Most Important News Story

According to a survey conducted by Moody Monthly magazine, the Supreme Court prayer decision has been voted the most important news story in the evangelical world in 1963. The Roman Catholic "thaw" placed second. The race question placed third, and the Billy Graham Southern California crusade was fourth.

Editorial—

A NEW YEAR'S WISH

"The LORD bless thee, and keep thee: The LORD make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee: The LORD lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace" (Numbers 6:24-26).

God bless thee and keep thee thro' the coming days,
Give to thy service here His rich increase,
Make His light shine yet brighter on thy ways,
And crown thee with His own abiding peace!

Cause thee to prove His all-sufficient grace,
The fulness of His Spirit's power bestow;
Supply the daily strength to run the race,
And teach thee His blest will to do and know!

Grant thee His presence felt, in woe and weal,
And evermore His joy—all joys above;
Speak to thine heart more clearly and reveal
The heights and depths of His unfathomed love!

God bless and keep thee thro' the heat of day,
Beneath His shield safe-sheltered from all harm,
And when the hours of toil have passed away,
Grant a bright eventide, and sunset calm!

Then, when all fleeting years of time are gone—
Their joys and sorrows as a watch of night—
With the fair sunrise of a summer morn
Shall dawn the glory of eternal light.

FIFTY MORE NUMBERS

With this issue of "The Free Will Baptist," we begin Volume 79, Number 1. Again this year, we are planning to print fifty issues of this periodical. Just what these fifty issues will carry in the form of news is not known to any of us. It is our sincere prayer, however, that all we do will be done to the glory of God and for the strengthening of the Free Will Baptist cause.

We are grateful for the opportunity to serve our Lord and our denomination in this capacity. It is with a humble heart that we face 1964. It is faith in the divine that gives us hope and courage to face the 366 (leap year) days of 1964.

We are also grateful for the opportunity to begin anew. There is a certain feeling of satisfaction to be given the opportunity to face each new day, each new week, and each new month; but the beginning of a new year is something else. To be sure, we do not know what lies ahead; but with faith in the Almighty we shall press on to face the future without fear.

As we prepare the first issue of 1964, we would like to remind our readers that the success of this publication is largely dependent upon its readers. It is our responsibility to see that it is printed, but we cannot print that which we do not know and that which we do not receive. For more than seventy-five years "The Free Will Baptist" has been published; for more than seventy-five years it has been going into Free Will Baptist homes. Yet, we do not believe there has ever been a time when its need has been more acute than today. Again we appeal to you, our readers, to help us with this publication. Help us to make these next fifty numbers the greatest ever published.

HIS is an amazing confession of character, depicting the will of a determined soul, convinced by the soundness of his own convictions, to press onward and upward—defying all dangers, overcoming all difficulties, and surmounting all obstacles—to reach the goal which he has set for himself in Christ Jesus.

Such determination is found only in men of destiny, men who both feel and know that they are called of God for his purpose. Such men will not be easily turned aside from the accomplishment of their purpose. They will not be daunted by fear, they will not be confused by difficulties, and they will not allow obstacles to bar their passage. Most of all, they will not be satisfied until the work has been completed and completed right. Nothing short of perfection will prove sufficient to the demands which they place upon their ministry.

Paul was a man who wielded a great influence and accomplished a great deal. I think that it can be said without fear of refutation that he was the most influential man to ever live upon the face of the earth, changing as it were by his ministry the lives of men and the destiny of the world. "The world may tittle note nor long remember" what many have said and done, but it can never ignore the mighty works of this man. He possessed a driving force that drew the envy of all who wish to excel in their chosen fields of labor.

Though Paul, at the time of this writing, had accomplished a great deal—much more than most of us can ever hope to accomplish—and a smaller man would have been content to have rested in his laurels, he realizes that there is yet much to be done. He fears nothing save complacency, knowing that so long as one presses upward, he shall not go backward.

It requires very little effort to go backward. Most of the time it can be accomplished simply by turning loose and allowing nature to take its course, being the nature of things to seek their lowest level. But the road that leads to the goal at the top of the mountain winds upward every step of the way. It requires faith, the exercising of the will, and the expending of much energy to conquer the dangers, dispel the difficulties, and surmount the obstacles that are found along the trail.

Paul speaks in this passage of forgetting the things which are behind. As we stand today at the close of the old

by A. B. CHANDLER

"Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13, 14).

year, we muse for a moment in silent reflection upon the results of our ministry. We hope that we have accomplished some things that are well and good. We know that we have failed to do many things which we had fervently hoped to perform. Perhaps we feel that if we were privileged to live this year over again, we could correct our mistakes; we could take advantage of the many opportunities which we have allowed to slip through our fingers, and, by exercising hindsight where we failed to exercise foresight, be able to perform our task in a more commendable manner.

This privilege shall not be granted us. The past is gone beyond redemption. But let us here determine, as we forget the things of 1963, which are a part of the things which are behind, to look to the things which are before. Chief of these is the year 1964, at whose threshold we stand.

The challenge of 365 days of unparalleled opportunity lie bright and fair before us. What we make of them will be dependent upon our attitude: our attitude toward life, our attitude toward our fellowmen, our attitude toward Christ, our attitude toward the gospel, and, not to be neglected, our attitude toward our ministry, which in the strictest sense is the trust of our God.

We, as individual Christians, as a church, as a denomination, and even as a nation, shall rise or fall, succeed or fail, sink or swim, live or die, by the attitude that we develop toward these things. Shall we seek to develop the attitude of the Apostle Paul—a determination to press on toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus?

Let us resolve in our hearts to divest ourselves of every weight and the sin that does so easily beset us. Let us cultivate those talents and those virtues that shall help us to grow in the grace and the knowledge of our Lord, and let us above all determine in our hearts not to give up the struggle until the victory is attained. Ours is a glorious ministry; the trust and the confidence of our Lord has been placed in that ministry, and we cannot fail—we must of necessity, press on toward the goal.

Let me say in conclusion: when a man reaches the stage where he accounts himself to have apprehended, he has reached the end of the trail; his ministry is complete and completed in failure. He can turn in his credentials, turn his face to the wall, and leave the work of apprehending to better hands—to those who know that it has not yet been accomplished. Hope, if it is to be resurrected from the grave to which these who think that the work has been completed have consigned it, must be restored by those who know that they must yet march forward with its banner in their hands.

Night Class in Religion Mount Olive College

The department of religion at Mount Olive College will offer a night course in Hebrew Prophets during the spring semester. The course carries three semester hours credit, but it may be audited by persons who do not wish to receive college credit. The class will meet two nights per week, and the schedule of meetings will be arranged to suit the convenience of participants. Registration for the second semester will be held on January 27.

Additional courses will be offered on demand through the Paul Palmer Institute. Persons interested in the course in Hebrew Prophets or courses to be offered through the Paul Palmer Institute are requested to write to Dean Roy O'Donnell, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina.

Student Aid Fund Totals $19,110

Charles H. Harrell, college business manager, has reported that $19,110 has been committed in financial aid for the current academic year to fifty-three students enrolled at Mount Olive College.

This assistance includes $5,770 in scholarships to students in the top ten percent of their high school classes, graduates from the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, ministerial students, and missionary candidates; $3,900 for work scholarships; $3,640 from college loan funds; and $5,800 in loans through the National Defense Student Loan Fund.

Aid to new students who will enroll for the spring semester beginning in January is expected to push the total for the year above $20,000.

"One of the objectives of Mount Olive College is to administer a fiscally sound program of assistance to worthy and needy students," Mr. Harrell declared.

"It is the desire of the college that no qualified high school graduate in the greater Mount Olive area or from anywhere in the Free Will Baptist denomination be denied an education because he or his parents are poor."

Church Support More Than Doubled

Church support of Mount Olive College for the first five months of the current fiscal year has more than doubled over the same period last year.

From July 1 through November 30, Free Will Baptists have given $72,706 as compared with $28,747 last year, according to information released today by Charles H. Harrell, college treasurer. The major portion of this support, approximately $50,000, has been designated for the development of the new 90-acre campus.

During the spring Free Will Baptists will concentrate their giving on the general fund of the college. Mount Olive College is operating this year on a $270,000 budget, $82,000 of which is scheduled to come from denominational sources in unrestricted gifts.

Benefit Dinners Raise $52,091

A series of nineteen benefit dinners in eastern North Carolina has raised $52,091 for the development fund of Mount Olive College. The dinners extended from May into December and drew 3,200 people from Free Will Baptist churches covering twenty-four counties.

They were a part of the development campaign to raise $290,000 for the building program scheduled to begin next spring. The Mount Olive Junior College Area Foundation is currently engaged in efforts to raise $100,000 in new gifts to supplement pledges secured earlier. Outstanding gifts announced previously include $37,000 from the late Dr. C. C. Henderson and a pledge of $30,000 from the Bank of Mount Olive.

Mount Olive College is a fully accredited two-year college sponsored by the Free Will Baptist State Convention. Fall enrollment was 226, but the first buildings on the new campus will permit expansion to a student body of 400.

Quotas Set for General Fund

Each church belonging to the Free Will Baptist State Convention of North Carolina has been given two quotas for Mount Olive College: one for the development fund and the other for the general operating fund. These quotas are recommended goals to guide churches in their support of the educational ministry of the college.

All gifts, unless designated for the development fund, are applied on the general fund quota. Contributions from individuals, Sunday Schools, auxiliaries, leagues and other church groups, are credited to the quotas for their church.

During the fall most churches reached or exceeded their quotas to the development fund. It is hoped that during the spring all churches will put forth a concentrated effort to reach their quotas to the general fund. This support is necessary in order for the college to retain a competent faculty, provide scholarships for worthy and needy students, and maintain accreditation standards.

Approximately forty percent of the operating budget of the college is dependent upon gifts from churches and friends.

Nash County Benefit Dinners

The seven Free Will Baptist Churches of Nash County held the last of a series of nineteen benefit dinners in eastern North Carolina for the development fund of Mount Olive College. Attendance was 116 with contributions of $1,048.

Members of the county steering committee were the Rev. James Joyner of Wilson, chairman; the Rev. R. N. Hinant and I. D. Boswell of Bailey; Miss Patricia Bisette of Sims; and Mrs. Clarence Manning of Spring Hope.

Only 359 Days Before Christmas

ONLY 359 Days Until Christmas!" Pedestrians stopped and stared in surprise at the bulletin board announcing First Church's services for the coming Lord's Day. The pastor's sermon subject for the Sunday morning after Christmas provoked considerable comment.

"That's going too far," one person was heard to grumble. "Reminding us of next Christmas before we've had time to clear away the mess of this year's holiday!"

"It's bad enough that merchants commence their Christmas come-ons before Thanksgiving," complained another. "The nerve of that preacher! Heralding that Christmas is coming even before New Year's Day."

The undercurrent of comment contributed to an unusual attendance for the Sunday morning in question. "I've got what I hoped for," thought the pastor as he surveyed the full sanctuary. Smilingly he recalled a conversation with one parishioner who had been bold enough to present his objection in person: "Pastor, I don't like your sermon topic for next Sunday." "Can't say I'm too well satisfied with it myself," the clergyman had replied. "But then, when I go fishing I never eat my own bait!"

Preliminaries finished, the minister faced the expectant audience. Launching into his announced sermon, he at once squelched the critical spirits with a disarming question: "Have any of you commenced making deposits in the local bank's Christmas club?"

Scores squirmed, remembering the dollar or more they had been depositing each of the previous few weeks in order to accumulate funds to finance the following year's yuletide. Many of the pastor's "sheep" looked sheepish as he continued, "You have already commenced preparing for next Christmas."

So they had. And why not?

Why not reduce the financial burden of next Christmas by commencing preparations for it now? Everyone knows he will have expenses. Why not take advantage of bargains between now and gift-giving time? Considerable savings may be affected. I secured my son's electric shaver in a summer sale at almost half what the same store sold it for in December. Many customers have stockpiled next season's supplies of Christmas cards or ornaments from purchases in "half price" clearance sales the week after Christmas. Three hundred and fifty-nine days before Christmas is not too soon for multitudes to think of next year's observance.

But Christmas has a deeper meaning than the expense of presents, and preparations for the coming season should be motivated with loftier motives than that of casing one's budget.

The spiritual significance of the holiday often is obscured by ballyhoo about decorations and dollars and presents. However, the paramount issue pertains to the Lord Jesus Christ. Without His advent there would be no Christmas. Certainly the cost of that first Christmas far exceeded the extravagant squanderlust of current commercialized celebrations. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ," Paul reminds us, "that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich" (2 Corinthians 8:9). It is hardly too much to say that God impoverished heaven to bestow upon mankind "his unspeakable gift" (9:5). "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son" (John 3:16). Thus on New Year's Eve there remain just 359 days until another anniversary of Christ's departure from His native environment to enter another world.

Make no mistake about this. Earth constituted a foreign environment to the newborn Son of God. His origin was not earthly. From heaven He hailed, where He had enjoyed the acclamation of angels since the primeval creation when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy. Christ's birth in Bethlehem marks not the beginning of His personal existence, but rather a transition from His celestial career.

He lived before Bethlehem. "Before Abraham was, I am," was His stupendous claim (John 8:58). He antedates the universe, for He is the Word who existed in the beginning before creation, who was in fellowship with God then, and was Himself personally and absolutely divine. He shared the glory of His Father before the worlds were framed (17:5). As heaven's crown Prince He shared the celestial throne (Hebrews 1:8, 13).

When the fullness of time came God's eternal Son emerged from the "Ivory Palaces" on high to descend to this prodigal planet. He left His native heaven to be born in a foreign world. He came to rescue a race in ruins because of sin. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (1 Timothy 1:15).

How many days is it until the calendar will call for us to celebrate another anniversary of the Saviour's exodus from His native heaven to enter our earth?

That question suggests another. For God's Son is not the only one to exchange environments—to pass from his native world into another. How long will it be 'ere you shall venture from earth, your native world, to emerge into the hereafter? How many days until Christmas? The inquiry prompts a more momentous consideration: How many days until eternity? Until you enter eternity?

You may be unconvinced that preparations for next Christmas are in order so far in advance. But what of your preparations for eternity? Amos the

Church Pays Tribute To Former Pastor

On the second Sunday in November, 1956, the Rev. Charlie Overton, came to Union Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Plymouth, North Carolina, as its pastor. He came to the church as a man of God and fulfilled his duties as pastor to the highest degree. He always greeted the members and visitors with a friendly smile and a warm handshake. Under his leadership the church membership grew and a new program was introduced to the church. Some of the things which had their beginning under the pastorate of Mr. Overton were the sunrise services, New Year services at midnight, and Thanksgiving altar services. Through these a better knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ was presented to the members.

A member of the church writes: "Mr. Overton never failed to visit the sick, the brokenhearted, and the lost sinner. During his ministry for us he was always ready to read comforting Scriptures from God's Word and pray in our behalf. He was always working with our youth, encouraging them greatly by allowing them to take part in the church work. He was always teaching and training them in Christian fellowship. I'm sure the youth of the church will always admire and love him for his leadership.

"Even though Mr. Overton is no longer our pastor, we pray that God will bless him in all he undertakes to do. We hope he will never forget Union Chapel, for there will always be a warm spot in our hearts for him.

"Weeks have passed since his last service with us, but again we wish to say to him, 'Thank you for everything you did for our church.'"

Gray Branch to Observe Stewardship Commitment Day

With "Tithing Puts God First" as a slogan, Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church near Deep Run, North Carolina, has launched a stewardship enlistment program. The pastor, the Rev. Andrew Hill, has announced that Lynwood Smith will serve as general chairman of this program. Three committees will work with the general chairman and pastor in the program. They are as follows: Ben Hines, chairman of budget preparation committee; Ruth Hines, chairman of campaign promotion committee; and Elizabeth Smith, chairman of officer help committee.

Stewardship Commitment Day will be observed on January 12, 1964.

Carter to Conduct Midway Revival

The Rev. Walter Carter of East Rockingham, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for revival services at the Midway Free Will Baptist Church, High Point, North Carolina, beginning Monday night, January 6, 1964. Services will begin each evening at 7 p.m., and the public is invited to attend.

A Message for The New Year

ANOTHER YEAR has now come to a close. There are some people who look back upon it with dissatisfaction and say, "Well, there is nothing to do except turn over a new leaf." They are anxious to accept a brighter hope and greater joy in their lives. To such persons we want to suggest three things that must not be done during this new year and three things that, by the grace of God, ought to be done.

First, we must never try to see God, or Christ, without the Bible. Look at the stars on a clear night and look into the heavens during the day. In doing so, you will get a very false idea of the sky. You will think some of the stars revolve around the earth and that the earth is the center of the universe. Why is this so? Because you look at it with unaided eyes. To study the stars and the heavens, we need the telescope.

Men often talk about God who know nothing about Him. They look at Him through human eyes. The Bible is the Christian's telescope. Therefore, at the beginning of this new year, make it your resolve to read the Bible everyday.

Second, never trust in wishes. A great many people think they are free from sin. They say, "Now we are going to live a new life." An old Italian proverb says, "The road to hell is paved with good wishes. Railroad trains are not run on wishes.

A person may say, "I'll get to heaven." Where is the power? The person answers, "Oh, I'm a man of intellect, a man of will; and when I make up my mind, I'll do it." Such a person will be just like a piece of thistle-down in a cyclone. Such a person needs the Lord Jesus Christ—the power of a living, personal Redeemer.

Third, do not trust in your own self. When going up a mountain, never be your own guide. A great many young men do not want their father or mother's advice, nor the minister's advice. They feel they can paddle their own canoes. With them all wisdom dwells. Yet, no one has ever seen tomorrow. Therefore, it is essential to trust in Christ. He knows the path that we have not traveled.

Now let us consider the things we ought to do.

First, seek to obtain the pearl of great price. In the East there are some Mohammedans who wear a green turban; it is a mark of great honor. It shows that they have been to Mecca, their holy city. People say, "Look! that man has been to Mecca." Likewise, we must go to the Cross of Christ that people will be able to look at us and say that we have been with Christ. Neapolitans say, "See Naples and die!" We say, "See Jesus Christ and die—die to sin forever.

LAYMAN'S LEAGUE STUDY BOOKS

The North Carolina Laymen's League is suggesting and recommending the following booklets be used as study books for the year 1964: "A Catechism," by C. H. Spurgeon; "Power Through Prayer," by E. M. Bounds; and "These Four Found Life." All three of these booklets are printed by Moody Press and priced at only 15c each. Those who order will receive all three to be used throughout the year. It is suggested that each one be used for four months in the order listed above.

Send your order to the Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina 28513.

Second, Be sure you have a place of refuge. If a storm is blowing on the ocean, you can see the vessels making for a harbor, which is likely to be crowded.

by the Rev. Arnold Woodlief
Marianna, Florida

"Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip" (Hebrews 2:1).

A person without Christ is like a ship in a storm without a harbor. Jesus Christ is a shelter in the time of storm. He is a hiding place from the wind, a covert from the tempest.

Third, set your goal on heaven. Know where you are going—what your destiny is. Look to Christ to lead you there. The child lives in the mother's arms; the bough lives in the oak; the branch lives in the vine; and the soul lives in Christ.

Now is the day of salvation. Now is the hour of decision. After a subject has been discussed in the House of Representatives, and all have spoken who desired to speak, the members cry out, "Divide! divide!" God asks you now to "Decide! decide!"

Men Wanted

Andrew Carnegie was once asked, "What about the future of your far-flung industrial interests?" He replied, "You may take my plants, equipment and my money. But if you will leave my men, I will build it again!"

Men are greatly needed on mission fields. They are in the minority. Dedicated, Spirit-filled men are urgently needed.—Gospel Herald.

When we believe with our whole heart, we will be less dismayed. We will question less closely, when God's dealings with us are puzzling.—Selected.

AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

News and Views OF THE Woman's Auxiliary

Goldsboro, N. C.—The Christmas program of the Woman's Auxiliary of Stoney Creek Original Free Will Baptist Church was held in the church sanctuary Tuesday night, December 10, with 52 members and two new members present. Mrs. Eva Lancaster was in charge of the program.

The meeting opened with the group's singing "O Little Town of Bethlehem," after which Mrs. Lillie Mae Sasser led in prayer. Mrs. Gaynelle Smith, president, presided. During the business session motions were made to remember the shut-ins in the community with gifts at Christmas, to send $10 to the superannuation board, and to send $5 to the adopted superannuated widow for Christmas.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: president, Rudy Matthews; vice-president, Mattie Jones; recording secretary, Jean Coker; corresponding secretary, Alma Dale; treasurer, Marguerite Sullivan; mission chairman, Lillie Mae Sasser; youth chairman, Peggy Ingram; study course chairman, Plummer Sullivan; program-prayer chairman, Dessie Kennedy; benevolence and social service chairman, Peggy Waddell; Children's Home chairman, Lula Gardner; superannuation chairman, Gladys Albritton; bereft committee, Ida Lee Wooten, Eva Lancaster, and Gaynelle Smith.

After the business session the group moved to the educational building for their Christmas party. Mrs. Gaynelle Smith was honored with a Life Award Certificate and Life Award Pin from the auxiliary. She has served as president for the past two years. She also has served as president once before and has held other offices in the auxiliary as well as in the church. She was commended for her outstanding work with the youth auxiliary. Mrs. Plummer Sullivan was also given a Life Award Pin; she had previously received her Life Award Certificate. Mrs. Lillie Mae Sasser made the presentations.

Games were then played and presents exchanged. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Lucille Lancaster, Mrs. Elizabeth Scott, Mrs. Peggy Ingram, and Mrs. Mary Lou Grantham.

Fountain, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, December 13, in the church.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. L. Goff, who turned the program over to Mrs. Eugene Baker, program chairman. Mrs. Baker had the group join together in singing "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Prayer was offered by Mr. Robert Oakley, after which Mrs. Baker turned the program over to the supply pastor, the Rev. C. H. Overman, who presented the program, "The Way to Bethlehem," written by Mrs. A. B. Chandler. He used for the Scripture reading Luke 2:1-20, after which he discussed the following topics of the program: "To Renew Our Faith," "To Learn to Love," "To Learn to Give," and "To Learn to Serve."

Mrs. Goff presided over a short business session; and Mrs. Lester Gay, secretary-treasurer, called the roll and received the dues. She also read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved. She then gave the treasurer's report. A motion was made and seconded to send $10 to Arizona-Mexico Missions. Mr. David Hobgood gave the closing prayer and also returned thanks for the refreshments enjoyed during the Christmas social hour.

All present were invited to Mr. Robert Oakley's Sunday school classroom where there was a beautifully lighted Christmas tree with presents underneath. A table was centered with a bowl of grapes and other assorted fruits with red lighted tapers on each side and other decorations carrying out the Christmas motif. Homemade cookies, an assortment of homemade candies, nuts, potato chips, pimiento-cheese sandwiches, chicken salad sandwiches, and iced drinks were served buffet style to the members and guests present.

Grantsboro, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of New Bethlehem Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Minnie Dixon on Wednesday night, December 12. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Ruth Scott. The group sang "Silent Night," followed with the praying of the Lord's Prayer in unison. The Scripture, taken from Luke 2:1-20, was read by the president.

Mrs. Lottie Pipkin, program chairman, took charge and gave the introduction to the program entitled "The Way to Bethlehem." Those assisting her were Ruth Scott, Mary Rollison, Nina Price, and Mary Harrison.

During the business session the secretary-treasurer called the roll and received the dues. There were 13 members and four visitors present. Plans were made to remember the sick and needy in the community with get-well cards and gifts during the Christmas holidays.

This was also the auxiliary's Christmas party with each member exchanging gifts. These were displayed under a beautiful Christmas tree in the center of the room. Love gifts were showered on a neighbor, Mrs. Meadows and her family. They received these with grateful and thankful hearts.

New officers will be installed at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Harrison. All members are urged to attend.

Refreshments of apple pie topped with ice cream, candy, stuffed dates, assorted nuts, and coffee were served by the hostess. The meeting adjourned with a prayer in unison.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Piney Grove Original Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Lucy Jones and Mrs. Joe Sasser for its December meeting.

Mrs. Roy Stanford, president, presided. After the singing of "O Little Town of Bethlehem," Mrs. Charles Ray Pope read the Scripture taken from Luke 2:1-20. Mrs. Jones then led in prayer. Mrs. Calvin Medlin read an article from the "I Remember" section of the Christian Herald. Mrs. Wilbert Bass, program chairman, followed with the program, "The Way to Bethlehem." At the conclusion of the program each member was given an opportunity to express herself as to what Christmas meant to her. Mrs. Joe Sasser closed the program with prayer.

During the business session officers

North Carolina Ministers' Conference

Attention all Original Free Will Baptist Ministers of North Carolina:

The time for the Semiannual Spiritual Life Conference for the North Carolina State Ministers' Association will soon be here. We hope that throughout the state all our ministers, with their wives, are making plans to attend. We would like to make this the best conference yet.

The place for the conference meeting will be with St. Mary's Original Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina. The members, through their pastor, the Rev. Earl Glenn, extended the invitation to the conference to meet in their church. This church is a fine modern building with accommodations for the meeting.

The time for the conference is Thursday and Friday, January 16 and 17, 1964. Registration will begin on January 16, at 4 p.m. The program will begin at 7 p.m. and continue until January 17, 3:30 p.m. No arrangements have been made by the executive committee for eating and sleeping. This was decided by the committee because of the fact that there were so many cafes, restaurants, motels, and hotels in and around the town of New Bern. It will be left to each individual to make these arrangements for himself.

A good program has been planned by the executive committee which we believe you will enjoy. On the evening of January 16, at 8:30, a motion picture entitled "The Life of Martin Luther" will be shown. It is the hope of the committee that those whose names appear on the program will do their best to be present. The theme Scripture is 1 Corinthians 4:1, 2; and the watchword Scripture is 2 John 1:8. The panel discussion topic will be "The Original Free Will Baptist Minister's Relationship to the Community Through Civic Enterprises, Schools, Clubs, etc." A schedule of the complete program will appear in The Free Will Baptist next week.

The committee wishes to state that the laymen of the churches throughout the state are invited to attend this meeting of the conference.

Hope to see all you brother ministers

THINKING WITH CHRIST

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 2:5).

The two articles before Christmas were written on the ministry of John the Baptist as he was trying to prepare the people for the coming of Christ into the world to be its only Saviour and Lord. If we have truly prepared for Christ by letting Him come into our hearts, we must keep Him there by thinking the proper thoughts. This one verse was just the beginning of Paul's instructions to the Christians in the church of Philippi, for in the eighth verse of the fourth chapter he said, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

A person's life is governed by what that person thinks. Solomon wrote in Proverbs 23:7, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he: . . ." Probably with this text in mind Jesus said to the religious critics of His disciples, "For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, Thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness: All these evil things come from within, and defile the man" (Mark 7:21-23). Go back for a moment's meditation to these verses, and you will see that evil thoughts head the list of all these evil things that come from within, and defile the man. But if we "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" there will be no room or time for thinking the things which do not honor Christ.

I think I should not close this meditation without going back to the original text and following through to learn what was the mind of Christ Jesus. Philippians 2:6-8 give seven things that went a long way to make the life of Christ what it was, what He is, and what He will always be. Here are the seven:

"Who, being in the form of God,

1. "thought it not robbery to be equal with God:
2. "But made himself of no reputation,
3. "and took upon him the form of a servant,
4. "and was made in the likeness of men:
5. "And being found in fashion as a man,
6. "he humbled himself,
7. "and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

An interesting observation is that it takes the text and the three verses that follow to complete the sentence; and, therefore, must be taken together to get the lesson God is giving us by inspiration.

It is often stated that we cannot help what we think, but the Bible does not teach that. God can, and will, help His people to think pure thoughts when we seek His help. It may have taken King David a long time to learn it, but some time in his life he came to the place when he made his petition to God: "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O LORD, my strength, and my redeemer" (Psalm 19:14).

". . . What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David" (Matthew 22:42).

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: Tell me your thoughts, and I'll tell you what kind of a Christian you are.

OUR VISIT TO THE CHILDREN'S HOME

It was a happy privilege to attend the Thanksgiving service at the Children's Home at Middlesex, North Carolina, on Thanksgiving Day. The attendance was good and everybody seemed to be happy.

A large number of people took offerings. I did not learn the amount. Also there was a freewill offering made in the church service. Although I did not learn the amount, it looked pretty good.

The renditions in gospel singing by the choir, which was composed of the students of the Home and led by the Rev. C. H. Overman, seemed to this scribe to be the best ever. Our heart was filled with gladness. This writer was called to deliver the Thanksgiving sermon, a message of thanksgiving which was in my heart. I looked back to the day when the first work began with a building which later was called the Girls' Building and which has been replaced with two beautiful and comfortable buildings for our girls. Then I thought of a building that was built later for our boys, which very soon became inadequate and was replaced by a building which was much better than the first building for boys, taking care of approximately 40 boys. Then I viewed the splendid office building with modern convenience; the beautiful home for the superintendent; the laundry; the swimming pool, so well arranged for the enjoyment of our children; and then the beautiful, well-arranged church sanctuary and all the great things on that hill that God has blessed us with. It certainly did stir my heart to look at these blessings and go back in my mind to the beginning. We felt like shouting glory to our God for working in the mind of our fathers and mothers, along with a few that are living now, who were young then. The memory of those men and women who sacrificed to make it possible to start and to build an institution such as we have today is a wonderful one.

But wait! We have not reached the climax yet. The greatest, the most appreciated, and the most heart-thrilling joy comes when we explore the country and find some of the most successful professional men and women in the various walks of life, men and women that stand along side the best citizens of our country—from a college president and college officials to a large number of schoolteachers and housewives and mothers who are rearing families and teaching them to teach others.

Comparing that small start with the first brick placed in the walls to what we have today, every true and loyal Original Free Will Baptist should say, "Praise the Lord for His wonderful works to the children of men."

If we are dedicated children of God and love our institutions as true believers in Christ, let us go on to greater things in the work of rearing and educating our children to take their places among men in helping to make the world know that we believe in the "faith once delivered unto the saints."

FOUNDERS DAY

Another enjoyable visit of late was the Founders Day service at Mount Olive Junior College, where we met students of the past and a great number of new students, all of whom seemed to be very happy with their work and the fellowship of their classmates.

I want to tell the world that we, the original Free Will Baptists, have an institution that God has arranged for us to have in order to give to our children Christian education. From those walls have come both men and women who are proving themselves to be blessings to the church and to the country in every place where they have been called to serve. Wherever this writer goes, he hears good things about them from people, including men and women of other denominations.

AN ARTICLE RECEIVED

Some time ago I received from the Rev. L. E. Ballard an article written by him in reply to an editorial in the magazine entitled Free Will Baptist Witness. Also, Brother Ballard sent a certificate in which he declared that he was on his own in his stand regarding the State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina and the National Association of Free Will Baptists. Brother Ballard caused the editor to admit that in order to be a member of his Association that he had to be "connected." The article by Brother Ballard, I say, is good and should be read by every Free Will Baptist connected with the State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina.

I had thought that I would say nothing more about connection nor congregational form of government. Then I received another letter which was given to me, but not written to me, in which the writer did not state facts, but gave his own interpretation of the controversy. His mistaken, or willful, erroneous statement of facts has caused me to write again.

I am stating without hesitation that personally I am a "congregationalist" on the local level, and I have preached that form of government for 54 years; but after I was ordained in the Western Conference by vote of the examining board in October 1910, I connected my ministerial fellowship with the aforesaid conference. In 1918 I transferred my membership to the Eastern Conference, where I was received by the conference by unanimous vote of the body. I liked the fellowship of the Eastern Conference so well that my connection with the conference is active today. This conference has jurisdiction over the minister and over the churches composing the Eastern Conference. This means that if I should preach a doctrine contrary to our treatise, the conference can deal with me; and if the charges are serious enough, I can be excommunicated and my credentials be demanded. And if I am truthful, I will surrender these to the ordaining council.

NEW YEAR

Dear Master, for this new year

Just one request I bring:

I do not pray for happiness

Or any earthly thing;

I do not ask to understand

The way Thou ledest me;

But this I ask, teach me to do

The thing that pleaseth Thee.

I want to know Thy guiding voice,

To walk with Thee each day

Dear Master, make me swift to hear

And ready to obey.

And thus the year I now begin

A happy new year will be

If I am seeking just to do

The thing that pleaseth Thee.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 RICHLAND AVENUE

NASHVILLE 5, TENNESSEE

QUESTION: Please explain, "But he that prophesieth speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort. He that speaketh in an unknown tongue edifieth himself; but he that prophesieth edifieth the church. . . . Let your women keep silence in the church: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church" (1 Corinthians 14:3, 4, 34, 35). "Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence" (1 Timothy 2:11, 12). I have heard these verses discussed by several people at different times and in different ways, but have never had what I thought to be the clear and unbiased and correct interpretation given.—Magaline Taylor, Kinston, North Carolina.

ANSWER: For some unknown reason, there are times when those of us that are supposed to explain Scriptures do just the opposite and in this way leave the inquirers more confused than they were when they came to us for help. We who do this might well be classed with those, who in the days of the events of the Bible, were called "miserable comforters." These verses are from simple passages and all teach a simple truth, a truth that is consistent with all else that is taught in the Bible. Saying this does not mean, however, that I or any other living man knows all that is meant by what is found in these verses; for none of us has a clear, full, complete, and final understanding of any, even the most simple of all the passages of Scripture in the Bible.

The word prophesieth in 1 Corinthians 14:3 means about the same as preacheth. When we preach, we speak to men and women in an effort to edify, exhort, and comfort. When we edify, we instruct, build up, encourage, etc.;

that's what we preach to people for. We help the Christians to see all God has done for them, how they have been exalted as they were baptized by the Holy Spirit into the body of Christ, and thus made a member of that glorious body. We tell them that they no longer belong to this world, in that their citizenship is limited to this realm. We further tell them that they are heirs of God and joint heirs of Christ Jesus and that all things belong to Him because all things were made by Him. All that He possesses, we, who are Christians, have come into possession of; and as He possesses us, we also possess Him. Then we exhort those, the same people, to be followers together with us of Him, pointing out that He said that He had kept all of His heavenly Father's commandments and that, therefore, we are likewise obligated to keep all Christ's commandments.

Among the several commandments He gave was the Great Commission, in which we are commanded to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature and to teach them to observe all things that He has taught. Again we exhort them to love one another as Christ has loved us, even to the laying down of our lives for the brethren. We exhort those to whom we preach to have a consistent prayer life; this means secret prayer when we withdraw to our closet, and there with God alone prepare ourselves for that which is before us.

Furthermore, we exhort the people to whom we preach not to forsake the assembling of themselves together. Jesus taught that when two or three agree on anything, He will grant it. When preachers have tried their very best to obey Christ's commandments and as a result of this effort, have been misunderstood, and when they have preached zealously that which they believe, many times they have been persecuted—some perhaps as Paul, who was whipped with thirty-nine stripes. As we preach to these we seek to comfort them by telling them that Paul says, "The sufferings of these things are not to be compared with the glory that is to come, that this suffering at the most, will not likely last a hundred years; whereas, the glories that come as a result, will have no less time to enhance our joys when we have been there a billion years, than when they began."

Then in 1 Corinthians 14:4, the unknown tongue is mentioned as a sign that helped to give the early work of the apostles that which seemed to be needed in the outset of the spreading of the gospel, but which was abused and wrongly evaluated at a later time. One who spoke in an unknown tongue edified himself, in that he called attention to the fact that he was a speaker of distinction and a person that was possessed by supernatural power.

Evidently as time passed and sufficient witnesses were to be observed as being followers of Christ; as possessing the miraculous gifts that accompany Christian lives, including the power to live victoriously over sin and in fellowship with each other in love; and as carrying out Christ's commission, there was not this need of one's being exercised in this particular gift of tongues. On the Day of Pentecost such was useful and apparently needed, while one hundred twenty simple Galilean followers were challenged to go out to the market place and preach to Jews from more than a dozen nations that could not speak and understand good Hebrew, much less the speech of these Galilean fishers and those of other manual occupations. So the Holy Spirit accommodated them when He affected their speech, reversing the miracle that occurred at the rebellion at the tower of Babel. At the tower of Babel, you will recall that, led by Nimrod, the earth's population that had never had any language difficulty rebelled against God, and God there brought judgment upon them in confusing their tongues so that they could not understand one another and be able to carry out this rebellion further. Now at Pentecost, God pushed away that blight long enough to give opportunity for the apostles to speak the gospel in clearness so as to make it understood in a language they each understood. (Compare Genesis 11:1-9 with Acts 2:1-19.)

Christian Stories for Our Boys and Girls

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

REV. JOHN THOMAS

LITTLE Mary's eyes sparkled with glee. Her dimpled cheeks glowed with pleasure as, in answer to the "Come in" of Mother, she bounded into her mother's room, showing the new year greeting.

There was snow on the ground outside. There was snow on the trees, and snow very deep, all over the meadows and down the high-banked lane. Everything seemed still. The birds did not sing, and no little twig was stirred by ever so tiny a breeze.

Far away, in the quiet air, Mary could hear the joyful church bells. She thought they were singing "A Happy New Year!" to all the world.

Mother answered her little girl's greeting with a kiss and a loving response. Mary leaned on Mother's bed, and turned her eyes to the window. The curtains were drawn back.

There she could see the beautiful pure snow everywhere—on the hills far off, in the fields, and covering the pretty little woods. She had often delighted to wander in the woods, picking flowers, or gathering nuts. It all was a great white robe of snow now. The sky was clear, and the sun that had just risen was shedding a rosy light over the dazzling white that was everywhere.

"Mother, it seems just like new year to me, this morning—just as it ought to be. Don't you think so?"

"It is a beautiful beginning, my darling. But why does it seem to you just like new year?"

"Well, Mother, it is all so white and pure. There is no dirt, nothing ugly, nothing broken, n o t h i n g unfinished. Whatever there was like that, the beautiful snow has covered over and hidden. It's all like beginning again. Then, Mother, the sun is shining. There is no cloud at all. Everywhere the bright, warm light comes down upon pure, white snow. It finds no dirty thing that ought to be ashamed to be seen.

"It looks so right for the pure light to come down upon the pure snow. Doesn't that seem like all beginning again, too, Mother? Everything is quiet, all but the bells, and they seem to shout out to all the whole world, 'Cheer up, make the best of a happy new year!' I think it's just the right way to begin, Mother."

"Does my little girl hope to have such a beginning really for herself? The snow may melt. Then the sun will find out much that is unsightly, broken, and unfinished. It is all there, only it is covered over for a little while. Whatever is there will surely be seen again. But, in my Mary's own case, what does she think?"

Little Mary spoke very softly, as she replied to her mother. There was light in her eyes as she looked up into her mother's face. "I know, Mother, that if all my past year had just been left alone—just as I made it—it would look very much worse than all the world did before it snowed. I know that all the snow that ever was would not really take the sin, and the mistakes, and the undone things away.

"But I went to Jesus, and said to Him, last night, before I went to sleep, 'Dear Jesus, wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.' I know He said to me, 'Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.'

"I went to sleep, glad that Jesus had taken away my sins. He had covered me over with His own robe of righteousness. That is whiter than snow, Mother. There is no wrong under it, because before He put it over me He made me clean. I know that the robe is Christ's, not mine. I know that He has taken care to wash me pure before putting it on.

"This morning, I know the sunshine of His great love is all over me. He is just all round me, Mother. He doesn't see the things left undone, the things broken, all the sin and wrong, because He has covered me over with His snow, and cleansed me with His blood.

"It is all quiet within, Mother. Jesus is the only speaker, and He says to me, 'Now you are clean. Abide in Me, and I in you. A happy new year, Mary!'"—Nazarene Messenger.

HELEN FRAZEE-BOWER

ACLEAN, white page," said Daisy, turning away from the snowy world outside her window. She sat down on the carpet to tie her shoes. "That's what the man called New Year's—'a clean, white page to begin on.'"

"If you don't hurry up, your breakfast will be a clean, white cloth, with nothing at all to begin or end on," laughed her teasing brother George, overhearing her remark.

"I don't believe George ever thinks of such things," said Daisy, but hastening her dressing nevertheless, "Now, I want to do something really good—something first-rate—to begin the clean, new page with."

But opportunities for wonderful deeds seemed very poor that morning. There were muffins for breakfast. Daisy did not like muffins, or feel inclined to plan grand doings while she ate them. Then, before she had time to decide what she would do afterward, Mother asked her to take care of baby while she went to the kitchen for a little while.

"Must I take care of him today? Why, Mother, it's New Year's!" exclaimed Daisy, in an injured tone.

"Well, dear, we don't want poor little Puck left to bump his nose or tumble down the stairs on that account, do we?" said Mother, as she turned away to her duties downstairs.

She came back in an hour. Daisy

Memorial Gifts

A plan for memorial gifts has been prepared for those who would like to make contributions to the building fund in memory of relatives or friends. An attractive booklet outlining these memorials may be secured from the college or the downtown office of the Mount Olive Junior College Area Foundation.

Memorials range in size from $500 to $25,000 or to the naming of an entire building. A $1,000 gift will memorialize a dormitory room, $2,000 a faculty office, or $10,000 a classroom.

If the donor chooses, he may use his gift as a living tribute to a friend or for himself. Special gifts to the building fund will provide permanent recognition to loved ones or to the donor himself.

President W. Burkette Raper will be happy to discuss details for a memorial gift with interested persons at their home or at the college.

NCC General Board Commendation for Mrs. Kennedy

Philadelphia (EP) — The General Board of the National Council of Churches, in a resolution adopted here, lauded Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy for her "dignity and poise under the most shattering circumstances."

They said her conduct since the tragic slaying of President John F. Kennedy has given the world "a demonstration of the grace that enables a Christian not merely to endure but to transform tragic sorrow into triumphant courage."

The resolution added: "Her sensitive response to the feelings of others were demonstrated in countless thoughtful acts during the rush of events. She remembered the needs of her household, other guests from abroad and of the people as a whole. In meeting these needs, she avoided the excesses of sentimentality, self-pity, political and national aggrandizement."

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT. The mission department is growing. Opportunities are unlimited. All we need is better support, both at home and for the foreign fields. Remember, every time God calls a missionary, He calls someone or an organization to support that missionary so that he can go. Is it true that missionaries have responded, but those called to support have not accepted the call?

You will note the demand has surpassed the income. We spent more during the last quarter at home and in Mexico than we received. This ought not to be. God is calling more supporters. You need to respond.

A QUARTERLY MISSION NEWSHEET IS TO BEGIN. This newsheet will be entitled "Mission News, Original Free Will Baptist, in Cooperation with State Convention of North Carolina." If you want the first issue please send your name and address immediately to Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina.

God is doing great things among Original Free Will Baptists. Your mission board is finding it difficult to keep up with the progress now being made. Get on our mailing list and see for yourself what God can do when men give themselves unreservedly to the glory of God and the proclamation of the gospel of peace. Conversions are taking place both at home and on the foreign fields, and new mission organizations are being formed. You will want to have a part by sending your support to the mission program supported by North Carolina Free Will Baptists and others.

Lesson for January 12

Philip and Andrew, Evangelists

LESSON TEXT: John 1:35-46

MEMORY VERSE: John 1:42

I. INTRODUCTION

Our printed text for today emphasizes the importance of bringing others to Jesus. This does not mean, however, that each Christian must be an evangelist, pastor, or missionary. It does mean, on the other hand, that each Christian can do something to help in bringing others to Christ. If nothing else, the Christian can pray. Not all persons have the ability to speak, but each person should do all that he is able to do in the field of evangelism.

Philip and Andrew are quite appropriately termed evangelists. Actually, an evangelist is one who announces good news. Unger's Bible Dictionary states: "In a general sense anyone who proclaims the mercy and grace of God, especially as unfolded in the Gospel; therefore pre-eminently to Christ, and the apostles whom he commissioned to preach the truth and establish. It came, however, to be employed in the early Church as the designation of a special class, as in the following enumeration: 'And he (Christ) gave some, apostles, and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some pastors and teachers' (Ephesians 4:11). This passage, accordingly, would lead us to think of them as standing between the two other groups—sent forth as missionary preachers of the Gospel by the first, and as such preparing the way for the labors of the second. The same inference would seem to follow the occurrence of the word as applied to Philip (Acts 21:8). It follows from what has been said that the calling of the evangelists is the proclamation of the glad tidings to those who have not known them, rather than the instruction and pastoral care of those who have believed and been baptized. It follows also that the name denotes a work rather than an order. The evangelist might or might not be a bishop-elder or a deacon."

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. If we know the Lord Jesus personally it is our duty to testify of Him (John 1:36).

2. It sometimes takes only a simple message from a believer to lead another to Christ (vv. 36, 37).

3. Those who follow Jesus shall one day go and be with Him where He abides (vv. 38, 39).

4. The first person to whom we witness may be a member of our own family (v. 41).

5. There may not be many "Peters" in the church today, but there is always room for more "Andrews" (v. 42).

6. If there were no "Andrews" there would be no "Peters"; personal work and preaching are both very important (vv. 41, 42).

7. The Lord Jesus is able to win souls for Himself without assistance from human beings (vv. 43, 44).

8. It sometimes takes effort to find one whom we would bring to Christ (v. 45).

9. Jesus alone can make a Simon a Cephas; of Saul a Paul; of a sinner a saint (v. 42).

10. Only those who have come to Christ first are fit to bring others to Him (vv. 42, 45).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. "The conversion and call of Philip are expressed simply: 'Jesus . . . findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow me' (John 1:43). The call to faith and to follow came at once, and Philip was ready for both. The impressive feature of his conversion is that as soon as Christ found him, Philip sought to bring others to Christ. The convert became a soul winner. 'Come and see,' he said to Nathanael, and he won his friend."—Lockyer.

2. Two teen-agers were recently discussing a project for science class. Jay was explaining a new electro-magnet he was making. "First," he said, "you need an iron core such as this iron bar."

"Will it pick up anything now?" Mike asked.

"Not yet. You have to wrap the core many times with insulated wire," Jay replied.

"Let's see if it will pick up anything now," Mike said impatiently.

"It won't yet. To make an electro-magnet this must be hooked up to a dry cell," Jay explained. "Now watch these nails as I move the magnet toward them. See, they are immediately drawn to the magnet."

How like Philip and Andrew this iron core was. When these two came to listen to John the Baptist, they were not ready to become evangelists. They needed months of preparation and teaching under John's leadership. Only after they came to Jesus, lived with Him, and walked with Him could they become evangelists for Him. Just as the iron bar wrapped with wire was not a magnet until it came in contact with the dry cell, so Philip and Andrew could not become evangelists for Jesus until they had first come in contact with Him.

What a powerful influence Philip and Andrew were as they worked for Jesus. First they brought Peter and Nathanael to Jesus. Then they brought many others to Him.

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

3. For centuries God had been preparing the Jewish people for the coming of Christ. This hope of a Messiah had been a ray of light in the many dark nights of trouble in Israel's long history. God sent John the Baptist as a forerunner to prepare the way for the coming of the Messiah. Last week we learned something of His advent into the world. Our lesson today has been concerned with the beginning of His public ministry and the calling of His first disciples.

The emphasis in today's lesson is upon personal evangelism. There are many ways and methods of winning the lost to Christ, and the church should use all of them. However, we must never forget that the most effective method of winning men is for each man, who has come to Christ, to go out and win another. Andrew has the distinction of being the first person to personally win a convert to Christ.

A few years ago this writer had the privilege of hearing an outstanding pastor speak on the subject, "A Soul-Winning Church." This man's church had twelve hundred converts the year before. If anyone could tell us how to have a soul-winning church it ought to be this man. In his message he emphasized (continued on page fifteen) prophet thundered, "Prepare to meet thy God" (Amos 4:12). How soon should a person commence to prepare?

An unpublished poem of Robert Browning narrates how a man consulted a clergyman in behalf of a friend. "My friend desires to know when he should get right with God," announced the layman.

"Tell him to turn to God the day before he dies."

"But what man knows that day?" objected the man.

"Then tell him to turn today!" commanded the clergyman.

God's Word warns, "Now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2). No one can be sure of a later opportunity.

Yet millions of men, aware that an appointment with death may surprise them anytime, make their wills, but will not yet come to Christ that they may have eternal life hereafter. They provide for the distribution of their estates among their chosen heirs, but neglect their own inheritance hereafter. Some intend to embrace Christ's salvation eventually. "I'll be converted at the eleventh hour!" they confess. But more than one who cherished expectation of eleventh-hour conversion has died at 10:30!

Every day brings Christmas one day closer—and eternity. God "now commandeth all men every where to repent" (Acts 17:30). Every day's relay adds one more day to repent of and subtracts one day to repent in. Christmas is coming, when again we observe the anniversary of Christ's departure from His native heaven to enter our earth. Eternity is hastening for all men, when we shall depart from our native world to enter the hereafter. Man's response to Jesus' redemption determines whether his experience of eternity will be merry or miserable.

again stationed herself at the window and looked out sadly. So much of the morning gone, and nothing worth calling a beginning was made yet! She could not think of anything that she could do.

She tapped on the pane, and did not notice when Mother dropped the ball of yarn, and had difficult work, with baby in her arms, to reach it again. Daisy did not see when Mother had rocked the little fellow to sleep, and needed to have the pillows arranged that she might lay him down.

Daisy did not even notice when Mother left the room and returned, until she heard Mother saying: "Now, Daisy, I want you to put on your hat and warm cloak, and carry this basket to Mrs. Hicks."

"Errands today?" Daisy said unhappily.

"I promised her these things today, and she needs them. You are doing nothing, and everyone else is busy or away," answered Mother.

There was nothing more to be said, but there was certainly a pair of lagging, unwilling little feet that crossed the field and reached the roadside.

There her brother George passed her. "Hello," he called. "I should think from the looks of your face that you had begun your white page by a pretty big blot of crossness."

"A blot! Crossness!" Daisy stood still on the snowy road to think about it. Then a sudden light came to her. How should anyone begin the New Year but by doing each duty faithfully as God sends it?

It was a different face and step that went the rest of the way. When Daisy reached home, she whispered: "I think I know what motto I want for my new page, Mother. I've blotted it dreadfully to begin with, though. It's the verse on my Sunday School card: 'Even Christ pleased not himself.'"—Gospel Banner.

sized the fact that he did not deserve the credit for his church. He said the growth of the church had been made possible by the personal efforts of the members. He illustrated this point in his message by telling how one deacon had gone out and during the year brought in more than one hundred people who had been baptized into the fellowship of his church. What an inspiring example this is! How many souls have you ever personally won to Christ?

for the new year were elected as follows: Mrs. Stanford was reelected as president; Mrs. Lawrence Cuddington, vice-president; Mrs. Calvin C. Medlin, secretary; Mrs. Frank Waddell, treasurer Mrs. Glenn Parnell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Claude Bass, program chairman; Mrs. Joe Sasser, orphanage chairman; Mrs. Wilbert Bass and Mrs. Charles Ray Pope, YFA chairmen; Mrs. Rufus Daniels and Mrs. Selby Vick, AFC chairmen; Mrs. L. B. Woodall, Jr., study course chairman; Mrs. Donald Ray Crumpler, building fund chairman; Mrs. Lucy Jones, Mrs. Leon Edwards, and Mrs. Winston Crumpler, members of the personal service committee.

Plans were made for the auxiliary's adopted daughter at the Children's Home for Christmas. Several more were added to the list of the ones to remember at Christmas.

The hostesses served delicious refreshments of candies, chicken salad sandwiches, nuts, pickles, and grape punch.

Macclesfield, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Edgewood Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Mary M. Stokes on December 1 for its monthly meeting. There were 21 members, five visitors, and one new member present. The pastor's wife, Mrs. L. E. Ballard, gave the program which was very interesting.

During the business session plans were made for the Christmas supper and party to be held on Tuesday night, December 10. At this party the group will exchange gifts, revealing the names of the "secret pals." The members will draw names for their new "secret pals" for the new year.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and enjoyed by all.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Mt. Zion Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, November 29, in the home of Mrs. Aaron Lewis. There were nine members; the pastor, the Rev. Royster Martin; and two new members present. The new members were Mrs. Lovie Narron and her daughter, Mrs. Geraldine Cockrell.

Mrs. Eloise Sutton, program chairman, read the Scripture taken from 2 Timothy 4:1-8; and the group sang "We're Marching to Zion." The pastor prayed the evening prayer. The program, entitled "Old Soldiers Have Walked This Way," was presented by Mesdames Geraldine Cockrell, Myrtle Lewis, Lois Boykin, Margie Pittman, Lizzie Godwin, Lovie Narron, Creamer Johnson, Josephine Johnson, and Nadine Crocker. The group then sang "Onward Christian Soldiers," and Mrs. Creamer Johnson led in prayer. Following the business session the group prayed together the Lord's Prayer. Refreshments were served and enjoyed by everyone.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday night, December 17, at the home of Mrs. Henry R. Johnson. At this meeting the annual Christmas party will be held.

Ayden, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Walter Beddard for its November meeting. The president opened the meeting, and the group sang "We're Marching to Zion." Mrs. Norman Ard prayed the evening prayer, followed by the Scripture text taken from 2 Timothy 4:1-8.

During the business session the roll was called with 20 members and three visitors present. The various committees gave their reports for the month. A report was also given on Yvonne Rouse, the auxiliary-sponsored girl from the Children's Home. A nominating committee for the officers for 1964 was appointed.

The program, "Old Soldiers Have Walked This Way," was given by Mrs. Elma Beddard and was very interesting. The meeting closed with the group's singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" and prayer by Mrs. Willie Beddard.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Rev. Floyd B. Cherry, editor of the Free Will Baptist Press, has received notice of his election to the General Council of the National Sunday School Association.

On November 10, 1953, fourteen girls met at Hull Road Church, Snow Hill, North Carolina, to organize a Young People's Auxiliary. They were assisted in the organization by Mrs. J. K. Rhodes.

In the Editor's Mail—

"Please allow me space in our paper to thank my friends, the auxiliaries, and the superannuation board for the nice cards of greetings and gifts sent me on my birthday and at Christmas. May God bless each and everyone of you with success throughout the new year in my prayer."—Mrs. Almeda Phillips, Route 1, Box 351, Tarboro, N. C.

"Will you please place a notice in The Free Will Baptist for me. I wish to thank the many auxiliaries for the nice cards and gifts sent me on my birthday and during the Christmas season. Each one was greatly appreciated. May God richly bless everyone in my earnest prayer."—Rev. Romie Mitchell, Route 2, Pikeville, N. C.

"The writer cannot find words adequate to express his heartfelt gratitude to the many friends who sent flowers upon the death of his mother who was laid to rest December 26, 1963.

"Again I deeply appreciate each word of kindness, each visit, and every prayer that was sent to the throne of God in our behalf.

"I feel that God made no mistake in sending her to mother us for 69 years, and that He made no mistake when He saw fit to take her from us to be at rest on heaven's eternal shore."—Rev. Charlie Overton, 811 Academy Street, Ahoskie, N. C.

LEAGUES OR AUXILIARIES?

For the past several years there has been a tendency within our denomination to begin something new—to organize for organizational sake. We are not advocating that our different auxiliaries are not needed. What we do want to show is that a new organization does not necessarily strengthen the church.

Let's consider the different auxiliaries of our church; that is, the ones that are offered. For our young people we have the AFC (Ambassadors for Christ), BA (Boys' Auxiliary), and the GA (Girls' Auxiliary). The ages of these groups are from nine through thirteen. An auxiliary for younger children has been suggested which will be called the Children's Auxiliary. For our young people between the ages of fourteen through nineteen, we have the YFA (Youth Fellowship Auxiliary). Then, of course, we have the Free Will Baptist League which has a unique place in the church that nothing else can replace. The strongest of our church auxiliaries is our Sunday School. Then for the ladies we have the Woman's Auxiliary, and for the men the Layman's League.

We realize that each of these has something to offer that can strengthen our church. The purpose of the Sunday School is to lead people to Christ. In its beginning, the Sunday School was called the "Garden of the Church." It has been proven that a great percentage of our church members come from the Sunday School. It is the strongest of our auxiliaries. Next on the list is the Woman's Auxiliary.

It is our opinion that, next to the Sunday School, the Free Will Baptist League can do more for the strengthening of the church than any other organization; that is, if its true purpose is fulfilled. Youth auxiliaries are good, but they cannot fill the place of the League. If our leagues in the local church are weak, it is not likely that they will be strengthened by the organization of a YFA, or AFC. They should be a boost to the other, but such is not usually the case. What we should seek to do is to strengthen what we have before something else is started. More can be accomplished in training our youth, and grown-ups as well once a week than can be accomplished in a monthly meeting. That is, of course, if training is what we are interested in.

An examination of the League's purpose will prove that it can be a great asset to the local church. In the "General Free Will Baptist League Manual," written by the Rev. C. F. Bowen, the League is set forth as the training program of the church. This has always been its true purpose. The first chapter begins:

"The idea of such a training program of the church as the Free Will Baptist League must have been conceived in the mind of God, because since its beginning nearly a half century ago, this organization has developed from a simple training idea to the somewhat elaborate function we now know it to be. Moreover, it has met many of the serious needs of our church members and has been greatly instrumental in developing a well-trained personnel in most of our churches. Also, the Free Will Baptist League has given to our denomination her best preachers, teachers, and missionaries; and, best of all, is still preparing thousands of others who will eventually find their places of service. Indeed, God must have had a leading hand in the formation of so vital an auxiliary in our church.

"Unfortunately, however, there are still many who do not know what the League is and what it purposes to do in the local church. Many churches have never had a league; others, having leagues, have not utilized them as they should . . ."

We are in agreement with Mr. Bowen—leagues have not been utilized as they should. They have not accomplished what they should because we have been unwilling to put forth the effort that is required. We shall continue this subject in next week's editorial.

The Book that Understands Me

by Emile Cailliet

THROUGH my college days in France I was an agnostic. Strange as it may seem to the reader, I graduated without having ever seen a Bible. To say that the education I received proved of little help through front-line experiences as a lad of twenty in World War I would amount to quite an understatement. What use, the ill-kept ancient store of sophistry in the philosophic banquet of the seminar, when your own bud— at the time speaking to you of his father—dies standing in front of you, is aillet in his chest? Was there a meaning to it all? The inadequacy of my views on the human situation overwhelmed me. One night a bullet got me, too. An American field ambulance saved my life and later restored the use of my left arm. After a nine-month stay at the hospital, I was discharged and resumed graduate work.

Needless to insist that the intellectual climate had changed as far as I was concerned. Reading in literature and philosophy, I found myself probing in depth for meaning. During long night watches a few yards from the German trenches, I looked at swollen bodies dangling from the barbed wires, I had been strangely went on reading for my courses, I would file passages that spoke to my condition, then carefully copy them in a leather-bound pocket book I would always carry with me. The quotations, which I numbered in red ink for easier reference, would lead me as it were from fear and anguish, through a variety of intervening stages, to supreme utterances of release and jubilation. The day came when I put the finishing touch to "the book that would understand me," speak to my condition, and help me through life happenings. A beautiful, sunny day it was. I went out, sat under a tree, and opened my precious anthology. As I went on reading, however, a growing disappointment came over me. Instead of speaking to my condition, the various passages reminded me of their context, of the circumstances of my labor over their selection. Then I knew that the whole undertaking would not work, simply because it was of my own making. In a rather dejected mood, I put the little book back in my pocket.

At that very moment, my British-born wife—who, incidentally, knew nothing of the project I had been working on—appeared at the gate of the garden pushing the baby carriage. It had been a hot afternoon. She had followed the main boulevard only to find it too crowded. So she had turned to a side street which she could not name because we had only recently arrived in the town. The cobblestones had shaken the carriage so badly that she had wondered what to do. Whereupon, having spotted a patch of grass beyond a small archway, she had

Graham Addresses Pentagon Christmas Service

Washington, D. C. (EP)—Dr. Billy Graham predicted ultimate peace for the world and foresaw immediate peace for individuals at the annual Christmas service in the Pentagon Building concourse sponsored by the Pentagon Protestant Pulpit.

Addressing an audience of 2,000, the evangelist declared: "The Bible says there will be wars and rumors of wars until Jesus Christ comes again to establish His Kingdom Then we will know peace."

Dr. Graham predicted that "His Kingdom will ultimately prevail." "There is a day coming," he went on, "when governments of this world will bow at the feet of Jesus Christ, the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords."

His 20-minute address featured the annual Christmas service conducted under the auspices of the Office of Army Chief of Chaplains and the chaplain's office of the Military District of Washington. The evangelist said individual peace from feelings of guilt, hate and dishonesty comes by "opening your heart and receiving Jesus Christ as personal Saviour."

Court Rules Obscenity Based On Overall U. S. Standards

Trenton, N. J. (EP)—The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled here that standards of the country at large must be followed in determining whether printed matter is obscene, and not the standard of "a particular individual, group of individuals, or locality."

In a 6-0 decision, with Chief Justice Joseph Weintraub not voting, the court reversed the conviction of Hudson County News Company and Hudson County News Dealers Supply Company, affiliated corporations, on charges of selling and possessing with intent to sell obscene magazines.

The convictions had been upheld by the Appellate Division of the State Superior Court and defendants entered an appeal in the Supreme Court claiming the magazines involved could not be found to be obscene constitutionally.

Writing the court's opinion, Justice Haydn Proctor found that a police search—and confiscation as evidence of several magazines from the warehouse of the news distributor—was in error and in violation of the constitutional rights of the distributor, since only one of the magazines was found to be obscene when the case was finally brought before a jury three years later.

Turning to the question of "community standards," the Supreme Court ruled that the lower courts erred in admitting testimony of lay witnesses "tending to establish that the magazines in evidence were offensive to community standards in Hudson County."

In a footnote, Justice Proctor wrote: "Although the matter was not briefed, we do not believe that a lay witness is ordinarily competent to give opinion testimony on community standards. Of course we do not wish to imply that all evidence of community standards is inadmissible We note that the state purported to qualify the lay witnesses as 'average men.' No witness can qualify as an 'average man.' This is a standard solely for the jury to determine."

Referring to the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court which established the test for obscenity as "whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interest," Justice Proctor ruled:

"If, as we believe, the (U.S.) Court in Roth intended by the phrase 'contemporary community standards' to reject the 'mid-Victorian' concept in favor of the effect on the average member of society, then the 'contemporary community' logically refers to society at large and not some local geographical area."

British & Foreign Bible Society Dedicates Headquarters in Spain

Madrid (EP)—Another chapter in the 160-year history of the British and Foreign Bible Society was written with the dedication here of a new Spanish headquarters for the agency, attended by representatives of nearly all Protestant bodies in Spain.

The society, which first started work in Spain about 130 years ago, resumed operations early in 1963 after its activities had been interrupted in 1956 through restrictions placed on it by the government.

This year the society is distributing about 2,000 Bibles and 4,000 New Testaments in the Spanish language.

Hollywood Christian Group Premieres Film

Pasadena, Calif. (EP) — Pasadena Civic Auditorium here provided the setting for the premiere showing of "This Too Is Hollywood," new documentary film of the Hollywood Christian Group.

In attendance were several well-known Hollywood personalities active in the group, several of them seen in the film. A documentary, "This Too Is Hollywood" depicts the annual "Share Blessings Easter Brunch," attended each year by over 800 at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Master of ceremonies for the premiere showing was Jimmie Dodd, famed "Honey Mouseketeer" of the Mickey Mouse Club. He credited his wife Ruth as the original suggestion for a Brunch which people of the entertainment industry could "share a blessing" and "what the Lord Jesus Christ has done for their lives."

"We love the Lord very much and pray this film will glorify Him," said Dodd as he enumerated the three-fold purpose of the group: (1) To inspire men and women in the entertainment industry to commit their lives to the Lord Jesus Christ; (2) to encourage an effective Christian witness in daily life and occupation; and (3) to provide Christian fellowship and "a means of growth in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ."

Preceding the film, Rev. Leonard E. Erse, Chaplain of the Hollywood Christian Group, gave a dedicatory prayer "that someone in the audience (would)

IT WAS already a long time ago, but Methuselah as an old man I never forgotten.

"I number many more than twice the years my father numbered when he spoke to me," Methuselah said to himself, "but I remember the talk as if it were this morning."

* * *

"The best that life can leave with me," said his father Enoch, "is something that you can share with some other person."

"One moment only?" said Methuselah. "If you have one such," Enoch said, "your life will not have been empty. Life is not the richest, but they are not in the coin of time. The richest life is not the longest, the richest life is the one which in the end brings back to memory the largest number of moments that have been lived."

Methuselah thought a minute. "What do you mean by a shared moment?" he asked. "I have had companions in wasted hours. I have been through whole days with others who were strangers in the morning, still strangers at night. I have had my own times when I could have been happier if I had been alone. You can't expect that to live through a certain space of time within eyeshot of somebody else is something rare and beautiful?"

"No," said his father, "of course not. There may be hours and moments which you were forced to spend with others, like hours in a cage, hours when the bitterness is doubled because there were others who knew your hour of shame. There are times you long to share and cannot, and there are times which you do share, and you do not regret it. But still I say the best thing in life is a sharing of memories, and the best memories are those we share."

"Imagine yourself in love" (and this was not difficult since young Methuselah had imagined this two or three times before he met Sarah)—"in love," Enoch repeated, "and the girl said to you, 'I do not care to be with you any more. I will not sit by you to hear music nor to watch the Euphrates games; I will not be seen with you at banquets nor in the house of burning. I do not wish to be with you at all. But look! my father has this day given me fifty shekels all my own. Here is the half of them. Take these and go.'"

"Would that satisfy you? Would you rather she shared one hour with you than all her dowry? If there is something you prize more than a memory shared with someone, that is one proof you do not love that person with all your heart." Methuselah wondered: "Is this always true? What about the time before Sarah and I were married, and I sailed away in a merchant ship far up the great Euphrates toward the terrible mountains where winter sleeps through the summer days. In my going, I chose a memory which I could not share, rather than to be with Sarah and share all memories with her. Yet I loved her, then and always."

"You chose rightly," his father told him. "When you returned, you were no longer boy and girl. Sarah herself was pleased that you so chose. Had you married first, it would have been little more than the marriage of children. Marrying later you knew and she knew that absence would not destroy true love. You married a young woman, not a child; and she married not a boy but a man who attained his manhood by facing danger and death on far waters. What you bring to a moment of memory determines what you will take away. Who you are also, what manner of person, determines your memory likewise. The life you have begun to share with her is richer because it is two grown persons, not two children, who share their memories."

"What makes friendships? What makes love?" the frail Enoch went on. "Memories held in common, is it not? The more the memories, the closer they are who remember."

"But what about two persons who have never met, and yet when they meet it is as old friends?"

"That is simple," Enoch said. "Those two have never met, yet they have gone through the same darkness and the same light, and they have felt these in the same way. Not all men feel alike in the many seasons of life. The same pleasure, or the same pain, is not felt by all men in the same way. Yet these men, strangers, have met all the seasons of life as if they were one man. What one recalls with bitterness, the other likewise; and what brought joy to one, blessed the other with equal delight. So when they met, though each was strange to the other, they were to each other as friends because through their years, to that day of meeting, life had meant almost the same to each."

"Almost! That is the rub," Methuselah said. "Is it not true that the heart knows its own bitterness and a stranger does not intermeddle with its joy? Is this not what is most sad about our life, that even those who are friends and lovers, when they suffer or enjoy the same pain or pleasure, find it is never quite the same? Is this not a wall without a door, not to be climbed?"

"No," Enoch said. "If there are two who love each other, they will take much comfort from learning that neither one ever feels just what the other feels. For a circumstance is never mere happenings, this after that after the other. A circumstance is what it is and also what it is felt to be. A circumstance is never fully a circumstance till it has passed through the sieve of someone's mind. It is the same picture for all—but the color is different for each."

"And this is not bad. Each sees, let us say, with a different eye; but the truth is in what both eyes see. What you see, you see best with both eyes open at the same time. So with yourself and Sarah. When your memory of a shared moment is not the same as hers, who is right? Neither is right alone; both are right together. A moment shared is never the same to each of those who share. How can it be, since neither one is the other?"

"I begin to see," Methuselah said. "I ought to stop quarreling with Sarah because our memories are never the same. We are not strangers, we inhabit each other's hearts. We might take joy from seeing the same picture in two colors."

in, Confession, Forgiveness

"Thou art the man" (II Sam. 12:7).

God's LOVING-kindness and tender mercy toward King David was expressed in sending a messenger to tell him that he had sinned and "displeased the Lord."

Nathan, the prophet, spoke to him in a parable, showing the injustice and wrong done by a rich man toward one who was very poor. "David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this thing shall surely die . . . And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man."

God's messengers have always had personal, heart-searching messages to deliver and not all have been received by the one sent to David.

Christians are not all so willing to be told the truth; in fact, there are comparatively few who are as ready to receive a simple statement of their spiritual disease and need as they could receive from the physician concerning their physical need. Usually the more thorough the examination the better the patient is pleased with the physician. But spiritual pride and a deep undercurrent of the old self-life will turn a deaf ear to the truth, and even turn down the messenger of God with the truth.

Someone has said that the four hardest words to say are, "I have done wrong." But whether it was hard or not for David, he immediately said to Nathan, "I have sinned against the Lord." and Nathan said to David, "The Lord also hath put away thy sin."

Sins confessed are immediately forgiven. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (I John 1:9). There is not only provision made for the forgiveness of sins, but also for perfect cleansing.

David made no excuse for his sin, either did he try to vindicate himself by blaming another, but he said, "I acknowledge my transgressions" (Ps. 11:3). It was not hard for him to turn around and get in line with the will of God.

A little out of Dayton, Ohio, a young man met an old gentleman one day and asked, "How far is it to Dayton?" "Twenty-five thousand miles," was the answer, "if you keep on as you are going now, and a quarter of a mile if you turn square around."

Many today would be happy and victorious in the Lord if they would have humbled themselves to receive the truth from God's messenger.

Let us not be as the "horse, or as the mule," that must be turned aright with its mouth, but be governed by the wisdom that is from above which is "first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy" (James 3:17).

David's sin was very grievous in the sight of God, but his confession was complete. His transgression was public and so was his confession, and the blessedness of sins forgiven he also makes known to the world, saying, "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile" (Ps. 32:1, 2).

There is deliverance from all evil habits and unsanctified ways and manners when there is a steadfast purpose in heart to be rid of such hindrances. A girl who wished to conquer a habit of sharp speech tried the experiment of confessing in prayer each night every unkind remark she had made during the day. The change in her talk was marked. "I felt so ashamed as I repeated such words before God," she said years afterward, "that all day long I tried to guard against having any to confess the next night. I grew to hate the sin, and then, of course, I stopped it. The trouble had been before that I did not really hate it though I thought I did."

In times of testing and trial the true character is revealed, and those who love the truth will humbly accept it from the mouth of God's messenger, as David did, the man after God's own heart (Acts 13:22).—D. B. R.

CHRIST ALONE

KATHRYN A. HORTON

What makes the Christian life so sweet,
And all its joys here complete?
Whence comes its inner strength and stay?
Where springs its hope for each new day?
Wherein is its great comfort found,
With all the graces that abound?
What is its source of triumph here
O'er disappointment, doubt, and fear?

'Tis not in blessings He doth send Though they are sweet, and have no end;
But 'tis in Christ, and Him alone,
That such abundance here is known.
He is life's glory and its light,
Its sweet fulfillment and delight;
He is its beauty and its song,
Its comfort when the night is long.

He is life's fount of joy and praise,
Its only hope through earth's dark days;
He is its peace when troubles press,
Its anchor in the time of stress.
He is its fullness and its strength,
Its height and depth, its breadth and length;
He's Life itself, a gift so free,
Ours for time and eternity.

MY PRAYER

by MRS. CLAYTON "CHRIS" CANNON

Am I a beggar on the road of life?
Am I seeking too much everyday?
Am I asking too many favors from you
If I am, God show me the way.

Should I accept things as they come
And consider them a matter of fate?
Or shall I continue to seek something more
Before it's eternally too late?

Are my desires in accordance with you will?
Can I accept them if they're not?
Or will I keep on searching for self things,
Adding to my soul another dark blot

God give me courage to do what should,
And find happiness in whatever you choose;
I feel that there is so much in life to be gained,
But there's much, much more to lose

Help me to find a path that is right;
To not complain when the going gets rough.

I can find momentary pleasures,
But without you, that's not enough.

Be the light upon my path;
Be the sparkle within my eye;
Help me live each day to the fullest
From now till the day I die.

You are my hope and my salvation;
Without you I couldn't live;
But just taking will gain me nothing
Unless I can learn to give.

God grant me wisdom and tolerance
That the Golden Rule may be my way;
I give my life unto your keeping;
Use it as you will, I pray.

Amen.

AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

News and Views OF THE Woman's Auxiliary

Pink Hill, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sandy Plain Free Will Baptist Church met for its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night, December 17, at the home of Mrs. Joe Johnson. The meeting opened with a song by the group, followed with prayer by the president, Mrs. Bertha Smith. The president also gave a warm welcome to the 13 members and six visitors present.

During the business session the refreshment committee suggested that the auxiliary draw names for a secret pal for one month. It was also suggested that a card and flowers be sent to Mrs. Joel Kennedy who is a patient in the hospital.

A beautiful worship center was displayed for the Christmas program presented by Mrs. Cagie Houston. Following a special number sung by Miss Thompson, Mrs. Houston read Luke 2:1-20. The different parts of the program were given by other members of the auxiliary. The meeting adjourned with prayer.

The group then joined together for an old-time Christmas party of exchanging gifts; also surprising the president, Mrs. Bertha Smith, with a box full of gifts. Refreshments were served by the refreshment committee.

Ayden, N. C.—The AFC of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Gerald Briley with Diane and Donna Briley as hostesses for its November meeting. Diane Briley called the meeting to order, and the group sang "If You Know the Lord." The opening prayer was by Cynthia Garris. There were eight members and three visitors present.

During the business period it was decided that at the next meeting each member would bring 25c for missions instead of exchanging Christmas gifts. Plans were also made for the Christmas party to be held at the next meeting. Three get-well cards were sent to sick members of the church.

The program Scripture was taken from Luke 17:11-19; and Nancy Garris, Diane Briley, and Joann Jones presented the program. Closing prayer was by Mrs. Claxton McLawhorn.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Church Construction Trails 1962 Figure

Washington, D. C. (EP)—Church construction for October totalled $85 million—bringing the total to date for 1963 to $791 million—the U. S. Bureau of Census reported here.

These figures represent a drop compared with 1962 which had recorded totals of $91 million and $819 million, respectively.

WHERE IS HAPPINESS?

by Albert M. Ezell

You ask me where is happiness
And whither it is found,
Within a world so filled with care
Where strife and grief abound?

'Tis found within the wood and field,
The meadow and the plain;
In every shady sylvian path
And down each country lane.

'Tis found at dawning in each flower
That through the balmy night
Has gathered jewels for a crown
Of iridescent light.

'Tis found when summer's torrid heat
That sears the growing grain
At last is broken by the showers
Of welcome, cooling rain.

Yes, happiness is found within
The laughter of a child;
Within a father's honest toil,
Within a mother's smile.

So, live with courage and with hope
Where care and trials abound;
And soon you'll find 'tis in your heart
Where happiness is found.

THE DOUGLASS SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS 1964

A COMMENTARY ON THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

provides for the teacher's easy and thorough use

- Bible text in the King James Version
- Lesson plan for each Sunday of the year
- Careful and systematic exposition of the meaning of each part of the Bible passage
- Practical, easy-to-follow hints on how to teach the lesson
- Audio-visual recommendations
- Ample challenge for the most demanding classes of teen-agers or adults

THE DOUGLASS SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS 1964 is known for its sound Biblical approach to teaching. Christianity Today said of the 1963 edition:

"The Douglass Sunday School Lessons, by Earl L. Douglass . . . is the most extensive of these commentaries, yet is very moderately priced. . . . It is evangelical and interdenominational. Although it sees valuable contributions from all branches of Christendom, certain beliefs are stressed that all Christians must accept. These include a belief in God as Creator, authority and inspiration of Scripture, and Jesus Christ as the divine Saviour of the world. . . . Its strength lies in its aids for teachers and its illustrations. It is a good commentary for the teacher who desires to do a better-than-average job."

SATANIC POWERS

Not too long ago we wrote on the subject, "Satan"; but since we have had so many criminal acts since that writing, our mind is turned toward the sin and crime in the midst of our nation. But of all the crimes and suffering produced of late by the powers of Satan, the death of our President, John F. Kennedy, whose life was taken by the bullet of an assassin, in whose heart Satan had complete control, is one of the worst.

In John 13:27 we learn that Satan entered Judas Iscariot. It seems to us that Satan had to have complete control of Judas before he could kiss his Lord with a diabolical betrayal. But when Satan had complete control, Judas Iscariot was demon possessed; so I believe that the man who shot President Kennedy was demon controlled.

It was hatred that caused the trigger to be pulled that took the bullet into the head of the President. There is no telling how many people that there were who were and are in accord with the assassin in the death of the President. Hatred has caused and is causing the death of millions of people in this world in which we live. No doubt, there are many people who hated President Kennedy, and in their hearts they are glad that the President is dead. This is hard to say; but from our viewpoint, we believe that it is true. While the President was hated by some people, there were millions throughout the world that loved and honored him.

Personally I did not agree with the President in all his political activities, but he was the President of the United States. As a citizen of the United States, and sworn to abide by the laws and edicts, under oath I was obligated to honor him as my President and to support the Constitution of the United States in order to be a law-abiding citizen of the United States of America. I solemnly regret that we have in our nation people who will open their hearts and allow Satan, the archenemy of God and all His righteousness, to enter and take complete control and commit the crime of murdering our President, and not only him but thousands of others. Only a demon-possessed person could do such a thing. There are demons who will rape a little girl and then kill the child.

Hatred is one of the diabolical characteristics of Satan. He hates those whom he cannot control; so do his agents. Someone has written, "Satan is to be feared as a lion, more to be feared as a serpent, and most to be feared as an angel."

Satan is called by many different names. In 1 Peter 5:8 he is called an "adversary"; and in Revelation 20:2 he is called the "dragon that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan." He is against everything that belongs to God. He is a busy character. He runs bar-rooms, beer joints, the home of harlots, gambling dens; makes alcoholics; breaks up homes; and leads both young and old to hellfire. Many of his tactics are founded on hatred and jealousy.

RELIGIOUS HATRED

Religious hatred was born in the early days of the human family. The first hatred occurred when Cain slew Abel. This murder was the result of hatred which sprang from jealousy. This religious hatred is in the world today. It exists between individuals. It exists between denominations. It exists between individual churches. But it is the work of Satan. Satan passes unjust judgment on human beings. Thus Satan is to be feared most as an angel.

No doubt, it was hatred in the heart of the man who assassinated President Kennedy. This writer believes that it was not only President Kennedy who was hated, but also President Lincoln and President Garfield, who were murdered by demon-possessed individuals who had completely yielded themselves to the powers of Satan. But let us get back to religious haters. Martin Luther was hated by the powers that largely controlled the religious powers of that day. John Huss was burned to death by religious haters, and many of the faithful saints of those days suffered death because they wanted to worship God according to the will and purpose of God. I am sure that there are people today who hate those with whom they cannot agree. North Carolina Original Free Will Baptists are not exempt from this hatred.

In a broad sense, some—not all, thank God—hate other denominations and individuals with whom they disagree. Yes, the spirit of Cain lives in the hearts and minds of many. These religious haters can make it hard for those with whom they disagree. A husband can make it extremely difficult for a wife to enjoy her church duties and fellowship with the members of her church. A large number of Christian women have told me how hard it is for them to attend church because of the hatred of their husbands toward the church.

Recently I saw a letter that was written to another man, one whom I consider my friend, that was written out of hatred by a man who disagrees with that man and me. But, thanks be to Almighty God that, before anyone can enter the gates of heaven, all jealousy and hatred must be put away; and the individual who hates others must go to Calvary and have his sins blotted out by confessing his sinful hatred, asking forgiveness from all sin, and receiving Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord; or he will lift up his eyes in a demon's hell.

God does not tolerate sin in anyone. From the pulpit to the humblest church member, from the king to the lowest peasant, all sin is heinous to God.

A FALSE RUMOR

It has recently been circulated that when the Original Free Will Baptists met in Colquitt, Georgia, some time ago that a "new denomination was organized." According to the statements brought to this writer, the "new denomination" stuff is false. It was a fellowship meeting of true Original Free Will Baptists, out of which far-reaching plans were discussed for the spreading of the gospel of Jesus Christ to a lost world. As I have been informed, there was no talk of a new denomination. This writer knows of no plans for a new denomination. We have a denomination which began with the preaching of Paul Palmer, Joseph Parker, and other qualified servants of the Lord more than two hundred years ago. We want nothing better than the gospel of Jesus as preached by the honorable ministers of the Lord Jesus. If any of our accusers will give to us something better than that which was preached by our forefathers and better than this writer has preached for fifty-four years, we will consider listening to what they say; otherwise we will preach the doctrine and adhere to the customs and usages as prescribed by the Original Free Will Baptists for the past two hundred and more years.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 RICHLAND AVENUE

QUESTION: Please explain, "But he that prophesieth speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort. He that speaketh in an unknown tongue edifieth himself; but he that prophesieth edifieth the church. . . . Let your women keep silence in the church: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church" (1 Corinthians 14:3, 4, 34, 35). "Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence" (1 Timothy 2:11, 12). I have heard these verses discussed by several people at different times and in different ways, but have never had what I thought to be the clear and unbiased and correct interpretation given.—Magaline Taylor, Kinston, North Carolina.

It seems that even though God had given a special gift of tongues to the church, which like other special gifts the church had and used advantageously, there were those who abused the gift, or perhaps misused the gift is better said. They got to be like some Christians you and I have known in our day; they wanted to show off a bit. You and I will do just the same if we fail to keep our bodies, or carnal nature, under a scripturally regulated discipline. The flesh will get out of hand and make a show anytime and anywhere if we do not keep it under; keep letting the Holy Spirit crucify it. Evidently these early Christians let the flesh get out of hand, and thereby showed themselves by speaking in tongues to amuse or to declare what powers they were under control of. One might misconduct himself in many other ways that would in like manner bring damage to the Christian church. This could come in the form of singing, preaching, shouting, testifying, and even in the living of a quiet Christian life. Whenever it takes on any form of drama, it is worthless. When a Christian lives for Christ, he is the best showpiece to be found and will be the means of helping more Christians live right than anything else. He will also be the means in Christ's hands of calling sinners to repent; but in living, if he tries to attract, then he has spoiled it all. He has become obnoxious and offensive and will drive men from Christ. When the Holy Spirit came upon the people of Acts 2, and empowered them to speak, He was able to use them effectively and thus brought about His desired results; but when there are those who become professional speakers in tongues, it's a different question altogether. The show is on the flesh which should be crucified instead of being glorified and the good purpose is defeated.

It was indeed a wonderful gesture when Joses of Acts 4 sold all he had and lovingly placed the price thereof at the feet of the disciples for the benefit of all that were working in an effort to win lost, hell-bound souls to Christ. When Ananias and Sapphira sold a certain piece of property, laying part of the price at the apostles' feet for use among the same group, that was quite a different thing; for they evidently did it for the show or drama of the incident, wishing to achieve the praise of men. This attitude led them to lie, so God dealt with them in severe judgment, a judgment that brought sudden death and thereby fear upon the whole church. Let's remember that the Bible always condemns the flesh or that which is carnal about man, and that it calls for each of us to do the same at every stage of the game, whether we have just been born again, or if we have been a Christian quite sometime and remained in fellowship with Christ all these years, or if we have been a backslider for part of the time, or if we are one; now the requirement is ever the same. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it? I the LORD search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings" (Jeremiah 17:9, 10).

The tongue is also a part of the body that needs to be controlled by a sanctified mind. "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain" (James 1:26). "Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth! And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell" (James 3:5, 6). "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Romans 12:1, 2).

Notice what Paul says, how he considers it a part of his Christian responsibility to control his body at all times. "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication: That every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour; Not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles which know not God: That no man go beyond and defraud his brother in any matter: because that the Lord is the avenger of all such, as we also have forewarned you and testified. For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness" (1 Thessalonians 4:3-7). "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty" (2 Corinthians 6:17, 18). "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are. Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness. And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain. Therefore let no man glory in men. For

LOOSERS and FINDERS

Lois Hoadley Dick

GIL WALTERS blew on his fingertips to keep them warm and wished he had worn gloves. How long had he been standing on the corner? An hour? Two? A tan car pulled over to the curb. "Gil! Gil Walters!"

Gil sprang to the open car door. "Glen? Thought you'd never come! Is this Spider?" His arms closed around a wiggling, kicking bundle of life. "Oh, thanks, Glen! Thanks!"

"Be good to him, now." The tan car purred away into the twilight and Gil unzipped his jacket and stuck the puppy inside. He began to trot, the dog bump-bumping up and down in his arms.

"Gill! Wait up!" Ronald Cole hailed him. "Did you get your puppy?"

Gil slowed down. "Hurry up and take a look. I want to get him home before he catches cold." He let Ronald hold the pup while he bent over to tie his loose shoestring. A penknife fell out of his pocket and he covered it quickly with his hand.

"That's Jackie Dye's knife!" Ronald exclaimed. "He's been looking everywhere for it!"

"I found it," Gil said quickly. "Finders, keepers. You know the rest."

Ronald eyed him strangely. "What about the dollar you found? You knew all the girls were helping Margie look for it."

"Come on, give me my dog." Gil took the puppy back roughly and turned to go.

"Want me to help you build the dog house tomorrow?" Ronald called after him.

"Yeh, you can come over in the morning," Gil answered. He kept Spider in a box in the kitchen for the night, with an old alarm clock for company.

Saturday morning was a clear brisk day. Gil was nailing tar paper over a wooden box by the time Ronald arrived.

Gil told Ronald, "My father has some grey shingles out in back of the shed. Let's go get them."

"Better put the pup in the house so he doesn't run away," said Ronald.

"Let him right where he is. He can't get out of the carton." The boys hurried to the shed. "Pick out the best ones," said Gil. "Some are pretty rotten." He sat cross-legged and began to sort them into piles.

Ronald swung himself over the lowest branch of the tree. "Remember how we used to chin ourselves? Watch this!" He hung by his heels and dangled his arms.

"Whee . . . e . . . e!" Gil flung himself up, caught the branch and worked his way higher. "How's this?" He skinned the cat twice, then shinned back down the tree. "I dropped my penknife!" It lay on the moss, its chrome handle gleaming in the sun.

"Jackie's still looking for it," Ron said soberly. "Don't you think that's the same as stealing?"

"No I don't! Ever since you went away to that camp you've acted mighty queer. Good little boy, and all that." Gil patted the knife fondly and slipped it back into his pocket.

"I told you I'm a Christian now. I was saved at camp."

"Saved from what? Were you lost or something?"

"I sure was. Lost in sin. Jesus found me and when I heard He had died because of me—to make me clean again—I just couldn't help loving Him."

"He died on a cross, didn't He?" asked Gil curiously. "On Easter."

"He came back from the dead on Easter," Ronald corrected him. "He's alive, Gil! A real Person! You can talk to Him—just—just like to your own dad. He'll come into your heart, too, if . . ."

"Poooh! I don't believe a word of it! Prove it!"

"I—I don't know how to prove it," Ronald faltered. "I just know . . ."

"Let's go," Gil said abruptly. "Hey . . . the pup!"

They each grabbed a stack of shingles and hurried to the front yard. The carton was tipped over! Gil put down his shingles and raced toward the road. "Spider's gone! Run down the road, Ron! I'll search the woods!"

He had gone clear around the swamp and there was no place else to look. He hated to go home and see the empty carton. What would Glen say when he found out he had lost the puppy the day after he got him?

The front door stood open. He walked right through the house and out the back door. What was everybody doing under the tree?

"Here he is!" Ronald shouted, holding up a furry object. "I found Spider half a mile down the road."

"Yes, Ronald found him," Gil's dad said.

"Yes, Ronald found your dog," his mother nodded.

Gil hardly heard them. He rushed to the pup with his arms out, then stopped dead in his tracks. He half-turned away. "Y-you found him, Ron," he said slowly.

"Well, don't you want him?" Ronald put the dog in Gil's arms and stepped back. "We thought you got lost in the woods, Gil. Your dad was just ready to start hunting you."

Gil cuddled Spider under his chin and followed Ronald around to the front of the house. "You found him," he repeated. "The puppy should belong to you, Ron."

"Huh-uh," Ronald pulled up his drooping socks. "I don't believe in finders-keepers. I told you—I'm a Christian."

"What did you say a Christian was?" Gil kept one hand on the pup's head.

Ronald's face brightened. "It's someone who knows he's sinned, like when I used to swear and smoke and lie to my parents. It's someone who knows he can't get rid of his sin by himself. So he comes to the Saviour, calls on His Name, and believes in his heart that Jesus died for him." Ronald stopped, out of gone in with the baby for a period of rest. At this point in her story, she had a moment of hesitation. As she resumed her account, it turned out that the patch of grass led to an outside stone staircase which she had climbed without quite realizing what she was doing. At the top, she had seen a long room, door wide open. So she had entered. At the further end, a white-haired gentleman worked at a desk. He had not become aware of her presence. Looking around, she noticed the carving of a cross. Thus she suddenly realized that this was a church—a Huguenot church hidden away as they all are, even long after the danger of persecution has passed. The venerable-looking gentleman was the pastor. She walked to his desk and heard herself say, "Have you a Bible in French?" He smiled and handed over to her a copy which she eagerly took from his hand; then she walked out with a mixed feeling of both joy and guilt. (I should confess at this point that I had once for all made the subject of religion taboo in our home.) As she now stood in front of me, she meant to apologize. This was the way things had happened . . . She had no idea . . . But I was no longer listening:

"A Bible, you say? Where is it? Show me. I have never seen one before!"

She complied. I literally grabbed the book and rushed to my study with it. I opened it and "chanced" upon the Beatitudes! I read, and read—now aloud with an undecidable warmth surging within . . . I could not find words to express my awe and wonder. And all of a sudden, the realization dawned upon me: This was "the book that would understand me." I needed it so much that I had attempted to write my own—in vain. I continued to read deep into the night, mostly from the Gospels. And lo and behold, as I looked through them, the One of whom they spoke, the One who spoke and acted in them, became alive to me. The providential circumstances amid which the Book had found me now made it clear that while it seemed absurd to speak of a book understanding a man, this could be said of the Bible because its pages were animated by the Presence of the Living God and Power of his mighty Acts. To this God I prayed that night, and the God who answered was the same God of whom it was spoken in the Book. A decisive insight flashed through my whole being the following morning as I probed the first chapter of the Gospel of John.

I still proceed on the old theme of "the Book that understands me," the main difference being that I now capitalize the B. My devotional life springs from my conversations with Holy Writ. Whenever I am confronted with difficulties, with a puzzling situation, or with a call on which more light is needed, I turn to a set of similar circumstances as presented in Scripture. Or it may be that as I read the Bible as a normal, daily practice, a passage "jumps at me" and lights up the way I must go. Whatever the case may be, I pray over the page, waiting upon Him who speaks through it in a joyful eagerness to do his will. I have learned to beware of putting too much trust in the immediate feelings that may thus be awakened in me, for I know that at such a time, first impressions may amount to mere wishful thinking. Rather, I allow life to take its course, in this way emulating the faith of the Centurion. What is it that the Lord is trying to show me as actual situations develop? Thus I learn to "read" daily happenings in the light of Scripture. The margins of my Bible are marked with dates together with brief reminders of occasions when such a passage "spoke" to me and directed me.

An unexpected result of this approach has been its effect on whatever amount of scholarship I may be credited with. Thus it has sharpened my sensitiveness to the working of the Word in the achievements of such outstanding Christians as Pascal. Some of my students have caught the vision and proceeded upon it. It profoundly moves me to see how the faltering steps I have taken in the light of Scripture have become in their case a firm, steady walk. I think, for example, of some admirable young scholars who are interpreting patterns of Christian thought and like in great writers such as Milton, Bunyan, and Shakespeare. So true it is that any real achievement generally points to an enlightened insight of youth brought to fruition by maturity.

Theological hairsplitting may well suggest to some that a dividing line should be drawn between the scholarly and the devotional approaches to the Bible. All I can say is that things have not worked out this way in my case. My experience of the Bible, unsophisticated though it has continued to be, has actually inspired and directed the best of my efforts as a liberal-arts student.—From Christianity Today, copyrighted by Christianity Today, Inc. Lesson for January 19

Nicodemus, Cautious Inquirer

LESSON TEXT: John 3:1-15

MEMORY VERSE: John 3:3

I. INTRODUCTION

Very little is known of Nicodemus, but it is thought by some that he was Nicodemus Ben Gorion, the brother of Joseph, the historian. This Nicodemus was a member of the Sanhedrin, and considered as one of the three richest men in Jerusalem. It is said, however, that this Nicodemus became poor; and his daughter was seen gathering barleycorns for food from under the horses' feet. This possibility was the result of the persecution he received for having embraced Christianity.

Nicodemus, as did most of the Pharisees, sincerely longed for the coming of the kingdom of God, but they expected it to be established by a political revolution, and by acts of power which the miracles of Christ seemed to prophesy. They believed that every Jew, by right of birth, would have a place in that kingdom. Thus, Nicodemus came to interview Jesus that he might determine His part and place in this matter.

There is an unflinching charm in the story of Nicodemus, but there is also a deep undertone of pathos and sadness. His life is seen in three descriptive scenes in the Gospel of John: (1) In the third chapter he came to interview Jesus by night, and here he appears as a cautious seeker; (2) in the seventh chapter he tries to defend Jesus, and appears as a timid defender; (3) the last mention is in the nineteenth chapter where Nicodemus assisted Joseph of Arimathea at the burial of Christ, and here he appears as a secret disciple. This is what the Scriptures relate concerning Nicodemus, but tradition adds that after this he publicly declared himself a follower of Christ, and was baptized by Peter. He was later displaced from his office and expelled from Jerusalem.—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Nicodemus was a ruler of the Jews, but unknown in the kingdom of God (John 3:1).

2. Nicodemus came by night to the One who is the Light of the world (v. 2).

3. Nicodemus had "religious knowledge," but no spiritual understanding (vv. 2-4).

4. Nicodemus, born into the world by natural birth, still needed the spiritual birth (vv. 3-8).

5. Nicodemus could understand earthly things, but he could not comprehend spiritual things (vv. 9, 10).

6. Nicodemus knew of the brazen serpent, but did not know the blessed Son of God whom it typified (vv. 14-16).

7. Nicodemus knew the Law of God, but did not know that in Christ God had come in the flesh (v. 10).

8. Nicodemus knew the works of the Law, but he did not know the Gift of God's love (v. 16).

9. Nicodemus knew about a teacher sent from God, but he did not know the love of God (vv. 2, 16).—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. If you were to sit down and talk to a friend, it would be relatively easy as long as there were no physical barriers between you. But it becomes increasingly harder to be heard when something like a curtain is hung between you. Some of the sound of your voice is stopped by the curtain and does not reach the ear of your friend. With each successive barrier that is placed between you and your hearer less sound will get through.

When Nicodemus came to Jesus to ask Him about salvation, there were barriers that stood between them. Nicodemus was a ruler of the Jews, a man of some position among the religious leaders. His very position kept him from hearing all the words of life Jesus offered him. His Phariseism also hung in the way. This influential Jewish sect was exceedingly narrow in its view of the kingdom and thus critical of Jesus and His teaching about the Kingdom.

Nicodemus' great learning also stood in the way. As a teacher of Israel, we would expect him to be a bit reluctant to accept the teachings of Jesus, which must have been new and startling to him.

But in spite of all these barriers Jesus' message evidently got through to Nicodemus at least in a small measure; for after Jesus was crucified, Nicodemus was there to assist with the burial.—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. What does it mean to be born again? Some say that when we are born again we turn over a new leaf. Others say that when we are born again we are given a new heart. Still others say that when one is born again he changes his attitude. But the new birth does not mean any of these things. When we were born in the flesh, we were born with a sinful nature. This sinful nature can never know God. When we are born again, God imparts to us a new nature. This new nature is capable of loving God and serving Him. We can never please God or serve God with the old nature.

There is a great must connected with the new birth. It is an absolute necessity. The new birth is necessary because of our sinful natures, because of our inability to help ourselves, and because it is the method which God has ordained. The idea of being born again may be distasteful to some, but there is no other way that one can come to God. This is what Jesus meant when He said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

The new birth is beyond our ability to understand; therefore, there is a great mystery connected with it. Through the study of science man has learned a great deal about himself, but he has never been able to tell by what process a soul is born again and becomes a child of God. The only way that it can be explained is by saying that it is a miracle of God. It is something that we cannot do for ourselves, and no one else can do for us. It is a miracle that must come from God.

The new birth involves more than joining a church, keeping a church ordinance, or even living a clean moral life. It is a personal, heart experience with God. Have you, dear reader, had this experience? Has God done something in your life that has completely changed you?—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. There are those who argue that the heathen who have never heard the Gospel are not lost. They say that because they have not had an opportunity to be saved, therefore God should not condemn them, for it would not be fair for them to be punished for sin when they are ignorant of the plan of salvation. But Jesus stated plainly that a man must be born again, otherwise, he could not see the kingdom of God, nor could he enter into the kingdom of heaven. Heaven is a holy place for holy people, and even though God might feel sorry for the sinner, the fact remains that the unregenerate man is not fit for heaven. Until a man is born again, he hasn't the capacity to appreciate heaven, nor is he eligible for heaven.

Though a man may be ever so ignorant of the truth, he still lacks a new nature, and he must be a "[partaker] of the divine nature" before he can enter heaven.

God may pity the sinner, but He cannot save him until as a sinner, he acknowledges his sins and comes to God for salvation. Though God loved him enough to send His Son to die for his sins, He cannot overlook a sinner's sin. Sin must be paid for. He must be born again.

A sinner is a sinner, lost and without hope, whether he is in America or China. Location does not change his lost condition and his need of salvation.

If all men weren't lost in sin, it would be foolish for us to send missionaries to the uttermost parts of the earth. All men have some religion, and some religions teach morality. But morality and sincerity are not enough. A man must be born again. Otherwise, he is lost in sin! That is why we must evangelize the world and preach the Gospel to every creature—because men are lost in sin!—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

breath. "There! That's what a Christian is, Gil. He's born again, into God's family. He's all different inside."

Gil sat still. The penknife in his pocket felt heavier than lead. The dollar he had spent on ice cream bothered him. He'd give the knife back, and earn a dollar to give Margie—but the sin would still be there. Margie and Jackie would forgive him, but God would have to forgive him, too. "I believe what you just said, Ron, but can God forgive my sin? Will Jesus come into my heart if I ask Him?"

"Sure!" Ronald answered. "But—Gil—I thought you wanted proof. You told me to prove what I believed—and I didn't know how—except for the Bible."

"You proved it," Gil mumbled, "when you found Spider and didn't keep him. You really lived up to what you believed. Maybe I could be like that, too, huh?"

all things are your's" (1 Corinthians 3:16-21). "But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway" (1 Corinthians 9:27).

Any kind of preaching or teaching that would give anyone freedom to speak or act other than as the whole of the teaching of the Bible allows or requires would be wrong and unchristian. I must keep my tongue, my hands, my feet, my eyes, my ears, and every part of me under the Holy Spirit's control, if I am to please God; and this can be done in no other way than that I study and know what the Bible says and do that; and this does not mean that I may isolate some brief passage or expression from the Bible and in a fanatical way give glamour to the flesh. Satan did that by playing it up out of proportion to the rest of the Scriptures as is seen in Jesus' temptation, which may be seen in the reading of Luke 4 and Matthew 4. Just as the Bible holds us responsible to know the whole Bible and apply it to our daily living, so does Jesus. Jesus was heard more than once saying, "It is written," "Search the scriptures," and like expressions that sent His followers to the Word of God for the final answer. Likewise He holds us responsible for what we might, but do not know, for the simple reason that we have not studied the Bible as we ought.

"Did you never hear two strings making the same tune on one harp?" Enoch said.

"But after all," Methuselah asked, "is there not much we can never share? Do we not have to live some moments alone and in great darkness?"

"No. Not in truth. If a man ever thinks he is alone, if he has not learned that he need not be alone and cannot be, he has not learned the great secret. There is always One who more than wife or husband, more than father or son, shares every moment of life . . . only because we cannot see him we think he is not there."

come to know Christ" through the viewing of the film.

Setting for the opening scenes of the film was Roy Rogers' Triple R Ranch, with Dale Evans Rogers introducing the events to follow and paying tribute to one of the founders of the group, the late Dr. Henrietta C. Mears.

In the testimonies that followed, at the Brunch at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, additional tributes were paid to Dr. Mears, whose unseen presence was felt throughout the film.

As Jay North, TV's "Dennis the Menace" put it: "I betcha she's right here now beside us . . ."

Evidence that the testimonies of members of the Hollywood Christian Group have a ministry to others was seen in the testimony of Mickey Mouse Clubber Cheryl Holdridge, who said that it was at last year's Brunch that she found the Lord.

After several spontaneous testimonies, Rev. Ralph Hoopes introduced his wife, Christian film actress Georgia Lee, who gave a stirring testimony.

Then the scene shifted back to the Triple R Ranch where Georgia Lee sang Ralph Carmichael's invitation song, "The Saviour Is Waiting" as a reverent closing to the film.

"This Too Is Hollywood" is a World-Wide Pictures Production, Dick Ross, producer.

Following the premiere showing at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, Dale Evans Rogers presented a brief devotional message.—Reported by Roy Wolfe

N. C. Baptist Journal Raps "Headline-Seeking Ministers"

Williamston, N. C. (EP)—Charity and Children, an official publication of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, has criticized "headline-seeking ministers from Massachusetts" for involvement in this community's racial problems.

In an editorial, the paper referred to the arrest here of 15 white clergymen from the North who had been protesting racial bias. It said their visit was "unwise and in poor taste" since the town's "Christian leadership is seeking an amicable solution" to race problems.

"The real tragedy of their escapade is that they left their flocks in a community where crime is prevalent, juvenile delinquency is on the increase, and the future of Christian churches could hardly be called rosy," said the editorial written by John E. Roberts.

Editorial—

THE TRAINING PROGRAM

In continuing our subject of last week, let us again remind ourselves that the league is the training program of the church. This fact is clearly stated in the "General Free Will Baptist League Manual" from which was quoted in our last editorial. In defining what the Free Will Baptist League is, the manual states:

"The Free Will Baptist League is not a little organization in a Free Will Baptist church. On the contrary, the league is the church in training. It is a part of the church, yes, but it is actually the church itself doing things together, and learning how to do still more things together."

The purpose is to train every member in the church, from the youngest to the oldest. The training that the leagues give will make "better teachers, better ushers, and better church workers of all kinds."

"Membership in the Free Will Baptist leagues is primarily made up of Christians who are members of the church. Unsaved people are welcomed to the meetings but are not necessarily sought. The Sunday school emphasizes the need of winning men to God; the league emphasizes training them after they have been won."

The manual then lists the ways the league meets the needs of church members: (1) It helps to develop the member's devotional life; (2) it helps the member to be a better servant in the church; (3) it helps the member to be a better steward; (4) it helps the member to have a larger world vision; (5) it helps to teach the church's doctrines; (6) it helps to promote fellowship; (7) it helps the member to be more loyal to his church.

If the league accomplishes only a small part of these goals, it is worth every effort. To be sure, the church will be strengthened. We can readily see that the leagues of our churches can do more for the training of our people than any other phase of our church work.

If the league in your church is to be successful, there will be many problems to overcome. Space will not allow us to enter into a detailed discussion of these problems, but we will mention two which we personally feel hinder the league's progress.

First, there is the repetition of the program of the Sunday school with that of the league. In reality, it should not be so, but it usually is. Most leagues are conducted just as a Sunday school class is conducted. Thus, most members of the church feel that there is no point in attending league. In our leagues, the program is presented by the leaguers who have been assigned the different topics. The program is not taught as the lesson is taught in Sunday school.

Second, there are few church workers who are willing to take the responsibility of working with a league. There are fewer still who are willing to really apply themselves to the task. Because the attendance in the leagues is much smaller than in Sunday school, it is quite easy for the directors and group captains to take their responsibilities lightly. The success of the league is not in numbers; it is in the conscientious effort of the faithful few who labor to make it what it ought to be.

Often we hear church leaders lamenting that no one is being trained to teach in the church. If such is the case in your church, then consider the organization of the Free Will Baptist League. Before you organize however, count the cost. Find out what a good organization involves. Read the "General Free Will Baptist League Manual." Make a list of the prospective workers. When all things are carefully considered, and when the decision is made to organize, then put every effort into making it a success.

Do not organize a league just so your church can say it has one. Instead, consider the need for trained leaders and believe that the league can help meet that need. Remember this, the league will not function automatically. Someone has to work and it may be you. Make your league successful. Unless you determine to do so, perhaps it would be better to forget the matter all together.

Resolutions

By Albert M. Ezell

ONCE AGAIN we find ourselves standing at the threshold of a new year, the time many will be making new year resolutions, resolutions in many cases only to be broken after the first pangs of inspiration have worn off. Timorousness will keep many persons from making any resolutions at all because they will be afraid they will not be able to keep them; therefore, they will feel it is better not to make them than to risk their being broken so soon. This, I think, is a very foolish attitude; for we still find the old axiom of nothing ventured nothing gained as true in this respect as in any other. Temerity, on the other hand, will cause many to make rash resolves which are impossible to keep. Now there is a happy medium to be maintained between those two extremes wherein reason and conscience can become a victorious team.

We find in many cases that the timorous person fails to become a Christian simply because he is afraid he will not be able to continue in the way he has started. They, in their unenlightened minds, fail to grasp the fact that we, within ourselves, are all prone to failure, but that once we become Christians, not we, but Christ, assumes leadership in our lives and we, following Him, become an unbeatable team. I believe that Herodotus spoke some words of noble advice to the timorous in this sentence, "It is better by a noble boldness to run the risk of being subject to half of the evils we anticipate, than to remain in cowardly listlessness for fear of what may happen."

Any time that we are aroused to the fact that we are doing our duty, it will add boldness and additional strength of will to our purpose. We will become so filled with anticipation looking toward the goal of our efforts that discouragement can hardly find a place in our lives. If we endeavor to live so that we are always able to consult a clear conscience; we need not because it will fail us in the counsel it gives in time of danger.

I believe in resolutions. I am sure that we can all resolve to profit by the mistakes we have made in the years that are past. We can resolve that faith, not fear, be the predominant factor in our lives; that works rather than words be the criterion of our inner self; that praise and not censure be the gist of our conversation about others; that joy and not moodiness be the self we show to the world; and that even when our hearts are rent with sorrow we not bring sadness into the lives of others by continually reciting our griefs.

Another wonderful resolution would be to refrain from slander, a disease that is very predominant among all. Even Christians often find themselves involved one way or another, for I believe that running a close second to the purveyor of gossip is the receiver. When any word is spoken about anyone with any hint of evil insinuation, it is always better to change the subject.

Another great resolution is to have tolerance. In our world today there is so much doubt, envy, covetousness, hatred and such a spirit of suspicion and distrust that tolerance has almost been eliminated from man who was created in the image of God, who is the very episome of tolerance. Am I to say that because my brother was created of God with a different color or a different speech that he is to be ostracized? Or am I to affirm that because I adhere to certain faiths and tenets that all other doctrines have to be wrong?

Another resolution would be to cultivate a heart of gratefulness. A continuous spirit of ingratitude can poison one worse than the bite of a serpent. Surely, according to the Word of God, man was created with a superior intelligence to the lesser animals; yet we should be ashamed because of the greater measure of gratitude they show than we. For a small morsel of food our pet cat will show his gratitude by purring and by stroking us with his fur. For a kind word or a gentle pat on the head, our dog will go with us to the very ends of the earth, and has often been known to give his life for us. Yet man remains the most ungrateful of all God's creatures. Resolve in the year ahead to see the beautiful in all things possible. Richard Cecil has said, "Every year of my life I grow more convinced that it is wisest and best to fix our attention on the beautiful and the good, and dwell as little as possible, on the evil and the false."

Many times we fail to see the beautiful side of one's character because we have magnified some little flaw in him. The thing we need to do in this case is to try to know him better, and in the majority of cases we will see him in a different light. "Never lose an opportunity of seeing anything that is beautiful; for beauty is God's handwriting—a wayside sacrament. Welcome it in every fair face, in every fair sky, in every fair flower, and thank God for it as a cup of blessing."—Emerson.

There are a lot of things you can resolve to be more thankful for in the year ahead: for friends, for health, for the ability to earn by your honest labor the things that are for the sustaining health and power of your body and the others who share this life with you, and for the ability to see the creative hand of a beauty-loving God in nature on every side of you. And not least of these, thank God for giving you a heart capable of seeing and appreciating the magnitude of beauty and wonders. He has created for us who are here in His school of learning.

Buddhists Ban Liquor, Gaming, 'Striptease' from Thai Temples

Bangkok, Thailand (EP)—Buddhist leaders in Thailand have banned all "striptease" shows, liquor counters and gambling tables at fairs held in Buddhist temples as dangerous to the morals of people and as undermining the country's culture.

Such activities have been held at Buddhist fairs in recent years, with some of the proceeds going to the temples. Thailand is a predominantly Buddhist country.

Russian Magazine Charges Churchmen 'Pro-Nazi'

Moscow (EP)—Science & Religion, a Russian atheist magazine, has lashed out at the Russian Orthodox monks at the Pechorsky monastery near Pskov for alleged collaboration with the Nazis during World War II.

The article aroused interest because of the apparently tolerant attitude taken by Soviet officials towards the monastery in the past. Last October, a six-member delegation from the U. S. Church of the Brethren visited the monks for two days.

In a five-page article, the magazine claimed there were still monks there who had escaped prosecution for "criminal activity" during the war. Observers saw the article as just another move to discredit churchmen.

Science & Religion charged that there were still 10 monks at the monastery who had collaborated openly with the Nazis. The article was accompanied by photos purporting to show the monastery's wartime head with Gestapo officers. The abbot, it claimed, had permitted valuable religious icons to be taken to Germany for Reichsmarschall Hermann Goering's art collection.

Red China Broadcast Cites Christian Christmas Services

Peking, China (EP)—Chinese Christians, with permission of the Communist regime, celebrated Christmas this year with prayer, carols and Christmas trees. At least, so says Peking Radio.

Catholic churches were thronged here by members of the schismatic "Patriot" Church permitted by the Red regime.

Bishop Ma Wen Chun, chairman, and Bishop Tsai Wen Huan, vice-chairman of the Peking "Patriotic Association of Chinese Catholics," presided at a High Mass at Nantang Cathedral, the largest Catholic church in Peking.

Protestants held services in various churches.

North Korean General Rejects Christmas Spirit

Panmunjom, Korea (EP)—A United Nations officer's attempt to promote the Christmas spirit was rejected here by a leader of Communist North Korea's army.

The incident came at a session of the Joint Military Armistice Commission. On the agenda was a North Korea claim that the U. N. had sent armed South Korean agents into its territory.

In denying the charge, Maj. Gen. Robert F. Sealock of the United States, spokesman for the U. N. command, said he hoped this Christmas would constitute "a step along the long road to peace which began at Bethlehem and which traverses Panmunjom and the thousand other battlefields where free men have died to protect their liberties."

Maj. Gen. Chang Jung Hwan of North Korea interrupted the U. N. official.

"The Korean people do not believe their happiness comes from Christmas," he retorted. "They believe it will come when the uninvited guests, you American imperialists, leave our country."

Skeletons Found— In Bishop's Palace!

Dublin (EP)—Skeletons of a man and a woman have been uncovered under a stone stairway at a Church of Ireland (Anglican) Bishop's Palace at Ossory in Kilkenny.

Unearthed during renovations of the palace, the two skeletons were reinterred in the Ossory cathedral graveyard. The female skull had a round hole through the forehead, probably caused by either a bullet or a sword thrust. There was no doubt, experts said, that both skeletons were those of persons who met violent ends.

The skeletons have caused speculation that they may be those of an archdeacon and his wife who were said to have quarreled with a bishop 200 years ago.

Church of England Reports 27 Million Baptized Members

London (EP)—Church of England statistics released here showed the Anglican body now has about 27,000,000 baptized members in Great Britain, of whom 9,000,000 have been confirmed. Of the total, however, only about 3,000,000 can be counted as regular churchgoers, it was pointed out.

Bill for 'Postal Protection' Against Obscenity Approved

Washington, D. C. (EP)—Greater protection of postal patrons from obscene mail, mail appealing to prurient interest and Communist propaganda came through the action of a House subcommittee on obscenity here.

The nine-man subcommittee headed by Thaddeus J. Dulski (Dem., N. Y.) voted to recommend the passage of H. R. 319 which outlines procedure by which a postal patron may have his name removed from the list of any mailer who sends him matter coming within the above classifications.

Aimed primarily at protecting minors the bill would impose a penalty of a $5,000 fine or 5 years in jail, or both upon anyone who continues to mail matter to a postal patron who has asked to have it discontinued. A minor is defined as an unmarried person under 21.

The bill protects a person from mail matter "which in the opinion of such a person appeals to prurient interest" even where the courts consider the matter as not appealing to prurient interest.

The next step is up to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. It can either vote out the measure for full House action or let the bill die in committee.

The year of 1963 was one of decision and outstanding progress for Mount Olive College.

The year dawned with the future location of the college before the board of directors. In March, after months of study and evaluation, the board declined a million dollar proposition from Newbern to relocate the college in Craven County, North Carolina.

Area citizens responded to the decision of the college to remain in Mount Olive by creating the Mount Olive Junior College Area Foundation to provide for permanent private support. A full-time director was employed by the foundation and an extensive campaign was launched to assist the college in the development of a new campus.

With the purchase of an additional forty acres of land, the new campus site was enlarged to ninety acres, a long-range development plan was approved, and an architect was retained to prepare the drawings for the first buildings. Plans call for the first contract to be awarded in the spring of 1964.

HENDERSON ESTATE

Dr. C. C. Henderson, who died in October, named the college to receive thirty-five percent of the annual earnings of the Henderson Memorial Foundation. The noted Mount Olive physician assigned the bulk of his estate, valued at approximately $700,000, to the foundation which will be a perpetual trust fund administered by the Bank of Mount Olive.

During the year, Mount Olive College was also given membership in the North Carolina Foundation of Church-Related Colleges which will provide another source of stable income.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Gifts to the college during 1963 climbed to an all-time high of $144,137 in cash and approximately $20,000 in stocks for a total of $164,137. Of this amount, $120,000 was given by the Free Will Baptist Church which sponsors the college, and the remaining $44,000 came from area friends and foundations.

These figures do not include contributions through the Mount Olive Junior College Area Foundation which have not yet reached the college.

ENROLLMENT AND EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

The student body grew from 199 for the fall semester of 1962 to 226 last fall. With the opening of school in September, the faculty was enlarged to include a full-time director of student personnel services.

During the year 1,000 volumes were added to the library to increase the book collection from 8,500 to 9,500. By the end of 1967 the college hopes to reach a goal of 20,000 volumes in the library.

INTO THE FUTURE

College officials believe that 1964 will record a year of even greater progress for the young college. The building program on the new campus will permit an enrollment of 400 students by the fall of 1965.

An unprecedented educational awakening among the 35,000 Free Will Baptists of North Carolina is taking place and greater support is assured through the Mount Olive Junior College Area Foundation.

Superannuation Retirement Program

To: Original Free Will Baptist Ministers Subject: The Superannuation Retirement and Insurance Program

Brethren:

There is an urgent need for a greater participation in the superannuation program. The retirement program through the superannuation board will be exactly what we, as ministers, want it to be as expressed by individual participation. The insurance program can only benefit those who participate.

One may participate in the "Ministerial Retirement System" without participating in the insurance program; however, one must participate in the "Ministerial Retirement System" in order to participate in the insurance program since the insurance group is formed from those participating in the "Ministerial Retirement System."

If you are interested please contact the Rev. Walter Reynolds, chairman-treasurer, Route 5, Dunn, North Carolina.

Yours in Christ,
Walter Reynolds

The following is a list of those who have enrolled in the "Ministerial Retirement System":

$100 Endowment Gift Presented Board of Superannuation

The endowment gift of $100 presented to North Carolina Board of Superannuation will be known as the Burress-Galloway Endowment Fund. It was given in memory of Charlie W. Capp Burress and in honor of Mrs. Essie E. Burress of Saratoga, North Carolina; and J. G. Galloway and Mrs. Lydie Galloway of Fountain, North Carolina, by the Rev. and Mrs. Hubert Burress of Pine-tops, North Carolina.

This endowment fund will be placed on deposit with the Church Finance Association. The earnings will be used for the work of superannuation in the Original Free Will Baptist Church of North Carolina by the Board of Superannuation.

If you are interested in making a gift of this nature for the work of superannuation, please contact the Rev. Walter Reynolds, Route 5, Dunn, North Carolina.

Conference Recognizes Resolution Passed by Malachi's Chapel

The following is a resolution passed by Malachi's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Columbia, North Carolina, when in special session Sunday afternoon, December 29, 1963, and which was recognized by the Albemarle Conference of which the church is a member:

"Be it resolved that we, the members of Malachi's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, in special session today, do hereby reaffirm our faith in and adherence to the ways, customs, practices, and usages of the Original Free Will Baptists as set forth in the State Treatise for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina."

Gray Branch Choir Entertained

The Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church choir was entertained at a social on December 18 at the home of their pastor, the Rev. Andrew Hill, Deep Run, North Carolina. The home was beautifully decorated in the traditional Christmas theme.

At the beginning of the evening Mr. Hill read from Galatians 4:4 and Luke 2:1-20, giving comments about the birth of Christ. Mr. Ben Hines led the group in prayer.

Games were enjoyed and prizes were given to the winners. A gift was also presented to Mr. and Mrs. Hill from the choir.

Refreshments of delicious strawberry punch, toasted nuts, decorated cake squares, cookies, tiny pickles, mints, and Christmas candy were served buffet style from the lovely decorated table to the 18 members attending.

Felton C. Godwin Ordained to the Ministry

Felton C. Godwin of Newton Grove, North Carolina, was ordained into the Free Will Baptist ministry by the board of ordination of the Cape Fear Conference at services at Oak Grove church, Sampson County, North Carolina, Sunday evening, December 29.

Participating in the service were the Rev. M. E. Godwin, moderator of the conference, who led in prayer; the Rev.

C. M. Coates of Smithfield, who presided; the Rev. Roland C. Cherry who preached the ordination sermon; and the Rev. Ed Taylor who presented the Bible.

A large congregation of friends from Oak Grove and surrounding churches attended. It is believed that Mr. Godwin is the first member of Oak Grove to be ordained into the ministry since the church was organized approximately sixty-five years ago.

Godwin attended Wake Forest College and is a former superintendent of Oak Grove Sunday School. He is currently serving as pastor of Oak Grove and West Clinton churches.

His wife is the former Christine Gilbert. He is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Godwin of Route 2, Newton Grove.

Cragmont Stockholders Elect Board

At their annual meeting held January 8, 1964, at the Free Will Baptist Press, the stockholders of Cragmont Assembly, Inc., Black Mountain, North Carolina, elected the following Board of Directors: the Rev. Walter Reynolds, president; Fountain Taylor, vice-president; Mrs. J. C. Moye, secretary; Mrs. Clarence Bowen, assistant secretary; the Rev. C. J. Harris, member of the board. Mr. Fountain Taylor was also elected as treasurer for the board. The board elected the officers as listed above.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas our heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom and mercy has seen fit to call from our midst our sister and collaborer, Mrs. Minnie Smith, on June 22, 1963, we, the members of the Lela Nobles Circle of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary, Winterville, North Carolina, desire to submit the following resolutions:

First, we pray God's richest blessings on each one of the family, that while we grieve with the family in their loss, we can only commend them to our heavenly Father for comfort and consolation.

Second, we desire to pay tribute to the memory of our beloved sister. She was a loyal and faithful member and was always present whenever her health would permit. We shall miss her presence and her cheerful smile. We shall always cherish her memory.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to "The Free Will Baptist" for publication, that a copy be sent to the family, and a copy for the minutes of the woman's auxiliary.

MRS. MARY E. WORTHINGTON

Just one year ago today God came to our house to call Our dear mother that was loved by all.

We loved her so much, but God loved her more;

Now she is at rest on that beautiful shore.

Day after day, and night after night, I can still see her in my sight.

Maybe not so plain, but so clear; For the memories of her are so dear.

I try so hard to understand my loss, And try to be more able to bear the cross;

But Mother, I miss you so, More than you could ever know.

I was fortunate in so many ways To have had you for so many days.

No sweeter mother has ever lived; To be just like you, oh, what I'd give!

I'll keep on praying to do my best, To be just like you as you request.

Now you have gone home to that heavenly place;

Sleep on dear Mother until we meet face to face.

AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

News and Views OF THE Woman's Auxiliary

Kenly, N. C.—The Mt. Zion Woman's Auxiliary met Tuesday night, December 31, in the church. There were seven members present.

The program chairman was Mrs. Creamer Johnson and prayer was led by Mrs. Nadine Crocker.

Those taking part in the program were Mrs. Eloise Sutton, Mrs. Nadine Crocker, Mrs. Laudie Brewer, Mrs. Myrtle Lewis, Mrs. Lois Boykin, and Mrs. Lizzie Godwin. The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, January 28, in the home of Mrs. Creamer Johnson.

The meeting was closed with all the members praying together the Lord's Prayer.

Kinston, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Free Will Baptist Church met on Monday night, January 6, in the educational building for its monthly meeting. The program began with the group's singing "Trust and Obey," followed with sentence prayers led by Mr. J. E. Harris and closed by the Rev. A. B. Bryan. Following the Scripture reading taken from Mark 1:1-6, the program, "Beginning with the Master Builder," was presented.

There were 21 members and one new member present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A "thank-you note" was read from Nancy Sue Heath of the Children's Home for the Christmas gift sent her.

All the auxiliary members offered their cooperation in connection with the approaching youth week.

The auxiliary projects for 1964 were read and discussed. The group adopted these projects as a whole and pledged themselves to help in carrying them out.

The 1964 officers were elected as follows: president, Mrs. J. C. Lucas; vice-president, Mrs. Vivian Suggs; secretary, Mrs. William E. Tyndall; treasurer, Mrs. Emmett Tyndall; assistant secretary, Mrs. Brooks Owens; program chairman, Miss Demoine White; study course chairman, Mrs. F. M. Register, Jr.; youth activity committee, Mrs. Jack Everett and Mrs.

Mary Beard; orphanage chairman, Mrs. Charles Lancaster; benevolence committee, Mrs. W. B. Warren, Mrs. W. S. Oliver, Mrs. Merle Lathan, and Mrs. J. C. Gallop; mission chairman, Mrs. A. B. Bryan; flower committee, Mrs. Blanche Rider and Mrs. Nora Hill.

The meeting adjourned with the auxiliary motto.

Spring Hope, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Flood's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Morgan on December 19. The meeting was begun with the singing of "O Little Town of Bethlehem," under the direction of the president, Mrs. Charles Morgan. "Silent Night" was then sung and Mrs. Jodie Bissette led in prayer.

The devotion was presented by Mrs. Ben T. Bissette and the roll was called by the secretary, Mrs. Harvey Strickland. There were 12 members present. The treasurer's report was also presented by Mrs. Bissette, with a total balance of $118.96.

During the business session it was decided that the auxiliary should carry sunshine baskets to Mrs. Joe Lamm, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Baines, Mrs. Grace Womble, Mrs. Lillie Glover, and Mrs. Albert Dew.

The January meeting will meet with Mrs. Harvey Strickland.

The program topics were then presented by Mrs. Curtis Murray, Mrs. J. D. Bissette, Jr., Mrs. Hayes Flora, and Mrs. Carl Mitchell.

Mrs. Luther Baines dismissed the group, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church held its annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. W. B. Smith, Jr., near Deep Run on December 20.

Upon arrival the guests assembled in the living room which was decorated in the traditional Christmas motif. Games were played under the direction of Mrs. Durwood Merritt and Mrs. Jimmie Boyette and prizes were awarded.

Following this refreshments were served buffet style from the dining room table which held a centerpiece of mixed fruits and nuts, flanked by burning red tapers.

Mrs. Randolph Deaver and Mrs. Alvin Deaver were responsible for the delicious chicken salad on lettuce, crackers, cookies, and fruit punch. Mrs. Laura Boyette asked the Lord's blessing upon the food.

The outgoing president, Mrs. J. E. Smith, assisted by Mrs. Platoe Heath, gave out the presents to the 17 members. Secret pal names were drawn for the coming year, and new officers were elected as follows: President, Ada Hines; vice-president, Clarissa Merritt; secretary, Hilda Tyndall; treasurer, Lala Mae Deaver; orphanage chairman, Adelle Deaver; benevolence chairman, Debbie Heath and Nora Smith; program chairman, Mrs. Laura Boyette; YFA sponsors, Geraldine Hill and Mildred Cauley; reporter, Pearl Smith.

Ayden, N. C.—The AFCs of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Pete Jones for its December meeting with Bruce and Joanne Jones as host and hostess. Diane Briley, vice-president, presided over the meeting which opened with the group's singing "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus." Pattie Williamson prayed the opening prayer.

During the business meeting the nominating committee read the following list of officers for 1964: president, Diane Briley; vice-president, Vonnie Williamson; mission chairman, Joanne Jones; program chairman and song leader, Bruce Jones; secretary, Nancy Garris; treasurer, Donna Briley; benevolence chairman, Diane Roach; study course chairman, Vickie Jones; out-reach chairman, Dail Griffin.

About fifteen members were present for the meeting and the Christmas party.

The program was discussed by different members of the auxiliary. Closing prayer was by Mrs. Claxton McLawhorn.

Delicious refreshments were served by the host and hostess.

Ayden, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Lucille Briley for its December meeting. The president called the meeting to order and "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was sung

WALKING WITH CHRIST

"For what glory is it, if, when ye be afflicted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God. For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps: Who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth: Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: Who his own self bore our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed" (1 Peter 2:20-24).

In our last message we were writing on the subject, "Thinking with Christ." So today we shall continue our relationship with Him by determining to walk with Him by following His steps. Christ was in the world not only to save all who would come to Him, but to give an example for us to follow all the days we are in the Christian life. Christ has promised His presence to His people continually, for we read in Hebrews 13:5, ". . . for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me." And when we do the things He commanded us to do, Christ has promised, ". . . lo, I am with thee always, even unto the end of the world. Amen" (Matthew 28:20).

If we will read God's Word, it will tell us how to walk with Christ. Starting with Jeremiah 6:16, which reads, "Thus saith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls . . ." we will examine just a few of the ways we are told to walk as Christians.

Christ said that He is the Light of the world. We read in 1 John 1:7, ". . . if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, . . ." We read again in John 1:9, "That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

Christ promised us, His people, the Holy Spirit to help us through an unfriendly, sinful world. Probably with this in mind Paul wrote to the Galatian Christians, "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh" (Galatians 5:16).

Christ is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. By going to the fourth verse of 2 John we will read, "I rejoice greatly that I found of thy children walking in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father."

The Bible teaches that we must walk in love. Ephesians 5:2 says, "And walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour."

And lastly we read in Ephesians 5:15, 16, "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time, because the days are evil." According to the dictionary, to walk circumspectly is to walk carefully, cautiously, and watchfully. Jesus said for us to watch and pray.

Let us close with the following beautiful poem:

ALWAYS WITH JESUS

Think of Jesus in the morning,
Think of Jesus through the day.
Feel His Presence ever near you
As you bow your head to pray.

Talk to Jesus in the morning,
Talk to Jesus through the day.
Always seek His loving guidance
In everything you do or say.

Walk with Jesus in the morning,
Walk with Jesus through the day.
Ever be in sweet communion
With your Saviour all the way.

Past life's pitfalls let Him lead you.
Never stray too far behind,
Then at night as sleep o'ertakes you
Peace and comfort you will find.

FAITH, HOPE, AND LOVE

FAITH sees beyond the grave,

A home of rest,
And whispers in the gloom,
"God's will is best."

HOPE, like a shining star,
Brightens life's way;
Gives courage to the faint,
From day to day.

LOVE, greatest gift of all,
Calms ev'ry fear;
Makes all burdens light, Brings Heaven near.

THINKING OF YOU

As we look over the great number of Christmas cards and look back to the Thanksgiving season and view cards of that season, my mind goes back to the writers of these cards; and I can say, "God bless you all, everyone who remembered us with cards and gifts. God has been so gracious to us through your remembrance of us."

I would be so happy if I could shake every hand that has pointed our way, but that is impossible; but, by the grace of God, we hope to meet with one and all in the "Sweet By and By."

More than two hundred people have remembered us during the season, beginning with Thanksgiving and extending to 1964. So we are taking the privilege of thanking you all.

Most of the letters and cards were related to the seasons of Thanksgiving and Christmas. To be exact, several—including a letter from the Woman's Auxiliary of First Free Will Baptist Church of Wilson, North Carolina, which was signed by 45 different members of the auxiliary and which conveyed a message of prayer and best wishes for our work as a minister—had a good word to say about our writing. Everyone of these messages carried an encouraging spirit to keep on working as the Holy Spirit leads.

We hereby give thanks to Almighty God for everyone who has remembered us in any way during the holiday season. And we earnestly pray that everyone will have a prosperous new year in the service of the Lord.

WHY I USE THE TITLE "ELDER"

Some time ago I was asked by one whom I consider a friend, "Why do you prefer Elder as a title to that of Reverend?" My answer was that I was ordained in the year of 1910 in the Free Will Baptist Church, the ministers were called elders; so I was styled "Elder" by those grand old men who laid their hands on my head at that time. For years afterward, the title Elder was used.

When we arranged the first treatise of the National Association (as it was then), every minister placed the term Elder before his signature. But gradually, here and there, the younger ministers began using the term Reverend; and in time it almost crowded the term Elder out of the picture.

Although I have allowed others to put the title before my name, I have never felt worthy of the title Reverend because I find only one person called "reverend" in the Bible; and that fact is recorded in Psalm 111:9 and reads as follows: "He (God) sent redemption unto his people: he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and reverend is his name." Reverence is due to God as set forth in the Scripture: "God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him" (Psalm 89:7). Again, may we listen to Jesus Christ, who said: "But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son" (Matthew 21:37). But it was only a few who did reverence the Son of God. The great majority despised and rejected Him.

Mark also wrote: "Having yet therefore one son, his wellbeloved, he sent him also last unto them saying, They will reverence my son" (Mark 12:6). Then in Hebrews it is recorded: "Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live?" (Hebrews 12:9). We know that the Bible teaches us to reverence God, and we cannot find to our satisfaction that we should reverence man.

May we see what Peter says: "The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed" (1 Peter 5:1). If I am criticized for using the term Reverend, that is my pleasure and my business. I appreciate just and honest criticism and have sufficient grace to take the other kind.

In conclusion on this matter, my wife and I went out a few days ago into the rural district of eastern North Carolina to see an elderly lady who is afflicted, and what do you think was my greeting after my wife entered and was greeted? This dear old saint of God said, "Here is Elder Griffin." It sounded like old times. Some time ago I was called to assist in a funeral in Greenville, and I was greeted by several of the old-timers who called me Elder Griffin. I am just a plain old sinner saved by grace who was ordained an elder in the Original Free Will Baptist Church and who in good standing in the State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina. I am also a member of the Eastern Conference in good standing and recognized as such.

Pray for me. I am now eighty-four years and six months old, and I am not expecting many more Christmas seasons. I praise the Lord for those that I have seen, but I will assure you that as long as I can I shall be writing and preaching. So, I say again, "Pray for me and mine."

TO MY BRETHREN IN THE MINISTRY

Remember that the midterm meeting of the North Carolina Ministers' Conference is due to meet in New Bern on January 16 and 17. New Bern is a good city for meeting, as it is centrally located for the Easterners; and it is no further from the west than the west is from the east, so come on down and bring your wives, and may we all be filled with that good old-fashioned spiritual feasting that makes us able to sing "Blest Be the Tie."

I met a friend of mine recently who said in speaking of his many problems, "I'll make it all right, if I can just hold out." I said, "Brother, you just hold on and God will hold out."

Now I say to you who read "Notes and Quotes," "Just hold on and God will hold out." Then you can say as a good Christian lady said to me when she was breathing her last, "Brother Griffin, am I dying?" I said, "Why do you ask?" And she said, "I'm so happy," and smiled and left this domain. Truly did the psalmist say, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: . . ." (Psalm 23:4).

Nazarene Church Membership Doubled in 20 Years

Kansas City, Mo. (EP)—Membership in the Church of the Nazarene around the world now totals 401,532, a gain of more than 7,000 over 1962 and double what it was 20 years ago.

From its international headquarters here, the denomination said the world total includes 342,032 in 4,849 churches in the U. S. and the British Commonwealth, and 59,500 in some 920 congregations in 44 countries.

Total giving for all purposes in 1963 was $52,525,076, passing the $50 million mark for the first time and representing an increase of $3,019,632 over the previous year.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 RICHLAND AVENUE

QUESTION: Please explain "That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose" (Genesis 6:2).—D. Johnson, Texas.

ANSWER: I believe that the "sons of God" referred to here are no other than the descendants of the godly line who came from Seth, the third of the sons of Adam and Eve, whom we have named in Genesis. The daughters of men are the descendants of Cain or of some of the descendants other than those who descended from Seth.

It has long since been the cherished and desired end of Satan to break down the racial lines and barriers that God has set up to keep His chosen, obedient followers from mixing with and becoming defiled with an unregenerated worldly people. God says to His followers, "Come ye out from among them and touch not the unclean thing"; but Satan and the lost world of men say, "Come on and let us all have fun together in a world of coexistence." If Satan can get the followers of God to come together with the followers of the worldly way and have things in common, his feat is accomplished and the cause of God, as far as those particular persons are concerned, is defeated. Before the flood that was all Satan needed to do. He did that; hence we have the Bible statement: "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (Genesis 6:5). This all resulted from: "That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose. And the LORD said, My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years" (Genesis 6:2, 3).

God's rule is one and the same when it comes to His redeemed. He wants them to be separated from a lost world socially as well as spiritually, and this He demands of His followers. "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty" (2 Corinthians 6:14-18). In order that you correctly see that the Old Testament teaches the same as the New Testament, compare "Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee: But ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves: For thou shalt worship no other god: for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God: Lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they go a whoring after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one call thee, and thou eat of his sacrifice; And thou take of their daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods" (Exodus 34:12-16).

God gave Israel miraculous deliverances over great enemies when from a natural point of view all the odds were against her. When necessary, He caused the Red Sea to separate its waters, furnishing her dry ground as an escape hatch from her Egyptian pursuers. When they needed it, He caused the walls of Jericho to fall before her marching priests. When necessary, He caused the sun to stand still to give needed time in one day's battle to bring complete defeat to a collected army of fierce nations. Whatever was needed, God gave it; and Israel was victorious no matter what the natural odds were; but when Israel forsook God, God forsook her and she fell to a wicked God-rejecting nation.

In the beginning of the church, God uncovered His mighty arm again and the persecuted church so permeated the armies of Caesar that Constantine the Great felt forced to make a compromise. The church seemed to think that this was an unconditional surrender; but the church leaders had forgotten one thing that Jesus had said, that Satan would come as a wolf in sheep's clothing and that he would appear as an angel of light. So in a few years the church greatly deteriorated. Finally the Dark Ages of history were on it; and unless God had appeared in the form of the Reformation, the days would have remained dark.

I think that the time in which we now are living is one in which church history is about to repeat itself. The Dark Ages have already made a recurrence or second debut. If revival fails to come soon, this worldly, back-slidden, apostate church will be experiencing that which is prophesied of her. "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked" (Revelation 3:15-17).

The above goes to say that the tricks of Satan are ever the same and he knows the principles on which God works: complete separation and entire dedication to Satan's strategy is so cunningly devised that he never plans nor has any hope of luring a true servant of God into complete open rebellion, but rather his lures aim at slight, simple compromises. A consecrated Christian girl could not by Satan's first effort be influenced to attend a dance or even to dress in all the questionable apparel of the world; but she might be persuaded to lay aside this old-fashioned idea of selecting all clothing so as to come up to Mother's 20th century ideas and, for that matter, the ideas she had before she grew up and got around a little. Next year, however, when new styles are a little more daring, she perhaps will say, "So what, I didn't design the styles; I am not going to be a creep all my life, so I shall wear what the rest of the kids my age wear and,

THIS IS THE KEY

Normand J. Thompson

POSTMASTER Tom Hargett, sorting Saturday morning's mail, peered over his spectacles to grunt, "Here, Randy! It's from the Bynums." He flipped a letter through the window to the lanky young man in blue jeans.

Randy tore open the letter, and cried, "They'll be here at noon, Dad!"

Old Tom scowled. He'd had enough of these rich city tourists, filling Randy's head with tomfoolery about his becoming a medical missionary.

"Oh, Dad! They want to buy the Princess mine."

Tom's ieathery face wrinkled in a wide grin. For more years than he cared to count, he'd kept Old Glory flying over this mountain town. Recently the department's surveys recommended building a new post office. Suddenly that didn't matter. Selling his gold mine would make a dream come true. He'd retire and sprawl on Waikiki's sunny beach for a month, maybe two or three.

His grin faded as Randy said, "Surely the Lord's directing them to buy the Princess, to help me through medical school."

"Forget about doctoring the heathen in Africa! You'll be postmaster here when I retire."

"Here, Dad! This came with the letter."

Tom unfolded a square of red paper. Are you ready to die? A tomfool Gospel tract! Randy must have told the Bynums his dad had been shunning church since Clarabelle died. Fiercely, Tom crumpled the tract and shoved it in his pocket.

Later, as his old car chugged up Buckhorn Mountain, Tom fell sullenly silent, listening to Mr. Bynum and his pretty wife Joyce talk to Randy about Africa. Tom swung the car into a clearing among the fragrant pines, and announced, "From here we hike to my claim."

He led the way through a thicket of manzanita and chaparral.

"You sure there's gold on top of this mountain, Tom?" Mr. Bynum asked in a bantering tone.

"Yes, sir. This vein is rich. I took out $1,000 last winter, just fooling around. But I'm getting too old to—"

"A snake! A snake bit Leon's leg!" Mrs. Bynum was screaming and gesturing wildly.

Tom seized a stick and helped Randy kill the snake, a big brown timber rattler. They helped Mr. Bynum to a rock, and examined the fang marks on his leg. It seemed nobody had a knife, to open the wound. So Randy used Mr. Bynum's necktie for a tourniquet, tying it firmly above the fang marks.

Tom could hear Mrs. Bynum praying, "Dear God, don't let him die," as he drove carefully down the mountainside. He parked in front of his cabin and carried the sick man inside to the sofa. Seizing the telephone, he kept watching Randy examine Mr. Bynum's leg, which was swollen alarmingly now.

Randy asked anxiously, "Does your leg feel sort of numb?"

Mr. Bynum nodded. "It feels dead."

"Is he going to die?" Mrs. Bynum gulped, as Randy loosened the tourniquet.

Tom shuddered. Are you ready to die? "Hello! Dr. King?" He wasn't ready to meet God. He'd drifted far from God since Clarabelle died. He told Dr. King about Mr. Bynum, and added, "Better hurry, doc!"

"Please, Mr. Bynum, don't move or talk." Randy slipped away to fetch a knife and small red bottle. "Try to relax, sir. This'll only take a moment."

Mr. Bynum tried to smile. Randy painted the fang punctures with mercurochrome. Then, wiping the knife blade with the germicide, he cut two tiny crosses over the fang marks. Kneeling, he applied his mouth to the wounds and sucked out the poison.

For what seemed like an eternity, Tom watched Randy work. How gentle and patient he was—and skillful. With a sigh, Tom dug the crumpled tract out of his pocket. He hurriedly put it away at the sound of a car stopping outside and leaped to the door.

Dr. King strode in, a tall, distinguished-looking man, lanky like Randy. "Thank God, you're here!" Mrs. Bynum exclaimed fervently.

Opening his bag, the doctor said, "Thank God that Randy is here. He saved your husband's life." He nodded approvingly at Randy. "You'll make fine doctor."

Tom swelled with pride. It hadn't been easy, raising the lad since Clarabelle died. But Randy must forget the medical missionary business. He'd make a fine postmaster.

When Dr. King left, Mr. Bynum said, "We still want your gold mine, Tom."

"No, Leon! Not after what's happened today." Mrs. Bynum was glancing approvingly at the big comfortable fireplace, the deer antlers nailed to the papered walls, and the obsolete wiring that ran like miniature railway tracks up the walls and across the smok-blackened ceiling.

"Like it, Joyce?"

"Oh, yes, Leon! This is charming—so old-fashioned and peaceful." She gazed out of the window, at Buckhorn pine-clad peaks. "And such a marvelous view!"

"Would you sell us this place, Tom?" Mr. Bynum asked.

Tom felt strangely ill at ease. "Well, I—I don't know what's a fair price. I'll give you $6,000."

Tom heard Randy's surprised gasp, saw his eyes wild with excitement. He knew what Randy was thinking, that this money was heaven-sent to finance his education. Certainly Tom's retirement checks would never stretch enough to put the boy through college. But the old cabin wasn't worth anywhere near that price.

"This is an old house." Tom moistened his dry lips, and forced himself to say, "You wouldn't be happy with it the foundation's slipping, and there's plumbing. Would cost you a fortune to fix it comfortable."

He looked away from Randy, unable to bear the bleak misery in his son's eyes.

"I know all that, Tom," Mr. Bynum said quietly. "Joyce, likes this old house, though. Besides, you and Randy have saved my life, and I'm very grateful."

Tom thought about that rattlesnake, supposing it had struck him instead of Mr. Bynum. Supposing Randy hadn't been along—Are you ready to die?

Tom felt clammy moisture on his face. Tom fumbled in his pocket for a wad of red paper. He held it out as if it were burning his fingers. "Yesterday I have taken your money, Mr. Bynum. Is this tract you sent me—"

"What has it to do with selling your house, Tom?" Mr. Bynum demanded.

"Hard to explain. Reckon I'm just a stubborn old tomfool that turned from good when my wife Clarabelle died. I've been miserable." Tom took a deep breath and went on. "The key to happiness, that tract says, is not striking rich or taking Hawaiian holidays. It's treating God and man fair and square.

I built this cabin 40 years ago, of scrap lumber. It cost very little. If I took your money, Mr. Bynum, I couldn't sleep at nights."

Mrs. Bynum stood at his elbow, beaming. "Bless you, Tom. I admire your honesty, but—"

"Excuse me, but the evening mail is late." Tom was afraid to look at Randy. He moved to the door, and drove down to the post office. He wondered if he was treating Randy fair and square. He wished he hadn't read that tract.

Hank, the star route trucker, was already there, waiting to be unloaded. Tom was glad when Hank left. He wanted to be alone. He sighed wearily, sorting the letters in the sultry, stifling back room of the closed post office.

What's this? He stared at an official brown envelope, addressed to The Honorable Thomas Hargett, Postmaster. He tore it open, and gasped. With trembling hands, he grabbed the telephone.

"Come down to the post office, Randy! Hurry!"

"Why? What's wrong, Dad?"

"Just hurry." Tom was still staring at the letter when Randy came racing in, breathless. He thrust the letter at Tom. "Read this! Isn't that something?"

"Surely, this is the Lord's doing," Randy said in an awed whisper.

Tom seized Randy's arm. "Tell me what it says, son. I—I can't believe it's true."

"It says the government wants this site for the new post office they're going to build. They're offering you $10,000 for the land."

"For the land, eh? That means I can sell off the cabin, or even give it away. Seems that Mrs. Bynum's in love with it. Tom grinned. "That government money—it would help you through medical school, eh?"

"It sure would, Dad!"

Tom took the letter from his son, and again read his own name: The Honorable Thomas Hargett. He held his head high, and straightened his back. His honest blue eyes looked straight at Randy.

"There's a lot of people in the world dying, but not ready to die. You're going to make a fine medical missionary, son. Now scat, and let me sort this mail! And take good care of your patient—doctor."—Gospel Herald.

Lesson for January 26

Two Rich Men Meet Jesus

LESSON TEXT: Mark 10:17-22; Luke 19:1-10

MEMORY VERSE: Matthew 6:33

I. INTRODUCTION

In this lesson, we shall see the contrast in attitudes of two rich men who came in contact with Jesus. The rich young ruler had great possessions, but they were a stumbling block to him. He was not willing to give them up. Zacchaeus, on the other hand, was willing to give his heart to Christ and to make restitution for any ill-gotten wealth.

The work of the kingdom is largely dependent upon the support of God's people. By support in this case, we have reference to financial support. The Bible has much to say about the giving of our means. It is a shame to the cause of Christendom that many denominational institutions and programs have to spend so much time in raising funds to meet its budget. If Christian people were faithful and consistent in their support, there would be no such thing as fund-raising campaigns. The money would easily be provided.

Somehow we have the idea that Christianity is not for the rich or wealthy. Jesus taught that it is hard for a rich man to enter into heaven, but He did not say that they could not enter. If those who are wealthy and have been won to Christ would give according to the poorer class, the wealth of the church would be greatly increased and much more could be done for the cause of Christ. Only a few men, however, have been blessed with riches and Christianity at the same time. The reason is that not many men can be faithful to Christ with his great possessions.—Bible Student (F. W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Those who are rich in this world's goods are often very poor in spirit (Mark 10:17).

2. Christ is good only as He is God.

He is good because He is God, for God is good (v. 18).

3. If salvation came by doing, then the keeping of the Law is the way (v. 19).

4. Jesus loves all men, but only those who love Him are willing to obey Him (v. 21).

5. The choice of riches in preference to Christ is bound to bring sorrow (v. 22).

6. Every sinner in the world lives in the place which God has cursed (Luke 19:1).

7. The loving and merciful Saviour comes to the place where the sinner may be found (vv. 1, 2).

8. Sometimes a sinner seeks to see Jesus, but does not want to be seen by Him (v. 3).

9. The eyes of the Saviour are able to find every sinner no matter where or how he may hide himself (v. 5).

10. Every sinner is unable to meet God's requirements and must come down where Jesus can deal with him (v. 6).—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. While cooking supper one evening the housewife noticed an unusual sizzling sound coming from one of the pans on the stove. One pan was scarred and scratched from much use and considerable abuse through the years, but it was made of heavy metal and she could find no leak in it. The other pan was still shiny on the outside. It looked as new as the day she had bought it, but it was made of very thin metal and when she looked at the bottom she found a tiny hole in it. Acids from the food she had cooked in that pan had eaten through the thin metal.

The wear and tear of time does things to men also. Zacchaeus was like the scarred and scratched pan when he came to Jesus. Zacchaeus had a bad reputation because he had acquired his wealth as a hated tax-collector and had dealt dishonestly with his fellow men. No one had a good word to say about him. But Jesus could see good in Zacchaeus. He knew that beneath the battered exterior lay a good heart. Zacchaeus responded to Jesus' message by giving to the poor and restoring what he had extorted.

The young ruler, however, was like the shiny pan. He had kept all the Commandments of God from his youth and Jesus loved him when He first saw him. But when he heard Jesus say, "Sell all that thou hast and give it to the poor," he went away sorrowing. Like the shiny pan, the young ruler made good appearance; but because he was thin and shallow, he was corrupted by riches so that he could not retain Jesus' message.—Standard Lesson Commentaries.

2. The conversion of Zacchaeus, Joseph of Arimathaea and others proves that rich men as well as poor have come to saving knowledge of Jesus Christ. Some have had their lives so radically changed that wealth became a mighty instrument for good in their hands.

Many people today overemphasize the importance of money. Although money in itself is not the chief good, it can serve as a means for helping others. Someone has observed that "when wealth is lost nothing is lost; when health is lost something is lost; when character is lost all is lost." Another has said, "Do not be deeply concerned about things that mere money can replace."

Life is the important matter. Socrates said, "Could I climb to the highest plane in Athens, I would lift my voice and proclaim: 'Fellow citizens, why do you turn and scrape every stone to gather wealth, and take so little care of your children to whom one day you must relinquish it all?'"

Many people forget that there are two ways of growing rich—by adding to our possessions or simplifying our wants. By simplifying our wants our essential riches are greatly increased. That was the method of the early Christian Church, and just think of its power!

Jesus said it was easier for a camel to pass through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God (Matt. 19:24). I thought of that the other day when reading about Heinrich Heine, a Jew who was being entertained by a wealthy Christian lady. Though he was known as one of the most brilliant conversationalists of his day, on this occasion he had nothing to say. Finally the irritated hostess berated him. "Why are you so dumb?" Heine replied, "I am studying a problem difficult to solve. I have been looking at these gold dishes, this fine linen, these splendid waiters, your great diamonds, and wondering what you Christians are going to do with the camel question."

It would be poor business to follow the example of the one who:

get his wealth he spent his health, And, then, with might and main turned around and spent his wealth To get his health again.

Senior Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Class).

3. In our lesson today, we get a glimpse of two rich men who came to Jesus. They were interested enough in Jesus to run out in order to see Him. Yet one of them went away sorrowfully and the other returned and spent his wealth to get his health again. Why was there such a difference?

It was not that Jesus was unwilling to receive both of these men. The Scripture points out that Jesus loved the man who went away sorrowfully. It was not that Jesus did not need another disciple at this time. There is always room for those who are willing to follow Jesus and work for Him. The trouble lay in the man himself. It was not the fact that the man was rich, because Jesus received the other man and he was also rich.

Some people get the idea that the man went away sorrowfully because of his great wealth. He did have great wealth, but the same thing might have happened if he had had but few dollars. It is not the quantity of one's wealth that keeps him from following Jesus, but his attitude toward it. One cannot become a Christian without it affecting his attitude toward material things.

Of course, we are taught in the Scripture that we are not to judge, but what about these people who profess the name of Christ and still seem to put their own personal wealth above everything else?

We believe that one measure of a person's dedication to Christ and His cause is his willingness to sacrifice his material possession for Christ and the church.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

Questions & Answers

furthermore, I shall make up like they do."

Now things are beginning to shape up to please Satan. A couple of popular boys have been on the job, and they begin to notice that the little religious fanatic has begun to snap out of it. She is no longer seen alone at lunch. Other girls are with her; and even though she isn't taking much part in their jokes and their conversation about the boys that are regarded as "the most," yet she never offers anyone a gospel tract or says anything to make one think she disapproves of the little things that they say and do that are entirely outside a consecrated Christian group's activities and conversation. Now the big event has come; a big social of the season is scheduled to take place. What would she do if one of the attractive young men of the campus should ask her to accompany him on this special occasion. Well, just that happens. He asks her and she gives herself a brief period to decide. What if she were to delay and he should ask anyone of a dozen young ladies? She knows without question that they would answer favorably without delay. So in this dilemma she makes a hasty telephone call, apologizing for the delay, and accepts graciously. Finally the big night comes. She is dressed like the others and is trying to be gay as they are but, oh such a heavy heart! Then all at once she discovers that the message of her mood is carrying over; so she swears to herself to throw away all inconvenient conventionalities, those things that have been a ball and chain to hamper her style, keeping her from the good times the other kids have entered into so freely.

That night she rolls and tosses because even though she has changed her behavior patterns she has not been able to do away with what a Christian home, Sunday school, and early habits have given her through the years of her life. Therefore, she, with a somewhat morbid attitude to all about her, decides this is getting her nowhere; so she cuts loose and winds up an unhappy girl.

She would give millions if she had them to be clean and virtuous and apart as she once was. Well all this can't be; but God, who is the same yesterday and today and who is never willing that any should perish, stands at the heart's door and knocks. A few who thus fall come back to God, but broad is the way and wide is the gate that leads to destruction and many there be who find their way there.

The old game of Satan will ever remain the same. He will always make the daughters of men and the sons of men appeal to the flesh or carnal nature of the sons and daughters of God and will trap any who are foolish enough to view the natural, putting it before the scriptural.

I once heard of a fine eighteen-year-old Christian girl who was very talented and who seemingly had been brought up as well as anyone. There was a young boy her age who had never professed Christ and who had not had such advantages as the young lady. "He is so funny and cute. I can't help but like him," she said. Whereas she paid little or no attention to a boy who seemed and proved later, to be an ideal Christian. Ten years later spelled tragedy.

In this day, an effort on Satan's part to break down religious barricades that serve to keep the Christians separated from members of several religious sects has been what now seems a great victory that militates against true Christian teaching that calls for a separated life on the part of the adherents to Christianity.

One of my cousins who had a godly mother, one who saw to it that he attended the Free Will Baptist church and Sunday school regularly, has married a Mormon. At first they both went quite regularly to his church; then there was a slowing down or cooling off period. Later children were born in the home and they did not go to either the Free Will Baptist church or Sunday school with any measure of regularity. Finally he got started attending some Mormon meetings with his wife and would not argue much when his older brother talked to him. Now he openly argues that his wife's church and that which his children attend is as good as any. Some think he is a secret member since he has ceased going to his own church. Anyway he is useless to his church or to any who are Christians.

If Satan can get us to the point of tolerance that we acknowledge that one church or cult is as good as another and to look to these instead of Christ for salvation and for the power to be kept free from sin, then his purpose is accomplished; and we who started out right and on the right path have gone wrong and will end wrong unless we repent and go back where and as we started, to Christ in faith.

ming, dining and praying with President Johnson.

The evening began with a thirty-minute conference, Dr. Graham having come at the Chief Executive's invitation. The evangelist said Mr. Johnson told him of his Texas boyhood days and early church experiences.

Dr. Graham also revealed that he and the President talked about Latin America, where he had conducted an evangelistic campaign in 1962.

Following the half-hour conversation, the President asked the Southern Baptist clergyman to join him for a swim in the White House pool. Also invited were William D. Moyers, Presidential aide, who is also a Baptist minister, and Grady Wilson, an associate evangelist with the Billy Graham team.

The President later requested that the two evangelists stay for dinner. On Mr. Johnson's scheduled guest list were executives of the New York Herald Tribune, including publisher and editor-in-chief John Hay Whitney. Before the meal began, the President asked Dr. Graham to say grace.

At another point in the evening, reported Dr. Graham, President Johnson asked him to lead the group in a prayer.

The evangelist's invitation to the White House was issued on a morning when he was scheduled to speak at the chapel service of the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md. A half-hour before the service was to begin, he was called to the telephone.

He picked up the telephone and heard a voice say, "Billy, this is Lyndon." President Johnson then said that if he had known earlier the evangelist would be speaking at the academy he would have attended the service. The President went on to say that he would send his daughter, Lucy Baines, to the academy.

After the service Miss Johnson came and greeted him, the evangelist related. Later in the day he received word of the White House invitation.

Highway Deaths

According to Tomorrow, the official organ of the Christian Action League of North Carolina, more Americans have died on U. S. Highways in the last sixty-two years than have been killed in all the U. S. Wars. Between the years 1900 and 1962, 1,419,882 Americans died on our highways. Beginning with the Revolutionary War, through the Korean War, 1,130,393 Americans died in battle, or as a result of war.

It is significant to note that more than fifty percent of fatal accidents on the highways is attributed to the drinking of alcoholic beverages. It is logical to conclude, therefore, that at least half of the highway deaths would never have happened if there had been no drinking.

PASTOR, REVEREND, OR . . . ?

At one time or another each minister is faced with the question to the title which his name and calling should carry. We have yet to see a minister of the gospel express his wish to be called "Reverend." Yet this is the title which seems to be officially accepted. Therefore, sooner or later, at some particular time, preferred it.

In the January 27, 1954, issue of "The Free Will Baptist," we found the following article entitled "Your Minister's Title." The source is well known.

"I recently telephoned the home of one of my members and a seven-year-old daughter answered. I asked for her daddy. Recognizing my voice, the little girl replied, 'I'm sorry, Pastor Warren, but he is at home.'

"As I replaced the receiver on the hook, I suddenly recalled that the little girl and younger brother always address me as 'Pastor Warren.' It then occurred to me that a better title could not be given to the minister of your church than that of 'Pastor.' It has been used through the years almost exclusively by the Lutheran Church. Would it not be well for us to adopt it also?

"The term 'Reverend' is often misused, and it is sometimes even pronounced 'Reverent.' Many folks do not like the use of the word 'Brother,' which actually does not distinguish a minister from a layman. Particularly among the young ministers, a man may be called by his first name by his contemporaries, and he may appreciate having them do so. The danger, however, is in having the little children pick it up until it becomes known throughout his parish by that name. Outsiders may consider it a lack of proper respect thus to address or speak of a minister by his first name.

"I would like to suggest, therefore, that throughout our church the use of the term 'Pastor' become more prevalent. Let our pastors encourage their flocks thus to address them, and the little lambs of the flock will probably be among the first to pick it up."

Some of our older ministers prefer the title, "Elder." Not too many decades ago they were thus called. We have given a great deal of thought to the matter. Our conclusion is that for the minister who is serving a church or churches there is not a better title than that of "Pastor." For those who cannot call him pastor, the term "Elder" seems best. It is never fitting or proper for the minister to publicly be called by his first name. However, each minister has those personal friends who prefer to call him by his first name. To this we do not object, but let it be done with discretion. The calling to the gospel ministry deserves a noble title. No humble minister of God seeks the title for self-glory. Instead, it is his calling that requires it.

SOME THINGS WORSE

The recent report on the effects of cigarette smoking to one's health did not reveal any startling, new information. Most of the information was just what has been talked and written about for several years. The report, however, did make the information more factual. There is no way to properly determine the cost of this research. Let's hope that its benefit to our society will justify the cost.

Personally, we feel that there are far more dangerous evils in our society than that of cigarette smoking. Some temperance advocates place smoking in the same category with the drinking of alcoholic beverages. The basic similarity is that of habit, which is also true regarding coffee drinking.

For some reason, we do not hear much today about the effects of alcohol on the human body, and especially the moral blight upon our society. Beer, for example, is advertised as belonging to our day; that in order to really live there must be some beer around. To be sure, our nation would be strengthened beyond measure if our government would put forth an effort to show the harmful effects of alcoholic beverages. There is a trend away from smoking, with human nature as it is, man will likely find something else to fill the gap equally as worthless.

The Message of the Bible

by Charles Sapp

THE message of the Bible is the story of God's dealings with man. It is not the record of man's search for God; it is, rather, the record of God's search for man. As has been currently understood, it is the confrontation of God with man. The record of this confrontation is given through a particular people who were chosen, or set aside, for the purpose of making God's will known to mankind. It is the record of His mighty acts: what He has done, is doing, and has done decisively and finally in the person of Jesus Christ, His Son. The focus of the whole is upon Christ as the Man—uniquely the God-man, who redeems men by His sinless life, His glorious death, and His glorious resurrection. The message in all generations spotlighted by Paul in 1 Corinthians 15:3, 4: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried; and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures."

CREATION

GOD'S CLAIM

The opening words of the Bible set the stage for all that is to follow. In simple words, the most profound declaration ever made is made without apology. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth . . . and man." The Bible does not beg this question, but going immediately to the very heart of the question of being and becoming, it announces that God is the Author of life and by virtue of His place as Creator, He is necessarily the Architect of our destiny.

This is the first claim of Scripture. God is the Creator and man is the creature, who is made to live in community with God and bring to Him glory and majesty.

MAN'S NATURE

The creation stories are brief, but they set the stage for the development of the doctrine of man through the Bible. Man is described as having been made a living soul. God breathed into man, and he became a "living soul." Man was placed in a garden. This is the Bible's way of indicating man's station and place before God. He was made the head over all the rest of creation. He was given dominion, and told to multiply and replenish the earth. The garden was the meeting place between man and the God who had created him. At stated periods God would visit with man for fellowship. The record indicates that man was made in the image of God, something that is not said of any other part of creation. This word image has been an important word. It is used to describe man's nature. Whatever the word means, and there has been continual discussion as to its meaning, it seems to be plain from the narrative that it is precisely what enabled him to live in community with his Creator. Again this image, whatever else it was, denoted man in relationship. For He made them male and female.

Judging from what is told us briefly in these creation narratives, man's only desire was to do the will of his God. He was innocent of transgression and lived in peace and harmony in his surroundings. Work was pleasure, and life in general was everything which man today desires but does not have.

GOD'S PURPOSE

The creation narrative sets the stage for the revelation of the purpose of God. It is simply given and unelaborated upon in these initial chapters. God's purpose for man was, simply speaking, that he remain in a creature relationship to His God. This was not a relationship of equals, but the community of God and people. It was, as further revelation tells us, an "I will be your God and you will be my people." It was the foreshadowing of what would later be called a covenant. In the midst of freedom, God had placed one restriction — creaturehood. But man could not stand this restriction. The bounds of his freedom, though broad, were not broad enough.

SIN

GOD'S CLAIM REPUDIATED

A few years ago a song writer penned a song entitled "Don't Fence Me In." Unwittingly, he put to music the theme song of the human heart. What is sin? Sin is, and was, the refusal on the part of man to be the creature God had made him to be. It is disobedience arising out of pride, selfishness, and other related motives.

Man's act of high treason in the garden was an effort to push God off the throne and take His place.

God's claim upon man for obedience was repudiated, and man in disobedience fell from the station God had placed him, thus becoming less than he was meant to be. The message of the Bible is that this act of high treason threw man into a state of inward corruption and the world into a state of revolt, and the law of the jungle became the law of nature.

The story of this revolt is given expression in Cain's murder of Abel, the boast of Lamech, the tower of Babel, and the destruction of the world by water. As the theme develops and unfolds, it is seen to be a cosmic conflict in which the rulers of the darkness of this world are involved in a death struggle for the capture of the soul of man.

MAN'S NATURE CHANGED

Man was driven from the garden as a sign of the broken fellowship and the disruption of community. In his estrangement from God, he soon finds that the innocence which he once possessed in loyal obedience became that of constant rebellion because sin had broken the relationship. This dominate theme is constant in the biblical record. Men progressed in evil until God was forced to purge the world, saving only Noah and his family. The Bible charts man's progress in evil. "The very imagination of his heart was evil continually." "There is none righteous, no not one." Jeremiah says, "The heart of man is desperately wicked, who can know it?" But the theme does not reach its climax until man, in final and total corruption, murders God. The climax is at Calvary. The blackness of that scene is contrasted by the life of the Suffering Servant who is being crucified. Where mortal eyes should blush with shame, the record describes the infamy of His persecutors, "and sitting down they watched Him there." Here evil reaches its ultimate: man in murderous hate killing his God.

GOD'S PURPOSE FRUSTRATED

God's purpose for man before sin entered to disrupt His gracious purpose was not changed by sin. Only God's action moved in a different direction. The inception of sin forced God to move in loving-kindness to redeem men from their lost condition. As an expression of that willingness, God delivered Israel from Egyptian bondage and at Sinai made a covenant with them. This covenant was founded on His mighty act of deliverance. His covenant was no sooner finished than the people had broken its stipulation and made unto themselves other gods.

Even after He had brought them into the land of Canaan with a mighty hand, they continued to worship and serve other gods. He would send the enemy in to torment them and destroy their crops and make havoc of their land. Then in desperation the people would cry out for deliverance, and in gracious response He would raise up a judge to deliver them. But the people would return to their wicked deeds as a dog to his vomit, or a swine to her wallowing in the mire. This is the dominate motif of the Deuteronomic corpus.

It seems impossible for the people to live satisfactorily in covenant relationship. They cannot, or will not obey; therefore, judgment must fall. The ten tribes of northern Israel are carried into Assyrian captivity in 722 B. C. The southern tribes of Judah and Benjamin are carried into Babylonian captivity in 587. The covenant nation is no more, and it looks on the surface of things as if God's purpose for man is defeated.

It is most significant that the Bible begins with man in rebellion and the Old Testament ends with Malachi's describing man's predicament in terms of rebellion. (1) Yahweh has declared His love for Israel. Israel, in rebellious disbelief, charges, ". . . Wherein hast thou loved us? . . ." (Malachi 1:1). (2) The prophet reminds them that they have despised the name of Yahweh. The priest's retort, "Wherein have we despised thy name?" (1:6). He charges them with polluting the altar of Yahweh their God, but in stubborn unbelief they justify themselves, saying, ". . . Wherein have we polluted thee?" (1:7).

The New Testament echoes the refrain: "He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. He came unto his own, and his own received him not" (John 1:10, 11).

Man's disobedience is the pivotal point in history in its first instance. It is vain to speculate what might have happened if man had not sinned. It is fairly certain, however, that we would not have had history as we know it.

The Bible speaks concerning what God has done in history, and asks us to believe that the God who has acted in our behalf will act again. Therefore, to a very great degree history is the setting forth of God's mighty acts on behalf of man and for his salvation.

SALVATION

GOD'S CLAIM REAFFIRMED

Salvation is the word that sets forth God's reaffirmation of His claims upon man. This story begins with the incarnation and climaxes with the Cross and resurrection. Paul describes this by the contrast of Christ and Adam. "As in Adam all die, even so, in Christ shall all be made alive, Christ the firstfruits, and afterward they that are Christ's at his coming."

The Gospels describe it in the birth narratives by ascribing the act of creation to the Holy Spirit. The angel announces to Mary, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God."

Jesus actually began the new order of creation. He expressed what man is and should become in relationship to God the Father. He lived in complete devotion and perfection to God and His fellow creatures. In a real sense He is the answer to the being and becoming. He is the supreme example. But, He is more.

The message seems to make it abundantly clear that Jesus's work was the work of reconciliation. In order to bring about a new creation, He must live personally victorious over sin and the tempter of mankind. The tempter must be defeated. Hell and death and non-being must be robbed of its power over man. And mystery of all mysteries, Jesus Christ accomplished this on the Cross. In the role of the Suffering Servant, He took our place; and in doing so, God's claim upon man which was repudiated in Adam was reaffirmed in the Son of God.

MAN'S NATURE RESTORED

In a very real sense this can only be seen against the backdrop of holy history. When the Old Testament is seen as failure, chiefly because of man's inability to live in covenant relationship with God, his sin does not allow it. Then in clear relief we see that in Christ we enter the new order of being and becoming what God's original purpose had intended us to be. Paul gives us the clue: "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creation, old things are passed away, behold all things have become new." This restored nature is able to say, "I can do all things through Christ . . ."

GOD'S PURPOSE REALIZED

The Scriptures are emphatic in their declaration that what happened in Christ was final and ultimate. All that happened before the Cross was pushing toward it, and can only be seen as meaningful in man in his present situation in the knowledge of it. Everything that comes after the Cross is in some sense an extension of it, and is made meaningful by it. In the Christ event, eternity invaded time, and for those who live in Christ there is a sense in which the dimension of living is eternity oriented rather than time oriented. The reason that in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, He has entrusted to the Church the ministry of reconciliation.

Restored man, living in communion with restored men, who share a common faith in Christ as the revelation of God (continued on page fifteen)

A Statement of CLARIFICATION

By the Rev. Ralph Lightsey

Several weeks ago, the Challenger carried a false report that I joined a Baptist church in Athens, Georgia, October 20, 1963. The reader will note that the date of the alleged affiliation with the Baptists was given. Some friends in North Carolina sent me a copy of that issue of the Challenger; and upon receipt of it, I asked its editor, the Rev. Ronald Creech, to retract the false report. He subsequently published the following statement in another issue:

"Some weeks ago word reached us that Bro. Ralph Lightsey had joined the Missionary Baptist denomination. Since then he wrote and said that he had not. We are glad to hear him say that he has not and are glad to print this word."

I also asked him to give me the source of the rumor so that I could stamp it out. The following statement is his reply in a letter to me:

"The source of this rumor apparently is widespread since I heard it in North Carolina several weeks ago and heard it a number of times in Georgia while in that state recently."

It certainly seems strange that he would use two full pages to expound a rumor (note, he called it a rumor, too) that is so indefinite that he would only say to me that he heard it several times.

I wish to point out that the rumor is completely false and without foundation. It is my opinion that it was concocted as another attack upon Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina and others who stand with them.

For those who would like to know, I wish to state that I am a member of the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden, North Carolina.

When considering the needs of missions, don't fail to do something, just because you can't do everything!—Bob Pierce.

Humility is the secret of fellowship, and pride the secret of division.—R. C. Chapman.

st Sonora Association Meets

You can imagine with what joy we went to the meeting of the First Sonora Association, when it convened in quarter-meeting in Cananea on January 2. It was a little more than a year ago that we had begun the work there in Cananea. We were able to have an association-meeting there with four regularly established works in that area represented. Those who have helped with your prayers and offerings have had as much a part in this success as we have. Therefore, it gives me great joy to be able to share this report of victory with you. In this way we can rejoice together when we behold the fruits of our labor.

Of course, we took representatives from the churches and missions in both states of Nogales (Arizona and Sonora) with us. This also gave us a deep feeling of accomplishment. Remember that this work is not built upon a foundation laid by others; but we started the first Free Will Baptist work that was ever done in this region, and God has blessed it until it is a vast and active witness for Christ in Mexico.

Many of you who read these lines have been with us in this undertaking for many years. Others have helped at times along the way; while still others of you have new helpers in this field. All of you, whether consistent contributors who have helped the work since its infancy, or occasional or past supporter, or you who have recently begun to support the work with your prayers, finances, clothing, food, etc., can all rejoice together and say, "The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad" (Psalm 126:3).

When a young mother from the mission in Buena Vista brought her child to present him to the Lord, and to dedicate herself to training him up in the way he should go, my heart overflowed. That baby had been born a few short months earlier she would have taken him to the priest who would have sprinkled a few drops of water on him in a mockery of baptism and of salvation. Truly you can rejoice at seeing these people led out of darkness into the light.

However, the battle is not yet won. The opportunities in that area are greater than ever. I have received information that a certain minister wishes to work with us to establish a work in Arizpe. Please pray for God's continued guidance, and please help financially if you can.

We are unable to keep you informed of projects rapidly enough for you to help only on them. In fact, most of the time we have had to supply the needs out of the general fund before we even tell you about the project. However, when the money comes in for the project, we are then able to replace what was borrowed from the general fund for that purpose. We need a steady income to carry on all the already established phases of the work, and to have some money on hand for contingencies. We trust that the majority of you will send in money for the general fund of Arizona-Mexico Missions. In this way we can use it where it is needed most. Steady projects are for missionary salaries, including the Laniers and the Ellistons.

Please don't forget other missionary endeavors. We realize that we are only a small part of the work of Christ, and that the rest also must be supported. Send all offerings to: North Carolina Board of Missions, c/o the Rev. A. B. Bryan, Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. And above all, don't forget to pray for us. May God bless you.

John B. Elliston

Faithful to the Task!

WHATEVER God bids us do, He will enable us to accomplish. It matters not at all how powerful are our foes, or how great the obstacles that confront us.

Once He gives us our battle to fight, our task to perform, we move forward with the confident step of the conqueror.—The Prophetic News.

Children's Home Is Host to Youth Rally

The Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, will be host to the Second Western District Youth Rally on Saturday night, February 1, at 7:30. Every Free Will Baptist youth, as well as adults, are especially urged to attend this meeting. Films taken at Cragmont Assembly will be shown. It should be of special interest to you to see the assembly and its activities.

NCC Leader Terms President's "Martyrdom . . . A Call to Service"

Philadelphia (EP)—As the sixth general assembly of the National Council of Churches opened here on Sunday, December 1, the 5,000 on hand heard NCC President J. Irwin Miller, a Columbus, Indiana, manufacturer, declare that President Kennedy's "martyrdom has brought us all shame, but it has also brought a clear call to service. Surely no society has ever needed more immediately and more urgently true servants of God."

Mr. Miller's successor to the NCC presidency will be named on Wednesday, December 4.

The North Carolina Supreme Court in a decision handed down on January 17, 1964, reversed the action of Superior Court Judge James F. Latham in declaring nonsuit in the trial involving Edgemont Free Will Baptist Church, in August, 1963.

Since the trial of August, 1963, the church property has been used by the James A. Miles faction of Edgemont church. It is possible, based upon this latest Supreme Court decision, that there will be another trial on the questions involved in the last trial.

Until a settlement of the matter, it is expected that the two factions (Teasley faction and Miles faction) will again have equal use of the church property.

The decision reads as follows:

Appeal by plaintiffs from Latham, J. F., August 1963 Special Session of Durham.

Arthur Vann and R. Roy Mitchell, Jr. for Plaintiffs.

Bryant, Lipton, Bryant and Battle and Lake, Boyce and Lake for defendants.

PER CURIAM. We have heard appeals in this case, and related cases, on two prior occasions—at the Fall Term 1961, and the Fall Term 1962. Conference v. Creech 256 N. C. 128, 123 S. E. 2d 619; Conference v. Miles, 259 N. C. 1, 129 S. E. 2d 600. These prior opinions set out the pleadings and the law applicable to the matters in controversy. The latter opinion (filed 6 March 1963) summarizes the evidence adduced at the trial in Superior Court held in March 1962. That opinion is the law of the case. We ordered a new trial for reasons set out in the opinion.

There was a retrial in August 1963. From this the present appeal arises. This trial was begun on 5 August and terminated on 22 August. Plaintiffs and defendants introduced voluminous evidence. Defendants moved for nonsuit at the end of plaintiffs' evidence and again at the close of all of the evidence. The motions were overruled. The court

Benefit Dinners to be Planned for 1964

Plans for the 1964 series of benefit dinners for the Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, development fund will be made in a meeting of county chairmen on January 28.

President W. Burkette Raper has announced that persons who served as county chairmen during 1963 will meet at the college at 4:15 p. m. to consider a schedule for the dinners, goals, and promotional activities. Other interested persons are also invited to attend.

During 1963, a series of nineteen dinners raised $52,091 for the building program on the new 90-acre campus. More than 3,200 people from 198 churches attended.

Plans call for construction on the new campus to begin this spring. Among the first buildings planned are dormitory units for 88 men and 78 women and an academic building adequate for an enrollment of 400 students.

College Day at Friendship

Friendship Free Will Baptist Church in Johnston County, North Carolina, will observe Sunday, January 26, as Mount Olive College Day, the Rev. Ed Miles, pastor, has announced.

President W. Burkette Raper will speak at the 11 a. m. worship service.

College Offers Night Class in Bible

The department of religion at Mount Olive College has made plans to offer a night course in Hebrew Prophets during the spring semester. The course will carry three semester hours credit, but it may be audited by persons who do not wish to receive college credit.

The class will meet two nights per week, and the schedule of meetings can be arranged to suit the convenience of participants. Registration for the second semester will be held on January 27.

Interested persons are requested to write Dean Roy O'Donnel, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina.

GOD'S WORD—A lamp Unto Our Feet

*Mrs. James Spell
Dunn, North Carolina*

In Psalm 119:105, we find these words: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." As a lamp, God's Word illuminates the path of darkness before us. It will keep the feet of the Christian in the right path. It does not always give light to his entire surroundings, but it does give enough light to see each step he takes.

Some years ago, before rural electrification, people used the kerosene lamp as a means of lighting the house. The number of lamps was usually determined by the number of rooms used regularly, and also the number in the family. On Saturday mornings, after the breakfast dishes had been cleared away, the lamps were all carried to the kitchen to be prepared for the weekend. The lamps were filled with oil, the wicks carefully trimmed, and the chimneys washed. If the lamps were properly used, there was nothing to do during the next week except to refill with oil. Sometimes, however, we would purchase a can of kerosene that was not pure, or perhaps the wick was turned up too high. If this happened, the lamp chimneys then became charred, and had to be cleaned again. Sometimes they became so smoked that we had to use baking soda to remove the carbon from the chimneys.

Just as the wick controlled the light of the kerosene lamp, so does the heart control our light as it shines to those who are in sin. If we allow our hearts to become filled with the cares and pleasures of this world, old Satan will cause the chimneys of our lives to be charred with sin. Then we have to apply an extra portion of prayer and supplication in order to remove the stain from our hearts.

In that day (the day of the kerosene lamp) we didn't have to tell others if the oil was good or not, or if the wick had been trimmed carefully. It only took a minute or two after the lamp had been lighted for these things to show up. The same is true in our lives. We don't have to tell others that we have taken God's Word to be a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path. When our lives are charred with the sins of the world, we stumble along, falling first one way and then another, not being able to see the path before us. When we apply the Word of God as a lamp unto our path, whether we are walking in the night, or the day, we have the "Guiding Light." The pathway is clear enough for faith to travel at all times, and we never walk alone.

When we fail to use the lamp of God's Word, we are in jeopardy. The enemy of man's soul is ever on the alert. If we find our way out of danger, it will be through following our guide. God's Word is the guide—a lamp that lights up the way for our feet and reveals the danger that may ensnare us. Just as long as it reveals one snare at a time, we can continue to be overcomers. Faith and trust are able to stand the test of time. In the hours of temptation, trials, afflictions, and sufferings, the Christian can say, "Yet, do I not forget thy Word."

charged the jury and submitted the case to them upon proper issues. After the jury had deliberated about two hours, the judge withdrew the case from the jury, entered a judgment of nonsuit and therein dismissed the action and made other decrees bearing upon the matters in controversy. In allowing the motion for nonsuit and entering the judgement, the court fell into error. The evidence, considered in the light most favorable to plaintiffs, makes out a prima facie case for plaintiffs on all material issues of fact. No purpose can be served by a review of the evidence here.

The ruling of the court on the motion to nonsuit is reversed and the judgment below will be vacated.

AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

News and Views OF THE Woman's Auxiliary

Attention Youth Chairmen!

In electing your 1964 officers for the YFA, AFC, BA, and GA, use the new Woman's Auxiliary Manual with the following changes:

1. Youth chairman for the young people will be known as the educational chairman.

2. Field secretary will be known as the out-reach secretary.

You will find their duties on Pages 76 and 78 of the Youth Fellowship Auxiliary program books for 1964. If you haven't ordered your program books yet, please do so as quickly as possible so your young people can be using the materials prepared for them.

The time is drawing near for the declamation and essay contests in our districts. Be sure to encourage your young people to take part in these. Please note: in the declamation contest the contestant cannot sing a song in connection with his speech. This was ruled out after the program books had gone to press.

The state youth project for 1964 is still to provide recreational facilities and equipment for Cragmont Assembly. Let's see which district can turn in the largest amount for this project.

Mrs. David W. Hansley
State Youth Chairman
Kenly, North Carolina

Greenville, N. C.—A group of boys and girls, ages nine through twelve, met a Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church on January 9, and organized an AFC (Ambassadors for Christ).

The meeting opened with prayer by Deborah Warren; followed by the group's singing several songs led by Ronnie Carroway. The Twenty-Third Psalm was read by Charles Ed Mayo.

Officers for the organization were elected as follows: president, Ronnie Carroway; vice-president, Eddie Warren; secretary, Deborah Warren; treasurer, Tony Clark; song leader, John Simpkins; reporter, Kirby Clark; program committee, Deborah Warren, Ronnie Brown, Clint Lewis, and Larry Lloyd; project leaders; Kelly Craven, Eddie Lloyd, Charles Ed Mayo, and Eddie Lewis.

Plans were made by the group to make gifts for their mothers and fathers for Mother's Day and Father's Day. They also discussed giving gifts to the sick children in the community on Easter.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Ronnie Carroway. The pastor, the Rev. Austin Carter, then served refreshments to the boys and girls.

Goldsboro, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Free Will Baptist Church held an impressive installation service on the evening of January 6 at the church educational building. Following the opening hymn, the retiring officers were seated at a table on which were placed lighted candles. Each officer, in turn, presented a lighted candle to her successor. The pastor, the Rev. James A. Evans, gave the installation address and prayer.

The retiring officers are as follows: president, Mrs. Nellie Jones; vice-president, Mrs. J. R. Newton; secretary, Mrs. James Pierce; treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Wall.

The incoming officers are as follows: president, Mrs. James Pierce; vice-president, Mrs. Raymond Howell; secretary, Mrs. James Roberts; treasurer, Mrs. J. R. Newton.

Among other items of business, a mission committee was elected, consisting of Mrs. Charlie Malpass, chairman; Mrs. Lucy Hill; Miss Gertrude Underhill; and Mrs. Bertha Davis.

The group sang "Blest Be the Tie" as a benediction.

Newport, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Wildwood Free Will Baptist Mission met in the home of Mrs.

Virginia Rouse on January 8 for a monthly meeting. There were 11 members and two visitors present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lillian Best. The group sang "Rescue the Perishing"; and the president read the Scripture taken from Mark 6:1-6. The pastor led in the opening prayer. After a short business session the program was turned over to the guest speaker, Mrs. Reginald Styron of Davis, North Carolina. She gave a very interesting talk about the aims, programs, and projects of the woman's auxiliary. Mrs. Jean Day spoke briefly of the unusual opportunity we have to builders for the Lord.

It was decided that the Youth Fellowship would be divided into the YFA and the AFC.

Mrs. Minnie Senter led in the closing prayer, after which the hostess served delicious refreshments.

The Wildwood Free Will Baptist Mission was organized in November and has 24 members and a Sunday school enrollment of 55. It is sponsored by the Eastern Conference and State Mission Boards. It is a full-time work with the Rev. Virgil H. Day as pastor.

Who'll Get Your Property?

Walter E. Isenhour

Who'll get your property, dear soul,
When you no longer have control?
Will it be left for worldly kin
To sink them deeper into sin?
Will sons and daughters law it out,
Or with each other fuss and pout,
Because they don't and won't agree
Just what the share of each should be?

Will someone drink it all away,
As sometimes happens, let me say?
Will it be spent, when you have done
To gratify a lot of pride?
Will those for whom you've saved it
Expend it just to fill life's cup
With pleasures that will curse and blight
And send them down to hell's blight night?

Who'll get your business, or your land
And cash, perhaps, you have on hand
Who'll get the means that you have saved,

For which you've sacrificed and slaved
You'd better seek God's holy will
Before you grow quite weak and ill,
As to the way your means should go
When you are through with earth be

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

My word is a lamp unto my feet, and a path unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

GEMS OF TRUTH

"... If ye continue in my word, ye shall be my disciples indeed; And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:31, 32).
My dear friends, I hope that the gems of truth which I have gathered for this week's thought will be as great a blessing to you as they have been to me. May God bless each one of you, and I ask each of you to pray for me.

NO TIME

No time for God?
What fools we are to clutter up
Our lives with common things,
And leave without heart's gate
The Lord of life, and life itself—
Our God.

No time for God?
As soon to say, "No time
To eat or sleep or love or die."
Take time for God,
Or you shall dwarf your soul;
And when the angel Death
Comes knocking at your door,
A poor, misshapen thing you'll be
To step into eternity.

No time for God?
That day when sickness comes
Or trouble finds you out,
And you cry out to God,
Will He have time for you?

No time for God?
Some day you'll lay aside
This mortal self, and make your way
To worlds unknown;
And when you meet Him face to face
Will He—should He Have time for you?

—Anon.

"For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one of us shall receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether good or bad. Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men;
but we are made manifest unto God;
and I trust also are made manifest in our consciences" (2 Corinthians 5:10, 11).

"And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment:
So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Hebrews 9:27, 28).

LIFE

To the preacher life's a sermon,
To the joker life's a jest,
To the miser life is money,
To the loafer life's a rest.

To the soldier life's a battle,
To the teacher life's a school,
Life's a great thing for the thinker,
But a folly to the fool.

Life is just one long vacation
To the man who loves his work,
But it's constant dodging duty
To the everlasting shirk.

To the faithful, earnest worker
Life's a story ever new;
Life is what we try to make it—
What, my friend, is life to you?

—Anon.

"And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:15).

"... I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10).

"Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appear-eth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this or that" (James 4:13-15).

"Who learns and learns, and acts not what he knows,
Is one who plows and plows, but never sows."

Who waits and waits, and sows no
seeds of truth,
Is one who reaps naught, but tares and dross.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "So live that you would not be afraid to sell your parrot to the town gossip."

Inconsistency

■ A GENTLEMAN was conversing with an atheist when another man passed.
"That man," said the atheist, "is the founder of our Atheist Club."

"Why! that is Mr. Jones, an influential man in the church!"

"Yes, I know; but his inconsistencies have driven many of us into atheism, and led to the founding of our club."—

Annual Meeting Cragmont Assembly

The annual meeting of the stockholders' representatives of Cragmont Assembly, Incorporated, was held in the conference room at the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden, North Carolina, on Wednesday, January 8, 1964. It was attended by representatives of the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptist Churches and the three auxiliary conventions of the denomination: Woman's Auxiliary, Sunday School, and Free Will Baptist League.
Mr. Fountain Taylor, president of the assembly, presided over the meeting.

Reports of the management and of the treasurer showed that the institution had experienced its best year in its history during 1963, both as to finances and attendance at planned conferences. A generally increasing interest in the assembly upon the part of churches and ministers over the state, especially with respect to making needed improvements at the institution at Black Mountain, was noted.

The Rev. Walter Reynolds of Dunn,
North Carolina, was elected as president to succeed Mr. Fountain Taylor, who has served well in this capacity during the past several years. Mr. Taylor was elected as vice-president and adviser to the organization. Mrs. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill, North Carolina, was reelected secretary, and Mrs. Fountain Taylor was retained as treasurer.

The Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Ballard of Greenville, North Carolina, were re-elected as co-managers for the 1964 season. They are expected to open the institution for summer activities the first of May. In the meantime, an extensive program of publicity is being planned, to be promoted through church papers and newspapers and by visits to denominational meetings with films and slides of Cragmont. The cooperation of those who plan programs for denominational gatherings is solicited. The address of
Mr. and Mrs. Ballard will be 1225 South
Washington Street, Greenville, North Carolina, until May 1. All donations for the Cragmont Assembly should be sent to Mrs. Fountain Taylor, Richlands, North Carolina.

If I had a thousand lives, I'd want to give them all to Jesus Christ, and be a revelation of the things He came to do for men.—Bob Pierce.

GOD'S FINANCIAL PLAN

The church of the Lord Jesus Christ is the largest organization in the world. God has set a plan for His church to be financed, and all the plans of man are out of line with God's plan.

Some churches make assessments to the membership. Sometimes in some places this works. Sometimes it fails. Several years ago a brother minister told me this story. A certain Free Will Baptist church was falling short of meeting its financial obligations. Missions and other projects were at a low ebb. So they decided to make an assessment, and one brother flew the track and asked for a letter; his request was granted. He took his letter to another denomination and requested membership. He was received; but that church was also run by assessment. When the church made out its budget, he was assessed about four times more than he was in the church that he left.

Some churches have rummage (worn, outgrown, and discarded clothing) sales to help them make both ends meet in their financial obligations. Some plant what they call "God's Acre," which plan brings in much finance. Well there are many other ways, some of which increase the financial assets. But God has a plan that has never failed where honestly practice. That is the tithe of our income.

THE TITHE

The earth is the LORD'S, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein" (Psalm 24:1).

The Church belongs to Christ. He said, ". . . I will build my church; . . ." (Matthew 16:18).

So it takes finance to run the Lord's earth. We are permitted to live on God's earth, but God requires us to finance the requirements of looking after the economy of it. Thus, we literally belong to God by the act of creation.

"And the LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Genesis 2:7). This being true, we are God's by creation. So God has placed us upon the earth with the command to ". . . Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: . . ." (Genesis 1:28). But it takes money to replenish the earth. We all know that to be true. The longer the earth stands, the more money it takes to run the business of earth. Our congress and state and counties request certain amounts to run the business of earth, and they get it in some way or other. And as this is true, it takes money to run the Church. When I say Church, I mean the institution that Jesus said that He would build and which He called His church. This Church is built by Christ by saving lost sinners who confess their sins and accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour and Lord. But it takes money to carry the gospel to all the world.

THE TENTH, GOD'S ONLY PLAN

The tenth is God's only plan. That is set forth in the Word of God. God has said, ". . . I am the LORD, I change not; . . ." (Malachi 3:6). The unchanging God said further, in speaking to Israel, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation" (Malachi 3:8, 9).

GOD'S CHALLENGE

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it" (Malachi 3:10). We cannot beat God in giving. The more we give the more God gives.

Some people will say that the Scripture given in this article belongs to the Old Testament believers, but let us go to the New Testament and listen to Jesus. "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone" (Matthew 23:23).

The Pharisees had the idea that they were all right if they tithed. To them tithing was a means of salvation; when they prayed they boasted that they were

"tithers." One Pharisee stood and prayed with thanks that he gave tithes of all that he possessed. But Jesus said that he went down to his house unjustified. Like his comrades, he thought that tithing would put him over in the sight of God. Tithing is not enough. The tithe belongs to God, and when we fail to tithe we rob God.

FURTHER PROMISES BY GIVING TO GOD

"Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, . . ." (1 Corinthians 16:2).

"But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (2 Corinthians 9:6-9). Obey God and He will take care of the situation. ". . . all things work together for good to them that love God" (Romans 8:28).

MY CHALLENGE

I have made the offer several times to any Christian, a born-again child of God, will tithe honestly with God for six months and is dissatisfied at the end of the six months that he is the loser, and wants his money back, that I will arrange to get his money back to his billfold.

REV. A. B. BRYAN SAYS

"We now have fourteen missionaries and native pastors laboring among the Spanish-speaking people in Mexico on the border under the foreign mission program. Others are applying for support to go to that field. We have an experienced nurse who desires to go to the foreign mission field under the sponsorship of the convention. Four additional foreign mission candidates are preparing and will be ready for the field in two years or less."

We said above that it takes money to carry the message of salvation to a lost world. It takes money to prepare missionaries. They must have proper educational qualifications. But God has blessed North Carolina. Let us place the necessary buildings on God's campus at Mount Olive and work and ask the Lord to send reapers unto the harvest. God will call the workers, but He holds us responsible for preparing them.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS ON THE BIBLE

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

3824 RICHLAND AVENUE

NASHVILLE 5, TENNESSEE

QUESTION: Were the disciples confused before Christ died? If they were, why did they not understand when He told them He was going to be crucified?
Ed Jones, California.

ANSWER: There is no doubt that they were saved before He died and that some of them had been converted before they saw Him by the preaching of John the Baptist. It was John the Baptist that said,
"Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29), and they followed Jesus henceforth. Then it was before Jesus was crucified that He had told them to rejoice because their names were "written in heaven." "Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven" (Luke 10: 20). There are several reasons why they did not understand when He told them that He was to be crucified:

1. Their minds, like all other men's, were dull and slow to comprehend spiritual truths.
2. They lacked in being able to understand the Scriptures, being carnally minded. They were zealous to see Christ set up His earthly kingdom, which fact caused them to overlook the numerous prophecies that point to the Cross, hoping rather for the immediate fulfillment of the even more numerous promises of the reign of the Messiah—all found in the Old Testament they had at hand.
They lacked in much that we know since the New Testament had not been written when He was on earth. Compare: "Then He said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken: Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself" (Luke 24:25-27); and He said unto them, These are the signs which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me. Then He opened unto them their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures" (Luke 24:44, 45); with "Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you: Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow" (1 Peter 1:10, 11).

3. Then again there is the fact to be considered that they had a personal love for Christ that continuous presence with Him had fostered and a feeling of personal dependence on Him and His presence with them that made them shudder at the thought of His being crucified.

However, the disciples did seem to begin to understand at the close of His ministry at least in some limited measure, for they asked questions concerning His return to earth. They were somewhat as we are today who study the Scriptures and must understand from their contents that the coming of our Lord is imminent and yet our conversations betray our carnality in that we are often found planning and acting as though the Holy Spirit and the church were to have their permanent abode on this sin-cursed earth. (See Matthew 24:1-3; John 16:
31-33. Compare Matthew 24:36-42;
Luke 17:24-37; 2 Peter 3:3, 4.)

The followers of Christ in this age, according to prophecy and according to that we now experience, allow Satan to write a long line of question marks before their spiritual eyes and blur their spiritual vision so that they are inclined to treat with coldness and exercise a lack of faith toward Christ's teaching concerning the imminence of His second coming. Christ said of us in this age that we would have much material property and would be disposed to work in cooperation with one another in retaining our integrity and economical equilibrium. (See Matthew 24:42-51.) "Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Verily

I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods. But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; And shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken; The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 24:46-51).

When it comes to the disciples, they obeyed Jesus, tarried in Jerusalem and saw the Holy Ghost come and from then on were obedient to Him and were loyal to Christ filling the purpose for which He chose them. I would that we His followers were as loyal and obedient, but we lack in most that they exhibited.

OBITUARIES

MRS. SADIE PATTERSON

Mrs. Sadie Patterson died at the age of 77 on December 16, 1963. God in His divine wisdom saw fit to call from our midst our sister and friend. She was a faithful member of Juniper Chapel
Free Will Church, Vanceboro, North Carolina.

Mrs. Patterson lived in the vicinity of Vanceboro all her life and was dearly loved by those who knew her. Even though she was in declining health, she still remained faithful to her church.

Mrs. Patterson leaves to mourn their loss five children, several grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and a host of friends.

We will all miss her but God had a better place for her since her mission has been fulfilled. Her funeral was held at Juniper Chapel church by the pastor, the Rev. Graham Lane, assisted by a former pastor, the Rev. Henry Armstrong. She was laid to rest in the church cemetery.

There is an open gate at the end of the way,
That which each must go alone,
And there is a light we cannot see,
Our Father has claimed His own.

THE VANISHING BLUES

Chester Shuler

H, DE-EAR!" A deep sign, ending in a dismal groan, sounded from the overstuffed chair in which Mary was curled. "What weather! What a day! What a headache! If I've ever had the blues, it's right now. Oh, dear, dear!"

"Same here," sighed Phyllis, who had come in to share her chum's misery. "I'm so blue myself that if I'd put my hands in water, it'd probably turn to indigo. Tell me, Nancy, what makes us so blue?"

"Weather, I suppose. It's enough. Then, having nothing much to do, no place to go, no one to talk with, and—oops, who's coming?"

Forgetting blues, Nancy catapulted from the chair, and peered cautiously from behind curtains. "It's Chuck," she reported, "and some other fellow is with him! Coming to see Ted, I guess. But he's not here. So we'll have to entertain them, Phyl!" Nancy sounded alarmed. "Is my blouse clean? How does my hair look? Oh, dear, dear—"

Chuck, who considered himself quite "at home" in Ted's house, burst in without knocking. "Hi, Ted? You home? I brought—" His yell died out suddenly, as he saw the girls. "Hi," he grinned. "Meet my cousin Louis."

The flustered blue girls managed wry smiles as introductions were made. "Won't you sit down?" Nancy invited. "Ted's not here now. Went off with Dad right after lunch."

"Too bad," from Chuck. "Or is it? You girls seem—er—kind of blue." He looked keenly at Phyllis and Nancy. "Something special wrong? These gals, Lew, are usually such bundles of concentrated sunshine that when they don't just bubble over with mirth and smiles, I begin to worry—"

Phyllis tried hard to smile, feeling certain her face was cracking under the strain. "Just a trifle blue, perhaps," she said. "What with all this rain, and nothing to do, and—"

"See, Lew?" Chuck laughed. "She radiates sunshine—even in the rain. Come to think of it—since Ted isn't around, I believe these girls will do as substitutes. What do you say?"

"We'll do—for what?" demanded Nancy, looking interested.

"Dad had a call from a Mr. Boggs, a member of his church who lives out near Blue Mountain some place. It seems he's in trouble. A sick child, sick mother, and they need medicines and things brought out. So Dad's detailed Lew and me to do the job. We're going in the good ship Puddlehopper—as far as we can. Then we'll hike." He hesitated. "Would you girls like to go along? Kind of tough going, I guess. But you can just imagine we're missionaries in Burma, New Guinea, Siam, and way stations all at once. I can promise you quite a trip, if you care to go."

The girls exchanged glances. "Let's go," said Phyllis.

"I'm game," from Nancy, leaping up. "Ready, boys?"

"Put on boots and plenty of rain things," Chuck warned. "I hope you won't be sorry you went. We'll be glad to have you, understand, but—"

"We won't complain, if that's what you fear," promised Nancy. "After all, missionaries must be brave and face unflinchingly all hardships, lions, tigers, and—"

"Lots of mud," chuckled Lew. "Let's go, Chuck. These gal missionaries seem to be very brave. The good ship Puddlehopper lies at anchor."

"Without much comfort," Chuck added.

Minutes later the Puddlehopper was rattling, squeaking, and sputtering along the pike. Chuck guided it over an unimproved road, replete with ruts, puddles and ruts. Nancy and Phyllis clung bravely to the rear seat. The boys tried to keep up a lively conversation. Then the Puddlehopper landed in a deep rut and nearly stalled.

"Here we debark and proceed on foot," Chuck announced, as the boys pushed the car to the side of the road.

"Behold the impenetrable jungle ahead," said Lew.

"This short cut should whack off at least half a mile from the distance," Chuck said, squinting at the treetops. "Too bad we have no stars to guide us but—"

"Let's hope you fellows know where these people live," teased Nancy, stepping gingerly on stones which formed a treacherous bridge across a narrow creek.

"Never fear, fair ladies," Chuck assured. "Forward, march."

Ten minutes later, he said, "Behold the house, in the distance. A sign of human habitation. Methinks our trip nears its end."

Mr. Boggs was very happy to see the young people. He apologized for the condition of the roads. "It is kind of you to come away out here to help us," he added. "I telephoned a doctor and he said he could prescribe if someone could bring the medicines for us. Do come inside and rest awhile."

The boys chatted with the man and his son while the girls talked with the sick mother and daughter. Soon Nancy and Phyllis had donned aprons and were busy tidying the place, washing a stack of dishes and making the place more comfortable.

"Maybe there's something we can do to help Mr. Boggs, Chuck," Lew said. "Glad to, if we can, sir."

Mr. Boggs said he didn't know anything. "We men are quite well, glad to say," he replied. "So we've kept our end in fair shape."

Chuck and Lew exchanged glances they heard the girls humming a n tune at their work.

"Won't you young people sing some-ng for us?" asked the mother. "I'm fond of music, and we hear so little here. Even our radio is out of er, and we haven't been to church months."

The work finished, Phyllis seated self at the old, out-of-tune piano for a half-hour the four sang ms and gospel songs. Mr. and Mrs.
ggs thanked them heartily, and ed them to come again real soon.

"Bring your young friends along,"
s. Boggs invited. "The more the rier. Perhaps I'll be well before g, and able to serve refreshments."

"You know," said Chuck with a le, "we may just do that. One of se Sunday afternoons we'll bring the of our crowd from the church.
haps we can do better at singing than did today."

"Delighted to have you any time," Boggs declared. "Come real soon. ther probably will improve just think-about your visit."

Hiking back to the car, Nancy mand to slip and fall into a pool of ddy water, and Phyllis' cheek was nfully scratched by thorns. But ther seemed to mind in the least.

"I've enjoyed this so much," Nancy lared. "Thanks, boys, for taking us ng. I hope we haven't been too much a burden."

"Burden?" laughed Lew. "You were missionaries. I'd take you along Africa, Borneo, or anywhere I uldn't be afraid to go myself."

"Thanks," smiled Phyllis. "I must this thicket reminds me of trekking ough jungles—at least of what one ds about such things. But it's nice help folks in need. I was just think-while we worked, supposing my ks and I lived in a forsaken spot like Boggs do—how very glad we would for someone to come and help in e of need."

"Same here," said Nancy. "I guess ll appreciate our homes more."

"Here's the good ship Puddlehopper ing at anchor in Mud Sea," said uck. "All aboard, ship ahoy, an-rs aweigh!"

"Puddlehopper's decks feel good er all this hike," Nancy said.

Washing the mud from her brown ls that evening, Nancy said, "You ow, Phyllis, I just happened to rember my terrible blues. Wonder at became of them?"

Phyllis stopped scraping mud from her coat. "Same place mine disappeared to, of course—that big mud puddle," she laughed. "Suppose we leave them out there."

"Sure thing. We ought to repeat this experience every time the blues return to torment us. I am sure blues just can't stand helpfulness!"—*Gospel

Wings of Faith

by Albert M. Ezell

Sometimes as we are oft beset
By trials great and sore
All piled so high and spread so wide
There seems no room for more.

When every way we turn it seems
No progress have we won,
For still the dark and lowering clouds
Blot out the warming sun.

Doubt stalks our footsteps everywhere,
Fear stands at every turn,
And hope has flown too far to fill
The heart's eternal yearn.

While stumbling o'er this rocky path
Of life's cold Stygian night, Numbed heart finds time to form a prayer

For one small ray of light.

And then a rosy glow appears
Like early morning's dawn,
When Faith sweeps in on wings of light
And every cloud is gone.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for February 2

The Woman Of Samaria

LESSON TEXT: John 4:7-14, 28, 29, 39-42

MEMORY VERSE: John 4:14

I. INTRODUCTION

Jesus had been in Judea for some time, but He decided to go into Galilee. The usual route between those two places led through the Jordan valley. But Jesus chose to go through Samaria in keeping with the divine plan.

The Jews and Samaritans had no dealings with one another. The Samaritans, as far as the Jews were concerned, were a low class people. They considered them as outcasts. A barrier, therefore, existed between the two peoples.

The lesson today shows how Jesus broke that barrier. When He talked with the Samaritan woman at the well, He shattered a custom that had been practiced a long time: He broke the line of hatred and prejudice that separated the Jews and Samaritans, which is so characteristic of imperfect human beings.

As Jesus sat on the curb of the well, the Samaritan woman came to draw water. Jesus asked her for a drink, which, of course, was a surprise to her. Immediately, however, Jesus began to talk with her about spiritual things. In the course of the conversation, He revealed to her that He knew about her wicked past. That, along with other things, caused her to accept Him as the Saviour.—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. There are social outcasts in every city and village, among the "high" and the "low" (John 4:7).

2. Even though one has become a social outcast on account of his sin, the Lord Jesus will not pass him by (v. 7).

3. It often helps to start a spiritual conversation by asking a favor of a stranger (vv. 7-9).

4. In doing personal work it is often well to begin with the natural, and go on to the spiritual (v. 10).

5. The one who has been in the presence of the Lord Jesus finds it easy to forget earthly things (v. 28).

6. The poorest and weakest Christian has sufficient strength and understanding to tell what Christ means to him (v. 29).

7. The testimony of personal experience goes a long way in witnessing to others (v. 39).

8. When people have experienced the saving grace of Jesus Christ they have a great longing to be continually with Him (v. 40).

9. Faith is stronger, when based on what Christ says, than the words of any human being (v. 41).

10. It is a wonderful discovery to find that Christ is the Saviour of the world (v. 42).—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. At this time of the year the winter sports contests are in full swing. Ice skating seems to be a favorite sport of many countries. One particular contest, the barrel jumping competition, requires a great deal of skill from each contestant. With each round of the contest a new barrel is added to the string of barrels the contestant is required to jump.

The Samaritan woman, like the barrel jumper, had many obstacles to surmount in her attempt to witness for Jesus. First of all, she was a woman. Because women in the ancient world were looked upon as social inferiors, she would have difficulty witnessing for Jesus. She was alone and at first the only messenger to her city at this time. What could one woman do among so many thousands in Samaria? On top of this she had a bad reputation. Who would stop and listen to this one who had had five husbands and was living with a man who was not her husband? In addition, she had come to the well to draw water. But after Jesus talked to her, she forgot this pressing duty, and ran back to the city. Furthermore, the message itself was new. There is nothing so difficult and at times disheartening as the task of pioneering in a new field. Missionaries often labor months or even years in a new field before they get a hearing. What mission field could have been more difficult than introducing a Jew to a Samaritan community. Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. The way Jesus dealt with the Samaritan woman, as He step by step led her to a conviction that He was the Christ, provides an excellent example for those who seek to win others to Him. Note that He proceeded from a very natural request for a drink of water to a discussion of the "living water" which He was able to provide.

Then, in verses not a part of our printed text, He proceeded to focus her attention on her own spiritual needs, letting her see that without being told He knew how great were those needs. So one who was trying to win another to Christ would seek to show him his need of a Saviour by helping him to see that he had sinned and come short of the glory of God.

Recall that it was the fact that she told her all things whatsoever she had done that impressed her so greatly that she was ready to believe Him to be the Messiah.

Perhaps each pupil in your class is already a Christian. If so, they will want to be ready to win others. If not, you will want to be alert to opportunities to lead them to a saving knowledge of Christ as their personal Saviour and Lord. In either case, Jesus' procedure in this incident is valuable.—Intermediate Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

3. The truth revealed in this lesson may be classified under three heads: the woman, the well, and the water. May we take a little closer look at each of these.

The woman was a Samaritan. This means that she was a mixed breed who was despised by the Jews. She was immoral, having had several husbands and was now living with a man who was not her husband. She was completely ignorant of spiritual matters; in fact, she was a typical sinner.

The well represents Christ in many ways. The well is the source of water and Christ is the source of eternal water. The well was open to the public; anyone could come and refresh himself with the water. Whosoever will may come and partake of the eternal water that is Christ.

This particular well—"Now Christ was there, . . ." (John 4:6), especially a wonderful type of Christ. It was purchased by Jacob (Genesis 32:2) (continued on page fifteen)

Father and the expiation for sin, is expression to the world of God's purpose and plan for man.

His identification with Christ means that he dies with Him, and is raised with Him to a new order of life that is lived in absolute dependence on the power of Christ, the Head of the Church. In Him His claim is reaffirmed. Redeemed man, and only redeemed man, is restored to his creaturehood. The image of God is restored to him. His purpose in life is to bring honor and glory to God by devotion, worship, and witness in the permanent community which is His Church.

The body of which he is a member must grow up to maturity. The maturity is measured by Christ himself. The ultimate eschatological dimension for the Church, according to Paul, is that every member making up the body of Christ should reach maturity—reach the "measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

As the purpose of the Church is to reach full maturity in spiritual excellence, so, it is to reach the unreached for Christ. To this vocation they have been commissioned to proclaim and interpret the good news of salvation to all men. In this task Christians can best express their vocation. For he that "abideth in it beareth much fruit." He has committed unto us the ministry of reconciliation.

Spirit of God, descend on my heart;
Lead me from earth, through all its pulses move;
Help me to my weakness, mighty as Thou art,
And make me love Thee as I ought.
Amen.

First Church—

Wilson, N. C.—What good attendance and offerings we had last Sunday! Our church is pushing toward what it should and can do: a minimum of 450 in Sunday school; morning worship attendance, 400; evening worship, 400; FWBL, 150 up; prayer meeting, 200; weekly offerings, $800.00, or an annual budget of at least $40,000. These are conservative estimates for a church of our size and ability.

Shady Grove—

Dunn, N. C.—We acknowledge with gratitude the receipt of a $25 certificate of membership in the Church Finance Association from Mrs. W. A. Jackson, and at the request of Mrs. Jackson was transferred to Shady Grove Church. The church now has four certificates.

* * *

First Church—

Smithfield, N. C.—One Sunday not long ago we shocked ourselves and especially our Sunday school superintendent by having 174 for Sunday school. Our enrollment is only around 185. What happened? We only had 11 visitors which is about average. That same day we had about 25 more than usual for worship. Nothing special was going on. What did happen? Simply that most folks decided to come one Sunday. It is much better to come every Sunday and we will all be pleasantly shocked—wouldn't it be nice?

Bridgeton Church—

Bridgeton, N. C.—Some characteristics of church members: Wheelbarrow member, has to be pushed; trailer member, has to be pulled; rowboat member, has to be rowed or paddled; sailboat member, mostly goes with the wind; pitcher pump member, have to be primed.

Beulaville Church—

Beulaville, N. C.—If I were you, I'd be a Christian. I would be a member of the church. I would own a personal copy of the Bible and read it daily. I would witness and tell others about Christ. I would be a tither. I would realize that my faith is a weapon that God has given me to fight sin and overcome the devil.

St. CLAIRE BIBLE CLASS

18, 19). The water which Christ provides was purchased by His blood. This well purchased by Jacob was given to Joseph (Genesis 48:21, 22). This became a part of Joseph's birthright. It ought to have been given to Reuben, Jacob's firstborn, but through his fall into grievous sin, it was transferred to Joseph (1 Chronicles 5:1). Christ, the second man, takes the inheritance which the first man forfeited and lost through sin.

The water represents salvation and all of the other blessings that are ours in Christ. Our blessings in Him are both satisfying and eternal. Salvation, like water, is a basic need of every person.—Advance Quarterly (F.W.B.).

New Translation for Translators

THE translation of the Bible "in clear, simple English" is underway at London by the British and Foreign Bible Society, for the purpose of helping missionaries who are engaged in translating the Scriptures into various native tongues.

Called "A Translation for Translators," the new edition will aid workers in remote mission areas who do not have access to original Greek or Hebrew versions. These translators will be able to use the new "straightforward, unambiguous" English edition as a standard for their foreign language versions.

The four Gospels and some of Paul's Epistles which have already been translated have been welcomed by missionaries in various foreign lands, a Society spokesman says.—The Pentecostal Evangel.

What Is Your Choice?

by Robert Brown

What are we but mortal fools
To think that we are wise and smart;
We are only God's instrument
On earth to do our part.

We are wise only in our own eyes;
We are poor specimens of humanity;
We are but poor mere mortals,
Speaking foolishly and using profanity.

God created us in His own image,
Gave us breath and tongue to speak,
Gave us heart and mind to reason,
And a backbone that's strong or weak;

Gave us arms and hands to keep us busy,
Feet and legs to stand up straight;
Will you use them for your salvation?
The choice is yours alone to make.

We may choose the wide and crooked road

While we travel our earthly journey;
But when we depart from this earthly home,
In hell we will spend an eternity.

Or you can choose the straight and narrow,

Live the life that God had planned,
And receive at Heaven's gate of pearl
Eternal life in the Promised Land.

Library Contains 22,000 Bibles

■ THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY, New York City, has the most extensive collection of Scriptures in the western hemisphere. There are more than 22,000 volumes in its library at the Bible House, 450 Park Avenue, written in over 1,100 languages.

Editorial—

GOVERNED BY SELF-INTEREST

Within its proper bounds, there is nothing wrong with self-interest. When Christ spoke of man's loving his neighbor as himself, He certainly presented the truth that there must be self-interest. Man would not be able to sustain himself without it.

Since man possesses this natural instinct, much of what he does is for selfish purposes. There are few men who perform the deeds of life without self-interest in view. Few there are who can lose themselves to a cause to the point that self-interest is not the governing factor in their every action.

In brief, men act and determine the course of their lives for expedient's sake. This means, in Webster's terms, that such persons' lives are characterized by concern with what is opportune. "Expedient usage implies what is immediately advantageous without regards for ethics or concern with consistent principles," says Mr. Webster.

As individuals, we should be honest with ourselves—honest enough to analyze our purposes and motives. In the business world, men can act on expediency and get by with it. It is to be expected. The business firm may cash in, so to speak, on another's misfortunes to its own advantage. When such happens, we say, "That's business for you." Competition for expedient's sake is to be expected in the business world; however, this does not mean that the Christian, or Christian groups, should follow the same policies.

A person may lie, cheat, or steal for the sake of expediency, with a certain end in view. That is, by so doing he sees some personal benefit. Such a person is governed by self-interest, and such interest is not concerned with ethics or consistent principles.

Sad to say, we find such motives and purposes in Christian circles. We see it in the man who unites with a church for business purposes or for personal prestige. It may be the underlying reason for independency; the independent attitude is often governed by self-interest. We see it in the attitude of one group against another in seeking to hurt and destroy. We see its effect in the narrow and prejudiced attitude of those who do not tolerate the person or persons who disagree with them.

We have seen men act and move with no other purpose than that of self-interest, either for themselves or for that which they represent. Even men called of God fall into this snare and lose their concern for others. We see it when men have every opportunity to serve a cause with great influence and leadership and yet never settle down to a greater service.

In times of controversy, it is so easy to act on expediency. The decisions are made with no regard for ethics or consistent principles. Specifically, action taken against North Carolina Free Will Baptists by those of the National Association has been largely based upon that which was expedient for a few. By so doing, a literature program could be launched; thus, giving a greater centralization of power. Other expedient purposes were accomplished when church government was made an issue. To be sure, God will not honor such purposes.

Man cannot afford to sell his soul for the sake of expediency, or for selfish interests. Somehow the Christian must see beyond himself. He must lift himself up above the standards of the world system. He must "featherbedding" which politicians are accused of must not exist in the Christian's life. The mammon which Jesus spoke of is nothing more than self. We can't be a servant to self and God at the same time. However, we can learn to serve Him first, the other needs will be met.

Jesus said, "... Take no thought for your life, ..." (Matthew 6:25). He did not mean that we are to abuse ourselves, or to ignore ourselves. Instead, we are to trust Him first. If expediency will bring honor to the name of Christ, then let us be expedient. But if it is for self-interest, then let us avoid it.

Heritage of Thankfulness

By Albert M. Ezell

OLD rail fences, spotted with moss and lichens, running an erratic course down a country lane . . . nosegays of wild roses growing from the rich leaf mold in the fence corners . . . rich-gold and purple of daisies spreading across a meadow field in the scarlet rays of sunset . . . grazing cows, like tiny ants, and the tinkling melody of bells floating up from the green valley . . . a lonely crow perched on a tall dead pine, speaking a prophetic address to the sunset . . . unnumbered and unidentified voices of tiny creatures that live beneath the leaves and stems . . . a timid hare venturing forth under a moonlight frolic in the silvery sand between the old fence row . . . a low-flying sparrow scanning the floor of the dark'n-valley . . . the twilight song of the bluebird wafted from the blue-green freshness of the hollow . . . cloud ships of polished gold, sailing across a crimson sky at sunset . . . gentle breezes bearing the aroma of fresh-turned soil . . . winds far, far across the valley reflecting the prismatic splendor of the last rays of the setting sun . . . the welcome anticipation of cooling rain, as we watch the approach of summer showers racing down the mountainside—all of these things, bringing in peace and serenity under the blessing benediction of God, are the riches of life that we of us forget we possess.

Do not believe that all the natural inherent characteristics of man are ordained to be the beautiful, the great, and the good. True, man has failed to walk in the way for which he was created; and in doing so, has forfeited innumerable riches that were to have been his inheritance.

In the story of creation we are told that God pronounced it very good. G. B. Steiner has said, "The man who can live, in living union of mind and heart, converse with God through nature, finds in the material forms around him, a source of power and happiness inexhaustible, and like the life of angels.—The highest life and glory of man is to be alive unto God; and when this grandeur of sensibility to him, and this power of communion with him is carried, as the habit of the soul, into the forms of nature, then the walls of our world are as the gates of Heaven."

Man was created to be a creature of happiness, a soul of appreciation; he was placed in a beautiful and happy environment; but lust, envy, and an insatiate desire for power and fame soon pushed all of those more admirable attributes into the background until man has lost the power to evaluate the things of his natural heritage. It has become almost a universal custom to judge a man's greatness by the wealth or prominence he might possess, forgetting that in his quest to possess those things he may have neglected to improve upon some talent that could have made him threefold greater than he now is. "Most persons would succeed, in small things if they were not troubled with great ambitions," so says Longfellow, the poet.

I thank God for the poets of our world, those men and women who seem so able to sift the precious metals from the dross, to be able to lift away the layers of ugliness and unsightliness from the very lowliest and commonest, so that after the polish of love and understanding has been applied are able to reveal to the plebeian mind beauties that would have forever lain dormant but for their effort and concern. It has been said, "Unhappy is the lot of him who at some time in his life has not been a poet." Yet, I say, none will find poetry anywhere unless they bring it with them.

In order to be of a discerning nature, we must continually practice the art of discernment. We will find in the continuation of this practice that our minds are enlarged to the extent that we find a greater number of people of sterling worth and character. If we are able to see no difference between one person and another; then we lack the art of discernment.

Seek always to cultivate within your heart a spirit of thankfulness that will spill over into free and uncorrupted praise for the benefits you have received; such acknowledgments will come to the door of heaven as fragrant incense before God, and all your blessings shall be doubled.

May we remember, if ever we feel ourselves lapsing into a spirit of unthankfulness, these words of William Shakespeare, "God's goodness hath been great to thee.—Let never day nor night unhallowed pass but still remember what the Lord hath done."

Transformed By the Book

A Bible colporteur was held up at the point of a revolver in a Sicilian forest in the dead of night. He was ordered to light a fire and burn his books. Having lit the fire, he asked if he might read a brief extract from each book before surrendering it to the flames. From one he read Psalm 23; from another, the Parable of the Good Samaritan; from another, the Sermon on the Mount; from another, Paul's hymn to love, etc.

After the reading of each extract the brigand exclaimed, "That's a good book! We won't burn that one. Give it to me." In the end not a book was burned. They passed one by one into the brigand's hands, who went off, books and all, into the darkness.

Some years later he turned up again, but this time as an ordained Christian minister. Telling his story to the colporteur, he said, "It was the reading of your books that did it."

The harvest of the Bible is the harvest of changed lives all over the world and a harvest of churches planted by the redemption of whole communities.—The Reaper.

Christian Education

MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE LIBRARY GROWS

By the end of 1967 the college hopes to have 20,000 volumes. This is the number recommended for fully accredited junior college libraries.

To reach this goal, friends of the college are encouraged to contribute $5 monthly for the purchase of new books. For each $5 gift a nameplate can be used to designate a book in honor or memory of a loved one.

February: Christian Education Emphasis Month

W. Burkette Raper, President
Mount Olive College

To assure Free Will Baptist young people the opportunity of Christian education is the primary mission of Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina. There is a growing appreciation for this educational service.

APPRECIATION

A record number of high school graduates are depending upon Mount Olive College. This year our enrollment will reach approximately 250. These students have brought into sharp focus the need for more adequate facilities. In order to accommodate a larger enrollment the building program on our new campus is scheduled to begin this spring.

The denomination has demonstrated its confidence in the college by increasing its support to an all-time high. During 1963 Free Will Baptists contributed approximately $120,000 to the college, $64,238 of which was for the building fund. The remaining $54,000 was used to pay the faculty, strengthen and enlarge the library, and to provide financial assistance for worthy and needy students.

Our college is likewise receiving greater support from the local community. Through the Mount Olive Junior College Area Foundation private citizens and business firms have united with us to speed the building program on our new campus. An immediate goal of the foundation is to raise $175,000 for the development fund.

EDUCATION EMPHASIS MONTH

February has been designated by the Free Will Baptist State Convention "Education Emphasis Month" for North Carolina. It is hoped that every church will participate in this observance by:

1. Reminding its young people of the educational opportunities available at Mount Olive College; and
2. Contributing to the financial support of the college.

February will be a good time for churches to move forward in completing their quotas to the general fund. Gifts, whether from the church treasury, Sunday school, auxiliary, league, or individuals, are applied on church quotas. Our donations to the college are an investment in the future of our children and our church.

OBITUARIES

MR. JOE WYATT BAKER

Whereas our heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom and mercy has seen to call from our midst our earthly father, Mr. Joe Wyatt Baker, usually known as J. W., we bow in humble submission to His will. Father was born July 1, 1884, and died after a long illness January 8, 1964. His stay here on earth was seventy-nine years, five months, and eighteen days. He was a good provider for his family and worked hard on his farm in the Pikeville, North Carolina community as long as he was able.

His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church beneath a beautiful mound of flowers. A flower is God's silent messenger. It is the sweetest thing God ever made without putting a soul into it.

Father, dear Father, we miss you,
But God needed you more;
We'll all be faithful to one another,
And meet you on that eternal shore.

A Message to Leaguers

EVER before has there been such a demand for better pastors, teachers and missionaries in our denomination. The Free Will Baptist League has given us some of the best leaders we have, and is still producing qualified and able leadership.

But what is the Free Will Baptist League? It certainly is more than just an auxiliary of the church; it is the church training. Through the league, pastors and laymen, young and old, are trained to carry on successful programs in our churches. The Free Will Baptist League is made up of people, those who will be the church of tomorrow, will only be as effective in the work of the Lord as the training programs in our local churches train them. We cannot expect of our young people something we have never done in them.

The Free Will Baptist League is the training union of the church, it should be of utmost importance to everyone in the church. We need to renew our interest and concern in our leagues.

One of the most serious problems in our leagues across the state is the local pastor's lack of interest. The pastor is a very important part of every league. He often the success or failure of a league depends upon the interest, cooperation, and promotion of the pastor. If he does not think the leagues worth his

by Frank Ray Harrison, President
North Carolina Free Will Baptist League
State Convention

time and effort, I wonder what kind of training program he proposes? The officers, from the director on down, can be no stronger, can be no more enthused, can be no more burdened for lost souls, than the pastor. He is a keyman in league work; a league-promoting pastor makes for a strong and growing league.

Oh, how we need pastors, directors, presidents, group captains—entire leagues—who are consecrated to God! A man or woman, boy or girl, who has the love of Jesus Christ flowing out of his heart will be consecrated to God. He will be a soldier of the Cross, working for our Lord in every way he can. There will not be a lack of interest in his work because God has no place in His kingdom for lazy Christians.

Why are so many leagues dying? Why are so many boys and girls going to places other than church at league time? They do not go to league because many parents are too lazy and indifferent to go with them to league. Their hearts are not burdened for their children. They have not asked God for a burden for their children and for their church.

How many churches are suffering today because they do not have people capable of carrying on a church program! They are not capable because they have never been trained. Surely someone has failed.

At a union meeting a few weeks ago I presented the cause of the league to the people. During the dinner hour a lady told me now the little leaguers in her class had learned to pray for the first time. A pastor told me some time ago of the ability of his young people to conduct devotions without hesitating because they were dedicated leaguers.

I believe God will bless the work of a league that is devoted wholly to the glory and service of God. I believe even the smallest efforts will be blessed. The young leaguers will experience the love and grace of God.

One of the problems I hear expressed quite often is the cut-and-dried programs which do not come from the heart. Why do many leagues have this problem? They have it because someone has not prepared the program. League directors can help solve this problem by placing stress on individual preparation rather than have a two minute glance at the printed page at league time. There is absolutely no substitute for preparation if you are to have a good league program. One does not always have to stay completely in the league quarterly for a program. Variety is the spice of life, so do not be afraid to use your imagination a little! Let the quarterly serve as a basis for your programs.

Every Sunday school has, or should have, council meetings. Why not do that for league? Have a council meeting at least once a quarter or once a month, whichever is most expedient, and exchange ideas on the future programs. Do not be afraid to try new ideas in presenting league programs.

The North Carolina State League Convention has asked all leagues to send 10% of their weekly offerings each quarter to the League Convention for support and promotional work of the convention. Send your offerings to the Rev. Norman Ard, Treasurer, Route 1, Box 149, Ayden, North Carolina.

If any league would like some help or a visit from me, I am available on second and fourth Sunday nights. If any league will contact me by writing a card to me at Lucama, North Carolina, I will be glad to help any way I can.

The Free Will Baptist League can and does play a very important role in our church-training, training the church to be a greater church which will render greater service to God. We must realize that the lack of trained and capable leadership has been a handicap to Original Free Will Baptists in the past, and let this be a lesson not soon to be forgotten. May God help us to become better stewards of the kingdom through the Free Will Baptist Leagues.

If you let the mistakes you made yesterday stand between you and your duty today, and your golden opportunities, you bring your own defeat.—Walter E. Isenhour.

NEWS & NOTES of Denominational Interest

Youth Fellowship of Western District Met at Wilson

The Youth Fellowship organization of the Western District met with the First Free Will Baptist Church in Wilson, North Carolina, Saturday night, January 25.

On December 28, 1963, the organization met at Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Pikeville, North Carolina. At this meeting it was decided to give $5 to the guest speaker if he lived less than 50 miles from the church in which he was speaking, and to give $50 to the speaker if he lived more than 50 miles. It was also decided to give a banner to the church with the largest attendance at the fellowship. Stoney Creek Free Will Baptist Church won the banner at the December meeting with an attendance of 31.

A special invitation is extended everyone in the Western District to attend these fellowships.

Wayne West to Direct Recreation at Cragmont

At a meeting of the board of directors of Cragmont Assembly, Free Will Baptist institution at Black Mountain, North Carolina, held Monday, January 20, 1964, in Goldsboro, the Rev. Wayne West, student at Wake Forest College, was elected as director of recreation for youth conferences held at Cragmont during the 1964 season. Between conferences he will visit churches over the state as a field representative for the assembly.

Under Mr. West's supervision, a uniform program of recreation and physical education will be carried out in all the conferences, thus assuring equality for all in the vacation activities throughout the summer. Mr. West is well qualified for this work, is very popular among the young people of the Free Will Baptist denomination, and it is believed that his election to this position will lessen the danger of some weeks being overcrowded at Cragmont, since all are assured of practically the same benefits from attending conferences.

The Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Ballard, co-managers of Cragmont, submitted to the board for approval seven members of the Cragmont staff for the summer. They are Mrs. Betty Horton, Wilson, as housekeeper; Miss Maggie Paramore, Enfield, as dietitian; and Michael Day, Harry Grubbs, Linda Godwin, Lucy Lupton, and Terry Lyczkowski as helpers. Other staff members will be named soon.

The policy and scheduling committee presented a statement of policy and ethics for the institution and reported that seven regular conferences have been scheduled so far for this summer.

Cragmont will open for the summer activities on May 15 and will close on September 30.

New Bethlehem Church to Begin Full-Time Services

The Original New Bethlehem Free Will Baptist Church of Grantsboro, North Carolina, will begin full-time services the first Sunday in February. The Rev. Graham Lane who has served the church as pastor for the past several years will continue on as full-time pastor.

There was a large attendance at the quarterly meeting of the church held Sunday night, January 12. At this meeting Mr. and Mrs. Herman Price were elected

Coming Events

- February 14—World Day of Prayer
- March 22—Palm Sunday
- March 27—Good Friday
- March 29—Easter Sunday
- April 11—Bible School Workshop, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina

as delegates to the next union meeting to be held at St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church in New Bern the fifth Saturday in March. The Sunday School Convention will be held on the next day, and the Sunday school hopes it can continue to hold the attendance banner it won at Juniper Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in December.

Marsh Swamp to Observe World Day of Prayer

The World Day of Prayer will be observed on Friday, February 14, at 4 p. m. at Marsh Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Sims, North Carolina. It is being sponsored by the woman's auxiliary of the church. All surrounding communities are invited to participate in this service.

Fellowship to Meet at Marianna, Florida

The Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptists will meet July 7, 8, 1964, on the campus of Chipola College, Marianna, Florida. The college campus will serve as an ideal meeting place which will be able to accommodate a large number of people. Further plans for the meeting will be announced. The Rev. L. Holliday is moderator of the Fellowship.

The Great Question

by Robert Brown

We came into this world without choice,
And we leave it the very same way.
Will someday we find the explanation
In that great Judgment Day?

What about the millions that have gone on before,
The untold souls of ignorance and superstition,
Will they be punished as the hypocrites?
What will be their eternal position?

Is hell waiting with its gaping jaws
To swallow them up in eternal damnation

If they sin without the true knowledge
Of God, His Son, and His creation?

What is the true meaning of life itself?
What is our part in His colossal plan?
At the end of our earthly journey
Will we remember and understand?

Will we know those in eternal torment
Maybe our parents or other kin?
How can we enjoy our victory in death
Knowing they are reaping the wages of sin?

Central Conference Missions Report

It is with grateful hearts that we make the following report of the many who have received our Macedonian call and are doing something about it. Typical testimonials of those who are helping this year are the following: "I was so excited about our offering for missions that I wanted to bring it to you . . . I have another check from our couples' class enclosed . . . $50.00."—Rev. Wilson Wilcox, Reedy Branch church. "Our leagues at the Ayden church have been saving their pennies for missions (penny each month). Our league is small; however, we did have $20.06. . . . We originally planned to send this money to our missionaries in Mexico and Arizona. When I told the members about the needs right here in the Central Conference, they immediately voted to divide the money . . . enclosed is $10.03."—Lorena Moseley, Director, Ayden Free Will Baptist League.

Since our last report at the end of December, 1963, which appeared in the January 8th issue, the following offerings have been received:

Roanoke Rapids (offerings for December)	$ 99.21
Black Jack Church	105.00
Women's Chapel Sunday School	8.00
Friendship Sunday School	10.00
State Mission Board	15.00
Lawson's Grove Sunday School	10.00

REPORTS FROM THE FIELD

Weldon: The Rev. Vance Link reports that work on the building is progressing nicely, and that they are planning to use it the first time on March 1. The outside work is complete, the subfloor has been laid, and they are working on the partitions for the rooms and on the ceiling. They are thankful for the wonderful cooperation of the churches in the Central Conference. Their attendance is real good; and when they begin to use the new building, it is expected that the church will begin to show a steady, dependable growth. Note: We need generous offerings to purchase the necessary materials to finish this church. This money is a loan, on a contract; and when they are able to pay it back, then your board plans to lend it to another new church. With this plan in operation, each step we take is another step toward our goal: "An Original Free Will Baptist church in every town." The sum of $750 is needed right away.

Roanoke Rapids: Report of January 20 from Missionary Noah Brown: "Happy am I to know that the Free Will Baptist people are responding to the call for missions. If they could spend one day with me on the field, they would give, pray as never before . . . God is really blessing us; He has given us nine professions, 7 adults and 2 children . . . Sunday school enrollment is 42; we had 32 present last Sunday, with 34 for church service. Among those present were a public schoolteacher, a real estate dealer, a man who works for a finance company, and a lady who works at a drugstore. We have a woman's auxiliary with six members. We will need to take in the back porch before long."

URGENT APPEAL: Please bring this matter before your church or organization. Last year 32 of our 48 churches supported our conference mission program, so far this conference year 26 have sent offerings. If each church really made this matter an object of prayer, your board would not have to beg you to do what you could and should do. If you could visit these two works of faith, you would get a better vision of the mission that needs to be accomplished. Our denomination has lost a great number of members who moved away from their home churches to industrial towns with no church of their faith. They have joined other churches or become inactive. Jesus "must needs go through Samaria." The Samaritan woman didn't come to Him; He went to her. As a result of a trip through Samaria, He spent two days there to help the converts establish their church. Your board can't do this job alone. We need your help to do what you voted for us to do. May God bless each church to make regular offerings is our prayer.

Our New Year Begins

by Mrs. Mary Bell Lanier

Hello! It is a pleasure for me to be writing another article for The Free Will Baptist. Since this is the first article I have written this year, I would like to wish you all a very happy new year, even though it's a little late. We had a very nice Christmas for which we are very thankful to the Lord.

All of you who were so kind to send new and used toys here for Christmas. They helped make many a little boy and girl happy for Christmas. We would like to pass along their joy and gratitude to you, the ones who made it possible for them to have such a nice Christmas.

We have just added a new family to the workers under the direction of Arizona-Mexico Missions. They are the Rev. and Mrs. Emiliano Lopez from Santa Ana, Sonora. The work in which he will be engaged will be mostly evangelistic.

AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

News and Views OF THE Woman's Auxiliary

Clayton, N. C.—The YFA of Powhatan Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Misses Gwen and Vickie Peele for its January meeting. Miss Diane Stevens, president, presided over the meeting which opened with the group's singing the chorus, "Walking with Jesus." The opening prayer was by Mrs. Betty Jean Ard.

During the business session the group decided to sponsor a Youth Sunday on February 2, with young people filling all the offices of the church on that day.

The program, "In Step with Jesus for the New Year," was discussed by Gwen Peele, Glenda Brady, Linda Benson, and Vickie Peele. Fifteen members and two visitors were present. The benediction prayer was by Glenda Brady.

The hostesses served delicious refreshments.

Grantsboro, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of New Bethlehem Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Wesley Harrison January 16 for its monthly meeting. The program began with the group's singing "The Kingdom Is Coming"; followed with the Scripture reading taken from Mark 6:1-6. Mrs. Amanda Buck prayed the opening prayer.

The program, "Beginning with the Master Builder," was presented at this time. The theme for the year, "Building the Kingdom in Our Hearts," was discussed by the group. It was brought out that there are many ways an auxiliary may build for the kingdom, and as a result of this program these ways may be discovered. The group adopted these ways as a project and will strive to carry them out through the year.

There were 12 members present. The treasurer reported a balance in the treasury of $200.20. The meeting adjourned with prayer.

During the social hour Mr. Harrison cooked delicious donuts, while Mrs. Harrison served them with steaming hot coffee.

The next meeting is scheduled for February 20 at the home of Mrs. Herman Price.

A Bible study is being held each Tuesday night in the church by the pastor, the Rev. Graham Lane. The public is invited to attend.

Fountain, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, January 17, in the church. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. L. Goff, who turned the program over to Mrs. David Hobgood, program chairman. Mrs. Hobgood had the group join together in singing "Years I Spent in Vanity." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Lovelace Gardner. Mrs. Robert Oakley and Mrs. David Hobgood sang a duet, "There Is No Friend to Me Like Jesus." Mrs. Hobgood used for the Scripture reading, Mark 6:1-6, and also read "Defining the Theme for 1964" of the program, "Beginning with the Master Builder," written by Mrs. Haywood Hill. Mrs. Robert Oakley read "Builders All," "Discussion Materials," "Leader's Introduction," and "A Carpenter Is Indispensable." Mrs. Hobgood discussed the following topics of the program: "A Carpenter Repairs," "A Carpenter Builds," "A Carpenter Beautifies." She also read the words of the hymn, "More Like the Master"; closing with prayer.

Mrs. R. L. Goff presided over the business session. Mrs. Lester Gay, secretary-treasurer, called the roll and received the dues. She also read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved. She then gave the treasurer's report. A motion was made and seconded to send a love gift of $10 to Mr. Jim Summerlin who is seriously ill. A motion was made and seconded to give Mr. Charlie Bryant a pounding. A motion was made and seconded to send Mr. Frank Owens a love gift of $10 who is a patient in the Tarboro Hospital. A motion was made and seconded to send Mr. Robert Allen a love gift of $5. Also plans were made to send $5 to Mount Olive College a library book.

A report was made from the ones who were presented love gifts during Christmas season.

The meeting adjourned with the group praying the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Sunday morning, following Sun school, the auxiliary members met and made a motion to give Mr. Jess Hinshaw, who recently returned to his home in Fountain from Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville, a love gift of $5.

Darrell Freleigh of Kansas Joins World Vision

The Reverend Darrell Freleigh, former pastor of the First Baptist Church, Mission (a suburb of Kansas City), Kansas, has become regional representative of World Vision, Inc., according to Bob Pierce, president. Mr. Freleigh will make his home in Wheaton, Illinois, and will serve in the areas of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan.

He will represent World Vision's many projects, including support of nearly 100,000 orphans in 19 countries, channeling of emergency aid overseas through established mission agencies, and conducting of conferences for pastors in remote areas to help in the growth of the national church.

Mr. Freleigh was pastor of the First Baptist Church in Mission, Kansas, for 15 years. For nearly 20 years he has been song leader of the Youth for Christ in Kansas City.

He was converted at 18 following a Bible class for young people. There was no church in his area but a young man from Moody Bible Institute conducted a Bible class. On the way home from one of these sessions young Freleigh asked the driver of the car to stop, and he knelt in the back seat of the car and confessed Christ as Saviour. Upon graduating from high school Darrell Freleigh attended Moody Bible Institute, graduating in April 1931. For two years he led singing on the extension staff of the Moody Bible Institute.

In May 1931 he married Harriet Thayer, also a Moody Bible Institute graduate. They have two daughters, Mrs. Louise and Lyla—both married.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

IT'S EASY to find fault. It's easy to measure another person's shortcomings, and very often we enjoy discussing those shortcomings with other people. Somehow we seem to wait until a certain person is not around, and then we give our evaluation of his reputation by telling his faults. It's silly to think it proper to tell the person himself that he has faults or has made a mistake. It seems that we can accomplish more by letting him be the last to know. There is a wrong conception, and few intelligent people would support such a belief. Yet, actions would prove otherwise.

How many times have you heard someone say, "Do you know something I don't know"; or "Have you heard the news lately"; or "Did you hear about . . . ?" These questions are usually asked in sort of a whisper, and directed to one or a few. The tone of voice used invites the curious mind and the hungry ears. When the question is asked, you see the heads move closer; and the facial expressions reveal the intrigue. Gasps and ah's are heard above the other chatter. These little sessions take place at coffee cups, bridge games, and pool tables. They are prevalent on street corners and in the city markets. They are frequent at bus stations and beauty parlors, not to mention the telephone.

Often little bits of news that someone says and tells turn out to be false. This could quite easily damage the reputation of the accused. We don't bother to stop and think that the next news might be about us. We often think that we will be reproached; but who knows? We don't want to be making news in another person's life.

It's improbable that anyone intends to hurt another by the information gathered and carried concerning some mistake or error; yet many glory in the fact that they "have something" on somebody or know some off-color news about somebody. We often justify our actions by saying, "I don't mean to talk about anybody, but did you know . . . ?" It's easy to say these introductory words to camouflage what we are really doing. We have all been guilty of this, and we have all carried news at one time or another. It's only human to want to know the bad. We love to hear something unfavorable. John's beating his wife is much more interesting than Ralph's buying groceries for the poor family down the road. Bad news travels faster and further than good news, and is more frequent.

Not any one group is guiltier of this blackballing than another. The men would say that the women are, and the women would say that the men are guiltier. It really doesn't matter who is more to blame; what does matter is that the person getting the "old one, two" gets the short end of the bargain, and this is unjust. All of us have been victims of this "around the corner" talk at some time.

People are bound to talk. This is human. None of us can sit on a pedestal and say, "Aren't you ashamed of yourself for saying that?" None of us can shift the blame and say, "She talks about everyone; isn't that terrible?" When we say that, we are talking about her. Not any of us are very much different, for we all have that same inclination to "discuss" our neighbor.

So, when we gather over our coffee cups, our drawing boards, etc., let's be careful of stones that we throw—unless we make no mistake in our lives. We conclude that none of us can profess innocence in this matter; and we believe that before we find fault with another, we should stop and count ten of our own. What do you think?

Multitudes of people who think they are highly enlightened practice heathenism in the habits they form and the dress they wear.—Walter E. Isenhour.

Must I Go—and Empty Handed?

Mary P. Michael

After a month of Christian life, nearly all of it passed upon a sick bed, a young man, nearly 30 years of age, lay dying. The minister had been called and stood by his bedside.

Suddenly a look of sadness crossed the young man's face. To the query of a friend he exclaimed: "No, I am not afraid; Jesus saves me now! But oh, must I go—and empty handed?"

This short incident led to the writing of the hymn:

"Must I go empty handed

Thus by dear Redeemer meet,

Not one day of service give him.

Lay no trophy at His feet?"

—Gems.

LAYMAN'S LEAGUE STUDY BOOKS

The North Carolina Laymen's League is suggesting and recommending the following booklets be used as study books for the year 1964: "A Catechism," by C. H. Spurgeon; "Power Through Prayer," by E. M. Bounds; and "These Four Found Life." All three of these booklets are printed by Moody Press and priced at only 15c each. Those who order will receive all three to be used throughout the year. It is suggested that each one be used for four months in the order listed above.

Send your order to the Free Will Baptist Press, P. O. Box 158, Ayden, North Carolina 28513.

THE REVISED CODE OF ETHICS

The Code of Ethics, as revised and now in the hands of many of our ministers who are members of the Ministers' Conference of the Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, has but little change from the original, or first copy, as endorsed by the conference. The first was all right for me. When the code was first presented, I said to my wife, "I have been doing what this code calls for ever since I was ordained, so I can sign up in good faith."

The new code has a wonderful agreement, as did the old. Let us notice the preamble, or the facts set forth:

MY MINISTERIAL CODE OF ETHICS

"I AM A MINISTER OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST, called of God to proclaim the unsearchable riches of His love; therefore, I voluntarily adopt the following principles in order that through dedication and self-discipline I may set a more worthy example for those I seek to lead and serve." Personally, I think that this declaration is a very far-reaching and worthwhile cause.

Let us remember that this code is for life, not a resolution to be signed and forgotten as many New Year's resolutions that are made at the beginning of a new year.

1. "I will cultivate my devotional life, continuing steadfast in reading the Bible and prayer." May we ask what is wrong with this quotation. Every minister should, in a special way, search the Scriptures (John 5:39). And then Paul writes, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Timothy 2:15). I believe, and I have based my thinking on knowing the word of truth, that rightly dividing and presenting intelligently and prayerfully the Word, has made people throughout the history of the church to lead lost sinners to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus. I do not mean to criticize, but I have listened to some preachers tell a dying man to do so many things that the poor dying person got more confused. When the jailer asked Paul and Silas the question, "What must I do to be saved?" they did not preach a lengthy sermon telling what it took to be saved. They said, ". . . Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31). Did he believe? Yes. How do you know? Because he ". . . took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his straightway" (16:33). Why was he baptized? I say that it was because this jailer believed the Lord Jesus Christ; and because he believed, he expressed his belief in washing the wounds of Paul and Silas and being baptized. He believed on Christ and began to work as a believer, not to be saved, but because he was saved. It is not right to preach that you are saved by working for Christ. We work because we are saved, not to be saved; so we are to rightly divide the word of truth by searching and studying the Word.

2. Part of the code says, "I will endeavor to be fair to my family and seek to give them the time and consideration to which they are entitled." I have known preachers to be so much engaged in so many things that they neglected to do for their families what needed to be done. We do not want to put our families between us and God. But the better we love and serve God, the better we will love and serve our families. We ministers are criticized when we neglect our families. What is wrong with this part of our code? Yet, we have had preachers who do not agree to sign this Code of Ethics. Was it that they did not want to be nice and loving toward their families. No, it must be some other reason.

3. Perhaps this hurts: "I will endeavor to live within my income, and will not carelessly leave unpaid debts behind me."

In moving from one town to another, as usual we had to get different size window shades, curtains, rugs, and many other small items. I knew absolutely nothing about the furniture stores of the town; so having a member of my new church congregation who worked with a furniture store, naturally I went to this man and asked for credit, as I was in need. This brother to whom I was a pastor said to the owner, "This is our new pastor and he needs so and so and wants credit." What was next? The owner of the business said, "Will you stand for the debt?" Then he continued by saying, "The worst sticking that ever got was by a preacher who bought a big bill of stuff and would not pay it." But my deacon and church officer prevailed, and I got the much needed household goods. But by the failure of the other preacher (not a minister in our denomination), I almost didn't get the

One day while I was in a grocery store a minister came in and gave to the owner of the business a list and wanted to be charged. Then the owner called the preacher by name and said, "You cannot get this list filled, for you do not pay your bills; and I am not going to wait my time, pencil, and paper to charge anything to you." After the preacher left this merchant said to me, his pastor, "Preacher, I want you to go with me. . . ." calling the name of this preacher. "I am not going to let his wife and children suffer." So this godly merchant put up a basket of groceries, and we took them to the home of this man who would not pay his debts. But some preachers would not sign the Code of Ethics to live in the bounds of their income. Was this pledge that caused them to refuse to sign? It must be some other cause.

4. "I will strive to grow in my wisdom through comprehensive reading and careful reading and careful study and attending conventions and conferences." We ministers, we should strive to attend meetings that are set up to enlarge our capacity for knowledge pertaining to the cause of Christ in the denomination. We know of a truth that it is hard to attend every meeting that is launched in the denomination, but we should go to as many as possible to get to know the precepts and doings that are voted at the conference or convention. The lowship brings knowledge, and creates within us a love for the prosperity of the success of all concerned.

5. "I will be honest in my stewardship of money." Perhaps this was hard on some preachers. It is so easy to be honest with our money. God says we are to tithe. This is taught by Holy Word. "Will a man rob God?" is asked in Malachi 3. Read it all. Then Jesus said in Matthew 23:23 that you are to tithe. Let us be honest with our money and our God. This is biblical.

6. Part of the code says, "I will continue in keeping with the dignity of the ministry." This does not mean beyond our financial ability. But it does mean to be clean in dress and not to wear some and unbecoming garb that is not in keeping with the dignity of the ministry.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Is it right under any circumstances to ride on the train or other means of public transportation on Sunday where workers must be employed on that day to maintain the transportation, whether or not anyone rides the system?—R. L., Illinois.

ANSWER: I suppose that this is one of those questions where the individual himself with whom it concerns must answer. This, of course, he must do by familiarizing himself the best he can with what the Scriptures have to say on what, I think, is indeed an important subject and worthy of more than a passing glance or passing consideration by every Christian. I sometimes wonder what lack of consideration on the part of Christian leaders does not aid the fact that we have so little intelligent teaching on this subject. Might this not be part of the reason for there being in our midst a false cult such as that Helen G. White's name symbolizes, the Seventh Day Adventist? Something in the way of life or history of the Reformation, or the Protestant church, must account for an unreliable woman's heading a counter movement that Protestants of some communities find it hard to cope with. The Seventh Day Adventists, the Jehovah's Witnesses, Mormons, and Catholics are posing a real problem to true Protestants.

Personally I believe that for me to properly honor my Lord, whose resurrection day has become the special week of worship and rest day for the church, should in all sincerity make that day, that day, a day of rest and worship and that I should do no more, nor cause anyone else to do no more than is absolutely necessary in maintaining things in the home and church in decency and orderliness, so that all alike may rest from what is required of us the other six days in order to make a living and be able to worship as the New Testament Scriptures teach us to worship on Sunday. There have been many instances where preachers had to resort to public means of transportation in order to fill all their appointments on the day. Some that I have known, who did not own sufficient means of transportation and had appointments in more than one place on Sunday, have relied upon public means for their travel, means that would have operated and would have employed the same workers whether or not these ministers used them.

The late evangelist, D. L. Moody, however, so far as I know, would neither drive his own horse on Sunday nor engage one from public stables. It is reported in his biography written by his son that he filled an appointment in London one Sunday morning and that he walked several miles from one section of that city to another, which took all of his time between the appointments rather than that he burden a horse that would have required only half or less of that time. I think Mr. Moody did right; for as he saw it and understood the Scripture, that was the only correct thing to do. I would to God that more men of our day possessed and exercised the courage of their convictions in all such matters, however trivial they may seem, while we perform our duty. Any principal taught in God's Holy Word is worth living by and dying to fulfill.

I can remember very well when most of the people of the neighborhood in which I was reared were very conscientious about what they did on Sunday. They made special preparations for it on other days, and were indeed concerned lest they should in any way misuse the time afforded in it. Most of us walked to church, and this was as faraway to some as three miles and even further to a few. In many of the homes the parents did what they could to encourage Bible reading and meditation between the noon meal and that of doing the necessary chores at night. Visiting on Sunday afternoon was somewhat rare, except when some member of the family to be visited was ill.

Dr. James M. Gray, late president of the Moody Bible Institute and personal friend of Mr. Moody, says on Page 78 of his little book, Bible Problems Explained: "The writer is not in the habit of using trains or cars for pleasure on Sunday, but he thinks that he is at liberty to use them in the Lord's work on that day. Others feel that they may make additional exceptions."

"Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations. For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him. Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand. One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks. For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's" (Romans 14:1-8).

It is my opinion that the Scriptures teach man that he should use one day out of every seven for rest and worship, and that the smallest amount possible of that time, as well as the least effort and thought of a Christian in the rest day, should be used for anything else. The law allowed the ox or ass that fell in the ditch to be pulled out by its owner the day in which he fell in and, when kept in a stall, to be led to water; but it exercised strenuous rules otherwise in regard to work's being done. But one day out of seven was aside for worship and rest before the giving of the Levitical or Mosaic Law.

It started when God completed His creative work; and even though we are not to think of such strenuous regulations as being the force that governs our activities on Sunday, the first day of the week which the disciples kept after Christ was resurrected, yet, we should

MOTHER, Mother!" Charlotte Swing called, as she threw her books down on her bed. "Guess what happened today?"

"What, Charlotte?" her mother called from the kitchen.

"Oh, Mother, it's just too wonderful to be true. You know how much I want to be a teacher in a Christian college some day. I've prayed about it so often, but it seemed so hopeless because, since Father died, I know you can't afford to send me to college. Well, God is working it all out, I am sure."

"Oh? Just what did happen, Charlotte?" Mrs. Swing asked, as her daughter breathlessly whirled into the kitchen.

"I won the high school oratorical contest! I was sure Jim would win. He's tops as a speaker, so I never dreamed I would win over him, but I did. You know what that means, Mother?"

"No. What does it mean?"

"It means that I go to State University next Saturday to compete in the finals. If I win, I will receive a scholarship to State University. Then, I will be able to receive my degree in education, and my life's dream will be realized, after all."

"I'm so proud of you, Honey. That is wonderful. I hope you win the finals, but you must not set your heart on it, just in case you should lose, you know. After all, there are many brilliant speakers against whom you must compete in the state finals."

"I know, but somehow, I am confident I will win. I've prayed so much for a way to go to college, and this is it. I simply must not fail."

"Honey, God always has a way out. So often we plan how things are to be, but God has another plan for our lives."

"But this is God's plan, Mother. I am sure of it. Everything does depend upon my winning this contest."

Mother didn't argue the point with Charlotte, but kissed and patted her cheek, instead.

"Charlotte, I believe you have a fever. Your face feels hot and is flushed. Do you feel all right?"

"Oh, yes, only I am very tired. I get that way, of late. I guess it is due to too much excitement."

"You had better lie down and rest a little while. I'll finish getting supper. Suppose you take a little nap, and I'll call you when supper is ready."

It did not require much coaxing to induce Charlotte to lie down. She was completely exhausted.

Just before supper, Mother went to Charlotte's bedroom and gently awakened her. "Here, before you get up, put this thermometer in your mouth. We'd better make sure you're not running a fever."

After a few moments, she took the thermometer, and looking at it, exclaimed, "Why, Charlotte! You do have a fever. It's 101!"

"I'm all right," Charlotte insisted. "I'm just tired."

"Nevertheless, you are staying in bed. I'll bring your supper to you."

The next morning Charlotte felt better and went to school. But when she came home that afternoon, again her face was flushed and hot.

"Charlotte, we must check your fever again," Mother said. "Your face is flushed."

"I'm so tired," Charlotte complained and dropped onto the bed. "Sometimes I think I can't get through the day."

"101 again!" Mother exclaimed. "I'm going to call the doctor."

"Oh, no, Mother, please don't call the doctor. There's nothing wrong with me. Really."

Mrs. Swing went right to the phone and called Doctor Logan. Without delay, he came to the house and examined Charlotte.

"I'm very much afraid Charlotte has rheumatic fever," he said. "Keep her in bed and watch her fever. I will keep in close touch with you, and within a few days we will know if there is anything seriously wrong."

Friday, Doctor Logan returned and checked Charlotte again. He stood looking at Charlotte, shaking the thermometer in his hand as if he were thinking.

"I feel all right, Doctor," Charlotte said. "Only thing wrong is that I get tired. But, tomorrow, I must go to State University and win the finals of the state oratorical contest. My whole future depends on it. If I win I will receive a scholarship. I must win, because it is the only way I can afford to go to college and prepare to be a teacher."

Doctor Logan shook his head slowly. "No, Charlotte, I am sorry, but you cannot go tomorrow, nor for a long time."

"But I must . . ."

"No, you can't. It would cost you your life if you were to go now. I know it is a disappointment, but you must stay in bed for at least six months. You mustn't get up for anything. Your mother must bring your meals to you. That is, unless you want to die before you are 30. You want to get well, don't you?"

"Why, sure, but I don't see why I have to stay in bed for six months. That's awful!"

"Yes, it is. But it is either that or else you will not live very long. You see, you have rheumatic fever. If you take care and do as I say, you will get well; otherwise, your heart will be permanently injured. It won't be easy. Are you ready to pay the price to live?"

"Yes," Charlotte said. Then tears arose in her eyes. "I must forfeit the contest, and naturally, I will lose out on the scholarship. I don't think I will ve, anyway, not under those circumstances."

Now, Honey, you musn't feel that Mother said. "We will just be patient and take good care of you until you are well again. Remember, God is not limited in ways to work out His will. He will work things out for you. It was His will for you to win the contest, you would not have become

When Charlotte's teachers heard the news regarding Charlotte's illness, they called at the home and assigned lessons so she could study while she lay in bed. Thus, she would not get behind in her classes.

Her Latin teacher, Miss Lambert, volunteered, "I will come Saturday and help you all I can, Charlotte. You are too intelligent a student to fail just because you are ill. Now don't worry. You will have lots of time to study. In fact, it will help you pass the time away."

It was a long, tedious six months. Charlotte studied harder than ever, and prayed each day, "Lord, I can't understand why this had to happen to me. Why am I stricken? Why did I miss out on the contest? Don't You let me go to college and be a teacher in a Christian college?"

One day, after six months, Doctor Nichols examined Charlotte. He listened carefully to her heart. Dropping the stethoscope about his neck, he said, "Charlotte, your heart was not injured. You may now get up and you will live a long long life. God has been good to you and answered your prayers." Charlotte was so happy to be well again, she did not complain about her disappointment in not winning the scholarship.

When she returned to school, the teachers gave her exams on the work she had missed, and because of her illness, she had an unusual amount of time to study, and she made all A's.

Charlotte had learned to know and love her Latin teacher, Miss Lambert, never before. Each Saturday they talked together about her plans and dreams to be a teacher at a Christian college, so when Charlotte made an unusually high grade in her Latin test, her teacher suggested, "Charlotte, I believe you could win the state contest in Latin, now. They, too, offer a scholarship to the winner. Would you like to enter?"

"I surely would," Charlotte agreed. So, Miss Lambert submitted her name for the Latin examination contest, and, the following Saturday, Charlotte went to State University to take the test. One week later, a certificate came to Charlotte by mail. It said, "FIRST PRIZE IN STATE LATIN CONTEST." An accompanying letter stated, "We are happy to inform you, that you are hereby granted a scholarship which offers four years free tuition at State University."

Charlotte could hardly wait to show the certificate and letter to Miss Lambert.

Miss Lambert smiled and said, "Charlotte, the principal of the high school wants to see you. I think you should go to his office immediately. He has something to tell you."

Charlotte hurried to the principal's office.

"Come right in," Mr. Nichols, the principal, said. "Won't you sit down?"

Charlotte was extremely nervous. She sat down and wondered what he wanted.

"Charlotte, we are mighty proud of you. I heard that you won the Latin scholarship to State University, and I wish to congratulate you."

"Thank you," Charlotte said.

"Charlotte, I have no children of my own, and, therefore, I have always wished I could help to educate some worthy young person who would use her education in the field of teaching. I understand you hope to be a teacher at a Christian college, some day. Is that right?"

Charlotte was so excited she could not hide her enthusiasm. Breathlessly, she answered, "That is right."

"Wonderful!" Mr. Nichols said. "If you are willing, I should like to make you the recipient of my financial assistance. You have won your tuition, so I would like to assume the cost of your room and board. Would you accept?"

"Oh, Mr. Nichols!" Charlotte exclaimed. She threw her arms around his neck and kissed him. "You are my second daddy," she said.—My Delight.

gelistic. We expect him to go from place to place and hold revivals in all the churches and missions with the aim in view to strengthen the churches. Brother Emiliano is 28 years old; his wife, Luz Alicia, is 26; and they have four little daughters: Lydia 7, Elisabeth 5, Evangelina 3, and Noemi 1.

We are very much pleased that the Lord has led this young Mexican family into full-time work for Him so that many lost Mexicans, men and women, boys and girls, may be won to the Lord through their labor. Be sure to pray earnestly for them. We hope to have a picture of the family in a forthcoming issue of the "Baptist."

One special item that Brother Lopez will need greatly is a small transistorized amplifier; not one that runs from a car or house current, but a small, compact, battery-operated amplifier. The reason that they cannot use one operated from a car is that they have no car. They will have to go by bus. And the reason that they cannot use house current is that in many places where they will go, there is no electricity in the houses.

The reason that they need the amplifier is that in many places where we have services, the building is small, and many people cannot get inside; so they stand around outside. They are unable to hear properly; but if they had this amplifier, even the ones outside could hear the Word of God. Please pray with us that the Lord will supply this need; also, that He will provide them a salary of $12 per week (or $52 per month), plus $25 per month for transportation costs. The family will stay in Santa Ana, but Emiliano will be traveling from one place to another, and that will cost money.

We want to thank each of you for your prayers and for your contributions of necessities. Please continue to pray and send that others may learn of God's great love for them. Please send all offerings, including offerings on Jim's and my salary, to the North Carolina Board of Missions, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for February 9

Peter, James, and John

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 4:18-22; 17:1, 2; Mark 14:32, 33, 37, 38; Acts 12:1-3

MEMORY VERSE: Acts 4:20

I. INTRODUCTION

This constellation of disciples proved to be the inner circle of the twelve Jesus chose to be apostles. Who are they? What part did they play in the establishment of the Church? What kind of men were they when Jesus met them? What sort of men did they become as a result of His influence in their lives? Finally, what can we learn from them that will help us grow up in the faith? All these questions have an underlying significance in our study today.

Peter came to Christ as the result of the witnessing activity of his brother Andrew. Jesus saw, and prophetically so, the strength of a rock in Peter, and one day compared him to the foundation stone of the Church. ". . . thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18).

James and John, brothers and sons of Zebedee, a fisherman, left their nets as did Peter and Andrew to follow Jesus. James was the older of the two. Both were distantly related through their mother, Salome, cousin of Mary, to Jesus. James was the second Christian to face martyrdom for his faith. John the younger of the two is the author of the Gospel that bears his name, and the only one of the twelve who escaped a violent death.

These men are studied together for more than one reason, I'm sure, but perhaps one of the chief reasons is the fact that they shared two experiences in the life of Christ that the other disciples had no part in—the transfiguration of Christ and His Gethsemane agony before going to the Cross.—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Jesus called ordinary men, those who were willing to obey, to be His disciples (v. 18).

2. He called them to become fishers of men, the most important task in the world (v. 19).

3. Upon being called, the men immediately left all to follow the Master (v. 20).

4. As He called others, they likewise followed Him (vv. 21, 22).

5. Peter, James, and John were allowed to accompany Jesus to see Him transfigured, which was one of their most precious experiences (vv. 1, 2).

6. The same three were called upon to share some of His agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32, 33). Thus, those who are of the inner circle must shoulder the greater responsibility.

7. Although the disciples felt for the Lord Jesus, a little fatigue brought about the failure of human sympathy (v. 37).

8. Jesus issued a warning lest they be caught off guard (v. 38).

9. Herod, in keeping with the policy of his predecessors, sought to destroy the church (v. 1).

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. The famous musician, Mendelssohn, visited a cathedral to see a great organ. The sexton, proud of the instrument, guarded it fanatically, not allowing anyone to play the instrument other than the official organist of the church. When Mendelssohn asked to see the organ, he proudly displayed it, but when he asked to play it, the sexton refused. "Just let me touch the keys," the stranger insisted.

Finally, the sexton acquiesced and said, "That's all. You must not play it. Only the organist is allowed to play this great instrument."

Mendelssohn slid onto the organ bench and began to play. As he continued, the sexton forgot his orders as he was thrilled with the sweet melody that came from the instrument. He had never heard such sweet music before.

Suddenly, Mendelssohn quit playing, slid from the bench, bowed, and said, "Thank you, Sir. It is a beautiful instrument. Thank you for allowing me to play your instrument."

The sexton, overcome with emotion, cried, "Oh, sir, who are you? I never knew the full beauty of the instrument until now!"

"My name," said the stranger, "is Mendelssohn."

"Mendelssohn? Not the famous artist, Mendelssohn?"

"That's my name," he replied and left.

As the sexton proudly related the story of how the famous artist played his organ, telling the story over and over again, he would always add, "And to think, I almost refused to let the famous Mendelssohn play my organ! I never would have known its full beauty."

How many people there are who have refused to let the Lord Jesus Christ possess their lives, and they will never know the fullness of blessing in life! They could have if they had yielded themselves to the Master. One wonders what they could have been?

Peter, Andrew, James, and John could have lived and died as fishermen if Jesus had not come that day and called them into His service. And if they had failed to follow the Lord, no one ever would have heard of them. They had a comfortable business, which was most lucrative, and they were independent; they could have said, "No." If they had, their lives would have been lived, and the world never would have shared the blessing of their ministry. As it is, their names have been emblazoned on the pillars of the New Jerusalem. They have been loved and revered by saints of all ages. They, though dead many centuries, are still a household word, and we continue to hear of them. In the kingdom realm of Christ, they will judge the 12 tribes of Israel.—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

2. The shop in the basement or garage has taken on a new and important role as the man of the house has become a confirmed do-it-yourselfer. One of the first things any handy man learns is to keep his tools sharp and in good repair. A grindstone is absolutely essential when it comes to sharpening the ax, knife, chisel. But no grindstone will do good if it does not come into contact with the edge that needs sharpening.

When Peter, James, and John came to Jesus, they were simple, humble fishermen. They had not had the opportunity to study under the great scholars of their day. But when Jesus called them, they willingly left all—their businesses, their loved ones, and their friends—to follow Jesus. For three years they walked and talked with Him in close fellowship, just as the tools come into contact with the grindstone. Just rust and nicks that dull the edges of us must be removed, so flaws in the characters of the apostles needed to be removed and their talents honed. Some situations arose that were painful to the apostles, but this was the only way they could be sharpened and prepared. Eventually the day came when Jesus was no longer with the apostles in the flesh. Even though the Holy Spirit was with them, they also had to call upon their own resources. But they were prepared. They witnessed so effectively for Christ that the religious leaders marvelled and "took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus" (Acts 4:13) — Standard Lesson Commentary.

The study of Jesus and this inner life of the apostles composed of Peter, James, and John reveals several things about the Christian life.

The Christian life is a faith. These apostles had to have great faith in Christ to leave their vocation and their homes to follow Jesus. Nowhere in the Bible is there any promise of wealth or fame that Jesus made in order to get them to follow Him, just the plain old challenge, "Follow me." The promise was, "And I will make you lords of men." They had to have great faith in Him. This faith was the bond that held them together.

The Christian life is like family life. These apostles lived together with their mother as a family lives together. So as we know, they had a common purse and all of them fared alike as the members of a family. Because of their common faith in Christ and their association, they grew to love one another as the members of a family. In fact the Apostle Paul called Christians brothers in Christ.

The Christian life is also a fellowship. Can you imagine what a wonderful time it was and the Twelve must have had together? Of course, they had some difficulties. It is not reasonable to suppose otherwise, but we believe that the sweet fellowship far outstripped any difficulties they might have had.

It is these three things—faith, family, fellowship—that make the life in the church today what it is. All three of these things should be promoted in the church because without them there would be no Christian life.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

Those who live without prayer will die without God.—Walter E. Isenhour.

follow the example of these inspired men who wrote the New Testament, as did the early church, including Paul and other leaders that were active in carrying out the burden of the twelve. We need to not forsake the assembling of ourselves together on that hallowed day. As they, we need to be careful that we do not make hardships for others so as to detract from the symbol it was set apart to carry out. It is the Lord's Day—the day He so controlled that He defeated Nature in her death grip on His crucified body and came forth testifying that all who live and die in the Lord shall in His appointed time be resurrected, having a glorified body in which we shall rest throughout all eternity and carrying a detailed likeness of Him in all things.

"For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, and God did rest the seventh day from all his works" (Hebrews 4:4). "And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made" (Genesis 2:3). "Blessed is the man that doeth this, and the son of man that layeth hold on it; that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil" (Isaiah 56:2). "If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honourable; and shalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words" (Isaiah 58:13). "The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre. Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you" (John 20:1, 19). "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" (1 Corinthians 16:2). The first day was the day of rest and worship and the day offerings were brought.

I believe that by combining the thought, "Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labour in vain" (Galatians 4:10, 11), with "One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind" (Romans 14:5) and that found by a study of all day observance in the New Testament, we might conclude that if a Christian was obligated to work on Sunday he could use his day off for worship and rest.

living with a clean life. I heard of a certain minister who, as an evangelist, was stopping in a home in the community where he was engaged in revival work, leaving his room on a certain occasion and going into the living room without a shirt, not even a T-shirt, and propping himself up in a comfortable chair. Perhaps this man would condemn women for what they wear or do not wear.

Well, I do not see anything wrong with our Code of Ethics. It must not be the code. It must be something else. (To be continued.)

God's Grace Comes Flowing In

by Walter E. Isenhour

Many things may try your patience

On your journey to the goal,
As you stand for all that's noble

And essential for your soul;
But when evil forces rally

To entice you into sin,
O how blessed and uplifting

When God's grace comes flowing in!

Little home-tests meet you often,

For it's here you gain or lose,
In your heart-life and your spirit

By the way you act and choose;
Yet if you are set for heaven

And you truly mean to win,
Somehow in your sorest trials

God's sweet grace comes flowing in.

As you earn your daily living

In a good and honest way,
You may find that you're surrounded

By some folks who never pray;
And sometimes they tempt you strongly

To pursue their ways of sin,
But by prayer and faith and patience

God's sustaining grace flows in.

If you meet temptation with prayer rather than cowardice and fear, you will be the winner.—Walter E. Isenhour.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

IN APPRECIATION

I am taking enough space at the beginning of this article to express my deep appreciation for every expression of helpfulness recently given regarding the meditations given in The Lighted Pathway; for your assurances of having missed the column while it was not being published; for expressed concern about my health, and your assurances of remembering me in your prayers to God. It is a most wonderful feeling to know that we have faithful friends who are concerned about us. We are living in an age of selfishness and self-righteousness. So when so many take time to show their interest in the things of God, our hearts are made to rejoice, and we are spurred on to try to be a blessing to as many as possible. I will appreciate hearing from just as many as care to write and I will appreciate any suggestions as to how to make the column of greater blessing to those who read it. I will also appreciate articles written by those who care to write for future publication.

Not only do I express my appreciation to you, my readers and friends, but I thank God for all His goodness to me. God is good to us and blesses us with many blessings. If we live for God as Abraham did, we can claim God's promise as recorded in Hebrews 6:14, ". . . Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee." And His further promise in Hebrews 13:5, ". . . for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."

With these assurances of God concerning us I am giving you the following beautiful poem written by John Newton:

THE LORD WILL PROVIDE

Though troubles assail, and dangers affright,
Though friends should all fail, and foes unite,
Yet one thing secures us, whatever be-tide,
The promise assures us, "The Lord will provide."

The birds, without barn or store-house are fed;
From them let us learn to trust for our bread:
His saints what is fitting shall ne'er be denied,
So long as 'tis written, "The Lord will provide."

When Satan appears to stop up our path,
And fills us with fears, we triumph by faith;
He can not take from us, though oft he has tried,
The heart-cheering promise, "The Lord will provide."

He tells us we're weak, our hope is in vain;
The good that we seek we ne'er shall obtain:
But when such suggestions our graces have tried,
This answers all questions, "The Lord will provide."

No strength of our own nor goodness we claim;
Our trust is all thrown on Jesus's name:
In this our strong tower for safety we hide:
The Lord is our power, "The Lord will provide."

When life sinks apace, and death is in view,
The word of His grace shall comfort us through;
Not fearing or doubting, with Christ on our side,
We hope to die shouting, "The Lord will provide."

—Selected.

"Commit thy way unto the LORD; trust in him; and he shall bring it to pass" (Psalm 37:5).

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

"Before me, even as behind, God is, and all is well."

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

Things Money Can't Buy

Money can't buy friendship—friendship must be earned.

Money can't buy a clear conscience—square dealing is the price tag.

Money can't buy happiness—happiness is a mental attitude, and one may be as happy in a cottage as in a mansion.

Money can't buy sunsets, songs of wild birds, and the music of the wind in the trees—these are free as the air we breathe.

Money can't buy inward peace—peace is the result of a constructive philosophy of life.

Money can't buy character—character is what we are when we are alone with ourselves in the dark.

Continue the list yourself. You'll agree that among the things money can't buy are some of the most valuable treasures life has to offer. It is a good thing to check up now and then to be sure we are not missing these things.—Exchange.

Those who think they know it all will find out some day that they know very little.—Walter E. Isenhour.

ARCHITECT'S CONCEPT OF ACADEMIC COURT

Mount Olive College

Mount Olive, North Carolina

DURHAM UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
FEB 2 1964
DURHAM, N. C.

Preliminary studies have been completed for the first buildings on the new 90-acre campus of Mount Olive College. These buildings include dormitory units for 88 men and 78 women and an academic building. Also under study are plans for a library.

The academic court, which will include classroom buildings and the library, is shown above.

G. Milton Small and Associates of Raleigh, North Carolina, architectural firm for the college, plans to complete in the spring the working drawings for the academic building and dormitory units. Contracts will be awarded in time for the first buildings to be ready in September, 1965.

Future buildings for the new campus will include a chapel, administration building, student center-cafeteria, gymnasium, auditorium, and additional classroom buildings and dormitories.

EDITORIAL—

WE ARE ALL HERE

North Carolina Free Will Baptists have a lot for which to be thankful. There was a time, not too long ago, that filled us with dread and a degree of uncertainty.

Briefly, there were those who wanted to see what we know as true Free Will Baptistism crushed in North Carolina. As we have so often reviewed those circumstances in our minds, we know that God has been good; for even in spite of the concentrated effort to take over North Carolina, the faithful remnant and majority remain true to the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists. We believe that something new has been gained in the sense of loyalty and support. In the words of the Apostle Paul, which he spoke to the jailer, "We are all here" (Acts 16:29).

Our thankfulness springs forth for several reasons. Chief among them is the fact that nearly 30,000 Free Will Baptists were represented at the 1963 session of the North Carolina State Convention in September, with close to 200 churches representing. When we consider those churches that did not represent this year, we can still safely claim 40,000 Free Will Baptists, or more.

Yes, we are all here. The past two years have proven many of the rumors false. As an example, one minister who caused much trouble and disunity in several of our churches, told this editor, "Just wait two more years and they'll be sending preachers to your churches." That was in the fall of 1961. We are still waiting, but no such things has happened, nor will it happen. There never has been a basis for such a rumor.

We are also thankful for the response of our people toward Mount Olive Junior College, the institution that was so severely attacked. Mount Olive College is still here and the Lord is greatly blessing.

There are many good signs of greater things from God and for God. There are ministers and laymen who have placed themselves under these new responsibilities. Young ministers have, in a very special way, dedicated themselves to greater things for God and the cause of Free Will Baptists in North Carolina.

As we have said before, time will reveal a lot of things. We believe that the cause of North Carolina Free Will Baptists, and those who choose to unite with them, will make great advances during the next few years. To be sure, God has a great work for us to do. During this period of uniting our efforts, we must be patient. A nation is not built overnight. A church does not grow overnight.

Let us, however, not be deceived. We have enemies. They will be working to sow tares among the wheat; but with Jesus leading the way, we shall overcome. "We are all here."

THE CHURCH AND THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

"The Sunday school is a part of the church. It is the arm of the church responsible for reaching out after the boys and girls of the community and gathering them in for instruction in God's Word, seeking them for salvation, and guiding them into the fuller fellowship of the baptized church body.

"Because of this relationship between the church and the Sunday school, the pastor and superintendent are under a special obligation to cooperate. Also, there should be a sharing together of the responsibility of choosing the workers, or the church should choose the Sunday school officers and teachers along with the other church officers and workers at a regular business session of the church.

"In those cases where the church receives, as a part of its funds, the offerings received in the Sunday school, the church is under obligation to support financially the causes for which the Sunday school would normally be responsible for—such as support for the State Sunday School Convention United Program."—Taken from the "Sunday School Reporter," written by the Rev. L. E. Ballard.

A MAN SENT from GOD

J. GARLAND TEASLEY,

*Pastor First Free Will Baptist Church,
SMITHFIELD, NORTH CAROLINA*

(This sermon was preached at the Spiritual Life Conference of the North Carolina Ministerial Association at Saint Mary's Church, New Bern, North Carolina, January 17, and is printed here at the request of the association.)

SOME time back there appeared in a national magazine an article entitled, "Why I Quit the Ministry." The author, who for obvious reasons wished to remain anonymous, set down in black and white for all the world to see the reasons why he could take it no longer and why he did, in fact, leave the ministry.

Following this, there came a number of articles entitled, "Why I Stayed in the Ministry." Many read them with interest and found many points worthy of consideration advocated. Some stayed because that's where the people are; others for the satisfaction they get; others for yet other reasons. But one man really caught my attention and imagination—as he quoted John Calvin Payne's famous aphorism as his reason for staying: "If it doesn't happen in the local church, it doesn't happen."

The fact is, he is right. If it doesn't happen in the local church it just doesn't happen. And we pastors must realize that, with few exceptions, as we go, so goes the Church. We would like to think that laymen play a greater part in the work of our Church, but unfortunately this is not so. For the most part, as we go, so goes the Free Will Baptist Church.

All of us here are vitally connected with the parish ministry—the pastorate. Even those who may now hold administrative positions have, I believe without exception, been pastors. Our lives are wrapped up in that life. And at times, we have all wanted to quit and become eligible to write our article as to why we quit:

When we had worked and worked with a couple only to hear that they had joined a larger and more influential church and we strongly suspect the reason is that they will get more customers for their business from the other church;

When we presented our plans for the proper organization and forward movement of the church only to have them looked at with something less than enthusiasm by the leaders—yet we knew they were best for the church;

When we had laboriously and prayerfully prepared a sermon that we knew they needed only to have some sit before us with that "I could care less" attitude, or squirm for fear they had forgotten to turn down the heat under the roast before they left for church, or even yawn in our face;

When we have got one family back into the fold only to discover that two have slipped out;

To have one's work go largely unnoticed or appreciated, not that we seek first to be noticed or appreciated, but that we, despite belief to the contrary, are human.

But over against these inevitable frustrations there are those times when we declare to ourselves that "We have the most dramatic job in the world"; when we could sit down and write our article on why we stayed.

Some of you here have known something of drama and excitement. Perhaps you will never forget the keen sense of exultation which swept over you when enemy planes were sighted; the acute excitement and fear of combat; the anxiety of a night carrier landing in a damaged plane; or the daily witness of raw courage. And then all of us watched some months ago as we sent up our first man to orbit the earth. The excitement of this drama was accentuated by the fact that the Russians were ahead of us and we had had several delays. The air was tense with feeling that morning as we heard and saw the countdown. Our feelings were expressed precisely by one reporter who, when he heard the command to blast-off, dropped some of his aloofness and said, "Go, man, go!" And he went as we sat and watched the Atomic and Nuclear Ages move aside to make way for the Space Age.

We saw drama in those days. We have seen it before and we will see it again—and yet these experiences cannot bear comparison to our years as Christian ministers. Our hearts are kindled even more with exhilaration as we step into our pulpit each Sunday to proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ. Nothing can parallel the awesome conviction that God himself is using you as His spokesman; that He who holds the universe in the palm of His hand has chosen you to be His ambassador.

Nothing can equal the sheer delight of opening one's mail to read: "Dear Reverend: On the eve of our fifth anniversary we thought it would be appropriate to write you this letter of thanks. As you know only a few days after our fourth anniversary we came to you with a serious problem. It looked as if our short marriage was over, but through careful counselling and prayer you led us, with God's help, to stay together. We have enjoyed the best year yet and we wish to express our deepest appreciation

February is education month

History and Progress of Mount Olive College

W. Burkette Raper, President

BACKGROUND

More than three centuries ago, Shakespeare, perhaps the greatest man of English letters, wrote,

"There is a tide in the affairs of men Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;

Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bounded in shadows and in miseres."

Jesus likewise taught the urgency of using present opportunities. As the tide of opposition to his ministry began to stiffen, he declared,

"I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work" (John 9:4).

Thirteen years ago we realized that the tide of educational opportunity for the Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina would soon run out if definite steps were not taken to establish a college. We recognized that the day was growing short for our church unless we could challenge and educate our youth. Both ministers and laymen were asking, "Whom shall we leave here to advocate and defend our faith, the principles we hold so dear, if we fail to teach our children?"

A full generation had been born since Ayden Theological Seminary and Eureka College closed their doors. For half a century we had depended upon these schools for the education of our laity and the training of our ministers.

One by one, however, the graduates of these schools were crossing the river and going to their true home. The shadows were beginning to lengthen on a church with more than two hundred years of rich spiritual heritage—a heritage characterized by freedom, dignity, and biblical truth.

BIRTH

In 1951 the board of Christian education of the Free Will Baptist State Convention of North Carolina asked for the authority to establish a junior college.

Under the approval of the convention, these brethren filed with the North Carolina Secretary of State on November 27, 1951, the charter of Mount Olive College. The following September, the college opened at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, with nine students.

In September, 1953, the State Convention decided that its infant college should have a home of its own. With only $6.17 in its treasury for Christian education, the convention agreed to a purchase price of $25,000 for an abandoned public school building and a block of property in Mount Olive.

The board of directors raised $2,000, borrowed an additional $2,000, and made a down payment of $4,000. Without faculty, funds, facilities, or students, it was announced that a standard junior college program of study would begin in September, 1954. Twenty-two students enrolled.

Friends wondered if the college would survive the year, but the board of directors, administration, and faculty faced the challenge before them with unrestrained dedication. They despaired to think of what would happen to the Free Will Baptist Church without the ministry of this college.

The college found friends. It refused to die. It built carefully upon a foundation of educational excellence and Christian integrity. It proved its loyalty to the Free Will Baptist Church without becoming narrowly sectarian.

PROGRESS

Today Mount Olive College stands as an unparalleled achievement among Original Free Will Baptists. In thirteen years it has grown from an idea into an ornament to the Free Will Baptist Church.

From an enrollment of nine students in 1952, it has grown to approximately 250 for the 1963-64 academic year.

From $6.17 in 1954, the assets of the college have grown to nearly one-half million dollars. Since 1951, Free Will Baptists have contributed approximately $550,000 for operating expenses, endowment, student loan funds, and development of a new 90-acre campus.

Mount Olive has become the first college in the history of Free Will Baptists to attain regional accreditation, the highest form of accreditation.

Its alumni are preaching the gospel of our Lord, teaching in our schools, ministering to the sick, caring for orphan children, defending our nation, contributing to our business and industrial growth, and making useful citizens in the home and church.

For those who appreciate the heritage of the Free Will Baptist Church—freedom, dignity, integrity, and biblical truth—Mount Olive College stands as a bulwark of our faith. It was born and nurtured in a decade of destiny, and the destiny of generations yet unborn will be influenced by its ministry.

The New Campus of Mount Olive College

An entirely new campus is being planned for Mount Olive College on a 90-acre site located on U. S. Highway 117, bypass. Construction is scheduled to begin in the spring of 1964.

Since 1954, when the college opened in Mount Olive, enrollment has grown from 22 students to 250 for the 1963-64 academic year. The new campus will provide for an enrollment of 400 by September, 1965.

Included in the first phase of the building program will be dormitory units for 88 men and 78 women along with an academic building for biology, chemistry, physics, mathematics and foreign languages. These will be followed by a library, student center-cafeteria, and chapel.

All buildings on the new campus will be air-conditioned to permit year-round use. The college plans to begin on the trimester system in September, 1965, which will permit students to get three semesters each year rather than two.

Missionary Mother

by Matilda Nordtvedt

THE alarm clock shrilled. Martha awoke with a start. "Tuesday," she groaned as she jumped out of the warm covers and into her robe.

The slightly-built missionary shivered as she lit the kerosene heater in the living room. Usually she would go back to bed until it warmed up but not on Tuesdays.

The table was set and a warm breakfast ready before she aroused the boys. "Boys, get up quickly. It's Tuesday. You don't want to miss the train."

No, they didn't want to miss the train so jumped out of bed immediately in spite of the cold room.

"Come and dress by the stove," Martha suggested. "It's pretty warm now."

Martha watched her three small sons as they solemnly ate their breakfast. Nobody felt much like talking at six o'clock on a dark, cold, wintry morning.

"Since Daddy's away I'll have to call a taxi for you," remarked Martha as she went to the phone.

"Have you got everything now? Mittens? Where's your cap, Johnny?" she asked of her fourth-grade son.

The three small suitcases had been packed the night before. Martha checked them again quickly before she snapped them shut and handed them to the boys. Johnny took the money for the train tickets and the taxi fare, putting it carefully into his wallet.

"The taxi's here!" shouted Jimmy, the second-grader. "Let's go!"

Martha followed her three tow-headed sons to the genkan where they put on their shoes and boots. She kissed each one tenderly. "Be good boys now, won't you? I'll see you on Saturday."

The Japanese taxi driver was at the door to help with the suitcases. "To the station, please," Martha explained, "in time for the 6:30 express to Akita."

The taxi driver nodded, then looked questioningly from Martha to the three lively boys scampering into the waiting car. This mother didn't look ready for a trip, but surely she wasn't sending these little fellows all the way to Akita alone!

Finally it dawned upon him that that's just what she was doing. Bowing a polite good-bye he started for the taxi, shaking his head in bewilderment. Didn't American mothers care for their children any more than that?

Martha stood at the door smiling bravely until she could see the waving hands no more. Then the tears came like a flood. She ran into the house and throwing herself beside the davenport gave vent to her grief.

"They're so little, Lord," she sobbed, "to be away from home for a whole week! Billy's just six. He needs me! They all need me! Why do I have to send them away to school?"

Martha knew the answer. They were missionaries to Japan and there were no American schools for their children any closer than Akita where the mission they belonged to had started one for their missionaries' children. The boys were happy there with their friends and were getting a fair education.

"I know it's best for them, Lord," sobbed the heartsick mother, "but it's so hard!"

In her mind's eye Martha could see herself living in America. The house would be modern with central heating. There would be no need to light fires in the morning—she'd just turn up the thermostat. The children would get up in a warm room, dress and eat leisurely. She would watch them proudly as they started off for their large, well-equipped, modern school. There they would have every opportunity. There would be a library full of books for her little "book-worms." They would take music lessons and play in the band. They would compete in various sports that would develop their bodies. Best of all, at 3:30 she would hear their footsteps at the door as they would burst eagerly into the house with all their excited chatter of the day's activities.

There would be evenings together, homework, practicing, family games, the bedtime story and prayers. Martha would happily tuck them into bed, glad that they were safe under her wing.

Martha dreamed on. If she were in America she would use all those new frozen foods, like chicken pies that you just pop into the oven. When she was in a hurry she would open a can of delicious soup. It would take only a jiffy to stir up a cake from one of the many mixes.

There would be other Americans. They would be invited to dinners and social gatherings. There would be special evangelistic meetings in the church, beautiful music—

"Martha, you quit your daydreaming!" she scolded herself sternly. "You've got work to do!"

With a sigh she pulled herself up from the floor and started on the day's routine. She would have her devotions first, then tidy up the house and write those important letters. After that she'd cycle out to the T. B. hospital for visitation.

Martha drew her jacket closely about her as she started off on the old bicycle. The wind from the Japan Sea bit her cheeks. Soon the exercise warmed her body, but her heart still felt desolate. It was hard—hard to be a missionary mother.

"I'll visit Sumiko San first," thought Martha as she checked her shoes at the hospital entrance and received a pair of slippers to wear. Shuffling along through the cold, airy passages she grumbled, "This reminds me more of a well-ventilated barn than a hospital!"

Sumiko San's face lit up with pleasure when she saw the missionary. "Sensei," she cried joyfully, "you've come well!"

They were as follows: First year, Carolyn Boykin and Patricia Boykin; third year, Susan Nichols, Debbie Boyette, and Eddie Morris; fifth year, Dennis Gay; seventh year, Bradley Nichols and Cathy Williams; eighth year, Douglas Gay, Becky Davis, and Nancy Fulghum; ninth year, Wiley Boyette; tenth year, Nelda Deans, Carol Deans, and Dianne Deans; thirteenth year, Carolyn Jackson.

Ormondsville Church Begins Full-Time Services

In a special called meeting Wednesday night, January 29, the Ormondsville Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Ayden, North Carolina, voted to go on full-time services as of February 2. Services will be held each Sunday morning at 11:00 with evening services only on second and fourth Sundays. The Rev. Clifton Rice of Kinston, who has pastored the church for several years, will continue as full-time pastor.

Ormondsville Sunday School Awards Attendance Pins

The Ormondsville Free Will Baptist Sunday School, Route 1, Ayden, North Carolina, awarded twenty-six perfect attendance pins to members of the school who had a perfect attendance record for the year 1963. These pins ranged from first year pins to one twenty-second year pin. These pins were presented during Sunday school January 26, 1964.

Organ Dedicated at Piney Grove Church

A dedication service was held recently at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Kenly, North Carolina, for the new organ that was contributed to the church as a gift in memory of the late Mr. Joe Jones. Contributors of the organ were the children of the deceased. They are Alton Jones of Newport News, Virginia; George Albert Jones, also of Virginia; and Marvin Jones and Mrs. Joe Sasser of the Kenly community. The widow of the deceased, Mrs. Lucy Jones, resides on Route 1, Kenly, and is a spiritual asset to the community. She is very active in all church and community activities. The pastor, the Rev. L. B. Woodall, Jr., had charge of the dedication service which was combined with the Sunday morning worship service.

Western Conference Board of Ordination to Meet

The Western Conference Board of Ordination of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina will meet at the home of the Rev. Boyd Shook, located on Waddell Street, Selma, on February 10, 1964, at 7:30 p. m. Anyone desiring to meet the board is urged to attend.

Hull Road Church Adopts New Subscription Plan

The Hull Road Free Will Baptist Church, Snow Hill, North Carolina, has set aside $40.00 for the purpose of supplying one-year subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist. These subscriptions will be given to institutions such as sanitariums and hospitals, and also to needy persons interested in Free Will Baptists. The Hull Road Church feels that this is a new service for the cause of local missions. The Rev. Bobby Bazen is pastor.

Children's Home Child Is Seriously Ill

According to the Rev. M. L. Johnson, superintendent of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, Miss Sandra Mercer of the Homc is seriously ill. At the present she is a patient at Chapel Hill hospital. Mr. Johnson reports that the doctors have not made a final diagnosis; that is, as of January 31.

Miss Mercer expresses her appreciation for the many cards and telephone calls which have been received in her behalf.

Magdalena Mission

Dear Christian Friends:

I am happy to have the opportunity to write another article in The Free Will Baptist so that you can have some idea what is happening out here with the work of the Lord. You all know that my father, the Rev. Jose Guzman, has a new mission in Magdalena, a town about 60 miles south of Nogales. Actually, Magdalena is southwest of Nogales, while Cananea is southeast; and the two towns are farther apart from each other than they are from Nogales.

As we reported before, Magdalena is the location of the statue of San Francisco, and is a very strong Catholic stronghold. However, the mission there is growing. At present the attendance is averaging over 30 i averaging over 30, and there have been some 15 persons to accept Christ in the services. These services are being conducted in a room of a private dwelling there in Magdalena which measures about 10 by 12 feet. As you know, a room that size isn't very large in which to have a service with over 30 people. There can be little hope for continued growth in attendance until there can be a place provided sufficiently large in which to hold the services.

The people in Mexico are so anxious to hear the gospel that they will crowd in and stand throughout the services; but even then, there is a definite limit to the number who can crowd into a 10 by 12 room. They need a larger place in which to have services.

Brother Guzman has had two lots, in different locations, offered to him as a place to build a church building. However, because of the poverty of the people, it will be a long time before they can obtain enough money to build the necessary building. What they need is some money with which to build. We are asking if there are some of you who will contribute toward a building fund for Magdalena. Altogether, they need about $300 to build the building and furnish it. I know that to you that sounds like a very little; but it will not be a very big building, nor very fancy, and the furniture will consist of a few plain benches and a pulpit stand. Very few churches in Mexico have backs on their benches, so no one thinks such a thing is necessary.

If anyone would like to have a part in this building in Magdalena, please send your offerings to North Carolina Board of Missions, C/O the Rev. A. B. Bryan, Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513, and state that it is for the building in Magdalena. Please, please, do not take money from other missionary enterprises for this project. When a special project like this is mentioned, it is with the hope that others will become interested in helping, not that those of you who are now giving to other needs should divert the funds from them. Please do continue to give to the other needs.

May God bless you is our prayer. Please pray for us.

Yours for the cause of Christ,
Sally Ann Elliston

OBITUARIES

TRIBUTE TO MRS. ROSA SASSER ROWE

By Mrs. E. L. Hill

On Friday evening, January 3, 1964, the death angel visited the home of one of our most devoted auxiliary members and called Mrs. Rosa Sasser Rowe to receive her reward.

Mrs. Rowe was the daughter of the late W. A. and Martha Lou Sasser, a native of Johnston County. She first came to Ayden and attended the Ayden Seminary, where she met her husband, Mr. Alton F. Rowe. After World War I they married and later returned to Ayden, where they made their home for some 42 years.

Mrs. Rowe was active in community affairs; she was also an active worker in our auxiliary. She was past treasurer, in which capacity she served for many years. Although she had been in declining health for some time, she was always thinking of her church and auxiliary.

When Christ died on the Cross, love reached its zenith and opened the door through which all mankind can come to know God, our Saviour and Lord. For Christ the Cross was the crown of his redemptive work; for He said, "It is finished." So it becomes the crown of life to all who will accept it.

We honor her because she was our royal kindred through the blood of Christ—for she walked with Christ.

As we think of her and offer thanksgiving for those who received the faith and lived by it, thus meriting the crown of life, let us examine our own hearts and lives in the presence of God, to find if we have the true faith and are living by it so that we may be worthy to receive the crown of life.

As we pause a moment to honor her who has run the race, let us remember that death was the gate through which she entered to receive her crown: "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown . . . not to me only, but to all them also that love his appearing" (2 Timothy 4:8). Paul had the assurance of his crown when he wrote to Timothy.

Doubtless there are many gems or stars glowing in the crowns of heroines of the Cross who have gone to be with the Lord; at their deaths they received the crown of life made possible through the Cross.

Mrs. Rowe was presented a Life Award Pin by her auxiliary for her years of loyal service in the Ayden Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary.

We shall long miss her presence, but the beauty of her life will live on in the lives of those who follow in her wake. Words could be written about Mrs. Rowe and yet not describe the nobility of her life, so we humbly bow our hearts in sincere thanksgiving that God placed her in our ranks as a co-laborer.

Attention: Local Woman's Auxiliary Secretaries

The report blanks used by the local auxiliaries to report to the district and the district to the State Auxiliary Convention of North Carolina have been mailed. It is time to prepare your report and mail to your district secretary with your 30c per capita dues for each active member along with your regular gift to the convention.

The North Carolina State Auxiliary Convention adopted a new constitution and bylaws in its 1963 meeting. Included in this was the continuance of the 30c per capita sent to the district. The district treasurer in turn will send 20c on to the state treasurer and retain 10c for the district. The amount of per capita dues dropped last year and perhaps it was due to not understanding that this was to be continued. Please respond real well because this is the main source of income for the State Auxiliary Convention to do its promotional work.

If you do not receive your report blank please contact your district secretary or write to Mrs. C. F. Bowen, 1731 Hillcrest Drive, Wilson, North Carolina, your state secretary.

Installation of Officers Held

by Mrs. Leon Dunn

The new officers of the Celia Hart Garris Woman's Auxiliary of the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church were installed by their pastor, the Rev. C. B. Hansley, Sunday night, January 19, during the regular church hour.

The service began with a congregational hymn, "Love Divine." Then the pastor offered prayer.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Mrs. Tommy Manning then rendered a beautiful solo, "Oh, Master, Let Me Walk with Thee."

Following this, in a very impressive candlelight ceremony, the following officers were installed: Nettie Woodall, president; Beulah Stocks, vice-president; Elizabeth Barfield, recording secretary; Mary Dunn, corresponding secretary; and Bernadine Hart, treasurer. Stewardship chairmen were also installed. They were as follows: Anna Hill, Study Course and Anna Phillips Loan Fund; Mildred Hansley, Vida Godwin, and Audrey Hart, Youth; Mae Barrow and Margaret Moseley, Missions; Nannie Lee Cox, Children's Home; Aurrey Hart, Victoria Hart, and Helen McLawhorn, Benevolent; Gladys Tripp, Enlistment; Burnell Padley, Program; and Hazel Hart and Nanny Hart, Ways and Means.

Miss Lorena Moseley then sang "Give of Your Best to the Master."

At the close, Mrs. Thelbert Hart read a very fitting tribute to the late Mrs. Rosa Rowe. (See Obituary.)

The service was closed with prayer.

Kenly, N. C.—The YFA of Stencil's Chapel Original Free Will Baptist Church met at the church Thursday night, January 23, for their monthly meeting, with the president, Lyn Renfrow, presiding. The group sang "Stepping in the Light." Mrs. W. E. Renfrow led in prayer. Scripture was read from Genesis 1:1.

The program was given by Miss Faye Wall, program chairman. Those assisting in the program, entitled "In Step with Jesus for the New Year," were Woody O'Brian, Cris Johnson, Danny Batten, Larry Hodge, Lyn Renfrow, Brenda Narron, and Mrs. Renfrow.

During the business session the YFA voted to send get-well cards to all sick people of the church and community.

The group was dismissed by praying together the Lord's Prayer.

The youth auxiliary has made remarkable progress during the past year. The youth choir renders special music each first Sunday in the month, and are also in charge of devotion every Sunday.

Mount Olive, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of North East Free Will Baptist Church met for its monthly meeting on January 7 at the church with 24 members present.

Mrs. Geneva Walker was in charge of the installation service, a very impressive candlelight service. The theme was "Hold High the Torch."

Mrs. Louise Malpass was in charge of the program. The topics and those taking part on the program were as follows: "A Carpenter Is Indispensable," by Mrs. Christine Jackson and Mrs. Louise Wiggins; "A Carpenter Builds," by Mrs. Inez Whitfield; "A Carpenter Beautifies," by Mrs. Mildred Best; "A Carpenter Repairs," by Mrs. Janice Parker.

Following the business session, the meeting was adjourned with the benediction.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church met at the church recently for the January meeting with Mrs. Ben Hines presiding.

The group sang "What a Friend," after which Mrs. Andrew Hill prayed the opening prayer.

Mrs. Laura Boyette presented the program, using pictures illustrating different aspects of life with God as the Master Builder. Those participating were Geraldine Hill and Clarissa Merritt.

Mrs. Hilda Tyndall called the roll; twelve members were present.

Business was discussed, and Mrs. Pearl Smith and Mrs. Ruth Hines were elected AFC leaders. The group voted to be responsible for refreshments for the youth auxiliaries each month.

Mrs. Boyette pronounced the benediction.

Ayden, N. C.—The Celia Hart Garris Woman's Auxiliary of Ayden Free Will Baptist Church met on Monday night, January 20, at the home of Mrs. R. H. Mason. There were twenty-one members present.

Mrs. Thomas Woodall, president, presided over the meeting, which was opened with the group's singing "Take Time to Be Holy." Mrs. Doug Stocks then offered prayer.

During the business period the minutes were read and approved; and Mrs. Wilbur Barfield, secretary, called the roll. Mrs. Leon Dunn gave the treasurer's report for the year 1963. Included in the report were the various contributions that had been made during the year. Various other committees also reported.

A Book-A-Month for Mount Olive College report was given by Mrs. Anna Hill, who reported that since the auxiliary began in 1963 to give books, it has given a total of $202, or 41 books. Thus the auxiliary is paid up through April of 1966. Mrs. Hill also reported that the auxiliary filled an Anna Phillip's Loan Fund Chart for both the March and September district auxiliary conventions for a total of $40.

Mrs. C. H. Overman read the Scripture taken from Mark 6:1-6. Mrs. C. B. Hansley then presented the program, entitled "Master Builders," after which she closed the meeting with prayer.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Charles Pope on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Roy Stanford, president, presided. Scripture was read by Mrs. Claude Bass, which was followed with prayer by Mrs. Glenn Parnell. Mrs. Bass continued with the program, "Beginning with the Master Builder." Mrs. Stanford concluded this portion of the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Calvin Medlin, recording secretary, then called the roll with an attendance of 16, including two new members, Mrs. Selby Vick and Mrs. Lee Hooks; one visitor, Mrs. Bobby Parnell. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Various reports were submitted by Mrs. Glenn Parnell, outgoing youth chairman. Mrs. Lee Hooks reported on the AFC auxiliary. Both auxiliaries have experienced a most progressing year. Mrs. Joe Sasser, orphanage chairman, reported on the Children's Home at Middlesex. Mrs. Frank Waddell submitted a very interesting and encouraging treasurer's report. The auxiliary was informed by Mrs. L. B. Woodall, Jr., study course chairman, of the study course on missions to be taught by Mrs. David Hansley at Pleasant Plain Free Will Baptist Church on February 17. A motion was made and carried to send Mount Olive College the balance of our benefit dinner quota.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members joined hands and prayed the Lord's Prayer in unison.

During the social hour the members voted to draw Pollyannas. Each member may remember her Pollyanna as often as she wishes during the year, especially on her birthday and at Christmas. Mrs. Pope served hot chocolate, pimento cheese sandwiches, pickles, and cookies. The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Claude Bass.

Kenly, N. C.—The YFA of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church met on Thursday evening in the home of Gail and Steve Bass. The president, Donnie Faucette, presided. Miss Linda Pope, program chairman, presented the program, "Why Some Prayers Aren't Answered." A very interesting and inspiring discussion followed the program. Hal Woodall concluded the program with prayer.

During the business session officers were elected for the new year as follows: president, Jackie Pope; vice-president, Hal Woodall; secretary, Bonnie Hales; treasurer, Carolyn Edwards; program chairman, Linda Pope; corresponding secretary, Frances Parnell.

The possibility of some members going to Cragmont in the summer was discussed. To aid in financing this worthwhile project, the members will be selling community cookbooks sometime in the near future. The cookbooks will be compiled from recipes submitted by the woman's auxiliary and local women of this community. The books are now in the process of being printed and will be available in a few weeks.

Singing was enjoyed during the social hour. Mrs. Bass served refreshments consisting of Pepsi-Cola, fudge, peanuts, and popcorn balls.

The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Stanford on February 6.

Kenly, N. C.—The AFC of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church met on Friday night at the home of David Barnes. Stanley Stanford, presided. The meeting opened with the group's singing "If You Know the Lord," followed by prayer. The program, "Step by Step Through the First Commandment," was presented by the program chairman.

During the business session officers were elected for the new year as follows: president, Kenneth Vick; vice-president, Stan Stanford; secretary, Debra Renfrow; treasurer, Donna Jackson; program chairman, Rose Hill; usher, David Barnes; recreation leaders, Connie Aycock and Brenda Cuddington; song leader, Debra Renfrow.

Various reports were submitted by the outgoing officers. There were twenty members and three visitors present for this meeting. The adult leaders for the new year are Mrs. Rufus Daniels and Mrs. Selby Vick.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Jimmie Barnes following the adjournment of the meeting.

Notice District Officers And Secretaries

When making Life Membership Awards, send the money ($25.00) to Mrs. Raymond Sasser, 108 Hope Lodge Street, Tarboro, North Carolina. Also notify Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Maury, of the person's name and whether they are using gold-filled pins or 10k gold pins. The woman's auxiliary pins are to be ordered from the Free Will Baptist Press.

ARCHITECTS

G. Milton Small and Associates of Raleigh has been retained as the architectural firm to design the first buildings. Small, a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, also prepared the master plan for the new campus. The architectural motif will be of modern design.

Flexibility in the site development plan will permit the college to expand to 800 or 1,200 students.

The college board of directors has endorsed a formal resolution requesting that the new campus be incorporated into the town limits of Mount Olive. Town officials have assured the college of its fullest cooperation in providing city water and sewer services and fire protection.

College Day At Little Rock

Little Rock Free Will Baptist Church, Lucama, North Carolina, will observe Sunday, February 9, as Mount Olive College Day, the Rev. Frank Harrison, pastor, has announced.

President W. Burkette Raper will speak at the 11 a. m. worship service.

A noisy tongue is not always the proof of a mind and head that is full of knowledge.—Walter E. Isenhour.

COMMENTS ON OUR CODE OF ETHICS

The reason that these comments are made is that the readers of our church paper may know the truth concerning the Code of Ethics. Exaggerated comments have been made by some of those who refuse to accept and abide by the code. Last week we talked about seven points in the code.

This week we are talking about points under the caption, "My Relationship to the Church or Churches Which I Serve."

1. "In my preaching I will exalt the Bible and will be true to my convictions, proclaiming the same in love!" I cannot find any fault in this decision. This was among the things that some preachers refused to sign.

2. "I will maintain a Christian attitude toward my church officers and will not expect the unreasonable of them." I'm not bragging, but this has been my attitude toward officers that have been my helpers. It is possible for a pastor to expect too much from those who are as much interested in the ongoing of the church as the pastor can ever be.

3. "In my pastoral calling I will have respect for every home I enter." I am a representative of Christ and His Church. This writer thinks that every pastor should be happy to sign this part of the code.

4. "I will strive with evangelistic zeal to build up my church, but will maintain a Christian attitude at all times toward members of other churches and their religious bodies." Personally I have many wonderful and tender friends among other denominations as well as among Free Will Baptist churches which I never served. All of them are churches of God. We should love and respect each other. What keeps us from that? Well, many causes. I have been dealing with denominational problems in different union meetings, conferences, and conventions ever since the fall of 1910. In all of these I have found some "carnality" in which you could sense the spirit of jealousy and hatred. For more than 55 years now I have been going by what is set forth in code number 4. Thank God, I have found it profitable. It is God's way I believe. Love will win.

5. "I will under no circumstances violate confidences that come to me as a minister." Will some objecter give me an honest reason for not signing this number?

6. "I will not break a contract which I have made with a church for pastoral or evangelistic services without first securing their expressed consent." Yet, this writer has known ministers to break contracts and take other work. On one occasion I closed out a meeting in about half the time allotted because of conditions in the community that were in opposition to the meeting. This seemed to be agreeable.

7. "I will seek to make service primary and remuneration secondary." This part of the code means that we will not preach for money, but for the glory of God. Yes, we will render service and let God and the people take care of the pay. Perhaps there are some people who make the "filthy lucre" of more interest than their service. On several occasions when I was doing revival work, I would receive letters saying, "What will you charge, or expect, to conduct a revival for us?" I always answered, "No charge, the remuneration is with you and God." Peter says, "The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of glory that shall be revealed: Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind" (1 Peter 5:1, 2). Notice that God and our code says to put service first, your pay secondary. Peter, the apostle, also says the same thing in substance. Why not sign the pledge? It has been reported to this writer that a certain minister accepted the call to pastor a church and, after a few months, one Sunday morning he announced from the pulpit, "I am giving notice that I am resigning today, and my time will be up in ninety days. My reason is that I have found a church that will pay me more than you are paying." Of course they accepted his resignation. I have no idea that this fellow ever signed the Code of Ethics.

8. "When employed for full-time service by a church, I will not engage in other lines of remunerative work without the knowledge and consent of the church or its official board." Jesus said that no man can serve two masters. It is hard for a minister to try to give full time to a church and to a business employer. It may be that in some instances that the church does not pay the pastor a living salary and it becomes necessary for some sideline work. But it is much better, I think, to get enough to live respectfully. In any case let the Holy Spirit lead and control.

9. "I will not take sides with any faction in my church unless a doctrinal or moral issue is involved." This writer says, as of old, "Hoe to the line, and let the chips fall where they will." We should be glad to sign pledge number 9, and keep out of trouble.

10. "As a pastor, I rightfully control the use of my pulpit, but I will not invite persons into it who are not generally acceptable to my people." What is objectionable to this, Brother Minister?

11. "In my administrative and pastoral duties I will remember that I am pastor of all my members, and I will seek to avoid any display of preferences and the cultivation of intimacies within the church or community which may be construed as evidence of partiality. I will seek not to identify myself with any social set in either the church or the community, and I will endeavor to not allow personal feelings to interfere with the impartial nature of my administrations." What is wrong here? Some did not sign.

12. "When I can no longer command the respect and cooperation of a congregation, I will, in interest of the church, quietly resign, and will strive to strengthen the unity of the congregation regardless of the circumstances." This is the best thing a pastor can do. It is dangerous for anything other to be done. Don't be foolish and give in because of a very small number of gossipers and "newstoters," but act wisely. If you listen to everything you hear, you may be on the go much of the time.

13. "I will never speak disparagingly of my church or my profession." Most people are disgusted when a person has a chip on his shoulder and is continually talking about the faults of his church. It is sickening. Some preachers would not sign for some reason.

14. "I will not incur any sizable financial obligation for the church without first obtaining their consent." It is not claim Peter was the first pope. I do not believe it but would like for you to explain the following Scriptures with this in mind. "And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). "Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained" (John 20:23).—G.E.S., Florida.

Questions & Answers

ANSWER—These passages in no way suggest that Peter was the first Roman Catholic pope. Dr. James M. Gray in his book, Bible Problems Explained, says: "It is fatal to the theory of the papacy that Peter never really went to Rome. Peter's name means 'rock' but the rock on which Christ proposed to build His church is Christ Himself and not Peter. Christ is in the process of building His church on that rock whom Peter confessed in the first of the above passages of scripture. The word 'Peter' is translated 'rock' in one place and 'Peter' in another. In the first of its uses in the passage the gender signifies a casting or small stone and in the next a hugh rock or foundation stone one on which a large structure might rest. The allusion to 'the keys' in the next verse is qualified by the reference to John where we find the authority thus given to Peter was extended to each person who composed the twelve apostles."

What all this authority included may not be fully known but is explained in part in other Scriptures. "Verily I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven" (Matthew 18:18). When received with the full light of its context this passage gives some explanation on the subject. The power of discipline seems to have been included in the authority delegated to these twelve disciples and through them to the whole this earth.

We sometimes forget in this modern age that the church has authority on earth and that it has equal responsibility to carry out such authority. There is both authority and responsibility to be exercised in the reception of members as well as the excommunication of members who are heretical and unruly. The whole body needs to act in such activities; that is, when people are either to be taken in or excluded from its membership. Too often members remain away from certain services in order to shirk their duty in the expulsion of certain members from their ranks when they should be there to be counted and many such absentee members will never be able to give God in the judgment a valid answer for such absences. Their often absence gives place for such a doctrine and such practice as that exercised among Roman Catholic popes.

Some ministers take entirely too much authority in such matters. The pastor of a church who is there in the will of God is indeed the under shepherd to Jesus Christ among that segment of the Christ's flock, but so is each member of that church and each has a responsibility. The practice of the early church in voting and casting lots helped to keep views of heresy from dominating. It will take no less today.

God's crying and continuous complaint to Israel was that she had not fulfilled her obligation. "And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the LORD commanded him, And all the people answered together, and said, All that the LORD hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the LORD" (Exodus 19:7, 8). Compare "My sheep wandered through all the mountains, and upon every high hill: yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth, and none did search or seek after them.

Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD; As I live, saith the LORD GOD, surely because my flock became a prey, and my flock became meat to every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search for my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock; Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD; Thus saith the LORD GOD; Behold, I am against the shepherds; and I will require my flock at their hand, and cause them to cease from feeding the flock; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more; for I will deliver my flock from their mouth, that they may not be meat for them" (Ezekiel 34:6-10).

"Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep. All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them. I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture . . . I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd . . . My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me" (John 10:7-9, 14-16, 27).

Israel promised to keep all God's laws. Such was the Old Testament covenant between Jehovah God and His people Israel. She failed to do so and therefore lost the nation to heathen. When saved, we each entered into Christ and hence with Him the new covenant—the New Testament—in it God required of us "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God" (Romans 12:1, 2).

TIMMY and GOLIATH

by Robert B. Haslam

AND that, boys, is exactly how David killed Goliath."

Timmy Thomas sat motionless in his seat in the Sunday-school class. In his mind he could see it all happening. And then it was in his own hands—the piece of leather the teacher had fashioned into a slingshot just like David's!

Timmy looked it over carefully. "I could make one of these," he thought.

The next day after school Timmy asked his mother if he could have an old piece of leather out in the garage. It was too narrow for anything useful, so she said he could.

Timmy borrowed his father's big, heavy shears that were lying on the tool bench. With great difficulty, he cut the leather into a long strip that was wider in the middle than at the ends. When he was finished, he went out of the garage and looked it over in the sunlight.

It was just like David's slingshot, he thought. "Even I could kill Goliath," he said to himself. Timmy's teacher had told the class how much David must have practiced to have good aim. So Timmy decided that he needed to practice.

Timmy's eyes looked around his yard. And then a strange thing happened. As he looked across the yard, he imagined that the big tree standing on the line between his yard and the neighbor's yard was Goliath. My, how big and tall it was. Just like Goliath. Now in his imagination the battle began to shape up. He was David, the tree was Goliath, and he, Timmy Thomas, was not afraid!

Boldly he stepped into the little brook (the gravel driveway) and picked up five smooth stones. Four of them he put in his shirt pocket for instant use if needed. The other one he placed in the center of the slingshot which he had made.

Then Timmy advanced toward Goliath. In his mind he imagined that he shouted out to Goliath (the big tree), "You come to me with a sword and a spear and a javelin. But I come to you in the name of the Lord God of the armies of Israel. This day will the Lord deliver you into my hands."

And as those words thundered across the valley (the yard), he swung the slingshot around above his head, just like his teacher had shown them, and he flung the rock as hard as he could toward the big tree.

WOW-EE!! Did it ever fly. Straight to the tree it went. In Timmy's mind he could just see Goliath falling to the ground. And then—crash!! Tinkle, tinkle. Had Goliath really fallen down? It was the neighbor's living room window.

For a stunned moment Timmy stood as though he were paralyzed. And then, as the truth dawned upon him as to what had happened, he suddenly turned and ran to his house as fast as he could. He ran lickety-cut upstairs to his room and closed the door. He could hardly breathe, he was so scared.

He looked out the window, but he could not see his neighbor's house because of the tree. Timmy sat down on the edge of his bed. Slowly his breathing returned to normal.

But Timmy was still scared. Had anyone seen him? Did anyone know whether or not he had been the one that had thrown the rock through the window?

And then the Spirit of Jesus began to talk to Timmy. He began to help Timmy remember what he had been taught in Sunday school from the Bible. He knew he should be honest about it, even if no human person had seen him throw that stone. Because God knew all about it.

Timmy realized that the temptation to be dishonest was a bigger Goliath than the big elm tree out in the yard. Was he afraid of this Goliath? Was Timmy Thomas afraid to go over to his neighbor's house and confess that he had thrown that rock?

Timmy thought and thought. Finally he said, almost out loud, "Jesus, if you will help me, I will go and tell my neighbor. With your help I will really kill Goliath."

When he walked up the front steps and stood at the door, Timmy was trembling. He was scared. And then in his imagination the door became Goliath. Once more Timmy shouted out in his mind, this time at the door, "You come to me with a sword and a spear and a javelin. But I come to you in the name of the Lord God of the armies of Israel. This day will the Lord deliver you into my hands."

Timmy reached and knocked loudly on the door. Almost immediately the door opened. And can you imagine it? There stood Goliath!! Only this Goliath was real. This Goliath was breathing, and he had eyes, and they were looking right at Timmy.

Timmy lost his voice. He could not say a word.

Finally the man said, "Well, what do you want, Timmy?"

Inside himself Timmy prayed, "Help me, Jesus."

Then finally he forced the words to come out. "I am the one who threw the rock through your window, Mr. Wilson."

Mr. Wilson was very serious. "Come in, Timmy," he said.

They went into the house. The Wilsons had no children, so Timmy was not accustomed to going inside their house. Mr. Wilson had him sit down in the big sofa chair.

"See that window?" he asked Timmy.

"Yes, sir," replied Timmy. "I—I—I'll pay for it all myself."

"How much money do you have?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"I have thirty cents," said Timmy. "But I get fifty cents for my allowance every Friday, and I'll give it all to you until the window is paid for."

Mr. Wilson's eyes began to twinkle. "I'll tell you what, Timmy," he said. "If ou will come over and mow my lawn next Saturday you won't owe me a thing."

Timmy was grateful. "Oh, sure," he blurted out. "I'll come over right after breakfast, and I'll do the nicest job you ever saw."

Mr. Wilson's eyes changed again.

"Timmy," he asked, "how did you come to throw that rock at my house? I have never known you to do anything like that before."

Timmy told Mr. Wilson all about Goliath, that the big elm tree was Goliath, and how the stone had sailed all the way through the tree and through the window.

Mr. Wilson's eyes changed again. This time they were wet with tears. He got up and went over to a shelf and took something off it.

"Timmy," he said, "you should be very proud. You really did kill Goliath! You killed one of the biggest temptations that ever come to boys—the temptation to hide the truth, to be dishonest."

And then Mr. Wilson went on. "Timmy, I am going to tell you something. I saw you break my window. I was looking out the kitchen window while I was washing my hands, and I saw you throw this stone. I decided I was going to wait until tomorrow. And if by that time you would not come and tell me about it, I was going to take this stone and show it to your father, and tell him all about what happened."

Timmy could imagine what would have taken place if that were to happen. How glad he was that he had come and told Mr. Wilson.

"Timmy," Mr. Wilson went on, "I want you to take this stone back to your house and put it on the dresser in your room. And every time you are tempted not to tell the truth, you just look at that stone and it will remind you of what you did today. It will help you always to be as big and brave as you are right now."

As the stone dropped into Timmy's outstretched hands, a lump came into his throat. He was proud. But most of all he was grateful to Jesus. Because with Jesus' help he had killed Goliath. And he had the stone to prove it.—Free Methodist.

LOVE AND FRIENDSHIP

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:13).

Some one has written the following beautiful paragraph on the subject, "A Good Friend," which I hope you will enjoy as much as I do each time I read it:

"To have a good friend is one of the highest delights of life; to be a good friend is one of the noblest and most difficult undertakings. Friendship depends not upon fancy, imagination or sentiment, but upon character. There is no man so poor that he is not rich if he have a friend; there is no man so rich that he is not poor without a friend. But friendship is a word made to cover many kindly, impermanent relationships. Real friendship is abiding. Like charity, it suffereth long and is kind. Like love, it vaunteth not itself, but pursues the even tenor of its way, unaffrighted by ill-report, loyal in adversity, the solvent of infelicity, the shining jewel of happy days. Friendship has not the iridescent joys of love, though it is closer than is often known to the highest, truest love. Its heights are ever serene, its valleys know few clouds. To aspire to friendship one must cultivate a capacity for faithful affection, a beautiful disinterestedness, a clear discernment. Friendship is a gift, but it is also an acquirement. It is like the rope with which climbers in the high mountains bind themselves for safety, and only a coward cuts the rope when a comrade is in danger. From Cicero to Emerson, and long before Cicero, and forever after Emerson, the praises of friendship have been set forth. Even fragments of friendship are precious and to be treasured. But to have a whole, real friend is the greatest of earth's gifts save one. To be a whole, real friend is worthy of high endeavor, for faith, truth, courage and loyalty bring one close to the Kingdom of Heaven."—Selected.

called one of our dearly loved members, Mrs. Mertie Small, from our midst.

She was married to Mr. Samuel Small on December 25, 1912; and to this union were born three children. Her husband preceded her in death on November 15, 1957.

Her funeral was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. R. M. Fader. She leaves to mourn their loss three children, several grandchildren, two sisters, and two brothers.

Mertie joined Smith's New Home Free Will Baptist Church, Deep Run, North Carolina, in September of 1909, and was baptized by the Rev. H. Cunningham. She was a faithful member as long as health would permit.

We, the church, bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well, and thank God for the example of this Christian life lived before us, and for her faithfulness to the church and community. We shall miss her, but we realize that our loss is heaven's gain.

Yes she's gone from our midst,
We'll see her here no more;
But one day we'll see her again
When we meet on that beautiful shore.

Our friend the mechanical engineer, tells us that it takes six times as much power to start a flywheel from a dead start as it does to keep it going, once it is in motion. In other words, it takes only one-sixth as much effort to keep going once you are on the way as it does to stop a bit and rest and then start all over again. The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for February 16

A Man Made Whole

(TEMPERANCE)

LESSON TEXT: Luke 8:26-39

MEMORY VERSE: Luke 5:31, 32

I. INTRODUCTION

Today's lesson is a study of the demoniac of Gadara, a man who had been possessed of devils for a long time. He was what we would term a wild man. He wore no clothes, and he lived in the tombs. Moreover, he was more than a wild man. In addition to having all the traits of such a man, he was possessed of demons.

Just prior to the time of our lesson, Jesus had been very busily engaged in Galilee. As He passed over the Sea of Galilee into the land of the Gadarenes, He met the demoniac. After a brief conversation with the man, the Lord Jesus restored him to true life. As He made the demon-possessed man whole, He began a work that could have resulted in many other miracles and blessings.

The devils were cast into a herd of about 2,000 swine, and immediately they ran violently down a steep place into the lake and were drowned.

As soon as the people of Gadara became aware of what had happened, a great number of them besought Him to depart from their coasts. They seemed more interested in the material worth of the hogs than they were in the blessings that Jesus could have brought them. And, of course, Jesus went. He never forces Himself on unwilling people.—Intermediate Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Jesus had a particular mission in mind when He started across a hazardous sea at night: healing the demoniac (vv. 22, 26, 27).

2. The man was so filled with demons that he was dominated by the power of Satan (vv. 27, 29).

3. The man recognized Jesus and worshiped him (v. 28).

4. There were many evil spirits in the man, enough to make 2,000 swine drown themselves (vv. 30, 33).

5. The demons recognized that Christ had power to cast them into eternal torment; but they asked to be spared that, at least temporarily (v. 31).

6. The demons would choose anything else in preference to eternal doom (v. 32).

7. The restored man was a living example of what the grace of God will do for a person (v. 35).

8. The Gadarenes thought more of the worth of 2,000 hogs than of this man's welfare (v. 37).

9. The restored man wanted to stay in the presence of Christ (v. 38).

10. Jesus commissioned the man to tell the story to his fellowmen (vv. 38, 39).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. A big city grew up in the river valley. Then the nearby river became polluted. Cities upstream dumped their refuse in it. Manufacturing plants disposed of all sorts of chemical waste products in it. Harmful bacteria made its waters unfit for swimming or boating. It seemed impossible for the big city to use this polluted water; but the city needed water, so it built a huge new purification plant. The water that the city needed was sent through the plant. In the processing the bacteria and harmful chemicals were removed from the water so that in each home in the city clean, pure water flowed from the water tap.

When Jesus crossed the Sea of Galilee and came into the country of the Gadarenes, He was immediately confronted by a demon-possessed man. The man's heart was filled with demons who ruled him so completely that other persons would have nothing to do with him. They banned him from their villages, and so he lived among the tombs, unclothed and in filth. But Jesus did not reject this man. Instead He cleaned up his life. When the legion of demons came out of the man, Jesus permitted them to enter into a herd of swine that ran down the slope and drowned in the Sea. When the man was in his right mind, he sat at the feet of Jesus to learn of Him. Then Jesus sent him out to tell his countrymen what had been done for him. Like the clean water, the demoniac was now cleansed and usable in the kingdom of God.—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. Some years ago, I flew to Haiti, to preach the Gospel. As the plane soared through the clouds, I looked down upon a land that was all beauty, charming beyond words. When the plane landed, I saw what I could not see from above. Above I saw only the beauty of nature, but now I dwelled among the people. As I drove and walked through the island, I saw poverty and squalor. I saw sin, its power and fruit. I saw wickedness on every hand.

When we arrived in a little village, a demented boy followed me wherever I went, and even stared through the door while we dined. I thought of the man of Gadara, and how the Lord had set him free.

As we returned in our journey to Port au Prince, I saw a statue of a famous general, the liberator of Haiti. At his feet knelt a Haitian, bound with chains. But the chains had just been broken! He had been set free!

I prayed, "Oh, God, these people have been set free from political slavery, but there is another slavery which still binds them and chains them—the slavery of sin, and Jesus, Thou art the only liberator who has the power to set them free from Satan and the chains of sin!"

The Gospel is the only hope of men throughout the world. The missionary is the liberator who brings the Gospel of Jesus Christ, with the power of God, to set men free.

When we arrive in any country, we never know what or who we will meet. Each country has its own brand of spiritual slavery, but one thing is common to all—they are all enslaved and bearing burdens too heavy to endure. The Gospel is a message of good news. It is the message of liberation and joy!

Jesus found a man in Gadara who dwelled in the tombs. Spirit possession had debased him until he was a wild man. This is not unusual on the mission field. In the heart of Havana, Cuba, I discovered people living in the lowest type of hovels which were worse than rat holes. It was unbelievable, and no tourists were ever shown this area. Using a jeep, so we could make good our escape, we took motion pictures of this area, and we were driven out even as we took the pictures. The people who dwelled here were ashamed of their environment. But that is what sin does to the human race.

There are similar areas in every country of the world.

But let us not make the mistake of thinking that the only example of spiritual slavery and sin's debasement is to be found in the slum areas of the cities of the world. Sometimes in the palaces and mansions sin lurks with a more vicious power and sting than in the hovels. Mankind has covered up his shame through training and education, but the corruption of the human heart remains the same. All men everywhere need the Gospel, and the missionary must make the Gospel to help deliver the highest social caste from the powers of sin. Fear, hate, evil thoughts, cruelty and all other vile characteristics of sin exist in the hearts of men.—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

3. It is the feeling of this writer that we should put more emphasis on our temperance lessons in the Sunday school. Since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution, liquor advertisements have appeared in newspapers, on radio, and on television until a large part of our population has been lulled to sleep concerning the dangers of strong drink. We believe that it is the task of the church to keep alert and to use every means possible to keep our people alert to the dangers inherent in strong drink.

Not many years ago pastors would often preach a whole sermon against liquor, but even this seems to be a thing of the past. How long has it been since you heard a sermon on strong drink preached from your pulpit? If you feel that more ought to be done in your community about this evil that casts a shadow everywhere man is found, talk to your pastor about it, and get some good literature on the subject and give it out in your community.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

"How are you, Sumiko San?" asked Martha warmly as she came to her bedside.

The 20-year-old girl's face clouded for a moment. "The X rays show no improvement, Sensei."

There was a painful silence. "But I am well enough to get up a little," she added brightly. "I'll put on my kimono and take you to see the others."

In a moment she had put on her colorful kimono and smoothed her jet-black hair. "There are several new ones who are interested in the Gospel," she exulted as she led the missionary out of the cold, cheerless room and into the passageway.

Martha followed Sumiko San from room to room. They sang together for the patients, read from the Bible, explained the verses and prayed. Some had already received the Saviour and were thrilled with the Christian fellowship. Others, sad and lonely from life's adversities, listened hungrily to the comforting message of Christ.

Martha waved at Sumiko San as she mounted her bicycle for the homeward trip. She was deep in thought as she pedaled along the narrow streets between the tiny shops and drab houses.

"Oh, God, I said it was hard to be a missionary," confessed Martha. "Forgive me. It's a wonderful privilege to bring Your message to those poor hopeless T. B. patients."

The wind stung Martha's face but she didn't feel it now. "Oh, God, I wouldn't trade my calling for all the warm, beautiful houses in America!"

She slowed to a stop before the vegetable shop. "What do I care about canned soup? I'll make my own!" she decided gaily as she chose two long carrots and a large head of cabbage from the array before her.

The vegetable lady eyed her curiously. She couldn't figure out this bicycle-riding American woman, but gratefully accepted the tract Martha offered her.

Martha sang as she prepared her dinner from "scratch." "Lord, thank You for letting me be a missionary. Things don't matter."

She looked around the little Japanese house in which they lived. With the curtains, rug and pictures she had brought with her from America, it was cozy. It was home. She could get along without a beautiful house, the frozen dinners and cake mixes.

But could she get along without her children for five days a week? Her heart ached again with loneliness as she thought of them. The soup was boiling merrily on the stove. Martha sat down to wait and think.

"Lord, why does it hurt so much?" she asked, the tears welling into her eyes again. "Will it always hurt to send them away?"

Suddenly it dawned on her that it would, because she was a mother. "But Lord," she prayed as she bowed her head in submission, "please make me willing to hurt for Your sake." In a moment joy and peace flooded Martha's soul. He had made her willing.

Across the street the woman who helped Martha in the house occasionally, was gossiping with the fish lady. "Every Tuesday morning at six 'clock they send their little boys off to Akita for a whole week!"

The fish lady clucked and shook her head unbelievably.

"I can't understand them," the other one went on. "We Japanese could never do that! We must love our children more than they do."

The soup forgotten, the missionary mother sat with bowed head in the chilly little kitchen. "Yes, Lord, even my children—for Your sake and for the souls of the Japanese."—Gospel Herald.

tion to you." You file the letter away with a feeling of satisfaction, almost more than you can contain.

Standing at the window of your study on Sunday morning, you watch the families come up for worship. As the Jones family comes by, you breathe a prayer of thanksgiving. Mr. Jones stands erect and carries himself with quiet dignity. It hasn't always been that way. You recall 14 months before when you heard a brokenhearted woman sob out her story of an alcoholic husband and father, a fine career shattered, a home broken, a marriage crushed. You go to prayer and you go to work. You recall later kneeling with Mrs. Jones in prayer at the first twenty-four hour victory. You remember how those victories were multiplied. They disappear into the church now and you thank God for having had a part in a man's redemption, a family's rebirth.

It is 11:45 at night; the phone rings; an elderly parishioner is dying; you hope to get there in time. Five minutes after you arrive the last breath is breathed. You offer words of comfort, words that you have offered before and which always seem to be so useless. Then you prepare for the funeral. Later, the widow comes by and says to you, "Pastor, if you had not said those words to me that night that Jim died, I believe I would have collapsed. Thank you so much." What joy is yours in that moment!

During the singing of the first hymn, you see a distinguished looking couple make their way to their usual places. Today their hair seems a little grayer, the lines in the face a little deeper. Four days before they called you and showed you the telegram that had just come—their only son killed in a plane crash. Today as they sing "Oh God, our help in ages past; our hope for years to come . . ." they seem to stand more erect, their voices firmer. They called you for help and you were able to give it.

This, then, gentlemen, is our life—the circle in which we live and move and have our being. Nothing in this world can take us so high or drag us so low. And those of us who best learn how to cope with both these sides of our life are the ones who stick with it and achieve a measure of success.

WE ALL DESIRE SUCCESS

We all wish to be successful. We may as well admit it. And this is good. To be successful is as worthy an ambition for the minister as for the man of any other calling. There is no Christian virtue in failure or in mediocrity. But what constitutes success in a pastorate? What are the measuring lines?

If we can show a gratifying record of increased membership, are we successful? Maybe so, maybe not. We are successful if the members are being enlisted and trained for the one purpose for which the church was created—to carry on Christ's mission in the world; unsuccessful if they are joining the church simply because they find it a congenial group of people of similar tastes and good social standing. We Free Will Baptists need to lose in the wilderness this concept that there is any particular virtue in large memberships. If we stay on the job, members, of course, are going to be added to the church through the power of the Holy Spirit, but what we need to rediscover is that there is more virtue in quality than in quantity. We need to continually keep before us the maxim set forth by Deitrich Bonhoeffer, Is our church "being Christ in the world"?

In Washington, D. C., a church was established several years ago that still has only seventy members, but we might call it one of the most successful in existence. The Church of the Saviour is small because it requires every member to have a training period of two years for learning what is involved in being a church member. After this he must commit himself to attend and tithe. Their budget this year is $85,000, spent largely outside their parish.

If we can report that the church is attaining a large income, are we successful? Maybe so, maybe not—successful if the budget reveals an out-reaching missionary spirit and a deep concern for the souls of men; unsuccessful if virtually all the money is being spent in a self-centered program to satisfy only the members and their children.

In New York City there is a church known as the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Started deliberately in the slums, it remains there in order to expend all its energies on reaching people one by one with help from God.

Or, if we have an extensive program of activities, can we claim success? Maybe so, maybe not—successful if these activities are making better churchmen out of our flock; unsuccessful if they only keep people busy being busy. It is my honest and sincere opinion that some of our churches need to discard some of their regular services in favor of something else which would be of greater value. Why have an evening prayer meeting that attracts twenty-five people when in some cases an early morning prayer meeting might attract seventy-five people? One Free Will Baptist church initiated a morning prayer service with great success. Now I do not wish to be misunderstood. If the five "regulars" (that is, Sunday school, morning worship, league, evening worship, and prayer meeting) work, that is fine. I am simply saying that we must plan and execute our work in the manner which will reach the most people most effectively.

Again, if the minister is well liked by everybody and the church is free of controversy, are we successful? Maybe so, maybe not—successful if the fellowship is the kind that is rooted in a common dedication to the purposes of Christ; unsuccessful if they are carefully avoiding things that might ruffle the smooth surface. The fact that some people in the church want the church to be free from all controversy may indicate that they are not coming to grips with the serious problems of the community. The preacher who explained his popularity by saying that he gave the people what they wanted should remember one man's remarks that "the people want to be humbugged."

Successful we wish to be: not as the world sees success, but as God sees it.

Ten Years Ago in the "Baptist"

Florida Free Will Baptists will be featured in the March 3 issue of "The Free Will Baptist." Many pictures and stories will be carried showing the growth of the work within this state.

The New Bayshore Church at Bay Cliff, Texas, organized last September, was represented at the quarterly meeting of the Central Texas Association January 3. The meeting was held at the Pine Prairic Church near Huntsville, Texas.

Gifts to the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, North Carolina, for the month of January, 1954, totaled $6,523.09.

We Agree

A letter to the editor of the Biblical Recorder, journal of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, expresses a conviction which we share. The letter was written by Ernest W. Moore of Wilmington. In view of the report on smoking and its effect on one's health, Mr. Moore writes:

"I am wondering if it would not be an opportune time for the right agencies and news media as well as denominational leaders to get behind the U. S. Public Health Service, our Congressmen and Senators for a like research project on another and more deadly commodity—Alcohol—and its effects on the health of the nation and the diseases it too causes. Also as to the liquor industry's false and blatant advertising of its wares.

"Cigarette smoking has its ill effects upon the health of the smoker, but smoking cigarettes won't make a man whip his wife, abuse his children, break up his and other homes, waste as much money, wreck his car, kill his fellowman and kill himself. But liquor does."

In the Editor's Mail

"This is to state that I am available for part or full-time pastoral work. I am a member of Mount Olive Free Will Baptist Church, Kannapolis, and also a member of the Piedmont Conference."—Rev. John Tillman, Route 1, Box 331, Kannapolis, North Carolina.

PLAN FOR DVBS

The month of February is by no means too early to begin making plans for your daily vacation Bible school for this spring or summer. Those who make their plans early will have the best school.

Now is the time to decide on your director and your staff of teachers. Most churches have a difficult time locating those who can (and those who are willing) to work with the school.

Again this year, the Free Will Baptist Press is publishing daily vacation Bible school materials. This year's series is entitled "The Great Book." It is a study of the greatness of the Bible. Materials are provided for five departments: nursery, beginners, primary, junior, and intermediate. There will be suggested crafts and activities for each department, as well as work packets and workbooks. The introductory packet will be available by April 1. The price of the packet is $4.95.

A daily vacation Bible school workshop will be conducted at Mount Olive Junior College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, on April 11, 1964. As in previous years, workshop sessions will be conducted for each department, including the directors. This workshop will begin at 10 a. m. It is a joint effort of the North Carolina Woman's Auxiliary Convention, the Free Will Baptist Press, and Mount Olive College. We hope you will make your plans to attend.

PLACING THE BLAME

When men face difficulties and problems, it is quite easy to place the blame for such circumstances on someone else. There's something about human nature that keeps us from honestly looking at ourselves.

Vance Havner, a well-known minister and writer, tells of a visit to a prison. In talking to the inmates, he found only one who placed the blame for his being there on himself. The others blamed someone else for their plight.

To further illustrate this truth, we only have to consider our reactions to some national problem. If it is during a time when the Republicans are in office, the Democrats are blamed, and vice versa. We may blame the President, or we may blame his associates. When President Kennedy was assassinated, some blamed the civil rights issue. Some blamed the right-wingers and others the left-wingers. Others placed the blame on the entire nation.

We often read of young people who get into trouble with the law, and then blame their trouble on their parents. To be sure, the blame is often properly placed; but on the other hand, even young people have the privilege of choosing to do right regardless of whatever else might have influenced them.

Our own unhappiness and miserable condition which we may often find ourselves in is not the other fellow's fault. We can rightfully blame ourselves. Thus, we can bring ourselves in focus with things as they are and as God sees us.

In reality, blaming others for our plight is the result of sin. It is also characteristic of the sinner—the man who refuses to see himself as God sees him. Such a lost man will never see his need of salvation until he begins to examine his own heart and soul. Before redemption is imparted, conviction of sin is essential; for the sinner must admit, "I have sinned."

Before placing the blame on others, we should pray with the psalmist: "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting" (Psalm 139:23, 24).

THE New Testament (John 1) gives us a portrait of a successful preacher. "There was a man . . . whose name was John" (John 1:6). It goes on to tell us that he came to bear witness of the light; and that light, of course, was then and is now Jesus Christ. And that is exactly what we are to do—bear witness of Jesus, the Christ. But what kind of witness?

Bishop Gerald Kennedy was on a train a few years back seated near the rear of the car. He saw a man get up from his seat and began to go to each person asking "Are you saved?" Most of them were ignoring him. The Bishop knew his time was coming and by and by it did. The man stuck his face down into the Bishop's and asked his question, "Are you saved?" Bishop Kennedy replied, "Yes, I am saved, and I am being saved everyday." The man was so stunned that he had to go back to his seat and think up another approach.

Fortunately for us we have already learned a better approach. We need to witness by word-of-mouth, but we need to do it in a way that will draw people to the kingdom rather than drive them away. Contact is important; tact is equally important.

We also witness by our lives. Someone has noted that the best sermon preached is the sermon lived. Call the roll of successful pastors and you will find men who have gone about their daily work as living witnesses of what Christ can do in a life.

Now any layman can and should witness by word-of-mouth and his life, but here it is that we go on ahead. For we have an opportunity to witness with our preaching. In fact, preaching which does not bear witness to this Light is no preaching at all.

There was a "way out" country church which had great difficulty in keeping a pastor more than a year. Finally, after many of these one year stints, a man of very modest abilities was called. Everyone thought he might set a record by not even staying a year. Well, the weeks went by; the months went by and three years went by. A fellow pastor decided he would check to see what the secret of his success was; so he journeyed to the village nearest the church, where he approached a storekeeper who was the most ruffled member of the church. He asked the question that was on his mind. The storekeeper replied in a leisurely drawl, "Well, parson, out here we don't really

J. GARLAND TEASLEY,
Pastor First Free Will Baptist Church,
SMITHFIELD, NORTH CAROLINA

(This sermon was preached at the Spiritual Life Conference of the North Carolina Ministerial Association at Saint Mary's Church, New Bern, North Carolina, January 17, and is printed here at the request of the association.)

want no preaching at all and he's the closest we've come to it yet."

Your reaction is the same as mine. We smiled at his answer, but how tragic it is that so much of our preaching is just like that—pretty close to no preaching at all. We have all heard of those preachers (certainly none of us would dare do it) who get upset with someone in their congregation and hide behind the pulpit to "let 'em have it" and then have the audacity to say it was bearing witness to the Light. How cowardly! How utterly foolish!

Our abilities vary. Some of you are able to stand here and be eloquent; some of us cannot. But there is never any excuse under the sun for us to preach when we are not motivated by love for our people; and contrary to what we may think, this kind of preaching can be preaching of thorough scholarship. There are times when our people need to be reminded of their sins, but even then it should be because we love them and we should let them know of the Light which can guide them to better living.

We are not to bear witness of our own ideas, though we cannot completely divorce them from our preaching; nor of the great theologians, though we need to know more of them; nor of the major ideologies, though we should be aware of these; nor of the aged philosophies, though a lesson in them would strengthen our faith; but of the light, Jesus Christ, who said "I am the way, the truth, and the life . . ." and about whom John wrote, ". . . as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, . . ." (John 1:12).

CRYING IN THE WILDERNESS

Our text also lays before us the fact that this successful preacher was the voice of one crying in the wilderness, which means that he spoke with urgency. And this just may present a puzzle to us, for we have learned that the work of the church is slow. In fact, sometimes we have to have the perspective of several years to see that we have accomplished anything at all. It is slow, so slow sometimes that we feel like "clawing the walls" at so little progress. For many of us several years as a pastor have been a lesson in patience.

So how do we fit this message of urgency in with the knowledge that the work of the church is slow. Are we not confronted with a paradox? Not really.

THE CHURCH - WORLD-WIDE

New Film Called 'Missions Spectacular'

World Vision's new movie "So Little Time," just completed for banner premieres throughout 1964, has been called a "missions spectacular" by viewers at sneak preview showings.

Featured throughout the 90-minute film are the varied ministries of World Vision and the strategic role of Dr. Bob Pierce, its president. The film chronicles the historic Pastors' Conferences introduced by World Vision a decade ago . . . takes the viewer inside several large-scale evangelistic crusades in key cities of the globe . . . offers glimpses of tender medical care in many countries and rushes to the scenes of disaster where emergency funds and aid are distributed.

The film also features a series of unusual shots unique in missionary films. One sequence shows the birth of a volcano—Mt. Batur in Indonesia, the destruction it caused and the distribution of relief goods to unfortunate people. The film offers an on-the-spot view of a weird "Dance of the Demons"—a heathen rite obviously controlled by unseen powers of darkness. Presented also are journeys with Bob Pierce along the eight blocks of indescribable filth and sorrow inside Hong Kong's lawless "Old Walled City" . . . scenes of lepers in Formosa . . . of happy orphans in Korea enjoying the loving care of Christian men and women.

Closing scenes capture on film the World Vision Korean Orphan Choir, those 34 tiny songsters who last year traveled around the world singing in person for an estimated 450,000 people and for millions more through television and radio outlets.

"So Little Time" is for World Vision unprecedented in size and scope. It provides a history of missionary work mainly in Asia during the past decade, in addition to shots of the most recent victories and heartaches in the progress of missions.

Following the premieres, the new film will join World Vision's library of seven missionary films which are sent free (with a small service charge) to any group promising to take an offering for their own missionary interests abroad. "So Little Time" is a Westminster Films production.

More Liberal Attitude In Spain

World Gospel Crusades of Los Angeles, California, has recently been informed by Ruben Gil, its agent in Spain, that the government of Spain has officially approved three of its Light of Life Bible correspondence courses for publication and circulation in Spain.

"This action," states Rev. C. Mervin Russell, Executive Vice-President of World Gospel Crusades, "is most significant to all evangelicals in Spain. It represents further substantiation on the part of the Spanish government of its good faith in announcing several months ago its policy of a more liberal attitude toward Protestants in this Catholic dominated country. This action follows only a few months previous action by the government approving the publication of nine evangelical books. The Bible correspondence work may now be brought up from the "underground and an aggressive campaign for students may be launched."

World Gospel Crusades has enlisted some twenty thousand students in Spain under the most adverse government restrictions. This is considered phenomenal in view of the report that the Roman Catholic church has enlisted only nine thousand students in a church sponsored correspondence course. Emergency funds are being rushed to Spain by W.G.C. to step up efforts in view of the recent government approval.

Oswald's Child Was Secretly Baptized

Dallas (EP)—Mrs. Lee Harvey Oswald, wife of President Kennedy's accused assassin, obtained a secret baptism for her daughter last year because she feared her husband's reaction, it was reported here.

June, the 23-month-old daughter, was baptized here on Oct. 16, 1962, by Father Dimitri of the St. Seraphim Eastern Orthodox Church, it was learned.

Father Dimitri said a woman he declined to identify requested the secret baptism and accompanied the mother and daughter to the church. He said Mrs. Oswald made remarks indicating her husband "would have objected violently" to the baptism.

Marina, the alleged assassin's pretty 22-year-old wife, was raised in Russia by a grandmother who was a devout member of the Eastern Orthodox Church. Her husband has been described as an adherent of Marxism and a religious skeptic.

Agency Says Condition of Jews In U. S. S. R. Worsens

New York (EP)—Conditions for the 3,000,000 Jews inside the Soviet Union "appear to have become worse" as they continue to be made the scapegoat for the country's economic difficulties.

This observation was made here in a statement issued by the American Jewish Committee.

The statement, which embodied a special resolution adopted by the Committee, urged that the Soviet Union uphold its laws and treat its Jewish population on a basis of equality.

The Committee called upon Soviet authorities to:

1. Permit Jewish religious practices and without discrimination;
2. Make possible the free development of Jewish cultural institutions;
3. Allow Jewish education to develop freely; and
4. Vigorously combat anti-Semitism in all its forms.

An example of the "scapegoat" techniques employed against Jews in Russia was cited by the Committee.

According to its statement, a recent editorial in Izvestia, the official Soviet news organ, called for a "show trial" which the Committee said "would place responsibility for general economic inefficiency and corruption on Soviet Jews" and "aggravate anti-Jewish bias among the masses of the Soviet peoples."

Aside from this, the Committee said, anti-Semitic practice in the Soviet Union has resulted in further restrictions on Jewish religion, education and culture.

Information About Cragmont Assembly

Co-Manager for 1964

Cragmont Assembly is located about one-half mile outside the city limits of Black Mountain, North Carolina, to the north. By the nearest access road, it is about one and a half miles from the center of Black Mountain. The institution is owned and operated by the four statewide conventions of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina: the State Convention of Churches, the State Sunday School Convention, the State Woman's Auxiliary Convention, and the Free Will Baptist League Convention. The assembly is incorporated under a charter granted by the State of North Carolina. Each sponsoring convention elects three members of a general stockholders' committee, which meets annually to set up policies and select a board of five members to have supervision over the institution. The board of directors for 1964 are the Rev. Walter Reynolds, chairman; Mr. Fountain Taylor, vice-chairman; Mrs. J. C. Moye, secretary; Mrs. C. F. Bowen, assistant secretary; and the Rev. C. J. Harris. Employed by the board for special duties for the year are Mrs. Fountain Taylor, treasurer; the Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Ballard, co-managers, with Mrs. Ballard acting as the official hostess at the institution; and the Rev. Wayne West, director of recreation and field representative.

The four ownership bodies are sponsors for the various conferences and camps held at Cragmont during the summer.

The Free Will Baptist League Convention is the only one of the four which "moved" to Cragmont when the institution was opened. This convention had for several years sponsored an annual camp for young people, using the facilities of Camp Leach on the Pamlico River in Beaufort County for several years, and facilities at Blue Ridge Assembly, Black Mountain, the year before Cragmont was purchased. Cragmont became the permanent home of the Free Will Baptist League Camp the year after it was purchased in 1946. However, in the early fifties the Free Will Baptist League Convention suffered a recession in its activities, and the camp program was suspended for a few seasons. The camp was reestablished in 1957 and has been held annually ever since with increasing attendance and interest. The 1963 camp was considered one of the best in recent years.

The Woman's Auxiliary Convention organized their annual Cragmont Woman's Conference the first year of Cragmont operations, and the conference has been held annually ever since. The conferences were directed by Mrs. L. E. Ballard until 1961. Since then Mrs. Carl Dudley has been the director. Every session of this conference has been well attended, and women from all parts of the state have very precious memories of their experiences at Cragmont. In 1963, the Woman's Auxiliary Convention began sponsoring a conference for young people through their youth department, known as the Youth Frontier Conference. This conference was well attended for its first session, which was directed by the Rev. Wayne West.

In 1953, after the Free Will Baptist League Convention abandoned plans for a camp at Cragmont, the State Sunday School Convention made the conducting of conferences at Cragmont a part of the work of its newly established field work department. The convention-sponsored General Youth Conference was established the week after the first Sunday in June in 1953, and has continued annually ever since. The same year, another conference was held in August. It was first called the Second General Youth Conference, and was held the first year because many young people couldn't go to the June conference. Interest justified making the conference an annual event, and it has continued to meet the week after the first Sunday in August. The name was changed in 1959 to Young People's Bible Conference. Over the years the Sunday School Convention has also sponsored a number of special conferences for young people and Sunday school workers from stated areas, as the Piedmont Youth and Sunday School Conference (1958-1961), and the Albemarle Youth Conference (1959-1962). The Sunday School Convention conferences were under the direction of the Rev. L. E. Ballard, as a part of his duties as promotional secretary for the convention, until 1960. Since then a director for each conference has been designated by the executive board of the convention to work cooperatively with the promotional secretary. The Rev. C. H. Overman and the Rev. Earl Glenn directed the two conferences sponsored by the Sunday School Convention in 1963.

The State Convention of Churches as such has not sponsored conferences at Cragmont. However, the State Ministerial Association, an affiliate of the convention, has been holding its annual meeting and retreat at the assembly for several years, and the event is something the ministers look forward to from year to year. At times, a special director has been named for the week, but most of the time the president of the association has directed the week's activities. At present, the Rev. David W. Hansley is president. For three years the mission board of the State Convention sponsored mission conferences at Cragmont.

A "Family Week" is sponsored by the institution annually, under direction of Mr. Fountain Taylor, the final week of the season in August. It is open to individuals and church or family groups who wish to combine a visit to Cragmont with a few days vacation in the mountains.

The following conferences and camps have been scheduled for this summer:

June 15-20: General Youth Conference. Write the Rev. L. E. Ballard, 1225 South Washington Street, Greenville, North Carolina, for information.

June 22-27: Ministerial Association Retreat. Write the Rev. Sheldon Howard, Walstonburg, North Carolina, for information.

June 29-July 4: Free Will Baptist League Camp. Write the Rev. Norman Ard, Route 1, Ayden, North Carolina, for information.

July 6-11: Youth Frontier Conference. Write Mrs. David Hansley, Kenly, North Carolina, for information.

August 3-8: Young People's Bible Conference. Write the Rev. L. E. Ballard (address above) for information.

August 17-22: Woman's Auxiliary Conference. Write Mrs. Carl Dudley, Fuquay, North Carolina, for information.

August 24-29: Family Week. Write Mr. Fountain Taylor, Richlands, North Carolina, for information.

Fifty Years of Service Honored

On Sunday, February 2, Mr. George L. Rouse of Winterville, North Carolina, was honored for fifty years of service as secretary-treasurer of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Sunday School in a brief service during the general assembly of the Sunday school. He is shown above receiving a valentine made of styrofoam sprayed with gold paint and of red cardboard which was decorated with fifty cent pieces from Superintendent Clyde Hines.

Although Mr. Rouse is a member of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church near Winterville, he has been a faithful member of the Sunday school at Winterville and has attended worship services on the Sundays that Rose Hill did not have services. Shortly after the Winterville church was organized (1905), he began attending Sunday school there; and in 1914 he became secretary-treasurer. At that time the Rev. J. E. Sawyer was pastoring the church.

(See sonnet, "On Fifty Years of Service," elsewhere in this issue.)

Pensacola, Fla., Church to Conduct Weekend Revival

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Pensacola, Florida, has scheduled a weekend revival for February 14-16, with the Rev. Arnold Woodlief as the evangelist.

Services will begin each evening at seven. On Sunday the usual Sunday school will be held at 10 a. m., followed with the worship service at eleven. At 6 p. m., the leagues will convene, followed by the closing service of this revival.

The pastor, the Rev. L. V. Pinson, extends a cordial invitation for everyone to come and hear this spirit-filled man of God.

1963 Proved Successful For Hugo Church

The members of Hugo Free Will Baptist Church near Grifton, North Carolina, join together in giving thanks to the Lord for His wonderful blessings during the year 1963. Under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Willis, the overall project for the year was the improvement of the home church.

Hugo church was organized in 1896 and a small building was erected on a one-half acre tract of land. The Elder E. T. Phillips was the first pastor, and his first sermon was based on the Scripture, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the LORD" (Psalm 122:1).

In 1903 the membership had grown to 45. The small structure that was built in 1896 was used without change until 1928. At this time, with a membership of 110, the old building was almost completely rebuilt and doubled in size. Then in 1947, six Sunday school rooms were added, the chapel enlarged, and the entire building bricked.

In 1963, with a membership of 165, the face of Hugo church changed again. More land was purchased, the roof was changed from a flat roof to an "A" roof which improved the appearance, the walls of the chapel were repainted, the floor refinished, the wainscoting was replaced, the pews refinished, and a new carpet put down. This work was not done by any one group. But all the organizations of the church pitched in and the work was easily accomplished. The Men's Class, made possible the refinishing of the pews; the Ethel Whaley Circle gave the carpet; the Ada Phillips Circle paid for the wainscoting and refinishing the floor; the woman's auxiliary sponsored the painting which was done by the members; and the roof was sponsored by the entire church membership. The grounds of this dedicated place of God are being kept by the YFA as a yearly project.

Mrs. Frances Dudley, church reporter, makes the following statement: "In 1964, with the continued blessing of the Lord, we hope to make more improvements in our Sunday school rooms and complete the restrooms which have been started. We feel that we have gained much by working and fellowshiping together here at Hugo. Without this cooperation these improvements could not have been made. We pray that through our improvements our church will be a way station to Christ for the lost of the community, and that all the members will be drawn closer to Him who gave us everything. We owe a great deal to our beloved pastor, the Rev. W. H. Willis.

"Our services are as follows: Sunday school each Sunday at 10 a. m., morning worship each second and fourth Sundays at 11 a. m., and evening services each second and fourth Sundays at 7 p. m. All who can and will are invited to come and worship with us, and if you do not have a church of your own, come and join us."

Bethany to Observe College Day

Bethany Free Will Baptist Church near Winterville, North Carolina, will observe Sunday, February 16, as Mount Olive College Day, the Rev. E. C. Morris, pastor, has announced. President W. Burkette Raper will speak at the morning worship service.

He Had to Leave It

■ A RICH MAN died. Success had crowned his unwearied efforts, and it was well known that a large fortune was the result of a life spent in the accumulation of earthly goods. He died in the morning, soon after the sun had risen, and all through the day that followed, men were commenting on the event: "He died rich." "He amassed a handsome fortune." "He was successful in business." "He left a large property," said one, who was himself increased in goods. The reply of a poor man standing near, yet one rich in faith, seemed for the instant to startle him out of his own worldly infatuation, "Yes, he had to!"

Men may heap to themselves the wealth of worlds, and gather about them all earthly riches, but they must all come shoulder to shoulder in the march of life; lay down their armor, their burdens, and their treasures at the tomb's door, and together enter in to explore the mysteries of that unseen state, within whose dark shadows so many have before entered them.

There is but one thing a man can carry with him through the darkness of death. A hope of heaven through the atoning blood of Jesus is the priceless treasure of which the grave cannot rob the soul, for it is not of the earth, earthly, but a heavenly inheritance.—Sel.

Armstrong to Conduct Weekend Revival

The Rev. Crafus Armstrong will be the guest minister for a weekend revival at Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, Concord, North Carolina. Services will begin Wednesday evening, February 12 and will continue through Sunday evening, February 16.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services which will begin each evening at seven o'clock.

Gum Swamp Church to Observe World Day of Prayer

Friday, February 14, at 7:30 p. m., Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Greenville, North Carolina, will observe World Day of Prayer.

The World Day of Prayer is observed annually by churches throughout the world. "My Disciples" is the theme for the observances this year. Emphasis is placed on prayer for Christians to be faithful and effective in their witness for Christ.

THE LORD IS MY HELPER

LILLIAN L. CHURCH

Be near us, Lord, when we awake,
And bless us all, for Thy name's sake.
Keep us safe through day and night,
Help each one to do the right.

Be with us in the afternoon,
Keep our hearts with thine in tune.
And when the evening shadows fall,
Still be to us our "All in All."
When nighttime comes, and we fall asleep,
May angels o'er us their watch keep.

So lead us, Father, day by day,
That we may never from Thee stray.
May each of us at set of sun,
Hear Thee whisper, "Child, well done."

OBITUARIES

MRS. TENELLA CLEVELAND

Mrs. Tenella Cleveland, usually known by everyone as "Aunt Tenella," passed away after a long illness on January 16, 1964. We bow in humble submission to God's will who does all things well. Aunt Tenella was born October 5, 1874, which made her stay on earth 89 years, three months, and eleven days. She joined the Bellview Free Will Baptist Church of Colquitt, Georgia, in 1905; and there she taught a Sunday school class for 50 years. Her health failed her several years ago, which made it impossible for her to attend church as often as she wanted to; however, she went as often as she was able. When she could not attend she always sent an offering to help carry on the work of the church.

Aunt Tenella was my mother's sister, and had lived with me for the past 17 years. She was married to Mr. J. D. Cleveland. They did not have any children; however, Mr. Cleveland had one son by a previous marriage. Both husband and son preceded her in death. She has a host of relatives and friends who mourn her passing.

It is believed that she was the first subscriber of The Free Will Baptist from the Martin Association of Georgia. She was also a member of the first woman's auxiliary of the Martin Association. We are very proud of her, and we know that Jesus is too.

CREATES GOOD WILL

The good will created by advertising is an intangible asset that is just as valuable to a merchant as to the manufacturer of any of the thousands of things that have made fortunes for their owners because they have been well advertised. It is often hard for a merchant to realize that advertising has an effect, even if all the people in the community know already that he is in business, and that he wants them to buy what he has to sell.

This fact, however, does not alter the truth established by the experience of many business men, that advertising, like the truth, if stuck to, pays.—Select-ed.

Attention Youth Chairmen of the Western Conference!

Time is drawing near for the declamation and essay contests sponsored by the North Carolina Woman's Auxiliary Convention. Please urge the members of your YFA and AFC to have their declamations and essays ready to read or recite at a later date. Contest rules are found in the YFA and AFC program books. Time and place for the contests will be announced in The Free Will Baptist at a later date.

Mrs. R. H. Weaver
District Youth Chairman

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Mt. Zion Free Will Baptist Church held its January meeting in the home of Mrs. Henry L. Johnson with 14 members present.

The meeting opened with the group's singing "Won't It Be Wonderful," with the Scripture being taken from Mark 6:1-6. Mrs. James Crocker led the opening prayer.

The program chairman, Mrs. Lizzie Godwin, introduced the program, "Beginning with the Master Builder." Those participating were Mrs. Nadine Crocker, Mrs. Eloise Sutton, Mrs. Lois Boykin, Mrs. Crema Johnson, Mrs. Martha Boswell, Mrs. Alonia Narron, and Mrs. Ruby Johnson.

During the business session new officers for 1964 were elected.

The group prayed together the Lord's Prayer as their benediction.

Bear Grass, N. C.—The Rose of Sharon Woman's Auxiliary held its January meeting in the home of Mrs. Ophelia Taylor with 12 members present. The new officers for 1964 are as follows: president, Mrs. Rebecca Wynne; vice-president, Mrs. Peggy Bailey; secretary, Mrs. Jeannette Wynne; treasurer, Mrs. Selma Cowan; program chairman, Mrs. Annie Cratt; card chairman, Mrs. Fessie Bailey.

The group sang "Standing in the Need of Prayer"; then Mrs. Peggy Bailey read the Scripture text from Mark 6:1-6. Mrs. Annie Cratt introduced the lesson, after which she asked Bible questions.

Two new members, Mrs. Mertie Coltrain and Mrs. Faye Williams, joined the auxiliary.

Mrs. Annie Cratt dismissed the group, after which refreshments were served.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. J. W. Brickhouse for its January meeting.

The president opened the meeting, and the group sang "Build Your Faith on the Lord Jesus Christ." Mrs. Marvin Sawyer prayed the opening prayer. The Scripture was read from Mark 6:1-6.

After the program introduction was given the following took part in the discussion: Mrs. Robert Rollins, Mrs. Marvin Sawyer, Mrs. Madge Van Horn, Mrs. Bernice Maitland, and Mrs. Betty Brickhouse.

During the business session the roll was called with 11 members and four visitors present.

The meeting closed with the group's singing "Blest Be the Tie." The Rev. Robert Rollins pronounced the benediction, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Bailey, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Rock Springs Free Will Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting at the home of the pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. R. N. Hinnant. The president, Mrs. Verma Edwards, introduced the new program books and read the Scripture. Mrs. Hinnant prayed the opening prayer.

The roll was called and the minutes were read. There were 12 members and one visitor present.

During the business session there was a discussion on having a study course on the manual with Mt. Zion church, to be taught by Mrs. Hinnant.

Before the program began, Mr. and Mrs. Hinnant rendered a song, after which the group sang "If Jesus Goes with Me." Those participating on the program were Mrs. Leona Bissette, Mrs. Mary Lamm, Mrs. Hinnant, Mrs. Myrtle Brown, Mrs. LaRue Manning, and Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Whitley.

After the benediction delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Bailey, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of New Sandy Hill Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. George Wilson on Saturday night, January 11. There were 12 members and two visitors present.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Agnes Wilson, who turned the program over to the program chairman, Mrs. Ineze Bunn. Mrs. Wilson read the Scripture from Mark 6:1-6. Mrs. Charles Morgan led in prayer and Mrs. Carolyn Bissette gave a talk on "Beginning with the Master Builder."

After the business session there was a short Bible quiz which was won by Mrs. Daisy Griffin. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Harold Sherrod.

Mrs. Wilson served delicious refreshments which were enjoyed by everyone.

Ayden, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met for its January meeting in the home of Mrs. Faye Burrough. The president, Mrs. Stella Worthington, called the meeting to order. "Living for Jesus" was sung by the 12 members and three visitors present.

Mrs. Velma McLawhorn led the opening prayer and read the Scripture from Mark 6:1-6.

During the business session the roll was called and various reports were given. A motion was passed to give the mission offering this month to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dennis, which was $5.

Mrs. McLawhorn introduced the program, "Beginning with the Master Builder," and Mrs. Annie Eliza Chappell led the closing prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

LIVING DAY BY DAY

"Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that" (James 4:13-15).

A long time ago, while I was just a boy in grade school, I learned the following poem which has meant a great deal to me down through the years. It will help us to forget the mistakes of our yesterdays, which cannot be recalled or corrected. It will also help to banish the fears of our tomorrows, many of which will never happen. Then we can really live day by day for God and man.

BEGIN AGAIN

Every day a fresh beginning,
Every day is the world made new;
You who are weary of sorrow and sinning,
Here is a beautiful hope for you—
A hope for me and a hope for you.

All the past things are past and over,
The tasks are done and the tears are shed;
Yesterday's errors let yesterday cover;
Yesterday's wounds, which smarted and bled,
Are healed with the healing which night has shed.

Yesterday now is a part of forever,
Bound up in a sheaf, which God holds tight;
With glad days, and sad days, and bad days which never Shall visit us more with their bloom and their blight,
Their fullness of sunshine or sorrowful night.

THE OLD SCHOOL

by the REV. WALTER E. ISENHOUR

I'M from the old school. In those days we had school buildings with just one room for all classes and one teacher. That may seem odd now, and may appear to students of today to have been a great handicap in getting an education. Although I am not wanting the one-room school buildings to return, nor advocating the idea of one teacher for the entire school, yet I am conscious that we have lost some things of great value in our schools across the passing of the years.

In those days we had school books we valued highly. Although I did not study McGuffey's readers, as they were out of use when I entered school, they have never been excelled, to my opinion. It is said that McGuffey's readers did more to moralize and Christianize the United States, outside the Bible, than any other books. They are not found in our schools today. They taught great and wonderful lessons in

Let them go, since we cannot relieve them,

Cannot undo and cannot atone;
God in His mercy, receive, forgive them;
Only the new days are our own,
Today is ours, and today alone.

Here are the skies all burnished brightly,
Here is the spent Earth all reborn,
Here are the tired limbs springing lightly
To face the sun and to share with the morn,
In the chrim of dew and the cool of dawn.

Every day is a fresh beginning;
Listen, my soul, to the glad refrain,
And, spite of old sorrow and older sinning,
And puzzles forecasted and possible pain,
Take heart with the day, and begin again.
—Susan Coolidge.

"Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof" (Matthew 6:34).

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:
"God gave me something very sweet to be mine own this day:
A precious opportunity a word for Christ to say."
—Selected.

truth; and if they could be in our public schools all over the nation now, I think we would make a great step forward in the moralizing and spiritualizing of our children and youth.

In the beginning of my school career we had Holmes' readers, which were fine books. They not only enabled students to read, and read well, but they were likewise moralizing and spiritualizing. They gave us actual facts, or dealt in stories and themes that brought out great and worthwhile lessons. I remember that some of their great, outstanding truths were called "Memory Gems." These we committed to memory. For instance, "There is nothing so kingly as kindness, and nothing so royal as truth." We don't forget those great gems of truth as the years go by. In putting them into practice they have meant much to me and to others.

Then in those far-off school days we had many teachers who were godly, and would begin school each morning by reading the Bible and praying. They greatly influenced their pupils with the fact that Christianity is far above education. They taught great lessons in morals and spiritual uplift. Many of them put God first, and revealed to us that honesty, uprightness, truthfulness, godliness, righteousness, and purity are of priceless value. They taught us the value of noble childhood, manhood, and womanhood. Vulgarity and bad language was disdained. Courtesy, modesty, uprightness and noble living were set before us by precept and example.

We had some real students in those days. They didn't go to school to idle their time away, but to obey the teacher and to learn. I remember one teacher told his school that he had but one rule, and he wrote it on the blackboard in a sentence of two words; namely, "Do right." The most of us tried to live up to that rule. Another teacher emphasized the importance of work, or real study, that we might learn our lessons well and master our books. We were not to cheat, but to get an honest education that would be practical for life.

We would do well today to turn back to some of those far-off school principles which we have remorsefully lost. That which made multitudes of our people noble and great in the schools of the past would undoubtedly have a wholesome effect today. Truth and sound principles never fade away when they are kept before students, along with the salvation of their souls and lives. Thank God for the good things of the old schools.

QUOTES

MORE OF THE CODE OF ETHICS AND MY COMMENTS

MY RELATIONSHIP TO MY DENOMINATION

1. "I will keep myself informed concerning my denomination, by regular attendance at meetings of conferences and conventions, reading periodicals and familiarizing myself with our history, doctrine and polity." As this writer sees the situation, it looks as if every minister would be happy to accept and apply this part of the code, as this will improve a preacher and give him a better understanding of the Original Free Will Baptists.

2. "I will not be unduly critical of my denomination but will cooperate in correcting whatever faults or failures that may occur." Why should I dodge this responsibility? If there is something that is wrong, as a loyal and cooperative minister, I ought to be happy to help make the corrections, but some said "no."

3. "As a pastor I will seek to lead the church (or churches) which I serve to be loyal to the denomination and to cooperate with its program." Why should I not as pastor seek to obey this part of the code? If I did not, I would be very much out of place with a group that did accept and apply the same to their ministerial activities.

4. "I will endeavor to be loyal to my denomination; however, if the time should ever come when I feel it necessary to sever my relationship with the denomination I will surrender my credentials to the proper authorities." I believe in telling and living the truth; and if I should refuse to surrender my credentials to the proper authority, I would be untrue to my promise. When I was ordained and received these credentials, I promised to surrender my papers when called for. Yes, I promised to return the credentials of ordination whenever requested by the proper authority for any cause. If I should refuse to surrender the credentials, delivered to me after being certified as an ordained minister, I would be false in claiming that I was in good standing with the church, the conference, and the denomination. In fact, license and ordination certificates belong to the ordaining council. The very minute that I should be silenced, that very minute the certificate of ordination is no longer mine. It is mine to be used as long as I am recognized in good standing; and should I hold to these papers I am holding property of the conference, and I made a false statement when I received them. My word should be no longer trusted.

We now come to another very important part of the Code of Ethics as prescribed by the Minister's Conference of the Original Free Will Baptist Convention of North Carolina: namely,

MY RELATIONSHIP TO MY BROTHER MINISTER

1. "I will refuse to enter into unfair competition with a brother minister, in order to secure a pulpit or place of distinction." It is hard to believe that any minister of the gospel would be guilty of making an unfair act in order to get the pulpit of another. Yet, I have heard of an instance when a minister offered to serve a church for less money than that which the serving pastor was getting. This code as presented condemns such unfair tactics.

2. "I will refrain from frequent visits to a former field without consulting the present pastor, or if I am called back for a funeral or wedding, I will request that the present pastor be present." This writer believes that this is the way that it should be. This being true, we signed the code.

3. "I will not trouble my successor by meddling in the affairs of the church that I formerly served." It seems hard to think that any minister would go back to a former pastorate and meddle in the affairs. If any member of the church should go to the home or office of his former pastor asking for advice or information, he should give the requested advice as far as possible, without infringing on the manner of the present pastor, unless a point of sacred doctrine of the church and the Bible is in question. Let me illustrate. If a successor should deny the virgin birth or the blood atonement or any other fundamental truth of God's Word, then I would not hesitate to speak out for the truth. This is my personal mind.

4. "I will be courteous to any predecessor of mine when he returns to the field, so long as he does not meddle in affairs." When we leave a pastorate, the business of the church belongs to our successor. We should cease to advise, unless someone comes to us for advice as stated before; but we need to be careful in giving requested advice. Of course, our advice when requested should be based upon the Word of God, and given so that we could refer to it in the name of the Lord.

5. "I will be thoughtful of any retired minister." To the thinking of this scribe, a retired minister, whether by age or affliction, is a man that we who are able to work should be ready and willing and really anxious to help in any way possible. Yet, there is a danger of our forgetting or neglecting to be helpful to the servant of God who has given his life for the cause, but who now has to sit on the sideline and hope for the best. He may become childish and his thinking somewhat impaired, but we should love and help him because he is God's man.

6. "I will show courtesy and respect toward ministers who are my senior in age." It has been a custom in many places and with some people to forget to show proper respect to seniority. In institutions and in labor groups seniority counts for much, but in many places and with many people it has been observed that the minister has a very small place after becoming inactive and is not thought of in many cases. That was very visible fifty years ago, but thoughtfulness of the aged and retired minister is looking upward now through our superannuation activities, thank the Lord. The Code of Ethics as arranged by the North Carolina Free Will Baptists is looking out for the retired minister. But some of us failed to sign the code for some reason, as said before. May we keep going forward. We will learn the reason the code was frowned upon sometime. There is a cause. More later.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Where is Jesus Christ now? I have heard various views as to His whereabouts. Some say here, some say in heaven, and some say that He is now reigning. What does the Bible say?—J. R., Indiana.

ANSWER: Jesus is now in heaven where He will remain throughout this the church age. It is true that He is omnipresent, present everywhere at the same time, since He is the divine essence; but so far as His local abode was concerned before He was incarnated, made flesh, put on the likeness of sinful flesh, born of the virgin Mary, etc., He was in heaven with His heavenly Father. He returned there when He ascended from the Mount of Olives and will stay there until this age on earth, like all preceding ages, becomes so corrupt that God will not allow the human race to continue governing the affairs of men. He will then come and take the church, including both the living saints and all of them that have died and gone on to be in His presence while He finished the Church, and will endow them with glorified bodies like that of His own present glorified body; composed not of flesh and blood but only of flesh and bone. We shall henceforth be with Him and like Him. "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12). Jesus' parting promise to His followers assures this. "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also" (John 14:1-3). "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come Wherefore if they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not. For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (Matthew 24:14, 26, 27). Jesus is not here now in the sense that He was before His ascension. He has left us who are the members of His church, the members of His mystical body, the branches, of which He is the Vine, to win a lost world unto Him, and while being subdued of His enemies to be subduing them.

Jesus in His high priestly prayer indicated where He was to be when He had been crucified, died, was buried, arose, and ascended. "And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are And now come I to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves" (John 17:11, 13).

Jesus told His disciples several times where He was departing to. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I" (John 14:12, 28). "Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more" (John 16:10). (See John 16:7-15.) "A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father" (John 16:16). (See John 14:2 quoted above.)

He made clear what would occupy His time while away. This is revealed in some of the passages above and also in, "But now I go my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Wither goest thou?" (John 16:5). "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world" (John 17:18). "Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me" (John 8:42).

His position or place of authority was also manifested. "Hereafter shall the Son of man sit on the right hand of the power of God" (Luke 22:69). "Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God and your God" (John 20:17).

Cleopas and his companion were told to what place Jesus should go. "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?" (Luke 24:26). (See verses 25-45.)

Stephen saw Jesus in this same locality when he was being stoned to death. "But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God" (Acts 7:55, 56).

Paul also sheds light on His whereabouts as the Holy Spirit guides him in writing the inspired word. "And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory" (1 Timothy 3:16). "And, ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening: knowing that your Master also is in heaven; neither is there respect of persons with him" (Ephesians 6:9). "But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise, Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to bring Christ down from above:)" (Romans 10:6). "And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places" (Ephesians 1:19, 20). "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all" (Colossians 3:1, 11).

(To be continued next week.)

MILLER and SON

OLIVE BISHOP BRANCH

IT had been a busy day in the store. Dean was glad when the last customer left shortly after eight o'clock. Quickly he closed the safe, turned off the lights, and left by the front door. He paused outside to watch the neon sign above the door flash off and on. "Miller's Hardware" it proclaimed to the world. If his father went ahead with his plans, that sign would soon read, "Miller and Son." How could he make his father understand he didn't want to spend his life in a hardware store?

He hadn't meant to eavesdrop this afternoon but his father had been on the phone when he came back from a trip to the bank. "Be sure you have the papers for the partnership finished by next month for Dean's birthday," his father was saying. Then he saw Dean.

"I was going to surprise you, son," he said, as he replaced the phone, "but I guess it won't be a surprise now. I'm making you a full partner in the business."

If his father had expected him to be overwhelmingly pleased, he was disappointed. "Why, Dad, I—I don't know what to say," he stammered. "I just got out of high school and—well, I was counting on going to college."

"Oh, you don't need college for this business," his father laughed. "You know it already. You've worked here ever since you were knee high."

"I don't want you to think I don't appreciate it," Dean said hesitantly, "but ever since I was saved last winter I've felt the Lord wanted me for some kind of Christian service."

"But you can still go to church. I always have. You can't afford to take your religion too seriously."

Dean could see disappointment and resistance in his father's eyes as he went to the front of the store to wait on a customer. There hadn't been time for further conversation all day.

Dean walked past his home, a large two-story house, and then two blocks east, where he stopped in front of a small bungalow. A knock on the door brought a scurry of feet and a slender little girl erupted from the door, her pony tail flying. "You're late tonight," she said, as they started walking back toward the drug store for their nightly coke.

"We had more business than usual tonight, Joyce. I couldn't get away earlier."

Joyce started telling him about her day's activities, but she soon stopped short. "Is something wrong, Dean?"

Dean impatiently brushed back his brown hair. "Everything's wrong."

She walked quietly beside him while he told her of the proposed partnership. "What'll I do?" he asked. "I don't want to hurt my dad or disobey him, but I think he planned all this so I wouldn't leave the hardware business. That's all he lives for."

"We'll have to do a lot of praying about it," Joyce answered. "You must obey the Lord."

They were walking past his home. He stopped and looked at the substantial white house in the early evening twilight. Joyce waited. "Dad's got my life all figured out." Dean seemed to be talking to himself more than to Joyce. "Work in the hardware store, marry a girl like Jane Jones, build a house on the vacant lot next door to where I've always lived, raise a family, go to church on Sunday mornings and sleep through the sermon like he always does. Pretty cut and dried! It wouldn't be such a bad life, I guess, if it were not that the Lord saved me and called me into His service."

"I know what you mean," Joyce said, "but your father just couldn't understand because he doesn't know the Lord as his own Saviour."

Business was brisk the next day but when Dean saw Jim Watson come into the store early in the afternoon, he made a special effort to wait on him. "We've been missing you at church, Jim," Dean said, as he weighed out the nails Jim had ordered. "I hope no one is sick in your family."

Jim looked uncomfortable. "No," he admitted. "I just had so much to do I stayed home to catch up, but I only seem to get farther behind. I—I guess we'll all be back in church Sunday."

"Fine," Dean said, pouring the nails into a bag. "You know the Lord told us not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together."

"I know," Jim nodded. "Thanks for reminding me."

As soon as Jim went out the door, Mr. Miller called his son aside, his eyes dark with anger. "Dean," he ordered in a low tone, so the waiting customers couldn't hear, "don't you ever preach to one of my customers again. It's not good for business."

He turned abruptly, giving Dean no opportunity to answer him. Dean turned to the next customer with a troubled sigh.

Later in the afternoon when business tapered off, Mr. Miller came over to where Dean was rearranging the shelves. "I'm going to give you this evening off," he announced.

"Thanks, Dad. I—"

"You've been sticking too close to business and to church," his father interrupted. "I called Mayor Benton this afternoon and made arrangements for you to go to Centerville tonight with Bob and some friends for an evening of fun."

"But I don't—I mean, Bob and I—"

"You and Bob used to be good friends. I don't know what came over you. It's good business for you to be seen with the mayor's son."

"I don't suppose you would understand," Dean said wearily, "but since I was saved Bob and I don't have anything in common. Some of the things he does—”

“I don’t want to go, Dad.”

I made arrangements for you to go and you’re going,” his father said firmly.

“Yes, Dad,” Dean agreed. His father had always been a stern disciplinarian but he had never known him to be so arbitrary.

Bob Benton picked him up that evening in a car already loaded with the boys who had once been his companions. “Glad to know you had a change of heart,” Bob remarked as he drove off.

“I didn’t,” Dean answered. “Not since the change of heart I had when the Lord saved me.”

Bob laughed. “Then why did you decide to go along tonight?”

“My father got me into this,” Dean answered pleasantly. “It isn’t that I don’t like you boys any more. It’s just that I don’t enjoy doing the things we used to do together.”

“You’re a real square since you got religion,” one of the boys in the back seat remarked.

“I suppose I am according to the old standards. A few months ago I would have thought so, too, I guess, if one of you had changed like I have.”

“Well, let’s have our fun,” Bob said. “Open up the bottles, boys, but the deacon will take lemonade.” They all laughed loudly.

The car was out on the open road now and traveling at a high rate of speed. Bob swerved to pass another car and his car rocked as he brought it back under control.

“Don’t you think you’d better slow down?” Dean asked.

“Chicken!” Bob jeered. “Are you scared to die?”

“No,” Dean answered. “I know I’d go to heaven, but I’m scared for you to die.”

“I won’t stop talking about the Lord,” Dean said, “for I love Him and I’ve been praying that you might know Him too.”

The car slowed down and the brakes squealed. “This is the end of the line for you,” Bob said. “Get out, Dean.”

Dean opened the door and got out. The car went tearing off down the road. Nearly three miles from home, but it was a nice night for a walk!

Dean was surprised to see all the lights on in the house when he turned in at his home. He could see his father pacing up and down in the hall. When he opened the door, his father stared at him as if he were seeing a ghost.

“Dean, it’s not you!”

“Who else, Dad? What’s wrong?”

“But the accident! They said everyone in the car was hurt and in the hospital.”

“What accident?” Dean clutched his father’s arm.

“The mayor just called me. They’re all hurt bad. Speed and drinking, they said. Benton’s going to pick me up and take me with him. But how did you get here?”

“I walked,” Dean said simply. “I told the boys how the Lord had saved me and how I love Him and they needed Him and they put me out of the car about three miles out in the country.”

“What a fool I’ve been!” Mr. Miller exclaimed. “I didn’t need to worry about you. You weren’t missing anything, were you? Innocent boyish fun, I said, and it may cost all of them their lives! What a fool I’ve been!”

A car honked loudly out in front. “That’s Benton now. I mustn’t keep him waiting. I’ll go along and help what I can.” Relief shone in his eyes as he opened the door. “You’d better get the right college picked out, son. I guess I’m not too old to run the Miller and Son Hardware Store.”

The door slammed shut. Dean stood there until he heard the car drive off and then he turned to the telephone to call Joyce. The Lord had worked out one problem and surely He could work out the rest, even to saving his father and the five boys in the hospital.

Christian Action League Elects Director

James C. Furman of Columbia, South Carolina, and Nashville, Tennessee, has been elected as the Associate Director of the Christian Action League of North Carolina. He will spend his time as a representative of the League’s work by speaking in high schools and churches throughout the State. Mr. Furman was elected at the Executive Committee meeting in Greensboro on Thursday, January 30.

Mr. Furman is a native of South Carolina and a graduate of Clemson College. After spending several years in the motion picture industry as an advertising and public relations man, he enrolled and graduated from Southern Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky. He lived and worked in Tennessee for sixteen years as Executive Secretary of the United Tennessee League. His family resides in Nashville and will remain there. His work with the League will be on a part-time basis. Mr. Furman has recently completed the Chaplain’s intern course at the South Carolina Baptist Hospital in Columbia.

In connection with the employment of Mr. Furman, the League announces a campaign for financial support. A “1000-100 Club” has been formed to seek out $100.00 gifts from 1,000 interested individuals, groups, clubs or organizations across the State. John Borchert of Charlotte, acting publicity director for the League, announced that letters are being mailed to many individuals across the State setting forth the aims and objectives of the League and its plans in the “1000-100” effort.

The Reverend D. P. McFarland of Raleigh is Executive Director of the League.

ON FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

When to the sessions of corporate thought

We summon up remembrance of things past,

We do not fail to note the things you’ve wrought,

Or pass unnoticed faithful service fast; It is the goal of every seeking steward, Whose aim it is to follow Jesus’ way, To hear Him say, because he has gone forward,

“Well done; enter thou into thy joy today”;

Because you’ve given to us faithful service

In keeping accurate records of our school,

Expending honestly funds without price, And even telling when the weather’s cool

For these short fifty years or more, dear friend,

Our many thanks to you will have no end.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for February 23

Simon and the Repentant Woman

LESSON TEXT: Luke 7:36-50

MEMORY VERSE: Ephesians 1:7, 8

I. INTRODUCTION

The lesson today is a study of two personalities. One of them is a truly repentant woman, and the other is a self-righteous Pharisee.

The scene opens with Jesus' going to the Pharisee's home as a guest. Shortly after they started eating, a sinful woman entered the house and stood behind Jesus weeping. Then she began to wash His feet with her tears and to wipe them with her hair. She also kissed them and anointed them with an expensive ointment.

When Simon, the Pharisee, saw what the woman did, he was very critical. He said that if Jesus were a prophet He would have known that the woman was a sinner. Of course, Jesus had an answer for him. He first spoke a parable unto him, and then He applied it to Simon. He pointed out to him his negligence in failing to extend to Him the normal courtesies; whereas, the woman had come into his own house and had done the things that the host had failed to do.

The scene in the house of Simon is very full of beauty as it reveals our Lord as He dealt with two entirely different personalities. The Pharisee was cold and dispassionate, and he was satisfied with his own integrity. The woman, conscious of her sinful past, rejoiced in her forgiveness and poured on Jesus the evidences of her love. The Lord himself contrasted the two in the most striking way, revealing the value of moral cleansing as leading to the victory of love.

—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.)

II. HINTS THAT HELP

Luke 7:36. This Pharisee was apparently impressed with what he had heard about Jesus and probably invited Him to his home to see for himself. Since Jesus came as a guest, why didn't the Pharisee show him the customary tokens of respect and affection?

Luke 7:37. Some suppose that this was Mary Magdalene, but there is not one bit of Scriptural evidence for this.

Luke 7:38. This poor girl wept in deep humiliation for her sins. She poured out her heart and her tears upon Him.

Luke 7:39. The Pharisee kept his thoughts to himself, not knowing that Jesus knew them. The Pharisee would not have allowed such a woman to touch him, and he thought Jesus should not.

Luke 7:40. The Pharisee doubted that Jesus was a prophet, but Jesus showed that He was more than a prophet. He was the prophet, the divine Messiah predicted in the Old Testament.

Luke 7:41. It is very clear that in this parable the creditor is God and the debtors are the Pharisee and the woman.

Luke 7:42. The Pharisee was forced to admit that the woman's sins were the greater; therefore she should show the most love. Good reasoning.

Luke 7:43. Many debtors are more hateful than grateful. Debtors should make every effort to satisfy their creditors. Honesty requires it.

Luke 7:44. Sin is a debt, and sinners are debtors to God almighty. Even though the woman could not pay her debt, she did what she could to show her gratitude.

Luke 7:45. Whether from contempt or forgetfulness, the Pharisee was sadly deficient in common courtesy.

Luke 7:46. Ingratitude is one of the most hurtful of sins.

Luke 7:47. Perhaps the woman was discouraged by the Pharisee's attitude.

Luke 7:49. "Who is this?" was somewhat like "Who does He think He is?"

Luke 7:50. "Go in peace" was as if Jesus had said, "May goodness, mercy, and peace continue to follow thee."

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. While the Church age today is not synonymous with the age of the Law in which Jesus Christ ministered, nevertheless salvation in all ages has been by grace through faith. Christ's words to the notorious woman, "Thy faith hath saved thee" (Luke 7:50), are perfectly appropriate to any of God's saints today.

During His earthly ministry Christ was presenting Himself to Israel as Messiah. He was offering to Israel the kingdom which is described in its many aspects in the Old Testament. He adequately proved His Messiahship both by His authoritative words and His miraculous works. He was able to forgive sins, as He demonstrated. Today the words and works of Christ continue to challenge the unbelieving sinner. Like the bulk of Israel in His earthly ministry, the majority of people today go about from day to day in spiritual darkness although confronted repeatedly by the irrefutable evidence of His Identity. The word of God presents Him as the sufficient Saviour for all who will exercise the personal responsibility of trusting in Him.

Let us not make the mistake that Simon the Pharisee made. While he showed Christ some outward respect, inviting Him to dinner, yet Simon remained unconverted. Simon remained woefully ignorant of the true Person of Christ. Moreover Simon's heart apparently revolted at the sight of a poor contrite sinner washing Christ's feet. Simon's great defect was what all unsaved men lack—true heart-love for Christ. Outward civility is never a substitution.

—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

2. In this day of great road-building activity, motorists are often confronted with a sign such as this: "Road closed, Detour," and an arrow directs the motorist to a rut-filled third-class road that is rapidly deteriorating because of the heavy traffic on it. One motorist approached the sign and said to himself, "The road ahead is beautifully paved and I can see for miles and miles. I think I will continue to drive on this road. It is so smooth that I can get to my destination much faster." And it was true that the road was smooth, but twenty miles farther on it ended in the middle of a field. A bridge just beyond was not completed. There was nothing to do but come all the way back, for there was no other way to get off the expressway. A second motorist came to the sign and quietly obeyed. He followed the detour and was soon on his way.

How like the first motorist was Simon the Pharisee! He was so self-righteous. He had kept all the minute details of the law as every good Pharisee must do. He was so sure he was on the right road to eternal life that he could not concede the possibility of a mistake. The sinful woman, however, recognized her own unworthiness. She heeded the sign and turned down repentance road. Jesus made it very plain that the woman was to be commended for her repentant attitude, and He forgave her.

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

3. "During the Revolutionary War there lived in Pennsylvania a pastor by the name of Peter Miller. Although Miller was greatly loved by nearly everyone in the community, there was one man who lived near the church who hated him and had earned an unenviable reputation for his abuse on the minister. This man was not only a hater of the church, but it also turned out that he was a traitor to his country, and was convicted of treason and sentenced to death.

"The trial was conducted in Philadelphia, and no sooner did Miller hear of it than he set out on foot to visit General Washington and intercede for the man's life. But Washington told him, 'I'm sorry that I cannot grant your request for your friend.'

"'Friend!' Miller cried. 'Why, that man is the worst enemy I have in the world!'

"'What?' the general exclaimed in surprise. 'Have you walked sixty miles to save the life of an enemy? That, in my judgment, puts the matter in a different light. I will grant him a pardon for your sake.'

"The pardon was made out and signed by General Washington, and Miller proceeded at once on foot to a place fifteen miles distant where the execution was scheduled to take place that afternoon. He arrived just as the man was being carried to the scaffold, and when he saw Miller hurrying toward the place he remarked, 'There is old Peter Miller. He has walked all the way from Ephrata to have his revenge gratified today by seeing me hung.' But scarcely had he spoken the words when Miller pushed his way through to the condemned man and handed him the pardon that saved his life."—Bible School Journal.

There is a most important application we can make to our own lives as we study this lesson—as God forgives us, we are to forgive one another. Much of today's strife and hatred exists be-

by Robert S. Wilson

Both the kitchen steward and the cook objected to Master Tad bringing into the kitchen of the White House "such squads of poor, dirty urchins of the street to be fed." At last they decided that Mrs. Lincoln must be told.

Tad became angry at this, and ran upstairs to seek his mother and tell her all about it. When he could not find his mother he started out in search of his father, who was busy in his duties as President of the U. S.

The boys whom Tad wanted to feed waited patiently at a lower door, for Peter, the steward, had refused to let Tad bring them inside.

His father was spied crossing the yard with head bowed and eyes to the ground as he talked earnestly with Mr. Seward one of the Cabinet officers. They were on their way to the State Department offices. Tad wasted no time in calling out to his father, "Father, Father, can't I bring those poor, cold, hungry boys home with me whenever I want to? Isn't it our kitchen?"

By this time, Tad had his father by the hand. Abraham Lincoln had to forget the affairs of state for a moment to listen to the appeal of his son.

"Can't I give them a good, warm dinner today? They're just as hungry as bears, and two of 'em are the boys of a soldier, too! Father, I'm going to discharge Peter this minute, if he doesn't get out the meat and chicken and pies and all the things we had left yesterday. Isn't it our kitchen, Father?"

By this time Secretary Seward was shaking with laughter, amused at the earnest appeals of the President's boy who wanted to feed some of the hungry boys he met on the street. Mr. Lincoln turned to the Secretary, with a twinkle in his eye and said, "Seward, advise me. This case requires diplomacy."

Mr. Seward patted Tad on the back and said he must be careful not to run the government into debt. The President took Tad's little hands in his own cause men are not willing to forgive. Perhaps the above illustration will help us to more completely understand what forgiveness means.

big ones and with a very droll smile told him to "run along and feed the boys." Then he added, "Tell Peter that you are really required to obey the Bible by getting in the maimed and the blind, and that he must be a better Christian than he is."

Later, Mr. Seward passed through the yard to a Cabinet meeting and saw no less than ten small boys sitting with Tad on the lower steps cracking nuts and having a "State Dinner."

Could you blame a boy who lived in the White House of his country for wanting to share some of the good things with other boys?—S. S. Herald.

founded in 1906, aims at combatting bigotry, protecting the civil and religious rights of Jews, and advancing the cause of human rights everywhere.

Kennedy School of Religion To Be Conducted by Laity

Lexington, Mass. (EP)—A unique Roman Catholic School of Religion to be staffed by lay men and women here will be named in honor of the late President John F. Kennedy.

The 16-room school now under construction will serve as a catechetical center for St. Brigid Church, a colonial-type edifice which faces the historic Lexington Green.

Msgr. George W. Casey is pastor of St. Brigid's and planner of the project which, he predicts will "be an interesting experiment for the religious sociologists to observe."

(In August, 1961, Msgr. Casey proposed in The Pilot, Boston archdiocesan newsweekly, that the parochial elementary school system be abandoned in favor of a "more productive" investment in secondary higher education. The proposal touched off a nationwide discussion on his stand.)

According to Msgr. Casey, the President John F. Kennedy School of Religion will be primarily a layman's operation. The teaching staff—over 150—will be overwhelmingly lay men and women. The faculty board will have a lay chairman with "unquestioned authority." The overall operation of the school will be under the supervision of the parish priests, with "executive management" in the hands of some nuns, he said.

We preach with urgency because man needs to be saved from his sins now; man needs to be saved from himself now. St. Augustine prayed to God, "Our souls are restless 'til they rest in thee." That is why we preach this way—knowing that man outside of God is restless and he needs rest now. We preach this way while cognizant of the fact that we will reap results in due season if we faint not.

CALLED OF GOD

Underlying these two previous facts about this preacher is a third, and it actually is a foundation upon which the first two rest; namely, that he was "a man sent from God." This means that he was divinely appointed, or called to his work, if you please.

I'll not subject you to those stories often told of the man who saw the G. P. in the sky one day and interpreted it to mean Go Preach. The call for some of you may have been just that vivid. It was loud and clear, but for others it was simply an abiding conviction that this was right for you to do.

The truth is that we cannot do this work unless we are men sent from God. We cannot begin to stand the pressures and temptations of the ministry unless God himself has set us apart.

A young man came to me recently and indicated that he might like to enter the ministry. He seemed to want me to tell him I thought he should. I was pleased and in his case I feel that he could be a real asset to the church; but I told him, "Don't go into the ministry if you can keep from it." It is my contention, and I am sure you share it with me, that if a man is called to the ministry no power on earth can keep him from it. On the other hand, if God has not called him, he will be a casualty and we do not need any of those.

When we are called we are called to something special. We believe in the priesthood of all believers. We know that the 16th century church had corrupted this; but let us not forget, gentlemen, that we are different. Our ordination says to the world that we are set apart for a special work.

I will admit that there is nothing we do that a layman could not do, but it takes a minister, full time and fully trained, to preach the gospel; to administer the Sacraments; to counsel with the troubled; and to enter into an involvement-in-depth with the joys, sorrows, trials and rewards of those whom God has entrusted to him. I do not say laymen cannot do it. I say they do not do it. In a real sense, we are parish priests.

This call will issue in preparation. As one gets older he finds himself more tolerant of most things. But there is one thing that I find myself getting less tolerant of and that is this idea that a man can do the work of the ministry without being trained for it in any way. We ourselves do not wish to have a gall bladder operation, get a haircut, or have our car worked on by someone not trained for the task; but we are willing to ask the Conference to ordain us when we do not have any training and no plans to get any.

I feel strongly that this same God who called us will tell us, if we listen, to be prepared and will then make a way for us to get this preparation. This becomes doubly important when we note that the average education of "Mr. man in the pew" goes higher each year.

One of our pastors, and he is here today, told me recently that he was conversing with a young boy from one of our churches who feels called to preach. He asked him where he was going to study for the ministry. The boy replied that he was going to the school of kneeology. Well, all of us know that his spiritual life is important. A well-educated man who has a cold spiritual life will not get far, but we will do such a young man and our church a disservice if we ordain him for he will be ill equipped to fulfill his calling in the 20th century—or the 21st.

Therefore, led I pray by the Holy Spirit, I submit unto you that I would like to see the Free Will Baptist Church:

I. Continue to raise its standards for ordination to the ministry.

2. Maintain a sound, solid, sane, and sensible evangelistic fervor.

3. Become the force in the religious life of America we should be. Most of us will die with the Free Will Baptist Church still a minority, but what we should realize is what can be done by a dedicated minority.

4. See ourselves not as an off brand sect, but as a part of Christ's Holy and Universal Church.

5. Recognize that anything that has been good for the church historically can be good for us.

6. Learn to pray for the other.

This, brethren, is our life. As a concluding thought may I add that the ministry has never been, will not, and should not be a bed of roses. The more dedicated and sensitive a minister, the more he will be wearied by the tedium of the daily rounds, frustrated by his frequent inability to get things done, harassed by the petulant, grumbling, meddlesome members of which every parish has its share. Everyday he will die a little under the weight of his cross. He will be many times tempted to flee from such ordeals. But he remains on the job because he knows that the parish—not the bishopric, the professorship, the executive office, or any other laudable ministerial post—is the arena where Christ's battle for the world must be fought.

(The author wishes to acknowledge a debt of gratitude to many sources for insights into the ministry, especially articles which appeared in The Saturday Evening Post, Reader's Digest, and Pulpit Digest.)

Mission Organized

North Carolina Free Will Baptists will be happy to learn that a Free Will Baptist Mission has been organized in Fayetteville, North Carolina. As editor, we would like to personally comment on this work.

The mission is under the sponsorship of First Free Will Baptist Church, Goldsboro. The mission director is Taylor Hill and the assistant director is J. K. Adcox Jr. Both of these men, and their families, are members of the Goldsboro church. Mr. Hill is a deacon in that church.

The first service was held February 11 at Jernigan-Warren Chapel, at 7:30 p. m. with 32 people present. The pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Goldsboro, the Rev. James A. Evans, spoke on Free Will Baptist History. Mr. Hill spoke on "The Key to Happiness Through Christian Service." The music was directed by Mr. Adcox.

Both Mr. Adcox and Mr. Hill were active members of the Goldsboro church when this editor was serving as pastor. We believe the Lord has a wonderful work for these two Christian men. On their behalf we urge your prayer support. If you know of any person in Fayetteville who would be interested in uniting with this work, please notify First Free Will Baptist Mission, % Taylor Hill, 311 Bryan Street, Fayetteville, North Carolina. Sunday services will be held at this address with Tuesday evening services at the Jernigan-Warren Chapel.

Editorial—

ENTHUSIASM FOR THE FAITH

We are living in a day of glamour and excitement. It is the space age—an age of speed and impatience. Things have changed so rapidly in the last couple of decades that we have become addicted to the excitement. When the first American orbited the earth in 1962, we were filled with wonder and awe, but soon the sharp edge of that wonder and awe wore off. From all indications, space travel will soon become a regular event. Then there will have to be other things to excite and amaze us for awhile.

To a great extent, the Church has found itself trying to compete with the age. We have frantically searched for something to match this age of wonder. In reality, however, the Church does not have to search for an answer; the Church has the answer—something that this space age cannot give. It is the excitement and the enthusiasm that comes from God, and it affects the soul.

It is an easy matter for us to become enthusiastic over the outward and physical things of life. Hobbies fill us with enthusiasm. Modern comforts and conveniences give us enthusiasm to the point of obtaining them, even to the point of financial sacrifice. Athletics fill us with enthusiasm, causes us to shout, and even to fret if our team loses. To prove this point, listen to the conversations that go on in Sunday school on some Sunday morning when the favorite team is engaged in the final play-off. The end result of such enthusiasm is always the same—it doesn't last long. Thus, we have to turn to something else to satisfy our false hunger.

Suppose, just for one month, the Church, or the people who make up the Church, would become enthusiastic about the things of God. If such would really happen, there is no limit as to what could be accomplished. There are few people who can so completely give themselves to a cause that they lose themselves in it. Yet, this is what each Christian should do. Like the Apostle Paul, we are to be filled with the Spirit and crucified with Christ.

Enthusiasm is contagious. It will spread to others. After the Day of Pentecost the Church grew rapidly. The apostles were filled with the Spirit and began to preach and tell others about Christ. As a result, many gladly received the word "... and there were added unto them about three thousand souls" (Acts 2:41). As they continued in their service to God "... the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved" (Acts 2:47).

If you are wondering why everything seems drab and lifeless in your church, the reason is that there is no one who is filled with the zeal and enthusiasm of the Lord. It may be that your pastor has no contagious enthusiasm. If this is true, become enthusiastic yourself and then see that he catches it.

Enthusiasm is essential to accomplishment. If things are to be done for the glory of God, we must possess enthusiasm. Paul's enthusiasm was so great that he could say, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:14). Paul was enthusiastic for the Lord, and only eternity will reveal the great things he accomplished for God.

Enthusiasm adds spark to the Christian's life. It makes us happy when others are unhappy. It gives endurance in times of trials and testings. It gives us a driving force that will carry us up the steepest incline. It will give an entirely different outlook on life.

If, however, we are to possess enthusiasm for the faith, we must work for it. In fact, work is a channel for enthusiasm. We will not accomplish very much if we simply say that we ought to do thus and thus. We must be the ones who will get out and do whatever needs doing. Try it! See what happens!

Meeting the Needs of Our Youth

TODAY'S generation is education conscious! The desire to learn and gain knowledge, a basic psychological need, is one of the primary characteristics that distinguishes man from the animal kingdom. This "inner hunger" which must be satisfied is the reason that the happiest and healthiest people are those who have an opportunity to satisfy their God-given curiosity. In today's world, ignorance is not bliss—it is a decided handicap! New schools and colleges are rapidly being established, and large amounts of printed material is made available daily for public consumption to help man as he strives to satisfy this unquenchable thirst for knowledge. To note the vastness of the printed page, Dr. Clyde Barramore, noted Christian psychologist, compiled some staggering figures. According to him, if all the books and periodicals published in the United States alone in one year were placed on top of one another, and if they were each an inch thick (many are more than that), they would reach to the top of the Empire State Building which is 102 stories high—not just once or twice but 3,200 times. In other words, stacked skyward, these books would make 3,200 miles, each as high as the Empire State Building!

Today's youth are seeking in many places to satisfy this curiosity and their minds are consuming many ideas during their search for an understanding of the world about them. Dr. Billy Gram has described our youth by comparing them with new automobiles as they come off the assembly lines—sparkling and perfect in every detail but without gasoline in their tanks.

Today's youth have more advanced intellects, greater poise, more developed talents, and more well-rounded personalities perhaps than at any other time in our history. They are not all bad as many pessimists would have you believe, but these characteristics are indicative that they have the potential either to become the most productive or the most destructive generation ever. From within their ranks will probably come the most qualified ministers that we have ever known, the most well-rounded missionaries that have been on the field, and the most influential laymen of all time. This of course depends upon us and our willingness to help them find a meaning for life.

Most Free Will Baptists believe that it is the responsibility of the church to put the gasoline of Christian love and concern in their tanks and to help them remove the spiritual vacuum in their life by filling it with a personal knowledge of Jesus and an increasing faith in Him. We need to reexamine our church and denominational programs to see if we are offering our youth those things that will help them become faithful Christians and good citizens. We need to see if we are meeting their needs, and if we are really offering them what they are searching for so diligently. Their inner hunger will be satisfied—not by socials, poorly planned activities, or unchallenging programs—but when we offer something that helps them better understand themselves and their relationship with the Creator and with society in general.

The Free Will Baptist League was designed for Christians who recognize a need to be trained in order to become prepared Christians. The league can and will meet the needs of young Christians today if it is properly organized, directed, operated, and supported. The league is no place for a lazy Christian! Leaguers must want to learn and be trained if a league is to be successful. Many leagues have failed because a pastor lost his vision of the need for training, or because its officers were not sincerely dedicated to the area of training. Concerned parents will see to it that their children are in league on Sunday night training to be effective Christians just as they have them in school on Monday preparing for active citizenry.

The league is too vital to our denomination to sit idly by and watch it struggle for life. We need too much its services not to rush immediately to its rescue with prayer, concern, and dedicated energy and offer this organization the needed first-aid. Not only must we look backward, but we must look ahead as a denomination. To borrow a statement of Dr. Charles Carroll, Superintendent of Public Instruction in North Carolina, we offer this challenge to our people: "Yesterday's excellence may be today's mediocrity; today's mediocrity should be tomorrow's challenge." Perhaps it is time for a re-evaluation of our program and a rededication of our energies!

There are many ways in which the Free Will Baptist League can meet the needs of both the young and the old in your church. It helps the member (1) develop his devotional life, (2) become a better servant in the church, (3) become a better steward, (4) have a larger world vision, (5) learn more about his church doctrines, (6) gain strength through fellowship, (7) become more loyal to his church and denomination, and (8) learn how to use his knowledge to be a more effective worker for Christ. The league strives to help each leaguer know himself and know more about God. This is done in many ways—the most prominent perhaps is through Bible study. It seeks to impress upon each leaguer the im-

Spain Approves Bible Correspondence Courses

Los Angeles (EP)—World Gospel Crusades, with headquarters here, has recently been informed by Ruben Gil, its agent in Spain, that the Spanish government has officially approved three of its Light of Life Bible correspondence courses for publication and circulation in Spain.

"This action," states Rev. C. Mervin Russell, WGC Executive Vice President, "is most significant to all evangelicals in Spain. It represents further substantiation on the part of the Spanish government of its good faith in announcing several months ago its policy of a more liberal attitude toward Protestants in this Catholic-dominated country. This action follows by only a few months previous action by the government approving the publication of nine evangelical books. The Bible correspondence work may now be brought up from the 'underground' and an aggressive campaign for students may be launched."

World Gospel Crusades has enlisted some twenty thousand students in Spain under the most adverse government restrictions. This is in contrast to a report that the Roman Catholic church has enlisted only nine thousand students in a church-sponsored correspondence course.

Conservative Baptist Clergy Ask University Probe

Minneapolis, Minn. (EP) — Twenty-five Conservative Baptist ministers have called for "an objective federal or state investigation into the atheistic-socialistic-immoral ideologies sanctioned and promoted" on the University of Minnesota campus here.

"We further urge the Board of Regents to reexamine and retract their approval of such anti-American activities," the resolution said.

The ministers deplored statements allegedly made by Dr. Mulford Q. Sibley, university political science professor, that it might be a good idea to have advocates of communism, atheism, nudism and free love at the university "to challenge orthodoxies."

Dr. Sibley, a Quaker who is a socialist and a pacifist, has been under fire from veterans groups.

He has been defended by his fellow Quakers and religious advisers at the University.

Religious Objection to 'Shots' Rejected in Albuquerque

Albuquerque, N. M. (EP)—City commissioners have rejected a proposal to exempt children of certain religious beliefs from immunization "shots."

Recommended was an amendment to the city's child care center ordinance, which requires that children attending pre-school kindergartens and nursery schools be vaccinated against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio. No exceptions are allowed.

New Mexico state law, however, grants exemptions to public school children for religious beliefs of parents.

The Albuquerque amendment was prepared by an attorney, Oscar Beasley, representing himself and "certain members of a Christian Science church." Mr. Beasley told the City Commission that the present ordinance "changes the teachings of our children at home and in Sunday school."

Chairman Archie Westfall replied that the commission respected the religious beliefs represented, but felt obligated to act on the recommendation of the city health department in rejecting the amendment.

The amendment would have permitted a parent who did not want his pre-school child vaccinated to submit a petition signed by a recognized officer of a religious denomination stating "that such child's parents or guardians are bona fide members of a denomination whose religious teaching requires reliance upon prayer or spiritual means alone for healing."

A health officer pointed out that the existing city ordinance "does not interfere with anyone's freedom of religion inasmuch as no one is required by law to enroll his child in a child care center in the city."

Graham to Conduct Atlanta Crusade in '66 or '67

Atlanta (EP)—Evangelist Billy Graham has accepted the invitation of pastors of the Atlanta area to conduct a crusade here in 1966 or 1967.

Accepting the invitation at a luncheon meeting of more than 800 of the city ministers, Dr. Graham stipulated that "the meeting must be integrated; it would not come otherwise. If we can meet at the cross of Christ as brothers we can't make it in other areas."

The evangelist speculated that the crusade in Atlanta might have "a psychological effect around the world.

"How wonderful it would be," he said "if Atlanta and Georgia could set an example for the world in real understanding and love." He added that racial and moral revolts across the globe could not be solved by legislation "and will not be solved until God himself gives us a supernatural love" for fellow men.

Negro churchmen in Atlanta, including Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., were among the ministers who responded with "amens" to Dr. Graham's address, in which he called for a "worldwide renewal within the church."

Atlanta had its first Billy Graham crusade in 1950.

E. Stanley Jones, 80, Sees 'Greatest Contribution' Ahead

Chicago (EP)—As he neared the end of a fortnight-long, cross-country celebration of his eightieth birthday, Dr. E. Stanley Jones told a Chicago audience that God was leading him to begin "the era of the greatest contribution" he has yet made.

The missionary evangelist and writer is preparing for a six-month evangelistic tour that will take him around the world. It will begin when he finishes the last of a series of birthday dinners honoring him in nine cities across the nation.

Dr. Jones explained why he now spends half his time in America and Europe rather than concentrating his evangelistic energies on the Far East, as he did earlier in his career.

"I find both (East and West) in the same human need," he declared. "The soul of modern man is empty—in East and West—and he cannot stand this

College Will Be Host to VBS Workshop April 11

Plans for the tenth annual Vacation Bible School Workshop to be held at Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, were made recently in a meeting in the office of President W. Burkette Raper.

Among those who attended the meeting, from left to right, were the Rev. N. B. Barrow, manager of the Free Will Baptist Press, Ayden; Charles Harrell, college business manager; Mrs. David W. Hansley of Kenly, youth director for the State Woman's Auxiliary Convention; and Mrs. A. B. Chandler of Pinetown, one of the vacation Bible school literature writers.

The workshop is scheduled to begin with registration at 9:30 and classes at 10 a. m. Adjournment has been set for 2:30 p. m.

The college will provide lunch at $1 per plate. Those who prefer to bring their own lunch are invited to do so.

The Free Will Baptist Press will have on display in the college library a full supply of vacation Bible school literature and supplies for purchases and orders.

Sponsors of the workshop are the college, the Press, and the State Woman's Auxiliary Convention.

It is suggested that Bible school workers and directors be elected early so that they can attend the workshop on April 11.

Enrollment Reaches 260

Registration for the spring semester brought 34 new students to the campus of Mount Olive College and pushed the total enrollment for the year to 260. This year's student body shows a fifteen percent increase over the 229 students who enrolled during the 1962-63 academic year.

"This increased enrollment represents the enlarged educational opportunities Mount Olive College is offering the Free Will Baptist denomination and the people of eastern North Carolina," President W. Burkette Raper declared.

Applications for the fall semester beginning in September are running more than 75 percent ahead of one year ago, according to information received from the office of Dean Roy O'Donnell.

"The continued growth of the student body emphasizes the urgency for the building program on the new campus," President Raper noted. "Present facilities are already inadequate."

Preliminary studies for an academic building and dormitory units have been completed, and working drawings are now being prepared by G. Milton Small and Associates of Raleigh. Plans are to award contracts for the first buildings this spring President Raper announced.

Benefit Dinner Leaders Meet

County chairmen who directed a series of benefit dinners last year for the college development fund met at the college January 28 to consider plans for 1964. Among those attending were, left to right, the Rev. Garland Teasley of Smithfield, chairman of the Johnston County dinner; the Rev. S. A. Smith of Beulaville, representing Duplin County; and Gray Boswell of Lucama, cochairman of the Wilson County dinner.

Music Scholarships Awarded

Five students have been awarded music scholarships at Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, for the spring semester. Included was Geraldine Strickland of Seven Springs, piano accompanist to the chorus. Voice scholarships went to Bonnie Coates of Smith-

Honeycutt Elected President Youth Fellowship

Mr. Jerry Lee Honeycutt, son of Mrs. Eunice S. Honeycutt of Route 1, Dunn, North Carolina, has been elected president of the Cape Fear Youth Fellowship.

Mr. Honeycutt is a very active member of Robert's Grove Free Will Baptist Church, where he serves as president of his Sunday school class and a very devoted member of the church choir. He has also served as president of the YFA and as assistant choir director.

While in high school, Mr. Honeycutt was very active in 4-H Club work. He was president of the club from 1958-1961! recreation leader at senior camp in 1961; 4-H subject matter leader 1963-1964; state champion tractor driver 1961; county champion of teen-age rodeo 1962; district first place tractor driver 1963; member of the North Carolina 100 Bushel Corn Club 1960-1963; member of the North Carolina Gurnsey Cattle Club.

He was also very outstanding in F. F. A. work, serving as president from 1961-1962; treasurer 1960-1961; and chairman of Supervised Farming Commission 1958-1961. The State Farmer's degree was awarded him in 1961; agriculture medal in 1961 (this being the highest award given), and the Fitchett Cup in 1962. He is a member of the Mingo Grange and the W. O. W.

Mr. Honeycutt is a 1962 graduate of Midway High School and will graduate from N. C. State Agricultural Institute in 1964.

He is the very proud owner of 26 blue ribbons, 8 white ribbons, 13 red ribbons, and 5 ribbons for special recognition.

ANOTHER MISSION COUPLE

The Rev. and Mrs. Emiliano Lopez have joined the mission organization in Mexico. Brother Lopez will work as a traveling evangelist among the churches and missions while his family will stay in Santa Ana, Sonora. He is 28 years old; his wife, Luz Alicia, is 26; and they have four little daughters: Lydia 7, Elisabeth 5, Evangelina 3, and Noemi 1 (shown above). He attended the Free Methodist Bible School for three years and is qualified for the work. The Stoney Creek church near Goldsboro, North Carolina, is sponsoring Brother Lopez.

This minister was working for $40 per week as a cashier of a bank in Mexico and also doing evangelistic work. He has joined the staff of missionary workers at a great sacrifice. If any Sunday school class, church organization, or individual would like to send a special offering to supplement his salary of $12 weekly, it can be used.

HUMILITY

If the Lord pleases to bless you, He will undoubtedly make you humble; for you cannot be either happy or safe, or have any probable hope of abiding usefulness, without it. Oh, to be little in our own eyes! This is the groundwork of every grace. This leads to a continual dependence upon the Lord Jesus. That is the spirit which He has promised to bless. This wins us good will and acceptance amongst men; for he that abases himself is sure to be honored.—John Newton.

The Believer's Resurrection

A vase closely sealed was found in a mummy pit in Egypt. In it were discovered a few peas, old, wrinkled, and hard as a stone. The peas were planted carefully under a glass and at the end of thirty days they sprang into life, after having lain sleeping in the dust of a tomb for almost three thousand years—a faint illustration of the mortal body which shall put on immortality. "Because He lives, we shall live also."—Selected.

Mission in a New Field

Pictured above is one of the Sunday school classes of the Satillo Mission, a new mission in the state of Coahuila in Mexico. The teacher, a young Indian girl, is shown in the back row.

Satillo, the capital of Coahuila, is located some three hundred miles from the border of Texas in a mountainous area. One of the oldest cities in Mexico, it has been and still is one of the most fanatical Catholic areas there. The Catholics are not just Catholic in name; they are very devout and faithful to their church. There are several Catholic colleges and schools in this most difficult, but yet needy, field.

The Rev. J. E. Timmons of Eagle Pass, Texas, is working with the pastor, Juan Lopez, who was ordained a Free Will Baptist minister five years ago. Recently in a Sunday evening service, Mr. Timmons preached to thirty-eight persons, most of them recent converts from Catholicism who are awaiting baptism as soon as the weather is a little warmer.

Pastor Lopez works as a salesman, going from house to house selling clothing and telling others of the gospel at the same time. Mrs. Lopez and the children work in the mission teaching Sunday school and visiting. They own their own humble chapel and home, and they plan to remain in Saltillo and work for God.

Support is needed for Mr. Lopez, and they can also use some used clothing. Send the used clothes to the Reverend J. E. Timmons, P. O. Box 517, Eagle Pass, Texas; and he will see that they get them.

President of Eastern Auxiliary Challenges Local Presidents

by Mrs. D. W. Hancock

It is certainly a great honor to be elected president of an auxiliary, and what a wonderful opportunity it gives us to honor our Master and further the work of His kingdom! The paths of service are broad and long, and it is important that every president be familiar with her duties. The success or failure of the local auxiliary will largely depend upon the president. In this place of leadership, it is important that she be a consecrated Christian. Through her faith, love, patience, sympathy, tact and enthusiasm, she will be able to lead her women to a higher and nobler service in the Lord's work. She must be resourceful and devoted to the missionary ideal, for this is the basic purpose of the auxiliary.

The president is chairman of the executive committee, and it is in this committee that plans are drafted to be presented to the auxiliary. The outcome of auxiliary work in the church depends largely on the executive committee and its planning.

Study the new Woman's Auxiliary Manual and see that one is available for other officers and committee chairmen. Presidents are responsible for having twelve meetings per year to reach this standard on the Standard Achievement Chart.

Our theme for 1964 is "Building the Kingdom in Our Hearts." Our emblem challenges to service, missions, and devotion. It takes work to keep God's kingdom growing. Each has a task to do. Let's not shirk our task, but do it to the best of our ability. Let's build the kingdom of God through every phase of our denominational work and let Christ be the Master Builder in our individual lives in the paths of leadership during the year 1964.

Each local president is urged to be much in prayer for and attend the Eastern Auxiliary Convention on March 19 at Beulaville. There she will receive information that will help her broaden the influence of women in missions, stewardship, Children's Home, Mount Olive Junior College, benevolence, and personal work.

Attention Auxiliary Secretaries of Eastern District

Another year in our auxiliary work has ended, and it is about time to get our reports ready for the spring convention. You will receive the annual report blank in a few days, and I am depending on you to fill this out and return it to me by the suggested date. I would like to have a good report of our auxiliary work to give to our ladies at the convention.

Since you are responsible for point five on the Standard of Achievement Chart which is to send the annual report to the district convention and the regular fee to both the district and state convention will you please see that this is done and help your auxiliary to meet the A-standard?

If I can be of any service to you, please feel free to call on me and I will assist in any way that I can.

Mrs. Nelson Simpson Recording Secretary of Eastern District

Newport, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church held its installation service for the new officers on February 15 at the church. They were as follows: president, Mrs. Agnes Garner; vice-president, Mrs. Jean Rowe; recording secretary, Mrs. Ethel Bush; treasurer, Mrs. Ann Garner; other chairmen, Mrs. Pat Gurganus, Mrs. Elizabeth Slaughter, Mrs. Nina Kelly, Mrs. Dorla Hill, Mrs. Rena Kirk, and Mrs. Dorothy Riggs.

Four Oaks, N. C.—The YFA of Bethel Free Will Baptist Church met Sunday, January 26, at the church. The president, Johnny Lee, presided.

Those participating on the program were Gayle Hill, Becky Nowell, and Ann Gilbert.

During the business session officers were elected as follows: president, Johnny Lee; vice-president, Pat Lassiter; recording secretary, Ann Gilbert; program (continued on page fifteen)

Mount Olive College Benefit Dinners Are Planned for 1964

A series of benefit dinners which raised $52,091 for the college development fund in 1963 will be repeated this year. County chairmen met at the college in January to lay plans for the 1964 dinners.

The leaders agreed to seek a goal of $100,000 for the college development fund for the year beginning July 1.

Approximately 20 dinners will be planned. Organizational meetings will be held in the spring to set dates and to elect chairmen and steering committees for each county or district. It is planned that a county would participate in only one dinner during the year. Most dinners will be held in the early fall.

"Our dedication must be commensurate with our needs if Original Free Will Baptists are going to adequately provide Christian higher education for the youth of our denomination," President W. Burkette Raper declared. "Little ideas will not achieve high goals. The building of a Christian college can be our finest hour," he added.

Student Fees And Costs

Student expenses at Mount Olive College next year will total $900 for resident students, including tuition, room, board, and fees. Costs to day students will be $520. It is estimated that income from student fees will cover sixty percent of the operating budget of the college; the balance will depend largely upon gifts.

For students who need financial assistance, the college maintains a program of scholarships, loan funds, and part-time employment. Approximately $20,000 is being used for student aid during the current school year.

COMMENTS ON THE CODE OF ETHICS

For the information of those who do not know, we have been discussing the Code of Ethics for ministers so that our readers might know what it is. Some of those who refused to sign the code have made it appear to be what it is not. As I have said time and time again, I have observed and lived in keeping with the North Carolina Code of Ethics, as originated and presented to Free Will Baptists, ever since I began to preach in the year of 1910.

The continuation of this subject is presented with love and Christian goodwill. Today we continue with No. 7.

7. "I will not accept the pulpit of another person unless he invites me, or in his absence, I receive an invitation from the deacons." Years ago when we had so many quarter and half-time churches, there were preachers who would go to some person of the church and offer to preach; and they often caused friction.

8. "I will not knowingly use sermon material prepared by another without acknowledging the source from which it comes." We have known preachers to use another man's work and claim it as his own. I knew a certain man who copied a whole page of "Notes and Quotes" and put his name on it. I was reading that writing, and it seemed very familiar. So I looked up some back issues and found that I was very familiar with the subject matter. This code is planned to prevent such from occurring.

9. "Upon leaving a parsonage I will seek to leave it in first-class condition with all dirt, rubbish, etc., removed." Why not?

10. "Upon retiring from active ministry, I will give my pastor my loyal support."

11. "I will not gossip about other ministers, nor encourage it. But in cases of unethical conduct I will bring the matter before the proper body." This part of the code could have prevented some signatures. We don't like to be brought before a character committee.

12. "I will hold in respect any minister whose work is well done, regardless of the size or the nature of the field he serves."

13. "Although I may sometime differ from my fellow ministers, I will respect their Christian earnestness and sincerity." Because I see things differently from the way that my brother minister sees them, why should I stick out my lips and refuse to respect him? Yet there are some fellows that do that very thing.

14. "I will seek not to interfere directly or indirectly with the church work of another minister, and I will especially be careful to avoid the charge of proselytizing." Often we have had people to come to us asking for church fellowship, and we gladly received them; but to go out and try to get people to leave their church and come to us, we disdain. The Code of Ethics condemns proselytizing. This could have caused some to refuse to sign.

15. "I will neither make or consider overtures from a church whose pastor has not yet resigned." Yet there are preachers, according to information coming to this writer, that have done such; and perhaps it is being done today.

16. "I will seek to make my relationship with my fellow ministers one of frankness and cooperation." Why do otherwise? A satanic spirit works differently from that of Christ. The Christian cooperates with good works, whenever and wherever manifested.

17. "I will show a friendly, cooperative interest in my brethren, attending the group meetings of the ministers, assisting them with labors of love, defending them against injustice, and following them with kindly concern in their need and distress." This means real brotherhood.

MY PUBLIC RELATIONS

1. "I will never lower my ideals in order to appear a 'Good Fellow.'" This means that I will agree with everything that is called good, but that I will by the grace of God say "No" when unrighteousness says "Say yes."

2. "I will consider that my first duty to my community is to be a conscientious pastor and leader of my own congregation, but I will not use this fact as an easy excuse to escape reasonable responsibilities that the community calls upon me to assume." We should all be helpful citizens of the community in which we live. Live with and for others; not selfishly, but helpfully.

3. "As an ethical leader in the community, I will seek to be scrupulously honest and meet my bills promptly." Perhaps this part of the code had some thing to do with the signing, but I cannot conceive of this being the sole cause for refusal to sign.

4. "I will not consider myself under obligation to marry every couple that comes to be married, but I will use the power of refusal with great discretion." Why not make your own decision?

5. "I will not give the sanction of my presence to unbecoming conversation or conduct and indecent dress." Indecency does not belong to the man of God. We should be careful as to how we act and dress.

"This Code of Ethics has been adopted by the North Carolina Ministerial Association of Original Free Will Baptists as amended during its regular session at Cragmont Assembly, June 18-21, 1962."

I hardly think that there is any part of this code that is the real cause for the refusal to sign. I really believe that there is another cause. I fully believe that one reason was that some did not want to support the institutions that are owned and operated by North Carolina Free Will Baptists. You see the organization that arranged this code is in good standing with the North Carolina Convention of Original Free Will Baptists. We support Cragmont, Mount Olive Junior College, the Children's Home at Middlesex; and we use Free Will Baptist literature published at Ayden, North Carolina, by the Free Will Baptist Press.

CONCLUSION

There have been so many false impressions created by misinterpretations broadcast from mouth to mouth and so many ears filled with false impressions that I have made these comments so that the truth can find its right status. Some church bulletins have added to the flame of unrighteousness.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Where is Jesus Christ now? I have heard various views as to His whereabouts. Some say here, some say in heaven, and some say that He is now reigning. What does the Bible say?—J. R., Indiana.

The Holy Spirit also adds the inspired testimony of Peter, "the very chief of the apostles." "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 3:21). Mark and Luke give about the same kind of evidence in what they say when writing under the influence of the Holy Spirit's power. "So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God" (Mark 16:19). "And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven" (Luke 24:51).

"And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight" (Acts 1:9). Then the writer of the Book of Hebrews adds his portion among the inspired witnesses when he says "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds; Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high" (Hebrews 1:1-3). "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Hebrews 12:2). (See and compare with Genesis 18:1—19:16.)

Jesus sent two angelic witnesses to appear in visible form to give witness to the place of His abode while they performed for Him and of His future advent. "And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight, And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:9-11).

In these days He is to be interceding for us. "Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us" (Romans 8:34). "Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them. For such an high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens" (Hebrews 7:25, 26). "And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places" (Ephesians 1:19, 20). "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ: Who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God; angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto him" (1 Peter 3:21, 22). "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? . . . And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven" (Luke 24:26, 51). "And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory" (1 Timothy 3:16).

He is High Priest at this time. "Now of the things which we have spoken this is the sum: We have such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens" (Hebrews 8:1). "Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession" (Hebrews 4:14).

He is our Advocate. "For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us" (Hebrews 9:24).

He has a Fatherlike heart, and He regards us as His little children while we obediently carry out His instructions. "My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (1 John 2:1). And yet He is to be with His and our heavenly Father while all of this takes place. "And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). "Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved" (Acts 2:47).

A special place of distinction in the presence of Jesus is promised to us who overcome. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Revelation 3:21). "Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool: what house will ye build me? saith the Lord: or what is the place of my rest?" (Acts 7:49). "Thus saith the LORD, The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: where is the house that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my rest?" (Isaiah 66:1).

Jesus Christ our Lord left us with sufficient information and enticement with this instruction that none need for want of such information and encouragement to ever slack his pace in carrying out the command which the Bible represents as being both imminent and urgent. At twelve years of age He felt impelled to be about His Father's business. I would to God that we might accept with the

BOYS and GIRLS

A LITTLE SPARK

Winta M. Armstrong

CRAIG PATTERSON had always longed to see and talk with George Washington, his hero from earliest childhood. And now the dream had come true. Craig, with his parents and big sister Isabel, was actually spending a fortnight at Mount Vernon.

The great ex-president, now proud to call himself "an American farmer," had welcomed Craig with a smile and a formal handshake. But that was a whole week ago. And Craig had not yet asked the General even one of the questions he had been saving up!

There were too many people around—that was the trouble. The twenty-four mahogany chairs in the dining room were filled at every meal—too many people, and all of them grown up!

Isabel found a delightful companion in Nelly Curtis, one of Martha Washington's two grandchildren, whom the General had adopted. Nelly was sorry that her younger brother George was away. George would have been a fine playmate for Craig, she was sure. As it was, Craig was left alone much of the time, free to wander at will over the vast plantation.

One day, as he was strolling close to the boundary of the Washington estate, Craig met Randolph Miller, a visitor at a neighboring plantation. Randolph, too, was lonesome among the grown-up guests at his host's mansion. Quite naturally, the boys struck up a friendship.

Some days later, the two were resting in the shade of the great weeping willow trees at Mount Vernon, close to the riverbank.

"The General grew these trees from slips off the willows over Napoleon's tomb," Craig was saying. "The General's friend, Lafayette, sent him the cuttings."

Randolph yawned in a bored fashion. "They've grown pretty big," he remarked. "Guess you wouldn't dare climb that biggest one!"

"What makes you say that?" demanded Craig. "Think I'm scary?"

"Maybe not. But people like you, who admire heroes a lot, aren't usually much at taking risks."

"Well, I'm not afraid to climb! You watch!"

Craig swung himself up on the lowest branch, then climbed to the next highest. Nobody should say that he was afraid!

Then—crack! The bough gave way under him. Craig fell to the ground, but picked himself up, unhurt.

"Who's scared now?" he asked, laughing at Randolph's pale face.

Randolph made no answer. He was lifting the broken bough. Now he threw it, as far as he could, out into the river. It went floating down the Potomac.

"There!" cried Randolph. "Nobody will ever know! Let's get away from here!"

Craig looked up at the tree. The loss of the branch had marred its symmetry. There was a jagged stump where the branch had broken off.

"I'm afraid they will know," said Craig, soberly.

"I mean nobody will know you did it. Come along! The General will probably blame one of his slaves."

"I suppose so," agreed Craig. "And nothing much will happen. The General is a good master. He doesn't much approve of having slaves. They say he hopes to see a day when all the slaves will be freed."

"What!" exclaimed Randolph. "Whoever heard of such a thing? Why, there's got to be slaves!"

Craig, not liking his tone, made no reply.

After a little silence, Randolph spoke again. "Do you know, Craig, I've got a chance to go home tomorrow? The folks are getting anxious to see me. I really came here today to say good-by."

"O, Ran!" cried Craig in genuine distress. "I'll miss you so!"

"I'll miss you, too. But we'll be seeing each other again sometime. I'd better start packing my things right away. Good-by, Craig!"

"G-good-by, Ran!"

Next minute Craig stood alone under the trees. He tried not to think that Randolph was running away from possible trouble. Surely he wouldn't do that!

And why should there be any trouble? When George Washington discovered the damage to the tree, he would of course blame the slave children. He would not know which one to punish, and so probably wouldn't punish any of them. And so no harm would be done. It all seemed very simple at the minute.

Randolph left for home next morning. Craig was very lonely without him. His loneliness was increased by the fact that he was no longer good company for himself. He could not keep from thinking about the broken bough, although neither the General, nor anybody else, mentioned the matter in his hearing.

Once Craig stole down to the scene of his crime. He found that the stump of the branch had been neatly sawed off. So the damage had been discovered!

Was the General angry? Had he questioned the slave children? Had he put the blame on the most mischievous one? Craig began to have dreams of hearing a little slave's cries.

One night he woke with a start from one of these dreams. For what seemed hours, he lay awake and tossed. Would he always be haunted by this sense of guilt? Was there no way to escape it?

"CONFESS YOUR FAULTS ONE TO ANOTHER" (James 5:16). Those words, once read in Sunday school class, came back to his mind, bringing a blessed calm. "CONFESS YOUR FAULTS . . ." Why, he had only to go to General Washington tomorrow, and tell him everything. Yes, and offer to pay for the damage to the tree! Having decided upon this course, Craig at last went to sleep.

But when morning came, the plan did not seem so practicable. How could he confess to General Washington, when he never saw the great man alone? Perhaps he had better tell his parents, and let them handle the matter. But no! Something in him demanded that he, himself, face the General in his wrath. Isabel would tell him what to say. Isabel was always ready to help a fellow out.

But there was that Nelly Custis! After the first few days of their friendship, the girls had even slept together. And all day long, Isabel kept as close to Nelly as her shadow. Bother Nelly! And yet—

All at once, Craig had an idea. Nelly was kind. She was a great favorite of Washington. She was the very one to arrange for a meeting with the General.

Craig found the two girls reading poetry together in a cute little house built into the garden wall. This tiny building, originally intended for a seed and tool house, served Nelly and her brother as a schoolroom, and was a beloved haunt of theirs.

When Craig had told his story, Isabel burst into tears. Nelly put her arms around her, and promised, without being asked, to do all she could for Craig.

"But I do wish you had come to me all at once, Craig," she said. "The General likes courage and truthfulness. But then I don't think he'll blame a boy for being afraid of him."

So speaking, she led the brother and sister to a shady bench close to the great house, and then dashed off to find the General.

After what seemed an age to Isabel and Craig, they saw Nelly coming back, followed by the tall, majestic ex-president.

Craig made a desperate effort to speak. So did Isabel. But neither could utter a single word. In the end, kind Nelly came to the rescue, and told the story. She told it in her own way, putting all the blame on Randolph, and making every possible excuse for Craig.

When she was finished, there was a moment of ominous silence.

Then all at once, Craig raised his eyes, looked straight at the General, and said: "It was all my fault, Sir. I knew it was wrong. No matter if Ran dared me. I am the one to blame."

The General's face was stern yet kind. After a long minute, he spoke. "Craig," he said, "I think you have learned something—that the company in which you improve most will be the least expensive to you. I take it you did not improve much in this Randolph's company.

"Your conscience wouldn't let you sleep. Conscience, my boy, is a little spark of celestial fire. Labor always to keep it alive."

"Yes, Sir," faltered Craig.

"But don't worry any more about the tree," said the General. "I haven't punished anybody. And the tree will look better after it grows out a bit. Yes, and you shall soon have a more suitable playmate than Randolph. Young George is due home tomorrow or the next day. He is an expert horseman, and will teach you to ride. Would you like that?"

"Say! Would I?" cried Craig. "I mean, yes, Sir, I would. Thank you, General!"

And the great man actually smiled!—

emptiness, meaninglessness, purposelessness. So he is unhappy and frustrated.

"We don't have to speak against Hinduism, Buddhism or Mohammedanism," he continued. "We have to speak against the emptiness in man."

"As far as I can see," Dr. Jones said, "there is no alternative to Jesus Christ in filling that emptiness. There is nobody else seriously on the field. It is Christ or nothing."

He cautioned against confusing Christianity with Western culture or even the church.

"The one thing we have to give is the Person of Jesus Christ, rather than the organized system (the church) built up around Him in the West," he said.

It is important, Dr. Jones warned, that Christians remember, in confronting their non-Christian brothers that "the issue is not Western civilization or the Western system of faith. The issue is Jesus."

Dr. Jones first went to India as a Methodist missionary in 1907. He has conducted preaching missions throughout the world and is identified with the Ashram (spiritual retreat) movement.

He is the author of 24 books which have been translated into 20 languages. In 1962 he was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Assemblies Approve First Negro Missionary

Springfield, Mo. (EP)—An associate of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association has become the first Negro approved for service under the Assemblies of God Foreign Missions Department, according to the Rev. J. Philip Hogan, executive director of the department.

Named for a tour of evangelistic missionary work in British Honduras, and Jamaica, British West Indies, was the Rev. Robert Harrison, an Assemblies of God evangelist. He began his new duties early in January.

Hays Leaves White House Staff for College Post

Washington, D. C. (EP)—Brooks Hays, former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, has resigned his post as a special assistant to President Johnson to become a professor at Rutgers University.

The White House said Mr. Hays will become Arthur Vanderbilt Professor at the New Jersey University. He will lecture on contemporary problems of government at the Eagleton Institute of Politics there starting March 2.

Mr. Hays is the first Presidential assistant to resign since President Johnson took office. He joined the White House staff in 1961 and was a specialist in federal-state relations during the administration of the late President Kennedy.

In late fall, 1962, the Southern Baptist layman and onetime Congressman from Arkansas took an extended leave of absence from his White House duties to conduct a series of lectures at Methodist-related colleges.

Mr. Hays is national chairman of the 1964 Brotherhood Week sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Plan 'Christian Endeavor Day' At N. Y. World's Fair

Columbus, Ohio (EP)—Saturday, July 18, 1964, will be "Christian Endeavor Day" at the New York World's Fair, according to announcement made by Harold E. Westerhoff, general secretary of the International Society of Christian Endeavor.

Plans for activities for Endeavorers who will be participating include luncheon and a special hour-long service of worship in the afternoon.

Lesson for March 1

Mary, Martha, And Lazarus

LESSON TEXT: Luke 10:38-42;
John 11:20-27; 12:1-3

I. INTRODUCTION

When Jesus Christ left heaven's portals and came to this earth, He took upon Himself the robe of human flesh. He was, and is, the Son of God. Yet, while on this earth, He identified Himself with the human race by being one of us. Thus, He was the Son of man. He was in all points tempted as we are tempted. During His earthly sojourn, He suffered the same emotions and conflicts that we suffer. He wept, He became angry, He grew tired, He thirsted, He hungered, etc. This was the humanity of Jesus.

As a man, Jesus associated with His countrymen; that is, so far as He was able. Not many wished to be in the presence and company of so righteous a man. A few, however, learned to love Him, and they desired His presence. In this lesson today, we shall consider His closeness to three people—Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. Christ often visited with them. His presence with them in times of crisis proved to be a great blessing. His visits deepened their insights and gave their lives a new dimension.—The Bible Student (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Martha, the head of the house, was concerned about many things (vv. 38, 40).

2. Mary sat at Jesus' feet and listened, which was hailed by Him as the good part (vv. 39, 42).

3. A certain amount of concern for the ordinary things is necessary, but the many things should never take preference over the main thing (vv. 41, 42).

4. Martha went to meet Jesus; but Mary stayed in the house, probably to exemplify her grief (v. 20).

5. Martha believed that Jesus could cure at hand, but she did not have a complete knowledge of His omnipotence (v. 21).

6. She apparently looked upon Jesus as no more than a prophet whose requests God would honor (v. 22).

7. Martha believed that Lazarus would rise in the resurrection, but she had no idea that he would live immediately (v. 24).

8. Jesus convinced her that He is the resurrection and the life (vv. 25-27).

9. Lazarus is shown as a normal person after his resurrection (v. 2).

10. Mary showed her appreciation of her Lord by anointing His feet (v. 3).—The Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. When God created man and woman, He gave to each two hands with which to work. In physical labors these hands complement each other. One hand may perform some tasks easier than the other, but it takes both working together to do many things.

In the spiritual realm we must also use two "hands." We must use daily the hand of service. The hand of service is a hand of action. With this part of our Christian lives we minister to the physical and spiritual needs of man. Our activities reach out into the realms of benevolence, evangelism, education, missions, and hospitality.

Martha was a woman of action. When Jesus came to the friendly home in Bethany, she immediately busied her hands in the preparation of a dinner for a guest.

The hand of worship is also ours to use. With this hand we are strengthened as we learn of God's will for us and shape our lives according to His precepts by study, prayer, and communion with Him. Fellowship is ours as we gather with other Christians to worship and sing His praises together. Worship necessitates our giving our all—our time, talents, and possessions—to Him.

While Martha hurried to the kitchen to minister to Jesus' physical needs, Mary sat at His feet expressing her love to Him through worship. Each of us needs the qualities that both Mary and Martha possessed.—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. What a difference there is in people! Our capabilities vary, and our interests in life differ. Mary was a devotional thinker and Martha was a kitchen server. And yet, each one had her place in the plan and purpose of God. Just as God has not made us all alike, and each one of us is distinct from the other in our features, color, capabilities, psychological make up and interests, so also He has created us to be different in spiritual things. He has prepared each life for its own distinct purpose. No one can copy the life and ministry of another. God made only one Billy Sunday, one Billy Graham, one Moses, one Peter. He has also made some to pastor little churches, and some to go to India, and others to Africa. Some are translators of the Scriptures, whereas others are preachers in the villages, and some are teachers in the schools, and some are doctors and nurses, and some are executives directing mission work, and some are carpenters who build mission compounds. But God needs us all in His service to accomplish His goal.

We must not try to do everything ourselves. We are commanded to evangelize the entire world and to preach the Gospel to every creature, but no one man can do this. The Holy Spirit is the one who is planning and guiding this missionary ministry. Just be sure that you are filling the niche in the great missionary program where God planned for you to be, for you were created for that purpose, and there is no one else in all the world who can ever take your place.

At the same time, let us be careful lest we criticize or belittle the ministry of another. You may be fast and expressive, he may be quiet and unobtrusive, but God made him that way to fulfill His divine purpose

Not only are we different in our capabilities, we are also different in our personalities. Martha was forward and frank; Mary was retiring and reticent. Martha went directly to Jesus and expressed her displeasure, whereas Mary remained at home and allowed her grief to smolder within her breast. It was Martha who went to Jesus, straightened out her misunderstanding, and then she sought Mary, to bring her to Jesus.—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

3. The accounts of Luke and John give us clear insight into the character of Mary and Martha. Lightfoot says, "But the characteristics of the two sisters are brought out in a very subtle way. In Luke the contrast is summed up, as it were, in a definite incident. In John it is developed gradually in the course of continuous narrative. In Luke the contrast is direct and trenchant, a contrast (one might almost say) of light and darkness. But in John the characters are haded off, as it were, into one another."

Even though Martha is rebuked by Jesus, we should not suppose that she was not as devoted as Mary. The women were different in personality and temperament. They were sisters; yet they were so different. Does this not bring out the fact that all kinds of personality are attracted to Jesus and that He is adequate for them all?

The fact that the home of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus was so important should reveal to us that Jesus is interested in our homes and that a good home is important to Him. A good home is a Christian home. A Christian home is important to Jesus because there is no better agency for the teaching and training of children than the home. One of the best ways to improve the church is to go back to the homes from which the members come.

The Lord's comment on Mary's anointing His feet with the costly ointment shows us that He is pleased with a sacrifice made to Him. We should, of course, be practical in our expenditure of money. But let us remember that it is natural and practical for God's people to want to make some sacrifice that shows their devotion to the Lord.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

importance of studying God's Word that we might be able "to rightly divide the word of truth." His Word challenges us to "search the scriptures daily" and to let it be "a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path." We can never overemphasize the necessity of studying God's Word if we hope to be effective Christians.

We strive to facilitate this by having a Bible quiz leader in each league whose responsibility it is to offer helps and ideas with regards to the study of His Word and to provide games and quizzes at intervals to assist and check on progress in understanding and using this effective tool. Getting our people to study the Scriptures is a concern at all levels; however, at the state level we do a little something extra for our intermediates to encourage the study and the rapid use of the "Sword."

Each year at the North Carolina State League Convention we have an Intermediate Sword Drill for leaguers from throughout the state. Each district or each intermediate league may enter a contestant. That contestant, however, must be from twelve to fifteen years old at convention time. The intermediates in your league should start preparing now for the selection of your contestant for this year's convention drill when we meet in Smithfield on the first and second of May. All the expenses of the winner and one half of the expenses of the runner-up are paid by the convention for their attendance at a week of encampment at Cragmont during League Week. Why not let this year's winner be one of your leaguers?

The Standard Sword Drill is composed of five major types of drills. Briefly, they are as follows:

1. Scripture searching. In this drill the leader announces a verse of Scripture to be found, and the leaguers find the reference and read it.

2. Book drill. The name of some book in the Bible is mentioned in this drill. The leaguers find the book. They then must be able to tell which book comes before this book and which follows it.

3. Character drill. The name of some Bible character is given. Leaguers find the name of the character in the Bible. It must be found in the body of a verse and not at the heading of a chapter. This drill can be varied by telling some facts about the character without calling his name.

4. Unfinished quotation drill. The leader quotes the first part of a verse of Scripture. The boys and girls must know its location and turn to it in the Bible.

5. Doctrinal drill. The leader asks the group to find a verse in the Bible setting forth some great Bible doctrine. For example, "Find a verse which proves that faith in Christ saves"; or, "Find a verse proving that all have sinned." The plan of salvation may be worked into this drill.

Try some of these drills in your league. With little modification, they can be used with juniors through adults. Use some of your ideas and make the Bible more interesting and powerful by applying different techniques. As Sword drill leader of the North Carolina State League Convention, I challenge league sponsors and Sword drill leaders to begin a renewed effort to help train your young people in the effective use of the Word of God. Watch The Free Will Baptist for later announcements concerning the details of the state drill. If I may be of service to your league, please contact me at 617 East Front Street in New Bern, North Carolina. May we sincerely "Seek the Kingdom of God First" as we study His Word and strive to be more fruitful Christians. Let's accept the challenge of Christian education by offering our youth a program that will meet their needs and make them better Christians and better citizens.

chairman, Becky Nowell; treasurer, Danny Lee; benevolence chairman, Carolyn Massengill; mission chairman, Gail Gilbert; study course chairman, Gayle Hill; educational chairman, Cathy Evans; corresponding secretary, Vickie Evans; outreach secretary, Dennis Lee. As a project for the month, the group decided to send tray cards to Johnston Memorial Hospital on Valentine Day.

The group then sang "Walking with Jesus," after which Mrs. Boyd pronounced the benediction.

Newport, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting on February 4 at the home of Mrs. Pat Gurganus. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Jean Rowe, who welcomed all members and visitors.

The program was then turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. Pat Gurganus. The group sang "The Kingdom Is Coming," after which Scripture was read from Philippians 4:9-13 by Mrs. Jean Rowe.

Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Floraine Slaughter, Mrs. Kathleen Slaughter, Mrs. Ann Garner, and Mrs. Dorla Hill. The group then sang "His Way with Thee," after which the group prayed together the Lord's Prayer.

There were eighteen members, two visitors, and one new member present.

After a brief business session Mrs. Dorla Hill dismissed the group with prayer.

The years write their records on men's hearts as they do on trees; inner circles of growth which no eye can see.—Saxe Holm.

Over 300 Attend Cape Fear Youth Fellowship

On Saturday evening, February 1, 1964, Robert's Grove Church, Route 1, Dunn, North Carolina, was host to the Cape Fear Youth Fellowship. Over 300 attended.

Mr. Jerry Honeycutt of the local church served as master of ceremonies for the evening. The girls' trio of Robert's Grove and the inspiring youth choir of St. Paul, under the direction of Mrs. Emerson Warren, furnished the special music. Chorus time was led by the pastor, the Rev. David C. Hansley; and the Rev. Wayne West served as pianist. The highlight of the evening was the message, "The Easy Way Out," by the Rev. Wayne West.

A wonderful fellowship and social hour was enjoyed in the new educational building. The ladies of the church were in charge of refreshments.

After the social hour everyone returned to the sanctuary for the election of officers. Those elected were as follows: president, Jerry Honeycutt, Robert's Grove; vice-president, Gary Price, Goldsboro; secretary-treasurer, Jean Lee, Smithfield; song leader, Danny Coates, Hopewell; pianist, Jean Blinson, Powhatan.

The First Church of Goldsboro will be host to the next Youth Fellowship, February 29, 1964, at 7:30 p. m.

Burning Desire

Call it what you will, there is a waiting before God that we hurried, modern mortals do not know; that sends a man back to his task with the hand of God upon him in such a fashion that the waters of Jordan part before him. It is not that God puts a premium on fasting, and nightlong prayers, and tears, and austerities of the flesh. But He does reward burning desire for His very best—that leaves no stone unturned.—Vance Hayner.

Editorial—

A FAITHFUL SAYING

The Apostle Paul wrote to Timothy, his son in the ministry, "This a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief" (1 Timothy 1:15). Whatever else we may think about God's direct entrance into human life this is the one and only purpose—to save sinners. To the apostle this was a faithful, or true and worthy statement. He could so testify because he had been a most vile and wretched sinner: "Chief among sinners," he said.

This message is the very heart of each Christian's purpose. This is not to say, however, that each Christian must preach or even teach before others. The greatest testimony is that of personal belief and example that Christ has saved us and that we live that example daily. Thus, each and every act and deed is done in the personal knowledge of Christ as our Saviour.

This, then, is the message of the Church. It is likewise the message that the minister must herald from the pulpit. It is the truth that must be remembered and taught by the teacher before the Sunday school class. Each lesson and message must hinge around this truth—Christ came to save sinners. The message cannot be heralded unless we show knowledge of that salvation.

It was fourteen years ago that we found a statement in "The Free Will Baptist" that appealed to us a great deal. In fact, we clipped it and pasted it in the inside of our Bible. We do not know who the author is but it reads as follows: "Young soldier of the Cross, if you would preach the gospel throughly, and give full proof of your ministry, you must have no other work. You won't need to have anything to fall back on nor to become entangled in the affairs of this life." Some would perhaps argue with the message of this quotation, but we doubt that the wisdom of it can be refuted. The minister must give full proof of his ministry. He does this by proclaiming the gospel message.

The truth is that we, as messengers of this faithful saying, sometimes become entangled with other things: things that are secondary and of far less importance than the message of saving grace. Christ never stooped to some of the things that we find ourselves involved with.

Christ did not come into the world to revolutionize the government of that day. It is true that He obeyed its laws, but His purpose was not to begin a new political system. He was careful to do everything that was required of Him. In fact, they could find nothing of which to factually accuse Him. On the other hand, He did not align Himself with the factions of that day. He used His powers for the betterment of mankind, and thus caused men who believed to have better government.

Christ did not come to set up social standards. In fact, He broke down many of the social standards; but He replaced them with better and more just standards. For example, it was not socially acceptable among the Jews to visit the Samaritans; but Christ went through Samaria. Thus, He brought salvation to a sinful woman and an entire city. The Christian must not conform to the social patterns and standards of the world just for conformity's sake. Christ wants those who will dare to be different for His glory and the advancement of His kingdom.

Christ did not come into the world to win the approval and popularity of the world. If He had been interested in man's approval alone, He would never have driven the money changers out of the temple court, or condemned the hypocrisy of the Pharisees. A righteous and holy man will be disliked.

If the Church of this twentieth century would faithfully proclaim the message that Christ came to save sinners, and if everything done was with this truth in mind, the Church would advance like a mighty army. Nothing else, not even parties, socials, and dinners, can substitute for the pure proclamation of this message—Christ came to save sinners.

The Book of Books

"THE FREE METHODIST"

FIGURES RECENTLY released through a survey of 150 publishers indicate that the Bible is still the world's best seller. We are not surprised. Neither are we surprised to learn that the King James Bible outsells all the other translations put together by a ratio of four to one. Two current English translations, it is reported, are selling at a brisk pace, but it will be some time before they catch up—certainly not in the near future—to the popularity the version of 1611 now enjoys. There are good reasons for this, of course. For one thing, the King James Bible is great literature, a fact accepted on all sides. It has a charm, a beauty and a majesty which sets it apart and makes it unique. Some years back a prominent convert to the Roman Catholic church paid a warm tribute to the surpassing excellence of this version in the following words, "It lives in the ear like a music that can never be forgotten, like the sound of church-bells, which the convert hardly knows how he can forego. Its felicities often seem to be almost things rather than mere words." At the time these words were written, he could also state, "It is part of the national mind, and the anchor of national seriousness."

But the Bible contains some of the finest world's literature in its own right, and regardless of the translation in which it appears. Ernest Renan, an outstanding French orientalist and avowed liberal, declared that Luke's Gospel was the most beautiful book in the world and, incidentally, that the Gospel of Matthew was the most important book that had ever been written. In more recent times H. G. Wells, no friend of the church, added his support to the high quality of at least a part of the Bible. Asked to write on the ten most important books in the world, he confessed he was too much of a heretic to choose the Gospel of John; he therefore selected the Book of Isaiah!

Yet the Bible was not written merely as a masterpiece of literature. That was in fact quite incidental. The Bible presents us with timeless ethical teachings which are universally accepted. Fifteen years ago a certain journalist decided to find out from a "blue ribbon" jury which in their opinion were the greatest moments in history. Could they roll time back, what two scenes from the past would they select to shoot with a camera if they had only two rolls of film available. All 17 men and women who replied were well-known Americans from various walks of life. None of them was a minister, rabbi or priest, and perhaps not one could have been called an evangelical Christian. Yet the results of this questionnaire were astounding. Three out of every 5 of all the first and second choices were scenes taken right out of the Bible! And the scene which received the highest number of choices was that of Jesus delivering the Sermon on the Mount! No wonder, then, that Journalist Crandell was moved to write, "Remembered most as having top importance in history are the events which contributed to man's progress—to his freedom, his spiritual concepts, his code of ethics, his battle for universal brotherhood."

Preeminent as the Bible is for its splendid literature and for its sublime ethical teachings, both of which make it a book of singular power, still these are not the reasons we have the Bible. The great apostle to the Gentiles spoke of the Holy Scriptures as having been written "for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope"; that they "are able to make thee wise unto salvation" and are "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." The intent of the Bible is religious through and through, and this is the basic reason for its extraordinary power. It has a distinctiveness about it that no other literature can match. It is a volume divinely inspired.

What the Bible will do to a person who reads it with close attention and with an open mind has been told over and over again. What a portion of it did to a noted classical scholar not long since serves only to demonstrate how potent the Book of Books is after all. Our scholar friend was prevailed upon to translate the four Gospels into English. Hearing of this project, his son, who is a scholar in his own right, remarked that it would be interesting to see what his father would do with the Gospels, but still more interesting to see what the Gospels would do "with father." Speaking about his work on the Gospels after it was completed, the translator said, "It . . . changed me. My work changed me. And I came to the conclusion . . . that these works bear the seal of the Son of Man and God."

In the preface to his translation of the Book of Acts, J. B. Phillips has told us how alive the material he was working on seemed to be. He never knew when he might receive what he likened to an electric shock! The revered founder of Methodism has given us one of the most moving eulogies ever accorded the Sacred Volume. It bears frequent repetition. No apology need be made for including it here. It goes to the heart of the question, "Why the Bible?" "I have thought I am a creature of a day. I am a spirit come from God, and returning to God. I want to know one thing—the way to heaven. God Himself has condescended to teach me the way. He hath written it down in a book. Oh, give me that book! At any price, give me the book of God! I have it; here is knowledge enough for me. Let me be homo unius libri. Here then I am, far from the busy ways of men. I sit down alone: only God is here. In His presence, I read His Book; for this end, to find the way to heaven. . . ."

THE CHURCH - WORLD-WIDE

10 More Protestant Churches Permitted to Reopen in Spain

Madrid (EP)—Ten more Protestant places of worship were authorized to reopen in January, it was reported here by Jose Cardona, secretary general of the Evangelical Defense Commission (Comision de Defensa Evangelica). The churches had been closed long ago by provincial authorities.

Mr. Cardona said the denominations involved in the new easing of restrictions on Protestant worship centers were the Baptist Church, the Plymouth Brethren, the Methodist Church, the Spanish Evangelical Church and bodies belonging to the Federation of Independent Evangelical Churches of Spain which are commonly referred to as the "independent" churches.

Three churches were permitted to reopen in Barcelona—one Baptist, one Plymouth Brethren and one Independent—the Protestant official said.

The other reopenings, each involving a single denomination, took place in Zaragoza (Evangelical), Arenys del Mar (Independent), Castellon de la Plana (Baptist), Mollerusa (Independent), Badajoz (Methodist), Termens (Plymouth Brethren), and Ubeda (Independent).

Earlier, Mr. Cardona had reported the opening or reopening of 13 Protestant places of worship during 1963, as well as abatement in the difficulties previously experienced by Protestants in contracting civil marriages.

Protestantism in Spain is estimated to have 30,000 registered communicants. The total population of this traditionally Roman Catholic country is more than 30,000,000.

British Clergy Oppose 'River of American Dirt'

London (EP)—A public campaign to control the flow of pornographic literature into this country from the United States is being planned by the newly established London Committee Against Obscenity.

The committee is headed by Father Thomas Corbishley, of the famed Jesuit Farm Street Church, and supported by the Rev. Kenneth Greet of the Methodist Department of Christian Citizenship, and Rabbi Raymond Apple of the Bayswater Synagogue.

In a statement here, the committee complained that "tens of thousands" of pornographic and obscene American magazines are pouring into Britain.

Declaring that these magazines are reported enjoying heavy sales, the committee said "this river of American dirt is causing harm to British youth."

Laymen Authorized to Preach During Critical Clergy Shortage

Munich, Germany (EP)—To relieve the acute clergy shortage in rural areas of West Germany, the Lutheran Church of Bavaria has issued a decree permitting competent laymen to preach sermons. They also will be allowed to sing the liturgy.

The "lectors," as the lay preachers are called, require special authorization from Church authorities. The position of "lector" originated during World War II when many pastors were drafted for military service.

Red Propaganda Program Hits U. S. for Jewish Persecution

Moscow (EP)—A Jewish editor who recently visited the U. S. was interviewed here in a Soviet propaganda broadcast aimed at American Jews.

Aaron Vergelis, editor-in-chief of Sovietish Kheymland, Yiddish language weekly, spoke in English as he commented on U. S. "misconceptions of Jewish freedom in the USSR" and the "discrimination faced by Jews in America."

He said he was "astonished at the kind of life American Jews lead."

In Williamsburg, a New York City neighborhood, he said he found "a real Jewish ghetto" where Jews lived as they lived in the Russia of the 18th and 19th Centuries.

"I was amazed to learn about anti-Semitism in the United States," he said. "I have seen places closed to both Jews and Negroes. I have seen anti-Semitic literature circulated widely."

He claimed that he had been told in the U. S. about "frequent hoodlum raid on synagogues" and heard that "many organizations, both government and private" refuse to hire Jews.

"Of course," he qualified his remarks. "I don't mean to say that all Jews are badly off in the U. S. A. and that they are all ostracized. I saw many Jews among college students and faculty members and attended a big Jewish meeting in which all the proceedings were in Jewish."

"What worries me," he continued, "is why does the American press have to lie about Soviet Jews? Why do they have to invent stories about anti-Semitism in the USSR? The worst of it is not that they lie, but that most Jews and the American people believe the lies for lack of any true information about the Soviet Union."

He suggested an "exchange of true information" about Jews in the U. S. and Russia and concluded his broadcast by saying: "I would like to invite all American Jews who come to the Soviet Union to call at the offices of Sovetish Heymland. The address is 17 Kirov Street, Moscow."

(Jewish leaders in the U. S. have documented many instances of Jewish persecution by the Soviet Union. On several occasions the U. S. Senate has been informed of Soviet oppression of Jews in addresses by Sen. Jacob Javits and Sen. Kenneth Keating of New York.)

Taylor Named NAE General Director

Washington, D. C. (EP)—After serving almost 20 years as the director of public affairs for the National Association of Evangelicals, Dr. Clyde W. Taylor has been named general director of the Association.

He will continue to serve here in Washington where he has aided evangelicals since October 1944, when the capital office was opened to assist foreign mission agencies.

Dr. Taylor also will continue as executive secretary of the Evangelical Foreign Missions Association.

His appointment came in late January (continued on page fifteen)

Christian Education

Mount Olive College Library Continues To Grow

Thomas Carlyle once said, "The true university is a collection of books." An education at Mount Olive requires extensive use of the library. The college is grateful to its many friends who are helping the library to grow.

Almost everyday, special gifts are received for new books. During the past ten years the number of volumes has grown to nearly 10,000. More than 75 periodicals are received regularly.

During the first seven months of the current fiscal year (July 1, 1963, through January 31, 1964) library expenditures for new books have totaled $1,360 and expenditures for binding and supplies have been $1,751 for a total of $3,111. This amount needs to be greatly increased in order to keep the library growing and to provide adequate research facilities for an enlarged student body.

In January the college library received a check for $422 from the earnings of The J. C. Moye Trust Fund. This income is received annually from an endowment established by the late Mr. Moye of Snow Hill, North Carolina, and is a valuable source of support. Though he is dead, Mr. Moye still speaks to the students of Mount Olive College through the library.

Other friends of the college are giving $5 for the purchase of a book in memory or in honor of friends and loved ones. Many people now send a library gift in lieu of flowers. Our goal is a book in the library in the name of every Original Free Will Baptist.

The college welcomes the support of all of its friends in helping to develop its library into a strong center of learning.

"Books are masters who instruct us without words or anger, without bread or money. If you approach them, they are not asleep. If you seek them, they do not hide, if you blunder, they do not scold, if you are ignorant, they do not laugh at you."—Richard de Bury.

College Gifts At All-Time High

Gifts to Mount Olive College during the current fiscal year are at an all-time high, President W. Burkette Raper disclosed today. For the seven-months period, July 1 through January 31, cash gifts have totaled $95,527.

Of this amount Free Will Baptists, who sponsor the college, have given $88,721, and the Mount Olive College Area Foundation, along with the Mount Olive and Goldsboro communities, have given $2,637. Receipts from other foundations and friends have totaled $4,169. These figures do not include gifts to the College Area Foundation which have not yet been appropriated to the college.

Gifts to the development fund since July 1, which are included in the above figures, have totaled $58,065.

College Day at Stoney Creek Church

Dr. Roy O'Donnell, dean of Mount Olive College, will speak at the morning worship service at Stoney Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Goldsboro, North Carolina, on Sunday, March 1. The church has designated this date as Mount Olive College Day. The Rev. Joseph Ingram is pastor.

College Day at Rains Crossroads

Rains Crossroads Free Will Baptist Church near Kenly, North Carolina, will observe Sunday, March 1, as Mount Olive College Day. President W. Burkette Raper will teach the Young People's Sunday School Class at 9:45 a. m. and preach at the morning worship service. The Rev. N. D. Wiggs Jr. is pastor.

DELIGHTS OF THE CROSS

"The preaching of the cross is . . . the power of God" (I Cor. 1:18).

Adieu! ye vain delights of earth;
 Insipid sports, and childish mirth,
 I taste no sweets in you;
 Unknown delights are in the cross,
 All joy beside to me is dross;
 And Jesus thought so, too.

The cross! Oh, ravishment and bliss,
 How grateful even its anguish is,
 Its bitterness how sweet!
 There every sense, and all the mind,
 In all her faculties refined,
 Tastes happiness complete.

Martha Glynn Jenkins Receives Award

Miss Martha Glynn Jenkins of New Bern, North Carolina, was recently awarded the Teenager-of-the-Year Award at the Annual Distinguished Service Awards banquet of the New Bern Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Jenkins, is a senior at New Bern High School where she is a member of the Honor Society, Student Council, A Cappella Choir and Senior Girls Tri-Hi-Y; was chief marshal at graduation exercises last June; was processional leader at the National Citizenship Conference held in Washington, D. C., in September; is a junior hostess at Tryon Palace; and has a high school scholastic average of 95.78 for her four years.

She is a member of St. Mary's Free Will Baptist Church; a member of the church choir; president of the YFA; president of the Free Will Baptist League; and president of the Senior Sunday School Class.

Martha Glynn has been very active in the youth work of the church, having written two programs for the YFA program book used by North Carolina youth and having won declamation contests in her church and the Eastern District for several years.

She has been accepted at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for the coming college year.

Pastor and Wife Entertain Board Members and Wives

The Rev. Earl H. Glenn, pastor of Saint Mary's Original Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, and Mrs. Glenn entertained the members of the general board of the church and their wives at a supper Friday night, February 14. The meal—consisting of home-cooked Italian spaghetti, tossed salad, potato chips, pickles, French rolls, coffee, pie, and cake—was served to approximately forty guests. The Glenns were assisted in serving the guests by

After the meal Mr. Glenn led the group in singing several old familiar songs: "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "When You Wore a Tulip," "You Are My Sunshine," and others. Mrs. Glenn read the stories of two romances which ultimately led to marriage. The group guessed that these were the true stories of Mrs. Miller Harrison and Mrs. Durwood Hancock. Several other games were played during the evening.

At the close of the fellowship period the group formed a friendship circle and sang "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." Benediction was offered by Mr. U. W. Daugherty.

Note Burning Service At Kinston Church

A note burning service was held recently at the First Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston, North Carolina.

Pictured above are the following: Mr. Herbert Bradshaw, trustee; Mr. Gordon Pike, trustee; Mr. Stanly Jenkins, chairman of board of trustees; the Rev. A. B. Bryan, pastor; and Mr. J. E. Harris, honorary deacon for life and the oldest member of the church, having united with the church in 1910.

Bowen to Conduct Goldsboro Revival

The Rev. C. F. Bowen, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church in Wilson, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for revival services at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Goldsboro, North Carolina, March 2-7. He will be assisted in the services by the pastor, the Rev. James A. Evans. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The pastor and the church extend a cordial invitation to everyone in this area to attend if possible.

Kinston Church Continues To Make Progress

In October of last year, the First Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston, North Carolina, dedicated its church plant. In preparation for dedication a renovation and redecoration program costing more than $6,500 was almost completed.

In the renovation and redecoration program a modern fiberglass baptistry was installed, two dressing rooms were added, and two restrooms were provided for the sanctuary. A new musical sound system and modern lighting fixtures were installed. Also the choir and chancel area has been modernized for better appearance. The pulpit furniture has been reupholstered with matching scarves and baptismal drapes. The church sanctuary, chapel, church office, and most of the classrooms and hallways have been redecorated; also a much needed larger nursery was provided. The heating plant has been completely overhauled, and recently an activity bus was donated to the church for youth and scout work by the deacon board chairman, Mr. Frank Crary. The church bus will be used by any department of the church for group activities and outings.

During youth week, which was held January 26 to February 2, more than seventy-five young people took over the complete services of the church. Under the direction of Mrs. Jack Everett, YFA and AFC officers were installed on Sunday night, January 26. On the following Tuesday night ten different services were held with the shut-in members of the congregation, followed by an instruction period with the pastor and Sunday school worker's council. Afterwards a fellowship hour was enjoyed by all. Services were held Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights, coming to a climax with the Sunday school and morning worship services being conducted by the youth. All positions were filled by youth of the church.

On Sunday night, February 2, a film, "The Tony Fontane Story," was shown. In the closing service on Sunday night approximately fifteen came forward for rededication.

CHILDREN'S HOME REPORTS ON CONDITION OF SANDRA MERCER

By M. L. JOHNSON, Superintendent

In a previous issue of The Free Will Baptist we reported the sickness of one of our children, Sandra Mercer, age 15. Because of the widespread interest and concern of our people, we are releasing this report as of February 20.

Sandra was admitted to the Carolina General Hospital in Wilson on January 21 and was moved to the North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill on January 25. It required several days for the doctors to determine exactly what her trouble is. Her illness has been diagnosed as nephritis, with rather serious kidney damage.

Now that they know what Sandra's illness is, the doctors at Chapel Hill hope that they will be able to control the disease itself. At this time they feel that her condition has stabilized to the point that she can be moved back to the hospital in Wilson within a few days, and after a short time she can return home. However, it is expected that special care and treatment will be necessary for some time. We urge our people to continue to make her condition, her needs, and those who minister to her needs the object of special prayer.

All has been done, and is still being done, for Sandra that the doctors, hospital personnel, Children's Home per-

Those directing youth week were Mrs. Joe Ethridge; Mrs. F. M. Register; Mrs. Jack Everett; and the pastor, the Rev. A. B. Bryan.

The pastor says, "Our youth took over with dignity. No program seems to be more thrilling and challenging to our youth than the youth week activities. I was overjoyed as I sat in the morning worship service and saw our fine youth carry on for the church. It was a grand occasion. I am looking forward to youth week again next year."

Mount Zion Host To Youth Rally

sonnel, and friends know to do. We are most grateful for the many prayers, the widespread interest and concern, and the willingness of our people to do all they can. Sandra expresses her deep appreciation for the many prayers, cards, letters, gifts, and other remembrances on the part of her many friends.

We are also grateful for the many gifts that are being received to help pay the hospital and medical expenses. The hospitals are giving us the benefit of very reasonable rates. Doctors are donating their services. However, the drugs and treatments that have been used, and are still being used, are very expensive. We do not know what the final cost of this illness will be, but we are grateful that special gifts for this purpose are helping to pay the expenses to this date.

We assure our people that we shall continue to do all that we can for Sandra. We will try to keep our people informed about her condition. We invite your continued prayers, support, and remembrances of Sandra.

No Time to Pray

There is many a businessman today that will tell you he has no time to pray; his business is so pressing that he cannot call his family around him and ask God to bless them. He is so busy that he cannot ask God to keep him and them from the temptations of the present life—the temptations of every day. "Business is so pressing!"

I am reminded of the words of an old Methodist minister: "If you have so much business to attend to that you have no time to pray, depend upon it that you have more business upon hand than God ever intended you should have."

But look at Daniel. He had the whole or nearly the whole of the king's business to attend to. He was prime minister, secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, all in one. He had to attend to all his own work, and give an eye to the work of lots of other men. Yet he found time to pray—not just now and then, nor once a day; not just when he happened to have a few moments to spare but "three times a day."—D. L. Moody.

Attention Youth Chairmen of Eastern District

As spring planting time is approaching in Eastern North Carolina, the planting time for our youth chairmen is at hand. We must get the seeds of interest, zeal, love, and spirituality into the fertile minds and hearts of each of our children and young people. We have the following groups:

- Cherub Auxiliary — Children through 8
- Girls' Auxiliary — Girls 9 through 13
- Boys' Auxiliary — Boys 9 through 13
- Ambassadors for Christ—Children 9 through 13
- Youth Fellowship Auxiliary—Youth 14 through 19

In order that you might have a guide in this endeavor, there are books available at the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden, North Carolina, at a cost of 50c each. They are "Ambassadors for Christ" and "Youth Fellowship Auxiliary," and each contains a watchword, motto, hymn, and colors, along with a suggested program which may be used at your meetings.

Each group has a state youth project for 1964: "To provide recreational facilities and equipment for Cragmont Assembly."

At the present time we have not established ranks or steps; however, I plan to have some supplementary material which your young folk may work with until our state material is published. I am sending a copy of this material to the auxiliaries for which I have names and addresses. If you do not receive a copy for your auxiliary, please let me know.

I would like to take this opportunity to say to all youth chairmen that I want to work with you individually as much as possible and will be glad to meet with you in your groups if I can be of any assistance.

On March 14 the Eastern District Youth Convention will meet at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Kinston. I hope that each auxiliary will have a good representation present if possible. This convention will start with registration at 4 p. m., and the program will begin at 4:30 p. m. On the program will be the winner of our essay contest. The declamation contest will be held during the convention. Each church may represent to the district with a contestant for each age group. The subject of the declamation is "Stewardship," and the rules are in both the AFC and YFA program books. I have some typed declamations which I will be glad for you to use; however, you will receive more credit if the declamations are original.

There is not much working time left, so let's get busy planting these seeds and harvest the results on March 14 at Kinston. Please do not slight the essay contest either. The essay subject is, "What I Believe in as an Original Free Will Baptist." You perhaps know some of your group who can write better than speak, or visa versa. Ask your pastor's help in encouraging these young people to work on these projects.

You will remember I mentioned our project for 1964. Please send the project money with your group to the convention in order that we might recognize each group and receive the money.

A report blank is provided for AFC and YFA groups (similar to the woman's auxiliary report blank) in your program books which I would also like to receive by March 1, along with a $1 representation fee. The amount of 50c will remain in our district for promotional work, with the remaining 50c going to our state chairman, Mrs. David Hansley.

Now, youth chairmen, please read this carefully and you might even desire to keep it awhile for reference. If you have no helpers, enlist your auxiliary member to help you. I'm finding it is a full-time job from my standpoint.

This isn't all the youth chairman is responsible for, but this needs to be attended to immediately! You'll be hearing more from me very soon! Let our motto be: "Train up a child in the way he should go, . . ." (Proverbs 22:6).

Please let me hear from you. Let us all work together for the glory of Christ.

Mrs. Reginald T. Styrer
District Youth Chairman

Attention Benevolence Chairmen of Eastern District

We have a great responsibility in our work as benevolence chairmen. As we start this year of 1964, we trust that you will do a greater work in your department than in 1963.

Maybe you are not sure what our work is; thus I shall list our duties as benevolence chairmen:

1. We should lead in benevolence activities. We should always start in our own community. There are always people that need help.
2. We should sponsor cottage prayer meetings. We should plan meetings in homes of shut-ins and the unsaved.
3. We should keep the needs of our Children's Home before the members. There is so much we can do along this line. We can adopt a child and send gifts of linens, towels, clothing, and food.
4. We should give aid to retired ministers and their widows. We should never forget them for they have given their lives for us. We owe them much more than we can ever repay.

We are responsible for Point 9 of the Standard Achievement Chart. For our auxiliary to be "A-1" we must do some type of benevolence service each month.

The benevolence chairman should have her activities already planned before the monthly meeting.

We have work to do; let's not fail our people, especially those around us. Now is the accepted time to work! "For we are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building" (1 Corinthians 3:9).

Mrs. Woodrow McCoy
Benevolence Chairman
of Eastern District

Kenly, N. C.—The YFA of Saint Mary's Free Will Baptist Church held its regular meeting Sunday, January 26, at 6 p. m. The president, Thurman West, presided over the meeting. The meeting was opened by the members' singing "Ready" and several other favorite choruses. Afterwards, the pastor, the Rev. J. C. Yates, led the group in prayer.

Following a short business meeting, a very inspiring program, entitled "In Step with Jesus for the New Year," was given by Margaret Leigh Pittman.

Present at the meeting were twenty-two members, the pastor, and three visitors. The meeting was adjourned with the group's praying the benediction prayer.

The YFA then continued its work for God by being in charge of the Sunday night church service, during which the officers for 1964 were installed. Mr. Yates and the youth chairman, Mrs. Jim Mumford, presented a candlelight installation service entitled "Stepping into Service." The officers for the coming year are as follows: president, Thurman West; vice-president, Danny Yates; mission chairman, Emma Lou Overman; study course chairman, Hilda Pittman; educational chairman, Sue Moore; program-prayer chairman, Margaret Leigh Pittman; benevolence chairman, Kay Overman; recording secretary, Brenda Lamm; corresponding secretary, Elaine Mumford; outreach secretary, Annette Ford; treasurer, Barbara Barnes; assistant treasurer, Pat Turner.

Following the installation service, special music was rendered by the YFA trio. The service was then turned over to Mrs. Jim Mumford, who gave an interesting talk on "The Master Is Coming."

The invitation was given by Mr. Yates, and Lloyd Edwards pronounced the benediction.

All the youth were then invited to the home of Danny Yates for a social hour. During this time refreshments were served and games were played and enjoyed by everyone.

General Principles of Ethics and Procedure For Cragmont Assembly and Conferences

(As approved by Board of Directors in session January 20, 1964)

All organizations sponsoring conferences, camps, or meetings of any kind at Cragmont Assembly, Inc., Black Mountain, North Carolina; and all persons directing or managing such conferences, camps, or other meetings; and all persons employed by Cragmont Assembly, shall observe the following general principles of ethics in managing the assembly and in arranging for and directing said meetings at the assembly:

FIRST: All those who use Cragmont Assembly facilities are to keep in mind that Cragmont is a Christian institution, and that all the property has been dedicated to God and, therefore, must be used with due reverence and in such a way that God will be honored.

SECOND: Organizations using Cragmont facilities, and all committees preparing programs for use in connection with conferences or other meetings at Cragmont, must respect the fact that Cragmont Assembly is the property of statewide organizations operating under the Treatise of Faith and Practices of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, and in no case shall any organization or group use Cragmont Assembly buildings for meetings hostile to the interests of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina as represented by the four statewide bodies owning and controlling the assembly, to wit: The North Carolina Free Will Baptist Convention of Churches, the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Sunday School Convention, the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary Convention, and the North Carolina Free Will Baptist League Convention.

THIRD: Since the proclaimed purpose of Cragmont from the beginning has been to provide "inspiration, information, and recreation in a Christian atmosphere" and to promote better understanding among Free Will Baptists, all leaders and instructors employed in the conferences, camps, and other meetings are to avoid as much as possible allowing controversial issues between various groups or factions of Free Will Baptists to be discussed in the conferences, or among the workers, since Cragmont conferences are not in any sense policy making or legislative meetings. (This does not apply to official meetings of organizations that may be allowed to use the facilities for regularly scheduled meetings of the organizations.)

FOURTH: All persons employed as counselors or other workers in the conferences, as teachers of courses which are made a part of any conference, or as workers in connection with the operation of the assembly, shall be Free Will Baptists in good standing with organizations not antagonistic to the North Carolina conventions that own Cragmont Assembly. (This does not apply to the employment on a temporary basis of local workers by the management to supplement the regular workers when needed.)

FIFTH: No subjects shall be taught in any conference, camp, or other meeting at Cragmont which conflict with the recognized doctrines of the Original Free Will Baptists.

SIXTH: An outline program, or schedule, showing subjects to be taught, names of instructors, and general activities planned, shall be submitted to the conference committee prior to being carried out at Cragmont. It shall be understood that each organization which is assigned a period for a conference, camp, or meeting agrees to abide by the decisions made by the committee relative to any subject taught or to any instructor or worker to be employed. It is to be understood further that if the committee does not file any objection, or request any change in a program or staff, the same shall be considered as approved.

SEVENTH: The wearing of shorts or any other kind of immodest apparel on the campus, in the dining room, or in any places in the building occupied by both sexes, is prohibited during all scheduled conferences, camps, or meetings. (It is understood that this does not apply to the wearing of "peddle-pushers," "dungarees," or other similar forms of attire approved by matrons or deans for wearing on hikes or during sport activities—but these shall not be worn in chapel or during classes.)

EIGHTH: No director or other agent of any conference while soliciting registrants for his conference shall attempt to persuade persons who have already registered for some other conference to change their registration in order to go with his group. All methods of solicitation must be Christian and ethical.

QUOTES

THE PRECIOUSNESS OF FAITH

"Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:1).

Faith is the sincere credence of testimony. The faith referred to in the text is clearly the belief of the gospel, by which Jesus is received into the soul as the only Saviour from guilt, condemnation, and the wrath to come. Faith is not only an important grace in religion, but it is the very foundation of it, and there cannot be genuine and evangelical piety without it. The apostle directs our attention to its preciousness.

FAITH IS PRECIOUS IN ITS OBJECT

That object is the Lord Jesus Christ. Who can tell the preciousness of the blessed Redeemer? In the dignity of His person, He is higher than the loftiest seraph in the skies. He is the Son of the Most High, the incarnate Deity, Jehovah-Jesus Immanuel, God with us, the Creator of the universe, the ruler of worlds, the upholder of all things, the terror of devils, the benefactor of earth, and the joy of heaven. No language can describe Him. No imagination can reach the height of His dignity and His glories. And He is the only object of faith. We may hearken to Moses, sit in the school of the prophets, or joyfully listen to the tidings of the apostles and evangelists; but we are only called to believe on or in the name of the Son of God.

FAITH IS PRECIOUS IN HIS TESTIMONY

The testimony which faith receives is the glorious gospel of the blessed God. The value of this testimony cannot be calculated. It is the word of God, the word of life, the word of salvation. It reveals tidings, divine and eternal. It is more precious than thousands of silver and gold; yea, more precious than all this world. Jesus said, "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Mark 8:36, 37). One single verse of this Scripture is worth more than all the books in the world. In fact, mortal man cannot estimate the value of these words. We may imagine and reach to the limit of our thinking, but we must have a mind greater than that of man to comprehend the preciousness of faith. Truly it ". . . is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Hebrew 11:1).

FAITH IS PRECIOUS IN ITS BENEFITS

We are saved by faith. The jailer at Philippi said to Paul and Silas, ". . . Sirs, what must I do to be saved? And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:30, 31).

We are justified by faith. "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God . . ." (Romans 5:1). But this faith is made possible through our Lord Jesus Christ. "By whom we also have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God" (Romans 5:2).

"But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets. Even the righteousness of God, which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe: . . ." (Romans 3:21, 22).

WE ARE SANCTIFIED BY FAITH

Jesus prayed, "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth" (John 17:17). But to receive this sanctification, we must have faith in all that Christ taught and accomplished for us. We must be as willing to receive as God is to give; and when this is true, the work is done. By faith we receive eternal and complete salvation. May we examine 1 Peter 1:7-9: "That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found to praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ: Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory: Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls."

Believers, according to John, know that they have eternal life (1 John 5:13).

FAITH IS PRECIOUS IN HIS INFLUENCE

Jesus said, ". . . he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" (John 11:26).

The life that we live as a Christian is a life of faith. The limit of our activities is the measure of our faith. It has been said, "A little faith will take us to heaven, and a great faith will take heaven to us." However, it is impossible to please God without faith (Hebrews 11:6). We are saved and kept by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

FAITH PRODUCES AN ENRICHING INFLUENCE

"For by it the elders obtained a good report" (Hebrews 11:2). Our influence upon others reaches no farther than our faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. We must be dominated by the Christ who said, ". . . Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace" (Luke 7:50).

We cannot be acceptable to God without faith. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36).

VICTORY TO THE CHILD OF GOD IS BY FAITH

Paul the apostle writes, "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:57).

This victory is obtained through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. When we pray, we must believe that God answers our prayers through Jesus Christ. Faith must be the foundation for works: "Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar? Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was his faith made perfect?" (James 2:21, 22).

So may we cherish that precious faith that takes us out of the bondage of sin and makes us children of God. This is precious faith to the redeemed of God. It is precious because there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. Precious faith takes us through, in the name of Jesus Christ.

FAITH IS PRECIOUS BECAUSE IT DOES NOT FAIL US IN DEATH

The psalmist says, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me" (Psalm 23:4). Thus faith that keeps us in intimate relationship with God is precious. But death itself

Questions & Answers

QUESTION: Please explain, "For this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to me in the flesh, but live according to God in the spirit" (1 Peter 4:6). What does Peter mean by preaching to the dead? How dead are these?—Jane Adams, Illinois.

ANSWER: I think this means that the gospel was preached to those who are now dead while they were yet living and active upon this earth and in the natural life. The gospel has not been preached to them since they died, but only while they were alive. The result is that, having accepted the gospel while they heard and were alive, they now live before God in the Spirit, even though while here upon this earth and in their bodies they suffered as men in the flesh and at the hands of evil men who were also here alive in the flesh.

Peter shows concern as he encourages his Christian hearers who, at the time of his writing, were passing through persecution by the example of Christ whom he holds before them as he does some of their own number who had passed hence. Some in their own number had been delivered and had triumphed in the power of Christ. They had been brought before the judgment seat of men as had Christ and had been judged in a like manner to that in which He had been judged. Therefore, they are now living in the presence of God the Father as Christ also is now living in that hallowed presence. Remember that these were those who had the gospel preached to them and those who accepted it, allowing its message to apply to them personally while alive here.

There is a widespread false teaching that interprets this verse to indicate that the gospel is universal in its aspect even to the end that lost souls in hell may hear and accept it and thereby be recovered from their suffering in hell to a place of ease and tranquility. Nothing could be further from the truth and from what the Bible teaches. Lenski agrees with this view, as seen on page 191 in his book The Epistles of St. Peter, St. John, and St. Jude, which I quote, "To state that Peter expounds Christ's right to judge the living and the dead, that Christ has this right only because the gospel is preached also to those in Hell, and that Peter makes clear the absolute universality of the gospel by pointing to its saving promulgation even in hell, is to do an injustice to the holy apostle Peter and to Christ himself."

There are many other scholars of note that might be named here as agreeing with Lenski, whose view I accept, but a few, such as Dr. Kenneth S. Wuest, Dr. C. I. Scofield, Dr. Albert Barnes, and Dr. James M. Gray, will suffice. Both the old and new Testaments teach that as a man lives here and dies so will he be judged and so will he spend eternity. A few Scriptures might also give weight to the evidence already brought before us. Here are a few of these: ". . . if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be" (Ecclesiastes 11:3).

Pay attention to the solemn words of Abraham who was resting peacefully in paradise with Lazarus who is depicted as being in his bosom: ". . . the rich man also died . . . in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, . . . And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, . . . and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented. And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence" (Luke 16:22-26). Also Mark quotes Christ saying, "And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched: Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched" (Mark 9:43, 44); "But he that shall blasphemize against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation" (Mark 3:29). "Even as Sodom and Gomorrha, and the cities about them in like manner, giving themselves over to fornication, and going after strange flesh, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire" (Jude 7).

I recognize these passages to be quite a few in number and of considerable length, and yet I think it worth the time and space to view them here because many false views of considerable popularity are excluding the eternal aspect of God's judgment from their popular doctrines that are gaining momentum from year to year as they attract an increasing number of young people reared in Christian homes. Any anti-eternal hell-fire doctrine is antigod, antichrist, and therefore antibiblical.

Identified by Their Hair

Kay Stadler

Jesus wanted to show how personal, and careful our heavenly Father's knowledge of us is. He said: "Do not two sparrows sell for a cent apiece? And yet not one of them can fall to the ground without your Father's notice. Even the very hairs on your head have all been counted by God. So stop being afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows."

Paul must have been thinking about this when everyone on the boat was very frightened at the threat of shipwreck. His faith was in God because, in answer to prayer, he had been assured God would protect them all from drowning. When Paul tried to calm the others, he expressed their deliverance from danger and harm by saying: "Not a hair will be lost from the head of a single one of you."

Did you know that your hair is just as different from the hair of anyone else as your other features or your fingerprints? Under the microscope two of your hairs among a lot of others could be identified and paired up. No wonder David said in the Psalms: "I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well."—Selected.

THE SECRET THAT WASN'T KEPT

Chester Shuler

PAULINE had been ill three days, and time was hanging heavily on her hands. She wondered and wondered what she could do. And then she had a caller.

When Mother came upstairs and said, "Mrs. Baker wishes to see you, dear," Pauline made a wry face which brought a look of mild rebuke from Mother.

"Sister Baker is a nice lady, Pauline. She means to be nice to you."

"I'm sorry, Mom," Pauline said. "I'll be good. Tell her to come up."

Mrs. Baker wasn't there ten minutes until Pauline was glad she had come. She was an interesting person and could tell the nicest stories. Before long Pauline was listening wide-eyed while her visitor related Bible stories in a new way. She made them sound so thrilling and different. She made the characters "talk," always using Bible words. Pauline guessed Mrs. Baker knew nearly all of the Bible by memory.

Then they sang a beautiful hymn together, after which Mrs. Baker said she must be going.

"Wait, please," begged Pauline. "May I ask a question?"

"Surely, dear."

"We junior girls have wondered how you can know so many Bible verses by heart, Mrs. Baker. And how you always know just which one to use. We've talked about it several times. We wanted to ask you, but—well, I guess I'm the first one to really know you well enough to do it."

Mrs. Baker's face was radiant with joy. She was so glad the girls had a desire to learn God's Word. "I'll be delighted to tell you how I memorize the Word, Pauline. It's a simple little plan which I worked out for myself. It has always aided me greatly, but I'm not too certain that it will work as well for others. In fact, I don't believe that anyone else has ever tried it."

Pauline let out a delighted little squeal. "Oh, good! Then we'll share a kind of secret, if you'll tell us."

"I suppose so, my dear. Only you probably won't wish to keep the secret very long."

"Please tell me about it."

When Mrs. Baker left 15 minutes later, Pauline was so excited that she had almost forgotten her headache and other pains. She had something really exciting to tell the class, and would they ever be pleased to get the information!

The superintendent of Pauline's Sunday School had often felt disappointed because so few persons would respond when he asked for Bible verses. He did not know how to help them, either.

Therefore, he was greatly cheered when he noticed about a month after Pauline's illness that a number of the junior girls responded almost immediately. He stopped some of the girls after church that morning and complimented them. "How did you learn so many verses, if I may ask?" he added.

"We have the grandest plan in the world!" Pauline exclaimed. "Mrs. Baker told us about it. See—each girl has her notebook along now."

The superintendent listened with interest when the girls promised to tell him all about their plan for learning Bible verses. They went into a nearby classroom and displayed their notebooks.

Each was a loose-leaf affair with leather cover. On the pages were written with ink the verses the girls wished to learn. Each learned two new verses a week. These were written down in any way that would help each girl learn them. Some words were printed, others underlined, some done in red ink.

"Mrs. Baker says that's the way she learns her verses," Pauline explained.

"Well, she certainly knows a great many passages of Scripture," the superintendent agreed. "Her plan must be a good one. But won't you tell me more?"

"We write down the verses in our own handwriting," Pauline continued excitedly, the other girls helping her. "Then we try to 'see' the pages or verses. It's just as easy! We could close our books now and reproduce them from memory, I suppose."

"Sounds like a most unusual plan," the superintendent agreed. "I am glad you found out about it, my girls. It makes me happy to hear you respond so quickly when verses are called for."

"It's sort of a 'secret,' you see," Pauline laughed. "But I think we'd better not be selfish with it."

"It would be good to share your secret with the other classes or individuals if they care to try it," the superintendent agreed. "And I'm sure you girls would gladly do that."

"We'll try to interest the intermediate class," Gladys promised.

"And I'll get after my brother Ben," Hazel declared.

The girls contacted others, too. They had some difficulty with the boys, because making notebooks seemed too much like "school" to suit them, at first. But when they noticed how quickly the girl could repeat verses, they accepted the idea as a challenge. "We'll show those smart girls!" they declared.

"I'm almost glad I was sick," Pauline told Mrs. Baker. "Because if I hadn't been sick, I might never have found out about your plan for learning Bible verses."

"And just suppose that I had not come to see you that day," smiled the lady. "You see, my dear, God has many things He wants each of His children to do, and we must be very careful that we do not fail Him in even one of them."

"I suppose that's the way it is with getting others to learn verses, then," Pauline said. "I'm glad we girls were not selfish with our secret plan."

Signs of the Times on The Mission Field

Rev. J. E. Timmons
Missionary to Mexico

We are made to wonder how much longer will Old Mexico be an open door for the gospel of our Christ. Word has come to us of a new and different enemy to the cause of Christ in Mexico.

Just recently Chinese from Red China have traveled to a number of important cities and rural areas, giving out large quantities of well written pamphlets in the best of Spanish, asking the people to do away with Christianity and to persecute the churches.

Just recently in central Mexico, several pastors have been beaten, some homes destroyed, and chapels burned to ashes. Many protestants are losing their jobs because the Roman clergy tell employers they cannot hire non-Catholics. Just recently our place of worship in Pierdras, Negras, was stoned during one of the services; and many of those that have attended have been threatened by fanatic Catholics. Yet, on the other hand, we find many that ask for us to explain the gospel and many that request Bible and tracts, and we are happy to fill this need.

Brother German Rodriguez, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church in Jimenez, carries on a most wonderful ministry of caring for the sick since he is the only doctor in Jimenez. God has given him a ministry that is unlimited in the Jimenez area. Brother Elias Rodriguez works in Santa Rosa and several other small areas where we are ministering.

February 6, when we opened a new Mission in El Moral, Mexico, where I preached to some 12 persons that had gathered for our first service, was a day of great victory. These hungry souls cried as they listened to the preaching of the Word. There are no other churches in El Moral except the Catholic, and they do not have a regular priest.

Just recently in Eagle Pass, Texas, an evangelist was arrested and taken to the police station. He was accused of disturbing the peace. Even though he was preaching in a church building, a staunch Catholic complained and demanded that the preacher be arrested.

Some time ago I conducted a week of services in Eagle Pass. Of the thirty homes I visited in one day, not one person attended. Do you know why? Because of fear of the priest. In every block the Catholic church has one person who is their watchdog and who reports to the priest if a person attends a Protestant church.

There is to be a special called meeting for all church members and pastors to attend on the twenty-eighth of this month (An Evening of Ecumenical Witness). This is headed by Catholic Bishop Stephen A. Leven.

Our Lord will return again. Will He find you and me to be faithful stewards and witnesses for Him? May we encourage you to be faithful in praying and giving and doing till He comes again. Will you not now write the Rev. A. B. Bryan, North Carolina Board of Missions, Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina? Can we count on your prayers? We need them so much as we continue in Mexico.

Progress in West Mexico

by JOHN B. ELLISTON

We are happy to report progress in all phases of the work here in West Mexico despite some difficulties, which are always to be expected. The revival in Cananea, conducted by Emiliano Lopez in the Petroleos District, was quite successful. Six persons made definite acceptance of the Lord, and four more made moves in the direction of becoming Christians. These latter four are still somewhat doubtful. Only time will tell for sure.

In this Petroleos District we now have four firm families, plus many children from other families. We are ready to build a building, and the lot is available. We shall need another $300 for this building. This money is in addition to the other building programs we now have in process.

Brother Guzman has now obtained title to the lot in Magdalena, on which he is ready to begin construction of a building. As I reported earlier, we need $300 for this construction. At present the mission there in Magdalena is in a rented building.

I realize that I seem to be constantly making requests of this nature, but you will be happy to see many Free Will Baptist churches throughout this part of Mexico. When these two buildings are constructed, we shall have permanent church locations in Nogales, Los Nogales, Cananea, and Magdalena.

The other missions in Cananea and in Nogales will continue. There is good reason to hope that very soon we can begin a building in Buena Vista. There is a firmly established work in Buena Vista, now. Please continue to pray that God will lead in all these things.

When you read this article in The Free Will Baptist we shall probably be in the Eagle Pass-Coahuila district. We are going to make some films of that work. We hope that in a very short while you will be able to obtain this film for showing in the churches. However, it will probably be two months before the film will be ready. We shall try to keep you informed of developments by means of these articles in The Free Will Baptist.

Please send offerings, requests, and other correspondence to the North Carolina Missions Board, c/o the Rev. A. B. Bryan, Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513.

Freewill Offerings

■ God desires a willing sacrifice. If we yield to His will because we cannot help it, and offer our desires on His altar only when we find it impossible to carry them out, we cannot expect to receive a blessing. If the rich young ruler had suddenly lost his fortune he might have followed Christ, but he would hardly have been a disciple after the Master's heart. To offer willingly and freely that which we might retain is the test of sacrifice.—Selected.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 8

The Man Born Blind

LESSON TEXT: John 9:13-17, 24, 25, 33-38

MEMORY VERSE: 1 John 1:7

I. INTRODUCTION

According to our Lord's own report to His disciples, the man's blindness was not due to any sin of his own or of his parents. His affliction was the result of a fixed plan that would manifest the works of God.

The wrath of the Pharisees was kindled over the fact that the Lord healed the man on the Sabbath. Actually, they cared little about when or where the man was healed. They were after Jesus. It was organized religion in opposition to Him. Yet, the Pharisees were divided on the matter. Some of them maintained that the miracle of healing was in accord with the plan of God; whereas, others said that God would not bless one who broke the Sabbath. Furthermore, some of them indicated that they were not sure that the man was blind. So with some doubt in their minds about the man's actual condition before he met Jesus, or with a strong determination to discredit the miracle at all costs, they sent for the man's parents.

When the father and mother came, they said that the man was their son and that he was born blind. But they claimed that they did not know how he was healed. They, therefore, insisted that since he was of age that he give his own statement regarding his healing.

The healed man was again called before the rulers in what appears to be a formal investigation where the courage and understanding of the previously blind beggar kindled the wrath of his examiners, and they cast him out of the synagogue. But when Jesus heard that they had cast the poor man out, He went immediately to help him.—Intermediate Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The people wanted to know the validity of the miracle of healing (vv. 13, 14).

2. The one who was made to see gave the credit to Jesus (v. 15).

3. The Pharisees were divided over who Jesus was (v. 16).

4. The man did not know Jesus; but because He healed him, he believed Him to be a prophet (v. 17).

5. The Pharisees used pressure to try to force the man who was made to see to say whether or not Jesus was a sinner (v. 24).

6. Although the man could not say who Jesus was, he knew that He gave him his sight (v. 25).

7. The man reasoned that Jesus was of God because He was able to perform the miracle of healing (v. 33).

8. Because of his steadfast faith and firm convictions, the Pharisees excommunicated the man (v. 34).

9. Jesus immediately came to the man's rescue and revealed Himself to him (vv. 35, 37).

10. The man became a believer and worshiped the Lord (v. 38).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. The camera is a marvelous little instrument. It can take a picture and preserve those cherished moments when Johnny's smile was so impish or when Mary enjoyed her first birthday cake. But to do all this the camera needs certain parts to make it work. Of prime importance are a good lens and a shutter. When the man born blind came to Jesus he did not have all the essential parts like a good camera. He was like a camera without a lens. Thus he did not have an accurate picture of the world or of this Jesus he had heard so much about. Then Jesus restored his sight as He placed moistened clay on the man's eyes and sent him to wash in the pool of Siloam. His eyes were opened and he could see physically. The world was new to his sight and later he met Jesus who had made him whole and said, "Lord, I believe," and worshiped Him. He could see spiritually as well.

The Pharisees, on the other hand, were whole physically. They had perfect sight. They were like a perfect camera. They had the advantage of knowing the holy Scriptures, for they had read them. They too had seen Jesus and knew He had performed miracles. But strangely they had never really seen Jesus or His miraculous powers because their eyes and their ears were closed. They were like a new camera whose owner forgot to take off the dust cap. Such a camera cannot take a picture.

Which camera are you like? Is your lens in place? By chance have you forgotten to remove the dust cap?—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. A budding high school orator delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Calmly he began: "Four-score and seven years ago." He glowed with fervency when he came to the climactic words: "That government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth!" The audience applauded enthusiastically. An old man hobbled slowly through the crowd and said to the young orator: "You did a grand job, Son! I was present at Gettysburg when Lincoln delivered that memorable speech. What an occasion it was! But, Son, you didn't say it just like Lincoln did. You said, 'Government of the people, by the people, and for the people.' When Lincoln spoke those words—it seems I can hear him still—he said: 'Government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth!'" His emphasis and concern were on the people. Your emphasis is on prepositions!"

It was the need of people—not the slavish, legalistic observance of the Sabbath—which was of paramount concern to the Saviour. The sight of hungry, shepherdless people moved the heart and hand of the Saviour in their behalf. Let us not forget that the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. In countries where this principle is reversed, people become pawns of the state and are degraded to the lowest bestial levels. When religious institutions lose their primary concern for the spiritual and temporal needs of people, heaven weeps and the zest to carry on fades and dies. Such institutions become soulless and are distorted images or caricatures of what they ought to be. Our major emphasis must ever be people. We must love people, respect people, and have an unfeigned concern for people, wanting their highest and best welfare every way.

3. "A child blind from birth had been carefully examined by many surgeons who felt that a delicate operation could restore his sight. After surgery the child was blinded by bandages, but each day walked about the hospital garden as her mother described the beauties. Finally the day to remove the bandages arrived and the child was able to see. As she progressed to stronger light she was permitted to walk in the garden. Upon seeing it, she asked her mother, 'Why didn't you tell me that it was so beautiful?' Every human effort at description was feeble. So it was when the Holy Spirit opens the spiritual eyes of a sinner and he sees the Saviour in indescribable glory."—Selected.

This story not only shows how Christ reveals Himself to those who are blind in sin, but it also shows how a man's creed is developed. If the man had any belief about Jesus to begin with, not one word is said about it. But gradually by experience he was enabled to say, "Lord, I believe." Our creeds are not very functional unless they are based upon experience rather than some philosophical theory that we have read somewhere. When we are able because of our own experience to say, "Lord, I believe," our creed will carry conviction for ourselves and others.

Another truth revealed by this story is the strength of religious prejudice. The very people who should have wanted to help the man condemned him because his healing was not done by one of their group in their prescribed way. There is no prejudice in the world greater than religious prejudice. Many wars have been fought because of it; remember the Crusades. We need to have the courage of our convictions, but we must be careful to see that it does not cause us to be prejudiced against those who do not agree with us.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

Attention N. C. Ministers

If Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, is to serve our denomination well, it urgently needs your help and cooperation. What can you do? As a minister in the Original Free Will Baptist Church you can:

1. Pray for the work of the assembly.
2. Give out information concerning the assembly.
3. Encourage young people and others to attend the various conferences and to visit the assembly when in that area.
4. Be sure your church makes regular, generous contributions to the work of the assembly. (Send your gifts to Mrs. Fountain Taylor, Sr., Route 2, Richlands, North Carolina.)

The following information should be of interest and concern to all Original Free Will Baptists:

I. INDEBTEDNESS ON CRAGMONT: The indebtedness on Cragmont Assembly is $14,000. We are paying this at the rate of $1,000, plus interest, annually. It would be good if we could clear the indebtedness soon.

II. SCHEDULE OF CONFERENCES AND CAMPS FOR 1964:

*May 15—June 7: Open period for guests or groups.

*June 8-13: Open for assignment for conference or for guests.

*June 15-20: General Youth Conference.
June 22-27: Ministerial Association Retreat. (Write the Rev. Sheldon Howard, Walstonburg, North Carolina, for information.)

June 29—July 4: Free Will Baptist League Camp. (Write the Rev. Norman Ard, Route 1, Box 149, Ayden, North Carolina, for information.)

July 6-11: Youth Frontier Conference. (Write Mrs. David Hansley, Kenly, North Carolina, for information.)

*July 12—August 2: Open period for conference or for guests.

*August 3-8: Young People's Bible Conference.

*August 10-15: Open period for conference or for guests.

August 17-22: Woman's Auxiliary Conference. (Write Mrs. Carl Dudley, 114 East Street, Fuquay, North Carolina, for information.)

August 24-29: Family Week. (Write Mr. Fountain Taylor, Sr., Route 2, Richlands, North Carolina, for information.)

*August 30—September 40: Open period for guests, family groups, church groups.

* (Write the Rev. L. E. Ballard, 1225 South Washington Street, Greenville, North Carolina, for information.)

III. RATES FOR GUESTS: (These rates apply to individual guests only.)

1. Rooms per day: In the old building $1.50 for a single; in the motel building $3.50 for a single; $5 for a couple and $7 for three or more.

2. Meals are $2 per day—50c for breakfast and 75c for dinner and supper.

NOTES and QUOTES

is precious in the sight of God to those who have accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord, "Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints" (Psalm 116:15). Thus it is possible and it is the will of God that we share the blessing of precious faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, God's Gift to save the lost from the powers of Satan. Then we conclude that faith is possible because of God's grace: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8). So to the true believer God's grace makes faith precious. It is all from God. It comes from God and therefore it is precious.

N. C. School Board Bans Sunday Sports Activities

Raleigh, N. C. (EP)—The North Carolina State Board of Education has banned Sunday meetings of practices for high school, junior high, and elementary school athletic teams.

This means that teams cannot get together on Sunday for practice, chalk talks, or to watch game movies.

Approval of the ban carried out a recommendation of an advisory committee on high school athletics and activities.

Analysis of Manager's Report for 1963

In order that our friends and supporters may have an easy to understand picture of the operations at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, during the 1963 season, it was suggested at the recent meeting of the board of directors that we give a breakdown, or analysis, of the official report made to the board on the overall operations for the season. This is not to be confused with the official report, or with the report of the treasurer for the year. The management at Cragmont handled only receipts from operations and donations made for special projects at the assembly. All donations to the general fund were sent to the treasurer, Mrs. Fountain Taylor. Receipts at Cragmont were disbursed by the management as per the wishes of donors and the instructions of the board, and the net earned income was transferred to the general fund.

the home of Mrs. Merle Godwin. Nineteen members were present.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Merle Godwin, who turned the program over to the program chairman, Mrs. Sadie Peedin. "The Kingdom Is Coming" was sung and prayer was offered by Mrs. Ola Denning.

The topic for program discussion was "The New Woman's Auxiliary Emblem Points to Kingdom Building." The Scripture was read by the leader from Philippians 4:9-13. Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Merle Godwin, Mrs. Ola Denning, and Mrs. Dolcie Hinnant.

There was a short business session in which the group decided to go to Pleasant Plain church on Monday night, February 17, for a study course. It was also decided to send $10 to Mount Olive College for the $1,000 Club.

The meeting adjourned by singing "Hallelujah, What a God We Worship."

Kinston, N. C.—The YFA of the First Free Will Baptist Church held its annual Valentine banquet in the fellowship hall of the church on Saturday night, February 15. The banquet theme was "A Song in My Heart." The fellowship hall was decorated attractively in the Valentine motif.

Mrs. Leonard Seymour, honored guest and pianist, played appropriate music on the piano to correspond with the theme throughout the entire program.

The YFA king and queen for 1963 were Joe Pike and Barbara Lancaster.

The Rev. Adrian Grubbs, a senior pastor at Mount Olive College, was guest speaker. He challenged the twenty-three young people present to set their goals high and climb to the top by better preparing themselves through higher education.

The honored guests who attended were the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Bryan, pastor and wife; Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Lucas, president of the woman's auxiliary and husband; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Seymour; and Mr. Grubbs.

The benediction was pronounced by Dorothy Wainwright.

BY GIVING A PENNY, A DIME, A DOLLAR

by WADE C. FOLSOM

By giving a penny, a dime, a dollar,
I taught a child who became a scholar.

I lifted a cup to lips so dry,
And brought a smile instead of a cry;

I lifted an orphan in my arms
Whom Jesus blessed with youthful charms;

I gave the Word of Life to men
Who read of pardon for all sin;

By giving a penny, a dime, a dollar,
I entered a home—a personal caller.

Ten Years Ago in the 'Baptist'

Tuesday evening, February 16, the Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Fort, Mrs. Robert Clyatt, Mrs. Donald Dukes, and Mrs. Opal Howard met with Unity Free Will Baptist Church to assist in the organization of a Woman's Auxiliary. Twelve charter members were enrolled at this meeting.

The First Free Will Baptist Church, Hot Springs, Arkansas, was organized January 24, 1954 with 16 charter members. The Revs. Robert King and T. H. Dixon officiated at the organizations.

In the Editor's Mail—

"In regards to the current show of interest in the health of humanity in our nation and the world, why is this interest so one-sided? No one has more sympathy for the sick and the invalid than I. It is good that we have committees investigating these things today. Why stop with the one item, that of smoking? There are many others. I believe we all realize a list of items could be headed with alcoholic beverages. It not only affects some organs of the body, but the physical and the mental conditions as well. The recent report on smoking was very clear in each detail. Such an investigation and report covering the drinking of alcohol, I believe, would not only show its effects in cancer, heart disease, etc., but would show that it plays its part in filling our mental institutions, our hospitals with cripples, our homes with shut-ins, and the cemeteries with graves. I hope our President and the leaders of our nation will be fair and continue the investigations into all fields, especially the one that may top the list—alcohol. The public should be informed all the way. If something should be done by leaders of the land, then let them be fair. Let them go all the way. Now is the time for this to begin—not later when others have suffered far worse, or have been killed."—Charles T. Beaman, Walstonburg, North Carolina.

EDITORIAL OPINIONS—

GOSPEL SINGING IS becoming more and more popular. In fact, its popularity is so great that some of the quartet troupes have established quite a profitable income for themselves. Some of the most popular groups have their own recording label. One such group records on the RCA label. Not every group is so fortunate.

Most of the gospel singing is nothing more than entertainment. At least it's pretty illogical to think that its purpose is to glorify Christ when we take note of the tenor's shrill pitch, the bass' low note, the motion of hands and arms while singing, and the beat of the music. If any music causes us to pat our foot instead of blessing our hearts, it is nothing more than entertainment. From what we have been told by informed sources, the conduct behind the scenes is not becoming to those who propose to talk about Jesus and sing of God's love. Please understand that this is not a condemnation against those who like such music. Neither is it a condemnation against all gospel singers.

The truth is, however, that we like to be entertained; and who would deny that a certain amount of it is necessary in this day of stress and strain. The need, then, is the ability to differentiate between entertainment and worship. We can't be entertained while we worship, and we can't worship while we are being entertained. Hootenanny and gospel jazz singing offer entertainment. There is little difference between the two.

ROMAN CATHOLICISM RECEIVED worldwide attention during the funeral service of the late President, John F. Kennedy, in November. Thousands of Americans observed and heard the prayers of the priests in behalf of the soul of the late President. On Friday, November 22, at 1:00 p. m., the Rev. Oscar L. Huber, a Roman Catholic Priest, anointed Mr. Kennedy's head with oil and prayed, "I absolve you from all censures and sins, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Amen." This is called "conditional absolution"—offered when a priest has no way of knowing the victim's mind or whether the soul has yet left the body. To absolve means to set free from an obligation or the consequences of guilt. There is no human on earth with such power. In fact, nowhere in the New Testament do we find reference to prayers being offered in behalf of the departed soul. The Bible says, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Such condition must be met by every individual while living. This is the teaching of Protestantism and New Testament Christianity.

THE PEOPLE OF WAYNE COUNTY, North Carolina, will decide on April 4 whether they want liquor stores or not. The Christians of that county need all the encouragement and support they can get. The battle will not be easy. The wet forces have long sought the legalized sale of liquor. The last referendum of a few years ago came pretty close, we are told, but the dry forces won. Wayne is our home county, and we hope and pray that it will forever remain free from the presence of ABC stores.

THE LETTER ON THIS PAGE from our friend, Mr. Charles T. Beaman, of Walstonburg, raises a question that is expressed by many others relative to the recent governmental report on the effect of smoking. We would like to have other readers' comments on the subject—either pro or con. An aroused citizenry could do something relative to the danger and evils of the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. For too long we have taken the attitude that nothing can be done. As long as we think this way, nothing will be done. The trouble may be that the big men of the northeast have too much at stake to really point out the evils of alcohol. With tobacco, however, only a few southeastern states are affected.

Jesus of Galilee

Then and Now

by R. L. SPENCER
Malachi's Chapel Church

HERE was a time when the privilege of attending church or Sunday school was held very dear and sacred. It was there that brother met brother with a feeling of kinship and a greeting of warmth scarcely known among church people today. The "amen" corners held their place of sanctity which has long since been done away with. It is extremely regretful that along with that sanctity has gone the friendly atmosphere and the brotherly love that once characterized the men who met at church.

In a frenzy of disappointment we stop and ask, "What has happened? Why can we not experience the warmth of friendliness among our brethren that once we knew? Why do we not feel the brotherly love among our church people that existed in the past? Where is the old time religion that was good for our fathers and ought to be good enough for us?"

The answer is as old as the Bible itself. "An enemy hath sowed tares in the wheat field." Like many obnoxious weeds the tares have been scattered far and wide. Carefully planned programs or campaigns have determined which fields were to be infiltrated with the seeds of confusion and hatred. Even the Sower has been selected and appointed to the task, and under the guise of being led by the Lord, has gone forth to lay waste and to destroy.

The harm that has been done by this unscrupulous and ruthless enemy cannot be estimated. Perhaps its effects may even be felt in eternity. But the picture is not all dark. All people are not asleep. And some who were blinded by the hypnotic spell are even now beginning to wake up.

The cloak of shame that has recently enshrouded the Free Will Baptist denomination will slowly decay and fall. However, bits of it may cling when most of it falls away.

Underneath that cloak, though, there seems to beat a stronger heart. When times are worst, man is at his best. Out of strife and confusion comes a challenge and a mandate. Action, not sorrow and regret, will best help us to answer the challenge.

Not long ago a man stood, with uncovered head, among shivering mourners as the slain President's body was borne past on that stark, black caisson. Behind him stood a college girl and her companion. "How do you feel?" the friend asked as the sound of the horses' feet drew nearer. "I realize, for the first time, that I am an American," was the reply.

Similarly, many of us have realized, for the first time, that we are Free Will Baptists. We have come to realize, too, the enemy has launched a powerful drive to wrest from us, as the Original Free Will Baptists, the ideals that we have lived with and worked and sacrificed for for all these years.

Now, at this moment, let everyone realize we have been brought to our knees in prayer, not in surrender; then let us rise, not in regret and despair, but in resolve and determination.

Bible Moths

One of the names given to the Methodists by their enemies was "Bible Moths," because they were constantly found "feeding upon the Bible as moths do upon cloth." Some nicknames are really compliments.—Live.

His was the kindest, most beautiful face of all mankind. His voice was so sweet it stilled the fears of the sinner, but so powerful it commanded the fury of the wind and the waves. The radiance of love that shone from His eyes was surely sent from heaven. More gentle was His touch when He healed the sick and restored sight to the blind than a mother caressing her firstborn son. Even His thoughts were cleaner and purer than the early dew. He lived the only perfect human life in all the generations of the world.

Unsurpassed was His love for His fellowman. Everyday of His life He taught love. In the end He proved His love on Calvary's Cross with a prayer of forgiveness for those who persecuted Him and put Him to death. He died so that we might live with Him in heaven someday. Surely His courage has never been equaled.

Riches He spurned. The whole world could have been His had He so chosen. But His choice was to roam homeless over the countryside and through the cities teaching men to love God and each other.

Triumph was His at last as He won the greatest victory of all—victory over sin and death. Mercy was His—mercy for poor unworthy sinners to whom He gave grace and eternal hope. Was there ever a man as great as He, Jesus of Galilee? There never was nor ever will be.

His Substitute

"When did you become a Christian?" someone asked a little boy.

"It was the day a bee stung Mother," answered Jacob.

"Will you explain that to me?" questioned an older Christian.

"Gladly. It just wasn't clear to me how Jesus' dying could save us. Bees frightened me terribly. While on the porch one day, a bee flew round and round me. I was certain it would sting me so I quickly called Mother. She came. Since she could not keep the bee from stinging me, she put her hand between mine and the bee. The bee stung her. She took my place. I realized what Jesus did for me. He died in my stead. I was saved. That's how I understood what He did for me."—The Christian Witness.

GOD HATH CHOSEN THE WEAK

by the REV. WALTER SUTTON JR.

TEXT: "For we see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are: That no flesh should glory in his presence. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption: That, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord" (1 Corinthians 1:26-31).

THE truth of the subject of this message is illustrated many times in the Bible. God used Paul, who was weak physically and buffeted by Satan, to preach the gospel to the Gentiles, to organize churches, and to become the first missionary, whose zeal even today challenges the cause of missions. Jesus used a lad's small lunch to feed a multitude of people. After He blessed it and the multitude feasted, the disciples took up twelve baskets of food (John 6:1-13). God used a little shepherd boy to defeat the giant Goliath, who had challenged the armies of Israel. The secret of David's victory was that he faced the giant with faith in God's power, and he knew as he walked closer to the giant that God was going to give him the victory that day (Judges 17:45).

the REV. WALTER SUTTON JR.

WHY HAS GOD CHOSEN THE WEAK, BASE THINGS OF THIS WORLD INSTEAD OF THE STRONG INTELLIGENT THINGS OF THIS WORLD?

The reason is to teach us the importance of depending upon Him for strength, wisdom, and leadership. We cannot rely upon human energy and wisdom and expect to accomplish the purpose of God. God has given us Christians the Holy Spirit, who lives within us, to teach us and to enable us to do His work which will bring results and will bring glory to His dear name.

God has so chosen to show us the power of God and the weakness of man. There are no limits to God's power; but, as humans, we have our limitations; and when all human ways are exhausted, we catch a glimpse of the great power of God.

But God has so chosen that no man should have reason to glory in his attainments; that none should have reason

Mr. Sutton is a former student of Mount Olive Junior College. He is presently serving as pastor of Beulaville and Cabin Free Will Baptist Churches, both of the Eastern Conference of North Carolina.

This message was delivered at the 1963 session of the Central Conference to boast; that all should give glory to the precious name of Jesus (1 Corinthians 1:29, 31).

WHAT GLORY! GOD HAS CHOSEN THE WEAK TO CONFOUND THE WISE OF THIS WORLD.

God has declared that those who believe are saved by His grace: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8).

God declares that the strongest, most intelligent, most educated man is weak and ignorant until he knows Jesus Christ as His personal Saviour. What glory that salvation does not come by human effort or human merit but by the grace of God and the act of faith by the individual in Christ as his Saviour (1 Corinthians 1:17-25)!

GOD CHOSE UNWORTHY, INADEQUATE, FINITE MEN TO WRITE THE INFALLIBLE WORD OF GOD.

Let me hasten to say that all Scripture is inspired or God-breathed. God forbid that the day should ever come when I should challenge the authority of the Scriptures. David said that the Word was forever settled in heaven. Jesus said that heaven and earth would pass away, but the Word of God would never pass away. God is bound by His word and it can never be changed, or altered (1 Timothy 3:16).

The Bible was written by men from all walks of life. Some could boast of literary attainment; whereas, others could not. While they differed in many ways, we can say that they were all holy men whom God used to record the sacred Word. "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21). These men wrote and preached, not in their own wisdom and reasoning, but in the wisdom and power that God gave them. Paul said in Galatians 1:11, 12: "But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." And in 1 Corinthians 2:4, he said, "And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." Let me hasten to say that I believe in the dignity of the worship service, good grammar, and pulpit posture; but I don't want it to replace zeal for souls and God's power and wisdom in the preaching of the gospel message.

These men may have been weak, poor, uncultured—and some may have been unlearned as far as the world was concerned—but they had the power to discern spiritual truth. They were taught of God and were wise to the evil devices of Satan. They preached the love of God and impending judgment upon sinners without any reservation in their hearts. One of our greatest needs today is men who will dedicate themselves to the study of the Word of God, allowing the Holy Spirit to be their teacher. People want to know the truth—the whole truth of the Bible. It doesn't matter what Dr. Sounding Brass and Mr. Tinkling Cymbal have to say about the Scriptures, because they are not always right. Let us take the Bible, get in a quiet place, breathe a prayer to God, let the Holy Spirit be our teacher; and we will come from that place with a message that will bring results to the glory of God. "But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God" (1 Corinthians 2:10). The Holy Spirit teaches us to compare spiritual things with spiritual.

Yes, God chose weak, unworthy men to write the Bible. It has stood the test of time and is to the Christian today the most precious library of books.

GOD HAS CHOSEN WEAK, VILE, UNWORTHY, HELL-DESERVING SINNERS AS THEIRS OF SALVATION.

Let us ponder the richness of God's love and grace. Jeremiah says that God has loved us with an everlasting love. John says that we love Him because He first loved us. Paul says that God commended His love toward us while we were yet sinners because Christ died for us. God so loved. What love! We can only know in part now the great love wherewith He has loved us.

Because God loved us, He acted in grace to give His Son Jesus to die for our sins. God took the initiative in providing for the salvation of sinners. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, . . ." (John 3:16).

Because God so loved and acted in grace, He was careful to provide in Jesus all the righteousness for the sinner's salvation. Jesus was the perfect, virgin-born Son of God, who lived and died according to the Scriptures (1 Corinthians 15:3). It is inexcusable ignorance for anyone to deny the virgin birth of Jesus. If Jesus were not virgin born, then He is not worthy to be my Saviour, because there are no grounds for atonement.

Jesus hung upon the Cross for six long agonizing hours. As He bore the sin of the whole world, He was forsaken by His Father, angels, and men. But when He yielded up His spirit to His Father, having never yielded to Satan, He died in grace to become our perfect Saviour. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich" (2 Corinthians 8:9).

The fact that God acted in grace to provide a Saviour and that Jesus died in grace providing salvation for all who believe means that our salvation is by grace alone. It means that the sinner cannot buy his salvation; he cannot inherit it; he cannot through human goodness merit it; but he can by a simple act of faith receive it. Bible salvation comes only by the grace of God through the faith of the trusting sinner. Because the sinner's salvation is by grace, all are saved the same way, trust the same Jesus, and go to heaven trusting the same Jesus. Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. I am the door to the sheepfold." All who go to heaven will go the same way—by trusting the same Jesus—and stand in heaven and sing to the glory of God the same song, "Saved by Grace." None will have reason to boast, but all will have reason to praise Jesus who made possible their salvation by God's grace.

GOD OFTEN CHOOSES WEAK, UNWORTHY, AND UNPREPARED CHRISTIANS FOR SERVICE.

Paul said that not many mighty, noble, or wise men were called. God did not choose to announce the birth of Jesus to Herod or to the priest in the temple, but He sent the angels to the shepherds in the field. Jesus did not call the wealthy, cultured men to be His disciples; but He called fishermen, tax collectors, and husbandmen of obscurity. Jesus told them, "It is given unto you to know the mystery of the kingdom of heaven." The strength of our nation does not rest with the elite or highly cultured people; nor does it rest with the extreme lower class. The strength of this republic is found in the middle class, or working class. This is the class of people today who are more receptive to the gospel message. These are the ones who build strong evangelistic churches. These hold to the fundamental teachings of the Bible and preserve them for their children. Herod would have destroyed Jesus if he could. The priest in the temple would not have believed the angel's message. God knew this. Jesus knew this. He called poor working men, trained them, and taught them. When He went back to heaven, they obeyed Him.

Jesus never talked much about the church to His disciples. In the Book of Acts we see the church becoming a visible structure, but even then the apostles did not fully understand its ministry. Saul, who persecuted the early Christians and witnessed the stoning of Stephen, was converted en route to Damascus. He was destined to become the man to whom God would fully reveal the mystery and ministry of the visible church. Paul, a name he later bore, organized many churches on his missionary journeys. He organized a church at Corinth. This church caused Paul a lot of heartache and trouble. He, without doubt, prayed a lot of prayers that he might not have prayed if it had not been for this church.

The church at Corinth resembled many of our churches today. It was far from being the perfect or the ideal church. It was divided over preachers (1 Corinthians 1:12). It was filled with carnality or worldliness. The people were divided in doctrine and practice. But I believe that there were some in the church who were faithful to their profession. It was this group that Paul loved and labored for. If you read 1 Corinthians 6:9-11, you will find that these members' past lives had not been very reputable or clean. But it was these who were guilty of gross sin, who

Rev. Jones Celebrates Eighty-Fifth Birthday

The Rev. Felix E. Jones of the Sarceta Community near Kenansville, North Carolina, and a host of relatives and friends celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday on Sunday, February 16, 1964, with a picnic lunch and an afternoon of fellowship and singing at Sarceta Free Will Baptist Church. During the morning worship service, his pastor, the Rev. M. E. Godwin, paid tribute to his long and faithful years of service to the church and his fellowman. The woman's auxiliary presented a flower arrangement to the church in his honor.

Mr. Jones is a retired farmer and minister of the Original Free Will Baptist Church. He has always been keenly interested in singing and all church work.

To Mr. Jones and his first wife, the former Addie Melinda Jones, who died in 1941, were born eleven children (four of whom died in infancy). The children now living are David F., Wilbert A., and Herbert A. Jones, Mrs. Maggie Caston, Mrs. Betty Kennedy, and Mrs. Mamie Dunn. Mr. Jones also has 40 grandchildren and 72 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Jones is now married to the former Matilda Lancaster of Johnston County. He attributes his long life to "honoring my father and mother, serving God, and living a spiritually clean life."

Friendship Church Announces Revival

Revival services will be held at Friendship Free Will Baptist Church, Greene County, North Carolina, the week of March 8-14, at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. W. S. Burns will be the evangelist and will be assisted by the pastor, the Rev. R. L. Norville.

The pastor and church members invite everyone to attend these services which will feature special music throughout the week.

Fellowship Supper at Tarboro Church

The North Central Area Fellowship Supper will be held at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Tarboro, North Carolina, at 7 p. m. on Friday, March 20.

This supper is for officers, teachers, and pupils of the Sunday schools of Original Free Will Baptist churches in Edgecombe, Bertie, Hertford, and Halifax counties, and for schools north of Greenville in Pitt County. (People from schools anywhere will be welcome.)

The supper will be furnished by the women of the church, as has been the custom in these fellowship suppers. The price will be $1 per plate, and a good supper is assured all.

Preceding the supper, the Rev. L. E. Ballard, assisted by Mrs. Ballard, will hold "open house" in the church from 5:30 until 7:00 to demonstrate various kinds of visual aids, distribute free literature (continued on page sixteen)

Christian Education

Committee of Cultural Events Appointed

The appointment of a Committee on Cultural Events at Mount Olive College for 1964-65 has been announced by President W. Burkette Raper. Michael Perret, head of the department of foreign languages, will serve as chairman. Other members include Donald Becker of the history department, Dean Roy O'Donnell, and Mrs. Josephine H. Ricks, registrar. Mrs. Johnny Walker will serve as a representative of the Mount Olive community. Student representatives will be selected by the committee.

"The purpose of this new program," President Raper explained, "will be to enrich the educational program of the college, and to enlarge the cultural contribution of the college to the citizens of this area."

The committee will arrange programs by distinguished visitors, including noted lecturers, authors, journalists, musicians and other artists, entertainers and dramatic groups. It is planned that all events will be open to the public and area citizens and civic organizations will be invited to help sponsor the programs. An initial authorization of $1,000 has been made for the work of the committee.

Mrs. Cassick Files Insurance Policy

Mrs. Frances Allen Cassick of Greenville has become the eighth person to file with Mount Olive College a life insurance policy payable to the college. Hers is a twenty-year endowment policy in the amount of $1,000.

Mrs. Cassick's policy brought to $16,500 the amount of life insurance now known to be assigned to the college. She is a member of the college board of directors and also a member of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Pitt County.

Other persons who have assigned life insurance policies to the college include President W. Burkette Raper; the Rev. S. A. Smith of Beulaville; Tom West of Plymouth; the Rev. Daniel F. Pelt of Marianna, Florida; E. L. Jones of Walstonburg; the Rev. D. W. Hansley of Kenly; and the Rev. Thomas Bruce Dudley of Wilson.

Friends who would like to know more about plans whereby they can assist the college through insurance are invited to contact President W. Burkette Raper. Existing policies may be assigned to the college or new policies may be made payable to the institution.

College Day at Daniel's Chapel

President W. Burkette Raper will teach the senior Sunday school class and deliver the morning sermon at Daniel's Chapel church in Wilson County, North Carolina, on Sunday, March 8. The Rev. W. S. Burns, pastor, has announced that the church will observe the day as "Mount Olive College Day."

Attention All Leaguers

Time is drawing near for the conferences to begin at Cragmont. If you are planning a vacation, we believe Cragmont will be the place for you. Its rates are low and there are many places to go. You will have Christian fellowship with young people from all parts of our state. There will also be recreation; but I think the most important of all is the training in the Bible, league work, and other things to help you be a better and more victorious Christian. I have all ready received six registrations for our League Encampment.

If you are planning to attend this conference, we hope you will send your registrations early. We can accommodate only one hundred ten, and we are planning to have a full house for the League Encampment. Send your name, address, age, sex, and the name of your church, plus five dollars to Norman Ard, Route 1, Box 149, Ayden, North Carolina. The other twenty-five dollars will be paid when you board the bus. The date is June 29-July 4; the place is Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina.

If you think the Beatles can stir your emotions, then go to the League Conference and we will stir your heart.

Central Youth To Meet

Members of the youth auxiliaries of the Central district will meet Saturday, March 21, at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden, North Carolina, for the Central Conference district youth day. Registration will begin at 9:30 a. m., and the program at 10 a. m. Lunch will be served by Elm Grove church.

YFAs and AFCs are requested to bring contributions for the state project (recreation facilities for Cragmont) and $1 each group for promotional work. Of this contribution for promotional work, fifty cents will be used in the district and fifty cents will be sent to the state. There will be no more 10% offerings sent in quarterly.

Typewritten copies of essays and declamations must be sent to Mrs. Norman Ard, Route 1, Box 149, Ayden, North Carolina, by March 14.

A report blank, found in the back of the yearly program books for YFA and AFC, should be filled out for each group and brought to the meeting.

Newton Grove, N. C.—The Annie McPhail Woman's Auxiliary of Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church met at the church for its regular meeting on February 5. The program chairman, Mrs. Emma Rose, was in charge of the program. Mrs. Ina Pait West gave the devotional.

The program, "The New WA Emblem Points to Kingdom Building," was given by Mrs. Joyce Bass, Mrs. Christine Godwin, and Mrs. Mae Ellen Warwick.

On Tuesday night, February 11, the Rev. Walter Reynolds, pastor of Shady Grove church, held a study course at Newton Grove. Mr. Reynolds spoke on "Tithing." Everyone enjoyed the study course very much.

Afterwards, everyone enjoyed a period of social fellowship in the educational building.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Gray Branch YFA had its Valentine banquet at the Barbecue Lodge on Saturday night. The speaker for the banquet was the Rev. Andrew Hill.

Delicious chicken, barbecue, potato salad, slaw, hush puppies, tea, and strawberry shortcake were served to the 17 present.

Fountain, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, February 14 in the church. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. L. Goff, who turned the meeting over to Mrs. Mary Smith, program chairman. Mrs. Smith had the group to join together in singing "Take My Life and Let It Be." The opening prayer was given by Mrs. Smith. She used for the Scripture reading Philippians 4:9-13. She also gave the program, "The New WA Emblem Points to Kingdom Building." The program closed with Mrs. Robert Oakley and Mrs. David Hobgood singing a duet, "What a Day That Will Be."

Mrs. R. L. Goff, president, presided over the business session. Mrs. Lester Gay, secretary-treasurer, called the roll and received the dues. She also read the minutes of the last meeting, and they were approved. This was followed with the treasurer's report. A motion was made and seconded to send a love gift of $5 to Mr. Jim Summerlin, who is seriously ill. A motion was made and seconded to send a love gift of $10 to Mr. Jonathan Galloway who is seriously ill. Plans were made to send $5 to Mount Olive College for a library book in memory of the late Mr. J. P. Killbrew, who was a faithful member of the church during his lifetime. Mrs. Robert Oakley pronounced the benediction.

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

CHRIST—NO CHRIST

"He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (1 John 5:12).

I am sorry that "The Lighted Pathway" did not appear in its accustomed place the past two weeks, but I did not feel like preparing it. I hope that all will forgive and bear with me in this undertaking, and don't forget to pray for me and for the column.

The text above divides all the people of the world into two classes: those who have Christ and those who have no Christ. We all belong to one or the other of these classes. There are no others—no other ways.

An unknown author has written a beautiful article on the subject, "The Incomparable Christ," the Christ who belongs to every Christian and to whom every Christian belongs:

"He came from the bosom of the Father to the bosom of a woman. He put on humanity that we might put on Divinity. He became Son of man that we might become sons of God. He came from Heaven, where the rivers never freeze, winds never blow, frosts never chill the air, flowers never fade. They never phone for a doctor, for there no one is ever sick. There are no undertakers and no graveyards, for no one ever dies—no one is ever buried.

"He was born contrary to the laws of nature, lived in poverty, reared in obscurity; only once crossed the boundary of the land, in childhood. He had no wealth nor influence, and had neither training nor education. His relatives were inconspicuous and unimportant.

In infancy He startled a king; in boyhood He puzzled the doctors; in manhood, ruled the course of nature. He healed the multitudes without medicine, and made no charge for His services. He never wrote a book, yet not all the libraries of the country could hold the books that could be written about Him.

"He never wrote a song, yet He has furnished the theme for more songs than all song writers combined. He never founded a college, yet all the schools together cannot boast of as many students as He has. He never practiced medicine, yet He healed more broken hearts and broken bodies than the doctors.

"He never marshalled an army, drafted a soldier, nor fired a gun, yet no leader ever made more volunteers, who have under His orders made rebels stack arms or surrender without a shot being fired.

"He is the Star of Astronomy, the Rock of Geology, the Lion and the Lamb of Zoology, the Harmonizer of all discords, and the Healer of all diseases. Great men have come and gone, yet He lives on. Herod could not kill Him, Satan could not seduce Him, death could not destroy Him, the grave could not hold Him.

He laid aside His purple robe for a peasant's gown. He was rich, yet for our sake He became poor. How poor? Ask Mary! Ask the Wise Men! He slept in another's manger. He cruised the lake in another's boat. He rode on another's ass. He was buried in another man's tomb. All failed, but He never.

"The ever perfect One—He is the Chief among ten thousand. He is altogether lovely."—Selected.

Is He your Christ? Are you His child?

But now to look briefly at the plight of those who have no Christ in the words of the following poem:

OH, TO HAVE NO CHRIST

Oh, to have no Christ, no Saviour!
No Rock, no refuge high!
When the dark days round thee gather,
When the storms sweep o'er the sky!

Oh, to have no Christ, no Saviour!
How lonely life would be!
Like a sailor, lost and driven,
On a wild and restless sea.

Oh, to have no Christ, no Saviour!
No hand to clasp my own!
Through the dark, dark vale of shadows,
Just to press my way alone!

Oh, to have no hope in Jesus!
No friend, no light in Jesus!
Oh, to have no Christ, no Saviour!
How dark this world would be!

—W. O. Cushing.

“. . . Lord, to whom shall we go?

thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God" (John 6:68, 69).

To the Aged

by HAYWOOD B. HILL

How beautiful it is to grow gracefully old
And let contentment fill your age of gold.

Night is approaching, the day is far spent
To accomplish the purpose for which you were sent.

Let us approach the evening and sunset of life,
Scattering sunshine instead of worry and strife.

When visiting friends never display your trouble;
If you do yours and his will make his double.

Spend not your time in brooding and sorrow,
But be alert with hope for today and tomorrow.

Be not disturbed with future fear,
When the end of your day is drawing near.

Be able to say—I have had a good fight,
By always striving to be in the right.
And when the sunset and evening shadows fall,

Be patiently waiting to hear the Master's Call.

LIVING BY THE LAW

John Smith, taxpayer, not only lives in a world of law, but he pays for the upkeep of the law's machinery. It is not merely when he goes to the polls on election day to cast his ballot for legislators and judges that he ought to have an interest in the processes that go into the making of the law. It is not only when he has to sue somebody or has to defend a suit brought against him that the law affects his life. Every day and all day he lives with his neighbors in a society governed by law. It ought to be a matter of first concern to him to know the nature of this force which is as essential to his well-being as the clothes he wears or the food he eats.—Selected.

NOTES

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Recently I received a tract, published by the Pilgrim Tract Society, which was entitled "What Would Happen If We All Believed?" The tract contained many selected verses of Scripture, the first one being, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Hebrews 11:1). A portion of the tract (adapted here) follows:

The God that stopped the sun on high,
And sent the manna from the sky (Exodus 16:4-15),

Laid flat the walls of Jericho (Joshua 6:20),

And put to flight old Israel's foe
(Joshua 10:9, 10),

Why can't He answer prayer today
(Luke 1:37)?

And drive each stormy cloud away (John 14:14)?

Who turned the water into wine (John 2:3-11)

And healed a helpless cripple's spine
(Luke 18:11-16),

Commanded temptests, "Peace be still"
(Mark 4:39),

And hungry multitudes did fill (John 6:9-13).

His power is just the same today (Hebrews 13:8),

So why not labor, watch and pray (Matthew 26:41)?

He conquered in the lion's den (Daniel 6:16-23);

Brought Lazarus back to life again (John 11:38-44).

He heard Elijah's cry for rain (I Kings 18:42-45)

And freed the sufferers from pain (Matthew 8:16, 17).

If He could do those wonders then (Exodus 14:21-31),

Let's prove our mighty God again (Malachi 3:10).

Why can't the God who raised the dead
(I Kings 17:17-22),

Gave little David, Goliath's head (I Samuel 17:32-51),

Cast out the demons with a word (Matthew 8:28-32),

Yet sees the fall of one wee bird (Matthew 10:29),

Do signs and miracles today:

In that good old-fashioned way (Acts 5:12-16)?

He can. He's just the same today
(Ephesians 3:20).

If we believe it when we pray (Mark 11:23, 24),

He's no respecter now of men (James 2:1-9),

He'll do the same as he did then (John 14:12).

OUR COMMENT ON THE ABOVE.

Throughout all ages God has met the need of each and every one of His children. He did things in the past that He will never do again; for instance, He sent the flood, but He will never send another. He took care of Daniel in the den of lions. I believe that if one of God's ministers were to be cast into a den of lions for preaching the gospel, and if that minister had the faith that Daniel had, God would take care of the situation.

But, thank God, we are not subject to such punishment. We are free to preach the gospel in this country. We may not be at sometime in the future. The powers of Russia and Red China may be nearer to our door than we think. We may be put in prison for preaching the gospel; but if we are, our God is able and ready to stand by and to give us victory.

Christ healed the sick. He can do it today, and will when it is for the glory of God and the good of God's child. God does not heal every sick man who goes to Him in prayer, because it is appointed for men to go through the ordeal of death: "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (Hebrews 9:27). I knew a good preacher who believed that he would not see death before the return of the Lord. He led many to Christ, but he just about dried up in prophecy. But he died years ago. Christ has not set up His kingdom on earth, but He will in His own good will and time.

I knew another good man who said, "It is not the will of God that any Christian should suffer affliction." This good man was with me in my pastorate, and I took him to see a very sick member of the church that I pastored. We prayed for this lady; and in the prayer I said, "Father, if it can be Thy will, heal this dear sister . . ." Before we got to the street after leaving the home, this minister said, "Griffin, you asked God to heal . . ." Then he said, "We should never say 'Thy will' when praying for the sick. It is not the will of God that any of His children should be sick." This man is dead. He died in a hospital with doctors and nurses standing by; also prayers were offered, but the man died.

God did miracles and wonders during biblical times. He does not perform miracles in the manner in which He did then because conditions do not call for His doing so. It is not necessary to turn water into wine. It was at the time Jesus performed the miracle. Jesus brought Lazarus back to life, but it is not necessary for Christ to bring back to life those who die now. He will someday, but not as He did Lazarus. "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you" (Romans 8:11).

God wants us to perform miracles today, but miracles that will meet the need of the hour. The greatest miracle is to win a lost sinner to Christ. I know that God heals. I know this by being healed myself. God is able and can and will heal when it is for His glory and our good: ". . . all things work together for good to them that love God, . . ." (Romans 8:28). Sometimes death is better than physical life. The best thing that God can do for people is to take them home to be with Him. I stood by a young afflicted woman when she was passing. She said, "Brother Griffin, am I dying?" I said, "Why do you ask this question?" She answered, "I'm so happy; I feel so good." She passed away with a smile. She had suffered much, but God took her out of her suffering by taking her home.

I had a Christian lady years ago to say, "Brother Griffin, don't pray for me to get well, but pray for God to take me home to be with Him."

A warranted deed does not give you ownership of property, but rather, exclusive use of that property. The Lord owns the property for the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof.—C. R. H.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Please explain, "Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth" (1 Corinthians 10:24); "But he that doeth wrong shall receive or the wrong which he hath done: and here is no respect of persons" (Colossians 3:25). May we always subdue our interest to the degree that we are all required in the first of these passages and if not will we be punished for every act of this disobedience?—B. P., Tennessee.

ANSWER: After considering carefully what several commentaries say in their discussion of 1 Corinthians 10:24, I am of the opinion that what R. C. H. Lenski, the great Lutheran scholar, says on pages 418 and 419 in his commentary on 1 and 2 Corinthians is about as true to the context and as clear as may be found on the verse; therefore, I quote in full his comment: "Paul therefore at once interprets the principle of Christian liberty of which the Corinthians seek to mark so much and which they do not after all really understand. Let no one seek his own (interest) but that of others. This interpretation itself may be called a principle, one that must always be combined with the principle of liberty if the latter is to be applied successfully. This second is, of course, the principle of love about which Paul has already said so much. So he merely restates it in a simple way. This time he formulates it in a concrete way. He tells the Corinthians in the tenderest manner what they are to do when they are following the promptings of love. He purposely states the principle in the broadest form so that it may answer all the questions that now await solution. Not to seek one's own interest—is of course, not to be understood in an absolute way, but must be considered in connection with the seeking of interest of the other person. It excludes all selfish regard which cares nothing for the interest of the other people. It demands that we have regard for the good of others also, for by doing this we shall serve also ourselves in the best possible manner."

Jesus Christ's own life, as well as what He taught as found in the Old Testament prophecies and the Gospels, says to us who are saved: "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Corinthians 6:19, 20). The Bible requires of us who are Christians no easy task from the point of view of the natural man when it tells us to keep our bodies before God or presented as living sacrifices (Romans 12:1, 2); or when it suggests that we die daily (1 Corinthians 15:30, 31); or when it uses the parable of crucifixion (1 Corinthians 4:10; Galatians 5:24; 2:20).

This state of death or dying while here in the body by no means at any place equals to that of pampering the flesh, living a selfish life of ease and luxury. The Old Testament says of Him, "Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed" (Isaiah 53:4, 5). Compare with this Scripture, "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps: Who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth: Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again, when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed" (1 Peter 2:21-24).

Now let's see what Jesus tells us in the Gospels: "If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you" (John 13:14, 15). Jesus says that He gave us an example, which indicates that we should do as He did while here—of course, in the washing of one another's feet as He did on the occasion represented in this passage of Scripture, but also in all the other things He came to earth and did. He followed the Father's orders and carried out His commission in all details. He expects no less of us than that we follow His orders and carry out His commission in every single detail. "If ye love me, keep my commandments. . . . He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him" (John 14:15, 21). "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love" (John 15:10). "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world" (John 17:18).

Jesus also said, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you. Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples" (John 15:7, 8). The matter of abiding, obeying, asking, and receiving go hand in hand and in this order. One hears and believes the Word (Romans 10:8-18). He has everlasting life (John 3:36). Now he is not his own to follow the motions of the flesh, for he who was dead has been quickened or made alive (Ephesians 2:1; Hebrews 4:12; Psalm 119:50; Colossians 2:13). Hence he has a new master (1 Corinthians 6:19). He gained this master-servant relationship by the kind of faith and the kind of baptism all saints must have (Ephesians 4:4, 5). With the lack of any one act or quality of this required to become a Christian, one would come up altogether wanting and would be as any uninvited person found at a wedding and, therefore, would not be properly dressed; and because of this he would not be received.

Now that he qualifies, having taken Jesus by faith, he is a son, an heir, a joint heir with Jesus; he is clothed in Jesus' righteousness and not his own self-righteousness. It is entirely differ-

for our

BOYS and GIRLS

THE CONTEST

by LEONA C. LILLEY

NOW remember, children, have your stories ready next Sunday morning. Think it over carefully and let us see who will be the winner of the surprise gift." Mrs. Noble, teacher of the junior class at the Arbor Lane church, had given her class a special assignment. Each boy and girl was to tell a little story about the most precious thing he owned.

The class was dismissed and the children crowded together to decide what to tell about. "Oh, I have so many things that I love," said Sandi. "I can't decide now. Let's go play." They all scampered out into the bright sunshine.

The week slipped by quickly. Soon it was Sunday morning again. The children took their seats in the Sunday school room quietly. Mrs. Noble welcomed everyone with a bright "Good morning," called the roll, and prayed the morning prayer. "Now," she said, "who would like to be the first to tell his story?" All the children raised their hands. "Well, you're all very anxious," she said. "Let's see. Sharon, suppose you begin."

Sharon went to the front of the class. "I would like to tell about an old coin found by my uncle when he visited the Holy Land. It is a shekel." Sharon passed the ancient coin around for the children to look at. "It was used in the days of Jesus. To have something that was used in that day makes me feel closer to Jesus. That is why I love it." When the coin had been returned to her, she went back to her seat.

"That is very interesting," said Mrs. Noble. "Let us see what Joey will tell us about."

Joey began his story: "I would like to tell about my bike. I got it for Christmas and I like to play with it; but it is very helpful, too. I use it to run errands for my mother and also for other ladies in the neighborhood. I used it to take flowers to Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Burke when they were sick. I enjoy helping others and doing nice things for them. That is what Jesus wants us to do."

When Joey had finished his story, Jane, Teddy, Sandi, and all the others had interesting stories to tell.

Debbie was the last to be called upon. She moved slowly to the front of the class with her Bible under her arm. "The most precious thing I own," she began, "is this, my Bible." She held out her Bible for the class to see. It wasn't an old Bible, but it was plain to see from its cover that it had been used often. "As Sharon said about her coin," Debbie went on, "it makes me feel closer to Jesus. Not only because it was written in His day, but because it has words from His very own mouth. It's like a letter from Him written especially to me, or to anyone who will read it and believe. He tells us what we must do. If we read and study it carefully, and do as Jesus says, we can't go wrong."

When Debbie had finished her story, Mrs. Noble picked up a box from her desk. She took out a big, beautiful Bible. "I think all of your stories were very good," she said: "but I feel I must award the Bible to Debbie. We should all love our Bibles as she does. We should study them and learn more about Jesus." She turned to Debbie. "This is for you," she said, handing the Bible to Debbie.

Debbie thanked the class and Mrs. Noble, politely; then she said, "I already have a Bible. If I may, I would like to give this one to a friend who doesn't have one." The class agreed.

Mrs. Noble opened another box and said, "All of your stories were good, so I have a Testament for each of you." She passed one to each child. There was one left. "And this one is for you, Debbie. I'm sure you already have one, but perhaps you have another friend who doesn't." Debbie smiled. Then Mrs. Noble and the class smiled, too.

NAILS AND WHALES

ELIZABETH BJARK HILL

LILLY sat on the porch with one foot on a cushion. That foot was covered with bandages and tape.

Grandfather had just come downstairs after his nap when he saw Billy. "Why, Billy, my boy, what happened?" he asked.

"Oh, I hurt my foot down by the old mill. Now I can't play ball with the other boys," Billy said sadly.

Grandfather sat down near Billy and said, "Well, now, that's just too bad! But say, how could you get to the grocery store and back and then go way down to the old mill just since dinner?"

"I didn't go to the store," Billy answered, without looking up.

"That's strange," Grandfather said. "Now I was sure I heard your mother ask you to go to the store for her."

"She did," Billy said slowly, "but I wanted to go down to see the shack the boys are building for a club house."

Grandfather nodded as though he understood that part. "And then how did you hurt your foot?" he asked.

"Oh, I was running and I didn't notice a piece of board with a nail in it. I just had my gym shoes on and the nail went way into my heel," he explained.

"So, you got caught by a whale," Grandfather said, shaking his head.

"No, no, no! You didn't hear me right. I said nail, not whale," Billy almost shouted.

"I know," his grandfather said, "You said nail and I said whale and I meant it. A whale got you! You listen to me. A long time ago God told a man named Jonah to go to preach to the people of Nineveh. Jonah didn't want to go there so he went the other way. While he was on a boat going in the other direction, a storm came up. The men on had been saved by the grace of God, that God wanted to use to carry on the work in Corinth. God can take the weakest individual, forgive him of his sins, put within him the Holy Spirit, and make him accomplish much to His glory.

However, there are conditions upon which God will use people for His glory. There must be dedication; they must give their best, and they must offer themselves upon the altar for service. What minister could boast that he was worthy or prepared to preach when he first received his call? But God calls and molds us as we yield to Him, and reveals to us His truth as we study and dedicate ourselves to our calling. The church now, as in the first century, may not be perfect in every way; but it is the organization through which God has chosen to carry on His work, though its members may be weak and unprepared. Let us live clean lives that we might be the channels through which God can reach out and save another soul to His glory. Again I say, God has chosen weak, unworthy, unprepared sinners who have been saved by grace for service today.

GOD HAS CHOSEN WEAK, LITTLE, BASE THINGS OF THIS WORLD TO CONFOUND THE MIGHTY THINGS OF THIS WORLD.

God burned one little word upon the heart of Martin Luther, and it changed his life and the course of the church. The word was faith. "The just shall live by faith" was the theme of the Reformation.

God can take the tithe and use it to carry on His work in this world and never be indebted to any man. God will use your tithe to bless you again and again, and to support missions, education, and orphans. He asks of every Christian a tenth of his income and promises to bless him in many ways if he obeys. I'd rather have ninety cents with God's blessing than to have a dollar without His blessing. You know, with all the taxes that the federal government collects every year, our country is still heavily in debt. But think of God's program, supported only by the tithe to His glory.

Yes, God takes things, little things, and uses them for His glory. Only God could do this. Jesus said that the very hairs of our heads are numbered and that not even a sparrow can fall from heaven without God's seeing it. If God is so watchful of these little things, let us never forget that He sees and watches every little thing that we do in His name. Let us give what we have to God and watch it multiply for His glory. God wants to use your home for a prayer service, your car to carry some sinner to church, old clothing to warm a cold body in distant lands. God can take radio programs and reach people who would not be reached in church.

God can use your tongue to pray for the sick, to teach His Word. But you know, the devil gets more glory from some Christians' tongues than God does. What a shame! They spend more time criticizing their preacher, their church, or their Sunday school teacher than they do in praying for them. The Bible does not say for us to unduly criticize one another, but it does command us to pray for one another.

Yes sir, God has chosen to use your tithe, your tongue, your home, your car, your hands, and your talents, if you will surrender to Him fully. Try God and see if He will not bless you for your dedication.

GOD HAS CHOSEN WEAK, SICKLY, TIRED, LIFE-WEARY BELIEVERS TO SHARE IN THE GLORY OF HEAVEN IN THE PRESENCE OF JESUS THROUGHOUT ALL ETERNITY.

Paul was a weak man; he had been stoned, ridiculed, persecuted, shipwrecked, and buffeted by Satan; and he carried a thorn in his flesh which God never chose to remove. When an old man, in victory he said, "I have kept the faith. I have fought a good fight, and there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." When men fall asleep in Jesus as Paul did, it's the greatest sleep of all.

There was Fanny Crosby, who never saw the light of day. But God used her here to bless the hearts of many, and now she sees the beauty of heaven. Though she was weak and blind and helpless, God chose her to live in the dominion of heaven robed in the garment of His righteousness.

A year or so ago I visited a man who had given the major part of his life to his church. Struck with sickness and weakness that led to his departure from this world, he softly said to me, "Preacher, I'm glad you came. I'm going to be leaving soon." As I looked at him and prayed over him, my heart rejoiced in the fact that God had chosen him to share in the peace of heaven.

Some of you who read these broken thoughts today have heavy hearts; your hair is gray; Father Time has plowed lines in your face, and you are just waiting for Jesus to come. Your life has been for Jesus' and you can rejoice that God has chosen you to share the glory of heaven in the presence of Jesus.

The story is told of John Jasper, the colored preacher who preached a sermon on heaven one Sunday night to his congregation. He went home and dreamed that he went to heaven. As he stood on the street of that fair city, he saw the river of life flowing from the throne of God. He stood admiring the vastness and beauty of the city he had entered. An angel approached him and said, "Mr. Jasper, your mother has been here for twenty years. Let me show you where she lives." Mr. Jasper replied, "No, I don't care to see her just yet." "Let me show you where your father lives. He has been here ten years," the angel continued. "I don't care to see him just yet either," he replied. The angel inquired further of Mr. Jasper, "Whom, then, would you like to see first?" Mr. Jasper answered, "Just let me stand here on this street and gaze at Jesus a thousand years; and when I'm through, I want to see my mother and father."

Yes, praise God, He has chosen the weak.

Let Us Thank Him

Let us thank the Lord for springtime,
When the birds fill air with song;
Let us thank Him, too, for summer,
When the days are warm and long.

Let us thank Him for the autumn,
When the leaves are brown and dry;
Let us thank Him for the winter,
When the sun seems cold and high.

Let us thank Him for the morning,
When the air is cool and clear;
Let us thank Him for the evening,
When our night's sweet rest is near.

Let us thank the Lord each moment,
For its blessings and its joys;
Let us always and forever
Be His thankful girls and boys.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 15

Pilate Judged by Jesus

LESSON TEXT: John 18:28-38

MEMORY VERSE: John 18:37

I. INTRODUCTION

The time of our lesson is the early morning of the day that Christ was crucified. Sometime during the night before, He was taken by the mob with staves and swords as though He were a criminal. He was led away to be pushed through a mock trial before the Sanhedrin. The Jewish leaders—the leading religionists—condemned Him to death; but in order to execute Him, they had to have the approval and authority of the Roman government.

In order to secure Roman authority and approval, they had Jesus taken to Pilate's judgment hall. Of course, the Jewish leaders would not go inside, lest they be defiled. Therefore, Pilate came out and asked them what the accusation against Jesus was. They told him that if Jesus were not a malefactor that they would not have brought Him there. Pilate then told them to judge Jesus according to their own law. It was then that they told the Roman governor that they must have his approval and authority to put Jesus to death. Upon hearing that, Pilate went back inside.

In a conversation with Jesus, Pilate let it be known that he thought Jesus was the King of the Jews. Of course, he asked the Lord if He was their King; but He did not answer directly. Instead, He judged Pilate by his own words.

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The Jews sent Jesus to Pilate with the hope that he would approve their verdict to put Him to death (v. 28).

2. The Jews, for fear of becoming defiled, would not enter the judgment hall (v. 28).

3. Although it was a condescension for him, Pilate had no choice but to go out to the Jews in keeping with the custom (v. 29).

4. The Jews accused Jesus of being a malefactor, hoping that Pilate would immediately consent to put Him to death (v. 30).

5. When Pilate suggested that the Jews judge Jesus according to their own law, they objected, saying that the law did not give them the right to put Him to death (v. 31).

6. Jesus had already stated that He would be put to death in this manner (John 3:14 and 12:32).

7. Pilate might have been sincere when he asked Jesus if He was King of the Jews, although he had heard the accusation from the Jews (vv. 33-35).

8. Our Lord's kingdom is a spiritual one (v. 36).

9. Jesus came to establish His kingdom on truth (v. 37).

10. Pilate testified of the innocence of Jesus, although he later delivered Him to be crucified (v. 38).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Motives! How important they are in determining our actions! Pilate was torn between several motives. His motives were mixed—some good and some evil. Pilate was the presiding judge in the case of the religious leaders versus Jesus because he was the official Roman ruler of the Jews at that time. As a Roman governor he felt obligated to render a decision that was fair and official. But even though he did not realize it, Pilate's motives were being tested. In the spiritual realm, Pilate was being judged by Jesus. Jesus reminded him, "Thou couldst have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above" (John 19:11).

While many forces were brought to bear upon Pilate, he acted as an individual. He wished to release Jesus, for he sensed that this man had done nothing worthy of death. But he realized that this case was vital to his own welfare. The fate of the Son of God depended on his decision. It was the crucial decision of all time, for it carried forward God's plan of redemption. But like so many, Pilate failed to act upon principle, choosing rather to do that which was expedient. He was torn between his desire to free a man he knew to be innocent and his desire to avoid endangering his own position. If he released Jesus, the Jews in wrath might appeal to Caesar, who was a very suspicious ruler. Pilate was just selfish enough to desire the praise and position that were his as a ruler, so he permitted Jesus to be condemned to death.

—Standard Lesson Commentary

2. "In this wonderful conversation which demands the most exhaustive study, recorded only by John, Jesus accomplishes these three things: (1) He makes his own innocence clear to the governor. Pilate perceives that Jesus has no political aspirations. Notice, that when a fair hearing would be had, Jesus was ready to defend himself from false charges. He was silent only when justice was turned into a mockery. (2) He brings out in a strong light the true nature of his kingdom for the benefit of all men in all times. (3) He opens the door of salvation to Pilate. If Pilate had been candid and earnest, he would have sincerely inquired further. It was probably the crisis of his fate."—Clarke.

3. Some heathen religions are related to the government. We are all familiar with the Japanese Kamikaze pilots who deliberately crashed their planes into American ships during World War II. They had been taught from birth that their Emperor was deity, and that if they died for him in battle, they would immediately be rewarded by going to heaven.

In both China and Japan the people were taught that the ruler was the offspring of the sun god. Therefore, one could not leave the faith of the fathers and depart from Shintoism without becoming a traitor to the country. Patriotism and worship were one and the same. To become a Christian meant that they had betrayed their ruler, their nation, and their flag. In addition, the worst thing an oriental could do would be to bring shame upon the family eschewon by disgracing the ancestors.

This concept that religion is an integral part of patriotism, makes it extremely difficult for the missionary to evangelize certain areas of the world. The penalty and consequences a convert must face hinders him from accepting Christ.

An American violinist, who played a concert in Yokohama before the war, reported that the students were compelled to reverence and worship the Emperor in the chapel, whereas, in our country, absolute separation of church and tate is practiced more and more. The trend in America is to leave God entirely out of our educational system, whereas in heathen countries worship is required as an act of patriotism.

Jesus stated clearly before Pilate that He was a king, but He also made it plain that His kingdom was not of this world, otherwise His followers would take a sword and fight. He admitted He was a king, but said He was a king who had come to this earth to proclaim and defend truth.

—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

4. Sometime ago our newspapers carried the story of a strange theft in a church. The building and offices of the church had been ransacked. In one of the offices, a large picture of Christ had been turned facing the wall. Evidently, the thief could not bear to have the eyes of Jesus upon him as he committed his crime. Of course, we know that turning the picture did not turn the eyes of Jesus away from this wrong.

Pilate must have felt uneasy and conscience smitten when he faced Jesus. He did the popular thing so far as the Jews were concerned. Yet he called for a basin of water and went through the notion of washing his hands clean of the whole affair. If he had done the right thing why was this necessary? Pilate's conscience was hurting him and this was an effort to appease it.

There is the fable of a king who had a wonderful ring, which pricked his finger when he was doing anything wrong. It had been given to him by his father. Its purpose was to help him to always do the right thing under all circumstances. At first he took great pride in the ring; but in time he began to be vexed at being so often checked by its pricking, and so often stopped him from doing what he wished. One day, he had set his heart on doing something he was well aware was wrong, and he was about to do it in spite of the warning of the ring; but it pricked him so sharply, that he drew it off his finger in a passion, and threw it away. From that moment he fell into bad ways and misfortune.

Many persons have done well as long as they observed the pricking of their conscience, but when they threw it away, they fall into evil and sinful ways.

cent; for it is entirely essential to his happiness and the pleasure of his heavenly Father, as well as that of his Saviour, that he be obedient in all things. Complete unlimited loyalty and obedience in all things is required of all who would claim and maintain the pleasure and favor of his master. The kind of servants the Holy Spirit has in mind, when He represents us in the Bible as those once belonging to the devil and his kingdom, but now belonging to Christ only, are servants who have been bought and paid for, and who are the Lord's property to require of or do with as He sees fit with no obligation on Christ's part to seek the will or wish of the servant in any area of life. Because of His grace shed abroad upon all of us in this, He does let us, in certain things and under these conditions, make choices; but to say that He is obligated to do this would be wrong.

In this day when equal rights and democratic equality are given emphasis completely out of proportion, we may easily get the wrong conception of the Lord-servant relationships as represented in the Bible. In order that we rightly divide the word of truth as taught in 2 Timothy 2:15, we must once and for all get this servant-Lord relation as depicted in the Scriptures clearly fixed in our minds. Jesus is to be Lord of all in a person's experience or not at all. When confronted with a similar question, Joshua drew a sharp line of contrast, taking his stand on the Lord's side of the line and demanding that all that claimed to believe as he to do the same (Joshua 24:15). Samuel declared that obedience was preferred before sacrifice (1 Samuel 15:22, 23).

Now we may turn our attention to the part of your question involving Colossians 3:25. I think that again the answer is yes, that all the acts of disobedience that are unconfessed and for which proper restoration is not made will come with a Christian to the judgment seat of Christ. (See Proverbs 28:13; Psalm 90:8; 1 John 1:8-10; Galatians 6:5-10.)

should be confessed and forsaken while we are here in the body; otherwise they are to stand against Christians in the judgment. Hebrews 12:6-8 makes the fact clear to us that Christians who submit to it are subject to the Holy Spirit's convicting power. Children who lived in the home with their fathers were subject to the wisdom and correction these fathers exercised over children at the time Hebrews was written. Children who were illegitimate might live elsewhere and were not subject to the influence of a good home and the environment such afforded. The Christian who refuses to acknowledge in attitude at all times his relation to Christ and his indebtedness to Him and all His is taking the attitude of a bastard child. He does not subject himself to the tutorship of the Holy Spirit in the God-given conscience he acquired at the new birth; therefore, he is subject to the judgment we are warned against in Proverbs 29:7. We need to acknowledge that we abide in Christ as suggested in John 15:5-10 and to continually confess, forsake, and denounce all sin and to always be pressing toward the mark of the prize of our high calling as suggested by Philippians 3:13, 14.

When it comes to the unsaved, they may either believe on Christ as Saviour as the Bible directs or they will remain forever lost (Isaiah 53:6; 1:18; John 3:14-17, 36; Romans 10:9-11; Matthew 11:28-30). That grim message received by the rich man who was in hell, which came by the way of Abraham now in Paradise, makes it clear that when God's message has been rejected in all of one's life here on earth, his destiny is forever fixed in that place of torment and that no praying, pleading, and begging after death can alter it. So let all readers remember that today is the day of opportunity, the day of grace, the day when men may hear the message and be saved by its power for all eternity; whereas, tomorrow even ten minutes hence may be forever too late.

the boat thought the storm had come because Jonah was doing wrong. They threw Jonah out of the boat."

"Did he drown, Grandfather?" Billy asked.

"No. A whale got him—just swallowed him up!" Grandfather said.

"Now I see why you said a whale got me. I was running away from what I was supposed to do and I got stopped. But Grandfather, is that all of the story?" Billy asked.

"No," the old man answered. "Jonah made up his mind that if he got out of that old whale, he'd do what God had told him. He'd go to Nineveh just as fast as he could get there. And he did, too. That whale just tossed him up on the shore, and Jonah went to Nineveh and he preached, just the way he should have done in the first place."

"Thanks for the story, Grandfather," Billy said, "but now I've got to go. The stores will be closing in a little while." Before Grandfather could speak, Billy was gone, running with one foot and hopping with the other.

Soon Mother came to the door to see how Billy's foot felt. "Why, where's Billy?" she cried.

"Oh, he's gone to Nineveh!" Grandfather said. Then he started laughing. He just laughed and laughed. At last he stopped long enough to say, "I mean he's gone to the grocery store!"—The Children's Friend.

Woman's Auxiliary

Fountain, N. C.—On Thursday night, February 13, the YPA of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met for its regular monthly meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Turner Owens.

The president, Angae Owens, opened the meeting with having the group sing "At the Cross." Mrs. David Hobgood led the opening prayer.

Brenda Goff used for the devotion Ecclesiastes 11:9, 10. She also gave the program, "Young People of Today."

During the business session Evelyn Morgan, secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of the January meeting, which were approved. Judy Fay Ellis, treasurer, received the dues. The closing prayer was given by the group's praying together.

After the meeting adjourned the hostesses, Angae Owens and Judy Ellis, served pimento cheese sandwiches, potato chips, toasted pecans, Valentine candy, and cold drinks to the 18 who attended.

Following the social hour, games were played.

Kinston, N. C.—The AFC of White Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the annex of the church on February 10, 1964. Glinda Garris called the meeting to order. David Herring and Johnny Herring led the group in the AFC hymn, "Stand Up for Jesus." Mrs. Lan Dawson led the group in prayer.

The program was presented by the president, Glinda Garris. She was assisted by Mrs. C. W. Wood. The lesson was pertaining to the second commandment, which was very inspiring.

The meeting was then adjourned and Mrs. C. W. Wood pronounced the benediction.

Davis, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Davis Original Free Will Baptist Church met recently for its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. William A. Davis. The president, Mrs. Reginald Styron, opened the meeting by leading the group in singing a variety of choruses. The Scripture lesson was taken from Philippians. Mrs. Roy Styron offered prayer with a special request for a child from the Children's Home who is in the hospital at Chapel Hill.

The program was introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Davis, who used the auxiliary emblem as the subject for consideration. Each member was given an incompleting copy of the emblem; and as the lesson progressed, the special parts were reviewed and fitted into their places. Reviewed also was the purpose of the auxiliary; its history and future; the colors and their meaning; the hymn, "In the Service of the King"; and the watchword, "I can do all things through Christ." The leader asked that everyone be prepared for a quiz at some later meeting.

After the group had been dismissed the annual Valentine party was observed with everyone exchanging gifts and cards.

erature, and counsel Sunday school workers. The open house program will also include inspection of the fine new sanctuary recently completed by the local congregation. It is hoped that many will come early and take advantage of this open house workshop.

A new film, "The Christian Teacher," will be shown during the fellowship program following supper, and the Rev. Raymond T. Sasser will give a follow-up inspiration and encouragement talk to the workers.

THE LIVING SERMON

I'd rather see a sermon than hear one any day,

I'd rather one would walk with me than merely tell the way;

The eye's a better pupil and more willing than the ear,

Fine counsel is confusing, but example's always clear;

The best of all the preachers are the men who live their creeds,

For to see good put in action is what everybody needs.

I soon can learn to do it, if you'll let me see it done,

I can watch your hands in action, your tongue too fast may run;

The lectures you deliver may be very wise and true,

But I'd rather get my lessons by observing what you do;

I may not understand the high advice you give,

But there's no misunderstanding how you act and how you live.

"You asked for readers to comment on the subject of the recent governmental report on the effect of smoking. The report was very clear in every detail. I agree one hundred percent with arousing the public to the danger and evils of the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. In all the walks and relationships of life, whether in the home, the medical profession, the pulpit, or the legislative assembly, men should stand for temperance. To license the liquor sale is to legalize and foster it. It cannot exist or thrive without the patronage of each rising generation "Have we the public weighed the facts in the sale of alcoholic beverages or are we more interested in how much we can get out of the sale of it? Have we really counted the cost to the body? to a man's family? . . . Tobacco hurts only the person who uses it. The drunkard's life is a wreck, and he wrecks the lives of those about him. ABC stores could not exist if it were not for the so-called respectable, moderate drinker. We are responsible and held accountable if by our vote we sanction it. Since we cannot keep the drunkard out of the liquor stores, it is our duty to force the closing of them.

"When we read of a fourteen-year-old boy being found dead because he was drunk and couldn't make it home, we must awaken and do something. Are we going to build off liquor tax? If so, our foundations are laid with human skulls. The bricks are the blood of those whom liquor has killed and they are molded in the miseries of those whose lives have been destroyed by alcohol. The drunkard's history is written in tears and blood

"Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine' (Proverbs 23:29, 30)."—Mrs. Hersel Bowen, Winterville, North Carolina.

WANTED: BIBLICAL SERMONS

There is a dire need in the Christian church today for biblical sermon and biblical preaching. They are needed in the pulpit and in religious periodicals. We do not mean that there are no biblical sermons today; but we do say that there are not enough of them.

As we have previously pointed out, this is an age of change—an age of excitement. It is also an age of frustrations and discontentment. The things which people hoped would satisfy them have not done so; therefore the need for Bible-centered messages becomes even more acute.

Volume upon volume of books have been written about sermon preparation and delivery. The truth of the matter is that no minister can claim ignorance on the subject and be justified in so doing. Each minister is personally responsible to his Lord for his handling of the gospel. If it is not the most serious responsibility in his life, then he has no business trying to preach at all.

There is yet another aspect to his preaching that is very seldom mentioned; that is, the expressed will and need of the laity to whom the minister preaches the gospel. We do not mean that the laity should tell the minister what he should preach each time he stands in the pulpit. On the other hand, a minister can often find the best and most suitable ideas for his sermons by what he hears from his laity. If the minister is not oversensitive to criticism, he can often find many areas for improvement. The conscientious layman will do all he can to help the minister to be more effective in his pulpit ministry. After all, he has the right and privilege to counsel with his pastor.

Nothing can replace the proclamation of the Word of God. If the Word is faithfully proclaimed, there will be results. These results may not always be visible, but the Spirit of God will be at work.

Modernistic trends easily affect the minister's preaching. He may be fundamental in his beliefs, but fail to impart those beliefs to others. He may be influenced to the extent of "watering down" gospel truths. He may become inclined to avoid positive statements. He may fill his sermons with too many words such as, perhaps, maybe, it seems, it is likely, etc. The consistent use of these words may cause the congregation to doubt the wisdom of the minister. In reality, nothing can replace "Thus saith the Lord," or "The Bible says," or "Jesus said." After all, the true teachings of the Bible are what really matters.

We contend, therefore, that the need of the hour in religious matters is good, sound, biblical sermons. These sermons must be based upon the authority of God's Word. No person can sincerely take exception to the Word of the Lord.

Philosophical sermons cannot meet the spiritual hunger of the soul. Neither can the social message. If the minister is to deliver his own soul, he must center his message on the Word of God. Nothing else can take its place.

Adolph Bedsole, in his book, "The Pastor in Profile," says, "I wish I could preach. Oh, I move along at the job, but I wish I could really preach, powerfully and effectively. The greatest need of human society today is preaching that will move men God's way. Just as surely as atoms hold the secret of power in the physical universe, preaching holds the secret of power in the spiritual world about us."

Biblical sermons will move men God's way!

Moral Courage

by WALTER E. ISENHOUR

PERHAPS there is no time in one's life when it means more to have moral courage than in the days and years of youth. Thinking of what the word moral means in different respects, I turned to Webster's Dictionary and this is his definition: "Pertaining to morality or morals; conformed to right; subject to, or influenced by, the moral law; virtuous; practically sufficient; serving to teach a moral; inner meaning; the lesson or truth taught by, or derived from, a fable; likeness or counterpart; moral philosophy or ethics; conduct of life; behavior."

This is quite a lengthy definition of the word moral, but it is a very important word, and should hold a very prominent place in one's life. To be highly moral is perhaps the next thing to being deeply spiritual. However, it is possible to be highly moral without being spiritual; but it is not possible to be spiritual without being moral. Both should have the leading place in the life of every man. To be deeply spiritual, one must have great moral courage. The enemy of one's life sorely and tremendously tempts people along moral lines. If he can break down one's morals he has access more easily to the soul, or the inner spiritual life.

One must continually guard his morals if he would keep his spirituality. Even if one is not spiritual, he should cherish his clean morals as a pearl of priceless value, and then seek to reach the higher realm of spirituality.

To most of us the meaning of morals is that of clean living, having a good name and character, virtuous, honest, truthful, a high state of manhood and womanhood, splendid conduct, and good behavior.

It means more to have moral courage than we can express fully in words. Just here is where the enemy of youth tries so severely to come in and gain the victory that may mean the wreck and ruin, defeat and damnation of the life across the years of his future. Of course the youth always needs divine leadership and protection as he meets the onslaughts of the enemy. To fail here may mean ever afterwards a blighted mind, soul, spirit, and life.

It indeed takes great moral courage to withstand the temptations of the devil at all times in life, but more particularly in the days of youth when one's life is in the formation and molding period. We are conscious that to fail here may mean to fail out in future years; but to succeed here may mean to succeed in future years. O the importance of being a moral soldier and here in the days of youth, and going forth to life's best, highest, and holiest!

The morally courageous youth shall have to go against the downward trend of the world. There will be those about him who drift with the tide; who fall for the things the devil tempts them with; who are morally unclean; who fall a prey to bad and ruinous habits; who may even laugh at those who will not take in with them; who will tell the moral and spiritual here that he is missing the most enjoyable things in life; who are out to gratify their fleshly appetites and passions, and who may strive very hard to pull him into the same tide that is taking them down the stream hellward.

Indeed it takes moral courage and heroism to stand against the attacks, temptations, onslaughts, wiles and power of the devil; but it can be done, God's grace is sufficient. While the devil is powerful, God is all-powerful. God wants heroes, not cowards. However, He can take a cowardly youth who will yield himself fully to Him and make a moral and spiritual hero out of him. Likewise, He can take a youth who is fully consecrated to Him and make a burning and shining light of him for the world to look upon, maybe with wonderment.

Dear youth, you don't have to yield to defeatism. Blot this out of your vocabulary. If sometimes you have to stand alone to stand right—STAND. If you fully trust God remember that He is there. Put your faith in Him at all times and under all circumstances.

Let me advise you to breathe an earnest prayer in the ever-hearing ears of God. He will sustain you in spite of all the devil can heap upon you and in spite of the forces he brings to bear against you in opposition to your godliness and bravery.

Behold the moral cowards that live in defeat about you. See what bad habits, bad company, idleness, aimlessness, and living without a great and sublime purpose is doing for them. See how they are drifting with the tide that is carrying them to wreck and ruin in health, in morals, in mentality, and that is robbing them of heavenly blessings and heaven itself. Let this be an incentive to you to be different. Let this spur you onward to higher heights and deeper depths in godliness and holiness, and help to make and keep you a moral and spiritual hero.

Yes, be courageous. Scale the heights and ascend to the peaks of noble manhood and womanhood, usefulness, success, and to the honor and glory of God. It's your privilege; therefore use it and save yourself of a million regrets, and let God bring to you an eternity of blessedness and rejoicing.

Declaration of the Mission Board of the Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptists

Inasmuch as mission work is being carried on in Mexico—known as the Arizona-Mexico Missions, Inc., Post Office Box 550, Nogales, Arizona—under the direction of the Rev. John B. Elliston, and also that other mission work is being carried on in Mexico under the direction of the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists through its missionaries and assigned agents, the Rev. James E. Timmons, Post Office Box 517, Eagle Pass, Texas, being the director there, and at present there being three missionary couples and native workers totaling fourteen in all working in this field; and,

Inasmuch as other opportunities are being extended both home and foreign—other missionaries are in training for other fields, and more mission workers have intimated their desire to work with this fellowship—making it imperative that a sound, well supported and correlated mission program be established and sponsored by this organization and its cooperating constituency; and,

Inasmuch as the above named organization was brought into being for cooperation in extending the work of the kingdom of God through Christian fellowship, missions, Christian education, Christian literature, and other ways and means as may be mutually agreed upon, and that to accomplish the required goal all Christians of like faith and persuasion must have common grounds of interest and fellowship in the cause; and,

Inasmuch as the above-named missionary endeavor is being supported by many loyal Original Free Will Baptists from several states, some of whom support by direct contact and contribution, others through their respective denominational organizations; a large part of support being dependent upon and coming from churches and organizations affiliated with the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists with a membership of approximately forty thousand; and,

Inasmuch as the best, most convenient method and channel of support has not been clearly established, making it difficult for contributors to determine where to forward funds or to determine who is in control of or in supervision of said mission endeavor;

I. CONTROL

- A. That a mission board of five members be committed the responsibility of working with all subordinate organizations in promotion, policy making, budgeting and determining the needs and protecting the interest of this organization and its associates, subject to the approval of the body while in regular session.
- B. That all mission endeavor above the level of the highest organization in the state associated with this fellowship be supervised by or labored with in cooperation with this board.
- C. That the board and those committed the responsibility of supervising the work exercise no authority other than that committed to the board to protect the interest of those contributing to the said mission cause.
- D. That all missionaries and workers be approved by and be under the supervision of this board or its assigned agents.

II. FINANCIAL SUPPORT

- A. That all persons or organizations in support of this mission endeavor consider and forward funds for credit to Paul Irvin, P.O. Box 164, Newton, Ga., official treasurer, and that the above address be clearly established as the correct address to which to send all funds for credit.

- B. That any organization forwarding funds for support of missions or workers in this organization, or on the mission field be requested to forward them to the treasurer or be requested to give a record of such funds to the treasurer of this fellowship for his records.
- C. That any subordinate organization or individual holding interest or voice in the mission endeavor by reason of accumulated shares, stocks, or bonds be asked to blend efforts and voice in further establishing and developing the mission cause, but not to any degree tending to jeopardize their spiritual or financial interest already established.

III. FUTURE DEVELOPEMENT

- A. That the mission department continue to develop and strengthen the cause of missions among the Spanish speaking people and in other parts of the world by periodicals, employing missionaries, opening mission stations, and other ways by such means as deemed wise as funds and personnel are available.
 - B. That a suitable educational institution for training native workers and prospective missionaries be established on the border of Mexico, presumably in Nogales, Arizona, and that this board be committed the responsibility of seeing that this project goes forward with reasonable speed.
 - C. That all Mexico work under this board be harmonized, with suitable headquarters, and that a general director for Mexico missions be employed to work in this capacity.
 - D. That both home and foreign mission endeavors be united and supported by this board and its constituency.
 - E. That those in support of missions inasmuch as possible be encouraged to contribute generally for missions, making designations only to home or for-

Faith to Live By

NO acquire signal success in any vocation requires a complete dedication to the job at hand. We must believe in the thing we are doing, and use every effort to make it as perfect as possible.

No farmer has ever been a success who goes about his job in a slipshod, slovenly manner. To be a success, he must lay out his job with systematic order and diligenece. He must take pride in seeing the things he has planted respond to the work of his hands; he must be ever striving to increase his per acre yield. In order to find real happiness and contentment, one must learn to feel a kinship to the soil and the growing things. He must learn to meet the challenges of nature with faith and a will to win.

No matter if one goes all the way through life believing in and trusting in someone or something and never sees his faith and hope fulfilled, he will still feel better for having believed. Without a strong and abiding faith there remains no great future for any person; for where his faith has stagnated or burned out, there remains only the dimmest of visions; and bright visions and hopes are the only real formula for success.

We see eternity mirrored in faith; it is the crux of all things past, present, and future. Perseverance in duty will finally reward the hope we have nourished in our hearts that there is a reward for the faithful. Faith is not only the altar but the sacrifice, and perhaps is itself the greatest of all. Faith is a submission of our understandings, a resignation to God's will, an abandonment of self, a relinquishment of pride and lust, and a lifting of our affections humbly and meekly toward God.

We see faith and hope in the eyes of a mother who has prayed long and earnestly for the soul of the son whom the law has condemned as an incorrigible. Though society has branded him as depraved and hopeless, the mother still feels a strengthening hope and promise each time she brings him in her heart to an altar of prayer.

The missionaries that were killed by the Auea Indians were real examples of self-sacrifice; the Indians were amazed that they did not attempt to protect themselves by shooting their way out of the ambush but only fired their guns into the air to try to frighten their attackers. This was a perfect picture of love for others. If the missionaries had saved themselves by killing a part of their attackers, they would have defeated the very purpose they went there to establish—that love is supreme, and force is savage. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." I do not believe that this great sacrifice made by those five men of God will go unrewarded, but that the blood that they spilled in this foreign land in the cause for Christ will be a living testimony for others who will gain inspiration from their example of love and faith.

God not only said for us to love our neighbor as ourselves, but He also said for us to love our enemies. This is the one way we can have proof of the grace of God, for without God's grace we find it is impossible to love our enemies. Then through the revelation of Christian understanding we see ourselves just as our enemies appear to us: unlovely and unlovable—for that is the state we were in as sinners.

When I find myself tempted to harbor some grudge or some feeling of ill will against someone, I am reminded of the words Jesus spoke to the accusers of the woman who was taken in adultery, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." This will certainly open our eyes to our imperfections and bring us to an altar of repentance that we even thought ill of our fellowman.

I thank God for a faith that has been tried and proved over and over, time and again. The very fact that God gave us access to faith is one of His greatest benedictions. The discords of the present, by faith, become the harmonies of the future.

You must be a possessor of faith to be aware of the magnitude of its greatness and glory. Epochs of fruitfulness come only in epochs of faith, for we always find eras of unbelief as barren of wholesome grain as a fallow field.

Hawthorne once said, "Christian faith is a grand cathedral, with divinely pictured windows.—Standing without, you can see no glory, nor can imagine any, but standing within every ray of light reveals a harmony of unspeakable splendors."

PLANT THESE P's ANY TIME

Prayer. It is the one plant you can absolutely count on when droughts and other disasters devastate your patch.

Purpose. Don't drift along through life. Have a big worthwhile purpose and pursue it through thick and thin.

Politeness. Someone has wisely said that courtesy is one of the outstanding requisites of success.

Praise. Don't be afraid of planting too much of this seed. It will not only add a lot to your garden, but cause the other person's, which may look stony and bare, to blossom like the rose.

Pity. Be sure your packet is marked "For Others." This will enrich your garden wonderfully, but if you make the mistake of planting the packet labelled "Self," your garden will be blighted.

Patience. This kind of seed is slow in germination and growth, but very needful to the general welfare of your garden.

Perfume. Grandmother understood the art of gardening when she planted Sweet William along the border and poppy seed right in the onion bed. Don't let the practical vegetables crowd out the perfume plants.—Children's Friend.

Johnston County Free Will Baptist Ministers Organize

Eighteen Free Will Baptist ministers from Johnston County, North Carolina, met at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Smithfield recently and organized the Johnston County Free Will Baptist Ministers' Association. The stated purpose of the meeting was to be able to deal as a group with issues that affect the county and for fellowship. The group will meet each month at the Smithfield church. Meetings will include a business session and a sermon by a preacher in the association.

It was noted at the organizational meeting that Johnston County has the largest number of Free Will Baptists of any county in the world, some 4,830.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

ATTENTION LOCAL PROGRAM-PRAYER CHAIRMEN IN EASTERN DISTRICT

by MRS. BERNARD ADKINS

Program-Prayer Chairman for Eastern District of North Carolina

The program-prayer chairman of your auxiliary should use the monthly program as found in Devotion. Your program can be presented in many interesting ways—several speakers, playlets, panel discussions, guest speakers, etc.—but it should be mission-centered as much as the material permits, and should stimulate the members to a greater devotion to Christ and a more earnest service to the world.

Careful and prayerful planning of your programs will always be rewarding, and those who attend will experience a spirit-moving program urging the individual to a more dedicated life.

You, as chairman of the program-prayer committee, should plan with your committee impressive ways to give programs using the Bible. If your auxiliary is large enough to be divided into circles, you will find programs outlined in Devotion for the circle meetings; or perhaps you would like to study a book.

The Woman's Auxiliary Standard of Achievement requires the observance of three weeks of prayer—Easter, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. You and your committee are responsible for these three seasons of prayer (point 7 on the standard), and also for the annual increase of ten percent in tithers (point 4 on the standard).

Each monthly program in Devotion and circle meeting programs stress another means of service to our Saviour around our theme for 1964, "Building the Kingdom in Our Hearts." Devoted Christians divide their purse; we need fervent and persistent prayer warriors also. You should encourage individual devotions, emphasize the establishment of family altars in every home in your church, and report monthly on special programs, services, offering, etc.

As your district chairman, I shall be delighted to assist any local auxiliary program-prayer chairman if called upon. I covet your prayers in the planning of our convention programs.

Attention Local Mission Chairmen in Eastern District

by MRS. J. C. GRIFFIN

Temporary Mission Chairman for Eastern District of North Carolina

Our hearts are made to rejoice when we read The Free Will Baptist and note the awakening to the call of missions in the different auxiliaries of our Free Will Baptist churches.

We see the "Go ye" put in action beginning at home, then to the faraway land.

I think we all like to have a goal set to work toward. First, let's help one of our missions here in North Carolina each month; then, help build a church at Magdalena, Mexico. The Rev. Jose Guzman is pastor of this mission. He says that they can build a church for $300. The sum of $300 is a small amount to build a church. May the Lord speak to someone to answer that call and send the amount needed. Let's keep this goal in mind and work until we reach it. We can expect great things from God when we have obeyed His command, "Go ye."

Mission chairmen, it is your responsibility to keep all the mission projects before your people; also, to keep them informed of the progress made. Information keeps us inspired to keep on keeping on. In our enthusiasm for missions may we not forget a most important obligation we have, and that is to support our college at Mount Olive, North Carolina, and Cragmont Assembly at Black Mountain, North Carolina.

Missions is the first and most essential department of the woman's auxiliary. As mission chairmen, you should plan and promote mission projects; assist active missionaries by writing letters, sending occasional gifts on birthdays and other special days; encourage missionary candidates; distribute mission literature and Bibles; emphasize stewardship; and lead your women to pray for missions.

Cape Fear Auxiliary Workshop

The Cape Fear Woman's Auxiliary Convention will hold a workshop at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Smithfield, North Carolina, on Monday night, March 16, at seven o'clock. All auxiliary members and officers of the convention are urged to attend. There will be classes for each officer, to help her to become better acquainted with the new manual of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Ed Taylor,
Study Course Chairman

Attention Youth Chairmen

In a recent executive meeting of the North Carolina State Woman's Auxiliary Convention, it was decided that the ranks for YFA, AFC, BA, GA, and CA be left up to the local youth chairman to plan these as a special part of her youth program in her local church.

Awards for state winners of declamation and essay contests have been set as follows: YFA and AFC declamation contests—winners $15, runner-up $7.50; YFA and AFC essay contests—winners $10, runner-up $5. Winners in district contests will receive medals; cash awards also may be given.

A YFA member who has won a state declamation or essay contest is not eligible to participate for an award again. However, he is encouraged to participate as a member of the Paul Palmer Society, which is made up of all state winners.

An AFC member who has won a state exclamation or essay contest is not eligible to participate in an AFC contest for an award again. When he becomes a member of the YFA, however, he may enter the YFA contests.

The time is drawing near for the district youth conventions. Youth auxiliaries are requested to fill out the report blank in the program book and send it, along with $1, to the district convention. The dollar will be divided between the district and the state conventions for promotional work—fifty cents for each.

The state youth convention will be held in April. Watch for the time and place.

Mrs. David W. Hansley
State Youth Chairman

Saratoga, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Floyd White for the February meeting. Mrs. George Welton, president, turned the program over to Mrs. Luby Amerson, program chairman. The group sang the auxiliary hymn, "In the Service of the King." Scripture was read by Mrs. White, and the opening prayer was prayed by Mrs. Paul Thigpen.

Mrs. Albert Proctor introduced the program entitled "The New WA Emblem Points to Kingdom Building."

The group had a very brief business session with 16 members and two visitors present.

"His Way with Thee" was the closing hymn, and Mrs. Bill Jones offered the benediction.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. White.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Madge Van Horn for its February meeting.

The president opened the meeting with the group's singing "In the Service of the King." The Scripture was taken from Philippians 4:9-13. Mrs. Marvin Sawyer prayed the opening prayer.

After Mrs. Bernice Maitland gave a very interesting introduction, the following took part on the program: Mrs. Elizabeth Brickhouse, Mrs. Nancy Sawyer, and Mrs. Zinnie Taylor.

During the business session the minutes were read and approved. The roll was called with 12 members present.

The meeting closed with the group's singing "The Way of the Cross Leads Home." The pastor, the Rev. Robert Rollins, pronounced the benediction.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Whortonsville, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Bethel Free Will Baptist Church held its installation service on Thursday, February 13, following a regular monthly meeting.

The call to worship, Scripture reading, and prayer were given by Mrs. Lupton. The following officers were installed: president, Mrs. Rosa Deimo; vice-president, Mrs. Bertha Silverthorn; recording and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ethel Whorton; treasurer, Mrs. Bettie Whorton; study course chairman, Mrs. Glennie Banks; youth chairman, Mrs. Grace Whorton; program-prayer chairman, Mrs. Sara Lupton; mission chairman, Mrs. Zella Woodard; Children's Home chairman, Mrs. Ruby Hill; flower chairman, Mrs. Jo Hazel Silverthorn; benevolence and social committee, Mrs. Hilma Lupton, Mrs. Mate Lupton, and Mrs. Kathleen Slade.

Each officer accepted her office willingly and those who were not installed as officers pledged themselves to help in any way possible to make 1964 a successful year.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Greenville, N. C.—The AFC of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting on Tuesday, February 18. There were 11 members present.

The meeting was called to order by the AFC sponsor. After the singing of several songs, the Scripture was read by Ronnie Carraway and Clint Lewis. The group then sang a prayer song, "Father, We Thank Thee."

During the business session the roll was called and minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Deborah Warren. The treasurer's report was given by Tony Clark.

It was decided that each member make a gift to carry to the children's ward in the Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville to be given to the sick children.

Bernice Clark led the group in repeating the watchword and motto. She then explained the meaning of the emblem of the auxiliary. Those taking part on the program were Ronnie Brown, Ronnie Carraway, Kirby Clark, Tony Clark, Clint Lewis, Eddie Lewis, Charles Ed Mayo, and Eddie Lloyd.

The meeting was dismissed with sentence prayers.

Refreshments were served by the pastor, the Rev. Austin Carter.

Clayton, N. C.—The YFA of Powhatan Free Will Baptist Church met for its February meeting in the home of Jean Blinson on February 13. The meeting was called to order by the president, Diane Stevens, after which the group sang several choruses.

The Scripture was read from Acts 12: 1-9 by Mrs. J. W. Nichols.

During a brief business session the secretary called the roll with 18 members present. Various other reports were also given.

The program, "In Step with Jesus in Patriotic Service," was given by Larry Coates, Jenny Williams, Randy Southerland, Jean Blinson, and Diane Stevens.

Glenda Brady prayed the benediction prayer, after which the hostess served refreshments.

Raleigh, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Palmer Memorial Free Will Baptist Mission held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Helen Strickland and Shirley Hairr on February 20. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lawrence Garris, who welcomed all members and visitors.

The group sang "In the Service of the King," and was led in prayer by Mrs. Earl Phillips. Mrs. Lawrence Garris read the Scripture which was taken from Philippians 4:9-13.

Mrs. Louis Puckett, program chairman, turned the program over to Miss Helen Strickland, speaker for the evening. After the program, the group sang "His Way with Thee."

There were 15 members, one new member, and ten visitors present.

After a brief business session Mrs. Albert Woodard dismissed the group.

Winterville, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Bethany Free Will Baptist Church met on February 17 in the educational building for its monthly meeting.

The meeting opened with devotions by the president, Mrs. Archie Nobles. Following this the roll was called and minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Winnie Mae Bright. Various other reports were also given.

The youth chairman reported that the

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

Recently in going through my files, I found in the The Free Will Baptist "Notes and Quotes" which were written in the year of 1937 (Wednesday, September 1). I thought at that writing that what I had selected was good for us to know; and I have not changed my mind, so I am giving to our readers the article as it appeared in print on that date:

CONSIDER CHRIST

CONSIDER CHRIST—He is our Saviour—Matthew 1:21.

He is our Shepherd—John 10:11.

He is our Guide—Jeremiah 3:4.

He is our Passover—1 Corinthians 5:7.

He is our Sacrifice—1 Corinthians 5:7.

He is our Advocate—1 John 2:1.

He is our Life—Colossians 3:4.

He is our Head—Colossians 1:18.

He is our Wisdom—1 Corinthians 1:30.

He is our Righteousness—1 Corinthians 1:30.

He is our Sanctification—1 Corinthians 1:30.

He is our Redemption—1 Corinthians 1:30.

He is our Foundation—Matthew 16:18.

He is the Image of God—Hebrews 1:3.

He is our Pattern—Matthew 11:29.

He is All in All—Colossians 3:11.

What more do we need? Even though we are criticized by those who know more than we, and possibly, "all manner of evil spoken of" by those who would build up themselves by dragging someone down, yet in "Christ we are more than conquerors." Praise the Lord.

— — — — —
"And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit" (Ephesians 5:18). This is a divine command. To be less than filled with the Spirit is equally as much of a transgression of the divine command as to "be drunk with wine." No drunkard can go to heaven; neither can those who are not filled with the Spirit. If I know the teachings of the Bible, ye must be filled. To be filled with the Spirit, we must be emptied of self. That is a task. We can see the selfishness of the other fellow, but it is hard to see our own selfishness. The results of the Spirit-filled life are:

1. It means that we are burdened for lost souls.

2. It means that we will be led by the Spirit.

3. It means that we will be able to forgive those who trespass against us.

4. It means that we have love in our hearts for the children of God.

5. It means that we will be able to confess our faults with no strings tied to the confession.

6. It means that we will go where the Lord commands or calls us to go, and we can go without reservations. Do it whole-heartedly.

We have just examined the new songbook, "Hymns of Praise," Number Two. It is a real good selection of hymns. It is compiled by Revs. R. F. Pittman and R. N. Hinnant and printed and made up in our own printing house at Ayden. I think it is the best selection of hymns that we have had in many years. Send for a copy, or 100 copies. You will like it.

— — — — —
The Fifth Eastern Union which was held at Oak Grove, Craven County, was an extremely good session. The Spirit of the Lord was there. One reason why we say "The Spirit was there" is because we felt His presence. Another reason is that when an offering was made for foreign missions and a couple of dear old saints and ministers, who had to give up work years ago, the people responded with gladness and tears. You can measure a man's religion by his pocketbook if he has a pocketbook. Yes, those who have money and love God and His saints, and the souls of lost men, will put their money into the work without hesitation.

We Can Live Above Our Circumstances

by WINNIFRED AVERETT
Winterville, North Carolina

(A Challenge to Original Free Will Baptists)

No matter who we are or where we are, we can live above our circumstances. Time after time in history, both men and women have proved that we can live above our circumstances. They have proved it by using what they had.

Abraham Lincoln became president of the United States without having any formal schooling. The words of many of our hymns were written by Fanny J. Crosby, who was blind. Beethoven's most famous music was written during his years of deafness.

The person best known for living above her circumstances is Helen Keller. She was born without being able to hear, to see, or to speak. Through the years she learned to speak. Her handicaps did not keep her from obtaining an education. She even attended college and took part in many of the social activities. Traveling around the world to visit war-blinded soldiers has been one of her many tasks. Today she is well known as an authoress and lecturer.

We, as Original Free Will Baptists, are not living above our circumstances. Many of us are letting our circumstances get us down. As individuals and as a Church, we are spending so much time wishing things were different that we are overlooking all the advantages and opportunities we have before us. We can live above our circumstances if we use what we have. God made us as we are and placed us where we are so that we can best serve and glorify Him.

Let us as Original Free Will Baptists stop wishing things were different and start using what the Lord has given us to serve and glorify Him. Let us as Original Free Will Baptists live above our circumstances.

The Only Sufficient Answer

Mr. Gladstone was once asked, "What is the remedy for the deeper sorrow of the human heart?"

His answer was, "I must point to something which in a well-known hymn is called 'the old, old story,' told of in an old, old Book and taught with an old, old teaching which is the greatest and best gift ever given to mankind."—Christian Observer.

QUESTION: What does the expression, the fear of the Lord, we find in the Bible mean?—A. J. J.

ANSWER: First I quote from L. T. Talbot's book, Bible Questions Explained, page 241, which says of this phrase: "This is an Old Testament expression meaning reverent trust."

In your letter you seem puzzled at the expression thinking that we who are Christians do not need to be afraid of God, a fact which is of course true. When we fulfilled John 3:36, Acts 16:31, Isaiah 1:18, trusting Christ and His redemptive work on Calvary for our salvation, we became identified with Him in that death on Calvary and in His resurrection as well. In that death and resurrection He took away even the fear of death. "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, He also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage" (Hebrews 2:14, 15).

Death was Satan's most powerful implement of destruction. Adam and Eve, our first parents, were never afraid until they sinned; but then, being dead spiritually, they became afraid and tried to hide because their sin was against God. They needed to be afraid; for God had said, "... for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Genesis 2:17). But God interposes, providing for them in their destitution and covering them with the skins of animals whose blood evidently was shed in their behalf and symbolized that to be shed on Calvary about A.D. 33. The garment that God placed on Adam and Eve symbolized Christ; the garment of righteousness He places on every sinner the instant he exercises saving faith in His only begotten Son. Henceforth, the believer may come in Christ boldly before the throne of grace and be accepted as freely as Christ Himself is accepted; "for in Him we live and move and have our being."

Jesus in His every act and move here upon the earth exercised reverential trust and respect for His heavenly Father and now in Him we should do likewise. The difference is that Jesus had no sins of His own with which to be concerned or to confess. We ever need to let the confession and forsaking of our personal sins have a place in our worship; but we need not, as a sinner who does not confess Christ as Saviour and Lord, fear the eternal judgment awaiting the end of this life. We come boldly without any fear of His rejecting us or discrediting the offering Christ made in our behalf, or of our prayers not being answered, since we abide in Him and He in us. "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you" (John 15:7). It is on the grounds of better blood than any other the old covenant could offer. It was divine blood that was offered on our behalf; and on that grounds we came before God in Christ clothed, not in our own righteousness, but in Christ's righteousness. No Jew could come in the presence of Christ without having offered the blood of an innocent victim. We may come only when the blood of our innocent victim has been appropriated ever since He was appropriated by us. In Him we have free access to the throne of Grace. Aaron, the Levitical high priest, had to have the garment fitting according to God's prescription for such and had to follow all details in preparing and presenting the offerings before he gained admittance into the presence of God in behalf of his own as well as the sins of all Israel. Now we are all king-priests in Christ and appear, not as defeatists, but as victors in Him.

Of course we always come feeling that in ourselves we are unworthy and unfit to approach unto the presence of the holy, sinless, just, and eternal Judge of the whole universe, and yet with assurance and without fear for perfect love casts out all fear. The consecrated Christian is not afraid of disasters that are pending; for he can say with Paul, "Absent from the flesh—present with the Lord." He is not afraid of that state of eternal separation from the presence of God because he can say with Paul, "For the which cause I also suffer these things: nevertheless I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (2 Timothy 1:12).

The Christian's once for all commitment to Christ when he was saved and his continuous knowledge of His abiding presence as he renews his vows from day to day, walking in Christ's light and liberty as a son of God and an heir and joint heir with Christ, should keep him in a frame of mind to always reverence and respect God but to never fear evil from or of Him. David said, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, . . ." (Psalm 23:4). God has no evil in mind toward His children who obey and will allow no evil mind to dominate them.

It is a wonderful thing to be a Christian while one awaits final benefits, but the poor hell-bound lost souls of the world have no idea what they miss by seeking pleasure from any other walk. They display the state of spiritual blindness in which they are and of which they are victims.

STORIES

BOYS and GIRLS

BE PREPARED

J. B. STETZ

DALE and Carl stood on the bluff overlooking the creek which snaked through the barren prairie. Dale kicked a dried fish head lying on the rocks. Carl pointed to another, then another which had evidently been discarded by some previous fishermen.

"There's bound to be fish in that creek. We were just plain foolish to come without our fishing poles," Carl said.

"You said it!" Dale agreed. "After hiking this far and finding a good creek, it's disgusting to be unprepared."

"'Be prepared.' That is our Boy Scout motto. We're not very good scouts today!"

"That's right," Dale replied, at the same time wincing as he remembered another time when he was unprepared. Several weeks before when he was first saved, he had asked Carl if he were saved.

"Saved from what?" Carl had asked.

Dale hadn't been prepared for that question. He hadn't known how to answer, so he had just shrugged his shoulders and said, "Oh, I dunno, exactly."

At that time he wasn't too clear himself about what salvation meant. Mainly he had gone to the altar because his mom and some of the church people had told him that he should be saved. He'd always heard his mom talking about the need to be saved. He knew that it was a good thing, so he had gone to the altar and prayed the way they told him. Afterward his mom told him that he should tell other people about the Lord, so that's what he had tried to do, but the boys didn't know what he was talking about. He didn't want them to think he was crazy, so he hadn't tried to explain. It was real confusing, trying to tell someone about something you didn't know much about yourself.

"Well, anyway," Carl began, breaking the short silence when Dale's mind had been working overtime. "Let's go closer and take a look. Any creek around here that still has water in it this late in the year should have some nice fish. Maybe we can see some."

The two boys zig-zagged down from the bluff toward the creek which wound through the dry prairie.

"Look at that!" Carl exclaimed in a whisper, pointing to a lazy catfish muzzling a mossy rock just beneath the water.

"Wouldn't he be fun to get on a line? The water's sort of muddy, but I can see some little ones, too. There's bound to be others," Dale said.

"It's a long ways from town, but it would be worth coming again if we caught some fish," Dale said as he pushed the shock of damp red hair from his forehead.

"We'll come prepared for you next time," Carl told the big "eat." The boys laughed when the "eat" twitched a feeler in reply and lazily sunk into the water.

Dale and Carl elambered up the bank and began the hot hike back to town. But Dale was more silent than usual. He couldn't get away from the thought that he should say something to his friend about the Lord.

He had learned a few things since he had asked Carl if he were saved. He had learned that a person had to be saved from sin to escape hell, and he had learned too, that being saved meant more than kneeling at an altar just because someone had told him he should, but that it meant loving Jesus enough to not do sinful things which would displease Him. Now Dale knew more about salvation, but since he had "flubbed up" his first attempt to witness, he was afraid to try again. He was afraid Carl would either laugh at him or ask another question he wasn't prepared for.

Maybe the Lord would give him another opportunity. Silently he asked the Lord for another chance. But he couldn't seem to find it as they hiked back to town. They were almost home when Dale asked in desperation, "Carl, how about going to church with me Sunday night? We will have some good music, and you will like our evangelist."

"No. I'm not much for church," Carl replied.

The boys parted after they made plans to return with their poles and bait on Monday.

Sunday night came. When the evangelist announced that he was going to preach on the Second Coming of the Lord, Dale wished that he had been able to get Carl to come.

The evangelist read his text, "Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

Dale about jumped out of his seat when Evangelist Summers said, "We must all be prepared because we do not know the moment when the Lord will return. If we are caught away from God, and unprepared, we will be lost."

Suddenly a very thankful feeling flooded Dale's heart. For the first time since he'd been saved he was impressed with just how much it meant for him to be saved. Along with it, came a strong desire to see Carl saved.

The evangelist continued, "If Christ is sincerely real to you, you will not rest until you know that your friends are prepared to meet God also. It would be a terrible thing to be lost forever."

"That's Carl he's talking about," Dale thought. "He might be lost. Oh, I'm sorry I wasn't prepared to explain it to him the first time. If he only lived closer to the church, I'd go tell him right now."

Eagerly Dale waited for the next day to come when he and Carl would go fishing together as they had planned.

Central Conference Missions Report

Please accept our sincere thanks for the splendid support during the month of February. Offerings for the month amounted to $1,148.23, the largest offerings for one month in the history of the board of missions. We are grateful for your confidence and loyalty to the cause of missions. The issues of January 8 and 29 of The Free Will Baptist gave detailed reports of the board since last November.

Reports from the field are very good. The church building at Weldon will be used for the first time the third Sunday in March. You should be proud of the work these loyal people have done. You should be grateful that you had an opportunity to help these fellow Christians build a suitable place of worship. Pay them a visit third Sunday if possible. We hope to have a picture of the church for the paper real soon. In the meantime, we have bills to pay that amount to over $1,000. Remember this is a loan, and someday our investment there will be used to help another young church. Send a special offering for this cause as soon as possible. Our credit is good, but we don't want to stretch it.

Our work in Roanoke Rapids is growing rapidly. Attendance is good with 37 for Sunday school last Sunday, and 39 for worship services. Offerings?? 39 for worship services. A weekly children's meeting is held every Friday afternoon that has grown from two members to seventeen. Offerings during February amounted to $104.05, which was a great help in meeting operating expenses. The Rev. Noah Brown, pastor of the mission, says they need to close in the back porch of the building to be used as a classroom for Sunday school. Soon we hope to be able to undertake the building of an educational building there. Mr. Brown thinks the local people will assist in the work of this project. The annual payment to the Church Finance Association on this mission has been paid on time, together with interest.

Other fields are opening up. The field is white to harvest; there is only one handicap, the necessary funds. We would like for you to do one thing: pray daily for Central Conference missions. Ask God to help you see the vision and goal of our conference: "An Original Free Will Baptist Church in every town." If you will pray about this, we need not worry about the necessary funds to do the job. Our missionary will be able to do a better job because your prayers will be backing him up.

Now to finish this report with the usual urgent appeal. We wish that it were not necessary to do this, but somehow it seems that we must operate on the old-fashioned basis. Old-fashioned water pumps have to be primed almost every time they are used. Nowadays most people have the self-priming kind. That is the kind the mission work needs so that the reports will be of blessings received instead of pump-priming articles for more money. Our prayer is that officers and pastors of each church will look at these reports. If the name of your church does not appear in them, will you please pray and then give your people an opportunity to give.

Good Family Horse

A horseman once went to Henry Ward Beecher and said, "Mr. Beecher, I have a good family horse I want to sell you. He is a good saddle horse, a good buggy horse, and a good carriage horse. He works double with any other horse, and on either side of the wagon tongue. He is a good, all-around horse, and a good team worker."

"I can't buy your horse," replied Mr. Beecher, "but I would surely like to have him as a member of my church."—Moody Monthly.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 22

TWO MEN—TWO DESTINIES

LESSON TEXT: Lukc 23:32-43

MEMORY VERSE: 1 John 1:9

I. INTRODUCTION

In this lesson we are concerned with the lives and destinies of the two men who were crucified with Jesus. They were probably former associates of Barabbas, who was set free and in whose place Christ was crucified. However, it would be impossible to overlook the death of Jesus Christ, for this is one of the most important events that ever took place in the world. His death alone has influenced more lives than the death of all the great men of all ages. This lesson reveals how His death especially influenced the thieves being crucified beside Him.

It has been almost two thousand years ago on the day just preceding the Sabbath that a guard of Roman soldiers came from one of the gates of Jerusalem escorting three prisoners to be executed. They were accompanied by a varied crowd, many of whom were jeering, but a few were weeping. The soldiers made their way toward a small hill called Calvary just outside the city. Two of the prisoners were known criminals; the third was Jesus, who was pronounced innocent by the Roman judge, but yet delivered up to be crucified. When they reached the place of crucifixion, the preliminaries were soon arranged. Jesus and the malefactors were nailed to the crosses which they had been bearing, which were then set upright and fixed. Jesus occupied the central position. On each side the malefactors were placed and the weary hours passed. Today, in this lesson, we place ourselves in thought before these crosses on Calvary and ask the meaning of all of this.

—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The world's only innocent person was numbered with the transgressors and executed (v. 32).

2. His being crucified between the malefactors indicated that His enemies considered Him to be the worst of the three (v. 33).

3. As He bore the sins of His enemies and executioners, He asked God to forgive them (v. 34).

4. The people as a whole seemed indifferent toward the dying Saviour (v. 35).

5. The rulers looked upon Him with contempt and derided Him (v. 35).

6. The soldiers mocked Him and called upon Him to come down from the Cross if He was the king of the Jews (vv. 36, 37).

7. The superscription gave the reason for the criminal's execution (v. 38).

8. With a hardened heart, one of the malefactors joined the crowd in mocking Jesus (v. 39).

9. The other rebuked him, declared the innocence of Christ, and asked to be remembered in His kingdom (vv. 40-43).

10. The dying Saviour heard and answered the prayer of the dying thief (v. 43).

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Three men hung on crosses that day. Two of them were sinners of the worst sort, but the one on the middle cross was sinless both in nature and in deed. He hung there, not for Himself, but for all the sinners in the world.

When Israel was traveling through the wilderness toward Canaan, they were stung by fiery serpents and many died. God instructed Moses to make a brazen serpent, and to raise it upon a pole, so that all who were dying could look at the serpent of brass and live. They were saved by a look—a look of faith. The brazen serpent symbolized the Christ, who knew no sin, and was without sin, yet He became sin for us, took our place upon the cross and died in our stead.

Jesus said, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life."

The cure for a snake bite is the poison of a snake. The immunity of a vaccine is made possible through the inoculation with the very germs against which we must be fortified. And the cure for the bite of a serpent was the brazen serpent. Likewise, the cure for sin was Christ's death upon the cross, the sinless One taking the judgment of sin in our stead.

The two thieves who hung on the cross had reached the end of a life of sin—"the wages of sin is death." The one thief died as he had lived, a lost sinner in rebellion against God. He railed at the Lord for not saving him from the cross and its suffering, but he did not seek salvation or forgiveness of sin. Christ Jesus was dying for his sins within his sight and within the sound of his voice, yet the thief died without being saved. Many there are who die the same way, without excuse, knowing that Jesus died for their sins. He heard Christ give assurance of life hereafter to the other thief, yet he sought not the Saviour.

The other thief cried to the Lord in his dying hour and was forgiven, saved. As long as we are in this flesh, we may be saved, but the day of salvation ends with death. "Now is the day of salvation." The rich man in hell wished for someone to warn his brothers lest they should come to his place of torment, but he did not seek to escape hell himself. Why? It was too late, and he knew it. Revelation 22:11 states the case clearly—"He that is unjust, let him be unjust still."

Those who walked about the cross, deriding Jesus, cried "He saved others; let him save himself!" They made a confession without realizing it. They admitted He had saved others. If He had accepted their challenge to save Himself, He could not have saved others. He chose rather to die in our place, to save us.

The thief who derided Christ for not saving him knew and believed that Jesus was the Christ, otherwise he would not have condemned Him for not saving him from the cross; therefore, he was without excuse.

The thief who was saved on the cross was saved in his dying hour. Yes, you can be saved on your death bed, but one can never be sure that they will have that opportunity. Sudden death may sweep you into eternity, without warning. The time to be saved is now.

2. When you go into the jewelry store to buy a strand of pearls, what determines its value? What is on the outside? No, not entirely. Here are two strands of pearls. To the naked eye they look just alike. Only the experienced jeweler knows the difference. He can, with the aid of an X-ray or a very bright light, tell you that this necklace is made of culture pearls and the other is of natural pearls. The cultivated pearl has an artificial core that is visible only to one who can see within.

Three crosses stood on Calvary's hill. There Jesus hung between two thieves. The people who stood below saw just this and nothing more. But Jesus as He hung there could see into the hearts of both thieves, and they were not alike. There was a significant difference. Both thieves were sinners, but one remained unrepentant, resigned to the consequences of his unholy life. In utter defeat he mocked Jesus, saying, "If thou be the Christ, save thyself and us" (Luke 23:39). But the other thief was different in his heart. He rebuked his comrade because he realized that they deserved the punishment they were receiving, but Jesus had done no wrong. In repentance he asked Jesus to remember him when He came into His kingdom. Two thieves on the outside, but within their hearts what a difference! Just as the value of a pearl is determined by what is in his heart. What's inside makes the difference!

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

3. Our lesson today emphasizes two great truths about Christianity. Christianity is a religion of forgiveness and anyone may have that forgiveness who comes to Christ.

The fact that Christianity is a religion of forgiveness is proven by Christ's prayer of forgiveness when He hung on the Cross. There are many wonderful things about Jesus. He was a great teacher—"Never man spake like this man." He had a marvelous birth. If it had not been for His birth we would have no Christmas. His miracles are wonderful. They manifest great power and wisdom. But the most blessed thing about Jesus is that He made the forgiveness of our sins possible. We must never forget this.

If we are not careful it is easy for us to become so involved in a church program that we forget the basic purpose of this program. The whole purpose and plan of the church will fail unless they result in one thing—leading men to accept Christ so that they can find the forgiveness of sin.

It has been said that the preeminent characteristic of Christianity is love.

This is true, but this love results in one thing—forgiveness. Have we learned to forgive ourselves and others even as we seek God's forgiveness?

Jesus has said, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." This means that anyone, regardless of how deep into sin he may have gone, may come to Christ and be saved. This fact is both illustrated and proved by the thief on the cross who turned to Christ in his dying hour and was saved.

Have you ever wanted someone to be saved and he just would not yield himself and accept Christ? Perhaps all of us have had this experience. Of course, there is the danger that a person may reject Christ and never have another opportunity to be saved. In no way do we want to justify procrastination; however, we should be heartened by the fact that even in one's dying hour, if he turns to Jesus, he may be saved.

He prayed that night, and he asked his mother to pray, too.

The next day when Carl came by he opened the conversation himself. "I'm well prepared this time. See—pole, bait, lunch, and I even have my first-aid kit strapped to my belt."

"Boy, I'll say!" Dale exclaimed, then the thoughts which were heavy on his heart spilled out. "You're prepared for any emergency down here, but what about up there? Are you prepared for heaven, Carl? Have you asked the Lord to forgive your sins?"

Carl looked scornfully at Dale. "Are you crazy? I'm not planning to go to heaven today; I'm planning to go fishing. Now can the religion, if you plan to go with me."

Dale felt as if he'd been slapped. He had been prepared this time. He wanted Carl to be saved so badly, and he was sure that this was the time.

Catching the big "cat" wasn't nearly the thrill for Dale that it would have been ordinarily. There just wasn't the closeness between him and Carl that there had been.

The boys were almost ready to go back to town. Dale was winding up his line when suddenly he heard a sliding, then splash! Carl had reached out across the mossy rocks to pull his stringer of fish out, and he had fallen in.

He thrashed about in the water for a moment, then went under. Gradually it dawned on Dale that Carl was having trouble—maybe he couldn't swim.

Dale shouted, "Tread water, Carl! I'm coming!" Dale kicked off his shoes and dived in.

In a few moments both boys were on the bank, safe, but thoroughly soaked.

Carl grinned weakly. "I never told you that I couldn't swim. I've tried a few times to learn, but it is hard for me. I've been ashamed to admit that I didn't know how. But say, that minute when I was under, I did some fast thinking. Are you ready to tell me how to get prepared for heaven?"

"Sure thing," Dale told him gladly.

young people had formed an auxiliary to meet each month.

It was moved and carried to remember each child at the Children's Home at Middlesex with a gift. It was also decided to send Sandra Mercer, a child from the Children's Home who is a patient at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, a gift.

In preparation for the next meeting it was decided that the members bring clothes, blankets, and other items of use to be sent to the Arizona-Mexico Missions. One of the auxiliary members gave a gift of a permanent arrangement of flowers, which was placed in the brass flower stands at the altar, to the church.

Mrs. Jack Dail gave an informative and inspiring talk on "The New WA Emblem Points to Kingdom Building."

After the benediction Mrs. Herman Wainwright and Mrs. Cletus Meeks served refreshments during the social hour.

BETHANY MEMBER HEAD OF FIVE GENERATIONS

Mrs. Sallie Ann McGlohon, age 91, is the oldest living member of Bethany Free Will Baptist Church, Winterville, North Carolina. She is the head of five generations of "girls."

Until recent years, "Miss Sallie Ann," as she is affectionately called by her many friends, was very active. She enjoyed reading, chatting with friends, and taking walks. For the past few months, however, she has been confined to the house, but still enjoys music of all kinds. Her favorite hymn is "The Old Rugged Cross," and she can be heard humming it frequently.

Mrs. McGlohon has five daughters: Mrs. Tinie Manning, Mrs. Lillis Tripp, Mrs. Lula Allen, Miss Maggie McGlohon, all of Ayden; and, Mrs. Lila Beaman of Snow Hill.

IN THE DARK

"A number of years ago," said a presiding missionary of Minnesota, "one who had been a heathen red man came 600 miles to visit me in my home. As he came in at the door he knelt at my feet. He said to me, 'I kneel to tell you of my gratitude, that you pitied the red man.'

"He then told me this simple, artless story: 'I was a wild man, living beyond the Turtle Mountain. I knew my people were perishing! I never looked in the face of my child that my heart was not sick! My fathers told me there was a Great Spirit, and I have often gone to the woods to ask for help!'"

"Then he looked in my face in that artless way, and said, 'You don't know what I mean. You never stood in the dark and reached out your hand, and took hold of nothing. One day an Indian came to my wigwam. He said to me that he heard you tell a wonderful story at Red Lake; that the reason why the white man was so much more blessed than the red man was because he had the true religion of the Great Spirit; and I said, I must see that man.'

"They told me that you would be at the Red Lake crossing. I came 200 miles, I asked for you, and they said you were sick. Then I said, Where can I see missionary? I came 150 miles more, and I found that my missionary was a red man like myself. My father, I have been with him three moons. I have the story in my heart. It is no longer dark. It laughs all the while.'"—Selected.

MY CHURCH CREED

by MRS. H. L. BOWEN

I recently read a corporation creed, which I think we could very well apply to us, the church. I have adapted it by using a few of my own words. The adaptation follows:

1. I will keep myself informed on the affairs, problems, and methods of my church so as to be an intelligent and constructive member.

2. I will faithfully support my church with my presence and encourage my friends to do the same, because in togetherness there is strength.

3. I will help build and maintain my church by accepting my share of the responsibilities.

4. I will not expect miracles from my church, yet I do receive a lot of them.

5. I will refrain from asking my church to do me favors in the form of special services anytime I may think need them.

6. I will take great pride in my church and do all that I can for it.

7. I will stand by my church in its days of adversity and help protect it from weaknesses from within or without.

8. I will always remember that my church is me and others like me, and that its behavior is a reflection of my behavior.

THE LESSON

by TOMMY MANNING

If fortune should ordain it
And place within your care
A soul in need of training,
And one too young to dare;

And if he should grow older
Ere time would run its course,
Could you hope to guide him
Without the use of force?

Yet if you have to tell him,
Then show him how instead;
For wayward souls are driven;
Obedient ones are led.

Whene'er his heart is heavy,
Don't stoop to share his tear;
But offer him some warmth; a smile,
And chase away his fear.

Then teach him to be happy;
To do that which is good;
And let him see in you, good friend,
A man who always would.

But if he chooses wrongly,
Apart from all that's right,
Don't chasten him with whippings,
Nor scold him with your might.

Still love him when your duty
Would make you reprimand;
Speak gentle words—not harsh ones,
And take him by the hand.

And if he proves unworthy
Of all the things you've done,
Then, only, should you drop your head,
Ashamed of him—your Son!

The Rev. L. B. Manning, Fountain, North Carolina, will hold revival services at Gum Swamp Church, Pitt County, North Carolina, beginning March 28 and continuing through April 4.

Painting and repairing is being done this week on Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, in preparation for the opening on April 20 of the 1954 season, according to an announcement by the Rev. James A. Evans, president of the assembly.

The Woman's Auxiliary Convention of the Central Conference, North Carolina, will meet at Grimsley Church, Wednesday, March 31. The Rev. L. E. Ballard is the pastor.

The Coronary Profile

It may be true that at no time have we had so many nervous breakdowns and afflicted hearts as today. The tensions of modern business and even ordinary living are simply more than people can bear.

Our mode of living must be changed if we as a people are to recover poise and reveal that we are wise. A heavy toll is being taken of talented men and women dedicated to their vocations but who become exhausted by the pressures placed upon them.

Can we keep up the exaggerated pace? Can the human heart continue to carry the load? We cannot stop the wheels of progress. But we can seek the peace of God in our work by remembering He is able to help us.—The Watchman-Examiner.

LIMITED LIBERTIES

We usually think of liberty as being the power to do as one pleases. We cherish such a thought and belief. At the same time, however, we understand that our liberties are based upon certain restraints. We are free to do as we please; but in doing as we please we must regard the rights of others, and we must not do anything that would bring harm or danger to others. We must not go so far with our liberties that we endanger our own physical being, or bring reproach upon the cause we represent. In other words, our liberties are limited.

We often speak, as Christians, of Christian liberty. This liberty is opposed to the restraining power of the Law that bound men to certain rituals and ordinances. Christ came, and with His coming the rituals and customs of the Law were fulfilled. Still, there are definite restraints—realizations that some things are to be avoided. The Apostle Paul wrote "For the love of Christ constraineth us; . . ." (2 Corinthians 5:14). It is His love that keeps us from overstepping the bounds of our liberty.

Ours is a day of changing fads and customs. Almost everyone is affected because most people are conformists. There is something difficult about being different; there is that inward desire to be as other people, to do as others do, and to think as others think.

Christians, therefore, often find themselves in a dilemma. They are torn between the natural desire to do and be as others and the spiritual desire to always please the Saviour. This conflict is to be expected, for the Bible teaches that there is a constant warfare between the natural man and the Spirit. The Spirit will win if the individual is submissive to His will and purpose.

The Christian has more to consider in the exercise of Christian liberty than others. There is the all-important matter of his personal testimony. What others can do without any harm, the Christian cannot do. He may be convinced that something is not wrong for him, but he is restrained from doing it because of his testimony before others.

The Apostle Paul tackled this problem in his writings to the Corinthians, and especially regarding the eating of meats that had been offered in a pagan temple. He gives the answer to the problem in 1 Corinthians 8.

The Gentiles claimed that there was nothing wrong with the eating of these meats, since they were under grace. The Jews, however, contended that it was wrong. Both the Jews and Gentiles, in this case, had received Christ; but each group was inclined to lean toward its own particular views.

Paul points out that the meat is not affected by the act of sacrifice. The eating of meat was not an endorsement of the idols or the temple. If a person had no conscience against the act, then there was nothing wrong with it. The apostle draws the line, however, and sets forth a basic principle for such matters of Christian conduct when he says: "But take heed lest by any means this liberty of yours become a stumblingblock to them that are weak. . . . Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend" (1 Corinthians 8:9, 13). In this case, it was not a matter of personal conscience, or personal Christian liberty, but a matter of what it would do to the weaker believer—would it cause offense? would it build up? or would it do harm?

For the conscientious Christian, this governing factor cannot be ignored. The Christian must remember that he is an example—a living epistle. Our problem is not the eating of meats that have been offered in a pagan temple. It involves other things of a more complex society. It involves things too numerous to mention in this writing; but we believe there are some things that must be avoided by the Christian and especially by the person who is a leader. Ministers of the gospel must especially be conscious of this guiding principle. He must not abuse his Christian liberty, and thus cause some weaker brother to stumble.

'He Steadfastly Set

HIS FACE'

AT this Palm Sunday season, Luke's words in Luke 9 capture my attention. "He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem." I see in the face of our Saviour three things: commitment, courage, and calmness.

Luke would have us know that with Christ the issue was settled. The question of the Cross was not an open question. Step back a moment to Caesarea Philippi, where Jesus received from His disciples the great confession, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." This personal discovery and declaration brought a change into the program of Christ's teachings to His disciples. For immediately follow the words, "From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day" (Matthew 16:1-11).

One week later, immediately following the Transfiguration, we read, ". . . Jesus said unto them, The Son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men; And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again. . . ." (Matthew 17:2, 23). Then follows our text, "He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem."

Nothing else mattered. He knew tempests would buffet the soul and body. He knew the roughest road earth could offer was before Him, even the Cross. Still He was fully committed and surrendered to the will of God.

Have I a commitment? Do I think of my life as my own? Or is there something bigger than my own will? Yes! There is something bigger than my will; it is the will of God. To His will, you and I should be fully dedicated and committed, as was Christ.

During a vicious storm, an old sea captain was asked by a young sailor officer what to do. The old captain counseled the youth to face squarely into the storm, teaching him that to waver from that course was to be swallowed by the waves. Keep your boat facing it—always facing it; that's the way through, face it. This same commitment to our problems is our safety. There is a thrill in this way of living.

Near Ponca City, Oklahoma, is the bronze statue of the pioneer woman high on a stone pedestal. This great figure is clothed in rough pioneer garb. In her right hand she clutches a well-worn volume of Scriptures to her bosom. In her left hand she holds the small hand of her infant son, whom she leads forward into the future. She faces into the storm, committed to do the will of God in her pioneer world.

Indecision and noncommittal were not the part of Christ as He faced the last week of His life. But look again at the face of our Saviour, and read there the message of courage, as He set His face steadfastly "to go to Jerusalem."

Some forms, faces, and voices are very charming. Some lives look big, sturdy, and noble until trouble bears on them; when they shrivel and shrink. Others are grandest under pressure; persecution polishes them, suffering beautifies, opposition expands, and difficulties add to their dimensions. This was true of Jesus. His disregard for consequences, His refusal to spare Himself was magnificent. It has awed the generations.

MARK F. SMITH

Mark gives us a view of this: "And they were in the way going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus went before them: and they were amazed; and as they followed, they were afraid" (Mark 10:32). The disciples were both afraid of the crowd and amazed at Jesus' unflinching courage as He faced His enemies and the Cross. "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God."

The measure of one's courage should be determined by the value of the object that calls it forth. A man who leaps from a high bridge and loses his life in an effort to rescue last year's straw hat is classified as a fool. But another doing the same thing to save the life of a child is heralded as a hero, a man of great courage.

The value of the object determines true courage. It was the value of God to Joseph that called forth his courage in the hour of temptation. The courage of Daniel was based on the fact that his prayer life was more valuable to him than life itself.

David's courage as he faced Goliath was measured by the statement, "Is there not a cause?" The cause for his courage was the esteem and reverence he had for God as compared to the heathen idols—my life for the reputation of God. My life and courage must match the occasion. Who is sufficient for these things? Our sufficiency is of God.

Once more, look at the face of our Saviour and see if you do not discern calmness along with courage and commitment. He is unhurried and unworried. Calmness in His mind results in calmness in His actions.

John tells us of Lazarus' death, and Christ's decision to go to Bethany to the grave. The disciples protested going back to Judaea. "The Jews . . . sought to stone Thee; and goest Thou thither again?" They were panic-stricken, but His answer was calm, even though He looked into the faces of human sharks from day to day.

A soldier boy tells how he alone was to take instruction and materials up front by a certain route which led to a stricken tree standing alone. From that point onward, he would find a white tape on the ground. All that he had then to do was to follow the white tape to his destination. He recalled vividly his feelings as he inched ahead while enemy guns winked wickedly. There was a wonderful sense of relief and comfort when he reached the lone tree and found the tape. He knew he had not missed the way, and he felt the comfort of knowing that others had passed that way before him, leaving a white example that he should follow.

This is the kind of comfort the lone tree of Calvary affords. One has been there before us who knows the way. All that remains for us is to faithfully follow the white and holy way. While voices vainly call in every direction, we are called to calmly follow Him.

Today we stand before the Cross of Christ. What are we going to take away with us? So many are satisfied with temporalities—Easter weather and sales—and forget Christ. The soldiers took His garments, but forgot Him and His spiritual gifts, which were of infinitely more value.

Satan tempted Christ forty days, hoping He would choose bread, or the praise of the people near the Temple, or the glory of this world. Solomon chose wisdom. My friend, let us make a proper choice, setting our faces steadfastly to do God's will. Those who settle it forever with God find commitment, courage, and calmness as rewards.—Herald of Holiness.

Mexican Free Will Baptists

by JOHN B. ELLISTON

March is Missions Month in North Carolina. I must apologize for being so late with this missionary article; however, I trust that it will help all of you to conclude the month of March with a big offering for missions, and that in your giving you will not forget Mexico. The reason that I am so late with this article is that we have just completed a tour of a large part of northern Mexico, including almost all the border east of here.

We left here very early on Monday, February 24, and drove over through Douglas to El Paso. We had looked the field over in Douglas, Arizona, many times; and we are very strongly impressed with the need for a Free Will Baptist work there and across the line in Agua Prieta, Sonora, as well as a little to the west in Naco, Sonora. It seems at this time that God is definitely making a way for us to establish a work in this area. Please pray for it!

When we arrived in El Paso, we first went to visit Brother Miller at the Mision Compasion de Cristo, and made plans to return there later in the evening. Then we went to visit a sister of Emiliano who lives in El Paso. Our party consisted of my wife Sally, Emiliano Lopez, and me. We left Emiliano with his sister while we went to the green stamp store to get another gasoline lantern. This is now the fifth such lantern we have procured since we began our appeals for gasoline lanterns. We have purchased two of them with green stamps and three with cash. We can always use green stamps, or gold bond stamps. When we returned to the mission, we were quite overwhelmed to learn that the Millers have a station wagon bought with green stamps. After supper with the Millers, we went over and took pictures of the Free Will Baptist Orphanage in Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico. We spent the night with Emiliano's sister, and left El Paso very early on Tuesday morning.

As we approached Eagle Pass, Texas, in the late afternoon, we were very happy to see green fields and even some leaves. These were the first signs of spring that we had observed this year. When we arrived at the house of Brother Timmons, we went with him to look over the prospects there in Eagle Pass and in Agua Prieta. It is really unnecessary to say it, but we were greatly impressed with the possibilities for Free Will Baptist work in that area. We need your prayers very much concerning the possibility of procuring property in Eagle Pass, and also in Quemado, Texas, a little town about 20 miles north of Eagle Pass. Both of these seem to be promising opportunities, and your mission board very definitely needs your prayers for guidance.

On Wednesday we went to Jimenez, Coahuila, where we had services in the church there pastored by the Rev. German Rodriguez, ably assisted by Elias Rodriguez, who is a deacon very apt to teach. We spent that night with Brother German Rodriguez, and on Thursday we had services with the brethren in El Moral, a little town about ten miles from Jimenez. After that service, we visited a ranch named Victoria, where Brother Timmons and Elias stayed to have services while we returned to Santa Rosa for services there. God was present with us in all these services, and we truly enjoyed all of them.

On Friday we had services in Agua Prieta. We had the privilege to be with them in their first service in the building they had just rented there. We could clearly see how the work is growing and spreading in that area. In Jimenez one of their great needs is to complete their church building. They want to build it of concrete blocks, and the need about $300 to do the job. They started to build it of adobe, but when they had the walls nearly up a big rain came and washed them down again. Now they want to build of concrete blocks, so that in case they can't finish the walls before it rains they won't wash down.

On Saturday we revisited Jimenez. This time in the company was the Rev. Joe Ingram of Stoney Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Goldsboro, North Carolina. Then we went to look at some property in Eagle Pass, to which I referred earlier. We were very happy to meet Brother Ingram there, particularly in view of the fact that his church at Stoney Creek is sponsoring Emiliano, and he had a good opportunity to visit with him for awhile. This wasn't quite as productive as it could have been, however, because Brother Joe speaks no Spanish, and Brother Emiliano almost no English. However, they got along.

Early on Sunday morning we went to Laredo, and crossed into Nuevo Laredo in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas from whence we journeyed through Nuevo Leon to Saltillo. We were especially impressed by the size of Monterrey (continued on page fifteen)

A Summons to Rediscovery Of League

by LEAH MCGLOHON

In these days the Christian church faces the unique paradox of material success and spiritual failure. More and more people are going to church, yet there are so few that have any tangible grasp of what it means to be a contemporary disciple of the Risen Lord.

So many put in their appearances at church for an hour on Sunday mornings—some going to Sunday school and not remaining for the worship service and some sleeping late and straggling in just in time for the worship service—and then forgetting about church or the service of the Lord until the next Sunday morning. These seem to have little desire to be more than just nominal Christians. They take little interest in seeking to grow in the knowledge of the Lord or in training themselves to serve Him.

Then there are those who do show enough interest to attend night worship services and prayer services if they do not have something else that they had rather do.

Finally there are those, though seemingly few in number, who have a desire to serve the Lord and to grow in knowledge of Him. They attend the auxiliary organizations of the church. Yet in this group, so few have grasped the meaning of being a disciple motivated by the Holy Spirit so that they put Him at the center of all that they are and everything that they do.

The Free Will Baptist League was designed to help train those who desire to let Christ be a living force in their lives so that they can serve Him better. Is it fulfilling its purpose? Are you helping it to fulfill its purpose?

So often when members of a Sunday school class or church are asked to do something, they say "I can't." The truth of the matter is that they are not willing to try. Of course all people do not have the same talents, but many people have talents that they don't even know about because they have never tried.

The Free Will Baptist League gives one the opportunity to find these talents and to develop them. One does not have to be an accomplished speaker, a marvelous singer, or a dynamic leader to attend league. One must only be willing to attempt the untried, to profit from his stumbling errors, to ignore those thoughts that his fellow leaguers might laugh at his efforts, to desire to learn to serve his Lord better.

Library Gifts Grow

Cash gifts of $596 during February brought to $3,064 the amount given to the library fund during the current school year. This amount includes $422 received from the earnings of the J. C. Moye Trust Fund.

Yet the leagues seem to be the weakest link in many churches. Why is this true? There are many, many reasons: lack of interest on the part of pastors, parents, and young people; programs are uninteresting, according to some; lack of leadership, etc. To this writer, one of the most senseless excuses for a person not to attend league is that it is uninteresting—boring. Why is it so? Who is responsible? Of course the program chairman has the greatest responsibility, but each leaguer is also responsible for making the program interesting. The truth of the matter is that many of those taking part on the program are too indifferent or too lazy to prepare an interesting program; thus many league programs result in reading circles: the participants are chained to the program as printed in the quarterly, and many of them have never read over the part before they rise to read it.

What can you do to change this picture? This writer challenges you to rediscover in this day what can happen when you—boy or girl, man or woman, young person or older person—motivated by the Holy Spirit, dare to put Christ at the center of your life and everything you do so that the league will fulfill its purpose in your church and community.

State SS Convention to Meet in Rockingham

The twenty-fourth annual session of the North Carolina Sunday School Convention of Original Free Will Baptists will be held with the East Rockingham Free Will Baptist Church, East Rockingham, North Carolina, on Thursday, April 23, 1964. The Rev. Walter Carter is pastor of the host church, which is a member of the Piedmont Conference.

The theme of this year's conventio will complete a trinity of themes begun in 1962. The theme that year was "Bring Them In," with emphasis upon Sunday school expansion. In 1963, the theme, "Keep Them In," gave special emphasis to effective teaching and all sentee follow-up. This year's theme will be "Send Them Out," with the emphasis on Sunday school evangelism. This year there will be a departure from the traditional four division workshop plan. Since the host church can furnish two large assembly places, it has been decided to have two workshops. One will be on the subject, "The Sunday School's Evangelistic Challenge to Men," while the other will be on "The Sunday School's Evangelistic Challenge to Women." The workshops will pinpoint the areas in which men can best exercise themselves in soul winning and the areas in which women can work most effectively.

A joint exhibit of the Free Will Baptist Press, the field work department of the convention, Mount Olive Junior College, the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, and Cragmont Assembly, will be designed to acquaint the people with the services of these institutions and agencies and to make available valuable free literature. The focal points of the Press exhibit will be books on Sunday school evangelism and visitation and visual aids.

A committee headed by the Rev. Earl H. Glenn, president of the convention, is preparing a program for the day which will include devotional features and special music.

Report blanks, along with a letter from the convention president urging that all schools represent by making an annual report and that as many as possible also send delegates to the convention, are going out this week to Original Free Will Baptist Sunday schools over the state. Attention is called to the fact that all pastors and superintendents are members of the convention and should attend.

A special twelve-page edition of The Sunday School Reporter, which will contain the program of the convention, full directions on how to reach the host church from all directions, and other valuable information about the convention, is to go out about April 10. It will be mailed to pastors and superintendents whose names and addresses are on the lists in the field worker's office. Others who would like to receive a copy may have one by writing to The Sunday School Reporter, 1225 South Washington Street, Greenville, North Carolina.

ATTENTION SECRETARIES AND TREASURERS OF WESTERN DISTRICT

Please send your completed report blanks to the secretary, Mrs. L. A. Boyette Jr., Route 3, Kenly, North Carolina, and your per capita dues and donations to Mrs. B. L. Godwin, Pine Level, North Carolina.

These reports should be in by March 26 in order that they may be compiled for the spring convention.

If your auxiliary has not sent an offering for the $1,000 Club, encourage it to do so. Cooperation from all auxiliaries will help to pay this in full at the April convention at Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Whortonsville, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Bethel Free Will Baptist Church observed World Day of Prayer by holding prayer services at the church Friday, February 14, from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m.

The services were opened by singing

"Sweet Hour of Prayer." The invocation was given by Mrs. James Lupton, program-prayer chairman. Mrs. J. C. Silverthorn gave the introduction. The following participated on the program: Mrs. Cleora Hill, Mrs. William Silverthorn, Mrs. Wilson Whorton, and Mrs. Nettie Whorton.

The services closed by praying the Lord's Prayer and singing, "Blest Be the Tie."

Bear Grass, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Rose of Sharon Free Will Baptist Church held its February meeting in the home of Mrs. Norman Bailey with 13 members and one visitor present.

The group sang, "In the Sweet By and By." Mrs. Peggy Bailey read the Scripture, which was taken from Philippians 4:9-13. She also introduced the program.

After a short business session, Mrs. Marvin Cowan dismissed the group with prayer.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Stencil's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church held its regular meeting on February 21 at the home of Mrs. Marie Parrish. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Wall.

After a short business session the program was turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. Eleanor Pittman. The group sang "Stepping in the Light," which was followed by Scripture reading by Mrs. Pittman.

Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Doris Batten, Mrs. Neria Mae Bunn, and Mrs. Naydelle Hodge.

The program closed with the singing of "His Way with Thee," after which the group prayed together the Lord's Prayer.

God Is Faithful

This is the time to prove God—in the hard places—in the darkest of night—when you cannot see your way. God will bless. We do not walk by sight, but must walk by faith. I had rather walk in the dark with God than in the light without Him. God will most certainly honor our faith, as He did Abraham's. He has not yet disappointed the faith of any of His children.—The Messenger of Peace.

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

"Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?" (John 6:70).

Our last meditation was on the subject, "Christ—No Christ." Christ taught while He was here on earth among men that all people belonged to Him, their Saviour and Lord; or else they belonged to the devil, their enemy and destroyer. After preparing the article for last week, I read the following which I pass on to you and ask you to consider carefully and prayerfully:

WHOSE ARE YOU?

Most of us keep close tabs on what is ours, whether our assets be small or great, but few of us keep as careful check on what is someone else's. Probably our most cherished possession is ourselves. At the top of the list of our assets we would write "ME."

What the Christian often fails to realize is that when he was born again he passed under new ownership. He no longer possesses the title deed to himself. He cannot include himself on the list of his assets because by virtue of his faith in Christ he is now the property of the living God in Heaven.

The believer is the Lord's property because the Lord chose him "before the foundation of the world" (Ephesians 1:4). The Christian also belongs to God because he has been "purchased with his (Christ's) own blood" (Acts 20:28). Paul reminded the Corinthians that they were "bought with a price" (1 Corinthians 6:20).

A final reason why the believer belongs to the Lord is that God has adopted him into His own family as a full-fledged son (Ephesians 1:5; Galatians 4:5). He has conferred on us the dignity of sonship, to share the responsibility commensurate with that position.

Although we cannot satisfactorily explain why God chose us—except to say that there was nothing in us to merit that choice—we do know what is expected of us as a result of belonging to Him. We know, for example, that it is foolish to live under two owners, or under dual control. The believer must find out what his Owner expects of him and how to obey those instructions.

We can do this confidently because we know our Owner values us greatly. If purchased by Him, we are valuable to Him—and sometimes He does more for our own good than we realize. The Lord Jesus will not treat indifferently that for which He paid so high a price.

We know that we are His "workmanship," chosen to "go and bring forth fruit" (Ephesians 2:10; John 15:16). Somehow, our lives must be brought into line with this purpose. Any other purpose, no matter how good it may be in its own right, cannot take the place of finding and doing the works of our Owner.

Not only will such a life be fruitful, but it will be marked by a calm assurance and peace, a resting in the love and wisdom of the God who is "our shield from foes, our balm for woes, our great and sure salvation."

Whose are you? This is how pioneer missionary C. T. Studd answered that question:

"I had known about Jesus dying for me, but I had never understood that if He had died for me, then I didn't belong to myself. Redemption means buying back, so that if I belong to Him, either I had to be a thief and keep what wasn't mine, or else I had to give up everything to God. When I came to see that Jesus Christ had died for me, it didn't seem hard to give up all for Him."

"Either I had to be a thief, or . . ." That is always the issue the Christian faces. Will he try to own himself, or will he gladly turn over the controls of his life to the One who died for him?—Copyrighted by The Sunday School Times and used by permission.

"For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit" (1 Peter 3:18).

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

"I preached as never sure to preach again,

And as a dying man to dying men."

—Richard Baxter.

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THE TRUTH, THE WHOLE TRUTH, NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

When you attend a court case, you hear people swearing to tell "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." After making this solemn vow, many people do not tell the truth. This is a well-known fact to this writer. Often we hear that someone has been charged for perjury, which is a very serious crime that brings judgment from the courts of our land. But there is perjury that, to my mind, is more serious than swearing falsely in a court trial. It is not living up to the agreement you make in accepting your church covenant.

CHURCH COVENANT

The first paragraph of our church covenant is as follows: "Having given ourselves to God, by faith in Christ, and adopted the Word of God as our rule of faith and practice, we now give ourselves to one another by the will of God in this solemn covenant." Was it a fact that we did actually give ourselves to God and to one another? Was it a real gift? How long did that gift to God and to one another last?

I have seen children give some plaything to another child and then demand that gift to be returned. I am afraid that many folk play like children in religion. This method of giving is proved by the way many people act toward others. Many church members talk very ugly about others. James says, "... the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!" (James 3:5).

It is contrary to the laws of God and the church covenant of the Free Will Baptists to talk unbecomingly about any Christian; but when it comes to people who claim to be Free Will Baptists and who have accepted, or pretended to accept, a covenant of giving themselves to God and to one another and then who try to destroy others who disagree with their ideology by slandering the good name of those with whom they differ, to my mind that is downright perjury, to God and man.

I was talking with a Christian gentleman sometime back, who said, "Brother Griffin, if people would tell the truth, our differences could be worked out." Then we agreed that Christ is the answer. But Christ must have control of a man's heart in order to work out problems.

ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

It is possible for a man to sing "Oh, How I Love Jesus" on Sunday and then to contradict that Sunday singing on Monday by smearing the good name of some true Christian by slanderous remarks. My father said one time in my presence, "If you cannot say something good about your neighbor, say nothing." This principle is a good one to follow. I never heard my father speak evil of any person. This method of living does not mean that we are to sanction the sinful actions of any person, but that we are to hate evil in the life of all men. We are to have the Spirit of the Lord, who hates sin but loves sinners. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

If we obey the teachings of our church covenant, we will love each other and reach out with a hand of charity toward all who suffer in any form. It is sickening to ask a favor for some sick person, only to have the one asked bring up all the sins and mistakes of the sick man. Jesus did not say to the sinful woman who anointed His feet with precious ointment, "You have been so sinful that I don't want you to touch me"; but rather He said, "... Thy faith hath saved thee; ..." (Luke 7:50). Read Luke 7:36-50. There you learn how Jesus deals with sinners. This woman and Simon are examples of God's grace.

"Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard" (Proverbs 21:13). Our church covenant teaches us the Spirit of Christ, and we are bound by it to follow the Spirit of Christ.

THE SECOND PARAGRAPH

The second paragraph of the covenant says: "We promise, by His grace, to love and obey Him in all things, to avoid all appearance of evil, to abstain from all sinful amusements and unholy conformity to the world, from all sanction of the use and sale of intoxicating beverages, and to provide things honest in the sight of all men."

Is it not a fact that both men and women who belong to some churches are deliberately disobeying God and are guilty of perjury. They have lied, not only to the church, to the pastor, and to the official board, but also to the Holy Spirit. May we notice that we promise "by His grace to love and obey Him." We are not obeying Him when we refuse to help the poor, or to support missions and Christian education, or to absent ourselves from the worship of God in His sanctuary. We are guilty of perjury.

THE THIRD PARAGRAPH

According to the third paragraph of the covenant, "We agree faithfully to discharge our obligations in reference to the study of the Scriptures, secret prayer, family devotions, and public worship, and by self-denial, faith and good works, endeavor to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." I fear that there are a great many people who are guilty of perjury regarding this. Perjury means to lie. So many people are liars when it comes to observing prayerfully and obediently the church covenant.

My space for this issue has run out, but I must mention the fourth paragraph, which reads, "We will not forsake the assembling of ourselves together for church conferences, public worship, and the ordinances of the Gospel; nor fail to give according to our ability for the support of the church and its benevolent work." To be plain, this writer says that there are a great number of church members who have failed to live in accordance to the covenant. My friend, if you are guilty of disobeying your sacred pledge, what will you say when you meet God face to face, which all of us will have to do?

When God intends to fill a soul, He first makes it empty. When He intends to enrich a soul, He first makes it poor. When He intends to exalt a soul, He first makes it sensible of its own miseries, wants and nothingness, and then fills it with Himself, which is unspeakably glorious. This is the fullness of New Testament privilege for every Christian.—The Elim Evangel.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Please explain "He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled" (John 3:29).

ANSWER: These words from John the Baptist explain, in part, the difference between the Old and New Testament saints in their relation to Christ. John the Baptist, who represents in quite a different sense the Old Testament saints, expresses a delight to know the Bridegroom. John was not, as I understand, part of the bride, which is the church of which you and I as Christians are a part. He was not a member of the church but was a prophet. Jesus said that he was. He was beheaded before the advent of the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost.

There is a sense, however, in which the church had its beginning on that day. Our word church comes from a word that means "called out"; in other words, the church is composed of those who are called out. Therefore, as I said above, there is a sense in which the church had its beginning on the Day of Pentecost. There is another sense in which it had its beginning when Christ called His first disciples from their fishermen's nets as Dr. Wheaton Taft, late president of the Northern Baptist Seminary, used to remind his students.

John the Baptist says, in substance, "I am glad just to know the Bridegroom." As for the bride, she is in possession of the Bridegroom and He is in possession of her. The above sets John the Baptist apart in his true humility, even as the following statement: "He must increase, but I must decrease" (John 3:30). This humility was symbolic of him and gave cause for the following unique words of Jesus: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he" (Matthew 11:11).

QUESTION: Please explain, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect" (Matthew 5:48).—R. Porter, Texas.

ANSWER: The word from which perfect is translated might have just as well been translated compel or mature; hence Christ would have His followers develop into full or complete maturity. Christians are exhorted in other passages of Scripture to feed on the sincere milk of the word and thereby to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." The saving and keeping power of God is a fact the Scriptures give evidence to; yet that's not all, for over and over again the same Bible teaches that each Christian is responsible to use all means that God has made available to him that he may mature into a full grown, complete, or perfect Christian. "For every one that useth milk is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe. But strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil" (Hebrews 5:13, 14). "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you" (Philippians 3:13-15). "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Hebrews 12:1, 2).

On the other hand, we shall find no passage in the Bible that teaches that this process of development here in this life will bring us into a state of sinless perfection. Strive as we may, and as the Bible definitely teaches, we need not assume that at anytime such perfection is to come while we are striving. "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12).

BE Yourself

A young preacher, desirous of improving his style, wrote to Jacob Gruber for advice. He had contracted the habit of prolonging his words, especially when under excitement. The old gentleman sent the following reply, "Dear-ah! brother! When-ah! you-ah, go-ah, to-ah, preach-ah take-ah, car-ah, you-ah, do not-ah-say-ah-ah-ah! Yours, ah- Jacob-ah Gruber-ah."

Which leads us to say:

Don't be what you ain't;
Jus' be what you is,
'Cause if you is not what you am,
Den you am not what you is.
If you is jes' a little tadpole,
Don't try to be a frog;
If you is jes' de tail,
Don't try to wag de dog.
You can always pass de plate
If you can't exhort an' preach,
Don't be what you ain't;
Jus' be what you is.
'Cause de man that plays it square
Am gwine to get his.
It ain't what you is has been,
It's what you now am is.

Encouragement to Pray

When you come to the close of a battle in prayer, punctuate it with "the faithfulness of God," and mark "to be continued."

There will be prayer battles for prayer warriors. But as long as we come to the end of such a season of prayer with an unshaken faith, we are victorious. Faith in God's faithfulness makes the weapon of the enemy to be ineffective. The devil would like to discourage us until we would quit praying because the battle is hard. But praise God for the privilege of and the encouragement to persevere in prayer.—J. Wesley Adcock.

STORIES

for our

BOYS and GIRLS

MARU and the UNSEEN HELPER

by CAROLYN LONDON

THE hot African sun was just creeping up over the tops of the tall jungle trees. In the girls' dormitory at the mission leper hospital Maru was looking cross.

"I don't see why you thought my heart would feel joy at this news," Maru said angrily.

"But, Maru, please feel joy for me. My heart is happy now that I belong to Jesus," Lati answered.

"Well, my heart does not feel happy. And beside, I won't be your friend any more. Well, I'll be your friend here in our room. But I won't walk to school with you any more. And I won't pound grain with you. And I won't put my hand in the same porridge bowl with you. If I did, ayeeee!—you know people would say that I was following the Jesus path. And I don't want all that trouble."

Maru turned away sadly and threw herself down on her cot. A few tears trickled down her black cheeks. She'd been happy here in the leprosarium. She was getting medicine, and she had a nice house to live in, and good food, and the missionaries were kind to her even if she had told them that she didn't want to follow Jesus. And she and Lati had been such good friends. They'd had lots of fun together. Maru wiped a tear away. It was a shame that Lati had to go and spoil it all by leaving the religion of their ancestors. Not that the religion really meant anything to Maru, for her people had told her that the Creator-God didn't care for people, let alone a girl or woman.

Maru knew that if Lati walked in the Jesus' path that the older people in the leper settlement who were not Christians would make it hard for her. And she knew, too, if she played with Lati that they would say she was a Jesus follower. And Maru didn't think she wanted to have people laugh at her and tell her that the evil spirits would "get her."

Maru shuddered. She wished that she didn't have to fear the evil spirits all the time. Quickly she rubbed the cowry shell charm that hung around her neck. Her father had given that charm to her and told her that it would help to protect her from the evil spirits and also from the words of the missionaries. But sometimes Maru thought it would be good to listen to the words and to believe them. "Ap!" she thought, "the stories the missionaries tell about Jesus—they are good. And the songs . . . they are sweet to my ears." Quickly she rubbed her charm again. Ayee! she hadn't realized how difficult it would be not to believe in Jesus. If only the missionaries would quit preaching and singing and just give her medicine so she could get well!

She rolled over on her cot and yelled, "Lati! You—you are praying!"

"Yes," Lati answered, "I'm praying. Last night when I talked to Nurse and I told her that I wanted to follow Jesus, she told me that I ought to try to do something for Jesus. So just now I told Him I wanted to do something real hard for Him to show Him that I loved Him."

"What are you going to do?" Maru asked.

"I don't know. But I also asked Jesus to save you, too."

"Well, you may seal your lips about that!" Maru said as she flung a pillow across the room. "I don't want to walk the Jesus path. Ayee! such troubles! Don't you remember Luzu and his son Bolo?"

"Eeewo! do my thoughts remember him!" Lati said. "Do you know that Bolo won't even look at a follower of Jesus now? And when he sees one he spits on the path in front of them . . . just to show Luzu that he hates Christians."

"One thing," Maru said, and laughed, "he won't be pounding any grain for Luzu. Serves Luzu right. He hurt Bolo's arms so bad the doctor had to tie bandages on both of them, and now Luzu's wife is sick and she can't pound grain. Ha! old meanie Luzu will have to pound his grain or go hungry. I expect he'll go hungry, too. And so will his wife and Bolo, for Luzu thinks he'll lose face if he does women's work by pounding grain."

Maru twisted around so that she could reach the pillow and stuck it back under her head. She watched as Lati tied her sandals on.

"Lati," she said, with a worried note in her voice, "what are we going to do? I want to be your friend, but I'll have to be your friend just in our room. I wouldn't dare—ayeee! I'm too much afraid, I wouldn't dare walk with you for fear Luzu would see me. And maybe Luzu would beat me. Just 'cause we are from the same village he thinks he owns me." She sighed and said, "There's no school today. Why don't you play here, and then I could play with you. If you go out, I can't be with you. You know, by this time the word that you are following Jesus is all over the settlement."

"While you were talking about Luzu, I was thinking in my heart," Lati said. "I've been thinking that I asked Jesus to give me something to do for Him. Well, maybe I could go and pound grain for Luzu."

"Ayeeee! you wouldn't dare!" Maru screamed. "He'd beat you, or maybe he'd kill you."

Maru shook her head sadly as she saw that Lati was determined to go. She waited until Lati had left the dormitory and then she ran quickly the back way and hid behind the cornstalk fence around Luzu's yard. In a few moments he saw her friend enter Luzu's yard. He could hear her voice very clearly.

"Luzu," Lati said, "my ears have told me that your wife is sick. I came to pound grain for your meal."

"And my ears have told me that your head is divided, and that you have lost your senses, and have begun to walk the Jesus path," Luzu shouted.

"I would like to pound your grain for you," Lati said, ignoring the shouts. "But first, I will enter your hut and greet your wife."

In a few minutes Lati came out of the hut and started pounding the grain. She sang, "Ni kende ne amo, Kristi ne kwa me . . ."

"Stop that singing!" Luzu shouted. "No one in this house will sing about following Jesus and about Him being powerful." He grabbed Lati's arm and twisted her around. Maru could hear her friend gasp with pain.

"You see that tree?" Luzu said as he twisted Lati's arm. "That tree is the dwelling place of our tribal gods, and it is at that tree you shall worship." He tried to drag her off through the fields towards the huge mahogany tree. Maru could see Lati struggling.

Maru's heart pounded. She started to get up and help her friend, and then sank back to the ground frightened. She just couldn't. She was afraid. She sighed with relief as she saw Lati break away and run back toward the dormitory. Maru hurried to her room and found her friend lying on the bed and crying.

"Look!" Maru said, "look what that old meanie did to your arm!" She ran out of the room and in a few minutes came back with the missionary nurse.

"Tell me what happened," the nurse said as she rubbed soothing ointment on the bruised arm.

"I'll tell you," Maru said. And she told the nurse all that she had seen. And then she added, "And I was afraid to go help her." She started to sob.

"Let's pray about it," the nurse suggested.

Lati and the nurse knelt beside the bed, and then, to her own surprise Maru knelt and bowed her head. Lati prayed, "Dear Jesus, help me to be brave and to follow You. Help me to show Luzu that he needs to love You, too. And don't let me be scared to go back to pound grain for him. In Jesus' name, Amen."

There was a few minutes silence, and then Maru broke into tears and said, "I want to follow Jesus, too. I really do, but I've been afraid, and my heart has been fearful. Dear Jesus, thank You for dying for me. Help me to be brave like Lati, Amen."

Nurse stood up and as she smiled at the girls she said, "I'll get the pastor and tell him to speak to Luzu and tell him that he's not to lay a hand on you girls. If he does, he'll be punished."

"No wait," Maru said. "I've got an idea. Come along, Lati, we've got work to do."

In her haste she almost dragged Lati down the path towards Luzu's compound.

"So—so, you came back?" Luzu turned angrily as they entered his yard.

"Yes, we came back," Maru said. "And I saw what you did to Lati. But, now there are three of us here. We've got a Helper. And you aren't going to fight Him . . . 'Cause He's big and powerful."

Luzu looked around. He seemed frightened. "I—I only see two of you and you are both young girls. And . . . well, if you're going to pound my grain, —go ahead and do it. But do a good job of it."

He almost ran from them, and entered his hut. The girls picked up the pounding sticks and started to work. "Why do you suppose he didn't ask us about who the third Person was, Maru? You did mean Jesus, didn't you?" Lati asked.

"Yes," Maru said, as she threw her pounding stick up in the air and caught it and thrust it into the mortar. "Well, you know, I told you that we are from the same village. And Luzu knows what our witch doctors tell us. They always say that the God-Creator is powerful, but He can't be seen. But they say that sometimes He does help people when they need help. But they really don't know about God and Jesus."

"But—but," Lati said excitedly, "Luzu really knows about Jesus 'cause he's been here at the mission a long time. And he's heard that Jesus is the God-Creator. And, —why, Maru, he's afraid of Jesus!"

"Yes, that's right," Maru said. "I think we'll have to ask the God-Creator to talk to Luzu's heart. Ayee! I'm thinking in my own heart that maybe Luzu is feeling like I felt. He wants to follow Jesus, but he's afraid. You know, if I hadn't seen you being brave for Jesus, well, I wouldn't have had courage to follow Him."

"And He really was our Helper to—

Report on Condition Of Sandra Mercer

By M. L. JOHNSON, Superintendent
Free Will Baptist Children's Home
Middlesex, North Carolina

We are happy to report that Sandra was able to return home on Thursday, March 12. She had been in the hospital since January 21. It will be necessary for her to return to the hospital for periodic examinations and treatments. Special care and treatment will also be required for some time at the Children's Home.

We feel that Sandra's return is the result of the many prayers that have been offered and the dedicated service of the doctors and other hospital personnel. We are most grateful for the prayers and genuine interest of our people. We urge our people to continue to pray for Sandra and those who minister to her needs.

Sandra is most grateful for the hundreds of cards and letters which she has received. We urge our people to continue to remember her in this way.

We are also grateful for the many gifts that have been received to help pay the hospital and medical expenses. We invite our people to continue to help meet this need as we continue her care in the Home and her return trips to the hospital.

We assure our people that we shall continue to do all that we can for Sandra. We will try to keep our people informed about her condition.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 29

Thomas and Mary Magdalene

LESSON TEXT: John 20:11-18, 24-29

MEMORY VERSE: John 20:29

I. INTRODUCTION

With this lesson, we conclude our study for this quarter concerning personalities around Jesus. We have given consideration to some of the men and women whose lives were affected by the presence and power of Christ.

The events in today's printed text, in the lives of Thomas and Mary Magdalene, took place after Christ's resurrection. Both Thomas and Mary had grown to love Christ before He died. As a result of the resurrection experience, however, they learned of a deeper love and renewed hope. It is the resurrection that gives the believer hope today, as it has down through the centuries.

—Bible Student (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Mary wept because the body of her Lord was gone (v. 11).
2. Her sincerity in seeking Him gave her an opportunity to see Him (vv. 12-14).
3. Her grief and lack of comprehension kept her from recognizing Jesus (v. 15).
4. Jesus revealed Himself to her at the proper time (v. 16).
5. Jesus would not let Mary touch Him; instead, He sent her away as the first herald of the risen Saviour (vv. 17, 18).
6. For a reason unknown to us, Thomas was absent when the Lord first appeared to His disciples (v. 24).
7. The disciples who had witnessed the appearance told Thomas about it, but he rejected their testimony (v. 25).
8. Jesus gave Thomas an opportunity to witness what he said was necessary for him to believe (vv. 26, 27).
9. Upon being convinced that Jesus was risen, Thomas made one of the greatest confessions of faith of all time (v. 28).

10. Jesus pointed out that those who accept by faith are blessed the same as those who look for more proof.

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. In our day it is necessary to have building codes that set standards to insure the structural strength of new buildings. When a large office building is being built in the heart of town, the workmen drive its foundations down into the bedrock. If such a large building were to be placed on an inadequate foundation, it would soon collapse because sand or soil would in time shift beneath its weight.

God was also concerned about a similar problem when He sent the gospel into the world. Would man accept it? Would it stand the strain of time? God, the master builder, made absolutely certain that it would stand for all time! God had a plan of salvation for men that was built upon the resurrection of Christ. To become a part of His kingdom men must believe that Jesus died, was buried, and arose from the dead. But how could God make certain there was sufficient evidence for the resurrection? At first even Jesus' own followers did not accept the resurrection. Mary Magdalene's first reaction to the empty tomb was the fear that someone had stolen the Lord's body. Only after she returned to the tomb and heard Jesus himself speak to her did she believe. And Thomas would not believe the testimony of the others until he had seen Jesus with his own eyes.

Today we believe because we have the testimony of Mary and Thomas and others who bore witness that Jesus was resurrected from the dead. They helped establish the historicity of the resurrection, the foundation of the gospel.

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. The generally accepted order of events of the resurrection morning are given as follows by Henry H. Halley in his book, Pocket Bible Handbook: "(1) At the first break of dawn, two or more groups of women, from their abodes in Jerusalem or Bethany, probably a mile or two distant, start groping their way toward the tomb. (2) It was probably about that time that Jesus was emerging from the tomb, accompanied by angels who rolled away the stone and neatly folded the shroud. (3) The guards, meantime, frightened and dazed, fled to tell the priests who had placed them there. (4) About sunrise, as the women approach the tomb, Mary Magdalene, ahead of her group, seeing the tomb empty, but not seeing the angel, nor hearing his announcement that Jesus had risen (John 20:13, 15), turns and runs to tell Peter and John. (5) The other women draw near. See and hear the angels. Hurry away, by another route, to tell the main group of disciples. (6) By this time, Peter and John reached the tomb. Go in. See the empty shroud. Depart, John believing, Peter wondering. (7) Mary Magdalene, meantime, following hard after Peter and John, returns to the tomb, and remains, alone, weeping. Then she sees the angels. And Jesus Himself appears to her. (8) Shortly thereafter, Jesus appears to the other women, as they were on their way to tell the disciples; or, as having told the disciples, they were returning to the tomb. This all happened in probably less than an hour's time."

—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

3. Tell the world that Jesus is risen! This was the first missionary commission and the first missionary message. The first missionary sent forth to tell of His resurrection was Mary, who had stood weeping at the tomb.

"Why weepest thou?" the angels asked. Her sobs and tears were very real, for her heart was crushed with the grief of the death of Jesus on the cross. Oh, the sobs and wails of a lost world, who stand before the tomb without hope and without salvation! What hope do they have in face of death and eternity? What hope of heaven? What assurance of life hereafter? None!

One of the greatest comedians, who makes the world laugh, lives in dread fear of death. He fears what lies beyond the grave and dreads the unknown of eternity. He makes others laugh while he himself weeps.

There are even many religious leaders who admit that they have no assurance or certainty of life after death. They live in constant fear of that inevitable day when they must die.

The wail and sob of unbelief is heard

Monterrey, which is the capital city of Nuevo Leon and has a population of nearly a million souls. There are unlimited possibilities for work in Monterrey. However, we spent very little time there, needing to hurry on to Saltillo.

Saltillo is the capital of the Mexican state of Coahuila, and a city of some one hundred thousand. Brother Juan Lopez has been conducting services in the Free Will Baptist Mission in Saltillo for about a year. He has done a very good work there. On Sunday night we had about 70 persons in attendance, and we had four young men to accept the Lord when the invitation was given. Please remember that work in your prayers.

I hope that all of you will get a map of Mexico and follow this journey. We went from Saltillo to Durango, across 180 miles of mountains to Mazatlan, and up the coast to Nogales. The field there is white unto harvest, but the laborers are pitifully few. Will you pray earnestly to the Lord of the harvest that He will send forth laborers into His harvest? Through your prayers He has sent many, but the need is still very great. Please pray more earnestly than ever. He will answer!

THE vision is always a fact. It is the reality that is often a fraud.—G. K. CHESTERTON.

It is much easier to talk about evangelism than to do evangelistic work.

throughout the world. Yet, there is hope in the midst of death. Why weep? Let us tell the world that there is hope in death, for Jesus is risen!

Throughout history men have lived and died, not knowing what lies in the great beyond, until that glorious Easter morn when Jesus arose and broke the bonds of death and dropped the shackles of the tomb. He told Mary to go and tell the disciples, to dispel their grief and sorrow and allow the glorious good news of hope to melt their fears and sorrows into a disappearing vapor.

If Mary had not fulfilled her mission, if she had left the disciples in ignorance of this glorious truth of the resurrection of Christ, she would have committed a great sin. And we are just as wicked if we allow the heathen and the masses of people throughout the world to die and go into eternity without hope, when there is hope.

—Bible Expositor and Illuminator.

4. Our lesson today is about two people: both were disciples, but they were so different. Mary Magdalene was devoted and loving to the Lord; but Thomas was pessimistic and unbelieving until he had proof. Yet, these two have some things in common.

Just what did Thomas and Mary Magdalene have in common? First, neither of them expected Christ to rise from the dead. Evidence that Mary did not expect it is shown by the fact that she thought they had taken away the body. Thomas did not believe it even after the other disciples had given witness to it. Second, both of them made a mistake about Jesus. Mary thought He was the gardener, and Thomas thought that He had not appeared to the other disciples.

Mary's main problem seemed to be that of sorrow. She was so devoted to Jesus that her heart was broken over His death. The tears of sorrow dimmed her eyes so that it was difficult for her to see and understand the truth of the resurrection. But Jesus' presence was the answer to her problem.

Thomas' main problem was doubt. He was a pessimistic character who had to see evidence before he would believe. But when Jesus appeared to him, he said, "My Lord and my God." The presence of Jesus was the answer to his problem. Is it not marvelous the way Jesus is the answer to man's many and varied problems?

Mount Olive College Library

The Mount Olive College library is continuing its growth as more books are added almost daily. The above picture made in the stackroom shows a portion of the approximate 10,000 volumes which now make up the library. A goal of 20,000 volumes has been set to be reached by 1968. This goal is necessary to help the college retain its full accreditation.

VBS Set for April 11th

The tenth annual Vacation Bible School Workshop at Mount Olive College has been set for Saturday, April 11. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and classes will end at 2:30 p.m.

Lunch will be provided by the college at $1 per plate. The Free Will Baptist Press will have in the college library a full display of literature and supplies for those who wish to make purchases or enter orders.

Plans for the workshop were formulated January 29 in a meeting at the college attended by the Reverend N. B. Barrow of Ayden, manager of the Free Will Baptist Press; Charles Harrell, college business manager; Mrs. David W. Hansley of Kenly, youth chairman of the State Woman's Auxiliary Convention; Mrs. A. B. Chandler of Pinetown, Bible school literature writer; and W. Burkette Raper, president of the college.

Holy Week Services

Special pre-Easter services will be held at Mount Olive College under the Several days later the missionary nurse called the girls and said, "Do you know what happened when I went to Luzu's hut to give his wife medicine? Well, I found Pastor there, and Luzu told him that he wanted to follow the One who was powerful enough to give two fearful girls courage."

"Thank You, Jesus," Lati said.

Maru bowed her head and prayed, "Thank You, Jesus, for being our Helper. And thank You that Lati showed me how to walk in Your path."

What Is Worldliness?

It is human activity with God left out.

It is life that is horizontal only, and not vertical.

It is ambition without aspiration.

Its goal is success, and not holiness.

Hearing no mystic voice, it is destitute of reverence.

It never bows in rapt, silent wonder in the secret place.

It has lusts but no supplication.

ASSURANCE OF VICTORY

The Church of the Lord Jesus Christ has been promised a sure and certain victory—victory over the power of evil and victory over death at the grave. Each Christian will share in this final and complete victory. "But thanks be unto God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:57).

Man has always sought after that which would give assurance—a surety in this life and beyond the grave. Job of old was faced with the same question: "If a man die, shall he live again? . . ." (Job 14:14). For centuries man lived in darkness concerning the immortality of the soul, but soon man was brought into the marvelous light of salvation through the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ. Then men could trust in the future with no fear of its consequences, if they would trust in Christ.

The Resurrection of Jesus Christ is the central truth of the gospel. Christians cannot and do not deny this truth. To deny it would mean the denial of a living Christ. Someone has aptly said that the message of the Church is, "A Living Christ for a Dying World." If man is to have any hope and earthly contentment, he must see beyond himself and the world system. He must see and accept the divine purpose and will of God: ". . . that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation" (2 Corinthians 5:19).

The Resurrection of Jesus Christ gives joy to the believer. When Jesus appeared to the disciples on that first Easter morning, their grief and despair were turned to joy. They had become discouraged and despondent when Jesus was taken from them and crucified and buried. He had spoken to them about His death, but they had not understood what He was speaking about. When He spoke of destroying the temple, they thought He was speaking of the temple building in Jerusalem. Sorrow had come to them; but as Christ appeared in their midst, their sorrow fled and they communed with the resurrected Christ.

The resurrection gives the Church the greatest message the world has ever known. At the time Christ appeared to the disciples, they were most interested in their own assurance that Christ was alive. Little did they realize the spreading of the message would depend so completely upon them.

Likewise, the Church today is a witness to this victory through faith in the Christ. We are not only witnesses to a resurrected Christ, but to an ascended Christ. The Apostle Paul wrote that Christ has been exalted "Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come" (Ephesians 1:21).

"'Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept.' Ring it out, Easter bells! Peal forth, glad anthems of the church! Let the flowers tell in symbolic beauty their message that life has conquered death. Let the church join in the great affirmation of her faith, 'I believe in . . . the resurrection of the body, and the life everlasting.'"—Selected.

*Oh, day of awful story—Jesus is dead!
Sad end to hope of glory—Jesus is dead!
Behold the stone is rolled away!
And shining ones have come to say:
"He is not here, but is risen!"
The night of death is past and gone—
Arise and greet the glorious morn!
"He is not here, but is risen!"*

When We View the Cross

by REV. JAMES WESTMAN

MOST PEOPLE are quite deeply moved when they stand in the presence of death. To witness a person's last hours and moments in this life is to come at least somewhat emotionally involved.

Matthew writes concerning the soldiers who actually carried out the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, that, "Sitting down they watched Him there." We are left to imagine how the sight of our suffering Saviour may have impressed these hardened Roman soldiers. Most of us are inclined to believe that they were completely indifferent to the death scene before them.

We find now ourselves at that time of the year when, over nineteen centuries later, the church calendar calls Christians to a contemplation of the cross. This means that millions of individuals in Christendom will be turning their thoughts to Calvary.

For many this will involve no more than giving their annual recognition to the historical fact of the death of Jesus Christ. Such an intellectual acceptance of a well-substantiated event is, of course, no indication that such individuals are Christians.

For others, contemplating Calvary will mean going on their annual religious binge as once again they become deeply affected by the recitation of the facts of Christ's agony. However, the continuing popularity among non-Christians of such songs as The Old

Rugged Cross is evidence enough that much of the thinking that is done regarding the death of Christ is in the realm of the merely sentimental and does not constitute a true appreciation of Jesus Christ.

But what about the Christians? Does the suffering and death of Jesus Christ have any effect upon the one who, having admitted his own hopelessly lost condition, has come to Jesus and has trusted in Him as the One Who bore his sin in His own body on the cross?

Yes, the scene on Golgotha cannot help but make an indelible impression upon the Christian. Needless to say, each one of us as Christians should go back continually in our thoughts to Calvary and "watch Him there." As we do so, we are bound to be different because of what we have seen.

Experience has proved that even a glimpse of Golgotha will influence the Christian's attitude both toward sin and toward the sinner. When a Christian takes time to survey the wondrous cross, he will find himself increasingly loathing sin and loving the sinner.

HE WILL LOATHE SIN

Certainly we cannot spend time at Calvary without some change being effected in our attitude toward sin.

The mind of unregenerate man has spawned numerous definitions of sin. Most of us have heard such fancy yet fallacious definitions as "psychic rebellion," "goodness in the making," "the backward pull of outworn good," and "an upward stumble in man's progress." None of these even approximates the Biblical concept of sin. The following definition, although a few pages too short to satisfy the theologians, contains the core of what constitutes sin. "Sin is lack of conformity to the revealed will of God, either in our behavior or our attitudes."

Let us assume that we have an evangelically sound definition for sin. Is it sufficient for us as Christians to have a purely intellectual grasp of what sin is? No! We must have some feeling about it. God does!

We will find that it is impossible to remain dispassionately objective regarding sin when we stand in the place where the Christ Who knew no sin was made sin for us. At such a time, cold intellectual concepts of sin that were adequate in providing a theological definition prove miserably inadequate in setting forth the exceeding sinfulness of sin.

For example, in the realm of the physical we may feel that we have adequately defined cancer as "a malignant growth of tissue resulting from the uncontrolled multiplying of cells." However, such an intellectual concept of what cancer is provides very little stimulus in getting us to donate money for cancer research. On the other hand, when we see what this dread disease has done to a loved one, we react emotionally with a positive feeling of either dread or loathing that moves us to do our part in helping science find cancer's cause and cure.

It is the same in regard to sin. Ordinarily, an intellectual grasp of what sin is does not produce much of a reaction in an individual against sin. But as soon as one becomes aware of what sin does, one cannot help but react emotionally and have very strong feelings regarding

Mission Prospects in West Mexico

By JOHN B. ELLISTON

In last week's "Baptist" I gave a report of our visit to the Free Will Baptist work in the Mexican states of Chihuahua and Coahuila, with a mention of the prospects in the state of Nuevo Leon. In that report, after we left Saltillo, there was very little about the rest of the trip. I am still going to skip over the states of Durango and Sinaloa, which we crossed; and am now going to give you an idea of the prospects in Sonora. Later on, I hope to give you a full report of the prospects in Sinaloa.

Here in west Mexico the prospects for missionary expansion are very great. Our first step seems to be to consolidate our work on the border. But, at the same time, we must continue to penetrate more deeply into Mexico. Right now, it seems, we have an opportunity opening in Douglas, Arizona, and across the line in Agua Prieta, Sonora, as well as a little to the west in Naco, Sonora. Some spadework has been done in this area. The Rev. and Mrs. David G. Wallace were in the area for a good while, but they were hampered greatly by lack of finances and the inability of either of them to speak Spanish.

More recently, the Rev. Leo Alvarez and the Rev. Emiliano Lopez did some survey work in the area; and the prospects are very promising. We covet your earnest prayers for the guidance of the Lord concerning our part in evangelizing this area. We desire to always know and follow His will, and your prayers are essential to our knowledge of His will.

Another location which offers very good prospects for early exploitation is the city of Hermosillo, Sonora, and its environs. Hermosillo is the capital of the state of Sonora, and a city of about 100,000 souls. It is about 180 miles south of Nogales, on an excellent highway, Mexico 15, and easily accessible.

The city of Hermosillo itself is a very attractive field; and around it are several small towns and villages, some of which do not have a church of any kind.

Of course, we can only move forward as God provides the finances and the workers. He will provide the finances just as rapidly as you will hear Him and do your part. The workers will be provided through your prayers as you provide the finance to support them. It is heartbreaking to us here to watch people come, dedicated to the task of missions, ready to sacrifice all they hold dear in order to win souls, and then to watch them have to return to their homes because there isn't enough money to keep them eating. Many of you don't realize how completely the missionary must depend upon your faithfulness to the Great Commission.

March is Missions Month in North Carolina. The month is about over. Have you heard the call? Remember that the 11 churches and missions which we now have in Arizona-Sonora, and the 5 churches and missions in Texas-Coahuila, as well as the mission work in North Carolina, is possible only because of your prayers and offerings. No new work can be begun until the present work is satisfactorily supported. When Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature;" He was talking to every Christian. Please hear Him!

Send all offerings to North Carolina Board of Missions, C/O The Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina, 28513. Please pray for us! Don't forget Mexico in your prayers and offerings. May God richly bless you in our prayer!

Anointed for My Task

It is easy to understand why the followers of Jesus were called Christians, or Christ-ones. Possibly the title was used first in derision. If so, it had a happy consequence, for it has become a most significant name. However, it may be used very cheaply and with no true sense of its real meaning. Unfortunately, this is often the case.

The thing which every Christian should realize is that he must partake of the anointing of the Anointed One if he is to bear the name worthily. Christ is a sacred name. To bear it as a Christian is a solemn responsibility. He who was anointed in a pre-eminent degree has promised the Spirit's unction for His followers. A severe penalty was imposed in ancient days for taking God's name in vain. It would be well to ask ourselves, "Do I bear Christ's name in vain? Am I truly a Christ-one, reflecting Him to the world?"—Publisher Unknown

The SIGNIFICANCE of CHRIST'S RESURRECTION

What difference does it make whether or not Jesus Christ was raised from the dead? Is the belief in His resurrection a vital part of the Christian faith, and does it have a bearing upon my own relation to God?

These are questions which may occur to you when on Easter Sunday Christians once again witness to their faith that Jesus of Nazareth was raised from the dead. And they are important questions which deserve an answer.

Without the resurrection of Jesus Christ there could be no Christian faith. Had He not risen, there would have been no rallying of discouraged and disillusioned disciples. Peter and John would have gone back to fishing. There would have been no outpouring of the promised Holy Spirit at Pentecost, no Apostle Paul, no New Testament. There would have been nothing to believe.

"If Christ be not risen," wrote the Apostle Paul, "then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain" (1 Corinthians 15:14).

But you object, "What of His teachings?" Yes, what of them? Where would they leave us if Christ remained in the grave?

"Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God" (Matthew 5:8). Would you see God on the basis of the purity of your heart? "Who can say, I have made my heart clean, I am pure from my sin?" (Proverbs 20:9). It is axiomatic that the higher His teaching, the greater its condemnation, because we cannot and do not live up to it.

At the heart of Christ's teaching was the fact that He came to be our Saviour, and that to be our Saviour He must die for our sins and be raised again. He said, "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (Matthew 20:28), and again, "I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. . . . No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (John 10:11, 18). If what He claimed for Himself was not true, then there is nothing to believe.

"If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins" (1 Corinthians 15:17). That which distinguishes Christianity from all other religions is the belief that God grants forgiveness of sins on the basis of the death of Christ for our sins, His burial and His resurrection.

This is the very heart of the Christian faith and constitutes the good news of salvation and man's only hope of heaven. Read it from the inspired pen of the Apostle Paul: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures" (1 Corinthians 15:3, 4).

The resurrection of Christ gave us a worthy object of faith. It proved true His Messianic claims. He was "declared to be the Son of God with power . . . by the resurrection from the dead" (Romans 1:4).

Assurance that He obtained forgiveness of sin, and a right relation to God for us through His death, is given by the resurrection. He "was delivered [to death] for our offences, and was raised again for our justification" (Romans 4:25).

Our hope of eternal life—resurrection life beyond the grave—is inseparably bound up with His resurrection. He said, "Because I live, ye shall live also" (John 14:19). "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Corinthians 15:22). How important then to be "in Christ" by faith.

Without the resurrection, there is nothing to believe, but with it there is good news for you. Christ is a living Saviour. Christianity is not a lifeless adherence to the teachings of a dead man who was mistaken about His own calling, but it is communion with the living Son of God who will come to indwell, cleanse and empower every heart opened by faith to Him.

OBITUARIES

MR. WOODLEY HUGHES LITTLE

This obituary is in memory of Woodley Hughes Little of Smithfield, North Carolina, age 21, who was accidentally killed on February 19, 1964, near Raleigh. He was the son of Woodrow and Alice S. Little, and had been a member of Hopewell Original Free Will Baptist Church for twelve years.

Hughes walked in God's light and he knew
Of the wonderful Saviour's love.
He's happy today with the angels
Who reign in heaven above.

He walked in the light and found
Other Christians who walked that way too;
Now he is waiting for his loved ones
In heaven beyond the blue.

He walked with God, as did Enoch;
Even then, things weren't always bright,
But by grace he kept the faith, and he's gone
Where God himself is the light.

Hughes has gone away, but still
We know he's happier there;
With God around the White Throne
No happiness here could ever compare.

He is missed by his family and friends;
They grieve for him each day,
But someday we will all be reunited
In heaven not faraway.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Report of Eastern Auxiliary Convention

The Eastern District Woman's Auxiliary Convention met at Beulaville Free Will Baptist Church, Beulaville, North Carolina. Mrs. D. W. Hancock, the president of the convention, asked the women to pray silently for a few moments before the beginning of the day's program. The convention theme was "Building the Kingdom through Christ the Rock." The devotional thought, brought by Mrs. Nora Winstead, centered around the scripture, ". . . upon this rock I will build my church: . . ." (Matthew 16:18).

Reports were given from the Children's Home and Mount Olive College. Both reports were very encouraging, and suggestions were made for various projects for the women's participation which will help build the kingdom through Christ. A trio from St. Mary's church sang "On Christ, The Rock, I Stand."

Miss Stephenie MacSwain from St. Mary's church delivered a declamation entitled "A Little Child Shall Lead Them." She was the winning contestant of the Eastern district AFC contest. Miss Sandra Anthony from Saints Delight church delivered her declamation entitled "Stewardship." She was the winner of the YFA contest from the Eastern district. Both contestants delivered their declamations well and gave much food for thought to those who listened.

Various other reports were given in the afternoon, and the remaining business was attended to. There was a large attendance at this convention, and everyone enjoyed the gracious hospitality of the people of Beulaville church.

Challenge from Field Worker

Today, as never before, there is a great challenge before each officer and chairman of the local auxiliary, as well as the district officers. As we look unto the harvest fields and see that they are already white, truly we need to be more consecrated to the task of the Great Commission, "Go ye, teach, and preach." In each office of work we hear the Master speaking and saying, "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matthew 9:38). As each person accepts her responsibility and answers the call to duty, let us each one say with Paul, "I can do all things through Christ" (Philippians 4:13).

When we think of the threefold purpose of the woman's auxiliary, the work of missions always stands out foremost in our hearts and minds. It is through this channel that lost souls come to realize that they need Jesus as their Saviour. What a great task the youth chairman has of working with our youth and saying to them, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." And as we "study to show ourselves approved unto God," let us rightly divide the word of truth as set forth in the Scriptures. No time have we ever been called to a more effective and dedicated prayer life than in times like these. Let us pray without ceasing till the Lord says, "It is enough: well done."

"Give and it shall be given unto you" are the words of the Lord Jesus. Surely the benevolence workers of our auxiliary are always ready to lend a helping hand in any way and at all times to those in need. "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their afflic-tion, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

As field worker for the Eastern District of North Carolina, let me challenge and urge each officer and chairman "to lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

INFLUENCE

"... if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be" (Ecclesiastes 11:3).

A good definition of influence is "The power of persons or things to affect others, seen only in its effects."—Webster's New World Dictionary.

I suppose that there's no one living who is destitute of the power of affecting others for their well-being or for their woe. The eternal destiny of many depends upon the influence of some other person. If you ask why this is so, I answer that God has thus arranged the matter, and it is wisely arranged. Who does not see that it is a happy circumstance that God has ordained that parents have influence over their children? The operation of the natural inclination or tendency is very powerful in the child. They are very easily influenced. Parental influence and instruction have much to do in fixing their destiny, both in time and eternity.

Influence cannot be destroyed. It is indestructible. Every one is responsible for the influence he exerts upon others. We are prone to forget that we are as accountable to God for our influence as for any thing else.

All Christians are constantly exerting their influence. In this the obscurest member of a church is not excepted.

All influence is not for good. There are those whose influence is for good and others whose influence is bad. The rich and the poor, the wise and the ignorant, the proud and the humble, are all influential. They are always making impressions. Some are profane, some licentious, some covetous, some drunkards, gamblers, liars, and all such abominable characters. All have influence. All help to shape the lives and destinies of those about them. Paul says in Romans 14:7, "For none of us liveth to himself, . . ."

Every act, every word, every thought, and every feeling is something thrown into the ocean of life, producing waves which spread through all time, and reach the shores of eternity. We may determine what acts we will perform, what words we will speak, but there our power of determination stops—our control goes no farther. The act being performed, or the word being spoken, it is no longer optional with us to say what influence it shall exert. The influence commences its operation at once, and it is impossible to arrest it. It is transmitted from one generation to other generations. We all know that Adam's sin has affected the condition of his posterity to this day, and that the results of its influence will be eternal. We all know too that the atonement of Christ introduced to fallen man a new feature into the lives of men, affecting the life of every one who accepts Christ's atonement. There is something perceivable and striking in Adam's sin and Christ's atonement. The evil we do may not exert the millionth portion of the influence created by Adam's disobedience, but its effects are just as real. So it is of the Saviour's mediation, and so of the operation of the Holy Spirit. The grand tendency, both of the mediation of Christ and the operation of the Holy Spirit, is to glorify God and counteract the evil influences that are at work in the universe. All the good influences originated by our acts of obedience to God have a similar tendency.

Influence does not cease at death. No man, however much he may desire it, can, at death, leave the world just as it was at his birth.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

"So when a great man dies,
For years beyond our ken,
The light he leaves behind him lies Upon the paths of men."

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

If you want to show how little you are—not how great—just use profane language like taking God's name in vain, keeping smutty words in your vocabulary, telling filthy jokes, and even vulgar jokes. All this surely tells your littleness, or helps to. Ask yourself the question, "Just how little am I?"—Walter E. Isenhour.

THE LIVING CHRIST

We who have been saved believe in and preach a living Christ, one who burst the bands of the tomb and walked out and communed with His followers at the grave, on the road, by the seashore, and in various places and in various manners.

The writer of the Book of Revelation says, "And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead, And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death" (Revelation 1:17, 18).

May we repeat, we worship and adore a living Christ, not a dead man. There are religious bodies whose religion is based on a dead man, one who died and stayed dead. Mohammed is dead and will remain dead until the last resurrection, and so are religions based on a dead man; but Christians worship and adore a living Saviour.

THE APOSTLE PAUL SAYS

"But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you" (Romans 8:11). Let us see what Paul tells us about the witnesses who saw Jesus after the resurrection of his body and the living presentation of himself to his disciples.

"For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures: And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: After that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep. After that, he was seen of James; then of all the apostles. And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time" (I Corinthians 15:3-8). May we notice what Paul said after mentioning the great number who saw the living Christ, ". . . the greater part remain unto this present, . . ." It is reasonable to believe that if Paul had been mistaken about the number who saw and gave witness to the living Christ, someone would have challenged his statement. But there is not a dissenting vote, so the record is given to us that a great number saw Christ after He was raised from the dead.

OUR FAITH IN CHRIST

We are bound to believe in the resurrection of Christ in order to be a believer indeed. Believing in His virgin birth, His sinless life, His divine healings, His miracles, His atonement, and in all that He did and taught, and then to deny His resurrection would not make us a full-fledged believer. We just as well say that Christ was only a man who was crucified and died on a cross and that there is no salvation for lost humanity as to say that there is no resurrection and that Christ was not brought back from the dead.

Let us see, "And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. . . . And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. . . . But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. . . . For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming" (I Corinthians 15:14-23). See I Corinthians 15 and learn from the Scriptures that Christ is a living being and that if He lives and we accept Him, live in Him, and die in Him, we will be resurrected when He comes for His own.

May we notice that Paul said that as in Adam all die, in Christ shall all be made alive, but every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits, afterwards them that are Christ's. There is nothing said here about those who are not Christ's being raised at this time. Why? Because the wicked dead are not raised at that time. The wicked dead will be raised at the end of the thousand-year reign of Christ on the earth. Let us notice, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison" (Revelation 20:6, 7). May we notice that it is revealed, "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. . . ." (Revelation 20:5). This sets forth the fact that the wicked dead are not raised from the dead at the time the righteous dead are raised. Again let us notice that the writer of Revelation says, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection." Because it says "the first," there must be a second resurrection.

May we notice these words: "And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death" (Revelation 20:11-14).

The first resurrection will be a time of rejoicing because our Christ will be there to comfort and give glory. It will be a great meeting in the air; whereas the second resurrection will be a time of fear and sadness and weeping and wailing by the lost as they are cast into eternal fire to suffer forever and ever.

Now, my reader, let us consider some more Scripture which is for the redeemed, those who have accepted and served and loved Christ in this life: "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent (continued on page thirteen)

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

QUESTION: What is the abomination of desolation referred to in the twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew? — W. R. Jones, Alabama.

ANSWER: It will be the image of the beast, or of the antichrist. He is called both in the Bible. "And after three-score and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate" (Daniel 9:26, 27). "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth, let him understand:)" (Matthew 24:15). His beast or political tyrant, is to have a religious leader that will cooperate with him in all his evil, uncanny devices by which he is to gain access and domination over almost all men's minds that shall be on the earth at that time. "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon. And he exerciseth all the power of the firstbeast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed" (Revelation 13:11, 12). (Read all of Revelation 13—17).

This false prophet, or second beast as he is also called in the Bible, will be the one to cause this abomination of desolation or idol, false god to be made and placed in the temple that is known to the Jews as "the holy place." "And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live. And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed. And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred three score and six" (Revelation 13:13-18).

Daniel in his time saw this as being the most outlandish of all the feats accomplished by ungodly Gentiles against his people the Jews. The image that Nebuchadnezzar made and the three Hebrew children were required to worship was an abomination, but since these three Jews did not worship it, it was not a spiritual desolation to them; on the other hand, if they had worshipped instead of defying Nebuchadnezzar's command, that is exactly what it would have been to them; and instead of their having, as they were, been cast into the fiery furnace they would have gone free from his tyranny for the time. Since they chose to please and obey God rather than this sinful king, God honored them in letting the enraged king see what He could do in the deliverance of His own. Then after their triumph, they were exalted in a grand promotion.

Those depicted in Revelation 13 will fare badly who refuse to worship and honor the image but will triumph in the final scoring. "And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire:

and them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God. And they sing the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are thy words, Lord God Almighty, just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy judgments are made manifest" (Revelation 15:2-4).

The seven years of great tribulation are to be the worst ever upon the earth, and there have been some terrible tribulation years that the saints of God have experienced upon this old earth. It will test both saints and sinners and prove to each person what he really is. These years will begin as the Bride of Christ is raptured, and therefore, the Church, the body of Christ, as we are called in the Bible, will not be here. Only those who refuse the mark of the beast will come out in triumph, they will be helped by the 144,000 of Revelation 7:4 and the two witnesses of Chapter 11. They, like the three Hebrew children, will pass through all the fury of the furnace, for this period of trial is called God's furnace, and triumph over the antichrist. Instead of coming out with physical bodies alive and well as the three Hebrew children; however, they are to seal their testimony with the shedding of their own blood and in laying down of their physical lives in obedience to Christ and in disobedience to the antichrist. No one now or then can obey and honor both, any more than the Hebrews could obey God and the edict of the king of Babylon to worship the image of himself.

This offers opportunity for a word of warning and exhortation to any who may read this. If you are unsaved, now is the time of opportunity for you. You may flee from the world of sin into the protecting arms of a loving Saviour. (See Revelation 21:8; Matthew 11:28-30; Isaiah 1:18; Acts 16:31, John 3:14-17, 36.) If you are saved and ashamed to witness for Jesus, remember that you are a traitor and used of the devil against Christ's kingdom work. (See Mark 8:38; Matthew 12:30; Philippians 2:5; Ephesians 5:5-7, 11, 18; 6:12-20.) "But he that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done; and there is no respect of persons" (Colossians 3:25).

SUNRISE

by STAN BEST

BUZZY MILLER and Tiny Jones were sitting in Walt's Hamburger Hut across from the school. Fortified with a coke apiece they were studying up for the coming exam in history.

"Say, Buzz, what a list of inventors we're supposed to know," said Tiny, "the inventors of everything except the doorknob." The well-fed member of Lincoln High's Bible Club scratched his head reflectively. "Say, Buzz, who did invent the doorknob? It seems to me that the fellow should get a little recognition, anyway."

Buzzy grunted a noncommittal answer and continued, engrossed in his studies.

Tiny warmed to his subject. "Just think how it would be without doorknobs. What a lot of work to open the doors and keep them closed—it makes me hungry to think about it." Tiny learned toward the counter. "Say, Walt, construct me a hamburger and my friend, Buzz, will pay for it."

"What?" said Buzzy, coming to the surface.

"You pay for my hamburger and I'll pay you tomorrow when I get paid for mowing lawns."

Buzzy grinned at his good natured friend. "Everything just naturally works around to food for you, doesn't it? O. K., I'll pay."

Tiny repeated his order to the smiling Walt: "Make it a cheeseburger, Walt, but leave out the pickle. I'm on a diet!"

Tiny had just received his sandwich and was munching contentedly when the door opened and in walked Betty Bronson with Gwendolyn Cruthers, one of the would-be poets of the school and an assistant editor of the school paper.

"Hi, Buzzy and Tiny," called Betty, "I've been after Gwendolyn here to give us some space in the paper to write about our Bible club."

"Good idea," agreed Buzzy. "What's chances, Gwendolyn?"

The assistant editor adjusted her heavy-rimmed glasses. "Yes, I believe so, Buzzy. Easter is coming right up and you can give us something for them." She smiled superiorly. "You religious folks make quite a bit of Easter, don't you?"

"Sure, Gwendolyn," returned Buzzy pleasantly. "Easter means a lot to us because at this time we remember especially that the Lord Jesus Christ not only died for our sins, but that He arose from the dead. To us He is a living Saviour."

"Just what my mother would say," nodded Gwendolyn. "Just recently she has adopted your religion."

"You mean she has become a Christian?" questioned Tiny.

"I guess you'd call it that."

Betty's eyebrows arched a question mark. "But aren't you interested?"

"I'm afraid not, Betty, it all seems so sort of—well—antiquated and unreal. A person has to live in the present and not the past. As for Easter I enjoy it in my own way."

"How is your way?" asked Tiny.

Gwendolyn laughed. "Oh, I like to think about the bunnies and Easter eggs and things like that—that's all the day means to me. As a matter of fact, I have my Easter poem here that I'm writing for the paper. Perhaps you would like to hear it?"

"Sure," said Tiny. "I like good poetry."

Gwendolyn opened a notebook and began to read: "Oh, funny, funny Easter bunny, hopping, hopping and not stopping, bringing eggs of colored hues, gold and pink and pretty blues; oh, funny, funny Easter bunny. That's the first verse. Now the other five go like this . . ."

Tiny held up his hand. "A masterpiece, Gwendolyn, but the hour is late and we should be going."

"Say, Gwendolyn," said Betty, as they were stepping out the door, "you better come to our sunrise service that we're going to have and bring your mother, too."

Gwendolyn shrugged indifferently as she walked away.

The following day Buzzy and Tiny, and many of the members of the Calvary Church young people, knocked on doors distributing gospel tracts, and giving out papers with special invitations to the sunrise service.

"Say, Buzzy and Tiny," said Betty, as they drew near, "did you hear what happened?"

"Nope—what?" responded the two.

"Gwendolyn's mother died of a heart attack this morning," added Carol.

Gwendolyn didn't show up to school until three days after the funeral. All the students tried to help and comfort her, but she seemed to want to talk especially with those from the Bible club. The gang from the club put in plenty of time in prayer that she might find Christ at this crisis time of her life. And, too, Buzzy got an inspiration in how to help her and began to plan accordingly.

Friday before Easter, Betty, Mildred and Buzzy were early in class and waiting for first period science class to start.

"What's that you have, Buzzy?" asked Betty, pointing to a small object in a jar that he carried.

"It's a cocoon—look now it's wiggling. The butterfly will be coming out soon."

Mildred wanted to know what he would do with it.

"You just wait and see," responded Buzzy mysteriously. "This little bug is going to help Gwendolyn a whole lot—sh-h, here she comes. Hi, Gwendolyn."

The school poet's eyes were rather red from crying as she entered the room. "Hi, Buzz, Betty, Mildred. Good to see you."

"How's everything coming?" asked Betty tenderly.

"Oh, you don't know how terrible it is. I just can't get over it. I try and try to forget but I just can't." Gwendolyn dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief. "If I could only have Mom back I'd do anything. Oh, why did she have to die? Why does anyone have to die? Why can't we live forever?"

Buzzy stole a glance at his cocoon, then put the jar before the weeping girl. "Here's your answer, Gwendolyn."

She raised her brimming eyes and stared at the bottle.

"Watch the cocoon and see what it does," said Buzzy.

Together they watched the brown shell, now cracked, split wide open. A pair of fragile wings popped out, then the butterfly struggled forth. Buzzy tilted the jar down on the sill of the open window and the butterfly walked out still trying its wings. Suddenly in a fluttering flash of color it swept off the sill and disappeared, flying toward hillside trees green in the early spring sunshine.

After they had returned from the window Gwendolyn asked: "I don't get it. What has that got to do with me?"

Buzzy opened his Bible. "You see, Gwen, we always think of the butterfly as a wonderful illustration of the fact that those who love the Lord Jesus Christ will someday have an eternal and incorruptible body. Out of the cocoon there came a beautiful creature. Our earthly body must die, but out of it will come a new one as the Word of God promises us. Look at what the Bible says here in 1 Corinthians 15:51-54: 'Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory.' So you see why the resurrection of the Lord Jesus means so much to us because He died and paid the penalty of our sins on the cross, and then rose again that we might be able to have life everlasting with Him." Buzzy paused a minute. "Try not to worry about your Mom, Gwendolyn. She's far happier now and you can see

Building to Be Named 'Henderson Building'

The first academic building on the new campus of Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, will be named in memory of the late Dr. C. C. Henderson, Mount Olive physician and leading benefactor of Mount Olive College.

The decision to memorialize Henderson through the college building program was by a unanimous vote of the board of directors in a called meeting Tuesday.

her again if only you'll take Christ as your Saviour."

Gwendolyn bowed her head on a desk and prayed out loud. "Lord Jesus, forgive me for being so wicked in not accepting You. Forgive all my sins. I take You as my own personal Saviour. Help me to live good and obey You and grant, Lord, that Mom may know I'm saved too. Amen." As she lifted her head her eyes sparkled—"Why, I feel just like a new person—just like starting all over again in life. And best of all I—I just kind of know that I'll be joining my Mom. Just wait 'till I tell Dad about this!"

—Gospel Herald.

Groundbreaking exercises for the building are scheduled for June. It will be a two-story building of modern design with classroom space for 350 students, including laboratories for biological sciences, chemistry, physics, and foreign languages, and will contain 23,400 square feet of floor space. Also included will be faculty offices and a lounge.

A gift of $37,200 made by Dr. Henderson to the building fund before his death last October will be applied on the building.

In addition to his generous financial support, Dr. Henderson served gratuitously as college physician from 1954 until his death.

In his will he provided for the college to receive 35 per cent of the income from the Henderson Memorial Foundation to which he assigned the major portion of his estate.

The Henderson Building is expected to be ready for use in September, 1965.

them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (2 Thessalonians 4:13-17).

Remember that we who are saved and live in fellowship with Christ will be resurrected and meet the Lord in the air, so the great white throne judgment will have no power over us. It is the wicked dead that are in that resurrection and judgment.

Praise the Lord for Easter and the Christ that made it possible for us to have Easter. Let us forget material things and praise the Lord for a living Christ. He is in my heart. How about yours?

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for April 5

This Is God's Universe

LESSON TEXT: Isaiah 40:21-26

MEMORY VERSE: Psalm 24:1

I. INTRODUCTION

Many long years ago the psalmist observed that the heavens declared the glory of God and the firmament showed His handiwork. Though the ancients had a much narrower view of the scope and the operation of the universe than that held by informed people of today, it never occurred to them to doubt for a single moment that the universe which they beheld was a part of the creative work of the Lord, their God.

The Christian view of the universe, and one that is certainly in keeping with the teachings of the Bible, is that the universe was created by God, is upheld by God, and is ruled by God. We often hear the expression—God, the Creator, the Upholder, the Sovereign of the universe. We take this to be not only the orthodox view of God's relationship to the physical universe, but we must also maintain that it is the most obvious and the only satisfactory view that can be entertained. Order did not emerge from chaos by accident; nothing in the vast universe operates through the medium of blind chance—everything follows the preordained laws established and put in force at the beginning by the Creator.

—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Certain knowledge of God has been available from the beginning (v. 21).

2. God reveals Himself in all ages, but all are in a position to comprehend that revelation.

3. He is such a great God that the children of men are no more than grasshoppers in comparison to Him (v. 22).

4. By His Word He created the heavens and put them in their places (v. 22).

5. Even the mighty are brought down before Him (v. 23).

6. He confounds the wicked and humbles the proud (v. 23).

7. The wicked are insecure and will soon be cut off (v. 24).

8. The disobedient shall wither and be carried away by the whirlwind of God's wrath (v. 24).

9. There is no other God's equal (v. 25).

10. God's mighty works reveal His power and should enlighten the creature (v. 26).

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. This whole fortieth chapter of Isaiah has as its theme the greatness of God. The people of Judah were facing exile and enslavement by a foreign nation. Their sin had made the discipline of God necessary. Corruption abounded so among the people that God's judgment was inevitable. Awful hours of doom awaited them. It is against this background that Isaiah speaks of the greatness of God.

Isaiah then shows that this great God offers hope along two very definite lines. He promises comfort. God is not through with Judah. He has plans for His people. This is the one ray of light in their darkness. It is the one star in their night. It matters not how evil we have been or how dark the night of trouble and sorrow may be, there is always comfort and help for us if we will turn to God. He is great enough to overcome our sins and our troubles.

The closing words of this great fortieth chapter of Isaiah offer helps in another direction. God will not leave His people without strength to bear what lies ahead. What a message this is for a discouraged sin-sick people. The great God who created the universe is the one who offers comfort and strength if we will but turn to Him.

—Advance Quarterly (F.W.B.).

2. "Thirty-one centuries passed. In the chamber of the Supreme Court in the Capitol at Washington, Samuel Morse, an American painter who had turned inventor, tapped out a message on a new device. The message was received and recorded by those who were waiting in a room in Baltimore. The telegraph, which since that time has transmitted so many thousands of messages of joy and sorrow, of birth and death, or war and peace, was an accomplished fact. May 24, 1944, was the hundredth anniversary of the sending of the first message. Again the first message—the exclamation of the eloquent seer on Pisgah's height—was flashed over the wires, sounding the time around the world: 'What hath God wrought!'"—Macartney's Illustrations.

As man views the universe he still exclaims, "What hath God wrought!"
—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

3. The skeptic scans the universe and boldly proclaims that God is NOWHERE. He cannot see beyond the present world. Has not man conquered the earth? By force he has subdued nature and built mighty kingdoms. Through science he has probed the vast reaches of space. When asked how the earth came into being or whence came man, the skeptic has many theories that satisfy him. He may say that the earth evolved all by itself from the great masses of matter in space, while man developed from lower forms of life. But the skeptic has no answer beyond this. He cannot explain the origin of the universe.

Only the man of faith can see the answer. By faith he looks at the universe and realizes that the skeptic's vision must be blurred. God is not NOWHERE. Rather God is NOWHERE. The man of faith can see that the world belongs to God. Man had conquered the earth, but he is really only a tenant. God is the great landowner. Not only is the earth His, but all that it produces as well as all who inhabit it belong to Him. God is the ruler of the universe because He created it. God has preserved the world. Storms cannot destroy the world, because God holds everything in His hand. "This is my Father's world: I rest me in the thought

Of rocks and trees, of skies and seas,
His hand the wonders wrought."

When you look at the universe, is God NOWHERE or NOW HERE?

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

t. And where are we faced with a more terrible testimony to the effects of sin than on Calvary's cross?

The excruciating agony of body and the indescribable anguish of soul experienced by our Lord that day were the result of sin. None of us can even begin to understand the spiritual torment endured by the sinless Son of God as "His SOUL was made an offering for SIN." The well-beloved Son Who did always those things that pleased the Father and Who had known unbroken fellowship with Him from eternity now was left alone, losing even that inward consciousness of His Father's presence. "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

Do we know the answer to this poignant plea from the loneliest soul in the universe? What could possibly drive the eternal Son of God into such "outer darkness" as was His in experiencing, as far as it was possible, the consciousness of being eternally rejected? What was the monstrous evil that could achieve such a cataclysmic catastrophe?

It was my sin and yours!

Surely a contemplation of Calvary reveals to us how God feels about our sin. How He must hate that which caused Him such anguish that day! As we take time to pause and ponder the scene on that barren, blood-bathed hill of Golgotha, we will find ourselves sharing God's attitude toward sin. We will praise it wherever we find it, in our own lives, or in the world around us.

HE WILL LOVE THE SINNER

At Calvary we are not only convinced about God's attitude toward sin; we are also fully persuaded about His attitude toward the sinner. When we spend time viewing the cross, we will find a change effected in our attitude toward the sinner. "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." If Calvary tells us anything, it tells us that God loves man in spite of all his sin. By all that was Calvary God says in the most unmistakable terms, "I love man. I love the sinner." Calvary is, indeed, the most powerful reinforcement of the words of John 3:16.

Most of us have personally experienced God's Calvary love. We know that God loves us. But what about His attitude toward those around us who have thus far rejected His love? How does He feel toward them? Well, what does God see when He looks at them? Sinners! We have already noted that it was while we were YET SINNERS that Christ died for us. Therefore, we know that God loves all men even as He loved us, and the measure of that love is Calvary.

In the sight of God each individual is precious beyond measure. If we ever want to find out just how precious that neighbor of ours is to God, or how much that cannibal in the heart of South America means to Him, we need only go to Calvary and there in that suffering, bleeding body and in that aching, breaking heart we shall see how exceedingly priceless that soul is to God.

Just how precious is each individual non-Christian to us? Do we see them as God sees them, worth all the suffering of the cross? Oh, that we would evaluate our fellow men in the light of Calvary! That individual, who may be so unattractive, and even offensive, to us, is so very precious to our Lord that for that one He was willing to suffer even the torment of a damned soul.

Has our love for the lost grown cold? Are we becoming increasingly indifferent to the spiritual needs of those around us who are "without God and without hope?" Then we need to draw near to Calvary. As we do so, and allow the Holy Spirit to show us something of what it meant for Jesus to "taste death for every man," we will again become persuaded of the true worth of each individual.

We may even find that lost souls will become so precious to us that we, too, will be willing to suffer something that they might be saved. For example, we might even be willing to "suffer" that bit of ridicule sometimes experienced when speaking to others about Christ. Or we may be willing to "suffer" the necessary self-discipline involved in spending more time in prayer for the salvation of the lost. In fact, we might even find ourselves willingly "suffering" the supreme indignity of not keeping up with the Joneses because we have made a larger financial investment in the spread of the Gospel!

Yes, we might be surprised at the joy with which we accept greater responsibilities in the Lord's work after we have been given something of Christ's compassionate love for the souls of men, a love that recognizes the true worth of each individual. This love that appreciates the surpassing value of each soul will become increasingly ours as we go to Calvary and see mankind through the perspective of the cross.

Let us each pray with Fanny J. Crosby,

*"Near the Cross! O Lamb of God,
Bring its scenes before me;
Help me walk from day to day,
With its shadows o'er me."*

We may be sure that such a walk in the shadow of the cross will be a walk that not only loathes and shuns the sin that nailed our Saviour there, but also loves and seeks to win the sinners for whom He died.

Recently, survivors of a ditched American airliner (many of them tough paratroopers) sang, "Glory! Glory, Hallelujah!" and recited the Lord's Prayer. Ten-foot waves tossed their raft about on the ocean for five hours. Eventually they were rescued by the Swiss freighter Celerina. The captain of the ill-fated plane, John D. A Strange Family

THE father has never missed church or Sunday School in 23 years. The mother has had a perfect record for 11 years. A son has not missed for 12 years. A daughter has been at the evening service on Sunday for eight years.

What's the matter with this family? Don't they ever have company on Sunday to keep them away from church? Don't they belong to any lodges where they get their religion, instead of the Father's house? Don't they ever have any headaches, or colds, or nervous spells, or tired feelings, or sudden calls out of the city, or weekend parties, or business trips, or picnics, or trouble? Don't they have a radio so that they can get some good sermons from out-of-town preachers?

What's the matter with this family anyway, and why are they so happy and cheerful? We leave it to you to answer.—The Christian Messenger.

It's Hard to Believe

When the National Safety Council indicates that more than half the highway fatalities involve drivers or pedestrians who "had been drinking"—

When insurance companies and traffic officials constantly warn against drinking and driving—

When drivers are repeatedly urged, instructed, informed, taught, warned about the harmful effects of alcohol on one's driving skill—

It is hard to believe that among the top 25 national outdoor advertisers eleven are makers of beer and liquor! Forty per cent of these billboards along the highways urge viewers (be they drivers, children, teen-agers or anyone) to buy and drink their intoxicating beverages!—*Clayton M. Editorial—

LET'S LAUNCH A CAMPAIGN!

Since the report of the Surgeon General's advisory committee on smoking and health, we have raised the question of a study being made on alcohol and health. We have had several responses on the subject. On the most part, however, Americans seem willing to accept the presence of alcoholic beverages with little concern. Even many Christians have the idea that it is here and there's nothing we can do about it. History has proven that when citizens are aroused, the seemingly impossible can be done.

We have noted that many others share the conviction that we have, namely, that it is inconsistent to condemn smoking and overlook the dangers of alcohol to our country and society. The liquor industry has greatly succeeded in brainwashing us into an acceptance of it as a normal part of our everyday lives.

The official organ of the Christian Action League of North Carolina, "Tomorrow," offers the following suggestions relative to this problem:

1. Write immediately to your national Congressman and Senator, urging that a definite study in the cost of alcohol to America—health-wise, economic-wise, accident-wise, etc., be made.

2. Write to the head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in our Federal Government. The individual to write is: Mr. Anthony J. Celebrezze, Secretary, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C.

3. Write to President Johnson, urging that a study be made of what alcohol is doing in America and how much it is costing the nation.

4. Write a letter to the editor of your local paper, and several of the big metropolitan papers, commenting on the need for a study—always bringing in and calling attention to the appreciation for the study of the smoking and health study and government report.

Let's launch such a campaign today! We believe that such a campaign would have far-reaching effects. No one person can do the job alone. Each individual must do his part. If we believe in a government of the people and by the people, let's let our representatives in government know what we want and expect.

DVBS WORKSHOP

The annual daily vacation Bible school workshop will be held at Mount Olive Junior College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, on April 11-12, 1964. This annual event is sponsored by the Free Will Baptist Press, the Woman's State Auxiliary Convention, and Mount Olive College. The first workshop was held ten years ago. The workshop has consistently attracted approximately 400 daily vacation Bible school officers and teachers from all parts of North Carolina.

The Free Will Baptist Press will display the 1964 series of daily vacation Bible school materials entitled, "The Great Book." Also on display will be the suggested crafts and projects for this series.

Departmental instructors will be present to direct the activities of each group which includes: nursery department, beginners' department, primary department, junior department, and intermediate department. There will also be a class for directors, and a music period for each department.

All vacation Bible school personnel and workers are urged to attend this workshop. Registration will begin in the rooms at 9:30 a. m. Classes will begin at 10 a. m. and end at 2:30 p. m. Lunch will be served by the college for $1.00 per plate.

HERE was a day when a message was brought to Jesus that Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha, was sick; however, He did not seem outwardly disturbed by this message, for He saw in it an opportunity to render a great service to those present, and also to those who should come after.

"When Jesus heard that, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby" (John 11:4). Thus Jesus, knowing what He would do, tarried two days in the place where He was.

After the two days were past, and Jesus told His disciples that they were going to Judea again, they did not want to go for fear of the Jews. Finally, having spoken of Lazarus as being asleep and going to awaken him, Jesus said plainly, "... Lazarus is dead" (John 11:14). At this time Jesus said that He was glad for their sakes that He was not there in order that they might believe. This one desire, that men might believe that He was the Son of God and that believing they might have life eternal, was always the foremost and foremost in His mind, as well as in His actions.

When Jesus and His disciples arrived at the home of Mary and Martha, there were many people gathered there to mourn the death of their friend Lazarus, who by now had been dead four days. Martha went out to meet Jesus, but Mary remained behind in the house.

"Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee" (John 11:21, 22). Then Jesus spoke to her of the resurrection, and reminded her that her brother would rise again. This was not exactly the comfort that Martha had in mind, for she missed her dead brother and wished that Jesus had arrived sooner in order that He might have healed him. Martha maintained faith in the resurrection, and said that she knew her brother would rise that day, but now her heart was broken because of her loss.

"Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" (John 11:25, 26). Martha then confessed her faith in God, and in His Son, Jesus Christ. Then she went her way and called her sister Mary to come see Jesus.

When Mary came to Jesus, the sisters directed Him to the tomb, the place where Lazarus lay, and Jesus, too, was troubled. The Scriptures tells us "Jesus wept" (John 11:35).

One may wonder why Jesus wept, for He already knew what He would do. Was it to conform to the weeping of those about Him? Was it because Jesus was a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief? This being true, as it surely was, weeping was quite natural for Him here, but there is a legend that might

Jesus Wept

Ray Harrison Jr.
Grifton, North Carolina

reveal a more likely cause. The legend reveals that Jesus knew Lazarus was about to be called back from paradise, and knowing this, it gave Him sorrow because of the sorrow that would be Lazarus' at leaving the presence of the Father. Jesus, having shared the glory of the Father from before the foundation of the world, knew intimately the exceeding brightness and joys of that glory. He also knew the sorrow and troubles of this world. Jesus knew, too, that Lazarus would be only too happy to be called upon in this manner in order that men might see the glory of God shown forth once more, and that seeing they might believe and become the sons of God.

When Jesus told them to take the stone away from the mouth of the tomb, Martha reminded Him that Lazarus had been dead four days and was stinking by now. Jesus certainly knew that Lazarus' life was gone; but He also knew that with God all things are possible, and one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

"Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go. Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him" (John 11:41-45).

Even so it is today: as many as will receive Him, to them He gives the power to become the sons of God, whosoever will believe on His name.

The Ethiopian eunuch, having heard the good news that Jesus died to save sinners and recognizing himself as such, desired to be baptized.

"And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God" (Acts 8:37). So Philip carried him down into the water and baptized him in the name of the Lord. And when they had come up out of the water, the eunuch went on his way rejoicing.

So men today are said to be spiritually dead; and as Jesus put it, they need a spiritual birth, or need to be born of the Spirit of God. "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God; Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (Romans 3:23, 24). Since all have sinned, and the wages of sin is said to be spiritual death, or separation from God, now it follows that all need new life and only God is able to give life. The Bible, in speaking of Christ, says, "In him was life; and the life was the light of men (continued on page fifteen)

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

A Correction

By John B. Elliston

In the issue of The Free Will Baptist of March 18, 1964, there appeared in the missions section an article written by me entitled "Mexican Free Will Baptists." As I was reading over the article, I realized that I had made an error in the name of the city across the Rio Grande River from Eagle Pass, Texas. The city across from Eagle Pass is Piedras Negras, Coahuila. The name Piedras Negras means black stones, or black rocks. On two separate occasions in the article I called the city Agua Prieta. Agua Prieta is the city across the line from Douglas, Arizona; and it is in the state of Sonora. The name means dark (black) water. There is no excuse for my making such an error, and I humbly apologize to all concerned.

By the time this article appears in the "Baptist," the month of March will be history. It is my hope and prayer that it will also have made history as the greatest month in missionary giving that the State Convention has ever seen. However, I hope that, in the months to come, the missionary emphasis in the churches in North Carolina will continue to grow.

We are in the last days of the Church Age. Whatever we are going to do as a force in world evangelism must be done soon. Let us not wait, as the foolish virgins, until it is too late to do anything. Let us be up and doing, NOW. I fear that the next administration in Mexico may not be quite as friendly to the gospel as the outgoing administration has been, and still is. We missed our opportunity in Cuba, and are now suffering the consequences. I pray that the next few years will not find us saying the same thing about Mexico and the rest of Latin America.

Of course, we had some witness in Cuba; but it was far too small and too local to have a great influence on the trend of affairs in Cuba. We are evangelizing now in Mexico, but we need a vastly augmented program of missions in Mexico; also in Central America and in South America. I know that God has other witnesses besides the Free Will Baptists in these areas, but that doesn't lessen our responsibility. When Peter asked Jesus what John was to do in the twenty-first chapter of John, Jesus told him that what John did in no way mitigated the responsibility of Peter. What other denominational groups, or independents, may do in Latin America in no way mitigates our responsibility (the State Convention) from doing what Jesus commands us to do.

Please don't fail to pray earnestly for this vast field of over 200 million souls. Pray that God will send forth laborers into His harvest. Then do your part in giving that they might go. Missions is not something that can be accomplished casually. We must dedicate ourselves to the task until Jesus says that it is enough. Those who give must be as faithful and consistent as those who go. Those who pray must do so earnestly and fervently. A half-hearted prayer is of no value.

Send all your prayers directly to the Lord Jesus. Send your offerings of money to the North Carolina Board of Missions, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. Send clothing, green stamps, etc., to Arizona-Mexico Missions, P. O. Box 550, Nogales, Arizona 85621. May God bless you!

Missions Challenge Central Conference

"An Original Free Will Baptist Church in Every Town," the goal of the North Carolina Central Conference Mission Board, is a great responsibility and challenge. However, with a lot of prayer, financial support, work, witnessing, and sacrificing, much can be accomplished toward this goal. Each church in the conference is urged to accept the responsibility and send a gift now.

The Rev. Raymond T. Sasser, secretary-treasurer of the mission board, reports definite progress in the work. For the period November 1, 1963, through March 23, 1964, gifts of $3,222.77 were received. This amount is a little more than was given all last year; yet, a great deal more is needed.

A weekly report from the Roanoke Rapids mission shows progress: Sunday school 46, morning worship 45, evening service 18, prayer meeting 14, offerings $38.77. They need $300 very badly to do some remodeling to make room for the people. Overcrowded conditions are not good; therefore, provision for more room must be made or some may become inactive.

On March 15 the Weldon church used their new building for the first time. Ninety-one were present for the service. The mission board expresses appreciation for what you have done in helping with this work. However, $1,200 is owed on the building materials for this building. The project, of course, is a loan to be repaid. When it is repaid, the money will be used to help other mission churches to build.

At the present time the bank balance of the mission fund is $152.39. Your gifts are needed now. Send all you can right away to the Rev. Raymond T. Sasser, 108 Hope Lodge Street, Tarboro, North Carolina. Also, pray for the work.

N. C. State Convention Missions Report

I have just finished going through the mail which came from Box 308 today. I am greatly encouraged that the Lord is continuing to bless our efforts; however, we need to hear from many more of our people to keep pace with the opportunities. We must depend upon you.

During the month of February, we paid accounts in the amount of $2,799.00 and had an income of $1,497.77. Our expenditures during February included $561.11 advance home missions payment and an advance payment to get a film made of the work in Mexico. Besides this, our accounts were normal for the month. Income for February was 50% above the 1963 income, but far below our accepted budget of $2,900 per month for the convention year. We must call on all Free Will Baptists to make an effort to meet this budget. We have checked all our mail carefully so far this month, but have not heard from many of you. If you can send a large offering, do just that; however, many small checks will also keep our accounts in good standing. Do not wait! Get that check in the mail right away! Steal away and go!

The Lighted Pathway

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

As I closed last week's writings, I was trying to impress upon your minds the fact that your influence, good or bad, does not die with the individual. We have but to think back to know that this is true. Men and women who lived thousands of years ago were men and women whose influences are still living today and helping to shape our thinking and our whole being. We can scarcely read the best of the poets of modern times without being reminded of Homer and Virgil. Demosthenes and Cicero still live in the orators of today.

Abraham and the other patriarchs, Isaiah and all the prophets, Paul and all the apostles, and the leaders of the Early Church, created influences which are still at work; and so did Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar, and the early enemies of Christianity, with their modern brethren, Voltaire, Hume, Gibbon, and Paine.

Like those mentioned above, the influence we now exert will continue to the end of time, and penetrate eternity. This is probably one reason why the day of judgment will occur at the end of the world. The influence for good or evil, which every individual has exercised, will then have to be accounted for, and that, not only for what he has done, but for the influence legitimately resulting from it. Will not Jeroboam be held responsible for the wicked course he pursued, and also for the influence that course had on others, for "he made Israel to sin"? Everyone who lives wickedly, promotes, to the extent of his influence, wickedness in others; and so everyone who lives righteously promotes righteousness. This is done during life and after death. The influence, whether pernicious or salutary, survives the stroke of mortality, survives the pul-

Campus Dedication Set for June 28

Plans are being made for the dedication on Sunday, June 28, of the original 50 acres of the new campus of Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina. Dedication of the remaining 40 acres will come after present leases expire four years from now.

A campaign to clear this land of indebtedness has been launched by a special committee appointed by the college board of directors. The Rev. C. L. Patrick, president of the Free Will Baptist State Convention and chairman of the committee, has announced that a goal of $27,000 will be sought between April 1 and June 28.

"Although this property is financed through a long-term loan with the Free Will Baptist Church Finance Association, and the final payment is not due until 1970, we want to complete payment for the original 50 acres now," Patrick declared. "We believe Free Will Baptist churches will provide the necessary $27,000 needed for this project."

Serving with Patrick on the committee to raise the required $27,000 are President W. Burkette Raper; Ralph A. Morris of New Bern, chairman of the college board of directors; the Rev. Melvin Everington of Deep Run, representative of the Alumni Association; Mrs. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill, president of the Free Will Baptist State Woman's Auxiliary Convention; and the Rev. Walter Reynolds of Dunn, vice-president of the State Convention of Churches.

verizing process of the grave, and will be found in operation when the last day ushers in the scenes of the final judgment. What a sublime—what an awful thing it is to live! Sublime to those who live for good and God, and exert influences that will glorify Him and lead others to Him. Awful to those whose lives and influences are for evil, and for the destruction of themselves and others. Every human being, in passing through the world, strikes a chord, whose vibrations will not be silenced by the thunders of the resurrection-trumpet, but will make sweet music in heaven, or will make discord in hell, through endless ages!

How delightful the privilege of putting into operation good influences; to be kept in active exercise to the end of the world. How pleasant to think that these influences will continue to act when we are in our graves. John Bunyan is exerting a thousand times more influence now than while he was alive, and so are others of whom the world was not worthy. How stupendous the results of the influence of the mother of John Newton! Her son ascribed his conversion to maternal instruction and example. The mother influenced the son, the son influenced Buchanan, who went to India, and afterward published his sermon entitled "Star in the East." This sermon directed the attention of Judson to the subject of missions. He went to Burma, translated the Word of God, and laid the foundation of one of the most prosperous of modern missions. These results are traceable to the influence of Newton's mother.

How different the story of a mother who asked me to try to win her wayward boys to Christ. When she asked me to talk to them, I assured her that I would do so gladly, but I asked her if she had tried to lead them to Christ. Her answer was, "They don't have much confidence in me. I do not have any influence with them." Sad, indeed, but all too many parents would have to confess the same thing!

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 5:16).

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

"Still shines the light of holy lives
Like star beams over doubt;
Each sainted memory, Christlike, drives
Some dark possession out."

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

Sandy Plain Church Reports Year of Successful Progress

The members of Sandy Plain Free Will Baptist Church, Pink Hill, North Carolina, report the progress the church has made in the past year. It cannot be said that this progress was made by the doings of any one person, but the members feel that they are reaping the harvest of the many who have gone before them.

Much credit is due the church's pastor, the Rev. Joe H. Johnson, who has worked very hard in these accomplishments. He has been especially interested in every phase of the church work. Also, he has done a good job among those who have been sick and those afflicted in that he has comforted them and visited them. Mr. Johnson has been a source of encouragement for the members of the Sunday school, league, choir, and young people's work. Since his coming to the church a little over a year ago, a greater interest has been shown in the worship services. Thirty-two members have been added to the church, and many have renewed their vows and are taking a more active part in the church program.

In the Sunday school, much progress has been noticed. A year ago the enrollment was 159, now it has increased to 184. The average attendance a year ago was 139, today it is 168. The prepared lessons a year ago were about 75, to compare with about 131 now. The offerings have also increased in proportion. The Sunday school is departmentalized and has a good staff of officers and teachers. The superintendent is Mr. Wilbur Sumner.

This Easter marked the fourth anniversary of the church in its new building. Many new improvements have been made at the parsonage. The building has been brick veneered and moved closer to the church. Also a deep well water system has been put in. The church is valued at $60,000 and the parsonage at $15,000. Plans are being made to start a larger education plant as conditions are overcrowded.

The members would like to invite everyone that can to come and worship with them on any Sunday. The church is located on the Pink Hill-Beulaville Highway. The services are as follows: Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., worship services at 11 a.m., league at 6:15 p.m., and evangelistic services each Sunday evening at 7:30. Prayer meeting is held each Thursday night and choir practice each Friday night. The woman's auxiliary meets each Wednesday after third Sunday. Much interest is being shown in this work.

On Easter Sunday the annual Sunrise Service was held with the Rev. Lloyd Vernon as the speaker. Following the worship service at 11 a.m., a picnic lunch was served by the church. At the evening service a pageant was presented entitled "He Calleth for Peter." This was enjoyed by everyone.

Saratoga S. S. Conducts 'Let's Go to Cragmont'

"Let's Go to Cragmont" was the slogan used for the Sunday School Rally of the Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church, Saratoga, North Carolina, Friday night, March 13, at 7:30.

The rally which was held in the community building, opened with the group singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," led by the pastor, the Rev. Cecil Rose. Randy Pittman read the Scripture taken from 1 and 2 Timothy. Prayer was offered by Ellen Fae Wilton.

The Rev. L. E. Ballard, field secretary for the North Carolina State Sunday School Convention of Free Will Baptists, was present. Also present was Mrs. Ballard, who is director of the young people's conferences at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina. She led the group in singing several choruses.

"It Took a Miracle" was sung by Landis Rose, accompanied at the piano by Miss Wanda Boswell. Mr. Rose then announced that the Sunday school was sending four of the young people on trip to Cragmont this summer. Mr. Clinton Proctor, Sunday school superintendent, explained the point system each would have to have in order to win the trip.

Mrs. Ballard talked of the summer conferences at Cragmont and stressed the spiritual inspiration of these youth conferences. She also showed slides of the buildings, chapel, and grounds of Cragmont.

After the dismissal with prayer, the refreshment committee served cookies, sandwiches, potato chips, and drinks.

Services will begin each night at 7:30, with prayer services beginning at 7:15. Special music is planned for each service.

The Rev. J. C. Yates, pastor at St. Mary's, invites the public to attend these revival services.

Revival Scheduled at Williamston Church

Revival services will begin at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Williamston, North Carolina, on April 5 and continue through April 11. The speaker for these services will be the Rev. Robert Rollins of Columbia, North Carolina. The pastor is the Rev. L. A. Ambrose.

The services will begin each evening at 7:30. The members and pastors invite all interested persons to attend these services.

State Sunday School Convention Request

Report blanks for the State Sunday School Convention which will meet at East Rockingham church on April 23 have been sent to Sunday schools all over the state. However, the mailing list is not too dependable because of the many changes made in officers at the first of year which have not been reported to us.

If your school has not received a report blank, and your pastor cannot supply you with one (blanks were sent to all pastors whose addresses have been found available), please write the Rev. L. E. Ballard, the state field secretary, at 1225 South Washington Street, Greenville, North Carolina, for a blank and full information regarding the convention. It is hoped that all Original Free Will Baptist Sunday schools in the state will report, and as many as possible will send a delegate to the convention. It is not necessary to select a delegate before sending in the report, as all pastors, superintendents, and delegates will be registered at the convention.

The Return of Spring

by ALBERT M. EZELL

It has always been an inexplicable mystery to me how anyone could be an atheist. They have the same beautiful world to live in that we have; the same evidence of the creative handiwork of God on every side of them the same as we; yet, they fail to see in anything a supernatural beauty. Their minds are limited only to the materialistic. For the atheist I have much more pity than censure, for I cannot help but see the joy they are missing out of even the everyday walks of life.

Maybe you would not like to be called a pantheist, but have you ever stopped to consider just what their theory embraces: "God in everything, everything in God"? I do not mean to say I would go so far as they do in recognizing the infinite in all finite things, such as inanimate objects; but I will say that I cannot help but accept the poetic theory of pantheism that we can see the very ethereal nature of God in every flower, in a star-studded sky, in the multicolored hues of the rainbow, communicate with Him through the silent peace and the awesome majesty of the virgin forests, and hear a sound akin to the ecstasy of ethereal voices in the singing of the birds. Maybe some would call me a visionary and a dreamer, but may God grant that I never lose this power to dream.

Again, with God willing, we have crossed the threshold of another spring. Spring—which has brought forth an innumerable wealth of colors to splash prodigally the tired face of earth, and has created iridescent flower gardens in the fields that such a short while ago were covered with the cold winter snow.

Spring is ever a new experience with me. It is a reliving of years far, far in the past, and it is also a paragon of life. The putting forth of flowers where once the ground was brown and barren is a beautiful picture of new life and new hope. Spring brings with it such a pregnant fullness as should be in the hearts of all of us who have allowed ourselves, our talents, and our hopes to lay so long buried in a latent state under the cold snows of winter, and to find them suddenly awakened by the warming spring sun of God's love.

Every returning spring brings to my memory these beautiful words of Goethe, "So the year is repeating its old story again." We are come once more, thank God, to its most charming chapter; the violets and May flowers are as its inscriptions or vignettes. It always makes a pleasant impression on us, when we open again at these pages of the book of life.

Bless You

Everyone says "Bless you" nowadays to sneezes. Politicians like to sling it around with their handshakes. This is not a disgrace; it is a disaster, for the word "blessed" is an Atlas that holds a universe of meaning. Martin Buber translates the introductory sentence to the Psalms in words that bring back its glory: "O happiness! . . . O the happiness of the man. . . . How happy this man is!" We say "What luck!" to a blessing and often look for thrills illegitimately. We look at happiness a little guiltily and call it "a wind-fall." The psalmist, looking up, has learned—and is ready to teach us—how to say "Blessed."

ATTENTION STUDY COURSE CHAIRMEN OF THE EASTERN DISTRICT

Have you read 2 Timothy 2:15 lately? or quoted it to anyone else? I feel that reading should not only be a pleasure but profitable as well. Each thing should make us better Christians and a blessing to others. I think those who outlined the program of study for the woman's auxiliary must have had this in mind, for each recommended study course is important to the Christian life.

Now, in order to be an A-I auxiliary, it is necessary to have only three study courses each year. Surely every auxiliary can do that!

I hope that by now each of you has had a course on the "Manual of Methods." Since it has been revised and much of it is new, I believe it should be first. It works well for each officer to tell her own duties, and the study course chairman tell the rest of it. Following the study, to answer a questionnaire on what has been learned is most interesting. This worked well at my church and I recommend this method, unless you wish to have a guest speaker conduct the study course for you.

It was recommended at the last convention that each church have a course on "Child Evangelism" before Bible school. Again referring to our own church, the pastor has consented to do this for us which is to cover several nights. He has asked the Bible school teachers to attend. This will be before our spring revival, serving a double purpose for us.

Since the very foundation of our work is Missions, this one can't be omitted! How about a covered-dish supper, followed by the study course? If you have a guest speaker from outside your own church, remember it is only courteous and fair to pay his or her traveling expenses.

Prayer is the key that unlocks closed doors. A study course on "Prayer" could be conducted in the homes, or a book on prayer studied at the circle meetings. Not many of us pray enough, or we pray not expecting an answer. This one is very important.

Stewardship is the backbone of the church and its work. Stewardship is more than money—it is dedicated lives and workers, prayer, evangelism, missions, Christian homes, tithing, talents—everything!

Who can say which three are most important? If you don't have all five, you will have to choose according to the need of your own people and church and their time. Study courses can be advertised by attractive posters, in the newspaper, over the phone, and by enthusiastic announcements from the pulpit. In the back of "Devotions," you will find a list of inexpensive books for study. For at least one study, if possible, have enough books for every member to read the book and come together for a discussion period, supervised by yourself or someone who has studied the book thoroughly.

Seek the aid of the enlistment chairman to help you have successful courses with good attendance. Please let me know about your ideas and reports on study courses. This work is new to me, and I need your help and prayers. Our women want to work and want to know what to do. It's up to us, the study course chairmen, to help them know what is expected of them as auxiliary members.

May God bless our endeavors to His glory.

ATTENTION EASTERN DISTRICT TREASURERS

May I take this opportunity to present a few things for your consideration?

1. As treasurers you have an obligation to fulfill in acquainting yourself with the needs of the various projects in your district.

2. Present these needs and projects to the membership of your local organization in a way that they will see fit to make funds available for these projects.

3. Plainly mark all funds so that they will reach the intended destination. Your handbook contains the needed instructions.

The challenge before us is great. It is one that can be met successfully if we will but take God as our co-partner. The Alice E. Lupton Scholarship Fund is in desperate need of immediate attention. Mail your donations as quickly as possible.

PEE DEE AUXILIARY STUDY COURSE

The Pee Dee Woman's Auxiliary met at White Oak Free Will Baptist Church Bladenboro, North Carolina, on March 11, to have a study course on the new woman's auxiliary manual. Mrs. Hattie Adcox served as director of the course. There was a good attendance and the course was met with interest and much understanding of the new changes that have been made in the organization.

At noon lunch and fellowship were enjoyed by the group. The lunch was prepared by the ladies of the White Oak Auxiliary.

Fountain, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, March 13, in the church. In the absence of the president, Mrs. R. L. Goff, Mrs. Robert Bell presided and turned the meeting over to Mrs. Carlton Gardner, the program chairman. Mrs. Gardner had the group to join together in singing "Jesus Saves." The opening prayer was given by Mrs. Gardner. She used for the Scripture reading John 10:11-18. She also gave the program, "Building Toward Mexico Way," written by the Rev. John B. Eliston. The program closed with prayer by Mrs. Robert Oakley.

Mrs. Robert Bell presided over the business session. Mrs. Lester Gay, secretary-treasurer, called the roll and received the dues. She also read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved. This was followed with the treasurer's report. A motion was made and seconded to send $10 to Arizona-Mexico Missions.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. Bell had the group to join together in unison in praying the Lord's Prayer.

The hostesses, Mrs. Lester Gay and Mrs. Lovelace Gardner, invited the group into a Sunday school room where they served buffet style potato chips, nuts, candy, and cold drinks.

Cleveland, Ohio—Nine members of the Tri State Ladies' Aid met Friday evening, March 20, in the home of Mrs. Frank Miller. The meeting was conducted by the president, Goldie Shadd. The program was on prayer: asking and receiving. Mandie Nelson rendered special music, a solo, "A Better Place to Go." Mrs. Molly Petraff led the group in prayer. The Scripture reading was by the Rev. Charles Sheffer.

Those present were Goldie Shadd, president; Mildred Dillon, vice-president; Juanita Sheffer; Milly Petraff; Agnes Workman; and Frances Miller. Also present were the pastor, the Rev. John H. Shadd, and the Revs. Charles Shaffer and Frank Miller.

Fountain, N. C.—On Thursday night, March 12, the YPA of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met for its regular monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Alice Summerlin.

The president, Ange Owens, opened the meeting at 7:30. Mary Agnes Gay offered the opening prayer. Brenda Goff used for the devotional Psalm 46.

The president presided over the business session. Evelyn Morgan, secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of February meeting. Judy Fay Ellis, treasurer, gave her report and received the dues. Two new members joined the group: Christine Morgan and Juday Joyner. Two visitors were present: Jean Daniels and Hardy Smith from the Central Baptist Church in Farmville.

After the meeting adjourned, the hostesses, Nettie Fey Summerlin and Mary Agnes Gay served pimiento cheese sandwiches, cold drinks, divinity fudge candy, potato chips, and pickles.

Walstonburg, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, composed of six circles, met at the church on Monday night, March 16, at 7:30. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Raeford Heath, after which the group sang "The Kingdom Is Coming." Devotions were led by Mrs. Heath.

There were 65 members and two visitors present. The Doreas Circle gave a report on the cottage prayer meeting that they conducted in the home of Mr. Frank Beaman. The Friendship Circle reported on serving in the home of Mr. Blaney Speight during the recent death of his grandson. All circles together have given $250 to the church building fund during the past month.

Among the projects for the year is to send $12 per month toward missionary salaries, $3 per month for home missions, and $3 per month to the Roanoke Rapids church.

There was a study course on "Stewardship" held at the church on March 10, taught by Mrs. H. B. Hill Jr., of the Hull Road church. There were 42 members and four visitors present.

The Lydia Circle presented the program for the month in a very interesting and impressive manner.

The benediction was offered by Mrs. Jean Harrell of the Lydia Circle.

Dunn, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Lee's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church met Thursday night, March 12, at the church. The meeting opened with a song, "Jesus Saves"; after which Mrs. Jack Tart had charge of the devotions taken from John 10:11-18.

After the devotions the business meeting was entered into with Mrs. Crafton Tart, president, presiding.

After the business was completed Mrs. Crafton Tart presented a very interesting lesson. Subject of the lesson was "Building Toward Mexico Way."

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Cassie Boyd.

Walstonburg, N. C.—The AFC of Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church met recently at the church with nine members present. The meeting was called to order by the sponsor, Mrs. Peggy Gay. The Scripture was read by Doris Bailey.

The following officers were elected for the year: President, Betty Aycock; vice-president, Sue Holloman; secretary, Charles Dildy; treasurer, Doris Bailey; reporter, Dianna Bailey.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Gay.

Crab Point, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Crab Point Free Will Baptist Church held its meeting for the month of March in the home of Mrs.

Central Auxiliary Convention Well Attended

The Central District Woman's Auxiliary Convention, which met last Wednesday at Hugo Free Will Baptist Church near Kinston, North Carolina, was well attended. Thirty-five of the thirty-nine auxiliaries were represented. Mrs. Wilton Ellis presided over the meeting.

Highlights of the program, centered around "Evangelism — Our Supreme Task," were a devotional by Mrs. Elizabeth Hill, a sermon by the Rev. Willis Wilson of Reedy Branch church, solos by Miss Ruth Cotton Clark and Miss Leah McGlohon, and a declamation by Miss Dianne Roach of Elm Grove church, the winner of the district AFC declamation contest.

As always, the women were greatly challenged by the needs presented in the reports of denominational enterprises. The project for this year for the Children's Home is purchasing new bedsteads for the cottages. Mount Olive College urged the women to contribute their help in raising $27,000 by June 28 so that the land for the new campus might be dedicated and the ground broke for the first building. Also, the women were challenged to paint the rooms in the main building at Cragmont, and urged to support Central Conference missions. However, in addition to the challenges presented, many facts were given about the progress made in these enterprises.

Lillian Buck. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Rosa Garner. Mrs. Winfield offered the opening prayer and the group sang "Love Lifted Me." There were twelve members present.

After the business session, the program entitled, "Building Toward Mexico Way," was presented. Cathrine Kittrell introduced the program with Gladys Davis, Minnie Forbes, and Rose Gamcr giving parts. The meeting closed with the group praying in unison the Lord's Prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, and everyone had a wonderful time in the service of the Lord.

Arapahoe, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Arapahoe Free Will Baptist Church met at the church February 24 with 16 members present. The (NOTE: As has been my policy in the past, I take the liberty of selecting the two following tracts published by the American Tract Society for Notes and Quotes this week. I trust they will be a source of inspiration to everyone that reads them.—J.C.G.)

THE INCOMPARABLE CHRIST

More than nineteen hundred years ago there was a Man born contrary to the laws of life. This Man lived in poverty and was reared in obscurity. He did not travel extensively. Only once did He cross the boundary of the country in which He lived; that was during His exile in childhood.

He possessed neither wealth nor influence. His relatives were inconspicuous, and had neither training nor formal education.

In infancy He startled a king; in childhood He puzzled doctors; in manhood He ruled the course of nature, walked upon the billows as if pavements, and hushed the sea to sleep.

He healed the multitudes without medicine and made no charge for His service.

He never wrote a book, and yet all the libraries of the country could not hold the books that have been written about Him.

He never wrote a song, and yet He has furnished the theme for more songs than all the songwriters combined.

He never founded a college, but all the schools put together cannot boast of having as many students.

He never marshaled an army, nor drafted a soldier, nor fired a gun; and yet no leader ever had more volunteers who have, under His orders, made more rebels stack arms and surrender without a shot fired.

He never practiced psychiatry, and yet He has healed more broken hearts than all the doctors far and near.

Once each week the wheels of commerce cease their turning and multitudes wend their way to worshiping assemblies to pay homage and respect to Him.

The names of the past proud statesmen of Greece and Rome have come and gone. The names of the past scientists, philosophers, and theologians have come and gone; but the name of this Man abounds more and more. Though time has spread nineteen hundred years between the people of this generation and the scene of His crucifixion, yet He still lives. Herod could not destroy Him, and the grave could not hold Him.

He stands forth upon the highest pinnacle of heavenly glory, proclaimed of God, acknowledged by angels, adored by saints, and feared by devils, as the living, personal Christ, our Lord and Saviour.

We are either going to be forever with Him, or forever without Him. It was the incomparable Christ who said:

"Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me" (Revelation 3:20).

"I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6).

FOR

"There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Timothy 2:5).

THEREFORE

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

IS THIS YOUR LIFE?

Most of us are familiar with the popular television program "This Is Your Life." An outstanding celebrity is brought before the TV cameras and, unrehearsed, his life's history is reviewed for him. The highlights of his accomplishments, the prominent people that influenced his life, the things that he has done for humanity are reviewed. He is commended and showered with gifts, and there follows a big party.

Perhaps each of us should think about the day when we will be called before the television camera of the world—the judgment day of God, when He will review our lives; the day of accountability, described clearly in the Bible.

Most of us are not celebrities enough to make Ralph Edwards' famous program, but all of us, according to the Word of God, are going to face His final judgment throne, and our lives are going to be reviewed. What will be the review?

The world wants the real thing. It is looking for the real article. The world is tired of synthetics; the world is tired of imitation; the world is tired of hypocrisy. The world is tired of sham and gilt edging that rubs off after it has been used a couple of days.

Four years ago in a Western community a brilliant young attorney heard from two other Christian business men God's plan of salvation. The attorney was challenged to give his heart to Christ. He was an intellectual, and he reasoned the thing through. "If these men mean business about what they're trying to sell me, their lives will show it. Unbeknownst to them, I'll watch them for one year."

The young attorney was a man-about-town. The two business men who had witnessed to him were prominent in civic affairs. Their shoulders often rubbed at civic luncheons. In business transactions the attorney watched these two men for a year. At the end of the year he made his decision. He gave his heart to Christ. In the lives of these two business men he had seen that which was lacking in his own life; that for which he was grasping, longing, groping, seeking—the real, genuine article. Six months later he was named by the Governor to a position high among the judgeships of his state, and today he is a member of his state's Supreme Court.

If someone had watched your life for the past year, would they accept Christ? If someone watches your life for the next year, and their salvation hinges upon what they see, where will that soul spend eternity? Everywhere I go, I see men watching, watching through the great magnifying glasses that Satan alone can provide to magnify and distort our failures and shortcomings, our gossip and slander, our grieving of the Holy Spirit. We must be so careful of our lives.

And everywhere men are seeking that peace, that quietness of heart that God alone has promised to give. "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" (John 14:27).

Could Confucius promise peace? Could Mohammed promise peace? Can our scientists? Our educators? Our politicians?

Today the opportunity for winning souls to Jesus Christ is perhaps greater than ever before in the history of the world. But we've got to have the goods. We've got to have the real product. The

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW

QUESTION: Under what conditions or circumstances may I be angry and not sin?—Mayble Jones, Texas.

ANSWER: I doubt that I am able to answer your question so as to help meet your particular need, unless you had told of the circumstances under which you so often get angry as your letter indicates. The Holy Spirit tells us through the writings of the Apostle Paul to "be . . . angry, and sin not." "Be ye angry, and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath: Neither give place to the devil" (Ephesians 4:26, 27). Then we know that for a just cause Jesus was angry on more than one occasion. "And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other" (Mark 3:5). "And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables" (John 2:15). The Pharisees were trying to use their influence to keep Jesus from doing good and fulfilling the God-given purpose for His being on earth.

Jesus indicated that He will express His anger in the judgment to come. "So that servant came and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind" (Luke 14:21).

I do not think it would be a sin for us as Christians to be angry because one of the devil's agents stand in the way of our performing the duty God has qualified us to render and otherwise given us an opportunity to perform. We may be surprised when we get to heaven and see how many that pose as angels of light turn out to have been wolves in sheep's clothing. I believe as I look back over my experiences that I can truthfully say that more officials in Christendom have stood in the way of my rendering effective Christian service than there have been those of the world who do not profess to be Christians that have hindered my Christian progress.

I read a statement from one of Dr. James M. Gray's books that said something like this, "Our natural feelings are not wrong when directed to their legitimate object, and when not exceeding due bounds." He went on to suggest that indignation at dishonor done to God and wrong to man are justifiable causes for anger. I indeed agree with this. This of course gives no one a right to retain a grudge or live in a wrong attitude toward another. If it is uncontrolled passion that causes us to give place to the flesh, that is sin. In such, the person so controlled allows himself to become passive, in which state of being Satan gets control of the activities that are carried on in this state of mind. Either God, through His Word, controls a person in what he does and says, or the devil, through the flesh or carnal nature, does the controlling of this person. It is always a sin to allow the devil in any way to control or influence one in what he thinks, says, or acts. A man who lets his anger cause him to hate a person is in that mood controlled by the devil. A man who lets one of the opposite sex appeal to him to the degree that he lusts in that attitude controlled by the devil and that is a sin that God calls adultery; a sin that he must repent of and confess as such ere he gains forgiveness and a right relation of fellowship with God.

If a man allows something that legally belongs to someone else appeal to him in such a way that he covets it for himself, that is a sin that he must confess, forsake, and be forgiven of before he is restored to fellowship with God. The passions that cause one to indulge in these or any such evil thoughts or activities cause a person to become a slave, for that's what one is when he becomes passive and the devil becomes the activating force in his life. Being a slave to anger, lust, or greed is nothing short of sin, usually both against an individual human person and always against God who is holy and cannot tolerate sin in any proportion, form, or degree.

The Apostle Paul says, "Don't let the sun go down on your wrath." Wrath is passion just the same as intense greed or lust. So we need to deliberately and positively follow the teaching of the word that we may be free from such negative aspects which in themselves are evil. (See Psalm 1:2; 119:4, 5, 11, 105, 106.)

meeting was called to order by the president and the group sang "In the Service of the King." Prayer was offered by Mrs. W. A. Hales.

The topic of the lesson was "The New WA Emblem Points to Kingdom Building." Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Beatrice Andrew, Mrs. Fannie Rawls, Mrs. Minnie Willis, and Mrs. Lillie Roberts.

During the business session Mrs. Fannie Rawls and Mrs. Lessie Daniels volunteered to go to the auxiliary convention which will be held at Beulaville in March. It was voted to send $5 to the convention. A partial report was given on the Stanley party which was held to help with the paying of the organ for the church. The members reported that five members had sent trays, ten cards, fourteen made sick visits, two sent flowers, and there were thirteen daily Bible readers.

After the business session the meeting adjourned with the members repeating the watchword.

Vanceboro, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church held its February meeting in the home of Mrs. Lillian Carrow on Monday night, February 24. This meeting was also combined with a stork shower for the pastor's wife, Mrs. Albert Keech Jr.

The meeting opened by the president, Mrs. Mildred Cox, welcoming the fourteen members and seven visitors. The program-prayer chairman, Mrs. Carrow, had charge of the prayer, Scripture, and

by LEONA C. LILLEY

MOTHER! Father!" called Katy. "Come and see the rainbow." Mother and Father joined Katy on the patio.

"Look!" said Katy, excitedly, "isn't it beautiful?"

"Yes, dear, it is very beautiful," Mother replied.

"Were there rainbows when you were a little girl, Mother?" asked Katy.

"Of course, darling. There have always been rainbows," laughed Mother.

"Well—, not always," spoke up Father.

Katy looked surprised. "Do you remember the first rainbow, Father?" she asked eagerly.

"No, I'm afraid not," Father smiled. "But if you will come inside, I will tell you the story of the first rainbow." Father led the way into the living room. Then he began his story:

"Many years ago, there were many wicked people on the earth. Because of their wickedness, God became sorry that He had made man; so He decided to destroy all the people.

"However, there was one good man. His name was Noah. God trusted him. God spoke to Noah and told him to build an ark. An ark was a big boat.

"Noah worked very hard to build the ark. When it was completed, God spoke to him again. God told him that He was going to bring a flood of water upon the earth and it would destroy every living thing. He told Noah to go into the ark. He was to take his wife and his sons and their wives into the ark also. He was instructed by God to take into the ark a male and female of every living beast, fowl, and creeping thing upon the earth. Noah did as he was instructed by God.

"Then the rains came. They lasted forty days and forty nights. Every living creature was destroyed, just as God had promised. Only those who had taken refuge into the ark were saved.

"When at last the rains stopped and the water no longer covered the whole earth, Noah and his family and all the animals, fowls, and creeping things came forth out of the ark. God then made a promise. He promised that never again would He send a flood to destroy the earth. God said, 'I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud: And I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh' (Genesis 9:13-15)."

As Father finished his story, he looked outside. The sun had come from behind the clouds and was shining brightly. He turned to Katy and said, "So you see, dear, each time a rainbow appears, it is to remind us that God is watching over us and will always keep His promise."

SUPPLY BOY

by IMOGENE KOEHLER

RUSTY shuffled his feet noisily as he plodded through the fallen leaves in the woods. "This feels like walking through cornflakes," he chuckled.

His aunt walking along by his side flashed him a dimpled smile. "Well, you did have cornflakes for breakfast," she grinned!

"I never gave it a thought," Rusty replied. "But it's kind of funny," and Rusty went into peals of laughter. Finally when he could stop laughing he said, "Aunt Irene, I always have such a good time when I come to see you and Uncle Mark."

"We enjoy having you come, too," said his aunt. "It's too bad you have to leave tonight."

"Leave . . . tonight?" Rusty was so shocked, he sank down on an old log! "But," he stammered, "I was thinking tomorrow was Saturday. If today is Saturday, that means tomorrow is Sunday, right?"

"Of course, you know that," answered his aunt.

"Oh," Rusty groaned! "I goofed!"

"You goofed what?" Aunt Irene looked at him closely and sat down beside him.

"Well you see," spoke Rusty, trying to sound important, "I am a supply boy. Each Sunday for six weeks I bring something to class that will help us think what interesting things God has made for us to enjoy. One Sunday I brought my Sunday School teacher a pretty gate that I found by Lake Superior. Another Sunday I brought my little frog, Freddie, to class." Rusty grinned widely at his surprised aunt, "I had it in a jar, of course! Anyway this is the last week for me, and I did want to bring something really special to share with my class." Rusty's voice shook a little. "To think I forgot all about it," he moaned!

His pretty aunt looked sympathetic. "I understand," she said. "But," and she gave her nephew a keen look, "you should write things down if you have trouble remembering. A job worth doing is a job worth remembering!"

"I guess you're right," Rusty gulped, feeling miserable!

"Well, now," spoke his aunt jumping up from the log and gazing around at the trees, "surely in these beautiful woods you'd think we could find something you could bring back to share."

"But what?" groaned Rusty. He stood up and wandered sadly over to a birch tree. Then his sober face brightened. "Look, Aunt Irene," he pointed. "See the way the sun is shining on those on your knees and ask the Lord what He would have you do for the mission cause.

If 300 Free Will Baptists would only give ten cents per day for missions this year, the State Convention could raise 109,500 instead of the small sum of 35,000 which is our budget for the year. In a recent youth meeting of more than 200 persons, two thirds of them said they had two or more soft drinks per day. Are missions worth more than a soft drink? Will you drink one and give the other one to missions? How easy it is when we work together to accomplish the task. How hard it is to work alone. Do you want to become a partner to what is happening on the mission field?

My emotions were stirred as I read the mail today. May we take a few minutes to share some of our recent mail with you:

Charleston, Arkansas, March 13, 1964: "I saw your address in my league book and thought you might be able to help me. I wish to be a missionary and plan to be one with God's help. I need all the information I can get and all you can give me.

"Sir, can you give me the addresses of some of our missionaries so I can write to them? I am only sixteen years old, but this is not going to keep me from doing the will of the Lord. I have a lot of work to do and much to learn, so I must get started right away, or as soon as possible. The Lord has done much for me and now it is time for me to do something for Him."

Yours truly,
Stetic Edgman Jr.

A letter to the Rev. Joe Ingram, pastor of Stoney Creek Free Will Baptist Church, Goldsboro, North Carolina:

Santa Anta, Senora, Mexico, March 5, 1964: "Greetings in the name of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Praise be unto Him. Brother, we are once again back from our trip to the South. Praise the Lord our trip was fruitful. And in my return I found my family in good health, as my Lord had promised me before I left. This trip was a great spiritual lift to me and a great encouragement to walk and serve my God in the better and more complete way. Because of this I have seen and have felt the need to press on preaching the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"We were very privileged to present the message of salvation to the lost souls. We had nine souls to accept Christ as their personal Saviour. Please pray for them.

"For the time being I am planning to go to Los Nogales and Cananea as soon as possible, the Lord willing. I will be back to these places as soon as the Lord will have me ready. Please pray that I will always be in the center of His will. I have asked the church to pray for you and your church. I thank the Lord for my support and trust that I am doing the Lord's work.

"From the fourth to the thirteenth campaign in Cananea, Sonora, we report a fruitful benefit of ten souls who accepted the Lord.

"On the fourteenth, services were conducted in Los Nogales, with an overflowing of blessings from our Lord. Fourteen souls received Christ as Saviour.

"In a service at Magdalena, Sonora, two persons were saved. On the sixteenth I went to Nogales, Arizona, to go on the trip to the south into Mexico, but did not take it. On the morning of the twenty-third I preached in Nogales, Arizona, Free Will Baptist Church. That evening I preached in Nogales, Sonora, with one soul being saved. The twenty-sixth I preached in Jimenez, Coach, Mexico, at 4 p. m. The twenty-seventh I preached in Moral Coach, Mexico, at night, exhorting to more sanctification. The twenty-eighth I preached in Piedras Negras, Coach. The first of March I preached in Saltillo, Coach, with the fruit of five souls who accepted Christ.

"Dear Sponsors: This is the result of your great efforts and sacrifices in your part, for which I thank the Lord and each and everyone of you from the oldest to the youngest, who is taking part in my support. May the reward with me all be yours. Pray for me much that God will protect me of all danger. In this report I have traveled about 1500 miles. May God bless you. (See 2 Thesalonians 3:1-3.)"

I'm thankful to hear about the progress of the Lord's work. I am very much burdened about the mission at Magdalena near Nogales, where the Rev. Jose Guzman is preaching. I receive a leaflet from the Ellistons very often. I am sending $1 to be used for this mission . . . so maybe it will help you to understand that I wish with all my heart it could be program. Those taking topics on the lesson were Mrs. Shirley Adams, Mrs. Daisy Powell, and Mrs. Dorothy Barrow. A discussion by the others followed the giving of the program.

During the business session plans were made for the pre-Easter services. The five speakers for the services will be Mrs. Lucille Nobles, Mrs. Gladys Smith, Mrs. Geneva Lewis, Mrs. Daisy Powell, and Mrs. Lillian Carrow. Delegates were chosen to the Eastern Auxiliary Convention. The various reports were given and a decision was made to send more spending money to the adopted boy at the Children's Home. The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for April 12

Man in God's Universe

LESSON TEXT: Psalm 8

MEMORY VERSE: Psalm 8:6

I. INTRODUCTION

Man occupies only a small part of God's universe, but his position cannot be overlooked. As mentioned in last Sunday's lesson, man alone was created in the image and likeness of God. He is given the honor of having dominion over the lower order of creation. Thus, he stands in a position of distinct responsibility toward God and the world.

God never intended for man to live apart from His divine will. God created man for His own glory, but not all men choose to give their lives to God and allow Him to control their lives. The following illustration, adapted from The Prairie Overcomer, illustrates the necessity of looking unto God:

"In Miami, Florida, some boys playing around an idle bulldozer managed to get the engine started, with the machine in gear, then they fled in terror not knowing how to stop or control the machine. Before it had stopped the 'dozer had ripped its way through four city blocks, smashing fences, clothes-lines and trees, tearing up water lines and knocking down telephone lines. Finally, it crashed through a chicken house and rammed into a house too solid to give way before it stopped. In all it had done $10,000 worth of damage, for it was never intended to operate without a driver at the control. With a driver it was a constructive machine; without one it was only destructive.

"And so it is with life, it must be brought under control. Just as machines operate best under restraint, so is character fashioned in the same way. We are most free and our lives most useful when we operate within the will of Another, the will of the Almighty."

—Bible Student (F.W.B.)

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The name of the Lord is more excellent than all other names in the earth (v. 1).

2. Out of the mouths of babes God confounds the wise and stills the enemy and the avenger (v. 2).

3. This vast universe is the work of God (v. 3).

4. In the face of the works of God, one wonders why He is mindful of man (v. 4).

5. God made man a little lower than the angels but above all other creatures (v. 5).

6. God crowned man with glory and honor (v. 5).

7. Man has dominion over the works of God's hands (v. 6).

8. All things have been put under the feet of man (v. 6).

9. Man has control over the domestic animals and the wild beasts (vv. 7, 8).

10. The name of the Lord is revered in all the earth (v. 9).

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.)

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. All the earth: This is a phrase used by the psalmist in referring to the excellency of God's name. Surely the name of God needs to be known in all the earth. The only way for this to be accomplished is for God's people to make His name known everywhere in the world. The psalmist probably did not think of the responsibility of God's people to make His name known in the world, but the Bible is clear in pointing out our obligation to God in this respect. If our God is a great God, all people need to know about it. Let us determine to do what we can in praying, giving, and going to declare His name to the uttermost parts of the earth.

—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.)

2. Each spring, man begins to look at his world with renewed interest. The long winter is over. The grass is green again and the spring flowers are carpeting the woodlands. Man stands in awe and wonder at the beautiful world in which he lives. And if by chance one is not overwhelmed by the wonders of the earth, he has but to look up into the heavens. There the majesty of God can be seen in the surpassing beauty of the sunrise and the sunset, in the whirling planets and silent stars. In view of the magnitude of God's creation man must ask himself, "Who am I?" The psalmist had the answer. "What is man?" He is the creation of God made "a little lower than the angels," and crowned "with glory and honour" (Psalm 8:5).

Man alone was created as a person being in God's own image. He is greater than all the animal kingdom. Then why did God place him here on the earth? Again the psalmist answers: that man was given dominion over all. Man alone has the distinct responsibility of caring for all the lower order of God's creation.

Overwhelmed by the magnitude of the universe and his own feelings of insecurity and inadequacy in the face of this fast moving world, man asks, "Where am I going?" The answer depends on how well man recognizes who he is and why he is here. If he is an obedient child of God, then a home in heaven awaits at the end of life's road. Do you know who you are, why you are here, and where you are going?

—Standard Lesson Commentary

3. It is doubtful that at any period in the earth's history the thoughts of mankind in general have been so engrossed in exploring the heavens as they are at the present time. Compared with man's daring ventures into space and ambitions to reach the moon, the presumption of the builders of the tower of Babel seems almost insignificant. Yet God is not interrupting the lofty aspirations of men determined to leave the planet on which He placed them. He permits them to talk boldly about plans to reach the moon without bringing them to defeat and confusion as He did the tower-builders.

This does not mean, however, that the inhabitants of the earth now seem more formidable and independent of Him than they did in Isaiah's time when they were "as grasshoppers." God still reigns. He has not surrendered His throne. His kingdom over all has not dwindled to a petty domain outside which man can do as he pleases without being responsible to Him for their works.

—Intermediate Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

4. This lesson should help us to appreciate our position as human beings. We are creatures of God. We were created in His image and given great power and authority. But at the same time, we are very insignificant in many respects. Our dignity and value come ly from maintaining the proper relationship to the Creator.

The first part of the Psalm, after the description of praise, tells us about the significance of man (vv. 3, 4) when compared to the heavens. Evidently, the psalmist is here thinking about man physically. How weak and small we are when compared to many other things that God created. Those who hold the naturalistic view of man teach that man is simply the highest form of animal, and that he has arrived at his place in the world through the process of organic evolution. These people forget that if his is all there is to man, he is inferior to much of the creation.

The second part of the Psalm (v. 5) tells us something about the eminence of man. Despite his frail, insignificant body, man has a worth and dignity that none of the rest of God's creation has. The humanistic philosophers jump on this idea and declare that man is everything. They deify him. This view has special appeal to the pride of men. They forget that after God created man in His image, man fell and became a depraved, sinful creature.

The third part of the Psalm (vv. 6-8) tells us about the authority of man. This authority comes from God. Here we get the true biblical view of man. Man was created in the image and likeness of God, but by sin fell. God through Christ has redeemed man and is restoring, or reconciling, all who come to Him by faith in Christ. Therefore, all that God gave man originally has been lost in the fall. This is restored, and the dignity and worth of man can be maintained by relationship to Him.

Out of the life of Charles Evans Hughes comes this story. He was at the time Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. One Sunday he presented himself for membership at the Calvary Baptist Church of Washington, D. C. As Mr. Hughes came down one aisle, a Chinese laundryman came down another to join the church. The pastor is reported to have said, "The ground around the cross is wondrously level."

—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

... He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1:4, 11-13).

This power to save and change the very lives of those who receive Christ as Saviour has been, and is being, shown in the lives of people in all walks of life. From the good moral person, to the most depraved of sinners, the blood of Jesus will cleanse and set free from the guilt and power of sin.

There are many today who have despaired of ever finding any hope for peace with God. To such the gentle Saviour extends a loving hand and says, "Come to me and find rest unto your souls."

NOTES and QUOTES

copper plating will soon wear off if we're not real, through and through.

If we know Christ as Saviour, we have the responsibility and the joy of telling this good news. We should visit our business associates, printers, farmers, clerks, accountants, doctors, dentists. We should take time off from our business; go to see them, put our arm around them and tell them we don't want them to do something for us—we want to do something for them! We should tell them the good news of Jesus' love!

Here are three simple verses to remember:

(1) Romans 3:23: "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God."

(2) I John 1:9: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

(3) Romans 10:13: "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

There is going to be a day of accounting. Somebody is going to say, "Is this our life?" They're not going to ask us what civic accomplishments we achieved in our community, how many memorials are standing in our name, how much money we left in the bank, or how many civic offices we held. We are going to be asked the question: "Is this your life?"

We are going to have two alternatives to show. One will be like the life of Andrew. All we read about Andrew is that he brought men to Christ. Are we like Andrew? Or will we be among those who have given our hearts to Christ but have never done anything about it?

"Only one life, 'twill soon be past;
Only what's done for Christ will last!"

Attention All Leaguers!

The February 19, 1964, issue of The Free Will Baptist published an article concerning the importance of the intermediate sword drill in the training program of our church. A highlight of the North Carolina State League Convention each year is the sword drill. Who will be the winner of this year's drill? Who, as winner, will receive the expense-paid trip to League Week at Cragmont this summer? Who, as runner-up, will have one half of his expenses paid for this challenging and inspiring week at our own Christian camp? This year's winner could be one of your leaguers!

When the 1964 session of the convention meets on May 1 and 2, we will be looking for a contestant from your league. This convention weekend at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Smithfield will be a weekend that you will long remember. Directors and sponsors should be making plans to see that many of their young people are there.

When your league of district convention has selected its contestant, send his application in letter form by April 15 to me at 617 East Front Street, New Bern, North Carolina. Include in the letter the name, address, and birthdate of the contestant, the name of the church and the name of the sponsoring body. After I have received your letter, I will mail to the contestant a guide to be used in preparation for the state drill.

Select your contestant this Sunday night if possible. Send in the application and get your study guide. Let's "seek the kingdom of God first" by seeking to know more about His Word.

Miss Hilda Owens,

State Sword Drill Leader

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO MEET

The Executive Committee of the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists will meet on Tuesday, April 7, 9:30 a. m., at Mount Olive Junior College.

The committee will consider petitions for the meeting of the 1964 session. Anyone who has any business or item to present to the committee may do so at this meeting.

birth trees. And look at that one over there where the bark is peeled back."

"That sure is a nice color underneath the bark," remarked his aunt.

Rusty nodded his red head. "But who do you think might have peeled the bark back like that?" he breathed!

"Probably a porcupine," smiled his aunt.

"I'd sure like to see him do it," said Rusty, sounding excited.

"Rusty!" Aunt Irene almost tripped over a log in her eagerness! "I've got it. Your admiring the birch trees has given me the answer to your problem . . ."

"What?" Rusty's eyes glowed.

"Well, why don't you and I chop down a small birch tree. Your uncle and I own some of this land, you know. Then we can chop up the tree and you can take a lovely birth log to your class."

"Wonderful," shouted Rusty, kicking the leaves with great glee . . . "Simply wonderful!"

"And," continued his aunt, "Uncle Mark could drill a hole in each end of the birch log to put a candle in if you want. He could do that this afternoon." His aunt put her arm around his shoulder. "I'll even furnish red candles," she promised.

Rusty beamed, "And maybe my teacher could even use it for Christmas!"

"A lovely idea," said Aunt Irene softly. "And now we better go home and get the ax."

As they started home through the lovely woods, Aunt Irene said, "Rusty, you know this morning I learned a verse from the Bible. I think it fits in well with our hike today. Would you like me to teach it to you?"

Rusty nodded, his eyes filled with wonder. Then reverently he repeated after her, Psalm 69:34. "Let the heaven and earth praise him, the seas, and every thing that moveth therein."

A smile lit Rusty's eyes as he glanced around him at the dozens of beautiful birch trees. And he breathed, "Thank You, God, for the trees that praise You. And God, I praise You, too."

Scripture taken from Philippians 4:9-13, followed with prayer by Mrs. James Crocker. Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Liza Godwin, Mrs. Franklin Cockrell, Mrs. Ressie Johnson, Mrs. Raymond Crocker, Mrs. Henry L. Johnson, Mrs. Aaron Lewis, Mrs. Joe Narron, and Mrs. Clovis Boykin. Some of the specific points that were discussed were the auxiliary colors and the basic purpose of the auxiliary.

The business session followed with the treasurer giving her report. The members voted to give to the church $20 for the purchase of a new flower stand. The meeting came to a close with the singing of "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me," and the praying together of the Lord's Prayer.

It's a poor song that has more effect on the feet than the heart. Such songs are one great cause for the popularity of dancing and the dying out of revivals.—

Daily Vacation Bible School—

'THE GREAT BOOK' SERIES

Again this year the Free Will Baptist Press is happy to present the eighth in a series of daily vacation Bible school materials, entitled "The Great Book." This is the final series in this cycle. The 1965 materials will begin repeating the cycle which was begun eight years ago.

The plan in this year's daily vacation Bible school series is different from those of previous years. During the past seven years, each series has been based upon a certain part of the Bible. The cycle has been as follows:

First year: "Rising Sun," a study of the Book of Genesis.

Second year: "Bright and Morning Star," a study of the four Gospels.

Third year: "Lamp of Faith," a study of the Book of Genesis beginning with the call of Abraham.

Fourth year: "Flame of the Spirit," a study of the Early Church in the Book of Acts.

Fifth year: "Beacon of Light," a study of the history of the Children of Israel based upon the Books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy, and the first five chapters of Joshua.

Sixth year: "Heroes of Faith," a study of the eleventh chapter of the Book of Hebrews.

Seventh year: "We Met Jesus," a study of some of the persons whose lives were changed because they met Jesus.

This eighth series is a study about the Bible, beginning with the fact that the Bible is God's inspired Word. The series presents the characteristic of the Bible that make it different from all other books. The other lessons are "How We Got the Bible," "One Book—But Many," "In Many Languages," "The Book of Miracles," "The Greatest Message," "The Bible in America," "How to Study the Bible," and "What the Bible Means to Me."

THE WRITERS

The people who have made this year's Bible school series possible are the writers. Much credit also is to be given to the editorial staff of the Free Will Baptist Press. The writers have made the materials as interesting as possible and the materials are doctrinally sound. The writers are as follows:

Nursery—Mrs. Alice Barrow, head of the merchandise department at the Free Will Baptist Press.

Beginners—Mrs. Jane Gainey, librarian at Walsontonburg, North Carolina, school.

Primaries—Mrs. Minnie Chandler, wife of the Rev. A. B. Chandler of Pinetown, North Carolina.

Juniors—The teacher's manual and work packet were written by the Rev. C. H. Overman; the workbook was written by Miss Leah McGlohon.

Intermediates—The Rev. C. F. Bowen, pastor of First Free Will Baptist Church, Wilson, North Carolina.

Illustrator and music composer—Thomas Manning, illustrator at the Press.

DEPARTMENT MATERIALS

As in previous years, the materials this year are designed for five departments: nursery, ages 2, 3 & 4; beginners, ages 4, 5, and preschool 6; primaries, ages 6, 7, 8; juniors, ages 9-12; intermediates, ages 12-15. The following study books are recommended to be used for adult or senior groups: "Your Bible," an Evangelical Teacher Training Association book; "Outline Study of the Bible," a Moody Colportage book. The prices of these materials are given elsewhere in this issue of "The Free Will Baptist."

WORK PACKETS

Each department except the intermediate is provided with work packets for the pupils. The packets are arranged so as to give the child something to do each day. Besides the pupil packets, the nursery and beginner departments also have teacher packets. These packets provide the materials for guiding the pupils in their work.

PROJECTS

Projects and crafts are suggested for the three older departments. These may be purchased at the Free Will Baptist Press. These projects vary in cost, complexity, and in the time required to make them. They serve as supplementary materials for the pupils.

MUSIC

"The Great Book" songbook is provided with songs for each department. This book includes many new choruses which are related to the Bible school theme and also a general theme song which may be used by the whole school. The songs and choruses are written to meet the needs of each department.

PUBLICITY MATERIALS

The following materials are suggested items that may be used to publicize the Bible school several weeks before it is to begin:

1. Posters, for your church bulletin board, as well as at other public gathering places.
2. Handbills to distribute in homes.
3. Post cards to be mailed to prospective pupils.
4. Headbands to be worn by the pupils.
5. Buttons to be worn by the pupils.
6. Name tags for pupils during Bible school.

INTRODUCTORY KIT

An introductory kit for "The Great Book" series is now available. The kit includes one copy of each item for each department, as well as the publicity materials listed above. The price of the kit is $4.95.

The Key To Success

by the Rev. Bruce Dudley

THE first thing to consider in searching for the key to success is to decide what you are trying to succeed at. We are trying, as Free Will Baptists, to build a denomination; but we must remember that this is not the goal; rather it is a means to the goal. The Apostle Paul was the instrument in founding several apparently large and successful churches, but Paul was not trying to found large churches. Paul was endeavoring to present the message of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ to the lost and dying world. His challenge was the great commission of Mark 16:15, ". . . Go ye into all the world, and teach the gospel to every creature."

Paul was spurred on by his remembrance of his vision on the road to Damascus, as he testified many times; for example, as in Acts 26:19, "Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." All through his life he did all within his power to be a faithful witness; and in the face of persecution, as well as ridicule, he was ever ready to make his position clear. Such is the case as we find him in the letter to the Romans: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Romans 1:16).

There had been plans in Paul's mind to visit Rome for a long time, but there were other things to do first. However, in order that he might express his concern to the church at Rome, he did the next best thing: he wrote a letter. In this letter he explains to the Christians at Rome that the basis of his theology is Jesus Christ. This is the same Paul who wrote of the foolishness of the gospel to the Greeks and a stumbling block to the Jews in 1 Corinthians. He, however, is careful to point out that, nevertheless, it is the basis of his religion.

Now this is where we want to look carefully at the mass of historical truth. From the time of Paul even to the beginning of the fourth century A. D., persons who professed allegiance to Christ were subjected to a multitude of persecutions, even unto death. In spite of these severe and adverse conditions, the Church grew in leaps and bounds marked by overwhelming vigor primarily because of two things: (1) The people nurtured a profound belief in the doctrine of personal salvation in Jesus Christ. (2) Every individual was a personal witness to the power of God in Jesus Christ, through the Christian Faith.

About the beginning of the fourth century A. D., the Church was recognized by the State and a merger took place. So effective was this merger that within two centuries the Church and Government were one unit; and for a thousand years the fire of the Church lay dormant. People, or nations, were seemingly Christian in name only; there was nothing Christian about their experience or about their philosophy of life. It was only when the Renaissance gave new value to culture and truth that the fervor of the Reformation brought the fires of religious awakening to Europe.

It was in this rebirth that the doctrine of personal salvation in Jesus Christ lived again. Men had tried to build a church and had failed; but when men like Wycliffe, Huss, Luther, Calvin, Zwingli and Knox spearheaded the movement to once again present the message of salvation in Jesus Christ to the world, the bonds of death were broken and the Church lived again because God lived again in men's hearts. For 400 years the resurrected Church continued to meet with ever-increasing success under the leadership of devout men of God, such as Edwards, Wesley, Whitefield, Spurgeon, Brooks and Moody, each proclaiming with realistic vigor personal salvation through Jesus Christ.

But it was not until our own twentieth century that the Church once again grasped the full significance of the personal witness. With full authority, the personal witness spurred the Church on to heretofore unreached heights of service. With such well-known proponents as the illustrious Billy Sunday and the more refined Billy Graham, the power of the personal witness was once again at work. But all these men, great though they were and are, were all alike in one respect; it was the pulpit speaking.

It was said of John Wycliffe, "Few preachers have been able with their pulpit power to influence the course of history more than did John Wycliffe, . . ." (James McGraw). Of Jonathan Edwards, Henry C. Fish said, "Edwards has been rarely, if ever, excelled since the days of the Apostles." All these men were great and eloquent preachers, and devout men of God. But until the mass of Christians become saturated with the message of personal salvation in Jesus Christ, used in personal witness, the success of the Church is incomplete.

It is now our responsibility, as Free Will Baptists, to realize that the worth of a soul is of far greater value than the size of our congregations and the likes and dislikes of our selves. We as a denomination must prepare our people to carry the message in the gospel into their daily activities in personal witness.

To prepare any people for any task calls for an instrument to be used in this preparation. We have such an instrument, the Free Will Baptist League. But no instrument works without a force to use it. Just as the Apostle Paul was an instrument of God, the Free Will Baptist League can be an instrument of our denomination to do the job for which we

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

OUR RESPONSIBILITY TO OTHERS

"Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days" (Ec-clesiastes 11:1).

"Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters, . . ." (Isaiah 32:20).

Last week I closed by relating the experience of many years ago, when the mother of unsaved children had to confess that they did not have confidence in her as a Christian mother, and that she had no influence with them. This week
I want to give some quotations and testimonies which will show that God does bless our efforts to make real that which we profess. Christianity is real. Christianity can be lived with God's help.

These truths are attested to by the following from two preachers who have reached and published volumes of sermons and dedicated their volumes to their mothers. Said P. H. Mears, "The Georgia Preacher":

"TO MY MOTHER, Whose pure life and faithful teaching have made me what I am, and whose loving counsel will live in the lives of her children and grandchildren after her body has been committed to the earth from which it was taken, in this little volume affectionately inscribed."

The dedication in the other volume reads:

"TO MY MOTHER, Now advanced in life, from whose lips I first heard of Christ crucified; who, in the days of my youth, watched over me with maternal tenderness, and offered to God her daily prayers for my salvation; who rejoiced over my conversion, and encouraged me to devote myself to the Gospel ministry; who has been devoutly thankful for whatever success has attended my labors, and has sympathized with me in all my trials; whose constant prayers for me I prize more 'than gold—yea, than much fine gold;' and whose death, if I survive her, will make me feel that earth is impoverished and heaven enriched; I, wishing her name revered by all who read what I write, affectionately inscribe THIS VOL-UME. The Author."

A more recent volume of short devotional sketches was dedicated in the following manner:

"TO MY FATHER AND MOTHER, in grateful recognition of their Godly example and early training."

But this matter of influence must not be thought of as belonging to parents only. Consider the following as an example:

"A young girl was asked: 'Whose preaching brought you to Christ?' 'It wasn't anybody's preaching; it was Aunt Mary's practicing,' she replied."

"That man's been in the army," said a gentleman to his friend the other day, as a stranger passed them in the street:
'I know a soldier by his walk.' Men ought to know Christ's soldiers by their walk."

"A Chinese applied for the position of cook in an American family which belonged to a fashionable church.

"The lady asked him, 'Do you drink whisky?'

"No, I Clistian man.'

"Do you play cards?'

"No, I Clistian man.'

"He was engaged, and was found honest and capable. By-and-by the lady gave a party, during which the wine flowed in abundance, and cards were played for high stakes. John did his part acceptably, but the next morning he appeared before his mistress.

"I want to go."

"Why, what is the matter?'

"I Clistian man—I told you so before. No heathen. No workee for heathen!'"

(More next week.)

Resolutions Sometimes Fail

Morace Mann once remarked: "I have never heard anything about the resolutions of the apostles, but a great deal about the acts of the apostles."

"At the age of 20 we don't care what the world thinks of us; at 40 we worry about what it is thinking of us; at 60 we discover that it wasn't thinking of us at all."

Teacher, Thank You

by MILDRED BOWEN
Winterville, North Carolina

I would like in this small way to give thanks to the teachers of our Sunday schools. So many times we just take for granted the fact that these teachers are supposed to teach. Why they? Why not you or I? Although I am not a good leader or teacher, I have been asked to teach some classes; and let me tell you good followers that we should thank our teachers each Sunday.

It takes more than the fact that one is a Christian and should be an example to be a good teacher; it takes good, honest work before one stands before a group of people. You must know what to say, how to say it, and sometimes even when to say it. It takes a great deal of courage.

So as one of the followers, I would like to thank the dear teachers. Now when I am tempted to say something about the teacher or teaching, I know the great efforts that are made for me.
I say thank God for all that will and can teach the Word of God. The soul winner is a great man in God's sight, and He has promised that they who turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever (Daniel 12:3).

We Need More Bible Reading

Everyone should read the Bible. How else can one learn God's Word?

The Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church of Newport, North Carolina, urges more reading of the Bible for all Christians and non-Christians alike.

Our church, inspired by our pastor, the Rev. Jerry Rowe, and all the teachers of the Sunday school, are stressing the urgent need of reading the Bible.
We are starting a project of reading the Bible all the way through this year, starting this Easter, 1964, and going through Easter, 1965. It can be done, with urgent persistency and cooperation, and we urge others to try this method of reading the Bible.

We covet the prayers of all true Christians and make an appeal to everyone to read your Bible, God's Word. The plan of salvation is for all souls.

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

A Report by Emiliano Lopez

Translated by J. B. Elliston

I would like to give you an idea of the evangelistic campaigns and other services which I have conducted since I became associated with Arizona-Mexico Missions and the State Convention of North Carolina. As most of you know, I am being sponsored in this work by the Stoney Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Oldsboro, of which the Rev. Joe Ingram is pastor. I want to thank you all for helping me, and to let you know of the work in which you have had a part.

I have conducted two campaigns in Nogales. The first one was January 15. In this revival the Lord manifested His presence in a great way. We were rewarded by having four persons to accept Christ as their Saviour. The second campaign in Los Nogales was conducted March 16-21. In this revival a young man accepted Christ, a person who was considered the worst sinner in that area. The people of the town couldn't believe that a person as sinful as he could be saved.

In February, I conducted a revival in Cananea, Sonora, for ten days. It began on February 4, and ended on February 13. This revival was greatly blessed of the Lord, with ten persons accepting Christ as Saviour. One of those accepting Christ was a man who lives in Douglas, Arizona, about 60 miles from Cananea. He came to Cananea to the services, and there accepted Christ. Now he is begging us to begin services in his house in Douglas, Arizona. Please pray for this opportunity that we shall know what course to take.

On February 14 I returned to Los Nogales for a single night service. When the altar call was given, a group of 14 people came to the altar. They had already accepted Christ, but they felt the need for a closer walk with Him.

On February 18 I visited in the mission which Brother Jose Guzman and Abian have in Magdalena. When the altar call was given at the end of my sermon, two persons came forward to kneel at the altar and receive Christ.

On February 23 I was in the church in Nogales, Arizona, with Brother John Elliston, and preached there. The next day I went with him and his wife on a trip to the Mexican states of Chihuahua, Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon, Coahuila, Durango, Sinaloa, and Sonora. On this trip we were made to rejoice very greatly to see the work in Coahuila. I had the privilege to preach in several places in the state of Coahuila.

On February 26 we were in service with the Rev. German Rodriguez in Jimenez, Coahuila, in a very joyous service. There were about fifty persons present, and the Lord gave me a very easy-to-preach message on the plan of salvation. Brother German started the service off, as pastor, then had Brother Timmons introduce us. Brother Elliston delivered a doctrinal message, after which I preached an evangelistic message. This was the program which we followed in all the services in Coahuila, except that in Saltillo the pastor was Juan Lopez.

On February 27 we were very busy. In the morning we went to visit some sick persons in Jimenez and have prayer with them. Then at 4 p. m. we had services in El Moral, about 10 miles from Jimenez. In this service, after my sermon, when Brother Elliston gave the altar call, four adults came to the altar for prayer. After the service we took Brother Timmons and Brother Elias Rodriguez to a ranch called Victoria. They stayed there while we went to Santa Rosa, near Jimenez. We barely arrived at Santa Rosa in time to commence services at 7:30 p. m., but we had a very joyful time in the Lord in that service. After services we returned to Piedras Negras and Eagle Pass. The next day we had an evening service with Brother German in Piedras Negras. Brother German went with us and stayed in Piedras Negras for the night, then we had the joy of being with them in the newly rented building in Piedras Negras for the very first service in the building.

On Sunday, March 1, we drove some 300 miles to Saltillo, where Brother Juan Lopez has a very good work. After I had preached the plan of salvation, there were five precious souls who came to the altar. Two of them were soldiers. Altogether, there were over 70 persons in attendance, even though many had to stand outside. Brother Lopez is doing a very good work in Saltillo, as he did when he was in Monterrey. He needs our prayers very much as he works there.

As I am writing this report, we are engaged in a revival in Nogales, Sonora, in the mission on Puerto Rico Street with the Laniers. This is a series of Holy Week messages with the aim of showing how Christ suffered and died to save us from our sins. We are expecting great blessings from the Lord in these services, and so far we have been receiving them.

I hope that all of you will pray for me very much. I truly need your prayers that all my work may be for the glory of the Lord. May God bless you!

The Laniers Report

By Rev. James L. Lanier

It is with great pleasure that I take this opportunity to greet you once again.

As many of you already know, my wife, Mary Bell, and I are conducting a little mission in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico. The name of our mission is La Mision De Gracia. In English that would be Grace Mission.

We are very thankful to the Lord for the way He has been blessing us.

Tomorrow will mark the third week since we have started our woman's auxiliary. The first time we had an auxiliary meeting, which was March 11, we had three adults and two children present. Last week we had four adults and three children present. We hope that tomorrow's service will find still more in attendance. Many of the women in the neighborhood where our mission is located seem very interested. Through prayer and visitation we hope that this phase of our work will win many souls to our Lord Jesus.

Last Sunday, Palm Sunday, we started a one-week's revival with Brother Emiliano Lopez as the evangelist. We've been having good services. Last night you could feel that the Lord was dealing with hearts, but no one came forward.

As soon as the weather here begins to get warmer, we plan to start some more Bible clubs in the afternoons after school for the children. We have a couple of homes that have promised us the use of their yards for this purpose. Because

REPORT OF WESTERN AUXILIARY CONVENTION

The Western Conference Woman's Auxiliary Convention of North Carolina met April 1 at Pleasant Grove Free Will

Baptist Church near Pikeville. The auxiliaries within the district were well represented. The session was presided over by Mrs. Boyd Shook, president. A fine spirit of cooperation and fellowship was evident. Denominational reports were given during the day. The convention voted that the offerings received during each session be equally divided between the Children's Home, Mount Olive College, and missions. Each auxiliary was urged to continue its support to all phases of the work.

The newly-elected officers are: Mrs. Woodrow Sparron, president; Mrs. Harvey Pittman Jr., vice-president; Mrs. L. A. Boyette Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. B. L. Godwin, treasurer; Mrs. Hardy Talton, field secretary; Mrs. Paul Thompson, missionary chairman; Mrs. D. W. Hansley, youth chairman; Mrs. Clement Sullivan, study course chairman; Mrs. Rod Jones, program-prayer chairman; Mrs. Linwood Scott, benevolence chairman.

The declamation winners were Carol Ann Manning, AFC; Doris Faye Rackley, YFA. Both are members of the Mount Zion Free Will Baptist Church of Nash County. The essay winner was Carolyn Langley from Holly Springs church near Kenly.

LITTLE CREEK GIVES LIFE AWARDS

The Woman's Auxiliary of Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden, North Carolina, in their March meeting gave life membership awards and pins to Mrs. Agatha Humbles and Mrs. Addie Sumrell. Both Mrs. Humbles and Mrs. Sumrell have been faithful members of the auxiliary, but they are now unable to attend because of their health.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP TO MEET

The North Carolina State Youth Fellowship Convention will meet April 18, 10 a. m., at Sherron Acres Free Will Baptist Church, Durham. All youth groups are urged to be represented at this convention.

Newport, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting March 3 at the home of Mrs. Lida Gordon Howard. There were seventeen members and two visitors present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Agnes Garner, who read the Scripture taken from John 1:1-10. She also offered the evening prayer. As the roll was called, each member present answered with a Bible verse. This was followed with a short business session.

The program chairman then introduced a most inspiring program entitled, "Building Toward Mexico Way." Those assisting in the program were Mrs. Lois Bryan, Mrs. Dorothy Riggs, and Mrs. Elizabeth Slaughter. The group sang "The Light of the World Is Jesus" and Mrs. Floraine Slaughter dismissed with prayer.

The hostess then served refreshments which were enjoyed by all.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Marvin Atkinson on Thursday night, March 12 for its March meeting.

Mrs. Claudie Langley, president, presided over the business meeting which opened with the group singing "The Light of the World Is Jesus." This was followed with prayer by Mrs. Orabelle Nichols. The secretary, Mrs. Johan Hinton, read the minutes of the February meeting and called the roll. There were eighteen members and one visitor present. During this session the auxiliary honored Mrs. Allie Hinton, the oldest member of the auxiliary, with a life membership pin.

The program was given under the leadership of Mrs. E. G. Holland with Mrs. Etha Boykin, Mrs. Orabelle Nichols, Mrs. Marvin Atkinson, and Mrs. Claudie Langley taking part. After the discussion of the lesson the meeting adjourned to meet in April with Mrs. Etha Boykin.

Clayton, N. C.—The YFA of Poyhatan Free Will Baptist Church met on March 12 at the home of Linda and Betty Johnson for its monthly meeting. The president, Diane Stevens, called the meeting to order, and prayer was offered by Mrs. J. W. Nichols, the sponsor. The group then sang the hymn, "Standing on the Promises." The Scripture was read by Diane Stevens, followed with the singing of several choruses.

During the business session the secretary called the roll with sixteen members and four visitors present. The treasurer's report was also given. The group voted to name the auxiliary for James Lanier, the missionary in the Arizona-Mexico Mission. They also voted to have a mission study course during April.

The program, "Step by Step in His Promises," was given by Glenda Brady. The meeting adjourned with the benediction by Larry Coats.

Greenville, N. C.—The AFC of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, March 17, at the church with fourteen members present. The sponsor called the meeting to order and prayer was offered by Deborah Warren. Following the reading of the Scripture by Ronnie Carroway, the group sang several choruses.

The business session was conducted by Ronnie Carroway. The group decided to go to the youth meeting to be held March 21 at Elm Grove church. There was $3.25 turned in from the sales of dust cloths.

The program, "Step by Step Through the Third Commandment," was introduced by the program chairman, Deborah Warren. Those assisting in the program were Gloria Brady, Ronnie Brown, Kirby Clark, Tony Clark, Ronnie Carroway, Edna Lloyd, Eddie Morris, John Simpkins, Eddie Lloyd, Clint Lewis, Eddie Lewis, and Charles Ed Mayo. Following the program a question and answer period was conducted. Ronnie Carroway then favored the group with a solo, "In the Old Country Church." The meeting closed with a sentence prayer by each of the group.

Refreshments were served by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Austin Carter.

Ayden, N. C.—The Elm Grove Woman's Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. Annie Eliza Chappell for its February meeting. The president opened the meeting and the group sang "I Am Resolved." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Margie Humbles, followed with the reading of the Scripture by the president, Mrs. Stella Worthington.

During the business period the roll was called with sixteen members and one visitor present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report given. Then the various committees gave their report. It was decided that the auxiliary would serve a supper to the East Carolina College Fellowship. It was agreed for all who can to attend a study course of the auxiliary manual at Little Creek church to be taught by Mrs. J. C. Moye. Nine members attended the course.

The February program, "The New WA Emblem Points to Kingdom Building," was given by Mrs. Velma McLawhorn. Closing prayer was by Mrs. Gladys Beddard.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Bear Grass, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Rose of Sharon Free Will Baptist Church held its March meeting recently in the home of Mrs. Mahue Bailey with eleven members present. The Scripture lesson taken from John 10:11-18, was read by Mrs. Annie Cratt. Mrs. Cratt and Mrs. Peggy Bailey had charge of the lesson based on Jesus' life. The group prayed the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. Selma Cowan reported a balance in the treasury of $111.87. Mrs. Jeannette Wynne was appointed to be in charge of the program at the next meeting. The meeting adjourned with prayer.

Merritt, N. C.—An installation service was held for the youth auxiliary of Bethel Free Will Baptist Church on Sunday evening, February 23. A worship center was arranged with an open Bible and a tall white lighted candle. The service was conducted by the youth chairman, Mrs. W. F. Whorton, who is also the YFA sponsor.

The group sang two choruses, followed with the Scripture reading taken from 1 Peter 2:21 and Psalm 85:9-13. After a brief introduction the names of the new officers were called, beginning with the president of each group. They were given a small white candle to be lighted at the proper time. Their duties were pointed out and as they lighted their candles an appropriate verse of poetry was read. After the charge was given, a prayer of dedication was rendered by the installing officer. As the boys and girls stood in a broken semi-circle, they closed the service by singing "Everyday with Jesus."

NOTES

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

THE HOLY GHOST

Our first Scripture for the subject is recorded by John and reads thus: “. . . And it is the Spirit that beareth witness, because the Spirit is truth. For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one” (1 John 5:6, 7).

The period covered by the Old Testament is called the “Age of the Father” by some. The period covered by the Gospels is called the “Age of the Son,” and the period from the Day of Pentecost to the end of the church age is called “Age of the Holy Ghost.” But, since there are “three that bear record in heaven” and these three form the “Godhead bodily” (Colossians 2:9), every age is the age of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. The Three cannot be separated; they perform all that pertains to God from the beginning to the end.

THE PERSONALITY OF THE HOLY GHOST

The names given to the Holy Ghost assert His personality. Jesus called Him the “Comforter” (John 14:26). In Hebrews 10:29 He is called the “Spirit of grace,” and in John 15:26 He is called the “Spirit of truth.” In Romans 8:2 He is called the “Spirit of life”: “For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.” My friend, that is His work—to make free from sin and death.

There is freedom from the guilt of sin when one is in Christ Jesus. Thus may I ask you, Are you free? If not, why not? It is not God’s fault that you are under condemnation. The first verse says, “There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, . . .” (Romans 8:1).

Isaiah speaks of Him in his relationship to Christ, saying, “And the spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him (Christ), the spirit of wisdom and understanding, . . .” (Isaiah 11:2). Thus He is called the “Spirit of wisdom and knowledge,” also the “Spirit of counsel.” When Jesus was handed the book to read in the synagogue, He found and read the following: “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, To preach the acceptable year of the Lord” (Luke 4:18, 19). Thus He is called the “Spirit of the Lord.” He is called the “Spirit of promise” by the Apostle Paul: “. . . ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise” (Ephesians 1:13). Peter calls Him the “Spirit of glory” (1 Peter 4:14). In Paul’s letter to the Corinthians He is called the “Spirit of God” (1 Corinthians 3:16); and in Romans it is written: “. . . Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his” (Romans 8:9). William Evans says, “The fact that the Spirit is sent from the Father and the Son, that He represents them, and is their executive seems to be the thought conveyed here.”

PERSONAL PRONOUNS USED BY CHRIST

“But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you” (John 14:26). You notice that Christ said he, and again in John 15:26 the personal pronoun he is used. I quote further to show several times that Jesus used the term: “Nevertheless I tell you the truth; It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you. And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment: Of sin, because they believe not on me; Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more; Of judgment because the prince of this world is judged . . . Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will show you things to come. He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you. All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you” (John 16:7-11, 13-15). Thus, personal pronouns are used twelve times in John 14, 15, and 16. I have quoted this Scripture in full to convince those who might believe otherwise that Jesus says, by the use of these pronouns, that the Holy Ghost is a person and not just an influence—going out from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ which shows that there is a triune God

SYMBOLS OF THE HOLY GHOST

Breath, wind, power, oil, fire, and water are symbols of the Holy Ghost. Because of these symbols many people have erroneously believed that the Holy Ghost is an influence which comes from God the Father. It is a fact that in Romans 8:16 the translators used the pronoun itself in speaking of the Holy Ghost, as recorded in the King James Version. The revised translations have corrected this error, and thus the pronoun himself is used. Again may we notice our first Scripture in this discourse. “For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: . . .” (1 John 5:7). All Bible students of orthodox Christianity recognize the fact that the Word is the Son, as we are taught in the Gospel according to John.

THE HOLY GHOST ONE OF THE TRINITY

May we notice the demonstration at the baptism of the Son of God, the Lord Jesus. “And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water (not from the edge of the river, but out of the water—my insertion): and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: And lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased” (Matthew 3:16, 17). Thus we have Jesus Christ visible to man. With the Holy Ghost in the form of a dove, seen by Jesus, and the voice of God speaking from the heavens, certainly we know that there could not be a Trinity without the Holy Ghost.

Then, we are taught to baptize in His name with the Father and the Son. Christ said, “Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost” (Matthew 28:19). May we notice the singular: name, not names. This shows that the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost are three Persons. Certainly the Holy Ghost would not be spoken of if it was an influence in question. It would certainly sound out of place to say, “I baptize thee in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the influence.” Would not this be rather peculiar language? Neither would it be proper to say, “I baptize you in the name of the Father, the Son, and the wind.” When we read the Holy Ghost

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: What is your view regarding water baptism?—A. R. Wiggins, Texas.

ANSWER: I have had a number of questions asked me along this line and will try to give what I think is a correct biblical view that should be a satisfactory answer to all of them. "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:3, 4). This is one of the Scriptures I have been questioned about. The baptism in the mind of the Holy Spirit as He causes these words to be passed down to us by the Apostle Paul is no doubt that act of the Spirit by which He causes an unsaved person's life to become merged with that of Christ's, and through Christ with the lives of all the saved people that have been changed by the new birth which results from the preaching of the Word only. "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! But they have not all obeyed the gospel. For Esaias saith, Lord, who hath believed our report? So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Romans 10:13-17).

In this same act of the Holy Spirit this newly born one is saved or regenerated, justified, sanctified, etc. It is my opinion, however, that only the correct mode of baptism would be used of the Holy Ghost to explain by symbol what takes place in the life of a sinner as he is transferred from the world of darkness, death, and despair into the life, light, and liberty of Christ's righteousness. The true Free Will Baptists, as I understand them, in their doctrinal view and belief could never accept any mode other than that of immersion. This mode of baptism symbolizes the death of the old nature, or old man as the Scriptures refer to it. It also symbolizes the new life which is a resurrected life and a new walk or way of life into which the saved person enters as he realizes that the old is done away with so far as he is concerned. The new life of a truly born-again Christian is not conducive to a life of sin but of righteousness. The act of baptism into water symbolizes this. The subject is buried in the water in which act that of dying to the natural way of life, including all the wrong habits and practices the sinner before being saved let govern his activities. Overeating, overdrinking, or overindulging in any good thing, thereby hurting and hindering activities in any essential in the realm of necessities that make up a regular routine in the well-balance behavior of a well-balanced Christian life, is not to be done any more. The Christian who submits to baptism by immersion says in essence, "I am in the new way of life that makes me no longer a bond slave to sin in which I gave way to natural appetites and inclinations, but am now a bond slave to Christ which brings me under the scrupulous eyes of the Holy Spirit, who brings me into conformance to the Word of God that spelled out all the limits and border lines of the earthly life's activities of Christ when He was here in His incarnate state." The required servitude of a Christian makes him obligated to follow Christ in all things. In this new state of salvery it is required of me that in the place of doing what, in a natural way, seems easy and pleasant, now I am to do the things a new conscience tells me to do. It always tells me to do that which the Bible teaches that an obedient Christian should do. In this old way of life it seemed foolish for a person to dedicate his life to soul winning in the new Spirit-disciplined way. It is natural to want to win souls by walking in "newness of life," which requires that I follow the Scriptures in every detail of my activities.

"That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed" (Romans 10:9-11). "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8). Baptism symbolizes all this because it speaks of death—the death of the old man and his activities—but with the same vigor of purpose it speaks of the new birth and the new set of activities into which by the new birth we have entered. It was natural that I produce sinners by my life, example, and influence while I was an unsaved sinner. "A tree is known by the fruit it bears." "Likes produce likes." I now bear the fruit of God. Baptism by immersion introduced me to the church as such and told the world that I was dead to it. If I fail to bear the fruit I should, God the Father will trim me down to where I become fruitful. If after sufficient trimming (pruning) I am still fruitless, He will take me out of the vine and burn me.

I am not sure that I know the correct and complete interpretation of all that is said of Christ's subjects in the symbolism in John 15, but I feel definitely sure that it applies to me, and that in the light of several other Scriptures it cannot be correctly interpreted unless it is so interpreted as to indicate that I must win souls if I should have a life so lived before Him and to cause Him to pronounce it as well done. We also become members of the body of which Christ is the head, and when that happens to us that is symbolized in baptism by immersion into water. "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit. For the body is not one member, but many" (1 Corinthians 12:13, 14). Read the remainder of 1 Corinthians 12 in order to see the full significance of this figure.

HIDE-AND-SEEK

by Marie Manire Chapman

HOME FREE!" Milton ran in breathlessly from behind the hawthorn bush where he had been hiding.

"That makes everybody safe now except Jack," said Fred, who was "it." He walked slowly toward the garage, brushing his tousled red hair out of his eyes. Sometimes the boys found a good hiding place near there. He hadn't gone ten feet from base when behind him another voice yelled, "Home free!"

"Fred is 'it' again," said Milton. "Say, I know a new way to play hide-and-seek. Let's try that for awhile."

"Tell us about it," urged Fred. He was rather tired of being "it."

"Oh," Milton explained, "this is a kind of hide-and-seek with some bugs and animals."

Jimmy questioned, "How could bugs play a game with us?"

"Well," admitted Milton, "they don't exactly mean to play a game. They're playing for keeps. They really don't want us to find them, but it's fun to try. Come on before it gets dark, and I think we can find some of them."

"Where do we look?" asked George, who had joined them.

"Anywhere," Milton said. "Look under leaves on trees and bushes. Look on the limbs and twigs of the trees and on the bark of the trunks. Look in the grass, in the weeds—even inside of flower petals."

Jimmy questioned again, "What kind of an animal could hide in a flower?"

"He didn't mean an animal would hide in a flower," Fred defended. "Some little animals could hide somewhere around a tree, and we'd never see them."

"I'd like to see that!" Jack argued.

"Let's get going then, what do you say!" cried Fred. "We'll have to hurry if we're going to find anything at all before it gets dark."

"We can probably find some things down close to the creek in your yard, Fred," suggested Milton.

The boys moved along toward it.

"I've found one!" George shouted to the others. "Come see!" The others came on the run. "What is it?" they all wanted to know.

George pointed to a twig on the bush near him. For a minute, nobody said anything. They thought George was fooling them, for all they saw was the twig.

"Oh, I see it now!" exclaimed Jack.

"So you really did find a bug hiding," teased Milton.

"Yes," agreed Jack. "It's a stick caterpillar. It looks just like another branch of the twig. See, it's gray just like the bark."

"We call them 'walking sticks' sometimes," laughed George. He wrote down the name and description of the insect he had found.

Fred was already looking for something else, and soon it was his turn to call out, "Here's one!" He pointed to a bunch of evergreen needles hanging from a twig on a low tree.

"What's that?" asked Milton. "I don't see anything but a bunch of needles."

"That's what the bagworm wants you to think," said Jack, who had become very much interested in the game by this time. "My teacher took us on a field trip one day, and we saw them right near the schoolyard."

"See here what I've found!" exclaimed George. "It isn't a bug this time."

"What is it then?" asked Jimmy.

George pointed to a clump of green leaves at the foot of a tree.

"What's so unusual about a bunch of leaves?" Fred wanted to know.

"Look again and you'll see something else," George told him.

"Oh, I see it," said Jack. "It's a little green frog just about the same color as the leaves. He's sitting so still he looks like another leaf. He doesn't think we can see him at all!"

"Yes," agreed Jimmy. "He thinks we'll just go on by him." When Fred still couldn't see the frog, Jimmy moved the leaves, and the frog hopped away to a safer hiding place.

"This is fun!" George said enthusiastically. He was busy writing down all he could about the things they found. "I'm going to tell my Sunday-School teacher about this," he explained. "He's been telling us about wonderful things God has made. I think he'll want to know about these bugs and things hiding right out where people can see them. He's told us about those little animals like rabbits."

"I know," interrupted Fred, "you mean conies. I read about them in my Sunday-School paper. They hide in rocks when big animals are chasing them."

"Yes," said George, "It's like we can do when the devil tries to get us to sin. We can call on Jesus, and He keeps us from sinning."

"How do you suppose a thing like a frog or a worm is smart enough to hide so its enemies won't see it right out in the open?" asked Jack.

"That's easy," said George, who had quite a fat notebook full of writing by that time. "They were made that way. When God made them the color they are, He made them so they'd know the best place to live, where their color would help them to hide."

"My daddy's got a funny-looking pair of coveralls he had in the war," said Jimmy. "He calls it a camouflage suit."

"Daddy said the men wore those outfits so the enemy couldn't see them in the woods. With those suits the men looked just like the tree leaves and the brown dirt," Jimmy explained.

"The army just took one of God's ideas and used it, didn't they?" said George.

They were interrupted by Fred's mother calling, "Fred! Supper time!"

These services are held outside, we have to wait until the weather is warmer.

At the present time we are conducting six services each week in our mission. On Sunday mornings we have been helping with the teaching in the First Free Will Baptist Church in Nogales, Arizona. I teach the young people and my wife teaches the beginners. Since I don't speak Spanish very well yet, I have to have someone to translate for me. A young fellow, his name is Federico Berni, has been helping me in my class.

Federico, or Lico as everyone here calls him, is fifteen years old. He lives very near our mission and attends very faithfully. Lico is a very fine Christian boy. Just Sunday before last he brought his first message. We are very proud of him, and we are sure that his Saviour is too. Remember him in your prayers. The Lord surely can use dedicated young people in His service.

We want to thank each of you for your prayers and your support which makes it possible for us to be here. We are very happy in our work and ask you to please continue to pray for us that we may ever do God's will.

If you have an offering which you would like to be used for mission work send it to North Carolina Board of Missions, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. If your offering is for a special purpose or person and not the general fund, be sure to designate for what it is to be used.

If any of you would like to write to us, we would be very happy to hear from you, our brothers and sisters in Christ. Our address is: The Rev. and Mrs. James L. Lanier, Box 7, Star Route, Tucson Road, Nogales, Arizona.

May the Lord bless each of you!

LAY men and women must be given significant tasks—something far different from ushering, serving on inconsequential committees or cooking church suppers—if they are expected to give their devotion and support to the church.—Ben M. Herbster.

Important Advice to Cragmont Conference Workers

L. E. BALLARD, Manager

Cragmont Assembly

Black Mountain, North Carolina

With two of the four youth conferences scheduled to be held at Cragmont Assembly during this summer already past the halfway mark in reservations that can be made at the Assembly, and in view of the fact that all indications point to a record-breaking enrollment for these conferences, a bit of advice to our friends over the state who are working to enlist young people for the conferences and to those who plan to go seems in order.

First, we want to advise organizations planning to send young people to Cragmont, and individuals who plan to go on their own, to register as early as possible. Also, we urge those who can do so to make a second choice, so that if the conference first chosen should have reached the limit of 100, the application can be considered for another conference. With the Rev. Wayne West directing the recreation and planning the vacation features equally for all conferences, and the same general quality of program being arranged for all conferences, it should not make a great deal of difference to which conference our young people go. All are assured of valuable instruction, inspiration, and recreation; and the cost is the same for all conferences. If those who are soliciting registrants for the particular conferences find young people who cannot go at the time of the conference, we hope that they will urge them to go to another conference and will help them decide which one to go to.

We want to offer a bit of advice to the organizations that may be contemplating sending large groups (above ten) to the assembly. We are not only interested in the various conferences reaching as many young people as possible, but also in the blessings of the conferences reaching as many churches as possible. We suggest that if a large number are going from your church, divide them up between two or more of the conferences. In this way it will be possible for young people to go from more different churches, and also your church should receive some blessing from each of the conferences. The young people will return and share what they received. In deciding who should go to each conference, consider the position of the young person in the church. Leaders of your FWBL groups should go to the league conference. Those who are identified in some way with the Sunday school in a working capacity, or who want to prepare to be teachers in the school, will gain some by going to one of the Sunday school conferences. Your YFA and AYC leaders and officers should go to the Youth Frontier Conference. Each conference does have some features designed to emphasize the work of the sponsoring bodies, but each also gives some instruction in all phases of youth activities in the church.

If we all work together unselfishly and cooperatively, we can have a full registration for all the conferences and can make the blessings as far reaching as possible. The guiding thought for all conference workers should be that we want as many as possible of our young people to go to Cragmont and to receive as great benefits from going as possible.

Incidentally, complete schedules of the 1964 conferences have been sent out to pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and others in churches from one end of North Carolina to the other. We hope that these schedules will be placed on bulletin boards, or in some other way made available to all our people. If you are interested in Cragmont, ask your pastor about it. He should be glad to advise you.

I CARE more for that long age which I shall never see than for my own small share of time.—Cicero.

Lesson for April 19

Facing Family Tensions

LESSON TEXT: Ephesians 5:21—6:4

MEMORY VERSE: Ephesians 5:21

I. INTRODUCTION

The family is the basic unity of society. It existed before the Church, before the State, and before any form of organized society. It is, in fact, the foundation upon which these have to build. If the Church, the State, or any other organizations composed of men, women, or children are to accomplish anything of a worthwhile nature, they must take into consideration the influence of the home.

Members of the same family are very closely related. Of course, all of us are aware of the relationship of blood, but there is to be found in the home other forms of relationship. There is the relationship of continuous association, of kindred aims, and of similarity in many other things too numerous to mention. This very similarity is likely to develop the strained relations which we consider for today's study. There is certain to be at some time or the other in every home and among the members of every family group a conflict of interest, a difference of opinion, jealousy, and many other things that might tend to strife and division.

All of us, being part of a family group, need to learn how to cope with these strained relations when they arise. — Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. Members of the church should surrender their individual wills in order that the will of the group may prevail (v. 21).

2. Wives should be subject to their husbands who should love, support, and protect their wives (vv. 22, 25).

3. Husbands should give their lives for their wives if necessary (v. 25).

4. Wives should reverence their husbands, and the husbands should love their wives as their own bodies (vv. 28, 33).

5. Those who are members of the true Church are members of the body of Christ (v. 30).

6. It is a natural and divine right for a man to cleave to his wife above everyone else (v. 31).

7. Children should always obey their parents in the Lord (v. 1).

8. Long life and blessings are promised children who honor their parents (vv. 2, 3).

9. Parents should not misuse their authority over their children (v. 4).

10. Children should be brought up to fear sin and reverence God (v. 4).— Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. An army chaplain had assembled a group of battle-weary soldiers under a darkened sky for a religious service. It began to rain. Said the chaplain, "My message will be brief! My sermon subject is, 'What think ye of Christ?' My text is, 'What think ye of Christ?'" Then the chaplain said, "Dismissed!"

In a meeting of ministers, the question, "What think ye of Christ?" was being discussed. One of the ministers had been leaning toward Unitarianism for some time. Someone asked him, "How long have you been in the ministry?" "Eleven years," he replied. "May I ask you what are your views of the Lord Jesus Christ?" The dubious minister replied, "I have pondered the subject deeply, but have not exactly made up my mind." Exclaimed the questioner, "What! Eleven years in the ministry and you do not know what you think of Christ, the brightness of the heavenly Father's glory and the express image of His Person?"

"That he might . . . cleanse (the church) . . . by the word."

Clarence Hall, a World War II correspondent, testified, "I can never think of the blessings and benefits the Bible brings without always thinking of Shimmabuke, a tiny village I came upon in Okinawa. Thirty years before, an American missionary stopped there just long enough to make two converts—Shosei Kina and his brother Mojan. He left a Bible with them and passed on. For 30 years they had no contact with any other Christian missionary, but they made the Bible come alive! They taught the other villagers until every man, woman, and child in Shimmabuke became Christians! Shosei Kina became the headman of the village, Mojan the chief teacher. In his school the Bible was read daily. The precepts of the Bible were law in that village. When the American Army came across the island, an advance patrol came to the village compound with guns leveled. The two old men, Shosei and Mojan, stepped forward, bowed low and began to speak. An interpreter explained they were welcoming the Americans. The GI's were flabbergasted. They sent for their chaplain and officers of the Intelligence Service. They toured the village. They were astounded at the spotless clean homes and streets, and the cleanliness and gentility of the inhabitants. The other Okinawan villages they had seen were filthy and the people were morally and spiritually unclean. A tough army sergeant said, 'I can't figure it out—this kind of people coming from a Bible and a couple of old men who wanted to live like Jesus Christ! Maybe we have been using the wrong kind of weapons to make this world over!'"— Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

2. Reliable statistics tell us that one out of every four marriages in this country will end in divorce. For those of us who live in rural areas, where there are not so many divorces, these statistics are difficult to accept. But we must remember that this includes the large industrial centers as well as the Hollywood movie colony. This means that if you drove down the road, every fourth house would be a broken home.

The amazing thing is that we have come to accept this amazing divorce rate. We are no longer alarmed about it. How would you feel if there were a monster abroad in our country which destroyed 25 percent of our homes? Is this not exactly what divorce does? Shouldn't we be concerned and be trying to rid the country of this frightful monster?

Many reasons have been given for this large divorce rate. Hasty and ill-advised marriages always rank high on any list. The money question causes trouble in many homes. The in-law problem we still have with us. See how many more problems that cause trouble in homes you can think of? But when all is said and done, the real reason is that men and women who are unfit for marriage approach the marriage altar. You cannot make a good marriage unless you have good material.

One should be emotionally fit if he is going to be married. This means that he should have the ability to share his life with another completely. If one cannot do this, he is no fit subject for marriage. It also means that he should be able to leave the security of his old home and help make another home. It means that one should have the ability to assume responsibility. If you cannot measure up to these emotional qualifications, you should not marry.

Of course, there are also physical qualifications for marriage. The state recognizes this when it requires a blood test for marriage license applicants. Jesus recognized it when He pointed out that there was no marriage in heaven. People with certain physical abnormalities would not marry.

Then there are spiritual qualifications. Both parties to the marriage should be Christians. A good home may be established where one party to the marriage is not Christian, but it is difficult. We believe that the Christian always pays a price for marrying one who is not a Christian.

What can the church do to help make our homes better? What can you as an individual do to help make your home better? Give this matter some serious thought.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. The world in which we live is gripped with fear. We seem to live under a constant cloud of social conflict and international threat. Has all this had an effect on the family? Emphatically yes! We might compare the family to a rubber band that is being stretched in various directions as new tensions tug at it. Even in Christian families the tensions of our desperate age can be felt. Besides the tension of our world situation, things closer to home also tug at the family. Families today feel the pull of materialism. The daily appeal of advertisers creates a desire to have more and better houses, cars, and appliances. As we acquire more things, the desire for higher status creates even greater tension. We not only desire to "keep up with the Joneses" in the material possessions we acquire, but we desire to keep up with them socially as well. Conflicts between fathers, mothers, and children produce tensions in some families which are serious enough to destroy them.

How can we meet this problem? One solution is to change society so radically that no more tensions exist. But because of the many forces affecting us, this is

by Leona C. Lilley

"I wish I were older," said Sally wishfully.

"Why?" asked her older sister, Nancy.

"So I could help Mother like you do," replied Sally.

"Well," went on Nancy, "maybe you can't help Mother around the house now, but there is some one you can help, someone who needs your help very much."

"Who?" asked Sally, her eyes widening.

"Why, Jesus," explained Nancy. "There are many things that you can do to help Jesus. When you do something nice for someone and make him happy, you are helping Jesus and making Him happy, also."

"Oh, I would like to help Jesus. Our Sunday school teacher teaches us about Jesus. She says that we should all help and He will richly reward us," exclaimed Sally. "Let me think of something that I can do for Him." Sally thought for a moment, then she cried, "Oh, I know! Poor old Mrs. Jackson, who lives across the street; she has to stay in that wheelchair all of the time. I could take her for a walk everyday, couldn't I?"

"Sure you could," replied Nancy. "I'd say that would make Mrs. Jackson and Jesus very happy."

"Nancy," asked Sally, slowly, "do you suppose Mother would let me give those old clothes of mine that I have outgrown to the Bently children? They are very poor and haven't many clothes. They don't even have many friends. They hardly possible. The alternative is to increase the strength of the family ties. A thicker rubber band will withstand a much greater strain than a narrow one will. A family is strengthened by worshiping together and working together for Christ.—Standard Lesson Commentary.

don't go to Sunday school, either. I'll bet they don't even know about Jesus."

"Why, that's a wonderful idea!" exclaimed Nancy. "This could be your chance to do something really big for Jesus—and for the Bentlys."

"Nancy, will you go over to the Bentlys with me to ask them to go to Sunday school with us tomorrow?" asked Sally.

"Of course," agreed Nancy. "We'll take those outgrown clothes of yours, too."

Nancy ran downstairs to tell Mother of Sally's idea. Sally gathered the clothes in her arms and was ready to go into action for Jesus. Yes, this was her big chance to help Jesus and she wasn't going to miss the opportunity.

were called, for which the Church was commissioned, for which our denomination exists.

It will not be an easy task, for it will require the support of every Free Will Baptist from the smallest to the oldest. There is a job for each person of each age. None are already sufficiently trained, regardless of their age or of the years of their church membership. Thus the key to success is what it has always been: a combination of vision, dedication, and hard work. If we are not willing to meet these requirements, why do we not confess unto God that our failure is due to our own laziness and shortcomings and stop pretending that we are trying to do our best to succeed.

out as a person, we certainly dislocate the simple, plain Word of God. So when you hear a person say that he does not believe in the Trinity, you can remind that person that Jesus Christ taught it. Also the apostles taught it.

May we notice this benediction: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen" (2 Corinthians 13:14). My reader, judge as to how it would sound to repeat this benediction and use the word influence where the Holy Ghost is used? (To be continued.)

Teen-Agers and Liquor

A group of teen-agers from New York suburbs indicated they preferred hard liquor to beer or wine when they drank, the New York Times reports.

More than 300 high school students were polled just before attending a forum on "Teens and Alcohol," sponsored by the Reader's Digest. Of these, 271 said yes when asked if they ever drank; 178 students said they had drunk hard liquor, 87 had beer, 61 wine, and 10 champagne.

Average age of the students questioned was 17 years.

ANOTHER SPIRIT

Of all the biblical accounts of disobedience, none carry the note of tragedy as greatly as the wilderness wanderings of the Israelites. The story is familiar to most Bible readers. When the Israelites reached Kadesh-barnea, which was perhaps more than a year after they had left Egypt, Moses sent twelve men (one from each of the twelve tribes) into the promised land to ". . . see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many; And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strong holds; And what the land is, . . ." (Numbers 13:18-20).

The twelve spies spent forty days in the promised land. They returned with this report: ". . . We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it. Nevertheless the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and moreover we saw the children of Anak there" (Numbers 13:27, 28).

Among these men, however, were two men who did not share the fears of the others. These two men were Caleb and Joshua. It was Caleb who stilled the people before Moses and said, ". . . Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it" (Numbers 13:30). The reaction of the other men was one of fear; they feared the people who dwelt in the surrounding nations.

The scene that followed is one of utter dismay and fear in the camp of the Israelites. They spoke against Moses and against God. As a result of their lack of faith to possess the promised land, God turned them back into the wilderness; and there they wandered for the remainder of the forty years—one year for each day that the spies spent in spying out the land.

The Lord, who is longsuffering and patient, remembered the faithfulness of Caleb and said, "But my servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land whereinto he went; and his seed shall possess it" (Numbers 14:24).

We immediately recognize that Caleb's attitude was the opposite of that of the other men. Many would have conformed to the opinions of the other men, but his was another spirit. Thus, God placed special honor upon him: he would enter the promised land and his descendants would receive the benefits of its blessings. The sad truth is, however, that during the years of wilderness wanderings he was made to suffer many of the hardships that the disobedient faced.

Many times the faithful Christian—the one with another spirit—may be called upon to share the punishment that comes upon others because of their rebellion against God. The fact remains, on the other hand, that Caleb was to be blessed of God in a special way; and he was allowed to enter the promised land which is representative of heaven.

The ultimate reward for those who possess "another spirit" is admittance into the glories of an eternal heaven, where they shall reign forever in the presence of the eternal God. Faithfulness requires another spirit: one that is the opposite of the natural and earthly. The Lord needs those with another spirit, a spirit that will stand up against the evil of others. It is an easy thing to conform to the style and wishes of others. It is easy to think as others think, for then we know that we are like others. Thus, we may lose our individuality. It takes men with "another spirit" to follow God today.

Loss of Principles Through Compromise

THE one great tragedy in our present age is that the people seem to have lost their sense of proper evaluation. Many times we are prone to measure the usefulness of a life by the number of years it has accumulated rather than by the number of good deeds it has achieved. Addison once said, "He who would pass his declining years with honor and comfort, should, when young, consider that he may one day become old, and remember when he is old, that he has once been young."

When we are young is the opportune time to build a life of such worth and character as shall make good reading in our book of memories when we have come to the time of senility and infirmity and oft find our longest and most frequent journeys are to retrace the paths of past years. How rich are the memories of youth when there are no chapters marked with frequent blots of contamination or pages blotched with the stain of shame! But alas! we find still the truth of the old adage, "Experience is the best teacher," and often find that the best advice offered to the young and uninitiated is but a futile gesture.

After we have grown old is the time we are really able to evaluate the true worth of some of our most beautiful memories. Things that at that time seemed odious and unnecessary are now remembered as gems of unparalleled worth. The lessons of self-denial that seemed foolish and unfair to us then now are seen as tests of true character and self-effacement. We remember with thankfulness the many nights that our play was interrupted for the period of Bible reading and prayer.

Our people have, it seems, lost their ability to evaluate principles. Principles should be a passion in our lives for right and truth. Today too many principles are being sacrificed for compromise. Too often we find, as Tyron Edwards said, "compromise to be but the sacrifice of one good or right in the hope of retaining another, and too often ending in the loss of both." Human rights and principles have been abandoned by the affliction of compromise from the very beginning of time. Compromise will buy us nothing but shame; and if we seek rest and glory, it can only be found in and through everlasting principles.

Compromise in the life of Samson caused him to lose the fellowship of God. And he awoke out of his sleep and said, "I will go out as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the Lord was departed from him" (Judges 16:20). Also we find that compromise brought about the downfall of Saul, for in 1 Samuel 28:15, we find Saul making this sad confession to Samuel, whom the witch of Endor had called up: "God is departed from me, and answereth me no more." What a great price compromise does demand of us!

We, as a nation, have come a long way from the time of Patrick Henry; also we have departed a long way from his concept of integrity and principle. In those days men were ready to defend, if need be, their principles with their very lives. "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but, as for me, give me liberty or give me death." So spoke this great man, whose belief in principle, along with that of countless contemporaries, helped to carve out of a wilderness colony a nation of unsurpassed prestige and power. But alas! we could barter all these priceless heritages through compromise for a will-o-the-wisp called security, or a transient bauble called peaceful coexistence. There can be no peaceful coexistence with sin. Jesus said, "Either make the tree good or corrupt, for a good tree doth not bring forth evil fruit, neither an evil tree good fruit."

There is a period in biblical history known as the Maccabean period, during which time the Maccabees fought countless battles with their enemies and the enemies of their God. In all those conquests we find the people aided and abetted by the hand of God, winning battles against overwhelming odds, outnumbered at times by as much as ten to one but gaining victory through faith and an adherence to Christian principles.

Through some strange quirk common to the weakness of men, the people finally lost the evaluation of right and truth and sought alliance with the nations of the heathen, thereby losing fellowship and contact with God and bringing about the conquest of the Jewish people by the Romans, under whose power we find them at the resumption of history at the beginning of the New Testament.

We can easily lose contact with our Counselor by failing to listen to the voice of our conscience when we refuse to relinquish some habit or some vice that we try to tell ourselves is really no harm. For if we continue to tell ourselves a thing over and over enough, it seems to become a truth to us.

Learn to channel your thoughts in the way of right and of truth. Learn the proper evaluation of faith, fortitude, courage, and the ability to trust God for results; for you will find you are able to believe easily that which you hope for earnestly.

I would like to leave with you these words from the pen of William Paley, English theologian: "In all things preserve integrity; and the consciousness of thine own uprightness will alleviate the toil of business, soften the hardness of ill-success and disappointments, and give thee an humble confidence before God, when the ingratitude of man, or the iniquity of the times may rob thee of other reward."

Christian Education

Kappa Chi Fraternity on College Campus

Pictured above are, standing left to right, Jerry English, J. S. Humphrey, Adrian Grubbs, and Ernest Garner; seated are Charles Sapp, director of Religious Activities, and student Larry Thornton.

These boys, along with Jimmy Webster and Robert Coley, who were not present, represent the future of the church. They are the ministerial students at Mount Olive College.

Kappa Chi is the fraternity they have joined since coming to the college. It serves as the means through which they express their vocation on campus. Its aims are to strengthen the spiritual life of the college through the devoted service of its members. By active participation in campus life, members of Kappa Chi seek to make the claims of Christ for full commitment of life a reality.

Meetings each week are devoted to answering the many questions that arise as a result of their studies, everyday experiences, conflicts, and interpersonal relations. Under the direction of their sponsor, the Rev. Charles Sapp, they seek to come to terms with the issues of contemporary life in the light of the Christian gospel.

March 30 through April 3, they accepted the responsibility for the Religious Meditations, a program heard over Radio Station WDJ5 as a public service. Their messages were taped and will be used clinically in the course, "The Minister and His Work." Through constructive criticism they will seek to help each other improve the content and delivery of their sermons.

Free Will Baptists have just cause to be proud of these fine young men. They are an expression of the life and the hopes of the church. Mount Olive College needs your support if it is to give them access to the Christian culture the church will demand from their ministry.

Church Suffers Little Damage

Anchorage, Alaska—The Rev. Carl Johnson, pastor, reports that the First Free Will Baptist Church here suffered no major damage in the recent earthquake that did millions of dollars damage in the forty-ninth state. The First church is affiliated with the National Association of Free Will Baptists.

In his report the Rev. Mr. Johnson stated, "One who knew the condition of our church would have thought that it would have crashed down like a child's toy building. Yet, when we examined it, we found that the Lord had by His own hand prevented it from suffering any major damage. The church and Sunday school rooms had been slightly separated, and there was a light fixture shaken loose, but it had not broken. Also the oil drums which serve the Sunday school rooms had turned over, and the oil had leaked out considerably."

Thinking at first that the heater in the church was exploding, Mr. Johnson went to check it. He said, "I ran to the doorway between the church and the parsonage and looked at the heater, which is just inside the door. It was not ablaze, though it was at times being lifted from the floor. I cut the switches and told my wife we were having an earthquake. We ran back to the living room to the children; and throwing them prostrate, we lay down over them to protect them with our bodies. My wife was praying aloud as dishes rained from the cabinets and broke upon the floor of the kitchen area. I kept reassuring her that the Lord would protect us from harm.

"All the while I lay upon the floor, I could see the trees outside. They were swaying crazily and the telephone poles seemed to be made out of rubber. The two-story block building next to the church was having cracks appear in it, and blocks fell from the corner as though just stacked without benefit of mortar. . . .

"All this had taken place in a few short minutes, but it had seemed like hours."

Although Mr. Johnson reports that they need nothing desperately at this time, the church will suffer financially. He requests your prayers.

The Bible in Public Worship

Edward B. Annable

WE EVANGELICAL Christians are supposed to be founded on the Bible and grounded in the Bible. Yet we have enough weaknesses in our knowledge and use of the Word to stop our pastoring and start us "digging." I have attended some formal, liturgical services where pastor and people read far more Scripture than many evangelical rallies and "revivals." Some of the latter had no Scripture but the sermon text. A large display pulpit Bible, or one propped open at the altar or communion table, is no substitute for reading it.

In the far past, God purposely called men of learning to record His words of law, prophecy, poetry, promise, gospel, teaching, and—faith. This collection is still the world's finest literature. And God has required His people from the beginning to gather together and hear His Word read (Joshua 8:30-35).

With public schools and civic functions now being closed to this treasury of truth and blessing, how the church must rally to the task of proclaiming the Word, in the pulpit and out of it. Yet one city pastor recently listed his sermon topic: "For the Love of Mike!" Oh, he made out a fair message: "Mike" was a boy who got lost, they hunted until they found him, and so should we hunt for boys and girls who are lost to the church and Kingdom. But what a revival we need of solid Bible preaching, teaching, reading, memorizing—and living it!

How shall we go at it? An effective beginning can be in our public services. All it will cost will be some digging into the Word by pastors and leaders, then using the selections with proper variety.

Let each service open and close with God's Word. A "Call to Worship" can be just that: not an opening formalism, but a summons to each man, woman, youth and child to hear God! He Himself gave such calls (Exodus 20:2; Psalm 49:1; Isaiah 1:2, 10). Since the Scriptures have a wealth of rich, timely sentences for opening a service, what a loss if we merely say Sunday after Sunday, "We'll open our service by singing number. . . ."

We suggest each pastor go to the Psalms, select and mark the lines suitable for opening a service, then use them the rest of his ministerial life. The first verses of Psalm 1 make an excellent introduction to worship. Recite them in a strong, clear voice, and stress the climatic words in Verse 2—"delight," "Lord," "meditate." If necessary, condense a passage, using its leading sentences: "Blessed is the man . . . [whose] delight is in the law of the Lord. . . . And he shall be like a tree . . . that bringeth forth his fruit in his season. . . . The ungodly are not so. . . ."

Then he may continue: "Let us 'delight in the Lord' this morning, and 'meditate' while we sing with John Newton (author of 'Amazing Grace') his fine hymn: 'How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds.' It is number. . . ."

A pastor can find enough choice sentences in the Psalms alone to use a whole year before repeating them. Here are a few to start the list: 4:3, 5; 5:3, 7; 7:10, 17; 9:1, 2; 11:4, 7; 13:5, 6; 15:1, 2; 18:1-3a.

Next, the church's singing should be related to the Word. It is regrettable that so few hymnals have a Scripture or Topical Index. But a pastor who knows his Bible (and woe to him if he is not striving daily to know it!) can match subjects, hymns, and Scripture readings.

It is well, occasionally, to point out the Scripture basis of a hymn just before singing it, or very briefly between stanzas. "Lord, in the Morning," is from Psalm 5; "Jesus Shall Reign," from Psalm 72; "Sow in the Morn Thy Seed," is from Ecclesiastes 11:6 and Mark 4:26-29. Hymns by Watts, Wesley, Montgomery, Havergal, and others are very rich in scriptural content. Use such hymns often. They feed our congregations in mind and soul.

And now, the Readings: The pastor is most responsible for making these effective. He will select them with care, and put meaning into every word. Mumbling and stumbling over them is unforgivable! Drill in advance on any hard words or names. You can learn to pronounce propitiation and Epaphroditus if you use the dictionary and other helps, and the brain cells.

Readings should not be too long, but should teach something definite. Read with clearness, force, and even "fire." Make Nehemiah 8:8 your pattern and your practice. (Look it up right now, lest you forget it.)

Readings should engage both pastor and people. So urge them to open their Bibles and follow you. Read the Psalms responsively, and certain key verses in unison. The custom of standing to read is scriptural (Neh. 8:5), yet it can become a mere formalism.

Are there Bibles in the pews? It helps visitors if you check readings in advance and announce the page in those Bibles, with the reference. Even some regular church-goers cannot find Isaiah or Colossians quickly. But worst of all are those pastors who string out this monstrosity: "We are reading this morning from the first twelve verses of the fourth chapter of the first letter of the Apostle Paul to the church at Thessalonica!"

And after the reading, I wonder if a simple "Amen," or striking up that

State Sunday School Convention

Plans are about complete for the twenty-fourth Annual Session of the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Sunday School Convention at East Rockingham church on Thursday, April 23. Free Will Baptist Sunday school officers, teachers, and other Sunday school enthusiasts from all areas of the state are expected to attend this year's convention. The most extensive publicity ever given one of the state Sunday school conventions to date has been given this meeting.

Here are some of the highlights of the program as planned by the committee:

The theme of the convention will be "Send Them Out," the emphasis being on Sunday school evangelism.

The convention speaker will be the Rev. Raymond T. Sasser, president of the convention for seventeen of the twenty-three years of its history. His message will be on the theme for the day, "Send Them Out."

Special music and singing will be featured on the program.

Two workshops, one for men and one for women, will present the subject, "The Challenge to Sunday School Evangelism." Each will be directed by a person carefully selected for workshop ability.

The representatives of all "Honor Roll" schools will have their picture taken in a body at the noon hour, and each school will be given one of the large pictures to carry back home for display. The Honor Roll requirements this year are as follows: Have the pastor or superintendent (or both) present. Have a delegate present to officially represent the school. Have at least two other officers or teachers of the school present. Make a minimum donation of at least $10 to the convention fund.

An elaborate display prepared by the field secretary and the various department directors will present the work of all our state institutions and enterprises.

The Rev. Walter Carter, pastor, and the East Rockingham church join the officers of the convention in inviting all who can possibly do so to attend.

The Rev. Clyde Cox of Pine Level, North Carolina, will be the evangelist for revival services at the Palmer Memorial Free Will Baptist Mission, Raleigh, North Carolina, April 20-25. The Rev. Ed Taylor, pastor of the mission, will assist in the services which will begin each evening at 7:30.

Everyone is invited to attend. Your prayers are requested for the success of the meeting.

Lanwood Chapel Announces Revival

The Lanwood Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, near Smithfield, North Carolina, announces that revival services will begin on April 26 and continue through May 2. The evangelist for these services will be the Rev. C. M. Coates. Services will begin each evening at 7:30. Mr. Coates will be assisted by the pastor, the Rev. H. M. Minschew.

Revival and Homecoming At Plymouth Church

Revival services will be held at the Free Will Baptist Church of Plymouth North Carolina, April 27—May 3, with the Rev. Clyde Cox of Pine Level, North Carolina, as the evangelist. The pastor, the Rev. Earl Minchew, will assist in the services which will begin each evening at 7:30.

On Sunday, May 3, Mr. Cox will deliver the morning message at the annual homecoming service of the church. At the noon hour a picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds. Then in the afternoon a song service will be held.

The pastor and the church invite the public to come worship with them during the revival and at the homecoming. Especially are former members and pastors invited to the homecoming. All singers who will come are invited to take a part in the song service on May

Rev. Everton to Conduct King's Cross Roads Revival

The Rev. Wilbert Everton will be the guest minister for revival services at King's Cross Roads Free Will Baptist Church near Farmville, North Carolina. Services will begin Sunday night, April 19, at 7:30, and will continue through Saturday night, April 25. Special singing is being planned for each service.

The pastor, the Rev. L. B. Manning, and the church extend a cordial welcome to the public to attend these services.

Tarboro Church Announces Spring Revival

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

NEW MISSION AT FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

Pictured above is the newly-organized Free Will Baptist Mission in Fayetteville, North Carolina. The director of the mission is Mr. Taylor Hill, and the assistant director is Mr. J. K. Adcox. Both Mr. Hill and Mr. Adcox are members of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Goldsboro, and the mission is being sponsored by the Goldsboro church.

Mr. Hill reports that things are progressing nicely. Sunday school is being held at 9:45 a. m. each Sunday with worship service at 11 a. m. Services are also held on Wednesday evening at 8 p. m.

Your support is needed for this mission work. You may send your contributions to: First Free Will Baptist Mission, 311 Bryan Street, Fayetteville, North Carolina.

S. O. S. from Roanoke Rapids

A weekly report dated April 6 from Missionary Noah Brown includes the following urgent message to Free Will Baptists of the Central Conference of North Carolina:

"The new rolls that were made yesterday reveal that we have 64 pupils enrolled in the Sunday school. If we had the room to put others, I am sure that we could have one hundred or more by the time the annual conference meets. I wish you would send out some S. O. S. signals to the good people in the conference and tell them of the God-given opportunity we have here. We would like to get a church here just as soon as possible so we can move on to the next field."

The average attendance during the month of March at the Roanoke Rapids Mission was 38 for Sunday school, 39 for morning worship, 17 for evening worship, and 14 for prayer meeting. Average weekly offerings amounted to $26. On first Sunday morning in April 38 were present for Sunday school and 49 for the worship service. Two made professions of faith.

Total offerings for March, which were turned over to the conference missions treasurer, were $130.

Copies of the missions report for the period since the Central Conference met through March 23 are still available for those who did not receive one at the union meetings or Sunday school conventions. Write the Rev. Raymond Sasser for a copy.

The board of missions expresses gratitude for your support, but the challenge is still great. The building at Roanoke Rapids is too small. They need some money now to close in the back porch and two small buildings to make additional Sunday school rooms. The Rev. Mr. Sasser writes, "Shall we say, 'We can't furnish any more room, so don't try to win any more souls to Christ, and don't invite any more to Sunday school to be taught the Word of God?'"

The goal, "An Original Free Will Baptist Church in Every Town" will not be an easy one to accomplish. It will take hard work and faithful prayers and contributions by every Free Will Baptist church. Make your checks payable to Central Conference Missions, and mail them to 108 Hope Lodge Street, Tarboro, North Carolina.

special music each night by the church choir and visiting groups.

The evangelist is a former member of the church, having answered the call to preach soon after moving from the community. He was reared near Greenville, and his folks were members of the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church of Pitt County.

The church extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend these services and be much in prayer for the revival.

Core Creek Announces Revival April 20-25

The Core Creek Free Will Baptist Church of Cove City, North Carolina, announces its spring revival April 20-25. The Rev. Sheldon Howard of Walstonburg, North Carolina, will be the guest minister.

A cordial invitation is extended everyone to attend these services.

REPORT OF PEE DEE CONVENTION

The Pec Dee Woman's Auxiliary Convention met on April 4 at Beaver Dam Free Will Baptist Church near Bladenboro, North Carolina. It is reported that a nice convention was held, but the women of the district express a desire for greater representation, since only three churches were represented at this meeting.

CAPE FEAR WOMAN'S AUXILIARY REPORT

The ladies of the Cape Fear Auxiliary Convention of North Carolina were graciously entertained by the women of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Smithfield on April 8. Only two auxiliaries failed to represent at the convention.

The devotional thought centered around the day's theme, "Stewardship in the Life of Women." Danny Coates sang "My Task." Various reports were made and projects were given. The Scripture for Mrs. Ballard's message was taken from I Peter 4:8-10. "As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another" were the words used as a basis for the message. Webster's definition of the word stewardship, "Managing the affairs of the true owner," was given. Mrs. Ballard reminded the women of the many gifts God has given. "In thankfulness for all God has given, we should practice the systematic and proportionate giving of our time, talents, and possessions," she said. Giving is a part of the divine plan for man's enrichment.

Two students from Mount Olive College also spoke. Miss Winnifred Averett told of her work with the Arizona-Mexico Missions last summer. Miss Barbara Becton spoke of the opportunity for obtaining a Christian education in our own college at Mount Olive.

Kay Barbour of Johnston Union church delivered the YFA essay and Kathy Boob of the Smithfield church delivered the AFC essay. Their essays were written about the beliefs of the Free Will Baptists. Ann Gilbert of Bethel church delivered the YFA declamation on "Stewardship." Each of these were well delivered. We are proud of our young people who take time from their busy schedules to have a part in the work of the church.

NORTH CAROLINA WOMAN'S AUXILIARY CONVENTION

The thirty-seventh annual session of the North Carolina Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary Convention will convene with Lee's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Dunn, North Carolina, on May 7. The theme will be "Ye Are God's Building." The Scripture will be ". . . ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building" (I Corinthians 3:9). The hymn for the convention will be "To the Work." The thought for the day: "May we never forget that we are of the household of God and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and the prophets, Jesus Christ being the chief cornerstone in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple of the Lord." The program is as follows:

Morning Session

- 9:30—Advanced Registration
- 10:00—Hymn, "To the Work"
—Invocation, the Rev. Walter Reynolds
—Devotional, Mrs. James Evans
- 10:15—Welcome, Mrs. R. Y. Stephenson

The music director for the convention will be the Rev. Clyde Cox with Mrs. Ruth Taylor as organist.

STATE YOUTH FELLOWSHIP MEETING

The North Carolina State Youth Fellowship Convention will meet Saturday, April 18, 10 a. m., at the Sherron Acres Free Will Baptist Church, which is located just off Highway 70, about six miles east of Durham, North Carolina.

The state declamation and essay contests will be held at this time. There will be special music and lunch will be served by the host church at a minimum cost.

Kinston, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Free Will Baptist Church met on Monday night, April 15, in the educational building of that church. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. James C. Lucas. The group sang "Let Others See Jesus in You," and the pastor, the Rev. A. Bryan, offered the prayer. Twenty members were present with nine daughters. Bible readers, the secretary, Mrs. William E. Tyndall, read the minutes of the last meeting. Reports were given from the following committees: enlistment, youth, study course, and benevolence. Reports were also given from Circles 1, 2, and 4. After a thorough discussion the auxiliary voted to sponsor the organization of another youth group, the "Cherubs."

Mrs. W. B. Warren, benevolence chairman, offered her thanks to all those who helped prepare the food for the recent youth convention held at that church.

It was announced that a study course on "Evangelism" would be taught by the Rev. A. B. Bryan on April 15, 22, 29, and possibly on May 6. All members were urged to attend this course.

Mrs. Charles Lancaster gave a most interesting report on the recent auxiliary convention. She especially emphasized the resolution recently adopted at that convention urging each auxiliary member to write her Congressman or Senator.

in regard to keeping God in the public school devotions.

It was also announced that the May Fellowship Day would be held on May 1, at 10:30 a. m., at the Westminster Methodist Church.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Charles Lancaster presented a most interesting program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do," with the Scripture being taken from Philippians 4:8-13. The meeting closed with the auxiliary motto.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Mt. Zion Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting on March 24 at the home of Mrs. James Crocker. The program chairman, Mrs. Harry R. Johnson, had charge of the program which began with the singing of "Jesus Saves." She then read the Scripture taken from John 10:11-18, followed with prayer by Mrs. James Crocker. Those assisting with the program were Mrs. Aaron Lewis, Mrs. Clovis Boykin, Mrs. Franklin Cockrell, Mrs. James Crocker, and Mrs. Henry L. Johnson. After the ladies presented the program, a general discussion was held on how the auxiliary could be of more help to the Free Will Baptist missionaries on the field. The program came to a close with prayer by Mrs. Ressie Johnson.

During the business session the secretary called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. The treasurer's report was given and the members voted to send $10 to Mount Olive College to be contributed toward the $1,000 fund. Mrs. Henry L. Johnson and Mrs. Cecil Boswell were elected as delegates to the Western Auxiliary Convention.

Walstonburg, N. C.—The AFC of Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church met on Tuesday night, March 28, at the church. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Sue Holloman. She welcomed the group, including one new member. The program was presented by the sponsor, Mrs. Peggy Gay. She explained the fourth commandment and expressed the importance of keeping Sunday a holy day in our lives. The program closed with prayer.

During the business period various committee reports were given. The treasurer's report was given and the monthly dues were collected. There was a general discussion concerning the different projects that the group could work toward for this year.

After the meeting adjourned Mrs. Thomas Strickland served cookies, nuts, and cold drinks to the group.

REV. WILLET L. MORETZ
SWANNANOVA, N. C.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a lamp unto my path (PSALM 119:105).

The matter of the influence we exert over those with whom we come in contact, whether it be good or bad, is of such great importance that I am taking my space again this week to give some more quotations which give the results of examples of good lives in influencing others to great things for God. It is my fervent prayer that those who read these will strive to be examples of good that will influence all who know them to seek only the better things of life.

The prayer life of Christians is very important. The following story answers the often asked question, Should we pray for the unsaved? "One night, out on the North Sea, a Christian fisherman felt an overwhelming anxiety with reference to the salvation of his son, a young fisherman on another boat. So powerful was his impression about his boy's need that he knelt down just where he was beside the wheel, and pleaded with God to bring his son into the light. When he returned to the harbor and met his boy, who had arrived about the same time, he learned from him that he had yielded to God out on the rolling waters. They compared notes, and found that while the father had been praying the Lord was working, and that the anxiety of the father had found its answer in the response of the son." That father had influence over his son, and, more important, power with God.

"A Christian man was giving away Gospel tracts on board a steamer. A gentleman who accepted one in a gracious way, said, 'I have not much faith in that kind of work? Said the Christian, 'It was through a Gospel tract given to me in Glasgow twenty years ago that I was converted.' The gentleman showed considerable interest, and asked for particulars. On hearing the young man's story about the tract, the gentleman said, 'I am the one who gave you the tract. For years I ceaselessly distributed tracts but I saw so little result from my efforts that years ago I ceased scattering them. But by the grace of God I shall start again.'"

Let us not forget the words of Isaiah 55:10, 11: "For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: So shall my word that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." Or those of Ecclesiastes 11:1, "Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days."

In closing, I ask you to consider the following illustration which is applicable to you and me as well as to Mr. Wray:

"Years ago now, a young Princetonian named Wray applied, and was accepted for foreign mission work. Wray was not a brilliant student, and when he reached the sphere of his prospective labors, he had considerable difficulty with the language. But though the natives could not understand his talk they could understand his walk. One day while sitting in a circle on the ground listening to the instruction of their teachers, the question was asked them, 'What is it to be a Christian?' For a minute or so, there was silence. Then one of the natives, pointing to this young man, said: 'It is to live as Mr. Wray lives'; and the rest burst into a round of applause, clapping their hands vigorously. Not one of them could read the Gospel according to Matthew, to Mark, to Luke, or to John; but everyone of them could read the Gospel according to Wray."

"Ye are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men" (2 Corinthians.3:2).

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

"I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do or any kindness I can show to any fellow human being let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."—Stephen Grellet.

A POPULAR preacher is admired by the majority of his congregation for the worst parts of his sermon.—John Ruskin.

GOD AND PERSONS CAN BE SINNED AGAINST

The sin against the Holy Ghost substantiates the fact that the Holy Ghost is a person; He can be sinned against. Jesus warned of this danger. "Verily I say unto you, All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme: But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation" (Mark 3:28, 29).

THE ATTRIBUTES OF THE HOLY GHOST

The same attributes that are ascribed unto God are ascribed to the Holy Ghost. The Scriptures ascribe to the Holy Ghost the acts and attributes of an intelligent being. He guides; He knows; He moves; He gives information; He commands; He forbids; He sends forth; He reproves; and as is shown above, He can be sinned against.

He is eternal, omnipotent, omnipresent, and omniscient. The works of God are ascribed to the Holy Ghost in creation, inspiration, giving of life, and sanctification. ". . . And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters" (Genesis 1:2). This shows that the Holy Ghost was with the Father and the Son when God said, "Let us create." Listen to Job: "The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life" (Job 33:4). The Apostle Paul asserted that the Holy Ghost is Lord and God: "Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty" (2 Corinthians 3:17).

The same acts which in one part of the Bible are attributed to the Holy Ghost are in other parts said to be performed by God; for instance, "Also I heard the voice of the Lord, . . . And he said, Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not . . ." (Isaiah 6:8, 9). Here the prophet says that the Lord said "Go," but the apostle in Acts says that the Holy Ghost said "Go"; so God speaks through the person of the Holy Ghost. "And when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet unto our fathers, Saying, Go unto this people, and say, Hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive" (Acts 28:25, 26).

THE REVELATION OF THE HOLY GHOST

During the age of the Old Testament, the Holy Ghost came upon those who were being used in a special way for the work of the Lord and prepared them for the special task and the supernatural performance of their duty. He gave David power to slay the giant Goliath, to kill a bear with his bare hands, and to perform such work as he was commanded by the Lord. He gave Samson power to squeeze the life out of a lion; and after Samson sinned and was taken captive by the enemies of God, he prayed for power and God sent the Holy Ghost. Samson was able by the mighty power to put an end to the cruelty of these Philistines.

During the ministry of Jesus on the earth, He taught that the Holy Ghost would come upon and into a believer by the person's asking the Father: "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" (Luke 11:13). As Jesus was closing out His earthly ministry, He promised to pray the Father that He would send the Comforter: "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever" (John 14:16). Christ came to His disciples after His resurrection, breathed upon them, and said, ". . . Receive ye the Holy Ghost" (John 20:22). But these disciples were told to wait for the promise: "And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high" (Luke 24:49).

Then in the Acts of the Apostles (The Acts of the Holy Ghost), Jesus said, "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth" (1:8). "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing might wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting" (Acts 2:1, 2). The sound filled the house. The Holy Ghost can only fill the lives of willing, yielded persons who believe with all their heart on the Lord Jesus Christ. These latter verses reveal the fact that the people were "sitting" just where God had commanded, waiting for the promise; that is, they had faith. They believed what had been preached to them by the Lord Jesus.

After Pentecost, while the gospel was being preached to the Jews only, the Holy Ghost was imparted to believers by the laying on of the hands of the apostles; but when the gospel was carried to the Gentiles, it was a faith proposition, as it was at Pentecost. We will let Peter speak at this point: "And the Spirit bade me go with them (that is, with the men that were sent up from the household of Cornelius) nothing doubting. Moreover these six brethren accompanied me, and when we entered into the man's house: And he shewed us how he had seen an angel in his house, which stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter; Who shall tell the words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved. And as I began to speak, The Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning. Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost. Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; . . . When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life" (Acts 11:12-18).

So at Pentecost the Holy Ghost came upon the believers—the whole body of believers—in the formation of the church—binding them together into one body—one family—the Bride of the Lord Jesus as they waited and trusted the promise of the Lord. Likewise, the Holy Ghost fell on the Gentiles as on the other believers at Pentecost because they believed the Word of God. So by faith they received the blessing. This procedure has been the method of bestowing the Holy Ghost since the gospel was brought to the Gentiles. All believers are baptized into the body: "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit" (1 Corinthians 12:13).

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Is baptism essential?—A. R. Wiggins, Texas.

ANSWER: It is indeed essential. Unless a person has been baptized into the mystical or spiritual body of Christ; and unless he has been immersed into water, he is coming short in that act of obedience which the Scriptures require. The preacher who preaches and wins converts in that way has not finished the joy until he has baptized them or seen to it that they are baptized in order that he complete the whole task the Scripture requires of him. He must see to it that they have sufficient teaching by his precept and example that they participate in the Lord's Supper which consists in taking the bread and wine and washing the saints' feet. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world" (Matthew 28:19, 20). "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching" (Hebrews 10:24, 25).

In the first of these verses it is required of the followers of Christ that they make and baptize other followers of their Lord from all peoples of the earth. In the second it is required of them that they must worship and fellowship together; but that is not all which Christ requires, for He both taught by example and by direct command as to what should be done in these meetings together. "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins" (Matthew 26:26-29). (Read and compare Luke 22:15-20.)

"For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread: And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body" (I Corinthians 11:23-29).

The Free Will Baptist doctrine which I have known since I first thought seriously on this subject admonished the church members that taking communion at the Lord's table is a wonderful privilege, not to be made or thought lightly of, but that serious results might be expected of those who in any way abused this privilege. I have known some Christians, who were not sure that their living sufficiently reflected Christ to make it advisable that they partake the sacred emblems, to refrain until time and thoughts were given in meditation, fasting, confession of sins, and prayer until they gained full assurance that their sins were forgiven. This might sound foolish to people with a Calvinistic background, or to those who have never taken their religion seriously, but not to a Free Will Baptist brought up in my locality. When I was growing up, we were taught that it was a very serious matter when one handled such sacred things with careless hands.

"Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world" (I Corinthians 11:27-32).

In some of the churches with which I was acquainted a week or more in the fall of the year was given to what some called a protracted meeting or revival. In my home church it generally preceded and closed on the third Sunday in October. That was the weekend of the last quarterly meeting of the year, and the one in which a yearly business meeting took place. The converts were generally baptized either Saturday or Sunday afternoon, received into the church by the right hand of welcome, followed by a ceremony in which the hands of ministers and deacons were placed on their heads and they were dedicated to God for whatever service He might see fit to call them into. After this came the Lord's Supper that the candidates took part in with the other members. Usually when it comes to the feet washing, some older members would wash the new members' feet. To me those were indeed sacred occasions, and I wish that our churches that have gotten away from this practice would give up some of the new-fangled ideas that have replaced those ancient practices.

"Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God; He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a bason; and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded" (John 13:3-5). "Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head. Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all" (continued on page fifteen)

by James Hilton Pride

FRANK GONZALES, like most other young people, wanted the most he could get out of life. In his early teens, he thought he was off to a good start. He and his trumpet were going places!

The 13-year-old prodigy felt right at home under the spotlights. Frank had excellent poise, and everyone admired his smooth, rich tones. His slight figure appeared very attractive under the bright lights — black, well-groomed hair, an all-out smile, and brown eyes which seemed to gleam as brightly as his trumpet.

Night after night, Frank played before applauding crowds at night clubs. By the time he was 16, he was associated with five different dance bands in the Los Angeles area. The applause of the crowd, popularity, friends—all these were his!

But all this time, Frank was rejecting the best Friend he ever had. At the age of nine, Frank had accepted Christ as his personal Saviour. A youth worker had explained the story of the Saviour who died on the cross to save sinners. This story had fascinated him, and Frank eagerly trusted Jesus Christ. His new-found joy had been unsurpassed, but now other things seemed more important than living the Christian life. Trumpet held first place, and the things of God were secondary.

Frank's youthful career continued, but the late hours soon revealed their consequences. His lack of vigor and increasing restlessness soon caused concern on the part of Frank's parents. He was finally forced to see the family doctor.

"Your condition is much more serious than we thought," the doctor commented after diagnosing the case.

"What do you mean?" questioned Frank.

"I'm afraid you'll have to give up your trumpet," replied the doctor slowly, but with a tone of certainty.

Frank laughed and then stalked out of the doctor's office. No doctor was going to keep this young enthusiast from playing trumpet!

The thought of giving up the thing that meant most to him seemed absurd. The doctor must be all wrong. A second doctor was consulted and then a third. They all said the same thing. At last Frank realized that he would have to give in. "It's going to be hard, Doc.," said Frank, his troubled eyes staring intensely toward the floor.

All the excitement and pleasure of recent years came to an abrupt end. It seemed as though life had no purpose now. Frank went home from the doctor's office and quietly put his trumpet in its case and placed it in the closet out of sight. He wanted to cry, but he considered himself too much a man for that.

The next day, Mrs. Gonzales drove her 17-year-old son to the sanitorium in San Fernando Valley. Frank said good-by to his home, his friends—and his trumpet.

It took only a few days for Frank to become oriented to his new surroundings. The doctors and nurses in their white uniforms intrigued him. He met new friends there, too. He found that George, the fellow in the bed next to him, was excellent company. The two young patients passed the long hours playing checkers and keeping each other amused.

One Sunday afternoon after Frank had been in the sanitorium for several weeks, he decided to listen to the ball game on the radio, and the first thing he heard was the strains of "Heavenly Sunshine." It was the Old Fashioned Revival Hour. The words of that chorus sounded to Frank like the rippling brook sounds to the thirsty wayfarer. Recollections of the joy he had had in his heart, when he first became a Christian, flooded his mind and soul.

Then he thought of his recent life in the night clubs and all the sin he had seen there. What a contrast! For the first time, he realized that he had been robbed of the peace and joy he once had as a young Christian.

George interrupted Frank's silence. "Did you get the ball game?" he asked.

"Uh . . . no . . . something else . . . music . . . reminds me of that happiness I had in my heart when I first became a Christian," Frank answered hesitantly.

"A Christian?" asked George, as though he didn't quite understand what his friend had just said.

"Yes," answered Frank. "I'll never forget the morning I gave my heart to Christ. It was wonderful!"

"Oh, you're one of those religious fellows, eh?"

"But it really worked, George! I knew Christ had forgiven me. I must have been the happiest fellow alive." Then pausing, Frank added, "But it's different now. Maybe you won't understand," he explained, "but I've become so busy with my trumpet that I guess I've forgotten all about being a Christian. I thought I was making other people happy, but now I see that there's something missing in my own life—and now I'm here."

Frank didn't say another word as he listened to the remainder of the program. That night, when all the lights were out, he prayed and settled things with God. It was the first time he had prayed in a long time. Tears overflowed his eyes as he buried his face in his pillow. "Dear God," he prayed earnestly, "forgive me for the way I've acted. If You give me back my health, I promise I'll live for You. Please God! I ask in Jesus' name."

God did answer his prayer. A few weeks later Frank was released from the sanitorium. As for his promise to the Lord, it didn't last very long. In a few weeks, he was back to his old way of life. His mother pled with him to keep his promise to the Lord, but Frank sisted on having a good time as a jockey and associating with his former friends. Three months later, Frank was back in the sanatorium. Again he promised the Lord that he would give his life in full surrender to Him. For the second time, he was released but again he broke his vow with the Lord. Frank knew that the Lord wanted him in full-time Christian work, but he refused to commit himself. When Frank entered the sanatorium the third time, it was more difficult than ever!

It wasn't long before Frank became so robust that the doctors had a problem on their hands. Frank pled with the Lord to let him out, but the Lord had a purpose in keeping him there.

One morning, Dr. Fairday presented his proposition. "How's our boy today?" greeted the doctor.

"The nurse says O. K., and I agree," Frank replied, with all the enthusiasm he could muster.

"I was looking over your chart, and it looks pretty good," continued Dr. Fairday.

"Does that mean I'll soon be able to get out of here?"

"No. We better keep you here for a while yet. How would you like to do something a bit different? We need your help in our X-ray room. How about helping us for about two hours a day?"

"That would be great!" responded Frank.

"Good! We'll be counting on you at ten tomorrow morning," remarked the doctor, stepping into the corridor.

Promptly at ten the next morning, Frank met Dr. Fairday in the X-ray room. The doctor introduced Frank to Ruth Walters, and then left immediately. Ruth was a technician in the X-ray department.

"You'll look just like the doctor himself in this," exclaimed Ruth, handing Frank a neat, white jacket. Her voice was soft and sincere, and Frank wasn't long in determining that she was one of the most charming girls he had ever met.

"Before we begin, Frank, do you mind I ask a question?"

"Not at all," replied Frank, smiling.

"I noticed you walking down the corridor the other day with a Bible in your hand. Are you a Christian?"

"Yes, I am. You are too?"

"I trusted Christ at a youth rally a little over a year ago," explained Ruth. Frank then explained how he had been saved about nine years ago. He went on to tell how God hadn't had first place in his life. "That's why I'm here," concluded Frank. "I guess the Lord is teaching me a lesson." Ruth nodded with an understanding smile.

That day was the beginning of a lasting friendship, as far as Ruth and Frank were concerned. In fact, it was love at first sight.

After several months, Frank regained his health and remained at the sanatorium to work full time in the laboratory. He liked the work, and he was exceedingly fond of the young lady who worked in the X-ray department.

Frank endeavored to live for the Lord, but he was still unwilling to surrender all to Him. He had big ambitions. Ruth shared those ambitions with him. A year and a half later they were engaged and made plans to be married.

The future looked brighter than it ever had before. Frank now had a good job, his health, and most of all—Ruth! What else could a fellow want?

All this time, Frank still felt that God was calling him into His service, but he was still unwilling to surrender. He felt that he could give God his second best and still receive God's best for himself.

Then, Valentine's Day came. They had made big plans for this occasion, but Ruth and Frank didn't spend Valentine's Day together the way they had planned. Early that morning, Ruth had an emergency operation and passed away under the anesthetic. Frank couldn't believe the news! The one whom he loved had left this life before he had even a chance to say a parting word.

Once again dark clouds of discouragement overtook him. For days after the funeral, Frank sat alone in his room trying to reconcile what had happened. He rebelled against the Lord with all his heart. Didn't God know how much he loved Ruth? He decided that he had had enough of the Christian life.

Day after day he went to Ruth's lonely grave. "Why? Why? Why?" he repeatedly exclaimed aloud, choked with emotion. "Why, God, why did You do it?"

It wasn't until Frank decided to continue his education that he again took an interest in life. The girl with the soft, black curls, brown eyes and radiant smile hadn't faded out of his thoughts, but he began to realize that he had to make the most of his life. One day in his room Frank began to consider his past life. "God must still love me," he thought. "I've put other things before the Lord. First, it was my trumpet, and then Ruth. I can only ask why He still loves me when I have been so unfaithful to Him."

It was a wholehearted surrender that Frank made to the Lord that day. God wanted a complete sacrifice of Frank's life to Him. God didn't take away his trumpet! Frank is using it now in the service of Christ. The spotlights of the dance bands seem empty and meaningless now compared to the joy of being in God's will.

At present, Frank has completed his studies at a Christian university and is serving the Lord in evangelistic efforts. Already hundreds of young people have come to know Christ as personal Saviour through Frank's testimony of a life surrendered to the will of God.—My Delight.

ON BUILDING AN IMAGE

by HARRISON RAY ANDERSON

I understand that there are men whose business it is to do this for corporations or unions or individuals. They are hired to present and to represent a favorable likeness to the community of the party or person concerned. They are portrait painters, and so often a portrait is the way one wishes to appear, while a picture is the way you are.

Politicians are often adept at imagery. By radio, TV, speeches, interviews, they create a likeness before the public. The likeness may be far removed from the man seen each morning in the mirror as he shaves, or from the person the family sees at dinner. The best of journalism today helps the public to match the image with the man. When the public begins to realize that the image and the man do not match, they lose confidence, and the man is on his way out.

We persons need take care here. We, of necessity, must stand before the public often. Often the way the public receives us will help or hinder our work. Often a false impression is created by our foes. So we begin to build an image. The hypocrites stood on the corner and prayed in order to be seen of men. "They live for parade and praise." We would not do that! We would just arrange for the right publicity with the best picture!

How foreign to Christ! And how foreign to our real task of allowing his Holy Spirit to make us over in the likeness of our Saviour.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for April 26

The Christian Loves His Neighbor

LESSON TEXT: I John 4:16—5:3

MEMORY VERSE: I John 4:21

I. INTRODUCTION

Next to the importance of love and respect in the home is the love and respect of our neighbors. The Bible teaches the importance of neighborliness. Jesus said that we are to love our neighbors as ourselves. In the parable of the good Samaritan, we are taught the importance of helping those who are in need. The good Samaritan showed mercy toward the wounded man, and therefore became his neighbor, although he had never seen the wounded man before. This is neighborliness as Christianity would have it to be.

In our day, however, we are rapidly losing the touch of old-fashioned neighborliness. There was a time when people living near each other were more helpful and friendly than they are today. They knew and shared each other's burdens. There were times of visitation and fellowship. There was a closeness that does not exist anymore. For several reasons, we no longer have time for fire-side chats. Television now claims many evenings, as well as other activities that center too much around the family and individual participation. Very few people have the time, or will not take the time, to be a good neighbor. Television and community recreation cannot properly replace neighborliness. By losing touch with one another, we are losing the connecting link, and the day may come when there is no one we have the right to turn to.—Bible Student (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. God is love, and they that dwell in love dwell in God and He in them (v. 16).

2. Sincere love for God keeps us from being afraid of the judgment (v. 17).

3. Perfect love casts out our fear; that is, it removes our dread of God (v. 18).

4. Those who are afraid of Him are deficient in love (v. 18).

5. His love for us is the ground of our love for Him (v. 19).

6. One must love his brother to prove his love for God (v. 20).

7. God commands those who love Him to love their brother (v. 21).

8. All who believe that Jesus is the Christ, and who trust Him as their Saviour, are born of God (v. 1).

9. Obedience to God proves our love for Him (v. 2).

10. Duties imposed by love are never grievous or burdensome (v. 3).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Fear hath torment: The fear that has torment is the fear of terror, fright, and dread of the evil to come. This is the fear of hell and the coming judgment. In this Epistle, the writer has made it clear that all mankind are divided into two great classes: those that are of God and those that are of the world and Satan. Which class we are in depends upon our love for God. Perfect love, which is God's love in us because of our acceptance of Christ as Saviour, will cast out the fear of terror, fright, and dread of the evil to come. To love the Lord as we should, we need the fear of reverence, respect, and adoration. The unsaved do not love God; thus they are fearful of the coming judgment. Urge upon the unsaved of your class to believe on and receive Jesus Christ as Saviour. God loved us and manifested that love for us in the giving of His Son to be the Saviour of the world. We can do no less than respond to the manifestation of love through our personal acceptance of the provisions made for our salvation.—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

2. We often see searchlights scanning the sky at night, not so much to hunt aircraft as to direct the residents of an area to a store or service station. At least three things are necessary to make the searchlight effective. First, it must have a source of power, usually a generator located nearby. Second, the lens of the light must be clean. A layer of mud splashed on the lens limits the amount of light that can get through. A third factor that can also limit the effectiveness of the light is the area into which the light shines. If the atmosphere is foggy, the light will not shine very far.

You and I as Christians are very much like this searchlight. The Christian's love can shine out into the world only if he too has a source of power. God is this source of power. But as with the light there are other factors that may limit a Christian's effectiveness. Selfishness, like a film of dirt may keep the Christian from a more effective witness. One's own interests may keep him away from the Lord's house on His day. Then, too, the difficulty may not always lie in the Christian. Prejudice may keep the rays of love from penetrating the gloom.

A Christian cannot always overcome external conditions in his neighborhood, but he can keep his life clean and free from sins that would hinder his effective witness in the community.—Standard Lesson Commentary.

3. When Dr. Harry A. Ironside was a little boy he heard a missionary from Africa talk. The missionary said, "Boys, I want to tell you what I preach to the people in Africa. How many of you boys are good boys?" Not one boy raised his hand. "Well," said the missionary, "since you are not good boys, I can give you the same message that I give to the people in Africa—God loves bad boys. God loves sinners." Little Harry thought, "That missionary is surely getting mixed up! I have heard people say, 'If you are good, God will love you.'"

The missionary was right! God does love sinners: "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5: 8).

The thing which made William Booth a fiery Salvationist was the indicting statement of an infidel lecturer. The infidel said, "If I believed what you Christians say you believe about a coming judgment and day of reckoning with the resultant eternal lostness of impenitent Christ rejectors, I would crawl on my bare knees on crushed glass all over London, England, both night and day telling women and men to flee from the wrath to come!"

Said Dr. Wernher von Braun, one of the nation's leading missile experts, "I believe there are two forces which move us. One is a belief in judgment when everyone of us has to account for what he did with God's great gift of life on earth. The other is belief in an immortal soul, a soul which will cherish the reward or suffer the penalty decreed in a final judgment."—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

4. From our reading we found the following story, and feel that it is a good example of Christian love. What do you think about it?

"A fascinating story of the Revolutionary War is one about Rev. Peter Miller. Miller was a faithful preacher of the gospel who had a neighbor who hated him and his ministry. Miller and his followers had been much abused by this man. During the war this man was found guilty as a traitor and condemned to be hanged. Miller went to General Washington and pleaded for his life. Washington said, 'I am sorry I cannot spare the life of your friend.' Miller replied, 'This man is not my friend. He is the worst enemy I have.' After hearing the story Washington granted the pardon, which Miller delivered in person, arriving at the execution as the traitor was being led to the scaffold. Upon seeing Miller, he cried out a curse against him. Hardly had the words been spoken than Miller stepped up and presented the pardon, sparing the life of his worst enemy."—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

(John 13:8-10). "So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them" (John 13:12-17).

James Gilmour, the great missionary to Mongolia, said nearly a century ago: "Unprayed for I feel like a diver at the bottom of a river with no connection airline to the surface or like a fireman wielding an empty hose on a burning building. With prayer, I feel like David facing Goliath."—Christian Parent.

Graham Crusades to Be Depicted Graphically

Minneapolis, Minnesota, CNB—The record of the Billy Graham Crusades in the past 15 years will be depicted graphically at the New York World's Fair by a huge world globe revolving constantly at the rate of one revolution per minute in the lobby of the Billy Graham Pavilion near the main entrance to the Fair.

The globe was made in Minneapolis by the Central Machine Works Company, 1234 Central Avenue, as a company donation to the Graham exhibit at the World's Fair.

"We consider this endeavor a God-given opportunity in which we may honor Him and glorify the work He has done through Billy Graham and the Association," Ralph Cullen, sales manager, wrote to George M. Wilson, executive vice president of The Billy Graham Evangelistic Association.

Materials for the globe were donated at a cost of $1500 by some 30 members of the Co-laborer Corps and the Follow-Up Division of the 1961 Billy Graham Upper Midwest Crusade. The group is headed by Ezra Ostergard and Jack Campbell.

Dick Anthony Named 'Festival's' Music Director

Winona Lake, Indiana—Adding another ingredient to its mid-summer "Festival of Missions," in Winona Lake, Indiana, World Vision, Inc. has named Dick Anthony director of all musical programming for the July 19-26 conference.

Dr. Bob Pierce, World Vision's president, said the Festival is a "new dimension" in missionary conference. "Instead of having missionaries report on the national scene," he said, "We are going to have reports and challenge from nationals in person on their respective fields."

The Bible in Public Worship

chorus: "Thy Word have I hid in my heart," is not more edifying than, "Here endeth the reading of. . . ." Let's avoid those ruts that lull us to laxity, and dull our delight in worship.

It should go without saying that the sermon is saturated in the Scriptures. It is no accident that the one preacher today whose pungent, "The Bible says . . .," fills his every message, has been permitted for some fifteen years to preach the Bible to more people than any single living person in all history. All the great preachers of the past have filled their hearts, minds, and tongues with the Word of God. Nothing equals it for truth, power, conviction, edification. Despite all who handle it deceitfully, or the "oppositions of science falsely so called," and despite the profusion of translations, and confusion of court decisions (Illinois, we read, forbids Bible reading in schools, but requires a Bible be provided every convict in its jails)!—despite earth and hell, "Preach the Word, be urgent in season, out of season. . .," wrote the dying Paul in his last charge to Timothy (2 Tim. 4:2, R.V.).

"Finally, my brethren": "The last words as you leave the pulpit should be God's words, not yours. There are a wealth of Scripture doxologies and benedictions, a new one for every service, if you will dig them out and use them. One of the shortest is Romans 16:25-27, but richly edifying if given clear expression and careful emphasis on the key words.

We close with a translation of Romans 15:4, one of many texts about the Scriptures by the great apostle Paul: "For whatever was written aforetime, it was written for our instruction, so that we may have hope, through the patient endurance and the encouragement which the Scriptures give."—The Free Methodist.

Editorial—

AN EDITOR'S FRUSTRATIONS

The editor sighed deeply as he settled behind his desk. "What shall be the subject for this week's editorial?" he asked himself. The question was not a new one. During the last five years, he had written about many subjects. Some of them had been simple; others had been complicated. He had also delved into certain denominational problems that had brought the whirlwind of scorn and contempt upon him. He didn't regret any of his expressed opinions and convictions, but he had prayed that Christians would be more considerate and kind. From time to time, he had written to the ministers of his denomination. He had oftentimes written to the laity—approximately 240 editorials had been written.

He thought about how nice it would be to be the editor of just one monthly publication; then there would only be twelve editorials to write per year, instead of fifty. On second thought, however, he knew that much more could, and had been, accomplished on a weekly basis. Then he considered how nice it would be to put all his time on just this one publication; but such was not possible. He knew that the other twenty-one quarterly publications claimed most of his time and efforts.

Other thoughts entered his mind—spring is a bad time for editor and office workers. My how he would like to be able to get out in the bright warm sun and go fishing, or do some work in the yard at home, or take a leisurely drive to some favorite spot with the family—but there is a deadline to meet here in the office—duty calls loud and clear. The manuscript has to be completed for the typesetter. Those proofs have to be checked or printing will be held up. When this deadline is met, there will be another, and another, and another.

"There must be something easier in life," he thought. But, on the other hand, he had tried, only to discover that deep inside there was the desire to do just what he was doing—to wrestle with deadlines, to write to check and recheck, to mark and remark, to ponder, fret, and fume; but to finally realize that in this he found inner satisfaction. Nothing could take its place. Ease, profit, and appreciation are not a part of the job, but he knew that a faithful life promises us none of these things.

"We need more news items and more feature articles," he thought. For some reason, they hadn't been coming in as consistently as they once did. The cause? Who really knows? Indifference must be a part of the answer. People say that they want an improved publication, but few there are who are willing to help make it so. "Few there are who will write, and few there are who will send their news," he concluded. Surely there had been criticism, and there always would be; but those who criticized the most had done little to really help. Perhaps the answer would be to offer payment for feature articles, but this had been tried with little success. There has to be a greater motivating force. The editor wondered what he could do to let his readers know that he wanted to serve them to the best of his abilities, and that he sincerely welcomed any constructive, helpful criticism.

Then the persistent question that faces all editors flashed into his mind once again, "How can the circulation be increased?" This question plagued him hundreds of times. Offer a prize to those who solicit the most subscriptions during a designated period of time? But this had been done several times. Reduce the rates for new subscriptions? But this had also been done several times. The answer is with the people. Someone has to be concerned. Someone has to have a desire to serve—to help out.

The editor thanks the good Lord, however, for His manifold blessing. He is thankful for the faithful—for those who are fighting for the same cause. He recognizes the eternal value of the printed page. Even in the midst of his frustrations, he is thankful that he has a part in promoting the kingdom of God.

"Now I must get down to business," he decides. "There's an editorial to write, and I have only thirty minutes in which to do it. I wonder if I can meet this deadline."

W. C. LEAGUERS MAKE THEIR WAY TO SMITHFIELD CHURCH

MAY 1 will find leaguers from all over North Carolina making their way to the Free Will Baptist League State convention at Smithfield, North Carolina. The location of this convention, which promises to be one of the greatest in its history, is the First Free Will Baptist Church, pastored by the Rev. J. Garland Teasley.

REGISTRATION

Leaguers are urged to come early and stay throughout the whole convention. Registration will begin on Friday evening, May 1, at 6:30; and the program will begin promptly at 7:30. On Saturday morning registration will begin at 9:00 o'clock; and the program at 10:00 o'clock. A Saturday night session will also be held.

KEYNOTE OF WORSHIP

Using as its keynote "Following Jesus," the convention will feature a mission message on Friday night, entitled "Following Jesus in Service," by the Rev. Fred Rivenbark of Durham, a member of the state board of missions.

A second message, "Following Jesus Knowledge," emphasizing Christian education, will be presented by Mr. William D. Thigpen of Beulaville, elementary school principal and Free Will Baptist layman.

Devotionals for the convention will be led by a Holly Springs leaguer of Newport, Miss Nadine Covick of East Rockingham leaguer, and Miss Linda Godwin of Wilson First church leaguer.

GOOD MUSIC

Always one of the best features of the league convention is good music. Directing the music for this convention will be Mr. Ed Hudson Jr., choir director of Sherron Acres church of Durham. Mrs. Bill Taylor of Greenville, First church organist, will serve as organist; and Mrs. Bruce Dudley of Calvary church of Wilson will serve as pianist.

Among those rendering special musical selections will be the Youth Ensemble of Wilson Calvary church, the Powhatan Youth Choir, Danny and Bonnie Coates of Hopewell church, and a quartet from the Wilson leaguers.

"Each Step of the Way" (or "I'm Following Jesus") has been selected for the theme song.

PLAYLET

A training feature of the program will be a playlet, "Following Jesus in Training," presented by the Elm Grove leaguers of Ayden on Saturday afternoon. These leaguers will seek to portray how a league should not be conducted and then how one should be conducted.

SWORD DRILL

With great anticipation and suspense leaguers in the past have witnessed the speed, skill, and dexterity of the intermediates who have taken part in the state sword drills. This year will be no exception. The Intermediate Sword Drill will be conducted on Saturday afternoon by Miss Hilda Owens. The winner will receive an expense-paid trip to the league encampment at Cragmont, and the runner-up will have one half of his expenses paid.

FELLOWSHIP AND RECREATION

Following the afternoon session, leaguers will adjourn to the park to enjoy a period of recreation and fellowship. The Rev. Bruce Dudley and his helpers will direct the games and fun. A sandwich supper will be served by the host church to climax the period of fellowship.

FILM

"In His Steps," a feature-length motion picture based on the world-famous novel of the same name, written by a Topeka clergyman named Charles M. Sheldon, will be shown at the Saturday night session, beginning at 7:00 o'clock. It is reported that over thirty million copies of the book have been sold, and it has been translated into dozens of languages across the world.

The film story follows the experiences of Rachel Paige, aspiring young actress, newspaper publisher Ed Norman, and Pastor Henry Maxwell, the clergyman whose unique concept changed their lives.

"In His Steps" as a novel came at a time in American history when vigorous social reforms were underway, especially in industrial communities. The film updates these situations, giving the story a contemporary approach.

OVERNIGHT ACCOMMODATIONS

Delegates and visitors desiring overnight accommodations on Friday night should send their names; number in their party; who they are—girls, boys, etc.—to the Rev. J. Garland Teasley, 527 South Third Street, Smithfield, North Carolina.

WHICH DOES GOD BELIEVE?

The head of a household at the morning meal had asked the blessing as usual, thanking God for a bountiful provision. Immediately afterward he began to grumble about the hard times, the poor quality of food he was forced to eat, and the way it was cooked.

His little daughter interrupted him. "Father," she began, "do you suppose God heard what you said a little while ago?"

"Certainly," he replied confidently.

"And did He hear what you said about the bacon and the coffee?"

"Of course"—not quite so confidently.

"Then, Father, which did God believe?"

Even when we as children of God do remember to thank Him for the blessings He pours into our lives, are we not often like this man? Do not our words and deeds often contrast sharply with the thanks we utter?—The Pilot.

You may print all the good things about a man's life that you can find, but the Lord sees all the bad things if they have never been repented of and forgiven.—Walter E. Isenhour.

MEMOIRS OF THE FORERUNNER

AND

PRESENT-DAY ESTABLISHED FREE WILL BAPTISTS OF MICHIGAN

by the REV. N. P. GATES, DETROIT, MICHIGAN

HIS writer was born on February 18, 1894, to an old-fashioned Free Will Baptist family, Henry A. and Julia (Johnson) Gates. My elder brother and I became affectionately known as Willie and Newton. Mother passed away in my infancy; Father passed on when I was 13.

We were reared by a stepmother who had four other children younger than we. Being limited in means, and since it was the beginning of the century, needless to say, my chances in school were very limited. But with a determination and the urge to forge ahead 'mid difficult circumstances, and having obtained a fair knowledge in music, I began majoring in gospel singing. I was associated in writing and publishing with the Eureka Music Company, the Quartet Music Company, The Hartford Music Company, The Stamps Baxter Music and Printing Company, The Central Music Company, and others. I edited and published the Gates' Rudiments of Music, Special Select Songs, and the Free Will Baptist Evangel.

At the age of 14, I embraced faith in Christ and became a member of the old Eureka Free Will Baptist Church of Arkansas. Presumably due to early religious activities, I was urged by many friends to become a minister. To me, this was a stumbling block, for at such an early age I was not able to discern the perfect will of the Lord. Though, when it did become a reality, one alibi followed another.

At the age of 23, I married a fine Christian girl named Virgia West, who became the mother of our three living children: Winona (Riggs), Graydon D. and Lowell W. Gates. With these responsibilities, and with the wife constantly confronting me with the affirmation that she would not have a doctor, lawyer, or preacher for a husband, no consolation came to my bewildered mind.

Adding to these perplexities, it seemed that every endeavor was to no avail. I had been an unsuccessful farmer, insurance writer, and merchant. I was in poor health. To return to the singing and teaching profession was totally impractical to say the least.

Therefore, looking for greener pastures, we came to Detroit on August 26, 1926. I obtained work in an automobile plant, taking, as it were, a new lease on life. Being in a large industrial city, however, seemed as a foreign way of life. We had no church connection. Thus, we dodged from place to place (seeking rest and finding none). But, alas, a ray of sunshine began to appear over the horizon. Through the purchase of a new home, we became acquainted with a group of worshipers who were later to be known as Tabernacle Baptists. I began to sing in their quartet and soon became their choir director. But not for long, for the pastor became displeased because I would not join their church. In the course of time, I developed my own quartet, The Gates Jubilee Quartet, which was composed of myself, W. E. Gates, Fred Dallas, and LaVan Pearce. The latter became one of the first deacons of the First Free Will Baptist Church in that area.

The quartet was short-lived. Ill winds began to blow again, especially that of the notorious depression of '29. Again we were left with scarcely a place to call home. Our activities were limited to an occasional appearance here and there, winding up with an itinerate in Arkansas. Because of the depression, it seemed there was no alternative but to disband. Some of the quartet members remained in Arkansas, while others returned to Detroit.

Beginning anew, my only recourse was to return to teaching activities in which livelihood seemed almost extinct. But some encouragement came through a government contract, under which we labored until, due to my brother's illness, we returned to Detroit.

All in all, I became so despondent that it seemed that providence had played a unkind hand. I became desperate, but I was forced to take courage as I found some comfort in the old sayings: "It takes the storm clouds, too, for the rain bows" and "Every cloud has a silver lining."

Among the questions that faced me was, "When? Oh when the long-awaited answer?" Like Jacob of old, I was wrestling with an angel of the Lord, thinking it was my enemy. So my troubles were not altogether from without, but also from within.

To return to my profession was again totally impractical. Seldom was there an open door for singing schools, only a few engagements of short duration and private lessons in a home. Through all, however, there was brought together what became known as "The Gates Gospel Quartet." It was composed of myself, W. E. Gates, and J. O. Buther (the latter two became deacons in the first church; the fourth member came in response to our invitation, a son of a erstwhile childhood friend, the Rev. C. E. Riggs of Arkansas, whose family was of great interest in our teaching activities in the early thirties. Raymond Riggs supplied the fourth voice in the quartet. But, having no local church home, and no sponsor, the success of our labor was somewhat limited. Not satisfied with these limitations, we engaged a radio broadcast on WEXL of Royal Oak. It was a sort of Sunday morning "Wake-up Program."

In order to have a successful program a home base was sorely needed. It had not dawned upon us as to what was in the foreseeable future, but we began to search for a building to serve our purpose—singing convention style. A church had not been contemplated. After about a year, we were able to obtain a building. It had been an old beer tavern. The owner was reluctant to rent it to us, perhaps because some seven churches had failed, claiming that the Lord had placed a curse on the building.

Be that as it may, the first song service was held on Sunday afternoon, March 15, 1937. This marked the beginning of worship in the area under the leadership of Free Will Baptists. In a matter of weeks a Sunday school was started; afterwards a revival was held, with the Rev. Lester Bain, with whom I had abored in Arkansas, doing the preaching.

Some weeks later, having now some three or four preachers among us (differing in faith, however) we engaged in union revival. The Rev. Tom Hines was the principal speaker. The blessings of the Lord evidenced His presence. It seemed to me that this was it! Yes, the time had come. It seemed as if a voice was speaking out from the unknown! The voice seemed to say, "If you ever expect to become a minister, you had better do it now! This was the most trying moment of my life. The spirit was willing but the flesh was weak. Yes, the time had come. I must either yield to this innermost persuasion, or suffer a life of disappointment torn with grief.

Alas, I hastened to ask for a service; I believe it was on a Friday night. A packed house filled me with bewilderment. An hour and fifty-five minutes were inadequate to confess my guilt of playing a Jonah. My text was, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. . . ." (Romans 7:24, 25). Many were crying. Some, no doubt, were weeping in sympathy and others in rejoicing.

All went well for a time, but not for long. To my surprise, some were anticipating a change of leadership. Earlier than we had anticipated, we were urged to organize the work. Being a little wary of what might happen, I was reluctant, but conceded to their wishes. Whereupon, when I began to acquaint them with the Articles of Faith and the Church Covenant of Free Will Baptists, to my consternation, a member of the quartet, who, with his wife, had previously joined the Missionary Baptists, interjected an opposing question, "Is this what we want to do?" Then another (a Sunday school superintendent) said, "If it is going to be a Baptist church, I will not have anything to do with it!" Needless to say, this was a critical and grievous moment. Being an avowed Free Will Baptist, and adverse to their actions, I declined any further participations, relinquishing to the adversary.

A mock performance pursued, in that no established faith was recognized; only an enrollment was made and the election of the Rev. Raymond Riggs as pastor. Hence, it is quite obvious that the Free Will Baptists were not without opposition, even in Michigan.

This perpetration, thank the Lord, was of short duration (at least for a time). After much persuasion, and their willingness to rescind their manner of operations, it was my pleasure to return, feeling that our hopes were not entirely lost.

Success seemed to crown our renewed efforts. The Sunday school reached an enrollment of more than 80. But the opposing faction was not content. It became necessary to call for restraint, which resulted in the loss of about half the enrollment.

In the course of time, peace and quietude were regained. We then called in council all those desiring to become members of "The First Free Will Baptist Church." This was sometime in June of 1938 (for some reason, the exact date and records have been destroyed).

Realizing the importance of official recognition, plans were set in order for an ordaining council to approve the work. So, at the conclusion of a revival campaign, having previously arranged for a presbytery from the Social Band Association of Arkansas, comprising the Rev. Ralph Staten, the Rev. E. W. Tucker, and the Rev. R. S. Shelton, on September 11, 1938, a great day of my memory, was the occasion of an all-day service in which three deacons, W. E. Gates, LaVan D. Pearce, and Charles E. Miller, were ordained to the deaconship of the church. A brother Etterbeek, Ira Gates, and Newton P. Gates were ordained to the ministry of the gospel.

I hesitate to mention the following, but such must be reckoned with: namely, that of finances. There being no resources from which to draw for the expense of operation, with only a few tithes and a few freewill offerings, we sometimes had to draw from our own personal resources, even to the extent of borrowing funds to meet our obligations. No appropriation for the pastor's salary were made until the selection of the second pastor which was in 1940.

Thus was the beginning and the establishing of the present-day constituted Free Will Baptist churches in the state of Michigan.

Summary

Not all churches survived. Some have fallen away. Some were organized in Ohio and affiliated with associations there.

Many members have returned to their former homes, or moved elsewhere, as also some ministers have done.

OBITUARIES

MRS. LELA HINNANT

On April 5, 1964, around noontime, the Lord Jesus needed another rosebud to bloom in His garden, so He reached down and took Mrs. Lela Hinnant to live with Him in heaven. We, the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Pikeville, North Carolina, will miss her so much. Our hearts are saddened at her going; but we know that God always knows best.

She was a devoted member of Pleasant Grove church and loved her auxiliary, prayer meeting, and all phases of the church work. She was known in the little town where she lived as the little woman who loved everybody. She never spoke to you without folding her arms around you in a fond embrace.

Dearest Lela, you are gone but not forgotten,
Never will your memory fade;
Loving thought will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.

She will always be remembered by the church and the auxiliary members.

Mrs. Ernest Bissette

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO MEET

The executive committee of the Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptist will meet at 4 p.m. at East Rockingham Free Will Baptist Church on April 23. All are urged to be present.

There are twenty students attending Free Will Baptist Bible College and elsewhere. There are five missionaries on foreign mission fields.

There are two state associations composing the Michigan State Association. They are the Wolverine and Metropolitan Associations. The Liberty Association is independent. There are five churches that are not affiliated and one church affiliated in North Carolina. There is a total of 47 churches with a total membership of 5,500. There are approximately 95 ordained ministers, and some awaiting ordination. Some churches are still worshipping in rented quarters; others are in the process of building or enlarging their quarters. A conservative estimate of church buildings places their value at $2,500,000.00.

The Guard on the North Wall

Marylee Beach

TWELVE O'CLOCK. All clear on the North Side."

Those words will haunt me until my dying day. The first time I heard them, I didn't think very much about it. All I was thinking of was my freedom—freedom from the prison walls where I had spent the last ten years of my life. I even forgot that the guard on the North Wall was my son, whom I had left ven before his birth. But now as I heard those words again, I seemed to go ver my life with deep thought and concentration.

I had married at an early age, 19 to be exact. My parents didn't want me to marry yet as I had no job or way of supporting myself let alone a wife and possibly children. But I went against their wishes. Jean and I ran away and got married.

Soon after that, she told me that we were going to be the proud parents of a child. Well, I wasn't ready for that. I wanted to wait a few years, at least. To stop myself of thinking about it, I turned to drinking. In a way I knew it wouldn't do any good, but felt I had to do something. Jean begged me to stop, but I paid no attention to her. This was her fault, I told myself. I was going to have nothing to do with her or the baby. And so I left her.

For a number of years I roamed around the country, picking up odd jobs wherever anyone would have me. I always kept in touch with Jean, but not directly. Or maybe I should say a friend of mine kept in touch with her and relayed the news to me. That was how I learned that I had a son—a child that Jean didn't want. I also learned that Jean had given him up for adoption. Soon after that I lost all trace of them.

With all my roaming, I managed to have all the drink I wanted. I also managed to have a few friends who felt the same as I did. We had our own parties, and, I must admit, some of them were far from being anything decent people would want to hear about. But we had them.

One night after one of those parties, we decided that things were too quiet. I might as well do something to stir up the town a little. We masked ourselves and walked slowly down the street, trying to figure out what we would do. As we passed the bank, we decided that that would be a good place to start. Needless to say, we got quite a bit of money. But it didn't last very long.

We no more than stepped out the door when we were met by the police, the last people we had hoped to see.

After our trial, we were sentenced to prison. Because I was the leader, I got the longest sentence of all—30 years in state prison. So far, I had spent only ten of them, but they had seemed like an eternity. All I could think of was a way to get out of there. Somehow I had to.

I had long ago lost track of Jean and my child, but I didn't seem to care. They were nothing to me, so why should I worry? But I had a great surprise waiting for me.

I had grown used to hearing the voices of the guards and I seldom paid any attention to them as they would shout the time and the "all clear" signal. But one day I heard a new voice and I began to take notice. Somehow that voice seemed familiar, although, to my knowledge, I had never heard it before. When the warden brought my next meal, I asked him about the new guard.

"Quite a few have been asking about him. His name is Fred Mack. He has

THEY SAY

"They say!" Ah, well, suppose they do! But can they prove the story true? Why count yourself among the "they" Who whisper what they dare not say? Suspicion may arise from naught But malice, envy, want of thought.

"They say!" But why the tale rehearse, And help to make the matter worse? No good can possibly accrue From telling what may be untrue; And is it not a nobler plan To speak of all, the best you can?

"They say!" Well, if it should be so, Why need you tell the tale of woe? Will it the bitter wrong redress, Or make one pang of sorrow less? Will it the erring one restore Henceforth to "go and sin no more?"

"They say!" Oh, pause and look within— See how thine heart inclines to sin; And lest, in dark temptation's hour, Thou, too, shouldst sink beneath its power, Pity the frail, weep o'er their fall, But speak of good, or not at all.

—Selected.

just recently taken the job of guard—this being his first duty. From what we can tell, he seems to be a very efficient worker despite his background."

This was just enough to arouse my curiosity. I wished to know more about him and so I asked. I was told that he would come to talk with me if I wished to have him. Anything would be better than this solitude, and so I asked that he be able to talk to me. My request was granted and he came that night. To the best of my knowledge, this is the conversation.

"I suppose that the warden has told you my name and a little of my background. But in case he didn't, I will begin with that."

"My name is Fred Mack. I have just taken the job of guarding the North Side of this prison, and I find it very interesting. But still it makes me sad as I often wonder about my parents, especially my father. From what I have learned, my father left before I was born and my mother gave me up for adoption. I was fortunate enough to be placed in a good home where the people taught me to love the Lord and to live my life according to His will. I learned that my real mother married again and that she had a baby girl. I always wanted to see my mother, but she died last month. That left me brokenhearted and I had to do something, so I took this job. It was my one hope that I could make someone happy by telling them of Jesus."

Soon after that, he left me, but he promised to come again the next day. Strange to say, I looked forward to it. By now I knew for sure that he was my son, but I dared not let him know it. I did not deserve to have him now, and it would break his heart to learn the truth. It would be best to keep it to myself.

The next night he came, and the next. His visits continued for two months; then I knew I could hide my secret no longer. He had been good to me, and, although I hated to admit it, he deserved to know the truth. That was how I came to tell him that I was his father. Before I realized what was happening, he threw his arms around me and was holding me close to him like a mother would hold a newborn child. Then he told me that he had known that I was his father, for he had recognized me from an old picture I had given to Jean. Then he told me that he had prayed for this day when I would tell him the truth and that I would come to know the Saviour.

As my wish was granted, so were his earnest prayers. I became a Christian. I still must pay for my crime, but with Christ and my son beside me it won't be too long. Then together we will preach the Gospel to other prisoners and hope that they will come to know the Saviour and the happiness that only He can give.

GOSPEL HERALD

ALBEMARLE W. A. MET AT BELHAVEN CHURCH

The Albemarle Woman's Auxiliary Convention met on April 16 at the Belhaven Free Will Baptist Church, Belhaven, North Carolina. It is reported that the attendance was good and that the program was enjoyable. A full report will be given in next week's issue.

Spring Hope, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Flood's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Ben T. Bissette on Thursday night, April 9, for its monthly meeting. The president, Mrs. Charles Morgan, presided. The Scripture, taken from Philipians 4:8-13, was read by Mrs. Bissette. The program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do," was given by Mrs. Hayes Flora, Mrs. J. D. Bissette Jr., Mrs. Harvey Strickland, and Mrs. Charles Morgan.

During the business session, the eleven members present voted to send $2 to the Ministers' Widows Fund. Also plans for the coming Bible school were discussed. The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Charles Morgan.

Macesfield, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Edgewood Free Will Baptist Church met Monday evening, April 6, in the home of Mrs. Ed Stokes. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Raymond Webb. The opening prayer was offered by Mrs. J. T. Trevathan. After the singing of "Help Somebody Today," the Scripture was read by Mrs. Tillman Trevathan. The program chairman, Mrs. Edward Taylor, presented the program, entitled "But There's Nothing I Can Do," pointing out the fact that there is a lot all of us can do. Those assisting her with the program were Mrs. J. T. Trevathan, Mrs. Wiley Briley, Mrs. James H. Brown, and Mrs. J. L. Baker. The program closed with the group's singing "Let Others See Jesus in You" and with prayer by Mrs. C. F. Abrams.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The president presided over the business session. She informed the auxiliary that it could adopt a child at the Children's Home. A girl was chosen to be clothed by the auxiliary. Her name is not known but will be revealed later. The secretary, Mrs. Ben Harrell, called the roll; and there were 26 members and three visitors present. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Tillman Trevathan. The building of a recreation building behind the church was discussed. This building would be used for the serving of dinners on homecomings, union meetings, and other activities of the church. It would also be used as the meeting place for the auxiliary.

After the adjournment refreshments were served by the hostess and enjoyed by all.

Winterville, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church met April 6 in the educational building of the church. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Louise Langston. After the group sang "Help Somebody Today," Mrs. Estelle Boyd led the group in prayer. Twenty-two members and two visitors were present.

Mrs. Lois Dail, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. The treasurer's report was given, and the monthly dues collected. Mrs. Pearl Worthington gave a report on the recent Central Auxiliary Convention.

Following the business meeting Mrs. Joan Hooks gave a most interesting program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do," with the Scripture taken from Philipians 4:8-13. The meeting closed with the auxiliary benediction. Refreshments followed.

Clayton, N. C.—The James Lanier YFA of Powhatan Free Will Baptist Church met on April 14 at the home of Mrs. Irene Hogg for its monthly meeting. Miss Diane Stevens, president, presided over the meeting which opened with the group's singing the YFA hymn, "Living for Jesus." The devotional reading, taken from Psalm 119:9-16, was read by the president; followed with prayer by Mrs. J. W. Nichols. The group then sang several choruses.

During the business session the auxiliary decided to sponsor a special service during Family Week, May 3-10. It was also decided that the group honor their mothers on May 9 with a hamburger supper.

The program, "In Step with Jesus Through a New Life," written by Wayne West, was given by Mrs. J. W. Nichols, Diane Stevens, Larry Coats, Glenda Grady, and Jenny Williams. The meeting adjourned with the benediction prayed by Vickie Peele.

The hostess served delicious refreshments to the thirteen members present.

Ayden, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Nora Garris for its March meeting. The group sang "Jesus Saves," followed with prayer by Mrs. Elizabeth Balls. The Scripture, John 10:11-18, was read by the president, Mrs. Stella Worthington.

During the business session the minutes were read and various reports given. There were fifteen members and one visitor present.

The program, "Building Toward Mexico Way," was given by Mrs. Annie Eliza Chappell and was very interesting. Mrs. Kara Wingate prayed the closing prayer. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

The auxiliary sponsored the usual Pre-Easter Week of Prayer.

Mrs. Elma Beddard attended the Central Woman's Auxiliary Convention at the Hugo church as a delegate.

What Happened to Sunday?

What has happened to the Lord's Day? It has become Mother's Day, Father's Day, Dad's birthday, Mom's birthday, Grandpa's birthday, Grandma's birthday, Aunt Susie's birthday, and Anybody Else's birthday whether it came last Wednesday or will be next Tuesday. The Lord's Day is used as Reunion Day, Wedding Anniversary Day, The Day We All Get Together, or just a Holiday. Put them all together with the Sundays that are Sports Days, Picnic Days, Rainy Days, Cold Days, Hot Days, or the Only Day I Have to Rest and there aren't many left for the proper observance of the Lord's Day.—Biblical Recorder.

WHAT IS THE GREATEST TRUTH?

Muriel Larson

The following is a joke that is supposed to be going around Russia these days:

A Soviet school class was being asked by its teacher questions about America. One boy answered, "People are starving there. There is wide unemployment. The people are unhappy."

"And what about the Soviet Union?" encouraged the teacher.

"Everybody is well fed," parroted the boy. "Jobs are plentiful and we all are highly paid. The populace is happy."

"And what is the duty of the Russian citizen?" asked the teacher.

"We must work hard to catch up with and pass America," answered the boy stalwartly.

While we can see the inconsistency of these answers, it is highly probable that this is the way they must come out with the type of indoctrination they have in Russia. But what is often much more puzzling is the inconsistency of people who haven't been brainwashed—specifically people who profess to believe in Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour and yet continue dabbling with false teachers and teachings in search of "greater truth."

Actually if a person has come to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ, he has found the highest truth. Yet countless professing Christians play with fire week after week by inviting false messengers into their living rooms to "explain the Bible" to them and to "teach them greater truths."

Some of the "greater truths," which are intimated to be even more important than the salvation of Jesus Christ, are these:

1. Our church is the only true church of Jesus Christ; outside of our church is no salvation.

2. Being baptized by our group is what will save you.

3. Keeping the ten commandments is the most important thing.

4. Living a good sinless life and doing good works is the only way you can get to heaven.

5. The kingdom is coming; men should work to bring it in.

6. Our founder and prophet (or prophetess) had a special revelation from God which makes all the rest of Christendom wrong and condemned.

Most of these false teachers claim to be teaching just what the Bible teaches, but the following verses in the Bible are usually ignored by them, and are good ones by which to test a false teaching:

1. Jesus said, ". . . I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the father, but by me" (John 14:6).

2. "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved" (Romans 10:9).

3. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Ephesians 2:8-10).

4. "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage . . . Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace" (Galatians 5:1, 4).

5. "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book" (Revelation 22:18).

THE HOLY GHOST

THE HOLY GHOST DWELLS IN AND QUICKENS OUR MORTAL BODIES

All believers will be quickened by the Holy Ghost, not a part of them, but all. "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live" (Romans 8:11-13).

THE SCRIPTURES TEACH ONE BAPTISM BUT MANY FILLINGS

"And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance. And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven. Now when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language. And they were all amazed and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak Galileans?" (Acts 2:4-7). Thus we learn that the Holy Ghost enabled the Apostle Peter and those numbered with him in the church to speak so that everyone could understand the language. In the eighth verse the people said, "And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?" It was enough to confound them to hear uneducated fishermen speaking a language that everyone could understand, but this was the result of being baptized and filled with the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost brings understanding to the true believer.

Now may we notice another filling, as we have said that there is more than one filling to the believer. "And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness" (Acts 4:31). This prayer was offered after they had been forbidden to preach in the name of the Lord. Even though they had been filled at Pentecost and enlightened to the extent that they could preach so that all men could understand, these disciples needed a reviving so as to make them able to stand against the threatenings of the enemies of Christ. Often we need a filling to make us able to withstand the wiles of the devil and his forces. But God has it for us by faith and the asking; as He gave to them, He will give to us. It is when we are filled with the Holy Ghost that we are made able to pour out the fruit of the Spirit: love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance (Galatians 4:22, 23).

CHRIST JESUS WAS BEGOTTEN BY THE HOLY GHOST

When Joseph learned that Mary was to become a mother, naturally a question arose in his mind as to what to do? But since he was a just man, the Holy Ghost could speak to him, and He did. "But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost" (Matthew 1:20). Thus Christ was begotten by the Holy Ghost. "Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel which being interpreted is, God with us" (Matthew 1:22, 23).

THE HOLY GHOST IS A TEACHER AND REMINDER

Are you a believer, my dear friend? Have you ever said something and then something spoke to your innermost being, telling you that you should not have said it? Well, if you are a child of God, that something that spoke to you was the person of the Holy Ghost—a reproof of your error. Perhaps it is an unkind word that you would not have said if you had just taken time to investigate and pray a little, but it slipped out and you were sorry; the Holy Ghost made you sorry and taught you to be more careful in your speaking about others.

Now listen to Christ: "These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you. But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you" (John 14:25, 26). Christ knew that the disciples needed a teacher to go along with them; and as He was leaving them to go back to the Father, He promised the Holy Ghost to take over and go along with them, to teach and remind them of the right, and to show them how to avoid the wrong and master the problems of life. The Holy Ghost will do this for the yielded believer. The Holy Ghost reminded Peter of the promise when the gospel was taken to the household of Cornelius. Peter said, "Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 11:16).

He is the only reliable teacher. John reminded the children of God that apostate teachers would come to seduce and turn them away from the truth. He wrote, "These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need that any man should teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him. And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming" (1 John 2:26-28).

We can only abide in Christ as we yield our life to the teachings of the Holy Ghost; so the more we yield, the more we abide. Francis Havergal said, "A full surrender brings a full blessing"; so my friend, if you want to be happy and receive those blessings that the Lord has in store for us, we must live a surrendered life to Him. We cannot make any reservations. Christ must be first in every act. We must say and do that which Christ taught. The Holy Ghost will make it possible if we will let Him have His way with us.

THE LAW OF THE SPIRIT OF LIFE IS IN JESUS CHRIST

"There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but

BACKWARD . . . FORWARD

I stand upon the threshold of two years,
And backward look, and forward strain
my eyes;
Upon the blotted record fall my tears.
While, brushing them aside, a sweet surprise
Breaks like a day-dawn on my upturned face,
As I remember all Thy daily grace.
Thou hast been good to me; the burdened past
Thou hast borne with me, and the future days
Are in Thy hands; I tremble not, but cast
My care upon Thee, and in prayer and praise
Prepare to make the coming year the best,
Because of nobler work and sweeter rest.

Making Our Hearts Grow!

There is nothing that so makes us love someone as praying for him. And when you can do this sincerely for anyone, you have fitted your soul for the performance of everything that is kind and civil towards him.

Be daily on your knees in a solemn,
deliberate performance of the devotion, praying for others in such form, with such length, importunity, and earnestness as you use for yourself; and you will find all little, ill-natured passions die away. Your heart will grow great and generous.—William Law.

A Fixed Heart

Have you a fixed heart? Do you know what an immense area of the devil, the flesh and the world you can shut out by actual decision, by cherishing the candid mind in conviction, followed by the resolute mind in action?
Let there be a resolute mind. Whatever turns your thoughts from God, whatever defiles your conscience—let there be an end of it before the Lord, and let the Sword of the Spirit go through it.—Selected.

MOTHER’S DAY TO BE OBSERVED AS CHILDREN’S HOME DAY

M. L. Jonsson, Superintendent

May is Children’s Home Month for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina. In keeping with a recommendation of the North Carolina State Convention, all churches and other organizations are urged to observe Mother’s Day as a special Children’s Home day. Each organization is encouraged to attempt to raise a “Mother’s Day Gift” equivalent to $1 per member to help provide funds that are needed to operate the home during the spring season.

For many years Thanksgiving has been considered as an appropriate season to make special gifts to our Children’s Home. Mother’s Day is considered as the next most appropriate occasion to remind our people of the needs of the children “entrusted in our care.” Mother’s Day was observed as a special day for the Children’s Home among Free Will Baptists last year. The response was very good. It is hoped that our churches and other organizations will develop this program to the point that Mother’s Day gifts will provide the necessary funds to meet the needs during the spring season as the Thanksgiving gifts help to meet the needs of the fall season, thus giving a balanced program of financial support.

All loyal Original Free Will Baptists can help make this undertaking a success. All pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and auxiliary presidents, as well as other leaders, are urged to call this matter to the attention of their members and give them an opportunity to have a part in the Mother’s Day giving.

It is suggested that each church or other organization receive a special offering on Mother’s Day, or at the time nearest Mother’s Day that will best fit into their program. If it is not practical to receive a special offering, it is suggested that a special contribution be sent from the treasury or that special individual gifts be solicited.

A special Mother’s Day honor roll will be published in The Free Will Baptist listing all churches or other organizations giving the equivalent of $1 per member during the month of May.

Churches and other organizations which cannot send $1 per member are urged to send whatever amount they can. There are now 77 children at our Children’s Home at Middlesex. Any amount that you or your organization can give will be very helpful and will be deeply appreciated.

Remember the mission of the Free Will Baptist Children’s Home is to provide “A Christian home for boys and girls entrusted in our care.”

Please use the following form when sending Mother’s Day gifts.

HELPING TO PROVIDE

“A Christian Home for Boys and Girls”

THE ONLY WAY

by WILLIAM A. THOMPSON

SHE could hear the whispering spread like crackling flames as she walked into the classroom. She could imagine what they were saying, but holding her head high she sat down and busied herself. Even though her heart was heavy, Mae smiled at the pupils beside her, not a shy smile, but a little tremulous all the same.

It had started two weeks ago when her father, John Mills, a pastor, had accepted a call to this town. And what a town! It seemed everyone was so occupied with the amusements offered by the world that it was hard for Mae to find a chum in the school.

The church was her only refuge and Mae found, to her dismay, that the congregation was made up of elderly people. Young people didn't even seem to like the strict code and the evangelistic preaching. Her father had announced Young Peoples' but no one had come. Apparently there was a dance and wienner roast down on the beach that bordered the lake which had attracted the young crowd.

Her classmates had been very kind the first week, but when Mae turned down so many of their invitations to dances and other parties, they decided she was stuck-up and just like the other preachers' kids which had always been "too high and mighty" to associate with them. Mae didn't have a chance to tell how she felt about going to these worldly places, but she knew in her heart that Jesus wouldn't want her to go. She had tried, but they wouldn't listen and when she got up in English Composition and read her theme on "Why We Need A God" that seemed to be the end.

That had also been the beginning of a whispering campaign. She had to pray for strength each morning before she went to school for each day she was ignored by all.

The bell rang for English Composition and Miss Yocmans entered.

"Good morning, class!"

"Good morning," replied the 14 boys and girls.

Her voice was cool, as, without glancing at Mae, she began to lecture.

"You remember last week, class, Mac Mills presented a very novel theme. I'm sure you want to have a chance to discuss the topic, and so I thought we might take this period to criticize, constructively, I must remind you, as you all seemed so interested."

Hands shot up all over the room.

"Yes, John?"

A tall boy stood up. He was the star of the school. He was worshipped and admired by everyone for his great prowess at all the sports in which he participated. A true athlete in every sense of the word.

Mae wondered what he would say. Everything depended on him. If he sneered and mocked, the rest would follow like sheep. If he approved, then they also would acknowledge her God.

As he looked around at her before he started speaking, Mae could almost feel the derision like a physical blow, and she wondered if he could be so really and truly blind to the One who gave him his athletic ability.

He began to speak.

"I think there is need for a God but the theme presented by Mae was a little twisted. I don't think anyone should knuckle down to Someone they can't see, and when we rely on this God for everything, why, we are admitting that we can't handle our lives by ourselves. We must be strong in our own right and then no one can challenge us. We live and die by our own doings, and I know we don't have time to worship any God. That is a thing of the past. Science now has the answers for everything, so why should we twist our thinking to look up to a Father who only helps us when He wants to and not until."

"We must have help when the way is rough," thought Mae. "We need Someone stronger than man to lean on in time of need."

John Brooks continued. Mae didn't actually listen to the rest of his criticism, and when he had finished, several of the others proceeded to criticize in the same vein. She began to think of the good times she had in her old home town and how the young people had flocked to the meetings. In fact she didn't hear a thing until her name was mentioned.

"I beg your pardon?"

"Mac," said Miss Yocmans. "We shall now give you a chance to defend your theme."

Mae stood up. Desperately she gathered her thoughts together. What should she say? She wanted to tell exactly how she felt.

She began haltingly, and then in a clear cool voice her words seemed to drop like pearls in the silent room.

"I believe in God, not because I'm a preacher's daughter but because at one time I realized I wasn't capable of completely managing life by myself. As I grew older, I found there were many things in the world I didn't want to do. Things like smoking and dancing and drinking. Then I discovered that films and dances couldn't fill the longing I had in my heart, an emptiness. I realized that after this kind of fun I was still unhappy and I knew these things couldn't relieve my distress and sadness. Then I found that love for God and His Son Jesus Christ satisfies my every need. I am at peace with God ever since I received Christ as my Saviour. I go to Him when I feel troubled and weary and He renews my strength."

Mac sat down. There were no snickers nor mean asides. Even Miss Yocmans was sitting as if she were made of stone. The class remained silent and pensive as she gave them their assignment.

The rest of the day, Mae was aware of covert glances and curious looks as she moved among her classmates but no one spoke to her.

"I trust I did the right thing," Mae said to her father and mother at the supper table. "I felt so good all day I'm sure I did right."

Her father nodded. "Perhaps this is the way it should be. I have been a little discouraged of late, but as we know, God moves in mysterious ways. This may be the beginning of great things for us here. You may be the means of building up our church, Mae. Be strong in the Lord and He will never fail you."

Things came to a startling climax the next day when Mr. Brown took the Biology class on a lake outing for specimens. The class set out in a large canoe.

Mae was enjoying the beautiful scenery and the ride as the boys paddled and used dip nets to gather marine animals. The girls labeled and bottled them. Everyone was having such a good time that the angry clouds were well up over the horizon and looming menacingly above the party before their teacher noticed the stiff wind whipping the once smooth lake into froth and racing white-caps.

"A squall!" shouted John.

Mr. Brown and the boys leaped to the paddles and the canoe went zipping through the water. Soon it became so dangerous that the girls had to start bailing.

"No one move!" shouted Mr. Brown. "If you do, we might capsiz."

Just at that moment, a great gust of wind blew the waves high and swamped the canoe. A curtain of rain came hissing down and amidst the confusion, the vessel upset and emptied its human cargo into the frenzied lake.

One can imagine the shrieking and screaming! Mr. Brown was trying to shout instructions. Finally he made himself heard, and he instructed everyone to hang onto the canoe.

Spitting and throwing her hair out of her eyes, Mae was startled to see John Brooks next to her reaching for the canoe.

The shouting continued and soon it became apparent that all were hanging onto the canoe but they didn't know what to do next.

Mae suggested praying. The others laughed and their comments rose on the wind.

"Okay," shouted John, "Anyone else have a better idea?"

No one spoke.

"All right, Mae," he continued, "that may be just the right thing. We can't help ourselves and no one can see us. We must do something and since you are the only one here who can pray, then at least we should listen."

"That is true, John," shouted Mr. Brown.

"Jesus stopped a storm once on the Sea of Galilee, and I'm sure He can do it again," said Mae.

Mae prayed earnestly and quite sincerely considering the waves were dashing the boat and the wind was roaring. "Protect us, Lord, and keep us in the hollow of Thy hand. Still the waves as Thou didst once before and give us strength to renew our courage and save each one, in Jesus' name Amen."

A curious warmth filled her and in the water they all raised their heads. They could scarcely believe their eyes. There, above their heads, was a patch of blue sky. Slowly the wind dropped and the waves stilled.

Mr. Brown didn't mention the fact that the squalls were quick to come and go. He just knew that the new girl in his class was somebody who was different.

It wasn't long before a rescue craft came zooming out to pick them up.

Sitting in the rescue boat, with blankets draped about them, the whole class gathered around Mae.

"You know, Mae," said John, "your prayer was so—well, so personal. You seemed to be talking to Someone you knew well, like a close friend."

"Yes," said one of the girls, "you just seemed to ask Him so quietly. I have never heard anyone pray like that. He is a powerful God, isn't He?"

"He is everybody's God," said Mae. "He is just waiting for you to—to make contact."

"How?" asked several in the group.

"If you are really interested, why don't you come to the church tonight? This is our regular Young Peoples' night and my father will talk to you."

"We'll come," the group promised.

That night Pastor John Mills was astonished to see the vestry filled with young people.

Mae looked down from the piano and saw Mr. Brown at the back. Truly the dramatic change was the Lord's doing and she could foresee many happy times ahead and knew that her time of trial had been for a purpose. God worked in mysterious ways, and as she saw John smile at her she knew that everything would work out as God had ordained.

What Is the Greatest Truth

The Word of God also gives us these warnings:

1. "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world" (1 John 4:1).

2. "Neither give heed to fables and endless genealogies, which minister questions, rather than godly edifying which is in faith" (1 Timothy 1:4).

3. "Cease, my son, to hear the instruction that causeth to err from the words of knowledge" (Proverbs 19:27).

The main reason that Satan promotes false teachings is to get the believer (and unbeliever) to give to something or someone else the preeminence that belongs to Christ. The person who has been saved through the precious blood of Jesus Christ has and knows the greatest spiritual truth there is. Every such person should be sharing that wonderful truth with the many lost souls about him, whether they be people who are unconcerned about religious things or whether they be zealous deceived people who are going about seeking to exalt and promote a church or group rather than the Lord Jesus Christ Himself.

Give the religionists who come to your door a smile, a testimony, and a tract telling God's plan of salvation—and you will be a missionary of them.—Gospel Herald.

Teach Us to Pray

Ask the Lord to enable you to pray aright, and your approaches to the throne of grace will be seasons of most real and blessed communion with your Father in Heaven.

Prayer has been described as the Christian's vital breath. Pray often and about everything. Live in a spirit of prayer. It is so blessed. And, having prayed, look for the answer. Let the kind of answer, the way and the time up to Him; but expect the response, it will come.—Selected.

Christian Principles In Daily Work

LESSON TEXT: Luke 12:22-31; 1 Thessalonians 4:10-12

MEMORY VERSE: Colossians 3:33

1. INTRODUCTION

While we do not deny the fact that man has a physical nature and that certain provisions for the welfare of this physical nature must be made, we must not for a single moment forget that man is much more than a physical being. He has a spiritual nature that is of much more importance than the physical; for all of us agree that the physical is of time, while the spiritual is eternal.

A correct conception of values is of prime importance in the making of any decision. During our stay here on earth we want to earnestly contend for those things that edify the entire nature of man. We want to grow toward perfection physically, mentally, and spiritually. These things, though they are considered as different and distinct facets of the nature of men, are so closely interrelated as to be mutually dependent upon each other. The physical exercises its influences upon the spiritual and the mental, and in turn is dependent upon influences received from these. So perfectly are the spiritual and the physical natures of man blended together that whatsoever influences one for good or for evil influences the other in like manner.

—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

11. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The follower of Christ should never be anxious over material things (v. 22).

2. A life in harmony with God is greater than food and clothing (v. 23).

3. The fowls are fed by the providence of God (v. 24).

4. No amount of anxiety can help matters in the least (v. 25).

5. God fully provides for the lower creatures (v. 27).

6. Man, the chosen of the creation, should rely fully upon God (v. 28).

7. The Christian should seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and his needs will be supplied (vv. 29-31).

8. We should love one another and the people of other lands (v. 10).

9. We should attend to our own business and not meddle with others (v. 11).

10. Our actions should be becoming and decent at all times (v. 12).

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. An aged Negro had an excellent garden which was the talk of his neighbors. One of them said to him, "I hear that you asked the Lord to give you a good garden. Is that right?" "Yes, sir, that's right," proudly replied the Negro, whose flourishing garden was his delight. "But I never pray for a good garden unless I have a hoe in my hand. I say, 'Lord, You send the sunshine and the rain, and I'll keep the weeds down!'"

The record of historical achievement cries out in loud condemning tones against laziness. Gibbon spent 26 years writing The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Milton began the day at 4 A. M. when writing Paradise Lost. Bryant rewrote one of his essays 99 times. Webster worked 36 years to produce the first edition of the dictionary that bears his name. Some people fail to recognize opportunity because it so often comes to them in overalls and looks like work!

An elderly lady in London manifested great bravery during the bombings of World War II. "What's the secret of your fortitude amidst such frightful danger?" one asked. She replied, "Well, every night I pray and commit myself to the keeping of God. Too, I remember how the minister told us God is always watching over His children. So I go to sleep. After all, there's no need for two of us to lie awake!"

"Sabot" is the French word for "wooden shoe." "Sabotage" comes from the word and originally described the practice of throwing a wooden shoe into machinery to foul it up or to put it out of operation. Eventually, it came to mean any attempt to hinder production or spoil a product. There are "wooden shoes" which Satan casts into our soul—worry, anxious or corroding care and distrust in God. These evil things sabotage the fruit of the Spirit, sour the disposition and hinder Christian service. Down with spiritual saboteurs! Trust God and carry on!

—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

2. For several weeks Jerry had watched a building under construction. It was going to be huge, but he didn't know just what it was to be. Finally his curiosity got the best of him and he asked a workman at one end of the building, "What are you building?"

"Why, I'm building a wall. Can't you see that, son?" the man said.

"Building a wall!" thought Jerry, "but what kind of wall?" Turning around he walked on to the next workman. "What are you doing?" he asked.

"Son, I have a family of six children to feed. I'm working here to earn a living," he replied.

"That seems reasonable," Jerry thought. But he still wondered what the workmen were building. He walked a little farther and said to the one who was working so industriously at the other end of the building, "What are you doing?"

"I'm building a great church to the glory of God," he said.

Each of the three was doing the same task, but their goals were different. One was merely building a wall, another was providing for his family, while the third was working for the glory of God.

Most of us likewise have just ordinary jobs to do. We make our living by working in any of a hundred occupations. But the important thing to the Christian is how he looks at his job. Paul said, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus" (Colossians 3:17).

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

3. "Overheard in an Orchard
Said the Robin to the Sparrow:

'I would really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so?'

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:

'Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me.'

—Elizabeth Cheney.

NOTES and QUOTES

after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh: that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit" (Romans 8:1-4). Thus we are made free in Christ, but we walk in this freedom by the leadership of the Holy Spirit. It is impossible for us to walk in righteousness in our own strength. We are too prone to sin to overcome the world with our strength; but the Holy Spirit empowers us and makes it possible for us to be led through temptation, disappointments, and criticisms of the worldly minded with whom we come in contact. The carnal mind is not subject to the law of God; neither indeed can it be; but when we are perfectly yielded to the Holy Spirit, we can walk boldly right into the holy of holies and commune with our heavenly Father and the Lord Jesus Christ and rest with a glorious hope that even our mortal body will be free from the entanglements of the world in process of time as planned by God. "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you" (Romans 8:11).

THE BELIEVER IS LED BY THE SPIRIT

"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father" (Romans 8:14, 15). Paul says that no man can call Jesus the Lord except by the Holy Spirit: "Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost" (1 Corinthians 12:3). Certainly a man could speak of Jesus as he would of "John Doe," but the apostle is saying that, from a spiritual standpoint, only those who are led by the Holy Spirit can of a truth claim Jesus Christ to be the Lord. In the closing of this discourse, may we give our heart to the Lord Jesus in fervent prayer, that our whole being might be yielded to the Lord Jesus to the extent that we may be real children of God, inspired, empowered, and dominated by the Holy Spirit.

4. "In Charles M. Sheldon's book, In His Steps, is the incident of a pastor challenging his congregation to do in their business as Jesus would do. Edward Norman, editor of the Daily News, accepted the challenge. He cut out liquor ads, refused brutal prize-fight stories, took up moral issues, and cut out the Sunday edition—which to many people had become a bible. The staff thought he was crazy, advertising fell off, subscriptions were canceled by hundreds. In the story Edward Norman finally proved, through his success, that Christianity is practical for this day."—Clipped.

Christ in the Scriptures

I once saw a picture skillfully engraved in copper-plate, so that when you looked at it closely it was a piece of writing, but when you looked at it from a distance it was the face of George Washington. The face shone out in the shading of the letters, and I saw the person, not words, nor ideas. "That is how to look at the Scriptures, seeing in them not ideas, not doctrines, but Jesus Himself as the Life of all our life."—Selected.

SPECIAL NOTICE CONCERNING MISSION FUNDS OF THE N. C. STATE CONVENTION FUNDS OF N. C. STATE CONVENTION

A. B. BRYAN, Secretary-treasurer

Information is being circulated in North Carolina that the mission board of the State Convention is paying the secretary-treasurer an enormous salary to keep the books and do the correspondence of the board. Nothing could be further from the truth. This is just another attack by the enemy to try to destroy the work of the State Convention's mission department.

Please see the auditor's report on Page 33 in the minutes of the Convention of September 11-12, 1963. This report will show that $60 per month is paid to the secretary-treasurer. The board is paying this amount, and has been since October, 1960, while the late J. W. Alford was secretary-treasurer. The work of the department has drastically increased, but no basic changes have been made in allowance for anyone.

If more than the equivalent of one day, or fifteen hours, is needed per week for the work of the secretary, he is allowed five dollars per day or fifty cents per hour. If and when other secretarial work is needed in emergencies, he is allowed to employ secretarial help at the rate of one dollar per hour or less.

If and when it is necessary for any member of the mission board, or any candidate for the mission field to be on mission business, or in a mission service, that person is allowed five dollars per day, six cents per mile if driving is necessary, and meals and lodging if he must pay for same.

I want to make it clear that the mission books are open to any officer of the State Convention, any individual, or whoever would like to examine the books at any time. Let me know when you will be here and you may check them as you please.

I further state that the mission department is carrying $10,000 position bond for protection which cost $24.00 per year. If anyone has information as to the source of this false rumor, it would be well to correctly inform them that Satan is the originator of falsehood.

To show interest in the cause, it appears that a sincere prayer and an offering sent to P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina, to be used for missions would be in order. I am sure the board would be much better pleased with this kind of interest.

I have seen cobwebs formed on the knockers of some house doors, showing that they had very little use, and the families few visitors. If some Christians were to look at the door of their prayer closets, would they not find many cobwebs hanging about the knockers, because of their seldom use of them in visiting the house of mercy of which God is the Father?—Selected.

ACADEMIC BUILDING

MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE, MOUNT OLIVE, NORTH CAROLINA

MOUNT OLIVE COLLEGE LIBRARY
APR 30 1964
DURHAM, N. C.

Shown above is a model of the first academic building planned for the new campus of Mount Olive College. It will be known as the "C. C. Henderson Building," named in memory of the late Dr. Henderson of Mount Olive. A gift of $37,000 made to the college by Dr. Henderson before his death last October will be applied on the building.

Other special gifts include $50,000 currently being raised by the Mount Olive College Area Foundation, $29,000 from the Bank of Mount Olive, $5,000 from the Mount Olive Junior Chamber of Commerce, and gifts from the Free Will Baptist Church.

The two-story structure will contain classroom space for approximately 350 students and office space for 20 members of the faculty and administrative personnel. Included will be laboratory spaces for biological sciences, chemistry, physics, and foreign languages. The building will contain 23,400 square feet of floor space.

Ground breaking ceremony is planned for June 28. Estimated cost is $339,000.

President Burkette Raper announced that the college hopes to have the building ready for use in September, 1965.

THE THREE DAYS OF LIFE

There are three days of life. There is yesterday; there is today; and, there is tomorrow.

Yesterday was the time we first graced the world with our presence. Yesterday was the day we were born. We entered unaware, but we soon discovered the meaning of the new dawn. Yesterday decided a lot of things: our looks, our name, and to a great extent, the day we live in. Yesterday is past, and is filled with enraptured longings.

Today is the day in which we are living. Today is the present age in which we move about, strive for certain ideals, gain victories, and oftentimes suffer defeats. Today decides our future. Today is now and holds memories of yesterday.

Tomorrow is the day we are searching for. Tomorrow is the future for which we make particular plans. This is the day we build for, save for, and many times, live for. Tomorrow decides new horizons, different paths, other goals, and our fate. Tomorrow is coming and holds new hope.

Some of us live in yesterday's past. We do the same things we did in the same way. We feed on old memories and try to develop stale ideas.

Some of us live in today's present. We reap the harvest sowed yesterday, and improve on yesterday's thoughts and actions. We work toward tomorrow—

And, some of us live in tomorrow's future. We thrive on things we are planning to do, things we are planning to have, and places we are planning to go. We look forward instead of backward.

All our yesterdays might be empty and worthless regrets. All our todays could be sad realisms. All our tomorrows could be nurturing hopes.

Yesterday is full of mistakes. Today, too, is full of errors. Tomorrow we must improve on today, for tomorrow is not worth living unless it is better than today.

We lived yesterday. Yesterday is a certainty. We are living today. Today is a decision. We hope to live tomorrow. Tomorrow for some is a certainty; and for many, it is an uncertainty. For all of us, tomorrow is expected, but unpromised.

It is difficult to say which day in a person's life is the most important. Every living individual should pass through all three periods. Some, however, never get out of yesterday; some never leave today; and, some never venture into the future.

We conclude that the future is what counts, and we believe that what we did yesterday, and the improvements we make today determine our happiness tomorrow. What do you think?

KINDLY WORDS ARE PRICELESS

Opportunities of doing good do not come back. We are here for a most definite and intelligible purpose—to educate our own hearts by deeds of love, and to be the instruments of blessing to our brother men.

There are two ways in which this is to be done—by guarding them from danger, and by soothing them in their rough path by kindly sympathies. . . . Kindly words, sympathizing attentions, watchfulness against wounding men's sensitiveness—these cost so very little, but they are priceless in their value.—F. W. Robertson,

Woe Be Unto the

Pastors

that Destroy and Scatter

by the REV. RAY HARRISON JR.
Grifton, North Carolina

WHEN our blessed Saviour came to earth and dwelt among men, He called those disciples who followed Him; and to those He called He promised power to become the sons of God. Notice was frequently taken among His friends and His enemies that He received sinners and ate with them. Rather than denying this, Jesus said, "... They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance" (Matthew 9:12, 13).

Now when Jesus calls anyone to follow Him, the call is to those that are restless. All souls come out from God, and no soul may find true rest except as it is found in Christ. One of the most gracious ways that the Lord Jesus puts the call is, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." (Matthew 11:28-30).

This giving of rest that Jesus speaks of here could also be referred to as the peace of God which passeth understanding, or as the gift of God which is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Then as we follow on to know the Lord, we will surely desire to sit at the feet of Jesus and learn of Him. As we learn of him, we see that He is meek and lowly of heart, and not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. As in the days of His flesh Jesus found disciples whose hearts were moved toward the fields which were white unto harvest, so today He says to some, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

The call of God will certainly not come to all as it did to Saul on the Damascus road; but when God does call, then we should hear, obey His call, and preach the message that He bids us preach.

I heard recently of a young man who had been in Bible school for two or three years, and whose parents wanted him to preach; but he made the statement that the "bug" hadn't bit him yet.

Paul, who called himself an apostle of Jesus Christ, said of his calling, "But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by His grace, To reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood: Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus. Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days" (Galatians 1:15-18).

Whether Paul went into the wilderness of Arabia to be apart in order to more perfectly commune with God, or to preach the gospel to the roaming tribes that dwelt there, or for a combination of reasons matters little. We may rest assured that he was seeking to follow the calling of his God. Perhaps the apostle preached at every opportunity here as he was wont to do wherever he went; also he was surely much in communion with his Father in heaven.

As Paul searched the Scriptures and conversed with God, the Holy Spirit was working in him the will to do His will. Later Paul, in telling of the Christian walk, said, "... that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. . . . but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: . . . But we have the mind of Christ" (I Corinthians 2:12-16).

The knowledge that Paul now reveals of Christ goes far beyond what he understood at his conversion, for then he preached that Christ is the Son of God. Since that knowledge was the first thing that was needful in the Christian life, and since he was taught of God, he knew to put first things first; but he also knew that there were likely to be many pitfalls along the way. As Paul followed the Lord and learned of Him, he became each day more fully convinced not to know anything save Jesus Christ and Him crucified: "For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life" (Romans 5:10). In his letter to the brethren in the Colossian church Paul said, "For in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power" (Colossians 2:9, 10). Paul is saying that completeness is in Christ, and as we live, and move, and have our being, yea, and as we abide in him, so in him is our every need supplied. But these blessings are ours only as we take them unto ourselves; and so Paul said to these same people, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God" (Colossians 3:1).

As Paul dealt with churches, so dealt he with ministers, and in so doing received the "well done" of the Master. In writing to his friend Timothy, Paul exhorted him to "... charge some that they teach no other doctrine, Neither give heed to fables and endless genealogies, which minister questions, rather than godly edifying which is in faith: so do. Now the end of the commandment is charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned: From which some having swerved have turned aside unto vain jangling; Desiring to be teachers of the law; understanding neither what they say, nor whereof they affirm" (1 Timothy 1:3-7).

So today, when, intentionally or ignorantly, some have taught some other doctrine, or have turned aside unto vain jangling, there arises confusion. Therein is Satan honored, and his cause is furthered by those who have been led astray. As the Word teaches, if the blind lead the blind, then shall both fall into the ditch. There has been much more than enough of this in the last years, and I am persuaded that most of it has been planned and deliberate.

Further in his letter to Timothy, Paul refers to bishops and deacons, and says, "Likewise must the deacons be grave, not doubletongued, . . . Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron; . . . Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee" (1 Timothy 3:8; 4:1, 2, 16).

To realize that these very warnings are again being fulfilled in these present days, and much nearer home than some of us will admit, is certainly a shocking truth and another sign that we are living in the last days. We, as ministers and laymen in the church, need to take heed of these warnings and signs, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

Because of our negligence and carelessness in times past, some have come among us and pretended to be of us; but before they went out, they gave conclusive evidence that they were not all of us; for if they had been of us, they would not have sought to destroy and scatter the sheep as so many have done. Once in the past, I believe history reveals, our church was cut down to a remnant of only three local churches. We have had ample warning that people who put themselves forward as our friends are not necessarily so; and when these things come to pass, we must remember that Paul in writing to the Romans said, "Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another" (Romans 12:9, 10). Probably Paul had seen evidence of the lack of sincerity in the so-called love of some of those he called brethren, and so he links hypocrisy in love to the phrase, "Abhor that which is evil." I believe a spy of any kind is low enough; but this kind of wolf in sheep's clothing, who claims to be of the truth, is treading on dangerous ground; for Jesus said, ". . . I am the truth, . . ." (John 14:6). Also the Apostle John in his first letter said, "I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth" (1 John 2:21).

Jesus was very clear in speaking of lies, and denounced the sin of hypocrisy as most despicable. "Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; . . . Ye are of your father the devil, . . . When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it" (John 8:42, 44). If Jesus were here in the flesh, I believe He would denounce half-truths in a more direful tone than He had already denounced a simple lie; for it does appear that a half-truth is much more effective and readily received than an outright lie.

"Woe be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture! saith the LORD" (Jeremiah 23:1). This is a word from the same Lord that said, "I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. . . . The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep. . . . I am the good shepherd: . . . And other sheep I have, . . . them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd" (John 10:9-16).

The Word of God pronounces woes upon the world for many offenses, and for anyone that offends one of these "little ones" who believe on Jesus a special woe. But for those who have said of them, "Who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, . . . Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, . . ." (2 Timothy 1:9, 11). He has given to them a great honor, a great privilege, and also a duty and responsibility in keeping with the calling. "So thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me. When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand. Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul" (Ezekiel 33:7-9). In this same passage, the Word states that the watchman who is not faithful in warning his people to flee from the wrath to come shall be charged with their blood.

According to the dictionary, woe means great sorrow, grief, misery, trouble, affliction. This is what God brought upon Jonah when he was unfaithful to the call of God. "Then Jonah prayed unto the LORD his God out of the fish's belly, And said, I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the LORD, and he heard me; out of the belly of hell cried I, and thou heardest my voice. . . . They that observe lying vanities forsake their own mercy" (Jonah 2:1, 2, 8). When Jonah realized that he had forsaken his own mercy, he threw himself on the mercy of his God. When he confessed his sin, God was faithful and just, forgave him his sin, and sent him again on his mission to Nineveh.

And so today when any watchman has been guilty of destroying and scattering the sheep of his pasture, the great God who cannot lie and who is the same yesterday, today, and forever calls down to them through eternity the same solemn warning that "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God" (Hebrews 10:31). And again we read, "Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart . . . But exhort one another daily, . . . lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin" (Hebrews 3:12, 13). Surely when this happens and God chastens and calls His people to repentance, we may certainly rest assured

What Must I Do to be SAVED?

THE subject, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" is the greatest question ever asked since the beginning of time. Let's see what Christ has to say in answer to this question. He says in John 5:39, "Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." Let's begin our search through the Scriptures from here. In Acts 4:12 we find when Paul and Silas were in prison and God opened the door and the jailor came trembling and fell down before Paul and Silas and said, ". . . Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house," answered Paul and Silas.

Now turn in your Bibles to Matthew 19:29, "And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life."

Mr. Hill is a member of the Hull Road church, Snow Hill, North Carolina. He is 84 years old. He spends a great deal of his time writing and has been a source of help and inspiration to many.

Now turn to Luke 10:25-38: "And behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself. And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live."

Sinner friend, do you think of how much God loves you? It was so much that He gave His only begotten Son for your redemption from sin by His grace through faith in Jesus Christ the righteous. God hates sin, but He loves a sinner.

Now let's see what Jesus has to say about sinners in Luke 5:31, 32, ". . .

They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

Now turn in your Bibles and see what the Apostle Paul has to say in 1 Timothy 1:15, "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief."

In Paul's letter to the Ephesians we read, "Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved;) And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:5-8).

It's your responsibility to accept the grace of God through faith in Jesus Christ the righteous. Salvation is free if we only accept it. Now turn in your Bibles to Matthew 25:46. Here you will see the rewards of the unbeliever and of the believer. Christ said, "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." Let's draw on our imagination for the length of eternity or everlasting life. I'm thinking of one of the great old hymns I've heard many times:

"When we've been there ten thousand years,
Bright shining as the sun,
We've no less days to sing God's praise
Than when we first begun."

Or if a bird could fly from the Atlantic to the Pacific and carry one drop of water continuously until he carried the last drop, eternity would have just begun.

Sinner friend, you will spend eternity somewhere. The responsibility is yours. Grace is free to all who will accept it. Think how Christ sacrificed His own life for your redemption!

If you should sacrifice the bliss of heaven and immortal glory to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a short span of life, you must pay the penalty for your sins and spend eternity in eternal punishment forever and ever. How sad that would be.

Salvation is free; it's your responsibility as a free moral being to accept the grace of God through faith and be saved and inherit eternal life, or reject and inherit eternal punishment forever and

Shady Grove Church Presents Easter Pageant

The Sunrise Easter Service at Shady Grove church, Route 5, Dunn, North Carolina, was an Easter pageant entitled "There Was a Garden," which was presented in the sanctuary of the church. The pageant was directed by Mrs. Earl Lockamy.

The chancel of the church was used as "The garden where Jesus had lain" with the friends of Jesus coming to the garden.

The Youth Choir (pictured behind the cast above) under the direction of Mrs. Carl P. Warren sang during the pageant.

A memorial service and procession to the church cemetery followed the pageant. Immediately after the memorial service a fellowship breakfast was served in the fellowship building. The Rev. Walter Reynolds is pastor of the church.

Adult Sunday School Class Held Fellowship Supper

The Adult Sunday School Class of the Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church, Saratoga, North Carolina, met at Parkers Barbecue Restaurant, Wilson, North Carolina, Friday night, April 17, for its meeting and fellowship supper. Mr. George Welton presided and welcomed the members and guests. He recognized Mrs. Cecil Rose, the pastor's wife, who introduced Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hawley. Mrs. Hawley was the guest speaker for the evening and she used as her topic, "Opened Doors."

The teacher of the class, Mr. Preston Proctor, welcomed each member present and recognized the second oldest member of the church, Mrs. John Taylor. Mr. Proctor also offered thanks for the supper which was served to the twenty-seven members and guests attending.

Christian Education

The Great Challenge Of Mount Olive College

W. Burkette Raper, President

(Editor's note: This article originally appeared as an editorial in the April 22 issue of the Goldsboro News-Argus.)

Mount Olive, now in its tenth year, is the youngest church-related junior college in North Carolina. With the current emphasis upon tax-supported community colleges, the citizens of Wayne County are encouraged to ask, What contribution can Mount Olive College make toward meeting our needs for higher education?

This question presents a challenge to which this editorial is addressed.

QUALITY EDUCATION

A former university president who visited Mount Olive College recently remarked, "The thing that astounds me about this institution is how it achieved full accreditation in so short a time with such limited facilities and funds."

This accreditation was achieved in minimum time in an old building which the public school system of Wayne County had abandoned. It was done without a single dollar of tax money from the county, state, or nation.

Full accreditation was the reward of the dedication of the college to academic excellence. Students from Mount Olive have transferred without difficulty to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Greensboro, and Raleigh, Davidson College, Wake Forest, East Carolina and other respected colleges throughout the state and nation.

The unquestioned success of its graduates assures the youth of Wayne and surrounding counties that quality education is the hallmark of Mount Olive College.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Mount Olive considers that its primary obligation is to be a Christian college. Recent decisions of the Supreme Court have declared that public education must be neutral in religion. The results could well be an unprecedented vacuum in spiritual values that would be morally disastrous. "Educate men without religion, and you make them but clever devils," declared Wellington.

Christian education is committed to those ultimate spiritual values which make man a soul rather than an animal. Our belief in human and divine values is democratic freedom and totalitarian communism.

Mount Olive, along with other Christian colleges, is not neutral in religion. It believes that the things of the Spirit are of overwhelming importance and that knowledge and logic are meaningless without the love of God.

Mount Olive seeks to be Christian in its philosophy, in its personnel, and in its program, but with equal conviction it

College Chorus to Present Programs

The Mount Olive College Chorus will present two programs of sacred music Sunday, May 3.

At 3:30 p.m. the chorus will be at Friendship church near Trenton, North Carolina. This will be the first appearance of the chorus in Jones County.

At 7:30 p.m., the chorus will sing at Saint Mary's church in New Bern.

All friends of the college are cordially invited to hear the chorus when it comes to their community. President W. Burkette Raper will be at each program to bring greetings from the college.

wishes to avoid those narrow concepts of dogmatism that would defeat the true purposes of education.

Its commitment to the person and teachings of Jesus Christ, a commitment which public education cannot make, is the supreme contribution of Mount Olive College to higher education in Wayne County.

SERVICE TO FREE WILL BAPTISTS

In terms of membership, Free Will Baptists, who sponsor Mount Olive College, are one of the largest churches in Wayne County. More than 12,000 members live within 30 miles of Mount Olive. No other college can serve and challenge these people as can their own college.

Mount Olive is the highest educational achievement in the 237-year history of the denomination. It is contributing immeasurably to the cultural, economic, and social development of the church as well as to its religious growth.

In response, the 35,000 Free Will Baptists of North Carolina are setting an unprecedented pace in support of the college. During 1963 they gave $120,000 and are expected to give even more during 1964.

As Mount Olive College serves its sponsoring church, it is at the same time serving a large segment of the people of Wayne and surrounding counties.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

Mount Olive College is a champion of the educational philosophy of Governor Charles B. Aycock, one of Wayne County's most illustrious sons—"the equal right of every child born on earth to have the opportunity to burgeon out all that is within him."

So far as is known, no qualified and worthy student has been denied admission to the college for financial reasons. More than $20,000 is being expended for student aid during the current school year.

Mount Olive does not believe that the financial competence of one's parents should be the controlling factor in determining his educational opportunity. Instead, the college believes that each young person should have an opportunity to go as far as his abilities and dedication will carry him.

It is recognized, however, that there is no such thing as a "free education." It is only a question of who will pay for it and when and how. Mount Olive seeks to balance the financial load of attending college by reasonable tuition rates, scholarships, education loans, and part-time student employment.

Mount Olive College is an open door of opportunity for worthy and qualified students. This open door is in the best American tradition of helping people to help themselves.

DIANNE ROACH WINS CONTEST

Miss Dianne Roach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roach of Route 1, Ayden, North Carolina, was first place winner in the AFC State Declamation Contest, which was held Saturday, April 18, at the Sherron Acres Free Will Baptist Church of Durham.

Dianne is from the Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church and was a representative of the Central Youth Convention. She is benevolent chairman in her local AFC. She attends the Grifton school and is in the seventh grade.

Mrs. Norman Ard, her local and district youth chairman, states, "It has certainly been a joy working with Dianne. She is a person who wants to do and win. I feel that the time spent assisting her in writing and preparing the speech on 'Stewardship' has not been wasted. Everyone at Elm Grove is very proud of her!"

Dianne received $15 as an award. She plans to use this money to pay on her expenses for a week at Cragmont, the Free Will Baptist summer camp.

ATTENTION N. C. WOMAN'S AUXILIARIES

Our 1964 State Woman's Auxiliary Convention meets with Lee's Chapel church, near Dunn, Thursday, May 7, Registration begins at 9:30. Every auxiliary should be represented with one delegate for each 25 members or fraction thereof, plus a registration fee of $5.

Many auxiliaries mail their fee in advance. This is a good way to represent. It saves the delegate the trouble of handling money, and in the event something should happen at the last minute to prohibit representing in person, your auxiliary is registered as having been represented.

Important: Please mail your fee before May 3, if possible, so that the treasurer will have time to get the list prepared and delivered to the convention registration committee ready to use the morning of May 7. If you cannot possibly attend, please mail your fee. The convention needs your support for its continued operation.

Mail fees to: Mrs. Raymond T. Sasser, state treasurer, 108 Hope Lodge St., Tarboro, N. C.

Vanceboro, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Juniper Chapel Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Walter Taylor Wednesday, April 15. The meeting was called to order by the president, followed with prayer by Mrs. John Wilson. The roll was called with 26 members and one visitor present. An offering of $13.50 was taken. Old and new business were taken care of. The group decided to send $10 to Mount Olive College to be applied on the new campus fund. Reports were given by each committee. The study course chairman reported on the mission study that was held on Tuesday, April 14, with Mrs. L. E. Ballard as the speaker. She reported a very good attendance. Mrs. Mabel Rowe gave a good report of the convention held at Beulavill. One new member joined the group of tithers.

The program chairman, Mrs. Irene Tripp, took charge of the program. The group sang "Help Somebody Today," and Mrs. Walter Taylor led in prayer. Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Albert Jones, Mrs. Lewis Spear, Mrs. Margaret McGowan, and Mrs. Irene Morris. Mrs. Morris also sang "Give of Your Best to the Master," and closed the program with prayer.

A social hour followed the meeting.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Deep Run Free Will Baptist Church met on Wednesday night, April 15, in the educational building of the church. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Melvin Everington. The minutes of the last meeting were read, and the treasurer reported a balance of $277.60. These reports were accepted by the auxiliary. Mrs. Jimmy Grady explained the Standard of Achievement Chart which shows that the auxiliary is well on its way to becoming an A-1 auxiliary. The auxiliary has taken as projects for the year to tile the floor of the educational building and to purchase curtains for the building, also to purchase curtains for the back windows of the church.

The program chairman, Mrs. Phyllis Davenport, presented an interesting program on the subject, "But There's Nothing I Can Do." The meeting closed with the praying of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Saratoga, N. C.—Gray Pipkin was the host to the AFC of Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church Thursday night, April 16. The presiding officer, Miss Betty Harrell, welcomed the fifteen members and four guests present. Miss Gay Rose gave a report on the recent union meeting.

The program, "The Holy Day," was presented by Miss Brenda Draper. Assisting her were Elizabeth Cobb, Sharon Shackelford, Sandra White, Brenda Bass, Patt Jones, Gay Rose, and Gray Pipkin.

During the social hour cookies, mints, potato chips, and drinks were served to the group.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church held its April meeting at the church. The meeting was opened with the singing of "Have Thine Own Way," and Mrs. Pearl Smith led the opening prayer. Nineteen members were present.

Mrs. Laura Boyette introduced an interesting program; and Mrs. Clarissa Merritt, Lala Deaver, and Debbie Heath took part. Mrs. Smith then sang "No One Ever Cared for Me Like Jesus"; she was accompanied by Mrs. George Mercer.

President Ada Hines presided over the business session. Reports from chairmen and delegates to the auxiliary convention were given. A barbecue supper was planned for the near future; Mrs. Ruth Hines, Lala Deaver, and Geraldine Hill were appointed to the committee to make plans.

Mrs. Hazel Outlaw gave the benediction.

Aurora, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of White Hill Free Will Baptist Church held its April meeting Friday night, April 17, in the home of Mrs. Phebe Cayton with seventeen members and two visitors present. The meeting opened with the group singing "Help Somebody Today." The Scripture lesson, taken from Philippians 4:8-13, was read by the program chairman, Mrs. Lola Gillikin, followed with prayer.

The president, Mrs. Phebe Cayton, presided over the business session. The secretary, Mrs. Elsie G. Rowe, read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll with each one answering by paying her dues. A motion was made and carried that the auxiliary send $6 to Mount Olive College as it had been doing twice a year, April and October.

Following the business session, the program was turned over to the program chairman. Those assisting her with the program were Mrs. Aurie Hayes, Mrs. Phebe Cayton, Mrs. Andree David, and Mrs. Betty Arthur. The meeting closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie," and the praying of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The hostess served delicious refreshments which were enjoyed by all.

rendered special music for the morning worship service.

Special music by the girls' trio and a double quartet was rendered at the evening worship service. Miss Karen Hancock was organist during Youth Week and Miss Dianne Williams was pianist.

Highlighting the Youth Week activities was the crowning of the king and queen at the mission banquet on Saturday night. Mrs. Earl H. Glenn announced the winners who were selected by the members of the Youth Fellowship Auxiliary. Ronnie Jenkins was crowned as king and Karan Hancock as queen.

The newly-chosen queen led the group in singing several missionary choruses. A missionary playlet, "A Day in the Life of Paul," was presented by Don Jenkins, Bill Baldree, Kenneth Holt, William Rowe, David Reece, Ronnie Jenkins, Donnie Tilghman, and Gray Baldree. Ross Phipps was the narrator.

The Rev. Earl H. Glenn, pastor of the church, gave a brief talk on missions. He explained why we have missionaries, the qualifications of missionaries, and the work of missionaries.

The menu for the dinner consisted of ham, strong beans, potato salad, apple sauce, rolls, tea, and homemade cake. The banquet tables were covered with white cloths with world globes for the centerpieces. Small cardboard footprints in pastel colors were placed down the center of the tables. A large world map was displayed at one end of the fellowship hall. Around it were footprints similar to those used on the tables.

At the other end of the hall a set of steps was displayed on the wall. Each step was lettered to spell out the theme, "Step by Step with Jesus in Missions." Footprints were placed on the steps.

Miss Judy Williams was the presiding officer. She recognized the following honor guests: Mrs. D. W. Hancock, Mrs. Bernard Adkins, Mrs. W. Z. Marshburn, Mrs. Make P. Miller, Mrs. Earl H. Glenn, Mrs. Ed Baldree, Mr. Ross Phipps, and the Rev. Earl H. Glenn.

QUOTES

EVENTS THAT BRING BLESSINGS

I have had the pleasure of attending some of the conventions and special meetings that are affiliated with the North Carolina State Convention of late, and in all these meetings I found reports and fellowship that made my heart rejoice.

My wife and I attended the Western Woman's Auxiliary Convention, which convened at Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Pikeville, where we met many old friends, some of those with whom we had fellowship years ago. Although years have passed, we found that same good old way of fellowship, a fellowship that belongs to and with old-fashioned Original Free Will Baptists.

The Holy Spirit was evident in the transactions of the convention. The good ladies of that convention are marching on to victory in the cause of Christ. They are supporting the institutions of North Carolina and also both home and foreign missions; and in doing so, they are manifesting the Spirit of the Lord. We were received gracefully. We really were renewed and enlarged in faith as to the success and accomplishments of North Carolina Free Will Baptists.

THE WORKSHOP AT MOUNT OLIVE

My wife and I, with some of the young people of our church in Bridgeton, motored down to Mount Olive Junior College to attend the Vacation Bible School Workshop Saturday, April 11, which was another enjoyable occasion. It made us rejoice to see that great gathering of young people and leaders in the Bible school movement. We saw people from a major part of North Carolina, especially the eastern part, who were studying literature that has been prepared by dedicated writers and editors and who were having fellowship in the display rooms. It was truly a great day in vacation Bible school preparation.

There were a goodly number of ministers, on hand mostly as spectators, and some helpers. Most of these fellows spent their time fellowshiping with one another, talking over old times, and talking about things that are vital to the ongoing of the denomination. The preachers, as a whole, were not in any of the classes. Perhaps they should have been classed and taught to help promote and direct a vacation Bible school. Some will help with the work anyway, but I find that there is always much to learn, and I do not know of preachers that know any too much about vacation Bible schools. So perhaps sometime in the future our good women will call on the powers that be to arrange a course that will fit pastors for positions in the vacation Bible school.

May I say that even though we ministers did not sit in classes, I was well paid by viewing that excellent attendance, which was said to be the largest ever, amounting, if I understood Dr. Raper, at the lunch hour to be more than 450 registered. One of the scenes that made my heart rejoice was to see the activity of the young men and women of the college, students so active in preparing the accommodations and trying to make everybody happy. Too, in that number of students were some fine young ministerial students who are preparing for pastors and evangelists. This old man, if you want to call him old, has been much in prayer that God would call young men and young women into full-time service to fill the gap of those who are having to retire, those whom God is calling to go home, and those who for reasons of their own are falling by the wayside.

Ever since God called me to the ministry, I have known and heard of some, who said that God had called them, leaving the ministry and going to some other field of labor, for one reason or another. The Apostle Paul had to suffer disappointment in the person of Demas and sent out an SOS: "Do thy diligence to come shortly unto me: For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world, and is departed to Thessalonica; Crescens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia. Only Luke is with me. Take Mark, and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministry (2 Timothy 4:9-11).

GUM SWAMP DEDICATION

Another enjoyable occasion was experienced Sunday, March 22, when ac-ording to invitation I preached the dedicatory sermon at Gum Swamp Original Free Will Baptist Church, dedicating the new Sunday school department. It was such a happy experience to fellowship with those dear saints. People who know the Lord and who are ready and willing to put their money into the work of the Lord as the Gum Swamp people did to pay for and present to the Lord those arranged quarters to be used for the glory of God are to be commended.

Besides the fellowship of the Holy Spirit in the worship service, fellowship in temporal things was most excellent. You see, I was pastor of this church years ago; and it always fills my soul when I am called back to a former pastorate. Gum Swamp is one of the best and oldest churches of the Free Will Baptist denomination in North Carolina. In reality, it is one of the first Free Will Baptist churches established in North Carolina. Since it was one of the first, it is an established fact that it is original. Webster's dictionary says that original means "belonging to the origin or beginning of anything; the commencement of the existence of anything." Thus, according to Webster, Gum Swamp and others in its class are the Original Free Will Baptists in North Carolina. Well, to finish, every minute of my stay in the community of Gum Swamp was greatly enjoyed. The Rev. Austin Carter is pastor.

J. C. GRIFFIN DAY

Sunday, April 19, I was blessed with being with the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church in Pitt County, a church that I served as pastor for fourteen years. The church then was a quarter-time church. God wonderfully blessed, and the church grew. Many were saved during those fourteen years. I have been called back for many special services. I preached to a large and well attentive congregation, and my heart was warmed by the presence of the Holy Spirit as I talked. It was wonderful when many of the men would say, "Do you remember me?"

A goodly number of ladies would come and say, "Do you remember me?" They perhaps they would say, "I was saved under your ministry and you baptized me." But I have been away from that pastorate for about seventeen years and have gone back occasionally for funerals or some special service which was over quickly and I did not have time to renew acquaintances. But my heart tracted more students than its physical facilities can accommodate. From an initial enrollment of 22 students ten years ago, the college has grown to 260 students during 1963-64.

In order to maintain its quality and to broaden its services, the college has acquired a new 90-acre campus on which construction of new buildings is scheduled to begin this summer. A master plan has been prepared to assure the orderly development of the college.

Friends have responded to the challenge of Mount Olive by creating the College Area Foundation as a means of raising and coordinating voluntary support. The foundation is destined to play a significant role in helping to provide Christian education of the highest quality for the youth of Wayne and neighboring counties.

Mount Olive is a rewarding challenge to all who believe with George Washington that "the perpetuity of this nation depends upon the religious education of the young."

College Day at Rock of Zion

Rock of Zion church at Grantsboro, North Carolina, will observe Sunday, May 3, as Mount Olive College Day, the Rev. Andrew Hill, pastor, has announced.

President W. Burkette Raper will teach the young people's Sunday school class and preach at 11 a.m.

Piney Grove Church Announces Spring Revival

The spring revival will begin at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Beaufort County, North Carolina, Sunday, May 3, and continue through Saturday, May 9, with the Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain, North Carolina, as the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:45.

The pastor, the Rev. Winfred Brickhouse, and the church invite everyone to attend these services.

MOTHER'S DAY TO BE OBSERVED AS CHILDREN'S HOME DAY

M. L. JOHNSON, Superintendent

May is Children's Home Month for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina. In keeping with a recommendation of the North Carolina State Convention, all churches and other organizations are urged to observe Mother's Day as a special Children's Home day. Each organization is encouraged to attempt to raise a "Mother's Day Gift" equivalent to $1 per member to help provide funds that are needed to operate the home during the spring season.

For many years Thanksgiving has been considered as an appropriate season to make special gifts to our Children's Home. Mother's Day is considered as the next most appropriate occasion to remind our people of the needs of the children "entrusted in our care." Mother's Day was observed as a special day for the Children's Home among Free Will Baptists last year. The response was very good. It is hoped that our churches and other organizations will develop this program to the point that Mother's Day gifts will provide the necessary funds to meet the needs during the spring season as the Thanksgiving gifts help to meet the needs of the fall season, thus giving a balanced program of financial support.

All loyal Original Free Will Baptists can help make this undertaking a success. All pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and auxiliary presidents, as well as other leaders, are urged to call this matter to the attention of their members and give them an opportunity to have a part in the Mother's Day giving.

It is suggested that each church or other organization receive a special offering on Mother's Day, or at the time nearest Mother's Day that will best fit into their program. If it is not practical to receive a special offering, it is suggested that a special contribution be sent from the treasury or that special individual gifts be solicited.

A special Mother's Day honor roll will be published in The Free Will Baptist listing all churches or other organizations giving the equivalent of $1 per member during the month of May.

Churches and other organizations which cannot send $1 per member are urged to send whatever amount they can. There are now 77 children at our Children's Home at Middlesex. Any amount that you or your organization can give will be very helpful and will be deeply appreciated.

Remember the mission of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home is to provide "A Christian home for boys and girls entrusted in our care."

HELPING TO PROVIDE

"A Christian Home for Boys and Girls"

FIRE AND SODA POP

by BERYL MUSSELMAN

DICK, Janey and Angel paused in their play. They always did when the fire alarm sounded downtown.

"One—two — three. One — two," shrilled the whistle.

"That's around here!" shouted Dick.

Dick ran to the street and looked up and down. Janey and Angel were at his heels.

"Look!" shrieked Janey. "There's Randy and Bob running up the hill!"

Dick and Janey ran as fast as they could down the sidewalk. Angel was not far behind them.

Soon they were joined by Cal and Betty. Other boys and girls ran down driveways and toward the hill.

Next they saw black smoke rising from the house in which Elsie Richards lived!

"Oh," gasped Dick, "it's Elsie's house!"

Flames were coming out of the windows at the back of the house. The upstairs windows were broken and flames and smoke were shooting toward the trees.

Janey knew Elsie Richards very well. She was in the same room in school with Elsie. Janey's mother had given Elsie some of Janey's dresses.

Crowds of people and boys and girls gathered around the burning house. The fire trucks were already spraying the house with water. The police car was standing on the street in front of the house.

Janey looked closely at the crowd of people. She saw Elsie, who was crying. Her mother had her arm around Elsie. Her mother was crying too.

Janey walked in and out among the people. Soon she was standing near Elsie. Walking over to Elsie she put her hand on Elsie's arm.

"I'm sorry, Elsie," Janey said softly.

Elsie looked at Janey. Tears were streaming down her cheeks, but she tried to smile at Janey.

Just then some people hurried to where Elsie and her mother were standing. They took them away and put them in a car. Then the car drove away.

Dick, Janey, Angel and the other boys and girls stayed near the house until the firemen had put out the fire. Then the firemen and policemen told everyone to leave.

Dick, Janey and Angel were excited! This was the first fire they had ever seen. They talked about the flames, the smoke, the firemen, the hoses, the water running down the side of the house, and the black charred wood around the windows.

When they went home, they told Father and Mother about the fire. Mother said: "We must find out what the Richards need now. The fire probably burned many of their chairs and curtains and other things."

Janey was happy Mother thought of that. She said, "Mother, may I give Elsie some of my dresses?"

"Yes, Janey," Mother said.

Later that day, Dick and Janey were playing outdoors.

Suddenly Dick said, "Let's go see the Richards' house! I never saw anything that was burned in a house before."

Janey didn't think she wanted to see a burned house.

"I—I—don't think I want to go, Dick," Janey said.

"Aw, come on! It won't hurt you!" Dick said, scowling. "Anyway, I don't want to go alone."

"Well, I'll go with you, then," said Janey.

Dick and Janey were running up the hill when they met Randy and Bob. Both boys were drinking soft drinks from the bottle.

Between gulps they called to Dick and Janey. "All the soda pop you want at the Richards' house!" they yelled.

"Oh, goody!" shouted Dick. He started running faster.

Janey tried to keep up with Dick, but he reached the house first. She saw him talking to Cal and Betty who were leaving the Richards' house. Dick ran around to the back of the house.

The house looked bare and lonely. Janey was afraid to go in, but she saw Dick motioning for her to come to the back door.

She walked carefully inside the kitchen. The walls were wet and some of the wallpaper was torn. The wood around the door was black.

Dick ran to the refrigerator and opened it. Inside were three pop bottles. On the floor were six or eight bottles. Dick grabbed a bottle and opened it. He gave it to Janey. He grabbed another bottle and opened it and started to drink it. Then they walked around the downstairs.

"Come on! Let's get out of here!" Dick said.

Janey ran from the house with Dick.

They ran down the street still holding their pop bottles. A car pulled up to the Richards' house when Janey turned around to see the burned house.

Janey drank the pop slowly. Dick drank his fast and ran away. "I'm going to take the bottle to the store and get two cents for it," he shouted.

Janey still had the bottle in her hand when she walked to her bedroom.

She sat down on the edge of her bed. Over and over a voice was saying, "You shouldn't have stolen that pop! You shouldn't have stolen that pop!"

Janey remembered the Bible verse she learned in Sunday School. "Thou shalt not steal" (Exodus 20:15). Her Sunday School teacher had said, "Always return anything you may have stolen. It is wrong to steal. God is not pleased when you steal."

Janey looked at the empty bottle on the dresser. The pop was all gone. How could she return it?

Tears came into Janey's eyes. She remembered how sad Elsie looked when the house was burning. Janey also remembered that Elsie looked relieved when Janey said she was sorry her house was on fire.

What would Elsie think of Janey if she knew that Janey had stolen the pop right out of the refrigerator in her house?

Janey got down on her knees by her bed. She prayed.

"Dear Lord, I have been very bad. I stole pop from Elsie's house. Please forgive me, Lord Jesus. I will go to Elsie and tell her I'm sorry."

Picking up the pop bottle from the dresser Janey left her room. She walked down the stairs, out the front door, and up the hill toward Elsie's house. The car was gone that Janey had seen drive up to the house a while before.

Janey was afraid to go near the burned house. It looked spooky. Then Janey remembered that she had stolen the pop and wanted to tell Elsie she was sorry. She hurried around the house to the back door.

This time she rapped on the door post. The firemen had torn the door off its hinges. No one was inside the house. Janey walked in and put the bottle on the floor by the refrigerator.

"Elsie! Elsie!" she called by the kitchen door.

It was starting to get dark outside. The burned places in the kitchen looked much worse than when the sun was shining.

Janey hurried out of the house. She ran down the driveway. She kept on running until she was almost at her house.

Tears were blotting her eyes. She didn't see Elsie until she was almost up to her.

"Oh!" Janey said. Elsie looked at Janey sadly.

"Elsie," Janey said, trying to catch her breath. "I—I—stole a bottle of pop from your house! I'm so sorry! I know it was wrong!"

Elsie put her hand on Janey's shoulder. "We were unhappy when we saw what the boys and girls had taken from our house. The pop bottles were all over the kitchen floor! At first, I was angry. We had bought the pop for a party we were going to have tonight. Now, of course, we cannot have the party because the house burned." Elsie stopped. She saw tears in Janey's eyes.

"Janey," Elsie said, "you are honest. I forgive you for taking the pop. Please don't ever do anything like that again!"

"Oh, I won't, Elsie!"

Janey hurried home. It was getting darker. Mother would wonder what had happened to her. Deep inside Janey had a happy feeling. God had forgiven her for stealing. Elsie had forgiven her. She would never steal again!

OBITUARIES

MR. THEODORE LANGDON

Mr. Theodore Langdon, age 53, of Smithfield, North Carolina, passed away unexpectedly on March 4, 1964. Surviving are his wife, the former Ruby Johnson; one son, Braxton; three daughters, Mrs. Shirley Davis, Mrs. Jelynn Boryk, and Mrs. Doreann Davis; his mother, Mrs. Julia Ann Langdon; four sisters, and two brothers. He had been a member of Hopewell Free Will Baptist Church for the past 39 years.

The day he embarked on the sea of life
There was not a cloud in sight;
He was just a little angel then,
Not knowing wrong from right.

When he reached the age of accountability
On a voyage filled with toil and strife,
He assumed the great task of responsibility
Upon the tempestuous sea of life.

God was the answer, so at an early age
He gave his heart to Him.
He helped him through when the waves did rage,
And his faith never did grow dim.

Through the greatness of God and a goodly wife
Four lovely children adorned the home.
To them he was always good, kind, and true,
And from his shelter they never roam.
He loved his church with all his heart,
Striving hard his place to fill;
He was always there to do his part,
And never said "No," but "I will."

The day he did his last labor here
He finished a job for his church.
Was he happy to do it? We need not ask,
For the Lord's work he never shirked.
As he took up his tools and left the place,
His face showed the joy in his heart;
For the God up above had finished his home,
And from Him he never would depart.

He had kept the faith and had been so true,
Now he was ready to hear the Saviour say:
"Enter into the place I have prepared for you And rest from the toils of the day."

Up in heaven he will know no sorrow;
No tear will ever dim his eyes;
No worry ere dawns the tomorrow,
For with Jesus he lives on high.

MRS. KELLY HINNANT

On the Sunday afternoon of April 5, 1964, God in His mercy saw fit to call Mrs. Kelly Hinnant of Pikeville, North Carolina, to be with Him. She was 58 years old and was loved by all her friends and neighbors.

She united with the Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church at an early age, and had been a very loyal and active member. She was always ready to do what she could for her church, her Sunday school, and her community.

She is survived by two children, Mrs. Larry Crumpler and J. R. Hinnant; one sister, Thelma Goodman; three brothers, Brodie, Loyd, and Odell Goodman, all of Pikeville; four grandchildren; a dear old aunt, Mrs. Nathan Barnette; and a host of friends.

We cannot mention all the good and worthy deeds that Lela Hinnant did, for space will not allow it. She did not pick the easy things to do, but was humble and submissive to work where she was needed most. Even though her health failed her, she kept up her good work until her last day here on earth. Her faith in God was strong, and she lived for Him each day of her life. She was at her post most of the time and ready to say, "Here am I, Lord; send me." If we had more like Lela, ready to do the things for the Lord, this would be a better world in which to live.

So many times she has gone from house to house where she knew someone was sick and shut-in to see what she could do for them. She has often been thought of as Dorcas or the Good Samaritan. Oh, if we just had more like Lela today! So often we hear it said, "I don't have time to visit the sick or do what I would like to do"; but this sister didn't say this. She went and worked where she was needed most.

Her life will live on in our memory, and we trust that many will pattern their lives after her and live for the Lord as she did.

We would like to say to the family and friends, "Weep not, for we feel she is resting with the Lord." May we all strive to meet her in heaven someday.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for May 10

The Christian's Use Of Leisure

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 6:33; Mark 6:30-32; 1 Corinthians 6:12-14, 19, 20; Philippians 4:8

MEMORY VERSE: 1 Corinthians 10:31

I. INTRODUCTION

Most young people have more time to spend than did their parents, and there is an indication that they will have still more in the future. This time to spend is referred to as our leisure time, the time each individual has in which nothing is demanding his time. It is those hours during the day when the choice of what to do belongs to the individual alone. This lesson should remind us that we are to use our leisure time in such activities as will glorify God.

Too many young people waste their leisure, and wasted hours cannot be recalled. Every young person could spend much more time in the service of the church. The percentage of those who spend more than four hours per week in Christian service of some kind is very small. We should not wonder that the church has lost a part of its influence in the world. Young people are spending too much time in the interest of activities and amusements which cannot add anything to the cause of Christ.

We all understand, of course, that there are times when each individual needs to relax. Times of rest are necessary in these days of stress and strain. Overwork is a sin against the physical body; thus, Christians must use their time wisely, resting when it is time to rest, working when it is time to work, and serving Christ when it is time to serve Him. The words of Solomon are appropriate here: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven: A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted; A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up; A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing. A time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace" (Ecclesiastes 3:1-8).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The command to every Christian is to give first place to the kingdom of God and His righteousness (v. 33).

2. Those who rightly observe this commandment are assured that their material needs will be supplied (v. 33).

3. The apostles came back to report and to give account to Jesus who had sent them out on a mission for Him (v. 30).

4. When the apostles had finished their mission, Jesus invited them to a quiet place to rest awhile (v. 31).

5. The place to which they went was simple, but it was a place of rest (v. 32).

6. Although Paul could freely partake of many things, as far as the gospel was concerned, he refrained from all things that were not in keeping with the divine will for him (v. 12).

7. The body is holy unto the Lord, and it should be used only for His glory (v. 13).

8. The resurrection of Jesus assures our own resurrection (v. 14).

9. Our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit, and we should keep them pure and clean as His abiding place (v. 19).

10. We are bought with a price—the blood of Jesus Christ—and we should therefore be fully obedient to His commands (v. 20).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTH

1. Tools are essential in many of our daily activities, and no matter how small or how large the tool is, it must be in good working condition to be most useful. The surgeon needs a scalpel that has a razor-keen edge, while the ditch digger needs a spade that also has a sharp edge. When these tools become dull they must be sharpened by a grindstone, but would one use this sharpening agent on the surgeon's scalpel? No, this would leave the scalpel with a ragged edge. The scalpel must be honed with a very fine stone. On the other hand, one would not think of sharpening the spade with a fine stone, because it would take far too long to obtain good results.

People are like tools in that they tend to feel exhausted after a hard day of physical exertion. Others may feel tired because of the monotonous routine of a job like tightening bolts or typing numerous letters. Whatever one's task, at the end of the day he needs a change that will help rejuvenate him for the day to come. The way leisure time is used will not necessarily be the same for all persons, for different persons have different needs. If one has worked hard digging with a shovel all day, a good way to rest might be to sit in a good easy chair and read the newspaper. But for the one who has been seated all day at work, that would not be nearly as valuable as gardening or a game of softball. One should choose his leisure time activities wisely, asking himself, "Will this activity really re-create me so that I am prepared for a better day of service tomorrow?"

—Standard Lesson Commentary

2. Worldly interests bid high for a sizeable portion of the leisure time of young Christians. However sincere may be their desire to live for Christ, they are daily beset with all sorts of inducements to spend their time in questionable or actual unchristian ways. It would be difficult for them to isolate themselves from constant temptation to walk the broad road that leads to destruction. Billboards and other advertisements, and radio and television voices are ceaselessly leaving their impact on the young Christian's conscience. Add to these the telling personal influence of boy and girl associates in school and on the playground, and you have a formidable array of tempters.

But then, so did the young Christians in the churches to whom Paul wrote his counsel. True, there were no radio and television inducements to unworthy habits and thoughts, but there was the idolatrous outside world around Christian youth. And these youths refused to have a part in false worship and the licentious practices connected with some of it. There were also close friends and relatives of the new Christians who had not accepted the Saviour and who tried to lure converts back to old ways. Help your pupils to learn the truth of the Golden Text as did the early Christians.

3. All of us recognize the importance of children and young people developing as they should. It is recognized that they should develop along at least four lines: physically, mentally, socially and spiritually. But most of us feel that we are adults and our days of development are over. This is true to some extent. However, we feel that there are also four things that every adult must learn to do if his life is going to be full, happy and useful.

First, the adult must learn to love properly. The child's love is self-centered. Many adults have never grown up in this respect. Their love is still self-centered. To love properly is to be unselfish; to love properly is to lose one's self for the concern and welfare of others. Only when we do this will our lives be what the Master wants them to be.

Second, the adult must learn to work. Can you imagine what our lives would be without some useful work. To learn to work is to learn to use our time and abilities so as to be most productive for ourselves and others. There is more to work than the mere making of a living. Our work, to some extent, becomes our way of life. Therefore, if we would be happy and useful we must learn to work.

Third, the adult must learn to worship. We do not believe that any person can ever be what God wants him to be, until he has learned to worship. From worship we get inspiration and strength, and through it we are able to express our feelings for the Creator. No one can be happy until he has learned to worship.

Fourth, the adult must learn to play. The child usually knows how to play, but the adult has often forgotten it. It is important that the adult learn to do some meaningful activity that is not connected with his work. After all, isn't this what play is? It is through this activity that his body is rested and refreshed. It is also through this activity that he is able to forget his work for awhile and give his mind an opportunity to rest from its care.

The use of leisure time, or play, is already a problem with the short working hours that many have, plus the labor-saving devices. But according to scientists and engineers and planners, it is going to become more and more of a problem. This is true because of shorter working hours, more laborsaving devices and the increasing number of older people in our society.

Revival in Progress At St. Paul Church

Revival services began at St. Paul Free Will Baptist Church, Elizabeth City, North Carolina, on Monday night, April 27, at 7:30, and will continue through Sunday night, May 3. The Rev. Robert May, pastor of Hickory Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in Ahoskie, North Carolina, is the evangelist. The pastor, the Rev. John A. Owens, is assisting in the services which features special singing each evening.

Mr. May attended Mount Olive College and is well known as a man of God and a soul winner.

The pastor and the church extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attending the remainder of these services and be much in prayer for the success of the meeting.

Rev. Everton to Conduct Revival At Northern Church

The Rev. Wilbert Everton will be the guest minister for revival services at Northern Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Bahama, North Carolina. Services will begin on Monday night, May 4, at 7:30 p. m., and will continue through Saturday night, May 9. Special singing is being planned for each service.

The pastor, the Rev. Billy R. Jordan, and the church extend a cordial welcome to the public to attend these services.

was filled with praise to my Christ when one would say, "I was saved under your ministry." Both Gum Swamp and Black Jack have pastors who are very good servants of the Lord. As I have stated, the pastor of Gum Swamp is the Rev. Austin Carter, and the pastor of Black Jack is the Rev. Floyd B. Cherry. These men of God gave me a most wonderful brotherly greeting. They invited me to visit their work when convenient.

AN INVITATION COMES FROM CORE CREEK

I have been invited to go to Core Creek Original Free Will Baptist Church at Cove City the first Sunday in May to preach their homecoming sermon. I served this church for two years several years ago, and always I had the sweetest Christian cooperation that any pastor could ask for. I have been invited to preach on certain occasions several times since closing out my ministry there. I am looking for a good old-fashioned Christian fellowship when I get back to this church. Pray for the writer of "Notes and Quotes." I will be seeing you all along, as the Holy Spirit leads.

Woe to Pastors—that God is faithful and will show Himself plenteous in mercy unto all them who will confess and forsake their sins.

On the other hand, let us consider what will be the end of those that obey not God. God, who has been faithful and will be faithful, shall in that day say unto those who continue in this way a most sad, solemn, and final farewell. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; . . . Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity" (Matthew 7:21-23).

What Must I Do To Be Saved?

ever. How may we know we are saved? Turn in your Bibles to John 5:24: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life."

Again in 1 John 3:14, we note "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death."

Core Creek to Observe Homecoming Day

The Core Creek Free Will Baptist Church of Cove City, North Carolina, will observe its annual homecoming on Sunday, May 3. A cordial invitation is extended everyone to attend.

White Oak Church Announces Revival

Revival services will begin on May 3 at White Oak Free Will Baptist Church, Bladenboro, North Carolina, and continue through May 9. The evangelist will be the Rev. Walter Carter of East Rockingham.

Successful Workshop

We feel that one of the most successful daily vacation Bible school workshops which we have had the privilege of working in was the one held on April 11 at Mount Olive College. This workshop has been conducted for the past ten years, with splendid success each year. The success is made possible through the efforts of the three sponsoring groups: the Free Will Baptist Press, the North Carolina Woman's Auxiliary Convention, and Mount Olive College.

We would like to personally commend and thank the college for the fine way the workshop was handled this year. The workers there, both students and administration, did a wonderful job.

According to Mr. Charles H. Harrell, business manager at the college, there were 440 individuals who registered and participated in the workshop. In addition to these persons, there was a good number of ministers and laymen who did not register.

The Free Will Baptist Press is grateful for those throughout North Carolina who attended the workshop.

About His Church Revival

The Rev. Raymond T. Sasser, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Tarboro, North Carolina, writes about the recent revival in his church's bulletin:

"... one of the best we have ever had, with the largest attendance. Thanks to the pew packers, and the faithfulness of those who were here in their places every night. Did you receive a blessing? If not, perhaps, you did not follow God's instructions in 2 Chronicles 7:14. Spring revival is for Christians what the spring tonic (sulphur and molasses) used to be for people who were 'run-down' after a hard winter. The tonic did not help anyone as long as it remained on the shelf—it only helped those who took several doses. One dose usually made the person just feel awful, but after taking it for a week, you felt like a new person. Your pastor has a special prayer burden for those who only had one or two doses of revival tonic . . ."

Editorial—

A CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

In reply to the April 22 editorial, "An Editor's Frustrations," we received a letter and suggestion as to how the circulation of "The Free Will Baptist" may be increased from Mr. H. H. Goodwin of Morehead City, North Carolina. Mr. Goodwin wrote:

"I would like to offer the following suggestion. Select a good representative in each county, one who attends the union meetings and Sunday school conventions. Just a layman, deacon, or Sunday school superintendent would do. Provide the person with a letter or card for identification and let him represent "The Free Will Baptist." I believe it would be good to provide some kind of form for the applicant to fill out. The applicant can return the form to the Press. Then the Press could complete the job."

We personally like and appreciate Mr. Goodwin's suggestion. We believe it will work, if we can find the representatives. This, however, has always been a problem; for there must be those persons who will take the responsibility upon themselves. They must do so with the understanding and belief that they are rendering a definite service to Christ and the Free Will Baptist cause. Such persons must also believe in what they are doing before much can be accomplished. With this in mind, we would prefer volunteers for the task.

We call upon you as a reader of "The Free Will Baptist." Perhaps you are one of those persons who could find the time to solicit subscriptions. If you are, send us your name and address, and we will follow through with the rest. We feel that it would be best to hear from you before we proceed with the printing of cards, etc.

It has been some time since we have published the subscription plans. You will find them elsewhere in this issue. Of the three plans, the individual solicitation plan should be followed for those who volunteer to solicit subscriptions.

For a limited time—May through June—we are offering three years subscription for just six dollars. This is a saving of $1.50. This offer is good for both new subscriptions and renewals. Those who volunteer to solicit subscriptions are urged to promote this special offer. (Add 3% if resident of North Carolina.)

As we have previously stated, much of the success of this publication is dependent upon our readers. We must have your news, feature articles, and your subscriptions. If our circulation could be doubled, our people would be much more informed and "The Free Will Baptist" would be able to render a far more effective service.

Will you volunteer to help out? Do it today!

GREAT MEN AND THE BIBLE

George Washington said: "It is impossible rightly to govern the world without God and the Bible."

Abraham Lincoln said: "In regard to the great Book, I have only to say that it is the best gift which God has given to man."

Robert E. Lee said: "The Bible is a book in comparison with which all others are of minor importance. In all my perplexities and distress the Bible has never failed to give me light and strength."

Daniel Webster said: "If we abide by the principles taught in the Bible, our country will go on prospering and to prosper."

"I make it a practice to read the Bible through once every year."

beautiful womanhood

PERHAPS almost all women love beauty. They admire beautiful flowers and spend much time to grow them. Women love beautiful homes, nice and up-to-date furnishings, and work to keep things clean, or pay somebody else to do the work. There is no harm in this as long as the affections are not set on the temporal things of life and God left out. In fact, the affections of any and every heart should first be set on God and heavenly things. "Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth" (Colossians 3:2).

No doubt God loves beauty, for He has made so many beautiful things for our eyes to behold. This is true in the realm of nature—the hills and mountains, valleys and plains, streams, rivers and oceans, the sun, moon, stars and planetary system. God made things beautiful, but the devil and sin, in a measure, has blighted even the things of nature. We see beautiful things fade away.

Perhaps there is no beauty that is more excellent and worthwhile than that of noble womanhood. I think when the devil sought to tempt and deceive Eve in the Garden of Eden, he was driving at her womanhood, her character, her virtue, and more especially her soul. Thus, in wrecking her on a physical, moral, and spiritual basis he blighted her beauty, to a great extent, and that has come across the centuries of time to the present day and age of the world.

However, God still has beautiful women who are His pearls. Not all of them are blighted, wrecked, and ruined by sin, for they refuse to yield themselves to the devil. This is likewise true of men. We still have some beautiful, wonderful manhood in the world. Thank God.

Beautiful womanhood—that's my subject for this message. The most charming beauty of a woman is her unspotted, undefiled womanhood. This is not made possible by the diamonds and pearls she wears on her person, nor by the gawdy way she dresses, even though she might buy the finest cloth that could be made by the mills and factories of the earth and sewed by the best and most skillful seamstresses. This doesn't make beautiful, noble womanhood. Such might and does attract the attention of men, and the admiration of many; but God does not set His approval merely upon this. No doubt He frowns upon it. There must be a much deeper beauty that God approves.

Back of beautiful womanhood is the pure love and grace of God shed abroad in her heart and soul. She is clean physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually. She has virtue—moral and spiritual excellence—that only God can give and that the devil can't take away as long as she lives prayerfully, humbly, godly, meekly, and holy. Her character and virtue, godliness and holiness of heart, soul and life is not for sale at any price, and the devil and the world knows it. Her beautiful womanhood far excels that of gold, diamonds, pearls, and costly, attractive array.

Natural beauty doesn't always mean beautiful womanhood. One may have a beautiful face, and she may dress in the latest styles and fashions, and adorn herself with jewelry, and have the beauticians fix her hair in the latest styles, and yet have a character that is ugly, or even disgraceful. She may be without any saving grace, without any real virtue, and be courted by the adulterous types of men and fornicators. Her life may be shameful and disgraceful, if only it were revealed to the world, and sooner or later the world finds it out. Unless she deeply repents and gets to God she will, eventually, go down "unwept, unhonored, and unsung." How pathetic! It is almost enough to make the angels weep.

To the opposite, one may not have a very beautiful face, so far as natural beauty goes, but she may have a very beautiful, shining, charming character, and her womanhood may be without spot or wrinkle, and the best people of the land and world will highly respect and honor her. Her womanhood not only lives to bless mankind while she lives, but it will live on and on to bless the world when she is gone. Her sons and daughters will rise up and call her blessed, and others who knew her. History and literature may preserve her name, revealing her acts and deeds, and the great and wonderful things she accomplished, that future generations may know about and be blessed. That is what beautiful womanhood accomplishes. Her heights in life, morally and spiritually, will be looked upon with apprehension and may be admired long after her departure. She reveals to her people and country that she has been with Jesus, and that she was true and faithful until death. Praise the Lord.

It is true that not all good, saintly women become famous. Not every one makes an author, a teacher, or fills some prominent, outstanding place in life, but every one accomplishes something worthwhile. They love all people as well as God and go about doing good—administering to the sick and dying, helping those who may be in deep poverty and great want, or doing good otherwise. They fill their place in church, give liberally of their earthly substance for the cause of God, some of whom go to different parts of the world as missionaries to win souls to Christ.

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

News from Arizona-Mexico Missions

The Quarterly Meeting of the First Sonora Association of Free Will Baptists convened with the Grace Mission in Nogales, Sonora, on April 2, 1964. Progress was reported in all phases of the work. Two candidates to be licensed to preach were presented by the First Free Will Baptist Church of Nogales, Arizona. They were Emiliano Lopez and Federico Bernal. They were examined by the presbytery, found sound in doctrine, and duly licensed by the association.

A highlight of the meeting was the Lord's Supper and Feet Washing service which we had the last service of the meeting. This service was very necessary for instruction and example to the preachers and others who have not had much experience in that type of service.

On Friday, April 3, Fabian Guzman, Roberto Cruz, Emiliano Lopez, Francisco Castro, and myself went to Santa Cruz to visit with Brother and Sister Ernesto Kosterlitsky, and to make plans for the establishment of a church there. The opportunity is very great. We can get a property 130 feet wide by 130 feet deep with water supply and walls for a building the full length of the front. The property is located in the central part of the town, facing the main road. We can buy the property for 4,000 pesos, which is $320 in American money. We will need some $250 more to roof the building, paint it, and put it in serviceable condition. In all, we can have a very nice church property there for $500. Please help us pray about this.

Although I, John Elliston, cannot own property near the border of Mexico, my wife, Sally, can, and also her father, and all our Mexican workers can own property. We can hold the property in their names for five years while having church there. Before the five years expire it is necessary that the property be registered with the government as a church. After that it cannot be used for any other purpose. It can be used as a church until the end of the world, but the Mexican government doesn't permit the churches to hold vast amounts of land any more. The churches are permitted to hold land only for church purposes. This may sound harsh, but it was instituted to break up the vast holdings of the Roman Catholic Church. They held thousands of square miles of Mexican land and worked the peons as virtual slaves for the benefit of the church. The Roman Catholic Church has caused more people to turn to Communism than any other single agency in the world. This tendency toward Communism is a very mild reaction which has taken place in Mexico. It is a marvel that Mexico is not completely Communist.

This need in Santa Cruz is in addition to the building programs in Magdalena, Los Nogales, and Cananea. The congregations in all these places are helping raise money for their buildings, but as their income is pitifully small, naturally their contributions must also be very small. In Cananea we have the opportunity to purchase a very desirable lot on the paved highway coming into town from Imuris, in the district where they are starting a new housing development to move the whole suburb of Buena Vista. Buena Vista is built sort of like a squatters' city, and it is built over a deposit of ore belonging to the mining company. They want to extract the ore, so they are moving out the whole group of people—the whole town. The mining company and government are working together to provide suitable housing on the east side of town, and that is where we want to build our church building to accommodate them. We already have a mission in that district, known as the Petroleos District. The mission in Buena Vista, and the one in the Petroleos District have been putting their tithes and offerings into a fund to buy property, and to build the building but there is still very little money in the fund. Pray with us that God will provide for these needs. Pray that God will ever guide us.

The building in Magdalena is progressing, but not as rapidly as we could wish. The only thing that slows its progress is lack of money. Every time Brother Guzman gets a little money, he puts it into the building there in Magdalena, but he doesn't receive much. We are trying to build a larger building in Los Nogales. I shall give you more information about that later.

Please send offerings to the North Carolina Board of Missions, c/o The Rev. A. B. Bryan, Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. If you wish to designate the money for one of these projects, please so state. However, please understand, that the greatest need in the mission program is for consistent contributors to the general mission fund so that there will be money on hand to care for any contingency.

Send used clothing directly to Arizona-Mexico Missions, Box 550, Nogales, Arizona 85621.

Most important of all, please send many prayers directly to heaven in care of the Lord Jesus Christ for the work here. May God bless you.

College Chorus Visits Beaufort County

The forty-seven voice chorus of Mount Olive College will present two programs of church music Sunday, May 10.

At 3:30 p.m., the chorus will sing at Free Union church in Beaufort County. This will be the only appearance of the chorus in the Albemarle District and all churches in the conference are invited to participate in this service.

At 7:30 p.m., the chorus will sing at Black Jack church near Greenville. All churches in Pitt County are cordially invited to participate in this service.

To Observe College Day

Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church near Greenville, North Carolina, will observe Sunday, May 10, as "Mount Olive College Day." The Rev. Austin Carter has announced that President W. Burkette Raper will speak at the morning worship service.

A TRIBUTE TO MOTHERS

by TOMMY MANNING

Whose eyes that shine reveal the love
Of a heart so pure and fair;
Whose lips that smile express the warmth
Of a soul so filled with care?
Whose hands that toil command the strength
Of a will so great and near;
Whose tongue that speaks unlocks the peace
Of a voice so kind and dear?

Whose arms enfold'd me as a boy
With a love so dear and strong;
Whose voice would chide me even now,
With a message far from wrong?
Whose glance would draw me to her side
For a chance to see her face;
Whose step would lead me to her arms
From behind my hiding place?

OBITUARIES

THE REV. JOHN T. QUICK

It is with a sad heart that I attempt to write the obituary of my beloved husband, the Rev. John T. Quick of Route 1, Cullman, Alabama. He died in the Cullman Hospital on April 3, following a short illness. However, he had suffered with a heart ailment for several years. Born March 14, 1901, at Hanceville, Ohio, Mr. Quick was the son of the late Roland and Frances Quick.

Funeral services were held at Leodocia Free Will Baptist Church in Hanceville on Monday, April 6, with the Rev. W. H. Ryland of Birmingham, the Rev. Odell Harris, and the Rev. Tillis Walley officiating. The Trimble Lodge was in charge of Masonic rites with the Moss Service directing interment.

Pallbearers were Thomas Quick, Junior Quick, Le Rue Drummond, Jimmy Quick, James Bailey, and Chester Quick.

The Rev. Mr. Quick had been a Free

Will Baptist minister for 35 years and had organized and pastored many churches.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Maudie Wilbanks Quick; one son, Ted Quick of Agawam, Massachusetts; five daughters, Mrs. Bernice Nowill of Agawam; Mrs. Frances Goodwin of Cullman; Mrs. Glennis Cummings of Chicago, Illinois; Mrs. Marcelle Hale of Columbus, Kansas; and Mrs. Janice Powell of Falkville; two brothers, Clent Quick of Gardendale and Cornelius Quick of Bessemer; and seven grandchildren.

Written by his wife,

Mrs. Maudie Wilbanks Quick

MRS. MARY BEAMAN MOORE

It is with sadness and deep sympathy that we, the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Little Rock Free Will Baptist Church of Lucama, North Carolina, wish to pay tribute to the memory of Mrs. Mary Beaman Moore who passed away on September 13, 1963.

She was a member of Little Rock church and a member of the auxiliary for many years, and was always ready to do her part as long as she was able. Therefore, we desire to submit the following resolutions:

First, we pray God's richest blessings on each one of her family and commit them to our heavenly Father for comfort and consolation.

Second, that a copy of these resolutions be sent the "The Free Will Baptist" for publication, that a copy be sent to the family, and a copy be put in the minutes of the woman's auxiliary.

THE REV. CHARLES WILLIAM BENNETT

The Rev. Charles William Bennett, a member of Sandy Grove Free Will Baptist Church of Hope Mills, North Carolina, after a long period of illness, passed away April 23, 1964, at the age of 79. Interment was in the Oakridge Cemetery, St. Pauls, North Carolina.

The Rev. Mr. Bennett was a faithful Christian dedicated to his work in the Original Free Will Baptist Church. He will be missed by all who knew him.

Mrs. Talton Named Merit Mother for 1964

Mrs. Hardy Talton of Route 2, Pikeville, North Carolina, was named Merit Mother of Wayne County for 1964 at a luncheon held recently at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh honoring the 35 nominees for the 1964 Mother of the Year.

Mrs. J. W. Bunn of Raleigh was named the State Mother of the Year.

The luncheon speaker was Walter F. Anderson, director of the State Bureau of Investigation. Using as his topic, "The New Image," he told those present that the home is built on the mother's enthusiasm which comes from knowledge, experience, and service.

Miss Ruth Wilson presided at the luncheon. A tea at the Governor's Mansion followed the ceremonies at the hotel.

Earlier in the day the women toured the North Carolina Museum of Art and were featured in a parade down Fayetteville Street.

Mrs. Talton, who was nominated by the Wayne County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, is a native of Wayne County.

She is an active member of Pleasant Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Nahunta Home Demonstration Club, Nahunta Grange, OES, and other civic clubs. Last year she was named Woman of the Year by the Wayne County Home Demonstration Club women.

Mrs. Talton lists working with young people as one of her hobbies. She always finds time to listen to their problems and give them counsel.

Mr. and Mrs. Talton have no children of their own but adopted a daughter, Mary Ellen, when she was four and one-half years old. She is now married to Claude King Jr., of Goldsboro, and they have two children.

The youth of Pleasant Grove church has this to say about Mrs. Talton: "We are proud of our Miss Mildred gaining the title of Merit Mother of Wayne County for 1964. Mrs. Talton has worked with the youth of our church most of her Christian life. She is always going about doing good unto others. A big window was placed in our church in 1951 in her honor. Miss Mildred, as we call her, is one we can feel free to call on for counsel and help at any time.

"Here is her church record in part:

CONFERENCES FILLING FAST

We regret very much to request that no more applications be sent in for the General Youth Conference, June 15-20, or the Youth Frontier Conference, July 6-11. Both these conferences have reached the maximum in reservations. The Young People's Conference, August 3-8, is within about fifteen of the total quota.

We are urging young people who want to go to Cragmont during this season to register either for the Free Will Baptist League Conference, June 29—August 4 (the Rev. Norman Ard, Route 1, Ayden, North Carolina); or the Abundant Life Conference, August 10-15 (the Rev. L. E. Ballard, 1225 S. Washington Street, Greenville, North Carolina). You will have to hurry to get into the League Conference, since applications are coming in right along, and this conference is expected to reach the quota soon. (The Cragmont Board has put a limit of $10, including staff members, on the conferences, which is as many as can be cared for at one time at Cragmont.)

A CRAGMONT MUST

In order to comply with health requirements at Cragmont, we must make some repairs to the back porch and build a rest room for the workers. This is going to require around $1,000.

The State Sunday School Convention, in the recent session at East Rockingham, endorsed the launching of a drive among the Sunday schools of the state which it is hoped will bring in a major portion of this money. But we want and need help from any source possible for this work. A contractor is ready to do the work any time at a very reasonable cost, whenever we can give the "go-ahead sign." The board has approved the project. But the money is not available! Our people rallied wonderfully last year to meet the need for more accommodations for boys and better kitchen equipment. We are hoping that many organizations and individuals will rally to our present need and send in liberal donations to Mrs. Fountain Taylor, Richlands, North Carolina, earmarked for the porch and rest room fund.

L. E. BALLARD, Manager

director, Mrs. F. M. Register, and the pastor, the Rev. A. B. Bryan.

On Sunday night, May 17, there will be a baptismal service for the candidates waiting for baptism, and for others who make a decision during the revival. This will be the first baptismal service in the new baptistry which was installed during a recent renovation program of the church sanctuary.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Host to State Woman's Auxiliary Convention

The Lee's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will be host to the North Carolina State Woman's Auxiliary Convention, May 7, 1964. The church is located on Highway 421, about eight miles west of Dunn, North Carolina. The pastor is the Rev. James V. Joyner.

Fountain, N. C.—The Young People's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Thursday night April 16, in the home of Deborah Owens. The meeting was opened by singing "Oh, How I Love Jesus." In the absence of Brenda Goff, program chairman, Angie Owens had charge of the program and gave a very interesting talk. After the business meeting, the group enjoyed a 30-minute "Hymn Time."

Following the benediction, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. There were three visitors and thirteen members present.

Fountain, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, April 17, in the church. Mrs. Robert Oakley, program chairman, opened the meeting by reading Philippians 4:8-13 for the Scripture lesson. She followed the Scripture reading with prayer. The group joined together in singing "In the Garden." Mrs. David Hobgood gave the leaders introduction to the program topic, "But There's Nothing I Can Do!" Mrs. Lester Gay gave the topic, "Look for Neglected People"; Mrs. Lovelace Gardner gave "Help Lonely Students"; Mrs. Robert Bell gave "Help Overcome Prejudices"; and Mrs. Marvin Langley gave "Be a Martha and a Mary."

During the business session, Mrs. Robert Bell was requested to finish out the late Mrs. Bessie Goff's term as president. Mrs. Bell presided over the business session. Mrs. Lester Gay, secretary-treasurer, called the roll and received the dues. She also read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved. This was followed with the treasurer's report. A motion was made and seconded to buy a library book for Mount Olive College in memory of the late president, Mrs. Bessie Goff. A $5 collection was taken for the book. A motion was made, seconded, and carried to remember Mrs. Kattie Owens with a gift. At the conclusion of the business session Mrs. David Hobgood gave the closing prayer. There were three new members who joined the auxiliary during the meeting; they were Mrs. James A. Summerlin, Mrs. Leroy Owens, and Mrs. Ben Thigpen.

Pikeville, N. C.—"Missions in Africa" was the topic of the study course taught by Mrs. Ruth Killelte at the March meeting of the Pleasant Grove Ladies Auxiliary. Hostess was Mrs. W. A. Taylor.

At 12:30 p.m., Mrs. Taylor served dinner to the 19 members present and the regular meeting was held in the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Edmundson was in charge of the program, "Building Toward Mexico Way."

Plans were made for the district auxiliary meeting of the Western Conference which will be held at Pleasant Grove on Wednesday, April 1.

In other business, spring clothing for an adopted son at Middlesex Children's Home was taken care of. Mrs. Frank Edmundson is chairman of the project.

The projects committee, composed of Mrs. Ethel Griffith, Mrs. Ethel Smith, and Mrs. Eula Edmundson, had packages all wrapped and each person purchased one at her own price.

Mrs. Hardy Talton presided at the business meeting.

The April meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Frank Edmundson with Mrs. Ernest Bissett in charge of the program.

Bear Grass, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Rose of Sharon Free Will Baptist Church met April 23 in the home of Mrs. Fessie Bailey. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Peggy Bailey. Mrs. Annie Cratt read the Scripture taken from Philippians 4:8-13. The group prayed the Lord's Prayer in unison, followed with the singing of "Face to Face." The program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do," was given by Mrs. Jeannette Wynne.

The auxiliary reported that it had bought screen doors and screen windows for the new building. The treasurer collected the monthly dues. Mrs. Selma Cowan dismissed with prayer.

Refreshments were served to the ten members present.

VALENTINE BANQUET

On Saturday night, February 8, 1964, a valentine banquet was held at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Kinston, North Carolina. The banquet was held in the social hall and was sponsored by the YFA of the church.

Pictured above is Barbara Lancaster and Joe Pic (seated) who were crowned 1964 YFA Valentine queen and king. The crowning was done by Brenda Gardner and Ikie Hines (standing) the 1963 queen and king.

Columbia, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sound Side Free Will Baptist Church met Monday evening, April 20, at the home of Mrs. Kathleen Swain. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Bernice Maitland. The group sang "Help Somebody Today," followed with the vice-president reading the Scripture taken from Philipians 4:8-13. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Madge Van Horn.

The program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do," was given by Mrs. Neva Brickhouse. She gave an enjoyable talk on how much everyone can do. She said that God will give us the strength and guidance to fulfill His duties here.

During the business session, the roll was called with eleven members and four visitors present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The auxiliary discussed the collecting of clothing for the Mexican people. Plans were also made for the coming Bible school. The meeting adjourned with the singing of "No One Ever Cared for Me Like Jesus" and prayer by Betty Sawyer.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Maple Heights, Ohio—The Tri State Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary met April 17 at the home of Goldie Shadd. The guest speaker was the Rev. Rufus Johnston. His topic was "Volunteers for Jesus." There were twelve members and four visitors present. The meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Johnston.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held with Mildred Dillon on May 15.

Mount Olive, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary No. 1 (Emma Powell Circle) of Snow Hill Free Will Baptist Church reports as follows for the first quarter of 1964:

The auxiliary has a membership of twenty-four, with an average attendance for the meetings of seventeen. The semiannual contribution, along with a birthday gift, was sent to the boy at the Children's Home which the auxiliary has adopted for the year. A pre-Easter week of services was sponsored by the auxiliary. A contribution of $15 was sent to Mount Olive College library and $10 applied on the recently purchased campus of the college.

Kenly, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Kenly Free Will Baptist Church met Tuesday night, April 21, at the home of Mrs. Charles Hinnant with eighteen members and two visitors present.

Mrs. Jesse Woodard, program chairman, gave the leader's discussion and presented Mrs. Miriam B. Lamm who gave the very inspiring topics from the program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do."

Reports were given by the chairmen present. During the business period, Mrs. J. T. Rains and Mrs. Millard Snipes were appointed as delegates to the State Woman's Auxiliary Convention. Mrs. Noble Crumpler gave the delegate's report from the District Auxiliary Convention. General collections, memorial fund, and money turned in from the sale of products were received. A "Special Talent Fund" was taken in the amount of $34.

Mrs. J. P. Carter and Mrs. J. T. Rains, members of the benevolent committee, listed persons for refreshments at Bible school.

Mrs. Felton Watson, president, gave brief remarks to the auxiliary members of praise and courage for the loyalty in carrying out the needs and purpose of the auxiliary work, stating that the auxiliary through the years had worked at long-range projects, never limiting their accomplishments, stressing that each continue to look for worthy goals in helping the church carry out its potential of soul winning and service in building His kingdom in the hearts of those in the community and abroad.

The auxiliary meeting was dismissed with prayer by the pastor, the Rev. David Hansley.

A social period was then enjoyed with delightful refreshments served by the hostess and her young daughter, Dorothy Gail.

"THINKING OF HER"

She gave so much, and has so much to give;
 For to her, life was made to live.
 Now a shadow has fallen across her way,
 But with God's help it will be out to stay.
 She gave of her talent, her time, and her money;
 To be near her is lovely, peaceful, and sunny.
 We, as her church family, miss her so very much,
 And as a church family, we'll keep in touch.
 By safely leaning on the arms of Jesus,
 She will have the very best of care;
 Together we will be waiting and hoping,
 And keeping very much in prayer.
 A member of this church family,
 Mildred Bowen

WATER BAPTISM

In my early ministry, when people confessed their sins and took Christ as their Saviour and Lord, they were instructed in the doctrine of water baptism as believed by Baptist bodies of all denominations; and among denominations that were not Baptist a large number of converts preferred immersion and were satisfied with nothing less.

I remember very distinctly a meeting held at a Methodist church located near Sims, North Carolina. The pastor, the Rev. Ben Stanfield, a very dear friend of mine who lived in Bailey, was conducting a revival meeting in the Bethlehem Methodist Church at the same time I was conducting a meeting in the Milbournie Free Will Baptist Church, located at that time close to a millpond known as Eatmon's Pond. God wonderfully blessed both of these meetings. If memory serves me correctly, there were seventeen conversions in the meeting at Milbournie and the same number at Bethlehem. On Sunday afternoon as these meetings closed, the converts from both churches assembled at the water of this millpond for water baptism. There were thirty-three in both groups, seventeen from Milbournie and sixteen from Bethlehem Methodist. Brother Stanfield had one who preferred sprinkling. He and I both went down into the water, and we both laid our hands on the candidates. Stanfield repeated the baptism ritual for the Methodist group, and I repeated the ceremony for those who were Free Will Baptist.

Since that time, the Free Will Baptist church building has been moved from the millpond to the location where it now stands on the highway at Lamm's Crossroads, and a beautiful brick building stands as a monument to the memory of the early Free Will Baptists in that locality. The Bethlehem church, I believe, has merged with other churches. What I want to get across is that not only the Baptists of the various denominations, including Free Will Baptists, really believed in and emphasized immersion, but also many of the Methodists desired immersion.

Being a Baptist of the Free Will faith, I have always believed and will continue to believe in immersion of believers in water, and I cannot accept any other mode as being biblical. At this point we will quote Scripture which has been written by inspiration as given to the writers of the Bible.

John the Baptist says, as recorded by Matthew: "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire: . . . Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him. But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me? And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him. And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: And lo a voice from heaven, saying, 'This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased'" (Matthew 3:11-17).

May we notice that Jesus was there visible to the natural eye. The Spirit of God lighted upon Jesus and a voice from heaven said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." God, speaking from heaven; Jesus, the physical man; and the Holy Spirit in the form of a dove make three; so we have the manifestation of the Trinity: God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit—three in one making the Godhead. If there were no other Scripture, this passage would be sufficient to make me a Baptist.

But we notice the command of Jesus to us before He went away: "And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen" (Matthew 28:18-20). Water baptism is commanded by the Lord himself. Certainly the Lord meant water baptism, since Christ only can baptize with the Holy Ghost (Matthew 3:11). Believing in the Great Commission as given by our Lord, we believe that water baptism is connected with the going. The gospel of Christ commands water baptism.

OBEDIENCE OF THE APOSTLES

"Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation. Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls. And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers" (Acts 2:37-42). Verse 47 of this chapter says, ". . . And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." Who should be saved? Those who repented of sin and believed Christ as the Son of God and who were baptized, thereby confessing openly that they were saved.

We could refer you to Acts 8 when Philip preached Christ to the eunuch. After Philip had preached Christ to him, the eunuch said, as they were going along the road: ". . . See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him" (Acts 8:36-38).

Philip preached Jesus. In preaching Jesus, he must have mentioned baptism; for the eunuch did not know what Isaiah was writing about. But after hearing about Jesus, he wanted to be baptized. Notice that both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water, not just nearby, but into it.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: Did Christ not make the Sabbath Day? You teach from the Book of Hebrews that He made all things. If what you say, that Hebrews' teaching is correct, then why do you disannul what He has made?—I. C., California.

ANSWER: In the first place, I have not disannulled the Sabbath or any other Old Testament shadow which Christ himself has fulfilled in His coming to the earth as the incarnate Son of God and "done away" or disannulled in so coming. Surely He made the Sabbath, but just and only as He made all the other Old Testament shadows. It was He who commanded the Jews to choose according to specified regulations the passover lamb and offer him as such until Christ would come. When Christ had come, that ceremony ended. The antitype overshadowed the type; the presence of Christ on earth in His death and resurrection made this Old Testament shadow unnecessary. It would be wrong for God's people to offer a paschal lamb now that "the lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world" has come. "The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29). (Read the remaining verses of John 1.)

John the Baptist himself, the forerunner of Christ, shortly after he introduced Jesus, was allowed of God to be put in prison where he remained until he was beheaded. God would not have allowed his enemies this liberty if he had not fulfilled his mission. God would not have permitted the old to be taken away until He had established the new. Under the new covenant we don't offer a paschal lamb looking forward to the death of the Lamb of God on the tree of Calvary, but we take the bread and wine to show forth that death on the Cross that has already taken place until He comes again. When He comes again we shall be drinking with Him of the living water that He offered the woman and others of Samaria. We will not need the fruit of the vine in the cup to speak of His coming, nor the broken bread to speak of His broken body by which He was wounded for our transgressions, for the antitype will be here with us. We now commemorate the Lord's Day, the first day of the week, not as a shadow as was the Sabbath for the Sabbath observers, but we assemble ourselves together on the first day of the week—the day that His glorified body emerged from the tomb from which it came at the exact appointed time. He it was that commanded that the burnt offering, the sin offering as well as all the offerings of the Levitical system, be made by a sinful and rebellious people manifesting their faith in the coming Redeemer. The Lord himself caused that all these shadows should pass away filling them full Himself. Without His coming and filling them full they could have only been empty, meaningless shadows; but His coming and fulfilling them (filling them full) makes them all they were intended for.

"Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross; And having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them in it. Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in respect of an holyday, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days" (Colossians 2:14-17). The Sabbath was one of these "shadows" of good "things to come; but the body is of Christ." In the old covenant he who kept the law to the letter was to be favored, but now the requirement demands of us faith in Christ and Him alone. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). How simple but without which no man shall see God. So reader, why not just make that commitment and be saved from an eternal hell of fire?

MOTHERS

Dr. John Scudder and his wife were missionaries in India. All of their nine children became missionaries in that field. Someone asked the doctor how this was accomplished. Said he: "The only explanation I can give is that the children were literally prayed into the Kingdom by their mother. She was accustomed to spend the birthday of each in all-day prayer for him. And God answered her prayers."

To be sure, we are reminded of Hannah whose son, Samuel, was the subject of her prayers and who she early "lent . . . to the Lord."

And we are reminded of Monica, whose brilliant wayward son was her constant burden—who claimed God's promises for his conversion, and then was disappointed and almost in despair. But you remember that, in due time, that young man was converted and became the great Augustine.

And we are reminded of Susanna Wesley, who prayed with and gave religious instruction to her children beyond what most women would think at all reasonable. She seemed to feel special responsibility for "Jackie," as she called him. Many long hours she spent with him, seeking his spiritual welfare. If John Wesley was the "Father of Methodism," then Susanna was the "Mother of Methodism." What if this woman had felt that, kept at home with so many children, she had no opportunity for service in the world?

It is nearer true than most sayings that "the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that moves the world." With more worthy mothers we shall have more worthy and useful and great sons and daughters.—Free Methodist.

"O love that wilt not let me go,
I rest my weary soul in Thee,
I give Thee back the life I owe,
That in Thine ocean depths its flow
May richer, fuller be!

"O joy that seekest me through pain,
I cannot close my heart to Thee,
I trace the rainbow thro' the rain,
And feel the promise is not in vain,
That morn shall tearless be!"

THE DAY TIM FORGOT

by MARJORIE A. CLARK

TIM walked down the street whistling. It surely felt good to be out of school today! He and Georgie had spent the whole afternoon planning all the fun they were going to have now that it was spring-going-on-summer.

Tim walked a little more slowly, looking through the wide windows at the fruit and candy bars. He felt in his pocket, although he knew there was only a penny in it. There was a big sign over the candy counter about chocolates for Mother's Day.

Mother's Day! When was that? Suddenly Tim stood still. Mother! He'd forgotten all about Mother! Suddenly Tim began to run as fast as he could. Mother was home, sick in bed, and he'd promised faithfully he'd hurry home right after school to help look after Marilyn. Mom had said he might have to go to the drugstore for her medicine.

Tim slowed down. He wasn't afraid to go in exactly, he was just so ashamed to think he'd forgotten the promise he'd made at noon.

He opened the door. The kitchen looked nice and tidy, even the lunch dishes were washed. But there was no sign of supper, and no sign of Mom. And where could Marilyn be? She usually came running to meet him. Tim had an awful sinking feeling right in the middle.

"Mom! Mother!" he called, not very loudly. He tiptoed into the bedroom.

The bed was empty, but Mom had pulled up the covers as if she'd been in a hurry. He looked in Marilyn's room, wandered all over the house, even in his own room, in case Mom had left a note for him. But there was nothing—just an empty house! What could have happened? Tim sat down on the edge of Mom's bed, staring at the pillow. She'd been right there at noon.

"Tim!"

Tim dashed out into the kitchen. But it was only Mrs. Barnes from next door. Tim was glad to see her.

"Where's my mother?" he asked anxiously. "I can't find her!"

"Don't worry, Tim, she's going to be all right."

Tim stared at her. "What do you mean?"

Mrs. Barnes had a casserole in her hands, and it smelled good, but Tim wasn't thinking too much about eating.

Mrs. Barnes put the casserole on the stove, then turned.

"The doctor was here this afternoon, and he said your mom had to go to the hospital for a few days. He took her over himself."

"What time did he come?"

"Oh, about three thirty. Your mom was worried about you, said you'd promised to come straight home from school, and she didn't know what was keeping you. She wanted to write you a note, but there wasn't time." Mrs. Barnes smiled. "Don't look so worried, Tim. She'll be all right after a bit. And you can help here at home."

"But where's Marilyn?"

"She's with me. After supper your father will take her to your Aunt Beth's. You'd better get ready for supper."

When Mrs. Barnes had gone, Tim tried to get the supper ready, but he couldn't seem to think properly. His whole world was suddenly topsy-turvy. He wished his father would hurry home. He made a salad with some lettuce and tomatoes.

Even when Dad came home Tim didn't feel much better. They ate without saying much, and then Dad went off to take Marilyn to his aunt's place. Tim couldn't go because his father was going to the hospital on the way back. He wished he could go and explain to Mom how sorry he was about his forgotten promise.

The house was very strange and quiet, and Tim felt very sad. Dad promised to be back before too late but it seemed a long time to Tim. He washed himself and brushed his teeth. Then he undressed, prayed, and climbed into bed. He was relieved when he heard Dad's car come into the drive.

Dad came in and sat down beside him. "What's the matter, Tim? You don't seem yourself. You worried about Mom?"

Tim nodded.

"She'll be all right in a few days. The doctor just wanted her where he could take special care of her."

"But Dad, it's not just that," Tim said. "I promised Mom I'd come right home after school, and I forgot. If I'd come, I would have been here when . . ."

His father nodded. "Yes, Tim. Mom was counting on you to be here when Marilyn got up from her nap. Mom had to get out of bed and look after Marilyn, and she shouldn't have. It

Mother's Day

MARGARET WEDDING

O loving God, to Thee we pray
To bless our mothers on this day,
And every day throughout the year;
Oh, guard and keep them in Thy care.

Thou who didst know a mother's love,
Look down upon us from above,
And help us always, so we may Make every day our mother's day.

By helping her the most we know,
And doing all we can to show
We loved her and will do our best;
For she has hushed us on her breast.

Lord Jesus, keep our mothers dear,
And bless them through another year,
So may we always think to pray
To Thee for them on Mother's Day.

—Selected.

was a good thing Doctor Thomas called in just then."

"Oh, I'll never forget again, when I make a promise."

His father put an arm around Tim's shoulders. "Perhaps you will forget, Tim, but you should always try to keep a promise because other people trust you. You can ask the Lord Jesus to help you to remember."

When his father had gone, Tim told the Lord he was sorry he'd broken his promise, and asked Him to make Mom better again very soon.

Tim had a plan all of his own of what he would do to show Mom how much he really loved her and how sorry he was about forgetting his promise. Every day after school he worked hard, and soon there were several shining quarters in his pocket. He did his best to keep the house neat and clean, and on Saturday he worked hardest of all. In fact, when Mrs. Barnes came over she looked as if she couldn't believe her eyes.

"Why, I do believe, Tim, you're a fine housekeeper! Won't your mom be surprised when she comes home tomorrow!"

Tim remembered Mom saying they had a lilac bush back on the farm where she lived as a girl. Every year she wanted to buy some, but she never felt they could spend money for flowers.

Tim bought a big bunch of lilacs, and put some on the kitchen table and some in the round fat vase in Mom's room.

Mom looked pale and walked slowly when she came home, but her eyes were bright. She saw the lilacs right away.

"Oh, Timmy, did you . . .?"

Timmy nodded, and Mom opened her arms wide. Tim ran right into them, and Mom gave him the biggest hug. It was a wonderful Mother's Day!"—Junior Trails (Abridged).

THAT'S ENOUGH!

Isadore Sofer is the son of a Hebrew Christian. Little Isadore was given a part to recite in a children's program—the 23rd Psalm. As he faced a large congregation, he became frightened! He was a courageous boy, however, and he began to recite: "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Here he stopped. He tried to recall the next verse, but couldn't. After an embarrassing moment, he said, "This will be enough!"

What a precious spiritual lesson! When the Lord is our Shepherd, what else can we want?—Walter B. Knight.

MY REAL WEALTH

Toward the close of the last century a young business man was fast accumulating riches. Said he to Stephen Paxton, who had known only poverty all his life: "Come with me, and we will make a fortune together!" Paxton declined the appealing offer, for God had placed upon his heart the great need of Sunday Schools in the rural sections of our country. "You are a fool to turn down such an attractive offer," said the young business man. Other people derided him, too, calling him a "crackpot," and a religious fanatic. Years passed. One day he met the man who had made him the business offer. The man said: "You wouldn't come with me. Now I am worth $50,000 and you and your family still live in a bare covered wagon!" "But," said Paxton, "you do not know the extent of my real wealth! More than 50,000 boys, girls, men and women are enrolled in Sunday Schools that I organized!"—Walter B. Knight.

Everyone is afraid. But the difference between a man and a coward is: A man knows he is afraid. Faces his fear. Prays to God to give him strength to conquer that fear. And the coward is without faith in himself or his God.—Biblical Recorder.

THE LIFE of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it.—J. M. Barrie.

Alcohol in a Complex Society

(Temperance)

LESSON TEXT: Romans 13:12-14; 14:13-21

MEMORY VERSE: Proverbs 20:1

I. INTRODUCTION

We are living in a world of helter-skelter activity. Men and women are running to and fro, hither and yon, in an endless search for wealth, for prestige, for opportunity of expression, and for hope to obtain security. The world is moving at a fast pace, with abrupt and sudden change the order of the day. This serves to create tensions, disappointments, the development of a defeatist attitude, and the adoption of a philosophy of futility.

Realism today, more than at any other period in the history of man, is becoming more and more intolerable to more and more people. It is more difficult to cope with the problems of a perplexed and intricate society than it has ever been in the past, and more and more people are seeking escape in a dream-world of their own creation.

Chief among these various means of escape from the harshness of reality is through the use of beverage alcohol. Most drinking has its origin in social conformity and progresses from this to drinking as a means of escape from the unpleasantness of life. The tragedy of this is, of course, that instead of furnishing the desired escape, drinking only serves to add to the harshness of reality and to multiply the unpleasantness which the drinker seeks to escape.

The Scripture, as we shall discover from today's lesson, is very emphatic in its condemnation of the use of alcoholic beverage.

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The follower of Christ should cast off all worldliness and should put on the armor of light (v. 12).

2. The Christian's daily walk should be approved of God and esteemed by men (v. 13).

3. One must have Christ as Saviour and Lord before he can follow Him (v. 14).

4. The judging of men is for God and not for any of us (v. 13).

5. Although nothing is unclean of itself, one should never partake of anything that will cause another to stumble (vv. 14, 15).

6. The Christian should conduct himself in such a manner as to merit the esteem of men rather than their evil words (v. 16).

7. The kingdom of God does not consist of material things, but of righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit (v. 17).

8. He that properly serves Christ is acceptable to God and approved of men (v. 18).

9. The Christian should seek the things which bring peace and edification (v. 19).

10. It is our responsibility to keep from offending others as we serve Christ (vv. 20, 21).

—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. For 25 years Jacob Walker was a lighthouse keeper on Robin's Reef off the rocky shores of New England. Then he died. He was buried on a hillside above the shore of the mainland. His widow became the keeper of the lighthouse. For 20 years she faithfully operated that lighthouse. A news correspondent from New York City went to the lighthouse to get Mrs. Walker's story. She said, "Every evening I stand in the door of the lighthouse and look across the water to the hillside where my husband's body lies. I seem to hear him say, as he often said in life, 'Mind the light! Mind the light!'"

Across the troubled waters of life, the spiritually hearing ear can detect another voice which says, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5:16).

2. Years ago a mountainous stronghold in West Africa was held by a tribe of cannibals. Troops had tried to cross the mountain, but had failed. One day a missionary went alone into the enemy's stronghold. Calmly and fearlessly he crossed the mountain. The captain of the troops was astounded! He asked the missionary, "Do you mean to tell me that you went through the midst of those terrible cannibals, unharmed and untouched by them? How did you do it?" "You and your troops went as men of war. I went as a man of peace and good will!" answered the missionary.

—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

3. "Proverbs 21:17 says, '... he that loveth wine . . . shall not be rich.' Someone has said that alcohol will remove stains from summer clothes. This may be true, but stains from summer clothes are not the only things alcohol will remove. It may remove the summer clothes as well, and also spring clothes, and autumn clothes, and the wherewith to purchase needed winter clothes. It will remove schoolbooks from the arms and hope from the hearts of boys and girls, and laughter from their faces. It will remove happiness from the home, and then remove the possibility of it ever returning again.

"But alcohol does not remove all stains: in fact, it leaves stains that without the power of God will remain forever, stains in the character, mind and soul.

"Yes, alcohol is a great remover. It will remove stains of one sort and leave pains. It will remove fame and leave shame. It will remove plenty and leave poverty. It will remove fine homes and leave hovels. It will remove anything great or small that makes life worth while."—Herald of Holiness.

4. Ours is an age of gadgets. Today we are seeing more and more complicated electronic gadgets used in business. One such machine may do the work that many clerical workers previously did. But sometimes the office routine is quite upset because a machine refuses to work properly. Recently when such a machine did not work properly a maintenance man was startled to find a mouse inside the machine. He found that the mouse had stripped the insulation from some of the wires causing the machine to short out.

Today the society in which we live is like a complex machine. Our society runs day after day because of the combined efforts of thousands of men and women who are busy doing their little part. But, unseen to most of the world,

Gifts to the Children's Home on Mother's Day

M. L. Johnson, Superintendent

Since its opening on May 23, 1920, the Free Will Baptist Children's Home at Middlesex, North Carolina, has received into its care 519 boys and girls. Seventy-seven of this number are still "entrusted in our care" at the Home. Others are asking to be received.

Our hearts swell with humble pride and grateful appreciation as we survey the field and consider the great Christian service now being rendered, through our church and in our communities, by many of the former boys and girls of this Home. We are grateful that those of us who are living today can know of some of the harvest that has been made possible through the ministry of our Children's Home. Yet we know that only time can tell, and only the Lord can know, the full measure of worth of the ministry of providing a Christian Home for worthy and needy boys and girls.

While those of us living today can know of the great work that has been done, and is still being done, by our Children's Home, many who helped lay the foundation for this ministry "... died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, ..." (Hebrews II:13).

It is appropriate that we remember and honor those whose vision and devotion helped make possible this ministry. Their love and their sacrifices of the past helped to make possible our opportunities of today. It is also most appropriate that we remember the founders of this Home during the month of May, the anniversary month of the opening of the Home.

Gifts to the Children's Home during the month of May can have a threefold significance. They can express appreciation for the accomplishments of the past and those whose love and labor made them possible; they can pay tribute to the greatest human love—mother's love; and they can help make possible a continued ministry of love to the children "entrusted in our care."

Churches and other organizations are urged to send an offering amounting to as near $1 per member as possible. Individuals are invited to make gifts in memory or in honor of loved ones or denominational leaders who have been a blessing to them or their family.

HELPING TO PROVIDE "A Christian Home for Boys and Girls"

an unsuspected destructive force is at work in our midst. Like a little mouse it is hidden from our eyes unless we know where to look for it. This little mouse is alcohol. Alcohol is seemingly innocent, and some claim it to be necessary. Even church members have been known to permit it in their homes. Alcohol, like the mouse, often does its destructive work unsuspected until the damage is done. Only then do we see its visible results in the hopelessly enslaved alcoholic.

Our complex, high-speed society demands clear heads and sure hands at the wheels of industry, in automobiles, and in social relations. As Christians we have the responsibility to help keep society clean. The nation looks to Christians for a good example. What kind of an example are you setting for your friends and neighbors?

—Standard Lesson Commentary.

5. Now that liquor is legalized what can we as a church and as individual Christians do? May we suggest a few things that we believe every church can do and every Christian ought to back up these efforts:

(1) Special prayer should be held often. These prayers should be for those who are deluded by liquor.

(2) The church should distribute tracts and other literature that are designed to show the evils of alcohol.

(3) Special services should be held in the churches where the pastor preaches on liquor and then total abstinence pledges taken.

(4) Special study courses showing the evil effects of alcohol should be taught in the churches.

On the mission fields they may almost act and appear as angels of mercy.

Indeed beautiful womanhood always reveals itself in the home, the church, in the community, and wherever such noble women live. God bless them. We need tens of thousands more than we have all over our great nation and the entire world.

SUBSCRIPTION PLANS

Because we desire to see THE FREE WILL BAPTIST in each home in the denomination, we have adopted three plans for soliciting subscriptions:

1. The Every Family Plan: Under this arrangement the local church votes to place The Free Will Baptist in each home. The church clerk sends us the names and correct mailing addresses of the families. We send The Free Will Baptist to these people and bill the church quarterly for the entire subscription price, less ten percent. If any families in the church are already subscribers, we subtract the amount of their credit from the quarterly bill. Names can be added to or subtracted from the church list at any time, upon notification from the church clerk. Bills are sent by us to the churches on this plan according to the calendar quarter.

2. The Church Group Plan: This arrangement is designed for organizations in churches which do not adopt the Every Family Plan. A Sunday school class, woman's auxiliary, league, or other group may solicit subscriptions for us. They send at least five subscriptions in the first lot, deducting ten percent from their total subscription collection at the individual subscription price ($2.50 per year). They keep the remainder of their collection. For instance, if a church group solicits five subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist in its first lot, its total collection for these subscriptions will be $12.50. The group keeps $1.25 for its treasury and sends us $11.25 together with the names and addresses of the people to whom The Free Will Baptist is to be sent for one year. The plan starts anew at the beginning of each fiscal year, July 1. No credits given in any one year may be carried over and credited on the new year.

3. Individual Solicitations: Those not following Plan 1 or 2, may wish to offer service to the Lord by soliciting five one-year subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist and sending us the full subscription collection ($2.50 per year per subscriber). We place his name on our honor roll of solicitors which appear in The Free Will Baptist. When he has solicited 10 one-year subscriptions in any fiscal year, we shall allocate a bonus subscription to his credit; he may use this bonus to renew his own subscription for one year or he may send us the name and mailing address of some other person to whom we will send The Free Will Baptist for one year without charge.

Receipt books and subscription blanks may be obtained upon request.

Please add 3% tax for North Carolina subscriptions.

Editorial Opinions—

THE NORTH CAROLINA MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION of original Free Will Baptists will hold its annual meeting at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, June 22-26, 1964. This conference for ministers is one of the highlights of the year for North Carolina ministers. The week affords the minister the opportunity to get together with his fellow ministers for a time of fellowship.

There are times when ministers feel that they need to get together and talk their problems over with someone who understands and who will sympathize. At this annual conference, each minister has the opportunity to share his experience with others and also to discuss his problems.

The ministers' conference is also a time of inspiration. The theme of this year's conference is "The Doctrine and Church Government of the Original Free Will Baptist Denomination." It is not very often that the minister has the opportunity to hear a sermon, except the ones he preaches himself. The ministers' conference offers an opportunity for each minister to hear good messages by other preachers and to receive inspiration and encouragement.

The church that sends its pastor to the ministers' conference will be blessed in so doing because the minister will be a better pastor when he returns. We believe each church will be doing itself a favor in helping to finance the minister's week at Cragmont. If your church does not do this, consider it right away.

THE MISSIONS BOARD of North Carolina now has a missions chart available which has the home and foreign missionaries' pictures and names on it, and also the missionary candidates. The poster is being sent to all our Free Will Baptist churches. You will find a copy of the poster on pages eight and nine of this issue. Its original size is eighteen by twenty-four inches. If your church does not receive one of these posters, you may notify the Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513.

SUMMER CAMP GROWTH is evidenced by the increasing number who attend our own Cragmont Assembly at Black Mountain. There are four youth camps scheduled for this summer. Already two of them, the Youth Frontier Conference and the General Youth Conference, are filled. For this we are grateful, but we hope that something can be done to take care of a much larger number than can be accommodated at the present time. It has been only a few years since it was quite a task to fill all the camps that were scheduled at Cragmont. Now it has become a problem to take care of all who want to attend. The increase is quite amazing when we remember that about twice the number can be taken care of now than could be taken care of a few years ago.

The current issue of "Action" magazine carries an article entitled "Camps . . . Potent Force with Youth." The article is written by Harry J. Albus and begins:

"Put a young lad in a camp by the side of a lake. Let him tramp through the woods and the fields and sit under the stars in front of a glowing campfire. Open a New Testament and read to him how another young man centuries ago walked along the shores of Galilee and into Palestinian villages talking to fishermen and tax gatherers about seeking first the kingdom of God.

"Something happens to that young man. Away from the rush and burdens of everyday life, he is somehow brought close to God. Many a young man at such a time will make a decision for Christ that will change the entire course of his life."

Those who have had the opportunity to attend a summer camp at Cragmont, and those who have had the opportunity to work in one or more of such conferences, know that they are indeed a "potent force with youth."

PLEASE EXCUSE US for the error which appeared on the cover of last week's "Free Will Baptist." Of course the date was wrong, but it would take too much time and space to explain it—it was just one of those things. Please accept our apologies. We'll try to do better next time, and the next, and the next, and the next.

NOAH--

the singular man and the true preacher

Dr. W. S. Hottel

NOAH was the son of Lamech, and was born about 126 years after the death of Adam (Genesis 5:28, 29, 3-5). Being the son of Lamech, Noah was the grandson of Methuselah, and the great grandson of Enoch who was translated to heaven (Genesis 5:21-27). Enoch was the descendant of believing ancestors and the son of a God-fearing father. The faith of Lamech appears in the name Noah and from the fact that he attributed his "toil" and the condition of the ground to the Lord's "curse" (Genesis 5:29). The name Noah signifies rest, or "consolation." It seems as though God had revealed to Lamech something of His future purpose in connection with Noah in that he gave his son this significant name. There is mystery in that name, since there seems some reference to the judgment of the flood contained therein. It is interesting to note that Noah, on the cessation of the deluge, offered his sacrifice, and the record says, "The Lord smelled a sweet savour" (Genesis 8:21), which it is said literally is "an odour of rest." The judgment of the flood brought rest to God from the terrible wickedness of mankind, and to Noah and his family from the burden of excessive toil to make a living, due to the curse because of the terrible wickedness prevailing.

The times in which Noah lived and the condition of the world serve as a dark

(Reprinted from "Gospel Herald")

"Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God" (Genesis 6:9).

"And spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly" (2 Peter 2:5).

background to bring out in vivid relief his faith and righteousness. The moral and spiritual condition of the world was anything but pleasing. The sin and wickedness was great (Genesis 6:5-7). There is a marked difference between what God saw at the close of His six days' work and what He saw in the days of Noah (Genesis 1:31; 6:5).

Noah stood out as a singular character in his day. In the midst of prevailing wickedness, he believed and obeyed God (Genesis 6:22). Because of his faith and obedience, Noah holds a prominent place among the believing worthies mentioned by the Apostles in the Hebrew Epistle (Hebrews 11:7). Noah was a singular and great character.

I. Noah's Private Character.

There are four things indicated about Noah which bring out the greatness of his character.

1. He found grace in the sight of the Lord (Genesis 6:8). This means that Noah so lived that he pleased the Lord, and thus he obtained God's favor. He believed God, and this produced a holy, reverential fear of God. There is no other way to obtain divine favor, but by believing that He is, and that He is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him (Hebrews 11:6). As Christians we are exhorted to so live that we may grow in favor—in the grace and knowledge of the Lord (2 Peter 3:18).

2. He was a just man (Genesis 6:9). The word just has the same meaning as the word righteous. He was righteous before God, because he believed God, just as Abraham was (Genesis 15:6). But Noah was also equitable in his dealings, honest, upright, and straight-forward. His life and conduct squared with the will of God and the standard of justice, man with man. Doing righteousness is the evidence that we are born again (1 John 2:29).

3. He was perfect in his generations (Genesis 6:9). The word here rendered perfect means upright or sincere. Noah was straight and right. He did not stoop to evil. There was no compromise with sin and wrong with him, and he stood erect in the integrity of his life, and in fellowship with the things of God. Noah's heart was with the Lord his God, and he stood out for God and the interests of the Lord. Noah was "perfect in his generations." That is, compared with those about him, the best of them, he was upright. We as Christians should live so that those about us must know that we are indeed God's children (Philippians 2:14-16). Let us remember

N. C. State Woman's Auxiliary Convention

by Mrs. Alice Barrow

The ladies of Lee's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Dunn, North Carolina, graciously entertained the North Carolina State Woman's Auxiliary Convention, Thursday, May 7.

The Rev. James V. Joyner is pastor of this church. About four hundred women, including members of the choir, attended the convention.

The theme for the day was "Ye Are God's Building." The Mount Olive Junior College Choir inspired our hearts as they sang a beautiful selection of anthems. Then the Rev. W. S. Burns spoke. He said that the church must be a building built upon no other foundation than Jesus Christ. The church is responsible to build upon this foundation. It must build character which may stand the test of time. It must be an influence for good to all men everywhere. It must produce works which will be a blessing to mankind. He asked what kind of building we are building today. Is our building of wood, hay, or stubble—materials which cannot stand the test of time? Or is our building built of gold, silver, or precious stones—things which will stand the test?

At the close of the message Miss Bonnie Coates sang "O Divine Redeemer."

Miss Ann Gilbert of Bethel church, Cape Fear Conference, delivered her declamation in the morning. It was well delivered.

Miss Kay Barbour of Johnston Union church, winner of the AFC essay contest, and Miss Vickie Warren of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Kingston, winner of the YFA essay contest, read their essays in the afternoon. Both were very good.

This was followed with a lovely trio from St. Mary's church, New Bern.

At the close of the business session the new officers for the coming year were installed.

Newport, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting Tuesday night, May 5, in the Fellowship Hall. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Jean Rowe. Mrs. Pat Gurganus, program chairman, took charge and directed the group in singing the beautiful hymn, "My Mother's Bible." This was followed with Mrs. Janie Garner reading the Scripture from Proverbs 31:10-31. Mrs. Lois Bryan then led the group in prayer.

Mrs. Rena Kirk gave a most inspiring program on the topic "The Touch of a Wise Mother." At the beginning she honored the oldest mother of the auxiliary with a red rose and also the members whose mothers were deceased. Prayer was offered for all mothers everywhere by Mrs. Nina Lee Kelly. The program closed with the group's singing "I Would Be True."

After a short business session, everyone enjoyed refreshments.

Walstonburg, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Free Union Free Will Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting on Monday night, April 27, at the church. There were fifty-one members and two visitors present. The meeting (continued on next page)

ing was opened by the singing of "The Kingdom Is Coming." Devotions were given by the president, Mrs. Raeford Heath, followed with prayer by Mrs. T. E. Tyndall Sr.

During the business period the roll was called, the secretary's and treasurer's reports given, and circle reports read and turned in. The auxiliary voted to give $1 per member for the Mother's Day observance at the Children's Home. It was also voted to give the adopted child at the Children's Home a week at Cragmont this summer. Mrs. C. L. Patrick reported to the women on the District Auxiliary Convention held recently at the Hugo church.

After all items of business were disposed of, the program for the month, "But There Is Nothing I Can Do," was presented by the Goodwill Circle.

Mrs. John R. Murphy gave the benediction.

Mt. Airy Church Announces Revival

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Mount Airy, North Carolina, announces revival services beginning May 17 and continuing through May 23. The Rev. Walter Carter from East Rockingham, North Carolina, will be the evangelist, assisted by the pastor, the Rev. Eugene Puckett.

A cordial welcome is extended everyone to attend these services.

Door Open for Auxiliaries to Represent at National Fellowship Meeting

In a recent meeting of some of the administrative committee of the Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptists, it was called to their attention that some felt the need of more representation of the auxiliaries of the denomination, such as Sunday School, Free Will Baptist League, Layman's League, and Woman's Auxiliary. After a discussion on the matter, it was agreed to ask these auxiliaries from the local to state levels to send representation to the session to be held at Chipola Junior College, Marianna, Florida, July 7, 8; and there provisions may be made for such to become a constitutional member of the body with full privileges of participation.

In compliance with this privilege some of these auxiliaries have already made such provisions. If other state, district, and local auxiliary bodies will do likewise, it will add a great deal of helpful influence to the progress of the cause.

Convention Well Attended In Spite of Weather

In spite of the cold weather that swept the state on May 1, 2, the North Carolina Free Will Baptist League State Convention was well attended. Three hundred nineteen delegates, ministers, and other leaguers registered at the convention which met at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Smithfield. Although this number did not reach the registered attendance of last year, it is believed that the total attendance equaled that of last year because the church was filled to capacity on Saturday night to view the film, "In His Steps."

The theme of the program was "Following Jesus." In addition to the film, other highlights of the program were messages by William D. Thigpen on Friday night and the Rev. Fred Rivenbark on Saturday morning; special music by Bonnie and Danny Coates, the Wilson quartet, the Calvary Youth Ensemble, and the Powhatan youth choir; a playlet, "Following Jesus in Training," by Elm Grove leaguers; and devotionals by the Rev. Jerry Rowe, Miss Nadine Covick, and Miss Linda Godwin.

Although the weather was rather cold for this time of year, leaguers enjoyed a brief period of recreation and a sandwich supper at the park on Saturday afternoon.

Among items of business transacted was the adoption of recommendations from the executive committee to continue publication of the news bulletin bimonthly and to launch a project, "Chapel for Mount Olive." The leaguers will seek to give a minimum goal of $1,000 by the next convention on a project to build a chapel at Mount Olive Junior College. A "kickoff" offering of approximately $54 was received for the project. Similar projects in the past have created much enthusiasm in the leagues, and it is hoped that this project will stimulate the leagues and that the project will far exceed its minimum goal.

The Intermediate Sword Drill held on Saturday afternoon was won by Landis Rose of the Saratoga league; Johnny Beddard of Elm Grove league, representing the Second Union League Convention, won second place; and Harold Hill of the Hull Road league won third place.

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

New Missionary Seeks Sponsor

The most recent candidate to seek a sponsor of his missionary activities in this west coast region is the Rev. Jose Guzman. Mr. Guzman has been sponsored by a church in Tulsa, Oklahoma, but they have decided to place their mission offerings elsewhere. Mr. Guzman has been a Free Will Baptist all of his Christian life, having accepted Christ among the very first after we came to Nogales, and with his wife and three children composed our very first group to be baptized in this region.

He was the first Mexican to be licensed and ordained as a result of our labors here. At that time the First Free Will Baptist Church of Nogales, Arizona, of which he was a member, belonged to the First Arizona Association of Free Will Baptists, which conducted his examination for licensing and ordination. Soon after his ordination, Brother Guzman became pastor of the Casa de Dios Free Will Baptist Church, which was organized from the Antioch Mission, which was our first mission in Mexico. He is still pastor of that church, but in addition, he has started, and is caring for, two missions in Nogales, Sonora, and a mission in Magdalena, Sonora.

In the United States, where even the people on relief live in luxury, it is hard to conceive of the poverty in Mexico. If you are an old-timer, and can remember the pay scales during the early 1930's, then in your imagination apply that income against the prices of today, and you can arrive at some idea of the conditions which they face. This is the reason why it takes such a long time for the Mexican work to become self-sustaining. A pastor may be able to exist with the help of his congregation, but he surely can do no missionary work. Even though all of them pay tithes (which seldom happens in any church) the income is pitifully small, because none of the members receive much.

As you are aware, it takes some time for a new group to receive acceptance in a community. In Mexico, where Romanism has controlled for so long, it is very difficult for the evangelicals to gain acceptance. For instance, when a young fellow who was a printer in the newspaper in Santa Ana accepted the Lord, his employer fired him, because he didn't want any "Aleuyas" working in his newspaper office. Naturally, the tithes from this young man cannot be much until he can find other employment. It is hard for many Americans to imagine how much it is necessary for a Mexican to give up in order to be a Christian.

This is the reason why we who are more fortunate to receive the blessings of God so abundantly must be willing to help those who have not received the opportunities we have received. Brother Guzman needs a sponsor, or sponsors, who will pay sixty dollars per month ($60.00). In addition he needs twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per month for transportation. He must go to Magdalena every week, and that costs money.

In addition to his personal needs, Mr. Guzman needs money to finish the church building in Magdalena. Some of you have sent money for this, and it has been spent on the building, but he still needs over two hundred dollars ($200.00) to complete the building there.

More than anything else, Brother Guzman needs your fervent prayers. The reason why Fabian is not caring for the work in Magdalena as we had planned is that Satan is very strong in opposition to the work there in one of his strongholds. Fabian runs a great risk of being put in jail any time he goes into Magdalena without his dad present. The police seem bent upon lodging some sort of trumped-up-charge against him when they can catch him alone. They don't bother him when he is with his father, but the minute they think he is alone, they begin to molest him. Please pray fervently that all of us may continue to move forward despite all of Satan's tactics.

Please send all prayers directly to the throne of grace. Send all offerings to the North Carolina Board of Missions, c/o the Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. When sending money for a specific purpose be sure to state plainly what it is for, because Brother Bryan has much work for the Lord for which he is trying to get support, and he cannot know unless you tell him. May God bless all of you.

thirteen members present. The meeting came to order with the singing of "Rescue the Perishing." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Lillian Crocker, with Scripture read from Mark 14:6-8.

Mrs. Alonia Narron, program chairman, took charge of the program which was entitled, "But There's Nothing I Can Do." Assisting with the program were Mrs. Geraldine Cockrell, Mrs. Myrtle Lewis, Mrs. Martha Boswell, Mrs. Eloise Sutton, Mrs. Anna Johnson, Mrs. Lizza Godwin, Mrs. Lois Boykin, and Mrs. Josephine Johnson. The lesson was discussed in general by the group. Mrs. Creina Johnson led the group in prayer, and the program closed with the group's singing "Are You Washed in the Blood?"

A brief business session was held, and the meeting was closed with the praying of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Eloise Sutton and all members are urged to be present.

The mission group at Jiminez Coah, Mexico, walked two miles and spent two hours in teaching before a baptismal service on October 9, 1963.

NOTES

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

A BELATED MOTHER'S DAY MESSAGE

By being overworked and attending the various district and state bodies in the various meetings pertaining to our various departments in our denominational program, I let the time for giving to you, our readers, a Mother's Day message slip by; but it is never too late to write about mothers and their great accomplishments. All mention of godly, consecrated, and dedicated mothers in the Bible and on the pages of history, as a whole, are worth much in the presentation of those characteristics that are encouraging to men and women with an inspiration to reach for high and noble aspects—"good things."

Among all the mothers that we have read of and thought about, the mother of Timothy, the young minister associated with the Apostle Paul, stands out among the great of the greatest. May we listen to the words of Paul: "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also" (2 Timothy 1:5). Timothy's faith was produced by the teaching and godly example of his devoted mother and grandmother.

THE RESULT OF GODLY MOTHERS

I came across this story many years ago. I now give it to you who read "Notes and Quotes." The story goes that a certain young college graduate, whose mother was a Christian who washed on an old-fashioned washboard to make it possible for her son to get a college education, was urged by this son to attend his graduation. She said, "Son, I have no dress suitable to attend your graduation"; but the son insisted. This God-loving mother got in the auditorium of the institution a little late and took a back seat, but the eyes of this son was searching for his good mother. After he had received his certificate of graduation, he said to the master of ceremonies, "I would like to present to you and this congregation the one who made it possible for me to graduate from this institution." The request was granted; so he went to the place where his mother was sitting; took her in his arms; carried her to the rostrum, even though she was clad in a cheap calico dress; and said, "This is my mother who washed clothes in order to keep me in college." He was a great son because he had a great mother.

If we search, generally we will find a great mother behind every great man.

May I say now, without the fear of successful contradiction, that the greatest need of the world today is godly, dedicated, and consecrated mothers who think more of rearing children in the keeping of Bible instruction. If we had mothers like Lois and Eunice, we would have less juvenile delinquency. We who love the Lord and who are followers of Jesus Christ should pray that God will give us mothers in America who would be so dedicated as to meet the will of God in rearing children.

vice at eleven. The pastor, the Rev. N. D. Wiggs, will deliver the homecoming message.

Following a picnic lunch at the noon hour, a memorial service will be conducted for the deceased members of the church. Singing by various groups will conclude the afternoon program.

The pastor and the church extend a cordial welcome to everyone.

Revival Scheduled at Aspen Grove

Revival services are to be held at Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Fountain, North Carolina, May 18-24. The speaker for these services will be the Rev. J. W. Everton, pastor of Johnston Union church. Services will begin each evening at 7:45. The supply pastor, the Rev. C. H. Overman, and the church, invite all interested persons to attend these services.

"I am afraid, doctor," said a woman to her physician, "that my husband has some terrible mental affliction. Sometimes I talk to him for hours and then discover that he literally hasn't heard a word I said."

"That isn't an affliction," was the reply; "that's a divine gift."

Questions & Answers

QUESTION: What purpose has God in keeping souls in hopeless and useless misery throughout all eternity and how does this harmonize with the character of God?—Lola B. Greene, Illinois.

ANSWER: In the first place, you and I have no business trying to harmonize this or any other sovereign act of God with the character of God. This is God's business and His alone. The Bible, the same book that reveals God's character, reveals the fact of the eternal conscious punishment of the wicked. This being true, if we disregard what it says in the one case, the rules of logic would compel us to do so in the other; for there is no other way by which we may know the character of God except by the same Bible that teaches us of the eternal punishment of the damned. If the Bible that tells us what His character is tells us that He will so punish the wicked, what further harmonization is necessary?

Secondly, there is a far deeper and more inscrutable question to solve than that you have asked, which, if solved would give you the answer to your question. This is the origin of evil. How can you harmonize that with the character of God? God is love, and yet He created this world knowing that He would allow evil to enter its environment.

Thirdly, following this line of reasoning a little further, God's love includes justice, and justice in its very nature demands the punishment of sin. A human government would disintegrate without it and so would the divine government. It is, however, the eternity of this retribution to which your question has reference specifically; and you should remember the punishment must continue as long as the sin continues. Jesus spoke of eternal sin when He said, "but who so ever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness, but is guilty of eternal sin" (Mark 3:29, R.V.), and where there is eternal sin, there of necessity must be eternal penalty. Further we cannot go, for the Bible gives no light beyond. We can accept the teaching of the Word; however, living in what light there is while here and thereby being ready to come into that which is beyond remembering that 1 Corinthians 13:12 teaches that those who are in the light here await the time when we shall enjoy its perfection or fullness. Those who reject the light here have no other alternative than eternal punishment in eternal misery and outer darkness. (See 1 John 1:5-9; Psalm 119:105; John 14:6; John 8:12.)

FAITH IS THE VICTORY

by Tom West
Plymouth, North Carolina

"Faith Is the Victory" is an old hymn; but regardless of how old it is, there is none with truer words. Paul tells us that ". . . without faith it is impossible to please him: . . ." (Hebrews 11:6). Without faith we are helpless.

But in James 2:17 we read, ". . . faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone." How true this statement is! We see this fact in our own day. There are so many excesses that we can use, but we can be sure that our sins will find us out. We are living in the same world that Christ lived in. He knows our hearts; He even knows more about us than we know ourselves. We know only the past and present, but He knows the future. We can't fool God.

Regardless of our ability, God can use us. He has given us the ability to choose good or evil, right or wrong. If we can't preach, we can pray; if we can't sing, we can listen; if we can't teach, we can sit still and behave ourselves; if we can't play music, we can sweep the floor. So there's room for all. We may be poor here, but we can be rich later. We are still free to choose God's grace or the world's fame. We can only use what we have to get what we want. To prove things honest in the sight of all men, we must work and pray. We are close to Christ or far off; the choice is ours. We are serving or slaying. We are for Christ or we are against Him. We can't walk with the worldly pleasures and Christ at the same places.

We are either obedient or disobedient. Saul paid the price of disobedience; he committed suicide. There's no soothing syrup for wrong except God's grace. The eagle stole the coal of fire from the altar and set fire to its own nest. Jehoshaphat was humble and obedient; he stopped to sing and pray, and the victory was his against terrible odds. Gideon used chosen men to break pitchers, and the battle was his. David used a shepherd's sling and five stones and met the giant on the field all alone. Trusting in the Lord, he did not fear or dread. By faith he saw the victory ahead.

So we should never lose faith.

ATTENTION NORTH CAROLINA LEAGUERS!

At the North Carolina Free Will Baptist League State Convention, meeting at Smithfield May 2, a project was launched to give a minimum of $1,000 toward a chapel for Mount Olive Junior College. The project, called "Chapel for Mount Olive," is similar to projects that have been sponsored in the past by the leagues and that were received with much enthusiasm. The project is a great missionary endeavor for the leagues.

Each league is urged to begin now to work on the project. Set a goal for your local leagues to reach. One league has already set a goal of $50 to give. Let's put the project far over its goal.

Send money for the project to the state treasurer, the Reverend Norman Ard, Route 1, Box 149, Ayden, North Carolina, and earmark it "Chapel for Mount Olive."

No doubt many people think if they had plenty of money they would be on the top of the world; but it seems that those who have a plenty the world is on top of them.—Walter E. Isenhour.

PHILIP AND THE NIGHT VISITORS

Lois Hoadley Dick

PHILIP would never forget the night they came! The next morning, it had seemed terribly funny, but it really taught him a lesson! You never know what will happen next in Africa—but that's getting ahead of our story.

Africa was a pretty big place but Philip knew exactly where he was. He sat by his father's desk made of orange crates and studied the big map. Africa was shaped like a pork chop and half-way down the west coast was Tanganyika Territory.

It was nice having a holiday from the American school, 35 miles away. Missionary children attended the school and Philip had met boys from many different sections of Africa.

Philip looked around his parents' cabin admiringly. Dad had sure fixed it up fine. 'Course it wasn't like Grandma's house back in the States, but Philip was fast forgetting that.

He inspected the small room in which he was to sleep. The beds were narrow cots with mosquito netting draped over a frame, overhanging the entire bed. The room seemed all right, except for the many rat holes along the sides of the walls.

In the kitchen, Molla the housekeeper was kneeling by a wooden bench rolling out biscuits and cutting vegetables in quarters. Philip watched her awhile, then changed into clean shorts and a shirt.

The family sat around the table as the sun was going down and ate in silence. Dad and Mom looked so tired and Philip suddenly felt sorry for them. It must be hard to get up early every morning, even Saturdays, and try to get most of the work done before the sun blistered everything with its heat.

Philip finished his cool drink of juice and wandered out into the clearing. Natives were running from all directions and squatting down under a row of trees. It was not long before they were singing. Philip could not recognize very many words but he knew they were singing about Jesus, the Son of God who died for them.

After the song service, he played, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," on his trumpet and his father explained some of the words to the men and women gathered there. Then his father preached, with Kiljo helping him.

Before they went to bed, Dad read a chapter from the Bible and talked to Philip. "Remember, son," he said, "God is interested in the little problems in your life. It is true that there are times when we must make big decisions and overcome big faults. But always pray about the little problems; that will keep them from getting any bigger."

Philip thought about that as he lay in bed that night. It was very dark in his little room and very quiet.

"Little problems do get bigger if you don't pray about them," he murmured to himself sleepily, and before he could wonder about it any more he was sound asleep.

A few hours later he woke with a start! Somebody—or something—was shaking the mosquito netting hung over his bed! For a minute he was too afraid to move and just crouched under the covers. Then with a quick move he reached out and groped for the jar of matches by the bed. He lit the kerosene lantern and examined the mosquito netting. Everything looked the same as when he had gone to bed.

He put out the light and waited. Not a sound! It wasn't until he was dozing off to sleep that he felt something touch his shoulder. The mosquito netting shook as though someone were trying to pull it off the bed. He thought of calling for Dad, but he had been so tired after preaching—

No! This was his problem and he wasn't going to call for Dad! He lit the lantern again and thought he heard footsteps. The lantern threw an eerie glow over the room and enlarged the shadows. No one there! Philip blew out the light and held a match ready.

He sat cross-legged on the edge of the bed fully ten minutes before he heard any noise. And what he did hear made the shivery chills race up and down the hollow of his back! "Crack, crack, rattle!" Someone was sitting at the little table shelling peanuts!

Philip didn't light the lantern this time. Instead he held the jar of matches tight in his damp fist and prayed. "Dear Lord," he breathed silently, "this started out to be a little problem, but it's getting bigger and bigger. Help me, show me what to do so I won't have to wake up Dad. Thank You, in Jesus' name, amen."

Quietly he reached out for the lantern. A quick scrape and the match was lit! There! Now he saw them! He had to laugh at his fears, for he had caught sight of a thin gray tail and a pair of beady eyes. Rats! It was only the rats!

He gathered up the peanut shells and tiptoed into the small kitchen. How in the world could he fight against rats when there were probably a dozen families living in the walls and more waiting to get in? He looked around for a strong stick. No, that wouldn't do any good, they were too nimble. He opened the tin chest where his mother kept food and picked up each glass jar. Nothing here. Wait, what was this? Philip opened a large can and wrinkled his nose. Pepper! Would it work?

Back in his room, he sprinkled pepper in front of each rat hole along the wall, then climbed back into bed and put out the light. There wasn't a sound in the whole house.

Soon he heard, "Tst, tst, tst, tst," in one corner of the room, and "Tst, tst, tst, tst," in another corner.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

We, the undersigned committee, submit the following resolution of respect in memory of our dear sister in Christ, Mrs. Nellie Ann Burroughs, who departed this life January 12, 1964.

Whereas, the Woman's Auxiliary of Saint Mary's Free Will Baptist Church, New Bern, North Carolina, has lost a devoted member and the ties of friendship among the members are sadly rent and torn; and

Whereas, we grope and stumble in our sorrow and bereavement and wonder why such things must be; and

Whereas, we must look to God, the Author and Finisher of our faith, for comfort; therefore be it

Resolved, that the members of our auxiliary tender to the family of our late Sister Nellie, our profound sympathy in their bereavement, for we, too, shall miss her smile, her kindness, and love, and express to them the assurance that her memory will long be cherished in our hearts. Be it

Resolved, that we strive to live as unselfishly and walk as humbly, day by day, as did our Sister Nellie; and may we realize that in this earthly separation we see the promise of a glorious life to come, where severed ties shall be mended and the suffering hearts shall be made glad again. And may it further be Resolved, that we send a copy of these resolutions to her family, for whom we have respect and a warm devotion, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our auxiliary.

Sister Nellie has left us

To join that auxiliary above;
We're left with pleasant memories
Of her loyalty and love.

One day we'll see her again
And walk the streets of pure gold;
What a wonderful day that will be
When heaven's glories we behold!

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. W. J. Gaskins, Chairman

MRS. CAROLINE KENNEDY
RHODES

Mrs. Caroline Kennedy Rhodes, age 96, of Beulaville, North Carolina, widow of the late Henry S. Rhodes, died early Sunday morning, April 19, 1964.

Aunt Caroline, as she was affectionately called by almost everyone, was an humble Christian, kind friend, and devoted mother. She was a member of Cabin Free Will Baptist Church, and was faithful in attendance as long as health permitted.

She is survived by three sons, John, George, and Frank, all of Beulaville; four daughters, Mrs. Barbara Jackson of Goldsboro, Mrs. Julia Bishop of Mount Olive, Mrs. Bettie Hinson and Mrs. Emily Baker, both of Beulaville; thirty-five grandchildren, seventy-seven great grandchildren, and four great-great grandchildren.

Her funeral was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. Walter Sutton, and a former pastor, the Rev. Joe Ingram. Burial was in the Rhodes family cemetery.

Aunt Caroline will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Demands of Christian Citizenship

LESSON TEXT: Romans 13:1-7; 1 Peter 4:12-16

MEMORY VERSE: Luke 20:25

I. INTRODUCTION

Of all the peoples of the earth, Americans have more to be thankful for than any other. To be a citizen of this great land is something to be proud of; there are many who covet such a privilege. To be an American citizen is to be free—free to think, to work at the job of our choice, to attend the church of our choice, and free to speak our minds.

We believe "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This is a basic belief of all Americans. In the famous Declaration of Independence, we find the very foundation of our liberty. Upon becoming a nation, however, we immediately became heirs of some grave and sober responsibilities. We accepted the responsibility of living up to what we said we believed, and letting the world know where we stood. We accepted the responsibility of living up to Christian standards, for the very foundation of our nation was laid upon Christian principles by God-fearing men.

Americans have been long regarded as citizens of a Christian nation—a nation whose God is the Lord. To be sure, we have had, and will continue to have, inward conflicts; but God has blessed us beyond measure. The question is now, "How long will we be the recipients of His blessings?" Many feel that we are losing ground in our favor with God; therefore, the Christians of America bear an even greater responsibility. For too long Christians have been content to sit back and let others use their influence in government and politics. Instead of influencing the world, the world has influenced the Church. Each Christian citizen has a responsibility to his government. If he does not carry out this responsibility, he has no right to criticize others for the things they do.—Bible Student (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. God is the author of all civil authority and power (v. 1).

2. Those who resist the power of civil rulers resist the authority of God and thus bring damnation upon themselves (v. 2).

3. Rulers should use their power not to bring terror but good to all their constituents (v. 3).

4. The civil ruler is the minister of God for good, not as a preacher of the gospel, but as a public servant (v. 4).

5. Every citizen should obey the civil laws, not just to escape punishment, but to keep a clear conscience (v. 5).

6. Every member of society should pay his proportionate part of the expenses of the civil government (vv. 6, 7).

7. The followers of Christ may expect persecution, and they should not think it strange (v. 12).

8. A Christian should count it a joy to suffer for Christ's sake (vv. 13, 14).

9. The apostle gave instruction against suffering as a violator of the laws (v. 15).

10. Those who suffer honestly for Christ's sake should never be ashamed of it (v. 16).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. "Hill ahead! Trucks use low gear!" Why is it necessary for trucks to use low gear when going down a steep hill? Not only do the lower gears help the truck to begin moving forward, but they also serve as an added braking power in hilly country to keep the truck from rolling too fast down a hill.

The Christian in society often has to act in two capacities. Like a lower gear, the Christian supports his government. He backs his government constantly in its effort to go forward. In all situations where the laws of the land do not make demands that are contrary to the Christian conscience the Christian is obligated to give his fullest support.

But in those situations when the government goes contrary to the Christian faith, the Christian serves as a brake to slow down governmental action. His opposition can tie up legislation, thus giving all a chance to rethink the situation, see his viewpoint, and perhaps, but not always, change the proposed law so that it does not contradict the laws of God. If for example the government should take action to promote the sale of hard liquor, the Christian must oppose this legislation with every legal means at his disposal because this can only lead to drunkenness.

The Christian, like the lower gears on the truck, thus has two purposes in society. He helps his government move steadily forward when it is advocating the right, and he serves as a brake when the government proposes action contrary to the laws of God.—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. Dr. Albert Hyma, professor of history at the University of Michigan, said, "Unless a marked change takes place in the United States, it is doomed just as surely as was the ancient Babylonia."

Speaker Sam Rayburn in opening the 87th Congress said, "Not since the time of Christ has the world faced dangers as great as now."

Said Dr. L. Nelson Bell, "With only a few exceptions, we in America are living in a fool's paradise, and are regarding ease, comfort, entertainment and the general pursuit of happiness as our rightful heritage and the imperishable American way of life."

J. Edgar Hoover said, "A dread disease is gnawing at the basic structure of American existence—the home. The moral breakdown has already reached an acute state. There is but one ray of hope—God! The banners of Christ can lead the way to the moral and spiritual rebirth of our great nation. In the forefront of His standard-bearers are the Sunday Schools."

One of the nation's leading missile experts, Dr. Wernher von Braun, said, "In their constitutionally guaranteed pursuit of happiness many Americans seem to refuse to look at the dark clouds which are rapidly moving up. I fear it is later than we think! Our position in the world is gravely endangered!"

Herbert Hoover said, "We have overworked the word 'new' in our frantic effort to extricate ourselves from our decades of hot and cold war with intervals of hot and cold peace: the 'new order,' 'new freedom,' 'new economy,' 'new deal,' 'new religion,' 'new liberalism' and the 'new policy.' The practical thing to do is to try out the word 'old' for a while. Some 'old' things made this country. Some 'old' things are slipping. If they slip too far, the light will go out of America! Old virtues, religious faith, whole truth, integrity, honor in public office, economy in government, individual liberty and willingness to sacrifice are alarmingly lacking! We have a cancerous growth of intellectual dishonesty in public life which is mostly beyond the jurisdiction of the law. Our great danger is suicide by complacency with evil! From the distant past comes to us the command, "Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls' (Jer. 6:16)."

Said General Douglas MacArthur, "History fails to record a single precedent in which nations subject to moral decay have not passed into political and economic decline. There has been either a spiritual awakening to overcome moral lapse, or a progressive deterioration leading to ultimate national disaster!"—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

3. For too long, it seems, Christians have stood by and said that politics were corrupt and Christians should not participate in them. As a result of this attitude, we have left our country, for the most part, to be run by those who are not Christians. This is carrying us further and further away from Christian principles. Christians need to wake up and begin to take an active part in their government.

Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell has taken the old statement, "My country right or wrong," and given it a truly Christian concept in the words, "My country, when wrong, to be made right; when right to be kept right." Another great man, J. B. Priestly, has said, "We should behave toward our country as a woman behaves toward the man she loves."

What can the church do to change people's attitude toward citizenship and politics? We believe that the church should urge its people to be informed, active citizens. We should make it clear to young people that one can be a Christian and do God's will and be a politician, or if you like the word better, a statesman.—Advanced Quarterly (F.W.B.).

NOAH—the singular man

that perfection, when used of man in Scripture, does not mean sinlessness, for there was only one man ever lived among men who was sinlessly perfect; that is, our Lord Jesus Christ. Perfection while in the flesh, in the very best of men, can only mean to be perfect in sincerity, in desire, in aim, in parts, as a child has all the parts of a full-grown human being.

4. He walked with God (Genesis 6:9). To walk with God signifies—

(a) Agreement with God (Amos 3:3).

(b) Surrender and submission to God. It means to walk according to the direction of God, in obedience to God's Word and will. It is a life characterized by obedience.

(c) Going on with God, in the path in which He Himself walks. The pathway of God is that of truth, righteousness and holiness. He never condones evil nor compromises with iniquity. He unfalteringly condemns them and walks with eternal precision in the way of truth and purity. The infinite perfection that is in God makes for all that is just, right and holy. Those who would walk with God must walk in the way of His own treading.

(d) Communion and fellowship with God. To walk in communion with God means to walk in the smiles of His favor; to be on friendly terms with God. To walk in fellowship with God means to walk in the way of lively interest in the things of God. It means to be a hearty sharer of His interests. Such a walk demands freedom from unconfessed sin, and that we have no interests in life our Lord cannot share. To walk with God is to keep in step with Him, and that means a blending of minds and interests.

The Christian walk is set forth in various ways in the New Testament Epistles.

The Christian walk is a walk of faith (2 Corinthians 5:7).

We are to walk in newness of life (Romans 6:4). This means to walk in the energy of the new life, and also to walk as those who have come into the possession of a new life.

We are to walk worthy of our vocation (Ephesians 4:1).

We are to walk circumspectly (Ephesians 5:15).

We are to walk worthy of the Lord (Colossians 1:10).

We are to walk honestly toward them that are without (1 Thessalonians 4:12).

We are to walk as Christ walked (1 John 2:6).

Noah's moral character and life were noble and excellent at a time of universal corruption. He was not carried away with nor contaminated by the evil in the midst of which he lived. Being what he was and living as he did, made him singular and peculiar.

The whole world was against Noah.

He had to stand all alone.

He had to resist the popular tide.

He had to face ridicule and scoffing and bear reproach.

II. Noah's Public Labors.

The Apostle Peter informs us that Noah was a preacher of righteousness (2 Peter 2:5). In this passage the ministry of Noah is summed up in one word—righteousness. That was a great theme.

1. In preaching righteousness Noah placed before the people their own unrighteousness. He charged them with their guilt and showed them that they were sinners before God. This is the first count in all true preaching (Romans 3:10-23).

2. In preaching righteousness Noah told the people they must believe God. It was his faith that made him righteous before God, and he told his fellow-men that faith in God is the only way to stand in right relation with God (Hebrews 11:6). This is the second count in true preaching (Romans 4:3-5).

3. In his ministry Noah was faithful. He did not compromise his message for the sake of popularity, nor for fear of criticism. He preached the Word of God, in season and out of season. This is the third count in true preaching (1 Corinthians 4:2; 2 Timothy 4:1-4). Faithfulness is one of the greatest Christian virtues there is.

4. In his ministry Noah was practical. He preached by his own example in the life he lived. He preached by his own example by building the ark. The people had it rising before their eyes. Every stroke of labor Noah did was a sermon. He manifested his faith in God and His Word in a practical way, so that they could not miss beholding it. His faith was living, it had works (James 2:17-20). God Himself was a reality to Noah. God's Word he accepted as truth, and so he staked his all upon it. Those who preach to others, should themselves first of all experience and practice the things they preach (2 Timothy 2:6).

5. In his ministry Noah was not very successful. In all the years he preached not any turned to God. The Apostle informs us that only eight souls were saved from the judgment of the flood, and they were his own household (1 Peter 3:20; Hebrews 11:7). From the way the Scriptures read when they speak of Noah, we may believe that those of his own family were saved on the basis of Noah's faith. There is not one word said about any one of them, not even of Noah's wife. The masses despised Noah's discourses, most probably laughed at his ark, remained infatuated with their sins and pleasures, and in the end perished. Noah must have often been sorely tried and deeply grieved on account of the unbelief and hard-heartedness of the people. But he preserved and kept on delivering the message of God. Faithful soul!

Let us note that God does not coerce men. He invites, presents motives, affords means, and gives ample opportunity. Then if they perish, it is because they will not yield. God Himself is clear; the faithful preacher is clear; and their blood is upon their own heads.

III. Noah's Gracious Deliverance.

According to the record the flood came, the world overflowed, and the people perished. Noah, with his wife, his three sons, and their wives, were the only saved. They were brought safely through the judgment in the ark, which is a beautiful type of Jesus Christ. All outside the ark perished, while all inside the ark were saved.

1. Noah's deliverance was the reward of his faith and obedience (Hebrews 11:7; Genesis 6:22; 7:1-5). It is faith in Christ alone that saves (John 5:24; Acts 4:12; 16:31).

2. Noah's deliverance is an illustration of the fact that all who believe God shall be saved. Noah was truly saved. All who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ shall be saved (Acts 16:31). The salvation of the believer is a present fact, a constant process, and a future prospect.

3. Noah, upon his deliverance, thankfully recognized God as his deliverer by suitable burnt offerings (Genesis 8:20). He appreciated God's goodness and mercy, and offered sacrifice unto the Lord. The burnt offering speaks of loving devotion. The greatest and most acceptable thanks the redeemed soul can give to God is thanks to His name with the lips and the body devoted to the Lord in full and perfect yieldedness (Hebrews 13:15; Romans 12:1).

4. The Bow in the Cloud. "The bow in the cloud" may be taken with the Noachian Covenant. The cloud may be taken as a symbol of sin and the bow may be taken as a symbol of grace. The applications of this thought are many and blessed. Upon the dark storm cloud of judgment at Calvary, God painted the bright rainbow of redemption. The shadow of every trial and affliction is illuminated by the light of God's sustaining grace. Even the waves of death are gilded by the glory that streams from the celestial city. "And there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald" (Revelation 4:3).

If money could talk, it certainly could tell some bad things on multitudes of people. On the other hand, it could tell some wonderful and commendable things on godly, saintly, liberal souls.—Walter E. Isenhour.

THE DYING CHURCH—Someone asked an artist if he would paint a picture of a dying church. This he gladly consented to do. Much to the surprise of all, he painted a beautiful church building; a modern stately structure with expensive stained-glass windows, hand-carved pulpit and magnificent pipe organ. At first glance it was a church building of rare beauty. But it was a dying church, and how was this characteristic placed upon his canvas? Just within the entrance, guarded on either side by a pillar, was a contribution plate for world missions for the offering of the fashionable worshippers. But right above the plate there hung a small sign bearing this title, "Collection for World Missions" and over the slot through which contributions should have gone was a huge cobweb!—First Church, Tarboro.

RELIEVED OF TAX ASSESSMENT

During the early part of 1963, the Free Will Baptist Press was informed by the United States Tax Department that more than $25,000 in taxes had been assessed against the Press. These taxes covered a three-year period in which the income of the institution had been relatively high, or at least higher than in previous years.

The argument by the Department of Internal Revenue was that the Press had lost its non-profit status due to the use of monies in denominational work that was not considered wholly for teaching purposes. The government contended that the Press should direct its teaching directly from the institution, rather than giving to denominational agencies and enterprises. The Press contended that it was, always had been, and purposed to remain, wholly a service agency for the denomination, and the main purpose was to provide teaching helps. The Press was frank to admit that much publicity had gone out from unkind critics contrary to this fact; that there are those who have sought to portray the Press as a selfish money-making institution.

After many visits by representatives of the Internal Revenue Department to the Press, plus trips made by representatives of the Press to Greensboro, and after consultation and extensive study of the records of the Press by the Internal Revenue Department, the government has declared that our nonprofit status should have never been canceled and that we do not owe any federal tax.

Thus, it is with thanksgiving unto God that the Press expresses its appreciation to those who made this a matter of conscientious prayer and for those institutions and agencies within the denomination that supplied pertinent information to the Press in presenting its argument.

The Press does not question the right of the government, in the midst of propaganda, to investigate. The Press, on the other hand, is deeply grateful and appreciative of the government's fairness, when the facts are brought, to recognize the integrity and honesty of this institution which has served our denomination for more than eighty years.

Jesus said, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." The Free Will Baptist Press is seeking to render service unto God, and the Lord has greatly honored the effort.

QUOTES FROM 1883

The following article is taken from the May 23, 1883, "Free Will Baptist," entitled "How to Get Rich."

"Nothing is more easy than to get rich. It is only to trust nobody—to befriend none—to get all you can and save all you get; to stint yourself and everyone belonging to you; to be the friend of no man and have no man to be your friend; to heap interest upon interest, cent upon cent; to be mean, miserable despised for some twenty or thirty years and riches will come as sure as disease, disappointment and death.

"When pretty near enough wealth is collected by a disregard of all the charities of the human heart, and at the expense of every enjoyment, death will finish the work, the body will be buried, the heirs will dance and fight over what you have left and the spirit will go—where?"

"By all means get rich—it will pay."

† † †

"Self-examination is a wise use of our time if we are honest in it; but it is the height of folly if we grow morbid and blue, or if we be puffed up and exalted by it. It must be merely as a safeguard, just as the general has his fortification examined to be certain there are no weak places."—1883 "Free Will Baptist."

following Jesus in SERVICE

JESUS was the busiest person who ever lived. He was truly "on the go." He was always doing something good for someone else. He "went about doing good." There was not one lazy bone in His body. His ministry was filled with glorious service. Recall for just a moment His life spent here on earth. Was His time spent for Himself? No! A thousand times no! Notice that what He did was always done for others. We work for ourselves to get money, to gain security, to acquire all the material possessions we can; but His work was always in behalf of others.

As He traveled down the road of life, we can see two great groups of people. In front of Him are the halt, the maimed, the blind, the lost—those who are needy. But behind Him are those to whom He has ministered and met their needs. They walk, they leap, they see, they praise God for what Christ has done for them. Christ has touched them and life has been completely changed for them.

We come in contact daily with needy people. Many need Christ, some need encouragement, others need a friendly smile. Regardless of the need, as we are followers of Christ, it's our job to try to help others. And there's no better way to learn how to help others than to see how Christ went about it.

MOTIVES OF JESUS

Jesus was prompted to help others because of His spirit of unselfishness. Turn with me to Mark 10:45: "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." He didn't think of self. Instead, He forgot self, and His main concern was others.

You remember in the sixth chapter of John at the feeding of the five thousand that Jesus demonstrated His great spirit of unselfishness. We read in Verse 5: "When Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, He saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?" He wasn't concerned about Himself, but unselfishly thought of others.

Selfishness seems to be ingrained in some people. You see it at the table at home, on the playgrounds at parks, in the school, in the house of God—everywhere. Selfishness always manifests itself in one way or another. If you are a selfish individual, your friends know it. You can't hide it. But you don't need to be "stuck on self." Christ is the remedy for self. Follow Jesus and allow Him to fill your life with His own unselfishness. Then you will be concerned about others.

Jesus was also motivated to help others because of His compassion. Think again of the feeding of the five thousand. See the great multitude surrounding Him as He was busy healing their sick. People look upon crowds in different ways. A banker looks upon a crowd and wonders what their total income is. A doctor looks upon a crowd and wonders how many of them will become sick. A funeral director looks upon a crowd and wonders how many will die the next year or two. But when Jesus looked upon this crowd in John 6, He thought of their needs. His heart was filled with compassion, and He wanted to do something for them. We find this outgoing sympathy of Jesus expressed not only to crowds, but also to individuals.

All of us who follow Jesus must be prompted by pity and sympathy for those in need. This must not be a fleeting thing, but a continuous feeling of compassion for the person lost in his sin, for the Christian who has become discouraged and fallen by the wayside, for the person with whom we are in school, for the person with whom we work who is having problems in his marriage.

Is your heart cold, unmoved by the needs of others? Follow Jesus and allow Him to fill it with His own compassion.

The final motive we want to notice in the service that Jesus rendered to those who were in need was His deep and abounding love. Jesus loved people—all sorts and conditions of people. The story of this great love is written all over the pages of the Gospels. It has long been the wonder of the world. Jesus possessed a love for man far beyond anything the world has ever known.

This was not a generalized love of men in the mass; rather it was focused on the individual and the individual's personal need. In the record of the ministry of Jesus we read the expression, "a certain man." This deep love caused Him to single the individual from the mass and deal with men one by one.

His love reached to all sorts and conditions of men. He made no distinction between the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the educated and the ignorant. He passed quietly from His interview with Nicodemus to His conversa-

Christian Youth— Athletics, Do They Mix?

Warren Lambright

AFTER a ball game, have you ever asked yourself this question, How has high-school athletics affected my life during the past year?

Likely many of you are participants in various sports, and others of you are enthusiastic fans supporting your home team. Probably nearly every Friday or Tuesday evening during the school year is planned for you. Why? Because your high-school team or church team has a game scheduled.

Every Wednesday evening is planned for you, too. Your church has a mid-week service. Are you as faithful in attending these services as you are in supporting your team? If not, perhaps the place of athletics in your life is distorted.

If someone would ask me where I feel the place of athletics should be in the life of the Christian young person, I would probably present to him the idea expressed above. But to be more specific, I feel the Christian youth should realize his first responsibility is to God and then he is free to take part in athletics as long as it doesn't interfere with his first responsibility. In other words, participate in athletics as long as "you have control of the game and the game doesn't have control of you."

Of course, there is a lot that even a Christian can learn from taking part in individual and team sports. Good clean recreation helps round out the life of any young person. Taking part in such activities helps us channel our spare time into constructive areas.

Everyone needs some means of releasing the tensions that rise from a day's work or study. Isn't it better to get into a good ball game than to get involved in the number of teen-agers out haunting the highways in their pursuit of some excitement? Remember also that on the basketball floor or baseball field, you can learn plenty about self-control and getting along with other people.

Because of the high status the superior athlete has been given in the United States, one must realize the tremendous influence such persons have. With this influence comes responsibility. Many of you young men reading this article are high-school athletes and you have many youngsters watching you in action on and off the basketball floor. Are you leaving a Christian witness and at the same time growing in your spiritual life? If so, one can say you have found the place for athletics in your Christian life.—Voice of Youth.

young people and Strong Resolutions

TO LIVE a worthwhile life requires strong resolutions, along with the grace of God. One has to resolve in his own heart, mind, soul, and spirit that he will go the upward way—determined that he will not yield to the allurements and temptations of those who plod the road downward. Why not? It is a known and established fact that opposing forces will beset us all along life's journey, and that such forces are strongly entrenched to bring everyone to defeat they possibly can. It takes strong willpower, deep and resolute determinations, high and noble aims, along with sincere prayer and undaunted faith in God, to go against the tide of worldliness, evil, and wickedness, if one goes God's way.

One must strongly, sincerely, and uncompromisingly resolve to be a man, a woman, a lady, a gentleman, a Christian, and live higher than the beggarly elements of the world, if he accomplishes what he should in life, and leave his mark upon the shores of time to live after him in an honorable and praiseworthy manner. He must live highly, strongly, and purposely resolve to be godly, and live successfully, especially in righteousness and holiness, if he reaches and lives on such a plane. Our young people can live such lives if they will. It is up to them. God has made it possible to be clean physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually, but this requires the best in any one. The way of least resistance never leads to such a height and goal in life. NEVER!

People rise in life to just about the height they set out for and strongly resolve to attain. This is especially true from an educational, moral, and spiritual standpoint. In the days of childhood, and especially in the days of youth, it is far the best time to resolve strongly to live for God and accomplish something worthy of one's time and very best efforts. Oh that every youth would look to the higher and nobler planes of life rather than the lower and baser planes! Look up, climb up! The best things in life are above. Don't be content to stay down where the wicked life. Help them up if you can, but don't indulge in their wickedness. Don't be satisfied to live on the plane of littleness, and go through life a mere dwarf in heart, mind, and soul, when you could be a giant in faith, in manhood, in womanhood, in principle, in godliness, and usefulness. Resolve to climb and refuse to drift with the tide on the downgrade.

I knew a lad some years ago who was implicated in a stealing affair. He and another boy entered a grocery store and took some articles, thinking, of course, that they would get away with them. However, they were caught, and the lad of whom I am speaking, was locked up for a few hours until his mother, who was a godly, praying woman, could get him out. This was a lesson to the boy. He never stole again. Later on in life, when he grew to manhood, he married the daughter of the groceryman from whom he had stolen. He resolved to go the straight and honest way. He went to school and obtained an education. His wife was a fine young lady, and they live in the town where he had stolen when a boy. Later on he entered business with two other citizens of the town. Their honorable business has become a great thing. He makes lots of money, attends church, gives liberally of his money to the church and God's great cause. He lives in a beautiful, lovely home, is known for his honesty and integrity, his great ability as a businessman, and for his kindness and love for the poor and needy. He delights to help the down-fallen, down-trodden, forsaken, and the "down and outs." He will stop to help the beggar on the street, the drunkard, and hand poor children money as he passes along. He does much traveling, and in a great city, such as New York, he will befriend one who has fallen low in life. Living for others makes one noble and great. He can truthfully say, "Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

Young man, young woman, if you would live a great life you must highly and strongly resolve to do so, thus committing your time and talent, and your all to God. The lower rungs of life are crowded, but there is room higher up. Yes, plenty of room for those who set out for the hilltops and will labor, toil, and pray until they get there, and from there to the realms of glory.

The Power Is in The Holy Spirit

Preachers sometimes think they must compete with the world, and surpass it on its own terms; that their sermons must be more attractive than a Miss America contest; more arresting than news of a nuclear treaty; more alluring than a trout stream or a golf course; more entertaining than a Disney cartoon.

But the power is not in the preacher—it is in the Holy Spirit. If the gospel overcomes the world, it will not be because it outdid the world, but because its simplicity was used of the Holy Spirit to conquer and transform.—Paul E. Warren, in Presbyterian Life,

Ministry of Literature

by John B. Elliston

We wish to thank all of you who have contributed to our literature fund. As a result of your contributions for hymnals, we have been enabled to place 12 or more hymnals in the mission in Puerto Rico Street in Nogales, Sonora; in the mission in Magdalena, Sonora, in the mission in Los Nogales, Sonora; in the mission in Cananea; in the mission in Beuna Vista; in the mission in the Petroleos District of Cananea; in the church in Jimenez, Coahuila; and in the mission in Saltillo, Coahuila. For this we truly thank God and you who have given.

We have also been able to distribute almost 100 Bibles and over 100 Testaments, in addition to hundreds of tracts and gospel portions. However, the need is not yet met. As the missions grow, they need more than 12 hymnals to supply the congregation; and everytime we try to establish a new mission, we need hymnals, Bibles, and Testaments, not to mention countless gospel portions. Any Sunday school class, league, or individual who can send even fifty cents or a dollar to the Literature Fund of Arizona-Mexico Missions can help very much in this very needy ministry.

We are now able to place hymnals (without music) in the missions in Mexico for the ridiculous price of 35 cents per hymnal. Testaments are available for some 15 cents each, a limited quantity can be procured free. Bibles are the most expensive item. We cannot place a Bible for less than a dollar, and in most cases the cost runs somewhat more than a dollar. We also need some hymnals with music to guide the players and song leaders, and these hymnals cost about $1.50 each. We feel that this literature ministry is of great importance, and we beg your support of it.

We are also giving Bible scenes to the people who memorize Scriptures. It is becoming increasingly difficult to keep them supplied. Some of them have completed the First Year Memory Course in a couple of months. The first memory group is John 1:12, 1:29, 3:3, 3:16, and 5:24, for which they receive a paper bookmark. The second group is John 1:1-10, for which they receive a plastic bookmark. The third group is John 1:11-18 and 29, 30, for which they receive a New Testament (one of the 15c ones). The fourth group is John 3:1-15 for which they receive a ball-point pen. The fifth group is John 3:16-21 and 31-36, for which they receive a leatherette New Testament. The sixth group is John 4:7-26, for which they receive a viewer for Bible scenes (3 dimensional costing 50c). The seventh group is John 10:1-30, for which they receive a set of Bible scenes for the viewer (each set costs 50c).

For the eighth group, which is John 14:1-31, they receive a Bible. After that, group nine, John 15:1-27; group ten, John 16:1-33; group eleven, John 17:1-26; group twelve, John 18:1-40; and group thirteen, John 19:1-42; they receive a set of Bible scenes for each group. The fourteenth group, which is John 20:1-31 is supposed to merit a week in youth camp, or a leather-covered Bible. We had hoped to have a youth camp this summer, but I don't know that we are going to be able to do it. Also, thus far, we have not been able to give them the Bibles, which cost about $4.00 each. We will surely appreciate your prayers about this, and any offerings you may send. You can see that they work hard for what they get. They really appreciate their prizes, because they have to work hard for them.

Please send offerings designated for this purpose, either here, or to the North Carolina Board of Missions, C/o The Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Avden, North Carolina 28513. The address here is, Arizona-Mexico Missions, P. O. Box 550, Nogales, Arizona 85621. We truly thank you for every prayer, and for every cent of offering you give to this cause. May God bless you.

ALBEMARLE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY CONVENTION REPORT

The ladies of Belhaven Free Will Baptist Church, Belhaven, North Carolina, graciously entertained the Albemarle District Woman's Auxiliary Convention on Thursday, April 16, with all twelve auxiliaries of the district represented with delegates.

The theme for the convention was "We Can do All Things Through Christ." The president, Mrs. A. B. Chandler, presided over the convention.

Mrs. D. H. Furlough conducted the morning devotional. This was followed with the welcome by Mrs. Douglas Spencer, with Mrs. Marvin Barnett responding. There were six ministers present for the convention.

Mrs. Luke Whitley presented the first-place winner of the YFA essay contest, Miss Phyllis Sullivan.

Miss Bonnie Farmer brought greetings and news from the Free Will Baptist Children's Home at Middlesex. She also presented the adopted daughter from the home of the district, Miss Brenda Batts, who sang a solo at this time.

The Rev. Bruce Barrow spoke to the convention about the work of the Free Will Baptist Press. He told of the literature and merchandise the press had to offer to the Free Will Baptist people.

The Rev. W. Burkette Raper brought greetings and news from Mount Olive Junior College.

At this time the local choir rendered a very inspiring message in song.

The Rev. L. E. Ambrose brought the morning message. His subject was in keeping with the theme of the day.

An hour of feasting and fellowship was enjoyed at the noon hour.

The afternoon devotional was conducted by Mrs. Tom West. This was followed with the giving of the various reports and the appointing of a nominating committee.

A woman's quartet from Shiloh Free Will Baptist Church then brought a wonderful message in song, "Love Is Why."

Mrs. J. C. Moye, the State Woman's Auxiliary president, urged more women to attend the Woman's Conference at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, this summer.

Delegates to the Woman's Auxiliary State Convention were elected at this time.

The convention adjourned to meet with the Corinth Free Will Baptist Church in October.

The Beauty of Seasoned Saints

by Nina E. Beegle

Youth is like a flower, we often hear it said—vibrant, flourishing, and lovely to behold, but easily blown, and often tattered by the winds of life. A young lady is like the delicate, half-blown bloom of a blushing rose. The young man, like the more sturdy sunflower, swaggering on its tall stalk, smiling audaciously at the world. This is a physical beauty which, as was often quoted in my home, "is only skin deep." It has also been aptly said that it is too bad youth is often wasted on those who are too young to appreciate it.

But there is a beauty that supersedes the pink glow of youth. It is the seasoned beauty that we behold in the countenance and character of an elderly saint who has walked many years in joyous obedience to Christ, and now anticipates his heavenly reward.

Often it is a blessing just to witness these saints in the congregation. They need not say anything. Their faces tell a story. Even the wrinkles reveal in quiet testimony a life that has been lived for Christ, a battle that has been well-fought with the end-reward in view—and we who look find challenge and encouragement for the future. Their hallowed

"Amen" after a special song, their earnest opening prayer, the handshake that has become more gentle with age, but which implies, "God bless you," the gestures which set the tone of a service or the bent of a life for many.

On the other hand, how sad the granite look of carnal abstinence which marks the countenance of an older person who has resisted the Holy Spirit along the way—whose life yields only the thorns and briars of talebearing and backbiting. This face is a blessing to none—heart-breaking to the Christian, and disgusting to the sinner. Even that which they strive to do, in retrospect, is as wood, hay, and stubble. "Likewise also the good works of some are manifest beforehand; and they that are otherwise cannot be hid" (1 Tim. 5:25).

A beautiful spirit inevitably shines through the features, traced by the years, regardless of the suffering or pain they may hold for God's child. This beauty may be possessed by even the most physically imperfect.

"But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you" (1 Peter 5:10).—The Free Methodist.

HEATHEN AND CHRISTIAN IDOLS

A missionary became greatly interested in the conversion of a Brahman. The Brahman, however, had seen much grasping and greed among merchants and government officials from so-called Christian nations. He listened with great respect to the missionary. At the end of the conversation, he placed a little image and a gold coin on a table. He wrote something on a slip of paper and placed it beside the image. Then he wrote on another slip of paper and placed it beside the gold coin. He said to the missionary, "Please read these." The note beside the image read: "Heathen idol." The note beside the coin read: "Christian idol."—Walter B. Knight.

If those who oppose the undefiled religion of the Lord Jesus Christ—even sanctification and holiness—have something better, why don't they bring it to the forefront?—Walter E. Isenhour.

"For Such a Time As This"

(Esther 4:14)

by Edward B. Annable

The NBC network last Sept. 8 reported: "The crime rate in the U. S. A. is increasing four times faster than the population growth." A judge on the same broadcast said the cause is the breakdown of American family life, the temptations of radio, TV, movies, etc.

The historian, Arnold Toynbee, is quoted as saying: "Of the 23 civilizations that appeared in history, 19 of them collapsed when they reached the moral state the U. S. is now in!"

"What can the righteous do?" (Psa. 11:3). Here are some answers from the Word:

1. "Keep himself unspotted from the world" (James 1:27). Are there any spots on you—worldly marks, fads, frills, idle or slang speech, loose acts or ways? Now is the time to wash them off!

2. "Ye are the light of the world: let your light so shine before men . . ." (Matt. 5:14, 16). Let us shine for Christ, speak for Him, live like Him, then warn and invite sinners at every opportunity, give out tracts, etc.

3. "The wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps" (Matt. 25). You know the lesson and the outcome. This is the time to get "filled with the Spirit," and keep in that condition. When He comes, the door will be shut.

4. "Blessed is that servant, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find so doing" (Matt. 24:26). Doing what? Witnessing, serving faithfully, "ready to every good work," supporting missions with prayer and offerings.

5. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest" (Matt. 9:38). By constant intercession, we "stand in the gap" for others, and keep our own hearts tender and compassionate. Only as we "watch and pray" can we "abide in him."

6. "Keep yourselves in the love of God" (Jude 21). All our words, witnessing, and works are vain and empty without "faith, hope, love . . . out of a pure heart." Love can decline and cool off, unless fed and kept.

7. "Beware lest, being carried away with the error of the wicked, ye fall from your own steadfastness. But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 3:17, 18). We grow by the Word, prayer,

Temperance Movement

One of the tragedies of our time is the moral ineptitude of religious denominations in not arousing public opinion to the increasing menace of the liquor traffic. We have unlimited ineffective discussions on moral issues of a general nature that never gets down to cases. But directly the liquor barons who fatten their pocketbooks on the sale of alcoholic beverages without conscience or regard for the harm that is done are likely to be brought into the limelight, the psychological obstacle of fear turns off the thunder of the wrath of God.

Religious assemblies pass resolutions that have no effect. There is no protest of any importance over the advocacy of alcoholic drinks, reaching into homes through TV, radio, and magazines. Children are conditioned for alcohol by the carelessness of thoughtless parents, and no counterinstruction is given. No wonder modern Christianity seems to have lost its moral influence.

This and other evils related to the sins of the flesh become accepted through want of opposition or correction. Only empty heads could conceive that this unchallenged allowance of evil will not ultimately penetrate and destroy churches, and ultimately the church. Whereas, if only the moral forces of our Christian faith were brought into effective unity, positions of moral firmness could be taken and the liquor traffic could be restrained by law.

May God's power and blessing rest upon those who will raise a standard against the current social and individual corruption.—The Watchman-Examiner.

That Is All

I can give you a prescription that will bring revival to any church on earth:

First, let a few Christians themselves get thoroughly right with God.

Second, let them bind themselves together to pray for a revival until God opens the heavens and comes down.

Third, let them put themselves at the disposal of God for Him to use as He sees fit in winning others to Christ.

That is all!—R. A. Torrey, in The United Evangelical.

regular worship, Christian reading, service, cross-bearing, patience.—The Free Methodist.

The Stubborn Old Pocketbook!

It happened in the beginner's department of the Sunday school. Everything was proceeding as usual until the time to receive the offering. Then suddenly a crisis developed.

A little girl in the class of four year olds had a shiny new pocketbook, but she couldn't get it open. She worked frantically at the knobs, tears swelling into her eyes. Bursting into tears, she frantically exclaimed, "Stubborn old pocketbook."

A beaming little fellow sitting next to her tried to console her. "Now you can keep your money and use it for yourself," he told her.

But that didn't help the situation. "I want to give it to Jesus," she insisted, "it belongs to Him."

The teacher now came to the little girl's aid and opened the "stubborn old pocketbook." Now, with smiles of happiness the little girl removed her offering and placed it on the offering plate.

If only God's love would so move all of us to leave us unhappy until finally we opened our hearts and pocketbooks to experience the joy of sharing our possessions with the Lord.—The United Evangelical.

Take care not to begin anything of which you may repent.—Selected.

You need to pray most when you least feel like praying.

A FELLOWSHIP MEETING

On April the 22, I was privileged to meet with the executive committee of the Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptists in East Rockingham Free Will Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Walter Carter is pastor; he is also vice-president of the Fellowship. The Rev. Louis Holliday, president of the Fellowship invited me to a seat with the committee, which invitation I gladly accepted as every member of the committee joined Brother Holliday in granting me the favor. I did not make notes, as I often do when meeting with such assemblies; but according to my understanding, suggestions and motions were adopted that mean a great deal to the ongoing of the Fellowship organization and to the Original Free Will Baptists of this nation and other countries who wish to unite in the fellowship of sustaining the cause of Christ through the united efforts of of Original Free Will Baptists. There was nothing said or done that imitated a "new denomination" as has been rumored by ignorance, or otherwise. The same doctrine, usages, and practices that we have known and cherished for hundreds of years were evidenced.

IT WAS GOOD TO HAVE THIS FELLOWSHIP

It is always good to have fellowship with Original Free Will Baptists when the Holy Spirit is present and dominates. Certainly the Holy Spirit was present; our hearts were blessed and we could say it was good to be there.

Plans were worked out which, if carried into action, and we have reason to believe that they will, will mean a great deal in spreading the gospel of Christ. There is to be a meeting of the Fellowship this summer in Marianna, Florida, which according to the plans being arranged will be a great asset to the success of the Original Free Will Baptists in the connection in that it will enlarge the spiritual fellowship of the denomination.

In the executive meeting, I had not only the blessing of sitting in, but was privileged to make suggestions and to pray the benediction. My soul was blessed by fellowshiping with the brethren; and if it is the Lord's will, I shall be glad to attend this Fellowship organization when it meets in Marianna.

THE ROCKINGHAM WORK

Brother Walter Carter has a glorious work in Rockingham. I believe that he has served as pastor of the Free Will Baptist church there for more than 25 years; and he is stilled loved and respected, not only by the Free Will Baptists of that city, but by the general public.

THE STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The North Carolina State Convention of Sunday Schools convened Thursday, April 23, with a good representation, considering that the bulk of the state churches are located much to the East of Rockingham. I did not get the number of ministers and representatives from the various churches, but we can say that there was a goodly number of enthusiastic Sunday school workers in attendance. Everybody seemed to be happy and to manifest an expression of love and fellowship.

As I do not drive long distances these days, Mrs. E. C. Morris took her husband and this scribe to Rockingham. I used to say, "I rather be under the wheel than for anyone else to be under the wheel"; however, I can say that Mrs. Morris is a good driver. Since she was doing the driving, Brother Morris and I could talk about former days, refresh our minds on things of the past, and speculate about the future.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity" (Psalm 133:1). Because of this unity of purpose and Christian fellowship, such days as we realized at Rockingham in the Fellowship executive committee meeting and the State Sunday School Convention makes old men (just as well own it, because some of the best friends of mine have got to saying, "How is "Old Brother Griffin?").

But back to our fellowship at Rockingham; while it was good to meet with old friends, both laymen and ministers, it was also soul-stirring to meet with young ministers and young Sunday school superintendents and teachers who are devoting themselves to the work of the Lord in the field of Sunday schools.

NEW CHURCH EDIFICES AND PARSONAGES

When I was a young preacher (I mean young as a preacher), there were no parsonages and no full-time pastorates that I knew of. The first parsonage that I learned about in our connection was at St. Mary's in New Bern, and St. Mary's was also the first church that went on full time and called a full-time pastor to live in the community where the church was located. The late Rev. W. B. Everett was the first full-time pastor that I knew about. Today almost all our churches have gone half-time or full-time; they are growing in numbers and have more and better arranged sanctuaries and Sunday school classrooms. A large number of Sunday schools and conventions are reporting more departmental schools each year.

I remember well when we had no Children's Home, but today we have a well arranged and well cared for Children's Home that brings rejoicing to the soul of all Original Free Will Baptists. This institution is supported by loyal Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina, along with some good Free Will Baptists of other states. And in spite of those who might be and are enemies, God is blessing.

I further remember when we had no denominational college, but today we have Mount Olive Junior College, which is growing and by the grace of God, in spite of handicaps, has made progress. God has wonderfully blessed the college with a president, Dr. William B. Raper, together with a staff of officers and teachers, who have won the esteem of not only Free Will Baptists, but other denominations and the public at large.

CRAGMONT

Then we have a good recreation assembly ground located about two miles west of Black Mountain, in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina. This assembly is a place where our youth love to go for recreation and fellowship and spiritual development during the summer months.

The Ministers' Conference which convenes there in the month of June brings Christian fellowship to those who can attend. This fellowship is enjoyed the week after the third Sunday in June each year. There are about three months of Christian fellowship enjoyed there each summer.

Then we have our publishing house at Avden that is turning out real Christian literature. Satan has fought this institution (continued on page eleven)

QUESTION: Please explain "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (Daniel 12:2). How does this fit your theory of two resurrections?—M. J., Oklahoma.

ANSWER: Just like any other general statement in the Bible fits a detailed account or explanation of the same truth found in the Bible. In the first place, however, I have no theory on two resurrections, but have from time to time pointed out the fact that the Bible teaches this. Therefore, the first thing in order, as I see it, is to point this out to you. "And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years" (Revelation 20:4-6). This indicates that the first resurrection will take place before the thousand years reign of Christ upon this earth at which time believers only are to be raised and judged; but that the second resurrection is to take place at the end of Christ's 1,000-year reign on earth; at which time the wicked dead shall all stand in resurrected bodies before the great white throne judgment.

As I understood this passage, Daniel 12:2 refers to the national resurrection of Israel; for here the prophet addressed Israel as will be seen by reading that which precedes 12:2. Here the great tribulation is discussed which is also referred to in Matthew 24 by our Lord.

(Compare Revelation 13 and 17 with Matthew 24.)

The national resurrection is also brought before us in Ezekiel 37 and not a physical resurrection from the dead as some try to make it. It is a sure fact that Israel has long since been buried nationally and this burying was engineered by Jehovah as an act of punishment for her willful disobedience to His commandments and His covenant with her. But one day she will awake and come forth nationally as seen in Ezekiel 37. God predicts continually in the Scriptures that Israel will one day emerge from her desolation, and in part she has already done this. But what she has done in recent years, as wonderful as it may be, is not equal to that she will experience. Like the buds on the fig tree that indicate spring is here and fruit is to emerge, so the signs about Jerusalem among God's chosen people the Jews indicate that God is not asleep but that He will one day do what His Word predicts concerning Israel and her return to and possession of Palestine. Some of the Jews in the tribulation period will be awakened to everlasting life as Daniel 12 indicates because they will repudiate the antichrist and his false claims, while others that accept the antichrist as Messiah will awake to eternal shame and damnation, or judgment and contempt. Those awakened to shame, contempt, or judgment will be among the worshipers of the antichrist. They will become a part of the apostasy of Revelation, Chapters 13 and 17, worshiping the antichrist or the beast and false prophet.

tion by various means since its establishment, but God has brought us out, and in spite of its hardships it is still going on. All these institutions have made progress and are doing much for the glory of God, not only with the Original Free Will Baptists, but to others who give them patronage. I have seen so much growth in the past fifty years that I can say, "Let us never give up, nor compromise with those who are not of us." May we give not only our money, but also our bodies as living sacrifices for the ongoing of all our institutions. Satan will work against us, God is working and will continue to work with us as long as we let Him lead.

STORIES

BOYS and GIRLS

A HOBBY CAN BE A MISSION

Margaret J. Anderson

HE'S mine. He was caught in my yard" . . . "So, what? He was in my yard first" . . . "Yes, but I caught him, didn't I?" . . . "He's mine." When Mrs. Robert Hanson, Minneapolis, Minnesota, clergyman's wife, hears these shouts that sound like cop and robber play, she isn't one bit perturbed.

What if the neighborhood boys bicker a bit? she muses. Now they have something worthwhile to bicker about . . . not bandits—beautiful butterflies.

It all started when the Hansons were on vacation last summer. Exploring the out-of-doors one day, teen-age Keith caught a big ceropia moth.

"Oh, Dad," he exclaimed. "Isn't it a beaut? Do you suppose there would be some way to keep it? It could be mounted, couldn't it?"

Keith's father, Rev. Robert C. Hanson, told the boy he didn't know anything about mounting butterflies and moths.

Well, they could find out, couldn't they?

A trip to the hobby store and the purchase of one of the Golden Nature books, "Insects," gave Keith the information he wanted. Then quickly a new hobby was born.

By following the book's instructions the Hansons equipped themselves for butterfly hunting at very little cost.

They bought some nylon mesh material which Mrs. Hanson sewed to the frame of an old fish landing net she found in the attic of their home. They fastened the net to an old broom handle.

"Old curtains would do just as well," Mrs. Hanson says. "And old coat hangers or wire make good frames, too."

"But you have to know how to handle the net," Keith tells. "You hold the handle or pole in one hand. With the other you hold the material up and away from the frame. Then you bring the frame and net down over the butterfly wherever it is perched at the time. In trying to get away, the insect flies up into the net.

"You trap the butterfly by shifting the net to the ground. Then reaching in under the edge of the net, you catch the butterfly by taking hold of its body with the thumb and first finger.

"You want to do this quickly so the butterfly doesn't rub the powder off its body.

"Then comes the important part. Killing and mounting the insect. I use a fruit jar into which I have put a small piece of cotton saturated with fluid you can buy in a hobby shop.

"Most butterflies die in ten or 15 minutes. A big ceropia takes longer, sometimes an hour or two."

Mr. Hanson has devised a special board on which the butterflies are prepared for mounting. It is six inches wide and a foot long . . . made of balsam which is soft enough to have pins stuck into it.

He made a groove down the center of the board. It is a quarter of an inch wide and about a quarter of an inch deep. The butterfly's body fits in this groove and is held in position with pins. Then the wings are pinned in an outstretched position. The butterfly will stay outstretched if it is left in this position for a day or overnight.

"Now the butterflies are ready to be mounted," Keith continues. "I usually mount mine on a layer of thin cotton in an old picture frame or on cardboard with a plastic cover, taped around the edges."

When the neighborhood children learned that the Hansons were collecting butterflies, they wanted to get in on the fun, too. Mr. Hanson encouraged them by offering nickel and dime prizes for the biggest and most perfect specimens they could find. Some of the species collected are the white Sphynx, the Monarch, the Red Admiral, the Branded Purple and the Red Spotted Purple.

Once a week Mr. Hanson loads his car with boys and girls and takes them to an open field at the edge of the city where they can scout butterflies to their hearts' content.

"I'm not only interested in the hobby," Mr. Hanson says, "I'm interested in keeping the youngsters busy doing something that is worthwhile. I don't preach at them. But I do pray that some of my love for Christ will rub off on them.

"I've made it a rule never to put the key in the ignition when we start on one of our hunting jaunts without first asking God to protect and guide our trip. After all, I'm responsible for what happens to these children."

"They are so used to Dad's doing this as soon as they get in the car, they bow their heads and wait for him to pray," Keith tells.

"Dad's had a big influence on them since we started our hobby. Using bad language is out. Dad won't have it. The change in some children is almost unbelievable. Take the three boys that come from a broken home a few blocks from us, for instance. They had been the neighborhood terrors. No one wanted them around. I asked them to join our hobby group and now things are different. There's no stealing or bullying. They often come by just to chat with Dad about their butterflies. Who knows, before long, we may be able to win these boys for the Lord? So, you see, a hobby can be fun, but, it can be a mission, too."
—Christian Trails.

Change. The story goes that a priest found himself the winner of a prize at a fair. The prize: a set of towels, marked "His" and "Hers." He was so deeply concerned as to how to dispose of the towels that he called his bishop for his counsel.

"I wouldn't be too hasty," advised the bishop. "You know, things are changing very fast these days."—The Presbyterian Outlook.

ATTENTION FWB Ministers

The time for the annual meeting of the North Carolina Ministerial Association of Original Free Will Baptists at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, June 22-26, 1964, will soon be here.

We are asking all our ministers in the state of North Carolina to arrange their schedule and church program so that all will be able to attend. We are extending a welcome to all ministers of other states who would like to meet with us to come and enjoy the program and fellowship. This is the Ministerial Association of North Carolina ministers who are affiliated with the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists.

A good program has been planned by the executive committee of the association with thirty different ministers appearing on same. The theme for the session will be "The Original Free Will Baptist Doctrine and Church Government." A panel discussion has been arranged so that each minister present may participate by asking questions of the panel members on the above theme. It is our wish that each minister feel that he is a part of the association.

It would be nice if each church would urge and assist their minister to attend. As there is plenty of time before the association meets, it would be a fine gesture for each church to assist their minister in the amount of fifty dollars ($50) to help him attend the association. In some cases it will take a little more for his expenses. Talk it over with your minister and find out from him what he thinks it will take for him to attend. Some of our ministers never take a vacation from their work, which at times is necessary for them to do their best work. This would be a fine time for him to do so. The associational meeting at Cragmont is not only a vacation time, it is a time for dedication, fellowship with other ministers, receiving information, and worship. We believe this week will help any minister to be a better minister to his church and denomination. Why not help your minister attend the associational meeting at Cragmont this year?

It is the hope of the executive committee that each minister will arrange his plans so that he will be able to be present at the first session on Monday, June 22, 6 p. m., and stay through the closing service Friday, June 26, 9:55 a. m. This will give each minister plenty of time to be back home Friday night. It is not fair to place individuals on the program and ask them to prepare for same and then have no one present for the program. The executive committee, in preparing the program, has given plenty of time for recreation and sight-seeing. So make plans to attend each session.

The entire program will appear in the Free Will Baptist paper in a few weeks, so you can check it and know what the program will be and who will appear on it.

We are hoping to see each of you at Cragmont this year. Let's make this the best year yet in fellowship, dedication, recreation, information and attendance. We can do it through Christ.

David W. Hansley, President
N. C. Ministers' Association

The Cost Is Small

Kindness has been described in many ways. It is the poetry of the heart, the music of the world. It is a golden chain which binds society together. It is a fountain of gladness.

Kind hearts are more than coronets.

Kind words produce their own beautiful image in man's soul.

Everyone knows the pleasure of receiving a kind look, a warm greeting, a hand held out in time of need. And such gestures can be made at so little expense, yet they bring such dividends to the investor.—The War Cry.

There is great danger that the church shall lose the art of suffering for its convictions.—Roy L. Smith.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson FOR MAY 31

All Nations Under God

LESSON TEXT: Amos 2:4-7; Acts 17:24-26

MEMORY VERSE: Proverbs 14:34

I. INTRODUCTION

America has been a nation under God from its very beginning. There are many things that remind us of this fact. The coins that we carry in our pockets remind us of our trust in God. Many of our national songs remind us of our trust in God. As we recognize that our nation is under God and that we trust in Him, how good it is that each of us can say, "This is my country." Such must have been the feeling of Samuel Frances Smith when he wrote the words to the national hymn of America, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the pilgrims' pride,
From every mountain side
Let freedom ring.

My native country, thee,
Land of the noble free,
Thy name I love;
I love thy rocks and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills;
My heart with rapture thrills,
Like that above.

Let music swell the breeze,
And ring from all the trees
Sweet freedom's song;
Let mortal tongues awake;
Let all that breathe partake;
Let rocks their silence break,
The sound prolong.

Our father's God, to thee,
Author of liberty,
To thee we sing;
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King.

—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The punishment of Judah was a matter of great magnitude (v. 4).

2. Their punishment was imposed because of their hatred of God's law and failure to keep His commandments (v. 4).

3. The eventual destruction of Jerusalem was predicted here (v. 5).

4. The identical words relating to Jehovah's determination to mete out punishment upon Judah and Israel show that He is no respecter of persons (v. 6).

5. The main sins charged against Israel were immorality and the oppression of the poor (vv. 6, 7).

6. Paul declared that God is the Creator of heaven and earth and that He cannot be confined within walls (v. 24).

7. A god that can be contained within the confines of a building must be smaller than it is (v. 24).

8. God is such an infinite being that He cannot be worshiped with men's hands. He is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth (v. 25).

9. Of one blood God has made all nations of men that dwell on the earth (v. 26).

10. God has also determined the times appointed for these men and the bounds of their habitation (v. 26).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. By the time summer arrives many blacktop driveways and roadways are in a sad state of disrepair. The winter of freezing and thawing has left great cracks and even chuckholes in what used to be a good surface. So the time has arrived for the roadbuilders and homeowners to make repairs. When the repairmen patch the driveway, a small hand roller is sufficient to do the job. This tool will take care of a small job. When the same company is hired to repair the street, they use instead a large roller, which is more efficient because it is heavier and can cover a larger area. But this roller is more dangerous because it could easily crush one.

Unsettled conditions are apparent in many parts of our globe. Nations are torn between two extremes. At times they may swing in the direction of extreme nationalism. Such a government may direct all the affairs of its citizens with an iron hand. Like the big roller this is efficient because it gets the job done, but at times it may be a threat to human rights. With a change in government the nation may swing to the other extreme of subdued nationalism. Then it may not be powerful enough to get important tasks done efficiently.

The Christian is obligated as a citizen to determine when he should support one policy and when he should support the other. As he makes his choice, he must carefully weigh the advantages and disadvantages of each, remembering, "Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people."—Standard Lesson Commentary.

2. How big is your scope of the world? Is it limited to your town, county, state or country? A man in Buffalo, New York, was asked how far it is to Niagara Falls. "Don't know," he said. "Never been there." Within 40 miles of one of the wonders of the world, yet he had never seen it!

Our world can be as big as we make it. The Samaritan woman's world was the village in which she lived. (Tell the story of John 4, emphasizing verse 39).

Saul of Tarsus started from "no mean city" (Acts 21:39), but he never stopped until he had invaded Syria, crossed the Mediterranean, traveled through Asia Minor and introduced the Gospel into Greece, the center of world culture, and Rome, the center of world power. From Rome the Gospel spread throughout Europe, into Britain and eventually into all the western world.

One summer a man visited a cottage in the remote mountains of North Carolina. When ushered into the home he found a globe of the world. On the wall was a map. On that map there had been pinned pointers with colored heads. These pointers seemed to converge around a great lake in Africa. On a desk were missionary periodicals. The man inquired, "What is the meaning of those colored pointers?" The host replied, "Each represents a place where I have furnished money for a mission, a launch, or some other Christian witness." Here then was a "world man," deep in the mountains of North Carolina.

The assassination of President Kennedy exemplified the "world view" of many foreign dignities. Almost within 48 hours after Mr. Kennedy was murdered, nearly every country of the world had sent delegations to Washington, D. C., to mourn the death of the President. This not only showed how small our world has actually become, but it also displayed the world-wide interest of governments for other governments. There was genuine interest and sympathy in the hearts of those leaders that came so quickly. Christians must become just as interested in those the world over who are still living, but who are dying in their sins. Let each of us determine to take the message of God's love to every man in this shrinking world.—Senior Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

3. There are three major lessons that our Scriptures today teach:

First, God is the Father of all nations. The size, wealth, education and race does not make any difference. God is the Creator of all men of all nations. Some nations do not recognize Him as Creator, but this does not change the fact that He is Creator.

In our time there have been two serious efforts to draw the nations of the world together into one fellowship. The first effort was the old League of Nations which ended after World War I. The other effort is our present United Nations. Regardless of what we think of these organizations, we cannot overlook the fact that God is the Father of all nations.

Second, God is not only the God of all nations, but He is also the God of all centuries. As we study the history of nations and see their sins and weaknesses which led to their downfall, we are prone to feel that all this was in the distant past and cannot happen to us today. God is eternal. He is the same today as He has always been.

Third, God's laws of righteousness and justice remain unchanged. There was not one set of principles that applied to ancient Israel and Rome and another set that applies to us today. Just as God himself is suitable to all times, so are His laws of judgment and justice. It is still true "that righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

"In the ancient legends is the story of Nemesis, the so-called Goddess of Vengeance. She had wings, but always walked rather than flew. (The idea was to show that, although punishment seemed slow, it would eventually arrive.) A poet wrote of this story. 'Vengeance divine to punish sin moves slow; the slower is its pace, the surer is its blow.' God assures the sinner that punishment is coming. Let delay not deceive us."—Selected.—Advance Quarterly (F.W.B.).

Following Jesus In Service

tion with the woman of Samaria. He ate with publicans and sinners. His love reached out to all classes of people.

Can we cry out with the Apostle Paul, "The love of Christ constraineth me"? Does His love so fill and thrill your very life that you are motivated by this all-consuming love to witness to that person beside whom you work? That person with whom you are in school? Or your neighbor across the street? Do you love the unlovely person so much that you never fail to reach down and give him a helping hand? We must reach down to the bottom of human need and the top of human privilege.

Does your heart need to be warmed by God's great love? Do you sense a lack of love for those you meet daily at the office, school, factory, or store? Follow Jesus and allow Him to fill your life with His own deep, abounding love.

The same motives that prompted Jesus to serve those whom he saw in need should prompt us in our daily walk with Him. We need to possess His (1) spirit of unselfishness, (2) heart of compassion, (3) heart filled with love!

METHODS OF JESUS

Let's look at the methods Jesus used in ministering to the Samaritan woman in John 4. You will remember that the Samaritans were hated by the Jews because they were a mixed breed, and the Jews just absolutely refused to walk across the soil of Samaria. But Jesus was free from such scruples. He could pass through Samaria with love in His heart for the Samaritans because His love was all-inclusive.

Because this woman was a Samaritan, it posed a race problem. It was incorrect for a man to speak to a woman in public. And it was certainly unthinkable to speak to a Samaritan woman! This woman was a social outcast. When the woman came to the well at noon, Jesus knew that this in itself marked her as a scarlet woman. She avoided coming at the regular hour to shun the condemning glances of the other woman.

As the woman approached the well, Jesus was tired, and He might have excused Himself from speaking on the ground that He was tired; besides, it was not proper to speak to a Samaritan. But His heart burned with compassion! His love went out to her!

The first thing Jesus did was to establish contact: "There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, give me to drink" (v. 7). He began by asking her for a drink of water. As the clear, cold water splashed over the sides of the bucket and cooled the tips of her fingers, it was in the center of her attention.

Next, He aroused her interest. After Jesus asked her for a drink of water, she expressed surprise that He should ask a favor of her. Using the drink of water which she gave Him as an illustration of the new life He could offer her, Jesus aroused her interest by saying, "If thou knewest." He implied that He knew something she did not know. This intrigued her, especially when He suggested that He could give her "living" water.

Jesus then created in her real desire. After He gained her interest, Jesus disclosed His real message. He had started with physical thirst and led to soul thirst. The material water for which she had come to the well could never satisfy permanently. The spiritual water which He offered her could be a spring within her own soul, constantly available to meet all her needs.

After creating desire in her, Jesus gave her instructions. His instructions here were very personal in order to convict. There can be no conviction for sins until the trust is pointed at the heart. Jesus said to her, "Go, call thy husband, and come hither." He wanted her to look at herself. One may casually realize he is wrong in the way he is living, but it is often necessary that the curtains be pulled and that the person look squarely at himself.

She would have resented Jesus' saying, "You are a prostitute." Notice He did not accuse her. He did not bluntly reprove her or lash out at her for her sinful condition. He found a better way. He was as tactful in His instructions as He was in His contact.

Lastly, Jesus made His appeal. He appealed to the Samaritan woman on the basis of the nature of God. He must be worshiped in spirit. The important aspect of worship is not where one worships as much as how he worships.

He also appealed to the woman on the basis of His Messiahship. If a person does not accept Christ as the Son of God, he cannot be saved.

His explanation of God and the mode of worship led the Samaritan woman to a full realization of the spiritual emphasis which Jesus was giving.

Following Jesus In Service

The results of Jesus' ministering to this woman were tremendous! She left her water and went rejoicing into the city to bear witness to the saving power of Christ. She became a witness. A great revival resulted.

When we follow Jesus in service, the results will not always be as thrilling as in the story of the Samaritan woman; but regardless of the results, our duty is to be obedient and follow Him serving wherever He leads.

JESUS, OUR MODEL

We need Jesus' motives in our daily service for Him. We do well to follow the methods He used, also.

1. If we follow Jesus in service, if we allow Him to be our model, we will not limit our witness to one particular class of people. He dealt with people from the lowest class of society to the folks at the very top. He ministered to religious leaders who were held in high esteem by the local citizens. He took time to win blind beggars.

2. If we allow Jesus to be our model, we will daily give forth our very best! In John 4:26 Jesus said to the Samaritan woman, "I that speak unto thee am He." This was the clearest revelation regarding Himself that Jesus ever gave to anyone. Many possibly felt that this audience, one scarlet woman, was unworthy of such revelation. But Jesus did not wait for great occasions and dramatic moments to give forth His greatest revelations. Any and all persons were considered worthy of His very best! Any person is worthy of the very best there is within us! In the eyes of Jesus, this was the golden moment for a display of the best which He had. Let's learn from Him! May He be our model!

An old legend tells of a conversation held by Satan. All the demons came to report on their work. One said, "I let loose the wild beasts of the desert on a caravan of Christians and their bones are now bleaching on the sand."

"What of that?" demanded Satan. "Their souls were all saved."

Another one said, "I drove the east wind against a ship loaded with Christians and they were all drowned."

"What of that?" asked Satan. "They all went to heaven."

Then another one said, "For ten years I tried to put a Christian to sleep. Finally I succeeded and left him there."

Then the devil shouted for joy! Yes, Satan rejoices when Christians go to sleep on the job and quit serving Christ.

But there's no time to go to sleep on the job for Christ! He demands the very best there is in us. He longs for us to follow Him in service day by day!

Are you following Christ? Not afar off, as Peter did, but real close?

Look in the Direction You Wish to Go

I once learned a lesson from a dog we had. My father used to put a bit of meat or biscuit on the floor near the dog and say, "No," and the dog knew he must not touch it. But he never looked at the meat. He seemed to feel that if he did so, the temptation to disobey would be too great, so he looked steadily at my father's face.

A gentleman was dining with us one day, and he said: "There is a lesson for us all. Never look at temptation. Always look away to the Master's face."—Reformed Church Record.

Ten Years Ago in the 'Baptist'

Under the leadership of the Rev. R. C. Cherry, the Williamston Free Will Baptist Church, Williamston, North Carolina, has experienced great progress. The church was organized only about two years ago, and a new building has already been erected.

The Rev. C. F. Bowen of Nashville, Tennessee, will begin revival services at Shady Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Sampson County, North Carolina, beginning June 3 and continuing through June 13.

The North Carolina Woman's Conference will be held at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, August 16-23, 1954, with Mrs. L. E. Ballard as director and Mrs. Clement Sullivan as assistant director.

In the Editor's Mail—

"I want to express my thanks to everyone for the kindness shown me during my recent illness. I enjoy "The Free Will Baptist" so much, and I cherish Mr. Griffin's articles. I am thankful for all the good old saints I have met in the past. It brings joy to my heart, and I long to meet them in the home above where we can give our Father praise and glory forever. . . ."—Mrs. Agnes Letchworth, Route One, LaGrange, North Carolina.

From 'The Union Signal'

A Long Island, New York, bank has forbidden employees to smoke during working hours except in washrooms and cafeterias, the New York Times reports.

The ban is on cigarettes, cigars, pipes, snuff, and chewing tobacco and applies to 1,350 employees in the 50 bank branches. The directive was issued in early December after a top management meeting, when smokers on the staff, the bank president, and eight vice-presidents agreed to stop smoking to set an example.

VACATION TIME

Vacation days are almost here. It is a special season of the year, and never in the history of our country have so many people taken to the highways during vacation time. There are hundreds and thousands of tourist attractions across the breadth and width of America. It seems that a vacation is not a vacation without taking a trip to see some of these attractions.

There's nothing wrong with the idea behind vacations. A true vacation is for the purpose of rest and relaxation; it is a scheduled period of time during which activity is suspended. The truth of the matter is, however, that not many people really take a beneficial vacation. In other words, it is most difficult to return to work after one of these so-called rest periods in a relaxed and restful frame of mind. Those who relax while driving on a hot, crowded expressway seldom live to tell it.

Then there's the matter of fairness to our employer. Is the employee being fair when he returns from one of those excursions tireder than when he left?

Christians, of all people, should plan their vacations wisely. If travel is a part of the vacation plans, base the distance on the amount of time you have. Take it easy during the entire period, and do not allow anything or anyone to cramp your plans. Have a good time, but be sure to include Christ in everything you do. His special presence and blessings during your vacation will mean everything to you. While you are vacationing, do not neglect to pray, read the Bible, and attend church. Good luck, have a good time, and drive carefully.

TWENTIETH-CENTURY PRESSURES

This is a day of extreme pressures, or at least everyone is saying that it is. There's economic pressure, political pressure (particularly at this time of the year), social pressure, blood pressure, and nerve pressures. We even have our two and three year olds talking about being nervous.

We say that we are living too fast, that we ought to slow down and take it easy. When these twentieth-century pressures build up, however, we find that it's next to impossible to slow down. Thus, the pressure continues to build. Our trouble, in this day of false dignity and culture, is that we have lost our escape mechanism for the release of this pressure. Just a few decades ago, release was found in a sixty or seventy hour work week. At any rate, everyone agrees that things were different twenty-five years ago.

One thing is sure, man has created these pressures—we have built our own tension-filled world. When we blame the government, or society, or politics, let us remember that each of these consist of men—we make them all. Man, in other words, creates the world in which he lives.

Christians are not totally exempt from these pressures. In fact, he is often caught up in them and thus finds himself in serious conflict. This conflict is always present when the body and soul does not agree with each other. For this reason, each Christian must set his affections on things above—spiritual things. He cannot afford to become entangled with the affairs of this life. Then, too, he must learn to cast every care and burden upon Christ. He invites every soul to do this: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls" (Matthew 11:28, 29).

Christ our Saviour is the perfect and complete answer to man's problems. When we fully accept this truth, we will have the source of release for our inward pressures; we will find rest for our troubled souls.

Stewardship . . .

by Ann Gilbert

I would like to start my declamation on Stewardship by giving you a definition of stewardship and by telling you who is a steward. A steward is a person charged with the administration of the affairs of the true owner. Any person who possesses is a steward because he is using the things which God has lent him. Stewardship means very much what we make it. Most Christian leaders accept the following definition of stewardship: "Christian stewardship is the practice of systematic and proportional giving of time, talents, and material possessions based on the conviction that these are a trust from God to be used in His service for the benefit of all mankind in grateful recognition of His redeeming love."

Stewardship is the main principle of life. It not only is the giving of money, but also the sharing of time, talents, and material possessions to God and earthly people.

Any steward should know how to spend his money in a Christian way. When we give a tenth of our earnings to the church, the church is responsible for spending that one tenth wisely, but we are responsible for spending the other nine tenths wisely. A true steward will seek God's help in the handling of everything entrusted to him, because money management is a sacred thing. God knows there are certain necessities in life; and if we try, He will help us to get them. But God does not look with favor on luxuries which only produce pride, vanity, and selfish ambitions. The Bible teaches us many things about stewardship. Some examples are Psalm 24:1; 1 Corinthians 6:19, 20; and Matthew 25:19.

Each of us as Christians should spend much time in prayer and doing work for the Lord, because as the song says, "The night is coming." If we are Christians, we will want to use our talents and abilities in a way that will be pleasing to our heavenly Father.

God has given every steward a talent for making money. To neglect this talent is to neglect our stewardship. No matter what his occupation is, a faithful steward will give back to God a tenth of everything he makes, no matter how great or how small it may be. The first mention of tithing, or giving a tenth of what one makes, was when Abraham gave to the priest of the Most High God in the Old Testament. In the New Testament, little is said about tithing, except that Christ gave His approval of it.

Miss Gilbert's article was the winner in the State YFA Declamation Contest this year. A rising sophomore at Four Oaks, North Carolina, High School, Ann is quite active in her school and her church, Bethel Free Will Baptist Church. She serves as the church organist, secretary of the YFA, assistant secretary of her Sunday school class, and pianist for the Cape Fear Union.

The purpose of the title is not first to raise money but to build character. In Malachi 3:10, when God said, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse," He was pleading for our tithes. Robert Speer has summed up the reasons for tithing as follows:

"(1) Before the law, Abraham tithed. Under the law, the Jews tithed. To do less under grace would be a disgrace. (2) Men need a practical principle like this to make sure that stewardship is a reality in their lives. (3) God does not need the tithe; but He does need the tither. Men need the tithing for their own good. Experience proves that accepting this principle marks a spiritual advance in the life of a good steward. (4) Tithing protects us from the peril of money worship. (5) Christ gave His approval of a tithe in His commendation to the Jews of the diligence in Matthew 23:23. (6) Tithing provides a sure way of securing regularly the money needed for God's use in the extension of His Kingdom."

Stewardship giving can be a miracle if we make it that. We can support our foreign missionaries with our money and our prayers. It is not for the Christian to leave money out of his life, but rather to dedicate it to the cause of Christ.

A Christian steward can have two methods of acquiring the things he needs and wants: (1) by the favor of others, and (2) through our own personal efforts. We enjoy the things most that we put forth an effort to acquire. We should never be ashamed to tell sinners about God. If we are always shining lights for God, we will influence people for His glory.

If we are good stewards in our churches, the church will be a real blessing to God. The local church is a steward within itself. Its members should be stewards of the gospel. There are three ways that the church has stewardship of power

a good name

by Leah McGlohon
Winterville, North Carolina

WHAT will people think? is a question one often asks himself. Most people want to be accepted by their fellowmen. They are concerned about the concept that other people have about them. Many times, however, they want to look well in the sight of others while behind the scenes they are the exact opposite of what they appear to be.

Shakespeare, whose four hundredth birthday was celebrated in April, had a marvelous grasp of human nature. He left behind many writings that contain a wealth of valid answers to human problems. However, some scholars think that Shakespeare, a glovemaking son with little education, could not possibly know as much as the plays reveal and therefore did not write the plays at all, but that well-educated men such as Francis Bacon, Christopher Marlowe, the Earl of Derby, and the Earl of Oxford wrote them. Because the 16th-century theater was not considered a suitable career for an aristocratic gentleman, they believe that Will Shakespeare was used as a front man. The majority of Shakespearean scholars, however, consider the authorship controversy to be rather childish. But be that as it may, his plays show a greater interpretation of human emotions and more valid answers to human problems than any other collection of literature except for the Bible.

In one of his plays, Othello, the character Iago says:

“Good name in man and woman,
dear my lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls:
Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him
And makes me poor indeed.”

Iago wanted to appear to be a man of reputation, to have a good name; and indeed he did in the eyes of the other characters of the play because he sought to build that idea in their minds. Othello, his superior, said of him, “This fellow's of exceeding honesty.” Iago even said of himself, “I am an honest man.” Yet at the time he was building up his reputation in Othello's mind, he was plotting against him. Though appearing to be an honest man, he was actually a villain. The audience, however, is not left in doubt, because he tells them at the outset that the picture he gives of himself is a false one.

Notwithstanding the fact that Iago's reputation was a false one, his words quoted above are true. They are an echo of the words of the writer of Proverbs: “A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold” (22:1).

What does “a good name” mean? It does not mean the appellation by which one is called; for example, that John is a good name and that Joe may not be. It means one's reputation—the estimation in which one is held, high regard, etc. However, one is not only to have a good name, as Iago, but also to be what that good name says that he is.

The writer of Proverbs says that it is better to have a good name than it is to be rich. Why is it better? It is better because, as Adam Clarke says, “character will support a man in many circumstances; and there are many rich men that have no name: but the word of the man of character will go farther than all their riches.”

Look again at Iago's words, “Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing; 'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands.” A man's riches are not lasting things; before they were his, they belonged to many others; and tomorrow they may belong to someone else.

A person who seeks to destroy one's good name does not profit anything from the deed; instead, he hurts the person's reputation. One who gossips quite often robs people of their good names. Perhaps he does not consciously seek to do so, but unwittingly he does so because he does not take time to separate rumor from fact. Even though there are people who know the people gossiped about well enough to know that the gossip is not true, there are always some gullible souls who believe every juicy tidbit they hear and pass it along to someone else; or though they may have some doubt, they say, “Did you hear . . . ? I don't know whether it's true or not, but Aunt Sally said” Then there are those who always preface their remarks with “I don't mean to be talking about _____, but”; and they proceed to do just that. “You can always be sure that a person who will gossip to you will inevitably gossip about you,” says Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

When one chooses a good name for Jesus' sake, he need not worry about what false things his enemies will say about him because his reward is in heaven. In His Sermon on the Mount, Jesus said, “Blessed are ye, when men shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake” (Luke 6:22; cf. Matthew 5:11, 12).

The speaker was one of nearly 2000 members of the Billy Graham San Diego County Crusade choir who had sung at nine services in ten days. He had been explaining that regular attendance became something of a drag near the end of the Crusade and this was his way of saying that weariness vanished before the spiritual uplift of the service.

Perhaps it was as good a way of expressing it as any other. There must have been thousands of San Diegans, as well as others from all parts of the Southland and some from south of the Border, who felt the same uplift, the same urge. For they went back to Balboa Stadium night after night, some of them with friends, some with their families, many of them alone.

At the end 180,000 of them had heard the evangelist proclaim the Gospel and 8690 of them had signed decision cards. For many of them the experience was like lighting a candle in a gale. The tiny flame lighted in their hearts will flicker and in some cases may be extinguished. But there are others for whom the flame lighted in that windswept stadium will become a blazing torch to light their own way and that of others about them.

What did they see in the stadium? They saw a Crusade that was in some ways like any other Billy Graham Crusade, but in others as different from the normal pattern as night differs from day.

It is difficult to escape the feeling that God allows the "Prince of this World" to test Billy and his Team at intervals—as He allowed Satan to try the faith of Job. Perhaps San Diego was one of those arenas where faith is put to the test, and from which true faith emerges victorious.

From the outset the weather, carefully studied in advance, was against the Crusade. For seven days the boasted California sunshine was a negligible quantity. A chill wind swept across the stadium. A drizzle of rain fell at intervals during each day—just enough to threaten and to discourage the fainthearted. For only the second time in 12 years the weather forced cancellation of a Crusade service.

Before the Crusade began there was a published story that hinted that the Executive Committee might have difficulty in meeting its budget, a deterrent for those who use the offering as an excuse for absence.

What was the outcome? Once again the Crusade Committee and the Team came face to face with the promise of the Almighty: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts" (Zechariah 4:6).

On Monday, May 4, the first Youth Night, 19,000 persons, thousands of them under 25 years of age, braved the chilly, intermittent rain. They sat huddled under blankets, shared raincoats and ignored the water that poured from gaily colored umbrellas. Some folded their arms and sat in stolid indifference without any shelter from the rain. But all of them watched the speaker intently and only a few left the stadium for drier quarters.

GRAHAM CRUSADE VICTORY IN SAN DIEGO

"But when you got there, it was the only place you wanted to be."

When Billy gave the invitation, he first suggested that the inquirers stand in their places because of the wetness of the infield.

Then, suddenly, he altered the procedure. Perhaps he sensed the inner compulsion which had sent many of the inquirers into the aisles before he made his concession to the weather. Perhaps the Holy Spirit spoke to his finely tuned "spiritual ears" to use his own phrase,

In any case his voice rang out suddenly: "Go ahead and come forward even if it is raining. It will be an experience you'll never forget."

They came—1100 of them—to stand in the rain and pray, to sign decision cards—many of them wet and hard to decipher—and then to trudge homeward as the rain ceased, with a new light in their eyes and a new purpose in their tread.

A wise man once said: "You cannot confine the Holy Spirit with rules and regulations. He will speak to whom He will, when He will, and as He will."

As though to prove this truth, there was the second Youth Night—Thursday, May 7—the night following the cancellation, with the sky still cloudy and the wind still chilly. On that night the attendance reached 21,000 and 1634 inquirers, most of them young people, signed decision cards.

The number of inquirers represented 7.78 per cent of the audience—the largest response percentage-wise at a regular Crusade service in the United States and more than double the 3.19 per cent average around the world.

In only one service of the Crusade did the number of inquirers drop below 4 per cent of the audience. For the nine services the average response represented 4.83 per cent of the attendance.

Before the end of the Crusade the Executive Committee was able to announce that its budget had been met and that funds from the offerings had been voted as a gift to the Hour of Decision radiocast.

Once again the "arm of the Lord" had been revealed. Throughout the Southland men and women—some of whom had doubted—looked upward and outward and said aloud: "This is the Lord's doing and it is marvellous in our eyes." —Crusade News Bureau.

Cherry Resigns Hopewell Pastorate

The Rev. Roland C. Cherry, pastor of Hopewell Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Smithfield, North Carolina, has resigned his pastorate, effective September 1. He feels that his work at Hopewell is complete at this time.

A minister in good standing with the North Carolina State Convention and a member of the Cape Fear Conference, he has served as president of the Cape Fear Sunday School Convention for the past two years and as chairman of the Ordaining Council of the Cape Fear Conference for the past three years.

During his ministry at Hopewell the church has experienced a steady growth. At the present time the Sunday school has an enrollment of 206; the woman's auxiliary, 39; the YFA, 37; and the AFC, 21. The church also has the fellowship of a good brotherhood. It has a nice parsonage, which is debt free, and a new Sunday school annex which has just been completed.

Mr. Cherry expresses thanks to God for the many souls saved and for the many friends he has learned to love and appreciate in the four years of his pastorate at Hopewell.

Any church desiring a full-time pastor may contact him by phone, WE 4-4974, or write him at Route 1, Smithfield, North Carolina.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, God, our loving Father, in the light of His wisdom and in the magnitude of His power, has removed from our chain of friendship a shining link and has added it to the friendship chain of His kingdom; and

WHEREAS, Circle Number Two of the Woman's Auxiliary of Saint Mary's Free Will Baptist Church of New Bern, North Carolina, has sustained a great loss in the death of our dear sister, Jenny Owens, whose departure we so deeply feel and whose life has been an example of Christian fortitude both to her family and to her friends; therefore be it

Resolved, that we eulogize her memory by trying to bring into our own lives that sweetness and beauty and spirit of faithfulness that made her life a worthy pattern for our emulation; and be it further

Resolved, that we spread upon the records of our auxiliary these resolutions and that we send a copy to the Free Will Baptist paper and that we send to the members of her family a copy of them in order to show her loved ones the high esteem in which we hold her life and her memory.

One by one the links are severed
From the golden chain of life;
One by one our auxiliary's forming
In the Father's house above.

Let our deeds be pure and noble
May our lives be not in vain
So that when the links are welded,
Complete will be the chain.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. W. J. Gaskins, Chairman
Mrs. D. W. Hancock
Mrs. Alvin Stille

EDGEWOOD AUXILIARY HONORS CHARTER MEMBER

At its regular meeting on May 4, the Woman's Auxiliary of Edgewood Free Will Baptist Church near Fountain, North Carolina, honored Mrs. C. F. Abrams, a charter member. Twenty-two members, six visitors, and two new members were present for the meeting.

Before the special service honoring Mrs. Abrams, the monthly program and regular business meeting were held. Mrs. Raymond Webb called the meeting to order, after which Mesdames Rufus Harrell, C. F. Abrams, and Max Gardner sang "My Mother's Bible." Those taking part on the program, "The Touch of a Wise Mother," were Mesdames Gardner, Sylvia Edmundson, and J. T. Trevathan. During the business session the auxiliary voted to give $1 per member for the Mother's Day offering for the Children's Home.

Mrs. Harrell conducted the service honoring Mrs. Abrams as their "Queen Mother of the Year." She read an account of Mrs. Abrams life, "This Is Your Life, Minnie." Among the highlights of her life mentioned were the facts that she has played the piano, has taught Sunday school, and is the member of the auxiliary that has the longest record of service.

Mrs. Abrams was given a charm bracelet with the following charms: church, piano, diploma, and teacher's award. Mrs. Albert Summerlin, vice-president, presented a corsage to her, the only charter member.

Refreshments were then served by the hostess, Mrs. Ben Harrell.

Ayden, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Gracie Dennis for its April meeting. The meeting was called to order by the president, and "Lead Me to Some Soul Today" was sung by members present. Scripture was read from Philippians 4:8-13, and Mrs. Rosa Murphy led the opening prayer.

Fourteen members responded to the roll call; two visitors were present. During the business period the various chairmen gave their reports. Motions were passed to send $20 to the Children's Home and to give Diane Roach, state winner of the declamation contest, $5 on her trip to Cragmont.

Mrs. Norman Ard gave the program, "But There's Nothing I Can Do!" After the program Mrs. Elma Beddard prayed the benediction.

Newport, N. C.—The Sound View Free Will Baptist women met Tuesday night, May 12, at the home of Mrs. L. Ward. Fifteen members and two visitors were present.

For the devotions the group sang "My Mother's Bible," Mrs. Ward read the Scripture, and Donna Pagent sang a solo.

Mrs. Hattie Heath, program chairman, introduced the program. Mrs. Bessie Peltier, Mrs. Fannie Hall, and Mrs. Heath took part on the program.

After the program, items of business were discussed. Plans were made for the vacation Bible school, and Geneva Ward was elected as reporter. The Lord's Prayer was prayed for the benediction.

Bladenboro, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church held its May meeting, May 12, at the home of Mrs. Ada Wilson. Thirteen members and one visitor were present.

After the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Nancy Hardee, a program was given on "Mother." Those taking part were Mesdames Bonnie Dove, Martie Russ, Lucille Bryan, and Lonise Smith. Following the Mizpah benediction, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Vivian Hester served pimento cheese sandwiches, cookies, and coffee.

On April 27 the auxiliary met at the church for a study course on the manual. Nine members were present for this study.

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

Some Explanations

by John B. Elliston

It seems that there are quite a few misunderstandings about Mexico; and I fear that the greater part of them can be paid to our, the missionaries to Mexico, account. I fear that in our endeavor to be brief, we often make statements which cause a false impression of Mexico. For instance, in a recent issue of the "Baptist" I made a statement concerning Fabian's working in Magdalena which lends itself very easily to misinterpretation. The fact that certain Mexican officials do make it hard for Christians in Mexico is not because that is the official position of Mexico, but the officials themselves are out of line.

On one occasion, a Romanist immigration officer on the Mexican gate took away my passport on the grounds that I was attending "Aleluya" churches in Mexico. I immediately went to a lawyer friend of mine in Mexico, who is a professor of history in the University of Sonora in Hermosillo, as well as being a judge of the Supreme Court of Sonora. He told me that the official had been in error; and he wrote a letter to Jesus Maria Soto, the chief of immigration here in Nogales, Sonora. I went to Mr. Soto and explained the situation. He told me plainly that the officer had been in the wrong. The Constitution of Mexico guarantees religious freedom to all the Mexican people. There are no governmental restrictions on the number of denominations which can operate in Mexico, nor on the names which they may use. In Sonora there are a great number of churches called Bautista Libre, or Free Baptist, which have no connection with each other; but each of them is what the name implies, free of others. We are having a modicum of success in affiliating some of these independent churches in our movement. As far as I know, we are the only Iglesia Bautista de la Voluntad Libre, or Free Will Baptist, in Mexico. However, there may be many others, and there certainly is no governmental restriction concerning them.

Mr. Soto also carefully explained, as Mr. Camacho had done previously, that a tourist visiting in Mexico is at perfect liberty to attend any church service in any church of whatever denomination without fear from the government of Mexico. In Mexico there is religious freedom. If the congregation so wants, the tourist is at perfect liberty to speak or preach in the services of the church. However, the tourist is prohibited from receiving money for his services in the church, which would constitute working for monetary gain in Mexico. The tourist visa plainly states that the tourist is not to engage in any lucrative activities in Mexico. This is the restriction, that the tourist cannot engage in any activities which will bring him money from Mexico.

Concerning the church property in Mexico, as I explained in an earlier article, all church property in Mexico automatically belongs to the government. The congregation has perfect liberty to use the property for church purposes, but the church is not to engage in commerce or agriculture or other activities for gain. The churches are strongly enjoined from engaging in any form of political activity. In my opinion this is a very good restriction. The job of the church is evangelism, not politics or social betterment.

I hope that this clarifies some of the problems in the minds of some of the readers. If any of you preachers wish to visit Mexico and preach in our churches without pay, you will be completely within the law in doing so. You may be molested by some Romanist officials; but they will be in the wrong, not you. Moreover, I wish to invite all of you to come and visit the churches and missions here and to preach in them for one service or for a complete revival campaign. In this way you may see at first hand the conditions prevailing in Mexico.

Brother Dick Shade and Bud Beck, from Oklahoma and Arkansas respectively, were with us a couple of years back and conducted such revival efforts here in Nogales, as well as 45 miles down into Mexico in Imuris. More recently, Brother Shade conducted a series of services in Monterrey, Nuevo Leon, Mexico, with Brother Billows, there. In so doing, he was completely within the law, just so long as he didn't receive compensation from the Mexican congregation for so doing.

Please come and visit us when you have the opportunity. Until then, know for sure that the greatest drawback to a very progressive program of missions in Mexico is in the lack of money and workers. We need more workers, both American and Mexican, but to have the workers, we must have financial support. We have had many workers come here, and then have to leave the field because of lack of support. And we always need your prayers. As Alfred Lord Tennyson said in the Idylls of the King, "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

However, it is a long pull. It is not something that can be done overnight. We need persons dedicated to the task, though it take many years. Remember that the United States is still in the process of evangelization (I fear in a losing battle) after these 350 years. The program of evangelization of Mexico must take all our lives, and then many years to come. How many of you will dedicate yourselves to the task, either to give or to go? How many of you will dedicate yourselves to pray everyday? We would appreciate hearing from you. The address is: Arizona-Mexico Missions, P. O. Box 550, Nogales, Arizona 85621.

Is not this our glorious privilege? And is it not the very purpose of God in our lives here on this earth?

The people of Mexico have seen religion; but if it is empty of the reality, the purity, the grace, peace, and love in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, where shall they see Him?

Recently the Fiesta of Christ the King was celebrated with bingo, dancing in the street, drinking and eating, buying and selling. Were some of these dear people really wanting Jesus, and were their hearts aching with disappointment? We may (continued on page thirteen)

AN ANSWER TO PRAYER

"Preacher, why is it that God will not hear and answer my prayers?" asked a lady of me one day. The answer is that everytime we fail to get what we ask God for, there is a cause. There are several things that get between us and God that hinder God from doing what we want Him to do. We are naming some of these things that hinder God from saying yes to our petitions.

First, unforgiven sin in our life hinders. Often Christians pray for others without first confessing their sins to God. It is written, "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me" (Psalm 66:18). Why? The reason is that if God were to answer our petitions before we confess our sins, He would be endorsing our sins. God is holy, and a holy God cannot endorse sin in any way; but when we confess our sins with a "broken heart and a contrite spirit" (Psalm 51:17), God is always ready to answer our prayers; and with a "broken heart and a contrite spirit" we can sacrifice to the pleasure of God. There are many other reasons why God does not answer our prayers.

Second, a lack of faith hinders. It is written, "But without faith it is impossible to please him (God)." We must believe that God is going to answer. "From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? Ye lust, and have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that you may consume it upon your lusts" (James 4:1-3). Our prayers must not be selfish. We must draw near to God. Many of us live so faraway from God that it takes a lot of confessing of sins and true repentance before we can get into the spirit of prayer. Often we are so close to Satan that he can attract our minds from God and get us to thinking about ourselves and our problems apart from God.

There is a story told about a little boy who was down beside his bed praying, and a little sister slipped up and tickled the bottom of his feet. The boy jumped up and said, "Lord, excuse me until I can whip Sister; and I will finish my prayer." Whether or not this is a true story, I do not know; but it is just like Satan to perform such acts to draw our minds away from God and our fellowship with our Lord.

I heard the late Bob Self say that when he was building the West Asheville Free Will Baptist church, known as Horney Heights, he was up on the hill behind the church praying for success in the building of the house of God. At the same time he was building the church, he was building himself a home not faraway. While he was praying, Satan looked over his shoulder and said, "Bob, if I were you, I would put two fireplaces in your home instead of one." So Bob had to say, "Get thee behind me, Satan." It is a fact that if Satan can direct our minds away from God and get them on something else, we just as well get up and read some of the Word of God and make another trial.

Third, we fail to forgive others. We must forgive those who sin against us, those that despitefully use us. Perhaps this is about the hardest thing that a Christian can attempt. But Christ says, "Do it." For instance, there is the person who has lied against you. He has slandered your name; he has cheated you; perhaps he has sued you at law by making false claims and has done his best to destroy you. Let me say again, it is a hard thing to pray for that person. I preached sometime ago in our church where I am pastor and used this Scripture, "Pray for your enemies." A little girl who had accepted and confessed Christ as Saviour said to me at the door, "Must I pray for Khrushchev?" My answer was, "Yes, but don't pray for him to carry out his murderous purpose. Pray that somehow God will show Khrushchev that he is a lost sinner and doomed for hell unless he repents and accepts Christ as Saviour and Lord."

The Bible says that God ". . . is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). So if a man tells a lie on you, pray for him by asking God to convict that man or that woman for the sin of lying. For all liars are to have their part in the lake of fire and brimstone, which is the second death (Revelation 21:8). We have all kinds of liars. We have political liars, business liars, religious liars, etc. Just before I was ordained to the gospel ministry, I heard a preacher preach; and he said, "I have not asked God to forgive me for a sin in fourteen years, for I have not sinned in fourteen years." But after I was ordained to the ministry, I was called to the community where this preacher lived; I found no one who would agree with that preacher's statement. So I was forced to believe that the preacher had twisted the truth. Let us see what John says about the matter: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). Verse 10 says, "If we say we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us." So that preacher lied against God's Word.

After consulting the Word of God, I find that the best of us need to have the spirit of the Lord toward our fellowman. God does not forgive everyone that sins against him, but he stands ready to forgive as soon as the sinner goes to him in true repentance. The sinner must see his sin and go to God in the name of Jesus Christ. If a man treats me in an unchristian way, I am not obligated to run him down to try to get him to confess his sin; but I must have the spirit of my Christ that at any time that man comes asking forgiveness, I should forgive. I must forgive him.

Several years ago when some of the people wanted to move the orphanage, which is the Children's Home now, to Ayden, some of the members of the denomination got angry and said some hard things about those who were their opponents. One of the men who said some mighty hard things about those with whom he did not agree was mad with me for about two years. Finally we met in the home of one of our friends; and while at the dining table, this brother said, "Brother Griffin, I want to beg your pardon for what I said about you when the issue was up about moving the orphanage to Ayden." My reply was, "I have been ready to do this all the time. I was not mad with you then and am not now. The forgiveness is granted."

Unless you forgive, you cannot be forgiven. Jesus said, "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you: But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses" (Matthew 6:14, 15).

A man may have all kinds of college degrees, but they won't give him a ticket to heaven. He must have Christ.—Walter E. Isenhour.

Questions & Answers

QUESTION: Will you please help me to locate in Egyptian history the 40 years of desolation as prophesied in Ezckiel 29: 13-16? "Yet thus saith the Lord GOD; At the end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians from the people whither they were scattered; And I will bring again the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their habitation; and they shall be there a base kingdom. It shall be the basest of the kingdoms; neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations: for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations. And it shall be no more the confidence of the house of Israel, which bringeth their iniquity to remembrance, when they shall look after them: but they shall know that I am the Lord GOD."—May Jones, Texas.

ANSWER: It is quite difficult to locate these years of desolation in Egyptian history, partly because we do not have access to a complete history of the events of that ancient land however important to a full understanding of parts of the Bible they may be. It may be that in the future archeologists will come across data that will shed more light on the wonders of that ancient kingdom of so great renown.

Some scholars say that this prophecy refers to a period far in the future and after the millennium; but it would seem, I think, from this passage that the forty years referred to are already history. Sometimes, however, passages of Scripture of this nature have a double reference. For several millenniums Egypt's history brands her as the "basest of the kingdoms," and before the rise of the Roman Empire she must have experienced forty years of the most outstanding of judgments from God.

When the Israelites came out of Egypt under the leadership of Moses, they had given them by God some very strict regulations concerning their relations to Gentile nations. They were to completely destroy all the Canaanite nations and were to never look back or return in any way to Egypt. But they came far short in their keeping of such a commandment from Almighty God. While Moses was on Mount Sinai receiving the Ten Commandments, the Israelites whom he left below demanded of Aaron and he made them a golden calf to worship. This was a form of Egyptian idolatry they were entering into which was a direct violation of God's requirements. Then later in the journey they organized a group to return to Egypt before half of the forty years in the wilderness were passed. For this act of disobedience God destroyed a large segment of them, including what appeared to be some of their best and most seasoned leaders. Then in Solomon's day the king took a queen from among the daughters of Pharaoh, and in Jeremiah's day the Israelites made treaties with Egypt; and finally in another direct disobedience and a militant defiance of God's instructions from Jeremiah, they forced him into Egypt with them as political exiles rather than to take the temporary punishment Jehovah had planned at the hands of Nebuchadnezzar. The result was as God had warned them: those who willing went into Egypt never returned; whereas, those carried to Babylon were given this opportunity at the end of their seventy-year sentence from Jehovah. Even though Egypt has caused much trouble among the nations in recent years, yet she has not gained the international status she enjoyed among her ancient neighbors; and I doubt that she ever will. She may be as obnoxious; and, I think, so far as she is able, she has shown her obnoxious spirit in recent years; but instead of the great leader of nations and a place of renown she enjoyed in antiquity, she is one of the nations caught between the powerful nations of the world and will remain in this hot spot for awhile yet to come.

BOYS and GIRLS

MIRRORS FOR AMY

Muriel Larson

AMY was just about ready to go to Sunday School. She stood in front of her mother for one last check. The face that looked back at her was prime and plain. She smiled a proud little smile as she tucked a stray wisp of hair into the neat bun on the back of her neck. "I am just what a Christian woman should be," she thought with satisfaction.

She could hear her husband George shaving in the next room. She went to the door of the twins' room. "Mary . . . Martha . . . are you girls ready to go yet?" she asked.

"In a few minutes, Mother," answered Mary.

Amy sat down to wait. She thought about her girls—it was when she was about their age that she had accepted Jesus Christ as her personal Saviour. How long ago that seemed now! And yet the memory was as fresh as yesterday . . .

What a gay young thing she had been at the age of 17! Engaged in most of the pursuits of the world, she and her "crowd" were admired by the freshmen and sophomores for their sophistication and leadership. Then there came the night they had gone to a revival meeting at the church where they occasionally attended Sunday School. They had all gone with the outward intention of finding something to make fun of—it was just another lark!

But the evangelist was young and good-looking. When he got up to sing a special number, Amy nudged her best friend, Claire. "Say, isn't he handsome?" she giggled. "And what a voice!"

"You can say that again!" exclaimed Claire under her breath. "I want to meet him at the end of the service!"

The evangelist turned out to be an interesting speaker also; and Amy, as well as her friends, listened to the Gospel, about how Jesus Christ had died for sinners. At the invitation Amy and her friends all went forward. Amy wasn't sure whether she went forward because of the prick of the Gospel at her heart, or because her friends went forward, or because she wanted to meet the evangelist and talk with him.

All of them but Amy were baptized and joined the church the following Sunday. For some reason Amy held back. Now they were members of the church in good standing, and for several weeks they all had the new "kick" of feeling religious. This didn't keep them for long, however; and when the school had its homecoming dance, they were all back in their old stride again.

Amy continued to feel the prick that had started bothering her during the revival meetings. She continued running with the same crowd, but felt a certain satisfaction that she hadn't gotten baptized and joined the church when they did, for she knew in her heart it would have made her a hypocrite.

"Say, Amy, why didn't you get baptized and join the church, too?" asked her friend, Claire, one day.

"Well, I just didn't think I was ready," Amy hedged.

"You were as ready as any of us," commented Claire.

"That's just it," answered Amy. "Do you really think any of you were ready? I haven't noticed any change in your lives . . . any more than in mine! We all go on living the same old way, as if nothing really happened to us when we walked down the aisle. And I don't think anything did!"

"What makes you say that?" asked Claire. "The rest of us did get baptized and joined the church. Don't you think that was evidence of something?"

"Well, let's be honest, Claire," continued Amy. "Our 'crowd' is always doing something new for 'kicks,' and that's why I think we all went forward that night. But the preacher says that if anyone is 'in Christ,' he becomes a new creature. Do you think that happened to any of us? Are we 'new creatures' in Christ?"

"Oh, you sound like a fanatic or something!" Claire exploded. "Cut out your philosophizing. No one in the 'crowd' will appreciate it!"

Amy kept quiet from then on about the subject, but the gnawing feeling in her heart continued. A growing sense of sinfulness and repulsion at some of the things she was doing filled her. She dreaded going to evangelistic meetings and yet something drew her irresistibly to them. Whenever the invitation was given, however, she held back from going forward. After all, everyone thought she was already a Christian now.

Then she was invited to a cottage prayer meeting. While they were praying for lost souls to be saved, Amy broke down completely and confessed her need to really receive Christ as her Saviour. The others at the prayer meeting joyfully gathered around her and prayed with her as she asked Christ to save her soul.

Now she was truly "a new creature in Christ." She was baptized and joined the church, and began witnessing to her friends. But they couldn't seem to understand, or perhaps they didn't want to. Amy found herself drawn into fellowship with a new group of fellows and girls, a group that seemed to love Christ as she did, and whose tastes were more in harmony with the way she wanted to live her life now.

In the first surging joy of her regeneration she wanted to renounce the world for her Lord. Anything that she thought would be displeasing to Him she wanted to put away. If someone whom she thought was a good Christian told her something was wrong, she put that away. And in the gradual process of giving things up for Christ, she somehow lost sight of her purpose and found that it gave her a particular feeling of holiness to add to her list of "don't's."

Now she was just about the epitome of perfection. Amy could think of no one in the church quite as holy as she was. Even the pastor and the deacons did some things that Amy frowned upon.

George and the twins were ready to go finally and they all went to Sunday School. After Sunday School they always waited the 15 minutes between in order to go to church, too. Amy and the girls were standing in the back of the church when she came in.

She made her lonely way up the aisle to a seat halfway down and sat down by herself in a long vacant pew. Besides having seen the girl the week before, Amy thought there was something familiar about her. With a pang Amy realized that the girl looked very much like herself when she was that age—and on the girl's face was a lonely, lost, seeking look. "Martha," Amy whispered, "why don't you girls go sit with that young girl that just came in? She looks lonesome."

Martha stared at her mother in horror. "Mother!" she exclaimed. "You want Mary and me to associate with a made-up floozie like her? Why, she runs with one of the wildest crowds at school! Really, Mother, you couldn't be serious!" Before Amy could answer, Mary and Martha had taken off to join some of their youth group near the front of the church.

Amy stood stunned for a minute, staring after her daughters. Why, they seemed not to care for that girl's soul at all! She suddenly realized that her daughters were reflecting her own self-righteous attitude. Her own words of the previous week came ringing back to her, "What is a worldly creature like that doing in our church?" But this week she was seeing that lost lonely young girl through the eyes of her own past. . .

Amy bowed her head as a stab of remorse hit her heart. "Oh, Lord," she cried, "forgive me for being so holy in my own sight, that I lost sight of Thy true holiness and love for the lost! I forgot the love You had for me when I was just like that young girl—and You saved me, just as I was! And oh, the patience you've had with me since I was saved! Forgive me, Lord, for my pride and replace it with Thy humility and love for the lost and fellow Christians!"

The prelude for the morning service was being played softly on the organ. It was an arrangement of "Rescue the Perishing." Amy walked down the aisle to where the girl was sitting, and went in the pew to sit beside her. Putting her arm gently about the girl, she whispered, "We're very happy to have you with us again today, my dear!"

The girl turned grateful eyes on Amy. "Thank you," she answered simply.

Amy's heart was filled with a strange warmth. She had the feeling that God had already started to draw this precious soul to Him, and before long the angels in heaven . . . and Amy . . . would be rejoicing.—Gospel Herald.

be sure some have looked in vain for years, for that is the testimony of many who have found the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

Some few days ago I preached to a crowded group of people gathered in a home in the mining city of Nueva Rosita, Mexico. Their desire was to know more about the Christ that we Free Will Baptists preach. Some thirty miles from this town are the Kickapoo Indians without the gospel, waiting for us to tell them also. We now have a new mission in the Monterrey area and an ordained Free Will Baptist Mexican pastor there. At the present time he is preaching without support. The Rev. Antonia Lopez Martinez is working in an area of Monterrey that is many miles away from any gospel work. He is standing in your stead in Mexico with the Bible as his only message. Our mission area in Mexico is beginning to feel the beginning of revival. Continue to pray for us.

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson FOR JUNE 7

Christians Face a Needy World

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 25:31-40

MEMORY VERSE: 1 John 3:17

I. INTRODUCTION

Willingness to help a fellowman in need is one of the basic principles of Christianity. The Lord Jesus himself has let it be known that service rendered to the needy is the same as service rendered unto Himself. When we come to think about it we are sure to realize that God cannot be benefited by any service that we render unto Him. We cannot increase His power; we cannot increase His knowledge; we cannot increase His wealth; but we can glorify His name in the hearts of mankind by the rendering of service to His creatures.

There are several reasons why we should render service to our fellowmen when such service is needed: it gives us the feeling that we are doing something that is worthwhile; it gives us the opportunity of showing our love for the brethren; and it gives us great pleasure to render obedience to the commandment of God. In addition to these, it gives unto us the opportunity of building friendships that will stand us in good stead in the day of adversity.—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

The lesson text shows two things: the importance of being concerned about others and the importance of doing something for the welfare of others before the coming of the Lord.

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The Lord Jesus Christ will bring His holy angels with Him when He returns in His glory to judge the nations (v. 31).

2. All the nations of the earth shall appear before Him to be separated one from another as a shepherd divides the sheep from the goats (v. 32).

3. The godly, called sheep here, will be placed on His right hand, signifying a place of honor; but the ungodly will be put on the left (v. 33).

4. He who exercises the role of a shepherd suddenly appears as the King here (v. 34).

5. The King makes known the reward which is due those who shall have rendered specific services to Him through the poor saints (vv. 34-36).

6. He invites them to inherit the kingdom which has been prepared for them from the foundation of the world (v. 34).

7. The righteous express their feeling of unworthiness of so many wonderful blessings (vv. 37-39).

8. The King reckons service done to the poor and needy saints as service rendered to Him (v. 40).

9. Wherever there is a needy person, there is an opportunity for the righteous to render a service to Christ (v. 40).

10. Christ calls the least of these His brethren (v. 40).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. A national organization engaged in benevolent work has as its motto one word: "Inasmuch." Taken from Matthew 25:31-46, this is a key word in Jesus' explanation why in the judgment men will be divided into two groups: the sheep and the goats.

Jesus said the righteous ministered to other persons, but in so doing they minister to Christ himself. Among other things, the righteous gave drink to the thirsty. They provided clothing for the naked. The sick were visited and cared for. The righteous did not stop with this kind of service. When strangers, homeless and friendless, arrived in their midst, the righteous took them in and provided shelter for them. The righteous also did what they could to relieve the burden of monotony of those in prison. By visiting them they provided encouragement and companionship to prisoners. Many times the righteous fed the hungry, providing nourishment for their physical bodies.

To those who refused to render these services, Jesus in the judgment will say, "Depart from me, ye cursed." But inasmuch as the righteous performed these deeds of loving service in the name of the Lord, He will extend to them a gracious invitation: "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you." — Standard Commentary

2. It should be pointed out that the judgment spoken about here is a judgment of nations and not of individuals. The nations will be judged according to their treatment of Christ's brethren who are the Jews. However, in order to get the greatest emphasis on the subject for the lesson, we are going to use this passage to refer to the judgment in general terms.

What would you think about a person who checked into a hotel and enjoyed all the service and benefits that the establishment had to offer and then one day he starts to leave and the manager presents him with a bill and he naively asks, "What is this?" You would say the man is a fool. He should know that he would receive a bill. He should know that there will come a reckoning time. What about the individual who enjoys all the blessings that God has to offer in this world and then expects to check out at the end of his life without having to give an account of himself. The judgment is a certain fact that has to be reckoned with.

A second fact that we need to remember about the judgment is that Christ will be the Judge. Now He is the Saviour who offers himself to all who will believe upon His name. But when He comes back to this earth, He will come as a judge, and the very ones that reject Him now will be judged by Him.

Our Scripture pictures the nations and individuals as being judged by their treatment of others. The fact that the only way we can serve God is by serving others is emphasized. God is not here in the flesh. He does not need a burnt offering made to Him, but He does have people here on this earth and we can serve Him only as we serve our fellowman. This is a truth that we need to learn.

One of the great truths in the Bible is this—the dignity and worth of every human being. If you were to ask any church member if he believed this he would reply in the affirmative; but watch him. Does he look down his nose at some people as if they did not have worth? Does he act as if some people were not worthy of his notice? Many of the world's problems would be solved if we really believed in the dignity and worth of every person and then acted on this belief.

Lest anyone misunderstand, it should be pointed out that our destiny for eternity is not decided by our helping other people. Our destiny is determined by what we do with the Lord Jesus Christ. Men will receive rewards for other things, but our destiny is decided by this one thing.

There are many things that we should do as Christians, and if we do not do them we lose the joy that comes from doing them in this world and the rewards that the Master gives for them in the world to come. Helping the needy is one of these things. We should do this. But we should never confuse this with being saved.—Advance Quarterly (F.W.B.).

3. Ours is a needy world. It has been estimated that a third of this world's children go to bed hungry every night. Many are orphans, homeless, diseased and suffering. Yet in America we are confronted with the task of what to do with our surpluses! Seemingly we have too much of everything.

A missionary home on furlough was invited to dinner at a famous summer resort where he met many women of prominence. Afterward he wrote a letter to his wife describing the dinner at the hotel. He said, "The company was distinguished. There were some who wore, to my certain knowledge, one church, 40 cottage orphans and 20 libraries." In his desire to provide the Gospel for hungry millions, that missionary could not refrain from estimating the value of the silks, satins and diamonds of the dinner guests in terms of what they would purchase on the mission field.

Abundant harvests and sufficient resources are a trust. Sharing them with the needy and helpless, and the hungry and homeless of other lands is a privilege and a duty. A wise man observed, "When man considers the wealth and marvelous sublimity of the divine nature, and the manifold gifts He grants and offers to His creatures, amazement is stirred up in his spirit at the sight of so manifold a wealth and majesty; at the sight of the immense faithfulness of God to all His creatures."

Two ladies passing down the street noticed a box marked by the Salvation Army for a free Christmas dinner for the poor. One of the ladies paused and dropped a generous donation into the box. "Oh, I remember! You promised them something the other day," laughed

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

TO: The Free Will Baptists of North Carolina

Greetings:

Today we received from a well-known Free Will Baptist minister a personal gift in the amount of $100 and a letter which contained the following statement:

"Burkette, my heart's desire is that Mount Olive College will reach the heights that you are working for. Without Mount Olive College our work for Christian Education in North Carolina will go down in defeat. . . . I had rather die in the County Home than for Mount Olive Olive College to suffer." (Undersecretary added)

This is the kind of dedication God has used to build for Free Will Baptists the only fully accredited college in the history of our church.

Sunday, May 31, will be "Mount Olive College Day" in North Carolina. Unless our churches reach their quotas to the general fund, our college will suffer, and it will suffer badly. Will you not use May 31 as an occasion to lead your church and Sunday school in making a liberal contribution for the Christian education of our children.

"Not for me, but for my brethren; not for mine own self, but for the human race."

Sincerely yours,
W. Burkette Raper

her friend. "Now your conscience is clear." The other lady was astonished. "I wasn't thinking about my conscience, but about those hungry people," she exclaimed. "Compassion" is not only a word, but it is also a state of mind and of heart. Jesus had compassion, we are told, when He looked upon the people as sheep without a shepherd. "I have compassion on the multitude" should be our attitude also.—Senior Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

Mount Olive College Graduation Schedule

Graduation activities at Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, North Carolina, this year will include a commencement sermon by the Rev. Michael R. Pelt, chairman of the department of religion at Mount Olive College, and a graduation address by Bonnie D. Sawyer, attorney from Hillsboro, North Carolina.

The commencement sermon will be on Saturday, May 30, at 8 p. m. in the First Baptist Church of Mount Olive. It will mark the first time in the history of the college that the commencement sermon has been held as a separate service.

Pelt, a member of the college faculty since 1957, is now on sabbatical leave at Duke University for doctoral studies. He holds B. A. degree from Troy State College, Alabama, and the B. D. degree from Duke Divinity School.

Sawyer, who will deliver the graduation address on Sunday, May 31, at 4 p. m. in the college auditorium, is a native of Pamlico County, North Carolina. He attended the Free Will Baptist Seminary of Ayden, Oak Ridge Military Institute, and the University of North Carolina.

He is currently serving as president of the N. C. State Bar Association. He holds membership in Rock of Zion Free Will Baptist Church, Grantsboro.

All friends of the college are cordially invited to attend these events.

DIRECTORS TO MEET

The Mount Olive College Board of Directors will hold its spring meeting Thursday, May 28, at 1 p. m. in the community room of the Bank of Mount Olive.

er: (1) prayer power, (2) money power, and (3) influence power.

Every church should have a worthy budget for missions, local expenses, and pastor's pay. First Corinthians 14:40 says, "Let all things be done decently and in order." An enlistment program to reach each new member should be a regular function of every church. Exodus 18:20 says, "And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do."

There are many other things we must do in order to make stewardship effective and to be good stewards. But, if we seek to do God's will, we will do all things better.

Money itself is not an evil; it's the love of it and the way it is used. When used right it is a great blessing.—Walter E. Isehour.

Among the business to be considered will be the building program for the new campus, the 1964-65 college budget, and personnel appointments.

On the Light Side

Did you hear about the Baptist pastor from Texas who was visiting Florida during the time of the drought that hit Texas in the '50's? Someone asked him how they were getting along without water in his home state. "It's so bad," he replied, "that the Baptists are sprinkling, the Methodists are using a damp cloth, and the Presbyterians are taking a rain check."

"Some people have a sense of humor that doesn't make sense to anyone else."—Selected.

1964 GRADUATES

At this time of the year, our thoughts and prayers turn to the hundreds and thousands of young people who will be graduating from the high schools and colleges throughout America. For each of them it is a very special time in their lives. The excitement of graduation will be something they will never forget. The commencement and baccalaureate messages may fade from their memories with the passing of the years, but other thoughts and memories will live forever.

The graduate will not forget the feeling of joy mingled with the feeling of regret. The high school graduate is relieved to know that twelve years of training and learning are coming to an end. Yet, he regrets having to part with classmates who have been such close friends. The college graduate shares similar feelings, but for him life seems more certain—he has charted his course in life. He has matured to the point of a determined willingness to face life even though he does not know what lies ahead.

Graduates of the year, 1964, are fortunate in many ways. They are fortunate in that life in this complex age offers a real challenge. Never before has the door of opportunity been opened so wide. Never has a generation been so challenged in every sphere of life. He is fortunate in that so many things have been laid at his feet by those who have preceded him. The 1964 graduate must not, and should not, feel that there is no place for him. There is much to do, and the graduate who looks will find a place.

Economists tell us that our nation's economy is on the uprise. This should greatly encourage the graduate. He has reasonable assurance that things will work out for him. This is a challenge that few of the graduates' parents faced in their year of graduation.

Then there is a special challenge for the Christian graduate of 1964. There are many evils in our nation. The Christian graduate faces these evils with the determination to correct as many of them as possible. He determines to do so by magnifying Christ in his life each day. He will determine to portray Christian principles in his business dealings. He will place Christ in each transaction. In building the home, he will make Christ the chief cornerstone. Because of the spirit and attitude of the 1964 Christian graduate, the nation and world will become a better place to live.

For the greater percentage of graduates, the hours of study and preparation are over. The books of the past years will be laid aside. From now on application of that learning and knowledge will be put to practice, and the greatest lessons are yet to be learned. No one can reveal them to another; they come personally. The results make one grow wiser and more experienced as the years come and go.

Thus, graduation is not overcoming the world. It is just the beginning—the beginning of the application to life. The 1964 graduate must realize the necessity of beginning with Christ at the helm. Without Him, the ship of life will drift aimlessly and is subject to sink on the rocks of opposition and despair. With Him, there is meaning and purpose.

LEARN TO BE QUIET

"Modern man seems to be afraid of silence," writes Robert E. Lyons in the May 15 issue of "Gospel Herald." Mr. Lyons further states:

"We are conditioned by radio and television on which every minute must be filled with talking or some kind of sound. We are stimulated by the American philosophy of keeping on the move all the time . . . A person's life can be deepened tremendously by periods of silence, used in constructive ways of meditation and prayer. Great personalities have spent much time in the silence of life."

What I Believe As An Original Free Will Baptist

AS a Free Will Baptist, I believe that at any age you can accept Christ. To accept Christ, you must fully put your trust in Him and believe that He is the one and only God. I believe that you must fully accept Christ and put your all in Him to be a true Christian.

I first believed in Christ at the age of six. I walked down the aisle and told my pastor that I believed and was ready to be a worker for my Saviour. I felt deeply in my heart that I was right and that nothing could change my heart. My mother was deeply pleased. She had been a very dedicated worker for the Lord. She had taught Sunday school and had been president of the woman's auxiliary. In these activities she radiated with the glory of God, and I wanted to be like her. I didn't know how until my Saviour opened my eyes. I finally saw the light and I was happy.

How do we know there is just one God? What proof in the Bible can we find? In the sixth chapter of Deuteronomy, verse four tells us there is only one God, "Hear, O Israel: the LORD our God is one LORD." This is just one of the reasons why we say there is only one God. The Bible says it is so. What does that have to do with it? If you are a Christian, the Bible is the center of your life. The Bible is our spiritual bread. We feed upon the Word of God for our strength. Without the Bible we are lost. How are we lost? If you don't believe in Christ, you are lost. How can we be saved? Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and repent of your sins. Repent, you say; what does repent mean? Webster defines repent: to feel self-reproach, compunction, or contrition for a past conduct, to regret for past action. How can we repent? If you feel you want to be a child of the King, accept Him when the invitation is given at church or in your youth group. Open your heart to Him and let Him come into your heart. You must be sorry for your sins and repent. You must make a public confession of faith. I believe in baptism by immersion.

If we love God we'll radiate with His love. Others will see the love of God in us. We can be living witnesses for our Saviour. Sometimes people don't have to be told you are a Christian because they can tell by the way you act and by the people with whom you go around and by places where you are seen. You must be a witness always.

I believe in God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit.

I believe in the communion that our Saviour first partook of. I believe in the wine as God's blood and the bread as His body. I believe in the washing of feet which He and the disciples did after they had eaten. In all of these I truly believe with all my heart.

I believe that there will be a second coming. I believe that God will come again and that the Christians will go with Him to live in heaven and live eternally. My Sunday school teacher said that the trumpet would sound loud enough for the Christians to hear it and so low that the sinners will not even know it has been blown. Christ said that He went to prepare a mansion for us. Will you have a mansion in heaven? I once dreamed about our mansions in heaven. This story is almost like another story about our mansions that is sometimes used to illustrate how life on earth coincides with life in heaven. There once was a man who did everything he thought was good. He put lots of money in the church offering plate. He gave money to every cause for which the church asked so that he could have his name read for being one of the church's biggest supporters. One night he dreamed it was judgment day. When he came to the gates, he wasn't sure which one he was to go through. He decided he'd take the narrow gate. He walked on for awhile until he came to a gate marked with the word heaven. The man jumped for joy. He had chosen the right gate. Our Saviour opened the gate. The man walked in and walked around until he found the largest and most beautiful mansion of all. God told him that this was not his mansion. The man protested and said it had to be his because it was the nicest one he could find.

The Weakening Church

Dr. Thomas R. Morris, O. D.
Goldsboro, North Carolina

RECENTLY, I presented to the president of Mount Olive Junior College the original manuscript of the first graduation address given at a Free Will Baptist educational institution. It was the graduation address given by an uncle of my father, Elder W. H. Frost. Like my great-grandfather, Elder P. T. Lucas, Elder Frost was one of the early Free Will Baptist ministers of this historic denomination in this section of the state. The address was given at Ayden, North Carolina, on June 2, 1900. As most Free Will Baptists know, the school has long since been destroyed by fire. The manuscript has been handed down through the family and I felt that it should be in the archives of the Mount Olive institution.

Among many other things, Elder Frost discussed the more recent developments of his day. He had just returned from the Tennessee Centennial and he spoke of the locomotive, the telegraph, and the steamship. This man, who knew nothing of the everyday things we take for granted, such as automobiles, television, missiles or even neon signs, in the last paragraph of his address said: "If as much progress is made during the next fifty years as has been made in the last fifty, the half is yet to be told." If only our forefathers could return and see the tremendous progress that has been made in all areas of endeavor. Those saints who have already experienced their "homegoing" would be amazed at the changes that have taken place, not only in this community but around the world.

Do you realize that since he made that address in 1900 the knowledge of the world exactly doubled from 1900 to 1942; that it doubled again from 1942 to 1954 and that it doubled again from 1954 to 1960?

Our ancestors who left everything they held near and dear on foreign shores—homes, families, friends—who suffered, fought, and died for the cause of religious freedom, would be very happy to see their dreams fulfilled here today. They would be happy, in these days of prosperity and physical conveniences to see us return to this sacred ground in observance of homecoming—a memorial as well as a time of rededication. Many of us still remember, as the fondest recollections of our lives, the saints who have worshiped under this roof. I am happy to see this great congregation here even in 1963. We are living in a time now when gatherings such as these are becoming less prevalent. Governments (our own and others), men, the Supreme Court, and the Kremlin are doing everything possible to destroy this religious heritage paid for at such a tremendous price.

Yes, our forefathers would be happy at the progress made and yet would be saddened at the conditions which surround us. It is a world where we have so much to live with; yet, it seems so little to live for. We have the largest pile of atomic bombs; yet, as a nation we are rotten at the core. There are more churchgoers now than at any other time in history. It is estimated that 116 million Americans go to church, an increase of 30 percent during the past ten years. Yet, during that time, illegitimacy has increased 300 percent, and venereal disease 73 percent last year. For every dollar given to the church, $12,000 dollars are spent on crime. One half as much money is spent on beer in this country alone as is spent on food and clothing. American women spend more money on cosmetics than is given to all religious causes. You can combine all the churches, synagogues, and temples and you will still have them outnumbered by beer halls by 175,000. I have used these figures because most of us learned long ago that the surest, most accurate measure of the condition of the heart is the pocketbook.

Thirty-seven million young people are growing up in this nation without any religious instruction of any kind. This number grows steadily, and the mission of the church becomes magnified when we stop to realize that there are more people living on the face of the earth today than you can find in all the cemeteries: more people living now than all the rest of time combined. With all our advanced systems of communication, the devil is doing a better job than the church. Our churches and ministers are no longer being persecuted. To the contrary, it has become a status symbol to belong to the church. Ministers have never enjoyed more abundant living than now. No, the churches are not being persecuted, they are just generally ignored.

Dr. Vanee Havner, that great preacher whom I have heard so many times, said recently, "The gospel that made our forefathers shout in the aisles now puts people to sleep in the pews. We have much more to fear from the termites inside the church than from the wood-peekers on the outside." He went on to say, "Most church members are just playing church. They are like the big game hunter preparing for a big hunt with all the expensive equipment and then going out and start chasing butterflies." We are a people who want and pray for God's blessings, but will not accept the responsibility of those blessings. There is no nation greater blessed of God than this nation. With only five percent of the world's population and 58 percent of the world's wealth, we are still doing less with our education, our theology, our fine buildings to win people to Jesus Christ than our unschooled forefathers. Fifty-three percent of the graduates of our Christian schools do not enter the work of the Lord. Of those who do enter, many of the ministers seemingly are afraid to preach the gospel, and people are tossed to and fro by every doctrine that comes along.

The Early Church was founded among the poor people. The rich of Jesus' day generally ignored Him. How different it is today. Now among the rich and the great middle-class, church membership is considered a status symbol. If one expects to get ahead in business or a profession, he is expected to be active in a church. The church has become a scene of activity for the women ranging from bridge parties to mission interests. The young people have their recreation outlets ranging from dances to Sunday school. And the men, when not standing on the outside smoking cigarettes and discussing the latest ball game, might be found ushering or singing in the choir. These social churches, with a social gospel, have created a vacuum and comfortable island of Christian isolation completely away from the harsh realities of the problems facing the true mission of the Church. We pretend to be concerned about the lost in the Congo but never take into consideration the needs of those on the streets and roads of our own county.

Because the Church has lost the respect of the members on the inside and the nonmembers on the outside it has become powerless in standing up against the political corruption that surrounds us; against the moral deterioration that is rapidly overcoming us. It is not just because of modernists, racists, or extremists, such as Martin Luther King, Adam Clayton Powell, Daddy Grace, Bishop Blake, the snake handlers, and others. It is because of the inconsistencies in the lives of many who bear the name of Christ that the spiritual mercury in this nation has dropped to zero. We have chosen to use the expedient methods of men rather than the divine designs of God in our spiritual activities. This applies to raising finances for our educational institutions as well as operating the local church activity.

In Philippians 4:22, we have these significant words: "All the saints salute you, chiefly they that are of Caesar's household." The last place you would have expected to find Christians in Rome around A. D. 64 would have been in Caesar's household. In this city of debauchery, in this palace which under Nero had become a cesspool of iniquity, there were some early Christians who could still live for Christ, regardless of hardships. The twentieth century Christian has forgotten the early martyrs. Today's Christian has forgotten that the Christian Church was begun and the gospel spread by those who were persecuted and driven out of Jerusalem. They had nothing to gain from their testimony. But, they spoke because they could not remain silent. They spoke out of their knowledge and experience with the Saviour. The Holy Spirit gave witness then, as now, that they were telling the truth. They believed then, as we are taught now, that we should "look unto Jesus" (Hebrews 12:2) for our needs. Modern churchmen, using modern methods and not depending on the Holy Spirit for guidance, give evidence that they are not driven by an all-constraining love for Jesus Christ.

The world has ceased to believe that love is an effective motive for doing anything; that love for God should govern our work in the local church; that love for God should govern our giving of our means; that love for country should govern our service in the armed forces; that love for neighbors should govern our assistance in time of need. We can give without loving, but we cannot love without giving. If we give, visit, serve, attend services, or do anything else in the cause of Christ without our love for Christ being our motive, it is worthless in the sight of God. To teach in our churches that we must give in order to get is completely erroneous. There is nothing taught or preached in the churches of this nation today about which there is more confusion than the matter of Christian giving. Paul taught that the motive, the very spring of all our actions, should be our love for Christ. It must be a very black body indeed which will reflect none of the love which has been so abundantly shone on it. In Christ, our life is no longer our own, for we were bought with a very great price. And, ". . . whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: . . ." (Romans 14:8).

No Christian can read the New Testament and still go on believing that God has no demands on his life. It was never intended that we should go to heaven on flowerly beds of ease. God gave His best and He wants our best in return. Christ taught us to be fishers of men not just keepers of the aquarium or at best just swiping fish from one another's bowls. It is going to take the dedicated hands and feet of every Christian to do the job. This century has seen how a people with an ideology strongly believed in can outnumber Christians with a gospel weakly supported. Communism has gained more converts in fifty years than Christianity has after two thousand years. There is a prevailing attitude in the world today, especially among our young people, that with the condition the world is in, why bother. For example, there was a convertible filled with college students headed for the beach, with a sign on the side which read, "Sin, Sin, Sin . . . For the World Is Doomed." As long as we possess, notice I didn't say profess, this unconcern for the cause of Christ, this absolute apathy toward the conditions around us, we can expect no better. Our refusal to uphold the cross of Christ will bring shame on His holy name. If Christians do not stand up for the cause of Christ and the decent things of the world, then who will? The Christians in this nation, and this nation alone, are the only hope of the world today.

Just a few weeks ago, three miners were trapped in a mine in a state not too far from here. Yet, the whole world was concerned night and day about the fate of those three men. They were still alive. By communication systems dropped down to them, they could talk with people on the surface of the ground. Yet, all around us are those, whom we are taught, are already dead because they are unsaved. How close they are to us, yet how far from the saving Grace of Jesus Christ.

There are two tremendous forces present in the world today; stronger even than atomic power. One is the power of fear and it is terribly strong. The

THREE SORTS OF CHURCHMEN

By Harrison Ray Anderson

It is not only Gaul that is divided into three parts. Bears are. There are big bears, little bears and medium sized bears—and likewise churchmen can be so divided.

There is, first the good brother who is against everything. He lets his pastor know that as long as he is on the Session there will never be a unanimous vote for anything. Now the tragedy of this man is that he betrays a great cause of the right to dissent. The church needs a loyal opposition who looks with critical and prayerful eye and mind at its proposals. These are not all born in heaven.

There is a second brother who is the "yes" man. He mistakes being on the team with discipleship and being a good fellow with being God's man. Weak pastors or administrators will seek to gather about them such churchmen. Such become the weight that ultimately sinks the ship.

Then there are the others—thank God for that. They are loyal. They want to be for things. They know that leaders we must have and leaders are to be followed—if and when they are right. They also know that there will never be perfect agreement in any society on all details. The American government is built on the compromises of good and sincere men. Yet these forward-looking churchmen refuse to be gullible. They do not define faith as shutting your eyes, opening your mouth and swallowing.

In Session, presbytery, and especially in synod and Assembly, proposals need to be known, studied and debated. In large bodies and small, groups of determined men easily have their way. I would hope in these times for a rebirth of the third type of churchmen.

Saratoga, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Saratoga Free Will Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting May 19 in the home of Mrs. Nettie Thigpen. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Sudie Welton. Mrs. Mattie Lee Amerson, program chairman, then took charge and directed the group in singing the beautiful hymn, "My Mother's Bible." Mrs. Nettie Thigpen read the Scripture taken from Proverbs 31:10-31, and Mrs. Blanche Beaman prayed the evening prayer.

The topic for the program was "The Touch of a Wise Mother." Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Dorothy Skinner, Mrs. Essie Burress, and Mrs. Ruth Rose. The program closed with a prayer for all mothers everywhere by Mrs. Rose Proctor.

In the business session an offering was taken for the Arizona-Mexico Mission; also clothing and a quilt which the auxiliary quilted will be sent to these people for a worthwhile work.

The hostess served refreshments to the twelve members and one visitor present.

Deep Run, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Gray Branch Free Will Baptist Church met at the church recently for an inspiring program for the mothers. Upon arrival, each person was presented a red rose corsage by Mrs. Clarissa Merritt and Mrs. Glenda Boyette. President Ada Hines opened the meeting and Mrs. Laura Boyette sang "My Mother's Bible." This was followed with prayer by Mrs. Andrew Hill. Scripture was read from Proverbs 31:10-31. A program on the importance of a mother's love and the influence it makes on a child's formative years was given by Mrs. Pearl Smith, Mrs. Dorothy Humphrey, and Mrs. Glenda Boyette.

Mrs. Laura Boyette was recognized as the mother with the largest number of children; Mrs. Bessie Humphrey, as the oldest mother; and Mrs. Clarence Humphrey, as the youngest mother.

During the business session plans were made for a barbecue supper, and reports were given by the various officers. The benediction was given by Mrs. Boyette.

Mrs. Hilda Tyndall and Mrs. Dorothy Humphrey served refreshments to the fifteen members, one visitor, and one new member that were present.

Ayden, N. C.—On May 8 the Ambassadors for Christ of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church met down at Neuse River with Vieki and Gladys Jones as hostesses. The meeting was called to order by the president, Diane Briley. The group sang the choruses, "Glory, Glory, Glory, Somebody Touched Me" and "Only a Boy Named David," followed with prayer by Bruce Jones. The Scripture was read by Mike Griffin and Palvette Fulch. The secretary, Nancy Garris, read the minutes of the last meeting; and the treasurer gave the treasurer's report. The mission chairman, Jo Ann Jones, gave a report on the mission work of the AFC. Motions were made to buy handkerchiefs for the mothers on Mother's Day, and to take a special offering for missions of the Central Conference.

The program was then given and the meeting closed with prayer.

The group then enjoyed refreshments and all went for a boat ride.

A MATTER OF COMPARISON

We used to keep our little white Highland terrier washed and brushed and cleaned and powdered—until one night it snowed.

When we got up in the morning the snow had stopped and the sun was shining. Then I saw a dirty-looking dog walk across the snow! I said, "What is that dog doing there?" Then I saw it was my dog. He was just as he had always been, but against that dazzling background of newly fallen snow he looked so dingy.

Have you ever seen yourself against the background of Christ's dazzling purity?—Al Bryant in Pentecostal Evangel.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

MR. JAMES "JIM" H. TUCKER

Whereas our heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has called to his eternal reward the soul of our friend and brother in Christ, Mr. James "Jim" H. Tucker, who was a faithful member of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina; and, whereas in his active Christian life he served on the board of deacons and was the clerk for a number of years; we desire to express our deepest sympathy to his wife and others who feel keenly our common loss, and pay loving tribute to his memory as a faithful servant of the Lord.

Mr. Tucker was born April 4, 1886, and died January 2, 1964. His wife, Mrs. Mable Tyson Tucker, survives.

We bow in humble submission to Him who doth all things well, and thank God for the example of his Christian life lived before us all.

We submit that a copy of this be sent to the family, a copy to the Free Will Baptist paper for publication, and a copy kept for the minutes.

Knee Power for the Daily Jobs

He picked them out on His knees. Slowly, thoughtfully, through the night, He sifted back and forth, taking account of weaknesses and drawbacks, till at last the list of 12 men stood clear. A great night's work, that getting fishermen ready to be apostles.

No wonder Peter came back, and John's fire burned out in love. That night's knee work did it. Nothing can resist quiet, steady, confident knee work. Try it on your daily job.—Selected.

True Greatness

LEARN to grapple with souls. Aim at the conscience. Exalt Christ. Use a sharp knife with yourself. Say little, serve all, pass on.

This is true greatness, to serve unnoticed and work unseen.

Oh, the joy of having nothing and being nothing, seeing nothing but a living Christ in glory, and being careful for nothing but His interests down here. J. N. D.

the day the nation cried

by Clay Cooper

The day Mr. Kennedy died, sorrow gripped the hearts of sympathetic beings everywhere. Women wept unrestrained, and suddenly it was no longer unmanly to cry. People sobbed unashamedly in the street. Church bells tolled. Within moments, the nation was in mourning. The sound of mirth ceased in the land.

Where was God? It is inconceivable that He who is present at the falling of a sparrow should be absent during the assassination of the President of the United States. The very least that can be said is that what occurred in Dallas lay within the permissive will of the Almighty. This being true, men ought to stop and ask, "What is God trying to say to our nation?" even as we would look up and make the same prayerful inquiry if our individual homes or personal lives were to be ravaged with great tragedy.

God be thanked that when the sky fell in, Americans were of such a frame of mind and heart as to instantaneously answer an appeal to call on God. But why did it seem so right, now, for radio and television announcers and commentators together with members of officialdom to summon the nation to prayer? More specifically, why did it suddenly become legal and proper to go into every school and classroom, where a radio was dialed in, or a television switched on, and appeal to boys and girls to bow their heads and pray?

Abruptly, certain Supreme Court decisions seemed ridiculous . . . null and void! When tragedy struck, it was no longer regarded as a crime against the state . . . or unconstitutional . . . to implore students to reverently petition the Father above.

There is the spirit of the law, even as there is the letter of the law. That the former has been, and is being, discriminated against, would be hard to deny. If we may judge by public reaction, the vast majority of our citizens are convinced that the letter of the law is not rightly interpreted when the sworn enemies of God and society are given what may be construed as the "benefit of the doubt." And to this view the evidenced spirit of the law—men doing in a sudden stroke of judgment what only their hearts tell them to do, with no time to argue the unconstitutionality of prayer—and we are taught lessons we might never learn at any other time, or in any other way.

In the hour of crisis the legality or fancied legality of prayer within the four walls of a school room suddenly becomes ridiculous! Something should be made of this. Something big! Here are salient issues jutting out from all that happened on November 22, 1963, which deserve the attention of all men of thought and action.

It is difficult to imagine a more catastrophic incident—and aftermath—which could befall our land that would bring these concerns into still sharper focus. But there is! Suppose that instead of three cracking reports from a single rifle over Dallas, at the hands of a Communist, it should have been the explosion of Communist H-bombs over many American cities? And history is hardly kind enough to allow us to rationalize away this prospect. If, and when, the fiery mushrooms appear in the sky, will it be to our credit in the eyes of heaven to have banished God from our schools; judicially ejected Jesus Christ from our classrooms as we might have exorcised an evil spirit; removed His name from our documents, our coins, the Pledge to the flag; declared our institutions off-limits to prayer?

Fanciful? Hardly, for this is the very road we are presently traveling. Perhaps God has spoken to our nation through the report of a $12.78 mail order rifle so that He will not have to speak to us through hundred megaton bombs. He may be trying to get our attention in order that we may hear Him say, "The nation that will not serve me, shall perish."

Without a doubt, our nation has become what she is today—to the glory of God and the blessing of mankind—because of lessons learned in schoolrooms such as Ford's Theatre in Tenth Street in Washington. Let us not fail to learn now what the Great Teacher is trying to get across from the "school-house" on Elm Street in Dallas.—Life Messengers.

Cold—and Snappy!

By Roy J. Wilkins

On the outside of a box of apples, I read these words: "Cold apples are snappy apples."

To many people, nothing is less tempting than a warm, mealy apple. Such people are fortunate in owning a set of solid teeth that delight in biting into an apple that is crisp, tasty and cold. This is fine—if your teeth can take it! Cold apples do taste good, no doubt about it.

But cold Christians don't! Ever notice that when warm-hearted Christians "cool off" in their relationship to Christ they act "cool" or "cold" towards others?

That sometimes they're even "snappy?"

That some of the remarks they make can be very icy?

As sharp as barbed wire?

As biting as a Northwest wind in winter?

The apostle Paul, in Gal. 5:15, tells Christians about the danger of biting and devouring one another. "But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another."

Bite into an apple if you want to, but don't bite a fellow believer.

You'll suffer as much as he will.

Maybe even more!—Evangelical Beacon.

AND

QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

WE MUST MEET GOD

"And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (Hebrews 9:27).

* * *

"Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice, and shall come forth: they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:28, 29).

* * *

"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17).

* * *

"And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. . . . And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire" (Revelation 20:12, 15).

* * *

My dear reader, are you prepared to meet God? Whether we are saved or condemned by our sins, we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ. Do you know that you are saved? If not, remember that "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God" (Hebrews 10:31). "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward;

How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him" (Hebrews 2:1-3).

HOW CAN WE BE SAVED?

After nearly 2,000 years people are asking, "How can I be saved?" even though it is plainly stated in the Bible. The simple plan of salvation is for all mankind. The trouble with many people who want to be saved is that they have been confused by people who were not versed in the truth. They have listened to blind teachers, people who never know the real truth. The Philippian jailer was told the truth in a few simple words that have been handed down to us. The question was "What must I do to be saved?" The answer was ". . . Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, . . ." (Acts 16:31). That is exactly what this jailer and his family did that very night, and the family was saved. "And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house" (Acts 16:32). Notice that they spake unto this jailer and his house the "word of the Lord." They did not talk to those people about some denominational program; they told them about Jesus. The Word of the Lord is all that is needed. If you have the Lord, you need no one else to carry you through.

We have people in every community that are going about asking you to believe what their sect teaches, and these people are always telling you what their church teaches. A great many times these missionaries are backslidden church members out of orthodox churches. I remember being in a meeting some years ago when several testified; and according to their confession and testimonies, they were sin lovers and followed after the world. Some had actually preached while they were unsaved. But now they have received a new "light," and all that they had ever confessed before was not true, to hear them talk, now. If you are ever saved, according to them, you must forget and leave that which your parents believed and taught and join their new order; for everybody is wrong that has not accepted their shibboleth. Notice that I called their new way shibboleth. In other words, they have a language to themselves, which is far different.

Years ago when I was serving a very small church, an extremely unethical doctrine, which was also unbiblical in many respects, got control of some of those who were not acquainted with the true meaning of sanctification. A lady, who was a good woman but who was very limited in her knowledge of the subject, decided that all those with whom she had been associated were wrong. She went about preaching that she had now "found the way"; yes, she had a new kind of sanctification. So I visited her home, hoping that I could lead her in the true interpretation of the word sanctification; but even though she was not an expert in reading, she seemed to know more than anyone who did not accept her definition of sanctification. I asked her, "What is the meaning of the term sanctification?" She answered, "Getting rid of sin." Then I asked, "Did Jesus have any sin to get rid of when He said, 'And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth' (John 17:19)?" When Christ spoke the words, He said, "I am giving my life for you that you may give your life to me." In this sense the true meaning of sanctification means "setting apart." Christ set His life apart that we might set our lives apart for Him.

Fifty-five years ago through the leadership of the Holy Ghost, I set my life apart to the gospel ministry. I have never recanted; I have never changed in the least. What I did then is living today. I am preaching the gospel that I started out with on June 12, 1910. My life was set apart on that day when I said yes to the Holy Ghost. As said before, I have not changed. I am preaching the same gospel that I preached then when I was admitted into the National Association of Free Will Baptists. I have not changed a single degree from what I was when I sat as the chairman of the treatise committee when the first treatise was written and accepted overwhelmingly by the great body assembled in Nashville, Tennessee, without being read and discussed. Satan may slip up to you and tell you, as has been rumored, through ignorance that J. C. Griffin has changed his doctrine. If Satan ever approaches any of you, my friends, and tells you that J. C. Griffin has changed his theology by changing to a new denomination and leaving the Original Free Will Baptist doctrine, you just tell Satan to read the gospel as taught by Jesus and written by John (8:44). Satan has never told the truth. He cannot. I want the world to know that I am preaching that which the Holy Ghost gave to me 55 years ago. I have not compromised one bit. I am set for the gospel that Paul said was the power of God when he said, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto

QUESTION: Please explain, "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter in law against her mother in law. And a man's foes shall be they of his own household" (Matthew 10:34-36).—L. M. T., California.

ANSWER: This declaration followed the calling of the twelve apostles from among Jesus' disciples and is part of the instructions that followed this special calling of the twelve. This message of our Lord includes much instruction that is valid and applicable to all Christians of this age as well as to His followers that were to have a special function in His earthly ministry of that dispensation. Among the many things He told them of as being characteristic of their day as then awaited them while they were carrying out His orders were persecution, unbelief, and hypocrisy. Having uttered to them the important statement concerning the necessity of confessing Him before men, He then proceeded to give forth the words quoted above, about which the one who asked this question is concerned.

When this passage of Scripture is taken in its entire setting, and in connection with all Scriptures, the meaning is plain. When a person takes Christ as his personal Saviour from sin, it often alienates his closest relatives and friends. Experience has proven this as being true thousands of times. Much of the time a Christian may find understanding and have more fellowship with other Christians not of his own household than he can have with his parents, brothers, and sisters simply because the bond in Christ is ever so many times stronger than that which binds the members of the natural family to each other.

Our Lord made it plain throughout His teaching from that first uttered on the subject to the last. He has to say in the Word concerning this, that the church and the preaching of the gospel will not bring in the kingdom. They are not to be the means by which peace is ushered into the earth. He himself, and He only will do that; and He leaves His witnesses on the earth now to lead men into a saving knowledge of Himself, making them members of His body, which is the Church. That is His purpose for this present age.

In line with the contents of this whole chapter, Jesus added: "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: . . ." (v. 37). When it comes to be a choice between loved ones and He that is "altogether lovely," my friend, then you must take Jesus Christ. We probably all have known of consecrated Christians who have had to leave loved ones and home for Christ's sake. All should be willing to do this. This was what He had in mind when He said, "I come not to send peace, but a sword." He will one day be acknowledged by all the world as the Prince of Peace, but now He is calling out from the world "a people for His name." If you happen to be among those who have not heeded that call, won't you please respond now? (See Matthew 11:28-30; Isaiah 1:18; 1 John 1:7-9.)

WHOSOEVER

A CONVERTED boy in talking to a man who did not believe Christ loved him, got his Testament and said, "Does yer see that word marked wid red ink?"

"Yes, I see it."

"Well, what is she?"

"It's 'whosoever.'"

"Well, what does that mean?"

"I guess it means what it says, but you see with me it is different! I was brought up to do right. My father was a minister, and he taught me to pray and read the Bible. I knew what was right, but with my eyes open I went right into sin, and God can never forgive one who sins against the light."

"Say, read der whole verse," said Jimmie.

"I know it without reading it, I learned it at my mother's knee before I could talk plain."

"Well, get busy and say it then."

"God so loved the world—"

"Loved der what?"

"The world."

"Go on."

"That he gave his only begotten Son—"

"Dat's Jesus, ain't it?"

"Yes, that is who it means."

"Go on."

"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever—"

"Who?"

"Whosoever."

"Don't that mean you?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Den dis is der way ter read it," said Jimmie. "Dat whosoever, 'cept Dave Beach, kin have everlasting life. Not on your life, it ain't writ dat way."

"Well, in another place it says that if you know to do right and do it not, it's sin."

"And dat makes yer a sinner, don't it?"

"Yes, it does, and a bad one too," said Dave.

Jimmie put his thumb into his mouth to wet it and turned leaf after leaf. At last he said, "Read dat."

Dave took the Book and looked hard and long in silence. Then he read slowly: "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

"Are you a sinner?" asked Jimmie.

"Yes, I am a bad one."

"Worse than this man? Read der rest of 'er."

"Of whom I am chief."

"All right, if He kin save der chief of sinners, can't He save Dave Beach?"

And He did. Let Him do the same for you.—The Alliance Weekly.

"Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:15).

There are no little sins. There was a time when all the evil that has existed in the world, was comprehended in one sinful thought, and all the evil in the world now is the numerous offspring of one little sin.—Selected.

GERALDINE'S FAMILY

Rev. Charles Alfred Harris

I DON'T want to be adopted," wailed seven-year-old Geraldine, vigorously shaking her head until her blonde curls danced. "I want to be born in a family."

"But, honey," said Mrs. Sam Brown struggling with her short, fat little body as she squatted down beside Geraldine. "You are already born and you need a family. Please let us be your Daddy and Mother."

"Yes, please do, dear," said Mr. Brown who was standing beside her, his kind, brown eyes full of love for the little girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown had enjoyed several visits with Geraldine in the orphanage and many more at their own home where she stayed for several days at a time. She seemed so happy with them that they thought she would like to be their own little girl. But now it seemed they had failed to win her real love. She didn't want to live with them always.

The supervisor of the orphanage, Mrs. Mabel Nest, said quietly, "Let me talk to Gerry alone. I'll phone you later."

Calling her by her favorite name "Gerry," Mrs. Nest said, "Let's make some hot chocolate and have a talk."

Geraldine smiled. She loved these private talks with Mrs. Nest. She seemed almost like her own mother. Her own father and mother had gone to be with Jesus over a year before.

Over the hot chocolate Mrs. Nest said, "Gerry, you are old enough to understand things pretty well. You know it was foolish for you to say you wanted to be born into a family. You can only be born once. You are old enough to know that."

Gerry's eyes, blue and solemn, looked at Mrs. Nest, and then she spoke, "I know I can be born in a family."

"But you were born in a family dear. Now that your own daddy and mama are in heaven, you know you can't be born into another family."

Gerry shook her head hard. "The Bible says I can so be born into another family," she answered.

Mrs. Nest knew now that Gerry had some deep thoughts in her head about this matter. She said carefully, "Please explain to me what you mean, dear."

Smoothing out her dress and talking very carefully, Gerry said, "Well, the Bible says we 'must be born again.' You teach us that in our Sunday School."

Mrs. Nest nodded her head.

Gerry continued, "You said being born again was something that happened in our hearts, but that it was just as real as being born into a family."

Mrs. Nest nodded again. She understood now what was in Geraldine's mind, but she let her talk on.

"If God can make us to be borned again one way, why can't He do it other ways? Why couldn't He make it so I could be born into another family?"

Mrs. Nest hugged her tight and said, "Oh, Gerry, I'm so glad you listen to the Bible stories and think about them so much."

"But isn't it true that God could make it that I would have my very own daddy and mother by being born into another family?" insisted Gerry.

"Let me explain, dear. God has arranged everything just right. Jesus gave His life on the cross, and that means when we receive Him as our Saviour, He gives us His new Life, because He not only died but rose again for us. This is just another way of saying we are born again."

"But why," asked Gerry again, "Can't we be born again in another family?"

"You see, Gerry, one is a spiritual family. That means it all happens in our hearts, although it truly makes us part of the family of God. The other is an earthly family. There is only one birth in an earthly family.

Gerry didn't say anything but looked puzzled.

"Now we are talking about being born again, Gerry. I remember last Sunday that you told me you hadn't let Jesus come into your heart yet. Maybe if you were born again as the Bible says, God would help you to understand these other things that have been bothering you."

Tears were in Gerry's eyes. When Mrs. Nest knelt at a chair, she slipped down beside her. Soon she was telling Jesus she wanted Him as her Saviour. She wanted to, as she put it, to "be borned again."

They stayed quiet for quite awhile and then Mrs. Nest whispered, "Are you sure you belong to Jesus now?"

"Oh, yes. The Bible says Jesus would accept anyone who would come to Him and I've come. I have such a happy feeling in my heart."

One week later Geraldine was in her new home at Mr. and Mrs. Brown's. There was a nest outside the window of her room and three baby robins were holding their beaks wide open.

"Mama," said Geraldine, as Mrs. Brown came into the room, "Didn't you say Daddy found the Mama robin dead on the ground this morning when he went to work?"

"Yes, dear. I was wondering what we'd do about the babies in that nest."

"I guess I'll have to adopt them," said Geraldine. "You know they can't be born in another robin family, so I'll have to take care of them. I must ask Mr. Spears at the bird shop what to feed them."

Mrs. Brown hugged her tight as she said, "That's a good idea, Gerry. Do you know this was the very first time you called me 'Mama'?"

Geraldine looked at her solemnly. Then she said, "Yes, and that's the first time you have called me 'Gerry.' Oh, I'm so glad you and Daddy are my family and we are all in the family of Jesus."—Gospel Herald.

The Weakening Church

Other is the power of faith. We need strong faith. We need to have our minds full of a passionate faith such as that possessed by our forefathers who built this great church. If we have this type faith, we can handle everything else. It is going to take Christian faith to save this nation. If business could do it, Tyre would never have fallen. If political organization could do it, Rome would still be the great power of the world. If military power could do it, Germany would never have fallen. If teachery could do it, Japan would have ruled the world. If religious ceremony and ritual could do it, ancient Israel would be the dominant power on the world scene today. Anytime a nation ceases to uphold Christian principles, anytime a nation ceases to place her faith in God but rather in men, that nation will fall. This nation is falling fast.

The Scriptures tell us that the "kingdom of God is within us." God's power, God's goodness, God's peace, God's strength, God's control, God's limitless development is all within us born-again children of God. I am the first to admit that my life does not give evidence of this knowledge. I have known very few Christians whose lives do give evidence of such development. But, can you imagine what this world would be like if we really believed this truth. This is the most dynamic thing in the universe. Within this knowledge of our limitless development through Christ are miracles and wonders beyond the calculations of the mind of man. If we really believed this we would not so easily be defeated by our weaknesses, our sins, our fears, our hates, even our physical disabilities. No man can stay as he is. Every man can truly be what he wants to be. The abiding truth that the "kingdom of God" indwells us should be the fulfillment that "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither hath entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." Believing this truth and declaring this truth morning, noon, and night will make life truly worthwhile.

In the Gospel of John, there is one verse of Scripture that will and can transform our lives: "But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life" (John 4:14). To know that those of us who believe in Jesus Christ shall never thirst again is cause for rejoicing on this day. Permit me to say how thankful I am for this church, for this community, for the denomination to which my ancestry as far back as we can trace has been so loyal. With hearts of thanksgiving for the blessings of the past and dedicated hands for the future service we can say with Paul, as he said to those Christians at Phillipi, "Rejoice in the Lord alway; and again I say, Rejoice" (Philippians 4:4).

People forget that the content of faith in the God who is worshiped is infinitely more important than the particular form which his worship may take.—John A. Mackay.

The Plague of The Heart

Sin is called "the plague of the heart" in 1 Kings 8:38.

Many of the diseases of the soul compare to diseases of the body.

1. Drunkenness is spiritual dropsy.
2. Security is spiritual lethargy.
3. Envy is spiritual canker.
4. Lust is spiritual fever (Hosea 7:4).
5. Backsliding is spiritual falling sickness.
6. Hardness of heart is spiritual hardening of the arteries.
7. Conscience seared is spiritual apoplexy.
8. Unsteady judgment is spiritual palsy.
9. Pride is a spiritual tumor.
10. Vain glory is a spiritual itch.—

The Sunday School Lesson

Lesson FOR JUNE 14

What Can I Do For World Peace?

LESSON TEXT: Romans 12:14-21; 1 Timothy 2:1, 2

MEMORY VERSE: Matthew 5:9

I. INTRODUCTION

Peace is the desire of the hearts of all men. There are many of us who feel that in a world torn by discord and disagreement there is very little that the individual can do to make peace a reality. War and confusion seem to be the order of the day and all efforts to establish a true and lasting peace seem to be doomed to failure. We must not, however, give way to despair; for we who are followers of the Lord Jesus, the Prince of Peace, know that peace can be attained. This peace however is not to be found in alliances, pacts, or agreements—it has to be a peace established on character which possesses a genuine concern for the welfare of all mankind.

There is much that we as individuals can do to make peace a reality. We can practice the Christian principles which are so instrumental in the bringing of peace, and we can pray that God in His providence will exercise His leadership in the thought and the activities of the world's leaders. Tennyson tells us that more things are wrought by prayer than this world realizes, and we believe this to be true. The influence of ten righteous people could have saved the cities of the plain from destruction, and who knows but that the influence of praying Christians can establish peace in our day.—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The Christian should do good to those who persecute him (v. 14).

2. One should be sympathetic toward those with whom he associates (v. 15).

3. A person should put forth special effort to help those in need, rather than court the rich (v. 16).

4. The idea of getting even with another is against the law of God (v. 17).

5. Although it is difficult at times, one should strive to live peaceably with all men (v. 18).

6. Vengeance is reserved for the Lord, and He will execute it in His own good time (v. 19).

7. One may heap coals of fire on the head of his enemy by being good to him (v. 20).

8. It is the duty of all to act in such a way that they can overcome evil with good (v. 21).

9. It is the duty of every Christian to pray for all the people of the world (v. 1).

10. Especially are Christians exhorted to pray for the rulers of the land so that they may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty (v. 2).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. The question of our lesson, "What Can I Do for World Peace?" should be considered by young and old alike. Too many of us just shrug our shoulders and say that we can do nothing about world peace. But all of us can do something! We can dream of world peace and pray and work for it. However, most of all, we can practice the principles of peace in our daily life and maintain peace between ourselves and others. This is the way peace in the world could become a reality—peace in our own hearts through Christ spreading to others from community to state, to nation, and to the world. Determine to do your part for world peace.—Teen-Age Teacher (F.W.B.).

2. Critics unsparingly condemned President Lincoln for his conciliatory attitude toward the leaders and soldiers of the Confederacy at the close of the Civil War. They asked, "Why do you try to make friends of them? You should destroy them!" Lincoln replied, "Am I not destroying my enemies when I make them my friends?"

A Salvation Army officer tells of a notorious old woman, Maori, who because of her belligerent attitude was called "Warrior Brown." She heard the Gospel and received Christ as her Saviour.

Her life was completely changed. One night as she testified in a street meeting someone hurled a potato at her which hit her on the head. Before her conversion she would have instantly retaliated returning blow for blow. But now she picked up the potato and without a word put it into her pocket. No more was heard of the unpleasant incident until months later. Then she brought a little sack of potatoes to a meeting of the Salvation Army. She said with a glowing face, "I cut up the insulting potato which struck me in the street meeting, planted it, and now I am presenting to the Lord its increase!"

A young minister felt he had been mistreated by another minister. Whether he had actually been mistreated or not was no reason for him to have fuming feelings toward the offending minister. With the passing of time, the young minister became most unchristian in his attitude toward the other minister. How miserable and joyless he became! Such is always the case when any of God's children have bitter feelings toward any one. Although God is "slow to anger" and does not afflict willingly, yet "the Lord shall judge his people." Finally God's chastening rod fell. One Lord's day morning, the hate-harboring young minister was told to go immediately to the emergency room of the hospital. There he saw rigid in death a little boy dear to his heart, who had been tragically killed! He was overwhelmed with sorrow. God seemed to say to him, "Are you now willing to go to that brother minister, confess your wrong attitude toward him and ask his forgiveness?" The young minister weepingly said, "Yes Lord, I'll do anything to get right with You and my fellow minister."—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

3. Many years ago Mr. Brown built a stone wall to hold a steep bank in place back of his house. But now the wall is crumbling. The mortar between the stones has deteriorated, allowing many of the stones to come loose and fall out. Mr. Brown knows he must do something immediately or the wall will collapse, and so he begins to rebuild the wall. This time he will be careful to use good mortar, for he knows that the wall's poor condition is due to the poor mortar he used in it when he first built it.

In the early years of the church a Christian scholar looked out upon a world that was chaotic indeed. Although Rome ruled the world, it was

MISSIONS

Matthew
18:19, 20

Missionary Giving

by John B. Elliston

In the missions section of The Free Will Baptist of May 20, 1964, there appeared a financial report of the North Carolina Board of Missions for February, March, and April of 1964. I hope that many of you noticed that although the total expenditure for missions was only $7,229.78, the balance in the bank dropped from $3,204.09 to $1,534.48. The reason for this drop was that the total income for missions was only $5,560.17 for the three-month period.

Dare any of us look Christ in the face and say, "I have been faithful to your commandment. I have worked and given that they might 'Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.'" Paul said, "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

Let no man beguile you. If we obey Christ and further the cause for which He came, we are Christians. If we are not for Him, we are against Him. There is no middle ground, and there is no neutrality. Christ did not come to make this world a better place to live in. Christ did not come to solve our social problems. And Christ did not come in order that we might have comfortable church buildings in which to worship. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). . . . how then shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? . . ." (Romans 10:14, 15).

How can we possibly expect anything from Christ but to be treated as His enemies, when He plainly tells us that to be His friends we must do whatsoever He tells us (John 15:14). When we disobey Him we are choosing to be His enemies. If every Free Will Baptist in North Carolina gave one dollar per month to missions, just one dollar per month, the income for the mission program would be over $30,000 per month, instead of about $1,500. I very gravely doubt that there is a Free Will Baptist in North Carolina, of whatever age, who doesn't spend much more than one dollar per month on pop and candy, cigarettes, or some other thing solely for his own pleasure. How can such a person look Jesus in the face and say, "My fleeting pleasure of the moment appeared of much more importance to me than the millions of souls for whom you died. My pleasure was of more moment to me than your death on the Cross for them."

Brethren, it is time we woke out of sleep, for our redemption is nearer than when we believed. In a very short time we must all appear at the judgment seat of Christ to give an account for the deeds done in this body, whether they are good, or whether they are evil. If we judge ourselves, we shall not be condemned. Let's all examine ourselves, and see whether we have placed our desires, comforts, and pleasures above our service to Christ in His cause of missions. Remember that He came solely for the salvation of the world.

If God lays it upon your heart to be more faithful to Him in the future, send your offerings to: The North Carolina Board of Missions, C/o Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. Don't forget Mexico in your giving, and please don't be stingy with your prayers. Surely you can pray earnestly, even if your candy and pop are more important than souls. May God bless you is our prayer.

a world that was going to pieces. In the face of this, the Christian scholar observed that Christianity was the only cement holding the empire together. But because Christianity was a very new religion and had at that time touched only a few lives, it still was not able to do the whole job of unifying the empire. But some day, this scholar believed, the church would be able to save civilization.

Like ancient Rome, our world seems to be going to pieces. Our world is in this condition because Christians have failed to act as a strong, cohesive cement. If we are to save our world, we must rebuild it with the strong, new cement of a revitalized faith. The difference between a world going to pieces and a strong, stable world is the cement holding it together.—Standard Commentary.

salvation to every one that believeth: to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Romans 1:16).

Some time ago a good lady requested that I write on certain denominational subjects, and in some way the letter got misplaced, but I remember the request. Those important subjects will be forthcoming in the near future; at least some of them. Thank you, Sister. Pray for me and the real meaning of "Notes and Quotes."

COME YE APART

"Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them" (Matt. 17:1, 2).

"Up into a high mountain apart" signifies a difficult ascent. It means effort, fatiguing effort, before the goal can be reached. Faithfulness to the office of prayer can only be maintained by a sustained and continuous effort of the will. It may involve physical fatigue, but how gloriously worth-while, if only there is obtained a glimpse of the blessed Lord's transfiguring glory!

Faith must lay her burden down in order to see Jesus transfigured. Hezekiah spread before the Lord his troubling letter . . . but it was left in His faithful hands. So must we learn to come apart from anxious care. We may lay aside our doubts, unbelief and burdens, and go on to the deeper things in prayer, and so obtain a heart set free from care.

The green pastures, the still waters, the pure air of heaven, which the Master gives, speak of the peace that enfolds the soul which is bowed, humble and still, fully yielded in His presence. Come ye to the "high mountain apart." —The Regular Baptist Call.

What I Believe As An Original Free Will Baptist

Christ walked with the man until they came upon this small one-room house. The man asked Christ who lived in that horrible little house. Christ asked the man if he was sure he didn't know the answer. Christ then told him the mansion belonged to him. (The man flatly refused to live in that mansion. Christ told the man that that was all he had done on earth.) Christ explained to the man each time he did something for the glory of the Lord more was added to his mansion. Christ also said that what the man did was mostly for self, not for the glory of the Lord. The man named all the things he had done for the church. Christ led him to the broad gate and told him that he had denied Him on earth and that he didn't deserve a home in heaven. Are we like this man?

We can be radiant Christians on Sunday. Some people are perfect Christians on Sunday. Just as soon as their pastor says amen, that's all until the next Sunday. They put it on again just as putting on a dress or shirt. That's not right. We should be living witnesses for the Master everyday.

I believe if we read our Bible that we will be spiritually blessed. Our Bible tells about the creation. It contains love stories. It has some of the most beautiful psalms you will ever read. My favorite chapter in Psalms is Chapter 121. My favorite verse is verse seven: "The LORD shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul." The Bible has many heartwarming stories of young children. The incident that touches me most about little children was the one in which Jesus told the disciples "to suffer the little children to come unto me." There is a verse in the Bible that explains perfectly what will happen to you if you do not believe what the Bible teaches about the Son of God. St. John, chapter three, verse eighteen, says, "He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." "Once my schoolteacher said that the Bible was a historical novel and that people didn't go by it any more and that miracles can happen today just as they did during our Saviour's lifetime. If we are real dedicated Christians, we will tell others about our Saviour. Some people think the only way to be a missionary is to pack up their clothes and go to India, Japan, or someplace else far off. But those who take time to walk across the street, or even walk across the classroom, are missionaries also, my Christian friends. Aren't we responsible for those unsaved souls? Tell your unsaved friends of your Saviour and mine. I truly believe that if we put more trust in Christ and in our people we would have a better world and truly prove ourselves to be Original Free Will Baptists.

If I carefully consider others, God will consider me, and will recompense. Let me consider the poor, and the Lord will consider me. Let me feed His flock, and the Lord will feed me. Let me water His garden and He will make a watered garden of my soul. This is the Lord's own promise. Be it mine to fulfil the conditions, and then to expect the fulfilment.—Unknown.

"Christians do not want laws that compel people to attend church. Thoughtful Christians, however, would not want to repeal laws that have protected multitudes of people from compulsory employment on the Lord's Day. We cannot have freedom of worship if a man can be compelled to work on the Lord's Day. But these Sunday laws are strong, not because they are religious, but because they have been written with the ink of concern for the welfare of all our citizens."

NAE Supports Amendment

† † †
The National Association of Evangelicals has urged legislation which will insure free exercise of religion in our national life and allow reference to, belief in, reliance upon, or invoking the aid of God in any governmental or public document, proceeding, activity, ceremony, school or institution, pointing out the Supreme Court held such freedoms consistent with the concept of separation of church and state under the First Amendment.

Editorial—

IF I HAVE NO CONVICTIONS

I am a minister of the gospel. As such, I am duty bound to preach the good news—the news that God hath sent His Son into the world and that the Son will give eternal life to all who will receive Him. This calling is not just a duty; it is a rare privilege afforded but few men.

As a minister of the gospel, I must be convinced at all times that what I preach and advocate is the truth as revealed in Christ Jesus, the living Word, and the Bible, the written Word. I must first be convinced that my own salvation is real. I must be able to say with the conviction of the Apostle Paul, ". . . I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (2 Timothy 1:12). I must also believe that the Word of God is sure, that it is true, and that it is powerful. I must believe that it is the power of God unto salvation.

Before I can preach with real, honest convictions, I must believe and accept all of the Bible, from Genesis through Revelation. If it is to speak to me and to others through my preaching ministry, I must believe in the miracles of the Bible. It is not my choice to question the miracles; it is not my right to reject those that are beyond human reasoning and comprehension; for where human reasoning and comprehension fail, faith takes over. When faith fails to reveal the mysteries of the kingdom, I must be content with the truth that as long as I am robed in human flesh I will only be able to see through a glass darkly.

If I am to lift Christ up before men, I must believe with all of my heart that He is the only begotten Son of God; that He was conceived of the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary; that He lived a sinless life; that He was crucified for the sins of the world; that He was buried and that He overcame death, hell, and the grave in His bodily resurrection from the grave. If I cannot accept these facts as being fundamental to the Christian faith, then I cannot preach Christ with sincere conviction.

As a minister of the gospel, I must be able to discern that which is evil. I must be able to try the spirits to see whether they are of God or not. I must not accept every wind of doctrine that comes along. I must also know where truth ends and error begins.

I must also believe that man apart from Christ is a sinful being. If I think that there is hope for man's redemption without Christ, then there is really no reason for proclaiming the gospel message at all. Thus, I must preach as though each message is the last one that I'll ever preach.

I must believe in righteous living. I must advocate separation from the world. In this respect, I must practice what I preach; for I am an example of all that I proclaim. It is Christ who lives in me, and I must live in harmony with His will. I will sometimes falter and fail; but He knows, understands, and will forgive.

These are but a few of the truths that must be a part of my ministry. If they are not, then I have no real, personal convictions. In fact, I have no business trying to preach at all. Yet, I do believe these truths with all my heart. I shall seek to promote them as long as I live. I am certain that God will honor those who will strive to do the same. I shall always rise to the defense of these truths. I shall fight for them and die for them if such is ever necessary. I am a minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. For all the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears. And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Timothy 4:2-4).

What I Believe As An Original Free Will Baptist

HAVE you ever really thought about what Free Will means? The dictionary defines it as voluntarily, or the doctrine that human beings are not controlled in their choices. To me it means free from sin.

Jesus went to the Cross and died that we might be free; and where there is a cross, there is a crown. Let's go to God's Word and see what Free Will means to me. F stands for Faith: "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Romans 10:17). R is for Resurrection: ". . . I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" (John 11:25). E is for Eternal: "And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life" (I John 2:25). E is for Everlasting: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). W is for Whosoever: ". . . And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Revelation 22:17). I stands for In: "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you, I go to prepare a place for you" (John 14:2). L stands for Love: ". . . Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind . . . And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" (Matthew 22:37,39). L is for Lo: ". . . and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world . . ." (Matthew 28:20).

I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that Jesus Christ is God—God the Father,

by Kay Barbour

Miss Barbour's article won second place in the North Carolina State YFA Essay Contest. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips of Route 3, Smithfield, North Carolina, Kay is 13 years old. A member of Johnston Union Free Will Baptist Church, she serves as corresponding secretary for her YFA and is a member of the youth choir.

God the Son, God the Holy Spirit. I believe that the Old and New Testaments were written by holy men inspired by the Holy Spirit and that they are God's revealed word to man. They are a sufficient rule and guide to salvation and all Christian worship and service.

I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that there is only one true and living God, who is Spirit, self-existent, eternal, good, wise, holy, just and merciful Creator.

I believe God created the world and all things that it contains for its own pleasures and the enjoyment of His creatures. I believe the angels were created by God to glorify Him and obey His commandments. I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that God created man, consisting of a material body and a thinking soul. He was made in the image of God to glorify his Maker.

I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, in the baptism of believers in water in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, which represents the burial and resurrection of Christ, the death of Christians to the world, the washing of their souls from sin, and the rising to newness of life to serve God. I believe in the Lord's Supper in commemoration of the death of Christ for our sins, and the use of bread which He made the emblem of His broken body, and the cup the emblem of His shed blood; and by it, the believer expresses his love for Christ and faith and hope in Him.

I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that tithing is God's financial plan for the support of His work; for He has said in His Word, "Bring all your tithes into the storehouse." I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that faith is the fruit of obedience to the gospel. The power to believe is the gift of God. Faith, if it has not works, is dead. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that sin cannot be pardoned without a sacrifice and that the blood of beasts could never wash away sin; Christ gave Himself a sacrifice for the sins of the world and made salvation possible for all men. Our Lord not only died for our sins, but He arose for our justification and ascended up to heaven to make intercession for us until He comes again. I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that man is a fallen and sinful being; he must be regenerated in order to obtain salvation, a renewal of the heart by the Holy Spirit whereby

Matthew
18:19, 20

WHAT CAN I DO?

by John B. Elliston

We receive many letters from people asking what they can do to help, or requesting more information about the work here. We are happy to receive such letters manifesting an interest in missions. However, due to the pressure of activities, many times we fail to answer such letters for a long period of time; and then we can only tell a few. To make up for our lack of office personnel, we are trying to answer the letters in this magazine, and through publication of the "Arizona-Mexico Missionary." Please read the missions section of this paper very carefully each week, and make sure that your name and address have been given to us for our mailing list. In that way you will be kept up-to-date on information.

Many persons feel that they can't do anything unless they can do something big and outstanding. This is not true. Every junior-age child, every old-age pensioner, and certainly everyone in between, who wants to can easily contribute one dollar per month to missions. To each of you this is a very small amount; but when you put the many amounts together, much can be accomplished with them. If an individual junior or intermediate feels that he cannot send a dollar, perhaps you can get your Sunday school class to send a dollar. Primary Sunday school classes can also send a dollar per month without much difficulty.

You can send your dollar per month to the North Carolina Missions Board, C/o The Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. Or, if you wish, you may send the money directly to The Dollar Club, Arizona-Mexico Missions, P. O. Box 550, Nogales, Arizona 85621. If you send the money directly here, and state that it is for the Dollar Club, you will be enrolled as a member of the club. As a member, you will receive a beautiful membership certificate which you can display on the wall of your Sunday school classroom, or in your bedroom, or wherever you wish. In addition, you will receive a card to carry in your purse or billfold showing that you are a member for this fiscal year.

If you send the money directly here and join the Dollar Club, however, we want you to understand that you are pledging to send the dollar per month for a year. This is very important to us, as we then depend on your dollar to carry on the work; and we purchase things necessary for the operation of the mission work here, depending on your dollars to pay for them. Please do not join unless you have fixed in your mind and heart that you will send your dollar each month for one year. Our year begins on July 1 and ends on June 30 of the year following.

If it is your intention to send a dollar or more occasionally, you can send it to the mission board, or here. But let us know that it is intended as an occasional offering. All such offerings are very greatly appreciated, but as you know, we cannot depend upon them to come in with any degree of regularity.

In the next issue of The Free Will Baptist I shall try to tell you some other things which you might do to help. Watch for that issue. If you know of people who do not receive The Free Will Baptist, tell them about these articles and encourage them to subscribe so that they can keep abreast of happenings. In this paper you can find considerable information concerning the procedure to follow to assure yourself of receiving The Free Will Baptist every issue.

Our greatest need, and one which every one of you can do, is to have every one of you to pray for us everyday. Please put us on your prayer list, and remember to pray everyday that souls will be saved in Mexico that day. We have services in one place or another everyday. We want for souls to be saved everyday. May God bless and strengthen you, and may your service for Him be great.

USED CLOTHING FOR MEXICO

The Rev. A. B. Bryan, secretary-treasurer of North Carolina missions, offers the following advice for sending used clothing for Mexico.

In collecting used clothing, please collect only clean, good used clothing. Both winter and summer garments can be used, all sizes.

Pack in substantial cardboard boxes tied sufficient to undergo rough handling.

Contact McLean Truck Lines. Goods will be carried "deadhead," charity, to Chicago. From Chicago senders must pay regular rate of approximately $4.00 per hundred.

When sending clothing, write to missionary directors and inform them of packages being sent. If postage is not paid by sender it will be necessary to have director to bill sender for same.

Send used clothing to Rev. J. E. Timmons, c/o Free Will Baptist Missions, P. O. Box 517, Eagle Pass, Texas. There is no deadhead for clothing to Eagle Pass.

Send used clothing to Arizona-Mexico Missions c/o Rev. John B. Elliston, P. O. Box 550, Nogales, Arizona.

Used clothing makes a good contact for the missionaries. They have regular days they give out clothing. Many homes are opened as a result.

Please do not let gifts in clothing take the place of financial support to the mission cause. The mission cause needs your prayers and support always.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

MRS. CORA ELKS CRAWFORD

On January 17, 1964, our Father saw fit to call from our midst Sister Cora Elks Crawford. We, the members of Pincy Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Greenville, North Carolina, wish to express our respect to her. She was a member of our church and the ladies auxiliary. Although an invalid for five years, she welcomed visitors and had a smile for everyone.

Mrs. Crawford was born on April 9, 1888. She leaves to mourn a daughter-in-law, a sister, a brother, and a number of relatives and friends. May God comfort them.

We submit that a copy of this be sent to the family, a copy to the Free Will Baptist paper for publication, and a copy kept for the minutes.

Good Enough for Them?

Oswald J. Smith, Litt. D.

● Are not the religions of the heathen good enough for them? Why disturb them? Why send missionaries to them? Leave them alone. They are far happier as they are. Their own religions are good enough for them.

Such are the statements we hear on every side. Such are the objections that are raised to missionary work. Travelers come home and tell us that the heathen are perfectly happy and contented as they are, and that the work of the missionary is unnecessary.

But we do not think that their own liquor is good enough for them. Oh, no, we ship them ours. Nor is their own tobacco good enough for them. They must have our cigarettes. Their own education is not good enough either, so we give them ours. Their medical work also is inadequate, and so ours is substituted. Even their agricultural methods won't do, so the United Nations introduces ours.

Now the Bible says that the "the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty" (Ps. 74:20). And so they are. The trouble is, the tourists do not stay long enough to find out. Heathenism is characterized by cruelty. Fear grips their hearts. They are in constant dread of evil spirits, spirits that must somehow be appeased.

Africa

I am thinking now of my visit to Africa and the story I was told. It was at midnight. Suddenly there was a death wail in the village; a little baby had died. Immediately the witch doctor was called. The villagers were aroused. Before very long he had pointed out a woman whom he accused of having caused the death of the little one. She immediately protested, insisting that she was innocent, but she had to be tried. They hurried her away to the tree that stood in the center of the village. She was told to climb it and then hurl herself from the topmost bough. She began to climb. Presently she sat on one of the branches and again protested her innocence. Everyone knew she was telling the truth. She was one of the finest women in the village, highly respected by all, but the witch doctor had pointed her out as the one guilty, hence she had to prove her innocence.

Then she commenced climbing again, until she had reached the very highest limb of the tree. There she sat, again maintaining her innocence. Then, before the horrified gaze of the missionary, she threw herself down to the hard ground and was instantly killed, most of the bones of her body being broken. She was thereby judged guilty. Had she been innocent she would have been unharmed.

That, my friends, has happened in the case of hundreds upon hundreds. Why? Because of religion. Heathen religions demand it, hence there is no escape. Would you be willing to take her place? Until you are prepared to accept her religion and give up your Christianity let no one ever hear you say, "Their religions are good enough for them." If they are not good enough for you, then they are not good enough for them.

Indo-China

Come with me to Indo-China. We are among the tribes-people. A helpless little girl is lying on her back, her head firmly held between the knees of an inhuman monster, who with a coarse saw is deliberately sawing her beautiful front teeth off at the gums. The perspiration stands in beads upon her almost naked body as she endures the dreadful pain. Nerves are exposed. Blood pours from her mouth. Pain, indescribable, is endured, until at last the hideous, barbarous operation is over and she is released, to live her life with nothing but ugly gums. Would you change places with her? What about your own little girl? Would you want her to suffer such torture? Yet countless thousands have borne it and all because of a heathen religion, little innocent victims, unable to escape. That is heathenism. If such a religion is good enough for them, it is good enough for you.

Algeria

Will I ever forget the story of that Mohammedan who stood before the people in the center of the town and hacked his skull with a great, long knife until the blood flowed freely, and then took newspapers and stuck them into those open gashes, after which he deliberately struck a match and set the whole on fire? There he stood, the fire sizzling the blood, burning the paper and the hair; the man enduring the most excruciating agony.

Why? you ask. Because of his religion. He must afflict his body; he must suffer; he must endure torture in order to gain a place in heaven, and so he tormented himself. Would you be willing to exchange places with him?

The heathen are not better off as they are. They are not happy, they are miserable. They are most unhappy, they are wretched, they suffer, they are in fear of evil spirits constantly, they are always attempting to appease them. There is no rest in heathenism, no peace, no joy. Only Jesus Christ can impart joy. Therefore let us do everything we possibly can to give them the Gospel before it is forever too late, that they may experience the joy that you and I know in Christ. Let us never again say, "They are better off as they are. Their religions are good enough for them."—Tract.

The pastor and the church extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend these services.

The superintendent, the Rev. M. L. Johnson, states: "We are happy to report that the response to the Mother's Day gift appeal has been most gratifying. Our people have once again demonstrated their interest in and support of the ministry of their Children's Home."

SPECIAL NOTICE

Those who have not sent in their gifts are urged to do so as soon as possible. Any organization having sent the equivalent of $1 per member and who has not been included in the lists which have been published is urged to so notify the Home in order that they may be included in the final report to be made as of June 15.

Cragmont Assembly Welcomes Weekend Visitors

Cragmont Assembly cordially invites those who are planning vacations in the mountains of Western North Carolina, or who have business in the area, to use the facilities of the Assembly. Rooms in the motel and in the hotel are available every weekend from Saturday morning until Monday afternoon and the rates are very reasonable.

During the following periods families or small church groups can be accommodated for longer periods: June 1-14, July 12—August 2, and August 30—September 30.

Vacationing families can also register for Family Week, August 24-29, by writing to Mr. Fountain Taylor, Richlands, North Carolina.

Requests for reservations cannot be accepted during the following periods, since the entire facilities have been reserved for sponsored groups: June 15 through July 11 and August 3 through August 22 (weekends excepted).

Last year several families and church groups came in on Saturday and stayed until Monday. A Sunday school is maintained regularly for the benefit of Cragmont workers and weekend guests. Weekend groups are privileged to use the chapel or tabernacle for any activities they may choose to plan. Among those coming to the Assembly for weekend vacations last year were Sunday school classes, and in one case, a whole Sunday school and church group with their pastor.

Make Cragmont your "home away from home" this summer!

For reservations write Cragmont Assembly, Route 1, Black Mountain, North Carolina.

Pastor to Be Honored on Silver Wedding Anniversary

The Woman's Auxiliary and the Layman's League of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Tarboro, North Carolina, will honor their pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Raymond T. Sasser, with a reception on their Silver Wedding Anniversary, Sunday afternoon, June 14, from three until five o'clock. The reception will be held in the fellowship building of the church. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Reedy Branch Announces Revival

Revival services will begin at Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, near Winterville, North Carolina, June 15 and continue through June 20. The services will begin at 8 p. m. each evening.

The Rev. J. W. Everton, pastor of Johnston Union Free Will Baptist Church, will be the evangelist. Mr. Everton is a former superintendent of the Children's Home at Middlesex.

Special music will be presented each evening by the church choir and other persons and groups. The song service will be under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. Willis Wilson. All are invited to attend these services and all are urged to pray for their success.

Attention Original Free Will Baptists!

At the Fifty-First Annual Session of the North Carolina State Convention which convened in Raleigh, the convention designated Father's Day, June 21, as "Superannuation Day" in our churches. The board of superannuation urges all Free Will Baptist churches and other organizations to send liberal offerings on this occasion to help provide funds for this most worthy cause.

Father's Day is a most appropriate day to remember the founding fathers of our denomination. Is there a better way to express your gratitude to those faithful ministers who sacrificed to establish our church, than by presenting a gift to the work of superannuation?

The program of superannuation includes not only that of assisting the retired and disabled ministers and minister's widows, but also that of providing a program for the active ministers. As you give to this cause you are giving for the past, present, and the future.

We urge you to receive a special offering for superannuation on Father's Day, or at a time nearest Father's Day that will best fit into your program. If it is not feasible for you to receive a special offering, would you please send a special gift from your treasury or urge special individual gifts. You are a leader in your church and as such the success or failure of this plea will be determined by you. Can we count on you to help? Please call this matter to the attention of your people and be sure that they are given an opportunity to give to this cause.

Don't fail—Send your Father's Day gift for superannuation to: Walter Reynolds, Route 5, Dunn, North Carolina 28334.

Christian Education

Fagg Elected Dean of College

Daniel W. Fagg Jr., a native of Mount Olive, North Carolina, has been elected academic dean of Mount Olive College by the board of directors. He will assume his duties in September.

For the past five years Fagg has served as assistant to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Emory University, Atlanta. From 1956-58 he was dean of Mount Olive College.

Fagg holds an A. B. degree from Wake Forest College, M. A. from the University of North Carolina, and has completed course requirements for the Ph. D. degree at Emory. He is the son of Mrs. Belle S. Fagg of Mount Olive.

Fagg will succeed Dr. Roy C. O'Donnell, who requested that he be relieved of his administrative duties in order to devote full time to teaching. The college board also granted Dr. O'Donnell a one-year leave of absence for research and post-doctoral studies.

O'Donnell is the author of two articles recently published in professional journals. An article in the May issue of The Journal of Educational Research is based on a research project conducted by Dr. O'Donnell in cooperation with the United States Office of Education.

His article in the May issue of Education discusses the implications of his research investigating the relationship between awareness of grammatical structure and ability in reading and writing.

Dr. O'Donnell will return to Mount Olive College in the fall of 1965 as chairman of the department of English. He holds the Ph. D. degree in English from Peabody College, Nashville, Tennessee.

In announcing the appointment of Dean Fagg and a professional leave for Dr. O'Donnell, President W. Burkette Raper declared, "Mount Olive College is fortunate to secure the combined services of two of the most capable and promising young educators in North Carolina. We believe that their administrative and educational leadership will help put Mount Olive in the forefront of the junior colleges of the South."

Dates to Remember—

June 14—

College Campus Campaign Sunday

The college needs $25,000 to complete payment for the original fifty acres of its new campus. This money must be raised during June if we are to begin our building program on schedule. Reaching this goal of $25,000 is a matter of the highest urgency for Mount Olive College and Free Will Baptists everywhere.

Individuals, churches, Sunday Schools, and other church organizations are requested to make special gifts to the college for this purpose.

June 20—

Carteret County Benefit Dinner

The fourteen Free Will Baptist Churches of Carteret County, with a membership of 1,200, have set a goal of $5,000 for their dinner for the Mount Olive College Development Fund to be held at the Beaufort School Lunch Room. T. A. Taylor of Sea Level is the chairman of the county steering committee. Other members of the committee are the Rev. Jerry Rowe of Newport and Reginald Styron of Davis.

June 28—

New Campus Dedication and Ground Breaking Ceremony

With faith in God and the Free Will Baptist people, Mount Olive College has scheduled a dedication service for the original fifty acres of its new campus and a ground breaking ceremony for its first buildings at 4 p. m. on this date. If the campaign to raise $25,000 is successful, construction can begin shortly after this service.

SUBSCRIPTION PLANS

Because we desire to see THE FREE WILL BAPTIST in each home in the denomination, we have adopted three plans for soliciting subscriptions:

1. The Every Family Plan: Under this arrangement the local church votes to place The Free Will Baptist in each home. The church clerk sends us the names and correct mailing addresses of the families. We send The Free Will Baptist to these people and bill the church quarterly for the entire subscription price, less ten percent. If any families in the church are already subscribers, we subtract the amount of their credit from the quarterly bill. Names can be added to or subtracted from the church list at any time, upon notification from the church clerk. Bills are sent by us to the churches on this plan according to the calendar quarter.

2. The Church Group Plan: This arrangement is designed for organizations in churches which do not adopt the Every Family Plan. A Sunday school class, woman's auxiliary, league, or other group may solicit subscriptions for us. They send at least five subscriptions in the first lot, deducting ten percent from their total subscription collection at the individual subscription price ($2.50 per year). They keep the remainder of their collection. For instance, if a church group solicits five subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist in its first lot, its total collection for these subscriptions will be $12.50. The group keeps $1.25 for its treasury and sends us $11.25 together with the names and addresses of the people to whom The Free Will Baptist is to be sent for one year. The plan starts anew at the beginning of each fiscal year, July 1. No credits given in any one year may be carried over and credited on the new year.

3. Individual Solicitations: Those not following Plan 1 or 2, may wish to offer service to the Lord by soliciting five one-year subscriptions to The Free Will Baptist and sending us the full subscription collection ($2.50 per year per subscriber). We place his name on our honor roll of solicitors which appear in The Free Will Baptist. When he has solicited 10 one-year subscriptions in any fiscal year, we shall allocate a bonus subscription to his credit; he may use this bonus to renew his own subscription for one year or he may send us the name and mailing address of some other person to whom we will send The Free Will Baptist for one year without charge.

Receipt books and subscription blanks may be obtained upon request.

Please add 3% tax for North Carolina subscriptions.

Trusting simply means that when we have yielded ourselves to the Lord. We then have perfect confidence that He will manage us. We consequently leave the whole care and management of our lives in His hands.—H. Whitall Smith.

Woman's Auxiliary

Newport, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church held its monthly meeting June 3 in the fellowship building. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Agnes Garner, and the group sang "Work for the Night Is Coming." Mrs. Garner also read the Scripture taken from Matthew 12:25-30, and then offered the evening prayer.

Mrs. Kathaleen Slaughter, Mrs. Lois Bryan, and Mrs. Jean Rowe gave a most inspiring program on the subject, "The House That Unity Built." The group then sang "Take My Life and Let It Be."

During the business session the twelve members present answered the roll call with a Bible verse. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Floraine Slaughter.

Bear Grass, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Rose of Sharon Free Will Baptist Church held its May meeting in the home of Mrs. Seth Bailey with eight members present. The Scripture lesson, taken from Proverbs 31:10-31, was read by Mrs. Athaleen Bailey. Mrs. Faye Williams was in charge of the program, "The Touch of a Wise Mother." The group joined together in praying sentence prayers and then sang "My Mother's Bible" and "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms."

During the business meeting the treasurer collected the monthly dues. The auxiliary voted to furnish flowers for the church when the Second Union Meeting met May 30. A discussion was held on the Bible school which is scheduled for June 1-5. The meeting closed with the praying of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and enjoyed by all.

Jesus Within

AN old sculptor had in his shop a model of a beautiful cathedral. But it had lain so long in the shop that no one would stop to see it because of the dust. One day the old sculptor brushed off the little cathedral and put light within. Then the people flocked around the model church to admire its beauty. It was the light within that made the people look at it.

It is the same way with us. It was not until Jesus washed off the sin dust and placed eternal life within our hearts that we became beautiful. Now we are to be the light of the world.

Prayer

■ MARY SLESSOR, a missionary to Africa, said, when asked to tell what prayer had meant to her: "My life is one long daily, hourly record of answered prayer. For physical health, for mental overstrain, for guidance given marvelously, for errors and dangers averted, for enmity to the gospel subdued, for food provided at the exact hour needed, for everything that goes to make up life and my poor service. I can testify, with a full and often wonder-stricken awe, that I believe God answers prayer. I know God answers prayer!"—Christian Victory.

Grace

■ IN JAMES 1:11 the flower of the grass is called "the grace of the fashion of it." This suggests that what blossoms and flowers are to the grass of the field, grace is to the life of the Christian. The gold and the green, the blue and the red of the spring are the grace of the fields. So lowliness and love are the beauty of humble lives. The rose of Sharon and the lily of the valley were very ordinary though very beautiful flowers. So grace can make very ordinary lives fragrant and lovely.—Council Fires.

NOTES

|| AND || QUOTES

By J. C. Griffin

The following two articles on judgments and attitudes are given this week for your thinking. Next week the subject of this column will be "Father's Day."

FOR KINDLIER JUDGMENTS

by Donald F. Campbell

The element of behavior has not been lost in the Christian religion, nor is it likely to be. There are still many erroneous conceptions concerning how a Christian will act in differing situations without allowing for the uniqueness of the individual, the environmental factors which have helped to determine his character and his personality.

We do not claim that God's redeeming acts of love in the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ should be judged on a different basis for each person according to his mental attitudes, yet I am convinced that we have too often judged people's "Christian behavior" on some standard which we have set for ourselves without due regard for the profound differences among individuals.

Restraint on Judgment

Those familiar with modern psychology are far less likely to make superficial judgments concerning the conduct of fellow-Christians than those less well-informed about man's normal and abnormal behavior.

Most of us are familiar with the pious Christian who is self-righteously critical of and superior to his erring neighbor. Often we are suspicious of such critics, believing that they condemn most severely those people whose faults represent their own greatest temptations.

Year after year more information is being brought to light about the social sciences, especially psychiatry and psychology. Religious thinkers have sometimes ignored this knowledge.

Religionists will be less likely to label every manifestation of abnormal behavior as sinfulness when some of the insights about human action and reaction now known to the professionals become common lay knowledge. Clergymen may become more helpful in pastoral counseling when they better understand the motivations of their parishioners and the psychological causes of their problems. Yet, the phrase, "to know all is to forgive all," is misleading.

To understand better the inner aggressions of an individual as well as his environment during formative years would make us more kindly in our judgments, but it would not explain the uniqueness of the Christian faith. It is important that we realize that man is an animal with tendencies to hurt what he loves as well as what he hates; to close his fists as easily as he offers his hand; to seek power and secretly claim to be his own God, as readily as he praises the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Man has long since known this about himself, and he often tries by his own human effort to change this nature of his over to one of idealistic behavior exemplified by the Master. The result is often frustration, and an increased sense of guilt because he always fails: it shows a poor conception of psychiatry and Christianity. That pleasing front, well-mannered and respectable, which a man shows his neighbor may cover a multitude of faults. The so-called "ideal" church member may well be working off his guilty conscience rather than consciously serving the Lord.

Inadequate Information

In so many situations we ascribe motives to people's actions on the level of scant knowledge and considerable prejudice.

Some psychiatrists, notably the Meningers, are reluctant to classify even well-known mental illnesses. They prefer to consider their patient on the basis of a complete entity. He is a whole individual, greater than the sum of his parts and more complex than can be described by any name. He is to be treated, not as a case with a specific malady, but as a whole personality. Here psychiatry and the Christian faith seem to blend. Would not more things in common be accepted about both God and man if authorities in these two fields could work more closely together, pool their knowledge and share their faith?

Yet, to my knowledge, very few psychiatrists and theologians, look to one another for deeper insights and new truths in their own respective fields.

Psychiatry is not a substitute for Christian faith and faith alone seldom does what psychiatrists do successfully everyday. Perhaps the next generation of scholars will willingly cooperate to the end that a more profound understanding of man may benefit all of us.—The Presbyterian Outlook.

ATTITUDES ARE IMPORTANT

by James L. Sullivan

Life is largely made up of attitudes. As we think, we feel. In the same manner we talk, we see and we act. Attitudes give mood as well as direction, temper as well as temperament. Attitudes color conversation and affect our direct and indirect relationships with people. A Christlike person will maintain a Christlike attitude insofar as he is able.

Study carefully the attitudes of Jesus. Even though he carried the heaviest burden a man ever bore, and though he endured more stirring sorrow than any other living human, he never lost his vigorous optimism or his charitable attitude toward people.

After all, does not the Christian have every reason to be filled with joy and hope? He does not merely exist in a routine of eating, sleeping and breathing. The Christian really lives! Yea, he lives abundantly, overflowing. Effervescent enthusiasm belongs to him and is natural to him. The thought of living forever is his constant source of vibrant, comforting hope.—Biblical Recorder.

You Disturb Me

A certain farmer who, it seems, had professed to be a Christian, was awakened to his dishonesty. He went to his infidel neighbor and confessed to having stolen from him four sheep which he was ready to restore.

"Keep the sheep," said the unbeliever. "You disturb me. If you go on like this, I shall be convinced that there is something to this religion after all."—The Standard.

"The entrance fee into Heaven is free; but the annual dues must be paid—all you have, dedicated to God's service in this life. How urgently we need revival of family prayer, individual prayer, drawing nearer to God that we might hear Him clearly and get the power to go out and obey his will."—Eual Lawson in Biblical Recorder.

Questions & Answers

Conducted by J. P. BARROW
3824 Richland Ave., Nashville 5, Tenn.

QUESTION: I have been taught and have always believed in the verbal inspiration of the Bible. Recently I have heard those who preach express doubts concerning the historic position of Christians regarding the Word of God. Do you believe in the verbal inspiration of the Bible?—N. J. C., Ohio.

ANSWER: Yes, indeed, I do and shall always through all eternity. All born-again, orthodox, fundamental Bible lovers believe in the verbal inspiration of the original manuscripts which were written in the Hebrew and Greek languages. We also believe that God has so guided the translators of our English Bible, as well as those who have translated the Bible in other tongues, seeing to it that we have exactly the sense of the Word of God as it was when our forefathers, the first recipients received it from the original writers. Thus, the Word of God has been put into the language that we understand without adding to it any harmful thought or taking from it that which would hinder us from getting God's message as He intended that we should have it.

The consecrated scholars of the past have spent literally years of their lives, some of them in prisons working night and day comparing the different sources, manuscripts, versions, quotations from church fathers, discoveries of archeology, sparing neither time nor money, nor effort to give the world the unadulterated Word in its exact original meaning even to the slightest shade of difference in the use of words, phrases, and expressions in whatever form this accuracy called for. The story of how the King James Version, as well as that which tells of how our American Standard Version was translated, reads like a chapter from one of the best sellers in the literary domain, it is so very interesting.

The longest telegram ever sent up to that time was the New Testament in its entirety sent by wire from New York City to Chicago by 99 telegraph operators.

What was the reason for this haste? Just so that Chicago could sell it on her streets immediately.

What other is this than a testimony to the divine origin of God's Book, the Book of books? "By verbal inspiration we mean that the Holy Spirit so controlled the pen and thought of human authors that the very words were God breathed." —L. T. Talbott. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness" (2 Timothy 3:16). "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21).

Then we may turn again to the Word for verses that indicate that God will bring the unadulterated Word to those who so desire it before unchristian translators and interpreters contaminate it, so simple minded men can understand its teaching sufficiently to be saved. "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John 7:17). "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Matthew 24:14).

We know that it is still understood in sufficient clearness that it is the power of God unto salvation (see Romans 1:16-18 and Hebrews 4:12) to those who want to be saved, for as it is preached from day to day we hear of a continuous harvest of souls that God is adding to the church. When this rash of liberalistic versions that is coming off the press almost with every passing day has so modernized the church with their part truth and part falsehood, it may be that at that time Christ will come for the true Church and will leave the lost world of Roman Catholics, liberal Protestants, and cults for a unified sway over all the minds and hearts of men who love a lie and hate the truth.

LOVE OF LIFE

by Mrs. H. L. Bowen
Winterville, North Carolina

Life is a magnificent heritage and a solemn trust. God made the universe for man. He made the earth for man to live upon. He made the sun, moon and stars to give man light by day and night. Man was created in God's image. His life was given to express the image and glory of God, to develop and beautify the earth on which we live, and to enjoy the benefit and blessing of the relationship between the finite and the infinite. Man is not here to stay. He is here to learn of God in the academy of time and to graduate in the university of eternity. Surely every man ought to love life beyond every other gift of God. A short life well lived is longer than the longest life badly lived.

The Christian, above all, should love this life. To him it is an endless spring-time. To the sinner, life is as autumn which fades into an endless winter.

To some life is but a gala day of pleasure and amusement, or only the harvest time of treasure and honor; and about the time their pride and ambition settle down in the snug inheritance of this life, the body goes to the grave and the soul to its eternal destiny.

Some souls are left to drift in an unconscious state with the body in the great current of time, unaware of the great end of life.

Life is what we make it. It would be better to live and die an idiot than to be a genius who, with all his abilities and opportunities, sees life only through a glass colored by avarice or ambition. The Cross of Calvary is the symbol of the soul's infinite dignity. God estimated that a human life was worth the sacrifice of His only begotten Son; and as He values our redemption, so He values our lives.

Heaven and glory are the crowns of life to the saved and faithful. If a man should gain the whole world and lose his own soul, what has he gained? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

There are some people who have no appreciation of life and health until they are lost. No matter how well prepared we are to meet the Maker, we still cling to the life we have all loved so long. Life finds its center, source, and perfection in Christ.

GRAMPS LENDS A HAND

Lois A. Kauffman

NOBODY in Chambers knew where Gramps Jacobs came from and nobody seemed to care. The older folk knew that he lived in a little shack at the end of Main Street and that he sold vegetables from a large truck patch.

The youngsters of the town knew more about him than their parents did—much more. They knew he raised the best watermelons and cantaloupes in the country. They knew, too, that all they had to do was go visit Gramps in melon season, and he'd fill them to splitting with melons. None of them kept track of the roller skates and bikes he fixed for them, or how many dolls and skinned knees he mended. Gramps was like a second father to them. He always found time to do things for them that their own fathers never found time to do.

And that is why it nearly broke Gramps' heart one bright May morning when Julie and her pals snubbed him.

Gramps had gotten wind of a Junior Missionary Project over on Lincoln Street, and he hustled off to give them a helping hand.

He saw the girls raking over a piece of plowed ground at one end of a plot and the boys raking at the other end. In between the two plots was an unplowed "neutral" plot that both sides could use for resting or playing.

"Girls," he began eagerly, "let me help—"

But Julie looked up at Gramps and frowned. Now Julie must have forgotten how many times she had asked Gramps to fix her old roller skates and how many times he had stuffed her with melons, for she said, "Go on, Gramps, this is strictly for girls! We girls are having a contest with the boys in our class to see which can make the most money on our missionary project. We don't need your help!" The girls ignored Gramps after that and raked energetically, their pigtailed flying in rhythm with their raking.

Poor Gramps! He trudged off, his shoulders drooping, and mumbled sadly to himself. Then he heard a cheery voice that took the droop out of his shoulders.

"Hi, Gramps," sang out Tim Taylor, "did those girls give you a rough time?"

"Yes," Gramps answered with a sigh, "they don't need any help, they say. Maybe you fellows could use an extra pair of hands," he suggested.

"No, Gramps, as the girls said, this is strictly a Junior Project. Our Sunday School teacher is the only adult who can help us, and she is on duty at the hospital today. But nobody said one word against taking advice. And what we fellows don't know about gardening would fill a book!"

"Advice, huh?" Gramps chuckled. "Well, now, givin' advice is right up my alley!" He squinted his eyes at the garden plot. "To begin with, you are planning to have your rows run in the wrong direction."

"Wrong. Why!" asked Jinks Brown.

"Wrong, 'cause the first heavy rain that comes along will wash everything out, and wrong 'cause it will be harder to irrigate that way."

"Irrigate?" Tim yelled. "Who said anything about irrigating?"

"Just what would you do if the Almighty withheld the rain just when your little radishes and carrots need a little shower? Just let 'em dry up, I suppose? Fine bunch of missionaries you fellows are!"

"Whew!" whistled Tim, "there's a lot more to gardening than meets the eye."

"Now, you are catching on," chuckled Gramps. "Where is your twine to make rows with?"

"Twine?" Jinks blinked at Gramps. "We were just going to pull a hoe along and make furrows that way."

Gramps snorted, "There's only one thing to say about a garden made like that, the rows are usually so crooked a mole can't follow them, and cut-worms get dizzy lookin' for the next plant!" The boys whooped with laughter, and Gramps chuckled at his own joke, as he pulled a roll of twine from his pocket.

He told the boys how to stretch the twine tight to make straight rows. He told them what to plant here and what would do best over there. He told jokes and funny stories to make them forget how hot and tiresome the work was.

"Time to tote you a drink of water," he said once and shuffled off for a bucket of cold water and a dipper. He smiled happily when the boys said, "That sure hits the spot, Gramps!" He sat on a stump and chewed a grass blade contentedly, as he watched them work.

"Right there I'd plant a few rows of flowers," he suggested once.

"Flowers?" Jinks glared at Gramps. "Flowers! What do you think we are—girls? Flowers! Huh!"

"Yes, flowers," Gramps said, sticking out his chin. "How are you fellows aimin' to sell your garden stuff?"

"Door to door, I suppose, why?" David asked.

"Just what I thought—and the girls, too?"

"I suppose so, why?"

"Uh-huh," Gramps nodded. "I can just see 'em tripping from door to door in starched white blouses, neat pigtailed and dimples. Then I can see you fellows trainin' along in T-shirts and jeans. Seems to me you need something to catch the eye a little, too. Now if you had a small bouquet of sweet peas or zinnias to give for free with each order—"

"Gramps, you're a genius," Tim said clapping Gramps on the back. "Why don't you hustle down to the store and get some flower seeds while we finish raking the rest of the ground?"

When the last seed was covered up, Gramps squinted at the sun.

"Believe there is enough time left for a ball game before dinner," he said.

Tim looked at his watch. "Only 10:45," he said surprised. "I figured we'd be busy till noon."

"You fellows had a mind to work," Gramps praised them.

"Wonder if the girls are—whee-ew!" whistled Tim, looking at the girls' garden. "Did they make all their rows as crooked as that one?"

"I'm afraid so," sighed Gramps. "I've been keepin' one eye on 'em. I'm afraid they won't be very proud of their missionary project when those plants start comin' through."

The boys shouldered their tools and marched triumphantly past the girls' garden. The girls weren't working energetically any more. Their hair hung limp and sweaty.

Julie glared at the boys as they marched past. "Gramps helped you boys," he accused them.

"Not guilty," Gramps smiled. "Not one tool did I touch. Looks like we boys have time for a ball game before dinner," he added, as he turned to follow the boys.

Julie looked at the boys neat garden. "Gramps," she called in a wee little voice, "I guess we need you after all!"—Words of Cheer.

It is far better to get busy "as" the church than "for" the church. When laymen get busy FOR the church, they are apt to be frying pancakes. When they are busy AS the church they are about the Master's real business—sharing with others their knowledge of what it means to be a Christian—Lutheran Bishop Chandler Sterling.

In his recent devotional book, The Word Became Flesh, E. Stanley Jones gives freshness to the meaning of the incarnation of Jesus with this story: "A father told the story of the three bears every night to his children. 'This is silly,' he said to himself. 'Why not have it recorded and played for them.' He did. Then he sat and read his paper in peace. But after listening to the recording the little boy came downstairs and climbed into his father's lap. The father, surprised, said, 'Son, didn't your hear the story, and wasn't it my voice?' 'Yes,' said the boy, 'but it doesn't put its arms around my neck.' Any faith which lacks the incarnation is a faith whose God doesn't put His arms around the neck of His children."—The United Evangelical.

An addition to the Church should mean a subtraction from the world. One should not be counted in both places.—The United Evangelical.

What true Christians there are in each generation are contemporary with Christ.—Soren Kierkegaard.

"God . . . commandeth all men every where to repent" (Acts 17:30).

WHEN God gives a command to man it implies that man has ability to obey. The command makes a man responsible to obey. If a man does not obey, he (1) incurs guilt, and (2) does not avail himself of a great privilege. The command to repent is addressed to "all men every where," and a fearful doom awaits those who do not obey the Gospel.—H. P. B.

The Sunday School Lesson

FOR JUNE 21

Our Missionary Imperative

LESSON TEXT: Matthew 28:16-20;
Romans 10:8-18

MEMORY VERSE: Acts 1:8

I. INTRODUCTION

The Church, which the Lord Jesus has through the power of His Spirit separated from the world as a peculiar people for His name's sake, has been made by Him custodian of the gospel, which is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believes, and charged it with the solemn duty and great responsibility of making it known to a lost and dying world. This displays a great deal of confidence on the part of the Lord Jesus in both the ability and the consecration of His Church. He has no other plan for the propagation of the gospel and the salvation of the lost; and we, who are called by His name, cannot afford to come short of His expectations for our ministry.

That which we term "the Great Commission" constitutes the marching orders of the Church. It is applicable and binding to every member of every local church, as Paul wrote to Timothy: "And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also."—Senior Quarterly (F.W.B.).

II. HINTS THAT HELP

1. The disciples met with Jesus at an appointed place on a mountain to receive the Great Commission (v. 16).

2. They worshiped Jesus, and He revealed that all power in heaven and on earth is His (vv. 17, 18).

3. He gave the command to make disciples of all nations and to teach them the full gospel message (vv. 19, 20).

4. The means of salvation is always near (v. 8).

5. With the heart man believes unto righteousness and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation (vv. 9, 10).

6. No one has any right to be ashamed of salvation (v. 11).

7. All are needy sinners, but the same Lord is over all offering salvation (v. 12).

8. Salvation is never denied any trusting soul (v. 13).

9. Faith comes by hearing the message of salvation as it is proclaimed by those who are sent (vv. 14, 15).

10. Although salvation is available to all, many will not hear and accept it (vv. 16-18).—Bible Teacher (F.W.B.).

III. ADDITIONAL TRUTHS

1. Donald Hook is a businessman. He studied in the field of agricultural engineering and became an irrigation specialist. He often expresses his thankfulness to God for being of service to so many people.

It all began one morning during a coffee break. One of Don's friends suddenly deluged him with questions about farm irrigation. These inquiries developed out of an agricultural problem referred to Don's friend from Colombia, South America. "This problem is from a missionary down there," explained the friend. "It came to me by way of Data International."

The two men spent several hours during their spare time working out a practical solution to the problem. Though it was hard to visualize the actual Colombian conditions, the men felt that the suggestions they were submitting would eventually help many people.

"Never thought there was a way I could help a missionary effort in such a practical way. And all to the glory of God," said Don. As you can imagine, it wasn't long before Don Hook volunteered his services to Data International as a regular consultant in his special field.

The writer is personally acquainted with the founder and president of Data International. He is a born-again believer and is totally committed to the main thrust of missions—world evangelism. God has given Wil Rose unusual gifts in technology. Pooling the "know-how" of God's people in this country and placing it at the orders of the other people of the world is Data International's business.

The Data Assistance Corps stands as a challenge to the evangelical Christian today. Write to it for further information if there are those in your class, like Mr. Hook, who can have the added blessing of serving God by sharing their skills the world around in real Christian love. The address is Data International, 437 California Avenue, Palo Alto, California.—Adult Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

2. "Many years ago I was sitting by the side of an aged saint of God, an old woman of eighty-five. I had been reading this chapter (Matthew 28) to her, and when I finished I looked at her and said, 'That is a great promise. She looked up and said sharply, with the light of sanctified humour in her eyes; That is not a promise at all, that is a fact. Oh if the Church of God could remember that fact!'"—G. Campbell Morgan.

3. We speak of the missionary "imperative." It is based on the great commission, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15). It is imperative because of the eternal issues at stake: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (v. 16). We dare not separate the commission from the consequences.

Many lands formerly opened to the Gospel are now closed. Is that because of the church's neglect? Mohammedanism sprouted and spread centuries ago because of decadent Christianity, loss of power and because of lack of missionary zeal and expansion. In our day, can the spread of the blight of communism be explained in the same way?

In The Unrecognized Christ, John Gardner tells of a friend who went as a missionary to the Fly River region of New Guinea to replace the murdered James Chalmers. On a furlough he told Gardner of the type of people he found there. They seemed utterly devoid of moral sense. If a baby began to cry, the mother would throw it into a ditch and leave it there to die. If a man broke his leg, he, too, would be left by the roadside. "Well, what did you do for people like that? Did you preach to them?" Gardner asked. "Preach? No, I lived!" was the reply. "When I saw a forsaken baby crying, I comforted it. When I saw a man with a broken leg, I mended it. When I saw people in distress, I took them in and pitied them. And those people began to come to me and say,

What does this mean? Why are you doing this?' Then I had my chance and preached the Gospel." Gardner asked, "Did you succeed?" The missionary responded, "When I departed, I left a church."

Communism feeds on poverty, illness and discontent. Christians have the only antidote—riches of life, peace and health. Man cannot live on just bread. Though bread is necessary, it is not filling enough. Man therefore needs the Bread of Life. When Jesus found the hungry multitude, He fed them. Let us follow in His footsteps!—Senior Bible Teacher (Union Gospel Press).

4. When Jesus gave the great commission, He made the whole world a mission field. The responsibility to carry out the great commission rests on the shoulders of each one of us. Jesus' command tells us to go. Today many have accepted the challenge to be "Co-missionaries" in all parts of the world. Africa, India, South America, Europe, and countless other places are hearing the gospel today. But lest we forget, the world also includes our nation and our community.

In every church there are those who cannot go to the foreign field. For various reasons such as age, health, or family responsibilities a great number of people cannot be missionaries abroad. Some of these may be so physically incapacitated that they cannot evangelize even in their own community. But all can be "Co-missionaries" who support the work of spreading the gospel with their money and prayers.

But unfortunately some will not accept even this challenge; so they are "Non-missionaries." But to all those who will accept the responsibility to go or to support those who do go, God has given His promise: "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world."

What kind of a missionary are you preparing to be? Can you be a "Co-missionary" either at home or abroad? Or are your responsibilities such that you must be a "Co-missionary"?

Beware, lest you become a "Non-missionary"!—Standard Commentary.

The test of courage comes when we are in the minority; the test of tolerance comes when we are in the majority.—The Biblical Recorder.

The Free Will Baptist

What I Believe As An Original Free Will Baptist

the sinner receives new life and becomes a child of God. This is called in the Scripture being born again. I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that Christ was born of the Virgin Mary, that He died and was buried and arose on the third day, and is at the right hand of the Father making intercession for me. I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, that Jesus died on the Cross because He was a ransom for our sins and that the Scripture says that He died not just for my sins alone, but for the whole world and for the Church. He was resurrected because it was foretold by Christ many times; it was evidenced by the empty tomb.

I believe, as a Free Will Baptist, in the Second Coming of Christ, because it has a large place in the Scripture; one out of every thirty verses in the Bible mentions it. It is the hope of the Church, and the Second Coming will cause us to live more holy lives. We, as believers, receive comfort from this doctrine. No one knows the time of His coming, the day nor the hour. There is nothing to prevent the coming of Christ at any moment. As a Free Will Baptist, I pray that I might be a member of God's Church and be in the first resurrection when He shall come back for His own. As a Free Will Baptist, I want to bear my cross and tell others the gospel story, and say in my heart, as the song we sing, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord." When I come to the end of life's journey, I pray that I can say as Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Timothy 4:7, 8).

It is easy enough to be steady and cool—when another shoulders the load.—The United Evangelical.

The greatest and wisest thing any human being ever does is to pray to God.—Frank Laubach.

THIS IS TRANQUILITY

Begin right—that is to say, begin with Christ, and take Him for inspiration, for pattern, for guide, for companion. The rest of faith—when we cease from having to take care of ourselves; when we cast all our anxieties upon Him; when we can say, "Thou dost undertake for me, and I leave myself in Thy hands"—this is tranquility more real than any other that the heart of man can conceive.

Cast yourself upon Christ, and live in that atmosphere of calm confidence; and though the surface may be tossed by many a storm, there will be "peace, subsisting at the heart of endless agitation."—Alexander Maclaren.

Literacy's Reach to Souls

"The illiterate people, I tell you, are the easiest for America to get. They are easy because they are hungry. They are like a drowning man reaching up and saying, 'Help me!' Often we call them wicked when they grope or hold their hands out to the Communists because they do not know any other direction. We are the ones who have been wicked because we did not go out and help them first. . . . 'But,' many say to me, 'you must not make them literate because, if you do, the Communists will come and supply the literature; so keep them ignorant.' My answer is that we can write better than the Communists. Even Khrushchev knows that. After he was in America he scolded the Russian writers, saying, 'Our writing is as dead as a government bulletin. Writing in America is so fascinating that it cannot be resisted. Write as they do in America.'

"Let us not fear the writers of Russia. Let us fear our own inaction, our own indifference."—Frank C. Laubach.

The Clock

The clock of life is wound but once,
And no man has the power
To tell when the hands will stop
At late or early hour
To lose one's wealth is sad indeed.
To lose one's health is more.
To lose one's soul is such a loss
That no man can restore.

Thirty-nine people died while you read this short poem. Every hour 5,417 go to meet their Maker. You could have been among them. Sooner or later you will be. Are you ready?—Tract.

Ten Years Ago in the 'Baptist'

The North Carolina Free Will Baptist Ministers' Conference closed its 40th session at Cragmont Assembly, Black Mountain, North Carolina, June 11, 1954. The conference is composed of over 300 Free Will Baptist pastors serving churches and doing evangelistic work for the denomination throughout the state. The attendance to this conference was the largest gathering of its kind at the denomination's summer assembly.

Editor's Comments—

A MR. FRANCIS A. DAVIS could have been writing in reference to Free Will Baptist ministers when he wrote in "The Maryland Baptist," "It is easy to see why Baptist ministers change churches so often. They can't even sit still during a session. A constant stream of arrivals and departures took place even during the most spirited debate. If church members acted like Baptist pastors at a convention, it would be impossible to hold worship service . . ."

Mr. Davis was one of those who was nominated for the presidency of the Southern Baptist Convention in Atlantic City. It seems that our Free Will Baptist ministers would do well to take note of such an observation. As a layman, Mr. Davis noted a true characteristic of this restless age as he attended the SBC. Not many ministers are immune; or at least it seems that way. Strictly speaking, ministers should strive to practice what they preach—even when attending a convention.

"COMMUNIST SCHOOLS that teach subversion and conspiratorial strategies and tactics are operating openly in the United States."

The above quotation was made in the March issue of "Mechanix Illustrated" by Senator Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota. As we read quotations from his article which was reprinted in the June issue of "Christian Victory," we were amazed. Mr. Mundt states further: "Communist schools are teaching a chosen few of our fellow Americans how to undermine their own country, how to destroy their democratic way of life, how to prepare the nation for a Communist take-over."

He points out that there are schools in several of the larger cities which are subversive, that "there are some 8,000 Red institutions which train students in the devious techniques of how to infiltrate, subvert and eventually destroy the structure of our democratic society. A surprisingly large number of them can be found in the United States. Among the Communist schools whose names appear on lists compiled by our own government are these (presented by states): Commonwealth College, Mena, Arkansas; People's Educational Center, Los Angeles, California; California Labor School, San Francisco, California; Abraham Lincoln School, Chicago, Illinois; Boston School for Marxist Studies, Boston, Massachusetts; Samuel Adams School, Boston, Massachusetts; Michigan School of Social Science, Detroit, Michigan; Joseph Weydemeyer School of Social Science, St. Louis, Missouri; Tom Paine School, Westchester County, New York; George Washington Carver School, New York, New York; Walt Whitman School of Social Science, Newark, New Jersey; Ohio School of Social Sciences, Cleveland, Ohio; Philadelphia School of Social Science and Art, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Pacific Northwest Labor School, Seattle, Washington; and the Seattle Labor School in Seattle, Washington, which specializes in developing Communist Party members among labor groups."

One cannot help noting the patriotic names given to many of these schools. Let us dedicate ourselves to the combating of the evils of Communism through Christian faith and courage.

NEXT SUNDAY IS FATHER'S DAY. This is the day each year that we supposedly pay tribute to all fathers—be they young or old. We realize that some credit is due "dear old Dad," but somehow Father's Day has never had too great an impact. For some reason most fathers just feel like shying away from any special recognition. Most of us are just doing our duties—not overdoing them. We love our children and wives, and they love us. That's what really counts after all. By the way, if you have been taking the old man for granted, just let him know that you appreciate all he does. That alone will make his Father's Day a good one.

RELIGION is not something to be relegated to the satin-and-lace class; it holds plenty of interest and challenge for virile men—though our actions sometimes suggest otherwise. I was thrilled to find three rich portions in the Book of Ephesians which fling a very demanding challenge to the best of men. In Ephesians 5:23, 25-28 God presents the challenge of the right relationship of a man to his wife; in chapter 6, verse 4, his relationship to his children; in 6:10, 11, his relationship to God.

HUSBAND

"The husband is the head of the wife." I have heard this verse quoted (more often misquoted) many times. It pictures in my mind a big, strong man, overly conscious of what he considers his masculine superiority, as he berates his loyal, loving wife with this disconnected fragment of Scripture.

However, I have noticed in the Word of God that when a position of authority is given, some qualifications are also laid down. A pastor must be "vigilant, sober, . . . not greedy of filthy lucre." A deacon must be "grave, not double-tongued . . ." So the ruler of the home must rule in God's way if he is to remain the rightful head. God's own stated requirement is, "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it."

Adam lost his opportunity to be head of the Church, when he chose sin in the garden of Eden. Christ earned this forfeited position when He chose Calvary's cup in the garden of Gethsemane. So a man must manifest this same completely altruistic spirit to earn the right to be head of a wife!

A woman is not under obligation to obey the command of an unregenerate, unreasonable husband. She may go to church. She must obey God rather than man. She must serve God!

Now, if a man has met the qualifications of unselfish love for his wife, he will not find it difficult to be the head of his home "as Christ is the head of the church." Christ does not force a person to do anything in direct violation of that person's will. So a husband should so behave that his wife will want to fulfill his desires. Then he is "the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church."

A man's love for his wife is shown also by his willingness to protect her life, honor, reputation, and spiritual welfare. "Likewise, ye husbands, dwell

God's Standards for a Husband and Father

by ALTON C. SMITH

with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered . . . be courteous" (1 Peter 3:7, 8).

II. FATHER

"And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" (Ephesians 6:4). The Ephesians who received this letter lived in a thriving center of paganism. Here it was that the immoral goddess Diana was worshiped (Acts 19:28). These pagans would beat a child mercilessly, carelessly, even to death if they wished. The purpose in punishing a child should be to correct and train the child, certainly not to give vent to pagan anger. A man particularly needs to remember that his hands can hit hard enough to kill a healthy full-grown man. What of a fragile child?

Perhaps one reason that some people mysteriously turn criminal is that in their childhood they were not punished on the basis of right and wrong, but rather according to the irritation of the parents. As a result they never learned the lesson, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

It was the habit of pagans to overcommand their children and subsequently to vent their wrath on the child for failure to finish the duties assigned. A child does have great and marvelous potentialities and abilities, but we should also bear in mind that he has limitations. Harnessing is good, but chaining is vexation.

"Ye fathers . . . bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Sometimes, I fear, the men read this verse, "You (mothers), bring them up." Let us note that this is the father's duty.

The word nurture carries with it the idea of training or perhaps drilling. The context suggests that it is the father's duty to drill his children in the right relationship and responsibility to God.

Certainly the father should be the leader of the family in religious habits—grace at the table, family prayer, church attendance—and in physical habits—manners, temperance, etiquette.

Once a Sunday School teacher described Christ to her pupils and asked them to guess whom she was talking about. As she reached about midpoint in her description one child said innocently, "That's my daddy!" God expects us as fathers to be a living epistle of Christ to our children.

A man's prayer relationship to God is beautifully summed up in Ephesians 6:10, 11—"Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."

A truly successful father seeks God's

MINISTERS' CONFERENCE

NORTH CAROLINA MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION OF ORIGINAL FREE WILL BAPTISTS

Cragmont Assembly—Black Mountain, North Carolina

June 22-26, 1964

THEME: "In or Out"

No man should be allowed to fill the pulpits of a denomination until he knows the doctrine and understands its government. He should be denied his position as a minister and as a representative of the denomination if he should preach, teach, or practice something that is not in keeping with the denomination of which he is a member, or if he feels that he cannot defend the doctrine and government under all circumstances, even to the point of giving his own life. (John 7:17; Acts 2:42; 1 Timothy 1:3—4:6, 13, 16; 2 Timothy 3:16; 4:2; Titus 2:1; 3:1; Hebrews 13:9; 2 John 1:9, 10.)

What's News?

by C. L. PATRICK, Pastor
FREE UNION FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH
Walstonburg, North Carolina

RALPH W. SOCKMAN, in his book How to Believe, says, "The bad deeds of men are still so rare that they make the news columns." I glanced at some recent headlines in a daily newspaper to see if he was correct. There were accounts of wars both hot and cold, accidents, what famous persons were saying and doing, crimes of all kinds, civil rights demonstrations, and unusual occurrences.

I had no difficulty finding news items about men who abuse their families and waste their income on alcoholic beverages; but I found very little about the multitude who ". . . live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world" (Titus 2:12). It was easy to find accounts of adultery and divorce, but little could be found about those who are faithful to their marriage vows. Both juvenile and adult delinquents make the headlines, while those who quietly prepare themselves to serve are ignored. There are many stories of those who destroy life, but seldom do we see in print the story of the doctor who labors faithfully at all hours to preserve life. Those who stir hate among races make the headlines, while the teacher who strives to build good citizens is ignored.

When I was in school at Atlantic Christian College, the professor of Bible pointed out that it was to the credit of the ministry that whenever a minister committed a crime it made the headlines. If a farmer divorces his wife, that's not news for it happens so often. If a merchant gets drunk, or an employee takes small sums from the cash register, that is not news for it is so prevalent; but even though some who have been ordained have brought shame to the ministry and to the cause of Christ, it is still so unusual that news editors make headlines of it when a minister does that which is unbecoming to the principles of Christianity.

It appears that in order for a news item to be worthy of publication in our newspapers it must be about something evil, unusual, new, or about famous persons. If someone came from another planet and read our newspapers and viewed the news as presented by means of television, he would be led to believe that we are far more immoral than we really are. And man is bad enough without picturing him at his worst; for the psalmist declares, ". . . verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity" (Psalm 39:5).

Had there been newspapers in Jesus' day I doubt if there would have been room in their columns for an announcement of His birth. What editor would have cared about another baby born in poverty? Certainly there would have

When Father Prays

When Father prays he doesn't use
The words the preacher does;
There are different things for different days—
But mostly it's for us.

When Father prays the house is still,
His voice is slow and deep;
We shut our eyes, the clock ticks aloud,
So quiet we must keep.

He prays that we may be good boys,
And later on, good men;
And then we squirm and think we won't
Have any quarrels again.

You'd never think, to look at Pa,
He once had tempers, too.
I guess if Father needs to pray,
We youngsters surely do.

Sometimes the prayer gets very long
And hard to understand,
And then I wiggle up quite close,
And let him hold my hand.

I can't remember all of it—
I'm rather young, you see;
But one thing I cannot forget—
My father prays for me.

—Unknown.

been no mention of His journey to Jerusalem when He was twelve, for they still thought He was just a carpenter's son.

What news reporter would have written about His baptism, for multitudes came to be baptized of John? Who would have believed the wild story of His temptation? I think they might have published His first sermon or at least the mob action which resulted from it, for news publishers seem to delight in publicizing the activities of mobs. Publishers certainly would have been interested in His miracles; such as, changing water to wine, healing the incurables, and raising the dead. No doubt they would have delighted in publishing pictures of Jesus walking on the water.

But what editor would have published the Sermon on the Mount delivered by a preacher not even approved by the religious authorities? What editor would have subjected himself to ridicule by telling his readers how Jesus cast out devils and forgave sins? Who would have considered it news when Jesus placed His hands upon the heads of little children and blessed them? When Mary anointed Jesus with precious ointment, little did the world realize that that was the most newsworthy event that occurred in all the world that night.

I feel certain that they would have published the trial of Jesus. Editors always find space to print criminal proceedings. Reporters would have delighted in describing the angry and dangerous attitudes of the mob. The natural man is sadistic enough to delight in reading about torture, so I think they would have given space for a story about His crucifixion. (Newspapers are careful to publish what their readers want to read.)

It isn't likely that the story of His resurrection would have been published, for powerful forces were at work even to the extent of bribery to prevent it. Instead, the news would have been, ". . . His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept" (Matthew 28:13). The greatest event in the history of man, THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST, would not have been published.

But for the Bible written by holy men of God as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, this world would have missed the best news and the greatest story ever told. Praise His name!

Officers of FWB Fellowship

The Rev. Walter Carter is vice-chairman of the Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptists. Mr. Carter was elected to this position in August of 1963 when the Fellowship met in Colquitt, Georgia. He has been an active force for the cause of original Free Will Baptists, especially in North Carolina. He has served as vice-president of the State Convention and moderator of the Piedmont Conference. He has served as pastor of the East Rockingham Free Will Baptist Church for 25 years. This is a record which speaks for itself and one that few ministers can claim.

The Rev. Paul Irvin of Newton, Georgia, is treasurer of the Fellowship and was also elected in 1963. He has served several churches in Georgia. He attended Norman Junior College, Norman Park, Georgia, for two years and Mercer University, Macon, Georgia, for two years. He has done additional work on his master's degree. He has been an active leader among Georgia Free Will Baptists.

The Fellowship of Original Free Will Baptists will meet July 7, 8, in Marianna, Florida, at Chipola Junior College Auditorium.

New Sandy Hill Revival Slated for June 21-27

Revival services are scheduled for New Sandy Hill Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Bailey, North Carolina, for June 21-27. Services will begin each evening throughout the week at 7:45 with the Rev. Dewey Boling as the evangelist. The pastor, the Rev. Charles Morgan, will assist in the meeting.

The church and the pastor cordially invite the public to attend all of these services and be much in prayer for their success.

Kinston Girl Wins DAR Award

Miss Cynthia (Cindy) Lou Everett, eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack T. Everett of 2218 Greenleaf Road, Kinston, North Carolina, was winner of the DAR Citizenship Award presented to a worthy student of each of the sixth grade classes of Teachers' Memorial Elementary School Thursday, June 4, 1964, by the Daughters of the American Revolution. The award is given to students who have demonstrated distinctive qualities of dependability and leadership in the first six years of school. Miss Everett was chosen by the teaching staff of the school.

Miss Everett is a member of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston, where she is a member of the chapel choir, the AFC, the junior league, and the junior Sunday school class. She has been a Girl Scout for five years and is a "star" scout in Cadet Scout Troop No. 315. She has also been a member of the National Piano Guild for four years.

Miss Everett will enter the seventh grade at Harvey Junior High School in the fall.

Burns to Conduct Mount Zion Revival

The Rev. W. S. Burns will be the guest minister for revival services at Mount Zion Free Will Baptist Church near Roper, North Carolina, June 21-27. Services will begin with the eleven o'clock service on Sunday morning, and nightly services will be held each evening at 7:30 through Saturday night. Special singing is being planned for each service.

The pastor, the Rev. Charlie Overton, and the church extend a cordial welcome to the public to attend these services.

Powhatan Church Announces Revival

The Powhatan Free Will Baptist Church near Smithfield, North Carolina, announces revival services for June 21 through June 26, with the pastor, the Rev. Kemery Ard, as the speaker. Services will be held each evening at 7:45. The public is invited to attend.

State Convention to Meet at Wilson

The North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists will hold its annual meeting on September 16, 17, 1964, at the American Legion Building, Wilson. The building is located on U. S. Highway 301, just south of Wilson, near the fair grounds.

Baptizing Service In Magdalena

JOHN B. ELLISTON

For our first baptizing service in the mission in Magdalena we had the happy privilege to baptize ten believers who wished to follow Christ in this ordinance. Although the Rev. Jose Guzman is the pastor of the mission there, he asked me to help him with the baptizing because he feared that he might have difficulty with some of the larger candidates. The oldest candidate to be baptized was Mrs. Cypriana Becerra, about 65 years old, and the youngest was Jose Alberto Guzman, the youngest child of Brother Guzman, who was 6 years old.

We had one young man, about 19 years of age, of whom we hope for great things in the Lord. Another candidate was a young lady of 16 or 17, who had been among the very first ones we began with in the Nogales Academy in 1957. Some of our candidates were from the church Brother Guzman has in Nogales, Sonora, and some of them were from Magdalena. Later, we hope that all of you will have the opportunity to see the movie we took of the baptizing.

The work continues to go forward. We need your earnest prayers that we may continue to accomplish the will of the Lord. The church building in Magdalena is at a standstill, waiting for more money. Also, Brother Guzman is now trying to build a baptistry at the church here in Nogales, Sonora. You see, Brother Guzman can't come on this side of the line, and on the other side at present we have to go to Magdalena, a distance of 60 miles, in order to be able to baptize. However, a woman who recently accepted the Lord in the church there, and her husband are helping to build a baptistry here in Nogales, Sonora, so that they can baptize here.

We need your prayers as to whether we begin a work in Santa Cruz, as we need your prayers concerning the work in Los Nogales. Please pray for us, and send offerings to the North Carolina Mission Board, c/o the Rev. A. B. Bryan, P. O. Box 308, Ayden, North Carolina 28513. Be sure to tell him what the money is for. May God bless all of you is our prayer.

What Are We Doing In Mexico?

J. E. TIMMONS

It is good for us to examine our mission activities and ask ourselves, Just what are North Carolina Free Will Baptists doing in Old Mexico? I want to give a report at this time on the mission work, especially in the state of Coahuila, Mexico.

In the first place, each of our six mission stations are in areas that are unchurched, in areas that have been neglected by Evangelicals and in some ways by the Roman Catholic Church.

In this way we are reaching a neglected people who are hungry for the gospel message of hope, yet have been misled by the countless agencies of darkness. Free Will Baptists of North Carolina can justly feel a joy in their hearts in that God has given them a trust in being faithful stewards with the preaching of the powerful gospel of grace to the lost who are without hope below the border in Old Mexico.

Also each of us missionaries feel the keen responsibility of going forth with the Word of the living God, presenting it to the people, being found faithful before God and our beloved Free Will Baptist churches that are standing by us in prayer and faithful support. I am thinking of Brother Herman Rodriguez of our church in Jiminez. This man has been serving in the cause of Christ for fourteen years. He and his family need the prayers of our people at this time as part of their home burned a few days ago. No one knows how it caught fire.

We are planning on summer revivals for our Mexico work. Will each of our

Carl Sandburg Describes Challenge Of the Church

Famed poet Carl Sandburg wrote the following testimony as to why he believed in the church:

"Most of us agree that Protestants have never hammered very hard on the duty of going to church. We have said all the time it is necessary for the church to make itself attractive and interesting so that people will want to come.

"There are obligations on the part of people not to sit at home listening to the radio. That is too easy. Do something difficult. Go through rain and snow.

"You have to feel that you are a part of the greatest organization on earth, that it is going to outlast all the rest of them. You've got to tell the importance of your own individual participation in its life.

"You can't go tramping around from church to church and fulfill your obligation. You've got to settle on one church and throw your life into it and fill it up.

"Who would want to go to a picnic all the time and eat out of other people's baskets? It is our obligation as members of one church or another church, to give ourselves to it. It is the only hope of peace and good will to men that exists among us.

"It is the church and its Saviour, its Prince of Peace, who offer such high and holy opportunity. Support it with your undeviating loyalty."

Kinston, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Free Will Baptist Church met on Monday night, June 8, at 8 p.m., in the church sanctuary. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. James C. Lucas, president. The program, "The House That Unity Built," was presented by Mrs. J. E. Harris, with the Scripture taken from Matthew 12:25-30. A duet, "Open My Eyes That I May See," was sung by Joanne and Peggy Bryan. Mr. J. E. Harris closed the program with prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. William E. Tyndall, called the roll; eighteen members and thirteen daily Bible readers were present. The minutes of the May meeting were read and approved. The following committee chairmen gave their reports: youth, benevolence, and orphanage. A motion was made, seconded, and carried to send $20 to the Children's Home to be used for beds and dressers. Mrs. Lucas gave a most interesting report on the recent auxiliary convention she attended, thus bringing news from the Children's Home, Mount Olive College, Cragmont Assembly, and the mission fields. Mrs. Jack Everette resigned her position as YFA sponsor and youth chairman. A motion was made, seconded, and carried that her resignation be accepted with a rising vote of thanks for the splendid job she had done. The executive committee of the auxiliary will appoint a chairman to fill this vacancy.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned with the auxiliary motto.

Fountain, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Friday night, May 15, in the church. Mrs. David Hobgood, program chairman, opened the meeting by having the group sing "Faith of Our Mothers." Mrs. Hobgood had Mrs. Lovelace Gardner read the Scripture taken from Proverbs 31:10-31. Mrs. Hobgood gave the opening prayer. She also gave the program,

"The Touch of a Wise Mother." Mrs. James A. Summerlin read the first verse of hymn, "My Mother's Prayer"; Mrs. Robert Oakley read the second verse; Mrs. Lester Gay read the third verse; Mrs. Lovelace Gardner read the fourth verse; and Mrs. Hobgood read the chorus. The program was closed with a chain prayer by the group. Mrs. Robert Bell requested Mrs. Lovelace Gardner to serve as president for the remainder of the late president's term, Mrs. Bessie Goff. This was agreed upon by the members.

Mrs. Gardner, the newly elected president, presided over the business session. Mrs. Lester Gay, secretary-treasurer, called the roll and received the dues. She also read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved. This was followed with the treasurer's report. A motion was made and seconded to remember Mrs. Carol Tedder with a love gift. She is a patient in the Pitt Memorial Hospital.

PLEASE NOTICE!

For the information of those attending the Fellowship Meeting of Original Free Will Baptists at Chipola Junior College, Marianna, Florida, July 7, 8, the cafeteria at the college can furnish meals as follows: July 7, after evening service, refreshments for fellowship hour, cost—free; July 8, cost—breakfast, $.50, lunch $1.00.

Mrs. Mildred W. Pelt, Mrs. Audrey Eiland, Mrs. Annie Bell Taylor, and Miss Miranda Ditty will serve as hostesses for the evening refreshments on July 7.

Those who plan to stay overnight should get their reservation in as soon as possible. You can contact the Rev. Chester H. Pelt, Chipola Junior College, Marianna, Florida.

Fountain, N. C.—The Young People's Auxiliary of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church met Thursday night, May 14, in the home of Judy Faye Ellis. For the program Brenda Goff gave an interesting talk, taking her Scripture from Matthew 7:1-12.

After the business meeting the group enjoyed playing games, and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Sixteen members were present for the meeting.

The next meeting will be June 25, 1964, at the home of Bobbie Jean Langley.

WHERE CAN I FIND HIM?

I have seen men find Him where the shepherds did—in the barn; where Paul did—on a journey; where Mary of Magdala did—in the garden; where the jailer did—in the prison. I have seen men find Him on the seas, in the forests, down in the mines and in the most evil places outside of hell.

I saw a man find Him on his knees in a tavern, with his head on the bar over which he had bartered all his life's happiness. There is no spot on earth where Christ will not come to meet us if we will only seek Him with a heart that so thirsts it will go to any length to find Him.

It is not where, it is how we seek. If there is any particular place where we lost Him, there must we go to find Him.

That is why Mary went to the grave. He was not there, but it was there that she had lost Him, and so she came back with her breaking heart to find Him, and He was found of her.

If you know on what part of the journey you lost Him, for what sin you sacrificed Him, it is there you must seek Him, and there you will find Him.

Campus Dedication And Ground Breaking Ceremony

Sunday, June 28, 4 p.m., will be a memorable day for Free Will Baptists. On this day Mount Olive College will dedicate the original 50 acres of its new campus and at the same time hold a ground breaking ceremony for the first buildings planned for the new campus.

A current campaign to raise $25,000 to complete payment for this property is expected to be highly successful. Friends who have not been contacted are invited to use the form below for making their gifts. Churches which have not already mailed their contributions may bring them on June 28.

The dedication and ground breaking services will be held on the new campus. Those attending should come to the main campus on Breazeale Avenue, and guides will be on hand to direct traffic to the proper place on the new campus.

All friends of Mount Olive College are cordially invited to attend these services.

Kinston Church to Observe College Day

The First Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston, North Carolina, has set Sunday, June 21, as "Mount Olive College Day." President W. Burkette Raper will teach the young people's Sunday school class at 9:45 a.m. and preach at the 11 a.m. worship service.

The Rev. A. B. Bryan, pastor, has announced that the church will seek a goal of $1,000 for the college.

Among the students from the Kinston church attending Mount Olive College is Charles Lancaster, president of the Student Government Association.

Carteret County Benefit Dinner

The Free Will Baptist churches of Carteret County will hold their 1964 benefit dinner for the Mount Olive College Development Fund on Saturday, June 20, 1964. T. A. Taylor of Sea Level, announced that the churches have set a goal of $5,000. The county contains 14 churches with a combined membership of 1,200.

The dinner will be held at 7 p.m. in the Beaufort School lunchroom.

Area Foundation Presents $81,000

Dr. Robert H. Shackelford, president of the Mount Olive College Area Foundation, has announced a gift from the foundation to Mount Olive College in the amount of $81,000. Presentation of the gift was made to college president W. Burkette Raper by R. S. Williams, treasurer of the foundation, and Dr. Shackelford.

The gift, in the form of $72,700 by check and $8,300 in bonds, will be applied on the cost of the first academic building planned for the new 90-acre campus located on U. S. Highway 117 west of Mount Olive. Foundation tests for the building are currently being made and a contract is expected to be awarded in July.

Estimated cost of the modern two-story classroom and faculty office building is $339,000. President W. Burkette Raper announced that the foundation gift brought to $225,000 the amount that has been contributed to the college development fund.

An additional $50,000 is being sought in a campaign now being conducted in Goldsboro by the College Area Foundation. William Hagar, chairman of the drive, declared "The success of our efforts in Goldsboro is essential if the college is to begin its building program on schedule. We are sure we will reach our goal of $50,000."

In presenting the gift, Dr. Shackelford said, "I am delighted that the foundation was in position to help to this extent. We will continue to exert maximum effort in securing additional funds from every source possible in support of the long-range building program approved by the college board of directors."

The Mount Olive College Area Foundation was chartered in June of 1963 by local friends of the college for the purpose of providing "permanent financial support from private sources to strengthen the educational program of Mount Olive College in accordance with its Christian tradition."

The foundation maintains an office in Mount Olive with Albin Pikutis as full-time executive director.

When I was small, you were my steady rock,

My roof, that kept me sheltered, safe, and warm,

My strength that helped me weather every shock,

My port in any storm.

What can I say today to make you see
I love you still, however far I stray?
A little girl can climb on Daddy's knee.
A grownup child must find another way.

May there be someone near you on this day,

Someone to cheer your heart and make you glad,

To slip up softly to your side and say,
"A happy Father's Day. God bless you, Dad."

FATHER'S DAY

The third Sunday in June has come to be a great day in the religious observations of special days. Designated as "Father's Day," it is observed by many churches with much coloring. I am just a little afraid that many of us put Father's Day and Mother's Day above the Lord's Day. I feel that it is perfectly all right to observe special days, but these days must not take the place of the Lord's Day. If so, we get to the place that we worship "the creature more than the Creator." Paul tells us about a people who worshiped and served the creature more than the Creator (Romans 1:25).

We should love our fathers, obey them, and strengthen their faith by letting them know that we love them, and do all that lies in our power to let them know that we love them. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him" (Psalm 103:13). We are taught here that fathers should have mercy. They should not be rough and unkind to their children.

FATHERS ARE TO CORRECT THEIR CHILDREN

Solomon said, "My son, despise not the chastening of the LORD; neither be weary of his correction: For whom the LORD loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth" (Proverbs 3:11, 12). This correction does not mean that a father shall get mad and whip his child. When a father is mad, he has no business chastizing a child. Sometimes a father comes in half drunk and jumps on a child and whips him unmercifully. Then that father needs more whipping than the child.

FATHERS ARE TO INSTRUCT THEIR CHILDREN

"Hear, ye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding. For I give you good doctrine, forsake ye not my law. For I was my father's son, tender and only beloved in the sight of my mother. He taught me also, and said unto me, Let thine heart retain my words: keep my commandments, and live" (Proverbs 4: 1-4).

A Christian father is to teach his children to live in keeping with the Bible. Only a born-again father can teach his child the ways of the Lord. Fathers are to rear their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Paul said, "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" (Ephesians 6:4). Fathers, you cannot bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord until you are saved and are Spirit filled. But when you have dedicated your all to the Lord, then you are prepared to show your children the way to Christ. But if you drink, gamble, curse and swear, fight your wife, and "kick up the devil" around home, your children will usually follow you to eternal damnation.

Solomon says, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6). Fathers' sins are often accepted and practiced. Notice this with good judgment: "Now in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam the son of Nebat reigned Abijam over Judah. Three years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Maachah, the daughter of Abishalom. And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him: and his heart was not perfect with the LORD his God, as the heart of David his father" (1 Kings 15:1-3). There are a few exceptions, of course; but most children follow the life of their father. A righteous father usually brings up righteous children. A sinful, ungodly father usually has children to follow him.

The story of a father and his little son has been told for generations. There was a big snow on the ground. The father went out and started to his work with some concern. When he looked back, he saw his little son following. He said to him, "Son, you must go back. You cannot follow Dad this morning; the snow is too deep." The boy replied, "I can, for I am walking in your tracks."

Usually children follow the examples of their parents; but, as said before, there are exceptions. I have known a few fathers to do so wickedly that their children were disgusted and were really ashamed to acknowledge their fathers as being their fathers.

CONCLUSION

If you are unsaved, living in sin, making your home a place of sorrow and unhappiness, for God's sake and the sake of your children, accept Christ and live right and make your home a place of happiness.

OBITUARIES

REV. H. M. McADAMS

The Rev. H. M. (Hiram) McAdams of Route 3, Huntsville, Texas, went home to be with the Lord, Sunday, May 24. He had been in failing health for some time, and had been bed-ridden the last five weeks of his life. He would have been 85 years of age June 18.

Mr. McAdams had been a minister of the gospel for 52 years, and had pastored churches in Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, and Texas. Many across the nation came to know and love him during the years he and his wife, Lizzic, were engaged in evangelistic work.

He was buried in the Falba Cemetery north of Huntsville. Surviving besides his wife are two daughters.

The Rev. Alvin F. Halbrook, pastor of the Bright Light Free Will Baptist Church near Bryan, Texas, conducted the services.

God of the Humdrum

If God is not in your typewriter as well as in your hymnbook, there is something wrong with your religion.

If God does not enter your kitchen, there is something wrong with your kitchen. If you can't take God into your recreation, there is something wrong with your play. If God for you does not smile, there is something wrong with your idea of God.

We all believe in the God of the heroic.

What we need most these days is the God of the humdrum, the commonplace, the everyday.—Peter Marshall.

QUESTION: How was Saul of Tarsus able to make the Christians blaspheme?—O. T., California.

ANSWER: I guess you have reference to "And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities" (Acts 26:11). The Revised Version's rendering of this verse might help us some in knowing just what Saul did. It is as follows, "And punished them oft times in all the Synagogues, I strove to make them blaspheme." It does not indicate in the latter version referred to above that Saul succeeded in making Christians blaspheme. History bears out the fact that hundreds of Christians in the apostolic era suffered torture and even death before they would deny their faith in the Lord, who had bought them by His precious blood. On the other hand, history sounds a sad and pathetic note when it tells of some that recanted and forsook Christ.
