Sunday morning, August 21. The visiting evangelist is the Rev. Fred Kirby. Mr. Kirby is originally from South Carolina. He is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College and is pastoring in Enid, Oklahoma. His wife is the former Miss Clemmie Heath of Cove City. The meeting will close Sunday, August 28.

Prayer meetings will be held in various homes in the community, beginning August 15, at 8:00 p. m., and continuing through August 19. Pre-service prayer meetings will be held each evening during the meeting beginning at 7:30. The song service will begin at eight.

There will be special music during the meeting. The Sunbeam Choir will sing each evening. The Rev. George Ludwick, pastor of the church, extends to everyone in the vicinity of Core Creek an invitation to attend these services. He states: "We are trusting God for an old-time, heart-searching, sin-condemning, soul-saving revival."

Young People's Bible Conference At Cragmont Assembly

The third of four youth conferences at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, the Young People's Bible Conference, came to an end on Saturday, August 6, with all in attendance agreeing that it had been a wonderful conference.

Sixty-seven were in attendance, coming from churches from one end of the state to the other—from the Eastern, Central, Cape Fear, Western and Blue Ridge Conferences. The conference was under the general direction of the Rev. L. E. Ballard, with the Rev. Billy Jackson as camp supervisor, in charge of the day-by-day activities at the camp. Other staff members were: Mrs. L. E. Ballard, chaperon and Y. P. A.-G. T. A. instructor; the Rev. Guy Owens, evangelist; Mrs. Leone Mercer, house mother and nurse; the Rev. Dennis Wiggs and Miss Betty Craft, workers with the junior group and co-editors of "The Cragmont Tooter," daily news sheet which was mimeographed for general distribution. In addition to their other duties, the Rev. L. E. Ballard and the Rev. Billy Jackson, respectively, taught classes in church opportunities for young people and the Bible.

The following testimony from Kay Hall of Kinston, North Carolina, reflects the general feelings of those who attended this conference:

"During this week of August 1-6, I feel that I have personally been drawn closer to the Lord. I have enjoyed the Christian fellowship and togetherness which has been the lot of all of us. This is a week which I shall never forget. I thank God with all of my heart for the souls saved this week. May God richly bless all who read this."

The Rev. L. E. Ballard, director, remained at Cragmont for engagements over the week end in the interest of the State Sunday School Convention, and to direct the final youth conference of this season the following week—the Piedmont Youth and Sunday School Workers' Conference, for which around sixty have been registered.

Rev. Chester A. Huckaby Accepts Church at Panama City, Fla.

The Rev. Chester A. Huckaby, pastor of Pine Level Free Will Baptist Church near Alma, Georgia, for the past two years, tendered his resignation to accept the pastorate of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Panama City, Florida. Mr. Huckaby will succeed the Rev. Wayne Hicks who has accepted the pastorate of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Quincy, Florida. As of this date no one has been named as pastor of Pine Level Church.

The First Church of Panama City was organized in 1953 with the assistance of Mr. Huckaby as the representative of the State and National Home Mission Boards, and grown into a strong church on a full-time program under the leadership of Mr. Hicks as its first and only pastor.

Mr. Huckaby is presently, in addition to being pastor of the Pine Level Church, member of the State Board of Missions of Georgia, president of the Georgia Sunday School Convention, vice-president of the South Georgia Association of Churches, Quarterly Union Meeting, and secretary-treasurer of the South Georgia Ministers' Association and of the National Board of Christian Superannuation.

Anyone having relatives living in or near Panama City, please write to the First Free Will Baptist Church, 1548 Mulberry Street, Panama City, Florida, or to the Rev. Chester A. Huckaby, 2607 West Street, Panama City, Florida.

These changes in pastorates will become effective September 1.

The Rev. Jack Paramore to Conduct May's Chapel Revival

May's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Wayne County, North Carolina, is happy to report that the evangelist, the Rev. Jack Paramore, will conduct revival services beginning Monday evening, August 29, continuing through September 5. The church asks that you be much in prayer for the success of this meeting. The public is invited to each service.

St. Mary Church Announces Fall Revival September 4

The St. Mary Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Lucama, North Carolina, will begin its fall revival on Sunday night, September 4, with the Rev. Bobby Aycock as guest speaker. Mr. Aycock has been accepted as a missionary to Brazil, and at present is doing itinerary work throughout the South. He will be assisted in this meeting by the pastor, the Rev. Boyd Shook. The meeting will conclude on September 11, which is home-coming day for the church.

The church requests the prayers of all Christians everywhere for the success of this series of evangelistic services. The public is cordially invited to attend all of the services.

Coming Events

September 5—Fall Semester Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

September 14, 15—North Carolina Sunday School Convention, Elm Grove Church, Eden, North Carolina

September 22—Eastern Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

National Superannuation Board Report for July, 1960

Mrs. K. V. Shutes, secretary-treasurer of National Superannuation Board of Free Will Baptists, gives the following financial report for the month ending July 31, 1960: Cash on Hand July 1, 1960 $5,949.33

Receipts

Operative Plan of Support	$119.30
Credits Credited as Follows:
Alabama	3.75
Arkansas	5.96
California	15.61
Florida	7.35
Georgia	8.41
Illinois	18.10
Missouri	21.25
North Carolina	3.70
New Mexico	3.74
Ohio	.06
Oklahoma	20.03
Tennessee	9.84
Texas	1.50
Foreign States:
Alabama	14.00
Arkansas	5.00
Georgia	106.13
Kentucky	4.00
North Carolina	322.41
Oklahoma	7.00
North Carolina	5.24
Tennessee	22.00
Texas	16.00
Virginia	5.26
Life Insured Premiums	100.54
<hr/>
Total Receipts	726.88

Cash to Account For $4,676.21

Disbursements

Ministers' Life and Casualty Union	$215.86
Free Will Baptist Press	499.00
Retirement Service	60.00
<hr/>
Total Disbursements	774.86

Cash in Treasury July 31, 1960 $3,901.35

Ordaining Council of Central Conference Meets August 23

The Rev. D. W. Alexander, chairman of Ordaining Council of the Central Conference of North Carolina, announces that there will be a meeting of the council on August 23, at 10:00 a. m., at the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. He invites anyone having matters they want the council to consider to be present.

Next Session of N. C. State Convention to Convene Sept. 14, 15

Delegates and ministers representing approximately 43,000 Free Will Baptists in North Carolina will meet in the forty-eighth annual session of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists at the Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden, North Carolina, on September 14, 15, 1960.

The president of the convention, the Rev. N. Bruce Barrow, asks that special notice be taken of the change in the place of this meeting, since it was formerly scheduled to have met at Davis, North Carolina.

The Davis Church withdrew its invitation when its pastor resigned to take work elsewhere. Subsequently, an invitation has been extended by the Elm Grove Church, and this invitation was accepted.

White River Quarterly Conference Convenes with New Home Church

The White River Quarterly Conference of North Arkansas met in the third 1960 session with the New Home Free Will Baptist Church near Gid, Arkansas. There was a record attendance of 10 ministers, 10 deacons, 9 church clerks, 35 delegates and 2 associational clerks, making a total voting body of 66.

Rev. Austin Mullen, clerk of the conference, states: "We are happy to report that the interest in the work is growing in this district. We desire your prayers that we may continue to go forward for the great cause."

All 15 of the churches belonging to this conference were represented. Three revivals have been held at this writing and the committees report 31 members have been added to the churches since May 28. There are 4 full-time churches; 10 half-time, and just one with one appointment each month.

Corinth Church, Midland City, Ala., Experiences Successful Revival

The Corinth Free Will Baptist Church, Midland City, Alabama, experienced a successful revival which began July 17, with the Rev. Leo Curtis, pastor of Howard's Grove Church, as the evangelist. There was witnessed a great manifestation of the Holy Spirit in the hearts and lives of the people. There was a total of 37 decisions for Christ, of which many were young people. A great number of young people stepped out and said they were willing to serve Christ in any way He wanted them.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Stanley Outlaw, plans to attend Free Will Baptist Bible College in the fall.

Ministerial Conflicts And Conquests

(Continued from page five)

to him when he writes, saying, "My speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God. Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect: yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought: but we speak the wisdom of God in mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory" (1 Corinthians 2:4-7). Paul utterly disowns all carnal weapons as being totally useless.

What are the true weapons to be used in Christian service?

Our weapons are the truths of the gospel. We use the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God (Ephesians 6:17). The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth (Romans 1:16).

The preaching of Christ crucified, risen, and living in the glory as an all-sufficient Saviour to deliver from the fall into sin; this is the one weapon to use in Christian service. The preaching of the gospel, simply, earnestly, and in the power of the Holy Spirit; this is the business of the Christian minister.

THE ISSUE OF THE CAMPAIGN

The weapons that are mighty through God are effective and bring results.

The spiritual weapons are effective to the pulling down of strongholds. The word here means determined resistance to the gospel. The strongholds in which sinners entrench themselves in their opposition to God are, ignorance, prejudice, pride and unbelief.

The stronghold of ignorance is cast down by the light of the gospel.

The stronghold of prejudice is torn down by the simple facts of the gospel.

The stronghold of pride is cast down by the revealed and exalted glory of another world and the spiritual reality of Christianity.

The stronghold of unbelief is overthrown by the persuasive statements of the evidences of Christianity.

The spiritual weapons are effective in casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself, against the knowledge of God. These words are the expansion of the same military figure. The reasonings or imaginations are viewed as forts or citadels to be conquered. The high thing that exalteth itself, or that is uplifting, itself, or that is being uplifted means the topmost perch of audacity in reasoning against the knowledge of God. The gospel pulls all these down.

The spiritual weapons are effective in bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ. The figure is that of a captive in war. The gospel leads to slave-like obedience unto Christ. Paul (Continued on page fourteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: How do you regard church bazaars and suppers as a method by which to acquire money for the carrying on of the Lord's work?—J.T.S.

Answer: The whole affair seems out of line with what God teaches in His Word. There is no doubt in my mind, however, but that a great many of God's well-meaning servants work with much diligence in the planning and carrying out of such programs. This, however, does not in any way change the truth concerning such a method for raising money to carry on the work of God. If all Christians brought in their tithes and offerings like the Bible suggests, there would be need of no such questionable means in raising money.

"Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the LORD of hosts" (Malachi 3:8-11).

The Lord, when here on the earth, seems to have approved this method of supporting His work but suggested that paying tithes of everything, even to the most insignificant, would not answer for other things left undone. "But woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone" (Luke 11:42). (See Matthew 23:23.) Jesus approves but exhorts them not to leave off more meaningful things. He said, "Seek first the kingdom," and made clear that if that were put first other things would logically follow in their order. Being born again is the most important thing that can happen to anyone; then obeying the gospel in all its aspects will follow if we keep our minds centered on Jesus and His way of life.

Not only is it the duty of each born-again child of God to support His work by bringing in tithes and offerings, but it is one of the most wonderful ways by which to enter into joy and happiness. That blessing that God promises in Malachi 3:10 is one by which God and man share on common grounds. God gave Jesus (John 3:16), and with Him keeps on giving blessings to Christians because of the great and abundant joy He receives from giving. He has fixed everything so that a cheerful or hilarious giver to His cause receives an abundance of joy in giving. The rummage sale, the suppers, bazaars, etc., seem rather off course for such joy. It is quite interesting to note that God did not tell Israel to take from strangers but from among themselves that needed in the construction and equipment of the tabernacle. "Take ye from among you an offering unto the LORD: whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the LORD; gold, and silver, and brass" (Exodus 35:5). It was also limited to those with willing hearts.

Note again that Jesus Himself cleansed the temple of money changers and condemned the traffic of goods and money in the temple, giving the reason as being that the house of God was a house or place of prayer. "And the Jews' passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem, and found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting: And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables; And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise" (John 2:13-16). Notice that this trafficking was supposed to be in preparation for the greatest of the Jews' religious feasts. It was a good thing being done in the wrong way and at the wrong place. God had commanded them to begin by offering the first fruit, taking the tenth of all income; and when the lamb to be offered at the Passover was chosen, it should be one that in all ways appeared to have no blemish. To be sure of this he was chosen on the tenth day and kept until the fourteenth day of the month before it was killed, thus doing away with the possibility of imperfections. If that was true in the case of the Jews, how careful should we be lest we give grudgingly or with-

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURR
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER MATTHEW HOLTON

Elder Holton was the son of James Elizabeth Holton, and was born in Cr County, North Carolina, on the 4th day of May, 1796. He united with the Free Will Baptist church in early manhood, at per about the age of 24 years, and remained a consistent member thereof during the remainder of his life. He was active and zealous in the promotion of the cause of religion, and belonged and remained a deacon up to the time he received ministerial authority from the church at Milton, it being the one in which he had his membership. After having been set apart to his gospel ministry, which was done about the year 1850, he became the pastor of several churches and remained pastor until his death. He was remarkably prompt in attending his appointments; his sermons were generally warm and often reached the hearts of those who heard him. He was called upon to preach a great many funerals, and he baptized a considerable number of persons during his ministry. He never ceased to blow the gospel trumpet until infirmity of body compelled him to.

He attended at Trent School House and preached his last sermon on Saturday before the 4th Sunday in March, 1866, and being unable to preach on Sunday, he returned home, and on the next Sunday his soul departed this mortal body, and no doubt received by angels into the peaceful presence of God, "there from all his labors free, to enjoy a blissful eternity."

out purpose! If we obey in, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Romans 12:1) when ourselves are given correctly, the things we possess will then go without a strugg-

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

THE COMPANY WE KEEP

Enter not into the path of the wicked, go not in the way of evil men" (Proverbs 4:14).

The company we keep has a great determining effect on our lives. It has been said that there is a psychological principle that no two persons ever come together and separate exactly as they met, for one or the other will dominate. Another true saying is that you cannot rise above the company you keep. If you associate with those who are drunk, you are very likely to become a drunk-

If you tolerate cursing, or hang around with those who delight in dirty tales, your mind and heart will become as contaminated as the heart of those who practice such filth. Someone has said, "Be you ever so pure minded yourself, you cannot associate with bad companions without falling into bad odor. Evil companions are like tobacco smoke, you cannot be long in its presence without carrying off a taint of it."

I read a story the other day that will illustrate what I am trying to get across to

It is said that in a gun factory a great bar of steel, weighing more than five hundred pounds, and about eight feet in length was suspended vertically by a very delicate thread. Near it a common bottle cork was suspended by a silk thread. The purpose was to show that the cork could set the bar in motion. The cork was swung gently against the steel bar, but the steel remained motionless. The cork was struck again and again against the steel for ten minutes, at the end of that time the steel bar began to give evidence of yielding to the repeated attacks of the cork. Ten minutes later there were noticeable vibrations. At the end of half an hour the great bar of steel was swinging like the pendulum of a clock, all because of continual force of a small, light cork. Yet, so many will tell us that their companions have no influence on their lives. But every one is influenced by those we keep company with. The good and pure will lift us up and cause us to want and try to be good and pure. While, on the other hand, the evil, dirty, degraded, bad ones will drag us down to their own low level. You tell me whom you prefer as companions and I will tell you who you are like. I will tell you what kind of person you are.

Many Christians, especially young Christians, fall by the wayside for the simple reason that after their conversion they still associate with evil companions who drag them down rather than seeking and associating with those who will uplift them and help to make them better.

The psalmist said, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the un-godly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful" (Psalm 1:1); and again, "I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy precepts" (Psalm 119:63).

"But now I have written unto you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolator, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one no not to eat"
(1 Corinthians 5:11).

"The peace of God is not some ecstatic blessing which drops down from heaven, but the result of fulfilled conditions on our part."

Counting time is not nearly as important as making time count.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

A GREAT SALVATION

(Hebrews 2:1-3)

I. A GREAT PERSON PROVIDED IT

1. Great in His goodness (Psalm 31:19).
2. Great in His works (Psalm 92:5).
3. Great in His counsel (Jeremiah 32:19).

II. A GREAT PRICE BOUGHT IT

1. The price of leaving heaven (Philippians 2:7).
2. The price of taking upon Himself the form of a servant (Philippians 2:7).
3. The price of His life (Philippians 2:8).

III. A GREAT POWER CONTINUES IT

1. The power of God the Father (Psalm 62:11).
2. The power of Christ the Son (Matthew 28:18).
3. The power of the Holy Spirit, the Comforter (Romans 15:13).

IV. A GREAT PURPOSE MOTIVATES IT

1. The redeeming of men (Luke 1:68).
2. The revealing of the Father (John 14:9).
3. The exalting of the Son (Philippians 2:9-11).

V. A GREAT PUNISHMENT IS AWARDED THOSE WHO REJECT IT

1. They have no rest or peace (Isaiah 57:20, 21).
2. They have God's condemnation already passed upon them (John 3:17).
3. They shall spend eternity in hell (Matthew 25:46; Psalm 9:17).

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

New Church in Virginia

Princess Anne Mission in Princess Anne, Virginia, was organized into The Free Will Baptist Church of Princess Anne, July 28,

1960. The Rev. J. B. Chism Jr., moderator of the Tidewater Quarterly Meeting, was in charge of the service. Mr. W. H. Dail presented the Bible. The Rev. Raymond Riggs gave the charge. The Rev. Fred

VI. A GREAT PREPARATION MUST BE MADE TO REALIZE IT

1. Prepare to meet God was the exhortation of Amos to Israel (Amos 4:12).
2. Prepare to meet God was the exhortation of John the Baptist before Jesus' ministry (Luke 3:16-18).
3. Prepare to meet God is the last exhortation of the Word of God (Revelation 22:17).

George C. Lee Jr.
Pastor of Shady Grove Church
Durham, N. C.

CHURCHGOER OR CHRISTIAN?

by Cleva R. Hanna

Koo, a Japanese, was employed as butler to a California family. When he appeared the lady of the house asked, among other questions, "Are you a religious man—a churchgoer?"

"I more than religious and churchgoer," replied the Jap, "I Christian man."

Koo filled his position well, giving great satisfaction to the family.

After a few weeks the man and his wife gave a party and the butler was instructed as to admission of the guests and serving the whiskey.

"I sorry I cannot stay with you," said Koo, "I told you when I came I Christian. I cannot work for heathen American."

Too many people do not know the difference between being a churchgoer and a Christian. Koo did.

WHAT KIND ARE YOU?

Some church members are pillars: they worship regularly; they give freely of their time and money. Some are supporters: they give their time and money, if they like the minister and the treasurer. Some are leaners: they use the church for funerals, baptisms and marriages, but give neither time nor money to support the church. Some are specials: they help occasionally with something that appeals to them. Some are annuals: they are Easter birds, all dressed up and looking serious. Some are spongers: they take all the blessings and benefits, but do not help the church with any service! A question: What kind of a church would my church be if every member were just like me?—Selected.

A. Rivenbark prayed the prayer of devotion. The hand of fellowship was given to thirty-two charter members. The Billy B. Walker is the pastor.

The following officials were elected to serve the church: Lester Smith, clerk; Rufus Sawyer, assistant clerk; William Ansh, treasurer; Paul Kennedy, Dallas Harris and Rufus Sawyer, deacons. R. Sawyer, D. R. Harris, Jesse Belanga, John Barnes and Alford Marlowe were elected trustees.

Home Missions News

August 15, 1960

Dear Friend of Missions:

Another National Association is his. Our people of California surely did a wonderful job in making arrangements for the meeting. Personally, I think it was one of the best national meetings I have attended. En route to the meeting, I was privileged to visit the First Free Will Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas, and churches at Tulare and Modesto, California. It was a joy to visit with other pastors and see their churches. The fellowship with old friends and new ones was great.

National Home Missions churches came into the association this year from Wapiti, Hawaii, and Littleton, New Hampshire. So I was glad to see the churches from Maine come into our fellowship office. Last year National Home Missions churches were received from Alaska, Washington, and Old Mexico. Next year, the Lord will we hope to see other churches from other states come into the national fold as a result of the home missions' work.

Four missionaries were appointed at the recent board meeting: Rev. and Mrs. K. Joe Godwin of LaGrange, North Carolina to Alaska. They hope to start their itinerant work September 1. Rev. and Mrs. Thomas of New Mexico were appointed to the Northwest. Brother Thomas now pastor at Clarksville, Tennessee, and will begin his itinerant work after October 1.

Two missionaries were transferred: Bessie Yeley and Miss Molly Barker. Bessie had been stationed for some time at Nogales, Arizona. Miss Yeley will join the work at the Spanish Mission in Miami. Barker's new field is not definite at this time. We appreciate the work they have done at Nogales. The work of the Arizona Mexican Missions, supervised by Rev. Mrs. John Elliston, is not under the direction of the National Home Missions Board but is sponsored individually. Our relationship in this co-operative enterprise was pleasant.

The WNAC presented a check for $948.41 at the National Association for (continued on page sixteen)

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THINGS THAT GOD HATES

(Continued from August 3)

In the August 3 issue, we wrote about the third thing of the seven that the writer Proverbs says God hates: namely, "Hands shed innocent blood."

Years ago, I was called one night to go to the home of a man that was under conviction. The Holy Spirit had awakened his conscience to the fact that there was blood on his hands. When we reached his home, we found he was temporarily crazy. He crawled from one side of the small room where he lived to the other, saying, "There is God on my hands." He wanted us, the man who went with me, to see, so we both reached out our hands but could see no blood. Several years before this he had killed a man, but was freed by the courts, but not freed by the laws of God. So the woes of God were working on the man's mind. You cannot forget sin. You may drown it by drunkenness and other means, but some day it will come up before your eyes. You will come to yourself and no one can imagine the agony of a man who murders when the blood is dripping from his fingers tips, except those who are under condemnation. I never shall forget that as the man poured out his heart for forgiveness from Almighty God. I tell you he was ready to commit suicide. He was crazy. But after I read the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, while my partner held the man's hand and we had prayer, the man claimed that Jesus was his Saviour and became as quiet as a lamb could be. He had shed innocent blood and confessed it to us. The murder had been committed several years before. None of us ever revealed our experience by using the name of the man or his family. For a few hours that night, that man looked through the torments of hell as it shined in his face. No wonder that the writer said, "I hate hands that shed innocent blood."

HEART THAT DEVISETH WICKED IMAGINATIONS

Human beings are so prone to imagine; we just imagine that so and so did and such a thing, or said so and so,

and this imagination gets so well fixed in our minds until we absolutely believe it is true, and let that little member of our body that is set on the fires of hell, blab it out on every opportunity. It has been said that a man could tell the same lie over and over until he would actually believe the lie to be true. Perhaps you have read 2 Thessalonians 2:11, 12: "And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: That they all might be damned who believe not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." I know that perhaps some may say that this Scripture is taken out of its setting to make the application. We admit that it is, but if God can do this under one condition, God can do it under another condition.

I believe that there are people who are in insane institutions today that are there due to the imaginations of wicked thoughts. These thoughts were cultivated by continuing to believe in a falsehood. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Proverbs 16:25). "For as he (man) thinketh in his heart, so is he: . . ." (Proverbs 23:7). A man can think evil until his thoughts will take over completely, and his mind overpowered by evil thoughts; then he is ready for the committing of most any heinous crime. When he is caught and brought to the courts, he will swear that he did not know what he was doing. Any help for such a man? Yes, Jesus ran up with one that was so crazy he stayed in a cemetery and slept among the tombs; he was naked, too crazy to wear clothes. But Jesus got hold of the poor, crazy man, and the next thing we hear said about this crazy man, "He was clothed and in his right mind." Christ can do today what He did in that day. Christ, if on earth as He was, could walk into an asylum filled with crazy men and women, and empty the institution of all the crazy people. Well, He can do it sitting at the right hand of God. Yes, He can, if we would only submit our all to Him.

God only knows how many poor, innocent people have been ruined by the wicked imaginations of some poor, jealous heart, who enjoyed making mountains out of mole hills. The heart that imagines vain, false accusations against others is a peace breaker. Jesus said, "Blessed are the peacemakers: . . ." (Matthew 5:9). If blessed are the peacemakers, and every affirmative has a negative, it is not reasonable that the peace breaker will be cursed? Peace is often broken by envious, jealous imaginations.

When the enemies of Christ rushed Him to Pilate's judgment hall, we find that Pilate sensed something of the cause why they were crying, "Away with Him." We let the writer of the Gospel tell us what it was. "For he (Pilate) knew that for envy they (the Jews) had delivered him" (Matthew 27:18). Sometimes wicked imaginations lead to envy, and even envy has produced murder. No wonder that God says, "I hate that heart that deviseth wicked imaginations."

GOD SENT THE FLOOD BECAUSE OF WICKED IMAGINATIONS

"And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (Genesis 6:5). Thus, because man was wicked in his imaginations, the flood was sent as a judgment against wicked man. Another Scripture explains the curse of wicked imaginations: "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish hearts were darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, And changed the glory of the uncorruptable God into an image made like unto corruptable man, and to birds, and four-footed beast, and creeping things" (Romans 1:21-23). Thus, wicked imaginations took their toll in the destruction of man. Wicked imaginations break up homes due to the fact that a wife imagines all kinds of evil things about her husband and vice versa. Thus the home is broken and divorce courts supported. Wicked imaginations break up the fellowship of Christians in many instances.

In our next issue we will talk about feet that be swift in running to mischief.

(Continued Next Week)

"I Have Had the Money too Long!"

A man of wealth lay on his deathbed. His daughter pleaded with him to give some money to an orphanage. He was about to sign the check. Suddenly he dropped the pen, and said, "I can't do it! I have had the money too long! I must keep it. I want to give it, but my will won't let me!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

Attention!

Stockholders of Free Will Baptist Press

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Free Will Baptist Press, Inc., Ayden, North Carolina, will be held Monday, September 12, 1960, at 10:00 a. m. The meeting will be in the assembly room of the Press.

If you own or represent stock, be sure you are present for the meeting on the above date.

Rev. R. N. Hinnant, President

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

CATCHING

by Zelia Margaret Walters

MOTHER, do you think I could go and play with Edna tomorrow?" asked Lois just before she went to bed.

One of her mother's old friends had just moved into the neighborhood. She had a little girl, and Lois had been promised that she could go to get acquainted just as soon as they were settled.

But, instead of answering at once, Mother looked at Father and said: "Do you think it is catching?"

"I can't tell," said Father, with a little twinkle in his eye. "It may be. But you might let her go, anyway."

"Very well," said Mother. "You may go tomorrow, Lois."

"Mother, has Edna the measles?"

"Oh, no, dear; nothing as bad as measles! Now hurry to bed. It is five minutes past time."

Lois went to bed, wondering what Edna had that might be catching. If it had been as bad as measles, Lois would have given up the visit, for she had had measles that spring and she remembered how ill she was. And Mother said she was fretful and whiny yet because of the measles. But, since it was not as bad, she decided to go. She might not catch it, anyway.

The next afternoon she went to Edna's house, and knocked on the door.

"Why," said Edna's mother, "here is Lois come to visit us. Edna, my dear, come get acquainted with Lois."

A little girl came flying into the room. She didn't look the least bit sick. If you can imagine the very nicest smile you know turned into a little girl, that would be Edna. There were smiles in her eyes, and in her cheeks and in her voice, and, by the way she skipped and pranced, I think they were even in her feet. She took Lois out to the garden to see her playhouse.

"Oh, I'm so glad you've come," she said. "Now we can play school."

"I don't like to play school," said Lois, with some of the fretfulness coming into her voice. "I'd rather play house."

"I like to play house too," said Edna. "Of course we'll play what you'd rather, because you're company. Would you rather be the mother?"

"I'd rather you'd choose what you want to be," murmured Lois, the fretfulness quite gone. "And afterward let's play school too. I think I'd like that."

So they played both games, and Lois didn't get a chance to whine or insist on her own way. Edna said she was company and should have her own way, so there couldn't be any argument about it. And Edna was so pleased with everything, and smiled and laughed so often, that Lois had to laugh too.

Lois went home that night skipping and singing. Father and Mother were on the porch.

"It was catching, after all," said Father.

"Yes," said Mother, "I see it was."

When Lois went to bed that night she examined herself carefully to see if there were any red spots on her arms or chest. There were not. She didn't have a headache or sore throat. What could she have caught?

Edna came to visit Lois in a few days. Without anyone's telling her to do it, Lois was very polite and asked Edna each time what she would rather do.

But at length Edna said: "You choose this time. It's more fun sometimes to do what other people like."

So they played singing-school, and Edna taught Lois some new songs.

"You do think of the nicest things to do," said Edna. "I think you're just lovely for a best friend."

When Edna had gone home, Lois said to her mother: "Edna thinks most everything is lovely. She thought it was a lovely day, though I thought it was too hot. And she liked our house and orchard, and my playthings, and the dog and my father and mother and me."

"What good times she must have when she sees so many things she likes!" said Mother. "I suppose she hardly ever finds anything to complain about."

"She doesn't," said Lois. "And she does have lots of fun. I believe I'll look for the nice things too. I'd like to have as much fun as Edna does."

"I see it is very, very catching," laughed Mother. But she wouldn't tell Lois what was catching, and Lois couldn't find a thing the matter with herself.

The next time Lois went to visit Edna she carried five cents in her apron pocket.

"Oh, Edna! let's go down to the little store and get some ice cream."

"I don't believe I want to buy any," said Edna.

"Won't your mother give you five cents?" asked Lois.

"Oh, yes; I have five cents, and lots more of my very own. But I don't believe I want to buy ice cream. I'm going to do something nicer with it."

"What is nicer than ice cream?" asked Lois.

"I believe I will tell you," said Edna, "and then you will see that it is more."

"The woman who washes for my mother brought her little girl with her once. Her little girl is a cripple, and her mother had to bring her in a wheelchair. I showed her some of my birthday books, for she loves to read. And what do you think! she never had a birthday present. Not one! You know she has only her mother to take care of her, and the mother earns only enough to buy the food and clothes. So I'm saving my money, all my allowance, and what's in the bank, and I'm going to have a real birthday party for her. She shall have a cake with candles and flowers, and a book full of lovely stories like some of my birthday books. So I can't spend any money for ice cream, because my birthday is next month. Won't it be nice to see how glad she is when she gets her first present?"

"Yes," said Lois, slowly. "Can I go, and see her get it?"

"Why, of course. That will be lovely. It will be a regular party, won't it?"

"I guess I won't get any ice cream, but I shall save my money, too, and I'll buy her a present."

"Oh, what fun that will be!" cried Edna.

And most of the afternoon the two girls talked about what they would do at the party for the girl who had never had a party before.

Lois came home skipping and singing again.

"Mother!" she cried, "I'm not going to buy any ice cream or candy for a long time."

"Why should that make you so happy?" asked Mother.

"Because I'm going to help give a birthday party to a girl that never had a party for her birthday before. We are going to have such fun."

"I see you have caught it," said Mother. "You have a well-developed case."

"Mother, what have I caught?" asked Lois.

Then Mother took Lois on her lap. "Dear, you have caught two of the best things."

(continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Highlights of W.N.A.C.

Recently I attended the Woman's National Auxiliary Convention in Fresno, California. It was a real blessing from the opening session on Monday night throughout the entire convention. I wish each of you could have enjoyed these blessings with the devotions on Monday evening were given by Mrs. Lorene Miley, missionary to Africa, and former president of the National Convention. Her timely remarks, given in her own gracious manner, put everything in order for an evening of worship to our Lord.

Mrs. Jenell Billows, missionary to Mexico, brought greetings to the convention, for which her husband, Rev. Arthur Billows, brought the evening message. Our hearts were moved as we listened to this Word of God, who has gone back to work among his people in Mexico, and to witness to them of the saving power of God. I told of the spiritual conditions there, how a short time ago he had stood by the grave of his father who had passed into eternity years ago without any knowledge of Christ whatsoever. It made me realize anew how we have failed as Christians to carry out the great command. On Tuesday morning, Mrs. Wesley Calverly, missionary on furlough from Japan, brought the devotions. We thank God for those who have gone to the foreign lands to witness there to those in darkness. Her message, too, was a blessing and challenge.

The most interesting part of the morning program was special music and testimonies from the children of our missionaries. Each child was dressed in costume representing the land from which he came. Rebekah and Jonathan Calvery sang, "Jesus Loves Me" in Japanese and also did a skit. Brenda Sanders from Hawaii, also brought a number in song. Vernon Whaley from Alaska, sang, "How Great Thou Art," and Rodney Whaley quoted Scripture from the book of John. Representing Mexico was little Danny Downs who was too young to have a special part on the program but was recognized along with the others.

A choir of fifty auxiliary women from the state of California rendered special music during the convention. This was well rendered and enjoyed by everyone.

The morning message was brought by Mrs. Eunice Edwards. The Lord used her in a great way for this service and hearts were tendered as she spoke from God's Word to a silenced and attentive audience.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Helen Sanders was in charge of devotions. It was a blessing to hear her speak and tell of some of her experiences during the past year in Hawaii. May God bless each of our missionaries, and may He burden the hearts of Free Will Baptist women to do more for them as they labor for us in their respective fields.

Last to mention, but certainly not least, was the declamation contest. This is a highlight in the convention each year. Our young people come from various states to participate in the contest and the theme is always, "Missions." Some of these young people write their own declamation, while others do not, but whatever the origin they are always a blessing to hear. We appreciate them giving their time and talent to help teach missions in this manner.

This year we were happy that the Y. P. A. winner and the G. T. A. runner-up were both from our own state of North Carolina. They are, Harvey Dupree from the Y. P. A., and Cynthia Phillips from the G. T. A. Both are from the Smithfield Church, Smithfield, North Carolina.

Also each year, an essay contest is sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary Convention on, "The Worth of a Family Altar." Second place winner in this contest was also from Smithfield Church and was Linda Adams.

We are thankful for these young people and trust they will be an inspiration to others in youth work.

All in all we had a very successful convention and I would like to say a great big, "Thank you," to the women of North Carolina for sending me as a representative from your state. It is always a pleasure to represent you any time and anywhere. Thanks again to each of you.

Mrs. Carl Dudley

National Declamation And Essay Winners

Y. P. A. and G. T. A. contestants from eight states participated in the National Declamation and Essay Contest held last month in Fresno, California during the Woman's National Auxiliary Convention. First and second place winners are listed as follows:

Essay—First place Y. P. A. winner was Jackie Whitehurst, Fairmount Park Church Norfolk, Virginia; second place Y. P. A. Winner was Glenda Adams, Smithfield Church, Smithfield, North Carolina. First place winner in the G. T. A. essay was Marilyn Harrison, Florida; second place was Eva Pearl Sponsler, Missouri.

Declamation—First place Y. P. A. winner was Harvey Dupree, Smithfield Church, Smithfield, North Carolina; second place Y. P. A. winner was Maybelline Eaddy, South Carolina. First place winner in the G. T. A. declamation was Ricky Duncan, Tulsa, Oklahoma; second place was Cynthia Phillips, Smithfield Church, Smithfield, North Carolina.

NEW DECLAMATION AVAILABLE

New declamations are being prepared now and will be made available to any of our youth who desire them. They may be ordered from W. N. A. C. office, 3801 Richland Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee.

G. T. A. AND Y. P. A. RANKS

Youth leaders and sponsors are urged to encourage the Y. P. A.'s and G. T. A.'s toward the completion of their ranks as outlined in detail in the respective manuals of each organization. As of now, the awards are greater than before.

The first and second awards for the G. T. A. ranks are combined as the first award; the present third and fourth awards are combined as the second award. Number 3 award is a bracelet with a charm with G. T. A. initials. Number 4 award will be a second charm, a Bible; and the fifth award will be another charm, a world.

Certificates of rank recognitions are also available and may be ordered from W. N. A. C. office.

NATIONAL PROJECT FOR G. T. A.'s AND Y. P. A.'s—1960-61

The National project for G. T. A.'s and Y. P. A.'s for 1960-61 is the supplying of medical facilities and equipment for the children's division for use on the mission field of Africa.

Anyone desiring to make inquiries or suggestions relative to our youth work may contact Mrs. Eugene Waddell, 603 Garner Rd., Garner, North Carolina.

Mrs. Eugene Waddell,
National Youth Chairman

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Gift Honors the Rev. J. C. Moye

The Free Will Baptist Heritage Foundation, an endowment fund for Mount Olive College, continues to grow. A recent gift of $100 was made by the Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church, near Ayden, in honor of the Reverend N. B. Barrow, president of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists.

The Foundation was established in 1958 as a means of strengthening the Free Will Baptist denomination through Mount Olive College.

Mrs. B. B. Murphy (left), Grifton, re-

Church, near Ayden, in honor of the Reverend and Mrs. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill. Moye was a long-time pastor of Elm Grove Church and served during the construction of a new brick church, one of the most beautiful rural churches in eastern North Carolina.

presentative of the Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church, presents a certificate from the Free Will Baptist Heritage Foundation of Mount Olive College to the Rev. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill. Looking on are Mrs. J. C. Moye and President W. Burkette Raper of Mount Olive College.

Human Skulls as Drinking Cups

Africaner was such a desperate, hardened character that the government of Cape Town offered $500 for him, dead or alive. He was a terror in South Africa. A missionary, Robert Moffat, went to his tribe. "We will never see you alive again," the friends of Moffat said. "Africaner will use your head as a drinking cup!" "I'll trust God to take care of me and deliver me in times of danger," said Moffat. Moffat preached Christ to Africaner and to his tribe. His first convert was Africaner! So completely was Africaner delivered from sin's bondage that the colonial ruler exclaimed when he saw him: "This is a miracle! It is the eighth wonder of the world!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

Ministerial Conflicts And Conquests

(continued from page seven)

himself was the most daring of them but laid all his thoughts at the feet of Jesus. It has been well said "Representation of the natural will, which is the seat of Satan's machinations, is the true aim of spiritual warfare."

Now, the gospel, if truly believed, do all this. It is God's own instrument. It is the power and wisdom of God, that which the Holy Spirit performs work of regeneration and transformation. The evidences of its triumphs are numerous and manifest. The Corinthians themselves were evidences of its working! They are our epistle, written in our hearts, known and read of all men" (2 Corinthians 3:2).

Beloved, there is no need for a new message for these so-called advanced Christians, but for a new and clearer and more earnest proclamation of the old gospel, which is itself ever new. The weapons which are mighty through God are still the weapons we need today. We cannot meet and conquer the sin and unbelief of these days with higher education, no matter how high it may be, but only by the simple gospel of Christ, preached in the power of the Holy Spirit.

We quote, in conclusion, the words of C. H. Spurgeon: "Of the works of a famous alchemist of the thirteenth century it is said, that (whoever would read his book to find out the secret would employ all his labor in vain.' All the gold makers who have written upon their favorite mystery in the like predicament, no one can comprehend what the secret is which they pretend to divulge. May we not suggest that if they had any secret to tell they would put it in intelligible language, that their pompous and involved sentences are only a screen for their utter ignorance of the matter? When we hear preachers talking of divine things in a style save more of the metaphysical subtlety than the gospel plainness, when seeking sinners do not find out the way of salvation because of their philosophical jargon, may we not with justice suspect that the preacher is unable to know the gospel, and conceals his palpable ignorance behind the veil of rhetorical magnificence? Surely if a man understood a matter so important to all hearers as the way of salvation, he could feel constrained to tell it out in a way which all might comprehend." Gospel Herald.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

The Danger of Military Alliances

(Lesson for August 28)

Lesson: Isaiah 30:1-3, 15-18.

Golden Text: Isaiah 30:15.

INTRODUCTION

These people of Isaiah's day made their decisions regarding national security on the basis of their own wisdom—the prophet and the Word of God were left out of their consideration, “That walk to go down into Egypt, and have not asked at my mouth; strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh, and to trust in the shadow of Egypt!” (Vs. 2). At the time of this prophecy, the kingdom of Judah stood as a buffer state between Egypt and the growing empire of the Assyrians. The people of Judah reasoned that it would be to their advantage to ally with Egypt to help defend Judah against the Assyrian army. On the other hand, there were several things they did not take into consideration: One was the fact that an Egyptian army could not reach Judah to help if the Assyrians should make a surprise attack; and most important of all was the fact that they did not consult God in their alliance with the Egyptians. When people decide to take circumstances into their own hands and leave God out of their considerations, they will be sure to encounter many unforeseen problems which will bring them a great deal of trouble.—The Student (F.W.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

Isaiah 30:1: Perhaps wars have been multiplied because of military alliances, but they have been caused by these alliances too. Usually it was it dangerous for Israel to form alliances with the nations about her. The Jews would have trouble with their neighbor and then make an alliance with another, instead of putting their trust in their God.

Vs. 3: I wonder about military alliances among the nations today. “It is better to trust in the LORD than to put confidence in man” (Psalm 118:8). Of all the hundreds of military pacts that have been made, how many are holding good today?

Vs. 15: Notice what the Lord required for salvation and strength. They were to return to God and trust in Him. Only in this way shall men have strength to do what is required, and to bear any burden laid on them. The return must be in quietness and in confidence, suppressing all doubts and fears and turbulent passions.

4. Vs. 16: The things the people did of themselves were the very things that caused their hurt. No flight can be swift enough to escape the just punishment of Jehovah. And there is no use calling for the rocks and the mountains (Luke 23:30).

5. Vs. 18: Let us wait upon the Lord. Just be still and know that He is God. Let us make no alliances with Satan and the world. “. . . whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God” (James 4:4).—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Isaiah's opposition to an alliance with Egypt was twofold. First, this course only invited disaster. If they were successful and drove out the Assyrians, they would immediately become the captives of Egypt because they were much weaker than Egypt. If they were unsuccessful, the wrath of the Assyrians would be against them. What did Judah have to gain from such an alliance? It was not a good political move.

In the second place, Isaiah opposed this alliance with Egypt because it showed a distrust in God. Had not God proved Himself once already by saving them from the wrath of the Assyrians? Now, to turn to Egypt and accept their pagan gods and way of life would be to distrust God. That is why Isaiah called them rebellious children.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

2. In Isaiah 36 and 37, we have positive proof that Jehovah could deliver Judah and Israel without any help from Egypt. In Jeremiah 40—42, we see the determination of Jewish leaders to trust Egypt for deliverance, even if it meant willful disobedience to the commands of God Himself.

3. From the experience of Judah in the days of Isaiah, we note that after her alliances failed, she was forced to acknowledge the weakness of her foreign policy and to seek the wisdom of the Lord. In a similar manner, the United States is now paying heavily, and will pay for some time to come, for her alliance with Russia during the Second World War. There seems to be nothing left for us to do but just keep paying in human life and vast sums of money for the time being, but there is plenty for the church to do toward teaching the evils of Russian Communism. It is the conviction of this writer that we should speak out against any future foreign policy that would involve us any more intimately with the Russian materialistic and aesthetic government.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

4. Sin weakens an individual and a nation, and Israel had sinned so vagrantly and so long that she no longer had the strength and the courage to stand face to face with her foes. Like the sin of Achan, during the early days of Israel's history, sin had so weakened the ranks of Israel that there was no hope for victory until that sin was removed.

God gave her the opportunity to obtain deliverance, and she refused; therefore, utter and complete defeat by her enemies must be her reward.—The Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

5. Reliable information asserts why Adolph Hitler did not cross the English channel and take England. It was all planned. Russia had helped Hitler by supplying oil for the planes and ships, with which to conquer England. Why did Hitler not cross the channel? He found out just in time, that is before he started for England, that Stalin had hundreds of planes ready to strike at Germany as soon as the German Army was at sea or in England. Hitler changed his plans and brother Joe became enemy Joe. Soon the German legions started for Moscow and points east. That so-called friendly alliance resulted in nearly ten million lives of Russia being snuffed out. It prolonged the Second World War almost two years, and caused England and the United States to form an alliance by which Uncle Sam got in the war. Many thousands of our men were killed in the conflict.—The Bible Expositor.

6. A general statement with far-reaching implications closes out the lesson for today. Every person may claim its promise, when the conditions are met. We are told, “Blessed are they that wait for Him.” Jesus preached the same message, died and rose again that the waiting be not in vain.

The Christian should wait on the Lord daily for all things, and unreservedly and expectantly for His glorious appearing. The unsaved should be exhorted to wait on the Lord for salvation, for there is none other name under heaven whereby they can be saved.—Selected.

“Lord, while our souls in faith repose
Upon Thy precious blood,
Peace like an even river flows,
And mercy, like a flood.”

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

buildings in Monterrey, Mexico. It is hoped that the work on this project will begin immediately.

A great missionary service was held Wednesday night at the national meeting. Dr. Bob Picree, president of World Vision, was the speaker. God greatly used him to bless our people. Dozens came forward to dedicate their lives for missionary service. A record offering for missions was joyfully given at the close of the service.

All offerings received in our office are credited to the state from which the offerings come. Please note that your state can only get credit on the quota for money posted on our books. All missionaries have an account, and money designated goes into their account. It is never used for any purpose but that specified by the donor. Our general fund is used to pay missionary salaries when they do not have money in their account. In other words, every missionary serving under the National Home Missions Board is paid a monthly salary from our office. Therefore, we recommend that your missionary gifts be sent through proper channels, and sent regularly.

For your prayerful consideration, I would like to list a group of our missionaries whose accounts are in the red at this time. I believe you will want to help us with some of these accounts since our general fund cannot continue to meet this heavy load:

Rev. and Mrs. Luther Sanders, Hawaii, $131.28.

Rev. and Mrs. Johnnie Postlewaite, Northwest, $1,632.00.

Miss Molly Barker, Arizona, $362.69.

Rev. and Mrs. Melitino Martinez, Miami, $1,099.02.

Miss Bessie Yceley, Arizona, $613.00.

Rev. and Mrs. Mack Owens, New England, $1,261.08.

Rev. and Mrs. Mark Vandivort, New England, $200.00.

All other missionaries maintain a balance in their account at this time. In addition to the need of the above accounts, it is necessary to raise funds to get our two new couples to the field. God has been faithful to lay the burden on the hearts of our people in the past, and we are trusting Him now.

The National Home Missions Board adopted a resolution to raise $4,000 to help get a building for our Spanish church in Miami. This is a great need, since we have used rented property there so long. Will you pray about this need. I feel we have some business men who will read this letter that can make a sizable gift toward building this church. Any amount given will be highly appreciated by the board and the missionaries.

Rev. Wade Jernigan of Norman, Oklahoma, was elected to the board at the National Association. We welcome him to this position. Our sincere gratitude is extended to Rev. William T. Newsome of Detroit, Michigan, who served the board so faithfully while a member. His work will always be remembered with joy.

Rev. and Mrs. Mark Vandivort were sent by the board to work in New England for the summer. Reports of their work is gratifying.

Yours for Christ and missions,
Homer E. Willis
General Director

FINANCIAL REPORT—JULY, 1960

Balance Brought Forward
July 1, 1960	$10,745.60
Total Receipts	15,623.82
Total	$26,369.42
Total Disbursements	2,541.71
Cash in Bank July 31	$23,827.71
Balance in General Fund	$ 8,460.80
Balance in Designated Funds	15,366.91
Total	$23,827.71

	1960	Amount
State	Quota	Given	Balance
Ala.	$ 1,800	$ 1,254.98	$ 545.02
Alaska		54.00	54.00*
Ariz.	360	267.41	92.59
Ark.	2,400	573.81	1,826.19
Calif.	2,900	1,055.60	1,844.40
D. C.		3.00	3.00*
Fla.	1,800	885.21	914.79
Ga.	2,400	1,135.40	1,264.60
Hawaii		10.25	10.25*
Idaho	360	35.91	324.00
Illinois	2,900	766.53	2,133.47
Ind.	100	206.45	106.45*
Kan.	360	175.69	184.31
Ky.	2,700	1,398.23	1,301.77
La.	240	8.51	231.49
Maine	360		360.00
Md.		20.00	20.00*
Mich.	4,800	726.60	4,073.40
Miss.	1,800	426.32	1,373.68
Mo.	5,000	1,798.45	3,201.55
N. J.		5.00	5.00*

N. M.	240	111.72	128
N. C.	10,000	7,104.96	2,895
Ohio	2,900	1,713.63	1,186
Okl.	4,200	1,738.31	2,461
Oregon	240	71.40	168
S. C.	2,400	901.32	1,498
Tenn.	6,550	3,979.22	2,570
Texas	2,900	502.08	2,397
Va.	2,400	1,256.98	1,143
Wash.	600	73.00	527
W. Va.	400	427.24	27
Sp. Gifts	5,890	642.85	5,247
Misc.	5,000	9,459.57	4,459
Salcs	2,464	1,264.74	1,199

Totals $76,464 $40,016.12 $36,447

*This amount given above quota.

Stories for Boys and Girls

(continued from page twelve)

a little person, or a big one, either, catch: they are a merry spirit and a big heart. We knew that Edna was happy and sunshiny, so we hoped that her merry spirit was catching. Father and I felt very glad when we saw our little daughter grow selfish and caring for herself first. Edna was kindhearted and thought of other people first. We hoped it was catching. And I noticed that those things were. Our little girl was growing more cheerful and kind each day. Aren't you glad you caught something?

Lois was very glad, and she thought it all evening. She meant to catch her cheerfulness and kindness. Then she thought of something new.

"Mother," she said at bedtime, "perhaps someone may catch some nice things of mine sometimes."

"I think they will," said Mother. "I noticed that smiles and kindness are more catching than the measles."—Christian Standard.

THE MAIL BOX

CHOIR DIRECTOR DESIRES POSITION

"I desire a position as choir director. I have had several years of experience and am available immediately. References can be furnished. I prefer a church in a southern climate. For further information, contact me at the following address: C. L. Woodruff, Route 3, Box 11, Statesville, North Carolina.

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, August 24, 1960

AUG 26 1960

FELLOWSHIP FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH, BRYAN, TEXAS

Pictured above is the new building of the Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church of Bryan, Texas. The church organized in 1955, and has shown continual growth since that date. For more information about the church, see News Notes section of this issue.

Editorial

WORDS OF APPRECIATION

C. H. Overman

As this issue of The Free Will Baptist goes out, our readers will note the changes which will become effective on September 1, 1960, pertaining to the management and editorship of the Free Will Baptist Press. Both Mr. Barrow and I earnestly request the interest and prayers of our readers.

The task in this work is stupendous. Only those who have worked in this capacity are able to recognize this fact. It is a big task, even bigger than most of the problems which now exist in certain areas. In assuming the position as editor, on September 1, I am made aware of the opportunity and responsibilities which are mine. I came to the Free Will Baptist Press in October of 1957, almost three years ago. At the time the proposition was presented me, I had never had the slightest inclination that the Lord would have me enter this type of work, but He has a purpose for every life and we should follow in this purpose by faith and trust in Him. Even now, the opportunities are staggering.

There will be some of my friends who will be looking to me; to take note of my policies and position. First of all, however, I shall remember that I am responsible to God and the Lord Jesus Christ who loved me and redeemed me. I shall pray that God will give me the grace, courage and mental alertness to always serve and follow Him. In the next editorial, we shall discuss more completely our feelings in the matter in the light of certain conditions.

Within a few days after this issue is placed in the mails, Mr. Fort will be leaving the Press. Ever since his resignation has been made known, many comments have been made relating to his leaving. There is no hesitancy, however, in stating that all of them have been favorable and with the highest compliments. All of them have expressed the fact that he has done a splendid job, one which our denomination should be proud of. During the slightly more than six years which he has served the Free Will Baptist Press, he has never lost sight of the denomination's need in the field of literature, Sunday schools, leagues, etc. His efforts have been channeled in the direction of meeting these needs, without thinking of a stopping point, but ever pressing for improvement. He has ever kept the needs of our people uppermost in his purpose and aims. Many have expressed a regret in seeing him leave, and we express this same regret.

It is certain that most everyone wants credit to go where it is due, and the out-going editor deserves much credit for the contributions which he has made to our denomination. It is our firm conviction that each decision which he has made was done unselfishly and in the best interest of our denominational needs in the field of literature. We cannot but believe that the possibilities to turn out better work has come about, to a large degree, because of what he has worked so faithfully toward.

During these months as assistant editor, I have worked closely with Mr. Fort. As a younger man, and as a minister of the gospel, I have relied most heavily on his confidence and judgment in decisive matters. I came to the Press with no knowledge of the work involved. I was a learner, but I was blessed with the help of a man who wanted to teach me, and I have tried to learn and apply myself accordingly. I am thankful that the confidence which has been expressed in me, has developed from the assistance of a capable man of God. His counsel with me has always been sound and reasonable. He has respected me as an individual, for which I am most grateful. He has been a friend in the work here and I trust that this friendship shall long endure.

There are several lessons which have been made very real to me through our close acquaintance which he has helped me learn or at least I have tried to apply them in my own life. The first lesson which I want to mention is the courage to face a problem; to determine what to do and then do it to the best of my ability. You cannot dodge an issue indefinitely. One of the hardest lessons to face in reality, was the fact that man makes many mistakes. I had to learn to make the best of them and then forget them and go on to another task. This, of course, becomes quite difficult at times. Another lesson which must be applied by all Christians is to stick by the truth and what they feel is right. Mr. Fort has reminded me time and time again that truth will prevail. All must live by a purpose, and our purpose shall be to make these lessons more applicable in our own heart.

I am indeed grateful for the experiences which I have had in my friendship with Mr. Fort. It is my prayer that I shall fill this position with the sanity, dignity and fortitude with which he held it.

BLOC VOTING

"Do Catholics engage in bloc voting? They say not, but there is evidence to the contrary.

"In New Jersey, a city government sold at a give-away price a valuable hospital to Roman Catholics to help them establish a medical college. Not long afterward Roman Catholics in New Jersey united in voting against a public bond issue to finance establishment of a state medical school.

"We ask the question again, 'Do Catholics engage in bloc voting?'"—Biblical Recorder.

Volume 75

Number

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

August 24, 1960

Edited and published weekly by the
Free Will Baptist Press
Ayden, N. C.

Approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, and entered at the post office at Ayden, N. C., as second-class matter.

Manager and Editor..... J. O. Overman
Assistant Editor..... C. H. Overman

Subscriptions Payable in Advance

6 months $
1 year

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor on Friday preceding the publication date of that issue.

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor or the Free Will Baptist Press. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or the person sending it in.

Board of Directors

R. N. Hinnant..... President
D. W. Hansley..... Vice-President
J. W. Alford..... Secretary
W. L. Jernigan, N. Bruce Barrow, Hubert Burress and Owen The...

L U S T

(James 1:14, 15)

Rev. Allen Bunton
Elkhard, Indiana

BEFORE a disease can be controlled, we must find out what is causing it. There is no difference. Before we can really get out of sin in our lives, by God's help, we must first understand why we sin. Reason for one is lust. Lust is a subject we seldom hear preached. In fact, I don't believe I have ever heard a sermon on lust.

I believe if we God-called ministers would only stop long enough for God to re-buke us that lust is the very heart of sin, we would not fail to warn our people of the dangers of lust. Some people say they are tempted by the things of this world, but this isn't true (James 1:13). We are tempted because of the things of this world which please the eye. Then we begin to desire, to want, to get and to lust after this forbidden just as Eve did in the Garden of Eden. James said, "Every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust and enticed" (James 1:14); therefore, we are tempted because we lust, and thus commit sin. Remember before death came into the Garden of Eden, Eve began to lust after the forbidden fruit. Yes, friend, lust is the beginning of sin. Let us notice, the text states that every man. This means the young, the old, the rich, the poor, the old Christian, the new Christian, the preacher, the deacon, the teacher, the singer and the lay member; none of us are immune to sin unless we do not lust after it. God is no respecter of persons, the pastor is just as much accountable for his sins as the lay member. I forbid that I should ever say a degradation to anyone. So many times we preachers will get our mind and eyes on worldly gain, or self-glory, and try our own way and not God's until we begin to lust after them to the extent we forget about God. We know this is sin. When sin comes into one's life, he must confess and repent of it, regardless of who he is.

James uses the words, drawn away. Have you ever held a magnet close to a piece of metal and noticed the drawing power it has? The metal cannot keep itself from contacting the magnet after it has gotten so close to it. The same is true with lust. To explain my point, perhaps you have known a person in the past who has been a drunkard all his adult life and was saved by God's power. He starts attending church and serving the Lord. Satan, knowing his weakness, leads him by a liquor store. He only looks at the display as he walks by; but later, when he is having temptations, troubles and trials, he goes for a walk. For some strange reason he just can't stay away from the display of bottles in the window of the liquor store. All of a sudden that lust, that deep desire, that craving, is more than he can stand by himself, since he already has problems. The Holy Spirit is saying, "Don't do it," but Satan is saying, "Come on, drink your troubles away." Since he has been lusting after it so long, Satan's way seems the only way. If this man had not stopped to look at the liquor in the first place, chances are he would have turned to his Bible instead of the bottle in time of trouble. This friend is an example of what lust can do to a person. You say this can't happen to me, but the Bible says it can. This man didn't intend to get drunk, but he took his eyes off God and on his weakness. He left the loving arms of Jesus and today is a sinful, hell-bound drunkard because of lust. Just as the magnet draws metal to it, lust draws sin to us.

James said, "When lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin." When you are tempted, it doesn't mean you have sinned. You may yield to the temptation, or else lust after it until it comes between you and God. Remember it isn't the first look that creates lust, it's the second look. Jesus said, "... whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart" (Matthew 5:28). We might just as well commit the act of adultery as lust after the other sex. Not only in adultery can lust be sin, but anything you desire more than you desire God. You lust after it and it is sin. Once I had a deacon in my church who didn't talk about anything except his money. Wherever you saw him, all he could think about was a way to make another dollar. The same can be true of our wife, children, automobile, home or anything else that we desire before God. We all know how David, a man after God's own heart, a man who was respected and looked up to by his people, a man who had great power with the Lord until one day he went to the roof of his palace and saw a beautiful woman taking a bath; he looked and looked and began to lust after this woman. After he had found out who she was, he sent for her. After David had her husband killed, she bore him a child, who caused the curse of death to be on his family. These and many more sins in David's life happened because of lust! Because he failed to turn his head the first time he saw the beautiful woman. We can hear David crying to God, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation . . ." (Psalm 51:12).

Paul was teaching us, in 1 Corinthians 10:6, that these things were our examples that we shouldn't lust after evil things as they also lusted. Remember if God judged men of old for lust and sin; He will us today. Paul said in Titus 2:12, "... denying ungodliness and worldly lust, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world." The reason every nation in the world today is in turmoil is because of their lust for power to rule the world. They have tried to conquer space and man until they have forgotten God. They are drunk on worldly knowledge and crazy with lust. May God help us to dismiss from our minds some of this worldly lust and turn to Him.

Peter said to abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul. If we know what our weakness is, why not stay away from it. If you don't know, ask the Master, He will tell you. "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts" (James 4:3).

Would you have preached that last sermon or done that last good deed if you had known in advance that someone else would get credit for it, even though you did please God?

As I bring this message to a close, I do want to repeat that lust is the beginning of sin. Thank God, if we have been lusting after evil things, or if there is sin in our life, Jesus will forgive us and give us grace and power to go on for Him. We must first turn to Him. "So I gave them up unto their own hearts' lust: and they walked in their own counsels" (Psalm 81:12). Why not turn for a closer walk with God before He turns you over to your own hearts' lust and be lost forever. Sinner, if you have read this message, don't lust after the world any longer. Look to the Cross where the best friend you ever had gave His life that you might be saved. Believe Him, accept Him, do what He says and you can go to heaven with us.

My Successors In Office

J. O. Fort

Since we shall be leaving the position as manager-editor which we have held for several years, we deem it an honor and privilege to take this means of introducing those who will succeed us in office at the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. We use the term, those, because the Board of Directors of the Free Will Baptist Press has acted very wisely in dividing the responsibilities between two persons, one to be editor and another to be manager.

THE EDITOR

The Reverend C. H. Overman will become editor of the Free Will Baptist Press as of September 1, 1960.

Mr. Overman was born in Wayne County, North Carolina, on October 31, 1930. He received his public school education in Nahunta High School of Wayne County, graduating from that school in 1949. He attended Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, from 1950 to 1952. He graduated from Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, North Carolina, in 1957, receiving the bachelor of arts degree from that institution.

He united with Union Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Fremont, North Carolina, when he was twelve years of age. He was ordained to the gospel ministry in the Free Will Baptist Denomination in 1952. His experience as a pastor is as follows:

Malachi's Chapel, Soundside and Gum Neck Churches in Tyrrell County, North Carolina, 1952-54.

Spring Branch and Grimsley Churches, Greene County, North Carolina, 1954-57.

Spring Branch Church, Greene County, full time, 1957-58.

It was during his pastorate of Spring Branch Church that his sterling qualities and effective ministry came to our attention. Upon further investigation of his work where he had served, we found that he had served faithfully and well wherever he had been; therefore we promptly offered him the position as assistant editor on our staff. He accepted the position and came to us in the fall of 1957, in which position he has justified our choice many times over.

We sincerely believe that this reasonably young man will fill his new position with credit to himself and great benefit to the literature program of the denomination. He is well prepared, altogether capable and consecrated to Christ and his task. He deserves the prayers and support of the entire denomination as he serves in his new capacity.

THE MANAGER

The Reverend N. Bruce Barrow who has been elected as manager of the Free Will Baptist Press is forty-eight years of age. He was born in the Hull Road Community of

REV. N. BRUCE BARROW

Greene County, North Carolina. He graduated from the Snow Hill High School, Snow Hill, North Carolina, in 1930. His college and seminary preparation is as follows:

Attended North Park College, Chicago, Illinois—one year.

Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Illinois—graduated from general Bible course in 1933.

Northern Baptist Seminary, Chicago, Illinois—graduated in pastor's course in 1935.

Other institutions attended for short terms—Lewis Institute (summer session); Chicago Presbyterian College (one semester); Texas A. and M. College (completed classroom work for master's degree).

Mr. Barrow united with the Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church, Greene County, North Carolina, at the age of 13 years. He was ordained to the gospel ministry of the Free Will Baptist Denomination in 1935.

He has served as pastor of twenty-six churches in three states during the twenty-seven years of his ministry, including a rather wide service in revival campaigns.

He has held offices of honor and trust including the moderatorship of church bodies from the level of the local church through the National Association of Free Will Baptists; has been a member of various boards and committees at all levels including a total of eight years as a member of the Board of Directors of the Free Will Baptist Press. At the present time, he is president of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists. He has been listed in Who's Who in America ten years.

From our long and intimate acquaintance with Mr. Barrow, we have no doubt that he will serve faithfully and well in new position. As in the case of Mr. Overman, we urge that you support Mr. Barrow with your prayers and patronage.

In conclusion, let us say that we shall be intensely interested in the progress of this institution because we know the worth of the service which it is rendering to our beloved denomination.

THE MAIL BOX

APPRECIATES ARTICLE

"I would like to say how much I enjoyed reading the article, 'The Christian's Attitude Toward Modernism.' Truly all of us who believe in being saved by grace through faith and then living separate lives as an example to those in sin, appreciate this article. Those who are raising children to enter our colleges should certainly be concerned about our teachers—those who are the leaders of our schools and colleges. I praise the Lord for ministers who still have enough backbone to stand for their convictions and not back down when faced with this issue. Jesus calls for the love of God in their hearts to stand for their convictions and not back down when faced with this issue. Jesus calls for salvation, separation and dedication. (Either of these be successful without the other? Thank you, Rev. Creech, for your inspiring article."—Mrs. Billy Jackson, Route 5, Box 27, Greenville, North Carolina.

TREASURES PAPER

"I have been reading The Free Will Baptist for about forty years, and I treasure it very much. I don't think it right if a copy of it gets torn up or destroyed before passing it on to others to read after reading it myself.

"When I was a child, I well remember going off with my dad, the late Elder J. Harris, on trips to some of his churches and throwing out the Baptist in front of people's homes for them to read, hoping that they would be spiritually benefited by my giving them an opportunity to read such a wonderful paper. My father thought it was too precious to be destroyed."—Mrs. Peter Brown, Route Box 40, Greenville, North Carolina.

ATTENTION MISSOURI FREE WILL BAPTIST

"We praise God for The Free Will Baptist. It has been a blessing to our home."

"If at all possible, we would like to publish a notice in the paper. We are located at Waynesville, Missouri, the gate to Fort Leonard Wood Army Installation (continued on page sixteen)

Study of Theological Liberalism, Etc.

(Editor's Note: The following report was adopted at the 1960 session of the National Association of Free Will Baptists, meeting in Fresno, California. The report was given to the Commission on Liberalism which is now being made a permanent Commission.)

AUL WARNED that the time will come when men will not endure the doctrine. That time came when the church became engulfed in the Roman Catholic heresy. Later, after the rise of Protestantism and the revival of New Testament Christianity, the church faced doctrinal attacks. The climax of these was the attempt of Satan to destroy God's kingdom by modernism. This is perhaps his most successful attack because it is his most subtle attempt. It works from within. Like a worm in an apple, modernism eats away at the core of the church leaving a beautiful outside but no heart.

REPORT ON OUR WORK

This Commission has studied the foe of theological liberalism. Attention was given to the fact of what constitutes a modernist church work. The term is used to designate those who believe and teach certain modern theories about Scriptural truth. It does not necessarily apply to the use of modern equipment. It does not necessarily apply to a church with a new building of temporary design. In the most generally accepted sense, a modernist is a theological liberal who does not hold to historical Christian truths. The doctrines of the modernist include such errors as the following: The Bible is a human book full of mistakes instead of the inerrant Word of God; the miracles of the Bible are more myth than miracle; Jesus is the illegitimate son of an unfortunate woman instead of the virgin-born, sinless Son of the Almighty God; the death of Christ is a martyr's finish to a religious leader's life instead of the substitutionary atonement for the sins of the world; the resurrection of Jesus was a mental hallucination of some misguided zealots instead of the victorious triumph of the King of kings and Lord of lords; the need of the world is psychological adjustment instead of Holy Ghost regeneration; and the mission of the church is more to construct a new social order than to snatch sinners from eternal hell by God's gospel.

Consideration was also given to the new modernism, neo-orthodoxy. This is the erroneous method of using good old fundamental gospel words to disguise deceptive beliefs. Many who can freely use such terms as conversion, Word of God, inspiration and preach the gospel mean something very different from the preaching of such men as Elder Benjamin Randall and Elder Paul Palmer.

Some thought was given to worldliness and secularism which breed modernism. The more deadly enemies enter through the doors opened by loose living.

A few papers have been written. Extensive plans have been laid to cover the subject thoroughly by the help of a large number of able Free Will Baptists. The Commission feels its chief duty is to encourage qualified people to submit material on the needed subjects. We have not sought to edit anything. We the members have also written some material which we hope to get before our people through our papers.

APPRAISAL OF OUR DENOMINATION

WITH RESPECT TO LIBERALISM

The Free Will Baptist denomination is greatly blessed in that we have no great problem over modernism at the present time. Certain factors play a part in this picture.

One characteristic of our churches in the past that has helped us is conservatism. This in itself is no particular virtue, but it has given us the tendency to steer away from the liberal ideas of modernists.

Alignment with the National Association of Evangelicals has helped make us aware of certain dangers. This group of denominations helps alert members to the peril of modernism. It keeps us aware of the trends created by its antagonistic counterpart—the National Council of Churches.

The firm position taken by the Free Will Baptist Bible College on the fundamentals of our faith is strongly in our favor. Current concern over future denominational loyalty to our historic beliefs chiefly arises from this factor. We find that modernism's biggest enemy among Free Will Baptists is the Bible College.

The orthodoxy of our denominational leaders is an encouraging sign. We feel that those now leading the work of the National Association will never betray the cause by being soft on liberalism.

However, as we see it, Free Will Baptists are approaching a crossroads. Within this decade, additional measures should be taken to insure our future against modernism or else trends toward liberalism might set the stage for false doctrine in years to come. It is not enough to be relatively free from the peril now. Safeguards should be created against future encroachments. One of our weakest points might be our inevitable drive for progress. All of us must recognize that the only real progress made is spiritual and Scriptural progress.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE FUTURE

Free Will Baptists must pray and work for a revival of Bible standards in Christian living. Great stress should be given to the holy heart and separated life of the Lord's people. Worldliness should be defined and churches should call on members to tow the line. High spiritual standards should be maintained in the ministry. Brotherly love should be exercised in dealing with the problems of worldliness.

Separation from modernists in accordance with 2 Corinthians 6:14: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: . . ." and other Scriptures should be maintained. Clear lines of loyalty to Scriptural brethren should be held. Though one loves the soul of the modernist, his false beliefs should be exposed.

Those who have been educated by modernists and have had close association with them should make their alignment with orthodoxy and disapproval of theological liberalism known clearly and unquestionably. Young men should be discouraged from going to liberal institutions, particularly for theological training.

Pastors should doctrinally prepare their people to give a reason for the hope. Laymen need to be aware of the issues at stake. Doctrinal sermons help teach the Lord's people. Some ministers have brought a series of doctrinal messages for this purpose.

(continued from page fourteen)

NEWS NOTES

September 18, Hull Road Church
 September 19, Harrel's Chapel Church
 September 20, Grimsley Church
 September 21, Hookerton Church
 September 22, Maury Church
 September 23, Saints' Delight Church
 September 25, Howell Swamp Church
 September 26, Friendship Church
 September 27, Marlboro Church
 September 28, Bethany Church
 September 29, Piney Grove Church (County)
 September 30, Gum Swamp Church

The Rev. Bobby Aycock Available for Missionary Services

The Rev. and Mrs. Bobby Aycock were formally approved as missionary candidates to Brazil at the annual meeting of the Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

Mr. Aycock is a native of eastern North Carolina. He was reared by Godly parents in a Free Will Baptist home. Having been converted at an early age and devoting outstanding service in youth activities, he is well-known by most Free Will Baptists in this area.

Mr. Aycock graduated from Lucama High School in the year 1952, and from Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, 1956. Since that time, he has served as assistant pastor at The First Free Will Baptist Church, Portsmouth, Virginia, and pastor of Plymouth Free Will Baptist Church, Plymouth, North Carolina. He is married to the former Miss Sue White, daughter of a Free Will Baptist minister of Arkansas. They are parents of two girls, Deborah and Rebecca.

Mr. and Mrs. Aycock are available for missionary services, conferences or revival during September, October and November. For information, contact R. Eugene Waddell, 603 Garner Road, Garner, North Carolina, or telephone EM 2-1149.

Sarecta Church Announces Home-Coming

Home-Coming Day will be observed at Sarecta Free Will Baptist Church near Kenansville, North Carolina, September 18, 1960. The day will begin with Sunday school at 10:00. Following a picnic lunch, there will be special singing in the afternoon. All singers are urged to come and participate.

Beginning the first Sunday in September, 1960, regular worship services will be changed from second and fourth Sundays to first and third Sundays.

Rev. M. E. Godwin, Dunn, North Carolina, is the pastor and cordially invites everyone to take note of these announcements and attend these services.

Staten Elected Moderator of National Association

The Rev. Reverend Ralph Staten, pastor of Goshen Free Will Baptist Church, North Belmont, North Carolina, was elected moderator of The National Association of Free Will Baptists in its twenty-fourth annual session meeting last month in Fresno, California.

Pictured above is Mr. Staten (left) and the Rev. Charles A. Thigpen (right), past moderator of the Association. Mr. Thigpen served as moderator for six years. Mr. Staten has previously served in this capacity several years ago.

N. C. Children's Home Picture Program Itinerary

Listed below is the picture program itinerary of the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina. This itinerary is under the supervision of Miss Bonnie Farmer. All programs will begin at eight o'clock each evening.

Central Conference
 September 6, Black Jack Church
 September 8, Grifton Church
 September 9, Elm Grove Church
 September 11, Ayden Church
 September 12, Winterville Church
 September 15, Watery Branch Church
 September 16, Antioch Church

Smithfield Choir Renders Special Musical Services

Pictured above is the twenty-six member choir of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Smithfield, North Carolina. Under the direction of Mr. Lynton Scott (first row, extreme right), the choir has received recognition locally and in different sections of the country. Local friends have enjoyed special Christmas and Easter cantatas which they have presented in the past. Two young evangelists, Dr. Bill Rice and Dr. Fehsenfeld, have recorded the choir's services and have used it on radio broadcasts on various stations in the United States. Each month the choir presents a half hour musical program on the local radio station.

On August 30, the choir will present special music during the evening session of a one day Bible Conference being held at the Smithfield Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Chester Phillips is pastor of the church. Mrs. Owen Thomas (first row, left), is the church pianist. Miss E. Sue Creech (first row, right), is the organist.

Coming Events

September 5—Fall Semester Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina
 September 14, 15—North Carolina Convention, Elm Grove Church, Mount Olive, North Carolina
 September 22—Eastern Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Mount Olive Church, Mount Olive, North Carolina

Statewide Bible Conference Smithfield Church, Aug. 30

Statewide Bible Conference will be held at Smithfield Free Will Baptist Church, Smithfield, North Carolina, August 30, 1960. The theme for the conference will be: "The Authority of the Bible." The program is as follows:

Morning Session

5—First Session: Song Leader, Rev. Randy Cox, Presiding, Rev. Billy Morris

—Song Service

0—Message, "What the Bible Says About Personal Soul Winning," Evangelist Jack Paramore

5—Recess

0—Song Service

5—Message, "What the Bible Says About Church Evangelism," Rev. Joe Ange

0—Recess

Afternoon Session

0—Second Session: Song Leader, Rev. Jerry Ballard, Presiding, Rev. James Earl Raper

—Song Service

5—Message, "The Bible Defines False Teachers," Rev. Ralph Staten

0—Recess

5—Song Service

0—Message, "The Biblical Attitude Towards Modernism," Evangelist Bobby Jackson

5—Recess

Evening Session

0—Third Session: Song Leader, Rev. Conrad Williford, Presiding, Rev. Carroll Alexander

—Song Service

0—Message, "The Bible Defines Worldliness," Rev. J. C. Lynn

5—Song Service

5—Message, "The Biblical Cure for Worldliness," Rev. Joe Ange

0—Benediction

Resolution Passed By Alumni Association

At the annual fellowship meeting of the North Carolina Chapter of the Alumni Association of Free Will Baptist Bible College August 16 at Free Will Baptist Childs Home, Middlesex, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the Church Covenant on Page 4 of the North Carolina Treatise says, in Article 1, "We promise by His grace to love and obey Him in all things, to avoid all appearances of evil, to abstain from all sinful amusements and unholy conformity to the world"

Whereas, the North Carolina Treatise on Page 51, "If any member shall attend any place of disorder, ballroom, card table, shoot-natches, or any other place of disorder without lawful business, such a member may be censured by the church";

"Therefore, we believe:

"1. That, 'abstain from all sinful amusements and unholy conformity to the world' and 'any other place of disorder' covers such sins as attendance at Hollywood movies, shorts wearing and other indecent dress, mixed bathing, dancing, etc.

"2. That the North Carolina State Convention by adopting the above inclusive statements has in reality taken a position on the above-named sins and all other questionable amusements which dishonor our Lord Jesus Christ.

"3. That a copy of this statement of belief should be sent to The Free Will Baptist for publication."

Musical Messenger's Quartet to Conduct Union Chapel Revival

Revival services will be held at Union Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, three miles south of Chocowinity, North Carolina, on Highway 17, August 31 through September 11, conducted by the Musical Messenger's Quartet. Services will begin each evening at eight o'clock. The quartet is composed of the Rev. Milton Worthington, first tenor; the Rev. R. J. Kennedy, base; Mr. David Cockran, baritone and pianist; and the Rev. Melvin Worthington, second tenor. The quartet will be singing each night, and the messages will be preached by Milton and Melvin Worthington and R. J. Kennedy.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Melvin Worthington, extends a cordial invitation to all in this area to attend these services.

Area-Wide Simultaneous Missionary Conferences, October 16-22, 1960

For the past two or three years, in the fall season, several of the churches in the Central Conference of North Carolina and surrounding areas have conducted simultaneous missionary conferences. Last year there were 26 churches having one or more services; in all there were 60 services. It is hoped this year to have more churches participating.

August 26, at 2:30 p. m., a planning session will be held at Grace Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina. All pastors and churches desiring to have one or more mission services will need to be represented at this session. If you cannot attend, you will need to contact the Rev. Rashie Kennedy by mail or phone so services can be arranged. Plans are to get some of the very best speakers for these conferences. The Rev. Rolla Smith and the Calveys have already been acquired, and others will be named later. It is important to know how many churches will participate so enough speakers can be obtained for all.

Press Board Expresses Sympathy

A motion was made and seconded in regular session of the Board of Directors of the Free Will Baptist Press that the board express its sympathy to the Rev. R. N. Hinnant, president of the Free Will Baptist Press, in the loss of his brother, Dr. M. Hinnant. The motion was unanimously adopted by the board.

New Press Manager And Editor

The Rev. R. N. Hinnant, president of the Free Will Baptist Press announces that the Rev. N. Bruce Barrow of Ayden, North Carolina, will assume the position as manager of the Free Will Baptist Press on September 1, 1960. Mr. Barrow is presently serving as pastor of Elm Grove Church, Ayden, North Carolina, which he will continue to do until January 1, 1961. He has served as a member of the board of directors for the past several years.

The Rev. C. H. Overman, who has served as assistant editor for nearly three years, will be elevated to the position as editor, also to be effective on September 1. His duties will be in the area of editorial responsibilities as head of the editorial department.

Highlights of Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church

On the evening of March 24, 1955, a meeting was held by a group of 24 baptized believers, who had previously worked in the First Free Will Baptist Church of Bryan, Texas, for the purpose of organizing another

(Continued on page fourteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: What is the difference between the place called, paradise, in the Bible and that called, heaven?—Nancy Turner, Ohio.

Answer: Since Christ's death and resurrection, these places seem to be the same; before the resurrection there appears to have been a difference. Paul seems to have had the same place in mind when he mentions both in 2 Corinthians 12. In the first part of the chapter he refers to it as heaven; "I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell; God knoweth;) such an one caught up to the third heaven" (2 Corinthians 12:2). Later he refers to the same as being paradise; "How that he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter" (12:4). Before the resurrection of Jesus, He said to the thief crucified with Him, "... To day shalt thou be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:43). Then after His resurrection, but before His ascension, He told Mary, "Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God" (John 20:17). Except that He had ascended to the Father, He would not have returned to heaven. Paradise is the place to which He had gone. Some think that Jesus did, however, ascend to His Father between the time He told Mary not to touch Him and when He invited Thomas to do so. "And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him" (Matthew 28:9); "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have" (Luke 24:39). (Compare these with John 20:17 which is quoted above.) When Christ ascended, His presence there became the paradise to which all believers whose bodies were dead came.

In the Old Testament time, apparently, all people both saved and unsaved went to Sheol and paradise was included in Sheol or Hades. So when the rich man was suffering from the torment of the flames, he could see Lazarus in Abraham's bosom or in paradise. (See Luke 16:19-31.)

There is a wonderful prophecy in the Old Testament that in a marvelous way foretells the resurrection of Christ. "I have set the LORD always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalm 16:8-11). Both Peter and Paul quote from this passage. (See Acts 2:25-31; 13:32-37.) In Psalm 16:10 and Acts 2:27 the Revised Version rendering is better than what we have in our authorized version. "For thou wilt not leave my soul to Sheol; neither wilt thou suffer thy holy one to see corruption" (Psalm 16:10); "Because thou wilt not leave my soul unto Hades, neither wilt thou give thy Holy One to see corruption" (Acts 2:27). These words were uttered by our Lord Jesus Christ as He addressed His heavenly Father. The Greek word for lake of fire is Gehenna. Sheol and Hades, therefore, refer to the same place, the place of departed spirits, and Gehenna refers to the place of burning. Lazarus was in that part separated from the rich man by an unpassable gulf, having his good things; whereas, the rich man was being tormented by flames as he talked to Abraham.

As to the location of this place of suffering where the unrighteous dead now go, we may not be absolutely sure; however, we are given to understand that it is one in which people suffer agonizing pain in spite of Seventh-Day Adventists, Jehovah Witnesses, Millennium Dawnists, etc., who claim that none of this is to be taken literally. The rich man could neither leave nor could he summon help from others nor send messengers to tell his loved ones.

Some Scriptures seem to suggest that this place of unrest for the unsaved is in or underneath the earth. "For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth" (Matthew 12:40); "Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth?" (Ephesians 4:9). According to Luke 16:26, a great gulf separated Lazarus and the rich man and according to Luke 23:43, was of the two realms of Sheol. Other than such passages we have no knowledge of location of Sheol.

Some would have you think that this s in Luke 16:19-31 is a parable, but in r to this claim we would inquire where has Jesus used personal names in a para

We are told that when Jesus ascended, took a multitude of captives with Him: "unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. (Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended into the lower parts of the earth? He that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, that he might fill all things.)" (Ephesians 4:7-10); "Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts unto men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the LORD God might dwell among them" (Psalm 68:18).

Now that we are under the new covenant we go to be with Christ when we die. Paul wrote, "We are confident, I say, and will rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord" (2 Corinthians 5:8); "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better" (Philippians 1:23). (See Acts 7:56; Hebrews 1:3; 8:1; 11:16; Colossians 3:1; Mark 16:19.) The spirits of the Christ rejecting dead still go to Hades. "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever" (Revelation 11:15). This being true, how eager we as Christians ought to be to hinder every lost soul from continuing to his sure and certain doom except he repents.

It Didn't Make the Collection Plate

A business man in Illinois experimented with a dollar bill. He attached a piece of paper to it on which he wrote this request: "Please note on the attached slip of paper the purpose for which you spend this bill. After the dollar bill was in circulation for a while, it came back to the businessman with the following information: It was spent five times for salary, five times for tobacco, five times for cigarettes, three times for candy, twice for haberdashery, three times for meals, once for auto parts, once for groceries, once for laundry, twice for shoes and once for toothpaste. Not once was it placed on the offering plate at church!—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

CHRIST PRE-EMINENT

... but Christ is all, and in all" (Colos. 3:11).

The two poems I am quoting this week Christ the pre-eminence in our lives only in our present time of sojourn here on the earth, but in His second coming and His reign. I believe that if we will study the lines in the light of His great promises, and His demands of our complete surrender to Him, they will help us to see things in a new light and cause us to have a deeper love for, and a greater dependence on Him.

CHRIST

Christ for sickness, Christ for health,
Christ for poverty, Christ for wealth,
Christ for joy, Christ for sorrow,
Christ today, and Christ tomorrow;
Christ my life, and Christ my Light,
Christ for morning, noon and night;
Christ when all around gives way,
Christ my everlasting stay;
Christ my rest, Christ my food,
Christ above my highest good;
Christ my well beloved, my Friend,
Christ my pleasure without end;
Christ my Saviour, Christ my Lord,
Christ my portion, Christ my God;
Christ my Shepherd, I His sheep,
Christ Himself my soul doth keep;
Christ my Leader, Christ my Peace,
Christ has brought my soul's release,
Christ my Righteousness divine,
Christ for me, for He is mine;
Christ my Wisdom, Christ my Meat,
Christ restores my wand'ring feet,
Christ my Advocate and Priest,
Christ who ne'er forgets the least;
Christ my Rock, in Christ I hide;
Christ the everlasting Bread,
Christ His precious blood hath shed;
Christ hath brought us near to God,
Christ the everlasting Word,
Christ my Master, Christ my Head,
Christ who for my sins hath bled;
Christ my Glory, Christ my Crown,
Christ the Path of great Renown,
Christ my Comforter on high,
Christ my Hope draws ever nigh.

—Selected.

CHRIST COMING

Thou art coming, O my Saviour!
We shall meet Thee on Thy way,
We shall see Thee, we shall know Thee,
We shall bless Thee, we shall show Thee

All our hearts could never say!
What an anthem that will be,
Ringing out our love to Thee,
Pouring out our rapture sweet
At Thine own all-glorious Feet!

Thou art coming! We are waiting
With a hope that cannot fail;
Asking not the day or hour,
Resting on Thy word of power
Anchored safe within the veil.
Time appointed may be long,
But the vision must be sure;
Certainly shall make us strong,
Joyful patience can endure!

Oh the joy to see Thee reigning,
Thee, my own Beloved Lord!
Every tongue Thy Name confessing,
Worship, honour, glory, blessing,
Brought to Thee with glad accord!
Thee, my Master and my Friend,
Vindicated and enthroned!

Unto earth's remotest end
Glorified, adored and owned!
—Frances R. Havergal.

"... I go to prepare a place for you.
And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also"
(John 14:2, 3).

The man who puffs himself up with wind will only be remembered for his loud noise when he explodes.

A man doesn't always reveal his wisdom in words, but in deeds and worthwhile accomplishments.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: No claim to originality is made to material used in this column. Whenever possible the source is given, but this often is not known.—THE EDITORS.

Choose This Day Whom You Will Serve

(Joshua 24:14, 15)

- I. IT IS A PERSONAL DECISION (John 3:36).
 1. It is personal for it effects me (Matthew 11:28).
 2. It is personal for it brings me into intimate contact with Jesus (Revelation 3:20).
 3. It is so personal that no one can make it for me (Matthew 22:42).
- II. IT IS A DECISION THAT MUST BE MADE NOW (2 Corinthians 6:2).
 1. It must be made now for we know not what tomorrow holds (James 4:14).
 2. It must be made now to avoid hardening of the heart (Proverbs 29:1).
 3. It must be made now for it cannot be made after death (Job 36:18).
- III. WHY SHOULD THIS DECISION BE MADE? (Romans 3:23).
 1. Because you cannot save yourself (Titus 3:5).
 2. Because God does not desire to see a soul eternally lost (2 Peter 3:9).
 3. Because Jesus gave His life to save you (1 Timothy 2:6).
- IV. HOW IS THIS DECISION MADE? (Romans 10:9, 10).
 1. By heeding the Holy Spirit as He woos (John 16:8).
 2. By recognizing that you are lost (Psalm 51:5).
 3. By faith receiving Christ into your heart (Acts 16:31).
- V. HOW WILL THIS DECISION AFFECT OTHERS? (Acts 4:13).
 1. You will be called a fanatic by some men (Acts 26:24).
 2. You will cause division among some men (John 7:43).
 3. You will be able to win some men (John 1:41, 42).

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Prayer and Praise Letter

August 8, 1960

Dear Friend:

Believing that you are vitally interested in the Free Will Baptist missionary program,

I want to share with you some news of missionary significance.

WAIDS FINISH LANGUAGE STUDY: In a letter from Geraldine dated July 7, she said, "We are on our way to Hokkaido. We left

VI. WHAT ARE THE RESULTS OF MAKING THIS DECISION? (Ephesians 2:13).

1. You will receive God as your Father (John 16:27).
2. You will receive Christ as your brother (Proverbs 18:24).
3. You will receive life (John 5:24).

—George C. Lec Jr., Pastor of Shady Grove Church, Durham, N. C.

Putting Our Feet in Another's Shoes

It was the custom of an Indian tribe to appoint a judge to go into the Indian villages and try evildoers. A young brave was chosen as a judge. He wanted to judge righteously. He went into a dense, dark forest and prayed, "O Great Maker of Men, forbid that I judge any man until I have walked for two months in his moccasins!"

There is a minister whose life is dedicated wholly to God and to helping people who are in trouble. He cheerfully responds at any hour of the day or night to the calls of distressed people. "How can you respond so readily to calls for help from people whom you do not know, and who are so unworthy of your help?" Said the minister, "Here's the reason: In imagination I put myself in the shoes of needy, troubled ones and say to myself, 'I may be down tomorrow and in need of the encouraging word and a helping hand.' This consideration deepens my pity for the needy ones, and the constraining love of Christ impels me to do as I do!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

God Answered the Other Way

A father and his little girl prayed ardently for the recovery of the one who was the wife and mother. After much suffering, she slipped away to be forever with the Lord! The two sorrowed, but not as those who have no hope, for they knew that soon they would be with their loved one in glory! As the little girl sought to comfort her father, she said, "Daddy, God answered our prayers the other way, didn't He?" She meant that God answered their prayers, but not the way they had prayed. Sometimes God, in infinite wisdom, answers our prayers with a "No!" Sometimes He answers with a "Yes!" This is certain: He always answers our prayers in keeping with His wondrous will for our lives. He doeth all things well!—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

our house here in Tokyo yesterday and expect to be in our place in Hokkaido about a week and a half. Our new address: Herbert Waid, Nishi 2—Chome, Nishi 7 Jo, Abashiri, Hokkaido, Japan. I pray for Herbert as he assumes new responsibilities."

NEW ARRIVAL: Mr. and Mrs. C. Hanna, missionaries in North India, announced the arrival of a son, Mark D. He was born on July 4.

VISAS REJECTED: Although local authorities had given Miss Wilson every assurance that visas would be granted for the J. Davis family, the India government has refused to grant them. This is a great disappointment to the Davises, the missionaries in India, and all of us who are concerned with reaching the untold millions in India with the gospel.

Let us pray that the Lord will overcome all objections and that we shall yet be permitted to get additional missionaries to India.

EVANGELISM IN SPAIN: In a recent letter from Mr. Cignoni in Spain, he tells of the spreading of the gospel in Carcagente, a village of more than 25,000. During July 1960, 100 souls were saved.

A baptismal service was held in a Baptist church because the constant violence of civil and ecclesiastic authorities made it unsafe to baptize in the nearby river.

Ken Eagleton has reported a trip with him, together with missionaries Dave F. and Sammy Wilkinson and national workers Waldemar and Francisco, made recently to the city of Ervalia.

They had services in the jail house in the public square. Although they had the promise of police protection, soon their services were greatly disturbed by the youngsters who tossed small and large crackers in their midst. This was not very annoying but quite dangerous.

It was generally agreed by the townspeople that the priest had sent these boys to cause this disturbance.

Later, as they were returning to town one day out in the country, they were warned of plans to stone them as they entered the city. After much prayer and with confidence in Him whose gospel they preached, they decided not to be defeated by threats. So by entering the town another way they were able to hold their services in the jail as usual. After learning that the street circus had moved in to the down square they changed their place for public service and held the service unimpeded.

Mr. Eagleton also makes an earnest appeal for the people of our country not to elect a Catholic for president. He states that the persecution of protestants by Catholics is done in Brazil in spite of the fact

(continued on page sixteen)

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THINGS THAT GOD HATES

(Continued from Last Week)

The Scripture being used for this text is Proverbs 6:16-18: "These six things doth the LORD hate: yea, seven are an abomination unto him. A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, a heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief."

We have reached the part, "Feet that be swift in running to." Some people are more ready to run to mischief than others. This is especially true in the tender age with many. Some are ready to begin to seek and perform that which is of Satan. For many years we have heard much about juvenile delinquency. Intentions of correction are strained to their utmost capacity. These youthful offenders, many of them, are in trouble two or three times before they reach the age of twenty. God for some boys several years ago and had them placed on probation. In less than a year they were back in trouble again. This is true of many who are older, and now they had to face the consequences—the penalty for their crime. It looks hard to see some nice young lads being led off by an officer to prison. But God has said, "The way of the transgressor is hard," and again, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap." I was going along the highway some time back and saw a youthful group of men working on the road, with guards standing by with rifles.

I thought of the words of the Master: "The way of the transgressor is hard."

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Many of those that runneth to mischief in their early age are not to blame, but their parents are. Men and women who curse, drink and fight, never go to church or Sunday school, are usually the parents of those who run swiftly into mischief. Some cannot correct a child without using physical punishment. A cursing, abusive father is not able of correcting a child.

The only father who is qualified to correct a son or daughter is the father who has been born of the Spirit and committed himself wholeheartedly unto Christ, and one who lives right before his children. Let me tell you, a liquor drinking, profane, high tempered, swearing, abusive father cannot bring up a child in the nurture and admonition of the Lord as prescribed by the apostle, Paul, in Ephesians 6:4, which says: "... ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Seldom do you ever hear of a juvenile delinquent boy whose father has obeyed the gospel of Christ and the admonition of the apostle, Paul. There are exceptions however. There is an old proverb, "Black sheep in the best of families," but these are few and far between. In a large measure, I believe that parents are to blame for their children running to mischief. I am afraid that children can say and tell the truth, "Father, you are to blame for my sinful life."

I heard an old preacher of long ago tell this story: "A young girl, a teen-ager, was dying, and she told her mother that she was going to hell. She finished the story by saying, 'Mother, you are to blame.'" There are some mothers who had rather lead their daughters to the ballroom floor, than to lead them to Christ. In such a case, the mother, as well as the daughter, runneth to mischief. In this day in which we live, there are so many devices which help a boy or a girl to run fast to mischief, that often plunges them into the prisons on earth and finally into a demon's hell, and Father and Mother are to blame.

A FALSE WITNESS THAT SPEAKETH LIES

The sixth thing which God hates, among the seven, is a false witness that speaketh lies. I shall not dwell at length on this subject. Of course, there is much that can be said, but on the second writing on this Scripture, which was the second topic, "A Lying Tongue," I wrote much about lies. However, there was much that I could have said that was not said.

I have seen witnesses on the stand in our courts, when it did not take a man with much understanding to see that the witness was not telling the truth. Perhaps he did not know the truth and was trying to satisfy both his friend and the lawyer who had gotten the poor fellow confused. Then I have seen some that did not want to tell the truth; men are given to lying. Satan started the first lie. The devil, who is a liar and the father of lies, started the lie when he was talking to Eve, saying, "Thou shalt not surely die." He knew that he was telling a lie. Then Adam, after willfully following his wife, tried to excuse himself by saying, "The woman that You gave me is to blame. You gave her to me, and she did eat and then gave to me and I did eat." From that day until this, people have tried to put their faults off on someone else, when they are guilty before God. Some men blame their wrongdoings on their wife; and some wives blame their wrongdoings on their husband. Even little children are ready to tell

Mother and Father that it was an older brother or sister that is to blame. A little boy said, "Mother, I have not been in the cookie bowl," even when cookie crumbs are all over his face and especially around his mouth. He will say, "Mother, it was not I, it was sister."

How about the backslider who is fastly slipping into mischief. I have had to deal with men and women who would deliberately lie when I was trying to get them to see where they were failing and what would be the end if they did not turn from their sinful life, confess their sins to God and find forgiveness. As said before, "We have political liars; we have business liars, men that will lie to make a dime." I have known some church members to sell Christ for less than Judas Iscariot sold Him, and then lie about the deal. If you will read Revelation 21:8, you will find something about the liar. Let me quote the whole verse: "But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murders, and whoremongers, and sojourners, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death." Let us observe the liar in connection with all these characters. In many instances the fearful and unbelieving will lie to carry their points in what they believe. Very few who have committed murder will tell the truth. They lie until they are found guilty and sent to death row. Some times they will confess their sin and accept the Lord Jesus. I am glad that our God will forgive sin when confessed and His Son accepted. (See I John 1:9.)

May we study the drunkard in connection with lying. I have known them to concoct all kind of lies in order to get strong drink. One came with a pitiful story that his wife was real ill and he had to get the doctor, but the doctor would not come until he was assured that he could get his pay. I have known them to say that they were hungry and wanted fifty cents or the price perhaps of a sandwich, when actually they wanted liquor. Of course this seldom happens in the early stage of drinking; but when they have gone on for years, when they cannot hold a job if they wanted one, then I have known them to lie and to steal. They are then gone beyond medical aid. Only the grace of God can reach one in this stage. I have known some alcoholics lifted from the lowest state of drink into the fellowship of God and live faithful Christian lives and die happy. But they have to place their all in the hands of God.

Reader, if you are not saved, will you accept Christ now?

Our next message will be "... he that soweth discord among brethren" (Proverbs 6:19).

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

MARION'S SONG

by Doris L. Kersting

AS YOU KNOW, Marion," Miss Hawley said, "Friday is open house. Your parents come and visit school and then at three o'clock we will have a program for them. Each room has been asked for a number, and I wondered if you would sing, as the number from our room."

Marion stood looking at the floor, and rubbing her toe against Miss Hawley's desk. Here was such a wonderful chance to show the whole school that she belonged to Jesus! If Miss Hawley would only let her sing a hymn! But Marion was afraid to ask her teacher, for fear it would make her angry.

"You have such a lovely voice, Marion," her teacher said, "and we have never made use of it in a program."

Still Marion continued to look at the floor. "I can't," she said in a choked little voice, and before Miss Hawley could say any more, Marion turned and ran out of the room.

"Come and turn the rope for us, Marion," called several of her friends.

Absently, Marion turned the rope. She did not care to jump today, so she just went on turning. Then all at once she thought of something. She dropped the rope and ran into the assembly. She looked around hastily. No one there. Marion dropped down in one of the desks and buried her face in her arms. "Lord Jesus," she whispered, "please give me courage to tell Miss Hawley that I want to sing for You Friday."

Marion was trembling a little, as just before the bell rang for the afternoon session, she approached Miss Hawley's desk.

Miss Hawley looked up.

"I'll sing after all," she said falteringly.

"Good!" smiled Miss Hawley. "I knew you'd come around, Marion. You'll get used to singing in public after you've done it a few times. Here's the song I'd like you to sing." And Miss Hawley sang it through for her:

"There's a wee little nest in the old oak tree,
Safe and high, safe and high!
There are three blue eggs in the wee, wee nest
Like the sky! Like the sky!
And the dear mother bird keeps a watch on her nest,
'Neath her out-spreading wings safe the blue eggs can rest!
There'll be three little birds in the wee, wee nest
By-and-by! By-and-by!"

It was a sweet little song, but it did not satisfy Marion. She took a deep breath. "I want to sing a song for Jesus," she said.

Miss Hawley frowned. "This isn't a religious program," she explained. "And this is a very charming song, and well suited to your voice."

It was hard to protest against what your teacher said. So Marion said no more. It was clear that Miss Hawley disapproved of her singing for Jesus in school.

"Can you stay after school and practice?" asked Miss Hawley. "We haven't much time before the program."

Marion nodded. Way down in her heart she was very unhappy. After school she tried again. "Miss Hawley, our music instructor at summer camp taught me to sing 'The Way of the Cross Leads Home.' Wouldn't it be all right to sing that?"

Again Miss Hawley frowned, a deeper, more unpleasant frown than the former one. "Marion," she said in a voice where patience was slightly strained, "it really is out of place to have religious music at a school function."

"I can't see why," Marion said, the color coming and going in her face, "if it weren't for Jesus we probably wouldn't even have any schools!"

Miss Hawley tightened her lips and said, "Perhaps we ought to practice now."

So Marion practiced the bird song, but she did very poorly, for her heart was not in it. Miss Hawley got up from the piano, and shut the music book with a little bang. "You may go now, Marion," she said.

Every afternoon Marion went in and practiced, "There's a wee little nest in the old oak tree." She knew she was not singing as well as she could sing. Miss Hawley knew it too. There was a rasping note of discord between the pianist and the singer, and it seemed to edge into the song, in spite of Marion's sincere efforts to do her best and please her teacher.

On Thursday afternoon, Marion sang more poorly than ever. "This will be our last practice session," Miss Hawley said, as she rose from the piano with an unsmiling face. "And I certainly hope that you sing better than this tomorrow."

"I could," thought Marion to herself, as she walked dejectedly home, "I could sing better if she'd let me sing for Jesus!"

Marion felt like crying that evening when she knelt to pray, and somehow she could not say a word. She just knelt there a tight feeling inside her.

Friday morning dawned cool and Marion awoke with the strange feeling something was all wrong. Just at first she did not know what it was, but in a moment she remembered. Today was the program. Quickly she knelt beside her bed. "Jesus, help me to be happy, and do what You want me to do. Amen."

As Marion ran downstairs to breakfast she made a sudden decision in her heart. The minute she got to school she went directly to Miss Hawley.

"Miss Hawley," she said, "I can't sing this afternoon unless I can sing for Jesus."

Miss Hawley turned and stared at Marion for a full minute. Marion was surprised at the coolness that was right down inside herself.

"That's ridiculous, Marion!" her teacher said at last.

Marion waited. There did not seem anything she could say without being impertinent.

"Well," Miss Hawley said finally, "I guess we can get along without that song."

Marion's lip trembled just a little and she went out of the room.

Just before the dinner hour, the principal came and called Marion out of her classroom.

"Marion," she said kindly, "Miss Hawley has told me of your wish in regard to singing. She is quite put out about it, but I think the song you want to sing is very pretty. If you still want to sing it, I'll plan for you. We could practice during lunch hours."

When it came time for Marion's number on the program, she walked confidently onto the platform. Clearly and sweetly, the song reached every corner of the big room.

"I must needs go home by the way of the cross,
There's no other way but this;
I shall ne'er get sight of the gates of light,
If the way of the cross I miss!"

"Then I bid farewell to the way of the cross,
To walk in it nevermore,
For my Lord says, 'Come' and I seek my
Where He waits at the open door."

After the program was over, the children were filled with children, and the principal and Marion were side by side in their conversation. Marion was so happy that she did not want to talk about that happiness by talking. She made her way to her classroom, and hastily gathered up her handkerchief and coat. There was no one else in the room.

(continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

North Carolina Produces Winners

ictured above is the Rev. Chester Phillips, pastor of Smithfield Free Will Baptist Church, Smithfield, North Carolina, as he congratulates three young people of his church who were winners in the contests sponsored by the Woman's National Auxiliary Convention. The declamation contests were sent to Fresno, California, by the woman's auxiliaries of the state and of the Cape Fear Conference.

From left to right are: Cynthia Phillips, who won second place in the G. T. A. declamation contest; the pastor, who is holding one of the plackets awarded at the annual Association; Harvey Dupree, who won first place in the Y. P. A. declamation contest; and Glenda Adams, who won second place in the Y. P. A. essay contest.

THE FIRST EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY

(Lesson One)

Mrs. Robert Crawford
Greenville, North Carolina

This is the beginning of a series of lessons on the first epistle to Timothy. It is prepared by the North Carolina State Woman's Auxiliary Convention and these lessons are used by the circles as study course material. This is in addition to the material prepared by the WNAC.)

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

The relationship of Paul and Timothy is one of the most beautiful friendships between an older and younger man.

From the tone of the letter, we have evidence of the affection which Paul had for Timothy. Paul addressed him as, "My own child in the faith." In 1 Corinthians 4:17, Paul wrote, ". . . Timotheus, who is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Christ, as I teach every where in every church." Of all those converted to the faith through Paul's teaching, Timothy seems to have been to Paul the disciple most beloved and most trusted.

Timothy was a native, possibly of Derbe, or perhaps of Lystra, where he was brought up in a knowledge of the Jewish Scriptures by his mother, Eunice, and his grandmother, Lois. It could have been that Timothy was converted to the Christian faith on Paul's first missionary journey. Six or seven years later, on Paul's second missionary journey, when he visited Lystra, Paul found Timothy enjoying a good report among the Christians of that area.

Just prior to Paul's return to Lystra, Barnabas has separated himself from Paul and had gone out with John Mark. Paul recognized in Timothy a real servant of the Lord who could fill the vacancy. He took Timothy and circumcised him, a useless rite spiritually speaking. (This gave Timothy an open door into congregations into which he could not have otherwise gained an entrance, that he might preach the truth.) Then he ordained him by the laying on of hands of all the elders of the congregation. Timothy immediately set out to accompany Paul and Silas in their labors in the gospel.

Many of Paul's epistles are written in the names of Paul and Timothy. Thus we know that Timothy was at Paul's side much of the time. However, many times following Paul's preaching at a particular place, he left Timothy there to establish the new churches in the faith. At other times, Paul sent him on missions to churches that had already been established.

Following the time of Paul's release from Philippi, he and Timothy were together in Ephesus. After about two and one half years Paul went on to Macedonia and left Timothy behind to warn and to exhort certain holders of erroneous doctrine to refrain from teaching it. At this parting, there were tears on the part of Timothy, who was concerned for his friend because of the danger, sufferings and increasing infirmities. He knew there was a real possibility they would never meet again. So far as we know this is true.

The first letter to Timothy was written from Macedonia during the interval of two Roman imprisonments. In it he expressed hope of returning to Timothy. The second letter, written from Rome, does not refer to any such meeting but implores Timothy to do all he can to come to him without delay for he is left almost alone in his imprisonment. Whether or not he was able to go, we have no means of knowing.

First Timothy deals with the church order and church discipline. The theme of this epistle may be seen in 1 Timothy 3:15, ". . . that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."

CHAPTER ONE

THE SALUTATION (Vv. 1, 2)

Paul received his apostleship ". . . (not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead;)" (Galatians 1:1). In Jesus Christ is our hope. ". . . Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Colossians 1:27).

Grace, mercy and peace is also our position from God our Father, and Jesus Christ our Lord. Because of this relationship we have an obligation. Jesus said in Luke 6:46, "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?"

THE DANGERS OF FALSE DOCTRINE (Vv. 3-7)

There were those who taught the legalistic doctrine as to the law of Moses and the endless genealogies connected with it. They were trying to make Christianity just a new form of Judaism. These legalizers taught that salvation is partly by faith and partly by obedience to the law. Paul instructs Timothy that he charge the people that they teach no such doctrine. (Read Galatians 1:8, 9.)

There are many false doctrines in the world today. The only way we of today can know the truth concerning these false doctrines is through the study of God's Word that the Holy Spirit may teach us the truth. (Read 1 John 4:1, 2.)

PAUL'S CHARGE (Vv. 5-7)

This refers to the charge Paul had already given Timothy when he had left him in Ephesus.

THE PURPOSE OF THE LAW (Vv. 8-11)

The law was a schoolmaster. It was for the lawless and disobedient. It demanded absolute goodness. In man is no good thing. Therefore, man cannot obey the law. It is the message of the gospel that God found another way for man's justification. "For what the law could not do, in that it was

(Continued on page fourteen)

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Bible College Begins 19th Year September 6

Free Will Baptist Bible College will open September 6 for the beginning of its nineteenth year in the task of training missionaries, pastors and Christian workers.

President L. C. Johnson has announced that three new faculty members and one staff member will join the college family this year. New instructors are Don Clark, formerly of Pocahontas, Arkansas, who will head the music department and teach voice; Miss Laura Belle Barnard, former missionary to India, who will teach missions and Bible; Miss Phyllis Rivers, Ashland, Kentucky, to head the new business education department. Miss Bettie O'Haver, B. A. graduate last May, will be added to the administrative office force as secretary and cashier.

Rev. Leroy Forlines, dean of men since 1953 and instructor in Bible and theology, has been granted a leave of absence to further his theological training at Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, Chicago. Serving as acting dean of men will be Rev. T. L. Burch from the college faculty.

The school official also announced that R. E. Picirilli, instructor in Greek and Bible since 1955, has been appointed as registrar and will serve in this capacity under Dean Charles A. Thigpen.

A record enrollment is expected this year, according to reports from the registrar's office. Student applications have been heavier up to this time than in any previous year in the history of the school.

Another new feature this year will be the first time the new administrative offices at 3606 West End Avenue have been used. The relocation of the offices from Richland Avenue, August 1, has given the school a more prominent address in Nashville, making it much easier for out-of-state visitors to locate the Bible College upon arrival in Nashville.

Night Course to Be Offered at Mount Olive College

Mount Olive College will offer a night course in Bible during the fall semester, President W. Burkette Raper has announced.

"Introduction to the Old Testament," a three-hour credit course, will be taught on Monday and Thursday nights at 7:00-8:30 p. m. by Dean Michael R. Pelt.

The course will be of special value to pastors, Sunday school teachers, and anyone who wishes a better understanding of our Biblical faith. Students may take the course for or without credit.

Interested persons should contact the college for an application form and other information. The first meeting of the class will be Monday, September 19.

Faculty Conference Will Mark Beginning of Year

A faculty conference on September 3 will mark the beginning of the seventh academic year at Mount Olive College, President W. Burkette Raper announced today.

An orientation program, under the direction of Dean Michael R. Pelt, will begin on September 5 for new students, and returning students will arrive September 7. Registration will be held Thursday, September 8, and classes are scheduled to begin September 9.

A formal convocation in the college auditorium on Sunday, September 11, 4:00 p. m., will mark the official opening of the school year.

Woman's Auxiliary

(continued from page thirteen)

weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh: That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit" (Romans 8:3, 4). The gospel not only gives the believer a perfect standing before God; it also works in the believer to produce a Godly walk.

PAUL'S REJOICING IN THE MINISTRY (Vv. 12-16)

All Christians are in the ministry and would do well to remember that they are appointed to the service of God as truly as the pastor, or the missionary, or any other of God's children.

THE DOXOLOGY (Vs. 17)

Paul's heart swells with praise ascribes glory and honor to Him in worship. ". . . dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" (Colossians 2:9).

PAUL'S COMMITMENT OF THE CHARGE TO TIMOTHY (Vv. 18-20)

Paul charges Timothy to fear nothing. He can stand on all the prophecies of prophets of God. Through faith and a good conscience he will be able to war a warfare.

This charge is to all Christians. "Fin my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil" (Ephesians 6:10, 11).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

Free Will Baptist church and extending work of the denomination in the eastern part of the city of Bryan. This organization named the Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church. Immediately following the organization of the church, the Lord blessed, and there were added to the group many souls, some of whom are now in other parts of the country. The Rev. E. Zoellers was called as the first pastor of congregation. Later in the year, he called to the West Side Free Will Baptist Church, Midland, Texas, and was succeeded by the Rev. H. Ray Berry, the present pastor. During the first year, the congregation worshiped at 304 North Main Street, then moved to the Temporary District Court House in the 200 block of East 25th Street where services were held until moving to the present site, 1406 Ursuline Avenue.

In June, July and August of 1959, there was a tremendous increase in the membership of the church, which was a major factor in the church being able to enter into building program. On September 30, 1959 the church approved a building program for a sanctuary which would seat 250 people in the nave, a vestibule with two classrooms in front, a baptistry, choir loft, a study, club room and two dressing rooms. The maximum seating capacity of the sanctuary about 300 persons. The building is beautiful, completely air conditioned with central heating unit. An amplifier system is being installed at the present time.

The church has continued to grow, the present resident membership is 146 non-resident members 18, making a total membership of 164.

The pastor states: "This is the word of the Lord, and may His holy name be praised for this wonderful work. We have believed this verse of Scripture: '. . . my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus' (Philippians 4:19)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

God's Hand in History

(Lesson for September 4)

Lesson: Isaiah 10:5-15; 14:24-27

Lesson Text: Isaiah 14:27

INTRODUCTION

Isaiah's day, there was a noticeable movement on the part of the nations surrounding Palestine toward expansion of territory from national status to empire status. During this general period, God's people were threatened on all sides. To the south, Babylon and Persia were becoming nations in armed might; to the northwest, the Assyrians were an ominous threat; to the west was Egypt; to the east were both Greece and Rome. All of these peoples were ambitious to rule the world. It was because of the rise of the Gentile world powers.

The Israelites, were a small nation living in a small area of land which was located that it was destined to become a battlefield for these growing world powers. Aside from the fact that God's people were few in number and weak in power, compared with these surrounding nations, the Israelites had become divided into small nations, Judah in the south and Ephraim in the north. It was truly the case that only God, who supervises the activity throughout the earth and controls things so that ultimately work out His purpose, could save His people from destruction. Furthermore, to add insult to grief, the Israelites turned their backs on God, who had given them the land and had sustained their lives, and had begun to play politics with these threatening powers, believing that they would be able to play one power against another to save their own skins.

Take notice in this lesson how God directed the course and final downfall of Assyria, the first of these great powers to fall to His people.—The Bible Student (Vol. 1, p. 103).

POINTS THAT HELP

Isaiah 10:5: The Jews' profanity and idolatry brought God's wrath upon them. Assyria has often used tyrants to scourge His people.

Isaiah 6: The Assyrian was called the rod of God because God used him to afflict

Israel. However, the king of Assyria became proud. He thought he did these things of his own power and might. He did not know he was used as a tool.

3. Vs. 7: The king of Assyria did not know that he could only go so far. Remember God has a hand in the history of the nations. Certainly His hand has been in America from the time of the landing of the pilgrims.

4. Vs. 12: When God had finished His punishment of Judah, He would take care of the haughty king of Assyria.

5. Vs. 14: Men should be careful about attributing their prosperity to themselves.

6. Vs. 15: The boasts of sinners are absurd. The axe never boasts of cutting down the trees in the forest. Does the cane brag of helping the old man up the hill?

7. Isaiah 14:24: God will be an enemy to the enemy of His people.

8. Vs. 25: Though Israel had no power of themselves, yet when they repented and were ready, God would take them back to their land. God would take off their yoke as a man unharnesses his oxen.

9. Vv. 26, 27: God is still on His throne. His will will be done. He does not always pay on Saturday night, but He pays.—The Standard Commentary.

10. Do you have trouble reconciling the doctrine of God's sovereignty with the doctrine that man is a free, moral agent? Then please study the lesson exposition in our Advanced Quarterly. It should be very helpful.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Assyria was not aware of the fact that she was being used of God, but God had a purpose for her to perform, and she must do that work whether she wills to do so or not.

Assyria was bent on conquest, but God used that conquest for the chastisement of His people; thus Assyria served the purpose of God without realizing what she was doing.

2. Assyria, in the light of her amazing military victories, developed a high sense of pride in her own ability and failed to realize that these accomplishments had been brought about by God's providence and not by her own strength. She who once served as a rod in the hand of God to punish a disobedient nation must now be on the receiving end of the stick of God's wrath.

Boasting has no part in the activities of a Christian or of a Christian nation, for we who are children of God realize that whatsoever success might come our way is not of our own doing, but has been granted through the grace of God.—The Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. One of the special characteristics of an ungodly nature is to cultivate a haughty pride which is always expressed in the boasts of the braggart. Such false pride also is characterized by an attitude of self-sufficiency recognized by its egotism. This way the attitude of the Assyrians as they approached the appointed time of invasion of Judah—God's appointed time for Judah's punishment for her sins—and the last act of the Assyrians before their own haughty pride was cut down by the hand of God at His appointed time for the judgment of Assyria.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

Study all the lesson exposition in this teacher's quarterly for a real blessing.

4. Be sure to study Chapters 18 and 19 of 2 Kings, and a similar account in Isaiah 36 and 37. These are very interesting and impressive portions of Scripture. Judah needed no ally except God, and yet so weak is human nature that Hezekiah followed this deliverance with a blunder that was fearful in its consequences (Isaiah 39).

5. Illustration: A workman had unusual skill. He was promoted rapidly. Finally he became manager of the plant. He became proud and oppressive. The employees of the concern hated him. One day an aged employee said to him, "You are a clever man. God has given to you outstanding talents. But there is something you have forgotten." "What's that?" snapped he. "It's this," said the old man, "ability will help you reach the top, but you'll need character to stay there! And there is something else—you need to be big enough to acknowledge that God gave you the ability."

It is most serious to arrogate to ourselves the glory which belongs to God (cf. Malachi 2:2).—The Bible Expositor.

It's good to have money and the things that money can buy; but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy.

—Lorimer.

The man who is the most anxious for you to see his viewpoint may have no viewpoint for you to see.

Instead of loving your enemies, treat your friends a little better.

Ed Howe.

Study of Theological Liberalism, Etc.

(Continued from page five)

The minister should take his stand against evolution and other errors in the public schools.

More care should be taken by ordaining councils in ordination. Furthermore when one's doctrines are questionable this group should examine. A preacher of sound doctrine will gladly restate his position.

A survey of liberalism in other denominations reveals that the chief place of entrance is educational institutions. Generally speaking, "As a denomination's schools go, so goes the denomination." We must be kept aware that we need more than just education. We need the right kind of education; therefore, constant vigilance should be kept over all our Free Will Baptist institutions.

All of us need to maintain a strong spiritual witness and testimony. Forceful, effective evangelism and modernism do not mix. The best defence is often a strong offense. Furthermore, we must remember that a soul-winning church is a doctrinally sound church.

Finally, we appreciate the opportunity of serving this past year. We feel that the job has just begun. This is a continuous task. Such a commission should be in permanent existence. Therefore, we recommend that the moderator be authorized to appoint a permanent commission.

Respectfully submitted,

R. Eugene Waddell, Chairman
N. R. Smith
Ronald Creech
Paul Ketteman
Bobby Jackson

Stories for Boys and Girls

(continued from page twelve)

cloak hall, and she had thought the room also to be empty. But she heard a step behind her.

"Marion," it was Miss Hawley's voice, and it sounded strange.

"When you sang that last verse," Miss Hawley paused, as though searching for words, "I don't know how to express it, but it means something personal to you, doesn't it?"

For just a second Marion looked at the floor, then she raised her eyes and looked full into her teacher's face. "Jesus is my Saviour," she said simply.

Miss Hawley bit her lip. "Once when I was a little girl, I took Jesus as my Saviour too," she said in a low voice. "But I have wandered far from Him now."

"He'll take you back, Miss Hawley," Marion said earnestly.

Miss Hawley's eyes were dreamy. "Yes, I know He will."

"That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed" (Romans 10:9-11).—Gospel Herald.

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

the constitution of Brazil guarantees religious liberty.

GREAT MISSIONARY SERVICE: The Wednesday night missionary service during the National Convention was one of the greatest. Dr. LaVerne D. Miley gave a glowing testimony on "Why We Are Going to Africa." Dr. Bob Pierce brought a tremendous missionary message. The missionary offering was a record one—almost $2,000 in cash and pledges.

SHEPHERD STATION FUND: Since the last appeal was made about two months ago, $1,226.32 has been received for the Shepherd Station.

This includes a $100.00 gift from the new church in Hawaii, which no doubt represents sacrificial giving. Rev. Luther Sanders is the pastor.

Others have given sacrificially too. To each one who has sent an offering, I say, "Thank you sincerely." Approximately $2,600 is needed to complete the project.

Yours in Him,
Rolla D. Smith

Financial Statement Board of Foreign Missions, July, 1960

Cash in Bank July 1, 1960 $21,205.09

Receipts 13,813.14

Total to Account For $35,015.84

Cash in Bank July 31, 1960 $19,177.94

STATE QUOTAS
State	Quota	Paid	Balance
Alabama	$ 7,200.00	$ 3,526.06	$ 3,673.94
Arizona	1,000.00	189.11	810.89
Arkansas	6,800.00	2,916.54	3,883.46
California	6,050.00	3,141.24	2,908.76
Florida	5,900.00	2,224.22	3,675.78
Georgia	7,000.00	3,492.97	3,507.03
Idaho	300.00	269.53	30.47
Illinois	7,500.00	4,655.73	2,844.27
Kansas	300.00	130.36	169.64
Kentucky	5,500.00	1,239.88	4,260.12
Maine	915.00		915.00
Michigan	26,000.00	8,074.59	17,925.41
Mississippi	5,000.00	2,129.40	2,870.60
Missouri	15,000.00	8,927.43	6,072.57
New Mexico	1,590.00	318.92	1,271.08
N. Carolina	44,400.00	21,015.31	23,384.69
Ohio	7,300.00	2,628.51	4,671.49
Oklahoma	10,000.00	5,028.23	4,971.77
S. Carolina	10,790.00	3,964.28	6,825.72
Tennessee	15,790.00	7,644.92	8,145.08
Texas	8,200.00	4,736.27	3,463.73
Virginia	10,500.00	4,607.41	5,892.59
W. Virginia	6,090.00	1,497.49	4,592.51
Misc.	13,865.08	2,710.49	11,154.59
Totals	$222,990.08	$ 95,068.89	$127,921.19

THE MAIL BOX

(continued from page four)

We feel that there are personal at Fort Wood whom we are not reaching, and do not know there is a Free Will Baptist church located within reach of Fort Wood personnel.

"There may be readers of The Free Will Baptist who have friends or relatives stationed at Fort Wood. If they will send us names and addresses, we will personally contact them. The church is located miles west of Waynesville, on city Road 66."—Rev. Cliff Bowman, Box 31, Waynesville, Missouri.

MISSION WORK TO BEGIN

"I am being sent by our National Free Will Baptist Board to Denver, Colorado, for the purpose of organizing and building a Free Will Baptist church. I will begin my work October 1. As soon as that is completed, my family and I will move to Denver and begin our work.

"There are a lot of people from Free Will Baptist churches, or people who have a Free Will Baptist background, in or near Denver. If any reader of this letter knows the name and address of such a person or persons you please send it to me so that I can contact him when I arrive in Denver.

"Finally, brethren, pray for us that the word of the Lord may have free course, be glorified even as it is with you."—Roy Thomas, 3801 Richland Avenue, Memphis, Tennessee.

W.S.

DURHAM UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

AUG 31 1960

the Free Will Baptist

DURHAM, N.C.

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1960

HAROLD M. LAMBERT PHOTO

Preparing for Heaven

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour
Taylorsville, North Carolina

HOW MARVELOUS it is to prepare for heaven! This requires Godly living. We have heard this great truth examined many times, "Heaven is a prepared place for a prepared people." In Amos 4:12, "... prepare to meet thy God, O

Israel. This warning message to Israel is to all people. If we prepare to meet God, we likewise prepare for heaven; but those who make no preparation to meet God make no preparation for heaven. We are not here if we miss heaven we shall miss this life, which is worthwhile and worth living for. As somebody has said, "Heaven will be cheap at any price." It will cost us our best to get there, but how glorious, exceedingly so, it will be when we make the journey easily and triumphantly through!

One of my readers, Miss May A. Grove, of Napoleon, Ohio, wrote me some time ago and told of the departure of her grandmother some years in the past. Speaking of heaven she said, "It is so beautiful. My grandmother didn't care to remain here after death was revealed to her. She spent one afternoon trying to tell us how beautiful heaven was. She saw her loved ones sitting in the center and Jesus in the center. Although she was only ten years of age and my brother was only five, she couldn't wait to get there. The reason to remain longer, and that she told others about the beautiful place was so they, too, could prepare and be ready. She put her arm around me and said, 'I want to take me with her. But one sense was left unfinished—she couldn't find words big enough to use to describe heaven. How beautiful it is! But she did say the things were of gold and everyone was sing-

I will never forget the dying testimony of my dear old grandmother, Jemina Isenhour, many years ago when I was just a youth. She called the different members of her family to her bedside, one by one, and talked to them about living for God and meeting her in heaven. Oh such wonderful advice! How soul stirring! It was enough to make angels weep, and yet rejoice. How sad to know that she was leaving us, and yet how glorious to realize that she was departing for a better country, that is, an heavenly one.

Grandmother had lived a life of much hardship and suffering. She had no education, no money, and only the bare necessities of life. She had toiled long and weary years and reared a large family. I remember she called me her other boy, as she loved me so much. How I delighted to visit her and eat the good old-fashioned food she prepared! I well remember how she was bent with the weight of many years of labor and toil. But I knew her and loved her for her kindness, sweetness, gentleness, patience and longsuffering. I never knew her to get mad, never knew her to fall out with her neighbors; never knew her to quarrel and fuss; never knew her to grumble and complain; never knew her to lament her lot in life. There was something about her that reminded one of the Godly mothers and saints of other days and other years.

When she came to the end of life's earthly journey in that humble little mountain home in western North Carolina, she had something in her heart and soul that all the riches of earth couldn't buy. No learning could equal it. No earthly fame, honor and praise could reach up to its sublime heights. God was there, and surely heaven had come down her soul to greet. Although half a century, or more, has come and gone since Grandmother's departure, yet the impressive scene lingers in my memory. I expect to see her some sweet and happy day

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER JEREMIAH HEATH

Elder Heath, son of Rigdon Heath, was born the 4th of October, 1793. At the age of 15, he was induced to try to procure an education, which he did by going to school three months, and working three months. By this means he obtained a common education. At the age of 24 years, he married Holland Jones, and they both united with the Free Will Baptist Church at Stony Branch, Craven County, North Carolina. He commenced to preach the gospel at the age of 31 years. He traveled and preached considerably and made a large circle of friends. He lived at Core Creek, Craven County. He preached his last sermon the first Sunday in February, 1867; and on the 22nd of said month, he yielded his spirit to the God who gave it. He bore his afflictions with Christian fortitude. Just before he died, he said that he thanked God that he was going to a better world than this, where his troubles would all be over. He requested his son, William, to tell his brother preachers farewell, that he hoped to meet them in heaven.

Thus died the good man full of years with heaven in his view.

•
Sign on a junk shop a few yards from a railway crossing near Denver: "Go Ahead—Take A Chance. We'll Buy the Car."

•
"Only those who have their eyes steadfastly fixed upon Jesus will be enabled to run their race with patience."

•
Fair promises are sometimes made by men of dishonest hearts and sorry principles.

where sad partings will be known no more. Yes, indeed, heaven will be cheap at any price. But oh how sad and awful to those who fail to get there. Reader, "Prepare to meet thy God!" I want you to hear Jesus say, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Pioneer Effort to Meet Challenge of the Cults

FOR many years Christian mission agencies and boards have been faced with the problem of non-Christian religions and cults. On all mission fields competitive religious forces exist which pose a constant threat to Christian evangelism and many already established congregations. Foremost among these forces are various cults or sects originating in the United States from where they send literature and missionaries to proselytize already existing work. Such groups as Jehovah's Witnesses, the Mormons, Christian Science, Unity and Moral Re-Armament have grown to alarming proportions and their influence is felt on every major world mission field.

Added to these cults are certain virulent indigenous sects particularly in Latin America, Africa and Asia. These movements, fired by a militant Nationalism, attack Christianity as the white man's religion and regard it as a form of western imperialism superimposed, so to speak, upon their respective cultures. The two groups comprise a formidable force with which Christianity must come to grips, but sad to say, the church is ill-equipped to meet this rapidly expanding problem.

The cults specialize in mass rallies carefully advertised in the press and through other mass media of communication. Beyond this, they provide literature in the language of the respective mission fields and they canvas exhaustively every possible prospect. This affects the Christian church because the cults concentrate upon already affiliated church members, seldom do they first evangelize admittedly pagan religions. In the last half century, this missionary challenge has become more and more accelerated, today it is acute.

The urgency of this situation can be appreciated when it is remembered that there does not exist one comprehensive magazine, pamphlet, tract or book on any mission field (save Japan and Formosa) to inform missionaries of any faith as to how they may refute the teachings of these cults, or more important, tell them how to evangelize cultists for Christ.

Christian missionaries are literally in the dark when a cult invasion begins in any given area of world missions. For that matter, the situation is little better in the United States. While it is true that a good body of literature exists in this area, a large percentage of it is outdated, unreliable and unscholarly, and shows a marked lack of personal investigation in the field. Field work itself is virtually unknown and second and third hand hearsay are often accepted as fact. This type of polemic accomplishes little and continues to do much harm.

The result of this deplorable situation is that missionaries, pastors, teachers and laymen are at a tremendous disadvantage when facing cultists in America or on the mission field and the situation is deteriorating, not improving. It should be noted that though most Christian colleges, universities, seminaries and Bible schools are also aware of this problem, no mandatory or strong curricula have yet been instituted in any of them to orient students in this vital subject so they, too, desperately need information and stimulation in this needy field. It may seem strange, but it is true none the less that a man can receive seven years of college and seminary training and never once be required to learn how to effectively deal with the cults which will sooner or later harass his ministry and threaten his flock. This is true also for the overwhelming majority of missionary training programs, a fact few informed persons are prepared to debate.

Recognizing this problem for what it is, a massive threat to the missionary life of the whole Christian church, the Christian Research Institute was recently formed to deal specifically with this issue on an international basis. A non profit research and educational corporation headed by the Rev. Walter R. Martin, a recognized authority on cults and non-Christian religions, the institute will supply to mission agencies, schools, churches and laymen up-to-date information concerning the history, doctrines and methods of the major religious systems functioning in the United States and all world mission fields.

An unique feature of the institute will be the provision of tracts, pamphlets, summaries and books at near cost prices translated into the languages of the respective mission fields for mass distribution. The institute will also provide for its participating members a quarterly publication, Religious Research Digest—containing articles, editorials and contributions by leading Christian writers as they bear on the subject of comparative religions and temporary religious trends. The Digest also highlights reports from various mission boards, missionaries, pastors and theologians on the subjects of general news, evangelistic methods and the missionary expansion of various cults and religions operating throughout the world.

Mr. Martin, founder and director of the institute, comes well prepared and qualified for this unique ministry. A graduate of The Stony Brook School, Shelton College and New York University, he holds degrees in philosophy and religious education, and is currently a doctoral candidate at New York University. As contributing editor to Eternity magazine and associate editor of the Zondervan Publication House, he had been described by Christianity Today as "the most productive intensive evangelical scholar writing in the field today."

The author of five major books, as well as articles, pamphlets and tracts on sects originating their origin in the United States, Martin has labored among the cults in the field for the past twelve years and has lectured throughout the United States, Europe and Asia where he spoke to over 5,000 missionaries and workers under the sponsorship of World Vision, Inc., California. Time magazine, describing some of Mr. Martin's constructive work (December 16, 1956), characterized him as a research polemicist who brought a sword and not a sword.

Under Martin's direction, the Christian Research Institute will begin to effectively meet for the first time in the history of Christian missions the challenge of the cults. The institute will in Martin's words "Act as a clearing house for all Christian groups independent and ecumenical not affiliated or controlled by any group serving the needs of all—literally an international bureau of missionary information for concerned Christians everywhere. Through the world wide services of the institute, Christian workers of all continents can obtain the information needed to protect themselves and their people from the infiltration and proselytizing of religions and cults of all varieties. This information will be primary documented and readily available, it will meet the need and will enlighten a situation which has lain in darkness for over 50 years. Here is an opportunity to serve missionaries, p-

(continued on page nine)

The Lengthened Shadow of Paul Palmer

W. Burkette Raper, President
Mount Olive College

HAVE a basic conviction that if a people do not know from whence they come they do not know where they are going. With this thought in mind, last year on the first day of a class in "The Free Will Baptist Church," I asked the students to write the name of the man generally recognized as the founder of the first Free Will Baptist church. Less than one half of them knew that Paul Palmer organized the first Free Will Baptist church in North Carolina in 1727 in Chowan County, yet most of the students were long-time members of Free Will Baptist churches and most of them were preparing for the ministry. I did not condemn them, however, I commended them for having come to learn. It is imperative that our pastors, and especially those who hold denominational office, understand and appreciate our history and heritage. The apostle, Paul, warned against placing authority in the hands of a novice, an inexperienced new convert (1 Timothy 3:6). The neglect of the biblical admonition has been a serious peril to Free Will Baptists. We have lost our heritage, and a knowledge of this heritage is indispensable if we are to safeguard the character and integrity of our denomination for ourselves and our children.

THE MAN: PAUL PALMER

The story of history is the biography of great men," said Thomas Carlyle. The first Free Will Baptist church in North Carolina was organized by Paul Palmer in 1727; he later organized the second Baptist church in 1729. Palmer was an energetic minister who traveled extensively, and out of his labors the Free Will Baptist denomination took root and grew. Most of our information about Palmer is from the diary of the Reverend John Comer, a Baptist historian educated at Harvard and Yale.

Comer describes Palmer as a man of parts and worthy. G. W. Paschal, in his History of North Carolina Baptists, saw Palmer as a man of large conceptions, of proper self-respect, and calm assurance of his own powers, but as one that had not thought of himself more highly than he should have thought. He married into one of the richest and most respectable families in North Carolina. As a man of character and distinction, Palmer gave dignity to the Baptist movement.

The Church of England controlled religious life in North Carolina before the coming of Palmer, and to organize a Baptist church in those days was no easy task. But ". . . by 1729 Palmer had brought a religious transformation which the Governor regarded with nothing short of wonder. He was leading the Baptists in a great missionary campaign, holding daily meetings and making proselytes in every part of the province. His converts were numbered by the hundreds and the Baptists were flourishing. Governor Everard . . . confessed that he was powerless to prevent or withstand the great tide of religious enthusiasm which under the preaching of Palmer was sweeping over the province. . . . His silence on the character of Mr. Palmer is sufficient proof that he knew nothing against it."—Paschal.

In the history of Free Will Baptists, Paul Palmer holds a unique position. He preached those doctrines of free will and salvation by faith that have characterized our denomination for more than two centuries. Not only should Free Will Baptists remember Paul Palmer, but we should take steps to perpetuate the distinguished qualities of this patriarch of our faith: large conceptions, self-respect, humility, spiritual enthusiasm and emotional stability.

THE PAUL PALMER ENDOWMENT FUND

In recognition of our debt to Palmer, the North Carolina State Convention established in 1959, at Mount Olive College, The Paul Palmer Endowment Fund. Over $500 was sent to this fund by local churches as a part of their report to the State Convention last year. Each church has been requested to send a minimum of $5 for this fund annually.

This endowment will help to provide Christian higher education for men and women who will guarantee that the faith of Paul Palmer will live on in future generations. Free Will Baptists have a faith that is worth living for, working for; and, if necessary, it is worth dying for, and Mount Olive College is dedicated to the preservation and perpetuation of this faith. It is most appropriate that the state wherein Palmer labored so diligently should take the lead in memorializing him. Through Mount Olive College, we believe that Free Will Baptists are becoming more conscious of our noble history and the struggles and sacrifices made by our forefathers.

In summarizing the ministry of Palmer, G. W. Paschal writes, "Palmer started the Baptist work in North Carolina and from his time until now it has made constant progress. But from the first the Baptists suffered the handicap of not having a sufficient number of men of education and zeal to lead and instruct the converts made." This lack of men of education and zeal is a problem Free Will Baptists have never overcome, but today much progress in this direction is being made, and Mount Olive College stands at the forefront of this progress.

We recognize that ". . . the only way we can save our faith is to teach it, and it was for this purpose that Mount Olive Junior College was called into being. The founding fathers chartered the college upon three fundamental principles:

1. The college should be Christian in its philosophy, personnel and program;
2. The college should be true to the faith and heritage of Free Will Baptists;
3. The college should be academically sound.

It was upon these principles that Mount Olive Junior College was established; and by them it is still guided; and in fidelity to them it faces the future with confidence."—1960-61 College Catalogue. From this campus we are sending forth men and women whose roots are in the past but whose faces are to the future.

It is our prayer that the lengthened shadow of Paul Palmer will fall upon Free Will Baptist youth today and imbue them
(continued on page nine)

NEWS NOTES

Revival and Home-Coming At Cedar Grove Church

Rev. Robert Lee Norville

Funeral services are in progress at Cedar Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Williamston, North Carolina, with the Rev. Robert Lee Norville as the evangelist. Services began August 28 and will continue through September 3. All services begin each evening at 7:45.

The annual home-coming of the church will be observed Sunday, September 4. There will be morning worship services with a picnic lunch at the noon hour. In the afternoon there will be a singspiration.

The pastor, the Rev. Walter Sutton, invites everyone to attend the remaining nights of the revival, and also the home-coming on Sunday.

Fifth Eastern Union Meeting Convenes with Mount Zion

The Fifth Eastern Union Meeting District of the Eastern Conference of North Carolina convened with Mount Zion Free Will Baptist Church, Vandemere, North Carolina, Saturday before the fifth Sunday in July, 1960.

It is reported that a very successful union was held in which reports showed progress in all fields. The messages and worship services were an inspiration to all. The Rev. Graham Lane delivered the union sermon. The afternoon message was delivered by the Rev. Bobby Bazen. The finance committee reported a total received of $252.60 and a total paid out of $237.50, leaving a total of $15.10 in the treasury.

This being the time for the election of officers for the coming year, the following were elected by popular vote: Moderator, the Rev. Al Lyczkowski; assistant moderator, the Rev. George Ludwig; secretary-treasurer, Rom W. Mallard; reading clerk, Annie Mallard; program committee, the Rev. Henry Armstrong, W. J. Gaskins and John L. Gillikin; representative to the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina, the Rev. Graham Lane; representative to the Church Finance Association, Rom W. Mallard; temperance committee, the Rev. Albert Rollins, the Rev. Elmo Harper and Lee Gerganus; delegates to the North Carolina State Convention, Mrs. W. J. Gaskins, Mrs. Al Lyczkowski, Mrs. James Lupton, Mr. Fred Hagan and Mrs. Rom Mallard; delegates to the Eastern Conference, Mrs. Al Lyczkowski and Mr. and Mrs. John Gillikin.

A vote of thanks was given the church for the hospitality shown this session of the union.

The union closed with a prayer to meet in its next setting with Winter Green Church, Craven County.

Rev. Louis H. Moulton Evangelist For Union Chapel Revival

The Rev. Louis H. Moulton of Nashville, Tennessee, will be the evangelist for revival services at Union Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Plymouth, North Carolina, September 5-11. Services will begin each evening at 8:00. There will be special singing each evening from various churches.

The pastor, the Rev. Charlie Overton, states: "Everyone is invited to attend, but above all, we are asking all Christians to pray for our meeting."

Edgewood Church to Hold Annual Home-Coming

The Edgewood Free Will Baptist Church, Macclesfield, North Carolina, will hold its annual home-coming, Sunday, September 4, 1960, with Sunday school beginning at 10:00 a. m. and worship service at 11:00. A picnic lunch will be served at the noon hour. In the afternoon there will be singing, and all singers invited to come and render special songs during this session.

The church invites all former members, pastors and friends to attend this home-coming and enjoy the fellowship together.

Rev. Noah Brown Evangelist For Williamston Revival

Rev. Noah Brown

The First Free Will Baptist Church, Williamston, North Carolina, announces revival services September 5-10, with Rev. Noah Brown, pastor of Church Heights Free Will Baptist Church, Charleston, South Carolina, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:45.

Home-coming will be held at the church Sunday, September 11, beginning with Sunday school, followed with worship service at 11:00 a. m. The annual picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour. The pastor, the Rev. Walter Sutton, invites everyone to attend the revival and the home-coming.

Successful Revival at Union Hill, Mississippi

Dr. Homer E. Willis, general director for National Home Missions, was the evangelist for a one-week revival recently held at Union Hill Free Will Baptist Church near Tupelo, Mississippi. There were several first time professions and two standing ones. A lady more than seventy years old was saved, and a man sev-

Coming Events

September 14, 15—North Carolina Convention, Elm Grove Church, Ayden, North Carolina
September 22—Eastern Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Mount Olive Church, Mount Olive, North Carolina

ears old was saved. Ten young men women dedicated themselves to the of the Lord wherever He would call on Hill Church is one of the older nes in Mississippi and has recently gone a building program. The pastor s church is the Rev. Ernest Ownby, e and his wife have done a great for God in the community. The ra has grown in recent years in at- ce and now has more than 100 en- in Sunday school.

Bobby Aycock to Direct Prospect Revival

Prospect Free Will Baptist Church, Har- County, North Carolina, is happy to nce that the Rev. Bobby Aycock will e evangelist for revival services be- g Monday evening, September 5 continuing through September 11. Church asks that you be much in pray- the success of this meeting. The is invited to each service.

Successful Revival at Sound Side Church

Recently the Sound Side Free Will Bap- church of Columbia, North Carolina, nced a successful revival with the Wayne Smith as the evangelist. There ive first-time decisions, and ten who ed their lives to the Lord to be wherever He leads them; all these ous people. There were about 40 cations and the entire church was ally revived, so reports the pastor, ev. Charlie Overton.

Carteret County Union Meeting Convenes with Davis Church

Free Will Baptist churches of Car- County, North Carolina, met for their quarterly Union Meeting at Davis, ay, July 30, 1960. Highlighting the ng session was a vocal solo rendered e Rev. Randy Cox, pastor of the ort Free Will Baptist Church, and sage concerning the primary respon- of the local church in soul winning, ed by the Rev. Seldon Bullard, pas- the First Free Will Baptist Church rehead City.

Afternoon session featured the dis- of two pastors to other areas of and the adoption of a resolution con- the forthcoming presidential elec- Dismissed in good standing from the et County Union Meeting were the C. B. Hansley, pastor of the Holly s Church of Newport, and the Rev. Van Kluyve, pastor of the Davis n. The Rev. Gordon Sebastian of urch at Staey submitted the follow- resolution, which was unanimously d by the 15 represented bodies:

Whereas, the Democratic Convention has named a member of the Roman Cath- olic church as their nominee for President of the United States of America; and

Whereas, the polity of the Roman Cath- olic church places each of its constituents under the jurisdiction and direction of the papaey; and

Whereas, historically and traditionally a great objective of the Church of Rome has been world domination through a union of church and state; and

Whereas, this purpose and goal, as well as its means, is in direct conflict with the Constitution of the United States of America and the Treatise of the Faith and Prac- tices of the Original Free Will Baptists; therefore,

Resolved, that this Carteret County Uni- on Meeting of Free Will Baptists encour- age its constituents to examine the issues involved in the election of the Democratic Convention's nominee for President of the United States of America; and, thereby, take definite and positive means to pre- vent the election of a Roman Catholic to the aforesaid office of President.

Revival at Mizpah Church Washington, N. C., Sept. 11-25

Revival services will begin at Mizpah Free Will Baptist Church, River Road, Washington, North Carolina, September 11 and will continue through September 25, with the Rev. M. E. Cox, who has been retained as pastor of the church, as the evangelist. Services will begin nightly at 7:45, except Saturday nights; there will be no services then.

Sunday, September 18, will be Round- Up Day at the church and a great time in the Lord is expected as all the members gather back after summer vacations.

Sunday, September 25, will be Family and Visitor Day with a picnic lunch on the grounds after the morning worship service. A singspiration will be held after lunch and all churches in this area, as well as other singing groups, are invited to participate.

Women of Dawson's Grove Paints Interior of Council

The men of Dawson's Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Scotland Neck, North Carolina, would probably have gotten around to painting the interior of the church as soon as crops were in, but the women couldn't wait, so they just went ahead and did it themselves; and they did it well, according to the appraisal of the pastor, the Rev. L. E. Ballard, who did little work but much inspecting! The women just had to have the church looking good for the annual meeting of the Central Woman's Auxiliary Convention soon to meet with them. When the men can't do, or will not do, the women can and will!

Anyway, the men are busy at the inter- vals they can spare from their farm work laying concrete block walks to connect the church, parsonage and fellowship build- ing as part of the project launched some- time ago to make Dawson's Grove one of the real beauty spots of Halifax County. They are working in accordance with a plan approved by the church sometime ago. A little here, and a little there, will in the end fit together to bring to pass the dream of Dawson's Grove people to have a church and grounds that will honor the Lord, even as they believe their program of worship and service honors Him.

Fall Revival at Smyrna Church, September 4-10

The annual fall revival will begin at Smyrna Free Will Baptist Church, John- ston County, North Carolina, September 4 and will continue through September 10. The speaker will be the newly elected pastor, the Rev. Charlie T. Rice Jr., of New Bern, North Carolina. The public is cordially invited to attend these services which will begin each evening at 7:30.

Mr. Rice states: "We covet the prayers of all Christians for the success of this meeting."

Scholarships Available for Mount Olive College Students

President W. Burkette Raper of Mount Olive College has called attention to cate- gories of scholarships still available at Mount Olive College for the fall semester beginning September 5.

Academic scholarships covering one half the amount of tuition are available to high school valedictorians and salutatorians. Valued at $250, these scholarships are awarded at the rate of $62.50 for four semesters. Other graduates in the top ten per cent of their class are eligible to apply for scholarships worth $200.

Qualified students preparing for full- time work as ministers or missionaries are eligible for scholarships covering full tui- tion.

Other financial assistance is available through twelve education loan funds, in- cluding the National Defense Student Loan Program.

President Raper disclosed that Mount Olive College annually assists approximately forty per cent of its students through some form of student aid. The college oper- ates on the principle that intelligence, motivation and character, not a student's pocketbook, should determine his oppor- tunities for higher education.

Registration for the fall semester closes September 20.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Do you think we are going to recognize our loved ones when we get to heaven?—Anne Daulburgh, Illinois.

Answer: Yes, I think so. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2). In this verse we learn two things, that we are going to be like Christ and see Him as He really is rather than as those in Palestine saw Him in the days of His flesh, for they, like we are now with fleshly bodies, saw Him imperfectly; but then with bodies like His glorified body, we shall see Him in a perfect way as He saw them. He even knew their thoughts. Adam could give characteristic names to all creation, Eve included, before sin limited his vision and knowledge. We shall doubtless see and know even better than Adam saw before his limitation that being a sinner placed him under. Some scholars say that as the disciples of Jesus knew Moses and Elijah on the mount of transfiguration as seen in Matthew 17:1-13; Mark 9:2-13; Luke 9:26-38, so shall we know those who have glorified bodies. Some of these say that Moses represented the dead in Christ who shall be raised; while Elijah represents those that will be here at the time of Christ's coming for His saints, and will be taken to heaven without dying, since Elijah was translated and Moses died and was buried by God Himself.

There are also those who say that we shall know each other in our glorified bodies and use this Scripture to support the claim, "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12). Again there are some who raise the question, "Then if we have all this knowledge of those we have known on earth that are saved, what of those we have known that are not saved?" Will we know of their state and therefore feel sorry for them? Another question that some ask has to do with infants. Will they be resurrected in infant sized bodies or mature bodies? If the latter, how shall we know them since we last saw them as infants? If they have the resurrection bodies of infants, will this mean that they are limited more than those with resurrected bodies that are mature? To such questions we must act as the Scriptures do. On these they are silent when it comes to a direct answer.

It seems that David who wrote under the inspiration of God had hopes of being united to his infant son, and I assume this means that he would recognize him in his glorified body though that is not what he says, for all that he says is, "But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me" (2 Samuel 12:23). Again though, we do not have definite answers for such questions. We are told that the future life for those who are saved is to be a pleasant one of joy, peace and happiness, one in which there are no tears, etc. "For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes" (Revelation 7:17); "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away" (21:4). It is to be a state of being where all needs are met in pleasant surroundings. "And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son" (21:6, 7); "And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healings of the nations. And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him: And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever" (22:1-5).

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THE FRIEND OF GOD

"And the scripture was fulfilled by saith, Abraham believed God, and it imputed unto him for righteousness: he was called the Friend of God" (James 2:23).

Scofield's note on this verse says, "It is the act of God whereby He counts righteousness to the believer, Christ, who has borne the believer's in vindication of the law," and refers to the seventeenth and eighteenth verses of Philemon as a perfect illustration of the word. There we read, "If thou wilt be therefore a partner, receive him as himself. If he hath wronged me, or owed me ought, put that on mine account."

The places in the Scripture to which James was referring are to be found in 1 Chronicles 20:7, in which we read, "And thou our God, who didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend for ever?" And in Isaiah 41:8, which says, "But thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend." There is a greater privilege that I can think of than that of being a friend of God. And we must not let ourselves be deceived by the idea that only Abraham, or a few of the selected ones of the Old Testament and those of the early church period, could be the friends of God. Christ said of the redeemed ones of the dispensation of grace, "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you" (John 15:14). Note the importance of that little word if, in this blessed relationship. Also in the fifteenth verse, "Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you."

But how can we become the friends of God? The answer is simple. The most important thing to do, is to become the children of God through the atoning power of His Son, then by q ous living, faithful worship and obe-service. In this way, we are, like th, walking with God, and the product ears of humbleness with Him is the dship of God.

use his days to become the friend of is one of the greatest of the life God iven to the man who believes in Him, who believes that he can come from and will return one day to God. Such n knows that the time granted to him arth is best used in establishing a firm appy relationship with Him in whose nce he expects to dwell through all ity. With each morning arrives, the ise of fresh discoveries of the things has for His own; new heights of spir-experience to be climbed. True wor-leads to increased reverence toward and greater love for Him, and day-y friendship with God deepens un-becomes a glowing reality making day's experience sweeter because of er-widening knowledge of God and of s divine.

ristianity is a private bond a man has between himself and God. It is an e relationship that alone, and many in aloneness with God, man has ished with his Maker and becomes rue guide of his destiny, and by it tured and made strong and brave by y walking humbly through the world
God as His friend.

s imperative in these tense and trying e to have time for fellowship with d for renewal and refreshment, and for eace that is not to be found in any e way. If we would be the friend of d we must find or make within the work of our days, space for companp with God.

(Continued Next Week)

Pioneer Effort to Meet Challenge of the Cults

(continued from page four)

ers and Christian workers everywhere.
s the first real answer the church has attempted and God alone knows if will rise to the challenge with the necessary, for as our Lord remarks, night is coming wherein no one can

Christian Research Institute maintains ic at 122 Beaufort Avenue, Livingston, w Jersey, where it houses one of the e collections of books on comparareligions and cults extant. The ina also sponsors a lecture service pro-in lectures on various religions in res, schools and seminaries for those erted in meeting this rapidly growing

As a pioneer project the Christian Research Institute fulfills a unique role, that of evangelist, teacher and apologist, a ministry which is best summed up in the words of evangelist Billy Graham:

"I have traveled to many of our mission fields; I have talked with our missionaries and mission leaders. I know that the problem of cults is not exaggerated there or in the United States. This is a real challenge and a great vacuum exists that needs to be filled. Christian Research Institute has the information and the ability to do this. I will do all I can to help it get this vital task accomplished. You have my prayers and full support in a work that is definitely of God's leading."—ERA.

(Note: This special news report was prepared for ERA subscribers by Christian Research Institute.)

The Lengthened Shadow Of Paul Palmer

(continued from page five)

with large conceptions, self-respect, humility, Christian character, spiritual enthusiasm and emotional stability. Through a gift to the Paul Palmer Endowment Fund of Mount Olive College, you can help to lengthen this shadow that it may reach generations yet unborn.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

FOR ME TO LIVE

(Philippians 1:21)

Introduction: Men live for various purposes! What is the end of your desires? Just what do you hope to accomplish in life?
Some people live for:

I. PLEASURE

1. Pleasure was the god of the prodigal son (Luke 15:13).
2. Pleasure is definitely offered by the world (Ecclesiastes 11:9).
3. But worldly pleasure is temporary (Ecclesiastes 11:9; Hebrews 11:24, 25).

II. POPULARITY

1. Popularity was the god of Pontius Pilate (Matthew 27: 17, 18).
2. Popularity is definitely offered by the world (Mark 15:15).
3. But worldly popularity is temporary (Acts 20:20-23).

III. POSSESSIONS

1. Possessions was the god of the rich fool (Luke 12:19).
2. Possessions are definitely offered by the world (Luke 12:16, 17).
3. But worldly possessions are temporary (Luke 12:20; Proverbs 1:32).

IV. PHILOSOPHY

1. Philosophy was the god of the Epicureans and Stoics (Acts 17:18-21).
2. Philosophy is definitely offered by the world (Colossians 2:8).
3. But worldly philosophy is temporary (1 Corinthians 1:18).

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

The Ivory Coast Gains Independence

by Daniel Merkh

"I exhort therefore, that, first of all, sup-plications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; For kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. For this is

V. POWER

1. Power was the god of Nimrod (Genesis 10:8-10).
2. Power is definitely offered by the world (Daniel 4:30).
3. But worldly power is temporary (Daniel 4:31-33).

VI. PRIDE

1. Pride was the god of Lucifer (Isaiah 14:12-14).
2. Pride is definitely offered by the world (Psalm 31:20).
3. But worldly pride is temporary (Isaiah 25:11; Proverbs 16:18).

SALVATION IS FREE, BUT TESTIMONY IS EXPENSIVE

In a very large corporation in the eastern part of the United States there worked a young Christian whose life so radiated Christ that he bore a strong testimony to Him and was an influence for good among all who knew him. The president of the company called this young man to him one day and, addressing him by name, said: "I have been tremendously impressed by your Christian life and your benign influence in our factory. Although I am the head of this corporation, I would give everything in the world if I could emulate you in this respect. Tell me the secret of your life."

"What you would give," the young man replied, "is exactly what it has cost me—the whole world."

The Christian life is Christ living His life in us. The world is at enmity with Him. Therefore, if we would have Him live out His life through us, the world must be given up; we must be crucified to the world and all its attractions, and it must be crucified to us in our day by day experience. Galatians 6:14 must be a practical reality to us.—Our Hope.

SEALED FOUNTAIN

In the Roman Forum there used to be a spring called "The Fountain of the Maiden." Until recent years it was impossible to find any trace of it. One day, however, in cleaning away a lot of rubbish from the ruins of the Forum, the old fountain burst forth again. For centuries it had been closed by the refuse which had accumulated.

Oh, how many Christian lives are sealed fountains through the hurry and worry of business and pleasure, and where once you were a useful and happy soul winner, you are today absorbed in your amusements and engagements, and your life has withered like the streams that sink in the desert and are lost to sight. How careful we should be that neither by foolish conversation, glaring inconsistencies, religious selfishness, or any other reason we may cause our brother to stumble or hinder our testimony for Christ.—A. B. Simpson.

good and acceptable in the sight of our Saviour; Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth" (1 Timothy 2:1-4).

This is the need of the Ivory Coast day. We here in this country want call your attention to these important issues, and want you to know how important they are today.

Paul was admonishing Timothy, urging him to pray for those that are in authority that they, the Christians, might have a quiet and peaceable life. I cannot believe that Paul was thinking about his own personal comfort when he referred to a peaceful life, nor does the context point this out. Evidently, Paul was asking prayer for the leaders of the government that the gospel would not be hindered; he goes on to say in Verse 4 that God Saviour would that all men be saved. In other words, Paul was urging prayer for the leaders that the gospel could be preached in peace, without hindrances.

This is our need here. Recent events make this of utmost importance. Several weeks ago the Ivory Coast, which is a member of the French Community, was granted total independence of September 1. This means that as of this date the Ivory Coast will become an independent nation.

There are several things concerning this that should be noticed: (1) When joining the French Community last year a vote was put to the people. They voted 99 per cent "yes" for entering this federation with France. Now, in asking for independence, there was not a vote put to the people but the decision was made by those in authority. Therefore, it is evident that those in authority have a great deal of power. (2) We have already observed a process begun of changing the powers of the French government. Before independence has been officially granted, one of the political leaders has visited in the area and informed local chiefs that they no longer have the power they once had, but that he was still the authority. This same official has also challenged the authority of the head of state of this area.

This very clearly reveals that with independence there will be changes in the form of government and the political powers will be powerful. How can this be the missionaries' work? Let us first examine the forces at work to gain control of Africa. Today there are three major groups attempting to convert Africa besides the true Church of Jesus Christ.

1. The Roman Catholic Church. The French government has looked with favor on the Roman Catholic church, and for many years they have been working (continued on page thirteen)

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THE SEVEN THINGS THAT GOD HATES

(Continued from Last Week)

This is the last of the seven things that the writer of Proverbs said God hates.

The psalmist writes, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in Unity!" (Psalm 133:1). If good for brethren to dwell together in unity, it is certainly very bad for brethren to have to dwell together in discord. It seems today that brethren are in discord—politically, socially and religiously. There is such a discord, not only between different denominations, but in various denominational churches. Church groups disagree to the extent that churches split and follow after preaching and sometimes some few get too good and showship with others of the same faith.

There is no secret as to the discord that took place in a Baptist church in Rocky Mount, North Carolina, just a few months back, when the discord amounted to a lawsuit in the civil courts. But things have happened in Free Will Baptist churches right in North Carolina that have caused one group slab-off from the main and a spirit of malice and hatred of things manifested toward others. I am sure the devil is well pleased with the discord.

This discord causes much confusion and lost sinners are going further away from God and the church because of the confusion. Paul says, ". . . God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in churches of the saints" (1 Corinthians 14:33). Well, if God is not the author of confusion, the devil must be. So according to the Word of God, the one that causes discord among the brethren must be Satan. We know that "by their fruits you shall know them." When churches and people get so mad that they cannot be courteous toward those with whom they differ with, it is a sign of an evil spirit.

James says, "Who is a wise man and endowed with knowledge among you? Let him show out of a good conversation his meekness and wisdom. But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth. This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish. For where envying and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace" (James 3:13-18).

There is a vast difference between those that sow peace and those that sow discord. I have known evangelists, in conducting what we call revival meetings, to sow discord. The church would be in worse shape after the meeting had closed. New isms and cisms had been born. People had been confused. Questions had been drilled into the minds of people who were not able to answer. I heard a man, a good preacher, say not too long ago, that it took him several months to get his church down to the work that the church desired, after the evangelist had left. (May I say, I try to be careful as to who goes into my pulpit. I want to know that the evangelist is not envious of others. I want to know that he is sound in the doctrine of the Original Free Will Baptists. That he is loyal to the institutions of the denomination. I want to know that he is not a fanatic, for in my early ministry I had some trouble by not knowing these things.)

A person that sows discord among Christians can do more harm in a few days than a full-time pastor can undo in months and sometime years.

Perhaps some of you remember the message on "Gossiping Tongues and Ears" in Notes and Quotes sometime back. If so many of us did not like to hear gossip, the gossipers would have to shut up. But we human beings like to hear gossip, so we sit still and listen to the sower of discord and then take it up and run with it as fast as we can to get to someone who likes to hear it as much as we like to pass it on.

As we have said, not our saying, but Paul's "God is not the author of confusion, but of peace," and we have seen that we have religious confusion. May we now look at the political confusion. From now until November, when the presidential election is over, we are going to hear much confusion. There is going to be the pro and the con. There is going to be a lot of crossing over party lines. Things that are true are going to be told, and lies are going to be broadcast. Friends are going to become foes. Possibly men will be killed, and if not murdered, they will become such enemies that the devil will laugh at the foolish, slanderous remarks of sensible people.

I AM A FREE MAN

Jesus said, "If the son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36). The greatest freedom in God's universe is that freedom in Christ Jesus. I may not act like some who say that they are it, nor I may not interpret Scripture like some, but I certainly will not inject anything into my religion that I cannot prove by the Bible, if I know it. ". . . I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (1 Timothy 1:12). I do not want to trade with anyone. I am satisfied with my Christ. This is not bragging; I have nothing to brag about. God deliver me from a bragging preacher, or anyone else who brags on his achievements. I can brag on Jesus Christ; He is my all in all.

There is a danger of losing our freedom in Christ and being brought under the bondage of sin and guilt. Listen, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit" (Romans 8:1). As long as we walk after the Spirit there never will be any condemnation. But let us follow our own mind and trouble will begin, and when once it begins, it saps our spirituality.

For the last twenty years we have heard a great deal about the four freedoms. These freedoms are not a new thing. These freedoms were conceived and brought forth by our forefathers, who fought and gave their blood to give us freedom of speech, freedom of thought, freedom of the press and freedom of worship. You are not free to worship as your conscience directs you in Spain, Columbia, and some other parts of South America. You are only free to worship as prescribed by the Roman Catholic church in Spain. In Russia you are at liberty to worship according to the Communist rules and regulations. As it is in the United States, we can worship now without being molested. But constitutions can be changed. They have been and can be again.

A man who seeks a place of great responsibility ought to be absolutely committed unto God for leadership, strength and wisdom.

Those who are zealous in the wrong never wreath the laurels of true and lasting fame around their brows.

Don't pat yourself on the back because you succeed in reaching the glittering, artificial goal of selfish and godless ambition.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

GOING FISHING

by Bertha Burnham Bartlett

OF all aggravating things," said Mr. Jackson, "I believe this is about the worst. Well, there's no help for it, Solon; you'll have to pick the nails all up and sort them out, and—there's my car, now!—be sure—"

And then the trolley car had sped away with Mr. Jackson still shouting some indistinguishable words, and leaving in the doorway of the carpenter shop the most disconsolate-looking boy to be found in seven counties.

It was aggravating. To think that Mr. Bemis' cow should have run away and into the open doorway of the shop was surprising when one considered old Spot's reputation for docility; but that she should have contrived to get her horns beneath the board on which rested five half-filled kegs of nails that went tumbling to the floor as she tried to pull away was more than a surprise. And then for Father Jackson to set him—Solon—the task of sorting all those nails which must first be picked up from the month-old accumulation of sawdust and shavings! It really was too bad. And when he had planned to go fishing and had the bait already, too!

"Waiting?"

Solon turned his rueful face toward the street where his chums, Hal Winters and Dave Morton, stood fishing poles and baskets in hand. And there was his own rod, and the basket Aunt Molly had filled for him with sandwiches and turnovers, standing in the corner of the shop where the rampant Spot had not found it.

"Oh, I say now!" Dave cried eagerly as Solon explained the situation. "Of course, your father didn't think about your trip as he would not have told you to do this today. Wait till tomorrow and we'll help you."

It did seem likely that Mr. Jackson had forgotten about the long-planned fishing trip, and as Solon listened to the arguments of his friends he all but consented to the idea suggested. For after all, what difference would it make if the nails should not be picked up until the morrow? He debated the subject silently; then with sudden resolution turned away.

"Sorry," he said, affecting a carelessness which he was far from feeling, "but I guess I'd better do this first, boys. He forgot—but it wouldn't be forget-ery but don't-mind-ory on my part if I left 'em, so I'm going to obey orders. See?"

"Change your mind and come on. Do!" urged Dave. But Solon shook his head, and the boys went on alone.

Left to himself, however, Solon Jackson could scarcely restrain his tears of disappointment.

"I've half a mind to go!" he declared soberly. "He might have remembered. 'Most anyone would go. And he promised that I should have the day. Yes, I will—Oh, bother!"

For suddenly, as he started to carry out this new determination, he had begun to whistle—and the tune which sprang unthinkingly to his lips was, "I'll go where You want me to go, dear Lord."

"Anyhow, I warrant that He—n-no, of course, He wouldn't have gone—but—anyhow, I don't believe He ever had anything just like this to bother Him. Though, of course, it does say He obeyed His father and mother—hullo! you back again?"

Dave Morton grinned. "Seem to be," he declared cheerfully. "We thought we'd find you deep in your lifework—and it would be a lifework, and don't you forget it, Sol, unless you moved faster than you've been doing the past five minutes. Come, get a hustle on, and we'll help you."

How the three boys did work, to be sure. It was a long and tiresome task, but it was finished at length, and then, the door securely hasped, lest, as Hal observed, the lightning should chance to strike twice in the same place, the trio set off with light hearts. And meanwhile, five miles away, forgetful Mr. Jackson was directing one of his men to bring a couple of those same kegs to the job on which he was at work, urging him to make all possible speed in so doing since the store upon which he had depended for supplies was closed for the day.

"Great, isn't it, this weather?" Solon said as they trudged along. "My! I'm glad that work's done. But how'd you happen to come back to help me, anyway?"

Hal Winters laughed in embarrassed boy fashion.

"It was this way," he said slowly. "We got to thinking about helping each other. As we promised, you know—'lending a hand' and all that. And then Dave said he was afraid you would come and lead all. And then—"

"And then," continued Dave, "then thought we'd just like to know if—He ever had any work like yours to do—Hal said He might have had, for Jo was a carpenter, you know. And we dedered if other boys ever tried to coax to do different than His father told to do."

For a few minutes none of the spoke; then Solon broke the silence.

"Just think," he said quietly, "just think the Lord Jesus may have had to do things like I have to do! And I hate carpentering and it seems as if I couldn't wait to get up. I just want to get away from here and go to school and college and then I can go to teach. Do you suppose He felt that way? And yet He did wait."

"Let all of us 'be what He wants us to be'—carpenters or farmers or—what He wants us to be," Dave said soberly.

"Here we are!" cried Hal. "That's all, Dave, let's eat our dinners first, and hurrah for fishing! My, but say! It's eleven o'clock, now. Let's eat I'm hungry!"—The Junior Herald.

Attention, High School Graduates

High school graduates still have time to register at Mount Olive Junior College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, for the next semester which begins September 5. Registration closes September 20. There are still rooms available for boarding students. Register now!

Courses are being offered in Liberal Arts: two years of college leading to an A. B. or B. S. degree. Also business education, a nine-months course in industrial science and accounting.

Financial aid is available to all worthy students. Information regarding loans and scholarships is available. (No tuition charged students preparing for the military and missions.)

For catalogue, application forms and general information, write, call or visit registrar, Mount Olive Junior College.

The college is fully accredited by the North Carolina College Conference and is a member of the American Association of Junior Colleges.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

MISSIONS

(continued from page ten)

Shant, Ark.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sutton Free Will Baptist Church met in the church basement Tuesday night, August 2, for its regular monthly meeting. There were nine members present. The program was called to order by the president. Then the group sang "Jesus Saves." Mrs. Orene Spencer read the Scripture taken from I Corinthians 13. Prayer was offered by Brothy Childress. The program chairman was absent, so the president took charge of the program. The introduction was read. The topics discussed by different members. Old and new business was discussed. The meeting came to a close with prayer.

After the meeting, the hostess served refreshments which were enjoyed by all.

Wilson, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Clary Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Rena Woods for the August meeting, with 16 members present. The meeting opened with the group singing "Jesus Saves," followed with prayer by Mrs. Harrell. The regular business was conducted during the business session. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Ruth Rose. The program took part on the program: Mrs. Marie Vinson, Mrs. Rena Wood, Mrs. Anna Ethridge and Mrs. Vera Bass. The meeting closed with the group singing "I'll Work Till Jesus Comes." Prayer by Mrs. Rose Lee Jones.

Portland Neck, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Hope Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Lynette Bunch for its August meeting. The meeting opened with the group singing, "I Must Have Jesus," followed with prayer by Mrs. Morris. The Scripture reading was from the thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians. The program chairman, Mrs. Lila Croom, in charge of the program, the topic being "Of Great Price." Those on the program were: Mrs. Lila Croom, Mrs. Nannic Bunch, Mrs. Agnes Eason and Mrs. Allie Bunch. During the business session, the minutes were read and approved. There were five members who answered to the roll call. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Lynette Bunch.

Africa and in the Ivory Coast, whereas the Protestants are comparatively young. Nearly every village, no matter how small, has a Roman Catholic church. Recently the Pope has appointed an African as Archbishop here in the Ivory Coast. We have heard that the government here has already granted him several hundred thousand francs for a home and supplied him with an automobile. Obviously the Roman Catholic church will have a great deal of control.

2. Communism is also making a desperate bid in Africa. The bordering country of Guina, to the west of us, is leaning very strongly toward Communism, and some people believe that there is a Communist lean in Ghana which borders on the east. It is said that the head of the Ivory Coast government was at one time almost a rabid Communist, but several years ago changed in favor of the French government. Now with independence, he could very easily go back to his old ideas. In 1948, in the city of Dimbokro, here in the Ivory Coast, there was a Communist uprising and much bloodshed. So Communism will be making its bid.

Incidentally, here in the village of Koun, just a small bush village, we have a Catholic school with two teachers, and in the next village, just two miles away, there is a government school. We have been told that the head teacher there is an open Communist. The two forces are at work here combatting the truth of the gospel, as well as the third force which is noticed in every daily activity.

3. Mohammedanism is the third force. Unless you have witnessed first hand this religion of Satan, you cannot understand what a threat it is. Of course Mohammedanism has been working in Africa since the seventh or eighth century, and it is rapidly gaining ground in these days. The Free Will Baptist Contact recently stated that "There are now over 60,000,000 Mohammedans in Africa as compared with a small percentage of Christians. Mohammedanism, with its idea of one God, eternal forms of righteousness, its approval of polygamy, its attitude toward women, fits in with the African philosophy of life better than Christianity." We are experiencing this force first hand. Every Dyula trader that passes through is a Mohammedan. Every Mohammedan is a preacher and fearlessly testifies of his religion. We Christians should learn a lesson from this. A Mohammedan will move into a village. Soon in his hut one or two gather daily and he begins to teach them to read and write Arabic so that they can read the Koran—their Bible. This process continues with one teaching a few others. Then each of these teaches a few more and so on. I have recently been attempting to work among the Bini Tribe and here their efficiency can be realized. In many villages all have become Moslems; and the chief, the elders, etc. have even taken the language of the Dyula Tribe. In several instances, the chief himself is now Dyula. We need to pray for our native Christians in this matter also, so that they can see the danger of this sect. Here in the church at Koun, one of the leading older women is married to a Mohammedan and has married off her daughter to another. The Mohammedans are powerful and will be vying for power and control.

Each of these three groups are openly and actively opposed to the preaching of the gospel. We have experienced open opposition from both the Roman Catholics and the Moslems since we have been here. If either of these three groups gain control in the new government, as it is in the forming state, we can expect nothing less than strong opposition and even persecution.

In the Bondoukou Circle, with a population of over 200,000, your three missionary couples are the only gospel voice. We earnestly urge you, as Paul, to pray for those who are in authority so that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life, not for our own comfort, but that the gospel will go forth and that all men (in the Bondoukou Circle) can come unto the knowledge of the truth and be saved.

Pray also the Lord of the Harvest that He will thrust out laborers into this field, white already unto harvest. Africa is seeking, there will be a victory won. Either the Roman Catholic church, Communism, Mohammedanism or the Church of Jesus Christ will gain the victory. Your prayers will determine the outcome.

The man who flashes the most before he gains his office, or position, may be quite obscure when he comes out.

Those who sincerely lead you wrong may cause you to sincerely fail.

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

Youth's Great Year At Cragmont

by L. E. Ballard

On the afternoon of Friday, August 12, the final bell was rung, calling upon 66 campers of the Piedmont Youth Conference to board busses for their homes. This brought an end to the greatest season to date for young people at Cragmont Assembly in the mountains of Western North Carolina. During the 1960 season, more than five hundred different young people have enjoyed the blessings of our summer retreat in sponsored groups and groups from local churches.

The season began with the General Youth Conference early in June, sponsored by the State Sunday School Convention, which brought 83 young people to Cragmont from 23 churches in the Eastern, Central, Cape Fear and Western Conferences. It was a great week of spiritual blessing, sweet fellowship and wholesome recreation for all.

The following week the State Free Will Baptist League Convention sponsored their annual encampment with around 50 in attendance (we do not have the exact figures). "It was the best ever," was the way one camper put it. Valuable instruction in league work was given by the best authorities available, and a wonderful time was had by all.

The next youth group in order to make Cragmont ring with glad song was the Mission Youth Conference, sponsored by the State Mission Board. This conference brought the largest number of young people to Cragmont of any one week in the history of the institution, or so we have been told. There were 105 registered. It was a most successful conference, and the young people went back home with a better understanding of the missionary program of our church.

From the Albemarle Conference came 44 to begin a new venture in a conference co-sponsored by the State Sunday School Convention and the Albemarle Sunday School Convention. This conference was a great one from the very first event to the last, and those attending went back home determined to repeat the conference next year.

Back again the latter part of July were the directors of the Mission Conference bringing another fine group of over 100. The second conference, sponsored by State Mission Board, was of the same type as the first, and the group started with joy, and left rejoicing.

The first two weeks in August saw final youth groups at Cragmont for the season, both sponsored by the State Sunday School Convention, with the final one co-sponsored by the Piedmont Association. The Young People's Bible Conference attracted 66 resident campers and 11 commuters, making a total of 77. The Bible was emphasized throughout the week, and the group left with a greater appreciation of the Word of God than they had before. The following week the Piedmont Youth Conference met for their third annual session, and once again the blessings fell from heaven.

We will have to wait for eternity to reveal the spiritual results of these seven youth conferences in the lives of the young people who attended them. Down through the years our denomination will be reaping the results in the services of many who dedicated themselves to definite Christian service, and of most all the others who pledged more faithful living for the Lord in their local churches. More than 100 boys and girls were saved during the summer in the youth revival services, and all were a part of every conference.

A word should be said about the service rendered by the several workers who gave their time and talent in the conferences. Space forbids us naming all of them, but we will list the ones who served as directors and co-directors as shown by the programs of the conferences: General Youth Conference—L. E. Ballard and Earl G. Johnson; Free Will Baptist League Encampment—Adam Scott; Mission Conferences—F. W. Davenport, LaRue Davis, Rashie Kerr and Albemarle Conference—L. E. Ballard and Herbert Bryan; Young People's Bible Conference—L. E. Ballard and Billy Jackson; Piedmont Youth Conference—L. E. Ballard and William Calvert.

The regular staff at Cragmont deserves much credit for the success of the summer youth program. The Rev. J. E. and Wooten in their fine, gracious manner made everyone feel at home. Miss Davis was at her best in the kitchen. The five young people who worked with them, representing both our denominational colleges, did their respective schools credit, and dedicated themselves to the campers. Together all things worked together for good at Cragmont this summer, for which we are glad.

He is a very cheap man in principle who sells his vote. In fact too cheap to vote.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Man's Hope for Peace

(Lesson for September 11)

Lesson: Isaiah 11:1-9

Lesson Text: Isaiah 2:4

INTRODUCTION

In the Christian church today there are basic views regarding the coming of

All Christians are agreed that there is no peace apart from the Lord Jesus who is the Prince of Peace. However, Christians disagree on just how this will be brought about. There are those who feel that this time of world peace will be brought about by the preaching of the gospel. This group believes through the preaching of the gospel, the world will become better and better until a time of world peace and prosperity is ushered in. In other words, this group believes that the coming of world peace is an evolutionary process that will come gradually.

Another group agrees that there can be world peace apart from the Lord Jesus Christ, but they do not believe that the world will ever accept the gospel to the extent that world peace will come. This group believes that each passing generation is becoming more and more wicked and that the only way world peace can be brought about is for the Lord Jesus Christ to come to this earth, overthrow the evil forces set up His Kingdom. This group believes that the coming of world peace is revolutionary rather than evolutionary.

It is well to remember that there are many Christian people who believe each of these views. Only the prejudiced person is prone to the conclusion that all who do not agree with him are unchristian. The important point of agreement is that the only hope this world has of attaining peace is in the Lord Jesus Christ.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

That which seems insignificant in the eyes of man can be raised to glory by the Lord (Isaiah 11:1).

Even though he lives on earth, the Lord also lives in the realm of the spirit (Vs. 2).

3. Man is naturally slow of understanding in spiritual things, but not so the Lord Jesus (Vs. 3).

4. No human government has ever been perfectly righteous, but it will be so in the Kingdom of Christ (Vs. 4).

5. God is not only righteous, but faithful; He has promised to bring righteousness to earth, and He will do so (Vs. 5).

6. God will not require human beings to tame ferocious beasts, but will tame them by changing their nature (Vs. 6).

7. As men will live together in peace during the millennium, so will also the wild beasts (Vs. 7).

8. The serpent will not even be harmful to little children in the days of Christ's Kingdom (Vs. 8).

9. There is very little knowledge of the Lord today, but then it will fill all the earth (Vs. 9).

10. The changed conditions in the world will come about because a root of Jesse shall take His power and reign (Vs. 10).

II. The Lord will for the second time set His hand to recover the remnant of His people (Vs. 11).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Isaiah here informs Israel that, when the Messiah comes, He shall not judge after the manner of men, which is so often partial and even corrupt, but He will judge in equity and fairness to all.

The Messiah shall know the hearts of all men. He will know their purpose and the intentions behind their actions. He shall know all of the facts and the various causes associated with any case, and He shall be able to administer absolute justice. The Messiah, as Judge, shall not be swayed nor influenced by bribery or any of the pressures that are so often brought to bear on the judges of civil courts.

Goodness shall prosper under His reign, and evil shall be destroyed. During that glorious time, justice and righteousness, along with peace and prosperity, shall prevail on the earth.—Senior Quarterly (F. W. B.).

2. Nature will be purged of violence (Isaiah 11:6-9).

It would seem that only a catastrophic event, such as the personal return of Christ clothed with heaven's power, can lift the curse from the earth and cause nature to lose its fallen characteristics and take on anew the state in which it existed before the curse was placed on it at Adam's fall. This will have to happen if there is a complete fulfillment of the prophecies. Let us notice how there will be peace in the animal kingdom:

“The wolf shall also dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the suckling child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: . . .” (Vv. 6-9).

This is a description of the condition of animal nature before sin marred it. We have evidence that there were no carnivorous animals which fed on flesh of other animals before the fall. It is believed that all the members of the animal kingdom live together in peace before the fall, and that all ate herbs for their sustenance. The statement, the lion shall eat straw like the ox, indicates a return of nature to its original state.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

3. Illustration: An obstetrician approached an anxious father in a waiting room of a New York City hospital. Said he, “I am sorry to inform you that your baby lived only two hours after its birth, though we did everything we could to save its life.” As the sympathetic doctor was about to leave, the quick thinking father said, “I read only recently that human eyes are needed in corneal operations. Could my baby's eyes be used to enable someone to see again?” The next day the Red Cross carried an eye each to two different hospitals. In one, a corneal graft restored the sight of a working man with a large family. In the other, sight was given to a mother. A babe, who lived only two hours, gave physical sight to a grateful father and a mother. Some 2,000 years ago a Babe came into our sin-darkened world to give spiritual sight to all who will receive it without money and without price. At His coming, “The people that walked in darkness (saw) a great light.” Of Him, John said, “In Him was life; and the life was the light of men.”—Selected.

4. We must remember that Jesus came the first time offering Himself as Saviour, but He will come a second time as Judge. Remember His words, “I am He,” laid flat those who came to arrest Him? (John 18:6).—The Standard Commentary.

PROGRAM
North Carolina State Convention
OF
Free Will Baptist Churches
ELM GROVE FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH

Ayden, North Carolina
September 14, 15, 1960

WEDNESDAY

Morning Session

- 8:30 Registration of Ministers and Delegates
10:00 Call to Order by the Secretary
Devotions.....The Rev. Ed Miles
Welcome.....Mr. Robert May
Response.....The Rev. M. E. Godwin
Partial Report of Credentials Committee
Recognition of Visiting Brethren
Appointment of Committees
President's Message
Report of Free Will Baptist Press...Rev. C. H. Overman
Report of North Carolina Ministerial Association of Free
Will Baptists.....The Rev. C. B. Hansley
Report of the Children's Home...The Rev. Wilbert Everton
11:30 Morning Worship
Special Music.....Mr. Bob Williams
Introductory Sermon.....Dr. W. Burkette Raper
12:00 Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:15 Meditation.....The Rev. Earl Glenn
1:30 Business Session
Report of the Executive Committee of the State Convention
Report of Mission Board.....The Rev. R. H. Jackson
Report of the Board of Christian Education.....The Rev. Earl Glenn
Report of Cragmont Assembly.....The Rev. Wayne Smith Report of Board of Superannuation.....The Rev. Walter Reynolds

- Report of Church Finance
Association.....The Rev. M. L. Jo
Report of Promotional
Department.....The Rev. N. Bruce B
Report of Christian Action
League.....The Rev. C. H. Ove

3:45 Adjournment and Benediction

Evening Session

- 7:00 Program Under the Direction of the Board of Superation
Report by a Representative of the Executive Com of the National Association

THURSDAY

Morning Session

- 9:00 Devotions.....The Rev. H. W. Arms
9:15 Business Session
Final Report of the Credentials Committee Report of Historical Commission.....The Rev. Hubert B
Report of East Carolina Free Will Baptist Student Fellowship Fund...The Rev. R. B. Cra
Report of State League
Convention.....The Rev. Gene O
Report of State Sunday School
Convention.....The Rev. Herman F
Report of Woman's Auxiliary Convention.....Mrs. J. C.
Report of Memorial Committee
Report of Temperance Committee
Report of Resolutions Committee
Report of Mount Olive Junior College.....Dr. W. Burkette
11:30 Morning Worship
Convention Sermon.....The Rev. Walter Rey
12:00 Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:20 Business Session
Unfinished Business
Report of Treasurer.....Mr. Rom M
Report of Nominating Committee
3:00 Adjournment and Benediction

THE MAIL BOX

APPRECIATES THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

"We appreciate the appearance of The Free Will Baptist and thank the one responsible for its improvement. Recently, there have been some good articles and we appreciate these, too. We especially liked the one written by the Rev. Melvin K. Everington and agree with him on his stand.

"Mr. Griffin has also had some very good articles in the paper and we appreciate the stand he takes also.

"We pray God's richest blessings on the ones that print the paper and are responsible for its makeup. We ask God's blessing on Mr. Overman as he takes over the paper and ask His guidance for him.

"We especially appreciate everything that Mr. Fort has done for the paper and trust that he will be happy and blessed in anything he undertakes to do.

"Enclosed you will find our check to renew our subscription to The Free Will Baptist."—The Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Bowen, Route 5, Dunn, North Carolina.

Then man who makes a blowing he what he is and expects to be in life have no horn to blow when years of prove what he is in heart and soul.

The man who leaves God out of h certainly cannot bring the blessings o upon his country.

A true leader with one good follow bless his country far more than a leader with a host of deceived follow

NS

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

SEP 7 1960

the Free Will Baptist

DURHAM, N.C.

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, September 7, 1960

MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE BEGINS NINTH ACADEMIC YEAR

MOUNT OLIVE, NORTH CAROLINA

"A Christian College for Men and Women"

THEY ENTER TO LEARN—THEY LEAVE TO SERVE

Professor John Thomas, head of the department of English, Mount Olive College, teaches students to read with discrimination, ink clearly, and to write effectively.

Opening Schedule

- Wednesday, September 7, Registration Begins
- Friday, September 9, Classes Begin
- Sunday, September 11, 4:00 p. m., Convocation, Dr. Robert L. Holt, Dean of East Carolina College, speaker. (Public invited.)
- Monday, September 19, Registration for Night Classes in Bible
- Tuesday, September 20, Registration for Fall Semester Closes

Interested Students Still Have Time to Enroll for the Fall Semester

Why Not a Roman Catholic President?

By Evangelist C. Wm. Fisher

Now that Senator John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, has won the nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket, the religious issue in politics came into sharp focus.

Since 1928 has a Roman Catholic ever sought the highest office in the land despite statements to the effect the religious issue is dead, and that a religion makes no difference in his life, it can be expected that the tempo of the debate about a Catholic in the White House will increase immeasurably in the days ahead.

Why not a Roman Catholic president? Because of the danger of a pipeline of influence built between the Vatican and the White House? No. Few people believe that.

Because the majority of Americans object to the endless parade of nuns and priests traipsing in and out of the White House—to the constant whir and click of motion picture and newspaper cameras? No, not because Cardinal Spellman might be Secretary of State and Fulton Sheen ghostwriter of the president's speeches.

Because one should vote against a man simply because of his religion? Indeed, no.

Why not, then, a Roman Catholic president?

Without prejudice and without passion, every American must come to the clear understanding that a Roman Catholic is not a believer in a religion, as a Protestant, Jew or a Mohammedan or a Buddhist is, but that a Roman Catholic is a member of an ecclesiastical system—a religious and political system so rigid, so authoritarian and so totalitarian that it demands, and gets, the first allegiance of every true member of it.

CHURCH OVER STATE

The Roman Catholic church has, through history, proclaimed itself the only true church—with the implied and stated rights to restrict or destroy error, that is, non-Catholic beliefs. And through the unique blend of secular and spiritual power, the Roman Catholic church has grown to be the most monolithic, authoritarian, political and religious power-structure the world has ever known. And even today it demands to be recognized as superior to any civil government anywhere in the world.

Pope Pius IX asserted, in 1864, "To say in the case of conflicting laws enacted by the Two Powers (Church and State), the civil law prevails, is error."

Pope Leo XIII's Encyclical on the Christian Constitution of States declared: "It is not lawful for the State, any more than for the individual, either to disregard all religious duties, or to hold in equal favor different kinds of religion."

The Vatican Council of 1870 made every ex Cathedra utterance of the pope infallible—and that infallibility was retroactive. In that very Council, 150 of the 600 bishops held that Rome had no moral right to compel the conscience of a secular official, but they were outvoted. Since the Council never formally adjourned, but was only suspended, the pope can still claim authority to dictate to Catholic politicians in matters of Faith and Morals—a phrase that covers every conceivable issue—or can be made to.

ARE AMERICAN CATHOLICS DIFFERENT?

"But," some say, "American Catholics are different."

That is wishful thinking. No American cardinal, no American bishop—not one member of the American hierarchy—has ever repudiated these infallible pronouncements of Rome—and, indeed, it would be ecclesiastical suicide, if not heresy, for him to do so.

As the New Republic states: "One characteristic of the American Catholic remains unchanged: he is a faithful member of a hierarchically organized religious community which has spiritual concerns and secular interests . . . and its center of authority vested in the Pope in Rome."

There are those, of course, like Roman Catholic Governor Stephen L. R. McNichols of Colorado, who say that a man's religion is irrelevant in his political life. But is that really true? One need only go back to December of 1959 to find General De Gaulle, of France, so strongly favoring a bill to increase state aid to Catholic schools from 12.3 million to 41 million dollars a year that he threatened to reform the Constitution if the bill didn't pass. Under that kind of pressure—from an ardent Roman Catholic president—the bill passed.

That couldn't happen here in America! Couldn't it?

In 1954, when Edmund Muskie was elected the first Roman Catholic governor of Maine, the Roman Catholics immediately stepped up their demands for bus transportation to Roman Catholic schools—at public expense.

When Albert D. Rosellini was elected governor of Washington—the first Roman Catholic governor of that state—the Catholic lobby immediately descended on the state capital, pushing a legislative program calling for various kinds of subsidies to parochial schools and a proposal to revise the state constitution so that public funds could be used for church activities.

In Ohio, with the second Roman Catholic governor in its history, approval has been given to place garbed nuns on the public payroll as teachers in public schools. There are now over two thousand (2,055) nuns and priests teaching in public schools, and on public payrolls, in the United States. Nineteen states now give free transportation to parochial school pupils, and five states furnish them free textbooks—all at public expense—and all a clear violation of the First Amendment to the Constitution.

One of the first bills to be presented to the Colorado lawmakers after the election of the first Roman Catholic governor of that state was a bill for free transportation to parochial schools—paid for, of course, out of tax funds.

It has been estimated that Congressman John W. McCormack, (Dem., Mass.) who is a devout Roman Catholic, has been personally responsible for legislation which,
(continued on page thirteen)

National Association Report of the Resolutions Committee

Whereas the National Association of Free Will Baptists has historically held to the principle of separation of church and state, and

Whereas we feel that this principle would suffer violence under a Roman Catholic president, because of recent statements from the hierarchy in Rome, and

Whereas there is already some persecution of Protestants in the United States, and every foreign country where the government is church controlled, and

Whereas we are warned by the inspired Word of God according to Galatians 5:1, "Stand fast therefore in the liberty where-with Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."

Therefore, be it resolved that every Free Will Baptist use his vote to elect men to public office who are committed to uphold the principles of separation of church and state and to use his influence to the fullest extent to keep any man from being elected to public office whose religion would put him in conflict with this historic American principle.

Be it resolved that we continue to oppose the seating of Communist China in the United Nations, thus upholding international morality and keeping faith with the thousands of American youths who gave their lives fighting Communist aggression in Korea. To seat a Communist China which defies, by word and deed, the principles of the United Nations Charter would be unthinkable. We further continue to oppose United States diplomatic recognition or any other steps which would build the power and prestige of the Chinese Communist regime to the detriment of our friends and allies in Asia and of our national security. Any such action would break faith with the dead and the unfortunate Americans still wrongfully imprisoned by Communist China and would dishearten our friends and allies in Asia whose continued will to resist Communist China pressures and blandishments is so vital to our own security interests in that part of the world.

Whereas the National Association of Free Will Baptists has no Historical Commission, be it resolved that the General Board take the necessary steps to set up a Historical Commission in order that our history might be preserved.

Be it resolved that we express our appreciation to all who have served the National Association in any capacity during the past year.

Be it resolved that we express our sincere appreciation to the Free Will Baptists of the state of California for their entertainment of the National Association in its 1960 session.

Be it resolved that the clerk and moderator draft a letter of appreciation to the mayor of Fresno, Mr. Arthur Selland.

Be it resolved that the National Association express our appreciation to the Fresno Bee, the National Broadcasting Company, and the American Broadcasting Company for their coverage of the session at this setting of the National Association.

Executive Department of
The National Association

Report of Temperance Committee

Whereas the tide of alcoholism is sweeping over our nation, flooding our nation's capital and engulfing our youth, we recommend that Free Will Baptists throughout the nation rise up to combat this enemy of the soul and agency of Satan. We should attack alcoholism from the pulpit and by aligning ourselves with organizations that have pledged to bring about the defeat of this enemy.

We recognize the fact that worldliness has made inroads among Free Will Baptists. Today we sanction practices that were objected to strongly by our founding fathers. We recommend a more definite stand against worldliness by our ministry.

The moral standards of America are lower now than at any other time in the history of our country. One of the major contributing factors is the obscene literature that appears on almost every newsstand and magazine rack in America. Free Will Baptists everywhere should take a definite stand against this evil.

We need to take a more definite stand against the indecent mode of apparel that seems to be the trend of our times. This, too, has contributed to our lowered moral standards.

Realizing that they could be a more effective witness for the cause of Christ the ministry and laity of our denomination should lay upon the altar the use of tobacco in any form.

Executive Department of
The National Association

Special Resolution Adopted

Whereas, in the past, many needs of our denomination have been supplied through national projects promoted by various boards or agencies, be it therefore resolved, that we express sincere appreciation to all boards and agencies that have sponsored and completed such projects, but,

Whereas, there has been a careful analysis of our over-all denominational program and consideration of our national funding, and,

Whereas, there has been a development in our denominational program on both state and national level, which has brought into existence a growing number of denominational agencies, and,

Whereas, there are now at least territorial agencies that engage in funding, not counting the state funded agencies, and,

Whereas, some of this is in duplicate, and,

Whereas, the present need is for undergirding of prayer, training, and leadership at the local church level, there be it

Resolved, that each board or agency fine its national fund raising to its area of responsibility.

Be it further resolved, that the man's Auxiliary, Master's Men, Y. P. G. T. A., Leagues, Sunday Schools, be encouraged to continue their support all phases of the national work through local church.

Since some agencies have already begun projects, be it resolved that the above mentioned resolutions become effective in 1961.

Executive Department of
The National Association

How to Get to Dawson Grove Church

The following directions are given for the benefit of those who attend the Central Woman's Auxiliary Convention at Dawson's Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Scotland Neck, North Carolina, September 28.

Those coming from the Greenville Bethel area will take Highway 11 on Greenville to Oak City, then Highway 11 through Scotland Neck and to the End of Spring Hill Crossroads, five miles or so from Scotland Neck. The church is right at the corner from the intersection on the field road.

Those coming from the Wilson Rocky Mount area will take Highway 11 to Enfield, turn right at first stop light at Enfield and keep this road to the church about two miles beyond Dawson Crossroads on the right side of the road.

The prayer that succeeds means more than counting beads.

Highlighting the State Convention

THE North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists held its annual meeting on September 14 and 15, at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden, North Carolina. Elm Grove is one of the larger rural churches having membership in the State Convention. It has one of the finest churches to be found anywhere in the denomination. The church is located in the heart of eastern North Carolina's great tobacco district, an area where Free Will Baptists enjoy a history of more than two centuries.

The program at this forty-eighth session of the convention will include reports from several agencies and boards of the denomination, highlighting the progress of of church property, and the promotion of Sunday school work. A report will also be made by a representative of the Free Will Baptist Press, a non-profit corporation owned and operated by Free Will Baptists.

On program the first day of the 1960 session is Dr. William Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, who is scheduled to preach the introductory sermon. Dr. Raper was reared in the Free Will Baptist Children's Home and is a graduate of Duke University and the Duke Divinity School. Recently he was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree by Atlantic Christian College in recognition of his service to his church and to the people of eastern North Carolina through Mount Olive Junior College.

On the second day, the delegates and ministers will hear a message by the Rev. Walter Reynolds, pastor of Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church, Snow Hill, and chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannua-of several Free Will Baptist churches in eastern North Carolina.

Other persons who will appear on the program are Earl Glenn of Wilson, Edward Miles of Walstonburg, Henry Armstrong of Washington, C. B. Hansley of Newport, C. H. Overman of Ayden, Gene Outland of Beulaville, Herman Hersey of Raleigh, Hubert Burress of Pinetops, M. L. Johnson of Mount Olive, Mrs. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill, Mrs. Carl Dudley of Buies Creek, Wayne Smith of Swannanoa, and R. H. Jackson of Pine Level.

The Rev. N. Bruce Barrow, pastor of Elm Grove Church and president of the State Convention, will preside over the session. A large delegation is expected to attend, representing Free Will Baptist churches throughout North Carolina.

SPECIAL NOTICE

When sending in news items for publication in "The Free Will Baptist" which call for the use of pictures, please do not send mats or cuts. We prefer the use of clear, sharp snapshots or photographs which will be retained in our files for further use.

NOTICE TO PASTORS AND CLERKS

The North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists will hold its 1960 session on September 14 and 15 at Elm Grove Church, Pitt County. The secretary of the State Convention has already mailed report blanks to the clerks of local churches. These report blanks should be returned along with a contribution to the secretary prior to the meeting of the State Convention. If your church has not received a report blank from the secretary, please send him your request by mail, giving your name and full address. Please announce this meeting in your church and urge the church to send a delegate.

Michael Pelt
State Convention Secretary
Mount Olive, North Carolina

Dr. W. Burkette Raper

Baptists to be reported on at this session are Mount Olive Junior College at Mount Olive, the Free Will Baptist Children's Home at Middlesex, Cragmont Assembly at Black Mountain, and several agencies which promote such causes as mission superannuation for ministers, financial church building and improvement for the last twelve months. Among the enterprises sponsored by North Carolina Free will. Mr. Reynolds is a native of Columbia, North Carolina. He is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, and has served as pastor

Rev. Walter Reynolds

NEWS NOTES

F.W.B. Churches in Illinois Organize New Quarterly Meetings

The Free Will Baptist churches of Illinois gathered at the Free Will Baptist Camp Ground at Benton, Illinois, on August 20, 1960, at 1:00 p. m., for the purpose of organizing new quarterly meetings, while the Rev. George W. Waggoner acted as moderator.

As a result of the meeting, three new quarterlies were organized. They will be known as the East Central, West Central and South Central. A few weeks prior to this, two churches near Chicago, had organized into a quarterly known as the Northern Quarterly.

Some of the churches still remain in the original Franklin County Quarterly and the Freedom Quarterly. The Wayne County Quarterly was completely dissolved.

Also, as a result of the meeting, an Illinois State Association was organized which is composed of two district meetings. These district meetings will be known as Cannan District and Southern Illinois Yearly Meeting.

Dr. and Mrs. Laverne Miley, medical missionaries to Africa, and the Rev. and Mrs. Wesley Calvery, on furlough from Japan, will be guest speakers at a missionary conference September 6, 7 and 8 at 7:30 p. m., each evening at the Free Will Baptist Camp Ground in Benton.

Liberty Church Announces Home-Coming Services

The Liberty Free Will Baptist Church, Manning, South Carolina, announces its home-coming services, September 11, beginning at 10:15 a. m. The Rev. Luther Gibson, former pastor, will be the guest speaker and will also conduct revival services beginning on this date.

All former pastor, members and friends are cordially invited to attend both of these events.

Rev. Elmer M. Goodwin Accepts Pastorate

The Rev. Elmer M. Goodwin of New Bern, North Carolina, has accepted the pastorate of Ottway Free Will Baptist Church, Carteret County, North Carolina. He began his pastoral duties the first Sunday in September.

A native of Cedar Island in Carteret County, Mr. Goodwin has been living in New Bern for the past ten years. He is a member of Saint Mary's Free Will Baptist Church where he has been custodian for the past year. He has a daughter, Mrs. Joyce A. Mason of Charleston, South Carolina.

West Clinton Church Announces Revival

Revival services will be held at the West Clinton Free Will Baptist Church, Clinton, North Carolina, September 25 through October 2, beginning each evening at 7:30, with the Rev. James Earl Raper as the evangelist. The pastor, the Rev. J. Walter Stanley, cordially invites everyone to attend these services.

Rock Spring Church Announces Revival

The Rev. Jack Paramore of Greenville, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for revival services at the Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church, Bailey, North Carolina, beginning September 12. Services will begin each evening at 8:00.

The Rev. Paul Lee, pastor, extends a cordial invitation to everyone who will attend.

Otter's Creek Church Observes Home-Coming and Revival

Otter's Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Fountain, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming Sunday, September 18. The day's services will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., followed with morning worship at 11:00. A picnic lunch will be spread on the church grounds at 12:00. The pastor, the Rev. C. D. Hamilton, invites all former pastors and friends to come and enjoy the fellowship together.

On Sunday evening, September 18, revival services will begin with the Rev. Clyde Cox of Forest City, North Carolina, as the evangelist. Mr. Cox will also be doing a lot of singing. The pastor and the church invites the public to come and worship with them in these services.

S. C. Church Revival Services September 18-24

Revival services will be held September 18-24 at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Una, South Carolina, with the Rev. Donald Seay, pastor of the Arcadia, South Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30, and will feature special singing. Pastor, the Rev. Marvin E. Bridwell, the church invites everyone to attend services and be much in prayer for success of the meeting.

N. C. Superannuation Report For Month of August

The following is the report of the Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannuation of North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptist August, 1960:

Receipts
Balance on Hand August 1, 1960	$4,7
Regular Receipts for August	5
Offering Earmarked for Adopted Minister
Total to Account For	$5,2

Disbursements
Minister's Monthly
Checks	$228.50
Operating Expenses	56.32
Paid to National Board	44.46
Total Disbursements	3

Balance on Hand September 1, 1960	$4,9
-----------------------------------	-------

Receipts by Conferences
Albemarle	$
Blue Ridge
Cape Fear
Central
Eastern	1
Piedmont
Western	1

Former Pastor Honored With Barbecue Dinner

The Rev. E. C. Taylor, former pastor of Prospect Free Will Baptist Church, 13, Dunn, North Carolina, was honored a barbecue dinner Tuesday evening, August 30, at 6:30, at the picnic shelter of the church. A huge crowd gathered for the occasion. After dinner, Mr. Taylor and his family were remembered with a love of dinner ware.

Mr. Taylor has served as pastor of Prospect Church for the past three years and preached his final sermon on Sunday, August 28. He assumed his duties as pastor of Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church on September 1, 1960.
(continued on page ten)

Coming Events

- September 14, 15—North Carolina Convention, Elm Grove Church, North Carolina
- September 22—Eastern Woman's Primary Convention, Mount Olive Church, Mount Olive, North Carolina

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

News from Evangelical Foreign Missions Association

PEACE CALM IN CONGO

Raging violence in the Congo has and the United Nations troops to be in virtual control. The Katanga seems to have been averted by the arrival of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and a small contingent of troops. Brief tribal and political riots occurred, however, that there are still many problems to be dealt with.

Most mission societies withdrew the majority of their staff during the early days of violence, leaving in some cases a few men to care for the properties and maintain contact with the churches. Some missionaries who were evacuated to neighboring countries generally tried to return there with a view to re-entry. In some cases these were forced to move on in order to provide room for the continuing influx of refugees. The problem confronting missions now is that re-entry. Some missionaries who were able to remain near their former fields. About half of the 80 Protestant medical missionaries were evacuated but some have returned. All of the American and Missionary Alliance missionaries remained on the field and now report their operations are nearly normal.

Some rumors of missionaries being killed were circulated, but upon investigation all proved false. Many missionaries were wounded and had narrow escapes but very little offered bodily harm.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH STRIKES BACK AT CASTRO

On a number of occasions in Cuba hecklers have attacked Catholics as they were leaving the churches and cathedrals. By way of counter-attack, the Archbishop of Havana has threatened to close all of Cuba's Roman Catholic churches unless the Communist regime will guarantee "freedom of worship." Dr. Evelio Diaz, Archbishop of Havana, visited the Presidential Palace and was accompanied by Dr. Luis Buch, secretary of the Presidency. It is not known whether Msgr. Diaz received the desired guarantees or not. It appears that a power struggle between Roman Catholicism and the Castro regime is inevitable.

PROTESTANT PASTOR ATTACKED IN BOGOTA SUBURB

Bogota, Colombia—On June 12 the Rev. Pedro Morales, a Protestant pastor of the Worldwide Evangelization Crusade, was attacked by a Catholic mob in the Ismael Perdomo suburb. He was on his way to conduct a regular Sunday morning service in the home of Sr. Milciades Jimenez.

A group of 60 persons was waiting in the street for Sr. Morales when he arrived in the neighborhood. One of them, Sr. Manuel Villamil, rushed at the pastor, grabbed him by the collar and tore the buttons off his shirt. The crowd, shouting obscenities, converged upon him. He was knocked to the ground and dragged through the streets.

The attackers seized the Bible and hymnbook Sr. Morales was carrying and tore them to pieces. When they came to a mud puddle in the street they shouted, "We have to wash him!" They pushed him into the mud and kicked him. Sr. Villamil threatened him with a knife and ordered, "You have to leave, did you hear? You have to get out of their neighborhood!"

Sr. Morales was dragged to a highway where he was again threatened with a knife and then thrown into a ditch. He managed to reach the residence of Sr. Francisco Murcia, where he was rescued by police.

Endeavoring to protect her pastor from being stabbed, Sra. Ziola de Murcia was knocked unconscious by a blow on the head. Then she was dragged through the streets by her hair. Later she escaped to her home.

During the attack, the demonstrators stoned the house and store of Sr. Milciades Jimenez, shouting cheers to the Roman Catholic church and threats to the "Protestant Communists."

New Delhi, India (EP)—The new non-Communist government of Kerala has put an end to the discrimination which had been practiced against Harijans (low caste Hindus) converted to Christianity.

The Harijans, commonly known as untouchables, were excluded from various concessions for schools, books and financial aid, when they became Christians under the former Communist administration.

A new state regulation provides that Harijans who are converted to Christianity shall be entitled to the same financial aids and concessions as are granted to non-Christian Harijans.

Arizona-Mexico Missions

Box 550

Nogales, Arizona

August 19, 1960

Dear Sirs:

Enclosed you will find check for $8.81 for supplies. Thank you very much. These supplies were for the Arizona-Mexico Missions, Inc. This organization is three years old, made up of workers of Free Will Baptist faith and using the Free Will Baptist Treatise as its guide, second to that of the Bible. The Arizona-Mexico Missions was organized to promote the work of Christ throughout Arizona and Mexico, and later to all Spanish speaking people of the world. The gospel is also being carried to the Indians of Arizona and other states.

In our Articles it states that at any time we cannot operate as Arizona-Mexico Missions all property will be turned over to the National Association of Free Will Baptists. We are not sponsored by the National Home Mission Board, but for three years, until August 1, 1960, the National Board has paid the salaries of two wonderful missionaries: Miss Bessie Yeley and Miss Molly Barker. We were very happy to have them here and they were truly a blessing to the work of the Lord. However, since the Rev. John B. Elliston and myself are officers and directors of the work here, and are not under the National Home Mission Board, the board thought it best to remove its sponsored missionaries and place them where the board had complete control.

Mr. Elliston and I are both ordained Free Will Baptist ministers and every member on the board of the Arizona-Mexico Missions are Free Will Baptist members in good standing in churches in the National Association. Our board is as follows: President, the Rev. John B. Elliston; vice-president, James L. Lanier, Fort Huachuca, Arizona; Gladys Elliston, secretary-treasurer; assistant pastor and representative of the work in Mexico, the Rev. Jose Guyman, Nogales, Mexico; pastor, the Rev. Edward Johns, Blythe, California; pastor of Camel
(continued on page sixteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Can it be possible that we shall have degrees of rewards? Would such a thing not be a source of strife and envy between the saints? I cannot conceive of such in heaven.—Lola Jones, Texas.

Answer: If I understand the Bible at all it teaches that rewards for the saints, given at the judgment seat of Christ, will vary according to the faithfulness of those rewarded. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire" (1 Corinthians 3:11-15). The rewards will be given out without respect of persons. "For the LORD your God is God of gods, and Lord of lords, a great God, a mighty, and a terrible, which regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward" (Deuteronomy 10:17); "Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34); "For there is no respect of persons with God" (Romans 2:11).

The Bible teaches that we shall find no envy in heaven. There is to be nothing that defiles entering that hallowed place. "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death" (Revelation 21:7, 8); "And there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life" (Vs. 27); "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still" (22:11); "For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie" (Vs. 15).

We read, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad" (2 Corinthians 5:10); ". . . if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be" (Ecclesiastes 11:3). So I am sure that as a man has acted while here on earth, whether in harmony with or defiance to the Word of God, he will be placed and affected throughout eternity. "And that servant, which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required: and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more" (Luke 12:47, 48). This seems to teach that the workers of iniquity shall be punished in degrees according to what they knew or could have known but did not avail themselves with the knowledge at their hand or access.

"And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear" (1 Peter 1:17). Here we see that all are judged according to the works they have done. "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Ecclesiastes 12:14); "Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds. And he said unto him, Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities. And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds. And he said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities" (Luke 19:16-19). Having these Scriptures before us, it does not seem that it should be difficult to recognize that the Bible teaches that retribution in the future will be given out to the unsaved in accord to the amount of light they committed their ungodliness against and that the righteous will be judged and rewarded according to their faithful use of all God has available to them.

Question: Please explain, "But the of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the resurrection" (Revelation 20:5). If all righteous dead are raised before the tribulation, how may this be classed as first resurrection?—Mammie Jones, Arkansas.

Answer: Revelation 20:5 brings before us the saints of the great tribulation. They are only a part of the first resurrection, viz., the resurrection in which are brought forth all who believe on our precious Jesus Christ. The rapture and change of those alive at Christ's coming in the for His saints, and the callings from graves all that are dead in Christ, will occur before the great tribulation and resurrection of the tribulation saints: the close of the great tribulation constitutes the first resurrection. This is also referred to as being the resurrection of the "But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind. And thou shalt be blessed; for they will not recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:13, 14); and the resurrection of life, "And shall come forth; that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 29).

God Challenged to a Duel

A blatant atheist lived in a small town. He took Satanic delight in speaking temptuously of God, Christ, the Bible, the church and Christians. He had considerable following. One day as he anguished a group of people on a street corner, he became more blasphemous than ever. With a sardonic grin on his face, he lifted up his clenched fist and shouted, "God, if such a Being exists, I challenge You to fight against me in yonder woods. He went defiantly into the woods. He stayed there for a long while. Nothing happened, so he thought. He returned to his home, jubilant that he was the successful victor. While he was in the woods, however, a poisonous insect alighted on his eyelid. He brushed the insect away and thought nothing more about it. At nightfall, however, his eyelid began to swell. The swelling spread to his face and soon he was dead! God used on the tiniest of His creatures to cut down the blasphemous braggart!—Rev. W. B. Knight.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THE FRIEND OF GOD

(Continued from Last Week)

Who is interested honestly and seriously in becoming a friend of God, and in making that friendship, knows well the value of hours spent in communion with God and himself alone. This is some times denied by some, "The secret garden of the soul." He is everlastingly grateful for the joys, and soul growth, that have accrued to him by such withdrawal from the rigor and strain of the world to draw to the source of life, and love, and peace and grace. The chiefest of all blessings is the coming to know God as a child knows a loving father, and as a child who by walking intimately with his father enters into a knowledge of the depths of his heart.

To achieve friendship with God by working with Him, by sharing our heart's loneliness and sorrows with Him, by drawing near to Him in prayer, and by reading, studying and searching out the truths of His Word and obeying every teaching in the most minute detail to the utmost of our ability, and by accompanying with Him in the secret garden of the soul. There are two more things that must be noted out. The first is this, and it is of great importance: If we covet friendship with God and seek the favor and comfort of His love, we must be obedient servants of His will. We must school ourselves to obey and heed His commands. The result of obedience to God's will is friendship with God and all the blessings that flow from that friendship. For an example of what we would do well to go back to the life of Abraham and study the relationship established between God and himself. It was a blessed relationship; it produced a fruitful life of an obedient servant to a loving God, and its reward was that which is the desire of every true child of God. His faithful servants know the blessing of the Christian life and the wonder and beauty of His matchless love.

Finally, if we would be the friends of God, we must find that friendship in His only begotten Son as our personal Saviour, and live in friendship with Him. The friend of Jesus is the person who will know the joys of friendship with God, for it is through the gateway of our friendship with the Son that we enter into warm friendship with the Father. No man who does not love Christ and follow in His steps will ever enjoy the friendship of God, for it was out of His love that He sent Christ to men.

If we seek the friendship of God, a blessing which no other in life can equal, we must first and finally love God's Son, and we must gladly and freely offer our lives to Him in loving allegiance and devoted love. If we want God's friendship for our own, we must love His Son more than friends or family or any of the things men commonly count good in life. If we want God to be our friend, and if we aspire to be friends of God, we must humbly love and courageously follow His Son to the end of our days, always remembering that through God's will, sought, loved and done, lies the one sure pathway to His love and friendship.

Friendship with the world—worldly things—is forbidden to the children of God for the simple reason that we cannot be the friends of the world and the friends of God. Consider:

"... know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God" (James 4:4).

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

THE HEAVENWARD LIFTED SOUL

(Psalm 25:1-15)

Introduction: These are days in which the Christian must draw near to the throne of God. Every day millions of people are taking tranquilizers to assure them of rest and ease. They take one tablet to keep them awake and another to make them sleep. Sad to say, many of God's children have been affected by this condition. But this is not the solution! We need to lift our hearts, as did David, to the inclined ear of the Father. You may do this:

I. BY TRUSTING IN GOD (Vs. 2).

1. Trust Him for daily provisions (Psalm 37:3).
2. Trust Him for daily directions (Proverbs 3:5, 6).
3. Trust Him for future blessings (1 Corinthians 2:9).

II. BY PERMITTING GOD TO SHOW YOU HIS WAYS (Vs. 4).

1. His way is a perfect way (Psalm 18:30).
2. His way is a joyful way (Job 8:19).
3. His way is the way of peace (Luke 1:79).

III. BY PERMITTING GOD TO LEAD YOU IN HIS TRUTH (Vs. 5).

1. He leads through the truth of His Spirit (John 16:13).
2. He leads through the truth of His Son (John 14:6).
3. He leads through the truth of His Word (John 17:17).

IV. BY REMEMBERING THE MERCY AND LOVING-KINDNESS OF GOD IN THE PAST (Vs. 6).

1. By delivering Israel from bondage (Exodus 15:13).
2. By the provision of a Saviour for the world (John 3:16).
3. By making accessible our interceding High Priest (Hebrews 7:25).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page six)

Church, Route 3, Dunn, North Carolina, the first of September.

During the pastorate of Mr. Taylor at Prospect, a new front was added to the church, a new piano and an organ purchased, and approximately 60 members added to the church.

Mr. Taylor attended the Charlotte Bible Institute in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Mt. Zion Church to Observe Annual Home-Coming

The Mount Zion Free Will Baptist

Church of Roper, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on Sunday, September 25. Services will begin with Sunday school at the usual hour, worship services at 11:00, followed with a picnic lunch at the noon hour. In the afternoon there will be singing. All singing groups are invited to come and spend the day and participate in the afternoon service.

The pastor, the Rev. E. E. Edwards, and the church extends a cordial invitation to all former pastors, friends and members to come and worship with them.

Revival Services in Progress At Prospect Church

The Rev. Bobby Jackson is conducting revival services at Prospect Free Will Baptist Church, Harnett County, North Carolina. Services began September 5 and continue through September 11. In the August 31 issue of The Free Will Baptist it was announced that the Rev. Bob Cock would be the evangelist for this meeting; please note the change.

The Rev. Cary Watkins, former missionary to Peru, is pastor of the church. You have a special invitation to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Missionary to Be at Ayden Church

The Rev. Harold Stevens, missionary from South Africa, will be the speaker both morning and evening services, September 11, 1960, at the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden, North Carolina. Mr. Stevens, and his wife, Josephine, returned home for a year's furlough in July. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have worked in Africa for ten years, and their experiences there are simply another example of God's grace and mercy.

A part of the evening service will be taken in the showing of a film depicting the work of the native preacher as he carries the gospel among his own people. The film will be a blessing to all who attend.

The pastor of the Ayden church is Rev. R. A. Gaskins.

V. BY PERMITTING GOD TO FORGIVE YOUR INIQUITY (Vs. 11).

1. Sin grieves the heart of God (Genesis 6:5, 6).
2. Sin mars the fellowship of man with God (Isaiah 59:2).
3. Sin causes the loss of rewards (I Corinthians 3:15).

VI. BY EVER KEEPING YOUR EYES TOWARD THE LORD (Vs. 15).

1. Looking for an opportunity to witness (Acts 8:30, 31).
2. Looking for an opportunity to serve (Psalm 100:2).
3. Looking for the return of the Lord (Revelation 22:20).

Is It Possible to Pray in Bed?

Two Wacs attended an open air meeting, conducted by some Christian servicemen. Said one of them, "I am a Christian, but I am not very open about it. Is it not possible to pray in bed?" Said the other, "Yes, but it is no testimony to others, is it? I am not a Christian, but I am interested. There was a girl in my barrack who knelt at her bedside every night, and the first time I saw her do it, I cried myself to sleep!" As they walked along, God spoke to them. Both gave themselves fully to Christ. Both resolved to confess Him anywhere.—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

Then Jesus Came!

Masagr, a benighted African pagan, was guilty of the basest sins—lying, stealing, polygamy, slavery, gluttony, drunkenness and murder. "Then Jesus came!" Hearing the heart-transforming gospel of the grace of God, Masagr believed it, and trusted Christ to save him from sin. The change was so miraculous that all marveled. He immediately began to tell others of Christ's saving power. For months he saved every penny, and even sold his cow to buy a secondhand bicycle. Said he to a missionary, "I am old. I cannot go far to tell my people about Jesus. There is a young man in your school. He is full of zeal. Put him on this bicycle, and send him to my fellow tribesmen that they may hear of the wonderful Saviour!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

THE MAIL BOX

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

"Will you please announce in The Free Will Baptist my change of address. My former address was Route 3, Wilson, North Carolina. My new address is Sims, North Carolina."—Rev. Melvin K. Everton

Attention!

Stockholders of Free Will Baptist Press

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Free Will Baptist Press, Inc., Ayden, North Carolina, will be held Monday, September 13, 1960, at 10:00 a. m. The meeting will be in the assembly room of the Press.

If you own or represent stock, please be sure you are present for the meeting on the above date.

Rev. R. N. Hinnant, President

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

EXCERPTS FROM LETTERS AND SERMONS BY YOUNG MINISTERS

It has been my policy for a long time to help young ministers in the gospel which reaches the highest heights in the call possible. In this endeavor, I have had many appreciative young men in whom I have been convinced that they had come from God to pursue the ministerial course. I have found a few who are on a professional course. When I found the latter, I do not spend much time with them, for I am convinced that the ministry is a calling; so I am anxious to help the God-called young man with my limited knowledge and means to permit. Recently, I have received letters from three young ministers in which they expressed their desires and aims in life. I heard a sermon by one that I shall remember on in the near future.

EXCERPTS FROM FRANK HARRISON'S LETTER

Frank was a student at Mount Olive College last year and worked at home about this summer. Frank is a likeable fellow with a purpose in life. That is to glorify God and to be a servant to his fellow man; thus he is not idle out of work. Frank says: "September 19, I left home to fulfill one of my greatest dreams and ambitions, that of attending college. Upon my arrival at Mount Olive College, I immediately went to work to pay my way through college. . . . I was not disappointed in what I found at Mount Olive College. I found a Christian atmosphere, which continued throughout the year. I learned more about God and the importance of a Christian education. God blessed me in a wonderful way as I studied His Word under the guidance of dedicated Christian faculty. In the life of Mount Olive College, I learned to live with people and respect their opinions and views."

I say to Frank, and to all who shall read these lines, that it is wonderful to hear the opinions of others; however, in respect we do not have to accept their opinions. I have known people to be driven away from righteous thinking and righteous decisions by some overbearing person who had no respect for the views of others. I was talking to a man one day about his soul and the man showed every sign of interest, tears flowing; and an overbearing man butted in and drove the man off. This man lived and died without every becoming a Christian. It is unethical and unwise for a person to butt in when a conversation is going on in soul winning, and yet many overbearing people will butt in with no idea of wrong, but the effect is the same; victory lost by unwise presentation of truth.

Frank, we are glad to know that you learned what many preachers and personal Christian workers have not learned. We are to be tactful and directed by the Holy Spirit. Frank's letter continues by saying: "In our ministerial fraternity we had Christian fellowship and discussions that were helpful to all, through the Kappa Chi Club. We worked together in receiving appointments in the local churches to preach the Word of God. Working together and sharing the blessings of these appointments are good Christian ethics."

We are glad to know that we have an institution that teaches respect for others. In continuation Frank says, "In our Missionary Prayer Band we study the locality of our Free Will Baptist missionaries, and also others who are not Free Will Baptist. We correspond in order to get their prayer request which we take to our Lord in prayer. I have received wonderful blessings through the Missionary Prayer Band."

I am glad to say that I have been privileged to attend a meeting of this Missionary Prayer Band, and I felt the Holy Spirit's presence and power.

Frank continues by saying, by way of repetition, "I have found Mount Olive to be a Christian College, centered in Christ and the truths He taught. God has blessed Mount Olive College and I sincerely believe He will continue to do so."

Frank says in his letter, "I will be a sophomore at Mount Olive this fall." His letter is signed, Frank Ray Harrison, student of Mount Olive College.

We want to remind the youth of the fact that Frank Harrison said in the beginning of his letter, "I began work to help pay for my schooling." What Frank Harrison is doing in the way of work to receive a Christian education, thousands are doing in these days of seeking for knowledge. If young men or young ladies desire an education and are willing to work, there are institutions that are anxious to help them. However, there is no college that I know of that can give work to every student, but when there is need, the most needy can find it, especially ministerial and missionary students.

I was talking to a professor in one of our colleges and I mentioned the name of a student and his attainments. The professor said, "I know of only one thing wrong with that boy, he is too lazy to work for an education." An institution can soon learn whether a man is lazy or not. God has no place for a lazy man. Paul even said, "Neither did we eat any man's bread for naught: but wrought with labour and travail night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you: not because we have not power, but to make ourselves an ensample unto you to follow us. For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat. For we hear that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busybodies" (2 Thessalonians 3:8-11). God's children are to be industrious. Paul worked with his hands. A student seeking after an education, who is too lazy to work, will never get very far. If they borrow money to get through school, in many cases they are slow to pay it back, and some of them never pay it back. Not too long ago, it was revealed to me that there were some who had borrowed money and were now receiving good salaries, but had gone for years without paying back the borrowed money. We want to thank God for honest, hard-working young people who are willing to work with their hands to get an education. We want to thank God that we have loan funds from which worthy young people can borrow and pay back after finishing college. But as said before, it is better to work than to borrow; but if one cannot get work, then borrow, and by all means go to college and get prepared for the future in order to take your place among men and women in the business and professional life as well as in the Christian life. We need educated professional people. We need educated, full-time Christian workers in the field. We need farmers, laborers and teachers. We need educated Christian housewives. We need religious education and also liberal art training.

I have letters from other fine young people who are working hard to get a Christian education; also a sermon which we heard sometime back. I shall comment on all these in the near future. It will take four or five weeks, perhaps, to get through with all these—you see I write Notes and Quotes for the glory of God.

When you give or sell your voice to the devil your soul is included.

A shiny promise may have a very hypocritical and deceitful background.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

Grandmother Brown's Secret

by Edith Iredale

JANE did not like to work. Her brothers and sisters said that she was lazy.

When she was asked to help with the cooking, she would complain, "I don't want to, let Louise!"

At last Jane's mother got tired of trying to make a lazy little girl do her part. She said, "This day, little daughter, if you do not work without complaining you shall not eat!" Jane went all day without food.

The next day Jane was a perfect little daughter. She worked even better than her older sisters and ate almost everything in sight. But the next day she was her old self again.

She had slept late. As this was summer vacation no one bothered to call her. About ten o'clock she came downstairs and walked into the kitchen. "I want my breakfast," she said, "I'm hungry!"

"If you want your breakfast, Jane," replied her oldest sister, who had been left in charge of the house, "get it!"

"You," whined Jane. "I don't want to!"

"Nor I," replied her sister. "After you have eaten you are to go to the store for me, and then to the country."

"But I don't want to!" growled Jane. "What do I have to go to the country for?"

"To take flowers, jelly, and some soup to Grandmother Brown. She's sick."

"I don't care if she is!" shouted Jane. "It's a mile out there to that old folks' home, and I'm not going. She's not my grandma!"

"Well, if you don't," replied her oldest sister, "you will not be eating tomorrow. Mother said so before she went away, and there's going to be chicken."

Jane liked chicken, and Jane knew that her mother meant every word that she said. About noon she started for the country.

Once she dropped the flowers, and was too lazy to pick all of them up again. She left over half of them to wither in the warm sunshine. The jelly she dropped once and the soup which she carried in a small tin pail, she dropped twice, because she was not paying any attention to what she was doing, and if the lid had not been fastened tightly she would have spilled it all. A little after twelve she reached the old folks' home. She knocked. The matron in charge opened the door.

"Here's some things for Grandmother Brown that's sick," was Jane's way of greeting. "My mother sent them!"

"How nice of your mother," said the matron, taking them, "and sweet of you, my dear, to bring them. Come right in. Mrs. Brown will want to see you. It is her birthday. You can give her the flowers for a present. That will please her so much."

Grandmother Brown, wearing a very lovely white lace cap, was sitting up in bed sewing, even though she did not feel well. She was pleased to see her visitor. "My dear," she said, taking the flowers, "it was so nice of you to bring them to me. Sit down, and talk with me. This is my birthday. How many years young do you think I am?"

"I don't know," said Jane sitting down, "but you don't look young to me."

"But I am young," smiled Grandmother. "I am 91 years young today."

"Ninety-one years old!" exclaimed Jane, "and you're still sewing!"

"Yes, little girl, and let me tell you a secret why I am still sewing today. It is a most important one, and if you know it now, when you are young, you will never grow old or lonely."

"What is it?" asked Jane.

"Never stop working. Keep your mind or your hands busy all the time. When you are not cooking, and washing dishes, sweep and sew. When you are not sweeping and sewing, read or play. When you are not reading or playing, rest or go somewhere, as you have done today. Make someone happy, as you are making me. Now, isn't that worth remembering?" smiled Grandmother.

"Yes," replied Jane, "but I don't like to work."

"You don't like to cook or to sew?" asked Grandmother.

"No," said Jane, "no kind of work."

"Do you like to read, sing, or play the piano?" asked Grandmother, very seriously.

"No," replied Jane. "That's dreadful hard work."

"Do you like to play, and to eat?" asked Grandmother, reaching over for her birthday cake.

"Yes, yes," smiled Jane. "I like to play, and I like most of all to eat. I can eat three pieces of cake at one meal!"

"I wonder, child," said Grandmother, keenly looking at her, "if you are sick where. Does anything hurt you?"

"No," laughed Jane. "I don't hurt where. My father and mother think the same as you, 'cause I don't like to work. They took me to the doctor he said I was in good shape."

"Then," said Grandmother, "you are just a lazy little girl that no one will want to have around. You go to the next door. Look at Grandma Smith, flat on her back. You take her some of these flowers. She's only 66 years old, and the doctors say there is nothing wrong with her. She says there is nothing wrong herself. She was once a lazy little girl, and never did anything all her life. She is still lazy and unkind. Go in and see her!"

Jane stepped into Grandmother Smith's room, which was adjoining.

"Grandmother Brown sends you flowers," said Jane. "How do you like them today?"

"Not very well, and I'm so lonesome," said Jane, holding them out. "These flowers will cheer you up."

"Did you feel tired when you were a little girl?" asked Jane, arranging the flowers.

"Yes, I never did like to work, and I didn't much. It was so much trouble, and no one comes to see me."

"People might come, if you were like Grandmother Brown," encouraged Jane. "She sews, reads books, and laughs, and talks most all the time!"

"She's always working," sighed Grandmother Smith, "and laughing, and talking, but I couldn't be like that."

"I wish I could," said Jane, "so I could be like her, when I'm old."

"Then, begin now," said Grandmother Smith.

Once every week, during vacation, Jane went to visit Grandmother Brown. She read, sewed, and talked together. Everybody began to notice a change in Jane.

"What makes you so different, Jane?" asked her older sister.

"Was it going that one day you were sick?" asked her mother.

"No," laughed Jane, "it was not that. It's my secret. If you all want to know, go ask Grandmother Brown at the old folks' home. She's 91 years young, and I'm going to be like her!"—Gospel Herald

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

on, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Cowart's Creek Free Will Baptist Church met on the home of Mrs. Ruby Carroll August 14 with 14 members and 7 visitors present. The president, Mrs. Ruth Rose, presided over the meeting which opened with singing "Jesus Saves." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Rena Woods; Scripture by Mrs. Nancy Sawrey. Those taking part on the program were: Ruby Carroll, Etta Harrell, Rosa Lee Jones and Lou Amerson. Mrs. Sue Aycock gave a report on foreign missions. Special music was rendered by Mrs. Etta Harrell and Mrs. Aycock. The usual business session was held. The group was dismissed by Rev. Cecil Rose. Refreshments were served by the hostesses and enjoyed by all.

Ashford, Ala.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Cowart's Creek Free Will Baptist Church held a study course at the church August 15-20, on "The Manual of the Woman's Auxiliary." The course was taught by the study course chairman, Mrs. Maude Fowler. There was an average attendance of nine members and four visitors. The pastor, the Rev. Ralph Bell, was present at each meeting.

Mrs. Lewis Mallory, corresponding secretary, makes the following statement: "This is the first study course that our auxiliary has held since we organized in April of this year. We feel that this course was a great help to us and it surely has given us a greater desire to do more work in our auxiliary."

Why Not a Roman Catholic President?

(continued from page three)

various categories, has brought public attention to more than thirty million dollars in the institutions of his church. As someone has said, "If a mere Catholic congressman could do that, what couldn't a Catholic president do?"

Whether a Roman Catholic president would himself initiate measures giving preferential treatment to his church is not important. By the very nature of his position could help to create a climate in which such preferential treatment would flourish.

THREAT OF EXCOMMUNICATION

Could the members of the American Church actually put pressure on politicians to carry out the wishes of the Catholic hierarchy? Indeed so! And in ways that no other church could possibly exert such pressure: by the threat of excommunication, which means, to a Roman Catholic, the damnation of his soul.

Could a Protestant president could ever be under such a threat. No Jewish president could ever be under such pressure. But a Catholic president would always have that authority of the hierarchy

As was stated in the Christian Century: "Protestant and Jewish leaders sometimes mix politics and religion, but they cannot 'excommunicate' or damn the soul of one who refuses to fall in line with their church's pronouncement. And they cannot enforce obedience to their will under pain of sin. There lies the crucial difference—and a person is not a bigot who takes that difference into account."

Is this threat of excommunication ever used in America?

It is.

In the New Orleans diocese, the members of the Louisiana Legislature were threatened with excommunication if they supported compulsory segregation laws applying to Catholic parochial schools.

In St. Louis, when the Catholic archbishop decreed desegregation, many Catholics petitioned and threatened to use legal action to force the Archbishop to reverse his action. The following Sunday a pastoral letter threatened excommunication to any who associated with this movement. The movement promptly collapsed.

In these coming crucial months every American must ask himself this question: Could a Roman Catholic president actually divorce himself from the control and pressure of his church to the extent that his judgment on certain controversial questions subject to political determination such as government aid to parochial schools, gambing, birth control, diverse, censorship, relations with foreign countries—Spain and Israel and Latin-American countries, for instance—would his decisions be objective and wholly unbiased by his church's position on these questions?

And the answer, substantiated by examples of Catholic pressure and power in America and around the world, is NO.

It is true that Senator Kennedy stated (in Look, March 3, 1959) that "religion is personal, politics are public, and the twain need never meet and conflict." But with Roman Catholics, they have met and they would meet, and conflict, if a man were a sincere politician AND a true Catholic—and Senator Kennedy is both.

And when Senator Kennedy said, in the same article, "For the officeholder, nothing takes precedence over his oath to the Constitution," the press of his own church castigated him unmercifully and said that his statement was certainly not good Catholic doctrine.

One is left to believe that much of the talk about American Catholicism being different from the official or traditional Catholic views is, in Wilke's phrase, so much campaign oratory.

Daniel Poling reminds us that when Senator Kennedy was invited to an inter-faith ceremony, he refused to attend—because a high-ranking member of the hierarchy advised him not to. And when the motion to censure Senator McCarthy (a Roman Catholic) was before the Senate, Senator Kennedy did not declare his stand.

As Eleanor Roosevelt said, "Senator Kennedy knows what courage is, but he is not free to exercise it." Exactly! And that is true of any Roman Catholic who has, or will have, designs on occupying the White House. A Roman Catholic president would not be free to exercise courage because he would never be free, as a true Catholic from the control and pressures of the traditions and the hierarchy of his church. This fact may be difficult for Protestants to understand, but it must be understood—before it is too late.

After Al Smith was defeated in his bid for the presidency in 1928, he said that the time had not yet come when a man could say his beads in the White House.

And every Protestant in America can pray, with prejudice and without rancor, that that time will never come—in '60, or in '64, or in '68—or beyond. Not because there is any objection to how a man prays to his God. But because the rosary is more than a chain of beads with which a Roman Catholic prays; it is a symbolic chain binding every true Roman Catholic to Rome—to Rome's purposes, to Rome's pressures, and to Rome's infallible pope.—Herald of Holiness.

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

New Appointment to Department of Physical Education

The appointment of Mrs. Janie Smith Archer, a native of Wayne County, North Carolina, to the department of physical education at Mount Olive College has been announced by President W. Burkette Raper.

Mrs. Janie Smith Archer

A graduate of Woman's College of the University of North Carolina with B. S. and M. A. degrees, Mrs. Archer has had six years of college teaching experience, three at Converse College in South Carolina and three at East Carolina College, Greenville. Her husband is the newly-elected principal of the Mount Olive public schools. The Archers moved to Mount Olive from Walstonburg, North Carolina, where Mr. Archer served as principal for the past two years.

President Raper discloses that the appointment of Mrs. Archer completes the instructional faculty at Mount Olive College for the ninth academic year which began September 5. Only one other addition was made to the faculty this year; Miss Lois Phillips of Warsaw, North Carolina, was elected to replace Mrs. Dixie Sugg Hart who resigned after serving as head of the department of business education at Mount Olive College since 1955.

Mrs. Archer replaces Mr. Robert W. Moye of Snow Hill, North Carolina, who resigned to enter private business in Mount Olive.

She is a member of Union Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Wayne County.

Education Through the Installment Plan

A new program of financing a college education through the installment plan is being inaugurated at Mount Olive College this fall, President W. Burkette Raper has announced.

According to this plan, students, or their parents, may extend payment of a year of college expenses over a nine, twelve, or even twenty-four months period. Tuition, room, board and all fees listed in the catalogue may be included under this arrangement, M. L. Johnson, college business manager, explained.

The new payment plan is being launched in co-operation with a reputable North Carolina bank, President Raper declared, and its chief purpose is to help remove the financial barrier which hinders many capable students from attending college. Detailed information is available through the college business office, he revealed.

Dr. Holt to Deliver Convention Address

Dr. Robert L. Holt, dean of East Carolina College, Greenville, North Carolina, will deliver the convocation address at Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, on Sunday, September 11, at 4:00 p. m., according to an announcement from President W. Burkette Raper of the college.

A former vice-president of Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, North Carolina, Dr. Holt has also served as director of religious activities at East Carolina College and as registrar at the time of his appointment as dean eight months ago.

A native of Georgia, Dr. Holt is a graduate of Mars Hill College, holds A. B. and M. A. degrees from Wake Forest College, and the Ph. D. degree from Duke University. He is an ordained Baptist minister and served as a pastor from 1945 to

The convocation on September 1 mark the official opening of the ninth academic year. The college, chartered in 1951 by the North Carolina Convention of Original Free Will Baptist Churches, had an initial enrollment of 175 students in 1952. The enrollment rose to 175 during the 1959-1960 academic year.

Full state accreditation was granted to the college in 1958, and officials have been working toward regional accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools for the upcoming school year.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed with Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mrs. Leona Owens

On Saturday, August 6, 1960, just before the falling of the evening shadows, Mrs. Leona Owens, widow of James F. Owens of Four Forks, North Carolina, and took her to her rest. Although she had been severely ill several times during the past few years, at the time of her death she seemed to be in good health and was called home. She happily worked among her family. She is survived by nine children, ten grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and five great-great-grandchildren, all of whom will remember her for her beautiful life and blessed influence. In her life she exemplified the beauty of friendship, the strength of love, the importance of faith, the denial of self, the earnestness of work, and the purity of a life.

Although she has gone away, her life has not been spent in vain, for she will live on in the hearts and minds of those who knew and loved her as she, in her simple but sincere way, made her footprint in the sands of time.

By a Grandchild

Resolution of Respect

Miss Edna Jane Cockrell

Whereas, our heavenly Father in His divine wisdom has seen fit to call from this world unto Himself the spirit of our dear sister and friend, Edna Jane Cockrell; and whereas, the members of the Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church, Kenly, North Carolina, desire to express in these resolutions their sympathy and affection for her; (continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Leadership Brings Ruin

(Lesson for September 18)

Lesson: Micah 3:1-6, 9-12.

Lesson Text: Hosea 14:9.

INTRODUCTION

In our lesson for last Sunday, we were given the opportunity to observe some of the blessings that flow to a people when business and faithfulness are the characteristics of their rulers.

Under such conditions as these are to be earnestly coveted by all people. We can have everything in our power, as followers of Jesus, and this is a great deal, to go through such a wonderful era of peace and prosperity.

We should, however, be sure to realize these conditions cannot exist unless business and faithfulness occupy the field of government.

We are directly responsible for the type of rulers that we select to rule over us. We are only charged with the responsibility of exercising our God-given right to vote for the ruler of our choice, but we are also charged with the additional responsibility of using our vote and using our influence for the election of the righteous and the faithful. When we support such men for public office we are, at the same time, supporting the cause of Christ.—The Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

Micah 3:1: Leaders who know justice know the price of injustice.

Vs. 2: It is a bad situation when people do evil things and have hate for the

Vs. 3: When people turn away from God there seems to be no limit to the sins they will commit. Selfish greed takes possession of them so completely that they do not think neighbors exist only to be used—so they skin them alive!

Vs. 4: The time will come when the hardened sinners will cry unto the Lord for mercy. But the cry will be nature's pain, and not from repentance. They do not want to repent the time is now.

Vs. 5: The attack was now centered on the false prophets as it had been on the princes before. They had knowingly misled the people and they had failed to warn them of their sins.

6. Vs. 6: The false prophets had kept others in the dark, and now they were to know darkness themselves.

7. Vs. 9: True prophets of God who dare tell the people the truth will never have smooth sailing. Those who come to hear the Word of the Lord should come prepared to hear of their faults and give heed.

8. Vs. 10: The rulers probably bragged of the new streets and buildings they had brought to Jerusalem, but that did not justify their disregard for God and His laws.

9. Vs. 11: What a verse this is! These were truly hirelings. The rulers judged for reward, the priests taught for wages, and the prophets prophesied for money. Like Samson they knew not that the Lord had departed from them.

10. Vs. 12: This was literally fulfilled in the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, when the temple ground was actually plowed.—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Micah was a prophet of God from Judah who lived and prophesied during the same period as Hosea and Isaiah, perhaps just a little later than Jonah and about the time of the death of Amos. His prophecy contains seven chapters in which he proclaims the downfall of the northern kingdom of Israel, the pathetic situation which existed among the political and religious leaders of the southern kingdom of Judah, and the later destruction of the temple in Jerusalem by the Babylonians, at which time the Jews would be taken away as slaves for seventy years. He also prophesies the return of the Jews from slavery and the flourishing existence of the Jews in their country after their return. He foretells the coming of Christ to the world, even naming the town in which Christ would be born.

The Printed Text for this lesson is taken from the third chapter of his prophecy which contains a pathetic invective against the princes of the house of Judah and the judges of God's people. His accusations are leveled at the judges, the magistrates, the priests and the false prophets. He upbraids them with their avarice, their injustice and their falsehoods. He tells them that their actions will be the cause of Jerusalem's being reduced to rubbish and the mountain of the temple's being made as a forest.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

2. "... Zion (shall) ... be plowed ... Jerusalem shall become heaps, ..." (Vs. 12). Because of the sins of priests, princes and people, Jerusalem became desolate. People still reap as they sow.

Illustration: Said a sinful young man to a devout Christian, "I don't see what you get out of life. You say you are happy, but you are missing so much." The one who thus spoke had a pleasing personality and a good position, but dissolute habits. The Christmas season came and passed. Work was resumed. The sinful young man didn't report for work. Officers went to his room. The door was locked. They forced it open. His body was found sprawled on the floor, amid empty liquor bottles! When the tragic news of his death reached the Christian, he said, "Yes, I'm missing a lot!"—Selected.

3. Micah turns from the civil leaders to the religious leaders, the prophets. It is well to remember that the prophets were more than forecasters of the future. They were forthtellers of the truth of God. They were the ministers of their day. When the ministers become corrupt and fail to give forth the Word of God, naturally the people are in darkness and become corrupt.

4. The first sin of which these prophets were guilty was a mercenary purpose. They were not interested in getting the truth of God to the people; instead, they were interested in their own personal gain. Their ministry had become a job or profession to them from which they earned a living. Are there not many such ministers today? those who are making the ministry a profession rather than a calling?

5. In the second place, these prophets were deceptive in their teaching. They flattered the people and made them satisfied in their sins. They gave the people what they wanted to hear, rather than the truth of God. They spoke of peace when there was no peace. They predicted prosperity when the wrath and judgment of God were upon the people. No prophet or minister is true to his calling if he does not speak the truth concerning man's sin and its consequences.

6. In the third place, these prophets were hypocritical in spirit. They were acting a part. They did not love God or have any desire to serve Him. Their whole ministry was built around their own lust. They did their own will, not the will of God. They were concerned about their own prestige and power, rather than the glory of God. No wonder the people had mixed pagan worship into the worship of God.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

7. Micah was a living illustration of the fact that many great words are spoken from small pulpits. This prophet was a countryman. He was not even a member of one of the old landed families. His father's name is never mentioned in the Old Testament, and this indicates that he was a member of the poorest and most inconspicuous class. The prophet proved his courage and insight when he attacked the sins of the rulers of his own nation. It is dangerous business to start calling powerful people beasts; but from Micah's message we gain a vivid description of the agony, wretchedness, terror and despair that filled the lives of the plain people around the year 710 B. C. These leaders, so content to let their people suffer, were not far removed from beasts.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).
(continued on page sixteen)

ST. CLAIRE BIBLE CLASS

(continued from page fifteen)

MISSIONS

(continued from page seven)

back Free Will Baptist Church, Phoenix, Arizona, the Rev. Elvis Priest and Mrs. Arlis Priest.

Our major project is a Christian day school with more than 90 Mexican citizens and children enrolled in it. Please pray for us.

Yours in Christ,
Mrs. John B. Elliston

Resolutions of Respect

(continued from page fourteen)

sympathy to those who feel most keenly our common loss, and to pay tribute to the memory of our faithful sister and God's servant.

Sister Cockrell passed to her reward on July 17, 1960, having served as a faithful member of our church for a number of years. Surviving is one sister, Miss Etta Cockrell, and several nieces and nephews.

We shall miss her, but we feel that her mission here has been courageously fulfilled.

Committee,
Nellie Atkinson
Marvin Atkinson

Blazing Eyes, and Roped Heifers

Once, as Dr. R. A. Torrey was speaking, two young ladies, in the rear of the auditorium, began to whisper and snicker. Dr. Torrey suddenly stopped speaking. His eyes seemed to blaze as he sternly and severely rebuked those girls for their irreverence! The girls were deeply wounded. Should he have dealt more kindly with them?

Billy Sunday had a similar situation in one of his meetings. Observing the misbehavior of two girls, who sat near the front of the tabernacle, he called "Ushers, come and rope these two and carry them out of the tabernacle."

Possibly none of us could thus rebuke anyone without greatly grieving the Holy Spirit of God, though irreverence in the presence of God must be condemned.—Rev. B. Knight.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

For your Christmas greetings this year, we are offering three series of the "Sunshine Line." All three series come in assorted cards, designed exclusively for you who love Christmas and understand its true meaning.

GLAD TIDINGS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards with Scripture Texts

BLESSED CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards, Also with Scripture Texts

LUSTROUS CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

18 PhotoColor Cards with Scripture Texts

RETAIL, PER BOX

$1.00

Special Rates to Auxiliaries and Other Church Groups for Resale
(When ordered in lots of ten or more boxes, sixty cents per box.)

ORDER FROM

FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. BOX 158

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA

58

the Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1960

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
SEP 16 1960
DURHAM, N. C.

by Lambert

The Linked Chain

by Mrs. Felton Watson
Kenly, North Carolina

O chain is stronger than its weakest link," is an old saying, yet it is still true. This old saying applies to Free Will Baptists who have linked themselves into a chain willingly and gladly, in order to stand together as one unit.

Link by link we have united, agreeing upon certain fundamentals of faith, so that we may be one body working together instead of many bodies working against one another. Each connection has been voluntary and each individual has held fast to his independence. Yet, we are bound together by an amazingly strong chain, a common allegiance to certain basic principles and doctrines.

We have organized bodies such as conferences, associations and conventions, realizing that much more could be accomplished through efficient organization than could be accomplished as individual efforts. We have founded and supported many promotional enterprises: The Children's Home, to care for our homeless children; a publishing house, to print our educational literature; a home and a formation program, for spreading the gospel to those who have never heard it; Bible college, to give the opportunity of receiving a college education and a knowledge of the Bible simultaneously; and a liberal arts college, to give the benefit of a liberal arts education. There are many other phases of our co-operative work.

Mount Olive Junior College is the latest link, in the minds of many of our people, the greatest link that has been added to the chain. In any event, all of us can be glad that it offers great hope to our denomination. Among other things that it will do, it will give us a better educated youth. Also, it will provide educational opportunities for our young people who are not a Christian, liberal arts education, but who have not yet been called into full-time Christian service.

Indirectly, Mount Olive Junior College (as well as our Bible College) will lead to greater missionary endeavor, both at home and abroad. Many young people who will attend Mount Olive College will probably go on to seek careers in medicine, law, etc. How invaluable Christians, Free Will Baptist doctors and lawyers, as well as those of other vocations, will be to our denomination.

Perhaps some young person who attends our junior college and goes ahead to a career in medicine will be called to the mission field. What a great need there is for doctors on the mission field! They have unlimited opportunities as they minister jointly to the body and to the soul. Can't you imagine a poor, brown-skinned native saying, "I love old Dr. Luke. I think he was a wonderful missionary."

In spite of charges from various sources, the Free Will Baptists have inspired men of God leading them. What a significant part they play in keeping the links of our chain together!

Our leaders are sound, God-fearing men. We are not in danger of being led by modernists and liberals (whatever they are) because our leaders are men who have been raised up and nurtured on Free Will Baptist doctrines and beliefs. And we cannot believe that our Free Will Baptist doctrines and beliefs are liberal and modernistic!

Certainly, our faith is being perpetuated through the training offered at Mount Olive Junior College. The writer recently had the privilege of visiting the college during the youth conference. Even to a visitor, it was inspiring just to be on the campus and have a part in the activities. It was easy to see that all of the boys and girls were touched by the vespers, which were directed by the Rev. Michael Pelt. The message of the Rev. Clarence Bowen seems to climax their religious experience.

This modern, push-button age in which we live is so filled with conflicting beliefs and philosophies that we sometimes wonder if even a highly learned professor is not baffled with a lot of the isms in the world today. What are we going to do with so many isms? Are we going to divide, and let every man have his own private philosophy? Or are we going to continue to unite, realizing that we need to forget some of our petty differences, in order that we may unite and work together? We cannot divide! We are bound together into one great chain. Each link of the chain is indispensable. United, we are a chain of which no one needs to be ashamed. Divided, we would not even be a chain and could not possibly fulfill the function of a chain. In the realization of our need for one another, let us cling even closer together. Let us pray for God's continued blessings on our co-operative work through the great links that make up the chain of Free Will Baptists.

●

CONFIDENCE

No soldier can fight well who has not confidence in his leader, but you cannot doubt yours. He has said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee," so that you may boldly say, "The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me." What confidence the knowledge of the Lord inspired in the heart of Paul! "I can do all things," he said, "through Christ which strengtheneth me." His weakness became strength in the conflict, for the grace of the Lord was sufficient for him.—Robert Whyte.

My God and My Country

by Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

IT is great to live in a country where we are free to worship God according to the dictates of our own conscience. Such is America. I wonder if the masses of our people appreciate this as they should. No doubt many do not. However, if they knew what it cost our forefathers to make possible this sacred liberty, perhaps they would love and cherish this wonderful land in which we live far more than they do, and would appreciate the beautiful flag that waves over us.

Our forefathers came to America for religious liberty. They braved the stormy seas in order to get here; braved the perils of the wilderness at the risk and sacrifice of their lives, or many of them. They suffered hunger and disease, numbers of whom died in their earnest endeavors to build homes, churches and schools. Thousands shed their life's blood on the battlefields when they fought for our independence. They made possible the truthfulness of our great national hymn, "America," which millions have delighted to sing, and which should be sung by millions of voices today. We should realize what it cost to make possible its reality.

"My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing:
Land where our fathers died,
Land of the pilgrim's pride,
From every mountain side
Let freedom ring!"

No one born on American soil, or who has become a citizen of our nation, can afford to become traitor to our government, our sacred religious liberty, and betray us unto any foreign foe. What a glorious privilege to live in a country of Bibles and churches, and under the stars and stripes of a flag that waves "over the land of the free and the homes of the brave!" Under God Almighty, I know of no other nation on earth that has been so highly favored and blessed—wonderfully blessed—as the United States of America. This is a land of plenty. Plenty in material blessings; plenty in churches and schools that dot our land; plenty of golden and priceless privileges and opportunities for our youth to make great and noble men and women and to succeed in worthwhile undertakings, endeavors and business by which to earn an honest and bountiful livelihood.

Indeed we have a great country, and why can't we realize it? Of course, the enemy that made it hard and difficult for our forefathers to come to these great shores and settle the wild and unbroken wilderness is still the same enemy today that would delight to see us brought under Communistic powers that would rob us of our churches and schools, our liberty to serve and worship God, our prosperity in work and business, and our strength as a

BROTHERLY LOVE

by George H. Branning
Greensboro, North Carolina

"Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted" (Galatians 6:1).

IN such times as these, when so many people have so many different ideas about what a Christian should be, and how a Christian should act, it would be good for us to take time out to consider this text for a few minutes.

First, the apostle calls both the one who is overtaken, and the one who is spiritual, brethren. This means that they are members of the same family; they are both children of God; they are both saved by the shed blood. The psalmist said, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" (Psalm 133:1).

Next, the one that is spiritual is advised to restore the one that is overtaken. This nation morally, educationally, spiritually, financially and in manpower.

Think of living in a country where infidels and idolaters have the reins of government in their hands! Naturally where infidelity is rejected, where the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ is scoffed and scorned and refused, where the church is denuded and her doors closed to sacred worship, where the schools of one's country, for the sake of God and the Holy Bible, are set aside, and freedom to act according to the dictates of one's conscience and judgment is not permitted, there can be but little left but oppression and suffering. Why can't our leaders in government, in education, in Christian service and in business, and as writers and publishers see this? Why can't every American citizen see this? Why can't millions of our people say in the language of the psalmist, "O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who hath thy glory above the heavens" (Psalm 113) and then live to exalt His name, His Kingdom above everything on this earth? It is our privilege, our duty and our solemn responsibility. What are we to do about it?

Freedom to live one's life as God will made it possible to love and worship God accordingly, to enjoy His presence and fellowship with His people instead of being weighed down with more than diamonds and pearls, gems and riches of earth. This is indeed a pearl of great price, and let us buy it for naught.

Brotherly love does not mean that the one who thinks he has all the answers is right and those who disagree with him are all wrong. It does not mean that the one who thinks he is spiritual is supposed to try to discredit those with whom he disagrees with a smear campaign. It says, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, and it means just what it says.

Last, the reason given for such a restoration is that the spiritual one also is subject to failings.

I am convinced that God will never bless our efforts until we are united in love. We cannot continue as a denomination as long as one faction is divided against another. If we are Original Free Will Baptists, we believe that the individual is free to choose what shall be his relationship to God, and no pastor, or any other individual or organization, has any right to sit in judgment of any man. If you think that a pastor or denomination has such a right over the individual, then you are not an Original Free Will Baptist.

Is He Coming Soon?

by Ronald H. Gillespie

ONE night, after the family devotion period was over, my wife and I sat up over the day's happenings. We were amazed at how much of the general plan of that day had fulfilled the signs of the times as they are clearly outlined in the Word. After thinking it over deeply, I finally remarked, "Truly the Lord is coming very soon."

To my surprise, Paulette, one of our girls, age five years, remarked, "Daddy, do you mean Jesus is coming here?"

I was startled, for I had supposed that the twins were in bed and possibly asleep at that time; but they had been wide awake listening to our conversation with great interest. "Yes, dear," I said, "Jesus is coming from heaven to take us back home to live with Him forever."

"He coming tonight?" asked Pauline. "Well," I replied, "He could come to-morrow. Mummy and I have just been talking about how many of the things that have happened today and things that are happening in the world every day now are things that God said would happen just as He comes for us. He could come any time now. However, He said, 'But of that day and hour knoweth no man.' Not even the Father knows; so we cannot tell the date."

"Oh, I am so glad Jesus is coming!" said Paulette. "I love Jesus so much and I want to go and live with Him!"

Just before we had our family devotions the next night one of the twins said, "Daddy, Jesus didn't come last night!"

"No," I said, "Jesus did not come last night, but He is coming very soon."

"Tonight?" asked the other twin. "Maybe," I replied, not wanting to be troubled by trying to set a date for His coming, and yet this incident was already causing me to search my heart to see how much I really believed Jesus was coming any day now.

The next day, the Lord did not come last night either," was Paulette's remark as she settled down for our family devotions the next evening.

"No, dear, He did not come last night, either, but just keep looking for Him and be ready for Him to come any time. Just keep living for Him and doing each day what you know He wants you to do, and don't ever do anything you would not want Him to find you doing when He comes," was my reply.

I hardly needed to give that last remark for they were constantly looking for Him to come and continued to remind me that He had not come yet, to which reply I kept giving a similar answer to the one I had already given.

After about two weeks of this the remarks were missing for a few nights and thinking they had dismissed the issue I forgot about it, too, for the time being.

I was wrong, though, about the twins' forgetting. One morning our oldest girl, Joyce, who was six years old then, cried out in alarm, calling for Mummy to come quickly. Paulette had swallowed a large bead. Fortunately the bead was round and finally proved to cause no serious trouble.

After the excitement died down a bit I asked Paulette why she had swallowed the bead. She replied, "I asked Joyce what would happen if I swallowed the bead, and she said I would possibly die. If I did I knew I would go to be with Jesus. I can't wait any longer for Him to come, so I have decided to go to Him."

I tried by best to explain things clearly to her, but I was rather puzzled myself just how to handle this case, and this fact showed up as the same performance was repeated again.

"Now, Daddy," said Doreen, my wife, "this has got to stop, and as you were the one who started it you also have to finish it."

I realized this but for some time I could not formulate a plan of how to deal with this case. At last I was ready and called in the twins.

I began by telling them that Jesus wanted only good girls to live with Him and that by doing things like that they were bad girls. Then one of them said, "No, Daddy, we are no longer naturally bad girls.

Sometimes we do bad things but we are sorry later and go to Jesus and tell Him we are sorry we did it and will try not to do it again, and He forgives us and helps us to be good. Remember what happened a few weeks ago?"

Yes, I remembered. Doreen had to punish them for some naughty thing they had done. Soon after the spanking had taken place one of the twins came to Doreen and said, "Mummy, I just seem to be naturally bad and I am afraid I am going to be bad in heaven."

"Oh, no," Doreen said, "you can't do that! God only has good girls up in heaven. If you are sorry you have done bad things and tell Him so, and ask Jesus to come into your heart, He will forgive you and will come into your heart and help you live your life so you will be a good girl."

The twins and Joyce, our oldest daughter, who was listening in, said they had never really done this before, and that night the three girls took Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour.

I could see now that I had the wrong approach again so I tried a new one and this time it worked. I told them, "God is preparing a place for you to live in so you can always be near Him. You may be sure He has planned a wonderful house for you, but how would you like to live in a house with the roof off?" Paulette shook her head no. "Or a house without windows or a door?" Pauline indicated her displeasure this time.

"Well, God is still building your house and when it is finished and He is ready for you He will come for you, as we have been talking about, or He will call you through death before that time comes. He wants you to live with Him just as much as you want to go there, and you can be certain that just as soon as everything is ready and your time has come He will either send for you or come and get you."

This explanation satisfied them and they have never again caused any anxiety to us along that line; but they are still looking for and waiting for Jesus to come. We are waiting for His coming, too, with more real childlike faith than we had before.—Gospel Herald.

A GRACIOUS FRIEND

The friendship that the Lord provides
Will stay when all else wanes,
And give you such a confidence
In His peace while it reigns,
You'll wonder why you did not find
Before, this friend so good and kind.

—Selected.

NEWS NOTES

Revival in Progress at Grace Church

Revival services are now in progress at Grace Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina. Services began Sunday night, September 11, and will continue through September 17. The evangelist for these services is the Rev. Guy Owens, pastor of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville.

The pastor of the Grace Church is the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, who invites all those interested persons in the Greenville area to attend these services.

Dawson's Grove to Observe Home-Coming

Home-coming services will be observed at Dawson's Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Scotland Neck, North Carolina, Sunday, September 18. The services will consist of a special message by a guest minister, special music, and recognition of former pastors and others present.

The pastor, the Rev. L. E. Ballard, and the church extends a cordial invitation to all members, former members, former pastors and friends to attend these services and enjoy the fellowship together.

Rev. Louis H. Moulton Conducting Rocky Mount Revival

Revival services are in progress at the First Free Will Baptist Church, 406 Cokey Road, Rocky Mount, North Carolina, with the Rev. Louis H. Moulton as the evangelist. The meeting began September 12 and will continue through September 18. The pastor, the Rev. Robert L. Edwards, ask that you remember these services in prayer, and if possible to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Home-Coming and Loyalty Sunday at Little Rock Church

Home-coming and loyalty Sunday will be observed at Little Rock Free Will Baptist Church, Lucama, North Carolina, Sunday, September 18. Services will get under way with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. and morning worship at 11:00. The Rev. W. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, will deliver the home-coming message. At the noon hour a picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds.

The pastor, the Rev. Leonard B. Woodall, extends a cordial invitation to all members, former members, former pastors and friends to attend these services and enjoy the fellowship of the day together.

Little Rock Church Announces Fall Revival

The Little Rock Free Will Baptist Church, Lucama, North Carolina, announces its fall revival September 18-24, with the Rev. Wilbert Everton, superintendent of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 8:00.

The church and pastor, the Rev. Leonard B. Woodall, ask your prayers for the success of the meeting, and extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Home-Coming and Revival At Hickory Grove Church

The Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Robersonville, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on Sunday, September 18, at 11:00 a. m. All former members and former pastors are invited to attend this service.

Beginning Sunday evening, September 18, at 8:00 p. m., the Rev. C. L. Patrick, Snow Hill, North Carolina, will begin a series of revival services which will continue through September 24. The people of Hickory Grove are looking forward to having Mr. Patrick with them as they have on many occasions when he served as guest speaker during revivals. He has served as a source of inspiration to the members and to the present pastor in many instances.

The pastor, the Rev. Willis Wilson, who will direct the song service each evening, wishes to invite everyone to attend the meeting and pray that God's blessings may be with them throughout each service.

N. C. Children's Home Report for August, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, reports the following receipts for August, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual, auxiliary, or organization contributing, but totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt:

General Fund

Albemarle Conference
Blue Ridge Association
Cape Fear Conference
Central Conference
Eastern Conference
French Broad Association
Jack's Creek Association
Pee Dee Association
Piedmont Association
Western Conference
Western Yearly Association
Miscellaneous	1,
Farmer Picture Program	1,
Bennett Concert Class	1,

Kitchen Fund

Central Conference
Eastern Conference
Western Conference

Clothing Fund

Blue Ridge Association
Central Conference
Eastern Conference
French Broad Association
Western Conference

Central Conference Building Fund

Central Conference	$
--------------------	----

French Broad Building Fund

French Broad Association	$
--------------------------	----

Total August Receipts $7,

Cramerton Church Employs Associate Pastor

The Cramerton, North Carolina, Will Baptist Church has employed the services of the Rev. Travis Huffman as associate pastor. Mr. Huffman is a graduate of the Fruitland Bible Institute of H. sonville, North Carolina, and will be the pastor of the Cramerton Church. Rev. Roy Rikard.

According to Mrs. Marie Martin, secretary, the church has a Sunday school rollment of 356 with an average attendance of 300 or above. Also on the campus property is a Bible institute training center.

Rev. S. A. Smith to Deliver Ormondville Home-Coming Message

The Rev. S. A. Smith of Beauvoir, North Carolina, will deliver the home-coming message at the annual home-coming services of the Ormondville, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church, Sunday, September 25. Mr. Smith, former pastor of the church. (continued on page ten)

Coming Events

September 22—Eastern Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Mount Olive Church, Mount Olive, North Carolina

(continued from page six)

nder way with Sunday school at a. m., followed with the morning ip at 11:00. A picnie lunch will be on the church grounds at the noon In the afternoon there will be a service with several singing groups tak- irt.

pastor, the Rev. Clifton Rice, will charge of the day's activities. He and hurch extends a cordial invitation to embers, former members, former pas- and friends to attend these services njoy what promises to be a great day rship and fellowship with the Lord.

Eugene Waddell to Direct Greenville Revival

Rev. Eugene Waddell, Garner, Carolina, will be the evangelist for services at the Greenville, North

Rev. Eugene Waddell

na, Free Will Baptist Church Sep- ar 19-25. The services will begin evening at 7:30.

pastor, the Rev. Robert B. Craw- extends an invitation to everyone to fully bring your family and friends t's Bible preaching, gospel singing and iving revival.

National Superannuation Report August, 1960

S. K. V. Shutes, secretary-treasurer of National Superannuation Board of Will Baptists, submits the following for August, 1960:

on Hand August 1, 1960 $3,901.35

Receipts

Operative Plan of Support:
ma	$1.37
asas	7.97
zia	2.30

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Cuban Christians Divided Over Castro

In the beginning of Castro's revolution the large majority of Protestants favored him and felt that the movement was a genuine movement of the people. Cuban Protestants—clergymen and laymen—became active in the new government in its formative stages, and among the congregations there was general support of the proposed reforms.

As Red influence became more evident many gradually withdrew their services. Faustino Perez, former Minister of Recuperation, and Enrique Ostalki, both Presbyterians, and Lopez Fresquet, a Methodist who was Minister of Finance, have quit their Castro-given posts.

Other Christians, mostly Presbyterians, are still in the government. Heading the list is Dr. Raul Fernandez Ceballos, secretary of the Cuban Council of Churches, who heads up the literaey program under the Minister of Education. At one juncture Castro met with Dr. Fernandez, Dr. Rafael Cepeda (a professor at the Evangelical Seminary and director of education in Latin America for the Presbyterian Church, USA) and others to propose a national Protestant church with a Minister of Religion in the cabinet. Intervention by the Presbyterian mission board in the United States with a threat to eut off funds abort- ed the plans.

The anti-Americanism stirred up by Cas- tro is increasingly a stumbling block to mis- sionaries. Some have reported that they are unable to talk to some people simply because they are Americans. Others have reported a meeting broken up by Cuban Christians telling American Christians, "Why don't you Americans go home?"

Besides prejudice against American mis- sionaries, the pinch of the general economic conditions of the island, and the isolated seizure of church property, Protestants and Catholics alike are faced with government antagonism in their educational under- takings. Some 300 schools will be unable to open this month because they are un- able to meet the high salary requirements of the new law. The government has seized Methodist and Nazarene camp sites on the Isle of Pines. Faced with the possi- bility of losing a farm used to support its work, the United World Mission has sold it.

Despite all of the problems, many Amer- ican missionaries support Castro's govern- ment, feeling that it offers opportunities for the spread of the gospel. Those favor- ing the regime point out that Fidel's son has joined the Methodist church, that his sister sings in a Baptist choir, that he often quotes the Bible, and that the wife of Che Guevara is a Presbyterian (she is al- so a known Communist).

Confusion still reigns, but as civil liber- ties vanish and all private enterprise faces new restrictions, more and more of the people and church leaders are placing the Red label on the revolution.

—Based on an article from Christianity Today, September 12, 1960.

California	10.59
Florida	2.65
Georgia	4.86
Illinois	1.81
Missouri	43.07
North Carolina	2.47
New Mexico	2.79
Ohio	.06
Oklahoma	13.54
Tennessee	1.25
Texas	6.28
Virginia	1.96
From States:
Alabama	5.00
Georgia	40.21
South Carolina	10.29
North Carolina	52.75
Tennessee	17.01
Virginia	6.82
From Insured on Premiums	45.88
Refunds on Premium	4.66
Total Receipts	285.60
Total to Acount For	$4,186.95
Disbursements
Ministers Life and Cas-

(continued on page thirteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Will you please explain, "Be ye angry, and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath" (Ephesians 4:26)? G. R., Arkansas.

Answer: There is no doubt but that the thing in the mind of the inspired writer as expressed here is what the Bible names "righteous indignation." It would not be loyalty on our part were we to see someone commit a sin against either God or another person if we were not angry about it; indeed, it would be a sin for us to thus behave. When Jesus saw wrong committed, whether against God or some innocent person other than God, He had righteous indignation against them. "And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves, And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves" (Matthew 21:12, 13); "And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other" (Mark 3:5).

When Nehemiah, the man of God, had gotten leave of a foreign king and had come to Jerusalem to patch the walls and set things right against Israel's enemies, he found that the Israelites, God's own people, were mistreating each other like the heathen had mistreated them and this aroused his righteous indignation. "And I was very angry when I heard their cry and these words. Then I consulted with myself, and I rebuked the nobles, and the rulers, and said unto them, Ye exact usury, every one of his brother. And I set a great assembly against them. And I said unto them, We after our ability have redeemed our brethren, the Jews, which were sold unto the heathen; and will ye even sell your brethren? or shall they be sold unto us? Then held they their peace, and found nothing to answer. Also I said, It is not good that ye do: ought ye not to walk in the fear of our God because of the reproach of the heathen our enemies?" (Nehemiah 5:6-9). The Scriptures give no evidence whatever that God was not approving all these actions of His trusted servant, Nehemiah. In fact, to have it printed in His Word as it here occurs gives full evidence to God's hearty approval. This all, of course, by no means indicates that we are to oppose people because they oppose us personally, or even if they do us personal or bodily injury. The Bible teaches exactly the opposite. To whatever extent the church or church people have opposed people because they have opposed them personally, that is the extent in which they have been wrong and un-Christlike; for it is indeed a different thing to oppose the act of a man that in word, deed and principle opposes God or God's Word than to oppose him because he has spitefully misused or abused one personally. We should accept any personal wrong that either an inconsistent, professing Christian, or a man of the world imposes upon us as an opportunity to exemplify Christ before him in such a way as to make him ashamed of the act, repent and come to Christ.

I once knew an unsaved man that liked to display his inconsistency to his Christian neighbor. With patience the Christian neighbor bore with him, praying for him daily about 40 years; but it finally paid off when the Christian neighbor was called to the bedside of the sinner to pray for him and see him saved and returned to health.

"Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted. Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself. But let every man prove his own work, and then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another. For every man shall bear his own burden. Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. And let us not be weary of well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. And as we have the opportunity, let us do good unto all, especially unto them who are of the household of faith. Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine hand. As many as desire to make a shew in the flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised; only lest they should suffer persecution for the cross of Christ. For neither they themselves who are circumcised keep the law; but desire that you be circumcised, that they may glory in your flesh. But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified to me, and I unto the world. For in Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature. And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy upon them, the Israel of God. From henceforth let no man trouble me: for I in my body the marks of the Lord are branded. Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen" (Galatians 6).

God's Word tells the Christian, "Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God hath forgiven you" (Ephesians 4:30-32); "But I say unto you, ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain" (Matthew 5:39-41).

What kind of a spiritual condition is the church and, therefore, the whole world in today if each time a Christian group of Christians, has been wronged they had, as is taught in the law, retorted the same, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, blow for blow, cursing for cursing; and much better would it be had all members of the church followed the Lord in His exhortation and in His holy living? Perhaps we need to take inventory here and see whose side we are on. The devil is the god of this world, this age and its system. God is the God of all creation and orders from heaven. These are four of the Bible. He is coming one of these days before too long and will take vengeance against all who have forgotten (to love) Him.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path. (PSALM 119:105).

PEACEMAKERS

And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace" (James

The idea expressed by the above text is not new to James or to any who knew the teachings of the Scriptures. Almost two hundred years before James wrote these important words, Isaiah had written, "And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness shall be quietness and assurance for me, and my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places" (Isaiah 32:17, 18).
The prophet was telling about the condition that would exist in the hearts of God's people when Christ would come into the world—our own day of grace.

Why is there so much strife, division and trouble among us? When Christ was talking with His disciples just prior to His going from them, He said, "Peace I give unto you, my peace I give unto you:
I will not leave you without peace, I will give you my peace." (John 14:27). That Christ left His peace with His people there is no question, for we have left His peace out of our living. There are those, if we may know them by their fruits, whose religion is division, strife, hate, confusion and destruction in general. We find this spirit in all our relationships with each other. The final result of all these unchristian conditions is contention, and contention drives us and drives us away from peace and God. Paul summed up all these things by saying, "Is the church divided? was Paul crucified for you, or were ye baptized in the name of the Lord? (1 Corinthians 1:13).

A. P. Bailey recently wrote: "Anyone who is strong can be a peacebreaker;
only the weak and strong can be a peace-breaker. The peacebreaker is willing to destroy to achieve a temporary objective; the peacemaker seeks to maintain wholeness of the whole against those who would wreck it.
Blessed are those who are strong enough to keep the peace. Blessed is the one who has the spiritual strength to take the divisions within a community and make of its fragments a whole. He shall be called one of the children of God.

"Are you healing life's divisions or helping to make more of them? When we divide mankind, we place men in opposing camps where bitterness and hurt develop more easily. Peacebreakers divide mankind. Peacemakers bring men together. It takes a singleness of mind and the strength of inspiration to be a peacemaker."—Selected.

"Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God" (Matthew 5:9).

Defeat isn't bitter if you don't swallow it.

PRAYER CHANGES PEOPLE

A young preacher had just settled in his first pastorate in Philadelphia, when he was visited one evening by one of the laymen in his church.

The man said bluntly to him, "You are not a strong preacher. In the usual order of things you will fail here, but a little group of us have agreed to gather every Sunday morning to pray for you."

The young man saw that group of people grow to more than one thousand praying weekly for their pastor.

The minister was J. Wilbur Chapman who grew to become one of the greatest preachers America has ever known.—The Baptist-Examiner.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

POWER REVEALED IN THE SON

(John 17:1, 2)

Introduction: This is the age of power. The emphasis is upon horsepower. Everyone wants to have power! We measure the strength of a nation by the state of its ammunition stockpile.
The world is indeed mad with the lust for power. The universal password is power. I would like to tell you about God's power and how it is manifest in His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ.

I. HE HAS POWER OVER DISEASE (Luke 4:40)

1. Power over disease of body (John 5:8, 9).
2. Power over the disease of soul (1 Peter 1:22).
3. Power over the disease of the mind (2 Timothy 1:7; Romans 12:2).

II. HE HAS POWER OVER DEMONS (Matthew 4:24)

1. Power over the demons that possessed the man of Gadara
(Mark 5:1-13).
2. Power over the demons that possessed the dumb man
(Matthew 9:32, 33).
3. Power over the demons that possessed the Syrophocnician's daughter (Matthew 15:22-28).

III. HE HAS POWER OVER THE DEVIL (Genesis 3:15)

1. Power over the devil in the wilderness temptation (Matthew 4:10, 11).
2. Power over the devil in the victory of Calvary (Colossians
2:15).
3. Power over the devil in the resurrection (Luke 24:6).

CRAGMONT ASSEMBLY NEWS

by J. E. Wooten
Business Manager-Treasurer

THE statements contained in this brief account of activities at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, during the conference season just recently closed do not cover the entire operational activities, nor do they furnish all information concerning the progress made and the financial status of the assembly. It is our purpose to remind our friends just now that Cragmont has survived a seige of discouraging aspects, and that it now sees bright prospects for the future. We are happy to report this fact.

The conference groups have been large and splendid. Many young people, and adults as well, have attended from various sections of the state where the institution is little known. Fine co-operation and Christian consideration on the part of all have been encouraging and inspirational. The presence of the Spirit of God has been evident in the study courses and in the evangelistic services. Many young people have been won to Christ and saved, and many others, both youth and adults, have been encouraged, strengthened and inspired. The Lord is blessing the efforts put forth at Cragmont Assembly for the salvation of souls and for the advancement of the Kingdom of Christ.

With respect to recent accomplishments permit us to state briefly that it seems most incredible that some things which have been done could have been done at all. The first day of May seemed good indeed. There was no money in the treasury, but hundreds of dollars of arrearage and past due, had accumulated. We sent out a letter to the friends of the institution asking for donations to repaint for the old building. Friends responded in a marvelous way and so had received enough cash to purchase paint. For this we extend thanks to the Lord and to all those who responded to our plea.

The new motel-style building is partially complete. It is furnished with furniture of quality, and is convenient and comfortable. Also, the old building, much loved and cherished by many numbers who have been saved and in it—has had a new roof put on, a general repair job, as well as a complete outside paint job. Come and take a look at things!

Financial income from the conference was good and encouraging. But the amount done cost a lot of money and the amount now hanging over the assembly are many. Many obligations will have to be met in the near future—notes and interest on notes. Encouragement from the friends has been gratifying since July. The Lord bless your efforts and reward you for your efforts in His cause.

We are fully aware of the fact that the educational, mission and various other fields of activity are essential and are in great need of our encouragement and financial support. They are worthy and we must not forget to assist them freely. Let us remember that, after all other considerations, devoted Christians are our best and most dependable supporters of our Christian enterprises.

The more individuals we help to get to Christ, the more forceful backing we build up for the support of our missions and all other Christian enterprises. May we remember that Cragmont Assembly's main objective is the winning of individuals for Christ and preparing them for service in His cause. Will you assist us in this worthy cause? When we win individuals to the Saviour we help to support the entire program of His Kingdom.

Address all correspondence to Cragmont Assembly, Route 1, Black Mountain, North Carolina.

IV. HE HAS POWER OVER DARKNESS (John 1:5)

1. Power over the darkness to make light (Genesis 1:3).
2. Power over the darkness to command it to appear at mid-day (Matthew 27:45).
3. Power over the darkness to enter into the hearts of men (John 8:12).

V. HE HAS POWER OVER DEATH (1 Corinthians 15:56, 57)

1. Power over death in the giving of physical life (Acts 20:8-12).
2. Power over death in the extension of life (Acts 28:3-6).
3. Power over death in the giving of spiritual life (Ephesians 2:1).

VI. HE HAS POWER OF DESTRUCTION (1 Thessalonians 1:7-9)

1. Power of destruction of individuals physically (Genesis 19:26).
2. Power of destruction of cities and nations physically (Genesis 19:23-28).
3. Power of eternal destruction of individuals both physically and spiritually (Revelation 21:8; 20:14, 15).

ONLY GLORY BY AND BY!

After great hardships and privations, Zenophon and ten thousand Greeks finally reached, in their retreat, the summit of a lofty hill from which they could see in the distance the blue waves of the Mediterranean Sea! Its gentle wavelets flashed in the light of the morning sun! From thousands of throats rang the joyous shout, "The Sea! The Sea!" In their jubilation, the battle-wearied soldiers forgot their months of weary marching and nameless privations. Yonder were home and their waiting loved ones!

Some day, we, too, will come to a mountain top, from whose vantage point we'll behold the eternal city which hath foundations, and whose Builder and Maker is God. There, the loved ones who have died in the Lord are waiting to welcome us into the everlasting habitations! Then we'll forget the battles fought, the sorrow and sufferings, the privations and persecutions! Then we'll know the full meaning of the wondrous words, "For I reckon the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us!"

—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

NOTES

A N
D

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

EXCERPTS FROM A SERMON

23, 1960, at a Youth for Christ meeting in my church, George Bercaw, a student at Mount Olive Junior College, was the minister selected to speak or deliver an evening message. George delivered his message in a very forceful and illuminating manner, in which he gave glory to God for His accomplishments. I am not able to give in full detail all that George said in his sermon; in fact, it is my plan as far as possible, to keep true to my style of writing in Notes and Quotes, and not to present full sermons in full, but to select highlights, and also to take assertions of individuals, quote these and make my notes the same. So I am quoting some of the highlights of George's sermon and making my comments, according to my style of writing.

George said in part: "May I say in the beginning that I do not claim to be the confident of God on every detail in the heavens above and on the earth below. This message is presented with the help of my personal thinking. . . . Ideally, we should think of sermons, not as great orations, but as good and faithful. In the home we should often hear the Master say, 'Be thou good and faithful servant.' With this concept of sermon preparation in mind that this message is presented. It is my desire that this message receive God's approbation as being helpful to the extent that it is helpful to those who may hear it; and faithful to the extent that it is in accord with that which has been learned, but also with the revealed Word of God. May God's Holy Spirit enlarge our mind to the practicality of His truths.

As we live to maturity, we are faced with a dual problem, that of learning to get along with ourselves and others. Psychologists have stated that the measure of success is that we have in mastering ourselves and getting along with others. The measure of success is to determine, to a large degree, our ability to get along harmoniously with others. The measure of success is to determine who cannot get along with others and who is usually at war with himself. His uncontrolled temper and domineering ways are all projections of his inner conflict upon other people.

"Life certainly is not an easy matter for any of us, especially the Christian life. It hasn't been easy for me. I was reared in a Roman Catholic home, and upon my having been converted to Protestantism, I received much abuse and criticism for the same. My family was violently opposed. I do not count this situation as having been persecution, however, for it proved to be more of a blessing than anything else. God taught me through this experience that the Christian life demands self-mastery. As I left home at the age of sixteen with the feeble education of only the eighth grade, I learned to bring under, by the direction of God, all my inner drives, desires and passions; the disciplining of my emotions, and establishing constructive habits of thought, character of conduct, and self-reliance was required. This was not an easy task, and certainly not one to perform overnight. I honestly admit that this has not totally taken its existence in my life even to this time. This, I feel, is a part of growing in grace. I further assert that this striving for inner unity will be a lifelong task. But not to strive for, or to lack this inner unity would be to suffer from a tremendous spiritual illness."

May we say here, that if we do not strive to grow in grace we certainly will dwarf, and as some man has said, "We will fossilize." Fossilize means to petrify, become antiquated. This is a serious condition for a Christian, so the saving of our soul is not enough for us all the way. It is fine to be saved, but to be saved and not work to get others saved, is to dwarf and live a worthless Christian life. God saves us to be His children and to grow in His grace and knowledge. The message that George delivered was with the persuasion to go on in learning of God. In other words, the message was in keeping with that which the apostle, Paul, delivered when he said, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before. I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13, 14).

The apostle, Paul, did not claim that he had obtained all that there was for him. He was reaching forth for the goal. "It is a serious position," we say, "when we get to the place that we think we are the master of all knowledge and that we know it all." This writer believes that we should seek to grow and never feel that we are superior to all others in knowledge. As Christians, and especially ministers, and as workmen together with God, we must be ethical and practical in living and in presenting the knowledge which we have obtained by study, and have close inner fellowship with the Lord Jesus.

George, in continuation of his message, said: "There are, I admit, a great many factors which are to be considered with our success in life, some of which are beyond our control, heredity and environment. However, there still remains in each of us one true determining factor as to what we are, or will, and can be: the individual will. We possess the power, if properly applied, to be and become what we desire to be and to become. The profound responsibility of being the architect of our own character and personality has been laid upon each of us by God with this caution, 'Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.'" In continuation of his message, Brother George said, "The world is interested in success. Christ is interested in our success. Despite this keen interest in success, the proportion of people who really succeed in life, even in the material sense, is not large. The facts pointing to the countless failures in life is disheartening, but true." It is the same type of failure to succeed in learning to live that has disintegrated the spiritual fibers of many Christians. It is not the many, but the few, who learn to live successfully. Jesus was aware of this. Listen to the injunction of the Master: "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matthew 7:13, 14).

Thus George left the matter of life with the individual, according to God's Word; showing by Scripture, if a man wanted to live he could do so by seeking the will of God and exercising the power that God has invested man with to seek and find the true life that may be lived here on earth and enjoyed in what the Original Free Will Baptists have believed all the way and taught for three hundred years. In fact, this describes the belief that has been taught by some ever since the establishing of the church on earth.

George Bercaw is a student at Mount Olive College, and if desired by any church, he can be found by addressing the college. His life is clean according to what we know and he is deeply interested in real Christian living.

I may quote some more of George's sermon in the future.

Don't trust men too far who do not trust God at all.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

MADGE DECIDES TO BE HERSELF

by Ida M. Yoder

MADGE sat at her desk with her reader open before her. But she was not studying her lesson.

She knew she should be busy. Very soon, Miss Yates would call the class to recite. But in spite of herself, her eyes kept turning to the desk across the corner from her. Lola North sat bent over her tablet, busy at her lesson.

"I believe she is getting her arithmetic for tomorrow," thought Madge. With a deep sigh, she turned to her book once more. "Why couldn't I be pretty like Lola," she wondered. "I'd give anything for curls like that!"

Lola had long curly hair. She had it parted on the side and had seven curls. The one on the side was tied with a red ribbon. Madge had very straight, dark brown hair, which was always neatly combed. Her mother made nice, even braids and tied them up with pretty bows. She had a great many different ones which she liked. But today, even thinking of her ribbons did not make her happy.

"Third grade reading class, attention," said Miss Yates. With considerable shuffling of papers and books, the third grade came to attention.

"Howard, you may read first, then we will go on down the row."

One by one they stood to read, until Miss Yates said, "That will do." Some of them had to be helped a number of times.

When Madge's turn came she read nicely, without a single mistake. "Splendid, Madge," said Miss Yates with a smile. "You read as if you really enjoy it."

She had not praised Lola. But Madge thought that did not matter at all. Lola was so very pretty and her hair was so curly. How wonderful she must feel!

After reading class was dismissed, it was time to study spelling. Madge liked to spell. She felt extra good when she had learned a big word. Like the time they read the story about Androcles and the lion. She had learned to spell the man's name.

But today she thought of Lola instead of her spelling lesson. Finally she began to wonder how it would feel to be Lola. Oh, wonderful idea! If she were Lola, she would always be very pretty. Everyone would admire her curls. She would toss her head and then twist a curl around her finger while she was getting her lesson. She would live in town and go home at noon for dinner, instead of taking a lunch. Never again would she have to chase cows, or pick up cobs, or help with the dishes. Lola never had to work.

But right there she stopped, as a horrible thought struck her. If she were Lola, she would have to have Lola's parents too. Little remarks she had heard the girls make came back to her, and she did not like to think of them.

Lola's father did not like to work. He was not very kind to her mother and often impatient with Lola. Her mother became angry easily and was quick to scold Lola. Madge saw Mr. and Mrs. North often, and they did not seem nice and kind like her own daddy and mother. They did not go to church and Sunday school with Lola.

Madge was ashamed of herself. It was simply too dreadful to think about; fussing about curls when she had such wonderful parents. She was sure now that she would not want to trade places with Lola. Not for anything. All the curls and pretty faces could not make up for a father and mother like her own.

Daddy and Mother loved each other and their children. The whole family went to church and Sunday school. They read the Bible and learned memory verses. Mother always sang about her work and most of the time the songs were hymns. Often after supper they sang together as a family, or played games, and read stories. Daddy and Mother were so kind and patient when things went wrong.

"Put away your work," said Miss Yates. "See how neatly you can arrange the books in your desks. And, Tom, it's your turn to pass the wastebasket."

Betty played a lively march, and everyone filed out to the hall for their wraps. Miss Yates helped the little ones, and called cheerful good nights to each one as they left the building.

Madge was quiet as she went about her regular tasks at home that evening. She looked at her parents with new respect and love. After she had said her prayers and kissed her mother good night she hugged her.

"Oh, Mother, I love you more than any one. I wouldn't trade you for any mother in the world." Mother tucked her in bed and turned off the light as she left the room. Before Madge went to bed she whispered another little prayer. "You, Jesus, for my nice daddy and mother, and help me to be good."—W.C. Cheer.

Gaining and Keeping Honor

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

It's hard to climb to heights sublime

When all the facts are counted in
For years of honest work and thought

Are requisites before you win,
Along with perseverance great

That will not shrink when doubts
Also you must have patience real

And faith in God when days are cold

But when you've risen high in life

To honor and perhaps to fame,

And when you've won the confidence
Of those who often speak your name

How careful then you ought to be
To keep the heights that you have gained

And never say and do the things

By which so many lives are stained

READY

We never know what commissions
Be ripening, what chances may be in

Way, what temptations may be in
Ready to spring upon us unawares,

Service and safety of our souls depend
Our readiness for action. Admiral

Said the navy never required time
Preparation for war; it was always

Ready to strike, for the navy was always Fighting fog and storm and sea.

Ready to strike. A Christian can never
His alertness; there is no discharge.

I say unto you I say unto all, Watch ye

John Macbeath.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

C. Eastern Auxiliary Convention Convenes With Mt. Olive College

North Carolina Eastern Woman's Auxiliary Convention will convene with Mt. Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, Tuesday, September 22. The theme for the convention will be, "Thou shalt endure hardness, as a good soldier of Christ" (2 Timothy 2:3). The program has been planned:

Morning Session

- Registration
- Hymn, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus"
- Devotion, 2 Peter 3:1-5, Mrs. Edie Goodman
- Welcome, Mrs. Burkette Raper
- Response, Mrs. Ralph Lightsey
- Greetings to Ministers, Officers and Delegates
- President's Charge, Mrs. T. O. Terry
- Open Forum
- Message from the Children's Home, Mrs. Wilbert Everton
- Hymn and Offering, "The Solid Rock"
- Special Prayer for Our Nation
- Appointment of Committees
- Special Music, Mount Olive College
- Message, "Standing Steadfast to God and Truth in this Modern Age," the Rev. Jerry Rowe
- Lunch

Afternoon Session

- Hymn
- Prayer
- Cragmont News, Miss Velma Morris
- Memorial Service, Mrs. Leroy Cutler
- Life Awards, Mrs. Clyde Banks
- Acknowledging God's Blessings in Our Enterprises
- News from the Field, Both State and National, Mrs. Carl Dudley
- Business

—Appointment of Delegates for Other Conventions

—Adjournment

Serving as pianist for the convention will be Mrs. Alton Suggs; and music director, Mrs. Walter Rhodes. Mrs. J. K. Rhodes is program chairman.

N. C. Central Auxiliary Convention Convenes Sept. 28

The Central Conference Woman's Auxiliary Convention of North Carolina will convene with Dawson's Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Scotland Neck, North Carolina, Wednesday, September 28. The theme for the convention will be "Arise and Shine." The Scripture for the day is taken from Isaiah 60:1, "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee." The scheduled program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Congregational Hymn, "Work for the Night Is Coming"
- Devotions, Mrs. Ray Cunningham
- Welcome, Mrs. Henry Harris
- Response, Mrs. Walter Reynolds
- President's Remarks, Mrs. T. E. Tyndall
- Recognition Time
- Children's Home Report, Mrs. Wilbert Everton
- Special Music, Mount Olive College
- Congregational Hymn, "We're Marching to Zion"
- 11:30—Message, Mrs. Carl Dudley, State Field Worker
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:30—Congregational Hymn, "Give of Your Best to the Master"
- Prayer
- Presentation of Life Awards, Mrs. H. L. Spivey
- Enlistment Chairman, Mrs. Selby Tomlinson
- Prayer Chairman, Mrs. Roy May
- Youth Chairman, Mrs. Bill Taylor

—Study Course Chairman, Mrs. Bob Peele

—Benevolence Chairman, Mrs. J. L. Tripp

—Business Period

—Benediction

The music director for the convention will be Mrs. L. E. Ballard, with Mrs. Marvin Moore as organist.

Deep Run, N. C.—The young people of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church formed a Y. P. A. Monday evening, August 29, with Mrs. Durwood Merritt as the sponsor. The following officers were elected: President, Phil Outlaw; vice-president, Annie Pearl Thompson, Secretary-treasurer, Linda Faye Quinn; program chairman, James Lee; reporter, Annie Pearl Thompson.

The subject for the September meeting is "His Peace." The meeting will be held in the home of Leslie Deaver on September 26, at 7:00 p. m. All young people in this section are encouraged to attend.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

Warranty Union for Premiums on Insured	$91.76
Secretarial Service	60.00
Free Will Baptist Headquarters for Printing Digest of Reports	46.90
Postage	4.53
Refund on Premiums	2.33
<hr/>
Total Disbursements	205.42
<hr/>
Balance in Treasury August 31, 1960	$3,981.43

Prospect Church to Observe Home-Coming

The Prospect Free Will Baptist Church, Route 3, Dunn, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming Sunday, September 18, with services beginning at 11:00 a. m. The pastor, the Rev. Carey Watkins, will bring the home-coming message. A cordial invitation is extended everyone to attend.

New Church Organized in Portsmouth, Va.

The Calvary Free Will Baptist Church was organized Sunday, September 4, in Portsmouth, Virginia, with 42 charter members. The Rev. J. B. Chism served as moderator during the organization with the Rev. Raymond Riggs giving the charge. The dedicational prayer was prayed by the Rev. Fred Rivenbark of Norfolk, Virginia, were saved.

(continued on page sixteen)

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

College Receives Gift Of $1,000

Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, has received a gift of $1,000 from the James E. and Mary Z. Bryan Foundation for use in its student aid program. President W. Burkette Raper has announced that this gift will be used as a loan fund. This fund is available to North Carolina students on the basis of need, ability, character and seriousness of purpose in obtaining an education.

College Facilities Improved

Faculty members and students returning to Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, for the fall semester will find college facilities greatly improved.

President W. Burkette Raper announced that the ten-room Dail house on Breazeale Avenue, next to the campus, has been leased by the college and will serve as an office building for the president, academic dean, registrar, dean of men, and the departments of English, foreign language, physical education, mathematics, social studies and religion. Remaining in the original college building will be the business office, and offices for the science, music and business education departments and the librarian.

For the first time since opening here in 1954, the college will have a student center this fall. The former C. B. Council residence on West James Street, just in front of the campus, has been leased and will include student lounges with television and table games, the college book store, refreshment center, storage for recreation equipment, and a student conference room. Furniture for the building is being donated by local merchants.

Resident women will be housed on the second floor of the main college building, a ten-room leased dwelling on West James Street, and home of M. L. Johnson, college business manager. Rooms for men will be in the homes of Mrs. L. A. Bird Jr., Mrs. Faison Witherington, Mrs. E. F. Carroll, Mrs. W. L. Hood, Mrs. Fred Mintz, Mrs. Ralph English and Mrs. Alva Andrews.

President Raper said that the college was still accepting both resident and commuting students. Registration for classes for the fall semester began Wednesday, September 7, and closes September 20.

The Chance of a Lifetime

(Editor's Note: The following editorial appeared in the Mount Olive Tribune, the daily newspaper of Mount Olive, North Carolina, in regards to Mount Olive Junior College.)

If only there was some magical way to wave a wand or recite a wierd incantation and reveal the circumstances of 1975 to each 1960 high school graduate, what a difference it would make in their present plans—at least in the field of education.

The already-bulging halls of our higher institutions of learning would literally burst at the seams as today's high school graduates crowd their doors to grasp the opportunity of their lifetime. The pity of it is that their ability to see the present opportunities is almost as limited as their ability to see the future needs, and there seems to be no way for those who could tell them to sell them.

Right here in Mount Olive there are any number of high school graduates who have stopped their formal education with high school in the past two or three years. And yet, right here in Mount Olive is an excellent junior college, with the highest possible academic offering, and, best of all, scholarship help available to anyone who really wants to acquire an education.

Dr. Burkette Raper, president, made a statement the other day which coming from someone who didn't know what he was talking about, would have seemed foolish. From the president of our college, it was startling. Said he: "Any high school graduate in the Mount Olive area with character, determination and desire can acquire a college education."

Then he went on to point out that right here in Mount Olive the college has financial aid programs which can be arranged to suit the needs of any high school graduate wanting to enter college. In some instances not one cent of cash is required initially; in others, only a minimum amount is needed. But in each case, the college is able, and willing, to work out with the student the required financial program to insure higher education.

The only requirements are a high school diploma, ability to learn and a desire.

With such a broad program of financial assistance it would seem that young people would be crowding the registrar's office overflowing, and could we but picture them the tragic deficiency in their lives a decade or two from now if they miss this opportunity, certainly they would flood the college.

But, unlike many opportunities that come in life, it's still not too late for this spring's crop of graduates. There's still time to register for this fall's classes at Mount Olive College. No job, no personal planning, no temporary obstacle is so important enough to be allowed to interfere with these young persons' education. Parents and friends should see to it that they do.

But time is growing short, as it always does when opportunity knocks. A simple phone call to the college, a visit with the registrar, just enough interest to explore the possibilities may mean the difference between a college education and attendant benefits, or a life always struggling to make up the difference, or continuing to slip into the ever-increasing slack.

We know whereof we speak. Therefore, we dare any high school graduate in the Mount Olive area who thinks he or she cannot go to college to check out the possibility of entering Mount Olive Junior College. But, for your own future sake, hurry! Do it today—for this time. Next fall, with the intervening days and events, usually proves too late!

Note: Registration will remain open through September 20.

THE MAIL BOX

CHURCH SEEKING PASTOR

"We, the St. Paul Free Will Baptist Church, Elizabeth City, North Carolina, at the present time are without a pastor. We are one interested in our church please contact us and get in touch with us as soon as possible."—Mrs. Archie Russell, Clerk, Maple Street, Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

"Will you please express my appreciation and thanks through The Free Will Baptist for the many birthday cards and gifts received on my recent birthday from the women's auxiliaries and others. It is so nice when you grow old to have your friends think of you. May the good Lord bless all you and thanks again."—T. F. Crenport, Creswell, North Carolina.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

What Is Real Religion?

(Lesson for September 25)

Lesson: Micah 6:1-8.

Golden Text: Micah 6:8.

INTRODUCTION

Religion is a most general term. When we think of the word, religion, we should remember that it includes more than Christianity; for Christianity is one of the many or eleven living religions of the world. Hinduism is a religion. Another is Shintoism. Christianity, however, is the only true religion. In a Christian country, we are careful in using the word, religion, in reference to one's faith; for that is what is usually understood. We must, at the same time, remember that one may be religious without possessing Christianity.

Men can never come to know God as long as they seek to approach Him the wrong way. Both Israel and Judah had to do this. They had even offered sacrifices when they did not really love Him. In fact, all of the lessons in this quarter prove the folly of both religions in seeking to please God when really they did not love Him.

There is no other lesson would be more appropriate to conclude this quarter's study of the subject, "What Is Real Religion?" Bible Student (F. W. B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

Micah 6:1: Micah had prophesied various promises of the coming Messiah in His Kingdom. Now he appealed to Israel to testify before all the earth if God had done anything to them but kindness.

Vs. 2: Think of the condescension of God, who, though Creator of all the universe, yet wished to prove to these lowly human beings that His dealings have always been fair and just. Just think of that!

Vs. 3: Can anyone ever say that God has been unreasonable? In spite of all the idolatries and rebellions, the Lord called them His people.

Vs. 4: They were well acquainted with His history. They knew of the slavery in Egypt, the exodus, the Red Sea experience, Sinai, and the wilderness wanderings. They knew of Moses, Aaron and Miriam, and how God had cared for them all. He did not fail them nor forsake them. He does not fail nor forsake us. His goodness faileth never.—The Standard Commentary.

5. Our lesson today builds up to, and climaxes with, one of the greatest passages in the Bible. This passage has been selected as our memory selection for today. Everyone will do well to commit this great passage to memory.

6. As we study this wonderful verse, let us remember that it was given to God's people. Sometimes a sinner who has never been saved will point to this verse or perhaps to the Golden Rule in the New Testament and say, "That is my religion." But let us not forget that this verse was given to God's people. Neither it nor the Golden Rule were intended as a substitute for the new birth. In fact, there is no substitute for regeneration. These are good rules of conduct for the Christian, but they can never work the forgiveness of man's sins. Only the blood of Christ can do that.

7. After reading the comments on "God's Answer," take time to study the comments on "Man's Question" again, and very thoroughly, in our Advanced Quarterly.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Micah makes use of the law court language, Arise my people and plead your case. The setting is like a courtroom; the Lord is the plaintiff bringing suit against His people, the defendant. The jury is made up of all nature and the universe, as well as the testimony of Israel's predecessors and their experience with the Lord, such as Moses, Aaron and Miriam, along with God's many acts of miraculous deliverance of His people in history. Micah is the attorney for the Lord, speaking on the Lord's behalf.

2. Perhaps God was never subjected to greater agony of soul than when He of necessity had to bring suit against the little nation He had loved for so many years. Being called upon to contend with God is a terrible act in which to take part. The only hope in such a case rests in the fact that the plaintiff loves those brought into trial.

3. When God renders judgment against a man or nation He acts upon exact infor- mation and infinite mercy. Nothing can be said to defend a sinner that our heavenly Father is not already aware of. He knows all the facts before the trial begins and has taken them into full account before bringing any indictment. He surely knows the truth, but He is full of mercy.—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

4. Illustrations: Said Billy Graham: "The western world is standing at the crossroads. Never was the picture darker! Never was the need of divine intervention so desperately needed. I believe God is giving the nations an opportunity to repent. The answer for the nation is an old-fashioned, Holy Ghost revival in which God will speak once again as by fire!"

Said Roger Babson, renowned statistician: "People generally are realizing that without a spiritual awakening no peace plans or other plans will be much good. Nations cannot be depended upon to cooperate and stick to their agreements unless they recognize God as their real ruler and guide!"

5. Illustration: The captain of a ship crossing the Atlantic said to a minister aboard, "We have just crossed over the place where the Titanic, the alleged unsinkable ship, went down!" Later the minister said, "I thought of all the wreckage beyond the power of man to recover and redeem. I thought of the great bed of the deep sea, with its held treasure, too far down for man to reach and restore. Too far down! And then I thought of all the human wreckage engulfed and sunk in the depths of nameless sin. Too far down! For what? Not too far down for the love of God!"

How immeasurable are the breadth, length, depth and height of God's love! Nothing can separate God's children from His love (cf. Roman 8:35-39).—The Bible Expositor.

6. A person doesn't deserve to be called a Bible student if he, or she, is not familiar with Deuteronomy 28. Just stop at Verse 13 for a moment.

There would never have been such powerful Gentile nations as Assyria, Babylon, Greece and Rome had Israel heeded Deuteronomy 28.

THE BIBLE: EFFECTIVE PROOF

One day a sceptic asked a highly educated and cultured Christian woman how she could prove that the Bible was the Word of God, and she said to him, "How can you prove there is a sun in the sky?" "Why," he replied, "because it warms me and I can see its light."

"And so it is with me," she said, "the proof of the Bible being the Word of God is that it warms my soul and gives it light."—Selected.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page thirteen)

The organization of the church resulted from a recent revival in which many souls
The Rev. J. Henry Van Kluyve has been called as pastor of Calvary Church. members are anticipating a great harvest of souls and blessed fellowship as they gather together for the glory of God. They request that you remember them in prayers.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER JOSEPH SAULS

Elder Joseph Sauls, the subject of this memoir, was born in Wayne County North Carolina, August 24, 1817. He had early impressions, by the Spirit of God operating upon his heart, showing him the evils of sin and the duty he owed God. He first united with the Methodist church, but afterwards hearing the doctrine of the Free Will Baptists, he embraced it as the true doctrine of the gospel, and became a devoted advocate and defender of the same. He was called to ordination by the church at Watery Branch, Wayne County, in the year, 1852. Elder Sauls was a faithful minister of the Lord Jesus Christ. The doctrine of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, repentance towards God, and full obedience to the commandments as found in the New Testament, he ever urged as necessary to the salvation of the soul.

Elder Sauls raised up several churches, which were in a flourishing condition at the time of his death. He was pastor of a number of churches, which he invariably ruled well. As a member of the Original Free Will Baptist Conference of North Carolina, he stood very high. As a citizen and a neighbor he was faultless.

He preached his last sermon at Union Grove, Wayne County, the twenty-third of September, 1872; he returned home, and was taken sick, and the sixth of October, 1872, his spirit returned to God. His last words were to some sisters that had called to see him, "Sisters, let's go"; to which one of them replied, "Go where, Elder Sauls?" His answer was, "To heaven." Thus died the good man, with heaven in his view, and angels waiting to take him home.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

For your Christmas greetings this year, we are offering three series of the "Sunshine Line." All three series come in assorted cards, designed exclusively for you who love Christmas and understand its true meaning.

GLAD TIDINGS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards with Scripture Texts

BLESSED CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards, Also with Scripture Texts

LUSTROUS CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

18 PhotoColor Cards with Scripture Texts

RETAIL, PER BOX

$1.00

Special Rates to Auxiliaries and Other Church Groups for Resale

(When ordered in lots of ten or more boxes, sixty cents per box.)

ORDER FROM

FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. BOX 158

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA

the
DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
SEP 21 1960
DUKE

DS /

Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1960

THE ROAD NOT TAKEN

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

—Robert Frost.

Miles Apart - - - in the Same Home

by Martin P. Simon
Editor, "The Christian Parent" and
"My Chum"

"WHEN I'm big, I'll find me a hide-out in the mountains and rob the guys," said Jim.

Before his shocked mother could answer, another Bill did. "Not me, I'm going to be a medical missionary in Africa."

The next day their mother was telling her neighbor about it.

"Can you imagine that?" she exclaimed. "The same home and with the same things!"

What was it the same home and the same things?

Jim read comic books about the Mountain Ridge bandits, and just now they were heroes.

Bill loved the books in the Jungle Doctor series, which show the blessing a Christian doctor brought to the natives in Africa.

"The same home"—Jim on the sofa, Bill in the chair, yet they were in two different worlds with their books and their things. They were 5,000 miles apart, with different heroes, different ideals, growing into different personalities.

Does it make a difference what children read? Indeed it does! Even one book or one issue of a magazine can change a life. Multiply that by all the hours people spend reading, and you have a tremendous influence.

Good reading costs money, but so do oranges, orange juice, homes, cars, television. Good reading is no side issue, unless a person's thinking is a side issue.

We must learn to put out good money for Christian reading, just as we do for clothes and food. A family budget starts with fifty cents a week for Christian reading is a conservative minimum.

And there are ways of stretching that money.

You give your children gifts at birthday, Christmas and similar occasions. Why not include Christian reading? Let their uncles, grandmas and other relatives know that Christian books and Christian magazines are welcome. Mention books and magazines as your favorites, too.

Children need Christian reading now. Their characters are forming now. Ten years later will be too late.

Parents need Christian reading, too. They especially need advice on how to set up effective Christ-centered homes. They need spiritual help, information about their own church groups, Bible study and Christian news.

Christian reading can save the unsaved—it often has.

Church members need Christian reading to encourage them in the work of Christ. Thousands of Christians have become interested in missionary work by reading about the work of missionaries, and this interest in missions has in turn drawn them closer to Christ.

Christian reading material—and time for Christian reading—should be major considerations in every home. We ought to watch the balance between such reading and television viewing. Certainly, if more time is spent for seeing secular television programs than for Christian television and Christian reading together, something is badly wrong.

You are what you eat. You enjoyed that hamburger, but at the same time eating it did something to you—it grew a part of a tooth or a muscle of your left leg or a hair on your eyebrow, or just helped replace worn-out cells throughout your body. It became part of you, even though you ate it because you were hungry, without thinking what it would do once it entered your body.

So it is with Christian reading. Once it enters your mind it will become part of you.

You can easily see, then, how it is important for children especially to have much good reading and not the trash of the drugstore pulps and comics. Take one further step and become aware that good reading is likewise important to you.

The wise parent will not hesitate to spend for Christian reading for his home. He knows that it is an important investment—as important as his family and their future usefulness for Christ.

(Editor's Note: This article is printed in the interest of Protestant Press Month, October, 1960.)

THE MAIL BOX

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

"Will you please announce in The Free Will Baptist my change of address. My former address was Sea Level, North Carolina. My new address is 649 Marine Boulevard., Jacksonville, North Carolina."—Rev. J. E. Floyd.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

"My address is no longer 401 E. Lenoir Avenue, Kinston, North Carolina, but 2200 Bridges Street, Morehead City, North Carolina."—Rev. J. B. Starnes.

One good thing can be said of Rip Van Winkle. He finally woke up.—Selected.

Some young men who leave home to set the world on fire have to come back for more matches.—Selected.

Who Are Delinquent Adolescents?

What Factors Lead To Their Delinquent Behavior?

THERE are many very young children who are led into delinquent behavior, and often this delinquent behavior carries over into early adulthood; but on the whole, the delinquent adolescent is thought to be any boy under eighteen years of age and any girl under eighteen years of age who engage in delinquent behavior. The delinquent child may commit some minor offense, or he may be a delinquent who commits more serious offenses.

Some of the following are the actions of the delinquent adolescent: The adolescent who violates a law, or municipal ordinance, or regulation of the state, or any subdivision; the youth who commits an act which, if committed by an adult, would be a crime not punishable by death or life imprisonment; an adolescent who is incorrigible, ungovernable or habitually disobedient and beyond the control of his parent, guardian or other custodian; the adolescent who is habitually truant, and who repeatedly deserts his home or place of abode without just cause and without consent of his parents is considered a delinquent. Often the delinquent will engage in an occupation which is in violation of the law, associate with immoral or vicious persons, frequent a place of which its existence is in violation of the law, or be found begging, receiving or gathering alms, whether actually begging or under pretext of selling or offering anything for sale.

Often one will find the delinquent patronizing or visiting any room where there is a bar where intoxicating liquors are sold and wandering about the streets of a city between ten o'clock at night and five o'clock in the morning, without being on any lawful business or occupation and unaccompanied by his parents. The delinquent may be found in or about railroad yards or tracts, jumping on or off trains, entering a car or engine without lawful authority.

by Mrs. Miriam Lamm

The delinquent almost always uses vile, obscene, vulgar or indecent language. He is often a user of intoxicating liquor as a beverage. He may use opium, cocaine, morphine or other similar drugs without the directions of a competent physician. Often he knowingly associates with thieves or other maliciously vicious persons. He is usually guilty of immoral or indecent conduct. He often departs himself so as to willfully injure or endanger the morals or health of himself or others.

The above has been a summary of some of the actions of the delinquent adolescent, but there are some other factors such as physical, mental and environment which may cause an adolescent to become delinquent. In many studies, it has been proven that there are about five times as many boys as girls who practice delinquent behavior. As a rule, boys are more daring than girls and they often start this delinquent behavior just to be accepted by a certain group or so the more timid boys will comment about them.

It has also been proved that the delinquent child has less verbal intelligence; he has less capacity to approach problems methodically and tends to express himself intellectually indirect. The delinquent child will favor an objective test over the essay type of test, because it does not take as much verbal intelligence. The economic status of the family is believed to be one factor, because more delinquents seem to come from the underprivileged neighborhood.

Often the delinquents are less healthy because of the low income of the father. They do not get the proper foods to eat. There is often less disharmony in the home. Their physique—the growth spurt occurs earlier. They are more extroverted, vivacious, impulsive, destructive and sadistic, aggressive and adventurous and less self-controlled. Usually they are more hostile, resentful, defiant and suspicious. Often their characteristics are due to the fact that they have not reached emotional maturity in their proper way.

Many of the delinquents have been less fearful of failure or defeat because they have learned early in life how it feels to fail in their school work. They have been used to stealing rides, hopping trucks, committing acts of destructive mischief, running away from home, because that is the only way they have been able to get any attention at home.

The family background of the adolescent has often been that of delinquent behavior. There are more emotional disturbances, mental retardation, alcoholism and criminality among the families of their parents. Often we find more physical ailments, previous history of delinquency in the parents, less ambition, less self-respect, less planning for the future and less ability to support the family, in the families of delinquent children.

If the child does not receive physiological satisfactions—companionship, love and affection, success, security and variety—these are the needs of everyone and which they seek from the home, the parents may expect to have delinquent children. Many children are denied the things other children receive as a matter of course, such as a bicycle, and these wants will either be endured or in some way they will try to overcome it in legitimate ways while other children will steal to satisfy these wants. If the parents are criminal, immoral, slovenly and dishonest in their stand-behavior, the child may well be the e, because the parents are the child's teachers whether they teach him right wrong. The wrong type of discipline the home may cause a child to think ing the lines of a delinquent, because of he will do almost anything to become of the type of discipline he receives at home.

There are many ways that the school help to prevent juvenile delinquency.
The school should give all the students a sense of security by causing them to believe that all will be treated justly. This can be if discipline is not too harsh, if the student feels that the teachers are his friends,
if the work is not beyond his capabilities,
if order and consistency characterize school regulations and patterns of activity. They should be able to receive companionship and affection from the teachers and other students. They need to be a part of a group where each can make a contribution, where each will be liked, and where each will receive some praise. He needs intimate relationships with whom he can talk over personal matters, walk to class, go to ball games, and one who will give him support in his adventures. The school or the teacher cannot provide these things for those who cannot provide them for themselves, but they can provide friendly adults who will give to each student kindly attention, interest and concern for his welfare. They should call upon all their ingenuity to provide various groupings and social occasions in which the less-liked adolescents may find a place.

These adolescents need a feeling of worth. We should not force him to years in school which are devoid of success, accomplishment and satisfaction with the time he is spending his time. If we do not, we surely hasten some young people to truancy and delinquency. We need to provide and pattern a high school which not only favor those of high IQs, but which will give the others a chance to succeed. The adolescent needs variety.
They have an abundance of energy and at the same time do not have deeply changed interests. They are not able to escape unchanging routine, dullness and common-place things, as well as an adult.
School should be exciting and interesting instead of dull and without appeal. Boredom in school might not be the only factor which leads a child to find excitement in harmful ways, but it surely helps.

The school should watch for early symptoms such as: Unsuccessfulness in academic work, little academic aptitude, repeatment of several grades, transfers frequently from school to school, dislikes school intensely, wants to leave school as soon as the law allows, plays truant, belongs to some unrecognized or unsupervised recreational or comes from a broken home, the mother is employed, lives in a family where conflicts abound, lives in a poverty-stricken or marginal home, lives in overcrowded conditions, changes residence frequently and feels rejected at home, school and in neighborhood which may lead to delinquency.

The teacher should strive to help these children. She may talk with them privately about the nonintimate affairs of their life, but she should do it in a spirit of genuine interest in these young people's welfare.
She should provide a variety in the class activities. She should put the class on such a basis that every student has a chance to make friends through work associations.
She should allow each student to have the opportunity to make some real contributions to the class and win the respect of others for some of his achievements. She should help the community to develop through its own resources a program which will promote the welfare of its children and help to provide a recreational program for children outside of school hours.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mr. Thurman Crawford

Whereas, our loving heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call from earth our brother, Thurman Crawford, the members of Pincy Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Pitt County, North Carolina, be it resolved:

First, that we humbly submit to the will of our heavenly Father;

Second, we extend our deepest sympathy to his family and trust they will turn to God and the church for consolation; and

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be recorded in our church records, a copy sent to his family, and a copy sent to The Free Will Baptist for publication.

Mrs. W. E. Brister
Chairman of Committee

Mrs. J. H. K. Jones

Mattie Lou Bryan was born June 30, 1882, in Marion County, Georgia. She died in Tifton, Georgia, Hospital, August 20, 1960. Nearly 55 years ago she was married to Mr. Jones, who survives with seven daughters, one son, twenty-three grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Her funeral was held in Omega Baptist Church with the Reverends Parrish and Bodenhawes officiating. The Biblical standard for womanly excellence, Proverbs 31, was used, also Psalm 23.

Mrs. Jones was a faithful member of St. Paul's Free Will Baptist Church which she loved. Her church, family and neighbors filled her life. She was gentle, kind, humble and loving with a high regard for right. Her life was an example and an inspiration to all. A mixed choir softly sang "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be," entirely fitting for this truly beloved Christian who was one of God's noblewomen. Her reward—the Saviour's presence.

A tribute by a neighbor,
Elizabeth M. Bryan

Jesse Micah Swain

On Wednesday afternoon, August 17, 1960, about 2:30, God visited our home and took our baby to be with Him. He was six years, eleven months and nine days old, but he was our baby. He was so sweet. Even though he was still young, he has been a blessed influence to all of us. Though he has gone away, he will live always in the hearts and minds of those who knew and loved him as he took his place in church with the other children.

He had attended Bible school at Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church, Columbia, North Carolina, where his parents, two sisters and one brother are members. He had been to Bible school that morning, and was struck by a car while walking on the highway that afternoon. He was killed almost instantly as he died before reaching a doctor.

It is lonely without him, but now we look forward to heaven even more than before when we shall see little Jesse again in the sweet by and by.

Written by his mother,
Mrs. J. R. Swain

Resolution of Respect

With feelings of deepest regret, the Woman's Auxiliary of the Free Will Baptist Church of Pine Level, North Carolina, must record the passing of one of our most distinguished, and faithful members, our beloved Mrs. Flora P. Ray, who passed away on February 6, 1960.

Because we realize to the fullest extent, the benefit which our auxiliary and community have derived from the efforts of this public-spirited Christian woman, and because of the warm personal feelings inspired in our hearts by her kindly unselfish life: First,

Resolved: That we inscribe upon our records this tribute memory; that further

(continued on page seven)

NEWS NOTES

Bridgeton Church to Observe Home-Coming

Rev. John Grimsley

The Bridgeton, North Carolina, Will Baptist Church will observe its annual home-coming Sunday, October 2, the Rev. John Grimsley delivering the home-coming message. All former pastors, former members and friends are invited to attend this service.

Also on Sunday evening, October 2, Grimsley will begin a series of revival services in the Bridgeton Church. Services will begin each evening at 7:30. The pastor, the Rev. J. C. Griffin, states: "There will be special music each evening by a different singer. We have the promise of the Prescott Male Quartet for part of the time. Others will be announced later."

Home-Coming and Revival at Piney Grove Church

Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Beaufort County, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming Sunday, September 25, at 11:00 a. m. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour. All former pastors, former members and friends are urged to attend and enjoy the fellowship together.

Sunday evening, September 25, revival services will begin and continue through Saturday evening, October 1, with the Rev. L. B. Manning as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:45. The pastor, the Rev. Willis Wilson, invites all to attend.

(continued on page ten)

Coming Events

September 22—Eastern Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Mount Olive Conference, Mount Olive, North Carolina

Carteret County Youth Camp Conducted on Bogue Sound

The Carteret County Free Will Baptist Youth Camp, conducted at the Presbyterian Camp on Bogue Sound, North Carolina, closed a one-week session August 14. The camp was organized two years ago, and is sponsored by the Free Will Baptist League Convention, the Carteret County Sunday School Convention and the County Youth Rally.

Last year was the first time the camp met with an enrollment of 64. This year there were 54 in attendance, ages ranging from 9 through 17. Camp director for both sessions was the Rev. Seldon Bullard, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Morehead City, North Carolina.

Bible instructions were given by the Rev. Henry Van Kluyve of Portsmouth, Virginia; the Rev. Gordon Sebastian of Stacy, North Carolina; and the Rev. Randy Cox of Beaufort, North Carolina. Devotions were conducted at 11:00 a. m. each day by Mr. Ronald Howland, and Mr. J. W. Long preached at the evening and Sunday morning services; both are students at Free Will Baptist College, Nashville, Tennessee.

In charge of the kitchen was Mrs. Myrtle Pittman, and a number of other ladies from the churches of the county helped her.

F. W. B. Church of Richmond To Observe Home-Coming

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Richmond, Virginia, will observe its annual home-coming on the first Sunday of October. The program will begin with Sunday school at 9:45. The message will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Hales, who is the founder of the church. A picnic lunch will be spread on the church grounds at the noon hour. Special music will be a feature of the service, including groups from the Fairmount Park Church in Norfolk, Virginia, which had a part in the organization of the church eight years ago.

The pastor and the church extends a cordial invitation to all former pastors, members and friends.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

crowds; more than any other place. It looked to us like a sea of faces. What faithfulness was manifested on the part of our believers in coming day after day! The gospel has a new meaning to a class of people who otherwise might never have attended the local church there. I have been amazed at the interest of the better class of people, hitherto indifferent, who are now concerned about the future, asking about the coming of the Lord and the related signs from the Bible. There is a growing interest and a greater sale of Bibles than ever before.

Please do not fail to pray earnestly for us in these trying times. Our church is growing as never before, and we do not, in any way, want the devil to hinder our own vision by the presence of political conditions about us.

This beautiful island is very dear to us, and the wonderful Cuban Christians who dwell within, and the thing that is pressing foremost in our minds now is the continual uncertainty as to how long our present welcome will be extended here.

One thing that gives us great satisfaction is knowing that the Free Will Baptist Church of Cuba is a strong, aggressive and wise group of nationals; loyal to God and to us. The present crisis might be the very thing that shall move the church from softness, and prove who are the true shepherds, and who are the hirelings.

We are very thankful to be able to report to you that we are enjoying the fullest of liberty, avoiding all political statements, and preaching the gospel, which is the only hope of all men everywhere.

OBITUARIES

(continued from page five)

generations may know, and appreciate her splendid traits of character. The contribution she made to the church, Sunday school, midweek prayer service and the auxiliary will be remembered for years to come.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the family of our deceased co-worker, also a copy to the Free Will Baptist Press, a copy be recorded in the records of the local auxiliary minutes, together with the assurance of our sincerest sympathy.

May these words of appreciation and high regard be a solace in the years to come.

Resolutions Committee,
Mrs. Ida O. Styron, Chairman
Mrs. Ola S. Denning
Mrs. Paul Edwards
Mrs. Leon Godwin, President

Evangelistic Efforts In Cuba

Rev. Thomas H. Willey

The months of June and July were very busy, representing unlimited hours of evangelistic tent campaigns. We can thank God from the depths of our hearts for our equipment and talent is and was credit to the gospel.

Our evangelist, the Rev. Zeral Brown of Raton, Florida, with his musical family were greatly used of the Lord to win hearts of the Cubans. He served as a missionary in the Dominican Republic for years, and speaks perfect Spanish. One would go far to find a more sacrificial man in a family. Few would care to suffer the inconveniences of our Cuban people, eating what they eat and doing it with great faithfulness, etc.

The first tent meeting was in the town of Canasi, in the Matanzas province, with a three-day campaign, but brought a result ten conversions. Here we had great joy of dedicating a lovely chapel, entirely with Cuban money. In this town we have a very solid group of second generation Christians.

The next meeting was in Guines, a week's campaign, with excellent attendance. The tent, which holds about five hundred, was packed night after night. This was in spite of continuous rain every day. There were about thirty-five or more who gave testimony during this meeting. As a result, the church has taken on new life. Plans are now being made to buy a lot for a church building, and our pastor is greatly encouraged in this place.

The tent was moved from there and set up down here in this province in the town of San Juan and Martinez. Here we had great crowds, and in a very faithful group of believers backed the meeting with their prayers and presence. There were some conversions, and the gospel was preached with great power. Men and women were warned of the things about to come upon the earth. Thank God for our faithful brother who preached, exposing sin and holding up a Christ mighty to save, so that this town is without excuse.

The next meeting was in Las Martinas, which is in the very extreme part of our field here in Pinar. There were great

Quartet from Free Will Baptist Church in Pinar del Rio, Singing at Tent Meeting

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Please explain, "Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?" (1 Corinthians 15:29). The part that bothers me is being baptized for the dead. A Mormon friend thinks that one now living may be baptized for an unsaved loved one that is already dead.—J. Carter, Illinois.

Answer: There is not any question but that this passage of Scripture has been often misinterpreted and the Mormons are one of the groups that generally misinterpret it. Their false doctrine rests upon this as a Scriptural foundation. They erroneously claim baptism is absolutely essential to salvation; and that if a person were to die without being immersed into water that a friend or loved one here upon earth might be baptized as his proxy, the credit for such an act being imputed to the dead person for whom the friend was baptized. This is how they interpret the phrase, baptized for the dead.

Of course, there is no Scripture anywhere in the whole Bible to support such a teaching, neither in 1 Corinthians nor anywhere else.

In the fifteenth chapter of 1 Corinthians, Paul's argument all the way through is that Christ is risen from the dead and that since He has arisen and now lives, all of us shall live in resurrection splendor. Christ's resurrection is the one sure foundation stone of Christianity. Without this our faith should be vain and we would be in our sins. It was in and through Christ's resurrection that God demonstrated the adequacy and the efficiency of the redemption price our blessed Lord Jesus Christ paid when He suffered, bled and died on the cruel tree.

Through baptism by immersion into water, we who are Christians have pictured the glorious reality of our association with Christ our Saviour in His death and resurrection. But if Christ has not been raised from the dead as evidently and then claimed by some enemies of the Cross, then Paul asks, ". . . what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?" (1 Corinthians 15:29). In other words, if Christ be not risen from the dead, then we have been baptized unto a dead man, and what good could there be in such an act. If Christ is still a dead man as His enemies claimed, no baptism because of Him would be of any significance whatsoever. It is true that baptism speaks of death, but it also symbolized a resurrection unto life and therefore out of that death. If Christ has not been raised from the dead then that ordinance which the church from its very beginning practiced is worthless and symbolizes falsehood. Yes, my friend, if Christ did not arise as Scripture proudly declares, the ordinance loses all the significance we or those of any day have placed in it. Were this true, we should have been baptized (unto) the dead (or a dead man) which would be meaningless to all baptized. "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead" (1 Corinthians 15:20, 21). The whole context of 1 Corinthians 15 indicates that this is Paul's argument. We were baptized because He died and also because He arose; now we await for Him to come and until then we obey His orders, knowing that at that time the renewed glorified body furnished us by Him will in every way identify us as His. All of us are not going to sleep (die); but whether we ourselves do die or not, He is coming to give us that new body like His that is symbolized in baptism.

Question: Does the Bible teach any single, particular mode of baptism as being correct?—R. T. M., Arkansas.

Answer: Yes, I think so. According to Romans 6:4, I get the idea that water baptism is a symbol which identifies those baptized with Christ in both His death and His resurrection. "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:4). In submitting to baptism by immersion the candidate proclaims his faith in the death, burial and resurrection of Christ as the means by which he has been saved. "Now when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, in the feast day, many believed in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did" (John 2:23). John evidently immersed his subjects; otherwise, there would have been no need to resort to an area where an abundance of water was to be found. Some scholars say that the terms John was baptizing, dip, die, and plunge were by far the most common uses of the Greek word in the above passage that our English version is translated baptize.

"And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him" (Acts 8:36-38). The above is another passage that suggests both the presence of much water and perhaps more definitely the mode by which the candidate was baptized. Note here that this Ethiopian had to believe before Philip would consent to baptize him. He had the right belief regarding Jesus, so according to John 3:36 he was saved before his baptism. "Thou shalt go down into the water, the Ethiopian shall be baptized and they come up out of it something that might not be required in pouring or sprinkling. If one should use as little water as I saw being used in a so-called baptismal service in a church here in Nashville, a quart would suffice probably at the sand baptisms; but this in my mind comes far short of what is to be clearly seen in the New Testament examples such as that above and that of Christ's own baptism. "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him" (Matthew 3:16); "And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him" (Mark 1:10). Both Mark and Matthew tell of Jesus coming up out of the water after His baptism, so without doubt this was the mode of His baptism. Following Christ as the converts were exhorted to do, one, it would seem to me, would feel that immersion is the favorable mode. I could not be satisfied in accepting any other form. In fact, I should feel that it would be a sin for me to submit to either pouring or sprinkling in the water. I have witnessed some as being initiated into a church. How one can see death, burial and resurrection symbolized in such a performance, I am unable to see. How any preacher can style himself as declaring the whole council of God when he reads the Bible and accept such a substitute for water baptism is far beyond my comprehension.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

DEATH SIN'S WAGES

For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

My subject indicates, I will deal with this only with the first part of this text. Next week I will use the last part, the subject being, Eternal Life, God's Gift. I am doing this because the text divides it into two parts, and affirms two definitions.

The first one is, Death Is the Wages of

We find in James 1:15, "Then when death conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and when it is finished, bringeth forth death." The meaning is, that death is the result of sin; and though, in the text, natural death is specially referred to by implication, yet it is true that death, in its broad sense, results from sin, as we point out:

Natural death is the consequence of sin. Sin entered into the world, and death came, and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned (Romans 3:23). Sin made an entrance—opened the door, and death followed. If Jesus carries all men, he die; the old, the young, the rich, the poor, the honorable and the despised.

Spiritual death is the result of sin. This form of death consists in an interruption or a breaking up of fellowship between the body and the soul. What else but sin can do this? Fallen angels, apostate Christians and the unregenerate are the subjects of this death. Nothing in the universe but sin could have sundered the bonds of union between them and their Creator. "Dead in trespasses and sins," is a powerful language which the Scriptures apply to the impenitent and the unbelieving.

Eternal death is the effect of sin. The text asserts. "The wages of sin is death." Death is here contrasted with life, and as the life is eternal, the death must be eternal also. But some ask, "What is eternal death?" At least part of the answer is to be found in the following quotation. "It is an interminable protraction of death spiritual. It is a stream flowing from the bitter fountain of sin, and rolling its blighting current everlastingly along. It is the expulsion of hope from the immortal spirit, and the substitution of despair in its stead. It is the worm that dies not, and the fire which is never quenched. It consists in an eternal deprivation of heaven, and in an eternal endurance of the misery of hell. But I cannot describe eternal death. It is a phrase of inexhaustible meaning. Eternity alone can develop its terrible signification. This death is the wages of sin. It is the reward the impenitent receive for living in sin."

How fearful will be the guilt and condemnation of those who refuse to accept

Christ as Saviour, or those who turn back into sin and disobey the gospel of Jesus Christ? They, in making their way to hell, pass by Calvary, and justly deserve the fiercest wrath of God. Truly the wages of such sin as they commit in rejecting or dishonoring Christ will comprehend everything that is terrible in eternal death.

From this subject I hope we have learned the awfulness of sin, and what awful results flow from it! And that its consequences are eternal, exhibited in the awful miseries of everlasting death.

"Cast away from all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit; for why will ye die, . . .?" (Ezekiel 18:31).

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

OLD TIME RELIGION

(Psalm 143:5)

Introduction: It is natural to think over the past, "the good old days," as we often hear people say. We have all the modern gadgets that science can offer but do we have any of the old time religion delivered to us by the early fathers? The kind of old time religion that I mean had:

I. POWER (Acts 1:8; Romans 1:16)

1. There was power to strengthen the faint (Isaiah 40:29).
2. There was power to tread on serpents (Luke 10:19).
3. There was power to deliver from darkness (Colossians 1:13).

II. PURITY (Matthew 5:8)

1. There was purity of conscience (1 Timothy 3:8, 9).
2. There was purity of mind (2 Peter 3:1).
3. There was purity of heart (1 Peter 1:22).

III. PENETRATION (Acts 7:54)

1. There was penetration by the Spirit (Zechariah 4:6).
2. There was penetration by the Word (Jeremiah 20:9).
3. There was penetration by the Son (Luke 24:32).

IV. PROMISE (Galatians 4:28)

1. There was the promise of the Comforter (John 14:16).
2. There was the promise of salvation (1 Thessalonians 5:8).
3. There was the promise of eternal life (John 10:28).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page six)

Rev. Wingate Hansley Called To Pastorate of Johnson's Union

The Rev. Wingate Hansley has been called to the pastorate of Johnson's Union Free Will Baptist Church located four miles west of Smithfield, North Carolina, on the Raleigh road. The Rev. Frank Davenport, former pastor, resigned to accept the pastorate of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Goldsboro, North Carolina.

Under the leadership of Mr. Davenport three successful revivals were held by the pastor, the Rev. Bobby Jackson and the Rev. Jack Paramore. Forty new members were added to the church during the year, a new parsonage has been erected, and the church has begun a full-time ministry.

Wednesday night services are designated as missions nights. Since last December, Wednesday night offerings have amounted to $425 given to missions above the amount set forth in the budget.

The church requests your prayers for the former pastor as he goes forth to labor in other fields, and desire the prayers of everyone for the future progress of the work at Johnson's Union.

Everett's Chapel Church to Observe Annual Home-Coming

The Everett's Chapel Free Will Baptist

Church of Clayton, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on Sunday, September 25. Services will be with Sunday school at 9:45, worship services at 11:00, followed with a picnic luncheon at the noon hour. The Rev. W. L. P. Thresh will be guest speaker.

The pastor, the Rev. Billy R. Yawn, invites all former pastors, all friends and especially all singers to come and enjoin the fellowship together.

N. C. State Convention Elects Officers

The North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, meeting in its regular annual session at Elm Grove Church, Ayden, September 15, 1960, elected the following officers: moderator, the Rev. A. Smith; assistant moderator, the Rev. C. L. Patrick; secretary, The Rev. Michael Pelt; assistant secretary, James Hunt; treasurer, Rom Mallard; Oscar Webster, Rev. Clarence Bowen and the Rev. Walter Carter, members of the executive committee.

Those elected on the various boards: those elected as representatives were as follows: Board of Trustees, the Rev. Albert Coates; Children's Home board, C. Boyette, Robert Spencer and Warren Jackson; Board of Superannuation, the Rev. Walter Reynolds; Board of Missions, Rev. Rashie Kennedy; Board of Christian Education, the Rev. Leonard Wood; Cragmont representative, Fountain Taylor; Free Will Baptist Press representative, The Rev. S. A. Smith; Church Finance representative, J. D. Ballance; Historical Commission, the Rev. J. C. Griffin; Mebane Olive Junior College board, the Rev. J. Fort, J. W. Batten and Jack Dale.

V. PASSION (Acts 1:3)

1. There was a passion for preaching God's Word (Acts 4:8-13).
2. There was a passion for holy living (Romans 12:1).
3. There was a passion for winning men (Matthew 23:37).

VI. PARDON (Isaiah 55:7)

1. There was pardon for the lost (Matthew 11:28-30).
2. There was pardon for the backslider (2 Chronicles 7:14).
3. There was pardon (and is) for all who would believe (John 3:16; Revelation 22:17).

THE HEAVENWARD PULL

"Would you like to shake hands with a converted drunkard?" asked a man as he approached a minister. "I surely would," said the minister. Then he continued, "No man goes to hell because he drinks. He goes because he rejects Christ, but when Christ comes in, drink goes out, as you can testify!" "Yes, that's right," said the man glowingly. "But now listen to my story: Satan had me bound so fast that there was no human hope of my escaping from his hold. Then, one night, I staggered into the filthy hovel where my drinking and squandering my wages had driven my family. My little boy was critically ill. How I loved that little fellow! How he loved me in spite of my failure to be a real dad to him! Feebly he motioned to me to come to his bed. Grasping my hand in his little frail hand, he said, 'Daddy, I won't let your hand go until you promise to meet me in heaven!' As he breathed his last he still held my hand tightly! I promised my boy and God that I would meet him in heaven! I asked Christ to come into my heart and make a new man of me. He did! Now when I am tempted to do wrong, I can feel the upward pull of my little boy's hand!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

Washington-Plymouth Youth Rally To Meet at Plymouth Church

The Washington-Plymouth Youth Christ Rally will meet with the Free Will Baptist Church of Plymouth, North Carolina, on Saturday, September 24, at 7 p. m. The speaker for this service will be the Rev. Bobby Aycock, the former pastor of the church who is a missionary candidate to South America.

There are approximately 10 churches which make up this rally. The Rev. David Gaskins is head of the program planning.

Sidney Church to Observe Annual Home-Coming

The annual home-coming of the Sidney Free Will Baptist Church, Belhaven, North Carolina, will be observed on Sunday, September 25, with the Rev. Bobby Aycock as the guest speaker. Services begin with the morning worship at 10 a. m. Special music will be rendered by Mrs. Joyce Roper. At 12:00 noon there will be a luncheon.

(continued on page sixteen)

NOTES

A N
D

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

OUR PLACE AS A CHRISTIAN

I have recently received a letter from young brother and minister, the Rev. Jerry Rowe, who is seeking an education which to better prepare himself for the work of the Master in the preaching of the gospel of Christ. Brother Jerry is from one of our churches in Beaufort County, North Carolina; one that has been interested in Christian education for a long time. It was from this church that Brother I. C. Prescott, of precious memory to this writer and many others, entered the ministry and attended the Free Will Baptist Seminary at Ayden, North Carolina, in the days of that institution. So when White Hill Church another man by the name of Jerry Rowe has come forth and said, "I am seeking the will of God in my life."

WAKES WELL OF MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE

When I entered Mount Olive College as seeking God's will in my life; I am seeking." May I say to Brother Jerry and to all other young men who desire to better qualify themselves as servants of the Lord, that the Master said, "Seek and ye shall find." The man that will not seek for knowledge will never get very high in the esteem of his Lord nor his fellow man. The greatest need, as this writer sees the need of this world, is knowledge gained by seeking the will of God. We are glad to hear this young man say, "I am seeking the will of God for my life."

Further speaking, our young brother Jerry says, "The work here (Mount Olive Junior College) has provided a deeper experience of a life based and rooted in love for the Lord and of my fellow man. The Free Will Baptist church which is housed in this college has also given me many deep experiences. The thoughts are always deep and heart-searching and has drawn me closer to God and my fellow Christians." This testimony should make every sound Free Will Baptist praise God for a college that draws young Christians closer to God and draws new Christians. Again we say that we praise God for young men who are seeking knowledge from God and endeavoring to extend their knowledge to the glory of God. Should any church or people need service for their church, I can recommend the Rev. Jerry Rowe, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina.

EXCERPTS FROM A LETTER FROM GEORGE BRANNING

Sometime in July, I received a letter from the Rev. George Branning of Greensboro, North Carolina. George is a graduate of the Free Will Baptist Bible College, and has been closely tied to my interest since I first met him at Jacksonville Free Will Baptist Church before he even was married or went off to college. George said in part, "I read with enjoyment and encouragement your Notes and Quotes in this week's Free Will Baptist." George was referring to an issue of July in which I expressed my feelings in regards to being saved today, lost tomorrow, and then saved again. In that issue I told of seeing a lady in the hospital, with whom I was trying to get her to see the light, and I said, "Are you saved?" She said, "No, I have been saved twice, but I am not saved now." Now George says, "I especially liked what you said about repeated regeneration. I have met Free Will Baptist preachers who seem to hold this view."

May I say, as an old-fashioned Free Will Baptist by choice, note I said by choice, that we can be born of the flesh but once, and we can be born of the spirit but once. We can get physically ill and be very near death, seemingly, and get well. We can get mixed up in sin and fall short of the real life and fellowship of our Lord, repent, confessing our sins, and be healed and made to have fellowship with our Father. The Word says, "If we confess our sins, he (God) is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (I John 1:9). But this is not repeated regeneration; regeneration is for once.

Brother Branning goes further and okays our stand on eternal security: "Those of the eternal security camp are fond of using Romans 8:1 to prove their point: 'There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.' There is no condemnation as long as we walk after the Spirit." Yes, this is the condition, "As long as we walk after the Spirit we are in Christ and Christ is in us, but when we refuse to be led by the Spirit and jump over the line into false doctrine and sinful activities, we are condemned for our sins. Again we say by confession of our sins we are forgiven and made free from the guilt of that sin."

Brother George's letter is long, but I gather from what he says, that he is an Original Free Will Baptist. He states, "I would also like to tell you how much I enjoyed the spiritual feast at the ministers' conference during the Lord's Supper and the Feet Washing." This reference is to the annual observance of the Lord's Supper which took place at Cragmont the first week in June, this year. "It was a happy occasion when we all observed this feast. I received a blessing. Our regret is that so many of our ministers take no interest in this annual meeting. But we thank God that His promise was fulfilled and the Holy Spirit was there to bless our hearts."

We thank you George for your compliments. We can say with the psalmist, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in peace!" (Psalm 133:1).

BAPTISM WITH FEAR

In a recent news letter from our Foreign Mission Headquarters in Nashville, Tennessee, we note the following: "A baptismal service was held in a First Baptist church because the constant watch of civil and ecclesiastic authorities made it unsafe to baptize in the nearby river." This note was in reference to the danger in Spain for a Protestant to perform in religious service in public. You see that Spain is opposed to any religious service except that of the Roman Catholics. So it was running to much risk to baptize in the river. But in spite of the opposition, the mission had seven conversions during the month. Let us be much in prayer for the missionaries in Spain, and be sure to increase our budget for foreign missions everywhere. Not only foreign missions but at home. This is not bragging, but the church that I serve as pastor supports every phase of our work in the state and nation. There is something in the budget for each department and each institution in the state and national programs. I see to it personally that this goes into our budget.

NINE KINDS OF CHURCH MEMBERS

1. Wheelbarrow: No good unless pushed.
2. Canoe: Needs to be paddled.
3. Kite: Keep a string on them or they'll fly away.
4. Kitten: Content only when petted.
5. Football: Hard to tell which way they will bounce.
6. Trailer: Have to be pulled.
7. Balloon: Full of gas and ready to blow up.
8. Watch: Full of good works.
9. Christlike: Ready to let the Spirit guide.

Class yourself according to God's standard.—Selected.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

QUESTION and ANSWER

by Susan Berry

ESTHER and Kitty were dressing their dolls in one corner of the room.

"She has red hair," Kitty was saying, as she tied her doll's sash, "and a temper to match."

"Who has?" asked Grandmother, putting down the newspaper and looking at the little girl over her spectacles.

The answer came rather slowly: "Lucy French; you don't know her, Grandmother."

"Hasn't she anything but red hair and a temper?" said Grandmother, putting up the paper again.

Grandmother had such a queer way of asking a question and then not waiting for anybody to answer it.

The next day was Sunday. Esther and Kitty and Lucy were in the same Bible school class together. This afternoon the superintendent put a new scholar in with them.

"We are so many," thought Kitty. "She makes us sit so crowdy. I wish she hadn't come."

Kitty was by no means the only one that wished it. After Bible school all the other girls hurried on in a friendly bunch, leaving the new scholar behind—all but Lucy. She waited, and those in front heard her say politely:

"Don't you think our teacher is lovely?"

"Can't you just see Grandmother's eyes twinkle at us?" whispered Esther to Kitty. "She would say that Lucy has been the most real lady in the class."

"The only real one, I guess," said Esther, meekly. "The way we behave doesn't look much like studying things out of the Bible. Does it, Kitty?"

On Tuesday, at school, Miss Young began to give out pieces of poetry to be learned for Exhibition Day. One of these was shorter than the others, and nobody thought that it was pretty.

"I am sorry," said Miss Young, "that you don't like it. Who will be unselfish and offer to take it?"

There was a little silence, and then Lucy French said, "I'll take it."

Kitty was at one end of the bench and Esther was in the middle. They leaned forward and looked at each other, and their eyes twinkled.

After school Miss Young said, "Lucy, will you put a letter in the post office for me before a quarter of an hour has passed?"

"Yes'm," said Lucy, smiling. She liked to do errands for Miss Young.

Miss Young smiled back at her. "Lucy never forgets to keep her promises," she said.

"Esther," said Kitty, "by Saturday we will have a whole lot of things to tell Grandmother."

They did. And Grandmother was very much pleased to hear them. She laid one soft, wrinkled hand on each brown head and said, "My little granddaughters must try to remember that God loves to see what is good in all of us, and loves us to see the good in one another."—Christian Standard.

Christ Is Mine

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

For all the pearls of all the seas
I wouldn't give my faith in God;
For all the fruit of all the trees
And all the riches of the sod;
For all the diamonds in the earth
And all the gold in all the hills,
I wouldn't part with what I'm worth
In heaven's love and joy that thrills.

O hallelujah! Christ is mine,
And keeps and guards me day by day,
And has for me a mansion fine
In glory land across the way.

For all the mansions men possess
In cities and the countryside;
For all the values merchants stress
On land and on the oceans wide;
For fashions that are up to date
And followed by a mighty host,
I wouldn't sell this blessed state
Of sweetness in the Holy Ghost.

For all the knowledge of the schools
And all the wisdom found in books;
For all the man-made laws and rules
And all the dainties of the cooks;
For fame and honor mountain high,
Yes, even that which mounts the clouds,
I wouldn't sever heaven's tie
And go with pleasure-loving crowds.

The Sermon at School

by Clarabelle Hope

MYRTLE! Vivian! Tom! Get up!

You'll be late for school!"

was the third time Mother had called.

Vivian opened her eyes. "Look, Myrtle," she exclaimed, "It's almost time to start now. Up, Tom, quick!" "Oh, Vivian! and this is the morning the preacher is to speak. How dreadfully Miss Meade will feel if we are late! How I do wish we had not whispered so long last night after Mother thought we were asleep."

While Myrtle combed her hair Tom slipped on his shoes; then they all scrambled down the stairs.

Each grabbed a muffin from the basket and stuffed them in their mouths, and ran to school without even telling Mother good-bye. Just as they got to the top of the steps the bell rang. What a race they had to reach that schoolhouse!

They got into their seats before the bell rang, but what a sight they were to look at! Myrtle's hair looked like Tom's when he was angry, and Tom's and Vivian's looked even worse. They hoped the teacher, Mr. McGuire would not notice it, but they seemed to be looking right at them a good deal of the time.

"Honour thy father and thy mother," the minister began. "This means to do what they say. Even if they do not seem to care for you. God sees you and hears all you say. God sees even in the dark and hears even when you whisper."

"He means us, Vivian," said Myrtle, she tried to hide behind her book.

They were all three glad when it was time to go home for lunch.

"Mother, we are going to get up for you this the very first time you call us," said Myrtle.

"Yes, and we are not going to get up any more at night after your door is closed and keep Tom giggling."

"That minister told us what God's law says about us," said Tom, "and we are all three going to be good Christians and obey you and God."

"Then we shall have a happy home," said Mother. "Thank you. And now go and eat some of these nice creamed potatoes. I know you are all as hungry as bears. Our Pente. Little Folks."

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Auxiliary Convention to Convene with Pleasant Plain Church

The Western District Woman's Auxiliary Convention of North Carolina will convene with Pleasant Plains Free Will Baptist Church near Kenly, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 5. The theme of the convention will be, "The Love of God." The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 0—Registration
- 5—Hymn, "Love Divine"
- Devotions, Mrs. Robert Hinnant
- Welcome, Mrs. James Burgess
- Response, Mrs. Milton Futrelle
- Who's Who
- Appointment of Committees
- "God's Love for Children," Mrs. Bagley Morris
- Hymn, "Love Lifted Me"
- Offering for Children's Home
- "God's Love for Sinners," Mrs. James Earl Raper
- 5—Special Music, Stoney Creek Trio
- Message, Mrs. Harold Stevens
- 0—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 0—Hymn, "Jesus Calls Us"
- "God's Love for Christians," Mrs. Billy Morris
- Hymn, "My Jesus I Love Thee"
- 5—Denominational Hour
- 5—Hymn (Offering for Mount Olive College)
- Presentation of Life Awards
- Business Session
- Hymn, "Blest Be the Tie"
- Benediction

Columbia, N. C.—The Annie McClinton Grove, N. C.—The Annie McClinton Auxiliary of Oak Grove Church met at the church September 8, at 8:00 p. m., with Mrs. Bernice Godwin presiding. A song, "I Love to Tell the Story," the cent read from John 15, followed with a prayer by Mrs. Vada Bizzell. Mrs. Emma Godwin read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll; there were 14 present. Resolutions were made for home-coming at the church Sunday, October 2. The auxiliary voted to send a sunshine box to Mrs. Ruth Daughtrey as she is a patient in the hospital as results of a wreck about a month ago.

Mrs. Lollie Holland had charge of the program and she gave a talk on the religions, education, women and customs, Christianity and the Bible in Japan. Also on the program were: Mesdames Emma Rose, Mae Ellen Warwick, Ellen Bass, Fronia Jones and Vada Bizzell. Mrs. Ellen Warren prayed the benediction.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church met August 25, in the home of Mrs. Elsie Sawyer, with five visitors present. The program was carried out as laid down in the year book. Those taking part on the program were: Mrs. Winfred Brickhouse, Mrs. Maurice Van Horn, Mrs. Bernice Maitland, Mrs. Neva Brickhouse, Mrs. Edmond Brickhouse, Mrs. Zennie Taylor, Mrs. Daisy Brickhouse and Kathleen Swain.

After the program the business session was held. The meeting adjourned with prayer. The hostess served ice cream, cake, candy and cokes.

Woman's Auxiliary Circle And Study Course Material

(for September)

Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Maury, North Carolina

1 Timothy Chapter 3

Qualifications of bishops, deacons of the church and the blessed truth taught therein.

1. First, let us understand what a bishop is, and whom they serve. He is overseer, an old title or name of the Romans adopted in the Early Church for its officers who were charged with its superintendance—originally the same as elder. Both deacons and elders were preachers as well as overseers. In Paul's time, the two titles had already become descriptive of different duties required of different officers. The church elected them and the apostles confirmed them by laying on their hands (sometimes also the hands of the presbytery Elders) (2 Timothy 1:6, 1 Timothy 4:14). They were to lead blameless lives, be the husband of one wife, having a spiritual care over the flock, teaching in private and public, visit the sick, receive and entertain strangers. In 1 Timothy 1:2, bishops succeeded to the authority of the apostles.

The office of elder in the Christian church was adopted from the Jewish custom. Pastor is Hebrew, meaning a shepherd. Jeremiah 2:8 also applies to Christ, The Great Shepherd, and to the spiritual ministers of the church (Ephesians 4:11). Bishop and Elders—in the present day, the titles are minister and reverend.

2. Let us comprehend what a minister is and whom he is to serve.

(1) Ministerial office: "Let a man so account of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God. (1 Corinthians 4:1).

"And he gave some apostles; and some prophets; and some evangelists; and some pastors and teachers" (Ephesians 4:11). "This is a true saying, If a man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work." (1 Timothy 3:1).

(2) Qualifications: "For a bishop must be blameless, as the steward of God, not selfwilled nor soon angry, not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy-lucre; But a lover of hospitality, a lover of good men, sober, just, holy, temperate; Holding fast the afithful word, as he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and convince the gainsayers" (Titus 1:6-9).

(3) The Call: "But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness, both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I appear unto thee" (Acts 26:16). "Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands by the presbytery" (1 Timothy 4:14).

(4) The Divine Commission: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matthew 28:19, 20).

(5) Ambassador for Christ: "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God" (2 Corinthians 5:20).

(6) Actuated by the Spirit of Service: "Even as it is meet for me to think this

(Continued on page fourteen)

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

Budget Approved at Mount Olive College

The Board of Directors of Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, in its fall meeting, gave final approval to a budget of $187,986 for the 1960-1961 fiscal year. M. L. Johnson, college business manager, reported that total expenditures at the college last year amounted to $168,534. Gifts to the college for the year just ended reached an all-time high of $72,768, the board was informed.

President W. Burkette Raper reported to the directors that October 2-5 has been set by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the visiting committee from the association to examine Mount Olive College. Referring to this visit from the association, President Raper told the board, "Without question, this examination will be the most thorough we have yet experienced. We have worked hard to achieve academic excellence at Mount Olive College and I believe that the findings of the committee will be favorable. If we are awarded regional accreditation, this recognition should cause us to gird ourselves for continued progress. The value and significance of such achievement would be beyond measure."

A report from Mrs. Mildred S. Councill, librarian, revealed that the college library now contains 7,300 catalogued books and 230 volumes of bound periodicals. President Raper told the directors that the college library, including the J. C. Moye Trust

College Board Of Directors

Newly elected officers of the Board of Directors of Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, are left to right: the Rev. J. W. Alford, Morehead City, vice-chairman; the Rev. D. W. Hansley, Kinston, chairman; Mrs. Frances Allen Cassick, Greenville, Secretary. Standing is Dr. W. Burkette Raper, president of the college since 1954. Mount Olive College, an accredited liberal arts institution sponsored by the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, is now in its ninth year of operation.

Fund designated for the library, was valued at $50,000 in the auditor's report for 1959.

Other action of the college board was re-election of D. W. Hansley of Kinston as board chairman, and J. W. Alford of Morehead City, vice-chairman. Mrs. Frances Cassick of Greenville was elected secretary.

Committee appointments were: Executive Committee: R. N. Hinnant, Mount Olive; W. P. Grant, Goldsboro; Finance Committee: Hardy Talton, Pikeville; B. Jones, Walstonburg; Fred Powers, Saratoga; Committee on Buildings and Grounds: J. Harris, Greenville; Mrs. Dola Duff, Fuquay Springs; E. H. Holton, Vandemere.

Woman's Auxiliary

(continued from page thirteen)

of you all, because I have you in my heart inasmuch as both in my bonds, and in my defense and confirmation of the gospel, ye all are partakers of my grace" (Philippians 1:7).

"So being affectionately desirous of you, we are willing to have imparted unto you, not the gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear unto us" (1 Thessalonians 2:8).

(7) An Example of Others: "In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine shewing uncorrupt gravity, sincerity" (Titus 2:7).

"Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being examples to the flock" (1 Peter 5:3). They are to be spiritual overseers, not business administrators.

(8) Watchful of Certain Evils: "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are not perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed" (2 Corinthians 4:8).

"No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier" (2 Timothy 2:4).

(9) Carelessness Condemned: "Cure not he that doeth the work of the Lord carelessly . . ." (Jeremiah 48:10).

(10) The Great Reward: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever" (Daniel 12:3).

No man can choose what coming his may bring to him
Of need, of joy, of suffering;
But what his soul shall bring unto hour

To meet its challenge—this is in his power
—P. Leonard.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

How Big Is Your God?

(Lesson for October 2)

Lesson: Psalms 8; 104:1-4.

Open Text: Psalm 8:9.

INTRODUCTION

On the old Spanish coins, before Columbus discovered America, the words were given, Ne plus ultra, "no more beyond." Then came the day when Columbus broadened the horizon. The inscription on the coins was changed to Plus ultra, "more beyond." When Jesus Christ, the world's risen Redeemer, rose from the dead, a new way was opened before these discouraged disciples. They could say with confidence, "There is more beyond." Let us thank God for death, for Christianity, for redemption, for the hope of immortality through the risen Lord. He lives, and because He lives we shall live also.—Rev. J. D. Barratt.

The psalmist in our lesson presents an inexhaustible God. His creation reveals His mighty power and Calvary His matchless love.

POINTS THAT HELP

Psalm 8:1: It is a relief to leave the sins of Israel's continued rebellion against God and study the sweet music of the psalms as they glorify and magnify the greatness of God. Psalm 8 is a solemn meditation on the glory and greatness of

Vs. 2: It seems to me that a tiny creature is such a display of God's power, wisdom and goodness that the atheist would be speechless before it. Success against the enemies is not given to philosophers and mighty men of oratory, but to men who are foolish, and whose preaching is called foolishness. Jesus once said that we should be as little children.

Vs. 3: "The heavens declare the glory of God." Did you ever notice that beasts bow down to the earth, but man is made to look up to the heavens?

Vs. 4: David was amazed that God so wonderful and holy and powerful would be mindful of man who had been sinful and rebellious.

Vs. 5: Man is above the creatures of the earth, but made lower than the angels of heaven. In the resurrection man will be as the angels.

6. Vs. 6: God made man in the beginning to have dominion over all things, and all things were put under his feet. Satan came, and man fell and lost immortality. God sent His Son into the world, born of a virgin, a man among men to bring the victory lost in the first Eden. The giving of Jesus Christ was the greatest honor ever given to man.

7. Vs. 9: "O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!" The Psalm closes as it began with glory and honor and praise to the Lord God. David had good reasons to proclaim His greatness. In singing these Psalms, let us not forget God's favors to mankind.

8. Psalm 104:1: Did you ever read greater words of devotion than the first fourteen words of this Psalm? David must have been looking heavenward with holy hands lifted high.

9. Vs. 2: The emblem of light denotes felicity, knowledge, wisdom and purity. Jesus gave us a hint of that garment of light and glory on the mount of transfiguration. The heavens are stretched out above the earth as a canopy over a bed.

10. Vs. 3: God uses the waters for the beams and frame of His house. The clouds are the chariots of the Lord, and they travel upon the wings of the wind. "Behold, he cometh with clouds; . . ." (Revelation 1:7).—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. All creation is subject to God who made it, obeying in every detail the will of its maker. ". . . the creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary" (Isaiah 40:28). God does not leave His work of creation alone, to remain as it is or to suffer wreckage and decay. Every atom of it is upheld by Him, kept in existence by Him and empowered by Him to perform the task he made it for. The way or no part of His creation is hid from Him. Each star is named. They are all numbered and are so lead in their stately march that not one of them faileth. His moral creatures are upheld, too. He gives power and strength to them continually. ". . . to the faithful; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength" (Isaiah 40:29).

2. There is one major difference between God's upholding material things and His support for moral creatures. The material is sustained and prevented from falling, but God's moral creatures is not absolutely upheld. A sufficiency of help is offered, but he is not compelled to accept the gift. If man wills to perish, he must perish. God's grace is sufficient for him but he can reject that grace, he can go against the will of God, who willeth not that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. Were it any other way would be a mere machine and not a responsible moral being. Works depict the mind, the spirit, the will, and the nature of the workman. The creation pictures God as a living, all-wise, all-powerful, loving, moral and spiritual being to whom all his moral creatures should bow in reverence, faith and obedience.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

3. Once, when Felix of Nola was flying from his enemies, he took refuge in a cave, and he had scarcely entered it before a spider began to spin a web over its entrance. The pursuer, passing by, saw the spider's web, and did not bother to look into the cave; and the saint as he came out into safety, remarked, "Where God is, a spider's web is a wall; where He is not a wall is but a spider's web."

A young skeptic said to an elderly lady: "I once believed there was a God but now since studying philosophy and mathematics I am convinced that God is but an empty word."

"Well," said the lady, "I have not studied such things, but since you have can you tell me from whence comes this egg?" "Why, of course, from a hen," was the reply. "And where does the hen come from?" "Why, from an egg." Then the lady required: "Which existed first, the hen or the egg?" "The hen of course," rejoined the young man. "Oh, then a hen must have existed without having come from an egg?" "Oh, no, I should have said the egg was first."

"Then I suppose you mean that one egg existed without having come from a hen?" The young man hesitated: "Well, you see—that is—of course, well the hen was first!" "Very well," she said, "who made the first hen from which all succeeding hen and eggs have come?"

"What do you mean by this?" he asked. She replied, "Simply this, I say that He who created the first hen or egg is He who created the world. You can't explain the existence of even a hen or egg without God, and yet you wish me to believe that you can explain the existence of the whole world without Him!"—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page ten)

will be a picnic lunch served on the church lawn. Renewing old friendships and reminiscing will be enjoyed until 2:00 p. m., at which time the group will reassemble in the church for a singspiration. The Prescott Brother Quartet, the Bear Grass Trio and the Winter Green Quartet, together with any other singing group or soloists who will contribute to this part of the program, will render gospel singing.

The church, together with the pastor, the Rev. Dan Gaskins, extends a special invitation to former members, pastors and friends to come and worship and fellowship together at this home-coming.

Rev. Roland C. Cherry Accepts Hopewell Church Pastorate

The Rev. Roland C. Cherry has accepted the pastorate of the Hopewell Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Smithfield, North Carolina. He began his pastoral duties the first Sunday in September.

Mr. Cherry is a native of Williamston, North Carolina, where he organized the First Free Will Baptist Church and served as pastor for seven years. Last year he served as pastor of St. Paul Free Will Baptist Church of Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

Mr. Cherry has three children, Linda and Ralph, at home, and Eugene who is now serving in the air force at Chanute Air Force Base, Chanute, Illinois.

Rev. Melvin Everington to Conduct Saratoga Revival

The fall revival at Saratoga, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church will begin Sunday evening, September 18, with the Rev. Melvin Everington of Marsh Swamp Church, as the evangelist. The services will continue throughout the week. Special music will be presented each night by various singing groups. The pastor, the Rev. Fred Powers, extends to everyone a cordial invitation to attend these services.

Fellowship Church, Kingsport, Tenn., Held Annual Home-Coming

The Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church, Kingsport, Tennessee, held its annual home-coming Sunday, September 4, with guest speakers, the Rev. Bill Harrison and the Rev. Lester McKinnon. The service began with Sunday school, with 288 present, followed with morning worship. There was special singing by the Sunshine Girls. Lunch was served at Brookside Cafeteria with wonderful fellowship.

"If you don't want your children to what you're saying, pretend you're talking to them."

"Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel . . ."

Some young men who leave home to the world on fire have to come back more matches.—Selected.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

For your Christmas greetings this year, we are offering three series of the "Sunshine Line." All three series come in assorted cards, designed exclusively for you who love Christmas and understand its true meaning.

GLAD TIDINGS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards with Scripture Texts

BLESSED CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards, Also with Scripture Texts

LUSTROUS CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

18 PhotoColor Cards with Scripture Texts

RETAIL, PER BOX

$1.00

Special Rates to Auxiliaries and Other Church Groups for Resale
(When ordered in lots of ten or more boxes, sixty cents per box.)

ORDER FROM

FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. BOX 158

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA

DS ✓

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, September 28, 1960

FRUITFUL YEAR AT SHADY GROVE CHURCH

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

SEP 28 1960

DURHAM, N. C.

Pictured above is the interior of Shady Grove Free Baptist Church in Sampson County, North Carolina, which has recently undergone renovation after being damaged by fire.

The pastor, the Rev. C. F. Bowen, preached his first sermon entitled, "An Undertaking Under God," just one year ago. This has truly been a fruitful year, as you will see from reading the article in "News Notes" entitled, "Shady Grove Church Reports Progress."

I Was a Delegate to the State Convention

By Mrs. Velma Lyczkowski
Kinston, North Carolina

AM NOT a college graduate or a famous evangelist, so I speak as a layman of our faith.

It was my privilege to serve as a delegate to the North Carolina State Convention of the Free Will Baptists from the Fifth East-District of the Eastern Conference. I took this opportunity to write a few remarks. I am sorry we do not have a laymen's organization in our denomination to inform and awaken our people to the crises we face as Free Will Baptists and also Americans.

A warning message was sounded by Dr. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, on Wednesday morning concerning our history and heritage. Our history has become so dear to our hearts as we face some of the same problems today, as did our forefathers. The problem of history repeating itself is two-lest we forget.

Our forefathers came to this country to enjoy freedom of worship. We have long forgotten the sacrifice they made, and we might enjoy the precious freedom of assembling ourselves for worship without restriction. Have we no fear that even in this day of freedom could be denied some of us—our children?

I am not an authority on Roman Catholicism, so I could not write as such, but I do know from experience the power they hold over their people. Have you ever attended a Catholic service? My husband is a confirmed Catholic. He was a Catholic for many years, so out of respect to him and his family, I went to mass many times. I have seen the statues of saints which they go to for prayer, not only in their church, but also in their homes. By accident, I was once witness to a long line of Catholics waiting to confess their sins to a priest, who according to their faith had the power to forgive them of their sins. Many times I have seen the prayers repeated on the rosary to Mary, the mother of Jesus. These are only a few things I can mention. Very little research is required to show that the Catholics, through their church and under the leadership of the Pope, claim that their church is the only true church. The Roman Catholic church holds itself above any country, all civil law, over all other religions, and holds total dominance over its members by whatever means are required to gain its end. To vote for a Roman Catholic is contrary to what we teach and believe as Free Will Baptists. The dictatorial power the Catholic priest holds over his parish brings us to the second problem we are facing.

What is happening in so many of our churches that cause them to be so divided and confused? Many people we meet have requested prayer for their churches and pastors. Some of our people do not want to support Cragmont, a wonderful institution that has brought many souls to know Jesus as their personal Saviour. Some refuse to support Mount Olive Junior College, even to the extent of forbidding people to remember it in prayer. Some refuse to support our Free Will Baptist Press, and order their materials used in their churches from other sources. Some do not support Free Will Baptist Bible College and the other phases of our denominational work. In Matthew 28:19, 20, Jesus tells His disciples to go forth and teach all nations. We should look to our ministers for leadership, but the laymen are so often confused and do not know what to do when it conflicts with their pastor's will. This situation should not be.

It has been pointed out that smoking, dancing, playing cards, wearing shorts, etc., are sins, and so we agree, but the Scriptures also tell us there is no room in heaven for hate, envy, strife, jealousy, and it plainly states to love our neighbor as ourselves. Is this not as equally important? Who then will be our judge, God or man? Many say that you can tell a Christian by the fruit he bears; so they are not judging, but are fruit inspectors. I have bought peaches, which on the top of the basket looked good, only to find some bad ones inside the basket, which seems to be the case with our churches and schools.

I must have been born thirty years too soon, as the cartoon goes, because when I graduated from high school, there was not a Free Will Baptist college. The only reason I could give for believing as a Free Will Baptist was because my mother was of that faith. I thank God for our Bible College at Nashville and for our college at Mount Olive. I hang my head in shame because we have progressed so little, only to have two such schools today. That they differ in their philosophy of education is how it should be, for Christian people and Christian institutions have varying philosophies of life even though they agree in theology. The Rev. Henry Armstrong, in his devotions from Romans 12, reminded us that we have gifts differing according to the grace given unto us. We cannot all be missionaries, preachers or evangelists, but it is important that we are Christians in whatever field of work we are called. There are many homemakers who would be better mothers if they could have had more Christian training in their youth. I sincerely hope my children will seek to enter one of our own schools if they are free to choose for themselves.

Now may I say that I am proud the convention went on record as reaffirming their faith in our Free Will Baptist Treatise. In spite of some confusion (I am sure God had no delight in), I am proud to be a Free Will Baptist and am interested in supporting all the phases of our denominational work. If we send our money to support the different phases, and it is used in a way not pleasing to God, the person misusing the money will be held accountable. Let us get behind our denominational work with our prayers and money. God will richly bless our efforts.

My closing remarks would be to say the messages were challenging, the lunch most enjoyable, and my sincere thanks to all who had a part in making the convention a success.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Due to the loss of electricity on the day after Hurricane Donna struck this area, we are slightly behind in filling our literature orders. Please understand that any delay in shipping your order is not our intention. Your understanding in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Will America Vote Away Her

FREEDOM?

(Beginning a Feature Article in Two Parts)

Mrs. Ruth Timby, Eureka, North Carolina

IN THIS DAY when there is so much confusion, one hesitates to contend for anything more. But when it comes to our freedom of religion, the most important thing in all the world (Mark 8:36), and our American way of life being challenged, it is time for every Christian to go to his knees, and do all in his power to prevent a Catholic from becoming president of our great nation; for it would mean we would be ruled by a man who would only be a puppet of the Pope of Rome, who claims to be absolute spiritual sovereign of all Catholics, a spiritual autocrat of incalculable power. (See Time magazine, August 16, 1943.) Also, in the New York Times, May 17, 1960, there is a special news item from Rome. This special dispatch was taken from "Osservatore Romano" the Vatican newspaper. It declared that the Roman Catholic hierarchy had stated that it has the right and duty to intervene in politics in order to guide its people. According to Catholic theologians, the sovereign power of the Pope is legislative, executive, and judicial, and includes the power of coercion (all this by divine right).

However, Christ when on earth never used force (John 6:40), but the Catholic Encyclopedia declares that in case of direct contradiction, making it impossible for both jurisdictions to be exercised, the jurisdiction of the church prevails, and that of the state is excluded. One of their leaders went so far as to say that the Lord no longer reigns, but has resigned all power to the Pope! Christ taught obedience to civil authority (Matthew 22:17-21; Romans 13:1-6). Rome says, "We alone have the right to rule. We hold upon this earth the place of Almighty God!" It is not bigotry or prejudice which is the reason that Protestants are against a Catholic president. When we think of the way the Catholic church enslaves wherever they are in power, far-thinking people see tragedy ahead for non-Catholics in this land if the present trends continue. Rome has set itself the goal of ruling this nation. She used her religion as a disguise to manipulate her political designs. Samuel F. B. Morse has said, "The Papacy is a political system, despotic in its organization, anti-democratic and anti-republican, and cannot exist with American republicanism." Therefore, shall we simply wink at Roman design and intrigue and let it carry on under the guise of religious liberty?

Through intrigues and political maneuvers, the Papacy has subjugated many governments. If she ever gets in the saddle in the United States, we will soon lose all freedom of the press, speech and worship, also our public schools. The only voice that will be heard will be the voice of Rome. Early in 1960, the long arm of the Vatican reached into the one little Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and influenced the policy of Radio Luxembourg to remove all evangelical programs from the main transmitter. In the measure that Rome controls a government, in that measure she wipes all opposition to her policies.

Ponder well the significant utterances of a Catholic priest in Rochester which was reported by the Evangelical Christian in its September issue, 1952: "We the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church expect all loyal children of the church to assist the president . . . and if necessary we shall change, amend or blot out the present constitution so the president may enforce, his, or our humanitarian program and all phases of human rights as laid down by our saintly popes and holy mother church . . . we are going to have our laws made and enforced according to the Holy See and the Popes and the Papal throne . . . Our educational laws must be constructed to end . . . Protestantism, Communism, Socialism . . . This land belongs to us by every right . . . Now we demand what is really ours, and we are going to have it. If necessary, we are ready to fight and die for it."

It is a Catholic tenet that the Church may justly inflict on heretics the penalty of death (Saurez 2 de Fide Disp. XX, Sect. 3 n. 28). Of course, every one who does not agree with her false doctrine is a heretic according to Rome. Christ said, ". . . the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service. And these things will they do unto you, because they have not know the Father, nor me" (John 16:2, 3). The Inquisition was an organized, merciless attempt on the part of Rome and her saintly popes to wipe out all opposition.

During the hundreds of years of the Dark Ages, fifty to sixty million human beings died, suffering the most cruel tortures, and their possessions devoured by the Roman Catholic church. It is history's chamber of horrors. In every major library, there is abundant material on the subject. No one can shrug off the words of historians. The Roman Papacy has increasingly crushed and ages every doctor, king, or people who opposed its tyrannous progress. History is sufficient to prove the fact. Luther said, "If there is a hell, Rome is built over it." They have the blackest history of any church that professes to be Christian. One of their saintly and infallible popes murdered two other saintly and infallible popes. You may read this in the Catholic Encyclopedia. They murder and pillage Protestants everywhere today in every country where they have control of the government, simply because they cannot be coerced into accepting their scriptural teachings. At late as 1941 and 1942, under Pope Pius XII, and other leaders, the Croats slew a half million Serbs because they were Greek Catholics. Also, Jews with their children were burned en masse besides thousands of Gypsies massacred. The Roman clergy undertook to hide what was going on. The press, because of Catholic pressure, covered up the vast crime. It was until the documented book of Miss Morrell Farrell, "Ravenging Wolves," and many especially the documentations of "Assassins in the Name of God," by M. Herve Laurin, a French Catholic, were the cruel episode revealed. ". . . be sure your sin will find you out" (Numbers 32:23). Cardinal Stepinac, the archkiller, said that his conscience was clear, because he implicitly obeyed the church. In many countries where Catholics are in power, Protestants are now being persecuted every day.

According to reports, there have been seven hundred cases of violence in the eight years in Colombia alone. Even here in the United States, in the state of Michigan, the Catholics stopped a Protestant church meeting because the pastor spoke against Catholic power. The United States is alerted to the danger of Communism, and is being brainwashed by Catholicism. The spadework for the Romanization of this nation is well under way. Almost every major newspaper in the nation gives fact
(continued on page sixteen)

It is time to

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED

American freedom is built upon moral and spiritual integrity. This nation was founded upon age-old Bible principles by people who were willing to write their beliefs in their life's blood.

Today, as possibly never before in our history, this freedom is threatened. It is endangered by godless hordes from without and by the creeping paralysis of easy indifference and selfish living from within.

Historic Protestantism has been represented by people who stood for something—people who believed with all their hearts that the just shall live by faith . . . that there is one mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus. They believed these truths so strongly that they were willing to stand up and be counted, no matter what it cost.

Again today, America needs a rebirth of great spiritual convictions. We are in danger of becoming so tolerant that Protestants give up their right to protest—and with it, the destiny of our nation. Already people in high places are remarking that since the liberals have given up the authority of the Word of God, they constitute no longer a truly Protestant force, and can now be dealt with as "the new protestantism"—an aged lion that has lost its teeth.

The National Association of Evangelicals joins with every thoughtful Christian in praying and working for a resurgence of true Bible-based convictions among the people of our land. With this end in mind, the NAE is spearheading a "Stand Up and Be Counted" program, concentrating on the period of October 23-30, 1960.

Thousands of churches will observe October 23 as "Christian Conviction Sunday." Scores of thousands of Christians will be challenged to become informed about religious and political issues. They will be urged to evaluate our potential national leadership and to dedicate themselves to the task of keeping our nation spiritually strong—and free.

For this week-long observance climaxing on Reformation Sunday, October 30, special "Stand Up and Be Counted" buttons will be available for distribution in the churches on October 23. Featuring a gold cross on a light blue background, the button will also bear the numerals, 1517, emphasizing the year in which the Reformation began, and the words, "Reformation Sunday, October 30, 1960."

This simple and unobtrusive Protestant identification will make it possible to take a stand on the street and on the job for our historic liberties so dear to every American. Worn during the week, it will be a conversation piece so that Protestant Christians may bear witness to their faith.

The observance will close on Reformation Sunday with Protestants being reminded of their great heritage which must be preserved at all costs.

To aid the churches in their observance of these important days, NAE is providing other special materials. There are free bulletin covers or bulletin inserts, whichever is preferred. These carry the message encouraging Protestants to stand up and be counted for their faith. There is a free descriptive folder, "Where Does Your Church Stand?" encouraging cooperation among Bible-believing churches. Cooperating pastors will receive sermon starters and illustrative materials, news releases and bibliographies.

Two helpful pamphlets are available for quantity distribution. "A Roman Catholic President: How Free from Church Control?" by Dr. George L. Ford, executive director of the NAE, is a 12-page booklet thoroughly documented and recognized as one of the outstanding statements on this critical question. "A Brief History of the Reformation" is excellent for bringing a fuller understanding of the true meaning of Protestant Christianity.

History is not written by people who merely talk. It is written by dedicated people, by holy living, by faith in Almighty God and His infallible Word, by courage that fears only God, by votes and by blood.

Significant in the history of America is the fact that this land was discovered within fifty years of the Reformation. Thus a sovereign God prepared a nation to preserve the rebirth of spiritual life which He gave the world through the reformers.

Enough churches courageously standing and being counted could keep us from losing by default that which was gained at such great cost.

ORDER FORM

National Association of Evangelicals
Box 28
Wheaton, Illinois

Please send the following materials for the observance of the "Stand Up and Be Counted" plan sponsored by the NAE.

Quantity	Item	Price	Amount
----	Reformation Sunday Bulletin Covers (inside blank)	free
----	Reformation Sunday Bulletin Inserts (for use in regular bulletin) (Note: If bulletins are ordered for Reformation Sunday, please do not order for Christian Conviction Sunday.)	free
----	Christian Conviction Sunday Bulletin Covers (inside blank)	free
----	Christian Conviction Sunday Bulletin Inserts (for use in regular bulletin)	free
----	Descriptive folder, "Where Does Your Church Stand?"	free
----	"Stand Up and Be Counted" Buttons	35c per doz. $2.50 per hundred	$-----
----	"A Roman Catholic President: How Free From Church Control?"	$1.00 per doz. $7.50 per hundred $50.00 per thousand	$-----
----	"A Brief History of the Reformation"	50c per doz. $3.75 per hundred $25.00 per thousand	$-----

Remittance must accompany order.

NAME -----

ADDRESS -----

CHURCH -----

NEWS NOTES

Open House Marks 50th Wedding Anniversary

An open house Sunday, September 11, 1960, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Windham, 1128 Evans Street, Greenville, North Carolina. Hosts and hostesses were their children: H. E. Windham of Charlotte, Mrs. Joe Wingate of Ayden, Mrs. J. B. Bland of Raleigh, and Gilbert Windham of the home.

Guest were greeted by the Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Crawford and Mrs. Elsie Eagans. They were invited to register in the guest book presided over by Mrs. Douglas Cannon, granddaughter of the Windhams. The guest book was backed by yellow mums and a candle tied with tulle. A golden yellow and white were used as the color scheme throughout the home decorations. Punch and cake squares were served from a table covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums flanked by candelabra holding yellow tapers. A side attraction was the traditional wedding cake decorated in yellow and white encircled with yellow tulle nestled with rosebuds. Those serving were Mrs. H. E. Windham, Mrs. H. E. Moore and Mrs. Eagans.

The honored couple were presented a yellow rose corsage and boutonniere. The daughters wore single carnations and the sons boutonnieres.

Shady Grove Church Reports Progress

"I want to congratulate you and Shady Grove Church for your excellent achievements during the past year. Your accomplishments are almost unbelievable. You have demonstrated what Free Will Baptists can and will do under competent leadership"

This unsolicited commendation, written by Dr. W. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, was sent to the Rev. C. F. Bowen, pastor of Shady Grove Free Will Baptist Church of Sampson County, North Carolina. Back of it is a story that the people of our state will surely find inspirational and encouraging.

This church, more than a hundred years old, and a leader in the Cape Fear Conference, was partially burned last November just two months after Mr. Bowen came there as pastor. By January, plans were about completed for an extensive remodeling program, and by the second month of this year, actual work had begun. Today this church stands as one of the most beautiful and worshipful rural churches in North Carolina.

Included in the remodeling program were new pews, new furniture for the pulpit, a baptistry with a professional artist's conception of a Jordan River scene, beautiful wall-to-wall carpet for the sanctuary, tiled floors in all rooms and church vestibule, new rest rooms, indirect lighting for the sanctuary, an electric organ, year-round air-conditioning, a new choir loft, redecorated classrooms, expanded and better equipped nurseries, and walks for the outside.

The total cost of the remodeling program came to about $35,000.00. During the past year the church has received forty-three new members, thirty-one of whom were baptized. Contributions of tithes and offerings have amounted to about $19,000.00. The membership of the church stands now at about 340. Janitorial services have been added and the church has led in the establishment of a volunteer fire department in the community.

Future plans call for a steeple for the church and an enlarged educational plan for the auxiliaries of the church. Shady Grove Church is an aggressive supporter of every phase of our state work and increasingly shows a vigorous interest in education, missions and evangelistic work.

Little Creek to Observe Annual Home-Coming

Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming Sunday, October 2, with the Rev. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive College, as the guest speaker. Services will begin with Sunday school 10:00 a. m., followed with worship service at 11:00. A picnic lunch will be served the noon hour.

The pastor, the Rev. Hubert Burress, tends a cordial invitation to all former members and friends of the church to attend.

Rev. J. C. Griffin to Deliver Powhatan Home-Coming Message

Home-coming services will be observed at Powhatan Free Will Baptist Church near Clayton, North Carolina, Sunday, October 16, with a former pastor, the Rev. J. C. Griffin, delivering the home-coming message. The pastor, the Rev. C. M. Coates states: "Former members and members who live in other localities are urged to come home. We are looking for a great day for the Lord."

Annual Home-Coming Observed At Suwannee Springs Church

On Sunday, September 11, the annual home-coming was observed by the Suwannee Springs Free Will Baptist Church near I. Oak, Florida. Services began with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., followed with morning worship at 11:00, with the pastor, the Rev. Arnold Woodlief, delivering home-coming message. A picnic lunch served on the church grounds at the noon hour.

In the afternoon there was congregational singing by the church and special singing by a trio of the church. The members of the trio are Linda Carter, Judy Kastor, Barbara Kastor. Two ministers took part in the afternoon program and spoke a few minutes; they were, the Rev. Jack Briley and the Rev. Hardy Crews. The services, the food and the fellowship were enjoyed by all who were present.

(continued on page ten)

MISSIONS

THE MAIL BOX

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Riehland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

"I am taking this opportunity to express my deepest appreciation to all my Christian friends for the kind ways they remembered me during my recent illness and hospitalization. Your kind remembrances will always be cherished."—Mr. C. K. Dum, Ayden, North Carolina.

PROGRAM

Eleventh

Annual Missionary Conference

October 4-5, 1960

FREE WILL BAPTIST BIBLE COLLEGE

Nashville, Tennessee

PROGRAM PERSONALITIES

Don Clark—Music Director Free Will Baptist Bible College
Harry Staires—Chairman Home Mission Board and Pastor Drumright, Oklahoma
Homer E. Willis—General Director, Home Mission Board
Rolla D. Smith—General Director-Treasurer Foreign Mission Board
Joseph G. Ange—Member Foreign Mission Board and Pastor Central Free Will Baptist Church, Michigan and Mrs. LaVerne D. Miley—Appointees to Africa and Mrs. Bill Fulcher—Appointees to Latin America Molly Barker—Home Missionary and Mrs. John Moehlman—Appointees to Latin America and Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin—Appointees to Alaska and Mrs. Roy Thomas—Appointees to Colorado and Mrs. Bobby Aycock—Appointees to Brazil
Wade Jernigan—Member Home Mission Board and Mrs. Bobby Poole—Appointees to Brazil
Mark M. Lewis—Chairman Foreign Mission Board and Pastor Philadelphia Free Will Baptist Church, Michigan

TUESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 4

7:00—Congregational Singing—Mr. Don Clark
Scripture Reading and Prayer—Rev. Harry Staires
7:30—Introducing the Conference Program—Rev. Homer E. Willis
Free Will Baptist Foreign Mission Fields in Review—Rev. Rolla Smith
8:00—Special Music—Bible College Music Department
8:30—*Missionary Offering—Rev. Joseph G. Ange
8:30—Testimony—Mrs. LaVerne Miley
The Message—Dr. LaVerne D. Miley

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5

8:00—Song Service—Mr. Clark
8:30—Speakers—Rev. and Mrs. Bill Fulcher
8:30—Speaker—Miss Molly Barker
9:30—Special Music—College Music Department
9:00—Speakers—Rev. and Mrs. John Moehlman
10:00—Congregation Sings—Mr. Clark

10:05—Speakers—Rev. and Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin
10:55—Recess
11:15—MORNING WORSHIP
Music—Arranged by Mr. Clark
*Offering
Presenting Speaker—Rev. Homer E. Willis
MESSAGE—Rev. Roy Thomas

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

1:00—Missionary Prayer Band—Rev. J. P. Barrow
1:30—Hymn Time—Mr. Clark
1:40—Speakers—Rev. and Mrs. Bobby Aycock
2:25—Testimony Time—Rev. Wade Jernigan
3:00—Speakers—Rev. and Mrs. Bobby Poole
3:30—Adjournment

WEDNESDAY EVENING

Commissioning Service

7:30—Song Service—Mr. Clark
Prayer
Free Will Baptist Home Mission Fields in Review—Rev. Homer E. Willis
Special Music
Message—Rev. Homer E. Willis
The Charge—Rev. Rolla D. Smith
The Commissioning Prayer—Rev. Mark M. Lewis
Benediction

*The undesignated missionary offerings will be equally divided between foreign and home missions.

EDITORIAL

(continued from page two)

Paul desired more readers. He cherished unshakeable convictions about his gospel ministry and about the written Word being one of the excellent tools for carrying it out.

Evangelical publishers and editors today share his convictions. That's why, during Press Month, they will strive to call attention to ways in which Christian publications may be used—to make Christ known, to establish believers in the faith, to indicate paths of victorious living and radiant service.

In desperate days these publications sound a note of cheering hope through Christ who "shall reign where'er the sun . . . does his successive journeys run." This message men need. They need the lift Christ-centered, printed-word missionaries bring.

Therefore, more readers are wanted—not to send circulation figures soaring, primarily, but to send men and women, boys and girls on their way with firmer steps, strong in their faith in the conquering Christ.—Martin Erikson.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Does the Bible teach that there is a personal devil? If so, explain it.—Joan Thomas, Oregon.

Answer: Yes, I am absolutely sure that such teaching is to be found in our Bible, and furthermore, I am acquainted with many of his wiles. I have never seen the devil as a red dragon having either a forked tail or a tail having the appearance of a pitchfork. However, when I was about ten years old I dreamed of seeing him as a black monster somewhat in appearance as depicted in some picture books, but riding on a horse drawn hayrake, rather than walking. Perhaps dreams and childhood fancies have contributed and are in part responsible for the modern day artists' way of depicting him in story books. Let this be as it may; the Bible is definite in depicting him as having been created in a beautiful form, but not retaining this form. He was named "Lucifer, son of the morning" and the "anointed cherub that covereth." "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, which didst weaken the nations! for thou hast said in thine heart, I will descend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God: I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation, in the sides of the north: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the most High. Yet thou shalt be brought down to hell, to the sides of the pit. They that see thee shall narrowly look upon thee, and consider thee, saying, Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms; that made the world as a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof; that opened not the house of his prisoners?" (Isaiah 14:12-17). (See Ezekiel 28:12-19).

We find that names were given to only two other angels, from the Biblical account. Gabriel (the herald angel) and Michael (the archangel) and the Angel of the Lord are often mentioned in the Old Testament which, in each case, we regard as being an appearance of God in the form of an angel prior to the incarnation. While we have no clear statement in the Bible that indicates that Lucifer had dominion over this world before his fall and before the thing occurred that is suggested in Genesis 1:1, 2, yet we seem to have sufficient inferences to lead us to this opinion.

At least there are quite a few modern Bible scholars, as well as those in the past, who thus believe. Jesus Himself called Satan the prince of this world. "Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me" (John 14:30). "Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged" (16:11).

Paul spoke of him as being the god of this world. "In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them" (2 Corinthians 4:4). Furthermore our Lord Himself nowhere denied the fact that there was a sense in which the devil had the right to offer Him the kingdoms of the world; "Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them" (Matthew 4:8).

There are quite a number of students of the Bible who think that together with Satan's fall, the fall of this earth was brought about by his disobedience and that God brought this world from that chaos in His recreative effort as set forth in Genesis 1:1, 2. Even though the writer has definite leanings toward such a theory, yet he dares not go beyond the bare facts set forth in the Bible when it comes to this answer. If the reader's curiosity leads to further investigation, he might find it both interesting and profitable to consult the following: Chapter 2 in Joseph P. Free's book, Archeology and Bible History, Scripture Press, 1825 College Avenue, Wheaton, Illinois; Earth's Early Ages, by G. H. Pember, Fleming H. Revell Co., 158 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York.

Jesus said He "beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." "And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven" (Luke 10:18). Most Christian writers whose works I have read on the subject, think that Satan's fall preceded the fall of man quite a long time. Some of these assume that Adam and Eve committed their first sin (that which brought about the fall of the race) some 4000 years before Christ was born in Bethlehem of Judaea. Yet, Christ saw Satan as lightning falling from heaven. It was Satan, we are sure, that tempted Eve. See Genesis 3:1-13.

"Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: only of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: For God doth say, that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat" (Genesis 3:1-6). The Bible seems clear in its declaration that hell was made for the devil and his angels, yet, as clear in its teaching of his whereabouts today which definitely is not hell. "Thou shalt he say unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels" (Matthew 25:41). One who is once confined to hell or the lake of fire is probably never released from there.

Satan is doing his dirty work here in the world. "And the LORD said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it" (Job 1:7). "And the LORD said unto Satan, From whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it" (2:2). If there was a time in history in which he was cast from heaven, he is probably never kept pushed from its control and one day he will be cast to the earth to never be allowed to return there in any sense. "I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Behold, I come salvation, and strength, and kingdom of our God, and the power of our Lord Jesus Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before God day and night" (Revelation 12:10). "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour" (1 Peter 5:8). He can only accuse us who are Christians; this we are sure he does, for advocate, which Jesus is today, is made necessary only because an adversary exists.

"And he is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world" (1 John 2:2). "The Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may eat you as wheat" (Luke 22:31); "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took the same; that through death he might by him that had the power of death, is, the devil" (Hebrews 2:14). Jesus not plead our own righteousness against

 's slanders, but rather His own pre-blood. We Christians are confronted him that is a spiritual foe. "Wherein me past ye walked according to the e of this world, according to the prince e power of the air, the spirit that now
 th in the children of disobedience" esians 2:2). He also has helpers in ealm of spiritual evil. "For we wrestle gainst flesh and blood, but against alities, against powers, against the of the darkness of this world, against al wickedness in high places" (6:12).
 we see that both the earth and air are ed with the presence of demons.

the doom was pronounced back in the n of Eden. "And the LORD God said the serpent, Because thou hast done thou art cursed above all cattle, and every beast of the field; upon thy shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat
 e days of thy life: and I will put enmity en thee and the woman, and between eed and her seed; it shall bruise thy and thou shalt bruise his heel" (Gene-4, 15). However, his eternal torment nounced in, "And the devil that de-them was cast into the lake of fire rimstone, where the beast and the false et are, and shall be tormented day and for ever and ever" (Revelation 20:10).

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
 Swannanoa, N. C.

*Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
 unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

LIFE GOD'S GIFT

for the wages of sin is death; but the f God is eternal life through Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

at week I used the first part of this hich deals with the subject of death e wages of sin, which is all that is d for a lifetime of sinful living and is all that those who reject the gift
 d of eternal life should expect or hope
 This week I am asking you to think ne about eternal life, how to procure njoy it.

e term, wages, and the term, gift, are placed here in direct contrast. Men go to hell because they deserve to go there; but they do not go to heaven for the same reason.

 No one deserves heaven. Men can earn eternal death, but they cannot earn eternal life. Men can procure for themselves ruin, but they cannot procure salvation. Man in sin is powerful to demolish, but has no power to build up. He can destroy, but he can not restore. The Bible says, "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself;
 but in me is thine help" (Hosea 13:9).
 Eternal life is the gift of God. This rich benefit is gratuitously conferred. It could be conferred in no other way, for the simple reason that man cannot merit it. If man is to receive it at all, it must be as a gift.
 Man does not deserve it.

This life, however, is not to be thought of as being bestowed without regard to merit. There is infinite merit in the obedience and death of Him through whom it is to be conferred. The text says that it is given Jesus Christ our Lord; therefore, it comes freely to those who receive it, but it cost the Saviour much. While they are justified freely by the grace of God, it is through the redemption that is in Christ
 Jesus, and through Him only.

We have found that while the penalty of eternal death is righteously executed on the lost, in like manner the gift of eternal life is righteously bestowed on the saved. This can be only through Jesus Christ our Lord.
 The bestowment of eternal life on those who
 (continued on page fifteen)

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
 THE EDITOR.

THE SECRET OF HAPPINESS

(Proverbs 17:22)

Introduction: Everyone wants to be happy. Although many are despondent and blue today, none would be so untruthful with himself as to say he would never hope to attain real happiness. I would like to show you how to experience continually the bliss of bubbling fountains of great joy.

- I. YOU MUST BECOME A CHRISTIAN (Proverbs 16:20).
 1. Your sins will be forgiven (Ephesians 4:32).
 2. Your sins will be on Christ (2 Corinthians 5:21).
 3. You will then be a new creation (2 Corinthians 5:17).
- II. YOU MUST CLOSELY FOLLOW THE LORD (Mark 1:17, 18).
 1. You must follow in witnessing (Acts 22:15).
 2. You must follow in praying (Luke 18:1).
 3. You must follow in living (Romans 12:1).
- III. YOU MUST LOVE A LOST WORLD (John 3:16).
 1. Jesus set the example in loving a lost world (John 15:13).
 2. The Early Church closely observed this example (Acts 2:44, 45).
 3. This example is commanded to us (Luke 6:27).
- IV. YOU MUST REMAIN SEPARATED FROM THE WORLD (2 Corinthians 6:14).
 1. The unsaved are part of the present ungodly world (John 8:23).
 2. The saved are in the world but certainly are not of the world (John 17:16).
 3. The saved are looking for a new heaven and a new earth (Revelation 21:1).
- V. YOU MUST LEARN THE IMPORTANCE OF CHRISTIAN STEWARD-SHIP (1 Corinthians 4:2).
 1. You must see the importance of giving your time to the Lord (Ephesians 5:16).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page six)

Picture Program of Itinerary of N. C. Children's Home

Below is the picture program itinerary of the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, for the first part of October. Miss Bonnie Farmer is manager of the program. All churches to be visited are in the Central Conference unless otherwise stated. All programs begin at 8:00 p. m.

- Oct. 2, King's Cross Roads
- Oct. 4, Hickory Grove
- Oct. 5, Greenville

- Oct. 6, Piney Grove (Beaufort County)
- Oct. 7, Rose of Sharon
- Oct. 9, Aspen Grove
- Oct. 10, Dilda's Grove
- Oct. 11, Otter's Creek
- Oct. 12, Edgewood
- Oct. 13, Peace
- Oct. 14, Saratoga
- Oct. 16, Owen's Chapel

Home-Coming and Harvest Day At Robert's Grove Church

Everyone is cordially invited to attend home-coming and harvest day at Robert's Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Dunn, North Carolina, Sunday, October 2, 1960. All day services are planned, beginning with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. followed with worship service at 11:00. A new pastor, the Rev. Carey Cheshire, will bring the home-coming message. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour.

Rev. J. E. Floyd Sr., Begins Pastorate at Calvary Church

The Rev. J. E. Floyd Sr. began the pastorate of Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, Haw River, North Carolina, September 1960. The church, which has gone from half time to full time, is located nine miles west of Jacksonville, North Carolina, between Highways 53 and 17. Mr. Floyd was the former pastor of Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, Sea Level, North Carolina, and Pilgrim's Rest Free Will Baptist Church, Cedar Island, North Carolina.

Hickory Grove Church Host To Rockfish Association

The fifty-second annual session of the Rockfish Association of Free Will Baptists will convene with Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Rockfish, North Carolina, Saturday, October 8, 1960. The day's activities will begin at 10:00 a. m. At noon hour a picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds. All the churches in this association are required to be represented at this meeting. Visitors are invited to attend and enjoy the fellowship with the Lord.

Rev. Willis Wilson to Conduct Free Union Fall Revival

The Rev. Willis Wilson will be evangelist for revival services at Free Union Free Will Baptist Church near Walsburg, North Carolina, October 2-9. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

(Continued on page fourteen)

2. You must see the importance of giving your talents and abilities to the Lord (Acts 9:6).
3. You must see the importance of giving your money to the Lord (2 Corinthians 9:7).
- VI. YOU MUST LEARN TO DENY YOURSELF AND TO SACRIFICE FOR THE LORD (Matthew 16:24).
1. The prophets of the Old Testament suffered and sacrificed for God (Hebrews 11:33-38).
2. The apostles and disciples of the New Testament suffered and sacrificed for God (Acts 5:41).
3. The sacrifice for us to offer is a broken spirit and contrite heart (Psalm 51:17).

I BELIEVE IN THE GOLDEN RULE

A self-righteous farmer boasted: "I am a good, moral man. I pay my debts. I believe in the Golden Rule. It is true that I sometimes get angry and swear, but I am doing pretty well on the whole." The farmer hired a Christian carpenter to build a fence around the pasture where his cattle grazed. "Build the fence securely so none of my cattle can get out," instructed the farmer. Upon completion of the fence, the farmer asked, "Is the fence good and strong?" The carpenter said, "Sir, I cannot say it's all good and strong, but it's a good average fence. I may have left a little gap here and there. However, I made up for that by doubling the rails on both sides of the gap. I dare say the cattle will find it a good fence on the whole, though I cannot say the fence is perfect in every part!" "What!" demanded the farmer angrily, "do you mean to tell me you built a fence around my pasture with weak places and gaps in it? My cattle will surely find them and escape. Don't you know that a fence must be perfect, or it is worthless?" Said the carpenter, "I used to think so, but I've heard you talk so much about averaging matters with the Lord, and about being pretty good on the whole that I built the fence pretty good on the whole!"

It began to dawn upon the farmer that his righteousness was as filthy rags in God's sight, and that salvation is "not by works of righteousness which we have done," but by becoming new creatures in Christ Jesus.—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

By J. C. Griffin

A CHURCH TORN UP

"A church is torn up," said a good old lady to me while at the State Convention at Elm Grove Church, Pitt County, Carolina. "What is the trouble?" I asked. She said, "Our pastor's attitude toward Mount Olive Junior College." The conversation began at this time and she had more time to discuss the matter. But I said, "This is a serious matter." Then she replied, calling the name of one of the men I ever knew, "He and I are going to support Mount Olive Junior College the same." I said, "Do it."

A SERIOUS MATTER

It is a serious matter when a pastor can tear up a church over something he dislikes. A preacher can tear up a church over almost any opinion, he could tear up a church over another opinion. For instances: If a children's Home should happen to get a superintendent who was disliked and considered to be unfit, he could cause that in which he was servant of to boycott some. I say it could be done. Perhaps nothing will ever be done, but I say it could be done.

WHO FORGETS

The best and most timely sermon that I ever heard at a State Convention was preached by Dr. William Burkette Raper at Elm Grove this year, in which he preached, "Those who forget their past history will live it over again." This makes me think of our past history. When God spoke on my heart to preach, my education was very remote. I was offered, by another denomination, the opportunity of going to college at the full expense of the college and of my family. But I did not believe in their way of doing things, as well as some of their doctrine.

The question, "What shall I do?" confronted me; so it was answered by the Lord. "Sell you home and go to Ayden, Carolina, to the seminary. This I did and I was criticized for the act. I was by one of the leading ministers of that time that I should not do it. Finally, he said, "I am through with you if you go." To obey God was my determination. Not only was I criticized, but I began to hear criticisms about the school. It had as its head, the Rev. J. W. Sawyer, a fine man, who was a graduate of Guilford College; but because of his education he was criticized. The seminary was called by some people, "An incubator for hatching preachers." We had no other school anywhere. We had been swallowed up by the North. Well, the seminary lived through it all, and developed into what was known as Eureka College, but seemingly its enemies grew. In the meantime, Professor J. W. Sawyer was squeezed out and others took over; but for a lack of moral and financial support the school went under and had to close out.

FURTHER EFFORTS FOR A SCHOOL

In those days there was a movement started out West for a college. Dear old Brother John Wolf and others started a small college at Tulsa, Oklahoma, but we heard, "That school is too far West. It should be near the center of the United States." It must have been too far from everybody, for it was not supported and miserably failed.

THE GEORGIA SCHOOL

Brother T. B. Millette, being an educated man and a Christian minister, saw the great need of Christian education so he began a work in Georgia; but our people would not support the work and Brother Millette was crucified by Free Will Baptists. I say, religiously crucified. His heart was almost broken over the failure.

THE BIBLE COLLEGE

The Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, came into existence through much prayer and sacrifice. It was very difficult for Brother Johnson, the president, to get qualified teachers, and had to use some of other denominations. He was criticized for using these teachers. I think he had to use a Methodist, and in the course of time, he was criticized and left the college for awhile. Finally, out of love for the cause, he came back. On one occasion his annual report was challenged on the floor of the National Association, and to offset the acceptance of the report, he was accused of allowing doctrine to be taught that was contrary to the Free Will Baptist belief. Finally, the report was accepted. Even today that act is remembered by some people, by this writer especially. It is different now. Men have been educated with sufficient degrees to man the Bible College without reaching out to some other denomination. If there are foreigners on the pay roll, this scribe does not know of such.

MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE

Here in North Carolina birth was given to a work, which was called Mount Allen College, and was housed at Cragmont Assembly, Inc. It was criticized. The head of the school, Brother Lloyd Vernon, was criticized. It was removed from Cragmont to Mount Olive, to a community where it was and has been appreciated and supported by the people; not because those fine people in Mount Olive and Goldsboro wanted to own or control it, as some few critics has claimed, but because they are a people that appreciate good things in their midst. Thus, they have given a helping hand in the ongoing of the college. The college has made a wonderful growth, under the leadership of Dr. William Burkette Raper, but seemingly we forget our past history and divisions began to come about. The school was even criticized for having support from Mount Olive and Goldsboro. (Now I shall make a statement that some will not like. That was the most silliest criticism that could be produced. The school criticized because it was appreciated and given a helping hand by the people who appreciate a good thing.)

Criticisms have grown and some of our best churches have been turned against Mount Olive College. Yes, because we have forgotten our past history. Dr. Raper has suffered criticism from people who should have been praying for him instead of throwing out destructive criticism. He almost went to the other world because of the attitude of some who should have been praying instead of cursing the college. Yes, we forgot our past history. Look at our educational institutions of the past. Failure after failure, criticism after criticism, destructive criticism heaped on men of integrity; men who were and are willing to suffer for the cause of Christ.

A DIVIDED PEOPLE

I said sometime ago, "We ought to strike from our hymnal the third verse of "Onward Christian Soldiers," for we are not one; we are a divided people; we have forgotten our past history.

BROTHER WALTER REYNOLDS SPEAKS

The State Convention sermon was delivered by our greatly beloved brother, the Rev. Walter Reynolds. He read all of James 4, and preached a very timely and forceful message; one that cried aloud against fightings, and condemnation was placed upon the results of fightings. "From whence comes wars and fightings among you? Come they not hence, even of your lust that war in your members?" (James 4: 1). Get your Bibles and read the whole chapter and see if you do not know what Brother Reynolds could have said, under such conditions, as were being manifest that day.

I have written this message, not because I dislike anyone, but I have written because I love the original Free Will Baptist doctrine. I love the memory of those who were motivating the work when I was a youngster in the ministry, and those whom I have labored for more than a half century, and I love our young ministers of today. I want to see love and Christian fellowship manifested. If we bite and devour each other much longer God is going to write ichabod over our heads. Let us not forget our history and have to live it over.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

UNKIND WORDS

I'M NOT going to walk home alone," pouted Helen, as she stood on the schoolhouse steps and saw her little friend, Bertha Lane, the banker's daughter, disappear around the corner, a block away.

Helen acted as if she were talking to herself, and pretended not to notice Vera, the janitor's daughter, who was standing near.

"I'll walk home with you," Vera said, with her usual sunny smile, "It's only a block out of my way, and I wouldn't mind that at all."

"No—I don't want you to walk home with me," Helen said, with a frown. "Look at your old ugly shoes and your patched stockings—they aren't like mine and Bertha's are. I guess it was you who turned my coat sleeve inside out and hung my hat on another peg, just to make me late."

Then Helen walked down the steps very slowly, for she was very unhappy; when she looked at Vera she saw two big teardrops rolling down her cheeks.

"No, Helen, I didn't touch your hat and coat," Vera answered, and her voice sounded as if there must be a big hurt in her heart, "and if your mother was sick all the time, your brother crippled, and your father had to pay nearly all his money for doctor bills, I guess you would not always wear new shoes and pretty dresses and silk stockings, either."

Then Vera walked slowly away and left Helen alone with her unhappy thoughts.

On her way home, Helen passed a lady and a little girl. Just when she was passing them, she heard the lady say, "Unkind words are like a sharp knife, and the hurt they make is always slow to heal."

At first Helen thought the lady was speaking to her, but it was only her guilty conscience that made her think so. She went right home and upstairs to her own room. She picked up her new shoes and her beautiful silk stockings and looked at them for a long time. Then she went to the stairs and called loudly, "Mamma, Mamma, come here!"

When her mother came, Helen said, "Mamma, may I give these shoes and stockings to Vera?" And she looked straight into her mother's eyes and waited for an answer.

When her mother noticed her little girl's lips were quivering, and that she was struggling hard to keep back the tears, she answered, "You certainly may—but what made you think of doing this?"

Then Helen told her the whole story about the unkind words she had spoken and the hurt they had made in Vera's heart. "You know, Mamma, it's like that verse Miss Hoy told us in Sunday school, about the tongue, 'How great a matter a little fire kindleth.' And, Mamma," she added, "I think if I ask her to forgive me, and then give her these, it will help to heal the ugly hurt spot in her heart. Don't you think so?"

Her mother agreed that it doubtless would. Then she took from a hanger a beautiful new dress, saying, "Helen, how would you like to give this to her, also? I can get another just like it for you. Then you and Vera will be dressed alike at school."

"Oh, Mamma, that would be beautiful!" Helen answered.

It was a happy little girl who went over to the janitor's house that evening! Not only was the hurt in Vera's heart healed, but the afflicted mother and the crippled brother and the hard-working father were made very happy also.—Exchange.

The Thousand Things

I CAN'T DO ANYTHING in this world!" said Marion. "I haven't money or talents, or anything—what's the use of trying?"

"You're just like everybody else who's clever, and strong and well," remarked Aunt Claire. "I don't see what you're complaining about. You have plenty of chances to do things."

"There was Betty this morning. Her doll's dress was all stained with that red sash. Betty was crying and it only made you nervous. You told her to be still but you didn't wash the little dress out for her. It would have taken you only about five minutes."

"But that's not exactly what I mean," Marion whined. "I want to do something special in the world."

"M-m-m," said Aunt Claire, "isn't Betty part of the world? This town and this street—aren't they in the world? You could do something special for every person in this neighborhood, one after another, if you really mean what you say."

"I once heard a preacher say, 'There are a thousand helpful things that we could do every year if we had eyes to see and a heart to feel, and the will to take some trouble to do them.' If you'd begun the thousand things with Betty this morning, the other 999 things would have been just that much easier to see."

Marion was painfully quiet for a while but she was planning her thousand things. The next morning Betty was surprised to find her doll's dress clean. A number of folk on the street were saying, "What a fine girl Marion is," as the thousand things were being done one by one.—Publisher Unknown.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRELL
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER HENRY A. DIXON

Elder Henry A. Dixon was born in Greene County, North Carolina, March 1826. In his early youth he was regarded as a good boy. He was a fond and affectionate father and a kind neighbor.

He was licensed to preach July 26, 1848 and ordained in the forepart of the year 1851. In the pulpit, according to his ability, he faithfully warned the people to flee the wrath to come. His praise is in those churches where he labored as preacher and pastor. Though his means for acquiring knowledge were limited, he succeeded in obtaining a good degree of information and became a successful preacher.

The night on which he died, he prayed and said many things of interest. A short time before his death he called two of the children to him, and took the baby in his arms and said to his wife, "This is a precious time." He then called the largest children to him, when his wife failed and he soon fell asleep in Jesus.

(Continued on page fifteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

White Oak Church Hosts Pee Dee Auxiliary Convention

Pee Dee District Woman's Auxiliary Convention will convene with White Oak Will Baptist Church, Bladenboro, Carolina, Saturday, October 1, 1960. Theme for the convention will be "Call to Give." The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- Registration
- Devotions, Mrs. Lettie Fowler
- Welcome, Mrs. Vivian Hester
- Response, Mrs. Nancy Hardec
- Special Music, Mrs. Hattie Adcox
- President's Message, Mrs. Mary Belle Pait
- News from Children's Home, the Rev. J. W. Everton
- Worship in Song
- Guest Speaker, the Rev. Carey Watkins
- Lunch

Afternoon Session

- Devotions, Mrs. Sarah Edwards
- News from Cragmont, Mrs. L. E. Ballard
- News from State Field Worker, Mrs. Carl Dudley
- Benediction

Mrs. Mary Belle Pait,
President
Mrs. Gladys Scott,
Secretary
Mrs. R. L. Gainey,
Corresponding Secretary
Mrs. Hattie Adcox,
Music Director

ep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening, September 13, 1960. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Smith, followed with prayer by Mrs. Boyette. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Dorothy Humphery. A discussion was held on forming a G.T.A. for all children. There were nine members present and one visitor. Mrs. Paul and Mrs. Norman Ard were appointed to represent the auxiliary at the Woman's Auxiliary Convention at Mount Olive College September 22.

Those taking part on the program were: Mrs. Mildred Cauley, Mrs. Clarice Merritt and Mrs. Laura Boyette. The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Ada Hines. Refreshments were served by Gwen Humphery and enjoyed by all.

New Bern, N. C.—The Anita Sparks Circle of St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church met September 15, 1960, at the home of Mrs. Marvin Davis, with Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Emmette Williams as hostesses. The program opened with Mrs. Lester Hughes reading Psalm 121. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Miller Harrison. The group then sang, "Break Thou the Bread of Life." Everyone welcomed the two new members, Mrs. Walt Golding and Mrs. David Alligood.

The circle elected the following officers to serve the coming year: Mrs. Miller Harrison, chairman; Mrs. Ralph Lightsey, vice-chairman; Mrs. Marvin Davis, recording secretary; Mrs. Lester Hughes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Emmette Williams, treasurer; Mrs. Walt Golding, program-prayer chairman; Mrs. Ralph Morris, Children's Home chairman; Mrs. Ross Phelps and Mrs. Make Miller, sick and cheer committee; Mrs. David Alligood, enlistment chairman; Mrs. Ray Jenkins, study course chairman; Mrs. Sonny Gaskins, personal service chairman.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Walt Golding.

Scotland Neck, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Hope Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Willie B. Hardy for its monthly meeting September 16. The meeting opened with the group singing "He Keeps Me Singing," followed with prayer by Mrs. Moore. John 10:1-16 was read by the president, Mrs. Nannie Harrell. Mrs. Lila Croom, the program chairman, had charge of the program. The topic for the evening was "Japan." Those taking part on the program were: Mrs. Irene Morris, Mrs. Allie Moore, Mrs. Lila Croom, Mrs. Agnes Eason and Mrs. Nannie Harrell.

During the business session the roll was called with 12 members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The hostess, Mrs. Willie B. Hardy, served delicious refreshments.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mrs. Omega Pulley

It was July 22, 1960, that God in His infinite mercy saw fit to call from us our loved one, Mrs. Omega Pulley. She has been in declining health for several months, but the end came very peacefully. She was a member of the Selma Free Will Baptist Church, Selma, North Carolina.

Surviving are her husband, Hubert Pulley, and four daughters, four sisters, two brothers and host of friends. Her funeral was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. James E. Raper, assisted by the Rev. Albert Coates.

She was a loyal member of the woman's auxiliary of her church. Her willingness to serve in any capacity in the auxiliary work will long be remembered by those who worked with her. She was a faithful worker in her home, church and community. Even in her last days she had a glowing testimony for the Lord.

Her presence will be missed, but her memory will remain in the hearts of her family and many friends. We feel that our loss is heaven's gain.

Selma Woman's Auxiliary

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas our heavenly Father saw fit to take from us on May 26, 1960, the soul of our brother, Charlie Thomas Jones, to the reward that he had laid up by consistent Christian service, we therefore resolve to bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well;

Whereas Brother Jones was a consistent member and chairman of our official board, being one of our oldest deacons in service, also superintendent of our Sunday school here at Bridgeton, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church;

We, the official board and members of the aforesaid church, resolve that we will endeavor to support to our utmost ability the work that he so much loved and worked for while among us. We offer our heartfelt sympathy to his faithful wife, Mrs. Clara Ipock Jones, a daughter, Joyce, and a son, Charlie Jr., and pray God's richest blessings to rest upon them.

Resolve that a copy of these resolutions be placed in the minutes of our church, a copy sent to The Free Will Baptist for publication, and a copy sent to the family.

Official Board of the Bridgeton Church

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

Three Members Added To College Board

The addition of two laymen and a minister to the Board of Directors of Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, has increased the size of the board from twelve to fifteen members. Elected to the college board at the 1960 session of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists were Dr. James W. Batten, professor of education at East Carolina College, Jack J. Dail, farmer of Ayden, and the Rev. J. O. Fort, former editor of the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, and also former professor of French at Mount Olive College, and now pastor of Harmony Free Will Baptist Church, Lake Butler, Florida.

In announcing these additions to the Board of Directors, President W. Burkette Raper noted that a majority of the board is now composed of laymen, including two women.

Free Will Baptist Church Welcomes Students to Mount Olive College

One of the highlights of the opening week of school at Mount Olive College was a reception given students by the local Free Will Baptist church. Sponsored by the woman's auxiliary and held in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Johnson, the reception was attended by students, faculty and administration.

Shown in the above picture are, left to right: Dean Michael Pelt, greeting Miss Billy Rae Stroud of Deep Run, M. L. Johnson, pastor of the local church, greeting Frank Harrison, a returning ministerial student from Williamston, and Mrs. M. L. Johnson, president of local auxiliary, greeting Vivian Beaman, sophomore from Walstonburg.

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, or feature articles, for publication in "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your item processed earlier.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page ten)

each service will feature special music. pastor, the Rev. C. L. Patrick, requests prayers for this revival and the work of church. He extends a very cordial invitation to the public to attend these serv-

Ayden, N. C., Church Schedules Home-Coming, Revival Oct. 9

The Ayden Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden, North Carolina, has announced plans for its annual home-coming day, scheduled for Sunday, October 9, 1960. All members, former members, former pastors and friends of the church are urged to attend this service. The day's activities will include Sunday school at 9:45 a. m., morning worship at 11:00 a. m., league at 7:00 p. m., and evening services at 8:00 p. m.

The Rev. Wilbert Everton, superintendent of the Children's Home at Middleburg, North Carolina, will be the guest speaker. This will also be the opening service for a week of revival services to be conducted by the Rev. Everton, who is a well known evangelist in this area.

Allen's Chapel Church Host to Polk Bayou Association Meeting

The Allen's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Batesville, Arkansas, was the host to the annual district meeting of the Polk Bayou Association on September 9, 1960. During the business session delegates to the Arkansas State Association were elected.

Two young men were licensed and two young ministers were ordained to preach the gospel. The licentiates are Tommy and Kenneth Manuel, sons of Deacon and Mrs. Cleo Manuel of Batesville, Arkansas. Also ordained are J. W. Roach, son of Deacon and Mrs. J. A. Roach near Cave City, Arkansas, and Hoover Lewis, son of the Rev. H. A. Lewis of Batesville, Arkansas.

The Rev. Bob King is pastor of the church.

Spring Branch Church to Observe Home-Coming

Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Walstonburg, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on October 2, 1960. Sunday school will be at 10:00 a. m., and the morning worship service to follow. The speaker will be the Rev. A. B. Bryan, former pastor of the Spring Branch Church. Mr. Bryan is now serving as pastor of the Union Church, Beaufort County. There will be special music during the afternoon service.

The Rev. Ed. Miles is pastor of the Spring Branch Church. A cordial invitation is extended to all former pastors, friends and relatives to attend this service.

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Adoration of God

(Lesson for October 9)

Text: Psalm 24:1-10.

Lesson Text: Ephesians 3:20, 21.

INTRODUCTION

Without doubt the great majority of mankind desire to spend eternity in heaven, but mere good works is not enough as Verses 3 to 6 will show us. Jesus Christ tells us in John 13:8 that we must obtain clean hands and a pure heart. There is a timely lesson of warning in the following homely illustration:

“Show Christ not the Crowd. A man driving his automobile along the highway suddenly discovered that all traffic included there was a detour ahead and he halted the traffic. After driving for some distance he hailed a pedestrian and said, ‘Why does this detour end?’”

“There ain’t no detour,” came the reply, “you are following a funeral procession to the cemetery.”

Many people, although they don’t know it, are really following some funeral procession to the cemetery. They think they are driving somewhere and they are, but not to the place they think they are going. They really want to go. They are off the highway and on the road that leads to the cemetery. Before you decide to follow the crowd, make sure that the crowd is headed in the right direction and going to the place where you want to go.—The Bible, 1953 (F.W.B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

For our lesson today our attention is directed upon the Twenty-Fourth Psalm. This is one of a trilogy. Psalm 22 pictures our Saviour dying for our sins, and has been called the Psalm of the Cross. Psalm 23 presents Him as the Great Shepherd, leading His people safely through the world of sin, sorrow and danger. It has been aptly designated as the Psalm of the Shepherd or a shepherd’s staff.

Following this, in beautiful order, Psalm 24 carries us on to the crowning day, our blessed Lord, having conquered sin and put down all His foes, will take His kingdom in power and glory, and so think of it as the Psalm of the Crown. The book of Psalms is to many the most precious portion of Holy Scripture, because in it they find set forth their own moods and emotions expressed in such a way as to draw their hearts out to the Lord Himself.

5. It is precious indeed to think of Him, who once hung, a bleeding victim, on Calvary’s Cross, as the triumphant King of glory, to whom all the universe shall yet be subject.

6. While in the present dispensation of the grace of God all believers are bidden to come with boldness to a throne of grace, it is, nevertheless, incumbent upon us to see that we come with clean hands and a pure heart.

7. No one can have confidence in or enjoy the presence of God whose conscience condemns him because of unjudged sin in the life.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. “The earth is the LORD’S, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods” (Psalm 24:1, 2).

It was 1900 and I was a young ministerial student at College of the Pacific. One day, by accident, I found an astronomy book published in 1850. I thumbed through it, found Sirius, the Dog Star, with its ascensions and declinations—and began wondering: Where is Sirius now? Since that book was published, Sirius had risen and set 365 times a year for 50 years, or 18,250 times—plus a few extra appearances on leap years?

It was four p. m. The sun was still quite high in the sky, as I walked over to the observatory and opened the dome. I trained the scope on the spot where, according to my calculations, drawn from the old book, Sirius should appear in five minutes. Then, nervously curious, I watched.

Right on the split second, there across the first thread of the micrometer, flashed Sirius; on time, down to the finest measurement. Instantly, I thought of the countless other stars racing through the heavens, like Sirius on time through all the ages.

I bowed my head in awe. God, the master mechanic of our universe, and His majestic timepieces in space were far beyond mere human ken. It was a lesson I’ll never forget.—E. H. Smith in The Sunday School Times.

2. Please study in our quarterlies the comments on Verses 7 to 10 inclusive. There is not space here to treat these wonderful verses as they deserve.

3. The Bible abounds in poetry of the very highest character, though this is not always discernible on the page of our Authorized Version. In the Revised and other versions the poetical portions are distinguished from prose by being printed in separate lines. Hebrew poetry is quite different from that to which we are accustomed. It does not depend on rhyme or necessarily upon rhythm as its distinguishing characteristics; but it is more like what we call blank verse. Very often one line expresses a thought which is duplicated in the next under different words, or one line is in definite contrast to that which follows. Poetry is the language of the emotions and expresses the deepest feelings of the human heart. When in addition to this we have divine inspiration, we can understand readily why the poetry of the Bible rises above the very finest lyrical expressions of the natural mind. The book of Psalms is, of course, the outstanding poetical portion of the Old Testament.—Selected.

The Lighted Pathway

(Continued from page nine)

believe on Christ as Saviour, and continue to live for and obey Him, was the grand object which God must have had in view in the gift of His Son.

Someone has very aptly written, “The grace is infinitely rich which bestows eternal life on worms of the dust. Strange that those who deserve hell shall stand before the throne in heaven. This will ever be to the glory of boundless, free, sovereign, omnipotent grace.”

“The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly” (John 10:10).

Indelible Imprints

(continued from page twelve)

He died on October 29, 1868. He bore his sickness with great patience and Christian fortitude. He has gone to his reward, to meet the blood-washed saints of the Lord Jesus Christ. He has laid aside the Cross and taken up the Crown in glory.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page fourteen)

State Convention Gives College Its Support

The North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, meeting at Elm Grove Church, Ayden, on September 14, 15, gave Mount Olive Junior College its support in meeting the budget of $187,986 for the fiscal year, 1960-61. The convention adopted the entire report of the college which was presented by the president, Dr. Wm. Burkette Raper.

Revival Services in Progress At Spring Hill Church

Revival services began at Spring Hill Free Will Baptist Church four miles west of Goldsboro, North Carolina, on Sunday night, September 25, and will continue throughout the week. The Rev. J. Wilbert Everton, superintendent of the Children's Home at Middlesex, North Carolina, is the evangelist. The pastor, the Rev. Vernon Barbour, extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend the remaining services of this revival.

Sandy Plain Church Announces Fall Revival, October 3-8

The Sandy Plain Free Will Baptist Church located between Pink Hill and Beulaville, North Carolina, announces its fall revival October 3-8, with the Rev. C. Shledon Howard as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The church and pastor, the Rev. Gene Outland, extends an invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Revival Services at Daly's Chapel October 2-8

Revival services will be held October 2-8 at Daly's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Seven Springs, North Carolina, with the Rev. David W. Hansley, pastor of the Kinston Free Will Baptist Church, as the evangelist. Services will begin at 7:30 each evening. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Dr. Raper to Deliver Pine Level Home-Coming Message

The Pine Level, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church will observe its home-coming Sunday, October 9, 1960, with Dr. W. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, bringing the home-coming message. The activities of the day will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., followed with the worship service at 11:00. At the noon hour a picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds. The afternoon services will consist of special music, talks by former pastors and former members, etc.

The pastor, the Rev. R. H. Jackson, extends a cordial invitation to all members, former members, former pastors and friends to attend these services and enjoy a day of fellowship together.

Coming Events

October 5—Western District Woman's Auxiliary Convention of N. C., Pleasant Plains Church, Kenly

October 4, 5—Annual Missionary Conference, Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee

October 19, 20—Eastern Conference of N. C., Sts. Delight Church, Craven County

November 3, 4—Cape Fear Conference of N. C., Goldsboro Church, Goldsboro

November 4, 5—Florida State Association, Unity Church, Jacksonville, Florida

Will America Vote Away Her Freedom?

(continued from page four)

able publicity to the Roman Catholic priesthood, but nothing about the persecutions going on today, not even mentioning the incident in Michigan when Rev. Guilherme Griffin, a missionary from Taubate, Sao Paulo, Brazil, landed in the states a few months ago, he said at a Gideon Rally that a reporter met him at the airport, inquiring about conditions in Brazil. When Mr. Griffin began to tell him about how the Protestants were being persecuted in Brazil by Catholics, he said the reporter told him that he could not print that. Many editors fear the wrath of Rome, because boycott of a publication would mean financial loss. In that way, they control the press for the most part. When the five missionaries to the Aucas Indians were killed, the papers and magazines were full about it, but not a word about the many Christians that have been murdered and their property destroyed by Catholics in Colombia for the last several years. Neither how preachers were killed and their homes sacked and burned by Catholics in Mexico. Other Protestants were hanged or slain with machetes. Some were dragged to death by horses, and women violated, between 1944 and 1952. remained for the news magazine Tien published in Mexico City, to tell of priest-led mobs murdering, pillaging, raping helpless Protestants. Few politicians in the United States dare openly oppose Catholic wish. They intimidate congressmen and silence opposition, and collect vast sums from the public treasury. Eventually political pressure will turn to religious persecutions. A letter from David Howie in Cartagena, Colombia, says that evangelical leaders have been recently warned to close their work or homes will be burned and their lives endangered.

Expedience might dictate a policy of waiting before putting on the pressure in the United States, but it would succeed in due time. A learned Jesuit, when asked about the future of the Catholic church in this country, thundered with flaming eyes, "Today, tomorrow or a century from now, it makes no difference, we will subdue the earth to the greater glory of God." Rome extends to the American people a seemingly friendly hand, but in double talks. It is only to get America under her grip. America is under attack, and a few, comparatively speaking, are aware of the fact. There are nations today where schools, public or private, are required by law to teach Catholic doctrine. The present Pope told educators, "The rights of the church come before those of the state. Their schools are not to help the child individually, but to make him a more obedient subject to Rome. He is not taught moral learning. He is taught loyalty to Rome, only the blind can fail to see the thread that today hangs over our cherished principles of our freedom of religion and American way of life. The Catholic church has never shifted her objective to rule the world. It is just as totalitarian as Communism. They have too much in common." (1) Both oppose separation of church and state; (2) both suppress freedom of press, thought, speech and worship; (3) both oppose free public schools; (4) both lowerers of their ideology must pay homage to a foreign temporal ruler (the King or the Vatican); (5) both use violence to achieve their goals. It is a more serious enemy than Communism. No less a historian and scholar than H. G. Wells, in his book, "Crux Ansata" has given us a stinging indictment of the Roman Catholic church of their political trickery and intrigues leading up to its tie-up with the Nazi-Fascist Shinto axes.

(Continued Next Week)

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
OCT 1960
DURHAM

DS

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 5, 1960

Free Will Baptist Bible College Students and Faculty—September, 1960

A record enrollment of 208 students for the fall semester has brought on campus of the Bible College the largest group of Christian young people in the history of the school. The student body includes 191 day students and 17 evening students. This group also includes approximately 100 future ministers and missionaries.

Superannuation Work in North Carolina

What Is Superannuation?

The work of superannuation in North Carolina is that of assisting the retired or disabled ministers and minister's widows. The average number of ministers and minister's widows on the superannuated list is about fifty. The retired or disabled minister receives a small monthly pension check and minister's widows receive a small quarterly pension check.

The program of superannuation is supported by gifts from the various church groups. Ministers and minister's widows are placed on the superannuated list after having made application and the application being approved by the board.

There was a ministerial retirement system moved at the 1952 session of the State Convention. This is a system whereby the churches and pastors may work together in building up a fund from which the ministers may draw their pension upon their retirement. The following is a copy of that

Ministerial Retirement System

In order to help the ministers and other Christian workers of our great denomination to provide for their retirement or disability, the Board of Superannuation offers the following plan:

Membership: Those ministers or Christian workers of our denomination who are regularly employed by churches or other organizations of the denomination or our members may become members of this system meeting the following requirements:

There shall be an agreement between the employee and employer that they both enter this system by paying into the funds of this system equal amounts.

The above agreement shall be the payment into the funds of this system a designated percentage of the employee's salary received as compensation for service rendered and a like amount paid into the funds of this system by the employer. This payment shall be made not less than monthly.

Investment of Funds: The funds of this system shall be faithfully invested in an effort to increase the benefits for those entering the system. All earnings of the fund shall become a part of this fund and the amount that shall be used for the operating expense of the administration of this system. Gifts may also be made directly to this fund by those desiring to help provide greater benefits for our retired and disabled ministers. True and faithful records shall be kept of the payments into the fund by the member employers and employees and there shall be declared an annual dividend for each member based upon the earnings of the fund and the amount paid into the fund by the members.

3—Withdrawal from the System: Any employee member of this system may withdraw from the system at any time, but shall not be allowed to receive in refund more than the actual amount he or she has paid into the fund. In such case the employer member shall be permitted to determine the disposition of the actual amount paid by them. The accumulated profits for such member shall revert back to the funds of the system.

4—Benefits: At the time of retirement or permanent disability the minister or Christian worker shall begin receiving the payments of a pension based on the following schedule:

Payment of 1% of salary—Pension,	$ 50.00
2% of salary—Pension,	62.50
3% of salary—Pension,	75.00
4% of salary—Pension,	87.50
5% of salary—Pension,	100.00

In cases where a member has paid varying percentages the monthly pension shall be based upon an average percentage for the time payments have been made.

These payments shall continue so long as the amount paid in by the member and his employer plus the accumulated earnings of the member shall last.

In case of the death of the member before all the benefits have been received, the remaining balance shall continue to be paid in like amounts to the widow or widower of the member. In the case of the death of both parties and in the event of the absence of provisions contained in a last will and testament the remaining balance shall revert back into the funds of this system.

5—Retirement and Disability: The age of retirement under this system shall be sixty-five (65). Permanent disability before the age of sixty-five (65) shall be established by a statement from the Moderator and Clerk of the conference or association to which the member belongs and from the member's family physician stating that it is their opinion that the member is permanently disabled to continue his employment.

6—Administration of the Ministerial Retirement System: The Board of Superannuation shall be charged with the responsibility of administering this system. Upon the adoption of this plan by the convention the Board of Superannuation shall proceed to have suitable contracts and blanks prepared and offer this system to our ministers and Christian workers. The Board of Superannuation shall proceed to have suitable contracts and blanks prepared and offer this system to our ministers and Christian workers. The Board of Superannuation shall secure competent legal advice in preparing said contracts and blanks.

The North Carolina Board of Superannuation co-operates in the National program of Superannuation by sending 10% of all regular receipts.

What Can You Do For Superannuation?

YOU as a layman, can assist your church and pastor in making regular gifts to this most worthy cause. The layman of our churches should give attention to the needs of disabled and retiring ministers.

YOU as a minister should be concerned about your future. What will you live on when you are no longer able to pastor churches? NOW is the time to make plans and preparation for the future.

ALL funds for superannuation should be sent to: Walter Reynolds, Route 2, Snow Hill, North Carolina.

BOARD OF SUPERANNUATION of the NORTH CAROLINA FREE WILL BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION

- Rev. Walter Reynolds
Chairman-Treasurer.....Snow Hill
- Mr. Owen Thomas
Vice-Chairman.....Four Oaks
- Rev. C. W. Maness
MemberWadesboro
- Mr. M. V. Avery
MemberSelma
- Mrs. Walter Rhodes
MemberBeulaville

Will America Vote Away Her

FREEDOM?

Romanism is Satan's masterpiece. Communism represents the powers of darkness in their Roaring Lion aspect (1 Peter 5:8), while Catholicism represents the evil one in his angel of light manifestation (2 Corinthians 11:13-15). And while other nations are throwing off the yoke of Rome, the inevitable uprising of people who have lived and suffered under the tyranny of the Roman Catholic church; it seems that the land of the free is crawling under it. She makes a show with the wealth she has taken from persecuted Protestants, and fees charged to her own for services rendered. The Catholic pays for his baptism, when he kneels before saints, at the confessionals, masses for the dead, etc. A Baptist minister from New York said a poor Catholic woman had a death in her family, and because she had no money, the priest would not hold the funeral. So she went around after him. Christ said, "... freely ye have received, freely give" (Matthew 10:8). Christian workers in foreign countries where Catholics rule say, "Many times well-nourished priests collect outrageous fees, and build elaborate cathedrals, while the poverty-stricken people in their diocese are in rags and eat things that would sicken people in the United States. We are told that the Vatican palace has 1400 rooms and 500 telephones, one of them gold for the Pope, and that devout Catholics kneel in the street when the Pope passes in his golden chariot. Those that have visited the Vatican say the whole Vatican city, especially the Vatican palace, is replete with gold, silver, pearls and all precious stones in abundance. It is evidently this church that is described in Revelation 17-18. How different the Pope is from the one he is, supposed to represent, "... but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head" (Matthew 8:10); and how different from Peter, whom they claim as their first Pope. "... Silver and gold have I none; ..." (Acts 3:6). Real Bible students know that the Catholic church is not the church founded by the man of Calvary. Christ commands, "Search the scriptures: ..." (John 5:39). Rome knows an open Bible, without notes, spells her doom. So Catholics are told they cannot understand the Bible, that no one but the Pope can understand it (one told me that), therefore, they do not study it, and can be deceived. God says, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, ..." (Hosea 4:6).

(Continued from Last Week)

Mrs. Ruth Timby, Eureka, North Carolina

The Bible also tells us, "... ye need not that any man teach you: ..." (1 John 2:27), but "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, ..." (John 7:17). "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Timothy 2:5). The high priest in the Old Testament was a type of Christ until Christ came and fulfilled the types (Hebrew 7:23-28). But now every Christian is a priest (1 Peter 2:5), and we are to confess our faults one to another (James 5:16); not to a special priest. A Christian is not to lord it over the others (1 Peter 5:1-3). "And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven" (Matthew 23:9). "But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matthew 15:9). Catholics are told they must take what is spooned out to them from their professors, and that they must not question any dogma of the church of Rome; that it alone is the true church, and is the divine repository of all truth. Of course, his studies are rigidly restricted to those things his teachers want him to know; therefore, in that way they are able to control the thinking of vast populations by keeping them in fear of the Pope and priest, even making and breaking kings. Once when I was talking to a Catholic young lady about the Bible, she suddenly remarked, "I don't know what the priest would do to me if he knew I was listening to you."

Senator Kennedy has already shown whom he will obey, when he refused to speak at a meeting where Jews and Protestants had a part because his spiritual advisor requested him not to do so. Catholics, thinking they must take what the priest say, are taught the superstitions of the mass, indulgences, baptism for salvation, purgatory, confession and forgiveness of sins by priest, and that disobedience to the Pope is treason to God, and thereby incurs eternal damnation. Therefore Catholics, who are very nice people after the flesh, were whipped into a frenzy by priest, and filled with excitement, fearing what the priest might do to them or their family if they did not obey, have been known to become dangerous citizens in many lands.

It was a Catholic that murdered Lincoln John Wilkes Booth. The president said, "If the American people could know what I know of the fierce hatred of the priest of Rome against our institutions, schools, our most sacred rights and liberties, they would drive them from among us. Lincoln's assassination was announced more than twelve hours before it occurred, by Roman Catholics at St. Joseph, Minnesota, which speaks for itself. Mary Surratt, in whose home the murder was planned, was hanged, but her son, John Surratt, fled to Rome and was concealed and protected by the Pope of Rome. There is an oath in the Congressional Record, Washington, D. C., Vol. 49, Pt. 4, February 15, 1913, Page 3216, too lengthy to give here, but in part it reads, "I do for opportunity presents, make and wage relentless war, secretly and openly, against heretics, Protestants and Masons ... I neither spare age, sex, or condition, and I will hang, burn, waste, boil, flay, strangle and burn alive those infamous heretics Knights of Columbus. They deny this oath but it is in the Congressional Record speak for itself. (The Catholics refer to it as a bogus oath. Editor.) But when I have been taught such things from the earliest years, though there is not one word of Scripture to support the doctrine of the Catholic church, it takes nothing less than a miracle to dislodge such false teaching. A case in point, during the second world war, a Catholic soldier, who held a degree of Doctor of Philosophy, said, "He did not believe all was told him about the Pope and the priest, but nevertheless the fact remains that they have a lot of say-so about where I shall spend eternity, so I go along with them right or wrong."

How true the Scriptures "... I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the

. . . That no flesh should glory in presence. . . Christ Jesus, who of God made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, (1 Corinthians 1:19, 29, 30). And no one will not let Christ be their wisdom, they lay themselves open to be deceived by ". . . the devil and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: . . ." (Revelation 12:9). However, many Protestants just as deceived as Catholics, not study their Bibles either. Therefore, depend on what they think, or their church membership, or something they do (Titus 2:14), instead of the finished work of Christ (1 John 19:30; Romans 3:28). The Protestant church does not save any more than the Catholic church. It is Christ that saves. I am the way, the truth, and the life: man cometh unto the Father, but by me (John 14:6); not by me, the Pope or priest. ". . . as many as received him, he gave them the power to become the sons of God, . . ." (John 1:12). "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son hath not life" (1 John 5:12). Salvation is a person, not a creed (Luke 2:20). ". . . we have access by faith into grace wherein we stand. . ." (Romans 5:2); not by the Pope, or our good works (Hebrews 2:8, 9).

We are not dealing with personalities, but with a system that is a potential threat to our cherished liberties. There are many good people that are Catholics, but they are deceived people; however, when they get saved they make some of the most wonderful Christians. I heard a converted Catholic priest tell how he used to persecute Protestants, and the way the Protestants turned good for evil (Matthew 5:44). Because of the joy they had in their Christ, he knew they had something he did not have. So they were able to lead him to Christ (Romans 12:20, 21). May the Lord bless many more with the truth is my prayer.

However, if the Lord does allow a Catholic to be independent it will be for chastening of Christians who are careless of their walk and service (Hebrew 12:6-14), and judgment on the unsaved for they ". . . neglect so great light: . . ." (Hebrew 2:3). (See Hebrews 10:26-30; Matthew 13:14, 15; Luke 12:2; 2 Thessalonians 2:9-12.) The great pity today is the stupid ignorance of Protestants concerning their own God-bought freedoms. When President John Adams of Colombia was asked by some Protestants if Colombia would honor her constitution to grant religious liberty (1795), he replied, "I cannot answer that. I have to consult the Catholic bishop." When she gains the power to enforce her will, Rome must, according to her own laws, deal with us who she considers has the same rights, in the United States. She is only biding her time. Most Protes-

Special Offer for Beginning Your Church Library

The Free Will Baptist Press is offering the following list of books for those churches which are planning to begin a church library. The list includes a $10.00 library and a $25.00 library. Those ordering either of these will receive a five per cent bonus in books.

TEN ($10.00) LIBRARY

PRE-SCHOOL OR FIRST AND SECOND GRADE

Little Boy Jesus, Al Bryant, Price 50c
The Little White Bible That Grew, Louis Paul Lehman, Price 50c

JUNIOR

The Shepherd Boy of Bethlehem, A Ladybird book, Price 59c
Sugar Creek Gang, Hutchens, Price $1.25 (Also available are in one of the Three Baers series or the Bobbsey Twin series.)

YOUNG PEOPLE

What Every Christian Girl Should Know, William W. Orr, Price, 30c
What Every Christian Boy Should Know, William W. Orr, Price, 30c
Roads to Radiant Living, Charles Allen, Price $2.00
In His Steps, Charles M. Sheldon, Price $1.00
A Girl to Come Home to, Grace Livingston Hill, Price $1.95

DOCTRINE

Practical and Perplexing Questions, R. A. Torrey, Price 39c

EVANGELISM

Scripture Memorizing and Successful Personal Work, Oscar Lowry, Price 15c

STEWARDSHIP

Kept for the Master's Use, Havergal, Price 39c

tants will not likely awaken from our complacency until persecution comes.

"If my people which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land" (2 Chronicles 7:14). (See John 14:14; 15:7.)

Books that everyone should read: "The Life and Times of Martin Luther," by J. H. Merle D'Aubigne; "Fox's Book of Martyrs" and "American Freedom and Catholic Power," by Paul Blanshard; "Behind the Purple Curtain," by Dr. W. M. Mantano; "Ravens Wolves," by Miss Moniea Farrell; "Fifth Years in the Church of Rome," by Father Chinquy; "Assassins in the Name of God," by M. Herve Lauricre; "Out of the Labyrinth," by L. H. Lehman; "The Monk Who Lived Again," by Dr. B. H. Pearson.

MISSIONS

May select from books about the lives of David Brainerd, Mary Slessor or David Livingstone, Price $1.00

PRAYER

The Prayer Life, Andrew Murray, Price 39c

TWENTY-FIVE ($25.00) LIBRARY

PRE-SCHOOL OR FIRST AND SECOND GRADE

Little Boy Jesus, Al Bryant, 50c
The Little White Bible That Grew, Louis Paul Lehman, Price 50c

JUNIOR

The Shepherd Boy of Bethlehem, A Ladybird Book, Price 59c
The Child of the Temple, A Ladybird Book, Price 59c
The Three Baers, Bertha B. Moore, Price $1.25 (Selection may also be made from the Triplets series or the Sugar Creek Gang series.)

YOUNG PEOPLE

What Every Christian Girl Should Know, William W. Orr, Price 30c
What Every Christian Boy Should Know, William W. Orr, Price 30c
How to Know the Will of God, William W. Orr, Price 30c
How to Pick a Wife, William W. Orr, Price 30c
Ten Reasons Why I Believe the Bible to Be the Word of God, William W. Orr, Price 30c
Your Christian Wedding, William W. Orr, Price 30c
Roads to Radiant Living, Charles Allen, Price $2.00
In His Steps, Charles M. Sheldon, Price $1.00
A Girl to Come Home To, Grace Livingston Hill, Price $1.95

DOCTRINE

The Great Doctrines of the Bible, William Evans, Price $3.00

EVANGELISM

Scripture Memorizing and Successful Personal Work, Oscar Lowry, Price 15c

STEWARDSHIP

Kept by the Master's Use, Havergal, Price 39c

Shadow of the Almighty, Elisabeth Elliot, Price $3.75 (Selections may also be made from the books of the lives of David Brainerd, Mary Slessor or David Livingstone, $1.00 Each.)

PRAYER

Praying Hyde, Miller, Price $1.50

HISTORY

History of the Free Will Baptists, G. W. Million, Price $3.00

Pocket Concordance and Bible Guide, Price, $1.95

NEWS NOTES

Piney Grove Church Announces Revival

The fall revival at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist near Kenly, North Carolina, will begin Sunday evening, October 9 and continue through Saturday, October 15, with the Rev. W. L. Poythress, the pastor, as speaker. Services will be held each evening at 7:30.

REV. W. L. POYTHRESS

The pastor invites his many friends and the public to come and be with them in this service. If you can't attend, please pray for them.

Fremont Church Announces Fall Revival

The Fremont Free Will Baptist Church, Fremont, North Carolina, announces its fall revival October 9-16, with the Rev. Boyd L. Shook, Kenly, North Carolina, as evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:45, and each service will feature special music.

The church and pastor, the Rev. W. E. Renfrow, extends a very cordial invitation to the public to attend these services.

Rev. J. C. Lynn to Conduct Aspen Grove Revival

The Rev. J. C. Lynn, Elm City, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for revival services at the Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Fountain, North Carolina, October 9-15. Services will begin each evening at 7:45, with the pastor, the Rev. L. B. Manning, conducting the song service.

The pastor extends an invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Palmetto F.W.B. Church Announces Revival

The fall revival at Palmetto Free Will Baptist Church, located three miles north of Vanceboro, North Carolina, will begin October 17 with the Rev. Milton Worthington of Parker's Chapel Church, as the evangelist. The services will continue throughout the week. Special music will be presented each night by various singing groups.

The church and pastor, the Rev. Melvin Worthington, extends a special invitation to all to come and enjoy these services.

Fellowship F.W.B. Church Announces Successful Rally Day

Rally Day was held at the Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church, Kingsport, Tennessee, September 18, which was a great day in the history of Fellowship Church. A record attendance of 388 was present for Sunday school. During the morning service, Mr. Daniel Rhoten, shown in picture, was honored for eleven years of continuous service, without missing a Sunday. He has had perfect attendance since the church was organized. The charter members of the church were also recognized.

Charter Members of Church

Mr. Clarence Smith Pinning Pen on Mr. Rhoten

Dr. L. C. Johnson, president of the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, presented a very challenging message on "Following Jesus."

The Rev. Thomas Willey, missionary Cuba, was speaker for the evening service. These men challenged all to be effective for the Lord Jesus Christ. The pastor, Rev. Winston Sweeney, states, "We pray that all remember our church in prayer as we go forth for the Lord."

Revival in Progress at Holly Springs Church

Revival services are now in progress at Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church near Kenly, North Carolina. Services began Sunday, October 2, and will continue through Saturday, October 8. Services beginning each evening at 7:30, with the pastor, the Rev. W. L. Poythress, delivering the message.

Mr. Poythress invites his many friends and the public to come and be with them in this service.

(continued on page eight)

Coming Events

- October 12, 13—Western Conference N. C., Micro Church, Micro
- October 18-20—State Association of Tennessee, Wooddale Church, Knoxville, Tenn.
- October 19, 20—Eastern Conference N. C., Sts. Delight Church, Craven County
- November 3, 4—Cape Fear Conference N. C., Goldsboro Church, Goldsboro
- November 4, 5—Florida State Association Unity Church, Jacksonville, Florida
- November 9, 10—Central Conference N. C., Free Union Church, Greene County
- November 15-17—Georgia State Association, Baxley, Georgia

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Prayer and Praise Letter

September 15, 1960

Dear Christian Friend:

We live in a day of unprecedented missionary challenge. This is true because there are so many millions of souls who are in spiritual darkness. Never before were we so dependent upon so few.

The challenge is intensified by the fact that many doors around the world are be- closed to missionaries. Certainly every Christian should view this with alarm and increased effort to hurry with the gospel message while doors are still open.

Three Will Baptists now have seven fami- lies and a single lady who are doing deputa- tion work to raise their support for their second term on the mission field. They are Dr. LaVerne Mileys, the Bill Fulchers, the Paul Robinsons, the Bobby Aycocks, the Bobby Pooles, the John Moehlmans, the Annie Palmers, and Miss Mary Ellen Rice. In addition to the funds needed to get new missionaries on the field, several hundred dollars are needed to get the Cal- verys back to Japan for their second term.

How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have never heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, unless they be sent? . . ." (Romans 10:14, 15) We are counting on you to help send these wonderful young people whom God has appointed to go.

We now have only thirty adult American missionaries on foreign fields. With an increase of fifty per cent in personnel, obviously there must be much increased financial support. This must be additional support otherwise the missionaries now on the field and the general fund will suffer. In fact as you can see from the financial report the general fund is dangerously low.

Perhaps you have already given sacrificial help to get these new missionaries on the field. If so, you have made an investment in eternal souls. If not, I trust that you will yet discharge your responsibility in this regard.

FROM AFRICA: Following are excerpts from a recent letter from the Sparks in Africa:

"The Ivory Coast celebrated its independence last Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Things seem to remain steady. We are thankful for that and trust that nothing will hinder our labors.

"On the translation of the Gospel of Mark, I am well into the tenth chapter. Along with this, I have been able to translate one verse of There Is a Fountain and three verses of Oh, for a Thousand Tongues."

The Sparks are at the Co-Laborer Station located at Goumcre. This was the first station built in Africa. It was built with funds raised by the W.N.A.C.

ANNUAL MISSIONARY CONFERENCE: The annual missionary conference, which is sponsored by the home and foreign mission boards, will be held at the Bible College in Nashville on October 4, 5.

Speakers for the conference will include the Rev. Homer E. Willis, Dr. and Mrs. LaVerne Miley, the Rev. and Mrs. Bill Fulcher, Miss Molly Barker, the Rev. and Mrs. John Moehlman, the Rev. and Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin, the Rev. Roy Thomas, the Rev. and Mrs. Bobby Aycock and the Rev. and Mrs. Bobby Poole.

On Wednesday night, the Aycocks, the Fulchers, the Pooles and the Mileys will be commissioned as foreign missionaries. The Thomases and the Godwins will be commissioned as home missionaries.

MOEHLMANS COMMISSIONED: Rev. and Mrs. John Moehlman were recently commissioned as missionaries to Latin America in their home church, First Free Will Baptist Church of Bryan, Texas. Dr. Miley delivered the sermon. The pastor, the Rev. James Evans, gave the charge to the church, and the Rev. Rolla Smith gave the charge to the Moehlmans. The Rev. C. B. Thompson led the commissioning prayer.

MISSIONARY'S FATHER CRITICALLY ILL: The Rev. Wesley Calvery flew to Waco, Texas, from St. Louis, Missouri, on September 5, to be at the bedside of his father who is critically ill with cancer.

Substitutions are being made for some of the Rev. Calvery's scheduled services. Your prayers for the family will be appreciated.

MISSIONARY COUPLE MARRIED: On September 4, the Rev. Bobby Poole and Miss Geneva Hicks were married. They will be going to Brazil as soon as their support is raised.

PROMOTIONAL-SECRETARY ON THE FIELD: The Rev. Louis Moulton, who suffered a heart attack in May, has been given permission by his doctor to resume his duties. He is now working in the state of North Carolina.

CONFERENCES IN MISSOURI: Seven churches in the Lead Belt of Missouri co-operated in a simultaneous missionary conference August 31—September 4.

A missionary rally was held on Sunday afternoon in Fredericktown with several other churches represented. Speakers for these meetings were the Calverys, the Moehlmans, the Mileys and Rolla Smith.

Sincerely in Christ,
Rolla D. Smith
General Director

Financial Statement Foreign Missions Board August, 1960

Cash in Bank August 1, 1960	$19,170.18
Receipts	15,324.64

Total to Account For	$34,494.82
Disbursements	11,864.83

Cash in Bank August 31, 1960	$22,629.99
------------------------------	-------------

STATE QUOTAS

State	Quota	Paid	Balance
Alabama	$ 7,200.00	$ 3,788.06	$ 3,411.94
Arizona	1,000.00	189.11	810.89
Arkansas	6,800.00	4,160.44	2,639.56
California	6,050.00	3,727.42	2,322.58
Florida	5,900.00	2,350.41	3,549.59
Georgia	7,000.00	4,095.68	2,904.32
Idaho	300.00	269.53	30.47
Illinois	7,500.00	5,068.25	2,431.75
Kansas	300.00	140.36	159.64
Kentucky	5,500.00	1,778.32	3,721.68
Maine	915.00		915.00
Michigan	26,000.00	9,000.51	16,999.49
Mississippi	5,000.00	2,292.40	2,707.60
Missouri	15,000.00	10,076.99	4,923.01
New Mexico	1,590.00	380.62	1,209.38
North Carolina	44,400.00	24,969.21	19,430.79
Ohio	7,300.00	2,865.01	4,434.99
Oklahoma	10,000.00	6,058.10	3,941.90
South Carolina	10,790.00	4,678.50	6,111.50
Tennessee	15,790.00	9,278.09	6,511.91
Texas	8,200.00	5,666.77	2,533.23
Virginia	10,500.00	4,947.44	5,552.56
West Virginia	6,090.00	1,704.55	4,385.45
Miscellaneous	13,865.08	2,907.76	10,957.32
Totals	$222,990.08	$110,393.53	$112,596.55

NOTICE TO N. C. CHURCHES

The North Carolina State Convention no longer has a treasurer on the Christian Education Board; therefore, all church treasurers are urged to send their donations directly to the college of their choice, and not to the former treasurer, the Rev. Earl H. Glenn.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: If Christ was sinless, why did He need water baptism?—Jo Sugg, Oklahoma.

Answer: Some say that in this He manifested His identity with sinners. There are others who think that this was where He received the anointing of the Holy Spirit which both as king and priest would be needed as a mark that approved His public ministry—in this, proving Himself to the whole world as the beloved Son of the Father in heaven. Since the Jordan River symbolized death, His going down into its waters pictured Him in the approaching death on the Cross as a sacrifice for the sins of all sinners. It was for the purpose of dying for all sinners both past, present and future that our blessed Lord came into this world; therefore, here at the beginning of His ministry, He identified Himself with all sinners who then were being baptized by John. By doing this, He foreshadowed the purpose for which He came into the world. On the Cross He entered death in the place of all transgressors. The spotless one who knew no sin was made sin for us; all righteousness was fulfilled in His death on the Cross. The baptism He subjected Himself to pictured all this to the world. It is worth our notice that in this event we have the triune God manifested—the Father's voice from heaven, the Son in His human body as the subject of baptism, and the presence of the Holy Spirit in the shape of a dove at which time and occasion He alighted and abode on Him. "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: And lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Matthew 3:16, 17).

Question: I sometimes question the value of my own prayers and have Christian friends that are not sure that they have all theirs answered. What are the requirements the Bible makes that one be assured of his prayers being answered?—J. A., Springfield, Illinois.

Answer: The Scriptures require:

1. That we pray to our heavenly Father in Jesus' name. "And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it" (John 14:13, 14); "At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you" (16:26).

2. That our prayers be unselfish, for the glory of God rather than for our own. "And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son" (John 14:13).

3. That our prayers be in accord with God's will. "Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. And he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, because he maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God" (Romans 8:26, 27); "And this is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us: And if we know that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him" (1 John 5:14, 15).

4. That we pray in faith believing that God will answer our prayers. "And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive" (Matthew 21:22); "Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you" (9:29).

5. That we accept that place of abode in Christ that He ascribes unto us. "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you" (John 15:7); "And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight" (1 John 3:22).

6. That thanksgiving accompany our praying. "Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God" (Philippians 4:6).

7. That we pray acknowledging the Spirit's presence and place in our lives and therefore in our prayers. "So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness" (Romans 8:8-10); "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage af, to fear; but ye have received the Spirit adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with spirit, that we are the children of God: A if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together" (Vs. 14-17); "Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered" (26).

8. That our motive must be right for to hope for an immediate, literal answer our prayers. "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume upon your lusts" (James 4:3); "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double minded" (Vs. 8). "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up" (Vs. 10).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page six)

Fall Revival at Black Jack Church October 9-16

The Rev. M. L. Hollis of Amory, Mississippi, will be the evangelist for revival services at Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church, Route 3, Greenville, North Carolina, October 9-16. The pastor, the Rev. Floyd B. Cherry, will assist Mr. Hollis at the meeting. Special music will be featured each evening.

The church along with the pastor, extends a cordial invitation to everyone in the vicinity of Black Jack to attend the services.

Rev. Floyd B. Cherry Conducting Howell Swamp Revival

Revival services are now in progress at Howell Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, Walstonburg, North Carolina. Services began Monday evening, October 3, at 7:30 with the Rev. Floyd B. Cherry as the evangelist, and will continue through Saturday, October 8.

Followed by the revival, home-coming will be observed on Sunday, October 10, with a picnic lunch on the church grounds at the noon hour.

The pastor, the Rev. L. R. Ennis, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Pine Level Church Announces Week-End Fall Revival

The Pine Level Free Will Baptist Church, Pine Level, North Carolina, announces its week-end fall revival, October 14-16. Services will begin each evening at 7:30, and the Rev. Dewey C. Boli on, North Carolina, will be the evangelist. The pastor, the Rev. R. H. Jackson, and the church request your prayers and extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Revival Services in Progress
Little Star Church

Saturday, October 15. The evangelist will be the Rev. Julius Vause of Pamplico, South Carolina, assisted by the pastor, the Rev. Norman Ard. Special singing will be featured at each service which begins each evening at 7:30. Visitors are always welcome at Gray Branch Church.

Rev. Albert T. Coates Conducting Christian Chapel Revival

Christian Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Pink Hill, North Carolina, is holding its fall revival with the Rev. Albert T. Coates as the evangelist. The meeting started October 2 and will continue through October 8. Mr. Coates is a former pastor of Christian Chapel where he began his ministry in October, 1950.

Mr. Coates is renewing old acquaintances and making new friends, but most of all he is doing the will of the Lord by encouraging Christians to live separated lives for God and seeing new souls being born into the Kingdom of God.

The pastor, the Rev. Norman Ard, and the church ask that you earnestly pray for the success of this revival and attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Fall Revival Scheduled At Long Ridge Church

The Rev. R. E. Norville will be the (continued on page ten) the Rev. Seldon Bullard of Morehead, North Carolina, is the evangelist for revival services now in progress at Little Star Free Will Baptist Church near Lake Lenoir, South Carolina. Services began October 3 and will continue through October 10. Services begin each evening at 7:30. This is special and congregational singing.

The pastor, the Rev. J. A. Hucks, urges everyone to pray for the success of the revival and attend the remaining of these services.

Grove Church to Have Home-Coming

Home-coming services will be observed at Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Kinston, North Carolina, Sunday, October 10. Services will get under way with Sun-school at 10:00 a. m., followed with morning worship at 11:00, with the pastor, the Rev. N. Bruce Barrow, as the evangelist. A picnic lunch will be served at noon hour.

The pastor and the church extends a cordial invitation to all members, former members, former pastors and friends to attend these services and enjoy the fellowship together.

Branch Church Announces Annual Fall Revival

The annual fall revival will be held at Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Kinston, North Carolina, beginning Sunday, October 9 and continuing through

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

SEVEN THINGS GOD HATES

(Proverbs 6:16-19)

I. A PROUD LOOK

1. Pride is of the world (1 John 2:16).
2. Pride caused the fall of Lucifer (Isaiah 14:12-15).
3. Pride will damn the soul (Proverbs 16:18).

II. A LYING TONGUE

1. Lying and rebellion go hand in hand (Isaiah 30:9).
2. Lying caused an untimely death for two early church members (Acts 5:1-11).
3. Lying people go to hell (Revelation 21:8).

III. HANDS THAT SHED INNOCENT BLOOD

1. The hands of Jezebel shed the innocent blood of Naboth (1 Kings 21).
2. The hands of vile King Herod shed the innocent blood of babies (Matthew 2:11-18).
3. The hands of Pilate shed the innocent blood of Jesus (John 19:1-30).

IV. A HEART OF WICKED IMAGINATION

1. The sin that led to the downfall of early man (Genesis 6:5; Romans 1:21).
2. The sin that reveals man's character (Proverbs 23:7).
3. The sin that God commands us to cast down (2 Corinthians 10:5).

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page nine)

evangelist for revival services at Long Ridge Free Will Baptist Church near Mount Olive, North Carolina, October 9-15. Each service, beginning at 7:30 each evening, will feature much singing by both the senior and junior choirs. Other special music will be included with the praying and gospel preaching in a great effort to bring revival.

The church and its pastor, the Rev. H. A. Grubbs, extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend these services.

Rain's Cross Roads Church Announces Fall Revival

The Rain's Cross Roads Free Will Baptist Church near Princeton, North Carolina, announces its fall revival October 10-16, with the Rev. N. D. Wiggs, the pastor, as the speaker. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The pastor and church ask your prayers for the success of the meeting, and extends an invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Western Conference of N. C. to Convene with Micro Church

The seventy-fourth annual session of the Western Conference of North Carolina

Free Will Baptists will convene with Micro Free Will Baptist Church, North Carolina, October 12, 13, 1960. program for the conference is as follows:

Wednesday Morning Session

- 10:00—Devotions, the Rev. Jesse V. Godwin
- Response, the Rev. Bernard D.
- Roll Call of Ministers
- Enrollment of Visiting Ministers
- Roll Call of Churches
- Appointment of Committees
- Moderator's Message
- 11:00—Report of Mount Olive Co. Dr. W. Burkette Raper
- Offering for Mount Olive Co.
- 11:25—Congregational Singing
- Introductory Sermon, the Rev. B. Ferrell
- Alternate, the Rev. Paul Jen
- 12:00—Lunch

Wednesday Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions, the Rev. Garlandley
- Partial Report of Credentials Committee
- Report of Executive Committee
- Report of Denominational Expenses
- Business Session
- 3:00—Adjournment

Thursday Morning Session

- 9:30—Devotions, the Rev. George Branning
- 9:40—Final Roll Call of Ministers
- Enrollment of Visiting Ministers
- Final Roll Call of Churches
- Business Session
- Report of Denominational Expenses
- 10:45—Report of Free Will Baptist Clergy's Home, the Rev. J. W. ton
- Offering for Children's Home
- 11:10—Ordination Service
- 12:00—Lunch

Thursday Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions, the Rev. W. L. thress
- 1:10—Report of Appointed Committee
- Report of Mission Board, the Rev. R. H. Jackson
- Report of Ministerial Chair Committee, the Rev. W. E. frow
- Business Period
- Treasurer's Report, Mr. F. Barnes
- Final Report of Credentials Committee
- 2:30—Adjournment

Union Chapel Host to Albemarle Conference, Oct. 6

The Albemarle Conference of North Carolina (continued on page sixteen)

V. FEET SWIFT IN RUNNING TO MISCHIEF

1. They boast of their sin (Psalm 52:1).
2. They seek mischief and will find it (Proverbs 11:27).
3. They are ultimately to be visited with God's boomcrang (Psalm 7:16).

VI. A FALSE WITNESS SPEAKING LIES

1. God's plan from the beginning was for man to speak the truth (Exodus 20:16).
2. God's Word reveals that we are false witnesses if Christ remained in the grave (1 Corinthians 15:15).
3. God's plan is for false witnesses to be punished (Proverbs 19:28, 29).

VII. ONE WHO SOWS DISCORD AMONG BRETHREN

1. We are to mark and avoid these people (Romans 16:17).
2. We are to remember that God is not the author of confusion (1 Corinthians 14:33).
3. We are to seek, as much as possible, to live at peace with all men (Romans 12:18).

NO GENTLEMAN WOULD DO SUCH LOWLY WORK!

Hsu Chu came from a wealthy Chinese family. He entered the China Inland Mission Hospital to train as a nurse. He dressed immaculately. One day he was asked to perform a menial service—clean and shine some shoes. He felt insulted. He immediately refused. "No gentleman or scholar would do such lowly work," he said. The superintendent of the hospital took the shoes and shined them. Hsu Chu looked on with mingled feelings. "Come with me to my office," said the superintendent. Then he asked Hsu Chu to read the thirteenth chapter of John. His eyes filled with tears as he read this verse: "If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet" (John 13:14). "May Jesus forgive me," he prayed. Thereafter no one scrubbed floors, washed dishes, shined shoes, or did other lowly tasks more joyfully than Hsu Chu.—Walter B. Knight.

By J. C. Griffin

Drunk and Soft Treatment

There's a fellow who sluices hooch into until he can't talk straight, can't stand up, can't see straight, can't think straight. He wobbles to his automobile, behind the wheel, somehow gets started, then roars off sticking mostly to the left of the several roads he thinks he sees.

He slaughters nobody and smashes nothing, it's only by heaven's grace. He's in a race, in spades—the kind gravediggers like. He's as fit to be on the highway as a drunkard is to be in a bed.

The law tries to keep him off the highway. It tries to put him in a cell, or it tries to take away his license to drive, but that, maybe, not permanently.

When what happens? You know too well because it happens over and over. It happened again in the Senate. Somebody says and tries to make it easy for that drunkard. The present effort is a bill that gives judges discretion, rather than sticking to the mandatory one-year license suspension for a drunken driver.

'Give him another chance,' is the watchword. In the name of safety and sanity, somebody might as well say, 'Set up the pedes- trian in the other alley and let him see if he can bowl them over this time.'

The tenderness with which drunken drivers are so often treated is a strange phenomenon of the times—and one of the most admirable or intelligent."—News and Features, 1959.

The above clipping is a year old, but it expresses a truth that I would be glad to see printed indelible upon the mind of every man in the American family.

Is there a man or woman that drinks and drives that is a potential murder. They are subject to be killed themselves and kill other innocent people.

I am told not to judge, by the Supreme Court of all men, so I hope that the Master will not call this judging. But I think that the law is too lax in the condemnation of drunken driving. I notice that often it is a case that a man or woman is in court for drunken driving, and the sentence will be three months, suspended on the condition that the drunkard pays $100.00 and loses his license for twelve months. A great many of those who drink and drive will soon be back on the highways, having someone to drive for him or her and, very likely, the driver will be drinking.

AMERICAN LIBERTY

"American freedom is built upon moral and spiritual integrity. This nation was founded upon age-old Bible principles by people who were willing to write their beliefs in their life's blood.

"Today, as possibly never before in our history, this freedom is threatened. It is endangered by godless hordes from without and by the creeping paralysis of easy indifference and selfish living from within.

"Historic Protestantism has been represented by people who stood for something—people who believed with all their hearts that the just shall live by faith. . . . That there is one Mediator between God and man, the man, Christ Jesus. They believed these truths so strongly that they were willing to stand up and be counted, no matter what it cost."

The above quotation was taken from United Evangelical Action and given under the caption, "Stand Up and Be Counted." We want to notice that the writer of the article says, "Today, possibly as never before in our history, this freedom is being threatened." Here we think of "those who forget their past, will live it over again." Have we forgotten our past history, if so get you a copy as quick as possible of Fox's Book of Martyrs. This book is for sale by your Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. Yes, get this book and renew your knowledge of the past. It might help to save us from a renewal of the past.

WAR CLOUDS THICKEN

The cold war has been raging for years. Great Britain, the United States and Russia, with news reporters, have kept us wondering how long before the cold war will turn into a hot shooting war climaxed with missiles and bombs that will destroy man from the face of the earth. To this writer it seems that the clouds are growing thicker with every meeting of the United Nations. When Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev can shake his fist at men who want an honest peace and defy the free world with his damnable infidelity, we wonder!

When the United States and Great Britain joined hands with Khrushchev they joined hands with the enemy of God on the face of the earth, and God's Word says, " whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." If we had kept our hands off, and had let Germany and Russia settled their own differences, we would not have been in this trouble. This is my honest opinion. Our great president and his staff of instructors wanted to help Russia.

Now, many of you have heard about the fate of the Israelites whose king showed all the things that he had in his house and the things that belonged to Israel to an enemy of God, and the result was that Israel was carried away into Babylon. When rulers join hands with Satan they will always bring destruction to their nation; and when individuals join hands with evil men disaster will sure be realized by the act. Someone may disagree with me for the aforesaid expression of my relief, but thank God we are in a country where we have the freedom of the press now, but we may not have it in the near future. Our freedom is slipping away. That for which our fathers fought and died to give to us can be lost. Christians better obey the injunction of Jesus when He said, "Watch and pray." Watch political leaders; watch strange doctrines; watch religious leaders. Take Jesus and His Word. Believe what Jesus Christ says. Believe what God the Father says. Believe what all the inspired writers say. When Paul was thinking and speaking of unbelievers, he said: "For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged" (Romans 3:3, 4). When God speaks and man disagrees with God, Paul said, "Let God be true, but every man a liar." So when man contradicts God, man is considered by God as a liar. Lying belongs to the human family. Children lie to their parents. Men lie to their wives and wives to their husbands.

Politicians lie against their opponents. Religionist lie against religionist. But Christians cannot afford to lie, even if they should want to. But I cannot believe that any truly born-again, spirit-filled, consecrated, dedicated Christian wants to tell a falsehood.

THE MAIL BOX

ENTERS EVANGELISTIC WORK

"I have resigned the pastorate of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Enid, Oklahoma, and plan to go into evangelistic work as the Lord so directs. I will be available for revival meetings anytime and anywhere as of January 1, 1961. My address and telephone number is as follows: 118 W. Wabash, Enid, Oklahoma; phone ADams 7-5073 or ADams 7-6455."—Fred J. Kirby.

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, or feature articles, for publication in "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your item processed earlier.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

OUT OF PLACE

by Juanita Brown

SKIPPER dipped his brush into the thick green paint and slapped it onto the boat. The boys had only three brushes, so they were taking turns painting their boat. They would soon have the second coat on and could allow it to dry.

"Look, she's almost covered," Ronald exclaimed. "I can hardly wait for Sunday to come so we can launch her."

"Sunday!" Skipper exclaimed involuntarily.

"Sure. Dad has promised to load the boat on his trailer and take us to Elk River. Then we can have all day for boating and fishing."

Skipper went cold, then hot. Sunday! How could he have forgotten! He had been working so hard the last few weeks to earn money for the boat that most other things had been crowded out of his mind.

He swallowed a couple of times then continued slapping the paint on the boat as if nothing bothered him.

Actually Skipper was doing some fast thinking. He had always gone to Sunday school and church on Sunday. He believed that Sunday was the Lord's Day. On the other hand, he had counted so strongly on going on this camping trip that he could not bear to miss it. After all, he was the one who had found the boat and had talked Mr. Benson into selling it to them for ten dollars. The boys had worked hard to earn and save enough money to buy the old row boat. Then they had to work some more so they could buy paint and oars.

The fellows in the Friendly Five Club had looked forward to launching their own boat in the Elk River for weeks. They planned to tie it to a pier and leave it there. Then they made a rule that any time two of the five wanted to go to the river, they could take the boat out, but just one could never take it alone.

"What's eatin' on you, Skipper? You haven't said a word for a long time," Ronald asked.

"Oh, just thinking," Skipper replied.

Brushing the last strokes of paint over their boat, the boys stood back to survey their work.

"We should give it a name," Chuck said.

"It's green. Suppose we call it the Green Dragon," Ronald suggested.

"Sounds great to me," one of the younger boys said.

"We'll come over tomorrow and paint the name on her," Ronald said.

The boys closed their paint buckets and started home, but with every step Skipper wondered what he should do about Sunday. Oh, how he wanted to take that camping trip. Well, this was just Tuesday; there would be four more days for him to decide.

Skipper left the other boys and walked on down the sidewalk toward his home. Near the corner he passed Lanthrop Roberts. Lan had lived in their neighborhood about a year, but since he wasn't interested in outdoor activities, he didn't belong to the Friendly Five Club. However, Skipper had tried several times to get Lan to go to church with him. Each time Lan would adjust his glasses and make some bookish remark about, "The philosophies of Plato and Socrates seem comprehensive enough to satisfy my thinking. I believe I can learn all that I need to know about life and the hereafter from those learned sages."

Lan was a good fellow, Skipper thought, but he just couldn't imagine anyone being such a glutton for books. Of course, since his dad was a philosophy professor, that might account for Lan's attitude. It didn't appear that it would do any good to ask Lan again to come to church. He was always polite, but he just didn't seem to feel any need for the Lord and church.

As Skipper passed, he couldn't help but notice the serious expression on Lan's face, but then, he was always an old owl face. Probably he was only trying to figure out something which he had just read, Skipper decided.

The days dragged by and Sunday came nearer and nearer. The boys had painted the name on the boat and had decided what supplies they were going to pack for their trip.

The other boys weren't Christians, but Skipper finally gathered the courage to suggest that they wait until after Sunday to go to the river. Ronald said, "You dope, this is a Fourth of July outing. You can go to Sunday school any time. Do as you like, but we're going early on Sunday. If you go, you are to take a dozen boiled eggs and a loaf of bread. Of course, we're all taking fireworks."

"O.K.," Skipper said. Then he thought, "Ronald probably is right. I can go to Sunday school any Sunday. I'm usually faithful, so this once shouldn't matter.

Skipper was up at the first crack of Sunday morning. He and his dog, Rover, hustled over to Ronald's house to meet the other boys. Soon they were jolting the river road. When they reached the camping spot they didn't even stop for breakfast, but launched the Green Dragon and jumped into it, Rover included!

"She's seaworthy, all right," Chuck claimed as Ronald and Skipper pulled from the shore.

"Riverworthy, you mean," Ronald corrected. "This little old craft would be right in two if she even saw a sea."

The time passed quickly and when Skipper rowed to the shore for breakfast, Skipper looked at his watch. A guilty feeling was creeping out of his place stole over him, but it was Sunday school time. His teacher, Mr. Brandon, would be wondering where he was. "Oh, well," Skipper shrugged, "once won't hurt."

They had a grand time, fishing, rowing and swimming; then when darkness fell they set off their fireworks and hiked to town.

The next day Skipper was hurrying down the street to meet Ronald when he ran into Lan at the corner. Skipper stopped to say, "Hi," then started to go when Lan spoke, "Did you have an enjoyable outing yesterday?"

"Well—uh—yeah, we did," Skipper mumbled. "How did you know about it?"

Lanthrop hesitated a moment, then said carefully, "Due to a prolonged disagreement my father and mother separated Sunday. Since Dad is so well acquainted with the old philosophers, I decided philosophy did not have the answer, so I would have worked in our home. You invited me to your church upon numerous occasions, so I thought perhaps there was a solution to my problem there. I decided to give it a fair trial, so I proceeded to attend the service last night.

"It sounded all right to me, but I wondered if it worked in life. I scanned the audience carefully, but I did not see you. Before I left, I inquired about you, and learned you had spent the day camping on the river bank. My conclusion was that the church must not be really important."

(continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Virginia State Woman's Auxiliary Convention Held in Norfolk

The regular annual Virginia State Women's Auxiliary Convention was held at Mount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, June 16, 1960. The Rev. Donald Riggs led the group in the opening, "Jesus Call Us," after which Mrs. of Hyde Park Church led in prayer. "World, One Message, One Saviour" the theme carried out at the convention. Billy Melvin conducted the morning devotions, using for her text Judges 10:16. Following the president's remarks and special music, the morning message was delivered by Mrs. Eunice Edwards. There was a very interesting message with scripture taken from 2 Corinthians 5:20. Inspiring remarks were made concerning the women as ambassadors for Christ.

After the lunch hour, devotions and singing were led by the Rev. and Mrs. During the business meeting which followed, officers for the new year were elected. They are as follows: President, Octaira Jones; vice-president, Mrs. E. Raiser; field worker, Mrs. Jackie Pearson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Hurst; assistant secretary-treasurer, G. A. Forehand; youth chairman, Mrs. Stidham; stewardship-prayer, Mrs. Roughton; study course, Mrs. Ray Riggs; personal service, Mrs. Della S.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Marttelle.

An outstanding highlight of the day was question and answer period led by Mrs. Riggs. Many interesting questions were asked and many helpful answers given concerning the auxiliary work. When the day came to an end and the collection was given, the 86 ladies who attended that day, left with new zeal and encouragement to do more for Christ and His work.

At New Bern, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Vera Bass with thirteen members, seven new members and five visitors present.

ent. After the meeting was called to order, the group sang, "Since Jesus Came into My Heart," followed with the Scripture by Mrs. Nancy Sawery. Prayer was by Mrs. Freddie Vinson. After the business session, the program was presented with the following taking part: Mrs. Etta Harrell, Mrs. Freddie Vinson, Mrs. Lily Thomas, Mrs. Ruth Rose and Mrs. Jean Langley. The group was dismissed with the Lord's Prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Bass, and enjoyed by all.

Woman's Auxiliary Study Course Material

(for October)

The Rev. R. Eugene Waddell, Garner, North Carolina

1 TIMOTHY, CHAPTER 2

Proper conduct in the worship and service of God is the keynote of 1 Timothy. The first chapter is chiefly given to introduce the material. The apostle, Paul, begins his specific instructions in Chapter 2.

THE PLACE OF PRAYER

As the apostolic church service began to take form, prayer was given pre-eminence. Paul's first point of instruction is given to this important phase of worship.

To lay greater stress on this aspect of Christianity, the writer repeats the same general instruction in different terms: "I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men" (Vs. 1).

The Christian's prayers should embrace all men. The reason is spelled out in Verses 3 and 4: "For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour: Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." Any teaching that some men are predestined for hell is certainly contrary to this Scripture. Furthermore, this is a basis for prayer for sinners' salvation. One need not ask God to save souls if it is His will. He tells us to pray for them because it definitely is His desire to save all men.

In the worship service of the church, we are further enjoined to pray specifically for those who rule over us. In these days of massive iniquity, organized crime and civil corruption and graft in public office, opportunism instead of principle in politics, we need to pray. In a time like this, when half the world is being swallowed down by the red gullet of godless, totalitarian communism, we need to pray. In a time when over the United States hangs the threat of electing a president who will be controlled by the external, anti-American Roman Catholic political system, which has world domination as its avowed aim, we need to pray. In our services, we must call on God for our world leaders to be Christian men.

The one true God who desires the salvation of all men has also arranged the means for man's salvation. "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; Who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time" (Vs. 5, 6).

Here we see the unique central truth of Bible Christianity. The liberal Protestants have told us that all religion is of God and that, though they may travel different roads, all men of all creeds are headed for one heaven. They have stressed the idea that if a person is sincere in his worship, though he may worship Allah, Buddha, or his ancestors, he is heaven bound. On the other hand, the Roman Catholics have taught the necessity of the intercession of different saints and especially the virgin, Mary. However, the position of Christ is clear: "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6).

Paul personally felt responsible to testify of this fact. His ordination, his preaching, his apostleship and his ministry to the Gentiles were given for that purpose. "Whereunto I am ordained a preacher, and an apostle, (I speak the truth in Christ, and lie not;) a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and verity" (Vs. 7).

The concluding remarks on prayer are regarding: (1) Place; (2) position; (3) attitude in prayer. "I will therefore that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting" (Vs. 8).

Paul said that his wish was for men to pray everywhere. The place to pray is where one is. This was contrary to the Jewish thought of coming to the temple in Jerusalem to get closer to God. Paul further said that his wish was for all men to pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands. The position for prayer is no more limited than the place for prayer; however, to encourage the proper order of worship, Paul advocated the ancient custom of stretching forth the hands. This signified to many that the worshiper knew he was needy and was therefore employing divine help. It was also thought by some to be the position

(continued on page sixteen)

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

New Scholarship Announced by Mount Olive College

President W. Burkette Raper announced recently the establishing of a new scholarship at Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina. Given by W. B. Sutton of Newton Grove, the scholarship in the amount of $100 will be awarded annually to a Mount Olive College student on the basis of scholastic ability, need, character, and seriousness of purpose in life.

Other scholarships at Mount Olive College include academic scholarships valued from $200 to $250 to students in the top ten per cent of their graduating class, free tuition to students preparing for the Christian ministry and missions, the Fred S. Powers scholarship in the amount of $100 to a student from South Carolina, the Stroud scholarship in the amount of $60, the McWhorter scholarship in the amount of $50, the Business and Professional Woman's prize and the Daughters of the American Revolution prize each worth $50, and work scholarships ranging from $100 to $300 annually.

President Raper disclosed that Mount Olive College gives some form of financial assistance to approximately forty per cent of its students each year. Based on sound business management, the college administers a wide range of student aid activities including loans, installment payments on expenses, work program and scholarships.

"A college education today is a necessity, not a luxury," Dr. Raper declared, "and Mount Olive College welcomes opportunities to assist worthy students in making the necessary financial arrangements to attend our institution."

Loyalty Fund Day for Mount Olive College

W. Burkette Raper, President

The North Carolina State Convention has called upon every Free Will Baptist church in the state to observe a Sunday not later than October 23 as "Loyalty Fund Day for Mount Olive College." The purpose of this observance is to ask the 45,000 Free Will Baptists of North Carolina to contribute toward raising $50,000 during the Loyalty Fund Campaign this fall for the college. This campaign is called the Loyalty Fund, because a gift to Mount Olive College is an expression of loyalty to the faith and heritage of Original Free Will Baptists.

SUGGESTIONS

Each local church should select the Sunday that best fits its schedule during the month of October. On this day, the college asks for three considerations:

1. A special prayer for God's guidance for the Board of Directors, administration, faculty, and students of Mount Olive College;
2. A brief presentation of the need for an accredited program of Christian higher education in our denomination (information and literature may be obtained from the college);
3. An opportunity for every person to make a gift to Mount Olive College.

The college will be happy to furnish and mimeograph bulletins for any church observing Loyalty Fund Sunday.

A FREE WILL BAPTIST COLLEGE

As a denominational institution, Mount Olive College believes and teaches those truths upon which Original Free Will Baptists rests: the Bible as the inspired Word of God; the divine act of God in the creation of human life; the divinity of Jesus, including His virgin birth, redemption of man through His crucifixion; His miraculous ministry and bodily resurrection, and His second coming; justification by faith; the freedom of the human will; congregational church government; believers baptism by immersion; the priesthood of all believers; the recognition of Christians of other denominations as evidenced by the practice of open communion at the Lord's Supper; and all other articles of faith set forth in the Statement of Faith and Discipline for Original Free Will Baptists. Through observing Loyalty Fund Sunday, your church will help to perpetuate these truths for our children and generations yet unborn.

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

Mount Olive College today enjoys the highest academic recognition ever accorded a college sponsored by Free Will Baptists. Already accredited by the North Carolina College Conference, the college is working toward regional accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. A visiting committee from Southern Association will be on the campus of Mount Olive College in October inspection. If the findings of this committee are favorable, Mount Olive College will be the first college in the history of Free Will Baptists to obtain regional accreditation.

Through observing Loyalty Fund Sunday in your church can help Free Will Baptists to have a college that is recognized throughout the nation for its educational excellence.

A COLLEGE FOR YOUR CHILD

A college education is no longer a luxury but a vital necessity. Many Free Will Baptist parents who never finished high school recognize this truth and are willing to make whatever sacrifice is necessary to afford their children the opportunity of a college education. But we can no longer assume that just because our children want to go to college and we have, or can borrow, the money to send them, that our problem is solved.

During the past twenty years the college population in the United States has doubled, and during the next ten years it is expected to double again. Already most colleges are raising their standards for admission, and many are turning away more students than they can accept. My child, and your child, could be among those denied admission to a Christian college unless we begin now to make adequate provisions for them.

In church-sponsored colleges, tuition fees pay only one half of what it costs the college to maintain a student; for every dollar received from students, the college must add a dollar of its own. Where does the college get this money? It must depend upon its sponsoring churches, alumni, and friends. Higher education is expensive but there is one thing that is more expensive—and that is to have no college. A denomination without colleges in the twentieth century is as crippled as an individual without an education.

Every parent must seriously ask himself, "When my child is ready for college, will a college be ready for him?" Colleges do not exist by chance and accident. They exist because people want them and are willing to support them. We Free Will Baptists can no longer afford to shift the financial responsibility of the education of our children upon other denominations.

Through observing Loyalty Fund Sunday in your church, you can help to provide a college for your own children and generations.

PERSONAL GIFTS

If for any reason, Loyalty Fund Sunday is not observed in your church, you can make a personal gift direct to Mount Olive College. This gift can be a part of your tithe and will also be tax deductible.

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Our Trust Is in God

(Lesson for October 16)

Text: Psalm 121

Text: Psalm 121:2

INTRODUCTION

Psalms 120-134 are what is spoken of as degrees, most commonly called degrees. Of course, Psalm 121 is one of these Psalms. It is a song of confidence in the unwavering faithfulness of the eternal God amidst all perils of their journeying. A study of this great and marvelous Psalm should lead us to consider how we should express our trust in Him.

Many men say that they trust God, but does it mean to really trust God? Begin with, man is to trust God in prosperity and in adversity. It is true that Christians dwell mostly down in the valley, but occasionally there comes a mountain-top experience with God. It is then that most men are inclined to trust God. In adversity, however, we should learn to completely trust God at all times, without wavering or faltering. Amidst joy and sorrow, we are to trust in God.

Trust in God means absolute confidence in Him. Trust is active. It is not a matter of theory, but of practice. Faith is the foundation of trust as well as the foundation of hope. For without faith there would be no trust at all. Inactive trust is as dead wood without works.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

Psalm 121:1: Some think David wrote this psalm on a battlefield and trusted the Lord to cover his head during the strife. He thought he was off on a long journey, and wrote of his assurance of comfort and

Verse 2: "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." Hills seem strong and lasting, but they are nothing when compared with the God who made them. Verse 2 declares that we depend not on the inert hills, but on the living God.

Verse 4: People may sleep and forget the Lord, but God is ever watchful. His all-seeing eye, and He knows the very innermost secrets of the heart. If this is a battlefield psalm, the meaning is quite obvious. Sentinels may sleep on the post and allow the enemy to make a sneak attack. David will keep his eyes on the Lord, who keepeth not.

4. Vs. 6: The sun at meridian height was too much for man or beast on the desert. It has always been considered bad to sleep with the moon shining in the face. A lunatic is so called because people used to think he had been crazed by the moon. But God's people live in His shadow. He keeps them safe day and night.

5. Vs. 7: The Psalm has to do with the Godly who put their trust in God's protection. The Lord will preserve the souls of His people. "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

6. Misplaced trust is presented by most graphic figures in the Old Testament. It is like a spider's web (Job 8:14), like a broken tooth and a foot out of joint (Proverbs 25:19), like a parched heath in a desert (Jeremiah 17:5, 6), like a trusting in a shadow (Isaiah 30:2, 3), like leaning upon a bruised or broken reed for a staff (Isaiah 36:6; Ezekiel 29:6, 7).—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Three words in the Old Testament have been translated by our English word, trust. One means to cling, as a child clings or holds to its mother for protection and comfort. Trusting God is clinging to Him. Another has the meaning of running for shelter, as from an enemy or a storm. Trusting God is finding shelter in Him. The third means to lean upon, as when we are weak or our burdens are too heavy. Trusting God is finding strength for our weakness in Him.

2. "He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber" (Vs. 3). The psalmist here uses the allusion to a mountain traveler. How necessary that he and his animal be sure-footed! Just one slip of the foot and their lives would be lost, but the promise is that God will not let their feet slip.

3. Let us not confuse this matter of our security in the Lord. Men are eternally secure in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is only when they, of their own wills, throw off His protection and come from beneath the shelter of His wing, that they go into evil and endanger themselves. There is no way a person can be lost as long as He has the Lord Jesus Christ in his heart; neither is there any way that a man can be saved when he repudiates Christ and leaves Him out of his life. Don't be afraid of the phrase, eternal security, because that is what we have in Christ; but when we cease to trust Him, we no longer have His security.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

4. Deuteronomy 28 is one Scripture that proves the foregoing statement. God offered the nation of Israel eternal security coupled with wonderful blessings, but as a nation they used their free will to their own destruction. (See Matthew 23:37.)

5. We are told of a picture painted by a famous artist and named, Peace. It depicts an awful storm with black clouds, sharp lightning, trees bent over by a strong wind, and rain coming down in torrents.

Nestled under a rock shelf far back in a cliff rested three little birds sitting out the storm without fear.

The believer who is hid with God in Christ can likewise face the storms of this life without being fearful.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

6. A Providential Deliverance. During the latter part of the war when the American air force was bombing the cities of Japan heavily, there occurred a remarkable deliverance in the city of Osaka. On one occasion a line of buildings there was being methodically bombed. However, one house and one alone escaped, though the rest were utterly destroyed. In that one house lay Dr. T. Tsuchiyama, a very prominent and devout Christian leader and educator. He had suffered a stroke and could not flee to the air-raid shelter as did everyone else nearby, including those of his own family. But God had his eye upon his faithful servant and protected him. At the close of the war, Chaplain Harry B. Anstead, whom the writer knows well, visited him in that home and learned the facts as we have related them here.—Selected.

7. Illustration: A pagan Ethiopian who worshiped and offered sacrifices to lions exclaimed, "Believe in God? Yes, we believe in God, but we know God is far away and will not harm us. The lions kill and eat our cattle, and sometimes our children, if we do not offer sacrifices to them. So we worship lions."

An American merchant replied to the same question, "Believe in God? Why surely I believe in God, but 'business is business' you know. I go to church occasionally, but I must consider my business. If I am not careful, I might lose it."—Garden of Prayer.

Stories for Boys and Girls

(continued from page twelve)

you, or you would have been there. So long."

Skipper had listened open-mouthed all of the time Lan had been speaking. He couldn't think of anything to say. Every excuse sounded so flat.

He was still scraping the air for the right words when he realized Lan was gone.

Should he call him back? What could he say if he did? Could he ever persuade Lan to go again, or was this a lost opportunity? These thoughts chased through Skipper's mind as he slowly turned to go back home. Of one thing he was certain—from now on, he would be in his place every time he should be.—HiCall.

Christian Education

(continued from page fourteen)

both state and federal purposes. Furthermore, if you will give the name of your church, your personal gift can be credited to your church.

Let us express our loyalty to God, the faith and heritage of our denomination, and our youth by our liberal support of Mount Olive College.

Woman's Auxiliary

(continued from page thirteen)

which reminded them most of the crucifixion of Christ.

With respect to the necessary attitude for effective prayer, Paul says, ". . . lifting up holy hands without wrath and doubting" (Vs. 8). Here the writer is mentioning three characteristics which the Christian should possess: (1) He should be holy; (2) he should be without wrath; (3) he should be without doubt.

THE PLACE OF WOMEN

Paul was definite in his views about women's dress and attire in the worship of God. "In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; But (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works" (Vv. 9, 10).

It is better for Christian women to be known for their charitable church activities than for their glamorous and expensive clothing. Women who are in the service of God should not try to attract attention to themselves. Any attempt to turn the house of God into a fashion show is abominable. A Christian woman does well always (at church, on the street or at home) to dress adequately and modestly. One's testimony may be affected by dress (or lack of it), as well as by unchristian conduct.

Chrysostom comments on this subject by a question: "And what then is modest apparel? Such as covers them completely and decently, and not with superfluous ornaments; for the one is decent and the other is not."

According to Paul, a woman's duty does not extend into the realm of indoctrinating a man. "Let the women learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence" (Vs. 11, 12). I believe a church which is ruled by women is a weak church. This is not what God has planned for the female.

On the other hand, women can and do profitably work among themselves. No doubt, many unsaved women can best be won to Christ by a Godly woman. Furthermore, when it comes to teaching children, women are superior to men. Also, women accomplish much by their beautiful vocal and instrumental music.

The great apostle to the Gentiles gives a reason for his views in Verses 13, 14. "For Adam was first formed, then Eve. And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression."

Then one of the solemn and blessed duties of womanhood is given: "Notwithstanding she shall be saved in childbearing, if they continue in faith and charity and holiness with sobriety" (Vs. 15). God seems to guarantee that the woman who fills her place and lives in His will will receive help in her grave duty of motherhood.

This and other Bible teachings on the place of women is important today. The mid-twentieth century home is an unstable institution. The very highest position of honor that a woman can attain is that of being a good wife and mother.

In this second chapter of 1 Timothy, the apostle, Paul, instructs on the place of prayer and the position of women in the service of God. If these divine admonitions are obeyed, we will have better hearts, homes and houses of worship.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page ten)

Carolina Free Will Baptists will confer with Union Chapel Church, Plymouth, North Carolina, October 6, 1950.

The scheduled program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 9:30—Devotions, the Rev. L. E. brose
 - 9:40—Welcome to Union Chapel, brey Garrett
—Response, the Rev. J. A. Alex
 - 9:45—Conference Called to Order, M erator
—Enrollment of Ministers and l gates
—Enrollment of Visiting Ministe
—Enrollment of Delegates from er Church Bodies
 - 10:15—Address of Moderator, the Charlie Overton
 - 10:20—Appointment of Temporary C mittees
—Reports of Standing Boards Committees:
Executive Committee
Board of Trustees
Board of Education
Board of Missions
Board of Ordination
Board of Youth Evangelism
—Offering for Conference Exp
 - 11:20—Announcements
 - 11:25—The Hour of Worship
—Special Music, Host Church
—Sermon, the Rev. J. W. Evert
 - 12:00—Lunch
- ### Afternoon Session
- 1:00—Devotions, the Rev. Tom Da port
 - 1:10—Report of National Association
 - 1:20—Memorial Service, the Rev. Bryan
 - 1:30—Report of State Convention
 - 1:40—Report of Mount Olive Junior lege
 - 1:50—Report of Free Will Baptist dren's Home
 - 2:00—Report of Free Will Baptist
 - 2:10—Report of Free Will Baptist College
 - 2:20—Appointment of Delegates to ious Church Bodies
 - 2:25—Reports of Temporary Commi
 - 2:55—Report of Nominating Commr
 - 3:10—Report of Conference Treasur
 - 3:15—Miscellaneous Business
—Approval of Minutes
 - 3:45—Adjournment

DS

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 12, 1960

not. p. or. pub

A QUESTION

by Tommy Manning

Is your mind troubled with little fears,
And does your heart beat with strife?
Can you look about yourself
And be thankful for your life?
Or are you one who groans with pain
At every passing foe;
Or do you accept this troubled life
And glad that it is so?

Does your tongue gripe at every hurt,
And does your brow cringe with woe?
Can you speak some kind remark
And seeds of kindness sow?
Or are you one who snaps with rage
At every one you see;
Or do you keep pain within yourself
And then considerate be?

Does your heart grudge some fortunate
man,
And does your soul yearn for gain?
Can you accept the richer one
And from evil desire refrain?
Or are you one who mocks with scorn
At one who has much more;
Or do you receive him as your friend
And open up your door?

Is your life lived in purity and grace,
And is your light shining deep?
Can you live from day to day
And still on the right path keep?
Or are you one who lives his life
In an inconsistent plight;
Or do you stand and never change
And shed a steady light?

Does your face show some burden that's past
And flown at some distant pain?
Can you force a smile a day
And, maybe some friendship gain?
Or are you one who thinks his own
Are the only troubles there be;
Or will you nod with a passing grin
And brighten the world for me?

October With It's Challenge

by Rev. Joseph H. Ingram
Beulaville, North Carolina

THE month of October has come bringing one of the greatest challenges that can be presented to the Free Baptist people in North Carolina. It brought to us the challenge of superannuation.

This is a very needful cause, but also it is that has been neglected much by us Free Will Baptists. It seems that we, the church, cannot see this responsibility arising for those that have labored so hard and diligently for the cause of Christ. We think and hear older people as they tell the experiences of how that many of our preachers would work hard all week to provide the necessities of life for their families and then the end of the week would come, they would leave their work, families, homes, and travel hours by horse and buggy or walk to preach to a group of people that were hungry to hear the gospel. This was when life was not as easy as it is now. It was through these efforts that we enjoy worshiping in our churches today. It was through these efforts that we have our pastors have the nice buildings and situations we use today. These are the things that had to toil and work that the Free Baptist church has become an outstanding work of God today. These are the men that were dedicated to God and the Church to make a better place for those who followed them. I sometimes wonder if we have this desire today as we had together.

When a person travels the roads of our state, he can see the structure of Free Will Baptist churches that are the effects of those who were dedicated to God. When we think of the growth of the Free Will Baptist church, we cannot think of a mushroom growth. It is an old church with many hours of labor behind it. Many of our men never received any compensation for their labor. For this I am sure God will reward them in heaven; but I believe that the Free Will Baptist church cannot believe that God is pleased to let these men work till every fiber of their body has been exhausted; till every talent that God has given them has been worn out, and life no longer can expect anything so far as labor is concerned, and turn them aside and say that we are not responsible to care for them in a material way by supplying some support for them as individuals. I believe that our church is directly responsible to provide for them.

May I challenge every Free Will Baptist in the state of North Carolina to make the month of October one that we can express our sincere gratitude to those who have provided such great things for us that follow.

October has been designated by the North Carolina State Convention as the month to place special emphasis on the program of superannuation. May God lead each of us to do our part toward the support and care of our aged ministers and widows.

Cragmont Assembly's Objective

by J. E. Wooten, Business Manager

WE have been asked on numerous occasions about the activities and operation of Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, and its objectives. Permit us please to state briefly but positively that it is not just a mountain retreat, nor a place where young people come to engage in worldly amusements and have a rollicking good time in activities of questionable character. We do provide, as far as possible, recreational facilities which can be measured by Christian standards. Please ask questions about what is done at Cragmont, and learn the facts.

As to Cragmont's main objective, may we say simply that it is to promote the cause of Christ through earnest efforts to win our youth to Him and prepare them for service in His cause in the local churches, or in fields of service wherever He may lead them. Earnest efforts are put forth also in providing means of encouragement and inspiration for adults who are already committed to the Lord. These are among the foremost things that Cragmont is concerned about and works and strives for constantly.

Don't be satisfied just to read our written reports and statements. Ask the directors who come with the groups to the conferences during the summer. They will tell you of the great numbers of young people who are converted and dedicate their lives to the Saviour during the conferences. Ask the young people themselves. They are always happy to relate their experiences, and tell what the Lord has done for them. Observe them in their activities in their home churches and in their daily behavior and conduct. We would like for people everywhere to understand what this Assembly stands for and is doing.

If you are impressed that the work done and the efforts put forth here are worthwhile, and will help in saving young people and in building up spiritual values and Godly aspirations in our local churches, then we ask you to please give us your encouragement and support. Cragmont needs your help if it is to continue to operate and serve the cause of Christ.

The Lord is blessing the work done here, but it needs more dependable contributors. Money has been borrowed to build the motel and furnish it, and to repair and paint the old buildings. Notes and interest come due and have to be paid. Your support and help will mean much to Cragmont between now and January 1. The times are critical and the services of Christian men and women are desperately needed.

Address all correspondence to Cragmont Assembly, Route 1, Black Mountain, North Carolina. Many thanks to all friends who have been so considerate in their encouragements.

Dare We Take the Chance?

by Rev. M. L. Sutton

If John Kennedy is elected president of these United States, we are likely to have a congress that will go along with him. In other words, we will have a rubber stamp congress. His legislation will be passed without much opposition, and before he is through, we will be paying for the support of Catholic schools with Protestant tax money. We will have an ambassador at the Vatican, we will have a constitutional amendment which will permit nation-wide gambling, the liquor interests will flourish, and religious frauds will be perpetrated until our country will become a putrid stench in the nostrils of Almighty God. Read the sixth chapter of Genesis and see what brought on the destruction of mankind in
(continued on page thirteen)

Simultaneous Missionary Conferences

BEGINNING on October 16, 1960, and continuing through October 23, the North Carolina State Missions Board of Free Will Baptists will sponsor a series of simultaneous missionary conferences in the Greenville area. Such conferences have been conducted during the past several years with great success. Those who will be speaking during this conferences include home and foreign missionary appointees, those who served on the foreign fields, and officials of the home mission board and foreign mission board. It is the hope and prayer of those sponsoring these services and those taking part that our people will attend these services.

Pictured with this article are those who will take part in these services. Following is the schedule of each one.

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
National Home Missions
Sponsored by the North Carolina State
Mission Board

Rev. Wesley Calvery (Japan, home on furlough): October 16, 11:00 a. m., Greenville Church; 7:30 p. m., Maranatha Church, Greenville; October 17, Elm Grove Church, Ayden; October 18, Jacksonville Church, Jacksonville; October 19, Mount Olive College (full day); October 20, Grace Church; October 21, Reedy Branch Church, Winterville; October 22, Mission Rally, Grace Church; October 23, 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., Winterville Church, Winterville.

Mrs. Wesley Calvery (Japan, home on furlough): October 16, 11:00 a. m., Greenville Church; 7:30 p. m., Grace Church; October 17, Elm Grove Church; October 18, Open; October 19, Mount Olive College (full day); 7:30 p. m. Goldsboro Church, Goldsboro; October 20, Maranatha Church; October 21, Ayden Church; October 22, Mission Rally, Grace Church; October 23, 11:00 a. m., Rocky Mount Church; 7:30 p. m., Dawson's Grove Church, Enfield.

Rev. and Mrs. Bill Fulcher (South America): October 16, 11:00 a. m., Gum Swamp Church, Belvoir; October 16, Parker's Chapel Church; October 17, Ayden Church; October 18, Open; October 19,

Grace Church; October 20, Marsh Swamp Church, Sims; October 21, Greenville Church; October 22, Mission Rally, Grace Church; October 23, 11:00 a. m., Hope Church, Scotland Neck; 7:30 p. m., Jacksonville Church.

Mrs. John Moehlman (Latin America): October 16, 11:00 a. m., Ayden, Church; 7:30 p. m., open; October 17-21, open; October 22, Pinetown Youth Rally; October 23, open.

Rev. and Mrs. Kirby J. Godwin (Alaska) October 16, 11:00 a. m., Grace Church, Greenville; October 23, 11:00 a. m., Sa Plain Church, Pink Hill; 7:30 p. m., St Church, Stacy.

Rev. John Moehlman (Latin America) October 16, 11:00 a. m., Reedy Branch Church; 7:30 p. m., Tarboro Church, Tarboro; October 17, open; October 18, V liamston Church, Williamston; October Parker's Chapel; October 20, Washing Church, Washington; October 21, of October 22, Youth Rally, Pinetown; O ber 23, 11:00 a. m., Selma Church, Sel 7:30 p. m., Elm Grove Church.

Rev. and Mrs. Bobby Aycock (So America): October 16, Greenville Chu October 17, open; October 18, 7:30 p. Ayden Church; October 19, 2:00 p. Missionary Prayer Fellowship at Green Church (all missionaries will attend); 7 p. m., Juniper Chapel Church, Cra County; October 21, Grace Church, Gr

October 22, Mission Rally, Grace Church; October 23, 11:00 a. m., Parker's Memorial Church, Greenville; 7:30 p. m., Rocky Mount Church, Rocky Mount.

Rev. Louis Moulton: October 17, Grace Church; October 18, Maranatha Church; October 19, Washington Church; October 20, Owen's Chapel Church; October 21, Jack Church, Greenville; October 22, Greenville Church; October 23, 11:00 a. m., Jacksonville Church; 7:30 p. m., Greenville Church.

Rev. Rolla Smith: October 19, Winterville Church; October 20, Cedar Grove Church, Martin County; October 21, 10:00 a. m., Mount Olive College; 7:30 p. m., Greenville Church; October 22, Mission Rally, Grace Church; October 23, 11:00 a. m., Tarboro Church; 7:30 p. m., Grace Church.

Services begin each evening, on the stated date, at 7:30. When two services are held on the same day, both hours are given. The hour for other services is given. The location of each church is given in the text.

The Privilege To Drink

by Rev. Walter E. Isenhour
Taylorsville, North Carolina

WHEN the 18th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States was repealed, and men could buy legalized beer and liquor, the nation gave millions of people the privilege to drink. This was pleasing to vast multitudes; and yet it was highly displeasing to multitudes of others. Those who hate alcohol because of its destructiveness despise the privilege that the government gives the drinkers and drunkards. They know such a privilege is displeasing to God, and that it means heartaches, sufferings, sorrows and death, not only to countless thousands who drink, but to thousands who are sober; for we know the drinkers endanger the lives of the innocent.

It is a known fact that if we oppose drinking, many people say we want to take their privileges away from them; that it is their business if they drink, and we should quit meddling. They delight in their privilege to partake of alcohol, some of whom may despise us because we desire to take such a privilege from them. When we see people who have the privilege of cursing their own lives and damning their souls, and then trampling on the privileges we have of being sober, and of living clean, Godly lives, we feel that such a cursed privilege should be taken away. If the privilege to drink only brought sufferings upon the drinkers it might not be bad; but when it involves the sober, then we believe we have the right to strongly and sincerely oppose. Even to give men the privilege to wreck, ruin and destroy themselves, if the innocent be exempt, isn't right. It can't be right to grant men the privilege of destroying their lives and damning their souls if it can be prevented.

The privilege to do wrong is never right. Men have the privilege to curse and use profane language, but it isn't right regardless of how many indulge in it, nor their standing in the world. Let me repeat it, it isn't right. Men have the privilege of being dishonest, but this, too, is absolutely wrong. Multitudes today have the privilege of dressing in such a way until it is cursing the nation and the world with adultery, but it's not right. People have the privilege of marrying and divorcing, but it isn't right. Men have the privilege of gambling, but it isn't right. Yes, people have the privilege of doing many things that are not right, even though God has forbidden such. Multitudes of people make it their privilege to disobey God, to travel the broad way hellward for a few fleeting pleasures, but they have to meet the final outcome.

Men have the privilege of reading a low type of literature, of becoming slaves to tobacco, of turning a deaf ear to the Holy Bible, of absenting themselves from the church, of becoming atheists and infidels, of feasting upon the corrupt and degrading programs of television and the theater, but that doesn't make it right. When men and women take the privilege of doing wrong they have to take the consequences. God never compels anyone to do right, but He will compel all mankind to appear before Him at the great judgment day, there to be judged according to the deeds done in the body.

Yes, men have the privilege of drinking, but it is a cursed privilege. It is a privilege that countless millions have regretted they ever accepted. The privilege to drink is the privilege to waste money, waste time, waste health, waste home, waste talents that are God-given, reject golden opportunities that are precious and priceless,
(continued on page eight)

Rev. Kenneth Walker (D. C.): October 17, Jacksonville Church; October 18, Grace Church; October 19, Spring Branch Church, Walstonburg; October 20, Greenville Church; October 21, Winterville Church.

Rev. Melitino Martinez (Miami): October 19, Greenville Church; October 20, Jacksonville Church; October 21, Owen's Chapel, Elm City; October 22, Mission Rally, Grace Church; October 23, Maranatha Church.

North Carolina. Services will begin Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., follow with the morning worship at 11:00, the Rev. J. W. Alford of Morehead delivering the home-coming message. Mamie Royall of Smithfield, will be guest soloist for the morning service and also sing during the afternoon program. Picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour.

The afternoon program will consist of congregational singing, recognition of former members, members and guests, and a special musical program. The Rev. Jerry Rowe of Mount Olive, North Carolina, will bring the home-coming thoughts during the afternoon program.

Former members and members who live in other localities are urged to come home-coming. Former pastors and friends are urged to attend. A great day in the Lord is planned for all who attend.

Revival in Progress at Sarecta Church

Revival services are in progress at Sarecta Free Will Baptist Church near Kenansville, North Carolina, with the Rev. Kirby Joe Godwin doing the preaching. Services begin on October 9 and will continue throughout the week. Mr. Godwin, missionary-elect for the district, is the son of the pastor of Sarecta Church, the Rev. M. E. Godwin.

The pastor and the church extends an invitation to everyone to attend the evening and night meetings of this meeting.

Members Oppose the Election of a Catholic President

The ministers of the Central Conference of Original Free Will Baptist Churches in North Carolina, in their annual meeting on October 4, 1960, at Ayden Free Will Baptist Church, voiced their opposition to the election of a Roman Catholic to the White House office in the land: namely, the President of the United States. The resolution is as follows:

That whereas our forefathers came to this country seeking religious freedom, and many of them fought and died for the liberties which we now enjoy as individuals before God; whereas Roman Catholicism is a religious and political system; whereas the Vatican recognizes no civil authority; whereas the Roman Catholic church claims it is the only true church; whereas it seeks the uniting of church and state; whereas it does not allow religious freedoms to those of other faiths in countries of the world where it dominates; whereas Protestant missionaries are even now suffering persecution because of the influence of Roman Catholic priests in different countries of the world; whereas there is a fear among true Protestant believers of pressure being applied by the Vatican in this country to a greater extent, therefore, be it resolved:

"That we, the ministers of the Central Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, voice our opposition to the election of John Kennedy to the presidency of the United States, who is a loyal son of the Roman Catholic church.

"Be it further resolved, that we urge our people to prayerfully study, in the spirit and love of Christ, the problems involved, and seek divine guidance before going to the polls in the November election."

Home-Coming and Harvest Day At Moseley's Creek Church

Moseley's Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Dover, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming and harvest day Sunday, October 16. Services will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., followed with worship service at 11:00. A picnic lunch will be served at the noon hour.

The pastor, the Rev. Albert Rollins, and members of the church extends a cordial invitation to all former members, former pastors and friends of the church to attend.

Central Conference Mission Work At Weldon, N. C.

Approximately a month ago a mission work was started by the Central Conference Mission Board of North Carolina in the town of Weldon. The work is under the supervision of the Rev. Charles Keith of Washington, North Carolina. Cottage prayer meetings are being held in different homes each Thursday evening at 7:30.

If you have any friends or relatives living in or around Weldon, please send their name and address to Mr. Keith, 208 East Ninth Street, Washington, North Carolina.

Ruth's Chapel Church To Observe Home-Coming

Home-coming will be observed at Ruth's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, Sunday, October 16. Services will get underway with Sunday school at 9:45 a. m., followed with morning worship at 11:00. A picnic lunch will be served at the noon hour.

The church and the pastor, the Rev. A. L. Hines, invites all former pastors, friends and members to attend and enjoy the Christian fellowship together.

Rev. Wilbert Everton to Conduct Beulaville Revival

Revival services will begin Sunday evening, October 16, at the Beulaville, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church with the Rev. Wilbert Everton, superintendent of the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Children's Home, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30. The church and the pastor, the Rev. Gene Outland, extends to everyone a special invitation to come to these services.

Ormondville Church Announces Fall Revival, Oct. 23-29

The Ormondville Free Will Baptist Church, Ormondville, North Carolina, announces its annual fall revival October 23-29, with the Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain, North Carolina, as the evangelist. Mr. Manning will be assisted by the pastor, the Rev. Clifton Rice. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 and will feature special music each evening.

The church and the pastor request your prayers for the success of the meeting and extends a cordial invitation to everyone in the vicinity of Ormondville to attend these services.

Rose Hill Church Announces Fall Revival

Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church located three miles east of Ayden, North Carolina, announces its fall revival October 16-22, with the Rev. Floyd B. Cherry as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The church and the pastor, the Rev. Clifton Rice, ask your prayers for the success of the meeting and extends a cordial invitation to everyone who can to attend these services.

Saints Delight Church Host To Eastern Conference

The sixty-fifth session of the Eastern Conference of North Carolina Free Will Baptists will convene with Saints Delight Church, Craven County, October 19, 20, 1960. The following program will be followed throughout the conference:

Wednesday Morning Session

- 9:00—Registration
- 10:00—Devotions, the Rev. Norman Ard
- Welcome Address, the Rev. James Lupton
- Response, the Rev. S. R. Kennedy
- Partial Report of the Credentials Committee
- Call List of Ministers
- Enrollment of Visitors
- Appointment of Committees, Modified (continued on page sixteen)

NOTICE TO N. C. CHURCHES

The North Carolina State Convention no longer has a treasurer on the Christian Education Board; therefore, all church treasurers are urged to send their donations directly to the college of their choice, and not to the former treasurer, the Rev. Earl H. Glenn.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Please explain, "Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man borrow of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold." Why would God tell the Children of Israel to borrow that which He knew and which they knew they would never return to pay back?—Alice Fleming, Illinois.

Answer: We find this Hebrew expression from which the word borrow is translated several times in Exodus, but in no place does it mean borrow as we use the word today. The revised version renders this Hebrew word, ask, which in the present day use is more correct than borrow.

This being true, what would be wrong with God requiring of His people that had come into Egypt as men of wealth and the relatives of the prime minister, Joseph, whom he had used as a medium to direct Egypt to store surplus grain that would be in abundance for seven years, to take care of the poverty of the coming seven years famine that He foreknew would come, who now by the unethical scruples of the Egyptians had been reduced to poverty? Not only had the Egyptians confiscated their wealth, reduced them to slaves and gained much wealth from the Israelites' servitude, but they were seeking to further torture and humiliate them by destroying each male child born, when God took over. God is always just a step ahead of the schemer, so He required that the Israelites each demand gold, silver and precious jewels from his oppressing lord or boss.

This the Egyptians would have never yielded to it if it had not been for the tremendous pressure God brought upon them in the ten plagues, so discreetly arranging and timing as to have the last one fall on the night of Israel's departure from their land. The death of the first-born in every home with the grief and mourning that followed did just what God wanted it to do. I am sure that everything Israel demanded and received that way fell far short of all the Egyptians had gained from Israel's contribution to their well being. They had done much of the skilled as well as all the most menial labor for hundreds of years which helped to make Egypt one of the most prosperous nations of the world, perhaps the most important.

In reading all the book of Exodus carefully, you will discover God's main reason for directing His people to take with them expensive and precious jewels. They were to be used in the construction of the tabernacle as a place in which Israel was to worship God. Temporary though it was, the tabernacle was one of the most expensive structures of its day. The gold in the candlesticks alone cost $29,085; "Of a talent of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels" (Exodus 25:39). Then in addition to this, some of the furniture was covered with brass (very expensive in that day) and some with gold (more precious and more expensive even than the brass). In addition to this expense, the boards were mounted or placed in sockets of silver. There was also the mercy seat made of fine gold. There were the precious stones in the breastplate which were rare and extremely high in value as were those on the shoulder of the high priest. So altogether God was requiring of His people in worship symbols that cost a great deal for the times which called for it. So, if wealth were needed for no other purpose, the tabernacle itself called for more than could have been gotten together any one of the many existing nations of that day using the greatest human ingenuity of the time. This, then, which they needed, God enabled them to get in back pay which was many years past due. He engineered the project and all they needed to do was follow His directions. This is what His followers always need to do in accomplishing His purpose and to receive His well done, no more, but, indeed no less, and in that the job will always be correctly and efficiently done.

Getting the gospel to every creature of the whole world in a single generation seems an impossible task for the Christian church, whose consecrated members are so few; but if we were to let God engineer the whole affair, it could be as quickly and as easily done as the demanding and receiving precious materials of the Egyptians and the building of the tabernacle was to Israel.

Question: Please explain, "And it repented the LORD that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at heart" (Genesis 6:6). Do all the reasons to God's repentance simply mean that it appears to man that He changed His mind, or does He actually feel sorry in some instances?—Mrs. L. D. J., Tennessee.

Answer: Let God's Word answer "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world" (Acts 15:1). In reality it is man who repents and changes, never God, which in some cases may make it appear that God repents. "For I am the LORD, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed" (Malachi 3:6). "And also the Strength of Israel will not repent: for he is not a man, that should repent" (1 Samuel 15:29); "God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say to the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you" (Exodus 3:14). The name God gives Himself and that both Hebrew men of fidelity, character and spiritual insight have said of Him indicate that the sense men are said to repent; God never has or ever can do it. Thus we recognize the fact that in talking to men, God sometimes uses language that, when not understood, might seem to indicate He repents; but when viewed in the light of all that Scripture says of Him, we are foreed to conclude that He never repents as we are called upon to do.

The Privilege to Drink

(continued from page five)

waste morals and refuse salvation, and the privilege of going to hell. With all the facts and many more that could be presented, do you think the privilege of drinking is worth accepting? How does it appeal to your better judgment?

"For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

"Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, . . ." (Acts 3:19).

"Jesus saith unto him, I am the light of the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6). ". . . Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy household" (Acts 16:31).

"Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near" (Isaiah 55:6).

"But as many as received him (Jesus) to whom they gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:12).—Pilgrim Tract Society, Randleman, North Carolina.

Delible mprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Baptist people or events of the past, please submit it to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER R. K. HEARN

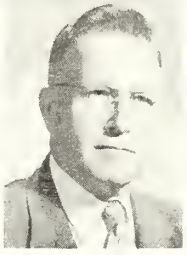

R. K. Hearn, son of Elder Howell Hearn Sarah Hearn, his wife, was born October 31, 1819; died March 21, 1894. He married daughter of Richard Reaves the 12th November, 1846. The much esteemed minister, united with the church at Gum Spring November 25, 1850, and was ordained preacher of the gospel August 1, 1853. He never moved his membership, but remained with the church of his first love. His death took him to join the church of the first-born of God, in heaven. He did his duty as a minister of the gospel, and visited several churches at a great sacrifice, of health and means, that he might bring souls to Christ and obtain the promise which awaits the faithful in Christ. He stood firm in defense of the doctrine of the Free Will Baptist denomination. Whenever it was assailed he came to the front and defended the cause he perceived to be right. He taught the leading principles of doctrine the way his brother was always ready to defend, salvation through Christ, believer's baptism by immersion, open communion, and following the saint's feet. These he so faithfully contended for, that we as a body of survivors, were led to success and triumph; for which we all should let the name of R. K. Hearn have a resting place in our hearts while his body is mouldering to its last center on earth, and his spirit gone to join the angel's throne above. We should let his influence live with us while we are permitted to live.

The dear brother is gone never to return to defend the doctrine anymore for us but we should be guided by his counsel when he says, "Stand in the ways, see and ask for the old path and walk therein, that we may find rest to our souls." The dear brother has lain down the cross to take up the crown that is laid up in heaven for the final faithful.

Rest on dear brother, we hope to join you by and by, where there will be no more parting: where we will sing the song of the redeemed of the Lord, where there will be no sorrows, no pains, no night, but one eternal day to chant the praises of the Lamb of God forever.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

THE WAY TO DESTRUCTION

"Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matthew 7:13, 14).

The last two weeks were devoted to meditations dealing with the wages of sin, and life as the free gift of God. During the next two weeks we will be considering the ways to destruction and to life. Verse 13, which we are considering this week, states the ease with which we may go to destruction. Wide is the gate, and broad is the way. This implies the ease of entering and traversing the way to destruction. To enter in at this gate is the beginning of a life of rebellion against God. The facility of passing through this gate is in exact proportion to its dimensions. As the gate is wide the entrance is made with ease. But, to divest the subject of all figure and implication, I want to point out that such is the depravity of Adam's descendants, who, as soon as they become competent to discern between good and evil, choose evil. In entering on such a course, nothing is necessary but to act out the natural inclinations of the heart. This is easy to do. Hence the facility with which sinners go to hell.

Charles Simcon, commenting on this verse, said, "There is no difficulty at all in entering upon an ungodly life; we need only follow our natural bent and inclination. Nor will they who frequent the broad road at all interfere with each other. The gross sensualist, the proud Pharisee, and the specious hypocrite, may have ample scope for their respective pursuits. Sin may be indulged in ten thousand shapes; for 'All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; . . .' (Isaiah 53:6)."

The text also teaches that it requires little or no effort to pursue a sinful course to destruction after it has been commenced. Broad is the way that leads to destruction. The breadth of the way promotes the ease and the rapidity of the traveler's progress. No self-denial is required of those who go in this way. Every sinful passion may be indulged. Every unhallowed desire may be gratified. Every depraved appetite of lust may be consulted and yielded to. Those who walk in the broad way may give the utmost latitude to their wickedness. They may indulge in every variety of crime. It is a broad way. It will accommodate all classes of sinners. The swearer may take God's holy name in vain; the liar may continue to utter his falsehoods; the drunkard may indulge in his liquid fire; the licentious may go on in their lusts; the desecrators of the Lord's holy day may go on in their pleasure-mad way; the worldly may become more worldly; the neglecters of so great salvation may still longer and longer neglect it; they may do all these things and more, and yet they may still all continue in this broad way. There is ample space for all, and there are abundant facilities for the rapid descent to perdition.

But the tragic fact is that they who travel in the broad way have the great majority of the world on their side. Many go in at the wide gate. Untold numbers are always to be found traveling on the broad way. Those who want to go with the large crowds will find them on the broad way that leads to destruction. How easy it is to go with the crowd! How little difficulty in floating on the popular current! Popularity is everything with some. Some will even make their way to the chambers of eternal death, because it is popular to go with the crowd. Some will sacrifice their immortal interest at the shrine of popularity. Some feel that there can be no danger where the multitude is so great, forgetting that many enter and walk the broad way that leads to nothing but destruction.

"Destruction and misery are in their ways" (Romans 3:16).

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Missionary Radio Station Power Increased

The Evangelical Alliance Mission (TEAM) has announced approval by the newly-organized Chang government in Seoul, of its year-old application for authority to increase power of its Missionary Radio Station HLKX at Inchon, Korea, from 20,000 to 50,000 watts.

The setup in output from the Korea radio station will virtually double the coverage and, thus, the potential listening audience behind the Iron Curtain, according to Tom Watson Jr., founder and director of the work, who is now in the United States.

HLKX for nearly four years has been broadcasting in Chinese, Russian, Korean and English, beaming its gospel programs into the Communist countries of Northeast Asia. Letters received in response to Chinese and Russian broadcasts indicate that the programs are heard regularly at points as far away as 2,600 miles to the northwest of the salt water antenna location on the edge of the Yellow Sea at Inchon.

Engineering studies have indicated that when the 50,000 watt transmitter goes into operation this distance may be increased by more than 50%. Watson says, "We pray that God's people in the homeland will move swiftly to help us take this giant stride forward in TEAM's radio ministry. There are scores of thousands in the Communist countries who have no other way to hear of God's great provision for all men in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ."

Work Progressing in Washington, D. C.

The Lord continues to bless our work. We had our record attendance of 42 on Sunday, August 21. We had prayed for more workers and God is sending them our way. If our growth continues we will be able to organize into a church around the first of the year.

I am more convinced than ever of the great need for fundamental preaching in this place. Hearts are hardened with materialism. Ears are deaf to the gospel. (A man bragged to me recently that he was an agnostic!) Moral convictions are at an all-time low; but my, what an opportunity to see the power of the gospel manifested! It can still save. Pray that our witness here would go forth in the power of the spirit.

This preacher is more keenly aware than ever that this is not a battle of flesh and blood. This is a spiritual battle and only those seeking the face of God in continual prayer and fasting will win the battle for Christ. We need a deep moving of the Spirit of God upon our people and the unsaved! Nothing short of this will do.

Pray that God will convict the unsaved of their sins and convince them of their need of Christ. God is giving us the unsaved to preach to. Pray for their salvation that God would be glorified in this place.

The Kenneth Walkers

News from National Home Missions Office

Baby daughter, Andrea Marie, born to Missionary and Mrs. Mack Owens, Littleton, New Hampshire, September 1. This is their second child.

Mission church at Wenatchee, Washington, sent third student to Free Will Baptist Bible College. Miss Annis Foreman joins Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Goldie who came last year.

Miss Mollie Barker, missionary to Mexico, now is a student nurse at General Hospital in Nashville, Tennessee. She is on leave from the National Home Missions Board, until her training is finished.

Miss Bessie Yeley is now settled in her new work among the Spanish speaking people of Miami, Florida.

The Arthur Billows have bought property and begun the building for the school in Monterrey, Mexico. They have adopted two more children.

Free materials are available from the National Home Missions office for those who will be having National Home Missions services in November. Write for tracts, pictures, key rings, offering envelopes, place mats, new booklet on Hawaii and many, many other items.

Rev. and Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin and Rev. and Mrs. Roy Thomas are available for some missionary services before they leave for their fields of ministry. Write if you would like them in your church.

Rev. Kemieth Walker and Rev. Mel Martinez will be speakers at the annual missionary conference at Greenville, N. Carolina. Plans are in the making to chase property for the new mission church in Washington, D. C.

Rev. Homer E. Willis, general director of National Home Missions, will visit mission work in Hawaii early in December. He and Missionary Luther Sanders will make a survey of the major islands.

The eleventh annual missionary conference held at Nashville, October 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, well attended and gave good evidence of being one with lasting results. Speakers were Dr. Laverne Miley; Rev. Roy Thomas; Rev. Kirby Joe Godwin; Rev. Bobby Cock and Rev. Homer E. Willis. Rev. F. Smith gave the charge to new appointees both foreign and home fields.

The Statehine Association of Alabama sponsored a missionary conference in connection with their annual meeting recently. Homer E. Willis and Roy Thomas were speakers.

Now is the time to plan to observe November as National Home Missions Month and Sunday, November 20, as National Home Missions Sunday. On that day make a Thanksgiving offering for National Home Missions.

THE MAIL BOX

A JOB WELL DONE

"I congratulate you on the good job you have done since you accepted the position of editor. We need more enlightenment among our people. This week's copy of The Free Will Baptist is especially interesting with its articles from our lay members. I feel that our paper is very essential during the present political crisis since many of our daily newspapers are pro-Kennedy.

"Our prayers will increase for you as you try, through the power of the pen, to rally support for our college and other enterprises. Please accept our thanks for a job being done well."—Rev. Herman Grubbs, Route 1, Box 170, Mount O. North Carolina.

CHURCH SEEKS MINISTER

"We are endeavoring to establish a Free Will Baptist church here in Grand Prairie, Texas, located between Dallas and Worth, Texas. We have a nice building with all conveniences, and a wonderful opportunity to establish a work for Christ. If there are preachers, who read this would be interested, please contact us as soon as possible. Write, Bob Harless, N. W. 15th Street., Grand Prairie, or 23085, Grand Prairie."—Bob Harless.

NOTES

A N
D

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

KNOWLEDGE OF GOD

us said, in speaking to His followers, He went away, "I have many things I have said unto you, but ye cannot bear them now."

Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come. He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you. All things that the Father hath are mine: before said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you" (John 16:12-13).

Upon the authority of the words of Jesus Christ, I am bound to believe that there is much knowledge that we have not received. There are some who feel that they have obtained all the knowledge of God, but I do not claim to have obtained the full knowledge of God. But I do have the blessed assurance from the Master, that if I seek to know of Him, He will open the way that I may keep on learning, and someday that I will no longer see through a glass darkly (darkened glass), but I shall see Him face to face. Paul puts it this way: "Now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12).

Another glorious hope of perfect knowledge is recorded by John when he says, "I loved, now are we the sons of God, but it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but ye know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2).

According to these Scriptures, it appears that we can never know it all while here on earth. We can get to where people say, in speaking about others, "Man is an animal of great knowledge," and tell the world. Then we can get to the place where we think that we are smart and know it all, and finally be brought down to earth where we find that we are ignorant of many things.

Someone has said that knowledge is the only instrument of production that is not subject to diminishing returns. Here are some quaint and interesting quotations about knowledge:

The more knowledge a man has the better he'll do his work.

Knowledge without integrity is dangerous and dreadful.

Integrity without knowledge is weak and useless.

Knowledge advances by steps, and not by leaps.

The only wealth which will not decay is knowledge.

Whosoever acquires knowledge and does not practice it resembles him who plows but does not sow.

Knowledge is a comfortable and necessary retreat and shelter for us in advanced years; and if we do not plant it when young, it will give us no shade when we grow old.

Knowledge exists to be imparted.

May we notice in the above saying, "The more knowledge a man has the better he will do his work." Paul says, "For we are labourers together with God: . . ." (1 Corinthians 3:9). This being true, the more we know of God, or the better that we know God, the better workers we will be, certainly this is true.

IN NATURAL THINGS

The more the physician knows about diseases and the remedy for ills, the better prepared is he to treat the sick. The more the lawyer knows about law, the better prepared is he to plead the cause of his client. The more the teacher knows about the sciences of life, the better prepared is he or she to teach. One that does not know, will soon be found out in all these sciences. But the greatest knowledge obtained from any source is that knowledge that comes from above. James says, "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given unto him" (James 1:5).

Now do not get it into your mind that all a man has to do is to get down on his knees, or in some quiet place, and ask God to give all the knowledge that he needs for everything that he is called to do. God has not promised to do any such thing. God requires us to go the right way to find the knowledge that we need for everything for every day.

SOME POINTERS

"Search the scriptures; . . ." (John 5:39).

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, . . ." (2 Timothy 2:15).

Listen to those who know and teach truth: "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Timothy 3:14, 15).

As has been said before, for us to sit down and wait for God to fill our mouth, it will only be filled with air, sometimes hot air. God has the knowledge for us, and has given to us the Holy Ghost as a teacher; however, the Holy Ghost does the most of His work through God as a teacher of His work through men and women who have searched the Scriptures prayerfully, and with much care and have learned to impart that which they have acquired by study and seeking. This is why we have colleges, universities and seminaries in which we learn that which is necessary to our best interest for this life and that to come.

KNOWLEDGE WITHOUT INTEGRITY IS DANGEROUS AND DREADFUL

Nikita Khrushchev has great knowledge. He is no fool at all in the knowledge of the earth and the people of the earth. He is a dangerous man; he has no knowledge of justice or uprightness. His knowledge is to destroy all that he cannot rule. It is said by United States observers here (New York), give this interpretation of Khrushchev's aim: "What he cannot control he will attempt to crush. He has found that he cannot control Dag Hammarskjold, nor can he hope to control any future secretary-general, who would be wholly satisfactory to the West. So Khrushchev is attempting to crush the office itself."—William L. Ryan, Associated Press News Analyst, United Nations, N. Y. So according to this news analyst, Mr. Khrushchev is out to destroy the world that he cannot control. This spirit has come all the way from the earliest days of man on the earth. Cain could not control Abel and his offering, so Cain killed Abel.

GET YOUR HISTORY

I have recently read, for the second time, a large part of Fox's Book of Martyrs, and find that according to the records that Christians were persecuted by the Romans and the Roman Catholic church because they could not control these Protestants. Not only persecuted, but were tortured in the most unmerciful way: burned at the stake, cut into pieces, saturated with oil and burned, flayed alive, etc. If you do not believe these things, get you a Fox's Book of Martyrs and read for yourself. These Christians that could not be controlled suffered death before going back on their faith and practice. Would you, my reader? But even today, this day in

(continued on page twelve)

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

LITTLE LEAGUER

by Marjorie Walter

July 30

Dear Uncle Bill,

Thanks a lot for the nice pitcher's glove. It's going to be a big help winning games. It wasn't my birthday or anything. It sure was a surprise.

Little League is what I like best. Well, not really best. Not since last summer when I went to Crusade Camp. I've tried to put Jesus first since I became a Christian. It's hard sometimes. Like when Ken Phillips teases me about going to church and things. He's my best friend, but he's not a Christian. I have been praying for him. My minister prays for him too. He says when two of us pray for something, God will answer according to His will.

I can hardly wait for camp. It starts next week. Ken promised he'd go this year. I told him he could pitch on one of our teams out there since he didn't get a Little League bid. He was awfully angry about not getting a bid. You'd think it was my fault. Mom says he's jealous. He wouldn't be jealous if he were a Christian would he?

Next week the managers are going to choose the all-stars to go to Centerville for a big game sometime in August. I think I'd have a good chance of being chosen except I'll be at camp and will miss that game. It took me a while to decide that one. But Ken needs to be saved and I know he won't go to camp unless I do. I sure hate missing that game, though.

Mom just called up the stairs. It's time for me to go to bed. So, good night, Uncle Bill.

Love,
Ron

August 4

Dear Ron,

I surely enjoyed your letter last week. I'm writing this so you will receive it at camp. I remember how much fun getting mail at camp is.

I have been praying for your friend, Ken. I am confident that God will hear our prayers and Ken will be won this year at camp as you were last year.

I wrote a letter to your minister. We were good friends all through school. I told him how much being at that Little League game would mean to you. It may be that he could arrange it so you could get into town that afternoon. Ask him and see.

Uncle Bill

Crusade Camp
August 8

Dear Uncle Bill,

Do I ever have some news today! We won! And I got on the all-stars! Ken went to the game and was glad we won because now he's a Christian after last night. We're sure very happy here.

My minister did work it all out. He said he had to go to town today, anyway, and he went to the game with us, then bought us pop after. He said he played professional ball until he was saved. He was a pitcher too.

The Centerville game is August 30. Dad and Mom are going. They said to ask you. Can you come? Mom even went to today's game. She said afterward that the reason she went was so she would be in practice for the big game. But she doesn't care much about baseball. I can tell.

We had a campfire last night. Ken gave his testimony. I can't remember what he said. Going into town today he

One Kind Word

Drop a word of cheer and kindness
just a flash and it is gone,
But a half a hundred ripples go a-circling on and on,
Bearing hope and joy and comfort
on each splashing, dashing wave,
Till you can't conceive the volume of the one kind word you gave.

Drop a word of gospel kindness—
in a minute you forget,
But the gladness that it started swells and circles even yet;
And you've rolled a wave of comfort whose sweet music can be heard
Over miles and miles of water, just by dropping one kind word.

—The Gideon.

made me help him memorize a verse counselor gave him. It was John 3:16. I think that is the first verse I learned.

Ken says he's going to work real hard and maybe next year he'll make Little League. This is my last year and I'm not going. I made the all-stars, but I hope he'll make it next year. He should have an uncle give him a pitcher's glove.

I am supposed to lead devotions tonight. I have been thinking about Romans 12:17 all day, so maybe that is what I should lead tonight. I wish that camp could go on another week. All the fellows feel that way. Especially Ken. He doesn't want to go home. I can't blame him because folks aren't Christians yet.

There goes the siren. End of rest time. Good-by, Uncle Bill.

Ron

August 8

Dear "All-Star" Ron Anderson,

Praise the Lord!

And congratulations, Little Leaguer. I'll be at that game!

Uncle Bill
—My Pleasure.

NOTES and QUOTES

(continued from page eleven)

which we live in splendor under the stars and stripes, we have those who claim to be Christians, who are out to crush those who are weak in the faith, which they cannot control. Thus we live in a divided nation, politically, religiously, socially, and live with hatred, jealousy, and with hearts filled with even murder in many instances. John says, "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and whosoever hath not loved his brother, who hath seen the light, shall not abide in him" (1 John 3:15).

"Fox's Book of Martyrs can be bought from the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina.

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, feature articles, for publication "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your item processed earlier.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Central Woman's Auxiliary Workshop

There will be a workshop conducted by North Carolina field worker, Mrs. Carl Spivey, October 26, 1960, at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina.

Participants will have all auxiliary officers, the chairmen and prospected officers and chairmen attend this workshop.

H. L. Spivey
Regional Auxiliary Convention Field Worker

C. Woman's Auxiliary Convention Treasurer's Report

Raymond T. Sasser, treasurer of the North Carolina Woman's Auxiliary Convention, reports as follows for the quarter ending August 31, 1960:

Received		Disbursed		Balance
Missions, General Fund	$ 135.60	$ 135.60	$	$
Missions Special:
a	5.00	5.00
b	118.50	118.50
c	27.50	27.50
n Missions, General Fund	294.34	294.34
n Missions Special:
s	15.00	15.00
t	6.00	6.00
u	7.50	7.50
v	25.00	25.00
R. and W. C. Y. Jr.	505.50	505.50
Will Baptist College	76.25	76.25
ive College	99.86	99.86
nnuation	79.50	73.50	6.00
ont Assembly,	82.00	82.00
borer	105.25	105.25
en's	74.00	74.00
C National	49.50	41.50	8.00
bership	25.00			25.00
cls	$1,740.30	$1,692.30	$	$	39.00
Received from
ner Treasurer	$1,509.82
are in Treasury		39.00

Received for Convention Work	144.00
Total to Account For Expenses	$1,662.82
Delegates to National Convention	$ 300.00
Officer's Expense	21.13
Treasurer's Salary	60.00
Printing 1960 Minutes	135.66
Total Expenses	516.79
Balance on Deposit in Bank	$1,146.03

Principals in Eastern Auxiliary Convention

The five persons shown above were principals in the annual fall meeting of the Eastern Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary Convention held at Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina. Left to right; they are, Mrs. T. O. Terry, New Bern, president; Mrs. Nelson Simpson, Bridgeton, secretary; the Reverend Jerry Rowe, ministerial student of the college, and pastor of Piney Grove Church in Pitt County, who delivered the convention sermon; Mrs. Rom Mallard, Trenton, treasurer; and Mrs. J. C. Moye, Snow Hill, president of the State Auxiliary Convention. Delegates from nine eastern North Carolina counties were among the 250 persons attending.

Bethel Host of Cape Fear Woman's Auxiliary Convention

The Cape Fear Woman's Auxiliary Convention will convene with Bethel Free Will Baptist Church, Johnston County, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 12, 1960. The theme will be: "Challenge of the Cross—Missions," and the Scripture, "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8). The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 9:30—Registration
- 10:00—Devotions, "The Challenge to Pray for Our Missionaries, Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin
- President's Remarks, Mrs. Herman Hersey
- Introductory Business Session
- Challenge of the Chairmen:
 - Study Course Chairman
 - Personal Service Chairman
 - Children's Home Chairman
 - Enlistment Chairman
 - Program-Prayer Chairman
 - Youth Chairman
- 11:00—Morning Worship Service
- Special Music, Mrs. Eugene Waddell
- Message, Rev. Harold Stevens
- 12:00—Recess for Lunch
- Afternoon Session
- 1:00—Devotions, "The Challenge of Supporting Our Missionaries," Mrs. Bobby Aycock
- Special Music, Mrs. Lester Warrick
- Greetings:
 - State Mission Board
 - Mount Olive College
 - Foreign Mission Board
 - Free Will Baptist Bible College
 - Cape Fear Mission Board
- 2:00—Panel Discussion, "The Challenge of Directing Our Youth in Missions," Led by Mrs. Chester Phillips
- 2:45—Report of Committees
- 3:00—Adjournment and Benediction

DARE WE

(Continued from Page 3)

the flood of Noah's day. O. don't you believe there was a flood as the Bible teaches?

It is no wonder that one of the democratic electors of Texas said that he would not vote for Kennedy even if he did win the popular vote. He said, "The election of John Kennedy would be the worse calamity to ever befall this nation." I am not against Mr. Kennedy as a man, but as a politician I am against him with all my strength because I know, notwithstanding his so-called commitment, that his politics and his religion are bound together, and he is bound to the Pope of Rome. If Mr. Kennedy wins the election, Rome wins the United States of America. Christians, think!

Annual Report of N. C. Children's Home

GREETINGS

God has blessed the Free Will Baptist people this year, granting them the happy privilege to use a part of that with which He has blessed them in the support of the children of the Children's Home. The generous gifts from churches, individuals and other sources have made it possible to operate debt free. For these blessings from God and your generosity, we are grateful.

COUNSELING

The children have been counseled from time to time with the purpose in mind of helping them meet and solve the many problems of life.

CHURCH PROGRAM

The Rev. J. O. Fort was our pastor this year, and he was a great help and inspiration to us. To Mr. Fort we are very thankful. We have Sunday school and league services each Sunday, preaching each first and third Sunday, and vesper services on Wednesday evening of each week.

FARM SUPERINTENDENT

The farm was operated again this year by Children's Home personnel and children, with Mr. H. E. Mixon again serving as farm superintendent. Along with Mr. Mixon, Mr. Herman Stocks and the children have done splendid work with the farm.

IMPROVEMENTS

On our campus we have one major improvement. The remodeling of the kitchen to meet the requirements of the State Board of Health, was completed in the spring.

HEALTH PROGRAM

The health of the children has been good again this year. Dr. Zyba K. Massey of Zebulon, has co-operated wonderfully in meeting the dental needs of each child. Dr. Josephine Newell has also taken care of the medical needs of the children.

SUPPORT AND FUTURE IMPROVEMENTS

We want to thank you for your support this past year and urge you to continue your support in the future so that we can take care of the children and make necessary improvements. We pray that God, in His love and mercy, will guide and bless our efforts as we enter this fiscal year.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. Everton, Superintendent-Treasurer

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

August 31, 1960

ASSETS

Cash on Checking with People's Bank and Trust Co., Middlesex, N. C.
Superintendent's Account	$ 7,174.87
Capital Account	4,051.23
Total in Checking Account	$11,226.10
Cash on Savings with People's Bank and Trust Co.
College Student's Fund	$ 810.16
Hawkins Educational Fund	295.40
Swimming Pool Account	1,450.00
Superintendent's Account	10,360.86
Special Account	10,000.00
Total on Savings	22,916.42
Total Deposit in Bank	$34,142.52
Notes, Bonds and Petty Cash
McLeod Educational Loan Fund	$ 810.00
McLawhorn Educational Loan Fund	700.00
Petty Cash	100.00
Total Notes, Bonds and Petty Cash	1,610.00
Total Assets	$35,752.52

STATEMENT OF CASH RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS

September 1, 1959, Through August 31, 1960

Cash on Hand September 1, 1960	$ 30,118.80
Receipts
Religious Organizations	$58,871.98
Duke Endowment	10,583.76
Parents and Relatives	1,966.23
Friends and Other	8,930.30
Refunds	842.07
Concert Class and Field Representative	9,445.99
Farm Cash Sale	6,799.42
Capital Receipts	3,175.16
Transfers from Other Funds	11,186.62
Total Receipts for Year	111,801.53
Total for Which to Account	$141,920.33
Disbursements
Salaries	$18,031.91
Office Supplies	716.25
Telephone and Telegraph	806.49
Insurance	2,348.64
Administrative Travel and Conference Expense	2,249.66
Financing and Publicity	5,036.81
Travel Relative to Care of Children	2,473.69
Food	14,971.92
Clothing	5,549.06
Laundry	1,440.89
Household Supplies	3,425.74
Religious Supplies	119.03
Recreation	917.44
Health Supplies	856.02
Education Supplies	2,230.36
Fuel, Lights, Water, Ice, Etc.	7,437.30
Plant Replacement and Repair	10,983.33
Farm Supplies	6,968.49
Farm Replacement and Repair	643.36
Replacement of Livestock	3,342.19
Annuity Bond Interest Payment	270.00
Transfers to Other Funds	11,186.62
State, Federal, F. O. A. B. Taxes and Retirement	3,378.78
Loans and New Equipment	2,429.69
Total Disbursements for Year	107,801.53
Cash on Hand August 31, 1960	$ 34,118.80
Total Accounted For	$141,920.33

BUDGET RECEIPTS FOR YEAR

September 1, 1959—August 31, 1960

Conference or Association	Conference Quota 1959—1960	Raised in '59 and General, Clothing, Building, Music Concert Class, etc.
Albemarle Conference	$ 5,650.00	$ 4,591.04
Blue Ridge Association	3,151.00	740.88
Cape Fear Conference	8,525.00	5,691.96
Central Conference	13,170.00	19,103.64
Eastern Conference	27,155.00	17,885.90
French Broad Association	5,125.00	2,721.27
Jack's Creek Association	3,775.00	1,213.65
Mount Mitchell Association	750.00	484.26
Piedmont Association	3,475.00	1,562.40
Pee Dee Association	975.00	804.86
Rockfish Conference	275.00	396.99
Toe River Association	675.00	204.50
Western Conference	17,350.00	13,205.51
Yadkin Valley Association	600.00	312.00
Western Yearly Association	40.00	37.00
Totals	$100,691.00	$ 68,955.98

DONATED COMMODITIES

Food	$ 9,445.99
Food by Department of Agriculture	1,200.00
Clothing	4,000.00
Farm and Household Supplies	1,200.00
Total Donated Commodities	$3,800.00
Coupons Received September 1, 1959—August 31, 1960	39,150.00

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Our Need of God

(Lesson for October 23)

Text: Psalm 42:1-11.

Lesson Text: Psalm 42:11.

INTRODUCTION

There is a law of nature that man has certain needs which must be met if life is to be sustained. The physical body, however, lives on bread alone. In other words, there is more to complete life than the physical. This is what Jesus was teaching. We must remember that the most important need of man is the need of God. Complete relief of soul can only be found in God. The psalmist used some of the most beautiful language here that has ever been written. "As the hart panteth after the brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God" (Vs. 1). The hart is the male of the species of deer, perhaps the fallow deer. We can see the figurative picture of the soul as it thirsts after God. The hart, hot and thirsty, longs for the cool water that will restore its strength. "So panteth my soul after thee, O God," the psalmist cried. Just as the hart longed and thirsted for the cool refreshing water of the brook, so the psalmist's soul longed for God. (See The Bible Student (F.W.B.).)

HINTS THAT HELP

Every servant of the Lord passes through long periods of trial. There are times when the Lord permits us to be tested longly beyond endurance. The psalmist is passing through such a period of heartache as he writes Psalm 42. His enemies taunt him because his prayers seemingly not answered. "Where is thy God?" they asked. He is reminded of the fact that he was the one who led the multitudes to the house of worship. He had been faithful. Yet, it appears the Lord has deserted him. He likens his sorrows to tornadoes that sweep his soul. The thunders of God are rolling and his confusion is increasing. He has wept night and day because his enemies have been deriding his testimony. But in this very hour of trouble, his soul thirsts for God as a deer will yearn for the brook in the mountains. He wonders when he may again worship the Lord in His holy temple; for he recognizes that the answer to his troubles will be discovered in the place of prayer.

7. He is cast down but not defeated; he knows the Lord will yet hear his cry and exalt him, even though he is temporarily forsaken. He rebukes his spirit for permitting doubts to overwhelm him.

8. Good teachers hold that Psalms 42 and 43 constitute one poem, and this seems probable for several reasons: (1) The thoughts in both are similar; (2) the forty-third has no heading; (3) there are three stanzas in all each closing with the same call to a disquieted soul (42:5, 11; 43:5). The whole poem forcefully expresses our need of God.—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. "My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?" (Vs. 3). While the first two verses describe the thirst of the soul, this verse would indicate that perhaps the psalmist had such intense longing for God that he spent his time crying rather than eating.

The last part of the verse shows perhaps the bitterest dregs in the cup of captivity. The Babylonians did not believe in the one true God. They worshiped idols. To have these idol worshipers throw this question in the face of God's people was a humiliating insult almost too great to bear. A Godly person like the psalmist would, however, think more about the honor of his God than about his own feelings.

2. One of the greatest possessions anyone can have is a great store of pleasant memories. No one can take them from you. They serve as a storehouse from which we may take comfort in the time of our sorrow and distress. The wise person tries to increase his storehouse of pleasant memories (Vs. 4, 5).—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. Illustration: Satan, according to a fable, offered his tools for sale. Each tool was marked with its sale price. Each tool was labeled — hatred, envy, jealousy, deceit, lying, pride, gossip, etc. Apart from the other tools, was a harmless looking tool. It was well-worn and priced very high. "What is the name of this tool?" asked one. "That is discouragement," tersely replied the devil. "Why have you priced it so high?" "Because it is more useful to me than the others. I can get inside a man's heart with that tool when I couldn't get near him with other tools. It is badly worn because I use it on almost everyone. So few people seem to know that it is I who fills the soul with discouragement."—Selected.

4. Scholars tell us that the Psalms 42 and 43 belong together and that many Hebrew manuscripts actually unite the two as one. A casual observer of the two Psalms together will convince the reader that Psalm 43 continues the thought started in Psalm 42. The dramatic monologue, a form common in the Psalms, is between the psalmist and his soul. However, his soul does not answer but only listens, while he encourages his soul in the dark hours of tribulation.

5. The mood expressed is a curious blending of despair and hope in the midst of deep depression. In modern terms, we might say that the psalmist is suffering from a severe case of the blues, for we must admit that people of all times have suffered such feelings. The main difference between the psalmist and many others who suffer the blues is that the psalmist never gives way to complete despair. In other words, the psalmist never gives up completely because he is aware of the presence and care of God who is still on his side; therefore, he hopes for the day when the Lord will deliver and the sunlight of joy will burst forth again in the soul.

6. It is better to complain to God than to complain about God. Though he seems to be forgotten, the psalmist still is sure that God is his rock, a safe foundation, a shade from the sun, and a shelter from the storm.

7. The psalmist of our lesson was a fortunate man. He had his troubles, many of them; but he still retained his spiritual hunger. He needed God, and he certainly knew it. His "song in the night" was both a song of hope and a song of triumph over tribulation.—The Standard Commentary.

8. A missionary who labored in Africa, wrote home and pleaded with his supporters to send money for a sound truck, so that he could broadcast the gospel to those who had not heard. He waited and prayed. The truck did not arrive.

One morning he heard a sound truck as it approached the village. He ran from his cabin hoping that his prayers were being answered. Could this be the truck for which he prayed so many months? Were they surprising him by delivering the truck without advance announcement of its arrival?

As the truck drew into the village, his heart melted. He saw that the truck was sent by the Communists to woo the people to Communism instead of Christ. Psalm 42 expressed his innermost feeling.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

- erator
- Moderator's Address, the Rev. S. A. Smith
- Report of Free Will Baptist Children's Home, the Rev. J. W. Everton
- Offering for the Children's Home
- Introductory Sermon, the Rev. S. A. Smith

12:00—Lunch

Wednesday Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions, the Rev. J. B. Starnes
- Report of the Executive Committee
- Report of the Examining Board
- Report of the Free Will Baptist Press, the Rev. N. B. Barrow
- Report of Church Finance Association, Inc., the Rev. M. L. Johnson
- Report of Superannuation (the Board), the Rev. Walter Reynolds
- Report of Missions

- Miscellaneous Business
- 3:00—Adjournment
- Wednesday Evening Session
- 7:30—Service in charge of the Examining Board
- Thursday Morning Session
- 9:00—Devotions, the Rev. Sheldon Iard
- Reading and Approving Minutes Previous Day
- Call List of Ministers
- Enrollment of Visitors
- Committee Reports
- Miscellaneous Business
- Report of Mount Olive College, Dr. W. Burkette Raper
- Offering for Mount Olive College
- Conference Sermon, the Rev. I. Lightsey
- 12:00—Lunch
- Thursday Afternoon Session
- 1:00—Devotions, the Rev. Graham Iard
- Finish Committee Reports
- Miscellaneous Business
- Treasurer's Report
- Allocations Committee Report
- Petitions
- 3:00—Adjournment

SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE

50 Issues of The Free Will Baptist for only $2.00

Only $2.00 will bring you an issue of "The Free Will Baptist," our denominational weekly, each week for fifty weeks. Keep up with our denomination's activities and news for this small price. Put a "Baptist" in every home!

Each issue contains information of interest to every Free Will Baptist; such as, missions news, Christian education news and woman's auxiliary news.

Regular features include, Stories for Boys and Girls, St. Claire Bible Class (a prepared Sunday school lesson), Pastor's Notebook, The Lighted Pathway, Questions and Answers, Indelible Imprints, Notes and Quotes and News Notes.

There are features each week of special significance in our time, and editorials of current interest.

Where else can you get so much for so little?

The subscription blank below is for your convenience in sending in your renewal or new subscription. We would also like for you to fill out the last part of the blank, giving us the name of some friend or relative who may be interested in subscribing to "The Free Will Baptist."

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK

NAME _____	(Check Two)
ADDRESS _____	<input type="checkbox"/> Payment Enclosed
Name of Interested Friend or Relative _____	<input type="checkbox"/> Bill Me
_____	<input type="checkbox"/> New <input type="checkbox"/> Renewal
Address _____	<input type="checkbox"/> Gift

Community Chapel Reports Successful Fall Revival

The Rev. P. D. Jenkins completed a day revival meeting at Community Chapel, Free Will Baptist Church near Maple, North Carolina, Thursday night, September 22. There were several rededications and thirteen accepted Christ as their Saviour. The Rev. P. D. Jenkins is pastor of Community Chapel and the Rev. B. Taylor is assistant pastor. Mr. Jenkins states: "We thank God for the groups from the neighboring churches who rendered special singing in this meeting and the co-operation of the different churches."

The Book of God

I like to read the Book of God—
The Bible is its name;
It tells us that to save our souls
Our loving Saviour came.

It comforts me when I am sad,
It shows me how to live;
It teaches me to lovingly
My help to others give.

It is God's own sweet voice of love
Though written down with ink
And when I read it, to my heart
It is as food and drink.

the
Free Will Baptist

DS ✓

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 12, 1960

19

When Morning Gilds the Skies

When morning gilds the skies,
My heart awaking cries:
May Jesus Christ be praised!
Alike at work and prayer
To Jesus I repair:
May Jesus Christ be praised!

Does sadness fill my mind,
A solace here I find:
May Jesus Christ be praised!
Or fades my earthly bliss,
My comfort still is this:
May Jesus Christ be praised!

In Heaven's eternal bliss
The loveliest strain is this,
May Jesus Christ be praised!
The powers of darkness fear,
When this sweet chant they hear:
May Jesus Christ be praised!

—Joseph Barnby

Guarding Our Thinking

By Charles J. Noble

E. Wanatchee, Washington

Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be virtue, if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4:8).

Someone has said, "Thinking is talking to one's self, and talking is thinking out loud." This is true, unless we talk about thinking, which is very often the truth when he said, thinking is the talking of the soul with

THINKING IS A PERSONAL MATTER

No one else can do our thinking for us, at least no one else should. As mortal beings we are the masters of our thinking. With God's help, it is possible for us to control our thinking, and to direct it into proper channels.

In Isaiah 26:3 we read, "Thou wilt keep in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." Wilkins once said, "Garner up thy thoughts in your mind, for pleasant thoughts make pleasant lives." Another, Marcus-Antoninus, said, "The happiness of your life depends upon the quality of your thoughts; therefore, guard accordingly, and take care that you entertain no useless unsuitable to virtue and reasonable Thinking is far more important than most we realize. In fact, thinking is so important that the Christian battle is either won or lost on the ground of thinking. By thinking right, we may lift our eyes to heavenly things, and God will chart our way to the land of endless day. If we give way to evil thinking, we not only make ourselves miserable, and cast a shadow on those with whom we associate, but we will miss the mark. If we miss the mark at the end, we have missed the mark somewhere before the end. Channing expressed well when he said, "All that a man does outwardly is but the expression and communication of his inward thought. To work equally, he must think clearly; to act nobly he must think nobly."

THINKING CANNOT BE HIDDEN

This is an unusual statement, but it is true. If one thinks right, one will live right; if one thinks evil, one will practice evil. This holds true regarding everything we do. This holds true in regards to the matter of segregation. The issue on segregation is a touchy issue, and has brought about a great confusion in the United States. There are many opinions regarding this matter, but regardless of our opinions or convictions on this issue, if we are children of God, we must conduct ourselves as such, and not allow bitterness to spring up in our hearts. As Christians, we are no stronger than our weakest points. Good, sober thinking, together with Paul's admonition to the Corinthians, will help us in solving the segregation problem, or any other problem in or out of the church. Writing in 1 Corinthians 13:5, Paul said that love does not behave itself in an unchristian way; it does not seek things for its own; is not easily provoked and thinks no evil. The wiseman, Solomon, said, "Far as he thinketh in his heart, so is he: . . ." (Proverbs 23:7). In our language, Solomon would say, "A man is no better than his thought life." This being true, it is certainly advisable for all of us to pay close attention to our thought life.

J. W. Teal said, "It is the habitual thought that frames itself into our lives. It affects us even more than our intimate social relations do. Our confidential friends have not so much to do in shaping our lives as do the thoughts which we harbor."

THINKING MAY BE INFLUENCED AND CULTIVATED

It is true that no one can do our thinking. Yet, it is possible for our thinking to be influenced and cultivated. The greatest force which influences our thinking is our early home life. How true the words of Solomon: "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6).

Just as surely as the fruit tree needs to be pruned and cultivated, we can be equally assured that our thinking needs to be pruned and cultivated. There are many things that come to our minds that must not be allowed to remain; the intruding thoughts must be driven out. Thoughts of evil should not be allowed to become evil deeds. B. P. Porteus said, "Everyone must see and feel that bad thoughts quickly ripen into bad actions." In his letter to the Philippians, the Apostle Paul exhorts the Philippians to think on things that are just and pure; things that are lovely and of good report. A happy and healthy soul can be produced only by directing the thought life into constructive channels. To do this, one must not pass his opinion on a matter having received only second hand information. He must know the truth of a situation, and then knowing the truth, he must channel his thinking and action in such a manner that will prove helpful to his own soul and the situation at hand. To always do this is sometimes difficult, with God's grace, and with our best co-operation, much improvement would come to all of us. It was Mackay who said, "An arrow may fly through the air and leave no trace, but an ill thought leaves a frail like a serpent."

Every true child of God is interested in growing in grace. To make any progress toward this end, one must think on the highest things in life. This does not mean, however, that we are to ignore the other side which oftentimes is unlovely. On the other hand, if we are to remain Christians, we must not retain anything in our thinking that would cause bitterness, jealousy or envy to rise up in our hearts which will result in destroying our spiritual power. It would be well for us to give heed to the words of Young: "Guard well thy thoughts; our thoughts are heard in heaven."

I am reminded of the days when I was just a lad. My mother would sift the chaff out of the corn meal (the chaff was cast out), but the refined corn meal was used to help feed the family. Likewise, we as Christians must be on our guard, lest we be given over to a reprobate mind. It behooves us as Christians not to be shaken in mind, but be of a sound mind.

Thinking is one of the greatest powers God has given to man. If we use our thinking powers properly, we shall conquer. If we leave our thinking unguarded, our thinking will conquer us.

The prayer that the psalmist prayed might very well be made our own: "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O LORD, my strength, and my redeemer" (Psalm 19:14).

A Great Gift

by Rev. Virgie H. Day
Laurel, Mississippi

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures" (James 1:17, 18).

THESE verses of Scripture tell us that every good and perfect gift comes from our heavenly Father. He must be acknowledged as the cause and source of everything that is good. How many gifts we have received from our Father in heaven! How wonderful it was when we received them! Yes, God has blessed us in many ways, many times. However, the highest and the best gift that God has bestowed upon us is the gift of regeneration.

The new birth is necessary, for man comes into this world destitute of spiritual life. If he is to have fellowship with God, there must be a divine change. There are those that would have us believe that man is essentially good. There are others who believe that living a good moral life is the only essential for heavenly membership. Nicodemus was a very good man, morally, but Jesus told him that he needed regeneration. "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again" (John 3:7). To be regenerated is not to be self reformed. It is a new birth; the recreation of the soul after the divine image, through the infusion of a new spiritual principle. It involves a new heart, a new character, a new life entirely. A true Christian is a creature begotten anew. He becomes as different a person from what he was before the renewing influences of divine grace as if he were formed over again and born anew.

The power that can renew the soul of a man lies not in that man himself, neither does it lie within the power of any group of men, or of any organization, or anything of this world. Such a change can only be effected by the power of God. It is the special office of God, the Holy Ghost, to bestow this gift of regeneration. It is not by any skill, or power, or from any good foreseen in us, or done by us, that has caused God to bestow this gift upon us. He is not constrained to give it by fate. He is not moved by fitful impulse. We are regenerated purely by the good will and grace of God. Not one of us can say that we deserve such love. But it is God's nature to love, and bless, and bestow gifts of grace upon the undeserving. How wonderful to know that God loves us enough that He will give us a new birth of His own will.

While the Holy Spirit is the agent in regeneration, God uses the Word as the instrument. The Word of truth, that is, the gospel, is indeed a word of truth, or else it could never produce such real, such lasting, such great and noble effects. In the hands of the Holy Spirit the Word of God becomes living and powerful. The Word is needed in regeneration as the means of calling forth the new thoughts and feelings of the new life. Only as we lay hold of revealed truth can we begin to believe the gospel, or love the Saviour, or any way grow spiritually.

That we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures. These words refer to God's gracious purpose towards His people. Under the provisions of the Hebrew ceremonial law the first fruits of the harvest, and the first-born of man and beast, were consecrated to God. Therefore, since we are a kind of first fruits, we should be God's portion: a treasure, consecrated to Him. We are to serve Him day and night, at home and abroad. To show God our gratitude in bestowing the gift of regeneration upon us we should let others know of His wonderful gift.

Do we have the assurance that this comparable gift is ours? Can we say with complete assurance, "He begat us"? We have a joy to know that we have passed from death unto life!

A NEW STUDY FOR THE BIBLE SCHOLAR

AND A CAREFUL LOOK into the DOCTRINE
of
'ETERNAL SECURITY'

Only $4.95

The author, a Southern Baptist minister, demonstrates that the supposed proof passages have been misconstrued by those who believe the Bible sanctions the popular doctrine of eternal security. He shows that apostasy is an actual peril for every Christian.

A Book to Be Reckoned With By ALL BIBLE SCHOLARS — Both Ministers and Laymen

The introduction is written by William M. Adams of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

ORDER FROM

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. BOX 158

AYDEN, N. C.

SUBSCRIPTION PLANS

because we desire to see The Free Will Baptist going each week into every home in every denomination, we have adopted three plans whereby subscriptions are solicited for on the field:

The Every Family Plan: Under this arrangement the local church votes to place The Free Will Baptist in each home in its membership. The church clerk sends us names and correct mailing addresses of families in the church. Upon receipt of the list of names and addresses, we send The Free Will Baptist to these people and the church quarterly for the entire subscription price for the quarter less 10 per cent. If any families in the church are already subscribers, we subtract the amount of their credit from the quarterly bill. Names can be added to or subtracted from the church list at any time, upon notification from the church clerk. Bills are sent to the churches on this plan according to the calendar quarter.

The Church Group Plan: This arrangement is designed for organizations in churches which do not adopt the Every Family Plan. If any church group such as Sunday school class, the woman's auxiliary, a league or other group wishes to place subscriptions for us, we ask that they place five subscriptions in the first lot, deducting ten per cent from their total subscription collection at the individual subscription price ($2 per year), keep the ten per cent for their treasury and send us the remainder of their collection together with names and correct mailing addresses of those to whom subscription is solicited. For instance: if a church group solicits five subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist in its first lot, its total collection for these subscriptions will be $10. The group keeps $1 for its treasury and sends us $9, together with the names and addresses of the people to whom The Free Will Baptist is to be sent for one year. The plan starts anew at the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, and no credits given in any one year may be carried over and added on the new year.

Individual Solicitations: In any church which is not following Plan 1 or 2, we offer every individual an avenue of outstanding service to the Lord. Any individual who will place five one-year subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist and send us the full subscription collection ($2 per year per subscriber), we shall place his name on our roll of solicitors to appear monthly in The Free Will Baptist. When he has solicited 10 one-year subscriptions in any fiscal year we shall allocate a bonus subscription as credit; he may use this bonus to reimburse his own subscription for one year or he may send us the name and mailing address of some other person to whom we will send

The Free Will Baptist for one year without charge.

Any church group or individual interested in soliciting subscriptions under Plan 1 or Plan 2 should contact us and let us send receipt books and subscription blanks for their convenience in administering this service.

Editorial Department
The Free Will Baptist Press
Post Office Box 507
Ayden, North Carolina

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Rev. C. J. Harvey

The Rev. Charlie J. Harvey was born January 6, 1889, and fell asleep in Jesus, August 2, 1960, in Albany, Georgia.

Brother Harvey gave much of his life in the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ. He was especially interested in the Georgia State Youth Camp and gave much time and energy to it. He traveled thousands of miles pleading for the state youth camp. The youth camp has never had a greater friend.

Funeral services for Brother Harvey were conducted in Greenwood Free Will Baptist Church, Camilla, Georgia. He served this church as pastor for a number of years and enjoyed a fruitful ministry there. He also started a youth camp at this church and a number of sessions were held here.

The Rev. K. V. Shutes and the Rev. Leroy Knighton officiated at the funeral services. A goodly number of his ministerial friends were present and each one was given a chance to speak a word in his behalf.

His only son died of a heart attack in August of 1958, and four weeks and four days later his wife died. His only daughter was killed by lightning a few years ago. Brother Harvey leaves several grandchildren, a sister, one brother and a host of friends behind.

K. V. Shutes

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, or feature articles, for publication in "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your item processed earlier.

Religion Is the Issue

By Rev. M. L. Sutton

Party politicians on both sides of the aisle are trying to keep religion out of the presidential campaign. This is impossible because the main issue with most people, notwithstanding that they say otherwise, is the religious issue.

Regardless of what Mr. Kennedy says about not dictating to him, he has not severed his connection with the Roman Hierarchy; and so long as he is bound to it, he is bound to a dictator whose program includes ruling the world by any means. The Pope believes this to be his God-given right, and as long as Senator Kennedy is a part of this system, the protestant people will be afraid of his religion.

We who are classed as Protestants do not want any part with Rome or the Roman religion, but if Romanism can get strong enough in our nation to elect a president of their creed, we will have a part with it whether we want or not. It is alright with the average American to be taxed for public schools, but we deeply resent having our tax money go for religious denominational schools. I for one, and I am confident that I speak the sentiment of my brethren, would resent any part of a tax dollar going to a Free Will Baptist school for any purpose. Free Will Baptists believe in the absolute separation of church and state, but Mr. Kennedy does not and cannot if he believes what his church teaches. If he does not believe what his church teaches, he is playing the part of a hypocrite with his church. However, those who have made a study of the history of Rome do not believe that he is playing the part of a hypocrite with his church, but that both he and his church are pulling the wool over the eyes of many non-Catholics Americans.

Some Americans have just a few short weeks to make up their minds whether or not they will vote to preserve our religious freedom—our freedom of worship, freedom of the press and speech, the right to assemble peaceably, and our public schools. Remember that Roman Catholicism is an avowed enemy of these principles and institutions. If we value them as we should, we will not take a chance on losing them by electing a Roman Catholic to the high office of president. If we do not value them, we will soon lose them, and we will deserve to. This is the time to stand up and be counted. This is certainly no time to let sentiment over ride our judgement. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." (See Psalm 107:2).

NEWS NOTES

Pearce Chapel pays tribute to Rev. M. L. Hollis

On Friday night, September 16, more than one hundred persons assembled at the Pearce Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, east of Smithville, Mississippi, to pay tribute to the pastor, the Rev. M. L. Hollis, for thirty-five years service of preaching "one gospel, Christ and Him crucified" in this small country church.

At the altar where Mr. Hollis was seated was a large and beautiful floral arrangement of snow-white lilies. A program, beginning with the reading of Psalm 1, was then given in his honor, and a love offering was presented to him as a token of appreciation from members of the church and friends who consider him "our pastor" although they may be non-members or members of other churches.

As Mr. Hollis reminisced, he related how he had come as a young boy to the church in 1923, from Vernon, Alabama. Since then he has baptized more than four hundred members for this church, conducted numerous funerals and performed every wedding ceremony which has been held in the church, in addition to many other weddings. He has always been ready and willing to go to those in spiritual need, regardless of weather conditions and forgetting his own strength, often going when he was physically unable.

After the program, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis led the way to a well supplied dining hall. They were followed by the deacons and the oldest members of the church. The oldest members present were Mrs. Lou Burrow, Mrs. Mattie Francis and Mrs. O. O. Robinson.

The table for the guest of honor was decorated with a white and gold cake in the shape of an open Bible and bearing the inscription, "Holy Bible," on top. On the side was written, "Best Wishes, Rev. Hollis." Thirty-five candles were blown out by Mr. Hollis signifying a climax of his thirty-five years of faithful service. Golden floral arrangements used throughout the dining hall were suggestive of the many golden moments the members of the church will hold dear as they look back over the years. The congregation was dismissed with benediction by Mr. Hollis and the singing of "God Be With You."

Mr. Hollis, who recently resigned after the vote to secure a full-time pastor, preached his final sermon as pastor on Sunday, September 18, and used for Scripture, Acts 20:17-38. As was typical of his many early morning services, one member, Mrs. Burl Riggan Sr., was added to the church.

Revival in Progress at British Chapel Church

Revival services are now in progress at British Chapel Church near Kinston, North Carolina. Services began Monday, October 17, and will continue through Sunday, October 23. Services are beginning each evening at 7:30, with the Rev. C. L. Patrick delivering the messages. Special music is being featured in each service.

The pastor, the Rev. A. J. Lyczkowski, request your prayers for this revival and the work of the church. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Juniper Chapel Church to Observe Home-Coming

The Juniper Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Vanceboro, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on October 23. Sunday school will begin at 10 a. m., with morning worship service to follow.

The pastor, the Rev. Henry Armstrong, invites all former pastors, members and friends to come and enjoy the blessings of God. There will be some good preaching and singing.

N. C. Children's Home Report For September, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, reports the following receipts for September, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual auxiliary, or organization contributing, totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt.

General Fund

Albemarle Conference	$ 190
Blue Ridge Association	20
Cape Fear Conference	90
Central Conference	61
Eastern Conference	81
French Broad Association	10
Jack's Creek Association	20
Pee Dee Association	20
Piedmont Association	50
Rockfish Conference	20
Toe River Association	70
Western Conference	24
Miscellaneous and Sale of Tobacco	8,170
Farmer Picture Program	1,190

Clothing Fund

Albemarle Conference	80
Cape Fear Conference	170
Central Conference	61
Eastern Conference	35
French Broad Association	40
Piedmont Association	90
Western Conference	74

Kitchen Fund

Cape Fear Conference	100
Western Conference	100

Central Conference Building Fund

Central Conference	61
--------------------	----

College Student Fund

Miscellaneous	20
---------------	----

Total September Receipts $13,690

Revival in Progress at Casey's Chapel Church

Revival services are now in progress at Casey's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Goldsboro, North Carolina, with Rev. Eustace Riggs as the evangelist. Services began Sunday, October 16 and continue through Saturday, October 22.

The pastor, the Rev. Ronnie Peck, the church members extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend the revival nights of this meeting.

Coming Events

- October 19, 20—Eastern Conference N. C., Sts. Delight Church, Craven County
- November 3, 4—Cape Fear Conference N. C., Goldsboro Church, Goldsboro
- November 4, 5—Florida State Association Unity Church, Jacksonville, Florida
- November 9, 10—Central Conference N. C., Free Union Church, Granville County
- November 15-17—Georgia State Association, Baxley, Georgia

Blah Church Announces Annual Fall Revival

Revival services will be held at Beulah Free Will Baptist Church near Pamplico, South Carolina, October 23-30, with the Rev. Norman Ard of Pink Hill, North Carolina, as the evangelist. Mrs. Ard, the sister Margaret Vance, will direct the singing.

A hearty welcome is extended to everyone. The pastor, the Rev. Julius B. Vance.

Ma Church Host to 2nd Quarterly Meeting of S. C. Conference

The Second Quarterly Meeting of the South Carolina Conference will be held at the Free Will Baptist Church near Ward, South Carolina, Saturday, October 14, 1960. The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 10—Opening Hymn
- Devotions, Host Church
- 10—Roll Call
- 10—Appointment of Committees
- 10—Intermission
- 15—Morning Message, Julius B. Vance
- 10—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 10—Devotions, Tyler Wadford
- 15—Report of Committees
- 10—Adjourn

Illinois Free Will Baptist Sunday School Alliance

The Illinois Free Will Baptist Sunday School Alliance will meet October 22, 1960, at the Sunday School Alliance Tabernacle, Chicago, Illinois, the president, Claude Hampleman, announces. Each Sunday School is to send five delegates and $5. Checks payable to Illinois Sunday School Alliance. Each person is requested to bring a lunch of sandwiches and cookies. There will be no evening service. The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 10—Song
- Welcome, David Shores
- Meditation, Kay Sweetin
- 15—Call to Order, Claude Hampleman
- President's Message
- 10—Business
- Reading of Letters
- Seating Delegates
- Reading Minutes
- 10—Message, the Rev. Everett Beatty
- 10—Lunch, Webbs Prairie in Charge

Afternoon Session

- 10—Meditation, Mary Bain
- 15—Business
- Election of Officers
- Afternoon Service, Bethel in Charge
- 15—Dismissal

Dr. Raper to Conduct Annual Fall Revival

The fall revival at the Oriental Free Will Baptist Church, Oriental, North Carolina, will begin Sunday evening, October 23, and continue through Saturday evening, October 29. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 with Dr. W. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive Junior College, as the evangelist.

The church and the pastor, the Rev. Clinton Lupton, extends a very cordial invitation to the public to attend these services.

Home-Coming and Revival At Winterville Church

The Winterville, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church will observe its home-coming Sunday, October 23, with the Rev. Wesley Calvery, returned missionary from Japan, bringing the message. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at 12:30 p. m. All members, former members and friends are invited to attend.

Sunday evening, October 23, revival services will begin with Mr. Calvery preaching through Wednesday evening. The pastor, the Rev. Adam Scott, will bring the messages the rest of the week. The church extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Revival Services at St. Mary's Church, October 24-30

Revival services will be held at St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, October 24-30, with the Rev.

Louis H. Moulton as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The pastor, the Rev. Ralph Lightsey, and the church members extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend these services.

Hull Road Church Announces Fall Revival

The Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church, near Snow Hill, North Carolina, announces its fall revival, Sunday, October 23. The pastor, Rev. Walter Reynolds, will begin the revival and speak through Wednesday evening. The Rev. Wesley Calvery, missionary to Japan, will bring the message Thursday evening and will continue through Sunday evening, October 30. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

Special music will be presented by the adult and youth choir. Also there will be solos, duets and quartets. Mrs. Carl B. Barrow will be the organist and Miss Mary Seymour, pianist. The congregational singing will be led by the choir director, Mr. George Harrison.

The pastor invites everyone to come and enjoy these services.

Maury Church Announces Revival

Maury Free Will Baptist Church, Maury, North Carolina, announces revival services beginning October 23, continuing through October 29. The evangelist for these services will be the Rev. A. L. (Bud) Hines. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

Mr. Hines is pastor of Ruth's Chapel Church, New Bern. He is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, and he has a love and deep concern for lost souls.

The final service, on October 29, will be a singspiration service at 7:30 p. m. There will be a message in song during each service of the revival. The pastor, the Rev. Henry Hagens, and the church, extend a cordial invitation to all interested persons to attend these services.

Macedonia Church Announces Singspiration

The Macedonia Free Will Baptist Church, Erul, North Carolina, is having a singspiration on Saturday night, October 22, beginning at 7:30. A cordial invitation is extended to all singers and listeners to come and join in this joyful occasion. A freewill offering for the parsonage fund will be received.

(continued on page sixteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Please explain, "Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me: for he wrote of me" (John 5:45, 46). How can some folk believe and trust Moses and deny Christ?—A. D. B.

Answer: There are scores of people today that are trusting Moses, or the law of Moses, for their salvation but do not believe what Moses wrote, for he wrote about Christ. I have had a life-time acquaintance with a man who passed on into eternity only a few weeks ago after living ninety years. He claimed to keep the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount and that was all he needed to get him into heaven. So far as I know he died thus believing and trusting, which if true he will never go to heaven because the Bible teaches, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36); "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). The sacrifice which Moses gave Israel in conjunction with the law well indicates his knowledge of the fact that they could not keep the holy precepts. In fact, the sacrifice was a part of the law. The commandments made every honest Jew acknowledge his unworthiness and inability to keep any of the moral demands a holy, sin-hating God might require of a sinner, that he be restored to a right relation with God. Therefore, such a Jew would not only be willing to make the sacrifice but rejoice in the grace and mercy that such an offering indicated as belonging to our God.

The Israelites of Jesus' day presumed to keep the law of Moses and rejected Christ, the only Saviour of whom the whole Old Testament testified in such glowing presumption. They, as the majority of Gentiles in this day, were seeking to gain righteousness through the works of the flesh rather than the marvelous gift of God's free grace. Since the Pharisees in Jesus' day refused to give up the law as a means of salvation and receive Christ apart from it, they were not saved. The few, like Matthew, who did give up the law and accept and follow Christ by faith only found both salvation by grace and happiness in service. He wrote the Gospel of Matthew. This official attitude on the part of the Pharisees as a body was the cause of Jesus setting them aside and building His church. Now in the church age, God is in Christ calling Himself a people out of the world from both Jews and Gentiles, who, when called out, are Christians, but officially neither Jew nor Gentile.

The Seventh-Day Adventists and many others of unwarranted cults are seeking salvation on the grounds of works. Such so-called Christian groups are just as much and probably more in error than are the Jews of this day, who are the descendants of the Pharisees of Jesus' day. With the Pharisees, they trust Moses (the law) and yet the same law they claim to be keeping is a testimony against them because they, nor anyone else, have ever kept it; furthermore, they cannot keep it and neither will anyone else ever keep it. The Old Testament testify to the fact that the law is a witness against all breakers of it and the New Testament makes clear that all have broken it. "And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished, That Moses commanded the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying, Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee" (Deuteronomy 31:24-26); "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

The law has not once nor can it ever witness for one single person. It will never witness for a single person's salvation. If anyone, whosoever he may be, is not trusting Christ and Him alone for salvation, it will be that one against whom the law testifies. Let us see what the Word says on this score. "Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made; and it was ordained by angels in the hand of a mediator" (Galatians 3:19). The law was given to Israel to show her need for the Messiah. It was given to serve this purpose until God Jesus. It was never given to Gentiles in that sense; so when Christ had come offering salvation by faith alone, the law's use was over and its use in this sense was his. "Now a mediator is not a mediator of God but God is one. Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law. But the Scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise of faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the law which should afterwards be revealed. Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster. For we are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Gentile, neither bond nor free, neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Vs. 20-29).

This teaching of Jesus the Pharisees refused to believe; therefore, Jesus told them, "You trust Moses, but you do not believe Moses." This is not only true of the Pharisee but can be said of all that trust the law. Even today there are many that trust the law but do not acknowledge the atonement of the shed blood. It is said in the law about the shed blood, "For the life of the flesh is in the blood: and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul" (Leviticus 17:11). When Moses came down from Mt. Sinai with the law, he instructed them to bring offerings for sins. Through all this, God was giving intelligence as to the fact that the curse of the law made sacrifices necessary and that Israel was in need of redemption which was to come as "the Law of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

Subscription Honor Roll

Mrs. J. J. Blizzard, Deep Run, N. C.
Wom. Aux., Marsh Swamp, Sims, N. C.
W. C. Hill, Mount Olive, N. C.
Jimmie Tyndall, Pink Hill, N. C.
Melvin K. Everington, Sims, N. C.
Mrs. R. L. Goff, Fountain, N. C.
Mrs. Corbett Morris, Vanceboro, N. C.
Mrs. J. E. Smith, Deep Run, N. C.
Mrs. Martha M. Braxton, Winterville, N. C.
J. C. Griffin, Bridgeton, N. C.
Mrs. C. F. Heath, Cove City, N. C.
Mrs. Ed Hill, Ayden, N. C.
M. B. Hutchinson, McArthur, Ohio
C. L. Patrick, Walstonburg, N. C.
William Webster, Pine Town, N. C.
Wom. Aux., Moseley's Creek, Dover, N. C.
Wom. Aux., Pine Level Church, Pine Level, N. C.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

THE WAY TO LIFE

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go therein: but strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matthew 7:13, 14).

We are considering this week the last verse of this text. It suggests that Christians will have difficulty on the way to heaven. Why is this true? Because a great effort is necessary in beginning and continuing the Christian life. By this statement I do not mean to suggest that salvation can be obtained by our works: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Ephesians 2:8-10); but no one will dispute the fact that it requires effort, and many times difficulty, to renounce and repent of our sins, which we must do in order to accept Christ as Saviour and Lord. To come and continue as Christians it is required that we must deny ourselves. Self-denial is never easy, but there can be no Christianity without it. Strait and narrow is the gate.

There is much to impede the progress of Christians after they pass through the strait gate, because narrow is the way which leadeth unto life. Does not this statement clearly imply that pilgrims on the way to Zion have to encounter difficulties? This is manifest from many other portions of Scripture. The Christian, when referred to as a soldier in the army of the great Captain of our salvation, is exhorted to endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. Endure hardness! Does not this show that it is difficult to go to heaven? The life of a believer is a life of constant self-denial—a life of action—a life of labor. I read the other day the following statement: "The most formidable enemies, the world, the flesh, and the devil, that first oppose an entrance through the strait gate, oppose the saints all along the narrow way. They are under the necessity of fighting the good fight of faith, that they may lay hold on eternal life. They have opposition at every step, and did not God infuse strength and courage into their souls, they would fall by the way. They go forward with difficulty."

This is spoken of as the way of the few. And few there be that find it. It is so much easier to go with the large crowds. It is never easy to walk alone or with the few, but this is the Christian way—Christ's way. Comparatively few enter in at the strait gate, and walk the narrow way. Probably more enter than continue to walk in the way of Christ. We have seen that sinners are in the majority, and Christians, being in the minority, are frowned on by the world. They are considered a peculiar people—and they really are—for they proceed in holy singularity, from strength to strength, until they appear before God in Zion. They are a little flock, but it is the good pleasure of their heavenly Father to give them the Kingdom. But a thousand influences are exerted against them, and the difficulties they encounter are many and great indeed.

"For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God? And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:17, 18).

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

SIN, THE MOST DANGEROUS THING IN THE WORLD

(Romans 6:23)

I. THE EMBARKATION OF SIN

1. In the universe (Ezekiel 28:15-17; Isaiah 14:12-14).
2. On the earth (Genesis 3; Romans 5:12).
3. Into the heart (Psalm 51:5; Galatians 3:22).

II. THE ENVIRONMENT OF SIN

1. One is often surrounded with unsavory characters (Daniel 5:1-13).
2. One is sometimes confronted with temporary plenty (Luke 12:16-20).
3. One is always ultimately brought low (2 Kings 5:20-27).

III. THE EMBARRASSMENT OF SIN

1. The evil deeds of man are often discovered by others (Exodus 2:11-14).
2. The evil deeds of the saved will be known to Christ at the Judgment seat of Christ (2 Corinthians 5:10).
3. The evil deeds of the unsaved will be known to God at the judgment of the great white throne (Revelation 20:11-13).

IV. THE EVOLUTION OF SIN

1. The progression with Eve was that of seeing, taking and hiding (Genesis 3:6, 7).
2. The progression with Lot was that of seeing, choosing and dwelling (Genesis 13:10-12).
3. The progression with Achan was that of seeing, taking and hiding (Joshua 7:21).

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

Survey Team Visits Mt. Olive College

President W. Burkette Raper announced today that Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, will learn in early December whether or not it has met the requirements for regional accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. A survey team representing the Standards Committee and Admissions Committee of the Association have

V. THE EJECTION OF SIN

1. It far removes one from God (Isaiah 59:1, 2).
2. It far removes one from loved ones (Luke 15:13; 16:28).
3. It far removes one from peace and happiness (Isaiah 57:20, 21; Psalm 137:1-4).

VI. THE EXECUTION OF SIN

1. The unsaved are now dwelling under it (John 3:18, 36).
2. The unsaved will after death fully realize it (Revelation 20:15).
3. The unsaved have no hope but Christ (Acts 4:12).

VII. THE EMANCIPATION FROM SIN

1. Sin can only be taken away because of the death of Christ (1 Corinthians 15:3).
2. Sin can be cast into the depth of the sea (Micah 7:19).
3. Sin can be forgiven and forgotten (Isaiah 43:25).

WHAT A CHALLENGING FIELD, CHALMERS!

When a young man, Dr. Chalmers left his great church and a host of admiring friends in Forfarshire to labor in the slums of Edinburgh. It was a dreary day when he reached his new work. Clouds hung oppressively low and the rain descended in a dismal drizzle. Rags and pillows were stuffed in broken windows. Dr. Chalmers became sad and heavy-hearted. As he trudged along, he heard a cheerful voice! "Greeting, Chambers," said Dr. Thomas Guthrie, adding, "what a fine and challenging field you have in which to work!" "Why I never thought of it in that light," said Dr. Chalmers. "I saw the needy people through my eyes, and not as the Lord sees them—a flock that somebody must shepherd!" Seeing those people in the Edinburgh slums as God saw them, his heart was filled with love and compassion for sinful men and women, boys and girls. His work was crowned with success!—
Walter B. Knight.

been at Mount Olive College the week of October 3, 1960.

Making the survey were Dr. James B. well, chairman, president of Cumberland College, Williamsburg, Kentucky, and President William Smith of South Georgia College in Douglas.

A comprehensive report, detailing history, curriculum, program and future plans of the college was presented to the survey team. Standards for evaluation include the organization and administration of the college, the qualifications of faculty, effectiveness in carrying out philosophy of education, adequacy of physical facilities, size, quality and use of the library, laboratory equipment, financial support, community service, general tone of student life and guidance program, performance of graduates in four-year colleges and universities, entrance and graduation requirements, salary scale, and the general tone of educational atmosphere of the college.

Mount Olive College was chartered by the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists in 1951 and began operation in Mount Olive in 1952. State accreditation was granted in 1958.

Mount Olive Graduates Continue Education

Every associate in arts graduate from Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, since 1956 has enrolled in a four-year college or university, Mrs. Josephine Ricks, registrar, has disclosed. Only liberal arts graduates in the history of the college have not continued their education.

The academic performance of Mount Olive College graduates in senior institutions has been commendable, Mrs. Ricks declared. Out of 427 grades received by Mount Olive College graduates in four-year colleges, 13 have been below "C"; 310 grades have been either "A" or "B." Ninety-seven per cent of the grades earned by graduates of the local college in four-year institutions have been "C" or above, and seventy-three per cent have been "A's" and "B's."

Senior colleges to which Mount Olive College graduates have transferred are: Atlantic Christian College, Wilson; Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone; Carolina College, Greenville; Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee; Greensboro College, Greensboro; North Carolina Baptist Hospital School of Nursing, Winston-Salem; and the University of North Carolina.

NOTES

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

BEING HANDSOME CANNOT DO THE JOB

The owner and editor of "The Mirror," a New Bern paper, said, when he was making a survey among the citizens of New Bern, he found a young lady who said she would vote for Kennedy because he was handsome. Let me quote all that J. Gaskill Daniel said in the paragraph: "And, in these trying times, winning a beauty shouldn't be one of the requirements for landing in the White House. However, not to be disregarded, is the remark in the young matron interview in our survey: 'Kennedy is handsome,' she drooled, 'I'd vote for him no matter what party he was representing.'"

This writer says that it takes more than being handsome to fill the place of president. It is going to take grit and grace, a lot of brains and experience, with many years ago to fill the place of president of the United States during the next four years.

Not only will it take the above stated characteristics, but the president will have to have the ability to stand up against destructive criticism. He will be judged by those who do not have as much judgment as the president. But that makes no difference with people. It does not take any person to pass his or her judgment on another. We have big critics and little ones. Someone said, "It takes all kinds of people to make a world." But I say, "We have all kinds of people in the world: right, self-righteous, the exalted, the abased, the rich and the poor, constructive and destructive critics. Jesus said, 'Let the wheat and the tares grow together.'" But thank God one day it will all be cleared away, and no seed will be growing with the wheat.

JUDGMENT

Speaking of judgment, even the Master said that he was not the judge when he came here on earth in person. Jesus said, "I have come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness. And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day. For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say, and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak" (John 12:46-50).

Notice that Jesus said, "So I speak." Speak what? The words of life everlasting. Did Jesus mean what He said? He said, "I speak not of Myself." Jesus never bragged on Himself. I often hear preachers bragging on what they have done. I heard one say, in talking about his preaching and fruit-bearing, "I can shake the tree as hard as anyone," talking about winning souls. I just wonder if he did not shake off a lot of green fruit, for other preachers who followed had a lot of trouble with trying to get them ripe. Green fruit in your congregation will cause a lot of trouble. I think that often a lot of testimonies are self-praise.

I met a man, a few days back, who remembered me, but I could not remember ever seeing him. This fellow got hold of my hand and would not let go. He said, "I have been converted" and told the name of the preacher that converted him. If I have any discernment at all, the poor fellow was half drunk. He could walk, but worse than any sober man would walk. This is not judging, it is seeing a man and listening to his talk. Yes, the preacher had converted him; and when a preacher converts a fellow, that convert will not last very long, but while he does last he makes a good critic. He usually sees the fault of all the members of the church, and sometimes he turns against the preacher that converted him. Only God can convert a person. We preachers, I feel, keep begging and pointing right at a fellow in the congregation until the fellow feels so embarrassed until he goes to the altar to stop the preacher; or he goes because someone else goes. This is often true among young people and children. I have had young people to tell me that went because some of their special friends went up. The person who is overpersuaded stays in the church often in an unsaved state, and is ashamed to confess his lost state. He is powerless if he tries to fill an office in the church which they often do, and they keep things stirred up. They are great critics, and often envious of those who get more pats and compliments than they do.

I sat by the bedside of a church member who had served as deacon for many years, but he said, as I sat by him, that he was lost.

FANATICISM

I heard an old preacher, who is dead now, or at least he has moved out of his earthly house into one unseen to us, say "If you are really saved, the devil wants you to stop this side of real consecration, and sit down on a block of ice, and remain in coldness, and if he cannot stop you on the cold side, he would get behind you and push you over into fanaticism and make you be a hot eritic; a busybody that would turn honest people against the church."

Now someone may not agree with me on these words spoken, or written rather, but I thank God I am my own judge, as the Holy Spirit teaches me. As already quoted, "The word as spoken by Christ, is our judge."

JAMES SPEAKS ON JUDGMENT

"Speak not evil one of another, brethren (notice that James said brethren. He was not talking to the underworld, but to brethren, so it is possible for a brother to speak evil of a brother). He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. There is one lawgiver, who is able to save and destroy: who art thou that judgeth another?" (James 4:11, 12). James says, "Brother," in condemning a brother, but I think that the same law would apply to a sister, also. Now I say this because I have heard some very un-Christlike judgment, not too much, because I dislike gossip, and those who know me, know that I hate gossip that passes untrue judgment on others. But often I read of such judgment being passed on. Right now in North Carolina, some of our politicians are passing unjust, unchristian, unethical judgment. If some of these opponents are as unfit for office as each claim for the other, neither one is fit for the office that they are seeking. I am talking about undue, unjust and destructive criticism in order to get votes. Sometimes the political spirit gets into religious circles and the devil, I am sure, if he ever laughs at anything, he laughs at the spirit of destruction in a church.

Rev. E. Howard Cadle said over the air several years ago, before he went to his home in the glory world, "If I were the devil and wanted to destroy a church, I would start in the choir first, and if I failed there I would work in the pulpit." Well I do not know what I would do if I were the devil, but except that I would do as the devil does, work in every nook and corner to find a place to wedge in some propaganda and cause strife among brethren. Jesus said, ". . . Every kingdom divided against itself shall not stand" (Matthew 12:25). These are the words of Jesus Christ, who said, ". . . I came not to judge the world, but to save the world" (John 12:47).

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

FEED MY LAMBS

by Mont Hurst

LUCILLE had been living in a native village in Mexico with her father and mother only a few days. Her father and mother were missionaries. Coming to Mexico had been a strange and interesting adventure for Lucille. They lived in a small village where the people hadn't heard about Jesus. It was a great chance for her parents to win the poor people for the Lord.

One day Lucille read in her Bible, where Jesus had said, "Feed My lambs." Lucille wondered about that. Where were the lambs Jesus said we must feed? The only lambs Lucille had ever seen were on her grandfather's farm. One day she had pulled up some tender grass and had fed the lambs. But Lucille just knew that wasn't what Jesus meant by feeding His lambs.

The next day a family moved into a hut near the one Lucille and her parents lived in. There were two children in the family. There was a boy named Juan and a girl named Juanita. They were twins. Their father raised chickens for the cock fights. Lucille went over to get acquainted with the ragged children.

Lucille knew only a few words of Spanish and the boy and girl knew a few words of English. So they got acquainted. Juanita had a tiny dog named "Chiquita." Their mother gave Lucille some delicious Mexican candy. Lucille invited them to visit her home.

When Juan and Juanita came to Lucille's home, she took them to play with her on the small back porch. Juan picked up Lucille's little white Bible.

"Story book?" asked Juan.

"Maybe a hero book," said Juanita.

"Oh yes . . . and it's more than that!" replied Lucille.

"How?" asked Juan.

"Why, it's the Bible. It is the Word of God . . . all in one book," replied Lucille. "It tells us how to live for God and of what Jesus did to save us from the devil."

Juan and Juanita looked puzzled. They didn't understand what Lucille was talking about. She saw they didn't understand. She told them what she knew about the Bible and what Jesus means. She told them of how Jesus, the only begotten Son of God, died on the Cross that we might be saved and go to heaven when we die.

This was new and interesting to her new friends. They asked her a lot of questions about the Bible, her faith and her church people back in the United States. She told them how she worshiped God. She was glad she was able to tell them.

"You have no candles to burn, no crucifixes, no statues of Jesus, and no confession to make to priest?" Juan asked.

"No. All you do is to tell Jesus you want to take Him as your Saviour. Just talk to Him in prayer like you are talking to me," said Lucille.

"No go to mass? No cross to wear around neck? No beads to count for prayer to saints?" asked Juanita.

"Oh, no!" Lucille replied, "We just talk directly to God! Read the Bible and do what it says to do. Worship nothing but God through Jesus. Let the Holy Spirit come into your heart. He will come when you accept Jesus and ask Him to come. That is what God wants everybody to do."

"Well, maybe sometime you take us to your church. I like to know more about your religion," said Juan.

"Me too!" said Juanita.

"Oh, yes . . . and your father and mother will want to know about our religion, too!" said Lucille.

"Si! Si!" (meaning yes), Juan and Juanita exclaimed.

After they'd gone, Lucille told her father and mother about her new little friends and their desire to know about the Saviour and the Christian life. Her parents were delighted at her witnessing. They said she was a true child of God.

"You've been doing just what Jesus wants us to do," said her father. "You have been feeding His lambs!"

Feeding His lambs! Now Lucille knew just what it meant to feed His lambs! She knew His lambs are the people in the world and that He wants His followers to feed them with the Bread of Life. That is His Word and tells how to be saved. He wants His followers to feed them with the Bread of Life. That is His Word and tells how to be saved. He wants us to win them for Him. Lucille had started a good work. It wasn't long before Juan, Juanita and their parents had accepted Jesus as their Lord and Saviour. Soon they also joined the little group which were having services in the little adobe mission they had built.

If we really love Jesus we will always to feed His lambs the way Lucille did.—L. Pleasure.

When you hear your Sunday school son, don't be like a funnel—letting the message go in one ear and out the other.—L. R.

The Lord's Day

How sweet is the Lord's Day with which we are blest,

The day of the week that I love the best,
The morning my Saviour arose from the tomb,
And took from the grave all its terror and gloom.

So teach me, my Saviour, though small I may be

I am not too young to be noticed by Thee
Strengthen my heart, keep me firm in Thy ways;

I'll love Thee and praise Thee through all the days of my days! —Adapted

THE MAIL BOX

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

"Will you please publish my change of address in The Free Will Baptist. My old address was 313 Turner Street, Beaufort, North Carolina, and my new address is 612 Clark Street, Rocky Mount, North Carolina."—Rev. P. C. Wiggs.

APPRECIATES STAND

" . . . That the forthcoming election of tremendous importance no true American citizen can deny. If we lose to Catholicism, it will only be a question of time until our freedom as Protestants will be taken from us. Our churches, schools and Protestant publications will be taken over by them, and we shall have to suffer the consequences. I would indeed hate to be under a Catholic president and under the pope of Rome.

"I am grateful to the Free Will Baptist for the stand they take against Catholicism. O that all of our Protestant denominations (continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Western Conference Auxiliary Workshop

The Western Conference District Women's Auxiliary Workshop will be held November 5, at Tippet's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Clayton, North Carolina, at 10 a. m. Those attending are requested to bring a picnic lunch. Drinks will be provided by the church.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church met September 22, at 8:00 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Marjie Etheridge. The program was carried out as laid down in the year book. Those attending were: Mrs. Fred Brickhouse, Mrs. Neva Brickhouse, Lydia Brickhouse, Mrs. Nancy Sawyer, Zennie Taylor, Mrs. Bernice Maitland, Madge Van Horn, Mrs. Marjie Etheridge, Rev. Winfred Brickhouse, Kathleen Swain, Vera Swain and Ann Swain.

The business session was held after the program. The meeting adjourned with prayer by Rev. Winfred Brickhouse. The hostess served ice cream, cookies and drinks.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Y. P. A. of the Branch Free Will Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening, September 29, at the home of Leslie Etheridge. Suggestions were made on how to raise money for the Y. P. A. A decision was made to wash cars on October 15, at the Deavers. Car wash will start at 9:00 a. m. and stop at 5:00 p. m. The charge will be $1.00.

The meeting place on October 17, is at the home of Faye Quinn's at 7:00 p. m. The program for next month is "Putting Love into Action." The project is "Visiting the Sick." All young people are encouraged to attend.

Newton Grove, N. C.—The Annie McCall Auxiliary met at the Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Wednesday night at 7:30 p. m. with Mrs. C. I. Godwin, president, presiding. After the meeting was called to order the group sang, "Jesus Saves." The subject of the program was "Hold High the Torch." Prayer and devotion that we may believe in the youth of our churches. Mrs. A. L. Rose read the minutes and called the roll. Mrs. Robert Lee Bass gave a financial report. During the business session, we voted to send a donation to the Auxiliary Convention at Bethel and represent by letters on account of sickness, etc., and to help all missionaries. Mrs. Roy Holland, program chairman, read the introductory of "Hold High the Torch," and made an interesting talk on how to take care of the youth of our church. Others who took part were: Topic "Why," by Mrs. N. C. Lee; topic "How," by Mrs. R. W. Tart; and topic "When," by Mrs. Tronia Jones. Another song was sung, followed with the benediction by Mrs. J. C. Warren. There were seventeen members present.

Installation Service for Auxiliary Officers

The officers of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, were installed in a most impressive ceremony held Thursday night, September 8, at the church with Mrs. Ralph Lightsey serving as installing officer.

The altar was arranged to carry out the theme, "A Garden of Service," with miniature trees and centered with a lighted facsimile of a church and cross pointing out that the church is the center of activities of the auxiliary and its members, who are workers in God's garden.

The emblems of each officer were arranged on the rostrum and each officer took her place beside the emblem of her office. The rainbow as the reflection of the hopes, dreams and plans for the future and the promise to help in carrying them out, represented the president, Mrs. W. E. Baldree.

A simulated blanket of green grass, reminding the members of the goals on the standard achievement chart, represented the vice-president, Mrs. A. C. Tilghman. Tall, stately plants, showing the need for new members, represented the enlistment chairman, Mrs. Alvin Stilley.

Stepping stones as the way to train the young people to love and serve the church, represented the youth chairman, Mrs. Bernard Adkins. A pool, representing the life-giving water and the sunshine of God's love to make the garden of service blossom into its fullest beauty, represented the program chairman, Mrs. D. W. Hancock.

A fountain inside the pool to keep the water deep and pure, represented the study chairman, Mrs. Milton Evans. A wide-spreading elm tree showing that the work of the auxiliary must spread out not only through the entire church but also the community, represented the personal service chairman, Mrs. S. W. DeBruhl.

The colorful, dependable and well-loved flower, the pentunia, represented the recording secretary, Mrs. Make Miller. The rose as the queen of the garden bringing beauty and happiness represented the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Obed Pate.

The mighty oak with its branches reaching toward the church and the community transforming money into service and spiritual values for others represented the treasurer, Mrs. Tull Register. Musical notes showing that music has an important place in the service to the church represented the pianist, Mrs. W. J. Gaskins. A clock showing that there are many times to give to the needs of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home represented the Children's Home chairman, Mrs. Ralph A. Morris.

The sponsors of the Go-Tell and Young People's Auxiliaries, Mrs. Hugh Cassaway, Mrs. Lester Williams, Mrs. Manly Jenkins and Mrs. Sybil Godley were urged to help the youth of these organizations and to prepare them to take their places of service in God's garden.

Special vocal music was rendered during the service by Sherrie Provo, Sandra Tilghman, Karen Hancock and Dianne Provo, with June Lightsey as pianist. The Rev. Ralph Lightsey gave the prayer of dedication.

A short business session was conducted with Mrs. Donald Tilghman giving the devotional and closing her remarks with a prayer. Members were reminded of the Eastern District Woman's Auxiliary Convention being held on September 22 at Mount Olive College. Mrs. E. L. Mallard reported on the Woman's Conference held at Cragmont Assembly at Black Mountain recently.

Mrs. James Harrison reported that over 3,000 coupons had been sent to the Children's Home at Middlesex during the past year.

Mrs. Adkins gave a short history of the Anna Phillips Loan Fund and a special offering was placed on the altar for the fund with Mrs. Adkins giving a dedicatory prayer.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Moulton Resigns as Promotional Secretary

On September 28, Louis H. Moulton, promotional secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, offered his resignation. His resignation to the board is carried below.

Dear Brethren:

With reluctance and a great deal of sorrow I tender my resignation as promotional secretary of this department of our National Association.

When I suffered a heart attack about four months ago I had one desire—to recuperate hurriedly and get back on the job. I started back the first of September even though the doctor had told me I'd have to take it easy for the first year following the attack.

My first love is foreign missions, but rather than hold on and just be able to do half a job, I, with deep regret, submit my resignation effective as of November 1, 1960.

You, the Foreign Mission Board, have been very kind to me and I am grateful beyond expression for your kindness. My future plans are incomplete, but whatever or wherever God leads or has for me, be assured that my heart is in foreign missions.

Gratefully yours in Him,
Louis H. Moulton

The Herseys Write from Japan

Nakamaichi 1 Chome
Bihoro Cho, Hokkaido
October, 1960

Dear Friends in Christ:

The recent demonstrations in Tokyo and throughout Japan have forcefully reminded us all that these are critical days in this part of the world. The political crisis in Japan did not last very long, but many people have been made to think. Many missionaries were made to realize especially that present gospel opportunities may be short lived. We need to pray like never before that God may send a real revival.

We especially want to thank you who were faithful in remembering in prayer the special services that we held during the past few months. Once again our hearts were thrilled as we saw the power of the simple gospel message change the lives of sinners. The Bible Camp was well attended and one of the highlights of it was when two young women were baptized. Christians were strengthened as they prayed, fellowshiped and studied the Word of God together during those days.

The tent meetings were also well attended and a few of the people have started to attend our regular services. Many people made decisions of one kind or another. We would like to tell you a little about some of the results we have seen in the lives of people that you might rejoice with us and know better how to continue to pray for the work.

At Tsubetsu there is an older woman (about 67 years old) who has been coming to the services for over a year. She made a definite decision of faith, in Jesus for the first time during the tent meeting. Up to this time going to church had been more or less of a social outlet for her.

At Bihoro a young man attended every night and showed a real interest. He felt that life had no real meaning for him. He prayed and asked Christ to save him. He has no more desire to smoke or drink—he said he thought that as a Christian he should quit. Pray that the Holy Spirit might continue to work in his life and strengthen him.

Pray for these and others who are now attending services. We have been much encouraged since the tent meetings have ended. Pray for those who made decisions but as yet have not come to the regular church services.

Your letters are always an encouragement to us. We want to add a special "thank you" to you who have been supporting us with your financial gifts. We are grateful for the way you have supported us during the past four and one-half years. When we realize that we are due to go on furlough next spring, we would remind you that our account should be built up quite a bit so that there will be enough money to pay for our transportation expenses to the States.

Pray that these last days before furlough will be fruitful ones and that the Lord will guide us in all that we do. May the richly bless each one of you.

Yours in Christ,
Fred and Evelyn H

TESTIMONY

This is the testimony of Wayne Golden, our first convert in New England and is now one of our most faithful workers and supporters in the Littleton Free Baptist Church.

Wayne P. Golden, a native of Littleton, New Hampshire, was born on August 12, 1942. He attended Littleton schools, graduated from Littleton High School in 1960. He is presently employed as a printer for the Courier Printing Company. He has worked in the printing industry for eight years. He is married and the father of three children: Debra 3, Diane 6, John 4.

"I was converted in January, 1960, through the preaching of my pastor, Rev. Maek C. Owens, who came here to start a Free Will Baptist church. I came under the influence of the gospel when my older brother was converted. I had heard while he told me about Christ and my need for Him, but at the time I could not feel my need for a Saviour. After attending Pastor Owens' church services, I began to feel my need for Christ as my personal Saviour. My wife and children have accepted the Lord and this too, through their prayers, convicted me and made me know how right they were with God, that the only way to salvation and life was through our Lord Jesus Christ.

"I now serve our church as Sunday school superintendent, Sunday school teacher and trustee of the church.

"We, here in New England, need your support; won't you pray for us?"

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Our Response to God

(Lesson for October 30)

Scripture: Psalm I; Romans 12:1, 2.
Lesson Text: Romans 12:2.

INTRODUCTION

Bible scholars have usually thought of this lesson as being introductory to the book of Romans. Saint Jerome says that many called the Preface of the Holy Ghost. David, however, is the author. He contrasts the character of the Godly man to that of the ungodly man.

The title of this lesson may seem to imply that everyone responds to God, but this is by no means true; for many never respond to God's call and His will for them. There are certain things which God has placed in this life which may lead a man to respond to God; that is, if it so happens. We will learn how to respond to God as we study the Scripture passages in this lesson, which are Psalm I and Romans 12:1, 2.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

There are only two ways of life, two destinies and two destinies according to the Bible. We may be children of God or children of the devil, saved or lost, Godly or ungodly, righteous or unrighteous.

Never were the alternatives more clearly declared than in this Psalm. The contrast is of black and white. There is no middle ground or no gray. We can find no compromise between being a child of God or a child of the devil, between being saved or lost, between being Godly or ungodly.

The influence of a life can be great or small. Some live and die and the world is not affected by their existence. Others influence the world in which they live.

Psalm I is a guide to those who would live the right kind of life. If one chooses a life of wickedness and crimes, that life will come to crumble and disappear, like chaff which the wind driveth away.

John Dillinger lived and died. Alvin Karpis lived and died. They felt the urge for human power and personal glory. No one mourned their death and society was not the richer for their having lived.

Napoleon, Hitler and Mussolini lived in glory and died in shame. Their lives brought death to millions and broken bleeding hearts to millions more, who lived to mourn the tragedy of their pathway.—The Bible Expositor.

7. In contrast to these men, note briefly how Paul, John Bunyan, George Mueller, John Wesley, Charles Spurgeon and many others, have been a blessing to the world through the power of God.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Observe the progression of sin in this verse: First, there is the ungodly man, the man uninfluenced by God; second, there is the sinner, the person actively engaged in evil; third, there is the scornful, the person who is not only indifferent to God but is also in active opposition.

Note also that the ungodly has his counsel, the sinner has his way, and the scornful has his seat. The ungodly man may be inactive. He simply has not let the claims of God affect his life. The sinner is active in evil. He is a transgressor. The scornful is atheistic; he is active in opposition to God.

2. The things a person delights in or enjoys is a good index to character. Often men force themselves to do things they do not enjoy; but if our hearts are properly attuned to that of God, we will actually enjoy the pursuits that become a Godly person.

The delight of the Godly man is not only in the study of God's Word but also in seeing God's law kept and lived.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. The voluntary action of the righteous man of Psalm I is here in Romans 12:1 explained. What the righteous man is described as doing in the Psalm is set forth here in Romans to be the means of obtaining or achieving the steadfast fruitful life; namely, finding a delight in the Word and will of God. The first requirement is an unreserved presentation of the bodily strength in sacrificial living, a sacrifice made holy because of its acceptableness to God.

4. Note that the emphasis is upon that which is acceptable to God, not a sacrifice limited to the acceptable standards of men, but of God's standards. Too often man's standards fall pitifully short of God's standards, and quite often man thinks that God's requirements are unreasonable. Yet, this appeal to the Christian brethren at Rome is called reasonable because it is based on God's mercy toward men, as manifested in Christ Jesus. Therefore, what was asked of the Christians at Rome is asked of every Christian, and the request is declared reasonable.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

5. Psalm I Is Messianic. The first part of Psalm I is a perfect portrait of our Lord Jesus Christ. He alone, of all born on earth, never sinned in thought, word, or deed. He never stood in the way of sinners, walked in the counsel of the ungodly, nor sat in the seat of the scornful. His delight was ever in the will of God, His Father, and so He grew up before Him as a lovely tree drawing its source of refreshment from the river of God's pleasure, the energizing power of the Holy Spirit. It is He who is here presented and whom, in our measure, we are called to imitate, for He left us an example that we should walk as He walked.—The S.S. Times.

6. They Can Laugh You In—But Not Out. “. . . or standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful” (Psalm 1:1). I remember, when I was a little boy, how my mother would draw me to her knee and speak to me so solemnly of the importance of trusting the Lord Jesus Christ as my Saviour, and I would say, “Well, Mamma, I would like to do it, but the boys will all laugh at me.” She used to reply, “Harry, remember, they may laugh you into hell, but they can never laugh you out of it.”—Dr. Harry Ironsides.

7. A mechanic was called in to repair the mechanism of a giant telescope. During the noon hour the chief astronomer came upon the man reading the Bible. “What good do you expect from that?” he asked. “The Bible is out-of-date. Why, you don't even know who wrote it.” The mechanic puzzled for a moment. Then he looked up. “Don't you make considerable use of the multiplication table in your calculations?” “Yes, of course,” returned the other. “Do you know who wrote it?” “Why, no, I guess I don't.” “Then,” said the mechanic, “how can you trust the multiplication table when you don't know who wrote it?” “We trust it because—well, because it works,” the astronomer finished testily. “Well, I trust the Bible for the same reason—it just works (Psalm 1:2).”—Selected.

PRICE INCREASE

Due to the increase in the cost of printing materials, we have found it necessary to increase the price of Sunday school and league publications $.01 on each copy. This became effective on October 15, 1960.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

Wintergreen Host to Fifth Eastern Union Meeting

The Wintergreen Free Will Baptist Church of Cove City, North Carolina, will be host to the Fifth Eastern Union Meeting, Saturday, October 29. The program is as follows:

Morning Session

9:30—Congregational Singing

9:45—Devotions, the Rev. James Lupton
10:00—Roll Call of Ministers
10:05—Appointment of Committees
10:10—Recognitions and Report of Denominational Enterprises
10:30—Congregational Singing
10:35—Reading of Church Letters
11:00—Praise Service, the Rev. Albert Rollins
11:15—Message, the Rev. Ray Harrison
11:50—Offering for Children's Home
12:00—Lunch and Fellowship

Afternoon Session
1:15—Congregational Singing
1:20—Devotional, the Rev. Willie
1:30—Final Roll Call
1:40—The Master's Men, the Rev. Griffin
2:10—Business Period
2:30—Adjournment
Song director, the Rev. T. O. Terr

SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE

50 Issues of The Free Will Baptist for only $2.00

Only $2.00 will bring you an issue of "The Free Will Baptist," our denominational weekly, each week for fifty weeks. Keep up with our denomination's activities and news for this small price. Put a "Baptist" in every home!

Each issue contains information of interest to every Free Will Baptist; such as, missions news, Christian education news and woman's auxiliary news.

Regular features include, Stories for Boys and Girls, St. Claire Bible Class (a prepared Sunday school lesson), Pastor's Notebook, The Lighted Pathway, Questions and Answers, Indelible Imprints, Notes and Quotes and News Notes.

There are features each week of special significance in our time, and editorials of current interest.

Where else can you get so much for so little?

The subscription blank below is for your convenience in sending in your renewal or new subscription. We would also like for you to fill out the last part of the blank, giving us the name of some friend or relative who may be interested in subscribing to "The Free Will Baptist."

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK

NAME _____ (Check Two)
ADDRESS _____ Payment Enclosed
Name of Interested Friend or Relative _____ Bill Me
_____ New Renewal
Address _____ Gift

Frank Harrison to Conduct Love Offering Service

Frank Harrison, a ministerial student Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, will be guest speaker when E Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Ston, North Carolina, observes its a love offering service at 11:00 a. m., Su October 23.

A special prayer of dedication for e furniture and Free Will Baptist hymna be given by the pastor, the Rev. Lyczkowski. Special music will be prc by the choir.

The pastor invites all member friends to come to this service.

Revival and Home-Coming At Core Point Chapel

Core Point Chapel Free Will B Church, Blounts Creek, North Car will observe its home-coming Sunday, ber 23.

Monday evening, October 24, reviv ices will begin at Core Point Chapc the Rev. Charlie Rice as the evangeli sisted by the Rev. Raymond Har Services which will begin each even 7:30 will continue throughout the The pastor and the church extends a c invitation to the public to attend service.

THE MAIL BOX

(continued from page twelve)

would do this! So many Protestan uninformed in regard to Catholicism. just don't know their awful histor have no idea what they aim to do.

"May God bless you in your star truth and righteousness. Remember in prayer. I am a retired Wesleyan odist minister, 71 years of age, bu God's precious people everywhere. writings go into many publication many thousands of people read them. desire of my heart is to do all the can."—Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, T ville, North Carolina.

DS -

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 26, 1960

PHOTO BY EWING GALLOWAY

America the Beautiful

Beautiful for spacious skies,
amber waves of grain,
purple mountain majestics
the fruited plain!
America! America! God shed His grace on thee,
and crown thy good with brotherhood
from sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life!
America! America! May God thy gold refine,
Till all success be nobleness,
And every gain divine!

O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam,
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America! God shed His grace on
thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

The Communistic Threat

by George H. Branning

THE COMMUNISTIC threat to this country is greater today than it has been at anytime in its history. In our government outlawed the Communist party. Since then we have been led to believe that they no longer pose a threat to freedom, but this is not true. Communists have been so successful in infiltrating our entire society that it is now possible for them to take over our country at any time. This is the statement of a leading communist.

It will be best for us to consider some of the basic thinking of the communist and then to explore its work of infiltration. There are at least five points in which communism and Christianity cannot do not agree. Communism considers the private ownership of property, the profit motive in business. Power, power, is the God of communism. The individual is swallowed up in the class, no longer allowed to think and act for himself. All morality is class morality, anything that is done for the good of the class is right. Thus, the communist will cheat, steal and kill with no twinge of conscience. He is justified if it serves the best interest of the class. Government exists to serve itself, and smash anything that opposes it.

In summary, the end justifies the means, and is to serve the party, so anything that does not serve the best interests of the party is wrong. This explains why the communist will do as he pleases, and makes so many zig-zags. With these things in mind, let us look at some of the areas in which the communists have infiltrated our society, and how they serve the party in these areas. There is no doubt that they have successfully penetrated many of the Protestant churches in this country. Anyone who denies this is simply blind to the facts. According to the same ex-communist mentioned above, there are from six to seven thousand ministers in this country who are either carrying communists or are fellow travelers. This is less than one per cent of the Protestant ministers, but these are the ministers who hold high positions in churches and claim to represent the voice of Christianity in this country.

A few months ago the Air Force published an annual in which they pointed out this situation. They were made to apologize, but not for what was said, rather for saying it. The House Committee on Un-American Activities has all the facts in the cases, and know the charges to be true.

You may be asking, "How can the communist line be promoted through religion?" The answer is, "By preaching peaceful co-existence, brotherhood and disarmament." Such preaching is deceitful. How can we live at peace with the devil? How can we shake the hand of a murderer, and call him a brother? Dare we disarm ourselves without the assurance that our enemy will do the same? Remember, he is not governed by the same morals that we are. Anything that will promote the cause of communism is good so far as he is concerned.

Another part of our society that has been infiltrated by the communists is that of the teaching profession. At least two of the teachers that this author sat under during the years 1943-1948 have since been fired for their communist activities. It is estimated that there are 16,000 teachers in this country that are either card-carrying communists, or fellow travelers. A Mr. Long has made an extensive study on this subject, and he shows the duties of communist teachers. Their first duty is to direct the spirit of rebellion in the student. Another duty is to write textbooks from the Marxian viewpoint. Still another is to defend socialism. The ultimate aim is not to make everybody communists, but to convert a small core of dedicated party workers, and to teach the masses in such a way that they will accept communism.

Communism poses a very serious threat to our freedom and liberty, even more serious than the Catholic church does. Our government says that there are more communists in the United States today than there were in Russia when they took over there.

Below are listed three places where you might obtain some more literature on this vital subject:

20th Century Reformation Hour, Collingswood, N. J.

Christian Crusade, Tulsa, Okla.

U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

In addition to this, you might read such books as, I Led Three Lives, Masters of Deceit, and Marx Meets Christ.

A Challenge to the Free Will Baptist Church

by Rev. Cleron M. Coates
Smithfield, North Carolina

I COUNT IT a pleasure to write this article concerning our superannuation program. In taking an inventory as to what we have done for our superannuation program, it makes me, and should make all Free Will Baptist ministers, ashamed. Our retired brethren have worn out their lives carrying this wonderful gospel of Christ Jesus to the lost and saved people in their day. Now it is our duty and we are feasting on their labors.

These good brethren organized most of the churches you and I are now pastoring. Brothers and sisters in Christ, these retired preachers got the skim milk and we today are getting the cream. In reading over a certain church record book, I read where those brethren received $30 a year. Can we, as Free Will Baptists, still be satisfied with our retired, or God retired, servants getting $17 a month while you and I are getting the hundreds a month? I say no. May God stir up us and all the laymen.

I heard one of our deceased brothers say he received $1.25 for holding a week of revival services. It wouldn't have been this small if a thunder cloud had not passed over at church time. There was one love offering which was given on this night. There were three present, one gave $1.00, one 10¢ and one 15¢, which totaled $1.25. Brother preachers, would we preach for what they got? I'm afraid not. Could we 40,000 Free Will Baptists in North Carolina give the price of a pepsi cola a week? At 7¢ per drink this would amount to $145,600.00. We then could give those who are retired $247 per month. The good men on the board has asked us to raise $20,000.00 in gifts. Let's do better than that, the aged man needs more, may we give more.

Why not let's all try the above plan, giving 7¢ a week. It's not our wish to let these superannuation preachers go lacking, let's do something about it. We got to teach our congregation the need of supporting this program. The checks cannot be increased until the gifts are increased. Pray, then give.

Send all gifts to the Rev. Walter Reynolds, Route 2, Snow Hill, North Carolina.

Freedom Of Speech Has A Price

WHAT HAPPENS when an American takes the freedom of speech clause in the Constitution at face value and speaks his mind? A great deal depends on the subject matter of his speech, of course, but one man's story is very revealing.

Dr. J. Elwin Wright of Tujunga, California, is not a pugnacious man. He is rather mild-mannered, and when you talk to him you sense something of the New England culture which is his background. His Christian character also shows through.

A few weeks ago he became concerned about the need for intelligent, high level discussion of the religious issue in the presidential campaign and helped found the Citizen's Committee for Religious Freedom. (He was also one of the founding fathers of the National Association of Evangelicals and the World Evangelical Fellowship.)

In an interview, Dr. Wright said: "One of our objectives in forming Citizens for Religious Freedom was to present the religious issue factually and without personalities or invective."

A conference of the group, held in Washington in September, was attended by 150 Protestant leaders. It was widely reported in the press—usually with an unfavorable slant—with Dr. Wright's name given prominent mention. And what was the result of exercising this American right of private assembly and freedom of speech in which no hate or prejudice was involved?

Let Dr. Wright tell it!

"I did nothing for several days after the story appeared in the press, except answer the phone and some of the more urgent letters. I was greatly shocked at the violent abuse heaped upon me by Catholics, usually in the form of obscenities and curses—sometimes with veiled threats.

"I have many Catholic friends and expect to meet some of them in heaven, but the one I regarded as the closest sent me a message that if I ever dared step a foot into his yard he would wipe up the ground with me. These reactions have made me wonder if we are safe from mob violence if we stand up and be counted on any vital issue touching liberty of speech.

"I realize now why one dear friend called me from Europe and begged me to drop the whole thing. He talked with me for 20 minutes. I was deeply touched but knew I could not remain silent."

In addition to the bulging file of letters which he has received, Dr. Wright says, "There have been numberless telephone

by W. Stanley Mooneyham

Editor of "United Evangelical Action" calls from every section of the United States."

Most of these were anonymous, with many of the local calls coming after midnight. These midnight callers greeted the "Hello" from the Wright's end with dead silence—broken by the click of a receiver being dropped back into place. Finally it became necessary for the family to stop answering at midnight even at the risk of missing important personal calls.

The letters have been equally numerous—and nearly as vile. One began, "My dear Mr. Anti-American." Another said, "If your D. D. stands for an honorary title, to us it stands for a 70-year-old D—Dope."

This came on a postcard: "You should hang your head in shame. Being affiliated with that . . . group lowers your dignity, but I guess it is reversion to type."

Another letter closed with this paragraph: "I have always considered myself tolerant of other religions, but now I see my error and the truth of my church in labeling your brand of Christianity as heretic—to which the label, . . . and bigot, can now be added."

A Los Angeles writer said: "We wonder just what kind of brains are in the skulls of such un-Americans (Citizen's Committee for Religious Freedom). Probably the skulls are too large since we imagine the brains would fit inside the head of an ordinary pin. It might be a good idea to sue you for about $10,000,000 . . . There is no room in this country for you—go to Russia or Cuba."

One person waxed prophetic: "In a couple of generations the Catholics will be 60 per cent of the population, the Jewish people 30 per cent, and the rest of the denominations ten per cent. There will be no worry about a Catholic president then if the Catholics care to elect one. There is lots of time for a Catholic to become president."

Not all of the letters which Dr. Wright received were derogatory. Actually, a few more than half of them were complimentary. Comments ran something like this:

"Allow me to commend you for your forthright, courageous steps to enlighten voters . . ."

"Make it plain that we are not opposing religion, but Catholic politics."

"I feel impelled to comment on courage . . ."

"I am glad to see one man stand up and be counted . . ."

One noted leader in the church-state separation fight—who himself went through a seven-year boycott—summed it up by saying, "When a man stands up, he'd better stay there."

J. Elwin Wright—and tens of thousands of others—intend to do just that. But sometimes isn't any easy thing to do, in a land that under its Constitution to its citizens freedom of speech, for freedom of speech often has its price.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Scotland Neck, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Hope Free Will Baptist Church met for its monthly meeting, October 12, at the home of Mrs. Allie Moore, with members and one visitor present. The meeting opened with the group singing, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," followed with Mrs. Williams leading in prayer. The Scripture was taken from 2 Timothy 1:1-5. The topic for the program was "Hold High the Torch." Those taking part on the program were: Mrs. Agnes Eason, Mrs. Irene M. and Mrs. Nannie Harrell. During the business session the minutes were read and approved. The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Agnes Eason.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and enjoyed by all present.

Batesville, Ark.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Allen's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church met September 12, with eight members and three visitors present. A new member was added.

Scripture was read by the president, Ruth Leonard. Following the business period, a very interesting program was presented in the form of a radio show. The announcer, Mrs. Velda Tucker, introduced the members presenting the parts as follows: Mrs. Etta Bowser, Mrs. Alverda Harris, Iva White, Mrs. Opal Sturch, Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Willa Jean Lewis. Wilma Manuel gave the latest news on mission work in Japan. Sister D. King gave the commercials between two Mrs. Eloise Branseum sang, "We've a Story to Tell." Mrs. Daisy Staggs gave the benediction.

(continued on page five)

A Statement Of Concern

Adopted by the Board of Administration of the National Association of Free Will Baptists,† representing 38 denominations and 28,000 church congregations, in its mid-year meeting at St. Louis, October 11, 1960:

The National Association of Free Will Baptists is a member of this body.

THE religious issue in the present political campaign has been distorted. It must be made clear that the mode of worship exercised by any candidate for public office is not in question. The manner of man's approach to God must be a matter of his own choosing.

Nevertheless, when an ecclesiastical system advocates the use of government to achieve its particular religious objectives and insists that it has the right to control the political actions of its adherents, the religious issue must be considered by the citizen. The record of the Roman Catholic Church on these two points, despite wishful thinking to the contrary, is a matter of historically documented and well known.

The failure of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to repudiate and abandon this interference in private conscience and in the political affairs of governments impels non-Catholics to register their position in the present campaign.

When we have approached the problem with candor and we repudiate such a prejudiced attitude. But the concerted attempt to intimidate men of good will who foresee political problems and have the courage to voice their convictions is just another brand of prejudice.

In the interest of free speech we call for the elimination of the following:

Emotional attacks carried widely by the public media of information against fair discussion of the issue. The evident bias in the treatment of feeling on one side of the issue. The long-suffering and tolerance of Protestants have been shown by their patience in bearing the word, bigot, which has been hurled freely by the public media of information—a word, incidentally, which is to be applied only to Protestants. Name-calling only guarantees emotional outbursts and sheds no light of real understanding which the public media of information has as their purpose.

2. Threats of reprisal on the part of government agencies and quasi-official judges of individual action. Such efforts throttle a full discussion of legitimate issues and are in open conflict with the right of free speech provided in the Constitution and are repugnant to every American.

3. Boycotts and social and economic pressures applied against individuals and organizations who have had the courage to speak their convictions. These practices, whether done openly or more subtly, are as un-American as are the uses of threat and intimidation.

These are the concerns of a fair-minded Protestantism as it seeks to relate itself to the current political situation. They involve basic American liberties. These are things with which we must not trifle. If for our concern we must be subjected to name-calling and other abuses, this is only more evidence that our concern is justified. We are ready to pay the price. The history of the settling of this country is a record of religious refugees looking for sanctuary from tyrannical hierarchies abroad. It is only natural, therefore, for the descendants of these pioneers to hold a strong resolve that this land—conceived in freedom—shall know no form of religious tyranny.

Children's Home Board Pays Tribute

Once again the Board of Trustees of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, have paused in the midst of its deliberations to pay tribute to two of its members: the Rev. M. L. Baxley and Dr. M. Hinnant, both deceased. These two brethren have been for a long time members of the board, and both of them have shown a great love and interest for the institution.

The board, in a recent session, expressed sorrow as the members missed the two deceased members and sympathy for their families.

It is hereby ordered by the board that a copy of the above be forwarded to The Free Will Baptist Press and a copy to the families of these two deceased members.

R. L. Spencer, Secretary

Woman's Auxiliary

(continued from page four)

Following the meeting refreshments were served.

An installation service for new officers for the coming year was held Sunday night, September 18. On the altar was a poster with a picture of a cross with evergreen at the base to form a mountain. While each officer was kneeling in front of the cross, a light was focused on her, and the pastor, the Rev. Bob King, gave the charge. New officers are: President, Mrs. Ruth Leonard; vice-president, Mrs. Wilma Manuel; recording secretary, Mrs. Noma Manuel; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Velda Tucker; treasurer, Mrs. Iva White; study course chairman, Mrs. Nellie King; program-prayer chairman, Mrs. Geraldine Johnston; Y. P. A. Chairman, Mrs. Alverda Harris; personal service chairman, Mrs. Ann Robbins.

Pocahontas, Ark.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sutton Free Will Baptist Church met at the church Monday night, October 3, for its regular meeting, which was also called family night. The meeting was called to order by the president, followed with the group singing "Jesus Saves." Prayer was offered by Dorothy Childress. Scripture was read from 2 Timothy 1:1-5 by Anna Sheets. The program chairman then took charge. The introduction was read, "Hold High the Torch," with the topics being discussed by different members. During the business session, old and new business was discussed. Christmas cards were ordered to be sold by the auxiliary. There were 11 members present and 2 new members. All received a blessing. Closed with prayer.

Christian Education Former College Students Ordained

Two former students of Mount Olive College were ordained at the annual session of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists held at Micro Church, Micro, North Carolina. They were:

Andrew Hill, a member of the Wilson Free Will Baptist Church, attended Mount Olive College in 1955 and graduated from Atlantic Christian College in 1960 with an A. B. Degree. He is pastor of Sound View Church in the Eastern Conference and is a teacher at Brinson Memorial School, New Bern.

James Joyner, a member of Sharron Acres Church, Durham, attended Mount Olive College from 1958-1960, and is now a junior at Atlantic Christian College.

NEWS NOTES

Ala. State Association Convenes With East Birmingham Church

The Alabama State Association of Will Baptists will convene with East Birmingham Free Will Baptist Church, 10th Avenue North, Birmingham, Ala. November 10, 11, 12, 1960. The theme for the convention will be "Faithful Stewards." The Scripture will be taken from Corinthians 4:2, "Moreover it is required of stewards, that a man be found faithful." The program is as follows:

Thursday Morning, November 10

- 9:30—Song Service, Rev. Charles Hostler, head
- 9:35—Devotion, Rev. Lee Hanks
- 9:45—Welcome, Rev. Jim Drummond
- 9:50—Response, Rev. J. L. Lavender
- 9:55—Moderator's Message, Rev. E. Ledlow
- 10:05—Stewardship of Personality, Jimmy Brown
- 10:35—Stewardship of Possessions, William Atkinson
- 11:00—Song Service, Rev. Charles Hostler, head
- 11:15—Message, Rev. Willie Justice
- 12:00—Lunch, Host Church

Thursday Afternoon

- 1:00—Song Service, Rev. Charles Hostler, head
- 1:05—Devotion, Rev. Gilbert Lacey
- 1:15—The Tithe, "What Is It and How to Do It," Rev. James Pickett
- 1:45—Faithful Stewards in the Church, Rev. Jack Rollins
- 2:15—Business
- 3:00—Adjournment
- 3:30—Meeting of the General Board

Thursday Evening

- 7:00—Devotional, Rev. M. D. Harp
- 7:20—Special Singing
- 7:30—State Association Called to Order by Clerk, Rev. Chester O'Donoghue
- 7:35—Welcome Address, Richard W. Hostler, Host Church
- 7:45—Response, Rev. W. C. Patterson
- 7:50—Appointment of Credentials Committee
- 8:00—Foreign Mission Service
- Adjournment

Friday Morning, November 11

- 9:15—Devotional, Rev. G. C. Lawler
- 9:40—Moderator's Message and Standing Delegates
- 10:00—Reorganizing Visitors and Responding Delegates
- 10:15—Report of Credentials Committee
- 10:25—Reading Letters and Seating Delegates
- 10:45—Appointment of Committees
- 10:50—Intermission
- 11:00—Devotional, Rev. S. W. McDonogh
- 11:10—Home Missions Service, Rev. J. W. Willis
- 12:00—Lunch

Revival in Progress at Cabin F.W.B. Church

Revival services are now in progress at the Cabin Free Will Baptist Church, Beulaville, North Carolina. Services began Monday, October 24, and will continue through Sunday, October 30. The evangelist for these services is the Rev. Johnny Eason, pastor of Hickory Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Ahoskie, North Carolina. Services are beginning each evening at 7:30.

The church and pastor, the Rev. Joseph Ingram, extends a special invitation to all to come and enjoy these services.

Sandy Plain Church to Observe Home-Coming

The Sandy Plain Free Will Baptist Church located between Pink Hill and Beulaville, North Carolina, will observe its home-coming Sunday, October 30. The Rev. J. C. Griffin of Bridgeton, North Carolina, will bring the home-coming message. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour.

The church and the pastor, the Rev. Gene Outland, extends a cordial invitation to all former pastors, former members and friends to attend the home-coming and enjoy the fellowship.

Executive Committee of North Carolina State Convention

Pictured above is the newly elected Executive Committee of the Free Will Baptist State Convention of North Carolina (left to right): Walter Carter, pastor of Alco Church, Piedmont Association; Clarence Bowen, pastor of Shady Grove Church, Cape Fear Conference; S. A. Smith, president of the convention and pastor of Deep Run and Pearsall's Chapel Churches, Eastern Conference; C. L. Patrick, vice-president and pastor of Free

Union Church, Central Conference; Michael Pelt, secretary and dean of Mount Olive College; and Rom W. Mallard, treasurer, layman from Friendship Church, Trenton. (Not present: Oscar Webster, member of Trinity Church, Albemarle Conference.)

The executive committee held its first meeting in the conference room located in the faculty office building of Mount Olive College. President W. Burkette Raper has announced that the conference room is available to any board or committee of the denomination and that dining accommodations are available in the college cafeteria.

Friday Afternoon
 —Devotional, Rev. Durwood Atkinson
 —Report of Alabama State Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Mrs. Wm. Atkinson —Report of State Sunday School and League Convention, Rev. Walter Jones —League in Action, Ray Turnage
 —Report of General Board
 —Report of Association Treasurer
 —Report of National Association, Rev. E. B. Ledlow
 —Report of Home Mission Board
 —Report of Superannuation Board, Rev. Roy Johnson —Report of Trustees, Children's Home
 —Adjourn

Friday Evening
 —Devotional, Rev. L. V. Collier
 —Special Singing
 —College Service
 —Adjourn
 Saturday Morning, November 12
 —Devotional, Rev. Jimmy Howell
 —Special Singing
 —Report of Auditing Committee
 —Report of Executive Board
 —Report of Superintendent of Children's Home
 —Election of Officers
 —Delegates to National Association
 —Recess
 —Devotional, Rev. R. P. Ritch
 —Special Singing
 —Message, Rev. Billy Melvin
 —Adjourn

Financial Report of
 W. B. League Board

The following is the financial report of the National Free Will Baptist League for the year July 1 through September 30, 1960: Cash in Bank, July 1, 1960 $ 139.00

Receipts
Offerings	$ 571.76
Gift Contributions	210.27
League Monthly Subscriptions	204.12
Gifts of Promotional Literature	169.17
Contribution to National Free Will Baptist League	46.17
Operating Plan Support	342.80
League Manuals	46.20
League Kitchen Campaign	278.45
Book Sale of Literature	665.87
Dividend Income	52.00
Donations	232.98

Miscellaneous Sales	10.51
Total Receipts	2,830.30
Total to Account For	$2,969.30
Disbursements
Secretarial and Promotional Services	$1,489.60
Postage	69.21
Purchases for Promotional Items	31.39
Printing	235.00
Office Supplies	2.25
Employees' Insurance	77.60
Travel Expense	525.48
Miscellaneous Expense	191.28
Internal Revenue	215.64
Total Disbursements	2,837.45
Balance on Hand, June 30, 1960	$ 131.85

Coming Events

October 19, 20—Eastern Conference of N. C., Sts. Delight Church, Craven County
 November 3, 4—Cape Fear Conference of N. C., Goldsboro Church, Goldsboro
 November 4, 5—Florida State Association, Unity Church, Jacksonville, Florida
 November 9, 10—Central Conference of N. C., Free Union Church, Greene County
 November 15-17—Georgia State Association, Baxley, Georgia

Revival in Progress at Beaufort Church

Revival services are now in progress at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Beaufort, North Carolina. Services began Monday, October 24, and will continue for two weeks. The guest speaker is the Rev. Billy Morris, pastor of the Sherron Acres Free Will Baptist Church, Durham, North Carolina.

Special music is being featured each night under the direction of the Minister of Music, Mrs. Sid Willis.

The pastor, the Rev. Randy Cox extends a warm welcome to all friends to come and enjoy the meeting. He asks the prayer of all that this might be a real God-sent revival such as He has blessed the church with during the last two seasons of revival.

Rev. Melvin Worthington to Conduct Reunion Chapel Revival

The Reunion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, on Maul Swamp Road, near Vanceboro, North Carolina, announces it fall revival beginning Sunday, October 30. The Rev. Melvin Worthington, pastor of Union Chapel and Palmetto Chapel Churches, will be the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:00.

Any singing groups or soloist are especially invited to come and join the song service.

The Julia Matthew's Bible Class Observed Monthly Meeting

The Julia Matthew's Bible Class of St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, met the night of September 29 at the Enock Wadsworth Home with nineteen members present. Mrs. L. R. Thomas gave the devotional. Mrs. B. H. Dixon led in the opening prayer. The program was centered around Verse 16 of the third chapter of St. John. Mrs. Thomas gave a reading entitled, "Father and Son Gift," and read a poem, "The Grace of Living." Mrs. Donald Tilghman, class president, and Mrs. E. L. Mallard sang a duet, "Wonderful Story of Love."

The president then presided over the business session. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. The nineteen members answered to the roll call, each reciting a favorite Scripture verse.

Reports were given of work done during the past month consisting of prayer meetings held and flowers carried to the sick. The members voted to enroll with the Booster Band of the Cragmont Assembly and sent $58 for the twenty-nine members enrolled in the class. Plans for the incoming month were to visit the sick and shut-ins and contact absentees.

The class meeting was dismissed with prayer.

A social hour was enjoyed by all with Mrs. Paul Carnell and Mrs. Kenneth Bodenheimer serving as hostesses.

Ruth's Chapel Church Reports Successful Revival

Ruth's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, experienced a great revival September 26 through October 9, with the Rev. Jack Paramore as the evangelist.

During the meeting personal workers recorded 40 re-dedications and 31 first time decisions for Christ.

The pastor, the Rev. A. L. Hines states: "We had a record attendance in Sunday school of 317 on October 9. We feel this is the evidence of real revival in our church."

Fourth Union Meeting Convenes with Spring Branch Church

The Fourth Union Meeting of the Central Conference of North Carolina will convene with Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Walstonburg, North Carolina, Saturday, October 29, 1960. The theme will (continued on page nine)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Why is it that your church keeps the first day of the week rather than the Sabbath which the Jews keep and the law teaches should be kept?—R. Reed, Tennessee.

Answer: Just simply because our Lord and Saviour arose from the dead on the first day of the week. His followers, some of them the inspired writers of the New Testament, kept the first day of the week for this very reason. We, together with them and other believers that have been custodians of the faith and followed their example in this keep the first day of the week in commemoration of His resurrection which was the sign to us that we who believe in Him, shall have our bodies raised in like manner in which He did. "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Corinthians 15:20-22); "For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself; And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man. Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, And shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:26-29); "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned: . . . For if by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:12, 17).

Sabbath observance was included in the requirements of the Levitical covenant, or Mosaic Law, that has been done away with in Christ. He kept the law for us, which was impossible for sinful man of His day as well as for us of today; for remember that in this phase of law keeping, as in all else, one who was, or who is guilty of breaking the least, was and is guilty of the whole law. "For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all" (James 2:10). Christ deliberately taught and healed on the Sabbath Day and in it stirred up the legalistic Pharisees. In this He showed Himself to be ". . . the Son of man . . . Lord even of the sabbath day" (Matthew 12:8). In this, with many other acts, He proved Himself to have come ushering in a new order, a new covenant.

This all, however, gives no Christian license to make the Lord's Day one of amusements and idleness. The Lord's Day should be one of rest from secular toil and world social activities, for at least one-seventh of man's time still belongs to God, the Creator and Sustainer of all. Therefore, the Christian, who goes with the godless world to its places of worldly amusements on the Lord's Day, shows his lack of respect and love for Him who bought us with His precious gift of love. Such a person will never, while he habitually does such, be able to give a good testimony before this sin-cursed, Christ rejecting world. The Jewish sabbath, which is the seventh day of the week, commemorated God's six days in which He did all creative activities. It was compulsory even to the extent that a person under the Levitical covenant could be stoned to death when guilty of either gathering sticks or kindling a fire on the hallowed day. The old or first creation was thus represented in the keeping of that day.

"Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD: whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death" (Exodus 35:2); "And while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man that gathered sticks upon the sabbath day. And they that found him gathering sticks brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation. And they put him in ward, because it was not declared what should be done to him. And the LORD said unto Moses, The man shall be surely put to death: all the congregation shall stone him with stones without the camp. And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, and he died; as the LORD commanded Moses" (Numbers 15:32-36). The Christian Lord's Day, the first day of the week, commemorates Christ's resurrection from the dead. It commemorates His finished redemption. On it voluntary worship is expected of His followers. Christ went about doing good on the Sabbath Day showing in this that He was Lord of the Sabbath as well as the end of the law that that believeth (Matthew 12:1-8). The keeping of the first day of the week commemorates the new creation. "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: all things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (2 Corinthians 5:17). The first day of the week was given to Christians under grace, and was kept by the children of grace when thus given. It is to be kept by all of us under grace.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THE BOOK OF HEAVEN by Oswald J. Smith

In the fall of 1832 five Indians traveled to St. Louis—a distance of over two thousand miles—in search of a white man's Book of Heaven. They had heard about it from explorers and traders. It took them several months to reach their destination. They journeyed on foot through a wilderness of hostile tribes. One of them died on the way.

When they arrived they were received by General Clark and entertained for three weeks. However, two others died during the winter months, leaving only two of the original five.

In the spring, when they were ready to leave, General Clark gave them a banquet. During the banquet one of them died. He made a farewell address. Finally, the two survivors started back to their tribe, but one perished on the way and only one of the five ever returned to his tribe again.

Following is the touching speech that was made at the banquet by the Indian who had traveled 2,000 miles in search of the white man's Book of Heaven, only to be disappointed. He carried images and burning candles, and never found a copy of the Bible.

"I came to you over the trail of the moons, from the setting sun. You are the friends of my fathers, who have all gone the long way. I came with an eye partly open for my people who sit in darkness, but I came back with both eyes closed. How can I go back blind to my blind people?"

I made my way to you with strong arms ough many enemies and strange lands t I might carry much back to them. I with both arms broken and empty. Two ers came with us. They were the braves many winters and wars. We leave them ep here by your great water and wig-ns. They were tried in many months their moccasins wore out.

My people sent me for the white man's ok of Heaven. You took me to where y worship the great Spirit with candles, the Book was not there. You showed the images of the Great Spirit and the ures of the good lands beyond, but the k was not among them to tell us the

I am going back to my people in the s land. You make my feet heavy with s, and my moccasins will grow old with ying them, and yet the Book is not ong them.

When I tell my poor, blind people, af-the more snow, in the Big Council that d not bring the Book, no word will be cen by our old men or by our young es. One by one they will rise up and out in darkness, and they will go a long n to other hunting grounds. No white n will go with them and no white man's k of Heaven will make the way plain. I e no more words."

What a fearful catastrophe! What a ter-e denunciation! Would to God there been a Christian with a copy of the e, who could have met the need of the ans, sent as they were by the Spirit of
l. What, I wonder, will the people of Louis of that day have to say when they d before God? Had they had a copy the Bible, a whole tribe might have been ngelized. Now they are lost, and lost ver. God have mercy on them.

ut now may God speak to our hearts, lest too, fail Him. May we do what we can ive the Book of Heaven to those who not have it. Remember, a thousand es still wait in darkness and midnight
m for the gospel of the Lord Jesus ist. How will we excuse ourselves if we, fail Him in this dark day and hour?—
Peoples Press.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page seven)

"Education." The program is as fol-

Morning Session

10:00—Devotions, Rev. David Hansley Jr.

10:05—Welcome, Mrs. Ruby Ellis

—Response, Rev. R. L. Norville

10:10—"Education," Rev. C. H. Overman

10:20—Moderator's Message, Rev. Fred Powers

10:30—Business and Reports

11:05—Singspiration

—Special Music, Spring Branch
Church

—Offering for Children's Home

11:30—Sermon, Rev. C. D. Hamilton

12:00—Luncheon

Afternoon Session

1:00—Devotions, Mrs. Albert Proctor

1:15—Business

1:45—Special Music by Saratoga

2:00—Report of Denominational Enterprise

2:30—Adjournment

Fourth Union League Convention

Evening Session

Song, "Onward Christian Leaguers"

Devotions, Saratoga League

Special Music, Local Church

Business

Program, Saratoga League
League Benediction

Second Union Meeting Convenes with Rock Springs Church

The Second Union Meeting of the Western Conference of North Carolina, will convene with Rock Springs Free Will Baptist Church, October 29, 1960. The church is located on Highway 264, between Middlesex and Bailey, North Carolina. The following is the scheduled program for the meeting:

Morning Session

10:00—Devotion, Rev. R. E. Clegg

10:10—Welcome, Mrs. Luther Bissette

10:15—Response, Mrs. Eason

(continued on page ten)

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

THE BELIEVER AS AN EXAMPLE

I Timothy 4:12

Introduction: "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." Those are the words of the great apostle, Paul. He is saying that our lives should be lived so close to the Lord that we could actually tell people to do as I do and you will be found doing right! The believer is to be an example. We are to follow Christ's pattern.

I. THE BELIEVER SETS THE EXAMPLE IN WORD

1. He knows that a good word makes the heart glad (Proverbs 12:25).
2. He knows that a fitly spoken word is worth its weight in gold (Proverbs 25:11).
3. He knows that a good word spoken at the proper time brings blessing (Proverbs 15:23).

II. THE BELIEVER SETS THE EXAMPLE IN CONVERSATION

1. He knows that his conversation should be honest among all men (1 Peter 2:12).
2. He knows that his conversation is indicative of his citizenship (Philippians 3:20).
3. He knows that his conversation will follow him the rest of his life (Galatians 1:13).

III. THE BELIEVER SETS THE EXAMPLE IN CHARITY (LOVE)

1. He knows that love strengthens (1 Corinthians 8:1).
2. He knows that love is the greatest force of expression (1 Corinthians 13:13).
3. He knows that love is the end of the commandment (1 Timothy 1:5).

NEWS NOTES

(Continued from Page Nine)

- 10:20—Union Call to Order
- 10:25—Reading of Minutes
- 10:30—Roll Call of Churches and Ministers
- 11:00—Business Session
- 11:20—Offering for Children's Home
- 11:25—Special Music
- 11:30—Sermon, Rev. L. H. Boykin
- 12:00—Lunch
- Afternoon Session
- 1:00—Devotion, Mrs. Paul Lee
- 1:10—Special Music
- 1:20—Report of Committee
 - Foreign Mission, Mary Frances Lewis
 - Home Missions, Rev. Horace Med-

- lin
- Superannuation, Rev. J. B. Ferrell
- Sunday School, Rev. Bill McClintock
- Education, Rev. L. H. Boykin
- Temperance, Lucille Sherrod
- 2:00—Business Session
- 2:30—Adjournment

Washington Church Announces Fall Revival

The First Free Will Baptist Church, Washington, North Carolina, announces its fall revival November 7, which will continue through November 13, with the Rev. Raymond Riggs, Norfolk, Virginia, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:45.

The church and pastor, the Rev. Char Keith, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Fourth Union Sunday School And Auxiliary Convention

The Fourth Union Sunday School Convention and Auxiliary Convention of the Central Conference of North Carolina will convene with Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Walstonburg, North Carolina, October 30. The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 10:00—Sunday School
- 11:00—Devotions, Mrs. Bessie Goff
- 11:10—Welcome, Mrs. Robert Bynum
 - Response, Mrs. Ray Cunningham
- 11:20—Recognition of Ministers and Delegates
- 11:25—Offering for Children's Home
 - Special Music, Spring Branch Quartet
- 11:30—Sermon, the Rev. N. D. Beaman
 - Alternate, the Rev. R. L. Norville
- 12:00—Announcements
- 12:15—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:15—Devotions, Mrs. Robert Oakley
- 1:25—Special Music, Miss Bettie M. Webb and Mrs. Peggy Parker
- 1:30—Business
- 2:00—Program, Local Church
- 2:30—Adjournment

Faith Brotherhood to Sponsor Oyster Roast

The Brotherhood of Faith Free Will Baptist Church, Morehead City, North Carolina, will sponsor an oyster roast at church Saturday evening, October 29, 7:30. All church members and friends are invited.

Faith Church Announces Revival, Nov. 7-13

The Faith Free Will Baptist Church, Morehead City, North Carolina, announces its fall revival November 7-13, with Rev. W. S. Burns as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30. The church will feature special singing each evening.

The church and the pastor, the Rev. B. Starnes, invites the public to attend these services.

Singspiration Service at Maury Church

There will be a special singspiration service Sunday, October 30, at 7:30 p. m. at Maury Free Will Baptist Church, Maury, North Carolina. The pastor of the Maury Church is the Rev. Henry Hagens, who invites everyone to attend this special service. Singing groups are invited to attend and take part in the service.

(continued on page thirteen)

IV. THE BELIEVER SETS THE EXAMPLE IN SPIRIT

1. He knows that unless his attitude is right, he cannot truly worship God (Luke 18:9-14).
2. He knows that his attitude reflects his spiritual life (Acts 16:25).
3. He knows that men observe his attitude and act accordingly (Galatians 2:11-13).

V. THE BELIEVER SETS THE EXAMPLE IN FAITH

1. He knows that whatsoever is not of faith is sin (Romans 14:23).
2. He knows that he must fight the Christian warfare with unwavering faith (1 Timothy 6:12).
3. He knows that by faith he is to complete his course (2 Timothy 4:7).

VI. THE BELIEVER SETS THE EXAMPLE IN PURITY

1. He knows that he must keep his conscience pure (2 Timothy 1:3).
2. He knows that he must keep his body pure (1 Timothy 5:22).
3. He knows that he is going to enjoy the pure river of life (Revelation 22:1).

It's Just Like God

A little girl was reading one morning with her mother in the New Testament. At length they came to the well-known verse, John 3:16: "For God so loved the world." Stopping for a moment in the reading, the mother asked, "Don't you think it is wonderful?" The child looked surprised. She said, "Why, no, Mother. It would be wonderful if it were anybody else, but it is just like God, for God is love!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

Something God Can't See

Said a little boy to his mother, "Guess what our teacher told us at Sunday school!" "What did your teacher tell you, my boy?" "Mommie, teacher told us that there is one thing God can't see!" The mother, in astonishment, asked, "Are you sure your teacher told you that there is something God can't see? Why, God sees everything!" "But teacher said that God can't see our sins when they are covered by the blood of Jesus!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

FAULT FINDING

I read about the United Nations meeting in New York, I find that Premier Khrushchev is still finding fault with everybody who does not agree with his way of thinking. He finds fault with every representative of every nation that is not Bolshevik. He is set on destroying Hammarild, and if he fails in destroying Hammarild, he will destroy the whole United Nations program. He is filled with the same spirit that has come down from the first man born outside of the Garden of Eden—the Cain spirit, who slew his brother, Abel, because God blessed Abel and refused to bless an offering that was given from a cursed earth. Because Cain did not get what he wanted, he rose up and slew his brother. This same spirit, let me repeat, has come all the way down. It is the spirit of Satan—if I cannot rule, I will ruin. This spirit in many instances has dominated politics in nations, states and counties, and down to city governments in many places and down into churches sometimes. When the spirit of Cain gets into any order, it ruins, and plainly demonstrates, the spirit of Cain. Its foundation is envy and hatred. As the Bible said, and he knew that it was envy that delivered Jesus Christ into his court, for he (Pilate) knew that for envy they delivered him (Jesus)” (Matthew 27:18). Yes, it was the spirit of Cain that had gotten into the religious camp—the Pharisees who were very religious; those whose leaders could stand up and say, “Thank God that I am not as other men are. I am far above that poor Publican down there in the gutter.” Yes, envy that was in Cain’s soul descended to Pilate’s judgment hall in such a way that Pilate could see it bulging out of every face crying, “Away with Him.” There were envious people in the wilderness. Moses was harassed by those who wanted to go back to Egypt and fill themselves with garlic and onions. Yes, Moses was harassed on every side and the devil wanted to take over and conduct the funeral of the body. (See Jude 9 and the truth.)

STARTLING HEADLINES

Here are some of the headlines seen in the newspaper reports of late: REDS THREATEN TO IGNORE UN; GOP’S FARM POLICY DRAWS KENNEDY FIRE; SOUTHERN GOVERNORS ENTERTAINED BY FANDANGO DANCERS IN ARKANSAS; GOVERNMENT WARNING U. S. CITIZENS TO STAY AWAY FROM CUBA; REDS ARE DETERMINED TO DELIVER FORMOSA, and many headlines that asserts in plain language that we are close to the end of time.

After these observations, I am satisfied that Christians should stop murmuring over petty differences and get behind the gospel that saves men from the guilt of sin, and that places sinners in the family of God. Preach the essentials, such as, “What must I do to be saved?” and preach loud the answer as given by the men of God, “Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved and thy house.” This doctrine will stand at the judgment bar of God.

WHY USE CAPS?

I have been asked, “Why use caps?” Answer, “Because of emphasizing a truth that I want to get over.” I learned this method from Mr. C. E. Putnam, an extension representative of the Moody Bible Institute many years ago, who was the author of about forty books and different periodicals. So it is my likings to emphasize words that I want to get over.

If I differ with a man, thank God I can pray with him, for him and love him. There was a time when I could not do this. I was like a great many others, “If I differed with him I wanted to get him out of my way.” But when Jesus came in and took complete control all envy, jealousy and destructive criticism went away.

The spirit of Khrushchev, inherited from Cain, is dressed in full dress and headed for the fair grounds of destruction parading its envy and hatred. When I differ with a man, I do not hate him nor try to destroy him. I differ with many men over religion and politics, but I do not hate them.

SOME WITH WHOM I DIFFER

I differ with some Free Will Baptist friends, but not on the fundamentals. All Free Will Baptists believe that the Bible is infallible; that it is given to us by inspiration of the Holy Ghost, as set forth in both the National and the North Carolina Treatise. I have never seen a Free Will Baptist preacher that did not believe this. We believe the Word declares that Jesus was born of the virgin Mary, begotten by the Holy Ghost, and in fact, we believe the whole Bible, but we differ in some respects in the polity of the organic body. The National Treatise gives us this right. We say, “Union Meeting”; out west they say, “Quarterly Meeting.” We believe in washing the saints’ feet; some Free Will Baptists do not believe this, but I do not hate them. There are other differences between us and some of our western brethren, but I do not hate them, nor try to destroy them because we differ in minor things.

BOOKS THAT I READ

I have the Book of Mormon. I have read it right much, but the reading of this book does not make me a Mormon; it drives me further away from the doctrine. I know that it is not of God. I read Russell’s work and also Judge Rutherford’s writings, but if I did not own some of their books and read them I would be ignorant in the discussion of their unchristian doctrine. I have the Roman Catholic Bible, but this Bible does not make me a Roman Catholic. Their own Bible contradicts some of their religious activities. They say that Peter was the first pope. The Bible does not teach that the pope must not marry. Peter was married and his mother-in-law was living when Christ was here on earth. Let us see, “And when Jesus was come into Peter’s house, he saw his wife’s mother laid, and sick of a fever” (Matthew 8:14). But having the Bible that the Catholics use, let me repeat, does not make me a Roman Catholic.

IS EVERYBODY WRONG?

Well, some of we human beings sometimes get to where all others are wrong except us. Mr. Nixon is sure that he is right in his thinking, and Mr. Kennedy is just as sure that he is right, both may be right in some things or they both may be wrong in some things. I have my choice, you have yours. But I do not want either of them destroyed by tongues that are set on the fires of hell. If I vote a Republican ticket that is my business and no one’s business but mine. Some fellow who is a democrat might be envious enough to crush me for my belief. Now here is the clipping, read it carefully:

“The fault finding habit is a bad one. It is easily acquired, and not readily broken. We live in an imperfect world. Everything is flawed and defective. Institutions blunder and fall short of the ideal. All people are erring creatures, and their faults of others, or to the defects of the world in which he lives.

“One may become a chronic fault finder, and in that case he will become a grumbler. And if he is not careful, he will degenerate into a growler. And if he growls long enough, and becomes a cynic, he has reached the bottom. There is nothing lower than cynicism. A cynic is of no account, either to himself or to anyone else. He is a nuisance and a stumbling block. He did not intend at the start to become a cynic. He began by finding fault, and the habit grew on him until his mind became twisted and his heart sour.”—Berean Banner.

GOOD ETHICS

A long time ago, before many of our preachers and laymen were born, two of our

(continued on page sixteen)

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

How Meing's Prayer Was Answered

by E. B. Clarke

"WONDERFUL news," cried Meing as she came running into the courtyard, "Have you not heard, my honorable mother, that there is a school opened down She'peng way by the foreign ladies? May I go?" she asked.

"I will speak to your honorable father about it when he returns from fishing," replied her mother.

All excited, Meing left the house, and went out to play. Eagerly she looked around for her friend who presently joined her from the opposite courtyard, full of news about the school to which she had been allowed to go. "Do ask your honorable mother to allow you to attend it, Meing."

"What do you do?" asked Meing.

"We learn Chinese figures, and how to read, and they pray to their God who, they say, is alive and answers prayer."

"What is their God like?" inquired the little girl. "Is He like our god in the pagoda?"

"No! They cannot see their God."

"How curious!" exclaimed Meing, who had never before heard of a god one could not see. "How queer the honorable ladies must be to pray to a God they cannot see."

"But He hears prayer, Meing. Why, the other day they prayed for Theeng Shee and she got better, and before that, the honorable Hie Lee said she would go blind!"

Oh, how Meing wanted to go to this school and see all these wonderful happenings for herself. How glad she was when her father gave consent. The ladies welcomed Meing kindly and she soon found herself in a big room with a number of girls about her own age who were learning Chinese figures. Meing was quick to pick up anything new and was soon enjoying her lesson. The ladies began and ended the school day with prayers and a short talk about the true God. Meing listened to everything with interest. Especially impressed was she with the thought that this God heard and answered prayer.

The second day was as full of interest as the first. How she longed for the time when she could read out of the book the honorable ladies read from. She carried her reading book home to show her mother the second day. Eagerly she ran into the courtyard, but what was that sound of wailing she heard? Meing dropped the precious book and ran into the house. Her mother was sitting with her hands covering her face, rocking herself backward and forward as she wailed bitterly.

"My honorable mother, what is the matter?"

"Alas, your honorable father has been fishing and Ho Lung, who was out with him, has been here to say that your father and boat have been captured by brigands. Alas, alas, we have no money to give for his release, and unless we can pay, and pay what they demand, perhaps—perhaps they will kill him!"

Meing stood still with horror. Could anything worse have happened? Then she remembered something, and without asking permission, she ran down the road that led to the foreign school. "The honorable ladies prayed to their God and He answered prayer." Perhaps He would save her father from the brigands—it was worth trying! She rushed into the school and between her sobs, told the story.

"Oh, please will you pray to your honorable God and ask Him to save my father?" cried Meing. "Do you think He can?"

"Oh, of course, He can, but you can ask Him too!"

Meing looked surprised. How could she pray to a God she had never seen?

"Yes," said the lady, "we will all kneel down here and pray to the true God who lives in heaven and who loved us so much He sent His dear Son to take the punishment of our sins and die for us. He loves each one of us—you, too, Meing."

Then they all knelt down and somehow Meing felt there was Someone in the room who was mighty to save, although unseen. Meing prayed too. She got up off her knees and thanked the honorable ladies and ran home.

Her mother and grandmother had been too stricken with grief to notice their daughter's absence, but when they looked at her her face was beaming. She felt the unseen God would bring her father back. She told her mother, but she had no faith in the white women's God, but Meing went to bed quite sure her father would be saved.

It was midnight when her mother was startled by seeing her husband enter the house. A fog had suddenly arisen and made his escape with his boat. When morning woke next morning and saw her father her joy knew no bounds. The true God had indeed answered prayer. Never again would she bow before the idols in the pagoda. The true God was the God who answered prayer. Henceforth, Meing would love and serve Him only.—Gospel Herald

THE MAIL BOX

NEW PASTOR AT LAGRANGE

"I would like to advise the public that we have succeeded the Rev. Kirby Joe Go as pastor of the LaGrange Free Will Baptist Church, effective as of September 1960."—The Rev. Thurman B. Hall, Box 527, LaGrange, North Carolina.

WILLEYS HAVE NEW ADDRESS

"We were wondering if you would be in the favor of putting a notice in The Free Will Baptist to the effect of our change of address for the time being. As you know, I'm sure, the State Department advises American women and children to leave Cuba. We came over on October 7, and Mother will be staying in Miami sometime until something else develops. Father and I plan to return to Cuba to do the work sometime this coming week."

"Please word this however you think best, and also include an urgent plea for the prayers of our people everywhere. These are extremely tense days in Cuba, and a day which people are ready to listen to the gospel as never before. Especially we need His wisdom in knowing what to do and what move to make. We will stay there as long as conditions permit, yet, should we absolutely have to leave, thank the Lord for fine national workers who will continue to carry on and give the message."

"We are looking forward to the time when we shall all be able to return to the place of the Lord's choosing. The news makes it sound impossible, but our Lord is able."—Tom Willey Jr. (Please send a response for Willeys Jr. and Sr. to N. W. 12th Avenue, Miami, Florida.)

CONTRIBUTIONS APPRECIATED

"We, the people of Zion Free Will Baptist Church of Millwood, Georgia, hereby appreciate every contribution that could be made to our church by the readers of The Free Will Baptist. The offering to be used in the construction of a new brick church which we have started. Please send all contributions to Zion Hill Church, Millwood, Georgia. Mrs. Mamie Mercer, Clerk.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page ten)

Wintergreen Host to 5th Eastern Sunday School Convention

The Wintergreen Free Will Baptist Church, Cove City, North Carolina, will host to the Fifth Eastern Sunday School Convention, Sunday, October 30. The theme will be, "Our Response to God." A special part of the program will be the anniversary program as presented by the children of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home. The morning message will be delivered by the superintendent, the Rev. J. W. Everton. The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- Prayer, Mr. Walter R. Sandlin
- Hymn, "He Keeps Me Singing"
- Welcome Address, Mr. A. B. Tilgham
- Response and Devotions, Mr. Herman L. Ireland
- Business Period
- Offerings
- Sunday School Lesson, Mr. R. M. Wood
- 40th Anniversary of Children's Home
- Special Music, Children's Home Choir

- Message, the Rev. J. W. Everton
- Lunch and Fellowship
- Afternoon Session
- Devotions, Mr. North A. Gaskins
- Business Period
- Program, Host Sunday School
- Visiting Quartet, Tabernacle Baptist Male Quartet
- Program
- Special Music, Prescott Quartet, Wintergreen Senior and Junior Quartets, Evangels, Arapahoe and Meledy Trio
- Election of Officers, the Rev. J. C. Griffin
- Benediction

Wilson Co. Sunday School Institute Oct. 31 - Nov. 4

A Sunday school institute for all the schools in Wilson County, North Carolina, will be held during the week following the fifth Sunday in October (October 31 - November 4) at Little Rock Church in Lucama. The institute is being sponsored by the Wilson County Fellowship Supper in co-operation with the State Sunday School Convention, and will be under the direction of the Rev. L. E. Ballard, field secretary of the convention.

Sessions will be held each evening beginning at 7:30, with three division workshops: One for teachers, workers and pupils of the cradle roll, beginners, primary and junior departments; one for teachers, class officers and pupils of the intermediate, senior, young people and adult departments; and one for the pastors, superintendents and all general officers of the schools and of the district convention. Each group will have a carefully selected instructor.

The committee in charge of all arrangements is the Rev. Leonard Woodall, Mr. Leslie Hawley and Mr. H. E. Jomp.

Albemarle District Meetings Convene at Trinity Church

The Albemarle district meetings will convene with the Trinity Free Will Baptist Church, Pantego, North Carolina, October 29, 30. The programs are as follows:

Union Meeting October 29

Morning Session

- 10:00—Devotions, Mr. Howard Ferbee
- 10:10—Welcome Address, Local Pastor
- Response, Mrs. Olive Reynolds
- 10:15—Moderator's Address, the Rev. Herbert Bryan
- 10:20—Minutes of Last Union
- Appointment of Committees
- Roll Call of Ministers and Churches
- Greetings
- Announcements
- 11:15—Congregational Singing and Worship
- Offering
- Special Music, Host Church
- 11:30—Union Message, the Rev. Johnnie Eason
- 12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

- 1:00—Devotions, Mr. Andreleo
- 1:15—Business Period
- Report of Treasurer
- Report of Committees
- Announcement of Next Union
- 2:15—Closing Hymn and Benediction
- League Union, October 29
- Evening Session
- 7:30—Devotions, Neal Hearn
- 7:40—President's Message, Dennis Swain
- 7:45—Appointment of Committees
- Roll Call of Leagues

- Minutes of Last Session
- Recognition of Ministers
- Announcements
- 8:00—Congregational Singing
- Special Music, Host League
- 8:15—Business Period
- Report of Committees
- Awarding of Banner
- Treasurer's Report
- 8:30—League Program
- Bible Drill
- 9:00—Closing Hymn and Adjournment
- Sunday School Convention, October 30
- Morning Session
- 10:00—Devotions, Mr. Oscar Webster
- 10:15—Welcome Address, Local Sunday School Superintendent
- Response, Mr. Tom West
- 10:20—President's Message, Mr. William Gaylord
- Appointment of Committees
- 10:20—Sunday School Lesson, the Rev. A. B. Chandler
- 10:45—Enrolling Ministers
- Reading of Minutes of Last Convention
- Sunday School Reports
- Announcements
- Congregational Singing and Worship
- Offering
- Special Music, Host Church
- 11:30—Message, the Rev. C. H. Overman
- 12:00—Lunch
- Afternoon Session
- 1:00—Afternoon Message, the Rev. M. E. Cox
- Business Period
- Treasurer's Report
- Report of Committees
- Announcement of Next Convention
- 2:30—Adjournment

Jakin and Cedar Springs Churches Host of Midway Association

The Midway Free Will Baptist Association of Georgia will convene November 2 with the Jakin Free Will Baptist Church of Jakin, and on November 3 with Cedar Springs Free Will Baptist Church of Cedar Springs. The theme for the association will be "Abounding in Our Heritage Through the Workings of Our Faith." The program is as follows:

Morning Session, November 2

- 10:00—Devotions, the Rev. Paul Irvin
- Association Called to Order, Moderator
- Appointment of Committees
- Digest Report
- Seating of Delegates
- Roll Call of Ministers
- Call for Corresponding Messengers
- Offering
- Special Music

(continued on page sixteen)

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Your Week of Prayer Can Be Successful

The Pre-Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons of prayer are just ahead. Let's make these weeks of prayer vital and worthwhile. If anything of value is accomplished time must be given to preparation. It will require time to pray, time to plan, and time to observe these prayer seasons.

Time seems to be the one thing that all of us are short on these days. But as a dear friend said to me one day, when I was complaining of a lack of time, "There will always be time enough to do what must be done." She spoke a great truth. The trouble with us is that we are doing so many unimportant things that God's first things are put last on the list or not done at all. We used to say, "If we had some money, we would do much for our Lord and church." Today we say, "If we only had some time."

The authors of these two programs gave of their precious time for us to have them. Let's be as generous in observing these prayer seasons and using the material they have provided for us. Here are some suggestions for making these seasons effective and vital to us and our churches:

I. Pray for the meetings

1. Pray for yourself.

2. Pray for those who will take part in the programs.

3. Pray that the offering will be a sacrificial offering for missions.

4. Pray for the specific requests listed in the programs and in this article.

II. Dedicate these meetings to God

III. Enlist the support of your pastor

Point out to him the benefits of having the services church-wide.

IV. Ask the choir director to help you with the music

V. Publicize the meetings

1. Through posters, church bulletins, announcements from the pulpit, letters to the members, etc.

2. Be sure to give definite dates, places, time, and the name of the special speaker (if one is used).

3. State when the offering will be received and the purpose for which it is to be used.

Here is a list of materials you may have without cost by ordering directly from The National Home Missions Board, 3801 Richland Avenue, Nashville 5, Tennessee.

1. Pictures of the home missionaries.

2. Thanksgiving offering envelopes.

3. Place mats, and other items from promotion of fellowship socials.

4. New booklets with pictures of the work in Hawaii.

5. Sample package of materials about all fields in North America.

6. Tract—"When God Taught Me to Give" by Dr. Oswald J. Smith.

Here is an additional list of prayer requests to be remembered this week. Pray for:

1. Rev. and Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin as they do itinerant work and make preparations to go to Alaska.

2. Rev. and Mrs. Roy Thomas who are doing itinerant work and who will soon go to Colorado.

3. Miss Bessie Yeley as she takes up new duties with the Spanish Mission in Miami. Pray that the $4,000 dollars needed for a chapel in Miami will be supplied.

4. Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Billows as they direct the building program in Monterrey, N. L. Mexico, with the funds supplied by the Woman's National Auxiliary Convention members.

5. Rev. and Mrs. Luther Sanders as they make a survey of the Islands of Hawaii. Pray for the church that has been established at Waipahu.

6. Rev. and Mrs. Mack Owens and Rev. and Mrs. Mark Vandivoort as they continue the work in New England.

7. Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Walker as they complete final arrangements to purchase property in Washington, D. C.

8. Miss Molly Barker who is now a student nurse at General Hospital in Nashville, Tennessee, preparing for medical missionary work in Mexico.

9. Brother Melitino as he ministers to the Mexican workers at Homestead, Florida. This work is in addition to his regular work in Miami.

10. Rev. and Mrs. Lee Whaley and Miss Hall in Anchorage, Alaska.

11. Rev. and Mrs. Johnny Postlewaite in Wenatchee, Washington.

12. Home Missions Director and the office staff.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRELL
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER W. S. KEEL

Elder W. S. Keel was born in the part of Craven County, now Pamlico County, North Carolina, on the 15th August, 1829, and was ordained a minister about the year, 1867, by Elders Holton and Albritton. He preached in the counties Craven and Beaufort, both in the churches and people's houses, and worked hard for a living for himself and family; not receiving but little aid from the church or people.

In the year, 1879, Elder Keel's health failed to such an extent that he could not preach but little. He gradually grew weaker until the 27th day of July, 1881, when he calmly passed away, never faltering a moment, and has gone to receive his reward according to his work.

ELDER JAMES MOORE

Elder James Moore was born March 1793, in Edgecombe County, the part that is now known as Wilson County, North Carolina. He was married quite young and moved to Greene County and united with the Free Will Baptist Church at Graysleys. Soon he was called to preach the gospel. His license dates back to January, 1825; his credentials to February, 1827. He went forth preaching the gospel as a faithful servant, and had the care of several churches. About the year, 1850, he organized a church in Greene County, and gave it the name of Free Union. Soon after he removed his membership from Grimsley to Free Union. It was a flourishing church and he held the care of it for many years. His name was on that church list the day of his departure, July, 1882. Elder Moore was a faithful minister of the gospel for 53 years never changed, but the same. Elder J. Barfield was present and heard him preach his last sermon—it was on a funeral occasion. He was then so feeble that his brethren sat near where he was standing and he held the care of it for many years. He was then so feeble that his brethren sat near where he was standing and he held the care of it for many years. He was then so feeble that his brethren sat near where he was standing and he held the care of it for many years. He was then so feeble that his brethren sat near where he was standing and he held the care of it for many years.

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Facing My Sin

(Lesson for November 6)

on: Psalm 32
len Text: 1 John 1:19

INTRODUCTION

Considering the title of today's lesson, it would be well to remember the memory portion. There seems to be many Christians who see no need of confession before God. John, however, recognized under the influence of the Holy Spirit, that it was absolutely essential that even the Christians make confession unto God. His first epistle, 1 John, was written to Christians. It is clearly seen in that he uses the expressions, My Little Children, Beloved and Dear Children. Even the Christian is faced with the problem of sin, but John says that when we sin, we have an advocate with the Father—Jesus Christ, the Righteous. Since Christ is our Advocate, we may have forgiveness for all sin, but we must remember the words of our memory selection: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."—The Bible Student (V.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

The knowledge of sins forgiven is one of the greatest blessings to be experienced (Psalm 32:1).

God imputes righteousness, but we are saved by inheritance and choice (Vs. 2).

The natural desire to hide sin results in torment for the soul (Vs. 3).

God brings about a full realization of guilt of unconfessed sin (Vs. 4).

Forgiveness is obtained by an open confession to God (Vs. 5).

Our testimony of forgiveness encourages others to confess (Vs. 6).

Once forgiven, we should remain in protective shelter of the Lord always (Vs. 7).

Unheeded instruction goes before a disaster afterward we listen (Vs. 8).

God could use force to bring us nigh unto Himself, but He uses the gentle persuasion of His eyes (Vs. 9).

Even in this life it is worth our while to serve the Lord (Vs. 10).

The Psalm begins with happiness as the fruit of forgiveness, and ends with the fullness of joy as the fruit of fellowship (Vs. 11).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Psalm 32 is closely related to Psalm 51. Both were written by David. Psalm 51 is a confession by David of his great sin with Bathsheba; whereas, Psalm 32 expresses his joy at being forgiven. We must always remember, when studying the Psalms, that they were not entered chronologically. There is good reason, for instance, to believe that Psalm 51 was written before Psalm 32. Before you go further in your study of this lesson, you should turn to Psalm 51 in your Bible and read it.

Psalm 32 is numbered with the penitential Psalms. Some other penitential Psalms are 6, 38, 51, 102, 130 and 143. They were sung to express repentance toward God. This Psalm 32 was used at the close of the Jewish service on the Day of Atonement as an expression of joy that atonement for sin had been made.

This beautiful Psalm is divided into three sections: The first two verses tell us about a blessed condition—sins forgiven; the next five verses tell us about the essential confession—the confession of sin; and the last four verses give the source of instruction.

2. In these two verses, four words are used to describe the condition of man before he is forgiven: In Verse 1, there is the word, transgression, which means the passing over a boundary or the doing of that which is prohibited. Also in Verse 1, there is the word, sin, which means the missing of a mark, or the failure to do what is commanded. In Verse 2, there is the word, iniquity, which means that which is contrary to equity or justice. Also in Verse 2 is the word, guile, which means fraud or deceit. When we add all these words together, we begin to see something of the condition of man apart from God.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. David's sin is recorded by the Biblical writer in all its sordid details (2 Samuel 11, 12). The king seduced Bathsheba while her husband, Uriah, was away fighting for the king and his country. After two unsuccessful attempts to use Uriah in covering up his sin, David arranged for his death, thus aggravating his sin of adultery by adding murder.

4. At last David threw himself upon the mercy of God. He did not spare himself. He laid his sin before God in all its ugly reality. Stripped of the raiment of self-respect and pride, his soul stood naked before almighty God in penitential shame. He pleaded for purging, for washing, for a clean heart and a right spirit.—The Standard Commentary.

5. Martin Luther told the story of a monk in his cell who was visited at night in his dreams, by the great arch-enemy. The tempter brought to him great rolls which he bade him read, and the monk saw in his dreams that these contained the record of his own life. "Is that true, did you write it," said the evil one. And the stricken monk confessed that it was true. Scroll after scroll was unrolled and he plunged to the lowest depths of misery; and then there came upon him the vision of his soul's salvation and he turned to the tempter and said, "It is true, every word of it, but write across it all: 'The blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth us from all sin.'"—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

6. The time came when animal sacrifices no more sufficed for a sinner's forgiveness. Hebrews 10:1-4 teaches that sacrifices offered year by year before Christ came, could not make the comers or offenders perfect, for they would cease to have been offered if the sacrifices took away sins forever. But it is not possible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins. Hebrews 9:12 states, "Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood (that is Jesus' blood) he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us."—Selected.

7. The word, covered, in Verse 1 was good doctrine in Old Testament times but does not fully express New Testament truth regarding the forgiveness of sins.

A man once bought a mowing machine, giving a promissory note due in six months. This note covered the debt, but did not put it away. But when he paid the dealer the specified amount of money, the indebtedness was blotted out.

Just so the sins of Old Testament saints were covered by the blood of goats and calves, but the blood of Jesus Christ on Calvary was necessary to complete the work of forgiveness. Heathen people offered animal sacrifices, but not to the true God who gave His only begotten Son.

PRICE INCREASE

Due to the increase in the cost of printing materials, we have found it necessary to increase the price of Sunday school and league publications $.01 on each copy. This became effective on October 15, 1960.

NOTES and QUOTES

(continued from page eleven)

brethren got into an argument over some points of doctrine. The argument reached a red-hot stage, and they left off the subject matter and began to deal in personalities and spewing out destructive criticism; therefore, the management passed a resolution that all discussions that dealt in name calling and unchristian assertions not be allowed to be placed in the columns of The Free Will Baptist. This statement is filed away some where, if not destroyed. Perhaps our late editors are not aware of this act; however, I think it good ethics. I believe fighting off sin in all of its different forms, but I do not believe in name calling in a manner of destructive criticism.

Indelible Imprints

(continued from page fourteen)

field to preach his funeral. He did so, using the 13th chapter and 14th verse of Revelation.

He leaves one son and several grandchildren. May they all become willing to walk in that good old way that Brother Moore contended for so long. We can look back to the happy days when we could mingle our voices with his. May we now ever be looking ahead to the time when we can meet him, never to part again, O blessed Jesus, help us to do Thy good work.

NEWS NOTES

(continued from page thirteen)

11:00—Message, "Multiplying Our Heritage," the Rev. S. T. Shutes

12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

1:00—Ordination Service

—Business Session

—Adjournment

Morning Session, November 3

10:00—Devotions, the Rev. Alonzo Parrish

—Business Session

11:00—Message, the Rev. Mr. Garnett

12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

1:00—Associational Business

—Adjournment

The Rev. S. T. Shutes, the clerk of the association, states: "We will be happy to have visitors who are interested in promoting the greatest cause on earth or heaven through all the channels now available in the ranks of our churches or institutions whether owned by all are a part of our people. At least pray for us."

National Superannuation Report For September, 1960

Mrs. K. V. Shutes, secretary-treasurer of the National Superannuation Board of Free Will Baptists, makes the following financial report for the month ending September 30, 1960:

Cash on Hand September 1, 1960 $3,981.43

Receipts

Co-Operative Plan of

Support $114.55

States Credited as Follows:

Alabama	2.17
Arkansas	15.21
California	15.35
Georgia	7.32
Illinois	4.71
Missouri	30.33
North Carolina	2.87
New Mexico	3.42
Oklahoma	13.57
Tennessee	.60
Texas	16.60
Virginia	2.40

From States:

Alabama	5.00
Georgia	30.84
Michigan	21.19
Missouri	121.40
North Carolina	125.18
South Carolina	10.15
Tennessee	10.23
Virginia	4.95
From Insured of Premiums	92.73

Total Receipts 536.22

Total to Account For $4,517.65

Disbursements

Ministers Life and Casualty Union for Premiums on Insured	$ 89.84
Secretarial Services	75.00

Total Disbursements 164.84

Balance in Treasury September 30, 1960 $4,352.81

First Union Meeting to Meet With Holly Springs Church

The First Union Meeting of the Western Conference of North Carolina will convene with Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church, Johnston County, October 29. All churches in the first district are requested to attend by delegation with reports completely filled out, giving activities of church. The program is as follows:

Morning Session

10:00—Devotions, Rev. C. R. Ethridge

10:15—Welcome, Pastor

—Response, Rev. Wiley Ferrell

10:20—Special Music

10:30—Reading of Minutes

10:40—Roll Call of Ministers

—Roll Call of Churches

11:25—Congregational singing, Led

Rev. Leonard Woodall

—Offering for Children's Home

11:30—Sermon, Rev. R. H. Jackson

12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

1:00—Devotions, Rev. Albert Coates

1:15—Juvenile Delinquency, Mr. H

Talton

1:35—Business Session

2:30—Adjournment

N. C. Superannuation Report For September, 1960

The following is the report of the Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannuation of North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, for September, 1960:

Receipts

Balance on Hand September 1, 1960 $4,96

Regular Receipts for September 36

Offering earmarked for Adopted Ministers and Minister's Widows 1

Offering Earmarked for State Only 1

Total to Account For Disbursements $5,35

Minister's Monthly

Checks $237.00

Widow's Quarterly Checks 438.50

Operating Expenses 133.72

Paid to National Board 22.88

Total Disbursements 83

Balance on Hand October 1, 1960 $4,52

Receipts by Conferences

Albemarle $ 3

Blue Ridge 1

Cape Fear 5

Central 6

Eastern 10

Piedmont 2

Rockfish 5

Western 5

N. C. Auxiliary Convention 3

DS

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, November 2, 1960

Your Faith-

Your Voice

Your Vote...

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
NOV 3 1960

DURHAM, N. C.

"I don't want to be involved," is the unchristian attitude of many who would avoid taking a personal stand on issues of our day. Yet we enjoy liberties and privileges because men of other days were willing to stand up and be counted for their faith.

Our forefathers gave us a great heritage. They proclaimed salvation by faith, freedom of religion, and separation of church and state. These principles have helped our nation to develop the spiritual and economic strength to be the base for world evangelism. Let us thank God for those who have stood for the truth that there is "one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus."

Some suggest that America is now in a post-Protestant era. They say the dynamic power is gone from Protestantism and the emphasis of our nation has shifted away from the traditions of our Protestant heritage. Public opinion is changing in favor of the Church of Rome. It is time for us to stand up and be counted as Protestants. We dare not sit idly by—voiceless and voteless—and lose the heritage for which others have died.

In times like these, can Christ count on you? Having put your hand to the plow, will you look back or will you press on as a living witness for Christ? You can count for Christ today by surrendering your life to Him—by daily witnessing for Him—by supporting your church—and by participating in the affairs of your community, state and nation, expressing your Christian conviction in every area of your life.

You have your faith—your voice—your vote—at your disposal. The future events of history will depend upon how well these three are used.

Stand up and be counted for Christ!—"NAE."

LIFE IS FILLED with certain risks. Every person, in some time or another, will face certain risks. Occasionally, however, we are faced with a risk which is too great: a risk which is not worth the chance, because the chances of not surviving are too great. Freedom loving Americans are facing such a risk on November 8—Election Day.

Reports already have it that there will be the greatest turnout at the polls than at any other time in our country's history. We are nearing the last lap of the race and hearts are beating faster, speeches are becoming hotter, issues are coming to the forefront; and the religious question still knocks at the heart of the concerned Christian. Many of the questions which were raised two or three months ago concerning the election of a Catholic to the presidency of the United States have been answered by the candidate himself. But his answers have not eradicated the fear in the hearts of thousands upon thousands of freedom-loving Protestants—people who cherish the liberties of our great America. This may be difficult for many to understand—the fear which exists—but it is to be expected among those who know something about the history, both past and present, of the Roman Catholic church.

In the November 11, 1959, issue of The Free Will Baptist, we wrote: "We should pray for the 1960 presidential elections. Protestants must pray that God will give us a man who will uphold Godly principles and American democracy. It is the opinion of many political leaders that Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts is the strongest candidate for the democratic presidency. Senator Kennedy is a Roman Catholic and although he has denied that his religion in any way unfits him for his high office, it is the belief of most Protestant leaders that the election of a Roman Catholic to the presidency of the United States sooner or later would become a threat to our freedoms and the American way of life. We can be sure Rome will not, and is not, to sit idly by in the matter; for Roman Catholicism claims authority over civil government." This was almost a year ago. We have consistently maintained this conviction. We have not launched a campaign against any individual or against any political party. In fact, we have stated that our views and convictions would be the same regardless to the political party.

We have stated that with sincere Christians, the question of continual and certain religious freedom is the problem. It is not necessarily what one man will or will not be able to do. It is not likely that this country would feel any effects of the power of Rome in the first or even the second term of a Catholic president. Mr. Kennedy, if elected president, may be able to maintain his democratic stand during his administration, but it is that which would follow after his term that would usher in the dangers to our freedoms. The danger is seen in completely tearing down the wall which has separated the Catholic church from the democracy of this country; in other words, a uniting of church and state.

CHRISTIANITY AND LIBERTY GO TOGETHER

Liberty is defined as: "Freedom from external restraint or compulsion; power to do as one pleases; exemption from subjection to the will of another claiming ownership of the person or services." In brief, liberty is the freedom to choose. It is the conviction and determination of men like Patrick Henry lived over and over again in the lives and actions of thousands. He was willing to lay down his life for the cause of liberty when he said, "Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death."

The very purpose of Christ's ministry was ". . . to preach the gospel to the poor; . . . to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised" (Luke 4:18).

The religionists of Christ's day had become bogged down in ritualisms; customs and laws which did nothing for the hungry soul. They had gained many followers, and these followers were bound to them, lock, stock and barrel. Then Christ came, preached deliverance from the captors, and liberty to those who were bruised. The Light had come, and with this Light liberty came.

The fact is that the heart and soul of man is not satisfied until it is free. When man is placed in captivity and loses his freedom, he is never satisfied with such an arrangement and will go to most any means to become free. America has long been the land of the free. This freedom was bought by the sacrifice of our founding fathers. Dare we take the risk of losing it? The risk is too great.

OUR LIBERTY IS AT STAKE

Our belief is that America's liberty is at stake now more than any period in our history. Yet, many are not aware of it, for many have taken this liberty for granted and do not value it as highly as freedom of religion too highly. This threat to American liberty does not come simply because of the nomination of a Roman Catholic to the presidency; instead, it has been a building-up process. It is the climax of the efforts of a political system whose power is felt in many parts of the world: namely, the Roman Catholic church. It is a political system which claims authority over any other power, whether civil or ecclesiastical. As a church, it recognizes no other. It claims to be the only true church, and claims a leader (the Pope) whose decisions are infallible; none of his decisions have ever been refuted. This authority is handed down in a great measure to the Cardinals, bishops and priests who inform the Catholic people as to what they can do or not do, who to support and who not to support.

AN EDITORIAL—

The Risk

Up to this time, Rome has not spoken in support of Mr. Kennedy's statements pertaining to religion. Surely Mr. Kennedy was speaking his convictions in all sincerity as he stood before a group of Protestant ministers in Houston, Texas, on September 15, and answered their questions related to the religious issue. But the superiors have not spoken—that is, the Vatican. Protestant leaders recognize that Rome's best policy is to remain quiet at the present time. In essence, however, the Vatican has spoken in many secret ways, not necessarily in words or statement, but in deeds and actions.

The press in this country has had a lot to say about this so-called anti-Catholic campaign, even calling those who express fear in the election of a Catholic president as "bigots." The newspapers have had a lot to say about this, but how much has been said or written about suppression and persecution of Protestants by the Catholics in other countries? Even in America, the Catholic officials are able to carry their weight to the extent of getting what they are after, at least in the final analysis.

May we point out that when Mr. Kennedy made the statement some months ago, "Whatever one's religion in his private life may be, for the office-holder nothing takes precedence over the oath," that he was quickly called to order by the press and the church. They pointed out that this was not good Catholic doctrine, and the Jesuit weekly, America, editorialized, "A man's private science has a bearing on his public as well as his private life." This is just one of the examples of the conflict between a Roman Catholic's statements and the Roman hierarchy.

When Catholic leaders say that a Catholic president would have to obey his conscience, they mean something quite different from the Protestant definition of conscience. The New Republic, December 2, 1957, quotes James Cardinal Gibbons as saying: "While you (Protestants) believe in private judgment, we (Catholics) believe in a religion of authority which our conscience tells us is our lawful guide and teacher in its own sphere." In other words, the Roman Catholic's conscience—well conditioned by early training—endorses what the church says about its authority. Conscience is taken out of the realm of private judgment and placed in control of the Catholic church.

Roman Catholic political leaders are doing all within their power to secure more support of its parochial schools. It is said there are over two thousand nuns teaching in over 280 schools in 15 states in the Union. This is quite difficult to accept in the light of the first Amendment which reads, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." It should be pointed out that the hope which the church has for control in America is its parochial schools, through which it hopes to make America Catholic and thus force upon this country a Roman Catholic culture with a parochial school system completely supported by the government; with clerical censorship of newspapers and publications, movies and television; with restriction on the distribution of birth control material; and with our foreign policy geared to the Vatican.

To further show the power and influence of Catholic officials

Too Great

—By C. H. OVERMAN

On their subject, may we consider the following disciplinary code which was adopted in January of this year by the Diocese of Rome. At this meeting—the first for this diocese in more than 500 years—were 800 Catholic clergymen. In their recommendations for a disciplinary code covering every activity of priests, was a special section devoted to the duties of Catholic laymen. This code for laymen includes such restrictions as:

"The Catholic layman is subject to excommunication if he speaks or votes for political parties or persons that promote heretical principles or doctrines.

"He can be excommunicated if he has any part in enacting laws harmful to the church.

"He is forbidden to read publications inspired by Protestantism or atheism or materialism.

"He is barred from taking part in services, sermons or discussions of non-Catholic groups."—George L. Ford, Executive Director, N. A. E.

EXAMPLES OF CATHOLIC SUPPRESSION AND PERSECUTION

One does not have to look very far to find evidence to the effect that Catholic officials never hesitate to control the liberties of the individual. Neither do we have to look very far to cite instances of persecution. As has already been pointed out in The Free Will Baptist, in Colombia, South America, 49 Protestant churches have been destroyed; 34 Protestant churches have been confiscated; 89 Protestant church leaders have been murdered. Colombia's government is clerically dominated. The above figures vary in different reports, but fact of persecution cannot be denied.

Of course, Catholics say that such things have no bearing in America, but one is made to wonder at such a claim; especially the claim that the Roman Catholic hierarchy does not intervene in politics. Things did not seem to bear out such a claim in the light of recent developments in Puerto Rico when a letter, signed by three bishops, was read forbidding church members from voting for the popular Democratic party of Governor Luis Munoz Marin. The bishops were careful to point out in the letter that, "It is not our intention to impose Catholic morals on the government or its citizens." It must be pointed out, however, that this is the same sort of explanation offered by the hierarchy when it said that the church was not entering politics. This is double-talk. Senator Kennedy disagreed with the hierarchy when he said that he considered it wholly improper and alien to our democratic system for churchmen of any faith to tell the members of their church for whom to vote or for whom not to vote. There is no question as to who would win in such a conflict. The risk is too great, for Rome has not defended Kennedy's statement, and she is not likely to do so.

In August of 1959, the following statement was released by E. F. M. A. Missionary News Service, pertaining to Catholic influence in Colombo, Ceylon: "Do not touch our schools; we shall resist even unto blood." The statement was uttered by Archbishop Thomas Cooray, Roman Catholic prelate for Ceylon, in a public address delivered in that city. The statement was prompted by a pending government proposal that the state take control of all Ceylonese educational institutions.

Right here in free America, during recent months, Roman Catholics in New Canaan, Connecticut, were forbidden to join or contribute to the Y. M. C. A. The warning was given to members attending masses in St. Aloysius Church in mid-May. The sermons following each mass centered on the local Y. M. C. A., which for some years has maintained swimming, camping and other programs and is currently promoting a fund drive to build a gymnasium, swimming pool and community center. Father Norton declared that the Y. M. C. A. was essentially religious and that Catholics must not participate in these activities.

For a body with only about 25 per cent of the population of the United States (counting babies, in-laws and others), the Catholics are able to pull their weight in censoring those who oppose them. We can expect more and more pressure if the Roman Catholics grow to a majority group in this nation. If they gain sufficient political power God alone knows the outcome.

Christian friend, the risk is too great. The policies of Rome have not changed; none of their laws have been revoked. The Christian must ponder long and carefully the limitations under which a Roman Catholic could serve this country according to our Constitution and according to his freedom as an individual—not under an earthly power, but under God. The risk is too great.

Volume 75

Number 43

November 2, 1960

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

C. H. OVERMAN, Editor

Edited and published weekly by the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C., and approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, The Free Will Baptist is entered at the post office, Ayden, N. C., as second-class mail matter.

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor six days prior to the publication date of that issue.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

6 Months	$1.00
1 Year	2.00

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor or of The Free Will Baptist. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or to the person sending it in.

Third Annual Conference On Evangelism

THE THIRD ANNUAL conference on evangelism will be held in Durham, North Carolina, on November 14-18, 1960. The conference is sponsored by the Conservative Minister's Association of Durham. Information concerning the speakers is given below, along with the hours each will be speaking.

and will amaze anyone who hears him. He is an instructor in the Detroit Bible Institute in addition to his duties at the Calvary Baptist Church.

He will be speaking on the following days and hours: Monday evening, 6:45; Tuesday, 10:45 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.; Wednesday, 9:30 a. m. and 6:45 p. m.; Thursday, 10:45 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.

the speakers in our first annual conference on evangelism here in Durham. His speaking schedule is as follows: Monday evening 8:00; Tuesday, 9:30 a. m. and 6:45 p. m.; Wednesday, 10:45 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.

Rev. David Allen

The Rev. David Allen is pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church in Hazel Park, Michigan, one of the fastest growing churches in the country. Mr. Allen is a strong advocate of church visitation. He took the pastorate of this church in 1944 when the average Sunday school attendance was 130. During the first four years, through his own visitation efforts, the church only gained 120 for Sunday school. In 1949 he inaugurated a program of church visitation. At the end of his first year, the average Sunday school attendance had risen to 400 and the following year it had risen to 500. The church continued to grow so that on May 22, 1960, they had 2,085 in Sunday school and an offering of $2,901.79. On May 23, they had 121 at visitation. Mr. Allen states that the increase of his Sunday school attendance was in direct proportion to the number of callers that worked on visitation night.

Mr. Allen is an excellent Bible teacher

Dr. Tom Malone

Dr. Tom Malone is pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church in Pontiac, Michigan. He also operates the Mid-Western Baptist Schools, and Emmanuel Christian Schools. A recent purchase was made of five new G. M. C. sixty passenger buses to be used to transport children to the Christian schools and also to Sunday school. This is their first year to operate with Mid-Western Baptist Schools in their new $600,000 plant and is their seventh year of operation.

According to Dr. Malone's church paper, The Baptist Vision, during the month of June the Sunday school attendance at Emmanuel Baptist Church averaged 1,354 per Sunday. Their offerings averaged $3,399.00 per Sunday. Twenty-one persons joined the church and thirteen were baptized during the month of June.

Dr. Malone is a man who preaches with compassion and frankness. He was one of

Dr. Lee Roberson

Dr. Lee Roberson is pastor of the far Highland Park Baptist Church in Chattanooga, Tennessee, which has approximately 15,000 members. He baptizes over 1,000 converts each year. The Sunday school attendance runs between 4,000 and 4,500. Dr. Roberson is president of the Tennessee Temple Schools which last year enrolled over 900 students.

Dr. Roberson is a powerful, dynamic preacher of God's Word and is appealing in his manner of speaking and wins hearts of his listeners. His speaking schedule is as follows: Thursday, 9:30 a. m. and 6:45 p. m.; Friday, 9:30 and 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Please Note: All morning services will be held at Edgemont Free Will Baptist Church, 1212 East Main Street, and evening services will be held at East Durham Junior High School on Driver Avenue. Free Rooms will be provided for our town pastors, evangelist, missionaries, full-time Christian workers and also luncheon each day except Monday. Those who want free rooms are asked to visit the Rev. Donald Creech, 1212 East Main Street, Durham, North Carolina.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in postage stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have died a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Memory Portrait of the Rev. Homer L. Myers

There is there a painter to paint now a portrait
 One like a memory holding I secure?
 One couldn't find such a brush or a canvas;
 Colors couldn't blend nearly right I am sure.

You couldn't paint his laugh and the pride in his eye,
 His sock-clad feet patting time on the floor;
 Here "The Old Time Religion" from his fiddle and bow
 The light of the fire while the rafters would roar.

Can't paint the sweat falling from his dear brow,
 His throwing from the barn, the cow's winter hay;
 The sound of his ax chopping the kindling . . .
 His mocking the birds for his children in May.

Can't paint a man as he speaks of his country,
 Freedom he feels in old liberty bell;
 The strain in a face in the Thirty's depression . . .
 Him drawing up water from a country dug well.

Can't paint a man who is silently standing . . .
 He knew what it meant; he had been there before—
 His children marched off to a war one by one;
 His prayers and his faith matched the pain that he bore.

Can't paint the face that came with the greeting
 His kids coming home from afar—Christmas Day . . .
 Can't paint his sermon as first he was preaching;
 The way I can hear at the table he'd pray.

Can't paint his hair—as I saw in December;

I noticed each strand God's touch had made gray . . .

I heard from his heart, he was nearing to heaven;

But I couldn't quite bear to believe it 'd say.

You can't paint the love that you know is surrounding,

With friends and the flowers that counting can't do . . .

But to God we are closer—by way of an angel;

If it could be—Daddy, that painting is you.

—Grachel Myers Harvill.

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, or feature articles, for publication in "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your items processed earlier.

•
 "The wicked shall be turned into hell and all the nations that forget God" (Psalm 9:17).

CHRISTMAS CARDS

For your Christmas greetings this year, we are offering three series of the "Sunshine Line." All three series come in assorted cards, designed exclusively for you who love Christmas and understand its true meaning.

GLAD TIDINGS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards with Scripture Texts

BLESSED CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards, Also with Scripture Texts

LUSTROUS CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

18 PhotoColor Cards with Scripture Texts

RETAIL, PER BOX

$1.00

Special Rates to Auxiliaries and Other Church Groups for Resale

(When ordered in lots of ten or more boxes, sixty cents per box.)

ORDER FROM

FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. BOX 158

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA

NEWS NOTES

Mount Olive Student Ordained at Western Conference

The Rev. Andrew Hill, a former student of Mount Olive College, was recently ordained at the annual session of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, held at Micro Free Will Baptist Church.

Mr. Hill, a member of the Wilson Free Will Baptist Church, attended Mount Olive College in 1955, and graduated from Atlantic Christian College in 1960 with an A. B. degree.

He is pastor of the Sound View Free Will Baptist Church in the Eastern Conference and is a teacher at Brinson Memorial School, New Bern, North Carolina. He is married to the former Geraldine Barwick of Deep Run, North Carolina. They have a daughter, Saborah Jean, age seven, and are now making their home at 1800 Old Cherry Point Road, New Bern, North Carolina.

Free Union Church Host To Central Conference

The North Carolina Central Conference of Free Will Baptists will convene with Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, Greene County, November 9, 10, 1960. The theme will be, "Glorifying God." The following program will be followed throughout the conference:

Wednesday Morning, November 9
10:00—"Glorifying God Through Praise,"
Rev. D. W. Alexander

10:15—Welcome
—Response, Rev. R. B. Crawford
10:25—Business Period
—Seating of Ministers and Delegates
—Appointment of Committees
10:45—Moderator's Message
11:00—"Glorifying God by Caring for Our Children," Report of Children's Home, Rev. J. W. Everton
11:15—"Glorifying God in Training," Report of Mount Olive College, Dr. W. Burkette Raper
11:30—Morning Worship, Rev. C. L. Patrick
12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

1:15—"Glorifying God in Prayer." Rev. Adam Scott
1:30—"Glorifying God in Our National Association"
1:40—"Glorifying God in Our State Convention"
1:50—"Glorifying God by Caring for the Aged," Superannuation Report, Rev. Walter Reynolds
2:00—"Glorifying God in the Ministry," Ordaining Council Report, Rev. J. C. Lynn
2:10—"Glorifying God Through Christian Literature," Report of Free Will Baptist Press
2:20—"Glorifying God as Free Will Baptists at East Carolina College"
2:30—Business Period
—Memorial Committee Report
3:00—Adjournment

Thursday Morning, November 10

9:30—"Glorifying God in Personal Witnessing," Rev. Walter Sutton
9:45—Business Period
—Reading of Minutes of Previous Day
—Recognition of Visitors
10:00—"Glorifying God Through Our Heri-

Coming Events

November 3, 4—Cape Fear Conference of N. C., Goldsboro Church, Goldsboro
November 4, 5—Florida State Association, Unity Church, Jacksonville, Florida
November 9, 10—Central Conference of N. C., Free Union Church, Greene County
November 15-17—Georgia State Association, Baxley, Georgia

tage," Report of Historian, Hubert Burress
10:10—"Glorifying God Through Discipline," Report of Temperance Committee
10:20—"Glorifying God in Purpose," Report of Resolutions Committee
10:40—"Glorifying God in Missions," Report of Mission Board
11:00—"Glorifying God in Reports," G. Mont Assembly and Church Finance Association
11:15—"Glorifying God in Preparation," Report of Free Will Baptist College
11:30—Morning Worship, Rev. Raymond Gaskins
12:00—Lunch
Afternoon Session
1:15—"Glorifying God in Evangelism," Rev. Robert Norville
1:30—Business Period
—Treasurer's Report
2:30—Adjournment

Revival in Progress at Harrell's Chapel Church

Revival services are now in progress at Harrell's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Snow Hill, North Carolina. Services began Sunday, October 30, and will continue through Saturday, November 5. Services are beginning each evening at 7:45, with the Rev. C. M. Coates as the evangelist.

The pastor, the Rev. C. J. Harris, invites the public to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Rev. Wilbert Everton Conducting Revival at Owen's Chapel Church

The Rev. Wilbert Everton, superintendent of the Children's Home at Midway, North Carolina, is conducting revival services at the Owen's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Elm City, North Carolina. Services began Sunday, October 25, and will continue through Saturday, November 5. Services are beginning each evening at 7:30, with special music featured at each service.

The pastor, the Rev. J. C. Lynn, extends an invitation to the public to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Pleasant Grove Church Announces Fall Revival

The Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Pikeville, North Carolina, announces its fall revival November 6, continuing through November 12, with Rev. Fred A. Rivenbark, pastor of Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30. The musical program will be under the direction of the Rev. R. N. Hinnant.

The pastor, Mr. Hinnant, extends an invitation to the public to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

invitation to all who will attend these services.

C. Lynn Conducts Revival at Darlington, S. C.

The Rev. J. C. Lynn, pastor of the Men's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, City, North Carolina, will conduct the revival at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Darlington, South Carolina, beginning Sunday, November 6, and continue through Saturday, November 12. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The pastor, the Rev. Bobby M. Rogers, requests your prayers for this revival and sends to all an invitation to come and enjoy these services.

Pleasant Hill Church Announces Fall Revival

The Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church near Pikeville, North Carolina, announces its fall revival beginning November 2 and continuing through November 12. Services will begin each evening at 7:30, with the Rev. Willis Wilson of Robersonville, as the evangelist. There will be special music featured in each service.

The church and pastor, the Rev. N. D. Homan, extends a very cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

Guy Owens Conducts Revival at Dildas' Grove Church

The fall revival at Dildas' Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Fountain, North Carolina, will begin November 6, continuing through November 12. The evangelist for the meeting will be the Rev. Guy Owens. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The pastor, the Rev. R. L. Norville, and the church cordially invites the public to attend these services.

Everyone is requested to pray for a great revival and that many decisions for Christ be made during these series of meetings.

Comfort Church Announces Home-Coming Day

The First Free Will Baptist Church, Comfort, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on November 6, with the Rev. Gordon Sebastian of Sea Level, as guest speaker for the day. A picnic lunch will be served on the grounds at the noon hour.

The pastor, the Rev. Randy Cox, extends a very special invitation to all former members and their families to come and enjoy the program that has been prepared for the evening. A real blessing is expected from the services of the day close out the revival that has been in progress for the past two days, with the Rev. Billy Morris of Durham, North Carolina, as the evangelist.

Rev. Earl Glenn to Conduct Peace Revival

The Rev. Earl Glenn, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Wilson, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for revival services at Peace Free Will Baptist Church near Pinetops, North Carolina, Monday, November 7, which will continue through Saturday, November 12. Services will begin each evening at 7:30, and everyone is invited to attend.

Northeast Church Experienced Successful Revival

The Northeast Free Will Baptist Church, Mount Olive, North Carolina, held a successful revival October 12 through October 22, with the Rev. Clarence Bowen, pastor of the Shady Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Dunn, North Carolina, as the evangelist. The church has experienced the greatest revival in its history. During the meeting there were 87 decisions for Christ; 33 being first-time decisions and 54 being rededications. Thirty-five of the new members were baptized on Sunday following the close of the service on Saturday night, and 40 persons joined the church resulting from the services.

The pastor, the Rev. Richard Mabe, states: "The entire church experienced a genuine revival; whole families were converted to Christ and many hearts were made right with God through prayerful confession and rededication."

Fremont Chapel Church to Observe Home-Coming

The Fremont Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Fremont, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on Sunday, November 6, with the Rev. Wilbert Everton, Middlesex, North Carolina, a former pastor, delivering the home-coming message. The day's activities will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., with the morning worship service to follow. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour. There will be special music during the afternoon service.

The pastor, the Rev. W. E. Renfrow, extends a cordial invitation to all former pastors, friends and relatives to attend this service.

Albemarle Conference Convened at Union Chapel Church

The Albemarle Conference of North Carolina Original Free Will Baptists convened at Union Chapel Church, Plymouth, North Carolina, October 6, 1960. The following resolution was adopted:

Be it resolved that the churches of the Albemarle Conference stand against Catholicism and teach against this evil in our churches and auxiliaries.

A rider motion directed that a copy of this action be sent the periodicals of the conference area and to the denomination's weekly, The Free Will Baptist, for publication.

Central Conference Meets at Free Union Church

The Central Conference of North Carolina Free Will Baptists will convene Wednesday, November 9 and 10, at Free Union Free Will Baptist Church located between Snow Hill, North Carolina, and Walstonburg, North Carolina. There is a tall television relay tower very near the church which can be seen several miles away which will serve as a guide for those who do not know the location of the church. There are several paved roads which branch off to the west of Highway 91 between Snow Hill and Walstonburg, which may be used in coming to the conference.

The Free Union Church and pastor, the Rev. C. L. Patrick, extend a very cordial invitation to all persons who are interested in the work of the conference.

Milbournie Church Announces Revival and Home-Coming

The Milbournie Free Will Baptist Church near Wilson, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming on Sunday, November 6. The day's activities will begin with Sunday school, followed with worship service with the Rev. J. B. Ferrell, a former pastor, as the speaker. A picnic lunch will be served on the grounds at the noon hour. After lunch there will be singing by different groups and a wonderful time is expected.

Beginning on Monday, November 7, the Rev. W. O. Lassiter will begin a series of revival services.

The pastor, the Rev. Dewey C. Boling, extends an invitation to the public to come and enjoy these services and pray for their success.

Smith's New Home Church Observed Home-Coming and Revival

The Smith's New Home Free Will Baptist Church, Deep Run, North Carolina, observed its annual home-coming September 25. The pastor, the Rev. R. M. Fader, brought the message at 11:00 a. m.; followed with dinner on the yard at noon.

In the afternoon there was singing from the Gray Branch Choir, Christian Chapel and Whaley's Chapel. Everyone seemed to enjoy the day. Following the home-coming, revival services began that night with the pastor doing the preaching.

There were three additions to the church and one rededicated her life to the church.

There are preaching services at the church every Sunday: on second and fourth Sundays at 11:00 a. m., and on first and third Sunday nights. Anyone would be welcome to come and visit the church anytime.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

Questions What is meant by the statement, "Justified in the spirit," as found in, "And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory" (I Timothy 3:16)?

Answer: There is no question as to who is set forth in the Bible as our judge; that is Christ. The triune God has so arranged. "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead" (Acts 17:31). This is proper and indeed essential to His earthly life, His death, resurrection and final or eternal relation to those for whom He died. He could not fulfill all that His place as the Son of man implies in the Scriptures without being judge and, therefore, justifying all the redeemed. However, if we go to John 5 we will note that here He speaks particularly to Israel and her leaders, viewing them as a nation. The Jews, however, mistakenly viewed Him as coming only to judge and afterward reign immediately upon David's earthly throne and over the kingdom that, led by God, David had once rested from the heathen. To such people He was then indeed the judge. Also, we must remember that He promised judgment.

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" (Matthew 23:37); compare John 12. However, in John 12 we see that a breach between Jesus and the Jews occurred resulting from their misapprehension of His claims and declarations. This led them to a final rejection of Him. To the Jews, He gave true and final revelation concerning Himself as judge but first of all as Saviour. When the Greeks sought Him out, He first revealed Himself as Saviour and then as judge. This is what of necessity He is to every Gentile when He becomes that which He designs in their behalf; and it must be regarded as being in this order if a correct conception is maintained. "And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world" (John 12:47); "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved" (3:16, 17). He must also become judge to all who reject Him when He returns to this earth; then there will be such a time of reckoning as is depicted in many passages throughout the Bible but misunderstood or misinterpreted by Jews over a wide range of history. "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day" (12:48); "He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved" (3:18-20).

Question: In what way have all the families of the earth gained blessing through the seed of Abraham?—E. B. Jones, Texas.

Answer: Both Christ and the Bible that teaches us about Him came to us through the Hebrew nation for which Abraham looked being the ancestor of the nation and, therefore, of the Bible writers and of Christ. "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God" (Romans 3:1, 2); "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ" (Galatians 3:16). Christ first and then the Bible are the greatest blessings to the whole world.

During the coming reign of Christ on earth, of which the Bible alone gives authentic information, this promise of God to Abraham and his seed will be realized in its entirety. Then will the Gentile people seek God, and then through Israel, His chosen people, His blessings will abound to all the families of the world.

CHRISTIANS AWAKE!

"And that, knowing the time, that now is high time to awake out of sleep: now is our salvation nearer than when believed" (Romans 13:11).

The inspired writers of the sacred Scriptures have suggested many considerations excite Christians to activity in the cause of God. Sometimes they referred to the example of Christ, and zealously urged that be copied. At other times they dwelt on the criminality of the spiritual sloth and inaction. Occasionally they alluded to the fact that multitudes, once here on earth we are, are now enjoying the promises of heaven, and exhort us to walk in the footsteps of our predecessors on to certain glory. But in the text, another consideration, different from all these, is presented—and operation should be powerful, now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

It is here assumed that faith in Christ as Saviour and Lord sustains an important relationship to salvation. It introduces us into a saved state, but salvation is partly present, partly future. Salvation in heaven is referred to in our text, and this salvation near when we believed, is nearer now than then. We are every moment approaching death and eternity—death and eternity bring us into complete possession of complete salvation. Therefore, it is high time to awake out of sleep, on account of the nearness of our salvation in heaven.

The term, sleep, is, in the Scriptures, used in a number of different senses. It is often employed literally, as taking of rest or sleep. In a number of passages it denotes death, as when Jesus referred to the death and resurrection of Lazarus. But in the text it signifies a state of apathy and inaction. It is here used figuratively. And why this figurative application of the term? Because, I think, of the resemblance between natural sleep and moral lethargy among professed Christians.

Those who are literally asleep are in a state of unconsciousness and insensibility. They are not affected by what is taking place around them. Danger may hover over

CONGRATULATIONS TO NEW EDITOR

"Please accept my sincere congratulations on your new position as editor of the press, and believe me when I say that I am in complete agreement with you on the stand you have taken regarding our national political crisis. Also, I am in complete agreement with you on your editorial treatment of the controversial issues in our denomination, especially the editorial, Lift Christ Up, which appeared in the October 12 issue. I sincerely believe that if more of our people were better informed in true Free Will Baptist principles and practices, there would

(continued on page ten)

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

THE NARROW, HEAVENLY WAY

Matthew 7:14

- I. IT IS THE WAY OF RIGHTEOUSNESS (2 Peter 2:21)
 1. We were without righteousness of our own (Romans 3:10).
 2. We became the servants of righteousness when saved (Romans 6:18).
 3. We received our righteousness when Christ entered our hearts (1 Corinthians 1:30).
- II. IT IS THE WAY OF TRUTH (Psalm 119:30)
 1. Truth is our protector (Psalm 91:4).
 2. Truth is the foundation of our relationship with society (Ephesians 4:25).
 3. Truth is the basis for our judgment (Psalm 96:13).
- III. IT IS THE WAY OF PEACE (Romans 3:17)
 1. We receive peace from God (Haggai 2:9).
 2. We should always seek peace (Psalm 34:14).
 3. We should live peaceably (Romans 12:18).
- IV. IT IS THE WAY OF UNDERSTANDING (Isaiah 40:14)
 1. We were without understanding before we were saved (Romans 1:31).
 2. We received understanding from the Lord (2 Timothy 2:7).
 3. We are tutored to understanding by the Word (2 Timothy 2:15).

Christian Education

College Student Government Officers Installed

Student government officers for the current year were installed Wednesday, October 6, at Mount Olive College during the installation service. Dean Michael Pelt, acting on behalf of President Raper, conducted the installation service. Speaking to the student body, Dean Pelt commented on the importance derived from active participation in student government. He praised the fine example manifested by the elected representatives of the student body this year and stated that the success of student government is dependent upon good citizenship practiced by all members of the student body. In order to maintain good community life and uphold the reputation of

THE MAIL BOX

(Continued from Page Nine)

be better understanding and sympathy represented on all levels of our denomination, and the great power of Christian love would motivate our actions rather than prejudices and personal interests.

"In connection with our attendance at the National Association at Norfolk, we hope to be able to spend some time in North Carolina, and we plan to make a visit to the press. We especially want our 13-year-old son to see it and meet with the people who are employed there. He is at the age when he is becoming more interested in such things, and we want to encourage it.

"Please remember us in your prayers as you pray for those who are charged with the responsibility of writing in the cause of Christ through our great denomination in its ministry of the printed page."—The Rev. Chester H. Pelt, Marianna, Florida.

SINCERE THANKS

"I sincerely want to thank my friends and relatives through the efforts of the Rev. M. L. Johnson, treasurer of Mount Olive Junior College, for the love and friendship they bestowed upon me in presenting to me a Free Will Baptist Heritage Foundation of Mount Olive Junior College Certificate on October 19, 1960, which places my name on the plaque arranged for such purpose. I had rather have my name on a plaque that helps young men and women to secure a Christian education than to have it written on the walls of the White House of our nation, as much as I am dedicated to the United States."—Rev. J. C. Griffin, Bridgeton, North Carolina.

V. IT IS THE WAY OF HOLINESS (Isaiah 35:8)

1. Our holiness comes from Christ (Hebrews 12:10).
2. Our fruit is produced because of holiness (Romans 6:22).
3. Our service is possible because of holiness (Romans 6:19).

VI. IT IS THE WAY OF ESCAPE (1 Corinthians 10:13)

1. We escape from the great tribulation (Matthew 21:36).
2. We escape from the pollutions of the world (2 Peter 2:20).
3. We escape from hell because we did not neglect (Hebrews 2:3).

VII. IT IS THE WAY OF LIFE (Proverbs 15:24)

1. Life comes from God (Genesis 2:7; Ephesians 2:1).
2. Life's aim is to glorify God (1 Corinthians 6:20).
3. Life is eternal (John 5:24).

Oh, Lord, If It Is Not Too Late

Years ago a unique character was converted in the Water Street Mission, New York—"The Old Colonel." Through drink, he had sunken low. At the time of his conversion, he was 60 years old. He looked to be 100. He looked more animal-like than human. He was clothed in rags. The overcoat he wore was fastened with a nail. He was a caricature of the man he had been—a college graduate and a brilliant law student in the office of E. M. Stanton, Lincoln's Secretary of War. On the night of his conversion, he cried, "Oh, Lord, if it is not too late, forgive and save this poor old sinner!" God heard the cry of his heart. He was gloriously saved. God vouchsafed His promise to him: "And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten" (Joel 2:25). God restored his intellect. That which had been his greatest love and had almost ruined his life—strong drink—became his greatest hate. He became an honored and beloved Christian gentleman!—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

MINISTER IN VETERANS HOSPITAL

"This is to let my Christian friends know that I am in the Veterans Hospital at Fayetteville, North Carolina, for treatment and I desire your prayers. I would like much to hear from you."—Rev. B. F. J. Gold Sr., Ward 3-C, Room 373, Veterans Hospital, Fayetteville, North Carolina.

THANKS FOR EVERYTHING

"I would like to thank each person who has remembered me in any way during my illness. I have had so many flowers which I have enjoyed so much, and so many cards that have meant so much to me; but of all I would like to thank you for your prayers.

"I must wear this cast on my knee for three more weeks. Then the doctor says he will put one on that is no longer as this one. I do not know when I can walk again without crutches.

"I would like to say again, 'Thank you from the bottom of my heart, and God bless you is my prayer.' Please continue to pray for me that God will use and heal me if it be His will. Thank everyone."—Mrs. T. E. Tyndall, Route 1, Snow Hill, North Carolina.

CORRECTION IN PRICE CHANGE

We would like to correct an error that has been in the recent issues of The Free Will Baptist concerning the price change of our Sunday school publications. Only the Sunday school publications have been increased $.01. The League publications will remain at the current price. This change came effective on October 15, 1960.

NOT STRONG ENOUGH

(Editor's Note: In our effort to be fair and all concerned, we are printing the quotation below which is a part of a recent letter. It is pertaining to the second part of Ruth Timby's article which appeared in the October 5 issue of "The Free Will Baptist." The matter in question is the Knights of Columbus' oath under which we placed an editorial note stating that the Roman Catholics say that the oath is binding. The writer of the letter feels that the editorial note was not strong enough.)

"... I checked for myself and found that the words of Mrs. Timby were completely out of context.

"Enclosed find a photostatic (the faxed) copy of the February 15, 1913, Congressional Record. (It was thermofaxed my son from the Congressional Record file in the North Carolina State College Library.)

"You will note, from this photostatic copy, that the words Mrs. Timby quoted were there all right, but they were referred to as a malicious untruth. Pennsylvania congressman circulated defeating a Catholic for office. The congressman further protested the seating of a congressman who had circulated such untruths. Mrs. Timby completely quoted out of context. . . ."—Mr. James B. I. Route 1, Lucama, North Carolina.

By J. C. Griffin

PART OF GOD'S LAW

d, through the holy prophets and es, and by Christ Himself while here rth, has given to us laws and Scrip-regulations. In these regulations, He mphasized the danger of passing judg-on others, who are our brethren. It rs that in the church of Corinth, sity had gotten control of some of the s over preachers and, therefore, onc n was judging another until the posi-d had been reached that they were going v in order to settle their differences. s church there were some clammering eter, some for Apollos and some for

Because of this Paul said, "And I en could not speak unto you as unto al, but as unto carnal, even unto in Christ" (1 Corinthians 3:1).

ey were sorely judging each other, not- anding that Jesus had said while on "Judge not, that ye be not judged" (Matthew 7:1). Regardless of their faith (lled), they had the spirit of judging ondemnation to all that opposed their ng. That spirit had gone through the h and Paul condemned such a destruc- spirit in the church. No doubt there those who were going to the common o get their selfish desires, or perhaps had already filed suit; so Paul, being ostle who loved Christ and the church than anything on earth, even his own said, "Dare any of you, having a mat- ainist another, go to law before the un- and not before the saints? Do ye not that the saints shall judge the world? f the world shall be judged by you, unworthy to judge the smallest mat-

Know ye not that we shall judge? how much more things that pertain s life? If then ye have judgments of pertaining to this life, set them to who are least esteemed in the church. k to your shame. Is it so, that there a wise man among you? no, not one shall be able to judge between his en and that before the unbelievers. v- therefore there is utterly a fault among ecause ye go to law one with another. do ye not rather take wrong? Why not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded? Nay, ye do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren" (1 Corinthians 6:1-8).

If the above admonition is true, if the apostle, Paul, was an apostle who was inspired by the Holy Ghost to write, then it is a sin to go to law with a brother. Paul says that it is wrong. Two wrongs never make a right even though there were two wrongs. Some times we poor human beings get it in our mind that something is wrong, when there is no wrong. I have been having to do with right and wrong in the church for more than fifty years, and I know facts, frauds and rumors that ought to be settled before the world. Paul condemns it. I am writing out of my heart. I do not claim to be perfect, but I have claimed to and do claim to be a child of God and let any man dispute it and I will not sue him at law but I will meet him at the judgment bar of God.

I have not written this to be heard of men, or for the notions of any man. If you agree with me, I praise the Lord; if you want to curse me and try to defame me, I will never be guilty of trying to hurt you, but I will pray for you and if you will come to my home, I will treat you as nicely as a poor Free Will Baptist can treat another person.

A CALL TO PRAYER

I take a magazine published by an ex-Catholic priest, a man who was converted by listening to a radio message given by Dr. William Ward Ayer, and is now a minister of the gospel and publisher of a magazine called the Convert. I have had this man in my pulpit and also in my home. He is a very intelligent man and has a great testimony for his Lord. I have been a subscriber to his magazine for several years, and have received much valuable information from the pages of this periodical. This man is none other than Dr. Joseph Zacchello, D. D. Dr. Zacchello says in the October issue of his magazine or makes a call as follows:

A Call for Prayer Before the Election

"The Convert, a non-partisan educational magazine, does not endorse or oppose political candidates. We are taking the privilege of reprinting in this, items and articles regarding a Roman Catholic for president, because as the Wall Street Journal, July 30, 1959, said: 'It is not the individual Catholic candidate that so many Americans fear, but the church to which he belongs.' Our opposition therefore is not to Senator Kennedy, but to his church, which is not willing to change its policy in regard to church-state separation.

"In a July issue of The New York Times, Glen L. Archer, executive director of Poau declared: 'If the Roman Catholic would come out in pronouncement and in practice, for equality of creeds before the law against tying church and state together, against federal aid to parochial schools, then they would sweep away much of the anxiety over electing a man like John Kennedy to the White House. "We are not concerned primarily with Kennedy," he added, "but with the desires of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to carve out a special place for that church in American society."—Convert.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE

Thank God we, as citizens in lawful and good standing, are free to go to the polls as free men and can vote for our choice. But I can join in with Dr. Zacchello and say, "We all ought to pray before we go to the polls, not only before we go to the polls to vote, but that we should pray before any great undertakings." Christ did. He prayed before any event, and taught us to pray as He prayed.

We should pray as the man of old who said; "Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud: and he shall hear my voice" (Psalm 55:17). So we should pray and ask God to direct us in voting as much as we would cry for bread if we were hungry. It is written, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD" (Psalm 33:12). Thus the man who sits in the White House as our president should be a born again, spirit-filled, dedicated, child of God, with a heart filled with holy love for all people, one that believes in the atonement in the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, and one that will put God and the Lord Jesus Christ ahead of creeds, isms and cisms. Amen.

Does Practice Make Perfect?

While driving through Mississippi, a man stopped at a farmhouse for the night. At supper the hostess brought a plate of hot biscuits to the table. But what biscuits they were! Not the light fluffy kind you delight to eat, but—College boys would have called them "sinkers." Nevertheless the man managed to pay the highest compliment to the cook by eating them. Highly pleased by this, the woman remarked with a hint of pride, "I've been cooking' f'r forty years."

That very night the man was inspired to revise the old proverb, "Practice makes perfect." Even after that he said, "Intelligent practice makes perfect." And to practice intelligently one must have an ideal. All true progress requires a perfect ideal. In Christ, God's gift, we have our ideal man—our helper.

"Let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God" (2 Corinthians 7:1).—Selected.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

LITTLE BLACK LAMB

by Velma B. McConnell

AMANDA BROWN was a little Negro girl who had lived all her life in the South. When her father died, Amanda and her mother moved up North to live with Grandmother Gray.

Amanda's mother was not a fat, jolly mammy with a red kerchief around her head, as you see in picture books. No indeed. She was a pretty, tired-looking young woman with a sad smile. She found work in a factory, and Amanda stayed all day with Grandmother Gray.

Although Grandmother Gray was kind to Amanda, the little girl found it very strange in the North. She had always lived where there were many little Negro children with whom she could play. Now she found more white children than black ones, and she felt too shy to run and play.

One morning Grandmother Gray said crossly, "Mandy Brown, I am too busy this morning to have you moping under my feet. You just go down to the public park and play! Don't be so skeered, child, nobody's a-goin' to bite you! Pretty soon you have to start to school. Then what are you going to do? Hide in a corner and cry? Here is a sandwich and an apple for your lunch; so just ske-daddle, now!"

Amanda did not want to go. But she did not dare disobey Grandmother Gray. She took the sandwich and apple and started toward the park. She walked so slowly that her starched pink dress did not swing at all, her pink-ribboned pigtails did not even bob.

Soon she reached the park. She walked over to the swings where boys and girls were swinging and shouting. There was one empty swing, but Amanda did not take it. She watched the boys and girls see-saw, but she did not join them. Amanda walked around the park.

Presently, she saw another group of children. They were clustered around a pretty young woman seated on a green bench, holding a tiny book in her hand. The children looked so interested that Amanda came a little closer.

She saw the young lady open the book, and heard her say, "Do you see this page, boys and girls? What color is it?"

The children shouted, "Black!"

"Yes," nodded the lady. "And this black color means something, too. It shows us the color of naughtiness—sin. And it is the color of our hearts, too, before Jesus cleanses them."

Amanda stood still, horrified. Was her heart black, like that? She had hoped that her heart would be white. Were the hearts of the other children black, too? Oh, no, that could not be. For most of them even had white hands and faces!

Suddenly Amanda saw a little girl leave the group and dart toward her. She stared in delighted surprise. Here was the first little Negro girl Amanda had seen since coming to town. This little girl wore a blue starched dress, and her braids were tied with blue ribbons. She stopped in front of Amanda.

"Come on over with us," she whispered; "Miss Anne is telling us stories again!"

Amanda hung back a little. "Is—is it all right if I listen, too?" she asked.

"Sure, it's all right! Why shouldn't it be?" Impatiently the little girl tugged at Amanda's hand. "Hurry up or we'll miss the story!"

Amanda stood close to the young lady now. She smiled at Amanda, and went on with her story.

"Now watch me turn the page. This page is bright red, isn't it? This red stands for something else—something very wonderful. It stands for the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Amanda stood wide-eyed as Miss Anne told the old story of how Jesus died to save from sin, and how His blood can cleanse a black, sinful heart and make it white as snow. She could scarcely believe what she heard.

When the lady asked for hands to show how many wanted Jesus to cleanse their hearts, Amanda felt too shy to raise her hand. But later, as she was skipping home, holding tight to the hand of her new friend, she asked eagerly, "Ruby, does you really and truly believe that Jesus can make my heart spic-and-span clean, like Miss Anne said?"

"Why sure, I believe it, 'Manda," replied Ruby, stopping so suddenly that Amanda nearly tripped. "I believe it 'cause He made my heart white and clean. And oh, 'Manda, you don't know how fine and happy it makes you feel! You sure have to come to Jesus, too!"

"I guess so, if yo-all says so. Ruby," answered Amanda thoughtfully. "I sure don't want my heart white, too, and I wants to to that heavenly city that shines all gold like, that Miss Anne showed in her Welfareless Book. And my mother, too, I wants her to feel happy. Miss Anne says that Jesus wipes tears away and makes people forget they troubles."

She reached Grandmother Gray's cott. "Oh, Ruby," and Amanda clapped her hands, "I is so glad I came up North to live, and I is so glad I found you and Miss Anne, too. Will yo'-all take me with you next time to hear Miss Anne tell me 'bout Jesus?"—Gospel Herald.

Insignificant Work

Big men do big things, but how many big things are big failures? The big ship that every was built was no profit to anybody until it was sold and broken up for old junk. Many a little ship during the same time had made good voyages, brought profit to its owner. A man writes a big book; he is a great man, but few people ever read his book, yet it is large and bulky, and perpetuates the man's fame through generations. Another man writes a little letter, a pamphlet, an epistle, which can be read in an hour, carried in the pocket, copied in a little while, sent through the mails, or printed on a few pages, and that little pamphlet is translated into hundreds of languages, scattered by millions every quarter of the globe.

Paul, chained to a soldier in his house at Rome, wrote no big books. A dozen pages would contain the largest treatise he ever wrote, and yet the thought there embodied, and the truths there declared, live through all ages, and go to the ends of the earth. A seed is a little thing, but in it there is the promise of waving harvests through all the years to come. A granite monument is a great thing, but it has no advancement, no progress, no growth.

Let the man who does little things glorify in God, who can make little things great and accomplish his own purpose of goodness and goodness.—Christian.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Convention North Carolina Woman's Auxiliaries

...ics, we have enjoyed our fall conven-
... We have been challenged by various
... ers to peacefully work together as we
... a greater vision of service for our
... May we let our lights shine for Him
... remember the various phases of our

... the chairman of the Children's Home
... could say: "Remember your contribu-
... for the remodeling of the kitchen.
... work has been completed, but there is ... money needed to pay these bills."

... the chairman of missions we would
... 'Let's not forget our obligations to
... our state and national projects. As
... now, the state project is a washer and
... for Mrs. Lee Whaley in Alaska.
... national project is medical equipment
... r. La Verne Miley for his work in
... "

... would like to congratulate the auxiliaries
... state for the fine work you have done
... throughout the year. Let's continue to work
... the up-building of God's Kingdom here
... with, and may God bless you in all your
... takings in your auxiliaries.

Alice Barrow

Juniper Auxiliary Visits Children's Home

... group of twenty-four from Juniper
... l Free Will Baptist Church, Vance-
... North Carolina, visited the Chil-
... Home at Middlesex, North Carolina,
... y, October 16, and carried a gift from
... oman's auxiliary. We arrived in time
... unday school and enjoyed the lesson
... much; also the morning message by
... ev. C. H. Overman. Everyone was so
... o us that we felt right at home.

... had lunch with the children, to-
... with other visitors. It was a real
... ian fellowship all day. We praise the
... for a home like this and for leaders
... as we have there. May God bless
... ne of them, and may we as Free Will
... ts stand behind them. After such a
... rful lunch and the sweet fellowship,
... nted to show to them that we were thankful, so we took a love offering which amounted to $28.00. The trip was worth much more than that to each of us.

We encourage more of our people to visit our Children's Home. I think we can appreciate it more if we see what is being done and see how our money is being spent. Let us stand behind the home with our support and prayers.

Mrs. G. F. McGowan

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF TIMOTHY Chapter Four

Mrs. T. E. Tyndall

As we have studied before, Paul wrote these letters or epistles to Timothy giving him directions for the pastoral care of the church, treating on questions of church doctrine, practice and government. In this chapter, he foretells that in the latter times there shall be a departure from the faith, and how to live a Godly life in spite of all adversities.

Godliness is essential, but some think it excellent for attaining a peaceful death and evidence shows we (as a people) are not convinced it is necessary to a happy life.
The unchristian think of it as good for the weak, the poor, and the sentimental. They fail to see the need for it in the lives of busy, capable, energetic, practical people of the world. Let us not forget that Godliness is the most practical of all things. It lays hold of a person's life, purifies the body, illuminates and sanctifies his intellect. It penetrates every phase of his life, business, amusement, social and private. We can and must prove to all the world that God-liness is a reality that enhances the brightness of all that is really beautiful in life, and it raises to a power all natural gifts and abilities.

Paul begins this chapter with a prophecy denouncing those with so little faith. You will notice he said, "Some will depart from the faith." Indeed there were some in Paul and Timothy's day just as there are some in our day.

This first verse is very closely related to the next six verses. Timothy, as a good minister of Jesus, must keep his people informed of the things they must and must not do.

There were a lot of different things preached and practiced in those days, just as there are today, but Paul tells Timothy to warn them of these evils.

Concerning the eating of meat, some still believed it to be wrong according to old Mosaic laws; but God gives us all things, and He is the Creator and all His creations are good for man to use if he uses them thankfully. We should remember to be thankful for God's goodness to us.

Paul reminded Timothy that if he preached these things and kept the flock nourished with the doctrines of faith, he would be a good minister of the Lord. He also warned him to not listen to words of idle gossip
but rather keep informed in Godliness.

He further says that bodily exercise is all right, but with our minds we should study God's Word and will for in them we have hope and promise of eternal life.

Sometimes there are crosses to bear for those who help carry the burden for Jesus.

Regardless of our age, wealth or position in life the Christian must uphold the characteristics of a true follower of Christ.

Just as Paul told Timothy, we too must always study and teach Christ's doctrines.

Our talents must be used and the doctrines upheld.

Paul tells Timothy to study, pray and think on all these things and be careful of what you preach and teach. The same thing applies to us today for in teaching Jesus we save ourselves and those to whom we teach.

●
"But the fearful and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolators, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone:
which is the second death" (Revelation 21:
8).

AUXILIARY PINS

Please order your auxiliary pins
direct from The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. The prices are: 10 K Gold, $5.25; Gold
Plated, $2.00.

When ordering life awards pins,
order direct from Mrs. H. L. Spi-
vey, Maury, North Carolina. There is no charge for these when you
send to the state treasurer, Mrs.
Raymond T. Sasser, $25.00 for the designated state project which this year is the Children's Home.

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Riehlard Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Riehlard Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Alaskan Newsletter

October, 1960

Dear Friends,

Since our last newsletter the faithfulness of the Lord has been wonderfully manifested in our behalf, and we greatly rejoice as we personally testify of the reality of the great commission covenant when our Lord said, "Go . . . and, lo, I am with you alway, . . ." (Matthew 28:19, 20).

Our visit to the southern 48 states, and the uniting of the family back together, after Vernon's stay in Florida, was most uplifting. During our ten-weeks' vacation, we participated in at least forty-five missionary services and attended the National Association which convened at Fresno, California. The brief fellowship in these services blessed our lives spiritually and the release from our many duties here helped us physically. We arrived back in Anchorage the last week in July with new courage to face the continued challenges of this cold, dark, sinful field.

The second week in August we conducted a most successful vacation Bible school with an enrollment of approximately ninety-five persons. There were several decisions for Christ and we were led into many wonderful contacts which enables us to do a continued work of witnessing in these homes. Also, we have just closed a six-day revival with Don White, a former missionary to Alaska, doing the preaching. There were twelve confessions of faith in Christ and a number of rededications. The Lord is honoring His Word, your prayers, and our efforts as we labor together. We are rapidly outgrowing our present facilities and there is already a demand for the attached living quarters to be turned into church use exclusively.

God has uniquely answered prayers in sending forth laborers to join the missionary endeavor here. We were most encouraged at the good leadership manifested through God's faithful servants, the Rev. and Mrs. Bob Breeden, who supplied the church in our absence. They continue to add much to the strength of the efforts as we labor together, and Brother Breeden is officially serving as assistant pastor of the church, being stationed here as a captain in the United States Army. Also, Miss Mildred Hall, a former student of the Free Will Baptist Bible College who has dedicated her life to the service of the Lord, returned with us and is now doing a wonderful job directing the youth of our church. She assists in the other mission work too. She lives with us and has obtained part-time employment as a means of support.

We have another dear lady, Mrs. Lorraine Snyder, who feels a definite call to immediately begin a mission for the natives. She is making contacts and we are laying plans to help her advance as God opens the doors. Mrs. Snyder is a Free Will Baptist from Missouri whose husband is a sergeant in the army here.

As many of you know, the Rev. and Mrs. Kirby Joe Godwin have been approved to come to Alaska under the National Home Mission Board. May God hasten the arrival of this couple that we may expand and enter more of the open doors that are waiting for our message.

Recently, we took a survey trip to Fairbanks, stopping off at other various points. Fairbanks is a town of 50,000 in population. There are far too few evangelical witnesses to meet the needs there and even unsaved people told us how representatives in our field of work are needed. Living expenses are at least 10% higher there than they are in Anchorage, but we believe that the Lord would have us to meet this challenge. Plans are underway for such an undertaking.

We have a fifteen-minute weekly broadcast here which is heard as far as 300 miles out into the interior of Alaska. There is a good possibility of getting on the station in Nome and in Fairbanks if the funds were available. This would enable us to preach the gospel over half of the entire state, into villages where the soles of our shoes would never be able to tread. Join us in prayer that this ministry might be made possible.

As we view these marvelous workings of the Lord, the open doors and the supply of help, there comes a challenge to all of us to stand behind the cause in a more systematic way of prayer and support than ever before. God has confirmed His will in the undertakings in many infallible ways. Can He depend upon us as stewards of the gospel to do our part?

The family is well and the boys are in school. The doctor's report on the condition of Vernon's eyes is satisfactory present. Please pray that he may regain physical health to combat these attacks have been so frequent since our coming to Alaska. Also, for the family as a whole we may remain in good health.

Representing Christ in Alaska
Lee, Ethel and Boys

Appeal from Hawaii

P. O. Box 120
Waipahu, Hawaii
October 19, 1960

Dear Editor,

I am writing this same letter to all of the denomination periodicals in the hope that each of you will join with us in this effort to raise some much needed funds for Free Will Baptist work in Hawaii.

I believe God gave me this plan and it has been cleared through our National Home Mission Office in Nashville, Tennessee. December 7 will mark the beginning of the twentieth year of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Your missionary happened to be at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack and he can testify to the chaos, and great loss sustained by the United States as a result of this attack. I am here with my family on a different assignment, under a different Commanding Chief, and we are engaged in an even greater warfare. The spiritual destruction of the past nineteen years in these Islands can be described on paper; however, from pictorial brochures recently published of work here in the Islands you can see the extent of the needs. (You may obtain copies of these brochures from the National Home Mission Office in Nashville, Tennessee.)

Within a few months after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, we were able to turn defeat into victory because young men rushed to the recruiting office to volunteer. Moms and Dads did without things and worked hard at home and in factories in order for us to have the material to win the war, and the rally slogan "Remember Pearl Harbor!" was heard throughout the free world. Now, let us try to rekindle some of that fervor for the glory of the Lord.

As you have been previously informed, the cost of land is unreasonably high on the Island of Oahu. The average is about $100 per square foot, and since there are 43,560 square feet in an acre, you can imagine how we feel. I guess I feel somewhat like a boy who was given a long grocery list and sent to the store without any money to pay for the groceries.

If each person who reads this letter
(Continued on page fifteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

God in My Life

(Lesson for November 13)

Psalm 116:1-14.

Text: Psalm 116:1.

INTRODUCTION

Psalm 116, is a testimony to God's love. Six Psalms, 113-118, comprise the group known as psalms of praise. They are believed that they were associated with worship and that they were chanted in the temple the first of each month, when the Passover lambs were slain.

The title of this lesson, unless understood, creates a misconception of the true meaning of God in one's life. Most anyone you meet will tell you that they believe in God, or even that they believe in Christ. It is a different matter, however, simply believing that there is a God and in actually knowing Him personally. Yet, this is the secret of knowing God's presence. Upon receiving Christ, the individual is receiving God. Thus, the Christian who has personally surrendered to God never faces the problem of life alone. A Christian never walks alone, for God walks with those who daily trust in Him. The world is not long in recognizing the one who has God in his life, for there is a difference.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

This Psalm forms part of the Jewish Hallel, which is composed of Psalms 113-118. These were hymns of praise. The Hebrew word, Hallel, comes from the Greek word, hallelujah. The Psalms that constitute the Hallel were sung at the three great festivals of the Jewish people—the Passover, Pentecost, and the Feast of Tabernacles.

One or more of these Psalms were always sung by our Lord and His disciples before they left the upper room, on the way to the Garden of Gethsemane.

We believe that you will get a great deal more out of today's lesson if you read these Psalms that constitute the Hallel. Even though only the first fourteen verses of Psalm 116 are printed in the quarterly, all these Psalms form a background for the lesson.

The authorship of Psalm 116 is not definitely known. Some scholars believe that David wrote it and that it came out of some moving personal experience in his life. Others believe that Hezekiah wrote it. We are inclined to agree with this latter group. It is likely that this experience of the psalmist with God is the experience of Hezekiah when he was critically ill. God sent the prophet to warn him that he had to die; then the king turned his face to the wall and prayed. God heard that prayer and spared the king's life for fifteen more years (Isaiah 38).

4. Whether you believe that Hezekiah, David or someone else wrote this Psalm, be sure to note the intensely personal experience of the psalmist with God.

5. The cup was often used as a figure of speech by the Jews. Examples are: The cup of adversity (Psalm 116:6); the cup of trembling (Isaiah 51:17); the cup of suffering (Matthew 20:22).

6. How important it is for the Christian to recognize that we are nothing, but that God is everything. We must take from Him before we can render effective service. The unsaved person cannot render acceptable service because he has not taken the cup of salvation. We can give only after we have taken.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. "The many afflictions of the psalmist had agitated his soul and shaken his confidence in God. He had been bound by the cords of death. He had felt the painful straightening of the tomb. Trouble and sorrow were the discovery of his search for good. His enemies had overmatched and exhausted him. In the midst of his affliction, miraculous help had been vouchsafed. The Lord saved him, and now he returns to the rest of the joyous confidence in God which stills forever the tumult of his soul. . . . Peace follows pardon. Purity precedes refreshment. And the soul pardoned and refreshed with its love fixed on God, its faith reposing on God, its will governed by God, and its work directed by God, it realizes the promise to the full: 'I will give you rest.'"—The Standard Commentary.

2. To be thankful and appreciative is a virtue indeed, and there are many ways provided to repay our fellow man for his services to us. How shall he repay God for His blessings? This was the problem of the psalmist, a problem which he faced as soon as the blessing of health had been restored to him. It had been the problem of all those who have been brought face to face with the mercy and bounty of God. In "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," a hymn by Isaac Watts which is familiar to all of us, this age-old question is answered:

"Were the whole realm of nature of mine,
That were a present far too small:
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all."

3. Hudson Taylor once wrote to a friend about a verse in the Gospel of Mark which he was reading in his New Testament in the original Greek. In the English New Testament he read the words, "Have faith in God," but in the original Greek Taylor read it: "Hold to the faithfulness of God." The discovery, he said, lit up many dark places in his thinking, and lifted him up.

Man's faith in God might perchance grow dim, but God's faithfulness is forever the same.

4. James Moffatt tells of two friends whom he helped at a certain time in his life and they obtained considerable positions from it, but they became less friendly with him. This is a fact of life many of you know. This is how we treat God. We pray for what we want, and get it, but we never come back to thank Him. It is a sign of a shallow nature, a narrow soul. No great mind is ever ungrateful. Genuine Christianity always has a vital throb of thankfulness and praise for God's blessings.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

If time permits, review briefly Luke 17:11-17.

MISSIONS

(continued from page fourteen)

try to buy one square foot of property ($3.00) and try to enlist individuals and groups in your church to buy some, I believe God would give us the victory. If a program could be arranged in your church during the week of December 7 using for the theme, "Remember Pearl Harbor," I am sure God would honor the program by having people to respond. You can use the pictorial brochures as a basis for your program, and at the end of the program an offering and pledges may be received to buy property. Encourage and challenge everyone present to buy at least one square foot. I will be happy to give you any additional information if you will write to me. Send all offerings to "Remember Pearl Harbor" Fund, 3801 Richland Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee.

For Christ in Hawaii,
Luther Sanders

MISSIONARIES ON THE FIELD

Alaska

Rev. Lee Whaley
Mrs. Ethel Whaley
Rev. Kirby Joe Godwin
Mrs. Elizabeth Godwin

Canada—New England

Rev. Mack C. Owens
Mrs. Jackie Owens
Rev. Mark Vandivort
Mrs. Louise Vandivort

Washington, D. C.

Rev. Kenneth Walker
Mrs. Lou Walker

Miami, Florida

Spanish

Rev. Melitino Martinez
Mrs. Sidelila Martinez
Miss Bessie Yeley
Miss Molly Barker

Denver, Colorado

Rev. Roy Thomas
Mrs. Pat Thomas

Monterrey, Mexico

Rev. Arthur Billows
Mrs. Jenell Billows

Northwest Pacific

Rev. J. J. Postlewaite
Mrs. Leah Postlewaite

Waipahu, Hawaii

Rev. Luther Sanders
Mrs. Helen Sanders

NOVEMBER IS

National Home Missions Month

SUNDAY, NOV. 20 IS NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS SUNDAY

PLAN A SPECIAL SERVICE IN YOUR CHURCH
NOW!

THANKSGIVING OFFERINGS WILL BE RECEIVED
FOR NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS
Throughout Our Denomination

Write for Free Literature and Offering Envelopes

NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS DEPT

FREE WILL BAPTISTS

HOMER E. WILLIS, General Director
3801 Richland Avenue Nashville 5, Tennessee

DS

the Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1960

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

NOV 9 1960

DURHAM, N. C.

Northeast Free Will Baptist Church

Mount Olive
North Carolina

The Northeast Church has experienced a year of growth. In 1960, the church voted to go from half time to full-time services. Since that time, the church has been wonderfully blessed by God.

The sanctuary has been completely remodeled, and plans are being made to build a parsonage during this year. The church has also experienced an increase in membership.

The Rev. Richard V. Mabe is pastor of the Northeast Church, and states that he is expecting great things from the Lord in the future of the church.

Children Challenge the Church

by Rev. Wilbert Everton, Superintendent
Free Will Baptist Children's Home
Middlesex, North Carolina

HE Lord has been wonderful to us here at the Children's Home again year. We have been able to operate out any indebtedness for another twelve months. We are constantly reminded of His goodness to us. We praise the holy name of Jesus Christ for His marvelous blessings upon us in this past year.

When we praise the name of the Lord and His many blessings, we realize that He has used human instruments, with which He does this work. We are grateful to every person who has been willing to be used of God in this way. Thank you so very much for every contribution you have made. Through your obedience, God has worked to supply the needs of the helpless boys and girls of our home. The superintendent of the Children's Home will never cease to appreciate all of the good people of this state for the wonderful way you have responded to our every call. I know of no way to express my appreciation than just to say, "I merely thank you." I promise to use the money that you give as wisely as I possibly

There are many needs pressing themselves upon us each day. There is always the need for the operating expenses which include heating, food, electricity, fuel and general upkeep. We keenly feel the need of a walk-in freezer, in which we could store vegetables and meats. An adequate freezer would cost approximately $5,000.00. There has been a time when there were 108 children in our home. Our maximum operating number now is 80; therefore, I see the need for expansion. Members of the Children's Home Board and I feel that we should have at least two new buildings. These would cost about $30,000.00 each. Truly every Christian feels his responsibility toward the homeless or neglected children. There are so many children today who are victims of broken homes. These children desperately need the help and guidance of someone who cares. I feel that even though such children have both parents living, they are still the responsibility of Christians. The rising tide of broken homes presents a great need. I feel that a child who has been deserted by his parents needs our help as much as the orphan child; therefore, I say to you, "The need is very great."

The representative work for the Children's Home this year has led me from the mountains to the coast. The law of truth forces me to say that I have never seen such a bountiful harvest in all my life. Throughout the state, the hand of God's wonderful grace has been extended. He has smiled upon us and has been especially good to us. I feel confident that you have already realized the great blessing of God in your own life. I also feel that you have a desire to express your gratitude to God in a special way this year.

For many years, November has been designated as Children's Home Month in North Carolina. In the past, there has been a special effort put forth during November in behalf of the work of the Children's Home. I challenge you, "Let's do more this year." Some may say, "What right do you have to challenge?" In the prophecy of Ezekiel, the duty of the watchman was to warn the people of impending danger. You have given me the job as the watchman here at our Children's Home; therefore, I challenge you to let's meet the needs of the homeless and deserted child. There is no greater reward for our labor than the smiling faces, and twinkling eyes, and the sound of laughter from our seventy-three boys and girls here at the home. Equally as true, there is no greater challenge than the call of a helpless child. The sobbing cry of the helpless child is challenging you to help. Truly, children do challenge the church today. Listen to them, hear their message and heed their call.

Try with me to picture the needy children of our state as they call to us. Look at the little boy whose hair looks like it hasn't been combed in a week as he runs to and fro in the community. Look at the lonely, empty expression on his face. He has no one to love him or care for him. Observe the ragged, dirty clothes with which the little frail body is clad. Hear him as he cries with the stomach ache and no one to hear his cry. Listen to the language he uses. Why? Because he hasn't had anyone to teach him. These words present a pathetic picture, but let's go with this child a little further down the highway of life. Watch him grow up. Somewhere in his early twenties he became involved in some kind of crime. He was tried, convicted, and sentenced to several years in the penitentiary. He served the term, and came out of prison hardened and embittered. He died and in hell he lifted up his eyes in torment.

To be sure, this is an imaginary picture; however, this very thing is happening every day. Therefore, I beg you to listen to the challenging cry of the helpless boys and girls around us. Look at their empty faces, and their ill-clad bodies. Hear their cries, "Help me! help me!" Forget for a moment the physical needs. Watch these neglected children as they travel to the end of the pathway. They will lay down the tools of life and awaken in the presence of the Supreme Judge to hear the sentence "Depart from me, I never knew you." In hell their challenging cry will ascend forever and ever. In a very real sense, the children challenge the church today. I pray that you will join with me and let's make our contribution this November the biggest ever. Please do all that you can for the homeless children of your state.

There will be a Thanksgiving Day program presented at the Children's Home again this year. We plan for the program to begin at 10:30 on Thanksgiving Day. We give you a very special invitation to be with us this year. Come, bring a picnic lunch, and let's join together as we praise God for His goodness to us.

God loves every one of us. Even that boy or that girl who is so disrespectful, who dishonors His holy name, who makes fun at religion—God's love for the world includes a love for him, for her, yes, for all men.—Selected.

What God Can Do

AT a meeting in a hay mow in Dublin which Dwight L. Moody attended in the year 1872, Henry Varley said in a quiet way, "The world has yet to see what God can do with and for and through and in a man who is wholly consecrated to Him." The next Sunday, Mr. Moody, sitting high up in Spurgeon's Tabernacle in the same seat he had occupied in 1867, as he thrilled to the preaching of Spurgeon, heard those words of Varley over and over. He said to himself, "The world has yet to see! With and for and through, and in a man! Varley meant any man. Varley didn't say he had to be educated, or brilliant, or anything else—just a man. Well, by the Holy Spirit in me, I'll be one of those men." In his joy, he began to weep. Sympathetic Christians who went to talk with him, thinking that he was under great conviction, learned that it was not a case of sin or repentance, but great joy: the joy of dedication to a high purpose.

Still the world has yet to see what God can do with a man who is wholly consecrated to His will. It saw once in the divine man, Christ Jesus; but only imperfectly in any other man. Among those who have demonstrated what a man who is consecrated to the will of God can do with the limitations of human nature, Moody stands high in the list.

In my Christian experience so far, I have found that the Christian life cannot be maintained without consecration. The great wonder of wonders that continues to speak to the world of God's greatness is the marvelous manifestations of His grace and love with, through, in and for the will of God.

THE TESTIMONY OF A YIELDED LIFE TELLS WHAT GOD CAN DO

Using this statement as a basis for our thoughts, let's explore this ability of God's power, and examine our lives, our incentives, our aspirations, and our past and present Christian experience; and its future possibilities.

What God can do with us for His glory. We must recognize, first of all, that consecration is an act whereby we dedicate ourselves to the service and worship of God, thereby glorifying Him. To dedicate, or consecrate one's self (the terms are synonymous), entails the plumbing of one's depths, or inner self. Consecration leads us to higher and more noble plane of Chris-

THE TESTIMONY OF A YIELDED LIFE

by GEORGE H. BERCAW
Student Mount Olive Junior College

tian experience. The unconsecrated Christian has religious concepts of right, righteousness, and of moral and spiritual discipline; but his unconsecrated attitudes and conceptions are inferior motives, or incentives, for the truly Christian life. Such standards or right are not truly ours. When we with courage and persistence challenge this fundamental question of right, and our standards of Christian living and service, we are confronted, and sometimes affronted, by the possibility of not only inferior incentives, but of inferior, and maybe even a nonexistent experience with God. As Dr. Earl A. Loomis Jr. points out, ". . . since one of the basic doctrines of Judaeo-Christian heritage is that we are made in God's image, the denial of our identity—seeing less than the full image of ourselves—is thus to see less than we can of God."

The writer of Chronicles reminds us of our obligation to God in this respect when he exhorted the Israelites to "Give unto the LORD the glory due his name: . . ." (1 Chronicles 16:29); and the psalmist, David, adds in exclamation, "The heavens declare the glory of God; . . ." (Psalm 19:1); and in response, "Give unto the LORD, O ye mighty, give unto the LORD glory and strength" (Psalm 29:1); and further still, "Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth" (Psalm 57:5).

Certainly, in refusing to recognize our obligations toward God in rendering the glory due Him, we, in the final analysis, fail to reach and discover those assets of real spiritual worth. Many, I might add, resist recognition of these assets because, once recognized, they must be used. Belshazzar resisted, and this indictment rests upon his grave to this day, "But hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven; . . . the God in whose hand thy breath is, and whose are all thy ways, hast thou not glorified" (Daniel 5:23). Along with Belshazzar and those Christians, like the Christians at Rome who knew God, and glorified Him not, shall pass this judgment: God shall give them up to the hell of selfishness and misery which springs from themselves in this world, and the hell of separation from Him in the next.

The individual who will not resist the calling and yearning—yea, the desires of God's heart, shall find a spiritual experience that is unequalled and unexcelled in any other religious experience.

By our lives—the testimony of our experience—God is glorified and pleased. Then, God will, by our glorifying, or consecrated lives perform great things in and for us. Perhaps, one of the most rewarding tokens of His love to us is the inward peace that He gives to us:

"The soul by perfect peace possessed
Finds inward quietness and rest,
A joy that's deep and true and pure,
A trust that makes one secure.
Amidst the rush and whirl of life,
Surrounded by a world of strife,
To keep a tranquil heart and mind,
In Christ true satisfaction find
This is the beauty of His peace."

Certainly as God gives us this peace which passeth the understanding of this world, He elevates us to a higher plane of living.

"No Hatred, jealousy, or spite,
That clouds the soul's eternal light;
No struggling, wrangling or unrest,
That keeps a turmoil in the breast,
No base desire revenge to pay
For wrongs that hurt us day by day;
No sharp rebuff that hurts and smart
The depths of human hearts:
This is the beauty of His peace."

When this peace, this sweet, beautified peace, resides in our hearts, when we glorify God, and when He brings to pass great and wondrous things for us, psychologically (through peace of mind) and spiritually (through deliverance from self and inferior and baser elements), He then lives through us for glory and in behalf of a lost, dying world.

Consecration, as I hope I have pointed out, entails dedication to the service and worship of God; it also includes ordination to a sacred office, and the setting apart of ourselves for the common and ordinary to a sacred use—the glory of God.

For God, I am now set apart.

A Testimony Of Faith

My mother, Mrs. Cornelia Elizabeth Nobles, died October 7, 1960, at my home in Richmond, Virginia. Last spring, although she was very feeble, she wrote the testimony below and asked me to type it for her. Instead of the usual obituary, I would like for you to publish her testimony in our beloved Free Will Baptist paper.

My mother was always interested in the Free Will Baptist work, and gave of her time and money. My older son has said after she died, 'She was the most consecrated Christian I have ever known.' My mother was a member of the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden, North Carolina, at the time of her death. Although she was living with me, she could not go to her own church."

Marie Nobles Morris

Cornelia Elizabeth Nobles, was born January 13, 1877, in the county of Pitt, North Carolina. My father was R. W. Nobles; my mother, before her marriage, was Bethany Ann Elizabeth Dail of Pitt County.

My parents, who were both Christians, took us children to church at an early age. My mother and father were members of Piney Grove Church in Pitt County. I think they commenced taking each of us to church, in their arms, when we were five-weeks old. We all went in a big box body cart. A quilt was spread in the cart for Ma and Pa and the older children to sit on. When we reached the church, the quilt was taken inside and laid, then laid on the floor so the older children could lie down when they became weary. In those days we had what was called amen pews for the elderly people. This gave space for the babies.

When the children went to Sunday school as early as we were old enough—often walking several miles or more.

When I started to school, we usually had several months of free schooling during the summer. As I grew older, the length of the free school was increased, and the last free school I attended lasted five months.

At the age of twenty I began teaching in the free school. The first year I taught in the home district; therefore, I didn't have a salary board. I received sixty dollars for the term, and I took thirty-two dollars of that and bought a parlor organ.

After the term of teaching free school was over each year, teachers could go to the college. So, I attended the Ayden Free Will Baptist Seminary and stayed with my sister, Mary Dail (Mrs. G. W. Dail) of Ayden. My first term at the seminary was taught by Professor J. E. Davis, son of the Rev.

Daniel Davis. The next year the Rev. Thomas E. Peden of Ohio was head of the seminary.

In August, after I was sixteen in February, I gave my heart to the Lord. I've always liked to attend Sunday school and other religious services. On January 11, 1905, I was married to William Lloyd Nobles of the Bethel Township. When I went to his home community to live, I found there was a Primitive Baptist church nearby; but there was no Free Will Baptist church nearer than four miles. Since Primitive Baptists do not believe in or have Sunday school, I began "talking Sunday school" in the community. I remember saying, "Folks, we are not living right."

A short while later the county built a new school house with a stage. Finally our "talking Sunday school" became a reality, for we organized our Sunday school and held it in the school building.

Next, I began "talking preaching." At last we agreed to try to get a ministerial student from the seminary in Ayden, thirty miles away, to hold services for us. We

(continued on page nine)

CHRISTMAS CARDS

For your Christmas greetings this year, we are offering three series of the "Sunshine Line." All three series come in assorted cards, designed exclusively for you who love Christmas and understand its true meaning.

GLAD TIDINGS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards with Scripture Texts

BLESSED CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

21 Cards, Also with Scripture Texts

LUSTROUS CHRISTMAS ASSORTMENT

18 PhotoColor Cards with Scripture Texts

RETAIL, PER BOX

$1.00

Special Rates to Auxiliaries and Other Church Groups for Resale

(When ordered in lots of ten or more boxes, sixty cents per box.)

ORDER FROM

FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. BOX 158

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA

NEWS NOTES

N. C. Superannuation Report for October

The following is the report of the Rev. Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannuation of North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, for October, 1960:

Receipts
Balance on Hand October 1, 1960	$4,525.56
Regular Receipts for October	2,097.27
Offering Earmarked for Adopted Ministers and Minister's Widows	24.00
Total to Account For	$6,646.83
Disbursements
Minister's Monthly Checks	$237.00
Operating Expenses	123.57
Paid to National Board	197.37
Total Disbursements	557.94
Balance on Hand November 1, 1960	$6,088.89
Receipts by Conferences
Albemarle	$181.75
Blue Ridge	14.00
Cape Fear	221.75
Central	418.51
Eastern	493.19
French Broad	250.28
Piedmont	21.50
Western	520.29

Revival in Progress At Maranatha Church

Revival services are in progress at Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina, with the Rev. Ronald Creech as the evangelist. Services began Monday evening, November 7, and will continue through Saturday evening, November 12. On Saturday evening there will be a Youth for Christ Rally.

The Rev. LaRue Davis, pastor, and the church members extends an invitation to the public to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Revival and Home-Coming at White Oak Church

Revival services began at White Oak Free Will Baptist Church, Bladenboro, North Carolina, November 2, and will continue through November 13. The pastor, the Rev. W. L. Jernigan, is doing the preaching. The church extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

On Sunday, November 13, the church will observe its annual home-coming with a picnic lunch served on the church grounds. Special music will be a feature of the service. All former pastors, former members and friends are urged to attend and enjoy the fellowship together.

Elm Grove Church Announces Fall Revival

The Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden, North Carolina, announces revival services beginning November 13, continuing through November 19. The evangelist for these services will be the Rev. J. C. Lynn, graduate of the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, and is now pastor of Owen's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Elm City, North Carolina. Services will begin each evening at 7:30, and special music will be featured throughout each service.

The pastor, the Rev. N. Bruce Barrow, extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend these services.

Wintergreen Church to Observe Home-Coming November 20

The Wintergreen Free Will Baptist Church, Cove City, North Carolina, will observe its annual home-coming Sunday, November 20. The day's activities will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., followed with worship service at 11:00. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour.

The pastor, the Rev. W. S. Burns, and the church members extends a cordial invitation to all former pastors, former members and friends to attend this service and enjoy the fellowship together.

St. John F. W. B. Church Announces Fall Revival

St. John Free Will Baptist Church, Route 3, Goldsboro, North Carolina, will observe its home-coming Sunday, November 13. Service will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., and morning worship service to follow at 11:00 a. m., with the pastor, the Rev. Albert Rollins, delivering message. The climax to the morning ship will be the processional presentation of the proceeds from the Lord's acre on the altar and the dedication of the offering. A picnic lunch will be served the grounds at the noon hour.

Coming Events

November 15-17—Georgia State Association, Baxley, Georgia

The afternoon program will consist of special singing, recognition of former pastors and the reading of the church history.

The pastor extends a cordial invitation to all former pastors, members and friends to attend these services.

Fairmount Park League Holds Contest

The League of the Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, recently conducted a contest to boost its attendance. "Be My Guest" was the theme of the contest. Each league was asked to bring as many guests as could. First place winner received a Seofield Bible; second place winner received an Amplified New Testament; and, third place winner received a Scriptural plan. A record attendance of 296 were present the night of the contest.

Second Western District Rally to Convene with White Oak Church

The Youth for Christ Rally of the Second Western District will convene with White Oak Free Will Baptist Church, Bailey, North Carolina, on Saturday night, November 12, 1960, at 7:30.

Everyone is invited to attend, especially all pastors with their young people. A special and inspiring program is being planned.

Youth Revival at Fairmount Park Church

The young people of Fairmount Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Virginia, were put in charge of conducting a youth revival which they have just completed, with the Rev. W. S. Mooneyhan as the evangelist. As the Holy Spirit moved throughout the services, young people and adults made their decisions for Christ and rededicated their lives to Him. It was a glorious sight to witness His moving in the services.

A special feature of the revival came Tuesday and Saturday nights. Prior to service on these nights, Mr. Mooneyhan met with the teen-agers for a time of fellowship in the educational building. In these sessions the young people asked questions relative to their spiritual, family and social life. As these problems were discussed, the young people were better equipped to face, as well as cope with, their problems.

Items of interest in the religious world

INTERSTATE CONTROVERSY IN TEXAS CHALLENGES NUNS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Waco, Texas, a case in which a group of taxpayers and Protestant ministers and clergymen charge that the principle of separation of church and state is being violated in the central Texas town of Bremond is drawing considerable interest among both Protestants and Roman Catholics in the area. The complainants say tax money is being used illegally to support what they contend is a parochial school in Bremond. They contend that nuns teaching in the school have taken vows of poverty and that the salaries paid them from tax money go to the Catholic orders. The nuns, it is argued, are conduits through which tax money is funneled into the Catholic church.

The complainants say the school is commonly known in the community as St. Mary's School, that it is near a convent where the nun teachers live and near St. Mary's Catholic Church. They say nuns wear habits of their order while teaching and that there is a cross on the school building. All of these things together, they contend, create a religious atmosphere and amount to sectarian religious instruction in a school supported by taxes.

School officials say the school is a public school and entirely under control of the Bremond School trustees. They say they lease the building from the Catholic church for $1 a year and that nuns teaching there are fully qualified under state regulations as public school teachers. The school officials contend that the nun teachers may do whatever they like with their salaries. They say Protestant teachers give varying amounts to their salaries to Protestant churches and there is no question about it. The school officials say they do not try to tell teachers how to dress in the classroom, and what they wear is their own affair. They deny that religious habits worn by the nuns and the nearness of the school to the convent, rectory and the church constitute religious instruction. They say no religious instruction is given in the school. The school has been renamed "Elementary No. 2," they say to get away from the "St. Mary's," designation.

Bremond is a small town in a farming area, predominantly Roman Catholic. Most of its people are of Polish ancestry. The original case was thrown out of court on the ground that the plaintiffs had not exhausted administrative remedies. Now a complaining group of taxpayers has taken the case before the Bremond School trustees. It is the first step in exhausting the administrative remedy. The trustees have taken the complaint under study. If they deny the plea, an appeal would be taken to state school officials, then into the courts.—Christian News Report.

EQUALITY OF RELIGION MAKES MARRIAGE HAPPIER

A survey in the Detroit metropolitan area has shown that marriage partners who practice the same religion seem to achieve a happier marriage. The study, carried on by two University of Michigan professors, compared more than 900 married women in six Michigan counties. Their findings have been published in a new book, entitled, "Husbands and Wives—the Dynamics of Married Living." Not only is religion listed first by the authors, but first among the major sources of strength in marriage. It also entered into the companionship category. "Similarity in religion furnishes an important leisure-time activity, and a good basis for companionship," the authors said. (The study is the first in the marriage field to describe a cross-section of an entire community.)

SOCIAL SECURITY COVERAGE EXTENDED FOR CLERGYMEN

An amendment to the Social Security Act extends until April 15, 1962, the time in which members of the clergy may elect voluntary coverage. When Congress enacted legislation in 1954 in which the clergy were covered for the first time, the original cut-off date was September 15, 1957. It was explained that in complaints from many ministers to their Congressmen they said they either did not understand the law, or that the deadline did not give them enough time to comply. Other misunderstandings resulted in the extension, the announcement said. Clergymen are eligible for disability benefits at any age if they become totally disabled and have been under Social Security for five years or longer. Their wives and children under 18 are also covered. After April 15, 1962, this coverage can be elected only by newly ordained ministers. Full details of the amended Social Security Act as it concerns the clergy may be obtained from the Social Security Administration in Washington, D. C.

BREWERS OFFER SCHOLARSHIPS

A basic propaganda trick is to associate your product with something good. This is known as the association technique, and is used in the hope that your product will look better when lined up with a worthwhile project.

The Duquesne Brewing company plays this to a hilt, using teen-agers.

The company is now awarding an annual four-year scholarship to an outstanding Pennsylvania high school senior.

In addition to the scholarship, which covers full tuition, books and fees, the company is making an outright grant to the college which is selected by the student.

The new program is expected to be administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which will screen applicants.

Further evidence of the association technique—the announcement of the new plan was made at a special party in the Pittsburgh-Hilton, given by the brewery for its distributors.—Contact-Concern.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

A young Connecticut mother of a small girl came to her pastor and said, "I have a problem about my child's prayers. She loves to say the Lord's Prayer but doesn't say it correctly. She says very seriously and confidently: 'Our Father who are in New Haven, how do you know my name?'" The pastor replied, "I wouldn't correct her. She has gotten hold of two deep truths—one, that God is everywhere, and second, that He knows her name."—C. N. R.

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the LORD: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isaiah 1:18).

"But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up" (2 Peter 3:10).

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Please explain the resurrection as it is interpreted in our Free Will Baptist Treatise:—Earl C. Adcock Sr., 323 Coborn Avenue, Mt. Vernon, Illinois.

ANSWER: In the 1953 issue of A Treatise of the Original Free Will Baptist, Chapter, 21, Page 26, is where we find the resurrection discussed. The following quotation contains the opening statement of that chapter: "The Scriptures teach the resurrection of the bodies of all men, each in its own order; they that have done good will come forth to the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil to the resurrection of damnation." This national treatise, as we generally refer to it, gives a number of verses in support of the statement quoted above. I shall list, quote, and comment on them in the order in which they are here printed. "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it" (Ecclesiastes 12:7). This is a simple statement of the fact that when man has filled his appointed number of days here on earth, his spirit goes back to God from whence it came; and the body which has been made of earth, to the earth from which God took it. This, of course, indicates that man's life on earth is one of temporary or limited duration. In this statement, of course, is a solemn warning and especially is this true when all that the Bible teaches on the subject of the rewards for the saved and the retribution of the lost is taken into consideration. The Preacher's Homiletic Commentary makes the following interesting comment on this verse as found on Pages 178, 179: "However fairly it may be garnished, man lives but in a house of clay whose end is dust.

"The humble destination of the mortal part of us should be a rebuke to pride.

"... we are plainly taught that man, as a spirit, returns to God, not to perish by dispersion in His infinity, but to be judged. (Verse 14.) Hence moral responsibility will remain, and this is not possible unless the conscious selfhood in each man remains.

"... for we are spirit as well as flesh—makes us capable of appearing before Him in a spiritual world. But moral likeness to Him can alone turn that solemn necessity into blessedness.

"We know not what mysterious things await the spirit when it returns to God; but we know that the law of love holds good, as the condition of happiness, in all worlds.

"Our spirits are God's free gift, and therefore all powers and faculties thereof ought to be employed to the honour of the Giver. (Rom. xi. 36.) He is to be depended on, an acknowledge for the preservation of them (Job. x. 12); and all crosses upon body and spirit to be submitted unto. (Heb. xii. 9.)"

"For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better" (Philippians 1:23). The context of this verse places Paul, the human author, in a remarkable mood of ecstasy gloriously overwhelmed in the thought that it is his wonderful privilege to be the representative of his Lord and Christ the few days he is to remain here in this life. Being overwhelmed over his privilege, the Holy Spirit suddenly brings to his mind the thought of a possible immediate dying, at which time he is assured that his presence with Christ will mean an eternal absence from all that limits him in this life. Therefore, he, as though in deep contemplation, describes his reaction as one that places him in a strait betwixt two, a desire to be with Christ and a desire to abide. Which? That is the great question. If he departs, all the hardships of a life of toil, pain and the dread of death will have ended. But, oh! What of the church and of the unsaved? They will still be in need of his testimony. This verse then, as we see it, has no direct reference to the resurrection; therefore, I am not sure just what the authors of the national treatise had in mind by placing it here.

"And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:43) is the next in order. Here, as I see it, Christ is making reference to the place in which He is to be immediately upon His dying, at which time the resurrection of His body was to be several hours in the future. At the earliest it was quite a bit over a day and night away; whereas, His spirit would in a few hours depart from His body to spend some time in this place He calls paradise. Lazarus, of Luke 16:19-31, went to this pleasant temporary abode when he died; whereas, the rich man went where the thief on the cross was not to go, because the thief had sincerely besought Jesus that he might be with Him. This thief did not have complete knowledge of the Bible teaching on the life after death, so he asked to go with Christ in His Kingdom.

"And, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him" (Luke 24:17:3); "I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead but of the living" (22:32). In the light of these verses, Moses and Elias appearing before Christ while He had with Him Peter, James and John, the persons constituted His most intimate inner circle of friends. The appearance of these familiar Old Testament characters plainly tells that soul sleeping in the intermediate state is not a correct Biblical doctrine. They were active and discussed with Christ the great event of crucifixion. Moses appeared shortly after he saw the promised land from Mount Nebo, and was buried by God in the valley of Moab, near the mount. Elias was carried by fiery chariots into heaven. (See Deuteronomy 34:5, 6 and Judges 13:20. Compare 2 Kings 2:11.)

The latter of the above verses quoted from the treatise simply declares that God claims as His own only those who are a part of His Kingdom. There is a sense in which the dead body of Moses is still subject to death, which is the kingdom of Satan. Otherwise the incident referred to in Judges 13:20 would have been different. Satan is not the god of this world or world system as long as death is active. When the body is purged of sin, Satan will have no more say over it. Read what all is said of the new Jerusalem in the book of Revelation.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

THE VALUE OF TIME

"So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom" (Psalm 90:12).

Time and life are two of God's great gifts to man. To be well pleasing to Him they should both be used constantly to His glory.

There is no greater text in all the Bible than the one given above to teach us the importance of using our short time here on earth for God and those about us. We should read that the ninetyeth Psalm is a prayer for wisdom, the man of God, for the knowledge and sensible experience of God's goodness. And, alas, how we need the wisdom in these latter days, if we are to live wisely and spend our time in a way that is acceptable to Him. The Bible and all that it teaches us that our time is short. So what we do we must do quickly while God gives us time and opportunity.

I read a beautiful poem the other day which tells a great truth, and I am passing it on to you with the prayer that it helps you to really see the value of your given time.

TEACH ME TO LIVE

Teach me to live! 'Tis easier far to die—silently and silently pass away—earth's long night to close the heavy eyelids and waken in the glorious realms of day.

Teach me the harder lesson—how to live;
 to serve thee in the darkest paths of life;
 when for conflict now, fresh vigor give,
 and I make me more than conqueror in the strife.

Teach me to live thy purpose to fulfill;
 thy light for thy glory let my taper shine;
 each day renew, remold this stubborn will;
 and ser round thee my heart's affections
 in wine.

Teach me to live for self and sin no more;
 to use time remaining to me yet;
 to mine own pleasure seeking as before,
 and sting no precious hours in vain regret.

Teach me to live; no idler let me be,
 in thy service hand and heart employ.
 Teach me to do thy bidding cheerfully—
 to find this my highest and my holiest joy.

Teach me to live—my daily cross to bear,
 to murmur though I bend beneath its load.
 Teach me to be with me, let me feel thee near,
 as my saddle sheds gladness on the darkest road.

Teach me to live and find my life in thee,
 to look from earth and earthly things away.
 Teach me not falter, but untiringly to press on, and gain new strength and power each day.

Teach me to live with kindly words for all to wear no cold repulsive brow of gloom, but to smile with cheerful patience till thy call

Summons my spirit to her heavenly home.
 —Author Unknown.

Now read this final warning from holy inspiration and take heed:

"Little children, it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time" (1
 John 2:18).

A TESTIMONY OF FAITH

(continued from page five)

decided to have our meetings on the first Sunday of each month as other churches were meeting on the other Sundays.

I wrote my sister, Mollie Dail, in Ayden to contact a student at the seminary who could come on first Sundays and preach for us. The lot fell on the Rev. R. F. Pittman.

 He came and in six weeks the church was organized. There were twenty-six members. Some were from the nearby Free Will Baptist church and some were new converts. This church is Sweet Gum Grove, a strong church that has afforded the community great pleasure.

Dear friends, if you are ever placed in a situation in which there is no church, won't you please listen to His voice? You will be happy that you did.

Dear friends, those of you who have children of your own, please bring them up in the admonition of the Lord. He will bless you to the end.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
 THE EDITOR.

THE BROAD, EARTHLY WAY

(Matthew 7:13)

- I. IT IS THE WAY OF THE WICKED (Proverbs 15:9).
 1. It is the way which demands God's anger (Psalm 7:11).
 2. It is the way of a bad heart (Psalm 58:2).
 3. It is the way which leads to hell (Psalm 9:17).
- II. IT IS THE WAY OF THE FALSE (Psalm 119:104).
 1. It is the way of false teachers (2 Peter 2:1).
 2. It is the way of false brethren (Galatians 2:4).
 3. It is the way of false prophets and false christes (2 Peter 2:1; Matthew 24:24).
- III. IT IS THE WAY OF THE SLOTHFUL (Proverbs 15:19).
 1. It is the way of deterioration (Ecclesiastes 10:18).
 2. It is the way of the squanderer (Proverbs 18:9).
 3. It is the way of death (Proverbs 21:25).
- IV. IT IS THE WAY OF THE FOOL (Proverbs 12:15).
 1. It is the way traveled by ignorance (Proverbs 18:2).
 2. It is the way of contention (Proverbs 18:6).
 3. It is the way of destruction (Proverbs 18:7).
- V. IT IS THE WAY OF LYING (Psalm 119:29).
 1. It is an unprofitable way in which many trust (Jeremiah 7:8).
 2. It is the way loved by many (Psalm 52:3, 4).
 3. It is the way God hates (Proverbs 8:16, 17).
- VI. IT IS THE WAY OF ADULTERY (Proverbs 30:20).
 1. It is the way followed by misunderstanding (Proverbs 6:32).
 2. It is the way followed by the eyes (2 Peter 2:14).
 3. It is the way followed by the heart (Matthew 15:19).

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Alonzo J. Willis

On Monday morning, August 15, 1960, at 5:35, the death angel hovered over the Sea Level Community Hospital, Sea Level, North Carolina, and wafted the spirit of my husband, Alonzo Willis, from this earth to his home in glory.

Mr. Lon, as he was usually called by everyone that knew him, was a member of the Davis, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church and had been for over 50 years. He was, for many years, treasurer of the church, and had served as Sunday school superintendent, deacon, ruling elder and church trustee. He loved his church dearly, and always filled his pew as long as he was able. His deafness kept him from understanding all the sermon, but he didn't use that as an excuse to stay home. He loved everyone, and one of his greatest joys was attending church and fellowship with Christian people.

The funeral service was conducted at the church of which he was a member on August 16, by his pastor, the Rev. Henry Van Kluyve, assisted by the Rev. C. L. Styron.

He leaves to mourn our loss his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Rosa Murphy and Pearl Alligood, both of Davis; six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

He was 81 years of age when death came. His death broke our family circle on earth, but we are praying that it will be broken in heaven, for heaven is dear to us since he is there. He has left a beautiful memory that will never be forgotten.

He was laid to rest in the Murphy Cemetery at Davis, amid a mound of lovely floral designs, a tribute to his beautiful memo-

Dearest loved one, how we miss you,
'Twas so hard to say good-by;
But we know that you are resting
In your home beyond the sky.

One by one we're crossing over
To that land of peace and love;
One by one the seats are filling
In our Father's house above.

May the circle be unbroken,
When we all are gathered home;
Happy then we'll sing God's praises,
As we gather 'round God's throne.

Written by his wife
Mrs. Maggie Willis

Birth and Death of Son

The Rev. and Mrs. Tom Willey, missionaries to Cuba, regret to announce the birth and death of a son on October 23, 1960.

In case friends would like to write, temporary address is, c/o Dr. Lydia M. 432 N. W. Avenue, Miami, Florida.

God's Children

The world is full of children,
In land of palm or snow,
In home of tent or palace—
No matter where we go.

They're dark or white or yellow,
But God loves every race;
The work of His great Kingdom
Gives every one a place.

The world is full of children;
Our God who sent His Son
To be our friend and Saviour,
Defends and loves each one.

He wants us to be friendly,
And help each other, too;
And show our love for Jesus
In everything we do.

—Selected.

VII. IT IS THE WAY OF HELL (Proverbs 7:27).

1. It is the way all unsaved are traveling (Romans 3:10-12).
2. It is the way intensified by professional religionists (Matthew 23:15).
3. It is the way over which Christ has become conqueror (Revelations 1:18).

Heirs and Joint Heirs

A dying judge said to a minister, "Do you know enough about law to understand what is meant by joint heirship?" "No," said the minister. "I know a little about grace, and that satisfies me." Said the judge, "Let me explain. If you and I were joint heirs on a farm, I couldn't say to you, 'That is your field of corn, and this is mine; that is your blade of grass, and this is mine.' We would share and share alike in everything on the place. I have been thinking with deep joy that Jesus Christ has nothing apart from me, that everything He has is mine, and we will share alike throughout eternity!"

"And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; . . ." (Romans 8:17).—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

What Is Love?

A young lady presented some poems to the editor of a magazine, hoping he would accept them for publication. "What are your poems about?" he asked. "All about love," she replied. "What is love?" asked the editor. With a dreamy look in her eyes, the young lady gave a poetic reply: "Love is a silvery moon, riding in resplendent glory in a star-spangled sky, with its shimmering beams intermingling with the underlating waves of a lily-fringed lake!" "Stop! Stop!" cried the editor. "You don't know the A of love. Love is a mother cheerfully getting up at 3 a. m. in an unheated shack on a wintry night to minister to a sick child!"

Let's raise our standard of loving—the higher the better.—
Rev. Walter B. Knight.

By J. C. Griffin

The Author of Confusion

The Bible says, "For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints" (1 Corinthians 14:33). If God is not the author of confusion, then Satan must be the author. At times we have much confusion in the world: National and international—kingdom against kingdom. The United Nations cannot solve the problem of confusion. Communism is against all Democratic nations.

The devil is certainly busy in the real world. But it is written for Christians, we are admonished to "Be sober, vigilant; because your adversary the devil, like a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour" (1 Peter 5:8). Yes, the devil is walking about, and we think that he is running and even walking with great rapidity trying to destroy our business from the earth, in these days which we are living. The way that we have been headed in spending and wasting the last twenty years, and the decreasing value of the dollar, I wonder how much longer we can stand up under the strain. We need a change in government from the present township officer to the President of the United States might bring a change. Some of the rock-ribbed Democratic Party go Republican, a change would come. It is dangerous for one party to stay in power too long. A Democrat president and a Republican Congress is tied. And a Republican president with a Democratic Congress is tied. We have seen these things in our 60 years of voting.

WEAT CHANGE

When I was a boy, I heard it said by our fathers in government, "We need to learn to make two ears of corn grow where one ear grows." Well, we started and we learned the secret and we multiplied to as many as ten ears grew where one grew. And it grew that we had so much corn that we had to cut it. Yes, destroy it, when millions of ears of corn were to bed hungry in this world. Then the corn was burned, we had too many hogs, so our government said, "Kill the brood sows, we have too much corn. We want to keep the prices up," not withstanding little children in the world went to bed hungry at night. Then we began, at the advice of our government, to cut down tobacco, and to plow up cotton in order to keep up the price, and all of this government control has brought us to a confusion that no one knows what to do next.

I know one who does know, that is God. Unless the United States returns to God and obeys God's command, He is going to allow us to go into bondage.

Under the advice of Franklin Delano (and this is not political talk) it is a fact, under this great president the eighteenth amendment was destroyed, and the liquor forces took over and every promise that was made has miserably failed. Well, the book says, "The devil is a liar and the author of it," but we were promised that there would be less drinking, but the idea, less drinking, with more whiskey. We were told that bootleggers would cease to operate, but they have not ceased. We were promised that the revenue from the sale of liquor would balance the United States' budget, but it is not balanced yet, nor will be. The very talk of a balanced budget is plain nonsense. We are going deeper in the red, as we prepare for war.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHURCH?

We have been discussing the political situation in a measure, now let us turn our attention to the church. When I say church I do not mean any particular denomination, but as already stated, "God is not the author of confusion." Again, I invite you to read the Bible. Read and reread 1 Corinthians 14:33.

The devil is certainly rushing his business in the churches, from the pulpit down to the pew. Preachers are preaching false doctrine and trying to be dictators instead of servants. Some preachers "... strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel" (Matthew 23:24). Jesus found some of that class and they were the ones that persecuted and said, "Away with Him." They were better than others. They set themselves up as examples and condemned every one who did not agree with them. The apostle, Paul, had to deal with that class when he was preaching and writing to the church at Corinth. They were fussing over preachers. (See 1 Corinthians, Chapter 1, Verses 10-13, and then see Chapter 3, Verses 1-8.) There was fornication in the church. (See Chapter 5, Verse 1.) They were fussing over eating meats. (See Chapter 8, Verses 1-13.) Paul tells us what to do.

There was someone that wanted to sue his brother, but Paul said, "Dare any of you, having a matter go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints" (1 Corinthians 6:1). But perhaps there were those who did not want to go before the saints, and preferred the common law.

There were some fussing over women's hair. We still have grumblers over this matter. Paul said, "But if any man (it must have been men who were fussing) seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God" (1 Corinthians 11:16). Here Paul says, he nor the churches have any custom as to how the hair is fixed on a woman's head. It is given her for her glory. It is her business to wear it as she sees fit.

Several years ago, I was down town in Goldsboro, N. C., and saw a man with blond hair reaching down to his waistline, and he was giving the women down the country for bobbing their hair. But in the same chapter, listen to Paul, "Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him" (1 Corinthians 11:14). Paul did not say, a sin, but a shame. This is another case of seeing fault in others and justifying self.

In Verse 11 of the first chapter of 1 Corinthians, we read, "For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you."

Now Chloe could have been a news totter, one of those fellows that run to their pastor with every whim, and always finding fault with someone whom they dislike. Such folk do live today. But this writer hardly thinks that this man was a news totter, but he saw the division; and he saw that some of the people had preacher religion and that they were misrepresenting the truth in Christ Jesus and following human leaders—leaders that would split the churches and especially the local church. Following the leaders that would destroy the power of the church, thus Paul preached the oneness that Christ prayed for, when He said, "That these may be one as we are one." Paul was thinking of Christ and not of the selfishness of man. Paul, Apollos and Cephas were too close to the Lord to fuss about positions and the physical side of life. They were brethren. Paul could have said, if he had been selfish, "You fellows that are for me, you come on and we will show that bunch of hypocrites who want to get rid of me, what we can do." But He was sanctified, a whole-hearted servant of God, and stood foursquare for the church and its every endeavor.

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, or feature articles, for publication in "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your item processed earlier.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

EDDIE ANSWERS

by ETHEL B. HULSLANDER

"EDDIE," called his mother. Eddie dumped his pail of sand onto the road he was building and looked up, but he didn't answer his mother.

"Eddie, where are you?" asked his mother.

He didn't answer. He began filling his pail again with the smooth white sand.

Mother didn't call again.

Eddie began to wonder what she had wanted. He thought and thought about it. After thinking for a long time he walked around the house. He saw Mother sitting on the porch.

"What did you want?" he asked.

"Did you hear me?" Mother pretended to be surprised.

Eddie hung his head and said slowly, "Yes. I'm sorry that I didn't answer. Do you want me to go to the store on the corner?"

Mother shook her head.

"Do you want me to sweep the walks?"

Again Mother shook her head.

"Does Jimmy want me to play with him?"

"No," said Mother.

"Then why did you call me?" asked Eddie.

"Let's let Daddy tell you about it when he comes home again," suggested Mother.

"Daddy! Was she here?" cried Eddie.

Mother nodded her head.

Eddie asked her lots more questions, but all she would tell him was that Daddy would tell him about the surprise.

"Surprise!" exclaimed Eddie.

He couldn't think why he should be getting a surprise. It wasn't his birthday.

Eddie thought and thought about not answering Mother when she called him. He decided that if he had answered her he would now know all about the surprise. He remembered the story their Sunday school teacher had told them about Samuel. Samuel was only a boy, too, but he had answered when God had called to him. Eddie was wishing that he had answered, too. Then he had an idea! He would ask God to help him be a good boy and answer when his mother called.

Eddie shut his eyes and asked God,

"Please, help me to answer when I am called."

"Eddie, where are you?" called Mother.

"Coming, Mother," answered Eddie.

Eddie ran to the porch. Daddy was standing beside Mother. In Daddy's arms was a tiny, brown and white puppy.

Daddy carefully put the puppy in Eddie's arms.

"Like him?" asked Daddy.

"I'll say I do!" cried Eddie. Then he asked, "Was he the surprise you meant, Mother?"

Mother smiled. She said, "Yes, Daddy was going to take you along to the pet store to get him."

Daddy looked a bit worried as he asked, "Do you think that you can remember to feed your puppy?"

"I'm sure I can," said Eddie. Then he added happily, "I won't forget because God is going to help me remember to answer when Mother calls me. I know that God will also help me remember to feed my puppy. I'll ask Him to help me."—Gospel Herald.

Father's Voice

by LEOTA L. KNOPP

IF I were to ask you if you know your father's voice, you would look at me in wonder and say, "Of course I do!" You would think I was ignorant to ask you such a question, would you not?

It is a good thing if you do know your father's voice. Now I will tell you what kind of boys and girls do not know their father's voice. They are the kind who do not obey him. Father will say to them, "Come home at such and such a time," and they will say, "Yes, Father." But when that time comes, playing goes so well and they wish to stay away a little longer. They think that perhaps Father will not care if they stay just a little longer. So they stay. Boys or girls who do this kind of thing have heard their father's voice all right, but it means little to them. Just the sound of his voice was familiar to them. They could tell whose lips the words came from, but to them the words meant nothing. They took their own way and did just as they pleased. They did not really know their father's voice, because they did not obey him.

A boy may go out to skate. After he has been out for an hour, Father calls and he shall come home now. The boy hears the words his father speaks and knows they are meant for him. But he skates while longer, really disobeys his father. Do you think that boy really knows his father's voice?

One time the Lord Jesus said the words to follow their shepherd ". . . for they know His voice. . . a stranger will they not follow but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers" (John 10:4, 5). Afterward He said: "I am the good shepherd and know my sheep, and am known of mine" (Vs. 14). He is the good shepherd and if we are His sheep we shall follow Him, for we shall know His voice. When we know His voice, we will obey Him. We cannot say we know His voice unless we do what He tells us to do. He is faithful and He may often speak to us and tell us when we are wrong, or tell us to do things for Him.

When "good" children do wrong, they are sorry and will confess the wrong. Their parents then know that they can trust them. When a sheep goes wrong, and the shepherd seeks it, it will hear his voice and follow with the shepherd to the fold.

So also, when we are Jesus' sheep or lambs and go wrong, and He shows us that we are wrong, we will feel sorry and repent. Jesus will forgive us.

Are you Jesus' little lamb? Do you know His voice?—Gospel Herald.

BOOK REVIEW

An Outline of Old Testament History
By Charles F. Pfeiffer

"An Outline of Old Testament History" is one of the Christian Handbooks, published by Moody Press. The author is assistant professor of Old Testament at Gordon Divinity School, and is the author of several books on Biblical themes.

His book presents Israel in such a way that the reader's mind is captured and studies the pages of "An Outline of Old Testament History." The book contains 28 chapters with such titles as, "The Patriarchal Ages," "The Conquest," "The Judges," "The Kings," "The Exile," "The Return," "The Maccabean Period," etc. It also contains maps. It is a good book for both minister and layman. (Paper Back)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

vis, N. C.—The Anita Sparks Circle of Woman's Auxiliary of the Davis Free Baptist Church held its regular month-meeting at the home of Mrs. Maggie on Monday night, October 24, with members and one visitor present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Edna Davis. The group sang "Work the Night is Coming," followed with pure reading from 2 Timothy 1:1-5. Pearl Alligood offered prayer for the denominational work. The minutes of the September meeting were read by secretary, Mrs. Harry Willis, which was approved. A special offering was taken amounting to $31.00, and the regular offering of $4.28.

Following the business period, Mrs. Edna Bilsworth gave the topic for the program "Hold High the Torch." Those on the program presented their part well. The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Le-will.

Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies and enjoyed by all.

Notice to Our N. C. Auxiliaries

Let me kindly remind our dear women to love the Lord and His people that a privilege is before us, one we should be grateful for, that is to do something for Jesus who said, "As ye do unto the least of these little ones, ye do it unto Me." We must truly serve the Lord at this special time by running now to give Him (Jesus) a gift on His birthday. It's only a few weeks left. We can do this by arranging now for a special for our superannuated members.

Any of you have adopted a minister or his wife. Let us therefore make Christmas a special day for them. Let's remember them with gifts and cards; also a visit if possible or anything that will bring cheer to their lonely hearts.

If your auxiliary does not have a minister or widow adopted, please help us adopt them with gifts and cards. There may be too many. Let us remember many of them may be gone home next Christmas; let us give them the flowers while they are here and enjoy them.

J. K. Rhodes, Benevolence Chairman

Attention Study Course Chairman

Have you considered reading a book and discussing it? The evenings are rather long and most mothers are caught up with their work. What could prepare hearts better for the Thanksgiving and Christmas season than reading good books.

The new list is not released as yet but there are many good books from previous reading lists. Some of the names of the books are as follows:

- Happiness Is Homemade*—35c
- The Christian Home*—39c
- Stewardship in the Life of Women*—$1.00
- Stewardship and the Tithe*—50c
- Praying Hyde*—$1.50
- Power and Peace in Prayer*—50c
- Wake or Blow Up*—$1.00
- Personal Soul Winning*—$2.50
- Individual Books on Personal Soul Winning*—20c Each
- Hudson Taylor's Spiritual Secret*—89c
- Mary Slessor (Missionary to Africa)*—$1.00

These are a few of the many study books we have in stock at the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. Don't let these months slip by without reading at least one or two study books and discussing them.

AUXILIARY PINS

Please order your auxiliary pins direct from The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. The prices are: 10 K Gold, $5.25; Gold Plated, $2.00.

When ordering life awards pins, order direct from Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Maury, North Carolina. There is no charge for these when you send to the state treasurer, Mrs. Raymond T. Sasser, $25.00 for the designated state project which this year is the Children's Home.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER W. J. BAKER

Elder Baker was born in Pitt County, N. C., February 9, 1803.

His parents were poor and unable to educate him, hence, his education was very limited. Elder Baker professed religion and united with the Free Will Baptist Church at Harts, Greene County, and was baptized the 23rd of August, 1829.

He soon commenced exhorting but was not advanced to the ministry until February 3, 1844; when he received license to exercise his gifts in the ministry, and was ordained February 2, 1845. He was a faithful minister of the gospel, never shunning to declare the truth of the gospel, as far as his ability would permit. He was diligent in finding out the waste places and raising there the standard of the Cross.

A neighbor of his, for some causes, had a difficulty with him, and declared he never would hear him preach again.

Sometime, afterwards, he was passing through the woods where Elder Baker was dipping turpentine, and at the same time preaching, and this man was compelled to hear him preach, although he had said he never would.

His last service was at May's Chapel. One month before he died, he met with the church but was unable to preach. He closed the meeting by exhorting and prayer, telling the brethren that he felt like it was the last time that he would meet them. Just before he died, he told his brother that he was almost gone, but there was nothing in his way, he was ready to go, and raising his hands up towards heaven, were his last words and actions in life.

So passed away one more of our old ministers to wait for the resurrection morn, to be raised to a life of immortality, and to wear the spotless crown of everlasting life around his heavenly Father's throne in glory.

"But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:12).

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

The Wilkersons Write From Brazil

October 19, 1960
Campinas, Brazil

Dear Friends,

A very warm greeting from Brazil. When I say warm I actually mean an affectionate or fond greeting, but right now it could be taken literally because we are having some very warm weather. Several days have been in the 90's in the shade. They tell us this is just springtime and I'm wondering what summer will be like. Here it seems that the sun does not shine as brightly but it seems much hotter. However, the nights are usually very cool and the stucco houses hold the coolness from the night even during the middle of the day. For this we are thankful and it does not make the temperature really very bad. There are fresh fruits and vegetables the year around; now we are enjoying watermelons, grapes and pineapple.

June and I have only two more months of formal language study (we graduate December 16), and though the grind gets a bit hard at times, we have enjoyed our study and the fellowship with many other missionaries. I preached for the first time in Portuguese Sunday morning after Sunday school. It was only a sermonette about ten minutes long. June spoke the following Monday night at a cottage prayer meeting which the woman's auxiliary has each Monday night.

Our church building is now under construction with the walls having been completed and during the past week they began putting on the roof. When the roof is completed we will be able to have services there; however, money is lacking for the purchase of doors and windows and for the floor. The church has one lot of ground for sale and we are hoping to be able to sell it soon and use the money for a bit of the finishing up work such as the doors, etc. Since the weather is so warm now, the fact that we have no doors and windows will not be too much of a hindrance to the work. However, the rainy season begins soon and then it might be of a hindrance. Our Bible Institute has been recessed for a couple of months in order that the boys could help with the manual labor and thus save money for labor. They and Dave have done much of the work. Since I have to be in school every day and because Ken has other things to attend to, we were not able to help much in the actual construction. The Bible Institute will be resumed shortly and the boys seem eager to get back to studying. Please remember these boys daily in your prayers and pray that the Lord will call out more young people to study for His service not only here in Brazil but all over the world and especially in our own dear United States. The harvest is so ripe but there are so few laborers.

Our national evangelist, Fransisco, who works in the state of Minas Gerais, is doing a very fine work in a very difficult place. He has much, much opposition. His only income is about $10.00 per month which the church here sends to him and which really is a sacrificial offering on the part of the church. He wrote about two weeks ago and said that his finances only permitted him to eat every other day. How many of us are willing to make such a sacrifice in order that our families, friends, and even those whom we do not know might be won to Christ?

We are much concerned with the political situation in the States. We sincerely hope that our people will pray definitely about how the Lord would have them to vote. Only until you've been in a country such as this one here can you realize in part the problem of church and state connected.

We rejoiced greatly when the last Foreign Mission Prayer and Praise Letter came because our account was almost out of the red. This was made possible only by your faithfulness in giving. For this we can only say God bless you for your faithfulness and may He richly reward you. We count also on your prayers for us daily as well as the other missionaries around the world. There are many dangers and problems that confront each of us and we do appreciate your prayers for protection and leadership of the Holy Spirit.

Yours in His service,

Sam Wilkinson and Family

Brazilian Pastor Writes

Campinas, Sao Paulo,
September 17,

Dear Brother Smith,

Greetings in our Lord Jesus Christ greet you with Ephesians 6:10-24. To beloved brethren in Christ, directors of Free Will Baptist Missions in the United States and to the churches in Christ, we love very much in the Lord and whom we write by means of this letter is with much pleasure that I am writing these few lines of thanksgiving to God. His people in the United States are supporting me in the holy ministry of the Word of God to win souls through the righteousness of God to Jesus Christ, Author and Finisher of our faith. Now I have received this support and my wife and children we are continuing thankful for this marvelous gift that has used you dear brethren in order to us. And particularly are we thankful to the missionaries that are here among us who have supplied marvelous work in reporting us.

I want you to know that our field in Brazil is vast; it needs workers. You already know that our missionaries that have sent to Brazil have been a great blessing. They do not have any rest, they are busy in the work of the Lord and they require more than we can do. To meet the needs of the work of the Lord: (1) we need more transportation; (2) more preachers and missionaries like Pastor Kenneagleton and his wife, Pastor David Franks, Pastor Samuel Wilkinson and his wife, and Sister Eula Mae Martin in ministry that has been a blessing; (3) we want and are hoping for more workers from the United States to come to Brazil. We are hoping for a visit from the directors to come to Brazil and see the need for faithful work for God.

I believe that we Free Will Baptists can fill these needs: (1) Train Brazilian workers faithful to Christ and to the people with sound doctrine; (2) train these workers in our own schools. As a Brazilian worker and as a Free Will Baptist I need to be these truths. I want to be zealous for the doctrine and for this reason I want to explain that the need of literature for the Free Will Baptist and the need of schools, etc., are real and are absolutely necessary. We are praying to this end and are confident that God has the answer.

Without any more at the moment, I am beloved in the Lord Jesus Christ, directors of the Free Will Baptist Missions and the sister churches in Christ in the United States, our sincere thanks.

Pastor Waldemar Daminelli and Family

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

THANKS BE TO GOD

(Lesson for November 20)

SON: Psalm 103:1-18.

GEN TEXT: Psalm 103:1, 2.

INTRODUCTION

This season of the year when we are led in so many ways that we ought to thank and praise God for His benefits to us, let us stop and take the time and effort to consider His benefits to us. One has written a song that has the words: "When at night, you cannot sleep; praise your blessings, instead of sheep." How wonderful Thanksgiving this would be if God's people would try to count their blessings and praise God for them!—The Sacred Quarterly (F. W. B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

Thankfulness to God should arise from the innermost being (Psalm 103:1).

The believer is never at a loss for reasons for giving thanks to God (Vv. 2-5).

The God whom we serve is not unknown, but has revealed Himself (Vv. 6, 7).

There is a "wrath of God" but He is not prone to anger (Vs. 8).

God never seeks a quarrel, but neither does He keep back His anger forever (Vs. 9).

God is absolutely just and holy, but also merciful (Vs. 10).

The greatness of God's mercy is immeasurable (Vs. 11).

Our sins are gone so far away they cannot be returned (Vs. 12).

It is a blessing to know that God is our Creator physically, but a greater blessing to know He is our Father spiritually (Vs. 13).

The frailty of human life is ever before us, and nor should we ever forget it (Vv. 14, 15).

Thank God for Christian parents and grandparents (Vv. 17, 18).—The Bible Expositor

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. An old lady's cup of joy often overflowed. As her pastor preached, she would often say, "Praise the Lord!" At times, the minister was disturbed. He went to her and said, "I'll give you a pair of blankets if you will refrain from saying 'Praise the Lord.'" She needed the blankets, for she was very poor. She did her best to earn them on the minister's terms. For many Sundays, she kept perfectly quiet during the sermon. Then, one day, a visiting minister came to preach. He preached on forgiveness of sin, with its attendant blessings and joys! As he preached, the aged saint thought less and less of the blankets, and more and more of the joys of salvation! She could stand it no longer. She cried out, "Blankets or no blankets, praise the Lord!"—Selected.

2. The apostle, Paul, wrote: "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Ephesians 5:20). One's thanksgiving should center around his blessings from the material standpoint; that is, the providing of food, clothing and shelter, the three essentials to maintaining life. No one should be so blinded by his own personal gains that he cannot see the hand of God in supplying these needs. Not only does He have the material things for which to thank Him, but there are many things for which to thank Him which hinge upon the spiritual. Man should thank Him for the Bible, God's Word.

3. We can also thank Him for the very presence of Christians in this country and many other places of the world. If it were not for them, surely chaos and punishment would have already fallen upon the disobedient. Then we can thank Him for our churches—for the fact that there are churches in most every community in our country. There are many, many other things which should make us thankful, and they are often taken for granted. Let us give our thanks to God.—The Bible Student. (F. W. B.).

Suppose each one selects two sheets of note paper. On one sheet write the blessings of our spiritual life. On the other write the blessings of your natural life.

4. A few years ago a boat was wrecked in a storm near Northwestern University and the students rushed out to rescue the passengers. One of the students saved seventeen, and when in his room he sat exhausted he asked his friends: "Did I do my best? Do you think I did my best?"

Years later Dr. Torrey met this man and he asked him if anything in particular stood out in his memory of so gallant a rescue. The man, old now, replied, "Only this, sir. Of the seventeen people I saved not one of them ever thanked me."—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

5. Regarding Verse 2, D. L. Moody once said: "You can't remember all of God's blessings, but don't forget all of them."

6. In Hampton Court Gardens there are many giantlike oaks. The great trees are almost overcome by the great coils of ivy which are entwined about the trees' trunks like some huge serpents wrapped about the bodies of their prey. There was a time when the ivy was a weak aspirant, asking only a little aid in its upward climb. Had the ivy been denied then, the oaks would never have become the victims of the ivy. Now there can be no untwining of the coils, and every hour the ivy makes the oaks weaker and weaker.

How glad we are for Jesus, our Helper and Friend! There is no bad habit we cannot conquer if we fully trust Jesus to give us the victory!—Selected.

Ingratitude is a form of spiritual ivy that should be guarded against. Study again about the nine lepers in Luke 17.

7. A young girl visiting the country was following the farmer's wife along a winding, half overgrown path amid a winding tangle of wild flowers. The young visitor exclaimed at their variety and beauty. "I mean to gather all I can carry when we come back and have a little more time," she said. "Better pick them now, if you want them," said the elder woman. "It isn't likely we'll come back this way." It was one of those simple, homely incidents that sometimes seem to epitomize life. We must pick now if we want them at all, the flowers of grace and salvation that God scatters along our way.—3000 Practical Illustrations.

Everyone should be willing to plant flowers as well as gather their bloom. The flower of thankfulness greatly beautifies any life. How many times a day do we say, "Thank You, Lord," and really mean it?

MISSIONARIES ON THE FIELD

Alaska

Rev. Lee Whaley
Mrs. Ethel Whaley
Rev. Kirby Joe Godwin
Mrs. Elizabeth Godwin

Canada-New England

Rev. Mack C. Owens
Mrs. Jackie Owens
Rev. Mark Vandivort
Mrs. Louise Vandivort

Washington, D. C.

Rev. Kenneth Walker
Mrs. Lou Walker

Miami, Florida

Spanish

Rev. Melitino Martinez
Mrs. Sidelila Martinez
Miss Bessie Yeley
Miss Molly Barker

Denver, Colorado

Rev. Roy Thomas
Mrs. Pat Thomas

Monterrey, Mexico

Rev. Arthur Billows
Mrs. Jenell Billows

Northwest Pacific

Rev. J. J. Postlewaite
Mrs. Leah Postlewaite

Waipahu, Hawaii

Rev. Luther Sanders
Mrs. Helen Sanders

NOVEMBER IS

National Home Missions Month

SUNDAY, NOV. 20 IS NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS SUNDAY

PLAN A SPECIAL SERVICE IN YOUR CHURCH
NOW!

THANKSGIVING OFFERINGS WILL BE RECEIVED
FOR NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS
Throughout Our Denomination

Write for Free Literature and Offering Envelopes

NATIONAL HOME MISSIONS DEPT.

FREE WILL BAPTISTS

HOMER E. WILLIS, General Director
3801 Richland Avenue Nashville 5, Tennessee

DS ✓

the Free Will Baptist

DURHAM, N. C.

DURHAM, N. C. LIBRARY
NOV 16 1960

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, November 16, 1960

THANKFUL FOR THE HARVEST

by Neva D. Baker

When the Lord of the bountiful harvest
Gives His gifts to the children of men,
It's the time to give thanks and be grateful—
It's time for Thanksgiving again.

For the corn and the beans and potatoes,
For the cabbage and pumpkin and beet,
For the squash and the turnip and carrot,
For the oats and the barley and wheat.

For the apples and peaches and cherries,
For the prune and the plum and the pear,
For the grapes and the melons and berries,
For the honey and nuts we may share.

To the Lord of the bountiful harvest
Go the thanks of the children of men,
That the pantry and cellar and storehouse
Are replenished with food once again.

What Is Conversion?

by Charles J. Nobles
E. Wenatchee, Washington

IN THE general epistle of Jude, Christians are exhorted to “. . . earnestly contend for the faith once delivered unto saints” (Vs. 5). It is further declared certain ungodly men had crept in undiscovered, and were turning the grace of God into lasciviousness and denying the only God. We earnestly contend for, and insist upon the truth in these days, one is often accused of being argumentative. Just as the Early Church needed to take hold of Bible doctrine and earnestly contend for the faith delivered unto them, that sure, we should take heed that we do not accept the doctrine of men as equal authority.

CHRISTIANS ARE NOT REBELS

A few years ago, a religious professor of a certain school described conversion in a peculiar fashion. He compared man's soul to a rebellious son. He further stated that at the time of conversion Christ comes into the front of the house, but is forbidden to occupy the entire house. The idea of this illustration was to convey the theory that at conversion the new convert still retains his stubbornness and rebellion in his heart and needs a second work of grace to be cleansed from inbred sin.

In the Samuel 15:23, the old prophet is speaking to backsliden King Saul: “For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry . . .” I cannot help noticing the vast difference between the interpretation of a modern professor, to that of the prophet, Samuel. The prophet, Samuel, placed stubbornness and rebellion where it ought to be, with witchcraft, idol worshipers, and workers of iniquity, and not in the class of the converted.

The word of God tells us, “. . . if . . . thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul” (Deuteronomy 10:29). This does not mean half seeking and half holding back.

RIGHT SPIRIT WITHIN

King David, through lust, sinned against God and lost the wonderful fellowship he had enjoyed. Listen to him as he cries out for God's forgiveness. “Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. Make me to hear joy and gladness; that the bones which thou has broken may rejoice. Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities. Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me” (Psalm 51:7-9).

The prayer of King David would indicate that he realized his need of an inner cleansing from sin. Not as a saint of God, but as a sinner or backslider who had transgressed the divine command of a righteous and jealous God.

Every sinner needs the cleansing blood of Christ to wash away the sins of the old life, and as Paul would say, “. . . he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost” (Titus 3:5).

The power of Christ to convert sinners and deliver from the power of darkness is wonderful indeed. To those who cry out as David did can be washed by the blood of Jesus Christ. He can be clean, and washed whiter than snow. His iniquities can be blotted out.

The power to change the nature of man's life lies in no other than Jesus Christ Himself.

Let us take note of this last clause in David's prayer, renew a right spirit within me. This new spirit within makes the converted child of God to know joy and gladness, he rejoices in joy unspeakable and full of glory.

CONVERSION, A DEEP WORK

Conversion, as we understand the Scripture, is not repairing the old building, but it involves a tearing down of the old building and building a new one.

In the natural birth, we are born with our backs turned upon God and heaven, and our faces upon sin and hell. In sound conversion, a man is wholly given unto God, body, soul and spirit. He regards not sin in his heart, but has respect to all God's commandments. Conversion is a deep work; it is a heart work; it goes throughout the man, throughout the mind, throughout the members, throughout the entire life.

Christ either takes possession of our entire life, or He will have none of us. We are either working for God and His Kingdom, or we are working against Him. We are either serving the world, the flesh, the devil and ourselves, or we are serving God and others. With Scriptural teaching, it is not difficult for the sinner or the saint to know whom he is serving.

The word, convert, means to turn from a bad life to a good life; to change the heart and moral character from the controlling power of sin to that of holiness. A change from the services of the world to the services of God; a change of the ruling disposition of the soul and a transformation of the outward and inner life.

Using Bible terms, conversion is being born again by the incorruptible word of God; being made alive; created anew in Christ Jesus; transformed by the renewing of the mind; washed in pure water; saved by the power of God; receiving forgiveness of sins; being reconciled to God.

These are Scriptural terms which are applied to conversion. Do these terms apply to us?

IT'S A FACT

ONE OUT OF EVERY 4 MENTALLY DISTURBED AMERICANS IS AN ALCOHOLIC.
NAT. ASSO. FOR MENTAL HEALTH FIGURES

The Labor of

Elder Rufus K. Hearn

by George W. Stevenson Jr.

PERHAPS the most able and most dynamic figure ever produced by the Original Free Will Baptist Church of North Carolina was Elder Rufus K. Hearn. The amazing vitality of this great leader has never been recognized sufficiently in our church, and the great impression which he made on the church demands that someone point out to present Free Will Baptists their debt to him.

Rufus K. Hearn was born on October 20, 1819, to Elder Howell Hearn and his wife, Sarah. His father was one of the strongest leaders in the church following the invasion of the Philadelphia Association Baptists, in the third quarter of the eighteenth century. He and Elders Joseph Smith, Jesse Heath, Frederick Fonvielle and others, regathered the remnants of the General Baptists following the death of Elders Joseph and William Parker, and laboriously built up the Free Will Baptist church, so that by 1829 there were over thirty churches, thirty-three ordained ministers, and a membership of 1,910. In 1765 there were only three churches and three preachers—Elders Joseph Parker, William Parker and John Winfield with their respective churches, with less than eight hundred members. Elder Joseph Parker, before his death in 1791, organized the following churches: Gum Swamp in Pitt County; Little Creek and Grimsley, Greene County; Louson Swamp and Wheat Swamp, Lenoir County. The labors of Elders Joseph Smith, Howell Hearn, Jesse Heath and Frederick Fonvielle were tremendous labors of love. Elder Howell Hearn died in 1835, twenty years before his son became active in Free Will Baptist affairs.

The reader may question this long wait on the part of Rufus K. Hearn, for he was thirty-one years old before he joined the church, thirty-four before he was ordained, and thirty-six years old before he began his labors in the Free Will Baptist church. If one will rephrase the question and ask "Why did he begin at this late date?" rather than ask "Why did he wait so long?" the answer will be more easily understood. One cannot now say why he did not labor in the church in his early years. On the other hand, one can see why he was finally spurred to action. Elder Hearn's father, Elder

Howell Hearn, had been a strong advocate for uniting with various groups to strengthen the church. In 1829 and 1830 he had served on a delegation to various Disciples' conventions. He little knew of the terrific damage which the Disciples would later inflict upon the church in 1855. His son saw the frightful work of destruction, however, and when he saw the labor of his father lost and the Bethel Conference of the Free Will Baptist church threatened, Elder Rufus K. Hearn girded up his loins and prepared to carry on his father's labors. He joined Gum Swamp Church, Pitt County, in 1850, and was a member until his death in 1894. In 1853 he was ordained to the ministry, and in 1855 he began his labors. The year 1855 found Bethel Conference reduced to eighteen members, the others having joined the Disciples church. Elder Rufus K. Hearn was one of the eighteen ministers remaining.

He was appointed corresponding secretary of the newly organized conference for that year, and during the next thirty-five years, he served the General Conference in an executive capacity for twenty-five years, eighteen of which he served as clerk. He kept a written, official record of the General Conference during the entire thirty-five years and wrote biographical sketches of the ministers and a historical sketch of the Free Will Baptist church in North Carolina.

Elder Hearn carried on the work begun by his father. He first tried to repair the damage done by the Disciples, and in 1858 opened the way for Elder B. B. Albritton and his churches to return to the General Conference, and later for other ministers to come back within the fold. He favored the attempt at union with the Disciples and Union Baptists in 1867, with the Union Baptists in 1868, and with the United Baptists in 1869. He would never give in on such doctrines as salvation through faith in Christ, believer's baptism by immersion, open communion, and washing the saints feet; nor would he favor a change in the name "Original Free Will Baptist." Therefore, union never took place. He also sought union with the Free Will Baptists of Georgia in 1854, and supported a union with Southern Free Will Baptists in 1857. In 1869 he sought union with the Cape Fear Conference of Free Will Baptists. He would never see the fruit of his labor, but the ideals lived on in other men.

He used his influence to have the General Conference refuse to recognize ministers who did not abstain from liquor—Elder Elias Hutchins had commended the church at Pungo Creek, Craven County, in 1858, as being one of the very few churches which condemned drinking, and as late as 1869 the General Conference had to pass a resolution forbidding the sale of cider or anything that is intoxicating, within the bounds where the conference was convening. His hope was to raise the standards of the church to a high spiritual level, but to do so in a spirit of love. Many are the times when he asked the conference to forgive an offending brother, and to accept him back into the conference. His was a labor of love, not of prejudice. His was a beautiful and gentle spirit, the spirit of Christ. There is never an instance where Elder Hearn was condemned. Instead, he perfected the erroneous, and always labored for the glory of the Free Will Baptist church of God. After his death in 1894; with the advent of the holiness movement within the state of North Carolina, the ideals and hopes of Elder Hearn began to be attacked. The elders who knew and loved him passed on, younger men took his and their place.

Elder Hearn's prayer and hope was progress for the Free Will Baptist church and for an era when it could not be said the church, as had been said, "They were illiterate, opposed, considered heretics." He desired recognition for the church, a place of leadership for it in the state of North Carolina, and Christian leaders and laymen who were educated and who were filled with Christian love.

Elder Hearn knew that he could not accomplish his work in his lifetime, but

Cragmont Activities

by Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Wooten

sure foundations for those who would follow after him—foundations which have withstood the attacks of the present holiness movement in the church, but one cannot say how long it can withstand. As part of this tradition, Elder Hearn established the Free Will Baptist Press. This far-sighted man saw the possibilities of a press within the church, and in 1873 had the General Conference establish a church newspaper with Elder E. R. Ellis as editor. In 1879 he took over the poorly organized press and made it very successfully until ill health and age forced him to resign in 1890 at the age of seventy-one.

It was by his motion in 1889 that the North Carolina Free Will Baptists accepted the Incorporation Act of the North Carolina Legislature and became incorporated. In 1886 he helped establish the Eastern and Western Conferences. In 1887, to further strengthen his foundations, he went as a delegate to the South Carolina Conference for Free Will Baptists. He kept copies of the Confession of Faith printed and ready for distribution for the strengthening of the doctrine—he brought out editions in 1859, 1876, 1883 and 1887. He compiled the Free Will Baptist hymnal in 1854 which superseded the 1846 hymnal of Enoch Cobb and the 1832 hymnal of Jesse Heath.

Today, his carefully kept record book of the General Conference with its historical details, the labor of thirty-five years, is still existing. Only five copies of The Free Will Baptist printed by him, over a period of twenty years, are known to be in existence. One copy of his manuscript minutes of the General Conference, the labor of eighty years, is known and it is at Duke University. Where are these things?

The writer of this article would like to make one request to all Free Will Baptists. They should begin now to take up again the labor of Elder Rufus K. Hearn. Those of you in the Gum Swamp area and those of you in Drmondsville, Hookerton, Maury and Bern, search your attics and bookshelves for papers, minutes, letters, sketches, etc. of Elder Hearn and send them to the Free Will Baptist collection at Mount Olive College. It is time we awakened to the task he left for us and tried to recapture his vision. Our church is now at its most critical hour. We can either successfully recapture the vision of Elder Hearn and press on to a new renaissance and a period of unparalleled glory for the Original Free Will Baptist church in North Carolina or we can pursue the policies of the schismatic faction in the church and degenerate to a weak and fearful sect among many. Let us rise to the challenge and recapture the vision of Elder Rufus K. Hearn making his labor our labor—a labor of

DID you ever stop to think just what it would be like to spend a whole winter at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina? Or even to be up here in this great big house without a group of people or any one except you and the Lord? Think of the vacant rooms, the empty beds, the silent dining room and kitchen and all the stacked empty chairs! From the chapel not a note of music, no minister's voice, no testimonies from the hearts and lips of young people, nor any sound save the rattle of the windows under the pressure of a searching wintry north wind.

Dear friends, it is not quite like it is when you are here. Now please do not get the wrong impression. It is not as bleak and lonely as you might think. We have many good and dear friends here who frequently come in to see us, besides the people who come to the mountains just to behold the beauty of nature in the pictures of autumn colors, and call in to spend some time with us.

Then we can always find something to do. We can and freeze the nice fruit our friends bring us, and try to mend all the bed linen and other things that get torn and tattered during the summer and are ready to go into winter quarters reduced to fragmentary parts. It really takes the winter months to make ready for the summer. But with all these things, it is really a pleasure to be here, and we want our friends to know that we are happy in the Lord. We are staying here to try to make this a better Cragmont for you to come to. We love the place and we love you, and we sincerely thank you for your prayers and encouragement in every way. Please continue to pray for us and support Cragmont as the Lord leads you. This is your institution.—Mrs. Wooten.

Well, the summer of 1960 was pleasant, profitable and inspirational here at Cragmont. The conferences were well attended. They were well organized and under the supervision of capable and splendid Christian directors and instructors. There were many conversions, and a large number of young people yielded themselves to the Lord and dedicated their lives to His service. Many adults as well, especially among the women who attended the Woman's Auxiliary Conference, were encouraged and inspired in the services and through their Christian fellowship experiences.

The personal experiences are now in the past, but the spiritual enrichment and Christian zeal which found lodgment in the hearts and lives of many young people will spring up and bear fruit that will be recognized and felt in future generations. The world is in desperate need and men everywhere need to know the Saviour. The youth of our day must be helped and properly guided to Christ, and trained for service in His cause.

Cragmont, like all institutions and individuals, has its problems and sometimes difficulties. We have been faced with some this year, but we are thankful that we can truthfully say that we have bright prospects for operations for 1961. We had only three open weeks during the conference months this year—June through August. It now appears likely that the full twelve weeks next summer may be filled. You will hear from the directors on the field in due time. We sincerely insist that parents, churches, all organized church groups and interested individuals, encourage the young people to come to Cragmont for at least one conference. Make inquiry and ask for information from the directors.

Cragmont needs your prayers and support that it may prepare for greater and more efficient service. The new motel-style building is equipped and ready for use. The main building, as we have stated before, has been repaired and painted, and money has been spent in other improvements. The new building with the furniture has cost upward of $18,000. The repairs and paint for the old building cost approximately $4,000. The receipts for the year, up to November 1, have been encouraging ($15,600) but not enough to pay operating expenses and meet all other obligations.

Money was borrowed and payments come due and have to be paid. We have done well this year, thanks be unto the Lord. But we still owe about $500 on the furniture which was purchased on the installment plan, and the insurance premiums will be due in January next. If you, friends of Cragmont, can see fit to assist in this worthy cause by January 1, 1961, you will do the Assembly a great favor and assist it in helping young people to find the Saviour and prepare to serve Him in their local churches and in other fields. We sincerely believe that God will bless your every effort and give you joy and peace. Thank you very much.

Address all mail to Cragmont Assembly, Route 1, Black Mountain, North Carolina.

NEWS NOTES

Revival in Progress at First Church, Vanceboro, N. C.

Revival services began at the First Will Baptist Church, Vanceboro, North Carolina, November 14, and will continue through November 19. The Rev. F. A. Armstrong Jr. is the evangelist. Services are beginning each evening at 7:30.

Sunday, November 20, the church observes its annual home-coming. Following the morning worship, a picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds.

The church and the pastor, the Rev. W. Cleve Jr., extends a cordial welcome to everyone to attend these services and to offer your prayers for their success. Special offerings are also invited to attend and take part in the services.

Calvary Church Observed Second Baptismal Service

The Calvary Free Will Baptist Church of Portsmouth, Virginia, observed its second baptismal service November 6, 1960. There were four who followed the Lord in baptism. The Rev. Henry Van Kluyck, pastor of the church.

The church reporter, Mrs. E. V. Weathers states: "We praise the Lord for the wonderful growth and blessings we have seen in our new church. We request the prayers of all Christians for our continual success."

National Superannuation Report For October, 1960

Mrs. K. V. Shutes, secretary-treasurer of the National Superannuation Board of Will Baptists, presents the following financial report for the month ending October 31, 1960:

Cash on Hand October 1, 1960	$4,350.00
Receipts
From States:
Georgia	$32.01
North Carolina	37.55
Tennessee	2.00
Virginia	4.65
From Insured on Premiums	90.14
Total Receipts	164.35
Total to Account For	$4,514.35
Disbursements
Ministers Life and casualty Union, Premiums on Insured	$273.62
Secretarial Services	60.00
Total Disbursements	333.62
Balance in Treasury October 31, 1960	$4,180.73

Home-Coming Services to Be Observed at Rock Spring Church

Home-coming services will be observed at Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church on Sunday, November 20.

Home-Coming and Harvest Day At Free Union Church

The Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Pinetown, North Carolina, will observe its home-coming and harvest day on Sunday, November 20, with the pastor, the Rev. A. B. Bryan, bringing the message. An all-day service is being planned and an enjoyable day is expected by all. Local advertisement is being done with airplane and sound system by Mr. Monroe Everette, a member of the congregation, and the pastor. Harvest offering which is expected to reach $3,000 or over will be given in procession by the congregation upon an open Bible. Lunch will be served at the noon hour with plenty of food and drinks for all.

Beginning at 1:15 p. m., there will be a program packed full of good music by choirs, quartets and other special groups. Mr. Oscar Webster will give a historical outline of nearly two centuries of the local church. Attorney O. L. Williams, and outstanding layman of the Methodist church, will be the feature speaker on the afternoon program. Mr. Williams is a former representative of the General Assembly, clerk of Superior Court, director of a Hyde County bank, former president of the district bar, and is at present a Hyde County attorney.

Former members, former pastors and friends are invited to attend this all-day service which is expected to be uplifting and gratifying to all who attend. The public is invited to share the day with the Free Union Church.

Rev. A. B. Bryan

Coming Events

- November 24—Thanksgiving Day
- December 14—Founder's Day, Mount Olive College
- December 25—Christmas Day
- January 25—Spring Semester Begins at Mount Olive College

Bailey, North Carolina, Sunday, November 20, with the Rev. Willie Renfrow carrying the message. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at the 11 o'clock hour. Plans are being made for special singing in the afternoon. All former members and friends are invited to attend this service.

Ray Harrison Directing Croatan Revival

Revival services are now in progress at the Croatan Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, New Bern, North Carolina, with the pastorate of the Rev. Ray Harrison, as the speaker. The meeting began November 13, and will continue through November 20.

The pastor and the members of the church ask that you remember these services in prayer, and if possible attend the remaining nights of this meeting.

Juniper Chapel Church Announces Revival

The Juniper Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Vanceboro, North Carolina, announces its fall revival November 23, with the Rev. Jack Paramore as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 p. m.

The Rev. H. W. Armstrong extends a very cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services. Every one is requested to pray for a great revival and that many decisions for Christ will be made during these services.

Central Conference of N. C. Continues Requirement

At the annual meeting of the Central Conference of Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, meeting at Free Union Church, Lenoir County, the conference voted by a two-thirds margin to discontinue the two-year experience requirement for the ordination of its members.

The matter has been the point of deep discussion, both pro and con, since its adoption by the conference in 1953. The chief reason for its discontinuance was based on the fact that no other conference has such a requirement in this state.

According to reports, the majority of the governing Council members preferred the continuance of the ruling. The chairman of the Council is the Rev. D. W. Alexander of Lenoir County.

The conference reported a very nice session. The Rev. Walter Reynolds of Snow Camp was elected as moderator for the next two years. He succeeded the Rev. F. B. McPherson of Greenville, who has served for the past two years. The Rev. C. L. Patrick was selected as assistant moderator; the Rev. J. H. Harris was re-elected as treasurer; the

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

An Important Day for Young People

Saturday, November 26, 1960, should be one of the great days for Free Will Baptist

Rev. C. H. Overman was re-elected as secretary. The Rev. LaRue Davis was elected as assistant secretary. The Rev. R. B. Crawford was elected as a member of the executive board.

Children's Home Report For October, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, reports the following receipts for October, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual, auxiliary, or organization contributing, but totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt:

GENERAL FUND
Albemarle Conference	$ 41.56
Blue Ridge Association	33.77
Cape Fear Conference	58.14
Central Conference	752.37
Eastern Conference	1,079.57
French Broad Association	70.27
Jack's Creek Association	406.79
Mount Mitchell Association	82.50
Pee Dee Association	105.68
Rockfish Conference	15.00
Western Conference	481.63
Miscellaneous	3,571.37
Farmer Picture Program	1,331.39
CLOTHING FUND
Albemarle Conference	40.00
Cape Fear Conference	40.00
Central Conference	136.00
Eastern Conference	80.00
Piedmont Association	40.00
Western Conference	190.00
KITCHEN FUND
Albemarle Conference	50.00
Cape Fear Conference	5.00
Eastern Conference	25.00
Western Conference	3.00
CENTRAL CONFERENCE BUILDING FUND
Central Conference	35.62
Total October Receipts	$8,674.66

young people of North Carolina. It should also be a day of historic interest in the story of our North Carolina Free Will Baptist Sunday School Convention.

For the young people, it has been designated as "Cragmont Youth Rally Day." All the young people who attended the youth conferences sponsored by the Sunday School Convention during this year at Cragmont Assembly are meeting for a wonderful day together in sweet fellowship, and to relive their experience at our summer assembly. All young people are cordially invited. An all-day program (10:00 a. m. until 4:00 p. m.) is being arranged. It will consist of singing (yea, brother!), skits, playlets, testimonies of campers, the summer at Cragmont—in short "The Best of Cragmont."

The place? Didn't we tell you? Forgive us! It's the First Free Will Baptist Church in Wilson. 301, 264, 58, 42, 117—any of these highways will get you there. 70, 43, 258, 11, 222, 701—these are just some of the highways that will get you to roads to Wilson.

President Raper to Speak At Elm Grove Church

President W. Burkette Raper of Mount Olive College has announced two speaking engagements for Sunday, November 20.

At 11:00 a. m., he will preach at Elm Grove Church near Ayden, North Carolina. The Reverend N. B. Barrow is pastor. At 7:00 p. m., Dr. Raper will speak at vesper services opening the annual session of the North Carolina Farm Bureau in Raleigh.

Dean Michael Pelt to Speak at White Oak Grove Church

Dean Michael Pelt of Mount Olive College will preach Sunday, November 20, at 11:00 a. m. at White Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church near LaGrange, North Carolina. The Reverend Robert Fader is pastor.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Why is it that some of the best Christians we have known are called upon to suffer the most?—N. J., Partridge, Illinois.

Answer: We might find a good many Scriptural reasons given that explain why God allows some of the most devoted saints to suffer a great deal in this life. One who has read the Bible consistently for a long time finds his mind reviewing a number of passages when this question comes up. Job is one of those that I think of on such occasions. His suffering here in this life, there is no doubt, prepared him to enjoy the abundant goodness of God more during the rest of his earthly life; but that is not all, for his name has not only lived in the book portraying the suffering that he experienced and then the goodness of God, but his name appears in several places in the Bible and best of all in each case with some of the most loved of Bible characters. I doubt not that one may enjoy heaven more after willingly undergoing hardships while here; then again according to God's Word, He uses the suffering of His saints to work out His own purpose and their good.

A craftsman who designs to make a beautiful and useful vessel may put several kinds of pressure on his material through which he proposes to make the vessel. If the material is pliable, he can beat it if metal and cut it if wood until his vessel has been shaped into the completed one of his dream and desire. On the other hand, if when he has worked with the material a while it proves to be of such nature or quality that it will not take the pressure, pounding or cutting, he is forced to one of two conclusions: either discard that with which he has earnestly and industrially worked and get other material, or abandon the idea of completing his desired vessel.

God never gives up. In some cases, He gives up the object or material but never the finished product but always achieves it in one way or another. "And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience" (Romans 5:3); "Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience" (James 1:3). Whereas trials may embitter one who does not love God, on the other hand, they serve to burn the dross out of a Christian, while he allows his all-wise and ever merciful heavenly Father to mold and shape his life at His will. Like Job, those undergoing God's tests may say, ". . . when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold" (Job 23:10), or "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him: . . ." (Job 13:15).

There have been cases like Job's when God allows His saints to be an example before an ungodly world, demons, men, angels and even Satan himself. Such a display of Godliness under extreme opposition has been a means of causing hundreds of the unsaved to turn to God and a life of loyalty and devotion to His cause, even when they did not know the reason for the bitter trials to which they were subjected. Job knew nothing of Satan's accusation of himself to God; yet he retained his integrity, and his faith did not fail. "Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God" (2 Corinthians 1:3, 4). It takes sorrow itself to bring a real genuine sympathetic understanding of the needs of those who are passing through the fires of sorrow. "That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made comfortable unto his death" (Philippians 3:10); "And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (2 Corinthians 12:9). Paul prayed for and received a generous supply of that which prepared him for the life of servitude that none can render except those who God prepares in His all sufficient training program. O that we might recognize the fact that His grace is sufficient for all and that when we are yielded all things work together for good to us. Tribulation when received in the right attitude on the part of the saint, causes him to set (his) affections on things above.

"If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth" (Colossians 3:1, 2). Furthermore in such, the saint is helped to get fixed in a more permanent way in his mind the fact that we are to find no continuing city here and, therefore, will remind us not to give too much time to thoughts on perishable things. (See Hebrews 13:11:10.) When all is said and done, we helped in the things God allows us to suffer to better understand the fact. "The things I have spoken unto you, that in ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer, have overcome the world" (John 16:33). When we have properly identified ourselves with Him, His experiences and the results thereof are appropriated to us.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETA
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

YOUR TIME IS IMPORTANT

"See then that ye walk circumspectly, as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time because the days are evil" (Ephesians 5:16).

This is the third of four meditations on the general subject of the correct use of time—the time God gives to each of us. The fourth one will come to you the week after Thanksgiving. Last week I gave you a great poem which had an important message on the value of time. Now we will consider the importance of our time. The next one will deal with the improvement of our God-given time.

That the time God is giving us will be denied by no person capable of rational reflection.

Let us think of our time in relation to eternity. With man there are two periods—time and eternity. Our existence in this world is the introductory period of our life, and will be succeeded by our transition into the solemnities of an eternal state. Time hurries all generations to eternity.

Time has been described as a preparatory state for our entrance into eternity. No man in their natural being is prepared, nor are the appliances of reason and philosophy bring us that preparation. There is however, a method of obtaining it. Jesus died for sinners, and salvation is offered to the world in His name. Those who have experienced personal salvation through His blood and who live in faithful obedience to His commands are prepared for eternity. Preparation ity is the work of time. Salvation, if ined at all, must be obtained in this There can be no repentance, no ng faith, no regeneration, no justificaafter death. The blood of atonement be applied to the guilty soul on this of the grave—on the other side. never.

 regenerating Spirit may do His work in if so allowed—in eternity He never hen let us think of the importance of in relation to its brevity. The Bible es that time is short. Life is compared he grass which withers and dies. It is ed a vapor. Is it necessary to elaborate he truth that time is short? It then ws that if time is short, it is of the est importance that we use it, every nd of it, to the glory of God. When now that it is short, and that during ontinuance, transactions of infinite im-nance are to be performed, or, if unpered, the soul will be lost. And the souls ountless others may be lost. Someone rightly said, "Truly our moments are n moments."

inally, let us think of the importance
 ne in relation to the fact that the flight me is irrevocable. Time once gone, is forever. No calling it back. No rees, no tears, no prayers, no lamentations bring it back. It hastens to make its ot to eternity. This is true of moments, eds, minutes, hours, days, weeks, chs, years, a lifetime—all time. How-we may regret the misuse of fleeting it never comes back for future use.
 so important that God expects us to et as He gives it, because then there will

(continued on page ten)

Unknown What a Girl Can Make

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

Unknown what a girl can make—ere's pent up in her mind;
 in her heart and in her soul eat traits that she should find;
 a faculties that no one knows,
 rhaps of mighty worth,
 ch if released to God and man
 ould richly bless the earth.

Unknown what a girl can make
 in her days of youth, seeks and finds the Lord of light and builds upon His truth, has His grace to keep her pure,
 ls love to keep her sweet,
 shuns the tempter's many snares
 and all that would defeat.

It's unknown what a girl can make—
 Perhaps some qucenly bride
 Who could adorn some husband's home
 And thus become his pride;
 Whose virtue might become a gem
 That riches cannot buy;
 Whose character and noble name
 Could lift his manhood high.

It's unknown what a girl can make
 In countryside or town,
 Who may become in future years
 A woman of renown;
 Whose life and work may bless the earth
 And last across the years
 To save ten thousands hearts and souls
 Remorse and bitter tears.

It's unknown what a girl can make—
 Perhaps a mother true,
 Whose Godly life could bless her home
 And help her country, too;
 Or who could be a noble nurse
 And wait upon the ill,
 And help them through her love and prayers
 Into the Father's will.

It's unknown what a girl can make—
 Encourage her to climb;
 She may become a teacher great
 And rise to heights sublime;
 Or she may help the business world
 In some important place,
 Or bring a host of precious souls
 To God and saving grace.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
 THE EDITOR.

SAINTLY BUSINESS

(John 21:22)

Introduction: Regardless of your occupation, as a Christian your full-time responsibility is to live and labor for the King of glory!
 Making a living and providing for your family is commanded by God. But we must remember that this is secondary! Our most important joy is that of living for the Saviour. We are to follow Him in this respect:

- I. We Must Imitate His Example (1 Peter 2:21)
 1. In discerning the will of the Father (Matthew 26:39).
 2. In compassion for the lost (Matthew 9:36).
 3. In praying for the lost (Matthew 26:37).
 4. In frank rebuke to the lost and hypocritical (Matthew 23:1-33).
- II. We Must Obey His Word (Mark 1:17, 18)
 1. You can depend on the Word of God being true (1 Kings 8:20).
 2. You can see that the Word is a cure for the soul (Psalm 107:20).
 3. You will realize your fondest hopes through the Word (Psalm 130:5).
 4. You will possess a purified heart by the purifying Word (Jeremiah 20:9).
- III. We Must Deny this Present Life and World (Matthew 6:33)
 1. This life and world offer only the lust of the flesh (1 John 2:16).
 2. This life and world offer only the lust of the eyes (1 John 2:16).
 3. This life and world offer only the pride of life (1 John 2:16).
 4. This life and world are to soon pass away (1 John 2:17).

(Continued from Page Nine)

be more to use if He spares us, but there is no duplicate of lost time.

"Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that. But now ye rejoice in your boastings: all such rejoicing is evil" (James 4:13-16).

Because we desire to see The Free Will Baptist going each week into every home in the denomination, we have adopted three plans whereby subscriptions are solicited for us on the field:

1. The Every Family Plan: Under this arrangement the local church votes to place The Free Will Baptist in each home in its membership. The church clerk sends us the names and correct mailing addresses of the families in the church. Upon receipt of the list of names and addresses, we send The Free Will Baptist to these people and bill the church quarterly for the entire subscription price for the quarter less 10 per cent. If any families in the church are ready subscribers, we subtract the amount of their credit from the quarterly Names can be added to or subtracted from the church list at any time, upon notification from the church clerk. Bills are sent by us to the churches on this plan according to the calendar quarter.

2. The Church Group Plan: This arrangement is designed for organizations in churches which do not adopt the Every Family Plan. If any church group such as a Sunday school class, the woman's society, a league or other group wishes to solicit subscriptions for us, we ask that they send us five subscriptions in the first quarter deducting ten per cent from their total subscription collection at the individual subscription price ($2 per year), keep the remaining ten per cent for their treasury and send us the remainder of their collection together with the names and correct mailing addresses of the subscription solicited. For instance, if a church group solicits five subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist in its first quarter, its total collection for these subscriptions should be $10. The group keeps $1 for its treasury and sends us $9, together with the names and addresses of the people to whom The Free Will Baptist is to be sent for one year. The plan starts anew at the beginning of each fiscal year, July 1, and no credits given in any one year may be carried over and credited on the new year.

3. Individual Solicitations: In any church which is not following Plan 1 or 2, we can give an individual an avenue of outstanding service to the Lord. Any individual who wishes to solicit five one-year subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist and send us the full subscription collection ($2 per year per subscriber), we shall place his name on our honor roll of solicitors to appear monthly in The Free Will Baptist. When he has solicited 10 one-year subscriptions in any fiscal year, we shall allocate a bonus subscription to his credit; he may use this bonus to renew his own subscription for one year or may send us the name and mailing address of some other person to whom we will send The Free Will Baptist for one year without charge.

Any church group or individual interested in soliciting subscriptions under Plan 1 or Plan 2 should contact us and let us send you receipt books and subscription blanks to your convenience in administering this plan.

Editorial Department
The Free Will Baptist
Post Office Box 507
Ayden, North Carolina

IV. We Must Give Him All the Glory (Romans 16:27)

1. Glory exposed to flesh brings pride (Acts 12:20-23; Matthew 17:1-4).
2. Glory misappropriated caused the condescension of man (Romans 1:21-23).
3. Glory which belongs to God cannot be shared with another (Isaiah 42:8).
4. Glory shall be produced in us after these earthly sufferings (Romans 8:18).

V. We Must Allow Our Lives to Be Used for His Service (Acts 9:6)

1. Let us realize that we are not our own but God's (1 Corinthians 6:19, 20).
2. Let us meet for regular worship of the Lord (Hebrews 10:25).
3. Let us proclaim the gospel to all the world (Matthew 28:19; Acts 1:8).
4. Let us above all be true to the trust that is ours (1 Timothy 1:14).

THE ROCK DIDN'T TREMBLE

A vessel was wrecked one stormy night on the rocks off the coast of England. All were drowned except an Irish boy. The waves swept him onto a great rock. In the morning he was seen holding onto the large rock. He was rescued. One asked, "Lad, didn't you tremble out there on the rock during the storm?" "Sure I trembled," said the boy, "but the rock didn't tremble once all night long!" How safe are God's children who are upon the Rock, Christ Jesus!—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

MADE WHOLE

A minister preached one night in a mission. He talked about the question which Jesus asked a sick man: "Wilt thou be made whole?" The minister said, "Fellows, you don't want to be patched up. You want to be made whole." A man who had lived in sin for many years, and was now a new creature in Christ, stood and said, "That's it! That's it! I patched up for years, but the patches fell off or made greater holes. I became a hard drinker. I lost my job. My wife and children went away to her parents. One wet, cold, windy night, as I sat half asleep in the doorway of an empty house, someone asked me to come to this mission. Here the Lord Jesus found me. He didn't patch me up. He made me whole—a brand-new man!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

A GREAT MESSAGE

Rev. Ralph Lightsey, pastor of St. John's Free Will Baptist Church in New York, N. C., preached the conference message at the Eastern Conference, October 1958, for a text John 12:32, which reads; "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." The lifting up of Christ for the sins of humanity was visualized greatly and illustrated as Lightsey did. Also, by the drawing power of the lifted Christ, people were urged to lift Christ in daily living. This is to be done in all of our activities.

Before Mr. Lightsey began his message on this text, he put in some good words about Christian education, saying in part; "I am a trustee of the Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, and I have taught there. It brings rejoicing to me to look at you in this audience and see some of you whom I have taught. I am for the Bible College, but I am also for Mount Olive Junior College. We need both these colleges. We need to support them. I have been acquainted with Dr. Raper while he was in Duke University together. I would love to love him. He is a clean, conscientious Christian gentleman."

I thank God for such a man as Ralph Lightsey. A man who is broad enough to see that we, as a denomination stand in need of, and is able to express in an honest way the merits. Continuing Mr. Lightsey said, "The Bible College is not perfect, neither is Mount Olive College. I am pastoring a church that is not perfect, neither is this church have a perfect pastor, but we are all striving to reach perfection." I think that we as a denomination ought to be proud of such men as Ralph Lightsey, Dr. W. B. Raper, Dr. L. C. Johnson and others that I could mention if we had space, but there are other things on our mind that we must get out.

SINFUL NATION

Recently I have received a copy of a pamphlet entitled Pornography-Challenges Our Culture. Should you like to get this leaflet, write to United Evangelical Action, P. O. Box 28, Wheaton, Illinois. You can get a dozen copies for $1.00 or single copies for 10¢ each.

EXCERPTS FROM THE PAPER

"A teen-age ring, engaging in tri-weekly love-and-drink sex orgies was uncovered by a chief of police in the suburbs of one of America's large cities."

From what we can find out it is not only in large cities, but very small towns and communities are going wild after the sin of sex orgies. Not too long ago, as I was walking along the street where there was no sidewalk, I saw a booklet lying beside the road on a church lot near the back where darkness covers up a lot of sin. I picked this booklet up and began to read. It was so rotten that I could read but little of it. Knowing that a just and righteous God was seeing me with this diabolical rotten booklet, I had to tear it up and scatter it so that no one could ever piece it together. However, it showed signs of being read very much. I could not even show such a vulgar thing to my wife.

This brings me to the fact that on many newsstands there is much vulgar literature that is full of sex writings that are only for the mind that is filled with lust and sex desires that ought to be outlawed.

In the leaflet, Pornography, it is said; "Two hundred thousand unwed mothers were reported last year. Others, covered up, did not become statistics. A Harvard sociologist estimated that as far back as 1956 between 330,000 and 1,200,000 abortions a year were being performed. Many in both categories were very young, some mere children."

THE LAST DAYS

Jesus Christ said, ". . . as in the days of Noe, were, so shall the coming of the Son of man be" (Matthew 24:37). How was it in the days of Noah? Let us notice Genesis 6:5, "And GOD saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually."

We are bound to be near the end of time. We see and hear of the most hideous crimes being committed every day. Murder, rape, false accuser, and in fact everything that Holy Writ states will be in the last days.

According to the record as stated in the Pornography, "Juvenile Delinquency increased 8 per cent in 1958. This just continued the trend which had seen it rise 45 per cent in the five preceding years." It is also stated that crime has skyrocketed in the 10-17 age group.

WHAT IS THE CAUSE?

Many people are asking, "What is the cause?" Well, there may be many causes. One of them is too much leisure time. This will be disputed by some people, but it is not against the law to think, or to express your thoughts today; but it may be unlawful in ten years to even express your sincere thoughts. It can be. Constitutions can be changed.

First, too much leisure time. When I was a boy, I had to work on the farm every evening when I got home from school. I had no time to gather up with a crowd and get off into mischief. Saturdays were work days. All through the summer months, we had work, plenty to do. My father use to say, "An idle brain was the devil's work shop." Now a boy or girl cannot work until they are sixteen years old—no job, all play when not in study.

Second, the movies and television are a means of children getting the ideas of crime. They see it and by seeing, a desire is created to try it out.

Third, and biggest reason is ungodly, liquor drinking, gambling mothers and fathers. After all, I think that youth is pretty good considering their parents. My observation is that 90 per cent of juvenile delinquency comes from broken and sin soaked homes.

ENVIRONMENTS

There are some children who are led astray by association with children out of homes who are being raised, not reared, but raised. A great minister of the gospel was asked by a critic, "What makes your children so bad?" The minister replied, "Because they have to go to school and play with yours." This contains a lot of truth. Children out of good homes, where they have been taught to live right, get in touch with the roughnecks where they play and it is not long before the well-trained child is following the ungodly. There are exceptions, however. I have known children who had been brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, to be able to lead the sinful, and what is called bad child, to the Lord and make a righteous boy, by the grace of God, a good respectful child and in many instances a Christian.

Subscription Honor Roll

Mrs. J. J. Blizzard, Deep Run, N. C.	38
Wom. Aux., Marsh Swamp Church, Sims, N. C.	23
Mrs. R. L. Goff, Fountain, N. C.	18
W. C. Hill, Mount Olive, N. C.	14
Wom. Aux., Mt. Zion Church, Nashville, N. C.	13
Wom. Aux., White Oak Hill Church, Bailey, N. C.	11
R. W. Allman, Benson, N. C.	11
Walter Sutton, Williamston, N. C.	10
Jimmie Tyndall, Pink Hill, N. C.	9
J. C. Griffin, Bridgeton, N. C.	9
William Webster, Pinetown, N. C.	9
Mrs. J. W. Wilson, LaGrange, N. C.	8
Wom. Aux., Gethsemane Church, New Bern, N. C.	8
Melvin K. Everington, Sims, N. C.	7
Mrs. Corbett Morris, Vanceboro, N. C.	7
Mrs. J. E. Smith, Deep Run, N. C.	7
C. L. Patrick, Walstonburg, N. C.	7
Mrs. Kathleen Slade, Merritt, N. C.	7
Wom. Aux., Little Creek Church, Ayden, N. C.	7
Wom. Aux., Pine Level Church, Pine Level, N. C.	6
Mrs. Marvin E. Little, Newport News, Va.	5
Mrs. C. H. Owens, Saratoga, N. C.	5
Mrs. Martha M. Braxton, Winterville, N. C.	5
Mrs. C. F. Heath, Cove City, N. C.	5
Mrs. Ed Hill, Ayden, N. C.	5
M. B. Hutchinson, McArthur, Ohio	5
Wom. Aux., Mosley's Creek, Dover, N. C.	5

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

"IN DEED AND IN TRUTH"

by Irma Hegel

THE school bus had rolled on its way, and Jack Krushen trudged beside twelve-year-old Sally Miller for the quarter-mile hike home. Suddenly Jack stopped, nudging Sally.

"Look at that dog coming our way," he cried. "Did you ever see such a beauty?"

Sally cowered close to Jack because the dog was so big and brown and his huge ears flopped in the spring breeze.

"Is he going to bite us?" she whispered.

Jack laughed. "Can't you see his tail wagging? Here, boy," he called.

The dog bounded to him at once, his coat gleaming like satin in the April sunlight. His cold nose nuzzled Jack's outstretched fingers, and the boy patted the noble head. "Yes, sir, you sure are a beauty," he repeated.

"That must be the dog's owner just rounding the curve," Sally declared.

Jack looked up. In the distance he could see a boy advancing toward them. He was red-headed and wore a leather jacket. He couldn't have been any older than they were, Jack decided.

"I wonder who he is," he murmured to Sally. "I thought I knew all the fellows in Dashville. And why do you suppose he hasn't showed up at school? Maybe he's just a visitor."

"Better get to the side," Sally warned. "There's a car coming."

It was an outdated model with rusted fenders. The radiator had been dented and never repaired. A few feet from the boy and girl, the car stopped and a gray-haired man in overalls alighted to look at a front tire.

The dog bounded to the driver, and the man patted the animal and coaxed him into the car. The friendly dog jumped in. The man banged the door shut, ran around to the other side and got in himself. The old car sputtered and chugged on down the road.

"That couldn't have been his dog," Jack cried, staring after the departing car. He looked toward the boy in the leather jacket, racing up the road. "The dog must belong to the redhead. But why didn't he whistle to his pet? Why did he let that man take his dog?"

"Jack, look at that boy," said Sally. "He's crying! It was his dog and we just stood here, watching."

The red-haired boy reached them, the tears streaking down his face. He pointed excitedly after the car.

"Why didn't you call your dog?" Jack demanded.

The boy pointed toward the car, then to his mouth and ears.

"This boy is deaf and dumb," Sally said in an awed voice. "That's why he didn't call his dog."

Jack's momentary anger melted into instant pity. He pulled a pad and pencil from his books and wrote: "Your dog?" The boy nodded. Jack wrote again: "We're your friends. We will help. My name is Jack Krushen. Hers, Sally Miller. What's yours?" The red-haired boy read the message, then he took the pencil and printed: "Victory Harrington, Pine Ridge, R. F. D. 1, 357."

"357 must be his phone," Jack murmured to Sally.

He wanted to ask Victor some more questions, but the boy started crying again, turned and went running back down the road.

"How can you promise we'll help?" Sally snorted. "What can we do? We can't be a friend to someone we've never seen before."

"We can, too," Jack argued. "We've got friends we don't know, and we're going to call on them right now."

"Who are they?" Sally asked, her blue eyes widening in a curious manner.

"The state police. Their barracks are along the main road."

"They'll just laugh at us."

"They won't do anything of the sort. You come along. You'll see."

The boy and the girl began running along the rutted country road. After they rounded the curve, they took a short cut to the turnpike. Another stretch and the low brick building of the state troopers came into view. Holding Sally's hand tightly in his own, Jack marched up to the door and into the hall.

"What can we do for you?" a tall sun-browned trooper demanded, his face beaming under his broad-brimmed hat.

"We saw a dog get taken into a car," Jack spoke up bravely. "The dog didn't belong to the man who took it."

"Come along," said the trooper. He led the boy and girl into a room where another trooper in uniform sat before a desk, writing.

"Sergeant," the trooper declared, "the youngsters saw a dog snatched."

"Well!" the sergeant exclaimed, pushing his work aside and smiling at them. "The dog yours?"

"No, sir," Jack answered. "The dog belongs to Victor Harrington, Pine Ridge, R. F. D. 1. Victor's mute. That's why he couldn't call his dog."

"Ah," said the sergeant. "I suppose you can't describe the man or the car."

"The man was gray-haired and dressed in overalls—he looked to be a farmer," informed the trooper. "The car was a Chevy, 1956 model. I didn't get the license number. I was too excited."

The sergeant's smile broadened. "You are certainly an observing young man, and I'm approved. 'Just how could you tell it was a '56 and a Chevrolet?'"

"Last summer, our family took a trip to Maine," Jack explained. "I got restless. Dad, Mom, and I played a guessing game. We'd guess the names and years of passing cars. I made a lot of mistakes. Dad told me what to look for, and I got so I could tell cars pretty well."

"I wish some of the grownups would make use of their eyes and heads," the sergeant mused. "Tell me your name and address, and we'll let you know if we find the dog."

Jack spelled out his name and address and left the barracks, Sally at his side.

"There!" he exclaimed. "You see? Those men are friends, too."

Sally smiled. "The troopers were nice," she admitted. "I've always been afraid of policemen, but not any more. I do hope they find Victor's dog. Victor did cry so hard."

At home, Jack related the incident to his mother and waited patiently for the phone to ring. The telephone remained silent all the remainder of the afternoon.

Dad came home and was told the story. Dinner passed, and still no word. Dad opened his spelling book and tried to memorize words. He wasn't succeeding at all.

Suddenly the front doorbell rang, and Jack lunged toward it before his father or mother had a chance to rise. It was Sally who stood in the cold, a red sweater pulled over her blue cotton dress.

"Any news, Jack?"

(continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Study Course on Japan

On Saturday, November 5, 1960, the Y. W. C. A. of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Newport News, Virginia, enjoyed a study course on missions at the home of W. O. Deuell.

The setting for the study course was in a room at the home. At the door was a torii with the sign, "Welcome to the land of the rising sun." We were greeted by the hostess, a Japanese woman with the salutation, "Koan-wee-chee-wa O-ha-ee-woo-da" translated as, "Good afternoon, please come in." Then in Japanese we were invited to have a seat. After removing our shoes we put on getas and were given a white tunic apron to wear.

The devotions were brought by Jane McElroy, using for her Scripture, Ecclesiastes 9:10.

Emphasizing in her talk the first part of the verse, "Whatsoever thy hand doeth, do it with thy might; . . ." she stressed the importance of them, as Christians young people, living daily so their names would see Christ living in them. We were witnessing for Him who died for all.

After the devotions, we were invited to sit at a table for tea. This was served on the table in Japanese style with an authentic Japanese tea set and Japanese food. The table was set with mats, place cards, napkins, kokeski doll picks and kokeski doll erasers, as favors.

Japan made us conscious of other countries and how much we had to be thankful for. As we ate and enjoyed the Japanese food we discussed the customs, food and geography of Japan. The place cards had a picture written in the place for our name. Each person read their Scripture and we discussed how each verse stressed the importance of witnessing for Christ.

During our discussion, while seated at the table, we were told how the people would be brought through the torii to get to the shrine by their fortune, and if the fortune was what they desired, how they would receive it on the fortune tree. Each person received a fortune from the fortune tree and discussed how the gospel would help in each of these instances.

We also studied about the location and work of our missionaries in Japan. At the end of our study, Mrs. Deuell taught us the book, "God and Missions Today," by Arthur Pearson. This was a most interesting study. She brought some very good points that made each of us realize more the importance of missions.

When we said, "Good evening," at the door we felt that we had spent a most profitable afternoon in the study of missions.

Mrs. J. K. Bryan Jr.
Youth Chairman

Illinois District Auxiliary Meets

The Illinois District Woman's Auxiliary Convention met at Rescue Free Will Baptist Church October 20, 1960. The theme was "Enlistment." Registration began at 9:00 a. m., followed with group singing and prayer at 9:30. The welcome was given by Juanita Smith with response by Alene Hanna. Devotions by Roberta Bain. The president, Dorothy Hamilton, delivered her message, entitled, "Woman's Auxiliary Corps." The five points she brought out were: be strong, courageous, have endurance, faith and obstinate.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The secretary's and treasurer's report were given by Chesta Clampett. There were eight officers present.

Hazel Dell was accepted and welcomed as a new auxiliary with ten charter members.

The constitution and bylaws were presented by Betty Hampleman and adopted by the convention. Report of W.N.A.C. was given by Patricia Shores. A special offering was received for Arizona missions work.

The eleven o'clock message was by the Rev. Albert Bays. Lunch followed in the church basement served by the women of the church.

At 1:00 p. m. the convention reassembled with group singing of choruses led by the Rev. Claude Childers. Devotions were conducted by Ollie Sulcer.

The convention was composed of 12 local auxiliaries. It was voted to divide this group into two groups. These groups will meet December 6, at 7:30 p. m., at Waltonville Free Will Baptist Church and give names to these groups and organize a state meeting.

A Christmas offering from each local auxiliary was presented in many interesting ways. Some of which was a green wreath composed of 81 one dollar bills, a gospel train, tree of knowledge, miniature Christmas trees, etc. The offering amounted to approximately $325, which was to be divided equally between college, orphanage and Illinois Youth Camp. The Bear Point Auxiliary gave a humorous skit which was enjoyed by all.

Eastern Woman's Auxiliary to Sponsor Youth Rally

The Eastern District Free Will Baptist Youth Rally will be held at St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, Saturday, November 19. All young people, youth sponsors and pastors are invited and urged to attend as the afternoon program will officially launch the project of the youth groups for the coming year which is the supplying of medical facilities and equipment for the children's decision for the mission field of Africa.

The Rev. Harold Stevens will speak and show slides of Africa at the special missionary service at 7:30 p. m. All within the New Bern area are invited to this service.

The theme for the program is "That Others May Know Him," and the program is as follows:

Afternoon Session

- 4:00—Registration
- 4:30—Devotions, Bridgeton G.T.A.
 - Welcome, Host Church Y.P.A.
 - Response, Saints' Delight Y.P.A.
- 4:45—Singspiration
- 5:00—Who's Who
- 5:15—"Information Please," Mrs. W. J. Gaskins, Eastern District Youth Chairman
- 5:30—Special Choruses, Junior Choir, Host Church
- 5:45—Youth Interview, Kinston Y.P.A. and Davis G.T.A.
 - Youth Banner, McElisse McCoy, State Youth Representative
- 6:00—Special Music, Youth Choir, Host Church

Evening Session

- 6:50—Piano and Organ Meditation, Jacksonville Y.P.A.
- 7:00—Devotions and Introduction of Guest Speaker, the Rev. Ralph Lightsey
- 7:15—Preliminary Remarks Concerning Work in Africa, the Rev. Harold Stevens
- 7:30—Special Music, Cove City Y.P.A.
- 7:40—Missionary Service with Slides of Africa, Mr. Stevens
- 9:00—Benediction

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Jerry Ballard Elected to Mission Staff

A vacancy created by the resignation of the Rev. Louis H. Moulton as promotional secretary of the foreign mission department has been filled, according to the Rev. Rolla Smith, general director.

The Rev. Jerry P. Ballard was named to succeed Mr. Moulton who resigned on the recommendation of his doctor following a heart attack earlier this year.

Mr. Ballard's appointment, made by the foreign mission board during its annual session, is the result of a step by the board into a more adequate missions literature program. The nature of the office of promotional secretary has been changed from one of direct contact promotion to one with an emphasis on promotion of missions through literary mediums.

Although Mr. Ballard will continue a limited amount of outside promotion, his primary duties are to design, write and produce suitable materials to promote foreign missions through every available means and to develop a literature program for use by nationals on the denomination's respective fields, commented Mr. Smith.

Each mission board member is committed to two weeks of missionary conference work per year. This move by the board was made to alleviate the reduction in outside work by the promotional secretary.

The new promotional secretary is a veteran journalist, having edited two weekly newspapers prior to working in an editorial capacity on one of eastern North Carolina's leading dailies before returning to college to complete preparation for a ministry in Christian journalism. In addition, Mr. Ballard formerly was editor of Perception, published by Christian News Associates, a post which he resigned in November to accept the job of promotional secretary for the foreign mission department.

Mr. Ballard, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Loy E. Ballard of Scotland Neck, North Carolina, is a graduate of Columbia Bible College, Columbia, South Carolina, with additional study at East Carolina College, Greenville, North Carolina; North Carolina State College, Raleigh; and the University of South Carolina, Columbia.

He is married to the former Winifred Elizabeth Underwood of Smithfield, North Carolina. The Ballards will move to Nashville, Tennessee, from the Graduate School of Missions, Columbia Bible College, in January.

Report from the Atlanta Church

Greetings in the Name of Our Lord Jesus Christ:

I count myself happy in the privilege of making this report, primarily in response to requests which came to me while attending the assemblies of the Georgia Association and the South Carolina Conference. I trust the substance herein will prove to delight those who are so deeply concerned, and that the editor will be sufficiently impressed as to grant space for the publication. I am deeply aware of the fact that reports made to the bodies above referred to could reach only a small per cent of our interested brethren and sisters.

First of all, I wish to express gratitude to our wonderful Lord for having given me such a warm-hearted group here with which to work. Secondly, my heart overflows with rejoicing for the divine wisdom and direction granted in the locating of our church in a nice neighborhood with adequate facilities to meet the present needs. But in touch with the fact that this movement has been in the heart-throb of a number of our people of Georgia for a half century, discussion of plans having been carried on my presence when a boy; and now, to face to face with these realities after my appointment for me to return to my home state to lead in the movement.

Our first solicitation is in behalf of remembrance of us in these responsibilities in most fervent prayers, with communications of encouragement and visitations where possible. In this we do humbly trust that our beloved group here can do much heart pulsations in prayer and encouragement will be our challenge to do that thing.

Our present enrollment and attendance are: church 29, Sunday school 42; leavers 25, auxiliary 10, Master's Men 7. Record attendance for preaching services: approximately 40 in the mornings and 35 in the evenings. Weekly offerings for all carried during the past six weeks have averaged $72.00, plus. We always feel a wonderful spiritual atmosphere in all assemblies as we are carrying a ministry of cleavage to the Word. We are now placing special emphasis on our privileges of association in general ministry as well as local; hence, we have designated each Sunday for challenge us to do something extra for promoting the gospel: such as, foreign missions, Christian education (through support to the Bible College), home missions and for building funds. Designations have been made to the different auxiliary organizations leading us out into fields of greater effectiveness. Checking through our experience here over the period of the first year, I am reminded of a statement made to me by Brother E. C. Morris, promotional secretary for the state of Georgia, and I quote, "I believe a good church can be built in Atlanta, but it will take time, patience and a great deal of hard work." I assent! Adding to this, prayer, wisdom and money with proper planning and we are on our way to great achievements.

Permit me to inject this final note of gratitude: To the Georgia Mission Board for such faithfulness to this cause, to our workers, and, to our people in general carrying on in such a splendid way. This note should include thanks to many organizations and individuals, who have made special effort in personal gifts, co-operation in putting us in touch with souls who have moved into this area, and to some who have adopted projects in helping to furnish needed facilities. The ministers and deacons of the Union Association of Georgia asked suggestions of some project they might adopt to help. As a result, we have a duplicating (ditto) machine with which to expedite

(continued on page sixteen)

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

Strong in the Lord

(Lesson for November 27)

Scripture: Ephesians 6:10-20

Text: Ephesians 6:10

INTRODUCTION

The letter to the Ephesians is known as one of the five prison epistles which was written by Paul when he was a prisoner in Rome. It was written about A. D. 61 or 62. During his second missionary journey, Paul had spent more than two years in Ephesus. During that two years, he ministered continuously in the synagogue and he also taught in the school of Tyrannus. His stay in Ephesus was most fruitful, for the gospel became known throughout all Asia. (See Acts 19:1-41)

Paul's own weakness may be overcome by the power and might from the Lord. In the first ten verses of Chapter 6, the apostle gives the duty of parents to children, of masters and servants. He then gives advice which is applicable in the life of every Christian. "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might" (Eph. 6:10). Paul is saying that we must be strengthened in the Lord, for all humans are weak and in dire need of help from God. Strength from God had been manifested to the Ephesians while Paul was in Ephesus and from the example of Paul's victory over extreme opposition, they could expect complete victory. Paul urges these Christians, just as He urges us, to get themselves in a position so that God could aid them with the needed strength.—The Bible (F.W.B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

Our enemy is invisible and therefore the more dangerous. He cannot be killed directly, nor can he be fought with swords and guns. He knows no ethics and has no need too evil or treacherous for us to commit. He lacks conscience and is full of lies. He is treacherous and cunning. His name is Satan. The Christian should never fraternize with the world of sin. He must never trust anyone and above all he must not sip his wine of wickedness, for if he does, Satan will utilize his powers of attack. Truth should be the girdle of the Christian warrior. His every word and thought should be sincere and accurate. His heart must be sincere and pure. His knowledge of the Word of God which is truth should be thorough.

4. Many false religions disguise themselves as truth, and deceive many. Truth is the only answer. Know the Word and preach it!

5. The Christian warrior must not forget his breastplate of righteousness, for Satan is ever looking for a fault or weakness in the life of the soldier of Christ. If he is unrighteous in any respect, Satan will make a great point of this failure and discredit him before men.

6. No soldier of Christ should ever go barefooted! He should always keep his shoes on and never remove them so that he is every ready to travel as a foot soldier wherever he may be called.

7. Without the shield of faith, the Christian would soon become discouraged and give up. The fiery darts of the evil one could mortally wound the man who does not have enough faith to go on to victory against all odds. "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

8. The helmet of salvation is most essential; for only those who have experienced the saving grace of Christ can speak authoritatively to the lost and give assurance of deliverance and victory over Satan.

9. All the above mentioned armor is defensive; we have only one piece of armor which is offensive. It is the sword, which is the Word of God. Know your Bible; carry it with you at all times. Use it skillfully and mightily to win souls.

10. Most important of all, therefore, we pray! Our enemy is in the heavenlies and he is powerful. Through prayer, you may call to your aid myriads of angels to assist you in battle. God answers prayer!—The Bible Expositor.

11. To you who use the Advanced Quarterly: Please underscore at least five truths you consider important. If you find twice that many, no harm will be done.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. "If sinners entice thee, consent thou not" (Proverbs 1:10).

This text is a perfect one for a temperance lesson. No verse in all the Bible could be more appropriate for this lesson, or for the times in which we now live. Our land is being deluged with a flood of fluid poison, the dispensers of which frankly and cynically admit that they are in the business of ruining the race for the sake of personal gain. On every hand liquor is being pushed on young and old, dressed in attractive packages and "ballyhooded" over the radio, in an attempt to increase the sales of this frightful implement of destruction. It would be sad enough to see old sots drinking themselves into a stupor of shame and helplessness, but the tragedy is aggravated by what seems to be a conspiracy to force liquor on all, young or old.

2. The means of enticement are subtle and varied. Young people complain to me that their hosts and hostesses press them to drink, and make them feel that they violate good manners and show poor breeding if they refuse. But in sober fact, the boot is on the other foot! It has ever been a precept of etiquette that a courteous host will never embarrass a guest, but liquor kills good manners and smirches courtesy, just as it slays and befouls everything else that is decent and lovely in life.

3. No courteous host would insist that a Jewish guest must eat pork, and a host would indeed be characterized a boor if he pressed ham on a Hebrew friend. The Jew is not considered ill-mannered because he does not eat that which his religion forbids. But let a Christian refuse strong drink and he is at once scowled upon for lack of manners.

4. In a recent gathering a host offered me a cocktail. I refused it in tones and terms that half the company heard, and the cutiecrum went away embarrassed. A friend said, "You didn't have to insult the man!" I replied, "I didn't insult him, he insulted me! He knows that I am a Christian, and a minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is an insult to me and a shame on my calling to even offer me liquor!" And I said it in tones the whole company heard. When my business was done I left, but nobody offered me any more cocktails during the interval!—Selected.

5. Huge Figures: From the Bureau of Internal Revenue we learn that the people of the United States, in 1947, spent the stupendous sum of $9,640,000,000 for alcoholic beverages legally available. Let us imagine this as a huge pile of silver dollars, each weighing one ounce, 2½ inches in diameter and ¼ inch thick. An ordinary railroad boxcar holds thirty tons or 60,000 pounds. To transport this huge sum in silver dollars, there would be needed 10,041 boxcars and 201 locomotives, each pulling fifty boxcars over seventy-six miles long! At the speed of thirty miles an hour, it would take two and one-half hours to pass a given point.

(continued on page sixteen)

MISSIONS

(continued from page fourteen)

matters in many ways. Thanks to all of you who have helped in any way. Any constructive suggestions from any one will be highly appreciated. The address is, 29 Clay Street S. E., Atlanta 17, Georgia; the phone is DRake 8-1086.

Very affectionately yours in Christ Jesus,
Rev. J. R. Davidson

Arizona-Mexico Missions Inc.

The officers of the Arizona-Mexico Missions were elected on July 2 as following: Rev. John B. Elliston, president; James Lanier, vice-president; Gladys P. Elliston, secretary-treasurer; Rev. Elvis Priest, member of the board and representative for Arizona; Rev. Edward Johns, member of the board and representative for California; Rev. Jose Guzman, member of the board and representative for Mexico; Arlis Priest, member of the board.

All members of the board are Free Will Baptists and five are ordained Free Will Baptist ministers. All workers at the mission now or that have ever been here as mission workers are Free Will Baptists. Our articles of incorporation state that if ever Arizona-Mexico Missions, Inc., should fail to operate, that after debts were paid all property stations would go to the National Free Will Baptist Association.

One of the main projects of the Arizona-Mexico Missions is that of maintaining the Nogales Academy which is a Christian day school for the purpose of training Spanish-speaking boys and girls, first in Bible and also in all the subjects as required by the state of Arizona. The school is properly registered in Washington, D. C., so that passports may be obtained for students to come from Mexico across the border into Nogales, Arizona.

At present we have 106 students enrolled with only 2 teachers, Rev. and Mrs. Elliston. Beginning January 1, James Lanier will be a full-time worker. James is vice-president of Arizona-Mexico Missions and is a charter member of First Free Will Baptist Church of Nogales, Arizona. He has been constantly with the work for over a year. Fort Huachuca is 65 miles east of the border and for six months he has made the drive to and from Nogales daily helping on the building. He has received no salary and very little expenses of gas and oil. Please put this young man on your prayer list and pray for him daily; also for Rev. and Mrs. Elliston and Mary Bell and for the work here.

We now have a choir practicing on Christmas songs and we feel it is doing quite well. We are badly in need of more room and more consecrated, dedicated to missions, self-sacrificing workers.

We now have one organized Free Will Baptist church with an average of 87 in Sunday school and church. We have one well organized mission which has Sunday school, church, and midweek prayer meeting.

We give clothing to around 200 people each month, also food to several and help on buying medicine for some.

To all who will put us on your daily prayer list we will send a picture of the workers here as a daily prayer reminder.

Please let us hear from you.

Mrs. John B. Elliston
Box 550
Nogales, Arizona

Contributions to Home Missions

"Enclosed is $10.00 to be applied to the account of the Rev. Luther Sanders in Hawaii. We are thankful for the progress that the Home Missions Board is making, and we pray that the Lord will continue to bless each of you there as you continue to carry on for the Master."—Mr. Rex Dixon, Arapahoe, North Carolina.

"Enclosed you will find a check which you can use in the home mission work.

"We were present the night Mr. Willis was at our church, Sound Side Free Will Baptist, and we do wish more of our people had been there. We do pray that our church will do more for missions in the future than it has done in the past.

"We do pray that the Lord will continue His blessings upon you people in winning many more souls to the Lord. May God bless you in our prayer."—Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sawyer, P. O. Box 257, Columbia, North Carolina.

Stories for Boys and Girls

(continued from page twelve)

He shook his head.

"Come in, Sally," his mother invited. "Are you anxious about the dog, too?"

"I'm thinking of Victor, Mrs. Krusl Sally admitted. "Jack promised Victor be friends who helped. It would be terrible if it turned out we hadn't helped at all."

Jack's mother said, "I believe you helped because you acted. You know what the Bible tells us—. . . let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and truth (1 John 3:18).

The doorbell rang a second time. Jack's father answered it and when he re-entered the living-room, the genial-faced sergeant from the barracks was with him.

"Good news!" said the sergeant, smiling at Jack and Sally. "We have the dog, a genuine Weimaraner, quite valuable.

The farmer who picked him up thought he belonged to Gus Gehle at the general store. Gus lost a dog not long ago. This wasn't his and Gus was glad to return it. Your description of the car and the farmer made our search quite simple, Jack. It was a wonderful asset—a pair of bright eyes, a pair of willing hands ready to help someone in need."

Jack looked into Sally's glowing face. He was thinking the most wonderful thing in the world would be for Sally and him to see the boy they had tried to help.

And then the sergeant said, "I dropped in because the dog is out in our patrol area and we thought you two might like to see with us when we return the dog to its owner, that is, if your father and mother give their permission."

Dad nodded his consent. Mother was smiling hers. "I'll phone Sally's mother she promised.

"Can we go right now?" Jack cried. He squeezed Sally's hand and pulled her to him. He couldn't wait to see the happy surprise on Victor's face. Sally, Victor, himself would be good friends from now on—of that Jack was very sure.—Christ Trails.

ST. CLAIRE BIBLE CLASS

(continued from page fifteen)

If laid flat on the ground, edge to edge, these silver dollars would form a line 1,000 miles long, or more than nine times around the earth. Since the birth of Christ 2,000 years ago, there have been 1,200,000 minutes. Last year in this country we spent $8 for liquor for every minute Christ was born, and, trying to count the effect of it, we had to spend $16 a minute for crime.—The S. S. Times.

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
NOV 23 1960

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, November 23, 1960

GIVE THANKS TO GOD

Give thanks to God, who long ago
Brought men and women here
Who loved and served Him faithfully,
And counted Him more dear
Than home, and friends, and kindred,
Left far across the sea,
That they might freely worship,
And more like Him might be.

Give thanks to God, who helped them then,
Endure their many woes,
Gave strength that they might labor,
Protected them from foes;
And when they reaped their harvest,
To God they gave the praise
For giving food and shelter
Through all their trying days.

Give thanks to God, as they did
In those days long ago,
For still He gives us harvests,
And all to Him we owe,
Of life, and strength, and comfort,
And so again we say,
Give thanks to God, as they did,
On this Thanksgiving Day.

—Mary Starck Kerr.

ERA OF THE CONTOUR CHAIR

Furniture, through the ages, reflects much of the history of mankind. Perhaps no one article in the household is more symbolic of home life than the widely used chair.

The straight-backed chairs of early Americans, compelling our forefathers to straighten their spines, must have alerted the uncomfortable occupants against letting their morals slump. Physical misery could easily have prompted the search for spiritual peace.

Whether this was true or not, man's growing desire for comfort, expressed in the changing pattern of the chair, has reached the ultimate in relaxation. The contour chair has been proclaimed the symbol of American life today. Ease, luxury, indifference to needs of others, and rejection of the unpleasant is the trend of the day. If, perchance, placidity is blasted by something too tremendous to be ignored, there is a remedy. The cocktail added to the comfort of the contour chair can always bring oblivion.

This is positively no indictment against the contour chair or its occupant. It is a criticism of a way of life that refused to meet moral standards that demand will power and sacrifice. It is an indictment against shaping our standards to fit our comforts and pleasures. It is a repudiation of the attitude of the man who said, "Don't confuse me with the truth; I have made up my mind."

The repose of the contour chair, applied to social civic life, spreads its virus nation-wide. It is easier to accept than to fight against mounting deaths from drinking drivers, kidnappings, rapes and murders that go unchecked. "There's nothing we can do about it," is the usual answer. Another reply is, "But there are so many more people than there were years ago, and news gets out so much faster." These comforting answers, however, do not alter the fact that women who occupy homes where they have lived safely for years no longer dare go alone to their next-door neighbors at night or from one entrance of an apartment house to another. Taxis no longer ensure protection; even the most reliable driver can be a target for attack.

Crime flourishes in the contour chair atmosphere. Law enforcement officers are not immune to the virus. They, too, succumb to the easy way. Why should they endanger their lives and the safety of their families by imposing heavy sentences when the public seems so indifferent?

A recent news story tells of a judge assailed for freeing a drunk who stole a ladder, carried it across the street, and entered a second-floor bedroom. When the occupant frightened him with her screams, he fled. In his signed statement to police, the intruder said his drinking kept him from remembering just why he broke in. He was acquitted on the grounds he had not stolen anything or violated any law, not even that of trespassing. For, the prosecuting attorney said, "The trespassing statute requires that there first be a warning to the defendant that he must stay off, or leave, the premises—and there was no warning there."

Fortunately, this attorney's superior considered the decision as absolutely ridiculous. The judge's ruling at the home of all sanctity, all protection, he said, and the offender was rearrested.

Law is not the only profession to use the relaxation method. Doctors are condemned for using mass therapy to heal individual lesions. Educators are accused of concentrating on everything except the vital things. Ministers are blamed for accepting interest in religion—a popular trend—for religion itself.

Nobody really likes things as they are, but the contour chair is so comfortable. Each occupant is likely to believe that somebody, with less at stake, will do something about conditions sometime. But no reform can come from the depth of the contour chair. Interest in religion, like interest in religion, can flourish, but things will get worse instead of better until we straighten our spines and go into courageous action. (Emma Kidd Hulburt in "Union Signal.")

PERISHABLE ATTRACTIONS

Quite often we hear the question raised as to why it is often so difficult to keep people in the church, especially the young people. There is nothing illogical about raising such a question, for such a situation does exist.

Let us be sure of one thing, however, the gospel of Jesus Christ not only saves, but it also keeps. This keeping is by faith, and once faith has been properly grounded in the Lord Jesus, there is far less chance of one becoming attracted to that which will eventually perish. Churches and church groups have tried many things to attract a multitude. They usually respond for a little while, as might be expected; but it is only for a little while. On the other hand, the soul which has been attracted to the church of Christ Himself remains true to the cause and maintenance of the Kingdom depended upon in the work of the Kingdom.

When wondering about how the church can attract more people, let us remember that it is the gospel of Jesus Christ which truly attracts, and it is He who keeps the church satisfied.

Volume 75

Number

November 23, 1960

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

C. H. OVERMAN, Editor

Edited and published weekly by the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C. Approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, The Free Will Baptist is entered at the post office, Ayden, N. C., as second-class mail matter.

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor six days prior to the publication date of that issue.

6 Months _____
1 Year _____

SUBSCRIPTIONS PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor of The Free Will Baptist. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or to the person sending it in.

The World Needs Jesus

THE WORLD TODAY needs Jesus.

This sentence has been ringing in my ears for days, and I feel that I must put paper to the things that are making my heart overflow with joy and thanksgiving.

The solution to all our problems in this era today is Jesus. There would be no war, no strife, jealousy, envy and hatred among Free Will Baptists if all who call themselves Christians had hearts filled with love; because we would then love our fellow man. Many of our people have decided that they alone know the best way to carry on the work of this denomination; God's way is old-fashioned and will no longer work in the modern age, when Free Will Baptists are developing a new mentality. May God help us to see our faults, to become humble and ask forgiveness, and to turn from our wicked ways, to leave our sins and call upon Him for help. We may be saved from total destruction.

I firmly believe that the one purpose of the church should be to win souls for the Lord Jesus. If you are a Christian, the Lord has commanded you to Go into all the world and preach the gospel. He has commanded that we come out from among the world and be a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

Every Free Will Baptist who professes to be a child of God had lived so the world could see Christ living through us, we would have been the strongest church on earth. The church is powerless and struggling today because we have failed our Lord. He never fails His children.

We have failed in our duty to carry the message to our neighbors in foreign countries; therefore, we stand on the brink of possible destruction. Can't we see and realize that in these perilous times the world needs

Jesus? When Christ comes into a person's heart, his life is changed, because his sinful heart is changed. Life takes on new meaning; his thoughts and conduct are motivated by the Holy Spirit living in us. I know, because a miracle has happened to me and I have been able to happen to others.

Every day with Modernism, Communism and Catholicism so prevalent in our world, we need to redouble our efforts for Christ. Every serious thinking person knows the

|||
Mrs. Alma B. Worthington

Ayden, North Carolina

|||
The world needs something right now. What solutions do you have for our dilemma?

Education is not the answer. We have knowledge today, but it betrays us. We may know how to get to the moon, but we cannot live peaceably with our fellow men. Education will pass away, and no degree will take a man to heaven, nor bring peace and joy in his heart.

Culture is not the answer. We have culture. Athens which was once the very center of culture has long been a city of decay.

Wealth is not the answer. We have wealth as a nation, but it cannot heal our land, or buy friends in foreign countries, or satisfy our longings for peace and security here at home.

All knowledge, culture and wealth shall pass away, but Jesus Christ, and His blessed Word, the Bible, shall live forever.

I plead with you who read this to study God's Word for yourselves, believe it and live by it. Spend much time in secret with Jesus in prayer, then live so others may see Jesus living through you. Don't believe what you hear, or what you read until you have checked it by God's Word. Think for yourselves. Ask God to help you understand and give you wisdom. (See Matthew 24:4-13).

I'm happy because I know God's way is the best way; that because He lives I shall live also, and be at home in heaven for all eternity with my family and friends who love Jesus. I'm rich because my Father owns the world and everything in it. I know also that He is coming again, and soon I believe, to take all of us who are His out of this world of strife and sin. Are you, my friend, ready for His coming? This is a personal matter. Each of us is responsible for his own salvation. Everyone must give an account to God for his stewardship in this present world (2 Corinthians 5:10). If we expect to be what He would have us to be, we need Him fully in our lives.

Thank God for the Leagues!

W. STAN MOONEYHAM

Thank God for leagues!

My first experience in a Free Will Baptist church was through the league. I was a young man just back home from the Navy. Adjustment to civilian life was not easy. Old friends were gone. I was about to become a drifter.

Now and then I would find myself at church on Sunday morning. One such morning a group of young people came up and invited me back on Sunday evening—to league, they said. I came back—not once, but again and again. I even stayed for evening worship and before many weeks went by I accepted Christ as my Saviour at one of those Sunday evening services.

Many wonderful opportunities for spiritual growth and training were mine in the league. From service in the league in my local church, opportunities for service on the district and state level were presented and accepted. As I look back now, I am fully aware that this training was of inestimable value to me.

The league also provided Christian friendships for me that still are very warm and genuine even though years and miles separate those of us who met in our little room an hour before the evening service. Those friendships were and still are a means of grace in my life.

If I were to list the factors that have meant the most in my Christian life, the Free Will Baptist League would occupy a high place on the list. Do you wonder, then, why I say, "Thank God for leagues"?

NOTE.—Mr. Mooneyham served as Executive Secretary of the National Association for six years and is now editor of Action, the official publication of National Association of Evangelicals.

A Great Discovery On Thanksgiving

FLORENCE HEART stood by the bedroom window looking out at the first snow of the season. Her face wore a look of unhappiness and discontent, and a little pucker came between her eyes over her pretty nose.

After some minutes she turned from the window and walked to the dressing table, where she looked at herself in the glass. Florence was 14 years old, pretty and exceptionally clever, leading her class at school. Now, it would seem that all these things would have made her happy. But she was far from being in that frame of mind.

"Tomorrow is Thanksgiving," she said, "and I've nothing to be thankful for. Indeed, I have much to be unthankful for. Papa's a poor man; we live on next to nothing; I have my old clothes made over; Mamma hasn't half enough to run the house on and together she and I must stint and scheme in order to keep up appearances. I'm sick of it all—I have simply nothing to be thankful for—nothing. And there's Katie Gragg and Lucy Ann Peters, both rich enough to have everything on earth they want. They never wear old made-over clothes nor do they have to stint for a week before buying trimmings for a new hat. "Well—" and Florence sighed deeply. Then she went downstairs.

It was late in the evening and time for her to prepare supper for her father and the boys, Jack and Terry, her 8 and 10-year-old brothers. As she entered the dining room to go to the kitchen, Jack, the baby of the family, called out merrily; "I'm half starved, Sis. Please make something good for supper."

"Eating's all you and Ted think of," said Florence, "and there's nothing in the kitchen to fix for supper—except bread, butter, jam, and tea."

"Oh, there's some cold meat from dinner, and a whole crock full of sweet milk, and heaps of eggs and sugar. Please, Sis, make boiled eustard, like Mamma does when she has loads of milk. Ted and I could eat a bushel of eustard."

Florence sneered just a little bit as she went on to the kitchen. Then she said to herself: "Make custard! Well, not if I know myself. It's entirely too hard to make such dishes for a couple of boys. I'll let them fill up on bread and butter and milk. It's too much work to be fixing meals anyway. I do wish we could afford a servant to do our housework—like most of our friends do."

Then Florence set to work preparing a very light supper. She did not like housework, and when left in charge of the home she got through with her duties along the lines of least resistance. She did everything in the simplest manner, sometimes going so far as to slight the work. She proceeded to slight the supper on this particular evening, and when Teddy came running in to ask her if there was to be a turkey and cranberry sauce for Thanksgiving she pushed him out of her way, crossly replying,

"I've made no plans for tomorrow, Ted. I've had my lessons to prepare and the house to look after. And I'm only a human being 14 years old. So you boys need expect anything extra tomorrow. Papa saying a word about Thanksgiving, or to say that he expects Mamma home in the morning. She wrote that Aunt () was entirely recovered from her illness that she'd be home with us on Thanksgiving. If there's any special preparation made for tomorrow's dinner, Mamma make it. Now—you wash your dirty dishes and set the table. Supper's almost ready."

"Papa's home," informed Teddy of his big sister's command. "And he's fully tired. Says business has been good today, and he thinks things are picking up in the real estate line. He sold lots to one man and made good money each. That's not so worse, is it?"

"Say, Ted, if Mother heard you use such language, she'd give you a good Get along, and finish your work." That evening at the supper table Mr. Heart asked Florence if she thought he'd go out marketing in the evening. "Other'll be here tomorrow," he said, "and should have something nice for our Thanksgiving dinner. Of course, if you were alone, we'd not go to any trouble about fixings, but Mother loves to spread herself on holidays, you know. I can well afford to lay in a nice turkey and trimmings, business was good today, and there's no chance of its improving steadily, now, right?"

"Well, Dad, I'd rather you didn't provide for tomorrow, unless you positively know that Mother will be here. There was a little doubt about it, wasn't there?"

"Yes, she said your aunt was entirely out of her wits, and that if the doctor thought it best for her to leave her, she'd arrive on the morning of Thanksgiving."

"Yes, Dad, but there's the 'if,'" replied Florence. "So I think it best to let things go as they are. I can fix a plain dinner tomorrow of baked potatoes and ham and bread and eggs on Thanksgiving," shouted Jack in a voice of horror, while Teddy put his hands over his face and groaned at the prospect.

But Mr. Heart gave them a sly wink. Florence wasn't looking, and it acted as magic on them. They sat up and ate their supper in a very happy mood, telling jokes and laughing among themselves.

The next morning when Florence went into the kitchen to prepare a light breakfast she saw a great basket on the table, and opening the refrigerator a huge, dressed turkey stared at her. Celery, crisp and white, creamed potatoes, and many other good things to eat were lying about the turkey and dressing. Then Florence opened the basket and found an old-fashioned fruitcake and a cold plum pudding. She knew where the turkey had come from. A neighbor, Mrs. Jones, baked these confections every holiday for her customers who liked the old-fashioned things to eat. Evidently Mr. Heart had ordered this order some days ago.

"Breakfast, Florence said nothing about the preparation her father had made for the dinner. She felt a bit put out over it just as Mr. Heart began to ask her what she thought of the basket and the things in the refrigerator, a ring came at the door. Mr. Heart hurried to open it, thinking that his wife had arrived. A neighbor stood there, looking white and nervous. "Mr. Heart," he stammered, "have you seen the wreck on the R. & P. Railroad? The train that was due here at 7:45? It's now 7:30."

Mr. Heart went white, and a lump came into his throat. That was the train his wife was doubtless on. He hurriedly asked for particulars of his neighbor's story.

"Why, you know my nephew, Sam, is an operator down at the depot. He just got the news and phoned it up to us. My wife knew you were looking for Mrs. Heart home on that very train. So I came to bring you the news, which, of course, is not yet all in. The report of the spread rail, or some of the coaches tumbling into the creek, is authentic, but no particulars as to life and limb. We'll hope that Mrs. Heart was not aboard the train, but if so, that she is unhurt."

Mr. Heart rushed into the living room and called Florence and repeated to her what their neighbor had told him. "Do not say a word to the boys," he admonished. "They are so young, and there's no use telling them anything till we have to." Then he got his coat and hat and went to the station for fuller news.

After her father had gone, Florence rushed upstairs to her room and threw herself on the bed, weeping as though her heart would break. Oh, suppose something terrible had happened to her darling mother! Oh, how she loved her mother! Then she sat up and began to think. Just yesterday she had declared she had nothing to be thankful for! And she had the dearest, most tender father and mother a girl could have. And now—maybe one of them had been snatched away from her! If only she could have today as yesterday, how different would she speak about her Thanksgiving! She would know that she had everything worthwhile to be thankful for—her father, her mother, and her two mischievous brothers, who were so loving and good. Yes, when she had had them all she had not valued her possession. But now she knew how rich she had been but a few short hours ago.

With a groan she fell upon her knees and began to pray, to pray as she had never prayed before. She first asked forgiveness for not feeling happy when possessing such kind parents. Then she prayed for her mother's safe return.

"Never, never shall I be ungrateful again," she sobbed. "Oh, how happy I would be if Mamma darling should come into the room this minute, sweet and smiling as of old."

Just then the door opened and in walked both her father and mother, and instantly Florence was in the mother's arms. Then the father explained that the old gentleman who had brought the news of a railroad wreck had made a grave mistake. The wreck had been done to a freight train, and several carloads of merchandise had rolled into the creek, but not a soul was hurt.

Florence looked bravely into her father's eyes, then into her mother's; then she said: "I've been a mean, selfish, vain, thankless girl, and it has taken a terrible shock—a dreadful fear—to bring me to my senses.

But from today I shall know how rich I am; I do believe I am the happiest girl on earth this minute." And she hugged her mother once more. "And—I am dying to get into the kitchen to help with our Thanksgiving dinner. I know there never has been such a dinner as we shall have this day."

Just then Teddy and Jack came bulging into the room. They had not heard a word about the railroad wreck, and had been playing about in the freshly fallen snow in the backyard, and did not know their mother had returned till a neighbor boy called out to them that he had seen her arrive.

"But say, what's the matter with Flo?" cried Teddy. "She's been crying."

"Tears of gratitude, dearie," said Florence, kissing the soiled cheeks of Teddy to his great wonder. "And, Teddy, dear, Sis is going to help to make you the bestest dinner you ever sat down to. Won't we have a rousing Thanksgiving, though?"

Mr. and Mrs. Heart nodded and smiled, and Mrs. Heart said through her own tears: "Yes, darling, we'll have a fine Thanksgiving—and from now on every day shall be one of true thanksgiving."—Detroit News Tribune.

THANKSGIVING

Once again our loving heavenly Father has blessed us with bountiful crops, and it is entirely fitting and proper that a day be set aside to thank and praise the dear Lord for His many blessings unto us. Above all, we should thank Him for the gift of His dear Son, who brought us salvation, full and free, from sin, and gives us the power to live pure and holy lives in this present world.

In the fall of 1620, our Pilgrim Fathers landed in this country. They left England because they loved the Lord and were willing to face the perils of the new country, that they might serve God according to His Word. About half of their number perished the first winter. However, the next summer the Lord blessed them with good crops; and when the harvest was in, the governor proclaimed a day of Thanksgiving to the Almighty God for His goodness. Great preparations were made; and I want you to know that this first Thanksgiving was not merely a feast. There were prayers, sermons, and songs of praise, and it lasted three days. These dear Christians really poured out their hearts to God in praise and thanksgiving.

How sad it is that this noble event has become merely a feast, and God is entirely left out of the picture! Oh, that our nation might return to the Lord and honor Him as our Christian forefathers did on that first Thanksgiving!—Way of Truth.

NEWS AND NOTES

Of Denominational Interest

Thanksgiving Day Program At Children's Home

The annual Thanksgiving Day program will be held at the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina. The service will begin at 10:30 a. m., which will consist of music by the children of the home and a sermon by the Rev. Earl Glenn, pastor of First Free Will Baptist Church of Wilson. The Wilson Church was the largest contributor to the Children's Home during the past year.

Friends of the home are urged to attend this service. There will be a picnic lunch served at noon. Those attending the service are asked to bring a picnic lunch.

Thanksgiving Service and Home-Coming at Gray Branch

The annual home-coming and Thanksgiving service will be held at Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church near Deep Run, North Carolina, Thursday, November 24, 1960. The Rev. Walter Carter of Rockingham, North Carolina, will speak at 11:00 a. m. A picnic lunch will be served at noon. The afternoon service will feature singing by special groups. Any groups or individuals who are interested in taking part in this singing are cordially invited.

The members at Gray Branch extend a cordial welcome to all who join them in making this a joyous day of thanksgiving and fellowship.

Sanctuary Being Constructed at Washington, N. C.

A new sanctuary is being constructed at the Mizpah Free Will Baptist Church, River Road, Washington, North Carolina.

The church members make the following plea: "The Lord has been blessing and our present facilities will not seat the folk properly.

"We are trusting God for the money, materials and labor needed. We ask that all pray for our work here and for our building. We are asking that all churches as well as individuals to help us by sending a cash donation or materials. We are in desperate need for all the inside furniture, both pulpit and pews. If you have any old furniture please contact us at once. There is also a need for floor tile and roofing materials. Please send your donation or information concerning materials and furniture to either Miss Linda Clayborne, Route 2, River Road, Washington, North Carolina, the church clerk, or the supply pastor, M. E. Cox, 420 Bridge Street, Washington, North Carolina."

Washington-Plymouth Youth for Christ Rally Meets

The Washington-Plymouth Youth for Christ Rally meets on Saturday, November 26, at the Plymouth Free Will Baptist Church, Plymouth, North Carolina, with the Rev. J. W. Everton as the speaker. All the young people in that vicinity are urged to attend the meeting.

Rev. M. L. Johnson to Conduct Service at Wilson Church

The Rev. M. L. Johnson, business manager of Mount Olive College, will preach at the morning service of the Wilson, North Carolina, Free Will Baptist Church on Sunday, November 27. The Rev. Earl H. Glenn is the pastor.

Coming Events

November 24—Thanksgiving Day

December 14—Founder's Day, Mount Olive College

December 25—Christmas Day

January 25—Spring Semester Begins at Mount Olive College

WHAT I AM THANKFUL FOR

by Mabel Glenn Haldeman

I am thankful for my father,
For my mother, and as well
For my little brother Billy,
And for sister Florabelle.

I am thankful for my breakfast,
For my lunch, and dinner too,
For the stove where Mother cooks it
Without which we could not do.

I am thankful for the errands
That I'm asked to daily run;
If my heart is filled with gladness
Running them, for me, is fun.

I am thankful for my lessons
That I have in school each day,
And for every time my teacher
Tells me what I ought to say.

I am thankful for a body
Well and strong, so I may be
For my blessed, loving Saviour
Anything He asks of me.

Most of all I'm truly thankful
That I'm saved from all my sin
And that Jesus came to suffer
And to die, the lost to win.

I AM DORE!

A great artist wandered into the mountains of Switzerland. An official asked his passport. The artist searched for "My!" he exclaimed, "I do not seem to it with me." "Who are you?" asked official. "I am Dore," said the artist. official knew about Dore, but didn't know him personally. Said he, "Prove to me you are Dore." Taking a piece of paper the artist hastily sketched a group of peasants standing nearby. He did it so skillfully and with ease that the official exclaimed "Enough! You are Dore!"

An unbelieving world is unimpressed with empty religious profession. It cannot say, however, God's children who pray what they profess.—Walter B. Knight.

FIRST BLACKOUT

A man who had heard a radio report about Egypt's "first" blackout called newspaper office.

"Look up Exodus, Chapter 10, Verse 21," he said.

The verse reads:

"And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days."—Montine Baptist.

HERE AND THERE

In Our Religious World—

PTS FOR MISSIONS INCREASE
Christians who enjoy making graphs will all lines shooting upward to new high of church giving in 1959. Church members in 49 Protestant bodies in the United States gave more than two billion dollars to their churches last year—exactly 7,464,671. In 35 of the 49 bodies, capita giving for foreign missions was four cents a head—for a total of $54,49 or $2.26 per member. Giving for congregational expenses rose $2.48 to $56.24 per member for a total of $1,395,743,706. Less was spent on church buildings in 1958, the total for 27 church bodies giving came to $328,104,500, about six per cent of the money given for foreign missions in 1955. These and other revealing data published November 1 by the Department of Stewardship and Benefolence of the National Council of Churches. Percentages of increase could be established for the 35 bodies as they reported figures comparable to those of the previous year. Total giving for all purposes, averaging $69.13 per member, came to $1,715,335. This was a gain over 1958 to $1,600 per member or 4.6 per cent. Congregational expenses for the 35 made up $5,743,706 of the total, while $319,380 was given for all benevolences. The increase was an increase of over $19 million or 6 per cent. These reports and figures contain only a portion of the giving from religious bodies in America. Total giving of all bodies cannot be given, and none has been reported fully.—Christian News Report.

CHURCH LIFE IN GERMANY IN DANGER OF COLLAPSE

Communist atheism has not been successfully crushing the Christian faith of the German people, Berlin's Protestant bishop of a large group of United States church members recently. Bishop Otto Dibelius, of Berlin-Brandenburg, warned, however, that if the communists should succeed in flattening all Berlin the whole structure of the Christian church in East Germany would collapse. "Once Berlin is isolated," he said, "16 million Protestants in East Germany would be left utterly to themselves and lost." He added that it is still legally possible to send financial aid to the East German churches, but only political decisions will decide how much longer it will continue. Two thirds of Bishop Dibelius' five-million member parish lies in the East Zone of Berlin. A churchman of the Lutheran-Reformed tradition, he is chairman of the Council of the Evangelical Churches in Germany (EKID).

The Bishop described the island city of Berlin as an oasis where East and West can still meet. They read the newspapers from each side and see that the stories differ. What is success in one is defeat in the other, he said, adding: "Only the weather forecast is the same." The persistent communist propaganda aimed at uprooting the Christian faith, he said, promises no more need, no more injustice and happiness for all mankind. "In order to help man bring about this happy state," he continued, "they try to wipe out Christianity, starting with the children." Parents must raise them to be good citizens of the world revolution and a father loses his job if his child is confirmed.

The Bishop also described the perplexity among communist officials that any American should come to Germany just to proclaim the gospel. He referred to Evangelist Billy Graham's recent rally at the Brandenburg gate. East German authorities prevented people from going to the rally, claiming that Dr. Graham came with a special commission from NATO, the western defense alliance.

ALCOHOLISM GREATER MENACE THAN FALL-OUT

Radioactive fall-out may pose a health menace to Americans, but alcoholism is a more serious one. So says Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, head of the clinical sciences department of the University of Illinois.

Addressing the 5th annual Institute of Scientific Studies for the Prevention of Alcoholism at American University here, he declared: "The dangers from radioactive fall-out are guarded against, and every effort to protect the public is made, whereas very little is being done to protect the public from the disastrous effects of alcoholism."

Dr. Ivy noted that the number of alcoholics is increasing at the rate of 450,000 per year. He pointed out that there are eight million known alcoholics, and that 20,000 persons die and 400,000 are injured annually in accidents caused by drunken drivers.

"Only a handful of people have been seriously exposed to radioactive fall-out,"

Dr. Ivy declared, "and few, if any, deaths have resulted, despite the world-wide outcry against atomic testing. There must be something drastically wrong with our sense of values," he added, "when we, as a nation, allow without protest the terrible ruination of human life caused by the use of alcoholic beverages."—Free Methodist.

MORE ABOUT THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS' "BOGUS" OATH

The fraudulent Knights of Columbus oath was published in the Congressional Record (February 15, 1913) as an illustration of bigotry, deceit and falsehood in the election of the 7th Congressional District of Pennsylvania for the sixty-second Congress. It has since been lifted out of its context and published as if it were a genuine document.

Correction has been attempted by the Masons, Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, the Congressional Record of January 29, 1915 (p. 2721) and August 16, 1960 (p. A6092), many liberal cases and the Knights of Columbus themselves. For twenty-five years the Knights have offered a reward of $25,000 to anyone who could prove the genuineness of the oath. No one has yet claimed the reward.

The genuine Knights of Columbus oath reads: "I swear to support the Constitution of the United States. I pledge myself, as a Catholic citizen and a Knight of Columbus, fully to enlighten myself upon my duties as a citizen and conscientiously perform them entirely in the interest of my country, regardless of all personal consequences. I pledge myself to do all in my power to preserve the integrity and purity of the ballot and to promote respect for law and order. I promise to practice my religion consistently and faithfully, and to so conduct myself in public affairs and in the exercise of public virtue as to reflect nothing but credit upon our Holy Church, to the end that she may flourish and our country prosper to the greater honor and glory of God."—C.N.R.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

The Rev. Cairns Henderson of San Carlos, California, had this timely tip for motorists, last week: "It may be theologically unsound," he quipped, "But I always figure it is better to be ten minutes late in this world, than ten years early in the next!" Well, theological or not, he has a point.—Selected.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: What is there for a sincere Christian to do when churches are so full of worldliness and errors as most of them appear to be in this day and time? Should he take membership with them or stay out? Annie Lou Jones, Texas.

Answer: Take membership in one and go to work for Christ, when you have sought God's will as to which. Who knows but that the Christian example you live before those who are worldly and the personal work you shall be led into will change the whole pattern of behavior for the entire church activities. I am fully aware of the worldliness in almost every church one may enter as a member today, including my own home church, but that is no reason as I see it why I should not be a member of it. I should, if opportunity affords it, be able to let my light shine the brighter when I am determined to exemplify Christ, in spite of the presence of those who are worldly and unchristian. When all is said and done that needs to be about these worldly churches, many of them are yet the best organizations in the world in such a day, and are more so than some of the societies a lot of Christians attend. What would be the condition of such a world as ours now is, were it not for the churches? These churches, in spite of their present imperfections, are the only means by which society is kept from utter collapse and corruption. A Christian has a better chance of accomplishing something in the way of winning lost souls for Christ while a faithful member of one of our churches, than if he were on the outside.

About thirty years ago, I knew some fellows that thought all the churches were bad; hence, they would not be members of the then existing local churches. Some of them went back into the world and deep into sin. Some started churches of their own. I do not know what happened to some of them, but some of those that went back in the world were reclaimed for Christ and are now members of churches that they might have been in to begin with. Some of those who built non-denominational churches lived to see them split and disintegrated. "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 5:13-16).

The monks and nuns in their origin withdrew from the church. It became corrupt. They became corrupt and returned. Both may still be corrupt to some degree, but I am sure that they could have done more good in it than in hiding and so could you. There will no doubt come times when one shall be forced to utter his protest against sins of a glaring nature and character in some local church, and there may be in the extreme cases when one must withdraw from his local church in protest of certain sins in order to maintain his testimony, but my experience teaches me that such occasions or cases are extremely rare.

The church at Corinth is a good example. Corruption, even unspeakable immorality, had crept into the church, but Paul gave no hint that any of the members of this church should withdraw from it. He did, however, write telling them to judge and put away the evil, with no suggestion that anyone withdraw. Even Jesus did not withdraw from the synagogue in His day until He was forced out. In His day synagogue worship had become formal and full of error; yet, it was the custom of our Saviour to attend the synagogue on the Sabbath Day. "And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and stood up for to read" (Luke 4:16). The apostle, Paul, followed His example in his attendance of the synagogue. "And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days reasoned with them out of the scriptures" (Acts 17:2). There are many earnest and sincere Christian men and women of today that lose all their power and influence for God and good in their neighborhood, by coming out of fellowship with other believers that were not as well taught in the Word as they, and by giving themselves up to harsh and censorious criticism.

Of course if the pastor of a local church insists on preaching glaring and pernicious errors persistently, one then has a right and should enter his protest against the message and pastor, and should not allow his children to be exposed to such doctrine.

It is true, of course, that the book of Revelation bids men to come out of Babylon, but Babylon has not yet been fallen. Almost everything, if not all, in Revelation after Chapter 4 and Verse 1 describes the time as they will be after the church has been raptured. Dr. R. A. Torrey on Page 2 of his book, Questions Answered says, "Everything in the book of Revelation after the fourth chapter and the first verse describes the time after the rapture of the church, not the present time, and it is handling the Word of God deceitfully and not rightly dividing the Word of truth to apply the command to come out of Babylon to the present time and the present state of the church."

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

WHY GIVE THANKS?

"Offer unto God thanksgiving; and thy vows unto the most High" (Psalm 14).

That there is a God all nature witness, for we see the proofs of His presence all around us. The fool alone in his heart, "There is no God"; and saying, he gives evidence both of his unbelief and his impiety. The Being whom we worship, God, is the Creator of all things, Himself uncreated. The period was when He created in solitary and independent manner. There were no world, no angels, no men. Pursuant to a degree of His own will, He caused the world, angels and men to emerge from the abyss of nothingness to occupy the stations assigned to them.

God's ceaseless agency in bestowing blessings upon us, shows the propriety of the thanksgiving enjoined in the text. We should devoutly thank Him for all He has done for us. This should be done individually.

lectively, nationally. There should be public recognition of the divine good-

It would be well for all people to have a public expression of their gratitude and for His blessings.

Let me state briefly a few of the things we have to be thankful to God for.

The preservation of life. Our days have been prolonged. Others have died—we live. How do we live? Paul, speaking to the Athenians of the God of heaven, said, "In him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets said, 'For we are also his offspring'" (Acts 17:28). This text is very expressive. It does not merely indicate that life, joy and existence came originally from God, but that His creatures now live, and move, and have their being in Him. Let us refer to Him the incense of our thanksgiving for the preservation of our lives.

Health. Not only have our lives been saved, but we have had such a degree of health as to permit us to enjoy life. Our health has been such that we are here to-day. What a blessing is health! And yet we never appreciate it properly until we are bereaved of it.

The value of health may be seen in the fact that without it no other temporal blessings can be enjoyed in their fullness. Health is certainly to be numbered with the blessings for which we should offer thanksgiving to God.

Abundant year. Fruitful seasons come from God. Not only has the agricultural life of our nation received its rich rewards, but all other industries furnished employment so that most of our people have enjoyed high standards of living. For these we should offer unto God thanksgiving.

Exemption from war. How thankful we should be that we have enjoyed a period of years without war—without sacrificing the youth of the land. War is the folly of man—a reproach on humanity. It is the legalized butchery. It is the employment of the resources of governments to destroy life. How dreadful are the desolations of war! How thankful should we be for national peace! How earnestly should we pray for continued peace!

The enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. The Declaration of American Independence teaches that among the inalienable rights of man are "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." How highly should we prize our civil constitutional liberty, and how thankful, as we do, its connection with the blood of our fathers. Truly, it was bought with their blood. Let us offer to God thanksgiving for civil liberty and be extremely thankful that we do not throw it away or permit it to be taken from us.

And thanksgiving is likewise due to Him for religious liberty. Our religious liberty was also purchased by blood—the blood of the Son of God. We have the right to espouse such religious views as we think the Bible authorizes, and to worship God as our judgments, enlightened by His Word, may dictate. We are now enjoying religious liberty as in former years. None have interfered with the freedom of the soul. We have access to the open Bible. Neither tyrant nor priest has interposed to prevent its perusal. This has been one of the bright glories of the United States—the freedom of the soul, the open Book, freedom to worship as we see fit, freedom to hear the message of free salvation and the privileges of the Lord's Day—they are all ours now as the blessings of God. He will not take them from us, but we can, and may, lose them by careless neglect and sin. Let us remember that the many religious blessings which we enjoy, and are not enjoyed by so many others, call loudly for the gratitude of our hearts and the thanksgiving of our lips to God. But seeing the condition of the world gratitude, thanksgiving and praise for the past is not enough. We must pray, work and trust God to enable us to hold on to Him. For through Him only can we retain our civil and religious liberties.

"Bless the LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits" (Psalm 103:2).

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

ISRAEL'S SIN IS AMERICA'S SIN

Zephaniah 3:1-4

Introduction: These are dark days on the pages of time! Never before has America stood on such shaky soil. The similarity of America today with God's people in the Old Testament is shocking. We are traveling the same road of ancient Israel! Some of the major mistakes Israel made, we are making. They are these:

I. They Failed to Obey the Voice of God, Verse 2.

1. It was disobedience that caused Israel to wander in the wilderness (Joshua 5:6).
2. It was disobedience that caused the death of an Old Testament prophet (1 Kings 13:11-26).
3. It is our command not to display disobedience (John 2:5).
4. It is much better to obey God than to sacrifice (1 Samuel 15:22).

II. They Failed to Receive the Correction of God, Verse 2.

1. Correction is an evidence of God's great love (Proverbs 3:12).
2. Correction received brings great blessing (Proverbs 29:17).
3. Correction is received through the Scripture (2 Timothy 3:16).
4. Correction is refused by many and results in death (Proverbs 15:10).

III. They Failed to Trust in the Lord, Verse 2.

1. Those who trust in the strength of the nation shall come to shame (Isaiah 30:3).
2. Those who trust in their wealth cannot ransom nor redeem themselves (Psalm 49:6, 7).
3. Those who trust in the Lord shall many times walk through the valley of the shadow of death (Job 13:15).
4. Those who trust in the Lord are assured that He shall direct their paths (Proverbs 3:5, 6).

CHRISTMAS MOLDS

The Free Will Baptist Press now has a complete set of Christmas molds for your Christmas scene. Such a scene may be easily arranged with these molds. For information concerning price, etc., please write Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina.

SUBSCRIPTION PLANS

Because we desire to see The Free Will Baptist going each week into every home in the denomination, we have adopted three plans whereby subscriptions are solicited for us on the field:

1. The Every Family Plan: Under this arrangement the local church votes to place The Free Will Baptist in each home in its membership. The church clerk sends us the names and correct mailing addresses of the families in the church. Upon receipt of the list of names and addresses, we send The Free Will Baptist to these people and bill the church quarterly for the entire subscription price for the quarter less 10 per cent. If any families in the church are ready subscribers, we subtract the amount of their credit from the quarterly bill. Names can be added to or subtracted from the church list at any time, upon notification from the church clerk. Bills are sent by us to the churches on this plan according to the calendar quarter.

2. The Church Group Plan: This arrangement is designed for organizations, churches which do not adopt the Every Family Plan. If any church group such as a Sunday school class, the woman's auxiliary, a league or other group wishes to solicit subscriptions for us, we ask that they send us five subscriptions in the first lot, deducting ten per cent from their total subscription collection at the individual subscription price ($2 per year), keep the ten per cent for their treasury and send us the remainder of their collection together with the names and correct mailing addresses of the subscription solicited. For instance: a church group solicits five subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist in its first lot. Its total collection for these subscriptions will be $10. The group keeps $1 for its treasury and sends us $9, together with the names and addresses of the people to whom The Free Will Baptist is to be sent for one year. The plan starts anew at the beginning of each fiscal year, July 1, and no credits given in any one year may be carried over and credited on the new year.

IV. They Failed to Draw Near to God, Verse 2.

1. To draw near to God is the message of God's anointed (1 Samuel 14:36).
2. To draw near to God with a true heart is God's demand (Hebrews 10:22).
3. To draw near to God is to immediately have Him drawn near to you (James 4:8).
4. To draw near to God with lip service only is an awful sin (Isaiah 29:13).

V. They Failed to Perpetuate Faithful Preachers, Verse 4.

1. They produced prophets who undermined God's Word (Jeremiah 14:13-16).
2. They produced pastors who scattered and divided the flock (Jeremiah 23:1, 2).
3. They produced teachers who transgressed God's law (Isaiah 43:27).
4. They produced the harvest of their own iniquity (Hosea 8:7; Galatians 6:7, 8).

No Two Snowflakes Are Alike

An astronomer specialized in the study of snowflakes. Through a microscope, he photographed more than 2,000. Each snowflake was a geometrically perfect design. Each one was unique. No two were identical. God, in manifesting His glory, and to enhance our pleasure, fashioned each snowflake from a new pattern. Is it conceivable that He would have no definite personal pattern for His children?—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

The Best Story in the World!

A missionary couple and their children went on a sight-seeing tour in Costa Rica. The youngest of the children was six-year-old Mark. They visited a cathedral in Cargago. The children noticed a statue of Christ hanging on the cross—dead! Later, they visited an old Spanish mission. Some of the children were frightened when they saw a wax figure of Christ in a glass-enclosed casket—dead!

That night, during family devotions, little Mark said, "Daddy, I have seen Jesus dead so many times today. Please tell me again the story of the resurrection!" After listening to the story he said, "Daddy, that's the best story in the whole world!"—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

3. Individual Solicitations: In any church which is not following Plan 1 or 2, we offer an individual an avenue of outstanding service to the Lord. Any individual who wishes to solicit five one-year subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist and send us the full subscription collection ($2 per year per subscriber), we shall place his name on our honor roll of solicitors to appear monthly in The Free Will Baptist. When he has solicited 10 one-year subscriptions in any fiscal year, we shall allocate a bonus subscription to his credit; he may use this bonus to renew his own subscription for one year or he may send us the name and mailing address of some other person to whom we will send The Free Will Baptist for one year without charge.

Any church group or individual interested in soliciting subscriptions under Plan 1 or Plan 2 should contact us and let us send receipt books and subscription blanks to their convenience in administering this service.

Editorial Department
The Free Will Baptist Press
Post Office Box 507
Ayden, North Carolina

NOTES

A N
D

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving should be an all-the-year festivity, and in the heart of every child of God.

We are so unthankful for the blessings that our Father in heaven has so bountifully bestowed upon us. Our thankfulness is the acknowledgment of His blessings in a great manner. A man came rushing home one day who was a church member that attended worship services if it were convenient about every three or four months. The man said, by the time he entered my office, "Preacher, I am in trouble and I need help, in a great way." Yes, so many of us do not need, or at least we feel that we do not need, God until we get in trouble and then we begin to look for God's service to find relief. We do not care for God until the wolf is entering our door; and then we begin with our thanksgiving. We forget to thank God for the blessings of life.

Once each year, a day is set apart as the national Thanksgiving, but many of us who observe the day as Thanksgiving, desecrate it with a demonstration of sinful activities. Some church members get drunk and revel after the teachings of Satan, instead of assembling at the house of God and giving true thanks unto God. There are so many things to thank God for when I begin to thank Him for the blessings received.

We want to thank Him for a country where we can worship God according to the dictates of our own conscience. This freedom is being whittled down with great rapidity. We are between two great powers that are pulling and splitting off (on both sides) our freedom. Both the powers are enemies to religious freedom. They both want freedom, but only for themselves and not for one else. Communism is against our freedom of life and will not be satisfied until it has completely destroyed the freedom that our forefathers fought and died to give us. In our country it is the same way with Catholicism—at least with the head authorities; for at all times the Catholics stand with the spirit of the times. Even though they do not agree to overthrow the freedom that we have enjoyed and loved from the beginning, they are bound to yield to the powers that be or be shut out from the blessings of the church.

As Protestants and Baptists, we certainly need to give thanks to Almighty God for the blessings that come to us by being free to worship God. Unthankfulness is shown by our absence from the house of God at the hour of worship. This year, as true believers in Christ, let us assemble at the house of prayer and return thanks to God for freedom of worship.

We should thank God that at this time we are free to possess any political views that are not contrary to the laws of our state and nation. We are free to be a Republican or a Democrat. No doubt that there are people who would love to see a one-party system. Some Democrats would make us all Democrats and on the other hand some Republicans would make us all Republicans. But a one-party system would mean a totalitarian state.

WHEN I WAS A BOY

When I was a boy, the Free Will Baptists had no orphanage, nor children's home in the community where I was reared. Thanksgiving usually meant giving to the Oxford Orphanage. But now we have a Children's Home, with a superintendent who is loyal to all denominational institutions. Let me say in one word, Christians, our superintendent is a devout Christian, so let us do our best at Thanksgiving to show to God and the people of our state and our little children at the home that we thank God for the home, the superintendent, the matrons, the board of trustees and also for the people who have and are supporting the Children's Home at Middlesex, North Carolina.

SOMETHING ELSE TO THANK GOD FOR

When I was a boy, we had no Free Will Baptist college to attend. If we were fortunate enough to get through high school and desired a college education, we had to go to a state institution or college of some other denomination and these were but few. Now we have a Bible college and a first class liberal arts college with a president who was reared at our Children's Home, a man of God whose qualifications are approved by the leading educators of the state of North Carolina. So we ought to make a special offering in which God is thanked for our state leaders who had the vision to start and support a junior college in order that the young people of our state might have a denominational college right close to home—yes, a Christian college. Let us as loyal Free Will Baptists stand by our Children's Home and our Mount Olive Junior College. Perhaps our Children's Home will turn out many more fine Christian men who are able to guide great institutions in the way of righteous thinking.

LET US THANK GOD FOR CRAGMONT

God has made it possible for us to have a place to assemble, as ministers who love the association and fellowship which we obtain the first of June each year at the Cragmont ministers' conference. Our hearts are blessed to overflowing when we can assemble and worship God and study together for the on-going of the denomination that we love. Let us make a Thanksgiving offering to God for Cragmont. Let us be thankful also that our women and our youth receive blessings at Cragmont.

LAST, BUT NOT LEAST

Let us thank God for the national institution, the Free Will Baptist Bible College, and support it for the glory of God. Our church does support both the Bible College and Mount Olive College and we thank God for these Christian colleges. I thank God that a Christian college is being planned in California and I would be happy to see one in every state where there are Free Will Baptists, and a seminary might be born somewhere near the central part of the United States. Let us thank God for the prayer of Jesus, when He said, "Neither pray I for these alone but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me" (John 17: 20, 21). I have recently used this Scripture in a former issue of The Free Will Baptist. I have no apology to make for using it again. God wants this prayer of His Son answered, Satan is against it being answered. So with his hatred for God and God's work, he keeps busy causing disturbances, creating hate among people, splitting and destroying the oneness of homes, churches, denominations and nations.

This Thanksgiving let us, as Christians, pray for the oneness that Jesus prayed for and put some effect on our prayers. In closing, let me say or repeat what the superintendent, Rev. Wilbert Everton is saying, "Go to the Children's Home and go with the spirit of Christ on Thanksgiving."

In all the states where there are children's homes or orphanages, let the people assemble and take Thanksgiving gifts to the children—money and articles that are needed. Get this stored away in your gray matter: "Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard" (Proverbs 21:13). Let us show our thankfulness by helping others.

FLESH AND BLOOD BIBLES

In a sermon, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan quoted Ruskin's famous words: "You can't give your children the Bible bound in Morocco." Then he said, "Ruskin was right. I have four sons who are ministers! How did they get their Bible? They got it bound up ardently and beautifully in their mother. They got it bound up a little more coarsely in their dad!"—Walter B. Knight.

GOBBLE GOBBLE The Thanksgiving Turkey

Ralph W. Neighbour

STEVE, WE HAD BETTER kill that turkey gobbler this morning so that Mother can get him ready for the Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow," Mr. Bell said.

"Aw Dad! Please don't kill Gobble Gobble. He is my pet turkey. I have raised him and fed him ever since he was born. We are pals."

"Now you look here, son. You may have raised him, but just remember one thing. I paid for the corn he ate. We're goin' to kill him and eat him. There isn't any sense in you gettin' chicken hearted about killing him."

"But Dad, Gobble Gobble is like one of the family. You wouldn't kill me would you?"

"Now you quit talking that nonsense," Mr. Bell said.

"Mother, get the water hot while I go out there and catch that turkey so that we can kill him."

"Come on now and help me catch him, son," Mr. Bell said as he went out the door.

Steve followed slowly. There were tears in his eyes.

"Come on, get a move on you," Mr. Bell called. "We don't have all day, you know."

"Now just look at that turkey," Mr. Bell said. "He goes right up to you and runs away from me. Grab him!"

Steve made a halfhearted effort to grab Gobble Gobble, but purposely missed him.

"Steve," his father called. "Why didn't you grab him. You could have, if you had half wanted to. Next time he comes near you catch him. Throw him some more corn."

Steve threw the corn and then reached for Gobble Gobble. The turkey was so friendly he let Steve catch him. However, when he flapped his wings Steve let him get away.

"You're no help at all," Mr. Bell said. "You aren't fooling me son. I guess I will have to catch him myself."

Mr. Bell ran after Gobble Gobble until he cornered him. Then he grabbed him by the tail. The feathers came out.

Again he chased Gobble Gobble, until this time, he caught him by the legs and hung onto him.

"Now get me that rope out in the barn," he told Steve.

He waited and waited. Steve did not come. "Steve, hurry up and bring that rope. This turkey is heavy."

"I can't find it!" Steve answered.

"You're no earthly good, today," Mr. Bell said. He dragged the turkey to the barn. "What do you mean you can't find it? There it is on the floor where it's been all the time. Right in front of your nose. Now help me tie this bird up."

When Gobble Gobble was tied, Mr. Bell hung him by his feet from the old apple tree.

"Now you watch him while I go in the house and get the hot water," Mr. Bell said. "Don't let him get loose."

Mr. Bell laid down his knife on the ground and started to the house.

"I'm sorry, Gobble Gobble. It's not my doing," Steve said. "I'm not going to eat any of you either."

Gobble Gobble gave Steve an understanding look which brought tears to his eyes.

Seeing the knife on the ground, Steve was tempted. He looked at the house. His father had not started back. So he leaned over and picked up the knife. He quickly cut the rope that tied the turkey and set him free.

Gobble Gobble started running down the street as fast as he could.

"Come back here, Gobble Gobble. Come back!" he cried.

But the turkey ran right out into the street in front of a car and was almost hit.

"Look out!" Steve cried to the turkey as he ran after it.

Steve was so busy chasing the turkey that he did not see the car coming down the street. He ran right in front of it.

There was a squealing of tires as the car tried to miss Steve. Then there was that terrible, sickening thud, as the car hit him.

Mr. Bell had just stepped out of the house in time to see the accident. He ran over to Steve and picked him up. He was unconscious.

In a few minutes an ambulance came and rushed Steve to the hospital. It was a long time before he opened his eyes and looked up.

"Oh, Steve!" his mother cried, as she kissed him. "Why did you run in front of that car?"

"I did wrong," he said. "I guess when you do wrong you always get trouble, don't you, Mom?"

"Yes, honey. What did you do?"

"I didn't want Daddy to kill poor Gobble, so I turned him loose. I cut rope. Then he ran away. I didn't think he would do that, but he did. So I let him. I didn't see the car coming til just a second before it hit me. Please forgive me."

Mr. Bell leaned over and kissed Steve. "I kinda think we both did wrong. Steve. It was wrong of me to ask you to help him."

Steve looked up and smiled. "O.K. Dad. What happened to Gobble Gobble? You ever catch him?"

"No, son. I don't know where he is. We didn't try to catch him. Not when he was so badly hurt. We came here to the hospital with you. But we don't care about Gobble Gobble. We are just thankful that you were not killed. The doctor says you will get well. That will be Thanksgiving enough for us, this year."

Just then a nurse came into the room and said, "Mr. Bell, you are wanted on the phone."

In a few minutes Mr. Bell returned. "That was Mr. Garvin, our neighbor. He says he caught Gobble Gobble and set him back in his coop. He is safe and sound."

"Are you going to kill him?" Steve asked. "No Steve." "We won't bother with him dinner this year. Not with you in the hospital."

Steve's eyes brightened. "Thanks Dad," he said. "Can't we keep him and let him help take care of some little turkeys? They won't they grow up we can have them next Thanksgiving?"

"That's a good idea," Mr. Bell agreed. "Just you get well. And be sure to learn the lesson that you can never do without getting into trouble. I'll learn the lesson too, son."—My Pleasure.

ALL HOPE IN CHRIST

"The natural heart thinks it is doing better if habits that the world calls are broken off and what it calls good is cultivated. The divine standard casts aside that is earthly and centers all hope in Jesus Christ, desiring that He alone receive glory now and forever."—Selected.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

ayden, N. C.—The Annie Mc-
Auxiliary met at the Oak Grove Free Baptist Church, Wednesday, November 10, at 7:30, with Mrs. Bernice Godwin in charge. Mrs. Emma Rose called the roll and read the minutes of last meeting. Mrs.
Holland, program chairman, read the prayer and made a short talk on the topic, Missions. Others who took part on the program were: Topic "Lo," by Mrs.
Emma Rose; Topic "Go," by Mrs. Ellen Warren; Topic "Grow," by Mrs. Mae Ellen
Warren; Topic "Glow," by Mrs. Frank
Warren. The benediction was given by Mrs. Ellen Warren. The officers for next year will be installed at the next meeting.
There were fourteen members present.

Elizabeth City, N. C.—The St. Paul Free
Will Baptist Auxiliary held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert White.
The meeting was opened by the vice-president reading the Scripture from Luke, chapter 11. Mrs. Paul Lee then led in prayer. Mrs. Lee gave some very interesting remarks on the Scripture. The roll was called with eleven members present. Minutes were read and approved. It was then decided to have fish and barbecue plates on November 11 to help on the building fund for the church.

New officers were elected for the coming year as follows: President, Mrs. Paul White; vice-president, Mrs. Artie Lamm; secretary, Mrs. Gladys Patrick; treasurer, Mrs.
Emma White; study course chairman, Mrs.
Paul Twine; program chairman, Mrs. Paul
White; personal service chairman, Mrs. Robert White; Children's Home chairman, Mrs.
Lena Armstrong. The meeting will be held on December 20 at the home of Mrs. Artie Lamm. Each member is to bring a gift to the meeting. Mrs. Robana Fowler dismissed with prayer. The hostess served apple pie, ice cream, mints, potato chips and cola.

Portsmouth, Va.—The Ruth Circle of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Portsmouth, Virginia, held its regular meeting on Monday night, November 11, 1960, with Ralph Osborne and Mrs. S. A. Grimst-ead at the home of Mrs. Osborne, 1616
Angling Avenue, the parsonage.
The meeting was called to order by Mrs.

Earnest Faulkner, chairman. There was prayer and a song, "Trust and Obey." The old and new business was brought before the group and discussed. Mrs. J. F. Gillispie was in charge of the program. She read and explained 1 Samuel 8:8-22. The meeting was adjourned.

Refreshments were served, consisting of punch, potato chips, cookies and peanuts.
The fellowship was a blessing to all. There were ten members and one visitor, Mrs. Ray Bailey of the Free Will Baptist Church in Goldsboro, North Carolina.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Pincy Grove Free Will Baptist Church met November 15, in the home of Mrs.
Frank Waddell with thirteen members and four visitors present. The meeting was opened by singing "Rescue the Perishing."
Mrs. Luey Jones led in prayer and Scripture was read by Mrs. Frank Waddell.

The pastor, the Rev. W. L. Poythress, gave a Thanksgiving talk, "Being Thankful as a Christian," which was a spiritual blessing to those present.

During the business session, the roll was called, minutes of last meeting read and approved, building treasurer and general treasurer reports were given. The Children's Home chairman, Mrs. Leona Wall, presented a school picture of the adopted daughter, Eula Mae Suggs. A report on the Woman's Auxiliary Convention was given by Mrs. Alma Gay Stanford. It was decided to send eleven Thanksgiving gifts to

AUXILIARY PINS

Please order your auxiliary pins
direct from The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. The
prices are: 10 K Gold, $5.25; Gold
Plated, $2.00.

When ordering life awards pins,
order direct from Mrs. H. L. Spi-
vey, Maury, North Carolina. There
is no charge for these when you
send to the state treasurer, Mrs.
Raymond T. Sasser, $25.00 for the designated state project which
this year is the Children's Home.

shut-ins, and also to hold services with Mrs.
Etta Rose on Sunday, November 20, at 6:30 p. m. Visitors are invited to attend this service.

Mrs. Alma Gay Stanford and Mrs. Mittie
Pittman will be hostesses at the December meeting.

Mrs. W. L. Poythress dismissed the group with prayer and the hostess served delicious refreshments.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information
concerning outstanding Free
Will Baptist people or events
of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER S. W. HAMILTON

Elder S. W. Hamilton was born in Boon
Hill Township, Johnston County, North Carolina; in the year 1829. He was poor in this world's goods, but rich in good works for the cause of his blessed Master.

He joined the Free Will Baptist Church when Union Grove was first organized in 1868, and was ordained in December of the same year. Elder Hamilton was a faithful, earnest and consecrated minister. He loved the cause of the Free Will Baptists; held up the doctrine of the Bible. He was a faithful soldier that endured many hardships. He traveled many miles on foot that he might preach the everlasting gospel. He has laid his armor by, and gone to receive his reward. He laid down the cross and took up the crown. During his latter years when he had become so feeble that he could not go to the General Conference, he wrote several warm hearted letters to the brethren, concerning his unfeigned love for the cause, and his great desire to meet with the brethren. His last trip was to the conference at St. Mary.

He told those that were around him not to pray for him that he might get well, but that he might be faithful to the last.
The night before he died he sang, "Oh, heaven sweet heaven, when shall I see,
when shall I get there."

He asked his wife the night before he died, if she heard the sweet strains of "Jerusalem My Happy Home." He then shook hands with all around and fell asleep in Jesus.

May the Lord that tempers the wind to the shorn lamb have mercy upon all the bereaved. May all try to follow him to the everlasting City.

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina
Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

December 14 set for 1960 Founder's Day Program At Mount Olive College

The ninth anniversary of the founding of Mount Olive College will be observed with special ceremonies at the college on Wednesday, December 14. All friends of the college are invited to attend the Founder's Day service in the college auditorium at 11:00 a. m.

Certificates to donors and persons honored through the Free Will Baptist Heritage Foundation will be awarded. The Reverend J. C. Griffin, esteemed Free Will Baptist minister of Bridgeton, will be the principal speaker. Music will be furnished by the college chorus.

Since the Heritage Foundation was established in 1958, 87 gifts of $100 or more have been made to the Foundation. Twelve other gifts of $100 have been started. The Foundation is an endowment fund created to strengthen Mount Olive College and perpetuate the heritage of Original Free Will Baptists. Each $100 contribution to the Foundation is recognized with a certificate suitable for framing and a nameplate on the beautiful Foundation plaque.

FOUNDER'S DAY GIFT

Here are ideas for making a gift of $100 or more to the Foundation:

1. A church, Sunday school, conference, auxiliary, league, or other church organization may give a special donation and have its name on the plaque.

2. A church can honor its present pastor through the Foundation, or it can honor or memorialize a previous pastor.

3. A church or other organization can recognize a living member or memorialize a deceased one through the Foundation.

4. Children may honor or memorialize their parents by a gift to the Foundation.

5. An individual may make a gift and have his own name engraved on the plaque.

We suggest that each church observe Sunday, December 11, as Founder's Day and bring a gift to the Free Will Baptist Heritage Foundation on December 14. Free bulletins may be obtained from the college for this service. Help us to send forth from the halls of Mount Olive College Christian young men and women who are rooted in our faith and heritage but whose faces are to the future.

Thank God for America

In the midst of the confusion of political and economic matters we hear many sharp words about America. For our part we thank God unceasingly for our country. Even though things are not going as all of us would like to have them go, would you trade your American citizenship for citizenship in any other country under the sun? Even though our liberties are being curtailed, are not those liberties greater than the liberties of any other country? Are not our relations to all other countries unique in every sense of the word? We have only the feeling of friendship for all nations that on earth do dwell. If we ever plunged into war again it will be because of a general world conflagration from which we cannot extricate ourselves. On the other hand, we ought to be grateful that our geographical position helps us very much in this matter. Boake Carter, an Englishman who became an American citizen, said in The Commentator: "I have learned one thing in my American education, a span of some sixteen years: that Americans don't have to hate like foreign nations, especially those of the Old World, must hate. America is one of the most fortunate countries God ever created. She is more nearly economically self-sufficient than any other, and she is bordered by two great oceans and two friendly neighbors." —The Watchman-Examiner.

AN OBEDIENT SERVANT

"Samuel grew, and the LORD was with him" (1 Samuel 1:19). Samuel obeyed the Word of the Lord; he conveyed the Lord's message to Eli, even against his natural inclination. An obedient servant, he had the Lord's blessing. True prosperity follows those who obey God. To obey the gospel brings salvation to the sinner; to do the Lord's will gives blessing to the saint.—Good Seed.

THANKSGIVING

Georgia B. Adams

O Lord, we lift up grateful hands
In praises unto Thee;
This day our hearts are filled with
For all that we can see:

The rolling hills, effulgent with
The glories of Thy hand,
The awesome beauty of the sky
And every stretch of land.

The food and shelter of our homes,
The love we find within,
For true friends who down through years
Have stuck through "thick and thin"

And for this land where we may dwell
In peace and liberty—
These blessings are but just a few,
But may we thankful be.

Thanksgiving should be every day,
We know it, Lord, and yet
Forgive us, for sometimes we do
So easily forget!

Disliked by Christians—Hated By Non-Christians

There was a young woman who was a nominal church member. She was disliked by the Christians with whom she worked. She was hated by the non-Christians with whom she worked. She was mean, sneering, destructively critical and often lay low others with her deadly tongue. One day she was genuinely saved. There was a marked change in her life. The Christians with whom she worked were slow to believe, however. They said, "Now that she's got religion, we'll see how it works and how long it will hold out." Hearing what had happened, the new convert went to those with whom she had treated so meanly and said, "I have turned with all my heart to show you my new life by my changed life and ways. I am sorry for all the mean things I have said and done. As time passed, all could see much of the likeness in her words and deeds." —W. B. Knight.

WINE HYMNBOOKS SOLD OUT

This is to notify any church which is considering ordering Free Will Baptist Hymnal that wine-color books are sold out. Only the granite-color books are available. Send your orders to Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 100, Ayden, North Carolina.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

The New Covenant

(Lesson for December 4)

Scripture: Jeremiah 31:3-7, 31-34; Romans 8:1, 2, 38, 39.

Scripture Text: Romans 8:38, 39

INTRODUCTION

This is the first of four lessons which deal with the coming of Jesus into the world. It is the last unit of study for this quarter. The subject is, "The Advent of Jesus Christ." The first three lessons are designed to lay the foundation for the Christmas story by dealing with prophecies and other information concerning the coming of Christ. The new covenant, as prophesied in Jeremiah 31, is a reality as God carried forward His plan of redemption for mankind through the Lord Jesus. Romans 8, another portion of the Printed Text, shows that we, too, are a people for God's own possession. He entered into his new covenant of love with the Lord Jesus.

In studying this lesson, let us remember that under the new covenant, based upon the death of Jesus, God promises forgiveness of sins, the indwelling Spirit, and eternal life. On our part, there must be faith in God and obedience to His will as revealed in the New Testament.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

God's great love made the children of God His chosen people (Jeremiah 31:3).

Reconciliation with God is a beautiful thing to behold (Vs. 4).

Israel shall enjoy physical prosperity, and regenerate are spiritually prosperous (Vs. 5; 3 John 1:2).

God has a perfect plan for His future dealings with man (Vs. 31).

Man's past failures don't thwart God's plans (Vs. 31).

God's approach to men may change, but His purpose (Vs. 32).

Principles based on the Word control far better than self-made rules (Vs. 31).

To know His Word is to follow Him and the forgiveness of sins has been obtained (Vs. 34).

God's unconditional covenants are as permanent and eternal as He is (Vs. 35).

10. God frees from sin's penalty and power (Romans 8:1, 2).

11. Eternal salvation fills with awe and gratitude for deliverance from sin (Vs. 38, 39).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Note that there are two covenants referred to here. The old covenant was the one that God made through Moses at Sinai. This covenant of the law was to be replaced by a new covenant through Jesus (Hebrews 8:6-13). As a loving husband, God had cared for Israel, but she had broken the covenant and rejected His love. Although it is not stated here, the implication that under the new covenant through Christ he will find another Bride. Is that not what happened? The church, those who are saved by the Lord Jesus Christ, make up the Bride of Christ.

2. The meaning here becomes clearer when we look at the statement in Hebrews 8:10, "For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, . . ." The expression, those days, or the days of rejection, are the days intervening until the establishment of the new covenant. Under the old covenant, one was born an Israelite and therefore under the covenant. This will not be true under the new covenant; identification with God's people will be by free choice—the acceptance of the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. In 2 Corinthians 3:3, the apostle, Paul, tells the Christians that they are the epistle of Christ, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart. Great things are in store for the people of God if they are true to His everlasting covenant.

4. God's new covenant is a better covenant with better promises (Hebrews 8:6). It is universal, permanent, perfect. It embraces all men: Israel, Judah, Gentiles. It is to have no successor. Its effects are eternal as well as temporal. It is perfect in its provisions for life and immortality.—The Standard Commentary.

5. Israel, through rebellion, separated herself from the benefits of God's love. Here is a word of caution to us: It is true that nothing can separate the love of God from His people, but His people can rebel against

His will, both under the old as well as the new covenant, and lose the benefits of His steadfast love. Our Lord Jesus is the everlasting expression of God's love toward men, all men, in that God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son; but only those who accept His love through faith benefit from His great love.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

6. "Where are you going?" asked an atheist of a boy. "I'm going to Sunday school," replied the boy cheerily. "Why are you going to Sunday school?" asked the unbeliever. "To learn about God," said the boy. "How do you know there is a god?" questioned the atheist. "Why, sir, my Sunday school teacher knows Him!"

7. A man who was a slave to sin was gloriously saved! He lacked a guiding hand to help him find some place of service. One day he saw two men who were human sandwiches, wearing two placards tied together at the top and flung over their shoulders. In front and behind, the placards carried messages of a false religious cult. An idea came to the new convert. He saw on a rubbish heap two placards which bore the words, Under New Management. Was he not under "new management"? He had ceased to be Satan's slave and was now under the management of the Lord Jesus who had delivered him from sin's bondage and ruin. He, too, became a human sandwich, gladly proclaiming to all onlookers that he was under new management!

8. A victorious Christian with wide experience gives the following advice about meeting temptation:

A good way to drive the devil away is to repeat the name of Jesus. The enemy can't stand the name of Jesus.

"Take the name of Jesus ever,

As a shield from every snare;

If temptations round you gather,

Breathe that holy name in prayer."

Many, many times in my early Christian life I defeated the devil in this way. "Resist the devil and he will flee from you" (James 4:7). "Your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: whom resist steadfast in the faith" (1 Peter 5:8, 9).—Selected.

THE MAIL BOX

AVAILABLE FOR PASTORAL WORK

"... I am open for evangelistic or pastoral work where the Lord might lead. I helped to build a church in Irving, Texas, and was pastor there. I was also pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church in Fort Worth. My address is 2400 Pearl Street, Fort Worth, Texas.—Rev. Roy O'Dell.

It's Unknown What a Boy Can Make

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

It's unknown what a boy can make—
Give him a chance and see;
He may become a mighty man
To save our liberty;
A man with principles sublime
That ev'ry nation needs;
A man who helps his country much
By great and noble deeds.

It's unknown what a boy can make—
Then lead him in the right;
He may become a man whose life
Will be a burning light;
A man to educate our youth
And help to make them great;
A man who loves our God and truth
And will not yield to hate.

It's unknown what a boy can make—
So treat him kind and good;
And tell him he can be the best
In all the neighborhood;
That he can make the honor roll
By keeping well each rule,
That makes him noble in the home
And honorable in school.

It's unknown what a boy can make
Who doesn't steal and lie;
Who studies well and keeps his mind
On something clean and high;
Who doesn't idle time away
At something mean and low,
But seeks and finds in early life
The way that he should go.

It's unknown what a boy can make
If he will learn to pray,
And find the gems and pearls of life
That lie along the way;
Who wants a character and name
That's better far than gold,
And whose desire it is to be Forever in God's fold.

It's unknown what a boy can make—
Perhaps a preacher grand,
Who'll win the precious souls of men
For Christ throughout the land;
Who'll scatter sunshine and good will
By serving God above,
And maybe bless a million homes
Through Christian grace and love.

I WONDER WHAT MY HOME WILL BE

Dorothy Conant Stroud

I wonder what my home will be
Beyond the silver, ageless sea;
Will it be made of finest gold
Adorned by gems in patterns bold?
Or will it be a cabin small

Beside a singing waterfall,
Or deep within the wood, perchance,
Where errant swaying shadows dance
Will that home have gold columns,
A rose-wreathed, friendly open door.

It matters not what it shall be,
If Christ but built the home for me!

SELECT CHRISTMAS PROGRAM MATERIALS

The following program material is especially selected for use during the Christmas season. It is now in stock and available for immediate shipment. Refer to catalogue for complete list of all program materials.

THE TOUCH OF HIS HAND

A Christmas Drama by Lucille R. Green

This is a play of four acts requiring 14 characters including the angel chorus. The staging and costuming are very simple. Performance time is approximately one hour to an hour and fifteen minutes.

"The Touch of His Hand" is a scripture-filled story of the birth of Christ, from the time just prior to the shepherd's scene on the hillside to King Herod's slaughtering of all the boy babies in Bethlehem.

THE CHRISTMAS HEART — NO GIFT IN RETURN

Two New Christmas Dramas in One Economical Booklet

The Christmas Heart by Elsie Duncan Yale is a playlet for five girls, in which the need of ridding the heart of all grudges and ill will, as preparation for the coming of Christ, is emphasized. Stage setting and costumes are simple and easily arranged.

No Gift in Return by Mattie B. Shannon is a drama for four young ladies and one "Little Girl."

Simple stage setting and easy to prepare costumes makes this an ideal "easy" presentation.

The time is Christmas Eve of the present and the scene is a den with a table, two large chairs and stool.

Carollers sing in the background. Gifts with Christmas trimmings lend color.

THE ANGELIC SONG

A Christmas Drama
by
Mattie B. Shannon

"The Angelic Song," requiring eight characters and a chorus, tells in an interesting and dramatic way the influence an old Christmas carol had in a home where a father and son had quarrelled.

The arrangement of this Christmas drama makes for a minimum number of rehearsals.

THE HIGHEST GIFT

A Christmas Play by Carolyn Clifton Dain

A play for intermediate and senior young people (7 characters) requiring about one hour. Properties consist of an angel costume, cards and letters, suitcases, sewing basket, hand sweeper, copy of the poem, newspaper, sofa pillows, and packages.

EACH OF ABOVE BOOKLETS PRICED AT 50c EACH

Order from THE FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. Box 158

Ayden, N. C.

DS

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, November 30, 1960

STACY FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH
Stacy, North Carolina

The Stacy Church is one of the many Free Will Baptist churches which has experienced a successful growth. For more information about the church, see the News Note entitled, "Stacy Church Announces Grand Opening Reival."

EDITORIAL

A TESTING TIME

We are living in a day of testing. The leading powers of the world are being put to a test. America's prestige and power in the world is being put to a test by the evil force of Communism, represented primarily by the Soviet Union and Red China. The powers of political parties throughout the world are being put to the test. Religion is being put to the test; Christianity is being tried throughout the world. Of this one thing we can be sure, however, Jesus never fails.

For years, we have heard that there is prevalent in our country a rebellion against authority; hence, the rise in juvenile delinquency. This attitude, which reaches out to have its effect upon our nation, is not constructive; it is not uplifting; instead, it tears down and destroys those principles and practices of our society and government which have stood the test of time and experience, which are the greatest tests. There is now unrest and discord in practically all walks of life, both religiously and secularly. Somehow, man's desire toward individuality has taken him overboard toward total dependence, to the exclusion of established authority and leadership.

There seems to be confusion regarding co-operation among brethren in Christ. Some seem to think that co-operation, and a mutual giving and taking in order to solve problems, is submitting and bowing to others. Jesus, however, expects His followers to work in harmony and unity. Only then can we truly win others to Christ and be the examples before the world which He expects of us. We cannot help but feel that the cause of Christ has been hindered among Free Will Baptists because of recent damaging publicity.

It is a testing time in our denomination, and in this test which is being waged, construction of the good has been crippled. The rights of our conferences are being put to the test.

We cannot help but feel that we are closer to the unity of church and state than most of us realize; for when a religious body is prevented from taking its rightful action because of the legal action of the state, it seems that the church is being forced to submit to it. A thing may be legal with the law, but morally wrong before the world.

There have been rumors of other lawsuit threats in other conferences within our denomination. We know that rumors cannot be relied upon, and often prove to be untrue. We hope these rumors are false.

It behooves all Free Will Baptists to pray that our problems can be solved to the glorification of the name of Jesus.

DON'T LOSE LIFE'S PERSPECTIVE

Keep things in proper relation to their respective importance. One of the things that gets us down is that we form distorted pictures of things that affect us. When a friend slights us, intentional or otherwise, we are in danger of considering all friends unworthy of our confidence. When we fail at some undertaking—singing a solo, driving a car, applying for a job—we often go home and, in a mental state approaching despair, assert, "I'm good; I'll not try again." Suppose you did fail to pass your driver's test, there is another day and it may be that next time the officer will not be so aggravating.

Life is not made up of a single event, but a long series of occurrences. Failure today may be the preparation needed for tomorrow's effort. Rewards come from difficulties surmounted. No achievement is the apex of success. Always there are more mountains to climb and more precipices to get over.

Don't lose life's perspective; keep things proportioned. If you must be overwhelmed, let it be in the ocean not in a bath tub. The old mill, driven by water power, useful in its day, is now idle and obsolete. The watering trough at the side of the road to refresh the horses is no longer necessary. The pony express, an example of tough horse flesh and equally tough men, has passed into history. We may stand at the old mill and lament its passing; or we may go out and grow grain and grind it in the electric-powered plant, and feed the world.

We may long for the good old days when men were men and women were housewives, and mothers, and the challenge of this our day. There is no road to yesterday. Today is our opportunity and responsibility.

This is a frightening age because men hold not life's true perspective. We have looked at things and are confused, frightened. Take a look at God—supreme, holy, good. Nothing is too hard for Him. Out of the welter and maze and degradation of this generation, Christ is gathering a band of holy people who will go into the rapture. Live for this event and life's little annoyances will be held in proper perspective.—Oliver G. Williams in the Wesleyan Methodist.

Volume 75

Number

November 30, 1960

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

C. H. OVERMAN, Editor

Edited and published weekly by the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C. approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, The Free Will Baptist is entered at the post office, Ayden, N. C., as second-class mail matter

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor six days prior to the publication date of that issue

6 Months _____
1 Year _____
SUBSCRIPTIONS PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor of The Free Will Baptist. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or to the person sending it in.

The Free Will Baptist Press

N. BRUCE BARROW Ma
C. H. OVERMAN Editor of Lite
LEON DUNN Tre

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

R. N. Hinnant Pre
W. L. Jernigan Vice-Pre
J. W. Alford Sec
Owen Thomas Assistant Sec
J. O. Fort, S. A. Smith and Hubert Burruss

To Be or Not To Be

That Is The Question

ev. Charles Sapp, Richmond, Virginia

pture Passage: John 3:1-5

pture Text: "... except a man be born he cannot see the kingdom of God" (3:5).

HE Bible tells us that God created man in His own image. This is the simple, but true story of how man was ushered into this world. We may disagree about many details related to this event, but the event itself is beyond dispute. Our present existence should settle that fact without debate. Without argument or apology, the Christian faith contends that we came from God. What is man? not much, when you are thinking about God. God says that man was made in the image of his creator; that means he was given an understanding of which he could know God; he had a will which delighted to do the commands of God, and a heart that loved the things of God.

When temptation came and man fell; the image of the most high God, man debauched; the sin and the Spirit of God went out; man forsok the polluted spot.

Man followed the descent of a ruined world. The record says that Adam begat a son in his own image, not in the image of God, but in the image of Adam with the image of God marred and defaced. This is what the Bible means when it talks about being born again and shapen in iniquity.

Man is born wrong; he is out of relationship with his God who created him. The only way this relationship can be renewed is through a new creation—a second birth. We consider our passage which is dedicated to the teaching that man is wrong and only God can make him right, in the assurance that God will bring home to us this message with all its force and conviction—its promise received and its command obeyed. The Bible tells us, as He told Nicodemus, that man must be born again, or born from above. We say that unless we are so born we cannot enter the Kingdom of God. He does not say "May not"; He does not say, "Shall He say, "Cannot." By the very nature of the case, the thing is impossible—check the essential conditions for seeing anything of the kind. Every creature born into this world has a nature after its kind. You can't train a bird to crawl, for the same reason you can't train a snake to fly. True to his nature, a caterpillar crawls, and when we see him fly, we do not say, "The caterpillar flies! What an accomplished caterpillar!" We say, "The creature has changed—it has a new nature—it's been born again; it's a butterfly!" The same thing is true of the natural and spiritual births.

You might as well expect a mummy to speak and bear children as to expect the natural man to appreciate the things of God, so as to do them without being born again, or being born from above. You might as well expect to lift yourself by your own bootstraps as to try to generate, or work up within yourself that quality of life that will fit you to become a subject of God's Kingdom.

Nicodemus is a good example of what all men are when they stand before God. He was uncomprehending and incredulous: "... How can a man be born again when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb and be born?" (Vs. 4). In spite of his professional knowledge of the Old Testament which should have prepared him for its fulfillment in the new life, it had not. He has been called by many, religious, but lost. It was impossible to disclose to him heavenly things (John 3: 12), because he had failed to understand earthly things which the Old Testament had taught. These heavenly things he could only perceive and receive through Jesus, the heavenly Son of man, who links heaven and earth together.

Could we not say, to use that much quoted line from literature, "To be or not to be" was the question he faced. We face it when we confront the claim of God in the man, Christ Jesus. Jesus was giving to Nicodemus, as He gives to us, the opportunity and the gracious invitation, the promise and the demand, to be or not to be. To live or not to live abundantly and everlastingly—that is the question. It is an either/or. It can never be both/and in this sense. When Jesus says, "Ye must be born again," we must recognize that His demand is tied to these words, should not perish, but have everlasting life. The demand is: Live, ye sons of men! Live or die!

We have seen then that men must be born again because their natural birth has been committed to death. Now let us ask ourselves if the passage instructs us in the means by which this is to be brought about?

Nicodemus must have been profoundly disturbed when Jesus said, "Ye must be born again." A man had nothing to do with his natural birth, how can he possibly have anything to do with his spiritual birth? He can't, but he must, this was Jesus' answer. That answer has never changed. Man must be what he cannot be, and he has no power to change the situation. Nicodemus has been accused of interpreting these words of Jesus with stupid literalism. I should like to suggest that nothing he said was stupid. He voices the same anxiety that we voice as we stand before the divine imperative and are told to be what we cannot be. There is absolutely nothing we can do to bring about this experience. We like to oversimplify and say, "Repent, believe the gospel and be baptized and you have effortlessly fulfilled the requirements. God will be forced into giving you eternal life." That these things are somehow connected with the experience of new life no one would deny, but this is an easy gospel which permits men to manipulate God. No sir, this is too simple. There is absolutely nothing we can do to force this experience, but we can respond to it in faith. John makes this clear when he says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3: 16). This is God's demand, but it is also His promise. This is the will of God, that ye believe on Him whom He has sent.

It is impossible to structure this experience of new life, so that we can say, "Here it is, I have the formula in three easy steps. Just do this and you will be saved." No, the profound thing about it all, the mystery about it all, is that it happens as the result of hearing and responding to the good news of salvation in Christ. We believe and repent. These are necessary things, but the goodness of God leads us to repent-

(continued on page five)

Officials Issue Statement Concerning Lawsuit

The purpose of this statement is to give our people some information about the dispute in the Western Conference of North Carolina in regards to Edgemont Free Will Baptist Church, Durham, and its pastor, the Rev. Ronald Creech. During the past several weeks, since the lawsuit was given wide publicity, many of you have asked for information which we did not feel free to give at the time. You have said that you wanted to hear the other side of the matter, since Brother Creech has so freely presented his side.

Because so many of you have asked for this information and because we are now free to give some of the answers to questions you have asked, we are asking The Free Will Baptist to publish this statement as a service to the thousands who want this information. Other denominational papers may use it if desired, provided that it is used in its entirety. A copy is being sent to Contact for use if the editor so desires, since so many national personalities have expressed themselves, or have been quoted, in regards to this matter.

In the first place, we want it clearly understood that we did not start the lawsuit. The libel suit for $400,000 and a temporary restraining order were brought against us by Brother Creech.

For more than a year officials of the Western Conference have been approached by members and officials of Edgemont Free Will Baptist Church with complaints of irregularities of administration and doctrine within the church. Nearly two years ago an official of the church predicted to an officials of the conference that, unless preventative steps were taken, the very things which have happened would happen. For more than a year, we encouraged those people to try to settle their difficulties within the local church, advising them that we could take no part in the matter unless written charges were filed with us as prescribed by the Statement of Faith and Discipline for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina and the Constitution and Bylaws of the Western Conference.

We declined to enter the case, until the number and seriousness of the complaints were reduced to formal written charges and filed with us.

Several attempts to get the accused faction and the pastor to meet with the

A STATEMENT FROM THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AND BOARD OF ORDINATION OF THE WESTERN CONFERENCE OF N. C.

accusers met with failure, except Brother Creech did at one time agree to meet if his attorney would be allowed to represent him. We knew of no case in our history when an attorney-at-law had been required to represent a minister in a hearing strictly within the jurisdiction of the conference. Furthermore, we did not consider ourselves competent to rule on points of civil law that the attorney indicated he would introduce if allowed to represent Brother Creech. We attempted to deal with this matter in strict adherence to the prescriptions, doctrinal statements, church covenant, and rules of church government as contained in the Statement of Faith and Discipline for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina and the Constitution and Bylaws of the Western Conference.

We were prevented from reporting any of our findings, actions, or recommendations to the annual session of the Western Conference for action on October 12, 13 by reason of the lawsuit for $400,000 and a temporary restraining order which had been filed against us by Brother Creech and which papers were served on us as we arrived at the Free Will Baptist Church in Micro on the morning of October 12 to begin the annual session of the Western Conference. So far as we know, this was the first time in the history of Free Will Baptists that an annual conference was prevented from tending to all of its business because of legal action taken by one of its own members. While so restraining us, Brother Creech served on the ministerial character committee during the session and took part in disciplining other ministers.

A hearing on the temporary restraining order was held in the Wake County court house on October 24; however, we were still restrained from giving out any information until the judge finally gave his ruling on November 15.

The following is a direct quotation from the Restraining Order and Temporary Injunction signed by Judge Henry A. McKinnon Jr., on November 15, 1960:

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY CONSIDERED, ORDERED, AND ADJUDGED by the Court that the defendants, M. L. Johnson, Wiley Ferr R. N. Hinnant, Dewey C. Boling, W. Renfrow, B. L. Shook, Albert Coats R. H. Jackson, Earl Glenn and Leon B. Woodall, bc, and they are hereby joined and restrained, each of them either in person or by others, from doing any of the following acts during the pendency of this action and prior to the final hearing in this action, namely:

1. Publishing in any way, directly or indirectly, any words or writing stating that plaintiff is not, by reason of an action taken on or before August 30, 1960, by the Executive Committee and Board of Ordination of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, an ordained minister of the Original Free Will Baptist denomination or words to that effect;

2. Interfering with plaintiff's position and status in the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, by reason of any action taken by the Executive Committee and Board of Ordination of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina; on or before August 30, 1960.

3. Interfering with plaintiff's contractual relationship and his position as pastor of Edgemont Original Free Will Baptist Church of Durham, North Carolina, by reason of any action taken by the Executive Committee and Board of Ordination of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, on or before August 30, 1960.

4. Interfering with plaintiff's professional activities as an ordained minister and plaintiff's position and standing in the Original Free Will Baptists denomination, by reason of any action taken by the Executive Committee and Board of Ordination of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, on or before August 30, 1960.

We assure you that we have no intention of attempting to do any of the above mentioned acts, by reason of any action taken by the Executive Committee and Board of Ordination of the Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, on or before August 30, 1960. The actions complained about are the basis upon which Brother Creech has sued us for $400,000. We have every intention of abiding by the above quoted Temporary Injunction until it is reversed or until the lawsuit is disposed of.

We are assured, however, by our that this ruling does not limit present future actions, since August 30, 1960, and we are free to deal with this matter as necessity requires.

Because of the seriousness of this matter and the widespread unfavorable publicity of our conference in particular, and our denomination in general; because it is recognized that the difficulty is becoming even more serious; and because of the duties imposed upon us by our Constitution and laws, we feel that we must fulfill the responsibilities of the offices to which our people have elected us. The easy way out would be to simply refuse to deal with the charges filed with us, but this would not be keeping faith with those through whose lives we have our opportunities of today. We have no alternative but to fulfill the duties of our office. We sincerely desire your prayers for divine guidance as we continue to deal with this problem.

During the past several weeks many of you have asked why we do not file counter suits against Brother Creech, and our attorneys have advised us that we have ample grounds upon which to file such suits. However, we urge you to be patient and understanding with us. We did not drag our name, faith, and heritage of Original Will Baptists before the secular courts in the first place, and we do not believe two wrongs ever make one right. We should settle our difficulties within the church and not take our brother into lawsuits. We do not like to go to court. We are sorry we have to be in court but we have been sued for $400,000. We do not feel that we have done anything for which we should be required to pay money. We are being forced to go into court in order to defend against this attempt to extract this enormous sum of money from our denomination and especially in view of the great financial needs which exist in our denomination at the present time. We pray that the time will never come when Free Will Baptists will be afraid to discharge their duty for fear of being

We believe this matter can best be taken care of through the traditional practice of our denomination and by following the teachings of our Saviour. Brother Creech will meet the requirements that have been imposed upon him by simply agreeing to meet the accusers face to face to answer the charges in the presence of these commit-

We promise you that we will do our very best to spare our conference and our denomination as much embarrassment from unfavorable publicity as possible by dealing with this matter as quickly and as quietly as possible.

We sincerely appreciate the many letters, telephone calls, and personal comments in which so many of you have expressed your concern about this matter and have pledged your prayers. Without these it would have been much more difficult to endure the pressures, embarrassments, and heartaches. We sincerely desire your continued prayers for divine leadership in this matter.

We also deeply appreciate those of you who have already sent contributions to help pay the expenses involved and those who have said you make contributions when needed. While we deplore the fact that it has become necessary to use money for this purpose, when it is needed so greatly for more noble causes, we do deeply appreciate your desire to help in this way.

We do not know what the future holds for our denomination, but we do know that God has the answers if we will listen to Him. We know that what exists today is not that which our forefathers would be pleased. We comfort ourselves at the present with the hope that some good will come from the present struggle that is causing many to awaken to the dangers that face us.

To Be or Not to Be, That Is the Question

(Continued from Page 3)

ance, and we could even believe if we were not enabled. Faith itself is the gift of God. (Read Ephesians 2:8.)

Martin Luther came to this experience of grace through bitter struggle. There is no record at all about John Calvin's experience, but we do not doubt the reality of his spiritual life. Wesley had come to America as a missionary and gone home a failure before he felt his heart strangely warmed. Paul's experience came like a bolt of lightning from the heavens. The experience may be almost as varied as are individuals, but thank God it does happen, and we know it has happened in the response and the affirmation of faith and life. When the Church takes us to the baptismal pool, we witness that we have died to the old life and have been raised to the new. The Holy Spirit takes up His abode in our lives and provides a constant awareness that we have passed out of death into life. All of this is a mystery. John didn't attempt to explain it. Why should we? We can be sure of one thing—it is not just a mystical experience. It is more. Feelings of well-being often accompany this experience, but they are not primary to it.

The new birth is not a promise of a rosy life of ease—an escape from the pressures of daily living. The pressures may become greater, when eternity invades time. This is precisely what happens when we lay hold of God by faith and He apprehends us by promise and demand. The new life brings its blessings with it, but the new life received must be lived out in an old order which does not recognize its existence. Accepting the new life, one must also accept the offense that goes with it. Peter said that we must go without the camp, bearing His reproach. What did he mean? He meant that a world that rejected Christ would also reject His disciples. He understood that life lived in the dimension of another world was to live in rejection in this world.

John gives expression to this tension in his first epistle when he talks about sonship. ". . . it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; . . ." (1 John 3:2). He has just finished saying, "Now are we the sons of God." What else can we ever be? What does John imply? He is saying, I believe, that the Christian is placed in the tension of the already and the not yet, but he is to live every morning in the affirmation of his new life. The eternal order has made its invasion, and we simply wait for its full consummation in history.

We have been confronted with the necessity of new birth based upon the demand and promise of God through the gift of His Son, our Lord. We have seen, I trust, that we cannot make active what is essentially passive. Yield yourself to Him. Respond to Him in faith, for we are confronted with the impossible demand of God to be what we cannot be; but the God who demands is also the God who promises. He takes the initiative by sending His Son, who by the Cross and the resurrection makes it possible for us to confirm a new life.

We respond in faith and repentance; we witness through the Church in affirmation of our faith to all men everywhere. By new life in the community of the Church, all men can know that we are His disciples.

This faith of which I speak is not that which is illustrated by Ophelia Guyon Browning's poem, when she says in the last two lines:

"She knows' Omnipotence has heard her prayer,

And cries, 'It shall be done sometime, somewhere.'"

No, this is not it! Our faith rests in a Person, Christ Jesus our Lord, and we shout, "It has been done at the Cross, at the Cross."

NEWS AND NOTES

Of Denominational Interest

Stacy Church Announces Grand Opening Revival

The Stacy Free Will Baptist Church, Stacy, North Carolina, announces their "Grand Opening Revival" to begin December 5, closing on the 14th. This meeting marks the official opening of the new sanctuary, which has been under construction for nearly a year. Services each night will begin at 7:30 p. m.

The evangelist for the meeting is the Rev. Bobby Jackson, one of the denomination's most popular and successful evangelists. An abundance of special music is to be furnished by singing groups from twelve various churches throughout the county. The pastor, the Rev. Gordon R. Sebastian, extends a cordial invitation to all to come and visit these services being held in their newly constructed building.

After the damaging of a fire, the Stacy Church launched a $35,000.00 renovation program in December, 1959. The program included the following improvements: Brick veneer, colonial porch and steeple, lengthening of the sanctuary, rooms, interior mahogany paneling, pews and pulpit furniture, cushioned opera-type choir chairs, piano and organ, carpet and centralized heating and air-conditioning.

Mr. Sebastian reports that the past year of construction has brought with it improvements in many areas. The church income from the community in 1959 was approximately $8,000.00. In 1960, however, it jumped to $12,000.00. Attendance also increased with some months averaging over 140 in Sunday school. Emphasis in denominational giving had its growth too, as gifts doubled to missions and the orphanage, and tripled to the Bible College at Nashville, Tennessee.

Fellowship Church Announces Fall Revival

The Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church, Washington, North Carolina, announces its fall revival, beginning December 5 and continuing through December 11. The services will begin each evening at 7:30 p. m., with the pastor, the Rev. Charles Bryant, as the evangelist.

The pastor extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend these services and

Rev. Charles Bryant

be much in prayer that the lost might be won to the Lord. The church is located at the corner of Fifth and Harvey Streets.

Rev. Eugene Waddell To Conduct Mission Revival

The Brookwood Original Free Will Baptist Mission, 209 Brookwood Avenue, Fayetteville, North Carolina, announces its fall revival beginning December 5 and continuing through December 10, with services beginning each evening at 7:30. The Rev.

Eugene Waddell, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church, Garner, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for the meeting.

The Rev. Thomas K. Johnson, pastor of the mission, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these revival services and requests that you send him the name of any friends or relatives who are Free Will Baptists and live in or near Fayetteville.

Rev. Bruce Dudley Accepts Pastorate

The Rev. Bruce Dudley of Wilson, North Carolina, has accepted the pastorate of Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church, Route 2, Pikeville, North Carolina, for the coming year. He is a graduate of Mount Olive Junior College and is continuing education at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, North Carolina.

Mr. Dudley was ordained by the Eastern Conference of Original Free Will Baptists in October of this year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Dudley of Blount, North Carolina, and is unmarried. Services are held each first and third Sunday morning at 11:00 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.

Yearly Report of Children's Home, Greeneville, Tennessee

Mr. H. C. Burgess, superintendent of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Greeneville, Tennessee, reports as follows for the year, October 1, 1959 to September 30, 1960:

Balance on Hand, Oct. 1, 1959 $ 6,240.00
Receipts

Tennessee:
Union Association	$11,857.10
Cumberland Association	3,490.82
Stone Association	1,958.93
Tee River Association	435.32
Jack's Creek Association	408.10
Tennessee River Association	100.00
Middle Tennessee Association	83.84
Total	18,333.07
Farm and Automatic:
Farm Products (Does Not Include Vegetables)
Hay, Wheat)	$ 7,606.93
Automatic	7,109.30

Coming Events

December 14—Founder's Day, Mount Olive College
December 25—Christmas Day
January 25—Spring Semester Begins, Mount Olive College

owment	600.00
total	15,316.23
nia	12,902.25
t Virginia	2,489.82
r States	1,913.07
ellaneous	13,252.36
orial Cottage	1,327.45
ning Fund	3,217.64

total General Fund Receipts $74,993.28

Disbursements

es (Includes itholding Tax
ynments	$16,551.60
eries	11,268.62
Oil, Garage	2,948.17
c Light, Power	2,916.92
fe Supplies,
nting, Postage	1,188.25
cal, Hospital,
ntal	422.96
ehold	2,447.62
llaneous	3,164.30
ational	1,171.92
ral Repairs	2,708.74
ing and
quipment	15,465.69
ch
Contributions	624.50
ance	696.50
	8,612.16
ing	2,400.72
total Disbursements	72,588.67

Balance on Hand Sept. 30, 1960 $ 2,404.61
 Children Cared For During the Year, 98.

CHRISTMAS GIVING

Mrs. Alice Dale
 Greenville, North Carolina

This season of the year, most of us are thinking about giving folks something for Christmas and, I'm afraid, thinking too little about the most wonderful Gift of that Christmas night when we were in need of a Saviour—hopelessly lost if He had not been given.

It is a shame how people commercialize this occasion. We weary ourselves in trying to celebrate His birthday! One day recently, while waiting for an elevator, I heard a conversation in which someone said that she would be glad when Christmas was over.

We would honor His name much more by giving to those who really are in need, rather than by giving to those from whom we expect to receive something. There is no need to rack our brains in trying to decide what to give to different ones, and thus

(continued on page sixteen)

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
 3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
 3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Addresses Listed

The following church addresses are listed for the convenience of our people who have friends and relatives in these cities:

Indianapolis Free Will Baptist Church
 1623 East Prospect Street
 Indianapolis, Indiana

Washington, D. C. "Bloss Memorial"
 Wilson and North Quinn

Arlington 9, Virginia (Wilson School)
 Parsonage: 515 North Nelson, Arlington

Fairfax, Virginia "Fairwood Church"
 State Route 123 at Butts Corners
 Fairfax, Virginia

Bel Air, Maryland "Welcome Home Church"
 133 Prospect Mill Road
 Bel Air, Maryland (70 miles South of Philadelphia)

Baltimore, Maryland "Harmony Church"
 215 Bourque Road
 Baltimore 20, Maryland

Elkhart, Indiana
 Free Will Baptist Church
 2815 Baker Street, Route 4
 Elkhart, Indiana

Note: Many new churches are being organized in new cities and in new areas. Please write the National Home Missions Board for information.

The Vandivorts Write

Dear Bro. Willis:

Greetings in the name of our Saviour! We are glad that we can report that God has been blessing our ministry here. The services last week end have given us much joy and encouragement. If I had written a few weeks ago, you probably would have sensed a note of disappointment, as one of our key families had moved away from our community to live in the home of their grandfather who has recently lost his wife. We prayed much for this family as we knew that we needed them so much in the church, and we knew, too, that they would not have a Bible preaching church to attend in their new environment. The Lord answered our prayers; last Sunday the family was back in church as they had become unhappy in their new environment, and had moved back to Twin Mountain bringing the grandfather to live with them.

Other definite answers to prayer include children who are members of a family living next to the church, and are now being permitted to come to Sunday school and church. A girl who is a junior in high school and who has been doing a wonderful job in teaching a primary Sunday school class is now being permitted to come to league and evening worship.

During the November business meeting, the church voted to raise our salary from $15.00 per week to $20.00 per week. Other items which we felt were in answer to prayer are that the church voted to set aside $25 as a start toward a Christian library, and to appoint a committee to work out plans toward providing nursery facilities for our church.

Louise will be starting a Good News Bible Club, November 17, which will meet each Thursday afternoon in the home of one of our church members.

God is blessing in our cottage prayer services. We usually have 10 or 12 attending, and there is real spiritual interest shown at each meeting.

It is a real blessing to see the spiritual progress of our people during the past few months. From the pulpit, I have noticed that several of the people who used to turn to the front of the Bible to locate a certain book can turn now to a few of the more familiar books without this help. Most of the messages I have preached have been a simple expository type and the people will follow along with me in their Bibles. I am currently preaching from the book of Daniel during the Sunday evening services. Some of the people have read the book of Daniel three or four times, and they come to me with questions about the Word.

I thought the response was good to our

(Continued on page fourteen)

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Please explain "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." How is it possible that the disciples should do greater works than Jesus?—Lib Jones, Alabama.

Answer: Because Jesus was going to send them the Holy Spirit as a comforter and teacher as He returned to His Father. This Comforter, like Jesus, was to be a divine Person; but being a Spirit He would not be confined to one local abode nor to one person. He was destined to so energize believers all over the whole inhabited world that the gospel might spread forth more rapidly, as well as more widely, than it had when preached by our blessed Lord Himself individually, and supported by His mighty works. Such powers as was promised would not be in the disciples themselves as belonging to their personal strength, but in the promised and coming Comforter. This power in its first manifestation was revealed to the disciples, 120 of them, as they assembled in the upper room in accord with the directions and promises of Jesus Christ. On that day, they were all met in one place and all in accord. Peter preached and others witnessed as they saw three thousand souls added to the church. "And being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence. . . . But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:4, 5; 8). "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance. And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of ever nation under heaven" (Acts 2:1-5). "But Peter standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judaea, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words: . . . But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel; And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams: . . . Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls" (Acts 2:14, 16, 17, 41).

Then again it has been suggested, as an added thought, that soul winning is the greatest of all works done in the world, greater even than feeding the 4000 or even the 5000, healing the sick or stilling the turbulent sea of Galilee. While there is no doubt but that the wonder workings of Christ our Lord in performing the many miracles that He did caused many people to trust in Him, yet these miracles served as the credentials of His duty in a very special way. If there were still those among His followers that cherished doubt until then, His ascension seemed to quieten the 120 so that they obeyed in that they tarried in Jerusalem as He requested, and were strengthened anew in the advent of the Holy Ghost. No, it is that we have given up the greatest of all privileges, that of pointing never dying souls to the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the whole world. He is the one and only Saviour and has promised, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). Winning souls is the greatest of all earthly tasks. No work a human being is commissioned to can equal it. Healing the sick may carry with it only a temporary aspect, but winning souls is a feat with far-reaching and eternal aspects and rewards. There is what we sometimes call a chain reaction that results from a soul saved; when that soul develops normally, He in turn may win souls that carry on the good work winning other souls. On it goes so that it takes eternity to tell all that is accomplished when one wins a soul to Jesus Christ the Saviour. Jesus multiplied loaves and fishes that were brought Him when He fed the 4000 and the 5000 but in a more abundant way has He multiplied the souls brought to Him by His disciples. "Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his ways shall have a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins" (James 5:20)

Now let's not forget that in any ministry and strength of ours apart from our Lord we will never win the first soul. The secret is He who quickens, but uses us as vessels by which to preach the powerful gospel. "Then he answered and spake unto them saying, This is the word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts" (Zechariah 4:6). It's just so wonderful that we may be co-workers together with Him in this wonderful soul-winning ministry.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

This word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

YOUR TIME IS IMPORTANT

"See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time, because the days are evil" (Ephesians 5:15, 16).

As we begin this second meditation on this text, I want to give you the two verses as found in The Amplified New Testament, as I believe this rendering gives a clearer understanding of what the apostle is teaching about the importance of the correct use of the time God gives you. The verses read: "Look carefully then! Live purposefully and work accurately, not as the unwise and senseless, but as wise—sensible, intelligent people; Making the very most of the time by buying up each opportunity—because the days are evil."

We have seen that time sustains an important relationship to eternity, and it is, on this account, of great value. It must follow, then, that it is the time we spend for this life that the interests of eternity are secured. The man who negsalvation of his soul, has not the rest conception of what is meant by the day and the importance of time.

Idleness, needless sleeping, unprofitable talking, gossiping, stirring up strife and all like things are to be avoided. The Lord teaches the sinfulness of all these things, together with the punishment of those who waste their God-given time for evil.

Opportunity to do good always creates a temptation to do it. Those using their time for good things for God and man will not have little time for evil. It is lamentable to think how many who profess to be Christians do little or no good in the world. It is so important that we gather up the moments of time that nothing be lost. Every moment is so precious now.

It is worse than folly to waste that which is worth so much. All generations since the time of Esau, have condemned his folly in selling his birthright for a mess of pottage. We thought of the fact that we can, if we need we have not already done so, sell for far less than Esau did? He who wastes his precious time, acts more foolishly. He disregards all the weighty considerations of the value of time. That time is of so much value, is surely a more good reason why we should use the very minutest part of it to the glory of God and the improvement of the world.

Have we ever thought of how many precious moments we have misspent? How much more good we might have done in this world? How much better Christians might have been? These are sobering questions. The answers are of the greatest importance to all—sinners as well as Christians. To the sinner the first of importance in the use of his time, is to give his heart to God. No more important thing can ever come into his life than that of being born again. That must be accomplished in this life, if ever. There is no repentance in the grave! The Christ-use of time has been plainly pointed out and will be discussed no further here. It is to say that there is no work for us in the grave to which we are hastening.

The Word of God informs us that what a man sows in this life that he shall also reap. He that sows to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, while he that sows to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap everlasting life. The harvest will result from the sowing, and we are sowing carelessly. How great the folly and wickedness of emptying time unprofitably! If ye call on the Father, who with respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your waiting here in fear (1 Peter 1:27).

THE MAIL BOX

ACCEPTS PASTORATE

"This is to notify my friends and co-workers that I have accepted the call to pastor Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church, Washington, North Carolina. My address, therefore, is no longer Route 1, Van Buren, Indiana, but 420 McNair Street, Washington, North Carolina. Anyone desiring revival services or special services should contact me at the above address."—Rev. Charles Bryant.

GRIFTON CHURCH SEEKS PASTOR

"We, the members of Grifton Free Will Baptist Church, Grifton, North Carolina, are seeking a minister to serve our church. The church is on full-time services. Any interested minister is asked to contact Mr. Herman Owen, Grifton, or call Grifton, LA 4-3641 or LA 4-3661."—Herman Owen, Grifton, North Carolina.

BEHOLD HE COMETH

If you are a believer in the Lord Jesus you should lift up your head, because your redemption is drawing nigh. Yes, it is! Signs and happenings are daily pointing toward that blessed hour. If unsaved, beware! take warning! You may escape the coming judgment by believing and receiving the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour. Believe on Him this very moment, and thou shalt be saved. Those who believe on Him have the promise of everlasting life (John 3:16).—P. E. M.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sermon outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lee Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

THE AWFUL SIN OF SIMON PETER

(Mark 1:16.)

I. He Was the Victim of Conceit (Matthew 26:33)

1. The Bible strongly warns against this sin (Romans 12:16).
2. The fool is better off than one filled with it (Proverbs 26:12).
3. The tendency toward it is greater for the wealthy (Proverbs 28:11).

II. He Was the Victim of Laxity (Matthew 26:40)

1. This is the attitude of the merryman (Luke 12:19).
2. This is the attitude condemned by God (Amos 6:1).
3. This is not God's plan for His children (Hebrews 6:12).

III. He Was the Victim of Hasty Action (John 18:10, 11)

1. Hasty actions invoke and exalt folly (Proverbs 14:29).
2. Hasty actions toward riches causes condemnation (Proverbs 28:20).
3. Hasty actions lessens one's hope for the future (Proverbs 29:20).

IV. He Was the Victim of Distant Discipleship (Matthew 26:58)

1. This was a besetting sin of King Saul (2 Samuel 28:7-11).
2. This was a besetting sin of John Mark (Acts 13:13; 15:37, 38).
3. This was a besetting sin of Demas (2 Timothy 4:10).

V. He Was the Victim of Sinful Companions (John 18:18)

1. An evil companion pulls a good man down (Proverbs 28:7).
2. An evil companion is incompatible with Scripture (Deuteronomy 22:10).

CHRISTMAS MOLDS

The Free Will Baptist Press now has a complete set of Christmas molds for your Christmas scene. Such a scene may be easily arranged with these molds. For information concerning price, etc., please write Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mrs. Mamie H. Godwin

Whereas our heavenly Father in His divine wisdom has seen fit to call from our midst unto Himself the spirit of our dear sister and friend, Mamie Godwin, we the members of the Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church, Kenly, North Carolina,

3. An evil companion is one from which we should be separate (2 Corinthians 6:14-17).

VI. He Was the Victim of Plain Denial (John 18:25)

1. We deny Him when we fail to live right (Romans 8:12, 13).
2. We deny Him when we fail to witness for Him (1 Thessalonians 2:10).
3. We deny Him when we fail to support His great work (2 Corinthians 9:7).

VII. He Was the Victim of Blasphemy (Mark 14:70, 71)

1. God warns against the sin of blasphemy (Exodus 20:7).
2. God warns that blasphemy will be a characteristic of the last days (2 Timothy 3:2).
3. God can save those who blaspheme (1 Timothy 1:13).

THE LIFESAVING FLAGS

Years ago, in a South American village, a British subject was arrested for participating in a local riot. He was hastily tried and condemned to death. News of his impending execution came to a British consul in a near-by city. He and an American consul hastened to the village where the execution was soon to take place. Their entreaties for the condemned man were of no avail. The man was led out to be shot. As a last desperate effort to save him, and according to a prearranged plan, the British and American consuls walked deliberately to the condemned man and enfolded him in the American and British flags, and defiantly said to the would-be executioners, "Fire if you dare, and you will pierce the flags of two of the greatest nations on earth!"

How secure are God's children, being enfolded in Christ's righteousness!—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?

A woman bought an old painting for $3.00 at a rummage sale. She didn't remotely entertain any thought of its great value. Only the subject of the painting appealed to her—Madonna and Child and Two Saints. Sometime thereafter a connoisseur of Italian paintings saw it. Instantly he recognized it as a sixteenth century work of art by the famous master, Luca Longhi! He appraised its worth at $25,000.

Man, in his spiritual blindness, sees little value in the Saviour, appraising Him only as a good man. When He gives spiritual sight, how different is our appraisal of Him!—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

desires to express in these resolutions sympathy to those who feel most keenly our common loss, and to pay tribute to memory of our faithful sister, and God's servant.

Sister Godwin passed to her reward October 27, 1960, having served as a faithful member of our church for a number of years. Surviving are her husband, Mr. Godwin; one daughter, Mrs. Coy Pennington; five sons, Berman Godwin, Varon Godwin, Andres Godwin, Floyd Godwin and Rufus Godwin.

We shall miss her, but we feel that her mission here has been courageously fulfilled.

Submitted by:

Nellie Atkinson
Marvin Atkinson

Expression of Sympathy

Sincere sympathy and understanding expressed to the Rev. M. L. Johnson, Moderator, Olive, North Carolina, and the members of his family upon the passing of their father, William Harvey Johnson, age 67, on Friday, November 25, 1960.

The deceased is survived by his wife, several children. He was a member of the Hopewell Free Will Baptist Church, Smithfield, North Carolina.

Mrs. Rosa Cockran

On September 31, 1960, after a long and beautiful Christian life, Mrs. Rosa Cockran, wife of Mr. Eddie Cockran, was called from her earthly home to her heavenly home there to dwell eternally. Mrs. Cockran is survived by her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Jewell Wilkes, of Blountstown, Florida; one sister, Mrs. Nancy Kirkland, of Black, Alabama; two grandsons and a host of other relatives and friends who mourn her passing.

Mrs. Cockran was 73 years old and had been a much loved resident of Blountstown for the past 50 years. She was well known and loved by all who knew her. She numbered her friends by her acquaintance. She was a most devoted, faithful and loyal member of the Blountstown Free Will Baptist Church, which she loved so well for many, many years; she was also a charter member of the woman's auxiliary and active as long as her health permitted. Everyone admired her noble Christian character. The church has sustained a severe loss and the community has lost a Christian citizen, whose Christian influence will be felt for many years to come. She was a faithful wife, a loving mother and a loyal friend to all who knew her.

Mrs. Cockran was a most devoted member of the Eastern Star, she loved

(continued on page eleven)

NOTES

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

OPPORTUNITY AT MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE

In quoting a paragraph of the report of Mount Olive Junior College as presented by William Burkette Raper, president, Eastern Conference of North Carolina, October 19, 1960, as follows:

Mount Olive Junior College, Free Will Baptists have a unique opportunity to give Christian education of high quality to our sons and daughters. This college has demonstrated its ability to grow and serve. In twelve students in 1952-53, our first year of operation, our student body totaled 12 students during 1959-60. Gifts to Mount Olive College the first year amounted to $3,712.00; an all-time high of $72,000 was received in gifts for the year ending June 30. From $6.17 in the college year in 1953, when the North Carolina Convention voted to buy property and build the college in Mount Olive, the assets of the college, as listed by our pastor in his most recent report, has increased to $228,681.00."

The writer of Notes and Quotes considers this a most excellent success, one which Free Will Baptists in North Carolina should praise the Lord for. No other institution of ours, as I recall, has ever made such a record. This shows to me that the Lord Jesus Christ has put His stamp of approval on the college. It is written: "If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Romans 8:31).

MISQUOTATIONS

There are people in the world who are grasping the words that are spoken by others; but knowingly or unknowingly, their quotations are hurtful to any good cause. One who is not a member of the Free Will Baptist church, but was brought up in the church, said to me a few days back: "I am sure that you all have a law that says that a minister are not allowed to visit another church belonging to a church that is served by another pastor, unless you get permission from the said pastor." How in the world can a sensible person start such a conversation? I wanted to be kind in answering the question of this fine lady, but I wanted to give the answer to the agent of Satan who started such a rumor. Such rumors are unethical, untrue, ungodly and out of all reason. I am asking God to have mercy on such an ignorant starter of such untruthful statements.

There ought to be a law of such a nature that would prohibit any preacher from going into another preacher's congregation and causing divisions and making bids to get the other preacher's church from him, by saying, as has been said by unethical preachers, "I'll serve your church for less money than you are giving to your pastor." There is a law of God, if thought of and heeded to, that stop ministers from making trouble in other pastorates: namely, the Golden Rule. "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets" (Matthew 7: 12). Lots of men are not willing to abide by what God says, but instead by their own individual conscience. While the apostle, Paul, was unsaved, he lived in hatred toward the Lord Jesus Christ, but he was just as conscientious before he was saved as he was afterward. He says: "For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jew's religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it" (Galatians 1:13). Yes, Paul, as Saul of Tarsus, was zealous of the traditions of his fathers; he was zealous in his religion, fighting even unto death. Being conscientious that a thing is right, does not make it so.

Years ago, I read of an account that took place in a big hospital. A nurse, in an emergency case, rushed to get a prescription which was kept on hand for such cases. There were two of the prescriptions in similar looking bottles. The names were spelled alike, with the exception of one letter. There was a "y" in one that was not in the other. One bottle was a deadly poison, in some cases. The other was a stimulant. This nurse, with a clear conscience, took the poison medicine. In a few minutes the patient was dead. She thought she was right, but she was conscientiously wrong! People can be conscientiously wrong in their salvation. I have known of such instances. For instance, I had a fine Roman Catholic converted by explaining God's Word and praying with him. He received Christ as personal Saviour and confessed Christ, and was baptized and received into the church. He was conscientious in the teaching that his church would save him, but when he was converted to Christ, his mind changed. He now knew Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour. I had another to say, "Once I had religion; but now I have Christ." Brother, believe me, there is a difference.

I once worked in the ministerial field with another minister in whom I had the utmost confidence, only to find out that he was a crook. He proved it by his life with the fairer sex. On the other hand, I have doubted the reality of true salvation in another to find that he was able to stand against the wiles of the devil, and his life counted for the glory of God. Yes, we are deceived in many instances. I have known many so-called Christians, only to find out in the long run that they had religion only. I knew of a preacher who could preach the most wonderful sermons. He was an evangelist and preached for several years. He quit and said that he was living in sin all the time. He was caught in a hotel in another state rooming with a woman who was not his wife. Listen to Paul as he speaks: "For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light. Therefore, it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works" (2 Corinthians 11:13-15).

WHAT BROUGHT THE CHANGE?

I have been thinking of late as to what brought about the change of attitude toward John F. Kennedy by his running mate, Lyndon Johnson. When they were running mates, Mr. Johnson thought and published a different story toward Mr. Kennedy. According to Johnson, Kennedy was very unfit for the high office of president of the United States, but as soon as Johnson was defeated as a nominee, Mr. Kennedy became a very famous and capable man for president. What brought the change? Contradictory statements do not run parallel. I hold that if Mr. Kennedy was not fit before the convention, he is not fit now. This is not politics, it is reason, and that which holds good with one party holds good in another. Truth will stand at the judgment bar of God. "Be not deceived; . . . for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Galatians 6:7).

OBITUARIES

(continued from page ten)

work of the order and the principles and noble things for which it stood. The chapter has lost one of its most loved members.

Funeral services were conducted in the Blountstown Free Will Baptist Church with Eastern Star in charge; Rev. Jim Nichols, her pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. Zeb Buttram. Burial was in Pine Memorial Cemetery, where many floral offerings covered her lost resting place.

There's an open gate at the end of the way,
Thru' which each must go alone;
And there is a light we cannot see
Our Father has claimed His own.

Becky Loring and the Fire In the Attic

by Betty Swinford

BECKY was sitting at the breakfast table when the news came. It was so startling she thought she must have misunderstood her father's words. Now the bite of bacon and eggs settled slowly back onto her plate.

"Dad, you said Penny's father is in jail?"

Penny was her best friend and the thought of kind Mr. Davis being arrested was almost funny!

"Not in jail exactly. He's being held at the sheriff's office in Tucson for stealing several calves from the Flying S Ranch."

"But, Dad, it just isn't possible! Not Penny's father!"

Mr. Loring finished his coffee. "I don't believe it, either, Penny. Most folks in these parts know that the Flying S and Davis didn't get along. And Rogers from the Flying S claims Davis stole his calves. The calves were on the Davis ranch, all right."

Becky's dark eyes were thoughtful. "Maybe the calves belonged to Mr. Davis."

Mr. Loring kissed Becky's forehead. "You figure it out, honey. It's a mystery that's right down your line!"

Taking her father at his word, Becky saddled her horse, Robin, and rode to the Davis place. However, Penny did not greet her. Instead, her brother Johnny dashed out to tie Robin to the corral fence and offer the animal a drink.

"I just heard about your dad, Johnny," Becky said quickly.

"We've got bigger troubles than that!" Johnny scooped away his blond hair from his forehead. "Penny's gone too!"

Becky felt the blood drain from her face. "Penny? Gone? Gone where?"

"That's what Mom and I would like to know. Penny took it real hard when Dad was taken to town early this morning, and then all of a sudden she disappeared! We've looked everywhere."

Johnny bit his lip. "Prob'ly; and we don't want to call the sheriff because Dad'll find out she's gone. He'd be worried sick, and he's got enough to worry about as it is."

"There must be some way to prove he didn't take those calves." Becky tied back her long auburn hair with a colorful scarf.

"Anyhow, we can spend the day looking for Penny. If she didn't take a horse, she can't be far."

Together the two young people began to search through the hills. But the sun was scorching and all that came to sight were the many cactus and scrub trees. Once a deadly rattler slithered across their path, but that was the only living creature they saw.

Becky reined in her horse. "Where were the calves supposed to have been taken from?"

Johnny pointed. "Over that way. The fence between the two ranches was down. Right now the calves are penned up. They'll stay that way, too, till this thing is settled."

"Maybe Penny is there! Maybe she came out to look for clues."

Johnny's tanned forehead wrinkled. "Well . . . maybe. It's worth a check"

The horses galloped over the hard earth. As an old adobe house came to view, the two young folk started at one another.

"Could be she's in there where it's cool," Johnny said.

The house had been there near the ranch boundary for as long as Becky could remember. Its roof was partly gone and pack rats had made nests in the corners, but its adobe walls offered cool shade in the heat of day. Suddenly Becky saw a narrow trail of gray smoke come out the upstairs window. She told herself it must have been heat waves.

"I'll look around the pen where the calves are fastened," Johnny told her as he dismounted. "You take a look inside, okay?"

No more had Becky gone through the sagging door than the smell of smoke came to her nostrils. Why, this old house was on fire! And suddenly—

"Help! Johnny, help me!"

Becky dashed over to the broken stairway, but it was swept with flame!

"Jump, Penny! I'll try to catch you!" It was Johnny's voice outside.

Only Penny's screams answered Johnny. Becky looked around wildly. Her dark eyes lighted upon an old piece of canvas in the corner. It was full of holes and covered with dust, but she snatched it up and began fighting her way up the stairs. The fire was not bad inside the little attic room. Inch by inch Becky beat out the flames, until finally it was over. At last the three young people sat blinking at one another in the little room.

"Sis, what on earth were you trying to do?" Johnny asked breathlessly.

Penny looked ashamed. "Seems silly now, but I was trying to solve the mystery alone. We were out of bread brought along some canned food and a few matches. I came up here," she said, "because I could watch the calves there so well. Then I started a fire on that old car fender I found down by the wash. Only I—I got the place on fire instead." She looked toward Becky and a sudden alarm swept into her blue eyes.

"Oh, Becky, your hands! You burned them, trying to save me!"

Becky bit her lip. "They don't hurt very much." Becky was suddenly thoughtful. Since she had given her heart to Lord Jesus she had tried so hard to help these two friends. But, somehow, she had said didn't seem to go very far.

"There are another pair of hands, Becky, that suffered much more than this fire," she continued. "They were Jesus' hands. Please try to understand, Penny. He loves you so much that He was willing to die to earth to die for your sins. He let men drive nails through His hands and feet for you—and me. And now He's waiting at the door of your heart to come in to you. But you must ask Him inside, because He'll never force His way in."

Johnny dropped his gaze. "That's a hard thing to chew on, Becky."

Penny nodded. "We've seen how you've changed, Becky, since you became a Christian. Give us time to think it." Then she lifted her gaze. "Could God get my father out of the blue too?"

Becky nodded. "He will, someday. I just know it. But I don't know how. She stared out the window at the bawling calves. "Or maybe I do!"

Johnny sat forward. "What do you mean?"

"Look down there, Johnny. The fire is still down almost to the ground. Those calves were freed, they could go either side they wanted to, couldn't they?"

"Well, sure—"

"And aren't they crying because they're hungry?"

Johnny shrugged. "Yeah, guess it's their feeding time, all right."

(continued on page sixteen)

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Deep Run, North Carolina, held its monthly meeting Tuesday, November 10, at the church. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Nora Smith, and prayer was led by Mrs. Clarence Merritt. Resolutions of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Dorothy Humphrey. All members were present at the meeting and each person brought along a show-stopper and a gift of money for the Children's Home at Middlesex, North Carolina. After the business session was over, the program was given, using as the topic, "Prayers and Answers on the Bible." The meeting was closed with a prayer. The next meeting and Christmas party will meet at the home of Mrs. Odell Deaver. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Edna Lines, and enjoyed by all.

Scotland Neck, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Hope Free Will Baptist Church, Scotland Neck, North Carolina, held their monthly meeting, Friday, November 18, at Mrs. Agnes Eason. The program sang, "There Is a Fountain," followed by prayer by Mrs. Williams. The Scripture was Psalm 96 and Acts 5:32. The theme for the program was, "They Also Served." Those taking in the program were Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Estell Latham, Mrs. Della Flowers, Mrs. Agnes Eason, Mrs. B. Hardy, Mrs. Christine Hux and Irene Morris. Roll was called with fifteen members and one visitor present. The minutes were read and approved. After Mrs. Willie B. Williams dismissed the business session, refreshments were enjoyed by all. The hostess was Mrs. Agnes Eason.

Star, Ark.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Star, Arkansas, met Wednesday, November 5, at 2:00 p. m. at the church. The meeting opened with the group song, "Rescue the Perishing," with Miss Coffman directing. Mrs. J. D. Coffman read Scripture from Psalm 96 and Acts 5:32, followed with prayer by Mrs. D. Patton. Mrs. Sidney Waterfield introduced the lesson on the subject, "They Also Served." Topics were reviewed and discussed by Miss Coffman, Mrs. J. D. Coffman, Mrs. W. A. Crouch, Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Homer Langford. Mrs. Coffman presided over a business session and the following officers were elected to serve the ensuing year: President, Miss Clytic Coffman; vice-president, Mrs. J. D. Coffman; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Homer Langford; program chairman, Mrs. Sidney Waterfield; personal service chairman, Mrs. Arnold Patton, assisted by Mrs. Gladys Voss and Mrs. W. A. Crouch; reporter, Miss Coffman. Mrs. Crouch then dismissed the group with prayer.

SUCCESSFUL WORKSHOP HELD AT SPARTANBURG, S. C.

The Beaver Creek Ladies' Auxiliary District met Saturday morning, November 5, at the Whitney Free Will Baptist Church, Spartanburg, South Carolina, for a workshop concerning the manuals and methods of auxiliary work.

Mrs. Eunice Edwards, national executive secretary, was workshop teacher, and gave four very interesting classes. Mrs. Jack Millwood, district president, presided over the meeting. Seven churches were represented with around forty-five ladies attending. Mrs. Edwards delivered a very inspiring message on the theme, "One World, One Saviour." The aim should be "To Win this World to Christ."

Plans were discussed to have another workshop in the spring at Lockhart Free Will Baptist Church, Lockhart, South Carolina, with the national president, Mrs. Rufus Coffey, teaching a class on missions. Quotas were assigned each local auxiliary concerning the national project, "Supply Medical Means for Dr. and Mrs. Milcy in Africa." An offering was taken for this project, which was $35.40. The following is an outline of the program for the day: The theme is "One World, One Saviour; the aim is "To Win this World to Christ."

Morning Session

9:45—Registration, Mrs. Betty Freeman
10:00—Welcome, Miss Frances King
10:05—Response, Mrs. Ansel Smith
10:10—Devotions, Mrs. Donnie Seacy
10:20—Workshop 1, Mrs. Edwards
11:00—Recess

11:10—Workshop 2, Mrs. Edwards
—Offering for National Project
12:00—Lunch

Afternoon Session

1:00—Devotions, Mrs. Edwards
1:15—Workshop 3, Mrs. Edwards
2:00—Special Announcements and Plans, Mrs. Millwood
2:15—Workshop 4, Mrs. Edwards
3:00—Adjournment and Benediction

God truly blessed the workshop this day and the ladies are anxiously awaiting the spring for another day like this with the fellow churches and Christian sisters.

Mrs. Edwards stayed over and spoke at the 11:00 a. m. service at the Saxon Avenue Free Will Baptist Church, Sunday morning. The message was taken from 2 Kings 4:1-7, and the text was, "Bringing In Vessels." The talk was a blessing to the church and the district.

The district happily reports buying a new living room suit for the South Carolina Orphanage, Turbeville, South Carolina. The district has raised $260 since August to purchase the suit as a Thanksgiving gift to the Children's Home.

Cape Fear Conference Announces Youth Rally

Over 119 young people and youth chairmen from the Cape Fear Conference met Saturday evening, November 12, at the S & W Cafeteria in Raleigh. All were registered in the lobby of the cafeteria. The Y. P. A. members wore identification cards in the shape of the treble clef with the Y. P. A. theme, "Music of Missions" printed above their names. The G. T. A. members wore identification cards in the shape of grapes, apples and pears with the G. T. A. theme, "Fruits of the Spirit" printed on them. Each person chose his own food but all ate together in the reserved Capital Room. At the end of the meal, the Rev. Herman Hersey, from Raleigh, entertained with piano selections.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Chester Phillips, Cape Fear Conference Youth Chairman, was opened with group singing. A get-acquainted game in which all participated was played for about ten minutes. The Goldsboro Free Will Baptist Church led in this game, having more mimeographed sheets filled out.

Devotions were conducted by the Raleigh Free Will Baptist Church. Mrs. Herman Hersey directed the youth choir in two appropriate selections. Larry Wall, a young man who plans to go to the mission field, brought an effective gospel-magic message. After the message, Bonnie Coates of Tcc's Chapel Church, sang "Now I Belong to Jesus."

(Continued on page fourteen)

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(continued from page thirteen)

Various phrases of the auxiliary work were promoted in a unique manner. To promote the essay contest, Miss Helen Warren, G. T. A. sponsor of the Smithfield Free Will Baptist Church, gave a skit with a group of her G. T. A. members showing how an Essay-Writing Night can be sponsored in order to encourage all to try writing. Following this skit, a recording of a Y. P. A. meeting was played. This meeting, under the leadership of Mrs. Owen Thomas, youth chairman of the Smithfield Free Will Baptist Church, was held to promote the declamation contest. Y. P. A. members read over missions material and discussed writing declamations. Plans were made for writing and memorizing. Helpful suggestions were given.

Mrs. Phillips stressed the importance of having a purpose for youth meetings. She stated that working on ranks now gives real purpose to auxiliary work. Mrs. Thomas reviewed each rank in the G. T. A. and Y. P. A. by presenting the awards earned by four G. T. A. and four Y. P. A. members.

For a lighter side of the program, Wayne Phillips of Smithfield, North Carolina, presented a pantomime of a distraught surgeon performing an unsuccessful operation before a gallery of medical students. A hilarious little-man act was performed by Jean Warwick of Johnston's Union and Cynthia Phillips of Smithfield. A game of Biblical charades was played by all.

The evening of fun and inspiration was terminated at 9:00. The youth of the Cape Fear Conference now look forward to the State Fellowship Day to be held in the spring.

Goldsboro G.T.A. Wins Youth Award

The G.T.A. of the Goldsboro Free Will Baptist Church, Goldsboro, North Carolina, won the contest sponsored by the Cape Fear Conference. A ten-dollar check will be awarded from the woman's auxiliary of the conference. The contest, which promoted the various phases of the work, was introduced in the October workshop held for youth chairman. Posters and instruction for the contest were sent to all youth chairmen. The deadline for the contest was November 12, the date of the Cape Fear Conference Youth Rally.

Of the churches reported in the conference, 67 young people signed up promising to try to work on ranks, 48 signed up to enter the essay contest and 38 signed up to enter the declamation contest. This is only a partial report; a good number of contest blanks have not been received. The Cape Fear Conference expects its best year of participation in the contests.

Woman's Auxiliary of Georgia Convenes at Baxley Church

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Georgia State Convention convened at the Baxley Free Will Baptist Church, Baxley, Georgia, Tuesday, November 15. There were 95 that registered with 19 being ministers. There were two very inspiring messages delivered by the Rev. Thomas H. Willey, senior missionary to Cuba. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Edith Shiver; vice-president, Mrs. Joe Fort, recording secretary, Mrs. J. W. Clower; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Roy Lanier; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. E. Blanton; treasurer, Mrs. Billy Houston; field secretary, Mrs. E. C. Morris; youth chairman, Mrs. J. W. Franks; study course chairman, Mrs. J. M. Cobb; stewardship prayer chairman, Mrs. Manee Cason; personal service chairman, Mrs. Effie Kimbel; loan fund committee, Mrs. J. B. Rice, Mrs. O. B. Everson, Mrs. D. C. Dodd; mission board member, Mrs. E. C. Davidson.

DROPPING THE BURDEN

A man, carrying a bag of potatoes on his back, was asked by a skeptic: "How do you know you are saved?"

The man took a few steps and dropped the bag. Then he said: "How do I know I have dropped the bag? I have not looked around."

"No," replied the man. "You can tell by the lessening of the weight."

"Yes," went on the man, "that is how I know I am saved. I have lost the guilty feeling of sin and sorrow, and have found peace and satisfaction in my Lord and Saviour."—The Elim Evangel.

AUXILIARY PINS

Please order your auxiliary pins direct from The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. The prices are: 10 K Gold, $5.25; Gold Plated, $2.00.

When ordering life awards pins, order direct from Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Maury, North Carolina. There is no charge for these when you send to the state treasurer, Mrs. Raymond T. Sasser, $25.00 for the designated state project which this year is the Children's Home.

MISSIONS

(continued from page seven)

"October Mission Emphasis Day." Our special missionary offering totaled $16, which is to be directed to Master's M. project of purchasing a Spanish printing press which I feel is such a great need of the gospel message in print among the Spanish people. During the month of November our "Missionary Emphasis Day" will be directed toward Home Missions.

We secured permission to use the town hall for a Halloween social. Games and activities were planned for the children and older groups. There were about 60 who attended. This provided a good point of contact for me to meet some of the Catholic people. The social was a success.

We are planning a Christmas program in December.

I am still doing masonry work five days per week. I expect this job to last about one more month, as the weather will prohibit us to work in masonry until about March.

We are enjoying living here in the north country, and are thankful for good health. God has been good to us.

In His service,

Mark and Louise Vandiver

Prayer Requests:

1. One of the interested teen-age girls who has a very undesirable home environment is unsaved. Pray that we can win her and others to Christ soon.

2. Pray that we can reach Catholic as well as Protestant children through the Good News Bible Club. The Catholic children are very interested and receptive to Bible teaching if we can make contact with them.

3. Pray for a greater response to our adult Sunday school class.

4. Pray for the meeting of evangelist ministers of this area who will be meeting at our home December 12, that God's will be carried out as organization plans will be considered for youth rallies, and meetings to promote the gospel witness in this area.

5. Pray that the evangelical radio ministry can continue, as several gospel preachers have been denied radio time.

WINE HYMNBOOKS SOLD OUT

This is to notify any church which is considering ordering the Free Will Baptist Hymnal that the wine-color books are sold out. Only the granite-color books are available. Send your orders to Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

The Greatest Promise

(Lesson for December 11)

Scripture: Isaiah 9; Galatians 4:4-7

Lesson Text: Isaiah 9:6

INTRODUCTION

God's promises in the Old Testament pointed to the one great and final promise which was fulfilled in the coming of Christ Jesus. The declaration of the promise coming to pass takes place in the New Testament. The promise of the Saviour was first mentioned in Genesis 3:15: "And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." God, of course, was speaking to the serpent, Satan. Throughout the Old Testament, this promise became more and more real. The major and minor prophets spoke of the coming of Christ.

Isaiah, however, is appropriately known as the Messianic prophet, or the prophet of the Redeemer, because he told more of the coming of Christ than any other prophet. The first part of the lesson today deals with the prediction of the coming of Christ. This is one of several passages from the book of Isaiah which rejoice in the promise of God to send His Son into the world to be the Redeemer of man.—The Bible Student (7.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

The night of sin disappears before the dawn of the World (Isaiah 9:2).

The second coming of Christ means peace for Jews even as His first coming means peace for believers (Vs. 3).

Christ will break the power of the oppressors of Israel when He comes again, as He does for us today (Vs. 4).

When Christ comes again, weapons of war, garments drenched in blood will be destroyed as fuel is consumed by fire (Vs. 5).

All the characteristics of the Person and the work of Christ are expressed in His names (Vs. 6).

The future earthly kingdom of Christ will be established with judgment and justice (Vs. 7).

God's time is always the right time; never too early, nor too late (Galatians 4:4).

God's redemption frees from the curse of the law and enables us to become the children of God (Vs. 5).

9. The Holy Spirit in any human being is proof that he is a child of God (Vs. 6, 7).—The Bible Expositor.

II. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. In Chapter 8, Isaiah tells of the Assyrian invasion. In the first two verses of Chapter 9, he continues; but now he shows that light will come into the darkness. Note that Isaiah speaks as if it had already happened. God who knows not the limits of time, allowed him to see into the future as though it had already happened.

2. There is no doubt that the darkness mentioned here is the darkness of sin and its consequent trouble. Darkness always refers to sin in the Bible. The Light can be none other than the Lord Jesus who is the Light of the World.

3. This is the passage quoted by Matthew (4:15, 16), the differences in rendering probably arise from the fact that in the New Testament the quotation is taken from the Septuagint instead of the Hebrew. The Septuagint is a pre-Christian Greek translation of the Old Testament.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

4. Here is a wonderful prophecy concerning the birth and the redemptive death of the Son of God. Note the many appellations that shall be bestowed upon Him. He shall be called Wonderful, because His ministry shall prove a blessing to all. He shall be called Counselor, because He shall give spiritual advice to all that seek to learn of Him. He shall be called The mighty God because He shall manifest such power as abides in God only. He shall be called The everlasting Father, because He is one with the Father and His paternal care for His people is eternal in nature. He shall be called the Prince of Peace, for only in Him can peace be found. What a wonderful gift this was which God was to give to Israel and to the world.—The Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

5. Wonderful! This title is indicative of the wonder that was to be occasioned in the minds of men when they beheld God manifested in the flesh. This word is used in another place in the Old Testament in connection with the visitation of the Angel of the Lord to the house of Manoah announcing the birth of Samson. "Manoah said unto the angel of the Lord (unknown to him), What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour? And the angel of the Lord said unto him, Why askest thou thus after my name, seeing it is secret?" (Judges 13: 17, 18). The word denoting secret in Hebrew is the same word translated Wonderful in Isaiah 9:6. The angel of the Lord seems to be saying that it was not possible for Manoah to understand fully his name. It is too full of wonder. Truly we can say even with the Biblical account of His earthly life, He remains an enigma to a great many. To those who have accepted Him as Saviour and Lord He is a never-ceasing source of fruitful meditation. More books have been written about His life than any other solitary figure. Jesus Christ is wonderful in every aspect.—Selected.

6. The Son of God went into the fiery furnace with the three Hebrew children. He also appeared to Joshua in Joshua 4:13-15, and to Abraham before the destruction of Sodom and Gomorah. God the Father has committed all judgment to the Son of God, so Abraham knew who his visitor was, according to Genesis 18:24.

7. A son; and an heir of God through Christ: How blessed are God's children: "Blessed . . . with all spiritual blessings . . . in Christ" (Ephesians 1:3). How rich are God's children: ". . . heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; . . ." (Romans 8:17).

Illustration: A dying judge said to a minister, "Do you know enough about the law to understand what is meant by joint heirship?" "No," said the minister. "I know a little about grace, and that satisfies me." Said the judge, "Let me explain. If you and I were joint heirs on a farm, I couldn't say to you, 'That is your field of corn, and this is mine; that is your blade of grass, and this is mine.' We would share and share alike in everything on the place. I have been thinking with deep joy that Jesus Christ has nothing apart from me, that everything He has is mine, and we will share alike throughout eternity!"—Selected.

8. We are not servants, or slaves, of God in the sense that we do not know what is going on in the circle of the family of God. Jesus had said to His disciples that a servant does not know the secrets of the master's family, but a son of the master did know these things. In a similar way, Paul is saying the same thing. Because we are sons of God through adoption (by our faith in Christ), God has sent into our hearts His Holy Spirit to keep us informed concerning the will of the Father—to reveal truth to us, to lead us, to guide and comfort us. At the same time, the Holy Spirit in us cries out the very word of our mouth,

(continued on page sixteen)

Stories for Boys and Girls

(continued from page twelve)

"And the cattle on both ranches are branded, aren't they? Except for the calves, I mean?"

Johnny cocked his head. "Yeah, but I still don't get it."

"Come on, you will!"

Outside once more, they unfastened the small calves.

"Now, if they come over here to your side to the cows with the D R brand, they belong to your ranch! If they go to the other ranch, to the cows with the Flying S brand, they'll belong there!"

Penny frowned. "But—"

Becky was jubilant. "Don't you see? They're hungry, so they'll go right to their mothers!"

Johnny snapped his fingers. "Why, sure! Sure they will!"

Breathlessly they watched. The little red and white animals went unhesitatingly to the cattle with the D R brand.

"It worked like a charm!" Penny breathed.

"Let's call the sheriff," Johnny cried, "and tell him what we've discovered!"

And Becky gave silent thanks to her heavenly Father for His love and care.—My Pleasure.

ST. CLAIRE BIBLE CLASS

(continued from page fifteen)

"Father." Without the union with the Father by means of the indwelling Holy Spirit, we do not have the right to call God our Father, and cry out by the aid of the Spirit, "Our Father who are in heaven." The redeemed is a son of God, an heir with Christ in God, and a recipient of the glorious fellowship with the Father through the presence of the Holy Spirit in his heart.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

CHRISTMAS GIVING

(continued from page seven)

burden ourselves shopping around to find it. We would not have to look far, or long, to find a needy family, a shut in, a deserving student or someone to whom we could give cheer, comfort and real help. We could also include the different phases of our church program, or home and foreign missions, or superannuation, or our colleges, children's homes, or Cragmont Assembly, etc.

It would help a lot if each one of us would buy a foot of land in Hawaii or help to sponsor gospel broadcasting in Alaska. (See the missions page in the November 2 issue of The Free Will Baptist.) What a good Christmas list we could make up!

Such things as these shall make up regular Christmas gifts, and the amount shall not be deducted from my regular tithes and offerings—just extra as the I had given to family and friends. I to remember them with Christmas cards.

Let's have the right spirit in Christmas giving this year.

SELECT CHRISTMAS PROGRAM MATERIALS

The following program material is especially selected for use during the Christmas season. It is now in stock and available for immediate shipment. Refer to catalogue for complete list of all program materials.

THE TOUCH OF HIS HAND

A Christmas Drama by Lucille R. Green

This is a play of four acts requiring 14 characters including the angel chorus. The staging and costuming are very simple. Performance time is approximately one hour to an hour and fifteen minutes.

"The Touch of His Hand" is a scripture-filled story of the birth of Christ, from the time just prior to the shepherd's scene on the hillside to King Herod's slaughtering of all the boy babies in Bethlehem.

THE CHRISTMAS HEART — NO GIFT IN RETURN

Two New Christmas Dramas in One Economical Booklet

The Christmas Heart by Elsie Duncan Yale is a playlet for five girls, in which the need of ridding the heart of all grudges and ill will, as preparation for the coming of Christ, is emphasized. Stage setting and costumes are simple and easily arranged.

No Gift in Return by Mattie B. Shannon is a drama for four young ladies and one "Little Girl."

Simple stage setting and easy to prepare costumes makes this an ideal "easy" presentation.

The time is Christmas Eve of the present and the scene is a den with a table, two large chairs and stool.

Carollers sing in the background. Gifts with Christmas trimmings lend color.

THE ANGELIC SONG

A Christmas Drama by

Mattie B. Shannon

"The Angelic Song," requiring eight characters and a chorus, tells in an interesting and dramatic way the influence an old Christmas carol had in a home where a father and son had quarrelled.

The arrangement of this Christmas drama makes for a minimum number of rehearsals.

THE HIGHEST GIFT

A Christmas Play by Carolyn Clifton Dain

A play for intermediate and senior young people (7 characters) requiring about one hour. Properties consist of an angel costume, cards and letters, suitcases, sewing basket, hand sweeper, copy of the poem, newspaper, sofa pillows, and packages.

EACH OF ABOVE BOOKLETS PRICED AT 50c EACH

Order from THE FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. Box 158

Ayden, N. C.

the
Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, December 7, 1960

FULL ACCREDITATION GRANTED MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE

MOUNT OLIVE, NORTH CAROLINA

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

DEC 8 1960

DURHAM, N. C.

Mount Olive College has been granted regional accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in annual session at Memphis, Tennessee. Unanimous approval was given on December 1. President W. Burkette Raper has called upon Free Will Baptists everywhere to give thanks to God for this monumental achievement in Christian higher education. (See article under "Christian Education," on Page 13.)

EDITORIAL

JUST A HANDLE?

In the book of 2 Kings, Chapter 6, we have a most interesting account in the life of the prophet, Elisha. The first six verses tell us all about it. "And the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold now, the place where we dwell with thee is too strait for us. Let us go, we pray thee, unto Jordan, and take thence every man a beam, and let us make us a place there, where we may dwell. And he answered, Go ye. And one said, Be content, I pray thee, and go with thy servants. And he answered, I will go. So he went with them. And when they came to Jordan, they cut down wood. But as one was felling a beam, the ax head fell into the water: and he cried, and said, Alas, master! for it was borrowed. And the man of God said, Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut down a stick, and cast it in thither; and the iron did swim."

There are many things which could be said about this passage of Scripture, especially to its application in our day. Bible scholars agree that Elisha had gathered around him a little school of prophets. It has been referred to as a sort of traveling seminary. It is evident that they were making progress, so far as growth and interest were concerned. Their registration had increased so that their regular dwelling place was too small for them. It was the suggestion of one of the prophets that they go to Jordan and there build a larger dwelling place; in other words, a larger building.

When they began their building project, an incident which may have seemed unimportant, at that time, took place. One of the workmen had borrowed an ax. As he was cutting down a tree, the ax came off the handle and fell into the water. The man of God, Elisha, was called to the scene. He cut a stick from a tree and cast it into the water, and the iron did swim. It was a miracle which defied the laws of nature, but surely it is recorded in God's Word for a deeper purpose than to just reveal a miracle.

It is quite applicable for us to note that the workman had everything except the very source of power which would enable him to cut down the tree: namely, the ax itself. He had the material to work with and he had sufficient help. He even had the prophet of God. He also had the handle to the ax, but it was no good without the ax itself.

There are many of God's workmen, in this our day, who have everything else except the most important thing—the source of power. We cannot help but wonder if Free Will Baptists have not been groping around for everything else other than that which we really need; that is, the power of the Holy Spirit.

Let's put it this way: we have the handle, and we have been swinging it with great fervor; but have we been doing much actual cutting? This handle consists of several different things. Like the prophets of old, we have our schools, and they are also too strait. We also have men of God to lead in our educational enterprises and institutions. We also have plenty of material with which to work. We have also the handle of truth; our doctrine is sound. Our church government is good, but we cannot help but feel that much of our effort may be compared to this workman as he swung away at his tree with the ax on the handle.

We are not saying that we have lost God's power, but it is most evident that something is wrong. That something may very well be the lack of willingness to be used of God in His own way. Perhaps we have been swinging away before we were prepared in our own hearts to be used. One, two, or even three colleges do not necessarily make us great. We cannot deny that they should add to the cause of Christ and also that of Free Will Baptists but so far, our people have not been brought together for one purpose—a purpose of unity and common agreement. Sending missionaries to the foreign field is not necessarily the answer. Organization is not the total answer. In fact it is the opinion of some that we are over-organized in such a small denomination.

We must, in these perilous days, turn to our Lord for power and strength. Only then can He perform the impossible through us as a people. Perhaps our power has been swallowed up by our petty differences and biased opinions, or our unwillingness to give and take in the realm of humility for the cause of Christ. Once we realize our need and turn to God, the impossible will happen; for God will take us and bless and use us for His glory. May God help us to put the ax on the handle and get to work for God in the upbuilding (not tearing down) of His Kingdom.

Volume 75 Number

December 7, 1960

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

C. H. OVERMAN, Editor

Edited and published weekly by the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C., approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, The Free Will Baptist Press is entered at the post office, Ayden, N. C., as second-class mail matter.

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor six days prior to the publication date of that issue.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

6 Months $
1 Year

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor of The Free Will Baptist. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or to the person sending it in.

The Free Will Baptist Press

N. BRUCE BARROW Mana
C. H. OVERMAN Editor of Literature
LEON DUNN Treasurer

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

R. N. Hinnant President
W. L. Jernigan Vice-President
J. W. Alford Secretary
Owen Thomas Assistant Secretary

J. O. Fort, S. A. Smith and Hubert Burress

The Power of the Revelation of God's Will

How My Life Was Spared

the Story of Mrs. J. C. Andrews, Beulaville, North Carolina

ON MARCH, 1958, while working in our small store near Cedar Fork, I noticed a small white lump in my mouth over my tongue. I told my husband and immediately went to our family doctor. He decided to send me to a specialist. The specialist sent me to the hospital in a hurry. They immediately operated and an analysis, found it to be a small cancer. In the hope that this will help someone some way to realize what the power of God can do through prayer, I'm telling this story. Now that I had heard the worse, I took the news with a shock. I realized how helpless I was—how quick I could be dead. My faith was jarred to the depths of my heart, and I suddenly became filled with a feeling of the knowledge of God and of His power can do. I looked up at my hands and said, "Doctor, I place my life in your hands and your hands. If you can save my life with God's help, do so, and if you can't, I hope you may learn something that might save another person's life." I began to fight for my life. The doctor decided that I take ten weeks of X-ray therapy in a local hospital. I was to have treatment every day for a given time, once every other day for a long period of time. From the time of the first operation to remove the cancer, I had only liquid food. During all this treatment, I knew I might or might not get well. I asked no questions, nor did the doctor tell me anything. No one can realize the suffering and anxiety felt by me and my family. My friends were all sympathetic, and I asked all of them to pray for me. I was cheerful through it and went around the house doing a little work. I even planted my garden—I didn't have to, but I was happy doing it.

I drove the car to and from the hospital, fighting my thoughts so eagerly that I sometimes could see two lines in the road instead of one! My faith in God was working inside me. Nothing seemed to matter anymore, for a peace of mind and tranquility had come over me. My family and friends were all so wonderful to me. It hurt them to see me smiling, as they felt that I was smiling so as not to trouble them; but it was a smile of God's grace and the happiness was that which only He can bring to our troubled minds. Everyone who knew me, and saw me, was seriously concerned. For this concern I say, "Thank you friends!"

My faith increased each day as I took the X-ray therapy. Then one day in August, 1958, I noticed that the cancer had reappeared in my mouth. My family thought it was my imagination. I was stunned at the discovery and my heart sank to its lowest ebb. What was I to do then? Going back to the doctor wasn't like going the first time, but I was still in God's hands. This time my doctor decided to give me radium. I cannot explain the effects of radium or the after effects, but it is a wonderful thing and it's wonderful to know that man knows how to use it. After radium treatments, I went back to the hospital and had all my teeth removed. (The radium had burned my mouth to the extent that my teeth had to be removed.)

With my teeth out, radium in my mouth, I went back home and in a few days (Thanksgiving Day) I was able to eat a few solid foods. Even with all this, I was thankful to be alive, and I knew God was sparing my life for some reason. No words can describe or express the joy of my first meal of good food. After being on liquid foods from March until November it was a wonderful meal indeed. From that day on, Thanksgiving Day has had more meaning than it ever had before. I've dedicated my life, through all this suffering, to do the will of God and with the thought of helping others in similar, or less serious, circumstances.

I pray that whoever may read this can fully understand the powerful impact of God, our Maker, and how important He is even in our daily living, and not wait until death is knocking at the door to understand His presence.

This is now November, 1960, and I've gained back my twenty pounds which I had lost, and I now enjoy living more each day. I have periodical check-ups with my doctor. I have more and more to be thankful for each day I live. After all this anxiety, this has been a worthwhile experience. It is wonderful to know and feel God's presence every minute you breathe. It is a wonderful feeling to know how He brought me through this terrible ordeal.

The tragedy of it all is that something terrible has to happen to us before we can fully trust God or realize His greatness. It's like cutting through an iceberg for some human beings to understand their own hearts—until tragedy does strike. One who has experienced such a tragedy knows how easy and simple it is to put one's whole heart and trust in God—anywhere, anytime—just to let God in our hearts.

The amazing thing is that once we let God in our hearts, He abides with us forever by faith. God is love! There is a phrase which says that love is blind, but love is not blind. It is we who are blind to love. Who could ever say that God is blind?

I am closing this story with the thought of gratification and of the eternal vision of God and how I walk with Him every step of my life; and also of His greatness and the power He has given me, hoping someday to express my feeling sufficiently so as to make it known to others who wish to know or experience the same joy. Life becomes more beautiful after you have stood on the brink of death, from which there is no return. So people everywhere, please be as happy with your own good health as best you can; for when you have lost it, you have little left here in this world—except God.

I thank you for patiently reading this little incident.

Missions

BECAUSE I have not been writing to the Baptist about our mission work, is no reason that I have forgotten it. I assure our readers that I am just as anxious about the work, and am burdened just as much, or perhaps more. As my Baptist comes to me each week, I scan the pages eagerly, hoping to see that some one has written about the work, either from general, or local principles.

Last spring about this time, I began visiting many of our churches in the Eastern Conference District, in the interest of home missions, Sunday school and little workers' leagues.

In several of our churches, I found the ladies very active, and conditions encouraging, but there were quite a number who did not maintain either of these organizations. Wherever I found conditions like this, I did my best to get them organized, in one or more of these societies.

At our annual convention held at Deep Run, in August, we had the very best meeting we ever held. Miss Cayton, who so ably assisted in the campaign, gave very encouraging reports from many churches she visited prior to the convention.

Our main object in visiting the churches, was to endeavor to get our people aroused to the needs of our denomination through mission work. We did not confine our remarks altogether to any one theme, but did all we could in behalf of our seminary, printing company and orphanage.

I found, as a whole, that our people were willing, and some were anxious, to do all in their power, but the main handicap was the lack of leaders. However, we pressed quite a number into service, with splendid results.

It is an evident fact that our convention needs someone who can give a goodly portion of their time to this work, but we need a person who understands something about the work in general, and whose heart is aglow with the mission spirit. As it is, we have no one to send out this year, and we are having to depend largely on the local church. If our churches have the right kind of pastors, I feel sure they will not let the good work that was begun last year die out. They will, at each monthly meeting, make diligent inquiry about the various organizations, and if conditions are unsatisfactory, feel sure they will be in position to keep the importance of the work before their people to such extent, that deeper interest will be manifest in the way of greater activity. I often feel that one great reason why we do not take more interest in our Lord's work is because we have a wrong conception of it. Did you ever stop and think of the difference between a church member and a Christian? When a person gets the missionary spirit and vision, it transforms him, and he realizes that he is a part, not simply of the local church, but the Kingdom of God. Missions, and missions alone, can give one the larger visions of the religion that Jesus is true; that some people's conception of these are so small they never behold the glories of really living and serving under God. Missions mean a transformation from a selfish, self-centered individual, to that of broad visions, and inculcates the real spirit of the Master in the heart to that extent that service becomes a sweet privilege, and makes our chief concern in life that of caring and administering to others. With an experience like this, we can become full-fledged Christian, because with the vision of missions, comes such force of Christian character, that he is able to tackle and prosecute any task which comes to hand, and finds pleasure and joy in so doing.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article appeared in the February 25, 1920, issue of The Free Will Baptist, written by Mrs. Alice E. Lupton, New Bern, North Carolina. The article shows us that there was interest in home mission work in 1920. It also reveals to us the progress which has been made in the field of missions during recent years.)

I sincerely trust that every pastor in the district will keep our work continuously before their churches, and assist in every possible way to get these organizations completed, and encourage those who are striving to keep them alive.

Discouragement is a great drawback to many of our people, and as a rule, our preachers have it in their power to do a greater work along this line, than any one else can possibly do. I am still offering my services to any church which is in need of assistance in organizing, or in any other manner that I can be of service. I am willing to answer any inquiry regarding work through correspondence. I am hoping that when we go to our annual convention at Morhead City next August, that each church in the district will be represented. Let us work to that end, and I am sure our Master will be pleased with our labors. Mission Sunday is still served in our Sunday school, and our people look forward to that Sunday with much interest, even our little children keep up with it. The superintendent, Brother J. F. Robinson, has only to ask, "What Sunday is this?" when several little voices ring out "Mission Sunday." I am sure what has been accomplished here can be accomplished in every other church, if our most active members keep pushing the cause. Let all be "up and doing" while it is called day, remembering that "the night comes when it will all be over."

Brown and White Money

I noted a recent analysis of how the average American spent his money. He spent a little over 20¢ of each dollar for food, almost 8¢ for liquor, a little under 5¢ for tobacco, 5¢ for recreation, and finally a little less than 1¢ for all religious purposes.

This reminded me of a true story about one of our members. When she was a little girl she called pennies "brown" money, and silver coins "white" money.

Someone had given her a penny and she went to town with her mother. She wanted to buy something. She decided what she wanted, but her mother said, "you can't buy that with brown money." So she took a second and a third selection also proving more expensive than a penny.

Finally in exasperation the little girl said, "Well, mother, isn't brown money good for anything except to take to church?"

So literally it seems that the average American feels that a piece of "brown money" is all he owes to God, while spending many, many times that amount for his own selfish and sinful indulgence.

Jesus said, "For where your treasure is there will your heart be also" (Matthew 21). If that is true the heart of most people is not in spiritual things.

It would be a sobering thought for many of us if we carefully considered how much we love the Lord and His church as determined by the amount of time, money, and service we give to Him. And, after all, that is about the only way we can determine our love for Him.

No, I don't think we can cast a cent to the Lord, and then heap 99¢ on ourselves and be able to say, ". . . Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee" (John 21:17).—Malcolm Fuller

Ye Are My Friends

by the Late Naaman Borders

IN THE BOOK of John, Chapter 15, Verse 14, Jesus said, "Ye are my friends, if you do whatsoever I command." The word, friend, is one of the best and noblest words in any language. A friend rejoices in your success and shares in your failure. Your friend will love you at all times whether sick or well; will help you up when you fall; will be ready to assist you when the crowd is all against you and will administer help in the hour of death. On the other hand, the traitor is most despised of all mortals. He lets you down when you need him the most. When others wound you, he will tear the wound deeper. His wounds are sharper than a repent's teeth.

In speaking of friends, your mother is the Father will do all he can but no one can soothe a wound like your mother. When the boy makes his mark in the world and climbs the ladder of success, his mother is not surprised and says, "I knew you would. I knew it was in him." If he takes the downward road and makes a failure of his lands in jail, the mother is sure that no one else was the cause, and her son is not to blame at all. To his mother, her son has no faults at all. He is as perfect in her eyes, as the best.

Who have known mothers who watched by the bedside of their children, who were about to depart this life and go into eternity. They prayed the Lord to take her instead of the boy who was unprepared to go. The boy got well and the mother died and went to rest. Later the son came to Christ. What that I knew went on in sin for many years but at the last he was saved. Who can be a better friend than those mothers? I couldn't bear to see their sons die compared.

One mother, who had a son that was tried for murder, had spent every cent she had to clear the boy; but on being sentenced to the gallows, she begged leave to be buried by his side.

During the Civil War, a certain young man was wounded and lay dying in the hospital. Upon hearing it, his mother went many miles to visit her son. On arriving at the prison, the guards stopped her; they said that no one was allowed inside. The mother said she had a son in there that she must see. The guards said, "We were instructed to let no one in by any means." The mother said, "No matter what instructions they gave, I must see my son." The guards said, "We are ordered to shoot any one trying to go past us." To that, the mother said, "Well shoot if you want to, I'm going to see my son." So she passed the guards and went in, leaving the guards dumbfounded. On entering the hospital, the nurses tried in vain to stop her. On she went until she found the boy. He seemed to be asleep, with his head bandaged. She gently tipped to his bedside and placed her hand on his head. Without opening his eyes the son said, "Mother, when did you come?" It seems that there's a touch about Mother's hand that has healing qualities about it. Somehow, you just feel better when she lays her hands on you.

When that great statesman, Henry Grady of Atlanta, became a man, he said that he loved to go home and eat his mother's cooking and at bedtime have her to put him to bed, put the cover over him, and tuck it around him and place her hand on his forehead. He said that he could sleep better. Somehow it gave him peace of mind and made him feel young again.

Well, why go on and on about the Mother's love. We all know what Mother's love is. The English language cannot (no other for that matter) begin to portray a mother's love. It's more than mortal tongue can tell—beyond description. Well, we ask, is there any other love greater than Mother's love?

According to God's Word, the love that God has for His children is greater than that of Mother or Father. He says, "If Father and Mother forsake thee, I will never, no never forsake thee, nor leave thee alone. I will be with thee in the sixth trouble and in the seventh I will not forsake thee." The seventh means completion. It's the finishing touch. How much did God love us? He loved us enough to give His only begotten Son to die in our stead. There is no better love than this that He gave His life for His friends.

A certain young lady was once riding down the street in a buggy and the horses got scared and ran away. Her intended husband rushed out and grabbed the horses by the reins, and in trying to stop them

(Continued on page fourteen)

Tribute to a Faithful Pastor

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

You have been a faithful pastor,
Meek and loving, kind and true,
With an humble heart and spirit
That has made you noble, too;
And that helps us in our efforts
For the right against the wrong,
As we walk the pathway upward
Filling us with prayer and song.

Many years you've preached the gospel
That has blessed us in our souls,
And has made us feel the presence
Of the Christ who never scolds;
That has blessed us in our sorrows
And the griefs that we have known,
Helping us to long for heaven
And the glories of God's throne.

You have prayed beside our loved ones
Who were sick and very ill;
You have helped us live for Jesus
And climb higher up the hill;
You have won the souls of many
From the "broad and beaten way,"
Some of whom our Lord has taken
To the realms of endless day.

You have prayed around our altars
In our churches and our homes,
And have warned our friends and neighbors
Of the paths where Satan roams;
You have shown the love of Jesus
In your conduct and your deeds,
And have sown across the country
Pure and holy gospel seeds.

May the God of heaven crown you
With the faithful and the blest,
When your work on earth is finished
And you go to your sweet rest,
There to shine and sing forever
With the saints who've gone before,
And with our dear friends and kindred
Where farewells are known no more.

Of Denominational Interest

Youth for Christ Rally At Rock Springs Church

The Youth for Christ Rally of the Second Western District of North Carolina will be held at Rock Springs Free Will Baptist Church near Bailey, North Carolina, Saturday evening, December 10, at 7:30. Mrs. Chester Phillips of Smithfield, North Carolina, will be the guest speaker.

Everyone is invited to attend this rally, especially all young people and their pastors.

Fifth Eastern Union Meeting Convened with Wintergreen Church

The Fifth Eastern Union Meeting District of the Eastern Conference of North Carolina convened with Wintergreen Free Will Baptist Church, Craven County, in regular session Saturday before the fifth Sunday in October, 1960. There were 14 ministers and 31 churches answered to the roll call.

After the singing of a hymn and prayer, the Rev. Graham Lane brought greetings from the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden.

The Rev. Clifton Rice spoke on superannuation and asked the churches to respond to this cause. "Pray and give more as it is so badly needed," he stated.

The Rev. J. C. Griffin brought greetings from the Children's Home at Middlesex, and asked the continued support of this union for the home in finances and prayers.

A report was given on the work of the Eastern Conference Mission Board.

Dr. W. B. Raper brought greetings from Mount Olive College. He thanked the union for the support given the college and asked the prayers and continued support of this body.

A praise and prayer service was conducted by the Rev. Albert Rollins, after which the union sermon was brought by the Rev. Roy Harrison. Mr. Harrison used "Love" as his theme.

An offering was taken for the Children's Home and $40.00 was received.

After an hour of social activities, the union reassembled for business. The afternoon devotional was given by the Rev. Graham Lane. He used as his theme Psalm 27:1-5.

The Rev. J. C. Griffin spoke on the Master's Men, saying, "This world is in a state of confusion in every phase of life, needing fellowship in our churches to be in one accord in the work of the Lord. Confess your sins and be forgiven is the meaning of the Master's Men."

A motion was made and carried that the delegates recommend to their church in the Fifth Eastern Union to see if they would be willing to underwrite the salary of the Rev. Bill Fulcher who has been commissioned for mission work in South America.

A motion was made and passed that the records of this union meeting be placed in the files of Mount Olive College for safe keeping.

The financial report is as follows:

Receipts	$ 185.00
Offering for Children's Home	40.00
Balance on Hand	19.75
Total to Account For	$ 244.75

Disbursements
Children's Home	$ 40.00
Children's Home (Union Funds)	40.00
Missions	20.00
Superannuation	20.00
National Bible College	30.00
Mount Olive College	30.00
Eastern Conference Missions	20.00
Representative Fee to State Convention	5.00
Representative Fee to Eastern Conference	5.00
Clerk	7.50
Total Disbursements	237.50

Left on Hand	$ 7.25
Sent in Late	5.00
Balance on Hand	$ 12.25

The union adjourned with prayer to meet next time with Macedonia Church, Craven County, with the moderator, the Rev. A. J. Lyczkowski, presiding.

Coming Events

December 14—Founder's Day, Mount Olive College
 December 25—Christmas Day
 January 25—Spring Semester Begins at Mount Olive College
 January 29-February 5—National Youth Week

GROWING WEEDS

Rev. Walter Eisenhour, Taylorsville, N.C.

DID YOU EVER see a garden used to grow valuable and delicious vegetables just turned over to the growth weeds? The owner of the garden may have taken special interest in planting melons, corn, cabbage, potatoes, onions, cucumbers, tomatoes, strawberries, raspberries, bean greens, pumpkins, okra, squash, etc., gave careful attention to the enrichment of the soil, its cultivation, and kept it clear of blight as much as possible, and worked hard to keep away from him the bugs and insects that would have proved very injurious and destructive. He looked carefully after the best interests of his garden and reaped bountifully from its production. But the time came when the owner could no longer work, and soon the garden grew up in weeds, along with briars, vines and other wild growth. Maybe the gardener sold the ground to someone who had other work to do, or had other business to look after; therefore, did not plant nor cultivate it. It no longer provided fine and delicious vegetables for his use, or anybody, and was practically worthless. Perhaps you have seen this happen.

I have said this in order to say something else. Did you ever see someone who used to be a good and valuable citizen, a good parent, who used to attend church and Sunday school, take great interest in the Bible and the Christian religion; who had his home and church at heart, also the lives and souls of his fellow men, their education and welfare for time and eternity—then for some reason just quit? Not so much because he got old and couldn't pray and be a blessing and shining light, but he quit. He no longer cultivated his garden—spiritually speaking. In all probability you have seen this. The Bible was neglected, the church was neglected, prayers neglected, souls neglected, home neglected and the Christian religion neglected. The beautiful, valuable spiritual garden of life neglected and turned over to the weeds and thorns. How sad, sad, sad!

Maybe someone who is reading these lines knows what I am talking about from actual experience. You have neglected the garden of your life and soul and let the weeds take it over. The garden is in weeds, in growth and ruins. You realize what you have lost. Maybe it has been a long time since you sold out and turned your garden over to the enemy; but even at that, perhaps I have some good news for you. If you haven't maliciously, willfully, blasphemously and eternally sold out to the devil, God may redeem your garden if you will heed my, thoroughly, honestly, earnestly and sincerely repent and seek Him out.

(continued on page thirteen)

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Littleton Church Held Singspiration Thanksgiving Service

In addition to the customary Sunday evening service, the Littleton Free Will Baptist Church of Littleton, New Hampshire, held a special Thanksgiving singspiration program November 20, at 7:30.

The program consisted of a song sermon entitled, "Thanksgiving in Song," and opened with the congregation singing "America," followed with prayer by the pastor, the Rev. Mack C. Owens. The Scripture reading was taken from Psalm 103.

Mrs. Isabelle Meserve was the accompanist for the program which consisted of a variety of numbers including solos, duets, trios, quartets and congregational singing. The children's choir also took part in the program.

Mr. Owens stated: "The sermon in song consisted of thanking God for past blessings, for Christ, for the Cross and for salvation; for present blessings, temporal blessings and God's protecting care; for future blessings, which are His promises and His will to keep this promise and the promise of heaven to all true believers. In the final part of the program, the question was asked as to our attitude in view of these blessings. It will be answered in giving our best, our selves and our service."

The offering of $10.50, which was the amount of the special mission offering, was sent to the National Home Missions Board which reaches 66,000,000 unchurched people in America.

THE MAIL BOX

THANKS FOR KINDNESS AT THANKSGIVING

"I would like space in The Free Will Baptist to thank the people of Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church, Snow Hill, North Carolina, for the kindness shown toward me during the Thanksgiving season. It made me rejoice to know that so many of my friends were thinking of me. It was the happiest Thanksgiving I have spent in many a day. I hope the Lord will bless each and everyone of you, is my prayer."—Mrs. Agnes Letchworth, LaGrange, North Carolina.

Junior was being chided for his low grades. Little Robert, who lived a few doors away, was being held up as an example. "Robert doesn't get C's and D's, does he?" asked Junior's father. "No," Junior admitted, but he's different. He has very bright parents."—Selected.

The Sanders Write

November, 1960

Prayer Partners.

am sending this special letter to all of you on our mailing list because we believe you are interested in the Free Will Baptist mission work of Hawaii. This letter comes to you as an appeal—you might in S. O. S.—and concerns an effort to raise some much needed funds for the work believe God has given me this plan and it has been cleared through our National Home Mission Office in Nashville, Tennessee. This December 7 will mark the beginning of the twentieth year of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Your missionary was expected to be at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack, and he can testify to the chaos, and great losses sustained by the United States as a result of this attack. My family and I are here on a different island, under a different Commander-in-Chief, and we are engaged in an even fiercer warfare. The spiritual destruction of the past nineteen years in these Islands cannot be described on paper; however, the pictorial brochures that you recently received of our work here in the Islands show you can see some of the needs.

Within a few months after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, we were able to turn defeat into victory because our young men rushed to the recruiting offices to volunteer. Moms and Dads did without things and worked in factories in order to have the material to win the war, and the rally slogan "Remember Pearl Harbor" was heard and heeded throughout the world. Now, let us try to rekindle some of that fervor for the glory of the Lord.

See December 7, 1941, many memorials have been built in memory of the men who gave their lives throughout World War 2. Here at Pearl Harbor, preliminary construction work has already begun on a billion dollar memorial to be erected for the sunken battleship, the U.S.S. Arizona where 1,102 sailors lie entombed. The request for an additional $200,000 has been made and I am sure that many civic and patriotic people will respond and they will be able to complete this project in 1961.

This may be a worthy project; however, I believe if we should build a fundamental, Christ-exalting church where our service men and the natives could come and worship God and find the answer to their many moral, social and spiritual problems, this would be a living memorial and would certainly be worthy of your support and your contributions would be a testimony that those who died at Pearl Harbor have not died in vain. "... God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet speaketh" (Hebrews 11:4).

As you already know, the cost of land is unreasonably high on the Island of Oahu. The average is about $3.00 per square foot, and since there are 43,560 square feet in an acre, you can see our problem and need. If each person who reads this letter will try to buy at least one square foot of property ($3.00), and try to encourage other individuals and groups in your church to buy some, I believe God would give us the victory. If a program could be arranged in your church during the week of December 7 (or any time that may be more convenient than this suggested date) using for the theme, "Remember Pearl Harbor!" I am sure God would honor the program by having people to respond. You can use the pictorial brochures as a basis for your program and at the end of the program an offering and pledges may be received to buy property. Encourage and challenge every one present to buy at least one square foot. Perhaps there are churches and families who lost a member of the church or family during the war and they would like to give a gift in memory of that loved one.

As we prepare these letters for the mail, we cannot help but wonder what individual, what group, what church, or what state will buy the most square feet of property in Hawaii—will you, will your church, or your state be the one?

I will be happy to give you any additional information if you will write to me. Please send all offerings to "Remember Pearl Harbor" Fund, 3801 Richland Avenue, Nashville 5, Tennessee.

For Christ in Hawaii,

Luther, Helen and Brenda Sanders

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Where was the Garden of Eden located? Does the Bible tell us?—Nellie Ange, North Carolina.

Answer: Yes, in part but not in a way so that we can be certain as to its bounds. There are three names recorded in the second chapter of Genesis which may be located on the maps of history that indicate definitely the general location. Ethiopia . . . Hiddekel (the ancient name the Tigris River was identified by) Assyria and the Euphrates River. "And the name of the second river is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia. And the name of the third river is Hiddekel: that is it which goeth toward the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates" (Genesis 2:13, 14). Most secular histories refer to the Tigris-Euphrates Valley, called also in the Bible, Mesopotamia, as the cradle of civilization. With this view we find Genesis in perfect agreement with secular history.

Joseph P. Free in his book, Archaeology and Bible History, has the following to say on Pages 30, 31. "Thus we see that Eden was in the region of the Tigris and Euphrates, the area known geographically as Mesopotamia (Greek, meaning between the rivers), which today is the country known politically as Iraq. Concerning the precise location of Eden within Mesopotamia, we note two views: (1) Friedrich Delitzsch located it just above Babylon, where the Tigris and Euphrates approach each other within a short distance. (2) George Frederick Wright, geologist at Oberlin College, favored the area further south, near the head of the Persian Gulf. This latter location is seemingly supported by the clay tablet which say that Eridu, a town in southern Mesopotamia, was reputed to have in its neighborhood a garden, a holy place, in which there grew a sacred palm tree. This legend may still retain some significance in pointing to the location of the original garden of Eden.

"The location of man's origin upon the earth has been the subject of much speculation, resulting in the theories which place the beginning of civilization in several different places, ranging from Egypt to China. Recent archaeological discoveries, however, point definitely toward the Near East and Mesopotamia, confirming the Biblical indication concerning Eden as the location of man's origin. The present day scholar, William F. Albright, well summarizes the evidence when he says, 'Archaeological research has thus established beyond doubt that there is no focus of civilization in the earth that can begin to compete in antiquity and activity with the basin of the Eastern Mediterranean and the region immediately to the east of it—Breasted's Fertile Crescent.'"

This area has long been regarded by men of renown as the center of the earth. Near the vicinity, the ruins of the battle fields of the most decisive victories of history are to be found. Some of the world's great conquerors have had plans to build a world capital in the general vicinity.

Armageddon, the location in which the first great decisive battle of history was won, and that in which several decisive battles, whose account is to be found in the Bible, were won, is to furnish the scene for the last and greatest battle of all times according to the Bible. This then is a part of the earth that Christians need to keep their eyes upon. Where the budding of the fig tree is to be observed as Jews regather and lay claim to their ancient land.

Question: Explain Daniel 12:12. I would like to know the meaning of the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.—A. B., Illinois.

Answer: We have given to us three sets of time periods in Daniel 12. We find the first in Verse 7, where the length of the great tribulation period is given as: A time (one year), times (two years), and a half (one-half year), which when added up totals three and one-half years. It is the length of that awful period of time known as the great tribulation and amounts to the equivalent of 1,260 days. We find the second of these periods of time indicators in Verse 11: "And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days." In this giving, we have thirty days added to the 1,260 of the tribulation period. During these added extra 30 days, certain events are to take place after Christ has returned to this earth, such as the judgment of the living nations, and binding of Satan.

The third period is recorded in Verse "Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days." Here is a period that yet added to it days beyond the previous designation. Concerning this period it is interesting to note what God says, "Blessed he that . . . cometh" thereunto. (W) Because such a one will then be in millennium, having all the tribulation with its awful and gory events behind him. (W) It is a glorious day that will be for shouting. It is then and not until then that all tribulation saints shall be delivered from all their labors.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

DANGEROUS REASONING

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4:8).

In a recent issue of The Sunday School Times there appeared an article on above subject which I believe deserves wide reading and careful and prayerful study as possible. This is especially true as view the unsettled conditions in the world and particularly those in our own denomination. The article follows:

Only in the light of the Bible is it for us to reason about spiritual matters. Without God our reasoning powers are likely to lead us astray. There are several Scriptural examples of this. The rich man who decided to build bigger barns left himself out of his thinking. "He thought within himself," and in the space of three verses in the record he used the personal pronoun "I" six times and "my" four times; but did not mention God. Then, like a thunderclap, came the divine message, ". . . Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things which thou hast provided?" (Luke 12:16-21).

not a to build bigger barns, but this missed God's plan. The Pharisee in temple prayed thus with himself; and though he began with the name of God, as a polite opening, he used the personal pronoun "I" five times, and did not again mention the Lord (Luke 18:9-14). He missed God's righteousness. When the Lord Jesus warned His disciples against the sin of the Pharisees and Sadducees, instead of asking Him at once just what He meant, they reasoned among themselves and missed out a material explanation. Thus they missed Christ's interpretation, which soon gave them (Matthew 16:6-12). When the scribes accused Christ of blasphemy because He told the palsied man his sins were forgiven, the Lord asked them, "Why reason ye these things in your hearts?" (Mark 2:8). He then gave evidence of His deity by healing the man. At the transfiguration, when the Lord foretold His death, His disciples did not understand Him, "and they feared to ask Him of that saying." At once they went on a tangent and "... there arose a murmuring among them, which of them should be the greatest" (Luke 9:46). Knowing the thoughts of their hearts, the Lord Jesus took a child and taught them a lesson in humility. King Nebuchadnezzar went out of his mind for a time. But when he had learned needful lessons, he looked up to heaven and honored God; then his understanding and his reason returned to him (Daniel 4:34, 36). Reason is a God-given faculty, and is very useful when it is under God's control. Moreover, with great condescension and mercy, God invites us to reason with Him: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the LORD: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isaiah 1:18). The conclusion to which this kind of reasoning can bring us is that we are lost sinners and can find salvation only through God's plan. Therefore, in reasoning in our own minds, or with others, we must be careful as far as possible to keep in mind the teaching of Scripture, and to test our conclusions by the Bible.

Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan His work in vain;
God is His own interpreter,
And He will make it plain.

—Cowper.

Copyrighted by The Sunday School Board and used with their permission.)
"For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts" (Isaiah 55:9), so says the Lord.

HIS HUNCH WAS RIGHT!

A service station had been burglarized. An officer, standing before a class of junior high students, had no evidence against any of them. He had a "hunch," however, and he acted according to his suspicion. Said he, "You doubtlessly know about the break-in at the service station. We took fingerprints. All we have to do is to compare them with yours to complete the case!" A 13-year-old boy stood and said, "You may have my fingerprints, but they won't prove a thing. I wore gloves!" An unintentional, or an excusing confession isn't enough. Pleading no extenuating circumstances, we must say to God, "I have sinned!"—Walter B. Knight.

No Need to Be Without Direction

Said Dr. George Washington Carver, "There is no need for anyone to be without direction in the midst of the perplexities of this life. Are we not plainly told, 'In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths?'" It was Dr. Carver's custom to arise every day at four a. m., and seek God's guidance for his life. In speaking of the blessings of those early morning hours, he said, "At no other time have I so sharp an understanding of what God means to do with me as in those hours when other folks are still asleep. Then I hear God best and learn His plan!"—Walter B. Knight.

The Pastor's Notebook

NOTE: The sennou outlines in this column are prepared by the Rev. George C. Lec Jr., Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.—
THE EDITOR.

IN THE SERVICE OF THE KING

(Matthew 27:37)

Introduction: This was one of the inscriptions written on the Cross of Jesus. Although this was placed there by sinful men and their purpose certainly was not to glorify the Son of God, it pronounced a distinct truth. This was indeed the King of the Jews and of the world. I consider it an honor to have this association with One of such high estate; however, it is not always the easiest way out. Sometimes the road is hard and difficult. The reasons are many.

I. The Multiplicity of Problems

1. The problem of criticism (Matthew 5:44).
2. The problem of hypocrisy (Matthew 23:13-33).
3. The problem of insincerity (Matthew 15:8; Philippians 1:16).
4. The problem of perpetuity, keeping people in the harness (Luke 9:62).
5. The problem of discouragement (Isaiah 42:4).
(Thank God there are the hours of blessing too!)

II. The Multiplicity of Blessings

1. The blessing of peace (Romans 5:1).
2. The blessing of happiness (James 5:11).
3. The blessing of a good conscience (Acts 23:1; 24:16).
4. The blessing of contentment, with God (Philippians 4:11).
5. The blessing of teaching (2 Timothy 2:2).

CHRISTMAS MOLDS

The Free Will Baptist Press now has a complete set of Christmas molds for your Christmas scene. Such a scene may be easily arranged with these molds. For information concerning price, etc., please write Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina.

AUXILIARY PINS

Please order your auxiliary pins direct from The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, North Carolina. The prices are: 10 K Gold, $5.25; Gold Plated, $2.00.

When ordering life awards pins, order direct from Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Maury, North Carolina. There is no charge for these when you send to the state treasurer, Mrs. Raymond T. Sasser, $25.00 for the designated state project which this year is the Children's Home.

III. The Multiplicity of Challenges

1. The challenge of consecration (Romans 12:1, 2).
2. The challenge of stewardship (1 Corinthians 4:1, 2).
3. The challenge of intercessory prayer (Isaiah 53:12).
4. The challenge of the home field (Acts 1:8).
5. The challenge of the regions beyond (Acts 16:8, 9).

Conclusion: There are many obstacles in the path of the Christian. There are many hard, difficult paths to trod if one really walks with Christ; but there are blessings and challenges that go with the hard times. They, by far, outweigh the others.

I MY CROSS HAVE TAKEN

Dr. M. E. Dodd told this story of some splendid young people who volunteered as foreign missionaries. One of them was the only daughter of a multimillionaire. She was socially prominent, wealthy and worldly. Her parents were not Christians.

One evening, out of curiosity, the young lady entered a little Presbyterian church. There she heard the gospel for the first time. She was converted, and later she heard God's call to go as a missionary to China. She told her parents of her decision. Sniggeringly they said, "You are mad! This is only a passing whim. We'll put a stop to it!"

The volunteer was engaged to a successful businessman. He was not a Christian. She appealed to him to surrender to Christ. He, too, laughed at her. He said to himself, "I'll dissuade her from this fantastic idea!"

Sometime later, the parents gave a gala social function to which they invited their socially prominent and wealthy friends. The parents told these friends of their problem, and enlisted their efforts to change the mind of their daughter. That evening, the daughter listened in silence to the discouraging pleas. She stood firm, however. Going to the piano, she began to play and sing:

"Jesus, I my cross have taken,
All to leave and follow Thee,
Destitute, despised, forsaken,
Thou from hence my all shall be!"

Her fiance was deeply touched. Going to her, he said, "I did not know Jesus Christ could mean so much to any person. If He means this to you, pray for me that I, too, may be saved and become His devoted follower!" Her prayer was answered! They were happily married, and both went to China where they labored for God for many years.—Rev. Walter B. Knight.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRAGE
Box 326
PINE TOPS, N. C.

OBITUARY OF

ELDER R. E. EDMUNDSON

Elder R. E. Edmundson was born December 21, 1886. I do not know the name of his parent, but his grandfather was late Joseph Sauls. He joined the church early in life at Watery Branch, Wayne County, North Carolina; and feeling that he was called to preach the gospel, he applied for license in 1899, and was ordained October 12, 1900. He went far and wide to preach the gospel. He pastored several churches in Wayne, Wilson and Greene Counties.

He was faithful to the union meetings of the Fourth District of the Central Conference. He was a good farmer and provided for his family well. He was on the examining board of the Central Conference for several years.

He died September 25, 1920, making his stay on earth 53 years, 8 months, and days. He leaves a wife and children to mourn his death.

May the God of all mercy comfort his wife and children and help them to meet him in heaven.

Rev. J. T. Bundy

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Upon being formally advised of the death of our brother, the Rev. W. W. Cuthrell, Rocky Mount, North Carolina, this Central Conference of North Carolina, executive session with Sweet Gum Grove Church in Pitt County, November 8, 1920, do submit the following resolutions:

First, that we bow humbly to His will in calling the spirit of our beloved brother to live with Him;

Second, that our sympathy and prayers go out to his bereaved family, and may they take their burdens to the Lord in whom they had supreme faith, and find comfort; and

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Baptist paper for publication, a copy to the members of the family, and a copy be reserved in the minutes of the conference.

Wilton H. Dail
Robert M. Gradel

By J. C. Griffin

FANATICISM

There is a great deal of fanaticism in the world today. We have political fanatics, I fanatics and religious fanatics. A religious fanatic is the most dangerous fanatic. He is one who starts out well, seemingly, along the way he begins to condemn everyone to hell who differs with him on a question. He sets himself up as a prophet, regardless of what Jesus said about prophesying others. He stirs up strife among brethren and often he destroys his own usefulness by condemning every one who does not subscribe to his shibboleth.

The devil cannot stop a man on the outside of Christianity, he will push him over the line, and make a fanatic out of him. One extreme fanatic can do more harm to the work of God than any worldlying.

Charles G. Finney Says: "Fanaticism results from what a certain writer calls love-light. Whenever the mind is enlightened in regard to what men ought to do and should say, and at the same time in the absence of benevolence, a spirit of fanaticism, indignation and denunciation is almost inevitable. In revivals of religion, this is generally manifest itself in a kind of burning denunciatory way of praying, exhortation, preaching and conversation. It especially attacks other ministers and the ruling influences of the church and finally regards the whole church as Babylon, and all men as on the highroad to hell who do not come out and denounce her."

Thomas Upham Says: "Those impulses and impressions which are from God are of a peaceful and gentle character. They lay a wholesome restraint upon the mind and put it in a deep state of deep solemnity and attentive stillness. Impressions and influences which are not from the Holy Spirit, but from some other source, are not of that peaceful and quiet character, which has been mentioned, but are hasty and violent."

The race for glory is a little like a game of baseball. If a batter makes a good hit he is able to reach first base, he is cheered; if he is able to make a second base, he receives a greater ovation; and should he be able to make a third base, or possible a home run on his own strike, he is picked up and carried about on the shoulders of his admirers. But suppose he is careless or overconfident and loses at third or stops before he reaches the plate, then the cheers become jeers, and his humiliation is greater than had he struck out. In like manner, if a soul has the courage of his convictions and dares to disregard the roars of the devil and public opinion, all heaven rejoice. But old Beelzebub says, "Never mind, I have two or three chances left to put you out before you reach heaven." Sad to say that in too many instances Satan is content to let souls gain temporary victories, that their defeat and disgrace may become more humiliating. The devil knows the strength of souls, fully as well, or better than they do; and understanding their different youthful painter was Leonardo da Vinci holds certain proposals until such is likelihood of yielding. Some are more susceptible to false impressions and delusions than others. This may be due to hereditary influences, or bad teaching, or personal sins.

An able preacher says: "One seldom sees a fanatic with a sweet, placid face; he usually has a curt, bitter, sour look or manner." If this class of people make demonstrations they roll their eyes, look strange and haggard; if they shout, they scream, storm and rave; if the exhort, they rail on the people in a denunciatory way; if they testify, they have one certain little ceremony to say and condemn every one who does not speak their shibboleth. They are great imitators of some favorite man or woman. Most of us have seen symptoms of this great curse, perhaps in our own lives.

SPEAKING OUT OF EXPERIENCE

Back in my younger days I got a little fanatical and made the Lord a promise that he had worked a hardship on me. One of our babies was sick, near unto death. I said, "Lord if you will heal my baby, I will never eat supper any more on Sunday evening." Well, the Lord healed my baby and my vow worked well for a good while as my physical strength was sufficient to take the strain, but as I began to grow older and physically weak, my body called for nourishment in order to be physically fit to do the work and I have suffered because of such a rash vow. I fully believe, and this taught me that I was a little fanatical. "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise" (Psalm 51:17). It is not sacrifice, but faith that reaches God and gives unto us the needed gift. "Be it unto thee according to your faith," the Master says, "not according to your sacrifice."

OBSERVATION

Years ago a brother said to me, "Do you know _____?" using the name of a preacher. I said, "I have seen him." Then this good brother said, "He is a preacher after my own heart. Why he just jumps all over the rostrum and I believe that he is the most spiritual man I know." I knew the man, and I knew that he was a fanatic. Just a few years after this, the preacher that the brother thought to be so spiritual was caught in a beer parlor drinking beer with a questionable woman in character; and he finally frazzled out.

I knew another who became so fanatical that he said, right to my face, that he could not sin, and he quoted some very good Scripture; but finally he took another man's wife away from her husband, and then he told me that it was no sin because he was a child of God. He used the ninth verse of the third chapter of 1 John, which reads, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." This fanatic was so ignorant that he took this verse of Scripture to be literal; just as if you drove up to a river a mile wide, with the bridge gone, and no bridge at all. You could not cross by driving your car. So, if you were a child of God you could not commit sin. Just impossible, but he could take another man's wife. He was a fanatic. He had it all. I am afraid of the man or woman who gets so good that everything they do is all right, and all that other folks do is all wrong. As brother "Bob" Self said once, "If you do not get your religion on the same knee that I got mine, you are wrong." I have seen some of those people who handled the truth carelessly.

I was conducting a prayer meeting in a home, in a slum section of the city in which I lived, and was reading the fifth chapter of Matthew, and commenting as I read. When I reached Verses 31 and 32, which tells about divorce and in which Jesus said, "It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement: But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery." Immediately a woman spoke up and said, "I don't believe that, if it is in the Bible." She was guilty, but placed her opinion over the words of Jesus. That woman could shout and mumble something that she called tongues. She was fanatical. She offered herself to the church that I was pastor of, but her name never went on the church record. After her supposed husband left her and was saved, he revealed the truth and I knew then why she did not believe the words of Jesus.

"Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings" (Malachi 3:8).

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

Edward's Happy Home

by Chester Shuler

EDWARD wasn't very old yet. But he was old enough to love his daddy, mother, and home.

One day a crowd of people gathered in front of his house. A noisy man stood on a box and talked so fast that Edward couldn't understand much that he said. But Edward did hear folks in the crowd saying something about "selling the house."

Edward knew what that meant! When you sold something—why someone else took it away with him! And now they were going to sell his very own, dear home! Many troubling questions went through his mind. If they sold his home and took it away, maybe—where would he live? Where would he go to keep dry when it rained or snowed? Where would he eat and sleep? He began to cry bitterly—because he was still young enough to cry and not feel ashamed—and ran to find Mother.

Mother and some other ladies thought Edward had been hurt. They gathered around him, asking questions. At first he could hardly speak for sobbing. But when Mother heard his story, she smiled and dried his tears. "Yes, dear," she said, "they are selling your house. But listen—your own daddy is going to buy it. And then it really will belong to us—to you, and Daddy and me. It will be our very own home."

Edward wasn't crying now. He was smiling, all over his face. He ran out again to listen to the noisy man on the box shouting. And then after a time, he heard what the noisy man said—"Sold! To Edward Jones!"

Edward Jones was Edward's daddy! He ran over and put his hand into his father's big hand. He felt secure now—it was their very own house!

Edward began to think about houses and homes quite a lot after that. There was that nest in the maple tree, for example. It was the home of some little robins. And out in the barn was a box—home for Tabby cat's kittens. Even mice and rats had homes underneath the floor of the corncrib, barn or attic—and how they did scamper away to their homes when frightened!

Then Edward heard in Sunday school about another home. The one which the kind Father God has for His people, up in heaven. The teacher told Edward's class all about that happy home. She explained that the Lord Jesus is there now, preparing that home for those who love and have faith in Him. And that, she said, is the very happiest home of all.

The teacher told them more about houses and homes, too. Edward was so interested, after seeing his own home sold, that he asked some questions. Were big, fine homes better than just ordinary, small homes? Why did some boys and girls live in great, big, wonderful mansions, while others lived in just shacks?

Teacher smiled and explained that there's a great, big difference between a house and a home. At first Edward and the others couldn't understand this—hadn't they always spoken of theirs as either a house or a home? Well, there is a difference, teacher said. Even a beautiful, big mansion isn't a home unless love is found in it. Couldn't the rich man who was daddy to those rich children buy some happiness, or a lot of wonderful things, which would make the mansion a happy home? Edward wondered. But no, teacher said, you just can't buy happiness. It's something that we must work for. Oh, not like we work to earn money, exactly. But we must each do our part to help make a home happy—like thinking first of others' happiness, being helpful, unselfish, ready to help with work gladly, and things like that.

Edward held up his hand. Then he told teacher and the class about the robin's home in the box, and the home of the mice in the attic.

"Exactly," said teacher, "and do you think their homes are happy ones?"

"I guess the birds are happy, 'cause they sing a lot," Edward answered. "The kittens seem to be crying most of the time, but maybe that's 'cause their eyes are closed yet. And the mice squeal sometimes—I don't know 'bout them."

"Suppose those happy little robins began to peck each other, and push, and shove, and be mean," said teacher. "Do you think theirs would be a happy home or just a house?"

Edward laughed. "I guess it wouldn't be either! 'Cause they'd tumble down to the ground, and old Tabby would take them out to her home, and feed 'em to her kittens!"

"Very likely," agreed teacher. "And if those little mice fought and pushed, got out of their hidden home—"

Everyone laughed then. "Tabby's tens would have a big meal," they guessed.

"Correct. And even if those birds, kittens and mice—and some little boys, girls, too—lived in a fine big mansion, fighting and being mean to one another would surely spoil their happy homes."

"Why did Jesus live in such a fine little house," asked Edward, pointing to the picture on the wall, "if there's such a beautiful mansion up in heaven where He could have stayed in?"

"A good question, Edward," teacher said. "Jesus, when a boy, lived in a very humble cottage in Nazareth. He had brothers and sisters, a kind mother, and I am sure it was a very happy home indeed. We can be certain that Jesus, at least, did His best to make it happy. He grew strong and wise, and I am certain He always obeyed Mary and Joseph quickly and gladly."

"Mother says," spoke up John. "I know when Jesus lives in our hearts, it helps to be good and happy."

"Very true, John," said teacher. "I don't know of a better way to help make our homes happy than to invite Jesus to live in our hearts. Then, every moment of the day and night, He will keep us and help to make others happy—and that's the sure way to be happy ourselves."

Just then the bell rang, and the class prepared for dismissal.

"Let us bow our heads," teacher said, "and thank God for our homes, and thank Him to help us make them happier."

Before he started home, Edward said to Miss Jones. "I'm glad I have a happy home to go to. Won't you come over and see it some day?"

"I certainly shall be glad to do that, Edward. Thank you," she said, with a big smile.—My Pleasure.

PLEASE NOTE

When sending in news items, feature articles, for publication "The Free Will Baptist," please mail them to Rev. C. H. Overman, Editor, P.O. Box 507, Ayden, North Carolina. This will help us in getting your item processed earlier.

Fan Now for National Youth Week

Ray C. Turnage
National League Director

THE DATES for National Youth Week are set for January 29 through February 5. The complete theme, "Surrender to God," has a consecration emphasis. Daily emphases are as follows: Monday, Goals; Tuesday, Talents; Wednesday, Talents; Thursday, Time; Friday, Energy; Saturday, Thoughts; Sunday, All (Everyday).

Youth crime is still on the rise in America and delinquency is of national concern. Better equipped prisons, more detention camps, tightened police watch and stiffer penalties are topics of discussion. Television, pornography, film violence, lack of discipline, disinterested and working parents and other contributing factors contribute virtually unabated.

National Youth Week is designed to meet the basic needs of youth and help them find their place in God's program and society. It is the belief of many dedicated Christian people that preventive measures such as strong youth programs in churches are of greater value than any punitive measure. Stand with us strong for Christian youth. A positive program in evangelical churches will do more to correct youth problems than law enforcement, delinquency camps, or anything else might try.

Posters, church bulletin folders, postcards and hymnal bands with the theme may be ordered from the National Sunday School Association, 175 North Dearborn, Chicago 6, Illinois. These materials are very colorful and were especially prepared to go along with the theme, "Surrender to God," prepared by the National Commission.

At this time of America's opportunity and challenge for Christian youth let us pray together that these materials and plans will be used for the glory of God.

Forsake Not

Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together. . . . This admonition is a command to Christians to be faithful in attending the worship service of their church. The worship in the church was the first command of the New Testament church and we are expected to follow suit. Every person attending with a Free Will Baptist church by subscribing to the Treaties agrees to attend the services of his church regularly. One of the most heard remarks over and over and down town is that the membership of our churches enjoys and are faithful to the services of their church. When one gives himself to Christ completely it is only natural then for that person to anxiously wait for Sunday to roll around when eternal fellowship may be enjoyed with many in the house of God.

Generally speaking there is no real reason for anyone not being in church for all the services. Listed below are some of the excuses that some use for not attending Sunday evening services. Look them over and see if you don't agree that the real cause is a lack of love for souls and Jesus Christ.

1. I have to go to work Monday morning and I must get my rest. (Most of them don't go to bed until 10:30 which is one and a half hour after church is over.)

2. The children have to go to school and they must get their rest. (What about their spiritual well-being? One night per week of getting in bed 30 minutes late—will it make that much difference?)

3. I am just not physically well, therefore, I will not be there Sunday night. A real Christian on his way to heaven is going to have to be pretty sick before he will miss the service of the church.

Failure to attend services Sunday evening as well as Sunday morning is a vote against Christ and a vote for the devil. . . unless there is a providential hindrance.

GROWING WEEDS

(continued from page six)

a broken heart and contrite spirit. I know you cannot redeem the valuable time you have lost, along with the golden and priceless opportunities that are forever gone, but the blessed Lord Jesus Christ can do wonderful things for you. He has for others. This is your only hope. Grasp it while time and opportunity still affords. Perhaps you can yet do some wonderful work in life's neglected garden. Get back to God at any cost!

“. . . As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die" (Ezekiel 33:11).

"Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he shall have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon" (Isaiah 55:6, 7).

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem" (Luke 24:47).

Christian Education

Southern Association Fully Accredits Mount Olive College

Human words cannot express the gratitude and joy felt by the faculty, students, and friends of Mount Olive College on the occasion of our receiving full accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. We turn to Holy Scripture for an adequate expression of our deepest sentiments:

"Not unto us, O LORD, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake" (Psalm 115:1). We hope that Free Will Baptists everywhere will join with us in giving thanks to God for this great victory. God called Mount Olive College into existence; He has sustained us during the nine years since the college was chartered; He has even greater things in store for us.

We are thankful also for the thousands of friends who have prayed fervently and given generously that Free Will Baptists might have a college known for its spiritual integrity, academic excellence, and cultural distinction. It is a college that our youth can attend with the full assurance that they will receive the best in Christian higher education.

We remember with gratitude the support of local citizens who have given more than $100,000 to Mount Olive College since it located here in 1953.

We are grateful for our students and the work they are doing in senior colleges and as ministers, teachers, nurses, secretaries, and Christian citizens.

The fact that Mount Olive College has received the highest form of accreditation given junior colleges should help Free Will Baptists everywhere to look upon our denomination with greater respect and renewed loyalty to the "faith of our fathers, living still." With the Psalmist we pray, "Let the beauty of the LORD our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it" (Psalm 90:17).

W. Burkette Raper, President

PLEASE NOTE

Those who have Christmas cards to return to the Free Will Baptist Press, are asked to do so by December 12. This applies to wholesale purchasers only.

HERE AND THERE

In Our Religious World

COMMUNIST GUERILLAS ATTACK CHRISTIAN VILLAGE IN VIET NAM

(The following is a condensed report by missionary Gordon Smith. The report originally appeared in the November-December issue of "Worldwide," the official publication of the Worldwide Evangelization Crusade. The incident occurred in a Christian village in Viet Nam.)

On the night of September sixth, a band of communist guerillas came to Khe Tranh, our undefended jungle outpost among the Pakoh tribe, and killed the Christian chief, took his granddaughter, and led our Vietnamese preacher, Mr. Thanh Hiep, away into the wilderness with a rope around his neck . . .

Just three weeks ago, we spent three days at Khe Tranh in a happy ministry to the Christians and scores of wild tribespeople passing through. Today our station there is desolate. While the Hieps slept, four communists knocked them about and ordered them up. One slashed the tires on the mission bicycle so it could not be used to call for help. They did not steal or ransack, nor did they take other children or Mrs. McGuire Hiep—probably because she was so tiny and frail looking.

Four more guerillas entered the guest house for the tribes who make this a stop-over on their long journeys to and from the interior. They caught a Vietnamese wood cutter, but after telling him not to work any more for the Catholic priests who were exploiting the timber for their own personal benefits, they let him go.

Four more entered the Christian village of five small houses back in the woods. They told the Christian chief to follow them, but he refused. They tried to shoot him, but their pistol would not go off. So they twisted his neck and killed him. They took the Chief's beautiful granddaughter and, together with Mr. Hiep, marched off into the night . . .

Three days later, when we heard of the attack, we took off from Danang and drove 70 miles to Hue and into Bang Lang. We found a crowd of sympathetic Vietnamese around the Hiep's house. We tried to com-

(continued on page sixteen)

N. Y. STARTS CAMPAIGN TO CURB LIQUOR SALES GOING TO TEEN-AGERS

To enforce laws against drinking by teen-agers, a special squad of detectives has been assigned by the District Attorney in Nassau County in New York State, reports the New York Times. The squad's initial investigations have led to the arrest of four persons on charges of selling liquor to minors.

The campaign against persons who sell liquor to teen-agers was started because of the high incidence of traffic fatalities involving youthful drinkers. District Attorney Manuel Levind said that the raids would continue any place and at any time until every person in the county realizes he will be arrested if he is caught selling drinks to children.

"Under the law, no charge can be placed against teen-age drinkers unless they use false identification to obtain liquor," Assistant District Attorney William Cahn said. He explained, however, that the District Attorney would write personal letters to the parents of the teen-agers telling them when, how and where the children were found.—The Union Signal.

Stresses and Strains Of Ministers' Wives

Texas' Baptist Standard makes the following apt comment regarding the mental and emotional problems peculiar to ministers' wives: "The stresses and strains are enough to stagger an Amazon. . . . Most ministers' wives have never heard a divine call, they have simply married men who have, and they lead an exorable fishbowl existence in which they are expected to be leaders and models in all fields." According to the Rev. George Anderson, director of New York's Academy of Religion and Mental Health, breakdowns among ministers' wives are most often caused by the pressures to conform.—Dateline.

Returns After Imprisonment

Mrs. Katherine Voronaeff, 73-year-old wife of a Russian-born Assemblies of God missionary, has reached the United States and freedom after spending approximately twenty years in Russian prisons.

Her husband, the Rev. John E. Voronaeff, also a victim of Communist imprisonment, is still lost somewhere in Russia, or dead. Although frail in body, Mrs. Voronaeff has been reunited with her six children. She will spend the winter with her son, Alexander (Voronaeff) Vernon of Los Angeles.

Born in Russia and having emigrated to the United States in their youth, the Voronaeffs returned to Russia in 1920, under the sponsorship of the Assemblies of God, to evangelize their own people.

Voronaeff became chairman of the denomination's work in Russia and the Ukraine, a position he held until his arrest in 1930.

It was on January 6, 1930, that 800 prisoners were arrested and held in local prisons for months, then herded into freight cars without food, water or sanitation and shipped to Siberia. Those surviving the journey were forced into slave labor. Ten years later, Mrs. Voronaeff was also arrested and placed in the prison camp.

Around 1940, the Voronaeffs were released, only to be arrested again when they tried to get exit papers to come to the United States. Mrs. Voronaeff's release this year came only after negotiations with top-ranking officials in Washington.—M. A.

YE ARE MY FRIENDS

(continued from page five)

was trampled to death. When he was dying he said to his lover, "I loved you didn't I? How much more can one love another to give his life to save them? If we ascend to heaven and ask every angel, every saint and the archangels that surround the great white throne, "How much did you love the human race?" in one great halcyon chorus, they would say, "For God loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). Ye are My friends, do whatsoever I command you.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

The Greatest Servant

(Lesson for December 18)

Scripture: Isaiah 61:1-3, 10, 11; Matthew 11:7-30

Lesson Text: Matthew 11:29

INTRODUCTION

Today's lesson dealt with the coming of Christ's coming. Today's lesson is a description of the Saviour.

The title of this lesson should help us realize that Jesus is not only the Son of God and Redeemer, but during His earthly ministry, He was a Servant of servants. He came not to be ministered, but to minister. He came to serve, to bridge the gap between God and man. What a contrast as we think of His heavenly association with the Father. He came down from heaven's portals to minister to sinful man— even man even through His death.

Let us turn to our memory verse and recall the will of Christ concerning man's burdens and sins. He is gentle and lowly in heart. By turning to Him who is of such a nature, man can be freed from the burdens of sin, for He is the great burden-bearer. Bible Student (F.W.B.).

SCRIPTURES THAT HELP

Isaiah 61:1. The first and second commandments of our Lord are expressed in these first verses. Jesus quoted them in the synagogue at Nazareth. He left off the last part of Verse 2 because it refers to the coming, and He was announcing the fulfillment of Verse 2: It is the acceptable year of the Lord, even though some will not accept it. He came unto His own, and His own received Him not." So He spoke also of the vengeance upon all unrighteousness. Blessed are the meek. Blessed are they that grieve: Beauty for ashes is a beautiful thing. Flowers bring forth their beauty out of the beds. Nations go into captivity, and He brings them back to their former state. The dead become ashes, but in the resurrection they come forth with bodies imperishable.

Matthew 10: This passage, like many prophetic passages, seems to have a double meaning. It refers to the deliverance out of Babylon, and predicts the great deliverance or redemption in Christ Jesus.

Vs. 28: Perhaps the sweetest word in the Bible is "Come." The most possessionless man offered to give the most. He borrowed an upper room. He borrowed a little donkey for the triumphant entry. He borrowed a boat, a cross and a tomb. Yet all who are weary on the journey are invited to Him, and He promises rest. "Whosoever will, let him take the Water of Life freely."

Vs. 29: A yoke is made for two. It connotes obligation. It will fit our necks as the crown fits our heads. Man and wife are yoked together, and must pull together. It is tragic when one gets out of the yoke and the other has to pull the whole load. Jesus was a carpenter, and He knew how to make yokes that fit—no more of a burden than wings to a bird.—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. When we try to understand the prophet, Isaiah, we are reminded of the story of Philip and the eunuch of Ethiopia in the book of Acts (Acts 8:26-35), and particularly the statement of the eunuch where he asked the question, ". . . I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?" (Acts 8:34). Yes, we are never quite sure if the prophet is speaking of himself or of someone else. But the passage before us is meaningless if we attempt to interpret it totally as the experience of the prophet. It has meaning only in the person and life of the Lord Jesus, the true Messiah Himself, who was God in the flesh. It was He who came to preach the good news unto the meek, or the poor in spirit. Only He can bind up the brokenhearted and remove the shackles from those who are in the prison of sin giving liberty to those who are bound thereby.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

2. He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted. Jesus is the Mender of broken things. He takes the fragments of a mispent life and remakes the life into a vessel of beauty and honor. He gives "the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness."

Illustration: A Hebrew Christian, in New York City, was greatly interested in a sign in the window of a giftshop which read,

"We mend everything but broken hearts!" Entering the giftshop, he was cheerfully greeted by a young Jewess. "What can I do for you, sir?" she asked. "I am interested in your sign in the window. I am wondering what you do with broken hearts?" "Oh, we send them to the hospital," she said. "Have you not read in your Old Testament of the Messiah who came to heal the brokenhearted?" "Well, I guess I haven't," said the Jewess. "Tell me more about Him!"—The Bible Expositor.

3. Early in His ministry, Jesus read this passage in the synagogue. We do not know whether this was the reading for the day or whether Jesus selected this passage, but we do know that He read it. After He had finished the reading, He began to apply it to Himself. At first, this pleased the hearers, but they soon became very displeased and wanted to kill Him, but He escaped (Luke 4:16-30). So do we know that this passage refers to the Lord Jesus.

4. Righteousness is the natural consequence of union with the Lord Jesus Christ, just as it is natural for seed to come up or the bud to blossom forth. Observe again in Verse 4 the fact that salvation is of God. The righteousness comes from God, not man. Really there are two kinds of righteousness: First, there is imputed righteousness. This comes from our union with Christ and is not available any other way. Second, there is a righteousness which is attained. This comes from our purity of thought and conduct after we are saved. Christians need both, but our salvation depends upon the first.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

5. "For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Vs. 30).

The yoke of Christ may appear to worldly people as a burden too heavy to bear, but, in reality, it is a burden in the same sense as sails are a burden to a ship or wings constitute a burden to birds. They have a certain weight, to be sure, yet it is only through their employment that ship and bird can reach their destination. The yoke of the oxen co-ordinates the efforts of the team and helps them to move a load that neither could move alone, nor both without the aid of the yoke. Thus the yoke of Christ, instead of constituting a burden in the strict sense of the word, is a blessing which all should hasten to pick up.—The Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

6. A young artist was called upon by his instructor to complete a picture which the master had started, but through growing infirmities, could not finish. "I commission you, my son, to do your best upon this work. Do your best." The youth shrank from the task, but threw himself upon his knees before the canvas and prayed: "It is for the sake of my beloved master that I employ skill and power to do this deed." He rose and began the work, and his hand became steadier as he progressed. Love for his work possessed him till he had steadily and successfully completed the task. His master was brought into the studio to inspect the picture. He gazed at the work, then embraced the pupil and burst into tears, "My son, I paint no more." That youthful painter was Leonardo da Vinci and the picture was "The Last Supper." Let it be thus with us who are engaged in painting the features of Christ's character upon those about us.—The Bible Teacher (F.V.B.).

(continued on page sixteen)

ST. CLAIRE BIBLE CLASS

(continued from page fifteen)

COMMUNIST GUERILLAS

(continued from page fourteen)

fort Mrs. Hiep and the children, who were overcome with grief. Her first thought was, "How soon could we send another preacher to replace her husband? I'll walk back there with him each week end to look after the work," she said. Then she told us how kind the neighbors were in bringing her food and help.

The Pakoh people at Khe Tranh came to the Lord two years ago; their chief, Vien Tu, being the first to accept Jesus as his Saviour. Until recently, he acted as representative to the government for the tribes, and it must have been for this reason that terrorists' activity of the past few days has been mainly directed against governmental administrators and political agents, and many are still being assassinated these days. So far, we have not seen any campaign against people because they are Christians.

That the Communists should choose this tiny, defenseless, Christian village to wreck their wicked vengeance is beyond comprehension. Whether they have now killed our preacher or not, we may never know. They may have taken him only for questioning and later on may let him go. We surely pray that this might be so. He is very frail in body; and it is doubtful if he can go far in the rigorous marching over the mountains, with the rains, the malaria and poor food his captivity will entail. Three months ago he had a terrible attack of malaria for two weeks, which made him go out of his mind for a short time, but he recovered and returned to his work against the advice of our doctors who prescribed a complete rest. Humanly speaking, the outlook for him now, if he is still alive, is bleak indeed . . . —Christian News Report.

EVANGELINE'S MONKEY

Evangeline Booth, when a little girl, had a pet monkey. One day she dressed the monkey in the uniform of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Booth was displeased. She hastily dressed the monkey. Little Evangeline couldn't understand. "Why did you dress the monkey?" she asked. "The monkey can't live the life!" said Mrs. Booth. "Christians can live the life through the power of God. Some of them don't, however."—Walter B. Knight.

SELECT CHRISTMAS PROGRAM MATERIALS

The following program material is especially selected for use during the Christmas season. It is now in stock and available for immediate shipment. Refer to catalogue for complete list of all program materials.

THE TOUCH OF HIS HAND

A Christmas Drama by Lucille R. Green

This is a play of four acts requiring 14 characters including the angel chorus. The staging and costuming are very simple. Performance time is approximately one hour to an hour and fifteen minutes.

"The Touch of His Hand" is a scripture-filled story of the birth of Christ, from the time just prior to the shepherd's scene on the hillside to King Herod's slaughtering of all the boy babies in Bethlehem.

THE CHRISTMAS HEART — NO GIFT IN RETURN

Two New Christmas Dramas in One Economical Booklet

The Christmas Heart by Elsie Duncan Yale is a playlet for five girls, in which the need of ridding the heart of all grudges and ill will, as preparation for the coming of Christ, is emphasized. Stage setting and costumes are simple and easily arranged.

No Gift in Return by Mattie B. Shannon is a drama for four young ladies and one "Little Girl."

Simple stage setting and easy to prepare costumes makes this an ideal "easy" presentation.

The time is Christmas Eve of the present and the scene is a den with a table, two large chairs and stool.

Carollers sing in the background. Gifts with Christmas trimmings lend color.

THE ANGELIC SONG

A Christmas Drama by

Mattie B. Shannon

"The Angelic Song," requiring eight characters and a chorus, tells in an interesting and dramatic way the influence an old Christmas carol had in a home where a father and son had quarrelled.

The arrangement of this Christmas drama makes for a minimum number of rehearsals.

THE HIGHEST GIFT

A Christmas Play by Carolyn Clifton Dain

A play for intermediate and senior young people (7 characters) requiring about one hour. Properties consist of an angel costume, cards and letters, suitcases, sewing basket, hand sweeper, copy of the poem, newspaper, sofa pillows, and packages.

EACH OF ABOVE BOOKLETS PRICED AT 50c EACH

Order from THE FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS

P. O. Box 158

Ayden, N. C.

the Free Will Baptist

Ayden, North Carolina, Wednesday, December 14, 1960

DURHAM UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
DEC 14 1960
DURHAM, N. C.

FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH and PARSONAGE

Saratoga, North Carolina

The Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church has many things for which to thank God. Organized about 1850, it has served the Saratoga community faithfully for these many years.

On this past Thanksgiving night, the church had a mortgage-burning service, denoting that the church is free from all indebtedness.

The pastor is the Rev. Fred Powers. (For other information about the church, see the feature article on the history of the church and the News Note section of this issue.)

EDITORIAL

WHAT IS THAT TO THEE?

Every Christian has his place and walk in life. Not every Christian, however, finds this walk and place in his life. Quite often we see those who drift aimlessly, with little or no purpose and goal. On the other hand, there are hundreds and thousands of Christians who have found their purpose, and by God's grace they are endeavoring to serve Him in their life's work.

Our day is a day of mass communication. We quickly learn about other people and the things which take place in their lives. Instead of this communication resulting in the satisfaction of man's curiosity, it has made him even more curious.

Curiosity is good within itself, for it is a means whereby man seeks to learn the answers to the problems of life; however, it may be taken out of its rightful place to become a monster of meddlesomeness. It may pry into another's life and purpose, and the one who is guilty of such curiosity thus becomes overcritical and intent on tending to another's business and life. It is then an evil desire to probe. The overcurious person's attention is drawn away from what relates to himself and his own true welfare, and he is usually drawn into a pattern of gossip and even slander of that which another person does.

Chapter 20 of John's Gospel contains an interesting account of an incident in the life of Simon Peter. "Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, . . . Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do? Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me" (Vv. 20-22). At the time of this instance, Peter had not quite found his place of consecration in the work of the Kingdom, and it happened just after Jesus had told him to feed His sheep; therefore, he should have known that his question concerning John was completely out of place and unjustifiable.

In reality, Jesus' answer to Simon was a rebuke of his curiosity. Jesus had already told him to follow, but Simon turned and saw John, and therefore he wanted to know what John was going to do. "Is John going to follow You?" he might have asked. He forgot that Christ's call is a personal call, and no one else can answer for the other fellow's responsibility. In essence, Jesus said, "If I want John to tarry until I come back, what difference does it make with you, for I have told you to follow Me. What John does, at the present time, is none of your business." Thus, Jesus' answer was very emphatic and very just.

It is best for every man to remember his own personal responsibilities before he seeks to look after another's. If this plan is followed, there will be little or no time to inquire about John's responsibilities. A man may choose to be a missionary when others wonder why he made such a decision. It is not ours to wonder why, but it is our duty to accept him and that which he does as being his lot in life.

It would be impossible to list even a representative number of man's personal responsibilities in life, but there are at least three which seem to be all-inclusive; that they are basic in everyone's life.

To begin with, man has the responsibility of caring for his own. In other words, he has his family or loved ones. Christ left His mother in the hands of John, His beloved disciple. It is a sin for a man to neglect the God has given. In doing this, man has to labor for food, clothing, and shelter. Very few have these things handed down to them on a silver platter. If the means of livelihood cannot be carried on in the name of Jesus, and without His divine approval, then another means should be sought. This responsibility is great, but if God leads, the needs will be met.

Next, there is the responsibility of being something to someone. No man can serve God who lives to himself. In order to serve God, we must serve others. Service to others is not a bed of roses. The true servant may be called upon to sacrifice some time which denies him of some of his personal interests. In serving Christ, we must lose ourselves in service to others.

Last of all, there is our responsibility to God, our Maker, and Christ, our Saviour. Another man cannot change our responsibility. He may fulfill it for us, but we must give an account for our failure.

Let every man remember that the case of others is in the hands of divine wisdom, and that God's name will be glorified. Christ rebuked Peter. How many Christians today could be rebuked for the same reason? Jesus says, "Follow Me." May we not bother to look around out of curiosity at another, but may we answer His call, personally.

Volume 75

Number

December 14, 1960

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

C. H. OVERMAN, Editor

Edited and published weekly by the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C., approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, The Free Will Baptist is entered at the post office, Ayden, N. C., as second-class mail matter.

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor six days prior to the publication date of that issue.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

6 Months $
1 Year

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor of The Free Will Baptist. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or to the person sending it in.

The Free Will Baptist Press

N. BRUCE BARROW Mana
C. H. OVERMAN Editor of Literat
LEON DUNN Treas

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

R. N. Hinnant Presid
W. L. Jernigan Vice-Presid
J. W. Alford Secret
Owen Thomas Assistant Secret

J. O. Fort, S. A. Smith and Hubert Burress

What If It Were Today?

by Mrs. Chassie Wells Rowe

JUST RECENTLY one Sunday morning, this question, "What if it were today?" was so clearly brought before me. For much prayer and thought, I have desired to share my thoughts and meditation with you as readers of our Free Will Baptist paper.

On this particular Sunday morning, the teacher of the Sunday school class of which I am a member, was called away before the lesson for Sunday school, on account of a sudden death in her family early that morning. She sent word for someone to please take her place, since she would not be able to be there. Several contacts were made among different members, but it seemed that none were prepared to teach the lesson. I came here that I, too, was among that number that was unprepared. We were all unprepared. Finally one agreed to do her part, and thank the Lord she did a wonderful job. That very day, I asked myself the question, "What would have happened if the Lord had come that very day? How would he have found us? I hang my head in shame as I thought of this, and unprepared, I myself, would have been. Sometimes I feel that we are tried by Him to see if we are prepared or preparing. I can say but a few would be prepared for His coming. We, no doubt, would have to say, "I'm not prepared today, just wait a moment longer please, Jesus."

During these days of turmoil and strife, it seems to me that we do not take the time to even think of the One that holds the future in His hands. Sometimes we fail to realize that there will be one day when we shall have to stand before the great Judge. Like every other gift, we would recognize our time from God. We know that Paul warns us that the "time is short and that the night is at hand when no man can work." In Ephesians, Chapter 5, verses 15-17, we find these words, "See that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time, because the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is."

We all understand that time is so short and precious and that time waits for no man. What we leave undone here on this earth will never be done by us nor by others, and we alone, can only do what the Lord Jesus Christ left for us to do.

What are we doing with our time? Are we making good use of our time in preparing ourselves and others for the great judgment day? Seems that we are striving more for material things and wealth than we are for the spiritual welfare of our souls. We take the time to feed our bodies the food they need physically, but we don't take the time to feed our souls the spiritual food that they need. Spiritual food can be put off. All too often we find excuses not to feed upon spiritual food. Spiritual food is so badly needed today among all of us. How I long to see an old-time revival among us!

Everyone stays in a hurry these days trying to accumulate wealth and fame. We think if we can leave our children wealth and material things, then that is sufficient. So often we neglect to show our children the plan of salvation. Righteousness is far greater than riches. Wealth, fame, and the things of the world will never get us to heaven. Wealth is good and if the Lord blesses one to have wealth, then we certainly should not let that become between us and the Lord. If the Lord does bless us with wealth and fame, certainly we should use it for His good.

How dare us as God's children to waste our time, doing nothing for the Lord. Just think of the many, yes, thousands, that idle their time away in the pursuit of worldly pleasures and profit, when God is robbed of their time, talent and energy.

So many times we go to Sunday school without even knowing what our lesson is about. We don't take the time to study God's Word, we are unprepared. Maybe we'll say that we didn't have time to study or prepare, but think, didn't we have the time, or didn't we just not use it for the purpose of studying God's Word. Excuses are so easy to find when it comes to doing things for the Lord. One of the most familiar, I think, is "I just don't have time, let someone else do it." There is coming a day when we'll be unable to find an excuse.

In these days when we hear war and rumors of war, we, as Christians, have no moments to throw away in seeking the salvation of a perishing world. To me it seems the fields are getting whiter and whiter for harvest, but the laborers still are so few. None of us are so weak, but that Jesus can use us. We so often neglect and put off for tomorrow what we can do today. Sometimes then it is too late.

We should ever remember that the time of Christ is at hand. There is going to be a second coming. We should be in a hurry to fulfill the great command of Christ. He is giving us time to prepare, but are we using that time wisely or foolishly? It is high time for us to awake out of our sleep and begin to prepare. If we don't prepare, I'm afraid He'll not give us extra time when He does come.

Who is prepared right at this moment? Here I am reminded of these verses of Scripture from Mark 13:31-33, "Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away. But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is."

We should take heed and if we are not prepared, let's begin to get prepared. Let us be busy for the Lord. Don't let the harvest fields spoil for the lack of laborers. Let us resolve to give him more of our time, talents and energy and get more prepared, so that we can say quickly, "Here Lord, am I, use me for thy good." And if it were today, He could say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Elder Joseph Parker Memorial Fund

The Historical Committee of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists has instigated, with the approval of the state convention, a plan to erect a suitable marker at the grave site of Elder and Mrs. Joseph Parker. The grave site is located about a half mile from Wheat Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, Pitt County, North Carolina. The death of Elder Parker was about the year 1791. He was one of those earlier Free Will Baptists who stood firm for the cause of our denomination.

The marker is to be financed through the contributions from churches, church groups or individuals. An honor roll list has been started. Those groups, or individuals, sending in as much as $5.00 will be listed on the honor roll. Contributions of less than $5.00 will be applied. They are to be sent to the Rev. Hubert Burress, Pinetops, North Carolina.

The present honor roll is as follows:

Rev. J. C. Griffin $5.00
(Continued on Page Five)

History of the Saratoga, N. C. Free Will Baptist Church

ABOUT the year, 1850, there was a Free Will Baptist church in the Saratoga Community known as "Pleasant Hill Meeting House," located on a farm now owned by R. F. Speight on Highway 222, between Saratoga and the Pitt County line. Rumor has it that the building had become dilapidated and was in dire need of repair. By mutual consent, it was decided that two churches would best serve the scattered congregation and glorify God. So the old Pleasant Hill Meeting House was left to moulder and decay, while those who had found and worshiped the Saviour there, became charter members of the newly organized churches of Saratoga and Aspen Grove.

A triangular one-half acre lot in the village of Saratoga was purchased from Sally and Samuel Applewhite. The land was deeded to the church trustees, Cofield Strickland and Charles J. Moore. The purchase price was $6.00. The deed was recorded in the Wilson County Courthouse in Book 6, Page 375, on October 15, 1872. A small frame sanctuary, approximately 24 x 24 feet, was erected on this property and was known as Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church.

At the meeting of the North Carolina General Conference of Free Will Baptists in 1873, at Union Grove Church in Wayne County, B. H. Boykin made a motion that the conference admit the church at Saratoga in Wilson County, into the conference; the motion carried. The same year, a neighboring church, Howell Swamp in Greene County, was admitted to the conference. The Saratoga Church reported a membership of 90.

By the time of the meeting of the conference in 1887, Saratoga had grown to 190 members. The highest membership was reached in 1908 when she reported 280 members. At about that time, almost every quarterly conference listed some members as excommunicated, for such things as disorderly walk, drinking too much, or dancing in the ballroom. Quite often at the next quarterly conference, the church found those excommunicated ones returning, repentant, forgiven, and reinstated on the church roll.

Then, too, several other churches drew on the Saratoga congregation for members. Around 1884, Spring Branch Church was organized and drew several of its charter members from the Saratoga Church. Some left Saratoga around 1894 to organize Good News Christian Advent Church, and again in 1912 or 1913, several members withdrew to become charter members of the Saratoga Disciples of Christ Church.

Since its organization, Saratoga Church has played an active part in denominational affairs. She entertained the Central Conference in 1897, 1908, and 1941. The Fourth Union Meeting of the Central Conference was organized in this church in June of 1902. Several of her members served as officers of the union; such as the Revs. D. A. Windham, Reddin Proctor, and Hubert Burress. Even before the Fourth Union was organized, the minutes show that Saratoga was sending delegates to other unions. Records as early as 1909 show Saratoga Church making gifts to Eureka College at Ayden, North Carolina. According to her minutes in 1896, she was giving to a fund for old retired ministers. Ever since its beginning, the church has supported the Children's Home at Middlesex.

The church is proud of the fact that several young men have been called into the ministry from her membership. Some of these are the Revs. T. J. Moore and D. A. Windham, who were ordained in 1905; R. C. Proctor, who was ordained in 1923; and Hubert Burress, who was ordained in 1950.

Sometime about 1895, the congregation began to realize that a larger sanctuary was needed in which to worship. Available information does not give the exact date the second structure was built, but it must have been before 1899, because the minutes of March, 1899, say: "It was moved and carried that the treasurer pay all money in his hand to the building committee for the indebtedness of building the church." That building was one of the nicest rural churches in eastern North Carolina. Its high-arched ceiling, well-proportioned entrance and steeple, and its gothic windows were of a simple beauty that stirred one's heart to worship. At two intervals, Sunday school rooms were added which made the building a "T" shape. By 1950, the building was needing repairs. The roof leaked, the floor was badly worn and the pews sagged. After much talk, prayer and fasting, a renovation program was begun on January 15, 1955. The first service held in the renovated building on June 19, 1955. During that five-months period, Saratoga Church members had seen the church roofless and torn almost to the ground; but hearts swelled with love and pride and prayers of thanksgiving were offered on that Sunday in June when the congregation saw her brick-veneered exterior, stained-glass windows, central heating system, hardwood floors, ten Sunday school rooms and a pastor's study. The very simplicity of her sanctuary seemed to fill one with reverence for God. There had been $30,000 along with blood, sweat and tears. The church was still more than $2,000 in debt, but the Lord still performed miracles, and by September of 1956, members of the congregation bowed their heads in a dedicatory prayer led by the Rev. Hubert Burress, a young minister who had gone out from Saratoga Church to preach the gospel. Saratoga Church was out of debt and the church had not been neglected. She stood ready to fill her place in God's service.

As early as 1902, a Sunday school was in progress and the woman's auxiliary organized in May of 1929. An ill-league operated for awhile during World War 2 years, but had to be disbanded. The present league was organized in 1948, and in 1953 the Go-Tell auxiliary came into being.

Many devout and Christlike men have served the Saratoga Church as pastor since its origin in 1872. Until January of 1955, most of these lived in other places and came to the community one week-end month to preach. In January of 1947, the church, in quarterly conference, voted to have services two Sundays a month instead of one. In November of 1956, the church went on full-time services. It was until September of 1949, that the building and lot next to the church were bought from Mrs. Edna Ellis for a parsonage. Rev. R. H. Jackson moved in and at that time the congregation has learned the value of a resident pastor. It is true that Revs. E. B. Joyner and W. L. Jermon (continued on page five)

The Blessedness of A Good Woman

by Walter E. Isehour

ONE of the most wonderful statements concerning a good and noble woman recorded in Acts 9:36: "Now there, was at Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas: she was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did."

Dorcas was taken sick and died, and her body was laid in an upper chamber. The disciples at Joppa, hearing that Peter was at Lydda, sent for him to come. We realize that when death enters into a home, a community, no one can comfort and soothe so much as a man or woman of God. No doubt Peter made his way at once to Joppa to meet the sorrowing loved ones, friends and neighbors. They took him to the upper chamber to look upon the face of Dorcas, beautiful and calm in death.

When the bereaved and sorrowing gathered around Peter and Dorcas. "... all the women stood by him weeping, and shewing coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them. But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed, and turning him to the body said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes: when she saw Peter, she sat up. And he laid her his hand, and lifted her up, and when he had called the saints and widows, he presented her alive. And it was known throughout all Joppa; and many believed in the Lord" (Acts 9:39-42).

What a marvelous blessing to a Godly woman is to a home, a church, a community, a country! Dorcas was such a woman. She loved the Lord, loved her people, loved the saints, loved the widows, and no doubt loved everybody. There was no enmity, no hatred, no worldliness, no jealousy and selfishness about her. Her hands were clean, her heart was pure, and her life was an open book. She did nothing for show and for praise. She harbored no hypocrisy within. Naturally we would think of Dorcas as being a noble woman—a kind, gentle, sweet-tempered, helpful, blessed, Christian woman. Peter would not have prayed her back to life. We are not told that she was a woman of fame and great renown; not a woman who stood in the higher brackets of society; not a woman who was popular with the world; not a woman of wealth; not a woman in some great reformation. She was just a common, sweet Christian woman who was a blessing to those about her. She was a seamstress; her hands were busy making coats and garments for widows and maybe fatherless children. She was loved because she loved others and served. This is true of every Godly, noble, industrious Christian woman.

Although Dorcas lived almost two thousand years ago, yet the story of her life lives on. No doubt thousands of girls have been named after her across the centuries. A woman should be noble, good and Christlike for mothers to name their baby girls after her; Godly parents do not choose the name of a slattern, an adulteress, nor a proud, overbearing, society-wrecking, frolicking, dancing person. Women who are a curse to their homes through drunkenness, debauchery, gossip, cursing, laziness and sinfulness are not worthy of namesakes. No country rises up and calls them blessed after they are gone. In fact, their going is a blessing, rather than their living, as the country is thus relieved of their wretched leadership. But, oh, what about their lost souls and those whom they have influenced? It is indeed something to think about.

How our nation today needs Godly, prayerful, industrious, helpful wives and mothers! How our churches need noble Christian women who give themselves to prayer and good works! How we need girls and women who adorn themselves in modest apparel, and whose lives and influence lead and point Godward and heavenward! Our country is suffering for lack of just such women and girls—ladies and leaders among men. Every girl and woman in our schools today, who have our children under their care as they begin an education, ought to be prayerful and Godly, thus wielding an influence over the boys and girls in their early years that may help them to be noble and great and good in after years, when they become citizens and leaders.

So far as I know, no country and nation ever rises higher than its womanhood. If the masses of women live on a low plane, then the men of that country and nation live likewise. Then we realize that this places a tremendous responsibility upon the women of a nation. Morally and spiritually, women are mighty leaders of men, whether it be downward or upward. Oh, that we had millions of women today with the spirit and influence of Dorcas, and with hands busy for God and mankind! Surely the trend of the times would start upward rather than continue downward. With millions of Godly, prayerful, noble, industrious women, we would see a different country and a different world. Dear woman, will you be one of them?

History of the Saratoga, N. C., Free Will Baptist Church

(continued from page four)

lived in Saratoga while preaching there, but they resided in rented houses. The parsonage was old when it was bought, and although minor repairs were made, it was far from adequate. In June of 1957, a committee of three was named to inspect the house and recommend to the church whether repairs should be made or a new building constructed. The majority report was to repair and the minority report to build. During the ensuing discussion, a motion was made and passed to build. A committee consisting of Preston Proctor, chairman; the Rev. Adam Scott, vice-chairman; Willie Owens, George Welton, Robert Bynum, Mrs. Edna Ellis with Mrs. Adam Scott, secretary-treasurer, was named. This committee was asked to select a floor plan, direct the building, and plan ways and means of financing the building. The last week in March of 1958, the Rev. Adam Scott and family moved into the new brick, eight-room house. On the fifth Sunday in March, they held open house to which all friends of the church were invited. Upon completing the house, the church made a down payment of $2,500. The remainder of the cost was to be paid over a period of five years. Now, in November of 1960, the final payment has been remitted and the Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church gives God the glory.

Memorial Fund

(Continued from Page Three)

Rev. F. B. Cherry	5.00
Rev. Hubert Burress	5.00
Rev. C. L. Patrick	5.00
Rev. Michael Pelt	5.00
Rev. S. A. Smith	5.00
Rev. J. W. Everton	5.00
Central Conference of N. C.	50.00
Rev. Fred Powers	5.00
Little Creek Church	5.00

Other interested persons are urged to make their contribution as soon as possible.

NEWS NOTES

Thanksgiving and Mortgage-Burning Service at Saratoga Church

The Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church, Saratoga, North Carolina, was the scene of a special Thanksgiving and mortgage-burning service on Thanksgiving night.

This special service was opened with the congregation singing, "Praise Him! Praise Him!" The invocation was then prayed by Mrs. Paul Thigpen. The pastor, the Rev. Fred Powers, then directed the junior choir in singing "Come, Ye Thankful People." "The First Thanksgiving," an inspiring discourse, was presented by Miss Nancy Amer-son, after which everyone enjoyed a sing-spiration period. Mrs. Albert Proctor then gave a very informative review of the history of Saratoga Church.

Highlighting the service was the burn-ing of the parsonage mortgage by the pastor, Mr. Powers, Preston Proctor, trustee, and George Weldon, a member of the finance committee. United co-ordination between the finance committee, board of trustees and the pastor, caused this aspiration to materialize. Following the burning of the mortgage, the prayer of gratitude was prayed by Mrs. Proctor. During the evening, a Thanksgiving offering was received for the Central Conference Building, which is to be erected at the Children's Home, Middle-sex, North Carolina. Mrs. Clyde Cobb and Mrs. Robert Parker sang, "I bowed on My Knees and Cried Holy." The Thanksgiving message was delivered by the Rev. Ed. Miles, pastor of the Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Walstonburg, North Carolina. His message was centered on the ten lepers which Jesus healed. "What Do I Have to Be Thankful For?" and "How to Be Thank-ful" were the sermon topics. The service was concluded by singing "Count Your Blessings," and the benediction was prayed by Robert Bynum.

N. C. Superannuation Report for November

The following is the report of the Rev. Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer of the Board of Superannuation of North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptist for November 1960:

Receipts
Balance on Hand Nov. 1, 1960	$6,088.89
Regular Receipts for November	884.26
Offering Earmarked for Adopted Ministers and Minister's Widows	15.00
Check Returned Because of the Death of a Minister on the List	11.00
Total to Account For	$6,999.15
Disbursements
Minister's Monthly Checks	$226.00
Operating Expenses	33.94
Paid to National Board	85.03
Total Disbursements	344.97

Balance on Hand Dec. 1, 1960	$6,654.18
Receipts by Conferences
Albemarle	$144.68
Blue Ridge	27.98
Cape Fear	69.93
Central	254.23
Eastern	236.75
Piedmont	5.00
Western	160.69

Coming Events

December 25—Christmas Day
 January 25—Spring Semester Begins at Mount Olive College
 January 29-February 5—National Youth Week

N. C. Children's Home Report For November, 1960

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home Middlesex, North Carolina, reports following receipts for November, 1960. Receipts have been mailed to each individual, auxiliary, or organization contributing. Totals are shown here only from each conference for the period covered. The books and files are open at the home for inspection or checking for any particular receipt.

General Fund
Albemarle Conference	$ 773
Blue Ridge Association	99
Cape Fear Conference	1,190
Central Conference	5,016
Eastern Conference	3,260
French Broad Association	475
Jack's Creek Association	97
Mount Mitchell Association	11
Pee Dee Association	82
Piedmont Association	844
Rockfish Conference	106
Toe River Association	50
Western Conference	2,536
Western Yearly Association	12
Yadkin Valley Association	203
Farmer Picture Program	434
Miscellaneous	1,695

Kitchen Fund
Eastern Conference	5
Western Conference	10
Miscellaneous	17

Clothing Fund
Albemarle Conference	40
Cape Fear Conference	40
Central Conference	5
Western Conference	55

Boys' Cottage Fund
Albemarle Conference	23
Central Conference Building Fund
Central Conference	302
Miscellaneous	32

Total November Receipts $17,418

Charleston, S. C., Church Experiences Year of Growth

The First Free Will Baptist Church Charleston, South Carolina, has experienced a remarkable year of growth. Under leadership of the Holy Spirit and the past the Rev. Noah Brown, all auxiliaries of church have flourished.

Church membership for the year shows an increase of 51. These additions practically doubled the original membership at the beginning of the church year in October, 1959.

The Sunday school increased by 173 during the year to bring the total members to 215. The Charleston church is very proud of the Sunday school and requests prayer from readers of "The Free Will

...tist" that the Sunday school will be more far-reaching during this church year and that tremendous gains for God's kingdom will be made.

The hard working ladies' auxiliary received new members during the year. This year of the church is the most industrious. The ladies' auxiliary has contributed considerable time and energy to the raising of funds for the church building program as well as supporting its own internal projects. Under the jurisdiction of the ladies' auxiliary has been organized a Y.P.A. This group is composed of about 16 wide awake, energetic teen-agers who are doing a marvelous job supporting their projects and activities.

The Y.P.A. also makes possible Christ-centered recreation for the young people of the church. This program has also been wonderfully blessed during the year.

Although listed last, the league is not inactivity. This is the fresh, evergreen of the church which strives to train, discipline and challenge Christ's workers. The league has increased greatly, also; but this organ is evidenced an especial need for more growth in membership, attendance, interest and sparkle. Please pray for the Charleston league that all these needs be met for God's glory.

God has tremendously blessed the financial program of the Charleston church during the past church year in which $10,942 was raised. Six classrooms and two rest rooms have been built. An additional lot, costing $10,000, was purchased, where eventually a sanctuary will be erected.

These are only a few examples of God's goodness and blessings to His children when they exercise faith and believe that God will do as He says in John 15:7, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall have what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."

Central Conference Ordaining Council Meets December 20

The Rev. D. W. Alexander, chairman of the Central Conference Ordaining Council for North Carolina, announces there will be a meeting of the council December 20, at 10 a. m., at The Free Will Baptist Press, Raleigh, North Carolina. He asks all interested persons to attend.

Successful Revival at Charleston, S. C., Church

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Charleston, South Carolina, has just closed a very successful revival which was held December 13-19, with the Rev. L. H. Clayton of Chester, South Carolina, as the evangelist. During the week, Mr. Clayton, assisted by the pastor, the Rev. Noah Brown, reached a considerable number of people through personal work, hospital visitation, etc.

"Mr. Clayton is presently in full-time evangelistic work, and it is a certainty that churches would be blessed in calling this man for evangelistic work or as a full-time pastor," states Mr. Brown.

New Free Will Baptist Bible Institute Being Established

The Florida State Association of Free Will Baptists, in its annual meeting in Jacksonville, Florida, November 4, 1960, approved plans for the establishment of a Bible Institute in Florida.

This institute will be located just south of Cottondale, Florida, on U. S. Highway 231, and will be called, "Florida Free Will Baptist Bible Institute." The board of directors are: Ernest Owen, Clyde Owen, Harold Harrison, Chester A. Huckaby, and Harvey Henderson. The board of directors appointed the Rev. Harold Harrison as the administrative dean, and the Rev. Clyde Owen as the secretary-treasurer; other officers and teachers will be appointed in the near future.

It is hoped that this institute will be opened for classes in the early part of 1961. The buildings and other facilities are being repaired, remodeled, and made ready for the opening.

For the time being, classes will be held at night, with no resident students. Subjects will be similar to those taught at Free Will Baptist College in Nashville, Tennessee.

Students are invited to enroll from Florida, South Alabama, and Southwest Georgia, or anywhere within driving distance. Those interested in further information concerning enrollment may write to the administrative dean, the Rev. Harold Harrison, Chipley, Florida.

National Superannuation Report for October

The following is the financial report of the National Superannuation Board of Free Will Baptists for the month ended November 30, 1960, as submitted by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. K. V. Shutes:

Cash on Hand, Nov. 1, 1960 $4,185.54

Receipts

Co-Operative Plan:

Alabama	$ 3.82
Arizona	.81
Arkansas	18.34
California	25.41
Florida	23.07
Georgia	19.67
Illinois	28.61
Missouri	44.61
North Carolina	7.48

New Mexico	6.27
Ohio	.09
Oklahoma	48.24
Tennessee	17.21
Texas	25.31
Virginia	2.94

From States:

Alabama	72.75
Georgia	18.89
North Carolina	200.97
South Carolina	77.79
Tennessee	8.67
Texas	2.70
Virginia	5.60

Other Receipts:

From Insured on Premiums 189.91

Total Receipts $49.16

Total to Account For Disbursements $5,034.70

Ministers Life & Casualty

Union for Premiums

On Insured $428.77

Secretarial Service 60.00

Total Disbursements $ 488.77

Balance in Treasury, November 30, 1960 $4,545.93

Washington-Plymouth Y. F. C. Watch-Night Service

The Washington-Plymouth, North Carolina, Youth Rally will be held on December 31, 1960, at Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, Pinetown, North Carolina. The first service of the evening will begin at 7:45 with a singspiration service and special music by a quartet. The Rev. Herbert Bryan of Columbia will bring the message. The service will close at approximately 9:15, and refreshments will then be served at the community building next to the church.

At 9:45 the second service will begin which will consist of the showing of the film, "Martin Luther." This service will close at 12:00 midnight with prayer and a consecration service. The film is centered around the Protestant Reformation which was the spiritual revolution which changed the world.

The offering which shall be received will be applied to the support of the Albemarle Conference Missions.

Someone has said there are three classes of people: the wills, the won'ts and the can'ts. The first accomplish everything, the second oppose everything, and the third fails in everything. To which class do you belong?

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: I have heard much of the fallen angels recently. Can you tell me what the Bible teaches concerning them?—A. G. K., Illinois.

Answer: Among the several passages to be found in the Bible that speak of these once happy and obedient creatures that are now the alert enemies of God, the following gives some of the most definite information. "For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment" (2 Peter 2: 4); "And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day" (Jude 6).

The general opinion found depicted in books on theology and doctrine is that these creatures, having a terrestrial abode prior to that terrible catastrophic, fell when Satan did because they joined him in the terrible rebellion whose events are recorded in sacred history. It is also generally thought that these who are now fallen angels, at least part of them, were in some way inferior to and subject to Lucifer, the mighty angel that by transgression fell from his lofty position and in that transgression and fall became Satan and the devil. It seems that Lucifer and, of course, these other fallen angels were not only seeking to gain God's position in the place of theirs, but that they also sought worship. We do not know all the facts concerning the sin, all its implications and all accompanying events. Just what we read in the Bible is all we dare assert. "Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels" (Matthew 25:41). This verse indicates that Satan and fallen angels are and shall be associated together. (Read Isaiah 14:4-23; Ezekiel 28:11-23; Daniel 10:13.) Notice that in the ninth and tenth chapters of Daniel, the prince of the king of Persia, the king of Tyre in Isaiah and Ezekiel and other heathen kings in other passages are identified with Satan. This, of course, can mean no other than the fact that whereas God has appointed Michael the archangel to exercise watch care over Israel, His chosen people, Satan has followers in the angelic host that exercise control over the heathen nations. "Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience" (Ephesians 2:2). Compare, "But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days: but, lo, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I remained there with the kings of Persia" (Daniel 10: 13). The prince of the powers of the air in Ephesians 2:2, and the prince of Persia in Daniel 10:13 seem to be one and the same from the context of both. It occurs that this being of power has quite extended territory in which to carry out his opposition to God and all that is good, even to that which pertains unto us who are here on the earth. (Compare Luke 16:22, 23 with Job 1 and 2.)

In Luke 16:22 it seems that an escort of angels was necessary to take the Godly man from the Satan-controlled earth to Paradise; but in Verse 23, where the rich man who goes to hell is discussed, no host of heaven is necessary, for God does not dispatch help to those who cast their lot with the devil and his angels. They are those born only into the natural realm. Those who have been born from above and go to be with the Lord need an escort of heavenly beings to assure them safe conduct to heaven against these opposers.

In Job, Satan met with God when and where (the sons of God) the angels met. Job was the object of God's pride and commendation, but at the same time the object of Satan's dirty work and wrath. That is why God in His Word forewarns us that all who live Godly must suffer persecutions. Jesus made it clear that Satanic forces would treat His followers, the Church, as they had treated Him. So it seems that Satan and all the other fallen angels spend all their time in an effort to destroy God's children or at least to render them useless.

Question: Who were the compilers of the Old Testament?—June Roberts.

Answer: We have no such information from the Bible; however, tradition tells us that Ezra and a group of men known as the Great Synagogue that were devout Jewish leaders compiled the Old Testament. It is a fact, we know that Moses wrote put all the books of the Pentateuch, the first five books of the canon, in the ark of the ark under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. The books are often designated other parts of the Bible as the Law. Before Moses died, he wrote saying God instructed him to place the book of the law by the side of the ark of the covenant, (not inside the ark of the covenant as it is stated in our authorized version). "And it came to pass, when Moses made an end of writing the words of the law in a book, until they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites, to take the ark of the covenant of Jehovah saying, Take this book of the law, and put it by the side of the ark of the covenant of Jehovah your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee" (Deuteronomy 31:24-26, R. V.). The Ten Commandments were placed inside the ark, but scrolls of parchment, or vellum, upon which the books of the Bible were written, were kept in the Holy of Holies by the side of the ark of the covenant. Later while Israel was swallowed up in apostasy, the long lost Scriptures were found in Greece, were read and explained to the people in a public gathering. As the books of Scripture were written, they were placed beside the ark with the first five books Moses had written. Then it was written by Ezra and his company of devout Jews known as the Great Synagogue compiled and placed their approval of the whole Old Testament. It is without question that we assert that God overruled the work just as He had controlled by inspiration the work of those who did the writing. There is no question in my mind but that God guided the arrangement in original order, the order in which the Jews kept their Old Testament; and certainly our Lord when He here acknowledged the Old Testament we have it in the Hebrew and in the translation Greek.

Thankfulness for a Thorn

George Matheson, the well-known preacher of Scotland, now with the Lord, says: "My God, I have never thanked Thee for my thorn; I have thanked Thee a thousand times for my roses, but never once for my thorn; I have been looking forward to a world where I shall get compensation for my cross as itself a present glory. Teach me the glory of my cross; teach me the value of my thorn. Show me that I have climbed the path of pain. Show me that my tears have made my rainbow."—Monthly.

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

N. C. Woman's Auxiliary Treasurer's Report

Mrs. Raymond T. Sasser, treasurer of the North Carolina Woman's Auxiliary Convention, reports as follows for the second quarter, September 1, 1960 through November 30, 1960:

	Balance Brought Forward	Received This Quarter	Disbursed This Quarter
Home Missions, General Fund	$	$ 210.41	$ 210.41
Home Missions, Special:
Alaska, General Fund		115.00	115.00
Washer and Dryer for Whalers		76.00	76.00
Maek Owens		5.00	5.00
Foreign Missions, General Fund		249.49	249.49
Foreign Missions, Special:
Tommy Willey Jr. (Cuba)		469.00	469.00
Bill Jones (Africa)		75.00	75.00
Anita Sparks		7.50	7.50
Carlisle Hanna		6.00	6.00
Bobby Aycock		88.23	88.23
Geraldine Waid		4.00	4.00
John Mochlmann		25.00	25.00
Free Will Baptist Bible College		70.93	70.93
Mount Olive Junior College		199.47	199.47
Terminations, General Fund		188.19	188.19
Terminations, Adopted Widows and Ministers	6.00	58.00	64.00
Cragmont Assembly, General Fund		60.43	60.43
Cragmont Assembly, Gift to Wootens		5.00	5.00
Laborer Band		165.24	165.24
Children's Home		168.60	168.60
NAC National Project, Auxiliaries	3.00	178.00	181.00
NAC National Project, G.T.A. and Y.P.A.	5.00	8.00	13.00
Membership Fees to Children's Home	25.00	75.00	100.00
Phyllis Loan Fund		75.68	75.68
Church Finance Association		8.00	8.00
for Mrs. Rhodes		5.20	5.20
District Conventions		10.00	10.00
Totals	$39.00	$2,588.37	$2,627.37
Summary
Balance in Bank End of First Quarter			$1,146.03
Receipts for Convention General Fund:
Per Capita Dues	$	2.40
For California Trip		76.00
Reimbursement		27.50
From Cragmont Woman's Conference		5.46
From Former Treasurer		19.00
General Donations		73.61
Total Receipts for General Funds			203.97
Receipts for Designated Denominational Enterprises			2,588.37
Total to Account For			$3,938.37
Checks Written for Denominational Enterprises		$2,627.37
Convention Expenses		276.58
Total Disbursements			2,903.95
Balance in Bank End of Second Quarter			$1,034.42
Convention Expenses
Treasurer's Salary and Expense		$ 62.58
General Design		10.00
Executive Committee Meeting		59.10
Field Worker		117.90
L. E. Ballard for "Look"		27.00
Total Convention Expenses			$276.58

Bridgeton Woman's Auxiliary Elects Officers

The following officers and chairmen were elected for the Woman's Auxiliary of the Bridgeton Free Will Baptist Church, Bridgeton, North Carolina, at a meeting held at the church Thursday night, December 1: Mrs. Mayhue Bennett, president; Mrs. Aldric Gaskins, vice-president; Mrs. Nelson Simpson, recording secretary; Mrs. Joe Hamilton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ed Horne, treasurer; Mrs. J. R. Bennett, enrollment; Mrs. Hugh Belangia, youth; Mrs. Charlie Jones, program-prayer; Mrs. James Turner, study course; Mrs. Grover Pate, Children's Home; Mrs. J. H. Oglesby, personal service; and Mrs. Dillon Gaskins and Mrs. Richard Bryan, circle chairmen.

Mrs. J. C. Griffin Jr. served as installing officer and Mrs. John Overman gave the prayer of dedication.

Mrs. Mayhue Bennett presided and Mrs. Lee Griffin gave the devotional, reading her Scripture lesson from the forty-fifth chapter of Isaiah. A program on missionary work in India was presented by Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Nelson Simpson gave a prayer.

Reports of committee chairmen were given and plans were made for one circle to meet during the day and one at night in the coming year. A hymn was sung and the meeting was closed with a prayer.

Gray Branch Church Organizes G.T.A.

A G.T.A. was organized Friday night, December 2, at the Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church near Deep Run, North Carolina, with sixteen enthusiastic children present.

The woman's auxiliary of the church is sponsoring this organization with Mrs. Pearl Smith, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Mildred Cauley and Mr. Durwod Merritt of the brotherhood.

The meeting got under way with group singing and prayer by Mr. Merritt.

The election of officers began with Mrs. Smith explaining the duties of each officer and emphasizing the importance of selecting the person most capable of the job. The following were elected: President, Donna Dunn; vice-president, Roy Farmer; secretary-treasurer, Charles Merritt; program chairman, Debra Smith; song leader, Betty Jo Farmer; pianist and personal service chairman, Sheila Humphrey; social chairman, Joan Humphrey.

The group will meet twice each month and climax each quarter with a social event.

(Continued on page fourteen)

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

Columbia, S. C., Church Faces Crisis

The Original Free Will Baptists of Columbia, South Carolina, are facing a crisis in establishing a growing work in the state's capital city.

An option has been taken on a fine location for a new church, but a deadline for closing the deal with $5,000 is Christmas Eve. The work is in the status of a mission under the auspices of the State Home Missions Board.

The property had a $15,500 price tag on it at the start but the owner cut this by $3,000 for the church, thus making the sale price $12,500. Equity of $5,000 is wanted and the church currently has been able to raise about $1,000.

A piece of property now owned by the organization is up for sale and should clear, after clearing indebtedness, about another $1,000.

The Rev. David Hutchinson, currently serving as director of the mission under the mission board, requests Free Will Baptists everywhere to: (1) Pray that sufficient money will be made available through sale of the property and donations to close the deal within the time allotted; and (2) give generously toward this cause if you have some of God's money you feel you'd like to put into a worthy project.

There are about 150 Free Will Baptists in Columbia, but because of a poor location and lack of leadership, the work has been stagnated.

Since the work became a mission in September, 1960, by the discontinuance of the former church organization, attendance has been running between 30 and 50 with a spurt of new interest. Offerings, which have gone into the Home Missions fund out of which salary and expenses have been paid, have averaged during the three months about $200.

Pledges have been made by families primarily interested in the relocation and organization of a sound Columbia Free Will Baptist Church total well above $200 a month.

If the $5,000 can be obtained and the property is transferred to the Free Will Baptist Home Missions Board of South Carolina, then the monthly payment of $60 has been pledged by one of the church families.

"This is an extreme challenge not only to Free Will Baptists in this state, but everywhere," Brother Hutchinson said. "We feel that it will go a long way to adding prestige to our denomination and serve a very needed area with the gospel of Christ. Pray over this matter and then act according to God's direction."

Local prayer meetings will be held almost nightly until the deadline and the people in the mission feel that God will not let them down. They also have faith in the people of their denomination.

"This may be the need for which you might place your Christmas offering either as an individual or a church organization," officials say.

New Mission at Weldon

The new Free Will Baptist Mission at Weldon, North Carolina, had its opening Sunday, November 27, with the Rev.

Charles Keith in charge. The mission located in the Greene Building in the center of Weldon.

The work in Weldon began last spring when the Rev. L. E. Ballard, field secretary of the State Sunday School Convention, assisted by Mr. Thomas Sorie of the Dawson Grove Church, made a survey of the town and began services on Friday evenings at homes. The results of these meetings encouraged the Rev. Charles Keith of Weldon, chairman of the Central Conference Mission Board, and other members of the board, to carry on the services, changing them to Thursday nights for the convenience of some of the interested people. In the meantime, Mr. Keith kept looking for a place for temporary headquarters, but with little success until the last of November when the present hall was secured.

For the time being, regular services will be held in the mission on Thursday nights at 7:30 and on Sunday afternoons at 2:30 p. m., with the Rev. Nathan Eason of Scotland Neck in charge. Mr. Eason will devote two days each week to visiting in the community, and hopes to find more people soon as there are enough to justify it. Rev. Ballard, the State Sunday School field secretary, will organize a Sunday school, according to the plans. People who know Free Will Baptists in the vicinity of Weldon, North Carolina, are asked to contact Mr. Nathan Eason, Scotland Neck, North Carolina.

A NEW SERVICE FOR OUR READERS

The Gift Certificate below is for the convenience of those wishing to give Christian books to friends at this season. Simply fill out the blank mail to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C., enclosing amount you wish to give, and a beautiful Gift Certificate will be forwarded to done named on coupon below. This will save your time, expense and trouble of selecting, wrapping and mailing gifts. Any amount from $3.00 up may be given. Remember, send coupon to Press; the Press will forward you Gift Certificate to the recipient you have named.

GIFT CERTIFICATE

GOOD ONLY AT

FREE WILL BAPTIST PRESS, AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA

Good for $_____ in Merchandise at Free Will Baptist Press.

A GIFT TO:

Name _____

Address _____

PRESENTED BY:

Name _____

Address _____

$_____ Give Christian Books $_____

NOTES AND QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

A REQUEST

A few days ago, one of my friends said, "Mr. Griffin, I want you to have a book published containing Notes and Quotes for the past several years." My answer, "I would be happy to grant your request, but I would like a lot of money to perform the work." I have Free Will Baptist Notes, week by week, with a few missing, for the past thirty years. But if I were able to publish such a book, it might not fit the fancy of the public and I would have a lot of books on my hands that would be good to me, nor perhaps, to anyone else. If my friends would back me on the publication, I would be glad to publish the book requested, for the glory of God. Not for myself, but for Him who I have served for the past years; for I have never received one dollar for Notes and Quotes; thanks be to God, I have never been deviously criticized.

MINISTER'S BULLETIN

Bulletins are great little periodicals that help to keep the members of a church informed as to what is to be and that which has been; and to inform the members and the friends of both pastor and church as to the needs of the church and the community.

It also gives the pastor or minister the opportunity to lash out at those with whom they may disagree, but in general, most of the bulletins are used for the promotion of the local church and its various departments. A lot of these bulletins are sent free to those admired by the editor, and those who are not so highly esteemed. These bulletins from far and near, some of them I read, some of them go directly to the wastebasket, especially when I am busy and do not have time to even read that which I subscribe to and pay for. I am always happy to receive bulletins that are up-to-date, righteously and are sent out for a purpose, but when it is an axe to grind, something that carries a note of envy, destructive criticism, or something that lifts the sender above others, or a maligning and smearing nature, I rather devote my time to reading my Bible, league and Sunday school literature than to waste my time reading something that does not make me rejoice in soul. If your bulletins exalt Jesus Christ and promote peace and happiness without condemning everyone to the flames of hell who differ with you in your philosophy, I rather that you would keep your bulletin within your own work; for I am saved and know it and I have not a mind of my own. Paul said, "Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves. . . . Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 2:3, 5).

As mentioned in former writings: Christ prayed, "Father forgive them." Stephen said, "Lay not this sin to their charge." But we human beings hold malice, and take revenge against others with whom we disagree. We rather defame in many instances than to forgive. It is a crude illustration, but I heard when I was a boy, "You kill my cat, and I'll kill your dog." That is, you do me wrong, and I'll pay you back, forgetting that the Bible says, "Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, the Lord shall judge his people" (Hebrews 10:30).

DO NOT TELL ME THE FAULTS OF YOUR CHURCH

When I was in the evangelistic field back in the twenties, when I reached a church for a series of meetings, very often I would say to the pastor, "If you have trouble or strife in your church, or that which is contrary to the teachings of Christ, do not tell me about these problems, for I want the Holy Spirit to be free in revealing them to me, so that I will not be hemmed in by knowing these things." It is harder to preach to a man knowing that someone has told you of his faults, than it is to not know them and be led by the Holy Spirit to preach against these things, when some has said to you, "Mr. John Doe is guilty of doing so and so, and I want you to hit him hard." I have found pastors that wanted the evangelist to give them a boost and to hit a deacon. I always would hit the deacon who was not a deacon in the spirit, but never was much for boosting preachers that I did not know very well. You better know what you are saying when you talk. One time I was boosting a church official while talking to the nephew of this man. The nephew spoke up and said, "Preacher, you don't know what you are talking about." I hushed, I did not want to know more.

THE HOLY SPIRIT WILL TELL HOW TO PREACH

Jesus said, ". . . the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you" (John 14:26).

All the information that I need to preach can be found by a perfect yielding to Him. He will guide you in all truth. I do not believe that the Holy Spirit will guide any man to take the advantage of his pulpit to lambaste those whom he does not agree with. The pulpit is a place to exhort believers to righteousness and to exalt Jesus Christ. Paul said, "Preach the Word." If we preach the Word, we will preach Christ. It is written, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God" (John 1:1, 2).

Truthfully, we cannot preach God without preaching Christ, and we cannot preach Christ without preaching the Holy Spirit. For God the Father and God the Son (Jesus Christ) and the Holy Ghost cannot be separated. We cannot have one without the other. If we are possessed by one, we are possessed by all. Don't let the theology of man fool you these Three are One. "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one" (1 John 5:7).

THE LAW OF LOVE CONCERNING THINGS

The apostle, Paul, tells us how to deal with those who are weak. "Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations. For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him; Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand" (Romans 14:1-4). Paul would not judge a weak brother, and forbid others to do it. But people today are great judges, especially in things that have nothing to do with salvation. We strain at gnats and swallow camels. Nothing bores me more than for a man or woman to have nothing to talk about but the faults of others.

A good brother told me sometime back that in their church they had a young preacher to conduct their revival meeting; however, it turned out to be a protracted meeting. "Well," this brother said, "five sermons out of seven were largely against the use of tobacco." Now I do not use the weed in any way, and would be happy if all preachers, especially, would not use it. Thank God I do not want it. I can use that which it would cost me for missions, Christian education and other worthwhile services to God. Amen. But I do not believe its use will condemn the user to the flames of hell-fire. I have never seen the preacher who condemns people to hell refuse to take the money that it sold for out of the farmer's hand.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

Jimmy Learns a Lesson

by Maynard Good

THE sun had been up for two hours when Jimmy awoke. He was half ashamed for being a sleepyhead when there was only one more day of vacation left. Because of a teacher's convention the pupils were given two days of vacation, and already one day was gone. The day before, Jim's friend Donald and he had planned a camping trip by the river with strict commands to stay off the river. This, however, put a new idea into their young adventurous minds.

Donald had suggested building a raft. It would be great sport, for they had never tried anything like that before. Donald's brother could go, too, since there was not much to do at home.

An hour and a half later Donald and Jimmy, along with their two younger brothers and two neighbor boys, started for the river with a full load. In their wagon they had a pound of hamburger, four large potatoes, two loaves of bread, cookies, a frying pan, some salt, and a few forks. But under all this lay the forbidden hatchet and sixty feet of new rope, neatly coiled to keep it hidden better. They also had about a pound and a half of spikes.

"Won't this be great?" cried Jimmy. "Just think of all the fun we will have telling the other fellows about this? I even know where there's an island that we can go to when we get the raft made." He had visions of a large solid craft with long sweeping oars to propel it, and a long sweep for a steering oar, and catwalks to help pole the raft against the current as the need arose.

"And we can hide it some place and keep it for a diving raft next summer," said Donald.

"Maybe we could charge admission for the other fellows to come and see it?" chimed little Bill, Jimmy's brother.

The two older boys laughed loudly at the very thought of this. Suddenly Donald became serious. "Listen, don't you tell a single soul about this raft or we will make it hot for you. See!"

Little Bill quaked in his boots, but answered bravely, "If you hurt me, I'll tell my mother, and besides I'll make Jimmy beat you up and he can do it, too, 'cause

I saw him do it once down in the pasture."

"Oh, come, come, fellows, let's have a little more harmony in the crowd! We are almost there and we want to have co-operation from all of you, and we can't unless we are all on friendly terms. And, Billy, don't take Don seriously; he was only teasing."

A half hour later the boys were hard at work. Jim and Donald had the smaller boys do all the extra running and the things that they did not want to do themselves. Just before dinner the mighty raft was finished, but what a strange looking raft! However, it looked wonderful to the six fellows who had given three hours of hard work to see it finished and ready to be launched.

"Isn't she a beauty!" exclaimed Donald. "What do you say we launch this raft right away and take our food and everything over to the island to eat? It would be a lot more fun than eating on the mainland."

"No," objected Jimmy. "I would rather eat dry food than things that have been soaked in the river for a while. I don't think we should launch it until we've had our dinner." No one said a thing. "What do you say, fellows, let's eat dinner right now? I'll fry the potatoes. Where is the skillet?"

After peeling and slicing the potatoes, they were ready to begin. Soon their dinner, which consisted of burnt hamburgers and half-raw potatoes, was ready. After they had finished the meal, they washed their dishes in the river.

"What do you say we launch this raft right away?" cried Donald, who was always ready to do something and then think afterward.

"No, we have to make plans so that we'll know just what to do at the right time," replied Jimmy. "I'll be the first one to take it over to the island just to test it. You fellows hang onto the rope to pull me back in case all doesn't go well."

About forty feet of swift river had to be crossed before the far bank would be reached, and he wanted to be sure that he was not left to drift down the river on a cruise all his own. He knew that he must go very slowly in order to be able to cross at all. After a short argument it was decided that Jimmy was right. He should be the one to go across first. The launching proceeded, but rather slowly. The raft was a dead weight for the six small fellows to shove into the water. After fifteen minutes of struggling the raft was in water and many none-too-solid pieces started to float away. It was a triangular affair with three main logs, and some smaller poles for flooring. Jimmy eyed the thing heartedly. It was bobbing up and down like a cork only not nearly so lightly. When he stepped on it, it nearly submerged. He was glad that he had on his high-top boots. He even began to wish that he had insisted that he be first. However, wishing to be called a sissy, he held his head high and decided to shove off.

"Hand me that pole, Billy," he cried. "Just call me Huck Finn!" and a mighty cheer went up as he left the bank. After about five minutes of deft poling, Jimmy reached the shore of the island. Quickly he looked the island over and started back. The trip back was much easier because he had to do was keep the raft from going too far downstream.

"It was wonderful, fellows; honest it was just as safe as a cradle, and we can have more fun on that island than we can have over here. Don, let's go back and take turns taking these boys over." Jimmy was excited and eager for adventure.

When the two boys stepped on the raft it almost submerged completely. Each boy on high boots and heavy jackets. They had an eight-foot pole for steering. Leaving their lives in the hands of the young fellows on the bank did not appeal to Jimmy so much. Just as he was thinking about it the raft started to go down stream with decided force. With an anxious gasp he looked toward the distant shore. The raft had slipped from their companions' hands and they were stupefied to silence. The quick-thinking Jimmy pulled his pole out of the water and shoved it down between the logs for flooring.

"Don, brace yourself," he cried. "We're going to stop."

The raft rocked crazily as there was much weight on it and when Jimmy shoved his pole to the bottom of the river there was a violent lurch which nearly cost him his footing. To his dismay there was a terrific splash and Don was overboard gasping and struggling.

"Swim! Swim!" screamed the help Jimmy. But his only reply was a desperate look from his friend. Through all the excitement he had lost his hold on the pole.

(continued on page thirteen)

(continued from page twelve)

held the raft in midstream, and now as once more caught in the current of terrible river. Jimmy spent the next minutes in a wild ride that seemed to last forever, and when at last he floated to the shore under a low-hanging tree he was glad to catch a stout branch and hang on while the raft went on down the stream. It crashed to pieces against a rock in the middle of the river. Hurriedly he climbed the bank and ran wildly upstream to help his mother if there was a chance. About half an hour later he came upon his chum just dragging himself from the river, soaked and very tired and exhausted.

"Are you all right, Don?" cried Jimmy. "Hurry back and get those wet clothes off. We have to go home dry or there'll be trouble."

On their arrival at the camp site, they saw their small brothers crying and the two boys trying to stop them.

"K.," yelled Jimmy, "you boys quit crying, and you two help me get wood and make a fire big enough to dry Don's clothes."

For two hours they waved the clothes beneath the campfire until it looked like they were making smoke signals. It was a group of red-looking boys that trooped home at night smelling very smokey, but that didn't matter much. When Mother would hear they smelled so smokey they could hear her. The wind blew the smoke on us all.

The boys were just walking in the woods when Jimmy said to Bill, "Remember your word to anyone. I'll do all the talking."

"Did you have a good time today, boys?" asked their mother.

"Yes," replied Jimmy. "It got rather hot in the afternoon and we had to stay close to the fire about all the time. But we had fun."

Jimmy's conscience bothered him all evening so much that he could hardly sleep and he never once looked his father straight in the eye.

That night just before he went to bed he had a guilty feeling when he prayed. As Mother tucked his brother in for the night she noticed that he was crying. "Why are you crying, little Bill?" she asked.

"I—I'm not crying," replied Billy. "It's just the smoke."

Their mother had not left the room for more than five minutes when Billy was at Mother's bedside and whispered in Jimmy's ear.

"Let's go and tell Mother all about to-day. I don't feel right, and I can't sleep." "No," said Jimmy. "Do you think I should let Father to give me a good whipping?"

Go to bed and keep quiet."

In ten minutes Billy was back and said, "Jimmy, if you don't go with me to tell Mother, I'll go myself."

Jimmy did not say a thing but silently got up and took Billy's hand and went to his mother's room. There they told their story of the near tragedy.

"And just think, Don might have been drowned," said Jimmy in a hushed voice.

So the two boys asked their heavenly Father to forgive them for their disobedience.—Words of Cheer.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Mrs. Rena H. Hines

On March 17, 1960, just as the sun was making its way down, God called mother home to be with Him. She had been in ill health for nearly three years. She had been a subscriber to "The Free Will Baptist" for 50 years. She loved her church and attended as long as she was able. We miss her so much, but we know she is at rest with her Lord.

She is survived by her husband, six children, fifteen grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, two brothers, and two sisters.

Her daughter,
Niva Tolley

THE MAIL BOX

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

"This is a form letter being written to all my friends, publishers, and correspondents informing them of a change in my address.

"My present address is Box 325, Selma, North Carolina; my new address will be 601 Buckley Street, Flat River, Missouri, telephone GE 1-3235. This change is effective beginning December 26, 1960.

"This change of address is due to a change of pastorates from the Free Will Baptist Church, Selma, North Carolina, to the Fellowship Free Will Baptist Church, Flat River, Missouri."—Rev. James Earl Raper.

ENJOYS NOTES AND QUOTES

"Enclosed is $1.00 for which please send me The Free Will Baptist for six months.

"I have been borrowing my friend's paper for sometime, but I decided I wanted one of my own because I enjoy reading it so much. Especially do I enjoy Notes and Quotes by Brother J. C. Griffin. I think he is a wonderful Christian. I even reread a lot of the things of interest; well all of it is interesting.

"I am a true Free Will Baptist, have been for 55 years."—Mrs. Dora Joyner, 18-C Few Gardens, Durham, North Carolina.

APPRECIATES PAPER

"This is to thank you for printing previous articles pertaining to the First Free Will Baptist Church, Charleston, South Carolina.

"The Free Will Baptist is better than ever, and we are very pleased that such a denominational magazine is available. I greatly appreciate the articles which referred to the recent presidential election. I passed on a few copies to a friend who remarked favorably about the well-taken facts in the articles and the absence of hysterics in presenting the facts.

"Attached are two articles which relate to the Charleston church. We hope you will print all or most all of the information."—Mrs. Betty White, 2124 Barbour Avenue, Oakland, Charleston, South Carolina.

APPRECIATES PAPER—WANTS TO HEAR EXPLANATION

"Enclosed is a check for $4.00, for two years' subscription to The Free Will Baptist paper. I appreciate the labors of the staff there and the printed page. . . . I hope and pray that it can present the truth always, and can be instrumental in keeping our denomination united in Christ Jesus. . . . I appreciate very much Brother J. C. Griffin's writings and the editorials and every item written for construction. May the Lord bless and direct each one of you in your undertakings and decisions.

I wish you could, if time permits, write an article on our colleges and what each is striving to do and the needs of each; with clear understanding of the accreditation of each and what it means to the students. . . . I hope this explanation can and will soon appear, so our readers can see the truth of the situation as written by one who knows and gives an impartial truth. I hope you can write such or get someone to do so. The Lord's blessings upon you in this holiday season."—Mrs. E. G. Foreman, Route 4, Washington, North Carolina.

RAISES QUESTION CONCERNING VIOLATION OF EDITORIAL POLICY

"After reading this week's issue of The Free Will Baptist, I wondered what had happened to the much publicized editorial policy that we heard so much about several months ago? Does it exist for all, or for certain situations and conditions. If it still exists, it has most assuredly been violated! If personalities were not dealt with, names called, etc., then I don't know what you would call it. I imagine a few more noticed and remembered too."—Rev. George Lee, Route 4, Durham, North Carolina.

(The particular issue in question was that of November 30. The article was, "Officials Issue Statement Concerning Lawsuit." We have written to Brother Lee, stating that we have not violated our editorial policy. In publishing the above-mentioned article, we feel that we were rendering a service to our people, and some of those who had requested such information as the article contained. The Free Will Baptist is for Free Will Baptists, and we intend to keep it so.—Editor.)

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

*Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light
unto my path (PSALM 119:105).*

DAILY WITH GOD—AND FOREVER

"O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles" (Psalm 43:5).

"In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also" (John 14:2, 3).

For our devotional meditations this week, I want to give you two beautiful poems, which I think are very appropriate for this season, and which teach beautifully the truths of the two texts given above; for if we permit God to lead us daily in this life we have the assurance that we will be with Him forever.

JUST AS GOD LEADS

Just as God leads me I would go;
I would not ask to choose my way;
Content with what He will bestow,
Assured He does not wish me stray.
So, as He leads, my path I make,
And step by step I gladly take—
A child, in Him confiding.

Just as God leads I am content;
I rest me calmly in His hands;
That which He has decreed and sent—
That which His will for me commands—
I would that He should all fulfill,
That I should do His gracious will
In living or in dying.

Just as God leads, I all resign;
I trust me to my Father's will;
When reason's rays deceptive shine,
His counsel would I yet fulfill;
That which His love ordained as right
Before He brought me to the right
My all to Him resigning.

Just as God leads me, I abide
In faith, in hope, in suffering true;
His strength is ever by my side—
Can aught my hold on Him undo?

I hold me firm in patience, knowing
That God my life is still bestowing—
The best in kindness sending.

Just as God leads I onward go,
Out amid thorns and brics keen;
God does not yet His guidance show—
But in the end it shall be seen.
How, by a loving Father's will,
Faithful and true, He leads me still.
And so my heart is resting.

—Anon.

And then another poet has very aptly and beautifully expressed what should be every Christian's attitude toward the end of this life and the immediate entrance into the blessed realities of the next.

ACCORDING TO THY WILL

If I were told that I must die to-morrow,
That the next sun
Which sinks should bear me past all fear and sorrow
For any one,
All the fight fought, all the short journey through,
What should I do?

I do not think that I should shrink or falter,
But just go on
Doing my work, nor change nor seek to alter
Aught that is gone;
But rise, and move, and love, and smile,
and pray
For one more day.

And lying down at night, for a last sleeping
Say in that ear
Which harkens e'er, "Lord, within Thy keeping,
How should I fear?
And when to-morrow brings Thee nearer still,
Do Thou Thy will."

I might not sleep for awe; but peaceful,
tender,
My soul would lie
All night long; and when the morning splendor
Flashed o'er the sky,
I think that I could smile—could calmly say,
"It is His day."

But if a wondrous hand from the blue yonder
Held out a scroll
On which my life was writ, and I with wonder Beheld unroll
To a long century's end its mystic clew—
What should I do?

What could I do, O blessed Guide and Master!
Other than this,
Still to go as now, not slower, faster,

Nor fear to miss
The road, although so very long it be,
While led by Thee?

Step by step, feeling Thee close beside
Although unseen;
Through thorns, through flowers, whet
the tempest hide Thee
Or heavens serene,
Assured Thy faithfulness cannot betray,
Thy love decay.

I may not know, my God; no hand reveal
Thy counsels wise;
Along the path no deepening shade
stealth;
No voice replies
To all my questioning thought the
to tell,
And it is well.

Let me keep on, abiding and unfearing
Thy will always;
Through a long century's ripe fruition
Or a short day's;
Thou canst not come too soon; and I wait
If Thou come late!

—Susan Coolidge

"Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not" (Luke 12:40).

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from Page Nine)

Mrs. Smith asks everyone to remember this group in prayer, that their enthusiasm may remain, and they be successful in attaining a richer and fuller Christian life through these means.

Any child, twelve years and under, is welcome to participate. Over twelve, you are invited to the Y.P.A. of the church.

Saving the Clothes

Someone has illustrated the value of a soul with a modern parable in this striking manner:

A householder took a trip into a foreign country and left with his servant a child and the child's clothes. After awhile the man returned and the servant said to him "Sir, here are all the child's clothes. They are in excellent condition—clean, and mended, and pressed. But as for the child, we know not where it is."

So in the last day someone will say, "Lord, here is my body. I have neglected nothing that belongs to it. It is strong, and well, and beautiful. But as for my soul, I have lost it."—The Presbyterian.

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

The Greatest Gift

(Lesson for December 25)

Text: Luke 2:8-20

Text: 2 Corinthians 9:15

INTRODUCTION

The story of Jesus is one that we should grow tired of hearing or telling. His life, His atoning death, His resurrection and His spiritual High Priesthood in our behalf, together with His promise to come again for His own at the end of the age, surely is a wonderful story that we should be willing to tell to the ends of the earth. It is a story which has brought joy to millions down throughout the centuries. It is a story which frees the sinner from the grips of Satan's power, frees the heathen witch doctor in the power of heathenism from the power of evil spirits; it is a story which brings a shout of joy from the hearts of those who receive it, and it brings a smile to the hearts of those who have accepted it.

When you plan for Christmas Day, please remember the real purpose and meaning of the celebration. Remember that there are many who cannot recognize the true import of this day because they have never admitted their all to this Saviour; they have never accepted this greatest Gift of God.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

POINTS THAT HELP

Our lesson is God's gift of love and peace with the eighth verse, but most students will want to review the first seven verses as a foundation for the wonderful story.

Dr. Luke was the one scientist of the Gospel writers. According to present-day notions, he would be the one to question the manner in which this gift of love was given; but he is the one who gives the most details. Unless Jesus was born of the virgin as the Bible says, the story of redemption according to the Bible falls flat.—The Standard Commentary.

God sent a special messenger to reveal the full import of the birth of Christ (Vv. 1-8).

Angels proclaimed Christ's birth and announce His return, but they cannot not preach the gospel (Vv. 9-11).

4. All heaven rejoiced when God became flesh, yet only a few men took notice (Vv. 8-14).

5. God was greatly humbled as a human Babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger (Vs. 12).

6. The hosannas of the heavenly host still hover over a sinful world (Vv. 13, 14).

7. The correct order is: (1) Glory to God; (2) peace on earth; (3) good will among men. We often reverse it (Vs. 14).

8. The shepherds saw, heard, believed, investigated, and then testified (Vv. 8-17).

9. Many wondered at the message of the shepherds, but who believed? (Vs. 18).

10. It is a blessed practice to consider Christ in our hearts, as Mary did (Vs. 19).—The Bible Expositor.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Let us, first of all, recall the story of how Mary and Joseph came to be in Bethlehem. Caesar Augustus, the first Roman emperor, nephew and successor of Julius Caesar, issued a decree, or law, that all citizens under Roman rule should be enrolled so that they could be properly taxed. In our day, we would call it a census. As a result of Caesar's decree, Joseph, who was of the house and lineage of David, went from his home in Nazareth to Bethlehem to be enrolled. The records of the house and lineage of David were kept in that city; therefore, both Mary and Joseph went into the city. It was while they were there that the days were accomplished that the child should be born. The story of how Christ was born in a manger is familiar to Bible students. These things happened in fulfillment to prophecy and God's eternal plan that a Saviour would be born.—The Bible Student (F. W. B.).

2. No one can be certain on what date the Lord Jesus was born. As far back as the third century A. D., Christians celebrated January 6 as the birthday of Jesus. This date is called Old Christmas by many today. In the fourth century A. D., that date was replaced by the present date which is December 25. The new date had been used for many centuries the occasion of a pagan festival associated with the rebirth of some of the solar deities, or sun gods. But for our purposes, it is not the date that is important but the fact that Jesus our Lord was born, or that God took upon Himself the flesh of man and purchased our redemption on Calvary's Cross, by the sacrifice of Himself, and was raised from the tomb for our justification. This is indeed, the goodness of the good news which the angels announced to the shepherds that night.—The Bible Teacher (F. W. B.).

3. Angels had a great deal to do with the life and ministry of Jesus. It was an angel who informed Mary that she would be the mother of Jesus. The angel of the Lord announced His birth to the shepherds. The heavenly host sang the first Christmas carol (Luke 2:13). Angels ministered to the Master on the Mount of Temptation after He had turned the tempter aside. Angels announced His resurrection; and it was an angel who, at His ascension, announced that He would return to earth again (Acts 1:11). Paul tells us in 1 Thessalonians 4:16 that the archangel will announce His return to earth.

4. "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying" (Vs. 13). One angel made the announcement of the Saviour's birth, but a multitude of the heavenly host sang praises to God. This is the first Christmas carol, and is, perhaps, the origin of our carol singing at Christmastime.

5. There are three aspects of peace revealed in the Word of God: (1) There is peace with God (Romans 5:1). This is the reconciling work of Christ into which the sinner enters by faith. (2) There is the peace of God (Philippians 4:7). This is the inward feeling of assurance that comes as the result of peace with God. (3) There is peace on earth. This refers to the peace among those who have the Prince of Peace reigning in their hearts. Note that the last two come from the first. There can be no peace of God or peace among men until there is peace with God.—The Advanced Quarterly (F. W. B.).

6. Elimination Gone to Seed.—"Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, . . ." (Isaiah 9:7). The prominence of the word, less, during the past years, is interesting. There are smokeless powders, iceless refrigerators, fireless cookers, wireless telephony and telegraphy, hammerless guns, skidless tires, drugless method of healing, and other things. In religious things, we have a bloodless gospel, a spiritless ministry, and a powerless church. And now, a peaceless world tries to produce a warless world.—The S. S. Times.

"You cannot put things across by getting across."

N. C. SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS

Name	Address	Conference	Birthday
Rev. R. C. Alexander	Box 301, Robersonville, N. C.	Albemarle	Sept. 30, 18
Rev. Thomas F. Davenport	Rt. 1, Creswell, N. C.	Albemarle	Aug. 26, 18
Rev. W. H. Lancaster	208 W. Hancock St., Smithfield, N. C.	Cape Fear	Nov. 28, 18
Rev. D. A. Windham	1128 Evans St., Greenville, N. C.	Central	Nov. 7, 18
Rev. Howard Pipkin	Rt. 2, Mount Olive, N. C.	Eastern	Oct. 15, 18
Rev. B. F. Ringgold	Rt. 5, Box 97, New Bern, N. C.	Eastern	Aug. 22, 18
Rev. J. A. Collins	c/o James Collins, Rt. 4, Asheville, N. C.	French Broad	Jan. 6, 18
Rev. J. C. Franks	Rt. 1, Box 341, Black Mountain, N. C.	French Broad	Oct. 9, 18
Rev. N. H. English	Rt. 2, Hamlet, N. C.	Piedmont	April 12, 18
Rev. Paskel L. Coxey	220 S. Sycamore St., Charlotte, N. C.	Piedmont	Jan. 28, 18
Rev. J. W. Jones	Cramerton, N. C.	Piedmont	May 2, 18
Rev. C. W. Bennett	Box 29, E. Broad St., St. Pauls, N. C.	Rockfish	March 29, 18
Rev. J. C. Rogers	107 Bluett Ave., Rockingham, N. C.	Rockfish	Feb. 9, 18
Rev. W. G. Pike	Rt. 3, Selma, N. C.	Western	Aug. 27, 18
Rev. W. G. Boykin	State Hospital, Raleigh, N. C.	Western	Oct. 10, 18
Rev. Barney Griffin	330 Vance Ave., Kannapolis, N. C.	Western	July 30, 18
Rev. M. L. Cummings	Wake County Home, Raleigh, N. C.	Western	June 2, 18
Rev. Wiley Ferrell	Rt. 3, Raleigh, N. C.	Western	Sept. 27, 18
Rev. G. C. Joyner	Rt. 3, Box 50-A, Smithfield, N. C.	Western	June 12, 18
Rev. Romie Mitchell	Rt. 2, Pikeville, N. C.	Western	Dec. 17, 18
Rev. Herman Wooten	Garner, N. C.	Cape Fear

N. C. SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS' WIDOWS

Name	Address	Conference	Birthday
Mrs. Nancy Laura Coates	514 Peace St., Raleigh, N. C.	Cape Fear	May 25, 18
Mrs. W. R. Glover	Box 408, Coats, N. C.	Cape Fear	Sept. 28, 18
Mrs. B. B. Richardson	801 N. Bloodworth St., Raleigh, N. C.	Cape Fear	Dec. 15, 18
Mrs. Almeda W. Phillips	Rt. 1, Tarboro, N. C.	Central	Dec. 3, 18
Mrs. M. A. Woodard	Winterville, N. C.	Central	June 5, 18
Mrs. W. A. Dail	Winterville, N. C.	Central	May 22, 18
Mrs. L. C. Garner	Newport, N. C.	Eastern	Oct. 22, 18
Mrs. May Rouse	Dudley, N. C.	Eastern	Feb. 12, 18
Mrs. Winifred Williams	c/o Thomas Cannon, Rt. 2, Box 340, Ayden, N. C.	Eastern	May 23, 18
Mrs. L. H. Wetherington	Box 902, New Bern, N. C.	Eastern	March 22, 18
Mrs. B. W. Wells	532 Contentnea Ave., New Bern, N. C.	Eastern	Dec. 24, 18
Mrs. J. R. Bennett	Bridgeton, N. C.	Eastern	May 23, 19
Mrs. R. C. Kennedy	1811 Durham St., New Bern, N. C.	Eastern	Nov. 4, 18
Mrs. Duffy Toler	131 N. Eastern St., Greenville, N. C.	Eastern	Feb. 8, 18
Mr. J. R. Forrest	305 Armstrong Ave., New Bern, N. C.	Eastern	March 28, 18
Mrs. B. E. Guthrie	Walnut, N. C.	French Broad	Sept. 29, 18
Mrs. A. G. Lowery	209 Hamby Dr., Marietta, Ga.	French Broad	Jan. 8, 18
Mrs. Mallie Rice	Rt. 5, Box 224, Marshall, N. C.	French Broad	July 15, 18
Mrs. Hardie Vaughn	105 Hazelmill Rd., Asheville, N. C.	French Broad	Nov. 3, 18
Mrs. Eva Gentry	Rt. 1, Box 510, Asheville, N. C.	French Broad	Oct. 12, 19
Mrs. Charles D. Wheeler	Box 195, Ridgecrest, N. C.	French Broad	May 13, 19
Mrs. H. C. Adeox	Box 202, Bladenboro, N. C.	Pee Dee	Jan. 9, 19
Mrs. Julia Wilson Snyder	Box 166 (Erlanger Sta.), Lexington, N. C.	Piedmont	Aug. 25, 18
Mrs. Cornelia Bell Calvert	Box 224, N. Belmont, N. C.	Piedmont	March 14, 19
Mrs. Mary Joyner Parrish	Box 43, Elm City, N. C.	Western	Sept. 23, 19
Mrs. Ida O. Styron	Pine Level, N. C.	Western	July 31, 18
Mrs. Smithy Lancaster	Box 193, Fremont, N. C.	Western	Feb. 24, 18

the Free Will Baptist

AYDEN, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1960

LUOMA PHOTOS

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

DEC 22 1960

DURHAM, N. C.

D
S
77 Dec. 28

EDITORIAL

A SPECIAL SEASON

Why is Christmas a special time of the year? What makes the very attitude of everyone change so at this time of the year? Why do smiles grow broader and friendships fonder? Is it simply another December 25, or is it a special day which draws our attention to God and His Son, Christ Jesus?

Christmas has found its way into every nook and corner of American life. Business places remind us that Christmas is just around the corner, even weeks before the day arrives. Each little town and village becomes decorated with bright lights swaying across the streets.

It is true that there are many things which take place at this season of the year which should not be. Many will celebrate it in a spirit of revelry and ungodly conduct. Just as any other day of the year, many will celebrate Christmas Day in sin. For those people, it will be a special day, but it will not be special to the satisfaction of their heart and soul.

What really makes Christmas a special time of the year? For the answer, we only have to go back to that day in Bethlehem; there we see the joy and good will which came to earth. That same joy and good will has been magnified thousands upon thousands of times since that day in Bethlehem.

On that great night, God's angels admonished the shepherds to have no fear but to realize that the words spoken were words of joy and happiness. Also, all glory and praise belonged to God the Father. God hasn't changed, but man has, so far as his true devotion to Christ, and as a result other things have crowded into our hearts—driving out the true spirit of Christmas.

Christmas is a time of love and praise—love for God and His Son, Christ Jesus—praise to Him for His unspeakable Gift of salvation. At least this is what it should mean to the Christian. Gifts should be given because of love. Friends should be visited as motivated by love. This love should reach forth to all those whom we met. Jesus came because of God's great love for lost humanity; therefore, the least we can do is to manifest a degree of that same love in our own hearts and lives.

It should also be a time of unselfish devotion to God. This devotion can best be illustrated as we think of the unselfishness of the wise men who journeyed for miles to bring gifts to the Christ Child. From their example gifts are exchanged today. However, we have no record of their giving gifts to one another, but to Christ! Now what has happened to the gifts due Christ? Occasionally, we hear of some group or individual who presents a gift to the church or some sound charitable organization, and often this gift is equal to the amount given to all others. This is a good investment for anyone.

Next, it should be a time of peace and joy. The angels announced this peace as being on earth which was to come unto the hearts of men as a result of the birth of Christ. Nations, in general, have never been able to know real peace, but individuals in every nation where the gospel has been preached have known this peace. The gospel is not a social message, but a message of deliverance to individuals without Christ, which is the means by which societies are benefitted. It is a good time to remember that there can be no peace without the Prince of Peace.

There are many things about Christmas which make it wonderful; in fact, there are so many glorious things that there should never be time for the less glorious. The entire season is toned up to a joyous, bright occasion. Each year we hear the familiar Christmas carols sung over and over again and we never grow tired of them. The sidewalks in each town are busy with the hustle and bustle of the yuletide season. Little wonder that we await this season with great anticipation each year. It is a time of family reunions, when children return home from college or the armed services, when Grandmother and Grandfather expect to see their grandchildren again and may miss some of them for the first time.

If there are faults to be pointed out, let's not blame the season. Instead, let us blame ourselves for not allowing it to be the special day which God intended. Let's make it Christ centered.

Volume 75

Number 5

December 21, 1960

THE FREE WILL BAPTIST

C. H. OVERMAN, Editor

Edited and published weekly by the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C., and approved by the National Association of Free Will Baptists, The Free Will Baptist Press is entered at the post office, Ayden, N. C., as second-class mail matter.

All material to be placed in any issue must be in the hands of the editor six days prior to the publication date of that issue.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PAYABLE IN ADVANCE

6 Months $1.00
1 Year 2.00

The contents herein do not necessarily reflect the beliefs or policies of the editor of The Free Will Baptist. The responsibility for each article is given the person whose name appears under the title or to the person sending it in.

The Free Will Baptist Press

N. BRUCE BARROW Manager
C. H. OVERMAN Editor of Literature
LEON DUNN Treasurer

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

R. N. Hinnant President
W. L. Jernigan Vice-President
Owen Thomas Secretary
Hubert Burress Assistant Secretary

J. O. Fort, S. A. Smith and D. W. Hansley

God Was In Christ

(A Christmas Meditation)

THE fact that you are taking time to read a meditation on Christmas means that you are searching for the true significance of this festival. During this season when we should increase our Bible reading, we are confronted with more distractions than at any other time of the year. In these days surrounding the anniversary of Christ's birth when we should be spending long periods in spiritual meditation, unreasonable demands are made upon our time for trivial matters. The problems which confront us in these days of disorganized activity are not in the world about us but within us. True, the spirit of commercialism at Christmas is so thick that it is difficult to find the kernel of spiritual truth; nevertheless, no one forces us into this mad rush. We join the hectic crowds because we have a distorted sense of values. We search in vain for the magic formula that will solve our problems of giving and receiving.

We bruise ourselves and burden the postman in a frantic effort to overlook no postcard acquaintance with a Christmas card which we are too rushed to read. We crowd the church calendar with a super abundance of activities and then we feel too rushed to worship. Much like the ancient crowd that besieged Bethlehem, we force Christ to the edges of life. And it is just for this reason that one hears ever more frequently, "I will be glad when Christmas has come and gone."

CHRISTIAN SIDE OF CHRISTMAS

That there is another side to Christmas. It is not wrapped with gay-colored paper and fancy ribbons, but in swaddling clothes. It is not the rushing crowds that push and trample, but in a manger. It is not in the ringing of bells and the explosion of fireworks, but in a still small voice. It is not in the hustle and bustle of life, but in the turning and rest, quietness and confidence. It is not in wealth, but in service. This side of Christmas that never grows old nor wearisome.

The Apostle Paul states the true meaning of Christmas briefly and simply: ". . . God was in Christ, . . ." (2 Corinthians 5:19). What is the significance of this statement?

Christmas is an act of God. The coming of Jesus was not a human but a divine event. "Behold, a virgin shall be with child,

W. Burkette Raper, President
Mount Olive Junior College

and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us" (Matthew 1:23). Jesus was God incarnated (clothed) in human flesh.

Christmas is God in action. The miracle of the virgin birth means that the Babe of Bethlehem was not only the Son of man, but the Son of God as well. The Hebrew people, after years of foreign oppression and without a prophet, were beginning to feel that God had forgotten them. "But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, . . ." (Galatians 4:4).

We can make Christmas a holy day rather than a holiday if we will focus our attention upon what God is doing rather than upon our feverish activities. God is still at work in our world, and in the midst of all sickness and suffering, He loves us with a love that will not let us go. "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 8:38, 39).

2. Christmas brings redemption. "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins" (Matthew 1:21). From the first century until now the story of Jesus has been called the gospel, which literally means good news. Why is the account of Jesus' life good news? Because through Jesus, God is doing for us what we cannot do for ourselves: namely, redeeming us from our sins.

Sin is separation from God, and separation from God is death. But ". . . God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation" (2 Corinthians 5:19).

Through Jesus, who was both human and divine, ". . . God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

On Christmas, we experience the redemptive work of God. We, who were separated from God because of our sin, are restored to a right relationship with Him through Christ. Christmas is the story of how God came to man to make it possible for man to come to God. God took upon Himself the nature of man in order that man might partake of the nature of God.

Christmas began with the birth of a Child. One good thing about Christmas today is that it focuses our attention upon children and their faith. May this Christmas strengthen your faith in the sovereignty and love of God. May you see His hand at work in the world about you and may you experience His redeeming love in your heart.

Renewed at Christmas

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour

Faith should be renewed at Christmas

As we celebrate the birth
Of the Christ who came from heaven
To this dark, benighted earth,
For the purpose, great and wondrous,
Of redeeming fallen man,
Who was helpless, lost and dying
Out of God's good will and plan.

Hope should be renewed at Christmas

As we worship, pray and sing,
Looking upward to the Saviour
Who is Prince of Peace and King;
Who'll be coming for His children,
Maybe ere the day is done,
Or as evening shadows gather,
Or at morning's rising sun.

Love should be renewed at Christmas

For our Father on His throne,
Who so loved this world of sinners
As He heard them cry and moan;
That He sent His Son beloved
From His heaven grand and fair,
Who should die for our salvation
And to save us from despair.

Peace should be renewed at Christmas

With good will for all mankind,
And a generous heart and spirit
From the depth of soul and mind;
With good wishes for our loved ones,
For our neighbors and our friends,
And with sunny smiles and greetings
As true love and friendship blends.

Put The Real Jesus In Christmas

A Thought-Provoking Message from a Man Who Believes Christmas Should Be More Meaningful for the Christian in These Days

SCRIPTURE PASSAGE: "Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily. But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us. Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife: And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS" (Matthew 1:18-25).

TEXT: "... and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins" (Vs. 21).

JESUS, sweetest name on mortal tongue, Jesus sweetest carol ever sung, Jesus, blessed Jesus." Do you know that the unbelievers of this world have tried to outdo each other in their praise of Jesus? Pilate called Him the Man without fault. Napoleon spoke of Him as the Emperor of love. Diderot said he was unsurpassed. John Stewart Mill thought Him to be the Guide of all humanity. Theodore Parker proclaimed Him to be the youth with God in His heart. The greatest among the sons of men, comes from the pen of Renan.

This Christmas season, we will continue

by Rev. Charles Sapp

adding to their empty phrases our own. We will remember Him again amid the festivity of the Christmas season. We will sing carols that make Him so unreal that we miss the meaning of His solitary life. Jesus, the great ideal, as we have Him pictured; Jesus, wrapped in a gay package with bright ribbon; so unreal is the picture, we never really see Him. This Jesus we will tip our hats to with momentary recognition, but He is not the Jesus Christ of the Christian faith. He is another Jesus; a Jesus created by a society so indulged in itself, its wants, its lusts, it could not recognize Jesus if it would, and it would not if it could.

It seems that we must answer the questions involving His true identity for ourselves, or else we will continue to worship heathen shrines on the birth date of our Lord; or, like the people who lived in His day—the days of His earthly life—find ourselves believing in a Messiah our Lord refuses to be; or we will continue to profane His holiness by the wrong use of holy means; or continue to trade the Lord of life for a sentimental ideal we can manipulate for our own ends.

How can this be done? How can we recapture the unchanging Christ in the midst of the changing years? Is it possible? Yes, it is! Will He be the Christ for our day? Yes, He will! But if ye are to recognize Him, we must acquaint ourselves with the Jesus of history revealed in the Gospels. We must overlook some of the carols we sing about Him, and lose our thirst for material gifts. Then perhaps we shall see and recognize, accept and love the Ancient of Days who became the infant of days; Lord of all who became the servant of all and in that recognition, He will deliver from the confusion of our finitude.

WHO IS JESUS? THIS IS THE FIRST QUESTION WE NEED TO ASK

"Thou shalt call His name Jesus." is what the angel said to Joseph, the trothed of Mary, mother of Jesus. How common! It was a common name. Joseph of the Old Testament, and many before him, had this name. It is just as common as James, or Jack of the lips of modern day people. Jesus was a common name. He lived as a carpenter, a common tradesman. Most of His life was ordinary. Three years were spent as an itinerant preacher and when you have read the whole of His life, you are impressed that most people accepted Him as they commonly accept traveling preachers. Some of them did not, but the vast majority of the multitudes no earth shaking, soul-saving ministry was formed. He never did enough miracles to convince the multitude. "Those who accepted Him," Jesus said, "had special ears that could hear, and eyes that could see above the ordinary, and the multitude the Lord of Light and Life walking among men. For the most part, people were offended in Him. The offence began in His birth. We ought never to forget that.

When one takes seriously the Gospel he cannot fail to be impressed by the many occasions in which the people expressed their doubts as to who Jesus was. When the blind man, Jesus had healed on Sabbath Day, was questioned before the rulers of the people, they said to him "Moses we know, but we know not who this man is." There is again plenty of evidence in the writings of the Early Church that one of the first attacks on Jesus was made concerning the events surrounding His birth. Some did not want to rec-

His natural birth at all. The Docetics completely divorced Him from a natural birth and a natural life. You see, there was offence in the manner of His birth. Humanity does not like God's entrance in human life. It was too common—much like our own. Since that day, men have constructed at least three alternative views concerning it. They have either utterly idealized it, as we so often do, so as to soften its effects, and rob it of its human form; they have refused to recognize it at all. Like Marcion, the first heretic, they took it out of the Gospels, or refuse to recognize the birth narratives as Holy Scripture. Men have taken the holiness and the virginity of Mary to be a lie which the church has endeavored to cover up by inventing false stories.

We will not find the Jesus for whom we look in any of these ways. Until we have been made to see the humanity in which God invaded history, rather than the highly idealized and unrealistic views by which we are usually confronted; until we have unveiled the Christ who veiled Himself in human flesh, and see the humanity of God in the divine act, and the deity of God in the human event, we have not found Jesus—the Jesus we seek. For He, and only He, will save his people from their sins.

WHAT IS HIS MISSION? THE SECOND QUESTION WE NEED TO ASK

When we have grasped its conviction of all its stark reality (the conviction that God is clothed in human flesh); that Jesus is as fully human as fully divine, without mixture, fusion, or confusion; then we can begin to see the Christ who ought to be born at Christmas. There is a second aspect of His mission and character that more definitely sets Him over against the unreal and idealized Christ which so many give service to during this season. We must see it clearly, or we will not recognize the real Jesus. The new-born child in Bethlehem must be seen from the far side of the cross. Easter must be in Christmas, or there is no manger, swaddling clothes, or baby. This is simply to say that the incarnation, Cross, and resurrection are all one mighty act of God for the salvation of His people. The events of His earthly life throw their shadows both ways: back to the birth and forward to the Cross, filling in the meaning and making His transcendence immanent and His immanence transcendent. Do you see what I'm saying? I not, let me say it again. There can be no Christmas other than pagan festivity, without the salvation that comes with the Christ of Christmas.

He came to save His people from their sins. If we understand the Christ—that our sinfulness brought Him to us—much of the festivity of the season would be turned into prayer, and celebration into mourning. We like to condemn the Jews for not discerning the mission of Jesus, but we do practically the same thing. What difference is there in wanting to be saved from the cruelty of Rome, and the Christian who wants only deliverance from the penalty of sin? We are most concerned to be saved from hell, but my friend, that's not all Jesus came to save from—He will save His people from their sins.

We must think more of liberation from sin itself, and not so much from the penalty of sin. Salvation is not just an escape from impending suffering. Sin carries its own punishment. Sin is the punishment for sin, and the hell of all hells is the domin-

The Angels' Message

Carrie Judd Montgomery

"Peace on earth"—how strange the message
Listen to the sound of war,
To the noise of strife and conflict.
To the struggle evermore.

Do you wonder, weeping Christian,
Why the message seems in vain?
Why the gladsome Christmas chorus
Leaves on earth so much of pain?

"Peace on earth"—O doubting spirit,
Let your sad forebodings cease;
Jesus is the Overcomer,
Jesus is the Prince of Peace.

Though we see not all things conquered,
Yet our faith crowns Jesus now,
And His reign shall ne'er be over
Till each enemy shall bow.

Then the tide of Christmas blessing
Shall prevail the world around,
And the glory of Christ's Kingdom
Shall forevermore be found.

"Peace on earth"—how sweet the message
To the saddened, sorrowing earth!
Strife and tumult soon must vanish,
Joy and victory have their birth.

Sweet and sweeter grows the chorus!
Listen, then, O weary soul,
Till it penetrates thy darkness,
Fills with light, and makes thee whole.

To each heart that takes the message,
Even now its strife is o'er,
And it hears the angels' music
Swelling clearer evermore.

—Triumphs of Faith.

ion of sin. It is from this that Christ came to save.

A good pastor once called on a young lady who had fallen into the trap of sin. Her home was broken, her husband had left her, they had even taken her children from her. When the pastor pressed home to her the claims of Christ, she said: "But, I love a married man." Kindly, but firmly, he told her: "My dear, you'll just have to make up your mind. If you love him, you cannot love Christ." The curse of sin is more sin. Entangled in its web, we continue sinning until we are confirmed in it—and that, my friend, is hell in itself. The finally rebellious will go on rebelling against God. In such condition, the Bible offers no hope of redemption.

Someone says, "Oh yes, preacher, I know Jesus saves. I have friends who have been changed by His life. They lived lives of sin, but they are different now. I would like to be Christian. I would like to put the real Jesus into Christmas by receiving Him into my life! But how can this be done? I don't understand." The simple, but profound answer of Scripture is, believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved. Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. It can be put that simply. In Jesus there is the fully human; in the Son of God, there is the fully divine; and in Christ there is the Messiah—Saviour. But this must be more than an intellectual proposition, to which you have given mental assent. It must be something more than the formulation of an idea you can rattle off every time you run into trouble or difficulty. You can't tip your hat at Jesus and think nice thoughts, or mouth well chosen, but meaningless platitudes, and know Him. Trust in Christ is a whole soul matter; it is the dedication of a whole life; it is a full and unconditional surrender; it is a passionate commitment of life to Christ. It is a decisive act which settles the issues of time and eternity. But it is a decision that becomes every moment of every day. It is a renewal that continually renews. It is a way of life.

Let us take down the pagan shrines in which we have tried to worship an unreal Christ. He will not be worshiped by less than a whole life committal. Look around the hustle and bustle of the Christmas season, and find again (or for the first time whichever the case may be with you), the Christ; for a vital trust in the Saviour of sinners is nothing less than reconciliation to God through Christ. It is the touchstone of the Christian life and doctrine. We move from reconciliation to God to reconciliation with man. Thus He saves His people from their sins. As this happens, and only so, is the angel's pronouncement a reality—peace on earth, good will toward men.

NEWS AND NOTES

Of Denominational Interest

SPECIAL NOTICE NO FREE WILL BAPTIST DECEMBER 28, 1960

According to our established policy of omitting two issues of "The Free Will Baptist" each year, there will be no issue on December 28, 1960, as we publish only fifty copies per year.

Please note that you will not receive a copy of "The Free Will Baptist" for December 28.

Thank You.

Rev. Holliday Elected President Of S. C. State Convention

The man who took the helm of Free Will Baptist organization in South Carolina at its first session, 19 years ago, has been elected to serve as moderator of the South Carolina State Convention for the next two years.

The Rev. Louis A. Holliday of Manning, heads a list of newly elected officers in the convention. He was elected during the recent nineteenth annual session at Conway, South Carolina.

Mr. Holliday had been serving as director of the foreign missions board in the state work. The Rev. Bob Rogers of Darlington, was named to succeed him in this position.

The Rev. Julius Vause of Pamplico, succeeds the Rev. Clarence Lambert of Darlington, in heading the home missions board. Mr. Lambert resigned due to his health.

When Free Will Baptists reorganized into a state convention at Spartanburg in 1931, Mr. Holliday was elected moderator. Since that time he has served as moderator and in various official capacities in the state work and pastored several churches in the Manning-Lake City area of South Carolina.

With mission works currently going in Lake City and Columbia, Mr. Vause outlined before the convention a challenging program and climaxed by saying, "Give me $10,000 and we'll get some new churches organized in our state; but, without the support of the other churches, we can go nowhere."

Mr. Rogers accepted his post of duty and declared the 1960 goal of $10,000 for foreign missions in South Carolina, largest in history, is within sight. He, too, urged co-operation at the church level in supporting missions and missionaries.

Mountain Grove Master's Men Elects 1961 Officers

The Master's Men of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Mountain Grove, Missouri, met Monday evening, December 5, at the church for its monthly fellowship meeting and to elect officers for 1961. There were 16 members present.

A pot luck supper was served, after which the meeting was called to order by the acting president, Mr. Lyle Colson. The group sang, "There Is Power in the Blood," followed with prayer by Mr. Spig McCarty. This was followed with another song, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." An interesting talk on the duties of the pastor, taken from Romans, tenth chapter, was given by Mr. Spig McCarty.

Mr. Frannie Elloit, who recently returned from the hospital in West Plains, Missouri, gave a talk expressing his appreciation for the prayers, cards, letters and all the kind remembrances extended him while he was away.

The following officers were elected for 1961: President, Mr. Jesse Walker; vice-president, Mr. Frannie Elliot; second vice-president, Mr. Hulse Smith; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Rex Canterbury; choister, Mr. Glen Hunt; social activities chairman, Mr. Roy Elloit; publicity chairman, Mr. Homer Farra; pianist, Miss Linda Lee Dixon.

The meeting adjourned at 9:00 a. m. with benediction by Mr. Homer Farra.

Grace F. W. B. Church Announces Revival

The Grace Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina, announces a revival January 3, which will continue through January 15, 1961, with the Rev. Oliver B. Greene, Greenville, South Caro-

Coming Events

December 25—Christmas Day
January 25—Spring Semester Begins at Mount Olive College
January 29-February 5—National Youth Week

lina, as the evangelist. Services will be each evening at 7:45.

The church and pastor, the Rev. Ra. Kennedy, extends a cordial invitation everyone to attend these services.

Christmas Observance at Beaufort, N. C., Church

The Christmas season services began at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Beaufort, North Carolina, Sunday evening, December 18, with the choir presenting cantata, "Night of the Star," directed Mrs. Sid Willis, minister of music. During the service, an offering was laid on the altar in a special "Gift to Jesus" observance. This offering will be applied to the debt retirement fund as part of a drive to raise the remaining $2,120 debt of the church. The building program is to begin January 1, 1961, with the building of a large education building.

The second program of the Christmas season will be for the primary departing and will be presented December 23. This will be the annual Christmas tree night for the children. The pastor, the Rev. Ran Cox, invites the public to attend this program.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries, 150 words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each additional word should be enclosed in Postage Stamps in the letter with the obituary.

Obituaries and in memoriams of persons who have been dead a year or longer are not wanted for publication in THE FREE WILL BAPTIST.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, our loving, heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call from earth our brother, John Baldree, thirteenth member of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Pitt County, North Carolina, and it resolved:

First, that we humbly submit to the will of our heavenly Father;

Second, we extend our deepest sympathy to his family and trust they will turn to God and the church for consolation; and

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be recorded on our church records, a copy sent to his family and a copy sent to the Free Will Baptist paper for publication.

Mrs. W. E. Brister

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

The family of the late Rev. J. W. Alford wish to express their deep appreciation and sincere gratitude for the many kind expressions of sympathy received from their many friends during their recent bereavement.

Advent

James A. Evans, Minister,
First Free Will Baptist Church,
Bryan, Texas

WE NO LONGER treat Advent as a fasting time, but during it we think especially of the two comings (Advent means coming) of Jesus. The first is the coming of Jesus Christ, who is God the Son, to earth, sent by God the Father, to become human like ourselves, to teach us about God, and to die so that we can be forgiven our sins and be saved from the penalties of them.

The second is the time to which the Church looks forward, when Jesus shall come again to earth in His majesty as God the Son, to judge the living and all those who have died."

The first Advent is sufficiently plain though we may not always regard it as we should. The first Advent became a blessed time because of God's supreme love for His young children; coupled with the other fact that while man had the power to fall he could not rise up again. He could stray away from God, but could not return to Him; he was powerless to find Him again. Man could sin, but he could neither refrain from sinning or make atonement. So Jesus came to do what man in his helpless estate could not do for himself. Like the traveler in the parable, man lay helpless on the road of life, naked, wounded, half dead. There was no one to help. The priest and the Levite passed by. There was only one who had the power to raise up and heal. He was all the love too, and Jesus came as a Samaritan, the Friend of sinners, the Saviour of the world.

There is another Advent for which the Church is hoping, praying, watching. Will it come in the night or yet in the morning? Will it startle us in our sinning or surprise us in our worship, in our repentance, contrition, or yet come to us as a blessed relief from an environment of sin—come to us as freedom comes to the prisoner in his cell? We know not. We may ask, "What is the sign of His coming?" or, "When shall it be?" If we pass from that contemplation and consider that the real fact of Christ's coming lies in the time when God shall call us away from the sins of the earth, we shall find for everyone of us that the second Advent may be nearer than we think, near enough that surely none of us may ask, "Why does He tarry?" Therefore, it is the second Advent that may well concern us in this season. We should be as those who have all their life long been subject to bondage, and we should see to it that our lives are so ordered that not only death has no terror for us; but we should welcome the call. We shall rejoice to meet our Lord at His coming, for that will be His coming to meet us and to be joined to the loved ones who have gone before.

In closing, let us consider Romans 13:12-14: "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day: not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof."

So, being ever ready, we shall rejoice when He comes; and even now, if, in the spirit of real faith, we can accept the invitation, "Come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem."

Glory to God in The Highest

by Mamie Lee Rouse
Kinston, North Carolina

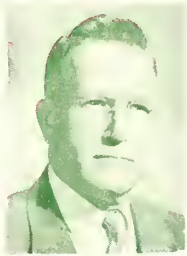

THESE wonderful words, sang by a heavenly choir over two thousand years ago, still awe the hearts of men everywhere. They rang out clearly over the Judæan hills as the shepherds were tending their flock. The sky became illuminated with a heavenly light, and the heavens were full of mighty anthems, sung by a full choir of God's angels. The shepherds were afraid at first, but then, a voice called to them to be not afraid. He was proclaiming to the world that a Saviour of men was born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. God, in His eternal glory, guided the star that shown so brightly over the manger where His Son lay wrapped in the swaddling clothes. Even the lowly cattle bowed in reverence as they stood around the Christ Child. A little Jewish girl, filled with the Holy Ghost, brought forth her first-born Son, and called His name, Jesus. God, in His almighty power, touched her body with power endued from on high, and caused conception, so that His Son would know the infirmities of us, His children in the flesh.

The star in the east gave out a brilliant light to guide men to His manger. The heavens opened up and showed the celestial realms of glory, to this human matter below. Today, we still feel the Spirit of a mighty God, when we hear choirs in our churches ring out the message of "Glory to God in the Highest." Our spines tingle with rapture, and our minds dwell on the presence of the everliving Father, who is mindful of our every thought.

Go back with me to that first Christmas, and follow with me through the winding streets of Bethlehem, to a lowly manger, and see the Son of God lying in a bed of straw. He did not come in pomp and riches, He came to us almost poverty stricken. The Scriptures tell us, as He had no where to lay His head. As we walk through the hay, we have to step aside for the cattle. They too share in this holy night. We see Mary and Joseph looking down at their little Baby with parental pride. A shining halo is framed above His tiny head. One of God's angels is hovering near to see that no harm becomes the little Baby. When we look in

His face, our eyes become misty with tears, and our hearts are gladdened by His image. He is God's own Son; come to a shattered and grief-torn world. He will have to have many knocks during His brief reign here below; yes, even we, His children, will spit on Him and place a cruel crown of thorns on His tender brow. We do not see that far in the future as we look upon His innocent body in the form of a precious baby, but He sees the distant shadow of a cross, as He lies in a crudely made manger. We humbly bow to our knees on this holy night, and promise to follow His teachings, and live daily by His doctrine. Yes, we promise so many things to Him, because we are still awed by the beautiful anthems the angel choirs sing, and still frightened by the brightness of the firmaments. If we would let Christ live from day to day in our hearts, instead of just at Christmastime, we would know the joyous feeling all through the year of "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, and good will to all men."

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
Swannanoa, N. C.

This word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

CHRISTMAS GIVING

This time of the year, the hearts of people are open wide for giving. Even those who think little about distributing gifts to the needy, are at this season ready to contribute something toward relieving the oppressed. Far too often, the personal exchange of gifts, is all that the sacred Christmas season means. To give and receive a present in return, is the spirit of the world, and not the Christian's giving of love gifts. It is more "blessed to give than to receive" is the rule our Lord Jesus practices.

Likely giving presents to one another became a custom when the "wise men" brought their treasures to the young Christ. "And when they had opened their treasures they presented unto Him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh" (Matthew 2:11). It behooves each one of us to examine ourselves, and know if we are offering our love and devotion to the Lord Jesus. He cherishes the best gifts of self and service we can give. Not a mere obligatory service, but glad, joyful rendering of heart and spirit. Did not God give His best Gift, for the sake of humanity?

You may not all be able to do something great in the eyes of man, or to give large gifts of money for some Christian cause. You always have the chance of sowing seeds of kindness; even your thoughtfulness, your love—those are Christmas gifts this day. A saint has written, "Give kindly words, not impatient ones; give happy greetings, not surly commonplaces; give cheerful answer, not a grudging growl; give thoughtful care, not careless indifference; give the story of your joys, not a rehearsal of your woes."

May we realize as never before that Christmas is the birthday of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. It should be a day set apart to honor the greatest Gift this world has ever known. The offering we should bring, which would please Him most of all, is our hearts. After that, we can feel at ease in giving Christian tokens of love to others. The born-again believer's greatest joy is in spending his life in the service of the Lord. The fragrance of a holy life, is a daily witness for Christ. "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable Gift."—Selected.

Subscription Honor Roll

Mrs. J. J. Blizzard, Deep Run, N. C.	4
Mrs. R. L. Goff, Fountain, N. C.	2
Wom. Aux., Marsh Swamp Church, Simms, N. C.	2
Mrs. C. F. Abrams, Macclesfield, N. C.	1
R. W. Allman, Benson, N. C.	1
M. B. Hutchinson, McArthur, Ohio	1
W. C. Hill, Mount Olive, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Mt. Zion Church, Nashville, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., White Oak Hill Church, Bailey, N. C.	1
Walter Sutton, Williamston, N. C.	1
William Webster, Pinetown, N. C.	1
C. L. Patrick, Walstonburg, N. C.	1
Mrs. Pearl Amon, Mount Olive, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Sarecta Church, Kenansville, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Gum Swamp Church, Greenville, N. C.	1
Dorcas E. Barrow, Vanceboro, N. C.	1
Jimmie Tyndall, Pink Hill, N. C.	1
J. C. Griffin, Bridgeton, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Little Creek Church, Ayden, N. C.	1
Mrs. J. W. Wilson, LaGrange, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Gethsemane Church, New Bern, N. C.	1
Mrs. Edgar Benton, Fremont, N. C.	1
Melvin K. Everington, Sims, N. C.	1
Mrs. Corbett Morris, Vanceboro, N. C.	1
Mrs. J. E. Smith, Deep Run, N. C.	1
Mrs. Kathleen Slade, Merritt, N. C.	1
Mrs. Martha M. Braxton, Winterville, N. C.	1
Charles Mason, Four Oaks, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Pine Level Church, Pine Level, N. C.	1
Mrs. E. B. Deans, Wilson, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Stoney Creek Church, Pikeville, N. C.	1
Mrs. J. R. Cayton, Aurora, N. C.	1
Master's Men, Cove City, N. C.	1
Mrs. Lester Mills, Greenville, N. C.	1
Mrs. C. M. Whaley, Richlands, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Bethlehem Church, Cuthbert, Ga.	1
Wom. Aux., Kinston Church, Kinston, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., St. Mary's Church, Lucama, N. C.	1
Wom. Aux., Moseley's Creek, Dover, N. C.	1
Mrs. C. F. Heath, Cove City, N. C.	1
Mrs. Ed Hill, Ayden, N. C.	1
Mrs. Marvin E. Little, Newport News, Va.	1
Mrs. C. H. Owens, Saratoga, N. C.	1

Woman's Auxiliary Department

MRS. ALICE E. LUPTON, New Bern, N. C., Editor

MRS. BRUCE BARROW, Ayden, N. C., Associate Editor

(NOTE: Please send all news items direct to The Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden, N. C.)

Y. P. A. Meets at Holly Springs Church

The Y. P. A. of Holly Springs Church, Holly, North Carolina, met in the home of Mrs. Namon Jones, December 11, having fourteen members and one visitor present. Two new members were also added to the

The topic of the lesson was, "Free Will Baptist Missions in Perspective." Those taking part on the program were Frances Weaver, Veria Johnson, Annie Lou Phillips, Brenda Smith and Diane Godwin. A beautiful prayer of dedication was offered by the director, Mrs. R. H. Weaver, that the youth might seize the opportunities of the future by serving Christ in their youth. Refreshments were served by the hostess which was enjoyed by all; also Christmas gifts were exchanged. The group requested the prayers of all Christians that God may lead them on to greater things in His service.

Walstonburg, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Robert Bnum, December 8, with Mrs. Bynum and Mrs. William Davis as hostesses.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Wilton Ellis. There were fifteen members and one visitor present. Mrs. Edd Miles gave the devotion, using the Scripture from Isaiah 45:22. The program consisted of four topics as follows: Topic 1: "India's Attitude Toward Foreign Missions"; Topic 2: "Three Government Regulations that Affect Our Missions"; Topic 3: "The Love to Unite All Churches on the Mission Field"; Topic 4: "The Answer to Church Union Spiritual Revival." Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Tommie Aycock, Mrs. Reddin Wooten, Mrs. William Davis, Mrs. John Craft and Mrs. Robert Bynum. Before entering into our business session, prayer was offered by the president. The minutes were called and minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Willie Mann. They were approved as read. Following the business session, the meeting closed with a word of prayer by Mrs. Aldred Owens.

The group then enjoyed a delightful

Christmas party. Each person had taken a gift for their secret sister. After the gifts had been exchanged, delicious refreshments were served consisting of punch, fruit cake, open-face sandwiches, candy and salted nuts, carrying out the Christmas colors, thus ending a very happy and prosperous year.

Kinston, N. C.—The officers for the new year were installed at the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the First Free Will Baptist Church on Monday night, December 5. Mrs. James C. Lucas was in charge of the auxiliary program; and Mrs. David W. Hansley was in charge of the installation program.

Mrs. Lucas chose as the topic for the program, "Thanks Be unto God for His Unspeakable Gift." The group sang "Silent Night," after which Mrs. Lucas read and discussed briefly the Scripture, Luke 2:8-20. She also read an article from the Baptist paper, "The Spirit of Christmas Giving," by Miss Alice Dail, Greenville, North Carolina. Mr. J. E. Harris led in prayer.

After the regular business, Mrs. Hansley opened the installation service with a prayer. She stood beside a table containing an open Bible before a white cross, between two lighted candles. Name cards for each officer on red ribbon dotted the table, with ivy intertwined among the ribbons. As Mrs. Hansley read the charge of each officer, the name card was pinned on her by Miss Viekie Sue Warren, G. T. A. member, or Miss Nancy Carol Roberts, Y. P. A. member, who assisted in the program. The officers stood in a semi-circle before the table as Miss Roberts read an original poem by Mrs. Hansley entitled "Inspiration." Mrs. Alton Smith, the outgoing president, led the prayer of dedication.

After the program, members were invited into the candlelit dining area, where they were served punch and Christmas cookies from a table decorated with a traditional Christmas cloth and a centerpiece of greens, red and silver berries, and lighted candles. Mrs. Leslie Harper, Miss Roberts and Miss Warren assisted in serving.

New officers are as follows: Mrs. Lynnwood Taylor, president; Mrs. William Sutton, vice-president; Mrs. J. C. Stroud, recording secretary; Mrs. Alton Suggs, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. F. M. Register Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Emmett Tyndall, treasurer; Mrs. G. E. Gray, study course chairman; Mrs. Jack Everett, Mrs. D. W. Hansley, and Mrs. Leonard Seymour, youth chairmen; Mrs. J. C. Gallop and Mrs. Alton Suggs, personal service and benevolence chairmen; Mrs. W. B. Warren, orphanage chairman; Mrs. Tull Roberts, enlistment chairman; Mrs. Carlton Oliver, program chairman; and Mrs. Burnie Braxton and Mrs. Ed Phillips, flower committee.

Creswell, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Mt. Tabor Free Will Baptist Church met Tuesday, December 6, with Mrs. Laura Furlough with 15 members present. The meeting was opened with the group singing "Oh Come, All Ye Faithful." Scripture was read by the president, Mrs. Doris Simmons, followed with the Lord's Prayer led by Mrs. Iris Ambrose. Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Dolly Dayenport, Mrs. Florence Furlough, Mrs. Doris Comstock, Mrs. Iris Ambrose and Mrs. Elizabeth Furlough.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Mary Furlough. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Naomi Ambrose; vice-president, Mrs. Annie Ambrose; secretary, Mrs. Iris Ambrose; treasurer, Mrs. Doris Comstock.

The meeting closed with prayer. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Eleanor Moore in January, 1961.

The hostess served ice cream, cookies and coffee.

Mount Olive, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Northeast Free Will Baptist Church met Tuesday night, December 6, at the church. Mrs. James Best gave the devotional and the group prayed the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Ted Garner, Mrs. Billy Best, Mrs. Brooks Parker, Mrs. James Helmes and Mrs. George Potts took part in the program.

Mrs. Leon Barwick, president, conducted the business during which a new slate of officers were presented to the group by the nominating committee. The new officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Ted Garner; vice-president, Mrs. George Potts; secretary, Mrs. Jim Jackson; treasurer, Mrs. Leona Johnson.

A social hour was held in the educational building. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served.

Rocky Mount, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Barnes Hill Free Will Baptist

(continued on page ten)

MISSIONS

NATIONAL FOREIGN—

Rev. Rolla D. Smith, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

NATIONAL HOME—

Rev. Homer E. Willis, Director
3801 Richland Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

STATE MISSION NEWS INCLUDED AS SUBMITTED FROM THE FIELD

New State Missions Treasurer

Due to the recent death of the Rev. J. W. Alford, the Rev. A. B. Bryan has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Mission Board of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists. To receive proper credit all funds should be made payable to the Mission Board of the North Carolina State Convention or to Mr. Bryan, treasurer.

A permanent office and mailing address has been established in Ayden, North Carolina. Please address all mission funds to the Mission Board of the State Convention, Post Office Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina.

Rev. Mack C. Owens' Itinerary

The following itinerary has been planned in North Carolina churches for the Rev. Mack C. Owens, home missionary to New Hampshire. Mr. Owens will show slides of the home missions work in New Hampshire at each service during the two-weeks' itinerary. All services will begin at 7:30 p. m., on the date and day listed below, unless otherwise designated.

December 25—January 1: Sunday, 11:00 a. m., Union Chapel Church, Chocowinity, Rev. Melvin Worthington, pastor (7:30 service is open); Monday, Greenville Church, Greenville, Rev. R. B. Crawford, pastor; Tuesday, Rose Hill Church, Ayden, Rev. Clifton Rice, pastor; Wednesday, Bethany Church, Winterville, Rev. Garland Teasley, pastor; Thursday, Ormondsville Church, Ayden, Rev. Clifton Rice, pastor; Friday, Ayden Church, Ayden, Rev. Raymond Gaskins, pastor; Friday, Piney Grove, Greenville, Rev. Richard Mabe, pastor; Sunday, January 1, Maranatha Church, Greenville, 11:00 a. m., Rev. LaRue Davis, pastor.

January 2—8: Monday, Tee's Chapel Church, Smithfield, Rev. Albert Coates, pastor; Tuesday, Little Rock Church, Luana, Rev. Leonard B. Woodall, pastor; Wednesday, Shady Grove Church, Dunn, Rev. Clarence Bowen, pastor; Thursday, Pine Level Church, Pine Level, Rev. R. H. Jackson, pastor; Friday, Smithfield Church, Rev. Chester Phillips, pastor; Saturday, Pleasant Plains Church, Selma, Rev. W. S. Burns, pastor; Sunday, 11:00 a. m., Mount Zion Church, Momyer, Rev. Albert Coates, pastor.

Indelible Imprints

† †
† †

If you have information concerning outstanding Free Will Baptist people or events of the past, please submit them to us for publication in this column.

HUBERT BURRESS
Box 326
PINETOPS, N. C.

ELDER J. T. BUTLER

The subject of this sketch was born in the state of Virginia, August 10, 1850. I do not know at what time he came to live in North Carolina, suffice it to say, "He preached for the Free Will Baptists of our state for nearly twenty-five years.

At the time of his death, April 28, 1920, he held membership with Sweet Gum Grove Church, Pitt County, North Carolina. Since the writer has known Elder Butler, his home has been in Bertie County, North Carolina, where he died. He was confined to his bed and room for over two years. I do not know the disease of which he died, but surely his suffering was intense.

He leaves to mourn their loss a kind, loving wife, four children, three step-children, and a host of loving friends in and out of the church.

His funeral was conducted by the Rev. T. L. Brown, after which he was buried in the home cemetery to await the final call.

It was my pleasure on several occasions to be present with Bro. Butler while on some of his preaching tours. Preaching the gospel seemed to be the pride of his life. His watchword was, "Be instant in season, and out of season." His educational opportunities were limited; yet he was ever a student of the divine Book. He had free access to the university of Jehovah. He had courage to live and faith to die. Faith well to a life of struggle with faith, obedience, ever bringing progress, poverty, victory and rejoicing. After uphill work but every hardship overcome, brings him up to the full and abundant entrance. The reward of faithful service and true love to God—the crown of life and glory—will be full and complete for it shall be Christ Himself.

Then shall he see and feel and know,
All he desired or wished below;
And every power find sweet employ,
In that eternal world of joy.

Brother Butler's ministerial work among us was of wide range; therefore, his kind advice, his earnest admonition, and marked love for the cause of Christ will live on the hearts of all those with whom he came in contact. While his voice will no longer be heard in prayer and preaching, yet the language of St. Paul to the Corinthians would willingly express his message to the church and his loved ones: "Finally, brethren, farewell, be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and" tist Church met Sunday afternoon, December 4, at 1:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Beulah Lindsey. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Cleo Worrell, the president. The group sang "Jesus Saves," and then Mrs. Estelle Eason led in prayer. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was then given by Mrs. Etta Vick. There were eleven members and one visitor present. The auxiliary was very proud to have Mrs. Lou Medlin, wife of the new pastor, join the auxiliary. The group then decided to give different families in the community fruit baskets and poundings for Christmas.

(Continued on page fourteen)

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from Page Nine)

The new officers for the coming year were then chosen as follows: President, Mrs. Cleo Worrell; vice-president, Mrs. Minnie Pearl Joyner; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Etta Vick; youth director, Mrs. Beulah Lindsey; program chairman, Mrs. Frances Langley; benevolence personal service chairman, Mrs. Estelle Eason.

Mrs. Edith Pittman then introduced the lesson, and topics were reviewed and discussed by Mrs. Minnie Pearl Joyner, Mrs. Cleo Worrell, Mrs. Beulah Lindsey and Mrs. Frances Langley. The meeting was closed by Mrs. Cleo Worrell, after which the group exchanged Christmas gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Beulah Lindsey, and enjoyed by all.

NOTES

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Christmas gets its name from that of Christ, as most people in the civilized world know; but Christ gets very little praise and attention from many of us who claim to be His followers.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS

While the birth date of Christ was not celebrated Christmas in that day, it was Christmas in reality. His advent into the world was the fulfillment of God's promise that He made to sinful man, in that He said the seed of the woman would bruise the head of the serpent. However, the promise here has been over all time until the second coming of Christ, when the head of the serpent will be bruised completely. Thanks be to God that another promise was made, which is the fulfillment thereof, has given to us what we call Christmas. Isaiah says; "Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel" (Isaiah 7:14). Now the fulfillment of the promise.

RECEPTION AND BIRTH OF CHRIST

Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on a wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her public example, was reminded to put her away privily. But while he thought on these things, behold the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou art David, fear not to take unto thee thy wife: for that which is conceived in thee is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Immanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us" (Matthew 1:18-23).

Matthew tells us what God said to Isaiah and also the fulfillment of that promise. It tells us that the promise is fulfilled.

WE NOTICE THE PURPOSE

The purpose for the promise and the fulfillment thereof was, "To save His people from sin."

fillment thereof was, "To save His people from sin."

It is a fundamental doctrine accepted and believed by Free Will Baptists that Jesus Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law of sin, by His sacrificial death on the Cross. We believe in the shed blood of Christ which made the atonement. We also believe that He had to come to earth by the way of the virgin birth.

CHRIST VS. SANTA CLAUS

The great day called Christmas is, in many instances, a day for the myth, Santa Claus. Old Santa gets more praise than the virgin born Son of God. People who profess great holiness to the Lord, perhaps every Lord's Day at least, play "Jingle Bells" and rush a merry-making program with little being said about the virgin born Son of God. It is wasteful to spend in the purchase of useless and dangerous toys, which are soon destroyed and thrown away.

Many of the Christians who give very little to the cause of missions, superannuation, Christian education and the various calls of the church, have been known to borrow money to buy useless toys, or leave their grocery bills unpaid, or let their house rent pile up, in order to celebrate in Santa Claus style. They will take the Lord's title to have a merry Christmas.

GIVE THEM FAITH

"At Christmastime, a year ago, there came over the radio a most wonderful poem entitled, Give Them Faith. It was the answer to a mother's question, 'What shall I give my children at Christmas?' What better time than mystic Christmas season to give our children faith in eternal things? We should make the manger babe a reality rather than a myth. In order to do this, we may need to make Christmas less Santa conscious and more Christ-centered. Teach them not only about His wonderful birth, but about His wonderful life on earth, about His death for our sins, and that He is alive today, loving and caring for His children. Even small children need someone to give them faith, to live; yes, it may be to die."—Mrs. E. E. Taylor.

DOUBTS TO TWO BOYS

A pastor who had acted as Santa Claus in a Christmas exercise, was seen by two small boys when he was shedding his Santa Claus suit. These boys were so astonished that they yelled out, "Then you are Santa Claus. Well, we have had doubts about this thing called Santa Claus. Yes, we thought the whole thing was a myth, now we are going to investigate that Bethlehem story about a Babe being born, no doubt we will find that to be a myth too."

I remember well when I learned the truth about Santa Claus; Christmas was not the same any more. My wife and I tried intelligently to lead our children to the truth of the whole matter.

OUR COMMENT ON A FAITH

When we live and teach our children about the birth, life and death of the Lord Jesus Christ, we will implant into their mind truths that will last as long as they live. May we notice this Scripture, "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith which is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also" (2 Timothy 1:5). Lois and Eunice taught Timothy about Jesus Christ, not Santa Claus. Again Paul speaks of Timothy's faith, "And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Timothy 3:15). Why not be like Lois and Eunice, who taught Timothy the reality of the Christ child, who was born in Bethlehem and cradled in a borrowed manger, born of a virgin and lived here on earth about thirty years, and died on the Cross for sinful man that whosoever believeth in Him should have eternal life.

I guess that someone will say, "Old man Griffin is off his beam." Someone may say, "He's a dotard," but I know that you can fool children to the extent that they will lose confidence in what is said to them. So again, I say, "Let us tell the truth about the birth and life and death of our Christ to our children and tell them the true meaning of Christmas and present our Christ to them as our Saviour, not a myth."

WHY SOME FAIL

"When church workers fail at their jobs, it's usually because they can't get along with people."

A. Donald Bell of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary reached this conclusion after studying reports from Carnegie Technological Institute. "Church workers may know the gospel," says Bell, "they may have mastered new methods of leadership and be dedicated to their church offices, but yet be unable to get across to people in an acceptable way."—Moody Monthly.

US ONLY!

A church of a small splinter denomination cut out some letters from cardboard, tinted them with gold, and put them above the choir loft in the front of the church. The letters read, "Jesus only!" A gust of wind blew away the letters—JES. Then the sign read, "Us only!"

I like to think of Christ as the Hub in a mammoth wheel, and of God's children as spokes in that wheel. The closer we, the spokes, get to Christ, the Hub, the closer we get to one another.—Walter B. Knight.

STORIES for our BOYS and GIRLS

LOST AND CHRISTMAS

by Cyrus B. McCowan

WELL, we lost Sara. She was not even at the end of the line. She was in the middle. Daddy was first, then Bobby, and then Sara. Mary and Mamma brought up the rear and they were back a little piece most of the way through the store. When we got to the boys' department, we were all interested in finding Bobby his jacket. At last Daddy handed the clerk the money and we all looked at each other with that satisfied expression which means that you have found what you want at the price you want to pay. Then we realized that Sara was not with us.

Daddy hurried back down the big main aisle, while Mamma and Bobby and Mary looked behind all the counters in the boys' department. But there was not the slightest sign of Sara anywhere and when Daddy came back, Mamma's dark eyes began to fill with tears. By this time the clerk was back with the change and the receipt and the package all wrapped. With quick sympathy (and doubtless from much experience!) she took in the situation. "Now, listen," she said, "you wait right here. I'll go down to Customer's Service. That's where they take all the lost children, and I'm sure that's where she is."

Mamma could just imagine Sara kidnaped and wandering out in the big city and falling down the stairs to the basement store and a lot of things. After all, this was one of the big stores in one of the biggest and wickedest cities in the whole country. Daddy tried to reassure her that everything would be all right, but his face looked very sober. Even Bobby and Mary stopped chasing each other around the counters and leaned up against Daddy's legs. It was a bad time, all right.

Then Daddy saw the clerk's head coming down the aisle and a moment later he could see Sara's hairbow moving along the counters. Sara could not even talk when Mamma gathered her up in glad arms, but when she could, this is what she told: "I was walking along looking at the candy counter, when suddenly you weren't anywhere in sight! I went all the way down the aisle to the big doors that open out onto the street. Then I went all the way back to the big doors at the other end. I thought about going out and looking for our car. But then I thought, 'No, I better stay where I can get found.' So I did and when I started to cry a little, a girl came and said, 'Are you lost, little girl?' I said, 'Yes,' so she took me over to a place where some other children were and told me to sit down and wait there. After a while another girl came and said, 'Is your name Sara?' Then she took my hand and brought me to you."

We think Sara at five-and-a-half years is a rather smart little girl. A great many adults would not be wise enough to stay where they could "get found" in a like situation. Especially in the field of the spiritual, many of us do not practice this basic principle. And that brings us to Christmas, strange as it may seem!

It is so easy to miss Christmas these days. It is not only the dreadfully pagan quality of so much of it that spoils Christmas. It is that so many of us are all wrapped up in a great gloom about the world that we do not catch the meaning of the angel's announcement at all. "Good tidings of great joy we repeat with sad smiles. "Yes, some to be sure, but not soon. Look at Europe and at China, and at South Africa, and Georgia—" And our words trail off in hopelessness.

But wait! The point of Christmas is some distant hope of peace. It is the fact that a Saviour has been born! This means that somebody can get saved. And "good tidings" is that you and I are somebodies! All that is required of us that we stay where we can get found—close to the body of Christ, which is the Church, close to God's Word, which is the Bible, and close to God's will, which may be learned through prayer but must be practiced and retained as a certainty.

Sara was lost for just twenty minutes because she stayed where she could get found. Christmas can be joyous for us this year never before if we will heed its good tidings, cease our desperate fruitless journeyings, and get found of God forever in Jesus Christ. Christian Union Herald.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

Question: Will you please tell us what as Free Will Baptist believe regarding the Trinity? We know that the Triune Godhead consists in three distinct persons but are not sure that we understand that. Do we believe and teach that the Trinity consists in a composite personality?—Tree Free Will Baptist Students, Kentucky.

Answer: The Bible is indeed clear in its method of setting forth the doctrine of the Trinity, but we find the Trinity explained nowhere in the Scriptures. We find many things of importance that are of great human interest that are above and beyond human reason, and the doctrine of the Trinity is one among them.

It seems to me that the common use of the theologians, when they expressed themselves casually concerning God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit, is somewhat misleading, even though many of the best informed Christians express themselves this way when speaking of the one God. To some, this implies three Gods and has no doubt furnished a basis for the forming of several Jesus Only groups. The fact is that there are not three but only one God. Louis T. Talbot suggests that we would do better to write it, "God, Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit." I think that Mr. Talbot has a point worthy of note here.

Of course, as Mr. Talbot further calls to attention, "All this is beyond our comprehension." The doctrine of the Trinity is a part of Bible teaching that a Christian should accept because it is set forth in the Scriptures without having any clear understanding whatever of the subject beyond the fact that it is a vital Bible truth. Had I not since his fall been able to grasp the teaching, I am sure that Christ would have explained it to His twelve apostles and one more of them would have recorded that explanation by divine inspiration so that I would have had the final and full answer on the subject. Would he not have had the opportunity for such an explanation when Philip said, ". . . Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us" (John 14:20)?

As on several other occasions when the way seemed open for this explanation, Jesus made no effort to tell how He and the Father could be one being or substance and yet two separate personalities. He said that He was going to the Father, but for the why and how of this He left Philip dependent upon faith. Like many other truths with limitless and eternal aspect, we accept this wonderful teaching found in God's Word by faith and faith alone. The fact of the Trinity is stated both clearly and repeatedly in God's Word. Where we think clearly concerning this with other truths included in our Christian faith, ours is a supernatural (one over, above and beyond or out of reach of the natural) belief. This, of course, is where faith comes into the Christian religion. We are able to believe that which we cannot explain. We also may apprehend things we are not able to comprehend. The fact of the Bible doctrine (teaching) on the Trinity is quite clear but not explained anywhere in the Scriptures. I heard of a Jew who accepted the doctrine of the Trinity when he had made a thorough study of the Hebrew word for God in Genesis 1:1. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth" (Genesis 1:1). The Hebrew word found in the original copy of Genesis 1:1 from which our English word, God, came is Elohim, called by Hebrew scholars a uni-plural noun; the Hebrew verb for created found here is in the singular. Therefore, as several Hebrew scholars I have consulted, on this truth, call attention to the first verse found in our Bible, they see it as setting forth the fact of the Trinity as one God.

On Page 86 in his book, Christian Theology, Dr. P. B. Fitzwater quotes Dr. A. H. Strong in setting forth the Trinity as follows: "In the nature of the one God, there are three eternal distinctions which are represented to us under the figure of persons, and these three are equal." Fitzwater, on the same page of the aforesaid book, points out the fact that, "The Father is recognized as God," quoting, "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied" (1 Peter 1:2); "Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father scaled" (John 6:27).

"Jesus Christ is represented as God," and here he quotes, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (John 1:1); "Whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, God blessed for ever. . . ." (Romans 9:5); "Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ" (Titus 2:13).

"The Holy Spirit is referred to as God," and again he quotes, "But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land? Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God" (Acts 5:3, 4).

With all due respects to any one's opinion concerning our God who is set forth in the Bible both in clarity and unquestionable uniqueness, it might be said we must surrender every prejudice in favor of plain Bible facts; otherwise, we shall retain a distorted understanding and a misconstrued view on this all vital subject. Such has been maintained throughout a great deal of Christian history by the Gnostics, Arians and most of the modern cults. Strange as it may seem, I have met and conversed with good meaning Free Will Baptists that have been confused because they have read free literature from some of the false teachers named above. Therefore, I would advise any well-meaning Free Will Baptist to stick with his Bible until he can get help from what he knows to be a reliable and safe source. It is indeed a difficult task on the part of any servant of God to help an erring brother or sister get a clear perspective of the gospel way when Satan has, through cult, propaganda peddlers, ingrained in his seductive heresy into their thinking.

Such as this makes clear the fact that it is high time that we, who are correctly informed Free Will Baptists concerning the many easy, accessible means that are now before our whole constituency to secure false doctrine, should embark on an all-out campaign to supply in an inexhaustible quantity the much needed and many months past due literature on all vital subjects pertaining to our way of life, doctrine and practices. Let us not wake up too late, as we have in the past, to find half of our denomination carried away into some foreign teaching and the other half so humiliated and divided that it will take a quarter of a century or more to get started as a major denomination again. Those who can do nothing more can pray. All others should do what they are able to do to meet such a major crisis in those other ways essential to the best good of all.

Christian Education

W. BURKETTE RAPER, President
Mount Olive Junior College
Mount Olive, North Carolina

L. C. JOHNSON, President
Free Will Baptist Bible College
Nashville, Tennessee

Items from Colleges, Sunday Schools and Daily Vacation Bible Schools

N. C. Student Edits Bible College Yearbook

The Lumen staff, headed by Elbert W. Tippet Jr., member of Friendship Church, Middlesex, North Carolina, has announced that this year's Lumen is to be the largest ever put out by Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee.

"We not only have increased the number of pages, but due to our large student body more annuals than ever will be published," the editor stated.

"Our churches have co-operated very well in the past in the purchases of advertisement space, and this year we hope for an even better response," he said.

Serving as assistant editor is Barbara McGahey, Columbus, Mississippi. William Evans of Springfield, Missouri, is business manager, and Miss Mary Wisheart, English instructor, is faculty sponsor to the group.

Mr. Evans stated that any Free Will Baptist church may make contribution and put an advertisement in the book. Full-page ads are $50, half page $30, quarter page $15, and eighth page $10. Churches taking ads of one-half page or larger will be given a copy of the Lumen and may run a picture of their church or parsonage. 1960 YEARBOOK EARNS AWARD

The 1959-60 yearbook staff has been awarded a Certificate of Excellence for the 1960 Lumen as given by Artmaster Yearbooks, Inc. printers. The award was based on superior layout, originality, photography, and general theme.

Editor of the 1960 Lumen was Dorothy Elliott, Brilliant, Alabama.

Bible College Trustees Meet

The Board of Trustees of Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tennessee, met on the school campus November 29 for its semi-annual meeting.

The group spent the day discussing and analyzing the educational program of the Bible College. Committees on curriculum, faculty and library, auditing and public relations, and buildings and grounds surveyed the entire educational endeavor.

Dr. L. C. Johnson, Bible College president, stated that during the course of the meeting one member who has been on the board since the school was organized observed that there had never been disagreement to the point of hard feelings in a board meeting. The harmony of this meeting was all that Christians could ask for, he said.

Above: Elbert W. Tippet Jr., editor of the 1961 Lumen, yearbook of Free Will Baptist Bible College.

Meeting with the board for the first time was Delmer Priest, layman from Richmond, California, who was elected to the board at the National Association in Fresno.

Mr. Priest has been an active deacon and Sunday school teacher for the past 10 years, and is an experienced leader with youth, having served in the local police department for 17 years and is at present an officer in the juvenile court of his city.

The new board member replaced Rev. K. V. Shutes of Thomaston, Georgia, who served continuously since the college was incorporated in 1945.

Others of the nine-member board present were: M. E. Howard, chairman, businessman of Richmond, Virginia; Rev. J. R. Davidson, Atlanta, Georgia; Rev. James F. Miller, Knoxville, Tennessee; Rev. Paul Ketteman, Columbus, Mississippi; and Rev. Ralph Lightsey, New Bern, North Carolina.

Rev. Melvin Bingham, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Rev. Luther Gibson, Tupelo, Mississippi; and Rev. Floyd Cherry, Greenville, North Carolina, were not able to be present for meeting. Emmett Frazier, Ashland, Tennessee, was proxy for Mr. Bingham.

The Stubs of Your 1960 Checkbook

W. Burkette Raper, President
Mount Olive College

Suppose someone who did not know where to find your checkbook for 1960 looked through the stubs of the checks you have written. What kind of picture of you would these stubs paint?

In the first place, these stubs would an index to your values. The way people spend their money indicates what they consider important. None of us has enough money to buy everything he wants, and consequently, we must spend our money for those things that mean most to us.

Our checkstubs for 1960 would reveal how much of our money is spent for necessities: food, housing, clothes, and utilities. The stubs would also tell something about the physical well-being of your family by indicating your expenditures for doctors, hospital care, and medicines.

Checks written for life insurance, endowment policies, and education funds would indicate your forethought in providing protection for your family in the years ahead.

In the second place, a review of the stubs might be disturbing. How does the amount spent for recreation (fishing, hunting, vacations, admission to athletic events) and luxuries (tobacco, soft drinks) compare with checks to your church? How much of the money that you spent during 1960 was for a lasting cause? Would your checkbook reveal to a stranger that you were a Christian?

In the third place, 1960 is not yet gone and no doubt your checkbook shows a balance, large or small. A portion of the balance can be used to help your checkbook give the picture of you that you would like.

I suggest a check to Mount Olive College. This gift will be a lasting investment. It will help to provide Christian education of a high quality for our children and will give you unspeakable joy.

Indelible Imprints

(continued from page ten)

God of love and peace shall be with you.

Blessed is the man whose life is ordered by the Book of Life, that he may be found to agree in the Great Day. He shall walk the streets of glory.

C. J. Harris

St. Claire Bible Class

M. B. HUTCHINSON, McARTHUR, OHIO

the second person in the holy Trinity.—The Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

2. "John. This name in Hebrew means one whom God has graciously given—an appropriate name for the child given in answer to prayer, and who was to be the forerunner of Christ. A gracious gift, not only to his parents, but also to the Jewish people and to the world. Luke (Chapter 1) as an historian gives an account of his birth. His parents were both of the priestly race. He was born in the south of Judaea, some suppose Hebron, others Jutta, and lived a Nazarite (Luke 1:15; Numbers 6:1-3) in that wild and thinly settled region till he began his ministry (Luke 1:80). He commenced his ministry in the fifteenth year of Tiberius Caesar, which was the 779th year of Rome, or A. D. 25, probably in the spring or summer. In the autumn commenced a sabbatical year, the year of our Saviour's baptism and the beginning of His ministry, as well as a good portion of John's ministry. The evangelist here, like Mark and Matthew, introduced John abruptly, as one demanding notice only in his official work as the forerunner of Jesus. Verses 6-13 may be considered a subordinate and parenthetical passage, more fully detailing the thought of Verse 5."—Clarke.—The Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

3. The Jews of John's time knew what he meant when he called Jesus the Word, or Logos, as the following selection proves. By Aramaic is meant the language which was generally used in Palestine in Christ's time.

The Greek word for the English word, Word, is Logos, which means: (1) A thought or concept; (2) the expression or utterance of that thought. The use of the word, Logos, has been traced to the Aramaic paraphrases of the Hebrew Scriptures in the so-called Targumin. These Chaldee paraphrases of the Old Testament were made for the use of the Jews who returned from the captivity and could not understand Hebrew. They employ the word, Memra, which is the Aramaic equivalent for the Greek Logos. In these paraphrases the expression word of the Lord is commonly substituted for the name Jehovah, as for instance, ". . . they heard the voice of the LORD walking in the garden . . ." (Genesis 3:8). Again, "And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, . . ." (Genesis 28:20). Now, the Jews to whom John wrote his Gospel were familiar with the Hebrew targums, and understood the expression, the Word of the Lord, or, the Word, to refer to Jehovah. And, of course, John himself so understood it. By its use John referred to Jehovah, and in the first verse of his Gospel, speaks of His eternal existence, personality and deity, as well as of the ineffable unity in the Godhead, while in Verse 14 he speaks of His incarnation.—Selected.

What You May Believe

(Lesson for January 1)

Scripture: John 1:1-14; 20:30, 31
Lesson Text: John 20:31

INTRODUCTION

Throughout this quarter, the Sunday school lessons will be taken from the Gospel of John. The unit of study will continue through Easter Sunday, making fourteen lessons in all. When this quarter's study is over, the student should have a better understanding than ever of Jesus, the Son of God and Saviour of the world. When studying the Gospel of John, one should understand that the writer, under inspiration and direction of the Holy Spirit, did not attempt to cover the entire life of Jesus; he gives only those incidents which contribute to the overall purpose for his writing the account—" . . . that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name" (John 20:31). He omits many cardinal facts about our Lord's earthly life, not because he does not believe they are true or necessary, but because they are told by the other gospel writers: for instance, he does not tell about the virgin birth of Jesus, but begins with His advent, just as if He had come direct from heaven as the eternal Son of God and went right into His ministry as Saviour of the world. One should read the marvelous and miraculous account of the virgin birth and childhood of Jesus from the Gospels of Matthew and Luke.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

HINTS THAT HELP

John 1:1: John made a long jump from the fishing boat to the authorship of this red book that begins like Genesis.
John 2: The Word was in the beginning with God, but afterward with men. A word is the sign of an idea. It was God's idea, not man's.
John 3: God spake worlds into existence, and Jesus was the Word by which He did it. He not only created all things, but He put all things together (Colossians 1:16, 17). Some call it gravitation, but others call it the Word.
John 4: Life is not made in test tubes. It is Jesus who brought life and immortality to light, exposed it to man's view.

Vs. 6: John the Baptist came by miracle, though there is no record that he ever worked a miracle.

Vs. 7: As early birds and buds are harbingers of the spring, so John came as the announcer of a new day of life and light.

Vs. 11: Jesus came to His own people, to His own World, and to His own temple where every piece of furniture spoke of His coming. He came to save the world He had made. There was no room in the inn, but room was found in a stable.

Vs. 14: The Word became flesh as a little baby in a woman's arms. He was truly the woman's seed. Man had no part or lot in his becoming flesh.

John wrote this Gospel more than sixty years after he had met Jesus, but the meeting was as fresh in his memory as if it had been yesterday. He remembered the very hour (John 1:39).

Vv. 30: John calls the miracles signs. He selects a few of Jesus' miracles and records them in His Gospel, but no record on earth contains all of them (John 21:25).

Vs. 31: John wrote of these things to convince men that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God. He puts life in the lifeless, joy in the joyless, love in the loveless, and hope in the hopeless.—The Standard Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. The Word is the second person of the Trinity, the Lord Jesus Christ. In the very beginning of the book of Hebrews, Verses 1 and 2, the writer says, "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, . . ." One speaks by words, and if God spoke by His Son, then the Son is the Word. In Revelation 1:8 we read, "I am Alpha and Omega, . . ." which intimates that Jesus is God's alphabet, the one who utters all God has to say. There is no doubt that Jesus is the Word—the living Word.

This verse reveals the relationship of Jesus to time and to God. He existed eternal. He completely transcends time. He was with God; therefore, He had a personality of His own. Yet He was God. This signifies that even though He has a personality of His own, He is a member of the Godhead,

The Best To You During This Season of Joy

"... The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth" (JOHN 1:14).

We, the personnel of the Free Will Baptist Press, would like to take this method of wishing you God's richest blessings during the holiday seasons. May the true message of Christmas gladden your heart all through the New Year.

Please accept our sincere thanks for your loyalty and co-operation in making it possible for us to serve you during this year.

N. Bruce Barrow
L. A. Dunn
C. H. Overman
Ralph A. Bowen
Sylvia Faulkner
Sue Branch

Tommy Manning
Alice Barrow
Carol Hill
Mildred Wilson
Emily Meeks
Sybil Forbes

Hazel Holland
Edith Dunn
Lossie Stokes
Wilbur Dunn
Wade Long
Russell Wooten

Dave Cavanaugh
Robert James Mason
Kenneth Long
Gene Page
Thomas Woodall
Clarence Burress

For Reference

Not to be taken from this room

D036399591

Duke University Libraries