INTRODUCTORY NOTICE.

OF the life of THOMAS ROGERS, the author of the following Treatise on the Articles, but very scanty notices have been preserved. Wood says, (Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 162-6. Lond. 1815):

“THOMAS ROGERS, a most admirable theologian, an excellent preacher, and well deserving every way of the sacred function, was born, as I conceive, in Cheshire, and came full ripe to the university before 1568. About which time being made one of the students of Ch. Ch. took holy orders very early, and afterwards the degree of master of arts, scil. an. 1576, before which time he was a sedulous and constant preacher of God’s word. What his preferments were successively afterwards, I know not, only that he was chaplain to doctor Bancroft, bishop of London, and at length rector of Horningher near to S. Edmonds-Bury in Suffolk, where and in the neighbourhood he was always held in great esteem for his learning and holiness of life and conversation. His works are these :

A Philosophical Discourse, entit. The Anatomy of the Mind. Lond. 1576, oct. [Bodl. 8vo. H. 18. Art. BS.] Before which is a copy of verses in praise of it, written by his contemporary Will. Cambden of Ch. Ch.

Of the End of the World, and second Coming of Christ, &c. Lond. 1577, qu. [Bodl. 4to. E. 5. Th. BS. again 8vo. 1582 and 1583.]¹

[¹ In this work is a translation* of some old ‘Germanical rhythmes by John Stoffer,’ which Rogers says he heard recited by Melancthon :

* This is a mistake. The work itself is only a translation. See below, p. vii. The verses are ascribed to Cyprian, who “by his Latin verses doth shew that old and common prophecy turned into Germanical rythme by John Stoffer.” These English verses are not the translation of the “Germanical rythme” but of the Latin lines. Moreover it was not Rogers that heard Melancthon but Schelto à Geveren whom Rogers translates.—ED.

The English Creed; wherein is contained in Tables an Exposition on the Articles which every Man is to subscribe unto. Where the Articles are expounded by Scripture, and the Confessions of all the reformed Churches; and Heresies are displayed. Lond. 1579, and 85, fol.

General Session, containing an Apology of the comfortable Doctrine concerning the End of the World and second Coming of Christ. Lond. 1581, qu.

The English Creed; consisting with the true, ancient Catholic and Apostolic Church in all the Points and Articles of Religion, which every Christian is to know, and believe that would be saved, &c.—In two parts. The first printed at London in 1585, the second there 1587, and both in fol. [Bodl. N. 2. 7. Jur.]

An Exposition on the 39 Articles of the Church of England. Lond. 1586, &c. qu.¹ Which book, at the first appearance, met not with that welcome entertainment, which seemed due to the author's endeavours. For besides the two extremes, Papists and Schismatics, who were highly enraged, many Protestants of a middle temper were much offended thereat. Some conceived it presumption for a private minister to make himself the mouth of the church, to render her sense in matters of so high concernment. Others were² offended, that his interpretation confined the charitable latitude, formerly allowed in those articles. Howsoever it was, sure it is, the work in some years wrought itself in good esteem, as dedicated to, and countenanced by, Dr Bancroft before-mentioned³.

Yet empires all and kingdomes alter shall,
And man to ease himselfe shall have no way.

A Golden Chain taken out of the rich Treasure-House of the Psalms of David. Lond. [1579] 1587, in tw.

The Pearls of K. Solomon, gathered into common Places.—Taken from the Proverbs of the said King. Printed with the former book.

by Jo. Avenar, translated out of Lat. by our author, T. Rogers. (13) Soliloquium Animæ: The fourth Book of the Imitation of Christ. Lond. 1592, in tw. written by Tho. de Kempis before-mentioned. What other things our author hath written and translated I know not; nor anything else of him, only that he was a zealous opposer of the doctrine of the Sabbath, and the first that publicly stood up against Dr Nich. Bownd's opinion of it in his preface to the Exposition of the 39 Articles, &c. which made the other party (the Puritan) angry, and so far to be enraged as maliciously to asperse and blemish him. Whereupon he wrote a vindication of himself in MS. now in the hands of a near relation of his. At length after a great deal of pains taken for the benefit of the church he gave up the ghost at Horninge before-mentioned, otherwise called Horningshearth: whereupon his body was buried in the chancel of the church there, under a rough, unpolished and broken grave-stone, without name or epitaph, 22 Feb. in sixteen hundred and fifteen, as the register of that church tells us; which, I presume, follows the English accompt and not the common, as many country registers do. I find one Tho. Rogers, a Cheshire man born, to have been admitted student of Ch. Ch. 1547, aged 24, or more, being then Bac. of Arts, and soon after made Master. What relation he had to the former Tho. Rogers I know not. Another Tho. Rogers I find, who was born in Glocestershire, in or near to Tewksbury, lived mostly in his latter days in the parish of S. Giles in the Fields near London, and published a poem entitled, The Tears or Lamentations of a sorrowful Soul. Lond. 1612, qu. written by Sir Will. Leighton, knight, one of his majesty's band of pensioners. To which, the said Tho. Rogers added, of his own composition, a poem called *Glocester's-Mite*². But

[² Wood is certainly wrong in this statement, that Thomas Rogers was the publisher of Sir Will. Leighton's poem. He was misled by the Bodleian copy of these two poems, which are bound together, and so misplaced by the binder as to render it difficult to distinguish the one from the other. They are however very this Tho. Rogers is quite different from the divine before-mentioned.

[Tho. Rogers, A.M. institutus ad rectoriam de Horningherth, dioc. Norw. 11 Dec. 1581. Reg. Vac. BAKER.]”

The work now reprinted first made its appearance, though in a different form and under a different title, in two parts, the first of which was published, according to Wood, in 1579, and the second in 1585. A copy of this edition the present Editor has been unable to discover. The second edition noticed by Wood was also in two parts, published at some interval of time; and a copy of it is in the University Library at Cambridge. The first part bears the title of “The English Creede, consenting with the True Auncient Catholique and Apostolique Church in al the points and articles of Religion which everie Christian is to knowe and beleeve that would be saved. The Firste Parte in most loyal maner to the Glorie of God, credit of our Churche and displaieng of al hærisies and errors, both olde and newe, contrarie to the faith, subscribed unto by Thomas Rogers.

different works. Gloucester’s Myte is a funeral tribute to the memory of Prince Henry, and was printed in 1612. The Teares, &c. are various religious poems, and sonnets which were set to music by Leighton, who, in his preface, declares his intention to print the notes by which his hymns, &c. are to be sung or played. This work was printed one year after Rogers’s production, with which it has not the smallest connexion.

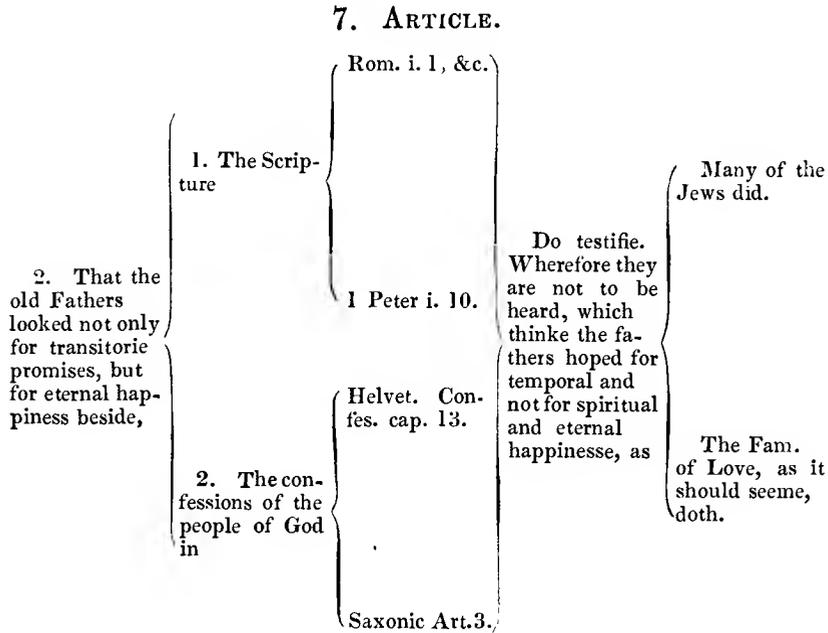

A very sufficient specimen of Leighton’s Teares will be found in the British Bibliographer, i. 378; but that our readers may have no occasion to regret the scarcity of the book, four lines shall be offered to their religious contemplation.

Our fathers, Lord, were comforted,
Strength’ned, relieved, and blest
Onely by grace, and iustified
As righteous men, in Jesus Christ.—

It is now only just to Rogers that he should not be omitted entirely, and the concluding stanza of his Myte shall end this note.

Our soules are siluer plates thy fame to hold;
Our zeall rich diamonds to make th’ impression;
The characters we print, refined gold
To keep thy name all ages in succession.
Then sleepe, sweet Henry, prince of endless fame,
Whilst we record thy euerlasting name.]

Allowed by Auctoritie. At London. Imprinted by John Windet for Andrew Maunsel, at the Brasen Serpent in Paul's Churchyard, 1585." This part contains an analysis of the first nineteen Articles, and is dedicated to Edmund [Scambler] Bishop of Norwich. The second part, completing the work, bears a similar title, but is dedicated to Sir Christopher Hatton, the Lord Chancellor. It was published in 1587. The whole work is printed in a thin folio. The Articles are broken up into Propositions, and each Proposition is presented in the form of an analytical conspectus. Of the manner in which this was done the following instance, taken at random, may suffice to convey an idea :

In 1607 the book was published in quarto ; and the analytical form in which it had hitherto appeared was abandoned. This edition, which was the last published during the author's life-time, has been in almost every instance followed in the present reprint. Where the corrections of later editions have been adopted, the reading of the edition of 1607 has been carefully noticed.

But the quarto varied considerably from the folio in other respects as well as in form. In the folio the only references are to Scripture and the Confessions of the Protestant churches. Errors and heresies are noticed, but no authorities are given in support of the statements made respecting them. Nor are the notices of heresies themselves by any means so numerous as in the later edition.

Again, several distinct Propositions were added in the quarto. In it the Fifth and Eighteenth Articles, which in the folio are treated as single Propositions, are divided into three and two respectively. Similarly, the third Proposition of the Seventh Article, the last of the edition of 1585, in that of 1607 is expanded into three.

Other variations are as follows :

In the folio, there is appended to the Third Proposition of the Tenth Article, a caution against the doctrine of human perfectibility, which was subsequently omitted.

In the Seventeenth Article the Propositions 5—9 are differently worded : 5. Why some are elected and not others. 6. Who are they which shall be saved. 7. What are the effects of predestination. 8. The use of the doctrine of predestination both to the godly and wicked. 9. What may keep men both from desperation and also from security.

In the Nineteenth Article there is an Eighth Proposition, which was afterwards omitted. It is this : “ There is no salvation without the church ; and therefore every man is firmlie to joyne thereunto, and never to depart therefrom by schisme and contention.”

But the chief difference between the two editions lies in the altered exposition of the Third Article, an alteration to which there attaches some historical interest. In the folio of 1585, the author adopts Calvin’s view of the descent into hell. He there writes : “ That our Saviour Christ descended into Hell, together with our Church, (1) the ancient creeds, Apostolical [and] Athanasian ; the Confession of the Church of Helvet. ii. cap. 11 ; Basil, Art. 4 ; Ausburgh, Art. 3 ; Suevia. Art. 2, do testify. Which word Hell in this Article, as we take it, signifieth : not the place of everlasting torments where Dives was and is, Luke xvi. 23 ; all the reprobate together shall be, Matt. xxv. 41. In which place Christ as man was not, forasmuch as (1) His body lay in the grave, Matt. xii. 40 ; xvi. 4 ; Luke xi. 29 ; (2) His soul was commended into the hands of God the Father, Ps. xxxi. 5 ; Luke xxiii. 46, [and was] in Paradise, (so is it set down as a thing well to be observed) : and not in Hell, Luke xxiii. 43. [But] The terrors and torments of the body and soul which Christ suffered ; as appeareth Isa. liii. 6, 10 ; Ps. cxvi. 3 ; Matt. xxvi. 38 ; xxvii. 46 ; Luke xxii. 42." Controversy, however, as to the true interpretation of the Article was already rife. Calvin's view had indeed been very generally received, more perhaps from deference to his authority, than from any careful investigation of the subject. But in the year 1579, Hugh Broughton, a learned Hebraist, maintained that the hell of the Creeds and the Article was the Greek Hades, or place of disembodied spirits, and not the place of eternal punishment. This interpretation, which at first met with very considerable opposition, gradually gained ground, and Archbishop Whitgift, who among others had formerly controverted it, at length came round to it himself¹. There can be little doubt indeed that a great revolution of opinion on this point had been effected before Thomas Rogers's work on the Articles appeared in its present form in 1607. Hence we find that in this edition he speaks far less confidently than before², and whilst mentioning different views that had been entertained of the doctrine, does not strongly advocate any.

The Editor is unable to add anything to Wood's account of Rogers. Fuller, in the place referred to by Wood, speaks at some length of the work on the Articles. And Rogers himself notices his share in the Sabbatarian controversy, Preface, § 23. He also defends himself in some observations on the Thirty-Fourth Article, from a misrepresentation of his view respecting the use of the cross in Baptism. By the authors of the misrepresentation in question, he is mentioned along with others well-known for their theological attainments, as a divine of learning and repute.

¹ See Strype's Whitgift, Book IV. chap. 13 and 19. pp. 431, 483. Lond. 1718. Heylin, Hist. Presb. 350. Soames's Elizabethan Church Hist. p. 476.

² Thus p. 61, he says, " But till we know the native and undoubted sense of this article and mystery of religion," &c.

Two severe and protracted attacks of illness have prevented the Editor from bringing his labours to a conclusion so soon as he could have wished and had intended. Further delay has been occasioned not only by the great rarity of some of the books referred to, but by the extreme looseness and inaccuracy of the author's quotations. Some of these the Editor has been able to correct. Many he has unhappily been compelled to give up. None but those who have actually made the experiment can conceive of the time and labour necessary to verify the numerous references made by many of the writers of the Elizabethan period.

The Editor has to express his sincere thanks to those friends who have assisted him in his researches. His acknowledgements are due especially to the Rev. Professor Corrie, Master of Jesus College, who, besides other aid, kindly permitted reference to his rare and almost unique collection of the books of the Family of Love; to the Rev. J. J. Blunt, Margaret Professor of Divinity; and to the Rev. F. Proctor, late Fellow of St Catharine's Hall.

THE CATHOLIC DOCTRINE OF THE

THE FAITH, DOCTRINE
and religion, professed, & protected in the Realm of England, and dominions of the same :

Expressed in 39 Articles, concordably agreed upon by the Reverend Bishops, and Clergy of this Kingdom, at two several meetings, or Convocations of theirs, in the years of our Lord, 1562, and 1604 :

THE SAID ARTICLES ANALYSED INTO Propositions, and the Propositions proved to be agreeable both to the written word of God, and to the extant Confessions of all the neighbour Churches, Christianly reformed.

THE ADVERSARIES ALSO OF NOTE, AND name, which from the Apostles' days, and primitive Church hitherto, have crossed, or contradicted the said Articles in general, or any particle, or proposition arising from any of them in particular, hereby are discovered, laid open, and so confuted.

Perused, and by the lawful authority of the Church of England, allowed to be public.

TO THE MOST REVEREND FATHER IN GOD, AND HIS RIGHT HONOURABLE GOOD LORD RICHARD¹, BY THE DIVINE PROVIDENCE, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, AND PRIMATE OF ENGLAND, AND COUNSELLOR TO THE MOST HIGH AND MIGHTY PRINCE,
JAMES, KING OF GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, AND IRELAND.

Most reverend father in God, there is no one thing in this world, that of men truly zealous and christian in these latter days of the world with greater earnestness hath been desired, than that by a joint and common consent of all the churches rightly, and according to the canons of the sacred scriptures, reformed, there might be a draught made and divulged, containing and expressing the sum and substance of that religion, which they do all both concordably teach and uniformly maintain.

That holy man (of happy remembrance) D. Cranmer, who Archbishop Cranmer. sometime enjoyed that room in our church which your grace now worthily possesseth, in the days of that most godly young prince, king Edward the Sixth, employed a great part of his time and study for the effecting of that work; and imparted his thoughts with the most principal persons, and of rarest note in those days for their wisdom, piety, and credit, among the people of God throughout Christendom. M. Calvin, understanding of his intent, addressed his letters unto the said archbishop, and offered his service, saying, “That, might his labours stand the church instead, Ne decem quidem maria, it would not grieve him to sail over ten seas to such a purpose².”

2. But, this proving a work of much difficulty, if not altogether impossible in men’s³ eyes, especially in those days, to be brought about; the next course and resolution was, that every kingdom and free state, or principality, which had Unity of doctrine in all churches reformed.

abandoned the superstitious and antichristian religion of the church of Rome, and embraced the gospel of Christ, should divulge a brief of that religion, which among themselves was taught and believed, and whereby, through the mercy of God in Christ, they did hope to be saved: which to God his great glory and the singular benefit and comfort of all churches, both present and to come (as the extant Harmony¹ of all their confessions doth most sweetly record), with no great labour was notably performed.

This work of theirs told the churches in those days, and doth us, and will inform our posterity, that not only in every particular state and kingdom, but also throughout Christendom where the gospel was entertained, the primitive and apostolical days of the church were again restored. For the multitudes of them that did believe (I speak both jointly of all, and severally of each reformed people, not of every particular person, fantastic, false apostles, and perverse teachers or professors in any church, who were not wanting even in the apostles' days) touching the main and fundamental points of true religion were then of one heart and of one soul, and did think and speak one thing, and live in peace^a.

Unity of doctrine in the church of Eng. in K. Ed. 6. his days.

3. The said archbishop (for unto whom better, after God and the king, can we ascribe the glory of this worthy act?) he wrought this unity and uniformity of doctrine in this kingdom in the halcyon days of our English Josias, K. Edward the Sixth of that name: and the same doctrine, so by his means established in the time of peace (a notable work of peace), like a manly, heroical, and heavenly captain, under our general Jesus Christ, he resolutely, even with his heart-blood and in the fiery torments, afterwards confirmed in the days of persecution.

An. 1552.

A certain learned man, speaking of the religion here then professed, and writing unto the lords of our late queen's council, doth say, "He" (meaning the papist his adversary, who charged our church with discord and disagreements about matters of religion) “he ought” (saith he), “if he had been able, to have brought out the public confession and articles of faith, agreed in K. Edward’s time; and have shewed any in England, that, professing the gospel, dissenteth from the same.” So esteemed he (and with him many thousands of learned and judicious men) of the doctrine then ratified by authority, and professed in this kingdom. K. Edward 6.

But those days of our church’s peace continued not long (through our unthankfulness and sins); neither on the other side was our persecution permanent (through the goodness of God,) though for the time exceeding vehement and violent. For, nubecula fuit, et cito transiit, it vanished away quickly, as do many raging storms, even upon the sudden; yet not through the power of gunpowder and treasons, but through the force of ardent prayers unto the Almighty. For, Arma ecclesie preces. Q. Mary.

4. We find that M. Latimer (that sacred and reverend father) addicted himself very seriously in those days unto the exercise of prayer: and his principal and most usual prayers were, first, for himself; next, for the afflicted church of England; and lastly, for lady Elizabeth, the deceased K. Edward’s and queen Mary’s sister. The prayers of the persecuted saints for the reducing of true religion into the realm.

For himself he prayed that, as God had made him a minister and preacher of his truth, so he might constantly bear witness unto the same, and have the grace and power to maintain it in the face of the world, even till the hour of his death. For the church of England he prayed, that God would be pleased once again to restore the free preaching of the gospel to this realm; and this with all possible fervency of spirit he craved at the hands of God. And for lady Elizabeth, that he would preserve and make her a comfort to his then comfortless people in England. And the Almighty and our heavenly Father both heard and granted all and every of his petitions. F. Latimer.

M. Gualter (that learned, painful, and excellent divine at Figure), dedicating his holy and christian Comments upon the Lesser Prophets unto D. Parkhurst, bishop of Norwich (who in the days of the forementioned queen Mary voluntarily had exiled himself so far as Switzerland, for his preservation, if it might be, unto better times), saith of the said Parkhurst that, when he lived in Figure, lady Elizabeth was ever in his Bp. Parkhurst.

mouth: her faith, her wisdom, her magnanimous spirit, her virgineous and chaste behaviour, he would ever celebrate with high words and commendations; and that God would guard and safeguard her person for the good of his people, was his daily prayer: yea (saith the same Gualter), *orabant idem tecum pii omnes*¹, “it was not your prayer only, but all God’s people so prayed besides.” And their prayers were not made in vain. For both queen Mary lived not long; and L. Elizabeth was placed in the royal throne; superstition was expulsed, and true religion again, to the singular comfort and multiplication of God’s people in this kingdom, very solemnly restored.

True doctrine restored an. 1558, and an uniformity of the same established, and published, an. 1562.

An. 1562.

5. Notwithstanding an uniformity of doctrine to be taught, embraced, and professed, by authority of the prince and state, was not published till certain years after the queen’s attaining the kingly diadem; but then Articles of Religion, to the number of thirty-nine, drawn yet three years afore, were commended to the consideration and perusal of the whole clergy of both provinces in an orderly and lawful assembly or convocation of theirs at London; and by a sweet and unanimous readiness thereupon by them allowed. This was effected in the year of our Lord 1562, the same year that the merciless massacre at Vassey in France was committed by the duke of Guise, and the same very time also that all the protestants in that country of France, for holding and professing the same doctrine, were sentenced unto death and destruction by the parliament at Paris; after which their condemnation ensued those horrible and more than savage murders and slaughters of the religious, and only for their religion², at Carrascone, at Tholouse, Amiens, Tours, Sens, Agen, Aurane, and many other cities, towns, and villages throughout France.

Arch. Parker.

A principal contriver of this uniformity in religion, and thereby unity among us, was another predecessor of your grace’s, even D. Parker, the first archbishop of Canterbury in the said queen’s days.

Hereupon wrote Beza³ from Geneva, *Doctrinæ puritas viget in Anglia pure et sincere*⁴; “Religion flourisheth in England:” Zanchius, from Strasborough, Per hanc reginam factam; “By her” (meaning queen Elizabeth’s) “coming to the crown, God again hath restored his doctrine and true worship:” and Danæus, “The whole compass of the world hath never seen anything more blessed, nor more to be wished, than is her government.”

So now again flourished those apostolical times (as I may say) of unity and uniformity of doctrine in our church. For then were there no contentions, nor dissensions, nor thorny and pricking disputations among us, about questions of religion; *tantum res nobis fuit cum satellitibus quibusdam pontificiis*⁵ (as bishop Jewel said), “we then skirmished only with the papists.” As it was with the building of Solomon’s temple, so was it with us then: we set upon the building of God’s house (which is his church) without deane⁶, without noise and stirs. The adversaries without heard us, and heard of our doings abroad by the pens of the learned Jewel, Nowel, Calfhill, and such other architects of ours: to ourselves we were comely as Jerusalem, to our enemies “terrible as an army of banners.”

6. Also what afore, viz. an. 62⁷, they had agreed upon, the same at another assembly at London, an. 71, and the 13 of Q. Elizabeth, according to an act of parliament then made⁸, the said clergy of England (the archbishops and bishops first beginning, and giving the example), by their several subscriptions with their own hands, most readily did prove.

chiefly in Paris and the country thereabout adjoining, begun on St Bartholomew's eve¹; for pope Gregory's excommunicating of Q. Elizabeth, for defending this doctrine and religion which here we speak of; and thirdly, for the erecting of private presbyteries now first in England), divers of the inferior ministers in and about London, and elsewhere in this kingdom, not a little disturbed the quiet of our state and peace, some of them by untimely and inconsiderate admonitions, pamphlets, and libels; other by obstinate refusing to subscribe, as both law did enjoin, and their fathers in Christ and superiors afore them had done. But these men speedily both by learning were answered and by authority censured, suspended, or deprived².

7. And yet not one of the recusants, and so not one of England's clergy, either now or afore, did ever oppugn the received public and catholic doctrine of our church; but most willingly approved and applauded the same, as the truth of God.

For even the admonitioners themselves (which said that they did strive for true religion, and wished the parliament even with perfect hatred to detest the church of England, whereof notwithstanding they were members), even they do say how they (meaning the bishops and their partakers) hold³ the substance of religion with us, and we with them⁴. And again: "We (all of us) confess one Christ." And their champion doth acknowledge that her majesty hath delivered us from the spiritual Egypt of popery.

us: which unity continued all that holy and reverend father's, I mean archbishop Parker's, time, which was till the 17. year of Q. Elizabeth⁵.

8. After him succeeded in the said archiepiscopal chair B. Grindal, a right famous and worthy prelate, and for religion so sound, as in K. Edward's days (had the prince lived a while longer) he had been promoted unto the bishoprick of London, upon the translation of B. Ridley unto Durham; for these things had the state then in purpose. But God otherwise had decreed for their advancements, as that the one of them should pass through the fire unto the kingdom of heaven, and the other escape the dangers of many storms and waters, before he came unto any preferment at all. And so accordingly Ridley was burned and Grindal banished, and both of them deprived either of life or living, or both; and that for one and the same cause and doctrine, which they had preached, and we profess.

Archbishop Grindal.

But, the tempest being over-blown, and Q. Elizabeth herself having likewise escaped the bloody hands of her eruel enemies, yea, and gunpowder trains, and treasons too, in most barbarous manner laid to have blown up her saint-like and sanctified body and soul into the heavens (and all for her constant favouring and embracing this very doctrine), her majesty, not forgetful what he had endured for the cause of Christ and his church, advanced the zealous confessor and tried soldier unto the see, first of London (afore designed him), next of York, and lastly of Canterbury.

The care of this archbishop was great to further the glory of God; but, through the envy and malice of his ill-willers, his power was but small; his place high, but himself made low, through some disgraces⁶, by his potent adversaries; which he meekly and patiently endured till his dying day.

among us ; the other is, the insolency and boldness of our home-faction.

The Jesuits indicted councils, summoned synods, enacted and reversed orders, and exercised papal jurisdiction among us ; we not witting, nor so much as dreaming of any such matter.

The brethren (for so did they now style themselves) in their churches and charges would neither pray, nor say service, nor baptize, nor celebrate the Lord's supper, nor marry, nor bury, nor do any other ecclesiastical duty according to the law ; but after their own devisings. And abroad¹ (as if they had been acquainted with the jesuitical proceedings, or the Jesuits with their practices) they had their meetings, both classical and synodical ; they set down decrees, reversed orders, elected ministers, exacted subscriptions, and executed the censures of suspension and excommunication, where they thought good.

The Jesuits had for their provincial, first, Robert Parsons, alias Cowbuck, then Weston, and lastly Garnet ; which Garnet continued in that office till the year 1605, when he was apprehended, and for most horrible and hellish treasons, as an arrant traitor, put to death in Paul's church-yard the same year. And the brethren had their (I know not what) chief men ; all of these residing in and about London, and in special favour both with the gentry² and vulgar people of their several factions, and so continued multiplying their number and growing strong, even headstrong in boldness and schism, till the dying day of this most grave and reverend archbishop, which was in the month of July, 1583.

10. Some four months afore whose death the said brethren, at a certain assembly of their own appointing, among other things (as I find) decreed that, if subscription unto the book of Articles of Religion (afore-mentioned and still meant) should again be urged, the said brethren might subscribe thereunto according to the statute : which declareth, that what diversity and disagreement soever was about other matters, yet abode there still a blessed unity among us touching the foundation of the christian religion. And this was in 25. year of Q. Elizabeth.

cester (a man deservedly unto that dignity promoted, and for his manifold pains in writing, teaching, and defending the truth, his wisdom in governing, and his well-demeaning of himself every way, worthy the double honour which he did enjoy, or the state could advance him unto), from thence was translated unto the see of Canterbury.

No sooner was he confirmed in his office, but, observing both the open and intolerable contempt, in many places, of all church-orders by authority prescribed, and hearing both of many secret conventicles and unlawful assemblies in his province, and of the tumults and garboils abroad, and even at his very admission unto his charge raised in Scotland, and that for the self-same cause which by the brethren here in England was maintained; and foreseeing the dangers and troubles likely to ensue, for which he should give an account, if in time he sought not means to prevent them; he thought it his bounden duty (for the preservation of unity and purity in religion, the preventing of further schism, and the discovery of men's inclinations either unto peace or faction), that all and every minister ecclesiastical having cure of souls within the province of Canterbury, under his own hand and by subscription, should testify his consent both unto the points of religion in the convocation an. 62 approved, and likewise unto other articles necessary for concord's sake of all and every man, minister especially, to be acknowledged; and accordingly by due course of law called then thereunto: which was done the very first year of his removal, and of her majesty the 26³.

This of the brethren was termed the woeful year of subscription; but that they should so do there was no cause, unless they are grieved that factious spirits and malcontented ministers and preachers were discovered, and their erroneous and schismatical opinions brought into light. And surely never was there subscription hitherto by authority urged in this land, but divers new fancies (held yet for truths not to be doubted of among the brethren) were thereby detected, for God's people to avoid as monsters: neither hath our church lost by imposing, nor the adversaries gained, at the long run, by refusing subscription.

required, the whole land will witness, that many and sundry books (as well in Latin as English) then and afterward flew abroad. In which we read how then and in those days the truth of God did in a manner but peep out (as it were) at the screen; that Cranmer, Parker, Grindal, and all the other martyrs, preachers, and learned men (which first in our age "brought the light of the gospel into this realm) did see a little and had a glimpse of the truth, but oversaw many things which in these days of the sunshine of the gospel men of meaner gifts do see, and yet may not utter them without great danger of the laws (through the iniquity of the times), though the said things now seen be comprised in the book of God, and also be a part of the gospel, yea, the very gospel itself; so true are they and of such importance as, if every hair of our heads were a life (say the brethren), we ought to afford them in defence of these matters; the Articles of Religion, penned and agreed upon by the bishops and clergy, and ratified by the prince and parliament, in comparison of these things now revealed and newly come to light, are but childish and toys¹."

Thus write they (as your grace best knoweth, and I would have quoted the places where they may be read, had I either not written unto yourself, or did write unto a man unacquainted with their books). And, had they here stayed, their words had been able (without the more grace of God) to have moved the parliament and all the people of this land (as they have prevailed but too much already with their too credulous favourites), to think our church, for all the reformation wrought and uniformity in doctrine established, to be much awry, and far from the truth it should profess. But setting down (as they have done) and publishing both what the truth is which now breaketh out and offereth itself, by their ministry, to the view of the whole world (which afore did but peep out at the screen), and what the things be which they of mean gifts do see, and our fathers, the martyrs, bishops, and preachers, both in king Edward's days and afterwards (known and acknowledged to be men of excellent parts), either did not see at all, or oversee, and what likewise the points of doctrine newly now revealed, their æternum evangelium (which without great danger may not be preached in England, no more than the doctrine and articles of the church of England may be preached at Rome; and for defence whereof they ought to afford even their very lives, were they so many as the hairs of every of their heads) is, and be, they demonstrate themselves to be most childishly vain and idle in their imaginations, which they take yet to be illuminations of the Spirit.

13. For all their doings and discourses (to say the best of them) are but to erect a new (which they term a true) ministry, and their discipline among us. The uncouth doctrine of the factious brethren.

Themselves do say, "The controversy betwixt them and us is not as (the bishops and their well-willers) they would bear the world in hand, for a cap, a tippet, or a surplice; but for greater matters concerning a true ministry, and regiment of the church, according to the word²: the one whereof, that is, a true ministry, they shall never have, till archbishops and bishops be put down, and all ministers made equal; the other also will never be brought to pass, till kings and queens do subject themselves unto the church, and submit their sceptres, and throw down their crowns before the church, and lick up the dust of the feet of the church, and willingly abide the censures of the church, that is, of the presbytery. For as the church is subject unto the civil magistrate, in respect of his civil authority, so must the magistrate, the king and queen, subject themselves and be obedient to the just and lawful authority of the church. The civil magistrate is none officer at all of the church. For church-officers be non magnates aut tetrarchæ, not gracious or honourable lords, but ministers of the church. The presbytery is the church, and every congregation or church should and must in it have a presbytery."

This is the light which indeed the martyrs never saw; the religion which our brethren strive for; the truth which they may not preach; not childish doctrine, like the bishops' articles, but the wise gospel, the main and material points of religion, now in these last days last of all (yea, after the eighth thorough breaking of H. N.³ his Evangelium Regni) revealed, and for furtherance whereof they are to lend and spend even all their lives, if occasion be ministered.

14. Strange and strong delusions: first, to take these and other such assertions for truths and heavenly mysteries, which are but the fancies of troubled brains, not grounded nor truly gathered from God's word.

Next, to teach one another and all their favourers, how they should be as ready and prepared even for these matters to give other their livings, and to give their lives (were they as many as the hairs of all their heads), as Cranmer, Ridley, Latimer did; and Parker, Grindal, and all other preachers would, and every christian man and woman should (if they be called thereunto), for the apostolical and catholic doctrine of our church; which all God's people do know, and the brethren themselves (as afore hath been noted) do confess, is originally from God and his written word.

These and many more (too many here to be recapitulate) such fantasies of theirs, or frenzies rather, this first subscription brought first to light; and yet happy had it been for God's church and people, they had never been broached.

Of the second subscription
urged an.
1584.

15. Semblably, the next subscription called for by the last archbishop, your lordship's predecessor, an. 84, discovered even the very thoughts and desires of those (brethren before, but now styled) faithful brethren, which have and do seek for the discipline and reformation of the church.

Many treatises afore, but now and divers years ensuing, they flew about and abroad like atoms¹; and by them the same things which afore, but in a differing sort, and in other words, they publish.

For touching church-officers, they name who and how many sorts they be of them, viz. doctors, pastors, governors, deacons, and widows²; no more, no fewer.

They say every church must be furnished with a teacher and a pastor, as with two eyes; with elders, as with feet; with deacons, as with hands³. Every congregation must have eyes, hands, and feet; and yet neither all, nor at all any congregation, is to have an head, answerable to those feet, hands, and eyes.

[³ Ibid. chap. vii. p. 97.]

The doctor, by their doctrine, must be a distinct minister from the pastor, and only teach true doctrine, and neither exhort, nor apply his doctrine according to the times, and his auditory, nor minister the sacraments. For these things the pastor is to perform : which pastor also, whensoever he administereth the sacraments, must necessarily make a sermon, or else he committeth sacrilege.

And concerning discipline, by their doctrine, every congregation must have absolute authority to admonish, to censure, to excommunicate, and to anathematize all offending persons, yea even kings and princes, if they be of the congregation. And no prince but must be of some parish, and under one presbytery or other, always. Where this power is not, in their judgments, one of the tokens of a true church is wanting. For this discipline with them is a mark of the church, and numbered among the articles of their faith.

16. This (say they) is the great cause, the holy cause, which they will never leave suing for, though there should be a thousand parliaments in their days, until either they obtain it, or bring the Lord in vengeance and blood against the state and the whole land for repelling the same. The discipline is God's holy yoke, God's sceptre, the kingdom, and throne of Christ⁴.

The brethren's divine conceits of their discipline.

Our controversy (say they) is, whether Jesus Christ shall be king, or no. Again, the end of all our travail is, to build up the walls of Jerusalem, and to set up the throne of Jesus Christ, our heavenly king, in the midst thereof; the advancing whereof is a testimony unto us that we shall have part in that glory which shall be revealed hereafter.

So learn we now from their said books, learned and demonstrative discourses (which the fathers and our forefathers never saw, nor had learned), both that their discipline established and exercised is a visible mark of a true church; and to desire the advancement of the same, an invisible token of an elect child of God : so as neither is that a church, at least no true church, where their discipline is not; neither they but titular Christians, no true Christians indeed, which either sigh or seek not to have it established, and presbyteries in every parish to be advanced.

The brethren renew and continue their base conceits of the public articles of our religion, in comparison of their new gospel.

17. The Articles of our Religion (concluded upon by the reverend clergy of our church), with these learned and all-seeing brethren, are but the bishops' decrees, the articles of the convocation-house, and reveal some little truth: but these wise brethren (so faithful have they been between God and his church) they have not failed to shew us the whole counsel of God.

And yet these faithful brethren, either through forgetfulness or frailty, or (which I rather think) forced thereunto by the power of truth, do plainly confess, that those very decrees of our bishops, and articles of the convocation-house, even that little, little part of the gospel, which the said bishops and martyrs brought to light, and hath enlightened the whole realm, containeth the very fundamental points of Christianity.

Whereof I still gather, that had their newly-revealed, termed learned discourses, and doctrines, touching discipline and their presbyteries (howsoever with goodly and glorious titles, to ravish poor hearts with the desire thereof, brandished and set out) never been divulged or preached, we may be saved; but, without knowing and believing the articles or doctrine of our church (which yet is not ours, but God's) there is no salvation ordinarily to be looked for of any man: so true, and of such necessity, is this; so impertinent and unneedful, the other.

18. *Octogesimus octavus mirabilis annus*¹: it was prophesied to be a wonderful year, long afore it came, and will never be forgotten now it is past.

An. 1588.
Queen Elizabeth opposeth her authority against the brethren, their books and writings.

Among the things for which the year eighty-eight is famous, one, and not of least regard, is that, afore it expired, these books of the brethren, by a proclamation from queen Elizabeth, were denounced schismatical and seditious; and the doctrine in them contained erroneous, tending to persuade and bring in a monstrous and apparent dangerous innovation within her dominions and countries; and to make a change, even a dangerous change, of the form of doctrine then in use. And therefore the said books were commanded to be brought in, and delivered into the hands of authority; and special charge given, that no more of that nature should come abroad, or be printed.

Whereby (so much as in that blessed queen, whose name with eternal honour shall be recorded) these new fancies of the brethren were hissed and exploded out of this christian kingdom; and the articles, or public doctrine of our church, confirmed, countenanced, and by the royal prerogative of that peerless prince more strongly ratified and commended to her awful and good subjects than afore.

19. The zeal of learned and godly men hereupon was inflamed, and their courage so increased, as whereas afore this time but one or two, or a very few (the first whereof was your lordship's immediate predecessor, whose memory be always honourable among the saints), did encounter the brethren, and oppugned their fancies: now an army of most valorous and resolute champions and challengers rose up, which then and divers years ensuing (among whom as your grace was the first in time which gave the onset, so are you to be reckoned with the first and best for zeal, wisdom, and learning) did conflict with these brethren, defended the prelacy, stood for the prince and state, put the new doctors to the foil, profligated the elders, set upon the presbytery and so battered the new discipline as hitherto they could never, nor hereafter shall ever fortify and repair the decays thereof.

Most learned and worthy men set themselves against the brethren and the presbyterian discipline.

20. Notwithstanding, what the brethren wanted in strength and learning, they had in wiliness; and, though they lost much one way in the general and main point of their discipline, yet recovered they not a little advantage another way, by an odd and a new device of theirs, in a special article of their classical instructions.

A stratagem of the brethren.

For while these worthies of our church were employing their engines and forces, partly in defending the present government ecclesiastical, partly in assaulting the presbytery and new discipline, even at that very instant the brethren (knowing themselves too weak either to overthrow our holds, and that which we hold, or to maintain their own) they abandoned quite the bulwarks which they had raised, and gave out were impregnable; suffering us to beat them down, without any, or very small resistance: and yet, not careless of their affairs, left not the wars for all that, but from an odd corner, and after a new fashion, which we little thought of, (such was their cunning,) set upon us afresh again by dispersing in printed books (which for ten years' space before they had been in hammering among themselves to make them complete) their sabbath speculations, and presbyterian (that is, more than either kingly or popely) directions for the observation of the Lord's day.

An. 1595.

This stratagem of theirs was not observed then, neither, I fear me, is regarded as it should be yet; and yet did, and since hath, and doubtless in time to come, if it be not timely seen unto, with unsound opinions and paradoxes will so poison many, as the whole church and commonweal will find the danger and inconvenience of them: so plausible are they to men either popularly religious, or preposterously and injudiciously zealous.

Certain fruits and effects of the
doctrine published by
the brethren.

21. In this their sally, as I said before, they set not upon the bishops and their calling, their chancellors, &c., as popish and antichristian; they let them alone, seeing and knowing they are too well backed for them to subvert: but (which are of great all, and almost of the same antiquity with bishops divers of them, and I had almost said as necessary) they ruin, and at one blow beat down all times and days, by just authority destined to religious and holy uses, besides the Lord's day, saying plainly and in peremptory words, that the church hath none authority, ordinarily, or from year to year perpetually to sanctify any other day to those uses, but only the Lord's day.

They build not presbyteries expressly (though under hand, if it be well marked, they do erect them in their exercises of the sabbath :) but they set up a new idol, their Saint Sabbath (erst in the days of popish blindness St Sunday) in the midst and minds of God's people.

By the former they have opened not a gap, but a wide gate, unto all licentiousness, liberty, and profaneness on the holydays, which is readily and greedily apprehended of all sorts of people everywhere, especially of their favourites, to the high dishonour of God, decay of devotion, hinderance of christian knowledge and wisdom in all sorts, especially in the vulgar multitude and poor servants, advantage of the common enemies, and gross contempt of the necessary and laudable orders of our church. By the latter they have introduced a new, and more than either Jewish or popish superstition into the land, to no small blemish of our christian profession, and scandal of the true servants of God, and therewith doctrine most erroneous, dangerous, and antichristian.

22. Their doctrine summarily may be reduced unto these two heads, whereof the one is, that the Lord's-day, even as the old sabbath was of the Jews, must necessarily be kept, and solemnized of all and every Christian, under the pain of eternal condemnation both of body and soul.

The sum of the sabbatarian doctrine broached by the brethren.

The other, that under the same penalty it must be kept from the highest to the lowest, both of king and people, in sort and manner as these brethren among themselves have devised, decreed, and prescribed.

The former of these is like that of the false apostles, which came from Judea unto Antioch, and taught the brethren, that unless they were circumcised after the manner of Moses, they could not be saved: whom the apostles, Paul and Barnabas first, and afterwards Peter, James, and the rest at Jerusalem both zealously did resist, and in their synod, or convocation, powerfully suppress.

The latter, as bad as that, hath been the mother of many heretical assertions and horrible conclusions.

I have read (and many there be alive which will justify it) how it was preached in a market-town in Oxfordshire, that to do any servile work or business on the Lord's-day is as great a sin as to kill a man, or to commit adultery. It was preached in Somersetshire, that to throw a bowl on the Sabbath-day is as great a sin as to kill a man. It was preached in Norfolk, that to make a feast or wedding-dinner on the Lord's-day is as great a sin as for a father to take a knife and cut his child's throat. It was preached in Suffolk (I can name the man, and I was present when he was convented before his ordinary for preaching the same), that to ring more bells than one upon the Lord's-day to call the people unto the church is as great a sin as to commit murder.

When these things I read and heard, mine heart was stricken with an horror, and so is it still, when I do but think of them; and calling into mind the Sabbath Doctrine¹, at London printed for J. Porter and T. Man, anno 1595, which I had read afore (wherein very many things are to this effect), I presently smelt both whose disciples all those preachers are, and that the said doctrine had taken deep impression in men's hearts, and was dispersed (while our watchmen were otherwise busied, if not asleep) over the whole kingdom.

The brethren's doctrine of the Sabbath called in by authority, and forbidden any more to be printed.

23. It is a comfort unto my soul, and will be till my dying hour, that I have been the man and the means¹, that these sabbatarian errors and impieties are brought into light and knowledge of the state; whereby whatsoever else, sure I am, this good hath ensued, namely, that the said books of the sabbath (comprehending the abovementioned, and many more such fearful and heretical assertions) have been both called in, and forbidden any more to be printed and made common. Your grace's predecessor, archbishop Whitgift, by his letters, and officers at synods and visitations, anno 1599, did the one; and sir John Popham, lord chief justice of England, at Bury St Edmunds, in Suffolk, anno 1600, did the other.

And both these most reverend, sage, and honourable personages by their censures have declared (if men will take admonition), that this sabbath doctrine of the brethren agreeth neither with the doctrine of our church, nor with the laws and orders of this kingdom; disturbeth the peace both of the commonweal and church; and tendeth unto schism in the one, and sedition in the other: and therefore neither to be backed, nor bolstered by any good subject, whether he be church or commonweal man.

Purity of doctrine all queen Elizabeth's reign maintained in England.

24. Thus have errors and noisome doctrines, like boils and botches, ever and anon risen up, to the overthrow of our church's health and safety, if it might be; but yet such hath been the physic of our discipline, as what by lancing, purging, and other good means used, the body still hath been upholden and preserved from time to time.

And well may errors (like gross humours and tumours) continue among us, (as never church was, or will be quite without them, while it is militant here upon earth:) yet are they not of the substance at all of our religion, or any part of our church's doctrine (no more than ill humours which be in, are of the body; or dregs in a vessel of wine be any part either of the vessel or wine) which remaineth, as at the first, most sound, and uncorrupted; and so continued even until the dying day of that most illustrious and religious princess, queen Elizabeth.

The very brethren themselves do write, that,

In regard of the common grounds of religion, and of the Anno 1602. ministry, we are all one. We are all of one faith, one baptism, one body, one spirit, have all one Father, one Lord; and be all of one heart against all wickedness, superstition, idolatry, heresy; and we seek with one christian desire the advancement of the pure religion, worship, and honour of God. We are ministers of the word by one order; we administer prayers and sacraments by one form; we preach one faith and substance of doctrine. And we praise God heartily, that the true faith, by which we may be saved, and the true doctrine of the sacraments, and the pure worship of God, is truly taught, and that by public authority, and retained in the book of articles.

Hitherto the said brethren. And this was their verdict of our church's doctrine in the last year save one of queen Elizabeth's reign; than which nothing was ever more truly said or written: and this unity and purity of doctrine she left with us, when she departed this world.

25. Now, after Elizabeth reigned noble James, who King James. found this our church, as all the world knoweth, in respect of the grounds of true religion, at unity; and that unity Anno 1603. in verity, and that verity confirmed by public and regal approbation.

These ecclesiastical ministers therefore (though a thousand King James abused and troubled with false informations, and petitions of the brethren. for number) who at his majesty's first coming into this kingdom either complained unto his highness of (I know not what) errors and imperfections in our church, even in points of doctrine (as if she erred in matters of faith), or desired that an uniformity of doctrine might be prescribed (as if the same had not already been done to his hands,) or (as weary belike of the old, by queen Elizabeth countenanced and continued) desired his majesty to take them out a new lesson (as did the seventy-one brethren of Suffolk), are not to be liked.

Neither can we extol the goodness of our God sufficiently toward our king, and us all, for inspiring his royal heart with holy wisdom to discern these unstayed and troublesome spirits; and enabling his highness with power, and graces from above, to decree orders and directions for the general benefit and peace of the whole church; neither suffered he his eyes to sleep, nor his eye-lids to slumber, nor the temples of his head to take any rest, till he had set them down afore all other, though never so important and weighty affairs of the crown and kingdom.

King James patroniseth the doctrine and religion countenanced by queen Elizabeth.

26. Myself have read, and thousand thousands, with an hundred thousand of his subjects besides, have either read or heard of proclamations after proclamations (to the number of six, or seven at the least), of books and open speeches of his majesty, uttered in the parliament-house, and all of them made vulgar within a year, and little more, after his happy ingress into this kingdom and taking the administration of this most famous and flourishing empire upon himself; whereby the doctrine in this land allowed, and publicly graced and embraced of all sorts at his entrance into the realm, hath been not only acknowledged to be agreeable to God's word, sincere, and the very same which both his highness, and the whole church and kingdom of Scotland, yea, and the primitive church professed; but also by his authority regal and paramount (as one of the main pillars, supporting his estate) ratified to continue; and all hope either of allowing or tolerating in this kingdom of any other doctrine, religion, or faction whatsoever, opposite or any way thwarting the faith and confession of the church of England, in most plain, pithy, and peremptory words and speeches cut off.

Anno 1604.

The year 1562 was not more famous for the uniformity of doctrine in religion then concluded, than the year 1604 is memorable, and will be for seconding the same: neither got the clergy in those days more credit in composing the articles of our unity in faith, than did the last convocation (whereat your grace, then bishop of London, was present, and president) in ratifying the acts and articles of their antecessors; neither was queen Elizabeth more honoured in establishing them at the first, than is our king James renowned, and more and more will be, for approving under the great seal of England the late and last constitutions and canons ecclesiastical.

Subscription the third time urged.

27. Whereby no person shall hereafter be received into the ministry, nor neither by institution or collation admitted to any ecclesiastical living, nor suffered to preach, to catechise, or to be lecturer or reader of divinity in either university, or in any cathedral, or collegiate church, city or market-town, parish-church, chapel, or in any other place in this realm, except, &c., and except he shall first subscribe to these three articles, &c.; whereof the third is, that he alloweth the book of Articles of Religion, &c.; nor any licensed to preach, read, lecture, or catechise, coming to reside in any diocese, shall be permitted there to preach, read, lecture, catechise, or minister the sacraments, or to execute any other ecclesiastical function (by what authority soever he be thereunto admitted), unless he first consent and subscribe to the three articles¹.

Neither shall any man teach either in public school, or in private house, except he shall first subscribe to the first and third articles simply, &c.²

Neither shall any man be admitted a chancellor, commissary, or official, to exercise any ecclesiastical jurisdiction, except, &c. and shall subscribe to the Articles of Religion, agreed upon in the convocation in the year 1562, &c.

And likewise all chancellors, commissaries, registers, and all other, that do now possess or execute any places of ecclesiastical jurisdiction or service, shall before Christmas next in the presence of the archbishop or bishop, or in open court, under whom, or where they execute their offices, take the same oaths, and subscribe, as before is said; or upon refusal so to do, shall be suspended from the execution of their offices, until they shall take the said oaths, and subscribe, as aforesaid³.

28. In which constitutions the wisdom of his highness sheweth itself to be excellent, who indeed (as exceeding necessary, both for the retaining⁴ of peace in the church, and preventing of new doctrine, curious speculations, and offences, which otherwise daily would spring up and intolerably increase) calleth for subscription, in testimony of men's cordial consent unto the received doctrine of our church, but exacteth not their oaths, as some do; much less oaths, vows, and subscription too (but only in a particular respect, and that of a very few in public office), as our neighbours have done.

Of the subscription called for.

[⁴ Retain, 1607.]

Again, he requireth subscription, but not of civil magistrates; not of the commons (as elsewhere some do), not of every man, yea, of women as well as of men (as did the persecuted church at Franckford in queen Mary's days), not of noble, gentlemen, and courtiers (as in Scotland was exacted in our king's minority); but only of ecclesiastical ministers, teachers, and spiritual officers, or of those which would be such: and so do the reformed churches in France and Germany at this very day.

Can. 2, 127. Last of all, his majesty calleth for subscription unto articles of religion; but they are not either articles of his own lately devised, or the old newly turkened¹, but the very articles agreed upon by the archbishops and bishops of both provinces, and the whole clergy in the convocation holden at London, and that in the year of our Lord God 1562, and unto none other; even the same articles, for number thirty-nine, no more, no fewer; and for words, syllables, and letters, the very same, unaugmented, undiminished, unaltered.

Ibid.

The church of England settled and constant in her religion.

29. And being the same, the whole world is to know, that the church of England is not in religion changed, or variable like the moon, nor affecteth novelty or new lessons; but holdeth stedfastly and conscionably that truth, which by the martyrs and other ministers in this last age of the world hath been restored unto this kingdom, and is grounded upon God's written word, the only foundation of our faith.

And being the same, all men again may see, that we are still at unity both among ourselves at home, and with the neighbour churches abroad in all matters of chiefest importance and fundamental points of religion, though our adversaries the papists would fain beat the contrary into the common people's heads.

And being the same, there is now (as also from the first restoration of the gospel among us there hath been) an uniformity likewise of doctrine by authority established, which at the king his first arrival among us was so much desired by the brethren.

And finally, being the same, let us not doubt but persuade ourselves, that we shall find the anti-christian church of Rome too the same, which for the same doctrine, and for none other cause, persecuteth all christian churches, but ours of England especially, with sword, fire, and powder in most hostile, yea, and hellish manner: the effect of whose hatred against us as we have often seen, so especially had we felt the same the next year after our king's ratification of these articles, had not our ever merciful God most miraculously detected both the treason and traitors. For which his favours his holy name be glorified of us and our posterity, throughout all generations. Anno 1603.

30. So our church is the same. But be the brethren, the faithful, and godly brethren too, the same now which they have also been? If they be, then will they not deny (which anno 1572 they writ), that we hold the substance of religion with them; nor (which anno 1602 they published, and is afore remembered) that the true faith, by which we may be saved, and the true doctrine of the sacraments, and the pure worship of God be truly taught, and that by public authority, and retained in the book of articles. And in this confession I pray God they may constantly persevere. The brethren no changelings.

Howbeit even these men (which in a generality do allow the doctrine of our church) being called by authority to acknowledge their assent unto every article thereof in particular, they do not a little debase the estimation of this doctrine of ours, and shew themselves but too apparent and professed dissenters from the same. And though all of them do and will approve some, yet not one of them will subscribe unto all and every of the articles.

For unto the articles of religion, and the king's supremacy, they are willing to subscribe. And they may subscribe (as afore hath been noted) unto such of them, as contain the sum of christian faith and the doctrine of the sacraments. But unto the same articles, for number 39, agreed upon in this convocation at London, anno 1562, they neither will, nor dare, nor may subscribe. For neither the rest of the articles in that book, nor the Book of Common Prayer, may be allowed, no, though a man should be deprived from his ministry for it, say the said brethren in a certain classical decree of theirs. The late politician is not afraid to move the high and most honourable court of parliament, that impropriations may be let to farm unto incumbent ministers, viz. which faithfully preach in the churches the true doctrine of the gospel, according to the articles of religion, concerning faith and sacraments; meaning that such ministers as preach the same doctrine, if they proceed to the rest of the articles, concerning either conformity in external and ceremonial matters, or uniformity in other points of doctrine contained in that book, should not be partakers of that benefit, or of benefices impropriate.

Why the brethren will subscribe unto some, but not unto all the Articles.

31. If it be demanded, what the causes may be, why they will subscribe unto some, but will not unto all; or why they will unto those Articles which concern faith and the sacraments, but will not unto the rest subscribe; the reasons hereof be two: whereof

The one is for that, in their opinion, there is no law to compel them to subscribe unto all. For (say the brethren resiant I know not where) we have always been ready to subscribe to the Articles of Religion concerning the doctrine of faith and of the sacraments, which is all that is required by law. Also the brethren in Devonshire and Cornwall, We are ready (say they) to subscribe to the third (which concerneth the book of Articles of Religion) so far as we are bound by statute concerning the same, viz. as they concern the doctrine of the sacraments and the confession of the true faith. And the two-and-twenty London brethren tell king James to his head, how the subscription which he calleth for is more than the law requireth.

Their other reason is, because (as the Lincolnshire do say) sundry, (as the London brethren affirm) many things in that book be not agreeable, but contrary to God's word.

32. If these things be true which they do allege, surely then are those men to be chronicled for the faithful, the godly and innocent brethren indeed, whom neither present benefices can allure, nor the angry countenance and displeasure of a king, even of the puissant and powerful king of Great Britain, can force to do anything at his beck and pleasure, either against law or for which there is no law; and who had rather to forego all their earthly commodities and livings, yea, and to go from their charges and ministry, and to expose themselves, their wives, and children, to the miseries of this world (grievous for flesh and blood to endure), than to approve anything for true and sound by their hands, which is opposite or not agreeable to the revealed will and scriptures of God.

But if these allegations of theirs be but weak and sinful surmises, or rather, apparently most false, scandalous, and slanderous imputations to their prince, their mother-church, and this state; then doubtless, as even the¹ Christians now living cannot but take them, so the ages to come will everlastingly note and censure them, both for disloyal subjects, that so traduce a truly and most christianly religious king; ill-deserving children, that so abuse their honourable and reverend fathers and superiors of state and authority; turbulent spirits, not peaceable men, which raise such broils, troubles, and divisions in the church and kingdom (the issues whereof no tongue can foretel and are fearful being thought of) without cause; and, finally, neither faithful nor godly preachers, but ungodly broachers of untruths and slanders, and the very authors and fautors of horrible confusion and faction in God's church, whose peace they should seek and promote even with their dearest blood.

33. Since the statute for uniformity in rites and doctrine was first enacted, more than thirty-five years have passed, in all which space neither the brethren now being, nor the brethren afore them living, have hitherto shewn of the thirty-nine Articles, for names and titles, which—for number, how many—the articles be, which ecclesiastical ministers necessarily must, how many which they may not, or need not unless they list, subscribe unto; which I am sure they, or some of them, at one time or other would have expressed, had the law favoured their recusancy, and they been able to have justified their maxim, which is, that they are not compellable by subscription to approve them all. Again, since the first establishment of that statute-law, the most reverend fathers and truly reformed ministers of this church (sound for judgment, profound for learning, zealous for affection, sincere for religion; faithful in their churches, painful in their charges; more profitable many ways, of as tender consciences every way as any of these brethren combined, according both to their bounden duties and as they are persuaded) to the very purport and true intent of the said statute, have always both with their mouths acknowledged and with their pens approved the thirty-nine articles of our religion for truths not to be doubted of, and godly.

Yea, and the brethren too themselves (which now so scrupulously, when they are orderly called thereunto, do hold back their hands, and will subscribe but choicely unto some of them) even they with their mouths (which is equivalent and all one) have, and that according to the statute (or else their livings be void), upon the first entrance into all and singular their ecclesiastical benefices, openly both read and testified their consent unto the said articles, for number even nine-and-thirty, acknowledging them, I say, all of them to be agreeable to God's word; whereof the people in their several charges be ready witnesses, to testify so much before God and the world.

34. Again, of these brethren, that will subscribe but unto which they please of these articles, there be some who fain would beat into men's heads (if they could tell how to make it credible), that the doctrine of our church is altered from that it was in the reign of queen Elizabeth.

A late device of the brethren to shun
subscription.

But this assertion being too gross, egregiously untrue, and no way justifiable, they secondly give out and report (so industrious be they to invent new shifts to cloak their inveterate and rooted pertinacy) how the purpose, if not doctrine, of our church is of late altered from that it was. And therefore though they can be well content to allow of the old doctrine and ancient intention; yet unto the old doctrine and new intention of our church they cannot subscribe, might they either gain much or lose whatsoever they have thereby. Besides, this new intendment, contrary to the old purpose, if not doctrine of our church, is become now the main and principal obstacle, why they cannot subscribe unto the Book of Common Prayer and Book of Ordination, as erst they (some of them) four times have done, when as well the intention as doctrine of our church was pure and holy.

Lastly, they seem not obscurely to intimate unto the state, that were they sure, or might be assured, that the purpose of our church were the same which it was, neither varied from the doctrine, they would be prest and as ready, even four, if not forty times more, to subscribe unto the fore-mentioned books of common prayer and of ordination, as aforesimes they did, when they were out of doubt the intention of our church was correspondent to her doctrine, that it was sound and good. I have four times subscribed (saith a brother) to the Book of Common Prayer with limitation, and reference of all things therein contained (not unto the purpose only, or doctrine only, but) unto the purpose and doctrine of the church of England. Yet cannot the same man with a good conscience so much as once more subscribe, which formerly, and that with a good conscience, had subscribed four times. His reason is, because the purpose, if not doctrine, of our church (to which he referred his subscription) appeareth to him, by the late canons, book of conference, and some speeches of men in great place, and others, to be varied somewhat from that, which he before (not without reason) took it to be.

35. The purpose of our church is best known by the doctrine which she doth profess; the doctrine by the thirtynine Articles, established by act of parliament; the articles by the words whereby they are expressed; and other purpose than the public doctrine doth minister, and other doctrine than in the said articles is contained, our church neither hath nor holdeth; and other sense they cannot yield than their words do import. The words be the same, and none other than erst and first they were; and therefore the sense the same; the articles the same; the doctrine the same, and the purpose and intention of our church still one and the same.

The purpose and doctrine of our church, continue the same.

If then her purpose be known by her doctrine and articles, and their true sense by their very words, needs must the purpose of our church be the same, because her doctrine and articles for number, words, syllables, and letters, and every way be the very same.

And so our church's intention in her public doctrine and articles revealed, being good at the first, it is so still. For her purpose, continuing one and the same, cannot be ill at the last, which was good (and so believed and acknowledged, even by the brothers' subscription) at the first; or good in good queen Elizabeth's, and ill in illustrious king James his days.

36. If the premisses sufficiently explain not the constancy of our church's purpose in professing religion sincerely, then cast we our eyes upon the propositions, which she publicly maintaineth; and, if we find them the same, which ever they have been, then need we not doubt (the brethren themselves being judges) but the articles again, their sense, the doctrine, purpose, and intention of the church of England (the proposition interpreting, as it were, the said articles) is the very same it ever was.

Now that propositions (pregnantly and rightly gathered, and arising from the articles) be the same, and for substance unaltered (though upon good considerations some few be added to the former); and all of them approved for true, and christian, by the lawful and public allowance of our church, the book here ensuing plainly will declare, and so demonstrate withal, not the doctrine only, but intention also, of our church to be the same and not changed; and being unchanged, the books then of common prayer, and of ordination too, considered in the purpose and intention of the church of England, and reduced to the propositions (as the brethren would have them), be well allowed and authentically approved; and the said brethren with as good conscience now again and afresh may subscribe unto all the articles, even concerning the Book of Common Prayer, and of Ordination, as well as of the king's supremacy, and of religion, as afore often and always they did.

37. For myself, most reverend father in God, what my thoughts be of the religion in this realm at this instant professed, and of all these articles, if the premisses do not, that which here followeth will sufficiently demonstrate. Twenty, yea, twenty-two years ago, voluntarily, of mine own accord, and altogether unconstrained, I published my subscription unto them: my faith is not either shaken or altered, but what it then was it still is; years have made those hairs of mine grey which were not; and time, much reading, and experience in theological conflicts and combats have bettered a great deal, but not altered one whit, my judgement, I thank God.

Nothing have I denied, nothing gainsaid, which afore I delivered.

The propositions are (and yet not many) more; the method altered; quotations added, both for the satisfaction of some learned and judicious friends of mine, requesting it at mine hands, and for the benefit both of the common and unlearned, and of the studious and learned reader.

The whole work expresseth as well my detestation and renunciation of all adversaries and errors, opposite, crossing, or contradicting the doctrine professed by us, and protected by our king, or any article or particle of truth of our religion; as my approbation of that truth which in our church by wholesome statutes and ordinances is confirmed.

There is not an heretic, or schismatic (to speak of) of any special mark, that from the apostles' times hitherto hath discovered himself and his opinions vulgarly in writing, or in print against our doctrine, but his heresy, fancy, or phrensy may be here seen against one proposition or other. The sects and sect-masters, adversaries unto us, either in the matter or main points of our doctrine or discipline, to one of our articles or other, wholly, or in part, which here be discovered to be taken heed of and avoided, are many hundreds.

38. This, and whatever else here done, either to the confirmation of the truth or detestation of heresies and errors, I do very meekly present unto your grace, as after God and our king best meriting the patronage thereof.

Myself am much, the whole church of England much more, bound unto your lordship; yea, not we only now living, but our successors also and posterity, shall have cause in all ages, while the world shall continue, to magnify Almighty God for the inestimable benefits which we have, and shall receive from yourself, and your late predecessors (Dr Whitgift, Grindal, Parker, Cranmer, of famous and honourable remembrance, bishops of our church, archbishops of the see of Canterbury) for this uniform doctrine by some of your lordships drawn and penned, by all of you allowed, defended, and (as agreeable to the faith of the very apostles of Christ, and of the ancient fathers, correspondent to the confessions of all reformed churches in Christendom, and contrariant in no point unto God's holy and written word) commended unto us, both by your authority and subscriptions.

Now the all-merciful God and heavenly Father, which so inspired them and your lordship with wisdom from above, and enabled you all to discern truth from falsehood, and sound religion from atheism, idolatry, and errors, vouchsafe of his infinite goodness to increase his graces more and more upon your grace, to his own glory, the church's benefit, and your own everlasting comfort.

And the same God which both mercifully hath brought, and miraculously against all hellish and devilish practices of his and our enemies continued the light of his truth among us, give us all grace with one heart and consent, not only to embrace the same, but also to walk and carry ourselves as it becometh the children of light, in all peaceableness and holiness of life, for his Son, our Lord and Saviour Christ, his sake.

CONSTITUTIONS AND CANONS ECCLESIASTICAL,
Anno 1604.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, that the church of England, by law established, under the king's majesty, is not a true and an apostolical church, teaching and maintaining the doctrine of the apostles; let him be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored, but only by the archbishop, after his repentance and public revocation of this his wicked error. Can. 3.

Whosoever shall hereafter affirm, that any of the 39 articles agreed upon by the archbishops and bishops of both provinces and the whole clergy, in the convocation holden at London, in the year of our Lord God 1562, for the avoiding of diversities of opinions, and for the establishing of consent touching true religion, are in any part superstitious or erroneous, or such as he may not with a good conscience subscribe unto; let him be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored, but only by the archbishop, after his repentance and public revocation of such his wicked errors. Can. 5.

Whosoever shall hereafter separate themselves from the communion of saints, as it is approved by the apostles' rules in the church of England, and combine themselves in a new brotherhood, accounting the Christians who are conformable to the doctrine, government, rites, and ceremonies of the church of England, to be profane and unmeet for them to join with in christian profession; let them be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored, but by the archbishop, after their repentance and public revocation of such their wicked errors. THE CATHOLIC DOCTRINE
BELIEVED AND PROFESSED IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

ARTICLE I.

Of faith in the Holy Trinity.

There is but (1) one living, and true God, everlasting, without body, parts, or passions; of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness: (2) the maker and preserver of all things, both visible and invisible. (3) And in unity of this Godhead there be three persons, of one substance, power, and eternity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

The Propositions.

1. There is but one God, who is living, true, everlasting, &c.
2. God is the maker and preserver of all things.
3. In the Unity of the Godhead there is a Trinity of persons.

Proposition I.

There is but one God, who is living, true, everlasting, without body, parts, or passions: of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness.

The proof from the word of God.

That there is but one God, who is, &c., is a truth which may be gathered from the all-holy and sacred scripture: and is agreeable to the doctrine of the reformed churches. For both God's word giveth us to know that God is one, and no more^a, the living^b and true God^c, everlasting^d, without body,

^a Thou shalt have none other gods before me, Exod. xx. 3. The Lord our God is Lord only, Deut. vi. 4. Who is God beside the Lord? Psal. xviii. 31. Hath not one God made us? Mal. ii. 10. There is none other God but one, 1 Cor. viii. 4.

^b Mine heart and my flesh rejoice in the living God, Psal. lxxxiv.
2. Ye are the temple of the living God, 2 Cor. vi. 16.

^c For a long season Israel hath been without the true God, 2 parts, or passions^e; of infinite power^f, wisdom^g, and goodness^h: and God's people in their public Confessions¹ from Ausburgh, Helvetia, Bohemia, France, Flanders and Wittemberg testify the same.

Proposition II.

God is the maker and preserver of all things.

The proof from God's word.

That the world, and all things both visible and invisible therein, both were made and are preserved by the almighty and only power of God, are truths grounded upon the holy scripture, and agreeable to the Confessions of God's people.

For touching the creation of the world, we read that in the beginning God created the heaven and the earth, &c. He made heaven and earth; by him were all things created which are in heaven, and which are in earth, things visible and invisible, whether thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all things were created by him, and for him; by his Son he made the worlds; and all these acknowledged by the churches, primitive and reformed, at this day⁸.

And touching the preservation of all things by him created: "My soul, praise thou the Lord," &c., (saith the Psalmist) "which covereth himself with light as with a garment, spreadeth the heavens like a curtain; which layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters, and maketh the clouds his chariot, and walketh upon the wings of the wind; which maketh the spirits his messengers, and flaming fire his ministers," &c.

"Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing, and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father?" yea, "and all the hairs of your head are numbered," saith our Saviour

El. par. 1.
Lib. vii. c. 1.

Some think there be three Gods, or Spirits, not distinguished only, but divided also, as did the Eunomians⁵, and Tritheites⁶.

Calv. Epist.

Some fear not to say, that in worshipping the Trinity, Christians do adore three devils, worse than all the idols of the papists; such blasphemers were the heretics⁷ Blandrat, and Alciat.

Athanas. ad
Epictet.

Some will have a quaternity of persons, not a Trinity, to be worshipped: so did Anastasius the emperor command; and the Apollinarians⁸ did hold.

that there is one only God:.....Neither do they acknowledge any distinction of persons in the Godhead, either of Trinity in Unity, or of Unity in Trinity as do the Christians.—The Policy of the Turkish Empire, Lond. 1597. c. 5. init.]

Opp. Amstelod. 1667-71. Tom. viii. Part. 2. p. 162. a.]

[⁸ The author is mistaken here. Athanasius is stating the argument of those heretics who denied the passibility of our Lord's body, objecting that if he had a human body, born of the Virgin, it could not be consubstantial with the divine Word; and that a quaternity, instead of a Trinity of Persons, must necessarily follow.—Athanas. Opp. Paris. 1627. Tom. i. p. 588. Ad Epictet. contr. Hær. Epist. See also the Magdeburg Eccl. Hist. Cent. iv. c. 5. fol. 384.]

Some do grant and acknowledge the names of three in the Godhead, but deny their persons; such were the Noëtians, Praxeneans, and Hermogeneans⁹. These did say how the same God was called by divers names in the holy scripture; and therefore that the Father became flesh, and suffered, because one and the same God is called the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. For which cause they were termed Patripassians. In this number was Servetus¹⁰.

Again, some do grant the names and persons of three, and yet deprive not only the Son and Holy Ghost of their divinity, but the whole Trinity also of their properties. For they say, there be three in heaven, viz. the Father, the Word, and Holy Ghost; howbeit (say they) the Father only is very God; the Word is the breath of the Father; and the Holy Ghost is the Spirit created by God of nothing, through the Word: spoiling so both the Son, and Holy Ghost of their Deity, and the whole Trinity of their properties. Such were the Arian and Macedonian heretics, hence by-named Pneumatomachons¹¹, because they waged battle with the Holy Ghost.

And some do bring in other names of Deity, besides of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as did the Priscillianists¹².

ARTICLE II.

Of the Word of God which was made very man.

The Son, which is (1) the Word of the Father, begotten from everlasting of the Father, the very and eternal God, of one substance with the Father, (2) took man's nature in the womb of the blessed virgin, of her substance: so that (3) two whole and perfect natures, that is to say, the Godhead and manhood were joined in one person, never to be divided, whereof is one Christ, very God, and very man; (4) who suffered, was crucified, dead, and buried, to reconcile his Father to us, and to be a sacrifice, not only for original guilt, but also for all actual sins of men.

The propositions.

1. Christ is very God.
2. Christ is very man.
3. Christ is God and man, and that in one person.
4. Christ is the Saviour of mankind.

Proposition I.

Christ is very God.

The proof from God's word.

- John i. 1. In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and that Word was God. This is written of Christ. Therefore Christ is God.
- Psal. ii. 7.
Acts xiii. 33.
Heb. i. 5. Christ was begotten of the Father from everlasting. Therefore very God.
- John xvii. 3. This is life eternal, that they know thee to be very God, and whom thou hast sent, Jesus Christ.
- Matt. i. 23. They shall call his name Emmanuel, which is by interpretation, God with us.
- Heb. i. 3. Christ, he is the brightness of the glory, and the engraved image of (the Father) his person, and beareth up all things by his mighty hand, therefore very God.

And this both hath been of the ancient Christians^u, and is the faith¹ of the reformed churches.

The errors and adversaries unto this truth.

Miserably therefore do they err, which either deny or impugn the Deity of our Saviour, as did certain old heretics, viz.

The Arians, whereof some were called Douleians², be-

Matthew Hamant¹⁰ (burnt at Norwich, anno 1579), one of whose heresies was, that Christ was a mere and sinful man.

Francis Ket¹¹ (burnt also at Norwich, anno 1588), who most obstinately maintained that Christ was not God till after his resurrection.

David George¹², sometime of Basil, who affirmed himself to be greater for power than ever Christ was.

In oppugning the Deity of our Saviour, with these heretics join the Jews¹³ and Turks¹⁴, which say, that Christ was a good man; such as Moses and Mahomet were; but not God. Hence Amurath the great Turk, in his letters unto the emperor Rodolph the Second, anno 1593, termed our Saviour in derision, The crucified God. Unto whom may be added the Family of Love¹⁵.

Proposition II.

Christ is very man.

The proof from God's word.

Holding the humanity of Christ, we join with the blessed prophets and evangelists, who either prophesied of his future incarnation^a and conception in the womb of a virgin^b, or plainly avouched, and writ, both that the Virgin Mary was his mother, and that, as very man, he grew and increased in strength, endured hunger^c and thirst^d, wept, and slept, and suffered death.

Athanas.

The right faith is, that we believe and confess, that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and man ; God, of the substance of the Father, begotten before the world ; and man, of the substance of his mother, born in the world ; perfect God and perfect man, of a reasonable soul and human flesh subsisting ; equal to the Father as touching his Godhead, and inferior to the Father as touching his manhood.

Symb. Nicen.

I believe in one God, the Father Almighty, &c. and in one Lord Jesus Christ, &c., who for us men, and for our salvation came down from heaven, and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, and was made man, &c.

8. The human nature of Christ before his passion was devoid of human affections; so thought the Severites¹³. Niceph. I. lib. xvii. cap. 29.

Proposition III.

Christ is God and man, and that in one Person.

The proof from God's word.

That the divine and human natures of Christ are united in one person, it accordeth with the holy scripture. For, John i. 14. the word was made flesh, and dwelt among us: (and we saw the glory thereof, as the glory of the only-begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth, saith the evangelist John. And Matthew: Jesus when he was baptized, &c. Lo, a voice Matt. iii. 17. (came) from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

He that descended is even the same that ascended far Eph. iv. 10. above all heavens, that he might fill all things, saith S. Paul.

Again, Christ Jesus, being in the form of God, thought Phil. ii. 6, 7, 9, 11. it no robbery to be equal with God, but made himself of no reputation, and took on him the form of a servant, and was made like unto men, and was found in shape as a man, &c.; wherefore God hath also highly exalted him, &c., that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is the Lord, unto the glory of God the Father.

And the same apostle, There is one God, and one Me- 1 Tim. ii. 5, 6. diator between God and man, even the man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all men.

Upon these, and the like grounds,

I believe in God, the Father Almighty, &c. and in Jesus Symb. Apost. Christ his only Son our Lord, which was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary.

The right faith is, That we believe, and confess, that our Symb. Athan. Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and man, &c., who although he be God and man, yet he is not two, but one Of the Resurrection of Christ.

Christ did truly (1) arise again from death, and took again his body, with flesh, bones, and all things appertaining to the perfection of man's nature, (2) wherewith he ascended into heaven, and there sitteth (3) until he return to judge all men at the last day.

(Aug. in 1'salm. lxxxv.) Where this mansion of the fathers stood, or whether it be any part of hell, St Augustine doubteth: but that there was such a place, he nor no catholic man ever doubted: as all the fathers make it most certain, that our Saviour descending to hell went thither specially, and delivered the said fathers out of that mansion.—Test. The propositions.

1. Christ is risen from the dead.
2. Christ is ascended into heaven.
3. Christ shall come again at the last day, to judge all men, even the quick and the dead.

Proposition I.

Christ is risen from the dead.

The proof from God's word.

The resurrection of Christ may easily be proved from the holy scriptures, in which it is evident, first, that Christ should^a; and next, that he did rise from death unto life, both by his appearing to Mary Magdalen, to divers women, to two, to ten, to all the disciples, to more than five hundred brethren at once, to sundry persons by the space of forty days together, and by the testimony also of the apostles, Peter and Paul.

A truth both believed and acknowledged by God's people⁶ from age to age.

ARTICLE V.

Of the Holy Ghost.

The Holy Ghost (3) proceeding from the Father and the Son, (2) is of one substance, majesty, and glory with the Father and the Son, (1) very and eternal God.

The propositions.

1. The Holy Ghost is very and eternal God.
2. The Holy Ghost is of one substance, majesty and glory with the Father and the Son.
3. The Holy Ghost proceedeth from the Father and the Son.

Proposition I.

The Holy Ghost is very and eternal God.

The proof from God's word.

The Holy Ghost to be very and eternal God, the scriptures teach us. For he is the Creator of all things. In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth, &c.; the Spirit of God moved upon the waters. O Lord, how manifold are thy works, &c. If thou hide thy face, they are troubled; if thou take away their breath, they die, and return to their dust: if thou send forth thy Spirit, they are created: ergo, the Holy Ghost is God.

Christians are to be baptized in the name of the Holy Ghost, as well as of the Father and the Son. Therefore is he very God.

Ananias lied unto God, and Sapphira tempted God, when both he lied unto the Holy Ghost, and she tempted the Spirit of the Lord.

As God, he chooseth, assigneth, and sendeth forth men for the ministry of the gospel; as God, he decreeth orders for his church and people; and as God he is to be invocated and prayed unto, as well as the Father and the Son.

Upon this and the like words, I believe in the Holy Ghost; I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Lord and giver of life. The catholic faith is this, that we worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity, &c. The Father is God, the Son is God, and the Holy Ghost is God; and yet they are not three Gods, but one God, &c., say the ancient fathers;

Proposition II.

The Holy Ghost is of one substance, majesty, and glory, with the Father and the Son.

The proof from the word of God.

The Holy Ghost effected the incarnation of Christ, teacheth all things, leadeth into all truth, giveth utterance to his servants, and gifts unto his people, placeth rulers in the church, and overseers to feed the flock of God, sealet the elect unto the day of redemption, as well as the Father and the Son: and these three, viz. the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, are one. Therefore is the Holy Ghost of one substance, majesty, and glory with the Father and the Son.

The 1. Book of Kings.	4. Prophets the greater.
The 2. Book of Kings.	12. Prophets the less.

(3) And the other books (as Hierome saith) the church doth read for example of life, and instruction of manners; but yet doth it not apply them to stablish any doctrine; such are these following:

The 3. Book of Esdras.	Baruch the Prophet.
The 4. Book of Esdras.	Song of the 3 Children.
The Book of Tobias.	The Story of Susanna.

as the Papists⁶, who therefore anathematize and curse so many as take them not for canonical.

Proposition IV.

Of the New Testament all the books are canonical.

Although some of the ancient fathers and doctors accepted not all the books contained within the volume of the New Testament for canonical; yet in the end they were wholly taken and received by the common consent of the church of Christ in this world, for the very word of God, as they are at this day almost in all places where the gospel is preached and professed.

Howbeit, we judge them canonical, not so much because learned and godly men in the church so have, and do receive and allow of them, as for that the Holy Spirit in our hearts doth testify that they are from God. They carry a sacred, and divine authority with them, and they do also agree in all points with the other books of God in the Old Testament.

The propositions.

1. The Old Testament is not contrary to the New.
2. The old fathers looked for eternal happiness through Christ, as well as for temporal blessings.
3. Christians are not bound at all to the observation of the Judaical ceremonies.
4. The judicial laws of the Jews are not necessarily to be received or established in any commonwealth.
5. No Christian man whatsoever is freed from the obedience of the law moral.

Proposition I.

The Old Testament is not contrary to the New.

The proof from God's word.

That the Old Testament is not contrary to the New, it may be proved by many invincible arguments; yet it is most apparent, in that our Saviour Christ, very God, and very man, (as above, Art. II., hath been declared) is offered unto mankind for his eternal salvation by them both. For Proposition II.

The old fathers looked for eternal happiness through Christ, as well as for temporal blessings.

The proof from God's word.

The old fathers to have looked not only for transitory promises, but also for eternal happiness through Christ, the holy scripture doth manifest.

St Paul saith,

Brethren, I would not have you ignorant that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the Red Sea; and did eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink: (for they drank of the spiritual rock that followed them; and the rock was Christ).

By faith Noe was made heir of the righteousness which is by faith.

By faith Moses, when he was come to age, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, and chose rather to suffer adversity with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the rebukes of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward, &c.

All these through faith obtained good report, and received not the promise; God providing a better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect.

ARTICLE IX.

Of Original, or Birth-sin.

(1) Original sin standeth not in the following of Adam, (as the Pelagians do vainly talk;) but (2) it is the fault and corruption of the nature of every man, that naturally is ingendered of the offspring of Adam, whereby man is very far gone from original righteousness, and is² inclined to evil, so that the flesh lusteth³ against the spirit; and therefore in every person born into the world, it deserveth God's wrath and damnation. (3) And this infection of nature doth remain, yea in them that are regenerated, whereby the lust of the flesh, called in Greek φρόνημα σαρκός, which some do expound the wisdom, some the sensuality, some the affection, some the desire, of the flesh, is not subject to the law of God. And although there is no condemnation for them that believe and are baptized, yet the apostle doth confess that (4) concupiscence and lust hath of itself the nature of sin.

The propositions.

1. There is original sin.
2. Original sin is the fault, and corruption of the nature of every man, &c.
3. Original sin remaineth in God his dear children.
4. Concupiscence, even in the regenerate, is sin.

Proposition I.

There is original sin.

The proof from God's word.

In the holy Scripture we find of original sin, the cause, the subject, and the effects: the cause thereof is Adam's fall, partly by the subtle suggestions of the devil, partly through his own freewill; and the propagation of Adam his corrupted nature unto his seed and posterity.

Gen. iii. 4.
2 Cor. xi. 3.

Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God, saith our Saviour Christ. As by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death went over all men: forasmuch as all men have sinned, saith St Paul. As new-born babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby, saith St Peter. And St James, Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be as the first-fruits of his creatures. And the forementioned Apostle Paul again, You that were dead in trespasses and sins, &c., and were by nature the children of wrath, as well as others. But God, which is rich in mercy, through his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead by sins, hath quickened us together in Christ, &c.

Rom. v. 12.

1 Pet. ii. 2.

James i. 18.

Eph. ii. 1, 3, 4.

[³ Lusteth always against &c., 1675.]

The subject thereof is the old man, with all his powers, mind, will, and heart. For in the mind there is darkness, and ignorance of God, and his will: and in the will, and heart of man there is concupiscence, and rebellious affections against the law of God.

And the effects of this birth, or original sin, are first actual sins; and they both inward, as ungodly affections; and outward, as wicked looks, profane speech, and devilish actions; next, an evil conscience, which bringeth the wrath of God, death, and eternal damnation.

All churches of God believe this, and some in their public confessions¹ testify so much.

Original sin is not the imitation of Adam his disobedience: for the scripture speaketh of no such thing; neither doth God's people so think; and some churches, by their extant confessions, with us deny the same; as the church in France, and the Low Countries³: but it is partly the imputation of Adam his disobedience unto us, and partly the fault and corruption of man's nature, as the churches¹ also acknowledge.

For that cause also, they cannot bring forth anything else but all good and love.—H. N. (Henry Nicholas) Documental Sentences, cap. ii. § 1. For at that time when we have turned our love so wholly to the Word and his requiring; there can no assaulting indamage or hinder us: yea, although there came an hundred thousand. ARTICLE X.

Of Free-Will.

(1) The condition of man after the fall of Adam is such, that he cannot turn and prepare himself, by his own natural strength and good works, (2) to faith and calling upon God: Wherefore we have no power to do good works pleasant and acceptable to God, (3) without the grace of God⁸ preventing us, that we may have a good will, and working with us, when we have that good will.

The propositions.

1. Man of his own strength may do outward and evil works before he is regenerate.

2. Man cannot do any work that good is and godly, being not yet regenerate.

3. Man may perform and do good works, when he is prevented by the grace of Christ, and renewed by the Holy Ghost.

Proposition I.

Man of his own strength may do outward and evil works before he is regenerate.

The proof from God's word.

We deny not, that man, not regenerate, hath free-will to do the works of nature, for the preservation of the body, and bodily estate; which thing had and have the brute beast, and profane gentiles, as it is also well observed in our neighbour churches¹ Besides, man hath free-will to perform the works of Satan, both in thinking, willing, and doing that which is evil. For the imaginations of the thoughts of man's heart only are evil continually, evil even from his youth. A truth confessed by our brethren².

ARTICLE XI.

Of the Justification of Man.

We are accounted righteous before God, only for (1) the merit of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ (2) by faith, and (3) not for our own works or deservings.

Wherefore that we are justified by faith only is a most wholesome doctrine, and very full of comfort, &c.

The propositions.

Proposition I.

Only for the merit of our Lord and Saviour Christ we are accounted righteous before God.

The proof from the word of God.

By Christ his blood only we are cleansed.

John i. 29.

He is "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world."

Rom. iii. 24.

"We are justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus."

1 Cor. vi. 20.

1 Pet. i. 19.

1 John i. 7.

We are bought with a price, even with the precious blood of Christ, the Lamb undefiled and without spot, which cleanseth us from all sin.

By his only righteousness we are justified.

Rom. v. 19.

"By the obedience of one many be made righteous."

Ibid. x. 4.

"Christ is the end of the law for righteousness unto every one that believeth." "He of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption:" and "we are made the righteousness of God in him." And therefore "from heaven we look for the Saviour, even the Lord Jesus Christ."

The errors and adversaries unto this truth.

Partakers of the profit and sweetness of this doctrine are not they which be altogether ignorant of this mystery.

Nor they who know the same, but apply it not to their own souls and consciences, but altogether despise the same; as did Pilate, in condemning Christ; Herod, in killing James; Agrippa, in not defending Paul; the Jews, in persecuting the apostles; and do the devils, and many ungodly persons, tyrants, false Christians, and apostates.

Nor they which hold that all and every man is to remain doubtful whether he shall be saved or no; as do the same Papists³.

[² The notion mentioned in the text is nowhere expressly laid down in the Catechism. Its language is as follows: Quid fidei nomine intelligitur? Dei donum et lumen quo illustratus homo, firmiter assentitur atque adhæret iis, quæ ut credantur, sunt divinitus revelata, et ab ecclesia nobis proposita. Cujusmodi sunt, Deum esse trinum et unum, e nihilo creatum mundum, Deum factum esse hominem, &c.—Canis. Opus Catechist. Colon. 1606. cap. 1. Quæst. iv. p. 3.

Faith is the gift of God, and light whereby we be lightened within, and assuredly be induced to believe all things that be revealed in Christ's church to us, either by word written, or unwritten.—Vaux. Catech. Antv. 1574. c. 1. p. 3. For us to whom it shall be reputed. By this it is most plain against our adversaries, that the faith which was reputed for justice to Abraham, was his belief of an article revealed to him by God, that is to say, his assent and credit given to God's speeches: as in us his posterity according to the Spirit, it is here plainly said that justice shall be reputed to us by believing the articles of Christ's death and resurrection, and not by any fond special faith, fiducia, or confidence of each man's own salvation, to establish the which fiction, they make no account of the faith catholic, that is, wherewith we believe the articles of the faith, which only justifieth, but call it by contempt an historical faith: so as they may term Abraham's faith, and our lady's faith, of which it was said, Beata quæ credidisti. Blessed art thou that hast believed. And so in truth they deny as well the justification by faith as by works.—Test. Rhem. Rhemes, 1582. Ann. Rom. iv. 24. p. 393. In the Annot. on 1 Tim. iii. 15, it is said that the church as free from all error is to be believed. "We must believe, hear, and obey the same, as the touch-stone, pillar, and firmament of truth. For all this is comprised in that principle, I believe the catholic church. And therefore the council of Nice said, I believe in the church, that is, I believe and trust the same in all things."—Ibid. p. 572.]

[³ Sed neque illud asserendum est, oportere eos, qui vere justificati sunt, absque ulla omnino dubitatione apud semetipsos statuere, se esse justificados; neminemque a peccatis absolvi ac justificari, nisi eum qui certo credat se absolutum et justificatum esse; &c.—Concil. Or by faith and works, as both the pseud-apostles at Hierusalem, the Ebionites², and the Papists³, with the Russians⁴;

Or neither by faith, nor works, as they which contemn both faith in Christ Jesus, and good works too, hoping yet to be saved, as the carnally secure worldlings.

Neither shall they be partakers of the sweetness of this truth, which say, that for Christians to trust only by Christ his passion, or by faith only to be saved, is a breach of the first commandment, as Vaux⁵; is the doctrine of devils, as Friar Laurence à Villavincencia⁶; and the doctrine of Simon Magus, as do the Rhemists⁷.

maketh nothing for the vain security and infallible certainty which our adversaries say every man ought to have upon his presumed justification by faith, that himself is in God's favour and sure to be saved: peace towards God, being here nothing else but the sincere rest, tranquillity and comfort of mind and conscience, upon the hope he hath that he is reconciled to God. Sure it is that the catholic faith, by which and none other men be justified, neither teacheth nor breedeth any such security of salvation. And therefore they have made to themselves another faith which they call Fiducium, quite without the compass of the creed and scriptures.—Test. Rhem. Rhemes, 1582. Ann. Rom. v. 1. p. 394.]

Nor they, finally, which maintain how the truly righteous apprehend not Christ by faith, but have him and his righteousness essentially and inherent within them: which is an error of the Catharists⁸, Papists⁹, Osiandrians¹⁰, and Family of Love¹¹.

Proposition III.

We are accounted righteous before God, not for own works or deservings.

The proof from God's word.

Besides what hath been said, that works have no place nor portion in the matter of our justification, it is evident in the holy scripture, where we find, that

All men be sinners, and destitute of the glory of God; and therefore that no man can be justified by his own works.

Eternal life cometh unto us, not by desert, but partly of promise, partly of gift.

The just shall live by faith; and the law is not of faith.

Moreover, as the godly in old time were, so Christians in these days are, and shall be justified: but the godly were justified, not for any good works or worthiness of their own: so justified was Abraham, the Jews, the Samaritans, Paul, the Eunuch, the Jailor, and the Ephesians.

ARTICLE XII.

Of Good Works.

Albeit that good works, which are the fruits of faith, and follow after justification, cannot put away our sins, and endure the severity of God's judgement ; (1) yet are they pleasing and acceptable to God in Christ, (2) and do spring out necessarily of a true and lively faith, insomuch that by them a lively faith (3) may be as evidently known as a tree discerned by the fruit.

The propositions.

1. Good works do please God.
2. No work is good except it spring from faith.
3. Good works are the outward signs of the inward belief.

Proposition I.

Good works do please God.

The proof from God's word.

Though God accepteth not man for his works, but for his dear Son's sake ; yet, that good works, after man his justification, do please God, it is a clear truth everywhere to be read in the holy scripture. For,

God hath commanded them to be done, and requireth righteousness, not only outward of the body, but also inward of the mind, and hath appointed for the virtuous and godly rewards both in this life, and in the world to come, and to the wicked punishments spiritual, corporal, and of body and soul eternal in the pit of hell.

And this is believed and acknowledged by the churches⁴

Both which fictions, falsehoods, and flights from the plain truth of God's word, are refuted by these words, when the apostles saith, That faith worketh together with good works: making faith to be a coadjutor, or co-operator with works, and so both jointly concurring as causes and workers of justification: yea afterward he maketh works the more principal cause when he resembleth faith to the body, and works to the spirit, or life of man.—Ibid. p. 646. ARTICLE XIII.

Of Works before Justification.

Works done before the grace of Christ, and the inspiration of his Spirit, (1) are not pleasant to God, forasmuch as they spring not of faith in Jesus Christ, (2) neither do they make men meet to receive grace, or (as the school-authors say) deserve grace of congruity: yea rather, (3) for that they are not done as God hath willed and commanded them to be done, we doubt not but they have the nature of sin.

The propositions.

1. Works done before justification please not God.
2. Works done before justification deserve not grace of congruity.
3. Works done before justification have the nature of sin.

Proposition I.

Works done before justification please not God.

The proof from God's word.

Before men do please God, nothing that they do can please him. But men please not God, being not renewed, and justified by the Spirit. For, before men be regenerate, they are not grapes, but thorns; not⁴ figs, but thistles; not good, but evil trees; not lively, but dead boughs; not engrafted, but wild olives; not friends, but enemies; not the sons of God, but the children of wrath; which bring forth no good fruit. ARTICLE XIV.

Of Works of Supererogation.

Voluntary works, (1) besides, over and above, God's commandments, which they call works of supererogation, cannot be taught without arrogancy and impiety. (2) For by them men do declare, that they do not only render unto God as much as they are bound to do, but that they do more for his sake, than of bounden duty is required: whereas Christ saith plainly, When ye have done all that are commanded to you, say, We be unprofitable servants.

The propositions.

1. Works of supererogation cannot be taught without arrogancy and impiety.

2. Works of supererogation are the subversion of godliness and true religion.

^o Lord, Lord, have we not by thy name prophesied? and by thy name cast out devils? and by thy name done many great works? Then will I profess to them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity, Matt. vii. 22, 23.

Proposition I.

Works of supererogation cannot be taught without arrogancy and impiety.

The proof from God's word.

Works of supererogation (which are voluntary works besides, over and above the commandments of God) are often condemned in the holy scripture, where we are commanded to walk, not after the laws of men, but according to the statutes of God, and to hear, not what man speaketh, but what Christ doth say: and he, teaching the duty of Christians, setteth before them, as their rule and direction, the law and word of God; and more than that he doth neither urge nor require.

Rhem. Rhemes, 1582. Marg. Annot. p. 168. The passage of St Luke's Gospel (x. 35) upon which the above is a comment, is rendered in the Rhemish version, "And whatsoever thou shalt supererogate, I at my return will repay thee:" and the marginal gloss is, supererogaveris, προσδραπανήσης. And I do all things for the gospel that I may be made partaker thereof. A singular place to convince the protestants that will not have men work well in respect of reward at God's hand: the apostle confessing expressly, that all this that he doeth either of duty, or of supererogation above duty...all is the rather to attain the reward of heaven.—Ibid. p. 444. Ann. 1 Cor. ix. 23. Let in this present time your abundance supply their want. This place proveth plainly that the fastings and satisfactory deeds of one man be available to others, yea and that holy saints or other virtuous persons may, in measure and proportion of their men's necessities and deservings, allot unto them, as well the supererogation of their spiritual works, as those that abound in worldly goods may give alms of their superfluities to them which are in necessity. Which interchange and proportion of things the apostle doth evidently set down.—Ibid. p. 485. Ann. 2 Cor. viii. 14.]

Proposition II.

Works of supererogation are the subversion of godliness and true religion.

The proof from God's word.

Where the works of supererogation are taught, and in regard, the law of God there is broken, against the will of Christ, and men's traditions may be observed.

Matt. v. 19.

Mark vii. 7.

The holy scripture must be contemned, as not sufficient enough to bring men unto the knowledge of salvation, which St Paul saith is able to instruct in righteousness, that the man of God may be absolute, being made perfect unto all good works.

² Tim. iii. 16, 17.

God, who is only wise, is made unwise, in not prescribing so necessary works.

1 Tim. i. 17.

Faith and other spiritual and most special virtues are brought into oblivion.

Perfection is imputed not unto faith in Jesus Christ, but unto works: and, which is most detestable, unto the works too not commanded, but forbidden of God, ordained by men.

The law of God is thought to be thoroughly satisfied, and more duties performed than man needed to have done.

The same think our brethren⁴ of these works.

ARTICLE XV.

Of Christ alone without sin.

Christ in the truth of our nature was made like unto us in all things, sin only except, (1) from which he was clearly void, both in his life¹ and spirit. He came to be the Lamb without spot, who, by sacrifice of himself once made, should take away the sins of the world: and sin, (as St John saith) was not in him. But (2) all we the rest, although baptized, and born again in Christ, yet offend in many things; and if we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

The propositions.

1. Christ is truly and perfectly righteous.
2. All men besides Christ, though regenerate, be sinners.

Which Family also teacheth how there be men living as good and as holy as ever Christ was¹⁰;—an error of Christopher Vitels¹¹, a chief elder in the said Family;—and that he, which is a Familist, is either as perfect as Christ, or else a very devil.

Some deemed themselves as pure as Paul, Peter, or any men, as the Marcionites¹²; yea, as Adam and Evah before their fall, as the Adamites¹³; yea, as Jesus Christ himself, as the Carpocratians¹⁴.

ARTICLE XVI.

Of Sin after Baptism.

(1) Not every deadly sin willingly committed after baptism is sin against the Holy Ghost, and unpardonable. Wherefore the grant of repentance is not to be denied to such as fall into sin after baptism. (2) After we have received the Holy Ghost, we may depart from grace given, and fall into sin, and by the grace of God (we may) rise again and amend our lives. And therefore they are to be condemned which say, they can no more sin as long as they live here, (3) or deny place of forgiveness to such as truly repent.

The Propositions.

1. Every sin committed after baptism is not the sin against the Holy Ghost.

2. The very regenerate may depart from grace given, and fall into sin, and yet rise again unto newness of life.

3. No men utterly are to be cast off as reprobates which unfeignedly repent.

Proposition I.

Every sin committed after baptism is not the sin against the Holy Ghost.

The proof from God's word.

Though every sin, in itself considered, deserveth damnation; yet is there a sin which shall be punished with many, and a sin which shall be punished with few stripes; a sin unto death, and a sin not unto death; a sin against the Father, and the Son, which shall be forgiven; and a sin against the Holy Ghost, which never shall be forgiven.

honour. Wherefore, they which be endued with so excellent a benefit of God (6) be called according to God's purpose by his Spirit working in due season: (7) they through grace obey the calling: they be justified freely: they be made sons of God by adoption: they be made like the image of his only-begotten Son Jesus Christ: they walk religiously in good works: and at length, by God's mercy, they attain to everlasting felicity. (8) As the godly consideration of predestination, and our election in Christ, is full of sweet, pleasant, and unspeakable comfort to godly persons, and such as feel in themselves the working of the Spirit of Christ, mortifying the works of the flesh, and their earthly members, and drawing up their mind to high and heavenly things, as well because it doth greatly establish and confirm their faith of eternal salvation to be enjoyed through Christ, as because it doth fervently kindle their love towards God: so, for curious and carnal persons, lacking the Spirit of Christ, to have continually before their eyes the sentence of God's predestination, is a most dangerous downfall, whereby the devil doth thrust them either into desperation, or into wretchlessness of most unclean living, no less perilous than desperation. Furthermore, (9) we must receive God's promises in such wise as they be generally set forth unto us in holy scripture: and, (10) in our doings, that will of God is to be followed, which we have expressly declared unto us in the Word of God.

The Propositions.

1. There is a predestination of men unto everlasting life.
2. Predestination hath been from everlasting.
3. They which are predestinate unto salvation cannot perish.
4. Not all men, but certain, are predestinate to be saved.
5. In Christ Jesus, of the mere will and purpose of God, some are elected, and not others, unto salvation.
6. They who are elected unto salvation, if they come unto years of discretion, are called both outwardly by the word, and inwardly by the Spirit of God.

7 The predestinate are both justified by faith, sanctified by the Holy Ghost, and shall be glorified in the life to come.

8. The consideration of predestination is to the godly wise most comfortable, but to curious and carnal persons very dangerous.

9. The general promises of God, set forth in the holy scriptures, are to be embraced of us.

10. In our actions, the word of God, which is his revealed will, must be our direction.

Proposition I.

There is a predestination of men unto everlasting life.

The proof from God's word.

That of men, some be predestinate unto life, it is a truth most apparent in the holy scripture by the testimony both of Christ himself, who saith,

Matt. xx. 23. "To sit at my right hand, and at my left hand, is not mine to give, but (it shall be given) to them for whom it is prepared of my Father."

Ibid. xxii. 14. "Many are called, but few chosen."

Ibid. xxiv. 22. "For the elects' sake those days shall be shortened."

Luke xii. 32. "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's pleasure to give you a kingdom."

Ibid. xvii. 34. "I tell you, in that night there shall be two in one bed; the one shall be received, and the other shall be left."

John vi. 37. "All that the Father giveth me shall come unto me."

Acts xiii. 48. Witnessed also is this by the evangelist Luke, and Paul; the one saith, how of the Gentiles at Antioch "so many as were ordained unto eternal life believed;" and the other, "those whom he knew before he did also predestinate."

2 Cor. ii. 15, 16. "We are unto God the sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them which perish: to the one we are the savour of death unto death; and to the other, the savour of life unto life."

Eph. i. 3, 4, 5. "Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which, &c., hath chosen us in him, before the foundation of the world, &c., who hath predestinate us to be adopted through Jesus Christ unto himself, &c."

Proposition VI.

They who are elected unto salvation, if they come unto years of discretion, are called both outwardly by the word, and inwardly by the Spirit of God.

The proof from God's word.

Though true it be, the Lord knoweth all and every of his elect, yet hath he revealed unto us certain notes and tokens whereby we may see and certainly know whether we be of that number, or not. For such as be ordained unto everlasting life, if they live long in this world, they one time or other be called unto the knowledge of salvation, by the preaching of God's word; they obey that calling, through the operation of the Holy Ghost working within them; they feel in their souls the same Spirit bearing witness unto their spirits how they are the children of God; and finally, they walk religiously in all good works.

These things are most evident, and clear in the holy Scripture, where is set down both the calling of the predestinate^a,

^a Whom he predestinate them also he called, Rom. viii. 30. God separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, Gal. i. 15. And therefore except he mean of himself by special revelation, or of the predestinate in general, (in which two cases it may stand for the certitude of faith or infallible knowledge) otherwise that every particular man should be assured infallibly that himself should be justified, and not that only, but sure also never to sin, or to have the gift of perseverance, and certain knowledge of his predestination: that is a most damnable false allusion and presumption, condemned by the fathers of the holy council of Trent. Sess. 6, c. 9, 12, 13.—Test. *The predestinate are both justified by faith, sanctified by the Spirit,

The proof from God's word.

Divers be the effects of man's predestination; but chiefly it bringeth to the elect justification by faith in this life^a, and in the life to come glorification^b; always a conformity to the image of the only-begotten Son of God, both in suffering troubles here, and in enjoying immortal glory hereafter^c; as testify all the churches in their confessions.

“ If God be on our side, who can be against us? who spared not his own Son, but gave him for us all to death; how shall he not with him give us all things also? who shall lay anything to the charge of God’s chosen? it is God that justifieth; who shall condemn? &c.” Ibid. 31, 34.

But to the wicked and reprobate the consideration hereof is very sour, unsavoury, and most uncomfortable; as that which they think (though very untruly and sinfully) causeth them either to despair of his mercy, being without faith; or not to fear his justice, being extremely wicked: whereas neither from the word of God, nor any confession of the church, can any man gather that he is a vessel of wrath prepared to damnation; but contrariwise, by many and great arguments may persuade himself that God would⁹ not his destruction; as in the next Proposition immediately ensuing plainly may appear.

Predestinates¹ (a sort of heretics so called) in old time, and the Family of Love² in our days, who term the doctrine of predestination a licentious doctrine, and say it filleth all the prisons almost in England.

Proposition IX.

The general promises of God set forth in the holy scripture are to be embraced of us.

The proof from God's word.

That men the better may avoid both desperation and carnal security, they are to have always in mind, that,

1. The promises of grace and favour to mankind are universal: as,

Matt. xi. 28. "Come unto me, all ye that are weary and laden, and I will ease you."

John iii. 17. "God sent not his Son into the world, that he should condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved."

1 Tim. ii. 4. "God will that all men shall be saved, and come unto the knowledge of the truth."

2. The doctrine of the gospel for the free remission of sins, is to be preached not unto a few, but universally and generally unto all men.

Matt. xxviii. 19. "Go therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them, &c."

Mark xvi. 15, 16. "Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that shall believe and be baptized shall be saved; but he that will not believe shall be damned."

3. The seals of the covenant be appointed to be given to all men, and members of the visible church, or which are desirous to be incorporated thereinto. For,

Matt. xxviii. 19. "All are to be baptized, and all are to participate of the bread and cup at the Lord's Supper."

Matt. xxvi. 26, 27. "1 Cor. xi. 24, 25. 4. As the disobedience of Adam brought condemnation

The adversaries unto this truth.

They are not to be heard then which say, that

The number of the elect is but small; and seeing we are uncertain whether we be of that company or no, we will proceed in our course as we have begun.

God is an acceptor of persons, and so unjust in choosing some and refusing others.

God hath predestinate all those persons to eternal death which are not in the state of true repentance: which was one of Glover's errors³.

Bredwell's
Detect. p. 96.

It is the part therefore of all and every man

Not to refuse the mercies of God both generally and graciously offered unto all men by his word and sacraments.

Not to despair in respect either of the greatness or multitude of his sins.

Nor yet to provoke the Lord to execute his vengeance upon them, through profaneness of life, or security.

Proposition X.

In our actions the word of God, which is his revealed will, must be our direction.

The proof from God's word.

tency, whereby he governeth at his pleasure the things by himself created; whereof mention is made both in the Psalms, in the prophet Isaiah, and other places of his word: but of his favour and good pleasure towards man, revealed in the holy scriptures by Jesus Christ, whom we are to hear.

Subscribed hereunto have and do God's church everywhere.

The adversaries unto this truth.

This truth is gainsaid by the Phrygians, Montanists, and Messalians¹, also by the Enthusiasts², Anabaptists³, and Family of Love⁴, which leave the written word of God, and rely upon their own dreams, visions, and lying revelations. Hence proceedeth the contempt of God's written word, and of the preachers, and all religious exercises thereof. For saith the Family of Love, "No difference is there between a ceremonial either letter-doctor christian and an uncircumcised heathen⁵."

ARTICLE XIX.

Of the Church.

(1) The visible church of Christ, (2) is a congregation (3) of faithful men: in the which (4) the pure word of God is preached, and the sacraments be duly ministered, according to Christ's ordinance, in all those things that of necessity are requisite to the same. As (5) the church of Jerusalem, Alexandria and Antioch hath erred; so also (6) the church of Rome hath erred, not only in their living and manner of ceremonies, but also in matters of faith.

The propositions.

1. There is a church of Christ, not only invisible, but also visible.
2. There is but one church.
3. The visible church is a Catholic church.
4. The word of God was, and for time is before the church.
5. The marks and tokens of the visible church are the due and true administration of the word and sacraments.
6. The visible church may, and from time to time hath erred both in doctrine and conversation.
7. The church of Rome most shamefully hath erred in life, ceremonies, and matters of faith.

Proposition I.

There is a church of Christ both invisible and visible.

The proof from God's word.

A true saying is it, the Lord and he only knoweth who are his. For to man the church of Christ is partly invisible, and visible partly. The invisible are all the elect, who be or shall be either in heaven triumphing; or on earth fighting against the flesh, the world, and the devil. These as members of the church, are said to be invisible; not because the men be not seen, but for that their faith and conscience to Godward is not perfectly known unto us.

The members of the visible church are some of them for God, and some against God; all of them notwithstanding deemed parts of the church, and accounted faithful, so long as they make no manifest and open rebellion against the gospel of Christ.

All this we gather from the holy scripture, where mention is made of the church invisible, and triumphing, Rev. ii. 26, 28; and iii. 5, 12; and vii. 14, 15; invisible and militant, in the Epistles of St Paul, Peter, and book of St John's Revelations, also of the church visible, and mixed with good and bad, by the parable of the sower, of the marriage, and of the virgins; as also by the saying of our Saviour Christ^a, and of St Paul^b.

The churches bear witness hereunto¹.

^a Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil? John vi. 70.

^b For he knew who should betray him: therefore said, Ye are not all clean, John xiii. 11. In a great house are not only vessels of gold, and of silver, but also of wood, and of earth, and some for honour, and some unto dishonour, 2 Tim. ii. 20.

Proposition III.

The visible Church is a Catholic Church.

The proof from God's word.

The visible church, properly understood, is but a part of the Catholic; yet, forasmuch as it is a congregation of the faithful, who are, for calling, governors and subjects, noble and base, rich and poor, teachers and learners; for sex, men and women; for age, old and young; for nation, Jews and Gentiles, Grecians and barbarians; for time and continuance, in all ages, even from our first parents; it may rightly be called a Catholic church.

Proposition IV

The word of God was, and for time is, before the church.

The proof from God's word.

Forasmuch as the visible church of Christ is a congregation of men (either in the eyes of God, or in the judgment of the godly) faithful, it followeth that the word of God must be afore the church for time, as likewise for authority.

For time; because God's word is the seed; the faithful, the corn and the children: God's word is the rock or foundation; the faithful, the house.

Proposition V.

The marks and tokens of the visible church are the due and true administration of the word and sacraments.

The proof from God's word.

There is the visible church of Christ, where the word of God sincerely is preached, and the sacraments instituted by our Saviour are duly administered.

Hence is it, that our Lord and Saviour calleth them his Luke viii. 21. "mother and his brethren, which hear the word of God, and do John viii. 47. it;" and saith, "He that is of God, heareth God's word;" also, Joh. x. 27. "My sheep hear my voice:" and, "How shall they hear with-

Likewise the apostle St John,
 1 John iv. 6 "He that knoweth God, heareth us; he that is not of Ibid. v. God, heareth us not." Again, "They are of the world, therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them."

And touching the sacraments; first of baptism.
 Mat'h. xxviii. "Go therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in 19, 20. the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Rom. vi. 3. "We have been baptized into Jesus Christ." "Ye are 1 Cor. vi. 11. washed, ye are sanctified."

1 Cor. xii. 13. "By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body."
 Next, of the Lord's supper.

"The Lord Jesus, in the night that he was betrayed, took bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat, this is my body, which is broken for you; this do in remembrance of me."

1 Cor. xi. 23, "After the same manner also he took the cup, when 24, 25. he had supped, saying, This is the new Testament in my blood; this do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me."
 Luke xxii. 19.

The Christians in all reformed churches acknowledge these things¹.

Some (and they also many of them very godly men) add ecclesiastical discipline for a note of the visible church. But because the said discipline in part is included in the marks here mentioned; both we, and in effect, all other well-ordered churches, over pass it in this place, as no token simply of the visible church.

Neither tie we the church so strictly to the signs articulate, that we think all those to be without the church, and no Christians, which neither do hear the word ordinarily and publicly read and preached, nor participate in the sacraments, if so be they would; and yet can neither hear the one, nor receive the other: as it falleth out sometimes, especially in the times of blindness and persecution.

The errors and adversaries unto this truth.

We renounce therefore as altogether unsound and anti-christian, the opinions

ARTICLE XX.

Of the Authority of the Church.

(1) The church hath power to decree rites or ceremonies, (2) and authority in controversies of faith. And yet it is not lawful for the church (3) to ordain anything that is contrary to God's⁹ word, (4) neither may it so expound one place of Scripture, (5) that it be repugnant to another. Wherefore although (6) the church be a witness, and a keeper of holy writ, yet, as it ought not to decree anything against the same, so (7) besides the same ought it not to enforce anything to be believed for necessity of salvation.

The propositions.

1. The church hath power to decree rites or ceremonies.
2. The church may not ordain what rites or ceremonies she will.
3. The church hath authority to judge and determine in controversies of faith.
4. The church hath power to interpret and expound the word of God.
5. The analogy of faith must be respected in the exposition of the scripture.
6. The church is the witness and keeper of God's written word.

[⁹ God's written word, 1675.]

7. The church may not enforce anything to be believed, as necessary unto salvation, that is either contrary or besides the word of God.

Proposition I.

The Church hath power to decree rites or ceremonies.

The proof from God's word.

The church's authority to decree rites or ceremonies is warranted in the word of God; first, by the example of the apostles, who did ordain rites and ceremonies: among other things, that

In the church men should not be covered.

Women should keep silence, and be covered.

A known tongue, understood of the common auditory, should be used with other things.

Next, by the general and binding commandment of God himself, who at all times will have everything in the church to be done unto edifying, honesty, and by order, as being not the author of confusion, but of peace.

All Protestant churches confess the same¹.

Others would have both temples to be left without service, sermons and sacraments, and princes to be scared with the fear of uproars and scdition; and all because they would be freed from the obedience unto ceremonies, not impious of themselves, imposed by the church: the father of these men was Illyricus¹, of whom Melanchthon writeth.

Our liturgies and manner of serving of God they call foolishness of taken-on services³, false and seducing God's services⁴, of no man to be ordained⁵, nor to be obeyed, or used, when they are established⁶. With these join the Barrowists,

Proposition IV

The church hath power to interpret and expound the word of God.

The proof from God's word.

To interpret the word of God is a peculiar blessing, given by God only to the church and company of the faithful, though not to all and every of them. For,

“No man knoweth the Son but the Father, neither Matt. xi. 27. knoweth any man the Father but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.”

“It is given to you to know the secrets of heaven, (saith Matt. xiii. 11. our Saviour unto his disciples), but to them it is not given.”

“The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to 1 Cor. xii. 7, [8-10]. profit withal. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom, &c., and to another prophecy”

“If any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, let 1 Cor. xiv. 30. the first hold his peace,” saith St Paul unto the church at Corinth.

“Ye have an ointment from him that is holy, and ye have 1 Joh. ii. 20, 21, 27. known all things, &c., ye need not that any man teach you;” saith the apostle John.

The errors and adversaries unto this truth.

Many and sundry are the adversaries unto this truth; whereof some think, that to expound the word of God is so easy a matter, as any student endued with a good natural wit, by diligence and industry of his own, may do the same.

Some teach, how to interpret the scriptures is too hard a thing for any mortal man to attain unto: so did Johannes de Æneas Sylv. Wassalia¹, and do many Anabaptists.

Some, though they acknowledge that divers have the gift to open the sense of God's word, yet that some, say they, are not the known preachers and writers in the reformed and christian assemblies, whom the Family of Love, in scorn, do term the scripture-learned. For, saith the said Family², it is mere lies and untruth, &c., whatsoever the scripture-learned, through their knowledge out of the scriptures, institute, preach, and teach. They preach the letter, &c., but not the word of the living God³. But themselves only have that gift, neither every one of the Family, but the illuminate elders⁴. For to them it is given to know the truth, and they are the elders⁵ of the godly-understanding, and of the manly-wisdom, the primates⁶, or principals in the light.

Some do suppose, that to interpret the holy scriptures is not so much a special gift of God upon some chosen persons, as an ordinary power annexed to the state and calling of popes, bishops, and clergymen.

Others be so far from giving the people of God, not being of the clergy, power to expound, as they will not suffer them to read, nor so much as to have the scriptures by them in a vulgar tongue, except it be their own most corrupt and barbarous translation, which but of late years neither, and that in part too, is granted by the Papists; but in place thereof they thrust upon the laity their most idolatrous and blasphemous festivals, legends, rosaries, horaries, and psalteries of Our Lady, as falsely they called her.

Proposition V.

The analogy of faith must be respected in the exposition of the scripture.

The proof from God's word.

Forasmuch as no prophecy is of any private motion, and whatsoever interpretation man giveth, if it agree not to the analogy of faith, which St Paul gave in commandment to be observed, is a private interpretation; special heed is to be had that one place of scripture be so expounded as it agree with another; and all to the proportion of faith.

The churches reformed approve this assertion by their subscriptions⁷.

Errors and adversaries to this truth.

Of another judgement are many. For

Some do think the scriptures may be expounded in what sense and to what purpose men list; as the Pharisees⁸, the Severians⁹, and Papists; among whom there be, which from this opinion do term the most holy word and scriptures of God, most reproachfully, a shipman's hose, a leaden rule, a nose of wax¹⁰.

The church is the witness and keeper of God's written word.

The proof from God's word.

Though the church hath authority to hear and determine in controversies of faith, yet hath the church power neither to judge the word of God, nor to judge otherwise than God's word doth judge. For it is said to the church and people of God,

Proposition VII.

The church may not enforce anything to be believed, as necessary unto salvation, that is either contrary, or besides the word of God.

“If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. And if any man shall diminish of the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from those things which are written in this book.” Rev. xxii. 18, 19.

And so witness with us the churches reformed⁶.

Whatsoever also is grounded upon God’s written word, though not by our common and vulgar terms to be read therein, we do reverently⁷ embrace; which maketh us, for doctrine, to embrace the consubstantiality of our Saviour with the Father and the Holy Ghost, which the Arians would not; Conf. a Trinity of persons in the Godhead, which the Sabellians would never do; the justification by faith only, which the Papists will not; the baptism of infants and young children, which the Anabaptists dare not: and for discipline, not to refuse, of church-officers, the names, archbishops, patriarchs, primates, metropolitans, suffragans, parsons, vicars, &c.; of ecclesiastical censures, the terms, suspension, excommunication; of ceremonies, none at all, which tend either unto order, comeliness, or edification.

But from the heart we abhor, in matters both of doctrine and discipline, whatsoever either agreeth not with the canon of the scripture, or is not grounded thereupon.

The errors and adversaries unto this truth.

Hence detest we both all the old heretics, and their fancies, with the new prophets of Basilides, the manifestation of Marcion, the mysteries of the Manichees, the Jobelæa of the Scythians, the Symbonia of the Archontics, the Cabala of the Jews, the Alcoran of the Turks, and also all new heretics and schismatics, with all their cursed opinions; as first, the Anabaptists, and namely the Libertines, the Davi-Georgians, and Family of Love, and all the co-deified elders thereof; as Henry Nicholas, Eliad, Fidelitas, Christopher Vitel, Theophilus the Exile, and the rest.

Next the Papists, whereof

Some, as Bellarmine, conclude, that it is a point of faith to hold, that the bishop of Rome hath succeeded Peter in the universal regiment of the church³.

Bellarm. de Pontif. Rom. Lib. II. cap. 12.

Others, as the Jesuits, persuade their catholics, that the king of Spain and their catholic faith are so linked together, as it is become a point of necessity in the catholic faith to put all Europe into the hands of the said king, otherwise the catholic religion will be utterly extinguished and perish⁴.

Spar. Discov. of the English Jesuits, p. 7.

Others of them have published a new gospel, called Evangelium Æternum, et Spiritus Sancti: which they say doth so far excel the gospel of Christ as the kernel surpasseth the shell, the sun the moon, and light darkness. The author whereof was one Cyrillus, a Carmelite⁵.

And lastly the Puritans, and all the speculations of Brown, Barrow, Green, Penry, Mar-Prelate, T. C., E. G., R. H., A. C., I. B., with the new Sabbatarians, and their fancies.

ARTICLE XXI.

Of the authority of General Councils.

General Councils (1) may not be gathered together without the commandment, and will of princes. And (2) when they be gathered together, (forasmuch as they be an assembly of men, whereof all be not governed with the Spirit and word of God,) they may err, and (3) sometimes have erred, even in things pertaining unto God: wherefore (4) things ordained by them as necessary unto salvation have neither strength nor authority, unless it may be declared that they be taken out of Holy Scriptures.

The propositions.

1. General councils may not be gathered together but by the commandment and will of princes.
2. General councils may err.

3. General councils have erred, even in things pertaining unto God.

4. The things ordained by general councils are so far to be embraced and believed as they are consonant to God's holy word.

Proposition I.

General Councils may not be gathered together but by the commandment and will of princes.

The proof from God's word.

Great is the power and authority of kings and princes, by the word of God. For, as the defence of religion is committed unto them, so must they see that all men do their duties. That these things the better may be performed, they are, as just occasion is offered, not as men under the power of others, to summon, but as supreme governors within their own territories and dominions, to command all sorts of men to meet together; and that either to the implanting of the truth where it is not, or to the suppressing of sin, errors, idolatry, and superstition, where or in whomsoever it doth arise, or is rooted. Such councils were holden, both in the time of the Mosaical government, by the commandment of the most godly kings, David, Solomon, Asa, Hezekiah, and Josiah; and since the gospel hath been received into kingdoms and commonweals, by christian princes, kings, and emperors, who gathered councils both general, as the Nicene was by Constantine the Great¹, the council of Constantinople by Theodosius the elder², the council of Ephesus by Theodosius the younger³, the council of Chalcedon by Marcian⁴; and national and provincial; so the council at Franckfort, Rhemes, Turon, Arelate, and Moguntia, by the will and commandment of Charles the Great⁵; at Matison, by Gunthranus⁶;

ARTICLE XXII.

Of Purgatory.

The Romish doctrine concerning (1) purgatory, (2) pardons, worshipping and adoration, as well (3) of images as (4) of reliques, and (5) also invocation of saints, is a fond thing, vainly invented, and grounded upon no warranty of scripture, but rather repugnant to the word of God.

The propositions.

The Romish doctrine concerning

1. Purgatory,
2. Pardons,
3. Worshipping, and adoration of images,
4. Reliques,
5. Invocation of saints, is a fond thing, and not warranted by the holy scripture, nor consonant, but contrary unto the same.

Proposition I.

The Romish doctrine concerning purgatory is fond, and not warranted by the holy scripture, nor consonant, but contrary unto the same.

The proof from God's word.

It is granted as well by the Romish, or false, as by the true church, that none unclean thing can enter into the kingdom of God. And because all men either have been, or be still unclean, therefore they must be purged from sin.

But in the manner of purging them who are unpure they do greatly differ. For the true church, looking into the word of God, doth find that we are sanctified, or made clean in divers respects, diversely: as by baptism^a, by the word preached^b, by the blood of Christ^c, and by the Spirit of God^d, and that in this life, and not in the other world.

For in the sacred scripture there is mention but only of two ways, one leading unto destruction, the other bringing unto life: of two sorts of men, whereof some believe, and they are saved; some believe not, and they are damned: and of two states, one blessed, where Lazarus is; the other cursed, where Dives doth abide. A third way, or sort, or state, cannot be found in the word of God.

And therefore the purgatory in another world, both denied hath always been by the Greek churches², and neither is, nor will be acknowledged by any of God's reformed churches in this world; as their confessions do testify³.

^a Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify it, and cleanse it by the washing of water through the word, Eph. v. 25, 26.

Erroneous therefore, and not warrantable by God's word, concerning purgatory, is the doctrine both of the old heretics, the Montanists, who thought there was a purging of souls after this life¹; and of the new, and renewed heretics, the papists. For

They think it to be unsound doctrine, and not sufferable in any book, for Christians to deliver, that it is impossible for godly and faithful men or women to be punished after they be dead. Therefore *Deleatur*², say they, Blot out such a doctrine².

Vaux Catec.
cap. 3.

They teach by their catechisms, that to doubt whether there is a purgatory or no, is a breach of the first commandment³.

Thus do they pray for the souls of the faithful (as they phantasy) boiling in torments of purgatory :

It is further to be noted, how the same papists, sliding back from the truth of God, have fallen into many noisome and divers opinions in the matter of purgatory: agreeing among themselves and mortal sins too (for which in this life men have done no penance) are there purged⁷.

Nor about the time, which they that be tormented, shall abide in purgatory. For some have given out, how the poor souls there be continually in torments till the day of judgment, as Dionys. Carthusianus⁸; others, as Durandus⁹, do think they have rest sometimes, as upon Sundays and holy days: others are of mind, that in time they shall be set free and at liberty, because their punishment is but temporary¹⁰; and others, that at any time they may be delivered, if either their friends will buy out their pains, or the priests will pray, or say any mass for them, or the pope will but say the word.

Nor finally about the state of souls in purgatory. For

Therefore in this contrariety of opinions, some of them, the papists themselves cannot deny must be, we say, all of them are fond, and contrary to the word of God.

Besides, they nourish most cursed and damnable errors; as, that all the souls of the faithful separated from their bodies are not at rest.

That all sins, in their own nature, be not mortal, or deadly, and that some deserve not everlasting torments. They are purged in purgatory.

That one sinful man may save, and satisfy the wrath of God for another, and that easily, by praying, saying, or doing something for them.

That, if friends in this world will do nothing for the poor soul in purgatory pains, yet may the said souls come at length unto happiness, by abiding their deserved torments until the last hour or day of judgement in purgatory.

Finally, that the pope is God, in that he can at his pleasure discharge guilty souls both from the guilt of sin, and from the punishments due for the same.

Proposition II.

The Romish doctrine concerning pardons is fond, and not warranted by the holy scripture, nor consonant, but contrary unto the same.

The proof from God's word.

Such hath been the exceeding mercy and love of God towards mankind, that as he hath purged us from all guiltiness of sin by the blood, so hath he pardoned us from the everlasting punishment due for sin, by the pains of Jesus Christ. For,

Acts iv. 12.

“There is salvation in none other: for among men there is given none other name under heaven whereby they must be saved.”

[¹ Qui in aliud sæculum distulit fructum conversionis, prius purgabitur igne purgationis. Hic autem ignis etsi æternus non sit miro tamen modo gravis est. “Through his name all that believe shall receive remission of sins.” Acts x. 43.

“He hath purchased the church by his own blood.” Acts xx. 28.

“With his stripes we are healed.” Isai. liii. 5.

“He that believeth in him shall neither be condemned,” John iii. 18.
nor “ashamed.” Rom. x. 11.

Therefore, “Come unto me all ye that are weary and laden, and I will ease you, &c., and ye shall find rest for your souls,” saith our Saviour Christ. Matt. xi. 28, 29.

“If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe with thine heart that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved,” saith St Paul. Rom. x. 9.

Errors and adversaries to this truth.

This being the doctrine even of God himself, we may evidently perceive, how not only vain, but besides, not only besides, but against the word of God², the Romish doctrine concerning pardons is: for that doth teach us, Whereof see more, Art. II. prop. 4. Art. XI. prop. 1. Art. XII. prop. 1.

1. To seek salvation not at God alone, but at the hands of sinful men. For would we have a pardon for the sins of 40 days? a bishop may give it: for the sins of 100 days? a cardinal may grant [it]³: for all our sins committed, or to be committed? from the pope we may have it. Hence be his pardons; if you respect time, for 40, 50, 100, 1000, 10,000, 50,000, &c., years; if offences, homicide, parricide, perjury, sodomitery, treason, and what not⁴, &c. Vide Taxam. penit.

2. That we may be our own saviours. So did that of purgatory.

3. How the precious blood of Christ was shed in vain. For corruptible gold and silver, with our own deeds and works, may, and will save us, if we will.

Whosoever, being in the state of grace, shall devoutly say the seven prayers ensuing, with seven Our Fathers, and as many Hail Marias, afore the image of piety, shall thereby merit fifty-six thousand years of pardons.

Pope John the Twelfth hath granted to all persons, which, going through the churchyard, do say the prayer following, so many years of pardons as there have been bodies buried since it was a churchyard.

The Prayer for the Dead.

"Hail all faithful souls, whose bodies here and everywhere do rest in the dust. The Lord Jesus who hath redeemed you and us with his most precious blood, vouchsafe to deliver you from pains, and to place you in the company of his holy angels; and there, being mindful of us, meekly to pray, that we may both be joined unto you, and crowned with you in the heavens."

Pope Innocent the Second hath granted to every one, which devoutly shall say this prayer following, four thousand years of pardons; "Hail, wound of our Saviour's side," &c.

Whosoever devoutly shall say this prayer shall have three-thousand days' pardons of criminal sins, and twenty-thousand days of venial offences granted by the lord pope John the Two-and-twentieth; as it is to be read in the Antidotary of the Soul.

Whosoever devoutly will say the prayer following shall merit (thereby) eleven thousand years of pardons; "Hail, Lady, saint Mary, mother of God, queen of heaven, the gate of paradise, the lady of the world, the light eternal, the empress of hell, &c. Pray unto thy beloved Son Jesus Christ for me, and deliver me from all evils, pray for my sins. Amen."

Proposition III.

The Romish doctrine concerning images is fond, and not warranted by the holy scriptures, nor consonant, but contrary unto the same.

The proof from the word of God.

Images are such an abomination to the Lord, as to make them among all men odious; he describeth the vanity of them by his prophets, as that they are the doctrine of vanity, the work of errors, the teachers of lies, silver and gold, the work of men's hands, vanity: they have a mouth, and speak not; eyes, and see not; ears, and hear not; hands, and touch not; feet, and walk not.

2. He giveth a strait commandment, Not to bow down to them, nor worship them, nor to make them, to fly from them, yea, to destroy both the images themselves, the idolaters, and the enticers unto idolatry.

3. He commendeth greatly and praiseth such men as have destroyed images, and not bowed unto idols.

4. He finally curseth the images, the image-makers, and the image-servers, or worshippers.

Hereunto with us the protestant churches everywhere do subscribe¹.

The adversaries unto this truth.

The Romish church most fondly, and contrary to the word of God, doth allow, and not only allow, but publicly erect, and not only erect, but adore^a, and not only adore images², but doth accurse, and more than so, condemn to the fire, yea to hell-fire, as heretics, such persons as will not worship images, and the images too (which is most abominable)

Proposition IV

The Romish doctrine concerning relics is fond, and not warranted by the holy scriptures, nor consonant, but contrary unto the same.

The proof from God's word.

Of all the erroneous opinions among the papists (which are infinite) none is more to the illusion of well-meaning Christians than their doctrine concerning worshipping and adoration of the reliques of saints: a doctrine which is so far from being found, as it is forbidden in the holy scripture^d; and a doctrine in the purer times, and writers of the church, nowhere to be found, and in all the best churches at this day utterly condemned⁴.

Adversaries unto this truth.

Such, notwithstanding, is the satanical boldness of the antichristian synagogue of Rome, that as they will delude men with the relics of saints which are not such, so likewise they teach the people (which is most offensive and execrable) to give divine adoration and honour unto them^a.

Proposition V

Invocation of saints is a fond thing, not warranted by the holy scriptures, nor consonant, but contrary unto the same.

The proof from God's word.

The christian exercise of prayer is a duty, which may not be either securely omitted, or vainly abused. And though many things in prayer be necessarily to be observed, yet a special point is it, that in our supplications and prayers we do call only upon God. For so to do we are both commanded even by God himself^b, and thereunto also allured by manifold as well promises of large blessing, as by the examples of godly men in all ages; patriarehs, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob; prophets, as Daniel, Elias, Jeremy; centurions, publicans; apostles, as Paul, Peter, &c.; yea, of all the elect of God in this world.

On the other side, to pray unto any creature that is out of this world, besides Jesus Christ, there is in the scripture neither law to command, nor promise of blessing, nor any example of godly men or women to provoke.

Finally, as all God's people in the purer and former times

ARTICLE XXIII.

Of Ministering in the Congregation.

(1) It is not lawful for any man to take upon him the office of public preaching, (2) or ministering the Sacraments in the congregation, (3) before he be lawfully called, and sent to execute the same. (4) And those we ought to judge lawfully called, and sent, which be (6) chosen and called to this work (5) by men, who have public authority given unto them in the congregation, to call and send ministers into the Lord’s vineyard.

The propositions.

1. None publicly may preach but such as thereunto are authorized.
2. They must not be silent, who by office are bound to preach.
3. The sacraments may not be administered in the congregation, but by a lawful minister.
4. There is a lawful ministry in the church.
5. They are lawful ministers which be ordained by men lawfully appointed to the calling and sending forth of ministers.
6. Before ministers are to be ordained, they are to be chosen, and called.

Proposition I.

None publicly may preach but such as thereunto are authorized.

The proof from God’s word.

This truth in the holy scripture is evident. For there we find how,

1. Godly men were both called by God, and commanded to preach, before they would, or durst so do. So was Samuel, Jeremy, John Baptist, Christ Jesus himself, who also to preach did send the twelve apostles and the seventy disciples.

Jer. xiv. 14,
xxiii. 21,
xxvii. 15,

Matt. ix. 38.

2. The wicked, and false prophets, for preaching afore their time, are blamed.

3. A commandment is given us to pray the Lord of the harvest that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.

1 Cor. xii. 28.

4. Lastly, we do read that God hath ordained in the church some to be apostles, some prophets, some teachers, some to be workers of miracles. And Christ being ascended into heaven, gave some to be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, and some pastors, and teachers.

Which to their power do seek the abolishment of public preaching in the reformed churches; as do first the papists, who phrase the preachers to be uncircumcised Philistines, sacrilegious ministers, Hieroboam's priests, inordinate and unordered apostates²; and next the Barrowists, who say how the said preachers are sent of God in his anger to deceive the people with lies³.

They must not be silent who by office are bound to preach.

The proof from God's word.

As publicly to preach, before men are sent, is a grievous fault: so not to preach being sent, is a great sin. Hereunto bear witness,

- Luke iv. 43. 1. Our Saviour Christ, whose words are these; "Surely I must also preach the kingdom of God: for therefore am I sent."
- Acts iv. 17, &c. 2. Peter and John, who being charged to speak no more in the name of Jesus, said, "We cannot but speak that which we have heard and seen."
- 1 Cor. ix. 16, 17. 3. St Paul, for he writeth, "Necessity is laid upon me, and woe is me if I preach not the gospel."
- Acts i. 42. 4. The apostles of Christ. For though they were beaten for so doing; yet "they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ."

In the holy scripture we read, that the public ministers of the word are to be the administrators of the sacraments. For both our Saviour Christ commanded his disciples, as to preach, so to baptize, and celebrate the Supper of the Lord: and the apostles, and other ministers in the purest times (whom the godly ministers and preachers in these days do succeed), not only did preach, but also baptize, and minister the Lord's Supper.

And hereunto do the churches of God subscribe².

In saying, that none may administer the sacraments in the congregation afore he be lawfully called, and sent thereunto, we think not (as some do) that the very being of the sacraments dependeth upon this point, viz. whether the baptizer, or giver of the bread and wine, be a minister, or no³:

Neither is it the meaning of this Article, that privately in houses, either lawful ministers, upon just occasion, may not, or others not of the ministry, upon any occasion (in the peace of the church) may administer the sacraments.

The errors and adversaries unto this truth.

Hereby we declare ourselves not to favour the opinion, that publicly,

For (say the Disciplinarians⁶) the office of doctors is only to teach true doctrine; but in our church (of England) the doctor encroacheth upon the office of the pastor⁷. also be the Barrowists¹, which say there is no ministry of the gospel in all Europe.

Proposition V

They are lawful ministers which be ordained by men lawfully appointed for the calling and sending forth of ministers.

The proof from God's word.

St Paul, in the beginning of his epistle unto the Galatians, giveth us to observe the divers sending forth of men into the holy ministry : whereof

John xx. 21.
Jonn i. 6.

Some are sent immediately from God himself. So sent was by God the Father both Jesus Christ and John Baptist ; by God the Son, in his state mortal, the twelve apostles, in his state immortal and glorious, St Paul.

Matt. x. 15.

Acts ix. 15.

This calling is special and extraordinary : and the men so called were adorned with the gift of miracles commonly, as were Jesus Christ and his apostles ; but not always, for John Baptist wrought none.

Matt. xv. 14.

And they were also enjoined, for the most part, as the apostles, to preach throughout the world, howbeit our Saviour was limited.

Some again were sent of men : as they be who are sent of men not authorized thereunto by the word of God, and that to the disturbance of the peace of the church : such in the apostles' time were the false apostles ; in our days be the anabaptists, family-elders, and law-despising Brownists.

Acts xiv. 23.
1 Tim. iv. 14.

And some, lastly, are by men sent : so in the primitive church by the apostles were pastors and elders ordained, who by the same authority ordained other pastors and teachers. Whence it is that the church as it hath been, so it shall till the end of the world be provided for. They, who are thus called, have power neither to work miracles, as the apostles had, nor to preach, and minister the sacraments where they will, as the apostles might, but they are tied every man to his charge, which they must faithfully attend upon, except urgent occasion do enforce the contrary.

The calling of these men is termed a general calling, and it is the ordinary, and in these days the lawful calling, allowed by the word of God.

Of the Sacraments.

firm our faith in him. (4) There be two sacraments ordained of Christ our Lord in the gospel, that is to say, Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. Those five commonly called sacraments, that is to say, (5) Confirmation, (6) Penance, (7) Orders, (8) Matrimony, and (9) Extreme Unction, are not to be accounted¹ for sacraments of the gospel, being such as have grown partly of the corrupt following of the apostles, partly are states of life allowed in the scriptures; but yet have not like nature of sacraments with Baptism and the Lord's Supper, for that they have not any visible sign or ceremony ordained of God.

(10) The sacraments were not ordained of Christ to be gazed upon, or to be carried about, but that we should duly use them. (11) And in such only as worthily receive the same they have a wholesome effect or operation: but they that receive them unworthily, purchase to themselves damnation, as Saint Paul saith.

The propositions.

1. The sacraments ordained of Christ be badges or tokens of our profession which be Christians.
 2. The sacraments be certain sure witnesses, and effectual signs of grace, and God his good will towards us.
 3. By the sacraments God doth quicken, strengthen, and confirm our faith in him.

10. The sacraments are not to be abused, but rightly to be used of us all.
 11. All which receive the sacraments² receive not therewithal the things signified by the sacraments.

Proposition I.

The sacraments ordained of Christ be badges, or tokens of our profession, which be Christians.

The proof from God's word.

The sacraments are badges, or tokens, both of Christians, and of Christianity.

Of Christians. For by them are visibly discerned the faithful from pagans, and Christians from the Jews, Turks, and all profane atheists.

Of Christianity. For, as circumcision, in the old law, was a token how the corrupt and carnal affections of the mind should be subdued, and that the Lord requireth not so much an outward of the body, as an inward circumcision of the heart; so baptism telleth us, that being once dead unto sin, we are to live unto righteousness, that all we, which have been baptized into³ Jesus Christ, have been baptized into his death, &c., and must walk in newness of life, &c., for we have put on Christ by baptism.

And as the Paschal Lamb was to the Jews a token that the flight of sin should always be fresh in memory, and that it should be celebrated, not with old leaven, neither in the leaven of maliciousness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth; so the participation of one loaf and of one cup in the Lord his supper doth commend unto our consideration a sweet concord, a brotherly unanimity, and a constant continuance in the true worship of God, without favouring of idolatry in any respect.

This do the godly in all their churches, and throughout the world, both teach and testify⁴.

Of baptism saith Christ, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." And Peter, "Amend your lives, and be baptized every one, &c., for the remission of sins." Howbeit this faith is not necessarily tied unto the visible signs and sacraments. For

Without the sacraments many have lived and died who pleased God, and are, no doubt, saved, either in respect of their own faith, (as we are to think of all the godly, both men who were born and died afore the institution of circumcision in the wilderness, and in the time of grace, &c., yet by some extremity could not receive the seal of the covenant, and women, who afore and under the law for many years were partakers of no sacrament, and never of one sacrament,) or that be heirs of the promise.

Some have faith, afore they receive any of the sacraments.

Christ hath ordained but two sacraments in his gospel.

The proof from God's word.

A sacrament, according to the etymology of the word (as the schoolmen do write), is a sign of an holy thing. Which being true, then have there been and still are, by so many above either two or seven sacraments, as there be and have been above two or seven things, which are signs of sacred and holy things.

But according to the nature thereof, a sacrament is a covenant of God his favour to manward, confirmed by some outward sign or seal instituted by himself. Which also hath been sometimes special; either to some men, and that extra-

[³ Here we learn that by the sacrament of Baptism also we put on Christ, which is to put on faith, hope, charity and all christian justice.... And the adversaries' evasion that it is faith which worketh in the sacrament, and not the sacrament itself, is plainly false: Baptism giving grace and faith itself to the infant that had none before.—Test. Rhem. Rhemes, 1582. Annot. Gal. iii. 27. p. 504.]

[⁴ Our sacraments of the new law give ex opere operato that grace and justice of faith which here is commended.—Ibid. Marg. Annot. p. 391.]

ordinarily by things natural sometimes, as the tree of life was to Adam, and the rainbow to Noah; and sometimes by things supernatural, as the smoking furnace was to Abraham, the fleece of wool to Gideon, and the dial to Hezekiah; or to some nation, as the sacrifices, circumcision, and the Paschal Lamb, was to the Jews.

And sometimes general to the whole church militant, and ordinary, as in the time of the gospel. And then a sacrament is defined to be a ceremony ordained immediately by Christ himself, who by some earthly and outward element doth promise everlasting favour and felicity to such as with true faith and repentance do receive the same. And such sacraments in the New Testament we find only to be baptism and the Lord's supper.

This is the judgment also of the churches protestant⁶.

The Jews and Turks; for they deny all the sacraments of the church, as we do hold them.

The Euchites⁷, who say, that prayer only, and not the sacraments, are to be used.

The Schwenkfeldians, who contemn not only the word preached, but the sacraments also, as superfluous, depending wholly upon revelations.

The Banisterians⁸, who think there will be a time, and that in this world, when we shall need no sacraments.

That there are seven sacraments, whereof two are voluntary, and at the discretion of men to be taken or not, as matrimony and holy orders; and five are necessary, and must be taken; and of these five, three, to wit, baptism, confirmation, and orders, are but oncc to be taken, because they imprint an indelible character in the soul of the receivers; and four be reiterable, and may often be received, as the sacrament eucharistical, matrimony, penance, and extreme unction, because at their first ministration they leave in the soul no indelible character⁴.

Proposition V

Confirmation is no sacrament.

Touching confirmation, the sentence and judgment of the true church is, that rightly used, as it was in the primitive church, it is no sacrament; but a part of Christian discipline, profitable for the whole church of God. For the ancient confirmation was nothing else than an examination of such as in their infancy had received the sacrament of baptism, and were then, being of good discretion, able to yield an account of their belief, and to testify with their own mouths what their

The popish confirmation all churches of God with us utterly do dislike, as no sacrament at all instituted by Christ⁵.

Errors and adversaries unto this truth.

Contrariwise the synagogue of Rome teacheth that confirmation is a sacrament, whereby the grace that was given in baptism is confirmed and made strong by the seven gifts of the Holy Ghost⁶.

It is an error that confirmation is a sacrament, because it hath no institution from God, which is necessary to all and every sacrament; inasmuch as a sacrament cannot be ordained but by God only, even as the Papists themselves do confess⁴.

To say that popish confirmation is grounded upon God's word is to speak foul untruths. For in the scripture there is mention neither of the matter, that it must be chrism, and that made of oil-olive and balm, and the same consecrated of a bishop; nor of the form, that either a bishop must sign the party to be baptized with the sign of the cross, or that a godfather, &c. must be thereat; nor of the minister, that of necessity he must be a bishop that is to confirm; nor of the effects, that thereby sins are pardoned and released, and baptism consummated and made perfect.

It is an error to say there is any other ointment given to the strengthening of the church militant besides the Holy Ghost, 1 Joh. ii. 27.

It is an error to maintain that any bishop can give heavenly graces to any creature.

It is an error to ascribe salvation unto chrism, and not only unto Christ.

It savoureth of Donatism to measure the dignity of the sacraments by the worthiness of the ministers.

It is an error to say that men cannot be perfect Christians without popish confirmation.

It is an error that by confirmation the Holy Ghost is given to the full.

Proposition VI.

Penance is no sacrament.

Touching penance the Papists do publish four things to be noted, whereof none of them is truly grounded upon the word of God.

First, the matter, which they do say is partly the actions of the person penitent, which are sufficient contrition of his heart, perfect confession of all his sins, and that in particular with all the circumstances, as of time, place, &c., and satisfaction by deeds, which maketh an amends for all his offences; and partly the absolution of the priest.

Canis. Catech. cap. 4.
Catech. Frid.
de Pœnit

Secondly, the form, which in the priest is the words of absolution which he uttereth over the sinner: in the person penitent, it is his kneeling down at the priest's feet, his making the sign of the cross upon his breast, and his saying Benedicite, to his ghostly father. The priest (say they) beareth the person of God, and is the lawful judge over the penitent; and may both absolve from the guilt of sin and inflict a punishment according to the offence¹.

Thirdly, the minister, who ordinarily is the curate of every parish, but extraordinarily and in the time of extreme necessity, or by licence, is any priest. And yet some sins are so grievous, as none may absolve but either the bishop or his penitentiary; as the crime of incest, breaking of vows, church-robbing, heresy, adultery: and some again none remit, or pardon, but the pope only or his legate; as burning of churches, violent striking a priest, counterfeiting of the pope's bulls, &c.

Fourthly, and last of all, the effect. Hereby, they say, the penitent sinner is purged, absolved, and made as clean from all sin as when he was newly baptized, and, besides, enriched with spiritual gifts and graces.

The consideration hereof hath moved, besides the church of England, all other churches reformed, to shew their detestation of this new sacrament, as having no warrant from God's word².

The blasphemies are outrageous, and the errors many and monstrous, comprised in this doctrine of popish penance. For neither can the matter of this their sacrament, nor the form, nor the minister, nor the effect, be drawn from the word of God.

They say penance is a sacrament, and yet can they shew no element it hath to make it a sacrament.

Their contrition is against the truth: for no man is, or can be, sufficiently contrite for his sins.

To confess all sins, and that one after another with all circumstances, unto a priest, as it is impossible, so is it never enjoined by God, nor hath ever been practised by any of God's saints.

That any man in any measure can satisfy for his sins, it is blasphemy to say, and against the merits of Christ. And yet do the Papists teach it, as also that one man may satisfy for another³.

in Col. i. 24.

An untruth is it, that any priest, bishop, or pope, hath power at his will to forgive sins; or can enjoin any punishment that can make an amends unto God for the least offence.

If penance purge men, and make them clean from all sin, then is there a time, and that very often in this life, when men in this life be perfect; which tendeth greatly to the error of the Catharans, Donatists, and Pelagians.

The doctrine of the Papists, that such persons as willingly depart out of this world without their shrift are damned, is damnable doctrine, and to be eschewed: and yet is it dispersed everywhere in their books⁴.

Proposition VII.

Orders is no sacrament.

The church of England, and of other places reformed, do acknowledge an order of making ministers in the church of God, where all things are to be done by order. But that order is a sacrament, none but disordered Papists will say: and yet they observe none order in speaking of the same; for among them

Canis. Catec.

Some do make seven orders; whereof some they call inferior, and some superior: the inferior be the order, first, of porters, whose office is to keep the door, to expel the wicked, and to let in the faithful; next, exorcists, or conjurers, which have power to expel the devils; thirdly, lectors, or readers, who are to read lessons, and books in the church; and fourthly, acolytes, or candle-bearers, whose office is to bear cruets to the altar with wine and water, and to carry about candles and tapers¹.

penance: without which sacrament in act or in will, they that have committed mortal sin cannot be saved.—Vaux, Catech. Antv. 1574. ch. iv. p. 68.

Etenim sic statuunt fideles, oportere eum, qui mortali scelere premitur, confessionis sacramento ad spiritualem vitam revocandum esse: quod quidem pulcherrima translatione a Domino aperte significatum videmus; cum hujus sacramenti administrandi potestatem clavem regni cœlorum appellavit. Ut enim locum aliquem ingredi nemo potest sine ejus opera cui claves commissæ sunt, sic intelligimus neminem in cœlum admitti, nisi fores a sacerdotibus quorum fidei claves Dominus tradidit, aperiantur.—Catech. Concil. Trident. Rom. 1566. p. 175.

Among all the sins against the Holy Ghost (which are commonly reckoned six) one only shall never be forgiven, that is dying without repentance wilfully, called final impenitence. Which sin he committeth that dieth with contempt of the Sacrament of Penance, obstinately refusing absolution by the church's ministry.—Test. Rhem. Ann. Matt. xii. 31. The catholic religion teacheth confession to a priest of all deadly sins which we can remember, under pain of damnation, &c.—Hill's Quartron of Reasons. Reason 13. p. 65.

Generatim quidem minores ordines, majoresque continet: minores scilicet quatuor, Ostiariorum, Lectorum, Exorcistarum, et Acolytorum: majores vero tres, nempe Subdiaconorum, Diaconorum ac Presbyterorum.—Canis. Catech. p. 388. cap. iv. De Ordinis Sac. Quæst. iv. An account of the different orders, and their offices, is given in the "Testimonia" subjoined to this "Quæstio." The following are the passages which seem to be referred to in the text. Ostiarum sunt qui in veteri testamento janitores templi vocabantur, &c.—Hi denique inter sanctum et iniquum discernentes, eos tantum in ecclesia qui sunt fideles recipiunt.—Habent enim in potestate tam bonos recipiendi quam rejiciendi indignos (Isidor. Hispalen. de Off. Eccl. Lib. ix. cap. 14). Exorcistæ. Invocant super catechumenos, vel super eos qui habent spiritum inmundum, nomen Domini Jesu, adjurant per eum ut egrediat ab eis (Raban.

The superior is the order of sub-deacons, deacons, and of priests. The sub-deacons are to read the epistle at service-time, to prepare necessaries for ministration, and to assist the priest in ministration. The deacon's duty is to read the gospel, and also to assist the priest in ministration. The priest his part and office is, to minister sacraments, that is to say, baptism, penance, the Eucharist, and to sacrifice for the quick and the dead, anointing of the sick, and matrimony.

Others, numbering the seven sacraments, do quite overpass in silence the sacrament of order, and in place thereof mention the sacrament of priesthood, as Vaux²; of bishopdom, as Hugh the cardinal³; of archbishopdom, as W Paris³.

These seven orders, say some papists, as Lombard⁴, are seven sacraments; which, added to the other six, make thirteen sacraments; and are from Christ and his apostles' time⁵, yea, were instituted even by Christ himself⁶.

Which their assertions are besides the word of God. For in the holy Scripture Matrimony is a state of life holy and honourable among all men. Howbeit to say that the same is a sacrament instituted, and that by Christ, as the Papists⁴ do, we cannot be induced, and that for divers reasons.

For marriage, or the wedded state, was never commanded by God to be taken for a sacrament.

Again, it hath neither outward element, nor prescribed form, nor promise of salvation, as a sacrament should, and baptism and the Lord's supper have.

Besides, matrimony may be entered into or not, at our discretion. But it is not at our choice to be partakers, or not to participate of the sacraments, if we may come by them.

Moreover, matrimony was ordained even by God himself in the time of man's innocency; but the sacraments of the New Testament were instituted by Christ.

Finally, it was no sacrament to the fathers afore, and in the time of the law; and therefore is no sacrament to us.

Hereunto subscribe the churches of God elsewhere⁵; all of us opposing ourselves against the manifold adversaries of this truth: whereof

Some have too highly conceived of the wedded state; such are the papists, when they will have it to be a sacrament, as hath been said; and such were the Vigilantian bishops⁶, who would take no men into the clergy except they would be married first.

Others again too basely and badly think of matrimony, defending (some of them) how it is not meet

Proposition IX.

Extreme unction is no sacrament.

The Papists do take anointing of the sick (which they call extreme unction) for a sacrament⁸: whereof (as they write)

The matter is oil hallowed by a bishop, wherewith the sick person is anointed upon the eyes, ears, mouth, nose, hands, and feet⁹.

The form is the words which the priest speaketh, when he doth anoint the sick person in the foresaid places, saying, “By this oil God forgive thee thy sins which thou hast committed by thine eyes, nose, ears, and mouth, by thine hands, and by thy feet: all the angels, archangels, patriarchs, prophets, apostles, evangelists, martyrs, confessors, virgins, widows, infants, heal thee¹⁰.”

The minister thereof usually is a priest, but may be any other Christian¹¹.

The effect of anointing is to purge and put away venial sins, committed by mispending of our senses; as also sins forgotten¹.

In this antichristian doctrine many errors be contained. For,

In respect of the matter, the Papists make of greasy matter a spiritual ointment; whereas there is none ointment spiritual but the Holy Ghost.

In respect of the form, the only propitiator and mediator between God and man, Christ Jesus, is blasphemed, and the merit and power of his death ascribed unto greasy oil. Besides, Christ is not acknowledged for the only Saviour of mankind, and physician of our souls; but other physicians be called upon besides him.

In respect of the minister, they hold how any man hath power to forgive sins; which belongeth unto God alone: also, that other men, yea women (and not the ministers of the word only) may be ministers of the sacraments.

In respect of the effect, they teach us (which is utterly untrue) that neither all sins be mortal, nor that Christ hath cleansed such as be his from all their sins by his precious blood.

Proposition X.

The sacraments are not to be abused, but rightly to be used of us all.

The proof from God's word.

In the word of God the right use of the sacraments, and the ends of their institution, are evidently set down. For,

Matt. xxviii.

This truth do the churches reformed by their confession subscribe unto².

Then greatly do they sin, who either do not use the sacraments at all, as do the Schwenkfeldians³; or minister them but unto whom they list; so is baptism of the Servetians⁴ and Anabaptists⁵ ministered only unto elder persons, and denied unto infants; and so is the same sacrament of the Marcionites⁶ ministered unto single persons, but denied unto married folks.

Proposition XI.

All which receive the sacraments receive not therewithal the things signified by the sacraments.

The proof from God's word.

We read in the holy Scripture, that

Some persons do receive the sacraments, and the things signified by the sacraments, which are the remission of sins, and other spiritual graces from God : and so received was the sacrament of baptism of Cornelius ; and the Lord's supper, of the good disciples, and the goodly Corinthians.

Acts x. 47. Matt. xxvi. 26, &c. 1 Cor. xi. 22. Acts viii. 13. John xiii. 26. 1 Cor. xi. 27, &c.

Some again receive the sacraments, but not the things by them signified : so received was baptism of Simon Magus, and the Lord's Supper of Judas ; and so receive the atheists, libertines, and impenitent persons.

And some receive not the sacraments at all, and yet are partakers of the things by the sacraments signified : such a communicant was the thief upon the cross.

Luke xxiii. 43, 44.

This maketh us to conceive well both of those men and women, which would, and yet cannot, communicate in the public and christian assemblies, and of the children of christian parents, which depart this world unbaptized.

Furthermore, it is apparent how

Salvation is promised to such as are baptized ; yet not simply in respect of their baptism, but if they do believe.

Mark xvi. 16.

Again, St Paul saith, " Whosoever shall eat the bread, or drink the cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of Christ."

Of the unworthiness of the ministers, which hinders not the effect of the sacraments.

Although in the visible Church the evil be ever mingled with the good, and sometimes the evil have chief authority in the ministration of the Word and Sacraments: yet forasmuch as they do not the same in their own name, but in Christ's, and do minister by his commission and authority, (1) we may use their ministry, both in hearing the Word of God, and in the receiving the Sacraments. Neither is the effect of Christ's ordinance taken away by their wickedness, nor the grace of God's gifts diminished from such, as by faith, and rightly, do receive the sacraments ministered unto them; which are effectual, because of Christ's institution and promise, although they be ministred by evil men.

[² ...the sacraments give grace ex opere operato, that is, by the force and virtue of the work and word done and said in the sacrament.—Ibid. Marg. Annot. p. 357.]

Nevertheless, it appertaineth to the discipline of the Church, that (2) enquiry be made of evil ministers, and that they be accused by those that have knowledge of their offences; and finally being found guilty, by just judgment be deposed.

The propositions.

1. The effect of the word and sacraments is not hindered by the badness of ministers.
2. Evil ministers are to be searched out, convicted, and deposed; but orderly, and by the discipline of the church.

Proposition I.

The effect of the word and sacraments is not hindered by the badness of ministers.

The proof from God's word.

Of the ministers ecclesiastical the church is to conceive neither too sinisterly, as though their unworthiness could make the word and sacraments the less effectual to such as worthily do hear, and receive them: nor, on the other side, too highly, as if the dignity of their calling were cause good enough, that what they do, or say, ex opere operato, take happy effects.

These things from the Scriptures are manifest; which teach us, that wicked ministers, even the scribes and Pharisees sitting in Moses' chair, and preaching Christ, though through envy, strife, and contention, are to be heard; and many administer the sacraments, as did the ordinary priests among the Jews, whereof very many, both afore and after that our Saviour came into the world, were most wicked men: and the best are but the ministers of God, and God's labourers.

Also the purer churches³ bear witness hereunto.

Errors and adversaries to this truth.

The due consideration of the premises will both settle us the more firmly in the truth, and make us the more carefully to abhor all adversaries thereof; as in old time were the Donatists and the Petilians, who taught that the sacraments are holy when they be administered by holy men, but not else¹: also the Apostolics, or Henricians, who had a fancy that he was no bishop which was a wicked man².

Of Baptism.

(1) Baptism is not only a sign of profession, and mark of difference, whereby christian men are discerned from other that be not christened, but (2) it is also a sign of Regeneration, or New-birth, whereby, as by an instrument, they that receive baptism rightly, are grafted into the church, the promises of the forgiveness of sin, and of our adoption to be the sons of God by the Holy Ghost, are visibly signed and sealed; faith is confirmed, and grace increased by virtue of prayer unto God.

(3) The Baptism of young children is in any wise to be retained in the Church, as most agreeable with the institution of Christ.

The propositions.

1. Baptism is a sign of profession, and mark of difference, whereby Christians are discerned from other men that be no Christians.

2. Baptism is a sign or seal of the regeneration, or new birth of Christians.

3. Infants and young children, by the word of God, are to be baptized.

Proposition I.

Baptism is a sign of profession, and mark of difference, whereby Christians are discerned from other men that be no Christians.

The proof from God's word.

How the sacraments are tokens; and therefore that baptism is a sign of the true church, which be Christians, it is apparent from God's word in the fifth proposition of the nineteenth article foregoing; and the same do the churches of God acknowledge¹.

ARTICLE XXVIII.

Of the Supper of the Lord.

The Supper of the Lord is not only (1) a sign of the love that Christians ought to have among themselves, one to another; but rather (2) it is a sacrament of our redemption by Christ's death: insomuch that to such, as worthily and with faith receive the same, the bread which we break is a partaking of the body of Christ; and likewise the cup of blessing is a partaking of the blood of Christ. (3) Transubstantiation (or the change of the substance of bread and wine) in the Supper of the Lord, cannot be proved by holy writ; but it is repugnant to the plain words of scripture, overthroweth the nature of a sacrament, and hath given occasion to many superstitions. (4) The body of Christ is given, taken, and eaten in the Supper, only after an heavenly and spiritual manner. And the mean whereby the body of Christ is received and eaten in the Supper is faith. (5) The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped.

The propositions.

1. The supper of the Lord is a sign of the love that Christians ought to have among themselves.

2. The Lord's supper is a sacrament of our redemption by Christ's death, and to them, which receive the same worthily by faith, a partaking of the body and blood of Christ.

3. The bread and wine in the Lord's supper be not changed into another substance.

4. The body of Christ is given, taken, and eaten after an heavenly and spiritual, not after a carnal sort.

5. To reserve, carry about, lift up, or worship the sacrament of the Lord's supper, is contrary to the ordinance of Christ.

Proposition I.

The supper of the Lord is a sign of the love that Christians ought to have among themselves.

The proof from God's word.

The supper of the Lord is a token of the love that Christians ought to have among themselves. For which cause it is called the Lord's Table, the Lord's Supper, a Communion of the body of Christ; and they that partake thereof, though they be many, yet are but one bread, and one body.

This is the doctrine of all christian churches¹.

Proposition III.

The bread and wine in the Lord's supper be not changed into another substance.

The proof from God's word.

Transubstantiation, or the change of the substance of bread and wine in the supper of the Lord, we do utterly deny; and the reasons moving us thereunto are, for that it is repugnant to the plain words of the scripture. For

“I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine,” saith our Saviour Christ. Which fruit had it really been either the blood, or, by way of concomitance, the very body and blood of Jesus Christ, then our Lord had eaten himself; which is not only blasphemous to be spoken, but also impossible to be done, and directly against the word of God, where commandment is often given, that the blood with flesh (not of beast, much less of man) must not be eaten.

Transubstantiation besides overthroweth the nature of the sacrament. For where there is no element there can be no sacrament. Because God's word coming unto the element maketh a sacrament.

Finally, it hath been the occasion of much superstition and idolatry. For from hence proceeded the reservation of the transubstantiated bread for sundry superstitious purposes: hence the adoration of the bread, even as God himself, and that both of priest and people: hence the carrying about, in pompous procession, of the wafer-god; and hence the popish feast called Corpus Christi day.

Proposition IV

The Body of Christ is given, taken, and eaten, after an heavenly and spiritual, not after a carnal sort.

The proof from God's word.

The regenerate have in them a double life, one carnal, the other spiritual.

1 Pet. i. 23.

The life carnal and temporary they brought with them into this world: the spiritual was given unto them afterward in their second birth through the word.

John vi. 51.

John vi. 35.

The life carnal and corporal is common to all men, good and bad, and is maintained and preserved by earthly and corruptible bread, common also to all and every man. The life spiritual is peculiar only to God's elect, and is cherished by the bread of life which came down from heaven, which is Jesus Christ, who nourisheth and sustaineth the spiritual life of Christians, being received of them by faith.

Which spiritual bread, that he might the better represent, he hath instituted earthly and visible bread and wine, for a sacrament of his body and blood. Whereby he doth testify, that as verily as we receive the bread with the hands, and chew the same with the teeth and tongue, to the nourishing of this life temporal, even so by faith (which is in place of hands and mouth to the soul) we verily receive the true body, and the true blood of Christ, our only Saviour, to the cherishing of the spiritual life in our souls.

The adversaries unto this truth.

Jointly we withstand the adversaries thereof whosoever; as the Capernaïtes, which thought the flesh of our Lord might be eaten with corporal mouths.

The Synusiasts, or Ubiquitaries^a, which think the body of Christ so is present in the supper, as his said body, with bread and wine, by one and the same mouth, at one and the same time, of all and every communicant, is eaten corporally and received into the belly.

The Metusiasts and Papists^b, which believe the substance of bread and wine is so changed into the substance of Christ his body, as nothing remaineth but the real body of Christ, besides the accidents of bread and wine.

The Symbolists, Figurists, and Significatists, who are of opinion that the faithful at the Lord's supper do receive nothing but naked and bare signs.

^a Aliqui μετουσίασω fugimus, sed in cognatum delabimur συνουσίασω, pani et vino substantiam equidem relinquendo, sed corporale Christi corpus ita coaduniendo, ut substantia substantiam vel localiter, vel definitive, vel repletive, vel omnibus istis modis simul contineat: quod ipsum profecto nil est aliud, quam Transubstantiationis quoddam quasi involucrum, &c.—Jezler De Diutur. bell. Euchar. [Tigur. 1584] p. 18. a.

^b After consecration there is neither bread nor wine left in this sacrament, saith Vaux in his Catech. By virtue of the words of consecration the substance of bread is turned and changed into the very body of Christ; and the substance of wine is turned into the blood of Christ, the Holy Ghost working by a divine power, so that Christ is wholly under the form of bread, and in every part of the Host, being broken, Christ is wholly: also under the form of wine and every part thereof, being separated, Christ is wholly.—Canis. Proposition V.

To reserve, carry about, lift up, or worship the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, is contrary to the ordinance of Christ.

The proof from God's word.

The true and lawful use of this sacrament hath been afore set down; and therefore it may suffice us to be remembered, how the Lord's supper was ordained that the bread should only¹ be broken, and eaten, the cup should only be given, and drunken; and all this done in remembrance of Christ. And so also testify the churches reformed².

And also through cities and towns. For whensoever the pope goeth any journey, the sacramental bread is carried before him on an ambling jennet; as the Persian kings have before them carried their Orsmada, or holy^a fire⁶.

In Spain, even at this day, in the time of the peace between the two mighty kings of Great Britain and Spain, those Englishmen, as meeting the sacrament in the streets will neither do reverence thereunto, nor go aside, nor turn into some house, do fall into the danger of the not holy, but bloody inquisition⁷.

^a See Cerem. Pontif. Lib. i. When the pope goeth from one people to another, he sendeth before him, yea, and sometime a day or two days' journey, his sacrament upon an horse, carrying at his neck a little bell, accompanied with the scum and baggage of the Roman court. Thither go the dishes and spits, old shoes, cauldrons and kettles, and all the scullery of the court, whores, and jesters. Thus the sacrament arriveth, with this honourable train, to the place whither the pope is to come: it there awaiteth his coming, and when the master is known to approach near the people, it goeth forth to receive him. ARTICLE XXIX.

Of the Wicked which do not eat the body and blood of Christ in the use of the Lord's Supper.

The wicked, and such as be void of a lively faith, although they do carnally and visibly press with their teeth (as St Augustine saith) the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ, yet in no wise are they partakers of Christ, but rather, to their condemnation, do eat and drink the sign or sacrament of so great a thing.

The proposition.

The wicked, and such as be void of a lively faith, do not eat the body, nor drink the blood of Jesus Christ, in the use of the Lord's supper.

Errors and adversaries unto this truth.

The adversaries of this doctrine are

The Ubiquitaries, both Lutheran and popish; they saying the very body of Christ, at the Lord's supper, is eaten as well of the wicked as of the godly²; these affirming, that all communicants, bad and good, do eat the very and natural body of Christ Jesus³; they saying that the true and real body of Christ, in, with, under the bread and wine, may be eaten, chewed, and digested, even of Turks, which never were of the church⁴; and these maintaining, that under the form of bread the same true and real body of Christ may be devoured of dogs, hogs, cats, and rats⁵.

ARTICLE XXX.

Of both kinds.

The cup of the Lord is not to be denied to the lay-people; for both the parts of the Lord's Sacrament, by Christ's ordinance and commandment, ought to be ministered to all Christian men.

The proposition.

The people must be partakers, not only of the bread, but also of the wine, when they approach unto the Lord's table.

The proof from God's word.

Our Lord and Saviour Christ hath so instituted his supper, as he will have not only the bread, but also the cup, to be delivered unto all communicants. So find we in the word of God, namely,

That the bread must be given to all, and eaten of all.

The cup is to be given to all, and to be drunken of all.

of the whole world, both original and actual; and there is none other satisfaction for sin but that alone. Wherefore (2) the sacrifice of masses, in the which it was commonly said that the priests did offer Christ for the quick and the dead to have remission of pain and guilt, were blasphemous fables, and dangerous deceits.

The propositions.

1. The blood of Jesus Christ once shed for mankind upon the cross is a perfect redemption, propitiation, and satisfaction for all the sins of the whole world.

2. Sacrifices of the mass are most blasphemous fables and dangerous deceits.

Proposition I.

The blood of Jesus Christ once shed for mankind upon the cross is a perfect redemption, propitiation, and satisfaction for all the sins of the whole world.

The proof from God's word.

Of the benefits redounding unto mankind by Christ his offering up of himself upon the cross, we have in sundry places afore spoken, and by the word of God proved him to be the perfect redemption, propitiation, and satisfaction for all the sins of the whole world, both original and actual.

A sacrifice propitiatory¹ of Jesus Christ really offered to God the Father, and that often, in the honour of dead saints.

A sacrifice², wherein Christ is so gloriously, as it is to be adored, even with divine worship, both of priest and people.

A sacrifice meritorious³ to all them for whom it is offered, although they be not living, but dead; not present, but absent; not endued either with zeal or knowledge, but quite destitute of faith; and that ex opere operato.

Hereby are we to note, first, blasphemous fables. For

It is a fable that the mass is a sacrifice, and that propitiatory; a fable, that a few words of a priest can change bread into a living body, yea, many bodies with their souls, and that of Jesus Christ, God and man; a fable, that one and the same sacrifice is offered in the mass which was offered on the cross; a fable, that the said mass is any whit profitable for the quick, much less for the dead.

Next, dangerous deceits. For hereby men are to believe that Creatures may be adored; contrary to God's word^a.

Christ is often offered; contrary to the scripture^b.

Et quamvis in honorem et memoriam sanctorum nonnullas interdum missas ecclesia celebrare consueverit, non tamen illis sacrificium offerri docet, sed Deo soli qui illos coronavit.—Concil. Trid. The priest offereth up Christ; contrary to the scripture^c.
Sins be forgiven without blood; contrary to the scripture^d.

We are to adore Christ as always present; contrary to the scripture, where we are taught to remember him absent.

The favour of God by money may be purchased from a priest; contrary to the scripture.

All which their fables and deceits do tend to the utter abolishing of true religion. Therefore justly have we and our godly brethren⁴ abandoned the mass.

Accursed then stand those Papists before God which take the mass to be the sacrifice of Christ his body and blood⁵, and “the only sovereign worship due to God in his church⁶.”

ARTICLE XXXII.

Of the Marriage of Priests.

Bishops, priests, and deacons (1) are not commanded by God's law either to vow the estate of single life, or to abstain from marriage; therefore it is lawful also for them, (2) as for all other Christian men, to marry at their own discretion, as they shall judge the same to serve better to godliness.

The propositions.

1. By the word of God it is lawful for bishops, and all other ecclesiastical ministers, to marry at their own discretion.

2. It is lawful by the word of God for all Christian men and women to marry at their own discretion in the fear of God.

Proposition I.

By the word of God it is lawful for bishops, and all other ecclesiastical ministers, to marry at their own discretion.

The proof from God's word.

Neither the single nor the wedded life is enjoined on any man, much less any calling of men, by the word of God. And that ecclesiastical ministers in particular may marry it is evident both from the Old and the New Testament.

From the Old Testament, both by the commandments given unto the priests for the choice of their wives, and by the examples also of the religious priests, as Aaron, Eli, Zacharias, &c., and prophets, which were all married, as it is thought, except Jeremy.

From the New Testament, by the words of St Paul, who saith, "A bishop must be the husband of one wife; one that hath children under obedience." "An elder must be unreprouvable, the husband of one wife, having faithful children." "Deacons must be the husbands of one wife; and have wives that be honest, not evil-speakers, &c.;" and by the example of Peter, Paul, yea, of the apostles, who were all married men, John the evangelist only except, as some think.

All sincere churches and professors subscribe hereunto¹.

Proposition II.

It is lawful by the word of God for all Christian men and women to marry at their own discretion, in the fear of God.

The proof from God's word.

Ibid. 9.

Notwithstanding, in saying that Christians may marry at their discretion, the meaning is not that any may marry, if they think good, either within the degrees of kindred and affinity prohibited by wholesome laws; or without the consent of parents, or of others in the room of parents, if they be under tuition; or to other ends than God hath prefixed.

ARTICLE XXXIII.

Of excommunicate Persons, how they are to be avoided.

That person, (1) which by open denunciation of the Church, is right cut off from the unity of the Church, and excommunicate, ought to be taken of the whole multitude of the faithful as an heathen and publican, (2) until he be openly reconciled by penance, and received into the Church by a judge that hath authority thereto.

The propositions.

1. The person that is rightly by the church excommunicate, is of all the faithful to be taken for an heathen and publican.

Proposition I.

The person that is rightly by the church excommunicate is of all the faithful to be taken for an heathen and publican.

The proof from God's word.

The most severe and uttermost punishment that the visible church can inflict upon the wicked and ungodly of this world is excommunication, which is a part of discipline to be exercised, and that upon urgent occasions; and it is commended unto the church even by God himself, who in his word hath prescribed,

4. Lastly, which favour the right and true excommunication, but exercise it not, being bound thereunto.

Proposition II.

An excommunicate person, truly repenting, is to be received into the church again.

The proof from God's word.

Sundry be the reasons and ends why excommunication is used: as,

That a wicked liver, to the reproach of the gospel, be not suffered among the godly and Christian professors of true religion.

That many good men be not evil spoken of for a few bad.

That good and virtuous persons may not be infected through the continual or much familiarity of the wicked. For, as St Paul saith, "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump."

ARTICLE XXXIV.

Of the Traditions of the Church.

(1) It is not necessary that Traditions and Ceremonies be in all places one, or utterly like; for at all times they have been diverse, and changed, according to the diversity of countries, times, and men's manners, so that nothing be ordained against God's Word. (2) Whosoever through his private judgement willingly and purposely doth openly break the traditions and ceremonies of the Church, (3) which be not repugnant to the Word of God, and be ordained and approved by common authority, ought to be rebuked openly, (that other may fear to do the like) as he that offendeth against the common order of the Church, and woundeth the consciences of the weak brethren. (4) Every particular or national church hath authority to ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies or rites of the Church, ordained only by man's authority, so that all things be done to edifying.

The propositions.

1. Traditions or ceremonies are not necessary to be like and the same in all places.

2. No private man, of a self-will and purposely, may in public violate the traditions and ceremonies of the church, which by common authority be allowed, and are not repugnant to the Word of God.

3. Ceremonies and traditions ordained by authority of man, if they be repugnant to God's word, are not to be kept and observed of any man.

4. Every particular or national church may ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies or rites, ordained only by man's authority, so that all things be done to edifying.

Proposition I.

Traditions and ceremonies are not necessarily to be like, or the same in all places.

The proof from God's word.

If a necessity were laid upon the church of God to observe the same traditions and ceremonies at all times, and in all places, assuredly neither had the ceremonies of the old law been, as they are now, abolished; neither would the apostles ever have given such precedents of altering them, upon special reasons, as they have done.

So nothing therefore be done against the word of God, traditions and ceremonies, according to the diversity of countries and men's manners, may be changed, and divers.

The principal author of all these tragical furies about ceremonial matters was Flacius Illyricus, whose preachings were, that rather than ministers should yield unto the servitude of ceremonies, they should abandon their calling, and give over the ministry, to the end, that princes and magistrates, even for fear of uproars and popular tumults, might be forced at the length to set their ministers free from the observation of all ceremonies, more than they were willing to use ^athemselves¹.

These, and such like, be all flatly forbidden^b. Others are of things by God in his word neither commanded nor forbidden; as of eating or not eating flesh; of wearing or not wearing some apparel; of keeping or not keeping some days holy by abstinence from bodily labour, &c.; the which are not to be observed of any Christian, when for sound doctrine it is delivered that such works either do merit remission of sins, or be the acceptable service of God; or do more please than the observation of the laws prescribed by God himself; or be necessarily to be done, insomuch as they are damned who do them not.

 Christianly under pain of damnation both of soul and body.
 For, say they, (speaking yet of their private and classical injunctions about the Sabbath-day) “The Lord hath com-

To the Christian Reader.

Christian and beloved reader, let me request thee to observe well the first section of the proof of this present proposition; and therein how I speak of ceremonies and traditions apparently impious, among which I do reckon papistical crosses, whereunto the Romanists do attribute divine adoration, as elsewhere in this book, and subscription of mine, I have declared, and could more copiously; but the reliques of a libel of theirs, left in the parish-church of Euborn in Berkshire, anno 1604, sufficiently shall express the thoughts of Papists, touching their cross and crossing; whose words be these:

Now Mr Parson, for your welcome home,
Read these few lines you know not from whom.
You hold cross for an outward token and sign,
And remembrance only in religion thine.
And of the profession the people do make,
For more than this comes to, thou doest it not take.
Yet holy church tells us of holy cross much more³,
Of power and virtue to heal sick and sore;
Of holiness to bless us, and keep us from evil,
From foul fiend to fend us, and save us from devil;

Enchirid. Controv. Col. Agrip. 1608. c. XXI. De Sanct. Cruce, pp. 619-621.]

And of many miracles which holy cross hath wrought,
 All which by tradition to light church hath brought.
 Wherefore holy worship holy church doth it give ;
 And surely so will we, so long as we live.
 Though thou sayest idolatry, and vile superstition,
 Yet we know it is holy church's tradition.
 Holy cross then disgrace not, but bring it in renown,
 For up shall the cross go, and you shall go down.

Of this cross I spake, and meant, and of none other, when I number it among things merely impious and unlawful: and therefore have I not a little wondered at those my brethren, which draw these words of mine in this section unto the cross used in our church at baptism⁵ which I never thought, nor take to be either papistical or impious, because none adoration, not so much as civil, much less divine, is given thereunto, either by our church in general, or of any minister, or member thereof in particular. If they have no other patrons for their not using, or refusing the ceremony of the cross, than myself, they are in an ill case. For both in my judgement and practice I do allow thereof. This their perverting of my words contrary to their sense, and my meaning, telleth me that other men's words and names are but too much abused by them in that book, to the backing of schism and faction in the church and state, which from our souls we do abhor.

Proposition IV.

Every particular, or national church, may ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies, or rites, ordained only by man's authority, so that all things be done to edifying.

It hath pleased our most merciful Lord and Saviour Christ, for the maintenance of his church militant, that two sorts of rites and ceremonies should be used, whereof

Some, God his most excellent Majesty hath himself ordained, as the ceremony of baptism and the Lord's supper: which are till the end of the world, without all addition, diminution, and alteration, with all zeal and religion to be observed.

[⁵ The sign of the Cross also is notoriously known to be abused to superstition and idolatry by the Papists....This hath caused many of our chief divines to condemn the use of it even in Baptism, as Hellopeus, Beza, &c....Thomas Rogers, and others.—An Abridgement of that Booke which the Ministers of Lincoln Diocese delivered to his Majestie, &c. 1605. Argum. r. Except. 2. pp. 29, 30.]

Others be ordained by the authority of each provincial, or national church, and that partly for comeliness, that is to say, that by these helps the people of God the better may be inflamed with a godly zeal; and that soberness and gravity may appear in the well-handling of ecclesiastical matters: and partly for order sake, even that governors may have rules and directions how to govern by; auditors and inferiors may know how to prepare, and behave themselves in sacred assemblies; and a joyful peace may be continued, by the well-ordering of church-affairs.

It sheweth also the boldness of our home adversaries, the Puritan Dominicans, which say, that the church nor no man can take away the liberty (of working six days in the week) from men, and drive them to a necessary rest of the body (upon any day saving the seventh⁴).

Ibid. p. 47.

Again, say these men, the church hath none authority, ordinarily and perpetually, to sanctify any day but the seventh day, which the Lord hath sanctified; nor to set up any day like to the Sabbath-day⁵.

The latter sort, what in them is, quench the people's devotion, and hinder them from frequenting of churches upon all holy-days falling on the week-days, and ordained by the lawful authority of the church.

Touching this article, the greatest matter is not, whether these homilies meant and mentioned do contain doctrine both godly, wholesome, and necessary; but whether homilies, or any apocrypha writings at all, may be read in the open church, and before the congregation; which I think they may, and prove thus.

Great is the excellency, great also the utility, of God's word preached. Therefore saith St Paul, "None can believe without a preacher;" and, "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel." Howbeit the manner of preaching is not always one and the same. For the apostles were to teach as well by the pen as by the lively voice⁶.

ARTICLE XXXVI.

Of Consecration of Bishops and Ministers.

The Book of Consecration (1) of Archbishops and Bishops, and Ordering of Priests and Deacons, set forth in the time of Edward the Sixth, and confirmed at the same time by authority of Parliament, doth contain all things necessary to such Consecration and Ordering: neither hath it anything that of itself is superstitious or ungodly. And therefore (2) whosoever are consecrated or ordered according to the Rites of that Book, since the second year of the aforementioned K. Edward unto this time, or hereafter shall be consecrated or ordered according to the same Rites; we decree all such to be rightly and orderly and lawfully consecrated and ordered.

The propositions.

2. Whosoever be, or shall be consecrated or ordered according to the rites of the Book of Consecration of Archbishops, Bishops, and Ordering of Priests and Deacons, they be rightly, orderly, and lawfully consecrated and ordered.

Proposition I.

It is agreeable to the word of God, and practice of the primitive church, that there should be archbishops, bishops, and such like differences and inequalities of ecclesiastical ministers.

The proof from God's word.

Albeit the terms and titles of archbishops we find not, yet the superiority which they enjoy, and authority which the bishops and the archbishops do exercise, in ordering and consecrating of bishops, and ecclesiastical ministers, is grounded upon the word of God. For we find that

Finally, from the apostles' days hitherto there never wanted a succession of bishops, neither in the east nor western churches, albeit there have been from time to time both mar-prelates, and mock-prelates, to supplant their states, and ill-prelates abusing their functions and places, to the discredit of their calling and profession. The propositions.

1. The king's majesty hath the chief power in this realm of England and other his dominions.

2. The king's majesty hath the chief government of all estates ecclesiastical and civil, in all causes within his dominions.

3. His highness may not execute the ecclesiastical duties of preaching and ministering the sacraments, and yet is to prescribe laws and directions unto all estates, both ecclesiastical and temporal.

4. The king by his authority is to restrain with the material sword, and to punish malefactors.

5. The bishop of Rome hath no jurisdiction in this realm of England (nor other of the king's dominions).

6. By the laws of this realm Christian men, for heinous and grievous offences, may be put to death.

7. It is lawful for Christian men, at the commandment of the magistrate, to wear weapons, and serve in the wars.

Proposition I.

The king's majesty hath the chief power in this realm of England, and other his dominions.

The proof from God's word.

Divers and sundry be the forms of commonweals and magistracy. For some, where many, and they of the inferior people, bear the sway, as in a democracy; some, where a few, and that of choice, and the best men do govern, as in an aristocracy; and some, where one man or woman hath the pre-eminence, as in a monarchy: such is the government of this kingdom.

Notwithstanding whatsoever the government is, either democratical, aristocratical, or monarchical, God's word doth teach us, that

Rom. xiii. 1, 2. "There is no power but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God; and that whosoever resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God."

Tit. iii. 1. "We must be subject to the principalities and powers, and obedient and ready to every good work."

1 Pet. ii. 13. "We must submit ourselves unto all manner of ordinance of man, for the Lord's sake."

1 Tim. ii. 1, 2. "We must pray for kings, and for all that be in authority."

Rom. xiii. 7. Finally, "we must give to all men their duty; tribute to whom tribute; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; and honour to whom honour is due."

But of the monarchical government, special mention is made in the writings of the prophets and apostles.

Isai. xlix. 23. "Kings shall be thy¹ nursing-fathers, and queens shall be thy nurses," saith Isai.

1 Pet. ii. 13. The apostle Peter calleth the king the superior (or him that hath the chief power), as our King James hath in his dominions.

Proposition IV.

The king by his authority is to restrain with the material sword, and to punish malefactors whosoever they be.

The proof from God's word.

The office of the civil magistrate is to restrain, and if need be, to punish according to the quality of their offences, the disturbers of the quiet and peace of the commonweal; and that as occasion shall require, sometimes by force of arms, if the enemies of his state be either foreign or domestical, and they gathered together be many and mighty. To this end kings and princes have both men, munition, subsidies, and tributes. So against the enemies of God and good men went of Israel and Judah the valiant judges and the noble and puissant princes.

And sometimes they execute their wholesome and penal statutes upon the goods, cattle, lands, and bodies of their disorderly and rebellious subjects.

For the king is the minister of God, to take vengeance^{Rom. xiii. 3, 4.} on him that doth evil. Therefore princes are to be feared, not of them which do well, but of such as do wickedly.

And this do the people of God acknowledge to be true⁸.

Proposition V.

The bishop of Rome hath no jurisdiction in this realm of England, (nor other of the king's dominions).

The proof from God's word.

1 Tim. v. 17.

The bishop of Rome, did he, according to the will of God, preach the gospel, labour in the Lord's harvest, divide the word of God aright, minister the sacraments instituted by Christ, and that sincerely, and shew by his life and conversation the good fruits of a godly bishop; doubtless he were worthy of double, yea, of triple honour.

2 Pet. ii. 3.

1 Pet. v. 3.

2 Thess. ii. 4.

Yet will not the word of God, were he never so holy and religious, warrant him any jurisdiction out of his diocese, especially not within this realm; much less when he doth perform no part of a Christian, but every part of an anti-christian bishop, in corrupting the doctrine of the truth with errors and cursed opinions; in polluting the sacraments of Christ by superstitious ceremonies; in persecuting the church and saints with fire and sword; in making merchandise of the souls of men through covetousness; in playing the lord over God's heritage; in sitting in the temple of God, as God,

Proposition VI.

By the laws of this realm Christian men for heinous and grievous offences may be put to death.

The proof from God's word.

As the natures of men be divers, and some sins in some to be imposed upon malefactors, according to the quantity and quality of their offences; and any country and kingdom may punish offenders even with death, if the laws thereof, and their offence, do require it. For Secondly, the hypocritical sectaries, who are bountiful only to those who side with them. Such were, first, the publicans in our Saviour his days; and after them the Manichees, who would minister neither bread nor water unto any hungry and pining beggar, unless he were a ^cManichean⁵.

And such are the Family of Love, who say they are not bound to give alms but to their own sect; and if they do, they give the same to the devil⁶.

ARTICLE XXXIX.

Of a Christian Man's Oath.

As we confess that (1) vain and rash swearing is forbidden christian men by our Lord Jesus Christ, and James his apostle, so we judge that (2) christian religion doth not prohibit, but that a man may swear when the magistrate requireth, in a cause of faith and charity; so it be done according to the prophet's teaching, in justice, judgement, and truth.

The propositions.

1. We may not swear vainly and rashly.
2. A lawful oath may be given and taken, according to the word of God, in justice, judgement, and truth.

Proposition I.

We may not swear vainly and rashly.

The proof from God's word.

The better to avoid vain and rash oaths and swearing, it is good to have in remembrance that which is said by our Saviour Christ and his apostle James.

Matt. v. 34. Our Saviour saith, "Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is the throne of God: nor by the earth; for it is his footstool: nor by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King: nor by thine head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your communication be Yea, yea; Nay, nay."

James v. 12. So the apostle St James: "Before all things, my brethren," (saith he) "swear not, either by the heaven, or by the earth, or by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay, lest ye fall into condemnation."

Conf. Helv. 11. cap. 5. Basil. Art. XI. All churches do, and some in their public writings, condemn vain, rash, and idle oaths¹.

This declareth many sorts of men to be very impious, as,

The wantons, which, for their pleasure, and the covetous worldlings, who, for gain and profit, blush not to take the name of God in vain by idle, rash, and usual oaths.

Next, the Basilidians², Helchisaites³, Priscillianites⁴, and Family of Love, who for ease, and to avoid troubles and persecution, dread not to swear and forswear themselves.

Thirdly, the Papists, whose common guise is to swear either by saints or idols, or by God and creatures together⁵.

Fourthly, the Puritans, who used to swear, though not by God, &c., yet as wickedly, using horrible imprecations, as "I renounce God," "God damn me;" or, as Hacket's manner was, "God confound me⁶."

Lastly, the Bannisterians, who deem it hypocrisy for one Christian to reprove another for common and rash swearing, which are but trifles in their opinions⁷.

Proposition II.

A lawful oath may be given and taken, according to the word of God, in justice, judgement, and truth.

The proof from God's word.

The truth of this doctrine appeareth plentifully in the holy scriptures. For in the same there be both command-

2. Others condemn some kind of oaths, and will not swear, though urged by the magistrate, but when themselves think good; so the Papists. No man, say they, ought to take an oath to accuse a Catholic (a Papist) for his religion⁴,

[⁴ If thou be put to an oath to accuse catholics for serving God as they ought to do, or to utter any innocent man to God's enemies and his, thou oughtest first to refuse such unlawful oaths, but if thou have not courage and constancy so to do, yet know thou that such oaths bind not at all in conscience and law of God, but and such as by oaths accuse Catholics (that is, Papists) are damned. Ibid.

So the Puritans oftentimes either will take no oath at all when it is ministered unto them by authority, if it may turn to the molestation of their brethren⁵, or if they swear (finding their testimony will be hurtful to their cause) they will not deliver their minds after they be sworn⁶.

3. Others, having taken the oath, do foully abuse the same, as the Knights of the Post, like the Turkish Seiti and Chagi⁷, who for a ducat will take a thousand false oaths afore the magistrate; as also the Jesuits, who, in swearing, (which is little better than forswearing) do uti scientia, that is, cunning and equivocations⁸; as also do they who conscientiously and religiously keep not their faith; such are the Quæst. 1602. p. 33. Out of this directing and doing of all things in order ad Deum, and for obedience sake, they frame a new devise, how to make themselves not only above seculars in authority, but also more mundane than any temporal worldling in practice. And this devise is grounded upon a principle amongst them called uti scientia, that is, a rule prescribed unto them (if you please to know it) in plain English, how to learn to shift and live by their wits.—Ibid. p. 68. Their dissimulation appeareth out of their doctrine of equivocation...concerning the treatise of equivocation seen and allowed by Garnet and by Blackwell the arch-priest, wherein under the pretext of the lawfulness of a mixt proposition to express one part of a man's mind and retain another, people are indeed taught not only simple lying, but fearful and damnable blasphemy.—A True Relation of the Proceedings against Garnet, &c. Again, "Faith is not to be kept with heretics²." Which assertion little differeth from the opinion of some Puritans, who teach that promise (or faith) is not to be kept, when (as perhaps by the not erecting of presbyteries in every parish) God's honour and preaching of his word is ^bhindered³.

Finally, whatsoever princes be (good or bad), if they be women (say some), oaths of allegiance unto them are not to be kept. Their words be these,

“First, (as well the states of the kingdom as the common people) they ought to remove from honour and authority that monster in nature, (so call I woman in the habit of man, yea, a woman against nature reigning above man). Secondly, if any presume to defend that impiety they ought not to fear, first to pronounce, and then after to execute against them (that is to say, against women governors) the sentence of death. If any man be afraid to violate the oath of obedience which they have made to such monsters, let them be most assuredly persuaded, that, as the beginning of their oaths proceeding from ignorance was sin, so is the obstinate purpose to keep the same nothing but plain rebellion against God⁸.”
