 OBITUARIES.

J. M. Caudill was born Dec. 25th 1874, and died Feb. 2nd 1898. He professed faith in Christ in early life. Joined the church at Roaring River on Tuesday after the 4th Saturday in Aug. 1889; where his membership remained until his death.

This youth has been taken away,
 He has gone to the judgement day;
 O! may our souls be ready too,
 When the dark waters we pass through.

Jane A. Gentry (whose maiden name was Jane A. Burcham) was born Oct. 23rd 1834, and departed this life May 20th 1896.

She professed faith in Christ in early life. She was married to Stanley Gentry May 4th 1854. There was born unto them three children, two of whom profess Christ to know. She joined the Cool Springs Baptist church shortly after her conversion, but afterwards moved her membership to Roaring River church.

She went into the constitution of Round Hill church where she remained until death. Her last days were days of suffering and pain which was borne with patience. Could we but see through the pearly portals of the New Jerusalem and view "Aunt" Jane around the throne, we could exclaim "It is enough" "It is enough."

Farewell dear children here below,
 My Jesus calls and I must go,
 Farewell my aged companion too;
 The summons soon will come for you.
 Lift up your eyes above the cloud,
 Your bodies soon must wear the shroud:
 For me, lament not, weep nor cry,
 Now to you all a last good bye.

 CIRCULAR LETTER.

Having been appointed by the Primitive Baptist Association at its 29th annual session to write a letter in regard to the principles of the Baptist, I will give a glance at some of the most prominent features of Baptist principles. I will not endeavor to trace historically the baptist people by a succession of churches from Apostolic days, knowing that no people can claim an adoption into the family of grace by reason of age or descent of churches, but the true church may ever be known by its vital principles and gospel practices. The children of Christ have the spirit of Christ and as His meat and drink was to do the will of the Father, so the desire of christians is to do the will of their Spiritual Father. The scriptures are the revealed will of God, and through this medium we may know our duty to each other and to our Creator; and through this source, we get the idea of regeneration, or second birth. The enmity of the carnal mind must be subdued, the spirit of the mind renewed, the soul brought by the power of God from under the Law, and given an inheritance under the Covenant of grace. To all those who have been thus actuated upon, Why tarryest thou? Arise and be baptised. After receiving baptism, the saints should set their faces Zionward, and cry eternal life! eternal life! And should hold the scriptures as the God-given way-bill, or gospel-signboard pointing to the celestial fields of ultimate glory and eternal peace. It is unjust and unfaithful to question any scriptural mandate, whether baptism, sacrament, feetwashing, or any other command of God, first look for the foot-prints of Jesus, then discharge these duties as the Bible-pattern sets forth. Christ was baptised in the river Jordan, and came up straitway out of the water. To attempt to perform this duty in any way, save that shown by the example of our Lord, is to cease to be servants and venture to be dictators, and hoist the opinion of poor sinful men above the example of the meek and lowly Lamb. After baptism the sacrament, or Lord's Supper follows, and after the supper, or supper being ended, St. John XIII: 4-5, "He riseth from supper and laid aside his garments; and took a towel and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin and began to wash the disciples feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded." The feet of none except disciples were washed, neither should the ordinances be extended beyond its original limits. One might claim no instance is given in the acts or epistles of its having been practised, but let me ask, Is there an account in the New Testament, of its having been revoked? No. But it is mentioned but once. No one familiar with the New Testament should believe it is only spoken of once in this book. And if it occurred but once do you so understand the characteristic of God that he must make a repetition of a command before it is valid or binding? Jesus had one birth, one baptism, one death, and one resurrection. None of these were repeated. The word eternity is found but once in the Bible—Isaiah 57:15. Can we doubt any of these things for want of their repetition? A servant is not greater than his lord. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." A child of God should feel as dependent on Him for help, guidance, salvation, and eternal life as natural children are upon natural parents. And while troubles may assail and sorrows be many, bow in humble submission to the will of an allwise Providence. I have endeavored to stand on grounds of defense.

yet I cannot claim perfection for my letter only in purpose.

My letter goes forth before the world,
Some will endorse it, some stones will hurl:
God pardon errors if such there be,
Bless truth and save us all eternally.

Respectfully submitted.

George W. Miles.
